Britain breaks with Syria over plot

By ROBERT GLASS
The Associated Press

LONDON — Britain broke relations with Syria on Friday, charging that Syrian officials conspired with a Jordanian who was convicted hours earlier of trying to blow up an Israeli jumbo jet by smuggling a bomb on board in London.

Syria called the action unjustified and ordered its air space and territorial waters closed to British planes and ships.

Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe told Parliament there was conclusive evidence of official Syrian involvement in the "monstrous and inhumane" attempt to sabotage the El Al flight to Tel Aviv and kill the 375 people aboard.

A jury at the Old Bailey criminal court convicted Nizar Hindawi, 32, earlier Friday of trying to smuggle a bomb onto the plane at Heathrow

U.S. backs Britain, withdraws its envoy

The Associated Press

ABOARD AIR FORCE ONE — The United States, in a show of support for Great Britain, announced Friday the withdrawal of America's ambassador to Syria, citing London's charge that Syria sponsored a plot to smuggle a bomb onto an Israeli plane at Heathrow airport.

President Reagan's chief spokesman, announcing the withdrawal of William Eagleton from Damascus, to reporters accompanying Reagan en route from Oklahoma City, Okla. to Tampa, Fla., said the administration applauded "the reaction of her majesty's government" to acts of terrorism.

and told him of Britain's intention to expel him and the 20 other diplomats in the Syrian Embassy.

The United States announced it was withdrawing its ambassador from Syria in a show of support for Britain.

"A state that encourages and takes part in terrorism isolates itself from the civilized world," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said. "The United States will consult and cooperate with others to bring practical meaning to the isolation — diplomatically, politically, economically."

Howe said in his announcement to the House of Commons that the evidence against Syria included testimony that Hindawi carried an official Syrian passport and met with the Syrian ambassador on the day the bomb was found.

"In addition, we have independent evidence that the Syrian ambassador was personally involved, several months before the commission of the offense, in securing for Hindawi the sponsorship of the Syrian intelligence authorities," he said in the speech less than three

Arms ban discussed by Reagan

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking to clarify a superpower misunderstanding over what was proposed at the Iceland summit, the White House says President Reagan discussed but did not formally suggest the complete elimination of all strategic nuclear weapons within 10 years.

The issue, which was the focus of controversy immediately after the summit, has surfaced again because Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said in a speech Wednesday night that Reagan agreed at the summit that both sides should scrap all such weapons, bombs as well as missiles.

Said Gorbachev: "The president did, albeit without special enthusiasm; consent to the elimination of all — I emphasize — all, not only certain individual, strategic offensive arms, to be destroyed precisely over 10 years, in two stages."

He accused the Reagan administration of engaging in "outright misrepresentations" in denying that a ban had ever agreed to such a ban.

Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman, denied again Thursday that there had been any understanding on the question. But he went further than he had before in saying the issue was discussed and that Reagan talked of the total elimination of nuclear weapons as an "ultimate goal."

"The president discussed it, but it was not formally tabled," Speakes said.

Asked if Gorbachev was wrong, Speakes said, "No, I don't know. I can't make judgments about what

SDI comment triggers war of hot words

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A political brouhaha is developing over comments made on the Strategic Defense Initiative by congressional candidate Mel Richardson and counter-charges leveled against Richardson by U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho.

Officials in the Strategic Defense Initiative Office in Washington, D.C., and at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Arco both took pains on Friday to distance themselves from the escalating war of words between the two candidates.

Stallings repeated charges on Friday that Richardson acted "irresponsibly" when he released information on a classified SDI project, known as Centaurus, during a televised debate Tuesday. Stallings also blasted Richardson for using inaccurate information.

"He's wrong on virtually every point," Stallings said on Friday.

During the debate, Richardson said Stallings' failure to support President Ronald Reagan's more than $5 billion request for "Star Wars" cost the INEL a $100 million "rail gun" project and a $10 million project that he did not identify.

Both the House and the Senate approved a $3.4 billion budget for SDI in August.

However, both the SDI office and INEL said Richardson's information on cuts in programs was inaccurate, as was Stallings' charge that the use of the word "Centaurus" was classified.

The spokesman for the SDI office in Washington, Maj. David Rigby, said that office has made no decisions on cuts in SDI.

"The SDI office has not expressed its views on the word 'Centaurus' or announced any program cuts or revisions based on the budget," said Rigby, a public information officer.

"We have not, I repeat, not made those decisions, and any comments that we have made are speculation."

Centaurus was identified as a nuclear reactor-powered laser system.

The rail gun is an experimental project to use electricity, rather than explosives, to fire weapons.

Rigby also clarified information on classified projects. He said the use of the word "Centaurus" did not violate security—and the word itself was not classified. Parts of the Centaurus project are classified, though, he said.

'The SDI office has not expressed or announced any program cuts or revisions based on the budget.'

Major David Rigby

Richardson did not release information on the project, only dollar amounts that he said would be cut for Centaurus.

As for the rail gun, Dr. Peter Hsu, project director for SDI with the department of Energy at INEL, said on Friday that the rail gun project was not cut from INEL — because INEL never had the project.

"It's in the planning and discussion stage, and INEL has talked with the government," Hsu said. He said INEL was one of several institutions being considered for the rail gun project.

"We were never told by Washington that we were the designated place for it, or that we are No. 1 on the list to receive it," Hsu said.

Stallings backed off an earlier statement on Friday that he might move for a Congressional investigation of the information on SDI projects, saying he would wait until after the election because he did not want to "politicize" the SDI office.

However, Stallings continued to question low "ballston" and his staff obtained the information.

Agencies pursued radiation tests on humans over 30 years

By JILL LAWRENCE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal agencies conducted a 30-year series of radiation exposure experiments on human subjects, including injecting them with plutonium, radium and uranium, a House subcommittee said Friday.

The experiments took place all over the country starting in the mid-1940s and did not end until the 1970s, according to the report by the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on energy conservation and power.

Among the experiments cited was the release of radioactive iodine on seven occasions from 1963 until 1965 at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho.

The report, "American Nuclear Guinea Pigs: Three Decades of Radiation Experiments on U.S. Citizens," is based on a review of thousands of pages of Department of Energy documents obtained by the subcommittee in the past three years. Experiments conducted by DOE's precursors exposed hundreds of people to radiation, it concludes.

The experiments attempted to measure the biological effects of radioactive material, the doses from injected, ingested or inhaled radioactive substances, and the time it took radioactive substances to pass through the human body, the report said.

"American citizens thus became nuclear calibration devices," the report said. Some of them were willing subjects, the report said, but there is no record of informed consent for others. The subjects included prisoners, the elderly and the terminally ill.

The report says the government covered up the nature of the experiments to many families. It says some victims received doses 98 times the body burden recognized at the time the experiments were conducted.

"These experiments . . . shock the conscience," subcommittee chairman Edward Markey, D-Mass., said in a letter to DOE Secretary John Herrington. "Did the intense desire to know the consequences of radioactive exposure . . . lead American scientists to mimic the kind of demented human experiments conducted by the Nazis?"

Markey said present public and scientific officials clearly are not responsible for the experiments, but maintained they represent a historical, institutional failure compounded by lack of follow-up.

He urged the department to try to find the living experimental subjects, look for increased incidence of radiation-associated diseases and compensate them for suspected damages.

The agencies sponsoring the experiments not been publicly available or publicized, he said. The department to the Manhattan Project, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Energy Research and Development Administration.

DOE spokeswoman Gail Bradshaw said subjects in plutonium injection experiments already have been followed up, but said she did not know if any other people are being tracked.

Bradshaw said information on most of the experiments has been available to the public for two years, but said the Markey subcommittee may have had access to other documents.

Markey's press secretary, Raoul Rosenberg, said most of the material has not been publicly available or publicized. He said the subcommittee report is the first systematic, comprehensive examination of what happened across the nation over three hours after Hindawi was found guilty. Syria has been ordered to close its embassy within 14 days. Howe said, and the British Embassy in Damascus also will be closed.

More rigorous checks will be made on passengers, crew and baggage of Syrian Arab Airlines' flights arriving in Britain, the foreign secretary said. Britain stopped short of banning the airline.
Howe said Britain will "maintain and strengthen" visa restrictions on visiting Syrians and inform its allies. "Impressing on them the widest security implications of the involvement of the Syrian authorities, and urging them to take appropriate supporting action."

last week, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., also said Reagan had spoken of eliminating all nuclear weapons in a briefing for congressional leaders after the president's return from Iceland. Speakers suggested at the time that Reagan may have been misspoken, or may have been misunderstood.
The issue is important, Nunn said, because a ban on all strategic nuclear weapons would leave the Soviets with an overwhelming advantage in conventional military forces, such as tanks, jet fighters and artillery. The Soviets also have a major edge in military manpower.
"It is obvious that this proposal has not been thought through adequately," said Nunn, a leading congressional expert on defense issues. He said such a proposal, were made, it should be withdrawn.
The recollections of each side on their discussions are also significant because both have said their understanding in Iceland remain in force for further discussion at the ongoing Geneva arms control talks.
"Speakers had said on Oct. 17 that despite a Soviet offer, Reagan never agreed to the elimination of nuclear weapons" and that "there was discussion."

In a briefing for reporters, Shultz said, "The agreement that might have been said, 'During the 10-year period—in effect, all offensive strategic arms and ballistic missiles would be eliminated so that at the end of the period the deployment of strategic defense would be substantially altered in what was needed.'"
Shultz was present during a special meeting, so he would be in a special position to know what was agreed upon.
But within hours, other officials were saying that was not the case.
There is no doubt that Reagan and Gorbachev were agreed on a 50 percent cutback in all strategic nuclear weapons, missiles and bombs, over a five-year period.
The differences pertain to a second five-year period. The White House said Reagan agreed to the total elimination of all strategic nuclear ballistic missiles over the next five years, but not a complete ban on all nuclear weapons.
According to a summary of the summit talks, disclosed by the White House, Gorbachev put forward the proposal to get rid of "all nuclear weapons."

An official at the State Department said, however, that Syrian charge d'affaires Bushra Kanafani was informed of the decision by Richard Murphy, assistant secretary of state for Near East affairs, not by Shultz.
The State Department official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said U.S. policy toward Syria is being reviewed and that further steps were a possibility.
Asked if a complete break in diplomatic relations would be considered the official said, "I'm not ruling anything in, or anything out."

Voss draws 4-year prison term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peter Voss, the former vice chairman of the U.S. Postal Service board of governors, was sentenced Friday to four years in prison for embezzlement and receiving payoffs in connection with a postal contract.

U.S. District Judge George H. Roversom sentenced Voss, who was co-chairman of President Reagan's Ohio campaign in 1980, to two years' imprisonment on each of two counts of accepting an illegal gratuity in connection with a $250 million mail-sorting equipment contract.

Voss also received six months on one count of embezzling money from the Postal Service by submitting vouchers for first-class airline tickets he did not use. The sentence for embezzlement is to run concurrently with the other sentence. Voss was fined $110,000, $5,000 on each charge involving the gratuity and $1,000 for the embezzlement.

Hasenfus case grinds along

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Defense attorney Griffin Bell said Friday that captured American Eugene Hasenfus was not part of a conspiracy because he only helped deliver supplies to the Contra rebels and did not plan the operation.

Hasenfus, 35, of Marinette, Wis., was captured Oct. 6, a day after the C-123 cargo plane on which he was a crew member was shot down in southern Nicaragua.

Hasenfus' Nicaraguan lawyer, Enrique Sotelo Borjén, denied charges of Terrorism, violating public security and criminal association in documents filed with the revolutionary court Thursday and claimed that the court lacks authority to hear the case.

In a statement Friday the tribunal rejected Sotelo Borjén's argument as "vague and general." It made no specific reference to his claim that the court lacked authority in the case.

Marine search plane crashes

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — A U.S. Marine Corps plane with two men aboard crashed into the Mediterranean southeast of Crete on Friday while searching for a Navy aircraft that disappeared earlier this week, a Navy spokesman reported.

L. Dave Morris said crew members of a Greek freighter saw the A-6 jet hit the water southeast of the island at about 11 a.m. and a search was being conducted. He said it carried a pilot and a flight officer.

Both the Marine aircraft and the S-3A Viking submarine hunter missing since Tuesday in the eastern Mediterranean were based on the 6th Fleet aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy.

Controller lectured third pilot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controller who directed the Aeromexico DC-9 that collided with a small plane Aug. 30 was aware of the potential for an accident in the crowded skies over Los Angeles and severely lectured the pilot of a third plane that wandered into restricted airspace.

Details of the radio communications between the controller and a number of planes under his direction in the minutes before the accident were reported Friday by The Dallas Times Herald, which obtained a copy of the air traffic control transcript.

The radio exchanges between the controller at the Los Angeles tower and a number of aircraft appeared to shed no new light on the cause of the collision that claimed 82 lives. But it provided some detail as to what occupied the controller responsible for the Mexican airliner.

Long-distance rate cut seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will wake up next week with a new meaning with still lower long-distance telephone rates. Spokesmen for the major long-distance companies said Friday.

Reacting to a prediction from Federal Communications Commissioner Mark S. Fowler, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which has the most customers, confirmed it will lower its rates Jan. 1.

"We don't know the amount of the cut or the services to be affected yet," said Herb Linen, AT&T's Washington spokesman.
Fowler told ABC News in an interview that he thought AT&T rates would go down by 3 to 5 percent. That would come to between $600 million and $1 billion by AT&T's calculations.
AT&T said it would announce specifics of its reductions in mid-November.

Church morale 'affected'

CHICAGO (AP) — Morale in the nation's Roman Catholic community has been "adversely affected" by a perception that "the Vatican is discouraging theological diversity," according to Cardinal Joseph Bernardin.

At the same time, "We are not and cannot be lone rangers. There are times when diversity may impact only adversely," the head of the nation's second largest archdiocese stated in his column published Friday in the Chicago Catholic.
Bernardin's comments were prompted by the Vatican's recent order that the archbishop of Seattle relinquish some of his authority to an auxiliary bishop.

aide, on Friday said the information came from Janene Eilers, a congressional liaison with SDI in Washington, D.C. She could not be reached for comment.
However, Witter, in an Associated Press story on Thursday, said the information came from Gen. James Abrahamson, chief of the SDI project.
When asked for a contact person at SDI, Steve Taggart, with Richardson's office, supplied Rigby's name.
When asked how they had learned of the dollar amounts and what programs would be cut, Taggart said it was public information, and "Joe Blow off the street could have found out about it."
But Rigby disputed that statement, saying "I hope no anybody could get it." Rigby also said all information on SDI was supposed to come out of his office, and he had not talked to Richardson or anyone from Richardson's staff.

Last shot for right-to-work?

Leroy says he'll abide by decision of Idaho electorate on law

BOISE (AP) — Republican governor candidate David Leroy says if right-to-work loses next month, he would not allow the Idaho Legislature to dredge it up again.

"We want it to be decided by an informed electorate this time," Leroy told the Idaho Press Club on Thursday.

"But it should be a final decision. If an elected and right-to-work is defeated, I will not let the legislature pass it again. I would veto it," he said.

Leroy said he has no way of knowing if the expected big turnout on the right-to-work referendum will lead to the defeat of Republican.

"Turnout appears to be the key. If their turnout is big... it could be a very significant factor in the defeat of some Republican," he said, because people turning out to defeat right-to-work probably would not vote for his party.

Paula Wissel, spokeswoman for Jeannous Against Deception, an anti-right-to-work organization, said she asked Leroy the question at the Press Club meeting because she had heard he made similar statements to smaller audiences.

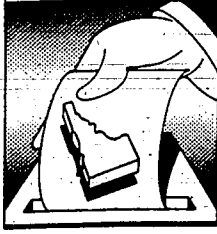

"When asked if she thought he made the statement to gain labor support in the upcoming election, she said, 'As it becomes more evident that right-to-work will be defeated in the election, a lot of candidates are backing off their endorsements of right-to-work.'"

Leroy and other Republican candidates continued their parade of big-name GOP leaders helping their campaigns on Friday.

Leroy and Mel Richardson, the GOP nominee in Idaho's 2nd Congressional District, met in Boise with Interior Secretary Donald Hodel. After the meeting in Boise with area farmers, Hodel and Richardson also held a Pocatello news conference.

Hodel echoed the familiar theme

Election '86 Idaho

that Idaho should elect Republicans to help President Reagan carry out his programs in the final two years of his administration.

He urged the election of Leroy over Democrat Cecil Andrus, under whom he worked when Andrus was secretary-of-interior in the Carter administration. "Idaho needs Cecil Andrus again, just like America needs Jimmy Carter again," Hodel said.

He claimed Andrus' only interest as department head was "preservation, preservation, preservation. America can't live with that kind of misconduct in office."

James Watt, who took office immediately after Andrus, found an Interior Department that had been "abused and misdirected" for four years. Because he was forced to depart dramatically from Andrus' policies, Watt became a center of controversy, Hodel said.

He said people from the population centers have no concept of what it is like to have most of a state owned by the federal government. That means they have no idea that when they make decisions on wilderness, grazing fees and similar subjects, the lifeblood of your economy could be at stake."

Hodel said Richardson could be an effective spokesman for Idaho interests. He said he did not know Rep. Richard Stallings, the Democrat incumbent, until someone told him who holds the seat.

"I don't recall having ever heard from him on any one issue," Hodel said in Pocatello. "But I know that I'll be hearing from Mel, and I have been hearing from him all day."

Hodel also said he has heard from all the members of the Idaho delegation on the wilderness issue in Idaho with the exception of Stallings. He said he agrees with the Republicans in the delegation that no area of Interior Department lands in Idaho should be recommended for wilderness designation until all have been studied.

Richardson, meanwhile, said he opposes any mandated wilderness in the state, and said he supports multiple use management. That management may dictate restricted development in some areas, he said, but those decisions should be made by land managers, not by Congress.

In Boise, the Idaho Education Association announced its formal opposition to the right-to-work referendum, contending that 18 of 20 right-to-work states spend $500 per student less than the national average on public education.

IDA Executive Director Chuck Lentz said that right-to-work states except Nevada have fallen further behind the national average since becoming right-to-work states, lowering the state's tax base.

Idaho doesn't have a tax base that's adequate to support public services, Lentz said. The Gem State ranks 49th in the amount of money spent per pupil each year, he said.

Gov. John Evans said he has sent a telegram to President Reagan, urging him to sign legislation finalizing the Swan Falls water agreement.

The pact was negotiated between the state, federal government and Idaho Power Co. two years ago. But Evans said, Friday's Washington Post carried a story indicating the president might veto the legislation finalizing the agreement to resolve a 10-year battle over water rights in the Snake River.

"A veto would delay resolution of this dispute, and possibly jeopardize the settlement," Evans said in the letter to Reagan. "I urge you to give this bill favorable consideration."

At Blackfoot, Stallings said Idahoans must elect state legislators who will fund the Department of Commerce and higher education, to improve the state's chances of getting the Superconducting Super Collider.

Speaking at a meeting of the Blackfoot Kiwanis Club, Stallings said Idaho's chances of getting the SSC are good because it has the necessary ingredients — a large amount of available land on which to build the facility — a guaranteed power source and a ready work force.

But the state that gets the SSC will have another qualification — universities with the ability to provide the necessary backup for the research that will go on, he said.

Ben, Steve Symms, who traveled to Boise for Thursday night's televised debate against Evans, returned on Friday to wind up his three-week, 3,000-mile motorcycle around the state.

Symms planned visits in south-central Idaho before winding up at Kelso. The Republican incumbent was scheduled to complete his tour Saturday, before flying to Lour d'Aene, for a candidate forum and another face-to-face meeting with Evans.

Budget cap repeal goal of counties

POCATELLO (AP) — After winning at least one concession on property taxing limitations, the Idaho Association of Counties has made complete repeal of the last remnant of the voter-passed 1 Percent Initiative its top priority in this winter's legislative session.

The association, laying out its legislative program at a recent meeting, said it was critical to repeal the current cap that prohibits their property-tax financed budgets from growing more than 5 percent a year without a public vote.

The restriction will be severe in view of the demise of federal revenue sharing, which has pumped millions of dollars into local government treasuries in the past.

Critics of the cap have contended that it inhibits local ability to expand or provide services needed to foster growth in their economies.

Speed limits set

BOISE (AP) — The Ada County Highway District Board of Commissioners has adopted a policy that sets uniform speed limits in the county by the type of road, following nine months of negotiations with state law enforcement officers.

The maximum speed limit for county roads will be 20 mph for residential streets, 25 mph for collector streets, 35 mph for urban arterial roads, 55 mph for rural arterial roads and 45 mph for substandard rural arterials. Collector streets connect to less heavily-used residential streets.

PUC grants Idaho Power site supply contract

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has approved Idaho Power Company's contract to be the sole supplier of electricity to Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The 10-year contract approved Friday, which becomes effective Nov. 1, is pending a decision from the Idaho Supreme Court on whether Utah Power and Light Co. should provide electricity to INEL.

UP&L has the right to appeal to the Idaho Supreme Court for a stay of Friday's order. UP&L attorney Steven Dunn couldn't be reached for comment.

The Salt Lake City-based utility is challenging a November 1985 order by the PUC that allows Idaho Power to become the sole supplier of electricity to INEL.

The Department of Energy requested that Idaho Power become the sole supplier under termination of a contract in which both companies served the eastern Idaho research facility.

Under the contract that expires Oct. 31, Idaho Power is paid $3.2 million for primary power, and UP&L is paid $1.7 million for backup power, which Idaho Power spokesman Larry Crowley said was rarely needed.

However, in September, UP&L appealed to the high court the PUC's decision making the Boise-based utility the sole supplier to INEL. Earlier this month, the commission refused to suspend the order pending the outcome of the Supreme Court decision, but made UP&L an intervenor in the contract award case.

UP&L asked the PUC to require the DOE to pay, in addition to the Idaho Power contract, $345,794 a month into an escrow account, which would be held by the PUC and refunded to either or both companies depending on the outcome of the Supreme Court decision.

"It is unreasonable for the DOE to be assessed rates by UP&L when DOE is not UP&L's customer," commissioners said Friday. "Even if we were inclined to grant UP&L's request for an escrow account, its request that full rates be charged DOE is clearly excessive."

Bill's demise stalls state road work

BOISE (AP) — The demise of a $90 billion federal highway projects bill when Congress adjourned this month will mean delays of up to nine months for at least 40 road projects in Idaho, state transportation officials say.

"These are projects that are ready or nearly ready to go to bid," said Hugh Lyndon, chief of transportation services for the state Department of Transportation. "All these federal taxes are being collected from Idaho and other users, being sent to the trust fund and sitting there."

The failure of House and Senate negotiators to iron out differences between their versions of the bill so it could pass in the final days, despite the fact that Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, the chairman of the transportation subcommittee, was a member of that joint negotiating panel.

Symms was criticized last week by his re-election opponent, Democratic

Gov. John Evans, for abandoning those negotiations to return to Idaho two weeks early to begin campaigning. But Symms, while conceding his first day back at that state that the highway funds bill was the big issue, said then that it appeared no resolution of the differences could be reached.

The senator also said, however, that he was advised by state highway officials that they had federal highway fund money from previous allocations still available to keep their operations going into next spring.

Lost in the bill's demise was over $37 million earmarked for special road projects across the state and another $61.6 million for interstate highway work. Lyndon said the state still had over $38 million in interstate highway money left from previous allocations that could be used on priority projects in Boise, Pocatello and the Panhandle.

But he said the other projects will have to be put off until the federal money is authorized.

Depletion, contamination key water issues

Hearings on new state plan scheduled for mid-November

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Stopping the depletion of aquifers and protecting groundwater from contamination are key issues in the new state water plan to be discussed in public hearings during the second and third weeks of November.

This is the first major revision of the plan in 10 years. The new plan includes changes in water rights and uses required by the Swan Falls agreement, a major water-rights settlement between the state and Idaho Power Co., which was signed Oct. 25, 1984.

More than half the changes in the new water plan will require changes in state law, said Sherman, a supervisor in the water-planning section of the state Department of Water Resources.

The Legislature can make any change it wants. The plan is a blueprint of state policy, but it is not in itself state law, Sherman said.

The withdrawal of water from an aquifer should not exceed the rate at which water flows into the aquifer or is recharged, the policy says.

The Water Resources Board said 30 percent of Idaho's irrigated acres rely on groundwater, and overuse of it depletes the water. If the use of water exceeds the recharge, the state should correct the imbalance with the least impact on Idahoans, the plan says.

A start at correcting this problem is under way at the federal level. The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation may provide money in the next few years to help irrigator groups in Twin Falls, Cassia, Elmore, Lincoln, and Gooding counties with projects to recharge the groundwater through use of irrigation canals and injection wells. If these projects receive funds, they could be the basis for other private efforts to recharge the groundwater, said Ron Golus, Pacific Northwest coordinator for the bureau's groundwater program.

Groundwater levels in the Snake Plain Aquifer decreased between 1950 and 1980, according to a recently released study by Gerald Lindholm of the U.S. Geological Survey. By 2010, groundwater levels may decline 2 to 8 feet in most of the eastern plain, which includes Twin Falls, he said.

The state can name "critical groundwater areas" as a first step toward stopping excessive withdrawals from the aquifer.

A proposed change calls for a timetable to give pumpers with relatively new water rights a chance to recover their investment in land and equipment. Currently, the state

Workshop examines groundwater proposals

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Proposed new rules to protect Idaho's groundwater were explained Thursday night at a state-sponsored workshop.

Protection of groundwater is the new frontier of environmental protection, now that controls on pollution of surface waters are in place.

Several persons in the audience Thursday criticized loopholes in the standards designed to prevent pollution from such activities as petroleum storage, feedlots and dairies, and field application of pesticides and fertilizers.

"The new standards will give us more authority to clean up if contamination occurs," said Carla Levinski of the state Bureau of Water Quality. She developed the standards by drawing on plans from other states, including Wisconsin and Florida.

However, the intent of the new rules is to prevent accidents from happening in the first place.

About 94 percent of Idaho's industrial uses, 90 percent of drinking water supplies and 26 percent of irrigation activities rely on groundwater, state officials said.

The standards provide for three levels of protection. The highest class is special resource, where existing groundwater quality will be protected. There is only one area of the state like this — the Spokane-Rathdrum Aquifer in North Idaho, said Levinski.

All other groundwater in the state will come under Class 2, where groundwater is to be maintained at the standards of drinking water, she said. State drinking water standards require that all toxic such as arsenic and cyanide, be at non-detectable levels. Levels are set for permissible amounts of other pollutants.

A limited-use groundwater category will be available for any groundwaters, unfit for the other levels of protection.

Part of the standards is what is known as a preventive-action limit. When monitoring of groundwater shows pollution levels reaching 50 percent of drinking water standards, the operator of the activity is supposed to inform the state Bureau of Water Quality. "This is used as a basis for determining trends in groundwater," said Levinski.

"It makes no sense to import water from long distances so two or three users can use the aquifer forever," said Sherman. "It's nice to provide groundwater for future generations, but there are places where using it today makes more sense economically and socially."

Swan Falls accord affected by new plan

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Several clauses in the new state water plan put parts of the Swan Falls agreement into effect.

The water rights agreement was signed Oct. 25, 1984, between the state and Idaho Power Co.

After long and difficult negotiations, court action and maneuvering in the state Legislature, the two sides agreed to reduce IPC's water rights at Swan Falls Dam on the Snake River to a set minimum stream flow.

Other parts of the agreement seek to preserve IPC's ability to generate electricity by hydropower. The agreement ensures that a portion of water will be held in trust by the state for new uses according to a criteria which takes into account hydro needs.

Swan Falls is a far-reaching agreement, whose implications for Idahoans are not fully known yet.

The controversy stemmed from 1987 state Supreme Court decision which said IPC was entitled to an increased amount of water at Swan Falls. Critics said that if the decision were allowed to stand, it would cripple upstream water users — including irrigators in the Magic Valley.

The new water plan says groundwater and surface water should be managed to meet or exceed minimum stream flows at Milner Gauge on the Snake River of 3,900 cubic feet per second from

Area farmers told to work for measures

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Helen Waller, president of the National Save The Family Farm Coalition, visited Twin Falls Friday morning for a press conference encouraging farmers to prod their state representatives and senators into voting for legislation to improve the agricultural market.

The legislation was introduced to Congress just before adjournment of the 1988-89 session by Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and Sen. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

The legislation will probably come up again this session, because "there is great interest to control the surplus of grain in the United States," said Kelly Olson, agriculture specialist with U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings' office in Boise.

The legislation would enforce some type of production control, such as market certificates and mandatory set-aside acreage, and would help to increase market prices and decrease the country's surplus.

Waller called the legislation "the only alternative" to the current farm crisis. According to statistics from the American Banking Association, over 2,100 American farms are being lost per week. The number for Idaho is 20 farms per week, she said.

"No longer can American farm families tolerate this," she said.

According to other statistics from the ABA, farmers received just 25 cents out of every dollar Americans spent on food in 1985, compared to 33 cents 10 years ago.

The coalition, fighting for public awareness of this legislation, has been visiting Southern Idaho all week for meetings with the news media, political candidates, and fellow farmers. So far, Waller has spoken at Soda Springs, Pocatello, and Burley, and went on to Boise Friday afternoon.

"Make your representatives in Congress accountable for this legislation. Be an active part of the governmental system," Waller urged farmers.

Sally Miller Gullick, candidate for state representative of District 23A, was the only political candidate actually present at the conference, but members of Stallings' and Evans' campaign committees represented the two candidates at the meeting.

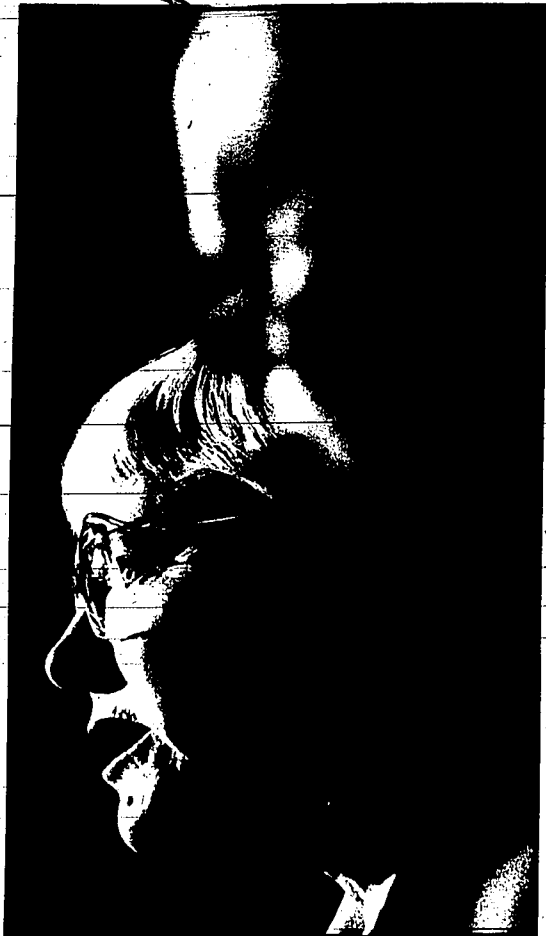

Waller said that although the farm crisis is most prevalent in the Midwest, it's on the way west and will soon attack states such as Idaho. "The problem came to a head in the Midwest, but the epidemic is moving west. We're all on that foreclosure list," she said.

Waller is from Circle, Mont., a town with a population of about 900, she said.

She described Idaho as being "on the coattails of what's happening to the Midwest."

Speaking with Waller was local farmer Walt Mueller, who said the farm crisis has brought about a shift from Republican voting to support of the

Hodel stumped by Stallings name

By RONDA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — U.S. Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel, stumping for congressional challenger Mel Richardson in Burley Friday, claimed he was unaware of the name of Idaho's 2nd congressional District congressman, Democrat Richard Stallings, until after a briefing.

"I didn't know the name of the congressman representing this district," Hodel said. "I realized I haven't heard from the congressman from this district."

On the other hand, Hodel said, he had regular dealings with U.S. Senators Steve Symms and Jim McClure and added "nobody is more important to me."

Hodel, speaking to about 30 Richardson supporters, including ranchers and farmers, blamed the Sagebrush Rebellion of the late 1970s on former U.S. secretary of the Interior and Idaho Democratic gubernatorial candidate Cecil Andrus.

The Sagebrush Rebellion was a land reform movement that unsuccessfully sought to force the transfer of large tracts of federal grazing lands to state government.

"The Sagebrush Rebellion is a direct result of his (Andrus') management of the Department of the Interior," Hodel said.

He said that along with making improvements in education and defense, the Reagan administration has "made dormant the Sagebrush Rebellion." But he warned that such a movement could be organized again if the national government becomes "arrogant."

Richardson agreed with Hodel. "The Sagebrush Rebellion was a function of the kind of leadership of Jimmy Carter and Cecil Andrus," he said.

Andrus could not be reached for comment Friday evening either at his campaign headquarters or his home.

Hodel said he came to Idaho with his wife Barbara because "leadership matters." Although officially promoting Richardson, he endorsed every major state Republican candidate, including Andrus' opponent David Leroy and 1st Congressional District Rep. Larry Craig. He called the election of Republican candidates "critical."

Hodel conceded to Burley ranchers that some issues such as Bureau of Land Management "grazing rights" are still unresolved. "There's a lot we're trying to do and that's why this election is important," he said.

"I emphatically hope we keep the flame alive of the revolution Ronald Reagan brought in 1980," he said.

Hodel promised to relay criticism to BLM chief Bob Burford—that the BLM is not working hard enough to correct misconceptions that public ranges are being denuded.

Hodel, formerly the U.S. secretary of the Environmental Protection Agency on noxious weeds were a "worst case" situation.

"We're not a good neighbor if we allow noxious weeds to flourish on our land," he said. Yet noxious weed spraying is being held up by a small constituency that will continue to "try to block us," he said.

Hodel, formerly the U.S. secretary of energy, said he believes that alternative fuels such as ethanol should be encouraged because "OPEC is going back into the driver's seat."

"I think the country is once again going to find itself where it's looking for alternative energy sources," he said. He predicted that this would be "sooner rather than later."

Richardson also used the gathering as an opportunity to refute an allegation by Stallings that he was "irresponsible" in discussing two Idaho National Engineering Laboratory SDI programs during Tuesday night's debate. He claimed Stallings had not checked his own material and that the information was not secret.

Ketchum cyclist killed

KETCHUM — A Ketchum man was killed Tuesday night in a motorcycle accident on Warm Springs Road in Ketchum.

Police said John Michael Gewock Dzwak, 21, was traveling west on Warm Springs Road at 11:20 p.m. when he lost control of his motorcycle. The machine left the road, went through a fence and crashed into a tree. Ketchum police Officer Mike McNeil said Dzwak was apparently killed instantly. He was dead when officers and ambulance personnel arrived at the scene. McNeil said he lived in the area where the accident occurred.

Dzwak had lived in Ketchum the past 13 years.

However, Moscow is trying to do something to preserve its groundwater longer. The city has applied for federal money, along with others in the state, to construct a groundwater recharge project.

Groundwater should be protected against unreasonable contamination or deterioration in quality, the plan says.

Efforts lies in with recent efforts by the state Bureau of Water Quality to develop for the first-time standards to protect groundwater quality.

The water plan also drops a number of policies from the previous plan.

For example, the new plan no longer requires an independent state program for monitoring aquifer contamination at the National Engineering Laboratory. The reason is given in a terse statement: "INEL no longer routinely uses injection wells."

For more than three decades, up to 1984, INEL pumped millions of gallons of radioactive water into the Snake Plain Aquifer via injection wells. INEL replaced the wells with a seepage pond, which will suppress the water to the table top and filter through the earth before reaching the aquifer.

Water samples taken in 1981 showed ed that two radioactive substances were found in monitoring wells and they had migrated. Cesium, one of the substances, loses half its radioactivity in 30 years; the other substance, Cobalt 60, has a half-life of 5.5 years.

"Reports indicate the highly toxic substances are not migrating as much as the shorter ones (Cobalt 60). We hope they will degrade by the time they reach the edge of the property," said Rick Jarvis of the BWO.

Radioactive monitoring at INEL, a U.S. Department of Energy facility, is done by other federal agencies. In the previous water plan the state said: "Notwithstanding the quality of the current radiation monitoring program carried out by the ERDA (Energy Research and Development Administration) and its Health Service Laboratory, it is recommended that the state establish an independent program for sampling, analysis, and data interpretation. The INEL area includes portions of the Snake Plain Aquifer, and every precaution must be taken to preserve its quality."

Sherman said the state monitored groundwater quality at INEL for three years. "It only confirmed work the U.S. Geological Survey and Department of Energy were doing," he said. "We were satisfied they are doing a proper job. USGS wells outside the property show no such migration outside." However, should new issues turn up, the water plan can be amended regularly, Sherman said.

The water plan also includes a bil-ion of the most efficient sources of diversion, the department said.

The public interest criteria are also in Idaho Code and an outgrowth of the Swan Falls agreement.

The director of the Department of Water Resources is supposed to consider the potential benefits of a proposed water use to the state and local economy.

The director is required to look at what impact the use would have on the electric utility rates of the state.

This reflects a point made by Idaho Power during the Swan Falls debate.

The utility argued that if upstream water users by irrigators and others were given higher priority than hydropower, there would be a sharp rise in electric utility rates in the state. During the debate, some legislators said IPC was exaggerating. IPC relies on hydro for 65 percent of its generating capacity.

The director is also to consider what impact alternative energy sources will have on softening the impact of a proposed water use.

The promotion of the family farm tradition is part of the criteria, as is multiple-use development of state water resources.

Another point the director has to consider is whether the proposed development conforms to an orderly development policy of 20,000 acres per year or 80,000 acres in any four-year period.

some treatment of pollutants. "To not allow a zone of impact, we would have to close down everyone who has a drain field. I don't think that would be appropriate," he said.

Another loophole is the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, which stops the Snake Plain Aquifer. It is exempt from the standards because it is a federal facility (on federal land).

Asked how violations of the standards would be detected, Susan Martin, manager of the BWO's planning and technical support section, said the state would respond only when a complaint arose.

Bank deposit gone, so's former worker

TWIN FALLS — A warrant was issued by Twin Falls police Friday to arrest the "rest" of a former employee of the 7-Eleven store at 760 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., in connection with a missing bank deposit of $2,655.14.

Director Tim Qullis said Bonnie Piercey, 29, of Twin Falls is named in the warrant charging grand theft.

Police reports show that the store manager contacted the department about the missing money Thursday. The deposit was prepared in the manager's day off, but has not shown on the bank records as having been deposited. Of the amount, $311.28 was in checks and the remainder in cash.

Qullis said Piercey has apparently left the area. He said she is probably driving a 1970 Dodge two-door sedan with license 2T-5504.

April 1 to Oct. 31 and 5,600 cfs from Nov. 1 to March 31.

The Swan Falls agreement said this is required to assure adequate flows for hydropower and protect fish propagation and recreational uses.

The Swan Falls agreement also requires that a portion of state waters be held in trust by the state for domestic, commercial, municipal and industrial uses. This is included in the plan.

The agreement—reduced IPC's claim to water right at Swan Falls Dam from 8,400 cfs to 3,900 cfs. The amount of water above 3,900 cfs up to 8,400 cfs is what is held in trust. The 8,400 cfs flow has historically not been available during summer months.

The water plan also recognizes that hydropower is a beneficial use of water and that stream flows below 3,900 cfs are not in the public interest. Water for the next generation (today's age or bill) would come from the portion of water set aside for domestic, commercial, municipal or industrial uses, the plan said.

Another policy says that when public interest criteria are met, the state should encourage the optimum development of a water resource.

This will be accomplished by coordinating use of groundwater and surface water and adding to existing supplies.

This will, sometimes require the exchange of water rights to make diversion, the department said.

"Despite the shift, the farming problem is 'everybody's problem,' he said, and shouldn't be thought of on a partisan basis.

"We don't need to point any fingers. Neither party has done a whole of a lot for the farmers," Waller said.

Olsen said that Stallings' record has shown him to be against mandatory set-asides, but it is not possible to say how he'll probably vote on this legislation. She added that he usually favors allowing the farmers to vote in a referendum when production controls are concerned.

Waller said the original farm bill has been receiving improvements since it was passed in 1985. The Harkin-Gephardt legislation is one of those improvements.

The National Save The Family Farm Coalition is representative of the unity of several farm organizations that came together to fight this legislation, Waller said.

There were several organizations working to improve conditions for the farmers when the original farm bill was passed in 1985, but they were not well-organized, she said. Representatives of the various organizations formed the coalition in February.

Gulick supported Waller, adding that the general public needed to be more aware of the legislation as

U.S. offers special payments to reduce '87 corn acreage

WASHINGTON (AP) — in which the plight of agriculture has become a leading issue.

The advance payments will provide corn farmers with additional cash flow for spring plantings and to meet other financial obligations," Lyng said in a statement.

The payments were ordered by Congress in a budget-deficit-cutting bill passed just before the lawmakers adjourned last weekend.

But Republican congressmen, tipped off early to the impending announcement, were quick to claim credit. "I'm glad to see the department has finally responded to my persistent prodding on advance deficiency payments," Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., said in a statement.

The USDA's announcement said farmers who sign up to participate in the 1987 program for corn and other feed grains will be required to idle 20 percent of their cropland. At their option, they may idle an additional 15 percent in return for federal payments of $2 a bushel for the grain that normally would have been grown on that acreage.

Half of the land-idling payment will be in cash, and the other half in certificates redeemable for surplus government-owned commodities, which can then be sold for cash.

The certificates have become a particularly hot item in the farm belt. A secondary market has developed using the paper as a form of currency that now is trading at as much as 115 percent of face value.

Market prices for corn have dipped below $1 1/2 a bushel in recent days in some parts of the Midwest, breaking a psychological barrier that Republicans fear could further fuel an already anti-GOP feeling in some farm areas.

"The 15 percent paid diversion announced today will fall short of holding the line on surplus stocks. B.U.L.'s close," said John Schmittler, a Washington agricultural consultant and former No. 2 USDA official in the 1960s. "It slows the accumulation of surpluses, but doesn't turn the corner yet. You still have to trust to luck to begin to get the surplus down."

Signup for the 1987 wheat program began on Oct. 1, and runs through next March 30. The department said

Aid funds diverted for bullets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indian guerrillas fighting Nicaragua's leftist government diverted $15,000 in U.S. non-lethal aid to buy bullets earlier this year, a State Department official said Friday.

The State Department learned of the diversion in June and forced the rebels to return the money, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The episode, which came to light in a draft report by the General Accounting Office, is the first and only conclusive evidence that any of the $27 million in non-lethal aid for the Nicaraguan Contras went for lethal assistance, according to three other U.S. officials who spoke Thursday on condition of anonymity.

The 500 Congress investigative arm said last spring it could not account for more than half the $27 million in non-lethal aid, and said that much of the money went into offshore bank accounts, into the Honduran military or stayed in the United States.

Reagan administration officials acknowledged that the State Department lacked adequate safeguards over the money but said the GAO had found no proof that any aid was used on guns or ammunition.

In May, Ambassador Robert Dunning, head of the State Department office administering the non-lethal aid, said there is "no evidence that any of the aid has been used in any way other than what is authorized under the guidelines."

However, the three U.S. officials said—the department learned last June that an Indian rebel group in Costa Rica bought ammunition with $15,000 of one grant totaling about $25,000.

After the discovery, the Creole Indian group admitted false vouchers had been submitted showing the money being spent on food and clothing, one official said.

The State Department insisted the entire $25,000 grant be paid back and reported the incident to the GAO, another official said.

The money was channeled through a Miami bank account controlled by a Costa Rican seafood firm, Frigorificos de Puntarenas, which handled a total of $231,587 in humanitarian aid for Nicaraguan Indian groups fighting the Nicaraguan government, the officials said.

Soviets head for Russia, say hopes for U.S. dashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Soviet citizens, at a rare news conference, announced Friday they were returning home because their hopes for a better life were dashed in America.

"I feel that in the Soviet Union I will be much freer than I am here," said Yuri Chapovsky, 27, the youngest and best-educated of the group.

Appearing before television cameras at the Soviet Information Office near Dupont Circle, each of the four told a story of emigrating and then deciding to go back. Two, Chapovsky and Israel Glickman, are Jews.

They spoke of personal as well as political considerations, of divided families and not wanting to be separated any longer. Film-maker Rashid Atamalbekov, who described himself as an atheist, said he missed the culture of his homeland.

Talking through a translator, the 51-year-old resident of Jersey City said he had come to America in 1979 "to look at Western society not as a tourist but as a resident."

Besides, Atamalbekov said, he had had a disagreement — he called it in Russian "a kind of scandal" — with his superior while working on his last film in the Soviet Union.

"I had a white inmate on the death row and two others critically injured before guards using tear-gas and wooden bullets brought the molee under control.

"The violence, which was linked to the slaying of a white inmate on the death row, took out in the medium-security South Unit on 8:45 a.m. MDT and was quelled about 30 minutes later, state Corrections Department spokesman Michael Arra said. About 20 of the unit's 500 inmates were involved.

the Soviet Union and I want to be reunited with the family," he said.

The two others, Glickman, 61, and Alexander Belklim, 41, had the least to say. They also will be the first to go home, next week.

Glickman emigrated to Dallas from Odessa in 1974 and has worked as a laborer. His wife, daughter and two grandchildren remained behind in Odessa.

"He's feeling sharp longing for his motherland," explained Bulag, the embassy press counselor.

Belklim, who emigrated to New York in 1977, was a clothing worker. Why was he going home? "He loves his motherland and his parents," the Soviet official said.

While Glickman and Belklim will be reunited with their families, Chapovsky, a Georgia Tech graduate, is leaving his parents and brother behind in Atlanta.

"They obviously reacted very badly," he said.

Chapovsky said his reasons for going home were personal and political.

He said he could not find a job, despite a master's degree, and had compared the situation in the United States with "words like democracy and freedom" that he had heard before emigrating here.

"We had a chance to compare the two things," Chapovsky said. "The words did not match the deeds."

Emigration from the Soviet Union is severely limited. Exit permits are sometimes granted for "separated family members," ethnic Germans, Jews, and Armenians, among others.

Arizona prison melee leaves 1 dead

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP) — A racial battle broke out Friday in an exercise yard at the Arizona State Prison, and one inmate was stabbed to death and two others critically injured before guards using tear-gas and wooden bullets brought the molee under control.

The violence, which was linked to the slaying of a white inmate on the death row, took out in the medium-security South Unit on 8:45 a.m. MDT and was quelled about 30 minutes later, state Corrections Department spokesman Michael Arra said. About 20 of the unit's 500 inmates were involved.

A black inmate was killed in Friday's violence, and at least seven others were injured, two critically. Another prisoner was believed to have suffered a heart attack, and he was returned to the prison after being examined at a nearby hospital.

The dead man was identified as Roy J. Ellis, 23, serving a five-year term for trafficking in stolen property. The injured included both blacks and whites, officials said.

Arra said the melee began after a black inmate was stabbed outside the Ira Hayes Dormitory. The fighting escalated when whites on one side of an exercise yard charged

Judge backs parents' protest against books

GREENSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fundamentalist Christian children have the right not to read schoolbooks their parents find offensive, a federal judge ruled Friday in the case of seven families who objected to such texts as "The Wizard of Oz" and "The Diary of Anne Frank."

U.S. District Judge Thomas G. Hull, in a 27-page opinion, said the Hawkins County school board must accommodate the families' rights to a free, public education without violating their First Amendment rights to religious freedom.

He did not recommend a specific alternative, but said home schooling for reading class would be one.

Hull said he would convene a jury to decide damages in the case and set a tentative trial date for Dec. 15.

Within hours of the decision, the school board's Greenville attorney, Ronald Woods, filed a notice of appeal with the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, said court clerk Irene Keusling.

"This is a wonderful victory. We're ecstatic," said attorney Michael Farris, who represented the parents in their battle for an alternative to using the Holt, Rinehart, Winston series of reading books.

But Anthony Podesta, president of People for the American Way, which paid the fees for Timothy Dyk, the school system's attorney, called the ruling a "recipe for disaster for public education that will disrupt education for all children."

group of blacks on the other side. Guards brought the situation under control by firing tear gas into the yard, wooden bullets into the crowd and six rounds of shotgun blasts overhead, said Maj. Floyd Turner, the unit's security chief. Other guards on horseback kept the inmates from mingling.

"It was a pretty good fight going on," Turner said. "You had brooms and different weapons. Some of them had weapons, some of them didn't."

Turner said there was no apparent injury to inmates from the use of the football-size wooden bullets.

MIA status talks resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Vietnam have agreed to meet next week in the latest in a series of technical talks to explore ways of resolving the status of Americans missing from the Vietnam war, the Defense Department said Friday.

The round of talks had originally been scheduled to begin on Oct. 8 but was put off at the request of the Vietnamese government. No reason was ever given.

The Pentagon said Friday, however, it had now been informed the Vietnamese were ready to proceed with the session in Hanoi from Oct. 29 to Nov. 1.

"This will be the fourth meeting this year and the eighth since the Vietnamese agreed in March 1985 to increase the frequency of meetings to a minimum of six per year," a Pentagon statement said.

What's what

Facial hair on her upper lip gave a woman a sort of special charm about 150 years ago. Then, that light down was thought to be distinctively attractive.

Not everybody realizes there were libraries long before there were books. First, with clay tablets. Then, papyrus scrolls. Our Chief Frongicator expects two of our library to contain enough video cartridges to get you all the way through college without ever having to read a word on paper. That's good and bad.

Which deserves the harsher penalty -- killing somebody or injecting one's self with heroin? A woman served 18 months for manslaughter. Years later, she shot up on heroin and was sentenced to 10 years with no parole. "Next time," she said, "I'll kill my pucker so I'll go up as a murderer instead of a user."

SURVIVORS
Researchers looked at numerous disasters, manmade and natural, to learn why some people survived when others didn't. They found only one common denominator among the survivors -- a fierce determination to stay alive. They suspect this "will to live" is also the only common denominator among extremely elderly people, but they say many elders won't reveal enough hard data to prove the point. They're stubborn, say the researchers. Ah! Common denominator is stubbornness!

THE WORD 'I'
The poet Walt Whitman reacted peculiarly to the written word "I." Whenever he saw it in somebody else's writing, he stopped reading the piece.

Q. How many hairs are in one of my eyebrows?
A. About 550, if typical.

You know that original-wooden fence strengthened into an earthen wall that ran parallel to what's now New York City's Wall Street? It was supposed to keep livestock in and Indians out. But it didn't. It never kept anything in or out.

Where were you in 1870? That was the Year of the Beard. At its start, only 21 percent of the American men had beards or moustaches. At its end, more than 76 percent had beards or moustaches.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime can bring considerable problems if you are not objective in your reactions to others. Do what you can to build your health now.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): The situation at home may be somewhat tense. Your romantic life improves tonight. Be charming.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Plans for taking little trips could go away early. Later, all will straighten out for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Plan how to improve your monetary status, but don't take any risks doing this. Be with friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get personal situations straightened out in a positive way. Try to be less extravagant.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): If you try to get an outside contact together with a good friend the results will not be good.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Study your most intimate aims and know how to gain them in the near future. Diplomacy is important.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Use care in the handling of civic and world affairs. Show that you are a kind and generous person.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): You may find it hard to get in motion those ideas you think can be of help to you. Avoid a new contact.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be conscientious in handling promises you have made. Avoid making errors that could be costly.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You want to have more harmony with an associate who is troubled so postpone discussions now.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You may find it difficult to get work done or be of service to others, but tonight all changes for the better.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): A stumbling block in the path of recreation may spoil your plans, but take this in your stride.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will have every ability to handle whatever has to do with financial and property affairs. One who will need more rest in order to be able to think out plans before getting into best activities. Fields along merchandising lines will be fine here.

Syria blocks British access after diplomatic ties broken

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria closed its air space, ports and territorial waters to Britain on Friday after London broke diplomatic relations and charged Syria with sponsoring a plot to smuggle a bomb onto an Israeli plane at Heathrow airport.

The state-run television announced Syria's response. A senior official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the government flew one of Syria's national airlines to stop flying to Britain and was closing the British Council in Damascus, a British government-supported cultural center.

"He did not say when the airline would stop flights to Britain. Syria's Foreign Ministry gave British Ambassador Roger Tomkys, 18 other British diplomatic personnel at the British Council one week to leave Damascus, he said.

Britain said Syria's 22 diplomats in London had two weeks to leave.

Tomkys, who has been ambassador to Damascus since November 1984, told The Associated Press: "I feel sorry at the developments which led to the severing of diplomatic relations between the U.K. and Syria."

"I am not commenting on my government decision, but I do feel that it looks as if I have failed in my mission," he said. "The mission of an ambassador is to boost bilateral relations between two countries, this is why I feel very sorry now."

"It is a very sad occasion for me that has to leave this beautiful country, Syria, in which I stayed two years, and I enjoyed good relations and the best treatment and courtesy by Syrian officials," he said.

The Syrian official reiterated his government's denial of involvement, and said Britain's action in severing relations was unjustified.

The present British government, since it "took power" has made it permanent practice to launch hostile campaigns against Arab states and Third World countries," the official said.

"Recently, in full cooperation and coordination with the Zionist enemy, the British government has concentrated its campaign against the Arabs, and in particular against Syria," he said.

They accused Tomkys of being in the way of Israel's aggressive and expansionist policy in the Middle East," he said.

Syrian officials said the Foreign Ministry advised Tomkys that approximately 250 British citizens living in Syria would be protected despite the break in relations.

Syria broke relations with Britain in 1967 after the Arab-Israeli war, as it did with the United States and West Germany, accusing them of "collusion with Israel."

Relations between Damascus and London were restored, at Syria's initiative, in 1974. Relations with Washington and Bonn were resumed a few months later.

There was little immediate reaction from other Arab capitals Friday to Britain's action.

Iran's official news agency, monitored in Nicolas, called the Hindawi trial bizarre and said Britain's action was extreme. Syria, unlike most other Arab countries, has backed Persian Iran against Gulf Iraq in the 6-year-old Persian Gulf war.

After the British action, Canada summoned its ambassador home from Damascus for consultation. There was no immediate Syrian response.

Western diplomatic sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that at Britain's request, West Germany postponed a planned visit to Bonn by Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa.

Governments, guerrillas vow to join papal truce Monday

The Associated Press — Governments and guerrillas on three continents — Buddhists, Hindus and Moslems, as well as Christians — have pledged themselves to 24 hours of truce Monday, in observance of Pope John Paul II's declaration of a global day of peace.

But in most of the world's dozens of small wars, the papal appeal will be drowned out in the sound of endless conflict.

"We are fighting to liberate people from injustice. If we stopped fighting for a day, thousands of people would suffer more injustice," Paulo Oliveira, a Portuguese-based spokesman for Mozambique's anti-Marxist guerrillas, told The Associated Press in explaining why his movement would ignore the Roman Catholic pontiff's message.

On Monday, the pope will join more than 140 leaders of the world's great religions in praying for peace in an ecumenical service in Assisi, the Italian hill town that was home to St. Francis.

The pope first issued his appeal for a day free of political violence when he visited France earlier this month and summoned "all parties in conflict in the world" to observe "at least during the entire day of Oct. 27 a complete truce in the fighting."

The worldwide network of papal nuncios, working with national bishops' councils, quickly spread the word to government and military leaders, and — as best they could — to guerrilla and terrorist groups.

A recent AP survey found at least 43 nations currently at war, and by Friday a papal truce appeared possible in a half-dozen:

- The Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the main Contra movement fighting the Sandinista government, said it "has ordered all combatants to cease fire in position (Monday), with the aim of joining world prayers for peace."
- The Nicaraguan government did not immediately respond to the papal plea.
- In the Indian Ocean island nation of Sri Lanka, both the government, dominated by the Buddhist Sinhalese majority, and the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, a separatist army of Hindu Tamil militants, declared that they would observe a truce Monday.

- The Polisario movement, from its Algerian headquarters, announced its Marxist-led guerrillas would cease fire Monday in its war of independence against Morocco in the Moroccan-controlled territory of Western Sahara. The Moroccan government issued no statement.
- In Lebanon, where 11 years of sectarian-political conflict have taken more than 100,000 lives, Beirut's Maronite Christian archbishop met with leading Shiite and Sunni clergymen in west Beirut and said the Muslim hierarchy has declared that "a truce will be observed on all fronts in Lebanon Monday."
- The largest Christian militia said it would abide by the truce.
- Chile's Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front, a clandestine leftist group that claimed responsibility for the attempted assassination of President Augusto Pinochet on Sept. 7, said in telephone calls to news agencies that it would refrain from armed actions Monday.
- The papal nuncio in Bogota, Msgr. Angelo Acerbi, said Thursday the biggest of Colombia's guerrilla organizations, the Revolutionary Armed Forces, informed him it would abide by the truce. He said he received no immediate response from the Colombian government.
- But it was expected that the wars in Afghanistan, Cambodia, Ethiopia and Sudan, among others, would grind on Monday.

Gorbachev talks softly

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Friday that although the superpowers had missed a "unique chance" for arms control accords at the Reykjavik summit, it is still possible to reach agreement.

Speaking at a Kremlin dinner for visiting North Korean leader Kim Il Sung, Gorbachev said his meeting in Iceland with President Reagan "confirmed that the arms talks to be kept alive, and a maximum of political courage and good will displayed."

"It can only be regretted that in Reykjavik it has not proved possible to reach agreement," Gorbachev said. His remarks were carried by the official news agency Tass.

"Although a unique chance has been passed up, an agreement meeting the vital interests of the entire world community is attainable," Gorbachev said.

The Soviet Communist Party chief also accused Washington of trying to form an "Eastern NATO" with its military alliances with Japan and South Korea in Asia.

"Washington has thrust its nuclear systems like splinters deep into the body of our planet," the body of Mr. Gorbachev said. "All this has been done with one sinister aim, that of impeding social progress and turning the clock of history back."

Chile police seek suspects tied to attack

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Police are looking for about 40 suspects in the assassination attempt on President Augusto Pinochet in addition to the five already arrested, the prosecutor said Friday.

Lt. Col. Fernando Torres, the army prosecutor in charge of the case, said the initial arrests opened many "possibilities" in the investigation.

Pinochet's five-car motorcade was attacked with rockets, grenades and gunfire Sept. 7 as it headed toward Santiago from his weekend home in the nearby Andean foothills. Five bodyguards were killed and 11 wounded, but the 70-year-old army general suffered only a cut on his left hand.

Chief government spokesman Francisco Cuadra said Thursday night that police had arrested five men, aged 23 to 32. He said they were "direct participants" in the attack but that no formal charges against them have been announced.

He identified them as members of the Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front, a leftist guerrilla group that claimed responsibility for the assassination attempt.

Cuadra said in a brief written statement that all five fired M-16 rifles at Pinochet's motorcades and had admitted their involvement.

Another East German flees to west

HANOVER, West Germany (AP) — A 19-year-old worker from Communist East Germany escaped over the border to West Germany, border police said Friday.

The man made his escape to Lower Saxony state on Thursday, but authorities did not announce it until Friday. They gave no details except to say that he was unhurt.

It was the sixth escape from East to West in the past week and the 27th in the past 34 days.

Prosecutor admits to mixed emotions

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Cache County Attorney Lanny Gunnell said he finds himself with conflicting feelings of relief and sadness following the Thursday night arrest of Steven R. James in the slaying of Steven's 3-month-old son.

"There is a feeling of relief because we have moved to this stage and past the preliminary investigation phase," Gunnell said Friday. "There is also an ongoing sense of tragedy... because we had hoped to find the baby alive and a victim of kidnapping," as Mr. James had reported the incident to be."

James, 34, appeared briefly in Logan's 2nd Circuit Court Friday, and his arraignment was continued until Tuesday. He is being held in Cache County Jail without bail.

A few hours before his arrest, James was notified that the body of a baby found in the Bear River west of here Oct. 11, was Steven Roy James, the son James had told police was kidnapped from his car in Logan on Aug. 26.

"It will be an unpleasant case to prosecute because of the nature of the death, but we obviously feel we have sufficient evidence to move forward," Gunnell said.

Gunnell and Logan police have declined to discuss evidence in the case, but court documents alleged that Logan Police Department Crime Lab Director Kent Gianville successfully matched paint splatter stains found on the mattress cover the baby's body was wrapped in against similar stains found on a mattress cover in Preston, Idaho.

An affidavit filed with the court states that Don Lawhan had loaned the mattress cover to James when James moved from an apartment rented from Lawhan in Preston to an apartment in Logan.

The document said fibers in the two mattress fibers matched.

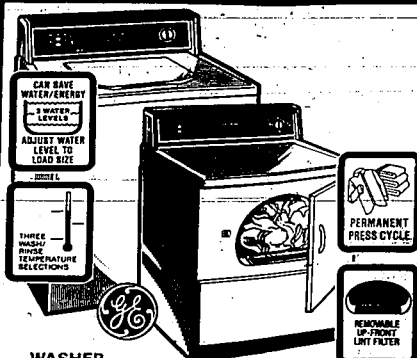

An autopsy by the state medical examiner's office classified the baby's death as a homicide, but the cause of death has not been released.

Private funeral services were being arranged by Victoria DeLeon, mother of the infant, and other family members.

Former county official enters plea of innocent

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Former Salt Lake County Attorney Ted Cannon pleaded innocent today to charges of forcible sexual abuse, sexual harassment, defamation, misuse of public funds and official misconduct.

Cannon, 55, appeared before presiding 3rd District Court Judge Scott Daniels two weeks after taking administrative leave with pay until his third term expires Dec. 31.

The embattled Cannon was charged Oct. 9 when a Salt Lake County grand jury handed up the indictments. He took leave the next day.

The indictments charge Cannon with one count each of forcible sexual abuse and sexual harassment of Shauna Clark and Debra Sauer, both employees in his office. He also is accused of defamation against a reporter and misuse of public moneys in his 1982 re-election campaign.

Special prosecutor Larry Keller declined to discuss evidence against the accused. "We don't intend to try this case in the press. We will present our evidence in court," he said.

Keller said that despite widespread media coverage, he believes Cannon can receive a fair trial.

Cannon's attorney, Robert Van Selver, offered a motion to consolidate the cases against Cannon. Daniels set an Oct. 31 hearing before 3rd District Judge David Doe.

The judge said Doe also would hear Van Selver's motions to quash the charges of misuse of public moneys and sexual harassment.

Attorney Van Selver said he did not believe sexual harassment was a statutory offense in Utah and contended there are defects, either constitutional or statutory, in several of the charges.

The attorney also questioned "the propriety" of the grand jury, saying, "Legally, it seems to me that they're less than articulating, actionable crimes."

He said his motion to consolidate is intended to simplify proceedings against his client.

Before the grand jury indictments, Clark filed a claim alleging that Cannon sexually harassed her by making low remarks and gestures, unwelcome physical contact and insinuating her employment could be jeopardized if she did not cooperate.

Clark later filed a notice of claim to file suit against the county. County officials have said she seeks about $140,000 in damages.

Pilot of sailplane victim of plunge

HEBER CITY, Utah (AP) — A sailplane pilot was killed when he bailed out over Deer Creek Reservoir and fell to his death when his parachute malfunctioned. Wasatch County sheriff's officers say.

Witnesses said the aircraft, which had left from the Heber Municipal Airport, went into a nosedive about 4:35 p.m. Thursday, said Deputy Glen Van Wagener.

The pilot jumped but his parachute did not open and he died upon impact with the water, Van Wagener said.

The victim's name was withheld pending notification of relatives, the sheriff's office said Friday.

Size means little to gritty Jerome

Crush Buhl on way to state playoffs

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

BUHL — Jerome High School senior Alan Leavitt, who stands 5-foot, 9-inches tall and weighs 140 pounds, was explaining how he and his like-sized teammates managed five shutouts this season.

"We've only played one team this year that was about our size," said Leavitt, who sacked Buhl High quarterback Casey Boyer three times Friday night as the Tigers claimed the District 4 Class A-2 football championship with a 20-0 victory over the Indians. "We've come to expect to play bigger teams. It's just a lot of pride and togetherness, plus a lot of help from the coaching staff — just a total effort."

The Tigers dominated the Indians' offense thoroughly to nail down their third consecutive trip to the state A-2 playoffs. Buhl finished the game with 102 yards total offense due largely to the 10 tackles-for-loss inflicted upon Boyer and four turnovers. Eric Beem, Buhl's leading rusher who has been sidelined with a virus, saw limited action, rushing for 18 yards.

"We've been outsize all year," explained Jerome Coach Joe Matle, who was the defensive coordinator on the Jerome High team that won the state A-2 championship last year. "That's nothing new. We just have a group of defensive players, like Alan Leavitt, who believe in themselves."

The win puts Jerome into a 1 p.m. contest in Preston next Saturday afternoon against the District 5 champion Indians. At 7-2, the third-ranked Tigers finished the regular season 2-0 in district, while Buhl — 5-4 overall — was 1-1.

The magnitude of Jerome's defensive performance overshadowed one of Buhl's best defensive games of the year. The Indians limited Jerome to 269 yards total offense, but a fair percentage of that real estate came after Buhl had turned the ball over in good field position. The Indians' defense kept Buhl in the game until the fourth quarter, by which time Boyer was forced to pass and in the crosshairs of Jerome's defenders.

The game began to shut down their running game and then put pressure on the quarterback," said Leavitt. "We felt we stopped their running game pretty early in the game, and they didn't do anything offensively that we didn't expect."

Jerome got on the scoreboard on its first possession, taking a Buhl punt at the 38 and piling the Indians deep in their own territory. A facemask penalty against the Indians moved the ball to the 18, but Buhl's Chad Montgomery sacked Jerome quarterback Mike Welch on second down and Jason Munroe and Rob Sparks hammered Jay Ostler for a loss on third down. Fred Gano's field goal from 33 yards made it 3-0 with 6:58 left in the first quarter.

Jerome's Mike Welch leaps high to get a hand on a pass intended for Buhl's Tony Yost. 42

Again the Indians got nowhere offensively, giving Jerome good field position again. The Tigers started from the Buhl 45, and on third-and-10 Ostler went into motion, sprinted down the right sideline and drilled under a Welch pass at the goal line to take a 9-0 lead with 4:29 left in the quarter.

Late in the second quarter, the Indians got into Jerome territory on a defensive pass interference penalty off a fake punt. But on second down, Boyer fumbled and Pat Hughes recovered, giving Jerome the ball at its own 41 with 2:17 left in the half.

On second-and-10, Jerome offensive coordinator Ben Allen put two wide receivers, s on the right to draw off an "defensive" back; then sent Ostler through the left side of the line on a misdirection play for a 24-yard gain. A facemask penalty on Buhl took the ball to the 20, and Ostler covered the remaining distance on the same play. Gano's PAT made it 10-0 at halftime.

The third quarter was a stalemate until Brandon Farris intercepted Boyer at the Jerome 45 on the last play of the period, after the Tigers moved to the 5 in six plays. Welch fumbled the ball away. Buhl was forced to punt from its end zone, and Ostler returned it to the 24. On the next play, he scooped up a fumble by Leavitt and sprinted into the end zone to make it 22-0 with 6:45 remaining in the game.

The Tigers' final score came after Dick Traugher intercepted a Boyer pass at the 50 and returned it to the Buhl 20. Five plays later, tight end Mike Aardema hauled in a 10-yard Welch pass in the corner of the end zone. Gano's kick was wide, and Jerome led 28-0.

Welch ended the game 14-for-20 in passing for 173 yards and two touchdowns. Ostler carried the ball 111 times for 101 yards and two touchdowns.

Bruins bomb Bees, 41-21

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Defensively the nose kept getting tighter and offensively things loosened up as the Twin Falls Bruins hammered past the Bonneville Bees 41-21 Friday night and within a victory of a 500 football season.

The Bruins, who got a great pitching-catching night from quarterback Joel Jund and wideout Nick Brunkow, can reach a break-even record when they host the Minco Spartans at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday in Bruin Stadium.

In posting their second victory after losing five straight, the Bruins had some early struggling. That largely came after a fumble on the first play of the game set up a Bonneville gimme six-points less than two minutes into the fray.

After twice falling behind by two touchdowns, however, the Bruins picked up a little heart with a late first-half score and then dominated the second half with four touchdowns.

The night was filled with happenstances, mostly favoring the Bruins. Not only did Twin Falls have its biggest offensive and passing game of the season, it benefited from five pass interference calls, four of which kept two scoring drives alive. The major swing may have come when Bonneville fumbled at the Bruin six when the scored favored Twin Falls 20-21.

But the major problem for Bonneville was it couldn't cover Brunkow, who started the season at runningback. He wound up catching 12 passes for 225 yards and one spectacular touchdown. Four of the interference calls were on Brunkow.

None of which surprised offensive coordinator Jon Jund, who, before the game, noted "Bonneville has had a lot of trouble with its defensive secondary and if we can get the time, we think we can throw for a lot of yards against them."

San Jund ended up with 17 completions in 32 attempts for 265 yards. Although Bonneville complained bitterly about the calls, Brunkow figured all the interferences against him were correct.

"The safety's kept trying to knock me out of bounds and the cornerback wasn't quick enough to cover me," he said.

Bruin Coach Bill Jones said "they were under our receivers and some of it had to be face guarding. They said the officials had killed them but we've played up there several times, too," he added.

The game was seconds old when Jund was sacked and fumbled, setting Bonneville up on the 17. Two plays later, Scott Charlton swept and for 14 yards and then tacked on the extra point. The Bees used up the end of the first quarter and two minutes of the second with a drive that culminated on a two-yard score.

Post-season hopes dashed for Filer

By BRAD BREALD
Times-News writer

FILER — All the talk about a three-way tie in the Canyon Conference and playoffs after the season came to a crashing halt Friday as the Glens Ferry Pilots upset Filer 13-12 in the final Canyon Conference game for both teams.

The loss puts the Wildcats out of the playoffs, and gives the Wendell Trojans the conference title. Wendell probably plays in Challis in the first round while Gooding will go to the Kibbie Dome in Moscow to play Grangeville.

"The victory for Glens Ferry was its first Canyon Conference win. A big win for first year Coach Dennis Uhl.

"We've been playing tough all year and we've never been out of a game," he said. "The averages finally evened out."

The game was almost a mirror of Thursday's game between Gooding and Wendell with the same upset result.

With the Senators and Trojans in the stands urging the Pilots on, Filer had a chance to put the game away in the final minute of play.

But Filer's Brad Gilbert grabbed his second interception of the game ending any hopes of post season play for the Wildcats.

It was a typical Glens Ferry game. We've always had trouble with them," said Filer Coach Wade Quesnell. "It could have gone either way."

After a scoreless first quarter, Filer got on the board when Jared Conrad skirted the left side on an 11-yard touchdown run. The extra point—kick—was wide to the left, a point that Filer could've used.

Glens Ferry answered moments later on a 67-yard run by Pat Gill, who outran the entire Wildcat secondary. Greg Marweld's extra point gave the Pilots a 7-6 lead at the half.

Mike Teater got the second touchdown for the Wildcats on a short one yard run and after Filer's run failed on the extra point attempt.

The momentum seemed to head the direction of the Wildcats as they stopped the Pilots on four downs from five yards away, but the Filer offense couldn't get on track and had to punt.

Glens Ferry worked the ball back down to the five-yard line and with a little under two minutes left, Pilot quarterback Brad Gilbert was found

Vandals' playoff hopes now on the line

By STEVE CRUMP

MOSCOW — Northern-Arizona University, the green ogma of the Big Sky Conference, comes calling at the Kibbie Dome for a football game tonight that will put either the Lumberjacks or the University of Idaho out of the race for the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

The Axers, now 4-3, suffered their first conference loss of the season last week, falling to Montana State 15-10 in the latest 1-AA poll, and faced a similar fate, losing to top-rated Nevada-Reno 17-13.

Big Sky Game of the Week

Northern Arizona vs. Idaho

The loser of tonight's game will find itself all alone in fourth place in the Big Sky standings. The NCAA traditionally takes the top two finishers from the Big Sky into the post-season playoffs.

"We're in a must-win situation for the next five weeks," said rookie Idaho Coach Keith Gilbertson, "and the conference; second in total defense, pass defense and pass offense and third in rushing defense.

"But the Lumberjacks are a notoriously weak team in the second half of the season. Partly as a result, NAU has had just four winning seasons since the school joined the Big Sky in 1970.

The Axers have won just once in the Kibbie Dome and have lost seven of the 10 games they have played against the Vandalls.

So why is Gilbertson worried? "They changed offensive coordinators and changed their style of play," said Gilbertson, who was the offensive coordinator last year on the Idaho team that beat NAU 27-7 in Flagstaff. "It's been a good change because they're really wide

Second-year NAU head Coach Larry Kentera, acting on a tip from Brigham Young University's LaVell Edwards, hired Brad Childress to take over the offense. Childress, a protege of University of Illinois head Coach Mike White and Indianapolis Colts head Coach "Rod" Dowhower, had been coaching the offensive line at Illinois.

Childress proceeded to bench quarterback Craig Austin, last year's Big Sky newcomer of the year, and replace him with redshirt freshman Brad Wyatt.

Wyatt has responded by completing 69 percent of his passes this season and he leads the Big Sky in passing yardage. In his last five games, Wyatt has averaged 300 yards through the air.

"Wyatt has thrown for over 1,500 yards in the last five games," said Gilbertson. "Obviously, the key to

Sklavos retains title with 9th round TKO

By RON GATES

JACKPOT — Carl Sklavos of Twin Falls retained his United States flyweight professional karate title Friday by administering challenger Randy Ford a severe beating en route to a ninth-round technical knockout as the featured card here.

Neither man went down in the fight until a spinning heel kick put Ford down early in the final round.

Sensing the kill, Sklavos ended the bout at 1:20 of the ninth round with a punishing combination that brought not one, but two towels flying from the blue corner.

He did tonight exactly what he trained to do, said Sklavos' trainer Tom Gabbert. "This guy (Ford) had never gone seven rounds before. We wanted to go six at a fast pace with a lot of punishment. Carl finished great. There was no place for Ford to go. He had taken that punishment."

The illusive and efficient champion scored early and often in the bout. But each time Sklavos made a hard shot, Ford rallied. Those flurries made the challenger appear more in contention as indicated by his standing on the judges' scorecards.

The knockout, Sklavos' fourth in compiling a 1-2 record, silenced critics of that knockout percentage.

"I really didn't come on 'til the sixth round," Sklavos said. "After a third, he started to lose steam and I caught him with a spinning hook kick in the fourth and I knew I could hit him with it. I kept using it, and in the ninth, it brought his elbows down. He was expecting me to go to the body but I hooked over his shoulder and caught him in the face."

The next fight for Sklavos would be against a class with world title holder Jerry Clarke, according to Sklavos' manager Karen Turner.

"That would probably be held in the Twin Falls Sheraton. After that, he would probably go to the convention center in Jackpot, which would be too small. The likely site would be the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

The semi-main event — another professional match-up — lasted just over three minutes. Rich Washington, the Colorado state champion at 170 pounds, put Albuquerque, N.M., fighter Mike Winklejohn on the canvas with a side kick at the midpoint of the opening round. But Winklejohn caught Washington right on the button with a front ball kick then finished the bigger Washington with a left hook.

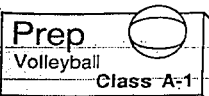

Twin Falls' two entrants in the amateur portion of the card triumphed in the featherweight division. Steve Jar. staged a kick-

Madison, Sandpoint in finals Northern teams dominate

TWIN FALLS — The Madison Bobcats surprised both the Twin Falls Bruins and the Coeur d'Alene Vikings here Friday to advance in the only volleyball tournament, joining the Sandpoint Bulldogs as the two unbeaten teams headed into today's final round.

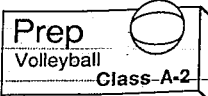

The Bobcats stunned the Gem State Conference, co-champion Bruins 18-16, 4-15, 15-8, in the first match for both teams. The first game seemed to have opposite effects for both teams as the Bruins came out of the grueling game ready to put any Madison upset plans to rest.

Twin Falls jumped out to a 13-4 lead, then coasted to their 15-4 victory on a Dana Robertson smash — but the crushing by Twin Falls only seemed to pump new blood into the tired Madison veins. The Bobcats exploded in the third game, leading 7-1 behind the hands of Wendy Hendricks. Twin Falls came back on three straight scores by Shawn Kaba but Hendricks wouldn't let the Bruins win at any cost.

on a Christy Stemberge ace. Sandpoint, which is seeking its fifth straight state A-1 championship, had no trouble with the two teams it faced, beating Pocotello 15-10, 16-6 and Nampa 15-14, 15-4. Tiffany Downing led the Bulldogs to victory in both matches with some ailing net play and Jackie Peterson supported with some terrific serving, scoring three aces in the victory over Nampa.

Action begins today at 9 a.m. in Twin Falls, losers to Nampa in the opening round, taking on Pocotello. Twin Falls will play Meridian, upset victims of the Vikings, following the first game.

TWIN FALLS — The northern part of the state dominated the state A-2 tournament here in the first round Friday with the Lakeland Hawks and the St. Maries Lumberjacks advancing with unbeaten records.

St. Maries dominated a tough Valluue team 15-4 in the first game of their match, but had trouble with the Falcons in the second, finally holding them off for a 15-12 win to end a seven-game losing streak.

The Falcons shot out to a 4-0 lead but saw their lead diminish after the Lumberjacks came back behind the play of Sherri Thormalen. St. Maries tied the score at 10, and then Thormalen came through again by smashing one past the Falcon front line for the win.

Earlier in the day, the Falcons beat Lakeland 15-12, 15-12, 15-13 behind the brilliant serving of Linda Voris who served three aces in each game.

Wood River did their moments, though. After seasawing with the Falcons throughout the second game, the Wolverines came within Bernhagen smashes before Kris Rivera and Co. took the win away with some outstanding defense.

"We didn't do the things we should have," said Wood River head coach Dave Neumann. "We'll just have to come back tomorrow and do them."

St. Maries defeated American Falls 15-5, 15-7 earlier in the day also.

Lakeland built their flawless tournament record by defeating Preston 15-10, 12-15, 15-11 and Salmon 15-13, 17-15.

The Hawks took the lead early in the first game of their match with Salmon and never lost on their way to victory — but the second game wasn't so easy.

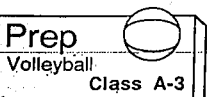

Lakeland trailed in the second game until they tied it at six and took the lead on a Kim Blisk ace. The fiery Savages tied the score at 14, though, before Jami Schneider served an ace to win the match for the Hawks.

Today's action will resume at 9 a.m. today in the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

Kimberly and Gooding to square off

By The Times-News

BLACKFOOT — It'll be an all Fourth-District and/or Canyon Conference semifinal in the state girls A-3 volleyball tournament this afternoon.

Kimberly and Gooding, who have fought it out four times already this year, will collide at 3:30 p.m. with the winner advancing to the championship game Saturday night. The loser should be assured of nothing less than third place.

Kimberly knocked off Laywell 15-4, 15-6 and followed by defeating Challis 15-8, 15-11 to gain its semifinal berth. Gooding hammered past Malad 15-9, 14-16, 15-1 and then handled Homedale 15-8, 15-3 in its two outings.

Carrie Bradshaw provided a tougher than the scores indicated. Kimberly Coach Jean Emerson said, "It was just a great day of good teamwork. All they played good teamwork ball today. These girls want it pretty badly."

Neither coach was all that thrilled about the results. "It was a fifth time. Gooding won the first match and Kimberly took the next three, counting the semifinal and finals in the district tournament," Emerson said.

"It's just a case of having to beat them again," said Emerson. "They are a very good team and we respect them."

Gooding coach Jerry Toone might be a motivator for her Seniors but said, "Kimberly just plays very well. We'll need all the motivation we can get."

MV in cross-country trophy hunt

KELLOGG — If everything goes well Saturday, Magic Valley could take some impressive trophies out of the Idaho state Class A and B cross-country championships here.

Jerome figures to be in at least a three-way team for the boys Class B title. The Tiger girls will be battling Kuna for the girls B crown and the Twin Falls girls could finish among the top three in the Class A division. Magic Valley doesn't have a team competing in the Class A boys division.

Individually, Jerome senior Laura Jensen will be seeking to regain the title she earned as a sophomore but gave up in a third-place finish last fall. Jerome's Glenn Leavitt is the best hope for the area boys. Class B boys honor, but that will require Leavitt's best time to accomplish.

In the A division, Twin Falls Junior Jenny Hannah, who has steadily been improving through the season, may be strong enough to challenge co-favored Jenny Reese of Coeur d'Alene and Borah freeman Michelle Brown.

Saturday's races will be held over the Pinehurst Golf Course at Kellogg with the B girls leading off at 2 p.m. MDT and the other following in progression until the A boys leave for the hills which is better than our second man."

coaches' minds is what kind of a course is Pinehurst.

"We have heard it is pretty good," says Coach Tim Dunne of Jerome. "And the other thing is the accuracy of the 3,000 meter course."

"Until you run on the same course, you really can't compare individuals," Dunne continued.

For instance, he notes "Kellogg had two boys running 16:32 and 16:54 in their district finals up there last which is some bit ahead of our best (Glenn Leavitt) and then they had two in the 17:20s which is about with our best. Their fifth was last which is better than our second man."

beating Northern Arizona is slowing him down."

Most teams that have slowed him down heretofore have done it by intercepting his passes. Wyatt has surrendered a league-high 15-picks, and NAU tops the league in turnovers.

That comes as good news to the Vandals' defense which had its problems containing UNR a week ago. Middle linebacker Tom Hennessy, the heart and soul of the Idaho defense, is suffering from a pinched nerve in his shoulder that limited his playing time last week. Defensive tackle Charlie Porter sprained his ankle in that game and won't play Saturday; backup cornerback Oswald James has a leg injury and won't play either. Defensive end Dave Parker, who didn't play last week because of a pulled hamstring muscle, isn't 100 percent yet.

Although returning starter Mark Schlereth, who missed three weeks with a knee injury, has returned, Idaho defensive coordinator Kent Beer and elected to go with a smaller, quicker front to his 4-3 defense.

But at that point the Jund-Brunko connection checked for two long passes and then a 10-yarder that set up a one-yard run for Rick Harder. Fodd Embertson ran out of the hole for a two-point conversion that made it 13-8.

Bonneville rebounded immediately, a 50-yard pass to Mike Bennett getting most of it and the payoff coming on Charlton's 12-yard run Clayton threw to Bennett for the two-point conversion and 15-14 lead.

Then came a major turning point. Harder returned the ensuing kickoff up the middle to the 44-yard line and Jund immediately threw to Brunko for 16 yards. Two minor penalties and a nine-yarder did not appear to have stymied the drive but Brunko popped open for another 23-yard reception and a first down.

On the next play he juggled the ball out of the end zone to miss a touchdown but seconds later made an over-the-head catch with one foot perhaps two inches from the line for the Bruins' second score.

Bonneville gave up the "gimme" touchdown by fumbling the ball to linebacker Brent Knapp on the second play of the third quarter. A penalty off Al Kant by decision and Hy Tran in the light weighter class. The latter one on a two round TKO as his opponent twice fell short on the eight-kick-per-round rule.

just short for Charlton, Twin Falls uncoupled its 80-yard march and moved ahead for the first time on Harder's three-yard run. Hill converted.

The second major play came as the last quarter opened when Jund again fumbled when being sacked at midfield. Bonneville, with Charlton hitting for 14 and a 15-yard penalty forcing assessed against Twin Falls, moved to the Bruin 20. At that point Clayton almost broke a quarterback sneak into the end zone but fumbled when hit at the six.

That was Bonneville's last look at daylight in the game. Hill rolled 33 yards from there in 12 plays, the first two first downs coming on major penalties. On third and 10 at the 25, Twin Falls looked to the tight end for the first time all night — and there was Rick Horner wide open for a 25-yard scoring play.

Seconds after the kickoff, Alex LeCloux picked off a pass and returned it 51 yards to the Bce 22. Mike Barnes burst off tackle for 16 on the first play and two plays after that Harder swept end for the last five yards.

Mets brimming with confidence as they prepare for No. 6

By JOHN NELSON
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Boston Red Sox have got the New York Mets right where the Mets want them.

Down 3-2 in the best-of-seven World Series, the Mets feel happy just to have brought the Series back to Shea Stadium, especially after losing the first two games here.

"We're not going to Boston, we feel like we had to win two out of three," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said during Friday's off day. "When you win the first two, you want to sweep, but we are right where we wanted to be going into Boston."

One thing was for sure from Boston's perspective.

"Now, we've got the homecourt advantage off our backs," Red Sox center fielder Dwight Gooden said.

The Red Sox won the first two games of the Series 1-0 and 9-3 in New York. The Mets won the next two games in Boston, 7-1 and 6-2, before the Red Sox came up with a 4-2 victory Thursday night to break the deadlock and move within one game of their first World Series title in 68 years.

"They have to feel that they've got us where they want us," Henderson said of the Mets. "They're down a game and they have to win. We feel the same way. We're right where we want to be — a game up and Roger (Clemens) on the mound."

In Saturday night's Game 6, the Red Sox will send 24-game winner Clemens against the Mets' left-hander Bo Joda.

With a loss, there were some ghosts exorcised from old Fenway Park in Game 5. The Red Sox have not won a World Series title since 1918 when Babe Ruth still played for them — and have lost three seven-game Series since, in 1946, '67 and '75. In the last of those two Series, the final-game loss came at Fenway.

Then there was also the infamous Boston Massacre of 1978 when the Red Sox were swept at home in a crucial four-game series with the New York Yankees in September, finished tied for the American League East regular-season lead, then lost a one-game playoff to the Yanks at Fenway on Bucky Dent's homer.

"We keep saying this over and over, and we've said it all along," Red Sox Manager John McNamara said. "That was going to do with us. We're different bunch of guys."

In Game 6, the Red Sox will give a well-rested Clemens going against former teammate Ojeda. Clemens will be pitching on five days' rest after working three straight times over three days' rest. When pitching on five days' rest this season Clemens was 8-0 with a 2.12 ERA — including the game he struck out 20 Seattle batters in April.

Through some pitching adjustments that may have cost the Red Sox Game 4 of this Series, Manager John McNamara got both Bruce Hurst, the Game 5 winner, and Clemens back on a regular schedule. McNamara started Al Nipper, who hadn't been used since Oct. 4, in the fourth game. He lasted only six innings.

His last time out on three days' rest, Clemens went just 4 1-3 innings in Game 2 last Sunday.

"There was no brilliance to it. There was really no alternative," Henderson said. "We found out that Bruce doesn't pitch well on three days' rest, and Roger was tired. He'd pitched three times on three days' rest. The Roger Clemens you saw last Sunday was not the Roger Clemens we saw all year long. We had the luxury of being able to make the move when we jumped out 2-0."

Clemens said Thursday he was sure and doesn't like a lot of things with that ballpark, he said.

In Game 2 against Clemens last week, Johnson started Danny Heep in left field instead of Mookie Wilson and Howard Johnson at third instead of Ray Knight. Johnson said he planned to have Wilson and Knight in the starting lineup this time.

"We hadn't been scoring a lot of runs, so I shook my lineup up," Johnson said. "I've been doing that all year long. Occasionally I would start those two — Heep and Johnson. But by and large the team I play Saturday is the one I played most of the time."

Ojeda, traded from Boston to New York last November, will be working on just three days' rest, one short of his normal complement. Johnson was not sure what the effect would be.

"Ojeda's not come back on three days' rest," Johnson said. "I don't know what he's done the rest of his career. I don't know how he'll react."

Last time out, the 18-game winner Ojeda worked seven innings, holding the Red Sox to one run on five hits in Game 3.

"I've got to win. It's as simple as that," Ojeda said. "I'm not uncomfortable with this situation. I would rather be in this situation that doing something else. We just have to pull together and get a team effort. We know we have to win two games. We've done it before."

Obviously, the Mets were not ready to concede the Red Sox the visiting field advantage.

"I'm not the least-bit concerned about what has already happened," Ojeda said. "Once a game is over, it's dead and gone regardless of the outcome, and you just go get them the next day."

"After the first two games, a lot of people didn't think we'd be playing on Saturday. Speculation is your job. We have to play the game and talk about it after it's over. We are down 3-2 and it's very obvious what we have to do — win two games."

If there is a seventh game, the Mets will send Ron Darling on three days' rest against the Red Sox's

Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd. Darling was the winner of Game 4, working seven scoreless innings, while Boyd lost Game 5, giving up six runs on nine hits in seven innings.

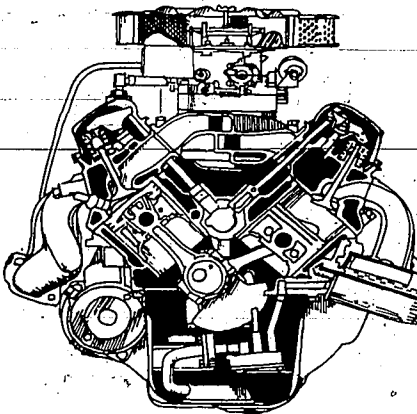

"It's going to be a dog fight," said Mets third baseman Ray Knight. "Anyone can win two games. We didn't come to Boston expecting to sweep, but we put ourselves back into it. I still feel our chances are great."

Bama-Penn match tops college action

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

Alabama and Penn State are fourth and fifth on the all-time major-college victory list with 622 and 610, respectively, and they will be second and sixth in the national rankings when they tangle Saturday in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

For a rivalry that is only eight games old, although it dates back to the 1959 Liberty Bowl, this series is loaded with national championship significance.

Second-ranked Alabama leads the series 5-3 and won the 1978 national championship by defeating No. 1 Penn State 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl. In 1982, Penn State won the crown despite a 42-21 loss to Alabama. At the time, it was the worst beating suffered by a team that eventually won the national title.

Last season, Penn State won 19-17 and went on to play for the national championship, losing to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Now, says Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, "We have a good football team (the Nittany Lions are 6-0) playing against a good football team (Alabama is 7-0). One team will find out if it is a great team."

There are two other games between members of the Associated Press Top Twenty — seventh-ranked Auburn at No. 13 Mississippi State at night and No. 16 Clemson at No. 20 North Carolina State.

Top-ranked Miami, Fla. is idle while No. 3 Nebraska visits Colorado. Fourth-ranked Michigan plays at Indiana and No. 5 Oklahoma is at Iowa State. Round out the Top Ten, eighth-ranked Washington entertains Oregon; No. 9 Arizona State hosts Utah at night and No. 10 Texas A&M is at home against Rice.

In the second tier, No. 11 Iowa entertains Northwestern, North Carolina visits No. 12 LSU in a night game, No. 14 Arkansas is at Houston under the lights, California at No. 15 Arizona after dark, Washington State at No. 16 UCLA, No. 18 Southern Methodist at Texas and Southern California at No. 19 Stanford.

Penn State-Alabama pairs two of the nation's six undefeated-united teams.

"We don't have anything to prove, Alabama doesn't have anything to prove," says Paterno. "These are two solid teams on the verge of being great."

There will be very few games played this year where you will see so many good athletes at one time. This is probably the quickest football team we've had. We run better on defense than any team I've had, and the backs are quicker than most people think.

"Both teams have experience. Both teams are better than last year. We're better, maybe a lot better than last year."
"If we get beat it will be because Alabama has a better team than we do. It's a meaningful game and will enhance any national hopes we have if we win it."

Alabama's Ray Perkins, who succeeded Bear Bryant after the 1982 season, says Penn State could be the best football team we've played since I've been here and could be the best football team Joe Paterno has had at Penn State.

"I don't know if I will agree with that, but of the Penn State teams we have played the last three years they are certainly head and shoulders above the others."

He points out that the Nittany Lions play by 17 fifth-year seniors, 15 of whom play key roles.

"In other words, if you beat them, that's just what you have to do — you have to line up and beat them. These guys have played together for a long time. The main mark that makes Penn State a great football team, and the thing that separates them from other teams, is that they don't do a lot of things that lose ballgames."

The Lions are tied for sixth nationally in turnover margin. They have taken the ball from the opposition 21 times (nine fumbles, 12 interceptions) while giving it away 13 times (eight fumbles, five interceptions). Alabama isn't far behind with 19 takeaways, 14 giveaways.

Nebraska has won its last 18 meetings with Colorado but Coach Tom Osborne is concerned about the Buffs' wishbone, which ranks 12th nationally in rushing with 255.5 yards a game.

"If you make one mistake, you give up the big play," he says.

The Sooners are 23-0-1 against the Cyclones since 1961 but Coach Barry Switzer says his team's hard-fought 19-0 victory over Oklahoma State in which the Sooners' sixth-ranked offense couldn't score a touchdown "shows that a favorite's role doesn't mean that much."

Export sag hits 420 counties

By DON KENDALL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sagging exports of major farm commodities have hit hard in 420 counties where those crops account for more than half of local agricultural sales, an Agriculture Department analyst said Friday.

Judith Sommer of the department's Economic Research Service said the counties "are the regions most vulnerable to the decreasing demand for U.S. farm exports." The counties are located in 31 states but are concentrated in the Corn Belt and Mississippi Delta.

The 420 counties were identified from 1982 Census Bureau reports and represent one of every six non-metropolitan counties in the nation, she said. In each of the counties, sales of five "export oriented" crops — corn, wheat, soybeans, cotton and rice — accounted for at least 50 percent of total agricultural sales.

"Therefore," she said, "such counties can usually be considered export-dependent."

Mrs. Sommer's analysis was included in a draft of a report scheduled for publication soon in the agency's Farmline magazine. Advance copies were released by the department.

The impact of reduced exports on the farm economy has been a sore point among Reagan administration officials and on Capitol Hill for years. After rising to a record value of $43.8 billion in 1980-81, sales tumbled to a nine-year low of $26.5 billion in the fiscal year that ended on Sept. 30.

Although administration officials see an upturn in the quantity of farm shipments in 1988-89, lower prices — triggered in part by reduced government price supports for farmers — are expected to keep downward pressure on total export value.

Exports have become a political issue in parts of the Farm Belt, where the administration has been accused of dragging its feet on programs to boost exports, including subsidies to make U.S. commodities more competitive in the world market.

Although Mrs. Sommer's report did not discuss the overall export situation nor its policy implications, she made clear the importance of export declines in areas where the major crops are dominant.

"When farmers are in trouble, there's not much else to fall back on in many of these areas," she said. "The community's entire economy may be based on farm commodities with erratic or depressed sales, and farmers don't really have other non-farm alternatives. In these places, the non-farm businesses count the troubled farmers as their largest and most important customers."

For example, Mrs. Sommer said that in Quitman County, Miss., nearly all of the 1982 sales of farm commodities were from export-oriented crops, primarily cotton and soybeans. But for other export-dependent counties, especially those near larger towns and cities, a drop in farm income can be cushioned by off-farm jobs.

In Grundy County, Ill., sales of corn and soybeans accounted for 90 percent of 1982 farm marketings of crops and livestock. But Grundy County is "located on the fringe of the Chicago metropolitan area, and roughly a third of its workers are employed in manufacturing jobs," she said.

Weak demand and low prices hurt all farmers, not just those in remote rural areas or in counties cited as dependent on exports, Mrs. Sommer said.

"When so many farmers in one area are producing export-oriented crops, a lot of them will be hurt, and that will have a negative, multiplier effect on their community," she said.

Dow declines amid takeover reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed out an erratic week with a slight decline Friday in a session dominated by takeover news and speculation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 0.67 to 2,813.50, finishing the week with a net loss of 4.78 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 137.48 million shares, down from 150.94 million Thursday.

Analysts said the market was still getting some benefit from Thursday's news of a bigger-than-expected rise of 4.9 percent last month in new orders for durable goods.

The report stirred hopes that the pace of business activity in general, and the competitive position of U.S. manufacturers in world markets, were beginning to improve.

Another plus for stocks was the calm reception the bond market gave Thursday to the evidence of strengthening business conditions.

But interest rates turned upward Friday, pushing prices of long-term government bonds down as much as $5 for every $1,000 in face value. And brokers said many traders remain ed skeptical about the staying power of the stock market's recent advance, from its September lows.

Transworld Corp. jumped 4 1/2 to 39 1/2. The company said interests associated with Ronald Penzell, chief executive of Revlon Cosmetics, had acquired about 15 percent of its common stock.

Goodyear, which said it was considering a possible restructuring, gained 1 1/2 to 44 1/2. AT&T picked up 1 to 58 1/2. The company said it knew of no reason for the activity, attributing it to "speculation."

Allied Stores led the active list, down 3/4 at 66 1/2. Campbell Corp. of Toronto said it had bought 25.80 million Allied shares, giving it majority ownership of the company.

Texasco gained 1/4 to 38 1/2 and Pennzoil fell 3/4 to 67 1/2 amid rumors that the two companies might be close to settling a long-standing legal dispute. Pennzoil said no talks were being held on the subject.

Pandick dropped 1/4 to 13 1/2. Late Thursday the company reported sharply lower earnings for its latest fiscal quarter.

Schlumberger fell 1 to 32 1/2. The company posted a loss for the third quarter of $41.93 million.

Exxon was unchanged at 66 1/2. The company reported a net profit of $1.4 billion for the third quarter, up from $1.33 billion in the like period a year ago.

"In the overall rally on the Big Board, declining issues outnumbered advances by about 7 to 5, with 847 down, 629 up and 438 unchanged. The exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped 4 1/2 to 137.28."

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 194.58 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 1.22 to 254.49, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 1.02 at 238.25.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market rose 48 to 356.68. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 262.32, down 21.

Texas Air to purchase People Express

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Air Corp. said it would buy Eastern Airlines, was government approval Friday to buy People Express, signaling an end to a low-cost airline that attracted millions of budget travelers and pioneered no-frills flying.

The Transportation Department east aside complaints that the $298 million transaction posed competitive problems in markets between Denver and New York and concluded the merger "would not substantially reduce competition in any market."

Instead, the department said swift approval of the acquisition of People Express, which is based in Newark, N.J., was necessary because of the no-frills airline's "extremely precarious financial condition."

The department had given the merger its tentative approval Oct. 14 after People Express said it needed Texas Air's help as soon as possible because it didn't have enough cash to pay its bills, including a pending $13.4 million interest payment.

People Express said at the time it had been brought to the brink of bankruptcy by a dismayingly poor turnout of customers during September, when half of the airline's available seats were unused.

Texas Air a week ago forwarded the Newark-based air carrier $10 million to help make the interest payment.

Founded in early 1981, People Express thrived and grew rapidly with the simple premise of keeping fares low. Flying routes that other airlines largely ignored and offering passengers low fares, its revenues grew and so did its executives' ambitions.

Under its founder, chairman Donald Burr, People Express began to directly challenge the larger, major air carriers which had enough money to buy the lower fares and still provide full services.

Seeking to expand, People Express bought two struggling commuters — Brit Airways and Provincetown-Boston Airlines — and then purchased Denver-based Frontier Airlines with the goal of extending its no-frills services deep into the West.

In 1985, People Express lost $27.5 million. In the first half of this year losses skyrocketed to nearly $133 million. In June it announced it was prepared to sell its Frontier subsidiary, but a deal with United Airlines fell through and Frontier filed for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws in late August.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"It is pleasurable, when winds disturb the waves of a great sea, to gaze out from land upon the great trials of another."
— Lucretius

Give today's North-South hands to a friend to play at four spades and he will very likely go down. Most declarers will not realize the dangers involved and will therefore miss the best play.

West led the club king and shifted to the heart 10, dummy winning the ace. The trump 10 was pushed through East for a losing finesse, and another heart came back to knock out dummy's king. South then led a trump to his ace in hopes of a break, but it was not to be. South now had to lose the high trump and a heart trick to East's queen, and the game went one down.

The game makes easily if South gives up on a possible overtrick, playing his trump ace instead of finessing. The diamonds are started and West ruffs the third round to knock out dummy's last heart stopper. On the fourth round of diamonds, South discards his heart loser while West ruffs, but the defenders fail to enjoy a heart trick.

To avoid the dangers in play, one must first realize that they exist. It never hurts to take that second look to check for unexpected hurdles.

ANSWER: Two spades. A sound raise to two spades, but not enough strength or trump length for a jump to three spades.
