Reagan orders review of South Africa policy

By SUSANNE M. SHAFER
The Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — President Reagan, in a shift of direction, has ordered a high-level reassessment of U.S. policy toward South Africa where the white-ruled government has imposed a state of emergency, an administration official says.

The review has been geared in part toward opening new avenues of communication to blacks and whites in South Africa, including "low-level" contacts with the outlawed African National Congress, said the official, talking late Saturday on condition he remain anonymous.

U.S. officials have made contact with members of the ANC, the Zambia-based group of black activists that is banned in South Africa, the aide said.

The official, who is participating in the study, ruled out the possibility that Reagan would impose any new economic sanctions as a result of the review, or that any specific steps were imminent.

The primary goal is to encourage a dialogue between the minority white government and its black opposition.

"We are opposed to apartheid... We are also opposed to sanctions," the official said.

The official said the administration has no intention of abandoning its policy of "constructive engagement," a quiet-level diplomatic attempt to seek change in South Africa. But the review and its effort to contact black opposition groups marks a change of direction for the administration.

U.S. policy is being coordinated with the British government of Margaret Thatcher, who, like Reagan, is staunchly opposed to stiff economic sanctions. The United States and Great Britain are two nations who still "have clout" with South African president P.W. Botha, the official said.

The official also noted that the British have established contact with Oliver Tambo, head of the ANC.

The administration's policy review comes about two weeks after the Pretoria government imposed a state of emergency in an effort to quell violence that has left 1,600 people dead in protests against apartheid over the past two years.

Frustrated by events in South Africa and the administration's policies, the House earlier this month approved legislation regulating the total withdrawal of U.S. business interests from South Africa.

The House bill would require total U.S. divestment from South Africa within 180 days of enactment and impose a trade embargo against that country except for key minerals needed by the U.S. defense industry.

The official said Reagan had ordered the review prior to the House vote, and the president has expressed concern about the complex situation in the strategically vital African nation.

CSI cowgirl top college rodeo queen

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Joni James of Jerome is well established, at 19 years of age, as an outstanding athlete.

She has won numerous high school and collegiate honors in basketball, cross-country running and rodeo.

Week before last, in Bozeman, Mont., she brought home another award of a special kind. She won the College National Finals Rodeo queen title, competing against 19 other horsewomen from major colleges around the nation.

With busy schedules of basketball, barrel racing and breakaway roping competition at Jerome High School and the College of Southern Idaho, she hasn't had much time for queen contests in recent years. Last February she decided to do something different and signed up to represent CSI in the queen contest.

"I thought it would be a good learning opportunity and that I would get some experience this year and have a good chance at the title next year," she said.

She won the horsemanship event and scored 189 of 200 points in appearance. To take the event with 640 points out of a possible 625. Judging was based on horsemanship, appearance, personality and the individual's photogenic qualities.

James, who was nearly born on horseback, pleased the seven judges especially with her horsemanship talent and appearance, she said. Her height (5-11) made her stand out in the group, as did some modeling experience that helped her show off a unique, hand-made wardrobe.

Joni and her 15-year-old horse, Missile Joe, a Quarter Horse-Thoroughbred cross, have won four saddles, and numerous belt buckles together. However, for the national college event, Joe stayed home and Joni and other contestants drew from a group of 10 unfamiliar mounts, riding a strange horse in each of the horsemanship events.

Although she didn't think she had the best chance to win in Bozeman, James said she decided to give it her best effort.

"I set my goal in February — to do the very best I could. I wanted the best clothes I could afford, and I worked almost every day on my horsemanship," she said. "I also went to modeling school and I'm glad I did. It helped me a lot."

The hardest part of the competition, she said, was personality. Being somewhat shy, she said she was so nervous during her presentation in the speech event that she forgot some of her well-remembered speech.

She chose the subject of the importance of the sponsor in rodeo competition. She made a puppet figure to discuss the subject with. On about the third page of her speech, she became so nervous she forgot her topic. To cover, the puppet came up with, "Well, you forgot your lines didn't you, dummy?" and saved the day. This impressed the judges with her clever cover-up and gave her back her confidence.

Joni has been competing in horse shows and rodeo competition since she was 2 years old. Last year she reached another of her goals when she ended the season as 1985 Idaho Rodeo Cowboy Association champion barrel racer.

She is busy building a career in the field of medicine and will continue her college next year, probably at Boise State University, while she carries out her responsibilities as the nation's college rodeo representative.

"I know I have a long way to go and a lot of time to spend in school, but I want to be a doctor. I would like to specialize in a single field that would leave some time for my horses," she said.

In addition to her sterling silver belt buckle, crown, saddle and silver bridle, last week's honors included two scholarships of $700 and $300 each. She

Hiring lures aliens

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service called Sunday for penalties against those who hire the illegal aliens who are flooding into the United States.

"Illegal aliens come to the United States for jobs. That's what draws them. That's what we have to deal with," said Alan C. Nelson, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"A lot of illegal aliens do get on welfare and unemployment. We must cope with that," Nelson said on the ABC-TV program, "This Week With David Brinkley."

"We need border enforcement, job market enforcement, entitlement enforcement, and of course continued and better working relations with our foreign neighbors, particularly Mexico," Nelson said.

Cooperation between the United States and Mexico has been improving, he said, particularly in efforts to reduce border violence, stop narcotics smuggling, and track down immigrants from other Central American nations.

Nelson said "immigration is good for this country... but it must be done legally and we must stop the illegal flow which circumvents our legal heritage of immigration."

Nelson recommended expanding the ranks of the border patrol from the current 3,000 officers to 4,000.

For each of the 1.2 million aliens caught at the frontier last year, another came across, he said. That number would grow to 1.8 million next year, he said.

Congress has been grappling with immigration law overhaul for six years and two members of a Senate committee dealing with issue said on the same television program that chances were good for agreement by the end of the year.

Sens. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., and Paul Simon, D-Ill., members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, agreed there should be penalties for employers who hire illegal aliens, although Simpson said the implications required study.

But great disagreements remain between laws now being worked on in the House and the Senate.

Fewer households suffer from crime

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — One in every four American households was touched by a crime in 1985, but a 600,000 fewer households were hit by crime last year than in 1984. In 1985, nearly 22.2 million households experienced a crime, compared to 22.8 million the previous year. The total has been declining since 1982, when nearly 25 million households were affected.

Households with high incomes and those in urban areas were more vulnerable to crime in 1985, as were black households. Crime touched 26 percent of black households, and 20 percent of households with incomes of more than $25,000 and 30 percent of urban households.

One in 13 households was burglarized in 1985 or had a member who was the victim of a rape, robbery or assault committed by a stranger, a category the government agency labeled "high-concern crimes."

The rate of high-concern crimes stood at 10.5 percent of all households in 1981, but declined steadily until 1984. It was unaffected last year.

Inmates ask former congressman questions Hansen 'just one of the boys' in prison

By ROD GRAMER
The Associated Press

PETERSBURG, Va. — People in Idaho knew him as their congressman, but to most of the inmates at the Petersburg Federal Prison Camp he is "George" or "Hansen."

"And that's the way George Hansen wants it."

"I am just one of the boys," Hansen said in an interview this past Wednesday at the camp, 25 miles south of Richmond. "That's the way I have always been, whether I was in Congress... Frankly, I find out you can get along very well with people if you are one of them."

Hansen, a Republican who represented Idaho's 2nd Congressional District for 14 years, entered the prison camp June 20 to serve life to 15 months for improperly reporting his personal finances to the House. Ever since, Hansen's supporters have worked through legal and political channels in an attempt to spring him.

Hansen himself has settled into life as a prison inmate, trying to make the best of the situation, and perhaps even make it come to some good.

The prison camp has no fence or barbed wire around it, and no guard towers like the Federal Correctional Institution a stone's throw away. But to Hansen it is no country club; he likens prison life to being "a bird in a pigeon roost."

"The people, the inmates and the officials, have been very helpful," Hansen said, sitting in a TV room in the dormitory where he lives with 221 other inmates. "They have a little fun with me because I am larger than the average person."

Hansen wore his civilian clothes for four days because prison officials couldn't find clothes to fit his 6-foot-6 frame. Finally, at nearby Fort Lee, they found khaki trousers and white T-shirts — the prison's uniform — large enough to fit.

As of Wednesday, prison officials still had not found size 15 shoes for Hansen. Earlier in the week, Hansen got blisters walking around the camp's jogging track from wearing the wrong shoes.

Some inmates thought that as a former congressman he was getting special treatment because he wore his civilian clothes.

"I understand they turned in a snitch report or two," Hansen said.

But most of the inmates have been friendly and helpful. Some have lent Hansen socks, and other items he could not obtain because he entered the camp on a weekend.

The inmates are generally in different about Hansen being a former congressman. Others ask him about politics.

"Some of them have even remarked that it has been a helpful effect to have me here because a lot of them don't understand the law and the Congress and things like that," Hansen said.

"I've been... to go to quietly friendly and outgoing, so I guess they feel they can ask questions that they haven't been able to go... answers for elsewhere."

Hansen also gets many questions about Idaho. "Most of these people here are from the East Coast. I tell them the federal government owns 66 percent of the state. That kind of amazes them."

As the new guy at the camp, Hansen shares an 8-by-10-foot cubicle. He gets the top bunk. In time, if he maintains good conduct, Hansen can move to the bottom bunk and eventually get

Continued from Page A1. hopes to be able to use the money at BSU in the fall, as she completed her two years at CSI last spring. Joni expects her national duties for college rodeo will mean cutting back a bit on her college schedule, but she doesn't see any need to take an entire year away from school. She will be playing basketball next year and says that will give her three or four extra hours a day, plus some traveling. She returned last Sunday night from Boise and left Friday for Oregon, where she has engagements at two rodeos. Later in the year she will make her official visits to the 11 different divisions of the national college rodeo organization and will attend many major rodeo contests around the nation, including the Miss Rodeo America contest at Las Vegas, Nev. James comes by her enthusiasm for rodeo and queening naturally. Her mother, Karen Lavens James, was Miss Rodeo Idaho and went on to become Miss Rodeo America in 1962. Her parents Jerry and Karen have been involved in raising Apalosa and other breeds of horses throughout their marriage, and both are enthusiastic horse people. Joni said her father told her she might have been born on horseback, as her mother was riding horses almost up to the day of her birth. Karen's experiences as Miss Rodeo America have been a help to many local girls preparing for rodeo queen contests, but she said she tries to stay in the background when her own children are involved. "They have to do it on their own, and I don't want to be an influence one way or another," she said. In Boise, she said, she and Joni met only in passing and talked by telephone. She did not coach her or get involved in the various contests, other than as a spectator. That the parents were excited with her winning, however, is evident in a video tape they shot at the event. Although Joni's strong area is horsemanship, she was not aware she had won that division until after she was named the overall winner on Saturday night. Karen was filming the contest from the audience. When the loudspeaker announced the CSI candidate was the winner, Karen said she began jumping up and down screaming. "I forgot to shut off the camera, but I did calm down long enough to film her victory ride around the arena," the proud mother said. Joni hasn't decided about further rodeo queen titles yet, but she is only 19 years old now and can enter Miss Rodeo Idaho competition until age 24. She said she might find time for that in the next few years, or there might be a mother-daughter Miss Rodeo America team to go down in the history of the event. And if Joni doesn't make it, her 10-year-old sister, Julie, has already decided she would like to wear that crown. While Justin James, the only boy in the family, won't be after any queen titles, he, too, is enthusiastic about rodeo and horsemanship competition.

Blackbird to fill Lannen seat

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Unity and enthusiasm were the bywords of Idaho's Democrats Sunday as they spent the first day of the biennial convention at a posh weekend resort here. In a competitive note to the convention, Mike Kellogg of Kellogg was chosen by 58 members of the 4th Legislative District to run for the fabled seat left vacant by the death of Sen. Vernon Lannen, D-Pinehurst. Gov. John Evans also announced that he has selected Blackbird to fill Lannen's position until the November ballot.

Libya says flier's body found

LONDON (AP) — Libya Radio, in a report monitored in London, said Sunday night that the body of a second American airliner has washed ashore near Benghazi. The broadcast quoted the Libyan news agency Jana as saying the body was that of the pilot of a warplane shot down by Libyan anti-aircraft fire during "the barbaric American-NATO aggression" on April 15 when U.S. jets attacked Tripoli, the capital, and Benghazi. The brief report noted that the body of an American pilot had been found on May 6 on the beach near the city of al-Zawayah, 32 miles west of Tripoli.

U.S. weighs Gorbachev offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is seriously weighing a compromise offer from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's on medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, officials say. Gorbachev's proposal was contained in a private letter delivered last week to President Reagan by Yuri Dubinin, the new Soviet ambassador to the United States, according to an official who spoke late Saturday on condition of anonymity. Dubinin presented his credentials at the White House last Monday.

Moderate warns civil war near

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Surrounded by stamping supporters waving tribal clubs in Soweto, Mangosuthu Buthelezi, the country's main moderate black leader, warned Sunday of civil war between blacks — while new clashes flared. Youth hurls stones and a gasoline bomb as buses carrying Buthelezi's Zulu tribe supporters left Soweto's Jabulani stadium after a five-hour rally, causing a three-bus pileup in which 34 people were injured, witnesses and the government reported. Witnesses said five men were killed at a migrant workers' hostel in running battles with clubs and spears between Zulus and other tribes people.

Hansen

Continued from Page A1. private cubicle. Hansen's bubble, like all others at the prison, has a small desk, closet, chair and window. Hansen "likes" his roommate, a black man who is serving time for an offense he committed in the Army. The biggest problem with the living arrangement is the bunk bed. "That's one of the toughest things for somebody like me to be cause I am so tall and these are kind of Army-like cots," said Hansen, who served in the Air Force. "They have bars for support through them and if you have any weight you are sleeping on two bars. Then I've got about six inches of feet that stick too far out. But you get what everybody else gets and you just learn to sleep like a pretzel." Hansen eventually will be assigned a full-time job, either refinishing furniture for federal executives or doing maintenance work. During his first week, he did odd chores — cleaning bathrooms, dusting furniture in the library and buffing floors. Hansen said he was not given any work at the prison. "You make sure your area is cleaned and waxed, that the beds are made properly to certain specifications, that your shoes and clothes and everything else are properly handled," Hansen said. "You just kind of float and do what they tell you to do."

He got what you get." Hansen said he felt no emotion when he entered the prison. "Having been in politics for so many years, you are so used to going on to new things and unfamiliar things that you don't get the old problem of having a lot of emotional surging." Besides, Hansen said, he was in a lot worse places when he traveled the world to try to free Americans, including the hostages in Iran and a man from Idaho who was jailed on drug charges in Bolivia. Hansen said it was not a hard transition from the halls of Congress to a federal prison. "Some people get caught up, I suppose, in their status and they can't handle what they consider to be an indignity or something else. But I see a challenge here. I really do." Still, Hansen is struck by the irony of his situation. "I have gone all over the world to get people out of jail. And even into this country. And I think it's ironic. But on the other hand, am I any better than they?" His answer is no. "There have been a lot better people than I am in jail, whether it's for political or religious causes," Hansen said. "There have been prophets and martyrs all through the years. And generally it has been all the hands of government, which says something. "Even though you need government, government can get pretty heavy-handed against some people. So if it can happen to better people than me, am I to say I am too good to have it happen to me? I guess I can't." Hansen continues to rail against the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service and Federal Judge Joyce Hens Green, who sentenced him to prison. He rereads the details of his case. Asked if he were embarrassed to be in prison, Hansen responded: "It's not an embarrassment because I don't feel guilty or any thing. I'm not in here going around saying, 'I'm not guilty and I shouldn't be here.' There are injustices in this world, and you take it like a man. But that doesn't mean I have to believe it or like it or put up with it. I am still going to fight."

Zech appointed nuclear chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 39-year Navy veteran who spent much of his career sharing underwater living quarters with a nuclear reactor takes over Tuesday as chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Retired Vice Adm. Lando W. Zech Jr., a commission member since July, 1981, is a self-described moderate who talks tough about shutting down unsafe plants and at the same time believes the NRC should cooperate with the nuclear industry where possible.

Zech succeeds Nunzio Palladino and is expected to serve for three years as chairman of the five-member NRC, which oversees the nation's commercial nuclear power program. Some 100 reactors are in operation across the country, and Zech says he has visited 63.

"My experience is that plants are being operated safely. If they weren't, I'd be for shutting them down. But that doesn't mean there is no room for improvements," says Zech, 62.

In an interview and a press briefing last week, the former nuclear submarine commander detailed how he hopes to apply a dose of Navy discipline to the business of nuclear power.

"His first priority is development of performance indicators to analyze and project plant performance. The indicators would keep track of declining performance and provide a basis for shutting down troubled plants, Zech said.

Vice Adm. Lando W. Zech Jr. Named NRC chairman

The agency has in the past received information about problems at specific plants, but often the information was held by one person and not passed on to the full commission, he said.

Current judgments on plant performance are "all subjective," he said. "You need more than that. You need facts. We have them sorted out in different places. We need to bring them together."

Klan, foes rally peacefully

CHICAGO (AP) — Uniformed Ku Klux Klan members proclaiming "White Power" confronted chanting anti-Klan demonstrators for a second consecutive day Sunday, but unlike the previous day the demonstrations were peaceful, police said.

A group of 30 Klan members staged a rally in Lincoln Park on the North Side to protest Gay Pride Week and were met by a crowd of about 40 anti-Klan demonstrators shouting "No Nazis, no KKK, no fascist USA" and other slogans, police said.

Conservative advocate East found dead in own garage

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Sen. John East, an academic and ardent advocate of conservative causes who had planned to retire after nine terms because of illness, was found dead at his home Sunday, an apparent suicide, police said.

East, 55, a Republican and protégé of North Carolina's senior senator, Jesse Helms, was found by an aide in the garage of his home shortly after 8 a.m., said a police statement.

Dr. Lawrence Harris, who conducted an autopsy, said East died of asphyxiation by carbon monoxide.

"The manner of death has all the appearance of suicide, based on the autopsy and the scene," he said.

The senator, who was confined to a wheelchair, was found lying on the floor beside the car, said police Detective Clifton Weatherington. He added, "The car doors were closed. There was no hose attached to the car."

"A note was found at the scene, the contents of which are considered a personal communication between Senator East and his family," said the police statement.

Survivors include East's wife, the former Frisella Sherk, and two daughters, Kathryn and Martha. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

President Reagan, secluded at his mountain-top ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., hailed his long-time conservative ally as a "true patriot."

East "loved his country and was motivated by a deep sense of duty to his fellow man," Reagan said in a statement.

"He was a quiet and effective legislator, who never wavered in his belief in principle and in his determination to keep our country strong," Reagan said.

Helms called East's death "a tragedy of monumental proportions."

"The Senate has lost a brilliant and effective voice for freedom," Helms said in a statement. "He was a profile in courage."

At least one other U.S. senator has committed suicide. Sen. Lester Hunt of Wyoming shot himself in his office in 1954.

"He had been making plans to go back to teaching" and had been reviewing galley proofs of a book, East's press secretary, Gerry Woodruff, told CBS News. "It seemed to us he was making plans for the future."

East, who taught political science at East Carolina University in Greenville before his election, last week agreed to rejoin the faculty in January, after his term expired, ac-

East was picked by Helms to run against incumbent Democrat Robert Morgan in 1980. Helms' political machine raised the money for television ads that boosted East to an upset victory in that bitter race.

The announcement of his retirement touched off a GOP primary fight in which longtime U.S. Rep. James Broyhill, a moderate, defeated David Penderburk, backed by East and Helms. Broyhill, endorsed by East after the primary, faces former governor Terry Sanford in the November election.

East's health had been poor in the months before his announcement. The senator, confined to a wheelchair because of polio when he was 24, was hospitalized early in 1985 for hypothyroidism. He also was hospitalized for treatment of a low white blood cell count and a urinary tract blockage, and missed much of the Senate's work last year.

East was born May 5, 1931, in Springfield, Ill. He was a 1953 Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Carham College, and served as a Marine lieutenant from 1953 to 1955, when he contracted polio.

His first political forays were failures. He lost races in 1966 for the U.S. House and in 1968 for North Carolina secretary of state.

Jaruzelski signals amnesty; riots erupt

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski Sunday by saying that Solidarity's influence had waned and authorities are prepared to free some political prisoners.

But in the western city of Poznan, riot police clashed with thousands of demonstrators marching behind a banner reading "Law, Freedom and Solidarity." Police beat and detained several demonstrators during the march.

The Poznan protest followed a Mass celebrated at the cathedral there by Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Cardinal Jozef Glemp, to mark the 30th anniversary of bloody anti-government protests in the city.

In his sermon, Glemp criticized the government's conduct during the 1956 "food and freedom" riots that left more than 50 people dead.

In Warsaw, about 8,000 people offered prayers for the release of political prisoners and the restoration of the Solidarity trade union at an open-air Mass for the Homeland held each month at the St. Stanislaw Kostka Church.

After the Mass, workers' delegations carrying Solidarity banners marched past the grave of the murdered pro-Solidarity priest, the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, in the church's courtyard. Four secret police officers are serving prison terms ranging from 14 to 25 years in connection with the kidnapping and killing of Popieluszko in October, 1984.

At the graveside people flashed V-for-victory signs at the hundreds of police deployed near the church, but the crowd dispersed peacefully.

The demonstrations came as Jaruzelski addressed 1,776 party delegates gathered at Warsaw's Palace of Culture for the first party congress since Solidarity was crushed by martial law in December 1981.

Jaruzelski attacked the now-outlawed trade federation that was the first free trade union in the Soviet bloc.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev led his country's delegation to Sunday's meeting, indicating Jaruzelski had regained the Soviets confidence after five years of political and social turmoil sparked by the formation of Solidarity.

Gorbachev was applauded warmly as he was introduced.

In his speech, Jaruzelski reaffirmed the Communist Party's desire for good relations with the powerful Catholic church but added, "At the same time we expect and we will demand respect for the constitution and laws."

He said a prisoner release was justified because of growing national unity and "the progressing decomposition and social isolation of anti-state groups."

U.S. oil firms leave Libya

NEW YORK (AP) — Five U.S. oil companies with interests in Libya said they would follow the Reagan administration's orders and be out of the North African nation by Monday.

"The law says we have to cease operations on June 30 and we fully intend to do that," William Ryder, a spokesman for one of the companies, Marathon Oil Co., a unit of U.S. Steel Corp., said late last week.

The other companies are Occidental Petroleum Corp., W.R. Grace & Co., Amerada Hess Corp. and Conoco Inc., which is a subsidiary of Du Pont Co.

For most of the companies, the Monday deadline is primarily a bookkeeping change, since they have not had American workers in Libya for several years.

The Libyan holdings of Amerada Hess, Conoco and Marathon are minority interests each controlled by the Libyan government, Oasis Oil Co. of Libya Inc. Grace and Occidental also hold minority stakes in other oilfield projects in Libya.

Contra aid draws ire of Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said Sunday that increased U.S. aid to Nicaraguan rebels could let loose a major armed conflict in Central America which might involve many countries.

The official news agency Tass denounced the U.S. House of Representatives for approving an additional $100 million in aid to the rebels, known as Contras. The aid was approved, 221-209, on Wednesday. Tass called it a "new and extremely dangerous step."

"That action constitutes the most flagrant breach of international law, of the U.N. charter and of the norms of civilized conduct of states," Tass said.

The news agency accused the Reagan administration of pursuing "a policy of state terrorism... under the cover of hypocritical talk about freedom, democracy and humaneness."

"Washington broadens the material basis for unleashing a large-scale armed conflict in Central America, in which many countries may get involved," Tass said.

Tass called U.S. policy in Nicaragua "a challenge to the entire international community." It noted that aid to the Contras was denounced by the World Court and said such aid contravened efforts by the Contadora Group, consisting of Latin American countries, to find a political solution.

Tass did not mention possible Soviet retaliation for U.S. actions, but said Soviet leaders were convinced only a political solution could bring peace to the region.

The news agency reiterated Moscow's support for Nicaragua.

Italy begins formal talks for coalition

ROME (AP) — President Francesco Cossiga begins formal consultations today to fashion a new government following the resignation of Socialist Premier Bettino Craxi's five-party coalition.

Most politicians say the coalition, brought down by feuding between the two major partners, can be resurrected with a shuffled Cabinet and Craxi remaining as premier. But disagreement arises over how long he should stay on.

Italy's longest-running government since World War II, almost three years, ended Friday night when Craxi resigned a day after losing a secret vote in parliament.

Cossiga, who as premier had to resign in 1980 under similar circumstances, asked Craxi to stay on as caretaker until a new government is formed.

Craxi's government of Socialists, Christian Democrats, Republicans, Social Democrats and Liberals had been in power since Aug. 4, 1983. The 43 previous postwar previous governments lasted an average of less than a year.

The Socialists and Christian Democrats accused each other of causing the collapse, continuing a feud over which party should hold the premiership.

French repair Libyan air defenses

LONDON (AP) — London's Sunday Express reported that a French company is rebuilding and improving Libya's missile radar system, destroyed in the April 15 U.S. air raid.

A French Foreign Ministry official said in Paris the report was "totally without foundation." In keeping with French practice, the official spoke on condition of anonymity. The Sunday Express, a conservative weekly, identified the French company as Thomson CSF, an avionics combine. A company official in France, when asked about the report, pointed to the Foreign Ministry statement and said Thomson CSF has had no military contracts with Libya since 1982.

He said, however, that the company was installing equipment for civil aviation navigation, including radio beacons, at airports in Tripoli and Benghazi, two cities hit in the U.S. strike. "It's equipment to help planes find the airports," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In its report, the newspaper said repairs on the missile radar system were believed to be well advanced. It said the work "will mean that Libya's (French-made) Grotale surface-to-air missiles will not only become operational again, but would be less susceptible to any new American attacks."

Communist off jury

GENOA, Italy (AP) — A Communist lawmaker was removed from the jury in the Achille Lauro trial because he was the subject of a telephone conversation between a local party official and a PLO representative, major newspapers said Sunday.

Silvio Ferrari was dropped from the jury Saturday by Judge Lino Monteverde and will be replaced by an alternate when the trial resumes Tuesday. Fifteen defendants are on trial, including Mohammed Abbas, leader of the Palestine Liberation Front, who allegedly masterminded the Oct. 7 cruise ship hijacking off Egypt. He is a fugitive and one of 10 defendants being tried in their absence.

Ferrari, a Communist Party member of the Genoa provincial legislature, said Friday he was asked to resign from the jury by Genaro De Feo, Genoa's chief prosecutor.

S. Korean wants more open support from U.S.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Dissident leader Kim Dae-jung called on the U.S. government Sunday to openly support the democratic movement here, just as it did in the Philippines.

Otherwise, he said, anti-Americanism will grow among South Koreans.

In an Associated Press interview, Kim also disclosed that for the first time since returning from exile 17 months ago, he has been invited to the U.S. Embassy for next Friday's Independence Day reception.

"It will be my first meeting with the ambassador," the Korean opposition figure said.

He declined to speculate on whether Ambassador Richard Walker's invitation might indicate a change in official American attitude toward Kim.

"It's too early for me to judge," he said.

When Secretary of State George P. Shultz visited Seoul last month and met prominent politicians, neither Kim Dae-jung nor Kim Young-sam — universally recognized as unofficial leaders of the opposition to the military government here — were among these asked to consult with Shultz.

Embassy spokesman John Reed said Sunday the July 4 invitation to Kim "doesn't represent any particular change. . . . It's natural to invite somebody as important as he is."

But Reed acknowledged that the dissident leader, who returned here from three years' exile in the United States in February 1985, was not invited to a similar event last year.

Kim, solidly built, calm and soft-spoken, toughened his tone when questioned about

U.S. policy toward South Korea, where the former general Chun has governed with a firm hand for five years.

"When Secretary of State Shultz came here . . . he said the Chun Doo-hwan regime did a good job developing democracy. But we can't enjoy democratic freedoms. Some 500 people's civil rights, including mine, have not been honored. There are 1,500 political prisoners in prison who advocated democracy. How can we call this an improvement?" Kim asked.

Bundy tries another appeal

MIAMI (AP) — Attorneys for Theodore F. Bundy, who is scheduled to die in two days in Florida's electric chair, said Sunday they will appeal his murder conviction for the slayings of two coeds on Bundy's competence to stand trial and the effectiveness of the dozen or so lawyers who have represented him since his 1978 arrest.

The motion to overturn Bundy's conviction and sentence was delivered to the court Saturday at 7 a.m. MDT, said James Coleman, a

Washington, D.C., attorney who took up Bundy's case with his associate, Polly Nelson, in February.

The hearing on Bundy's appeal is scheduled for 6 a.m. MDT today before Dade Circuit Judge Edward Cowart, who presided over Bundy's trial in 1979 and sentenced the former law student to death.

"We are raising issues that have not been decided by the state court," said Coleman, who is challenging the adequacy of Bundy's competency hearing in 1979 before he stood trial for the Jan. 15, 1978 slayings of two Florida State University sorority sisters in Tallahassee.

Also at issue is the effectiveness of at least 14 lawyers who have represented Bundy through a court record that is now more than 10,000 pages, Coleman said.

Bundy, 39, is on his second death warrant, signed by Gov. Bob Graham on May 22. His March 4 execution date passed when the U.S. Supreme Court granted him a stay and then rejected his appeal May 5.

Hong Kong native wins piano duel

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Hong Kong native Alec Cheln dazzled a capacity crowd of 2,800 with his light-hearted playing of Saint-Saens' Concerto No. 2 in G Minor to win the eighth Utah Symphony Gina Schauer International Piano Competition at Symphony Hall.

Cheln, 33, was selected for the grand prize by an international jury. In all, 58 pianists representing 23 countries were selected from 150 applicants for the 10-days of competition.

Finishing second in the competition was Thomas Duls, 27, West Germany, who played Brahms' Concerto No. 1 in D Minor Friday night. Duls received $5,000 in cash, a silver medal and a summer performance with the Utah Symphony.

Benedetto Lupo, 22, Italy, also playing Friday, finished third with his rendition of Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2 in C Minor. The third-place prize includes a bronze medal and $3,000 in cash.

Jose Ramos-Santana, 29, Puerto Rico, played Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2 in C minor on the final night and finished fourth in the competition.

In fifth place was Frederick Weldy, 33, New York City, who played Concerto No. 1 in E-flat major by Liszt on Friday night. Evelyn Brancart Arad, 32, Rochester, N.Y., finished sixth. She played Beethoven's Concerto No. 4 in G Major.

The event culminated Friday night and Saturday night with the pieces performed by the six finalists playing with the full orchestra. Three of the finalists played Friday and the remaining three played Saturday.

S. Korean wants more open support from U.S.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Dissident leader Kim Dae-jung called on the U.S. government Sunday to openly support the democratic movement here, just as it did in the Philippines.

Otherwise, he said, anti-Americanism will grow among South Koreans.

In an Associated Press interview, Kim also disclosed that for the first time since returning from exile 17 months ago, he has been invited to the U.S. Embassy for next Friday's Independence Day reception.

"It will be my first meeting with the ambassador," the Korean opposition figure said.

He declined to speculate on whether Ambassador Richard Walker's invitation might indicate a change in official American attitude toward Kim.

"It's too early for me to judge," he said.

When Secretary of State George P. Shultz visited Seoul last month and met prominent politicians, neither Kim Dae-jung nor Kim Young-sam — universally recognized as unofficial leaders of the opposition to the military government here — were among those asked to consult with Shultz.

Embassy spokesman John Reed said Sunday the July 4 invitation to Kim "doesn't represent any particular change. . . . It's natural to invite somebody as important as he is."

But Reed acknowledged that the dissident leader, who returned here from three years' exile in the United States in February 1985, was not invited to a similar event last year.

Kim, solidly built, calm and soft-spoken, toughened his tone when questioned about

U.S. policy toward South Korea, where the former general Chun has governed with a firm hand for five years.

"When Secretary of State Shultz came here . . . he said the Chun Doo-hwan regime did a good job developing democracy. But we can't enjoy democratic freedoms. Some 500 people's civil rights, including mine, have not been honored. There are 1,500 political prisoners in prison who advocated democracy. How can we call this an improvement?" Kim asked.

Bundy tries another appeal

MIAMI (AP) — Attorneys for Theodore R. Bundy, who is scheduled to die in two days in Florida's electric chair, said Sunday they will appeal his murder conviction for the slayings of two coeds on Bundy's competence to stand trial and the effectiveness of the dozen or so lawyers who have represented him since his 1978 arrest.

The motion to overturn Bundy's conviction and sentence was delivered to the court Saturday at 7 p.m. MDT, said James Coleman, a

Washington, D.C., attorney who took up Bundy's case with his associate, Polly Nelson, in February.

The hearing on Bundy's appeal is scheduled for 6 a.m. MDT today before Dade Circuit Judge Edward Cowart, who presided over Bundy's trial in 1979 and sentenced the former law student to death.

"We are raising issues that have not been decided by the state court," said Coleman, who is challenging the adequacy of Bundy's competency hearing in 1979 before he stood trial for the Jan. 15, 1978 slayings of two Florida State University sorority sisters in Tallahassee.

Also at issue is the effectiveness of at least 14 lawyers who have represented Bundy through a court record that is now more than 10,000 pages, Coleman said.

Bundy, 39, is on his second death warrant, signed by Gov. Bob Graham on May 22. His March 4 execution date passed when the U.S. Supreme Court granted him a stay and then rejected his appeal May 5.

Hong Kong native wins piano duel

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Hong Kong native Alec Cheln dazzled a capacity crowd of 2,800 with his light-hearted playing of Saint-Saens' Concerto No. 2 in G Minor to win the eighth Utah Symphony Glna Bachauer International Piano Competition at Symphony Hall.

Cheln, 33, was selected for the grand prize by an international jury. In all, 58 pianists representing 23 countries were selected from 183 applicants for the 10-days-of-competition.

Finishing second in the competition was Thomas Duis, 27, West Germany, who played Brahms' Concerto No. 1 in D Minor Friday night. Duis received $5,000 in cash, a silver medal and a summer performance with the Utah Symphony.

Benedetto Lupo, 22, Italy, also playing Friday, finished third with his rendition of Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2 in C Minor. The third-place prize includes a bronze medal and $3,000 in cash.

Jose Ramos-Santana, 29, Puerto Rico, played Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2 in C minor on the final night and finished fourth in the competition.

In fifth place was Frederick Weldy, 33, New York City, who played Concerto No. 1 in E-flat major by Liszt on Friday night. Evelyn Brancart Arad, 32, Rochester, N.Y., finished sixth. She played Beethoven's Concerto No. 4 in G Major.

The event culminated Friday night and Saturday night with the pieces performed by the six finalists playing with the full orchestra. Three of the finalists played Friday and the remaining three played Saturday.

What's what

Does the notion of living alone when you're elderly scare you? Never mind, too personal. Morey mentions it preliminary to a report that 31 out of 100 citizens over age 65 do in fact live alone. Those who do so by choice almost all give the survey takers the same explanation, in effect: I don't want anybody telling me what to do.

People named Steward descend from the Royal Household's Lord Steward of England. No grand position, really. His job was to lay wood in the fireplaces. People named Chamberlain - descending from England's Lord Chamberlain, don't fare much better, might add. That job was to light those fires.

GUNMOLL

Q. Why was any gangster's girlfriend years ago known as a "gun moll"?

A. From the Yiddish "Gonif's Mol-ly" meaning "thief's girl."

You've seen those old-timey tin cups enameled blue. New York City men in 1867 wore collars of metal that looked like that.

Q. Says here you can drown a fish. How?

A. Hold its head out of the water. Fun!

Another thing women did first was judge -- or so suggest the drawings in Egyptian tombs.

To see things, a monkey uses 50 percent of its brain. You and I use 30 percent, about.

Sir George Everest - for whom the unique Mount Everest was named - never saw that one.

Mark Antony was fat.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Both today and tonight brings delays in your interests. Practical effects from your desires are important.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Pushing your ideas won't work. Avoid forceful friends. Steer clear of someone you owe money to.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20): Do nothing about limitations placed upon you. Don't be demanding. Exercise a lot of patience.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid annoying individuals. Be calm at night to help your possibly distressed mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Check worldly plans to avoid making errors later. Use care in going after personal gains.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): A newcomer could give you wrong information, so check on it. Have respect for higher-ups today.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Business affairs are a little difficult to handle. Forget this. Be more concerned with your mate.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 23): Situations today may test your patience. It may be hard to keep any promises you make. Be happy at home.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 21): Find a better way of implying morning routines. Don't argue with partner or co-worker. Avoid trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Energy can make some project work well. Soothe an irate coworker. Do the same with your mate.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Strive for a more pleasant home situation. Make it more attractive and have some fun there.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Soothe a troubled person you are corresponding with. Not a good evening for home entertainment.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Put aside financial affairs today. Take care that you don't have an argument with a neighbor later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she should have a thorough education, slanted along lines of investigation. Your progeny tends to be impulsive in the early years, so see to it that the diet is right and health habits are good.

Aces of 3 wars visit at Yakima Air Fair

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — The pilots came from different wars, different eras and different countries, but they all had one thing in common — each had downed at least five enemy planes.

Among the 20 distinguished guests this weekend at the fourth annual Yakima Air Fair were Saburo Sakai of Japan and U.S. Marine aviator Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, who led the War II legends who had never met before the fair.

Robert Todd, 69, one of five living U.S. aces of World War I, was there to reminisce about joining the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the war. He learned a useful trade as a mechanic. Instead, he learned to fly a Curtiss Jenny plane, received a commission as a second lieutenant and was sent to England.

"When I got behind a German plane, I knew if I fired from 75 yards I would hit it," Todd said.

Todd also recalled checking each bullet in his machine guns. The ammunition was poor, and a jammed gun in a dogfight would leave the pilot at a sitting duck, he said.

Bob Clem, president of the Air Fair, said Saturday that this year's gathering, "Aces, Legends and Heroes," was put together through a "million phone calls" and a lot of tracking down of long-lost wartime pilots.

A crowd of 20,000 showed up Saturday to view model warplanes and watch an aerial exhibition, Clem said.

Army Air Force pilots Clayton Gross of Portland, Ore., and Art Jeffrey of San Jose, Calif., swapped stories of flying escorts for B-17s, the type of bomber piloted by Moxie native Irl Baldwin, who now lives in New Mexico.

Baldwin's B-17, "Hell's Angels," was the first American bomber to complete 25 missions over Europe during World War II. His plane was hit repeatedly by anti-aircraft fire during the missions, but no one on his crew ever collected a Purple Heart for suffering a wound.

Gross and German ace Franz Stigler, a British Columbia resident who also attended, are collaborating on a book.

Steve Ritchie, one of only two aces from the Vietnam War — the other was Gen. Robin Olds — met Marine ace Herbert Valentine and Rex Barber, who shot down Adm. Isoroku Yamamoto, the architect of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Also among those attending the fair were World War II Marine ace Marion Carl, who downed 18 Japanese planes; Army Air Force ace Robert Schimmanski, who claimed 10 aerial victories against the Germans in Europe; and Polish fighter Wildo Urbanowicz, who became an ace in both the European and Pacific theaters of World War II.

Bond's Aston, Goldfinger's Rolls sold off

NEW YORK (AP) — The specially-equipped Aston-Martin driven by Sean Connery in the James Bond classic "Goldfinger" has been sold for $275,000, while the Rolls-Royce driven by the film's evil title character went for $121,000, says Sotheby's auction house.

Anthony V. Pugliese III, the president of the movie-movie FilmTrust Co., bought the silver 1963 Aston-Martin on Saturday for possible use in an upcoming film, said Sotheby's spokesman Matthew Weigman.

The car comes equipped with a variety of Bond extras: Browning machine guns, all splitters, smoke screens, treecutters and seat ejectors.

The Aston-Martin, which weighs more than three tons, can cruise comfortably at 100 mph and tops out at 150 mph.

The Phantom III Rolls-Royce driven by Bond's archrival, Goldfinger, was purchased for $121,000 by Steven Greenburg, co-owner of the New York nightclub The Palladium. The car was custom-built for an English lord in 1937 before it was used in the film, and it too can reach speeds above 100 mph.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new rating is placed between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13." Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is shown as follows:

- General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- No one under 17 admitted.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

Firefighters busy in Utah, California

By The Associated Press

Firefighters in Utah on Sunday began mopping up, hitting the hot spots on a week-old fire that charred 6,500 acres on Pine Valley Mountain, while California crews reported containment of a 700-acre brush and timber fire in Yosemite National Park.

Mitchell flays Leroy's stand on education

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho Lt. Gov. David Leroy's criticism of the state Board of Education is part of a "floating platform" of campaign rhetoric to camouflage the Republican gubernatorial candidate's lack of support for education, says state board member Mike Mitchell of Lewiston.

Mitchell said Friday Leroy has not attended a meeting of the state board since he was elected lieutenant governor four years ago. Leroy defeated Mitchell, a Democrat, in that election.

"It bothers me that, with all the opportunities that existed since he's been in office as a lieutenant governor, he has never attended a board meeting, nor has he given any positive indication of support for education," Mitchell said. "He had every opportunity in the world during this last legislative session to develop a record that he could run on, dealing with education."

Mitchell's comments were in response to Leroy's contention that the current board members are too involved in political and regional partisanship. The lieutenant governor recently called for a reorganization of the state board during an address to Idaho school administrators in Coeur d'Alene.

Bystander killed during argument

MIDVALE, Utah (AP) — A bystander was fatally shot during a neighborhood argument Saturday. Police Chief Gerald Maughan said.

The victim was identified as Saul V. Regalado, 24, Midvale. Maughan said Regalado was shot in the chest with a .30-30 rifle while standing about 50 feet from the argument about 6 p.m.

A juvenile was taken into custody after the shooting, Maughan said.

planned to have the dwindling Pine Valley blaze contained by late Sunday night.

Bevan Killpack, Dixie National Forest spokesman, said the fire had not spread for more than 24 hours, and some of the 550 firefighters on the scene were being sent home.

"The fire looks real good today. The crews are hitting the hot spots, mopping up," Killpack said.

Killpack said hot, dry nighttime winds that have hampered firefighters since the blaze started did not return Saturday night, enabling firefighters to keep the blaze from spreading. Crews had expected winds gusting at more than 40 mph on Saturday.

One of two air tankers and two of the six helicopters used to combat the fire were released Sunday.

Killpack said crews had cleared nine miles of firebreak by hand while bulldozers cleared 10 miles of fireline. Much of the work had to be done by hand because of the steep, rugged terrain, he said.

Remaining work would consist of identifying hot spots with infra-red heat sensors and hitting them with flame retardant dropped from aircraft, Killpack said.

Killpack said firefighters estimated that the fire would be under control, or rendered too cool to risk further spreading, within about a week.

The fire at Glacier Point, 3,200 feet above Yosemite's tourist-crowded main valley, was contained Saturday, said National Park Service spokesman Tom Pimentel. Two minor injuries to firefighters were reported, but no developed property was touched, although some park service buildings were threatened at the point.

Pimentel said as many as 1,000 people were told to leave the area during the emergency, although they did not appear to be in much danger in the fairly wide-open spaces.

City of Rocks draws contrasting opinions

By CLAUDE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News intern

OAKLEY — Effects of possible changes in management of the City of Rocks area were the primary concerns expressed at a public meeting Saturday.

Those concerns surfaced after explanation of three alternatives proposed by the National Park Service to halt degradation of the historic area.

About 40 persons attended the meeting, and one of the principal concerns was the effect of management changes on the rights of cattlemen whose stock is grazed in the area of the scenic geological formation.

The nationally-known site has been in danger of degradation due to various problems which may be solved by a change in management.

The recent deterioration of the area has been due to litter, human waste, vandalism, off-road vehicle use, detrimental rock climbing practices and poor road maintenance.

Todd Graffe, a representative of Idaho Parks and Recreation, said of the degradation of the City of Rocks, "It will get worse with time. The existing situation cannot be expected to improve conditions at the City of Rocks."

The various agencies involved in the park's upkeep had tried to "put our bureaucracies aside to come up with a solution," but found major changes to be impossible with such limited resources, Graffe said.

"Our accomplishments will continue to be modest with the existing situation," he added.

The area in question, defined by maps in the report, totals around 6,600 acres of land. The "core area," or the section of the park most in need of preservation, is roughly half the total area.

The concern voiced most often was the effect of the changes on private landowners within the area defined as the City of Rocks. Cattle grazing would be restricted under any of the proposals.

"I want the area to be preserved, but how much restriction will there be? How is this going to affect me?" demanded City of Rocks landowner and farmer H. Olen Ward.

The answer came from Graffe, who said future effects were too far down the road to predict. "We can only see the situation as a concept at this time. It is not our desire to ruin your way of life or inconvenience you," he said.

Oakley Chamber of Commerce member Steve Milton was less concerned about the effect on the private landowners. "Something has to be done to preserve that area. People can't just ask 'What's going to happen to me?' We're going to have to step on some toes," he said.

Cassia County Commissioner John Adams also felt that preservation was important, but "We must protect the landowners' rights for grazing," he added.

Elaine Hoffman, a special assistant to John Evans, shared with the audience a letter stating the governor's support for the third alternative.

Charles Starnes from the office of Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, said Stallings would appreciate written input from citizens on the City of Rocks.

In September, 1985, U.S. Senate Report 99-41 recognized the significance and continuing degradation of the City of Rocks region and directed the National Park Service to study various management alternatives.

Work on culvert halts day traffic at Balanced Rock

200 truckloads of fill unloaded daily, plus tourist traffic, forced road closure

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — As construction continues on the installation of a new culvert at Salmon Falls Creek, Balanced Rock Road west of Castleford will be closed from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The new culvert will replace a temporary one installed when the original culvert washed away in a May, 1984, flood.

The road closure started last Wednesday and will continue until about July 2. A detour is available, but the road is unmarked and may be confusing to non-area residents, said Nyle Winn, owner of Winn and Co. Inc.

Since April 1, the Buhl construction company has been working on the $450,000 project, initiated by the Twin Falls and Buhl highway districts and mostly financed by the Federal Highway Administration. Installation of a new culvert and road work at the site is 50 percent complete, said Winn.

The company's crews now are adding gravel fill around the two 14-foot-diameter culvert pipes already emplaced.

His company had the option of entirely closing the road for a full month to do the work but decided to leave the road open part of the week because it wasn't fair to the farmers who use the road extensively, Winn said.

As soon as the weather turned hot, however, Winn and his employees also had to deal with about 15 to 20 cars a day belonging to tourists wanting a peek at the nearby Balanced Rock.

The road had to be closed to traffic, however, because 200 truckloads of fill material is unloaded at the site daily, he added. The fill is obtained from a Bureau of Land Management gravel pit about a mile away.

"There is not room for the tourists and us both," Winn said.

But traffic was not the only obstacle to the company.

Before the pipes could be installed, the creek and spring waters feeding it had to be diverted by digging a channel with backhoes, Winn reported.

The diversion was done with the permission of the Idaho Water Resources Department.

About two weeks were spent digging out the area to install the new pipes.

Construction crews found, however, that springs were coming up directly under the place where the pipes had to be installed.

For about a month, crews pumped about 40,000 gallons of water an hour from the pad area, which is the site under the pipe. With too much water in the pad, the dirt and rocks "would turn to mush," Winn said.

To solve the problem, about 18 inches of drain rock covered with a woven heavy plastic filter were placed in the bottom of the channel where the springs were located to allow the spring water to flow underneath the pad, Winn said.

Some blasting took place on the west side of the creek canyon to widen the road about two feet.

Winn said he wasn't alarmed about blasting so near the precariously positioned Balanced Rock because the blasting was conducted a little at a time.

The next and final phase will be paving a stretch of the road and adding a guard rail, Winn said. The paving-work will be sub-contracted to another company.

While the project is proceeding, Balanced Rock Park on the side of the creek will be closed, he said. The road to the county park, washed out during the flood, has to be re-built.

The pipes will have the water capacity of about 3,400 cubic feet per second.

The project had been delayed for months last year because of a disagreement between federal officials and the highway districts over the capacity of the culvert pipe. The federal officials said federal monies only would pay for one pipe, which would be adequate. But the highway district officials wanted a system larger than the original to prevent another flooding incident.

To kick the project into gear, the highway districts decided to provide the funds to pay for a second pipe.

Tons of dirt are hauled down Balanced Rock Grade as the creek crossing takes shape

Parade will mark centennial year

By CAROLYN DILWORTH
Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — Glenn's Ferry will begin its Fourth of July celebration Friday with a 7:45 a.m. flag raising ceremony at the City Park by Troop 24 Boy Scouts.

Following the flag ceremony, Scouts and Cubs will provide a breakfast of pancakes, ham and eggs, hash browns and drinks. The cost will be $3 for adults, and $1.50 for children. Serving time will be from 7 to 10 a.m.

The annual parade, with its centennial theme celebrating Glenn's Ferry's 100th year, is being sponsored by the local emergency medical technician (EMT) unit. It will begin at 11 a.m. at the Elmore County Fairgrounds and end at City Park, where prizes will be awarded.

All senior citizen over 70 will be served a luncheon, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and cooked by Elvina Willis, at the senior citizen center.

Kids will need to catch their frogs and get their running legs ready for games and races at 1 p.m. They will also want to make a trip to the football field, for Clifford Mitchell will be making flights over the field to drop ping pong balls. The 11:50 a.m. drop will be for kids 1-7 with the numbers: 1-50. At noon, numbers 50-100 will be dropped for kids 8-13. There will be one "free ride" ball in each drop; that can be traded in for a free ride; with Mitchell in his plane. Other balls can be traded for prizes at the tree by the bingo booth.

Throughout the day a co-ed softball tournament will be played. Those wanting to be on a team should contact Rosam Gertsch at Hemco, 366-2910 during the day or 366-2867 evenings.

Also in the park will be an all-day flea market, games of chance and a variety of food booths. To carry out the city's centennial theme, hats and souvenirs will be sold throughout the day.

At dusk the Glenn's Ferry Fire Department will have a fireworks display that can be seen near the football field.

Webb takes travel council hot seat

By BOB FREUND,
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Somewhere on hundreds of thousands of glossy brochures beckoning tourists to Idaho is printed the abbreviation "ITC," short for Idaho Travel Council.

The come-hither smiles in the pictures are crafted to convince the traveler that fun awaits in the state's mountains, its cities and even its deserts.

Paying for those scenes is tax money — more than $1.5 million yearly. And, in turn, the scenes have the drawing power to gather income for thousands of travel-oriented businesses, such as motels and restaurants.

The Idaho Travel Council is the state agency that decides which promotions get tax money and which don't. Its seven members pick the winners from projects submitted by local chambers of commerce and other non-profit groups connected to the travel industry.

This week, Chuck Webb, assistant general manager of the Sun Valley Co., takes a seat at the council table after his recent appointment by Gov. John Evans.

For some time, the seat representing the eight counties in south-central Idaho known as "Magicaland" has been a hot one, fought over by two factions.

The Ketchum-Sun Valley area collects as much as 80 percent of Magicaland's receipts from the state's 2-percent hotel-motel-cam-ground tax. Its boosters argue that a large chunk of the travel taxes available from the ITC should be pumped back into promotions for that part of the region. After all, it is the world-famous "destination resort," the major draw in southern Idaho, they say. Few knowledgeable people disagree.

Meanwhile, tourism boosters in the southern reaches of the region, along the Snake River, also are grabbing for a large chunk of the region's promotion cash.

They don't begrudge Sun Valley its spotlight. But they do resent being labeled only a "pass-through" area for travelers on their way to the Sawtooth Mountains or to the scenic national parks of Wyoming or the West Coast.

"What I'm saying is we have something to offer the traveler throughout the Snake River corridor on its own merits," says Nick Cozokos, executive vice president of the Burley Chamber of Commerce.

The state program has neglected some of the smaller resorts and attractions, as well as some of the Snake River Valley's features that could bring in tourism, he says. Cozokos also chairs the Magicaland Regional Travel Committee, a state-created body which includes members from both factions.

The Idaho Travel Council member represents those groups and others in the Magicaland region. Helix Jonas of Ketchum, who steps down this week in favor of Webb, was criticized heavily by the southern contingent during her three-year term. Some felt she didn't push southern Magicaland causes with enough vigor before the ITC, favoring instead the ski interests at the north end of the region.

However, Jonas says she was not appointed to be a cheerleader before the ITC for the region. "I'm not voted in by this region. I'm appointed by the governor. I'm here to look for the interests of the state," she said recently in an interview. Jonas says she concentrated on staying objective. "The only thing is that many times, perhaps, I would know — coming from this region — more detail" about grant applications and the areas they might benefit.

In the past six months or so, the friction has eased, and the ITC's last grant cycle included $114,000 worth of promotion for the southern part of the region.

But the north-south issues also were not forgotten. After Jonas said she would not seek reappointment because of business demands, each faction aggressively pushed its own candidate to the governor.

Webb held support from the influential Ketchum-Sun Valley lobby, Larry Anderson Sr. owner of Anderson's Camp, a campground-RV park near Eden and father of state Sen. Larry Anderson, had the backing of the chambers of

Saylor runs, discards political party labels

RUPERT — Greg Saylor, Minidoka County assessor, has announced his candidacy as an independent for re-election.

Saylor, who was elected to the position in 1982 as a Democrat, and then later switched to the Libertarian Party, said he is discarding all political party labels in his re-election bid.

Saylor said he is running independent of political party endorsements and affiliations because the successful discharge of his job duties is predicated upon qualifications, experience and managerial skills, not political party labels or how much money he spends to retain his position.

Saylor added that good government and teamwork in the courthouse are the result of qualified, knowledgeable officials who understand their statutory duties, not because they may align themselves with a particular political party.

In addition, Saylor said, good government will exist when taxpayers "sweep aside their apathy and misconceptions about the tax

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Smith and Buckner Funeral Home Chapel in Siler City with the Rev. Ward Buckner officiating. Burial will be in the Chatham Memorial Park at Siler City.

Frank L. O'Donnell

KETCHUM — Frank L. O'Donnell, 62, of Claremore, Okla., and formerly of Ketchum, died in Claremore Dec. 2, 1985. He was born May 21, 1916, in Columbus, Kan., and moved to Buhl at an early age and grew up there. He worked as a Sun Valley bus driver and resided in Ketchum until his retirement. He then moved to Arizona where he resided until he wanted to make his home with his son in Claremore.

Surviving are two sons, Frank O'Donnell Jr. of Claremore, and Larry O'Donnell of Schreveport, La.; two sisters, Edith Albersson of Twin Falls and Bessie Gerhardt of Salt Lake City, Utah, and two grandsons. He was preceded in death by his parents, two brothers and two sisters.

The funeral will be conducted at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Wendell Cemetery with the Rev. Wendell Halstrom officiating. Demaray's Janice Chapel is in charge of arrangements.

be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Burley LDS 18th Ward Chapel, with Bishop L.M. Harst officiating. Burial will be in Marian Cemetery. Friends may call at McCulloch's today from 4 to 8:30 p.m., and at the church on Tuesday one hour prior to the time of the funeral.

TWIN FALLS — The funeral for Ida Lavin Lee, 76, of Twin Falls, who died early Friday morning at Mountain View Cemetery, will be held today at 3:30 p.m. in the White Mortuary Chapel, with Bishop Larry Wagman officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park. Friends may call at the mortuary one hour prior to the time of the service to Tuesday. The family suggests memorials to the LDS Church Missionary Fund and they may be left at the mortuary.

TWIN FALLS — The funeral for Alma Edna Shaffer, 78, of Twin Falls, who died Friday at her home, will be held Tuesday at 1 p.m. at White Mortuary Chapel.

Friends may call at the mortuary today from 3 to 8 p.m. and until noon on Tuesday. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park.

Fires HOME move in on Mountain Home

MOUNTAIN HOME — Four range fires, all reportedly man-caused, put the town of Mountain Home in a tizzy Saturday night as out of control flames moved into town, destroying two cars, a few out-buildings, haystacks and fences.

An Elmore County officer said the sheriff's office called out city, rural and Mountain Home Air Force fire departments and even construction equipment and cement trucks filled with water to assist Bureau of Land Management fire crews.

The fires were all out Sunday without burning any homes although the fire was in some backyards and burned fences around homes. Officers said several homeowners burned their houses and other buildings would be lost.

BLM officials said all of the fires began about 8 p.m. Saturday and ranged in size from 500 acres to 3,619 acres. The fire causes were under investigation by county officers Sunday.

City

Continued from Page B1 The NPS organized a planning team comprised of representatives of the different public and private interests in the City of Rocks area.

This team formulated a 60-page report dealing with management alternatives for the City of Rocks. A draft copy of the report, dated June 20, proposes three main solutions to the historical site's deteriorating condition.

The first is to continue with the existing situation with no additional authority or funding.

The second suggestion deals with single-agency management. Four agencies are interested in shouldering the responsibility: the U.S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the National Park Service and the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation.

The third alternative would be to have the site designated by Congress as a National Reserve, only three of which currently exist in the nation. As a National Reserve, the area would be under intergovernmental management.

Travel

Anderson, who also is president of the Idaho Camp Owners Association, stressed good relations with private and public groups and a desire to "make Idaho a destination state, instead of a drive-through state" in a letter to the governor.

Evans, who was advised by Department of Commerce Director David Porter, chose Webb. Porter portrays the choice as reflecting the economic activity of south-central Idaho more than an inter-regional squabble. He notes that Evans appointed Doug Volinier, mayor of Twin Falls and real estate broker, to the Commerce Department's Advisory Council, which handles broad economic issues.

"I've been extremely clear in saying the economic advisory person comes from along the Snake River and the tourism person comes from along the Wood River," Porter says. But Webb also has appeal as a gubernatorial candidate. Born in Twin Falls and raised in Hazelton, he is familiar with the southern reaches of the region. Webb also filled out an unexpired term on the ITC during the last half of 1982 and early part of 1983.

He knows the ITC seat has not yet cooled completely. "I think it's a good thing I know what's going on and that there is somewhat of a rapport built between myself and some of the people on that (Magicaland) committee," he said last week.

At the same time, he says, "I think whatever we do we have to approach it on a realistic basis and see how cost-effective it's going to be."

The ITC's $1.5 million falls short of its needs, state officials say. About half of that goes for projects to promote local regions, such as Magicaland.

Webb, who has worked 10 years with Sun Valley Co., says he also will stress strategy in local and statewide tourism promotions in his vote on the ITC.

"I think... we need to identify markets. There's a limited amount of money," he says. "I think a whole lot of time, effort and thought should be put into what markets we're going to go after."

Despite earlier strains, Webb says he thinks the region can balance its two desires — sustaining Sun Valley's appeal and giving new destinations along the Snake River publicity.

Vacationing parents no picnic for kids

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would be writing to you, but I just had to after reading the letter from the mother who wanted to know how long was too long for a visit with her children.

She kept saying how she was no trouble — she didn't need her own room and liked to spend the day watching game shows, having morning coffee, reading, and going to movies and playing cards. Abby, she may think that is no trouble, but please read on:

My husband and I live in a small two-bedroom apartment, 3,000 miles from my in-laws. They stayed with us for two weeks, and it was the worst two weeks of my life. They acted like they were on vacation and I was the hotel maid. I'm sure they felt that they were perfect houseguests, but that was not the case.

They stayed in the second bedroom and had the TV on constantly (and loudly), which almost drove me crazy, especially when I was trying to work or sleep. When they were not watching TV, they wanted us to go with them to places I had no interest in going to.

If I said I did not want to go, they tried to make me feel guilty about it. Cooking for four is much more work than cooking for two. They offered to help after all the work was done. Let's not forget the digs about my working instead of staying home to clean, cook and raise a family.

Please, Abby, tell parents that if they want a vacation, the best place for them to stay is in a hotel. Sign me ...

as possible. We even plan a few outings during their stay, but we never seem to have enough time together, and when they leave, we are all teary-eyed.

God gave most of us very loving, selfless parents with no guarantee of how long we'll be blessed with them. I hope children everywhere, grown and not-so-grown, will take stock of how much love and respect they give their parents.

Children get only one chance to return some of the love, patience, sacrifice and concern their parents have dished out while raising us, so don't wait until it's too late.

Devices help the arthritic

ATLANTA (AP) — There are many routes to independence for people with arthritis, says the Arthritis Foundation.
For people who have severe disabilities, there are many self-help devices which can restore a large amount of self-sufficiency.
For example, there are long-handled combs, toothbrushes, forks and tongs for people with limited arm or shoulder motion. Built-up spoons, pencils and gadgets can make grasping and manipulating the items easier. Special clothing with Velcro buttons and other adaptations is available to make dressing easier.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Perplexed Mother" who heard through the grapevine that some of her children think she overstates her welcome in their homes: She should ask herself these questions, and be completely honest when answering them:

1. Does Mother invite herself? (It's natural to resent houseguests who come to visit when it's convenient for them without considering their hosts.)

2. Is Mother critical of her married children and their spouses? (Some mothers assume they have a right to criticize their children's cooking, housekeeping, child-rearing, clothing, friends, habits, etc. They refuse to accept their children as the adults they are.)

3. Is Mother inflexible in her habits? (If she cannot tolerate changes in her daily routine, she should stay home. It's unreasonable and rude to expect a whole family to alter its routines to accommodate her. By the way, this applies equally to children visiting their parents.)

4. Does Mother disappear once in a while to allow her children some private time together?

Please print this, Abby. I want to send it to my mother-in-law. She also insists that she's "really no trouble at all."

If that were true, it wouldn't take us weeks to get over one of her "short" visits: So, "Perplexed Mother" — clean up your act, and your children will welcome you with open arms.

— NOT PERPLEXED AT ALL

DEAR NOT PERPLEXED: Head on for the flip side of that problem.

DEAR ABBY: I know that not everyone is what he or she appears to be, but the woman who signed herself "Perplexed Mother" sounds like she's very easy to get along with.

My parents visit us once a year — twice if we're lucky. And when they

Argentina wins another World Cup

By NORMAN CHAD
The Washington Post

MEXICO CITY — It was Diego Maradona who carried Argentina to the World Cup final Sunday. It was his teammates who carried Argentina to the World Cup title.

Jesse Brown, Jorge Valdano and Jorge Burruchaga scored — with Burruchaga's goal coming only three minutes after West Germany had tied the match — as Argentina gained an exciting 3-2 victory for the championship of the 13th World Cup at sold-out Azteca Stadium.

Argentina, which won the Cup at home in 1978, joins West Germany and Uruguay as two-time world champions. Brazil and Italy are the only three-time champions. No European team has won the Cup in the six times it has been played in the Americas.

Argentina's victory served as a redemption of sorts for Maradona, who played poorly in the 1982 Cup despite great expectations. It was redemption for Coach Carlos Bilardo, who was much maligned at home for his tactics and style. And it was redemption for the rest of the Argentine starters, who often were regarded as no more than 10 little men who rode Maradona's magic to victory.

"We were leading, 2-0, and then we had some doubts when there was a tie," Maradona said. "We were hungry for victory; we were determined to fight. The struggle was hard, but then, the sweeter the victory."

Although Maradona did not score, his reign at this World Cup remained unquestioned. West German Coach Franz Beckenbauer's aim was simple: to stop Maradona—the ball as much as possible, and when he got the ball, not to let him get up a head of steam.

The key for Argentina Sunday was that Maradona's teammates finish plays they did not complete in recent matches.

"We tried our best to control Maradona, and to a large extent, we were successful," Beckenbauer said. "But Argentina is not only Maradona. They have 11 world-class players. We knew Burruchaga and Valdano were great players."

Lothar Matthaeus marked Maradona in the first half and Karl-Heinz Foerster had the job in the second half. At times, West Germany treated Maradona as a pothole-filled road treats a car: every few steps, he was clipped or tripped, tussled or trampled, tackled or twisted. But it was 2-0, Argentina, by early in the second half.

The first goal resulted from a free kick after Maradona was fouled. Burruchaga arced a crossing pass from the right side to Brown, who angled in a beautiful header from eight yards in the 21st minute.

It became 2-0 in the 11th minute of the second half as another piece of exquisite teamwork. As he drove in from about 35 yards out, Hector Enrique pushed a delicate pass to his left to Valdano, who dribbled into the penalty area and scored into the right side of the net as goalkeeper Harald Schumacher came out weakly. It was Valdano's fourth Cup goal.

At 2-0, the match appeared to be over. West Germany, however, made it memorable with a gritty comeback, and Argentina made it even more memorable by striking back for the winner so quickly.

First, in the 28th minute of the second half, West Germany's Andreas Brehme had a corner kick from the left side. As it approached the goal mouth, Rudi Voller headed it to the right, and West German captain Karl-Heinz Rummenigge kicked in an easy six-yarder to make it 2-1.

Eight minutes later, the scene was similar. Brehme had a corner kick, which grazed off teammate Thomas Berthold. This time, Voller scored off an easy header right in front of the goal.

It was the first time at this Cup that Argentina had lost a lead. The Argentines looked haggard and disorganized; it appeared as if the West Germans' physical advantage was finally wearing out their opponents.

"We were controlling the game completely," Beckenbauer said. "Argentina was tired and down... But then we just made a mistake. You can try and yell at your players, but they don't always listen. There's 120,000 people there, and they can't hear you."

In the 39th minute of the second half, Maradona passed to Burruchaga as he broke into the clear just beyond midfield. There were no defenders in front of him. Burruchaga veered in from the right to the penalty area, and as fullback

K-boat drivers stir up Burley Regatta finale

But comp jet driver sets speed record.

By RONDA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Rob Irwin of Orange, Calif., won the milk coat top prize and set a speed record in the process to cap the 10th annual Burley Regatta here Sunday.

Irwin, competing in the comp jets class, recorded a top speed of 101 miles per hour Sunday, surpassing the old mark of 90 mph on the Snake River course.

The milk coat prize came off by virtue of Irwin's time of 2 minutes, 56 seconds on the course, which came closest to the American Powerboat Association's posted record for the class.

The boat is given to the driver who comes closest to or exceeds the existing APBA mark.

George Woods Jr. of Sumner, Wash., won the main event in the jet-powered K-boat division, driving K-63 Outlaw. The K-boat drivers compete for the largest share of the Regatta's $15,000 prize money.

Woods recorded the Regatta's fastest time: 2:30.8.

The 1,300-horsepower K-runabouts created soft disturbances Sunday, both in front of fans and behind the scenes.

Bill Paget of La Habra, Calif., had to drive to safety after his boat, K-190, sank outside the No. 2 turn

Paul Grichar of West Covina, Calif., covers the Snake River Course in the Burley Regatta, where he finished third in the pro comp class near Riverfront Park. Paget's boat's prop came off and went through the bottom of the craft, according to official K-boat judge Wendell Page.

The boat stayed partially submerged until a crane was able to remove it.

Behind the scenes, drivers and owners argued over some controversial disqualifications. As a result, George Nordling of Milwaukie, Ore., driving K-200, was pushed up as a top finalist and placed sixth overall.

"There were a few unfortunate disqualifications," said Page, "but overall the races were good."

Winds of between 12 and 23 mph made for rough water, but speeds in all classes were average, according to Regatta officials.

The crowd at Sunday's races was estimated at 6,000.

Coke overdose killed Rogers

By STEVE WILSTEIN
The Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Cocaine killed Cleveland Browns' football star Don Rogers, a toxicologist confirmed Sunday.

Laboratory tests showed that the drug was in Rogers' system when he died of heart failure on Friday, the day before he was to be married, coroner's toxicologist James Beede said.

"Yes, there was cocaine found in the body," Beede said. "Obviously, it was a lethal dose."

The finding supported a statement made Saturday by the pathologist who performed the autopsy that Rogers likely died of a cocaine overdose.

Beede refused further comment, saying he would talk more about the case at a news conference Monday, when the test results will be released.

Pathologist Dr. Joseph Pawlowski, working Sunday at the coroner's office, said the results of tests on Rogers' blood, bile and urine confirmed his belief that Rogers died of a drug overdose, despite numerous statements by friends and teammates of the player that he never used drugs.

Rogers' agent, Steve Arnold, said the player showed some evidence of heart trouble before he was drafted out of UCLA in 1984 and was asked to take a physical stress test by a National Football League scouting group. Rogers passed the test and was selected No. 1 by the Browns, then went on to become the AFC Defensive Rookie of the Year.

"The doctor who treated Rogers' mother, Loretha Rogers, for a heart attack on Saturday speculated that it is quite likely that they suffer from familial premature heart disease," and said "that would be no answer" for Rogers' death if no drugs were found in his system.

However, Browns team physician Dr. John Bergfeld said in Cleveland that Rogers was in perfect health and he knew of no previous heart problem.

"I agree with the Browns' doctor," Pawlowski said Sunday. "There was no evidence of any coronary disease. He appeared to be in excellent health until this happened. Something caused the heart to cease functioning as a pump. Blood accumulated in the lungs and throughout the chest cavity, and that is consistent with a drug overdose."

"He had seizure activity, lapsed into a coma and never regained consciousness, also signs of drug use," Pawlowski said. "The brain looked perfectly normal on the outside. I feel the probable cause of death will prove to be a drug overdose, most likely cocaine."

Rogers' death, coming eight days after the cocaine-related death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, added impetus to nationwide calls for stronger drug testing programs.

Advised of Beede's statement, Browns owner Art Modell responded: "It sounds official, but doesn't it? I was going to wait until Monday morning. Conditionally based on that information, we say that tragically in death Don Rogers may have made more of a contribution to society than he could have on the playing field. Let's hope his passing serves as a warning to those who want to try or have used drugs."

A spokesman for the Rogers family, Cleveland Browns security director Ted Chappelle, said no one in the family wanted to comment on the case.

Chappelle added that Reggie Rogers, the 22-year-old brother of the Browns star defensive back, "has to be stretched at this point because he's starting to be really traumatized." The younger Rogers is a 6-foot-7, 245-pound defensive tackle at the University of Washington.

Police said earlier Sunday they were "not going to lift a finger" to investigate Rogers' death unless toxic tests were conclusive that cocaine was involved. With cocaine confirmed, police homicide detectives will begin that probe.

Scribners collect top honors at T.F. Open

TWIN FALLS — Youth yielded to experience, but later shot back with revenge on Sunday in the open singles divisions of the Times-News Twin Falls Open Tennis Championships.

In the finals of women's open singles, Jacque Scribner of Hailey put together a 6-4, 6-2 effort to defeat Lynette Schultsmeier, a sophomore-to-be at Meridian High School in Boise.

But on the adjacent court at Frontier Field, second-seeded Mark Scribner, the 24-year-old pro at Woodside Racquet Club in Hailey, handed a 6-4, 7-6 loss in men's open singles to fourth-seeded Dar Walters, who at 38 is ranked 33rd in the nation in singles and third in doubles by the U.S. Tennis Association for players 35 and older.

Outside of open competition, Twin Falls players dominated much of the scene.

Terry Newlan defeated Dave Little, 6-0, 6-3, in an all-Twin Falls championship match in men's 4.5 singles.

And in another Twin Falls duel, Linda Baird and Vera Crane downed Phyllis Bulgis and Susan Whitney, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, for the women's 4.0 doubles title.

The Twin Falls pair of Andy Crane and Carolyn Matsuoka brushed by Boise's Rob Welch and Cheryl Frazier, 6-3, 6-4, for the championship in 4.5 mixed doubles.

Tom Baird and Loren Whitney of Twin Falls edged past Dennis Harwick and Dick Conner of Boise, 6-4, 6-3, in men's 4.0 doubles.

For the women's 4.5 singles title, Twin Falls' Maryann Robbins swept past Linda Grim of Boise, 6-1, 6-3.

In the finals of men's open singles, Walters delayed defeat in the second set when he hampered four straight points to tie the contest up at 5 games. But he double faulted after leading 4-3 in the tie-breaker, leaving Scribner to finish things off with two big serves, a 7-4 tie-breaker win and the match.

"I thought he beat me, I didn't beat myself," said Walters, an official with the Idaho State Department of Employment.

Scribner spoke of his opponent's stand near the end of the second set. "At 5-4, he played the best game he's played (by) hitting those four winners," Scribner said of Walters' shots that tied up the set at 5-5.

With greater strength and less age, though, Scribner proved unbeatable with his powerful serve.

"He's just a little bit too strong, and his legs are a little too young," Walters quipped. "I had a hard time picking up my serve," he said. "I'm satisfied... It's fun to play the kids."

Walters came off a grueling semi-final match, beating Lloyd Williamson, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3. Scribner downed John Pades, 6-2, 6-4 in semis.

Jacque Scribner shot off Pocatello's Bobette Carpenter, 7-6, 6-1, in semis to advance to the final with Schultsmeier, who beat Nachele Robier of Nampa, 7-5, 6-2.

Schultsmeier, a tall redhead who placed third in singles at the state high school tennis tournament this spring as a freshman, had a simple explanation for her loss. "I just wasn't playing consistent," she said.

Johnson jumps 7-5 to win TAC jr. title

By The Times-News

BALTIMORE — College of Southern Idaho sophomore Joey Johnson set the national junior TAC outdoor record in the high jump here Sunday, leaping 7 feet, 5 inches to win the event.

Johnson's jump, just 1 1/2 inches short of the American record, came in the finals of the U.S. Junior TAC Track and Field Championships, held on the campus of Towson State College here.

Johnson, who won the National Junior College Athletic Association high jump title six weeks ago with a jump of 7-3 1/2, missed two attempts at 7-6 1/2 here Sunday. Had he made that mark, it would have been a new American record. The world record is 7-10 1/2, set by Igor Paklin of the Soviet Union last September.

Johnson, from Daly City, Calif., was jumping in only the fifth meet of his career. He has not jumped since the juco nationals, which were held the third week of May in Odessa, Texas.

Sunday's performance earned Johnson a spot on the national junior world track team, which competes in the first-ever World Junior Track and Field Championships next month in Athens, Greece.

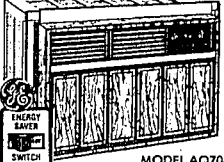

Johnson, a member of CSI's basketball team, is recovering from a knee strain sustained early last week during the CSI basketball camp, where he was a counselor. Johnson is now scheduled to participate in the Junior Pan American Games next week in Orlando, Fla., then accompany a U.S. team for a dual meet against the Romanian national team in Bucharest, Romania, next month.

Johnson has also made the West Basketball team for the National Sports Festival, which begins in Houston July 21.

Although Johnson, who has a vertical leap of 48 inches, considers himself more a basketball player, CSI track coach Rick Neill and others in track and field feel he has a good chance at making the Olympic track team if he concentrates on the high jump.

Argentina wins another World Cup

By NORMAN CHAD
The Washington Post

Argentina's victory served as a redemption of sorts for Maradona, who played poorly in the 1982 Cup despite great expectations. It was redemption for Coach Carlos Bilardo, who was much maligned at home for his tactics and style. And it was redemption for the rest of the Argentine starters, who often were regarded as no more than 10 little men who rode Maradona's magic to victory.

hungry for victory; we were determined to fight. The struggle was hard, but then, the sweeter the victory. Although Maradona did not score, his reign at this World Cup remained unquestioned. West German Coach Franz Beckenbauer's aim was simple: to deny Maradona the ball as much as possible, and when he got the ball, not to let him get up a head of steam. The key for Argentina Sunday was to deny Maradona the ball as much as possible, and when he got the ball, not to let him get up a head of steam. The key for Argentina Sunday was to deny Maradona the ball as much as possible, and when he got the ball, not to let him get up a head of steam.

Lothar Matthaeus marked Maradona in the first half and Karl-Heinz Foerster had the job in the second half. At times, West Germany treated Maradona as a pothole-filled road treats a car; every few steps, he was clipped or tripped, tussled or trampled, tackled or twisted. But it was 2-0, Argentina, by early in the second half. The first goal resulted from a free kick after Maradona was fouled. Buruchaga arced a crossing pass from the right side to Brown, who angled in a beautiful header from eight yards in the 21st minute. It became 2-0 in the 11th minute of the second half on another piece of exquisite teamwork. As he drove in from about 35 yards out, Hector Enrique pushed a delicate pass to his left to Valdano, who dribbled into the penalty area and scored into the right side of the net as goalkeeper Harald Schumacher came out weakly. At 2-0, the match appeared to be over. West Germany, however, made it memorable with a gritty comeback, and Argentina made it even more memorable by striking back for the winner so quickly.

First, in the 29th minute of the second half, West German Andreas Brehme had a corner kick from the left side. As it approached the goal mouth, Rudi Voller headed it to the right, and West German captain Karl-Heinz Rummenigge kicked in an easy six-yarder to make it 2-1. Eight minutes later, the scene was similar: Brehme had a corner kick, which grazed off teammate Thomas Berthold. This time, Voller scored off an easy header right in front of the goal.

It was the first time at this Cup that Argentina had lost a lead. The Argentines looked haggard and disorganized; it appeared as if the West Germans' physical advantage was finally wearing out their opponents. "We were controlling the game completely," Beckenbauer said. "Argentina was tired and down. . . . But then we just made a mistake. You can try and yell at your players, but they don't always listen. There's 120,000 people there, and they can't hear you." In the 39th minute of the second half, Maradona passed to Buruchaga as he broke into the clear just beyond midfield. There were no defenders in front of him. Buruchaga veered in from the right to the penalty area, and as fullback

But comp jet driver sets speed record.

BURLEY — Rob Irwin of Orange, Calif., won the mink coat top prize and set a speed record in the process to cap the 10th annual Burley Regatta here Sunday. Irwin, competing in the comp jets class, recorded a top speed of 101 miles per hour Sunday, surpassing the old mark of 90 mph on the Snake River course. The mink coat prize came by virtue of Irwin's time of 2 minutes, 56 seconds on the course, which came closest to the American Powerboat Association's posted record for the class. The coat is given to the driver who comes closest to or exceeds the existing APBA mark. George Woods Jr. of Sumner, Wash., won the main event in the jet-powered K-boat division, driving K-29 Outlaw. The K-boat drivers compete for the largest share of the Regatta's $15,000 prize money. Woods recorded the 216-gallon's fastest time of 2:30.8. The 1,200-horsepower K-boatboats created great disturbances Sunday, both in front of fans and behind the scenes. Bill Page of La Habra, Calif., had to dive to safety after his boat, K-190, sank outside the No. 2 turn near Riverfront Park. Pagett's boat's prop came off and went through the bottom of the craft, according to official K-boat judge Wendell Page. The boat stayed partially submerged until a crane was able to remove it. Behind the scenes, drivers and owners argued over some controversial disqualifications. As a result, George Nordling of Milwaukie, Ore., driving K-290, was pushed up as a top finalist and placed sixth overall. "There were a few unfortunate disqualifications," said Page, "but overall the races were good." Winds of between 12 and 23 mph made for rough water, but speeds in all classes were average, according to Regatta officials. The crowd at Sunday's races was estimated at 6,000. See REGATTA on Page C2

Coke overdose killed Rogers

By STEVE WILSTEIN
The Associated Press
SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Cocaine killed Cleveland Browns football star Don Rogers, a toxicologist confirmed Sunday. Laboratory tests showed that the drug was in Rogers' system when he died of heart failure on Friday, the day before he was to be married, coroner's toxicologist James Beede said. "Yes, there was cocaine found in the body," Beede said. "Obviously, it is a lethal dose." The finding supported a statement made Saturday by the pathologist who performed the autopsy that Rogers likely died of a cocaine overdose. Beede refused further comment, saying he would talk more about the case at a news conference Monday, when the test results will be released. Pathologist Dr. Joseph Pawlowski, working Sunday at the coroner's office, said the results of tests on Rogers' blood, hair and urine confirmed his belief that Rogers died of a drug overdose, despite numerous statements by friends and teammates of the player that he never used drugs. Rogers' agent, Steve Arnold, said the player showed some evidence of heart trouble before he was drafted out of U.C.L.A. in 1984 and was asked to take a physical stress test by a National Football League scouting group. Rogers passed the test and was selected No. 1 by the Browns, then went on to become the AFC Defensive Rookie of the Year. Murphy ends 11-year slump by earning Canadian honors

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

OSAKVILLE, Ontario — Bob Murphy stood on the back of the 18th green Sunday with the end of an 11-year non-winning string in sight. "I thought I might be able to handle it. All I had to do was 4-or 5-putt from 12 feet," for the Canadian Open Golf Championship, Murphy said. "Then I got very nervous, all tingling, real uptight. I wanted to break up those kind of feelings, so I thought, 'This one is for Momma and the baby.'"

"My wife (Gail) and daughter (15-year-old Kimberly) have stuck with me. They've traveled with me all over the world, convinced I was going to win every week. "This is a very happy occasion. I wish they could have been with me to enjoy it," Murphy said after his patient, carefully-constructed final round of 71 provided him with a three-stroke triumph.

"It's unbelievable fun to do something like this," said Murphy, who played his best hole-in-one possibility that he would never win again.

"Sure, those thoughts occur. "Last year, I made a commitment to my wife that I'd go out for six weeks, and if I didn't play well enough in those six weeks, I'd quit and do something else. Well, I finished fourth the first week and second the next.

"That made me think I could win again," he said.

One by one, all dropped back. A Norman, the Australian who has been on such a rampage in recent months, took a double-bogey 7 on the fourth and eventually settled for second and a new single-season money-winning record.

He birdied the final hole for a 73 and a 283 total. It was worth $64,800 and gave Norman $57,778 for the year, breaking the record of $52,321 set by Curtis Strange last year.

Barr, who was trying to become the first Canadian in 32 years to win this title, hit into the water on the ninth and made double bogey.

Donald bogeyed three out of four holes beginning on the sixth. Trevino bogeyed five of seven at one stretch.

O'Grady, the controversial figure who is appealing a $30,000 fine and 6-week suspension, was the last to disappear.

Immediately after the stormy day, O'Grady, tied for the lead, was short of the green on the par-3 12th, pitched through the green to a bunker, took a double-bogey 5 and flipped his ball into the gallery.

The next ball lasted only two shots. After a good drive, he elected to go for the green on the par-5 15th with a 2-iron second shot. But he bounced it off a rock wall to the edge of Sixteen Mile Creek.

He called it unplayable, angrily threw the ball into the creek and marched back to the fairway. It led to a bogey 5 and his chances were all but gone.

Douglass gets U.S. Senior Open honors

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While Gary Player was lining up a 20-foot birdie putt on the 15th green that would have given him at least a tie for the lead in Sunday's final round of the U.S. Senior Open there was what he called "a tremendous crowd" of 100 spectators and a street crowd of a hundred feet away. It was to be an omen for Player.

Player stepped away from the putt to collect his thoughts, knocked it 6 feet past the pin, then missed again for a three-putt bogey that all but handed the Open championship to Dale Douglass.

Douglass ended up with a 1-stroke victory over Player, thanks to a clutch 5-foot par putt on the 15th after Player missed.

Douglass said, "Gary and Harold (Henning, who finished third) knew that I was hanging on by my fingernails. Yet I did it. It was a very exciting and stressful round for me."

Douglass, a 50-year-old rookie on the Senior Tour, shot a final-round 2-over-par 72 to finish at 5-under-par 278. That broke Miller Barber's previous 72-hole Senior Open scoring record by three shots.

"This has to be the most disappointing I've felt in a major championship," said Player, the Senior Tour's leading money-winner in 1986. "It's a heck of a disappointment to travel back home to South Africa (10,000 miles) and have to think about it."

While Player lamented his bogey at the 15th, it was his iron play which cost him the championship, he said. He hit perfect drives at both the 15th and the 16th, but mediocre 3-irons left him with long putts. And both times he had bogeys.

Henning, who finished third, said, "Gary had a great chance. He had (Douglass) on the hook. But he threw it away."

After Player rolled his first putt past the 15th, all three players were faced with 5-foot par putts.

Snake River Pool wins T.F. 'B' tourney crown

TWIN FALLS — Snake River Pool and Spa of Twin Falls defeated Boese's Rick's Raiders 6-1 in the championship game of the Twin Falls Men's Slowpitch Class B Invitational Tournament Sunday afternoon.

Both finalists earned tie berths by identical 11-6 scores. Snake River Pool and Spa downing 7-Eleven in an all-Twin Falls semifnal while Rick's Raiders powered past Kandler Farms of Ashton in the other preliminary contest.

The locals, displaying a consistent defense, generated the offense when the need was present and never trailed.

After grabbing a 1-0 advantage on a pair of Rick's errors and one single in their first at bat, Snake River Pool and Spa got the winning runs on Bruce Thibodeaux's solo homerun over the left centerfield fence one frame later.

A Boese rally produced too little, too late.

Dave Foller singled with two gone in the Rick's fifth, moved around to third as the ball rolled past an outfielder to the honey, then bopped home on Ken Mahoney's one-bagger.

West's long sacrifice fly in the seventh inning through Miller across with the final tally.

The battle for the third-place trophy went to 7-Eleven, which breezed past Kandler Farms 15-2 in a game played simultaneously with the title game on another diamond.

Although relegated to a third-place finish 7-Eleven led all games with two players, taking individual awards.

Bruce Thibodeaux hit .730 over the twoday tourney to nab leading hitter honors and teammate Mike Anderson claimed the most valuable infielder plaque.

Gary Miller of Snake River Pool and Spa was named most valuable player among the outfielders in the eight-team tournament.

Leading Coors/Falls Brand were right fielder Rolly Foscosco, the tournament MVP, and Cass Herbst, who led the contest in hitting with a .615 batting average.

Coors/Falls Brand defeated Warm Springs 10-3 earlier in the day, before the Wood River Valley squad came up the loser's bracket and into the finals.

PCOCATELLO — For the third time in 50 many years, Coors/Falls Brand — Twin Falls' premier Women's softball team — captured the championship of the Eighth Annual George Stubbs Invitational here Sunday.

The squad beat Warm Springs of Ketchum 10-6 to win the tournament, proceeds of which go to Special Olympics.

Palmer captures Mayflower in OT

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Sandra Palmer made a 12-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole of the $50,000 LPGA Mayflower Classic a sudden-death playoff, producing a victory that excited one of the two women she defeated for the top prize Sunday.

Palmer was tied with Jan Stephenson and Chris Johnson at the end of the regulation 72 holes with an 8-under-par 280.

"She has a real special position in my heart," said Johnson of Palmer, who recalled some encouraging words from the LPGA Tour veteran

Gill, Anderson heat, main winners at M. V. Speedway

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Mike Gill of Twin Falls and Rod Anderson of Burley were the big winners Saturday night at Magie Valley Speedway.

Gill won both the A main event and A heat in the hobby stock class, while Anderson was the winner of both the pro stock heat and the pro main event.

Dan Fairbanks and Gary Mallock of Twin Falls were the main and heat winners in the hobby stock B races.

Action continues on Friday with a special Fourth of July slate of hobby and pro racing, in addition to the Speedway's regular Saturday night slate.

Legion baseball

KETCHUM — Wood River put its Southern Region "B" American Legion baseball record in the black Sunday by sweeping a doubleheader from Mini-Cassia.

The Wolverines won the conference game 19-12, then took the non-league finale 13-8.

The twin-killing left the Wolverines at 4-1 in conference games and 7-7 for the season.

Mini-Cassia fell to 3-7 and 13-16 overall.

In the opener, Wood River pushed across five runs in the fourth inning and nine more in the sixth to put the game away.

In the nightcap, a five-run first inning combined with a three-run second settled the issue.

Hans-Peter Briegel chased him and Schuster del. Jaramel del. the goal crease. The Argentine striker punched the ball into the left side of the net for a 3-2 lead.

"We never were that upset or concerned," Billardo said. "When the match was tied, I asked three players to warm-up. If there had been another (West German) goal, we would have made a change."

Instead, West Germany learned, as Rummenigge put it, "not to indulge in a state of euphoria once you tie the game."

After Burchchaga's goal, West

Germany did not threaten in the final five minutes. The clock ticked off, and Argentina had its second world title in eight years — a victory of finesse over force, of Maradona over muscle.

It was Maradona, in fact, who dominated the waning moments, and it was Maradona who was the focus of an incredible mob scene from photographers and fans after the match.

Whenever Maradona went on the field to celebrate, hundreds followed. And when the gold championship trophy was summoned, Maradona held it high over his head, jogging with it around the stadium.

It was, after all, Maradona's Cup.

NL: Astros reclaim first place in West

HOUSTON (AP) — After dropping four games to San Francisco last weekend and falling out of first place, the Houston Astros paid their rent and regained the lead in the National League West by beating Fernando Valenzuela and sweeping the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kevin Bass and Jose Cruz capitalized on Dodger mistakes with consecutive run-scoring singles in the seventh inning Sunday to lead Houston past Los Angeles 2-1. It was Houston's first home sweep of the Dodgers since June 1984 and put the Astros a half-game ahead of San Francisco.

"It's still close," said Houston Manager Hal Lanier. "Any time you can beat the Dodgers three times, it's a feather in your cap."

"Fernando was throwing great," said Astros reliever Frank DiPino. "They made a couple of mistakes and we jumped all over them."

DiPino relieved winner Manny Hernandez, 2-3, to earn his third save and found the sweep very sweet, especially because of the recent comment of Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda, who said the Astros were only "renting" first place.

"I felt a little extra confidence," DiPino said. "Especially with the things they've been saying. All you hear is Dodgers this and Dodgers that. I'm sick of it."

off Mike LaCoss, 7-3, and was replaced by Davis. LaCoss' balk sent Davis to second, and he beat Mike Aldrete's throw to third on a sacrifice bunt by Dave Concepcion.

After Buddy Bell was intentionally walked, Oester grounded the second pitch from reliever Chuck Hensley, for a single.

Ron Robinson, 6-0, struck out Aldrete to end the ninth and get the victory in relief of starter Tom Browning, who gave up six hits in 8¹/₂ innings.

LaCoss continued his hot hitting in the third, lining his second homer in his last two at-bats over the left-field wall for a 1-0 lead. It also was his second homer of the season and followed a four-RBI game against San Diego that raised his average to .333.

Cincinnati tied it in the fourth on singles by Pete Rose, Cal Daniels and Diaz.

An error by second baseman Oester helped the Giants score two unearned runs in the fifth off Browning.

Bob Melvin singled and LaCoss put down a sacrifice bunt that was fielded by catcher Diaz. Oester dropped the throw while covering first, sending the runners on second and third.

Wandy Kutcher was called out for crossing the plate to foul off a pitch-out on a squeeze play, but Luis Quiroz lined a single to right for a 3-1 lead.

Browning singled with two out in the fifth to ignite a tying rally. Eddie Milner followed with the second of his three singles and Rose walked to load the bases for Daniels, a

Yankees ship Ken Griffey back to NL

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees accommodated Ken Griffey's $\frac{1}{2}$ year of trade requests Sunday, sending the unhappy outfielder to the Atlanta Braves for outfielder Claudell Washington and minor-league shortstop Paul Zivulla.

The deal was announced as soon as Griffey hit into a game-ending double play that sealed the Yankees' 10th consecutive home setback, a 6-3 loss to the Toronto Blue Jays.

Griffey had been seeking a return to the National League since the day the Yankees acquired him from the Cincinnati Reds — Nov. 4, 1981 — for minor-league pitchers Brian Ryder and Fred Tillyer.

"I asked for a trade in a lot of occasions in 1982, but I'd rather not talk about what happened in 1982," said the 38-year-old outfielder, who was a regular for most of his seven full seasons and parts of two others with the Reds; but played mostly against right-handed pitchers with the Yankees. He also has been hampered periodically by sore knees since he caught a spike in the outfield grass at New York's Shea Stadium in 1978.

"I wanted to go to a National League club. There are a lot of good people I know down there — (coach Willie) Stargell, (Manager Chuck) Tanner. I'm going to have a good time down there."

"We think Griffey is a quality hitter," said Tanner. "He'll help our ball club. He can play left field or right field. I hope he's here tomorrow for the game. He's a quality player and we're glad to have him on our ball club."

Griffey went 2-for-3 in his Yankees farewell at-bats, with a .293 average, nine homers and 26 runs batted in. His lifetime batting average is .300 — .307 with 60 homers and 42 RBIs for the Reds, .285 with 49 homers and 251 RBIs for the Yankees.

However, he had the three lowest averages of his career in New York — .273 in 1984, .274 last year and .277 in 1982, and never hit lower than .288 over a full season with Cincinnati.

In addition, he was kind of $10,000 by owner George Steinbrenner, when he went AWOL for a game against Boston on June 16. Griffey returned the following day, citing "personal reasons" for his absence.

Griffey said he was kind of surprised when Manager Lou Piniella informed him of the trade before Sunday's game. "Being I was going so good and we weren't winning, I figured I'd be here for a while," he said.

Seaver gets his wish; he's Bosox-bound

BALTIMORE (AP) — Veteran pitcher Tom Seaver, a three-time Cy Young Award winner, got his wish Sunday when he was acquired by the Boston Red Sox from the Chicago White Sox in exchange for reserve outfielder Steve Lyons.

The long-rumored deal, announced by the Red Sox, satisfied the 41-year-old Seaver's request to be traded close to his home in Greenwich, Conn. The New York Yankees also were seeking Seaver.

Seaver has a 2-6 record and a 4.38 earned run average this season.

Seaver, a right-hander, gives the Red Sox, who lead the American League East by a big margin, pitching insurance.

Al Nipper just returned to the starting rotation last week after being spiked May 10, and Bruce Hurst, another starter, suffered a pulled groin muscle early this season and isn't expected to return until after the All-Star break.

In his 20th major league season, Seaver has compiled a 306-198 record, with a 2.84 earned run average and 3,558 strikeouts, third on the all-time list behind Nolan Ryan and Steve Carlton.

In his Sunday radio talk show on WMAQ Chicago, White Sox General Manager Ken Harrelson said from Oakland that the deal was made at 11 p.m. Saturday night.

Red Sox Manager John McNamara, in Baltimore, where the Red Sox played the Orioles Sunday, said he called Seaver late Saturday night in Oakland and told him, "You've got the ball Tuesday," meaning the veteran right-hander would make his first start for Boston against Toronto.

Seaver was not immediately available for comment. He was believed to be en route home.

AL: Sox up 9½ games on slumping Yankees

BALTIMORE (AP) — It was probably only a matter of time until Tony Armas started hitting homers again, and it figured he would get untracked in Baltimore.

Armas hit a two-run homer out of Memorial Stadium, where he has 14 career homers, and Jeff Sellers scattered nine hits to post his first victory as the Boston Red Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-3 Sunday to complete a three-game sweep.

By scoring their eighth consecutive win, the Red Sox opened up an eight-game lead in the A.L. East over the second-place New York Yankees, who lost 6-3 to Toronto.

Armas, who averaged 31 homers over the last six seasons, came to Baltimore with just one in 1986, and then hit two during the series.

"The ball carries pretty good here, and I see the ball well," Armas said. "I knew I'd hit some, sooner or later. This should get my confidence back."

Armas pointed out that more than half of the season still remains.

"We have a long way to go," Armas said. "I can have a good second half ... that's my goal."

Boston Manager John McNamara said of the erstwhile slugger, "He can get hot and eat a ball."

The loss was the fifth straight for the Orioles, their longest losing streak of the season. They have lost seven in a row at home for the first time since 1972.

Toronto 6 New York 3

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees suffered their 10th consecutive home defeat Sunday; their longest such streak in 73 years, losing to Toronto 6-3 when pinch-hitter Cliff Johnson's tie-breaking RBI single triggered a three-run ninth inning.

Willie Upshaw opened the ninth with a bloop single off Brian Fisher, 4-5. Damaso Garcia sacrificed Upshaw to second and was safe at first when Fisher bobbled his bunt for the Yankees' third error.

Al Holland relieved and got one out, but Johnson's single put the Blue Jays in front 4-3.

Tony Fernandez then bounced an RBI double inside third base to make it 5-3 and a sacrifice fly by Garth Reynolds produced the final run of the inning as the Blue Jays recorded their fifth consecutive victory. Toronto has won six games in a row in Yankee Stadium dating back to last season.

It marked the third consecutive series sweep at home suffered by the Yankees.

Their 19-game losing streak in 1983 in 1993 came when they played at the Polo Grounds.

It was the 13th home game in a row in which they have yielded at least five runs.

John Cerretti, 3-1, who relieved Toronto starter Dave Stieb after six innings, pitched two scoreless innings and was credited with the victory. Tom Henke pitched the ninth and recorded his 10th save.

Cleveland 6 California 4

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Joe Carter hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning and right-hander Ken Schrom posted his sixth straight victory as the Cleveland Indians beat the California Angels 6-4 Sunday.

Schrom, 32, scattered eight hits in 7 1/2 innings before getting relief help from Ernie Camacho, who notched his 11th save despite giving up a run-scoring single to Doug DeCinces in the eighth.

With the Angels leading 2-1, Carmen Castillo opened the fifth with a walk off Ron Romanick, 5-6. Castillo was forced on Andy Allanson's bunt, but Brett Butler walked with two outs before Carter hit his 12th homer of the season on Romanick's first pitch.

Brian Downing's ninth homer gave California a 1-0 lead in the second. The Indians tied it in the third on consecutive doubles by Allanson and Tony Bernazard before the Angels regained the lead in the bottom of the inning on Wally Joyner's RBI single.

An RBI double by Downing narrowed Cleveland's lead to 4-3 in the sixth before Brook Jacoby's ninth homer, off reliever Todd Fischer, in the eighth.

Bernazard returned to the Indians' lineup after missing two games with a stiff back, and his third-inning double extending his hitting streak to 11 games, a career-high.

Angels Manager Gene Mauch was ejected in the bottom of the seventh inning for arguing a third strike.

The Angels' eighth-inning run was set up by a double by Joyner, who was safe when umpire Ted Henry ruled right fielder Cory Snyder trapped the ball. Allanson was ejected by Hendry for protesting the call, and DeCinces followed one out later with a run-scoring single, making the score 5-4.

Seattle 9

SEATTLE (AP) — Jim Presley hit a homer and a double and drove in four runs, while Mike Moore posted his sixth complete game as the Seattle Mariners defeated the Texas Rangers 9-3 Sunday.

Presley has driven in 24 runs in his last 22 games to move into second place in the American League in RBI with 57. He hit a two-run double in the first inning, grounded out in the second for his third RBI and then hit his 16th home run leading off the seventh. Moore, 47, scattered eight hits, struck out seven and did not walk a batter to pick up the win.

Texas took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on an RBI single by Tom Pasiorok. Seattle took the lead on Presley's double and extended the margin to 4-1 in the second on Presley's groundout and a wild pitch by Texas starter Ed Correa, 5-6.

The Rangers scored in the third when McDowell tripled and scored on a single by Gary Ward, but the Mariners extended their lead to 6-2 in the sixth when Mike Valle doubled in one run and scored on a single by John Moses.

After Presley's lead-off home run in the seventh, reliever Mitch Williams hit Ken Phelps. Danny Tartabull then hit a 2-2 pitch for a 464-foot home run to center field, his 11th, to give Seattle a 9-3 lead.

Texas' third run came in the top of the seventh when Steve Buchele extended his hitting streak to 13 games with a double and later scored on a fielder's choice.

Minnesota 9 Kansas City 4

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota bombed 1985 Cy Young Award winner Bret Saberhagen for eight runs in the first two innings, and the Twins went on to complete a three-game sweep of the Kansas City Royals with a 9-4 victory Sunday.

The 22-year-old Saberhagen, 4-9, allowed eight runs and six hits in one-inning plus. He has lost seven of his last nine decisions.

Detroit 9 Milwaukee 5

DETROIT (AP) — Darrell Evans hit two of five Detroit doubles and drove in four runs as the Tigers beat the Milwaukee Brewers 9-5 in the first game of a scheduled double-header Sunday, extending their winning streak to five games.

The Tigers, who have won 10 of their last 13, scored one in the first, then broke it open with five runs in the second and three more in the seventh.

Chicago 6 Oakland 5

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — John Cangolosi's sacrifice fly in the top of the 10th inning off Oakland reliever Doug Bair gave the Chicago White Sox a 6-5 victory over the A's Sunday.

Bair, 0-1, loaded the bases by issuing three walks and yielding a single to pinch-hitter Jerry Hairston in the 10th to set up Cangolosi's game-winner with one out.

rookie who was recalled from Class AAA Denver on Saturday night. The outfielder singled sharply to left for two runs.

New York 7 Chicago 4

CHICAGO (AP) — Darryl Strawberry hit a two-run homer and drove in three runs and George Foster also homered Sunday, powering Dwight Gooden and the New York Mets to a 7-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The game featured a matchup of the National League's last two Cy Young winners with Gooden, 9-3, besting Rick Sutcliffe, 4-10, the 1984 winner.

Strawberry's 10th homer was his first career hit off Sutcliffe, ending an 0-for-16 drought. It came in the fifth inning after Wally Backman had singled, and lifted the Mets into a 3-3 tie.

Strawberry had three hits in New York's 13-hit attack as did Wally Backman. Strawberry left the game after a slightly spaining his right ankle while stealing second in the ninth.

Foster hit Sutcliffe's first pitch in the sixth or his 13th homer to snap the tie. Run-scoring singles by Strawberry and Gary Carter in the seventh and an RBI single by Carter in the ninth wrapped it up.

Atlanta 3 San Diego 1

ATLANTA (AP) — David Palmer pitched a four-hitter and drove in the go-ahead run as the Atlanta Braves completed a sweep of a three-game series with a 3-1 victory Sunday over the San Diego Padres.

Palmer, 4-6, broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning when he lined a double that Tony Gwynn misjudged in right field, scoring Andres Thomas, who had reached on a two-out triple to center field.

Montreal 6 Pittsburgh 4

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tim Lincecum had a single, double and triple and two stolen bases, and Andres Galarraga homered to lead a 15-hit attack Sunday as the Montreal Expos beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4.

Philadelphia 8 St. Louis 7

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Juan Samuel followed shortstop Ozzie Smith's second error of the game with his first career grand slam with two out in the ninth inning, lifting the Philadelphia Phillies to an 8-7 victory Sunday that capped a three-game sweep of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Samuel's homer, just clearing the wall in left-center, came off St. Louis reliever Todd Worrell, 5-8. It gave the victory to Don Carman, 4-1, the victim of a three-run St. Louis eighth.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"It is the bold man who every time does best, at home or abroad."
— Homer.

Put yourself in West's chair today. How do you defend against three no-trumps after you have won your ace of spades?

West makes the normal opening lead of the heart Jack. Dummy's heart king wins while East plays the trey. Declarer comes off dummy with a spade to his queen and West's ace. What should West think about at this point?

West should know that South has the heart ace, giving him three tricks in that suit. At least three tricks, probably four, are also available to South in the spade suit.

If South has solid clubs, he will score numerous overtricks unless West makes a bold play. What should West lead?

The diamond deuce is a stand out switch. In today's layout, East wins the king and returns the suit and the defenders beat the game.

What if East had held the club ace instead of the diamond king? The timely diamond switch still wins unless South began with K-Q-10 in diamonds. In that case, no defense would defeat the game.

Diadora Fitness Festival pumps up health

Columnist Jane Brody stresses sound nutrition

By DOUGLAS NOBLE GREENE and KRISTIN TUCKER
Times-News correspondents

SUN VALLEY — Preaching to the converted, New York Times personal health columnist Jane Brody gave her articulate, well-researched health advice to more than 100 fitness fans in a keynote address at the Sun Valley Diadora Fitness Festival held June 26-29.

The four-day event drew participants from across Idaho to participate in a range of activities that included lectures and workshops on health and fitness topics, workouts with expert trainers and an extensive fitness evaluation by the Moritz Hospital Sports and Fitness Institute.

Brody's visit to Sun Valley for the festival was an extension of her tour promoting her book, "Jane Brody's Good Food Book," the latest of her five books on health and nutrition. Brody has won numerous rewards for her writing on science, medical, health and nutrition topics.

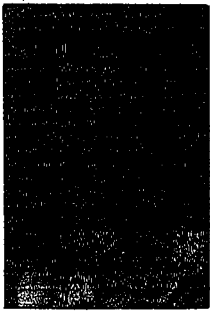

"Bodies are the temples of the mind," Brody said, "but Americans are nutritionally ignorant." She said that Americans "put better fuel in their cars than they put in their bodies."

Quoting a recent national nutrition survey done recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Brody said white bread, donuts, alcoholic beverages and whole milk beverages are the leading calorie sources for Americans.

"I am hard put to find one healthy, recommendable item in the top ten sources of calories in this country," she noted.

Brody said Americans get three out of every five calories from fats and added sugars — calorie sources that provide little nutrition. Decrying American overconsumption of protein, Brody said we eat too many of the high protein foods that are also high in cholesterol and calories. The result is an increased risk of heart disease, cancer, high blood pressure and obesity.

Brody noted that the body turns all extra calories into fat, no matter what the source. She explained that a proper combination of plant foods can supply protein that is as high in quality as the protein in meats, eggs and other animal sources, but most plant sources are without the cholesterol and fat.

JANE BRODY
"Bodies ... temple of the mind"

Complex carbohydrates — including whole grains — are "taking a beating," she said. "Complex carbohydrates are the foods that the human species evolved on and the foods our bodies are best designed to handle."

Carbohydrate foods are also good sources of fiber, which Brody referred to as an "unsung nutritional hero." Fiber's benefits include preventing heart disease by lowering cholesterol, preventing cancer by "washing" cancer-causing substances out of the body, lowering blood pressure, decreasing the risk of diabetes and helping to avoid and treat a wide variety of intestinal disorders. And as a low-calorie, high-bulk addition to the diet, fiber helps with weight control.

Brody explained that starches are more slowly digested than are simple carbohydrates. Recent studies indicate 30 percent of the calories in white bread are not absorbed by the body, and an even higher percentage of calories in whole wheat bread re-

Fitness evaluation needed to set goals

By DOUGLAS NOBLE GREENE and KRISTIN TUCKER
Times-News correspondents

SUN VALLEY — How fit do you want to be? How fit are you now? And how are you going to achieve the fitness you desire?

These three questions were at the crux of the Diadora Fitness Seminar held in Sun Valley June 26-29. The answers helped participants develop a personal fitness program.

Whether you want to be an Olympian or enjoy retirement more, only you can determine what "being fit" means. Determining your present condition is best done by a doctor and a physical assessment, such as that available at the Moritz Hospital Sports and Fitness Institute. At the festival, sports psychology professor Maurizio Weiss suggested ways participants could achieve fitness goals.

The Sports and Fitness Institute, directed by Jamie Gardenschwartz, subjected Diadora participants to a battery of medical and physical tests to determine their current health and fitness status. "We break the body down into component measurements, determine what a person has of each, then educate people on how they can realistically achieve their fitness goals," Gardenschwartz said.

"The physical testing — or 'components' — included running 1.5 miles for speed, doing as many sit-ups and pushups as possible in one minute and measuring leg strength on a CYBEX, an isokinetic resistance measuring machine. Tests were done to determine flexibility, body fat.

Sharkey: No one's ever too old to reap exercise benefits

By DOUGLAS NOBLE GREENE and KRISTIN TUCKER
Times-News correspondents

SUN VALLEY — No matter what your age, the benefits of a physically active program far exceed the risks, two fitness experts told participants at the Sun Valley Diadora Fitness Festival last weekend.

Brian Sharkey, a physiology and fitness professor at the University of Montana, and Dr. Robert Wilson, who said training can actually postpone the aging process.

Trees show their age by growing a new ring; elks by growing a new tooth. But human signs of aging are far less measurable and can be influenced by diet, lifestyle — and exercise.

Speaking on age and performance, Sharkey said the steadily increasing number of elderly people in this country means that more people are living to an older age and are enjoying more post-retirement years and more leisure time.

With regular exercise, older individuals can maintain their full vigor for more years, said Sharkey, and a 50-year-old person can be in better physical condition than someone half his age.

Aerobic capacity (the lungs' ability to take in, transport and use oxygen) decreases with age, he explained. But with exercise, that decrease can be slowed dramatically.

Body fat, also a common sign of aging, is often dropped with regular exercise. Exercise also decreases the risks of numerous ailments and injuries.

In contrast, Sharkey claimed people who are unconcerned about fitness often are a burden to society and to their families. "Do health-conscious individuals want to have to pay for these who do not take care of themselves?" he asked.

Media accounts of exercise-related risks are over-emphasized, he claimed. Regardless of a person's age, there is very little risk with starting a moderate physical activity program and these risks are overshadowed by the benefits of regular exercise.

Certain exercises become increasingly important with age, Sharkey noted. Men should work to maintain back strength and women should put a priority on exercising weight-bearing ing joints to maintain bone density and avoid osteoporosis.

Sharkey says there are advantages to training when you are young. Regular exercise at age 15 to 20 may increase heart size, for example, and thus help cardiovascular potential.

Experts disagree on the risks — and value — of training while the body is still growing. And although older athletes may face a higher risk of injuries, young and growing athletes account for the vast majority of sports injuries.

Dr. Ron Pfeiffer, assistant professor of kinesiology and anatomy at Boise State University, told participants that 70% of all sports injuries occur with athletes between the ages of 10 and 24. Sports injuries tend to be "sport-specific," with 55% occurring in only four sports: bicycling, football, baseball and basketball. Bicycling injuries lead the pack.

"The number of sports injuries is growing by 8 percent each year," he added.

A key to preventing sports injuries is developing an individualized exercise program that includes physiological and psychological factors and avoids overtraining. "Almost every runner who runs more than 30 miles per week is injured in a year's time," he said.

Pfeiffer said a total fitness program should include a balance of activities that increase muscle strength, muscle endurance, cardiovascular endurance and flexibility.

Pfeiffer also cautioned exercisers to include flexibility exercises before and after workouts, use proper equipment and proper techniques, be concerned about nutrition and adapt their workout and attire to the environment.

Speaking Saturday on the specificity of training, Sharkey said he is impressed by how specific the benefits of different activities are, and by the way a training program "recruits" specific muscle fibers, pathways and energy sources.

Sharkey, who has done extensive work with training programs for Olympic athletes, the U.S. Forest Service and the U.S. Marine Corps, said, "Even a well-trained athlete is likely to be neglecting certain muscle groups. People who regularly train in only one activity are getting limited benefits."

Sharkey said the major effects of training are in skeletal muscle, with the heart responding to those changes. During exercise, small nerve endings in a muscle send messages to the brain asking the heart for more blood.

Blood volume improves with endurance training, but not with strength training, Sharkey explained. Heart size may increase and the body learns to distribute blood more effectively, improving the flow of blood to working muscles. A strength training program may enlarge some walls within the heart; endurance training increases stroke volume.

To increase muscle strength, Sharkey said a specific muscle group must be trained for a long period of time. Circuit weight training programs that include short workouts on numerous muscle groups don't work, he says.

Basic effects of training include respiratory and circulatory benefits, but Sharkey said there is little change in a person's respiratory capacity after reaching a moderate level of fitness.

Because the benefits of training are so specific, Sharkey said the benefits of training do not transfer very well from one sport to another.

Some generalized effects, including greater blood volume and distribution, may mean a person can better adapt to a new activity. "The majority of training has to be specific," Sharkey insists. "You can't ignore other muscle groups."

Sharkey said it is important for athletes to ask themselves how much strength they need and if it is related to performance. Answers to those questions then enable the athlete to adopt a training program that is as specific as possible for the required muscle groups.

AIDS treatment stresses MDs

Doctors who treat AIDS patients complain of more depression, anxiety and fear of death than they had before the onset of the epidemic, a survey of 83 San Francisco physicians concludes.

More than one third reported "more or much more" depression than before. 56 percent reported increased stress, and almost half reported "more fear of death..." since they began working with patients with AIDS." Dr. Leon McCusick of the University of California at San Francisco writes in the Western Journal of Medicine.

Increased anxiety was especially common among homosexual doctors, partly a result of "the gay physicians' self-perception as being at risk for AIDS." McCusick and his colleagues said with patients with AIDS. "Dr. Leon McCusick of the University of California at San Francisco writes in the Western Journal of Medicine.

"I get away on vacation more often," one doctor said, "far enough away to realize how depressed everyone is in San Francisco and how the rest of the world is still going along as usual."

Diabetes plagues Zuni Indians

When the Zuni Indians of western New Mexico became urbanized in the 1940s and 1950s and their lives grew sedentary, diabetes became rampant. Today, an estimated 40 percent of the adults are diabetic.

A two-year study of those Native Americans has found that such adult-onset diabetes, when it results from lifestyle, can often be tempered or reversed with exercise and changes in diet.

Among the Zuni, the U.S. Public Health Service reports in its official journal, diabetes developed as lifestyle "suddenly became more sedentary as agriculture, stock-raising, hunting, hand labor, foot transportation, and foot-racing gave way to jewelry making and marketing, mechanization, motor vehicle transportation and television."

Diet also changed from high-fiber to high-fat. "In a traditionally feast-or-fast culture, feast conditions, in effect, now exist year around," Dr. Robert Wilson of the Zuni hospital writes with several colleagues.

Sleep not a problem for Interns

One of the toughest things about being a hospital intern, it is commonly believed, is that there is little time to sleep. Not so, says a study in the Southern Medical Journal. "Our findings indicate that there is sufficient time during the internship for physiologically adequate sleep," write Drs. Charles Ford and Dennis Wentz, "but insufficient time for practically anything else."

Skin tags, intestinal polyps tied

Skin tags — those small, harmless flaps of skin that often grow on the neck or eyelids in people over 40 — may be a sign of intestinal polyps, a new study suggests.

Researchers at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York suggest that people with skin tags should be tested for blood in the stool, which can reveal polyps, because polyps can become cancerous.

Skin tags, which are non-malignant, also are commonly found on the shoulder and in the groin area. They often grow on the bodies of diabetics and pregnant and postmenopausal women. Polyps, on the other hand, while usually benign, can become malignant.

Looking good

European styles wear thin; menswear goes American

DallasTimes Herald

DALLAS — After an infatuation with European shapes and shades, American menswear designers have found inspiration in their own back yard. Ivy League charm, Old West ruggedness, beefy heartland sweaters and New England elegance define this fall's offerings.

Interpretations run from the obviously patriotic to the more subtle. Robert Stock Salutes Lady Liberty's 100th birthday with a beely, wool pullover emblazoned with the statue's face. On a subtler note, Robert Comstock's robust wools and buttoned leather boots authentic patterns borrowed from Native Americans.

"American fashion is finally coming into its own," says Stock. "We are beginning to draw upon our heritage. Men still love European clothes but we are unveiling our own look here in the United States. Now Europe is looking to us."

Some designers depend on color to carry this Americana theme through their collections. Homespun hues of barn red, ivy green and Yankee blue tint the patchwork quilt patterns of Perry Old's sweaters. A liberty close-of-red, white and blue pushes up Henry Grothe's sportswear collection. Old West desert tones of pink, turquoise, plum, yellow and brown shade woven sweaters from Blauccult.

This unexpected rainbow of tints offers welcome relief from the somber darks usually associated with autumn fashion.

percentage (with skin caliper measurements), blood pressure and heart rates, and cholesterol levels registered in a blood sample.

The Sports and Fitness Institute has four different tests available to the public, ranging from a "Complete Health and Fitness Examination" to "Improving Personal Athletic Performance." Diadora participants were tested to determine their overall fitness level.

At the end of the 10-week personal fitness evaluation was given to each participant. From these, one could determine a course of action to achieve fitness goals. For example, if cholesterol levels are too high, then a goal would be to change one's diet to lower fat intakes. A person with poor body flexibility might embark on a stretching program.

Goal achievement is the focus of sports psychologist Dr. Maureen Weiss, an assistant professor at the College of Human Development and Performance at the University of Oregon, who delivered a presentation entitled "A Healthy Mind. A Healthy Body: Staying Motivated for an Active Lifestyle."

Weiss said that a major problem in fitness and exercise areas is adhering to a plan. Fifty percent or more of those individuals who begin a health-related exercise program will quit within the first six months.

To accomplish the fitness you

'Performance goals, on the other hand, let you focus on improvements relative to your own past achievements. You have more control and flexibility, and are ... more likely to make progress.'

— Dr. Maureen Weiss, sports psychologist desire, you must set exact goals," she said. "Your goal is obtaining a specific standard of proficiency on a task within a specified time limit."

"There are two types of goals. Those that focus on the results of a contest between opponents or teams are outcome goals. The problem with outcome goals is that when you lose, it doesn't matter how good your personal performance was."

"Performance goals, on the other hand, let you focus on improvements relative to your own past achievements. You have more control and flexibility, and are thus more likely to make progress."

Weiss said that specific and challenging goals tend to better performance than unexcused or easy-to-achieve goals. Other guidelines she suggested were to make long- and short-term written goals, to share aims with others and to evaluate ambitions often.

In achieving goals, understanding motivation can help determine the direction and intensity of effort required. Individual — personality, needs and goals — and situational factors — convenience to an exercise location, social support, reinforcement — all have their effect.

Positive mental attitude has a significant effect on motivation, participation patterns and performance. It is important to develop a positive approach to mistakes and losing, such as seeing it as a "temporary setback." Analyze, learn from, forget about mistakes.

Weiss also advised that visualization is an effective method to improve fitness. She said it is possible to use positive images to "see yourself achieving goals, executing skills successfully, improving performance and becoming more proficient." She recommended reading the book "Applied Sport Psychology: Personal Growth to Peak Performance."

main unused. But simple carbohydrates — i.e. sugars — are fully and quickly absorbed.

"The real secret to losing weight and keeping it off is not a diet," she told listeners. "It is an eating and exercise management plan that you go on and stay on for the rest of your life." Her plan includes at least three meals daily, plus healthy snacks and even "an occasional no-no."

Calling fitness the "most important step in controlling weight," Brody said physical exercise should be a dietary requirement and is more important than restricting calories.

A low-calorie diet puts the body into a "starvation mode," lowering metabolic rate and thus decreasing its calorie requirements. An exercise program has the opposite effect and is the only safe way to raise the body's metabolic rate.

"Brody said your daily decision should be whether to exercise but how to exercise. "Exercise doesn't take time, it makes time," she said. "The body becomes more efficient, so you get more done in less time and you get by on less sleep."

Center will close

TWIN FALLS — The Center for New Directions at the College of Southern Idaho will be closed July 31 to allow for vacation times.

Exercise also helps in handling stress, anger, boredom and depression. Brody claims one hour of exercise yields two hours of quality time.

Also in her presentation:

- Brody compared skipping breakfast to running a car without gas, and said fasting is like having an automobile with a stalled engine.
- The human digestive system is meant to work," she cautioned. "Fasting shuts down everything that is supposed to keep moving. When it is not working it is not functioning properly."

- Brody added that after one day without protein, the body begins to digest its own muscle tissue to meet protein needs.

- She called the bathroom scales "an irrelevant device that only makes people anxious."

- Brody said results of research on aspartame (Nutrasweet) are "not terrific," with indications that the popular sugar substitute changes brain chemistry.

- "Artificial sweeteners perpetuate your sweet tooth," she said, suggesting people use reasonable amounts of sugar instead of "something concocted in a laboratory."

- "Water should be consumed throughout the day, including with meals, she told the audience. Brody blasted a current nutrition bestseller that claims water dilutes enzymes, and which specifies "unhealthy" combinations of food.

"Quackery speaks louder than solid information," she said, encouraging people to be suspicious of any source that "promises the world" or talks nonsense.

There is meager evidence to encourage taking vitamin supplements, she said, but a multivitamin may be appropriate if a person's diet is inadequate.

• Brody countered popular opinions on the value of calcium supplements, saying they have never been shown to prevent osteoporosis and are not well absorbed by the human body.

Only regular exercise against gravity and post-menopausal estrogens can rebuild bones in adult life, she said.

Brody closed by saying there is no guarantee of living to a "ripe old age," but a healthy lifestyle — including a good diet and regular exercise — can decrease chances of illness and help people "get a lot more done and have a lot more fun."

Ketchum athlete Kathy Rivers does as many pushups as she can in one minute as part of a fitness test being given by Sports and Fitness Institute director Jamie Gardenschwartz.

Infection problem to contact users

ATLANTA (AP) — An amoebic eye infection first reported in this country 13 years ago has become a "burgeoning problem" for the nation's 27 million contact lens wearers, the Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday.

The CDC said 24 cases of an infection known as Acanthamoeba keratitis, an amoeba-caused inflammation of the cornea, the transparent outer covering of the eye — have been reported in the last nine months. Twenty occurred in contact lens wearers.

The organism is one of the most common amoebas found in water or soil and is presumably commonly inhaled, so it is "not surprising that (1) may contaminate contact lenses or lens cleaning-soaking fluids," the CDC said.

The infection, which commonly causes severe eye pain, is resistant to most antibacterial treatments. Twelve of the 24 patients had to have corneal transplants, and two had the infected eye removed.

Since Thursday's report was prepared several weeks ago, another 18 cases have been reported, several in contact lens wearers, said Dr. Govinda Visvesvara, a CDC researcher.

Heart disease time bomb threatens middle-aged men

Los Angeles Times

A disturbingly high number of middle-aged men are walking around with an unrecognized heart disease time bomb inside them, according to new statistics from the federal National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI) in Bethesda, Md.

These men have dangerously low levels of the type of cholesterol that is thought to protect against heart disease. This "good" kind of cholesterol is called high density lipoprotein — or HDL for short — cholesterol.

Cholesterol is a white, powdery substance transported in the blood and found in all foods of animal origin and in all the cells of the body.

Doctors now know that all cholesterol isn't equal when it comes to presenting a risk of heart disease; at risk.

HDL cholesterol, which contains the greatest percentage of protein and the smallest amount of actual cholesterol, is the best kind.

Low density lipoprotein — shortened to LDL — cholesterol, on the other hand, is the most dangerous kind because it contains the greatest percentage of actual cholesterol and is the kind most often deposited in artery walls.

When LDL cholesterol is deposited in excessive amounts, it can lead to clogged arteries that block the flow of blood, resulting in a heart attack when the blood-starved heart protests.

The real problem with these at-risk middle-aged men, termed "hypo-HDL males" by NHLBI scientists, is that they don't know they're at risk.

WILLIAMS CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE

THE HUMAN BODY IS A COMPUTER

Clinical Kinesiology is a science that recognizes the human body as a bio-computer and that the body functions very much like an electronic computer. A doctor skilled in Clinical Kinesiology can very efficiently diagnosis and treat a variety of conditions. Many conditions, which remain illusive or resistant to other forms of diagnosis and treatment will respond to Clinical Kinesiology.

Clinical Kinesiology utilizes a system of manual muscle testing and hand modes to determine areas of malfunction in the human body. This testing informs the doctor as to what type of treatment is needed to restore normal function and normal health. By using Clinical Kinesiology Dr. Williams can accurately determine a patient's needs and help them enjoy good health.

Teach your children to avoid fighting

Quarrelling is probably parent's number one garden-variety problem. If you're a parent, you can probably recall a dozen or more recent examples of your kids squabbling (maybe even one as fresh as five minutes ago).

Jo Ann Larsen

Too, if you're like most parents, the constant teasing, arguing, yelling, name-calling, hitting, kicking, and downright being mean to each other grates on your nerves and tries your soul. You may wonder, "What can I do?"

SHOULD YOU LET CHILDREN FIGHT IT OUT? Absolutely not! Nothing is gained by letting children tear each other apart. When children are allowed to physically or verbally attack others, they learn it is permissible to hurt others when they get angry. They don't learn how to settle their arguments peacefully or to handle their anger constructively.

CHANGE CHILDREN'S FIGHTING HABITS. A major reason children fight with siblings is because fighting is a habit. If you want to change your children's fighting habits, then, you will need to interrupt fighting each time it occurs! And you must provide opportunities for your children to learn effective ways of relating to each other.

Changing your children's fighting habits will take time — especially at parents who intervene don't know the facts nor are the facts important. What is important is helping children work through their problems and avoiding the alienation that occurs when children see their parents side with siblings.

Don't force an unrepentant child to say, "I'm sorry." You just teach him to lie.

Usually parents who intervene encounter similar situations. For example, the child who divides a snack chooses his portion last.

- When fighting occurs in the car, the parent stops the car until the children quit fighting.
- One child sits in the front car seat (picks the TV shows) (does the dishes) (etc.) on even-numbered days; another child, on odd-numbered days (with more children, be creative).
- Any object children fight over is put away for a day or until they have peacefully settled the issue.
- Phone calls are limited to ten minutes.

When children are allowed to physically or verbally attack others, they learn it is permissible to hurt others when they get angry.

Some parents build up a tolerance to their children's quarrelling — they may not like the quarrelling, but when their efforts are unsuccessful, they simply endure their children's destructive picking at each other.

Even when their children's behavior turns violent, many parents adopt the theory that violence in the home is just part of life. Says Murray Strauss, an authority on family violence:

"Parents react differently than it was someone else's child who had been punched or kicked by one of their children, or someone else's child who had done that to one of their children. If it was someone else's child, there would be cries of outrage, and possibly even legal action if the violence persisted. But in effect, tolerate such behavior for first — but if you persevere, you will spend less and less time in negative interactions because there will be fewer fights!

DO'S AND DON'TS. How can you change your children's fighting habits? Here are "do's" and "don'ts" that will help:

- Don't ground your children for long periods of time for fighting. There are much better and shorter-term methods. When used as a frequent punishment, grounding causes deep resentments and loses its effectiveness in helping children change behavior.
- Don't take sides against a child — "There you go again, picking on your sister. Won't you ever grow up?"

Even when one child has seemingly started a fight, wise parents simply interrupted the quarrel rather than

Drug duo may reduce brain tumors

A new combination of drugs shows promise in reducing brain tumors, traditionally difficult to treat with medications because the body tries to protect the brain from foreign substances.

The new approach, devised at Yale University, combines a drug that fights cancer with another drug, often used on psychotic patients, that passes through the body's so-called blood-brain barrier.

Youngsters learn child care skills in babysitter certification classes

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Babysitting — a passive term for an active occupation — doesn't begin to define its responsibilities. So, to help girls and boys who want to sharpen their child care skills, the Women's Health Center of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center is offering babysitter certification classes.

Last week, 24 young people attending the first of four classes heard Edith Irving, MVRMC educational services director, discuss the parents' responsibility to communicate what they expect of their babysitter. And she talked about questions the sitter should ask the parents, such as, where they will be going and when they expect to return.

Registered Nurse Brenda Swenson talked about being prepared for medical emergencies and first aid, including what to do in case of poisoning. Becky Rees, 13, said this was very informative, since "there were some plants I didn't know were poisonous, and some of the flowers."

Class participants were given tips on when to summon help and whom to call — whether it should be the parents, a doctor or an ambulance.

Susan Bradley, a pediatric nurse, talked about being prepared for a medical emergency which would require cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) or first aid for airway obstruction. For this, the children split up into groups, and each child had an opportunity to revive a "Resusc-Baby," a specially constructed doll.

Kara Kawamoto, 12, found it to be a challenge. "When you blow in the chest pumps out," she said. "You have to cover the nose and mouth altogether, so the air doesn't blow out the nose anyway. You have to count to five, and then you breathe into the mouth."

"You have to get into that routine for about a minute, and that gives you about 100 chest thrusts. It's hard to coordinate your fingers at the same time — you have to push your two pointer fingers on their chest in and out, so they can get their breath."

Irving explored discipline and temper tantrums. She told them to ignore the tantrums after making sure the child is in no danger.

Staff assistant Stacy Miller told the sitters how to put together a babysitter's "tool kit" with toys suitable for various age groups. This proved to be a popular feature of the class.

Such was the case with 11-year-old

Toby Turner, who, for his tool kit, filled a pillowcase with a stuffed animal, toy cars, coloring books, scissors, glue, markers and more. He also was impressed by what Patrolman Ruben Saldana of the Twin Falls Police Department, Captain Larry Wahl and driver Mike Andersen of the Fire Department had to say.

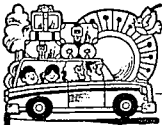

"The firemen told us to find out from the parents if they have fire escapes, and where they are. The policeman said if we think there's someone prowling around — if we think someone's around there you don't know — don't be afraid to call the police. It's better to find out no one's there than to find out someone's either hurt or dead in the morning," he said.

Nurse Beth Reinke showed the children how to diaper a baby, and talked about how to answer the phone, mealtime tips and storytelling. Other subjects covered in the class were self-esteem, child development and the business aspect of the job.

"We want the babysitters to be skilled," Irving said. "We want children taken good care of."

Girls and boys between the ages of 11 and 16 may pre-register or obtain more information on classes to be held July 6 and 10, July 22 and 24, and Aug. 5 and 7, by calling 733-2900.

Smoking cigarettes puts drag on body's drug metabolism

People who take prescription medication and also smoke cigarettes now have one more reason to stop lighting up. Smoking cigarettes can interfere with how the body metabolizes drugs.

The result, according to John F. Schlegel, president of the American Pharmaceutical Association (APHA), is that smokers may need take greater amounts of drugs or take them more frequently to get the same effect as non-smokers. For that reason, the APHA teamed with the National Cancer Institute last week to promote a new public health campaign called "Helping Smokers Quit."
