Reagan, Soviet minister discuss spy case

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, stepping into day-long arms control talks and summit preparations, summoned Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze Friday to "convey the strength of his feelings" about spy charges against an American reporter.

"We are negotiating very serious issues," Shevardnadze said when the meetings ended. Later, after a dinner at the State Department he said of Soviet suggestions for improving relations, "There are good proposals; there are good thoughts in them."

But he said it was unlikely the talks would result in setting a date for a summit meeting here between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The official, in a briefing under rules that gave him anonymity, said the two sides were "tackling" arms control, human rights, regional conflicts and other issues, in addition to the Daniloff case.

Victims of AIDS get drug

By WARREN E. LEARY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An experimental drug that extends the lives and reduces symptoms of some AIDS patients will be made available within weeks to thousands with the deadly, incurable disease, federal health officials announced Friday.

The drug, AZT or azidothymidine, will become the first widely available therapeutic agent for treating specific symptoms of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

But the drug proved so promising in a controlled trial that its maker, Burroughs-Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, N.C., asked the government to end the test early.

Several months into the human trial, 16 of 137 patients getting placebo died compared with one of 145 getting AZT, scientists said.

"Today's announcement represents an important step forward in the search for an effective therapy for treating persons infected with the AIDS virus, but it is only one step," Windom said.

AIDS, an incurable condition that results in destruction of the body's infection-fighting immune system, has been diagnosed in 24,659 Americans to date, 13,689 of whom have died.

Senators approve quick fix

By STEVEN KOMAROW
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Friday night tentatively approved an election-year budget plan that contained enough accounting tricks and sales of government assets to minimize the deficit limits of the Gramm-Rudman law.

Although a parade of senators blasted the measure and said it should have been better, the chamber by voice vote passed the major amendment containing the bulk of the package and moved toward final approval.

The bill was "a perverted, phony, unrealistic approach to the budget problem," Sen. J. James Exon, D-Nebr., said in a typical comment.

"I just don't think any senator should vote for this bill believing we have the spirit of the budget act," said Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, admitted the bill helped write was "not even close to a good solution."

Instead of raising taxes or cutting spending, the bill would shift around the federal spending cuts of the fiscal 1987 deficit estimate exceeds a $144 billion targets by more than $10 billion.

The measure was carefully designed to avoid a veto by President Reagan, who has opposed tax increases and cuts in military spending, and to avoid a pre-election cut in popular domestic programs.

The goal was to avoid a risky confrontation with the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law, which requires a vote on imposing across-the-board spending cuts if the fiscal 1987 deficit estimate exceeds a $144 billion targets by more than $10 billion.

The measure was sweetened with provisions including guarantees that Social Security recipients get cost-of-living increases in January and that farmers get advances on their crop payments — provisions already included in other legislation.

House grants EPA pesticide standard control

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House voted Friday to strip away the rights of farmers to set their own safety standards for pesticides on food if the chemicals have been declared safe by the federal government.

The lawmakers voted 214-121 to give the Environmental Protection Agency the final say on pesticide safety, overriding actions states have taken in recent years such as banning the grain fumigant ethylene dibromide known as EDB and the apple enhancer daminozide.

Pushed by the Grocery Manufacturers Association and a long list of farm groups, backers argued the provision would prevent disruption of interstate commerce in foods and would not compromise public safety.

It is similar to language in a bill awaiting floor action in the Senate.

In the case of EDB residues in 1983, "Aunt Jemima was okay in Oklahoma but not in Texas," said Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., one of the authors of the provision.

Approval came despite arguments that EPA has a poor track record in monitoring pesticides for health risks and has in the past acted only when forced to do so because of state pesticide bans.

Lawmakers had earlier rejected, 183-157, an amendment by Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., that would have guaranteed states a role in the setting of residue standards.

The action came as lawmakers approved a sweeping revision of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act, better known as FIFRA. The changes, if finally enacted by Congress, would be the first major update in the law in 14 years. The vote on final passage was 329-4.

FIFRA governs use of everything from agricultural chemicals to home bug sprays, as well as setting standards for lawn-care companies and pest exterminators.

The bill passed by the House would extend the law for five years and authorize spending of $43 million to carry it out over that period.

Police investigating deaths of Buhl couple

TWIN FALLS — Buhl police said Friday night they were trying to determine whether the Friday gunshots of an elderly Buhl couple were a double suicide or a murder-suicide.

Police Chief Les Cochran said 70-year-old Jack Zearross and his wife, 55-year-old Faye, were found dead in their Buhl home Friday afternoon.

Zearross had brought his wife home from the hospital Friday morning, a circumstance which Cochran said raised the possibility of suicide.

He said he could not elaborate until he had more information.

Acting with the permission of the sister, a Buhl police officer broke a window to get into the house and found the dead couple there.

Zearross had retired to Buhl after working for the Nevada Gaming Commission, said Cochran.

More deaths during year than ever before Bumper crop of babies born in 1985

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More babies were born in the United States in 1985 than in any year in the past two decades, the National Center for Health Statistics said Friday.

There also were more deaths recorded than ever before in a single year in the United States.

The center released provisional figures on births, marriages, divorces and deaths for 1985. The figures are still subject to change.

There were 1,187,000 divorces in 1985, up 3 percent, or 32,000, from 1984.

The center said the 1985 divorce rate was the highest since 1975, when it was 1.1 marriages per 1,000 people.

The divorce rate rose 1.1 percent in 1985, to 1.2 marriages per 1,000 people.

The number of divorces increased slightly. There were five divorces per 1,000 people, up from 4.9 in 1984. The all-time high was 5.1 in 1978 and 1981.

"This relative stability of the divorce rate in the 1980s contrasts with the rapid rise in the divorce rate during the 1970s," said the center, which is part of the Department of Health and Human Services.

There were 8.75 deaths per 1,000 population, the center attributed the record number of deaths to the greater number of the population, especially among those 65 and older, and an influenza outbreak early in the year.

The center in a separate report said there were an estimated 241,000 babies born in June, down 20,000, or 8 percent, from the same month in 1984.

Election foes Evans, Symms trade letters on farm crisis

BOISE (AP) — The opponents in Idaho's tight race for the U.S. Senate have suddenly become pen pals on the farm crisis.

Democratic Gov. John Evans on Friday sent a letter to Republican Sen. Steve Symms, calling on him to support legislation easing credit problems of Idaho's beleaguered farmers, and Symms shot one back to Evans, asking him to convince two of his appointees to back off of a plan that could significantly increase costs for irrigators.

The latest tactic reflected the recent escalation in the campaign that blames "the other" for the state's severe economic problems.

"To help both Idaho farmers and the Farm Credit System, I urge you to support pending legislation to allow individual units of the Farm Credit System to set interest rates without congressional action," Evans said in his letter to Symms, released amid reports that the nation's largest farm lender will go broke sometime next year.

The governor, citing the need for relief from high interest rates, predicted that federal budget problems and opposition from urban lawmakers to escalating federal farm expenditures would likely doom attempts to bailout the struggling organization of production credit associations, land banks and cooperatives.

Until that can be overcome, Evans said a possible short-term solution would be to eliminate the current requirement that the Farm Credit Administration approve any interest rate changes by PCAs and land banks to make their rates more competitive with commercial lenders so they can keep their best, and profit-generating, borrowers.

Those lower rates, he said in the letter that was also sent to the other GOP members of the state congressional delegation, would also benefit current FCA borrowers with variable rate loans.

On the other side of the public, Symms, who is trying to retain the seat he wrested from Democrat Frank Church six years ago, asked Evans to persuade the two Idaho members of the Northwest Power Planning Council to reverse their support for a proposed 10 percent surcharge on rural electric cooperatives in areas pending to adopt regional energy conservation construction standards.

Saying the surcharge on power from utilities served by the Bonneville Power Administration "could have a potentially devastating effect on our state's farm economy," Symms, joined by senior GOP Sen. James McClure, wrote, "We call on you to represent Idaho agricultural interests by making your concerns known to your appointees."

"Idaho farmers need all the help we can possibly give them during these tough economic times," the letter said.

A day earlier, the two senators urged BPA Administrator Jim Jura to reject the proposed surcharge because of its potential impact on farm irrigation costs that play a significant role in production expenses for many Idaho growers.

Jura has until the end of the year to issue his decision.

ISU Inaugural set for weekend

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho State University's not-so-new president said he is charting a course aimed at fulfilling ISU's obligation to public education while increasing the school's stature and the state's financial commitment.

Richard Bowen, to be inaugurated this weekend after more than a year on the job, said he would like to see ISU gain ground on the University of Idaho's "more identified role in research."

Bowen begins his second year at ISU with some challenging tasks ahead.

Ideas on centennial sought

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Centennial Commission has scheduled nine meetings across the state to gather ideas for the 1990 celebration of 100 years of statehood.

Constance Arana, executive director of the Idaho Centennial Commission, said "town meetings" will be conducted in Pocatello on Tuesday; Idaho Falls, Wednesday; Sun Valley, Oct. 14; Coeur d'Alene, Oct. 26; Lewiston, Oct. 28; Moscow, Oct. 29; Boise, Nov. 5; Nampa, Nov. 12; and Twin Falls, Nov. 19.

The commission's goal is to involve "as many people as possible in the 'Celebration of the Century,'" said commission Chairman Harry F. Magnuson, a Wallace industrialist.

Interested citizens are invited to attend the meetings and submit ideas for commemorative projects, programs, publications, products and activities. The commission will consider local, state and regional projects.

Brimhall proposes clean campaign law

IDAH0 FALLS (AP) — State Rep. Preston Brimhall, R-Idaho Falls, is considering legislation that would give state district judges the power to automatically disqualify Idaho political candidates who lie during campaigns.

Brimhall, one of the state's most conservative members, also said district judges should be given authority to fine newspapers for trying to influence the outcome of elections in the final month of a campaign.

"I was toying with introducing something in this last time," Brimhall said Thursday. "None of these things are final, but we need to do something to get truth in politics."

The two-term legislator, who is being challenged for re-election by Democrat Charles LoPresti, said, "I think the public is subjected to fraud and too much deception."

Brimhall said it would be a good idea to "put time and spending limits on campaigns, and to ban out-of-state political contributions. He would like to see primary campaigns be limited to a month and the general election campaign to not more than six weeks.

Legislative races should cost no more than $1,000, and candidates should not spend more than $25,000 in a governor's race, Brimhall said. "The campaign costs are ridiculous."

He suggests leaving the responsibility for getting "factual" information to the public to the state universities. They could research the candidates and have the information published in newspapers.

"We need to give people factual information so people would be in a better position to make good judgments," Brimhall said.

EPA hints at relaxing runoff rule

BOISE (AP) — Federal officials say the Environmental Protection Agency is ready to make some concessions on controversial regulations for water runoff from livestock feeding operations.

But they told the industry in Boise on Friday that even small operators will still have to be covered by the new permit requirements if they have runoff from their lots.

"We don't have the choice of not giving you one at all," Idaho EPA Operations Chief Lynn McKee said.

Idaho Cattle Association spokesman Tom Hovenden called the regulatory scheme unacceptable, and Vickie Nelson of the Idaho Dairymen's Association said that while some compromise has been offered the industry still believes officials should conduct an economic impact analysis of the proposal. She said there are reports that dairymen have spent from $8,000 to $150,000 to meet current EPA runoff standards.

"This sits very heavily on an industry that is already under going hard times," she said.

The informal hearing was the second of two set up by the agency since Idaho's two U.S. senators pressured the government into accepting public reaction to the proposed regulations through the end of the month.

"We're not here to put anybody out of business," said Regional EPA Administrator Robie Russell, a former Idaho deputy attorney general. "We're here to try to work with you in a manner that will make your business operate more efficiently in an environmental sense."

The proposed rules, which McKee hopes can be finalized by year's end, are intended to end runoff into streams from dairies and feedlot operations in all but the wettest years. They would require operators to build containment structures, lagoons or ponds.

Andrus pledges to try for higher state wages

BOISE (AP) — Saying they "deserve the respect of the people and a decent living," Democrat Cecil Andrus pledged to push for higher pay for state workers if he is elected governor, something his Republican opponent refused to do a day earlier.

Andrus told the General Council of the Idaho Public Employees Association on Friday that he would recommend to the Legislature that state workers' pay include a cost-of-living increase equal to the rate of inflation.

He also said he would conduct a study of wages for jobs comparable to those of state workers in private business and recommend their pay be set accordingly.

"We'll get back on track with the appropriate compensation for state employees," Andrus told the council, which represents most of Idaho's 12,000 state workers. "You have been at the end-of-the-line-for-too-long."

On Thursday, Republican gubernatorial candidate David Leroy would make no promises to the council that the two-year pay freeze for state workers would end if he is elected.

Missing woman found in Portland

NAMPA (AP) — A Nampa woman who was reported missing last week has been located in Portland, Nampa Detective Gary Tweed said.

Eugene Garcia Osoco, 40, who is slightly retarded and lives with her nephew in Nampa, was reported missing Sept. 8 after last being seen near several abandoned warehouses.

She apparently rode to Portland on a freight train with some transportation, Tweed said Thursday. She was located Wednesday night, and her nephew went to Portland to get her, Tweed said.

Blaine approves levy for additional students

By BARBARA NEWERT
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Three weeks into the new school year, Blaine County District has substantially more students than last year and has approved an emergency levy to generate funds to cover expenses for the additional students.

The state Division of the Enrollment said the district has 88 students more than last year — a 3.3 percent increase in enrollment.

District Superintendent David Noonan said a modest increase was anticipated in the budget and staffing process.

"I would have predicted an increase of about 30 students," Noonan said, indicating the additional enrollment of 88 students was "not a shock" but was greater than expected.

To accommodate the increase in student load, the Blaine County School Board of Trustees has approved a $132,801 emergency levy. The board has the authority to pass such a levy without a vote of the district's patrons, Noonan said.

The additional funds will go toward support of the extra class loads, including two new teacher aides in the elementary classes, plus books and materials.

The additional enrollment figures will ultimately affect the funds received from the state, but Noonan said the district will not see those funds for some time. It is the district's responsibility to meet the needs of the new students as they enter the school system, he said.

The increases were very unevenly distributed throughout the schools. Hemingway Elementary in Kelchum experienced a decline of three students out of its 337 students in kindergarten through sixth grades. Likewise, Wood River Junior High tallied three less students for a total of 334.

Bellevue Elementary, which houses kindergarten through third grade only, saw the greatest gain with 33 additional students for a total of 470. Hailey Elementary saw an increase of 28 students among its fourth, fifth and sixth grades for a total of 294 students.

Hemingway Elementary in Kelchum experienced a decline of three students out of its 337 students in kindergarten through sixth grades. Likewise, Wood River Junior High tallied three less students for a total of 334.

Wood River Senior High saw a slight gain of nine students for a total of 330.

The Carey School, which houses kindergarten through 12th grade, now has 270 students, a gain of 21. Plans are underway for remodeling and a classroom addition to the Carey School, which should help alleviate the overcrowding by next fall.

17 file suits in response to chemical spill

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Attorneys for 17 people who claim injuries from a herbicide spill in Rupert last year are seeking $7,575,000 in damages from a truck driver, his company and chemical manufacturers, according to Mindoka County court documents.

The April 11, 1985, spill involving the pesticide "killer" dinitrophenol killed a dozen people to the hospital. The accident occurred on state Highway 24 in Rupert and affected a gasoline station and a roadside cafe.

The Division of the Environment said about 15 gallons leaked from a truck.

It was operated by Donald Ray Frasher, and his wife was a passenger in the truck, according to court records. The Frashers are defendants in four of the five suits filed, according to court documents.

Other defendants include American Farmland, the owner of the truck; the Platte Chemical Co., the manufacturer; the Balcorn Chemical Co., the parent company of Platte; and United Agri Products, the purchaser, the suits said. The Magic Valley Chemical Response Team of Twin Falls is also a defendant in one of the suits.

One of 116 30-gallon containers on the truck had been punctured, according to the state Division of Environment.

Emergency personnel responding to the accident got some of the chemical on their bodies.

Those admitted to Mindoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert complained of headaches, nausea and chest pains, said Dr. Bruce Campbell, a staff doctor who treated most of those admitted. Half the people admitted were police and fire fighters, according to the hospital.

The suits are complex and there are so many plaintiffs that there are motions to consolidate the cases, he said. He will try the cases in Rupert.

Two of the cases have been set for trial in 1987.

At a June 4, 1987, trial date has been set for a suit filed by Timothy and Teresa Hatcher seeking $2,075,000 for damages and loss of companionship. Hatcher is a Mindoka County Sheriff's Department officer who was called to the spill scene, the suit said.

A June 8, 1987, trial date has been set for the suit filed by Kevin Winn, Jerold Ketterling, Fred Rice, Robert Conner and Stanley Clark. The plaintiffs were employed by the Idaho State Police and the Mindoka County Sheriff's Department at the time of the spill, according to the suit. The suit seeks $400,000 in damages.

Other suits were filed by:

- Steven Roy Hammond and Terri Iola Hammond, seeking $2,575,000 in damages and loss of companionship.
- John D. and Tina Fisher, seeking $2,125,000 for damages and loss of companionship.
- Dwight Allen, Kathy Allen and their children Jayme Allen and Robbie Kenyon are seeking $400,000 in damages.

The arguments and defendants' answers in the suits are similar.

The suit filed by the Hatchers claims the accident was the result of negligence on the part of the defendants. It says they were in violation of regulations for transportation of hazardous materials.

The suit said Hatcher suffered pain and required medical treatment for a considerable period of time as a result of the accident and that the herbicide was intentionally discharged in a manner that would cause harm to the general public.

The suit said the suit said the defendants misidentified the herbicide and were aware of its chemical properties and potential dangers.

Hatcher relied on them for their expertise and suffered injuries as a result of the misidentification, the suit said.

The containers for storing the herbicide were inadequate for the use intended, the suit said.

The defendants have denied every allegation, according to their answer. They said the plaintiffs were guilty of negligent, careless misconduct and that the plaintiffs failed to follow instructions and reasonable safety precautions. They ask that the complaint be dismissed.

Juvenile center rates with tour group

JEROME — A state legislator and legislative candidate who toured a private juvenile detention center near Jerome this week said they were impressed with what they saw. But they agreed that state laws should be clarified to determine who's responsible for resuming such facilities.

State Sen. Danton Darrington, R-Declo, Cella Folkings of Buhl, a Republican candidate for House Seat 23B, Rep. Jerry Callen, R-Jerome; and Bruce Newcomb of Burley, a GOP candidate for House Seat 24B, toured the Southern Idaho Youth Facility on Tuesday.

State Sen. Laird-Noh, R-Twin Falls, announced last week that he has been researching the idea of licensing juvenile detention centers in the state. Noh, who couldn't join the tour, said the question of who should have licensing authority should be answered by the Legislature.

"Darrington, who sits on the Senate's Judiciary and Health and Welfare committees, agreed with Noh.

"The key point is this," Darrington said on Friday. "Something has to be done for adequate housing of juveniles, we all know that. This (the center) might be a step in that direction. We can't criticize those who are trying. I'm sure we're more than willing to work out any problems in the law so we don't throw bureaucratic regulations in their way."

State officials have said that the center can open any time, because there was no state regulatory authority on juvenile detention centers.

Darrington said that if there were some kind of regulations, those who use the facility and the center operators probably would feel more comfortable.

If the center opens as planned Oct. 1, the state Legislature would have three months of operating history to review when considering any regulatory proposals, Darrington said.

"I don't think people want to know youths will be safe, well protected and well cared for," he said, adding he was impressed with the facility, located four miles east of Jerome on U.S. 93.

Folkings also said she liked the center, owned by Cloyce Edwards, former Twin Falls County coroner.

"It's a good solution to a problem we have,"

she said.

Folkings said the law needs to be clarified on juvenile housing so it could be determined who is responsible for juvenile housing. Some interpretations say it's now up to the counties and the judiciary.

The tour was closed to news reporters, Henk Bekker, the center office manager and a Jerome County Commissioner, said the reason for the closure was because of what he considered "negative" news articles about the center, particularly on reporting of the opponents of the center.

"We are open and we are legal," he said.

In the future, the center's staff will only discuss the operation's "newsworthy" business in news releases, Bekker said.

The center will be the subject of a Sept. 29 Jerome County Planning and Zoning meeting. Neighbors opposing the center sought the hearing, claiming the center required a special permit before it could begin operations.

A regional council of the Idaho Youth Commission also is preparing a recommendation on the center's operations for the full commission. The commission review was invited by the center.

Junior college tax unlikely

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A perennial request for a statewide property tax to support junior colleges will again probably meet with the same response from lawmakers — No.

That was the opinion of outgoing legislator Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, who chaired the state's legislative committee on accountability and funding for Idaho's colleges and universities.

"Actually, I think it would be more equitable to do that way," Scott said Friday. "But I don't see much support for it."

The suggestion for a statewide property tax was made by College of Southern Idaho President Harry Meyerhoefer, who said the issue was one of "equity."

Meyerhoefer made his comments Friday in a joint meeting with lawmakers and educators, including officials from North Idaho College, who met at CSI.

Local property taxpayers in Twin Falls and Jerome counties pay twice as much as other Idaho colleges. Part of their property tax goes to support Boise State and Idaho State universities. The tax is funded by a junior college taxing district.

However, both BSU and ISU offer community college courses, the three-year state funding, safety and no local funding. CSI officials have long held the funding system is unfair to junior colleges.

Meyerhoefer said both students and taxpayers are paying "the maximum" in tuition and property taxes to support CSI.

A statewide property tax could be low, said Meyerhoefer. He suggested about $2.50 a month in taxes on a $100,000 house could raise $15 million.

He also said the statewide tax would reduce local property taxes by as much as 40 percent.

The group of about 30 people also discussed at length accountability and duplication of services at Idaho's colleges, and they discussed whether the state Board of Education was doing its job governing the system.

Lawmakers — kicked around whether Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston should be closed, but legislators from Northern Idaho balked at the suggestion.

State Sen. Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewiston, said if the committee turned into a "wildchunt to close

Work begins on $195,500 Rock Creek Park project

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Work on a $195,500 project to expand Rock Creek Park in Twin Falls finally has started, after two years of waiting and much paperwork.

The office of U.S. Senator Steve Symms, R-Idaho, announced last week that Twin Falls County was the recipient of a $97,750 grant from the U.S. Interior Department's Land and Water Conservation Fund. The grant will help pay for an amphitheater, picnic sites, one-mile hiking trail, foot paths and parking at a new nine-acre addition to the county park.

The entrance to the park is located off Park Avenue West.

The county is expected to match the amount of the federal grant with money or labor. Since the county doesn't have the funds, its match probably will be in county work and donations of funds or labor from civic organizations, said Darrell Heider, Twin Falls County parks director.

About two years ago, the county started the application process for the grant. Its proposal initially was rejected for funding.

The state Department of Parks, which administers the grant, approved the county's proposal last fall. Jim Poulsen, the department's bureau chief of recreation resources, but there was a delay in the state's processing of the county's application for the federal Interior Department, Poulsen said.

The state didn't have the manpower to do the work because of reduced federal funding from Congress for the program, he said.

The county will receive $13,000 of the federal grant when it acquires from the Twin Falls Canal Co. the existing five-acre parcel located across the creek from the existing five-acre park. Heider said. Bridges will connect the new parcel to the existing park.

The Twin Falls Canal Company had offered to donate the land about two years ago, Heider said.

The transfer of the land has been delayed until the federal grant was obtained.

The first priority in the project is building a bridge. Heider expected to advertise for bids by the end of the month to construct the bridge from two flat acres previously donated by Union Pacific Co.

"We want to get it done now," Heider said.

The plan also calls for two foot bridges, estimated to cost a total of $20,000.

The installation of sprinkler pipes and landscaping will have to wait until next spring, with the county doing most of the work, Heider said.

"Our work force can do a lot," he said. And the work conducted by the county will count toward its part of matching the federal grant.

The county also will solicit service organizations to help, Heider said.

The largest item in the project is a 150-seat amphitheater, expected to cost $46,000. The county also will have to come up with matching funds through donations or work, Heider said.

After the years of planning, the parks director said he was happy the project was ready to go. "It's quite a milestone," he said.

Mindoka eyes C-rule alternatives

By RONDA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

HEYBURN — Doubting the effectiveness of the Coverage rule imposed by the State Board of Education, Mindoka County School Trustees discussed possible alternatives to the rule at its last board meeting.

A survey conducted by the district found that 85 of last year's ninth-grade students, or 23 percent of the class, and 75 percent of last year's 10th-grade students, or 21 percent of the class, were failing to meet the Coverage in their core classes.

Beginning with the class of 1988, graduating seniors must have met a C-average in the core subjects of English, math, reading and speech. Seniors who fail to achieve a C-average will not receive high school diplomas.

A state survey conducted this summer showed that a third of ninth- and 10th-graders statewide failed to meet the new requirement. Mindoka students appear to be doing better than others in the state, Superintendent Gene Snapp told the board.

Mindoka's normal high school dropout rate has been running at about 20 percent, Snapp said. While

No tax cheat, Claiborne says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge Harry E. Claiborne told his impeachment trial Friday he did not cheat on his taxes, and that he was framed by federal agents who displayed pictures on their walls portraying him as dim-witted.

Taking the stand for the first time since the trial started Monday, Claiborne, chief U.S. district judge in Nevada, told senators he was the victim of a "frame-up" by a former FBI supervisor who "was a very ambitious man and came into Las Vegas with the idea, in his words, of planting the American flag in the Nevada desert."

"I think his idea of doing that was to get rid of a lot of people, and unfortunately for me, I was foremost in his ambitious path," the impeached judge said of former FBI agent Joseph Yablonsky, who was in charge of the Las Vegas office. Claiborne, 69, was convicted in 1984 on charges of evading taxes on his 1979 and 1980 federal income tax returns. From the moment he took the stand, he appeared relaxed and folksy, and his firm voice never wavered under questioning from defense lawyer Oscar Goodman.

Claiborne said that in 1980 he provided Joseph Wright, then his accountant for three decades, with the proper information on legal fees earned before his judgeship — fees the government claimed he purposely failed to report.

Claiborne said he signed a blank return, and did not learn until much later that he was under investigation for not reporting all the fees and failing to pay taxes on the unreported amount.

"Did you ever see the completed 1979 return before it was filed?" Goodman asked.

"No," Claiborne responded. In 1981, Claiborne said, he was headed by Jerry Watson, who previously testified that he in turn handed the work to an employee, Charlotte Travaglia.

The judge testified that he was shocked to learn from Watson that he told a grand jury the firm never received the judge's legal fee income for 1980. Claiborne said he had, indeed, given the figures to Watson.

"I said you have just indicted me," Claiborne said, and testified he immediately drove Watson to his home and showed him the figures.

Watson has told the 12-member impeachment panel that he then notified the grand jury he wanted to change his testimony. (UPI)

Transcript release due

WASHINGTON (AP) — A transcript of conversations among the shuttle Challenger's seven astronauts in the hour before their ill-fated launch Jan. 28 will be made public soon because of requests by the news media, NASA said Friday.

"The recording of the pre-launch crew intercom loop was not transcribed and released previously because it provided no information pertinent to either the cause of the accident or the cause and time of crew death," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Girl receives $1 million in drug case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has awarded $1 million in damages to a 10-year-old Washington, D.C., girl for physical deformities she suffered after her mother took Bendectin, a drug used by an estimated 33 million pregnant women since it was introduced in 1956 to relieve morning sickness.

The award, announced Thursday, came after an eight-week trial in U.S. District Court. It is the largest award in the city involving the drug and its manufacturer, Merrell Dow Pharmaceutical Inc. of Cincinnati.

The jury also awarded $160,000 to Carilla Richardson's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Richardson.

One of Carilla's hands and one of her arms is deformed. She also is missing one leg and the other is deformed.

FAA to order gear installed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, unhappy about the lack of airline progress in installing collision avoidance equipment, said Friday it will order the technology into commercial jetliners within a few years.

FAA officials said the action is expected to spur industry demand for the warning devices and prompt airlines to move more quickly in putting them into airline cockpits.

Nevertheless, it will likely be the end of the decade before most commercial aircraft have the equipment that would warn pilots about a threat of an impending aerial collision, FAA officials conceded.

"We're going to force the issue," FAA Administrator Donald Engen told reporters Friday, insisting the technology "is available, usable, right now, today."

However, industry representatives say that the equipment is ready for use.

Wardrobe, wealth tales exaggerated, Mme. Marcos says

NEW YORK (AP) — Imelda Marcos, former first lady of the Philippines, insists she has no weakness for ribbons, and that stories about her footgear collection, her wardrobe and her wealth are exaggerations.

"I wear very simple shoes which are pump shoes. It is not one of my weaknesses," Mrs. Marcos said in an interview to be broadcast on the CBS News program "60 Minutes" on Sunday.

The 3,000 shoes left behind at the presidential palace when Mrs. Marcos and her husband, former president Ferdinand Marcos, fled the Philippines were not all hers, she contended.

"I'm sure I don't have 3,000 pairs," she said.

IMELDA MARCOS Being unfairly judged

Mrs. Marcos told interviewer Diane Sawyer that she and her husband "how have no money, denying that they have a fortune in Swiss bank accounts. She also said she believed unfairly for her efforts to be beautiful.

"You see Dynasty, you see Dallas, and you see all of these beautiful women and beautiful people, and if it is for the wife (people), it is correct, but if it is someone who comes from a Third World country like me, who has skin colored brown, it (does) not seem right," Mrs. Marcos said.

But it is a basic human right to reach for excellence, for love, for love and beauty and God."

Princess Diana's lecture ends years of smoking

LONDON (AP) — A woman who has been smoking for 35 years vowed to stop after getting a scolding from Princess Diana.

"I shall not smoke again," said Shirley Murray, 51, a mother of three who had 40 cigarette-a-day habit.

The princess and the smoker came face-to-face Thursday at Brompton Hospital, which specializes in chest and lung problems. Diana visited the hospital the day after actress Pat Phoenix of the television soap opera "Coronation Street" died of lung cancer and was nationally mourned.

Murray was at the hospital to visit her 12-year-old son, who has a toy building brick lodged in a lung. When she encountered the princess in a hallway, Murray was holding a half-smoked cigarette.

"Reporters who saw the encounter said the princess exclaimed: 'What have you got there?'" she said.

"Nothing," said Murray.

"You're lying," retorted the princess. "Where are you going with terrorists."

"The princess was spared nothing," said guards' leader Michael Kelly. "She chatted calmly and casually to men in for guard and sex offenses and showed a genuine interest in their problems."

Visit to tough prison taken in stride by Anne

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Princess Anne chatted easily with murderers, sex offenders, thieves and Danny the Foger during a visit to one of Britain's toughest prisons.

The 36-year-old princess, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, stepped into a cell at the high-security Winson Green Prison in Birmingham for a four-minute chat with three convicts.

"She was very charming and nice, and said she intended taking a personal interest in prison conditions," reporters were told by one of the trio, identified only as Danny the Foger.

Winson Green was built in 1845 and designed for 500 prisoners. On Thursday there were over 1,015 men inside.

Some of them greeted the princess with obscene shouts and catcalls, which she ignored. She met with all categories of prisoners, and saw the punishment cells and the high-security section housing killers and

Skelton, 73, born in Vincennes, also was the subject of a film tribute which included clips from his movies "Having a Wonderful Time," "The Fuller Brush Man" and "Southern Yankee."

Heatherton, Kunster join in revue at shop

NEW YORK (AP) — A day after attorney William M. Kunster helped singer Joey Heatherton win a court case, the two were performing together as part of an entertainment revue at the opening of a Greenwich Village toy shop.

Kunster read a poem by Dylan Thomas and Ms. Heatherton sang a whimsy, off-key rendition of George Gershwin's "Someone to Watch Over Me."

Ms. Heatherton was acquitted Wednesday of charges stemming from an altercation with a passport clerk.

Pageant's chief scolds Miss Ohio for her post-crowning complaints

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The chairman of the Miss America pageant Thursday took Miss Ohio Mary Zilba to task for charging she "robbed" of her chance to be a finalist in the beauty contest.

"By what stretch of the imagination can somebody... question the decision of eight judges who are of unquestioned integrity and known nationally?" Albert A. Marks Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of the Miss America pageant said in a telephone interview from his Miami City, Fla., office.

Miss Zilba, 22, of Toledo, said this week she deserved to be named one of the top 10 finalists and said she wants to see her scores to explain why she "didn't agree."

"There were 50 other young women in that particular pageant," said Marks. "What was wrong with them? Does she presume to judge herself among the other 50 when we had judges to do just that?"

"He said she will not be given her scores."

"If somebody wants to throw a tantrum, that's their business, not

MARY ZILBA Wanted to see scores

"Miss Ohio was not the only contestant to complain about the outcome of last Saturday's contest, in which Miss Tennessee Kellye Cash was crowned Miss America.

Miss Florida Molly Pesce said Miss Cash, the grandniece of country singer Johnny Cash, was one of the least-liked contestants and won partly because of her great-uncle.

Bob Zettler, executive director of the Ohio pageant, said he would meet with Miss Zilba Thursday during her scheduled appearance in Crestline, Ohio.

"The point is though, that no matter how I feel or how she feels, we have to accept the decision of the judges. Zettler told the Mansfield News Journal.

"When you go into this type of competition, you win some and you lose some. You have to accept the judgment, even though it stings."

Marks, who has been with the Miss America pageant for 34 years, said this is "the first time in my memory I've ever seen anything like this. I have to believe it's an aberration."

Farmer fails to save property, takes own life

BURNSBY, Tenn. (AP) — A 55-year-old farmer killed himself the day the government was to file papers to enclose his family farm, a federal official said Friday.

M.T. Sparks shot himself early Thursday, several hours after returning from an unsuccessful business meeting aimed at saving the 437-acre family farm in Hardeman County, said his wife, Peggy.

"He just said he had to do it. I tried every way I could to talk him out of it, but it wasn't enough," said

Mrs. Sparks, who witnessed the shooting.

Ed Bailey of the Farmers Home Administration said Sparks agreed early this year to a voluntary liquidation of his property to settle a $415,000 debt to the federal government.

But problems with the land title and with other debtors slowed the liquidation process, Bailey said, and FmHA officials decided to foreclose on the property, which previously was owned by Sparks' father.

Three Roman cops pick wrong targets

ROME (AP) — The would-be robbers thought they had a good gimmick when they pretended they were policemen. But the intended victims were real policemen.

Two men wielding pistols and claiming to be policemen accosted three men at 2 a.m. at the Baths of Diocletian. Crowded with tourists during the day, the ancient Roman baths swarm with prostitutes and drug dealers at night.

Farmer fails to save property, takes own life

Though Sparks apparently did not know it, the foreclosure papers were to be filed Thursday, he said. After officials learned of his suicide, they postponed further action for the time being.

"It really bothers you folks when something like this happens," Bailey added.

Mrs. Sparks said most people cannot understand the problems that farmers face.

"There's no way to understand this," she said. "Dad can go to you, they really can. He was the last person in the world you would expect to do something like this."

Manila may ban nuclear arms

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A government commission voted unanimously Friday to include a provision banning nuclear weapons from the Philippines in the constitution being drafted for a new approval.

Critics claim the U.S. military keeps atomic weapons at Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base north of Manila. If adopted, the constitution would place the Philippines among a growing number of Pacific nations barring nuclear arms.

The approval of the ban came a day after the 47-member constitutional commission voted to require a formal treaty for the U.S. bases when the current lease expires in 1991. The leases now can be extended by presidential endorsement.

France seeks 9 for bombing

PARIS (AP) — Police issued a nationwide alert Friday for nine suspects in a series of bloody bombings that has traumatized the French capital and led opposition political parties to rally around the conservative government.

Photographs of five men and four women wanted for questioning in the attacks were distributed to all police offices. They were described as dangerous and possibly armed.

Leaders of France's major political parties met with Premier Jacques Chirac and called for national unity in fighting terrorism.

Five bombs have exploded in Paris since Sept. 6, killing eight people and injuring 164.

British trains collide, 2 die

STAFFORD, England (AP) — Two high-speed trains filled with weekend commuters collided Friday in central England, and police said two people were killed and 60 were injured.

State-run British Rail said about 400 people were aboard the trains, which were speeding through Staffordshire at about 100 mph. One was heading north from London to Liverpool, the other south from Manchester to London.

One of the trains delivered a "glancing blow" to the other at a junction about six miles from Stafford, the railroad said.

Soviet soldier gets 12 years

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A human rights group said Friday that a young Soviet soldier who deserted in Afghanistan and later left the United States to return home has been sentenced to 12 years in a labor camp.

The International Association for Human Rights, a Frankfurt-based group which has contacts with Soviet emigres, said 22-year-old Nikolai Ryzhkov was convicted of high treason and sentenced several months ago.

He is serving his term in a camp for political prisoners in Barashevo, in the Soviet republic of Moldavia, they said.

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — Trade ministers agreed generally on Friday to negotiate reduced barriers to global trade in services and farm products, but remained divided on an agenda for new talks.

After five days of marathon bargaining, a compromise agenda was slowly taking form for a new round of international trade talks under the 23-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Negotiations continued on farm subsidies and services, the most divisive issues of the conference.

Ministers of 74 countries attended the Punta del Este conference to set the agenda for a round of talks expected to begin next year.

"It is more optimistic than some," said U.S. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige. "We've got to work on the language of the agenda so people can go home and say they got something."

U.S. delegates said they would leave the conference at midday Saturday, whether an accord was reached or not.

While the United States and other industrialized nations want to negotiate freer international exchanges of services such as banking and communications in the new round of GATT talks, India and Brazil proposed the issue be negotiated separately.

In an overnight session that broke up early Friday, bargainers had worked out a proposal to hold separate negotiations for goods and for services under the auspices of GATT.

As of Friday afternoon, neither the United States nor the Brazil-India side had agreed to the plan.

The developing countries fear their young service industries would be overwhelmed by competition from rich countries if they lifted protective barriers. Wealthy countries argue that trade in services now represents a major share of all world trade, and that protectionist barriers should be eliminated.

The compromise agenda item on agricultural subsidies eliminated a call for a phased end to export subsidies, sought by the United States. Instead it simply called for reaching agreement on "all direct and indirect subsidies and all measures relating to agricultural trade."

Mexico remembers '85 quake victims

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Solidarity Plaza has a fresh red and white pavement, fountains at each corner and a splash of flowers, trees and other shrubs. A year ago it held the twisted, smoking wreckage of the Regis Hotel and a major department store, damaged beyond repair in a tremendous earthquake.

Mexico's capital marked the first anniversary Friday of the 2 1/2-minute quake that killed thousands of people.

President Miguel de la Madrid dedicated the new plaza, placing a wreath in front of a plaque that reads, "To the solidarity of all Mexicans." Workers had tolled around the clock to finish the site in time for the dedication.

Mexicans gathered in churches and plazas throughout the city of 18 million to pay tribute to victims of the quake that registered 8.1 on the Richter scale.

At the San Antonio Abad garment district, where hundreds died when sweatshops collapsed, 10 priests conducted a memorial Mass at the corner where many of the factories fell down. Hundreds of worshippers spilled into the streets, blocking traffic.

Estimates of the dead range from the government figure of 6,000 to 30,000, used by some foreign diplomats and Mexican private sector sources. The government estimates damage at $5 billion, including 30,000 housing units destroyed and another 60,000 damaged.

At 7:19 a.m. Friday — the time the quake struck — de la Madrid slowly raised a giant red-white-and-green Mexican flag to the top of the pole in the middle of Zocalo Plaza in the front of the National Palace, then lowered it to half-staff. Flags throughout Mexico flew at half-staff to honor the victims.

At the president's side was Red Cross worker Marcos Eren Sarinana Guadarrama, known as "Puige," who became a national hero by repeatedly going into buildings to help rescue some of the more than 4,000 people saved from the wreckage.

"Those who didn't feel, who didn't see what was seen here cannot really feel the pain," the slightly built man told reporters as he clutched a frayed-edge Bible.

Some of the estimated 86,000 people still living in temporary housing — many in metal-and-asbestos huts — planned to mark the anniversary by protesting what they see as the government's slowness in coming to their aid.

A group of homeless, called the Council of Homeless Families, planned a protest march to Zocalo.

UN may pull out force

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar on Friday threatened to withdraw the U.N. peacekeeping troops from southern Lebanon and blamed Israel for the "major crisis" facing the force.

France has asked for an urgent meeting of the Security Council to consider the U.N. chief's report, and shortly before the council met five French soldiers with the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon were wounded.

Perez de Cuellar opened the council meeting with a report on the attack that he blamed on "extremist armed elements."

"I regret to have to inform the council that the seriousness of the situation was again underlined, about three hours ago, by a further rocket attack by unidentified armed elements against a position of the French battalion in the northern part of the UNIFIL area," he said.

The latest attack increased the number of casualties in France's UNIFIL contingent to four killed and 33 wounded over the past six weeks.

Toy's 5 TDs put Tigers on top

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

MOUNTAIN HOME — In a battle of big plays, undefeated Mountain Home had senior speedster Maury Toy Friday night as that was enough to assure the Tigers a 38-18 decision over previously unbeaten Buhl in a South-Central Idaho Conference football game.

Toy scored all five of Mountain Home's touchdowns in a versatile show that included an 88-yard punt return, a pass reception for another touchdown and scoring runs of 18, 12 and 22 yards. But the 6-foot-200-pound Toy was not the only offensive star of the game. Buhl's Tim Cornlie opened the game with a scintillating 91-yard kickoff return and wound up scoring late in the fourth quarter with a 62-yard dash.

In-between times, Buhl connected on a 48-yard scoring bomb. In other words, no one sustained much against the other, but neither contained at the critical time.

That point was not lost on Buhl Coach Keith Metzner.

"We gave them the breaks and they capitalized on it," he said. "We did all the things we said we couldn't do, like give them field position and keep them from getting big plays. I was pleased they weren't able to sustain anything against us, but the big play was more than we suspected too."

With the field being a little slick due to a late-afternoon rainstorm, the ability of the runners to maintain their balance was impressive — at no time more impressive than on the opening kickoff which Cornlie took at his own 9-yard line, faked a punt handoff to a teammate about the 15 and then snatched down the left sideline for a 91 yards. It was exactly the type of break Metzner hoped his underdog Indians might get.

"Cornlie ran one back against last year — not the opening kickoff but a kick — that was wide but the Indians then kept their upset hopes alive by stopping Mountain Home and taking a punt four plays later. Then after a first down, the series of breaks that plagued Buhl the entire first half set in."

The first was pass interception by Jim Satterfield that set the Tigers up at the Mountain Home 15. A long pass from Gary Taylor to Dirk Keulam picked up 40 yards and put the ball on the 16. Toy took a quick pitch and used his speed to score on the next play, but Buhl held the conversion run to keep the game even at 14-14.

Nike Eckert's return of the kickoff to midfield gave Buhl a chance to reply — but that opportunity died when a 15-yard sprint by Cornlie for an apparent first down at the Mountain Home 23 was nullified by a penalty. That hurled Buhl back to midfield and on the last play of the quarter, the Indians punted. The ensuing Buhl play set up the kick down first after Toy led the ball down to the 10-yard line. But he suddenly darted in, took the ball on the top and sailed 83 yards for a touchdown. The "Indians behind for rest of the night."

Immediately after the kickoff, Buhl fumbled with Mountain Home's Josh Luck recovering at the Buhl 28. Two plays later, Toy took an option

Wendell upsets Kimberly

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Wendell got what it came for, and it was more than just a win.

"We hoped to control the ball on the ground — to run it down their throats," said Wendell Coach Shawn Corigan. "I was really pleased."

As well he should be. Wendell absolutely manhandled the Bulldogs, holding them to just 42 yards rushing — including a minor fumble — in the first quarter. Winning 28-18 in a Canyon Conference showdown. Meanwhile, the Trojans put together a 258-yard ground game of their own in running their record to 3-1 for the season and 1-0 in conference.

The time-consuming, grinding ground game characterized the Trojans' attack, eating up an average of six minutes per drive.

They did it mainly by going up the middle with running backs Jimmy Prince and Andy Swanson. And when Kimberly started plugging up the holes in the middle, which didn't happen often, observers could count on quarterback Slade Ruffing to do some end-around action.

"We made some errors; some mistakes," said Kimberly Coach Gordon Hogan afterwards. "And when they close down your running game and you have to throw."

Interceptions were the result. In the first quarter, both teams traded miscues. Kimberly muffed a kickoff return, allowing the Trojans to set up shop at their 34-yard line. Five plays later, Prince plowed through the left side of the line and with the kick it was 7-0. Kimberly capitalized on a punt return after getting nowhere on their first possession and had an opportunity to tie it up, but the kick went to the right.

Wendell then put together one of its bone-numbing drives, lasting 13 plays, eating up six minutes. But coming up empty, the Trojans punted to the Bulldogs who then proceeded to turn it back, again without gaining even a first down.

In the second period, Wendell made it 13-6 after a 3½-minute drive, which began on its own 32. Prince did everything but dance around the defenders, racking up a pass and scoring on a 27-yard strike that culminated in his second touchdown of the evening from nine yards out. The PAT snap was fumbled, and the 13-6 score stood.

For about five minutes, that is. Despite being sacked to his 22-yard line, Kimberly's quarterback, Matt McKinlay found wide receiver John Davis in the end zone for a 13-yard scoring reception. The kick was flat, and both teams hit the locker room at 13-12.

The third quarter was kind to the Trojans, who completely snuffed out Kimberly's ground game, while putting together an 18-play drive that began on their 25 to

Minico suffers first loss at the hands of Blackfoot

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News writer

RUPERT — In any football coach's playbook, the section dealing with offense always says, "mix the run with the pass." Friday night, the Blackfoot-Broncos did just that as they manhandled the Minico Spartans 28-8 in a Gem State Conference contest.

"We need to set up our passing game with run," said Bronco Coach Dick Brulotte. "Fortunately, we were able to that early."

The win was a big one for Blackfoot and the loss costly. Blackfoot since the contest was the first for both teams in the Class A-1 Division II football sport that will determine representatives to the state playoffs. Minico has three more games with teams in its pod — Rigby, Madison and Skyline — and must win at least two of them to have any chance of going to state.

Led by the strong running of sophomore tailback Glenn Simpson, the Broncos opened the scoring late in the first quarter when Simpson broke open a time-eating, yard-chewing by-the-run-drive with a 36-yard TD sprint.

Playing like a team with purpose, the Broncos came right back on the next series after Bronco safety Tom Nate intercepted a Jack Bagley Brulotte.

The Broncos were dominating in the first half, having to only punt once for the 30 minutes. The third Blackfoot score came on another pass and scored on a 27-yard strike from QB Scott Phillips to yard catch.

Alonzo Coby.

Coby, in fact, had a great night, snatching two touchdown passes and completely snuffed out Blackfoot's defense with some "some big catches," said one second remaining in the period. Jarvis dove off tackle from there, but the Miners had to settle for a tie when Oakley's John Wells blocked a conversion kick attempt.

"They didn't gamble," said Tompkins of the Miners' offensive strategy. "They were very conservative."

On Oakley's first possession of the second quarter, Gee gained one yard before a pitchout missed the mark to see HORNETS on Page B2

Powerhouse Oakley escapes with tough 15-8 win

By RON GATES

MACKAY — Top-ranked Oakley got its first scare in quite awhile Friday night, before overcoming Mackay 15-8 in a Magic Valley Conference football confrontation.

But the Hornets had to come back to it, and Oakley's 15th consecutive victory wasn't secure until J.J. Gee grabbed an errant Mackay pass with 16 seconds remaining in the contest.

"We were worried," said Oakley Coach Don Tompkins, whose ballclub hadn't been scored upon this season going into Friday's game. "It was their homecoming. They're a good football team."

The victory sets up a potential showdown in Oakley next Friday night with fourth-ranked Deer River, provided the Trojans can beat Murtaugh in their homecoming in Malta this afternoon.

"It's a tough one to lose, but they're a state champion team," said first-year Mackay Coach Jack McKelvey, whose only previous loss this season was to Challis, a team ranked second in Class A-3. "What can you say?"

The Miners, who held an 8-6 lead at halftime on the running of Juniors Jeff James and Shane Jarvis, were shut out in the second half while Oakley scored nine third-quarter points to take the lead for good.

"One thing that helped us a lot was that Jarvis had to play linebacker (on defense)," said Tompkins. "And that hurt them."

Oakley drew blood on its first drive of the game, a 57-yard strike at the Mackay 9, the Hornets marched 39 yards in five plays. Gee ran for 29 and 11 yards to set up a 15-yard scoring loss from Troy.

Woodhouse to Greg Severson.

But the Miners' ball control offense put together four first downs to march 89 yards to Hornets' 2 with

ISU hunting for second win on trip to a chilly Bozeman

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The weather in Bozeman Friday afternoon was 38 degrees and cloudy. Since Montana State will host Idaho State here this afternoon in the Big Sky Conference opener for both teams, that couldn't make Bobcat Coach Dave Arnold happier.

"No, I don't think it's going to snow," said Arnold of the 1 p.m. ballgame. "But I guess if team coming in here thinks it will, that's a plus for us."

The Bobcats' cold-weather prowess around the Big Sky is, of course, legendary — particularly to Idaho State, which hasn't won a bad-weather game here in a quarter century.

"Arnold will take any edge he can get," says Montana State hasn't been in a bad-weather game here in a quarter century.

Arnold, whose team opened on the road at Fresno State and Texas A&M Houston State, losing both games. "I think Idaho State is probably a good team as Montana State is in every play and Sam Houston is in every play and comparable with the good teams in this league."

Arnold hopes that playing the first home game of the season will revive his normally potent offense — led by senior quarterback Kelly Bradley — which has produced just eight points so far this season.

"Right now we have to go back and play basic football," he said. "We are excited to get back into those blue jerseys again. The ability to play at home has to be a big plus."

But the Miners' ball control offense put together four first downs to march 89 yards to Hornets' 2 with a half-time lead by giving up 21 points after intermission.

"We had some good individual plays," said Bobcat Coach Jim Koetter, whose team is 1-1 for the season. "We were physical at the start of the game and then played soft in the second and third quarters. We need to rebound playing on the road again. We need to take care of ourselves and do what we need to do fundamentally — get a more positive attitude and get people down."

"I think if Jim said they had two areas of concern, one of them would be the overall play of their defense," said Arnold. "Let's not let their turnovers on offense. But it's a different defense for them this year, and the personnel has changed."

Offensively, Idaho State by most accounts is more potent than it's been in the past season. When the Bengals went to the I-AA playoffs, there's no secret that they want to get "the ball" to senior tailback
