Lap belts a hazard to riders

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A federal study of auto accidents in which rear-seat passengers wearing seat belts sustained serious injuries concluded Monday that the lap-only belts may do more harm than good.

The National Transportation Safety Board urged the government to require rear-seat shoulder belts — instead of the lap-only variety now on most rear seats — as soon as possible. It said automakers, in the meantime, should install such belts voluntarily.

The NTSB study of 26 frontal crashes concluded that in many cases the rear-seat occupant was "injured severely from the effects of the lap-only belt and might have been better off if one had not been worn."

Calling the overall crash performance of the lap belts "very poor," the safety board said its study showed that among 50 accident victims wearing lap belts, 32 would have "fared substantially better" with shoulder belts.

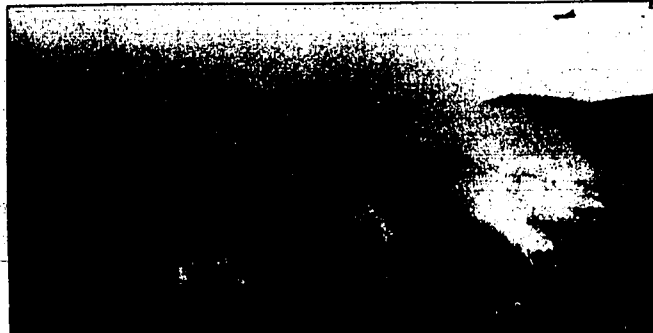

"In many cases, the lap belts induced severe to fatal injuries that probably would not have occurred if the lap belts had not been worn," it said.

Three states — California, Massachusetts and Washington — require rear-seat passengers to use their lap belts.

The NTSB findings were immediately disputed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which issues auto safety regulations. "The agency issued a statement calling the study 'a specific search for cases in which belts failed' and not statistically valid."

The highway safety agency added, "In numerous studies involving thousands of cases, lap belts have been found to reduce the risk of death or serious injury" and should continue to be worn.

Drought and storms yield 101 fires Monday

By BOB FICK The Associated Press

BOISE — Hundreds of firefighters battled raging flames on the desert range of southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon Monday as fire raced across 175,000 acres of grazing land in the wake of a fierce summer thunderstorm.

"There's fire all over," said Jack Sept — of the Bureau of Land Management's Boise District. Heavy smoke and the smell of burning sage and grass choked much of the district's Treasure Valley region.

Over 700 firefighters were already on the lines around just a handful of the more than 400 blazes spawned by the Sunday night storm, and as another 100 reinforcements began moving onto the lines around midday. Crews scheduled for relief after battling 100,000 acres of fires in eastern Oregon last week were held in place for redeployment on the new blazes, some of them threatening millions of dollars in commercial timber.

The storm packing winds up to 50 mph swept across a 500-mile corridor from eastern Oregon through the northcentral Idaho forests and into western Montana, firing some 6,800 lightning strikes into the tinder-dry forage habitat.

"Everything between here and Missoula got hit pretty hard," said Dale Dufur of southwestern Idaho's Boise National Forest, where crews were fighting 16 fires over 85 others that burned unattended.

Storm and lightning activity became so intense in eastern Oregon that fire crews were for a time pulled out of the Clear Fire that had threatened the Anthony Lakes Ski Resort last week.

Meanwhile, Arnold Hartigan, spokesman for the Boise Interagency Fire Center, said a hotline had set up for fire information nationwide. Forest Service tankers made repeated drops of chemical retardant on the most critical of the new fires. Some 30,000 gallons of retardant were dumped on the 9,000-acre blaze that had forced the evacuation of some 50 homes northwest of Boise about four hours, and fire bosses believed their 200 crewmen had finally gained the upper hand.

Sept said some hay sheds and hay stacks were destroyed "but no houses have been lost, which is kind of amazing considering how the fire was running."

Retardant drops were also made on another 3,500-acre blaze still threatening ranches in three creek drainages near Council Bluffs in the northwest. Local fire departments stood by the 30 homes and other ranch buildings to protect them, and fire crews began a backburn between structures and the main fire.

Payette spokesman Dave Olson said that fire generally was burning on rangeland, though it had reached the edge of Payette National Forest. Five additional 20-man crews arrived on the Payette District on Monday, and five additional crews were expected, Olson said.

He said the lightning storm sparked 61 new fires since Sunday afternoon, ranging in size from spot fires to the large Goodrich fire. Most were less than 10 acres, he said. Some 85,000 acres of southwestern Idaho range was already blackened by fire, and flames were running wild on a 50,000-acre four-fire complex northwest of Emmett, where the Squaw Butte Lookout was evacuated.

Some 35,000 acres of southwestern Idaho range was already blackened by fire, and flames were running wild on a 50,000-acre four-fire complex northwest of Emmett, where the Squaw Butte Lookout was evacuated.

Cattlemen herded thousands of head of livestock away from the advancing flames of scores of range fires in Oregon's massive Malheur County, where at least 75,000 acres had burned since the storm hit.

On the Flathead Indian Reservation in Montana, 100 firefighters were battling a 300-acre blaze while fire teams assessed the potential from more than two dozen other blazes sparked by the storm. "We had lightning all night long, and we're picking up fires continually," said Gene Benedict of the House votes two times to keep MX in budget

By TIM AHERN The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House shot down two attempts Monday to kill next year's planned purchase of MX missiles, the nuclear weapon which has been at the center of numerous congressional fights the past four years.

The votes rejected a proposed amendment to a huge bill authorizing the Pentagon's budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

The bill before the Democratic-controlled chamber proposes spending $292 billion for defense, far under President Reagan's proposed $320 billion Pentagon budget. The current budget is $286 billion.

Last week, the Republican-run Senate adopted a defense budget of $285 billion, including the purchase of 21 MX missiles. The House bill proposes buying 12 of the 10-warhead weapons.

The dozens of differences between the two bills, including the MX missiles, will be reconciled next month by a conference committee. The MX votes were the first in a series the House will take this week as it plows through the defense bill. Still pending are fights over chemical weapons, "Star Wars" anti-missile research, and whether to require continued adherence to the SALT II nuclear treaty Reagan says he will abandon.

First, the House voted down, 219-178, a proposal to ban spending, the $1.1 billion contained in the bill for MX weapons. Instead, according to the proposal, about $825 million of the money would be spent to reduce the federal deficit and the rest would go for buying non-nuclear weapons.

Then, the chamber voted 217-179 to reject a similar amendment which would ban spending for the weapons. That amendment would have instead spent half the $1.1 billion for conventional weapons and the other half to reduce the deficit.

Telephone company says talks at "sensitive" stage

By MARJORIE ANDERS The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Partial agreement was reported Monday in talks to end a strike by 40,000 phone workers in New York, the last part of the country where large numbers of local phone company employees remained off the job.

Negotiators for the striking Communications Workers of America and New York Telephone Co. reached agreement on major contract issues including wages, pensions and medical benefits but called off talks Monday night to "give people a chance to look at it with fresh eyes," said Tony Pappas, company spokesman.

Pappas said the only snags remaining were local work issues, although the major agreement had to be approved by officials of the approximately 50 locals as well as the international union. Those local issues included work rules, vacation time and seniority, he said. Neither side would reveal further details.

The only other strike continuing Monday involved about 1,000 employees of U S West Direct, the publishing arm of Denver-based U S West Inc. Phone workers elsewhere in the country had reached settlements or agreed to continue working while negotiations go on.

The phone workers, represented by the Communications Workers of America, walked out Saturday at midnight when their old contracts expired.

Dale Dufur of southwestern Idaho's Boise National Forest, where crews were fighting 16 fires over 85 others that burned unattended.

The seven regional Bell companies, or "Baby Bells," employing 310,000 CWA members nationwide, negotiated on their own this year for the first time since they were formed in the breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in 1984.

CWA says it represents 40,000 NYNEX operators, installers, clerical and maintenance workers, although the company gives it credit for a membership of only 37,600. Most of the workers are in New York state, but about 1,000 work in New England. Elsewhere Monday, about 30,000 CWA members worked under contract extensions at Michigan Bell, Ohio Bell and Indiana Bell, subsidiaries of Chicago-based Ameritech.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators begin special talks

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL The Associated Press

MOSCOW — U.S. and Soviet delegations opened arms talks Monday with eight hours of discussions in a secluded mansion near Moscow.

The Kremlin's chief negotiator, Viktor Karpov, said just before the talks began that the Soviets "would do anything" for a new summit, and complained that the United States does not seem interested in arms control.

Moscow has said it wants some assurance of progress toward an arms control accord before it schedules another summit. The U.S. Embassy spokesman in Moscow, Jaroslav Vermer, later reported: "Mr. (Paul) Nitze (the chief U.S. delegate and President Reagan's arms control adviser) said that he and his team had eight hours of serious exploratory talks with Soviet experts today and will continue the talks tomorrow."

The special talks were scheduled to run two days and were getting low-key treatment from the Soviets. The English-language channel of Radio Moscow's world service reported the Sunday arrival of the U.S. delegation for the talks, which were being held in a government guest house south of Moscow. But no mention of the meetings was made in the Communist Party daily Pravda or the evening government paper Izvestia, the only national newspapers issued on Mondays.

The Kremlin, which sent no one to the airport to meet the U.S. officials, seemed to be trying to play down the significance of a meeting that comes during a flurry of preemptive diplomatic activity.

Karpov, chief of the Soviet delegation to the Geneva arms talks and head of the new Foreign Ministry arms control desk, told an American TV reporter he would not provide any details on the confidential meeting.

But he stressed the issue of nuclear testing, which has become a centerpiece of Soviet arms control policy and a focus of Kremlin pronouncements on the possibility of holding a second summit this year between Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Reagan.

"We would do anything for that (an agreement on a summit)," Karpov insisted. "So it depends on our partners."

Reagan and Gorbachev agreed to hold the meeting in the United States after their first summit in Geneva last November. But no date has been set.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze are to meet in the United States on Sept. 19-20 in what is being billed as an effort to set an agenda for a summit.

The meeting was originally set for May, but the Soviets canceled it after the U.S. bombing raid on Libya in April.

Karpov spoke briefly outside the Foreign Ministry to an ABC-TV crew, acting as a pool for American television networks, before opening the talks with the U.S. delegation.

Tax debate focuses on two issues

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The battle to overhaul the federal income tax has boiled down to two key issues, the chief Senate negotiator said Monday as he presented a new proposal to bargainers from the House.

Those issues: how to raise taxes on corporations and whether giving the Internal Revenue Service more money will lead to significantly greater tax collections.

"If we get by the IRS (issue) and business taxes, we're there," Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, told reporters. He declined to predict whether the 22 congressional negotiators will reach their goal of finishing the big tax bill by their self-imposed Aug. 15 deadline.

The new Senate proposal, whose broad outlines were announced last week, includes provisions preserving deductible individual retirement accounts for some middle-income workers, including some covered by a company pension; for 1989 only, skipping the yearly automatic tax cut designed to offset inflation, and restricting the interest deduction for refinancing a home mortgage.

The plan would allow homeowners a deduction for interest if a refinancing loan is used for home improvement, education or medical expenses. Other uses of the money — such as buying a boat — would be denied the deduction.

There is concern about the proposal in the House because it would permit homeowners an interest writeoff for education and medical loans while denying the same thing to renters. Another part of the Senate bill would deny deduction of any consumer interest.

Reagan: Berlin wall should fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says East Germany should tear down the Berlin Wall and that its continued existence "will remain a burden on our relations with those regimes responsible for it."

In an interview released Monday, Reagan called the wall "an affront to the human spirit."

Wednesday marks the 25th anniversary of the construction of the wall, which was hastily erected by soldiers from Communist East Germany to stem the flow of refugees to the West.

"I would like to see the wall come down today and I call upon those responsible to dismantle it," Reagan said. "No regime can attain genuine legitimacy in the eyes of its own people if those people are treated as prisoners by their own government."

President's aides take drug test

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drug-screening began in earnest at the White House on Monday, with Vice President George Bush and an undisclosed number of presidential aides taking part in the testing.

"It is, and should be, confidential," Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes told reporters, refusing to say how many aides volunteered or to speculate on the test results.

"The objective is, if anybody has a problem, they should straighten out the problem, give them help and put them back in the workplace drug-free. Confidentiality, I think, is an important part of that."

President Reagan took the test on Saturday, before traveling to Bethesda Naval Hospital for a urological examination, and Bush took the test on Monday morning, said the vice president's spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater.

GOP's may seek $100 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is considering seeking up to $100 million for a campaign to eradicate drug abuse in the nation's schools, officials said Monday.

The new U.S. Department of Education program would go beyond educating students about the perils of drugs and allow schools to spend the money on prevention, including hiring security guards.

The White House has not yet given final approval to the program, which would be the biggest spending initiative proposed by Education Secretary William J. Bennett and would require congressional action.

But the administration has come under increasing pressure from Republican members of Congress to come up with concrete steps to carry out President Reagan's promised war on drugs.

Helms says CIA spied on him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Monday he suspects the CIA spied on him and his staff during a trip to Chile last month and said he wants the FBI to find out the truth.

In a letter to Attorney General Edwin Meese III, Helms again denied published reports that he or staff members leaked classified information to the Chilean government, calling them "frivolous and false."

But he said the complaints appear to have been based on conversations he had in Chile.

"My concern is not that I would object to sharing the substance of these conversations, because nothing improper or unlawful took place," Helms said.

"Rather, my concern lies with the possibility that the CIA and other U.S. intelligence organizations may be unlawfully invading the privacy of senators, including me," Helms said.

Problems plague embassy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department's overseas construction program, the cornerstone of its proposed $4.4 billion embassy security plan, has been plagued by a multitude of problems, a House panel reported Monday.

And Rep. Jack Brooks, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, said the $2.9 billion construction segment of the security program may turn into an "unmitigated fiasco" unless improvements are made in the performance of the department's Office of Foreign Buildings.

"The committee's recent review documents that serious and longstanding systemic deficiencies in the Foreign Buildings Office operations over the years have resulted in substandard design, poor contracting procedures, shoddy workmanship, inadequate management, lengthy delays and major cost overruns on many construction projects," the panel said in a report.

Endorsed bill would combat child porn

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to prohibit advertising of child pornography or promotion of sexual acts with children was endorsed by the Reagan administration Monday as a way to combat sexual abuse of juveniles.

"We strongly support legislative initiatives which will make our criminal statutes in this area even more effective," Lawrence Lippe, chief of the general litigation section of the Justice Department's criminal division, told a Senate subcommittee.

"The department also endorses proscribing the mailing or interstate shipment of proposals to engage in sexual conduct with a minor," Lippe said.

He said the department supported, with several minor modifications, the bill proposed by Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., that would close a loophole in federal laws that prohibit the production and sale of child pornography.

Roth's proposed ban on promotion of child pornography and sexual solicitations would carry a 10-year term for the first offense and a 15-year sentence for subsequent convictions.

"It makes no sense" to prohibit child pornography and "then turn around and permit this illegal harmful material to be advertised," Roth said at the hearing conducted by the Senate Judiciary juvenile justice subcommittee.

"There is no question about the link between child pornography and sexual abuse of children," said Roth, citing a report released last week by the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, which he chairs.

The report detailed how "pedophiles make extensive use of child pornography to stimulate, to justify their ugly behavior, to entice and to blackmail children to become their victims."

The study found that the child pornography market was underground and operated in-

Study says foreigners receiving U.S. kidneys

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreigners receive nearly a fourth of the kidneys transplanted at District of Columbia hospitals while U.S. military dependents needing kidneys are turned away, a government study said Monday.

Calling for an Americans-first transplant policy, the report by the Health and Human Services Department said a "heavy... orientation to foreign nationals" exists in Washington hospitals that tends to jump foreigners ahead of U.S. citizens on waiting lists.

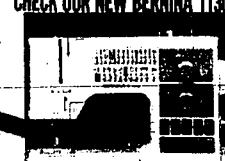

Moreover, the difference between what goes on in Washington hospitals and the rest of the country is only a matter of degree, said the HHS inspector general's report.

Reviews on organ transplant programs in 17 cities showed that foreign citizens generally tend to receive kidneys more quickly than U.S. citizens. In addition, the report said, more than 200 kidneys are shipped abroad each year although nearly 10,000 Americans are on waiting lists.

The favoritism may not be intended, the department said. Transplant surgeons say it is due in part to the fact that foreigners often are less "sensitized" to transplant tissue, so tissue matching need not be as precise.

Sen. Helms invites critical judgment

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., whose ignorance of Latin America has been exceeded only by his attempted influence on U.S. policy there, may at last have met his match: himself.

His strange appetite for Latin American leaders of the fascist stripe has come out in the open, and may be his undoing. Not for Helms the brave democratic leaders like Jose Sarney of Brazil and Raul Alfonsin of Argentina. Rather, the senator's tastes run to tuggish caudillos who rule with bullets, the lash and the electrode.

Having at the polls in El Salvador lost Roberto d'Aubuisson to democrat Jose Napoleon Duarte, Helms turned his eyes south, and there found the only two remaining Latin dictators worthy of the name — Augusto Pinochet of Chile and Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay. The only two true anti-communists in Latin America, cried Helms when he was recently in Chile trying to undercut the recent and rather mild U.S. attempts to push Chile again toward the democracy that it once and for so long enjoyed.

True anti-communism for Helms apparently includes putting the opponents of a dictatorship to agonizing death by fire; rather than objecting to the burning of two young people in Chile, Helms wanted the American ambassador recalled for angrily protesting it.

Helms loathes the State Department nearly as much as he hates what he calls "communists." He has tried to pack its ranks with people of his own proclivities, and has blocked the appointment of accomplished, decent officers.

For too long the Reagan administration, like the Senate, has temporized with this pornographer of foreign policy. Now he has perhaps at last gone too far. His office is suspected of leaking to the Chilean government intelligence information that the United States gathered on the official Chilean investigation into the burnings. Helms has been recklessly ready to question not only the judgment but also the loyalty of those with whom he disagrees. He invites a judgment against him according to his own standards.

Reagan outdoes Carter

The Times-News of Friday, Aug. 8, was a classic. On the left side of the front page was another story of our president's dwellings on the drug issue. Go Nancy go! On the right side of the front page was an article on the deficit setting yet another record. Stop Ronnie stop!

I have often sneered at the Idaho Legislature because of its continued inability to handle real problems facing Idaho. Instead they repeatedly develop what I call "political hysteria." They expand the emotional issues to make a "smoke screen." The result is they get the voting public to attack itself on drug and sex problems. Consequently, another year goes by and nothing real has been done. Well now, it is sad to say that this narrow-minded

Public needs education

Barry Sussman's piece in this morning's Times-News pinpoints the most serious dilemma facing the American public.

Based on recent surveys, Sussman concludes that "90 percent or more of the people are on an extended vacation from citizenship." He refers to the almost unbelievable widespread ignorance and apathy of the people with respect to current affairs of state. That the majority of us instantaneously recognize the name of J.R. Ewing while only a tiny majority can identify William Rehnquist is at once pathetic, tragic and embarrassing. Even if we all agree that the solution to this disgraceful problem lies in education, we are still not home free. The question of defining education persists. A great many people see education as simply the dissemination of data (factual or otherwise); as a result we have produced a society which is, in general, "educated," but which has never learned anything about analytical reasoning.

Unfortunately there are powerful elements at work attempting to ensure that the public remains fat, plague has reached Washington, D.C.

The items that made the paper a true classic continued onto the opinion section. The political cartoon by McNeely sums up this country's inability to comprehend what is going on in the rest of the world.

Then came the letters to the editor. Chisholm hits the "nail on the head," and L. Tippet expands the hypocrisy of political bias with his continued ignorance of what Ronald Reagan and his policies are doing to the world. Our present president's wrongs will long outlive Jimmy Carter's.

dumb and happy. A sudden influx of Socratic wisdom in the population at large would surely result in the demise of the majority of our current power brokers.

Despite the token protests of the Bldens, Kennedys and Metz-buons, Rehnquist will probably be confirmed. Future historians may very well regard Reagan's judicial appointments as even more catastrophic than his fiscal policies. Suppose — just suppose that such confirmations could be made dependent on a committee of a couple of hundred philosophy PhD's from our major universities. Under such conditions, it is doubtful if the likes of Rehnquist and Scalia, to say nothing of Manion, would even make the eligibility list.

We Americans are proud to live in "the land of the free." With a little luck, we may even find ourselves "free" to vote for a Reagan third term in two more years. Obviously there is a very thin line between "free" and "out of control." A whole lot of us apparently enjoy riding on a runaway train.

Careful action needed on N-waste site

I am and have been a supporter of the nuclear industry and, particularly, nuclear energy. However, I also believe that proper and adequate safeguards are required in the production of nuclear energy and in the transportation and disposal of spent nuclear fuel. In this regard, Idahoans should be alerted to a controversy between myself and Gov. Evans which could have serious consequences for the people of Idaho.

On July 31, I filed documents with the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco, asking for judicial review of the Department of Energy's decisions leading up to the selection of Hanford Nuclear Reservation as one of the three candidates for location of the final repository for commercially produced, high-level nuclear waste. We questioned the sufficiency of the environmental assessment for the Hanford site, the suitability of the site, the propriety of DOE's recommendation of the site, and the propriety of DOE postponing a second round of selections.

Our petition requested that all site selection and characterization for the first-round sites be stayed until such time as the court could review and resolve the questions raised about Hanford's selection. Our request was compatible with the petitions filed by Oregon and Washington with the 9th Circuit.

Because of the political dynamics of the situation, it is absolutely critical that site characterization on first-round candidate sites be placed on hold, pending the determination of the propriety of DOE's selection of Hanford. If the procedure utilized for the selection of Hanford was not adequate, as it appears it was not, and if Hanford is not one of the best sites to study for characterization, which it appears that it may not be, it would be extremely unfortunate to proceed ahead with expensive and time-consuming site characterization, because the more money and effort spent on Hanford, the more likely it is that Hanford will be eventually chosen as the first or second final repository for commercial waste. This is becoming clear through the actions of the other states, both through their lected state officials and through their congressional delegations.

All states which were not selected and which would not be severely impacted by the transportation or storage of high-level waste appear to be mobilizing against those other less states which would be severely impacted and it appears that the three states with candidate sites and their immediate neighbors are going to be outmuscled in Congress, where the final decision will be made. A likely scenario is that Yucca Mountains will be the first repository and Hanford the second.

Everyone is interested in seeing that the selection of the first final repository proceeds in an expeditious manner, but all due caution must also be exercised. There will be no leverage to require second-round selections or to ensure that first-round selections are appropriate and legally sufficient, unless site characterization for first-round selections is placed on hold.

Site characterization is a road of no return. The most expeditious manner to secure a safe and adequate first repository is to do it right the first time.

Although Gov. Evans agreed with my strategy in early July, when he sponsored a resolution before the Western Governors' Association to place first-round site characterization on hold, pending determination of the question of selecting second-round sites, he has now changed position and wishes to move forward with site characterization at Hanford and the other two candidate sites. This is a losing strategy which makes it more likely than ever that Hanford will be a high-level nuclear waste repository.

Again, the danger is that this will be done without adequate consideration of transportation safety and security and of the potential effects of a storage or transportation accident on the Columbia River and its fish resources. Idaho would be more affected by transportation of high-level waste to Hanford than any other state. DOE estimates indicate that there will be up to 94,203 shipments over the lifetime of the repository if the material travels by truck or 14,812 shipments if it travels by rail. Since approximately 85 percent of the waste is generated in the East, the lion's share of all waste to be stored at Hanford would travel through Idaho. I am not convinced that adequate study has been given to the potential effects of such transportation on the state of Idaho and it appears to me that a number of questions must be answered before we can be satisfied as to proper safety and security for such shipments.

It should be stressed that if Hanford is shown by an appropriate review of the evidence and of the procedures utilized in its selection by the Department of Energy to be an appropriate and safe storage site, so be it. There is no doubt but what spent nuclear fuel and other high-level nuclear waste can be safely stored, provided that an appropriate storage site is selected. Until we know that Hanford is such a site, I think we must insist that work on the Hanford site come to a halt and that appropriate answers be provided.

The people of this state must make their wishes known with regard to the nuclear waste issue, particularly as it affects the Hanford site and Idaho. I believe the course of action which I have chosen properly protects the interests of our state without jeopardizing the expeditious selection of a nuclear waste repository.

Again, doing the job right the first time is the quickest and safest way to do it. The governor's course of action will allow work to move forward with Hanford, regardless of the propriety of Hanford's selection, and make it increasingly possible that Hanford will be chosen as a final repository, regardless of the viability and safety of the site.

Jim Jones is attorney general for the state of Idaho.

Unions misunderstood

In answer to Jennie D. Ross, I don't know where you got your information about unions. But whoever told you, what you wrote in the paper is all wrong.

I belonged to the carpenters union for 42 years, and am now retired. Never once was I forced to donate any money to a campaign fund, or told who to vote for.

Sure the union bosses are paid from your dues. Who else would pay them? Who pays the president of the United States, the senators and the congressmen their salary? We do, with our taxes, and also their extraordinary pensions, their trips all over the world, and for the expensive parties they have.

As a union member after so many years, you can retire at a good monthly income, plus medical care the rest of your life. My pension a month in the four-year bracket with Social Security.

If you worked for a non-union contractor for 20 years and retired, you wouldn't get a pension or medical care. You can't live on Social Security alone and while you were working for him you would be lucky if you got any medical unless you paid for it.

Who's kidding who?

Can you believe our legal system? With all the murders accomplished by Mr. Creech, they are still spending taxpayers' dollars to keep him alive.

I really believe we taxpayers are stupid to allow such things to go on. I thought people were put in jail to be punished, but the taxpayers have to furnish TVs, recreation, apartments, etc. for our prisoners. I wonder who's kidding who.

The rich are getting richer and loving every bit of it, while the poor keep getting poorer. We do not have a middle-class anymore. Are we going to be like the people long ago, the kings with their followers and the starved, poor peasants and beggars? Are we so brainwashed, we think it can't happen to us?

Our Legislature has made it a crime if you don't carry liability insurance. Didn't think that much about it till I experienced the results. This particular insurance company tells you what repair shop you can go to, then they tell the repair shop what they will pay to fix the vehicle, regardless of whether it allows enough money to fix it right. You carry insurance that pays $25,000 to $50,000 liability for each accident and are lucky if you can get over a $1,500 repair job. What a sneaky way to do business. We'll gladly turnish the name of the insurance company to anyone who is interested.

Aren't all the public lands and forest fires interesting? Maybe they will destroy some of the encroachments on our public lands so the wildlife can still find a bite to eat.

Officers deserve thanks

Congratulations to our State Police officers on Highway 93 to Jackpot, Nev., for a job well done. We four girls took the day off and headed for Jackpot for a little R and R.

After having spent a few hours of enjoyment and making our donations to the casinos, we leisurely headed for home. Although traffic was heavy, most appeared to be driving the speed limit.

In order to make the trip more interesting, there always has to be fast-driving, suicidal maniacs on the road. The first car, silver color, late model, approached and passed me before I knew he was there, driving in the passing lane continually until he spilled the car ahead of me. In a split second, he jerked his car back into traffic to miss a head-on with an oncoming motorcycle.

Congratulations fellows, you got two out of three that day and we appreciate it. Too many of our friends have been statistics on that road.

Georgia will pick senator; Colorado to choose governor

By MIKE SILVERMAN
The Associated Press

A Senate bid by former Carter White House aide Hamilton Jordan and a congressional battle between two longtime civil rights allies top the Georgia primary ballot Tuesday. In Colorado, voters begin choosing a successor to their outspoken governor, Richard Lamm.

Jordan, who has never held elected office and recently overcame a bout with cancer, is one of four Democrats in a primary for the nomination for the seat held by Republican Sen. Mack Mattingly. Polls have shown the leader in the race is Rep. Wyche Fowler, but if no candidate gets a majority, the top two finishers will meet in a Sept. 2 runoff. Mattingly has three minor challengers and is expected to win the nomination for a second term easily. With Fowler leaving the House, seven Democrats entered the race for his Fifth District seat, from a mostly black district in the Atlanta area. Leading contenders are state Sen. Julian Bond and City Councilman John Lewis, both of whom have been associated with the struggle for black equality since the early 1960s. Georgia Democrats also have a primary for governor, but popular incumbent Joe Frank Harris is considered a shoe-in to win the nomination to a second term. In November, Harris will face Guy E. Davis Jr., a 44-year-old Atlanta lawyer, who is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

The Georgia primary also marks the first bid for political office by a descendant of the late Martin Luther King Jr. His eldest son, Martin Luther King III, is seeking a seat on the Fulton County Commission in the community where his father founded the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. He is one of two Democrats challenging veteran white political Milton Farris for nomination to the at-large seat on the commission. "I want to enhance what my father did, and I can do that through politics," said King, 28. "I want to continue what he was unable to accomplish, especially in his poor people's campaign, where he tried to reduce the number of persons in our society who are unemployed and underemployed." And Ralph David Abernathy III, son of King's right-hand man, is running for state Legislature, seeking to capture the Democratic nomination from John Greer, the 75-year-old incumbent. In Colorado, state Treasurer Ray Romer is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor, but three Republicans are fighting it out: businessman Steve Schuck and state legislators Bob Kirscht and Ted Strickland. Lamm, a Democrat whose three terms make him the longest-serving governor in state history, has become nationally controversial during his last term with such statements as his suggestion that people who are terminally ill have a "duty to die and get out of the way." Colorado's Democratic Sen. Gary Hart also is giving up his post this year, but both parties avoided a primary by settling on candidates during conventions. Democratic Rep. Tim Wirth will face Republican Rep. Ken Kramer for the job in November.

Pentagon believes papers are safe, but still missing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon took Congress on Monday it does not believe any secret documents missing from an aircraft plane have fallen into Soviet hands, but that it still can't account for the 1,400 papers. The documents from a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. plant in California reportedly relate to the "stealth" fighter plane, a project supposedly so secret the Pentagon does not acknowledge its existence. "We have no information to suggest that the information has been compromised in the sense of being lost to someone on the outside," Donald Hicks, undersecretary of defense, told a House investigating committee. Hicks' testimony came as part of a continuing probe by the Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee. The investigation has focused on what Hicks and Lockheed officials have admitted was slack security at the company's famed "skunk" works in Burbank, Calif. That is the plant that developed the U-2 and SR-71 spy planes. The plant is the site of Lockheed's effort to develop a "stealth" fighter known as the F-19, a plane that would use exotic materials and shapes so the plane could evade enemy radars, according to sources speaking on condition of anonymity. The Pentagon has never officially acknowledged the existence of the "stealth" fighter, although it does admit it is building a "stealth" bomber. While the Pentagon won't talk about the plane, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the panel, said some of the documents involved details of "the structure and some of the sensitive technology of the Stealth fighter." Dingell's comment came as he talked about how investigators had discovered that some of the documents were taken outside the plant by a Lockheed employee who was trying to impress his girlfriend. At a subcommittee hearing three weeks ago, Lockheed officials admitted their security procedures were sloppy, but said they had no information that the papers had been turned over to any other countries. Hicks had been scheduled to testify at the July 24 hearing, but did not appear. On Monday, he buttressed the assertion by Lockheed officials that the documents have not been lost to an enemy, saying "there is no sign that this thing has gotten out." At the same time, Hicks admitted that he cannot rule out that possibility.

Some stamps discontinued

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postage due stamps are being discontinued, the U.S. Postal Service said Monday. In use since 1979 to show how much money was owed when a mailer had not prepaid the full amount of postage, the red stamps with black numbers will be replaced by postage meter labels and regular postage stamps. The last postage due stamps were designed in 1959 with various values from 1/2-cent to 55.

They were used only for mail delivered by post office window clerks. Postage due mail delivered by letter carrier bears only a rubber stamp noting how much money must be paid. Some stamp collectors proudly display full cancelled sheets of the 55 variety — $50 worth — usually purchased from a company which receives a great deal of business reply mail. Don McDowell, general manager of the agency's stamps division said it has not been decided whether postage due stamps in inventory will be destroyed or just be used up over the next few years.

President may nominate Clark

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan plans to nominate Joan Clark to be an alternate U.S. representative at the 41st session of the United Nations General Assembly, the White House said Monday. Mrs. Clark, a native of Czechoslovakia, is president of Clark Co., a family corporation based in Paso Robles, Calif. A White House statement said Mrs. Clark is "an educator by profession," and that she taught in European schools after having completed English language studies at Oxford University in England.

Cronkite praises morning show's move from news division

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Cronkite, making a rare appearance on rival ABC, said Monday that taking the "CBS Morning News" away from the network's news division would give the show "elbow room" to compete with its rivals.

CBS announced last month that the perennial three-rated program, with Forrest Sawyer and Maria Shriver as co-hosts, would be replaced with a revamped show under a new apartment outside the news division.

"They think it gives them a little more freedom taking it out of news where I'm very proud to say CBS has very strong structures," the former ABC's "Good Morning America" anchor said on Monday.

Cronkite, speaking from his sailboat in Portland, Maine, also said network broadcasts should concentrate on communicating important news. "I felt we weren't perhaps being serious enough about the news," he said.

Queen Elizabeth II, 60, makes climb with ease

KILCHOAN, Scotland (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II, who underwent what was described as a routine heart checkup last week, climbed 152 steps to the top of Britain's most westerly lighthouse Monday.

The 60-year-old queen became the first British monarch to climb the 114-foot Ardmurchan Lighthouse, overlooking the Irish Sea on the southern coast of Scotland. She is vacationing the rest of this week at Balmoral Castle.

Lighthouse-keeper Jim Hardie said the queen managed the climb with ease, and was not out of breath when she reached the top.

Buckingham Palace said the queen underwent a routine examination last Tuesday at London's National Heart Hospital. The palace has not disclosed details of the checkup, but said the queen is in good health.

Dr. David Matthews, a specialist with the British Heart Federation, said the queen must be very fit to climb the 152 steps with apparent ease.

Historic gold and silver lights up kids' faces

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Treasure hunter Melvin A. Fisher says he enjoys the looks on kids' faces when they see the gold bars, silver plates, pieces of eight and antique weapons in his exhibit at the Indianapolis Children's Museum.

"They can come in really bored about history but go out really turned on about the way people lived and the tools they used," said Fisher, 65. Monday was "Mel Fisher Day" at the museum, which has the only exhibit of the treasure Fisher retrieved from the Atlantic off the Florida coast from two sunken Spanish ships, despite protracted legal wrangles with government.

"I'll never retire and just do nothing, but rather I'll probably be a consultant and oversee expeditions," he said.

Coonskin celebration planned for birthday

LIMESTONE, Tenn. (AP) — Thousands of Davy Crockett fans and history buffs will flock to his birthplace for a festival of coonskins, blacksmiths and mountain music honoring the frontiersman's 200th birthday.

The celebration this weekend also will honor the 150th anniversary of Crockett's death.

Defending the Alamo, said Joe Cummings of the state Department of Conservation. "We're trying to show the vitality of the world Crockett lived in," he said.

Crockett, a congressman, writer and adventurer, was killed after helping 187 men defend the Alamo and Texas' independence against Mexican troops.

Many people in the sea of coonskins will be here for a Crockett family reunion coinciding with the festival, Cummings said. Descendants from Tennessee, Texas, Illinois and Indiana "plus many others who just think they may be related" are expected, he said.

The three-day celebration, which begins Friday, will include a folk festival, a play and black-powder musket shooting. There also will be demonstrations of woodcarving, blacksmithing and food preparation.

In addition, Crockett scholars have been invited to describe him at an East Tennessee State University symposium in nearby Johnson City.

Among those speaking will be Michael Lefaro, whose recently published book, "Davy Crockett: The Man, The Legend, The Legacy," seeks to separate fact from fancy.

Guard held in rape case

BELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — A Baltimore city firefighter, moonlighting as a security guard at a retirement home, was ordered held without bail Monday on charges of kidnapping, raping and using a stun gun on a 17-year-old employee of the home, police said.

Robert Boyer, 31, allegedly temporarily incapacitated the girl with an electric stun gun which delivers a 50,000-volt shock, Howard County police said.

The girl told police that a man shot her with the stun gun Friday night, bound and gagged her and took her to his apartment where he drugged and raped her. The victim said she escaped from the apartment Saturday morning and went to a nearby business, where employees called police, authorities said.

Boyer was arrested at his home a short time later.

Catholics oppose aid to Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic leaders remain strongly opposed to military aid to Nicaraguan rebels, despite recent Nicaraguan government actions against the church, a top U.S. church official says.

The new statement was released Monday as the Senate prepared to take up a $100 million aid bill, including $70 million in military aid, already passed by the House.

Recent statements by the U.S. Catholic Conference, the public policy arm of the American bishops' national organization, have strongly criticized such Nicaraguan government actions as the expulsion of one of that nation's bishops and the refusal to re-admit a church official who had taken a trip abroad.

The statements have made little or no mention of the U.S. church's previously stated opposition to government military aid to the rebels, known as Contras, who are trying to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

However, Monsignor Daniel F. Hoye, general secretary of the Catholic Conference, made it clear in a new letter to members of the Senate that the opposition holds firm.

Hoye said, "Our opposition to such aid has been unvarying since the question first arose."

"It is not based on our negative assessment of the Contras' human rights record, although all are agreed that this continues to be a serious problem. Still less is it based on any positive assessment of the human rights performance of the Nicaraguan government."

Quite the contrary, the USCC has consistently denounced specific violations of human rights in Nicaragua and we have vigorously protested government infringement of the rights of the church," he said.

He quoted a recent Nicaraguan bishop's statement that said any form of aid, if it is the cause of destruction, pain and death in their country, "is to be condemned."

Hearings planned on transfer of hospital

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As promised, the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners will hold three days of hearings in early September to allow the public to sound off on the possible transfer of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center to a non-profit corporation.

"We don't want this to be a debate," said Commissioner Judy Felton on Monday. "We just want to get the thoughts of the public on the issue."

The commissioners are considering transferring the hospital to a locally organized corporation to allow it to compete directly in the health-care market.

An advisory group appointed by the commissioners recommended last week that the ownership of MVRMC be transferred. Their 49-page report was presented to the commissioners late Friday afternoon. Felton said she had no comment on the report until she finishes reading and studying it.

The commissioners also want to give the public a chance to read the report. That is why Felton said the commissioners are waiting until September to conduct public hearings.

Copies were being made Monday, she said. The report will be given to each public library in the county — Kimberly, Hansen, Buhl and Twin Falls. Copies will also be available at the superintendent's office of each Twin Falls County school district. And she said copies will be available to be checked out at the Twin Falls County Courthouse.

The commissioners will hold the first public hearing on Sept. 8 at Hansen, in the school cafeteria. On Sept. 9 they will move the hearing to Buhl, at Buhl's Middle School auditorium, and on Sept. 10 they will meet at the College of Southern Idaho.

The hearings will run from 7 to 9 p.m. each day.

Felton said all three county commissioners will be present at each public hearing, and 5th District Court Judge Daniel Huributt will act as moderator.

A panel, possibly with some members from the Hospital Study Group, may be present to answer questions, Felton said they had not yet picked the panel.

She said the commissioners had not set a timetable on when a decision will be made.

"The time schedule depends on the public hearings," she said. "There may be questions not researched by the advisory group that need to be answered."

In May the commissioners said they wanted to make a decision on whether to transfer MVRMC by Aug. 1. But they later abandoned that date because the advisory group's work took longer than expected.

News organizations fight closed hearing

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

JEROME — A defense request to close an Aug. 26 preliminary hearing for murder suspect Mary Susanne Workman has been challenged by The Times-News, KMYT-television and the North Side News.

The news organizations will use — possibly for one of the first times in the state — a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling which they contend has struck down the Idaho law on preliminary hearing closures.

Jerome County Public Defender Randy Stoker will ask Magistrate Judge John Varin of Fairfield on Wednesday to close the Workman preliminary hearing to the public because of what he sees as the potential of "unfit" pretrial publicity by news media coverage. Stoker also wants the hearing closed to all other witnesses, except those testifying.

In the alternative, Stoker wants the court to grant a change of venue out of Southern Idaho. He filed his requests with court last week.

Workman, 40, was returned to Jerome from Sacramento, Calif., July 19 on a first-degree murder warrant in connection with the shooting death of her stepfather, John Slater, on Oct. 10, 1985. She also is charged with using a firearm in commission of a felony.

The bodies of Slater, 81, and Workman's mother, Pauline Slater, were found in their mobile home. Authorities first believed that Slater shot his bed-ridden wife and then himself. But further investigation showed that John Slater had been shot in the back of the head and the gun pushed down into a sofa where he sat.

Workman has not been charged with her mother's death.

Stoker said it was in the best interest of his client to have the hearing closed. "It's an irreparable type of thing," he said. "(But) I could care less about the public's right to know in this case."

The judge will have to weigh the interests of Workman with those of the public, Stoker said.

Stoker noted that the murder trial of Jamie Carbonneau, moved to Boise because of pretrial publicity, cost the county thousands of dollars. At the preliminary hearing the court will determine whether there is enough evidence to bind Workman over to District Court for further proceedings.

The three news organizations opposing Stoker's closure request say public access to the courts is primary. Their main weapon in attempting to keep the preliminary hearing open will be a June 30 U.S. Supreme Court ruling on a Riverside, Calif., case, in which a newspaper sought access to a preliminary hearing of a murder suspect.

Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Webb has been asked by the three news organizations to prepare a challenge, Times-News City Editor Mike Sullivan said.

Webb said he will file a motion to resist the closure on the grounds that the Idaho rule on preliminary closures is unconstitutional, based on the Supreme Court decision. The Supreme Court opinion says that preliminary hearings can't be closed unless a "very strong showing" is made that the defendant will be pre-judicially. See MOTION on Page B2

Port of Hope accuses state of wrongly awarding funds

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Port of Hope is seeking an injunction against the state Department of Health and Welfare, charging that it acted "unlawfully and unconstitutionally" in awarding a state contract for a substance-abuse treatment program.

The motion also charges a conflict of interest against two committee members who reviewed bids from Port of Hope and Walker ACT Center in April.

Port of Hope filed the motion late Friday in 5th District Court, seeking both an injunction and a restraining order to prevent the DHW from awarding the contract to Walker ACT, a Gooding-based treatment program.

The motion for an injunction was the latest salvo fired in a six-week battle for funding to treat alcoholics and drug addicts. The motion also now pits Port of Hope against the agency that originally went to bat for them in the first place.

Port of Hope lost a state contract worth nearly $140,000 in July for its in-patient substance abuse program, after a hearing officer and the state Department of Administration ruled that the DHW acted improperly when it originally awarded 75 percent of the contract to Port of Hope.

The other 25 percent of the money was scheduled to go to Walker ACT Center. Both Walker ACT and Port of Hope appealed the state's decision, but then Port of Hope withdrew its appeal.

Now Port of Hope is charging that the process to award the contracts was improper.

Specifically, Port of Hope is challenging a point system established by DHW to evaluate the center's success rate in treating patients. Port of Hope received a negative score because its patient success rate was 42 percent, 7 points below the state average.

In affidavits filed with the court, three of the AITA Committee's six members challenged the validity of that survey.

Port of Hope also charged that two of the AITA Committee members, Cheryl Junntunen and Willard Abbott, had a conflict of interest.

Junntunen is director of physical nursing for the South Central District Health Department, which conducts the outcome patient surveys. Abbott is regional director of the DHW.

Port of Hope charged that Junntunen had a "vested interest" in protecting the system because her employer did the surveys.

"But when contacted by phone on Monday, Junntunen said the charge was ludicrous.

"A conflict of interest implies you have something to gain financially when awarding a contract from one facility to another, and I don't," said Junntunen.

"I don't even do those patient surveys."

Abbott also said he was unclear about why he would be charged with having a conflict of interest.

In an odd twist, Abbott is one of the three committee members challenging the rating system by DHW, his employer.

"I don't feel strongly either way about who should get the bid," he said on Monday. "But I do hope that out of all this, DHW gets some guidance on how to do those bids."

Abbott also called the current battle for funding a "healthy conflict."

"It's the first time there have been so many competitive bids," he said. "I don't think the system was thoroughly tested in the past."

Richardson is keeping quiet now, but has big plans for September

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

JEROME — There's some cagey campaigning going on in Mel Richardson's camp.

Election Day — and a tough battle against U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho — are a short 90 days ahead.

Nevertheless, Richardson still is content to shake hands and smile his way across Idaho's 2nd District at county fairs and events such as Jerome's Gem Dandy Days on Monday.

He's not wanting voting records in Stallings' face or touting his own views, Richardson admits.

Instead, Mel Richardson is plying his own strategy, plying his own game.

"We have a timetable that we're trying to accomplish," the Idaho Falls broadcaster-turned-politician says confidently.

"I think people are tired of long elections," he says. "So, we're kind of staying low until Labor Day."

Since emerging as the Republican challenger in the May primary election, Richardson has been building a name, rather than spouting issues.

"Now is the time you get into those small communities," he says. "Some days we're flying and hitting five or six places a day; some days we're driving and hitting three or four a day."

He'll answer questions from constituents and sample their opinions, but Richardson is saving the heavy politicking for next month. "In September is when we are going to start talking issues," he says. Issues, not personalities, he reinforces.

There'll be voting charts — bogs. Stallings did vote on selected issues and how Richardson would have voted.

There'll be critiques of Stallings' views and explanations of his own, Richardson says.

Local firefighters called to Boise

TWIN FALLS — Firefighters have been called from Idaho Falls, Shoshone, Bayley, and Arvada to help fight the range fires plaguing the Bureau of Land Management's Boise District.

On Monday evening, one of the district's worst fires is burning 50,000 acres of BLM land south of Hammett. The fire started Sunday when a lightning storm passed across southern Idaho about 10 p.m.

Labeled the Blue Creek Fire, the flames are believed to have been the result of one of the 402 lightning bolts that struck the area, according to public affairs officer Jack Sepe of the Boise BLM.

The fire is one of three in that area, he said. "What started as 6,000 acres in flames Monday morning had grown to 50,000 acres early Monday evening. "With a fire this big, it's hard to say when we can have it out," he said.

Forty firefighters are using bumper trucks and bulldozers to control the fire. Fire retardant is planned for use today.

The Blue Creek blaze was slow in being controlled due to higher priority fires in the Boise foothills and around the area of Emmett that were burning homes and other structures, Sepe said.

The same storm that caused the fire was also considered responsible for considerable damage in the town of Glenns Ferry. Trees were uprooted, a trailerhouse was washed, and the power was out from around 8 to 9 p.m.

Tracy Thompson, a dispatcher with the BLM's Bryce District, said Bryce fire crews were busy Monday with a fire northeast of Mindoko.

The fire burned 160 acres of BLM land before it was declared out at 4 p.m. Ten firefighters, two heavy engines, and two medium engines were needed to extinguish the blaze.

The fire was discovered about 10:30 p.m. Sunday and was under control by 8:30 a.m. Monday. The cause of the fire is not certain, Thompson said.

Mason sues Kimberly and Twin Falls; charges harassment

The Associated Press

BOISE — A former Kimberly police officer who says he was forced to resign after an investigation into alleged misconduct in the department has filed a multi-million lawsuit accusing harassment.

The suit was filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Boise by Dave Mason, who left the Kimberly Police Department in September.

Named as defendants in the suit are the city of Kimberly; Kimberly City Council members Jack Wright, Ted Wasko, Avis Allen and Sterling Crothers; Police Chief

James Campbell, the city of Twin Falls; Twin Falls Public Safety Director Timothy Qualls; Twin Falls detective Gary Corrier; the College of Southern Idaho; and CSI faculty member Wesley Dobbs.

Mason was taking courses at College of Southern Idaho to receive his police certification. As a result of the investigation, his status as a student in the program was terminated, his attorney Keith Roark, of Hatley, said.

Roark said Mason voluntarily resigned when it became evident he no longer could continue his career because of the investigation.

Roark said the investigation into police misconduct was not started because of any alleged wrongdoing by his client, and Mason made no allegations that prompted the investigation.

The suit seeks from each defendant $2 million for general damages and $2 million for punitive damages.

The defendants, acting in concert, "constituted a campaign of harassment, invasion of privacy and denial of due process" against the plaintiff, according to the lawsuit.

The lawsuit said the defendants' actions caused loss of employment and privacy, defamed character, injury to Mason's reputation, suffering, degradation, humiliation and embarrassment.

Two separate investigations were done into alleged misconduct by Kimberly police officers — one by defendant Corrier of the Twin Falls Police Department, and another by the state Attorney General's Office.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said the 1985 investigations did not warrant criminal charges. She said the statute of limitations on seven of nine allegations, some dating back to 1977, had expired.

City Councilman Jack Wright led the council in voting to keep the reports private, contending that they contained numerous allegations that could prompt lawsuits.

He also said they gave conflicting accounts.

The council initially voted to suppress the reports, but later released them to The Times-News.

No criminal or civil action was taken against anyone connected with the investigation until Mason's suit was filed.

Lewiston youth enters guilty plea

LEWISTON (AP) — A former Lewiston High School sophomore accused in the suffocation death of a Lewiston woman pleaded guilty to first-degree murder Monday just as defense attorneys were to present testimony at his trial.

Gary Joe Hawkins, who turned 18 on Friday, admitted suffocating Anna Christensen, 72, at her home Jan. 11.

He'd also been accused of first-degree burglary and grand theft for taking $200 from Mrs. Christensen's home, and pleaded guilty to those charges.

Prior to admitting guilt, Hawkins had entered an innocent plea before 2nd District Judge John H. Bengtson.

Nez Perce County Prosecutor

Slyve Tobiasson said prosecutors indicated to Hawkins' attorney, Lee Sims, that they would not seek consecutive sentences for Hawkins if he pleaded guilty to the charges.

If Hawkins is provided concurrent sentences, his time in prison will be shorter than if he'd been provided consecutive sentences.

Prior to his guilty pleas, Hawkins was asked by Bengtson if he was positive that he wanted to enter the pleas. Hawkins assured Bengtson that he was.

A sentencing hearing was set for Sept. 22 for Hawkins, who remains in the Nez Perce County Jail.

Collision injures Kentucky cyclist

FILER — A motorcyclist suffered a broken nose and other minor injuries Monday morning in a collision with an auto on U.S. 30, Idaho State Police said.

Thomas C. Cohoon, 49, of Kentucky, was coming north on U.S. 30 and halted for him to pass, officers said. Cohoon, while waiting, was hit by a car coming from behind him, driven by Norrell B. Eliason, 53, of Hazelton.

The driver apparently failed to see Cohoon on the motorcycle, officials said. A citation was issued, but no charges were pressed.

Man faces charges in racial incident

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A white man accused of verbally and physically attacking a black man here faces a felony charge of malicious harassment, according to police.

Larry Floyd Phillips, 43, Sparanaw, Wash., also is charged with disturbing the peace, said Coeur d'Alene Police Capt. Don Ihly. Phillips was transferred from the Kootenai County jail to the Shoshone County Jail Monday night, where he is being held on $10,000 bond.

Police said the incident occurred at about 10 a.m. Saturday when Phillips allegedly attacked Larry Smith, 38, Hayden Lake, in a department store.

"Apparently Mr. Phillips attacked Mr. Smith strictly because of his race," Ihly said.

Woman wins big

JACKPOT — Evangeline Kemmille of De Smet, Idaho, won $15,000 on a 25-cent progressive slot machine Sunday night at Cactus Pete's Casino here.

According to Carl Hayden of the casino, personal information on the woman was not available.

Campaign

There will be press releases and speeches.

The congressional candidate unveiled some of his views in the spring Republican primary election race and at other appearances.

He calls himself a "Reagan Republican," loyal to the cause but "not a rubber stamp." He differs with Reagan on the size of cuts in federal spending to control the deficit and on exemptions for military projects from the cuts.

Richardson would send more money to anti-nuclear groups, he said. He would aid development of ethanol for gasohol.

The conviction of former representative George Hansen of Idaho for campaign disclosure violations will not damage his run for the House, he says, instead, Richardson is expecting to pick up votes from defectors who helped Stallings in office.

"I think that a lot of people that left the Republican party then will come back this time," he says.

—Of course, Stallings will be trying to convince those voters they pulled the right lever in the 1984 election, Richardson acknowledges.

But this time he is not making his political moves before the time is right. Richardson's strategy is simple: We may see him before, but we'll hear from him next in September.

Dirty pile of socks to be minor worry for military bride

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Not Sure in Louisiana," whose fiance — a U.S. serviceman stationed in England — shipped her 203 pairs of dirty socks to laundress.

Don't complain, Honey. At least you know what he spent his money on. Also, he'll never have to buy another pair of socks as long as he lives.

I've been married to a Navy man for a long time, so let me give you a little advice. Any woman who is married to a career military man will be expected to do her share of dirty work, from a ton of laundry a week to patching a leaky sewer on a trailer home. (Far is best, but it's murder to get off your hands and clothes.)

So, you must learn how to: fix a flat tire with a broken jack; cook hamburger 1,000 different ways; move your kids, your home and your life halfway around the world without his help; travel cross-country with three kids, a St. Bernard and a cat in a broken-down station wagon because you want to be there when he comes off a seven-month cruise; be Mommy, Daddy, chauffeur, cook, nurse, tutor and referee; get a part-time job to make ends meet; accept the fact that there's a right way, a wrong way and the military way; be the dominant, intellectual, loving and cheerful if it kills you; and adjust to so many different moves you sometimes forget where you're living — without becoming an alcoholic, a drug abuser or a mental case.

You'll be too busy loving him to complain about his stupid socks.

—NAVY WIFE, NEARLY RETIRED

DEAR ABBY: Are you ready for something trivial? A co-worker took me to task for falling to say, "God bless you," every time she sneezed.

I told her I thought it was silly. Why should sneezes be "blessed"? No other bodily noises evoke a blessing. Not coughing, belching, hiccuping, etc.

This friend makes a regular conversation out of a sneeze:

"Ah, choo!"
 "Bless you."
 "Thank you!"
 "You're welcome."

As far as I'm concerned, the sneezer should say, "Excuse me for spreading germs." Why did sneezes come to be blessed in the first place?

—NO BLESSER

DEAR NO BLESSER: In the Middle Ages, legend had it that when a person sneezed, the soul temporarily left the body. However, saying, "God bless you" prevented its being snatched away by the devil. (It may not help, but, like chicken soup, it can't hurt.)

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the woman who was glad she had married a handicapped man in a wheelchair. I would like to tell my story.

Sixteen years ago, over strong protests from family and friends, I married a man whose doctors told him he had about two years to live. He was an overseas missionary who had been sent home to die. We met in a nursing home where I was a volunteer.

Light affects vote

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Insufficient lighting in voting booths can cause people, especially older adults, to miscast votes, says the American Optometric Association, headquartered here. In one statewide election, more than 5,000 voters pulled a lever across from a blank, rather than opposite a candidate's name, the association reports.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Abby, I loved and respected this man, and would have been content with just two years together. However, I suspected that poor nutrition played a major role in his illness, so I eliminated sugar, salt, junk food, white flour and food additives from his diet. (Fortunately he didn't drink or smoke.)

The combination of our strong faith in God, his determination to get well and a proper diet restored his health. He returned to full-time ministry, earning two doctorates along the way!

The man I married could barely move his 140-pound, 6-foot 2-inch frame from wheelchair to crutches. Today he stands tall and straight, with no gray hair, leading a normal, active life at age 59. I couldn't ask for a better husband.

My advice to anyone considering marriage to a physically handicapped person is this: If the handicap is your only concern — go for it! Strong faith and good health habits can work miracles.

Israeli jets bomb Palestinian camps

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hours after an ambush wounded him and his 10 bodyguards Monday, the man who plotted a bloody revolt within Lebanon's main Christian militia vowed from his hospital bed to return to the fray.

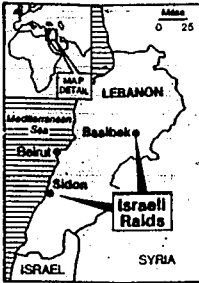

In eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, Israeli war jets raided two camps used by Palestinian guerrillas. It was Israel's second air raid in Lebanon in two days and its seventh this year.

A Palestinian guerrilla group led by Col. Saïd Mousa, also known as Abu Mousa, acknowledged in Damascus, Syria, that some of its men were killed Monday in the air strikes near Baalbek.

Both Lebanese police in Beirut and the Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said two camps were bombed Monday, but a spokesman for the Abu Mousa faction said only one base — a depot and logistics center — was hit.

The Syrian-backed group broke from Yasser Arafat's mainstream Fatah movement in 1983.

In Beirut, Lebanese politicians worked into the night to resolve the latest power struggle for control of the Christian heartland.

Police said at least nine combatants were killed and 35 wounded in daylight street battles Sunday in Christian east Beirut between supporters of Samir Geagea, the anti-Syrian commander of the Lebanese Forces militia, and Fuad Abu Nader, a former commander of the militia.

Sabotage denied in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A spokesman for Union Carbide employees in Bhopal on Monday disputed the company's claim that a disgruntled worker caused the 1984 gas leak that killed more than 2,000 people, the United News of India reported.

Madanlal Ranji, president of the Carbide Employees Union, said the claim was an attempt to avoid responsibility for the tragedy, the news agency said. Ranji said the Danbury, Conn.-based company was resorting to the policy of "attack is the best form of defense" and challenged it to prove the allegation in the court, the news agency said. More than 2,000 people were killed and 200,000 affected when lethal gas escaped from a carbide pesticide plant in Bhopal on Dec. 3, 1984.

Soviet arsenal found in Chili

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Augusto Pinochet announced Monday that security agents had found a Soviet-supplied guerrilla arsenal in a Pacific fishing cove with enough explosives "to blow away half of Santiago."

National Information Central, the army-led secret police agency, displayed the arms cache and called it the biggest discovered since the 1973 military coup, led by Gen. Pinochet, ousted the elected government of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The police agency said the arsenal was in a building disguised as a fishing warehouse at Carrizal Cove, 409 miles north of Santiago. It said the cache contained 210,000 rounds of ammunition, a large quantity of U.S.-designed M-16 automatic rifles, some rocket launchers and 30 tons of explosives, including more than a ton of TNT.

All of the supplies had been brought ashore in inflatable rafts from Soviet fishing trawlers.

New ruling may free prisoners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A provincial court struck down two provisions Monday that permit detentions under the state of emergency imposed June 12, raising the possibility that thousands of people could be freed.

President P.W. Botha's government reserved the right to appeal the ruling, issued in Durban by a three-judge panel of the Natal province supreme court. Anti-apartheid leaders said they feared the government would try to negate the decision through executive action.

The court challenge was filed on behalf of Solomon Tsenoli, publicly secretary in the Durban area for the United Democratic Front, the largest coalition against the apartheid policy of race discrimination.

Tsenoli, who was released after the court decision, was among thousands of activists detained without charge under the emergency.

Although the court order technically applies only to Tsenoli, his lawyers said they would demand the release of all the estimated 500 detainees in Natal. Separate challenges must be filed in the other three provinces to request the release of detainees there.

Government officials will not say how many people have been jailed under the emergency.

The opposition Progressive Federal Party said Monday the total is at least 5,900 and could be as high as 12,000. Max Coleman, leader of a monitoring group called Detainees' Parents Support Committee, said its latest estimate was 8,000.

Judges in the Natal court accepted arguments by Tsenoli's lawyers that Botha exceeded his powers in two subsections of the emergency regulations.

One empowers any member of the security forces to detain anyone under the regulations if the detention is deemed "necessary for the maintenance of public order." The other permits the law and order minister to extend the detention for the duration of the emergency.

Party fights pressures

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The governing National Party convenes a rare national congress today in an effort to close ranks against sanctions from abroad and pressure from both the right and left at home.

Party officials have tried to dampen expectations that the two-day meeting, in an urban of about 1,600 delegates will produce new political initiatives, but President P.W. Botha and his Cabinet are certain to outline the government's response to the international campaign for economic sanctions.

Botha also is expected to seek endorsement for his program of cautious reform in the apartheid race policy, which the far-right views as a betrayal of white supremacy and the anti-apartheid movement considers inadequate.

The national party congress is only the second since Botha came to power in 1978. The previous one, in 1982, endorsed creation of two new Parliament chambers that brought Indians and people of mixed race into the government.

Candidates differ on Henry's Fork measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. John Evans and Sen. Steve Symms agree that the Henry's Fork of the Snake River should be protected from hydroelectric development, but sharply disagree over how to approach the problem.

"My philosophy is that the people on the banks of the Snake are better able to manage our valuable resources and deal with the problems than are the people of the banks of the Potomac," Symms, R-Idaho, said in testimony Monday before the Senate Subcommittee on Water and Power.

Evans, a Democrat who is challenging Symms for his Senate seat, testified about a variety of a study to consider including the Henry's Fork in the Snake River Scenic System. He said a bill, sponsored by Sen.

James McClure, R-Idaho, and Symms, addresses the hydroelectric issue, but does not go far enough in protecting the river.

Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, sponsored a bill passed by the U.S. House that would call for a study of the river for designation of Wild and Scenic, but Monday's hearing dealt only with the McClure-Symms legislation.

"I think my bill can get through Congress," said McClure, adding that action by the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which he chairs, likely would take action this week.

Stallings, who said he still is considering his position on the McClure-Symms bill, said, "I'd like to talk more to the people in eastern Idaho. But the feedback I've received so far is that sportsmen are less enthusiastic about the McClure-Symms bill."

Stallings said in his written testimony that he favored the proposed hydroelectric ban in concert with the Wild and Scenic study.

The McClure-Symms bill would protect a section of the Henry's Fork "from hydro development without imposing the study."

McClure said people were alarmed at the number of hydroelectric projects proposed for the Henry's Fork.

"At the same time, however, they were equally concerned that the river remain in its present ownership status with management by private area landowners, local governmental entities, the U.S. Forest Service and the state of Idaho," McClure said.

Symms said the state has had bad experiences with Wild and Scenic Rivers guidelines, citing failure to adequately protect against ice jams that have caused flooding in Salmon.

"This problem could be solved by deepening the channel through the shallow area below the slack water which would accelerate the current," Symms said. "However, this is a recreational segment under the Wild and Scenic rivers classification, and no disturbance is allowed."

Evans testified that he would prefer a state solution to the problem. He introduced legislation to make the Henry's Fork part of the state Natural and Recreational Rivers System, but it failed to emerge from committee in the Legislature.

Evans said a congressional study would prevent hydro development for up to three years during the study period, and another three years if a favorable recommendation were received.

He also said a study would allow for greater public participation. Issues such as protection of wildlife habitat, water rights and flows, water quality and streamside development would be fully addressed.

Forty-two miles of the river would be studied under Stallings' proposal. The same area, from Big Spigs to Island Park Reservoir and from the Island Park Dam to the confluence with the Warm River, is being studied by the U.S. Forest Service for Wild and Scenic eligibility.

Camp called a church

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — The Canadian leader of the white separatist Aryan Nations group denies his proposed training camp in this province would be used for military-style training.

He says it would be a temporary church until a national one can be built.

Tony Long wants to build his business near Caroline, about 80 miles northwest of Calgary.

"We believe in the uniqueness of all mankind and that blacks, Chinese, North American natives and Metis should be proud of their own," but separatist Long said in the United States, Aryan Nations is based in Hayden Lake, Idaho.

Adherents to the Aryan Nations philosophy believe Jewish people are Satan's children. A Hitler was a prophet sent by God and Anglo Saxons are the chosen race.

Edmonton Rabbi Haim Kemelman, asked to comment on the Aryan Nation's concept of white separatism, said, "You cannot live with a separatist concept of community life. If you can't learn to live together then you are like scorpions in a bottle."

Guy Umscheid, deputy mayor of Caroline, said the town's 431 residents do not sympathize with Long.

Meanwhile, Calgary church and anti-discrimination groups are hoping their counterparts in Edmonton will join the fight to stop the group from setting up camp in Alberta.

"We're asking any like-minded organizations we come in contact with to get involved," said Hal Joffe, president of Calgary's Citizens Against Racial and Religious Discrimination.

Joffe said the coalition of his group and others was formed Thursday night in response to reports that Long plans to build the camp.

Joffe said the still-unnamed coalition includes the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the Calgary Public Council, Citizens for Public Justice, the Committee Against Racism, the United Church of Christ in Society, the University of Calgary Chaplains, the Calgary Jewish Community Council and his group.

Cathy Wainwright, Citizens for Public Justice in Edmonton said her group would join the coalition if its goal is to promote racial tolerance.

"We wish to take part in anything that argues against the viewpoint expressed by the Aryan Nations group," she said. "But I would have difficulty denying a group the right to exist unless its practices were illegal."

Joffe said the coalition plans to "deny the Aryan Nations church the recruits they're looking for."

Catherine Cullinane, Susan Eller and Mary Kay Brewster will climb Mount Everest

She can negotiate a deal but can she climb Everest?

PORTOLA VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Battling 100 mph wind and snow on Mount Everest might be a bit more perilous than starting-up a high-tech company, but a Silicon Valley businessman sees plenty of similarities.

"There are a lot of people in the business world who climb mental mountains every day," says Ellen Lapham, 42, who has spent most of her career in marketing and public relations.

She's had few flops, and her successes include 1976-78 association with Tandem Computers Inc., which hit No. 409 on the Fortune 500 with sales of $64 million this year.

She's leaving for Tibet on Aug. 22 with a team of professional climbers that hopes to put the first American woman on the 29,028-foot summit of the world's tallest mountain and send hang gliders soaring over the peak with movie cameras.

Lapham marches up and down the steps of her home on the edge of Silicon Valley, the computer industry center 35 miles south of San Francisco, and weighs on her ankles, dumbbells in each hand and a 25-pound sack of flour in her backpack.

While the rest of the "Americans to China" expedition have considerable experience, including the two other women, this is Lapham's first major climb. The expedition is being led by Steve McKinney of Squaw Valley, Calif., a five-time world record holder in speed climbing.

Lapham has done climbing in the United States and decided to try Everest after trekking up a "really pretty little" 20,000-foot mountain in Nepal last year.

She is the expedition's fund raiser, putting together $300,000 for 15 American climbers and about a dozen Sherpas, and she's deadly serious about reaching the top and comparing it with her business experiences.

"My first interest is climbing the mountain and getting to the top," said Lapham. "But because of my background in business and particularly in start-up organizations here in the valley, I'm looking at the parallels between what it takes to plan and execute a climb and what it takes to do it in small business."

In both ventures, a team comes together to take on a big job, works hard and has lofty goals.

"There's a large degree of ambiguity and a high amount of risk," she said. "The outcome is projected to be positive but there may be things that get in the way of getting there."

"In the case of the mountain, it can be weather, avalanches, team sickness and other factors," she said. "In the case of a start-up, it can be a technological breakthrough that doesn't happen in time, or you run out of capital or the market disappears, or a major competitor comes and avalanches your market."

Lapham said she wants to see if some of her experiences in the valley can help her on the mountain.

"That has to do with teamwork, the way people self-manage how they handle day-to-day pressure, how you keep goals in sight, how the team leader keeps everybody in line," she said.

She agrees that climbing a mountain is tougher than starting up a company.

"But having a bank call in a loan is like having an avalanche or finding that the route that you've established doesn't work and you have to go back to base camp and try another way up the mountain."

She said she doesn't worry about death on the mountain, but conceded she's concerned about frostbite.

"Frostbite means maybe you lose part of a finger or toe," she said. "That's no big deal, relative to the absolute goal, and the sense of satisfaction that we can have in getting to the summit of Everest. But if I can't get up the mountain because I've got to nurse my frostbit foot, I'd be darned disappointed."

More hay will be shipped today

BOISE (AP) — About 900 tons of hay has been committed for Tuesday shipping, which will take place at 19 drop-off sites, the Idaho Farm Bureau has reported.

Idaho's operators continue to be responsive to the needs of Georgia's drought-plagued farmers, said Ray Poe, the Farm Bureau's commodities director who is coordinating the hay drive.

Poe said the Union Pacific has donated use of 33 boxcars to carry the hay and railroad employees also are giving their time.

The hay will be used to replace feed for livestock destroyed by the drought. The first Hay Day, coordinated by the Idaho Department of Agriculture, produced 1,350 tons of hay that were transported to the South, and 125 tonnet over for the second load.

The 19 sites include:

- Malad City, Grace, Soda Springs, Montpelier, Weston.
- Arco, Rexburg, Shelley, St. Anthony, Lorenzo.
- The Sugarloaf feed dump in Jerome County, Eden, Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Hansen, and the feed dump in Rupert.
- Simplot Soil Builders in Mountain Home, Doles Siding in Caldwell, and in Athol.

Utah man charged for tire fire

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A 27-year-old Ogden man has been arraigned on a second-degree felony charge of causing a catastrophe in a fire that burned the fire section of the Weber County landfill last week.

LeRoy Linder pleaded innocent to the charge before 3rd Circuit Judge E.F. Ziegler on Monday. A preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 15.

Police said they suspected Linder was disgruntled because he had been refused a job at the landfill.

Ogden police detective Norman Soakak said Linder, who was taken into custody on Saturday, failed to pass a lie detector test at police headquarters and then allegedly confessed to setting the fire during the early hours of Aug. 3.

Linder was ordered held in the Weber County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond, but Ziegler set a hearing for this morning on whether he should be released on his own recognizance.

The fire was extinguished Friday morning after bulldozers spent more than two days shoveling tons of dirt over the burning tires at a cost of about $30,000.

Two die in collision near Egin

EGIN (AP) — Two people were killed and a number of others were injured when a truck carrying 11 people hit a utility trailer hauling farm equipment near here.

Dead at the scene Sunday night was a 20-year-old man, whose name was withheld pending notification of his family, a Fremont County sheriff's spokesman said. He apparently died instantly from head injuries.

Michael J. Hernandez, 15, died at 8:30 a.m. Monday at Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center's Parkview Facility in Idaho Falls.

The accident occurred about 9:20 p.m. Sunday on the Parker-Egin highway.

Reagan supports 65 mph limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, has gained the recommendation of President Reagan to repeal the federally imposed 55 mph speed limit law.

Emerging from a meeting at the White House on Monday, Symms said Reagan not only backed his legislation to raise the limit to 65 mph on rural interstate highways but supported complete return of speed limit authority to the state and local governments.

With Reagan's reaffirmation of the 1980 campaign pledge to lift the limit, that the president has allowed to languish for the past six years, Symms contended repealing the mandated 55 mph limit should become a real possibility.

As chairman of the Senate transportation subcommittee, Symms said he would offer a rider raising the limit on pending legislation reauthorizing operations of the Transportation Department.

Also in his capacity as transportation subcommittee chairman, Symms urged Federal Highway Administrator Ray Barnhart to reconsider the state's application for emergency money to repair and rebuild roadways damaged by flooding earlier this year.

Symms said Barnhart had agreed to personally review the requests.

Girl dies of accident injuries

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — A 9-year-old girl has died from injuries suffered when a "Moon Walk" attraction at the Sweetwater County fair blew over in a strong wind, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Robyn Fullimer died Sunday evening at the Primary Children's Medical Center in Salt Lake City, where she was taken after she suffered head injuries when the attraction was blown over by a sudden gust of wind Friday.

According to police reports, the ride, a large enclosed inflated airbag where people can walk around and jump as if on a trampoline, blew on its side and burst.

The accident injured 15 people, but only the girl and 5-year-old Nathan Broschinsky were hospitalized. The boy, who suffered multiple fractures, was released from the Sweetwater County Memorial Hospital on Saturday.

Judge permits Priest Lake land trade

BOISE (AP) — A 4th District Judge has upheld the state Land Board's split decision approving the controversial Priest Lake land trade with the Diamond International Corp.

Judge Alan Schwartzman, in a 40-page ruling made public on Monday, said that the board's three-member Republican majority properly approved the land swap last year when it limited consideration to only the financial return the deal would bring to the Public School Endowment Trust Fund, for which the land in question is managed.

A citizens' group called the Priest Lake Coalition challenged the board's 3-2 vote that saw Gov. John Evans and Auditor Joe Williams, both Democrats, oppose the trade of 3,700 acres of endowment land on the east side of Priest Lake for over 12,000 acres of Diamond-owned land scattered throughout the region.

The coalition claimed the massive recreational development planned by Diamond on the consolidation tract would severely damage the environment and overwhelm the area's ability to provide needed public services like roads, sewers and water. It argued that the board had to go beyond mere financial considerations in determining whether the trade was proper.

"The Idaho Constitution dictates that the Land Board must administer the school endowment lands in such a manner as will secure the maximum possible amount" from their management, Schwartzman wrote.

"While this or any other court may be sympathetic towards scenic, aesthetic and environmental concerns, to hold that the Land Board must address those issues in determining the disposition of trust property would be in derogation of constitutional mandate and in violation of trust principles," the judge said.

A hearing officer for the board found that the proposed swap would net the Public School Endowment Trust Fund about $2.5 million.

Although Schwartzman said a week ago he did not expect the case to end with Monday's decision, Attorney General Jim Jones said he believed the coalition should think twice before it appeals the ruling.

Prison overcrowding and new attitudes will bring changes

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Overcrowded prisons and changing public attitudes present a whole range of new challenges for corrections officials, members of the American Correctional Association were told.

Changes in attitudes will mean changes in the way the nation's correctional facilities are run, Louie L. Wainwright, secretary of the Florida Department of Corrections, told the ACA's 116th annual conference.

"During the last decade, we have seen the pendulum begin to swing back from the liberalism pervading our society during the previous 10 years to a much more conservative approach," Wainwright said. "The disturbing growth in the crime rate, coupled with increasing fiscal constraints, resulted in the virtual abandonment of the rehabilitation model. Public reaction to ever-increasing violence mandated a greater emphasis on punishment and detriments sentencing."

Wainwright said the correctional field is facing a very severe labor shortage. He predicted that to cope with the growing prison population and labor shortages, the corrections industry will, of necessity, turn to private enterprise to fill the breach.

"Privatization has been, and is now, working in the juvenile area, and in meeting some of the specialized needs of adult offenders," Wainwright said.

Corrections departments will enlarge the scope of privately-operated, community-based corrections programs, Wainwright predicted. "At the same time, corrections departments will retain the responsibility for the maintenance and operation of maximum security facilities" since we have developed a level of expertise and skill needed for such programs.

Simple economics will dictate greater utilization of diversionary programs with teeth in them, Wainwright said.

"Property offenders particularly, who are generally at low risk, will be placed on house arrest, many with electronic monitoring devices to replace or reinforce staff which will become an increasingly scarce and more costly resource," he said. "Strict victim reparations programs will assist in existing public support for this alternative."

ACA officials say 37 states are under court order to reduce crowding in their prisons.

Wainwright noted that U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger had once challenged corrections officials to build "factories behind fences."

Wainwright said prison industry programs must be expanded because of the public clamor for mandatory minimum terms and longer sentences for repeat offenders.

Amos Reed, secretary of the Department of Corrections for the state of Washington, said the corrections field can be frustrating and thankless.

"Our best efforts are frustrated by overexpectations, ignorance, hostility, diminishing resources, population overload, and politics in their worst forms," he told delegates in the opening session Sunday night.

More than 4,000 leaders in the field of corrections are expected for the five-day event.

Bob Tway watches his trap shot fall into the cup on the 18th green for a birdie that gave him the PGA Championship

Tway wins PGA with prayer shot

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

TOLEDO, Ohio — Bob Tway won the PGA tournament with a spectacular sand shot on the 72nd hole Monday as Greg Norman again let a major tournament title slip away in the final round.

Tway's fourth victory of the year and first major in his career came on a shot even he didn't expect to make.

His second shot on the 18th hole landed in a bunker in front of the green and the Oklahoma native was trying to just get it close to the hole.

"I thought if I could get it up, somewhere close to the hole, and make a 4, I'd be OK," Tway, who set the course record with a 64 on Saturday, said.

He did better than that and did in Norman, who led all four of golf's major tournaments this year after three rounds — but won only the British Open.

Tway finished with a scrambling final round 70 and completed the 72 holes in 276, two strokes better than Norman, who started the day with a four-shot lead over Tway and ballooned Monday to a five-over-par 76.

Tway holed the bunker shot for a birdie, a winning birdie, and the usually unemotional 27-year-old second-year pro jumped up and down in the sand, pumping his fist

GREG NORMAN
Snakebitten

In victory
"For something like that to happen on the 18th hole, it's just indescribable," Tway said. "It was so exciting."

"I may never hit a shot again like that in my whole life. It was unbelievable. I just remember jumping up and down," he said.

Norman still had a chance to tie

Norman: 'Don't go say the monkey's back on my back'

By RUSTY MILLER
The Associated Press

TOLEDO, Ohio — Australian Greg Norman, stunned by Bob Tway's remarkable sand-shot birdie on the 72nd hole of the PGA Championship on Monday, was stung again when the question of choking under pressure was raised toward Tway in his post-tournament comments, then added that he was happy with the way his own year had gone, despite leading all four majors heading into the final round yet winning only one.

The dramatic swing led Norman, who had led by four strokes with eight holes remaining, in second place in a tournament he had led for three days.

The reigning British Open champion was asked if the monkey was again on his back after losing a major title on the final day.

Norman swore and said, "What do you guys want? You guys are never satisfied. Face it. You know, I did a hell of a job today. Bob Tway just won the golf tournament. I don't understand you guys."

"Don't go saying the monkey's back on my back. I'll probably win next week and the week following that."

Then, getting up to leave the room, he said to the reporter who asked the question, "Thanks for ruining a good press conference."

Peter Jacobsen, who finished third, was in the interview area during the exchange and wasted little time in defending Norman.

"Let me just say it's a hell of a lot better to have been there and tried than to have never been there at all," Jacobsen said after Norman had left the room. "Greg Norman is possibly one of the classiest individuals to ever play this game. The fact that he was leading all four majors after three rounds is a hell of an accomplishment. Nobody's ever done it and there have been a lot of golfers who have played for a lot of years."

"And the fact that he comes up with one win out of four is fine. Greg's just getting started. There's no monkey on his back."

Jacobsen, grouped with Tway and Norman for Monday's round, then commented on the question that touched off Norman.

"When he says that a lot of times the media isn't satisfied, he's not saying 100 percent of the media. There are few people who for some reason always want to write about that appearance."

"But I don't see anything but the good things in golf when you see two guys like Tway and Norman coming down the stretch playing the game of golf the way it's meant to be played, giving it back and forth to each other. That's wonderful," Jacobsen said.

"The way he won the British Open is a lot the way Bob Tway won this tournament. It was destiny. He knows it, he recognizes it. (Tway's bunker) shot went in and (Norman) missed his shot. But a big smile came across (Norman's) face and he shook Bob's hand. . . I don't see things like that in other sports."

Tway also grabbed his first major tournament title thanks to a no-nonsense approach to golf and life that puts more value on substance than appearance.

Describing his dramatic sand shot on the 72nd hole, Tway said, "It wasn't like a slam dunk or anything. It just fell in."

That might describe Tway. If he were in the NBA, he would lead the team in assists. If he were a football player, he'd be the best blocking back in the game.

"The thing that stands out in my mind about Bob Tway is his relaxed attitude around the course," said Jacobsen. "I played with him at Westchester last year and he shot a 7 or 75, but he didn't get mad. I told him afterward, 'You're going to be a great player.' He just said

"Thanks." But I had the feeling that he knew and didn't need me to tell him.

"For a young guy, he's got a lot of poise, a lot of moxie under pressure."

Tway's poise and patience paid huge dividends Monday. He trailed by four shots at the start of the round and again was still four strokes down to Norman with just eight holes left.

"When we started the back nine, I said to my caddy, 'Well, we're starting over now.' Tway said, 'You don't know what someone else is going to do. You don't know what you're going to do. I just set 10 under as a realistic goal. . . You try to set yourself a goal and try to reach that. And whatever happens, happens.'"

Chisox prepare to sign Carlton, Foster

By The Washington Post and The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Left-hander Steve Carlton, 41, a four-time Cy Young Award winner, reportedly will end a six-day "retirement" Tuesday night and start for the Chicago White Sox in Detroit.

He may be joined on the White Sox roster by another National League veteran, outfielder George Foster, 37, according to Monday's Chicago Tribune and Chicago Sun-Times. Carlton had been in the NL since 1965, Foster since 1969; neither has played in the American League.

Foster, who had earned $2 million a year with the New York Mets, was released Wednesday, the same day Carlton quit the San Francisco Giants. Both players likely will clear waivers at 2 p.m. Tuesday and become free agents. Foster also has talked to the Tigers about playing for them.

Carlton, as usual, won't talk, but Foster was busy trying to talk his way out of a mess in New York. At a news conference at Shea Stadium, he and Mets General Manager Frank Cashen talked to reporters about what Foster had said, or hadn't said, before his release, and whether it

STEVE CARLTON
Not really retired

GEORGE FOSTER
Some explanations has caused his release.

"Let me make this clear," Foster told reporters; "I did not say the Mets were racist. My remarks were not racially motivated. I never said that being benched or being released was racially motivated. After all, how can my being benched in favor of Kevin Mitchell (also black) be racially motivated?"

Said Cashen: "George Foster was not released because of the uproar over the remarks he passed. He is a Christian man and when he says they were misinterpreted I believe him."

A day before his release, Foster was quoted as saying: "I'm not saying it's a racial thing, but that seems to be the case in sports these days. When a ballplayer can replace a George Foster or a Mookie Wilson with a more popular player, I think they (management) would rather promote a Gary Carter or a Keith Hernandez to fans. So parents who want to can point to them as role models for their children rather than a Darryl Strawberry, a Dwight Gooden or a George Foster. The kids don't see color."

"No comment," said White Sox operations chief Ken "Hawk" Harrelson when asked about the reported moves.

"Ask Hawk," said Jim Fregosi, manager of the American League team.

Foster, who has 347 career homers, is expected to be a designated hitter, the Chicago newspapers reported.

Although Carlton left the Giants saying he was retiring from baseball, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported he did not put his name on the voluntary-retirement list or submit a letter of retirement to the National League.

Big names take early lead at Jerome rodeo

By BRAD BRELAND

JEROME — Clay O'Brien Cooper and Jake Barnes, the top money winners so far this season in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association standings and the 1985 world team roping champions, took the lead in their specialty in the first go-round of the Jerome County Rodeo here Monday.

PRCA all-around champion Jimmie Cooper grabbed the advantage in the steer wrestling after the first night.

A pair of Idaho cowboys are currently second place behind Clay Cooper, Jake Barnes and Chris Lybba of Bloomfield, N.M., in the team roping competition.

Barry Johnson from Caldwell and Jake Stephens from Nampa clocked a time of 6.8 seconds, but fell a full second behind the leaders.

Jimmie Cooper, of Monument, N.M., was the first cowboy out in the steer wrestling competition tackling his steer in 4.1 seconds over a second faster than Jody Stamper of Mounds, Okla., and Shawn Heald of Garraway, Mont.

Duane France from Hyrum, Utah, rode Windwalker for a 73 in the bareback event while a 77, turned in by Merlon Fairbanks of White River, S.D., was the top score in the side-saddle event.

Chris Lybba of Argyle, Texas, who is the current world leader in the calf roping event over Jimmie and Roy Cooper, missed his calf and opened up the door for Dave Brock.

The Sprinlow, Texas, hand clocked an 8.9 out distancing Cooper, by a full second.

There are 57 contestants entered in the bull riding event and Kurt Carlton of Lodi, Calif., leads them all after scoring a 70 after the first night of competition. Rexburg cowboy Jeff McGarry scored a 68 in the event, placing him in second place tied with Texas hand, Joe Wimberly Jr., who also scored a 68.

In the barrel racing event, five cowgirls are clogged near the top clocking a time under 18 seconds. Canadian cowgirl Ruth McDougall, had the best time of the evening with a 17.4 followed by a pair of cowgirls with times of 17.6 seconds.

The rodeo will have two more performances tonight and tomorrow night at 8. The crowning of the queen will take place before the rodeo on Wednesday.

The top four cowboys in each event will win money after the conclusion of the rodeo.

Chiefs bag NFL's first big-name USFL refugee

By The Associated Press

Irv Eatman, the Baltimore Stars' All-USFL offensive tackle, reached agreement on a contract with the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs on Monday as the scramble by USFL players to find a home in the older league intensified.

The Washington Redskins, meanwhile, appeared ready to sign three players from the dormant league, including quarterback Doug Williams. And contract talks were set to begin between the Redskins and Eatman's Baltimore teammate, running back Kelvin Bryant.

But there were no apparent negotiations Monday between the Dallas Cowboys and Herschel Walker of the New Jersey Generals. Walker's agent, Peter Johnson, said last week he hoped to start discussions this week but the Cowboys said no talks have been held yet.

Eatman and Walker are among about a dozen USFL players expected to find a warm welcome in the NFL. Another, quarterback Jim Kelly of the Generals, was waiting for NFL permission before opening talks with the Buffalo Bills.

"There was all kinds of activity over the weekend," said agent Leigh Steinberg, who announced that he had reached agreement with the Chiefs on Eatman. "It's amazing what people can get done when they want to get it done."

The USFL announced last Monday it would forego the 1986 season pending the approval of the NFL, which received in its antitrust suit against the NFL. On Thursday, the league and the players' association agreed to give all 500 players the opportunity to pursue their careers in the NFL or Canadian Football League.

However, the 30 players with guaranteed USFL contracts were given the option of attempting to sign with an NFL team or sitting out the season and collecting their money. They must decide by Wednesday which option to pursue and some — like former Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie of the Generals who has had only lukewarm interest from the Los Angeles Rams — may opt for taking the USFL money.

All USFL players, including Eatman, must get a written release from their teams, then approval of

Sharp gains for Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — Optimism that interest rates will keep going down boosted the stock market Monday, as Wall Street pumped more life into last week's advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 28.54 to 1,811.16, the biggest gain since a 36.06-point rise on June 13. The gain followed an 18.99-point rise for all 1,000 stocks.

Shaking the months-long string of "Blue Monday" sessions that have begun recent weeks with selloffs or lackluster performances, stocks responded strongly to the rally in the bond market, where prices of some long-term Treasury issues rose as much as $10 per each $1,000 in face value.

Bonds began rallying last week following completion of the three-day, $28 billion Treasury refunding, which may continue Monday in anticipation that retail sales and industrial production statistics due out later in the week would show the U.S. economy remained in the doldrums, and the Federal Reserve Board would push interest rates lower to spark it.

Amoco rose 1/4 to 62; Exxon 3/4 to 63; Occidental 1/4 to 26 1/2; and Chevron 1/4 to 49 1/2.

Paper companies set up $1 billion deal

NEW YORK (AP) — International Paper Co. said Monday it agreed to buy Hammermill Paper Co. for $1.08 billion, saving Hammermill from a hostile takeover threat.

The New York-based International Paper said the acquisition would make it the world's largest paper producer and give it annual sales of nearly $7 billion.

Hammermill accepted International Paper's $64.50-a-share cash offer after earlier rejecting a $22-a-share bid from a group led by California Investor Paul Bilzerian.

The Bilzerian group, which owns 19.6 percent of Hammermill's 16.7 million common shares outstanding, said last week it might be prepared to pay $37 a share or more, pending a review of Hammermill's financial data.

larger mills depending on the level of demand for each line.

Should Bilzerian abandon his Hammermill offer, it would be the second time in a year that a Bilzerian-led group has made a sizable profit after launching a hostile offer for a company that later embraced a friendly merger partner.

Last fall, the apparel company Cluett, Peabody & Co. escaped Bilzerian's grasp by agreeing to be acquired by West Point-Pepperell Inc. for $375 million.

George Adler, an industry analyst at the investment firm Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., said the merger should improve manufacturing efficiencies for both companies.

He said Hammermill's paper mills generally are smaller than International Paper's. Thus, International Paper could better shift production of various papers to smaller or

But W. Craig McClelland, Hammermill's president and chief executive, said in a statement the company had decided a merger with International Paper "best serves the long-term interests of Hammermill, its shareholders, employees and customers, and the communities in which we operate."

Bilzerian, who lives in Sacramento, said he had no immediate comment.
