some of the doors and activated at least one escape route.

A flight attendant in Islamabad confirmed that security forces rushed to only after they heard firing.

Martin H. Shugrue, vice chairman of chief operating officer for Pan Am, said the flight had about 300 passengers, 18 flight attendants and seven Pan Am ground employees were aboard. Officials in Pakistan said there were 285 passengers and 15 flight attendants.

Pan Am officials in Pakistan said most of the Americans aboard were of Indian or Pakistani origin.

Confusion arose over the numbers because some passengers boarded in Bombay, India, and got off in Karachi, while others who were booked in Karachi had not entered the aircraft when it was seized.

Phibizon gave this account of the scene on the aircraft:

"We were all asked to hand our passports in and I understand that some of the American passports were taken away from us because they thought that Americans would be particularly tricky."

RAJESH KUMAR
First American killed

"(Later) I was getting quite dark outside... nothing much had happened for a long time. Then suddenly, everybody was moved into the center of the plane. I was told by somebody who understands Arabic that one of the terrorists had said that this was going to be the final act."

"Then, suddenly, the plane went out... the terrorists seemed to pass out and they started firing and seemed to be firing at the passengers."

"Everybody immediately went as low as they could to the floor and there was more gunfire and a few small explosions... Then everyone made a quick dash for it."

Early in the hijacking the gunmen killed Rajesh Kumar of Huntington Beach, Calif., who was thrown from the plane, and wounded three airport workers.

Phibizon said flight attendants told him Kumar "was singled out and called to the front of the plane. He said he was an American citizen and he was just shot in the head and dropped out of the plane."

The four Arabs raced aboard Flight 73 firing their guns at about 5 a.m. (8 p.m. Thursday MDT), soon after it arrived from Bombay. They set a deadline of 11 p.m.

(noon MDT) for an American flight crew to leave the shooting area before the deadline. The original crew "escaped through an emergency hatch when the plane was seized. Another crew was ordered en route to Karachi from Frankfurt, where the shooting started."

The hijackers had made no threats to shoot the passengers, but the hijack leader told the control tower at one point: "No American should approach the aircraft. Otherwise we will give them a tough fight. We will not commit suicide." He was identified only as Mustafa.

Pakistan intelligence officials said the terrorists arrived in Karachi from Bahrain the last week of August and identified one as Osama bin-Ladin, traveling on passport from the Persian Gulf emirate of Bahrain.

The gunmen were dressed as airport security guards when they took over the plane. They were seen boarding and at least 30 fled in terror as the gunmen ran up the steps shooting.

Their baggage handlers were wounded, occasionally, and another airport worker was wounded by shots fired from the plane hours later.

Shugrue blamed airport security for the tragedy.

constitution," Givens said.

He added that anti-lottery attorneys' argument that initiatives are "equal footing" with legislative enactments is not being allowed to violate the constitution made the case against blocking the issue from the ballot even stronger.

But both Thomas and Associated Taxpayers' attorney Richard C. Fields argued that the initiative process was substantially different than legislative action because voters do not go through a "deliberative process" at the polls including an opportunity for amendment to weed out unconstitutional provisions.

Justice Allan Shepard asked how long the court could take to decide on Associated Taxpayers' petition without interfering with the election process.

High said under state law,岑aruss must have absentee ballots printed and mailed 50 days before the election, but federal election laws require 45 days. That would make the latest ballots could legally be mailed out by Sept. 22.

Shultz

Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead hosted a lunch for the delegation before they went into an afternoon session.

With no reply yet from Moscow on a U.S. proposal to free Daniloff, consideration of retaliatory measures has begun in the State Department.

An official, who requested anonymity to discuss the situation more freely, said these included possibly postponing Shultz's scheduled meeting Sept. 15-20 with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze to prepare an agenda for a summit meeting.

"Congress is coming back and public pressure is growing," the official said.

But he stressed the main goal was a settlement that liberated Daniloff without escalating tensions. "We are not going to go to a nuclear war over this," he said. "We're trying to get the guy out."

Another official said lists of retaliatory actions had been drawn up, including the expulsion of Soviet diplomats, a reduction in the size of the Soviet embassy and cancellation of exchanges, but that no decision had been made.

Shultz, departing from the prepared text of his Harvard speech called the arrest of the U.S. News & World Report correspondent last Saturday by KGB agents "cynical" and said Daniloff was innocent.

"Let there be no talk of a trade for Daniloff," Shultz said. "We must insist that the Soviet leadership must find the wisdom to settle this case quickly, in accordance with the dictates of simple human decency and of civilized international behavior."

It was not immediately clear whether Shultz intended to withdraw a proposal to liberate Daniloff that U.S. officials said Wednesday had been made to Moscow through diplomatic channels.

It would involve his immediate release in exchange for an understanding that physicist Genady Zakharov, a Soviet employee at the U.N. Secretariat arrested last month by the FBI, would be handed over to Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin.

Blast injures 34 Americans

BERLIN (AP) — Devices designed to burn secret documents during emergencies accidentally exploded Friday at a U.S. Air Force radar station near the Berlin Wall and injured 34 Americans, Air Force spokesmen said.

Spokesman Chris Harzstark said 10 people remained hospitalized, and three were undergoing surgery. Although the Air Force originally said five people were seriously injured, Ms. Harzstark said Friday night that there were no serious injuries.

The devices normally are filled with a phosphorus mixture and are designed to destroy secret documents if the post is being overrun.

Norwegian hotel fire kills 14

KRISTIANSAND, Norway (AP) — Flames and heavy smoke engulfed a 11-story hotel Friday, leaving 14 people dead and at least 50 injured, police said.

"Some guests panicked. Some were screaming out of smashed windows," said one survivor, 36-year-old Arne Goden of Stavera, Norway.

"I escaped by staying calm and balanced on a cornice outside my window to reach one of the ladders put up by the fire brigade," he said.

Frank Timenes, head of the investigation for police in this coastal city—160 miles southwest of Oslo, said all 14 people in the hotel when the fire broke out were accounted for.

Soweto riot victims are buried

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Grieving families on Friday buried nine people shot by police during Soweto rioting, and other residents of the black township returned to their jobs after a day of grief with police.

Thursday's unrest broke out when security forces moved in to enforce a ban on a mass funeral for victims of last week's rioting.

Clergymen said 15 people killed in rioting last week were buried Thursday and nine more were buried at intervals of two and three at a time Friday. The government said 20 people were killed by police in Aug. 28-27 rioting, while residents claimed the death toll was 34.

Chemical weapons talks close

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet officials ended two days of talks Friday on curbing the spread of chemical weapons, the U.S. Embassy announced. It was the second session this year.

Negotiators "reviewed technical and political steps to limit the dangerous spread of chemical weapons," the statement said. It did not say whether further meetings were planned.

The delegations were led by John Hawes, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state, and Viktor Isaryanov, Soviet chief delegate to the 40-nation Geneva Conference on Disarmament.

The closing meeting of the City Council Friday morning discussed "personal matters" was informational only and no votes were taken.

Bengough said.

In May it was reported that Birmingham and Walden had been suspended for 30 days for alleged errors of expense accounts related to a trip to Boise and that Detective Howard Elliott had been reprimanded for reporting the matter to federal authorities.

Elliott said Friday night that he is among a group of people who have been subpoenaed to talk to the grand jury. Elliott declined to identify others subpoenaed and declined further comment on the matter.

He said the allegations were made public. Qualls said the incident was an intra-departmental matter and had been handled within the department in accordance with city policy. He said at the time there were no charges.

Qualls reinstated both officers after two weeks because of a shortage of manpower.

Adult women, 6.1 percent, unchanged from July.

Teen-agers, 17.7 percent, up from 17.5.

Black teens, 37.4 percent, down from 41.6.

Hispanics, 11.0, up from 10.5.

The White House issued a statement through the press office in Santa Barbara, Calif., calling the jobless report "bright picture for the nation's economy" and said it "dramatically underscores progress in the American work force."

"Equally important to economists were healthy increases in the average number of factory workers to 40.8 hours, and the relatively high number of overtime hours they worked, averaging 3.5 per week."

"That suggests there was a good gain—in industrial production in August" following a downturn in private economic output the second quarter, said Under Secretary of Commerce Robert Ortner.

The BLS said its survey of households showed an increase of 273,000 new jobs in August. The separate payroll survey, which is not used to compile the unemployment rate, showed an increase of only 200,000, but officials said that figure would have been 240,000 were it not for strikes by steel and telephone workers.

Drake announces withdrawal of offer to sell nursing home

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sky View Hazeldel nursing home owner Richard Drake said Friday that he will not sell his nursing home to a California corporation after all. "I sent a letter yesterday notifying them that I'm rescinding the offer to sell," Drake said. "Drake received an offer to buy his 143-patient nursing home, the second largest in Idaho, from Richmar Corporation of Northridge, Calif., in August. The deal was originally scheduled to go through on Sept. 1, and then moved to Sept. 15 after Sky View ran afoul of state health and safety requirements in August. Drake's announcement came a day after the state licensure board found the 143-patient facility in compliance with state codes. Although Drake declined to give a specific amount, he said Richmar's offer was between $2.4 million and $3.5 million. Patients at Sky View pay $42-$48 a day for care, ranging between $2.1 million to $2.4 million a year. A public meeting last week, Drake said his payroll is $110,000 a month. Richmar officials filed an intent to purchase the facility with the state in August, and state officials said the firm was planning on leasing the facility to Miles Taggart from Provo, Utah, to act as manager. However, while someone from Richmar picked up the forms to finalize the sale, state officials said the forms were never returned. Drake, who has owned the facility

'I sent a letter yesterday notifying them that I'm rescinding the offer to sell. They (Richmar Corporation) just did not perform, so we were able to break the contract.'

— Richard Drake,
Sky-View Hazeldel owner

for six years, said he was "glad to be out from the pressure of these people." "They were really pressuring us to close by Sept. 1, and we signed on Aug. 22, but then they backed off," he said. Drake said that, under the terms of the sale, Richmar was supposed to put earned money into an escrow account five days after he signed, "but they never did." He said the firm also never supplied the financial statements he requested, nor the references. "They just did not perform, so we were able to break the contract," he will be competing toe-to-toe with state Rep. Brent Brocksome. Boise, if Brocksome's plans to build a $1.5 million nursing home in Twin Falls go through. Brocksome announced his proposal last Friday to build the 60-bed facility behind the old KMYT building on Eastland Drive. Brocksome owns and co-owns several facilities in Idaho, including Mountain View Care Center in Kimberly, which is licensed for 64 patients. Drake said he did not think Sky View patients would move if a new nursing home is built. "I think they've shown through the survey here that a majority of people don't want to move," he said. He believes Sky View would give Brocksome "good competition."

Food at the fair

Clubs cash in on sales of delicacies

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN

FILER — The Twin Falls County Fair is recognized not only as a Western tradition, but as a time for partaking in such fair-time specialties as scones, cotton candy, and tater-pigs. There are more than 30 food booths at this year's fair, offering everything from traditional hamburgers and Cokes to Basque specialties and Hawaiian shaved ice. Many of the booths are run by local organizations and clubs. Linda Dulling, co-manager of the 4-H food booth, says club members are a large source of business at the fair. "Our busiest times are when the kids get done showing their animals.

They are our main customers," she said Friday. According to many of the food booth managers and workers, favorite items this year are hamburgers, scones, tater-pigs (baked potatoes stuffed with a sausage link), and barbecued beef. Supplying the food for fair-goers is no small task, said Tater-Pig vendor Stan Fillmore. "We order 20 boxes of potatoes each day of the fair. Each box holds 90 potatoes, which means 1,800 potatoes a day," he said. The booth usually sells all the potatoes. Food supply was also a concern for the Guadalupe Parish booth, said Sister Rose Mary Boessen. "We have people working here at the fair and also back at the center (in Twin Falls). On Thursday, we ran out of lettuce twice," she said. The busiest time for most of the booths is from 4:30 p.m. until the fair closes. Mike Laybourn, manager of the LPS 16th Ward Elders booth, said business has been slower than years past because public

Seasonal IFF layoff exaggerates August figures

By The Associated Press
and The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment in the Magic Valley jumped upward more than a full percentage point in August, almost entirely because of a temporary layoff at Idaho Frozen Foods Corp. in Twin Falls. The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties leaped to 6.4 percent, the Idaho Department of Employment announced Friday. The statewide rate also turned upward, rising one-half percentage point to its highest level in 13 months — 6.7 percent. The increase suddenly closed the gap between the Idaho rate and the higher national rate, which now sits at 6.8 percent.

Twin Falls.

"The Idaho Frozen Foods layoff came in August this year instead of July—and this balloons the rate well above its levels of recent months," he said. The shut-down for maintenance purposes sidelines hundreds of employees for a few weeks each summer. But the timing of the layoff in August exaggerated its effect. "It caused the July rate (5.3 percent) to be unusually low and it caused the August rate to be unusually high," he said. The formula used to calculate the unemployment rate anticipates a July layoff. Otherwise, there is good news in the rate, McDonald said. "Had we not had the Idaho Frozen Foods layoff, the rate would have been 5.1 percent," he said. The Magic Valley's labor force is expanding, as it normally does during the harvest season, McDonald attributed to the quick climb in Magic Valley unemployment. More than 1,100 workers moved into the area's ment, said Lon McDonald, state job force analyst at

Politics at the fair take new form as state right-to-work law debated

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Politicking at a county fair usually means putting a candidate in down-home duds to parade around the fairgrounds and press flesh. This year there is something new on the ballot and, while there are plenty of would-be public servants on display at the Twin Falls County Fair, there is a faceless visitor calling the right-to-work referendum. Voters will be asked to decide whether or not to uphold a law that makes it illegal to force workers to join or pay dues to a union in order to hold a job. When they cast their vote, Idahoans will be judging a law, not a smiling face, and so conversation at the booths of supporters and opponents of right-to-work tends to be a little different from the back-slapping and hand-pumping at other political booths. Twin Falls Labor Council President Bill Shropshire was at the fair Friday, handing out brochures on the law and talking to voters. Because the AFL-CIO's strategy locally is to talk one-on-one to people about the law, the fair offers plenty of opportunity to do so. "We've had our best luck that way. I've had several people change their minds," said Shropshire, who

Washington breeder grabs ribbons

FILER — A cattle breeder from Washington rolled up half of the championships in the Big Western Regional Hereford Show at the Twin Falls County Fair on Friday, but missed the top prizes. W.T. Bennett of Connell, Wash., who judged the Big Western last year, showed the runner-up entries for both the bull and female grand champions at the annual contest for horned Herefords.

The Big Western is one of about 50 shows sanctioned by the American Hereford Association and one of five major competitions in the Northwest. Bennett took home a fistful of ribbons, but the grand championships were claimed by Oregon cattle exhibitors. The top bull, named K & B L1 Encoder IET for its breeding, is owned by Carmen Herefords of Wallawa, Ore., and partner K & B Herefords of Oneta, S.D. The grand champion female, 00

Miss Pace P1034, is owned by Double Herefords of Eugene, Ore. An Idaho cattle ranch snared two minor championships. Colyer Herefords of Bruneau showed both the best group of six head at the show and the reserve female calf champion. Friday's show attracted 60 entries, significantly fewer than those of previous years. "We were down about 20 to 30 head," said Willard Wolf, field representative for the American Hereford

Three-judge panel refuses to reduce Nichols sentence

DEER LODGE, Mont., Sept. 5—A Montana appeals court has refused to reduce the 20-year prison sentence of Dan Nichols, the younger of two "mountain men" convicted of kidnaping a Roseman woman in 1984.

The three-judge panel, made up of Judges Thomas Honzal, of Helena, Thomas Olson of Bozeman and Mark Sullivan of Butte, upheld the sentence given Nichols by District Judge Frank Davis in July 1985.

The review judges also refused to change Nichols' status as a dangerous offender. They cited the facts of the crime, the degree to which it was planned and the abandonment of a wounded victim in the mountains.

Nichols, now 21, was convicted last year of kidnaping and assault in connection with the July 1984 abduction of a young girl, Kara Swenson, now 23, a member of the U.S. Biathlon Team, while she was living on the land, away from the constraints of civilization.

Dan Nichols was sentenced to 10 years on the kidnaping charge and another 10 as a dangerous offender. He will be eligible for parole in about eight years.

At a sentence review hearing Aug. 8, state prosecutor Marc Racicot argued arguments by defense attorney Steve Ungar of Bozeman for a reduction in the younger Nichols' sentence.

The prosecutor called Dan Nichols the "expressive fume" that ignited the kidnapping and worked with his father to carry out the abduction.

"He did kidnap her and damn near killed her," Racicot told the panel, saying Nichols is still a threat to society.

Ungrar argued that Nichols was merely following his father's orders and would not have been in harm's way of kidnapping without his father's influence.

The two men testified during their trials that they kidnaped Swenson in hopes of persuading her to live with them in the wilderness and be part of what they envisioned as a tribe of mountain people.

His father, Dan Nichols, 55, was convicted in a separate trial of kidnaping Swenson and of deliberate homicide for killing would-be rescuer Alan Olds of Big Sky the day after Swenson was abducted. The elder Nichols currently is serving an 85-year prison sentence but has appealed his conviction.

Shoshone BLM takes steps to reduce Douglas fir parasites

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone District of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management is continuing a forest management control project southeast of Bellevue this summer that is designed to control parasitic dwarf mistletoe in three stands of Douglas fir in the Sharp's Canyon and Bell Mountain areas.

The land-use plan for the area, the Sun Valley Management Framework Plan, includes the timber production base. However, in their heavily diseased state they are not productive for timber purposes.

The 70 acres we plan to remove are losing volume through mortality faster than they are gaining new growth," said Paul Matzie, Shoshone District forestry technician. "The trees are severely deformed by the disease and many have been blown over by strong winds this past spring."

The BLM plans to remove the diseased Douglas fir trees and replace them with Douglas fir seedlings that are being grown in the Lucky Peak Nursery near Boise. The Douglas fir is completely resistant to Douglas fir dwarf mistletoe. Planting resistant lodgepole pine will break the continuous disease cycle where young Douglas fir trees are infected before they can grow.

Several acres of down trees near the top of Bell Mountain provide a good opportunity to collect fuelwood. A temporary road has been constructed to improve access to the wood. Firewood permits are available at the BLM District Office in Shoshone, or the Forest Service Ranger District Office in Ketchum for $10 per cord.

Ivlie's Sawmill & Lumber has purchased 119,000 board feet of Douglas fir in the other stand. Logging will begin in early September and should be completed within a month or two, Matzie said.

After the usable wood is removed from these units, the BLM plans to burn the residual slash in the fall. The slash will be planted with lodgepole pine in the spring of 1988.

And what about the future of the treated stands? According to Matzie, they will become productive sources of wood products. "In 50 years we'll be able to harvest some of the lodgepole pine for posts, poles, fuelwood, and some small-amount timber. By that time, there should be a vigorous healthy stand of 50-year-old, naturally seeded Douglas fir growing under the sheltering lodgepole. Harvesting of the lodgepole will release the Douglas fir to grow.

Jury selected for retrial Politics Jobs

BOISE, (AP) — Reilly is expected to take about two weeks in the retrial of Randall Bainbridge on charges of robbery and murder in the 1981 slaying of a Garden City service station attendant.

Bainbridge and Nancy Sivak were convicted of the charges earlier. Sivak was sentenced to death and is on Idaho's "Death Row" while he appears his death penalty and conviction.

Bainbridge was granted a new trial after the Idaho Supreme Court ruled the district judge improperly admitted testimony from witnesses whose recollection had been enhanced by hypnosis.

A jury was selected in Twin Falls on Tuesday and Wednesday, after defense attorney Stewart Morris said retrial publicity might prevent a fair trial in Ada County.

Morris asked Judge Robert Rowlett to completely exclude testimony from witnesses Gloria Leyden and Gary Chilton.

More than half the people here think they should have a right to make their own choice, whether to join a union, he said. In the 1950s, when he pushed for the passage of the right-to-work law, the Chamber of Commerce couldn't be persuaded to openly support the measure, said Harris.

Harris was surprised to see that the recent Farnus Co. study of Twin Falls' economic growth potential did not make reference to right-to-work laws in the Idaho Cities for Freedom and Jobs and handed out brochures to passersby.

Greg Bedwell, working with the Knights of Columbus booth, said that the fair also was the primary source of funds for that group. "Organizations like this thrive on volunteerism—when we have the fair, the needs of the group are met," he said.

The Tater-Flig booth is run by a Magic Valley singing group called the Magichords. The sale of this popular item pays the group's traveling budget.

The Guadalupe Parish food booth is a three-year-old, tri-lingual operation featuring Mexican and Basque food. Boessen said that having a booth at the fair has been a good way to share the Mexican culture with the public.

Working at the fair is a great chance to socialize. It's the end of the summer, and a lot of people have been gone a while. That's the reason most people sign up to work at the booth, Laybourn said.

Boessen agreed. "There's just something about food and hospitality. The way to the heart is through the tummy," she said.

Camaraderie is a major aspect of working at a booth, said Corieue Lombardi. Friday morning, she and her husband, Steve, had been just one person, it's a real group effort," she said.

For Dulling, meeting 4-H kids is an enjoyable part of the fair. "The booth is a great place to meet a lot of neat kids. I really enjoy it," she said.

feels that the important undecided voters are best reached in small groups or face-to-face. Shrophire, who works at Longview Fibre, said the "Magic Valley is important to both candidates and the right-to-work battle. "Even candidates will tell you this area is a mustwin situation," he said. "Without the votes in this region's cities, statewide candidates and the right-to-work referendum cannot win," he said.

Across the fairgrounds, retired farmer Charlie Harris stood behind the booth. Idaho Cities for Freedom and Jobs and handed out brochures to passersby.

labor force last month. In the month of August, the unemployment rate was 10.1 percent, he said. Using unadjusted figures, the three-county labor force now is 32,244, with 3,500 people out of work, he said.

Statewide, unemployment worsened substantially. Idaho Employment Department Director Scott McDonald (no relation) reported Friday. Another 3,500 workers were off the job, bringing the total to 29,200. The total labor force of 435,000 workers was 1,300 below that of last August.

"This drop continues to show that Idaho's economy is having a rough time," Scott McDonald said. "New job opportunities are few and some of the old jobs are having a difficult time remaining."

The state officials mentioned potato processors layoffs, saying they are lasting longer than usual. Forest fires also have reduced logging activity, the state officials said.

Reopening of the J.R. Simplot Co. fertilizer plant in southeastern Idaho did ease the strain on the state's economy.

The August jobs rate was the highest since July 1985, when it hit 6.6 percent. Economic analysts have projected only slight gain growth for the state over the next six months.

Unemployment rates for August in the seven regions of Idaho and the change from July in each are:

• The Magic Valley — 6.4 percent, up 1 percent.

• The Panhandle — 9.6 percent, up 1 percent.

• Lewiston — 6.6 percent, no change.

• Jerome County — 10.1 percent, up 4 percent.

• Ada County — 3.9 percent, down 1 percent.

• Pocatello — 7.2 percent, down 1.5 percent.

• Idaho Falls — 4 percent, down 8 percent.

'86 fair attendance just short of 50,000

FILER — Attendance at the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo mounted to just short of 50,000 admissions on Thursday.

For the first time in the 1986 fair, the crowds topped those from a year ago. Fair Secretary-Manager Tom Shouse said.

On Thursday, dedicated at Twin Falls Day, 20,571 visitors flowed into the fair grounds. The count was 1,169 higher than on Thursday during the 1985 fair.

In the first three days of the 1986 run, 49,142 fairgoers have passed through the gates. The total still lags behind last year by 2,703 admissions.

However, with sunny weather likely to continue and schools out for the weekend, Shouse was expecting big crowds for the final day of the fair.

Awaiting fairgoers will be three major events: 4-H and FFA Fall Stock Sale — 10 a.m. Wranglerette Horse Show — 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Twin Falls County Fair Rodeo and crowning of Miss Rodeo Idaho — 8 p.m.

The rodeo exhibits, merchant buildings, food booths and the carnival will be open throughout the day and evening.

Association, "but the quality was probably better than the last three or four years."

The numbers fell off for several reasons. The AHA has changed from a national to a regional circuit, and winners cannot collect points toward the season's championship title in their regions.

Declines in cattle numbers in the business and the costs of showing also may have taken some contestants out of competition.

Ferral Meeks of Taylor, Neb., the judge for the contest, praised the Big Western show. He said each class had substantial depth of quality, indicating that top area competitors are continuing to enter.

The winning bull was a long, meaty animal with the type of structure a breeder wants to pass into his herd, Meeks said.

Ken Pond of Hermiston, Ore., who showed the animal for Carmar Herefords, said it will be contending again at the Spokane Regional Classic in early October. The bull was reserve grand champion at last year's Big Western as well, he said.

Meeks, who first exhibited at the Filer show in 1970, entered 14 head and made good use of them.

His entries won the calf champion, reserve champion yearling heifer, reserve champion female, champion bull calf, yearling champion bull, reserve senior champion bull and reserve grand champion bull and goat titles.

In the Idaho Hereford Breeders Steer Show, Derek Brewer of Three Creek showed the grand champion, and Hawley Harrison of Hereford showed the reserve grand champion.

Polish church, citing interference, quits its farm aid efforts

By CHARLES J. GANS
The Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland — Church of Poland officials Wednesday abandoned a 4-year-old effort to channel millions of dollars in Western aid to private farmers because the Communist government refused to stay out of the project.

Government officials demanded that the minister of agriculture be allowed to veto programs run by the Communist government. Cardinal Jozef Glemp, leader of the Roman Catholic Church in Poland, said in a statement.

Such demands "would be discrepant with the principles of the fund, namely its autonomy," Glemp said.

"In such a situation, regret was expressed that the ... fund which was supposed to become a plan of cooperation ... on an international scale as well as between people of various outlooks within the country ... failed to be realized," the statement said.

But a high-ranking government official said giving the minister of agriculture a deciding voice on selecting the fund's programs was "only a proposal for negotiations" intended to ensure that the fund's limited resources were used to meet the most pressing needs of Polish agriculture.

"It is a pity that the church side speaks of the fund in the past tense, when chances of a positive end of the talks seemed close to the government side," Kazimierz Grzesiak, deputy agriculture minister, said in an interview with the official PAP news agency.

Grzesiak has headed the government's team in negotiations with the church on the fund.

The church had first proposed the fund in September 1982 to help modernize Polish agriculture. Unlike other Communist countries with collectivized agriculture, Poland has 3.9 million private farmers who till 75 percent of the arable land and produce more than 80 percent of the country's crops.

The fund had received pledges of $20 million from the West, including $10 million from the U.S. government, Maria Stolzman, secretary of the organizing committee, told a news conference Wednesday.

The church had hoped to reach an annual operating budget of $170 million. Under the plan, farmers were to receive equipment sent by the West, making partial payment in Polish currency, which the foundation and consult the ministry would then invest in rural development projects; such as dairy and fruit processing plants.

Stolzman said the decision to give up the fund was sparked by comments by Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski in July that the church must agree to cooperate with the government's agricultural policy leader of the outlawed Solidarity "free trade union movement ... realizing the great needs of the country, I deeply believe that someone will come to his senses and that there will be a continuation (of the idea)," said Walesa, reached at his Gdansk apartment.

Communist authorities had been initially wary about the project. But Jaruzelski expressed his willingness to approve the fund following talks with Pope John Paul II in June 1983 in Warsaw.

Negotiations reached an impasse in January 1985 when the government sought to renegotiate the statutes to increase its influence on the fund, Mrs. Stolzman said.

But — Grzesiak, the deputy agriculture minister, said most of the problems concerning the fund had been resolved.

Tutu says he's out to neither impress nor antagonize

By DAVID CRARY
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Desmond Tutu says he seeks neither to impress nor to antagonize his enemies, but the black Anglican cleric has done both in his tireless and emotional struggle against apartheid.

As many white South Africans, he is a publicly-hungry troublemaker, a major culprit in mobilizing international economic sanctions against his country.

For millions of all races throughout the world he is an honored champion of human rights. He was given the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts.

For their honor will be his on Sunday when he is enthroned as the first black archbishop of Cape Town, leader of the Anglican Church in southern Africa. He has been bishop of Johannesburg.

"I've got enough awards and things," he told reporters a few weeks ago. "I'm not looking for that. I just want my critics who accuse me of being too radical to care enormously. I try to work for justice and for peace."

Tutu, 55-next month, punnetuates conversations about hiding either temper or tears. He is a small man, 5 feet 3, but his impact can be enormous.

DESMOND TUTU
Not seeking more awards

He is among South Africa's best-known black leaders, along with Nelson Mandela, the imprisoned African National Congress leader, and Chief Mangosuthu Buthe, political leader of the six million Zulus.

President P.W. Botha's government and the media that support it make him a frequent target of denunciation.

The 45-year-old Johannesburg daily called him "a religious pop star" after the announcement that such anti-apartheid entertainers as Stevie Wonder and Bill Cosby were among those invited to his 60-mile southwest of Johannesburg

Even some white moderates have criticized Tutu's advocacy of economic sanctions, saying he will live in affluence while embargoes intensify the suffering of other blacks.

Although the bishop claims a "rough" life enables him to endure "Sundays" of fasting, he bristles at the suggestion that he does not care whether blacks suffer.

Recalling the days when he studied by candlelight while his mother worked as a washerwoman, he said: "I know that suffering and misery, I do not want it for my people or any other people."

His call for sanctions is his own. Tutu says that of the church, he stands by it despite suggestions from the government that he risks treason charges.

"I am Desmond Tutu believe that this is our last chance for bringing about change in this country peacefully," he said. "If sanctions don't happen, then we have had it, because it will mean Armageddon is suffering."

"We will have a non-racial, truly democratic and just country. Why must it be at a totally unnecessary and wholly avoidable cost in human lives?"

Tutu, who is married and has four grown children, was born Oct. 7, 1931, in Klerksdorp. His father taught school in the gold-mining town 90 general secretary of the politically active South African Council of Churches.

In 1985, the year after winning the Nobel Peace Prize, he was enthroned in Johannesburg.

The government has withdrawn his passport occasionally, but he travels the world and is outspoken while doing so.

Americans tell of terror, panic on plane

By The Associated Press

Two hijackers who survived the shooting on a Pan Am jet in Karachi, Pakistan, tried to blend in with the crowd after fleeing the plane, but passengers pointed them out immediately, said an American survivor said Friday. "They (hijackers) were almost murdered on the spot," Sue Melhart, of Pullman, Wash., said her husband, Richard, was shot on the plane after the plane was hijacked. Two hijackers were killed, along with at least 16 passengers. More than 100 passengers were wounded.

Melhart, a former University of Idaho and Washington State University athletic trainer, told his wife he survived by kicking open a door and leading other passengers to safety. "I was the generator on the plane and the lights went out the terrorists panicked," she said. "They had everybody huddle in the middle of the plane and started shooting them with machine guns. Dick had positioned himself by the door over the wing of the plane. A bullet went over his head. He waited for the first volley to finish, and he knew that was an opportunity. He kicked open the door."

Mrs. Melhart said her husband climbed out to the wing and leaped over the side. Other passengers, seeing the successful jump, followed. "At that point the terrorists realized everything was over and threw down their guns. They started running with the other passengers," Mrs. Melhart said. Her husband told her that he and the other passengers raced 500 feet to safety, then assisted authorities in identifying two hijackers who had opened fire on passengers. Mrs. Dumas said she knew there would be trouble when the lights in the Boeing 747 went out as it sat on the tarmac. "I said down in my seat so the seat in front of me would block the gunfire," Mrs. Dumas, an Oriental rug salesman, told the New Jersey Herald of Newton by telephone from the Karachi Hilton. "There was a burst of gunfire, there were people crying and moaning and pain and injury," she said. She said she saw at least six people motionless in their seats after the shooting and that a man in the aisle seat of her row was wounded. After the gunmen started firing, passengers began scrambling for exits.

Gadhafi: Not responsible

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Gandhi and Pakistani President Zia ul-Haq met separately with Gadhafi in Harare, where the leaders of the 10-nation non-aligned movement were meeting. Zia described the hijacking in Karachi as "international gangsterism."

Navy orders carrier Forrestal to stand by

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy ordered an aircraft carrier to sea in the Mediterranean Friday in case an opportunity materialized for jet fighters to intercept the hijacked Pan Am jetliner hijacked in Pakistan, Pentagon sources said. "The opportunity never presented itself, however, because the hijacking was over and the captives were on their captives while still on the ground at the Karachi airport."

Before the shooting erupted aboard the Pan American World Airways 747, Pentagon officials who asked not to be identified said the carrier Forrestal had been ordered to cut short a visit to Naples, Italy, and steam for the central Mediterranean. The sources stressed at the time the move was simply a "prudent precaution" in case the Pan Am jet left Pakistan and flew to Cyprus, as the four armed Arab hijackers had demanded.

Late Friday afternoon, as officials awaited further details of developments of Karachi, Pentagon officials said the Forrestal was "steaming in circles" in the central Mediterranean awaiting further orders. "I'm sure," said a Pentagon spokesman, "that we will do everything we can to help the hijacked plane and its passengers."

Mrs. Dumas said she instead curled up in a fetal position. Then she tried to escape through the emergency exit nearest her seat in the rear half of the plane. "That let me out on the wing, which was too exposed," she told the Herald. "So I dropped my little handcase on the ground and got back into the plane and used another exit that led to the escape ramp."

Government sends team to investigate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government Friday assembled a team of investigators from the FBI and several other federal agencies to probe the hijacking of the Pan Am jet in Pakistan, federal law enforcement sources said. The team of investigators was preparing to fly to the scene of the hijacking to launch a probe based on several provisions of U.S. law aimed at international terrorism, said the sources, speaking "only on condition that they not be identified—it could not immediately be learned which other federal agencies were participating in the investigation. Publicly, FBI spokesman Susan Scullizer would confirm only that the FBI was "monitoring the hijacking very closely."

U.S. deemed security at airport good

WASHINGTON (AP) — Karachi International Airport, scene of the hijacking of a Pan American Airways flight and its bloody climax Friday, passing the recent U.S. government security inspections with high marks, a spokesman said. U.S. Federal Aviation Administration officers have inspected the airport several times since last year, giving it both comprehensive and spot checks, said FAA spokesman Fred Farrar. "Their conclusion was that the Karachi airport had 'pretty high-level security,'" Farrar told The Associated Press. The most recent inspection was about three weeks ago, he said. Asked how four armed men were able to seize the New York-bound Pan American Jumbo jet after its arrival from Bombay, India, Farrar what happened we are not going to make any judgment. In New York, Pan American spokeswoman Ann Whyte said the hijackers bypassed the airport gate, stormed to the plane in a van and knocked over security guards at the foot of a passenger ramp.

Flight crew climb to roof for escape

NEW YORK (AP) — A pilot and two crew members aboard a jumbo jet seized by terrorists in Pakistan escaped to safety by climbing through a hatch in the roof of the cockpit and sliding down the side of the plane, Pan Am officials said Friday. When four Palestinians suddenly took over the craft as it sat on the ground in Karachi on Thursday night, the pilot and crew to the danger, said Alan Loflin, an official in the New York headquarters of Pan American World Airways. The three reached the hatch by climbing through the hatch to the outside of the plane, then slid down the skin of the plane using an escape cable that reels out at a steady speed, he said. The cockpit, Loflin, is roughly three stories high.

'Star Wars' test 'success'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two "Star Wars" satellites tracked a rising rocket, and then destroyed each other in a deliberate collision Friday after being propelled into orbit by a Delta rocket.

The success of the launch brought cheer to a half-million U.S. missile program.

The $160-million exercise was a major test of President Reagan's proposed missile defense system, The Strategic Defense Initiative Office, which had placed a lid of secrecy over the operation before launch, called it a complete success.

The Delta, the first big American space rocket launched since all were grounded by a series of failures, blasted off at 11:38 a.m. and shot the payloads into a 255-mile-high orbit after a secret countdown.

Lt. Col. Terry Mourad, a SDIO spokesman, said the two payloads "used a variety of sensors to conduct observations during maneuvers from a variety of viewpoints."

After the payloads had tracked each other in a kind of orbital ballet for about four hours, he said, "they pointed at each other so that data on close-in approach could be obtained."

He said the two zeroes in on each other, collided and both were destroyed.

Mourad said the collision was a key test of kinetic energy technology, in which one projectile is buried at another at great speed, demolishing the target.

SDIO, which manages the missile defense program, popularly known as Star Wars, reported that within two hours after the Delta lifted off, an Ariet rocket was launched from the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico in connection with the test.

Asked if one or both the satellites tracked the rocket, Mourad replied, "I think you can draw your own conclusion."

Objectives of the test were for the satellites to obtain spectral data on each other with infrared sensors and to test guidance, navigation and truster systems used in the maneuvering.

Teacher standards board in the works

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Carnegie Corp. panel named 25 prominent educators and civic leaders to study and report on a list of award-winning teachers on Friday to lay the groundwork for the first national standards board for the teaching profession.

This can be the breakthrough that will really get America on the course of having superb school teachers, former North Carolina Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., chairman of the planning group, said at a news conference.

Among the members of the panel is Sue Hovey, coordinator of programs for gifted students at Moscow, Idaho, High School. She is also a member of the NEA's executive committee.

The planning group formed by the private, non-profit Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy includes the presidents of both major teacher unions, the governor of New Jersey, the state school superintendent of California and Minnesota and a dozen public school teachers.

Hunt said their aim is to establish within a year the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards to certify teachers who pass its muster. Mark Tucker, the Forum's executive director, said it will be three to four years before the "revolutionary new methods of assessment" are developed and in place.

All 25 members of the original Carnegie Forum task force sit on the planning group.

The national certification idea was the centerpiece of Carnegie's plan for radical changes to upgrade teachers' status and give them far more control over what and how they teach. The Forum suggested creating a new category of "lead" teachers who would command salaries of $65,000 or more.

The National Governors Association two weeks ago threw its support behind creating the national standards board, and the idea was backed this summer both by the National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers.

Teachers now are certified by the states. Under the Carnegie plan, states would continue to license teachers, but a teacher with national certification could command higher pay and status.

Teachers who pass its muster, Mark Tucker, the Forum's executive director, said it will be three to four years before the "revolutionary new methods of assessment" are developed and in place.

NASA signs contracts for updated boosters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is hard at work trying to fix its rocket boosters so that the space shuttle can fly again, has also awarded contracts for designing a new version of the boosters.

The space agency said it wants to design some designs before deciding whether to go to a new generation of twin rockets that propel shuttles.

The government is a joint of the design boosters is blamed for the explosion of the Challenger last Jan. 28 and a joint redesign and testing effort is under way.

The president's commission that investigated the accident, which stopped all U.S. manned space flights, recommended that "no design options should be prematurely rejected because of schedule cost or reliance on existing hardware."

NASA said five aerospace firms received contracts on Wednesday to study new design concepts, a plan for developing and testing a new booster, a cost estimate for the program and some idea of what a flight set would cost.

The new boosters must be the size and shape of the old version so that they will fit with other shuttle elements, NASA said.

"But, with few exceptions," the agency added, "the studies provide the five contractors a free hand to propose a new solid rocket motor."

The 120-day contracts, not to exceed $500,000 each, were awarded to Aerjet Strategic Propulsion Co. of Sacramento, Calif.; Atlantic Research Corp. of Alexandria, Va.; United Technologies Chemical System Division, San Jose, Calif.; Hercules Aerospace Co., Salt Lake City, Utah; and Morton Thiokol, Inc., of Brigham City, Utah.

Morton Thiokol is NASA's sole source for the current booster.

Brennan predicts court will ban death penalty

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, returning to his alma mater during Harvard University's 350th anniversary celebration, predicted Friday that the court would someday ban capital punishment as cruel and unusual punishment.

He said if the Constitution's drafters wanted the 8th Amendment prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment" to cover only specific brutal punishments and not the death penalty, they would have made it more specific.

"The Constitution must be read in light of evolving standards," Brennan said.

The 1931 Harvard Law School graduate said the drafters of the Constitution deliberately left the question of capital punishment unanswered.

"Our framers knew what they were doing," Brennan said. "They were careful drafters. This language was put specific and could be interpreted in any number of ways."

He said if the Constitution's drafters wanted the 8th Amendment prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment" to cover only specific brutal punishments and not the death penalty, they would have made it more specific.

New comet found

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A new comet that might outshine Halley's has been discovered by a 24-year-old student, but it won't be visible in the naked eye from the Northern Hemisphere, astronomers said Friday.

Comet Wilson was named after astronomer William Wilson at the California Institute of Technology. She discovered the comet Aug. 5 using the 48-inch Schmidt telescope.

Cyanide in soup mix tested

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — An investigation conducted Friday on cyanide placed inside a chicken noodle soup mix, hoping the results might lead to the tamperer responsible for a man's death.

They also tested 25 boxes of soup from kitchen pantries across southern New Jersey, returned by consumers who thought the boxes showed signs of tampering.

Over the weekend, testing plans to check hospitals, laboratories and photography supply stores, which sell or use cyanide, said Dennis Wikfeld, first assistant Camden County prosecutor.

Rice's 5 RBIs lead Red Sox to victory

BOSTON (AP) — It's September again and that spells trouble for American League pitchers facing veteran slugger Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox.

"I just want to go out there and have a good September — and see what happens," Rice said Friday night after beating Roger Clemens and the Red Sox to a 12-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Rice drove in five runs with a bases-loaded homer and a single. Marty Barrett hit a three-run homer and Bill Buckner added a two-run shot as the Red Sox widened their lead in the AL East.

With their sixth consecutive victory and 80th of the season, Boston moved 26 games over 500 and hiked its division lead to 5 1/2 games over Toronto, which lost 5-0 to Chicago.

"It was a night for us to score some runs and make things easier for Roger," Rice said after improving his average to .326 with 90 runs batted in and 15 homers.

"My average is not worried about here, and I'm not worried about home runs," said Rice. "I've never gone to bat trying for a home run. They'll come as long as I swing the bat good."

Exp. for his rookie year when he suffered a broken wrist and missed the stretch drive for the pennant, the month of September has been very productive. "I've been a pennant contender and I want to help the club."

Rice's homer was the fifth Boston has hit with Clemens pitching this year. The Red Sox have averaged about seven homers a game in the big-league's top 12 victories.

Clemens, who has lost just four times, allowed six hits in seven innings before letting reliever Steve Mike LaValliere led off the St. Louis seventh with a single against Aurelio Lopez. 32. LaValliere was sacrificed to second, took third on a groundout and scored on Herr's single.

Pinch-hitter Curt Ford hit an RBI single in the ninth, and after Vince Coleman walked, Herr tripped off Charlie Kerfeld.

Houston's Dan Driscoll led off the ninth with his first home run of the season, against Todd Worrell.

Philadelphia 4

Los Angeles 0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gary Redus hit a two-run single in the seventh inning and Don Carman and Steve Bedrosian combined on a six-hit Friday night to lead the Philadelphia Phillies, defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0 in a rain-delayed game.

Cincinnati 11

Cincinnati scored eight earned runs in 5 1/2 innings of right-hander Rick Sutcliffe, 4-13, who has lost his last seven decisions and has failed to win a game since June 2. Two of Sutcliffe's wins this season were against the pitcher who has beaten the right-hander just twice in 10 career decisions.

Chicago 5

Winner Phil Niekro, 11-10, scattered six hits over seven innings.

They have two or three different formations that use, and they use them all well," says Miller. "But though last year we could beat their second team (that played against Richfield in the second half of the playoff game), and those are basically the kids we'll be seeing (Saturday)."

Russell says he's made some changes on offense, but won't say what.

"I'd rather not talk about it," he says cryptically.

The Tigers' strengths are no secret, however — seven returning starters on defense and eight on offense, including all-state running back Todd Swainston, Swainston, a 5-8, 180-pound senior, rushed for 87 yards and 17 tries in the Tigers' win at Richfield last week. Junior quarterback Barry Ward completed five, eight passes for more than 100 yards.

Defensively, Richfield held Hagerman to about 100 yards.

Spinks to fight Tangstad tonight

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Michael Spinks will defend a piece of the heavyweight championship tonight, while Mike Tyson will prep for a title challenge.

Spinks will make his second defense of the International Boxing Federation championship against Steffen Tangstad of Norway in a scheduled 15-round bout at the Las Vegas Hilton.

The 29-year-old Tyson, who has scored 24 knockouts in winning all 26 of his fights in just 18 months, will fight Alfonso Ruffin in a scheduled 12-round bout at the Las Vegas Hilton.

If Tyson wins, he is supposed to challenge Trevor Berbick for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title here in early November.

"This myth the media has created is going a fall," said Ruffin, a former WBC cruiserweight champion. "The smart money disagrees. Tyson is such a prohibitive favorite that the only betting line on the fight is whether it will go less or more than five rounds.

The oddsmakers are very confident about Spinks' chances. He is an 8-1 favorite.

Spinks' fight, but not Tyson's will be televised live by HBO beginning at about 8:30 p.m. EDT.

In another 15-round title bout on the card, Slobodan Kacar of Yugoslavia will defend the IBF light heavyweight championship against Bob Coyle of Wales, N.Y. It will not be televised.

Tangstad will be trying to become the second Scandinavian to win a heavyweight title. He was four days old when Ingemar Johansson of Sweden, a 4-1 underdog, won the title with a third-round knockout of Floyd Patterson.

Richfield gridders face defending champions

By STEVE CRUMP

Times-News sports editor

BOISE — Is this a championship season for Richfield's football team? Ask Coach Rudy Miles about this afternoon.

"It will tell us a lot about ourselves," says Miles of the three-ranked Tigers' encounter with second-ranked, defending state eight-man football power Council Bluffs.

"I don't know if we can beat Council Bluffs. I think we'll be the team to beat in the state."

Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m. on a neutral site, the practice field behind Capital High School.

It will be the season's game for the Lumberjack and Richfield 32-0 in the semifinals, the state eight-man playoffs a year ago. The Tigers opened their season a week ago with a vengeance, shutting out Hagerman of the Magic Dougs 46-0 in the Pirates' field using 11-man rules.

"We played an awful good game, but eight-man football is a different game and we've been practicing for 11-man until this week," says Miles. "I just hope we're ready to play a good eight-man team."

It's a different eight-man team than the one the Tigers saw last fall, although the Avers do have one key performer returning in all-state wide receiver Eric Rosengart, a senior who doubles as a safety on defense. Coach Larry Russell has just five freshmen back from last year's 20-0 year-old and has a 25-game winning streak.

"We lost six or seven seniors, but we've got some pretty good newcomers," says Russell, who has won two state championships in two seasons at Council Bluffs. "We've got a junior quarterback named Joe Mahan who is going to be pretty good and a running back named Greg Woods (a 6-foot, 185-pound junior) who has a lot of potential."

Richfield last year saw junior quarterback Barry Ward complete five, eight passes for more than 100 yards.

Defensively, Richfield held Hagerman to about 100 yards.

The team have 14 people back who played a various times last year, "says Miles. "If we have one strength this year, that's got to be it."

The frantic search for the lowest car payment ends with the Reduced Payment Auto Loan

Often, the only thing standing between the car you want and the car you can afford is the monthly payment. But now, with approved credit, you can finance up to 100% of any new car with monthly payments lower than auto industry financing and up to 25% lower than conventional car loans.

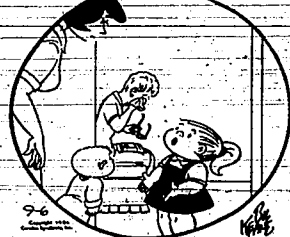

With a First Security Reduced Payment Auto Loan, no matter how high the car's price, the payments stay low. And if you like, you can take up to five years to repay. Ask about the Reduced Payment Auto Loan or other affordable loans at your nearest First Security office or car dealer.

For monthly payments lower than you ever thought possible, we're right where you want to be.
