Idaho Power to ask PUC to reconsider rates

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Co. is expected to ask the Public Utilities Commission Friday to reconsider a $66.2 million rate increase request which the PUC all but turned down earlier this month.

The deadline to reconsider is Friday and the PUC could reject the request outright, agree to hear it, or order rehearings, said PUC Spokesman Rene Kimball.

The PUC granted $981,567 of the utility's $66.2 million request, a decision which company officials said stunned them but citizen groups and farmers greeted with relief. The company had scaled down its initial request of $84.2 million.

The increase approved by the PUC would add 9 cents to the monthly bill of the average residential customer.

Idaho Power said higher rates would allow the company to remain strong in a soft economy.

The largest factor in the PUC's rejection of the rate request was the company's move to complete the Valmy II coal-fired plant in northern Nevada, said PUC President Perry Swisher. The power wasn't needed until 1991, he said.

Utility cases are offered in two phases, with the first part focusing on the rate request and the second on how rates should be allocated among the various classes of customers, such as irrigators and residential users.

The PUC agreed to accept Idaho Power's request to postpone the second phase while the company worked on preparing its reconsideration petition. A team of Idaho Power rate analysts and accountants was combing through the 137-page decision for flaws shortly after it was issued.

Idaho Power says it has found computational errors in the rate order, which should be corrected before the second phase. The company also said it will ask the PUC to reconsider a number of issues in the case.

Company officials have been mum on what their in-house analysis of the rate decision showed.

Swisher said the rate decision wouldn't hurt the company at all. Even with the denial of most of the rate request, the company was still in a strong position financially because 65 percent of its power is generated by water, which is cheaper than relying on thermal fuels, he said.

The impact on the company's financial position is likely to figure in Idaho Power's request for reconsideration.

"Our company's financial position cannot be based on snowpacks and surplus energy markets over which we have no control," said Dewey Hammond, IPC's controller.

The latest IPC newsletter for the news media devoted most of its space to a report on company earnings being down in the second quarter.

Berg buckled liner's plates

By LEE BYRD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Explorer Robert Ballard on Tuesday unveiled a photographic treasure obtained on his second — and avowedly final — visit to the Titanic, including evidence certain to revise historical accounts of how the great liner went down.

Ballard, who discovered the sunken luxury ship in the North Atlantic on Sept. 1 last year, said its collision with an iceberg in April, 1912, did not create a huge gash in the hull — as many, including himself, had long supposed. Instead, he said, the 12-inch-thick plates on the hull simply buckled enough to create a fatal leak.

Ballard told reporters the comprehensive photographic exploration of the wreck in 12 dives earlier this month showed "absolutely, no evidence" of a gash, estimated in some accounts as 500 feet long.

The impact popped rivets and buckled plates, however, many of which can be seen clearly in the more than 50 hours of videotape and 57,000 still photos shot by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution crew headed by Ballard.

Ballard said also that the fact the stern of the liner was found 600 meters from the bow section shows that the ship broke apart, not when it hit bottom, 12,500 feet from the surface, but on the way down. He theorized the ship might have imploded from the pressure.

Ballard described the "frozen terror" of the stern section. "You really felt it when you were there" in the tiny, three-man submarine, called Alvin, that scoured the wreckage.

"The sheer carnage... it looked violent and destructive."

On the other hand, he said, the bow section was much more intact, though all four funnels have disappeared — perhaps disintegrated — and "the entire wheelhouse has been eaten" by wood-boring organisms.

Ballard's photos showed millions upon millions of the tube-like skeletons of the creatures that dined on the organic remains of the Titanic. Scientists previously had not known that such creatures lived at those extreme depths.

Ballard said he was not surprised, after noting "the absence of any wood, anything organic," that he found no evidence of human remains. The only organic artifact found was a patent leather shoe, he said.

Ballard said he spotted one safe, and photos taken by a sled-rigged Angus and a robotic video scout called Jason Jr., showed at least four others.

But he said that anyone who tries to salvage such artifacts isn't likely to get his money's worth. Most retrievable objects — those lying

Priest meets pope, then flies to London

The Associated Press

LONDON — An American priest held in Lebanon for nearly 19 months gave Pope John Paul II a message from his Shiite Muslim captors Wednesday and then flew to London to deliver it to the archbishop of Canterbury.

"The religious factor is of great importance" in achieving his freedom, the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, 51, told reporters in Rome after his audience with the pope.

Jenco arrived at the Royal Air Force base at Northolt outside London with the Anglican archbishop's special envoy, Terry Waite, who is thought to have been instrumental in his release.

Neither would discuss the role played by Waite, whom Archbishop Robert Runcie has sent to Lebanon several times to work for the release of kidnap victims.

The Roman Catholic priest, a native of Joliet, Ill., was kidnapped Jan. 8, 1985, and released Saturday. He is to deliver the message to Runcie, spiritual head of the Church of England, today.

Runcie's office said Jenco would spend Wednesday night at an undisclosed location arranged by the Servite Order of Brothers, his religious order.

Jenco, looking pale and tired, met with reporters in Rome but would not disclose the message he was carrying from his captors. He said he also had one for President Reagan but would not say whether it was the same.

"Sometimes I can't answer your questions," he said softly. "I have fear that what I may say might be detrimental to my brothers who are still held hostage in Lebanon... My silence is a shout of care and concern for those who are still held."

A U.S. government official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the message to Reagan was similar, "a confidential message directly to the president from the captors."

He said U.S. officials also met with the Vatican secretary of state, Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, to discuss the hostage situation.

GIs' 42-year-late letters hand-delivered by top postman

By BILL McCLOSKEY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Terry Espinosa finally received a letter from her boyfriend Raul Alvarez on Wednesday — 42 years late and hand-delivered by the postmaster general of the United States.

That letter and 234 others turned up recently in an attic in North Cornwall, dumped there in a duffel bag with some socks by a scared soldier who forgot to mail them.

In his letter Alvarez promised "No one will ever come between us."

Although the letter was sent in May, 1944, and not delivered until 1986, she held him to the promise.

They married in 1950.

After years of listening to complaints of the postal service losing mail, Alvarez, a former letter carrier in Livermore, Calif., said, he was glad to see something "really show that the postal service is doing something good."

Postmaster General Albert V. Casey has pledged to try to find the senders of all 235 pieces of World War II-era mail.

Raleigh, N.C., Postmaster Ross Garuiski got the letters in June from an exterminator who found them in an attic.

Garuiski said the letters were apparently hidden by a young man who was supposed to mail them.

According to the resident of the house, the letters were hidden in the attic by her nephew — now deceased — because he was afraid he would get in trouble for not carrying out the order to mail them when his leg returned to the United States from taking replacement troops to combat.

In order to get her permission to take the mail to the post office, the exterminator, Michael Minguez, promised not to mention the woman's name or that of her nephew.

One letter writer, Wall Dropp, former first baseman for the Boston Red Sox, explained during a ceremony at postal headquarters that men on board the Liberty Ship Caleb Strong wrote the letters en route to Oran, Algeria, from Newport News, Va.

"You'll be getting mail a little more regularly from now on," Dropp said in his letter to his mom and dad.

He said the ship was attacked on the 18-day voyage, but the letters focused on the weather and personal health and thoughts, because of wartime censorship.

Most were mailed postage-free by the servicemen, but some had 6-and-8-cent stamps of the day, which were required for air mail service.

So far, Casey said, 16 of the letters have been delivered. The Veterans Administration is searching for forwarding addresses of the 79 other letter writers.

After Jane Delaney's ceremony staged for reporters, the Postal Service was host at a luncheon for four of the letter writers.

Net income dropped 12 percent from last year's second quarter, while earnings per share of common stock showed a 16-percent decline, according to the company. IPC cited a 3.6-percent drop for firm energy sales in the second quarter, due to moderate temperatures and low customer growth because of a stagnant economy. "Electricity sales involve continuing contracts or other relatively constant demand. They include residential and general business accounts. Non-firm energy sales are made to other utilities, generally from power surpluses. However, the utility's overall operating expenses were down due to heavy runoff that allowed abundant hydroelectric generation and reduced coal consumption, the company said. IPC said these factors were overshadowed by lower revenues and higher fixed costs. The newsletter did not give figures for fixed costs and operating expenses. Idaho Power said the PUC's recent rate order allowed a 12.75-percent return on common equity, but earnings translate into an earned return on common equity of 10.8 percent — down from 14.2 percent last year. "Should the company lose again before the PUC, IPC Rate Manager Larry Crowley said, it would likely appeal to the state Supreme Court. This is a forum where Idaho Power has had some success in winning its rate requests.

directly on the ocean floor — are from the storage area of the luxury ship, he said. There is no way, contrary to published fictional suggestions, to raise the broken ship itself, he added. Rust was everywhere on the wreckage, except for copper and ceramic objects. The photos showed gleaming copper pots and pans from the ship's kitchen, the head of a doll, a copper cup sitting upright atop one of the engine boilers. "It would have been easy to retrieve these things," said Ballard. He added he was better to leave them where they were. "He added he saw no need for scientists to return to the vessel, and he declined comment on plans by a West Texas oilman, Jack Grimm, to attempt to salvage such items. Days earlier, Ballard expressed the hope that people will leave the Titanic alone so it and the 1,513 passengers who perished can "finally rest in peace."

Ballard met reporters Wednesday at the National Geographic Society headquarters, where Navy Secretary John Lehman commended the Woods Hole team and pronounced Ballard the Navy's "Bottom Gun," a title conferred in the wake of the hit movie "Top Gun."

Ballard talked of the problems he and his crew had getting oriented when they reached the liner, which was as long as three football fields and 11 stories high.

Because there is no light at the bottom, it is impossible to get a perspective of the vessel from a distance, he said. And up close, "It's like standing up against a Sepoia with a flashlight and you say, 'That's great bark' while you're trying to map the forest." Each of the 12 dives lasted about eight hours, with three hours at the Titanic.

I have reread very carefully the statement I made to the committee in 1971 and have no reason to doubt its correctness now. "Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., revealed the existence of the restrictive deed on the Rehnquist family's summer home, asking the justice whether he considered it a problem. Rehnquist conceded that it was, but he added that the restriction "is meaningless in today's world — It is unenforceable under the Constitution or federal law. "He said he did not know about the restriction when he bought the home, calling it "quite obnoxious." "If there's a procedure under Vermont law in which one could remove the restriction from the deed I certainly would go through it," Rehnquist said. After Rehnquist had testified more than five hours, the committee adjourned until today when he again will be in the witness chair. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, engaged Rehnquist in a sharp exchange over the ballot-challenging episode. Metzenbaum said the issue is not harassment but whether Rehnquist was "factually accurate" with the committee in 1971, and is being completely candid now. "Did you ever approach any voters in polling booths and speak to them about their qualifications to vote?" Metzenbaum asked. "No, I don't believe I did," Rehnquist responded. The senator asked, "Did you ever challenge a voter's qualifications?" "Not in the voting booth, but that I can recall," the justice said. "Do you recall having voters read from a card?"

Correction

TWIN FALLS — A story in The Times-News Wednesday about the campaign finances of Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, and his Republican opponent Mel Richardson contained a typographical error. The fourth paragraph should have read, "Most of Richardson's money, 57 percent, was donated by individuals, while 34 percent of Stallings' money was from individuals." The Times-News regrets the error.

Universities combine efforts to bring energy lab to state

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho's three universities have launched a lobbying effort for the Department of Energy's proposed multimillion-dollar Superconducting Super Collider, says the head of the Inter-university SSC Committee.

Varada Charyulu, dean of the College of Engineering at Idaho State University, said the committee is made up of faculty representatives from ISU, Boise State and the University of Idaho. It is the advisory group to the SSC Task Force, which is coordinating the state's bid for the basic research project.

Idaho is among more than 20 states vying for the SSC, which would cost an estimated $6 billion and add thousands of jobs in eastern Idaho. At about 60 miles in circumference, it would be the world's largest atom smasher.

Energy Secretary John Herrington is expected to make an announcement on SSC funding by September.

But Charyulu said money for the project, competing with President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative and construction of a replacement for the space shuttle Challenger, may be held up until next year.

Meanwhile, university officials are dropping local differences and citing potential educational benefits in campaigning to locate the SSC at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Even though ISU is closest to the INEL, Charyulu said the SSC project would benefit the state's entire, higher education system, and not only in the sciences.

As the INEL became a center for research into the creation of matter, Charyulu said the research would attract international scholars.

With that in mind, he said a communications network linking Idaho campuses to the INEL already is being set up.

Backers of locating the SSC in Idaho point out the benefits of the INEL site, including available federal land, technology and lower power costs that could cut $50 million from the atom-smasher's annual operating budget.

But proponents also have said that a greater commitment to educational funding is needed to improve Idaho's chances of landing the project.

Charyulu said Idaho's higher education system needs $10 million to $12 million in state funding, earmarked directly in attracting the SSC, as well as an improved commitment to overall university funding.

State legislators last winter overwhelmingly approved a concurrent resolution urging Congress to grant the SSC to Idaho.

"At the same time, we have not seen anything positive (such as) tax reform bills," Charyulu said.

Hay donations far above expected levels

BOISE (AP) — The response of Idahoans to the need for hay in the withered Southeast has exceeded the estimates of state officials.

A toll-free telephone number at the Idaho Department of Agriculture was kept busy most of Tuesday with hay pledges, usually in the 2- to 5-ton range.

But the donation Tuesday from a Pillsbury plant in Shelley has topped that, pledging 500 tons of hay or enough to fill 15 railroad box cars, said Rick Phillips, assistant to the director at the Agriculture Department.

"I had no idea we'd have this kind of a response. We were here until 12 midnight Monday receiving calls," he said.

Phillips said Tuesday that he hasn't added up the total amount of donations by farmers in Idaho.

The hay-collecting effort began when the Union Pacific Railroad offered to transport donated hay at no charge to the drought-stricken Southern farmers.

The hay will go to Union Pacific to Memphis, Tenn., where the Southern Railroad will take over. Southern also is donating transportation costs.

Western House members forestall attempt to raise BLM grazing fees

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — An attempt to raise Bureau of Land Management grazing fees has been halted through a parliamentary maneuver by Western members of the U.S. House of Representatives.

The proposed increase was included in the appropriations bill for the U.S. Department of Interior and such policy language in appropriations bills forbids the inclusion of such policy language in appropriations bills.

The House Rules Committee on Tuesday declined to grant a waiver for the fee increase as requested by the House Appropriations Committee, meaning representatives can delete the provision by raising a point of order.

The proposal would increase the fee from $1.35 per animal unit month, the amount of forage eaten by a cow and calf in one month, to as much as $4.80.

Congress failed to set a new fee formula after the old one expired last year, President Ronald Reagan signed an order freezing the grazing fees.

Supporters of the increase provision said they could not understand why Western ranchers should not be expected to pay more for the use of federal grazing land as the Reagan administration has called for in the use of national parks and other federal lands.

"The (House Interior Appropriations) committee tried to act reasonably on the grazing fees," said Rep. Sid Yates, D-Ill., subcommittee chairman. "Perhaps that's why we have so much opposition to it. What is there about grazing fees that is so sacred? Why shouldn't they pay a fair price for the use of federal lands?"

But House members from the West said an increase would be a disaster for ranchers.

Several pointed out the subcommittee held no hearings on the proposed increase.

"This is much too important to be decided without hearings," said Rep. Joe Stoen, R-W.Va.

"We have a legislative issue that has a long history of being dealt with in a manner that is extraordinarily disastrous to the livestock industry," said Rep. Ken Kramer, R-Colo.

Federal grazing lands are empty because depressed livestock market conditions are driving ranchers out of business, said Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho.

"It is not a question of how much the cattlemen are going to pay, it is whether they will be on the land. (Raising fees in the spending bill) should not be tolerated at a time when the industry affected is in dire straits."

'Abducted' Eagle store clerk charged with embezzlement

BOISE (AP) — An Eagle convenience store clerk has been charged with embezzlement of $5,000 of money from the Gopher store where he worked.

Richard Ramsey returned to Boise after apparently staging his own abduction from the store over the weekend, an Ada County sheriff's spokesman said.

Ada County Sheriff's Capt. Tom Taylor said Ramsey was charged with taking a "significant amount" of money from the store on Wednesday.

4th District Magistrate Richard Ramsey returned to Boise after apparently staging his own abduction from the store over the weekend, an Ada County sheriff's spokesman said.

The sheriff's office had assumed he was the victim of a robbery and kidnapping early Saturday morning.

Judge accepts, then drops inmates' suit

BOISE (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Harold Ryan has approved the filing of a lawsuit by three Idaho State Penitentiary inmates, and then dismissed it at the same time.

Inmates Dale Lawrence, David Holm and Donald Holmes alleged a "federal boot" lawsuit that their civil rights were being violated by prison plans to transfer them from the main state prison south of Boise to another prison facility at Orofino.

Two have been transferred since the lawsuit was filed.

The inmates said they are protective custody inmates, who must be kept segregated from the general prison population. If they are moved to Orofino, they will have to be kept "locked down" to protect them from the general prison population, the suit said.

Lawrence, Holm and Holmes alleged that if they were transferred to Orofino, they would lose their only source of income, sale of blood plasma to a Boise company.

Ryan allowed the inmates to file the lawsuit without paying the usual fees, then dismissed their claims.

If the inmates are alleging their civil rights are being violated by prison conditions, then they should join another lawsuit filed earlier, which covers much the same grounds, Ryan said.

Inmates also have no legal argument over transfer plans, the judge said. No laws covers transfers, Ryan said. "Absent some state law or regulation limiting prison officials' discretion, an inmate can be transferred for whatever reason or no reason at all," Ryan ruled.

Bonneville board, teachers in accord

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The East Bonneville Education Association and the Bonneville School Board have reached a tentative agreement on a teachers contract for the 1986-87 school year.

The agreement came Tuesday after nearly seven hours of closed-door negotiations with a federal mediator in Idaho Falls. No details were released pending ratification by district trustees and the EBBA.

"We have an agreement and that's what we set out to do," said Bob Marchus, EBBA chief negotiator.

"We set out to get an agreement before school started and we have accomplished that."

Split court reverses theft case conviction

BOISE (AP) — Ruling that the state had no jurisdiction in the case, a divided Idaho Supreme Court overturned a Nez Perce Indian woman's conviction for grand theft by possession of stolen property.

The high court voted 3 to 2 on Wednesday to strike down the verdict returned by a 2nd District Court jury against Melvina Hazel Major. Her alleged possession of stolen property found on the reservation guilty of possessing stolen property on the Nez Perce Indian Reservation, where the state has no power to prosecute such an offense.

The tribe in 1965 agreed to grant the state jurisdiction over 18 offenses on the reservation, including receiving stolen property. But the court's majority opinion, written by Justice Stephen Bigsline, said none of the listed offenses was "broad enough to include Major's alleged crime."

"Had Major been charged with receiving stolen property, our result might have been different," Bigsline said. "This, however, is not the question before us."

The items allegedly stolen were recovered inside the reservation and from a pawn shop in Lewiston. However, the Supreme Court said there was reason to believe Major was convicted primarily based on her alleged possession of stolen property found on the reservation rather than in the city.

In dissent, Justice Robert Bakes said the majority's distinction between "receiving" and "possessing" stolen property ignored the intent of Idaho law and the Nez Perce tribe's jurisdictional agreement with the state.

Bakes was joined in dissent by Justice Allan Shepherd, Justice Robert Huntley and Chief Justice Charles Donaldson agreed with Bigsline's majority opinion returning the case to 2nd District Court for a new trial.

Venue decision upheld

BOISE (AP) — In a 3-2 decision Wednesday, the Idaho Supreme Court has upheld a district judge's decision ordering a lawsuit over a controversial state land trade to be heard in Bonner County.

But it may be an empty victory for the Priest Lake Coalition, Inc. The court noted that the proper action appears to be an appeal from a state Land Board decision, and that should be done in Ada County.

The coalition is trying to overturn a Land Board decision approving a land trade with Diamond Land Corp. at Priest Lake. The corporation is trying to develop a large recreation-residential development at Huckleberry Bay.

First District Judge Gary Haman ruled that Bonner County was the proper place to hear the coalition's request for a writ of mandate, forcing the Land Board to reverse its decision favoring the project.

The state appealed, but the Supreme Court on Wednesday upheld Haman's decision "because the Land Board action directly affects many Bonner County residents; the legal action should be heard there."

Harwood resigns office

BOISE (AP) — Pat Harwood, who has battled multiple sclerosis for the past eight years, has announced his resignation as president of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, citing health reasons.

Stricken by the deterioration of the central nervous system shortly after taking over as IACI president, Harwood, 55, said his doctor had advised him that his health will fail faster if he continued to work.

"You have to put your priorities straight," he said. "When you get to the point where it is affecting your health, you have to think of your family."

A search committee has been formed to select a new president. Harwood said he would remain on the job until his successor is chosen.

Chubbuck pool bond fails

CHUBBUCK (AP) — Despite predictions of passage for a $75,000 bond issue to underwrite a new municipal swimming pool, voters have rejected the property-tax-raising proposition.

The 15-year bond needed a two-thirds majority but was supported by only 54 percent of the voters going to the polls on Tuesday. The vote was 547 for the bond issue and 451 against it.

The pool would have included a wave-making machine similar to one in Salt Lake City.

"If Chubbuck is to grow now, we must become progressive and look ahead to the future," said Mark Bunce, a member of the committee that campaigned for the project. "If we don't, the only direction is backward and I am not prepared to take that step."

Former deputy files suit

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A former Bingham County civil deputy and candidate for a county commissioner seat has filed suit against the Blackfoot Police Department and Bingham County Sheriff's Office, alleging police harassment and violation of her civil rights.

Barbara Kay Oliver Boehme's suit, filed on July 23, seeks $100,000 in general damages, $3,840 for lost wages and $835.45 for medical expenses.

According to the suit, Boehme received permanent injuries "sustained from the use of excessive and unnecessary force" in the parking lot of the Hitching Post bar in Blackfoot on Feb. 24.

Ms. Boehme claims that at about 10 p.m., Bingham County Deputy M.A. Robbs and Blackfoot Police Officer Brent Crystal threw her into a parked pickup truck, breaking her left thumb.

She claims that about two hours later, Robbs, Bingham County Deputy Gene Bradley and Blackfoot Police Officer Kirk Murphy again used force as they cuffed her hands behind her back and lifted her into the air by her arms.

The suit also claims that the officers were improperly trained, she was falsely arrested and was denied immediate medical aid.

Leroy calls for rehearing

BOISE (AP) — Republican governor candidate David Leroy is urging the Bureau of Land Management to add another hearing at St. Anthony on a proposed farm-to-market road in eastern Idaho.

The BLM already plans hearings in Boise and Idaho Falls over the proposed Egin-Hamer Road in Jefferson and Fremont counties. Farm groups have been urging construction of a 9-mile road to make it easier to haul crops to market.

Outdoor groups allege the road would bisect important elk winter habitat and perhaps disrupt the elk.

In a letter to Delmar Vail, state BLM director, Leroy said the BLM's hearing schedule does not include a hearing in Jefferson, Madison or Fremont counties, where the road is to be located.

Inmate wants case tried

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — An inmate at the Idaho State Correctional Institution at Orofino has asked for a trial on the rape charge that sent him to prison and for reconsideration of his sentence.

Barry King, acting on his own behalf, filed a petition in 7th District Court seeking post-conviction relief and asking to vacate his guilty plea in the 1980 rape case.

King claims he was coerced by the prosecuting attorney and his own counsel into pleading guilty to the charge. He says he was under "mental duress" due to withdrawal from narcotics and alcohol, so his plea was involuntary.

The former St. Anthony resident said in the petition his court-appointed attorney, Roger Hoopes of Rexburg, spent only two hours outside the courtroom on the case.

King and two other men were charged in July 1981 with raping a Teton girl. King was sentenced to 10 years in the state penitentiary, and the other men were given withheld judgments.

At the time of the alleged rape, King was on probation on a first-degree burglary conviction, and Judge Grant L. Young ordered the two sentences to run consecutively. King is asking to have the sentence imposed in the rape case run concurrently with the burglary sentence.

He also has asked to disqualify Young from ruling on his petition.

Toddler's body found in Boise River

BOISE (AP) — The body of a 19-month-old baby who disappeared from his mother's Boise apartment last night, was found late Wednesday morning in the Boise River.

Two men discovered the body of Steven Christopher Ashley floating in the river at a beaver dam less than 100 yards from the apartment.

Although attempts were made to revive the child, there were no signs of life when the baby was taken to St. Luke's Hospital. John Nostlo, one of the two men who found the child, said.

Falling tree kills logger

SANDPOINT (AP) — A 45-year-old Sagle man was killed in a logging accident near Jewel Lake in southern Bonner County, the sheriff's department reported.

Larry Ray O'Donnell was working on Pine Mountain when he was struck by a falling tree about 1 p.m. Tuesday, Sgt. Mike Coats said.

A helicopter ambulance flew O'Donnell to Bonner General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead, Coroner Dale Coffelt said.

O'Donnell was trimming limbs from a fallen tree when another tree fell prematurely, Coats said. Co-workers shouted warnings, but O'Donnell apparently tripped and could not get out of the way of the falling tree.

O'Donnell was working for R.A.N. Construction Co. of Kingston, Coffelt said.

Extension regearing mandatory

MOSCOW (AP) — At a time when many Idaho farmers are doing well to survive day to day, the newly appointed dean of the University of Idaho College of Agriculture says research and extension programs serving those farmers must be geared toward "the total picture — the global economy."

"What we did five or 10 years ago is not directly applicable to where agriculture is today because it is an evolving process — a very dynamic, changing system," A. Larry Brannen said. "We at the UI have to be looking at how we can change to meet the farmer's needs."

Brannen, an associate dean at the Moscow university's College of Agriculture since 1983, was named acting dean early this year when Raymond Miller accepted a similar position at the University of Maryland.

UI President Richard Gibb appointed Brannen dean of the college in mid-July.

He said despite the serious financial problems facing Idaho agriculture, the industry will survive. But the day is past when agricultural colleges can merely show farmers how to expand production.

"We need integrated programs that look at production input costs, and we have to have programs that examine the marketing of products that are going to be produced," Brannen said.

But reduced federal and state funding for agricultural extension programs, research and instruction means educators also will have to reexamine their priorities, he said.

"What we have to do is recognize the College of Agriculture can't do everything for everybody," Brannen said. "As dean, the biggest job I will have is in enhancing communications so we can identify what it is that the people of Idaho need and want the most for the dollars they invest."

And he said that money is put to good use. On average, research and extension programs show an annual return of 30 percent to 50 percent, with some programs such as potato storage yielding as much as a 900 percent annual return, Brannen said.

Grant for Elk City

BOISE (AP) — The Elk City Water & Sewer Association has been awarded a $10,500 grant from the state Water Pollution Control Fund.

The money will be matched by $3,500 from the Water & Sewer Association to pay for an engineering study of wastewater facilities in Elk City. Gov. John Evans announced Tuesday.

The study will evaluate existing wastewater treatment facilities and determine what must be done to bring them into compliance with state requirements.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare said the work will lead to correction of existing and potential public health and water quality problems in the Elk City area.

Cruise ship blaze injures 19

LITTLE STIRRUP CAY, Bahamas (AP) — An explosion sparked a fire aboard a cruise ship Wednesday, injuring at least 19 people and forcing the 567 passengers to evacuate by lifboat to two tiny islands, authorities said.

Passengers, many of whom were already on the island, were brought here for snorkeling, sailing and windsurfing when the fire broke out, said evacuations were orderly after initial confusion. The passengers, brought to this tiny island and its neighbor, Great Stirrup Cay, were given lunch and drinks.

Bernard Chabot, president of Eastern Cruise Lines, which owns the ship.

Two hospitals received the injured in Miami, where the ship began its cruise Monday.

"I heard two loud explosions, back to back. People started to panic. They were screaming, trying to get their families together," said Glenn Powell, 21, a college student from New Bern, N.C.

Crop loss estimates soar; plains turn hot

By The Associated Press. Estimates of crop losses in the Southeast's worst drought in a century soared past $2 billion Wednesday and Maryland officials said 10 percent of that state's farmers face ruin with no crops to pay off debts.

There "just isn't any hope for a lot of farmers. . . I advise them to quit while they're ahead," said Wayne A. Cawley Jr., Maryland's secretary of agriculture. Unusually hot weather on the southern Plains, with highs up to 110, led agencies to offer help with fans, shelter or advice in parts of Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Tennessee, and electric utilities reported record demand. The heat has been blamed for 61 deaths this month in the South, Midwest and the Plains.

Explosion kills soldier

TWENTYNINE PALMS, Calif. (AP) — One soldier was killed and two injured during a demolition training Wednesday in a huge military exercise known as "Gallant Eagle '86," a spokesman said. Details on the accident were not immediately available, said U.S. Air Force Maj. John E. Meyer, a spokesman for the combined services strategy group overseeing the 10-day training exercises. The soldier, who was not identified, was killed at Dugway Proving Ground in Utah Wednesday morning, Meyer said from the command headquarters in this desert community.

Healthy infant born to brain-dead woman

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — "I'm very happy about the outcome for Michele, but I'm still grieving a little bit" for his fiancée, Poole said Wednesday.

Doctors decided to deliver the baby at her. "I only wish Odette were here," Poole said.

Dr. Donald Dyson, chief of perinatology at Kaiser Permanente Hospital, delivered the baby by Cesarean section at 8:53 a.m. hospital officials said. She weighed 4 pounds, 5 ounces at delivery and was 16 1/2 inches long.

Agency cites hazard of paint ingredient

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission took the first step Wednesday to declare a major ingredient in paint and paint stripper a hazardous substance requiring danger-warnings.

The agency voted to act against methylene chloride because of the risk of cancer from inhalation.

Once a product is officially declared hazardous it can be banned or strictly regulated, with the commission currently leaning toward requiring specific warning labels on products containing methylene chloride.

Fight drugs, Reagan asks civic clubs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, joining his wife Nancy in spreading the gospel against drug abuse, challenged civic leaders Wednesday to help America kick the habit.

In what spokesman Larry Speakes described as a warm-up for announcement next week of a new drug prevention initiative, the president said sellers and users of illicit drugs are "as dangerous to our national security as any terrorist or foreign dictator."

A life-long member of the Lions Club, Reagan told leaders of that and 14 other service organizations that he is proud of the first lady's "national crusade" against drug abuse and called it "our pet project."

Demo report supports help for jobless poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Costly social programs that don't directly aid poor families should be scrapped to provide money for helping the chronically unemployed get off welfare and the working poor keep their jobs, said a Democratic report released Wednesday.

"We must give especially close scrutiny to programs that justify themselves by claiming spinoff effects that help the poor, but do not directly assist poor persons themselves," said the report, prepared by the Social Policy Task Force of the House Democratic Caucus.

Korean War veterans start memorial drive

OVIEDO, Fla. (AP) — Americans have forgotten the U.S. soldiers who fought in the Korean War, says a group pushing for a $5 million memorial.

The Chosin Few hopes to raise $5 million for their memorial through "public" and "corporate" donations in the United States and South Korea, Davis said.

The association hopes to dedicate its memorial in December 1988. The site remains under consideration, but California is favored as it was association of 2,000 veterans took its name from the 1950 battle at the Chosin Reservoir.

24.4 million Americans may face tax hike under overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 24 million couples and individuals would face a tax increase next year under the tax overhaul bill passed by the Senate, even if the rate reduction took effect earlier than planned, negotiators were told Wednesday.

If rates were cut next Jan. 1, at the same time several deductions were reduced or repealed, 24.4 million taxpayers would pay more under the tax overhaul bill passed by the Senate, even if the rate reduction took effect earlier than planned, negotiators were told Wednesday.

If rates were cut next Jan. 1, at the same time several deductions were reduced or repealed, 24.4 million taxpayers would pay more under the tax overhaul bill passed by the Senate, even if the rate reduction took effect earlier than planned, negotiators were told Wednesday.

According to the analysis, an earlier rate reduction generally would favor people earning $30,000 or more; those making less would lose.

The new figures were released as House negotiators began drafting a new compromise to propose to senators. Aides said that package would include virtually every element that House members want to see in the final tax overhaul plan.

During a break in the closed-door sessions, the House delegation stuck to its position on several issues. House members want to retain a full deduction for state and local sales taxes and to scale back considerably special tax benefits for the oil and gas industry. They agreed to a greater depreciation allowance for business than the House had voted but still considerably less than under the Senate bill.

"We're doing very well," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the conference. He said he hopes to be able to present the new offer to Senate negotiators Thursday afternoon.

The package would represent the House response to a much less sweeping offer made Tuesday by the Senate. The Senate proposal was basically a plan for assuring that the Senate version — which negotiators are using as the model for their work — does not worsen the federal deficit. Tacked onto the proposal were suggestions for targeting more tax relief to middle-income people and for retaining a portion of the deduction for miscellaneous expenses, including union dues.

Although any new House offer would be unlikely to win Senate acceptance, it would serve as a new point from which to begin bargaining on a compromise.

Wednesday was the ninth day of efforts by Senate and House tax-writers to write a compromise that would fall somewhere between the bills passed by the two chambers. The 22 conferees — 11 from each house — have yet to settle any of the hundreds of differences between the two measures.

Senate OKs restoring Gramm-Rudman bite

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Wednesday to restore the automatic spending cuts that put teeth into the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law.

The Senate ratified by 63 to 36 a revised plan to give the president's budget director the power to order across-the-board cuts — but with Congress keeping reins on the process.

"We're trying to save the discipline," said Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, the senior Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee. "We want to keep it (automatic spending cuts) there as the enforcer (that keeps our nose to the grindstone)." The amendment was supported by 42 Republicans and 21 Democrats, with 26 Democrats and 10 Republicans voting against. Still, support for the amendment fell short of the 75-24 vote by which the Senate first approved Gramm-Rudman last year.

Gramm-Rudman requires spending cuts evenly divided between domestic and military programs if Congress and the president fail to approve legislation to meet pre-set deficit targets. The targets get smaller each year until a balanced budget is reached in fiscal 1991.

Most estimates say Congress will miss by more than $10 billion the fiscal 1987 deficit target of $14 billion, unless lawmakers come up with additional spending reductions or tax increases.

Panel likes grain plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee approved legislation Wednesday to force the Reagan administration to sell grain to the Soviet Union at subsidized prices, but there were signs foreign policy worries could scotch the plan.

The panel approved the idea on a voice vote, with some dissent, as the Commerce Department announced the second straight monthly deficit in U.S. agricultural trade. Farm imports exceeded exports by $71 million in June, after a May deficit of $348 million that had been the first such dip into the red since 1959.

Under the year-old Export Enhancement Program, the government offers surplus commodities at prices as low as bonuses when purchases of U.S. farm goods are bought by targeted countries.

The House bill would force the $1 billion, three-year program to be used for sales to any country that has been a traditional customer — including the Soviet Union. The Senate already has passed similar language.

SALT II talks end after U.S. plan fails

GENEVA (AP) — U.S.-Soviet talks on SALT II ended Wednesday after the Soviets rejected an American proposal for interim restraints pending a new agreement on deep cuts in strategic arms, a U.S. statement said.

The special talks, requested by the Soviet Union, began July 22 under the auspices of the Standing Consultative Commission established in 1972 to monitor implementation of U.S.-Soviet arms agreements. It holds regular sessions twice a year.

Both sides agreed that the commission would meet as scheduled in the fall, the U.S. statement said. It did not mention another special session on the SALT II treaty, which was signed in 1979 but never ratified by the U.S. Senate.

A Soviet statement carried by the official Soviet news agency Tass said its negotiators called attention "to the extremely dangerous consequences of the refusal by the United States to observe" SALT II.

It said effective measures were needed to "make it possible to halt the process of destruction of the contractual system to contain" the arms race.

The Soviets asked for the meeting after President Reagan's announcement May 27 that the United States would no longer consider itself bound by the terms of the strategic arms limitation treaty because of alleged Soviet violations.

Those included deployment of a new long-range missile, the SS-25, and alleged measures to obstruct monitoring by U.S. satellites. The Soviets have denied the charges.

Although SALT II was not ratified by the Senate, both sides say they have honored its terms.

Say blasts U.S. policy on hostages

CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. (AP) — The sister of an American held hostage in Lebanon for 16 months strongly criticized the Reagan administration following her return home Wednesday from a 5,000-mile trip seeking his freedom.

Peggy Say arrived at the suburban Buffalo airport after two weeks in Greece, Cyprus, Syria and at the Lebanese border seeking to win the release of her brother, journalist Terry Anderson.

Mrs. Say said she was satisfied with her efforts but displeased with the stance taken by the administration that the United States does not negotiate with terrorists.

"I plan to keep the pressure up and demand that they either negotiate or they give us a logical and rational reason why it was OK to negotiate for the Iranian hostages, but it's not OK to negotiate for these guys," said Mrs. Say.

Police gain in Palme case

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Police on Wednesday reported important progress in their investigation of the February slaying of Prime Minister Olof Palme, but they refused to disclose details. Leif Hallberg, a spokesman for the investigation, told The Associated Press that detectives were "nearing a point of certainty" in the case. "We have a pretty good picture of the slaying but we need to get the picture more in focus," Hallberg said in a telephone interview. "Heavy work remains that may take weeks and perhaps months." Palme was shot in the back on a downtown Stockholm street as he and his wife walked home from a movie theater the night of Feb. 28.

Gorbachev blasts enemies

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev told a group of workers that foreign enemies are trying to wreck the Soviet economy with an arms race, but he vowed that "no one will bring us to our knees." Pravda reported Wednesday. The Soviet leader made the remarks Tuesday in the town of Komsomolsk-Amur during a tour of the Soviet far east, the Communist Party daily said. Gorbachev's tour continued Wednesday with a visit to a state farm in the Khabarovsk region bordering China.

Madame Nhu breaks silence

ROME (AP) — Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, a famed figure in the Diem regime in South Vietnam, said Wednesday the United States has no right to judge any member of her family in the slayings of her parents. Madame Nhu, who was President Ngo Dinh Diem's sister-in-law, broke a long silence and issued a statement to The Associated Press following the deaths of her parents in their Washington, D.C., home last Thursday. Her brother, Tran Van Khlem, 60, has been charged with slaying of Tran Van Chuong, 88, a former South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, and his wife, Nam-Tran Chuong, 75. "After what has been done against Vietnam, my country, my people and my family by the U.S.A., without it having ever contemplated reparation and without the West intervening on behalf of justice and truth as taught to it through the Messianic message, I do not recognize their right to question and judge any of mine," she said in her statement.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A visiting Soviet delegation has met Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi in Tripoli and inspected the damage to his house caused by the U.S. air strikes last April 15, the official Libyan news agency said Wednesday. The JANA agency, monitored in Nicosia, did not name the members of the delegation or say when they arrived in Libya. The meeting with Gadhafi took place Tuesday night, JANA said. It did not say what was discussed.

Guru gains entry at last to homeland

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, the self-described "rich man's guru" who was expelled from the United States last year, returned to his homeland Wednesday after being denied permanent residence in a half-dozen other countries. Rajneesh arrived from Portugal on a private plane and was questioned by Indian customs officials for almost two hours before he was granted an entry permit, airport sources said. He then moved into the bungalow of a follower in the northwestern suburb of Juhu, where many of India's movie stars live. An aide, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the guru "had a few wise words of advice" for a small group of disciples. He returned to India briefly but left after the government refused to extend visas for nine of his foreign followers. The government also blocked his efforts to buy land in a Himalayan resort town.

What's what

POPULAR WOMEN

Q. Who were the most popular women in history?
A. The 15 who lived in San Francisco in 1979, probably. There were no more in town.

Most efficient thirst quenchers in descending order are: Water, club soda, lead tea, diet cola, presweetened Kool-Aid, beer, ginger ale and milk.

Q. What's the most significant thing that happens in a budding romance?
A. An instant known to the Love and War students as the "Second Glance." When a man and woman meet, each looks briefly at the other. Typically, nothing happens unless the woman looks again. It is this second glance that determines everything.

GOATS

Q. Those who know their goats say those goats prefer beds of rock to beds of straw.
Q. Where was the first chocolate bunny rabbit made?
A. Reading, Pa., unsurprisingly.

Among Birds of Paradise, males get together at the mating ground, and each female looks them over and takes her pick. If an especially gaudy male flashes brightly, the best of that birds' finery is passed down, because just about all the females choose him. Scientists call this natural selection. Our Love and War man calls it unfair.

FOOTMAN

Q. What was the primary job of the 18th century servant called "the footman"?
A. To run alongside the coach and clear branches or whatever out of the way. Otherwise, he was what we'd call a gopher.

Termites work two-thirds of the earth's dry land.
All dogs are born blind and deaf, and they can't smell anything in that condition, either.
Arsenic preserves. The body of Napoleon, dug up after 19 years, was still in good shape.
Q. Didn't World War II take just about everybody out of the Hollywood film studios.
A. Took some and left some. More exactly, it put 27,077 of them into uniform.

Cryts cultivating attention

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri farm activist Wayne Cryts, a "fizzle and a fluke" to his detractors but a "folk hero" to his admirers, has had no trouble cultivating national attention for his U.S. House bid.

When he announced his candidacy to unseat three-term Republican Bill Emerson in southeast Missouri's largely rural 8th District, Cryts said he knew some Democrats were skeptical of his chances because of his somewhat eccentric image and his reputation as a one-issue candidate.

But the latest federal campaign reports show Cryts has collected $95,000 so far and is expected to easily defeat his one primary challenger next Tuesday.

"I think I've shown them that I am a credible challenger, I'm running a viable campaign and I have an excellent chance at winning," said the American Agriculture Movement activist, who catapulted into the limelight five years ago for taking grain elevators to court and mining industries.

Emerson has the power of incumbency, and the latest campaign reports show he has collected nearly $150,000.

Ironically, Emerson once went to bat for Cryts, appealing to President Reagan for Cryts' release from an Arkansas prison where he was being held over the soybean incident.

Cryts said he appreciated the favor, but thinks he could better represent the district.

One Democratic lawmaker in the district said he would have a tough time publicly supporting Cryts, given conservative constituents, but he thought Cryts had a certain appeal.

Still, Cryts is expected to face an uphill battle against Emerson, a lawyer and former lobbyist who is

Drive for British sanctions to grow with Howe's failure

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher conferred with Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe on Wednesday about his failure to persuade the South African government to negotiate with black leaders.

Mrs. Thatcher has been coming under increasing pressure to drop her opposition to tough sanctions against the South African government. But government sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, indicated she would not back down despite growing pressure from Commonwealth leaders and even politicians in her own party.

The House of Commons' influential all-party Foreign Affairs Committee issued a report Wednesday urging the imposition of sanctions.

"The pressure (for sanctions) now that (South African President P.W.) Botha has not bent will be absolutely impossible to resist," said the committee chairman, Sir Anthony Kershaw, a member of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party.

Kershaw was referring to Botha's rejection Tuesday of Howe's proposals for negotiating an end to apartheid, under which South Africa's white minority controls the government and economy while blacks are denied the vote.

Mrs. Thatcher was expected to be isolated at a meeting with leaders of six other Commonwealth countries due to open Sunday in London. The meeting is expected to approve a new range of measures against South Africa.

"Our point of view does not change with these circumstances. We do not believe sanctions are effective," said a senior government source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"But that isn't to say we might not end up with a gesture or two," he said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said Howe's peace mission was "useful in reiterating the views of the European Community and the United Kingdom on what the South African government must do to bring about a peaceful and just solution to South Africa's problems."

No talks, Hussein tells Bush

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Vice President George Bush arrived here Wednesday with what he called "positive ideas" on peace from Israel. Prime Minister Shimon Peres, but King Hussein rejected Bush's proposal for a meeting with Peres.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, were driven from the airport to Nadwa Palace for a courtesy visit to the monarch and American-born Queen Noor.

During his four days in Israel, the vice president praised Peres for meeting King Hassan-II in Morocco last week and said he thought similar talks with Hussein were "the logical next step."

Hussein responded promptly that such a meeting was possible only in the context of an international conference on Middle East peace, which the United States opposes.

Bush met with Peres for nearly two hours Wednesday before flying to Jordan. U.S. and Israeli aides said much of the conversation dealt with prospects for peace.

He said he received "some very strong impressions and positive ideas" to be taken to both Jordan and Egypt, where he will meet President Hosni Mubarak before returning to Washington Aug. 5.

Rights abuse grows worse, envoy states

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Human rights abuse has grown worse under South Africa's state of emergency, an American official said Wednesday.

James Montgomery, deputy assistant secretary of state for human rights, cited detentions without trial, torture and abuse of prisoners, restrictions on their contact with lawyers and inadequate accountability of security forces.

"The detentions are a very difficult situation and one that should be remedied," he said. "Political prisoners should be released, period."

He addressed a news conference at the end of nine days in South Africa during which he visited five cities, meeting with people ranging from police and government officials to blacks just freed from jail.

"The last several weeks and months have seen a deterioration. There has been retrograde motion" on human rights since the emergency was imposed June 12, said Montgomery, who was visiting South Africa for the first time.

One of his chief recommendations, he said, will be that the State Department continue its human rights program in South Africa. He described the program, which has an annual budget of $30-$25 million, as the largest in any country.

Party expels plant official

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party expelled the former chief engineer of the Chernobyl nuclear plant for conducting an experiment that led to the April 26 reactor disaster, a Ukrainian newspaper reported.

In addition, a Ukrainian nuclear safety official was given a strict reprimand for carelessness following the accident, the newspaper Pravda Ukrainy said.

The July 27 edition of the Ukrainian party newspaper, received in Moscow Wednesday, reported that the chief engineer, identified only by the last name Fomln, was expelled by the ruling Central Committee of the Ukrainian republic's Communist Party.

State's birth rate drops to lowest point ever

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The birth rate in Idaho has dropped dramatically in the last six years and is now at the lowest point in the state's history, said a statistician with the state Bureau of Vital Statistics on Wednesday.

The number of births has dropped 21 percent since 1979. Fertility rates, the number of live births per 1,000 women between 15-44 years of age, also have declined. While Idaho's fertility rates have always been substantially higher than the U.S. rates, the difference is rapidly diminishing.

Idaho's fertility rate in 1979 was 43 percent higher than the national average. In 1985, it had dropped to 13 percent higher.

"Right now, we're at the lowest recorded birth rate in the state's history," said Janet Wick, a statistician with the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

Wick said the last time the birth rate was at current levels was in the 1930s, during the Depression, "and we're slightly lower now." The decline is most notable in southeastern Idaho, which is heavily Mormon, and experts are saying that economic pressures are a big factor in forcing Idaho families to curtail the number of children they have.

"I don't think there's any official church policy. It's just reality," said Dr. Paul Miles, a Twin Falls pediatrician and chairman of the Idaho State Perinatal Project.

Through his work with the state Perinatal Project, an effort by doctors and nurses to lower infant mortality rates, Miles discovered the declining birth rates, he said, and began an informal survey to find out why.

"It's just economic pressures," he said. "Women are having to work outside the home now — women who traditionally stayed home and raised families."

Don LeFevre, spokesman for the LDS Church in Salt Lake City, said he was unaware of Idaho's declining birth rates and could offer no official explanation for it.

"The church doesn't keep track of those kinds of statistics," he said.

However, LeFevre said the LDS Church did take a worldwide survey of birth rates and found that from 1980-83, birth rates declined among LDS churchmembers. Birth rates went from 28.2 births per 1,000 people in 1980 to 24.5 births in 1983.

In Idaho, the counties of Caribou, Clark, Jefferson and Madison in the southeastern section of the state all had birth rates that were twice the national average in 1980, affecting all age groups, races, religions and other southeastern counties, including Bear Lake, Bingham, Franklin, Teton and Mindoka, were not far behind.

Five years later birth rates in the southeastern section of the state dropped from 31.2 births per 1,000 people to 22.5, closer to the national rate of 15.8.

Falls County experienced a less-dramatic decline, but a decline, nonetheless. The birth rate went from 20.9 to 16.3 in 1985. Judi Bean, coordinator for Family Planning with the South Central District Health Department, believes the drop in birth rates in the state cuts across all segments, not just religious groups.

"I think everybody is trying to limit their families," said Bean during a recent interview of the state all had birth rates that were twice the national average in 1980, affecting all age groups, races, religions and other southeastern counties, including Bear Lake, Bingham, Franklin, Teton and Mindoka, were not far behind.

In 1960, according to the Census Bureau, only 17 percent of U.S. women with children under the age of 5 were in the labor force. Today half of the women who have their first baby are working outside the home.

"The same appears true for Idaho," said Bean. "Almost all the women we see at Family Planning either are working or want to work," she said. "It's just reality."

Fairgrounds building may stay closed

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Even with a repaired roof and insurance coverage, the Produce Building at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer might remain closed during this year's fair because the county's insurer is concerned that the building still isn't safe.

County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said Wednesday that the potential for liability, as pointed out by PENCO, administrator of the county's insurance program, is enough to keep the building closed. The county receives coverage through a self-insurance pool called the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program.

Chances of someone being hurt at the building may be "1,000 to one," but that one chance is sufficient, Hempleman added.

There may be one chance to keep the building open during the fair. And that is if PENCO changes its mind about the building, based on the quality of the recently completed repair work, Hempleman said.

The roof of the Produce Building, estimated to be more than 20 years old, was reinforced with boards. The Fair Board decided to spend $1,026 for the repairs to keep the building open just one more year.

After learning last month that the building didn't meet codes because of the problems with the roof, the board agreed there wasn't the time or money to construct a new building before the fair in September, and it didn't want to spend $60,000 for a new permanent roof on the old building. The board members did want the building open, because the produce displays are an important part of the annual event, they said.

Upon the Fair Board's inquiry on what could be done to extend the life of the building one more year, engineer Gerald Martens proposed the reinforcements. Even with the repairs, Martens noted, the building would have to be monitored during the fair and closed if winds exceeded 15 miles per hour.

The county's insurer Tuesday asked the Board of County Commissioners to reconsider using the building.

The Produce Building would be covered against property and liability claims, subject to the terms of the policies, wrote Kurt F. Stark, state manager of PENCO.

But Martens' report had indicated that, even after the repairs, the building would not meet building codes, would continue to deteriorate and could not take high winds, Stark stated.

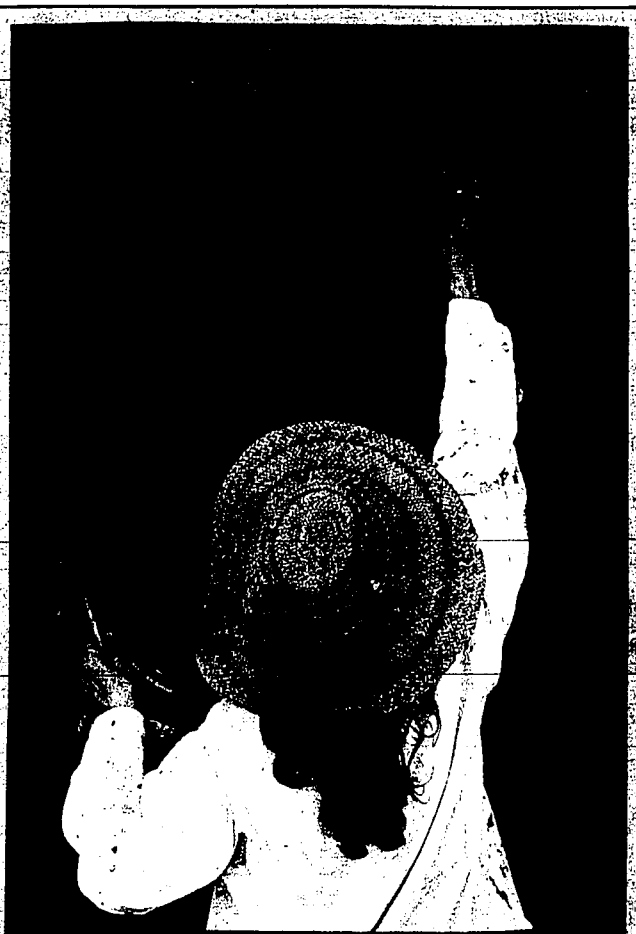

Stark asked the commissioners to consider the following:

• No amount of insurance would be adequate, should the collapse of the building kill or maim a number of people. The fair activities would expose many people to such a possibility.

• It would be difficult or impossible to defend the board's action (to use the building), because of the existence of the engineer's report advising the board of the building's deficiencies.

The commissioners earlier had written to the insurance administrators that they would allow the use of the repaired building, provided there was coverage.

Painting the town

One way to spend a hot summer day is to don a large floppy straw hat, pick up a paint brush, and give the garage a much-needed coat of paint.

Loretta Rousseau did just that this week at her home on Eighth Avenue East in Twin Falls, with the aid of other family members.

Council OKs contracts for two projects

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council approved two contracts with J-U-B Engineers for local engineering work at a special meeting Wednesday morning.

The two projects deal with the city's water facilities. One will attempt to improve water pressure in the southeast corner of town with a new booster pump, a reservoir, and special pressure valves. The council decided not to try to develop the new well in that area, which fell below the amount of expected water output.

The water-pressure improvement project is expected to be in operation by early 1987. The cost of the project will be $58,850.

The other contract was for the development, installation, and employee training of an automatic, computerized control system at the Harrison water station. That cost will be $21,690.

City Engineer Gary Young said the project will add a telemetering system to the water station. The system will serve as a receiving and controlling device for the entire city water distribution system.

Because it is computerized, the system will also reduce required manpower. "It will be like a 24-hour monitoring and record-keeping system," Young said. The system will also help in emergency situations, he added.

A bid was accepted last Friday for replacement of the Grandview sewer trunk line. The lowest of three bids presented to the council was from Summit Construction. The cost of the project will be $986,276.56.

Certain areas along the line are in need of repair due to hydrogen sulfide deterioration in the pipes, Young said.

These areas are currently concrete pipes and will be replaced with a polyvinyl chloride material from Perma-Lock Pipes. The material has been used in other areas around the city for emergency repair work. One year after installation, the material will be retested for deflection standards.

Complete approval of the contract for the project is contingent on financing, which will be discussed at a meeting sometime next week, Young said.

The council during its work session Wednesday also discussed problems with curbs along Highland Avenue, from Louest Street to Eastland.

In areas where a high level of traffic is generated, restrictions on the height of curbs and the slope of the property have been made, but are currently being handled by the council on an individual basis.

The council discussed asking the Highway Safety Traffic Commission for its comment on the idea of developing a long-term policy to deal with similar situations in the future.

Jenco's aunt celebrates his release

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two years ago Fran Campbell of Twin Falls had a sinking feeling as she waved goodbye to her nephew, Rev. Lawrence Jenco.

A Catholic priest who has served in trouble spots at home and abroad, he was in Joliet, Ill., celebrating his 25th year in the priesthood and preparing to go to Beirut, Lebanon, to serve in the Catholic Relief Services.

His fears came true. Four months later he was snatched out of his car and taken captive for 19 months before being released Saturday in Damascus, Syria.

"I'm walking on air," she said, adding she has been ever since his release.

In her youth, she baby-sat the infant Jenco, the son of her oldest brother. She was in the congregation when he said his first mass in the U.S. after being ordained in Rome, and she was at the table to celebrate his first quarter-century right there," she said Wednesday, sitting on her shady back porch.

When the news came that he had been kidnapped by Moslem warriors, she began to pray, she said. Every day, walking past the picture of Jenco that hangs on the wall of her house on South Washington Street, she said a prayer. She wrote to him once, though she doesn't know if he got the letter. And she heard through the family grapevine that two letters from him had gotten out. Now, with the news of his release getting big play in the papers and on television, she is watching every news item and taping news of him on a video-cassette recorder, as if to preserve the good news. And she continues to pray, "I'm still praying for him to get home safe and sound," she said.

lands. A tour of duty in Yemen ended when he was brought home with hepatitis. And in the 1960s, when student unrest was at its peak, he was serving in Berkeley, Calif., where dissent was loud and, at times, violent.

The 51-year-old priest has also served in Yemen, Egypt, India, and Australia as well as Belen, N.M., and Denver. He is not political, but he offers his services in places such as Beirut, where the clashes of ideologies waste as much blood as they do lives, he said.

"Very social," is the way George Campbell described him, and told a story of Jenco loosening up his new congregation in Belen, by announcing a dinner at 6 o'clock — and cocktail hour at 5. He may be Father Martin of the Order of the Servants of Mary, but he still answers to "Larry," Campbell said.

The son of a one-time sheriff and Illinois Republican state representative from the industrial town of Joliet, Jenco grew up 48 miles southwest of Chicago.

At the time he was taken, he was not serving as a priest, but as a lay worker for the Catholic Church, said his aunt.

Two more of his aunts will be out to visit her next week. At that time, she hopes to make contact with his family and him. So far, she said, she has not been able to get through the busy signal at his family home.

Officers find body in canyon

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — The body of a Twin Falls man was recovered from Snake River Canyon about midnight Tuesday by Jerome County officers and search and rescue volunteers.

Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall said investigation indicated that Rod Harter, 35, had fallen from the rim of the canyon, 1 1/2 miles east of U.S. Highway 93, in an area just across from the Eved Knevel Jump site.

Hall said the man's father, Raymond Harter, of Twin Falls, and an unidentified co-worker of the younger Harter notified his office about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, when Rod Harter failed to show up for work and they were unable to locate him.

Hall said Harter worked as a nurse at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital and was never known to miss work. Officers were told he often swam in the Dierkes Lake and Devil's Corral areas. Dierkes Lake was closed, and on searching the Devil's Corral region, Jerome officers found Harter's automobile parked by the north canyon rim, across from the jump site. Hall said the ignition key was in the "on" position and the car radio was still playing.

It was estimated that Harter died. • See CANYON on Page B2

Gooding hospital board reviews district budget and taxes

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The Gooding Hospital Board of Trustees held a "non-hearing" on budget questions Tuesday.

The tax district, approved by county voters in May, was formed as a way of getting more tax dollars for the financially strapped, Gooding County Memorial Hospital, and the Tuesday hearing was called to review the district's proposed 1986-87 budget and 3 mill tax levy.

However, the hospital district's attorney, Fred Decker of Twin Falls, told the board that state law does not allow the new district to collect taxes this year.

He cited the Idaho code, which says that "no taxing district formed or organized after the first day of January, in any year, shall be authorized to make a levy for the year."

Decker said the district could not begin to levy taxes until October 1987 and would not actually receive any tax funds until January 1988.

The district board and the GCMH board had received differing opinions from county and state officials on the timetable for collecting taxes. Board members had hoped the district could at least borrow money on anticipation notes for this year, so a budget was drawn up.

Decker said such notes could not be used before January 1987.

"However, no commercial bank would probably take registered warrants or tax anticipation notes until August or September 1987 under these circumstances," he said.

Decker's opinion, which was requested after last month's meeting of the two boards, deepens the financial crisis of the hospital.

Members of both boards agreed at a July 17 meeting that without immediate financial assistance it may be impossible for the hospital to continue operating and it may not be able to meet its current obligations.

Gooding area resident Reese Dixon asked the board what was being done to collect the hospital's $248,000 "uncollectible debt" or current accounts receivable.

Hospital administrator Duane Cutright told Reese the hospital turns all accounts more than 55 days old over to Ogden-based Healthcare Financial Services for collection through a monthly payment schedule. He said accounts with no action after 90 days are turned over to a collection agency based in Twin Falls.

Cutright also said the hospital has a "line of credit" at local banks amounting to 60 percent of accounts receivable.

Dixon questioned why the hospital had to use an outside agency to collect the accounts and why a "tougher" approach could not be used. He also said he felt through private investors the hospital could borrow 80 to 100 percent of its accounts receivable amount to improve cash flow and keep the facility open.

At the request of GCMH board member Rod Spackman, Dixon agreed to take a detailed proposal for the action he outlined to Gooding County Prosecutor Lynn Nelson.

"If the prosecutor approves such a plan, the board would certainly be willing to look at any idea that would help," Spackman said.

The hospital district board will now begin looking at any remaining alternatives, which includes taking the hospital but refusing to accept the accumulated debt. Decker has said the district could do that, forcing creditors to get a court judgment against Gooding County.

The Board of County Commissioners could then levy whatever tax amount was needed to satisfy the judgment, but the one time levy could be very difficult for county taxpayers.

District board secretary Joyce Scanlon told the group Tuesday that forcing a tax levy to pay the debt "may be the only alternative available."

"People would be unhappy with us and unhappy with the county, but the taxpayers may have to do it to save the hospital," she said.

The two boards will meet again to discuss the financial situation and possible transfer of the facility from county control to district control Aug. 21.

Dr. J. Barre Tolken of Utah State University lectures at the Ellsworth Inn in Halley Wednesday morning.

A device that links people together

Message on folklore opens Rockies festival

By BARBARA NEIWERT
Times-News correspondent

HALLEY — Folklore is alive and well in the United States, in the Magic Valley and in your own home.

That was the message of Dr. J. Barre Tolken in his keynote address Tuesday night to kick off the Ninth Annual Northern Rockies Folk Festival which will continue through Saturday in Halley.

"Folklore is a matter of expressive devices which the people together in groups," explained Tolken, a folklorist and folk musician from Utah State University who will be on hand this week to help with the workshops and participate in the free outdoor concerts Friday and Saturday.

"While folklore is 'alive' whether we acknowledge it or not, the festival focuses on helping participants identify the abundance of folk life around us and incorporate these folkways into our everyday lives.

"Many people have a misconception of what folklore is," Tolken said. "Folklore has nothing to do with ancient times or with illiterate people who have stories passed on about them, he said."

"Folklore is human expression," Tolken noted. "It involves customs, traditions and is more simply an attitude at what we're doing."

"You may think you don't have any folklore," he said. "If so, then you've never had a birthday cake or been to a birthday party."

Birthday parties are one of the few times it is socially acceptable to be a bit crazy, he said. Tolken said blowing out candles on a birthday cake is truly a family tradition which cannot be classified as folklore.

Each person falls into many "groups" and each may have his own set of folkways that are related to family, ethnic origins, occupation, religion or regional dialect and expression.

Telling jokes, beliefs on how to cure hiccups or hangovers and particular foods served on special occasions are "folk examples" of the folklore which exists in our everyday lives.

Tolken said many people believe serving turkey for Thanksgiving dinner is a tradition passed down from the time of the Pilgrims and the ritual cannot be deviated from.

"Suggest something different be served, such as pizza or goose, and see how many people in your family will go for it," Tolken proposed.

However, he explained, after the recovery from the Depression in the 1930s, many companies began giving turkeys to their employees to denote the holiday, and the tradition had to do with general opinion on the generation of people eating turkey for the occasion.

"Folkways exist not because they are good, but because they mark us as us," he explained.

Those not able to attend the folk workshops can see a variety of folk life displays and demonstrations at the Halley City Park Friday and Saturday.

An integral segment of the festival, which typically draws several thousand people to the Wood River Valley to the annual event, is the free outdoor folk concerts. Beginning tonight, a bluegrass band from Virginia, Lost and Found, will set the mood with a concert on the mall at Elkhorn Resort at 6:30 p.m.

On Friday, the music begins at 5 p.m. at Halley City Park and will include Rosalie Sorrels, Lost and Found, Gary Iwle & Ernie Sikes Group, and workshop director/folklorist Twilo Scofield with special guests Larry Hanks and Bernie Evans.

Saturday's musical lineup begins at 12:30 p.m. with a children's concert and continues until after dark. Dave Sealander, Sage Street, Mia Edsall, Lynette Hart, Twilo Scofield and Barre Tolken, Belinda Bowler, the Boulder Brothers, Muzzle Braun and the Idaho Swing Band. In the evening's headline performance, country folk songwriter/singer Guy Clark will be featured.

All concerts are free and open to the public, as are the folk life displays and demonstrations.

Trustee sale set for Lincoln County prosecutor's home

By SUSAN WHALEY
Times-News regional editor

SHOSHONE — For the third time in two years, the home of Lincoln County Prosecutor Doug Rose is scheduled to go on the auction block.

A notice of default filed by Land Title and Escrow, Inc., at the Lincoln County Recorder's office claims that Rose and his wife, Karen, have not paid their monthly house payment since November 1985.

A trustee sale has been set for Sept. 3 at 11 a.m. at the Lincoln County Courthouse.

Similar proceedings were filed against the Roses in September 1984, and again in September 1985. However, those foreclosures were stopped when the back payments and related charges were paid.

Rose also expects to forestall the latest foreclosure. He said Wednesday he is currently in the process of refinancing his house and will be able to pay what he owes in about 10 days.

"It will be taken care of, and hopefully, this is the last time it will come up," said Rose, who has a private law practice, in addition to trustee, Land Title and Escrow, his part-time job as county prosecutor.

He said his financial problems are similar to those of many residents in Idaho's rural, agricultural communities.

"Lincoln County is a financially depressed area. If my clients could pay me what they owe me, I could pay off the whole house," Rose said. "When the money doesn't come in, it makes it really hard."

Rose and his wife have owned the house at 317 South Date St. since Dec. 20, 1982, according to courthouse documents.

Rose who spent five days in jail in 1984 for failing to file a 1982 state income tax return, said he's confident he continues to have the support of county residents.

"I've weathered a lot of storms over here," he said. "I was rejected after the problem I had with the midwesterner for failure to file an income tax return, and the people seem to be supporting me."

Rose was elected to a four-year term as prosecutor in 1984 after serving two previous two-year terms.

"The notice of default on the Roses' property was filed by attorney William R. Snyder on behalf of the private law practice, in addition to trustee, Land Title and Escrow, his part-time job as county prosecutor, and the beneficiary, the Idaho Housing Agency."

Evans presents grant to Wendell

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Gov. John Evans was in Wendell Wednesday to personally present a $200,000 community block grant to city officials.

Evans also made stops earlier in the day in Fairfield and Shoshone, two other Magic Valley communities that were awarded the grants in June.

Wendell will use its money to make improvements in the city's water and sewer system. Lincoln County, which received a $28,500 grant, plans to rehabilitate an old hotel building now being used for a center, a citizen center, and a Camas County received a $107,000 loan for the construction of a 15-unit motel on U.S. Highway 20 in Fairfield.

Evans spoke in Wendell at the American Legion Hall to a group of about 40 local residents. He congratulated Mayor Otto Lemke and the City Council members for doing a good job in helping the city get the grant.

Wendell got the grant, Evans said, because the city's sewer lagoons had been overflowing for several years and a building moratorium had been imposed since last spring. Wendell was in desperate need of funding for a new facility, he said.

J-U-B engineer Scott Bybee also spoke to the group explaining how the money will be spent. The city still needs money for a new water tank, he said.

City officials took advantage of the governor's stop to show him a 68-acre site the city is proposing as a location for the state's new maximum security prison and to seek his help in getting a stippled installed.

The city is one of 24 communities in Idaho vying for the prison project which will bring new jobs and construction funds to the city. State officials expect to make a decision on the prison by Sept. 1.

Lemke said he asked Evans to help. Wendell got the proposed stippled city officials want to install on Idaho Street by Wendell Elementary School.

The proposed site is on a state highway, Lemke said, and Evans could help get the state "on the ball" to install the light. The mayor said Evans was interested in the project and said he would try to help Wendell get the light soon.

Dinners are meals on wheels during harvest

In the Old West, many a cowpoke has sauntered up to the chuck wagon at high noon to get himself a little grub. And they're still doing it, at least during harvest. When farmer-some-time-cowpoke Dale saunters up to the hatch of our Subaru station wagon, his lunchtime at the OK Corral.

The first day or so of putting our meal on wheels is fun and different. It's like having two picnics a day. The kids love it. They wish we could take our meals to Daddy every day and had harvest all year long. What joy.

I start losing enthusiasm for the whole idea after making my 13th bologno sandwich and ripping open my fourth bag of potato chips. I admit it. I'm a bad wife. I feed my family junk food. It goes down easier when you're eating off the bumper of a car.

One harvest I did try transporting some "wholesome" meals to Dale while he was working in the fields. It's too bad these meals didn't include eggs. They taste pretty good scrambled. If you scramble corn, mashed potatoes and apple sauce, you don't have supper for your husband, you have slop for the pigs.

So, I am determined to make this year's tailgate picnics simple. Sometimes I wish I could make these picnics the "bread, wine, and thou" simple instead of the "mayo, mustard, and salami" simple. But this harvest is not the time nor the place for classic dining — and not just because we're having family dinners off the tailgate of our car, either.

Our mealtime atmosphere has been further hindered by the addition of one dog to our family, bringing the total kennel count now to two.

Have you ever noticed how hard it is to eat in front of a dog? With two dogs, you double your guilt. You can't even hear yourself chewing when they both start whining and begging.

I stopped feeling sorry for our dog, though, when I saw them take a bite out of my 2-year-old son. Poor little kid thought the tooth fairy had brought him a sandwich. Since when did the tooth fairy acquire fangs?

Another unappetizing factor about family dining during harvest is our location. We're harvesting peppermint so we've been eating off the tailgate of our car parked next to the mint still. Oh, you say, how nice. A lovely minty smell wafting through the air while you dine.

The smell is so lovely it burns your eyes and nose. Smelling the menthols given off during distilling makes me feel like we're eating inside a giant jar of Vick's VapoRub.

Need I say that I'll be happy when harvest is over and we can get back to eating where everybody else does, in a boring old kitchen with boring old steak and potatoes on the table? How hum drum. How nice!

Shoshone seniors receive block grant

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Gov. John Evans had lunch with Shoshone senior citizens Wednesday and gave the Golden Years Senior Center a community block grant of $28,500.

Meals for seniors is one of the center's major activities, and center bookkeeper Zella Parsons said the first priority for use of the money will be to build a new kitchen.

The center, which serves seniors throughout Lincoln County, is managed by a 10-member board. Board chairman Forrest

Armstrong, Richfield, said the board hopes to begin work on renovating its building "as soon as possible." This is the first time the center has received this type of block grant, he said.

The center was opened in Lincoln County in 1976 and is housed in the historic Shoshone Hotel built in 1901. The building has housed a bank, the post office and a general store at various times in the life of Shoshone, Parsons said.

The grant money also will be used to repair the parapet three stories above North Rail Street.

Wendell school principal resigns

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Robert Kesler, principal of Wendell Elementary School, has resigned his position, and the Wendell School District hopes to select a replacement this week.

After five years in Wendell, Kesler is moving to Horseshoe Bend to become the school superintendent there.

"It's a good career move for him," Wendell Superintendent George Crawford said Tuesday.

Although it is relatively late in the year to find another principal, district officials have advertised the vacancy and has five candidates to interview today. Crawford said a decision will be made by Friday if the selected candidate accepts the job right away.

In other school business:
• Mildred Frith, retiring hot lunch supervisor, has been honored by the school district. At a recent school board meeting, trustees gave Frith a plaque for her 14 years of service.

Twila Jasper was hired to replace Frith as hot lunch supervisor.

• The district is advertising part-time work positions for two dishwashers, two janitors and two aides for playground supervision.

• Trustee Jack Hiral donated a bridge to the school. It will be installed this fall on the west side of the high school gymnasium parking lot across the canal at the end of First Ave. East. Crawford said another access to the lot is needed to handle traffic during tournaments and to allow fire trucks better access to nearby fire hydrants.

• Crawford said 26 students from grades one to six enrolled in the Wendell summer school program. Teachers were Jeanne Powell and David Spaulding.

• Re-elected Trustee Elaine Daniels was sworn in for her second three-year term. Clayton Pope was re-elected board chairman, Vernon Mason was re-elected vice chairman and Diane Adams was re-appointed secretary and treasurer.

Rep. Weaver prepares for ethics probe

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jim Weaver, D-Ore., has hired an attorney to represent him in the House ethics committee's investigation of his finances. The Oregonian reported Wednesday.

The panel announced in February it would investigate whether Weaver violated House rules by losing some $81,900 in campaign committee funds through margin trading in U.S. Treasury bonds.

Weaver, a six-term representative, is challenging Republican U.S. Sen. Bob Packwood in the general election this fall.

The ethics panel stepped up its August meeting schedule after meeting more than two hours July 23 in an unannounced session. The Portland newspaper said in a story from Washington.

The committee apparently discussed one or both of its inquiries into the cases of Weaver and Rep. Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., the newspaper said. Germain is alleged to have used his office for personal gain.

The committee's chairman, Rep. Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said the panel would meet two or three times before the mid-August congressional recess. Dixon would not discuss details of the July 23 meeting, but it apparently was the panel's first meeting since June.

The stepped-up schedule may indicate the committee's staff or outside counsel have reached the point in their investigations at which information can be reviewed by the committee members.

Dixon said Weaver was represented by an attorney but did not say who it was. A Republican source close to the investigation told the newspaper the attorney was Stanley Brand, an expert on House ethics law who was once general counsel to the clerk of the House and before that an aide to House Speaker

Thomas "Tip" O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

Brand's law firm, Brand and Lowell, once was retained by the House ethics panel to consider charges against former Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, and returned a 51-page report in 1984 that resulted in Hansen's reprimand.

The committee announced Feb. 5 that it was initiating preliminary inquiries involving Weaver, St. Germain and Rep. William H. Boner, D-Tenn. The panel later suspended its investigation into bribe-taking allegations against Boner pending the outcome of a separate Justice Department probe.

Cats' condition not from bad treatment

LEWISTON (AP) — A Lewiston veterinarian treating a Bengal tiger and two African lions that were among a number of wild cats being kept at an Idaho County farm said the animals' condition was not the result of intentional mistreatment.

"They just did not have the facilities to do better," Dr. Clarence E. Blinniger said Wednesday. "There's no intent of the owner for bad treatment. The guy was doing the best he could with the resources he had, but the environment was grossly unfavorable."

The cats were malnourished and dehydrated when Blinniger picked them up Friday at the Clearwater-area farm of Robert Fleber and Dot-I Martin, who moved to Idaho after a judge in Oregon cited allegations of mistreatment in ordering them to get rid of the animals.

Blinniger said a three-month-old tiger and two two-week-old lions in his care were "doing well" Wednesday, but that he had been forced to kill a critically ill 11-month-old lion named Bruiser that also had been at the farm.

Tests showed Bruiser was suffering from a "massive infectious process" and numerous organ failures.

"The poor thing was really bad and was not getting any better," Blinniger said. "We had him in intensive care, but it was not going to save his life."

Fleber was in the process of moving nine other cats to an Idaho Falls-area game farm owned by Woody Arrington, Blinniger said.

The decision to move the animals came after warnings from local law enforcement officials and the Idaho Department of Fish and Game that keeping the cats in makeshift cages and feeding them indigestible fatty meat scraps constituted "cruel and inhumane" treatment, Blinniger said.

He said Fleber got free meat scraps from area shops, but untreated fat from the scraps was laying around in the cats' pens. Their water supply also was unsanitary, Blinniger said.

Fleber said he planned to ignore an order to appear in a Lincoln County, Ore., court to explain why he has not complied with a March order to get rid of the cats.

Court rules against insurance man

BOISE (AP) — A Boise insurance salesman violated an agreement with his former employer when 22 of his customers transferred their business to his new agency, the Idaho Court of Appeals has ruled.

Wednesday's unanimous decision reversed a judgment issued by 4th District Judge Gerald Schroeder for Craig Hansen, who was fired by insurance Associates Corp. in 1982 and joined Jess W. Swan Insurance Agency Inc. 10 days later.

Alleging violation of an employment agreement, Insurance Associates filed suit to collect damages equal to one year's commission order to appear in a Lincoln County, Ore., court to explain why he has not complied with a March order to get rid of the cats.

Hansen's agreement with Insurance Associates prohibited him for two years after his termination from soliciting insurance business from any of the company's customers with whom he had business or personal relations.

Car Club show takes shape

JEROME — The annual swap meet and car show sponsored by the Magic Valley Chapter of the Veteran Motor Car Club of America is taking shape for Aug. 9 and 10 in the South City Park in Jerome.

This is the 18th year for the show, says club secretary Dave Nelson, and is expected to attract 40 to 50 antique, classic and new cars.

There is no admission charge for the show and no entry charge for exhibitors. Swap meet space is available at $9 for one day or $12 for both days.

Persons wanting swap space should contact Merle Jones of Jerome at 324-4112. Cars may be entered from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. Saturday by checking in at the show site in the park.

A "cook shack" will provide refreshments at the park and spectators or swap meet shoppers may inspect the displays that will be set up on the grass in the shade of park trees.

The show is part of the week-long Gem Dandy Days summer celebration in Jerome.

Nelson said entries will range from the early brass laden vehicles to favorites of the '30s and '40s and some of the newest automobiles from area dealers.

This year trophies will be given to the "best of show" in two divisions including 1941 and before and 1942 to the present time. First and second place awards will also be given in four other classes. Judging will be Saturday afternoon.

Nelson said there will be a no host dinner and meeting at 6 p.m. Saturday in the China Village restaurant in Jerome. All members of the car club and anyone interested in joining is invited to attend. Reservations may be made by calling Fred Locke of Gooding at 934-4567.

Additional information is available from Jones, Nelson at 423-5621 or show chairman, Bob Brackett, 733-1667.

Recent U.S. Bureau of Census figures estimate Lincoln County's 1985 population at 3,400, and county figures estimate one-third of the area's residents are senior citizens.

Parsons said the Shoshone center serves an average of 45 people at meals on three days a week and takes additional meals to homebound seniors at least five days a week.

The center also serves one meal a week in the Richfield Methodist Church, takes meals to seniors there on Monday and serves seniors in Dietrich a hot meal one day a week at the Dietrich school during the school year.

Parsons estimates about 35 seniors volunteer to work in the various locations around the county.

"It seems to be turning into a retirement community," Parsons said. "We are working all the time to improve the center."

The seniors own a 15-passenger van, and Parsons says the center transports senior residents to out-of-town appointments for medical, vision and dental care and offers some "day trips" and other limited recreation activities.

The Shoshone Center was managed by a paid site manager for several years, but the paid manager was replaced by volunteer managers earlier this year in what Armstrong said was an "economizing" move. He said so far the program is working smoothly with some members of the board and area seniors taking turns overseeing operations.

The $28,500 received Wednesday must be matched by the center, but Armstrong said the seniors can use donated labor and materials as part of the grant match.

Parsons said several fund-raising activities are being explored by the group with donations of time, money or supplies always welcome. She said some ideas, like quilting and bingo, can be recreational as well as bring funds into the center.

Young mom's actions disgust other shoppers

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday while grocery shopping, I witnessed a young mother screaming at her son to hurry up and choose between a Twinkie and a Ding Dong. The child was so frightened he couldn't decide.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

Instead of waiting, she grabbed him by his hair and whipped his head back! He started crying and fell to the floor. She reached down, pulled the little fellow to his feet, then slapped him as hard as she could and whipped his head back again. Needless to say, the child ended up with nothing.

I noticed that four or five other shoppers had witnessed this cruel scene and appeared as disgusted as I was.

Why didn't one of us do something? A part of me said, "Stay out of it — it's none of your business," and another part of me said, "That woman is abusing that child; you should intervene."

What should I have done?

—WITNESS IN HUNTINGTON

DEAR WITNESS: It would have been appropriate to have quietly approached the young mother and in a very kind and non-judgmental way expressed concern for her: "You must be very tired, impatient and under a lot of pressure to have over-reacted as you did. Please discuss this with your physician instead of taking it out on the little fellow."

DEAR ABBY: I need to know something about homosexuals, and I can't ask anyone I know for fear of exposing my husband.

We have been married for 25 years, and in all that time I have never suspected him of homosexual behavior. I've suspected a couple of his friends, but never him.

My husband has had ulcerative proctitis for the last 20 years. Yesterday I mentioned this to my friend and she said, "Oh, that's a homosexual disease." This left me very upset and suspicious of my husband, and I need some answers before this totally destroys my marriage.

Please ask your medical experts if ulcerative proctitis is a homosexual disease. —NAGGING DOUBTS

DEAR NAGGING: I consulted Dr. William C. Bernstein, senior consultant in colon and rectal surgery at the University of Minnesota Hospitals, and he assured me that ulcerative proctitis is NOT a homosexual disease.

For further reassurance, you should discuss the matter of your husband's physical condition with his physician. And questions concerning your husband's sexual activities should be addressed to your husband.

DEAR ABBY: "Afraid to Love" (age 15) asked when she'd know she was ready to go to bed with her boyfriend. He was 16, and had been pressuring her.

You replied: "You will be ready when you are so sure you will not have to ask anyone."

My answer would have been: "You'll know you are ready to go to bed together when you can openly discuss what methods of birth control you will use, and what action you will take, should you become pregnant." Sign me... —TWENTY-FIVE AND STILL

NOT READY DEAR TWENTY-FIVE: Thank you. Your answer was better than mine.

Northern Ireland teens say good-bye

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It might have been any gathering of boisterous teenagers, except for the abundance of green T-shirts and Irish accents as 12 youths from Northern Ireland said good-bye to their Utah hosts after a month-long visit.

The Ulster Project-Utah ended with a farewell dinner and religious service at St-Ambrose Catholic Church Monday evening and the Tuesday departure of the teens — six Protestant, six Catholic — and their two adult counselors.

The actual impact of the project, designed to foster understanding between Protestant and Catholic youths in violence-torn Northern Ireland, will not be known for months or perhaps even years, the project's sponsors say.

But the Utahns who organized the project this year and raised more than $11,000 to bring the teens here already are looking for contributors and host families for a second project next summer.

"We're already accepting applications from people who would like to participate in next year's project and perhaps be a host family for a kid next summer," said project president Judy Wight. "We're also looking for contributions because we're planning on continuing it."

Salt Lake City joined eight other U.S. cities in hosting an Ulster Project group this year. In all, 112 Protestant and Catholic American communities have participated in the project since its inception in 1975.

Project founder the Rev. Canon Kerry Waterstone, a Church of Ireland minister from the Republic of Ireland, says friendships forged in the United States help teach the teens to be tolerant of religious differences when they return to Northern Ireland. It is easier to see the narrow-mindedness there.

Grandparents turn to courts in fight for visitation rights

CHICAGO (AP) — The threat of never being able to see her granddaughter again drove Maxine Neier to the courts where, like a growing number of grandparents caught in the middle of divorce and custody battles, she fought back — and won.

Mrs. Neier had doted on her granddaughter Shari since her birth 15 years ago. She continued to see the child when her son and daughter-in-law divorced in 1976 and Shari went to live with her mother.

But in 1981, Mrs. Neier's former daughter-in-law told her that she could no longer see Shari.

Mrs. Neier was devastated.

"There hadn't been a week or two weeks that we hadn't seen her. Then when she was 10, I was totally cut off from contact with her," she recalled.

"I was determined I was going to fight."

Mrs. Neier, 57, sued for the right to see her granddaughter, taking her case all the way to the Illinois Supreme Court.

The justices ruled in September that grandparents may seek visitation rights in certain cases if the visitation would be "in the best interest of the child," and granted those rights to Mrs. Neier and her husband Eugene, and to three other couples.

Before 1985, grandparents in Illinois were allowed visitation rights "only when courts felt it was absolutely necessary," said Arthur Berman, chairman of the American Bar Association's Family Law Division Custody Committee in Chicago.

Because an increasing number of grandparents nationwide are seeking legal recourse when they are barred from seeing their grandchildren, "the courts are aware now that there are situations where grandparents should have input," Berman said in a telephone interview Monday.

The increased divorce rate of the past decade, combined with a realization of the importance of child-grandparent relationships, has sparked a nationwide trend toward legal support for grandparents' visitation rights, experts say.

Within the past five years, every state in the nation has enacted laws allowing grandparents visitation rights in some circumstances. Nebraska became the last to do so in April, said Doris Freed, a New York attorney who writes a yearly column on family law for the ABA.

"All states base it on the best interests of the child," Ms. Freed said. "They differ in the circumstances." Some allow such visitation rights only in the case of parent death, separation or divorce, she said. But the trend is toward allowing grandparents the right to see their grandchildren "regardless of the circumstances, unless visitation would be detrimental for the child."

"Practically all states do not permit animosity between the parent and grandparent to be an obstacle" to visitation, Ms. Freed said.

"Every state has come to realize that what we're talking about is the right of the child not to be cut off from the extended family," she said.

Being separated from a grandchild "just destroys your life. You can't imagine how heartbreaking it is," said Lucile Sumpler, who, with her husband Lee, formed a national clearinghouse in Hasset, Mich., providing information to grandparents denied visitation.

There have been instances of suicide, heart attacks and severe depression among grandparents denied the right to see their grandchildren, she said.

Swelling trade deficit sets record, still rising

BY TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Halfway through 1986, the nation's trade deficit had swollen to a record six-month level of $8.9 billion with little sign of slackening, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

Analysts said the report, showing a $14.2 billion deficit for June that was essentially identical to the May figure, increases pressure for trade restraint legislation and could be a factor in next week's veto override attempt on a bill to limit textile imports.

"It's too late for the tide to turn on trade enough to make a difference," said Allen Sinal, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Bros. "I think it is now almost inevitable that we will see some sort of protectionist legislation this year."

In all, imports increased by 5 percent in June to $53.2 billion. Exports also increased, by 9.8 percent to $19.1 billion.

Nearly all the increase in exports, however, was due to a $2 billion shipment of gold bullion to Japan for the minting of Japanese commemorative medals, Commerce Department analysts said.

The new trade figures showed only a slight impact from a 30 percent decline in the value of the U.S. dollar — measured against the major currencies of Japan and Western Europe — from its peak in 1985.

In theory, a stronger dollar should make imports more expensive and U.S. goods more competitive abroad. Prices for imports have been rising, but not nearly by as much as the dollar has declined.

Wednesday's report made it a near certainty that the trade deficit for 1986 will surpass the record $14.5 billion in 1985. So far, this year's deficit has widened at an annual rate of $168 billion.

"The fall in the dollar over the past year is just beginning to help the trade deficit," said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige in a statement. "In addition, we need more growth outside of the United States to see sustained improvement in the deficit."

Private analysts were more pessimistic. "There is just no growth abroad. Nobody's buying anything," they're all trying to sell to the United States," said Jerry Jasnowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

"We're not going to see any improvement in the trade deficit at all this year and we could well be facing deficits of $170 billion," he added.

The June trade report showed for the first time ever a higher deficit with Western Europe than with Japan — with the imbalance with European trading partners climbing to a record $3.8 billion from a May shortfall of $2.7 billion.

The deficit with Japan was $3.7 billion, down from $5 billion in May.

And for the second month in a row, the United States imported more agricultural goods than it exported, running a deficit in those commodities of $71.2 million, down from the $247.7 million deficit of May.

Economists said the farm deficit is due largely to poor sales this year of major U.S. grains to overseas markets. Historically, farm exports have been one of the strongest components of this nation's trade accounts.

In separate reports, the government said

New home sales decline for 3rd month

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sales of new homes fell 9.9 percent in June for the third consecutive monthly decline, the government said Wednesday.

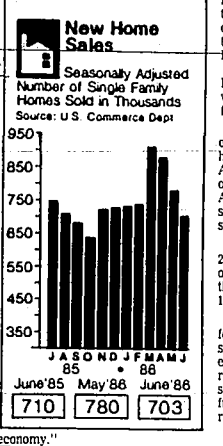

The Commerce Department said single-family homes sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 703,000 units last month following sales declines of 11.8 percent in May and 4.3 percent in April.

Even with the declines, sales for the first six months of the year were 18 percent ahead of the pace in the first half of 1985, making housing one of the few bright spots in a generally sluggish economy.

Analysts said the weakness in the overall economy was beginning to affect the momentum in the housing market, however, with the slump in the oil industry and continuing problems in the farm belt cutting into sales in the South and Midwest.

"Sales are still good, but we have lost the exuberance we had at the first of the year," said Warren Laska, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association.

"The decline in June happened basically because interest rates turned back up and we have a sick in recent weeks. Fixed-rate mortgages stood at a national average of 10.4 percent last week, according to a survey by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

David Nyss, an economist with Data Resources Inc., predicted rates will drop below 10 percent again for fall and help boost home sales.

The surge in sales of both new and existing homes so far this year has helped lift the percentage of American households owning their own homes to 63.8 percent in the April-June quarter, according to a separate Commerce Department survey.

Home ownership, which had hit a 20-year low in the final three months of last year, still remains well below the all-time peak of 65.6 percent in 1980.

James Christian, chief economist for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, said with sales of new and existing homes running at an annual rate of more than 4 million units since last August, there should be further improvements in homeownership rates in the months ahead.

But Michael Sumichrast, an economist at the National Association of Home Builders, said his latest survey of builder expectations for future sales showed a substantial decline in July.

"I think housing production peaked in the second quarter and you will see moderation in construction and sales for the rest of the year," he said, predicting sales of new single-family homes would total 710,000 for all of 1986, up 3 percent from last year.

The weaker sales pushed prices down in June. The median price of a new home fell 3.3 percent to $89,600. The median price, which means half the homes sold for more and half for less, had been $92,700 in May. The average sales price declined as well, dropping by 4.2 percent to $111,100.

The June annual sales rate of 703,000 units, the slowest pace since last October, was down considerably from the 1986 peak of 924,000 units in March.

The weakness hit all regions except the West, where sales rose by 9.4 percent to an annual rate of 214,000 units.

The sharpest decline came in the Midwest, a 37.9 percent drop that put sales at an annual rate of 64,000 units. Sales in the Northeast fell 35.8 percent to an annual rate of 95,000 units.

Blue chips set pace as Dow turns upward

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip issues set the pace as the stock market rallied from some early declines to finish mostly higher Wednesday.

Analysts said the market's gyrations came as Wall Streeters tried to assess the outlook for the government's next quarterly sale of bonds and notes.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down about 13 points at midday, closed with a 12.52 point gain at 1,779.39.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange picked up to 146.8 million shares from 115.6 million Tuesday.

After the close, the Treasury announced that it would sell $28 billion in bonds and notes next week. The size of the refunding package came in a bit smaller than some market-

First Security earnings rise slightly

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Economic weakness in critical sectors reined in second quarter earnings for First Security Corp., as the company's earnings rose a penny higher than last year.

The Salt Lake City-based corporation, which operates 164 branches in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming, reported net earnings in the April-June period of $4.2 million, up only $200,000 from the same period a year ago.

The modest increase translated into earnings per share of 34 cents, a penny higher than a year ago, and kept profits for the first half of this year running over $5 million ahead of a year earlier at $11 million.

"The distress experienced on the farm, in the factor and at the mine or drilling rig is becoming very apparent along the main streets of numerous communities in our region," President Spencer Eccles said.

"Our earnings performance continues to be impeded by a significant number of problem loans and the costs incurred in the reduction of our nonperforming assets," he said.

The corporation reported ending the quarter with nonperforming assets totaling $193 million, the same level recorded in March, but during the second quarter the bank charged off $11 million in bad loans and sold another $12 million in real estate.

At the same time, the bank's reserve to cover bad loans was increased to a record $72 million, up 58 percent from the $46 million fund maintained just a year ago. Eccles called the infusion of cash into the reserve a "pro-active strategy" that recognized the continued weakness in the Intermountain Region's farming, mining and real estate sectors.

The corporation reported total resources at quarter's end of $5.3 billion, up $200 million from a year earlier with deposits standing at $3.8 billion.

Outstanding loans at the end of June totaled $2.4 billion, down $206 million from June 1985 as the company disposed of its mortgage loan subsidiaries to CrossLand. First Security used the proceeds to pay off much of its outstanding debt and raise its primary capital account to $436 million, well above the minimum required by regulators.

Eccles said that declining interest rates, lower U.S. exchange rates and plunging fuel prices have combined to provide some prospect for stronger consumer spending and relief in the weak industrial sector over the rest of the year.

But, he said, "At the inception of the third quarter there was little evidence of an impending rebound.

Major aircraft makers team up for ATF work

The Los Angeles Times

Northrop and McDonnell Douglas have formed a team to jointly pursue the U.S. Air Force's advanced tactical fighter program.

The announcement made Monday evening by the formation of another team composed of Lockheed, General Dynamics and Boeing, Rockwell International and Grumman, the other two companies involved in the competition to develop the airplane, have not joined a team.

The seven defense contractors were due to submit their individual bids for the demonstration and validation phase of the ATF program Monday. The ATF is expected to be the Air Force's principal air defense fighter in future decades.

The Air Force has been quietly advocating that the companies form teams to compete for the program. The service believes that the teams will pool their funding, thereby reducing the cost to the Pentagon. In addition, the teaming system spreads work throughout the industry in an era when there is not enough work to keep every company in business.

All seven companies in the ATF competition are submitting separate proposals, so the alliances that have been formed could be obsolete when the Air Force selects the winners of the competition.

Under the Northrop-McDonnell agreement, the two companies will share the ATF program if either one wins one of the two contracts the Air Force will award to develop prototypes. If neither company wins or both companies win, the agreement would be prematurely dissolved.

In the mid-1970s, Northrop and McDonnell formed a team to work on the F-16, a Navy aircraft that is currently in production. The two companies got into a protracted legal battle that ended when McDonnell paid Northrop $50 million in an out-of-court settlement.

Nissan considers offering buyer incentives to halt sales slip car-sales here in June, said Mitsuru Goto, general manager of public affairs for Nissan's international division.

Nissan's sales of the passenger cars it imports were down by 2 percent in June, to 52,631, compared with levels of a year earlier. Nissan also cuts cars in the United States for sale here.

Speaking at a four-day auto industry conference, Goto said, "We'll Japanese automaker offered incentives directly to consumers to sell our cars in the U.S." He gave no indication of when such incentives might be offered or what form they would take.

Although Nissan and other Japanese car makers have offered low interest-rate financing deals on trucks, and have offered discounts to individuals on cars, such a program extends to cars or trucks, said a spokesman in California.

Zions board sets dividend

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Zions Utah Bancorporation directors have approved an increase in the regular quarterly dividend.

Ray W. Simmons, chairman of the board, said the increase to 36 cents per share is payable Oct. 23 to shareholders of record Oct. 1, 1986.

Zions Utah Bancorporation, a bank holding company whose principal subsidiary is the 64-branch Zions First National Bank, earlier reported that its net income for the first six months of 1986 declined 13 percent compared to the same period one year earlier.

Net income for the first half of the year ended ending June 30 was $11,894,000, down from $13,720,000 reported for the same period a year ago. Earnings per share for the six-month period totaled $1.55, a 14 percent decrease from the $2.27 posted during the same period a year ago.

In addition, Zions said that its net income for the second quarter ended ending June 30 was $3,030,000, a decline of 27 percent from the record $7,274,000 earned in the second quarter of 1985.

Over all, Lee-Wrangler merger will make little difference

Los Angeles Times

Analysts applauded VF's move because it will enable the highly regarded company to double its share of the slow-moving, $3.5 billion jeans market and move into a dead heat with San Francisco-based Levi's, which last year had sales of about $2.6 billion. The Blue Bell purchase will add more than $1 billion in sales to VF's $1.5 billion. "From VF's perspective, this is a consistent move by their management that would give them growth in a mature business," said Joseph Battipaglia, an analyst with Holding, manufacturer of Wrangler and Gruntal & Co. in New York. Moreover, he said, customers "probably will not blur the two product lines. There will be a distinction between a Wrangler and a Lee."

He noted that the merger could make things tougher for small jeans companies but that customers stand to benefit as a result. By realizing economies of scale with the merger, "VF can be even more price competitive when they have to be," he said. VF Chairman and Chief Executive Lawrence R. Pugh said Monday that he expects the merger, which could be completed by October if it wins the necessary approvals, to have little effect on the jeans market. "It's a huge market, the biggest piece of the apparel business," he said. He added that the top three brands cater to different markets, with Levi's appealing to an urban customer, Lee to a suburban shopper and Wrangler, the lowest priced of the three brands, to a rural buyer. Even so, under federal antitrust laws, the government is likely to scrutinize the merger to determine whether competition will be curtailed. "We don't believe there will be a problem, but we will be submitting (the deal) through the appropriate federal channels," Pugh said. Industry leader Levi Strauss reacted with reluctance to the merger announcement. "Even with the merger, Levi's will own ownership as the rule. A year ago, for example, the founding Haas family of Levi Strauss financed a $1.1 billion buyout of the company. Publicly held VF, based in Wyoming, is part of a dying breed in the jeans industry, where consolidation and private ownership are the rule. A year ago, for example, the founding Haas family of Levi Strauss financed a $1.1 billion buyout of the company.

Buhl, Jerome open with big losses

By RON BENNETT
Special to the Times-News

IDAHO FALLS — Right-hander Dave Drake threw a one-hitter to lead tournament favorite Meridian to a 1-0 victory over Buhl in the opening round of the Idaho State American Legion "B" baseball tourney here Wednesday afternoon. Earlier in the day, Lewiston edged Nampa 3-2 in other opening-round games. Both the Jerome and Buhl games were called after five innings because of the 10-run lead rule. With the losses, Jerome was thrown into a consolation bracket meeting with Nampa today at 11 a.m., while Buhl will take on the loser of the Idaho Falls-St. Maries game at 8 a.m. Friday in the double-elimination tournament. Drake, the ace of the Rangers' pitching staff, improved his record to 10-0 this season with the victory while Meridian improved its season record to 39-3. Drake was relieved in the last inning by Aaron Moorehouse. Buhl starter David Cooper had the only hit for the Indians, a single in the fourth inning. He was also the only Buhl player to reach third base. "We haven't done well against these guys all year," said Buhl Coach Tom Fleming, whose ballclub had lost five previous games to the Rangers this summer. "We made a couple of throwing errors in the first inning and got behind, and nothing went our way after that. They hit them where we weren't." The two throwing errors by Buhl in the first inning, along with singles by Moorehouse and Sean Harris and a double by Clinton Brown, gave the Rangers a quick 3-0 lead. Meridian pushed across another run in the third on an RBI single by right fielder Brian Avram. But it was in the fourth inning that Meridian did the real damage. Aided by three Buhl fielding errors, the Rangers exploded for six hits, including a double by Moorehouse, to score eight runs and effectively end the game. The Indians went through three pitchers in an attempt to slow Meridian's offensive onslaught. Cooper worked the first two innings, allowing four runs on four hits. Lyle Peterson pitched one out in the third then ran into big trouble in the fourth giving up six runs on three hits along with two walks before getting relief help from Brian Hansen with no outs. Hansen threw the final three innings, allowing two runs on three hits. Offensively the Indians simply couldn't get anything going. In the first two innings, only shortstop Ron Watkins reached first, that came on a walk. In the third, Buhl appeared to be starting a rally as first baseman Mike Brady walked and third baseman Cornelio Hernandez reached first on an error, both with no outs. However, Drake retired the rest of the lineup. In the earlier game, Jerome played Lewiston tough until the fifth inning when the Cubs scored seven runs on five hits and ended the game with only one out in the inning. "We didn't hit the ball well and then when we got behind, we let down," said Jerome Coach Curt Bartholomew. "Lewiston hit the ball well. I'm surprised how often they hit to right field. We weren't expecting that." The Cubs showed patience in waiting for the curveballs from Jerome starter Jim Bos and reliever Todd Amundson. Of Lewiston's 12 hits, 11 of them were singles. Early in the game, the Elks looked as if they were going to give favored Lewiston all it could handle. In the first inning, "Jay" Ostler singled, Amundson doubled and Jim Huber singled, giving Jerome a 2-0 lead. "We did just what we wanted to do in the first inning, then fell apart," said Bartholomew. Indeed, Jerome had its troubles after that, committing four errors, giving up 10 walks, hitting one batter, advancing runners on wild pitches and passed balls and allowing 12 hits. Jerome scored a single run in the third as Amundson singled, went to second on a hit by Mark Moore, advanced to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a passed ball. The Elks were playing without five regulars who were missing because of vacations and other commitments. They didn't play because they didn't bring their required birth certificates. Bartholomew said Bos (2-5) or right-hander Jeff Turner (2-0) would start, today while Fleming plans to

For Minico, veteran catcher Branson remains the straw that stirs the drink

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Jesse Branson takes a pitch and fires it to second base. The ball skips once to the right side and the second baseman can't handle it. Branson squats back down, takes another pitch and fires it back to second base; this time, the ball flies too high for the fielder's reach. Branson paces a few seconds, gathers himself and sits back down. The pitch comes, he rises, ball in hand. He snaps a perfect strike to second base. He repeats the drill again and again, to third base and back to second. "I love Jesse Branson," says his

American Legion Baseball

American Legion baseball coach, Russ Wright, as he looks on. "Jesse's a good one." Branson walks silently around the field, heading for another drill as practice continues for the Mini-Cassia Sage, a team preparing for the next weekend's Southern Region "A" Legion tournament in Twin Falls. For this young team to have a chance to make it to the state tournament, the play and leadership of a determined Branson will have to play a key role. For the Sage he is — as Reggie Jackson once said of New York Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner — the straw that stirs the drink. "He's a quiet leader," says Wright. "I'd like him to be more vocal, though, and be a real quarterback for the team. He needs to do a little butt-chewing as well as encouraging the younger players."

Being the veteran catcher means that Branson's largest responsibility might be his handling of the young pitching staff, something that with his experience — including pitching one game himself — he does well, including "taking charge" (his words) and "gaining respect" from the pitchers (Wright's words). Branson — starting — playing organized baseball in junior high school because his "friends went out," but he soon exceeded his teammates' ability and developed into one of the top players in the area. Ever since, the Minico catcher has been impressing baseball players.

USFL brass mulls next move in wake of federal jury ruling

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The USFL, hit by what amounts to a death sentence by a federal court jury, took the first steps Wednesday in what it vowed will be a continuing judicial battle to stay alive.

More USFL — D5

Harvey Myerson, who for 11 weeks has ably argued the USFL's $1.62 billion antitrust suit, said he was considering four approaches to increasing in the damages awarded by the jury. After finding the NFL had monopolized pro football, the panel assessed the league $1,750 million under antitrust regulations to $3.

Myerson and USFL Commissioner Harry Usher assailed what they saw as the contradiction between the finding and the award of just that single dollar, although Judge Peter K.

USFL
UNITED STATES FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Lewis's 155-page charge specifically told the jurors they could do just that. "The jury found that the NFL violated the antitrust laws and injured us," Usher said. "That's what the jury found unanimously. For the NFL to crow after being found guilty of violating the law and then go out and crow about having won — God help this country."

"It defies logic and common sense to have an award for $1 for damages and injuries," said Myerson. "We're talking about a billion-dollar swing."

Myerson, who met with Lewis and NFL attorneys for 15 minutes to set a timetable for the normal post-trial motions, cited statements given after the verdict by one of the jurors, Miriam Sanchez. She said she was in favor of

NFL clubs already preparing to pick up spoils from USFL

The Associated Press

If the USFL folds, the New England Patriots are ready to sign three players from the league.

Dick Steinberg, the Patriots' player development director, said Wednesday the club would like to add wide receiver Riley Sanders, quarterback Walter Lewis and tight end Mark Keel, whose rights the Patriots own, to their training camp roster. But he's willing to see the repercussions of Tuesday's jury decision awarding the USFL $1 in its $1.62 billion suit against the NFL, a ruling that could doom the younger league. Meanwhile, New England still hasn't signed its top two draft choices — first-round pick Reggie Dupard, a running back from Southern Methodist, and second-round choice Mike Ruth, a nose tackle from Boston College. "We have hit some snags" in negotiations for Dupard, Steinberg said. "We're creeping along," agent Peter Johnson said of negotiations for Ruth. "It's certainly not going as quickly as I thought it would."

Sanders, who caught more than 100 passes in 1984 with the

NFL
National Football League

Houston Gamblers, would appear to have "the greatest appeal" to New England. Lewis was a backup quarterback at Memphis and Keel, who is not fully recovered from a knee injury, is noted more as a receiver than a blocker.

Cincinnati officials are cautious in appraising the future of the rival United States Football League, following a jury's mixed verdict in a court fight between the USFL and National Football League.

Bengals Coach Sam Wyche said, "I disagree with the judgment, but not the award. I don't think it's fair for them to be awarded at the expense of their competitors."

UV football star pleads guilty to dealing coke

By Washington Post

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Barry Word, the University of Virginia talkback who was last season's Atlantic Coast Conference football player of the year, has pleaded guilty in federal court to conspiring to distribute cocaine as part of a four-state drug ring that involved other members of the team. A detective testified that Word, a third round draft choice of the New Orleans Saints and one of four former Virginia football players named in drug charges, had begun using cocaine at parties here "where the drug was laid out for the taking."

A federal grand jury last week also indicted Howard C. Petty Jr. and Kenneth P. Stadlin, members of the 1985 squad, and Kevin A. Turner, a former squad member who lived in the same apartment building as Word.

Walker's NOF West team second

By The Times-News
And The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The West baseball team — of which the College of Southern Idaho's Jim Walker is the coach — took the silver medal Wednesday night at the National Olympic Festival.

Walker's ballclub fell to the South team 9-0 in the gold medal game of the festival. Mark Smith of Houston and Clay Howell of Austin, Texas, combined on a two-hitter. Donald Loupe of Morgan City, La., knocked in three deated the North 4-3 and beat the East 4-3. Walker said Tuesday that two of the players on his West ballclub had committed before the festival to attend CSI.

The teams from the North, South, East and West were chosen at regional tryouts at sites throughout the country. In another sport, CSI sophomore Erick Newman and his West team won their first game in the team handball competition, beating the North 13-13.

runs with two hits, and Smith and Brian Bohannon of Houston had two hits each.

The West had gained a berth in the gold medal game by finishing 3-0 in the preliminary round, including a 5-4 victory over the South on Saturday. That was the South's only loss in the first round of competition.

Also in the first round, the West

NL: Astros expand lead in West to four

HOUSTON (AP) — Rookie left-hander Jim Deshaies made a change in his pitching delivery that he had long resisted and it paid off with what he considers the best pitching performance of his major league career.

"I've been stubborn, but I made an adjustment in my delivery tonight and I couldn't believe how it worked," Deshaies said after scattering five hits over 8 1/2 innings and leading the Houston Astros to a 4-2 win over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night in the Astrodome.

The victory gave the National League West-leading Astros a full four-game lead over second-place San Francisco pending the Giants' late game in Los Angeles.

"I grew up watching Tom Seaver and I'm always dug my head during my windup," Deshaies, 6-3, explained. "But I've been having some trouble picking up the plate so tonight I went through my whole windup without taking my eyes off the plate."

"I'm going to stay with it. I had to rate this as my best outing."

It was Deshaies' fifth win in his last six decisions.

"Tonight was a very strong outing for Jim," Houston manager Hal Lanier said. "He had a good changeup and he used it more than in any other game this season."

Glenn Davis hit his 23rd home run of the season for the Astros, a fifth-inning solo shot that ties him with Dave Parker for the National League lead in home runs.

"I'm only human and all those things shoot through my mind (the home run little)," Davis said. "But I don't want to dwell on it. I'm trying to listen to the veterans and they all tell me to keep the game as simple as possible."

Deshaies, 6-3, struck out nine and walked only one before needing last-out relief help from Dave Smith, who recorded his 19th save.

The only runs of Deshaies came on a two-run homer in the ninth with one out by Ken Griffey, his fifth.

Griffey's homer hit the right field foul pole at the Astrodome.

Lefty Jim Aker, 1-1, pitched 4 1/2 innings and gave up four runs, three earned, on eight hits.

Houston took a 3-0 lead in the first after Davey Lopes reached on a fielding error by shortstop Andres Thomas and stole second. After an out and a walk to Davis, Kevin Bass singled in Lopes. Alan Ashby and Craig Reynolds followed with RBI singles.

The Astros increased their lead to 4-0 in the fifth when Davis hit a towering home run well into the left field stands.

Chicago 4
New York 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Cey drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the first inning and Dennis Eckersley and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter as the Chicago Cubs defeated the New York Mets 4-3 Wednesday night in a rain-delayed game.

Eckersley, 6-6, struck out four and walked two in five innings before rain halted the game in the top of the sixth for nearly two hours. Frank DiPino and Lee Smith finished up with Smith gaining his 19th save.

Sid Fernandez, 12-4, suffered his second straight defeat after seven consecutive wins, despite striking out a season-high 11. He allowed three walks, all in the first inning, to set the stage for Cey's double.

Bob Demler opened the game with a walk, stole second, and one out later Gary Matthews also walked.

Demler then stole third and after Keith Hernandez walked to lead the bases, Cey lined his double off the left field wall.

The Mets scored in the second on Gary Carter's leadoff double, Danny Heep's infield single and Howard Johnson's two-out double.

Matthews tied off the Cubs' third with a homer, his 12th of the season.

The Mets cut the Cubs' lead to 4-3 in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Darryl Strawberry and another run allowed by Shawn Dunston's error at short.

Montreal 3
Pittsburgh 2

MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Dawson scored from third on a wild pitch for the Expos' second run in the seventh inning that carried Montreal to a 3-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday night.

The Expos trailed 2-1 heading into the seventh but pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson's first homer in the majors tied the game with nobody out.

Johnson, who was hitting for Montreal starting pitcher Jay Tibbs, hit the second pitch from reliever Jim Winn, 2-4, over the right field wall that finally gave the sparse crowd of 12,672 in the $9,149-seat Olympic Stadium something to cheer about.

Two outs later, Dawson walked and took third on a single by Hubie Brooks, who missed his last eight games with an injured left hand. Dawson then raced home when Winn's pitch sailed by his catcher, Tony Pena.

The game was scoreless until the Pirates tagged Tibbs for RBI singles by U.L. Washington and starting pitcher Bob Walk for a 2-0 lead in the fifth.

Tibbs, who hasn't won a game since June 10, gave up six hits and had two strikeouts. He was replaced by Bob McClure in the eighth, but before the inning ended Jeff Reardon came on to register his 23rd save. Walk gave up five hits while walking five and striking out four.

The Expos got to Winn for the first run in the sixth. Brooks singled and went to second on a one-out walk to Wayne Krenchicki. Mike Fitzgerald followed with an RBI single.

Arbitrator tosses out portion of baseball drug test scheme

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal arbitrator ruled Wednesday that drug-testing clauses contained in the contracts of several hundred major league baseball players are unenforceable.

"The arbitrator Tom Roberts ruled that the clubs may not get results from any drug tests by bypassing the union," said Donald Fehr, executive director of the Major League Players Association. "They must go through the union."

Fehr said the ruling meant that the drug testing clauses are illegal.

"Obviously, we're pleased," said Fehr, whose union filed a grievance against the drug testing earlier this year. "It was the correct decision. It reaffirmed the basic principle that you can't bypass the union. Now we go back and negotiate."

"I'm very disappointed by the decision," Barry Rona, executive director of the Players Relations Committee, said. "It's clear that"

AL: Umpire runs Clemens; Chisox run Boston

CHICAGO (AP) — Roger Clemens, the winningest pitcher in the majors this season, says he's positive he tagged first base on a disputed play that resulted in his ejection after the go-ahead run scored in the fifth inning of Boston's 5-2 loss Wednesday night to the Chicago White Sox.

"There's no question in my mind I got the bag," Clemens said.

But first base umpire Greg Kosc disagreed.

"I honestly believe I had the play right," Kosc said. "Why would I want call the guy safe?"

The video replay appeared to show that Baines was out.

"The replay is wrong because they got the wrong angle," said Kosc.

John Cangalosi scored the winning run when Kosc ruled Clemens had failed to touch first base on a three-out strikeout by Doug Drabek.

Harold Baines' grounder—Clemens, 17-3, was ejected by Kosc when he argued the play and made a lunge at Kosc. Clemens was restrained by teammates.

"Kosc said Clemens bumped him, but the pitcher said it was the umpire who hit him with his arm when he was pointing at the bag.

Besides Clemens, two players on the Boston bench, who stormed out of the dugout — pitchers Bruce Hurst and Al Nipper — also were ejected.

"I will pick up their fines," Clemens said.

Clemens, who leads the American League in strikeouts, fanned one while giving up three runs, eight hits and no walks in 4 1/2 innings.

Jose DeLeon, 1-0, pitched the first six innings for Chicago. Dave Schmidt went the final three for his sixth save.

Tim Lulleit went four-for-four, including a two-run homer to lead Chicago's 13-hit attack.

California 6
Oakland 2

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Doug DeCinces' pinch-hit double scored Reggie Jackson from first base in the eighth inning to give California the lead, as the Angels pulled out a come-from-behind 6-2 victory over the Oakland A's Wednesday.

John Candelaria, 4-1, pitched five-hit ball in the eighth, striking out five and walking none, for the victory. Donnie Moore finished the game for his 12th save.

Jackson was the first batter to face Dave Laiser, 1-2, who relieved A's starter Jose Rijo after the left-hander pitched in the eighth, grounding out Jackson singled to center.

On DeCinces' double to right-center field, A's center fielder Mike Davis had trouble coming up with the ball, allowing Jackson to score easily and snap a 2-2 tie.

Later in the eighth inning, Dick Schofield forced in a run when he drew a bases-loaded walk from Doug Bair, and Bob Boone hit a sacrifice fly.

DeCinces, who stayed in the game at third base, added an RBI single in the ninth inning to give the Angels a 6-2 lead.

Milwaukee 5
New York 0

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ted Higuera pitched a six-hitter and Jim Gantner hit a home run and scored twice, as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the New York Yankees 5-0 Wednesday to complete a three-game sweep.

It was the Brewers' fourth consecutive victory, and the Yankees' fifth loss in their last six games.

Higuera, 13-7, struck out six in completing his ninth game of the season, tying for the American League lead in that category.

Higuera, 3-0 since pitching in the All-Star game, has two shutouts this season.

Rookie right-hander Doug Drabek, 2-4, allowed eight hits — four for extra bases — and left in the sixth inning with the score 5-0.

The Yankees had a new lineup, playing designated hitter Ron Kille, shortstop Wayne Tolleson and catcher Joel Skinner — obtained in a trade with the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night.

Tolleson collected two hits and Skinner one, while Kittle struck out three times and walked in four trips to the plate.

A few USFL owners still undaunted

By The Associated Press

Some USFL clubs insist it is business as usual despite the setback in Federal court which sent the already tottering league grasping for survival.

Lee Scarfone, the Tampa Bay Bandits' principal owner, said Wednesday, "You want a prediction. We're going to play this year. . . . We're not depending on the NFL funding us. We're going to play football. I'd be very surprised if we don't play."

"I wouldn't call us out until the last piece of dirt is thrown on the easel. But some very serious decisions have to be made very soon," Bullard said.

"I would suggest things are not the brightest right now. Unless we pull a rabbit out of a hat, it doesn't look good for us playing this season. Probably the only thing that could salvage the league would be if a network talked to us for 1987 when the NFL television contract runs out. I'm an optimistic person, but it's hard to be optimistic."

Rudi Schiffer, vice president of the Memphis Showboys, said his team has had no layoffs of any personnel and the players and coaches continue to prepare for Aug. 15 training camp.

Arizona Outlaws co-owner Bill Tatham Jr. said the opening of training camp still stands at Aug. 14 in Flagstaff and all players have been told so.

Jerry Argovitz, president of the New Jersey Generals, said, "If it makes (economic) sense, we want to play ball."

Jerry Sklar, president of the Birmingham Stallions, said, "The USFL ownership is pretty a loose-knit group that has stuck together.

undergone many franchise shifts, loss of teams and moves out of major markets, reducing the USFL to eight teams.

Fred Bullard, co-owner of the Jacksonville Bulls, said he wasn't giving up yet.

We certainly expected to win, but in winning we lost."

USFL players view their league's uncertain future with varying reactions.

Jeff Smith, an Orlando Renegade's wide receiver, would like to see the USFL "give it a go and fight its way through the season even if things have to be sealed down" because the league failed to receive the damages envisioned in its suit.

Baltimore Stars' quarterback Chuck Fusina said, "I still want to play and I'm hoping to play with the Stars."

"I'm confused," said Doug Flutie, the Heisman Trophy winner who figures to be a second-string quarterback to Jim Kelly on the New Jersey Generals if there is a USFL season this fall.

Flutie is much better off than most of the others. He has a five-year $7 million personal service contract with Generals owner Donald Trump.

"Financially, I'm still sound," Flutie said. "But for myself and my wife I just want to know where the future is for me."

"I'm not looking to get out of my contract, but I think it might be advantageous for Mr. Trump to sell my contract if we don't play next year."

The Los Angeles Rams own his NFL rights, but he said he would prefer to play for the New England Patriots.

King, 2-2, yielded all three runs on two homers by Tony Bernazard, who hit a solo shot in the sixth and a two-run blow, his 10th, in the eighth. King walked two and struck out three.

The Tigers, who got a homer and three RBI from Dwight Lowry and three RBI from John Grubb, have won three straight, all in the four-game series. The Indians have lost three in a row and six of seven.

Trailing 2-1, Seattle scored three runs in the sixth off Neal Heaton, 4-10. Ken Phelps walked to force in one run and Owen lined a two-run single into center field.

"Sure, I still want to play football in Orlando," Renegades owner Don Dizney said. "That was our original intention, and it still is. And if I can get the other seven owners to agree, then we'll still play. But right now, I don't know how they feel. If I just one pulls out, then everything crumbles. We need all eight teams."

The USFL owners will meet Monday in New York to determine the young league's future after a jury decided Tuesday that the NFL did violate antitrust laws, but awarded the new league only $1 in a $1.69 billion suit. The USFL intends to wage a court battle to have the damages increased.

The USFL, which played its first three years in the spring-summer, and had planned to open its fourth

Legal experts say league's options are limited

NEW YORK (AP) — Two antitrust law experts said Wednesday the United States Football League's options seem limited, following the token damage award of $1 in its suit against the National Football League.

Michael Cardozo of the Manhattan firm of Proskauer Rose Goetz and Mendelsohn said, "Generally speaking, a judge will not go behind what a jury did, if the jury answered the questions properly and was legally consistent."

Harvey Myerson, attorney for the USFL, said Wednesday he would file one of four possible motions with the court. Myerson was angered when some jurors said they had not fully understood Judge Peter K. Leisure's instructions and thought the court had the option of increasing the minimal damage award.

"It's a rare case where a judge will say, 'Let me hear what the jury says went on in the jury room,'" Cardozo said. "I don't think that carries much weight. A juror saying 'I didn't understand' is irrelevant. That's tough luck."

Prof. Phillip Areeda, an antitrust specialist on the faculty at Harvard Law School, said the USFL's major option is to ask for a new trial. "The fact that there was some confusion in the jury might be a basis. They could claim the instructions were erroneous. They could argue inconsistency in the verdict. Those are the standard avenues. If they are rejected, the league could appeal."

"In cases of this sort, new trials are fairly rare."

Areeda said the jury's confusion was not unusual. "No complicated antitrust case has been tried where the jury was not confused," he said. "The legal issues are probably too complicated. Sports antitrust law is peculiar to begin with."

"Myerson could argue the instructions were too confusing, but he had to make that objection before the jury reached its decision," Cardozo said. "That is critical. You can't wait to see if you won or lost the case before you object to the charge."

In some antitrust cases, the question of liability and damages are submitted separately. That was not the case in the USFL-NFL case. "Had the USFL asked first, 'Did the NFL do anything wrong?' without asking the jury to set damages at the same time, it might have been better off," Cardozo said. "The law is discretionary. The juxtaposition might have been vital. You can ask the same question in a number of ways."

"You can prove somebody did something wrong, but unless you show damages, what's the difference? If the government sues, it's different. But a private plaintiff must show damages."

Cardozo said if Myerson moves to set aside the verdict or asks for a totally new trial, his chances for success would be "close to nil." In an appeal, an appellate court would not get into factual questions, that is the jury's determination that one witness was truthful while another was not.

"I think the NFL attorneys had more legal arguments to pursue. If they had lost, Myerson has a tough road."

"Some years ago, Cardozo represented the National Basketball Association when that league was sued by the American Basketball Association. The case was settled out of court, with four ABA teams granted admission to the NBA."

"That case took a more predictable route with the settlement," the attorney said. "The dynamics were different, but it appears that (admission of some member teams to the other league) was what the USFL wanted."

Cardozo said he thought the judgment might send a message to any future leagues considering "kneecap suits."

"They might think twice now that they've seen that David doesn't always beat Goliath."

The Phillies' Charles Hudson dropped to 6-10.

After the Cardinals went up by two runs in the fifth, the Phillies reduced the Cardinals' lead to 4-3 in the sixth when Hayes scored on a double-play grounder by Ron Reynolds.

McCovey, Doerr to join shrine Sunday

By JONATHAN WITTI The Associated Press

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. - Willie McCovey and Bobby Doerr, a couple of players who were good enough but not lucky enough to win a title, are finally going to get one: Hall of Fame.

Baseball

McCovey, like Doerr, made it to one World Series and his team lost painfully. "People ask me how I'd like to be remembered," McCovey said.

With the Giants trailing the New York Yankees 1-0 in the seventh game of the 1962 Series and two men on, McCovey ended the game with a line shot that has become equally famous for its speed and its astonishingly poor choice of location.

It was right at Richardson, the second baseman. The Yankees won. McCovey said he is asked about that out every day.

His 521 other swings produced dramatically different results: home runs that have tied McCovey with Ted Williams for ninth place on the all-time list.

Somebody must have been watching. McCovey is only the 16th man to be elected to the Hall in his first year of eligibility.

Thirty-one years ago, the New York Giants showed an enthusiastic young McCovey what they said would be his future home.

UM's stadium may not be set for opener

MISSOULA (AP) - Although construction of a new football stadium at the University of Montana is ahead of schedule, athletic director Harley Lewis doesn't know when the Grizzlies will play their first game in the facility.

"It would be real nice to open up (the home season this fall) in it," he said Thursday. "But I don't want to rush the construction process."

College football

Bob McCralay, construction supervisor for Washington Construction Co., said his firm is a little bit ahead of schedule, with completion expected sometime this fall on the new Washington-Grizzly Stadium.

UM's first home game will be Sept. 27 against Northern Arizona. The next home game, Oct. 4 against Eastern Washington, will be homecoming.

Lewis said that sod for the 14,000-seat facility that's being built behind Adams Field House on the UM campus should be laid in three or four weeks.

"The surface should be solid enough to play football on about one month after the sod is laid," he said.

He arrived too late for batting practice, and manager Bill Rigney asked him how he was. McCovey said "fine."

He said, "Okay, you're in there hitting third and you know whose spot that is. Number 24 is batting."

second today. Do something.' " Batting in Willie Mays' position, McCovey had two singles and two triples off Robin Roberts.

"It's almost impossible to top that first day," McCovey said. "It was all downhill from there."

While on his spectacular 22-year career, McCovey also set a standard that some statisticians believe hasn't been matched since his 1969 season. He batted .320 and led the league with 45 home runs, 126 RBI and a .656 slugging percentage.

Doerr was born on April 7, 1918. Five months later, the Boston Red Sox won the World Series.

Since that triumph, however, there have been more visits by Halley's Comet than Red Sox World Championships. Since 1918, the Red Sox are tied for World Series championships with the Seattle Mariners, the Seattle Pilots and the Seattle Seahawks. Zero.

Doerr played all 1,852 games of his 14-year career at second base for the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Cardinals. Doerr also played for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Doerr's fortunes have turned since retiring to his Oregon home. The late Gordon was one of the men he beat in the Veterans Committee's voting for the Hall last March.

Lombardi did win a title with the 1960 Cincinnati Reds, but he did not live to see his election to the Hall. He died in 1977 at age 69.

World Series. Despite missing one game and part of another with migraine headaches, he batted .409 with a home run and a double in the 1946 Series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

That Series ended with Doerr's watching helplessly as Ben Slaughter raced around the bases with the winning run in the seventh game.

Doerr and the New York Yankees' Joe Gordon were the American League's dominant second basemen of the 1940s. Their final statistics are similar: Doerr had a .298 career average with 223 homers; Gordon batted .268 with 253 homers in two fewer years.

Yet four times, Doerr finished second with Boston and Gordon went to the World Series with New York. In 1948, Gordon was with the Cleveland Indians when they beat Doerr and the Red Sox in the pennant playoff.

Most trails and roads open

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Sawtooth National Forest reports that nearly all campgrounds, trails and roads are open. In the Burley Ranger District, all campgrounds are open and water is available at Sublett and Clear Creek campgrounds. Lake Cleveland was stocked a few weeks ago and the fishing is reported to be good. In the Fairfield Ranger District, all campgrounds are open except Baumgartner, which remains under construction and is closed to all campers. Drinking water is available at Bounds, Canyon and Pioneer campgrounds. Rattlesnakes have been seen around the Bird Creek Campground, so the U.S. Forest Service advises campers to be cautious in that area.

Jack, Harrington Fork, Bear Gulch campgrounds and at the Hock Creek Guard Station. In the Ketchum Ranger District, all campgrounds are open. Warm Springs, Coral Creek and Lake Creek roads have been graded and some 75 miles of trails around the Little Wood River have been worked. Fishing in the Ketchum area is reported to be good. The Sawtooth National Recreation Area reports all campgrounds are open, but they are filling to capacity on weekdays and on weekends. Most of the trails are open, but cluttered with downed timber. Most roads are open except Fisher Creek. Updated conditions in the SNF can be obtained by phoning 737-3200 during regular business hours Monday through Friday or 737-3250 after 5 p.m. and on weekends.

Careless campers causing wildfires

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — There may have only been 12 wildfires so far this year on the Sawtooth National Forest, but the cause of those fires has fire officials concerned. Of these 12 fires, seven have been caused by abandoned campfires. "Use existing facilities such as fire places or rings in the developed recreation areas," he said. "If a facility is not available and open fires are permitted in the area you are using, clear everything away that could possibly burn, down to bare earth in a circle 10 feet in diameter. Dig a hole in the middle and build the fire there and keep it small." Fires should never be built against trees, logs or near brush. Before leaving a campfire, Jarrell said,

"stir the coals while you pour water over them. Turn the sticks over and soak both sides as well as the earth around the fire. Make sure all sparks are dead out by feeling the embers with your bare hand." People who smoke while in the forest are asked to do so in areas that are clear of burnable materials. In addition to the seven fires caused by abandoned campfires, four fires have been started by lightning and one by a careless smoker. "We have been very fortunate so far this year," said Jarrell. "However, the worst part of the fire season is coming up. We want to encourage all forest users to be conscious of their use of any fire while in the forest and do all that they can to prevent wildfires."

Surprising number of Idahoans ski

POCATELLO (AP) — The first phase of a study on the proposed ski area has determined that more than one-quarter of the total population in southeastern Idaho are downhill skiers. Idaho State University student, Paul Grayson, 29, and Dr. Ron LeBlanc, an assistant professor of business, want to determine the economic impact on Bannock County should further development occur at the Pebble Creek Ski Area near Inkom. They found a surprising 26.6 percent were Alpine skiers.

The study is being prepared for the Idaho Department of Commerce and preliminary information of the first phase was provided to the Caribou National Forest along with the Pebble Creek Ski Area. Grayson said the first phase of the study was a random sampling of the total population in southeastern Idaho (the 1980 census indicated 200,000 people were living within the area). The study was done within a 70-mile radius of Bonneville Peak, including the towns of American Falls, Preston, Rigby, St. Anthony, Shelley, Soda Springs, Rexburg, Idaho Falls, Blackfoot and Pocatello. He said out of 500 people called at random, 133 people said they were downhill skiers. Questions asked during the survey included whether or not the person was a downhill skier and the location where the person skied. Grayson said of the 26.6 percent, virtually half of those polled or 13 percent said they skied at the Grand Targhee Resort in Wyoming, rather than any other regional ski area in Idaho.

Animal rights group claims buffalo victory

LIVINGSTON, Mont. (AP) — The president of the Fund for Animals, a national animal rights group, is claiming victory in its battle with the National Park Service over the buffalo controversy in and around Yellowstone National Park. "I think the general idea is the Park Service has admitted that they have a responsibility to these bison," fund president Cleveland Amory of New York City said this week. Last week, the Park Service unveiled a plan to construct a fence and cattle guard to keep buffalo from leaving the Lamar Valley-Blacktail Plateau area in Yellowstone during the winter. Amory's group unsuccessfully sought a court injunction to stop the state of Montana's buffalo hunt, and its suit still is pending in court. Amory said Thursday the litigation is aimed at getting the National Park Service to recognize it has an obligation to protect the buffalo and keep them from wandering from Yellowstone and facing hunters' bullets. "We have won our major point," Amory said. During the initial buffalo hunting season from December to June 30, a total of 57 buffalo were shot — 41 in the Gardiner area and 16 near West Yellowstone. The previous year, wardens from the state Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks shot 88 buffalo, most of them on the Royal Teton Ranch owned by the Church Universal and Triumphant. A new buffalo season authorized by the state Fish and Game Commission began July 1 and runs through June 30 of next year. In addition to a short fence coupled with natural barriers, the Park Service said last week it also may try "adverse conditioning" to keep the buffalo in the park. That could include use of rubber bullets, loud noises and flashing lights. Amory said he will review a letter from Yellowstone superintendent Bob Barbee before he issues a formal comment on the park's proposals. But he said the fact the Park Service has made the proposals is proof the agency is accepting the responsibility for the buffalo. Amory said the Fund for Animals simply is trying to keep the animals from being shot by hunters. "It's an assassination, not a hunt," he said. "Even some of the hunters have admitted that." Because of the Park Service's proposals, Amory said his group may opt not help the Church Universal and Triumphant put up its own fence on the Royal Teton Ranch. However, he said members of his organization still will meet with ranch president Ed Francis to discuss the options.

Grayson said that, in comparison to the national average of 8 percent, the study shows a regional love for the sport. The second phase of the Pebble Creek Study will determine if Pebble Creek could be a destination resort, such as Sun Valley, which attracts close to 450,000 skiers a year.

or state lands office. If you're sure you're right, go ahead and suggest that someone call the sheriff. Remember that you can be charged with trespassing if you're wrong, and that trespassing can carry an automatic hunting and fishing licence suspension upon conviction. Unfortunately, anyone can lie to you and tell you that they own land which is actually public and go away with it. But the law carries penalties for trespassing, even if you're only mistaken. I believe that any attempt to wrongly assert possession of public land should be criminalized along with trespassing, just to even things out between landowners and sportsmen. Grazing lease holders who misrepresent ownership of public land should lose their grazing permit.

What sencerer and inorgard have to offer the world is the first triploid tiger trout. The new hybrid, with its dark circular spots and golden hue, looks different from any other trout, including the original tiger. The advantage of the new tiger trout is that it can survive better as a young fish, a major problem with traditional tigers.

The new version of the fish survived about seven times better. Instead of an average of less than 5 percent surviving long enough to begin feeding, an average of nearly 34 percent survived. The new hybrid has to be tested in the wild, an important step. But the results of the experiment so far, Sencerer says, signal that the cross may be a decided improvement for the states now stocking tiger trout.

Town garbage creates human-bear conflict

COOKE CITY, Mont. (AP) — Despite years of trying to address the issue of human-bear conflicts brought on by bears foraging through human garbage, the problem persists in at least one small community on the outskirts of Yellowstone National Park, officials say.

Bears like a free meal, and biologists say garbage at towns like Cooke City attracts bears and leads to conflicts with people that often end up with the death of the bear.

"Garbage brings bears and humans into conflict," says park biologist Gary Brown. "And when that happens, you know who loses."

Brown says the most troublesome problem is sloppy handling of garbage and the practice of leaving garbage out to attract bears and thereby attract tourists — in Cooke City, at the northeast entrance to the park. "It looked good for a couple of years, but it's deteriorating," Brown says. "There needs to be pressure put on these people."

Brown says the economic advantage of having bears in town for tourists to see sometimes makes it hard to convince residents to be more careful with garbage. One Cooke City lodge advertised on television a few years ago that guests could see bears nearby, he says.

Education and tougher laws may be the answer, according to LeRoy Ellig, the regional supervisor in Bozeman with the state Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks.

"There is no question that a law about feeding bears would go a long way to solving the problem," Ellig says. "Whether it's bird seed, a bale of hay or garbage for the bears, we don't have a statute."

Ellig says his department's Cooke City area warden stays in contact with residents and businesses to encourage better garbage practices.

"He's been out talking to people," Ellig said. "The problem has improved over what it was years ago. The businesses have improved their act."

Many tourists complained when park officials banned the feeding of bears. But park officials remained firm, and closed dumps in the park to wean bears from eating garbage.

Brown says he has talked to some businesses in Cooke City about the problem, but that his comments aren't always welcomed.

"I was at the city dump once, just looking things over, and was told to get back in the park where I belong," he says.

Sharon Schwieso, who works at the Elk Horn Saloon in Cooke City, says black bears frequent the town's garbage cans and dumpsters.

"Where bears are not afraid of people, it's a problem," she says. "They own the town when they're here. You're stupid if you think otherwise."

"I walked out at 11 in the morning the other day and one met me at the door. We put the food out back in the morning, and the bears are there bright and early."

Schwieso says her son was walking home one night recently and discovered he was walking along with a large black bear.

"You've got to watch yourself at night," she says. "This one was a big one. My son ran halfway home before he realized he wasn't supposed to run."

The locals know how to handle bears in town, Schwieso says, but many tourists still don't know how dangerous the bruins can be.

Most residents load up garbage in their pickups right before driving to the city dump — which is bear-proofed with the proper dumpsters and high-fencing — but some restaurants generate a lot of garbage that is left outside.

"People in town are smart enough to not leave food out, but the dumpsters up town aren't bear-proof," she says.
