Quake deals Southern California heavy jolt

By BRUCE V. BIGELOW
The Associated Press

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — A severe earthquake-shock Southern California early Tuesday, damaging an area of 100,000 residents and causing some minor injuries. The quake, which struck at 3:21 a.m. MDT, was felt as far away as Arizona and Nevada. It measured 6.0 on the Richter scale, making it the strongest earthquake in the southern part of the state in seven years, said seismologist Kate Hutton of the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. It was centered about 12 miles northwest of Palm Springs, said Dennis Meredith, a spokesman for the seismology lab at the Institute of Technology. "A lot of people were just pouring out of my apartment complex into the parking lot and the street to get away from the building," said

Jack Kowalec, assistant city editor of The Desert Sun newspaper in Palm Springs. "There was a little bit of panic, a little bit of hysteria." "Just about every car alarm went off and all the telephone poles were swinging," said Jim Keating, who lives in Santa Monica, 120 miles west of the epicenter. Palm Springs police Lt. Lee Weigel said five people were admitted to hospitals complaining of chest pains. They said were caused by the quake and 10 people were treated in emergency rooms for minor injuries like sprained wrists "from falling out of chairs or beds." For hours after the quake, which lasted 20 to 30 seconds, there were numerous aftershocks above magnitude 3.0, Meredith said. Fourteen such smaller tremors were registered in the six hours after the initial quake, he said. A 6.0 quake can cause severe damage in heavily populated areas, but authorities reported mostly broken windows, cracked walls and spilled merchandise. Preliminary indications were that the ground slipped about two inches sideways along a stretch 10 miles long and six miles deep, said Hutton. The slip probably occurred on the Banning Fault, a section of the San Andreas system, in a sparsely populated area between the communities of Desert Hot Springs and Cabazon, she said. Though people throughout Southern California were jolted from their beds, most of the damage was in the desert and mountain resort cities near Palm Springs, some 110 miles east of Los Angeles. Eight homes were knocked off supports just north of Palm Springs, and several homes 12 miles northwest of the city suffered major structural damage. "I thought a plane hit the house," said Buck Boyle. "I looked like somebody drove through here with a bulldozer."

The home of neighbor Nancy Wright was also damaged. "The rumble woke me up and then I heard the crashing," she said. "Thank God no one was hurt." Rowana Melland, 32, said her refrigerator and stove were heaved into the middle of the kitchen and that cupboards ripped loose from the walls. "I was just totally scared," she said. "If it had happened downtown, it might have been a different story," said Thomas Heaton, a U.S. Geological Survey scientist at Caltech. "It probably would have damaged pre-1930s buildings" whose built before earthquake-safety rules were adopted. The tremor was the largest in Southern California since a 1979 quake in the Imperial Valley hit 6.4 on the open-ended Richter scale. A quake registering a magnitude of 6.4 killed 65 people in the San Fernando Valley in February 1971.

Nuclear Navy 'father' Rickover dies at 86

By LEE BYRD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the tiny, tidy engineer whose superior intellect, acid tongue and refusal to go by the book propelled the Navy into the nuclear era, died Tuesday at age 86. Rickover, who was involuntarily retired by President Reagan four years ago, died of apparent natural causes at his home in suburban Arlington Va., the Pentagon said. Reagan saluted Rickover Tuesday as "a man of peace and said "it was particularly poignant" that his death followed the celebration of the achievements of immigrants that highlighted the Fourth of July weekend. Said Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger: "The men and women of the United States armed forces join me in mourning the death of Admiral Hyman G. Rickover. Through nearly 60 years of brilliant service to his country, his dedication to excellence was an inspiration to us all. The admiral's death was mourned by a Congress that had long revered him, though never spared by his candor, and twice had awarded him its gold medal for exceptional public service. No other citizen except Zachary Taylor was honored more than once. Rickover, said Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, was "a great military mind and true American patriot who loved his country more than he loved life itself." Former President Jimmy Carter, once a naval subordinate of Rickover, said the admiral "was one of America's greatest citizens and patriots. He deplored nuclear power's use for destruction, and as a pioneer was responsible for its use for peaceful purposes." "A superb engineer, his record for careful design, installation and operation of nuclear power plants, and demonstrations against the Klan. After that, the Navy said Tuesday that funeral arrangements were incomplete, but that Rickover would be interred at Arlington National Cemetery. The service said his fam-

Postal Service profit forecast; should stave off rate increases

By BILL McCLOSKEY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Albert V. Casey predicted Tuesday the Postal Service will post a $114 million profit in the current budget year, a dramatic recovery which almost certainly will stave off general rate increases in 1986 or 1987. The agency posted a $251 million loss in the 1985 budget year, which ended last Sept. 30. It takes 18 months to prepare and implement a rate increase, and none in the works, said Postmaster Robert Hooding. Casey has estimated that a penny increase in the price of a first-class stamp equals about $500 million in revenue. "But in a recent report to Congress Janet D. Steiger, chairman of the Postal Rate Commission, which must approve any rate change, said she expected no rate case to be filed anytime this year. High long the first-class postage rate can stay at 22 cents depends on many variables including inflation, which has been stable, and the size of any wage increase in new postal labor contracts that will take effect in July 1987. Also, it would depend on the success of efforts by Congress to shift $1.7 billion in reduced health care and other costs from the taxpayers to postal rate payers. The mail agency traditionally builds a surplus in the fall and winter, which includes the Christmas mailing rush, and loses money in spring and summer when mail volume falls. This year, the surplus is ahead of projections and losses are well below expectations. For the most recent four-week period, losses were $10 million less than last planned. Casey attributed the financial performance to "more than 7 percent volume increase" and "time payments due to balance of no-Nazi groups have about 20,000 hard-core members nationwide and 200,000-300,000 supporters in Chicago. The Rev. Richard Butler, a leader of the Aryan Nations, did not return telephone calls Tuesday. The group, which Zeskind and others describe as a white supremacist coalition, want to fan Chicago's smoldering racial tensions into flame, other officials have said. Two weeks ago, an estimated 2,500 whites attended a Klan rally in a Southwest Side park and clashed with two groups staging counter-demonstrations against the Klan. After that confrontation, police Superintendent Fred Rice and other Klan-watchers said they believed the Klan had targeted Chicago for increased recruiting. "The last issue of the Klan newspaper, 'White Patriot,' was subtitled, 'Special Illinois Edition,'" Zeskind said. "Both the Klan and the Nazi groups have placed a big emphasis on (recruiting) youth in the Chicago area." A recent report by the Chicago office of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith notes that neo-Nazi groups have been trying to recruit white youth gang members from the "uptown neighborhood for two years.

Chicago officials say Idaho group hub for supremacists

Aryan Nations linked to racial clashes

By WILLIAM C. HIDLAY
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Aryan Nations, a white racist movement plotting strategy in Idaho this weekend, serves as the hub for a coalition of neo-Nazi groups that have sparked recent racial clashes here, authorities said Tuesday. The white supremacist groups share members, have attended Midwest regional meetings to discuss strategy and agree on a common goal: increased recruiting of Chicago youths, including members of white youth gangs, authorities on extremist groups say. "The Aryan Nations has been a sort of a focus point for a web of organizations in the white racist movement," said Leonard Zeskind, research director of the Center for Democratic Renewal, a Ku Klux Klan watchdog group based in Atlanta. The group, which is planning a national congress this weekend in Hayden Lake, Idaho, is "a central point that pulls together the various organizations and creates a political movement," Zeskind said. Chip Berlet, a researcher with Chicago's Midwest Research Inc., a non-profit organization that monitors right-wing extremist groups, said the Chicago Klan and Nazi groups are "directly linked to the Aryan Nations." "They look to Aryan Nations people for leadership," he said. "The leadership of these various groups get together periodically and they discuss strategy, like, 'How do you mobilize a community? How do you exploit different situations?'" Zeskind's organization estimates white supremacist groups have about 20,000 hard-core members nationwide and 200,000-300,000 supporters in Chicago. The Rev. Richard Butler, a leader of the Aryan Nations, did not return telephone calls Tuesday. The group, which Zeskind and others describe as a white supremacist coalition, want to fan Chicago's smoldering racial tensions into flame, other officials have said. ## President signs bill starting DST earlier

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan signed a bill Tuesday lengthening daylight-saving time by three weeks, climaxing a 10-year effort that was opposed largely by members of Congress from rural areas. Beginning next year, people would set their clocks ahead an hour on the first Sunday in April. Under a 1966 law, daylight-saving time has begun on the last Sunday in April. No change would be made in the ending day for daylight-saving time, the final Sunday in October. Rural lawmakers, particularly those in western time zones, had argued that the change would force children and farmers to begin more of their days in the dark. Supporters of the change claimed it would save energy and cut down on highway deaths, since drivers would spend less time on darkened roads. The three-week extension was incorporated into a bill to double federal spending on fire prevention, to about $18 million a year. "This law will reduce traffic injuries to young and old alike, provide added hours of daylight for people with vision problems and provide one more hour of daylight leisure time for all Americans," Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., a sponsor of the measure, said in a statement released by his office.

Carter recalls pointed questions asked by Rickover during interview

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his 1975 campaign autobiography, "Why Not the Best," Jimmy Carter recalled Adm. Hyman Rickover's uncompromising standards. Carter wrote: "I had applied for the nuclear submarine program, and Admiral Rickover was interviewing me for the job. It was the first time I met Admiral Rickover, and we sat in a large room by ourselves for more than two hours, and he let me choose any subject I wished to discuss. "Very carefully, I chose those about which I knew most at the time — current events, seamanship, music, literature, naval tactics, electronics, gunnery — and he began to ask me a series of questions of increasing difficulty. In each instance, he soon proved that I knew relatively little about the subject I had chosen. "He always looked right into my eyes, and he never smiled. I was saturated with cold sweat. "Finally, he asked me a question and I thought I could redeem myself. He said, 'How did you stand in your class at the Naval Academy?' Since I had completed my sophomore year at Georgia Tech before entering Annapolis as a plebe, I had done very well and I swelled: my chest with pride and answered, 'Sir, I stood fifty-ninth in a class of 830!' "I sat back to wait for the congratulations — which never came.

Instead, the question: 'Did you do your best?' "I started to say, 'Yes, sir,' but I remembered who this was, and recalled several of the many times at the academy when I could have learned more about our allies, our enemies, weapons, strategy, and so forth. I was just human. I finally gulped and said, 'No, sir, I didn't always do my best.' "He looked at me for a long time, and then turned his chair around to end the interview. He asked one final question, which I have never been able to forget — or to answer: He said, 'Why not?' "I sat there for a while, shaken, and then slowly left the room."

Rickover

 before he was forced by Reagan to retire at age 82. Rickover was skipper of a navy-within-a-navy, the nuclear-powered fleet which has grown to nearly half of the Navy's combatant forces since the 1955 commissioning of the submarine Nautilus, a real-life version of the revolutionary vessel that spilled from Jules Verne's imagination.

Rickover was a fastidious little man, who was as demanding of himself as he was of others, suffering neither fools nor superiors — indeed, he often pronounced them one and the same.

In the end, the Pentagon sounded a sour note even after his retirement. Navy Secretary John Lehman publicly censured him for accepting $6,628 in gifts over the years from the General Dynamics Corp., which built the nuclear submarines and ships born on Rickover's drawing boards.

When Rickover, who had suffered heart attacks in 1961 and 1974, was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital on July 4, 1985, with a stroke, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., suggested the ailment was "brought on possibly by being dragged through the mud by the very institution to which he rendered his invaluable services."

Rickover acknowledged taking gifts from General Dynamics, saying he had given many of the items to others, including members of Congress. "But the question that ought to be asked," he said, "is did I even favor General Dynamics or any other contractor?"

Adm. James D. Watkins, chief of naval operations, said early that July that "I don't see any conflict of interest who knows Adm. Rickover thought he could be influenced with a gift. Defense contractors have never had a tougher taskmaster."

Watkins, who once worked on Rickover's headquarters staff, said that "I have never met a man who worked harder or evidenced less interest in material possessions than Adm. Rickover. His life was devoted to the job. . . . He was among the very first to work every morning and the very last to leave at night. For him, Saturdays were regular work days — often on Sundays."

Rickover, he recalled, "scheduled out-of-town meetings at night to minimize his time away from the office. He insisted that initial sea trials for nuclear-powered ships start on Sundays for the same reason. He almost never took leave."

In fact, said Watkins, Navy records show that in just the last nine years of Rickover's career, he forfeited annual leave worth $35,000.

Lehman conceded that when Rickover was forced to retire in 1982 he had not slowed down "in any way." But what was needed, Lehman insisted, was "a young man who can be available for the next decade."

Rickover's supporters believed that what the new administration really wanted, however, was more of a team player for its big military buildup. Rickover long had attacked the Pentagon for being bloated and top-heavy with brass. In 1960, he pronounced the Defense Department congested and said it should be purged "or it will become increasingly torpid."

Said Watkins: "Long before the terms 'waste, fraud and abuse' became fashionable, Adm. Rickover was of his own campaign. This stemmed not only from his sense of duty, but also from his conviction that technical discipline and financial discipline go hand in hand."

On Tuesday, Lehman said that Rickover's 63 years of service "are a national accomplishment. I think will stand unlike in American naval history. . . . It is a most incredible and remarkable record of American accomplishment for an immigrant, born abroad in the Soviet Union, to become this father not only of the nuclear Navy but also the standards of safe nuclear power."

Rickover was the second living person to have a Navy vessel named in his honor. The nuclear-powered attack submarine USS Hyman G. Rickover was commissioned on July 21, 1984. The first Navy ship named after a living person was the USS Carol Vance, named for the former Georgia congressman.

President offers tribute

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan saluted Adm. Hyman Rickover as a man of peace Tuesday and said it was particularly poignant that his death followed the Fourth of July celebration of the achievements of immigrants.

"His commitment to excellence and uncompromising devotion to duty were an integral part of American life for a generation," Reagan said of Rickover. "The nuclear-powered submarines, cruisers and aircraft carriers deployed throughout the world today in defense of liberty are a major part of Admiral Rickover's legacy."

"He was also a revered teacher parents, and came with them to America when he was 6. He grew up in Chicago, where his father was a tailor.

Rickover graduated from Annapolis in 1922, finishing in the top fifth of his class.

He became a submarine officer in 1930. For six months in World War II, he worked on the Manhattan Project and became convinced that a nuclear reactor could be developed to keep submarines underwater for months without having to surface to recharge their batteries.

The idea was resisted by the Navy establishment as impractical. But Rickover won the battle when one of his supporters, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, became chief of naval operations, and approved the plan as "militarily desirable."

Rickover later became the Navy's chief of nuclear propulsion and helped develop the first civilian nuclear power plant to produce electricity. It was built at Shippingport, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

But the then-Navy captain's outspokenness and refusal to work through established channels made enemies. He was twice passed over for promotion.

Without special action by Congress, he might have been forced to retire on June 30, 1953. And he was not invited to the ceremonial White House announcement in 1958 of the historic voyage under the polar ice cap by the Nautilus.

But Rickover told reporters he'd rather talk about subs than snubs, and turned the discussion to the Nautilus, his baby. "It shows that we have a ship that can hide under the sea," he said. "And when we get missile subs, anyone who dares attack us will know he will inevitably be destroyed."

Rickover was able to survive his battles largely because of his friends in Congress.

The Senate Armed Services Committee once held up the promotions of 39 captains to create pressure for Rickover's promotion. "Like most great men," said Glenn, a member of that panel, "Adm. Rickover had flaws, and sometimes those flaws tended to obscure his many accomplishments."

He deplored laxness in American education. In a speech in 1978, he said, "In case after case, not only in engineering, mathematics and science, but in history, foreign language, economics and other fields, I find students who have excellent academic records but are unable to discuss even the fundamentals of their disciplines."

Impose college drug ban, Bennett says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary William J. Bennett, noting the recent drug deaths of young athletes, said Tuesday that every college president in the nation should begin and strictly enforce a ban on drugs on campus.

"Such a policy could, in fact, be enforced. It should be enforced," Bennett said. "And no parent or taxpayer would object if such a policy were announced and carried out."

Bennett said colleges and universities have a responsibility to parents to take measures to protect their children from illegal drugs and drug pushers, just as they protect from crime, fraud or exploitation.

"Parents do not expect colleges to be neutral as between decent morality and decadence," he said.

Bennett made the remarks in a lecture to several hundred people at the Heritage Foundation, a conservative think tank with close ties to the Reagan administration.

The education secretary said government and family have always played in the fight against drugs, ad-

WILLIAM J. BENNETT
"No parent would object"

"Our colleges and universities often, and sometimes quite properly, call to task the rest of society for failing to live up to its stated ideals. They set themselves the role of moral gadfly, moral conscience. But what of them?"

Although he did not cite names, Bennett apparently referred to the death June 19 of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, of cocaine intoxication. His death has focused intense scrutiny on the university's sports program and on college athletics in general.

It was followed eight days later by the cocaine-induced death of Cleveland Browns football star and former UCLA player Don Rogers, 27, which touched off renewed calls for drug testing. The National Football League on Monday announced mandatory random drug testing of its players.

Bennett said his previous calls for a crackdown on drugs had been criticized as simplistic and likened to those of "a small-town PTA president."

He responded to those critics by suggesting academic and cultural institutions "have become so sophisticated that they have forgotten their elementary duties and responsibilities."

"Every college president should write to his students this summer and tell them this: 'Welcome back for your studies in September; but no drugs on campus. None. Period. This policy will be enforced — by deans and administrators and advisors and faculty — strictly but fairly,'" he said.

"It would be good for our youth, good for our society and good for our institutions of higher learning."

Bennett credited President Reagan's administration with starting "a reinvigoration of our institutions and a resumption of responsibilities" necessary to fight drugs.

"The meaning of the Reagan revolution extends beyond tax reform and a stronger defense to a recovery of our national purpose, a strengthening of our social bonds, a reaffirmation of our common cultural beliefs," he said.

Court revives Goetz case

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state's top court reinstated attempted murder and assault charges Tuesday against Bernhard Goetz for shooting youths on a Manhattan subway, and said he welcomed a chance to bring the notorious case to trial.

Goetz, 39, an electronics worker, was praised as a heroic crime victim by some and blasted as a trigger-happy vigilante by others, after he admitted shooting the four teen-agers on Dec. 22, 1984, when one of them asked him for $5.

Goetz, a white man who had been injured in a 1981 mugging, has said he was acting in self-defense because he feared that the four black youths were about to rob him. The teen-agers have said they were panhandling to get money for video games.

He was indicted by a grand jury on four counts of attempted murder and four counts of assault, but these charges were thrown out by lower courts. The New York Court of Appeals unanimously overruled those lower courts and declared that a jury must get a chance to decide Goetz' guilt or innocence.

Goetz' defense attorney, Barry Slobnick, said he would not appeal.

Although disappointed by the ruling, Slobnick said, "what is about to happen is perhaps the best thing Bernhard Goetz will go on trial. The public will now see and know all of the facts and he will ultimately be acquitted by a jury of his peers."

"Perhaps it's necessary that we go forward and Bernhard Goetz be publicly exonerated. The facts cry out for an acquittal and Bernhard Goetz will be acquitted," Slobnick added.

Baby Jesse goes home with parents

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Baby Jesse left the hospital in his tearful mother's arms Tuesday, less than one month after he received a heart transplanted from a brain-dead infant.

Jesse Dean Sepulveda, who was rejected for a heart transplant by Loma Linda University Medical Center until his unwed parents surrendered custody, was wrapped in white to protect him from the sun and taken away in a private car.

Family and friends launched blue-and-white balloons as the baby left the hospital.

Asked what he hopes for his son, Sepulveda said, "A long, long life and a happy one."

New safety office set for NASA

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA reached outside its own ranks Tuesday for a safety czar to keep an independent watch on space agency activities to prevent another disaster like the one that destroyed the shuttle Challenger.

George A. Rodney, an experimental test pilot with great experience in safety programs during 41 years with Martin Marietta Corp., will head a new Office of Safety, Reliability and Quality Assurance in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Rodney's new title, that of associate administrator, gives him equal footing with the head of the space shuttle program. Rodney will report directly to NASA's administrator and he will have direct authority throughout the agency.

The establishment of such an office and a safety czar were among the key recommendations made by the Rogers Commission that investigated the Jan. 28 Challenger accident and the deaths of its crew of seven.

The office, to be located NASA's Washington headquarters, would be responsible for tracking such problems as leaks in booster rocket joint seals which doomed the Challenger.

"The reporting system simply was not making trends, status and problems visible with sufficient accuracy and emphasis," the Rogers Commission said in its report to President Reagan.

Group renews battle on drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — A health group, contending foreign drug reaction reports were illegally withheld from the Food and Drug Administration by Pfizer Inc., petitioned the FDA on Wednesday to weigh criminal prosecution of the company.

The Public Citizen Health Research Group, originally organized by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, said Pfizer illegally withheld nearly 800 reports of reactions to its arthritis drug Feldene involving patients from Great Britain, Ireland, Canada and Norway.

The contention was immediately denied by Pfizer, which said the group was "grasping at straws" in the wake of the FDA's refusal Monday to declare Feldene hazardous for elderly patients.

Monday's decision, which said Feldene showed no greater hazard than other arthritis drugs, rejected a Health Research Group petition.

The new petition, addressed to FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young, said Pfizer gathered adverse reaction reports from foreign countries using Feldene between 1980 and 1982, but did not send them to the FDA until after the agency's April 1982 decision to approve U.S. marketing of Feldene.

The group said Pfizer collected some 700 reports of serious drug reactions, including 14 deaths.

What's what

A child's birthday party is for the parents. So says our Love and War man. What's most enjoyable about that party are its memories of emotion, linked to birthdays past, including the first. The child doesn't remember. But the parents do. Fortunately for the child, there are presents. Good. Without them, the birthday would be meaningless to the child. That's why birthday presents were invented, no?

Q. Three-fourths of all the cut flowers sold in the United States, I've read, are grown outside the United States. Where?

A. South America, mostly.

Q. How many were in that one early party of gold miners who died in Death Valley to earn the name?

A. Twenty went in, 18 came out. In that particular group. But numerous others in different parties also died.

Detective novelist says ending marriage was his wife's idea

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Hard-boiled detective novelist Mickey Spillane, testifying in his ex-wife's second bid to nullify their 1983 divorce, said it was Sherri Spillane's idea to break up with him after 19 years of marriage.

Spillane, the creator of fictional detective Mike Hammer, testified Monday that he tried to cooperate with his ex-wife, who initiated divorce proceedings. He said they agreed on an $18,000 divorce settlement.

Sherri Spillane, who had lead roles in Las Vegas musicals in the early 1970s, remarried within minutes of the April 1983 divorce and Spillane remarried six months later. She is seeking an annulment of her latest marriage.

On Monday, District Judge Myron Leavitt refused her request to reconsider his refusal last year to nullify the divorce.

In a financial statement, she said she was unemployed with little cash, and cited monthly expenses including $300 for clothing and $150 for her hair, makeup and nails. She also contends in a separate civil suit that the writer, whose legal name is Frank Morrison

Jazz stars will headline festival in September

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Jazz vocalist Sarah Vaughan, bluesman B.B. King, fusion group Spyro Gyra and the big band of Buddy Rich headline a two-day jazz festival planned here — and most of it's free, organizers said. Jazzfest, scheduled Sept. 19-20, features Miss Vaughan and British pianist Marian McPartland in a concert Sept. 19, with tickets selling for $13.50 to $18.50, said Jeanie Linders, the event's executive director, said Monday.

Everything else, including a 12-hour outdoor festival in the city's Eola Park, is free, she said Monday as officials announced the plans.

Corporate sponsors are to pay Jazzfest's $205,000 cost in exchange for the use of their names and products, Ms. Linders said.

The city also plans to film the concert and distribute it internationally with the Public Broadcasting Service, organizers said.

New SAC commander defends protest right

OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE, Neb. (AP) — Americans have a responsibility to protest, says the new commander of the Strategic Air Command, who had 240 anti-nuclear protesters on hand over the weekend.

"The great thing about democracy is that people have the right to protest — a responsibility to protest — and their feelings won't get to their congressmen," Gen. John Chain said Monday. "I applaud them... I'm in uniform to protect their right to protest."

Chain, in his first news conference as the head of SAC, commented on the protest of 240 anti-nuclear protesters, including members of the Great Peace March, who were detained briefly Sunday after entering Offutt illegally.

"If they looked at logic, asked questions, they would see they are on the wrong side of the issue," said Chain, 51.

And while protesters have a right to voice their opinions, "I don't like their violating the law by crossing into the base," he said.

Chain comes to SAC after serving as chief of staff of the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe, the military arm of NATO.

Heston enters campaign fray opposite Asner

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Actor Charlton Heston has entered the political fray of a Pennsylvania congressional race with a radio ad aimed at an old political foe of his own — Ed Asner.

"I know Ed. He's an actor, so am I. He usually plays warm, smart men. But I'm afraid he's not so smart in some of the political causes he supports," Heston said in the spot for Republican incumbent Bill Clinger that began a weeklong run Tuesday on 22 radio stations in the 23rd District.

Heston's endorsement of Clinger came in reaction to Asner's June 29 campaign appearance for Democratic challenger Bill Wachob in Centre and Clarion counties.

The conservative Heston and the liberal Asner have led opposing factions of the Screen Actors Guild for years, and both have served as guito president.

Heston wrote the ad and donated his services, according to Jim Clarke, Clinger's campaign manager.

Before Asner's appearance, Clinger issued a news release saying Asner last March had co-sponsored "a pro-Soviet communist newspaper banquet" that raised funds to support the publication, the People's World.

On the campaign trail, Asner said he was unaware of the newspaper Asner last March had co-sponsored. "I know Ed. He's an actor, so am I. He usually plays warm, smart men. But I'm afraid he's not so smart in some of the political causes he supports," Heston said in the spot for Republican incumbent Bill Clinger that began a weeklong run Tuesday on 22 radio stations in the 23rd District.

Heston, in the ad, mentioned the banquet and also said Asner has "raised money the American Security Council says helped communist-backed rebels in El Salvador."

Asner has said he raises money for medical aid to El Salvador, and Wachob said the American Security Council, which he called a private right-wing organization, was made to sound "quasi-governmental" in the ad.

"I think that Charlton Heston is a talented actor, and on occasion has even been able to part the Red Sea," Wachob said, referring to Heston's role as Moses in the movie "The Ten Commandments."

"But even Charlton Heston will not be able to save Bill Clinger's reelection," Clinger narrowly defeated Wachob, a former state representative, in 1984.

Wachob also accused Clinger of using the ad to obscure campaign issues of high unemployment, toxic waste cleanup and education cutbacks.

Heston said he did not know whether Wachob supported Asner's political views, "but a good way to measure a man's character is by the company he keeps."

Wachob faulted the reasoning, saying other notables who have campaigned for him include House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and former presidential candidate Gary Hart.

Paramilitary prosecution not likely

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Prosecution is necessary but unlikely in the case of armed members of a paramilitary group who held illegal aliens at gunpoint until Border Patrol officers arrived, authorities say.

"I can't find a violation," Chief Deputy U.S. Attorney Daniel Knauss said Monday. "But we can't let this continue."

Leaders of the Alabama-based group, known as Civilian Material Assistance, have defended its actions and said there was nothing illegal in the incident early Saturday near the border community of Naco.

CMA officials have said the group was trying to detect drug smugglers, and they denied claims that the aliens, numbering more than a dozen, were held at gunpoint. No injury was reported, and the aliens were deported at Nogales.

Knauss, head of the U.S. Attorney's Tucson office, and Cochise County Attorney Alan Polley discussed the situation Monday and each said later that prosecution was unlikely.

First lady signs contract for memoirs

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Reagan, who has kept day-by-day diaries of her White House years, has signed a contract to write her memoirs for Random House, a newspaper reported today.

The book is tentatively scheduled for publication in the fall of 1989, after Mrs. Reagan and the president return to private life. The New York Times reported. It will range from the author's youth through the 1988 presidential election. The purchase price was not revealed.

"This will beyond any doubt be one of the most important and widely read books to come out of the Reagan years," Robert L. Bernstein, chairman of Random House, was quoted as saying.

Therapist could be bigger pain in neck

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old woman who has never married. I am still a virgin, but I am not obsessed by the fact. (What I've never had, I don't miss.)

In the last 30 years I have been to many psychiatrists, psychologists and several chiropractors. (I got some help from the chiropractors, but the relief was only temporary.) The problem has been a chronic pain in my neck, and every medical doctor I saw tried to tell me it was all in my head.

Last week I went to yet another therapist who told me that the pain in my neck would disappear overnight if I would just hop into bed with a man — any man — regardless of whether I had any kind of feelings for him or not.

I protested, saying I could not hop into bed with a man unless I had some loving feelings for him. He said I was being childish, that sex is normal — then he volunteered to be my "first."

I said, "No, I couldn't go to bed

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

with a man unless I loved him. To do otherwise would be immoral, and I pride myself on being a moral person."

Am I wrong? Please answer soon. I want to show your answer to my therapist.

NORMAL IN VIRGINIA — DEAR NORMAL: I agree with you. Show this to your therapist. Suggesting that you hop into bed with just any man is bad enough, but volunteering his services is a violation of professional ethics.

Find another therapist. Your therapist needs a therapist.

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns my nephew, who has just graduated from high school and also has a birthday coming soon. I would like to give him a sizable cash gift for both his birthday and graduation, but I know that he is heavily involved in drugs (both using and dealing) and I fear the money will be used for drugs.

I considered opening a savings account for him, but if he found out about it, he would never let his mother rest until she gave him the money.

He has just begun counseling. Perhaps the money should go toward that, but I'm afraid if he found out he'd quit counseling. Material things are out of the question — he says he doesn't want anything!

We are well-off financially; I love him very much and are not ready to give up on him.

CONCERNED AUNT — DEAR CONCERNED: Send cards for his graduation and birthday, and after he has conquered his drug problem, then consider presenting him with a material gift.

Do not open a savings account in his name knowing that if he learns of it, he will nag his mother until she hands it over. And do not give him any money. If he receives a sizable cash gift he might be tempted to blow it.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since you printed the letter about the state of Delaware ("Dela-where?") in your column, I have been trying to recall the words to a song I used to know years ago.

It went something like this: "What did Dela wear, boys? What did Dela wear? She wore a New Jersey, she wore a New Jersey," etc.

Can you or any of your readers come up with the rest of the lyrics?

— G.L. INSLIDELL, L.A.
DEAR G.L.: I can't. But I'll bet somebody out there will. Watch this space.

CONFIDENTIAL TO FRAN SCHAFFEE IN CARY, ILL.: Your sister (the one who insists that I make up everything that appears in my column) is only half right. I "make-up" all the answers; my readers provide the problems.

Homesick kids need time for adjustments

By HARPER'S BAZAAR

This year marks the 150th anniversary of organized summer camping — and the 150th anniversary of camp homesick attacks.

Homesick kids will go to desperate lengths to get home, according to an article in Harper's Bazaar, and have been known to run away, to drop phony tearstains on their letters and even sneak a ship-to-shore radio call to dad's beeper.

Third generation camp director Don Cheley of Colorado's Camp Cheley sends parents pre-camp instructions on homesickness, warning them about their child's first letters home.

"We have moved into preventive medicine," he said.

Bob Ditter, a Boston family psychologist who does consulting on the problem for camp directors and parents, called homesickness nothing more than a crisis of confidence.

The child must make adjustments to a change in environment, routine and the people around him. Families can help by talking positively about camp and honestly about separation, perhaps telling the child about their own experiences with homesickness and how they overcame it.

Ditter said there are no set rules about who should be sent away to camp. If there is serious upheaval in the home — divorce, moving to a new place, or death — the child needs to be home. A child may be old enough for camp when he or she can separate fantasy from reality.

Sometimes it is the parents who can't let go — like the parents of a little girl at camp Tamarack in Oregon who decided to go on vacation while their daughter was at camp — to a resort six miles from camp. They visited camp daily and Camp Tamarack now limits parents to one visit per session.

Humble hooked rugs part of latest trend in country art

By CONNOISSEUR

The once-humble American hooked rug hangs on museum walls these days and brings prices in the thousands of dollars — part of the trend toward American country art.

A decade ago most hooked rugs sold for between $50 and $150, according to an article in the July issue of Connoisseur, but now the price range is between $150 and $2,000 — and sometimes up to as much as $6,500.

A hooked rug depicting three cats was sold at the Baltimore Museum Antiques Show last year for $11,000.

Rug hooking is an ancient craft — the Copts did it, so did the Norse. It was called "thrumming" in Britain.

But the Old World rugs did not display scenes or striking design — experts believe that was pioneered in America where rug hooking has been called "America's" one indigenous folk art.

Court stays executions set for pair following appeals

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has stayed the scheduled Thursday executions of convicted murderers Donald Fetterly and Albert Ray Beam.

The stays came automatically under state law with Monday's appeal by the two death row inmates of earlier rulings by 3rd District Judge Edward Lodge. The high court issued an official order Tuesday staying the death warrants while the cases are on appeal.

Lodge last month denied petitions from Beam and Fetterly for post-conviction relief and motions for reduced sentences. He set their executions by lethal injection for early Thursday morning.

A.J. Arave, warden of the Idaho State Penitentiary, said he had been prepared to assemble the execution team and isolate Beam and Fetterly Tuesday night. Relatives and witnesses were notified of the planned executions last week, he said. Meanwhile, stays remained in effect Tuesday for the three other men under sentences of death in Idaho.

A stay of execution for Thomas Eugene Creech was scheduled to expire Thursday. Creech's appeals were rejected by U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan, and his attorney was preparing to take the case to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

If the appellate court does not act by Thursday, 4th District Judge Robert Newhouse will schedule another execution date.

Creech pleaded guilty to the 1983 beating death of fellow penitentiary inmate David Dale Jensen. Donald Paradis and Thomas Gibson, both convicted in the 1981 slaying of a Spokane, Wash., woman, have been granted stays of execution by U.S. District Judges Harold Ryan and Marion Callister, respectively.

Beam was convicted along with Michael Scroggins in the 1983 rape and murder of Mondri Lenten, 13, of Nampa. Fetterly was found guilty along with Karla Windsor in the 1982 stabbing death of Sterling Grammer of Caldwell during a robbery.

The state Supreme Court earlier this year ordered reductions in death sentences Lodge handed down against Scroggins and Ms. Windsor. But Lodge disqualified himself from the resentencing, saying he could not justify anything less than execution for the crimes.

He then refused a request last month from Canyon County public defender Van Bishop, citing the high court's rulings in companion cases, to reduce Fetterly's and Beam's death sentences.

Lodge said reducing their sentences so all four would be punished equally "would breed disrespect for the law and give justification for a lack of confidence in the judicial system."

Bishop, who filed the appeals in Canyon County on Monday, was away from his Nampa office and unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Scroggins and Ms. Windsor have yet to be resentenced.

Lottery on ballot this fall

BOISE (AP) — Barring a successful legal challenge between now and November, Idaho voters will decide in the general election whether the state will join the list of those with a state-run lottery.

An initiative effort easily beat a deadline on Monday, and produced 50,023 signatures in favor of a vote on a state lottery. That was half again the 32,666 signatures required.

Idaho voters will have the lottery initiative to decide, and also will vote in a referendum on the state's new right-to-work law. Idaho became the 21st state with a law banning compulsory union membership or payment of dues as a condition of employment, but labor unions gathered more than 60,000 signatures to force a referendum on that issue.

There's still the possibility of a legal challenge to the lottery question, but Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa said Tuesday the problem will be coming up with a plaintiff to file legal action.

Until someone or a group can show "irreparable harm" from letting voters decide the lottery issue, it will be difficult to obtain the legal standing needed to file a lawsuit against the initiative, Ysursa said.

That was attempted in 1974, when Idaho voters by initiative enacted the state's "Sunshine Law," requiring campaign finance and lobbyist spending reports. A group of lobbyists tried to stop the initiative, but a federal judge ruled they had no standing to file a lawsuit against the initiative before the vote.

The "Sunshine Law" received overwhelming voter approval and overruled no serious legal challenge thereafter.

Groups backing a vote on the lottery filed more than 49,000 signatures from registered voters last week. Other late-arriving petitions pushed the count to 50,023 by the deadline Monday at 5 p.m., Ysursa said.

Supporters and opponents of the lottery vote now must submit 500-word arguments, Ysursa said. The deadline for those statements is July 21. Then 250-word rebuttal statements can be submitted by both sides, under an Aug. 1 deadline.

Murder suspect in court

AMERICAN FALLS (AP) — two men were found dead in a trailer four miles south of the Arbon Valley exit on Interstate 86, being formally charged with first-degree murder in the May slaying of a man near Arbon Valley.

Vasquez, 26, was arraigned Monday in American Falls before 6th District Magistrate Mark Beebe, a court clerk said. He was held at the Power County Jail on Tuesday pending a preliminary hearing July 21.

The Power County Sheriff's Department had been searching for Vasquez since May 10, when the killings allegedly followed an argument about music preferences.

Vasquez first indicated he would fight extradition to Idaho on the murder charge, but was returned to American Falls over the weekend after agreeing to be extradited.

Judge says Boiseans aren't liable for share of office deal

BOISE (AP) — Fourth District Judge Deborah Ball has ruled that House Majority Leader Jack Kennevik and former state Sen. Lyle R. Cobbs are not liable for their part in a Boise office deal.

Judge Ball's ruling in effect reversed part of a jury verdict that found the two Boise men liable for damages to Wayne D. Hudson, a retired attorney who bought the Wildwood Office Center as an investment.

After a 5-week trial, a jury in December found that Kennevik and Cobbs, along with developer Mark Bazeghi, negligently misrepresented themselves to Hudson.

Jurors found that a partnership called Webster Investments No. 3, which built, sold, and managed the center, breached its contract to pre-lease the building so Hudson could obtain long-term financing for the project.

The jury determined that Kennevik, Cobbs, Bazeghi and Webster Investments No. 3, should compensate Hudson $313,969.09 for what he lost on the office building project. But now Cobbs and Kennevik will not have to pay anything with the granting of their motion for "judgment notwithstanding the verdict."

Both Cobbs and Kennevik said they were elated with Ball's decision. "I've always had a strong faith in our system of government, and this decision has not caused me to waiver from that," Cobbs said.

Kennevik said it showed "the system works." Hudson, informed of the decision Monday, said, "It's difficult for me to imagine how she could have done such a thing. That really floors me. I hate to have people who conducted themselves in that way get off scot-free."

He said he would talk with his attorneys before deciding whether to appeal.

Hudson assumed ownership of the office complex on July 1, 1981, but the bank foreclosed on it in 1983, after he defaulted on a loan because of a lack of tenants.

He contended he bought the center with the agreement that Webster Investments would pre-lease 81 percent of the building by July 1, 1981. He claimed Bazeghi induced him to buy the building by representing that Cobbs, Kennevik and a corporation that Hudson alleges they formed, Professionals Inc., had signed leases for 42 percent of the building.

Hudson contended Cobbs and Kennevik never intended to be bound by the leases, which were necessary so the bank would approve favorable long-term financing.

Cobbs and Kennevik claimed they signed the leases to help their friend Bazeghi, not because they intended to rent space. They agreed to lend Bazeghi their credit because they believed he owned the building and wanted to acquire favorable financing terms.

In her 46-page decision, Ball said she erred by letting the jury consider the "negligent misrepresentation" claim, or the basis on which the jurors found Cobbs and Kennevik liable.

Leroy fills posts on campaign staff

BOISE (AP) — Lt. Gov. David Leroy has tapped three prominent Ada County Republicans to head his campaign for governor in southwestern Idaho's two most populous counties.

Leroy on Tuesday named Pat Barclay of Boise as Treasure Valley regional coordinator for the Leroy for Governor campaign.

And Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower and Sheriff Vaughn Killeen were named co-chairmen of the Leroy campaign in Ada County.

Free mail cut sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearing that abuse may cost lawmakers their ability to communicate freely with constituents, Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, is calling for a reduction in the number of free districtwide mailings allowed under the congressional "franking" privilege.

"I personally believe we need only two, rather than the now-allowed six, districtwide mailings annually, and I have proposed legislation to enforce this policy.

But I also believe in pursuing every possible pipeline to Idaho, Craig said in a news release issued Monday.

The congressman, running for his fourth term in the House from Idaho's 1st District, said he understood why the congressional privilege of free mailing to constituents was under fire.

Craig said "nothing should be allowed to endanger 'a citizen's one-on-one interaction with his congressman..."

Free mail cut sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearing that abuse may cost lawmakers their ability to communicate freely with constituents, Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, is calling for a reduction in the number of free districtwide mailings allowed under the congressional "franking" privilege.

"I personally believe we need only two, rather than the now-allowed six, districtwide mailings annually, and I have proposed legislation to enforce this policy."

But I also believe in pursuing every possible pipeline to Idaho," Craig said in a news release issued Monday.

The congressman, running for his fourth term in the House from Idaho's 1st District, said he understood why the congressional privilege of free mailing to constituents was under fire. But Craig said nothing should be allowed to endanger "a citizen's one-on-one interaction with his congressman."

Leroy fills posts on campaign staff

BOISE (AP) — Lt. Gov. David Leroy has tapped three prominent Ada County Republicans to head his campaign for governor in southwestern Idaho's two most populous counties.

Leroy on Tuesday named Pat Barclay of Boise as Treasure Valley regional coordinator for the Leroy for Governor campaign.

And Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower and Sheriff Vaughn Killeen were named co-chairmen of the Leroy campaign in Ada County.

Fund pinch costs WSU researcher

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Tight state funding for research is being blamed for the departure of a leading researcher in plant genetics and the founder of Washington State University's Institute of Biological Chemistry.

Papanicolaou Kolattukudy, director of the IBC and world-renowned for his research in plant-biotechnology and biochemistry, on Monday announced his resignation. Kolattukudy will leave WSU after 17 years to become the director of the Ohio State University Biotechnology Center at Ohio State University in Columbus.

"I'm leaving partly because the situation here is not what it ought to be," said Kolattukudy.

Financial constraints have been the problem, explained the researcher. When he set up the IBC to pursue biotechnological research, he gave projections to the state and the university administration about what his work would require to function effectively, Kolattukudy said.

"This is more than a serious loss," said Jim Ozburn, dean of WSU's College of Agriculture and Home Economics. "It's almost a disaster for WSU."

The scientist is a leading international authority on the genetic mechanisms that confer disease protection on plants.

In 1980, Kolattukudy set up the IBC at Plant Biotechnology research involves the manipulation of a plant's genetic material to create more productive or pest-resistant crops.

Travelers launches foreclosure on Triad Center

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Travelers Insurance Co., largest creditor of Triad America Co., has taken the first steps toward foreclosing on the Triad Center.

Travelers, of Hartford, Conn., asked the 3rd District Court to appoint a receiver to take control of the development in downtown Salt Lake City.

Travelers loaned Triad $38 million on April 23, 1985. The loan is secured by all of the developed real estate at the Triad Center except a portion of KSL Broadcast House and a portion of 3 Triad Center, which houses the state Department of Social Services. Triad also granted Travelers a security interest in various fixtures, machinery, equipment and furnishings, according to the action filed with the 3rd District Court on June 30.

Triad has failed to make interest payments to Travelers since May 1 and was $998,902.92 behind on its interest payments as of June 9, according to Travelers' complaint. Interest on the loan now is accruing at a rate of $17,171.54 a day.

A hearing is scheduled for July 15 on Travelers' request for a receiver to manage the Triad Center and collect rent from the tenants.

Travelers then will seek a court judgment that Triad is in default on the $38 million loan — the first step toward selling the Triad Center at a sheriff's sale.

Triad is the U.S. holding company of the Khazoggi family of Saudi Arabia. It was founded by Adnan Khazoggi.

Emanuel Floor, Triad executive vice president, did not return phone calls Monday.

December 1983, First Interstate said.

Triad has been seeking new investors, however, to alleviate its cash-flow problems. Floor said on May 23 that the company expected to present a plan to the creditors to deal with its financial troubles.

First Interstate Bank of Utah, N.A., is moving to foreclose on two parcels of undeveloped property at the Triad Center. It is delinquent on $4 million of a $7 million loan secured for Triad's postponed in March 1984 and on $5.8 million on a $6 million loan made in Security Pacific Mortgage Corp. is moving to foreclose on three parcels at the Salt Lake International Center, pledged as collateral for a $2.4 million loan. Triad missed payments in March and April, according to the default notice filed May 30.

Adam and Smith Inc. is seeking a buyer for the $5 million of structural steel ordered for Triad's postponed $5.8 million office tower at the Triad Center.

Ask any cook: Summer food must be light

These dishes fill seasonal bill

Ask a cook to describe summer food. The answer will probably be quick and direct: light, healthy, fresh-tasting, fast and easy to prepare with an emphasis on make-ahead items.

Summer eaters agree. They want food that delights the palate. Food that goes where the action is — on a terrace, boat or beach.

Try a warm-weather menu that satisfies everybody. Equally welcome at a pallo buffet, picnic lunch or light dinner, the main course is poached Alaska salmon steaks marinated in a piquant lemon vinaigrette, garnished with pepper strips and tomatoes. Salmon is "fast food" at its best. Tasty in high quality protein and important health-promoting nutrients, salmon steaks can be poached, baked or barbecued in less than 15 minutes.

Accent the entree salad with California Pistachio Garlic Toast. It transforms pita bread into crisp cracker triangles. Easily prepared, these tasty treats can be made ahead and frozen until ready to enjoy. Pistachios are as versatile as the activities of summer. Tuck them into backpacks and picnic baskets for energy-filled snacking, or leave a bowl of the ivory-colored nuts available for nutritious, out-of-hand eating.

Hot summer days beg for cooling refreshment. Serve icy Pear Sorbet Ring, cool and bursting with flavor. Made from convenient canned Bartlett pears, the sorbet is just sweet enough to satisfy the need for dessert without tasting too sugary any. And, with only three ingredients required, it is a breeze to make. Picked at their peak of ripeness, canned pears add flavor texture to salads, main courses and desserts throughout the year.

California Pistachio-Style Shortbread, a delicately flavored crunchy variation of the buttery cookie, goes together in moments for an easy home-baked treat. Serve with the Pear Sorbet Ring or use it to spruce up ice cream.

With every part of the meal meant to be prepared ahead, this summer menu leaves the cook plenty of time for fun and relaxation.

MARINATED ALASKA SALMON SALAD

- 2 (about 8 ounce each) poached Alaska salmon steaks
- 1 small onion, very thinly sliced
- 1 tomato, sliced
- 1/4 cup each lemon juice and olive oil
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 1 teaspoon oregano, crushed
- 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1 small green pepper, thinly sliced

vertically

- 1 avocado, sliced vertically (optional)

Remove skin and bones from salmon steaks; split each into 2 pieces. Place salmon, onion and tomato in shallow dish. Combine lemon juice, oil, parsley, oregano, salt and pepper; mix well. Pour mixture over salmon and vegetables. Cover and refrigerate at least 1 hour; add green pepper during last 20 minutes. Arrange salmon, vegetables and avocado on platter. Makes 4 servings.

Poached Alaska Salmon Steaks: In skillet, pour boiling water over 2 Alaska salmon steaks to cover. Add 3 slices lemon, 3 slices onion, 1 bay leaf and several whole peppercorns. Return to boil; cover and simmer 10 minutes per inch of thickness of salmon. Drain and cool. Makes 4 servings.

PISTACHIO GARLIC TOAST

- 1/4 cup butter or margarine

4-day fitness fling provided good tips for eating smartly

I could have sworn he said 7 kilometers. For a while I thought the sun had gotten to me more than usual as we hiked and hiked and hiked over hills and creeks, through wildflower meadows and in shadowy, shady glades.

Finally, there was a sign. It read, "2.5 back to trailhead."

"Two-point-five what?" I asked, gasping.

"Miles," our leader replied.

"We've only come five so far."

Well, it WAS the Sun Valley Dinosaur Fitness Festival, and I was getting fit. And not just fit to be hiked. It was the fourth day, and I should have known the grand finale for me would be a measly seven-mile hike.

After the first day, when they "tested" me, I should have been prepared for anything. OK, just how many sprints or push-ups can YOU do in one minute or how fast can you run 1 1/2 miles in the noonday sun?

Even my fit husband, a nine-year running veteran, called it a "humbling experience."

We learned what we should eat when to eat it and how from Jane Brody, food and nutrition writer for the New York Times. She was a good speaker and full of common sense.

My favorite educational workshop had a dull title, "Psychological Factors of Fitness," but it was a really jizzy presentation about how to maneuver yourself into a fitness regime and stay there. It was presented by Dr. Maureen Weiss.

Of course, there were workshops taught by the men, and good ones, too. But, you see, I'm a survivor of the archaic school of thought that women should not do anything to raise a sweat, let alone attempt athletic achievement, so I found the gals' presentations doubly interesting.

One thing I'll do the rest of my life is exercise. There are many reasons, but the one that every woman should consider most carefully is that exercise is the only known way to stop losing calcium from your bones and to put it back. Supplements won't put calcium back, but exercise will.

Would I attend this fitness festival again? You bet! I can't wait until I go again next year. Just think what I can do, with practice. Maybe I won't be just average on my coronary risk chart, but below average.

It's a great goal to work toward.

I love food shows and food fairs, and we had one at the festival. Is food that is good for you boring, tasteless and dull? Not on your life. We dined on oysters on the half shell, fat-free tastades, wild rice, fresh green salads as well as ricey, grainy ones, along with famous Idaho potatoes and soon-to-be famous Idaho smoked trout.

One of the biggest taste hits was the newest kid on the block, the Idaho potato ice cream. It was really good. Really!

A couple of years ago I tried a sample of smoked trout and loved it, but I could never find it. Now here it is located and can give you a recipe for it.

It's great just as an appetizer on a good cracker or mixed with scrambled eggs for breakfast, but here's a special presentation.

Burgers rejuvenated as neat rolled treats for summer grilling

Is this recipe for Crusty Beef Rolls a world-class recipe for burgers or isn't it? You decide!

Combine ground beef with onion, salt, a dash of pepper and a surprise ingredient — steak sauce. Form thin patties and wrap around sticks of Monterey Jack or mozzarella cheese. Grill.

Serve on French bread with sliced onions, sweet peppers and more steak sauce. This mouth-watering combination is bound to be a hit throughout the season.

Here's another summertime idea — Tahitian Kabobs. Just combine steak sauce, water and sesame seeds to make an easy marinade. Use on kabobs and tenderize the meat for 15 minutes.

Either recipe can be cooked equally well outdoors over charcoal or indoors on a grill. So enjoy them either way. Both are perfect for picnics or a casual party.

Memories evoked of French cuisine and Bastille Day

By JOAN BEAN Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — On July 14, the French will celebrate Bastille Day with a national holiday on a occasion that might bring back pleasant memories for Barbara Arndt. Twenty years ago she was an exchange student over there, observing the festivities first-hand.

"They had these big street dances, which are fun," she said. "I don't remember fireworks. I think they do some fireworks, but that didn't seem to be the main thing."

The French celebration commemorates the beginning of a revolution that began on July 14, 1789, with a national holiday on Bastille, which had been used to house political prisoners, was destroyed.

"They released everybody," she said. "I don't think they cared whether they were political prisoners or not. Our revolution kind of gave them the idea."

Arndt was in France to attend the University of Grenoble in southern France, and during her year's stay, she lived with two different families.

She said in that time all she was ever allowed to do to help with meal preparation was make a salad.

"I would say, 'What could I do to help?' and they'd say, 'Renzuz la salade' (toss the salad). We Americans put lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers in ours, but theirs was just lettuce. And the lettuce leaves had to be cut up."

"Everybody had these little wire baskets, and all of the apartments had a little terrace. Well, I finally decided the terrace wasn't to go and sit and relax on — it was to take your lettuce out and dry it off. Then you take the lettuce out there and flip the water off."

To make the salad, Arndt said she put a little Dijon mustard on the tip of a tablespoon, and filled the spoon with olive oil. She held this in her left hand, and wine vinegar in her right, putting in about twice as much vinegar as oil, as she gently tossed the lettuce leaves.

Two years ago, Arndt began sharing her knowledge of the French language and culture with continuing students at the College of Southern Idaho. In her French for Fun class, she provides an introduction to the language. The course is especially helpful for anyone planning a trip to France.

By the end of the 10-week course, the students are well accustomed to the language and techniques. But, whether American or French cooking, it looks like it may be only a matter of time before she will be doing less of it.

She said her 15-year-old daughter, Ali, likes to bake. 13-year-old Allison doesn't like to cook at all. 10-year-old Alison makes her own lunches all the time and 6-year-old Adam can do scrambled eggs. "So, I guess I don't have to cook at all, except for the main meal at dinner," she said. "I'll have to teach the one that doesn't like to cook to do that one."

Following are two dishes she cooks in the French fashion.

RAGOUT OF BEEF OR LAMB

McDonald's bares food facts, publishes ingredients booklet

By WILLIAM C. HIDLAY
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — For the first time, McDonald's Corp. will distribute booklets telling fast-food fans what's in its restaurant fare, from 100 percent beef burgers to the Big Mac's 126-calorie special sauce, officials said Monday.

The world's largest fast-food restaurant chain has spent more than $1 million researching and developing the illustrated 37-page booklet, said Ed Rensi, president of McDonald's USA, based in Oak Brook, Ill.

"It's our attempt at making nutrition understandable," Rensi said in a telephone interview. "It's a good marketing program. It's a good way to sell our story... We're proud of our food. We're proud to publish this information."

Some nutrition advocates criticized the booklet as propaganda that provided information that was more promotional than nutritional.

McDonald's will provide 100 booklets to each of the more than 7,500 McDonald's restaurants nationwide for distribution starting

Aug. 15.

Customers will have to request the booklet. After the initial 100 booklets are given out, the company's franchisees will have to buy additional copies from the corporation, said spokeswoman Terri Capatosto.

The first 10 pages of the booklet describe ingredients, explaining, for example, that a cheeseburger includes ketchup, mustard, pickles, onions, salt and pepper.

The rest contains specific "label declarations," describing ingredients in a beef patty and listing the companies from which McDonald's buys its meat.

"These listings include the number of calories in each ingredient, such as 5 calories in a pickle slice and 126 calories in a serving of Big Mac sauce. But to find out that there are 570 calories in one Big Mac, the customer would have to add the calories listed for each ingredient used."

"The concept of it is terrific," said Michael Jacobson, executive director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest in Washington, D.C. But, he said, "They really hide the ingredients behind a fog of euphemisms, exaggerations and self-serving propaganda."

He cited, for example, a hamburger bun description: "Enriched wheat flour is the main ingredient in our buns — no surprise — but did you know that McDonald's requires its bakers to purchase the flour enriched with essential vitamins and minerals?"

While the booklet tells consumers that McDonald's uses "popeless chicken breasts and higher fat" McNuggets, it doesn't say how much salt or cholesterol is in each serving, although consumers can request that information from the "company's headquarters. The omission disappointed one nutritional expert.

"It's unfortunate that the more critical information on sodium, cholesterol and unsaturated fats is more difficult to come by," said Dr. C. Wayne Callaway, director of the Center for Clinical Nutrition at George Washington University Medical Center in Washington.

"In the absence of that information, it sounds as if what they're making available might be more promotional than informational," he said.

Rensi disagreed, saying most consumers don't need such detailed information.

"This booklet is for the general public," Rensi said. "The normal person on the street, like you and me, they don't need all that other stuff. In fact, it complicates the issue."

The booklet says McDonald's uses 100 percent beef in its burgers with "no additives, no fillers, no extenders." It uses American cheese bought from such major suppliers as Kraft Inc. and chicken from brand-name companies such as Tyson Foods Inc.

It also says a regular serving of french fries has 220 calories, Filet-O-Fish sandwiches are made from North Atlantic cod fish and that its bacon has smoke flavoring added.

In a test distribution of the booklet in New York, Rensi said, customers liked it. "They like the idea that we use Tyson chicken," he said. "They like the idea that we use Hunt's ketchup. They like the idea that we use only fresh eggs — not powdered eggs. It just reassures our customers and we're delighted about that."

TAHITIAN KABOBS
1/2 cup steak sauce
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon sesame seeds
1 pound sirloin steak, cut into strips
20 one-inch pieces fresh pineapple (about 1/2 medium-size pineapple)
1 medium-size green pepper, cut into 12 pieces
About 12 whole water chestnuts (half of 8-ounce can)
2 tablespoons oil

Combine 1/2 cup steak sauce, water and sesame seeds. Add beef and marinate at least 15 minutes. Thread beef strips, pineapple, green pepper and water chestnuts on 5 skewers, place on grill or broiler pan. Add oil to remaining marinade, brush over kabobs. Grill over medium coals or broil 4 to 5 inches from heat for 15 to 20 minutes until meat is done, turning and brushing occasionally with marinade. Serve with additional steak sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Fettucini

ing water, 5 to 7 minutes until a dent is made. Drain well and return to dry pot.

White noodles are cooking, place butter and cream in heavy skillet over medium-low heat. Stir constantly and cook until blended and mixture bubbles for 2 minutes. Stir in salt, pepper and nutmeg. Remove from heat and gradually stir in Fettuccini until blended and smooth.

Cook peas until barely done. (I just zapped mine in the microwave.) Drain and add to pot with noodles.

Remove skin from trout, cut and break into bite-sized pieces and also add to pot.

Return the skillet to the heat briefly but don't let sauce bubble or cheese will get lumpy. Pour sauce over fettuccini and place pot over low heat. Stir and toss with two forks until slightly thickened and pasta is done evenly, about 2-3 minutes.

Sprinkle with parsley and serve immediately. Serves four.

This recipe is from Lola and John at Good Taste in Ketchum. It's really super. As you can tell from the ingredients, you can only have it once a week or so (all that butter and cream!), but it's worth waiting for.

The trout is a Magic Valley product and really a special one.

Jane Brody, who lost a third of herself in weight, claimed she did it after she went off diets. Her book, "The Food Book" is full of well-rounded recipes that really taste good. Here is one you might like to make a staple at your house. Kids love it. And it would be great for all the Little League games or swim team.

PITA PIZZAS
4 sandwich-sized pitas (whole-wheat or white)
1 to 1/2 cup tomato sauce, to taste
4 slices cooked turkey or chicken breast or ham
8 slices tomato (optional)
4 thin slices cheese (American, Gouda, etc.)

Smear one side of each pita with some tomato sauce. Add 1 slice of meat, 2 slices tomato and 1 slice cheese in that order.

Heat the pitas in a toaster oven or under the oven broiler for a few minutes or until the cheese melts and the pizzas are heated through.

Enjoy July!

Pinch of thyme
Pinch of laurel
Parsley, to taste
2 tablespoons flour

"Brown Sauce": Brown the stew meat and add enough water to make 1 1/2 cups liquid. If this does not look rich enough, add a beef bouillon cube.

Add Worcestershire and onion, and brown. Toss in mushrooms, thyme, paprika, laurel, parsley and wine. Thicken with the flour. Simmer about two hours.

"Usually I just make good old American stew, but if I'm bored and say, 'Gee, let's do something different,' then I make this kind of rich sauce, and serve it either on mushrooms or rice," she said.

SOUFFLE AU FROMAGE
(Cheese Souffle)
(Serves four)
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
About 1 cup milk, any temperature
1/2-cup Gruyere or Swiss cheese, grated

Salt and pepper, to taste

Put butter in pan, and as soon as it is melted and soft, beat lightly, and throw in flour all at once. Mix well with a wooden spoon, and let cook for a minute. Then take pan from fire. Add milk all at once. Put pan back on medium heat, and stir. If lumps form, pass sauce through a sieve into a different pan. As soon as the sauce is thick, salt and pepper it. Add grated cheese, and mix well. Let cool. Add egg yolks to sauce, one by one, and stir well. All of this can be done in the morning, to be ready for the evening meal.

A half hour before serving the souffle, beat the whites into the very firm meringue. Fold them into egg yolk mixture. Do not allow whites to fall. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Butter a souffle pan — a 1/2 quart casserole with straight sides. Fill it 3/4 full, and place in preheated oven, in a pan of hot water, and bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes, then at 400 degrees for the last 10 minutes. If, in this last 10 minutes, the souffle begins to get too brown, remove it from the oven.

Serve immediately.

Bacteria busting begins in the home

WATERLOO, Ontario (AP) — The failure of some home cooks to meet public health standards when cleaning dishes, cookware and utensils in the home may contribute to the spread of bacteria and viruses, says the Canadian Water Quality Association.

"Under public health laws, restaurants are required to carefully disinfect cooking pots, serving dishes, and utensils," says Lou J. Smith of the association. "Home-makers do not always meet the same standards."

Smith says very hot, softened water and low sudsing detergents help insure against the spread of disease at home.

Dear Martin — I have had several recent experiences of sending for refunds that did not arrive: a Black Label refund, a free Andes offer, and a Maria rebate.

You have advised people to complain to consumer-affairs offices when these refunds are not received. I called my local consumer-affairs office, and they sent me a complaint form. The instructions said that after I filled out the form, I had to have it witnessed by a notary public. I really don't think it's worth the time and cost of getting the complaint form notarized in order to complain about not receiving a dollar refund or five 20-cent coupons.

M. Rohat, Lake Worth, Fla.

Dear Mr. Rohat — Why not do it out of plain old-fashioned pride? If you took the time to write and complain to the manufacturer's customer-relations department and heard nothing, then wrote directly to the president of the company, and still heard nothing, why not let the unresponsive company know that you mean business?

It may not make much sense to pay a notary to complain about a $1 offer. But if you have already written two letters to the manufacturer, your complaint is no longer simply a matter of dollars and cents. You want to let that company know that you don't like being ripped off! If you can't see doing this for a dollar refund, wait until the next time that you receive no response after you complain about a $2 or $3 refund.

Dear Martin — We are considering having a "Coupon Party." We love the idea of going to a party where there is no pressure to buy anything, but this is also a good idea for those able to get in our planning. We're not really sure what should go on at a "Coupon Party." Do you know? Any help you can offer would be sincerely appreciated. — Nancy Kehr, Ono, Pa.

Dear Nancy — Have your "Coupon Party" and trade coupons. Make it simple, and trade coupons one-for-one, no matter what the value. Offer a door prize (a big envelope full of coupons) to the lady who comes with the best haul — made entirely out of expired coupons. And offer refreshments purchased free (or almost free) with coupons — doubled, of course!

THE SMART SHOPPER AWARD goes to Alice Lunt of Houston, Texas: "An offer of a $1.50 cash refund plus a free Clairol hair spray got me started. The offer asked for two proofs of purchase, so I began by looking for Clairol on sale. I found that a local supermarket was offering Clairol shampoo for $1.48 and conditioner for $1.19. When the store doubled my two 25-cent coupons, I had to pay only $1.67. My final score after the arrival of the mail-in offer is three free Clairol products for just 17 cents and a postage stamp!

Alice and other readers whose smart-shopping experiences appear in this column receive a copy of my book, "The Guide to Coupons and Refunds."

Pep up plain-pinto beans with this recipe
By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens

PEPPERED PINTO BEANS
2 cups dry pinto beans
1 1/2 ounce can chopped green chili peppers, drained
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 6-ounce package shredded Monterey Jack cheese or Monterey Jack cheese with jalapeno peppers.

Rinse beans. In a large soupcan or Dutch oven combine beans and 6 cups water. Cover and soak overnight. (Or, bring to boiling; reduce heat and cover. Simmer 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Cover; let stand 1 hour.) Drain beans.

In the same pan combine the drained beans, chili peppers, chili powder, salt, garlic and 4 2/3 cups water. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 2 to 2 1/2 hours until beans are slightly mushy. Top with shredded cheese. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Ralph Nader launches war against chemical used on apple crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Sunday he is launching a nationwide campaign against use of a potentially cancer-causing chemical that gives apples a deeper red color and a longer storage life.

The growth-regulating chemical daminozide is believed to cause cancer in animals. But the Environmental Protection Agency declined to order it off the market in January pending further animal tests by its manufacturer, Uniroyal Chemical Co.

Last week, the states of New York and Maine and two advocacy groups, including the Nader-founded Public Citizen group, asked the EPA to forbid the presence of daminozide residues in apples and other food treated with the chemical.

Nader said in a letter dated Sunday to EPA Administrator Lee M. Thomas that the danger is so great that consumer groups will start an immediate drive to discourage use of the chemical, which is sold under the name Alar.

"Consumer groups will not wait upon EPA," he wrote. Nader said consumer groups across the country will begin asking supermarket chains, apple juice processors and apple sauce manufacturers whether they are using Alar-treated apples.

He also said baby food producers, airlines and other dispensers of apple products will be asked to demonstrate they are not using apples treated with the chemical. "If people are aware of the problem, retailers and processors are going to tell that to the growers," he said in a telephone interview. "And growers are going to tell it to the manufacturer."

"Processors and retailers are unresponsive. They sell some products that have been boycotted, although none has been targeted yet. This is a very good opportunity for a marketplace solution," Nader said. Children under 12 are particularly at risk because they drink more apple juice and eat more apple sauce, and agricultural workers are also jeopardized by exposure to the chemical in the fields, Nader said.

An EPA spokesman, Al Heiler, said he had not seen Nader's letter to Thomas. However, he said the agency does not have enough proof that the chemical causes cancer to justify an immediate ban.

"It's not that we don't have grave concern about it — we do," he said. "But the law says we have to be able to show that it poses an unreasonable danger, and we felt that we needed to have more studies." Those studies, he said, will take three or four years. Nader, in his letter to Thomas, asked whether government cateries for civilian and military workers are using Alar-treated apples and apple products.

"Certainly, the taxpayer should not be paying for producing cancer risks for those in government service," he wrote.

Apples may now contain 20 parts per million of daminozide and tomato products may contain 320 ppm.

The Natural Resources Defense Council, the other group involved in last week's petition, said federal law requires a zero tolerance because the manufacturer cannot prove the compound is safe.

Nader contended that pressure by the White House and Uniroyal played a part in the agency's decision not to ban the chemical immediately. But Heiler said that was not true.

"I would deny that completely and entirely," he said. "It was a decision made within the agency, and by outside experts as well."

Nader predicted that the consumer action will be a success.

"It's qbb a clear-cut issue, affecting one crop, a product that is not indispensable. People don't have to buy apples if they think they're being poisoned," he said.

By the year's end, he said, "the Alar-treated apple will be a museum item, something for the Smithsonian."

Fight Rover's ticks

Keeping your dog tick free is more important than ever, according to Better Homes and Gardens. New research has linked tick bites with canine arthritis, a disease similar to the debilitating human counterpart. The symptoms include fever and lethargy, plus a stiff and painful gait. Dogs that stay outdoors are especially prone to disease-causing tick bites.

Warm, dry weather causes extra difficulties with bugs

Warmer, drier weather usually means more insect problems than normal. The higher than normal temperatures mean faster growth and multiplication of insects. As weeds and wild vegetation dry up, insects migrate to irrigated fields and gardens.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

I do not recommend general spraying to control insects. The majority of plants are seldom attacked by insects in our climate. General spraying may kill the natural predators which keep many harmful insects under control. If you check plants periodically, especially those which have had previous problems, you can keep most insect damage to a minimum. If you see a few insects, check first to see if lady bugs or other predators are present before getting out the sprayer. Sometimes a blast of water from a hose nozzle will wash off insects which seldom find their way back onto the plants.

More and more organic pesticides are becoming available which are less harmful to the environment. One of the most popular is Bacillus thuringiensis, a natural disease which kills most caterpillars. Several brands are available but the two most common are Thuricide and Dipel. A similar material is now becoming available for grasshoppers. It is being widely used for aerial application this summer. These materials do not have the rapid knock-down kill of chemicals. It sometimes takes a day or two to kill the pests, rather than minutes or hours.

There are a few insects which require regular or repeat applications in order to prevent extensive damage. One of these is the cabbage worm. This small green caterpillar can riddle cabbage and all members of the cabbage family such as broccoli and cauliflower. The adult of the cabbage worm is a small white moth.

You may have noticed them flying around laying eggs. To prevent damage, weekly applications are needed. If applied regularly, Thuricide and Dipel are very effective. Diazinon and Sevin are two chemical insecticides which control caterpillars and most other chewing insects on vegetables, fruits and ornamentals.

Regular spraying is even more important to prevent worms laying. Coddling moths are busy laying their eggs on developing apple fruits during most of July and August. As soon as the eggs hatch, the small caterpillars or worms quickly bore into the fruit where they are protected from pesticides. The smag insecticides which control cabbage worms will also control apple worms. By applying once every two weeks through the middle of August, you can prevent most damage.

If you have insect damage, take a sample of the damaged plant to your local nurseryman or garden store. They can usually determine what is causing the problem and recommend a pesticide to control it.

Super sleuths may find clues to a lack of seasonal blooms

By EARL ARONSON
The Associated Press

A bit of detective work may help you determine why some of your flowering plants didn't bloom.

Major clues — the most common reasons for failure to flower — probably are the age of the plant, the winter temperature, light, nutrition and improper pruning, according to Lee Taylor, extension horticulturist at Michigan State University.

Many landscape ornamentals spend a certain amount of time in a juvenile stage when they grow vegetatively but don't flower, he says. If youth is the problem, patience is the answer.

As for temperature, it can affect plants by being either too low or too high. Extremely low winter temperatures may kill flower buds on such plants as forsythia and dogwood. But some cold is necessary for normal flowering in response to periods of light or dark. Poinsettias and chrysanthemums are among the photoperiodic plants. Peonies will bloom only after plants have produced several flower buds before they set buds for next spring's flowers by the time they go dormant in the fall, so pruning in fall or winter removes buds that produce next year's floral display.

Moving foliage off naturalized shrubs such as crocus and daffodils, can leave buds too weak to produce good blooms. Naturalized areas should be left unmowed until bulb foliage dies down naturally.

Another type of pruning — by animals munching on shrubs, trees, bulbs and other plants — also can remove shoots or flower buds. Taste and odor repellents can help prevent damage to landscape ornamentals if deer, rabbits or other animals have alternative foods available.

Grass Cleanses Soil
A grass grown for livestock feed also acts as a soil cleanser that could help crops grow in millions of acres of salt-laden soil in the West, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture researcher.

Salt, or sodium, that accumulates in soil can stunt crops and seal the soil surface so crops struggle to survive. A hybrid grass of sorghum and sudangrass may solve that problem. USDA's Charles W. Robbins said the grass releases a high level of carbon dioxide in the soil which frees the sodium so rainfall or irrigation water can leach out sodium normally bound up in the soil. The cleaning takes at least two growing seasons. Robbins said studies indicated the grass could be used to reclaim millions of acres of salt-bound soils in arid Western states, parts of the Northern Great Plains, Western Canada, and similar areas in the world. Saline soils limit choice of crops.

The sorghum-sudangrass hybrid reaches a height of 15 to 20 feet and produces about 25 tons of grass an acre. It is drought resistant and is used for livestock feed and silage in low rainfall areas.

Robbins discovered the grass' cleaning action at the USDA Research Center, Kimberly, Idaho. He also said the grass may help cut costs of applying gypsum to reclaim soil.

(Any queries about gardening problems must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Robbins said studies indicated the grass could be used to reclaim millions of acres of salt-bound soils in arid Western states, parts of the Northern Great Plains, Western Canada, and similar areas in the world. Saline soils limit choice of crops.

The sorghum-sudangrass hybrid reaches a height of 15 to 20 feet and produces about 25 tons of grass an acre. It is drought resistant and is used for livestock feed and silage in low rainfall areas.

Robbins discovered the grass' cleaning action at the USDA Research Center, Kimberly, Idaho. He also said the grass may help cut costs of applying gypsum to reclaim soil.

American crafts and lifestyles: Exhibitions display folk roots

By BARBARA MAYER
The Associated Press

Though all three are located in the Bay area of California, Macy's, Kaiser Corp. and the Oakland Museum would seem to have little in common.

Recently, however, all three institutions participated in a series of exhibitions, lectures and panels on the place of crafts in American lives. The museum served as headquarters for the first major conference in nine years sponsored by the American Craft Council, while Macy's San Francisco devoted a substantial portion of its furniture floor to a display of 19th and early 20th century American Arts and Crafts furnishings and contemporary craft objects by 80 California craftsmen. Meanwhile, at Kaiser's Oakland headquarters building, a 5,000 square foot exhibition space accommodated 37 pieces of furniture by 34 artists. The one-of-a-kind pieces were made partly or wholly of aluminum.

Approximately 80 other institutions, galleries and museums in the San Francisco area organized special exhibitions to coincide with the conference, which brought about 800 craftsmen, collectors, educators and dealers together to look at talk about, and demonstrate the techniques of making objects.

In meeting the ACC's goal of providing "an overview of crafts in a societal context," the event also revealed the many contradictions inherent in crafts today. Making things by hand for use or art, or both, has assumed enormous economic, cultural and personal importance in the United States. Yet, the place of crafts often appears to be minimized.

Thus, although recent surveys reveal that many are deeply interested in the crafts, the conference had several hundred fewer registrations than had been expected and ran about $20,000 in the red, according to Jack L. Larsen, president of the American Craft Council.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Brooklyn Museum and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts sent representatives to talk about major craft exhibitions each museum has planned for 1988 and 1987. Furthermore, the American Craft Museum is scheduled to open in New York in October.

Ventilation will defeat bathroom condensation

By ANDY LANG
The Associated Press

Whenever the weather is warm, our bathroom toilet tank gets water. Is there some inexpensive way to handle this? Our taxes have gone up and we do not want to put out any additional money at this time.

A. — The simplest, easiest and quickest way to handle this is to put a pan under the tank at the point where the dripping occurs. But this is not a solution, merely a way of taking care of the water. How often you will have to empty the pan depends on how much water falls off the tank. What is taking place is condensation. You get it when warm, moist air settles on a cold surface. You can correct it in any one of several ways. One is to provide a ventilating fan in the bathroom to get rid of the warm air. Another is to cover the tank with a special fabric cover sold especially for that purpose. Still another is to drain the tank and cover the inside of it with a lining which will keep the outside of the tank at room temperature. The permanent solution is to have a mixing valve installed to warm the water in the tank. But each of the methods calls for some outlay of money. A drip pan may be your answer.

Q. — I soon will be doing a paint job that will last several days. I don't relish the idea of cleaning the roller at the end of each day's painting. Can the roller be used the next day without cleaning it each time? I will be using latex paint.

A. — No need to clean the roller each time. Store it overnight in a pan of water that covers the part of the roller that is dipped in the paint.

Q. — I soon will apply stain to a piece of unfinished furniture. Should I put on a coat of sealer before applying varnish?

A. — Yes. Be sure it is a thin coat of sealer. Make sure the stain is lighter than the color you want the furniture to be, since the varnish will make it darker.

Radial arm saw folds flat, portable

By ANDY LANG
The Associated Press

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT: A radial arm saw that folds flat for carrying and storage.

Manufacturer's claim — That this radial arm saw is especially designed for those who do not have the space for a full-size workshop. That it has a thickness of only 10 1/2 inches for flat storage against a wall. That its table measures 21-by-24 inches and its weight is slightly over 65 pounds. That it can produce a maximum depth of cut of 2 1/2 inches with a crosscut capacity in one-inch stock of 12 inches. That it has miter-locating latches for 45 degrees left and 45 degrees right. That the saw is UL approved and comes with a one-year warranty.

THE PRODUCT: A gutter cover that requires no nuts or bolts to assemble.

Manufacturer's claim — That this cover comes in 3, 4 and 5-inch dimensions in 4-foot sections. That it is made of sheet metal and fits from the last roof board to the outside of the gutter. That it clips to the gutter on one end with the other end going under the first shingle. That neither water nor snow can enter the gutter. That it can be left up all year round, if desired, but the manufacturer recommends it be put up in the fall and removed in the spring, which can be done by one person on a ladder.

THE PRODUCT: A drain cleaner that uses hydraulic pressure. Manufacturer's claim — That this plunger uses three methods to clear drains fast. That hydraulic pressure pushes against the blockage. That what is called a kinetic water ram blasts the blockage. That strong vacuum pressure pulls the plunger and the plunger's pump housing is filled with water, inserted into the drain opening and pumped up and down. That the plunger sends a blast of pressure water down the drain. That the pumping action creates a vacuum that breaks through most clogs, such as hair, grease, sand and fat.

(The radial arm saw is manufactured by Black & Decker, Dept. 1712, 325 East Oliver St., Baltimore, MD 21202; the gutter cover by William Garneau, 2835 Bulck Ave., Pontiac, MI 48051; and the drain cleaner by Super Glue Corp., 181-08 Jamaica Ave., Hollis, NY 11423.)

Favorite Philippine coolers chase away the summer heat

By BARBARA HANSEN
Los Angeles Times

Hot and cold are opposites that attract without fail when hot refers to summer weather and cold to a refreshing drink.

Summer barbecues and patio parties call for this pleasant combination. Typical cold drinks include iced tea, soft drinks, lemonade and beer. But why be typical? In addition to the old favorites, try something new, perhaps a pretty, fruit-flavored drink with the appeal of a vacation in the tropics.

Our collection of recipes comes from the Philippines, where the hot, humid climate makes refreshment essential. Fresh fruit juices and icy sweet drinks that incorporate shreds of cantaloupe or soft young coconut are common there, and fanciful cocktails created at hotels and resorts rival those of the Caribbean, Hawaii or Mexico.

SHERATON PINA COLADA
1 (6-ounce) can pineapple juice
3 ounces coconut water (liquid drained from coconut)
1-2 ounces light rum
1-2 ounces triple sec
1 maraschino cherry
1 section pineapple slice
Combine pineapple juice, coconut water, rum and triple sec in cocktail shaker. Add ice and shake well. Pour into tall glass. Garnish with cherry and pineapple. Makes 1 serving.

Combine mango, nectar, orange and pineapple juices, guayabano and papaya nectars, lemon and lime juices, liqueur and rum in cocktail shaker with ice. Shake well. Pour in to tall glass. Top with very thin film of whipped cream. Float few drops melon liqueur on top of whipped cream. Makes 1 serving.

Make light of Chicken Cannelloni

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Garden

Chicken is made-to-order for light and satisfying meals. It's high in protein but low in fat, cholesterol and calories, and it's versatile enough to serve frequently without your family tiring of it.

To keep chicken meals light, broil, grill, bake or oven-fry the chicken to avoid adding fat in cooking. Because much of the fat is located in and just under the skin, you can save about 20 calories per serving just by skinning chicken pieces before cooking. If you're really serious about cutting calories, buy breasts and wings; light meat has less fat and fewer calories than dark.

Even with the robust Italian-style sauce, the calorie count of this main dish is under 300 per serving.

- CHICKEN CANNELLONI
- 3/4 cup thinly sliced celery
  - 1/2 cup thinly sliced carrot
  - 1/2 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
  - 1 small onion, sliced
  - 1 clove garlic, minced
  - 1 tablespoon cooking oil
  - 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
  - 1 7/8-ounce can tomatoes, drained
  - 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
  - 3/4 teaspoon sugar
  - 3 medium chicken breasts, (about 1 1/2 pounds) skinned, boned, and halved lengthwise
  - 1/2 cup ricotta cheese
  - 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
  - 1 tablespoon chopped green onion
  - 1/2 teaspoon Italian dash pepper
  - 2 ounces mozzarella cheese

For sauce, in a large saucepan cook celery, carrot, mushrooms, onion and garlic in hot oil until onion is tender. Stir in tomato sauce, undrained tomatoes, the 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning and sugar. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cook, uncovered, over low heat for 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, with flat side of meat mallet "pound" chicken breasts between two pieces of plastic wrap to 1/4-inch thickness. Combine ricotta, Parmesan, green onion, the 1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning and pepper. Place about 1 1/2 tablespoons of the cheese mixture on each chicken piece. Roll up, place seam side down in a 9 by 13 by 2-inch baking dish. Pour sauce over chicken rolls. Bake, covered, in a 375-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until tender. Place two ounces mozzarella cheese, cut into thin strips, in a lattice design on top; bake 3 to 5 minutes more. Makes 6 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 274 cal., 34 g. pro., 11 g. fat, 20 mg. chol., 387 mg. sodium. U.S. RDA: 46 percent vit. A, 19 percent vit. C, 21 percent riboflavin, 58 percent niacin, 14 percent calcium, 12 percent iron, 41 percent phosphorus.

Waldheim enters his office to cheers, scattered protests

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Kurt Waldheim was inaugurated as president on Tuesday to cheers from supporters who berated a small group of protesters for trying to remind Austrians of his purported involvement in Nazi war crimes.

Waldheim, 67, denounced anti-Semitism and called for reconciliation in his inaugural address to Parliament.

"It must ... be our intention that is renewed every day, to consider and treat each of our fellow-citizens as brother and sister — regardless of which race, which religion and which conviction they hold," he said.

The former U.N. secretary-general was elected last month as Austria's sixth postwar president following a campaign dominated by allegations that he hid his role as a Nazi intelligence officer in the Balkans.

The ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union and Israel were absent from the ceremony. The U.S. and Soviet embassies both said the omission was not a protest, and that their ambassadors had prior commitments.

Israeli Ambassador Michael Elitzur was withdrawn immediately after Waldheim's June 8 election.

The six-year presidential term is mostly ceremonial, mainly involving receptions and greeting high-ranking guests.

"We proclaim that if Austria wishes to forget, we shall remember," said Rabbi Avraham Weiss of New York City, who led a small group of Americans and Austrians in protest outside Waldheim's office.

The crowd of about 40 Austrians listening to Weiss grew rapidly after Waldheim made a triumphal entry to his office in the Hofburg building about 300 yards away from Parliament.

The ornate palace is a former residence of Austrian emperors. Adolf

Tolentino facing criminal charges, $500,000 hotel bill

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Arturo Tolentino faces criminal charges by the government over a bill for $500,000 from his luxury "headquarters" hotel, which supporters ransacked during the 40 hours he claimed to be acting president.

Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales said Tuesday that Ferdinand Marcos Aquino told him to file charges against Tolentino, who was Ferdinand E. Marcos' vice presidential running-mate in the disputed Feb. 7 election and stayed behind when Marcos fled to Hawaiian exile on Feb. 25.

Gonzales, interviewed after a meeting with Tolentino and military men who joined the rebellion, did not say what was discussed or what charges were being considered.

Mrs. Aquino said Sunday that Tolentino, 75, was guilty of sedition but she has not spoken publicly since possible charges. "We don't want to make a martyr out of him," she said in a statement released Tuesday.

Tolentino, once foreign minister under Marcos, refused comment after the Gonzales meeting and telephone calls to his home in Manila were not returned. No one answered the telephone at the homes of his two chief civilian supporters in the rebellion, Marcos lawyer-Rafael Recto, and television personality Gerry Espina.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile told the few dozen officers and soldiers who saw the rebellion through to the end and surrendered that the government will honor its pledge not to punish them.

"I stand on this even to the point of gambling ... my own position to see to it that what we have promised you will be fulfilled," he said at a meeting with them in a suburban army gymnasium.

Gen. Fidel Ramos, the armed forces chief who joined Enrile in leading the military-civilian uprising that drove Marcos from the presidency after 20 years in power, led the men in 30 pushups in an apparent show of camaraderie.

Gen. Jose Maria Zúñel, military leader of the rebellion, said: "It's always nice to be back with our comrades in arms."

Marcos denied any role in the action by Tolentino, who claimed he declared himself president on Marcos' orders. Marcos has said several times that Tolentino is the legitimate Philippine president in his absence.

"I asked them to stop this matter of Tolentino asserting authority," Marcos said in an interview with NBC television from his home in Hawaii.

Blat in Soviet embassy kills guerrilla

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A guerrilla of the Maoist group Shining Path carried a bomb into the Soviet Embassy last midday Thursday and it exploded prematurely, killing him but causing no other casualties, police reported.

Police said the dead guerrilla was one of five who also tossed other explosives over a 10-foot-high wall. They exploded in a garden, shattering windows in the embassy and nearby buildings.

Officers on the scene said the bomber got inside the embassy when the door was opened for men delivering bottled cooking gas. Papers found in the area referred to "Soviet reactionaries," they said.

Although police said there were no other injuries, witnesses told an Associated Press photographer at the scene that they saw an injured woman taken from the Spanish colonial-style building on busy Salaverry Avenue in the luxurious San Isidro district.

Loyalty prevails

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Habib Bourguiba, Tunisia's 82-year-old president, fired his premier and designated successor Tuesday, replacing him with a man known for unwavering loyalty to the ailing leader.

Bourguiba, who suffers from chronic arteriosclerosis, gave no explanation for dismissing Mohamed Mzali, a Western-oriented pragmatist who for more than six years had been both premier and secretary-general of the ruling Constitutional Socialist Party.

Church puts off ordination issue

YORK, England (AP) — The Church of England's General Synod, faced with a report warning that the 450-year-old church could be split if women are ordained as priests, postponed resolving the issue for at least six months.

The 574-member policy-making synod voted by what appeared to be a unanimous show of hands in the college of bishops study a report on women's ordination and reach a conclusion before the next synod meeting, set for February.

The vote by bishops, clergy and lay members came on the last day of the synod's five-day summer session in this northern English city, and was a compromise between opposing sides in a bitter 11-year debate.

The synod voted Saturday against allowing women ordained abroad to officiate at services in England. Of the three synod houses — bishops, lower clergy and laymen — only the bishops mustered the necessary two-thirds majority in favor of the proposal.

About 750 women priests have been ordained in the worldwide 70 million-member Anglican Communion — mostly by the U.S. Episcopalians — but none by the mother church in England.

The women's ordination report, if approved by the synod, would have formed the basis of draft legislation to be submitted to Parliament. Because the Church of England is a state church, with Queen Elizabeth II its head, any change in the way it functions must have parliamentary approval.

Archbishop of York John Habgood, the church's second-ranking prelate and a supporter of women's ordination, conceded that Tuesday's vote could delay the ordination of women beyond the target date of 1990.

The report was written by Sheffield University law professor David McClean.

The report, written by Sheffield University law professor David McClean, shook the church when it was published last month. He headed a commission of 10 men and two women set up to consider possible effects of the ordination of women.

Zulu factions clash, 31 die

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Zulu warriors from two rival villages in the Valley of 1,000 Hills battled with bush knives, spears and guns made of pipes in a grudge fight that left 31 of them dead, police said Tuesday.

In Durban, the Natal province supreme court agreed to hold a full hearing next Monday on a legal challenge of the June 12 decree imposing a nationwide state of emergency. It was filed last Friday by the predominantly black Metal and Allied Workers Union.

Strikes, work slowdowns and sit-downs involving more than 11,000 gold, coal and diamond miners continued in protest of the arrests of union leaders for what the white authorities say is political activity that violates emergency regulations.

The Zulu battle occurred Sunday night in the valley 25 miles north of Durban, an Indian Ocean port, but police said news of it did not reach them until Tuesday.

Capt. Winston Heunis of the Natal provincial police said it appeared the followers of Chief Ngcobo attacked a group led by Chief Ngeco from a nearby village on Sunday night, killing six men in retaliation for an attack about a year ago.

Ngcobo's men counterattacked, shooting and hacking to death 25 men in Gwala's village, he said.

Heunis said police did not know when or why the feud began.

Tribal fighting is not counted in the daily tally of deaths from anti-apartheid unrest, which has taken more than 2,000 lives in 22 months.

Officially, the death toll from unrest under the emergency stands at 127.

The government Bureau for Information said at its daily briefing that a policeman patrolling the black Soweto township near Johannesburg on Monday night was fired on and responded with a shotgun, killing a black man.

Pontiff ready for Brazilian

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II returned Tuesday from a weeklong trip to Colombia, where he advocated land for the impoverished, and began preparing to address the same sensitive issue in talks with the president of Brazil.

The 62-year-old pontiff, looking weary, flew back aboard a Colombia Avianca 747 and went at once to the Vatican and prayed at St. Peter's tomb. The last stop on his tour was a seven-hour stay on the Caribbean island of St. Lucia.

During his 30th foreign tour, the pope advocated giving land to the impoverished and the Indians. He also called on guerrillas seeking an end to huge private landholdings to lay down their weapons.

On Thursday, he meets President Jose Sarney, who is embroiled in a dispute with bishops and priests over the speed of Brazil's agrarian reform.

Slowpitch softball spots still available in weekend tourneys

Looking for a bit more seasoning for your adult softball team? If so, you may want to consider action in a pair of Magic Valley tourneys which are seeking more entries.

The Twin Falls Women's Softball Association has a Women's Open and B Invitational scheduled for this coming weekend. With just a half-dozen entries as of Monday, the field was far short of the anticipated 24 teams and faces possible cancellation. But that decision won't be reached until Thursday morning.

As the name implies teams in the B classification are preferred, but the tourney is open to A and C squads as well. To enter, contact tournament director Nancy McNew at 733-0567 or women's league secretary Deanna Thomas at 733-6738.

The men need not feel left out as the annual Glenns Ferry Men's Ball Border Slowpitch Tournament is coming up and could use a few more entrants as well.

That event — for clubs competing in the B and C classifications — is set for July 17, 18 and 20. Should that fare wheels your appetite for softball, Glenns Ferry Recreation Director Steve Farnham is handling new entries and can be reached at 366-2498.

Richard Schwanz found Hagerman way had no such problems in filling 26 teams for the Hagerman Area Softball Invitational set for Friday through Sunday. "Our tournament is becoming Known among the smaller teams as a really good place to play," said Schwanz. "I think the first entries came in about a month before we advertised it."

Teams representing just about every slowpitch association in the Magic and Wood River Valleys along with a few Boise entries allowed for 19 women's and twice that number of men's teams in the annual event for teams in the C classification.

Hagerman will be played in three separate parts with the men split into two divisions. Opening-round games begin at 6 p.m. Friday. The title games in each segment will start at that same hour on Sunday.

With the Buhl Sagebrush Days Slowpitch tournament cancelled, Ketchum hosted the only show after the playing fields in this area over the Fourth of July weekend.

The Ketchum Drug/Wood River Invitational went to SOS Temporary Invitational over Swift Trucking in an all-Salt Lake City finale. Warm Springs of Ketchum kept the third-place trophy at home and was the only team to spend SOS in the two-day event.

Twin Falls three-team Little League All-Star contingent visited Caldwell over the holiday weekend for a 17-team tourney and, for the second straight week, Twin Falls Kiwanis brought the big trophies home.

Playing for the crown for the third consecutive time this season, Kiwanis rallied to squeeze out a 6-5 victory over Boise Subaru.

"We're not an exciting team," said Kiwanis Coach Les Scofield. "The kids just play good steady ball throughout."

And steady and unflappable they were. The Kiwanis players found themselves in an unfamiliar position early in the championship matchup as Subaru took a 5-0 lead after two innings. But the Twin-Falls-boyle rallied while shutting out Boise over the final four innings for the decision.

After Kiwanis cut the deficit to three one frame earlier, Johnny Anderson and Cliff Isom opened the Twin Falls fourth with singles. Mark Scofield singled to score both and moved to second as Kevin Gibson lived on an error. Craig Colman reached base on a second Boise bobble that sent Scofield across to knot the contest — Ryan Buser hit into a fielder's choice that scored Gibson with the winner.

Kiwanis, joined by the Softball Association and Merchants hits the road again Friday, but travel a considerably shorter distance this time out. The trio will carry the banner for Twin Falls in the annual Jerome Little League Invitational running Friday through Sunday at the Little League fields and Gayle Forsyth Memorial Park.

League play has wound down in three of the seven Magic Valley Leagues with tournament play already started at sites throughout the valley.

Boys' Minor Little League teams sprang off Monday and Tuesday at Wendell with the championship game set for tonight. The B and C league girls are also heading into the championship tourneys.

League girls take up where the boys leave off with a Thursday opening set for the Wendell diamond. That event will run through Saturday.

The smallest girls' classification — C League — opened yesterday at Valley where the hometowners, unbeaten in league play, carry the favorite tag into the fray. With just four teams competing, that one also winds up this evening.

Costly bobble

Tawna Pearson of Payless Truck/Mountain View Care, bobbles the ball allowing a Farmer's National Bank/Walte Electric baserunner to survive at second during Tuesday women's softball action.

In years they're old but ball keeps them young

By HARRY ATKINS The Associated Press

Mount Clemens, Mich. — In the autumn of their years, they use the summer game to stay young. Some 350 men, comprising 21 teams from nine states, have gathered in this northern Detroit suburb for the second annual National Association of Senior Citizens Softball tournament.

The last two fingers of his right hand in a sorghum mill when he was 10 and lost a finger of his left hand to the cogwheel of a cider mill when he was 16.

Competition, as guys get older, they kind of lose that. Kaminski grew up in Grand Rapids and played high school baseball with Stubby Overmire, who went on to fame with the Detroit Tigers in the 1940s. Kaminski resides now in Alexandria, Va., and plays for the Northern Virginia Senators.

McNeill was a right-handed pitcher for his high school baseball team.

"I never was knocked from the mound," said McNeill, who is in a league by himself at "dipping snuff, chewing and spitting." "I had a real good curve ball and good control. I was strong because I was a farm kid."

Bob Bates, 58, also from Alexandria, grew up in Almont, Mich., and played a year at Michigan State with Robin Roberts. "I just had a quadruple bypass four months ago," said Bates — an FBI agent. "My doctor said this is the fastest recovery he's ever seen."

Alta Avon was sitting in a folding aluminum chair, watching her 70-year-old husband, Hank, play second base for Babe's of 1916, the entry from Solon, Ohio. The team wore old-style gray uniforms with collars and long, baggy sleeves, the kind worn in very old photographs of ballplayers.

Finally playing it fun, said Corona, who now runs a cutting machine at a nearby Ford Motor Co. plant. "Softball breaks up the monotony. It's keeps you out of that armchair. That's what's most important."

"They used to wear their nicks on the back, but then they had to change them! It hurts every year," Avon said. "You can't be on Hank's team if you were born after 1916. That's how it got this name."

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"I can resist everything except temptation." - Oscar Wilde.

If you wish to tempt a declarer into making a losing play, be sure you tempt him strongly enough. Even an average South can distinguish between a legitimate line and a hopeless one.

South was his heart queen and led a low diamond to dummy's queen. What card should East play?

At a recent Dallas tournament, East played the tempting nine, feeling certain that South would finesse dummy's 10 on the next round.

Not tempting enough. South led a club to his king and led a second diamond, going straight up with dummy's king when West played low.

What would have happened had East dropped the diamond jack instead of the nine? This would have given South a legitimate reason to finesse dummy's diamond eight on the second round.

ANSWER: Three no-trump. That six-card diamond suit may be just what North needs to bring in nine or more tricks.
