

Idaho fire line mop-up continues

By The Associated Press

Fewer than 400 firefighters remained on the lines around the 18,500-acre Anderson Creek fire in south central Idaho Friday as fire bosses released another seven 20-man crews.

"It's a real capsule" here," said Boise National Forest spokesman Jim Sorenson. "It's just real intensive mop-up now."

Officials said the 20-day-old fire had cooled down significantly since it was finally ringed by a secure 4-mile line late Wednesday, and they predicted the fire would be controlled by Sunday or Monday.

Work was also beginning on rehabilitating parts of the burned miles to minimize erosion this fall and winter.

Under 650 firefighters remained committed to the fire that once commanded the efforts of over 2,000, but a quarter of them were being rested at the main base camp 40 miles northwest of Boise and another 100 were on standby to handle any flare-ups sparked by possible thunderstorms and gusting winds. Temperatures neared the 100-degree mark again on Friday afternoon.

Fire restrictions in the back country remained in effect throughout much of Idaho, and officials urged people going into the backcountry during the Labor Day holiday weekend to be extremely careful with fire.

"Although the active fire situation appears to be coming to a close, the fire danger remains high," said Boise National Forest Supervisor Jack Lavin.

A number of wilderness fires were still burning in the Hells Canyon and Selway-Bitterroot areas, and the Forest Service said several continue to grow at relatively slow rates. They were being monitored and allowed to burn naturally, but a number of hiking trails throughout the region remained closed because of smoke and potential safety threats.

across to Libya, authorized the aircraft carrier Forrestal to steam for a port call in Italy.

The carrier, which just completed a joint exercise with Egypt in the eastern Mediterranean, originally was scheduled to pay a port visit to Haifa, Israel, this weekend. That visit was scrapped earlier this week, however, and the ship ordered to resume patrols in the central Mediterranean to the north of Libya.

State's James White House officials disclosed the United States had received indications Gadhafi might be planning to resume his sponsorship of terrorist attacks.

All Treiki, Libyan ambassador to the United States, dismissed administration suggestions of new terrorist plots by Gadhafi.

Treiki, interviewed on NBC's "Today" show, said Reagan administration officials "seem confused themselves. Some of the officials at the White House, I think, they give information to the mass media, and they deny it."

Asked whether he thought the administration was trying to provoke Gadhafi, he said, "Well, I said in the past that this administration is using Libya as a scapegoat. . . I think, encouraged by the Israelis, certainly they would like to have a certain amount of tension in the region, and from time to time, I think they have to do it to justify the billions of dollars they are giving each year to Israel."

affected by the action, but not greatly.

In most cases, gas is transported by Northwest Pipeline to Intermountain, which acts as a broker in selling the fuel to its Idaho customers.

"It's not being able to exercise that transport (rate) option that caused 'the increase,'" said Phil Bordeaux of Intermountain.

Northwest stopped the transport rate, complaining that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission decided to abandon existing transportation terms, according to a Northwest press release. Northwest said it would lose money if there were a change.

"It will hurt, but we are not switching fuel," said James E. Ferguson, manager of the Pet plant. He figured the company will be paying 3 percent more for natural gas. Ferguson said Pet isn't going to raise its price, so the increase will come off the profit margin. Pet's annual natural gas bill is in six figures, he said.

Ferguson sees the increase as temporary. "Transport is the wave of the future," he said.

FERC and Northwest are negotiating to resolve the dispute, said Bordeaux of Intermountain.

FERC doesn't know impact of higher rate yet, said Bob Mills, FMC's energy manager. The Pocatello phosphorus plant uses natural gas to make steam.

He said FMC will have to absorb the increase because the change happened so fast the marketing department wouldn't have time to raise prices.

"It's my understanding the fuss between FERC and (Northwest) pipeline was of short duration. They should have an agreement in a matter of so," Mills said.

The increase is not significant for the Green Giant plant in Buhl, said Darrel McRoberts, plant manager. He said Green Giant has benefited from a couple of good rate reductions recently.

"My concern about natural gas is we can't compete with Green Giant Midwest plants," McRoberts said. The Midwest plants pay lower rates because the gas companies there are heavily subsidized public entities, he said.

The penitentiary in Boise will be paying higher prices for natural gas, although it isn't clear at this point how much, said Mike Reed, penitentiary accountant.

Crash kills 7 aboard plane

LANDER, Wyo. (AP) — Seven people were burned beyond recognition when the twin-engine plane they were in crashed and exploded shortly after takeoff from the airport here.

Among the victims was the president of a Tulsa, Okla.-based chemical company and the chief executive officer and chairman of the board of the Western National Bank of Tulsa and their wives.

'Star Wars' launch in works

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two "Star Wars" satellites that will perform an orbital battle will be launched here next week aboard a Delta rocket, sources reported Friday.

The launch, expected next Thursday or Friday, will mark the first flight of a Delta since it was grounded after a failure in May. It also will be the first major space mission for the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization, which manages President Reagan's missile defense program, popularly known as Star Wars.

The agency had hoped to keep the launch secret until a few hours before liftoff, but word leaked Friday.

Debate offer turned down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has turned down a proposal for a series of debates between high-ranking Soviet and U.S. officials for viewing on Soviet and American television. The State Department said Friday.

"The problem with the proposal was one of timing," deputy spokesman Charles Redman said.

He said the two countries are engaged in a thorough review of all aspects of their relationship through a series of high-level meetings between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze next month.

spectors to the Nevada test site to show that the U.S. tests were within the 150-kiloaton range permitted in 1973 and 1976 treaties.

Sokolov dismissed the offer.

"We think this is unnecessary and perhaps even more harmful because this will legitimize the testing itself," he said.

With preparations for a 1986 Reagan-Gorbachev summit lagging, the two sides had locked over the reason for delay, and what they want to accomplish, if a meeting is held here late this year.

"We want a summit that would be crowned in concrete results, first and foremost, in the area of arms control," Sokolov said.

But Deputy Foreign Minister Anatoly Adomshin, winding up two days of preparatory talks on regional issues at the State Department, said Thursday "a lot of progress" was not achieved.

"We have to decide yet whether the summit would take place because it has to be productive," he said.

The Soviet official's dour assessment appeared to catch State Department officials off balance.

Heidman acknowledged that the talks "produced no surprises." But he said they "were useful as an occasion for each of us to make our positions clear, to dispel misconceptions and reduce misunderstandings in a sober and businesslike atmosphere."

forced to liquidate to repay the $1.5 billion in loans. Placid and Penrod were in debt.

The Hunts' financial woes began surfacing years ago when Bunker and Herbert lost heavily in what some called an attempt to corner the silver market.

The silver crash resulted in a $1.6 billion loss for Bunker and Herbert, who had bought 59 million ounces of silver, then "estimated at one-third of the world supply. Bunker, after his silver losses, simply shrugged and said, "A billion dollars isn't what it used to be."

Analysts said the Hunts' suit against the banks was most likely a stall tactic, and on Wednesday a federal judge denied a Hunt request to postpone the foreclosure.

State auditor, GOP official at odds over unpaid $411 bill

JOE WILLIAMS
Raps 'political witchhunt'

BOISE (AP) — Democratic State Auditor Joe Williams claims the national Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee siffled the state on $411 of a bill it ran up for state auditor records on the travel of Democratic Gov. John Evans.

But Deputy Political Director Tim Hyde says Williams was trying to charge the GOP committee double what state law allowed for the records that were gathered to help reinforce the re-election campaign of GOP Sen. Steve Symms against Evans.

Also on Friday, Williams complained about an employee of the Legislative Auditor's Office, Jim Weatherall, conducting that the auditor called a "political witch hunt" through his travel records for Evans' Department of Administration.

"I think it's wrong to spend taxpayers' money for Republican propaganda," Williams said.

Weatherall could not be reached for comment. But Legislative Auditor Bruce Balderston, while saying Weatherall's work was not a formal project of his office, said Williams was wrong in his criticism.

"These are public records open to anybody," Balderston said.

But the real focus of his criticism was the unpaid GOP bill, which he said would probably never be paid. Hyde agreed.

"He hadn't been particularly cooperative anyway," Hyde

$533.79. Several months later the committee sent back a check for just $122.80 without any explanation, he said.

"This is just another thing which they've hired someone to come into my office and do, and I object to any kind of political audit in this office," Williams said.

Hyde said the committee made a decision at the junior staff level "that we were getting screwed" and paid only the rate outlined in state law for copies of Evans' out-of-state travel records, ignoring the cost for the in-state records which Sullivan had not requested. Hyde claimed that even if the committee paid for the in-state travel records, the total bill would have only been $280.

But he conceded that the letter explaining the committee's decision not to pay the full bill was mislabeled to Evans' office and may never have been seen by Williams.

Hyde also declined to lay any significant amount of blame on Williams, saying, "Democrats probably find the same thing when they go into Republican offices: After all this is politics."

As for Evans' travel records, Williams said they show nothing out of the ordinary, and Hyde, while refusing to discuss specifics of the records, commented, "I would say John Evans has been a pretty unexceptional governor. There's nothing overwhelmingly good or bad about him."

countered. "The documents he produced he had been giving free to others including the press."

But Williams, objecting to the national committee using his office for political audits, said he advised the committee's field man, Jay Sullivan, last year that in addition to the cost of copying the records additional manpower would be needed to gather the material.

He said the information on Evans' travel both inside and outside the state over the past four years was sent to the Washington, D.C., committee on Nov. 7 with a bill for

Andrus miffed at revived charge

McCALL (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Cecil Andrus is blaming backers of his Republican opponent for renewed claims that the former governor's summer home on Cascade Reservoir was built in violation of federal trespass laws.

John Keys, acting regional director of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, said the Andrus home was built in 1971 on land reserved by the federal government for agricultural uses.

Keys said the trespass violation continued until 1974, when Andrus signed a property exchange with the government giving him ownership of a 75-foot-by-85-foot lakefront lot on Arrowhead Point where the house was built. In return, Andrus agreed to give up his agricultural easement to the rest of the federal land running to the water's edge.

The charges were first raised in 1976, when Andrus was named secretary of Interior under President Jimmy Carter. Andrus said at the time he had verbal permission from one of Keys' predecessors to build the house on Bureau of Reclamation Land with the understanding that formal documents would be drafted later.

Andrus said the issue raised again in the Aug. 27 edition of the Central Idaho Star-News probably was prompted by supporters of the GOP candidate for governor, Lt. Gov. David Leroy.

He called the renewed attention to the issue "irritating."

"I have a little trouble getting my opponent to concentrate on educational funding, economic development and where we are going to go in this state," he said.

Service not to blame, chief says

McCALL (AP) — Payette National Forest Supervisor Sonny LaSalle said he is "dismayed" by what he believes are attempts by timber industry officials to place the blame for the possible loss of thousands of jobs on the Forest Service.

"I'm afraid that the stage is being set for the Forest Service to take the rap for mill closings when market conditions and technology may be the deciding factors," LaSalle said.

He said "misinformation" put out at forums such as a Senate field hearing in Emmet last week has caused a lot of unnecessary concern over reductions in timber revenue from the Payette forest.

Contrary to testimony from local school superintendents and others at that hearing, LaSalle said the Payette's proposed forest management plan predicts a $3 million increase in receipts to school districts and counties over the next 10 years.

"They're becoming upset without seeking to verify these figures," he said. "If people are concerned about this they should come in and discuss it with us."

He also questioned figures presented at the Emmet hearing by Joe Hinson of the Idaho Forest Industry Council.

PUC investigating railroad plans to transfer agencies to Missouri

BOISE (AP) — Idaho utility regulators will investigate plans by Union Pacific Railroad to transfer all its Idaho freight agencies to a national customer service center in St. Louis.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission on Friday barred the railroad from permanently closing any agencies in the state until it reviews the matter.

Union Pacific also has been ordered to present the commission with information by Sept. 29 on its plans for the more than two dozen Idaho freight offices.

PUC President Perry Swisher said a 1980 federal law partially deregulating railroads left states with the authority to regulate the status of freight agencies.

But so far, Swisher said Union Pacific has not provided the commission with any information on its plans to consolidate the agencies in Missouri.

"It appears from the meager information available that the only access Idaho shippers will have with the railroad will be a toll-free number or a recording," Friday's order said.

The order comes just over a year after the commission authorized Union Pacific to close some Idaho agencies on a one-year trial basis.

The PUC order said commissioners will review the status of all Idaho rail offices now that the trial period has expired.

Nevada utility regulators last year denied Union Pacific authority to close any Nevada freight agencies. Several offices in eastern Oregon were allowed to be closed, but only on the condition that Oregon shippers be served by Union Pacific's Nampa customer service center.

The Nebraska-based railroad said in a news release earlier this month that it would consolidate its 40 regional customer service centers and the remaining agents in a nationwide center over the next 18 months.

Idaho agencies closed on a trial basis were in Buhl, Burley, Jerome-Wendell, Minidoka County, Orofino, Coeur d'Alene, St. Anthony, Parma, Payette, Glens Ferry-Mountain Home, Cascade, American Falls, Blackfoot, Arco, Shelley, Rexburg, Newdale and Caldwell.

Agencies remained open in Boise, Aberdeen, Ashton, Weiser, Kellogg, Shoshone-Gooding, Bonners Ferry-Sandpoint and Moscow.

The PUC staff is surveying rail shippers to determine the quality of service they received during the trial closures.

Mild quake jars area near Preston

PRESTON (AP) — An earthquake with a magnitude of 3.2 on the Richter scale struck about 10 miles east of here early Friday, but there were no reports of injury or damage, a University of Utah seismologist says.

The tremor occurred at 2:26 a.m. MDT Friday and was followed by an aftershock measuring 2.9 at 3:37 a.m., said Elton Brown, senior seismologist at the university's Seismograph Stations in Salt Lake City.

No one reported feeling the tremor, which occurred in an area which has exhibited moderate seismic activity, he said.

Faculty joins council in opposing proposal

MOSCOW (AP) — The full University of Idaho faculty has joined the Faculty Council in declaring as unacceptable a proposal on financial emergencies that will be presented to the State Board of Education next week at Coeur d'Alene.

The motion, passed unanimously, added that faculty would like to work with board staff to prepare a definition that would be acceptable.

The state board's proposal, if implemented, "would abrogate tenure and academic freedom" at all Idaho universities and colleges, said David J. Walker, an agricultural economics professor who has worked on the subject as the former faculty council chairman.

The state board requested last spring that the state financial emergency policy be revised because of a lawsuit brought against the UI by Lois Pace, a tenured professor who was fired in 1981 under the existing terms of financial crisis.

The Idaho Supreme Court ruled in Pace's favor in an appeal settled in July.

Faculty and administrators at the state's college and three universities were asked by the board to assist in wording a revised financial emergency policy.

But a compromise effort by some university faculty members was ignored by Daniel G. Chadwick, attorney for the board who drafted the proposal. Richard J. Dozier, an English professor, said.

Stock buyout accord winds up in court

BOISE (AP) — The former owners of an Idaho management firm are suing the parent company of Envirosafe Services of Idaho Inc., claiming it failed to live up to terms of a stock buyout agreement for ESI's predecessor at two Owyhee County hazardous waste dumps.

Henry Sabate and Herbert Gillette, owners and directors of the now-dissolved S&G Management Co., contend in a lawsuit filed Friday in Boise's U.S. District Court that Envirosafe Management Corp. has refused to pay more than $1 million of the nearly $4 million sale of stock in Wes Con Inc.

The complaint contends S&G had purchased the option to all capital stock in Wes Con, which operated the Grandview and Arweave toxic waste dumps in southwestern Idaho, 1981, agreeing to sell out to Envirosafe for a down payment of $232,600 and the assumption of more than $1.4 million in outstanding S&G debt.

The balance of $2.3 million was to be paid in yearly payments based on Envirosafe's total revenue, according to the lawsuit. But Sabate and Gillette, who were assigned the payments when S&G dissolved, contend Envirosafe has refused to make timely payments.

Envirosafe officials could not be reached for comment Friday evening.

Crewmen on B-36 can laugh when recalling bomb drop

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A crewman aboard an Air Force bomber yelled "bombs away" as the plane lurched upward and accidentally dropping a hydrogen bomb 29 years ago, the pilot says.

Richard "Dick" Meyer, 62, a retired lieutenant colonel, told the El Paso (Texas) Times that a crewman between the wings and the tail of the aircraft saw what had happened.

"Simultaneously, he called, 'Bombs away,' and the plane lurched upward about 1,000 feet when it lost so much weight at once," Meyer said.

"And someone yelled, 'Oh, explosive! It might have been me,'" Meyer said.

There was no nuclear blast, but non-nuclear high explosives in the Mark 17 bomb detonated when it hit the ground 4 1/2 miles south of the control tower at Albuquerque's Kirtland Air Force Base on May 22, 1957.

The explosion killed a cow, but no one was injured when the bomb hit an uninhabited area, creating a crater about 12 feet deep and 25 feet wide.

Members of the crew said they did not have the materials on board to arm the bomb as a weapon.

The accident was first confirmed by the Air Force in 1981. But no specifics were released until Wednesday, when the Albuquerque Journal published an account based on documents obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

The El Paso Times published interviews with three of the crewmembers Friday.

Though they can laugh about it now, four of the 13 men aboard the Air Force B-36 bomber say it was serious the day the 42,000-pound hydrogen bomb fell 1,700 feet to the ground.

"It's one of those things that's terrifying at the time, but is funny afterward," George Houston, 61, the flight's radio operator, told The Associated Press in an interview from his home in Orangevale, Calif., on Thursday.

Houston said the accident occurred when the plane hit rough air and the navigator grabbed the bomb release mechanism to keep from falling. At first, he said, the crew thought the man might have gone down with the bomb.

Jack Resen was an electronics officer for the 95th Bomb Wing at Biggs Air Force Base in El Paso, where the flight originated.

He told the El Paso paper that the young lieutenant "came charging out of the bomb bay saying, 'I didn't touch anything. I didn't touch anything.' It really made me laugh."

Jack Williams, 54, now a budget analyst for the Army at Fort Bliss, Texas, was a flight engineer aboard the aircraft.

Williams said they heard a dull thud when the bomb hit. Meyer said the bomb produced "more dust cloud than anything."

Meyer said the bomb was the first hydrogen bomb built to be carried by aircraft.

Meyer, Williams and Resen said they were surprised to see the story published after so many years of secrecy.

Williams and Meyer said they were told not to speak about the incident.

Almost a year later, on March 11, 1958, a B-47 bomber on a training mission from Hunter Air Force Base, Ga., accidentally dropped an unarmored hydrogen bomb in the backyard of a home in Mars Bluff, S.C.

The bomb's trigger went off, and the explosion damaged six homes and a church and injured six people, none seriously. There was no release of radiation, officials said.

Farmer prices steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices farmers get for raw products averaged steady in August, despite record high market prices for hogs and broiler chickens, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The department's Agricultural Statistics Board said hog prices averaged $61.80 per 100 pounds of live weight, the most since the agency began records in 1909. The previous top was $61.30 four years ago.

Broiler prices at the farm averaged 45.9 cents per pound, live weight, up from 42.4 cents in July, the previous record level.

Department economists say hog prices are up because of sharp cutbacks by producers. However, with bumper harvests this fall and cheaper feed in the outlook, some economists think hog production soon will begin turning up.

Broiler prices have risen sharply this summer, partly because of a toll taken by heat in the Southeast, where production is concentrated. But USDA experts say the main reason has been a rise in consumer demand, prompted in part by reduced supplies of more expensive beef and pork.

The farm prices of cattle and eggs also moved higher in August, while lower prices for corn, cotton, potatoes and soybeans offset the increases for the other commodities, the report said.

The August corn price of $1.70 per bushel was the lowest since October 1977.

Although the July-to-August reading was unchanged, the August price index was up an average of 3.3 percent from a year ago, the report said.

The index of prices that farmers pay out to meet expenses was unchanged from July, the previous reading.

The report also said:

- Cattle averaged $54.50 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared with $52.90 in July and $49.40 a year earlier. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.
- Hogs averaged $61.80 per 100 pounds, compared with $59 in July and $49.40 a year earlier.
- Corn, at $1.70 per bushel, was down from $2 in July and $2.44 a year ago.
- Wheat prices at the farm, according to preliminary figures, averaged $2.19 per bushel, compared with $2.25 in July and $2.89 a year earlier.
- Soybeans averaged $8.82 per bushel, compared with $5.11 in July and $5.10 a year earlier.

Judge halts production of stickers

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal judge agreed Friday to halt production of Garbage Patch Kids stickers while he considers whether they violate the copyright for the Cabbage Patch Kids dolls.

Although U.S. District Judge G. Ernest Tidwell's ruling is not a final decision and will not take effect until Cabbage Patch originalator Original Appalachian Artworks Inc. posts a bond, a lawyer for the Cleveland, Ga., dollmaker said, "It's a complete victory."

"It's a very strongly worded opinion with a lot of indication of willful (copyright) infringement," said Atlanta lawyer William Neede.

Trading in the stickers, sold with bubble gum, has been so popular among children that they have been banned in some schools.

The stickers are made by Topps Chewing Gum Inc. A spokesman at the company's New York City headquarters, Norman Liss, said, "The company's position is that it is confident it will win when the case is tried."

Police Chief Gerard Hance is fighting growing drug use

Parents pass up aid with drug woes

EASTON, Conn. (AP) — Police Chief Gerard J. Hance thought he had a solution to his town's drug problem when he offered to help identify substances they possess from their children with no fear of prosecution.

But after a year, only 24 parents have availed themselves of the anonymous service and statistics indicate drug abuse is increasing in the affluent community 35 miles northeast of New York City.

"I'm disappointed with the response to date," Hance said this week. "We can't really put our fingers on why (response is so low), but we're seeing it manifest itself in many ways such as burglaries and robberies, serious accidents and domestic quarrels."

Burglaries in the area are up 40 percent over last year, and much of that is drug-related, he said.

The rate of drug use in this town of 6,500 people is the same as in Bridgeport, Connecticut's largest city with 157,000 people, says Hance.

Hance initiated the anonymous drug-testing program in May 1985 after a study by the United Way of Eastern Fairfield County found that drugs and alcohol were prevalent among pupils in seventh through 12th grades in six communities.

The study, encompassing Easton, Fairfield, Monroe, Stratford, Trumbull and Bridgeport, found that substance use increased with each grade level.

About 80 percent of seniors reported having used alcohol, compared with 32 percent of seventh graders. Marijuana was used by 54.9 percent of the seniors at some time in their lives, compared to 9 percent of the seventh-graders. Cocaine had been used by 22 percent of the seniors, compared to 21 percent of the seventh-graders.

Hance's program encourages parents to call police if they find a substance they believe is a drug. The police dispatcher gives the parent a code number, the parent sends the sample in and calls back in 10 days, giving the code number to learn the identity of the substance.

The parent who is told the substance is a drug is then advised on what services to contact for help.

With the code number, the police don't know the identity of the parent or child and therefore can't press charges.

Hance, a police officer for 32 years and Easton chief for eight, said one reason the program isn't attracting more callers might be that many parents are naive about drugs and aren't able to identify the problem. He also said both parents often work, leaving a bored child home alone.

He also believes too many parents have given children "equal rights."

"What society has done is given the child a special standing in the home, where his bedroom shouldn't be violated. I don't agree with this," Hance said.

"The parents are the heads of the house and the child should adhere to the rules."

"We have one 16-year-old boy who goes to two groups — one for alcohol and one for drugs, and his parents are very concerned," he said.

Thiokol to be sued over blast

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The family of Challenger astronaut Ron McNair will file suit against the maker of the solid rocket boosters blamed for the explosion that killed its seven crew-members, an attorney said Friday.

Ronald D. Krist said he will file the suit next week in U.S. District Court in Houston contending Morton Thiokol Inc. "is probably the sole culprit" in the space shuttle accident and will request unspecified damages.

McNair, 35, was killed in the Jan. 28 accident. The suit will be the first filed against Morton Thiokol, although the family of the Challenger pilot has filed a claim against the government.

The Houston Chronicle quoted McNair's widow, Cheryl, as saying she felt compelled to file the suit.

"To do nothing would be a tacit acquiescence or stamp of approval of the type of conduct that took my husband's life, and this I am unwilling to do, and not required to do in America," Mrs. McNair told the newspaper.

Krist said the family decided to file the suit after months of fruitless negotiation with Morton Thiokol. "Our only recourse is to seek relief in the courts," he said.

Thomas Russell, a Morton Thiokol vice president at the company's corporate headquarters in Chicago, said there would be no comment until the company has seen the lawsuit petition.

Charges denied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A researcher accused of hacking anthropologist Dian Fossey to death in Africa declared his innocence Friday, and his lawyer said the United States was trying to make his client a scapegoat.

"I want to respond to the outrageous charge of the Rwandan government that I murdered Dr. Dian Fossey," said Wayne Richard McGuire, a doctoral candidate who spent most of last year with Ms. Fossey, studying gorillas in Rwanda in East Africa.

"I had absolutely nothing to do with Dian's tragic death," said McGuire.

French expert thinks lake may emit additional gas

YAOUNDE, Cameroon (AP) — Lake Nios may emit more lethal gas and those who survived the cloud that killed more than 1,500 people last week must not be allowed to return home, a volcano expert said Friday.

French volcanologist Haroun Tazieff said it was possible that the pocket beneath the nine-placed volcanic lake had not been emptied entirely by a blast that sent the gas into the air the night of Aug. 21.

"The explosion was caused by a thrust of steam at very high pressure," he said. "Today, there is no more steam under the lake, but some gas undoubtedly remains. For that reason, the return of the population to the site is absolutely to be prohibited."

Tazieff is in Bamenda, capital of the remote northwestern volcanic region, trying to determine the disaster's cause. The area has about 20 lakes similar to Nios, which the people who lived on the fertile land around it called "the good lake."

The Ministry of Cooperation in Paris said in a statement that the first results analyzing gas and water from the lake, brought back by a French mission of scientific experts, indicated "carbonic gas and carbon dioxide ... caused the instantaneous death of more than 1,500 people and thousands of head of cattle."

A ministry statement said further study of the samples, and observations at the scene, would be needed to determine whether there another such disaster was likely.

Marcel Mengueme, minister for Cameroon's central administration and head of the government relief effort, said survivors were being taken care of in France, the United States, Britain and several other countries have sent aid.

"The situation is well under control. The necessary measures have been taken," Mengueme said. His relief commission heard reports Friday from army officers, government officials and non-governmental organizations charged with burying the dead and caring for the injured and homeless.

Gen. Pierre Semengue, in charge of operations in the disaster area, put the death toll at 1,535 but told the meeting it was an estimate based on census figures and the number of survivors.

Army units buried most of the dead in mass graves, without counting the bodies, to lessen the threat of disease.

USSR may allow inspections

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Soviet Marshal Sergei F. Akhromeyev said Friday the Kremlin might open Soviet territory to ground and air inspections of its military forces with the condition that Soviet vehicles be used.

Akhromeyev, first deputy defense minister, made the surprising announcement at the Stockholm conference on European security, a 35-country gathering trying to reach agreement on confidence-building measures before it ends Sept. 19.

He said in a speech and repeated at a news briefing that "we could think of adopting an air-ground version of on-site inspection on the clear understanding that inspections would be carried out from transport vehicles and aircraft provided by the inspected state."

The inspections would be of armed forces maneuver and other military arrangements, a chief subject of the 30-month-long Stockholm conference that is intended to reduce the chances of accidental conflict in Europe. Attending are delegations from all European countries except Albania, and the United States and Canada.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said, "We consider Soviet acceptance of the principle of aerial inspection a significant step toward effective verification." He said inspection allows a country with doubts about another's compliance "to relieve those doubts."

But Redman said several issues remain unresolved, including the size of forces to be involved in exercises requiring notification.

Akhromeyev is chief of the Soviet general staff and a member of the Communist Party's Central Committee. Swedish officials said he is the highest-ranking Soviet military official ever to appear before an arms control conference.

In his address to the conference, Akhromeyev outlined Soviet positions on such key issues as avoiding the use of force, notification of military maneuvers and movement of forces, arrangements for military observers and methods of checking for compliance.

Morocco abrogates Libyan treaty

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — King Hassan II said in a letter released Friday that he was abrogating a 1984 treaty of union with Libya because of Col. Moammar Gadhafi's criticism of a meeting last month between Hassan and Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres.

Hassan said in the letter written Thursday to Gadhafi that the criticism contained in a joint Libyan-Syrian statement issued the day before had reached "the threshold of the intolerable."

He said it was not possible to express the bitterness that he or the Moroccan people felt about abrogating the treaty.

The Libyan-Syrian statement published Wednesday in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, denounced the "treason of Ifrane," a reference to Hassan's meeting July 22-23 in Ifrane with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres.

"The terms of the Syrian-Libyan communique, published ... at the end of the visit of (Syrian) President Hafez el-Assad to Libya, do not allow our country to continue on the path of the union of states instituted with your country," Hassan said in the letter.

Hassan became the only Arab head of state outside Egypt to meet publicly with the head of the Jewish nation. Libya and other hardline Arab states that oppose Israel have sharply criticized the Ifrane meeting.

Twins mark 100th year

LONDON (AP) — Twins Marjorie and May Chavasse survived two world wars and 50 million-to-one odds to arrive at their 100th birthdays together on Friday.

"I don't feel any different," exclaimed May, the youngest by 20 minutes, when Britain's oldest surviving twins arrived at a champagne luncheon attended by 100 relatives and friends.

"The sisters, not identical twins, said keeping physically active and interested in life are what's kept them going.

Nephew Thomas Chavasse said the twins are "quite competitive."

"We are convinced in the family that each is determined not to die before the other," he said. "That is what keeps them going."

Bolivia ships off 162 to internment camps

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Most of the 162 political, labor and church leaders arrested under the state of siege were sent to Internment camps in Bolivia's tropical flatlands Friday, the Interior Ministry said.

A ministry spokesman said two airplanes left in the afternoon for San Josquin and Puerto Rico, towns in the Beni region northeast of La Paz.

The spokesman, who insisted on anonymity, said he did not know the exact number of detainees on the planes but indicated only a few prisoners had been freed.

Interior Minister Fernando Barthelemy said earlier in the day that about 100 would be sent to internment camps.

Government-owned mines already hurt by low world prices for tin were shut down Friday when workers walked out in a one-day strike to protest the detentions.

About 20,000 workers at 23 operating state mines joined in the walkout, called from noon Friday until noon Saturday by the Bolivian Workers-Central, the country's main labor federation.

Some factories also were closed, but banks, offices, shops and the domestic airlines and trains all continued operating.

Walter Delgado, general secretary of the Bolivian Workers Central, issued the strike call from hiding and condemned the firing of about 7,000 workers at state-owned mines in recent months.

What's what

I know the Amazon River was named after the original Amazons — female fighters who whipped the ancient Greeks. But who named it?

—A Spanish freediver identified as Francisco Orellana. He paddled upstream in 1541, and came boiling back out, yelling he'd been attacked by a giant woman. As for the ancient myth, it's said, most Greek men don't believe it, and those who do believe it don't much like it.

Q. Who, said, "You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong"?

A. Abe Lincoln. Right after he said, "You cannot help the wage earner, by pulling down the wage payer."

The typical "garden" trowel is shaped now just about as it was shaped in ancient Rome. The original version of the collapsible oil paint tube, now packed also with toothpaste, remains the same, too. What other devices, invented long ago, are still in use unchanged?

A. Two feet six inches.

KODIAK

Q. Is Kodiak Island the only place in Alaska where you find the Alaskan Brown Bear in the wild?

A. There and on nearby islands. None on the mainland.

You've read about the great bison herds in the Old West? Evidently, they were nothing to the springbok herds of South-Africa. —In 1900, observers estimated one such herd — of about 300 million of the little antelopes — to be 15 miles wide and 140 miles long.

MOON DROP

Q. In one second on earth, a ball will fall 16 feet. How far would it fall on the moon in one second?

A. That state wherein a car accident is most likely to be fatal is Wyoming.

In the cabs of some farm tractors are closed-circuit TV cameras focussed on the furrows behind.

If you put the bread slices in the waffle iron instead of the toaster, you get crunchier BLTs. Try it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You want your own way at any cost, but don't be forceful with others.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You may find conditions unbearable and want to lash out toward others. Show control. Avoid arguments.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 21): Take care you do not argue with an outsider during the day. Tonight you can grieve about town with a friend.

LIBRA (September 22 to October 21): You want to get into new interests, but don't force this. You have better ideas how to advance in your career.

SCORPIO (October 22 to November 21): You feel like making radical changes but had better postpone. Avoid an argument with your mate.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Study well how to handle important tasks that need your early attention and act on them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Use tact so that you do not disturb a highly emotional person during the daytime.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You may find it difficult to get your Saturday shopping done, but change your attitude and all will be well.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Not a good day to go after pleasure that you desire. Your mate may pick a fight, but don't take the bait.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be so dynamic and eager to get ahead that you will be a tendency to be forceful with others. So teach early the use of tact. Upon reaching early school age, your progeny can become very successful in whatever profession is decided upon, which could be marketing.

'Old Blue Eyes' ready for Milan concert

By The Associated Press

MILAN, Italy — Frank Sinatra will give a concert in Milan on Sept. 27, his first performance in Italy in 23 years, his Italian manager announced Friday.

The American singer will travel to this northern Italian city after a two-day performance in the Bernabeu soccer stadium of Madrid, Spain, manager Pierquinto Carliggi said.

Sinatra will be accompanied by a 40-member orchestra, he said.

Whitney Houston's set at fair canceled by rain

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Pop star Whitney Houston didn't get to play before the New York State Fair's biggest grandstand crowd ever when rain made the stage too dangerous and the concert was canceled.

The 16,000 concert-goers who were turned away Thursday would have been the biggest crowd ever to attend a concert at the fair's grandstand, said spokesman Joseph LaGuardia.

Ms. Houston's tour manager, Tony Blitnick, said the singer was disappointed the sound and light systems. He said the fair is trying to arrange a new concert date, possibly

Prince Charles returns; may see benefit opera

VERONA, Italy — Prince Charles headed back to England on Friday after a three-day visit to Italy, but said he might return for a Sept. 3 opera performance to benefit Cameroon after the Lake Nosi disaster.

The program is to be dedicated to opera singer Maria Callas and sponsored by the Red Cross and the Red Crescent Societies with profits to go to the Cameroon survivors. Prince Charles is expected to be released from beneath a lake in the western African nation suffocated 1,500 people.

Director Ken Russell sues, claiming default

LOS ANGELES — Film director Ken Russell has gone to court seeking more than $1 million from New World Productions, which he contends failed to pay him for directing the 1984 film "Crimes of Passion."

According to the lawsuit filed in federal court Thursday, Russell had an agreement with the Los Angeles company to direct the film, starring Kathleen Turner, for $750,514 and 20 percent of the profits.

The suit, filed by attorney Richard A. Rosen, seeks unspecified compensation and $1 million in punitive damages.

Calls to New World after business hours Thursday went unanswered. The British director's other films include "Women in Love," "The Music Lovers" and "Tommy."

Travel agent wins congratulations in wake of successful auto lawsuit

CHICAGO (AP) — A travel agent, suburban travel agency, says the he successfully sued an auto dealership that had repossessed his car in a dispute over a trade-in and was deluged with congratulatory messages from other frustrated car buyers.

The jury last week awarded Tom DeLaney $117,054 in punitive damages, stemming from his lawsuit against a suburban Datsun dealership whose conduct one juror called "totally outrageous."

Priscilla Sondag, president of the dealership, Schaumburg Datsun, called the jury's award "a gross injustice" that stemmed from popular mistrust of auto dealers, and said his company would appeal.

Girl enters alternate school

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — An 11-year-old who was barred from attending Roman Catholic grade school because of her support for legalized abortion began classes Friday at a Montessori school.

Sarabeth Eason, a sixth-grader, is attending Westside Montessori Center.

The parish priest, the Rev. Richard Miller, said in a letter earlier this month to her mother, Concepcion Eason, that Sarabeth could return to St. Agnes Grade School if she renounced her views on abortion. Sarabeth, who had been interviewed on television at an abortion rights demonstration and had signed her name to a newspaper advertisement on the issue, refused.

Her mother is a former director of a Toledo abortion clinic that was firebombed in May.

"She's finally going to get rolling in school, and that's the top priority," Ms. Eason said. "She left sad for a while about leaving St. Agnes, but then she realized that life moves on and she'll make new friends."

Man sentenced for neglect

DALLAS (AP) — A man convicted by a jury of failing to take care of his mother was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

The conviction of Ray Edwin Billingslea, 50, was the first in the state under a child-abuse statute that was modified in 1981 to include the elderly, prosecutors said.

Billingslea, who was sentenced Thursday in the court of state District Judge Gerry Miller, will appeal because he was charged with "an act of omission that is not a criminal offense," defense attorney Deke Austin said.

Billingslea was charged with injury to an elderly person in 1984 after his mother, Hazel Billingslea, about 90, was discovered in their home to be in poor condition with severe bedsores.

She eventually died, but an autopsy later found the bedsores had not contributed directly to her death.

Plan on canyon flights in works

By The Associated Press

National Park Service Director William M. Reiter, who was briefed by aides on proposals intended to reduce aircraft noise in the Grand Canyon, says he expects to recommend a plan within weeks.

Mott, who was briefed Thursday in Washington by park Superintendent Dick Marks and other officials, said his recommendation would be based on the "best professional judgment" of the agency's technical staff and not political considerations.

Environmentalists urged the agency to ban low-altitude flights within and over the canyon, saying noise from planes and helicopters disturbs the park's tranquility.

Flight operators argue that their services provide the only way for handicapped, elderly and some other tourists to see the canyon's interior.

Marks' staff in May released a report which listed six proposals, including limits on altitudes and areas of flights within and over the canyon.

Environmentalists criticized that report because it did not propose an outright ban on the flights.

In a related development, a coalition of environmentalists from five states in the West were gathering Friday at the canyon to protest the sightseeing flights as well as a proposed uranium mining operation near the South Rim.

Roger Featherstone, protest organizer and Earth First spokesman, said weekend activities would include workshops on non-violent protests, wilderness issues, and the proposed uranium mine.

RUSSELL LEE
Chronicled oil industry

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Documentary photographer Russell Lee, whose work chronicled Depression-era farmers and the American oil industry, has died at age 83.

Lee, who was a member of the University of Texas fine arts faculty from 1965 until his retirement in 1979, died Thursday at his home.

He was best known for documenting the impact of the oil industry on American life, a project sponsored by Standard Oil of New Jersey, and for chronicling poor farmers of the 1930s as one of five photographers hired by the Farm Security Administration.

Some of his photographs are in the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

"There's a picture wherever you go," Lee said in one interview. "If I saw a good picture, I'd take it. They didn't even know I was there for a while. Really, people just get in-

Lee bought his first camera in 1938, and photography soon became his life's passion, although he had studied chemical engineering at Lehigh University.

Beginning in the late 1930s, he traveled the country for the government, photographing rural tenant farmers in Indiana, flooding in the Ohio and Mississippi River valleys, and the poor in Minnesota.

He photographed urban blacks in Chicago and documented the internment of Japanese-Americans during World War II. After the war, Lee did the photography for an investigation of working conditions in the coal industry.

In Austin, Lee worked with the University of Texas on a Spanish photographic study of Spaniards in Texas.

He is survived by his wife, Jean.

Steel men close 23rd convention

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The United Steelworkers union, nearly a month into a lockout with the USX Corp., closed its 23rd constitutional convention Friday in this casino hotel city far from the struggling steel mills of the Northeast and Midwest.

"It's always a p.r. (public relations) disaster to come to Las Vegas in good times or in bad," said union spokesman Russ Gibbons. "But despite its image, this is a moderate-cost convention city."

"The name Las Vegas suggests we're out on a lark, but that's not true," Gibbons said. "We've been very cost conscious in picking this as a site."

Union officials said the five-day Las Vegas convention was no more expensive than one held in Cleveland two years ago.

But they refused to disclose the cost of the Las Vegas convention, which included about 2,800 delegates from across the nation and about 200 staff members from the union's headquarters in Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh Press, however, estimated the convention's cost at $3.8 million to more than $4 million, without including set-up costs, staff salaries, printing costs and speakers fees.

USW spokesman Gary Hubbard said the union traditionally withholds the costs of its functions, but the newspaper's figure may be high because locals pay considerable portions of delegates' expenses. He also said many delegates attend the convention on their vacations.

President Lynn Williams also defended the choice of Las Vegas earlier this week.

"Las Vegas is not an expensive place to put on a convention. The hotel rates are as reasonable as any place else, more so than many places, (and) travel rates, too," Williams said.

Delegates and journalists, for example, paid a special rate of $49 a night at the Las Vegas Hilton, located near the convention center.

Utah sheriff is suspended

LOA, Utah (AP) — Sheriff Steve Brown, charged with having sexually molested an 11-year-old girl, has been suspended by the Wayne County Commission pending the outcome of his case.

"It is not a good day when you have to suspend your sheriff," Commission Chairman Meeks Morrell said Thursday night after commissioners met with Brown and voted unanimously to suspend him.

Earlier Thursday, Brown was formally charged with one count of sexual abuse of a child by the Emery County Attorney's Office. The complaint alleges Brown touched the Emery County girl's breast.

Brown waived a preliminary hearing and was scheduled for arraignment Sept. 9 before 7th District Court Judge Boyd Bunnell. Bond was set at $5,000, which Brown posted by late Thursday afternoon.

Convicted rapist disappears from program

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff's deputies still are seeking convicted rapist Michael Eugene Goodson who allegedly violated his probation when he left a Twin Falls substance-abuse treatment program last week.

Goodson, a Twin Falls resident, was a plaintiff in a lawsuit filed against Twin Falls County over the aged jail.

Goodson, had enrolled in the in-patient program at the Port of Hope treatment center Sept. 19 as part of a four-year probation he received on two felony convictions.

Goodson left the center the following day, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter.

An escape charge will not be filed because Goodson was on his own recognition when he left the center, she added. He does face an alleged probation violation.

Sheriff Jim Munn said that area law enforcement agencies have been contacted about Goodson's disappearance. A person suspected of probation violation may be extradited from other states.

The 22-year-old Goodson was placed on probation Sept. 18 on convictions of rape and aggravated battery.

Goodson had received a life sentence in December in 5th District Court for the rape of a 16-year-old girl Aug. 31, 1985, in Twin Falls. He also was sentenced to 15 years in prison for attacking a woman with a knife in Twin Falls as she was walking with her children Aug. 14. The woman claimed Goodson threatened her and demanded she perform oral sex.

In April, Goodson was transferred from the main prison yard to state rehabilitation and treatment programs at Cottonwood and Orofino. Goodson's lawyer, Gar Haczek of Boise, had asked the court to reduce the sentences on the grounds that Goodson's State Correctional Institute at Orofino safety was endangered because he had cooperated with officers on an investigation of a stabbing at the county jail.

Judge Daniel Hurlbutt had refused to reduce the sentence, but did approve the transfer of Goodson to the state programs for about three months. After that time, Hurlbutt would review Goodson's case.

Goodson was returned to court Monday where his sentences were suspended by Hurlbutt who also placed Goodson on probation.

An evaluation committee at the Idaho State Correctional Institute at Orofino recommended to Hurlbutt in a July 14 letter that Goodson be placed on probation. Goodson's overall behavior had been good at the facility, although he didn't take responsibility for the offenses, the committee reported.

Goodson was one of the plaintiffs in a lawsuit filed by attorney Greg Fuller of Jerome over alleged inadequacies at the Twin Falls County Jail. An agreement later was reached in the lawsuit in which the county agreed to make jail improvements and build a new jail, among other items. Goodson's conviction has been appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Money, services donations help to pay for bleachers

Announcer's booth being refurbished

By KATHY SURSLEY
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The new bleachers at Buhl High School, replacing old ones completed last year by the city, building inspectors are near completion, said Gus Spiropoulos, superintendent of the Buhl School District.

Spiropoulos said he has been notified by J-U-B Engineers that the bleachers were completed and the announcer's booth is usable, but not complete. The bleachers required complete rebuilding.

Although several members of the community offered to do the work in a volunteer effort, the school board decided in July to hire a professional contractor to insure an acceptable completion of the project.

J-U-B Engineers was hired to oversee the project at a cost of $1,000. Triple K Construction Co. of Twin Falls was hired to build the structures after submitting a low bid of $9,900. The bid included $9,900 for rebuilding the bleachers and $500 for refurbishing the announcer's booth.

With proper maintenance of the structure, the bleachers should last 10 years, said J-U-B.

Spiropoulos said the district has so far received $100,000 in donations to cover the cost of the project, including an anonymous donation of $2,500.

The district solicited volunteers for the painting of the bleachers, and Buhl Rotary members have offered to complete the project. Painting was delayed until after Friday's first home game.

Fifty gallons of white paint have been donated to the project by area merchants with the primer still needing to be purchased.

In other business at this week's meeting of the School Board, Tom Fleming, representing the American Legion, approached the board with a request for a high school baseball team. "We feel the boys would have a shot at scholarship money for college," Fleming said.

The Legion has offered to pay all expenses for equipment and travel. "We're only looking at a limited schedule and we will work with the school system following their rules. We don't want to interfere with track," Fleming told the board.

Former track coach Keith Meltzer expressed some concerns to the board.

"I think we're asking a lot of the kids, and I don't know in a school our size if there are enough athletes to cover both sports," he said.

Board members were concerned about conflicting schedules if the boys wanted to turn out for both sports.

"Baseball was discontinued before because of the conflicts," noted Trustee Ulla Bell.

Fleming assured the board that the conflicts could be worked out. He presented the board with signed petitions from the baseball team and a list of names of interested students.

Meltzer mentioned the effort by some to build a new track at the high school.

"There are people working on a new track program. If baseball diminishes the interest in track, it doesn't make any sense," he said. "It's like kicking dirt in their faces."

The board agreed to take the issue under advisement.

Chuck Humphries, new president of the Buhl Education Association, announced a barbecue to be held on Sept. 15 at 6:30 p.m. at the elementary school cafeteria.

"We would like to see the board there. We hope to project a positive image to the community. We have fine teachers and think they should be recognized," Humphries said.

The barbecue will feature a speaker who has recently returned from studying the school systems in the Middle East, he said. Babysitters will be on hand during the lecture, and the public is invited.

CSI child care center fully enrolled

By JANE ROBSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Thirteen preschoolers started at the College of Southern Idaho last week, and while they receive no college credit, they do receive a lot of college support.

The 13 are enrolled in CSI's Child Care Center, an "infant" project in its second semester.

For $5 a day, CSI students who are also single parents can leave their children near the CSI campus while they attend classes.

While the center got off to a slow start last spring, director Mary Hopkins said this year the center had had to turn people away.

"This has really been helpful to students," said Hopkins. "It means less stress for the parent and less obstacles of trying to find where to put their children."

The program is similar to Headstart in that it offers a variety of activities for students and is geared toward lower income parents, she said.

"But it's not just single women going back to school," Hopkins said. "We have one young man with twins who's going to school and who works full time on the graveyard shift. I don't know how he does it."

The program was originally funded through a federal grant. Now the center receives money through a state displaced homemaker grant.

Hopkins said.

Hopkins is in trying to get more grant money to expand the building so they can add 20 more students.

"The faculty would love us to offer it to them, but right now we just don't have the room," she said. "Our goal is to be able to have 50-75 kids."

Hopkins sees the program as a model for the community.

"We're going to try and provide some classes for operators so they can better provide child care services," she said.

Although licenses are not required to operate a child care center, CSI's center is licensed, Hopkins said.

"As a parent, I would worry if my child were not in a licensed center. If a center is licensed, you know they've met fire and health codes," she said.

de Loyola: Put tax funds in Gem banks

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If Shawn de Loyola gets his way, Idaho tax dollars waiting to be spent will be deposited in Idaho banks, not banks across state lines.

The 33-year-old Boise native is the Democratic Party's candidate for state treasurer to replace six-term incumbent Marjorie Ruth Moon, also a Democrat, who is running for lieutenant governor. The Republican candidate for treasurer is Rep. Lydia Justice Edwards, R-Donnelly.

De Loyola said Tuesday that in his four years as a deputy to Moon, he has determined that state funds deposited in Idaho banks not only earn interest, but they generate additional taxes paid to the state because they boost business at banks.

He said that according to his calculations, an out-of-state bank would have to offer interest rates three-quarters of a percent above those of Idaho banks in order to make up for the loss of tax revenues that the state would collect if the money were deposited in an Idaho bank.

SHAWN de LOYOLA Would be activist treasurer

He said that in his experience, when the state goes shopping for higher interest rates out of state, they are offered rates one-quarter of a percent above Idaho rates at the most.

De Loyola said he would be "a most-oriented" as treasurer. If elected, "it is not simply the re-estimate money to the fund in addition to the interest to be earned from the economy of the state of Idaho," he said.

"Take the money out of Idaho, and it does have an effect on the state," he said. "It's a good idea to have local government investment pool, that it has an effect," he said.

In addition to pushing for investment of all state funds in Idaho banks, de Loyola said he will push for $1 million per year state expenditure on a small-business loan fund.

He said that as the federal government cuts support for the Small Business Administration, the state should establish a pool of money to loan to banks at 3 percent below market rates, which the banks must loan to small businesses at most.

"We need a long-term commitment-oriented" as treasurer. If elected, "it is not simply the re-estimate money to the fund in addition to the interest to be earned from the economy of the state of Idaho," he said.

"Take the money out of Idaho, and it does have an effect on the state," he said. "It's a good idea to have local government investment pool, that it has an effect," he said.

Moon urges in-state push for economic growth

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon said Friday she does not want to be a cheerleader for the Idaho economy, but she wants to be "out there with the team."

Moon, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, who has Republican opponent, Butch Otter, who has proposed stimulating economic development by putting his business contacts to work and acting as an ambassador and "cheerleader."

Moon said she will concentrate on developing economic growth from within Idaho rather than from outside Idaho. She said she does not want to make the lieutenant governor head of the Department of Commerce because there are other duties the state's second-in-command should attend to.

She said she and Democratic gubernatorial candidate former governor Cecil Andrus have experienced in running state government and have the practical know-how about state bureaucracy. She is a six-term veteran treasurer.

"As an example, Cecil closed the state's investment pool she established in 1981, which allowed highway districts, schools, cities and counties to pool investments and earn higher interest rates."

She said that when she researched the 1970 Joint Exercise of Powers Act, her plan was to set in motion. The pool now invests up to $100 million.

As state treasurer, Moon said she has learned about government's abilities, but that she now wants to concentrate on broader policy issues.

Council to work, she said she hopes to better manage cash flow for the state and save money by abolishing penalties for unplanned withdrawals.

Moon said she and Andrus plan to stimulate the state economy by pushing for tax reform, which will attract business to a state with a predictable tax structure. She said that, with a sales tax vacillating from year to year, Idaho will have a hard time attracting new business.

Other parts of her plan are increased investment in education and state-backed lowering interest loans to farmers, she said. Education funding is an important tool for attracting business, she said.

Moon was in Twin Falls Friday for opening ceremonies at Democratic headquarters and for an evening fund-raiser event at the Turf Club.

Stallings backs Farm Bill vote

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Saying his opponent doesn't understand farm issues or the workings of Congress, Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, blasted his Republican challenger, Mel Richardson, Friday for criticizing Stallings' vote in favor of the 1985 Farm Bill.

"Stallings said that if Richardson is going to criticize his vote in favor of the bill, he should also criticize President Reagan for signing the bill and Idaho Senators Jim McClure and Steve Symms and First District Rep. Larry Craig. All three also voted for the bill."

"If he is going to be a credible candidate, he has got to talk about issues," Stallings said of Richardson.

He attributed Richardson's recent critical remarks to "confusion and inexperience," and said that if Richardson is going to attack his record, he should "keep the facts straight."

Richardson's campaign manager, Paul Clayton, said Friday evening that if Stallings really had an interest in Idaho, he would have spotted the flaw in the 1985 Farm Bill which threatened the dry bean industry. "If he wants to take credit for being on the Agriculture Committee and being a watchdog," he should take blame for the flaw in the bill, said Clayton.

The IDAHO Democrat quoted a recent interview with Richardson in which the Idaho Falls congressman and GOP candidate for Congress criticized Stallings for missing the section of the 1985 Farm Bill that could have severely damaged the dry bean industry.

Stallings had two local bean dealers on hand at the Friday morning press conference who praised Stallings for his help in re-writing a portion of the farm bill that would have allowed midwestern farmers to plant beans and other non-program crops in acreage the government paid them to set aside.

"Congressman Stallings and his staff are certainly true friends of the dry bean industry. I can't understand Mel's statement that Congressman Stallings did nothing to help us," said Chps Barlow of Conida Warehouses in Hazelton.

Barlow said he and National Dry Bean Council delegate Harold Wilson of Beacon Bean in Gooding received daily calls from Stallings' office while Congress was re-writing the Farm Bill and that both of them testified before Congress with the help of Stallings' office.

Stallings also passed out letters dated March 24 and April 22, from the Idaho bean commission and Weibert Bean Dealers Association prating him for working to amend the Farm Bill to protect bean growers and dealers.

Survey points way for Sun Valley's marketing strategies

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The results of a recent marketing survey of potential visitors is being used for two purposes by the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce: to capitalize on the resort's strengths and to overcome its weaknesses.

The chamber will use the survey to develop its advertising campaign for the resort and has already established a task force to overcome the persistent problem of access to the resort by visitors.

During the chamber's fall luncheon Thursday, Tom O'Rourke, of the Seattle agency that conducted the survey, said the survey shows how visitors perceive Sun Valley in relation to other winter resorts and what direction to take in an advertising campaign.

"This is going to give us the ammunition we need to do that," O'Rourke said.

The agency surveyed people who had responded to the chamber's past advertising effort with mail, or phone inquiries, and O'Rourke said it shows they perceived Sun Valley as having two major strengths: its reputation as an established, quality ski resort and its value as a good buy for the visitor's money.

The chamber should use these perceived strengths as the basis of its advertising campaign, he said.

Using these strengths, he said his agency will help Sun Valley in developing a "position line" what statement that will come to identify Sun Valley — as an umbrella for its advertising strategy. The line is ready, O'Rourke said, but should be within three weeks.

O'Rourke said the chamber must choose its position line carefully because it will have to live with it for several years. An example he gave that builds on the strength of the resort's reputation was "Sun Valley — Beneath that umbrella, the chamber's advertising strategy will attempt to inform potential visitors about its less known strengths and could serve to overcome some of the misconceptions about Sun Valley found in the survey, he said.

The survey also gives the chamber an idea of whom it is competing against, O'Rourke said. The results say that in people's minds

Sun Valley is competing more with Aspen and Vail in Colorado than with the Utah ski resorts or Jackson Hole, Wyo., he said.

Those surveyed, primarily from metropolitan areas on the East and West Coast, saw the two Colorado ski areas at the top of six premier winter resorts. Sun Valley and Lake Tahoe were "in the middle" in their perceptions while Park City, Utah, and Jackson Hole were "viewed at the bottom," he said.

As for the summer, the survey showed that people don't know anything about Sun Valley, O'Rourke said.

"It has no position, no image in the minds of the people out there," he said.

He did not say how that would affect the resort's summer marketing strategy.

The ability of visitors to get to Sun Valley has long been seen as a weakness of the resort because of its distance from any major cities and the lack of airline service. The survey verified that perception.

Two weeks ago, Chamber President Chip Fisher formed a transportation task force to find ways to improve the resort's year-round transportation services and to educate travelers and travel agencies on how to best get to Sun Valley.

"I think we're going to see a lot of solid progress in that area now," said Dick Fenton, a member of the task force.

The task force will deal with ground and air transportation and will attempt to increase the use of existing services and create more.

Texas couple hurt in rollover

BURLEY — A Texas couple was injured slightly on Friday when their car rolled over three times on Interstate 84 near Burley, the Idaho State Police said.

Police said the couple, 66-year-old Jack Ruelhman and his 36-year-old wife, Mei, were taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital. She suffered several bruises and was admitted to the hospital. Ruelhman listed her in good condition. He was treated and released.

The accident occurred about 4 p.m. after Ruelhman was trying to get a map out of the car door and lost control, state police said. The 1988 Volvo rolled over three times and came to rest on its wheels.

State police said it took an hour to free the woman from the car.

Funnel cloud only threatened

FAIRFIELD — A funnel cloud threatened Camas County Friday afternoon, but didn't cause any damage, County Sheriff Harold Lee reported.

The funnel cloud was seen west of Fairfield about 2:10 p.m., but it never touched the ground or approached populated areas, he added.

"We went out and watched the clouds. You could see the funnel up in the air, but it went into the cloud which headed to the back side of Soldier Mountain," Lee said.

Early in the afternoon, there were plenty of heavy "grey" clouds, rain and lightning blizzing the area, he reported. Lightning ignited a small grass fire 20 miles west of Fairfield near Pine Road. Bureau of Land Management fire crews were summoned to the blaze.

The occurrences in Camas County were typical of what happened elsewhere in the state.

National Weather Service reported that a tornado had been sighted near the Little Camas Reservoir north of Mountain Home.

Elsewhere, thunderstorms assaulted the state, with the heaviest activity over the central mountains and the south central mountains.

Currie rips incumbent Craig for extremist wilds position

BOISE (AP) — Accusing the incumbent of taking an extremist position, Democratic congressional challenger William Currie says the designation of additional wilderness in Idaho is inevitable and all parties should compromise so Idahoans decide the issue.

"Face it, we're going to have more wilderness," Currie told reporters Friday in response to statements earlier this week by incumbent Republican Congressman Larry Craig.

"We have to come up with a compromise we can sell to Congress rather than have the eastern people decide it for us."

Currie, saying he hoped the issue would be settled by Congress next year, declined as did Currie, to state a specific amount of land he could support for addition to the over 4 million acres of wilderness already designated in Idaho.

He said he wanted to discuss the issue with Idaho GOP Sens. Jim Mc-Clure and Steve Symms, who had proposed 526,000 additional acres two years ago in an ill-fated vote to end the debate. At that time, Craig called for only 250,000 more acres while Democratic Gov. John Evans backed just over 1 million and the state Fish and Game Commission recommended 1.8 million.

About 8 million acres in Idaho have been tied up in the debate over how much should be preserved and how much released for multiple use and potential development.

Currie said he agreed with former Gov. Cecil Andrus, campaigning to regain the chief executive's office, that there was room for a reasonable compromise among the varying positions, using the senator's proposal as a starting point.

But he said the political deadlock over wilderness will continue to exist "as long as people take extreme positions, refuse to listen and fall to compromise."

Craig said some parts of the state could be economically destroyed if the wilderness issue is not resolved quickly.

Meanwhile, independent congressional candidate David Shepherd, planning to open a campaign office in Lewiston next week, called for more additional wilderness in the state, taking the position many conservative Republicans have.

He also scoffed at Craig's recent suggestion that a highway be built through the rugged Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness in central Idaho so more people would have access to the 2 million acre tract.

"I think he needs some sleep," Shepherd said.

Craig, who has claimed his proposal was blown out of proportion, said public response has been mixed. But Currie contended Idahoans are overwhelmingly opposed to such a scheme.

Mercury spill settlement will pay for restoration of mining site area

BOISE (AP) — A $120,000 legal settlement over a mercury spill near the Salmon River will be used to restore the area around an Idaho County mining site.

The lawsuit filed last year on behalf of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare was settled by a stipulated agreement between the state and mining claim owners Craig, Aaron and Bill Powell of Powell Mining, and claim operators David and Gray of Micro Gold II Partnership, all of Seattle.

Micro Gold II used mercury to recover precious metals at the site.

Health and Welfare discovered the spill in 1984, and early last year issued an order for preventive and corrective measures.

The suit was filed after the owners and operators failed to comply. The companies said they planned to begin cleanup work last fall, but were stopped by early snow in the area.

Besides a cash settlement, the agreement calls for no more mining while DeWitt State Gov. John Evans without prior state approval.

At least 12 pounds of mercury dardes were spilled at the site near Florence in 1983, contaminating about half an acre near the West Fork of Meadow Creek, which flows into the Wind River tributary of the Salmon River.

Attorney General Jim Jones said it was the first time court action was used to force compliance with a Health and Welfare order.

Jones said the "successful conclusion of this suit should send a signal to the state, intends to insure compliance with clean water standards and responsible mining practices."

Climbers to knock rocks loose above Mormon Church vaults

LITTLE COTTONWOOD CANYON, Utah (AP) — A four-man team of expert climbers plan to spend Labor Day weekend making the slopes near the Mormon Church's massive genealogy records vaults safer.

The vaults, burrowed deep into a granite mountain in this canyon southeast of Salt Lake City, contain more than 1.5 million reels of microfilm containing genealogical data. The records are treasured by Mormons, who believe in baptism for dead ancestors.

Doug Hansen and his associates, Boone Speed, Keith Hadley and Shawn Mitchell, have been hired by the church to scale the mountain. They will carry crowbars to dislodge chunks of loose rock hanging over the Granite Mountain Records Vault's parking lot below.

"We expect to knock down about 100 tons of rock," Hansen said, noting his crew will spend 12-hour shifts Saturday and Sunday clinging to the mountain's sheer walls.

Church officials said they are concerned about safety of those visiting the vaults and decided to hire Hansen Mountaineering Inc. to remove hazardous portions of the mountain face.

"Hocks of various sizes roll off the mountain periodically," said Tom Coon, vaults maintenance supervisor. "They're loosened by the freeze-thaw cycle every winter and spring by heavy rain. We've had more moisture than usual in the past couple of years and that's increased the potential for falling rock."

No injuries due to the falling rock have occurred at the site, "but every now and then a parked car will get dinged and last year a good-sized rock damaged one of several portions to the vaults."

Trading firm sues Burley feedlot

BOISE (AP) — A Burley feedlot is being sued for more than $1.5 million over its alleged failure to live up to terms of a contract to fatten nearly 9,000 head of cattle for market.

I.B.P. Trading Co., based in Pittsburgh, Pa., filed suit Thursday in Boise's U.S. District Court against Chall Alford and Feeders Grain Supply Inc., doing business as Burley Butte Custom Feedlot.

I.B.P. contends that by feeding an "intermediate" rather than the more costly "finishing" ration that was paid for, and by selling some cattle to a packing company at "heavily discounted prices."

The complaint also alleges some of I.B.P.'s cattle died while in the Burley feedlot during the summer of 1985, that they were kept on feed longer than normal, and that the cattle were forced to move their owners to other feedlots for finishing before putting them on the market because they had not gained enough weight.

Those actions constituted "willful, wanton, outrageous, and extreme deviations from reasonable standards of conduct..." according to the suit.

Burley Butte officials could not immediately be reached for comment Friday.

2 to attend Baha'i conference

TWIN FALLS — Mary Lee Roberts of Twin Falls and Harry Masoth of Buhl will be among the 7,000 people from all parts of the world expected to attend the Baha'i International Peace Conference to be held Thursday through Sunday in San Francisco.

Roberts and Masoth will represent the Magic Valley Peace Committee, which was invited to present two workshops on Idaho's Magic Peace Project at the conference. Other Idaho representatives of the project, from Pocatello, Boise and American Falls, will also be attending the conference.

Keynote speaker for the program is Dr. Ervin Laszlo, an authority on systems science and world order. Laszlo has written several books on peace, including "The World Population, the Arms Race, Ecology and Nutrition."

Another featured speaker is Robert Bellah, sociologist from the University of California at Berkeley. Bellah wrote "Habits of the Heart," a book on individualism and commitment to life.

Thomas Banyaca, native American spiritual leader and Hopi medicine man, will speak on world peace and "The Great Purification."

A blood drive sponsored by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank is a conference service project. Four hundred conference participants daily will contribute blood to the bank.

At the conference, members of the Baha'i Faith and key representatives from a variety of peace groups will focus on themes expressed in "The Promise of World Peace," a statement released by the Baha'i International Governing Body, the Universal House of Justice. Various forums will cover six major themes of the peace statement: spiritual renewal, socioeconomic development, the equality of men and women, universal education, elimination of racism and the concept of world federalism. Baha'is believe that each one of these areas must be addressed before a lasting peace can be achieved in the world.

A special children's program is aimed toward giving them an understanding of peace and skills necessary to promote peace. Special activities, field trips and entertainment are planned.

Entertainment will feature singer-songwriters Leslie Spiro and Kelly Brass whose song "We Are One" was chosen as the theme song for the Magic Peace Project earlier this year at the invitation of a group of Twin Falls high school students. The singers will be coming to Twin Falls in October for the second annual "We Are The World" show.

The Baha'i peace statement has been credited to more than 160 leaders of countries throughout the world, including President Reagan, who accepted the document in a White House ceremony last December, and to state and national senators, congressmen and peace-related organizations. Locally, it has been presented to Gov. John Evans, Sen. Steve Symms, a number of mayors, the Fort Hall Tribal Council and the members of the Magic Valley Peace Committee.

The first class, which begins Sept. 15, is entitled "Religion and the Quest for Peace." It will provide an introduction to a number of historic LDS community.

Speakers will include Pastor Allen Fines of Bethel Temple Church, Filer; Pastor Roger Robles of Filer; Rosemary Doessen of the Guadalupe Center and a representative of the LDS community.

Lowell Greathouse of the First United Methodist Church; Pastor Bob VanWest of the First Presbyterian Church and Pastor Ellis Keck of the First Baptist Church in Jerome.

An average of only one out of every three Mormon converts receives an endowment, Buerger said, with data since 1971 showing a widening gulf between total LV endowments and the number of new converts.

Given that young Mormon missionaries account for almost one-third of all rites for the living since 1971, "the actual percentage of new members receiving their own endowment is much smaller," he said.

Buerger said Mormon leaders should update temple rituals to help boost temple activity.

Massoth said, "This series will be non-Christian thinkers and a few scientists have to say on this subject.

Classes will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 104 of the Shields Building and the fee is $20 for each series. For more information call the Continuing Education office at 733-9554, or pre-register in the Taylor Administration Building.

Out-of-date temple rites repulse converts — speaker

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Outdated temple rites may be the reason fewer Mormon converts are participating in rituals the faith believes are essential for salvation, a speaker at the Sunstone Theological Symposium says.

David John Buerger, director of the Personal Computer Center at Santa Clara University, Calif., told conference participants here that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints should update its temple ceremony, especially portions depicting women as subservient, so that more Mormons will attend.

Despite massive expenditures to build new temples and a surge in the number of Mormons entering temple work, Buerger said the number of temple rituals for the dead have remained "relatively flat over the last 15 years," and fewer Mormon converts are participating in special "endowment" rites believed essential for salvation.

"The implications are incredible," said Buerger, a Mormon. "It suggests that massive expenditures for temples may not be bringing results church leaders are trying to achieve."

Buerger spoke Saturday after 200 overflow participants were turned away for his first talk Thursday. Organizers of the Symposium said about 1,500 people, most of them Mormons, attended the four-day conference, which began Wednesday.

A study of only one out of every three Mormon converts receives an endowment, Buerger said, with data since 1971 showing a widening gulf between total LV endowments and the number of new converts.

Given that young Mormon missionaries account for almost one-third of all rites for the living since 1971, "the actual percentage of new members receiving their own endowment is much smaller," he said.

Buerger said Mormon leaders should update temple rituals to help boost temple activity.

JACKPOT, Nev. — A century ago California-bound covered wagons pulled through the desert at the place now called Jackpot, Nev. The trail they made through the sagebrush is still clearly visible today. On Aug. 24, more than 100 members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints gathered here that trail and broke ground for the region's newest church building.

"We started out meeting in the Club 93 Convention Hall," explained President LaDell Handy in a news release. "By 1979 we had a trailer to meet in." He continued, "but we outgrew it. We'll be in this new building by January and the trailer goes out to Three Creek."

Because the Jackpot congregation is small, only 77 members, it is called a branch, not a stake. The branch's new building will be built on five acres of historic sagebrush. By Jan. 1, the building will include a chapel with seating for 70 and eight classrooms. Facilities will also include a parking lot and a regulation-sized baseball diamond.

Zimbabwe's Mugabe wages economic war on South Africa

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Prime Minister Robert Mugabe said Friday that tough economic sanctions he has pledged against South Africa will override a trade agreement with the white government of Zimbabwe's powerful neighbor.

Mugabe also said Zimbabwe will retaliate — against — expected South African reprisals, possibly by seizing South African assets and stopping state pension payments to 40,000 white emigrants from Zimbabwe living in that country.

"We have the punch. True, we will suffer, but we will not die as a nation," he told a news conference.

Mugabe is chairman-designate of the 101-member organization of countries that profess non-alignment, which is holding its triennial meeting here.

The 62-year-old former guerrilla leader's remarks increased speculation that he will lead the non-aligned movement on a more radical and possibly more anti-Western course.

He succeeds Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi of India as chairman when the summit begins Monday.

Mugabe and the leaders of five other Commonwealth nations, including Zaire, agreed to sanctions at a Commonwealth ministers' summit Aug. 4-5 in London. Only Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, the seventh leader attending, did not go along.

Since then, for nearly two weeks, the South African government conducted painstaking border inspections of cargo entering its territory from Zimbabwe and Zaire. Some shipments were delayed for more than a day.

It also imposed a special levy on goods bound to and from Zaire, in the form of a deposit payable when the cargoes enter South African territory and refundable when they leave.

Both black-ruled countries transship much of their imports and exports through South Africa.

On Friday, foreign ministers of at least 70 of the non-aligned member states ranging from Soviet-supported Afghanistan to pro-Western Kenya ended two days of preparatory talks for the summit.

Officials of Zimbabwe say about 50 national leaders are expected to attend, including Libyan leader

Muammar Gadhafi and presidents trade pact with South Africa shortly before the Commonwealth meeting.

Fidel Castro of Cuba and Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua.

"The agreement was signed before our decision in London," he said, "but whatever the agreement says, guards armed with submachine guns, acknowledged that his government had renewed a preferential trade pact with South Africa shortly before the Commonwealth meeting."

July foreign trade deficit sets monthly mark

By ROBERT FURLLOW
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's foreign trade deficit surged to a one-month record of $18 billion last month, heading ever faster toward the worst year ever, government figures showed Friday.

At the current pace, goods entering the country will surpass U.S. exports by $75 billion this year, far surpassing 1985's record $48.5 billion deficit and adding another crushing blow to already-suffering U.S. manufacturers.

Even U.S. farm produce, long a bright spot in an otherwise bleak trade picture, showed a third straight monthly deficit in July after decades of surpluses.

In further bad news for the generally sluggish national economy, the government reported that sales of new single-family homes declined 5.6 percent in July, the fourth straight decrease for the housing industry.

New houses were sold in July at an annual rate of 656,000, the lowest since last October, analysts said. No big improvement can be expected without further declines in mortgage rates.

The average sales price hit a record $116,900, up from $109,800 in June.

Meanwhile, the huge foreign-trade deficit has hurt countless U.S. businesses that have found more and more Americans switching to foreign goods.

As the deficit has risen in the past few years, much of the blame has been put on the high value of the U.S. dollar, relative to other nations' currencies — a relationship that made foreign goods cheaper for Americans to buy.

However, the value of the dollar has been coming down with no discernible positive effect on the deficit.

The new report "offers almost no signs of hope on what is the biggest economic problem for the country," said Allen Sinal, chief economist for Shearson, Lehman Bros. in New York.

Some economists — and some Reagan administration officials — have said the declining dollar value will still have an impact, and Sinal agreed. But he also said the size of the overall trade "deterioration is too great to be anything other than very disturbing for the economy."

Donald Straszheim, chief economist for Merrill Lynch & Co. in New York, said the July deficit "may very well be the worst month; but the trade numbers are not going to improve quickly."

He suggests to us that third-quarter growth in the economy is not going to be any good at all," he said.

In July, the Commerce Department report said, American businesses and individuals bought more foreign goods in a single month than ever before in history — $35.7 billion, up $3.5 billion from June — even though the nation's oil-import bill declined.

And exports of U.S.-produced merchandise dipped by $1.4 billion to $17.7 billion after rising in June.

Counting July's deficit, which surpassed January's previous one-month record of $16.5 billion, the trade deficit for the first seven months of the year stands at $102 billion.

With imported oil prices hitting $12.79 per barrel, the lowest since January 1976, trade in petroleum and related products showed a $2.8 billion deficit, a bit better than July's $3.1 billion.

"The July deficit reached $5.5 billion with Japan, up from $3.7 billion in June; $4.2 billion with Western Europe, up from $3.8 billion; $2.3 billion with Canada, up from $1.9 billion; and $1.7 billion with Taiwan, up from $1.3 billion."

The deficit with Japan, as well as the overall deficit, would have been even higher except for a transaction — counted as a U.S. export of more than $1 billion — in which non-U.S. gold was brought to this country and then re-exported.

The overall trade deficit had been $14.2 billion in both May and June.

USDA estimates 9% of corn crop mature

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 9 percent of the nation's corn crop is mature, according to a weekly report by the Agriculture Department.

The estimate, as of Aug. 24, compared with 5 percent the crop matured a year ago and the average for this time of 4 percent.

Illinois showed 12 percent mature, compared with 3 percent of the acreage last year and 3 percent for the long-term average. Iowa, however, had none listed as of Aug. 24 and none in either of the other averages.

Other states and their percentage of crop reported mature, compared with a year ago and the historical average percent, included:

Georgia, 98 percent on Aug. 24, 96 a year ago and 89 historically; Indiana, 9, 3 and 2; Kansas, 25, 10 and 10; Kentucky, 30, 18 and 12; Michigan, none, none and none; Minnesota, none, none and none; Missouri, 36, 14 and 13; Nebraska, 1, none and none; North Carolina, 67, 73 and 61; Ohio, 4, 7 and 1.

Boise banks reduce interest on savings

BOISE (AP) — Some major Boise banks have dropped or will drop interest rates on passbook savings accounts in the near future.

But savings and loan institutions say their rates have remained steady.

First Interstate Bank lowered the interest rates on savings accounts with a balance of less than $10,000 to 5 percent on Aug. 1, said Kay Taylor, senior vice president and chief financial officer.

Savings accounts with more than $10,000 earn a 5.25 percent. The rate on all First Interstate savings accounts previously was 5 percent.

"Savings passbook rates were one of those sacred cows that you didn't want to touch," said Taylor. But lower passbook rates are "a general trend because we all are tied to interest rates."

Interest rates now are at a 10-year low, she said.

Citizens National Bank also changed its rate this week, from 5.25 percent to 5 percent.

First Security Bank anticipates lowering its rate within about a month, according to Executive Vice President Ralph Hawkins. The bank is preparing the required 30-day notice for its customers and probably will lower the rate about Oct. 1, he said.

Hawkins declined to say what the new rate would be. First Security savings accounts remained at 5.5 percent on its passbook savings accounts.

At Idaho Bank and Trust, officials were preparing a statement to inform customers that the bank could change the interest rate. But the statement, due out within a month, would assure them that there were no immediate plans to do so, a spokesman said.

IB&T's rate is 5.5 percent. The rate at American Bank of Commerce is 5.5 percent.

The rate for a standard passbook savings account remained at 5.5 percent at Benj. Franklin, Home Federal, Northwest Federal, Provident Federal and United First, all savings and loan associations. Officials said they had no immediate plans to lower their rates.

CSI faces controversy over reserved seating

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some 15 years ago when The Times-News referred to the College of Southern Idaho's gymnasium as the CSI fieldhouse, then-President James Taylor took time from his schedule to point something out to the writer.

"It is obvious," he said to the offending reporter, "that you have never seen the master plan for the CSI campus or you would know that what we are playing in now is the CSI physical education facility or gymnasium. On the master plan, you would have noticed that the next building in the great circle is the CSI fieldhouse. It will be round, seat approximately 12,000 people and will be exactly the type of facility we will need to accommodate our nationally renowned teams."

It was always Taylor's hope that the proposed 12,000-seat fieldhouse would issue from a game-worn shell of Golden Eagle fans.

But, with the exceptions of times when a good North Idaho or Ricks team might show

'My feelings are damn hostile about it. It looks like another great year for CSI basketball, but only for those rich enough to afford it.'

— Red Barber, CSI Student Body President

up, the CSI gym has been sufficiently large — until last spring. Then, in a burst of fan participation that appears in athletics from time to time, there wasn't enough seating for seven straight home games at the end of the basketball season. Fans started showing up at 3 p.m. for a 7:30 start and the lack of seating became the major bone of contention.

People who claimed they had to work and didn't have a chance to get into line until after 5:30 p.m. (when the gymnasium was filled anyway) came up with a suggestion: "let us buy reserved seats."

And now CSI has a reserved-seat controversy raging.

At first blush, this reserved-seat brouhaha is based on two or three games a season at the most. The chances of CSI's schedule, with the best teams coming to Twin Falls late in the season, meshing with an upswing in fan enthusiasm varies from year to year.

It would appear that there is sentiment in the CSI hierarchy for at least a partial move to some reserved seating.

"Every school in the country has something like this for their boosters and major program supporters," says men's basketball Coach Fred Trenkle. "I see it as a chance to improve the facility... put in some individual seating without it costing the school anything."

But CSI Student Body President Red Barber feels differently.

"My feelings are damn hostile about it. It looks like another great year for CSI basketball, but only for those rich enough to afford it. This is a poor idea," he says. "It will only cost CSI fans in the long run. Please let it die and let us all enjoy a good season."

Trenkle says his ideas concerning the seating have evolved to installing individual chairs on the middle two-thirds of the floor section on the west side of the gym.

Currently the floor sections consist of five 20-foot folding bleachers 12 rows high. Under Trenkle's plan, the middle three bleacher sections would be removed and replaced with folding individual chair rows.

"It's all been measured. It would stick out just one inch farther than the current bleachers," Trenkle says.

The problem is that the individual seats reduce capacity about 30 percent over bleachers. That's why Trenkle believes it would be best to try the reserved section on one side first rather than include what is called the student floor section, too.

Much of CSI's interest seems to be aimed at fan convenience. President Gerald Meyerhoeffer says he has received complaints from some businessmen who have said, "I give $500 a year to the scholarship fund at CSI and I can't even get into the game to watch them play."

Meyerhoeffer says he won't be dragged into a discussion of the definition of "give" within the context of that quote.

The reserved seats would cost $100 — but that figure would include a season pass as well. Since CSI is playing 19 home games this year, the reserved-seat cost figures out to about $2500 per seat.

The reserved seats have to accomplish a number of things to justify their existence. First, the college wants them to pay for themselves. That means for the first year, bleachers would be painted and seats numbered; the first year's income would pay for the chairs and their installation the second year. It means two year's of lost revenue to the athletic department.

The total economics of the CSI athletic

Burley downs Beavers

Bobcats shut out opponent 28-0

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Maybe a move up to the A-1 classification wasn't so bad for Burley High School after all.

The Bobcats unveiled a deep and experienced backfield and a stingy defense Friday evening shutting out A-2 American Falls 28-0 in the non-conference season-opener for both.

"We felt that our defense was going to be our strength," said second-year Burley Coach Gary Hovsey. "We had quite a few kids coming back."

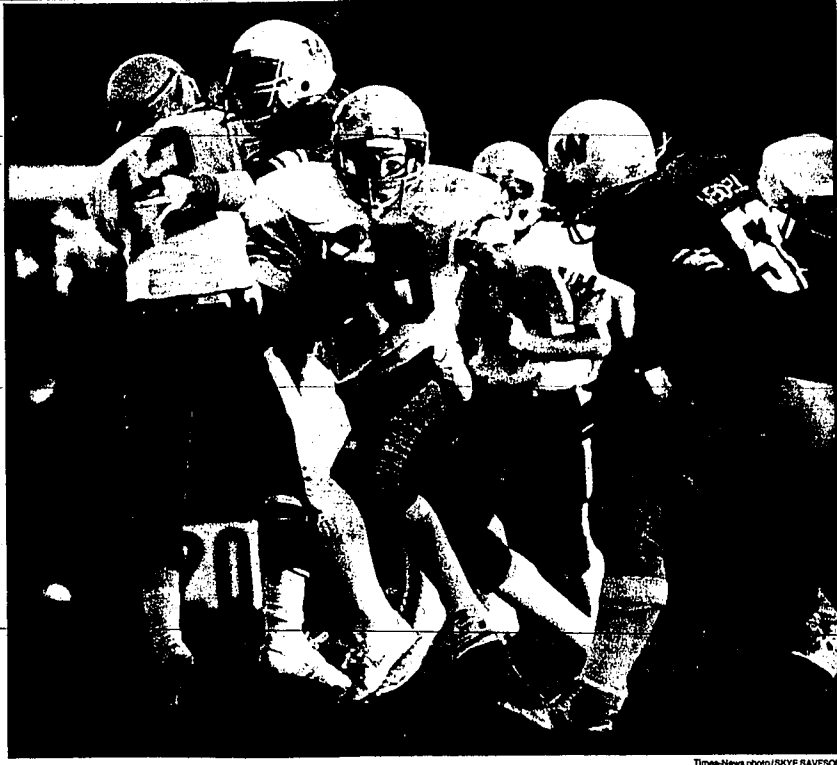

While the Bobcat offense sputtered until late in the first half, the defense held the Beavers to less than 30 yards rushing and put the initial points on the board.

American Falls was thwarted on its initial second quarter possession, a penalty putting the ball back at the Beaver 10-yard line. At that point, Beaver quarterback Greg Barker elected to put the ball up in an attempt to recoup the lost yardage — with disastrous results.

Jared Skaggs picked off the errant aerial at the 27-yard line and romped into the end zone untouched. When the extra point try was stopped, Burley led 6-0 with 8 minutes, 39 seconds on the clock.

American Falls missed an opportunity to pull even when, on the Bobcat's next possession, linebacker Steve McComber intercepted at his own 17 and appeared to have a clear field up the sideline. But McComber veered toward the middle of the field and was pulled down after a five-yard run.

Trojans surprise Bulldogs

Kimberly drops its opener, 25-6

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Raft River was a step quicker on all the major plays — both offensively and defensively — Friday night and the Trojans came up with a surprisingly lopsided 25-6 non-conference upset of the Kimberly Bulldogs in the season football opener for both teams.

It probably will come as a warning trumpet to other members of the Magic Valley Conference, giving the Trojans some instant respect because the Bulldogs were expected to be a prime contender in the A-3 Canyon Conference. Kimberly was ranked fifth among the A-3 teams in the state in the preseason Association Press poll earlier in this week.

The difference appeared to be the defense where the Trojans were able to keep Kimberly from more than two sustained drives for the night. One of those came on the first possession and ended on a touchdown. But starting quarterback Tim Shaw led the game soon after with a severe chin cut and Kimberly's offense was largely reduced to "the ground game" after that. Raft River was more than able to answer that challenge.

"I wasn't worried about the defense," said Raft River Coach Tom Harrison. "We were returning a lot of people there and a lot of seniors. We felt it was going to be a tough night but our kids have been excited for this season to start all year and they looked like it tonight."

The Trojans gave Kimberly three

Eagles field a team even better than last year's 30-1 squad

Our August CSI basketball report: The easiest thing to tell you about this year's College of Southern Idaho basketball team is that it will be better than last year's.

But the hardest thing to tell you will be how this will translate to crowd reaction, won-lost records, etc. Last year's team, you'll recall, had a very special chemistry that proved very marketable to Magic Valley fans.

As for the matter of wins and losses, this team won't lose much. Maybe not 30-1 like last year in the regular season but certainly its another 25-plus win year and the games CSI loses will be games you'll want to see because they'll be very competitive.

The major reasons it is easy to tell you CSI will be a better club are these:

Six — or half of the team — return from last year (two full time and two more sometime starters) and each is playing better this fall than he was when the season stopped last year.

Of the six newcomers, each is bigger than the one he replaced from last year and, for the most part, shoots better. It is for certain to be a stronger rebounding team. And despite the added size, there won't be a major reduction in ability to run the floor.

To say that Chris Blocker can be replaced probably isn't accurate since he was, after all, the best we've seen here at CSI. But check what replaces him: 6-foot-4 (an inch taller) Richard Ramey who transfers here from Kaskaskia, Ill. Community College where he led that region in scoring, assists and (catch this) rebounding while being named regional player of the year.

One other thing about Ramey: he could well prove to be every bit as good an outside scoring threat as Greg Boyd, now at Weber State. University of Houston wants to sign him now. "Ramey's a big timer. A lot of people are wanting to talk to him already and a lot more are going to want to shortly after the season starts," says Trenkle.

The returners are familiar to area fans — jumping Joe Johnson, now over 6-4; steady Erick Newman, the Chicago guards Gerald Collins and Keith Jackson and the guards Sean Lasher and Wood River redshirt Dale Karst.

We'll not delve too much with those lads because they are well enough known.

As for newcomers, Coach Fred Trenkle says "there's just no doubt that this is the biggest, most physical, most athletic and deepest team I've ever had here."

Two of the newcomers are transfers from NCAA schools. Bill Wirsky, Houston, Tex.,

Prep cross country runners get ready for a new season

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — While football and volleyball players command the crowds, perhaps one of the loneliest of prep sports of all gets under way in the Magic Valley next Thursday.

It's then that cross country kicks off with the annual College of Southern Idaho Invitational.

As usual, defending District 4 B champion Jerome will probably dominate its division, which features one less team because Buhl has dropped its program. Filer and Wood River will offer the Indians their district competition. It's between Malco, Twin Falls, Highland and Postleto for the Class A (title in Region III; Burley doesn't have a program).

One might think that the runners' coaches would be competing directly with volleyball and football counterparts for players. Not so, said Twin Falls mentor Duane Stands.

"We don't try to compete," he said. "We try to get individuals not in volleyball or football, and take somebody who likes to be in athletics. Maybe they aren't good enough — or big enough — to play in them, but through a lot of hard work they can succeed in cross country. Some of our kids run eight to 12 miles a day, seven days a week."

Twin Falls

While defending Region III champion Highland is a concern, Stands thinks that at least one of his charges has a better-than-even chance of getting past the Rams.

Jenny Hannah's back, and as a junior and three-year veteran of the varsity program, she'll undoubtedly try to better her eleventh place finish at the state meet, which will be held this year at Kellogg.

"I think we have one of the outstanding runners in the state," Stands said.

And of the other team members?

"We're pretty good; at least they've been to a lot of practices. It's tough to tell until we get into competition."

Newcomer Holly Peckenpaugh, another junior, will join Hannah, as well as seniors Michelle Rasmussen and Tammy Harkin, who've been with the sport for four years. Susan Sabert currently leads the state of sophomores coming up the ranks, according to Stands.

For the boys, Twin Falls' lead runner is sophomore

Gossage suspended for tirades

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Relief pitcher Rich "Goose" Gossage was suspended without pay for the rest of the season by the San Diego Padres Friday, a move that will be appealed.

RICH 'GOOSE' GOSSAGE Criticized team owners

Club President Ballard Smith said the suspension was effective immediately and was brought on by Gossage's repeated personal attacks against team owner Joan Kroc and Smith.

Gossage, who has struggled with a 5-7 record and a 4.31 earned run average, told Newsday newspaper this week that Smith "doesn't know anything and doesn't care" about baseball.

It was the latest in a series of tirades by Gossage, who earlier this season challenged Manager Steve Boros and Kroc.

In his anger over a ban of beer in the team clubhouse, Gossage berated Kroc, saying she was "poisoning the world" with food Association, said a grievance will be filed as soon as the union is officially notified of the action.

"I'm sure we'll prevail," Orza said.

"It's an obvious attempt to censor ballplayers, he can't do it, and if he could, it would be unseemly. It's a really stupid thing to have done."

Reached at the team hotel in Montreal, where the Padres are playing the Expos, Gossage declined comment on his suspension, saying he was waiting to hear from Smith. Team spokesman Bill Beck said Boros told Gossage of his suspension Friday morning.

"I don't mean to be abrupt," Gossage said by telephone from Montreal. "But I can't answer anything right now. I'm waiting for a call from Ballard Smith."

Orza said the suspension surprised Gossage and was "a big blow."

Carter's 3 homers power Indians to victory

BOSTON (AP) — Joe Carter says he likes hitting at Fenway Park even though he has not done especially well there — until Friday night.

Carter hit three home runs and went 5-for-5, powering the Cleveland Indians to a 7-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Sox was the fifth in six games for the Red Sox, and their lead in the American League East was cut to 3½ games over Toronto, which beat Minnesota 6-5.

Carter hit a two-run homer off Boston starter Tom Seaver and added solo shots off relievers Sammy Stewart and Bob Stanley. He became the eighth visiting player to homer three times in a game during Fenway Park's 75-year history.

"This is by far the best game of my career," said Carter, who raised his average to .302 with 24 homers, including five against Boston this year.

"I love hitting here, although I haven't had a great deal of success with the wall," he added. "The background is excellent and you see the ball well."

Carter got an infield single in the first inning and then hit a two-run homer in the third. Carter singled again in the fifth, and then connected for leadoff homers in the seventh and ninth.

"Tonight I was still sitting back, trying to hit the ball hard and put it into play. I was going for the third home run at the start of the ninth. I was just trying to get on base.

Baseball

"We're trying to win games and we've lost two 6-3 leads this week, so it was no time to think home run."

Carter became the first Cleveland player to hit three homers in a game since George Hendrick on June 19, 1973, and first Indian to do it on the road since Bill Glynn on July 5, 1954.

Hall of Famer Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees was the first visiting player to hit three homers in a game at Fenway on June 23, 1930. Ken Keltner, Bob Avila, Harmon Killebrew, Bog Powell, Bill Freehan and, in 1980, by Fred Patek.

N.Y. Mets 2 Los Angeles 1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Ojeda pitched a five-hitter and Mookie Wilson had three hits, an RBI and scored a run as the New York Mets extended their winning streak to four with a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night.

Keith Hernandez drove in Wilson with a first-inning, infield single off Rick Honeycutt, 9-9. Wilson singled home a run in the eighth.

Ojeda, 15-4, won his third straight decision. In his last 16 starts, he has a record of 9-2. He struck out seven batters and walked two, and at one point retired 13 Dodgers in a row.

He ran to game up with two outs and came on a ninth-inning ground out.

The Mets lowered their magic number for winning the National League East to 15.

Houston 3 Pittsburgh 2

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Scott allowed six hits in 7½ innings for his 14th victory and Jose Cruz hit a two-run single to lead the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

Scott, 14-9, won for the ninth time in his last 14 starts. The major league's strikeout and ERA leader struck out six and only one run off him was earned. He increased his strikeout total to 241, and lowered his ERA to 2.27.

Dave Smith got his 7th save. Cruz singled in the last two Houston runs in the sixth, off Rick Reuschel, 8-15. The Astros stayed seven games ahead of Cincinnati in the National League West.

Cincinnati 2 St. Louis 0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Gullickson pitched a three-hitter, retiring 17 of the last 18 batters, and Buddy Bell homered Friday night as the Cincinnati Reds won their sixth straight game with a 2-0 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Bell, 12-8, walked one and struck out five as he won his fourth straight start, his eighth career shutout. In his last eight starts, Gullickson has permitted only six earned runs over 65 innings — a 0.83 ERA.

Toronto 6 Minnesota 5

TORONTO (AP) — Cliff Johnson singled home the tying run and Jesse Barfield then hit into a game-winning forfeit, capping a ninth-inning rally Friday night that gave the Toronto Blue Jays a 6-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Toronto won its sixth straight game and pulled within ½ game of American League East leader Boston, which lost to Cleveland 7-3.

"In order to qualify for state your team has to finish in the top half of the flight," explained Stands. "Our boys haven't been strong enough in the past, that'll be a real challenge for us."

Minico Being "really thin on people" won't help the Spartans this season, predicts Coach Wes Patterson.

"We only have eight or nine girls out on the court, which is not a heck of a lot, and with the boys we're probably the same way — we have some decent individuals, but some others need to develop."

Minico placed second in the regional meet on the girls' side last year, thanks in large part to a pair of runners who graduated. But Connie Robbins, a senior, and Christy Hood, a junior, are back, and both have state meet experience.

Senior Dave Hayden, who was the Spartans' second runner last year, returns, as does fellow senior Greg Smith, who Patterson tagged as "one of the top-flight people" last year. Joining them are Mike Duff, a junior who generally ran at the sixth spot last year, and sophomores Caleb Daley and Brian Hunsaker.

Minico had scheduled a third meet on Thursday at home, but it was cancelled, and like every other Magic Valley club, will start next Thursday at CSI.

program is more demanding now than Taylor originally foresaw. The school's men's basketball team is a money-maker last year — taking in an estimated $150,000 from all sources while spending about $48,000. But the reshuffling of Region 18, in which CSI competes, has made it more expensive than ever before.

For instance, to cost the Eagles' basketball team $3,000 to go to St. George, Utah, for regionals last year and about $5,000 over and above expenses for nationals in Hutchinson, Kan.

The current home-and-home schedule for all Region 18 teams adds considerably to the CSI travel budget.

In addition, the realignment of the baseball district has added several thousand dollars per year to that budget, as have the expanded cross-country and track programs.

The major change, however, has been women's athletics. CSI already spends more on athletic scholarships for women's basketball than on men's basketball and their schedules are such that there is every possibility that in any given year the CSI women's basketball or volleyball expenses would outweigh men's basketball.

Success at the box office reflects quickly on a team's schedule. A strong case in point is this year with CSI playing 19 of its allowable 31 games (the two Hawaii games count only as one) on the homecourt.

That is possible because CSI's athletic program made a lot of money last year on men's basketball. Most junior college teams lose money, even on home games. So when a team like CSI can start thinking in terms of $2,000 income per opening, it can think also of offering $500 or $750 guarantees for teams to show up here. Those teams can make money on the guarantee — more than hosting CSI in a regular game — so they'll go on the road. Meanwhile, CSI offers its fans more home shows and puts more money in the bank to lure in more teams the next year for additional games for larger crowds to enjoy.

In short, a season pass for next year at CSI would buy more basketball than one for last year.

One alternative would be deleting the K and T Steel Tournament, which is played here every December, from the season pass. Everyone showing up for those two nights would have to pay the standard $1 for students and $3 for adults. It would still leave 17 home games on this year's pass.

Another possibility is reducing of the largesse CSI has allowed over the years. It allows all coaching passes, including passes, senior citizens and others free admittance.

And there's another possibility, CSI could just return to Taylor's original premise and retire the gymnasium as a public-use facility in favor of a 12,000-seat fieldhouse, or perhaps a more modest new facility.

Burley

With exactly one minute remaining in the half, Bryan Shaw grabbed another Barker pass at the Beaver 17 setting up senior running back Mike Kechter who swept left end on the next play for six more.

The swarming Burley defense — six sacks to its credit in the contest — continued to apply pressure yielding just one second half first down. And, the offense came alive.

The Bobcat faithful had something to cheer about over the next 24 minutes as Hoxsey alternated seniors Kechter, J.J. Gonzales, Shaw and Todd Sprenger.

Starting at its own 22-yard line, Burley put together a drive which consumed nearly half of the third quarter. Kechter, with 41 yards, and Kechter's 17 run (run failed) accounted for most of the yardage in that sequence.

Skaggs culminated the 11-yard play effort with a dive over the middle to paydirt, then hit Jarrod Hines with the two-point conversion pass.

Burley added two fourth-quarter quarters when a punt snap sailed over Barker's head on a punt attempt.

then closed out the scoring on a fourth-and-25 pass from Pete Rodriguez to Kirt Melling.

"Our defense gave us good field position in the second half," Hoxsey concluded. "And the offense really took off. We've got a long way to go, but it's nice to win the first one."

6 Minico turnovers gives Caldwell a victory

By The Times-News

CALDWELL — Minico's greatest enemy will lift Friday night as the Spartans suffered six turnovers to hand Caldwell a non-conference victory, 27-8, in the season opener for both teams.

Unofficially, Minico outpaced the Cougars in total yardage — 340 to 220 — but giveaways kept the Spartans from scoring until a one-yard run from Jeff Garro in the fourth quarter.

Trouble came early. Minico tumbled its first punt, only to watch the Cougars run it in for a touchdown on the next play.

Caldwell took a 13-0 lead soon after when the Spartans tumbled again and Cougar quarterback Jeff Headley completed a 28-yard TD pass, the first of two on the evening.

The second, to tailback Ron Wilcox, came after Minico turned it over once more in the first period.

That put Minico down 19-0 after one quarter, and Caldwell added another touchdown in the second to take a 27-0 lead.

The Spartans stopped all Cougar scoring in the second half, but it wasn't enough as the Minico offense could only produce Garro's short run.

Know coming in that our defensive secondary would be the big question," said Spartan Coach Doug Bailey. Though his defensive backs recovered in the second half, "Coming out of the gun, they got burned," he added.

Gooding 22 Wood River 14

HAILEY — Defending-state Class A-3 champion Gooding slogged and splashed its way to a 22-14 victory over Wood River's Wolverines Friday night in the non-conference season opener for both teams.

The Senators, who saw Mike Simls take over the quarterbacking helm from graduated brother Todd Simls and throw for two touchdowns, never trailed. But they never put the Wolverines away, either.

The field was a quagmire, left in a flooded state by day-long rains that stopped just before the game started.

The Senators rolled into the lead in the first quarter when Simls capped a drive with a nine-yard scoring strike to Tony Manelli.

The second quarter Simls hooked up with Buddy Brunson for 53 yards in the second quarter, but Wood River nullified that before halftime when Baba Street scored on a three-yard burst.

After a scoreless third quarter, Gooding pulled out of reach when Steve Birnie scored on a 10-yard scamper and Lagaretta threw to Magnelli for the two-point conversion.

Wood River replied with a good drive, sending Lowell Anderson for the final two yards and then shaking Brad Jacques loose for the two-point conversion.

Gooding ended the night with 281 yards in total offense against 197 for the Wolverines.

Buhl 18 Filer 7

BUHL — The Buhl Indians shook off the stigma of four lost fumbles to open their season with a 18-7 non-conference victory over archrival Filer Friday night.

The Indians, holding a decided size advantage that kept the Wildcats bottled up nearly all night, took the lead late in the first quarter when Eric Beem capped a drive by getting the last five yards.

But Filer held close through the remainder of the half.

The Indians whirled 70 yards in five plays to open the second half and start lying the victory. Brad Armitage started the drive with a 31-yard sprint and Tim Conie added gains of 16 and 11 yards to put the ball on the 2-yard line.

Two plays later, Armitage went across from the one.

A one-yard plunge just three minutes into the fourth quarter by Beem moved Buhl out of reach.

Filer broke the shutout bid in the closing minutes when Mike Brady hooked up Donal Nowak on a 30-yard scoring play and Clint Lutz tacked on the extra point.

Buhl 18 Filer 7

Murtaugh 7 Valley 0

EDEN — The Murtaugh Red Devils only scored one touchdown, but that was enough to shut out the Valley Vikings 7-0 in a non-conference game Friday night in the season-opener for both teams.

Murtaugh got on the scoreboard with a little over a minute left in the second quarter on a Shannon Wilder pass to Grant Cummins.

The extra point attempt was good and Murtaugh led 7-0.

The Vikings got inside of the 20-yard-line five times during the contest, but failed to convert.

Okaley 29 Declo

DECLO — J.J.Gee ran for four touchdowns, three after picking off Declo passes, as the Okaley Hornets routed Declo 29-0 in a non-conference contest Friday night in the teams' season-opener.

Gee's first touchdown came on a one-yard dive, but on defense he snagged three passes and took them back for six points.

Joe Schaffer added a pair of extra point kicks and had a field goal to round out the scoring.

Rimrock 34 Glens Ferry 6

GLENS FERRY — Despite a 70-yard kickoff return for a touchdown from Tim Willis, Glens Ferry dropped its season football opener to Rimrock, 34-6.

The Raiders piled up 386 total yards in the non-conference contest against Glens Ferry's 85, not including the Willis return.

Rimrock quarterback Richard Smith started scoring off with a 20-yard pass to Wes Lucas in the first quarter. After another Raider score early in the second quarter, Smith combined again with Lucas, this time for a 27-yard TD pass.

Willis' kickoff return then narrowed the Rimrock advantage to 21-6, but Smith fired yet another touchdown pass to Lucas, from 34 yards out, in the third quarter.

A 15-yard run into the end zone by Brian Dean capped the Raiders' scoring at 34, leaving the victory.

Richfield 46 Hagerman 0

HAGERMAN — Todd Swainston scored four touchdowns and Ward scored one and passed for another as the Richfield Tigers thumped Hagerman 46-0 Friday night in the season-opener for both teams.

Swainston scored a pair of touchdowns in the first half and added another pair in the second half for Fairfield, an eight-man team.

The big play for Richfield came before halftime when Ward hit Laine King for a 72-yard scoring strike.

Ward later ran for a touchdown in the third quarter.

Wendell 24 Shoshone 7

WENDELL — The Wendell Trojans, behind the running of Chris Thackeray and Jimmy Jo Prince, ran past the Shoshone 24-7 here Friday in the non-conference season opener for both teams.

Prince ran in for the first tally on 15 yards. He carried the ball 17 times running for 94 yards.

Thackeray added six points in the second quarter catching a 15-yard pass from Slade Ruffing. Thackeray hurt the Indian defense on the ground rushing for 156 yards on 15 carries.

Alan Stenmore had the only touchdown for Shoshone, ranked third in the state among A-4 teams in the Associated Press preseason poll, dashing in from 10 yards out.

Hansen 44 Jerome JVs 20

JEROME — The Hansen Huskies outscored the Jerome Junior varsity 44-20 in the first half and cruised to a 44-20 non-conference victory over the Tigers Friday night in the non-conference season opener for both teams.

Alan Enos ran the ball in from 21 yards out, but Hansen came back and scored the next four touchdowns.

Six different players hit paydirt for the Huskies, four players rushed the ball into the end zone. Chris Hill's 47-yard run was the longest for Hansen.

Kurt Rushing had a 74-yard kickoff return for the Tigers.

Bryson wins at Speedway

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Kevin Bryson of Halley fought off a stiff challenge from Ralph Jones to win the Hobby A main event Friday at Magic Valley Speedway.

Going into the final two laps, Jones was trailing Bryson by a quarter lap but closed with a strong finishing kick. In the final lap, Bryson and Jones were running neck-and-neck until Bryson inched ahead just before the finish line.

Standings leader Steve Jones was leading up to the midway point of the race before pulling into the pits, losing his lead to Bryson. Michael Gill, winner of the Hobby A heat, finished third.

In the Hobby B main event, Doug Villeneuve overtook A.J. McCavdy in the ninth lap and never relinquished his lead on his way to victory. Ray Newman and William Caldwell finished second and third respectively.

Mark Martin repeated his performance from last week by winning the Hobby C heat and having his racing night stopped short in the Hobby B main event with a tire problem.

Last week, Martin was pressuring the leaders until a tire blew out; this week, Martin was moving up again until his front right tire came off.

After finishing second in the Pro heat, Larry Fairbanks won the 25-lap Pro main event, building a huge lead early that closed in the final laps. Rod Anderson and Chuck Geska, winner of the main event, finished second and third respectively.

Rodney Sample won the Hobby B heat, finishing ahead of Ed Cullinan and Norm Hatke. Gill won his heat by squeaking past last week's Hobby B main event winner, Kenny Villeneuve.

Jim Hyde won the four-car racing-modified event.

Action will resume at Magic Valley Speedway tonight with hobby and pro cars racing.

After Friday night's racing, the current hobby point standings are:

King heads field at LPGA tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Defending champion Betsy King heads the field of golfers at Saturday's opening of the $200,000 LPGA Ral Charly Golf Classic.

King, a 31-year-old Pennsylvania native, captured the title last year with a 11-under-par 205 after a final round in which seven players held or shared the lead at some point.

After a pro-am round Friday, the 54-hole tournament opens Saturday with the final round scheduled for Monday on the 6,253-yard, par-72 Ral Golf Course.

King heads into the tournament with winnings this year of $228,897, third on the LPGA tour. King also will be looking for her second tour victory of the season after winning the Henredon Classic.

King is expected to get some fierce competition from Pat Bradley, the LPGA's leading money winner, who has racked up five victories this season, including the recent Nestle World Championship.

Her total winnings of $482,496 are twice as high as any other top pro.

Local favorite Mary Beth Zimmerman, a native of nearby Hillsboro, will also be in the hunt after a third-place tie last year with Nancy Lopez. Zimmerman finished fifth in 1984.

Zimmerman, who posted her first two career victories earlier this year, ranks sixth on this year's money list with $190,346.

Other top players entered in the tournament include Chris Johnson and Val Skinner, who rank seventh and ninth in winnings, and 1984 champion Cindy Hill.

The Ral course, with only one hole over 500 yards, has consistently provided some sizzling rounds. In 1977, Hollis Stacy posted a 72-hole total of 271 to win the LPGA Classic and set an LPGA record that stood until last year.

The tourney moved to a 54-hole format in 1981.

The event generated $43,000 last year for local charities.

Perry fined for tough tackle

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears' William "The Refrigerator" Perry reportedly has been fined $2,000 for a crunching tackle delivered against St. Louis Cardinals' quarterback Neil Lomax in last week's exhibition game.

Chicago television station WBBM broadcast the report Friday.

Perry, a defensive lineman weighing about 320 pounds, picked up Lomax and slammed him to the ground during the first half of the Cardinals' 14-7 victory at Soldier Field. Perry was not ejected from the game.

WBBM-TV did not disclose the source of its report.

Perry lost $6,000 in incentive pay for failing to show up at training camp July 15 at 300 pounds. He weighed in at 325 pounds the next day.

Bears officials could not be reached for comment by telephone late Tuesday because they had already left for South Bend, Ind., where the Bears play the Buffalo Bills in a final pre-season exhibition game Saturday.

Four players were ejected for fighting in the second half of Saturday's game, but WBBM did not say whether the National Football League also planned to fine the players.

Officials ejected Bear offensive lineman Keith Van Horn and Cardinals Lionel Washington, Otis Anderson and Charlie Baker.

Glens Ferry wins volleyball opener

GLENS FERRY — Glens Ferry's varsity and JV volleyball teams swept a pair of matches from Rimrock in a non-conference season opener for the Pilots Friday night.

"The girls' serves were really effective tonight," said Pilot coach Debra Shrum afterwards. "We had here who scores four or more consecutive serves. That helped."

In the varsity game, the Pilots won 15-1, 15-12, while the junior-varsity won 15-11, 15-10.

Buhl 15-15 Burley 12-5

BURLEY — The back-row play of Brooke Bailey and Tara Jagels sparked Buhl to a 15-12, 15-5 victory over Burley here Thursday night in the South-Central Idaho Conference opener for both teams.

Buhl's Nancy Stevens aided the Indians, effort with four blocks and five spikes.

The Bobcat juniors prevailed in three sets, however, winning 15-7, 13-15, 15-6.

Connors whips Pistolesi in Open tourney

Hans Mandlikova defeated Iva Budarova in U.S. Open tennis action Friday

By BOB GREENE
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jimmy Connors, looking his age, came up with the big points when needed to down 19-year-old Claudio Pistolesi of Italy 7-6, 6-4, 7-5 Friday and move into the third round of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Connors, who will turn 34 before this two-week tournament concludes and has won this Grand Slam title five times, was joined in the victory ranks Friday by Tom Gullikson, the oldest man in the tournament who will turn 35 on Sept. 8.

Gullikson, whose career highlights have come in doubles competition, upset 10th-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador 3-6, 6-7, 7-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The biggest stir of Day Four at the National Tennis Center came not in singles but in the men's doubles where John McEnroe and partner Peter Fleming, three-time U.S. Open champions, were disqualified when they failed to show up in time for their first-round match.

"McEnroe was very, very upset," Ken Farrar, a Nabisco Grand Prix supervisor, said of the left-hander's mood after being informed he had been disqualified. "It was sort of a nasty situation."

"McEnroe is much more upset than Fleming," Farrar said. "McEnroe is very disappointed about not playing and very upset about it."

Asked if McEnroe asked the supervisor and tournament referee Gayle Bradshaw to reconsider the default, Farrar said:

"He couldn't understand why we couldn't have waited longer. He never really asked us to reconsider. He just kept saying, 'How could you do this? Why couldn't you have waited longer?'"

The two were defaulted when they failed to show up 15 minutes after their match was called to go on to court.

Besides Connors and Gullikson, other singles winners Friday included four Swedes: No. 2 Mats Wilander, No. 4 Stefan Edberg, No. 7 Joakim Nalbandian and No. 13 Anders Jarryd — and No. 16 Miloslav Mečíř of Czechoslovakia in the men's singles. Seeded women to advance into the third round included No. 6 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, No. 9 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, No. 12 Zina Garrison and No. 14 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden.

In late matches, six-time women's winner Chris Evert Lloyd played Regina Marsikova and the reigning Wimbledon men's champion, West Germany's Boris Becker, took on Brazil's Cassio Motta. Wilander defeated France's Thierry Tulasne 6-1, 7-5, 6-4; Edberg ousted Kevin Curran 7-5, 5-6, 6-3, 6-2; Nalbandian downed Czechoslovak's Pavel Štěpánek 6-2, 6-1, 6-0; Jarryd eliminated Luke Jensen 6-0, 6-3, 6-1; and Mečíř ousted Guy Forget of France 7-5, 6-4, 6-1.

Kohde-Kilsch crushed Catherine Tanvier of France 6-1, 6-0; Sukova downed Britain's Sara Gomer 7-5, 7-5; Maleeva defeated Peru's Laura Gildemeister 6-0, 6-1; Garrison stopped West Germany's Eva Pfaff 6-7, 6-4, 6-1; and Lindqvist defeated Australia's Amanda Dingwall 6-2, 6-3.

Connors seemed to be a step late against Pistolesi, last year's top-ranked junior who celebrated a birthday four days ago. Yet, the veteran was able to come up with the winning shots when he needed them.

Pistolesi broke Connors' service in the third game, then lost his own service in the eighth. It was the veteran who finished on top in the tiebreaker, 7-3.

Connors pulled off the only break of service in the second set, then took a lead in the third set when he broke the Italian teenager in the seventh game. But Pistolesi broke right back.

Three games later, Connors finished off the two-hour, 42-minute match when he broke Pistolesi at 30. Gullikson gained entry into the 16th U.S. Championships by getting a wild card at "the 11th hour," he said.

"I think they called me an hour or two before the draw," he said. "Fleming refused a wild card because he was going to concentrate on the doubles. ... I was prepared to fly up on a Thursday night to try my quality."

Now he's in the third round, having outlasted Gomez, a talented left-hander who thrives on the hard courts at the National Tennis Center.

Gomez won the first two sets, taking the second-set tiebreaker 7-0, before Gullikson began his comeback. And it was a belated one at that.

The native of La Crosse, Wis., who now lives in Palm Beach, Fla., took the third-set tiebreaker 7-2 and, after losing his serve to begin the fourth set, dominated the rest of the match. He broke Gomez from duce in the fourth game and at 30 in the sixth game as he evened the match at two sets apiece.

Then, in the decisive fifth set, Gullikson pulled off the only service break, that coming in the fifth game at 30.

"I've played Andres three or four times and he's won every match," Gullikson said.

A strong Georgia So. challenges Florida

By The Associated Press

Georgia Southern, which began its college football program as a club sport in 1981 and then became a Division I-AA power, takes another step forward Saturday when the Eagles play Florida, 13th ranked in Division I-A.

Georgia Southern has a strong nucleus of its 1985 national championship team, returning 19 lettermen. Coach Erik Russell, however, said he's wary about the matchup.

"I'm wondering how our players will react to playing in front of 72,000 screaming fans," Russell said. "Most of our players have never even been in a stadium with that many people, much less played in front of them."

Florida is one of three ranked teams from the state of Florida playing on the first Saturday of the college season.

No. 3 Miami, led by returning starting quarterback Vinny Testaverde, is coming off a 10-2 season and will visit South Carolina, a team which has switched from a Veer offense to a wide-open, run-and-shoot offense led by freshman quarterback Todd Ellis, who was redshirted last year.

Eleventh-ranked Florida State entertains Toledo of the Mid-American Conference. The game will serve as a tuneup for the Seminoles' contest next Saturday against eighth-ranked Nebraska.

Florida is at home against Georgia Southern in a day game. The Miami-South Carolina and Florida State-Toledo games are at night.

In other day games Saturday, Hawaii visits the Air Force and Fullerton State Journeys to Nevada-Reno. In featured night games, Western Illinois is at Kansas State, Angelo State visits New Mexico State, Texas-El Paso is home against Northern Michigan and Louisiana State is at Tulsa.

Georgia Southern won the I-AA national championship last year and was ranked No. 1 in the preseason poll for the smaller of the two major college divisions.

Florida was ranked fifth among the larger schools in Division I-A last year with a 9-1-1 record and is returning 11 starters, six on offense and five on defense.

Georgia Southern's sudden rise to prominence apparently hasn't escaped the attention of NCAA investigators. According to Friday's Macon (Ga.) Telegraph and News, the NCAA is reviewing the Eagles' program.

"This is the first I've heard about it and I'm surprised," Russell said.

One of Russell's biggest concerns Saturday is the size of Florida's offensive line, but he doesn't believe "any of the guys on our team are going to let the size factor bother them."

Florida Coach Calen Hall says his team will have to have a disciplined defense to stop Tracy Ham, the Georgia Southern quarterback.

Gators quarterback Kevin Bell has thrown 37 career touchdowns, passed and is the only quarterback in the country to rank in the top four in passing efficiency in each of the past two seasons. He has led the Gators to an 18-2-2 record in that period.

Jimmy Johnson, the Miami coach, thinks he has a prize in Testaverde.

"I think Vinny Testaverde is the best quarterback in college football," Johnson said. "I've coached college football for 21 years now and he's the best quarterback I've ever seen."

Testaverde had a 61 percent pass completion mark in 1985 when the Hurricanes went 10-1 in the regular season before losing 35-7 to Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl.

Last year, he passed for 3,238 yards and 21 touchdowns.

As for defending against the run and shoot offense, Johnson said, "We just haven't been able to see enough of it over the years to come with the best ideas on how to defend it. We think we know, but we can't be sure until Saturday night."

Twitty takes lead in St. Jude Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — 10 holes Friday and his only bogey Howard Twitty shrugged off chilly winds and fast greens Friday to take the second-round lead in the $500,000 Federal Express St. Jude Classic with a 5-under-par 67.

"It's a hard golf course," Twitty said after finishing the par-72, 7,282-yard Colonial Country Club course with a two-round total of 138, six strokes under par.

Twitty birdied five of his first

10 holes Friday and his only bogey was on the par-16th hole where he missed a 2-foot putt.

First-round leader Fuzzy Zoeller, who shot a 70 on Thursday, had some problems on Friday. Zoeller finished the day with a 74 for a two-round total of 144.

Payne Stewart and Joey Sindelar, who were tied with Twitty, Gary Hallberg and Mike Hulbert at 71 after the first round, were in second and third place.
