Reagan the patient

President to receive some tests

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, who has experienced urinary tract problems dating back two decades, will go to a Navy hospital Saturday for urological tests, his spokesman announced Friday.

A local anesthetic will be used for the procedures, to be done on an out-patient basis at Bethesda Naval Medical Center.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said doctors would be "looking for some abnormality in the urinary tract of the bladder to see if there's a growth, a discoloration or stone or whatever there is."

He said he did not know whether the president had been experiencing any pain or symptoms of problems. "I'm not aware of anything and he told us he feels fine," Speakes said.

Scrapping plans for a weekend trip to Camp David, Reagan remained at the White House Friday and planned to deliver his midday radio address on Saturday from the Oval Office. After the five-minute speech, he will fly by helicopter to the hospital in a nearby Maryland suburb.

The president is expected back at the White House the same day, Speakes said.

Reagan's physician, Dr. T. Burton Smith, a urologist, will supervise the tests.

Although such tests often follow signs such as blood in the urine or difficulty urinating, Dr. Eduardo Farcon, a urologist at the New York University Medical Center, said they might well be recommended without such symptoms in a man of the president's age — 75 — who has had colon cancer or a history of urinary tract infections.

According to the White House, Reagan's most recent urological problem was a urinary tract inflammation in 1982, discovered after Reagan experienced "slight discomfort." The president took antibiotics and the problem cleared up within several days, the White House said.

His problems date back as far as 1967 when Reagan was governor of California. At the time, Smith performed a "transurethral prostatectomy" to correct an anatomical abnormality of a portion of Reagan's urinary bladder called the "neck," and to remove about 30 "seed-like" prostatic stones.

The procedure is commonly used to clear an obstruction in the prostate region when cancer is not suspected.

"So this has been a history with the president," said Speakes. "It's something they keep an eye on and test for."

He said the last examination was during the 1982 flareup. Speakes stressed that Saturday's tests are not related to Reagan's bout with cancer a year ago, when a malignant tumor was removed from his colon.

The tests Saturday will include an intravenous urogram and "a

Tentative pact quickly found in school talk

Details withheld until Aug. 27

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Education Association and the Twin Falls School District reached a tentative contract agreement on Friday, an hour after they sat down for their third round of talks.

Although neither side would release details of the agreement until after teachers meet on Aug. 27 to ratify the contract, sources close to negotiations said the School District agreed to give pay raises to the 12 teachers who were at the top of the pay scale.

The agreement means that all but about 40 teachers of the district's 315 will receive a $405-a-year raise.

The 40 teachers who will not be receiving raises are those teachers who are at the top of the experience scale. The salary schedule is composed of six horizontal steps, representing continuing education, and 20 vertical steps, for experience.

Superintendent Carl Snow said earlier that teachers who were at the top of the experience scale could still earn more money if they went back to school for more education.

After June's second round of contract talks, it appeared that the district was not moving on money. But Friday's tentative agreement meant both sides won modest concessions during this year's contract talks.

"I have mixed emotions about it," said TFEA chief negotiator Nick Nicholson. "I feel there was some significant movement on their part, and I'm pleased about that."

Although teachers did not receive everything they wanted, Nicholson said, he did not elaborate on specifics of the tentative agreement.

"I think teachers have a right to hear it from us before they read it in the newspaper," he said. Details of the tentative proposal will be sent to teachers today, he said.

Only four items were on the table: salary, insurance, benefits, extra-duty pay and payroll deduction for TFEA members.

'I have mixed emotions about it. I feel there was some significant movement on their part, and I'm pleased about it.'

— Nick Nicholson

TFEA initially wanted a $700-a-year raise. Teachers also wanted the extra-duty pay tied to the base salary. And they wanted the School District to allow teachers to sign up at their schools to have TFEA dues withheld, rather than the downtown Administration Building.

Teachers failed to win on any of their initial requests, except that the School District did agree to pay for about a 5-percent hike in insurance premiums.

The district offered a $405 annual raise from the beginning and never changed its position.

However, the district also said that including any of the 52 teachers at the top-of-the-pay-scale meant changing the entire scale. And Snow had said that item was "non-negotiable."

Although talks stretched over three months, both sides met only three times before reaching an agreement.

Massive cocaine operation is halted

By JOEL SIEGEL
The Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A federal indictment unsealed Friday charged 12 people with running a massive drug ring that used decoy planes and modified aircraft to smuggle at least 7½ tons of cocaine into the U.S. since 1980, netting at least $25 million in profits.

Attorney General Edward Meese III said a two-year investigation resulted in the breakup of a ring responsible for the "largest documented amount of cocaine smuggled into this country by a single trafficking organization."

The ring used Pennsylvania charter air service, Air America Inc., to fly the cocaine from four Colombian airfields into Florida, Pennsylvania and New York for sale in the New York City area, said acting U.S. Attorney James West.

On Thursday, federal agents unearthed the $4.2 million in $20, $50 and $100 bills hidden in buried sewer pipes the Pococan Mountains property of lawyer John F. Robertson III, one of the 12 defendants and an Air America general manager, West said.

"This represents one pilot's profit," West said. West declined to say if authorities are searching for any other money. However, he said $15 million in planes and

Senate balks at ASAT moratorium; House moves on bomb tests

By TIM AHERN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate refused Friday to extend a ban on anti-satellite weapons tests, while the House called for a one-year halt to U.S. nuclear testing as the two chambers worked on parallel versions of a Pentagon budget bill.

Halting anti-satellite, or ASAT, weapons and banning nuclear tests are long-time goals of arms control advocates and are opposed by the Reagan administration, which wants to go ahead with both programs.

The Democratic-controlled House and Republican-run Senate are working on bills authorizing the Pentagon's budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

President Reagan sought $320 billion for the Pentagon, but the House package cuts it to $292 billion while the Senate would permit $295 billion. That figure, along with dozens of other differences on major weapons, will be worked out by a conference committee.

After approving the ban on U.S. nuclear tests, the House quit for the day and will spend next week working on the bill.

But the Senate, driving to finish the bill by Saturday:

- Voted 62-34 to keep the current ceiling of $2,500 in a law dealing with service contracts. Contracts above that amount must pay the local prevailing wage. The bill had proposed raising the ceiling to $1 million.

- Voted 51-44 against retaining current limits in a law dealing with wages paid on military construction contracts. Current law provides a $2,000 threshold above which the contracts must pay prevailing wages, but the bill would raise that figure to $250,000.

- Voted 61-33 to kill a proposal banning tests of nuclear weapons for the "Star Wars" anti-missile system.

Car bomb claims 17 in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An explosives-laden car, abandoned by a young blonde woman who quickly disappeared, blew up Friday on a busy shopping block in Moslem West Beirut, killing 17 people and wounding 84, police said.

It was the third car-bombing in the capital in 12 days, raising the car-bomb toll to 74 dead and 394 injured since July 21.

No one has claimed responsibility for any of the car bombings.

The Brown Flat, rigged with 110 pounds of explosives, detonated at 11:55 a.m. on Ahl Tibi Street in the densely populated Tarik Jideh district, Attala said. The charge, to intensify the force of the explosion, were 62mm mortar shells, according

Bones of 'seismosaurus' unearthed in New Mexico

By MATT MYGATT
The Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Bones from what may be the world's longest dinosaur were found in an ancient stream bed by a retired music teacher who said Friday he knew he had stumbled onto something unusual.

Arthur Loy, of Albuquerque, said he was hiking in the desert with a friend in the fall of 1980 about 60 miles northwest of the city when he came to the edge of a cliff overlooking a valley.

"I happened to look at my feet and these bones ... were sticking out, laying on their sides," he said. He said he called to a companion, pharmacist Jan Cummings, to look at the beautiful scenery.

"I said, 'You might want to look down at your feet, too,'" said Loy, who taught music at an Albuquerque high school for 37 years.

The exposed bones, on public land controlled by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, remained mostly buried until researchers were able to begin excavation in 1985. They have recovered some tail bones and a section of his bone.

Dr. David Gillette, curator of paleontology at the New Mexico Museum of Natural History, christened the beast "seismosaurus" — the Earth Shaker.

The dinosaur is larger than two other recently discovered dinosaurs, the supersaurus and ultrasaurus, the so-called super-giants, he said.

"This one is absolutely breathtaking for its size," said Gillette.

The eight vertebrae from a 10-foot section of the middle of the tail, part of a thigh bone from the upper part of a hind leg and other unidentified bones have been recovered, he said.

The vertebrae resemble those from supersaurus fossils in Colorado, but are 20 percent bulkier and considerably taller, he said.

The three tail bones were ready for display at the museum Friday.

The thigh bone, which is one-half to two-thirds complete, still must be cleaned, but it was shown at a news conference Friday.

Gillette said researchers waited until they had all their facts compiled before revealing the discovery of the creature.

"I've seen others make mistakes from the field, and I don't like to shoot from the hip," he said. "I like to have all the information and I like to wait so ideas can mature."

Gillette declined to reveal the exact location of the site to prevent amateur bone hunters from possibly destroying it.

The seismosaurus bones were found in the 150 million-year-old Morrison Formation, which is from the latest part of the Jurassic Period — the halcyon days of dinosaurs.

Seismosaurus probably was 100 to 120 feet long, 18 feet high at the shoulder, 15 feet high at the hip and weighed 80 to 100 tons, Gillette said.

Supersaurus was 80 to 100 feet long, 25 feet high at the shoulder, 15 feet high at the hip and weighed 60 to 70 tons, he said.

By comparison, a large bull elephant weighs about 7½ tons and a blue whale weighs about 100 tons.

Fifteen arrested in protest of train shipping missiles

BANGOR, Wash. (AP) — Fifteen demonstrators were arrested Friday when they blocked a train they said was carrying parts and propellant for nuclear missiles, officials said.

It was the first time demonstrators had met a train on a highway, said Navy spokesman L. Bill Yamanaoka. He described the demonstration as peaceful.

Jim Douglass of Ground Zero Center for Nonviolent Action, which organized the protest, said the train was carrying a missile motor and fuel propellant for the Trident I missile system, carried on Trident nuclear submarines.

But the Department of Energy, which operates the trains, routinely refuses to comment on the contents of anything being the base.

About 100 people held a vigil before the train arrived, Douglass said.

Six people sat on the tracks outside the base and stopped the train for five minutes before they were arrested.

rested by Kilsap County sheriff's officers, Douglass said.

The train moved a few feet onto base property and was stopped for 30 minutes by nine other protesters, Douglass said.

"The engineer got off the train at that time and said 'other crew members' and 'other water' to the people blocking the train," Douglass said.

Yamanaoka said the nine people were arrested just outside the base gate by military security officers.

Seven were given letters barring them from returning to the base, he said. Two others, who already had been given similar letters for previously climbing base fences, were cited for trespassing in violation of federal law, he said.

The other six were cited for criminal trespass and released, according to a sheriff's office spokesman who would not give his name.

Puppy-killing cougar shot

LOWELL (AP) — A cougar was shot and killed after it entered the office of the Three Rivers Resort in Lowell, grabbed a three-month-old Airedale puppy in its jaws and ran up a nearby tree.

The cougar was one of two apparently tame wild cats that have been seen in the area during the past week, said Marie Smith, co-owner of the resort at the confluence of the Selway and Loch rivers.

Mrs. Smith was sitting in the Three Rivers office last Saturday evening after serving a banquet. Her 30-pound puppy was chewing on a bone at her feet near an open door.

The cougar carried the dog away in its jaws, crushing its head. Then it turned and ran out the door with Mrs. Smith's two teenage sons in pursuit, she said.

The boys chased the cougar as it ran in a tree about 50 yards away. It dropped the dead dog, and bounded up the tree.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Smith husband Mike arrived with a shotgun and shot the cougar.

The dead cougar was one of two cats that had been roaming in the area of the resort most of last week. The cougars did not seem to be frightened of people, but had terrorized pets in the area.

Robber kills self, hostage in auto blast

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — A man armed with a shotgun and explosives who seized three hostages during a bank robbery blew up his getaway car as police surrounded it early Saturday, killing himself and a captive, police reported.

The other two women hostages were released shortly before the explosion, and the robber and the third hostage, a 25-year-old man, were killed. Police initially said three people were killed in the blast, including one of the women, but corrected that report.

Helsinki Police Commissioner Valno Rantto said the man set off the explosives as police surrounded his car in the town of Mikkel at 4 a.m.

He said three policemen who were near the car when it exploded were injured. Their condition was not known immediately.

Police described the robber as 30 to 35 years old, 6 feet tall, Finnish speaking and "very cold blooded and methodical." The dead hostage was identified as Jukka Tauno Anter Heikkinen, a customer in the bank at the time of the robbery.

The Finnish news media said the gunman initially seized 13 hostages in a suburban Helsinki bank Friday, but quickly released two elderly people. After tense negotiations, he freed eight hostages unharmed when police agreed to provide him with a car and a suitcase full of money.

Polish boat overdue for Chicago date

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Polish sailboat that arrived late in New York for the Statue of Liberty centennial is overdue in Chicago and the Coast Guard launched a search Friday on the Great Lakes for the vessel.

"We don't think they're lost or in any great distress," L. James Meador of the Coast Guard operations center here said Friday night about the Stomil.

The boat left Buffalo, N.Y., July 31, en route to Chicago. It was sighted by a pleasure craft Thursday afternoon off the Manitow Islands in northern Lake Michigan, he said.

Drugs

other assets controlled by those allegedly involved in the scheme have been seized.

No cocaine was seized because authorities were "investigating a historical conspiracy," West said.

An attempt by drug-enforcement agents to arrange a $200,000 shipment was not successful, he said.

The smuggling flights allegedly originated at Air America headquarters at the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre Airport, where duffel bags of money were loaded onto planes.

The first six flights alleged in the indictment flew to Colombia and returned to Lake Wales, Fla., where the cocaine was unloaded, West said.

Sixteen more flights returned directly to Pennsylvania for unloading at the Bloomsburg Airport or Northumberland County Airport or an air strip in Deer Lake, West said. Some flights continued to Elmira and Binghamton, N.Y., West said.

The ring installed radio equipment in Colombia and created communications centers in Pennsylvania to monitor flights, the grand jury said. The planes were specially outfitted to fly the 3,000-mile trip to Colombia without refueling, West said.

"It was a sophisticated scheme," West said. "There were also chase planes used that would fly out of Air America as a confusing tactic" for drug enforcement agents.

Pilots were paid $3,000 to $4,000 per kilo per flight, with one netting $1.6 million in such commissions, according to West.

West said the Air America drug ring formed a major arm of one of five drug-smuggling families in Colombia.

Among those indicted were the alleged Colombian organizers, Arturo "Pablo" Correa-Arroyave and his brother, Rigoberto "Bobby" Correa-Arroyave, West said.

Arturo Correa-Arroyave was kidnapped about the time the sealed indictment was handed up in Harrisburg July 29, West said. Although a $50 million ransom was paid, he was found dead in Colombia with his ears and tongue severed and his eyes gouged out, West said. Authorities believe a rival drug faction killed Correa-Arroyave in a murder unrelated to the investigation, West said.

Robertson, of Palms Verdes, Calif., and another defendant, Thomas Keen Eidenfield, Jr., of Albuquerque, N.M., allegedly "helped" provide planes and worked as pilots, the government said.

The other defendants are Anthony E. Deek, of Albuquerque; Christopher Peter Sharsky of Uvalde, Texas; and six Colombians who are listed by their nicknames of Danny, Peter, Beatrice, Claro, Eddie and Hernandez.

ject, Reagan says repeatedly the system will be non-nuclear, but some elements of the program are being considered using nuclear weapons.

led by the House, Congress last year banned final stage of the U.S. ASAT weapon, a small projectile carried aloft by high-flying F-15 jets. The Senate voted against the ban, but the House favored it in a conference committee.

The Senate voted 55-43 Friday to kill an amendment extending the ban through fiscal 1987, but the House will vote on the issue next week.

The White House opposes the ban, arguing that the ASAT is necessary to offset a similar Soviet system and that the tests are required to force the Soviets to bargain seriously for a complete ban on such weapons.

Last year's ban expires next month and the Air Force can go ahead with the new tests unless Congress blocks more trials.

Opponents such as Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., say ASAT systems will only lead to a new arms race in space.

"The United States has more to lose than the Soviets" by an arms race in space, Kerry said Friday. He argued that this country is more dependent on satellites than the Soviet Union for surveillance and communication.

But one opponent, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., rallied against "one more unilateral arms control concessions mandated by the Congress" and said the administration should be left alone to pursue an ASAT test ban via negotiations with the Soviets.

In the House, the vote was 234-155 to approve a one-year ban on U.S. nuclear tests. That action came after the Senate voted late Thursday to approve a non-binding resolution asking Reagan to initiate new superpower talks to ban all nuclear testing. Open-air tests are outlawed by a 1963 treaty.

The Senate gave 64-35 approval to the proposal, a margin similar to Senate approval of the same calls for the past two years. The House has also previously voted to call for new test ban negotiations, but had not passed U.S. tests. The Senate has not called for U.S. test ban, meaning the issue will have to be decided by a conference committee.

The program involves the injection of a radioactive tracer into an examination of it by X-ray. The other test involves the insertion of a device, through the penis, that can relay pictures of the bladder.

Speakes' announcement ended five hours of confusion and mystery in the White House about Reagan's health.

Early in the day, Peter Roussel, another spokesman, left open the possibility that Reagan would undergo medical tests over the weekend but refused to provide any details.

Any discussion of health matters pertaining to the president is considered extremely sensitive among Reagan's staff because of Nancy Reagan's unshakable concern over coverage of the president's surgery last year.

The Reagans are very specific about how they want their medical announcements handled," Speakes said.

In fact, Speakes said he learned of Reagan's impending test while on a trip Thursday to Mississippi. He said he directed the press office not to release any information about it.

"I wanted to do it personally," Speakes said at a briefing one hour after he arrived back in town.

Speakes said Reagan's doctors recommended that he have a test "at a convenient time" and Reagan decided last Monday to cancel his regular weekend trip to the Maryland mountain retreat.

Speakes said Reagan decided to have the tests done Saturday because of "the heavy schedule anticipated for the fall."

In June, after the second round of talks, the teachers and the School District were at odds over a breakdown of $23,707 in overtime money that voters approved in May to go for pay raises for teachers. It appeared that negotiations might break, but a shouting match as they did last year, when IFEA took the district to court before a settlement was reached in September 1965.

Teachers were upset when they learned that of the $243,707, nearly half would go for extra-duty pay, or pay for coaching, music and other duties. Taking the $100,000 out of the overtime money meant less for overall salary increases. And teachers charged that the School District hid that fact during the overtime election.

However, Snow said teachers were informed and the issue died.

to police.

Twenty cars were reduced to twisted metal. Power cables dangled from poles. Rescue workers removed four charred bodies from one burned car, including that of a baby. Onlookers wept when the infant's body, fists clenched, was placed on a stretcher.

The blast wrecked the fronts of two seven-story apartment buildings on opposite sides of the street, devastating at least 12 ground-floor shops. Shutters were shredded. Store contents were blasted out over a 100-yard radius.

Jamal Hallak, 30, had just walked out of his men's wear shop to buy cigarettes, leaving behind his partner and a salesman, when the blast occurred.

"I ran back through the smoke and found both of them burned at one corner of the shop," he said, sobbing.

The blast heightened fears of further retaliations in the latest spate of bombings that threatens to kindle a new round of all-out civil war.

Barely an hour after the explosion, Christian and Moslem militiamen fought gunbattles across Beirut's dividing Green Line. Police said 11 civilians, including four children playing soccer, were wounded.

Fire crews battle blazes in forest, on ranges

By The Associated Press

Fire bosses began focused their attention Friday evening on several range fires that grew by several thousand acres, while crews held the upper hand on major forest fires north of the Salmon River.

More 100 firefighters were manning the lines of the Danskin and Long Tom fires below the South Fork of the Boise River just west of Anderson, Parach, Dam, and Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service officials had no estimate of when they would be contained.

"It's an active fire," BLM spokesman Jack Sept said. "It's still very hot."

The Danskin fire in the Anderson Ranch area had grown to 13,000 acres, up from 10,000 acres during the afternoon, said BLM dispatcher Kim Christensen. Fire that had threatened a fire lookout earlier, forcing helicopter evacuation of the ranger and three aerial retardant drops to save the structure. The case was much the same for the Long Tom fire, covering some 6,400 acres just seven miles to the south.

Officials had hoped to gain ground on three major range fires west of Boise, but two of the fires grew.

The Payette fire, visible from the town of Payette, had grown from 24,000 acres to 32,000 acres, Christensen said.

The Paddock Valley blaze near Weiser stood at 13,000 acres Friday evening, up from 11,000 acres earlier in the day.

However, a 10-man crew extinguished a 600-acre blaze near Rogerson about 6 p.m., Christensen said.

Fire crews also began mopping up today around a 1,000-acre fire in north-central Idaho's Neperce National Forest after encircling it with fire line, but more than 150 firefighters still battled four separate range fires that have already raced over more than 44,000 acres of grazing land in southwestern Idaho.

Meanwhile, a crew battling a raging wildfire in rugged terrain of the Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness north of the Salmon River diverted flames from a ranger station some 35 miles northeast of Grangeville, slowing the spread of the blaze that has blackened 1,800 acres of timberland.

Lightning sparks fires

DELTA, Utah (AP) — Half a dozen lightning-sparked fires blackened nearly 5,000 acres near western Utah's Little Sahara Recreation Area and were raging out-of-control late Friday, the federal Bureau of Land Management said.

The largest of the blazes had scorched 1,500 acres in the Rockwell Natural Area, said BLM spokesman Bert Hart. A second fire in the same area had burned 50 acres, he said.

No injuries were reported in the fires, located about 35 miles north of here. About 30 firefighters were trying to contain the flames, and more crews were expected to join the battle on Saturday, Hart said.

A blaze north of the Little Sahara visitor's center burned 1,000 acres, but was expected to be turned back by a backfire crews were setting late Friday, Hart said.

450 fight ridge blaze

ENMUCLAW, Wash. (AP) — Crews battling the Lyle Ridge fire worked Friday to cut trails around the blaze while hoping winds would stay calm and not kick the flames into more easily ignited logging debris.

The fire, which began Thursday afternoon at a logging site, grew to about 100 acres by early Friday, but had spread little beyond that by evening, said fire coordinator Don Thore of the state Department of Natural Resources.

About 300 firefighters tackled the uncontrolled fire on steep terrain in northern Pierce County, about 12 miles southeast of Enumclaw.

The fire was on Weyerhaeuser Co. land and began at a logging site where there had been activity on Thursday. Thore said. However, investigators had not determined what sparked the blaze.

Jones to BPA: Study effect on fish

BOISE (AP) — Attorney General Jim Jones has asked the Bonneville Power Administration to consider the effects on Idaho's anadromous fish runs of a proposal to expand the federal energy wholesaler's capacity to sell surplus power to California.

Jones filed comments with the BPA on Friday seeking a comprehensive, environmental impact statement to expand the "interlie" electrical transmission system from the Northwest to southern California.

"While I support the idea of BPA customers benefiting from surplus energy sales, we must insure that Idaho's anadromous fish runs, particularly the wild runs of salmon and steelhead, are not adversely affected by such sales," Jones said in a press release.

He said production of surplus power for sale out of the area could hurt Idaho's salmon and steelhead runs by cutting the amount of water passing over dams in the Columbia River system for migrating fish.

Increasing the interlie's capacity would boost the cost of future fish protection measures and change the balance between hydroelectric generation and fisheries enhancement in the Northwest toward an emphasis on power revenue, the attorney general said.

Jones contends studies conducted by the BPA so far on wild and natural fish stock survival are "rather defective and inadequate," and a full-scale environmental assessment is necessary.

If he does not receive an adequate answer to his request, Jones said legal action against the BPA was possible.

Pocatello judge denies union pleas

POCATELLO (AP) — A district judge in Pocatello denied organized labor's attempt to block enforcement of Idaho's controversial right-to-work law today, ruling the law "valid and enforceable," with the exception of provisions both sides agreed are pre-empted by federal law.

The fact that certain sections of the state law banning union membership or payment of union dues as a condition of employment fall under federal jurisdiction "does not result in rendering it ineffectual or invalid," according to the order issued by 6th District Judge William Woodland.

Union officials had sought a preliminary injunction to block enforcement of the law until a November referendum vote on the issue.

Woodland had been considering arguments in the case for the past two weeks following a hearing in Pocatello during which the state conceded, as the state AFL-CIO had repeatedly contended, that there were significant flaws in the drafting of the bill that bans compulsory union membership.

Prison site selection delayed until at least late September

BOISE (AP) — It apparently will be seven weeks or longer before a site is selected for a new maximum-security state penitentiary.

Idaho Corrections Director Al Murphy said the Division of Public Works is three to four weeks behind in assessing applications from 28 communities around the state vying to host the prison.

State Public Works Administrator Brian Chase was in meetings and had not returned calls to his Boise office on Friday.

A site for the proposed $25 million, 500-bed facility to ease crowding in Idaho's prison system was first expected to be chosen by the state Board of Corrections and Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council last month.

But that was put off until late August because of the abundance of data that had to be considered.

Now Murphy said it will be late September until a decision is reached, with some communities submitting revised applications including more than one proposed site.

However, he said the Department of Corrections has completed its job of rating the proposed sites from the standpoint of operating costs over a 30-year lifespan and criteria including security, site adaptability, and community support and facilities.

Fight over '82-'83 projects delays distribution of grants

BOISE (AP) — A dispute between the state and federal governments over the propriety of projects financed with federal community development block grants in 1982 and 1983 is holding up distribution of $6.5 million in grant money to as many as 34 Idaho communities this year.

"We are now arguing over whether we should have done things differently in 1982-1983," Jan 10, 1983, Bickenstaff, who heads the state office that administers the Community Development Block Grant program. "It all comes down to determining the national objectives of the program and whether we met them."

At issue is at least four sewer and water project grants totaling just under $2 million dollars that were approved by the state during the initial two years it administered the program after taking it over from the federal government. Bickenstaff declined to identify the specific projects in question, saying only that all had been completed and distributed from the list since the dispute began in earnest last winter.

Under the regulations in effect at the time, Bickenstaff said, the projects benefiting from the grants had to be "principally" benefit low- and moderate-income people. "It was only in 1984, that Congress, after seeing the lax administration of the program, in a number of states, decided to legally define the term 'principally' to mean 51 percent of those benefiting from a project had to be low and moderate income people, he said.

"We knew there were a fairly low percentage of low and moderate income people in these projects, but we felt they were worthy projects," Bickenstaff said, pointing out that the Department of Housing and Urban Development approved all the projects prior to their original issuance of grant money.

The delay in distribution of this year's money was initially raised by Republican Congressman Larry Craig and Sen. Steve Symms.

Symms and Craig both referred to the problem only as involving "irregularities at the state level," and Symms said they did not know what the problem was.

But Bickenstaff said he had discussed the entire situation with representatives from Craig's office and the offices of Sen. James McClure and Congressman Richard Stallings, and that Symms office had not contacted him about the problems.

Jones counters IPC's rate request

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones has formally countered Idaho Power Co.'s request that the Idaho Public Utility Commission change a major rate decision with a reconsideration petition of his own.

Jones said Thursday his office developed part of the legal theory used by the PUC on July 11, when it rejected almost all of Idaho Power's request for a $66.2 million increase in annual revenue.

He said he supports the commission's order, and his office filed the petition because Idaho Power on July 31 asked the PUC to change most of its decision. If the PUC reconsiders the case it will have to review points favoring the decision as well as those against it submitted by Idaho Power, he said. Jones said the case is the first time his central office has launched direct involvement in a utility-rate case.

The utility originally asked for an 84.2 million, or 27.4 percent increase. The commission granted $391,567, about an 0.3 percent increase.

A key underpinning of the PUC order was the decision not to allow Idaho Power shareholders to earn profits in the near future on the Valmy II coal power plant in northern Nevada. The commission said the plant, built in partnership with Reno, Nev.-based Sierra Pacific Power Co., will not be needed by Idaho Power ratepayers for several years, and shareholders cannot make money from the plant until ratepayers benefit from it.

Idaho Power's petition said the PUC's standards of what would benefit ratepayers were "subjective, impossible to apply and in violation of Idaho law." It also noted that the PUC approved the Valmy project in 1979.

But the Attorney General's petition said the commission's stringent decision on Valmy was "less drastic than warranted by the company's conduct."

It said that when the company proposed the Valmy project to the PUC, it described a system of "mutually beneficial exchanges of excess energy."

Merger fuels debate on crime and cruising

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Burley City Council couldn't have asked for a worse time for the public to start asking questions about the merging of the Cassia County Sheriff's Department and the Burley Police Department.

Merchants and downtown residents are up in arms over a rambunctious teen-age cruise on Overland Avenue.

Neighbors of the migrant labor camp are voicing their perennial complaints about their summer neighbors.

It's summertime, but the living isn't easy if you are trying to sell a cost-saving plan that includes reducing the number of police officers on the payroll. The council gave its approval to a merger contract last week, but citizens of city and county alike will have to support the arrangement for it to work.

Even if the county-city police merger were being proposed in the winter months, there are crime statistics to fuel plenty of arguments against reducing the number of police officers in the city and county.

According to the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement, Burley's arrest rate and reported-offense rate are both higher than either Boise's or Caldwell's.

Police Chief Loman Mesley and Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal said they have recently fallen to second place behind one or the other of those two cities, but 1984 statistics put Burley on top. Statistics for 1985 were not available this week.

Crystal's statistics for 1982-1985 show that 85 percent of the crime reported in the county is theft of property, with less than 10 percent assault.

Burley doesn't appear to be a town gripped by fear. While neighbors of the Smith's Food King parking lot, where night-time street cruisers congregate, say they aren't fond of seeing teenage boys and girls urinating in the back parking lot, they are quick to point out the cruisers are more of a nuisance than a threat.

Still, two neighbors declined to be quoted by name, saying they did not want to be harassed if someone took offense at their remarks.

Merchants near the cruiser hangout are taking the brunt of the cruising problem in the pocket-book.

At the Taco Time restaurant, which shares a parking lot with Smith's Food King, the manager refused comment on the situation. She did comment to the City Council last Monday, to complain about harassment by cruisers in the parking lot.

Cynthia Smith, wife of Food King Manager Dennis Smith, said Thursday the cruisers are hurting business. Because they block the entries to the parking lot and are intimidating to some people, there are customers who have told her they won't come shopping at night, she said. She said police and city hall efforts to solve the problem have been "a joke."

Mesley said Thursday that there are 9,200 people in Burley who need protecting and that it would take most of his force just to keep the cruisers under control.

Because the parking lot at Smith's is private property, patrolling it is not police work, technically, he said, but "they'd a lot rather we did it," than do it themselves.

Mesley said that even when police try to keep

Burley tops Boise in per capita arrest rates

BURLEY — Smaller than Boise by a factor of 10 and hardly the urban center that the state capital is, Burley's 1984 per capita arrest and reported offense rates were higher than that of Idaho's biggest city.

Though Burley's population is under 10,000, nationwide crime statistics are based on arrests and reported offenses per 100,000 of population, to make statistics comparable.

In 1984 Burley's arrest rate for adults was 4,886.2 per 100,000, compared to 3,078.5 in Boise. The arrest rate for juveniles was 2,357 per 100,000 in Burley, compared to 1,481.3 in Boise.

The offense rate measures the frequency with which criminal offenses are reported. A companion figure, the clearance rate, measures the frequency with which police are able to make an arrest in connection with reported offenses. Bill Overton, in the Police Services Division of the state Department of Law Enforcement, said Friday that clearance rates range from 25-35 percent and Burley's 35.6-percent clearance rate meant the Police Department was doing a good job.

In Burley, the 1984 offense rate was 9,464 offenses reported per 100,000 of population. In Boise it was 5,452.5.

Boise's police force had a 27.1-percent clearance rate, compared to Burley's 35.6 percent.

Breaking barriers through story-telling

Performances offer Americans a glimpse of Japanese culture

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN

TWIN FALLS — Using stories as tools for breaking the cultural barrier, 11 Japanese teenagers gave their performance of "Obber and the Elephant" Thursday afternoon at the Twin Falls Public Library.

The students are with an organization called the Cultural Association of Story-Tellers. Members of CAST perform various stories for audiences in Japan and the United States. Performances include several alternating narrators, with group members playing the main characters, as well as background scenery.

The story of "Obber and the Elephant" told of a farmer who abuses his hard-working elephant and is punished when the rest of the herd comes to the rescue.

The 11 students acted out the story, while a professionally made story-tape was played. Narrators read along with the voices on the tape, which alternated English and Japanese with every line.

Many of the stories that the CAST members are currently performing are the works of Kenji Miyazawa, a well-known Japanese writer of fantasy, poems, humor, and children's stories.

The CAST members visiting Twin Falls are between the ages of 13 and 19. Students aged 16-18 are generally too involved with extensive academic exams to spend time in foreign countries, said local program coordinator Sharon Walker.

Not all people involved in the program visit America. The group has many members all over Japan, with performers from fourth grade children to adults.

Every year, two or three performances are made in each region of Japan. Groups have visited Twin Falls every other year for the past four years, Walker said.

The Twin Falls performances have been the result of a 1973 exchange program when Walker's daughter Wendy visited Japan. By keeping in close contact with her host family, the Walkers were eventually able to bring the CAST group to Twin Falls.

Originally, the students spent their American visits in California. "They didn't like their California host families. They like Idaho so much, they've given up taking a few days off to see Disneyland," Walker said.

Host families from Twin Falls, Bellevue, Filer, Buhl, Kimberly, Shoshone, and Jerome took the students in on July 19. They will be returning to Japan on Aug. 15. A special going-away event will be

SNF has lowest timber-sales receipts

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Sawtooth National Forest has one of the worst records of selling timber before sunset of the seven national forests in southern Idaho, making only 19 cents for every federal dollar spent, according to a recent study by the Idaho Conservation League.

The Sawtooth received $181,000 for timber sales between 1979 and 1984, while it cost the forest $99,000 in administration and other sale-preparation expenses, the study said. It hasn't shown a profit in six years and is the state's most inefficient timber producer, the study said.

By contrast, the Challis National Forest took in $310,000 during the period and spent $305,000, according to the study. The Challis National Forest, with the smallest timber program in the state, was the only national forest in the state to make money, returning $1.02 for each dollar spent.

Paul Arndt, economist for the SNF, said part of the reason for low timber-sales receipts is that the forest primarily has wood used for poles and posts instead of the more lucrative sawboard available in other forests. And the Sawtooth requires the same number of people to operate it as the other forests.

Arndt said that strictly on the basis of cash flow the conclusions of the study were correct, but there were other ecological benefits, that couldn't be quantified, which result from the timber sales. "We're trying to create a healthier forest. It's hard to put a dollar value on it," Arndt said.

Eliminating mature trees allows younger trees to develop and creates diversity in the forest, he noted.

The Sawtooth, Challis, Boise, Salmon, Caribou, Payette, and Targhee national forests returned 59 cents in timber sales for every dollar spent between 1979 and 1984, the study said.

The study estimated the average cost to taxpayers at more than $16 million per year.

The ICL said, "The biggest problem facing Idaho's timber industry is the great dependence on below-cost timber sales and the refusal of the Forest Service to consider limiting them."

The 127-page study was done by Edward Javorka, a retired Forest Service planner who worked seven years at the Panhandle National Forest, Coeur d'Alene.

None of the Forest Service draft plans for the next 10 years gives serious consideration to reducing below-cost sales, the study said.

But a spokesman for the timber industry disagreed with the study.

"The Forest Service's requirements that the timber industry build roads and perform land-clearing and other environmental measures by what drives the price down, said Joe Hinson of the Idaho Forest Industry Council. He said counties where the timber is harvested still receive 25 percent of the sale proceeds, whether the sale is profitable to the Forest Service or not.

"The environmentalists care not one whit about the public treasury. They're simply using that as an argument to eliminate national forest timber sales," Hinson said.

BID directors call for 50% fee hike

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Business owners in downtown Twin Falls may be taking a lot more money out of their cash registers to cover expenses of the city's Business Improvement District next year.

The BID's board of directors is proposing a 50-percent increase in BID membership fees to offset lost revenue from stores leaving the downtown mall area and to boost promotions aimed at attracting shoppers downtown.

The higher annual fees will raise an additional $22,000, according to district figures. BID officials have called a general membership meeting at 7 a.m. next Friday to discuss the hike.

"We're looking at a great deal on our base," said BID President Les Hazen, citing closures of three department stores in the central business district. The Bon and J.C. Penney Co. have announced plans to move to the new Magic Valley Mall, and the Idaho Department Store this week began selling off its inventories before going out of business.

The board of directors also wants to advertise more aggressively to meet competition from the regional mall opening on the north side of the city, he said.

"We're going to have to promote the downtown city of Twin Falls because the Magic Valley Mall is going to be spending a bundle of dollars and, in some way, we've got to partially compete with those people," he said.

The increase would raise the BID budget to $75,450 during fiscal 1987, beginning Oct. 1. That is $10,000 more than the 1986 spending. Membership fees would provide 78 percent of the working money, with interest and other miscellaneous income raising the $22,000 increase would be funneled into three areas. The largest share, $12,000, would make up membership fees that would have been paid by the stores leaving the downtown.

Another $8,000 would stoke the BID's fund for promotions, doubling it to $16,000. The remaining $2,000 would plant new flowers and trees on the downtown mall, particularly in front of stores now without them, Hazen said.

The 50-percent increase would apply across the board in all assessment categories. BID dues are based on the type and amount of selling space operated by the business. The district includes about 195

Relief trains to ship 1,360 tons of Idaho hay

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Union Pacific Railroad train loaded with Idaho hay will pull out of Pocatello this morning on a relief mission to drought-stricken farmers in Georgia.

The train is carrying the bulk of the 1,360 tons of hay donated Wednesday by the state's farmers and other contributors, said Don Christian, Hay Day coordinator for the Idaho Department of Agriculture.

Bales of gilt hay — many of them fresh out of the fields — filled 43 boxcars, and about 30 of them will start their journey through Memphis to Atlanta today. Others will follow in later trains. About 125 tons were left stacked beside sidings to await transportation.

As the first relief train got under way today, the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation was in the midst of planning a second Hay Day in the northern part of the state. The collection, which is scheduled for Tuesday, will take place at an undetermined number of sites. "We're still lining them up from U.P.," said George Mable of Twin Falls, the federation's member relations representative for the Magic Valley.

"We're expecting more than 1,000 tons to be produced from this week's (pledging) efforts statewide," he said.

In a report on Wednesday's efforts, the Department of Agriculture said 527 people either donated hay or worked at its nine sites loading the bales into boxcars.

A special cash account sponsored by Mountain Bell employees raised $2,328, which was used to purchase hay for the train.

"Idaho citizens can stand a little taller because of the efforts that made this first Hay Day so successful," said Idaho Department of Agriculture Director Dick Rush.

In the Magic Valley, farmers brought 380 tons of hay to rail sidings at Buhl, Hansen and in TWIN FALLS — Rural development will be the topic of a U.S. House Agriculture subcommittee meeting at the College of Southern Idaho August 26.

Scheduled by Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, the meeting will start at 10 a.m. in the Shields Building. It will be the second such meeting, an earlier one having been scheduled in Blackfoot. He said he is inviting farmers, bankers, and community leaders to the meetings.

Stallings said House Agriculture Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit and Rural Development Chairman Ed Jones, D-Tenn., will be at the meetings.

"Because of the many problems facing Idaho farmers and because I feel very strongly that our farmers should have more direct input into policies which could very well determine their future, I have asked to bring members of the subcommittee to southern and eastern Idaho to hear firsthand how our farmers, small businessmen and local governments are adjusting to this 'farm depression,' said Stallings.

Stallings criticized the farm policies of the Reagan administration, which he announced the hearings, saying it sacrifices American agriculture interests to third world debt nations.

Girl, 16, hurt in shooting incident

TWIN FALLS — A 16-year-old female allegedly shot herself in the leg Friday at the Twin Falls Park, according to county police officials.

Comment period extended

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is extending the period for public comment on new draft and final runoff regulations until Sept. 30, said an EPA spokesman Thursday.

Yearbook out

TWIN FALLS — The 1985-86 edition of the Twin Falls High School yearbook, "The Bruin," will be distributed at the High School Monday.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office received a report of the shooting at 11:11 a.m. Friday, shortly after a report was received at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. The accident allegedly occurred in a two-tone trailerhouse in the Twin Falls Park area. Further investigation into the shooting is planned, officials said.

The EPA will hold public workshops on the issue in Twin Falls and Boise, said EPA's Bob Jacobson. The dates will be announced within the next 10 days.

Students may pick up their issue of the yearbook from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday. Books will be distributed near the entrance to the music wing, outside of the school in the U-shaped driveway.

Caldwell man accused of grand theft

RUPERT — Minidoka County Sheriff's Department deputies arrested a Caldwell man on Thursday and charged him with grand theft and possession of stolen property after he allegedly stole a 1978 Harley-Davidson motorcycle.

Officers said Monte Dryden, 32, was still in custody on Thursday. Dryden was arrested at 10 a.m. in Minidoka County. No other information was available.

In order to pick up a yearbook for another person, written permission from that person is required.

retail sales in five of eight categories were higher per capita in Cassia County than in Ada, Bannock, Canyon, Minidoka, and Twin Falls counties.

With police staff limited, he said Thursday, he would like to see more citizen involvement through Neighborhood Watch programs. He said the success of such a program will depend on whether people are mad enough to get involved or just to log.

Whether or not they solve the cruiser problem, Crystal and Messley said Burley's overall crime rate has been about the second-highest in the state in recent years.

As Frank pointed out, Burley is small, but draws customers — and criminals — from a large area. "You've got that much more traffic in Burley, same thing as crime."

Though he will lose his job in the October merger, Messley said he supports the plan. By doing away with territorial boundaries, police will have more flexibility to respond. But in the long run, the plan won't save money because Burley still needs to maintain adequate police coverage, he said.

Under the merger plan, five city police employees, including the chief and two uniformed officers, will lose their jobs.

He said the merger will help the city and county to deal with the problem.

With the staff cuts, Mayor Frank said both the city and county expect to save $50,000 under the new arrangement. Messley and the two uniformed officers told the City Council Monday that the plan may save money in the short run, but will harm police effectiveness, said Frank.

Crystal also says the answer is in the merger plan. By reducing the number of officers on the force, he said, he hopes to give his officers more training and better equipment and to keep them on the force longer to get more experience under their belts.

Eliminating timber sales altogether in the Sawtooth would be the most cost-effective alternative, the study said, but the long-standing tradition of ensuring a steady flow of timber precludes this from being considered a viable option.

Both he and Frank said the merger will not result in fewer police on the beat at any time, it just allows them to share their reserve forces.

The study also recommends that the sales create a net loss in dollars and other values, such as soil stability, erosion rates, water-quality degradation and losses to fish and wildlife habitat, the study said.

McClure will promote Bible

To co-chair National Bible Week with U.S. Rep. Wes Watkins

NEW YORK — Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, and U.S. Rep. Wes Watkins of Oklahoma are serving as congressional co-chairman for the 46th annual Interfaith National Bible Week, Nov. 23-30.

The appointments were announced by John B. Carter, National Chairman for National Bible Week.

The co-chairman are inviting congressional colleagues to support National Bible Week, the non-partisan campaign to foster interest in the Bible.

Sponsored by the Laymen's National Bible Committee since 1941, National Bible Week's primary purpose is to remind all Americans of the Bible's importance, to motivate Bible reading and study, and to reaffirm the founding principles of the U.S., according to a news release from the Laymen's National Bible Committee.

Upon accepting his voluntary Bible Week post, McClure said, "The Bible is the most important group of writings the world has known. It serves as a book of history, a spiritual guide, and a source of strength and hope for millions of people. The Bible has helped shape our world and the people in it. The lessons the Bible teaches us are invaluable."

Active in church affairs, McClure has served as lay leader of the Payette United Methodist Church.

as well as a steward and member of the church's Board of Trustees. He is married to the former Louise Miller. They have three children, all of whom are married.

Watkins was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1976. In 1978 he became the first Oklahoma since statehood to be re-elected after his first term without an opponent. He is now serving his fifth term in Congress.

Elected a member of the House Appropriations Committee, Watkins sought and won assignments to the two subcommittees which have the greatest impact on the economic and job development of Oklahoma's 3rd District. They are the Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development and the Subcommittee on Agriculture and Rural Development.

He presently serves on the House Leadership Executive Committee. Last year he was Chairman of the House Prayer Breakfast Group. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church in Ada.

President and Mrs. Ronald W. Reagan are serving as honorary chairmen for National Bible Week for the sixth consecutive year. Gov. Bob Graham of Florida is Chairman of the Governors Committee and Mayor William Hudnut, III of Indianapolis is heading the Mayor's Committee.

John B. Carter, who made the announcement, is President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U.S.

The Laymen's National Bible Committee has sponsored this nonsectarian observance each year since 1941. The committee is wholly directed by lay men and lay women and has no official sponsorship or ties with any faith group, denomination or church, yet works with all on an interfaith basis.

Waite renews plea to Lebanese captors

NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Waite, special envoy of the archbishop of Canterbury, on Friday renewed his plea with Shiite Muslim captors to speak with him about the three Americans held captive in Lebanon.

"Let's get out with honor and with dignity and move forward. Because the longer those people are kept, the more the situation runs into stalemate," Waite told a news conference.

"I'm optimistic because I believe that in the captors and in a lot of people in Lebanon, there is human feeling and there is compassion, despite all the misery and difficulty," he added.

Asked whether the captors' propaganda advantage weakens as time passes, he responded, "There are certain questions that I'm hesitant to answer ... because I'm thinking so carefully as to how it might be interpreted back in the Middle East."

Waite, who has visited Beirut several times and sat met with the kidnappers, announced Aug. 4 that Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie and Pope John Paul II had asked him to return to Lebanon to try to resume negotiations with the Muslim fundamentalists. No date has been set.

He said he has tried to contact Islamic Jihad, the Shiite Muslim extremist group which has claimed responsibility for a number of abductions of Westerners in Lebanon, but is still waiting for a response.

A statement delivered to a Beirut newspaper Sunday, purporting to be from Islamic Jihad, said the group never will negotiate with Runcie, the pope or President Reagan.

The group had denied that the Rev. Lawrence Martin — Jenco of Joliet, Ill. who was freed July 28 after 19 months of captivity, carried messages from his captors to Runcie, President Reagan and Pope John Paul II.

Many religious groups — Catholic, Jewish, Protestant, Eastern Orthodox, Mormon, Christian Science, and the Bible Societies — work with LNC in implementing National Bible Week activities from coast to coast.

For further information on National Bible Week or to receive a free packet of Bible Week materials, write to: Laymen's National Bible Committee, 615 Second Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017-4593.

Waite reiterated that Jenco had delivered the messages and said he had two theories for the denial.

"First of all, one could say that that could be a particular faction speaking, he said. "One (Jenco) could say it was a tactic designed to keep this issue very much alive by making controversy of that kind — keep it very much on the international stage."

"It depends, I think on the pressure that the group has been under and at times when they've been under acute pressure, then obviously, messages have changed in character," he said.

Waite also said that after his release, Jenco confirmed "that the information that I'd received over the past 15 months, which had led me to make certain moves and to make certain visits, was absolutely accurate."

Upon his return, Jenco delivered a seven-minute videotape of one of the remaining hostages, David P. Boer, of Colorado, who had been held for a number of months at the American University of Beirut Hospital.

The other Americans still being held are Terry A. Anderson of Lorain, Ohio, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, and Thomas Sutherland of Berkeley, Calif., director of the American University of Beirut Hospital.

Waite met Thursday night with Anderson's sister, Peggy Say.

The kidnappers claimed last year to have killed diplomat William Buckley, 58, but his body has not been found.

Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, is believed to be made up of Shiites loyal to Iran. It wants Kuwait to release 17 men jailed for bombing the U.S. and French embassies there in December 1983. Kuwait refuses.

Leslie Alexander wanted to be rabbi since her teens

First woman pulpit rabbi leads services of major conservative synagogue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first female rabbi of a major Conservative Jewish synagogue in the United States led her first Sabbath services Aug. 2.

Leslie Alexander, 31, who has wanted to be a rabbi since she was a teen-ager, wore the traditional prayer shawl and skull cap as she read from the Torah, the Jewish holy book, at Adat Ari El synagogue.

The first Conservative woman rabbi was ordained in 1985, said Rabbi Wolfe Kelman of the Conservative Rabbinical Assembly in New York. But Ms. Alexander is the first to become a pulpit rabbi of a major Conservative synagogue.

Ms. Alexander is a third-generation rabbi. Her father, Theodore Alexander, is a popular San Francisco rabbi who sang Hebrew songs and discussed the religion with his only child while she was growing up. Her grandfather also was a rabbi.

Rabbi Moshe Rothblum, senior rabbi at the 1,000-family Adat Ari El, one of Southern California's oldest congregations, said having a woman lead a major Conservative congregation was long overdue.

"I can't believe God would serve as I wanted to have a woman serve as a rabbi," he said. The decision last year by the Jewish Theological Seminary, the governing body of the Conservative branch of Judaism, to ordain women rabbis followed a decade of study and debate.

"I respect them for taking women seriously and for taking 5,000 years of Jewish history seriously," said Ms. Alexander, who is married to a research chemist. While the Reform branch of Judaism has ordained 115 women over the past 15 years, some Conservative theologians still oppose the idea. The Orthodox branch, the most traditional branch of American Judaism, continues to forbid female rabbis.

Ms. Alexander is a third-generation rabbi. Her father, Theodore Alexander, is a popular San Francisco rabbi who sang Hebrew songs and discussed the religion with his only child while she was growing up. Her grandfather also was a rabbi.

Rabbi Moshe Rothblum, senior rabbi at the 1,000-family Adat Ari El, one of Southern California's oldest congregations, said having a woman lead a major Conservative congregation was long overdue.

"I can't believe God would serve as I wanted to have a woman serve as a rabbi," he said. The decision last year by the Jewish Theological Seminary, the governing body of the Conservative branch of Judaism, to ordain women rabbis followed a decade of study and debate.

"I respect them for taking women seriously and for taking 5,000 years of Jewish history seriously," said Ms. Alexander, who is married to a research chemist. While the Reform branch of Judaism has ordained 115 women over the past 15 years, some Conservative theologians still oppose the idea. The Orthodox branch, the most traditional branch of American Judaism, continues to forbid female rabbis.

Q That Benjamin Franklin was the nation's first postmaster general is known by all. Less well understood is why he took that job. Congress had voted franking privileges for it. "The newspaper Franklin owned was delivered free.

Q Didn't women a couple of centuries ago wear clothing that exposed even more of their bodies than today's clothing?

A They did. During the French Revolution, a well-dressed lady wore as little as possible about the waist. The fashion lasted about 30 years, then England's Queen Victoria forced an extreme cover-up.

Washington issued a 103-word order to his soldiers that said, in effect: You men are swearing too much. Kinnick off the curswords.

Japan calls for buildup of defense

TOKYO (AP) — Japan said Friday that it will accelerate its defense buildup in the face of a growing Soviet presence in the Pacific, while hewing to a defense spending ceiling that has irritated Washington.

In its annual report on defense issues, Japan's Defense Agency also said that with a new government in Manila, political and other developments in the Philippines are likely to affect the security of all of Asia.

The report was released publicly after the Cabinet approved it Friday.

It said Japan will keep its policy of spending no more than 1 percent of its Gross National Product on defense, despite U.S. demands that this island nation take on a greater share of the defense burden in the Western Pacific.

The agency said Japan's defense capability has yet to reach a level recommended in its 1976 outline on defense, of being capable of repulsing a small-scale, limited aggression.

"Consequently, the government takes the view that it is an urgent task to attain this force level as soon as possible, and intends to step up the defense buildup," the report said.

Winnie Mandela briefly detained

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two of South Africa's most prominent critics of apartheid, black activist Winnie Mandela and white Parliament member Helen Suzman, were detained briefly by soldiers Friday while visiting a Soweto school.

The two women, and nine journalists accompanying them, were released after about 30 minutes.

Mrs. Suzman, 68, who has joined black leaders in protesting recent deployment of troops at schools, said: "It must be extremely distressing for black students to be confronted at every turn by a man with his finger on the trigger."

Mrs. Suzman, who belongs to the opposition Progressive Federal Party, went to Soweto to visit Mrs. Mandela, wife of Nelson Mandela, imprisoned African National Congress leader.

American, British and South African reporters and photographers accompanied her to the black township of 1.5 million people outside Johannesburg.

They went to Phelent secondary school, about 200 yards from Mrs. Mandela's home, but the principal said the visit was unexpected and that they could not tour school grounds because of security restrictions.

As the visitors left, they were detained for a short time at the entrance.

On Friday also, the lawyer for the Sowetan, the largest-selling black newspaper in the country, said the national police commissioner had ordered all copies of Friday's edition seized.

The rebels agreed to meeting

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Salvadoran guerrillas agreed Friday to meet government representatives on neutral ground in Mexico in an effort to overcome obstacles to peace talks.

The Marxist-led guerrillas have been fighting the U.S.-trained and supported army since 1979. About 61,000 people, most of them civilians, have been killed in the conflict.

The rebels accepted President Jose Napoleon Duarte's proposal for preliminary talks in Mexico City within two weeks but rejected other elements of his plan.

Duarte had suggested the procedural talks be held Aug. 19-26. The rebels proposed that the talks begin Aug. 20, with no time limit.

Duarte on June 1 proposed a third round of peace negotiations. Two sessions, in October and November 1984, produced no progress.

State OKs partial ban on lead shot

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley on Friday became the last refuge for Idaho waterfowl hunters who want to use lead shot.

Related story — B2

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission, bowing to pressure from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, voted 3-2 to close three large areas of northern, southwestern and southeastern Idaho to hunting for waterfowl with lead shot because of actual and potential damage to bald eagle populations in those areas. Starting this fall, duck and goose hunters in those areas will have to switch to steel shot.

The commission took the action during a conference call among its five members and Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley. Commissioners Fred Christensen of Nampa, Richard Hansen — of Bayview and Keith Stonebraker of Lewiston voted for the change, while Lou Racine of Pocatello and Norm Guth of Salmon, who represents the Magic Valley on the panel, dissented. "None of us was very happy about it," said Guth afterward. "The Fish and Wildlife Service was holding a gun to our head." The action was prompted by a letter to Conley from Wally Steucke, assistant to regional FWS Director Rolf Wallenstein, stating that Idaho's 1986 waterfowl season might be jeopardized if the state didn't fall into line by Aug. 11 with the agency's regulations on non-toxic, or lead-free, zones. FWS is seeking to phase out the use of lead-filled shotgun shells by 1991 because of studies that have shown higher mortality rates in waterfowl, raptors and other birds who ingest the pellets after feeding in areas where lead shot use is heavy. "Because of the incompetence the Fish and Wildlife Service has shown in getting their rules done quickly, I see that as a very real threat to the '86 season," Conley told the commissioners. Conley was referring to delays by the federal agency in promulgating and publishing rules on the banning of lead shot, which were finally published in the Federal Register in July. The Idaho commission had postponed a decision on lead shot regulation in June because the federal rules hadn't been made public. The commission had originally planned to decide this issue at its Aug. 22 meeting in McCall. "I think the federal government is using this threat against the opening of the season as a club, as a means of getting non-toxic shot in these areas," said Racine.

Fish & Game is recommending to the commission that the waterfowl seasons begin Oct. 4 this year. The Idaho commission did stipulate that unless California and Washington — which are supposed to approve the federal regulations this week or next — don't do so by the commissioners' Aug. 22 meeting, it would reconsider its action of Friday. Oregon, the fourth state in the Pacific Flyway, has already agreed to the federal rules. At the insistence of Hansen, the commission also reserved the right to add all or part of Benewah County in the northern non-toxic zone. Hansen said Benewah County, which includes the southern shore of Lake Coeur d'Alene, is both prime eagle and waterfowl habitat. The commission's action of Friday excluded lead shot from all of the state's major waterfowl hunting areas except those in the Magic Valley, although under the FWS policy these areas are almost certain to follow by 1991 as the agency attempts to ban lead shot to protect waterfowl. Guth and Craig Kvale, wildlife manager of Fish & Game's Region 4 office in Jerome, both said Friday they expect waterfowl hunting pressure will increase in the Magic Valley this fall as a result of Friday's decision because hunters will move into this area from the Treasure Valley and eastern Idaho to use their lead shot. Kvale added that the issue of enforcement concerned him because it is difficult to tell a lead-filled shotgun shell from one loaded with steel without opening it and dumping out the contents. Moreover, it will not be illegal for hunters to carry both lead and steel shot shells because lead shot can still be used to hunt upland game birds. • See LEAD on Page B2

Master of the game

At 75, boxing trainer Futch has worked with the legends

By FLYNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — If central casting picked Warren Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States, then it most assuredly chose Eddie Futch to be one of boxing's greatest trainers. Just turned 75 — today is his birthday — Futch fits the part like an Everlast glove: compact figure covering 5-feet, 7-inches and 160 pounds, wrinkle-mapped face detailing more than 50 years of experience, black hair peppered with gray identifying him as the industry's elder statesman.

To look into his warm eyes and listen to his stories is to relive modern boxing history. He has developed numerous world champions and world-class contenders; even those who don't read Ring magazine can recognize a handful of his best — Larry Holmes, Alexis Arguello, Ken Norton and Joe Frazier. Michael Spinks, International Boxing Federation heavyweight champ and his latest charge, was two years old when Futch had his first world championship fighter, welterweight Don Jordan in 1958. "Everybody knows he's the No. 1 trainer in the business," says Don Hubbard, vice president of Butch Lewis. Futch and his group working with Don King to promote Spinks' title defense in Las Vegas on Sept. 6 against Norway's Steffen Tangstad. To prepare for that, Spinks and an entourage of about 30 people have set up a training camp here in the Sun Valley Garage, providing an odd contrast to the inner-city clubs in which Futch grew up. Earlier this week, Futch relaxed at ringside as he waited for Spinks to arrive for another sparring round. Dressed in a baby blue T-shirt and matching Bermuda shorts, he recounted a career that has taken him from Detroit's Lower East Side to cities all over the world. Born in Hillsboro, Miss., in 1911, Futch moved to Detroit with his family five years later and quickly realized "teaching was a natural thing for me." At 16, he was already coaching everything from swimming to basketball at a neighborhood YMCA. The Great Depression crushed his plans for attending college, but Futch continued to juggle jobs and gym workouts, beginning his own boxing career in 1932 as a lightweight.

When asked about his own fighting experience, Futch holds out his gnarled left hand and points to a bone that has been raised by the impact of hundreds of punches. "I'd fight on my day off," he says of those days. Futch trained boxers and learned to fight at the Detroit Athletic Association — the same club that produced Joe Louis. In fact, Futch often sparred with Louis, who outweighed him by more than 30 pounds.

"I saw him go all the way," he says of his friendship with Louis. "I met him after his first amateur fight." Heart trouble forced "Futch" to stop his own boxing career after four years; but his training experience was evident, and DAA members elected him coach of the club in '39. Some questioned whether a 29-year-old could protect the DAA's reputation as one of the best clubs in Detroit. They needn't have worried: Futch's crew never lost a team championship. "Of all the things I've done in boxing," he says, "I'm most proud of what I did with reorganizing that club." Futch continued to develop world-class fighters in Detroit, but then, in 1951, he became "disgusted" with what was happening to a top welterweight contender of his, Andy Retired. "I just washed my hands of boxing," he says. Futch moved to California, intending to break clean from the sport. But the reputation he left behind would not allow it. Friends convinced him to accept fighters from Detroit and train them in California. It was there that he developed Jordan — and thus received honors from the state boxing managers' guild for being the first trainer to develop a California-born champion. Sklavos captures U.S. flyweight karate crown

By The Times-News

DENVER — An often-delayed quest for a crown became a reality for Twin Falls fighter Carl Sklavos Friday night. The 23-year-old Sklavos captured the U.S. flyweight title in professional karate Friday night with a nine-round unanimous decision over Everett Berry of Albuquerque, N.M. According to trainer Gene Starr, Sklavos won all nine rounds on one card and was awarded spreads of seven and five rounds by the other two officials scoring the bout. "There were no knockdowns, but

Carl rang his bell a couple of times," said Starr. "Carl has a small mouse under one eye, but Berry looks like he went through a windmill. "Berry is a tough customer and he took it all the way," Starr continued. "But Carl scored well with spinning back kicks, sidekicks and hard hooks to the champion's head. This is what we needed to get ready for (World Champion Jerry) Clarke." Clarke was originally scheduled to defend his world title against Sklavos on Friday before a training injury forced a postponement. That

MERIDIAN — An Idaho Falls sportswriter this week diplomatically described the Twin Falls Cowboys as the team in the Idaho State American Legion "A" Baseball Tournament that is "least likely to win."

Today's games at Wigle Field Boise Idaho Falls (44-11) vs. Coeur d'Alene (20-23), 10 p.m. Lewiston (51-17) vs. Nampa (30-26), 1 p.m. Twin Falls (18-28) vs. Meridian (47-14), 5 p.m. Pocatello (53-23) vs. Boise Gems (23-21), 8 p.m.

A record of 18-23 and a first-round date this afternoon with Meridian (47-14) doesn't get you much respect.

But first-year Cowboys' Coach Mike Federico is taking a different approach to the 5 p.m. encounter with a team against whom Twin Falls is 0-1 this season. "Before the Blackfoot game at district (a 7-5 victory last Saturday) we played in the district that we've played in a long time. "We swung the bat, scored some runs and played good defense," he continued. "That's what we need to do at state. If we can score some runs and give our pitchers the chance to pitch with a lead, we can give them some confidence. The tournament gets under way this morning at 10 o'clock at Wigle Field, which is located on the campus of Borah High School. Southern Region champion Idaho Falls (44-11) will take on Northern Region runner-up Coeur d'Alene (30-22) in the opener, while at 1 p.m., Northern Region winner and defending state champ Lewiston (51-17) will meet Western Region runner-up Nampa (30-26). Tournament host Boise Gems (23-21) will face Southern Region runner-up Pocatello (53-23) in the 8 p.m. nightcap. The tourney will continue through Tuesday, with a second championship game, if it is necessary, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon. The winner will advance to the Northwestern regional tourney in Corvallis, Ore., later this month. Meridian ranks as one of the favorites for the state title, and for good reason, according to Federico. "They're one of the best hitting teams I've seen this year, top to bottom," he said. "They hit the ball everywhere and they're capable of getting five hits an inning. They're a veteran club, and it

Norman lengthens lead to four strokes at PGA

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Greg Norman, his lead expanded to four strokes despite a little lapse, took note that Jack Nicklaus was still challenging at the halfway point of the 68th PGA National Championship. "Obviously, I'm in very good position. There aren't that many fellows ahead of me," Nicklaus said Friday after a 3-under-par 68 had put him among the leaders. But Norman, the dominant figure in golf since losing to Nicklaus by a single stroke in the Masters at Augusta, Ga. in April, had a quick response. "I gave him Augusta," Norman said. "I don't really want to give him the PGA Championship." And, with that in mind, Norman put still more daylight — two more strokes to a total of four — between himself and the rest of the field. Norman stretched his lead with a second-round 68 that produced a 36-hole total of 137, nine shots under par on the Inverness course that, he said, is beginning to regain some of its luster. Payne Stewart, who seems to reserve his best play for the game's major championships, and PGA Tour rookie Mike Hubert moved into a tie for second at 137, five under par. Stewart birdied the final hole for a 67 and Hubert shot a 68. • See PGA on Page B2

State panel reopens applications for controlled game hunts

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Fish and Game Commission gave Magic Valley deer and elk hunters a bonus Friday.

"I reopened applications for controlled hunts statewide in which all the permits for deer, elk and antelope have not been sold for the upcoming season.

"We've had quite a drop in the number of permits sold for controlled hunts this year, and right now we have about 2,500 that are unfilled," said Jerry Conroy, director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department. "It's not because of lack of interest, because we've returned 13,000 applications. But we have a lot zones in which hunts have not been filled, and we'd like to give hunters a chance to get them.

Specifically, Conroy said there are 1,563 deer permits, 797 elk permits and 230 antelope permits unfilled statewide.

"The commission, acting in a conference, unanimously to reopen the applications.

"Seven of the permits will be for hunts in areas of the Magic Valley that are popular with hunters.

According to Ken Norrie, assistant director of the IDFG, the permit sale process will work like this:

The permits will be sold by mail on a first-come, first-served basis, and only Idaho residents will be eligible to buy them. The application process will be the same as for the regular annual controlled hunt in Idaho, with hunters required to submit applications and fees to the state Fish & Game office.

The applications must be postmarked no earlier than Aug. 18 and no later than Aug. 25.

Norrie said that separate payments would be required with applications for deer, elk and antelope permits and that no second-choice permits would be taken, which the department normally permits on the applications. He added that no group applications would be accepted for these hunts; only individuals may apply.

Successful applicants will be mailed a notice, and they must return their 1986 deer or elk tags to the state office for validation. The validated tags and controlled hunt permits will then be returned to them.

Norrie said the fees will remain the same and, as in all Idaho controlled hunts, any hunter who receives a controlled hunt permit is prohibited from hunting deer in general hunt.

Norrie said applicants should be informed of their success or failure soon after their applications are received. He asked permit-seekers to apply by phone the state office to check on their applications because that will delay the process.

Further information on the application process can be obtained by phoning the Region 4 office of the department in Jerome at 324-4530.

The Magic Valley areas for which permits are still available are:

Deer

- Hunt 152-4, Unit 52, a portion of southeastern Blaine, northeastern Lincoln, northern Mindoka and southwestern Butte counties east of Idaho Highway 75 and U.S. Highway 93; 36 permits available.
- Hunt 154-2, Unit 54, South Hills, eastern Twin Falls and western Cassia — counties; 107 permits available.
- Hunts 155-1 and 155-2, Unit 55, central Cassia County from the Utah border to the Snake River; a total of 740 permits available.

- Hunts 157-2 and 157-3, Unit 57, southeastern Oneida counties; a total of 231 permits available.
- Elk
- Hunt 243-2, Unit 43, a portion northern Blaine and northeastern Elmore counties east of the Pine-Foothill-Rocky Bar Road; 38 permits available.
- Hunt 249-6, that portion of northeastern Blaine County between the Kellogg-Traik Creek Summit Road and the east fork of the Wood River; 11 permits available.

The sale of controlled hunt permits is a major revenue source for Fish & Game and for Citizens Against Poaching.

The Rangers are led offensively by right-handed-hitting catcher Dan Brown, who will be a sophomore this fall at Linn-Benton Community College in Oregon, and by shortstop Jim Straw and third baseman Mike Redmond, two other right-handed hitters who have batted over .400 this season.

Federico describes the Rangers' pitching as solid and deep.

"I don't think anybody at this level is overpowering — but they've got kids who can throw a curveball and a slider and they've got some kids who can bring it."

One of them is Jeff Cecil, a 17-year-old right-hander with an 8-3 record who'll take the mound against the Cowboys today. Cecil threw a no-hitter at Twin Falls in Meridian on June 23, beating the Cowboys' 10-0.

The loser of that particular game, right-hander Tom Prater (3-8), will take the mound for Twin Falls today.

"I never go into a ball game thinking I'm going to win," said veteran Meridian Coach Elmore Brooks. "I've been in too many games that I thought I should win and I got beat. Twin's a good baseball team and it produces some great players. I'm not looking past anybody."

Brooks, who is also the coach of the Meridian High School baseball team, points out that Prater took his Warriors into extra innings before losing a one-run game in Meridian last spring.

"I think every game is a new ballgame," Brooks said. "I'm one of those guys who believes 'in' execution. When you get people on base, it makes the pitcher a little tougher. After the years that I've coached, I've learned to play for the one-run inning. You'll get the big innings once in a while, but you can't count on it."

That dovetails with Federico's philosophy.

"I don't see the kind of a team that's going to put together four or five hits in an inning and score a lot of runs," he said. "If we're going to beat you, it's going to be by getting somebody on base, advancing him with a walk or a wild pitch or a stolen base and scoring him with a single. One problem this year is that we haven't always been able to do that consistently."

The Cowboys have been a team of streak hitters. The hottest right now are infielder Barry Smith, who went into the district tournament batting .333 and proceeded to go 4-for-5 at the plate, and first baseman Eric Ochsner, who now sports a .338 batting average, which is roughly 120 points higher than it was the last time in the Cowboys' faced Meridian the last weekend in June.

Twin Falls' batting leader, as he has been all season, is catcher Casey Bartholomew, who carries a .414 average and leads the Cowboys in all offensive categories except RBIs (outfielder Nick Baumer has four) and stolen bases (infielder Matt Smith). Besides Bartholomew and Ochsner, two other Twin Falls players are hitting over .300: Ellis at .302 and infielder Shane Clark at .308.

Farmers, Snake River Pool move ahead in state B winner's bracket

TWIN FALLS — District 5 champion Farmers National Bank of Buhl invoked the 15-run rule to show Blackfoot's Milestone to the loser's bracket Friday and Snake River Pool and Spa in today's winners' bracket of the Men's Class 'B' State Slowpitch Tournament.

Snake River Pool and Spa took seesaw contests from Mader Insurance/Dokken, implement of Moscow 14-11 and Musser Seed out of Caldwell 17-14.

Jerome's Renegades were the only other Magic Valley club to gain an opening day win posting a narrow 7-5 12-inning decision over Moscow 14-11 and Musser Seed out of Caldwell 17-14.

Langview Dairy, also of the Jerome League, fell victim to Boise's Brass Lamp 15-12 in one opener while Idaho First National Bank of Caldwell nipped Twin Falls 7-Eleven by a 14-10 count and Circle 4 of Jerome was blasted 27-7 by Shanty Bar from Cover d'Alene.

"I was scared to death when they had us down something like 7-1," said FNB outfielder Lee Cline. "We can't start slow like that."

The Milestone advantage wasn't quite that great, but the District 6 runner-up did lead 4-0 after an inning and 7-4 at the end of two before Buhl exploded for 13 straight runs.

Jerre Hills three-run blast in the second frame pulled Farmer's Bank even before Blackfoot regained the lead with three tallies in its half of the inning. That deficit would have more save for a throw that traveled from Vince Hamilton at the centerfield fence to Hills at second who in turn relayed the ball to Pat Hamilton to cut down a runner and end the threat.

Gary Will, the state game manager for Fish & Game, said Friday he doesn't know how the new no-toxic zones will be enforced.

"That's not something we've addressed at all," he said. "We're going to sit down with our enforcement people and representatives from our regional offices and talk about that in the next few weeks."

The three non-toxic zones as adopted by the commission Friday include:

- Most of the Fort Hall Indian Reservation and most of Bannock, Bingham, Bonneville, Jefferson, Madison and Power counties, along with the extreme northeastern part of Cassia County. That part of Cassia County lies north and east of a line running from the point where the Blaine County line meets the Cassia boundary, south to I-86 — an area that includes the mouth of the Raft River.

- Most of Ada, Canyon and Payette counties and parts of Owyhee and Elmore counties, in the latter case excluding the Glenns Ferry area. The non-toxic zone starts east of Hammett at the Cold Springs Creek exit on I-84 and runs northwest along I-84 and southwest along Idaho Highway 28.
- All of Bonner, Boundary and Kootenai counties.

The commission's action Friday doesn't forbid the use of lead shot in any area of the state for upland game bird hunting, nor does it ban lead shot specifically for the purpose of protecting ducks and geese. But neither Guth nor Conley left any doubt that the latter will happen soon.

"They've already taken most of the best waterfowl hunting areas (with this action)," Guth said. "Unless the courts intervene, it's coming. But it's supposed to be phased in over a five-year period to give people a chance to adjust to it. I think it's a shame it has to happen like this."

reputable in Philadelphia, and a long line of fighters being arriving from the City of Brotherly Love. Joe Frazier was one of the last of that group.

Frazier captured the world heavyweight championship in 1970 by knocking out Jimmy Ellis in five rounds; he went on to defend the title four times, including once against Muhammad Ali in '71.

Meanwhile, Futch had his eye on another fighter, whom he was building up as a sparring partner for Frazier: Ken Norton.

"When I got him, he was a raw Marine," Futch says of Norton. "Though Norton took longer to develop, he proved worth the wait. He knocked Ali in a North American Boxing Federation bout and broke the Mouth's jaw, giving Futch a second victory over Ali."

Before the fight, "Howard Cosell excoriated me," he says. "Cosell kept saying 'Futch's name, but said that whoever had put Norton in the ring with Ali should have his license suspended."

"He said, 'This kid doesn't belong in the same town as Ali,'" Futch retorted.

"Norton proceeded to defeat Ali in a 12-round decision.

"Boy did (Cosell) put egg on his face," Futch says with a hearty laugh. "He became one of my biggest supporters after that."

"Then came heavyweight champ Holmes, Spinks and Arguello, the former World Boxing Council lightweight titleholder.

Futch began working with Holmes, in March of 1981, though he'd known him since '71. Spinks in July '81, just days before he took the World Boxing Association light heavyweight title from Eddie Mustafa Muhammad; and Arguello in September of '81. He was training three world champions at once.

"The first time I worked with Michael, I had never even met him," he says. "I first refused to work with him."

But he finally agreed and began advising Nelson Brison, Spinks' trainer at the time. Three rounds in to the Mustafa Muhammad fight, Futch took over.

After the victory, "Spinks spent the night thanking me," he says.

When Spinks switched to the heavyweight division and challenged Holmes last September, however, Futch refused to work with either. "I got hit again, when Holmes challenged Spinks in April."

"How could I contribute to the defeat of either man?" he says.

When asked to compare Spinks to one of the hundreds of fighters he's seen, Futch is quick with a reply. "Michael most resembles 'Ezra Charles,'" he says of a man who won the Golden Gloves — middleweight championship in Chicago in 1939.

"They are similar in build, and they have a slight facial resemblance," Futch says. "Ezra was orthodox. Michael is unorthodox, but he has command of every punch in boxing — and so did Ezra."

Of all boxing's alterations during his tenure, Futch says the greatest change was wrought by television. "(TV) has made a different sport of boxing — it demands continuous action."

The jaunty Australian did it Friday — just as he's done all summer — with a flourish and a flair. Just as it seemed he was ready to back off a bit, open the gates to potential contenders, Norman put on a blitz that produced three birdies on the last three holes.

It came after Norman had this little lapse.

He three-putted from the fringe and made bogey on the 11th hole. It was his first of the week.

"I didn't want to have any bogeys for the week. I'm dying for the day I can go through a tournament without a bogey," he said.

"That was one of my goals."

"When I made that first bogey, I lost a little concentration. For a few holes, I played on a bit of a walkabout," Norman said.

He missed a five-foot birdie putt on the 13th. He let an approach drift into a bunker on the 14th and made another bogey.

On the 15th, with his lead down to one shot, he let another approach get away. It found the deep rough behind the green and a bogey seemed likely.

Norman promptly chipped it in the hole, using the blade of his birdie wedge to strike the ball, for a sand rescue.

His playing partner, defending champion Hubert Green, bowed in mock reverence.

delay resulted in Berry stepping in to defend his belt in a battle set back by a similar training accident in March of this year.

According to Starr, Sklavos' Denver-based manager Karen Turner has already set the wheels in motion for a world title fight.

"If everything works out the way we hope it will, the Clarke fight will take place in about two months — in Jackpot, Nev."

The new U.S. Champ and his handlers will depart Denver Sunday and, after a brief layover in Salt Lake City, arrive at Twin Falls/Sun Valley Regional Airport at approximately 11 p.m.

reputable in Philadelphia, and a long line of fighters being arriving from the City of Brotherly Love. Joe Frazier was one of the last of that group.

Frazier captured the world heavyweight championship in 1970 by knocking out Jimmy Ellis in five rounds; he went on to defend the title four times, including once against Muhammad Ali in '71.

Meanwhile, Futch had his eye on another fighter, whom he was building up as a sparring partner for Frazier: Ken Norton.

"When I got him, he was a raw Marine," Futch says of Norton. "Though Norton took longer to develop, he proved worth the wait. He knocked Ali in a North American Boxing Federation bout and broke the Mouth's jaw, giving Futch a second victory over Ali."

Before the fight, "Howard Cosell excoriated me," he says. "Cosell kept saying 'Futch's name, but said that whoever had put Norton in the ring with Ali should have his license suspended."

"He said, 'This kid doesn't belong in the same town as Ali,'" Futch retorted.

"Norton proceeded to defeat Ali in a 12-round decision.

"Boy did (Cosell) put egg on his face," Futch says with a hearty laugh. "He became one of my biggest supporters after that."

"Then came heavyweight champ Holmes, Spinks and Arguello, the former World Boxing Council lightweight titleholder.

Futch began working with Holmes, in March of 1981, though he'd known him since '71. Spinks in July '81, just days before he took the World Boxing Association light heavyweight title from Eddie Mustafa Muhammad; and Arguello in September of '81. He was training three world champions at once.

"The first time I worked with Michael, I had never even met him," he says. "I first refused to work with him."

But he finally agreed and began advising Nelson Brison, Spinks' trainer at the time. Three rounds in to the Mustafa Muhammad fight, Futch took over.

After the victory, "Spinks spent the night thanking me," he says.

When Spinks switched to the heavyweight division and challenged Holmes last September, however, Futch refused to work with either. "I got hit again, when Holmes challenged Spinks in April."

"How could I contribute to the defeat of either man?" he says.

When asked to compare Spinks to one of the hundreds of fighters he's seen, Futch is quick with a reply. "Michael most resembles 'Ezra Charles,'" he says of a man who won the Golden Gloves — middleweight championship in Chicago in 1939.

"They are similar in build, and they have a slight facial resemblance," Futch says. "Ezra was orthodox. Michael is unorthodox, but he has command of every punch in boxing — and so did Ezra."

Of all boxing's alterations during his tenure, Futch says the greatest change was wrought by television. "(TV) has made a different sport of boxing — it demands continuous action."

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much from Bobby Wolff. Wisdom is humble that he knows no more."

— William Cowper.

What's the best chance to win three diamond tricks at today's slam? Be careful! A little knowledge can be dangerous.

South won his spade king and drew trumps, ending in dummy. Next, he cashed dummy's diamond ace and led a low diamond toward his K-J. East's discard ruining his day. Eventually South had to concede a club and a diamond, and the defenders earned a plus score.

"I cashed dummy's diamond ace before flexing, to guard against losing to a singleton queen with West," was South's lame excuse.

"If you were worried about a singleton, why not direct your queen to the more likely danger?" asked North. "It's much more likely for East to hold a singleton than West to specifically hold the singleton queen."

The best play in diamonds is for declarer to lead a low one back to his Jack on the first round of that suit. When it loses to West's queen, South later cashes his diamond king to discover East's singleton. Then marked finessing of dummy's diamond nine leads the 12th trick.
