Police chief leads musical pitch to governor

On the record, Illinois town wants a prison

By DAVID FOX
The Associated Press

FLORA, Ill. — This Southern Illinois farm village wants to be home to a new prison so badly it has recorded a musical pitch to the governor, with the police chief as lead singer.

When state officials chose Canton and Mount Sterling as the sites of two new Illinois prisons, Flora figured it had to stand out among communities still vying for the third one and the jobs it will create.

"We'd done everything we could on the first go-around," Mike Springston, editor of the Daily Clay County Advocate-Press, said Friday. "If we came up short in anything, it was probably on the part of public relations."

Enter Chief Ed and the Long Arm of the Law Band.

The lead singer is Flora Police Chief Ed Guyott, backed by a band of local musicians assembled by Bill Snyder, composer of the musical plea to Gov. James R. Thompson — "All We Want 'sa Prison."

Snyder described the ditty as a "humorous-type song, kind of tongue-in-cheek."

"Our unemployment rate is somewhere around 19 percent, so it's pretty depressed here. But when you can't do anything else, you've got to laugh about it. If you lose your sense of humor, you lose everything," he said Friday.

The song's message is serious, Snyder said.

Flora needs state help to bring jobs to the area abandoned on the depressed farming and oil industries.

The village of 5,400 people also was considered as the site for the Magna automobile parts plant being built by Chrysler Corp. and Mitsubishi Motors near Bloomington, and the song mentions that as well.

*Hard times are upon us, Gov.
Depression blues are visitin'.
We're not askin' for a lot of help.
All we want 'sa prison
You know we missed that auto plant
And two other prison deals,
And we think we got more comin'
Than cheese and meals on wheels."*

Reagan letter offers to delay defense plan

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan formally responded Friday to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's most recent arms proposal with a plan that sources said offered to delay — but not sidetrack or curtail — his "Star Wars" missile defense program.

But he added, "There are a lot of details that, at the moment, with negotiations to come and so forth, that I don't feel free to say."

That is as close as he has come to saying he is willing to negotiate on at least some elements of the program.

Saying the United States remains committed to seeking significant reductions in offensive nuclear weapons, the White House statement added, in reference to SDI:

The White House announced in a brief written statement that Reagan's long-awaited response had been sent but described it as "a private letter" to the general secretary and gave no indications of its contents.

However, administration sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Reagan proposed to delay deployment of a nuclear weapons defense system for five to seven years in exchange for an agreement that such a system could be deployed by either or both superpowers after an agreed-upon date.

Administration officials and scientists have said the president's Strategic Defense Initiative, as the "Star Wars" research program is formally known, is not expected to produce any deployable weapons for several years, if ever.

"We look upon the energetic research effort of our government toward finding a defense against these weapons of mass destruction to be an essential part of the task of reducing the effectiveness and the very need for these offensive weapons."

SDI envisions the use of futuristic technology, perhaps including super-powerful lasers and particle beams, to shoot down incoming missiles before they can explode over their targets.

"The president is hopeful that the ideas he has put forward in this letter will continue the process of building a firm basis for progress in a number of critical areas," the White House statement said.

Reagan, speaking to a group of student leaders Friday before leaving the White House for a weekend at Camp David, his Maryland in-laws' retreat, said he "would never let (SDI) become a bargaining chip in the sense of that if they would do something we'd give it up and not go forward."

It added that Reagan "finds his exchange of correspondence with General Secretary Gorbachev to be of great value in the search for understanding between our two countries."

"We hope that our efforts will produce agreement, not only in arms

Nuclear test issue discussions start

By BRENDA WATSON
The Associated Press

GENEVA — The United States and Soviet Union began talks Friday on nuclear test issues that each claims to have initiated.

pliance concerns were answered," according to the White House statement.

Washington seeks verifiable compliance with the rules and the Kremlin wants testing banned.

Both sides agreed to confidentiality, and U.S. spokesman Christopher Henze would say only that the teams of nuclear experts gathered at the U.S. mission for an informal morning session followed by a formal meeting in the afternoon.

It said the Geneva meeting "will allow the United States to present its ideas and concerns to the Soviets and to hear Soviet concerns."

Washington has said the talks are not considered negotiations.

The Soviet Union wants to discuss a ban on testing. In a brief report Friday, the official news agency Tass said the talks are "to cover a whole range of questions, the control and the muzzling out of ways of the complete rejection of nuclear tests."

In a terse joint statement Friday evening, the delegations said talks concerning "the entire scope of issues relating to nuclear testing" had begun, but gave no details.

Tass said Thursday the meeting was convened on Moscow's initiative and would "show who is far and who is against the termination of nuclear explosions."

A White House statement July 16 said "the United States has long sought a meeting with the Soviets" to present concerns about verifying compliance with treaties signed in 1974 and 1976 that limit the strength of nuclear tests for both military and civilian purposes to 150 kilotons.

One kiloton is the equivalent of the explosion of 1,000 tons of TNT.

One day before the delegations convened in Geneva, the United States exploded its 15th nuclear device since Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev announced a unilateral test moratorium on Aug. 8, 1985. The United States says it continues underground testing to maintain a reliable nuclear deterrent.

Neither treaty was ratified by the U.S. Senate, but both sides say they have honored the terms.

The Reagan administration could not consider recommending ratification unless "verification improvements were made and U.S. com-

Gorbachev has said the Soviet moratorium will end Aug. 8, one year after it began.

Tax negotiations progress

By JIM LUTHER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional tax negotiators neared their first tentative decisions Friday night on what should go into a compromise overhaul bill and weighed whether tax rates should be slashed next Jan. 1, six months ahead of the plans.

Senate bills — including rates and Individual Retirement Accounts — but made no decisions. Another all-day meeting is planned Saturday.

Members indicated the panel is moving in the direction of:

- Raising standard deductions and personal exemptions the way the Senate bill would. This would mean that when fully in effect, the standard deductions would be $5,000 for couples filing jointly, $3,000 for singles, $4,400 for heads of household and $2,500 for married people filing separately. The personal exemption would be $2,000 for all but the wealthiest people.
- Allowing deductible IRAs for all workers not covered by a company pension and by millions of those who are covered by less valuable company plans. For example, a worker whose employer makes a $1,000 annual pension contribution could qualify for a $1,000 deductible IRA. The Senate bill would allow deductible IRAs only for workers not covered by the conference, said the negotiators were close to approving the lower tax rates in the Senate bill as the starting point for writing the compromise plan. But House delegates said repeatedly that will not foreclose having higher rates if necessary to help middle-income taxpayers.

The conference, meeting behind closed doors, discussed 23 major points of dispute between the

President seeks unified action against Pretoria

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Faced with growing public criticism of his South Africa policy, President Reagan searched Friday for some unified action the United States and its European allies could take to express displeasure with the white-minority Pretoria government without imposing new economic sanctions.

next week to discuss possible joint actions with leaders of the European Community.

"Unilateral steps would pale in relation to what we could do in concert with our allies, and that's what we intend to do," Speakes said, making clear that Reagan's address on South Africa on Tuesday was not the administration's final word on the issue.

"This is a critical point in time, and it is important for us to meet and consult with allies on the issues that face southern Africa," Speakes said.

Sen. Richard Lugar, Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, who has sought unsuccessfully to persuade Reagan not to reiterate his opposition to sanctions in his speech, took the administration's new line as an indication that criticism of the address was having an impact on policy.

"resist this emotional clamor for punitive sanctions."

On Thursday, however, following stinging attacks from at home and abroad, the state dept reporters he hadn't "closed any doors" to new sanctions.

One step under consideration is a move to freeze out white South African officials by denying them visas to travel to the United States or Western Europe.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes announced that Assistant Secretary of State Chester A. Crocker, the administration's top African affairs specialist, will travel to London to discuss possible joint actions with leaders of the European Community.

"Unilateral steps would pale in relation to what we could do in concert with our allies, and that's what we intend to do," Speakes said, making clear that Reagan's address on South Africa on Tuesday was not the administration's final word on the issue.

"This is a critical point in time, and it is important for us to meet and consult with allies on the issues that face southern Africa," Speakes said.

Jacques Chaban-Delmas, who holds the largely ceremonial post of president of the French National Assembly, said after a brief meeting with Reagan on Friday, "I am fully agreed that we should work together, and the French government is ready to act."

"I think this is to the credit of the president. That he listened loud and clear to our allies, to people on the (Capitol) Hill on both sides of the aisle," the Indiana Republican said on ABC's "Good Morning America" program. "I think that he was probably genuinely surprised that some of his remarks had this kind of reaction."

In his speech, Reagan said, "We and our allies cannot dictate to the government of a self-sovereign nation, nor should be try." And he urged Congress and the European allies to Speakes, trying to draw distinction between "punitive, economic sanctions," which he said Reagan opposes, and "other sanctions that are not punitive economic sanctions," suggested then that the administration might consider denying landing rights to South African airlines as one form of the latter.

But on Friday, Speakes discouraged speculation that that particular action was likely. Other sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the British government of

Groups fail to make delivery

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Leaders of two groups opposed to the Mormon Church tried Friday to hand Mormon leaders a proclamation branding the faith as non-Christian, but gave up after finding the doors to the church office building locked.

"I believe Mormon Theology needs to be torn down because it is an abomination before God," said Ed Decker, founder of Saints Alive in Jesus, a group comprised mostly of former Mormons.

Ex-Mormon Christian Alliance Director Richard Baer said he will return on Aug. 8 and try to deliver the proclamation and petitions signed by 20,548 people to leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Shultz, Soviet set meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz will meet with a senior Soviet diplomat on Monday to prepare for future high-level talks that may lead to a superpower summit meeting, State Department officials said Friday.

Shultz will meet with the State Department with Aleksandr Bessmertnykh, the Soviet foreign minister officially in charge of relations with the United States.

The two are expected to prepare for talks that Shultz is likely to hold this autumn with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze when the two attend a United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York.

The United States has been seeking to schedule a summit, which both leaders pledged to hold as a follow up to their session in Geneva last November. However, the Soviets have declined to name a date, officials have said.

Goldwater to go home today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater is expected to leave Walter Reed Army Medical Center today, following several days of tests for abdominal pain, a spokesman said Friday.

Goldwater, 77, was admitted to the hospital Wednesday morning after complaining of indigestion. His office quoted doctors as saying the discomfort may have stemmed from a late-night dinner the previous evening.

Jim Ferguson, the senator's press secretary, said Friday that Goldwater was free to leave but decided to remain overnight in the event further testing was needed.

Director Minnelli, 83, dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Director Vincente Minnelli, whose movies "An American in Paris," "Gigi" and "Last for Life" garnered 16 Academy Awards, died late Friday, he was 83.

Minnelli, the father of entertainer Liza Minnelli, had just finished eating supper when he went to sleep and never woke up, said his wife, Lee.

Minnelli had been in and out of Cedars Sinai Medical Center for the past year, suffering from pneumonia and emphysema, said hospital spokesman Ron Wise.

Today's weather

Not much change over the weekend

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

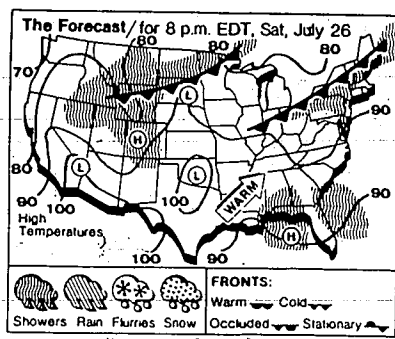

Today, considerable clouds and chance of showers or thundershowers continuing. Highs mid-70s to the low 80s. Lows tonight 50 to 55. Winds mostly westerly 10 to 20 mph. Sunday, partly cloudy. A slight chance of showers. Highs near 80. Lows tonight 45 to 50.

Idaho: Fair to partly cloudy through Sunday. Widely scattered showers or thundershowers Sunday. Lows in the 50s to low 60s. Highs mostly 80s.

Nevada: Mostly sunny today. Fair tonight with thundershowers ending and partial clearing. Mostly sunny on Sunday. Highs tonight mid-70s to upper 80s. Lows tonight mid-40s to low 50s. Highs Sunday upper 70s to upper 80s.

Synopsis: The National Weather Service says a weak upper-level low pressure system moving into the state, combined with the abundant subtropical moisture already over the southern half of Idaho, has produced mostly cloudy conditions over the entire state.

Thundershowers developed Friday over the southeast and east central regions along the Idaho-Nevada border and in the extreme northern section of the state.

The highest temperature in the state Friday was 80 degrees at both Weiser and Pima, while Elk City had the low of 33 degrees.

Detroit strike comes to end

DETROIT (AP) — Bargainers for the city and a union representing 7,000 drinking municipal workers reached a tentative agreement on a three-year contract Friday night, ending the 10-day-old walkout.

Officials on both sides disclosed the agreement shortly before midnight, but gave no details.

Negotiators were to meet today to work out some details, said AFSCME bargainer Al Garrett.

The strike by members of Council 25 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees halted collection of 5 million pounds of garbage a day and idled bus service for 200,000 daily riders. It also disrupted local preparations for the Aug. 5 state primary election.

OAU to condemn Britain, U.S.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Ministers of the Organization of African Unity drew up proposals Friday condemning British and U.S. policies toward South Africa, but they did not call for African sanctions against that white-led nation.

Conference sources said the OAU's Council of Ministers met late into the night but delegates failed to agree on strong action against South Africa. The ministerial draft resolution will be submitted for approval to the annual OAU summit meeting that begins Monday and is expected to last a week.

A leader of South Africa's outlawed African National Congress, speaking to reporters at the OAU meeting, said Britain and the United States are becoming South Africa's "partners in crime."

Chile bomb leaves 24 hurt

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A bomb placed in a garbage can exploded Friday night at a busy intersection a few yards from the Presidential Palace, wounding at least 24 people, 10 seriously, authorities said.

Police said most of the wounded were either entering or leaving a bus on Santiago's main boulevard.

No one claimed responsibility for the explosion, but authorities quickly blamed terrorists.

Officials at Santiago's Central Emergency Hospital said 24 people had been admitted, 10 of them seriously wounded, and 12 others were treated for shock.

Hostage Jenco to be set free

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Beirut newspaper said Saturday the shadowy Islamic Jihad organization had served notice it would soon release kidnapped American hostage Lawrence Jenco "because of his deteriorating health."

The independent an-Nahar daily said the Iranian-affiliated group declared its intention to let Jenco, 31, of Joliet, Ill., in a typewritten statement delivered to the newspaper office in Moslem west Beirut shortly after midnight.

An-Nahar published a polaroid photograph of the Roman Catholic priest on its front page and said it received the picture in the same envelope that contained Jihad's statement.

Members of striking union vote to take pay, benefit cuts

PORTLAND (AP) — Members of two unions representing 7,500 striking Weyerhaeuser employees voted to accept wage and benefit cuts proposed by the timber company, the union said Friday.

The International Woodworkers of America members voted 2,833 to 1,458 to ratify the two-year contract, said Vernon "Red" Russell, president of the union's Western Council.

About 6,500 IWA members walked out June 16 at 22 Weyerhaeuser mills and logging operations in Washington and Oregon. They were joined by 1,000 Weyerhaeuser employees who are members of the Dumber, Production and Industrial Workers' union. That union has not scheduled a vote on the company's offer and remains on strike.

Under the contract approved by the IWA, the workers will get a profit-sharing plan in exchange for about $4 an hour less in wages and benefits.

Weyerhaeuser had said if workers rejected the proposal, the company would close its woods operations and some mills and hire replacement workers.

The strike was bitter, within the union and in its relationship with the Tacoma, Wash.-based company, Russell said.

"We're going to spend the next 10 to 20 years trying to bring this union back together," he said. "It is important to heal the wounds with management as soon as possible."

Weyerhaeuser's executive vice president, Charles Bingham, said in Seattle that with the concessions the company will stay in the logging business and reopen two mills.

"We have an increasing volume of timber to be logged in the next 10 to 20 years," he said. "Our intention is to stay here in the community and be competitive."

IWA picket lines went down after the ratification was announced, and Russell said union members could return to work immediately. But he said the IWA has two weeks to get everyone back on the job.

Shortly before the announcement, about 400 strikers and sympathizers marched on the state Capitol in Olympia, Wash., chanting, cheering and shouting down Gov. Booth Gardner when he said the workers must show restraint and accept changes in the industry.

Gardner, a Democrat elected in 1984 with strong labor backing, is a former Weyerhaeuser director and the stepson of Norton Clapp, a longtime chairman of the board and a grandson of one of the founders of the forest products firm.

Also on Friday, Weyerhaeuser Co. announced healthy increases in corporate earnings, which one angry union official called obscene.

Weyerhaeuser said earnings were up 15 percent during the quarter that ended June 29, and up 21 percent for the first half of fiscal 1988. Earnings for the six months ending June 29 were $18.8 million, or 77 cents per share, on net sales of $2.8 billion, compared to $37.9 million, or 65 cents per share.

control, but in the other important regional and bilateral issues that too often are the subject of tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union."

Development of any nationwide defense system by either side now is prohibited by the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. However, the United States has suggested it may unilaterally reinstate certain provisions of the agreement to permit it to go forward with the SDI program or break out of the treaty altogether, which it can do by giving six months' notice of its intentions.

The New York Times reported Friday that a draft of Reagan's response offered the Soviets a choice of adhering to the existing ABM treaty — with the implicit threat that the United States might withdraw from it at any time — or agreeing to deployment of a defensive system as early as 1993.

One administration source, while refusing to confirm any date, sought to portray the president's response as an offer to delay deployment until the early 1990s, while conceding there are practically no prospects of building an SDI system before that.

An unidentified official quoted in the Times story said, "This is a bargaining process, as anyone who reads the letter can tell, and the president is laying down his first card."

Other sources said the letter addressed a range of arms reduction proposals as well, but they refused to provide further details.

company plans; the House voted to keep IRA deductions of up to $2,000 for all workers.

Tilting tax relief more toward middle-income people. That would be financed by raising rates above the levels of the Senate bill or by boosting the burden on corporations.

A major problem facing the Senate negotiators is that new figures indicate their bill is $2 billion short of raising the same revenue as present law. Rostenkowski said senators "are earnest about picking up the loss by closing corporate loopholes."

The timing of the tax cut that the compromise bill would provide has become a major point of concern, especially among House negotiators. The concern, Rep. Donald Pease, D-Ohio, told reporters, is about "actual fairness, perceived fairness and from the viewpoint of the economy."

Either bill being considered by the conference committee would sharply reduce individual and corporate tax rates and take away or reduce some deductions and exclusions. The Senate version would mean lower rates and fewer deductions than would the House bill; the House plan would impose a bigger burden on corporations and produce bigger individual tax reductions.

For individuals, the House bill would have a top rate of 38 percent, compared with 50 percent under existing law. Like the House bill, the Senate measure would tax most people at a 15 percent rate. Most other taxpayers would pay a 27 percent rate, although many upper-income earners would pay a maximum 32 percent and, in some cases, even more.

Members in both houses have expressed concern that either bill would take away existing tax benefits in six months before reducing individual rates. For millions of people, that would mean considerably smaller tax cuts than expected for 1987. In many cases it would produce sizable tax increases.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher objected to cutting off air travel to and from South Africa.

"We want to target the sanctions against those who are in the decision-making process," she said. "The things that we would be discussing would be along the line of visas and travel to the U.S., consular operations, things along that line."

Meanwhile, speculation increased Friday on who Reagan would pick as the new U.S. ambassador to South Africa. State Department officials have said that Secretary of State George Shultz is pushing for a quick decision.

However, both State Department and White House officials said Friday that no decision had been made.

Terence Todman, the U.S. ambassador to Denmark since 1983 who is said to be highly regarded by foreign service professionals, has been mentioned as a possible selection. An expert on African policy, asking "not to be identified," said Todman would be "an excellent choice."

Another one of the more experienced black U.S. ambassadors is Edward Perkins, the U.S. envoy to Liberia.

Speculation has centered on black diplomats because the administration last week appeared ready to nominate Robert J. Brown, a black businessman from North Carolina. Selecting a black would be seen as a symbolic gesture to Pretoria's white minority government emphasizing U.S. opposition to South-Africa's apartheid policies of racial segregation.

State concedes right-to-work law includes faulty provisions

POCATELLO (AP) — The state conceded Friday that a number of provisions in Idaho's new right-to-work banning compulsory union membership were invalid because the labor relations issues fall under the jurisdiction of the federal government.

But at a hearing on the issue before 6th District Judge William Woodland, Assistant Attorney General Mark Thompson contended poor draftsmanship of the measure was not sufficient to prompt the judge to void the entire law.

Organized labor, which earlier this year lost an attempt to block enforcement of the law pending its legal challenges, immediately hailed the concessions as a major victory in its campaign to keep Idaho from becoming the nation's 21st right-to-work state.

"We've been telling Idaho voters for months now that this so-called right-to-work law has serious legal problems and this latest action by the attorney general proves our point," said John Greenfield, a Boise attorney and member of the anti-right-to-work Idahoans Against Deception.

AFL-CIO Attorney Mark Balfour said that every section of the right-to-work law was either pre-empted by federal law, or overly vague with the exception of that clause prohibiting union security agreements.

Under questioning from the judge, Balfour said the National Labor Relations Act governs all aspects of labor-management behavior, and said the only thing the Idaho Legislature could have addressed was the question of mandatory unionism.

Patricia McDermott, who also represented the union, said after the hearing that she felt her client's case had been well made. "We've proven irreparable harm overwhelmingly," she said. "As far as proving that we win the case, they've already agreed to 30 percent of our case."

Thompson agreed with labor leaders that a number of areas covered by the state law are prohibited by federal statutes.

Among them were state prohibitions against:

- Dues checkoff arrangements between unions and employers.

- Hiring halls or an access fee to these halls.
- Strikes or picketing for the sole purpose of influencing employers to sign union security agreements.

Thompson also said the state would agree that the right-to-work law would not cover airline or railroad employees or "federal enclaves."

With the concessions, Greenfield said there was now serious doubt that the law was drafted by the Attorney General's office, a claim that has consistently been made by its backers.

The hearing was originally scheduled for earlier in the week, but Woodland delayed it for two days to familiarize himself with the case.

The lawsuit, which has bounced back and forth between Pocatello and Boise in a feud over jurisdiction, was filed at almost the same time the Republican-dominated Legislature took its final vote in January 1985 to enact the law over the veto of Democratic Gov. John Evans.

Creech awaits word on execution ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Condemned murderer Thomas Eugene Creech, the former church sexton who at one time claimed a role in 40 killings, waited on Friday for word from the U.S. Supreme Court on whether he will become the first man executed in Idaho in 29 years.

But Creech's attorney said he was told by a law clerk for the court that the justices would not take up the matter until Monday.

On Thursday, a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco stayed next Tuesday's scheduled execution, pending a full review of Creech's appeal.

But state Solicitor General Lynn Thomas quickly petitioned the nation's highest court to vacate that stay. Justice William Rehnquist turned the request over to the full court for consideration.

Defense attorney Rolf Kehne on Thursday called the development "ominous," saying, "The U.S.

Supreme Court is free to make new law. They're sometimes hard to predict."

But after talking to the Supreme Court law clerk on Friday, Kehne said he was "extremely confident that we are OK."

Creech, 35, was sentenced to die 4½ years ago for the 1981 murder of fellow prison inmate David Jensen, who was clubbed to death with a sock filled with flashlight batteries.

Although he pleaded guilty to that capital crime and asked to be executed during the first several months after the slaying, Creech has since fought to remain alive. In his appeal, he contended that he entered the guilty plea under duress and should be allowed to withdraw it and stand trial for the slaying. He has claimed he killed Jensen in self defense.

Supreme Court ruling that appellate courts should screen cases to make sure there were legitimate issues for debate on appeal.

Lannen fund established

BOISE (AP) — A victim's rights organization has established a scholarship fund in memory of Sen. Vern Lannen, who died in a logging accident in June.

Vanguard Inc. representatives said in a press release that Lannen's efforts resulted in overwhelming passage of the Idaho Crime Victims Compensation bill in 1986. Lannen described the bill as "one that could redeem the Legislature in the public's eyes."

Contributions to the Vern Lannen Scholarship Fund may be made through the Idaho-First-National Bank in Boise.

Government analysts predicting slow economic growth for Idaho

BOISE (AP) — While the recent decline in the federal discount interest rate could spark some positive moves in the state, government economic analysts are expecting only "very sluggish economic growth" in Idaho over the next year.

In the monthly update issued by the Division of Financial Management, analysts cited forecasted minimum growth in personal income and employment to underscore their continued pessimism about the state's economic fortunes.

While nominal personal income is expected to rise 3.7 percent over the next 12 months, the most recent projections also show inflation running at 3.2 percent during the same period.

This translates into real growth of only 0.5 percent, the update said. "Idaho employment will grow by less than 2,000 jobs in the coming year, or by 0.6 percent."

This forecast is consistent with a stable Idaho unemployment rate in June of 6.5 percent and only minor increases in the number of electricity service hookups by Idaho Power in the last year, the analysts said.

The lack of economic activity this spring was reflected in the fact that receipts from the first two months of the penny increase in the state sales tax fell short of scaled back expectations.

The division reported that additional sales tax revenues during the period totaled only $9.3 million. That was $700,000 below the projection, that had already been scaled back by as much as $1 million to reflect the overall weakness of the Idaho economy.

The outlook into next summer could improve somewhat, the update said. If lower home mortgage interest rates and foreign currency exchange rates result from the Federal Reserve Board's decision earlier this month to cut the interest rate it charges member banks to 6 percent.

But the analysts indicated there were too many other negative factors forcing economic stagnation on the nation to allow much optimism to be injected into the state outlook.

Although the value of the dollar has fallen dramatically in the past year, the update pointed out that the decline has not been spread evenly in relation to the currencies of some major U.S. trading partners, and that situation could have a major impact on Idaho's critical agriculture sector.

"For agriculture, the dollar has remained quite strong against competitors such as Canada, Australia and Argentina, as well as many of our developing-nation customers like Korea," the analysts said. "Combined with less than aggressive use of existing agricultural export subsidy programs, the beneficial effects on U.S. agriculture from increased trade have not materialized."

With last month producing the first deficit in agricultural trade for the U.S. in two decades, the update said the federal decision to cut wheat price support loan rates another 5 percent to $2.23 a bushel to make them more competitive internationally "can only lower farm income further."

Delegation asks for time on feedlot rules

BOISE (AP) — Members of Idaho's congressional delegation are asking the Environmental Protection Agency for additional time for industry representatives to submit their ideas on proposed feedlot regulations.

"Before we go making changes . . . we need to give the industry a more reasonable chance to give their indispensable input," said Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho. "Our cattle and dairy operations are in enough trouble as it is."

"Regulations are already heavy on Idaho industry," said U.S. Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho. "More regulation deserves more attention."

Symms and Craig said in a press release Thursday that they will ask the EPA to extend the comment period, which is now set to end Aug. 1.

Their comments echoed opinions expressed at EPA hearings in Idaho earlier this month.

Leaders of Idaho's dairy and cattle industry blasted the federal government for failing to solicit their suggestions on proposals for controlling runoff from confined livestock operations.

The EPA's proposal would, among other things, require owners of certain livestock operations to build a retention pond that would hold runoff water under the worst of conditions.

Representatives from the state, cattle and dairy associations, and a professor from Oregon State University who has been involved in feedlot water runoff for more than 20 years testified that the proposal was too strict, difficult to understand, and placed an unnecessary burden on feedlot owners.

Woman sues over delivery

BOISE (AP) — A woman carrying a dead fetus who was forced to go through labor without pain medication is alleging a Rexburg physician and Madison Memorial Hospital were negligent, says a lawsuit filed in federal court.

The lawsuit was filed Thursday by Julie and Scott Terry, formerly of Utah and now residents of Washington, against Dr. Brad Spaulding and Madison Memorial Hospital.

"The lawsuit alleges that Spaulding was negligent in failing to diagnose complications in Mrs. Terry's pregnancy," and says he failed to recognize the fetus suffered from intrauterine fetal growth retardation.

"Had Spaulding made an accurate diagnosis, the Terrys could have hired a specialist and received treatment to ensure a viable birth, the lawsuit said.

Candidate quits

POCATELLO (AP) — A Republican legislative candidate, who won a spot on the November ballot with a write-in primary victory, had dropped out of the general election campaign because of the GOP state party platform.

"I have some serious discrepancies with the Republican platform this year," Steve Wheeler said Friday in announcing his decision not to challenge incumbent Democratic Rep. Johnson of Pocatello.

It will be up to the local Republican legislative district committee to select a replacement for Wheeler on the November ballot.

Administration boosts '87-economic forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, in a preliminary review of the economy at mid-year, has trimmed its growth estimate for 1986 but substantially boosted projections for economic activity next year, officials said Friday.

The administration's forecast, which will be revised before being issued, has reduced its projection for growth this year, as measured by the gross national product, to 2.6 percent, down almost a full percentage point from its February estimate of 3.4 percent growth.

This revision was expected because the economy from January through June has performed far below the administration's original forecasts.

But for 1987, the administration is projecting that the economy will come surging back at a robust annual rate of 4.5 percent.

While private analysts generally agreed with the administration's scaled-down prospects for this year, many dismissed the 1987 outlook as totally unrealistic.

"It is not only inaccurate, it is bizarre," said Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm. "The economy doesn't have a ghost of a chance of getting to the growth number they are forecasting for 1987. The obvious reason they are doing this is to make the budget numbers look better."

Evans said he was forecasting the economy in 1987 would grow at a rate of just 1.7 percent. Evans said his projection, which is close to those of many other private analysts, would add around $45 billion to the 1987 budget deficit above the administration's figures.

Among the projections in the administration's draft document:

- Inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, will rise just 1.3 percent this year, the best showing since 1964, with the improvement coming from the plunge in oil prices.
- The administration forecast the CPI would rise a modest 2.8 percent next year. In February, the administration forecast a 1986 inflation rate of 3.5 percent and 4.1 percent for 1987.

Workers load Georgia farmer's pickup with donated hay for livestock at distribution center near Atlanta

Drought hot line rings loud on first day

By The Associated Press

A government hot line for drought-plagued farmers was flooded with calls on its first day Friday as more hay headed South to feed starving livestock, but one state official said federal programs are only a "band-aid."

— Parts of South Carolina, Virginia and Florida have been declared disaster areas because of the weeks-long drought, and a dozen Tennessee counties have asked for federal aid. More than a million chickens have died in the Southern heat. Some market officials linked the drought to a rise in poultry prices.

Damage estimates from the sizzling weather exceed $1.6 billion and heat has been blamed for 44 deaths since July 1: 19 in Georgia; four each in North Carolina, Missouri, Indiana and Illinois; two each in Alabama, Kentucky and South Carolina and one each in Virginia, Louisiana and Michigan.

South Carolina Gov. Dick Riley on Friday asked churches and synagogues in his state to pray for rain.

In Washington, operators at the hot line fielded calls from farmers.

"We've had lots of calls from people who need hay and lots of calls from people who want to donate hay," said Betsy Bailey, one of the operators answering the hot line. She said hundreds of people have called since the line opened Friday morning.

"There are people who are in hard times, who don't really have the hay to give, who are offering," said McClung. "Some people are willing to drive a truck of their own if we point

More than bales in hay

ATLANTA (AP) — After waiting all night for some hay to help out his famished herd, farmer Henry Sewell got more than a bunch of bales: He got a personal message from a Wisconsin family.

"In one of the bales of hay was a card out of a feed sack that said 'Fellow farmers. Hope this helps. From the McPhersons of Lavalie, Wisc.'" said Sewell, a farmer from Newman, Ga.

"When it got daylight I went around and got all the signatures I could to sign and I'm going to send it back to them to thank them, from all the farmers," Sewell said. "I got 52 signatures and I don't reckon I got half of them."

Back in Wisconsin, Lillian McPherson got a bit misty when she heard a news tape of Sewell's comments.

"We're very touched by his gratitude," McPherson said. "And I'm sure all the farmers in this area will be pleased to hear how thankful they are. But I've got tears in my eyes after listening to Mr. Sewell."

them in the right direction." Some folks have suggestions, such as moving the high grass alongside Southern roads and using that for fodder, Ms. Bailey said. Several farmers have asked about a sort of "cattle adoption" plan to ship animals out of parched areas to farms in the Midwest and North. Farmers from other parts of the country have called to offer space in their barns and fields for Southern cows.

Many callers offer to donate money, which the Agriculture Department cannot accept, Ms. Bailey said. Callers will be referred to charitable organizations, she said.

The Agriculture Department hot line number is 1-800-433-6703. It will operate from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m. MDT Monday to Saturday, probably for two weeks.

throughout the South, with shipments arriving in Georgia and the Florida Panhandle.

Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Thomas Irvin, who waited with about 100 other farmers for the hay delivery at Atlanta, praised the "baleouts," but said existing U.S. Department of Agriculture programs will not reverse effects of the drought.

"What the federal government has done now, really, is probably a little bit less than a band aid," Irvin said. "It really doesn't anywhere close to cover the sore. Our wounds

Air Force honors Onizuka

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force is renaming one of its space division facilities in honor of Lt. Col. Ellison S. Onizuka, who died in the Jan. 28 explosion of the space shuttle Challenger.

Air Force Secretary Edward C. Aldridge Jr. said Friday the Sunnyvale Air Force Station in Sunnyvale, Calif., will be renamed the Onizuka Air Force Station during ceremonies to be scheduled later this year.

The Sunnyvale facility is home of the Air Force's Satellite Control Facility, which is a unit of the Space Division of the Air Force Systems Command. The facility is responsible for command and control of spacecraft and also supports space shuttle flights through a world-wide network of satellite tracking stations.

Arizonans challenge Rehnquist statements on vote activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three men on Friday challenged statements by Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist that he played no part personally in trying to disqualify Democratic minority voters in local elections in Phoenix, Ariz., in the early 1960s. Charles W. Pine, a former Democratic state chairman in Arizona, said Rehnquist headed a "flying squad" of "eager beaver" Republicans challenging the literacy and credentials of voters.

Pine said he saw Rehnquist at a predominantly black and Hispanic polling place in Phoenix in 1962 or 1964 challenge the credentials of two blacks waiting in line to vote.

Rehnquist "approached a black gentleman and said 'Are you qualified to vote?' He (the black man) quietly left the line, and it happened again," Pine recounted.

Pine, now a public relations man in Phoenix, described Rehnquist at the time as "a young eager beaver, a highly partisan Republican who was going to try and stop as many Democratic votes as he could."

In 1971, when Rehnquist was nominated by President Nixon and confirmed to the Supreme Court by the Senate, he said he directed ballot security programs for Republicans in Phoenix from 1958 through 1964 but denied taking part himself in challenging any minority voters.

"In none of these years did I personally engage in challenging the qualifications of any voters," Rehnquist said in a 1971 letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Rehnquist has been nominated now by President Reagan to succeed Warren E. Burger as the nation's 16th chief justice. Senate Judiciary Committee confirmation hearings are scheduled to begin Tuesday.

Toni House, spokeswoman for the Supreme Court, said Rehnquist would have no comment on his Phoenix activities.

Rehnquist's version of what took place more than 20 years ago in Phoenix also was challenged by the Rev. Snelson W. McGriff, who said he saw Rehnquist question a man waiting to vote.

McGriff, who is black, said Rehnquist asked the man in front of McGriff to read a card, as an apparent test of literacy.

McGriff said Rehnquist then backed away from asking McGriff to read the card because "he must have seen something in my eyes. I was going to push my fist right in his mouth." McGriff asked to read the card, McGriff said. He said he thought the incident occurred in 1964.

Literacy tests were banned by the 1964 Civil Rights Act and had been allowed in Arizona before then if they did not amount to harassment.

Rehnquist testified in 1971 that he opposed "any scattering use of literacy challenges." He said he acted in 1962 to stop a Republican vote challenger from demanding that voters read passages from the Constitution as they waited in line.

McGriff and Pine were interviewed by telephone by The Associated Press.

A third man, former federal prosecutor James J. Brosnahan, could not be reached immediately. But he was quoted in news accounts as saying Rehnquist was among a group challenging minority voters in the early 1960s in Phoenix.

The accounts by the three witnesses were first reported by the Nation Institute, a liberal organization affiliated with The Nation magazine.

Brosnahan, now a lawyer in San Francisco, was quoted as saying, "My best recollection is that he (Rehnquist) was challenging voters. But that was 1962 and this is 1986."

Brosnahan, a Democrat, was an assistant U.S. attorney then who was sent to investigate harassment complaints at a Phoenix polling place.

Pine said he did not recognize Rehnquist at the time of the polling incident in the early 1960s but later identified him from photographs and seeing him in public appearances.

Describing himself as "sort of a (Democratic) Party historian," Pine said he was permitted to testify if the Senate Judiciary Committee subpoenaed him.

A Democratic congressional source, who asked not to be identified, said Friday all three men probably will be asked to testify.

Pine and Brosnahan did not come forward in 1971. McGriff submitted an affidavit then, that said Rehnquist challenged voters in the early 1960s.

Nation's military services report decline in numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The combined active-duty strength of the nation's military services dropped below a year-ago level for the second consecutive month in June, the Pentagon said Friday.

As of June 30, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines had a combined active-duty strength of 2,143,030, down 925 from the previous month and 8,206 fewer than June 30, 1985.

The June decline is even larger than that recorded in May, when the four services ended the month with a total strength that was roughly 5,200 individuals below the same period in 1985.

The May decrease marked the first time since President Reagan assumed office that military strength had not grown on a year-to-year basis.

The Pentagon has attributed most of the dip to the effects of the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law, which forced the services to offer "early-outs" to several thousand soldiers, airmen, sailors and Marines to hold down fiscal 1986 spending.

The latest monthly assessment shows the Army lost the most men and women in June and now has 13,662 fewer soldiers on active duty than it did in June 1985.

The Navy and Air Force are still above year-ago levels, but the Marine Corps is down by 2,000 men and women compared to 1985.

As of June 30, the Army had 766,650 men and women on active duty, compared to 770,904 in May and 780,312 in June 1985.

The Navy had 571,753 individuals on active duty as of June 30, up slightly from the 570,973 reported in May and still ahead of the 568,781 reported in June 1985.

The Marine Corps' strength stood at 196,225 in June, compared to 196,273 in May and 198,245 reported for the same period last year.

The Air Force reported a strength of 608,402, up by almost 2,600 compared to the 605,805 reported in May and still well above the 603,898 reported in June 1985.

Jury convicts militant party leader

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal jury Friday convicted White Patriot Party leader F. Glenn Miller Jr. and his second-in-command of operating a paramilitary organization in violation of a federal court consent decree.

A former Klansman testified during the trial, which began Monday, that the group held frequent training sessions on firearms and hand-to-hand combat.

The jury began its six hours of deliberations Friday morning, finding Miller guilty of two counts of violating the consent decree.

Co-defendant Stephen Miller, who is not related to Glenn Miller, was convicted of one count.

The consent order signed in January 1985 settled a class-action civil lawsuit filed on behalf of North Carolina blacks against the White Patriot Party, then known as the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. The lawsuit alleged that the group was harassing blacks.

About a dozen White Patriot Party supporters were in court when the verdict was read. One woman hid her face in her hands.

At the request of the defense counsel, the jury of 11 whites and one black was polled and affirmed the verdicts.

Bush departs for Europe, Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush begins a whirlwind tour of the Mideast on Sunday with Arab-Israeli peace prospects at the top of the agenda, but the thorny issue of alleged Israeli spying on the United States is expected to come up.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, were leaving Washington on Friday night for Frankfurt, West Germany, where they planned to rest before going on to Jerusalem for three days of meetings, socializing and sightseeing.

Bush will also visit Jordan and Egypt before returning to Washington on Aug. 5.

Aides to Bush and other Reagan administration sources said the main aim of the trip was to emphasize U.S. interest in moving toward peace in the region, with the talks last week between Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and Morocco's King Hassan II expected to be a prime topic of discussion.

Regarding alleged Israeli espionage in the United States, a top Bush aide said, "I am sure the vice president will be asked about it, but it is nothing that he has on his agenda to raise."

A senior administration official, asked if alleged Israeli spying and theft of cluster bomb technology would be discussed, said, "Beyond question."

The officials spoke on condition that they not be identified.

They said that although the vice president's schedule was subject to possible change it was unlikely he would go to Rabat to meet with Hassan or to Damascus to confer with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Titanic explorers sailing for port

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — Scientists, technicians and Navy officers completed their 12-day exploration of the Titanic and sailed for home Friday with more photos and videotape of the shipwreck.

The deep-sea research team from the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution and from the Navy was expected to arrive in this Cape Cod port Monday at 10 a.m., said spokeswoman Anne I. Rabushka.

Researchers left the site 450 miles southeast of Newfoundland on Thursday after completing the 11th and final dive in the three-man submarine Alvin.

Chief scientist Robert Ballard, who relayed details of each day's dive to reporters via ship-to-shore telephone conversations with Woods Hole officials, won't talk to reporters until he arrives in port, Ms. Rabushka said.

A welcoming celebration is planned at Woods Hole on Monday, but the new photographs and videotape won't be released until Ballard holds a news conference in Washington on Wednesday, she said.

One batch of film, including 12 color slides and a three-minute, 10-second videotape, was flown ashore and released to the media July 18.

They included up-close shots of the coral-encrusted deck, leetles of rust and a dangling crystal chandelier.

Woods Hole officials said they do not know how many photos or videotapes Ballard would release. The expedition produced thousands of still photos and miles of videotape.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): A new acquaintance has ideas that are not to your liking, so steer clear of this person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TO DAY... he or she will have every ability to comprehend whatever is of a modern nature and should have education slanted along such lines, so don't try to force your progeny to stick to old-fashioned methods and types of interests. It might waste a promising individual.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a curious Saturday for on the one hand it is not advisable that you get into any arguments or confrontations, while working finds you achieving long-range plans.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Get into creative work you like to do and gain more success with them. Show more affection for family.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Forget that little trip you want to take and get busy improving the conditions at your home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid arguments with anyone in business and get busy shopping.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Know what your practical aims are and go after them and don't let a pazzner tag along.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Avoid a co-worker who is in the mood to argue. Make some fascinating new contacts and learn new innovations.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Handle your practical affairs with the aid of a business expert.

Tennis star weds her longtime admirer

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Hana Mandlikova, the world's third-ranked woman tennis player, took a break from training Friday to marry a longtime admirer in a brief ceremony at Prague's old town hall.

The marriage of Mandlikova, 24, and Jan Sedlak surprised everybody. "They suddenly decided to do it," said the bride's father, Vilem Mandlik, who said he learned of their plans Thursday.

Sedlak left Czechoslovakia at age 15 in 1968 to live with his mother in Australia and resides in the Netherlands, where Mandlikova trains with Betty Stove, the former Dutch star.

Sedlak had been an admirer of Mandlikova for eight years and frequently followed her on the women's tennis circuit.

The official CTK news agency said Mandlikova opted to practice for Saturday's Federation Cup semifinals match against Argentina instead of attending the wedding banquet.

Hope joins Penn State festivities with quips

HERSHHEY, Pa. (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope headlined Penn State's "Century of Excellence" in intercollegiate football, quipping that Coach Joe Paterno didn't enjoy his honeymoon until he studied the films.

Hope was joined by former All-American tackle Mike Reid, who gave up pro football with the Cincinnati Bengals to concentrate on music and won a Grammy award in 1983 for writing the Ronnie Milsap hit "Stranger in My House."

Thursday's black-tie affair, celebrating Penn State's 100 years of football competition, was to repeat Friday night in Pittsburgh and Saturday in Philadelphia, with all three shows were videotaped for a television special.

Woman kept alive for fetus survival

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A hospital, caught in a dispute between the husband of a brain-dead woman and the father of her 21-week-old fetus, won a court order Friday to keep the woman alive so the fetus has a chance of survival.

Superior Court Judge William M. Fleming Jr. granted University Hospital's request for an order to continue life support for Donna Plazzi, a 25-year-old Augusta woman hospitalized since an apparent drug overdose June 27.

Her husband, Robert Plazzi, asked hospital officials July 16 to turn off her life support systems. But David Hean, who claims to be the father of the fetus, asked them to keep the woman alive.

Doctors have determined that Mrs. Plazzi's brain has stopped functioning, leaving her clinically dead. She is being kept alive by respirator and intravenous feeding, according to court papers in the case.

Ted Clark, an attorney for the hospital, argued during Friday's court hearing that "the only fundamental right" recognized by the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark Roe vs. Wade abortion decision is a mother's right to privacy.

"Tragically, Mrs. Plazzi is dead," he said. "She has no more right of privacy, so it stands that the state may intervene. . . . The state has an interest in the protection of human life."

The state, represented by Assistant Georgia Attorney General David Fleming, asked the court to dismiss the case, saying that the fetus have no jurisdiction until the courts is viable — sufficiently developed to survive outside the womb. Doctors testified that Mrs. Plazzi's fetus has not reached that point. She is 17 weeks short of full-term pregnancy and four weeks short of the earliest point at which doctors consider a fetus viable.

Ibrahim Mashini, a University Hospital gynecologist, testified that Mrs. Plazzi's fetus has a heartbeat, has developed eyes, arms and legs, and is moving, but its lungs are not developed and it is not viable.

Donna Hughes, senior neurology resident at the hospital, told the judge there is no way to determine the state of neurologic functions in the fetus.

Fleming rejected the state's motion to dismiss the case and immediately granted the hospital's request for an order to maintain life support.

Will said later that the attorney general's office and the state Division of Family and Children Services will decide later whether to appeal. He said the state knows of no custody determination if the fetus survives.

Plazzi, who concedes that he is not the father, left the Richmond County Courthouse after the 45-minute hearing without commenting.

Haden, who also attended the hearing, declined comment except to say, "Just right to life — that's what I say."

Hospital officials issued a statement saying they were pleased with the ruling, but said further comment, including details of how or when Mrs. Plazzi might give birth, would violate a patient's right to privacy.

Wives were too much

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Frederick the elephant, who had been penned for years by seven aggressive she-elephants, has died of a heart attack brought on by stress, his keeper said Friday.

"It was as if he'd given up hope for a decent life after the rough treatment he suffered at the hands of his wives recently," said Leif Nielsen, director of the Gylskud Lion Park zoo in Jutland, west Denmark.

Nielsen said that on Monday three of the female elephants with whom Frederick had shared a yard for years ganged up on him and shoved him into a pond.

"Frederick had always been a bit frail," said Nielsen. "He couldn't fend for himself and never recovered from his bout in the pond."

The 16-year-old, three-ton elephant had to be lifted from the water with a crane. Two veterinarians worked for four days to save Frederick's life, but the pachyderm died Thursday.

Every time Frederick tried to turn his amorous attentions to one female, the others would mob him out of jealousy, said Nielsen.

The zoo is considering acquiring a new, more robust male elephant who can cope with the females and sire offspring.

2 American nuns freed by Sudanese

NEW YORK (AP) — Two American nuns walked 27 miles through the Sudanese countryside after being freed by rebels, a spokeswoman for the Maryknoll religious order said Friday.

Sister Mary Ellen Mertens said in a telephone interview from Maryknoll, N.Y., that Sister Sean Underwood and Sister Nancy Lyons had walked to the Sudanese city of Juba after being set free.

Sister Mertens said the Maryknolls were notified Friday by the U.S. Embassy in Nairobi, Kenya, that the nuns were safe. She said details were sketchy.

The Sudan People's Liberation Army claimed in a clandestine broadcast monitored in Nairobi on Tuesday that they rescued the nuns after they became caught in crossfire during a battle near Juba between government troops and the rebels.

Sister Lyons, a registered nurse, is a Maryknoll nun who has worked in Sudan since 1983. Sister Mertens said. Sister Underwood, whose order is the Medical Missionaries of Mary, works with the Maryknoll nuns in Juba.

Juan Underwood Brooks said she was notified of her sister's release by the State Department. Mrs. Brooks said she was told her 43-year-old sister was rescued by government troops on Thursday.

"She was able to get out of the situation and get home OK, but when her friend went to check on her later on, he found the house ransacked and she and her friends were missing," said Mrs. Brooks from Voorheesville, N.Y.

Shiite zealot mob ransacks embassy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Muslim zealots swarmed over the walls into the Moroccan Embassy on Friday, ransacked the building and burned portraits of King Hassan II to protest his meeting with Israel.

The commander of the Lebanese police guard said there were no casualties. He said the embassy's six-man staff lowered the big Moroccan flag and quietly slipped away in two cars half an hour before the attack, adding: "They must have anticipated what was coming."

Police said the assault climaxed an afternoon demonstration by about 2,000 men and women shouting "Death to America, the great Satan!" "Down with traitor Hassan!" and "Peres will roast in hell!" They were from the Hezbollah, or party of God, the most militant Lebanese Shiite group allied with Iran.

Dozens of the women wore chadors, the black head-to-toe gowns that obscure all but the hands and eyes.

It was the most violent protest so far in the Arab world against the two-day meeting this week of the moderate, pro-Western monarch and Prime Minister Shimon Peres of Israel at Hassan's summer palace in Ifrane, Morocco.

Protesters waved portraits of the fierce-visaged Iranian patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, and burned their fists into the air as they shouted. Then they surged forward, some clambering over the walls and others smashing down the embassy gate.

It was the second attack in two years on an Arab embassy in Moslem west Beirut. The embassy of Saudi Arabia, since closed, was ransacked and set afire in August 1984.

Hezbollah members said then that they attacked the embassy to protest Saudi refusal to grant visas to Lebanese wanting to make the annual pilgrimage to Mecca, in Saudi Arabia, Islam's holiest city.

Moslem areas in Lebanon observed a one-day strike Friday called by pro-Syrian leftist factions and Iranian-backed Moslem groups to protest the Hassan-Peres meetings Tuesday and Wednesday. Syria broke relations with Morocco because of the summit.

Abducted man's sister meets Syrian minister

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The sister of kidnapped American hostage Terry Anderson met Friday with Syrian Defense Minister Gen. Mustafa Tlas.

Peggy Say, 45, of Batavia, N.Y., said she "was encouraged by Gen. Tlas' statements" about efforts to free Anderson, and four other Americans kidnapped and still missing in Lebanon.

She also said she was impressed by the natural beauty of the dry expanses, the mountains and the lush green valleys in the border area. She did not visit a border crossing, confining her trip to the frontier line.

Mrs. Say drove 25 miles west of Damascus on the main highway between the Syrian capital and Beirut to the border area just north of Mount Hermon, spending two hours there. She said she did not cross the border because she promised her husband, David, she would remain outside Lebanon due to the fighting there.

"It was very peaceful and I felt very peaceful because I was keeping my promises to my dad and my brother to go find Terry," she said.

S. Africa reports day least active in 6 weeks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa had its most peaceful day since a nationwide state of emergency was imposed six weeks ago, the government said Friday.

apartheid is the 'system' under which South Africa's 5 million whites dominate the country's 24 million voteless blacks.

On Thursday, the Community Research Group said an estimated 8,400 activists have been detained under emergency powers — more than in the previous 7-month-long emergency that was lifted in March.

The newly formed research group, made up of academics from the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, said detentions were continuing at a rate of 20 a day in that city and about 190 a day nationwide.

In the previous emergency, 7,999 people were detained, according to government figures. This time, no official figures on detentions have been released, and it is illegal to identify detainees without official permission.

UN chief recovering fast

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar is recovering rapidly from a quadruple bypass heart operation, his spokesman reported Friday.

"The secretary-general is in extremely good condition," spokesman Francois Giulliani told reporters. "He is making rapid progress and improving steadily."

Center after the four-hour operation Thursday.

Giulliani said that on Friday morning Perez de Cuellar telephoned his wife, Marta, and sounded in "extremely good humor." Mrs. Perez de Cuellar was at her husband's side after he emerged from the operating room.

Perez de Cuellar is expected to spend 10 to 14 days in the hospital and return to his desk at U.N. headquarters within a few weeks, according to Giulliani.

Soviets reject Pakistani pullout plan

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Tass news agency said Friday a Pakistani proposal that Soviet troops leave Afghanistan this year has been rejected and suggested the timetable was not a matter for international negotiations.

Afghan-Pakistan talks slated to begin in Geneva Wednesday under United Nations auspices.

It quoted unspecified Western news reports as saying Pakistan "offers 'sensible dates' for a return of Soviet troops from the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan — three-to-four months."

Sikh extremists kill riders aboard bus

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Sikhs wearing masks seized a bus Friday, segregated the Hindu passengers and massacred them with machine gun fire, police said. One of the 15 people killed was a Sikh who was not wearing the traditional beard and turban.

It was the bloodiest single attack in the violent 6-year-old campaign by extremists who want an independent nation in Punjab, where most of India's 15 million Sikhs live.

Police said six other Hindus were wounded by the four masked men near Muktsar town, 84 miles south of this Sikh holy city. No women or children were harmed.

Royal newlyweds continue their Azores cruise

TERCEIRA, Azores (AP) — The Duke and Duchess of York remained aboard the royal yacht Britannia Friday near the volcanic Isle of Pico, continuing their honeymoon cruise along Portugal's Azores islands.

The first two days of the honeymoon, shimmered in summer sunshine Friday, adding the finishing touch for a quiet away-from-it-all cruise.

The royal newlyweds, former Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson, arrived here Wednesday after their Westminster Abbey wedding in London and boarded Britannia for a five-day tour of these mountainous islands 740 miles off Portugal. The islands, under occasional cloud cover for Officials on Sao Miguel, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Duke and Duchess of York's initial plans to fly home Monday evening from Ponta Delgada now may be dropped so the couple can have a leisurely voyage back to Britain.

Democrats charge clerk, commission on lack of registrars

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With eight of 45 Twin Falls County precincts lacking a voter registrar three months past the deadline for appointing them, Democrats have taken County Clerk Dick Pence and the Board of County Commissioners to task.

Twin Falls County Democratic Chairman Joe Gulick said Friday that Pence should have done a better job of finding registrars and said the Board of County Commissioners is also at fault, as state law requires the board to find registrars if the clerk doesn't.

Because voters who live in a precinct without a registrar must make their way to the county courthouse to register to vote, the shortage of registrars may be keeping some people from registering and voting, Gulick said. "I think it does hurt Democrats, because we are typically the working class of people. A lot of us, we don't take a lunch hour," said Gulick.

Pence said Friday he has accepted registrars recommended by the Democrats and Republicans, but neither party has recommended enough people to fill the slots that are now open. He said the list of registrars changes constantly and is never full. "As of right now, we haven't found anyone that will take it," said Pence.

County Commissioner Judy Felton said the board usually leaves appointment of registrars up to the clerk. "We would be the first ones to admit we don't have the Idaho code memorized. I think the clerk traditionally does take care of that,"

'We would be the first ones to admit we don't have the Idaho code memorized. I think the clerk traditionally does take care of that (appointing registrars).'

— County Commissioner Judy Felton

Felton said. The commissioners will look into the problem Monday, she said.

Pence said Gulick is playing politics with the complaint. "Anybody can make an issue out of anything," he said.

Gulick said the criticism of Pence was not politically motivated to hurt Pence in his race against Democrat Ciro Robinson.

Robinson said Friday afternoon that Pence is not doing his job as he should and was away from town 60 days on clerk association business that did not help county employees.

"She don't know what she's talking about," Pence said. At most, he said, he was gone 20 or 21 days.

Under state law, registrars are paid 50 cents per person registered and must refrain from political activity. Pence said the small pay and the nuisance of bringing people into their home to register them makes it hard for him to find people who will be registrars.

"Anybody that wants to come forward, I'll take 'em in a minute," he said.

Twin Falls Republican Committee Vice Chairman Lance Clow said Friday he did not know if GOP precinct committee people had made recommendations or not.

Gulick said that when his uncle,

Harold Lanester, was clerk there were roving registrars and sample voting machines at the county fair. Gulick said Pence has not made an effort to get people registered to vote.

Twin Falls County precincts lacking registrars are Twin Falls precincts 4, 12, 14, 18, 22, and 23. Pence said Friday afternoon that he had filled Precinct 24, which was vacant earlier. In the area around Twin Falls, precincts 1, 2, and 3 in Kimberly are being handled by the same person. Gulick said that was too much territory for one person to handle.

Pence said the Democrats should send him two registrars if they don't like it. State law says registrars must be registered voters of the precinct they are designated to serve.

Treatment center says it will not close doors

Port of Hope officials react to state decision

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Port of Hope officials moved quickly on Friday to reassure the community they would not go out of business, despite a state decision no longer fund the center's inpatient abuse treatment program.

"We are disappointed and do not understand the state's decision," said Director Barry Meyers, in a press release issued Friday.

As a result of a state decision to award the inpatient contract to Walker ACT Center in Gooding, Port of Hope will end its inpatient treatment program for adults in Twin Falls beginning on Aug. 1. Last year the center treated 214 adults.

Instead, Port of Hope will use the 15 beds that were used for adults to expand its adolescent residential program, Meyers said. The adolescent residential program, begun in January, receives no state funding.

The 15-year-old center also will continue to provide alcohol and drug assessments and outpatient programs for adults, adolescents and their families at Port of Hope locations in Twin Falls, Burley, Hailley and Jerome, Meyers said.

Meyers added that Port of Hope has not decided whether to appeal the state's decision through U.S. District Court in Boise.

Port of Hope and Walker ACT were vying for the same contract. An independent committee that reviewed both bids recommended that Walker ACT receive the contract, but the state Department of Health and Welfare chose to give Port of Hope 75 percent and Walker ACT the rest.

However, that decision was overturned on Thursday when the Department of Administration ruled that H&W did not follow bid specifications in giving Port of Hope the contract.

In making the decision to continue funding, H&W official Dr. Fritz Dixon, chief of the Bureau of Preventive Medicine, said he was afraid Port of Hope would go out of business if the center did not get the state contract.

"According to Meyers' press release, that will not happen.

"Port of Hope will continue to provide detoxification services in Boise, Nampa and Coeur d'Alene, as well as residential treatment for adults in Nampa and Coeur d'Alene," he said.

Port of Hope also has outpatient centers in Mountain Home, Caldwell, Nampa, Sandpoint, Moscow and Coeur d'Alene.

The nonprofit organization operates with a $2 million annual budget, drawn from government funds, insurance payments, client fees and United Way contributions.

Court clears way for hospital suit

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

BOISE — An Idaho Supreme Court decision has paved the way for a Gooding woman to proceed with her medical malpractice lawsuit against Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, a professional association and three local doctors.

The Idaho Supreme Court ruled Thursday that Betty James had filed her $2.3 million lawsuit within the statute of limitations, and that it should not have been dismissed by 5th District Court Judge Daniel Hurlbutt in 1985.

"James couldn't be reached for comment Friday. Her attorney, Kent Fletcher of Burley, said the lawsuit now will continue through the district court process, eventually to be set for trial.

Hurlbutt's decision granted a summary judgment in favor of the defendants, Drs. Bruce Buck, R.D. Davis and Douglas O. Smith, the Magic Valley Radiology Association and the hospital.

James alleged the defendants were negligent in their treatment of her husband, Andrew, who died March 30, 1981 in a Utah hospital.

Hurlbutt, on a defendant's motion, had dismissed the action on the grounds that the lawsuit hadn't been filed within a two-year statutory time limit from the date of the cause of action.

Under the law, claims of medical malpractice must first be filed with the Idaho State Board of Medicine. The board then establishes a pre-litigation panel, which makes non-binding recommendations on the merits of the case.

James filed her claim with the medical board in March 1983. A panel hearing was not held until June 1983, and a month later the panel issued its report.

James filed her court action in September 1983. But defense attorneys contended that it wasn't within the applicable time limit. They argued that the panel had only a 90-day jurisdiction after James filed her claim with the medical board. Following that period and another 30 days, the clock again began to run on the statute of limitations.

While the justices convened in Twin Falls in May, however, James' attorney argued that the statute of limitations didn't start running before the panel completed its work on the claim, and that wasn't until after the 90-day jurisdiction limit.

In a decision written by Justice Stephen Bistline, the higher court ruled that the statute of limitation is suspended when a claim is pending before the pre-litigation panel and for 30 days after the panel's jurisdiction has ended.

While the law sets a 90-day limit on the panel's jurisdiction, it also goes on to state that certain conditions, such as the issuance of a summary conclusion, must be met before the panel's jurisdiction is considered ended, Bistline wrote. In this case, the conditions weren't met and the fault was not James'.

Tolzin given nod as assistant superintendent

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Keith Tolzin, superintendent of the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding, was named assistant superintendent of Twin Falls Schools on Friday, Superintendent Carl Snow announced.

Tolzin replaces Kent Heaton who resigned July 1. He will begin work the first week in August, district officials said.

"We're very pleased," said Snow in making the announcement. "He has an excellent background in curriculum and early childhood development. He's just what we need."

Tolzin has been superintendent of the Deaf and Blind School since 1977, the seventh superintendent in the school's 78-year history.

Mike Mitchell on Friday said it was a case of "bad news-good news" in accepting Tolzin's resignation.

"The bad news is that we've lost a very professional administrator whose help made our job a lot easier," Mitchell said from Boise. "The good news is that Idaho didn't lose him. I'm pleased for Twin Falls."

Mitchell said the state Board of Education will probably appoint an acting interim administrator soon for the Gooding school, until the state can hire a replacement.

During Tolzin's tenure at the state school, the school received accreditation by the state and Northwest Accreditation Association. And the school is completing a $9 million remodeling project.

Snow said Tolzin expressed the desire to move to Twin Falls as a career advancement.

Tolzin was in Idaho Falls on Friday and could not be reached for comment.

In his nearly 10 years as superintendent, Tolzin fought numerous skirmishes with the Legislature over funding for the Deaf and Blind School. In 1985, lawmakers even discussed moving the school from Gooding to Twin Falls, but they never took action.

This year, with Idaho's slumping economy and the wage freeze for state employees, morale problems surfaced at the State School for the Deaf and Blind.

Teachers there held a news conference in April and said they were disgruntled about the lack of state funding and would be leaving, meaning a loss of about 20 percent of the school's 130 employees.

Tolzin received his bachelor's degree in 1961 from Augustana College in Sioux Falls, S.D., and his

Idaho Youth Ranch open house is today

RUPERT — The Idaho Youth Ranch is holding an open house today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Tours of the ranch will be provided by staff counselors and ranch residents throughout the day.

In the morning, ranch livestock will be displayed in the arena, and a gymkhana with 18 events will begin at 11 a.m. Participation in the gymkhana is open to youth ranch residents and the public.

A free barbecue beef luncheon will be served from noon until 2 p.m. in the gym. Exhibits also will be on display in the gym and the "Old Time Fiddlers" will perform during the luncheon.

Remodeling of the Ponderosa Lodge, where the boys live, is currently under way and is expected to be completed in early September. Other areas of interest on the tour are the new livestock arena and educational facilities for the children.

The facility primarily helps emotionally disturbed youngsters. Currently 21 boys, from 10 to 18 years of age, are enrolled in the program. About a third of the youth attend public schools.

The Idaho Youth Ranch is located 10 miles off of Idaho Highway 24 outside of Rupert.

IFF shuts lines for maintenance

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Frozen Foods Corp. at Twin Falls shut down processing lines Wednesday for the annual maintenance period. Close to 675 production workers will be off the job for six weeks, returning on Sept. 2, company Personnel Director Gene Hoskins said.

During the yearly shutdown, maintenance crews repair worn equipment and install new machinery. IFF General Manager Robert Wright said the company plans to add some controls and other machinery to boost efficiency on the processing lines. Roof repairs also are scheduled.

The maintenance furlough does not affect office staff, shippers and some warehouse workers. Hoskins said 100 salaried and 88 hourly workers remain in the plant during the shutdown.

Terry Tyler Hillman, 38, 608 Locust St., is accused of touching the breasts of a girl and attempting other sexual contact, according to a complaint filed with 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls. The alleged incidents occurred between Dec. 1, 1985, and June 20 in Twin Falls.

Hillman was charged Tuesday with the felony. He has been released until further court hearings.

Phone crew to work on manhole

TWIN FALLS — Mountain Bell workers will be fixing a manhole at the North Five Points intersection on Monday. Construction will begin at 6 a.m. and continue throughout the day.

Surviving area of work being done, traffic will be re-routed through that intersection and a delay is probable for motorists throughout the day.

AAA honors city on pedestrians

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls has been honored by the American Automobile Association's Pedestrian Safety Citation for having completed the past two years without a pedestrian fatality.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said that despite educational programs and safety talks, a year without a pedestrian fatality is largely a matter of luck.

The award is given to cities that achieve a perfect record in preventing pedestrian fatalities and injuries.

Twin Falls was selected for the honor from the Idaho cities with 25,000-50,000 population and will receive a special plaque from AAA.

Kathy Winslow of AAA said the program of recognizing good pedestrian records in cities around the country began in 1937. Since then, she said, the decline in pedestrian fatalities has reached the 46-percent mark, while motor vehicle registrations have increased by 453 percent and population by 97 percent.

Man faces felony drug charge

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls resident was charged Tuesday with growing marijuana.

Mark Eldon Kirkdorfer, 29, of 149 Madison St., faces a felony charge of manufacturing a controlled substance, according to a complaint filed in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls. Kirkdorfer is accused of growing the illegal plants in the garden and basement of his home.

About seven plants were seized by police, who obtained a search warrant, according to court records. Seeds and grow lights also were found.

Kirkdorfer was released on his own recognizance, pending further court hearings.

Congress agrees to postpone decision on offshore drilling

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress agreed Thursday to postpone until next year consideration of the fishhook question of how much oil and gas drilling to permit in federal waters off California.

Ratifying their compromise of members on both sides of the issue, the House Appropriations Committee agreed by voice vote to elaborate stipulations that hold down to instructions to Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel to delay two lease offerings off northern and southern California for about 10 months from 1986 into 1987.

The issue will now be delayed past this year's elections, which participants in on-again, off-again negotiations on the question said was no accident.

But they insisted it was not a partisan issue and Rep. Ed Zschau, R-Calif., who is challenging Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., this fall, praised Cranston's work on the anti-drilling side.

The committee four times has approved one-year drilling bans covering 36.8 million acres that embraced a few southern California tracts and the entire area off central and northern California. But last year it declined by one vote to renew the prohibition.

The secretary, however, is not limited to those plans, and may draft whatever provisions for California he wants.

The full House and the Senate still must approve the compromise, but the decisions of the House committee have always been upheld in recent years.

Currently, no sales are scheduled in California waters until April 1988, when tracts off the northern coast are to be offered. The following month, southern California tracts are up, and in May 1989 would come the turn of waters off the central part of the coast.

"There was only one audible 'no' vote, and it was impossible to tell the difference," said a news conference member, apparently eager to put the issue behind them, were calling "Vote! Vote!" after only a few minutes of explanation.

"This is not the end of the war over offshore drilling," Rep. Leon Farnetta, D-Calif., a leader of the anti-drilling forces, said at a news conference later. "But it's a hell of a cease-fire that we think will give us the opportunity to negotiate peace."

Some buyers of a moratorium for the next fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 said fear-of-how such a vote would turn out this time led the Interior Department, its congressional allies and the anti-drilling forces to embrace a compromise the pro-drilling side had rejected less than two weeks ago.

The compromise embodied in the department's appropriations bill continues an 18-member congressional group, including some senators, with whom the department has been trying to agree on what tracts should be opened to drilling.

It takes 24 to 27 months to mount a sale, and preparations for the northern sale began in February of this year with a call for tract nominations by industry.

A drilling moratorium like those in place from the 1982-1986 fiscal years would have forced those preparations to stop. But Thursday's action permits them to continue, simply requiring that the secretary not publish a final sale notice for northern California waters before Jan. 1, 1989. That starts a 30-day clock to the actual auction, which could not take place until Feb. 1, 1989.

Hodel said in a statement he was greatly relieved at the compromise, pleased that pre-lease activities continue and disappointed at the delay.

The American Petroleum Institute said the vote was a defeat for its interests, calling it "the same old moratorium against leasing" that would impose "another lengthy delay."

That group is supposed to submit to Hodel all the proposals it received, and Hodel is supposed to comment on them in the five-year drilling plan for all coasts he is supposed to submit to Congress early next year.

Similarly, the call for tract nominations for the southern sale could not take place before March 1 next year. That call had been scheduled for May of this year.

The May, 1989 central California offshore lease offering is not disturbed by Thursday's compromise. The call for nominations is scheduled for May 1987.

Earth First! plans demonstrations

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — Radical Earth First! organizers announced the group will stage a peaceful demonstration Monday to kick off what it called a highly visible campaign against oil and gas development in the Jackson area.

"I have always felt the environmental movement has been afraid to confront their opposition," said the group's co-founder Mike Roselle. "Too often the deals are made in back rooms. I think non-violent direct action tends to involve a broader section of the community."

The aim of the peaceful campaign will be to draw public attention and support to try to reform the U.S. Forest Service.

The protest is scheduled to take place in front of the headquarters of the Bridger-Teton National Forest from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Park protests and marches in Jackson have been sporadic but Roselle, a Jackson resident, said that will change.

Forest Service," Roselle said.

He said now is the time for protest in the Jackson and Yellowstone National Park areas.

"We feel the decisions that are made in the next 20 years will have a lot to do with the amount of biological diversity and health of the planet in the future. We are at a very critical point," he said.

Earth Firsters say the aim of the campaign is to draw public attention and support to try to reform the U.S. Forest Service.

The protest is scheduled to take place in front of the headquarters of

"I think what we're going to be doing is being a lot more visible and a lot more recognized ... until the Forest Service shows some sign of respecting the oil companies from taking over the area," he said.

Roselle said being visible means confronting policy makers in the tradition of civil disobedience and non-violent protest. Sometimes such activities can be illegal but participants are supposed to take responsibility for their actions.

In the case of Anschutz Corp.'s proposal to drill in Mosquito Creek, Roselle said, "I think we have run out of legal remedies."

If the Denver company moves a drilling rig into the area southwest of Wilson, "we would definitely have a presence at the drill site," he said.

"We feel obliged to take whatever actions are necessary to prevent that," he added.

Utah Pioneers Lawsuit — complain of unfair pressure

SPANISH FORK, Utah (AP) — Members of the Spanish Fork area Daughters of the Utah Pioneers say they're being pushed out of a building they worked to save from demolition.

"We felt like we fought really hard not to have this building torn down by anyone," said Fern Davis, a DUP member. "We wanted it remodeled so that we could keep some of our pioneer heritage. And now we can't even use the building we fought for."

A new city office recently opened in (the renovated) Thurber School, leaving the DUP with what members say is limited space to use as a museum.

Before the city remodeled the building, it was used as a storage area for city departments, offices for the local chamber of commerce and a museum for the Daughters of Utah Pioneers.

Now the city uses the structure for city offices, the 8th Circuit Court and the Utah Municipal Power Agency. Only two small rooms in the basement were left for the DUP museum, including one room which the UMPA can claim later.

"The major reason for the panel's finding not being filed until 125 days after James filed her complaint with the state Board of Medicine was the panel's inability to finish its hearings until 87 days after James filed a prelitigation complaint to the state Board of Medicine," the ruling stated.

The jurisdiction of the panel can't start until the panel first is established, he added.

The District Court erred in focusing on the law setting the time limit of the panel's jurisdiction and ignoring the other sentences within the statute, Blisline wrote for the justices.

"The Salt Lake City DUP museum already told us if we can't find place for the artifacts, then they'll come and pick them up and take them up there," Davis said. "We don't want to do that. We want to protect our pioneer heritage."

Young said if the DUP cannot find a permanent home for the pioneer artifacts, the group may end up outside the city.

"The Salt Lake City DUP museum already told us if we can't find place for the artifacts, then they'll come and pick them up and take them up there," Davis said. "We don't want to do that. We want to protect our pioneer heritage."

Even if the case proceeds at the District Court level, the hospital is expected to win the decision, the issue, however, might be on the timeliness of James' appeal of the District Court ruling to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Tolzin — 2 Boiseans die in trailer-truck crash

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — Two Boise men were killed late Thursday when their small pickup truck was smashed by a 25-foot trailer loaded with almost 12 tons of molasses, authorities said.

Jeffery Miles, 27, and his brother Robert Miles, 27, died instantly when they were hit by the trailer on U.S. Highway 20, about 20 miles northeast of Mountain Home, an Elmore County sheriff's dispatcher said.

The accident occurred about 10:40 p.m. Thursday on Dixie Hill, south of Little Camas Reservoir, she said.

Investigators said the eastbound truck was hauling two trailers, including the "pup" trailer that broke loose and turned over on the Miles' oncoming pickup.

The trailer, carrying 23,230 pounds of molasses, then continued off the road and into a ravine, officials said.

Holy city important to Mormons, he says

BYU Jerusalem center chief optimistic

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young University, owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has had a study abroad program in Jerusalem for nearly two decades.

"Jerusalem means a lot to us as Latter-day Saints," said David Galbraith, director of the BYU Jerusalem Center for Near Eastern Studies. "We would like to be the last word on Jewish scholarship."

For that dream to be furthered, a building was needed to house faculty, students and resources.

In 1979, a site for the center was elected on Mount Scopus, the Mount of Olives in east Jerusalem. Excavation on the site began in the spring of 1984, after four years of gaining approvals and permits from various governmental entities.

Despite protests by ultra-orthodox Jews over the project, construction continues on schedule and the seven-story building should be completed in the spring of 1987, according to Paul Richards, director of public communications at BYU.

The building will have 40 dormitory rooms housing four students each. It also will have apartments for visiting faculty members.

The first floor of the building will contain a Learning Resource Center for students and visitors. The resource center will use advanced fiber optics and computers to convey information about the land, the city and the people.

"The Land" display will have a large typographical map with computer-driven fiber optics that will be able to portray many stories about the Middle East.

It will show trade routes, where the ministry of Jesus Christ took place, wars, and other historic events in the Middle East. There will also be models depicting Jerusalem during various historic periods, Galbraith said in a recent interview.

Outside the center, on a patio, will be a model of the city.

"People will be able to identify the model with the skyline," he said. "It will be a great orientation tool."

The display, "The People," will use interactive computers, videos and laser discs.

"There will be about a dozen learning stations where you will sit in front of a computer and call up a subject," Galbraith said.

Cooperative agreements between the BYU Jerusalem Center and Hebrew University will enhance the BYU program, said Galbraith.

Hebrew University is about a five-minute walk from the center.

"We already have close ties with the university," Galbraith said. "We hope to establish a link between the libraries."

With a center of its own, the BYU Near Eastern study program will be greatly enhanced.

"There have been a number of things we have not had or at least which have been inhibited," Galbraith said. "Now we will have our own facility designed to meet our own needs; including a library, and room to study in peace and quiet."

"The center will allow us to get into the computer age in our research over there and give us classrooms we haven't had in the past."

New graduate and upper division classes will be offered at the center, Galbraith said.

"It is a dream, finally coming true," he said. "We're finally seeing the light at the end of the tunnel in seeing the completion of the center."

Enloes plan concert at First Assembly

TWIN FALLS — Phil Enloe, internationally known gospel singer, will be in concert at First Assembly of God Church, 129 North Locust, in Twin Falls, at 10:50 a.m. Sunday.

Enloe has recorded 20 albums and is a songwriter and author as well. His travels have taken him throughout the United States and 38 countries. He has appeared on television programs including PTL Show, Network, GSN's 700 Club and Ernie the Lord Show.

Enloe and his wife, Rose, raised in Illinois, Enloe comes from a large family and a background in music. A musical scholarship during high school started him in a career of singing in 1964. He studied music at Southern Illinois University and Alcorn University in Ohio. The first seven years of his career were spent as a member of gospel quartets such as the Courtiers, the Blackwood Brothers and the Imperials. In 1970, he began concerts as a soloist. He sings many styles of songs and his music is enjoyed by music lovers of all tastes.

Minister: Shooting of burglar justified

By BILL STIEG The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — A minister who shot an intruder in his church said Wednesday there is plenty of justification in the Bible for his action, noting, "What would have happened if David hadn't taken out Goliath?"

No charges were filed against the Rev. Turney Pugh, who sleeps with a .22-caliber gun under his pillow and shot the youth in the chest and then hunted down a companion Wednesday.

outside his room. He grabbed his gun and fired two shots in his non-secular church of the Upward Spiral, which is located in an old warehouse.

He then got dressed to continue his work in the building with his daughter, Rhonda.

Killing two men at a loading dock helped themselves to wicker baskets and ceramic statues of Mary and Jesus, he opened fire again and the men fled.

Pugh, with one round left in his pistol, said he then found Peter Walker, 20, standing in a walk-in safe and cornered him.

"I looked at his face, and I didn't see any belligerence," Pugh said. "More like copping in a panic."

Violence and break-ins are common in the West Philadelphia neighborhood where he moved his church eight months ago, Pugh said. Pugh said he gave no warning to the intruders, adding that he had no qualms about shooting first and asking questions later. He said the Bible is full of violent acts by people "standing up for a principle."

Matthews and Walker were charged with burglary, theft and other offenses, and a third person was being sought, police said.

"Non-violence, he said, 'is fine on the other side of the street, but not when they cross your border.'"

Pugh said his church, which he founded 19 years ago, concentrates on "religious research," with classes and meditation hours.

"It's not a run-of-the-mill, non-productive church," he said. He said he could not give an accurate number of members because "we don't keep our names crawling in on their knees. They come and study and they go out and spread the word."

Dissident nuns decry Vatican reprimand

By ROBERT FURLLOW The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Eleven Roman Catholic nuns, formerly under Vatican fire for questioning church teaching on abortion, strongly objected Thursday to a church contention they had settled their cases by publicly backing down.

The nuns denied a Vatican statement that they had made "declarations of adherence to Catholic doctrine on abortion," and they said a demand for such declarations "constituted a dangerous precedent in the life of their church."

In a statement distributed in Washington, they deplored a continuing Vatican threat of action against two nuns, Barbara Ferraro and Patricia Hussey of Charleston, W.Va.

"We object to the misuse of the settlements of our cases to pressure and isolate Barbara and Patricia," the nuns said. "We continue to stand with them in solidarity in their ongoing struggle."

The dispute began in October 1984 at the height of the American presidential campaign when 97 U.S. Catholics, including 24 nuns and several priests and religious brothers, signed a full-page New York Times advertisement declaring church leaders' staunch opposition to abortion was not the only legitimate Catholic position.

The statement came at a time when Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, a Catholic and no relation to Sister Ferraro, was being criticized by some church leaders for her position that although she opposed abortion she did not favor outlawing it.

In December, Vatican officials said the nuns, priests and brothers could be expelled from their religious orders unless they publicly retracted their support for the statement.

All but two of the cases have been settled since then, the Vatican said Monday, adding that "the Holy See has accepted public declarations of adherence to Catholic doctrine on abortion from 25 men and women of Catholic religious communities" who signed the ad.

Sister Maureen Fiedler, an organizer of Thursday's denial of the Vatican contention that the cases were settled, said she and five other members of the Sisters of Loreto merely signed a statement declaring that "human life is sacred and inviolable."

"Human life" isn't defined but surely includes women who are or may become pregnant, she said in an interview.

The Vatican statement said church officials still hope the cases of Sisters Ferraro and Hussey, members of the Rome-based Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur, can be resolved by their order "without having to begin formal disciplinary procedures in accord with church law."

Slower sales pace on existing homes noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sales pace of existing homes dropped slightly last month while the median price of a single-family home declined $900, the National Association of Realtors said Friday.

The trade group blamed a slight increase in mortgage interest rates for the 1.2 percent decline in the seasonally adjusted annual rate of home sales to 3.41 million units. That compared to 3.45 million units in May.

The actual number of single-family homes sold last month — 339,000 — was slightly higher than the 330,000 sold in May. But the increase was not enough to produce a higher rate after being adjusted for traditional seasonal variations, the Realtors said.

The slower sales pace was accompanied by a $900 decrease — to $82,300 — in the median price of an existing home between May and June.

Association economists said the drop was a market correction following the $3,000 jump between April and May to $83,200. The economists noted that the June median price was 7.6 percent higher than the $76,500 median recorded in June, 1985.

The annualized sales rate for June was 11.1 percent higher than the pace recorded in June, 1985. The figure projects how many homes would be sold in a year if the monthly pace adjusted for seasonal up and downs, continued for 12 months.

Average interest rates for completed home sales increased from 10.15 percent in May to 10.21 percent in June, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Despite the June drop, home sales were up 12.5 percent during the first six months of the year from the first half of 1985.

"With mortgage interest rates down nearly 2 percentage points from last year, 1.71 million existing homes changed hands during the first six months of 1986, compared with 1.52 million in the same period last year," said Clark E. Wallace, the Realtors' president.

The South recorded the nation's only regional increase in home sales — a 0.8 percent gain from the May rate.

The pace of home sales slowed 4.2 percent in the Northeast, 2 percent in the Midwest and 1.8 percent in the West last month.

The median price in the Northeast increased from $104,900 to $109,300 while it went up in the Midwest from $64,600 to $65,400. The median single-family home price declined from $82,900 to $80,000 in the South and fell from $104,700 to $101,500 in the West.

Pepsico purchases Kentucky Fried Chicken from Nabisco

NEW YORK (AP) — Pepsico Inc., which already operates Pizza Hut and Taco Bell restaurants, announced Thursday it had reached an agreement in principle to purchase Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp. from RJR Nabisco Inc. for about $850 million in cash.

The combination would create the world's largest restaurant group in terms of the number of restaurants, with more than 14,000 outlets. The group's $7 billion in annual sales still would fall behind McDonald's Corp. Kentucky Fried Chicken is the world's second-largest restaurant chain with its 6,500 restaurants, but its $3.5 billion in sales rank third behind Burger King Corp.

Pepsico operates 7,500 Pizza Hut and Taco Bell restaurants that have sales of about $3.3 billion. The company is also the nation's No. 2 soft-drink maker, behind Coca-Cola Co., and it makes Frito-Lay snack foods. Earlier this month, Pepsico announced in principle to acquire international operations of Seven-Up Co. from Philip Morris Cos. for $246 million in cash. That announcement came after the Federal Trade Commission objected on antitrust grounds to Pepsico's earlier deal to acquire Seven-Up's domestic and international divisions.

RJR Nabisco's stock rose $3.12 1/2 to close at $32.50 in composite trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange. Pepsico's stock rose $1.12 1/2 to close at $33. The Kentucky Fried Chicken deal is subject to the negotiation of a definitive agreement, review by government agencies and final approval by the boards of directors of both companies, Pepsico said. Jim Griffith, a spokesman at Pepsico's Purchase, N.Y., headquarters, said the company expected to complete the purchase in a couple of months.

About 1,000 of the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants offer Pepsi-Cola beverages, and the rest offer Coca-

Cola beverages and other brands. "We would hope to convert (them) and will work hard to do so," Griffith said. "There's obviously contractual considerations you have to keep in mind. That was frankly not a consideration in the purchase."

Analysis said the announcement had been expected. They also said they didn't foresee any antitrust problems.

"KFC is an excellent strategic fit for Pepsico and a logical extension of our existing businesses," said D. Wayne Calloway, chairman and chief executive officer of Pepsico. "KFC is ideally positioned to take full advantage of shifting consumer dietary and taste preferences that have steadily increased per-capita consumption of chicken."

Kentucky Fried Chicken had been a unit of Heublein Inc., which RJR Nabisco acquired in 1982. J. Tylee Wilson, chairman and chief executive officer of RJR Nabisco, said Kentucky Fried Chicken "is a strong performer, a leader in the restaurant business and a company with excellent potential."

"However, it is our determination that we can best fulfill our corporate objective of assuring long-term growth of shareholder value by concentrating our resources and efforts in the packaged consumer goods business," Wilson said.

Kentucky Fried Chicken earned $91.5 million on sales of $1.146 billion last year. RJR Nabisco earned $1.654 billion on sales of $16.6 billion. Pepsico's restaurant group earned $194 million on $2.1 billion in sales. Pepsico earned $859 million on $8 billion in sales.

RJR Nabisco, which is based in Winston-Salem, N.C., also has gotten out of the carbonated soft drink business. It completed its $230 million sale of its Canada Dry and Sunkist operations to Cadbury Schweppes PLC on Thursday.

RJR Nabisco also makes cigarettes. Kentucky Fried Chicken, which has headquarters in Louisville, Ky., is the largest restaurant chain outside North America, with 1,800 restaurants in 56 countries.

McDonald's, based in Oak Brook, Ill., has 3,999 restaurants worldwide which had sales last year of $1.01 billion in 1985.

Burger King Corp., a Pillsbury Co. unit that is based in Miami, has 4,743 restaurants worldwide that had total sales of $4.5 billion in its fiscal year ended May 31.

"This has been in the offing for a long time. We thought it might happen," said Stanley Fishman, an analyst with the investment firm Falmestock & Co. "This doesn't squeeze out the other chicken palaces of America. There are so many chicken restaurants in America." The other major chicken restaurants are Church's, Popeye's and Boneyards.

First Interstate Bancorp says earnings have increased in 1986

BOISE (AP) — Crediting an increase in net interest income, First Interstate Bancorp has announced that earnings for its second quarter and first half of this year were up more than 10 percent compared with the same periods of 1985.

Earnings in the second quarter were $94.7 million, an increase of 10.4 percent from the second quarter of last year, when the Los Angeles-based parent company of First Interstate Bank of Idaho had net income of $76.7 million. Net income per share was $1.80.

On Monday, First Interstate Bank of Idaho reported its first-quarter net income was $781,000, up 17.3 percent from the first quarter of last year. The Idaho bank delays reporting its quarterly earnings until after its parent company issues its results.

For the first half of 1986, First Interstate Bancorp said it had net income of $183.7 million, an increase of 10.5 percent from $168.2 million earned in the first six months of last year.

J. J. Pinola, chairman and chief executive officer of First Interstate Bancorp, said a high level of bad loans continues to hamper earnings. Loan-loss reserves — money set aside to cover problem loans — are up from the second quarter of last year but are down 14 percent from the first quarter of 1986. The amount of the reserve was not immediately available. Pinola attributed the "larger than normal" provision for possible losses to problems that continue to affect agriculture, energy, lumber and mining. He also said the company has increased the number of loans it has made.

Earnings for the quarter and first half of the year grew because of substantial gains in net interest income and all other income, Pinola said. In addition, commercial and construction loans were up in the period, he said.

James J. Curran, First Interstate Bank of Idaho president and chief executive officer, said the parent company's growth has helped the Idaho bank.

"With our foresight in 1985 to establish accelerated loan-loss reserves, we are able to concentrate on current economic factors," Curran said.

In its first quarter, First Interstate Bank of Idaho set aside $1.29 million in its loan-loss reserve, up from $855,000 that was set aside in the same period of 1985.

First Interstate Bank's loan-loss balance stood at $11.73 million on March 31, compared with $6.56 million a year ago.

Sunshine sweetens its bond offer

BOISE (AP) — Sunshine Mining Co. has sweetened its exchange offer for $115 million of silver-indexed bonds by adding another half-percent to the interest rate and increasing the silver-indexing feature by eight ounces of silver.

The company began the exchange offer last month to reduce interest costs and increase its financial flexibility.

Sunshine said it could save $6 million this year and $12 million next year through the exchange.

Sunshine is offering to exchange four silver-indexed bond issues.

For each of its 8 percent bonds due Feb. 15, 1995, and carrying an indexed amount of 30 ounces of silver, the company is offering a new 9 percent bond due Aug. 15, 1994, with an indexed amount of 72 ounces of silver.

For its 8 1/2 percent bonds due April 15, 1995, with an indexed amount of 30 ounces of silver, the company is offering bondholders 9 1/2 percent bonds with a due date of Nov. 15, 1994, and an indexed amount of 72 ounces of silver.

As an alternative, holders of the 9 1/2 percent bonds can receive 325 shares of the common stock instead of a new bond.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING PETITION TO VACATE A PORTION OF THIRD STREET WEST IN THE CITY OF HANSEN

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Hansen Building Commission will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on August 11, 1988, at the Hansen City Hall, 121 Main Street, Hansen, Idaho, to consider the request of Gene and Donna Egeler, husband and wife, to vacate a portion of the east side and the west side of Third Street West from 10th Avenue to Overland Avenue according to the official plat thereof. The proposed vacated area is a minimum of 25 feet on each side of Third Street West commencing at the southern boundary line of Maple Avenue and ending at the northern boundary line of Walnut Avenue according to the official plat thereof. The purpose of the proposed vacated area is to bring adjacent property into compliance with zoning ordinances and regulations.

FURTHERMORE the City Council of the City of Hansen will hold a public hearing on the proposed partial vacation of the above-described street, July 28 and August 6, 1988.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"It is a matter of regret that many laws mean suspicious turn out to be well founded."
— Edgar Watson Howe

South should have been more suspicious in his play of today's slam. Instead of repeating a "winning" trump finesse, he should have counted his tricks and chosen the safest course to 12 tricks. Dummy's diamond king won the first trick and the heart queen was passed for a winning finesse (or so South thought, as West played low in tempo). Declarer led another heart from dummy back to his jack, repeating the finesse, but this time it lost. And when West led a third round of trumps, the slam was lost. South could ruff only one club in dummy, putting his maximum take at only 11 tricks.

Against any but the most naive Wests, South should be suspicious of repeating the trump finesse and should win the second trump with his ace. Then he cashes his remaining high diamonds and embarks on a black-suit crossruff. West can take his trump king at a time of his choosing, however, nothing can stop South from winning 13 tricks. What if East had held four trumps including the king? Then declarer might have to pay off, unless diamonds break favorably and he is able to ruff one club low in dummy.

Bias grand jury issues indictments

By TOM STUCKEY
The Associated Press

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — A longtime friend and two teammates of Len Bias have been indicted by a grand jury investigating the cocaine-induced death of the University of Maryland basketball star, two Washington television stations reported Friday.

WRCV-TV and WUSA-TV reported that Brian Lee Tribble, a longtime Bias friend, and David Gregg and Terry Long, teammates who shared a dormitory suite with Bias, had been indicted.

WRCV-TV, citing unidentified sources, said that Tribble was indicted on charges of distribution of cocaine and PCP and obstruction of justice, and Long and Gregg were indicted on charges of possession of cocaine.

Arthur A. Marshall Jr., the county prosecutor conducting the investigation, would not confirm or deny the media reports of who was indicted.

"You've seen the order and the records are sealed," Marshall, reached at a party for a judge at a Prince George's County country club, told The Associated Press.

Tribble's attorney, William Cahill, when reached at his Baltimore office, said he could not talk because he was waiting for an important call. There was no answer at his office about 10 minutes later and no answer at his home.

Alan Goldstein, an attorney for Long and Gregg, would not confirm reports of his clients being indicted.

"I have not gotten any official kind of word or anything. My sources are newspaper reporters who tell me that there have been some indictments," Goldstein told The Associated Press.

Goldstein said if Gregg and Long were indicted, he expected to be notified Monday or Tuesday.

Long, Tribble and Gregg could not immediately be reached for comment.

Earlier Friday, Goldstein said he had not talked to Marshall after the indictments were returned.

Asked if Marshall told him Gregg and Long would be indicted, Goldstein said, "I have no comment on that."

He said if the two men are indicted, they will voluntarily surrender to police. And he said if they are charged, "I've convinced, my clients will be found innocent," he said.

A grand jury on Friday ended its investigation into the circumstances surrounding Bias' death, returning indictments that were were ordered sealed by the county prosecutor.

Members of the grand jury said as they left Prince George's County Courthouse after five days of hearings that they had voted to return indictments, but they would not say how many people were charged or who they were.

The grand jury will return Aug. 11 to begin an inquiry into allegations of drug use by other athletes, possible gambling on a game by at least one member of the Maryland basketball team, and the actions of university officials, including basketball Coach Lefty Driesell, in the hours after Bias died of cocaine intoxication June 19.

The indictments will remain sealed until those named have been arrested or served with notice of their indictment, said Norman Pritchett, clerk of the Prince George's County Circuit Court.

There was no indication from any officials when those indicted would be processed and their names made public. Tom Madison, one member of the grand jury, said he thought the inquiry "was handled very well" by the prosecutors. "Everything came out that should have come out," he said.

Madison said he was disappointed that Bias' parents, James and Lonise Bias, did not appear before the grand jury. Marshall had offered them the chance to testify.

Other members, who refused to give their names, said they were satisfied with the results of the investigation and the way it was handled.

Under Maryland law, anyone who testifies before a grand jury under subpoena in a drug-related case is immune from prosecution.

The investigation concluded without any testimony from Long, Gregg or Tribble, who were with Bias when he died in his dormitory.

Cinderella Buhl team to state

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Buhl continues to surprise in the Southern Region "B" American Legion district baseball tournament.

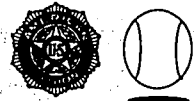

The Indians pulled off a 4-3 upset at the expense of top tournament seed Pocatello Friday afternoon, while Idaho Falls rapped out 19 hits to take the second winners' bracket contest from host Mini-Cassia 20-8.

Wood River sent Shoshone to the sidelines in Friday's opener with a 12-2 victory in a game abbreviated to five innings on the 10-run rule, but the Wolverines were later eliminated when Pocatello scored three unearned runs in the seventh inning to win 9-8 in a loser-out contest.

Jerome stayed alive in the tourney by eliminating Mini-Cassia, 8-3.

That puts Buhl into the championship semifinal game this morning at 10 at Burley High School against Idaho Falls. Pocatello and Jerome will get together for a loser-out contest at 2 p.m., with the winner of that game to play the loser of the Idaho Falls-Buhl contest tonight at 6.

The Buhl victory assured the Indians of a spot in Idaho American Legion "B" tournament next week

In Idaho Falls, The Russets, by virtue of their host designation, won a spot at state automatically.

"The boys played with a lot of heart today," said Buhl Coach Tom Fleming. "They made just one error and took advantage of what errors Pocatello made. I think they're mentally ready for Idaho Falls."

Leading by one after five innings, a three-run sixth propelled Buhl to a 4-0 advantage.

one-bagger. Lyle Peterson reached base on a Pocatello error that allowed Atkinson and Cooper to score. Peterson romped home one out later on Derek Walker's sacrifice fly.

But the league champion Rebels were 1-1 ready to concede.

Pocatello got one back in its half of the inning, then put together three hits with two out in the seventh to drive Buhl starter Cornelio Hernandez from the mound in favor of Peterson.

With the tying run at third, Pocatello's Brian Hicks blooped a

Peterson offering to short rightfield that looked like extra innings, but Cooper made a diving, one-handed catch to send the Rebels to face Wood River in the loser out matchup.

Asked if he felt he could make the game-ending grab when the ball was hit Cooper replied, "I didn't have a clue — I thought it was too short."

Mini-Cassia capitalized on the early wildness of Russset hurler Tyler Walker to take a 6-0 lead after one inning. Six walks, four

Ex-Minnesota cagers acquitted of rape

By ARTHUR L. SRB
The Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — Three former Minnesota basketball players were found innocent of charges they raped an 18-year-old woman in a verdict read early today in Dane County Circuit Court.

The jury deliberated about 5 1/2 hours before reaching the verdict late Thursday on 12 separate charges of first-degree sexual assault.

The three players, Kevin Smith, 21, of Lansing, Mich.; Mitchell Lee, 21, of Carol City, Fla.; and George Williams Jr., 20, of Oakland, Calif., had been charged after the alleged incident occurred Jan. 24 in a downtown hotel following the team's Big Ten conference basketball victory over Wisconsin.

The three defendants were elated when the verdict was read and stood up and slapped each other's hands, saying, "All right" and embraced each other.

Smith arrived late for the reading of the verdict and appeared nervous as he sat alone waiting for the court to convene. As the jury entered, Smith began vomiting.

Judge George Northrup said, "Mr. Smith, I'm not pleased with your conduct."

After the verdict was read, the judge reminded spectators the court will be in session. The spectators settled down briefly and Northrup said, "That's it."

Williams began to weep. Before the 12th count was read, he turned and grabbed his father, George Sr., 61, who had been present in the front row of the courtroom during the 12-day trial.

"I feel relieved, I feel great," the senior Williams said. "I'm so grateful (with the jurors). They gave me back my son."

Stanley Woodward, a public defender representing Smith, said the verdict proved the three were innocent all along and said the University of Minnesota and the Big Ten conference "owes these men an apology."

"You've got three ex-basketball players who were excommunicated from a school based upon the assumption that they were guilty. They were wrong," Woodward said.

Reporters and camera crews crowded around the three men and their attorneys as soon as court was adjourned.

"I'm glad Lvon (Lyon) can go back to Minneapolis," Lee said as he left the courtroom. He said he wanted to return to school.

"I think we had a fair trial," Lee said. Outside the building, with friends and family, Lee shouted jubilantly. "They told me it couldn't be done in Madison. We got justice!"

"I'm sorry, I don't have any comment," Assistant District Attorney Judith Hawley said.

Jim Dutcher, who resigned as Gopher basketball coach after the players were arrested, said from his home in the Minneapolis area he was "pleased that a long ordeal is finally over."

"It's a great relief, certainly for those young men and their families," Dutcher said. "I just talked to Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Lee (at their homes). I haven't been able to get in touch with Mrs. Williams yet. Of course, they're tremendously relieved."

Asked if the verdict was what he had expected, Dutcher said, "I'm not going to speculate. The jury certainly is a jury from Madison, Wisconsin, and based on the evidence they said they were not guilty."

"I tried to (stand by them). I was there (at the trial) for two days. I had lunch with them. They have maintained from day one that they did not do anything illegal ... They've maintained that all along."

Dutcher said he could not speculate on whether the three might be allowed to rejoin the team.

Trenkle, Stroud sign more recruits for CSI

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho men's basketball Coach Fred Trenkle and women's basketball Coach Ben Stroud have each announced the signing of another player to a letter of intent.

Trenkle on Friday said he had signed Richard Ramey, a 6-foot-5 swingman from Greenwood, S.C., who played last year at Kaskasia Community College in Centralia, Ill.

Stroud reported that he had signed Beth Winans, a 5-9 forward-center from Meridian, Wis., a freshman.

Trenkle said Ramey, who averaged 23.9 points and 10 rebounds last season for a team that went 31-2, is "an NBA-type player."

"He played on a team that was ranked sixth in the country, but got beat out in their regional tournament," said Trenkle. "He was the MVP in his region, beating out a teammate that went on to Kansas State."

Trenkle said four of Ramey's teammates went to Division I schools; Ramey wanted to move on because of a coaching change at Kaskasia, he said.

The CSI coach said Ramey would be used as a second guard, by CSI next year, adding that he has good shooting and leaping ability and appears to be a solid defensive player.

"He's just a good all-around athlete," Trenkle said. "Originally he went to Minnesota on a football scholarship, but they wanted to change him from a wide receiver to a defensive back."

So he dropped football and started all over with basketball."

Ramey's signing brings to six the number of players Trenkle has inked this year. He said he hopes to sign one or two more players, probably freshmen.

Stroud said Winans, who played on a Meridian High team that finished third in last winter's Idaho Class A-1 girls' basketball tournament, would be a solid addition to CSI's inside game.

"She's a good ballplayer," said Stroud. "She scored 15 points in the state (high school) all-star game (in Boise) earlier this month."

Winans was a first-team all-state selection by "The Idaho Statesman."

Stroud said the signing of Winans would conclude his recruiting for the summer.

Stroud will be entering his first season as the Eagle women's coach, replacing Lloyd Hardesty, who was Hardesty's assistant last season.

CSI's men's team returns two starters in center Eric Newman and forward Joey Johnson.

Twin Falls hands Minico 12th consecutive loss

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the Twin Falls American Legion Cowboys, Friday night's game against the Minico Sage was almost a foregone conclusion.

The Cowboys faced the Minico Sage in the contest while the Cowboys managed to slap 14 hits off a pair of Minico pitchers.

Minico took the first lead of the game in the second when Jesse Branson hit a double down the left field line. After he advanced to third on a wild pitch, Marty Carter hit one to the first baseman, who had trouble handling the ball, and Carter reached first while Branson scored.

With two outs, Craig Anderson's single to right field plated Carter and Minico had a 2-0 lead. After that inning, the Sage would only get one more hit in the inning.

The lead held up until the bottom of the third-inning when Twin Falls broke the game wide open.

Three straight walks to Shane Clark, Nick Baumert, and Eric Ochsner loaded the bases and Ames sent two runners home with a single.

Cassy Bartholomew singled to load the bases and Mike Buster singled with two out sending home Ochsner and Ames.

In the fifth inning, Twin Falls sent 12 players to the plate as they rattled the Sage for eight runs.

Ochsner led off the inning with a single and scored on a double by Bartholomew. Rob Ellis walked and Buster reached on a fielder's choice, putting runners on the corners.

A walk to Tom Prater loaded the bases and Clark sent two runners home with a double. Another runner scored when Barry Smith reached on an error and Clark scored on a single by Baumert. Back-to-back singles by Ochsner and Ames sent two more runners home boosting the lead to 12-2.

The Cowboys added another pair of runs in the sixth for the final tally.

Twin Falls, which clinched the No. 3 spot for the "district" tournament, will host Idaho Falls in their final conference game on Sunday for a pair of games starting at 2 p.m.

Washington cuts Theismann loose

By The Associated Press

Training camps are where careers are supposed to begin. Quarterback Joe Theismann's tenure with the Washington Redskins, and very likely in pro football, ended Friday.

Theismann, the 1983 NFL Most Valuable Player and who spent a season in the Washington Redskins in 1985 Super Bowl victory over the Miami Dolphins, was waived after being declared unfit to play and rejecting the team's recommendation that he retire.

Theismann, who has never fully recovered from a broken right leg sustained in mid-season last year stands to benefit from being waived rather than retired.

He has a $1.4 million insurance policy with Lloyd's of London to cover a career ending injury, and reportedly would have to fail two more physical exams to collect.

Pro football

Also, by being put on the waived-fund physical list, Theismann will receive $65,000 from the NFL for injury protection and his medical bills will be paid by the league for one year.

He was bid farewell in a three-page letter from Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke, which documented several of Theismann's accomplishments with the Redskins, and also mentioned Cooke's desire that he retire.

"But since you've cast your die for this waiver... I give you to your wish," Cooke wrote. "I have urged you to retire. In your usual few thousand words, you say no... You refuse to be dissuaded from the only alternative to retirement, namely, you insist on being put on waivers."

In 12 years in the NFL, Theismann completed 2,094 of 3,692 pass attempts for 31,299 yards, 200 touchdowns and 185 interceptions.

A Lions official said the former Penn State fullback failed the exam because of recurring knee problems.

Elsewhere, Keith Byars, the former Ohio State running back, drafted in the first round by the Philadelphia Eagles and described by new Coach Buddy Ryan as a "franchise player," reached a contract agreement Friday night after owner Norman Braman stepped into the stalled negotiations.

An Eagles spokesman disclosed the agreement. The terms of the contract were not immediately known, but the Eagles started negotiations with a four-year offer of $1 million, which agents Richard Bennett and Brig Owens described as "pathetic."

They sought in excess of $2 million. After Patrick Forte, the Eagles chief negotiator, was unable to strike a deal with Byars' agents, Braman stepped into the picture and led the agents to face-to-face talks. They met next of Friday.

The 230-pound Byars, 10th player selected in the April 29 NFL draft, is recuperating from surgery in January on a severely injured ankle. Only 10 days ago, he was given permission by his doctor to run for the first time since the operation.

The Eagles don't expect him to be ready to play at the earliest until late in preseason training and perhaps not until after the regular season has started.

"Our medical people think he will be in great shape," Ryan has said. "But we hope he'll be ready by the middle of the season when we start playing our division (NFC East) opponents. We don't want him to play until he's healthy. We're not going to put any pressure on him or set any deadlines."

After the draft, Byars came to Philadelphia to continue his foot rehabilitation, but left early this month after an argument with Eagles officials over giving him a hotel room.

He returned to Columbus, declaring that he would not come back until he had signed a contract.

Byars was the second-leading rusher in Ohio State history behind two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin. He gained 3,200 yards on 619 carries for a 5.2 yard average. He scored 50 career touchdowns, 46 rushing, three receiving and one on a 99-yard kickoff return in the 1983 F esta Bowl. He had 17 games of 100 or more yards rushing.

Byars was an All-American his junior year, but had a disappointing 1985 season after fracturing a bone in his right foot in preseason practice on Labor Day. In limited playing time, he carried the ball 53 times for 213 yards and four touchdowns. He also gained 7.4 yards receiving.

National Olympic Festival starts with Texas-style hoehow

HOUSTON (AP) — The United States Olympic Festival officially opened Friday night with a rousing Texas hoo-doo at the Astrodome.

The show included 1,700 performers, mostly elementary, high school and college students, plus the 400-member Olympic Festival Band, the 400-member Festival Drill Team, gymnasts, fiddlers and dancers. The theme was Texas' 150th anniversary as a state.

The Beach Boys, Otis Day and the Knights and Jose Feliciano entertained the crowd, which also was treated to a laser light show, a stirring rendition of the national anthem by 12-year-old Maria Lucke and a short film by Bud Greenspan, chronicler of several Olympics.

Carl Lewis, the four-time gold medalist from the 1984 Olympics, carried the flag at the head of the procession of athletes into the Astrodome. Taking the oath of the athletes were Joe Story, a team handball player from Los Angeles, and field hockey official Patricia Hayes of Birmingham, Mich.

Johnson injured in pre-NOF basketball tournament, forced to return home to L.A.

By The Times-News

HOUSTON — College of Southern Idaho sophomore Joey Johnson, who just returned from a tour of Europe where he broke the American junior record for men in the high jump, was injured in a basketball game earlier this week at the National Olympics Festival here and forced to return home to San Pedro, Calif.

According to CSI men's basketball coach Fred Trenkle, Johnson fell during a game in the pre-NOF junior tournament and knocked out two teeth.

Trenkle said NOF medical officials were unable to do the required dental work, so Johnson flew home to Los Angeles Wednesday to be treated by his personal dentist.

Trenkle said Johnson would return to Twin Falls within the next two weeks for the start of the school.

Last Sunday, Johnson leaped 7 feet, 1 inch to place sixth in the World Junior Track and Field Championship in Athens, Greece.

The week before, Johnson had broken the U.S. junior record with a leap of 7'5 1/2" at a dual junior meet between the United States and Romania in Bucharest, Romania.

Trenkle also said Johnson's teammate, Erick Newman, would be on national television either Aug. 3 or Aug. 4 as WTBS televises a team handball game involving the West team, for which Johnson competes. The West favored in the competition.

Twin Falls' Rob Nicholson, competing for victories in both the collegiate indoor and outdoor archery championships earlier this year, will compete for the West team in archery. That competition begins next week.

"My goal was just to try to be in the top four or five, but I didn't know if that was realistic," Bortz said. "I never expected to win."

Defending solo champion Betsy Visinski of Thousand Oaks, Calif., led the synchronized swimming figures portion of the competition Friday.

Visinski, 22, earned 89.150 points for the six compulsory figures. Scores from the figures segment are added to the swimmers' solo, duet or trio routine scores to determine final results. The duet will be held Saturday, with the solo and team portions set for Sunday.

Even before it began Friday, the United States Olympic Festival was a guaranteed success.

"Over 200,000 tickets already have been sold," Jack Kelly, vice president of the Houston organizing committee, said. "The advanced sales are way up over their levels. We have taken in over $1.6 million already, which is an all-time record."

Kelly was especially happy with the ticket sales for some of the less-publicized sports.

"What has been beyond our expectations is the sales for sports that have not always done well — fencing, equestrian, volleyball. Even after it was announced that the two stars of the figure skating (world champion Brian Boitano and former American champion Tiffany Chin) were not coming, we sold another 1,500 tickets."

NL: Rained-out New York boosts lead to 15

ATLANTA (AP) — The New York Mets led their biggest lead of the season in the National League East Friday night despite being rained out of their scheduled game with the Atlanta Braves here.

By virtue of second-place Montreal's 9-2 loss to Cincinnati, the Mets increased their margin by a half-game to 15 games.

Friday's game here was postponed by rain following a two-hour, 35-minute rain delay with New York leading 2-0 in the first inning.

The game will be made up Saturday — as part of a two-night doubleheader beginning at 3:40 p.m. EDT.

Dwight Gooden, 10-4, and Sid Fernandez, 12-7, will pitch for New York, Zane Smith, 7-10, and Jim Acker, 0-0, will pitch for Atlanta.

Cincinnati 9 Montreal 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Eric Davis, who raised his batting average to .309 with a three-hit night on which the Cincinnati Reds belted Montreal 9-2, is surprised only by the speed of his breakthrough.

"I never lost confidence, but I didn't expect it to come so fast," said the outfielder Friday night.

"I'd be scared to see what he'd do if he went to the post 15 times," said Pete Rose. "If he can just avoid injuries..."

Baseball

Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers dismissed the loss, saying, "It was a reprieve for the bullpen. But they'll be ready tomorrow night." The bullpen reprieve was provided by infielder Vance Law, who made his third pitching appearance of the season.

Among Davis' three hits was his 15th home run of the year. It brought the Reds to within 2-1 in the second. He doubled in Cincinnati's three-run fourth as the Reds took a 4-2 lead.

Eddie Milner led off the fourth with a home run. Buddy Bell broke the game open with a three-run homer in the fifth.

Davis also grounded out in the eighth inning and drove in Cincinnati's run off Law. He has now hit in 17 consecutive games, the longest current streak in the National League. It tied the previous season mark set by Montreal's Tim Lincecum.

John Denny pitched a five-hitter and raised his record to 7-9. He walked a batter and struck out four.

Philadelphia 4 Houston 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt hit his 22nd home run of the year and Charles Hudson allowed only one unearned run over six innings as the Philadelphia Phillies ended the Astros' seven-game winning streak with a 4-2 victory over Houston Friday night.

Schmidt leads the National League with 74 RBI, and is now tied with Cincinnati's Dave Parker for the home run lead.

Hudson, 6-9, allowed five hits, struck out three and walked two. Jim Deshaies, 5-3, took the loss. Steve Bedrosian pitched the final two innings to gain his 13th save.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the first when Gary Redus led off with a double and two outs later scored on a Don Hayes single.

Deshaies' wildness gave the Phillies their second run in the second inning. After leading the bases on walks he issued another with two outs to Ron Roenicke to force in a run.

In the third the Astros loaded the bases with no outs, but Hudson got Glenn Davis on a popout before Kevin Bass grounded into a force out.

Doran scored. Hudson then retired Jose Cruz on a roller to second.

Schmidt opened the third inning with his homer, a drive to deep center field on an 0-1 pitch from reliever Larry Anderson. The Phillies added their final run in the fifth on Glenn Wilson's sacrifice fly.

San Francisco 7 Pittsburgh 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh first baseman Sid Bream committed two run-scoring errors during San Francisco's four-run third inning and Dan Gladden hit a two-run double in the fifth as the Giants defeated the Pirates 7-3 Friday night.

The victory snapped a three-game Giants' losing streak and was Pittsburgh's fourth straight loss.

Roger Mason, 3-4, worked 5 2/3 innings, giving up six hits, for the victory. The three runs off him came on Barry Bonds' bases-empty homer and R.J. Reynolds' two-run shot.

Jeff Robinson finished, allowing two hits, for his sixth save.

The Giants took a 4-0 lead in the third. Gladden singled and scored on Robby Thompson's double before Chris Brown lined an RBI single to center.

Brown then scored from first when Bream misplayed Harry Spillman's hard-hit grounder for a two-base error. Bob Melvin singled and Spillman scored on the play as Bream threw wildly for his second error of the inning.

Bonds, who had only one hit in his previous 34 at-bats, hit a long solo homer to right in the Pirates' third before the Giants increased their lead to 7-1 in the fifth.

Spillman singled and Melvin walked ahead of Jose Uribe's run-scoring single, chasing Pirates' starter Mike Bielecki, 6-6. Gladden followed with a two-run double to left-center off Rick Reuschel, who was pitching in relief for the first time in 22 appearances this season.

U.L. Washington drew a leadoff walk in the sixth before Reynolds hit his ninth homer of the season over the right-field wall.

Chicago 8 Los Angeles 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Trout limited Los Angeles to five hits over six innings and Jody Davis hit a two-run homer Friday, leading the Chicago Cubs to an 8-3 triumph over the Dodgers.

Keith Moreland had four hits, scored two runs and knocked in another to help the Cubs snap the Dodgers' four-game winning streak.

Trout, 4-3, won his first game since June 8 by not allowing a run while striking out four and walking two.

Trout, who has not had a complete game since last September, was relieved in the seventh by Dave Gumpert. Lee Smith pitched the final 12 1/3 innings for his 17th save.

Davis' homer, his 13th of the season, came in the eighth after the Dodgers had rallied from a four-run deficit and climbed to within 5-3.

St. Louis 3 San Diego 2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Forsch scattered six hits while pitching into the eighth inning and Vince Coleman and Ozzie Smith singled home runs in the second as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the San Diego Padres 3-2 Friday night for their fourth straight victory.

Coleman also stole second and scored in the first inning. He stole his major-league leading 62nd and 63rd bases in the game.

Forsch won his third straight start and equaled his 1985 record of 9-6. Todd Worrell stopped a Padres' rally in the eighth and pitched the ninth for his 19th save.

Ed Whitson, 0-2, was the loser in his third start for the Padres after being re-acquired from the New York Yankees on July 9. Forsch beat Whitson 4-2 on July 12th.

Forsch left leading 3-1 after pinch-hitter Dane Igo opened the eighth with a double. Ricky Horton surrendered an RBI single to Tony Gwynn and an out later allowed another hit.

AL: Clemens revives Boston with a two-hitter at California

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Roger Clemens, the top winner in the major leagues, pitched the first two-hitter of his career and Rick Cedeno hit a grand slam Friday night as the Boston Red Sox broke a four-game losing streak by beating the California Angels 8-1.

Clemens, 17-2, allowed doubles to Reggie Jackson in the fifth inning and Jerry Narron in the seventh. Clemens, 10-0 on the road this season, struck out seven and walked two in his seventh complete game.

The victory, combined with New York's 9-5 loss to Minnesota, gave Boston a four-game lead in the American League East. California's loss, combined by Texas' 7-5 victory over Cleveland, trimmed the Angels' advantage atop the AL West to two games.

Gedman's second career grand slam capped a five-run fifth inning that chased John Candelaria, 3-1. The Red Sox have hit three grand slams this season, all in support of Clemens.

Boston jumped to a 3-0 lead in the third, a double by Kevin Romine and walks to Ray Quinones and Marly Barrett loaded the bases before Wade Boggs hit a sacrifice fly. Bill Buckner followed with a two-run double.

A single by Barrett and a walk to Boggs opened the fifth. Candelaria departed after Buckner's fly to center moved Barrett to third, and Jim Rice greeted reliever Vern

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Ruble with an RBI single.

Rice was forced on Don Baylor's grounder before Dwight Evans walked to load the bases. Gedman then connected for the seventh homer.

The Angels scored in the fifth when Jackson led off with a double, moved to third on a grounder and came home on Brian Dunder's sacrifice fly.

Minnesota 9 New York 5

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Gaetti drove in five runs with two homers, backing Neal Heaton to his first victory with Minnesota as the Twins beat New York 9-5 Friday night, ending the Yankees' three-game winning streak.

Minnesota sent 11 men to the plate in the second inning, scoring six runs. Gaetti had a three-run home run and Kirby Puckett a two-run homer in the inning. Gaetti added a two-run home run in the seventh, giving him 21 this season.

scoreless until the sixth inning when they got two runs and chased the Twins lefty. Don Mattingly hit a solo homer in the inning, his 19th.

Heaton, who lost his first three decisions after being traded from Cleveland on June 20, gave up four hits, walked four and did not strike out a batter in 5 2/3 innings, leaving with a mildly strained neck. Keith Alberton finished for his ninth save, yielding three runs, including Dave Winfield's 15th homer.

Baltimore 6 Chicago 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fred Lynn and Rick Dempsey hit solo home runs Friday night as the Baltimore Orioles beat Chicago 6-2 and sent the White Sox to their fifth straight loss.

Mike Boddicker, 19-5, allowed one run on six hits in seven innings. Don Aase finished up for his major league-leading 26th save.

Neil Allen, 7-2, who had pitched two consecutive shutouts, took the loss. The Orioles ended Allen's scoreless string at 2 1/3 innings when Lee Lacy led off the fourth with a single, took third on a single by Lynn and scored as Cal Ripken grounded into a double play.

Lynn broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth with his 17th home run of the season. Lynn connected on a 2-2 delivery from Allen. On the previous pitch, Lynn checked his swing and after an appeal by the White Sox, third base

Milwaukee 4 Seattle 2

SEATTLE (AP) — Ted Higuera checked Seattle on five hits over seven innings and Charlie Moore drove in two runs with a bases-loaded double Friday night, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-2 victory over the Mariners.

Higuera, 12-7, struck out 10 and walked two. Mark Clear pitched the final two innings for his sixth save.

The Brewers collected 10 hits and drew four walks but had five runners thrown out trying to take an extra base.

Texas 7 Cleveland 5

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Pete Incaviglia's run-scoring single broke a seventh-inning tie and Larry Parrish drove in three runs Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 7-5.

The Indians, trailing 5-0 after five innings, tied it with one run in the sixth and four more in the seventh. But Texas scored twice in the seventh against Scott Bailes, 7-6.

Oddibe McDowell led off with a single and took third on a double by Scott Fletcher, his fourth hit of the game. After Pete O'Brien lined out, Ernie Camacho relieved Bailes and gave up Incaviglia's single. Parrish followed with his second sacrifice fly of the game.

Los Angeles 4 Detroit 9

DETROIT (AP) — John Grubb homered and drove in four runs and Kirk Gibson and Lance Parrish hit consecutive homers Friday night, leading the Detroit Tigers past the Kansas City Royals 9-2.

Rookie Eric King, 7-2, gave up one run on five hits in 6 2/3 innings as Detroit won for the 11th time in 15 games.

Grubb broke open a 4-1 game with a three-run homer in the fifth inning, a line drive that barely cleared the fence in right field. Grubb has hit seven home runs this season, five in his last nine games.

Parrish had four of the Tigers' 15 hits. Detroit rallied 11 hits in five innings off Dennis Leonard, 6-9.

Leonard has not won in his last nine outings.

Gibson, with his 15th homer, and Parrish, with his 22nd, gave the Tigers a 4-1 lead in third.

The Tigers added two runs in the seventh inning on Grubb's sacrifice fly and a single by Chet Lemon.

Frazier will meet unbeaten heavyweight Tyson tonight

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Marvis Frazier fought 58 times as an amateur and his fifth professional bout will be Saturday against undefeated Mike Tyson. Yet he still finds himself having to defend his fondness for the sport.

"No one can make you fight," Frazier said. "It's something I wanted to do. It's in your blood. I love boxing. You'll see how much I love it on Saturday."

The question has dogged the 25-year-old Frazier since he took up boxing in high school, and it's one that has been asked more frequently since his famous father, Joe Frazier, became his trainer and manager in the early stages of his 16-1 professional career.

Indeed, the publicist for Smokin' Joe Frazier, Inc., the Frazier family corporation, distributed a news release this week here that begins: "Marvis Frazier does not know where the rumors began, but he wants to put an end to them right now! The rumors persist that Marvis is a fighter only to please his father, former world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier. Nothing could be more removed from the truth."

The November 1983 fight between Marvis Frazier and former heavyweight champion Larry Holmes seemed to add fuel to the speculation that the younger Frazier was lukewarm on boxing and that his father had overmatched him for the sake of a title shot.

Holmes pummeled Frazier with such ease that he had time between punches to look pleadingly to Frazier's corner and the referee to get the fight stopped. The bout was, at least in the first round.

"My loss to Holmes was not as bad as some people thought," Frazier said. "I got stopped by Larry, but I got up after he dropped me."

"We all got knocked down," Joe Frazier added. "The kid wasn't hurt. The kid's alive today. He's still climbing (as a contender). How wrong could I have been? He still got a half million dollars."

Even Bill Cayton, co-manager of Tyson, said Frazier's first-round knockout "could happen to anyone."

Some think Joe Frazier has gotten his son over his head again, this time in the non-title heavyweight fight, scheduled for 10 rounds, against the 24-0 Tyson. The Catskill, N.Y., fighter has acquired a reputation as a devastating puncher with 22 knockouts, 14 in the first round.

Honors for T.F. tae kwon do

TWIN FALLS — Several Twin Falls residents placed recently in a 100-kwon do tournament held in Spokane, Wash.

Long Trinh came home with top honors in his division, while DeKlois Semanick took a second-place award in breaking and third-place honors in sparring in her class and Steve Semanick won a third-place award in breaking and third place in sparring in his division.

Wes Murphy of Twin Falls collected third-place honors in sparring in his class, while Kevin Graham and the Semanicks all won the honor and dedication recognition.

The event was the Eastern Washington Tae Kwan Do Tournament, a one-day event.

McEnroe returns, loses

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — In his first match since taking a six-month hiatus from tennis — during which time he became a father — John McEnroe extended the world's top-ranked player, Ivan Lendl, to the limit in an exhibition Thursday. Lendl, who had won 100 of 106 matches since the 1985 French Open, was playing for the first time since losing to Boris Becker in the finals at Wimbledon three weeks ago. He thought both players could have played better.

Radiation for Howser

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Royals said Friday that Manager Dick Howser will undergo about five weeks of radiation treatments for the cancerous tumor found in his brain earlier this week, but declined to provide detailed results of pathological tests.

The club released a statement saying that Dr. Charles Clough, the neurosurgeon who operated on Howser Tuesday at St. Luke's Hospital, reported the pathology studies confirmed findings of a malignant tumor known as a glioma in the left frontal lobe of the brain.

Clough said after Tuesday's three-hour operation that only part of the golf-ball sized tumor could be removed, and doctors were awaiting test results before making a decision on treating the 50-year-old manager.

Dean Vogelara, the team's vice president for public relations, said that details of what the pathology tests showed about the nature and severity of the tumor are "between Dr. Clough and the Howser family."

The team's statement said, however, that Clough "remains optimistic about Howser's response to treatment."

Rookie Love leads Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Rookie Davis Love III shook off some early morning rain and minor putting difficulties Friday, and shot a 5-under-par 67 to take a three-stroke lead at 12-under 132, in the $500,000 Buick Open golf championship.

Chasing Love were Ed Flori and Bobby Wadkins, both at 9-under 135. Flori shot a 69 in the second round and Wadkins 66.

Andrew Magee's 65 was the lowest score in the second round. It catapulted him into a 13-way tie for third at 136.

Scranton supplants Johnson

WOODBRIIDGE, Ontario (AP) — Nancy Scranton was first off the tee and first in the clubhouse Friday en route to an 8-under-par 61 and the second-round lead in the LPGA du Maurier Classic tournament.

Scranton, 25, set one tournament record and tied two others as she tamed the 6,107-yard Board of Trade layout. Her 26-hole total of 10-under, 134, was a low halfway score for the only Canadian stop on the women's pro circuit and the last of the Tour's four Grand Slam events.

First-round leader Chris Johnson was one shot behind the leader after carding a 68. Another four shots back at 139 and tied for third were 1984 tournament winner Juli Inkster, who birdied her third four holes before settling for a 4-under 68, and Betsy King, with a 70.

Garland new ISU line coach

POCATELLO — Ken Garland, who has been a graduate assistant football coach at Idaho State University for the past two seasons, has been promoted to defensive line coach.

He replaces Steve Sosnowski, who resigned recently to accept another coaching position.

Garland, a native of Kent, Wash., graduated from Willamette University, where he played defensive end. After a stint as a graduate assistant at Willamette, he moved on to Western Oregon State in 1983 where he was an assistant coach in charge of running backs.

He came to Idaho State in 1984 and helped coached outside linebackers last year.

Fun runs in Burley Aug. 2

BURLEY — The Burley Recreation District will sponsor 5-kilometer and 10-kilometer road races on Saturday, Aug. 2.

"The Run Through the Fields," as the race will be called, is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m., with check-in time an hour earlier at the Burley City Pool, 1020 Park Ave.

Entry fee is $3. All runners will receive certificates and T-shirts, with special awards to age-group winners.

Cutting extravaganza in Picabo

PICABO — B-Bar-B Training Stables will sponsor a cutting horse "extravaganza" here Aug. 6-9.

Contestants will compete for more than $60,000 in prize money at the event, which will be held at B-Bar-B Ranch a mile north of here.

A new feature of this year's show is the B-Bar-B Grand Slam in which 20 riders will compete for $3,000. Riders will take part in a pro class and a non-pro class on Aug. 8.

Further information can be obtained by phoning Katie Breckenridge at 789-2229.

ISU signs JC point guard

POCATELLO — Idaho State University basketball Coach Jim Boutin has signed a seventh junior college player to a national letter of intent.

Troy Miles, a 6-foot-1 point guard from Seattle, will join three other guards Boutin has recruited this year. Miles played last season at Edmonds Community College in Seattle last season, averaging 11 points and four assists per game.

"Troy is an unselfish player who started his career as a big scorer in high school," said Boutin. "He knows how to get the ball to his teammates, but retains his outside shooting skills. His intelligence will help him as a play-making guard."

Evert Lloyd loses to Italian in Fed Cup

By LARRY SIDDOONS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver saved the top-ranked United States from elimination Friday after Italy's Sandra Cecchini upset Chris Evert Lloyd in the quarterfinals of the Federation Cup tennis competition.

Navratilova beat Italy's top player, Raffaella Reggi, 6-2, 6-2, then combined with Shriver to defeat Reggi and Laura Garrone 6-3, 6-1 after Cecchini, ranked 54th in the world, defeated the mistake-prone Lloyd 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Lloyd, the world's second-ranked player, had never lost in 29 previous Federation Cup singles matches.

In Saturday's semifinals, the Americans will meet third-seeded West Germany, whose patchwork lineup of Claudia Kohde-Kilsch and Bettina Bunge eliminated fifth-seeded Bulgaria 2-1, in a series also decided by the doubles match.

The other semifinal Saturday puts newlywed Hana Mandlikova on center court against Gabriela Sabatini as second-seeded Czechoslovakia meets seventh-seeded Argentina.

Lloyd, whose career has been amazingly free of major injuries, is suffering from tendinitis in her left knee and said it affected her mentally. If not physically, against Cecchini.

"I'm not feeling any pain. It's just up there," she said, tapping her head. "I've never been injured and I'm having trouble dealing with it. And I played a girl today who never missed a ball."

The loss was the first of the week for the Americans.

"I've never played a singles match down 1-0," said Navratilova, who has not dropped a set in her first appearance in Czechoslovakia since defecting 11 years ago. "It's a little different playing for your country than playing for yourself."

Bunge, who moved into singles play when Germany's top player, Steffi Graf, broke a toe, rallied from a 5-0 deficit in the first set to defeat Katerina Malceva 2-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Manuela Malceva, Katerina's older sister, tied the series 1-1 with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Kohde-Kilsch, before Kohde-Kilsch and Bunge took the doubles 4-1, 6-2 for a berth against the United States.

Mandlikova, the world's fourth-ranked women's player, was married Friday morning to Jan Sedlak, an Australian restaurateur who was born in Czechoslovakia and has known Mandlikova since they were teenagers.

Mandlikova said she foresook the traditional wedding dress for more casual attire at the city hall ceremony because "I had to wear white at Wimbledon, so I decided to wear leather today."

Lloyd was in winning if unimpressive form in the opening set before Cecchini started to wear her down.

She took the first three games of the second set, then dropped three in a row before taking the lead again on Lloyd's double fault, one of five the American served in the 2-hour, 20-minute match. Cecchini held for the set at 6-4 when Lloyd netted a backhand.

Lloyd made 67 unforced errors, and they started to pile up at the start of the third set. After wasting a break point and dropping to 3-1, Lloyd pulled back to 4-3 but gave away the eighth game on three unforced errors. Cecchini then broke for the match on a double fault by Lloyd and a forehand cross-court winner that had the Italian literally jumping for joy.

"I've never seen her hit so many on-pace forehands," Navratilova said of Lloyd's problems. "She's doing it subconsciously, but she's afraid to put weight on the knee."

Lloyd said she was "a bit apprehensive" but would change her attitude for the remaining matches.

"For the next two days, I'm going to go all out," she said.

Navratilova had little trouble against Reggi in the first set, then encountered "a spell of inconsistent tennis at the start of the second.

Reggie broke her twice to take a 3-1 lead before Navratilova broke back. Then the crowd, which filled Czechoslovak Premier Lubomir Strougal, got behind Navratilova and she showed her best tennis of the day.

After she held for the match, Navratilova was congratulated at court-side by Lloyd and given roses by two fans who jumped onto the court.

Australia starts fast at Commonwealth Games

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Australia, England and Canada began their traditional Commonwealth Games rivalry Friday, collecting all 11 gold medals awarded on the first day of competition at the politically battered sports festival.

As all but two of the 10 sports began after Thursday's opening ceremony, Australia won three gold medals in the pool and two in weightlifting.

Canada won the other two swimming finals, with 200-meter star Victor Davis gaining his first major title at 100 meters but disappointing himself and his fans by failing to break the world record.

The Canadians also did well in shooting, striking gold in the air rifle pairs and free pistol events.

England won the other two gold medals, in shooting and cycling.

The Australians led the medal table with 11 — five golds, three silvers and three bronzes — followed by England with nine and Canada, all of whose medals were gold, with four.

The effect of the mass political boycott by 31 of the original 56 countries, colonies and territories that entered the games immediately left its mark. Three medals were not awarded because of lack of competitors.

Silver and bronze were scrapped in the 52-kilogram weightlifting division, where there were only three participants, while the women's 800-meter freestyle swimming relay had only four teams and no bronze medalist.

In all, more than 700 athletes are absent because of the boycott protesting British Minister Margaret Thatcher's refusal to impose stringent economic sanctions against South Africa.

Suzanne Landells, a silver medalist at the Los Angeles Olympic Games, smashed the six-year-old Commonwealth record of Sharon Davies in the 400-meter individual medley, clocking 4:58.82 and giving Australia its first gold medal in the pool.

Shanean Armstrong produced a strong finish to win the 400-meter freestyle in 3:52.25, a record for the games, and the Australians triumphed again when their women won their first Commonwealth 800 freestyle relay title, somewhat downgraded by the fact that only three other nations took part.

Weightlifters Nick Vouklatos in the 56-kilogram class and Greg Hayman in the 32-kilogram division were the other two Australian winners.

Both set games records, Hayman after coming out of retirement for Edinburgh.

Scotsman Charles Revolta and Alan Ogilvie left the arena without a medal because of the games ruling that requires five competitors before silver and bronze medals are awarded.

"It's ironic that the impact of the boycott is being maximized by this interpretation of the rules," said Revolta, a silver medalist at the 1978 Commonwealth Games in Edmonton.

Canada won the first two swimming gold medals of the games. Jane Kerr snatched victory in an exciting women's 100-meter freestyle that saw the first three finishers separated by only four-hundredths of a second.

Then it was Davis' turn to go for Steve Lundquist's world record after posting the fastest time in the world this year during the morning heats.

But the 22-year-old from Waterloo, Ontario, did not get close and finished in 1:03.01, almost 1.5 seconds outside Lundquist's mark.

Davis at least gained revenge for a defeat by Adrian Moorhouse at Brisbane four years ago. He was behind at the turn and needed all his strength in the last 20 meters to edge the Englishman.

In shooting, 19-year-old Sharon Bowes made Commonwealth Games history on three fronts for Canada.

The first woman shooter to represent her country in the games, she also won the gold medal in the air rifle pairs partnered with Guy Lorton, and set a Commonwealth record of 1,167 points. Canada also won the free pistol pairs event.

The first gold medal of the games went to England's cyclists, in the 100-km road team time trial.

The victorious quartet of Paul Curran, Dano Davle, Alan Gornall and Keith Reynolds completed the course in two hours, 13 minutes, 16 seconds, more than 1½ minutes ahead of New Zealand. Northern Ireland won the team time trial.

England's other gold medal was in shooting, with Ian Peel and Peter Boden carrying off the shotgun Olympic trench title with 183 points.

No finals were held in rowing, boxing, badminton or lawn bowls while the track and field competition was postponed to start Saturday. The wrestling competition begins next week.
