White layer blankets Idaho as November storms roll in Season's first snow produces icy roads, cold temperatures

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Winter weather was settling over Magic Valley Friday, with the forecast calling for continued snow storms through the weekend.

William Galkin of the National Weather Service office in Kimberly said the snow will be accompanied by continued cold, including lows in the 20s at night and daytime highs of 35 to 40 degrees today and Sunday.

Snow depths of up to a foot at higher elevations brought an encouragement to skiers and skiers for at least a Thanksgiving opening for most areas.

Pomerelle reported 24 inches of snow at the resort chateau Friday night after about 48 hours of continuous snow. Equipment was packing ski slopes for an approaching opening and snow plows were working on the resort road Friday afternoon.

Officials at the U.S. Forest Service office in Twin Falls said Gale Summit, north of Sun Valley, had 5 to 8 inches of snow, but Couch Summit, north of Fairfield, received only 2 inches.

Hailey, Ketchum and Fairfield had light snow Friday, but it was melting on the ground as it fell.

snow continued throughout the day and had built up to an inch in some areas, although roads and streets remained only wet.

Idaho State Police officers said the storm had suddenly turned highways into dangerous condition because of freezing snow and continued storm conditions throughout the district by 9 p.m. Numerous minor accidents and slide-offs were reported.

State Department of Highways sanding trucks were being called out and officers warned early morning travel was expected to be hazardous. The interstate into Utah and Eastern Idaho and other highways and roads at higher elevations were covered with snow and ice late Friday.

Galkin said that this year's first snowfall Friday was two days ahead of the first major snowstorm of 1988.

"Last year we had our first heavy storm on Nov. 9," Galkin said, "and it stayed on the ground all the rest of the winter."

He said there is another storm behind the one that spread snow over the valley Friday, and said winter seems to be moving into the area.

Heavy amounts of snow also fell over northern Utah mountains and northern Nevada on Thursday and Friday.

Storm blows snow over Plains states

By LINDA WEINSTEIN
The Associated Press

Much of the nation received its first taste of winter as a storm moving out of the Rockies struck the Plains states Friday.

The storm dumped about a foot and a half of snow in parts of Montana and the Dakotas and caused one death.

A separate storm spread rain and snow across the Pacific Northwest, with 15 inches of snow falling over Oakridge, Ore., in the mountains east of Eugene and a foot at Timberline, Ore. Snowplows hit the roads in Crater Lake National Park.

"I think winter's here," said police Officer Steve Ferneu in Crawford, Neb., where 3 inches of snow fell Friday morning.

Hunters were advised to postpone trips in North Dakota, where forecasters said snow accumulations could reach 15 inches and winds of up to 40 mph were expected to produce wind chills of 20 to 40 below zero today.

In northwestern Minnesota, where wind chills of 30 below were forecast, the weather service advised hunters and other travelers to carry winter survival gear this weekend.

The storm began Thursday in the Colorado Rockies and spread snow northward into Wyoming and Montana and eastward into Nebraska and the Dakotas. As much as 16 inches fell in Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park, while a foot of snow blanketed Moskee, Wyo., the National Weather Service reported.

Northeastern Wyoming residents were told to expect more snow from the second storm heading their way from the Pacific Northwest, and the weather service said there could be 20 inches on the ground by Saturday.

Gusts of up to 30 mph were reducing visibility to several yards, making driving hazardous, and the University of Wyoming Cowboys were preparing to play Saturday's game against Texas Tech in Paso under extreme conditions.

"Winds during the game will be from the north at 10-20 mph with wind chill temperatures near zero," said weather service meteorologist Scott Metzger.

In South Dakota, 17 inches of snow fell in Deerfield by Friday afternoon, and a foot of snow was on the ground in the towns of Hill City, Lead, Deadwood, Spearfish and Sturgis. Classes in several towns were canceled or curtailed.

Snow also fell to the west, with Alta, Utah, reporting 18 inches on the ground, and Tooele, Utah, receiving 16 inches over two days.

In Montana, a foot-and-a-half of snow was reported at Red Lodge, but only 4 inches in Butte and Billings.

One person was killed in a weather-related accident Friday near Billings. The Highway Patrol said a car was passing another vehicle but failed to get back into lane because of the slushy conditions and slammed head-on into another car.

The storm forced authorities to close Interstate 90 between Moorcroft and Sundance, Wyo., for a time because of poor conditions. Most roads in western Montana were snow and ice packed Friday morning, and conditions were deteriorating in the eastern part of the state, with blow-

Peggy Say, sister of hostage Terry Anderson, still held in Lebanon, greets David Jacobsen in Washington on Friday

'Be cautious,' newsmen told

By JOAN MOWER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — David Jacobsen, back in America after 17 months in captivity, received a hero's welcome at the White House Friday and then warned that speculation over U.S. dealings to free remaining hostages in Lebanon could cause their death.

Jacobsen, 35, went to the White House for a private meeting with President Reagan shortly after the freed hostage and his family arrived from Wiesbaden, West Germany on a military transport plane.

Jacobsen, released in Beirut last Sunday, said the continuing captivity of other Americans in Lebanon made his joy at being home bitter-sweet. "My happiness is tempered by the fact that some of those closest to me in this entire world are still held captive," he said.

Jacobsen bristled when reporters pressed Reagan about reports that the United States has shipped spare military parts to Iran in exchange for freedom of American hostages in Lebanon.

"In the name of God, will you please just be responsible and back off," the visibly irritated former hostage said, coming to the president's defense after reporters shouted questions at the pair in the Rose Garden.

"Unreasonable speculation on your part can endanger their lives," he said, referring to the American hostages. "Simple speculation ... can cause the death" of the men.

Reagan refused to comment when asked whether he would release spare parts to Iran to secure freedom for other Americans.

"There is no way that we can

Canada imposes duty on corn from America

The Associated Press

TORONTO — Canada imposed a duty of more than $1 per bushel on American-fed corn imports Friday following complaints that U.S. farm subsidies are creating low prices Canadian farmers cannot compete with.

The federal Revenue Department in Ottawa said the duty, $1.047 in U.S. currency, was intended to put prices of imported American feed corn on par with that grown by Canadian farmers.

It said that Canadian growers have seen a significant drop in prices and that it was "satisfied that there was a reasonable indication that the subsidized imports of grain-corn caused material injury to the production in Canada of like goods."

The department said the Oct. 31 cash price for U.S. No. 2 grade grain corn was $1.57 a bushel in U.S. currency, reflecting a 99-cent farm program subsidy. It did not give the Canadian price for the same grade. The Canadian move follows the

Oct. 16 Washington decision to impose a 15 percent duty on Canadian softwood lumber, causing strong protests from Ottawa.

But Canadian government spokesman Denis Comeau told The Associated Press there was no relationship between the two decisions.

"The two are simply not linked. This decision was based on the merits of the evidence presented," he said.

The tariffs nevertheless set back efforts by the two countries to negotiate a comprehensive free-trade treaty, an initiative proposed by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney to President Reagan last year and begun in May 1986.

In Washington, Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng said he was "astonished and dismayed" by the Canadian action, and denied U.S. corn exports to Canada are subsidized.

"In the classic definition, an export subsidy means that a lower price is offered to foreign buyers

Flag may have flown in 1812 war

The Associated Press

SHELburne, Mass. — A flag tucked away in an attic for years may be the same Stars and Stripes townspeople believe was the first flown over an American schoolhouse on the eve of the War of 1812.

Thomas Davenport doesn't know how the 16-star flag came into his family, but he too believes the legend that has floated in the community for years and has been inscribed in a monument on the hill where the flag allegedly flew.

"It's been pretty well publicized and nobody's disputed it as far as I know," he said Friday.

Legend has it that a flag was hoisted over a Catamount Hill schoolhouse in 1812 by local Democrats and Republicans who supported the war against British navy fleets seizing American merchant ships.

Local Federalists, sympathizing with Boston merchants who said the war would hurt their profits, took down the flag.

The flag was said to be designed by Amasa Shippee and made by his relatives Rhoda and Lois Shippee, Sophia Willis, Sally Hale and other wives of the small settlement along Catamount Hill, now a state park.

Amasa Shippee designed the banner because, as a settler, he was one of the few people who had traveled outside the area and knew what a flag looked like, Davenport said.

The flag was given 16 stars although there were 18 states at the time. "Shippee was a little behind," Davenport said.

New jobs hold unemployment line

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — About a third of a million new jobs were created last month to keep up with a growing labor force and maintain unemployment at 7 percent, but most of them were either part-time or in government, the Labor Department said Friday.

Civilian employment in October, as measured by a survey of 59,500 households, rose by 349,000 jobs to 110,240,000, or 60.8 percent of the nation's adult non-military population.

But 228,000 of the new jobs were part-time, either because of slack business conditions or because those were the only openings that people wanting to work full-time could find, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

"Almost all of the job gains occurred among women and teen-agers, a good deal of it in part-time jobs," BLS Commissioner Janet L. Norwood told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress.

"The number of persons ... who wanted full-time work but had to settle for part-time jobs was 5.8 million in October, a rather high number for this stage of a recovery."

Also keeping the unemployment rate flat in October was a rise in the labor force of 260,000, the first monthly increase since June. Labor force growth had halted over the summer, enabling the jobless rate to fall to 6.9 percent and 6.8 percent in July and August, respectively, before climbing back to 7 percent in September, where it has hovered most of the past year.

Meanwhile, an increase of 600,000 in the number of voluntary part-time workers over the past 12 months, to 14.3 million in October, indicates that more women and teen-agers are taking jobs to help families.

In a separate survey of business and government payrolls, employers added 256,000 jobs in October. However, 600,000 of them were in retail trade where part-time employment is concentrated and 60,000 of the new jobs were in government.

Altogether, 8,242,000 workers were listed as "officially" unemployed last month. That is a decrease of 87,000 from September but still well above the 8,027,000 officially unemployed in August. The official numbers also do not include nearly 1.2 million so-called "discouraged workers" who have given up searching for jobs out of belief that none is available for them.

Manufacturing employment increased by 27,000 in October, according to the payroll survey, after declining by more than 190,000 from January through September.
Among adult men, the unemployment rate held steady at 6.2 percent.

Briefly

Shultz defends U.S. stance

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday that not negotiating with terrorists is the right policy for the United States, but he refused to say if that policy was abandoned in some of the recent U.S. hostages in Lebanon.
"The White House is in charge of the executive branch and they have issued a statement that all statements will be handled by the White House and that's why I cannot comment," Shultz told reporters on his Air Force plane as he returned to Washington.

Fed won't ease money policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Officials at the Federal Reserve decided against any further easing of monetary policy at a meeting in September, according to minutes of the meeting released Friday.
The action by the central bank to hold monetary policy unchanged followed a period in which the bank had aggressively pushed interest rates lower in an attempt to jolt a sluggish economy into higher growth.
On Aug. 20, the Federal Reserve slashed its discount rate for the fourth time this year, dropping it to 5.5 percent. A reduction in the discount rate, the interest the Fed charges to loan money to banks, is the most dramatic of the central bank can take to signal its intention of pushing interest rates lower.

Plant workers contaminated

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) - About 60 workers at the Hanford nuclear reservation's Plutonium Finishing Plant were tested for radiation contamination after four workers were contaminated with plutonium and americium, officials said Friday.
The hands of the four workers were contaminated Thursday afternoon as well as the face of one worker, said Rockwell Hanford spokesman Mark Musolf.
Officials do not know how the workers were contaminated, or why they weren't wearing protective gear in contaminated areas.
An investigation is under way, Musolf said. He said the workers suffered no ill effects from the incident.
Surveys of 60 other workers were conducted as a precaution.

Springsteen records on air

NEW YORK (AP) - Radio listeners on Friday got their first authorized taste of a long-awaited feat — a 40-song set of Bruce Springsteen's epic live performance that's born to run turntables ragged once it hits the stores on Monday.
Record stores braced for, well, a record demand for "Bruce Springsteen & The E Street Band Live-1975-85." It is the first authorized live album by an artist whose concerts are legendary, and whose popularity soared with his most recent album, "Born in the U.S.A."

...ing snow limiting visibility and temperatures expected to drop into the teens overnight.
In the Black Hills, a teen-ager deer-hunting with his father was lost for six hours before he walked into the north end of the Red River valley Thursday, said Weston County Undersheriff Steve Nestor. Nathan Ramiker, 15, of Eau Claire, Wis., was unhurt, the officer said.
In North Dakota, Saturday's semi-frozen state high school football playoffs were postponed because of forecasts of as much as 15 inches of snow in some parts of the state. The games will be played Tuesday.
A mixture of rain, sleet and snow fell in northern Minnesota, where a winter storm watch was posted for Friday night and Saturday and 6 more inches of snow was expected.
"It's snowing quite hard now at the north end of the Red River valley," Bill Torgstad, a weather service meteorologist in Minneapolis, said Friday afternoon.
Winter storm warnings were posted Friday afternoon for northern Wyoming and the eastern and western and central sections of the Dakotas, where up to a foot of snow had already fallen in the Black Hills. Freezing rain and sleet were mixed with snow in some areas, making conditions even more hazardous.

Winter storm watches were issued for Friday night and Saturday for eastern Montana, the eastern Dakotas, north-central Nebraska and northwestern Minnesota. Northerly winds of 20 mph to 35 mph could cause near-blizzard conditions in parts of the Dakotas, the weather service said.
Hazardous road conditions also prompted the weather service to post travelers' advisories over portions of central Wyoming, eastern Montana, the northern and central mountains of Colorado, the New Mexico mountains and the Nebraska Panhandle.

...answer the questions having anything to do with it without contact with the people that we are trying to rescue," he said.
As to reports that Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger were disturbed about the administration's alleged negotiations with terrorists, Reagan said, "We have all been working together."
Jacobsen, a native of Huntington Beach, Calif., said Friday was "a day of joy for me. I have my children inside and I want to share it with them and I want Terry Anderson to share the same joy with his family and I want Tom Sutherland to share the joy with his family."
Anderson, 39, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, and Thomas Sutherland, 55, dean of the agriculture school at the American University in Beirut, were kept in the same room with Jacobsen for most of his captivity.
"They must be freed," he said. "There is no cause, no political goal which can justify holding these innocent men captive."
Their captors are believed to be members of the Islamic Jihad, a group of pro-Iranian Shiite Muslims. Four other American men, including one of Jacobsen's close friends, Joseph Ciccioppo, also are missing in Lebanon; but three of them may be held by other groups, and the other may be dead.

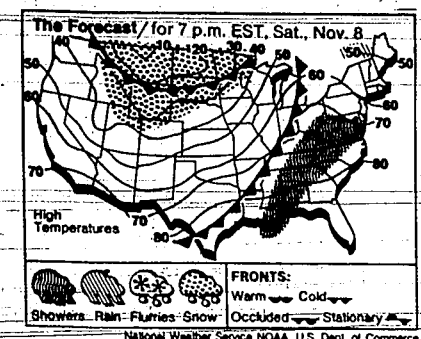

welcomed at Andrews Air Force Base by a State Department delegation that included Michael Armacost, an secretary for political affairs. Also on hand to greet Jacobsen were American University board members, including Najeb Halaby, the father of Queen Noor of Jordan.
Accompanying Jacobsen on the 11-hour flight were three of his six children and their spouses. Dressed in a charcoal suit, the freed hostage made a few remarks, including an appeal for peace in Lebanon.

"The bloodshed has gone on far too long," he said. "Too many innocent lives have been lost... The time has come to end this tragedy..."
Then Jacobsen walked over to a small group, spotted Peggy Saye Anderson's sister, and embraced her. The two held each other as they talked for several moments.

...than to domestic buyers," Lyng said. "This is simply not true in this case. The price-for-U.S. corn is the same for Canadian buyers as for our own."
Moreover, he said in a statement, U.S. farm programs have not helped corn exports to Canada. Corn exports to Canada were as high as 650,000 metric tons, about 25.6 million bushels, but have dropped to between 250,000 and 400,000 tons in recent years.
Lyng said the allegation by the Ontario Corn Growers' Association that Canadian producers are entitled to relief from the competition of U.S. corn is "completely unwarranted."
"Furthermore, the Canadian claim is inconsistent with recent efforts by both the United States and Canada to bring about freer and fairer trade," he said.
The corn investigation was based on complaints filed last May by the Ontario Corn Producers Association.
"U.S. farmers are expected to ship about 20 million bushels of feed corn to Canada in 1986."
Canada's 40,000 corn growers are mostly in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec and their harvest is worth about $500 million, or $360 million U.S., annually. It is almost entirely animal feed and corn sweeteners.
The Canadian farmers claim they are losing $1 million, or $720,000 U.S., a day because of cheaper imported U.S. corn.

Risch says he can work with Andrus

BOISE (AP) — Things will be different next year when leaders of the Idaho Legislature sit down to negotiate with Idaho's new governor, says Senate President Pro Tem James Risch.

In fact, Risch said Friday, he's already met with governor-elect Cecil D. Andrus and agreed that the election is over; the time has come to set partisan politics aside and work on state problems.

"The voters have spoken, now it's time to do what is right for Idaho," said Risch, who was interviewed for the weekend KTVB "Viewpoint" program.

Risch said he and other legislative leaders "continuously and consistently" butted heads in Gov. John Evans, and negotiations always turned into confrontations.

But he said he expects to be able to negotiate with Andrus, "the give and take necessary to reach a consensus."

"I can say I can work with Cecil Andrus. In the next four years, things will be dramatically different than they have been in the past," he said. Risch, however, indicated that he'll disagree sharply with Andrus on at least one point.

If Idaho adopts the new federal income tax laws without changing state tax brackets, the state will receive a lot of new tax revenue. Andrus has suggested that, saying the money is needed for education and other programs.

Risch said Idaho should adopt the federal tax laws, because if it does not, it will create a paperwork nightmare for Idaho industry, forced to keep separate records for state and federal tax returns.

"My thought is that we need to take Idaho income tax rates down to make the changes revenue neutral," he said. "Then we can start from there. If someone wants a tax increase, we will talk about it."

In other areas, Risch said:

- It appears obvious that more money is needed for Idaho's industrial development efforts through the Department of Commerce. But he said the Legislature will want some changes in the way the agency is run.
- The right-to-work law will doubtless weaken organizations such as the Idaho Education Association, but it may be a positive change. He said the law will make the teacher organization more responsive to its members. And Risch said he would suggest that the IEA become less political and work more toward improvements in education.

He would expect the governor to appoint a five-member state lottery commission in 30 to 60 days. Risch said Idaho voters enacted a lottery law by initiative, and it will remain a law unless overturned by a court.

Until and unless that happens, the governor should go about the business of setting up the lottery, as required by the law, he said.

When all the bills are paid, Risch said it appears he will have spent close to $100,000 in his re-election campaign against Democrat Larry La Rocco, by far the most expensive legislative campaign ever staged in Idaho.

"That's really almost like running a congressional race, because of the number of people involved," he said. Risch's "floating" district covers all of Ada County's 175,000 residents.

"We had more than 1,000 contributors. Apparently, people were happy with the way things are being done in the Senate," he said.

Pocatello buys a brick

POCATELLO (AP) — The city of Boise's project to revitalize its downtown is $20 richer, thanks to the Pocatello City Council.

Despite some ribbing and threats of possible retribution, the council on Thursday unanimously approved Mayor Dick Finlayson's gesture of good will to purchase a "brick" in downtown Boise.

The brick, which will be identified as Pocatello's, will be placed in a downtown plaza area now under construction.

The project, being promoted statewide by Boise Mayor Dirk Kempthorne, is designed to help the capital city raise money for the $1,800-square-foot plaza located at Eighth and Grove streets.

"I do this reluctantly, but also in a spirit of cooperation," Council President Earl Pond said.

Group pushes buying of Idaho holiday gifts

BOISE (AP) — With chilly weather warming up shoppers for the upcoming Christmas season, the newly organized Buy-Idaho Inc. group is gearing up its "Shop Idaho For Christmas" campaign.

Buy-Idaho Inc. is a group of more than 50 companies statewide that is promoting Idaho products and services. It officially launched its program during a news conference at the Boise Gallery of Art on Thursday.

The group views the Christmas season as an ideal time to encourage shoppers to purchase gifts in the Gem State. Instead of buying in adjoining states or on the West Coast, said Buy-Idaho vice president Bruce Belcher of B-B-W Advertising in Boise.

"The group would like to see at least 25 percent more retail shopping dollars spent in the state during the holidays," Belcher said.

Although the state tried a similar promotion in the past, group officials say their organization will be more successful. They say more businesses have joined because it is sponsored by the private sector and not subject to changes in funding.

"We're trying to stem the retail leakage out of the state," Belcher said.

About 20,000 two-sided tent cards emblazoned with a Christmas wreath surrounding the Shop Idaho. For Christmas message will be distributed to retailers, banks and others before Christmas, Belcher said.

The group also is encouraging consumers to buy products made in Idaho. It has designed a logo depicting "Buy Idaho" on a mountain backdrop and an "A Product Of Idaho" label that member companies can use.

Aging activist slams Gem State

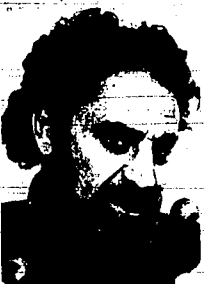

MOSCOW (AP) — Aging activist Abbie Hoffman calls urine tests the loyalty oaths of the Gem State and says apartheid is giving the United States a 1980s version of anti-war protests that helped make him famous two decades ago.

Hoffman, who turns 50 this month, spoke Thursday at the University of Idaho and worked slams against the Gem State into a campus news conference.

He said he was "old enough to remember when Idaho was only known for its potatoes. Now it's known for potatoes, nuclear waste and right-wing fascists," the last item a reference to recent bombings that authorities have blamed on white supremacists.

Hoffman praised efforts on college campuses to rid South Africa-related investments from schools' portfolios, and said that the country is caught up in "anti-drug hysteria that goes beyond truth and justice."

"Urine tests don't tell whether you can slam dunk or do your job," he said. "In the 1950s, we had communism and loyalty oaths. In the 1980s, we have urine tests."

Nevadans file claim over police search

BOISE (AP) — A Las Vegas, Nev., family that was searched by police in Boise in connection with a murder investigation has filed tort claims totaling $1.5 million against the city and the state of Idaho.

Boise attorney Bill Tway filed the claims Thursday on behalf of Sam Lewis, his wife Vallean and their 26-month-old son Ryan.

Police responded Sept. 10 to a bulletin on a suspect in a Mountain Home shooting death, stopping the Lewises' motor home in a case of mistaken identity. The family was on its way through Idaho on vacation.

Lewis and his wife said they were terrorized by Boise police after their motor home was stopped on Interstate 84. Police officials investigated the case, but have refused to release its results. Idaho State Police officers assisted Boise police on the stop.

Boise Police Chief Jim Montgomery and the city of Boise are suing The Idaho Statesman and KTVB Channel 7 over their requests for the reports. The Statesman and KTVB said the records were public and open to inspection under Idaho law.

A tort claim is the first step toward filing a suit against a government entity in Idaho. The city and state will have 90 days from Thursday to respond to the claim, Tway said.

Barry Donesley, attorney for the state Department of Law Enforcement, said he could not comment about the case until he saw it, and Boise City Attorney W.H. "Buz" Fawcett could not be reached for comment Thursday night.

Tway said he believes the Lewises' case could lead to changes in police procedures.

"Usually in a case like this it is being filed by someone who has been charged with a crime. These people are completely innocent," he said. "It is unfortunate it takes something like this to bring it to the public's attention."

Damages sought for Lewis include doctor bills, property damage to his motor home and other expenses, plus general damages for pain, suffering and emotional distress.

Mrs. Lewis' claim seeks damages for doctor bills, property damage to the motor home and damages for emotional distress, pain, suffering and humiliation.

The claim says the baby suffered general damages of emotional distress and "possible severe psychological damage," and seeks payment for his doctor bills.

Boise woman agrees to give up apartment

BOISE (AP) — An 80-year-old Boise woman being evicted from her home of 10 years by the Catholic nuns who manage the housing complex she was giving up her right to stay.

Ruth Kettlwig Paris said Thursday that she would move out of her townhouse as soon as she can find somewhere else to live. She got an eviction letter last month from Mercy Management Services in Denver, which is owned by the Sisters of Mercy order.

Ms. Paris said the notice was based unjustly on her age and health, and that her neighbors now want nothing to do with her because of fears they also will be evicted.

"Those nuns are not going to harass me anymore," Ms. Paris said. "I'm not wanted here now... I can't stand the feeling of not being liked, and people who used to be friendly to me now pass by without a hello."

The B.C. Street Station complex where she lives was built by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and is administered by Mercy Management Services. Ms. Paris said she has put her name on a waiting list for other government-subsidized housing because she lives on a $400 monthly pension.

She received the eviction letter two months after falling down the stairs of her townhouse and breaking her left arm.

Mary Jo Belg, an Idaho Legal Aid attorney whom Ms. Paris consulted, said she probably would win if she pursued the case.

"Legally, I don't feel Mercy Management has a claim to evict her," Ms. Belg said. "I've seen this type of thing happen before. Just the threat of eviction for low-income, handicapped or elderly people is enough to convince them to move."

Ms. Paris said personality conflicts between her and Sister Joan Martin, president of Mercy Management Services, led to the eviction. Sister Martin would not specifically comment on the case.

Men charged in shooting

BOISE (AP) — Two Mexican men have been charged with second-degree murder in the Oct. 28 shooting death of a rural Ada County man.

Carios Rodriguez Sandoval, 18, and Jorge Rivera Arredondo, 22, both farm workers living in Nampa, were charged in 4th District Magistrate Court on Thursday. An interpreter assisted the men. Neither speaks English and both are in the country illegally.

Rodriguez is accused of shooting Isabel B. Cuevas, 24, also a farm worker. Rivera is accused of asking Rodriguez to do the shooting. The complaint also charges the men with possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

The shooting occurred after a fight between Cuevas and Rivera. Cuevas died from a gunshot wound to the chest.

The men each are being held in the Ada County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond Thursday night. A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for Dec. 3.

Unemployment rate in Magic Valley drops to 5.8 percent

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — With the farms and food-processing industries taking in workers, unemployment in the Magic Valley dipped to 5.8 percent during October, the Idaho Department of Employment reported Friday.

Statewide, the rate was unchanged from September, leveling off at 6.4 percent. However, state figures again showed losses in the total labor force, as workers either left Idaho or stopped seeking jobs.

A large bank of jobs pushed down the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties during October. It was down 2 of a percentage point from September, said Lon McDonald, state job force analyst based at Twin Falls.

"Food processing was in full swing with both Green Giant and Universal (Frozen Foods at high levels of employment," he said. "Excellent weather also had a positive effect on the rate." The annual crop harvest also brought many agricultural workers into valley fields.

The full impact of the opening of the Magic Valley Mall will not be reflected until November figures, but the retail employment was about 200 jobs larger because of hirings by one anchor tenant, ShopKo Stores

Inc. September and October are the two biggest employment months in the year. If the figures were not adjusted for normal seasonal trends, the area's unemployment rate would have been even lower, at 4.4 percent, McDonald said.

Last month 35,650 workers were on the job in the three-county area, and 1,650 were unemployed, according to the state report.

Throughout Idaho, 400,100 workers had jobs, according to seasonally adjusted figures. With the numbers of unemployed at 27,200, the total work force was just over 427,000. But that level also was 2,300 lower than in September.

Idaho Employment Director Scott McDonald (no relation) said he expects little change. "The outlook for the remainder of 1986 is more of the same, with little change in the unemployment rate," he said.

McDonald credited good weather during October with holding the state rate steady, at 6 percent. Outdoor occupations such as construction, logging and farming were able to continue.

On the horizon is the recall of 350 workers at the Lamb Weston potato processing plant in American Falls and a doubling of the staff at the FMI operation in Pocatello. Offsetting those are an announcement that 110 workers at the Cyprus-Thompson Creek mine near Challis will be laid off in two months.

As the end of the year approaches, it appears average unemployment in Idaho during 1986 will remain below the 6.7 percent predicted by state officials late last year. The average for the first 10 months has been 6.4 percent, the same as during 1985.

Unemployment rates during October for the state's regions and the change from September are:

- Idaho — 6.4 percent, no change.
- Magic Valley — 5.8 percent, down 2 percent.
- Pocatello — 7.5 percent, down 2 percent.
- Idaho Falls — 4.7 percent, up 5 percent.

Voter turnout 67 percent

By PAT MARCANTONIO Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners on Friday completed canvassing votes from the Tuesday election and found nothing that would change any of the outcomes, Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said.

The total number of votes cast still was not available by Friday afternoon.

For two days, the commissioners scrutinized the "paper pack," or print-out sheets, from each of the voting machines.

After the polls closed, the election judges had added the number of votes from each machine used at a polling place to determine the total number of votes cast in each of the county's 44 precincts.

At their office, the commissioners reviewed the addition of the judges and the number of votes from each machine, Hempleman said. In some cases, election judges had mistaken numbers. For example, a "6" was read as an "8" or a "9" as a "1."

The commissioners determined the correct number by looking at the print-out sheets, of which there are five copies, he said. If the County Board couldn't make a determination from the sheets, it could have read the numbers from the machines, but that wasn't necessary.

After the May primary, Hempleman and County Clerk Dick Pence looked at the numbers on the print-out sheets but had been obscured by the printed names on the ballot, Hempleman said.

When the commissioners re-added, with the corrected numbers, the difference amounted to about 60 votes. In a few cases, Hempleman said, he couldn't recall in which race the mistakes were found, but none of them would affect the results, he said.

The official number of votes will be available on an abstract of the election being read by the clerk's office.

The abstract includes the number of votes for each candidate in each precinct, the total registered votes and total number of votes cast.

When completed on Monday, one copy of the abstract will be sent to the Secretary of State's Office and another will be kept at the county for review by the public.

Irrigation companies increase rates

By BOB FREUND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The price of water is rising for thousands of Magic Valley farmers and ranchers as irrigation companies try to shore up aging systems and, at the same time, offset higher costs for operations.

The Twin Falls Canal Co., which delivers water to 4,000 shareholders, is boosting its 1987 fees by almost 8 percent.

The Minidoka Irrigation District, which is almost as big at 3,000 shareholders, is adding 3 percent to its annual charges.

And a number of irrigation companies, which take power from federal dams on the Snake River are likely to pass along bigger electric bills from the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

Some of the area's water networks have managed to avoid a surge in their operating and maintenance fees.

The huge North Side Canal Co. of Jerome, which carries water from Milner Dam as far west as King Hill, has been able to hold fees to $10 per share of water, despite some pricey repairs to its system. Manager Ted Diehl said the 3,800-shareholder company is using savings from previous years to pay for some projects.

The Big Wood Canal Co. is charging the same operations and maintenance fee as in the past: two years, $11.75 a share, Manager Dick Onella said.

But costs of modernizing the long — and long-lived — canal systems, along with such rising costs as insurance and labor, are prompting companies to reluctantly ask farmers and ranchers for more cash.

"We are well aware of the condition of the farm economy at this time and have considered it in our deliberations," the Twin Falls Canal Co. Board of Directors said as it notified its shareholders.

The Twin Falls-based company is increasing its 1987 O & M fee by $1 a share, bringing it to $14. General Manager Jack Eakin said this week that crews must replace 50 aged and critically deteriorated "taps" that could punch holes in canal walls if they fall.

The company also is plagued by rapidly rising insurance costs: its primary carrier stopped insuring irrigation companies last year. Although Twin Falls Canal Co. was able to get a replacement policy, "We have to pay more for it, and this is not as good coverage," Eakin said. The new policy costs $200,000 a year, up from $40,000 in 1985.

A shift in personnel policy to hourly wages could add 7% percent in labor expenses alone, he said, and the company should replace some aging equipment. In the new budget — which approaches $3.4 million, Eakin sets aside less-reliable hydropower revenues for equipment purchases.

Sheri Chapman, executive director of the Idaho Water Users Association, found the Twin Falls finances to be representative of other Idaho water networks.

"In general, O & M charges all over the state have been increasing just because of the need to modernize some of the facilities and repair them, or bring them up to more efficient operating standards," he said.

The Minidoka Irrigation District paints a more unusual picture, having to ante up half of its planned 50-cent-per-acre increase for adjudication of Indian water rights, says Chairman Ross D. Newcomb of Rupert.

Future repair projects also loom. "We were running pretty close on the budget," he said Wednesday. "We felt a little increase now would be a little better than a big one later on."

But several Magic Valley irrigation districts this year must face sizable surges in power costs because of renovation of federal dams. Districts which rely on Bureau of Reclamation dams will be paying more for electricity for their pumps, said Max Van Den Berg, Minidoka Project superintendent.

A $1.6 million repair job at Anderson Ranch Dam and other costs have raised the price for the government power by 51 percent, according to his figures.

Water suppliers, such as A & B Irrigation District at Rupert and Burley Irrigation District at Burley, may have to pass along those costs to their customers. Boards of both systems meet next week.

The Milner Irrigation District, which serves 76 water users in the Murtaugh area, already has tacked up its O & M fees $2 an acre to $24.50 or $27.50, depending on the type of acreage, said Manager Jim Bright. A storage fee of $2.20 also is charged.

Bronaugh sworn-in as Bliss councilman

By TERRELL WILLIAMS Times-News correspondent

BLISS — Pat Bronaugh has been sworn in as a new city councilman in Bliss.

Mayor Roland Zolinger appointed him to replace Doug Andrews who moved to Wyoming.

Bronaugh has lived in Bliss about 14 years, working as a chef in Gooding and Bliss, a reporter for The Enterprise newspaper and as editor of the Glenns Ferry Pilot newspaper.

The new councilman said he is originally from Missouri, Arizona and California. His occupations have been a professional chef and supper club owner and a freelance writer.

"I moved to Bliss because it's a nice and peaceful little town," Bronaugh said, adding that he enjoys living in a rural area.

Now semi-retired, Bronaugh said he will work to encourage small businesses to locate in Bliss "and get things going again." The city, he said, is ideal for a small business because it is near the interstate and a railroad for transportation and the Snake River for recreation.

Bliss, he said, has no major problems to contend with right now.

"But we'd like more jobs around here," Bronaugh said.

Later this month, he plans to attend a two-day seminar in Boise on promotion of economic development of cities.

In other business, council members decided the city will have to start turning off water when bills are not paid. • See BLISS on Page A5

Big Wood stream flow request approved

By MARK PRATTEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Trout habitat in an 18-mile stretch of the Big Wood River will likely be protected soon, due to a recent decision by the state Department of Water Resources.

The department approved a request for a minimum stream flow of 70 cubic feet per second on a reach from Warm Springs Creek near Ketchum downstream to the Bellevue Canal Diversion. This amount of water is at the Halley gauge 99 percent of the time or more, according to DWR records.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department asked the DWR to file the application, which will have to be reviewed by the state Legislature.

"It's not necessary for the Legislature to say 'yes'; they just can't say 'no,'" said Norm Young, administrator of the DWR's resource administration division.

The DWR put a provision in the permit stating that it would not conflict with prior water rights.

The DWR has also filed an application, at Blaine County's request, which seeks to be the stream-flow to 200 cfs and extend the reach upstream to the Sawtooth National Recreation Area boundary. If this is approved, the entire stretch from the Bellevue Canal Diversion to the Sawtooth boundary will be 200 cfs.

The aim of the 200-cfs application is to protect the recreation values of the river.

At a public meeting in Halley last March nine people favored 200 cfs flow along a 27-mile stretch from the SNRA to Bellevue. Seven opposed the plan.

Much of the discussion at the meeting came from those opposed to the plan.

Because there was some question by F&G about the 70-cfs application conflicting with prior water rights and there were questions about the term of the permit, the DWR held up other stream-flow permits, including one at Minnie Mitter in the Thousand Springs area, Young said.

These issues could be applicable to other minimum stream-flows, he said.

Because part of the Big Wood application has been approved, the DWR has scheduled a Nov. 25 public hearing on a request for a 200 cfs year-round flow from the springs. The application was filed by the Darks and Recreation. The aim is to protect wildlife, aesthetics and recreation, said Young.

The hearing will be held at 1:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center in Hagerman, 140 Lake St.

Anyone who thinks a proposed water right would be injured by the permit should notify DWR five days in advance of the hearing of a desire to testify. People who want to testify in the public interest can do so on the day of the hearing.

Freedom of religion to rise, Soviet predicts

WASHINGTON (AP) — An international visit to meet U.S. political and religious leaders, said the Soviet Union probably will lead to greater freedom of religion, the Soviet official in charge of religious affairs said Wednesday.

Konstantin Kharchev, finishing a two-week visit to meet U.S. political and religious leaders, said the Soviet Union was in the process of reviewing its society, "bearing in mind the goal of democratization."

"I believe that this process will consist of and include 'the whole aspect of our religious life,' he said in an interview, speaking through an interpreter.

Kharchev, chairman of the Soviet Council on Religious Affairs, declined to specify how restrictions might be eased, but he mentioned "issues of the church and property" and "democratization of priests' activities."

Earlier, at a meeting with Jewish leaders in New York, he mentioned the religious education of children as a possible area of change.

Informed of Kharchev's remarks, Richard Schiffer, assistant secretary of state for human rights and humanitarian affairs, said there's been no evidence of any change in Soviet policy toward religious believers.

"In the last 18 months there has been a continuing policy of oppression in effect. There have been a lot of arrests and sentences of members of a whole variety of denominations," he said.

The Soviet Union is officially atheist, but it is forbidden outside churches, priests, ministers and rabbis, who are licensed by the state, are forbidden to teach the principles of their faith to groups of children. Parents, however, are permitted to tutor their children individually.

Kharchev's visit is sponsored by the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, an interfaith organization established in 1965 to promote religious freedom.

LDS employment on Court docket

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to hear two cases involving the right of the Mormon Church to employ only its own members in good standing at church-owned businesses.

The court did not accept jurisdiction Monday, but said, "Further consideration of the question of jurisdiction is postponed to the hearing of the cases on the merits."

An hour of oral argument is to be scheduled sometime after Jan. 1, a court spokesman said. Additional briefs will be filed by the parties on the merits.

In both cases, businesses owned by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints dismissed employees who did not possess temple recommendations, or permission to enter the faith's temples, which are closed to all but members in good standing.

Christine J. Amos, one of those fired, sued in U.S. District Court in Salt Lake City on behalf of several former employees of Desert Gymnasium and Beehive Clothing Mills.

Congress exempted religious organizations' religious activities from the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which bars employment decisions based on religion, among other considerations.

In 1972, Congress amended the 1964 law by deleting the word "religious," thereby exempting religious groups from that portion of the act in all of their activities.

U.S. District Judge David K. Winder ruled May 16 that the discharges were illegal and also said Congress acted unconstitutionally in removing the word "religious" from the act.

Amos had sued both the Corporation of the Presiding Bishop of the Mormon Church and the U.S. government, and the court consolidated the two cases.

Former U.S. Solicitor General Rex Lee is one of the attorneys representing the church in the case.

Give duties back, Catholics petition

SEATTLE (AP) — Thirty-five Seattle Catholics are asking that full authority be restored to Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen during next week's national bishops meeting.

Rev. Yakima Hays says he met last month with Pope John Paul II on Hunthausen's behalf.

Some of Hunthausen's duties were reassigned in early September to Auxiliary Bishop Donald Wuerl, a former Vatican official, following a two-year investigation ordered by the Vatican.

The Seattle Catholics, most of them priests, are associated with the archdiocesan central office, proposed in a 10-page letter that a measure restoring Hunthausen's power be introduced.

New AIDS virus heads for U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new AIDS virus found in Africa last year has been detected in Europe and will likely spread to the United States, a researcher said Friday.

"This virus is as dangerous as the first one," Dr. Luc Montagnier, of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, said in a telephone interview from Berlin. "It is very dangerous — no more, no less than the first one... It seems to be very similar to the classical AIDS virus."

During a Thursday speech to a meeting of the American Association of Blood Banks in San Francisco, Montagnier said: "We are just at the beginning of the spread of a new virus. It is unavoidable at some time that LAV-2 (the new AIDS virus) will reach the United States," although it hasn't so far.

The original AIDS virus was isolated in 1981 by Montagnier, who called it LAV-1, and by Dr. Robert C. Gallo of the National Cancer Institute, who called it HTLV-III.

Resistance vows to free POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-communist resistance leaders from three Southeast Asian nations pledged Friday to find and return any American prisoners of war still held captive in that part of the world.

Son Sann, prime minister of Kampuchea, joined military resistance leaders from Vietnam and Laos announcing they had ordered their forces to free any POWs still held in their respective nations.

Officials of the National Vietnam Veterans Coalition say they believe as many as 400 Vietnam-era military personnel are being held captive in the countries.

"I have put forward an executive order to our freedom fighters to search for our American friends," Sann told a news conference here.

Waldheim unit, roundup tied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly disclosed Nazi documents showed Friday that the World War II German army unit in which Austrian president Kurt Waldheim served was responsible for the deportation of 68,000 Yugoslavs to concentration camps, but a spokesman said Waldheim had nothing to do with that operation.

Spokesman Gerald Christian called the disclosure a "continuation of a campaign against Waldheim."

"He was neither responsible for such transports nor has he taken part in them," Christian said of Waldheim, the former secretary general of the United Nations.

The documents, labeled "secret," show that the quartermaster of the Waldheim's combat Group West Bosnia was assigned the duty of setting up collection points and transporting prisoners to camps.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before a private plane mistakenly landed on a taxiway and slammed into a commercial jetliner at the Tampa airport, two other pilots, concerned about poor visibility, decided against landing at the fog-shrouded airport, officials said Friday.

The pilot of the small Piper Apache, a veteran Eastern Airlines captain, was killed in the collision early Thursday and several of the 23 people aboard the Pan American World Airways Boeing 727, which was awaiting takeoff instructions, were slightly injured.

Investigators have yet to determine what led the pilot, William Bain, 56, a 21-year veteran at Eastern, to mistakenly land on the taxiway, which runs parallel and about 400 feet from the main runway.

Supremacists say politics behind case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leaders of three white supremacist groups, summoned to court Friday in connection with a 1983 triple cross burning, said the charges against them are unconstitutional and "politically motivated."

"It's a B-S case," said Tom Metzger, director of the White Aryan Resistance, at a court hearing Friday. He accused Los Angeles County District Attorney Ira Reiner of pressing charges out of animosity toward the groups' politics.

District attorney spokesman Al Albergate said Reiner wouldn't comment.

Also in court was Richard Butler, head of the Church of Jesus Christ Christian — (Aryan Nations), a Hayden Lake, Idaho, white supremacist organization.

Because some defendants and attorneys didn't show up, Municipal Court Judge Glenette Blackwell continued the hearing.

The defendants are charged with a variety of misdemeanors, including building an outdoor fire without a permit, unlawful assembly, disturbing the peace, rioting, inciting to riot, possessing billy clubs, wearing disguises during the commission of a crime, and conspiracy to commit those offenses.

Senators say negotiations a mistake

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's Republican and Democratic leaders said Friday the Reagan administration is making a mistake if it is negotiating with terrorists to trade arms for U.S. hostages held in Lebanon.

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said he believes a congressional investigation is in order "at an appropriate time" to learn if the such negotiations with Iran, a nation on the U.S. list of terrorist states.

Such an investigation "would determine if the administration acted properly or stepped over the line," Dole said.

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said at a separate appearance that he believes the new Democratic chairmen of the Senate Intelligence and Foreign Relations committees will open hearings into the situation when the 100th Congress convenes in January.

And Sen. Chalmorne Pell, D-R.I., who is scheduled to become chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee next year when the Democrats take control of the Senate, said, "I would imagine when Congress returns there will be some looking into this Iran venture."

But both Byrd and Dole said they have no problem with the administration talking to Iranian officials in an effort to win the release of the hostages. They said they object to actual negotiations or deals.

Complaining that the White House has so far not offered a briefing on exactly what has been going on, Byrd said that if news reports prove accurate, "I question whether it is a good idea to trade arms for hostages."

"I am concerned that we may be setting up a perpetual motion machine here where arms are traded for hostages and then more hostages are taken to be traded for more arms," Byrd said. "This can go on and on."

Reagan signs anti-porn bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday signed legislation strengthening federal law against child pornography.

The measure amends a section of law that prohibits the interstate transportation of children to engage in sexual activity for commercial purposes.

Under the new law, this ban will be extended to the production of child pornography for private use in addition to commercial distribution, which was already covered.

It also will apply to advertising or child pornography or advertisements that solicit adults or offer children to participate in making the material.

What's what

You know why the Prince of Wales keeps getting richer? Anytime an individual owner of property in Cornwall dies without leaving a will, the estate goes to the Prince. At last report, the Prince was collecting about 10 such estates a year.

It's a matter of record that ballet dancers tend to be heavy eaters.

TENSION
You know anything about tension? The renowned student of the mind Karl Jung claimed—"The most surprising element to make a happy marriage is tension." He said differences between a husband and wife generate it. This prevents lifelessness... What they do by creating tension... he said, in effect they keep going.

The Procrastinators Club of America once named a strip tease dancer as Woman of the Year, citing her "exceptional talent in putting things off." Almost cute.

In three-out of four cases filed in small-claims courts, the defendants give up without a fight.

WONDERS
What are the Seven Wonders of the Modern World? Numerous scientists so queried listed these: Telephone, automobile, X-ray, radio, television, airplane and nuclear power.

Moscow offers new proposal package

GENEVA (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators held a special plenary meeting Friday so the Moscow delegation could present a new package of proposals on nuclear arms reductions and offensive and defensive systems.

Séard A. Shevardnadze, the Soviet foreign minister, said Thursday in Vienna the proposals were based on the Kremlin position at last month's Reykjavik summit, which faltered over the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, the space defense plan commonly called "Star Wars."

The United States already has made proposals in Geneva that it says represent its position at the summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Chief Soviet negotiator Viktor Karpov smiled and waved at reporters as he was driven into and from the U.S. mission grounds for the meeting, but would not answer questions. The meeting lasted two hours, 25 minutes.

Max Kampelman, head of the American delegation, refused to meet with reporters waiting outside the mission.

The sixth round of arms talks, which started Sept. 18, is to end next week. U.S. and Soviet negotiators began meeting in Geneva in March 1985 on medium- and long-range, or strategic, weapons and space and defense systems.

U.S. officials had said they did not expect breakthroughs at the Friday meeting.

The Soviet package was expected to repeat the Soviet demand that limits be placed on Star Wars research before agreements can be reached in other areas. The United States has rejected that demand.

New American proposals include eliminating the medium-range missiles in Europe of both sides and allowing each 100 warheads deployed on its own territory.

This would require the United States to dismantle 108 Pershing 3 missiles in West Germany and 32 cruise launchers, with 120 warheads, in Britain, Italy and Belgium. The missiles were deployed by NATO.

The Soviets would have to dismantle 270 SS-20 missiles, with 810 warheads, aimed at Western Europe.

Washington's proposal on strategic weapons calls for a 50 percent cut in long-range bombers, intercontinental ballistic missiles and submarines within five years.

It would impose a ceiling of 1,600 strategic nuclear delivery vehicles on each side, with ballistic missiles and submarine-launched missiles limited to 600 and strategic bombers to 350.

The Soviets also propose a 50 percent cutback, with a different distribution.

Philippine army alert as coup rumors fly

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — V. Ramos, chief of the armed President Corazon Aquino said forces, ordered his subordinate the army was on full alert Friday commanders to "stop any but reports that disgruntled of "military adventurists" from acting against the government. The adviser, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the rumors were "causing concern" to discuss the reports of a plot among officials at the president's Defense Minister Juan T. Palace. Mrs. Aquino is in Manila, and government sources Monday said they met a few hours later. Military checkpoints were set up on several major roads, including J.P. Laurel Street outside said the latest coup speculation the presidential offices at gained credence when Gen. Fidel Malacanang Palace.

France says U.S. negotiated

PARIS (AP) — France believes the United States negotiated to free American hostages in Lebanon, the foreign minister said Friday.

Jean-Bernard Raimond, speaking to the Anglo-American Press Club, said he did not know the details of how hostages were released and said reports of U.S. arms sales to Iran were not discussed during a meeting earlier Friday with U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

But asked if he thought the United States negotiated with Iran to free American hostages, Raimond replied: "Everything allows us to believe that they in fact negotiated, I don't know by what means, but apparently they negotiated, even though they often said don't negotiate with terrorists."

Raimond noted with satisfaction that after the incessant criticism of France, "others now find themselves vulnerable, perhaps more vulnerable than us," Raimond said.

Newspapers in the United States and abroad reported this week that America may have made secret deals with Iran to buy with spare military parts freedom for three American hostages held captive in Lebanon: David Jacobsen, the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco and the Rev. Benjamin Weir. The United States has embargoed all arms sales to Iran since 1979.

Soviets denounce Star Wars again

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of soldiers marched across Red Square on Friday for the Revolution Day parade, the annual display of Soviet might which this year included posters denouncing the U.S. "Star Wars" program.

At a reception after the parade, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said the fear of war should be removed forever.

Defense Minister Sergei L. Sokolov missed the parade, the military's most important annual public observance. The 75-year-old official is rumored to be ill.

It was only the second time in Soviet history a defense minister missed the ceremony marking the anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution.

Sokolov's absence left the most junior of his three first deputy ministers, Gen. Pyotr G. Lushev, in view troops massed on the cobblestones of Red Square under a light snowfall.

Lushev stood ramrod straight in the back of a Zil convertible limousine to take the salute of the soldiers.

He then joined Gorbachev and Moscow-based members of the ruling Politburo on the revolving stand atop Lenin's mausoleum to give a 10-minute address in which he praised Gorbachev's stand at the Reykjavik summit with President Reagan.

"Only lack of readiness on the part of the American administration to reciprocate prevented the start of a real process of halting the nuclear arms race and lessening the threat of nuclear war," Lushev said.

Scattered among the thousands of posters and flags were slogans blaming Washington for failure to reach agreement at the Iceland summit and denouncing the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, or Star Wars program researching a space-based missile defense system.

The parade included tanks, missiles, other military hardware and veterans of the war in Afghanistan decorated for bravery fighting anti-government rebels.

As light snow gave way to hazy sunshine, thousands of youths flooded the square with a sea of red flags, shouting "hurrah!" in response to Revolution Day slogans beginning from loudspeakers.

Gorbachev moved to the edge of the platform to return waves and smiles from his daughter, Irina, and granddaughter, Oksana.

In the hour-long workers' parade that followed the military display, elaborate placards extolled greater-than-planned output for everything from robots to refrigerators.

Several "Uncle Sam" likenesses appeared, usually as a black-hatted villain brandishing missiles and promoting Star Wars.

U.S. entry draws complaints

LONDON (AP) — Halle Berry, representing the United States in the Miss World contest, drew gasps and complaints when she showed up at luncheon Friday wearing a star-spangled bikini.

"That's the skimpiest I have ever seen in my six years of Miss World," said master of ceremonies Peter Marshall.

Miss Berry wore a bikini, strands of beads and shooting stars for a parade of national costumes at a Variety Club luncheon. The 20-year-old from Cleveland, Ohio, said the costume by U.S. designer Dick Frank was supposed to show "America's advancement in space."

But other contestants in next week's pageant expressed outrage that Miss Berry was allowed to wear such a revealing outfit.

Soviets let 104 Jews leave

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union allowed 104 Soviet Jews to emigrate in October, down from the year's monthly high of 128 in September, the agency helping them resettle said Friday.

Twenty-three of the 104 went to Israel, according to the Intergovernmental Committee for Migration. The rest went to Italy to get visas for other countries.

So far this year, 765 Soviet Jews have left the Soviet Union, it said. In 1985 there were 1,140 Jewish emigrants compared to a record 51,330 in 1979.

Battleship in Mediterranean

SUEZ, Egypt (AP) — The USS Missouri, on whose deck the Japanese surrendered in 1945, steamed through the Suez Canal to the Mediterranean on Friday. The recommissioned battleship is on a world tour.

The Missouri was the eighth vessel in a 17-ship convoy that entered the canal at 9 a.m. It arrived Thursday afternoon off this port at the waterway's southern entrance.

This is the Missouri's first round-the-world voyage. The 45,000-ton battleship was launched in 1944, spent the rest of World War II in the Pacific and was the scene of the formal Japanese surrender on Sept. 2, 1945. It also saw duty during the Korean war in the 1950s.

Recorder salvaged

SUMBURGH, Shetland Islands (AP) — Divers working 300 feet below the surface Friday recovered the cockpit voice recorder of a helicopter that crashed into the North Sea, killing 45 people, a British government investigator said.

It may provide clues to the cause of the crash, the worst ever by a civilian helicopter. The twin-rotor Chinook was ferrying workers from a North Sea oil field Thursday.

It went down so quickly that the crew did not radio a distress signal. The two survivors among the 47 aboard still were in shock Friday and unable to explain what happened, a doctor said.

Chain-reaction crash blocks Utah interstate

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A tractor-trailer rig hauling hazardous materials rolled early Friday, triggering a chain reaction accident that left one man critically injured, the Utah Highway Patrol said.

The 5 a.m. accident, which involved the truck and five cars, closed northbound Interstate 15 and restricted southbound travel for several hours, the UHP said.

The truck driver, Douglas K. Beal, 60, of West Jordan, was trying to avoid a separate accident on an icy overpass when the vehicle jackknifed and rolled, pinning him beneath the cab, the UHP said. Beal, who suffered traumatic amputation of an arm, was in critical condition at LDS Hospital.

The truck was hauling two box-trailers containing a dozen 55-gallon drums of methanol diethylamine mixture, a potentially harmful corrosion inhibitor, and a wide assortment of other cargo, said Jeff Throckmorton of the Salt Lake City-County Health Department.

However, only a small amount of industrial lacquer spilled from ruptured containers, and a hazardous materials squad poured crushed clay on the pool and scooped it up with shovels, Throckmorton said.

"We were lucky," he said. "If the (methanol diethylamine mixture) had leaked, it would have posed a potential hazard."

The truck also contained a quantity of solid chemicals of an unknown type, but what little spilled was contained inside a trailer, Throckmorton said.

A UHP hazardous materials specialist and a hazardous materials squad from the Salt Lake City Fire Department cordoned the area, said UHP Trooper Larry Werhlim. There was no evacuation of surrounding homes and businesses.

Chopper crashes, 3 hurt

BILLINGS (AP) — A hospital treated for minor injuries and released from the hospital, while nurses Connie Stone and Doris Lindsay were hospitalized, said Larry McCann, Billings fire marshal.

Jennifer Smith, a spokeswoman for St. Vincent Hospital, said the helicopter was responding to a traffic accident north of Billings when the pilot began to have trouble with the aircraft. About one minute after it took off from the hospital, it crashed nose-first in a city park, she said.

The pilot, Tom Witten, was

LDS leader recovering well

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Ezra Taft Benson, making a solid recovery from surgery to implant a heart pacemaker, could be released from the hospital sometime over the weekend, church officials say.

Church spokesman Don LeFevre said that Benson, 87, was resting comfortably in LDS Hospital here late Friday, the day after the operation.

"He remains in satisfactory condition; is eating well today and continues to recover," he said of Benson, revered by the 6 million member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints as "prophet, seer and revelator."

LeFevre said that barring complications, Benson would be released to continue his recuperation at home "within a couple days."

"If he continues to progress as he has, then he'll probably leave the hospital sometime this weekend," he said.

The Thursday afternoon operation had been contemplated for some time to improve the function of Benson's heart, church officials said.

Idaho State could help Wolf Pack with win

By QUANE KENYON
Associated Press Writer

The University of Nevada-Reno can clinch its first Big Sky Conference football championship this weekend, but it will need some help from two Idaho teams.

The undefeated and No. 1-ranked Wolf Pack, with a nine-game winning streak, invades Bronco Stadium in Boise with a game against Boise State. The only team close to Reno, Northern Arizona, tries to keep its title hopes alive with a Big Sky game against Idaho State.

In other Big Sky games, Montana is at Weber State in a contest matching the two best teams in the conference, and Montana State is at Idaho.

Nevada-Reno has never won in Boise, due to a combination of what Coach Chris Ault

Pack will claim the league championship. If NAU wins or Reno loses to Boise, the Big Sky crown and the accompanying NCAA Division I-AA playoff slot will be decided the following weekend when Northern Arizona plays at Reno.

The Boise-Reno game will match Division I-AA's best offense against Boise State's league-leading defense.

Reno has been averaging 518 yards per game, and quarterback Eric Beavers has 21 touchdown passes. But Boise State has allowed only 243 yards per game en route to a 4-4 season, and has surrendered just two TD passes all season.

Ault acknowledges that his teams haven't played well at Boise, but says Saturday could be the turning point.

"One of these days, it's going to turn around, and this may be the time," he said.

About Boise State's swarming pass defense, which has produced numerous quarterback sacks against other teams, Ault said Beavers will have to be alert to pick up Boise's blitzes. "We have had great success against those teams," he said.

Boise State has lost its last two games, mainly due to a sputtering offense. Idaho State, meanwhile, hasn't beaten anyone since flattening Boise State 25-6 September.

Coach Jim Koetter, fighting to break a five-game losing streak, said he fears NAU's defense as much as its offense. "A lot of their defensive starters last year returned and they were an outstanding defensive team last year," he said.

"Their improvement on offense has been a big turnaround — the addition of Shawn Collins and Greg Wyatt really helped them," he said.

NAU Coach Larry Kentera said ISU's losing streak is deceptive. "They have to be the Best 2-7 football team in the I-AA ranks in America," he said. "They have some talented offensive players who are capable of exploding."

Montana State's Dave Arnold said his team made a "three-game commitment" to go out in style this season after falling to 2-6. The Bobcats took the first step last week by beating Northern Iowa, and hope to take the next against Idaho.

Weber is just 3-5, but Coach Mike Price says he's telling his team Montana is one they can beat. "They're playing real good on offense. They can throw the ball, they can score a lot of points. But their defense gives up a lot of points," he said.

Ewing hurting, inactive

SEATTLE (AP) — Patrick Ewing is considered to be the New York Knicks' future, and right now the future is cloudy.

The Rookie of the Year in the National Basketball Association last season is struggling on hurting knees and reportedly with hurt feelings because of his switch to power forward — and because former Georgetown teammate Michael Jackson was cut by the Knicks. Bill Carlwright, a 7-footer like Ewing, is playing center.

NBA roundup

Ewing scored just 3 points and grabbed 5 rebounds in 20 minutes of action Thursday night in the Knicks' 106-95 victory Thursday night at Sacramento, which was their first in five games this season. They next play here Saturday night.

In the Knicks' four losses, Ewing played 130 minutes, scored 48 points for a 12-point average, grabbed 26 rebounds and committed 16 turnovers and 17 fouls. In the first four games of his rookie season, the All-American played 161 minutes, scored 91 points on a 22.4 average, grabbed 43 rebounds and committed 16 turnovers and 17 fouls.

"I know Patrick is embarrassed about his play and he's mystified about his knees," Coach Hubie Brown said. "I have to assume his knees hurt because the statistics aren't there. If a guy tells you he has a headache and can't come to work, you believe him."

But Brown said he is not going to panic about Ewing's performance.

Tigers shellack Shelley

33-0 shutout earns finals trip to Pocatello

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME — On a night when weather conditions virtually dictated defense and mistakes would earn the headlines, the Jerome Tigers exploded for 33 points to skate past Shelley 33-0 and into the finals of the Idaho State A-2 football playoffs.

The Tigers, defending state A-2 champions, thus will be in the ISU Mindome at 3 p.m. Friday to meet either Wallace or Weiser in the title game. Those two were scheduled to meet in the other semifinal at 12:30 p.m. today in the University of Idaho Kibbledome.

For the second time this season, the Tiger defense threw a goose egg at the 5-6 Russels. No one anticipated Jerome coming so close to duplicating its 41-0 regular season victory. But after the defense slowed down an opening Shelley drive and then got a complete reversal on junior Jay Ostler's 92-yard scoring gallop, the game continually shifted toward the Tigers.

Throughout the second half Shelley fought with its back to its own goal line. Only once did the Russels advance beyond their own 35 — and that was early in the third quarter — and over the last 18 playing minutes either took possession inside their 10 or as the result of a kickoff.

Not helping Shelley's cause was a 32-degree temperatures at kickoff time along with a east breeze that had a bit of a bite and, probably most discomforting, about an inch of snow that changed from slush in the first half to ice later.

Jerome Coach Joe Mattie felt the weather and field conditions were more a disadvantage to Shelley because "I felt they would have had to be successful against us" and conditions just didn't allow it.

Shelley's problems started compounding in the late

Ole Miss grid probe results in suspensions of players

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Standout split end J.A. Ambrose and starting offensive tackle Jay Schimmel are among four Mississippi football players sidelined as part of an on-going investigation into alleged violations of NCAA rules, sources said Friday.

Chancellor Gerald Turner confirmed only that fewer than 10 football players had been declared ineligible and declined to identify any of those involved.

Turner set the limit in elaborating on his Thursday announcement that the players had been suspended temporarily from the team and said he expected the NCAA to relegate most of them before the next Ole Miss game, on Nov. 15 against Tennessee.

However, sources close to the investigation who asked that their names not be disclosed were quoted Friday as saying that in addition to Ambrose and Schimmel, defensive backs Derrick Lindsay and A.D. Matthews were suspended. The report said four red-shirted players also may be declared ineligible as the Ole Miss probe continues.

In-Bloxy television station WLOX quoted other sources as saying that the investigation involved 45 allegations, including gifts of cash, automobiles and clothing to athletes.

Ambrose is known to have been questioned about how Ole Miss recruited him.

His name came up July 22 when LSU officials made public their response to 26 charges brought by the NCAA against the LSU football program. In August, the NCAA pursued a one-year probation.

A former LSU coach was accused of driving Ambrose to a restaurant in Sweetwater, Tenn., where Ambrose was attending Tennessee Military Institute.

The NCAA also has questioned Ambrose about at least three incidents which may have involved Ole Miss: a December 1983 flight from the military institute to his home in Monroe, La.; a January 1984 flight from New Orleans to Memphis; and Ambrose's claim that he spent about a week in the Ole Miss athletic dorm before enrolling at the university for

Pitt mentor faces decision before taking on Hurricanes

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

The pregame coin toss may help Pitt Coach Mike Gottfried decide on his starting quarterback for Saturday's game against No. 1-ranked Miami. Heads it's Sal Genilla, tails it's Joe Felitsky.

"I'm telling you the truth when I honestly say I don't know," Gottfried reiterated Friday, a stand he has been taking all week.

"He's chosen to replace the injured John Gonsami — Felitsky, a junior, and Genilla, a transfer and the most prolific passer in junior college history whom Pitt has been trying to redshirt. Felitsky has been Gonsami's backup the last two years but has thrown only 27 passes in that stretch, completing 10 for 75 yards with no touchdowns and three interceptions.

"Let's say they're progressing," is Gottfried's official posture, although privately he feels that "neither one is ready."

The good news is that if Genilla plays, he will have some actual game experience heading into 1987. He figured to be this year's starter until the NCAA granted consent an additional year. The bad news is that it will cost him one of his two remaining seasons of eligibility.

The heads of the Fiesta, Florida Citrus and Gator Bowls will be in Pittsburgh trying to set up a 1-2 shootout between Miami and second-ranked Penn State, which entertains Maryland.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Michigan visits Purdue, No. 4 Oklahoma is home against Missouri, fifth-ranked Arizona State plays host to California, No. 6 Alabama meets No. 19 LSU at night in Birmingham, seventh-ranked Nebraska is at Iowa, No. 9 Auburn entertains Cincinnati and No. 10 Arkansas visits Baylor. Eighth-ranked Texas A&M is not scheduled.

Task force calls for drugs program in wake of Bias death

By JANE ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — A University of Maryland drug task force, formed after the cocaine-induced death of basketball star Len Bias, proposed Friday that the university adopt a comprehensive drug abuse program that includes better coordinated law enforcement and changes in campus policies.

The task force hasn't completed final deliberations on the draft recommendations, but in a summary report implementation of the entire four-part program if the university hopes to reduce or eradicate drug abuse.

The task force recommended speedy adoption of the plan in principle and acknowledged that implementation would come "over time as facilities, personnel and other necessary resources become available.

The task force urged changes in education and counseling, disciplinary policies and enforcement practices, drug testing and law enforcement coordination and cooperation.

Many of those areas were targeted by preliminary recommendations released last month by the task force, which is headed by former Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti.

Another task force formed after the June 19 death of Bias proposed tougher academic standards and better academic counseling for athletes. Chancellor John B. Slaughter discussed those proposals behind closed doors with the university regents Friday.

Regents spokesman Anne Moultrie said Slaughter would report back to the board by Dec. 12 and present a statement on the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics. Slaughter had acknowledged that some of the task force's more than 60 recommendations would be expensive to implement.

Moultrie said Slaughter did not return phone messages left by The Associated Press.

The drug task force also urged establishment of a drug education and prevention program for all segments of the campus community, as well as a Center for Drug Education, Prevention and Research. The center would eventually provide assistance to primary and secondary school drug abuse programs.

More money should be devoted to drug counseling, the draft said. Task force members stressed that "drug counseling should be absolutely confidential and have sufficient staff to meet the campus community's needs. Treatment connected with counseling should be unrelated and inadmissible as grounds for disciplinary proceedings."

The report asked for the student code of conduct to specify penalties for drug offenses.

The task force has not yet determined the sanctions for first-time offenders. The report considered suspension, probation or leaving the decision to campus authorities. The punishment would include mandatory counseling and some drug testing.

For a second offense, the task force recommended expulsion after a due process hearing.

The report also called for continued random testing of athletes, with results to be kept confidential.

A "judicially discriminate drug testing program" should be put into effect for "all students in the community in cases where there is reasonable cause to believe that the person is using controlled dangerous substances," but should require independent hearing Tuesday in the Student Union on approval from the appropriate campus authority before an individual must submit to the tests, the task force said.

Students who use or possess drugs also should be put into a drug-testing program as a condition for remaining on probation in school. A positive test would result in expulsion.

The report calls for a larger police staff and stronger enforcement of drug policies, which would require better cooperation between police and resident advisers.

Other tools for better monitoring drug abuse "would include a confidential drug tip hotline, the appropriate use of anonymous surveillance personnel, and the publication program of the community in cases where drug expulsion in drug-related cases," the report said.

The university has scheduled daylong hearings Tuesday in the Student Union on the draft recommendations.

Montana back in the saddle when Niners take on St. Louis

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Quarterback Joe Montana, who underwent back surgery Sept. 15, returns to the NFL on Sunday when the San Francisco 49ers play host to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Montana, who has played in just one game this season—the opener against Tampa Bay, was activated by the 49ers on Thursday and immediately named by Coach Bill Walsh as his starter in Candlestick Park.

Because Montana has been out eight weeks, Walsh said, "It will be a test for him."

Walsh noted that Montana missed the 49ers' final three exhibition games this summer, because of an ankle injury, "and came right in and had a great game against Tampa Bay."

Montana passed for 356 yards and a touchdown against Tampa Bay.

The quarterback said he felt nervous this week as coaches scrutinized his performance in practice.

"For the first time ever," Super Bowl Cotton Bowl— I felt like I was under the microscope," he said. "They were watching everything I did."

"And Wednesday, I found myself concerned about making sure I dropped back right, and followed through correctly. I was thinking rather than reacting. I was mechanical."

San Francisco will take a 5-3-1 record, tied for second behind the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC Western Division, against St. Louis, 2:40.

Other games Sunday will find Cincinnati at Houston, New England at Indianapolis, Pittsburgh at Buffalo, San Diego at Denver, Seattle at Kansas City, Chicago at Tampa Bay, the Los Angeles Rams at New Orleans, Minnesota at Detroit, the New York Giants at Philadelphia, Washington at Green Bay, the Los Angeles Raiders at Dallas and the New York Jets at Atlanta.

On Monday night, Miami will be at Cleveland.

league's top receivers as targets. Jerry Rice leads the NFL with 874 yards on 45 catches. He has scored nine touchdowns.

Dwight Clark, who has caught 37 passes for 485 yards and two scores, will be out to improve his consecutive game reception streak to 82.

St. Louis rallied last week to edge Philadelphia 13-10 when Stump Mitchell scored from one yard out with 35 seconds remaining in the game.

The New York Jets, at 8-1 off to the best start in the franchise's history, meet Atlanta, 5-3-1, for only the fourth time. The game will pit the NFL's top rushing offense (the Falcons) against the league's No. 1 rushing defense (the Jets).

ing of Ken O'Brien and the receiving of Wesley Walker and Al Toon. O'Brien has thrown for more than 400 yards this season and leads the NFL in passing efficiency.

His key receiver has been Toon, the NFL leader with 58 catches for 801 yards and seven TDs. Walker is averaging 23 yards a catch, the league's highest, and a phenomenal 50.8 yards on his seven TD receptions.

"It's a long season and we have a rugged schedule ahead of us," Jets Coach Joe Walton said. "This is just week No. 10. We are getting better each week, especially on defense, but we are not there yet."

Mary Levy will make his debut as Buffalo coach when the Bills meet Pittsburgh. Levy replaced Hank Bullough, who was fired on Monday.

"I'd like to be an expert for you but I can't," Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said when asked how the change might affect the Bills.

Buffalo is 2-7, while Pittsburgh has a 3-4 record.

Steve Pelluer again will be at quarterback when Dallas, 6-3, plays host to the Raiders, 5-4. Pelluer, a fifth-round draft pick, has taken over for the injured Danny White, who will be signaling in the plays from the sidelines.

"Our players have no problems with him (Pelluer) at quarterback," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "Until you put a full load on somebody's back, you can't tell what you have."

Knee knocks Loyd out for 2 months

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert Loyd has withdrawn from the $1 million Virginia Slims Championships and will be out of action until January because of a knee injury, it was announced Friday.

"I am still having ongoing pain in my left knee," Loyd said. "It has been giving me trouble off and on since last spring and the only way to allow it to heal is with a rehabilitation program and rest."

Dana Van Peit, a physical therapist specialist and president of the Palm Beach Institute of Sports Medicine in Boca Raton, Fla., said Loyd has chondro malacia patella, which is an irritation to the undersurface of the kneecap.

"With the competition as tough as it is today in women's professional tennis, I wouldn't want to be less than 100 percent to play any Virginia Slims Series event, much less the Championships in New York City, the biggest event of the year," Loyd said.

Currently third in the Virginia Slims point standings, Loyd had clinched a spot in the year-ending, 16-player Championships, which will be held Nov. 17-23 at New York's Madison Square Garden. Martina Navratilova is the defending champion and heads this year's point standings.

Reggie latest to opt for free agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson is getting ready for the third time around.

REGGIE JACKSON Angels don't want him

Jackson was one of three California Angels to declare for free agency Friday, bringing to 59 the number of major league players on the list.

The Angels, who lost seven game playoff to the Boston Red Sox for the American League pennant, also stand to lose third baseman Doug DeCinces, coming off one of his most productive seasons, and relief pitcher Terry Forster.

Jackson went through the first free agent re-entry draft in 1978 when he left the Oakland A's for the Baltimore Orioles, then left the New York Yankees after the 1981 season as a free agent.

Also declaring their free agency Friday were outfielders Larry Herndon of Detroit and Lynn Jones of Kansas City.

Jackson, 40, was told by the Angels during the season that he would not be offered a contract. While not ruling out the possibility of retirement, Jackson said he would entertain offers, including any that might come from his old boss, Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

"I could retire or I could play another year," Jackson has said. "The important thing is that whatever I decide to do, I do it with dignity."

Jackson had 18 homers and 58 RBI with a .241 batting average in 419 at-bats last season as the Angels' left-handed designated hitter.

DeCinces, 36, hit .256 with 26 homers and 96 RBI. The RBI total was the second-highest of his career. He had 97 in his first year with the Angels, 1982.

Forster, 34, was released by the Atlanta Braves in spring training. He appeared in 41 games with the Angels with a 4.1 record, five saves and an ERA of 3.51.

Herndon hit .247 with eight homers and 37 RBI as a part-time player for the Tigers, and Jones hit only .128 in 47 at-bats with the Royals.

No indictment for hoopster

STATESBORO, Ga. (AP) — An assault charge against Clemson that the case will not be pursued further.

Pryor has been dropped after a grand jury refused to indict him. Pryor, a 20-year-old sophomore, was charged with aggravated assault in September after a woman reported that he and another man attacked her and threatened her with a knife.

The case was presented this week to the Bulloch County grand jury, which refused to indict him, District Attorney Lane Johnson said Friday that the case will not be pursued further.

Pryor, a forward who averaged 6.5 points and 4.8 rebounds per game last season in 33 games for Clemson, was placed on probation pending the outcome of the charges but has been attending team practices.

"Pryor is back on the team in good to the Bulloch County grand jury standing," sports information spokesman Tim Bourret said Friday.

Yachts win despite spinnaker woes

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — America II and New Zealand both scored impressive victories Friday despite spinnaker blowouts and remained tied for the lead in the America's Cup challenger series.

America II, skippered by John Kollus, defeated Italia by one minute and 32 seconds for its 17th victory in 18 races.

New Zealand, also scoring its 17th victory, defeated White Crusader of Britain by one minute and 28 seconds.

In the other races, USA trounced Canada II, Stars & Stripes edged Eagle of the United States, French Kiss defeated Heart of America and Azurra of Italy defeated Challenge France.

New Zealand and America II share the lead in the standings, each with 48 points. Stars & Stripes is third with 36 points, followed by USA, 28 points, French Kiss, 25, and White Crusader, 23.

Azurra's victory, its second in the trials, boosted it out of last place and left Challenge France in that spot.

Second round victories are worth five points. In the first round, race winners received one point. Twelve points will be given to each winner in the third round.

No racing is scheduled Saturday as the second round of the series to determine a challenger to the Australian defender reached the halfway mark.

The 12 challengers scheduled a meeting for Saturday to discuss proposed changes in the format of their trials.

Bruto Trouble, the spokesman for the challenger series, said he doubted that any changes would be made.

Four proposals were reportedly being studied.

One proposal would split the challengers into two groups, A and B. The A group would be comprised of the six top boats. At the end of the third round-robin, the top-three A boats along with the leading B division boat would enter the semifinals.

A variation on this proposal would increase the number of semi-finalists from four to six.

Another proposal would reportedly add a short series to be raced between the current second and third round robins.

The fourth proposal would make the semi-finals and finals into best five out of nine events rather than the best four out of seven as now scheduled.

The series resumes Sunday with the race between USA and America II the likely feature. In other races, Stars & Stripes goes against French Kiss, Eagle against Italia, Heart of America against Azurra, New Zealand vs Canada II and Challenge France vs White Crusader.
