Reagan vetoes South Africa sanctions bill

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan vetoed legislation Friday imposing new economic sanctions against the white-minority government of South Africa, saying they amounted to a declaration of "economic warfare against the people" of that divided country.

At the same time, however, Reagan said he would be willing to go along with steps similar to the sanctions approved recently by the European community. "I believe we would support their measures with similar executive actions of our own, and I will work with the Congress toward that goal."

The administration did not immediately spell out what action Reagan would take, but the offer was seen as a bid to win support for Reagan in one of the toughest foreign policy showdowns of his presidency.

Deserted by many of his usual allies, Reagan does not have enough votes now to prevent the House and Senate from overriding his veto, according to the White House and Republican vote-counters in Congress.

In his veto message, Reagan said the sanctions approved by Congress — banning all new American investment and bank loans in South Africa — would hurt not only South Africans but also the neighboring black states that are dependent on Pretoria for transportation, energy, food, and markets.

"Do we truly wish to be directly responsible for increased suffering and perhaps starvation in southern Africa?" Reagan asked.

He said Americans are united in seeking an end to apartheid. "But while we vigorously support the purpose of this legislation, declaring economic warfare against the people of South Africa would be destructive only of their efforts to peacefully end apartheid; but also of the opportunity to replace it with a free society."

Reagan warned that "punitive economic sanctions would contribute directly and measurably to the misery of people who have already suffered enough. Using America's power to deepen the economic crisis in this tortured country is not the way to reconciliation and peace."

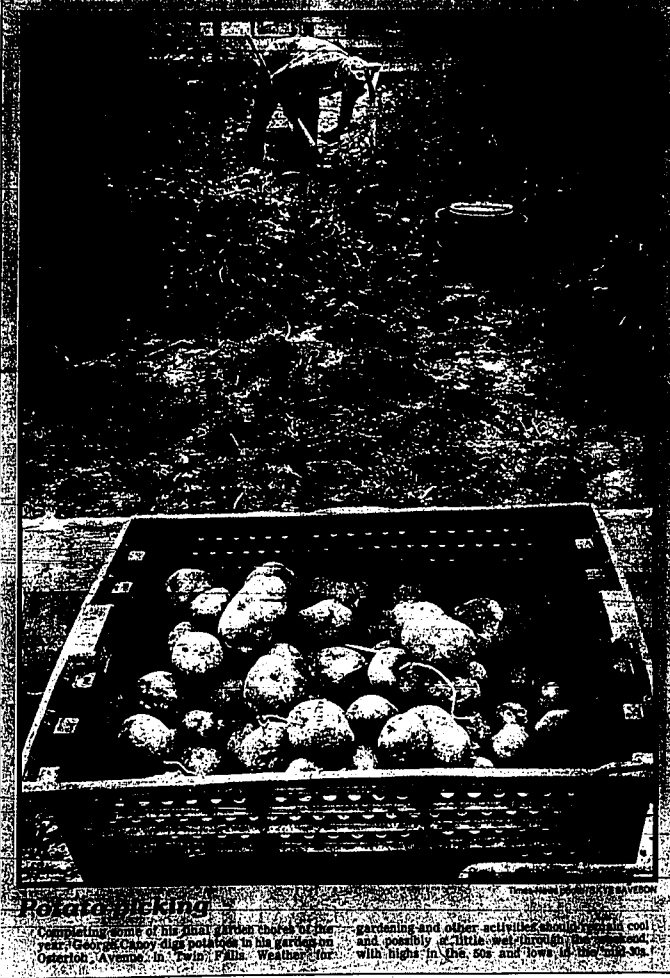

Reagan said the sanctions would hurt the very people they are intended to help. "Black workers — the first victims of apartheid — would become the first victims of American sanctions," he said that steps such as a ban on sugar imports would throw people out of work "and leave them and their families jobless and hungry in those segregated townships."

The 12 nations of the European Common Market earlier this month agreed to ban new investments in South Africa and to halt imports of South African iron, steel and gold coins. A ban on coal was considered but dropped at West Germany's insistence on the grounds that black miners would lose their jobs.

In addition to banning U.S. investment and bank loans, the vetoed legislation would terminate landing rights in this country for...

Senate begins work on new anti-drug law

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate began fashioning a $1.4-billion anti-drug bill Friday amid pleas by some moderate Republicans to resist controversial House-approved proposals they said would "trample our Constitution" and violate civil liberties.

These proposals included imposing the death penalty in drug-related murders, stepped-up use of the armed forces to halt drug smuggling and easing the "exclusionary rule" that prohibits courtroom use of illegally obtained evidence.

Sen. Daniel J. Evans, R-Wash., said these and other provisions were embraced overwhelmingly by the House during a "sanctimonious, election-year stampede" that resembled a "congressional lynch mob."

He urged his colleagues to "cool the passions that regulated the House" and steer clear of legislation that "could be as dangerous as the drug problem itself."

In contrast to the $3-billion bill approved by the House on a 392-16 vote Sept. 11, the scaled-down Senate version would pour more money into drug interdiction, eradication, education and treatment, outlaw laundering of drug profits and stiffen penalties for drug possession and distribution.

But Majority Leader Robert J. Dole's floor strategy for what he calls a "tough but fiscally responsible" Senate bill is to deal with disputed House provisions as separate amendments.

Senators focus on winners and losers in tax legislation

By JIM LUTHER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senators focused their attention Friday on 20 million couples and individuals who will pay higher taxes and hundreds of companies and projects that will get special breaks as they considered a historic bill to overhaul the income tax.

New estimates from congressional staff experts showed that about 12.4 million couples and individuals with incomes between $10,000 and $40,000 would face tax increases in 1988, when most of the changes would be in effect. Those tax increases would average $235 for those in the $10,000-$20,000 range to $554 for those between $30,000 and $40,000.

The survey estimated that 76.3 million couples and individuals would get tax cuts averaging $801. If the entire $20 billion, five-year individual tax-cut reduction were spread equally among all taxpayers — including those whose taxes will rise — the average cut would be $197.

Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., calling the House-passed compromise "long-awaited relief ... for working America," urged the Senate to approve it by the end of the day. Although the bill is virtually certain to become law, that schedule seemed unlikely.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., Finance Committee chairman and a chief author of the bill, called it "the most dramatic change in the history of the tax code." The most important change, he added, is "this is a fairer tax code than we have had."

Packwood acknowledged it is all but impossible to say how the bill would affect the economy. Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., who worked closely with Packwood in writing the bill that originally passed the Senate but opposes the compromise

Rehnquist sworn-in as chief justice

By RICHARD CARELLI
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Praised by President Reagan for their embrace of the doctrine of "judicial restraint," William H. Rehnquist and Antonin Scalia, the Supreme Court's 16th chief justice and its 183rd member, took their oaths of office Friday.

The new Supreme Court era began with two swearing-in ceremonies, one at the White House and one in the Supreme Court building's state courtroom.

Rehnquist, for nearly 15 years the nation's most conservative member, told Reagan, "I pray that God will grant me the patience, the wisdom and the fortitude to worthily follow in the footsteps of my predecessors."

Scalia, another staunch conservative, said he had "enormous pride" for the Supreme Court.

FBI says no leads in Dallas case

BOISE — After one of the North Idaho's most notorious killers got his way out of Idaho State Prison on Easter Sunday, Corrections Director Al Murphy joked that it could take a century to track down Claude Dallas.

Six months later, that prospect seems truer than intended.

"Dallas," a "survivalist," had eluded authorities for 18 months before his arrest in the 1981 slayings of two Idaho game wardens.

He was put on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted list 10 days after fleeing his home near Lewiston, deserting from a 30-year prison sentence.

"We have absolutely no idea where he is," says FBI special agent Kelly Hammer. "We don't have any viable leads at the moment."

"The longer he is gone, the more likely it is he would avoid being caught," Hammer said. "We would have hoped we would have caught him by now. I guess we get accustomed to walling."

Dallas, 36, was convicted of manslaughter in the deaths of Idaho fish and game officers Bill Pogue and Conley Elms, both killed by a single rifle bullet to the head after they tried to arrest him for poaching in 1981.

Authorities describe Dallas as a ruthless killer, not the Western hero born a century too late that his admirers see.

"He's as much of a Western hero as Charles Manson," says author Jack Olsen, who researched Dallas for his book "Give A Boy A Gun." Dallas "would kill a layman with about the same guilt and conscience as he eats his Wheaties in the morning," he said.

Friends of Dallas call him the savior of the earth, the kind of man who puts a thumb above himself and for whom the scales of justice have been lifted.

"Despite national attention, a reward that has grown to over $100,000 has not been offered."

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The founder of the Ste. Chapelle winery, now operating a competing southwestern Idaho winery, has asked for the results of the federal probe into mislabeling at Ste. Chapelle that investigators say they have already given the family of Idaho Republican Sen. Steve Symms.

"We have requested the director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to turn over to us a copy of the report given the Symms family of the infractions at the winery because we are directly involved in that report," said Bill Broich.

Broich, a Democrat who is supporting Democratic Gov. John Evans in his bid to unseat Symms, has said 100,000 thousand cases of Ste. Chapelle wine were illegally labeled as Idaho wine when the grapes came from other states. The Symms family, which bought the winery from Broich, has conceded mislabeling but blamed it on Broich.

Broich claimed the ATF report will support his version of events at Ste. Chapelle. The senator, who is not involved in the winery operated by his brother, has denied any knowledge of the allegations. But Broich, while saying Symms was not directly involved in the decisions, contended Symms was aware of the activity that he claimed generated hundreds of thousands of dollars for Ste. Chapelle.

The ATF conducted an 18-month audit at the winery to determine whether consumers were bilked by deliberate mislabeling, and agency officials said the basic findings of that probe have already been provided to the Symms family but will not be in official form until after the

Nov. 4 election because of a work backlog.

Although the agency said the Symms family could release those findings if it wished, the family has declined. Winery attorney Robert Koontz said earlier this week that no report, preliminary or otherwise had been provided the Symms family. But he told the Spokesman-Review newspaper in Spokane, Wash., on Thursday that findings of the investigation were presented orally to the Symms family in August and a written summary of ATF alleged violations was received by Sen. Symms' older brother, Dick, nine days ago.

Broich has said he resigned as general manager and wine maker at Ste. Chapelle a year ago because of the mislabeling, but Dick Symms said Broich was fired for mismanagement.

Koontz accused Broich of mislabeling Ste. Chapelle's wines without the family's knowledge. Broich said Dick Symms and other family members ordered the mislabeling to capitalize on the interest in Idaho wines and created false grape purchase records at Symms Fruit Ranch to cover up the activity.

Broich said Symms — family members were the only ones authorized to sign checks and outvoted him on the Ste. Chapelle board of directors.

The decision whether to release the report to Broich probably will be made at ATF's regional office in San Francisco or at its headquarters in Washington, D.C., Anderson said. He described the situation as a conflict between the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act.

Craig, Stallings cross party lines on tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho Republicans have been campaigning against Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings on the grounds that President Reagan needs all the support he can get from GOP congressmen in the final two years of his term.

But on what the administration has called the president's top domestic priority — the sweeping federal tax reform bill — it was the state's Democrat who supported Reagan in the House while Idaho Republican Congressman Larry Craig opposed the bill. It cleared the House by better than two-to-one.

Craig, who holds a commanding lead over his Democratic challenger in the Nov. 4 election, claimed the tax bill backed by Reagan would "kick the props out from under Idaho," making "direct and heavy hits on Idaho's working men and women and the businesses they work for."

National Guard called out in Montana flooding

MALTA, Mont. (AP) — National Guardsmen and residents snaggled the rising Milk River and more than 120 people fled their homes Friday after torrential rains in north-central Montana left one person drowned, many animals dead and major highways closed.

For the second day, hundreds of Amtrak passengers had to be bused 90 miles around washed out sections of railroad tracks.

Gov. Ted Schwindein mobilized the Guard to help reinforce dikes at Malta when heavy rains Thursday caused what the National Weather Service called the worst flooding in 30 years along the Canadian border. As much as 8 inches of rain fell in 18 hours.

About 45 miles to the west, in Harlem, one woman died Thursday when she and her husband were trapped by water and tried to swim to safety, authorities said.

Officials said there were reports of large numbers of livestock drowned. The major highway across northern Montana, U.S. 2, was closed Thursday but reopened Friday morning.

The high water moved east Friday after about 100 people were evacuated from their homes in Harlem on Thursday. About 20 people stayed overnight in Harlem High School, and up to 4 feet of water covered the north portions of town Friday.

More than 120 people left their homes Friday in Malta, said Mayor Garry Adams.

Workers shored up a railroad bed that acted as a dike to keep waters from engulfing the southern part of Malta, a community of 1,100 people. While the water receded in Harlem, problems grew in Malta.

A police dispatcher said water broke through a dike on the Milk River's north bank at mid-morning, and about a dozen homes were threatened.

"We're expecting a crest sometime early Sunday at Malta," said Homer Young of the state disaster office at Helena. He said 32 guardsmen were helping to sandbag the river around the town.

"There's a dike on the north edge of town, right along the river, and high water is causing it to erode. They're trying to shore it up."

"Everybody that could come out was out there," said Nancy Peignew, assistant city clerk in Malta.

More than 70 volunteers had been working on the sandbagging since 1 a.m. Friday, police said.

The Weather Service said the river at Malta should crest sometime early Sunday at 24 feet, 5 feet above flood stage.

Wilberg fire blamed on switch

CASTLE DALE, Utah (AP) — An air compressor with its heat sensor disconnected was inadvertently turned on, causing the 1984 Wilberg Mine fire which killed 27 miners, investigators announced Friday.

Herschel Potter, chief investigator for the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration, said a heat-sensor switch which would have automatically shut off an overheated compressor had been "rendered inoperable" before the fire.

"We don't know how the compressor caught fire," Potter said in announcing preliminary conclusions of a 21-month investigation. He said he did not know why the heat sensor and the on-off switch had been disconnected.

However, he said the compressor, located about 200 feet from the entrance to the half-mile section where the victims were working the night of Dec. 19, 1984, had been turned on at least 48 hours before the fire and had been running unattended.

"Somebody could very well have inadvertently turned on the compressor," he said, because in order to start the equipment a breaker in a transformer 100 feet away would have to have been thrown.

Potter said the breaker for the compressor was right next to another breaker for the a coal con-veyor's belt drive and it was possible a miner had unknowingly switched on the compressor, intending to start the belt drive.

Joe Main, UMW director of health and safety, charged that MSHA and the mine's owner, Utah Power & Light Co., had "conspired" to cover up the union's claim that the Wilberg was an unsafe mine due to insufficient escape routes and improper ventilation.

Farm congress delegates: Vote parity, profit

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BUHL — Farmer and ranchers should vote parity and profits instead of politics in November's national election, Magic Valley delegates from the United Farmers and Ranchers Congress are urging.

Decrying a "destructive farm policy" by the Reagan administration, the delegates said Thursday they will mount a grassroots push to get out the rural vote and to dump legislators who have not backed the interests of family farmers.

"A lot of people are together, and I think there's a movement in the land," said Jerome farmer John Spanbauer. "We need to corner them (politicians) on things and make them accountable."

He and other delegates told 20 farmers gathered at Buhl that the rural crisis has been created and spread from Washington, D.C.

The United Farmer and Rancher Congress, which was held in St. Louis earlier this month, called for revisions in national farm programs to guarantee fair returns to farmers for their crops. It also endorsed production limits and federal price supports that would rise and fall with increases in costs.

"Would you rather milk 75 cows and make a living, or milk 100 cows and go broke?" asked Buhl farmer and hay broker George Juker. "When agriculture was receiving a fair parity price, we had the least problems in the United States of America."

Although critical of the Reagan administration's moves to lower price supports to world market levels, the delegates offered rankings by the non-partisan League of Rural Voters as a guide. Holding the League's pamphlet aloft, Jerome

'A lot of people are together, and I think there's a movement in the land. We need to corner them (politicians) on things and make them accountable.'

— Jerome farmer John Spanbauer farmer Hene Myers urged the audience to check the performance of Idaho's congressional delegation.

Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, presumably would draw the most fire from Southern Idaho farmers, with a 0 rating. Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho, voted with the League 22 percent of the time, and Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, had a 67-percent score. The League had opposed the Farm Bill and the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction bill.

Spanbauer said he was "embarrassed to hear McClure's record" and, in a "thinly veiled reference, took Symms to task for accepting donations from political action committees affiliated with major oil companies. "That tells me he's representing big companies and not me as a rural person," Spanbauer said.

His wife Trina, also a delegate, said the United Farmer and Rancher Congress will beam a half-hour satellite television program to farm states on Nov. 2 to "Get Out the Vote."

The crisis in Idaho's rural areas is severe, Myers said. She told of families losing farms, living in barns, drinking irrigation water because of electrically shut-offs and going hungry. Using money from Farm Aid Inc., the farm relief effort funded by Willie Nelson's country music concerts, the Idaho-Rural Council will try to establish a food bank, she said.

Juker charged that multi-national corporations dealing in agricultural supplies and in commodities trading exert major influence in lawmaking. Policies written for their benefit threaten family farming, he indicated.

"If the trend continues, huge corporations will totally displace our family farmers, and the results will be devastating," he said.

Among resolutions by the United Farmer and Rancher Congress were:

• cost of production plus a "fair return" and then index the loans to a parity formula.

• start mandatory supply management programs on many crops—after referendums by producers.

• support collective bargaining by farmers across all agricultural products.

• order an immediate moratorium on farm, small-business and rural bank foreclosures, until crop prices are at profitable levels for five years.

• prohibit imports of any foods at less than 110 percent of this country's parity price.

• demand resale of any foreclosed land to the original owner.

• control increases in retail food prices.

• urge Congress to "investigate the price-fixing practices of the food industry."

Andrus courts the GOP

By JANE ROBISON

TWIN FALLS — Recognizing a need for cross-over support to win election, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Cecil Andrus announced "Republicans for Andrus" at an airport press conference on Friday.

"If you're a Democrat, you've got to have independent and Republican votes to be elected in this state. It's that simple," said Andrus, flanked by three Republicans who endorsed his campaign. "These men are going to give me a boost."

The three are former National League baseball star Larry Jackson, a four-term Republican legislator; Nolan Young, who ran for state auditor in 1982; and Lewis Pope, who said he was a life-long activist in the Republican Party in southeastern Idaho.

Andrus introduced the three during a 30-minute press conference at Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport, attended by a handful of supporters. Andrus was making similar stops in Boise and Coeur d'Alene the same day.

Recognizing need, candidate recruits bipartisan supporters

Andrus' opponent, Republican Lt. Gov. Dave Leroy, was unimpressed by Friday's announcement, and said so in a press release.

"Neither I nor Idaho voters are impressed by his list of five or 10 personal friends to act as a committee," Leroy said. "I am underwhelmed."

While Leroy called the move "a childish political ploy that detracts from creating jobs," he went on to say that he had his own group of Democrats for his Republican campaign, including Max Hanson, former head of the State Department of Agriculture; Ken Olsen, a Boise businessman; and Bob Lynn, a Sun Valley innkeeper.

In addition to the three who attended Friday's press conference, three other Republicans endorsed Andrus in a letter. They were Betty Lou Donnelly, who worked for eight years on the Republican staff of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee; Tom Sahlborg, administrative assistant to former Idaho Republican governor C.A. Robbins; and Richard "Dick" Bennett, a member of the GOP 500 Club.

Jackson, who ran for governor in 1978 but lost the Republican nomination, said Andrus had "too many credentials not to support."

"I intend to remain a Republican, but in this instance, I think we need a governor who will be fair and firm," Jackson said. Both Jackson and Young added they fully supported Republican Sen. Steve Symms, who is running against Democratic Gov. John Evans for the U.S. Senate.

Andrus said his campaign was preparing a mailing to Republicans using the endorsements of Jackson and others to encourage additional Republican participation.

Judy Fellon, Twin Falls coordinator for Leroy's campaign, said on Friday she did not think the "Republicans for Andrus" move would "seriously impact on Dave's campaign."

"I personally don't know of any local Republicans who are supporting Andrus," Fellon said.

MVRMC trustees approve budget to fit 1987 needs

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Board of Trustees approved the 1987 budget on Friday, projecting a drop in net income below last year's budget.

The 1987 hospital budget, passed with little discussion from board trustees, shows that a loss of about $600,000 in inpatient revenues over last year, due to declining patient admissions, is offset by a $1 million increase in outpatient revenues.

Total inpatient revenue is $19.6 million, and total outpatient revenue is $5.5 million.

Bad debt is up over 1986 by about $200,000, from $1.6 million to $1.8 million. The hospital will lose another $2.2 million in Medicare and Medicaid payments no longer covered.

The hospital stands to lose even more Medicare money if Congress approves further changes in Medicare reimbursements. MVRMC Administrator John Bingham said.

Bingham said a proposal to cut Medicare reimbursements by President Reagan would mean a loss of $75 per patient to MVRMC. He said almost half of the medical center's patients are on Medicare.

Another significant change in the 1987 MVRMC budget showed up in expenses. Although MVRMC was able to cut some expenses, including a $60,000 savings in utilities, overall expenses were near $700,000. Wages and salaries were up about $400,000, although benefits declined about $65,000.

Another major cost increase was in insurance rates, which went from $198,800 in 1986 to $300,000 in 1987. MVRMC was able to save nearly $200,000 in interest on the 1985 bond due to refinancing in January.

The bottom line in MVRMC's 1987 budget was a $700,000 drop in net income from $1 million in 1986 to $1.3 million in 1987.

Hospital figures also show a continuing decline in admissions, from 6,464 in 1986 to 5,899 projected in 1987.

Hospital officials said earlier this year that if MVRMC is not transferred to a locally controlled, non-profit corporation to allow it to develop new business, MVRMC may not be able to pay its bills by as early as 1989.

Trustee Dr. Ben Katz said Friday that local voters need to understand MVRMC will not continue to operate as it now does.

"We either need to transfer it to local control, raise taxes or sell it; those are the only options," Katz said.

The Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners have set a tentative date of Dec. 9 for the transfer vote. The action follows a series of public hearings in which substantial opposition was voiced to the commissioners' proposal to transfer ownership of the county-owned hospital to a private, non-profit corporation without putting the issue to a vote of the people.

Friday's MVRMC board meeting takes the place of the October board meeting, officials said. The meeting was changed because of scheduling problems.

Dip in world oil prices will save furnace users some dollars in winter

By CLAUDE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The recent drop in oil prices that has been evident to motorists will soon affect homeowners who heat their homes with oil, local distributors say.

The average homeowner using heating oil will probably be saving about $200 this season, distributors say.

Bob Bankhead, owner and manager of B and B Oil company, says the heating oil he distributes is down to $2.7 cents a gallon, from about $2.9 cents last fall.

"At a decrease of about 30 percent, the price has 'dropped considerably,'" says Neil Grisham of Nell's Service in Murtaugh. The average use of most homeowners heating with oil is about 100 gallons a month during the heating season, which runs from mid-October to the first of May, he said.

Gary Moffitt, manager of Adams Petroleum, says more customers will be buying oil on a cash basis this season because of the price decrease. "Purchasing heating oil with contracts is a lower price per gallon, he said.

"Instead of 50 gallons at a time, they're wanting 100 gallons at one drop," he said.

The price per gallon of furnace oil in 1984 was 95.9 cents. The price went down to 93.3 cents in 1985 and is now down to $6.9. These prices were calculated on Sept. 15 of each year, says Gary Wignall, general manager of United Oil in Twin Falls.

Slows oil price gone through a decrease of about 30 cents per gallon, as well, since 1984, Wignall says.

'You can never out-guess the oil companies.'
— Gary Moffitt, Adams Petroleum.

Oil companies usually increase their prices slightly at the beginning of the season, says Moffitt, eventually the price will probably go back to normal. "You can never out-guess the oil companies," he says.

Other local oil distributors were also hesitant to predict whether the price would stay low or return to the higher level. "As soon as you predict what's going to happen, it'll go the other way," says Duane Serpa of Serpa Oil Company.

Salvation Army center ready to open

By CLAUDE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Remodeling is finished at the new Salvation Army Community Center and a dedication of the facility will take place on Sunday at 2 p.m.

The new center is located at 348 4th Ave. N., formerly a Mormon church. The Salvation Army has occupied the building since January, but has not fully opened it to the public because of remodeling, said Lt. Doug Tollerud, local commanding officer.

The building has more than a dozen classrooms, a 160-seat chapel, a locker room, a meeting room, a kitchen and a game room.

The center will be open from 3:30 to 9 p.m. on weekdays. Children with no place to go after school are welcome to come to the center, Tollerud said. There is a $5 membership fee per year, but members are allowed to work it off, he said.

After 5:30, activities such as aerobics, basketball, and volleyball will be open to young adults, he said. Friday night will feature organized activity. The Salvation Army's version of the Boy Scouts will be held on Friday nights, Tollerud said.

The group is called Adventure Corps and is a scouting group open to children who can't afford the other available programs, he said.

Tollerud said the army currently reaches about 6,000 people in the Magic Valley. With the new building, membership will hopefully increase to 1,000, something which Tollerud considers "ambitious goal."

Programs for the future include holding Hope Bible Ministries meetings at the center, as well as a crisis center for unwed mothers, he said.

He added that if the city continues its refusal to build a pool, that might also be a future consideration for the center.

A reading program for illiterate Magic Valley residents is also planned. "Future programs depend on community support," Tollerud said.

Although the Salvation Army is an organization usually thought of in connection with lower-income groups of people, the center is open to everyone without any sort of discrimination, Tollerud said.

"I would imagine that we'll be seeing the children of even wealthy families here after school," he said.

The remodeling of the center was funded in a large part by the Florence Gardner Trust, Tollerud said. Other funding came from local contributions to the Salvation Army and a $90,000 redemption loan from national army headquarters in California, he said.

The Salvation Army will retain ownership of the old building on 2nd Avenue North, until it is sold, Tollerud said. The building had been occupied by the army for 35 years.

Expansion of the center is dependent on response from the community, but is a welcome consideration, Tollerud said. "We'll just buy the houses next door and build more facilities," he said.

House spending bill draws veto threats

Reagan: Spy vigilance to continue in the U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — With renewed veto threats flowing from the White House, a Senate committee on Friday began drafting its version of a catchall spending package needed to keep the government running beyond Tuesday.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the bill as passed by the Democratic-run House on Thursday night would include President Reagan's hands "at a very critical juncture in U.S.-Soviet relations."

The $562 billion House bill, which squeaked through on a 201-200 vote, covered virtually every government department and agency activity for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The House would restrict the president's options a five major defense issues: the SALT II treaty, the Strategic Defense Initiative, anti-satellite tests and chemical weapons. The Republican-controlled Senate was not expected to approve those same restrictions.

The House also approved $283.5 billion in military spending, compared to the $292 billion in the Senate version — the minimum the White House said it could take. And the House included dozens of domestic policy moves that the administration said it could not accept.

"It was 'a bill that the president will veto if it is not straightened out in the Senate and in the conference' with House members that will follow Senate action," Speakes said.

Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the full Senate would take up the bill early next week, and he complained about the House action. "They really loaded it up," Dole told reporters. "Everything but the kitchen sink is in that House resolution."

But much of the Senate version, as it was being compiled Friday by the Senate Appropriations Committee, was also unacceptable to the White House.

Reagan's advisers have said that eight of the 13 appropriations bills being wrapped into the Senate package were unacceptable, and they would recommend a veto.

Normally, Congress approves, and the president signs at least some of the appropriations bills before the fiscal year begins, and an omnibus package known as a continuing resolution keeps the rest of the government operating in areas of dispute.

This year, none of the appropriations bills has cleared Congress. All but a few crucial government operations would be legally required to close down next Wednesday without legislation authorizing them to spend money.

Reagan has said he was ready to send federal workers home rather than sign an unacceptable bill. In a similar situation in 1981, he vetoed a continuing resolution and ordered the government shut down.

House and Senate leaders, bracing for a deadlock, have already been discussing passage of a non-controversial, short-term continuing resolution next week to avoid a government crisis while the major packages are worked out.

While the House and Senate disagree on major details of the spending package, they appeared to have no argument over the spending totals that, along with a companion deficit-reduction bill, would keep the deficit below the $154 billion limit in the Gramm-Rudman law.

Substantially similar versions of the deficit bill had been approved by the House and Senate and formal talks toward a compromise bill began Friday. Negotiators said they hoped to finish work early next week.

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — President Reagan said Friday the United States will continue to guard against spying and will not tolerate "the imprisonment of innocent American citizens in retaliation" for apprehension of people arrested for espionage in this country.

Reagan made the remarks at a dedication ceremony for a $130-million complex of two new National Security Agency operations buildings at this Army post between Washington and Baltimore.

Reagan was the first president to visit the top-secret communications and intelligence agency since it was established in 1952, according to an NSA announcement.

He addressed several thousand agency employees, Army personnel and others who sat on folding chairs in a parking lot next to the complex, consisting of an eight-story building erected at a cost of $75 million and a connected 11-story structure that cost $55 million.

Reagan said spy trials in recent years have shown "the terrible damage espionage does."

"And as events of recent days have highlighted, the intelligence threat to our country remains very real," he added. "Our adversaries are employing all the means we associate with spies, including electronic espionage against sensitive communications and data bases."

"The American people will no longer tolerate this conduct," he said. "We will root out spies, we will punish them severely."

"Nor will we tolerate the imprisonment of innocent American citizens in retaliation for protecting ourselves from espionage," he said.

Reagan spoke amid continuing negotiations over the future of Nicholas Daniloff, the U.S. News & World Report correspondent who was arrested in Moscow and charged with spying.

The Reagan administration, maintaining that Daniloff is innocent, secured his release to the U.S. ambassador in Moscow in return for similar treatment of Gennadiy F. Sakharov, a Soviet scientist assigned to the United Nations, who also was arrested on spying charges.

California to divest South Africa funds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A year after he vetoed a milder bill, Gov. George Deukmejian signed legislation Friday to sell California's $11 billion in South Africa-connected investments.

"We are condemning apartheid in the strongest possible terms that we can with the powers of our state," said the Republican governor, who is running for reelection.

"How would we feel if our most basic human rights and individual freedoms were denied to us and the rest of the world turned its back on us?" he said. "We have been blessed with freedom and opportunity. We have a moral obligation to help other people to attain this universal human aspiration."

"I think the South African regime knows and understands what we're doing here today and it's one more blow against that racism and separatism," said Assemblywoman Maxine Waters, the author of the bill who fought for the issue for seven years in the Legislature.

A year ago, the Legislature passed a Waters bill that would only have banned future investments in firms doing business in South Africa. Deukmejian vetoed it and instead issued an executive order requiring pension fund managers to favor firms that follow the anti-discrimination Sullivan Principles in dealings with their South Africa employees.

Deukmejian said he changed his mind on divestment during the summer when the South African government "conducted mass arrests without due process and I saw the escalation of violence and bloodshed and further erosion of human rights. I knew at that point that something more had to be done."

The Republican governor is facing Democratic Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley in a rematch of the 1982 gubernatorial election. If victorious, Bradley would become the nation's first elected black governor.

The bill extends to all state funds, including the giant pension systems, the same program adopted by the University of California Board of Regents at Deukmejian's urging last July.

It prohibits, beginning Jan. 1, any new or renewed investments in firms doing business in South Africa. It also calls for immediate sale of stocks of firms that expand operations in that country.

It requires state investments in South Africa-connected firms to be sold beginning Jan. 1, 1988. One-third will be sold each year for three years—so the state will have no such investments by 1991.

Ten overcome by spill at oil plant

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Ammonia leaking from a broken valve spread toxic fumes through an oil processing plant Friday, injuring at least 10 people, five critically, authorities said.

A worker at the Bunge Edible Oil Corp. was using a pipe wrench on a one-inch ammonia line shortly after 11 a.m. when an attached half-inch line suddenly snapped, District Fire Chief David Carr said.

The liquid ammonia spilled from the line and became a gas, drifting up a large cloud through the third floor of the five-story building in the city's Stockyards area, said Fire Department spokesman Charlie McSaffery. The building was evacuated.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sweeping immigration bill came unglued Friday over an amnesty plan for foreign farm workers, killing chances of action this year and provoking Attorney General Edwin Meese to charge that "stubborn refusal" by Democrats sabotaged attempts to deal with the longstanding problem.

After only two hours and eight minutes of preliminary debate, lawmakers voted 202-180 to disallow further discussion and then told reporters the measure was likely dead for this session.

"In my view, (the vote) kills it," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., a key negotiator of the agricultural language.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., asked if the bill was dead this year, said, "as far as I'm concerned."

The unexpected decision on the parliamentary vote defeated the rule for debating the bill and sent the legislation back to Rodino's committee. Technically, a new rule for debate could be written and the bill returned to the House floor.

But lawmakers said it may be impossible, with the 99th Congress winding down its work, to write a new compromise agricultural provision that would satisfy both growers and organized labor.

"By its stubborn refusal to allow members to vote on a clearly unacceptable provision that had been narrowly adopted in committee, the House Democratic leadership has dealt a possibly fatal blow to the great cause of immigration reform," Meese said in a statement.

He said "the only chance for resurrecting immigration reform before the end of the 99th Congress is for the House Rules Committee to send this measure back to the floor in a way that allows the full House to vote its conscience.

"Immigration reform is too important to die because of a ham-handed effort to force an unpopular position upon a majority of House members," Meese said.

The vote continued a long string of frustration for veteran lawmakers like Rodino, who has sought to pass an immigration control bill the past 15 years.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service estimated it will catch a record 1.8 million illegal aliens this year. For each apprehension, two or three other illegal aliens — some who have crossed the border several times — evade capture.

The cornerstones of the bill were financial penalties and imprisonment for employers who hire illegal aliens, and amnesty for those who came illegally but established roots in this country over a number of years.

But the language that scuttled the bill would have granted permanent resident status to foreigners who could prove they worked at least 60 days in American agriculture between May 1985 and May 1986.

That provision was designed for laborers who pick perishable fruits and vegetables, mostly in western states. Many of those crops currently are picked by illegal aliens.

Rep. Dan Lungren, R-Calif., had demanded the right to offer an amendment that would have killed the provision, and substituted a plan the Senate immigration bill approved a year ago.

Capitol Hill reacts to a Nakasone apology

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's "heartfelt apology" for a remarks made by some as a slur against minority Americans was both welcomed and criticized in the nation's capital Friday.

"I'm glad to see that the prime minister has apologized for remarks which at best were offensive and at worst racist," said Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., and chairman of the House Budget Committee.

"We must accept the apology and monitor further statements by Mr. Nakasone and others in his government," Gray said.

Japanese Ambassador Nobuo Matsunaga read Nakasone's apology and distributed copies of it at a meeting on Capitol Hill attended by 30 members of the Congressional Black and Hispanic Caucuses and two Japanese-American congressmen supporting them.

Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, head of the Black Caucus, said he understood the apology, but said any formal acceptance would have to await a Monday meeting of the caucuses when more members are present.

Those present Friday also said a draft congressional resolution demanding an apology, but said any dropped when the groups next meet.

The congressmen had taken the offense at Nakasone's remarks earlier this week to a study session of his Liberal-Democratic Party.

Japanese newspapers quoted the prime minister as saying Japan has a higher intelligence level than the United States because Japan is a one-race society, while the level in the United States is lower because of a considerable number of blacks, Puerto Ricans and Mexicans.

Robertson denies dad helped him avoid combat

ATLANTA (AP) — The Rev. Pat Robertson, moving quickly against an allegation that could harm a presidential bid, is emphatically denying he sought his senator-father's help in avoiding combat in Korea.

The television evangelist's denial on Thursday came after a fellow Marine said he and Robertson had been pulled off a Korea-bound troop ship in Japan in 1951 after Robertson telephoned home asking help from his father.

That story from John Gearhart, published in The Los Angeles Times, was similar to an earlier version from another Marine who said he was pulled off the ship by a former Republican Rep. Paul McCloskey of California.

But the story just isn't so, Robertson said during questioning at a news conference.

During his service in the Marines, he said, "I went where I was told. I did what I was told. I served honorably and I came back home again."

"I did not make the call," Robertson, who has been trying to raise support for a bid for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, was in Atlanta to attend a private GOP function Thursday night.

Gearhart was quoted as saying that when the ship stopped in Kobe, Japan, he and Robertson went ashore, to telephone their parents. He said he expected to go on to Korea, but the next morning orders arrived assigning him, Robertson and several others to duties in Japan.

"It was generally understood that we were pulled off because of the good fortune of Pat's influence," Gearhart said. "More than anything else, it disappoints me that Pat denies ever making any phone calls. I wish he would just state that; sure, he made the phone call and let it go at that."

The story first came to light by syndicated columnist Rowland Evans and Robert Novak, who quoted a letter written to Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., last month by McCloskey.

"Pat was affable, garrulous and candid," McCloskey wrote. "He spoke frankly of his desire to avoid combat and to have his father, Sen. Willis Robertson of Virginia, intervene in his behalf."

Robertson said in brief comments to reporters last week that he had sought no favors from anybody, and he expanded on that in his comments in Atlanta.

"If my father was so powerful, why didn't he keep me in America?" Robertson said.

"My father was a man of incredible integrity; he never would have done a thing like that," he added.

Also Thursday, in Washington, Robertson aides distributed a letter written to him by retired Gen. I.C. Shepherd, who said he was commanding general for Pacific Marine operations from 1950 to 1952 and that there was nothing improper in Robertson's assignments.

Law combs area for fugitive

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri suspect, Michael Wayne Jackson, was almost certainly wounded during a "shootout" with police, authorities said Friday as they concentrated their four-day manhunt on the area where he was last seen.

"There were no plans to cut back on the search despite the cost and the frustration," said Hal Hetherforth, special agent in charge of the St. Louis FBI office.

"We're after a man who is a menace to society, so cost is no factor," Hetherforth said.

Teams of officers Friday went house-by-house, building-by-building through the area south and west of the wooded area where the suspect was last seen Monday night, Hetherforth said.

Jackson fled into the woods after crashing a stolen car into a highway median just west of here, authorities said. The car had been hit by police gunfire, and ballistics tests indicate he was hit at least in the arm and possibly in the midsection, said Missouri Highway Patrol Capt. John Ford.

Authorities said a rod had been inserted through a bullet hole in the driver's door of the car while a man about Jackson's size sat behind the wheel.

"Any way he was sitting on the driver's side, he was hit," Ford said. If the .357 magnum slug did not disintegrate on impact or hit the suspect in the arm and defect, Ford said, "it might certainly would have been a gut shot."

Florida boy bit, chased by alligator

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy snorkeling in a creek was bitten on the hand by an alligator, then chased to shore where his mother yanked him from the gator's grip in a grim struggle that broke the child's leg.

Jessie Morgret, a 39-year-old teacher's aide, can't stop reliving the close call her son Michael went through on Wednesday. "The kids were screaming and I ran to the bank. I looked down and saw the gator right smack behind him — chasing him to shore."

"I was pulling my son onto the rocks," the gator thrumped down on him. "That's when he injured his leg. I was pulling on him and I felt a release. I pulled again. Hard."

Michael was listed in fair condition Friday at Seven Rivers Community Hospital with puncture wounds to the scalp and a compound break of the left leg.

"So far he's reacted very well. He's just angry. His leg hurts and he gets mad at the gator," said Mrs. Morgret.

Doctor guilty in terrorist plot

LONDON (AP) — A Palestinian doctor was convicted Friday in what was described as a Libyan-backed terrorism plot. He was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

"The mind shudders to contemplate the devastation, carnage and heartbreak that you were intent on causing," Judge Simon Brown said in pronouncing sentence on 43-year-old Rasmi Awad. Awad, a Palestinian holding both Jordanian and Spanish citizenship, was found guilty of receiving four grenades for use in bomb attacks in Britain.

Nassar Mohammed, a 28-year-old Palestinian student tried as his accomplice, was acquitted. "I love you," he shouted to the jury as he left the courtroom. Mohammed, a Jordanian citizen, remained in custody. The Home Office said he would be deported for reasons of national security.

No specific terrorist target was spelled out in court, but Press Association, the domestic news agency, said police believed there were three targets under consideration: London's Heathrow Airport, Hyde Park in central London or Golders Green, where many prominent London Jews live.

Chernobyl, weapons weighed

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — A Soviet physician who treated victims of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster says that while the accident was severe, it did not compare with danger posed by atomic weapons.

"We have already lived through this (the Chernobyl accident), although some people paid for it with their lives," said Dr. Mikhail Shandala, speaking through an interpreter. "In the event of a nuclear war, not one of us would live through it."

Shandala, Dr. Yuri Lopuchin and Dr. Alexander Baranov discussed the government and medical response to the Chernobyl accident in a talk to students at Dartmouth Medical School on Thursday.

The speech was sponsored by Physicians for Social Responsibility. The organization, based in Cambridge, Mass., is concerned with the proliferation of nuclear weapons and the effects of radiation exposure from nuclear power plant accidents, said a spokeswoman, Anne Gallivan.

Officials have said 31 people died after a chemical explosion sparked a fire at the Chernobyl nuclear plant April 26.

Radiation closes Swedish lake

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A small lake in central Sweden has been closed to fishing after tests showed severe radioactive contamination from the Chernobyl nuclear plant disaster, local officials said Thursday.

Radiation levels in four rainbow trout taken from Lake Opplarn were 16 to 60 times greater than what is considered safe in Sweden, fishery official Bengt Andersson was quoted as telling the Stockholm daily Dagens Nyheter.

"There is no other way out of this but to close the lake to fishing" and kill the contaminated fish, he said. "Then we can begin putting new fish in the lake next summer."

An April 26 explosion and fire at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant in the Soviet Union released radioactivity that traveled around the world. Soviet officials say 31 people have died from the accident.

Lake Opplarn is about 190 miles north of Stockholm.

Injuries mar NATO maneuvers

RENSBURG, West Germany (AP) — NATO's autumn maneuvers in West Germany and Denmark ended Friday. Military authorities said the war games injured 25 people and caused about $5.5 million in damage to crops and farmland.

The Allied Press Information Center said about 100 accidents were reported during the five-day exercise that involved 65,000 American, West German, Danish, British and Dutch servicemen. The accidents, mainly on public roads, injured 25 people, 13 of them seriously. About a third of the injured were civilians, military authorities said.

Most of the agricultural damage was caused by tanks and armored personnel carriers tearing up fields and meadows and knocking over trees.

Representatives from 30 countries, including the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, observed the "Bold Guard" exercise. The war games were staged in the northern West German state of Schleswig-Holstein and the Jutland part of Denmark.

Journalist flees kidnap attempt

By RIMA SALAMEH
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A British reporter said he fought his way to freedom Friday after kidnappers pulled him out of a taxi with his three armed escorts were fixing a flat tire.

David Hirst, a correspondent for The Guardian newspaper, said he was grabbed by three gunmen about 6:45 a.m. on the Moselem side of the Mreijeh crossing on the Green Line that splits Beirut into Christian and Moslem sectors.

Hirst, 48, said the trio shoved him into the rear seat of a BMW automobile, blindfolded him and sped off.

South African hotel blast injures three

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — In separate, violent incidents Friday, an explosion in a hotel injured three people and a band of white men firing machine guns broke into a prison and freed the former military chief of the Ciskei homeland.

The 2:10 p.m. explosion on the ground floor of the Devonshire Hotel sent businessmen rushing from the lobby bar into the street of the Braamfontein area of high-rise offices and apartments. Two white men and one black man were slightly injured and hospitalized.

Police could not immediately confirm the cause of the blast, which was in a restaurant, but the bomb squad was investigating.

Michael Sher, owner of a clothing store near the hotel, said after the blast, "I rushed outside and office workers were running screaming in to the street from the pub. Glass was everywhere."

There have been 21 bombings in South Africa since the government declared a state of emergency June 12. The blasts killed nine people and injured more than 160. The government blames the outlawed African National Congress for the blasts, but the guerrilla group, which seeks to end South Africa's apartheid system, has refused to comment on the charge.

By law and custom, apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which the 24 million blacks have no vote in national affairs. The 5-million-member white minority controls the economy and maintains separate districts, schools and health services.

In the Xhosa tribal homeland of Ciskei near the Indian Ocean, officials said four or five white men used rope ladders to scale the walls of Middeldrift Prison.

Government spokesman Headman Sonthuzi said the whites "fired machine guns, wounding one black guard while freeing Lt. Gen. Charles Sebe, jailed in July 1983 by President Lennox Sebe, his half-brother.

The 52-year-old Sebe, serving a 12-year sentence for terrorism, clambered over the wall with the band-of men and they sped away in three cars. A half-hour later, a son of President Sebe, Maj. Gen. Kwan Sebe, and another officer were kidnapped by whites outside a casino in Bisho, the homeland's capital.

Ciskei is one of 10 black homelands formed by the Pretoria government in a now-abandoned effort to reserve the rest of South Africa for the white minority. The Pretoria government gave it independence in 1981, but it not recognized by any other country.

Solons overcome Filer in a game of field position

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

FILER — Football's a game of field position. When a team plays the majority of the game inside of its own 10-yard-line, it usually doesn't win. And Filer did it Friday night.

On a night that opened with three teams with perfect records in the Canyon Conference, Gooding handed Filer its first league loss, 21-6.

The victory left the defending league champion Senators with a 3-0 conference and 4-1 overall record, while Filer dropped to 3-2 and 1-1.

The Wildcats' best field position came on their first drive, mixing passes and running plays and moving into Gooding territory.

After Filer was forced to punt, Gooding took the ball and used the running game to cruise into Filer territory. After the Wildcats were penalized for a late hit in that drive, a nine-yard gain turned into a 24-yard gain. Buddy Brunson then took the ball in from seven yards out and a two-point conversion boosted the Senators to an 8-0 lead.

Gooding controlled the ball in the second quarter and worked the ball down to the 3, but couldn't get it in as a fourth-down attempt failed.

Filer had trouble punching the ball out from its 15 and when it punted, Smokey Legarreta returned the ball 34 yards for the touchdown and with the extra point Gooding took a 15-0 lead in the first half.

The Senators tried to extend their lead just before the half, but a Todd Kimmes 57-yard field goal try was short.

After getting the second-half kick, Gooding started out with good field position and after a pair of Mike Sims passes, the Senators had the ball at the 16. Brunson ran the ball in from there, but the touchdown was nullified by a Gooding penalty.

The Senators waited for the first down on fourth-and-four from the 11, but Filer held and got the ball back.

Prep football

The Wildcats' drive from that point stalled and they were forced to punt. It didn't take Gooding long to score and with 37 seconds left, the Senators were on the board again.

Senior Steve Burle took the ball in from 32 yards out and Gooding led 21-0.

Filer's scoring drive came in the final minutes when Donal Nowak picked off a Sims pass 43 yards away from paydirt.

After the Wildcats failed to get a first down, a fake punt attempt was intercepted by Gooding, but a penalty against the Senators gave Filer another chance at the 22. Mike Teater took the ball to the 2 and two plays later, Bart Coon ran it in from there.

Gooding's offense ran the ball over four times as often as they passed the ball. Sims was 5-for-10 for 37 yards, but the Gooding backfield ran 44 times for 250 yards.

Shoshone 27 Mackay 6

SHOSHONE — "They better be looking at us. We're going to take it down their throats, only it's going to be a harder game than this." Shoshone quarterback George Shimer echoed a feeling shared by many here after the Indians pounded Mackay 27-6 in an important Magic Valley Conference matchup.

In fact, the fourth quarter wasn't even over when most of the talk on the sideline turned to next Friday's game with defending MVC champion, a loser to unbeaten Ratt River.

"The boys who've been at this school for four years haven't had a state championship yet," Shimer said, collecting his breath on the bench after the game. "And we feel like we're overdue."

The game offered fans a chance to see two completely different offenses. Mackay, tied to its passing attack, used it to get on the scoreboard first, while Shoshone plunked away at its running game, essentially winning the matchup on the ground.

Shoshone went ahead for good less than two minutes into the second period when running back Alan Sizemore took the pitch from his quarterback to go in standing up from 15 yards away.

It was Shoshone's front line that could take much of the credit for Sizemore's numbers. Dominating their defensive counterparts much of the night were center John Mendolia, left guard Curtis Sandy and Kelly Duffin at left tackle.

Duffin earned the attention of Miner Coach Jack McElvey. "Duffin's tough," he said. "We knew that we'd have problems with him. But I lost two linemen early in the season, so we were down a little bit."

The Indians are 3-2 for the season, while Mackay drops to 2-3.

Rigby 7 Minico 6

RIGBY — Led by two goaline stands-in the fourth quarter, the Rigby Trojans defeated the Minico Spartans 7-6 Friday in a Gem State Conference football game.

The loss all but eliminated the Spartans, now 0-5, from a shot at making the state Class A-1 Division 11 playoffs. "Minico is now 0-2 in its playoff qualifying 'pood' with games remaining against Skyline and Madison."

Rod McKinley scored Rigby's only touchdown in the second quarter on a burst from the Trojans' 38-yard line. Following that, McKinley scored the two conversion points which would become the difference.

Jack Bagley passed to Rich Dozier in the fourth quarter to match the Trojans' score. But Rigby linebacker Ronny Ball stopped Jeff Garro on the conversion attempt, saving the Trojans victory.

The Spartans, though, were not done yet. Twice in the fourth quarter, Minico drove inside the Rigby 5-yard line, only to be stifled of a score by the Trojan defense.

Murtaugh 13 Castleford 7

MURTAUGH — Travis Hansen's 47-yard scoring run made it 13-7 in the third quarter, but it wasn't until an eight-yard pass fell incomplete in the end zone at the buzzer that Murtaugh could count its Magic Valley Conference victory over Castleford Friday night.

Burley 16 Buhl 7

BURLEY — An inspired Burley defense limited Buhl to 141 yards total offense and seven points here Friday night as the Bobcats beat the Indians 16-7 in their South-Central Idaho Conference opener.

Richfield

The 3-yard line two plays later for the first score of the game.

With the early lead in hand, the Tigers continued their running ways but were confident enough to open up their offense and show Camas the kind of surprises they were promising.

Running the eight-man equivalent of the two-minute offense (using the option, reverses, double reverses and a halfback option), Richfield drove deep into Camas territory late in the second quarter and scored their second TD as QB Barry Ward tagged Laine King for a 31-yard scoring pass.

Even though it was down by two scores, Camas still had a chance to win the game. For awhile, the bad luck that had haunted the Mustangs in the first half visited the Tigers in the second half.

On the opening drive after halftime, Swainston moved his team to the Camas 7-yard line on a 40-yard sprint. On the next play, Swainston tried to turn the corner but found nothing but blue jerseys in front of him. Seeing wide receiver Laine King open in the end zone, Swainston improvised and tossed the ball to the receiver for an apparent score.

But the play was called back because of an ineligible receiver penalty. Sparked by the helping hand, the Mustangs prevented the Tigers from going any further with a fourth-down goaline stand and it seemed the momentum had shifted.

The bad luck continued for the Tigers for the rest of the third quarter with two Swainston TD runs being called back because of clipping penalties.

Bruins

yard scoring strike and Brunson again continued.

Twin Falls then fumbled away a drive at the Tiger 18, forced a punt and finally, in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter, made a drive kind of a 25-yard jump pass to Nick Brunkow carried to the Idaho Falls five and Rick Harder punched across from the two three plays after that.

Idaho Falls, after another turnover, then put together another drive that carried to fourth and four for the Bruins. A short finally misfired, under throwing the ball enough for Teske to make a leaping interception. The Bruin linebacker came to earth on his own three-yard line and saw the ball the other end, a run he said he felt lasted "forever."

The Spartans, though, were not done yet. Twice in the fourth quarter, Minico drove inside the Rigby 5-yard line, only to be stifled of a score by the Trojan defense.

Toronto beats Bosox in 12; 'magic number' remains 3

BOSTON (AP) — Jesse Barfield led off the 12th inning with his 11th homer Friday night, lifting the Toronto Blue Jays to a 1-0 victory over Boston and keeping on hold the Red Sox' drive for the American League East championship.

Barfield drilled a 2-0 pitch by reliever Calvin Schiraldi over the screen in left-center as the Blue Jays prevented Boston from clinching at least a tie for the division title.

Boston's magic number for clinching remained at three games over Toronto with nine regular season games left in Fenway Park. The magic number for clinching over New York was reduced to two as the Yankees lost 3-2 to Detroit.

Elsewhere in the American League Friday, Milwaukee topped Baltimore 2-0, Oakland at Kansas City and Minnesota at Chicago were rained out and Cleveland and Seattle played a late game on the Pacific Coast.

Baseball

In the National League, Philadelphia topped Montreal 5-0, New York beat Pittsburgh 3-1, Atlanta edged Houston 5-4, Chicago whipped St. Louis 4-1 and Cincinnati outlasted San Diego 8-6.

Toronto reliever Mark Eichhorn, 14-5, was the winner in relief of starter Jimmy Key. Tom Henke got the last two outs for his 25th save.

Boston starter Roger Clemens shut out the Blue Jays on eight singles for nine innings before giving way to Schiraldi. Clemens, falling in a bid for his 25th victory, struck out six and walked two. Schiraldi, 4-2, worked out of jams in the 10th and 11th innings before giving up the homer to Barfield.

Boston's Wade Boggs went 4-for-6 to improve his batting average to .354.

 Against Eastern Washington (21-19 season-opening loss three weeks ago), we suffered from turnovers (five interceptions) and that's something we can't continue to do." Although Setenich is notoriously closed-mouthed—about injuries, it appears certain that junior quarterback Vince Alcalde—who hurt his shoulder in the loss to Eastern Washington and didn't play against Humboldt State, a fortnight ago—will start tonight ahead of redshirt freshman Keith Jarrett, the author of the Humboldt State romp.

At tailback, junior Chris Jackson is gone for the year with a knee injury suffered in the EWU game. His place will be taken by redshirt freshman Tyler Burke, a fleet-footed back who will be making his first start at BSU. He gets the nod ahead of senior Cliff Searon, who gained 103 yards against Humboldt State. Senior Greg Harrison, who was injured slightly in the Eastern Washington game, is listed third on the Broncos' depth chart.

"The loss of Jackson makes a difference," says Koetter. "He has such movement and agility. Their offense presents a different problem for us because they are a play-action and rollout-type team. Our problem this week is containing the passer."

 Another casualty is Jon Cox, a three-year starter at tight end. He's recovering from a foot injury sustained during the two-week layoff and won't play; his place will be taken by Jeff Lindsay, a sophomore walk-on who will also be making his first start at BSU.

The consensus is that both ISU's offense and Boise State's defense are improved over last year, when the matchup turned into an mismatch under the pass rush of linebackers Jim Ellis, Rex Walters and Twin Falls' Lance Sellers and of defensive tackle Pete Kwiatkowski.

"They're better on the offensive line this year than they were a year ago," says Setenich. "They return Hoge and (quarterback Gino) Mariani and their other skill people, (tailback) Butch Caston, (fullback) Corey Federico and (tanker) Nick Olsen. They were a good offense last year and they've gotten more experienced."

Until last week, the Bengals—who were our four starters on the offensive line—hadn't had much trouble protecting Mariani. But the junior quarterback was sacked three times by Montana State, which limited Hoge to 47 yards rushing. "No...I think we have to come off the ball better than we did against Montana State and Fullerton State," says Koetter. "We've got to get into our running game, because we can't get long yardage on them. They're too quick for us, so we have to keep them off balance with run and pass. Most important, I think, is that we can't be getting individual breakdowns because we haven't seen this quality of a defense this year."

Koetter has moved senior Randy Triplett ahead of 305-pound senior

Bill Lasley at one tackle and replaced junior Joe Henderson at center with redshirt freshman Dave McCann. Henderson, a JC transfer, blew out his knee in practice and will be lost for the balance of the season. Defensively, Boise State will be without two starters. Senior cornerback Chuck Compton, a one-time all-conference performer who broke his ankle in preseason drills, won't return until late in the season. Walters, an outside-linebacker who had 17 tackles in the first game and a half, damaged some knee ligaments against Humboldt State and will be back until next week. He'll be replaced by Sellers, moving from his defensive end spot to the position he used to play in the Broncos' defense. JC transfer Ralph Gooding will start his third game at cornerback in place of Compton.

Senior strong safety Phil Bartie, who hurt his leg in the Eastern Washington game, will start. Ellis' 19 tackles lead the team, while senior inside-linebacker Mike Dolby has 16, Kwiatkowski 14 and Sellers 13.

"They have everybody playing red hard and are getting such good pressure with their front-four on the pass rush that they can play hard man coverage," says Koetter. "They're very active on defense and rush to the ball well."
 Koetter says he doesn't talk to his players about the Broncos' 14-game lead in this series. Neither does Setenich, who is 4-0 against Idaho State.

"I think we've just been lucky," he says. "I don't know how these things happen."

Idaho-EWU

 good for the Eagles.

"Idaho football has always had a certain reputation in this area, and as we've been able to compete on an equal basis with them, it's raised the recognition of our program up," he said. "Instead of people identifying us with the Eastern Washington-Central Washington relationship, it's more of Eastern Washington and Idaho."

Zornes added that while players on both teams vividly remember last winter's EWU playoff victory, he and his staff are trying to prevent it from being an emotional game.

"It's hard to predict that, we've got three big games in a row—in Idaho, Montana and Idaho State—and as a coach you don't want the players to get too high for any one of them. That's something we've really got to watch."

Rookie Idaho Coach Keith Gilbertson is also trying to downplay the game.

"I think too much is being made about the rematch," he said. "Eastern Washington is just a non-conference football game; we've got to get ready to play (Big Sky rival) Idaho State next week."

Both coaches note that each other's offense is more balanced than in the past, and both say the defenses have improved since last year.

"I don't know what to expect," said Gilbertson. "We're just going to try to play our football game and see what happens."

A lot of the firepower went out of Eastern's offense when senior tailback Jamie Townsend went down with a knee injury in the Boise State game. Townsend, a 1,000-yard rusher as a junior, is listed a doubtful for today's game.

"I think we're getting better offensively, but we've lost our tailback and that just takes away two more skill people," said Zornes. "We're playing without them, and we're still trying to make those adjustments. They were built into the offensive package, so now that we don't have them it's been like starting over." Eagles graduated all everything quarterback Rick Workman, so they are trying to be more balanced on offense. Zornes said.

While quarterbacks Jon Snider and Rob James have thrown for only 423 yards, freshman tailback Vernan Williams has gained 359 yards on 58 carries and scored four times.

Despite the absence of Workman and Townsend—who accounted for 519 yards of offense in EWU's playoff win over Idaho last year—Gilbertson said the Vandals' main task will be to avoid the kind of tit-for-tat scoring match that culminated in Eastern's victory in the playoff game last fall.

"They're going to get their yards; the big thing is that we've got to keep them from scoring," he said. "It's an offense with nine starters back, and they have some big, strong kids."

With senior inside-linebacker Shawn Nilsson returning after a two-week absence—due to arthroscopic knee surgery, Gilbertson said the Vandals will abandon the two-man defensive front that managed to limit Fullerton State to 102 yards in the second-half last week.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

'Luck is not chance - Fortune's expensive smile is earned.' - Emily Dickinson.

Many who would fail in today's game would blame the result on bad luck. A successful declarer will make his own luck.

Dummy's diamond ace wins the first trick; and some declarers will impulsively lead a trump at trick two. A second diamond lead guarantees the loss of a trick in each hand and the game falls short by one trick.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"Work is not chance — it's fate. First your expensive smile is earned." — Erinly Dickinson

Many who would fall in today's game would blame the result on bad luck. A restaurant's dealer will make his own luck.

Dummy's diamond ace wins the first trick and ace declarer will triumphously lead a trump at trick two. A second diamond lead guarantees the loss of a trick in each suit, and the game falls short by one trick.

So the first hurdle is to avoid the trump lead at trick two. The only reasonable alternative is to lead spades instead. How should South play that suit?

South's opening play is to lead a spade to his king at trick two, giving himself two chances instead of one (lead this suit to the jack or 10; he could later finesse to his queen).

West wins the result in diamonds, but to no avail. Dummy wins. South cashes two spades to discard dummy's low diamond, and only then is it safe for South to lead a trump.
