Idaho Power gains fraction of rate increase

The Associated Press

BOISE — Citing a decision to complete an unneeded coal-fired power plant, Idaho utility regulators on Friday rejected all but a tiny fraction of a record $6.2 million rate increase requested by Idaho Power Co. The Idaho Public Utilities Commission granted only $980,000 of the request, an increase of one-third of 1 percent. It will add just 9 cents to the monthly bill of Idaho Power's average residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity. The 137-page order denied the company's request for an increase of 21.4 percent, the largest hike every sought by a public utility in Idaho. It came after more than 16 days of hearings last winter and spring over what commissioners called one of the most complex cases they had ever considered. Idaho Power spokesman Larry Taylor said company officials were "surprised and disappointed" by the decision, and almost certainly would ask the commission to reconsider. "There's no question but that it will have an impact on our company finances, but I don't think anybody's tried to analyze yet how deep it might go," Taylor said. But Attorney General Jim Jones, an outspoken opponent of the rate request, said he was pleased by the decision, calling it "supportable" based on the available evidence. Idaho Power last September asked for a rate increase of $84.2 million or 27.4 percent. But the utility reduced the request in May at the same time the PUC staff was recommending that its rates actually be cut by $3.4 million. The biggest part of the request was to help Idaho Power pay for its share of the Valmy II coal-fired generating plant in northern Nevada. The company asked for $37.5 million in its original request to recover part of its $15 million investment in the facility owned jointly with Reno, Nev.-based Sierra Pacific Power Co. Critics called the plant costly and Idaho Power's 125-megawatt share unnecessary considering projected power surpluses until near the end of the century. And on Friday, the PUC agreed. It ruled that Idaho Power erred in completing the plant when it was not needed. It also should have taken steps to improve contract terms with Sierra Pacific, and should have considered less-expensive alternatives to the coal-fired generator, the commission said. The order said Idaho Power may collect through rates only the money necessary to pay interest on bonds, preferred stock dividends and expenses involved in running. See POWER on Page A2

Mystery plane lost in crash

The Associated Press

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — An Air Force mystery plane crashed in Sequoia National Forest early Friday, killing the pilot, igniting a 150-acre brush fire, and triggering a cordon of Air Force secrecy. The Air Force refused to say what type of airplane crashed or whether it was an experimental craft from the flight test center at Edwards Air Force Base, about 80 miles southeast of the crash site. NBC News quoted a Pentagon source as saying that the downed plane was a secret F-19 prototype with Stealth technology designed to evade enemy radar. The editor of a defense technology magazine said industry and government sources had told him the same thing. Andy Lightbody, editor of International Combat Arms, a Los Angeles-based defense technology magazine, said government and industry sources had told him the downed aircraft was an F-19, a plane the Air Force has never even confirmed exists. Speculation of the existence of an F-19 arose when the Air Force skipped in its numerical designation of new jets from the F-18 to the F-30. Some reports claim the F-19 is a so-called Stealth aircraft built by Lockheed. Stealth technology is intended to make an aircraft, by design and materials, invisible to radar. Public affairs officials at Edwards, who read brief statements to reporters, confirmed that the crash occurred about 2 a.m. and killed one person. The pilot's name was not released. "The whole area has been restricted, including the air space above the crash site," the Kern County Sheriff's Office said, stressing that it was relaying information from the Air Force. "There will be military aircraft in the area, and anyone entering the area will be dealt with appropriately by the Air Force," the sheriff's office said. Gen. Michael M. Montgomery, head of public affairs for the Air Force, said from the Pentagon that the plane had only one crew member and "was definitely not a bomber." No weapons of any kind were on board, 2nd Lt. Eric Schnable said. See PLANE on Page A2

Supremacists gather for N. Idaho conclave

By BERNIE WILSON

HAYDEN LAKE — White supremacy leaders gathered Friday for an Aryan Nations Congress to unite their efforts to establish a "whites only" homeland in the Northwest. Meanwhile, another group scheduled a weekend human rights celebration 10 miles away to publicly support the dignity and equality of all people. The white supremacists' meeting is their first gathering in the Northwest since an FBI investigation led to last December's racketeering convictions of 10 members of The Order, a militant, right-wing group blamed for two murders, more than $4 million in robberies, counterfeiting and other crimes. Many Order members had met through the Aryan Nations and its leader, the Rev. Richard Butler. The Order was smashed when its founder, former Aryan Nations member Robert Mathews, died during a Dec. 8, 1984, standoff with FBI agents. Mathews was killed when a flare ignited his waterfront hideout on Whidbey Island, north of Seattle. Supremacy leaders scheduled a news conference Friday evening, and a night cross burning will close Saturday's session. The meeting will be at Butler's Church of Jesus Christ Christian-Aryan Nations compound north of Hayden Lake in the Idaho Panhandle. Butler has said he expects more than 200 supremacist leaders, including members of the Ku Klux Klan and the pro-white Identity Movement. Congress concerned, Dole tells White House S. Africa policy a growing issue

By W. DALE NELSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole told White House officials Friday that the Reagan administration's South Africa policy is "a matter of growing concern in the Congress" and is becoming a civil rights issue in America. However, White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan said, "I don't buy it — that it's becoming a domestic issue." Dole, R-Kan., met with Regan and Dennis Thomas, Regan's top lieutenant, to discuss legislative strategy after Congress returns from its Independence Day recess next week. "I said it seemed to me this is a matter that is of growing concern in the Congress," he told reporters. "I have indicated that we would like to know what constructive engagement has produced. If that's the policy, what is it, and what has it produced?" Later, Regan told reporters that Dole "wanted an explanation of what it (constructive engagement) was and I explained it to him." As for South Africa becoming a domestic issue, Regan said, "That's not the way it should be looked at because this is the internal affairs of another country, and we have to be very sensitive. "It's still a foreign policy issue as far as we're concerned," the chief of staff said. "It's not a domestic issue." He said that "people in the civil rights movement and the Democrats" are trying to make it a domestic matter in America. Asked if he told Dole that the administration would toughen its policy, Regan replied, "No, I just listened to him." The administration, in the face of congressional demands for economic sanctions against the white minority government of South Africa, has maintained that the United States can do more to end racial segregation policies there by remaining involved in the South African economy. When asked if the administration should "toughen up" its South Africa policy, Dole said, "That would be my hope." The Senate Foreign Relations Committee will begin hearings on South Africa on July 22.

Tampering reports continue

General Foods Corp. on Friday ordered Jell-O dessert mixes pulled from some supermarkets in Illinois and Georgia in the second round of tampering threats in as many days. Meanwhile, New York officials cleared shelves of a lemon-lime soft drink because of a report of cyanide poisoning. An anonymous caller to General Foods' consumer information hotline Friday said four boxes of Jell-O Instant Chocolate Pudding Mix had been tampered with in the Chicago area, the company said. "We have to take these telephone threats seriously and do everything we can to protect the health and safety of consumers," said Dean Schott, spokesman for the Illinois Department of Public Health. "We can't stop people from picking up the phone and making these threats." In Atlanta, Kroger officials ordered the sugar-free Jell-O gelatin withdrawn from nine stores after an anonymous man telephoned police about 3:30 a.m. Friday and said he had put poison in 30 packets and put them in several Kroger markets in southern Atlanta. The man did not specify what poison he allegedly used, and police said tests to determine whether the reflection-of-high-foreign-import-penetration-Jell-O was tainted were incomplete. Wholesale prices fall sharply over first half of '86

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices held steady in June but fell at an annual rate of 8.5 percent for the first six months of 1986, the largest half-year plunge since the government began keeping such records in 1947, the Labor Department said Friday. The department's Producer Price Index showed no change from May, when a 0.6 percent rise broke a four-month streak of dropping prices.

Interest rates dip — B3

Even though the collapse of world oil prices that led to the plunge has pretty much run its course, Friday's report showed little evidence of a return of inflation anywhere throughout the economy. Analysts said the report further reflected current slackness of the U.S. economy, a slump that prompted the Federal Reserve

Board to announce Thursday that it is reducing its discount rate from 6.5 percent to 6 percent in an effort to stimulate growth. That reduction in the rate the Fed charges for loans to banks and savings institutions was followed Friday by many commercial banks reducing their prime interest rate from 8.5 percent to 8 percent. Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes called the wholesale price report "good news for all Americans." He said the absence of higher prices would make lower interest rates possible, "and that in turn leads to sustained growth." But Sandra Shaber, director of consumer economics for Chase Econometrics of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., offered a broader view: "If you're talking about people as consumers, it certainly is good news. There has been a very major increase in purchasing power for most of this year. "But if you look at people as job holders, as employees, then it's not such good news. Commodity prices are still weak and that is a reflection of high-foreign-import-penetration. See PRICES on Page A2

Stallings explains Contra vote

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Calls to his office opposing aid to the Nicaraguan contra rebels outnumbered those favoring it, but Idaho Rep. Richard Stallings said his vote on the issue could cost him politically.

"I assume some of those who were for the funding called other members of the delegation, or disagreed with my vote but didn't let me know," Stallings said Thursday.

And the freshman Democrat said his recent vote in the minority against $100 million in aid to the contras and $300 million to neighboring Central American countries gave his 2nd District Republican opponent, Mel Richardson of Idaho Falls, an easy issue.

Stallings said the president, as the nation's chief spokesman on foreign policy, should be supported when possible. "But this was an issue that I thought was not in our best interests."

Plea entered for manslaughter

CALDWELL (AP) — A Nampa woman will go to trial next March after pleading innocent to vehicular manslaughter Friday in the hit-and-run death of a 31-year-old blind man.

Canyon County Chief Deputy Prosecutor Bill Morrow said Tamara Houser, 28, was arraigned in 3rd District Court in Caldwell on the felony charge.

She is accused of hitting Bob Pherigo, Nampa, about 12:30 a.m. June 21. He died a short time later in Mercy Medical Center.

Idaho Falls renews insurance

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — At a time when liability insurance is hard to come by for many local governments, the city of Idaho Falls has succeeded in renewing its policy with Lloyd's of London.

The city will pay a $318,991 premium for the 1986-1987 fiscal year, combining coverage with a self-insurance plan, officials said.

Craig Lords, municipal services director, explained that the city has set up a $250,000 account to pay as many as five $50,000 deductibles and small claims judgments.

He said Lloyd's of London notified the city two months ago that it would not renew its policy, but continued negotiations were successful.

Woman killed when hit by car

CALDWELL (AP) — A 38-year-old woman has been killed in Canyon County when she apparently stepped in front of a car traveling at about 45 mph on the Nampa-Caldwell Highway.

The victim was Linda Howard, Boise, said Deputy Canyon County Coroner Tim Lewis.

Idaho State Police said the woman apparently stepped in front of a vehicle driven by Colleen Grimmel, 23, Boise. The driver tried to swerve but could not avoid striking the pedestrian, officers said.

Collision kills Cascade man

CASCADE (AP) — A Cascade man apparently died from injuries he suffered when his car collided with a logging truck on Idaho Highway 55 north of Cascade, Valley County Coroner Marvin Helkila said.

Fred Sweet Logue, 73, was killed and his wife was injured when her car veered into the oncoming lane and struck the rear tires of a logging truck Thursday afternoon, Idaho State Police said.

ISP Officer George Stokesberry had said Logue may have died of a heart attack before the accident. But an autopsy Friday showed no sign of either a heart attack or a stroke, Helkila said.

Logue's wife Ruth, 69, was treated at Valley County Hospital in Cascade Thursday night and released early Friday, a hospital spokesman said.

Monsanto gets power contract

BOISE (AP) — An innovative service contract between Utah Power & Light Co. and Monsanto Co. has been approved by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

The contract calls for the Salt Lake City utility to be the sole provider of electricity to the phosphorus products company's third furnace in southeastern Idaho.

Idaho Power Co. and UP&L previously provided power to Monsanto jointly under agreements that have expired.

The commission said the new agreement is unique because it partially ties Monsanto's rates to rates paid to Idaho Power by FMC Corp., another phosphorus producer operating in southeastern Idaho.

Soda Springs fined by EPA

SODA SPRINGS (AP) — The city of Soda Springs has been fined $18,000 by the Environmental Protection Agency for allegedly violating disposal, storage and marking regulations for hazardous PCBs.

The penalty was levied last month as a result of an EPA inspection in Soda Springs on Aug. 14, 1984. Agency officials said they found three electrical transformers that contained 10-C oil leaking outside the city's maintenance shop.

"Since the PCB content in these transformers was not known, they were assumed to be PCB-contaminated transformers," according to an EPA complaint received by Soda Springs City Administrator Roy Rainey.

Craig criticized for wilderness road

BOISE (AP) — First District Rep. Larry Craig said construction of a road through the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness, the largest wilderness area in the lower 48 states, makes good sense if Idaho is to promote tourism.

"But the head of the state's largest environmental group called it an 'absurd proposal,' impossible legally, economically and physically."

Craig said Thursday he is considering proposing construction of a road across the 2.2 million-acre wilderness area when an Idaho wilderness bill comes up in Congress. The Church Wilderness, named after the late Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, was created in 1980.

The Republican from Midvale said few people use the wilderness area because the average person cannot take time to hike and cannot afford to fly into it.

"Wilderness is a very elitist attitude toward the handling of our resources," Craig said. "If there were no roads into Yellowstone, no one would see Yellowstone."

But Mary Kelly, executive director of the Idaho Conservation League, said Friday that such a project would violate terms of the 1964 Wilderness Act and the 1980 congressional action that established the area.

"It makes it hard for us to conceive that a fiscal conservative such as Craig portrays himself to be would even consider such a thing, since I think billions of dollars would be involved in such a project even if it were feasible," Ms. Kelly said.

But with many of Idaho's dozens of mountain peaks above 10,000 feet located in the wilderness area, building a road probably would not be possible, she said.

The only way possible route would be along the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, which already is widely used by tourists, Ms. Kelly said.

Craig said he would propose that the road be paved so motorists would have access to more of the wilderness area. He did not have a suggested route.

Impoundments, parking lots and trailheads could be constructed along the road, he said.

Craig said he had thought for about a year about the possibility of a road being built in the wilderness area. He said he discussed the idea with Democratic Reps. John Selberling, Ohio, and Morris Udall, Arizona, chairman of the House Interior Committee, a few months ago.

"Interestingly enough, I did not find hostility to the idea," Craig said.

But Kelly said "I can't imagine any congressman taking it seriously. Certainly there would be a hue and cry from the very large constituency that supported creation of that wilderness to begin with."

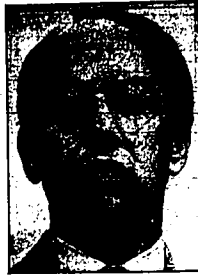

Craig said the argument that wilderness is an economic boon for the state does not wash because statistics show that few people use wilderness areas.

"It's the access," Craig said. "It's the fishing. It is the Coeur d'Alene by the lake that brings people to Idaho." He was referring to the Coeur d'Alene, A Resort by the Lake, a new resort on Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Craig said a road would not diminish the wilderness experience in the area. Other wilderness areas created by Congress about roads and have logging and power lines, he said.

"To Easterners, wilderness is anything they can put their hands on, put a fence around it and call it wilderness," Craig said.

But Kelly said there would be

REP. LARRY CRAIG

Wilderness is for the elites

Some real environmental and economic damage done if a road were built. The largest elk breeding and calving area in the lower 48 states is in the wilderness, bringing millions of dollars to the state from hunters.

Craig said he favors no additional wilderness in Idaho, a position he shares with Lt. Gov. David Leroy, the Republican gubernatorial candidate.

"That's what I prefer," Craig said. "The reality of what I have to do in Washington is another question. There will be some compromise. There will be some additional wilderness areas."

Idaho Falls rejects liquor policy change

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Saying it could not discriminate against local bars and taverns that face a similar restriction, the Idaho Falls City Council has rejected a request to allow restaurants to serve beer and wine by the drink on Sundays.

The council voted 5 to 1 Thursday night against the proposal local restaurant operators argued would only put them on an equal footing with grocery stores already allowed to sell packaged beer and wine on Sundays.

Richard Scheels, general manager of the Stardust Restaurant, said eating establishments in Idaho Falls needed the ordinance to help them compete with restaurants in Bonneville County and Pocatello, where Sunday beer and wine sale by the drink is legal.

Lee Yarbrough, manager of Me-Ed's Pizza, told the council he has lost business on Sundays because of the city's restriction.

"A lot of people come in the door, and when they can't have beer, they head down to Pocatello — and that hurts my business," he said.

But City Attorney Dale Storer called an ordinance singling out restaurants "an enforcement nightmare."

"What is a kitchen and cooking facility?" he asked. "A hot plate, Bunsen burner or full-scale operation?"

He said the ordinance would be difficult to draft because there were too many gray areas that could be left up to interpretation.

Hailey City Council weighs options to correct budget woes

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Faced with declining revenues through the loss of federal revenue sharing funds, the Hailey City Council is juggling figures to make ends meet.

In the most recent of several budget work sessions, the city's accountant, Bob Jackson, said Wednesday the budget he has drawn up is a "bare, break-even budget."

The projected income of $516,000 is some $40,000 less than the 1985-86 fiscal budget. It allows for no employee raises, less than half the amount budgeted this year for street repairs and no contingency fund which typically helps support such things as the Northern Rockies Folk Festival, the CSI/Blaine County Community Education and covers unforeseen expenses.

Mayor Paschal Drake had previously asked all city department heads to tighten their budgets as much as possible. The reductions from these departments will be pooled to fund street repairs, but this action is expected to yield only $25,000 — a fraction of what is needed to adequately care for city streets.

"The only way we're ever going to solve the street problem is through an LID (local improvement district) or another bond," said Mayor Paschal Drake.

Drake proposed polling city residents on their views of what course of action to follow. He said that if an LID proves to be unpopular, the council has the authority to override the vote of the property owners and levy the taxes for street improvements.

With the deteriorating condition of city streets and inadequate funding for repair, the council has been researching various ways to generate new revenues.

Last month the council considered classifying Hailey as a resort city and implementing a broad-based 1 percent resort city tax. However, after unfavorable legal counsel, this option has been dropped and other alternatives are being considered.

Drake said there is going to be "a lot of pressure" on the new Legislature when it convenes in January to give more taxing power to communities within the state.

Should this happen, it would mean a ray of hope for Idaho cities, he said, but may not solve all of Hailey's street problems.

As one method of stretching budget dollars, the city will again levy all general liability insurance against property owners as is allowed by law.

One insurance item to be added this year is $24,000 for the general liability insurance on the city's generator at Indian Springs. Drake said the council will obtain legal counsel before assessing this additional amount to taxpayers.

Drake addressed the question of a routine cost-of-living raise for city employees and said even a 3 percent raise was out of the question. "I don't see that we have it," Drake said, shaking his head.

Shedding some positive light on the bleak budget, Councilman Rick Davis noted "at least we don't have to cut anybody."

The next budget workshop will be held July 23 and is open to the public. The budget should be ready to publish in August and will be reviewed at a public hearing prior to adoption.

New fair building houses rare gems exhibit

Dominican
amber to shine
this weekend

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

FILER — Amber — crystal clear or patterned — a little-known gem; comes mined and hand-crafted to the 10th annual Idaho Gem State Days at Filer this weekend from the Dominican Republic, one of the few places in the world where it is found.

The show, at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, will continue through today and Sunday. It will open to the public from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. today and from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Shirley and Harold Cilley of Seattle, Wash., are among the exhibitors and dealers making a debut at this year's Filer show.

Gene Anthis, who sponsors the show each year, said this is probably the first such collection and some of the best genuine amber around.

In the 1950s, Harold Cilley was stationed with the U.S. Navy in the Dominican Republic, where the rare gem is found. A few years ago, he and his wife made a visit there and just a year ago she launched a new career for the couple. They now import and market the all-natural yellow, red and rare blue amber stones and jewelry.

Amber is made from resin that fell from prehistoric trees and, after 40 million years of earth pressure, was turned into a gem. The tree resin, along with a collection of flora and fauna that often includes identifiable insects, formed amber stones.

The stone is light in weight and always warm, Shirley explains. It can be hand-faceted, or just cut and polished. Many of the stones are wire-wrapped to avoid cutting into the unique patterns that make necklaces, pendants and other jewelry.

The Seattle pair opened the books on their imported jewelry business a FILER — The new merchants building at the Twin Falls County Fair will make its debut this weekend as the site of Idaho Gem State Days gathering.

Work was halted temporarily at the building so it could be used for the many displays at the gem show, Fair Manager Tom Shouse said. But the only work that remains unfinished at the building is some wiring and lighting, he added.

The contractor, Otis Hall Construction Co. of Twin Falls, will return to work after the gem show.

The 10,000 square-foot structure replaces the 20-year-old merchants building that collapsed last December under the weight of snow.

The newer facility is in a different location — near the fair's main gate instead of with the other merchants buildings — and is constructed of concrete blocks instead of wood.

The building costs amount to about $107,500. An insurance pool program in which Twin Falls County participates will pay the building costs and about $30,000 more for some county cars and equipment that had been stored and damaged when the roof in the old building collapsed, Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said.

The Idaho Counties Risk Management Program already has paid the county about $50,000 toward the building costs. About $16,000 from the Twin Falls Fair budget was added to that amount to meet the contractor's first billing, Hempleman said. The fair budget will be repaid when the remainder of the insurance claim is paid.

Larry Laderer with the Corroon and Black company administering the counties' program said he couldn't discuss details of its business with Twin Falls County. He did say he saw no problems that year ago and took to the road for various shows. This is their first visit to Idaho and their relatively small display includes a variety of types of stones in natural shape or in necklaces and other jewelry. The items range in cost from $3 to $360.

The rare blue amber is the most expensive. It is found only in formations of a blue clay and takes on some of the color of the clay.

Amber, the Cilleys explain, is one of the earliest jewels used by man and there are many antique pieces.

Also new at this year's show is the oyster bowl. Here show fans can buy a Japanese oyster for $6, guaranteed to have at least one cultured pearl.

Morris and Jean Bailey of Phoenix will sell the oyster, open it for the customer, and then either give them the pearls or mount them as necklaces, earrings or other jewelry for the customer.

They are "cultured" when the oysters, at about three years of age, are pried open and a small seed inserted to irritate the oyster, which then builds the pearl around the seed for all are perfectly round and fully formed in about another two to three years. The Baileys have been importing the oysters from Japan for a number of years.

PUC, IPC officials disagree on effect of ruling on utility

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The state Public Utilities Commission's decision Friday to grant Idaho Power a fraction of its $62.2 million rate request won't hurt Idaho Power at all, according to commission members.

But the utility disagrees and says it will ask the commission to reconsider. "It's not something we expected," said Larry Taylor, Idaho Power spokesman. He said he didn't think the company asked for too much.

Taylor said shortly after the release of the 137-page decision Friday that no action within the company had had a chance to analyze the financial impact, but he thought it would be detrimental.

PUC President Perry Swisher said the largest factor in the commission's decision to deny Idaho Power all but $981,567 in increased rates was the company's decision to complete the Valmy II coal-fired power plant in northern Nevada.

Swisher said the company went ahead with its $155-million investment even though electricity from the facility wouldn't be needed until 1991.

Taylor said Valmy II has been generating electricity to ratepayers for more than a year and should have been included in the PUC decision.

Swisher said the electric company could remain healthy despite the rate increase denial. "At this time, Idaho Power's return on equity was 12.36 percent, according to Idaho Power. "This (rate decision) isn't as bad a blow as it may look," Swisher said.

The lower-than-expected rate increase may be a boon to some of the irrigation companies in the Magic Valley which use electric pumps. Twin Falls Canal Company uses gravity flow.

Idaho Power's $66.2 million rate increase request represented a 21.38 percent hike over previous rates.

The request represents a downward revision of the utility's request last September of a 27.4 percent increase which would have generated $842 million.

Idaho was willing to accept some adjustments in the rate increase request, said Larry Taylor, Idaho Power rate manager.

The PUC staff recommended that instead of the rate increase, the company should reduce rates by $15 million, according to the PUC. Commissioners are not bound by staff recommendations.

Because of the uniqueness of the case, the commission has taken about 40 days longer than usual to decide on the request, said Crowley.

During 16 days of testimony in 1985 and 1986, arguments against the increase centered on the Valmy II decision. The plant came on line May 21, 1985. Critics such as Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones, a long-time adversary of the utility, say the decision to invest in the plant shows bad management. They also say the fund will be built from a $20 fee judges will levy on convicted felons and a $10 fee for misdemeanor criminal convictions. Judges also may order defendants to pay restitution to the fund.

Administration costs also will be paid from the fund, said Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower, the president of the prosecutor's association. But to date, there is no money in the fund to pay any claims, he added.

The Legislature allowed the program an annual budget of $500,000, but it may take some time to collect that amount, he added.

"We probably won't hit our stride until 120 to 180 days," he added. "This is going to be tough. Getting fines always is a problem. All you can do is the best you can."

The legislative and association intent for the program was that it pay for itself, Bower added. Benefits, in fact, may be reduced proportionately if there are not enough funds to fully pay all claims.

"This is a typical situation we find ourselves in. We are one of the last states in the nation to develop such a program and try to do it without any taxpayers' money," Bower said.

The program is designed as a "safety net" for victims who can't BOISE — A campaign to publicize the availability of financial aid for victims of violent crime was launched by the state's judges and the Idaho Prosecuting Attorneys Association.

The Victims Compensation Program is so new, however, that there are no funds in the bill, and it may be a while until some are collected through fees levied on convicted criminals.

Despite the lack of money, victims still may apply for aid for injuries resulting from crimes that occurred after July 1, the date the program became effective, according to the Idaho State Industrial Commission.

The commission will process and verify claims for the aid.

The program was created by a bill passed during the 1986 Legislature. It provides financial aid to victims injured from criminal acts or to the dependents of those killed when the criminal is not apprehended or where restitution is not possible.

Councilman Tom Held, a builder, pushed to retain an appellant's right to come to the council to possibly avoid the expense of going to court.

In May, Held was strongly criticized by Building Inspector Ron Drey after several builders complained to council members about his "nit-picky" practices in enforcing the Uniform Building Code.

At the time, Drey said he was merely enforcing the code as it is written. Selfert attacked Drey's position, saying the city hired a professional building inspector to assure adherence to the code.

Monday, Selfert said if several builders want to appeal Drey's decisions, then a board of their peers is the best way to keep the decisions non-political. Such appeals now come to council.

obtain compensation for injuries from other sources, Bower said. "It's no pot of gold."

A maximum of $25,000 will be paid for an individual criminal act. In the case of wage loss, compensation is paid at the rate of $10 per hour of the weekly salary of the victim, and at a maximum of $175 a week until the victim "has a reasonable prospect of being regularly employed," stated a newly-released information pamphlet that will be used to help publicize the program.

Death benefits and funeral expenses, up to $2,500 for the latter, also may be paid.

Benefits only will be paid on bodily injuries and not for pain and suffering or property damage. In addition, payments may be reduced or denied to the extent the victim contributed to his injury.

No benefits will be paid to a person residing with an offender or accomplice or relative of an offender, except for certain domestic relations or abuse situations, said Bower.

Before victims may obtain money from the fund, they must seek com-

Inspection appeals board declared

KETCHUM — A five-man board to hear appeals on decisions made by Ketchum's building inspector was formed by the City Council Monday.

In requesting the board, Mayor Jerry Selfert said it will help "depoliticize" appeals now made to the council by allowing a review by the builders' peers.

The council agreed, however, to allow appellants to bring grievances to the council after going to the new board and before resorting to legal action to resolve their complaints.

At the time, Drey said he was merely enforcing the code as it is written. Selfert attacked Drey's position, saying the city hired a professional building inspector to assure adherence to the code.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are harvesting a winter wheat crop estimated at 1.55 billion bushels, down 15 percent from last year's harvest and 2 percent less than forecast a month ago, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

In a related supply-and-demand report, department analysts projected total U.S. wheat output this year at about 2.17 billion bushels, including the winter and spring crops. That would be the smallest total production since 1979, when 2.13 billion bushels were harvested.

The winter wheat harvest is the smallest since 1.22 billion bushels were harvested in 1978, according to department records.

But that does not mean the United States is running short of grain. The projects also showed a huge stockpile of wheat looms over the market, threatening to depress prices through 1986-87 unless more is exported.

Although no 1986 production estimates for corn and other spring-planted crops were shown, the report included new plantings figures that showed the scope of acreage cutbacks this year, partly in response to government programs to help curb further buildups of surpluses.

This year's total corn plantings for grain and forage, were reported at 76 million acres, down from 83.3 million acres planted for 1985 crop. The area for harvest as grain was put at 63.4 million acres, down

Soviet harvest shrivels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hot, dry weather has continued to shrivel prospects for the Soviet Union's 1986 grain harvest, probably requiring Moscow to import more foreign grain in the coming year, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Based on the latest USDA assessment, the Soviets will harvest an estimated 180 million metric tons of grain this year, down 5 million tons from the department's forecast a month ago and 10 million tons less than the 1985 harvest.

The heat and dryness in the European part of the Soviet Union in June caused yield reductions for barley, winter wheat and corn, the report said.

Analysts estimated that Soviet imports for 1985-86 will be about 29 million tons, unchanged from previous forecasts but down sharply from the record of 55.5 million tons Moscow imported in 1984-85.

But the report said imports could climb to 34 million tons in 1986-87, an increase of 2 million tons from the previous estimate.

from 75.1 million acres last year. Soybeans at 61.9 million acres planted, were up 2 percent from last year, and cotton plants declined 9 percent to 9.67 million acres, the report said. Larger 1986 plantings were reported for barley, flaxseed, peanuts, hay, dry edible beans and sugar crops.

Despite the cutback, the corn crop — the largest and most important of U.S. field crops — is expected to balloon inventories further in 1986-87, the projections showed. As a result, corn prices at the farm in the coming year could average $1.75 to $2 per bushel, compared with $2.35 estimated for the 1985-86 season.

According to the supply-and-demand projections, wheat prices at the farm in 1986-87 may average $2.25 to $2.50 per bushel, down from $3.16 last season. That would be the lowest since wheat averaged $2.33 per bushel in 1977. One reason will be the lower government supports authorized by Congress last year in new farm law.

For example, price support loan rates for 1986-crop wheat were lowered to $2.40 per bushel from $2.60 for the 1985 harvest. The lower supports are intended to make U.S. crops more attractive to foreign buyers and thus boost exports, a prime source of income for American farmers.

A further reduction to $2.28 per bushel for the 1987 crop was announced by Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng on June 30.

According to the latest production report, winter wheat output this year may yield an average of 35 bushels per acre, compared with last year's 38.1 bushels per harvested acre and 36.8 bushels forecast in June.

Rains delayed the wheat harvest in some areas, causing yields to deteriorate, the report said. Overall, however, about 60 percent of the acreage had been harvested by July 1, ahead of the usual pace.

Farmers were expected to have about 43.2 million acres for harvest this year, down from almost 48 million in 1985.

No 1986 production estimates for spring wheat, corn and other spring-planted crops were included. Those will be issued by USDA next month.

The Kansas winter wheat crop, normally the largest, was estimated at 526.4 million bushels, down from 432.2 million in 1985. The yield was put at 32 bushels per acre, compared with 38 last year.

Indicated production of winter wheat and average yields in 1986 by major producing states, based on July 1 prospects, included:

Arkansas, 31,920,000 bushels and an average yield of 42 bushels per acre; California, 45,000,000 and 75; Colorado, 58,000,000 and 34; Georgia, 14,300,000 and 26; Idaho, 53,550,000 and 63; Illinois, 36,080,000 and 44.

Indiana, 31,500,000 and 45; Kansas, 326,400,000 and 32; Kentucky, 9,180,000 and 34; Michigan, 39,900,000 and 57; Missouri, 20,060,000 and 34; Montana, 68,000,000 and 34; Nebraska, 78,000,000 and 39.

North Carolina, 13,800,000 and 30; Ohio, 48,300,000 and 46; Oklahoma, 150,800,000 and 29; Oregon, 52,200,000 and 58; South Dakota, 74,760,000 and 42; Tennessee, 11,650,000 and 34; Texas, 115,200,000 and 24; and Washington, 105,000,000 and 50.

New ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reginald Bartholomew, the U.S. ambassador in war-torn Lebanon since 1983, will be nominated by President Reagan to be ambassador to Spain, it was announced Friday.

Bartholomew will succeed Thomas O. Enders in Madrid. There was no announcement of Enders' future plans.

Museum piece to orbit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has dusted off a Navy satellite that has been hanging in the National Air and Space Museum for 15 years and plans to put it into orbit for communications experiments, officials said Friday.

In return, the museum received an earlier version of the same satellite.

The experiments, an Air Force spokesman said, should help communications and meteorological satellites over the North Pole avoid interference caused by the aurora borealis, also known as the northern lights. The aurora cause spectacular displays of color in far northern skies, and also distort radio signals.

The 270-pound satellite, renamed Polar Bear, for Polar Beacon Experiment and Aurora Research, "was in extremely good condition" when removed from the museum, said Lt. Andrew Swanson, a spokesman for the Air Force Space Division in Los Angeles, interviewed by telephone from Washington.

Banks sue for loan money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Four Ohio banks still owed $2 million by the aborted 1984 presidential campaign of Sen. John Glenn filed suit Friday against the Federal Election Commission, asking that the loans be declared legal.

Ameritrust Co. of Cleveland, BancOhio, Bank One, and Huntington National Bank asked U.S. District Court to declare that the loans were made "on a basis that assured repayment" and therefore in compliance with federal election laws. The suit apparently stemmed from a finding by the FEC on June 12 that there was probable cause to believe the loans were not made on a basis that assured repayment and thus illegal.

Bank attorney David S. Cupps declined to elaborate on the suit, saying it speaks for itself and "fully explains the position of the banks."

Prison disturbances investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 500 inmates from burned out portions of a suburban prison run by the District of Columbia were paroled out to jails in a three-state region Friday as federal prosecutors accused District officials of letting prisoners get the upper hand at the overcrowded Lorton reformatory.

The two U.S. attorneys — from the nation's capital and the adjoining Eastern District of Virginia where Lorton is located — said they would form a task force to investigate the uprising and vowed to "wrest control" of the institution from the inmates who remain there.

The federal officials, Harry Hudson of Virginia and Joseph diGenova of the District of Columbia, pointedly said at a news conference that District officials would not be included on the task force and, in fact, might be the object of part of the investigation.

"Yesterday's incident, we believe, is only one manifestation of what has been a continuing problem of disorder at the institution," said Hudson.

"It's time to wrest control from prisoners at Lorton and place it back in the hands of law enforcement officials. It is our hope we can regain control of Lorton."

DiGenova said District Mayor Marion Barry Jr. had delayed progress on construction of a new prison until after the September city primary in which he is running for a third term.

"It is playing Russian roulette not only with the safety of the citizens of the District of Columbia, but with the citizens of northern Virginia," he said.

There was no immediate response from Barry, who scheduled an afternoon news conference.

But City Administrator Thomas Downs defended the city's management of Lorton and said a main problem is that the city has no power to arrest Lorton inmates.

"We don't enforce, we run the facility. We can simply refer incidents to the U.S. attorney's office for prosecution. We asked several years ago for arrest powers to deal with individuals who commit a crime on the premises and were denied," Downs said.

Board denies parole for Van Houten

FONTANA, Calif. (AP) — A parole board, calling the 1969 Sharon Tate-LaBianca murders a crime "beyond equal," refused Friday to release Charles Manson "family" member Leslie Van Houten from prison.

"The savagery goes beyond description," said board member Rudolph Castro, who announced the decision of a three-member panel after a six-hour hearing.

Miss Van Houten, 36, told the parole board she blamed herself for not preventing the slayings, and said she did not come to terms with the normalcy of her time until after her death sentence was commuted and she realized she would be spending her life behind bars.

She is eligible for another parole hearing in a year.

The three members of this year's panel said she still had adjustments to make before she could be sent back into society.

Board members suggested that she attend self-help programs at the prison, such as Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous, to deal with the drug problem that led her into the Manson family in the 1960s.

She cited her own testimony at her first trial, that she had used the mind-altering drug LSD 150 times and taken drugs from the time she was 14.

U.S. wants more than just apology

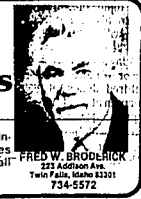

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department said Friday it wants more than the Zimbabwean government than an apology to former President Jimmy Carter for an anti-U.S. speech made in his presence at a July 4 party.

Zimbabwean Prime Minister Robert Mugabe said Thursday that an explanation will be sent to Carter concerning a government official's remarks critical of U.S. policies toward Southern Africa.

Carter, calling the remarks inappropriate and an insult, walked out of the Independence Day fête at the U.S. Embassy in the Zimbabwean capital, Harare.

Citing that incident and previous anti-Reagan administration rhetoric by officials in Zimbabwe, the State Department subsequently suspended payment of $13.5 million in aid for the African country.

What's what

Wedding anniversaries, like birthdays, are noteworthy because they evoke memories of emotion, says our Love and War man. What's significant, usually to the wife in particular... is that reliving of "the way we were." The husband is more likely to mention the years - 14, 26, 34, however many. Modestly. As an old soldier might mention how long he'd been in the Black Hole of Calcutta.

Former 'Dynasty' actor fights AIDS

An Afghan guerrilla shows off rejected peanut butter

Peanut butter no hit with Afghans

INDURMAR GHAI, Afghanistan (AP) — Peanut butter is not winning the struggle for hearts and stomachs in Afghanistan.

The all-American food, in olive-green plastic combat ration packs, is reaching Moslem guerrillas fighting the Soviet-backed communist regime. But many of the guerrillas are less than enthusiastic about the foreign delicacy.

"I don't like it. It is not good to my stomach," said a guerrilla named Amarullah.

Dozens of unopened packets of peanut butter from Visalia, Calif., dotted the hillside of the insurgent base here.

It took a while to find a guerrilla who admitted to liking the stuff.

"I like it because it has vitamin A, vitamin B, vitamin C and other good things," said a guerrilla named Narullah.

"It does not taste so bad," said the fighter, apparently impressed with the food's nutritive qualities listed on the pack.

Part of the problem seems to be that no one has explained to the guerrillas that peanut butter is better spread on bread than eaten by itself.

The oversight is not unusual. Neither have the rebels been told to add water to dehydrated peaches and fruit salad also supplied in combat packs.

But the guerrillas said that even dry, the peaches from Edinburg, Texas, and the fruit salad from Albany, Ore., tasted a lot better than peanut butter.

The peanut butter and dehydrated fruit, sent by the U.S. government to Afghan refugees in Pakistan, have found their way to the guerrillas, who are fighting Afghan government forces and an estimated 115,000 Soviet troops.

U.S. Embassy officials in Pakistan said the supplies are given to the refugees as humanitarian assistance and are not intended for the guerrillas.

The rebels, most of whom cannot read the English on the packs, seemed a little confused about where the peanut butter came from.

"It comes from China," said a guerrilla called Sarah Khan. "No, Saudi Arabia," said a friend.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although the admission he has AIDS probably means he won't work in Hollywood again, former "Dynasty" actor Paul Francis Keenan says his first priority is fighting the deadly disease.

"I believe that my focus is to be healed from this disease and to live. Whatever else happens after that, happens," said Keenan, who is speaking out to help victims of AIDS, which also afflicted fellow "Dynasty" actor Rock Hudson, who died Oct. 2.

Keenan, 30, learned he had acquired immune deficiency syndrome about seven weeks ago.

"When you have AIDS, you really have to face the fact that this could be a fatal disease," he said Thursday in an interview from New York, where he was hospitalized recently at St. Clare's Hospital and Health Center. "You're dealing with things that are more important than the narcissistic Hollywood type of life," Keenan, who appeared as stable hand Tony Driscoll in five episodes of "Dynasty" in 1982 and eight in 1984, is speaking out strongly about the disease and the need to help victims.

In the days before Hudson died at age 59 from complications of AIDS, his spokesman revealed he had the disease. Keenan goes beyond that, acknowledging he contracted AIDS through sexual contact with another man.

"I don't believe that AIDS is something that I should be ashamed of, something that I should have to keep a secret," Keenan said. "I am very proud of who I am, very proud of the things I'm trying to do."

Although Keenan is the second member of the "Dynasty" cast to be afflicted with AIDS, a spokeswoman for the show said it was only a coincidence.

Keenan said there is no chance he contracted AIDS from Hudson, who was 59 when he died Oct. 2. He said Hudson was only a friend and they never worked together.

The show's spokeswoman said other actors on the ABC-TV nighttime soap opera are taking the news stride.

"While there might be panic in some quarters, there's no panic on 'Dynasty,'" said Rachel McCallister of Lippin & Grant, Inc.

She said Keenan's revelation probably ends his chances for work in Hollywood, but added that the reluctance to hire people with the fatal disease "is pretty much not just in Hollywood. It's everywhere, at least that's what I read."

Lost sailor survives rough Hawaii seas

HONOLULU (AP) — A sailor who abandoned a sinking ship spent 18 days on a 16-foot skiff, using a compass, sextant, and sails made from a sleeping bag to guide him through rough seas to Hawaii.

The skiff, with no keel, drifted mostly sideways in the stiff winds and choppy water before depositing Thomas Jacobson, 43, of Brinnon, Wash., on the shores of the remote island of Nihoa.

"It got me down here," said Jacobson, one of eight crewmembers of the West I, who abandoned ship June 21 when the fish processing vessel sank en route to Honolulu from Seattle.

The other seven remained in two life rafts, while Jacobson took the skiff in hopes of finding help. Six of the other crewmembers were rescued July 5 about 400 miles from Hawaii by a passing Navy ship. The captain died and was buried at sea.

Jacobson steered the skiff with a compass and sextant and also used the stars. He tore up a sleeping bag and made four triangular sails and found shelter under a tarpaulin from one of the life rafts. He fished with a hook and hand line until a dolphin yanked it away.

"I figured I'd arrive (on Oahu) around the fifth," Jacobson said Thursday. "I had no question I was going to be making it here."

He drifted helplessly by Oahu, however.

"I was really irritated because I couldn't tack toward shore," he said.

He landed on Nihoa on Tuesday. It took two days to get around steep cliffs and rugged islanders, mostly native Hawaiians who speak Hawaiian.

Had Jacobson been unable to land the skiff on Nihoa, he planned to jump overboard and swim for the island, said Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Jg. Joe Cook. Had he drifted by the Hawaiian Islands, he would have faced thousands of miles of open ocean before reaching another land mass.

Marines missing after crash

TOKYO (AP) — Reconnaissance aircraft on Friday scoured the waters east of Japan in search of three U.S. Marines missing after their helicopter crashed during night maneuvers, a military spokesman said.

The UH-1N Marine helicopter crashed shortly before dawn Friday about 300 miles from the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido.

The cause of the accident was not immediately known. The missing men, whose names were withheld pending notification of relatives, were operating from the amphibious assault ship Tarawa and were attached to a unit stationed at Marine Air Station El Toro near Tustin, Calif., according to Marine Master Gunner Sgt. Dale Hunter in Tokyo.

Indian Moslems, Hindus clash

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Police said Friday that six more people died in the violence-plagued Punjab, and the Indian government postponed for the third time a disputed land swap crucial to the peace accord for the state.

Elsewhere in India, Police fired bullets and tear gas shells Friday to disperse rioters as clashes between Moslems and Hindus broke out for the third day in the western Indian city of Ahmedabad.

United News of India reported three people died Friday in the industrial and textile center, which would raise the death toll to 23 since the rioting began Wednesday when Moslem youths stoned an annual Hindu religious procession. The news agency said federal paramilitary troops were rushed to the city.

The planned transfer next week of Chandigarh to Punjab control was delayed indefinitely because no agreement has been reached on what land Haryana should receive in return, according to newspaper reports.

Apartment building collapses

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A seven-story apartment building collapsed Friday, killing 27 people and seriously injuring 20, newspapers reported.

Al-Ahram said in its Saturday edition that 100 people lived in the building in the Nile delta city of Mit-Ghamr, 45 miles north of Cairo, which had 10 apartments. It said the structure fell Friday morning and rescuers still were searching the rubble.

Al-Gomhouria, another daily, said the building's owner and eight of his children were among the dead, but his wife was at the market buying food for breakfast.

Neither report gave a reason for the collapse, the age of the building or details of its construction.

Mayor says Mexican city under siege

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — The acting mayor said this border city was under a state of siege Friday after Mexican soldiers wielding bayonets took over the city police department amid tensions over a disputed election.

"We are under a state of siege, an undeclared martial law. This is unconstitutional," said acting Mayor Miguel Agustín Corral.

Corral is a member of the opposition National Action Party, or PAN, which has alleged government-instigated fraud in the July 6 state elections.

The government said Friday in Mexico City that martial law has not been declared.

Soldiers in Juarez, across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Texas, took control of the police department Thursday "at bayonet point," said city manager Sergio Conde Varela.

"These are totally arbitrary measures," Corral said. "This is a very questionable situation for the Mexican federal government that in times of peace, armed soldiers are patrolling the streets of a peaceful city."

Juarez, the largest city in the vast state of Chihuahua and along the U.S.-Mexico border, has been under PAN control for the last three years.

The results of the elections, to choose a state governor, 67 mayorships and 14 state legislative seats, are to be announced Sunday.

The city council on Friday examined a crushed ballot box, stacks of torn ballots and formal electoral documents allegedly found in the trash. The council voted to file a complaint with the state government.

honesty on the part of the elections authorities," Corral said. "This just confirms their complicity to make the ballots disappear."

U.S. Consul General Mike Hancock advised U.S. citizens that "there's a strong possibility of political demonstrations. Americans should exercise due caution and avoid concentrations of people that might turn into political demonstrations."

Hancock stressed he was not advising tourists to keep out of Juarez. "It's prudent for people to be aware of the political controversy and exercise due caution," he said.

Marcos offered advice to leader of rebellion

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Former President Ferdinand E. Marcos gave advice to the leader of this week's brief rebellion shortly after the revolt began, according to a report revealed Friday by the Defense Ministry.

Marcos, living in Hawaii, has denied any role in the 38-hour rebellion led by Arturo Tolentino, his former foreign minister and running mate in the fraud-tainted Feb. 7 election.

But a Defense Ministry spokesman said telephone operators at the Manila Hotel reported that rebels began a series of telephone calls with Marcos at 5 p.m., shortly after the rebellion began, and that Marcos suggested Tolentino use the luxury hotel as his base.

Tolentino declared himself acting president Sunday in the hotel driveway. He and his followers, supported by about 300 soldiers, took over the hotel and declared it the base of his government.

The spokesman, Silvestre Afable, did not have the complete report given Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, but he confirmed parts of it.

Military officers took a deposition from one operator Saturday. They refused to discuss it with reporters, but hotel supervisor Vic Sison said the information was significant.

Sison said there were at least seven calls between Tolentino's room at the hotel and Hawaii during the revolt. He said two originated in Hawaii, and that there was no doubt — based on the statements of operators who heard the calls — that Marcos participated in at least some of the conversations.

The calls lasted at least until 4:15 a.m. Monday, Sison said. He could not say if there were more calls after that because no operators remained in the building to monitor them.

In another development, Enrile said the military had planned "room-to-room combat" if the revolt had continued beyond the 24-hour deadline. President Corason Aquino set Monday. The rebellion ended at dawn Tuesday, several hours before the deadline, when the participants left the hotel.

10 killed in gun battles

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said Friday they killed 10 alleged black insurgents in two gun battles, and residents of the Soweto township reported several people slain in fights between rival blacks.

The government said violence decreased dramatically in the first month of its nationwide state of emergency.

Residents of Soweto, Johannesburg's satellite black city of 2 million people, reported street fighting between migrant black workers and young radicals, and said they believed as many as seven were killed. There was no official confirmation of deaths.

Information bureau spokesman David Venter said in analyzing the first month of the emergency imposed June 12 that the number of violent incidents declined 66 percent compared with May.

He also said that, in the past week, deaths were down 13 percent, injuries 38 percent and attacks on security forces 32 percent in comparison with the first week of the emergency.

Banks reduce prime rates

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's big banks cut their prime rates by a half-point to 8 percent Friday following the Federal Reserve Board's reduction in the discount rate, but economists were divided over whether the cuts can spark the nation's inflection economy.

Prime Rate Drops
Chemical Bank cuts prime interest rate to 8%
Note: The last cut was April 21, from 9% to 8.5%

The prime rate cuts put the benchmark lending rate at its lowest level since May, 1978. They marked the third time this year that the banks and the Fed have reduced their key interest charges by one-half percentage point.

Others said the areas already helped by the decline in interest rates over the past year — especially the booming housing industry — will benefit further from the sustained drop in rates.

"It won't be dramatic, but it will be just one more bit of stimulus to get the economy going," said Kathleen Cooper, chief economist for Security Pacific Corp., a Los Angeles-based bank holding company.

The Fed on Thursday announced it was lowering the discount rate — the interest it charges on loans to commercial banks — to 6 percent from 6.5 percent.

The most direct method the Fed uses to signal it wants interest rates to move broadly lower, and generally is followed by cuts in the prime rate, the bank's benchmark used in setting commercial loan interest.

New York-based Chemical Bank, the sixth-largest U.S. bank, was the first to cut its prime rate following the Fed's action.

Major banks across the nation followed Chemical in cutting their prime to 8 percent, including: New York's Citibank, the nation's largest bank; No. 2 Bank of America of San Francisco; No. 3 Chase Manhattan; and No. 4 Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.; No. 5 Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.; No. 6 Bankers Trust; and No. 7 First National Bank of Chicago.

Robert Sinche, a managing director of Simms Capital Management in New York, said the rate cuts earlier this year helped nurture the growing boom in the housing industry and other interest-rate sensitive areas of the economy.

Legume conference successful

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Leaders of the first International Fog Legume Research Conference say the meeting brought recognition to often-ignored crops and will be held again in four or five years in a developing country.

Mixed close on stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed Friday, drifting through a quiet session that closed out the second worst week of point losses ever for the Dow Jones industrial average.

The news of the latest discount rate reduction by the Federal Reserve drew only a muted response from investors, except in the case of that gainer, General.

Dow Jones' average of 30 blue chips dropped 10.40 to 1,821.43, bringing its loss for the week to 79.44 points. The only larger weekly decline posted by the average was an 82.50-point drop last March 31-April 4.

Banks reduce prime rates

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's big banks cut their prime rates by a half-point to 8 percent Friday following the Federal Reserve Board's reduction in the discount rate...

Prime Rate Drops
Chemical Bank cuts prime interest rate to 8%
Note: The last cut was April 21, from 9% to 8.5%

Although some economists and politicians had clamored for the rate cuts as a means of stimulating the economy, others maintained that the factors slowing the economy — slumping foreign trade and the depressed farm and manufacturing sectors — won't be greatly affected by another cut in interest rates.

The most direct method the Fed uses to signal it wants interest rates to move broadly lower, and generally is followed by cuts in the prime rate, the bank's benchmark used in setting commercial loan interest.

Others said the areas already helped by the decline in interest rates over the past year — especially the booming housing industry — will benefit further from the sustained drop rates.

New York-based Chemical Bank, the sixth-largest U.S. bank, was the first to cut its prime rate following the Fed's action.
