Iran arms deal creates rifts in White House

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's Cabinet and White House staff are deeply split over the administration's secret operation to ship arms to Iran in exchange for hostages, with some aides suggesting privately that the affair could force the resignation of national security adviser John M. Poindexter or aide Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, officials said Monday.

But White House aides said that they still hope the negotiations can win the release of two more hostages from the hands of pro-Iranian terrorists and that Reagan has ordered silence on the issue until then.

Reagan met Monday with Cabinet members including Secretary of State George P. Shultz and

The hostages were taken to Syria after being freed by Lebanese forces. The image shows a group of people, likely the hostages, in a dark, confined space.

Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger, both of whom are reported to have objected strongly to the arms-for-hostages swap.

Several senior Reagan advisers, most of whom knew nothing of the operation, have also protested that the deals violated the president's policy of making no concessions to terrorists.

And at least one former high presidential aide telephoned Reagan directly and was "very unhappy," a knowledgeable official said.

"There's a lot of turmoil right now in the White House," he said, adding that the pressure on Reagan made it appear that "Somebody's going to have to take the fall for this."

After the Cabinet meeting, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that Reagan had asked his advisers not to comment on the issue.

"While specific decisions discussed at the meeting cannot be divulged," he said, "the president did ask that it be re-emphasized that no U.S. Americans held captive by the pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad group in Lebanon. Sources have confirmed that secret shipments of missiles case in similar meetings with the president and his senior advisers on this matter, there was unanimous support for the president." He said that those attending, in addition to Shultz and Weinberger, were Poindexter, Vice President George Bush, CIA Director William J. Casey, Attorney General Edwin Meese III and Chief of Staff Donald Regan.

Nevertheless, aides said that a broad range of senior administration officials had expressed opposition to the policy of approving secret arms shipments to Iran in exchange for the Tehran regime's help in freeing Iranian Islamic Jihad group in Lebanon. Sources have confirmed that secret shipments of missiles

Idaho spuds fewer but worth more

Acres cut, lower yields help profits

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's potato farmers have matched their 1986 crop with industry needs for seasons' first official production report indicates.

The Idaho Agricultural Statistics Service Monday estimated the spud harvest at 87.15 million hundredweight, 15 percent less than the bumper crop that devastated prices last year.

Growers in the Magic Valley and eastern Idaho cut their production 11.4 percent, while those in the 10 southwestern counties lopped out 45.3 percent of their crop, which is much smaller.

Idaho farmers trimmed their production slightly more than those in the rest of the country. The U.S. Department of Agriculture pegs the national crop of fall potatoes at 307.55 million hundredweight, a 13 percent drop.

Idaho potatoes, such as those stored at this J.R. Simplot Co. facility near Jerome, should bring better prices this year.

The 1986 Idaho production returned to the range of the 1984 and 1983 crops, which fetched good prices.

Two factors elicited the size back to normal. The state's farmers harvested 38,000 fewer acres. Those in the 10 southwestern counties cut 41.3 percent of their acres. "They just didn't grow them this year," said Richard Max, chief statistician for the Idaho service.

Potatoes raised in that area in prior years have been troubled with "dark ends," a growth defect that concentrates sugars in the ends and turns the potatoes dark when they are cooked as french fries. Most of the crop in that part of the state goes to processors.

In the remaining counties, including the Magic Valley, the cut back in acreage was more modest at 8.2 percent.

The second factor was lower yields. Statewide yields dropped 13 hundredweight per acre from last year's 297 hundredweight. But, even though smaller, that production still is high.

In the Magic Valley, yields dipped to 280 (100-pound) sacks an acre from 290. In the southwestern 10 counties, which have a longer growing season, they dropped to 350 sacks from 375, according to Monday's report.

The quality of the 1986 crop was described as "good to excellent."

Outside of spotty instances of "hollow heart," another growth problem, the crop has come out of the fields in top shape, said Tom Cooper, representative for the Federal State Marketing News Service at Idaho Falls, which tracks spud markets.

The mix-in-size-of-the-fresh potatoes coming in — a critical factor in marketing them — also is good. Potatoes between 6 and 14 ounces, which are valued by restaurants and institutions for table use, are ample, Cooper said.

The market showed little reaction to the report released Monday. "I would say the market in general terms had anticipated the smaller crop than last year," he said.

Nevertheless, the industry it was good news. And for farmers, it

Bitterly cold air chills snow-swept plains states

By The Associated Press

Bitingly cold air spilled southward Monday from Canada, with Butte, Mont., hitting 31 degrees below zero and other cities posting record lows, on the heels of a snow storm that killed seven and left a 13-year-old boy missing.

"We are heading into the time of year we all hate — cold weather," said National Weather Service forecaster Chuck McCain in Colorado.

Only scattered light snow fell Monday from the central Rockies across the Plains to the upper Great Lakes, light compared to the storm that last week dumped more than 2 feet of snow before moving into Canada.

But the snow accompanied an Arctic air mass that dropped temperatures below zero over much of Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota and western South Dakota.

Record lows for the date included Billings, Mont., 12 below zero; Casper, Wyo., 14 below; Chicago, 18; Flint, Mich., 20; Helena, Mont., 24 below; Kalispell, Mont., 8 below; Lewiston, Idaho, 14; Miles City, Mont., 13 below; Missoula, Mont., 2 below; Rapid City, S.D., 7 below; Sheridan, Wyo., 20 below; Spokane, Wash., 11; Valentine, Neb., 1; Wheatridge, Colo., 3; and Yakima, Wash., 14.

Several of the records erased marks that had been on the books since 1911. For Billings, Casper, Kalispell and Missoula, it was the earliest date on record for such cold.

Gusty wind along the eastern slopes of the Rockies in Montana dropped the wind chill effect to around 45 below at Billings and Casper during the night.

The temperature at Goodland, Kan., dropped from 25 to 14 in one hour as the edge of the cold air moved through, and freezing warnings were issued as far south as parts of northern Texas.

Up to 2 inches of snow fell Monday across parts of Wisconsin and Minnesota, icing roads and causing numerous minor traffic accidents.

"Eight-inch snow also reached central New York state Monday, and the weather service said, western Pennsylvania would get its first storm of the season during the night.

In North Dakota, which was walloped by wind-blown snow in last week's storm, a number of county roads were still blocked by drifts Monday.

A 13-year-old boy who went out to play late Friday or sometime Saturday was missing on the Fort Totten Indian Reservation in North Dakota, police dispatcher Bruno Cavanaugh said Monday. Up to 28 inches of snow fell on the area.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, had only its second blizzard in 20 years, with 13 inches of snow. Officials said the city's 300 snowplows would need at least a week to dig out.

The storm deaths included two in Montana and one in Michigan in traffic accidents on slick roads, two canoeists drowned in 6-foot waves in Minnesota, and a North Dakota farmer who died walking home after getting stuck in snow. A South Dakota rancher died after his vehicle became stuck in snow.

Vietnam veterans front and center at today's observances

By The Associated Press

Parades, ceremonies and dedications of new monuments to the nation's war dead, especially those killed in Vietnam, were scheduled for today's observance of Veterans Day around the country.

The 27th Annual West Coast Sacred Torch Ceremony at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in California's Hollywood Hills will include representatives of Great Britain, France, Israel, Mexico, Belgium and Italy honoring soldiers who have died for peace.

"The Moving Wall," a 250-foot-long, half-scale replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, will be on display in Westlake Village, 40 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, where a special service is played today for the names of 58,200 Americans who died in Vietnam or were reported missing in action.

Another replica of the shiny, black wall was erected at the Michigan State Fairgrounds Coliseum in Detroit.

Also in Michigan, the body of an unknown Civil War soldier was to be removed from a neglected grave in Grand Rapids for military reburial in Battle Creek's Fort Custer National Cemetery.

Thirty-two people, many of them Vietnam soldier today as part of the dedication of the Fort Totten Indian Reservation in Oklahoma Decatur in central Illinois, heading west 42 City miles to the state capital, and Tuesday's Veterans Day Parade. Organizers said the trek was to draw attention to those still listed as prisoners of war or missing in action in Southeast Asia.

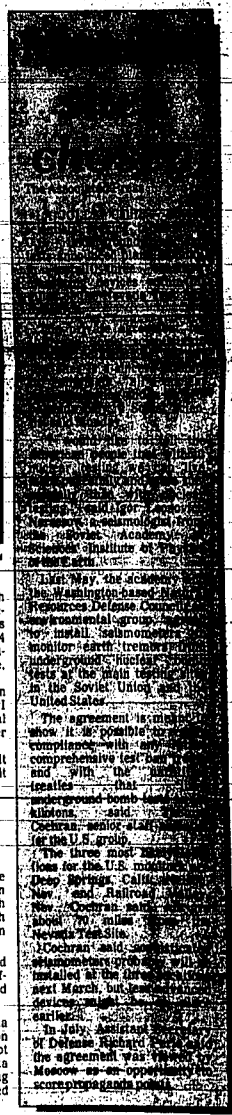

Another group of Illinois veterans broke ground Sunday for a Vietnam War memorial in the Oak Ridge Center, where Abraham Lincoln is buried. The $1.25 million monument will bear the names of 2,829 Illinoisans who died in the war and the 102 listed as POWs or MIAs.

Veterans planned to unveil an 8-foot-tall bronze statue of a youthful, battle-weary when they would have a big picnic each year," said organizer Warren "Mago" McGinnis. A city picnic was planned following a downtown parade.

In New Jersey, a committee announced Monday that a memorial to commemorate the state's Vietnam veterans will be built at the Garden State Arts Center. It will bear the names of the 1,443 New Jerseyans killed in action and the 63 listed as missing.

In Hawaii, the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans planned brief ceremonies at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific on the island of Oahu.

and aircraft parts have led to the release of three hostages in the last 14 months, including David P. Jacobsen earlier this month.

"The fallout from this is going to be a lot worse than anyone ever realized," one aide said. "I think this could lead to the removal of John F. Kennedy. If they're going to save face for Reagan, it's a very deep split, both within the White House and between the White House and the foreign policy agencies."

"It cuts across partisan grounds. They're getting fire from the right and fire from the moderates," he said. "It has to do more with the influence of the policy."

Some officials, reportedly including Regan, privately have criticized Poindexter, a Navy admiral with little political experience, because of the political problems that disclosure of the secret deals have caused the administration.

Others, including Shultz, have charged that the clandestine project went out of control under the supervision of Lt. Col. Oliver North, a deputy director of the NSC, officials said.

There have been reports that Shultz was so angry about the U.S. arms shipments to Iran that he was considering resigning. But Shultz, en route to Guatemala City Monday for a meeting of the Organization of American States, said flatly, "I have no plans to resign." He also refused, as he has in the past, to discuss U.S. approaches to Iran.

As congressional criticism of the arms deals has mounted, administration officials have also publicly refused to inform either the public or congressional leaders of the details.

White House communications director Patrick J. Buchanan said emphatically that he had "no part" in the operation, but added that his view has been that in controversial issues the president "should go early and get it (information) out."

Another senior administration official said that Poindexter and his aides "are making it worse by not talking about it, just digging a deeper hole. They're under a lot of pressure now to explain it and they'll have to talk to Congress or somebody pretty soon now."

Speakes, reflecting Reagan's and Poindexter's instructions, said he could not even confirm the existence of the deals with Iran. Asked when the administration would speak about the issue, he said: "When it's appropriate for us to do so, when it no longer affects our national interest, when our hostages are free."

Speakes and other officials have offered contradictory accounts of whether the administration still holds serious hopes of gaining the release of the remaining five American hostages in Lebanon through the negotiations.

Molotov, once the right hand of USSR's Stalin, dies at 96

The Associated Press

V.M. MOLOTOV
Visage mirrored hard line

MOSCOW — Vyacheslav M. Molotov, the right hand of Stalin whose grim visage mirrored the Kremlin's hard Cold War line, is dead at age 96.

The former foreign minister was among the last of the Old Bolsheviks who founded the Soviet state.

Molotov was a humorless, round-faced man with a bristling moustache whose inflexibility in negotiations earned him the name "Old Pants" from Western diplomats.

He was a shopkeeper's son who helped Lenin carry out the Russian revolution in 1917 and rose to the highest ranks of the Kremlin elite, but never succeeded in building a personal power base.

After Josef Stalin died in 1953, Molotov was removed from his posts and gradually slid into obscurity.

In his day, Molotov had cities and auto factories named after him and foreigners called the homemade gasoline bomb "Molotov cocktail."

For years, the only remaining official notice of his former service ty membership in 1964 and, in July of this year, the newspaper Moscow News carried the first interview with him in 20 years. He was quoted as saying: "I am happy in my old age. I wish to reach the age of 100."

He probably was best known in the West for signing the Molotov-Ribbentrop non-aggression pact. The agreement linked the Soviet Union with fascist Germany and enabled the Nazis to invade Poland, thus triggering World War II in 1939.

Molotov represented the Soviet Union at a score of international conferences after the war, including the 1945 security conference at which the United Nations was formed.

Born March 9, 1890, with the family name Scriabin, Molotov joined the Bolshevik underground and helped lead the 1905 revolution, taking a pseudonym from the Russian word meaning "hammer."

After the 1917 Russian revolution, Molotov specialized in party organization work, rising to second secretary in the party's Central Committee.

Molotov aligned himself with Stalin and after Lenin's death began his quick rise to power as Stalin's protegee.

means little chance of prices plummeting once again to disastrous levels. Market prices now range between $5 and $5.50 a sack for potatoes coming out of storage to packing sheds, Cooper said.

For many farmers, those levels will mean profits, Patterson said. There also may be some potential for higher prices. Crops in Michigan and Wisconsin were dug wet and had some quality problems. Maine's 1986 crop also may have been damaged by frost, as was Idaho's last year. Those conditions may affect prices in future months, he indicated. "I think all the potential is to the upside," he said.

But Idaho's potato growers still are recovering from last year's crop and price devastation. The marketing situation is optimistic, based on Monday's figures. At the same time, "it's going to take more than one good year for those who really got hurt last year to recover economically," Patterson said.

Potato production estimates released Monday by the Idaho Agricultural Statistics Service (Figures, in order, are 1986 production harvested acres and yields):

• Idaho — 87.15 million hundredweight (87.7 billion pounds); 307,000 acres; 284 hundredweight per acre.

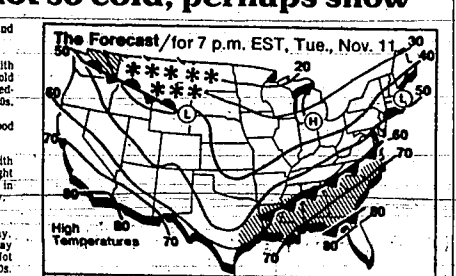

• 10 southwestern counties — 5.95 million hundredweight; 17,000 acres; 350 hundredweight per acre.

• Other Idaho counties — 81.2 million hundredweight; 290,000 acres; 280 hundredweight per acre.

• U.S. fall crop — 307.548 million hundredweight; 1,0275 million acres; 299 hundredweight per acre.

Court to settle debate on hypnosis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether hypnosis-refreshed testimony may be used in criminal trials and also whether mandatory death sentences are valid for some murderers.

The justices will use an Arkansas case to resolve a legal debate over which the states are divided — whether the testimony of witnesses whose memories have been refreshed through hypnosis is too unreliable to be trusted.

And the court, having outlawed mandatory death penalties for most murderers, will consider making an exception for murderers by people already serving life terms without chance of parole. The issue to be decided is in a Nevada case.

In the hypnosis case, the court will review the manslaughter conviction of Vicki Lorene Rock, who three years ago shot her husband during a domestic quarrel.

In the mandatory death penalty case, the justices must decide whether such a Nevada law inflicts punishment that is impermissible "cruel and unusual punishment."

Lower federal courts invalidated the Nevada law, similar to those in numerous other states.

Raymond Wallace Shuman was convicted in 1958 of murder in Yerington, Nev., and was sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole.

And in other matters Monday, the court:
• Let stand a $4.7 million award won against Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. by a Tennessee girl whose birth defects were linked to a contraceptive she used.

• Agreed to decide whether the government may strip U.S. citizenship from a 70-year-old New Jersey man accused of helping Nazis exterminate more than 2,000 Jews in Lithuania.

• Let stand a Michigan court's decision that a woman who had slowed down behind another car that was making a turn. The Times-News regrets the error.

tion limiting police power to frisk motorists suspected of drunken driving.

• Said it will decide whether officials in some states may be sued by prison inmates who contend they unlawfully were denied parole.

• Agreed to referee in a Pennsylvania case a dispute between the interstate trucking industry and state tax officials over the validity of certain highway-use taxes.

• Heard arguments by West Virginia Attorney General Charlie Brown in a tax dispute between his state and federal government. Brown's appearance came just as a criminal trial began in Charleston, W.Va., in which he is charged with illegally soliciting campaign contributions from his employees.

Geddes, Boyd, pacing race for speaker

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — With legislative organizational sessions less than a month away, Republican representatives Robert Geddes of Preston and Tom Boyd of Genesee appear to be favorites for the House speaker's job.

But Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, believes the race is wide open and that his chances are as good as anyone.

"I don't believe that many people have made up their minds," Sessions said. "Sessions, whose core of support said as lawmakers attended a tour sponsored by the North Idaho Chamber of Commerce. All three made their pitches during a first ballot, I won't be the first to be dropped out."

Boyd, banking on strong support from moderate Republicans in a speaker, and Geddes feels he may have enough support to win on the first ballot.

"If I don't, then I'm awful close."

"There isn't anybody who doesn't feel that John is a nice guy, and he's very well-respected," the legislator said. "But there's a question of whether he's tough enough."

Sessions agreed most of his support stems from a more moderate wing.

"I'm not ultra-conservative and I'm not a real liberal either," Sessions said. "But I was a company commander in the military. I can make decisions, but I'm not the vindictive type."

All three are playing down the importance of personal political beliefs in this race. Instead, they are looking more for broad support. The battle seems to be over over who is the friendliest, fairest and most open and so far, all seem to be making headway in that direction.

Geddes said he feels that whomever is elected will set a dramatically different tone from retiring House Speaker Tom Silvers, who was accused of being dictatorial. The next House speaker will be more of a peacemaker, Geddes said.

"None of us have the disposition of Tom Silvers," Geddes said. "This is not to say he was wrong, but we have a different makeup."

Water quality, toxic wastes head ICL list

BOISE (AP) — Water quality, hazardous waste and toxic materials will be the focus of the Idaho Conservation League's lobbying efforts in the next session of the Legislature.

The ICL board met here for a strategy session over the weekend to set legislative priorities, said Executive Director Mary Kelly.

Lili Erickson was appointed as the ICL's lobbyist for 1987. A former ICL field organizer, Ms. Erickson recently directed the Idaho '86 Project aimed at electing politicians who supported conservation.

And the ICL board set the second annual Citizen's Lobby Day for Feb. 23. It is expected to draw 100 citizen lobbyists, including members of other groups which support goals similar to those of ICL.

Tim Crawford, ICL co-vision president, said last week's election gave him hope for the next Legislature, particularly with the Republican loss of a veto-proof majority in the Senate. "I think that's going to enable a number of the more or less moderate Republicans to come out of the closet," he said. "There are some fairly sane folks out there, so maybe there will be some better communication between the parties."

"But I don't know. Maybe Idaho doesn't want to come into the 20th century," he added.

Ms. Kelly said "continuing and strengthening" the past effort on the state's water quality regulations would be a main priority. Of primary concern is the proposal being drafted by the Department of Health and Welfare on nonpoint source pollution — sedimentary runoff from such activities as timbering, mining and farming.

"We'll have to see what that recommendation is, and decide whether to support it or ask for something stronger," she said.

"We've had a problem in the past with the timber industry trying to make water quality an unenforceable situation," Crawford said, referring to the industry-supported House bill 711. Gov. John Evans' veto of that bill led to the current nonpoint-source standards drafting.

"I passed quite comfortably last year, so we'll have to do a lot of education with legislators before the session starts," said Roberta Crockett, Southeast Idaho regional representative.

Ms. Kelly said ICL would also be urging the Legislature to pass the Hazardous Waste Management Plan recently drafted by a task force. The plan is up for public review, with public hearings scheduled next week.

"We're recommending a few minor changes, but we support the plan," she said. "It's fairly revolutionary, certainly for the state of Idaho. It's far-sighted and addresses some rather encompassing areas the Legislature might have trouble with."

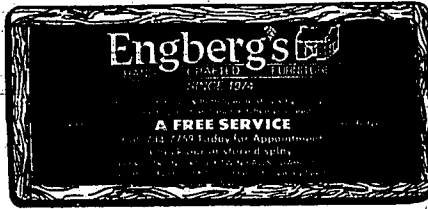

"I think that hazardous waste is going to be the leading environmental issue because of its threat not just to the environment but to public health and safety, too."

"I feel that it's about a three-way split," he said. "Many people have not committed themselves."

Sessions, who normally could count on heavy support from eastern Idaho, said he was hampered by entering the race relatively late.

"Some people committed early on," he said.

One eastern Idaho legislator who asked not to be named said Sessions does not appear to have much support from conservative lawmakers in eastern Idaho. The legislator said there are some questions about Sessions' firmness.

Lake study in limbo now

SANDPOINT (AP) — A proposed study of water quality in Lake Pend Oreille and the Clark Fork River is unsettled, after President Reagan vetoed an extension of the 1972 Clean Water Act.

Original legislation contained authorization for an Environmental Protection Agency study of major waterways. Local experts say the quality of water appears to be deteriorating, and they'd like to know what to do about it.

On Oct. 18, the president signed a continuing joint resolution, which included an appropriation for EPA. An earlier Senate conference report directed EPA to conduct "a comprehensive study of water quality on Lake Pend Oreille and the Clark Fork River."

RV park target of suit

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — A group of property owners in T.P. Bill's Island Park have filed a lawsuit in magistrate court here trying to stop construction of a recreational vehicle park and trailer court on the island.

The group, identified as Concerned Property Owners of T.P. Bill's Island, seeks a permanent injunction against William Chapman to keep from any further action toward the construction, or at least $5,000 in damages for each property owner. The lawsuit does not specify the number of property owners involved. The plaintiffs allege Chapman has violated protective covenants and restrictions on the island that prohibit construction of a trailer park, or RV park. They say he has already begun construction and that they have suffered irreparable harm, damage and injury and will continue to do unless he is stopped.

T.P. Bill's Island in the Island Park Reservoir has long been an exclusive retreat and is not open to the public. Property owners say their property values will be permanently reduced and their safety will be affected by the increased traffic. They also say the resale value of plaintiffs' properties will be permanently affected.

Veterans of a shadow war enter the ranks

Half a century ago, in 1936, a veteran was generally considered to be one who had fought in what was then referred to as The World War.

Oh, yes, there were still plenty of men around who had served during the Spanish American War some 38 years earlier. There were even some who had fought in the Indian campaigns, and a fair company who had worn either the blue or the gray in the War Between the States.

In the middle '30s, the battles of the Marne, St. Mihiel, and the Meuse-Argonne were still comparatively fresh in the minds of the men who fought them in a war which ended with an armistice on Nov. 11, 1918.

That date and that event were widely observed by Americans in the years that followed, even as the world slid toward an even greater conflict.

By the time another decade had passed, the men of the Mexican border and of France had been joined by a second and far larger group of veterans — those who had served in a far-flung war that engraved such places as Peleliu, Saipan, Leyte, Anzio, Schweinfurt, and Malmedy on the nation's roster of battle monuments.

And a few years later the grim battlegrounds of Korea — Taejon, Kunu-ri, Chosin — swelled the ranks of the nation's veterans, even as those who remained from the 19th Century faded to a squad and eventually joined their departed comrades. In the middle 1950s, Nov. 11 became a day to remember the contributions and sacrifices made by all of America's veterans, rather than merely marking the end of one of the nation's wars.

Then, for a time, the term "veteran" became one not generally held in high regard — one of the divisive effects of the United States' Vietnam experience. As the years passed, the men of Pleiku, Khe Sanh, Tet, and battles at scores of other seemingly unspellable and equally unpronounceable places stood together, demanded and at last received recognition from the country they served so well.

In the 1980s, Nov. 11 is once again a day when Americans recognize those men and women who fought its wars. The term "veteran" applies to all who served and sacrificed in any of four major wars in this century.

But a handful of new faces has entered the ranks now.

Their names include Jenco, Weir, Jacobsen — survivors by the grace of God of extended terms as hostages and the most visible veterans of the conflict with terrorism. They and other Americans who have confronted this most reprehensible form of political expression in any of its variable manifestations are fully deserving of recognition as veterans, albeit of a different, shadowy brand of war.

In a sense, all Americans today are involved in or affected by this war with — or against — terrorism. But this handful has demonstrated that America has much to be proud of in the example they set of the best attributes of American behavior.

So, on this Nov. 11, 1986, take a few minutes to raise the flag, to render a salute to those who have served in one or all of the wars of the 20th Century — including the current battle against terrorism — and say, "Thanks, pal."

Established GOP still learns slowly

Reed Larson

Victory in the 1986 Idaho right-to-work referendum proves that establishment Republicans learn slowly if they learn at all.

"A themeless pudding" is the label aptly applied by The Wall Street Journal to this year's U.S. Senate elections in which GOP candidates dodged the crucial issues of our time. Void of issues, void of any unifying theme, literature tried to stand firm on the causes which brought them to power six years ago. Republicans ran a mushy "feel-good" campaign — and lost.

From coast to coast, in every deep seat Senate race in which Republicans chose pudding over the meat of crucial issues, they came up short.

But a lone Republican, locked in a race that was too close to call, defied the conventional wisdom of establishment Republicans and emerged victorious.

In Idaho, where incumbent freshman Sen. Symms faced a staunch challenge from popular Gov. John Evans, Symms stood firm on the issue of right-to-work. He won because of it.

With a statewide right-to-work referendum on the ballot, Symms withstood intense pressure from the GOP establishment to distance himself from the free-choice issue.

His fellow senator from the Gem State, James McClure, has worked long and hard to drive a wedge between Republicans and right-to-work, publicly declaring that "I've urged Republicans not to raise the issue for years. I think it's bad political issue for us and it's a real motivational issue for union people."

In Idaho, where Democrat Evans championed compulsory unionism by twice vetoing right-to-work legislation as governor, Republican Symms proudly proclaimed his support for right-to-work and rode to re-election on the coattails of extraordinary bipartisan support for the referendum.

In a state with just 500,000 voters, the intervention of the AFL-CIO dumped at least $3 million into a bitter effort to defeat right-to-work and carry Evans to Washington.

But the people of Idaho — Republicans, Democrats, including the National Union members — still do not know that their freedom is not for sale. A comparison of last minute poll results with actual election returns shows conclusively that the right-to-work referendum captured the support of voters from all ends of the political spectrum. In Idaho's "union stronghold" precincts, the strength of right-to-work support earned Republican Symms the union-member votes he needed to go over the top.

Idaho's Republican gubernatorial candidate David Leroy meanwhile made a fatal move away from right-to-work when, in the 11th hour of his close race with Democrat Cecil Andrus, he announced that, if elected, he would not support free choice in Idaho. It was a calculated move to win big labor support. It backfired. Leroy lost by 2,000 votes.

"One of the most significant lessons of the 1986 elections is the result of the right-to-work referendum in Idaho. It flies in the face of all the conventional wisdom of the Republican establishment," concluded Pat McGulgan, editor of Initiative and Referendum Report.

On Nov. 5, lamenting the defeat of Democrat Senate candidate John Evans, past National Democratic chairman Charles Manatt confessed that right-to-work "killed us" in Idaho.

The lesson is clear. McClure was wrong. The GOP establishment was wrong. They don't just learn slowly, they don't learn at all. For 30 years, establishment Republicans have seized the Democrats' hat, and they are the scapegoat for their many shortcomings.

Beyond a doubt, in 1986 Republican control of the U.S. Senate was lost for want of issues. The proof is in the "themeless pudding." But a lone and courageous Republican, Steve Symms of Idaho, will return to Washington on the rising tide of right-to-work. Will Republicans heed the message?

Reed Larson is president of the National Right-to-Work Committee, Springfield, Va.

America better off with stronger Iraq

William Colby

WASHINGTON — A myopic focus on hostage relief, with its potential for politically beneficial television attention (a contrast to the Carter administration's agony), has led the Reagan administration into the McFarlane adventure directly conflicting with longer-term U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf (which certainly at this time would be better "Arabian" than "Persian").

Communication with the leaders of Iran, open or secret, is fully justifiable, but the provision of spare parts for Iranian arms (even by proxy) is not. It directly contradicts announced American policy. Naive hopes of bringing the more "moderate" among the leadership of Iran to the succession to ailing Ayatollah Khomeini ignore the geopolitical and ideological realities of the entire globe.

The key fact in the Gulf is the Iran-Iraq war, which is now in its seventh year of agony. It has produced a million casualties on both sides, as Iran has used human-wave attacks of dedicated young people, and Iraq has relied upon heavy firepower to meet their superior numbers. Iran is again preparing for a "final offensive" and has improved the professionalism of the Revolutionary Guards. Iraq has met these assaults with financial and some volunteer support from fellow Arab nations hoping to keep the Persian Ayatollah and Shiite fundamentalism away from Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the other Arab states. It has asserted its desire for a settlement of the war at the Persian Gulf borders, but Khomeini has refused any outcome but the overthrow of the Saddam Hussein government of Iraq and the payment of full reparations; blaming it for starting the war.

Prudence requires a consideration of the result if an Iranian offensive were to succeed. An Iraqi collapse could be followed by an assault upon the borders of Saudi Arabia, overrunning Kuwait and a major threat to the other sources of oil in the Gulf. The Gulf states and Arab League would undoubtedly try to conciliate a successful Iran, rather than fight it, and some steps in that direction may already be taking place, which the revelation of the McFarlane mission can only accelerate. World oil prices and Iranian leadership would hardly be restrained. The momentum of an Iranian success could inflame fundamentalism as far afield as Lebanon, Egypt, Morocco and Indonesia. Syria, which has been accommodative to Iranian intervention in Lebanon because of its hostility to Iraq, could be led to bolder action against Israel and in its support of terrorism generally. A world oil supply hostage to the ayatollah's hatreds would immediately raise the question whether American and European naval and air power would be needed to protect Saudi Arabia, the Gulf states and oil shipments in the Gulf. Such a direct involvement of American forces with Iran would have enormous implications. A retreat by the United States from such an engagement would be equally serious.

There is in the interest of the United States, the Western world and even the Soviet Union that Iraq successfully withstand the Iranian assault. Rather than winking at arms supplies for Iran, the United States would better make direct efforts to strengthen Iraq against Iran, to include arms supplies to the degree needed. The risks involved in support for Iraq against Iran are considerably less than the risks that would follow a defeat of Iraq by Iran.

The argument that the McFarlane operation is the best at strengthening the more moderate elements of Iranian leadership does not survive close examination. Perhaps the Ayatollah Montazeri can be removed from the succession to an ailing Khomeini, but his replacement by Speaker Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani offers no real hope that Iran will return to modernism and civilized international relations; even his announced conditions for the release of hostages are as extreme as those of the hostage holders in Lebanon.

Indeed, the United States should indicate receptivity to a real change in leadership in Iran, one that will reassume Iran's positive and modernist role in Southwest Asia.

The United States should actively encourage the appearance of a new Iran. Such a prospect is preferably out of the realm of reality than clergy, to open a better future for the people and nation of Iran, as well as a safer one for its neighbors and the other societies vulnerable to Khomeini's effort to spread chaos throughout the region.

William Colby was CIA director under Presidents Nixon and Ford.

We still have some rights

Congratulations, Idahoans. We did it. We retained our right-to-work for $3.35 an hour, provided we can compete with the migrants and immigrants in the job market. Then we can take whatever's left of our meager paychecks to town at Christmas time and buy the less expensive foreign made merchandise that is glutting our American market places. Just look at the labels; you won't have any trouble finding them.

For those of us who can't find a 30-hour a week job, without medical insurance, sick leave, vacation and holiday time off, we still have the right to stand in line and beg for free government cheese and cornmeal.

We still have the right to appeal to the county commissioners for help paying our rent and utilities, and I think there are a few free clinics left we can take our children to when they are ill.

If we are single parents who qualify on the poverty level, we can make numerous trips to the Department of Health and Welfare to apply for food stamps, and if we're lucky, 30 days later we may, or may not, be the proud (?) recipient of our first food coupon booklet.

We have the right to watch as our young people exit Idaho in search of more livable opportunities elsewhere. We have snapshots of our absent grandchildren to sustain our need for family and perhaps once a year they can afford to travel back to Idaho for a visit. At least we're still a little better than slaves.

Call disrespectful, impolite

I was listening to KLIH Party Line Thursday, when The Times-News' managing editor and his guest were discussing all of these pre-election phone calls we all received. I very much wanted to call with my comments, but I was in my car, on the freeway between Burley and Twin Falls. So I decided to write this because I don't know who was responsible to complain to.

The calls I received at home were annoying enough, they always seemed to be at dinner time, or when I was trying to get my children ready for bed. But the call that really angered me was the one at my place of employment.

I am a private duty nurse. I work in people's homes. I was at work one night, it was well after 9 p.m., and one of those calls came for the person I was caring for.

I explained to the caller that this person was ill and unable to come to the phone, and that I was a nurse caring for this individual. You would think that the caller would have enough respect to drop it at that, so that they wouldn't disturb my patient's rest or care. But, instead, the caller went on to question me. I feel that this type of call is totally uncalled for.

It was disrespectful, uncaring, and impolite. If these people are going to insist on making these phone calls at election time, they should take a course in telephone etiquette first. Or, at least, have a little consideration for others. If someone is ill enough to need a nurse in their home to care for them, then usually the last thing they (or the nurse, when she's on duty) are interested in are politics. I found this call most distressful, and had I registered in time to vote, it would have affected the way I would have voted.

Finish the slogans like this

Perhaps the following election campaign slogans and comments could be finished as follows:

1. Holdover from the 1984 election, "Republicans will elect any conservative person to Congress except George Hansen"; ... apparently not.

2. "Idaho Deserves the Best" ... but got a retard governor instead with worn-out ideas that have failed in the past except to increase state bureaucracy.

3. "I believe in Mel Richardson" ... but not enough believers when he exposed Stallings record of voting against the president 60 percent of the time.

4. "I will put Idaho first" ... right after the eastern liberals who financed my election.

5. "As independent as Idaho" ... but will continue to vote with liberals for more government programs and thus higher taxes.

6. "Keep Stallings on the Agriculture Committee" ... so Senator Symms can again correct faulty agriculture legislation and thus protect Idaho crops from market destroying set-aside provisions.

Jacobsen secluded with kin

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former hostage David Jacobsen was in seclusion at his son's home Monday, his first full day back home in Southern California since his capture 17 months ago by terrorists in Lebanon.

Jacobsen, 55, emerged briefly to tell reporters he would answer questions during a news conference Wednesday. He said he preferred to be alone for the moment to get reacquainted with his family.

In Huntington Beach, where he lived for many years and where his son Eric still lives, yellow ribbons were tied to trees and banners on schools and churches welcomed his return.

Civic celebrations were being planned in Southern California for later this week or next.

Army unit bound for Mideast

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — The 101st Airborne Division said farewell Monday to 800 soldiers embarking on a Middle East peacekeeping mission that ended tragically for 248 of their comrades last year.

The unit will replace members of the 82nd Airborne Division who have been serving with the Multinational Force and Observers, an international organization created to help carry out the terms of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty of 1979.

The first group will leave today and be followed by others on Nov. 18 and Nov. 24.

"I guess it takes a lot of courage for the men to go back over there after that plane crashed," said Tresa McCreery, whose husband will be among those spending six months in the Sinai.

Mrs. McCreery said her husband, Sgt. Kevin McCreery, volunteered for the assignment, which will separate the Clarksville, Tenn., couple for the first time in their 10 years of marriage.

Cuomo to 'take a look' at '88

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Mario Cuomo said Monday that he would "take a look" at the possibility of running for president.

Earlier this year, Cuomo, a Democrat, had said he had no plans to run for president, although he had refused to rule out such a move.

On Monday, in an interview with The Associated Press, Cuomo said he would have to start thinking about whether to run for the 1988 presidential nomination now that his re-election campaign for governor was over.

Limit to be exceeded in month, source says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will exceed the SALT II treaty limit on strategic bombers carrying air-launched cruise missiles in mid-December, a government source said Monday.

The decision marks the third shift in dates this year. It also means rejection of an appeal by Congress last month that U.S. voluntary compliance with the unratified treaty be continued.

After the B-52 bomber is armed with nuclear-tipped cruise missiles at the Air Force Logistics Center at San Antonio, Texas, the plane will be transferred to Carswell Air Force Base at Fort Worth.

It then will become the 131st U.S. B-52 bomber equipped with the missiles. This will mean exceeding the treaty's ceiling of 1,320 on a combination of missile warheads and cruise-bearing bombers.

President Reagan decided last May to stop observing all SALT II limits and to base U.S. strategic weapons decisions on "the nature and magnitude of the threat posed by Soviet strategic forces."

The SALT II treaty was signed in Vienna in 1979 by former President Carter and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the late Soviet leader. It was the last major arms control agreement between the superpowers.

The treaty was never ratified by the Senate, but Carter and the Reagan — despite his vehement criticism of the accord in his 1980 presidential campaign — pledged to observe its constraints on strategic nuclear weapons provided the Soviets did the same.

Reagan accused the Soviets in two reports to Congress of serious violations of weapons-limitation accords with the United States. While deciding to scuttle the treaty's restriction on B-52 bombers with cruise missiles, the president ordered the destruction of two Poseidon nuclear submarines with 16 warheads each to stay within a 1,200-warhead ceiling.

Launch held up for eighth time

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA on Monday announced the eighth postponement of an Atlas-Centaur rocket that is to boost a military communications satellite into orbit.

No new date was set immediately. The problem cropped up Friday during ground testing of an Atlas-Centaur computer at the Teledyne manufacturing plant in Northridge, Calif.

'Deep Throat' actress in for med tests

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Linda Marchiano, who starred as Linda Lovelace in the pornographic movie "Deep Throat," was admitted to a hospital Monday for tests prior to a liver transplant.

In a telephone interview from Presbyterian-University Hospital, Mrs. Marchiano, 37, of New York's Long Island, said she was admitted to the hospital, one of the world's leading transplant centers, for seven to 10 days of testing.

She said she suffers from a form of hepatitis, which doctors feel she may have contracted from blood she was given after she was injured in a car accident in 1970.

Sinatra on the mend; to stay in hospital at least one week

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Frank Sinatra received some get-well telegrams Monday as he recuperated from intestinal surgery that was expected to keep him hospitalized at least a week.

Surgeons at Eisenhower Medical Center removed a 12-inch section of the 70-year-old superstar's large intestine Sunday, according to son Frank Sinatra Jr., who is appearing in Las Vegas, Nev.

"The doctors decided to administer antibiotics and hold him for observation," Sinatra Jr. said. "When the medicine didn't relieve his pain by Sunday-morning, they decided to operate."

Sinatra Sr. had cut short his appearance at the Golden Nugget in Atlantic City, N.J., because of intense pain from the inflamed intestine.

"He's experiencing a lot of pain... despite medication and antibiotics," said Dr. Alan Altman. "This is a fairly routine operation." Hospital spokesman Michael McFadden said Sinatra spent a brief period Sunday in the recovery room after two hours of surgery, then was returned to his hospital room Monday morning.

"All vital signs were normal, and his condition is good," McFadden said Monday, adding that telegram-flooded arrived but Sinatra may not receive visitors or telephone calls. "The doctor said Sinatra will probably be fitted with a colostomy bag for about eight weeks until his intestines heal."

First lady drops hints about presidential gift

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Reagan has refused to divulge the presidential Christmas present, but says it's likely to be practical.

"Even if I knew what I was going to get Ronnie for Christmas, I wouldn't tell you," Mrs. Reagan said in an interview in the Dec. 2 issue of Family Circle magazine.

She did hint that it would be something for the ranch, "because tools are things he really needs." In past years, she has given a pickup truck, a power saw, a lawn-mower and a manure spreader.

"After 33 years of marriage, you get very practical. We've even given each other a repainting of the living room," Mrs. Reagan said.

At Christmas, the Reagan family gathers with friends Charles and Mary Wick and their children. Wick is director of the U.S. Information Agency.

"We sing Christmas carols and somebody dresses up as Santa Claus," Mrs. Reagan said. "We sing and eat the whole night. Like everybody else, we have turkey with chestnut dressing."

Now that all the Reagan children are grown, the Reagans celebrate at the White House — with as many children as we can persuade to come to Washington," she said.

Little time for dating, Miss America notes

JEFFERSON CITY, Tenn. (AP) — Miss America, Kellye Cash, says she had been so busy making appearances since the Sept. 13 pageant that her social life is not what her admirers might expect.

"No, I guess I haven't been on a date since the pageant," Miss Cash said Saturday after she sang at an evangelistic youth rally at Carson-Newman College. "I did go out with a friend in San Francisco, but I guess that wasn't really a date." Miss Cash, a Memphis State junior, has at least one consolation. After she won the pageant, she said, she received a mink coat from great-uncle and country star Johnny Cash and his wife, June Carter Cash. "It was one of her coats and she and Johnny called it The Fur," said Miss Cash, 21, of Memphis.

Challenger widower sworn in as trustee

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Steven McAuliffe, widower of Christa McAuliffe, took the oath of office

Monday as a state university system trustee.

The Concord lawyer smiled as he was sworn in by Gov. John Sununu, who nominated him to the job in September.

McAuliffe, 38, generally has shunned publicity since his wife and six crewmates died when the shuttle Challenger exploded shortly after take-off in January. He has made exceptions when the subject is schools or education.

His first public speech after the Challenger tragedy was in July at a National Education Association convention in Kentucky. He urged members of the teachers' union to be politically active and not to let the teacher-in-space program be a "feeble substitute of, desperately needed help" for public education.

Star says it took a bit for Nashville to notice

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — This city has become synonymous with country music to the rest of the nation, but Grand Ole Opry star Minnie Pearl says it took years for the locals to notice.

Basically, she said, Nashville's business community dismissed the Opry as a " bunch of hillbillies" until they recognized in the 1950s that country music could make money.

"It took a while for Nashville to become conscious of the impact country music and its performers were having on the business community," wrote Sarah Cannon, better known to Opry fans as Minnie Pearl, in her weekly column for The Nashville Banner.

Minnie Pearl said local people began calling for tickets to the Opry to entertain out-of-town guests for the weekend "and were astounded (and a little miffed) to find that tickets were sold out six months in advance."

Springsteen fans line up for album

NEW YORK (AP) — Rockin' in Boston, in Pittsburgh, Pa., deep in the heart of Texas, and around the Frisco bay, all over St. Louis, and down in New Orleans, all they wanted to buy was sweet Bruce Springsteen.

Quest to coast, an avalanche of Brucemania was unleashed Monday as 1.5 million copies of The Boss's 40-song live album reached record stores. The fans were waiting.

"It's unbelievable! We had a long line waiting when we opened," said Gene Pemberton of Peaches Records & Tapes in suburban Richmond, Va.

"We've never had people waiting outside to buy an album," said Keny Altman, manager of Tower Records in New York's Greenwich Village, where 25 people queued up for Bruce along Broadway.

It's supposed to be a capitalist enterprise, as well, and Bruce Springsteen & The E Street Band Live 1975-85 appeared well on its way to paving Springsteen's "Thunder Road" with gold.

Tower was selling the five-record set for just under $20, prices in the mid-40s were more common, while the compact discs went for about $40.

But the demand was huge, a product of Springsteen's popularity, at its height since the release of his album "Born in the USA," which sold more than 11 million copies; of his legendary status as one of the world's best concert artists; and of the impending holiday gift-giving season.

"I've sold a few hundred already," an hour after noon in the USA, Al Saldcker, assistant manager of Rose Records in Chicago. "I've been in the business over 10 years. I've seen them fly out, but not like this — not where they've waited for the doors to open."

Skip Dorsey, salesman at Homer's Records in Omaha, Neb., said the store didn't get its allotment first thing in the morning and the phone was ringing off the hook.

"They're killing me. It won't be here until noon and everybody in here asking me for the tape," he said.

2nd accident kills girl, 4

GRANT, Mich. (AP) — A 4-year-old girl was killed in the second accident she and her father were involved in during the same night, authorities said Monday.

Sara Schoen of Kentwood died en route to a hospital after the car in which she was riding collided head-on with another vehicle in Grant Township early Sunday, said state police Sgt. Henry Lingle.

Riding in the car with Sara were her father, Douglas Schoen, 30, of Wyoming; and her aunt, Karen J. Schoen, 19, also of Wyoming.

Douglas Schoen was in better condition Monday at Butterworth Hospital; Karen Schoen was not hospitalized.

2 sought in whaler sinkings

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — The government said Monday it suspects an American and a British whaling fleet in Reykjavik harbor and sabotaging Iceland's only whaling station, and will seek their extradition.

Prime Minister Steingimur Hermannsson, speaking on radio and television, said Iceland was trying to find out the whereabouts of the two men and order their arrest. He also criticized Icelandic police for not raising the alarm soon enough after the attacks Sunday to prevent their escape.

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, a North American anti-whaling group, has claimed responsibility for scuttling the two 450-ton vessels by pulling its bottom valves and letting them sink in 45 feet of water.

The militant environmentalist group also claimed it used acid and sledgehammers to destroy equipment in the remote Hvalur Whaling Co. station where whale byproducts are processed, all in the aim of saving whale's lives.

No one was injured in either attack, which local officials estimated caused $2 million damage.

Justice Ministry secretary Thorstein Geirsson identified the suspects as Rodney Coronado of the United States and David Howard of Britain. Geirsson said the two left Iceland early Sunday on an Icelandic flight for Luxembourg as the whaling boats were sinking. Their hometowns were not given.

Hermannsson called an emergency Cabinet meeting for this morning and requested a detailed report on the sabotage.

Minister calls talks a 'retreat'

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze accused the United States on Monday of trying to "erode the ground reached in Reykjavik."

He demanded anew that a superpower arms accord include a ban on space weapons.

Shevardnadze characterized his meetings last week with Secretary of State George P. Shultz as a "retreat to the pre-Reykjavik position" in U.S.-Soviet relations, adding, "It goes without saying that this is a step backward."

He spoke in Russian at a one-hour, 50-minute news conference, his first in Moscow, becoming foreign minister in July 1985. The Foreign Ministry conference hall was packed.

Shevardnadze said that Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan agreed during their Oct. 11-12 Iceland summit to steps that would eliminate medium-range missiles from Europe within five years and all strategic nuclear weapons within a decade.

But he said Shultz outlined a revised and watered down version of the agreements in principle reached by the two leaders.

"What they offered to us in Vienna can be compared to a political theater of the absurd," said Shevardnadze.

"We had set on the table before us an amazing assortment of papers which actually canceled everything achieved by the sides in Reykjavik."

"The United States wanted to record positions that would erode the ground reached in Reykjavik."

The news conference was the latest stage of a full-fledged media campaign by the Kremlin following the summit.

Magazine: U.S., Soviets to join efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the United States and the Soviet Union differ sharply on military uses of space, negotiators for the two nations have agreed on 16 cooperative space ventures, including exploration of Mars, an industry magazine says.

Aviation Week and Space Technology said the negotiators, who met in Washington a few weeks ago, expect the pact to be signed by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev at their next meeting.

The magazine, quoting unnamed officials, said the proposed agreement is much more specific than the 1975 U.S.-Soviet pact that resulted in the Apollo-Soyuz mission in July 1975 when astronauts and cosmonauts linked their ships and shook hands.

The Soviets formally proposed a cooperative mission to return samples from the surface of Mars, but the Americans had to reject it because the United States has no approved Mars sample return program.

Martial law rule absolved in Asia

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — President Hussain Mohammad Ershad ended more than 4½ years of martial law Monday after Parliament passed a bill absolving his government of legal responsibility for what occurred under it.

Thousands of demonstrators fought police in protest of the law that prevents lawsuits against the martial law regime that has run the country since Gen. Ershad seized power in a bloodless coup March 24, 1982. Authorities and hospital officials reported a teen-ager killed and more than 100 people injured.

Five buses were set ablaze in Monday's riots and more than 50 firebombs were tossed near Dhaka University, a center of opposition to Ershad, police reported. The independent Eastern News Agency said the 14-year-old was killed when police opened fire on students throwing firebombs.

Common Market levies sanctions on Syria

LONDON (AP) — European Common Market nations declared sanctions against Syria on Monday for allegedly supporting terrorism and demanded that it end all backing for terror groups.

Greece dissented, but the 11 other members agreed to ban all arms sales, suspend high-level official visits to Syria and increase surveillance of Syrian missions and operations of Syrian airlines.

President Hafez Assad's government is the Soviet-Union's main Middle East ally. The effect of the arms embargo is expected to be more symbolic than practical, since Syria gets most of its weapons from the Soviets.

"Our actions have a specific purpose," said a statement issued after a meeting of the policy-making council of Common Market foreign ministers. "We look to the Syrian authorities for a constructive response."

The Socialist government of Greece said it was not convinced

Syria was involved in the attempt to smuggle a bomb onto an Israeli airliner at Heathrow Airport in London last April. That case caused Britain to break relations with Syria last month and ask the Common Market to join in other sanctions.

Greece did not object to the sanctions, although Foreign Minister Theodore G. Pangalos, deputy foreign minister, said Greece does not sell arms to Syria and already is taking the other measures agreed upon by the Common Market.

Youth's jail death draws concern, criticism

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The death of a 17-year-old Twin Falls youth in the Minidoka County juvenile detention facility early Monday has brought concern to authorities and sharp criticism of area jail practices from one area attorney.

In a brief prepared statement Monday afternoon, Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said the youth was found at 12:56 a.m. Monday by deputy sheriff Earl Hubbard.

The young man had hanged himself with a bed sheet in a cell shared with two other juveniles. The name of the victim was not released Monday, pending location of his stepfather, who was out of town.

Jarvis said the two other juvenile inmates were asleep when the deputy discovered the suicide.

The youth was removed from the cell by authorities—and cardiopulmonary resuscitation was attempted at the scene. He was then taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 2 a.m. by Acting Coroner Arvin Hansen. Hansen said the boy died of "ligature" strangulation. Jarvis said the young man had been committed to the juvenile quarters in his facility on an order from Magistrate Court in Twin Falls. He said the committal order turned the youth over to the Twin Falls County sheriff's department, which sent him to Minidoka County.

Joseph Stanzak, a Twin Falls attorney and frequent critic of area juvenile jail policies, said the death is another indication of need for a change in the handling of youth offenders.

Stanzak, who has also volunteered his legal services to the new Southern Idaho Youth Center in Jerome, said it is not the fault of the juveniles or the jail personnel, but rather the fault of the county commissioners who decide where and how to confine juveniles.

"It isn't the young people who are in the county jails," he said, "but it's the county officials. Each and every county commissioner who allows kids to be housed in county jails makes an error every 24 hours a day, Stanzak explained.

He said state records show "that eight out of ten times as many juveniles commit suicide in jail as their adult counterparts."

'It isn't the young people who are criminals, but it's the county officials.'
—juvenile jail critic Joseph Stanzak using the best available alternative facilities for children.

Stanzak said his objective is not to speak out for the new Jerome detention facility, but to keep children out of jail.

He said while the Jerome facility may not be perfect, and he has seen better, at least it is a vast improvement over the county jails.

The Jerome juvenile center has a security guard on duty in the same area with the inmates since that party 24 hours a day, Stanzak explained.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Judy Felton of Buhl said the commissioners in county, but because of questions raised in a review by the Idaho Commission on Children the county officials want to wait for some official approval of the facilities.

She said another group of national standing is expected to review the Jerome establishment, probably within a week, and the county officials will be waiting its report.

"I would also like to mention that our building proposal for the jail bond issue that was recently defeated contained a juvenile detention facility and there will be the same facilities in our upcoming proposal," Felton said.

She said she did not want to comment on possible liability of the county in the Monday suicide.

Because state law requires juveniles to be confined out of sight and sound of other prisoners, Stanzak said, their separation often results in being the same as a maximum security area where they have no contact with anyone — they can't see or hear anything outside of their cells and their food is passed through a slot in the cell door.

Stanzak said there is no juvenile facility in Idaho that has approval of the American Corrections Association, but at least the Jerome center is trying for that accreditation.

Stanzak added that county commissioners in Magic Valley have said they do not feel the Jerome facility meets their standards, but said most have never looked at it.

Only Jerome County is now contracting with the facility for housing of juveniles. Stanzak said it has had no difficulty in meeting all of the standards set out by Jerome County.

Cloyce Edwards, owner of the Jerome center, said security personnel is actually with the youngsters at all times, and added that his center meets all county and state requirements.

Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn referred all questions to Prosecuting Attorney K. Ellen Baxter, who was not available.

Farm expansion explored by city

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls is considering expanding its farm operation on land near the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport to produce additional revenue for the facility.

If the crop prices and yields are good, the airport could earn as high as $99,000 from an additional 124 acres it plants in wheat, wheat, and alfalfa.

Airport Manager Harry Merrick reported to City Council at a Monday work session.

City Manager Tom Courtney said, "It's one of the few opportunities for earning money at the airport, which is why we're enthused about it. But we have to look at both sides of it."

Airport personnel and extra hired help now dry farm about 300 acres near the airport. This year's harvest was 15,000 pounds, which netted the city $5,900 and thousands of pounds of seeds, Merrick said.

Merrick said it would be more profitable to farm the additional acreage, located north and south of the runway, themselves than to rent the land.

"The current land rent is in the range of $25 to $50 per acre. This is only a token sum we can produce if we plant wheat and do it ourselves," Merrick wrote in a report to council.

If the council decided to approve the project — a decision it delayed until further study — the city would have to purchase a tractor, combine, corrugator and pipe at an estimated cost of about $50,000. The purchase of a second tractor, however, would help airport operations, he added.

But according to Merrick, the profits would surpass the costs.

Using estimates from a seed business, if a minimum of 400 pounds of wheat per acre was harvested and sold for 30 cents a pound, the city would make $14,800 on the additional land, Merrick said.

The yield after the second year could be as high as 600 pounds per acre. And if it sold for $1 per pound, the city could earn $99,200 — in addition to the 300 acres of city land near the airport already farmed by contractor operators.

Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said the disadvantages to the proposed farming operation is a potential weed problem. But the advantages are the minimal costs and the fact the airport already conducts weed control in connection with the airport operation.

Councilman Jack Miller asked the council to make a decision on the operation until it could hear from Airport Board members Bill Claborn and Gary Wolverson, who are farmers.

On another subject, council members approved funding of a fitness evaluation for employees as a step toward controlling health insurance costs.

Council approved a contract with the Magic Valley YFCA to conduct the evaluations at a cost of $50 per employee. City Finance Director Rick Thompson said the program will cost the city about $7,500.

Council also agreed to pay half the cost for spouses of employees.

The city now provides sick leave and other insurance benefits used when there is illness, Thompson said. This "negative" aspect of the coverage should be changed to one where employees are encouraged to be healthy.

The city now pays about $160,000 for employee health insurance. The City of Nampa — which has a more extensive wellness program — pays about $120,000 and had a $5,000 reduction in premiums, partly due to the health program, Thompson said.

He said he couldn't guarantee such a wellness program will reduce the city's premiums, but "at the very least they will keep the premiums down."

If the city used the program, the number of insurance claims could be compared to this year, he said.

The screening will be mandatory for each city employee. Blood pressure, resting pulse, flexibility, body-fat composition, blood chemistry are among the items to be tested.

A computerized profile based on national "norms," health history, genetic medical recommendations will be provided by the Twin Falls Clinic, which also will perform the blood analysis, according to the YFCA proposal.

From the information, the city can determine if classes, such as stress management and weight control, should be implemented to help those in need of lifestyle change.

'Snack Shack' on track

Donations, labor cited

By TERRIE JARRELL
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Students at Twin Falls High School won't have to travel very far to get snacks during school hours once the snack bar opens for business.

The Bruin Boosters, a fund-raising organization that mainly helps the athletic department, is putting the finishing touches on the "Snack Shack," a concession stand that will be donated to the school district once it is completed.

Olivia Prater, president of the Bruin Boosters and main force behind the project, said the Snack Shack is a needed addition.

"We (the Bruin Boosters) felt that a school the size and caliber of Twin Falls needed to have a better-equipped concession stand. The one the school has now is stuck in a corner and really is too small. The A-1 schools we visit for games have nice concession stands and I think that Twin Falls needs one, too," said Prater.

The idea for the concession stand came about through a conversation Prater had with Al Glanders, the former athletic director.

"Al Glanders gave us the encouragement to look into the project and since then, I've been pushing for it. It's been my number one project for at least two years," said Prater.

The 467-square foot addition will open this week for the first girls' basketball game at home. After it is completed, the boosters will give the Snack Shack to the school.

"It is a gift. All the money that we've raised will go back into the school," said Prater. "It will be under the direction of the school administration. We don't want any of the profits from it."

The Dave Armstrong Company priced the project at $28,000, but because of the large amount of donated labor and materials, the cost is now estimated at $16,000.

"A lot of people from a lot of different areas have donated labor or part of their labor and materials," said Prater. "Plus the Bruin Boosters have working parties every Tuesday night where we do

Jeff Holley installs a temporary partition in the area which will be the new snack bar as much of it as we can. There is a lot we have to leave up to the professionals such as the plumbing, but we have been doing what we can."

Shop class members put in at least an hour a day helping to finish the project.

Among the fund-raising projects the boosters have done are selling "Bruin Big Bun" sandwiches last spring and bagging at ShopKo during its grand opening. The sandwiches netted the Bruin Boosters $5,000 and Prater said the "Bruin Big Buns" will be sold again next spring.

ShopKo's assistant manager asked the boosters if they would bag for the first week of its opening and in return, ShopKo would give the boosters a donation.

"Everybody was cooperative and willing to help. There were very few people who said no," said Prater, adding that ShopKo donated $600 for their work.

The Boosters need $10,000 to pay for the project. According to Prater, the Bruin Boosters would appreciate any donations and will recognize donors by putting their names up in the Snack Shack.

Veterans Day

Local observance in park features Stivers, singers

TWIN FALLS — Veterans organizations and their auxiliaries will observe Veterans Day with ceremonies at Twin Falls City Park today at 11 a.m., according to Jerry Wertz, adjutant of Post 77 American Legion.

The ceremonies at the Vietnam Memorial will include veterans organizations representing those who served in four of the nation's wars. The groups include the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Pearl Harbor Survivors, Vietnam Veterans and Disabled American Veterans. Former Idaho House Speaker Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls, will be the guest speaker and the Robert Stuart Junior High School choral group will perform.

Banks, county, state and federal government offices and the post office will be closed today. No mail will be delivered.

City offices will remain open today, said City Hall officials. The day after Thanksgiving was chosen as a holiday instead of Veterans Day. Elementary, junior high and high schools will remain open today, but no classes are being held at the College of Southern Idaho.

Concept for vets' memorial unveiled in Idaho Falls

IDAHO FALLS — A design concept for the proposed Idaho Vietnam Veterans Memorial has been unveiled in Idaho Falls by the Idaho Freedom Bird, Inc., Vietnam Veterans organization.

The proposed 24-foot high polished stainless steel structure will suggest the shape of a large inverted "V". An inlaid bronze plaque shows in relief a female veteran, a combat soldier and prisoner of war. The names of all Idaho citizens killed in the war, and those still missing, will be inscribed on a separate plaque. The memorial design was submitted by Tom Chriswell, Idaho Falls engineer and a Vietnam veteran. "Nearly every American has a story, a memory ... a feeling about the Vietnam war. In my design, I tried not to tell just one story, but to provide something which would allow visitors to remember and reflect on their own stories," Chriswell says. Idaho Falls Mayor Tom Campbell has authorized donation of a memorial site in the city's Freeman Park, overlooking the Snake River. The Freedom Bird organization expects to break ground July 4, 1987, and dedicate the completed memorial a

Bingham to speak on proposal

TWIN FALLS — John Bingham, administrator of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, will speak to several civic organizations this week about the proposed reorganization of the hospital.

Bingham will present a slide show and answer questions about the proposed transfer of the hospital from county ownership to the local control of a nonprofit corporation. Twin Falls County residents will vote on the transfer Dec. 9.

Educational meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 13 and 19 at MVRMC cafeteria. A panel discussion following Bingham's slide presentation will feature Twin Falls County Commissioner Judy Felton, MVRMC Assistant Administrator of Finance Don Crilly, and MVRMC legal counsel Kent Taylor.

Bingham is also scheduled to speak today to American Legion Post #7 at 6:30 p.m. at Prime Cut restaurant. Luncheons are planned today and Wednesday. The 20th Century Club will host Bingham at noon Tuesday and the Idaho Neighbors Network will hear him Wednesday at noon at Canyon Springs Inn.

Newsman moves to Rexburg

JEROME — Don Sparhawk, former editor of the North Side News in Jerome, has accepted a position as managing editor of the Rexburg Standard Journal in Rexburg.

Sparhawk is moving to Rexburg immediately and his family will join him as soon as possible. He began in his new position Oct. 29, saying the change represents a promotion and a step in his career. The Rexburg paper publishes twice each week with editors for Rexburg, St. Anthony and Ashton.

Sparhawk, a native of New Hampshire, came to Jerome in 1977 as a reporter and had served as editor the past several years. While working for the Glasmanns of Ogden, Utah, former owners of the North Side News, Sparhawk also worked at the Gooding Leader in Gooding, another Glasmann publication. He returned to Jerome in 1980. He is a graduate of Washington State University in Pullman.

Camas announces honor roll

FAIRFIELD — The following students at Camas County High School were named to the honor roll for the first nine-week grading period.

• Students earning all A's are: Sophomores: Eric Frostenson, Freshman: James Rice.

Travel committee meeting set

BLISS — The Magicland Regional Travel Committee meets at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Circle Bar & Restaurant in Bliss to discuss 1989 tourism grants. Representatives of tourism-related industries and the general public are invited to attend. A no-host luncheon is scheduled prior to the meeting.

Plans announced for observance

TWIN FALLS — Plans for a Prison Invasion Days observance in Idaho were announced here Monday by Gordon M. Griffith who said the program will involve the state penitentiary in Boise and penal institutions at Orofino and Cottonwood.

There will be a number of Magic Valley persons helping with the event and many from the area who will be benefited, Griffith said.

The Prison Invasion Days will be held Dec. 5, 6 and 7, and Dec. 7 has been proclaimed by Gov. John Evans as prison invasion day in Idaho.

Griffith said many Christian volunteers will be visiting with the prisoners to meet with and minister to the inmates. Persons interested in assisting may still join the effort as volunteers, Griffith said.

He said there are regular prison ministry services for most county jails in the area, but the December event is a concentration on helping those in prison through religion, and letting them know there are people out there willing to continue to help after they are released.

A meeting will be held in Twin Falls Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Salvation Army building to make final plans for the event. Anyone interested in assisting is invited to attend the Thursday meeting.

Griffith said the Prison Invasion began in Texas, started by "Chaplain Ray," a well known national leader in prison work. The program is offered freely to any inmate interested, but it is not forced on anyone, Griffith said. Dec. 7 was selected as the invasion day because of the Dec. 7 Pearl Harbor anniversary of "an invasion with hatred and violence." The prison invasion is in direct contrast to Pearl Harbor, he said, because the volunteers are invading the prisons with peace and love.

Local burglaries being investigated

TWIN FALLS — Several burglaries were under investigation Monday in Twin Falls as a result of weekend activities.

Police said someone entered the Green Cross Veterinarian Hospital at 2115 Kimberly Road Friday or Saturday. A window glass was broken to gain entry, officers said, and while several cabinets were ransacked, doctors were unable to determine that anything was missing.

Another Saturday report showed someone entered the unlocked vehicle of Arnold R. Eising at 516 Mountain View Drive E. A mobile telephone unit valued at $500 was damaged and a radar detector valued at $325 was taken. Two guns, valued at several hundred dollars, were taken in a vehicle burglary at 340 2nd Ave. E. Sunday evening. A pickup truck was parked at the Magic Bowl parking lot between 8 p.m. and 8:50 p.m. Sunday. About $50 damage was caused in breaking into the pickup and removing a shotgun and a rifle. Another burglary at the Eastland Offices building at 451 Eastland Drive was reported Friday. Officials said two juvenile boys of Junior high school age were taken into custody in connection with the burglary. Damage to candy machines in the building amounted to $150 and loss of candy amounted to $20, police reported.

Utah drug charges dropped

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal magistrate has dismissed charges against a Salt Lake County woman arrested last month along with 23 other people in the breakup of a Utah cocaine ring by narcotics officers.

U.S. Magistrate Ronald N. Boyce signed a prosecution motion dismissing charges of aiding and abetting and cocaine distribution against Georgina Ann Cornwall.

The charges were dismissed because of lack of evidence, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Agents arrested Cornwall as they served an arrest warrant on Scott L. Nichols, of Salt Lake City, the man prosecutors say managed and organized the cocaine distribution ring. Boyce signed the dismissal order on Friday.

CSI campus the site of satellite hookup

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho will participate in a display of how satellite communications can benefit college campuses when College Satellite Network presents two broadcasts Wednesday (Nov. 12) on King Videocable Channel 10 available on campus.

The public is invited to participate in the program in Aspen Vo-Tech Building Room 10A on the Eagles' Nest of the Taylor Administration Building.

Starting at 8:30 p.m., students will have access to political leaders and noted Washington observers in the interactive broadcast of "The Presidency." The two-hour broadcast, which originates live from WETA Studios in Washington, D.C., will include an historical overview of the presidency; a behind-the-scenes look at the execution of Oval Office responsibilities by managers; and a forum with potential presidential candidates in the 1992 election. Panelists will include former presidential candidates John Anderson, George McGovern and Eugene McCarthy.

Students will be able to express their opinions and question the political figures via telephone hookup. In addition, CSN will conduct a national college student poll during the broadcast and release the results at its conclusion.

Immediately following the educational broadcast, CSN will present via satellite "Live from Los Angeles," a showcase of three exciting rock groups in live performance: Ohno Bologna, Berlin and Signe-Sigge Sputnik.

Help for grammatical errors just a telephone call away

Can't tell who from whom? Puzzled over a dangling participle? Don't know where to place a comma? Help is available from the Purdue University grammar hotline, 317-494-3723. The 6-year-old grammar phone is a service offered by the West Lafayette school's writing lab. The line was born "after a couple of strange calls," said Bob Child, a teaching assistant in the English department, and assistant to the writing lab director. A diaper company called the writing lab wondering whether to use who or whom in an advertising campaign, and a newspaper called, mulling over a headline, questioning the plural of hole in one, Child said. "At that point we decided we needed a grammar hotline," said Child, who is in his second year at the lab. "It's very interesting. We have calls that come in from all over the world — questions that seem to come out of the blue," Child said.

"Lately we've had a lot of calls dealing with non-sexist language when you're addressing a large group of people — do you say he or she? It really depends on the situation and the audience. That's the problem with answering calls. It depends on the situation in most cases," Child said. Sexist language is "probably the only new thing. The rest of them are very traditional problems that people will have until the end of time, like who-whom," he said. Sometimes lawyers telephone who are worried about the implications of an apostrophe, said Muriel Harris, director and founder of Purdue's writing lab. Last year the Purdue grammar phone handled 243 telephone calls, she said. The Purdue hotline is included in a directory of 31 grammar hotlines in 20 states and two Canadian provinces. It is the only 1986 Indiana listing in the directory compiled at "Tidewater" Community College in Virginia Beach, Va.

Natural urge to lust found in both sexes

DEAR ABBY: "Sincerely in Christ in Ohio" is the epitome of naïvete if he really believes that the girl who danced topless is guilty of instilling lust in men.

Men are born that way. It is undisciplined submission to lust that causes problems. Men go to see girls dance topless because they are already filled with lust. If they didn't go there, they would probably go elsewhere and do worse.

"Sincerely" drove for the green, but he landed on the wrong fairway. — BEEN THERE IN OXFORD, MS

DEAR BEEN THERE: Been where? On the wrong fairway? Or where men go to lust after girls who dance topless? Lust is a natural urge found in women as well as men. Without it, we could not perpetuate the human race.

You hit the bull's-eye. It's "undisciplined submission" to lust that causes problems. The Good Book tells us to hate the sin, but love the sinner (but not literally!).

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago I could have written the letter from "Massachusetts Mom," whose handsome, popular teen-age son had girls calling him at all hours of the night.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

Only I had TWO such sons. "Mom" said her son had to catch the 6:45 school bus every morning, so he tried to get to bed by 9:30 p.m. on school nights but girls would call him at 10:30 p.m. and 11:00, disturbing the entire household.

I'm surprised she had to write to you for help. The solution is simple. Here's how I solved it: I would answer the phone personally after 9 p.m., and if it was for one of the boys, I'd politely say, "He has gone to bed and cannot take any calls after 9 p.m., but if you'll give me your name and phone number I will ask him to call you tomorrow."

It didn't take very long for them to catch on. — PENNSYLVANIA MOM

DEAR MOM: Many wrote to say that they had solved the problem in that manner. One young man said his mother refused to call him to the phone after 9:30 p.m., but she'd call his teen-age sister to the phone regardless of the hour — If a boy was calling!

DEAR ABBY: I'm past 80 and read you religiously. The letter about teens who lack self-control and plead for birth control got my attention. Let those teens read this: The bee is such a busy soul He has no time for birth control So that is why in times like these There are so many sons of bees. Have a good day!

— DR. CYRIL T. DALTON, GRAFTON, OHIO

DEAR DR. DALTON: My day was made better. Because of your letter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SILENT BUT SEETHING: Send this to your loquacious friend in Indianapolis: Have you not noticed that usually it is the person who is least worried listening to who persists in talking most? Also, that it is the person present who could talk most interestingly who is the slowest to open up — and that when he does he is quick to return silence if interrupted by some shallow gabby? "Empty vessels make the most noise." — B.C. FORBES

Deferred set-up charges for accounts opened before December 31

Unlike many other credit lines, First Security doesn't start you out with a balance due. Open your First Security Home Equity Line of credit before December 31, 1986, and postpone the appraisal, title insurance policy and filing fees until you actually use your credit line. When you do, these charges will be financed as part of the line.

What's more, we don't charge an annual fee and we'll waive completely the loan origination fee which will probably save you several hundred dollars. That means you can set up your First Security Home Equity Line with no out-of-pocket cash.

Keep the deduction tax reform will take from many

The new tax code begins to phase out the deductibility of interest paid for most consumer credit in 1987. The loss of deductibility affects personal loans, automobile loans, department store charge accounts or credit card purchases. For many, that deduction has meant the difference between sending a check to the IRS and receiving one each Spring.

But the tax code retains your opportunity to deduct interest on debt tied to your home. And that's where the First Security Home Equity Line can give you back much of what the tax code will otherwise take away, and can save you hundreds of dollars in the process.

Special introductory rate of 5.9% APR

Pay off those high-interest obligations that will begin to lose their tax deductibility in 1987. The First Security Home Equity Line introductory annual percentage rate of 5.9% is a lot lower than you're used to paying on most consumer loans and credit cards.

Even when the introductory rate ends (December 31, 1986), the standard rate is just 3% above the prime interest rate as published in The Wall Street Journal — still way below what you're probably paying now. For example, the rate on October 8 would have been 10.5% APR. This rate may vary.

Interest-only payments for up to 10 years

To keep your payments low you may delay payments on principal and pay only the interest due on your credit line for up to 10 years. And remember, you may still deduct those payments from your taxes.

Possibly the last time you need apply for a loan

The First Security Home Equity Line goes far beyond the idea of taking out a second mortgage to finance home improvements, education, a new car, health care or other big ticket items. You may never need to apply for a loan again.

Easy to open, easy to use

The dollar amount of credit for which you may qualify depends on how much equity you have in your home.

Once your account is established, you'll receive special checks you can write just like you do on your regular checking account. You can transfer funds by phone to your checking account. Or you can stop into any First Security banking office for person-to-person service.

And you'll be kept up to date by a monthly statement itemizing all account activity.

Call today Introductory offer ends December 31, 1986

How do you qualify? Of course you must own a home and have equity in it. If you do, just call 1-800-538-1133 for a Home Equity Line application. We'll also send you information outlining the opportunities and limitations of tax reform and how it will affect you. Or just call or visit your nearest First Security Bank office and we'll get your application underway immediately.

For maximum savings you must act before December 31, 1986. Call 1-800-538-1133 today and we'll send you a Home Equity Line application and information outlining the opportunities and limitations of tax reform.

Report says separatist group talked about killing Butler

PORTLAND (AP) — A white separatist group accused of several bombings in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, in September discussed killing the head of the Aryan Nations Church, according to a published report.

The Oregonian newspaper, quoting unidentified sources, reported that the group considered killing Richard Gint Butler because he opposed the use of violence in spawning a white revolution.

The group, which called itself "Bruders Schweigen Strike Force II," is suspected of committing a series of bombings in Coeur d'Alene. Officials say the bombings were planned to distract police during the robberies of two banks and a National Guard armory.

Robert E. Pires, 22, of Silver Springs, Md., has told FBI agents that the group hoped to steal weapons and explosives from the armory.

Pires has been held in the Latah County Jail in Moscow, Idaho, in lieu of $500,000 bail since he surrendered to federal agents Sep. 30 in exchange for protection. Pires said he feared he would be killed by other members of the group.

Pires, David Dorr, 35, and Edward Hawley, 27, have been charged with the four bombings in Coeur d'Alene. One occurred Sept. 15 at the home of the Rev. Bill Wassmuth, a Roman Catholic priest who heads the Kootenai County Task Force on Human Relations; the other three occurred downtown Sept. 29.

Dorr, Hawley and Hawley's wife, Olive, also face federal charges in Spokane, Wash. They are being held without bail in the Spokane County Jail.

Dorr worked as the security chief for the Aryan Nations compound and said in July that he had worked for several months as Butler's personal bodyguard.

A member of Aryan Nations in Hayden Lake, Idaho, who identified himself only as "Richard," said members of the group were aware of the discussion about Butler, The Oregonian reported.

Butler could not be reached for comment.

Sources stressed that the alleged plot against Butler hadn't gone beyond discussion, the newspaper said.

FBI Special Agent David Jernigan testified Oct. 9 in a federal detention hearing for Dorr and the Hawleys that the group had planned to assassinate people considered to be threats to the white separatist movement.

Those named by Jernigan then included federal judges, federal and county law enforcement officials, and members of the county task force in Coeur d'Alene.

Ricks College hikes tuition 4 percent

REXBURG (AP) — Ricks College, a private Mormon school, will raise tuition 4 percent next fall in an effort to keep up with rising inflation, college officials said.

The increase will raise tuition to $600 per semester, up from this fall's $575.

Shuttle test effort expanded

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — Morton Thiokol, intent on preventing future disasters such as the destruction of the space shuttle Challenger, is adding "a belt to the suspenders" in its exhaustive test program of the newly redesigned shuttle motor.

"We have substantially expanded our test effort," company spokesman Gil Moore said Monday. "We are conducting thousands of tests of hundreds of different types" on new designs ranging from joints in the booster rockets to the nozzle insulators.

Morton Thiokol on Monday invited reporters for a whirlwind tour of various test areas, giving them a first-hand look at much of the newly redesigned booster hardware.

Failure of a seal on a rocket booster has been blamed for the Jan. 28 explosion of the Challenger and subsequent deaths of its seven-member crew. The Rogers Commission, charged by President Reagan with finding the cause of the explosion, recommended, among other things, that the booster rocket joint be redesigned.

NASA is in the process of dispatching a 20-member team to oversee the redesign process, said Royce Mitchell, shuttle rocket manager for the space agency since September.

"I can only say we're adding a belt to the suspenders," he said. "We're doing testing and more testing to be sure it doesn't ever happen again."

He said the NASA team, which he called the "cream of the crop," moved to Morton Thiokol's Wasatch Operations in northern Utah to speed up the review and cut red tape with on-site government representatives.

Morton Thiokol already has conducted two test firings of simulated rocket boosters to pinpoint why superheated gases burned through O-rings in the booster joint and ignited the shuttle's large external tank, triggering the fatal shuttle blast little more than a minute into takeoff.

Engineers have redesigned the joint, incorporating a metal lip and using a third seal. However, that joint has not been tested in the two previous tests. Morton Thiokol focused on the composition of the O-rings and new joint hardware is scheduled to be tested early in January, 1987.

Incumbent keeps seat due to ruling

POCATELLO (AP) — Bannock County Prosecutor Larry EchoHawk has decided that 910 absentee ballots are valid, and that means incumbent Democrat County Clerk Larry Ghan has squeaked out an narrow election victory.

EchoHawk announced Monday he has decided the absentee ballots are valid and should be counted, even though they did not technically comply with state election laws. That means Ghan unofficially wins re-election over independent Kathy Lacey Schless.

EchoHawk said ballots clearly were not marked with the official election stamp but concluded the error was unintentional and should not disenfranchise voters.

"The Idaho law says the ballots are to be stamped with the official election stamp and clearly that did not happen in the absentee precinct," he said, "but all indications are this was a clerical error, and we have found nothing to show that this was either intentional or fraudulent."

National title might not be settled Jan. 1

Miami eyes Florida bowls

By HERSCHEL NISSENON
The Associated Press

If No. 1-ranked Miami and No. 2 Penn State remain unbeaten, they will stage a national championship showdown in either the Fiesta, Florida Citrus or Gator Bowl.

Miami would like to play in the state of Florida for the home-field advantage. Penn State's preference apparently is the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe, Ariz.

Since The Associated Press adopted the practice of voting for the national champion after the bowl games in 1968, only twice have two major independent teams gone through the regular season unbeaten and united.

It happened in 1973 when third-ranked Notre Dame was 10-0 and No. 6 Penn State 11-0. Notre Dame won the national championship by defeating top-ranked Alabama 24-23 in the Sugar Bowl, while Penn State beat Louisiana State 16-9 in the Orange Bowl.

In 1976, top-rated Pittsburgh and No. 17 Rutgers were 11-0. Pitt wound up on top by defeating Georgia 27-3 in the Sugar Bowl, but Rutgers remained unbeaten, untied, uninvited and unselected, finishing No. 17.

Miami and Penn State are 9-0 after the Hurricanes downed Pitt 47-10 and the Nittany Lions edged Maryland 17-15 Saturday. Their national championship showdown still is alive.

Miami has home games against Tulsa on Nov. 15 and East Carolina on Nov. 27. Penn State visits Notre Dame next Saturday and plays Pitt at home Nov. 22, the official bowl selection date.

The Fiesta, Florida Citrus and Gator Bowls had representatives with Miami and Penn State on Saturday and all three claimed they will be competitive money-wise with the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls, which have conference tie-ups and can't invite both Miami and Penn State.

"If all things were equal, we definitely would like to play in the Orange Bowl," Miami Athletic Director Sam Jankovich said. "That's our community, that's where our fans would be and it would be a very good thing for our program."

But the Orange Bowl host team is the Big Eight champion, so Miami and Penn State must look elsewhere. Don Meyers, chairman of the Tempe, Ariz.-based Fiesta Bowl's selection committee, said Penn State "has expressed a preference to play on a neutral field outside of Florida, and the only one that's really available to them is the Fiesta Bowl."

However, Jankovich said, "I don't think Penn State can call the shot where the game is going to be played. We'll work at it together and see where it goes. I think that we would be in a position, if we're undecided, that we could play a significant role where we're going to play it."

Only in 1974, when Oklahoma was on probation and couldn't play in a bowl game, and 1984, when Brigham Young completed a 13-0 season in the Holiday Bowl, has the national champion not come out of the Cotton, Orange, Rose or Sugar Bowls since the final poll has been taken after the bowls.

Money will not be a problem for the Fiesta, Citrus and Gator Bowls, all of which say they can match the approximate $2.5 million each team could expect from the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls. The Rose Bowl is a closed corporation involving the Big Ten and Pacific-10 conferences.

The Fiesta Bowl paid about $1.8 million apiece to Michigan and Nebraska last year and this year's payoff would have been about $1.25 million per team.

But Meyers said the Fiesta recently completed an arrangement with Sunlight (its corporate sponsor) and NBC-TV "which provides us with a package, that in the event we are able to match up a national championship game, we have the availability of additional funds to pay the teams whatever they would receive from another New Year's Day Bowl."

He said the Fiesta Bowl would cover any extra travel costs and secure reduced hotel rates for the two teams.

Chuck Rohe, executive director of the Orlando, Fla.-based Citrus Bowl, said, "We were going to pay around $800,000 a team this year (Ohio State and BYU made $750,000 last year), but we will be able to put together a package that will pay competitive with the Orange, Sugar and Cotton."

The Gator Bowl expects to announce a corporate sponsor, reportedly Mazda — later this week, according to John Bell, president of the Jacksonville, Fla., bowl.

"We're interested in the (Miami-Penn State) game from the standpoint that we have a stadium that will accommodate it and we're not tied to a conference," Bell said. "I think our money will be competitive."

Miami does not have as large a following as some schools and its fans were drowned out by those from Tennessee in last year's 35-7 Sugar Bowl loss. The Hurricanes can be relaxed now that they've defeated the prospect of a 1-2 shootout with Alabama or Auburn at New Orleans, where the Southeastern Conference champ is the home team.

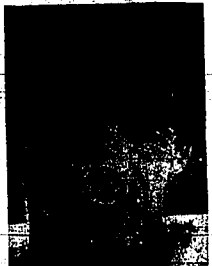

"There are many things to consider other than money," Jankovich said. "We want what we would get out of the three major bowls, but we don't want anything more than that because we do not want it to be a competitive bidding war."

"From that point on we have to find out what bowl can handle the media, the biggest of the game, because it could be one of the biggest college football games in history."

Federico sidelined for year

By The Times-News

CORKY FEDERICO
Knee damage

POCATELLO — Twin Falls' Corky Federico, the starting fullback at Idaho State University, will be sidelined for the rest of season with a knee injury.

The 5-foot-10, 210-pound junior bruised his knee in practice on Oct. 23: He didn't play two days later when the Bengals lost to Weber State, but he saw some action in Idaho State's 44-14 loss to Nevada-Reno on Nov. 1. Doctors cast the knee late last week, and it will be immobilized for several weeks.

According to ISU sports information director Glenn Alford, the jury involves the stretching of a ligament at the back of the knee. The ligament can't be repaired to arthroscopic surgery, which is the most common way of treating damaged ligaments, so doctors put a cast of the knee to allow it to heal by itself. Alford said Federico should be able to avoid surgery as a result.

It was the second time in as many years that Federico's season has been cut short by injury. He sustained a shoulder injury late last season that required surgery. In seven games this season, Federico carried the ball 71 times for 318 yards and three touchdowns. He caught 14 passes for 92 yards and returned two kickoffs for 40 yards.

Federico's place in the Bengals' starting lineup was filled by Merrill Hoge, ISU's record-setting fullback, until Hoge went down with an injury in the Nevada-Reno game. Frank Sello, a junior, started at fullback last week against Northern Arizona and may play there in the Bengals' season-ending game Saturday against Montana.

Cleveland wins big with Kosar

Browns 26, Miami 16

By CHUCK MELVIN
The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Bernie Kosar saw no need to gloat, even though his best performance ever was witnessed by a sold-out Cleveland Stadium crowd and a national television audience Monday night.

"I don't look at it as myself showing people what I'm capable of doing," the second-year Cleveland quarterback said after he threw for 401 yards to lead the Browns past the Miami Dolphins 26-16. "I look at it as our team showing what it can do."

Kosar, who endured three dropped touchdown passes by his teammates and two other nullified scores, completed 32 of 50 passes without an interception — and without a touchdown.

"I'd be pretty bummed out if we'd lost," he said.

However, the 22-year-old refused to criticize his teammates for their foibles.

"The balls were a little slick out there," he said. "I was having trouble holding onto it, and so I can see how receivers might, too."

Kosar's pinpoint passing set up four short-Matt Bahr field goals and touchdown runs of 16 yards by Harry Holt and 12 yards by Curtis Dickey. Kosar had never before thrown for more than 300 yards in a game. His previous best was a 293-yard performance in a loss to the Cincinnati Bengals in September.

"That was a thorough job they did on us tonight," said Dolphins Coach Don Shula, who watched his team fall to 4-6. "Kosar did a good job of moving the ball around and mixing up the offensive formations."

"It was a big game if we were going to get back into the playoff race. Now ... we're in tough shape."

The Browns, who improved to 7-3 after their sixth victory in the last seven games, lead the Cincinnati Bengals by a game in the AFC Central Division.

Cleveland led only 16-10 at halftime despite dominating the half statistically, outgaining the Dolphins 351 yards to 176. The Browns finished with 558 total yards.

Miami quarterback Dan Marino threw three 41-yard touchdown passes to Mark Duper and Faud Revezik during a 21-yard field goal to keep the

L.A. benches Wilson for Plunkett

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP) — Coach Tom Flores of the Los Angeles Raiders has long maintained that he wouldn't get drawn into a quarterback controversy and that when he made a change at that position, it would not be temporary.

He backed up that philosophy Monday, a day after replacing Marc Wilson at halftime of his team's 17-13 victory over the Cowboys at Dallas, when he named Jim Plunkett to start next Sunday's game against the Cleveland Browns.

Plunkett, who turns 39 next month, is the second-oldest player in the NFL behind San Diego wide receiver Charlie Joiner, who turned 39 on last month.

In his 16th NFL season, Plunkett was relegated to backup chores behind Wilson this year, although he had hoped to have the chance to compete for the starting job in training camp.

When Wilson's fortunes continued to sag at Dallas, Flores made a rare mid-game change. That Plunkett completed seven of 12 passes for 119 yards and two touchdowns in leading the Raider comeback was obviously a factor in Flores' decision.

More importantly, though, while Plunkett has excelled in his limited playing time this year — two starts and two relief appearances — Wilson has been on the skids.

A week earlier in a critical loss to AFC West-leading Denver, Wilson passed for a career-high 367 yards but was also intercepted four times and had a costly fumble. In the first half at Dallas, he was intercepted three times and also lost a fumble.

The net result — Seven interceptions and two fumbles lost in six quarters.

"Jim gave us a big lift and came up with some big plays," said Flores, who hedged his words slightly on Monday, then came out with the decision to demote Wilson and elevate Plunkett.

"I haven't made a real decision," said Flores, "but it looks like Jim will be our starter Sunday."

Later, apparently because he had not talked to either quarterback at the time he was meeting with the media, Flores again couched his words.

JIM PLUNKETT
Welcome relief

"I'm leaning to Jim at this point," he said.

Spartans, Bruin girls debut with key games

By The Times-News

Twin Falls' and Minico's girls' basketball teams will have to hit the ground running when they open their regular-season high school schedules tonight.

The Bruins will visit Pocatello for an 8 p.m. contest against two-time defending state Class A-1 and Gem State Conference champion Highland, while Minico will host Pocatello in another Region III contest at the same hour.

The games are significant because they count toward determining who will host the regional tournament, from which two teams will advance to the state A-1 tournament.

Minico is ranked second in the state in a preseason coaches' poll compiled by Coach Tom Campbell of Boise's Capital High School. Pocatello, which went to state as the champion of Region III last year, received several votes.

Tonight will be first-year Minico Coach Val Christensen's debut as coach of the Spartans.

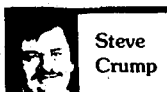

Twin Falls' home opener will be a GSC contest against Idaho Falls Friday night.

Burley, the other A-1 team in Region III, will tackle its first A-1 competition Thursday night when the Bobcats visit Pocatello. Burley is 2-0 following season-opening victories last weekend over A-2 Shelley and Marsh Valley.

Don't bet the rent money on Vandals making I-AA playoffs this year

Folks around the University of Idaho's football program are talking as if victories over Weber State this Saturday and Boise State next week will put the Vandals into the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

Don't hold your breath if you're an Idaho fan. Idaho is 6-3 at the moment, in third place in the Big Sky Conference with a 3-2 league record. That's behind Nevada-Reno, which is 10-0 and 6-0, and Northern Arizona, 7-3 and 5-1. The Idaho scenario is that Nevada-Reno will beat NAU in the two teams' regular season finale in Reno on Saturday, leaving the Wolf Pack with the Big Sky title and

Steve Crump
NAU at 7-4 overall and 5-2 in conference. If Idaho wins its last two games it will be 8-3 and 5-2, and the theory goes, the NCAA committee that selects the representatives to the I-AA playoffs couldn't pass on a team like that — especially with the playoffs expanding to 16 teams this year. It could, and it just might. Consider:

- All 20 teams ranked in this week's I-AA poll — and that isn't — have better records than Idaho.
- In the Western Region, which includes the Gulf Star and Southland conferences as well as a Big Sky, five teams have better records than the Vandals. Since the Western Region makes up one-fourth of I-AA, it is theoretically supposed to get four teams in the playoffs.
- The first tie-breaking criterion as far as the I-AA committee is concerned is head-to-head record. NAU beat Idaho 24-0 2 1/2 weeks ago.
- Twice before, Big Sky teams have ended the regular season with three losses and not been invited to the playoffs — Idaho at 8-3 in 1983 and Montana at 7-3 in 1981. In both cases, they had lost to the Big Sky team that went on to get the at-large invitation: Idaho to Idaho State in '83 and Montana to Boise State in '81.
- The I-AA postseason committee has a track record of inviting at-large teams with prospects of drawing good crowds, such as those that play indoors. The Kibbie Dome has no advantage over Flaggstaff's Walkup Skydome in that regard.
- Less than three weeks from the postseason selection date, Idaho didn't generate enough support among the I-AA pollsters to be ranked in the top 20.

The selection committee, which is made up of one athletic director from each of regions, will get together via conference call on Sunday. It will be following the final game of the regular season. The automatic invitations to the champions of 10 of the 11 conferences in I-AA (the Ivy League champ doesn't get a bid because it doesn't participate in postseason competition) that leaves seven at-large invitations up for grabs.

The committee is supposed to issue those

Bowls

There are the players and the coaches to consider and there are other things that I'm not at liberty to talk about now."

However, he indicated that he might be easier to deal with if Penn State — among others — would agree to some regular-season games with the Hurricanes.

"College football television going the way it is — (i.e., reduced rights fees), we would like to bolster our schedule," he said. "We'd like to know who could help us acquire some new teams on our schedule. Can we get assistance from other teams or people who have contacts that would help us in our scheduling?"

"We would hope that if we would play Penn State that they would consider playing Miami during the regular season because those are the bowl game that the Dolphins would team deserves to play and we surely would hope that (Penn State Coach) Joe Paterno would consider that."

"We have to keep our fans in mind. We have to look at the number of seats that would be available, how would they be able to accommodate the number of fans. I think that one of the things that we will be looking at this year, if the (Miami) Dolphins do not make it to the (NFL) playoffs, it would be the first time in the four years that we've gone to a bowl game that the Dolphins would not be involved in a playoff at that time, so I think that we would have a much greater following no matter where we go."

The bowls also say they don't want a bidding war.

"What we have told them is that we will be able to pay as much as they could receive from any other New Year's Day bowl other than the Rose Bowl," Meyers said. "We assume that's going to be in the range of $2.5-2.6 million."

"What we've said to them is, 'If we extend a bid to you, would you have some interest?' They both said, 'Yes, we have.'"

Rohe is trying to convince Miami to remain close to home.

"There are other people involved (besides the Florida Citrus Commission and ABC-TV), other big advertisers who will be involved," he said.

"We think there are good reasons for them to stay in the state of Florida. Obviously, it's a little more of a home game if it's in Orlando, Fla., than if it's in Phoenix, Ariz. Their fans can travel easily and they'll have a good contingent in Orlando."

"It's very good for their recruiting — central Florida is a hotbed of high-school talent. They do a lot of recruiting there. I don't know that they have an Arizona player on their roster (they have one, punter Jeff Feagles). It's going to do them a lot more good there in the home state, I think — fund-raising, everything else — if they can play a national championship game in Florida."

College football

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Yeoman, who built the University of Houston into a football power and led the Cougars to four SWC titles, said Monday he will resign at the end of the current season.

College football

Yeoman, in his 25th season at the Houston school, said he would remain at the SWC school in another position to honor the remaining three years of his contract.

College football

Yeoman made the disclosure to sportsman Craig Roberts, who hosts Yeoman's weekly television show on station KPCC. The coach said he would become a special assistant to the university chancellor and would concentrate on fund raising and public relations.

College football

Yeoman said recent criticism of the football program had nothing to do with his decision. "A lot of people will think that's the reason but it's not," Yeoman said. "I've got a pretty crusty old hide."

College football

The Associated Press could not reach Yeoman immediately for further comment. Roberts said the school likely would make the announcement officially on Tuesday.

College football

Yeoman, 58, will take a 166-106-8 record into Saturday's game against Texas Tech. The Cougars are 1-8 this season, assuring Yeoman of his second consecutive losing season. The team won the conference title in 1984.

College football

Yeoman will be stepping aside with the entire Houston athletic program surrounded by controversy. Two former players have claimed that Yeoman and his staff paid players and allowed them to play while ineligible. Twelve players flunked out of school following last season and 10 of his 28 recruits from 1985 were ruled scholastically ineligible.

College football

The school's athletic program was $3 million in debt before this season and attendance has continued to dwindle. Only 10,125 fans turned out in the Astrodom to see the Cougars' last home game against Texas Christian, an all-time low.

Guidry, Armas join veterans filing to get their free agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees and outfielder Tony Armas of the American League champion Boston Red Sox were two of eight players who declared for free agency Monday, bringing to 57 the number of major league baseball players on the list.

Baseball

Guidry, a 36-year-old left-hander, was 9-17 with a 3.38 ERA last season, failing to win in double figures for the first time in 12 major league seasons.

Baseball

Guidry has a lifetime mark of 163-80 and won the AL's Cy Young award in 1978 when he went 25-3 with a 1.74 ERA.

Baseball

Armas, a center fielder, had 11 homers and 58 runs batted in for the Red Sox this year but did not start in the World Series after spraining his ankle in the playoffs against the California Angels.

Baseball

Armas came to Boston in an 1983 trade with Oakland. In 1984 he hit 43 homers and drove in 123 runs. The last two seasons he was bothered by several injuries.

Baseball

The others declaring their free agency were outfielders Lonnie Smith of Kansas City, Jim Dwyer of Baltimore and Davey Lopes of Houston, and pitchers Joe Sambito of Boston and Vida Blue of San Francisco.

Baseball

Smith, a left fielder, batted .287 with eight homers and 44 RBI for the Royals. He also scored 80 runs in 508 at-bats.

Baseball

Dwyer, a veteran left fielder and pinch hitter, had a .244 average in 160 at-bats for the Orioles with eight homers and 31 RBIs.

Baseball

Lopes was a utility player for the National League West Division champion Astros, batting .275 with 35 RBI and seven homers in 255 at-bats.

Baseball

The left-hander Sambito was picked up by the Red Sox after being released at the end of the 1985 season by the New York Mets. He worked 44.9 innings in 53 appearances for the Red Sox with a 2.0 record, 4.84 ERA and 12 saves.

Baseball

Blue, a right fielder, batted .277 with eight homers and 44 RBI for the Royals. He also scored 80 runs in 508 at-bats.

Journeyman Collins signs with Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — Free-agent outfielder Dave Collins signed with the Montreal Expos Monday, his fifth team in four years.

Baseball

Expos General Manager Murray Cook said the signing of Collins, who played with Detroit in 1986, does not conflict with the club's policy of avoiding high-priced free agents.

Baseball

"We'll look at anybody who will help us, but that doesn't mean we'll get into a bidding war," Cook said after announcing he signed Collins to a one-year deal.

Baseball

"Collins didn't go on the list voluntarily. He was a free agent because he was released to resolve his situation as quickly as possible."

Baseball

The terms of the contract were not disclosed, but Collins said he would be taking a significant pay cut from the five-year multi-million dollar guaranteed contract he signed with the New York Yankees in 1981 after leaving Cincinnati.

Baseball

The others declaring their free agency were outfielders Lonnie Smith of Kansas City, Jim Dwyer of Baltimore and Davey Lopes of Houston, and pitchers Joe Sambito of Boston and Vida Blue of San Francisco.

A-3s, Buhl open tournament with wins

By The Times-News

JEROME — Two Canyon Conference teams carried the other leagues' notice Monday night as Valley and Glenns Ferry sailed to victories in the opening round of the Magic Valley Invitational girls' basketball tournament.

Buhl, a 42-32 winner, over Filer, prevented an A-3 sweep, thanks in large part to the shooting of Nancy Stevens and Gayla Smutny, who combined for 23 points.

Filer's Debra Peters led the losing effort with five field goals and 10 points, but the first half lead proved to be insurmountable.

Valley beat Bliss 43-30 in the tournament's first game despite a four-period three-point blitz by Bliss' Pauline Sears. Sears hit the trio late in the game, but by that time, Valley had chalked up a non-conference win. Joy Schutte led the Vikings with 18 points, including five field goals in that last period.

Glenns Ferry — turned back a spunky defensive effort by their hosts in the first period to go out in front 28-9 at the half. Pilot Barb Johannek canned three from the field in the second period, ending up with 41 points for the night. Glenns' Shari Dana, playing with a full-leg brace, was credited with leading the Vikings with 16 points, including two game-ending field goals.

The tournament will continue tonight and run through Thursday. Gooding and Oakley will conclude first-round action at 5 p.m., with second-round games scheduled for 6:30 and 8 p.m.

Briefly in Sports

Ricks bound for bowl

REXBURG (AP) — The Ricks College football team will make its third junior college post-season bowl appearance Dec. 6 when the Vikings play Coffeyville Community College of Kansas in the 4th annual Kansas Jayhawk Bowl Classic, school officials said.

"We are delighted to be playing an opponent of the caliber of Coffeyville," said Brent Kinghorn, community services vice president. "The game has national championship potential with the two toughest junior college football conferences represented."

Ricks, ranked third nationally with a 9-0-1 record, won its first Western States Football League championship Saturday when it defeated No. 10 Phoenix College 22-14 in Rexburg.

Coffeyville was idle last week after having won the Kansas Junior College Conference title Nov. 1. Coffeyville, 8-0 and ranked second in the nation, has one game remaining before the bowl game.

The Vikings have appeared in the Valley of the Sun Bowl in 1981 and 1984 and have a 1-1 post-season record.

Indians to be sold

CLEVELAND (AP) — The sale of the Cleveland-Indians to suburban Westlake developers Richard E. and David H. Jacobs will be made official Thursday, according to a published report.

The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer reported in its early Tuesday edition that the Jacobs brothers made their decision last week to buy the American League team in a total assets deal estimated to be worth close to $34 million.

The next step is for the purchase to be ratified by IBC Corp., the corporate general partner of the Indians, at a Thursday meeting of IBC's seven shareholders at Cleveland Stadium, the newspaper said.

The deal comes more than three years after the major-league baseball franchise was placed on the market by F.J. "Steve" O'Neill, the late majority owner, before his death in the summer of 1983.

The Jacobs brothers began negotiating for the Indians in July.

Bowie out for season

OREGON CITY, Ore. (AP) — Sam Bowie, whose latest leg injury probably will sideline him for the rest of the NBA season, refuses to feel sorry for himself.

"There are reasons for everything," the Portland Trail Blazers center said from his hospital bed Saturday. "Right now it's just a little hard to see the reason for this."

This is Bowie's right leg, which snapped Friday night in the fourth quarter of the Blazers' 120-113 victory over Dallas.

"I've never been an individual who says, 'Why me?' And I won't say it now. It's rather it happened to me than to other people. I know I can handle it," he said.

Bowie vows to return to the team when his leg heals. Dr. Robert Cook, the Blazers' team physician, said Saturday that it's unlikely Bowie will return to the lineup this season.

Pease honored by BSC

BOISE (AP) — University of Montana quarterback Brent Pease and University of Nevada-Reno linebacker Mike Lazovich have been named the Big Sky Conference football players of the week.

Pease, a senior from Mountain Home, guided Montana to a 55-29 victory at Weber State with three touchdown passes. He passed for 450 yards, the top mark in the Big Sky this season and the third best in league history. Pease also rushed six times for three touchdowns, setting a Big Sky season best of six touchdowns.

Lazovich, a sophomore from Reno, was instrumental in Nevada-Reno's first win at Boise State to help the Wolf Pack retain their No. 1 ranking in the NCAA Division I-AA. Lazovich was credited with 17 tackles as Nevada-Reno limited the Broncos to 294 yards in total offense in the 21-16 victory.

Juker keep position

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Rob Juker of Buhl remains in second place in the official Wrestling Tour steering committee standings released by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association this week.

Juker, who competes with the Valvoline team, has earned $11,867 on the Winston Tour this season. That puts him a little less than $4,000 behind the event leader, Butch Myers of Welda, Kansas, who competes for the Hesston team.

The standings include seven of the eight scheduled 1986 rodeos on the Winston Tour.

Valvoline ranks eighth in the team standings with 271 points, down from sixth place two weeks ago. Jolly Rancher is the team leader with 350 points.

Cooper, Juker move up

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Kent Cooper of Albion and Rob Juker of Buhl have moved up in their specialties in the latest standings released by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

But Mickey Young of Jerome has fallen a notch in the PRCA bareback riding rankings.

The ratings, which are based upon money earned this season, show Cooper moving up from ninth to eighth in saddle bronc riding with earnings of $41,706 so far this season. That's a little less than $39,000 behind the event leader, Clint Johnson of Spearfish, S.D.

Juker, a steer wrestler, has advanced from 13th to 10th place from the rankings of two weeks ago. He's earned $35,394 this season, more than $33,000 behind event leader Chris Lybbert of Argyle, Texas.

Young slipped from eighth to ninth over the past two weeks in his specialty. He's earned $34,787, a little less than $40,000 behind event leader Clint Corey of Silverdale, Wash.

Packers' QB OK

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Randy Wright of the Green Bay Packers of the NFL was released from St. Vincent Hospital Monday, and Coach Forrest Gregg said Wright probably would be available for Sunday's game against Tampa Bay.

Wright was knocked out of last Sunday's game against the Washington Redskins late in the second quarter. Wright, who had a concussion and neck sprain, spent the night in the hospital after undergoing tests.

A scrambling Wright went down with less than a minute to play in the first half after he was hit by defensive end Charles Mann. Mann was penalized for using his head to tackle Wright after a pass had been thrown.

Benefit for cancer society slated at CSI

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — An American Cancer Society benefit, a rare showing in the capital city and then the return of international competition winds up a busy week that will bring

College of Southern Idaho into its 1986-87 basketball season.

The Eagles will take on some of the local talent in the Cancer Society at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the CSI gymnasium.

Miss Idaho Jennifer Hovey, honorary state chairman of this year's drive, will be on hand. Her brother, Eric Hovey, a member of the 1976 national championship team, is heading up the team that will give the Golden Eagles a reason for being on the floor.

invitations so that the top 16 I-AA teams in the country make the playoffs.

If that happened right now, the automatic bids would go to No. 4 Eastern Illinois, unranked Massachusetts, No. 7 Appalachian State, No. 12 Jackson State, No. 13 North Carolina A&T and No. 15 Sam Houston State; they've already clinched their respective league championships. So has No. 2 Holy Cross of the Colonial Conference, but Crusaders won't be participating in postseason, which probably means that runner-up Lehigh will get an automatic berth. The Big Sky, Southern and Ohio Valley conference titles have yet to be decided, but whether they win or lose their league championships this Saturday, No. 1 Nevada-Reno and second-ranked Arkansas State have locks on postseason because of their records.

Depending upon what happens in the final two weeks, that leaves between four and six spots for the committee to fill.

It will start with the Independents — there are eight of them in I-AA — three of which are ranked in the top 10. So give No. 9 Tennessee State (9-0-1) an invitation to postseason and No. 6 William & Mary another provision the Indians don't lose their final two regular-season games — at unlikely prospect since they're 8-1 at the moment. Defending I-AA national champion Georgia Southern, 7-2 and ranked fifth, is also a strong candidate for the playoffs unless the Eagles lose their final two regular-season games.

That leaves between one and three at-large invitations. If they went to the top remaining teams, the at-large berths could go to the loser of Saturday's game between 10th-ranked Akron and No. 14 Eastern Kentucky (the winner gets an automatic berth as OVC champion); unranked Northeast Louisiana, if it beats Arkansas State for the Southland Conference title on Nov. 22; No. 12 Delaware; No. 17 Nicholas State; No. 19 Delaware State; No. 20 New Hampshire — or perhaps No. 18 Northern Arizona, which was ranked in the I-AA poll for the first time this week.

If the Lumberjacks win Saturday, they will be the Big Sky champions and Reno will get an at-large berth. But what if NAU loses to the Wolf Pack?

The short answer is that if there are 16 teams remaining in I-AA with less than three losses, neither NAU nor Idaho will be invited. If the choice comes down to NAU, Idaho or some other team, the Vandals have two factors in their favor:

The point system that the I-AA postseason committee uses in picking the representatives to the playoffs favors Idaho over NAU. The Vandals have played two Division I-AA teams this season and beat one of them — Fullerton State. The Lumberjacks haven't played a I-AA school this season and lost to one of the Division II teams they played — Southern Utah State.

Under the formula, a I-AA school gets two points for scheduling a Division II opponent and two more for beating it; three points for scheduling a I-AA school and three points for beating it, and four points for playing a I-AA school and four points for beating it. By that calculus, NAU currently has 48 points to Idaho's 46. But if the Lumberjacks lose to UNR and Idaho wins its final two games, the Vandals will have a 56-51 advantage.

- No Big Sky team with four losses — which NAU would have if it loses to Reno — has ever received an at-large invitation to the playoffs.
- The Vandals are a known quantity, having won the Big Sky title last year and ended the 1985 season ranked fifth in the I-AA poll. NAU has never been to the playoffs.

In the 7½ seasons that Division I-AA has been in existence, the Big Sky has sent two teams to the playoffs on five different occasions. The conference is highly regarded in I-AA ranks by virtue of winning three national championships in the last six years.

Whether it is regarded well enough to get a second team into the playoffs (if there are 16 better teams around remains to be seen).

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"We owe almost all our knowledge not to those who have agreed but to those who have differed."

In today's slam, if South tries to set up his own hand, he'll have lots of company but he'll also have lots of trouble. The way to score the slam is to think of dummy as the master hand and then plan accordingly.

South's splinter raise is a modern tool showing a singleton spade and a hand worth a jump to four hearts over the one-heart response. South bid the slam after a series of contract-showing cue-bids.

A much better plan is to establish dummy's spade ace wins, how should South proceed? If he thinks in terms of establishing his own hand, he will try to ruff spade losers in dummy. Later, when he also tries to establish dummy's diamonds, he will run into problems and the net result will be a score for the defense.

The correct plan is to establish dummy's spade ace wins, how should South proceed? If he thinks in terms of establishing his own hand, he will try to ruff spade losers in dummy. Later, when he also tries to establish dummy's diamonds, he will run into problems and the net result will be a score for the defense.

Nation's corn crop busts bins

By DON KENDALL The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Farmers are getting record yields from this fall's corn harvest, despite problems with wet fields in parts of the Corn Belt.

Based on surveys made Nov. 1, the crop is estimated at 8.22 billion bushels, about the same as the forecast last month but 7 percent smaller than the record 1985 harvest of 8.87 billion bushels.

With bumper yields and huge global supplies, grain prices continue to be depressed. Larger-than-expected yields in the Soviet Union also are adding to the world supply, thus dampening market prices further.

The department's Agricultural Statistics Board said corn yields could average 119.3 bushels per acre up from the previous record of 118 bushels per acre in 1985.

Wet weather delayed harvest progress in late September and early October, but since "has been fairly good for field work, the report said.

"Some fields are still very wet, and dry weather is needed to enable farmers to get the heavy harvesting equipment into the fields," the report said.

In a related report, USDA economists projected the farm price of corn at $1.35 to $1.65 per bushel in the marketing year that began Sept. 1.

Soybean production, estimated at 2.01 billion bushels, is up 1 percent from the October forecast but 4 percent less than the 1985 harvest.

The cotton harvest was estimated at 8.87 million bales, down 1 percent from October and 20 percent below the 1985 harvest of 13.4 million bales.

According to USDA economists, net farm income this year may decline to a range of $55 billion to $70 billion from $80.8 billion in calendar 1985.

Retail food prices are expected to rise 3 percent to 3.2 percent in 1986, compared with the average 2.3 percent in 1985.

The report said the "all crops" production index as of Nov. 1 was 108 percent of the base year of 1977, the same as forecast in October but down from 116 percent in 1985.

Other crops included: Sorghum, 960 million bushels and 68.7 bushels per acre, compared with 1.1 billion and 66.7 last year.

Rice, 131.3 million hundredweight and 5,626 pounds per acre, compared with 136 million and 5,437 last year.

Potatoes, 322.3 million hundredweight and 290 hundredweight per acre, compared with 307 million and 290 last year.

Peas, 2.45 billion pounds and a yield of 2,867 pounds per acre, compared with 4.1 billion pounds and 2,810 pounds last year.

Tobacco, 1.19 billion pounds and a yield of 1,977 pounds per acre, compared with 1.5 billion and 2,196 last year.

Takeover talk dominates quiet stock market

By CHET CURRIER The Associated Press

NEW YORK - The stock market squeezed out a small gain Monday in a quiet session dominated by takeover news and conjecture.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, after showing a small loss for most of the day, closed with a 5.76 gain at 1,892.29.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange tallied off to 120.22 million shares from 142.30 million Friday.

As the pace of trading tapered off, Wall Streeters were looking ahead to an even quieter day on Tuesday.

but the government securities market and many individual businesses will be closed for Veterans Day.

Among stocks in the spotlight Monday, E.F. Hutton dropped 2 1/2 to 46 after preliminary merger talks between the company and Shearson American Express broke off.

Wickes Corp. involved in two takeover deals, climbed to 4 1/2 as the most active American Stock Exchange issue.

Collins & Aikman, traded on the NYSE, jumped 1 1/2 to 52 1/2 after Wickes said it agreed to a friendly takeover of Collins & Aikman for $53 a share.

said it had acquired a 9.8 percent stake in Lear Siegler and plans to propose a merger.

Harris Corp. gained 2 1/2 to 35 1/2 on takeover talk. The company said it knew of no reason for the activity in its shares.

Borg-Warner, also discussed as a possible takeover candidate, added 2 to 41.

In the overall, all-ny-on-the-Big-Board, advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 7 to 6, with 847 up, 728 down and 440 unchanged.

Airline mergers shoot down fare wars

The recent trend in the airline industry has been toward the larger airlines swallowing the small.

The result: Kiss goodbye to the fare wars that brought us the lowest of the low in airline ticket prices.

Will it still be possible for us to fly at low, affordable rates? Airline executives reply: Yes! But already there have been increases.

On Oct. 26, there was a price rise among most of the major airlines on unreserved fares. Costs were hiked $10 for distances under 1,000 miles and $20 for longer trips.

At this time, we may not see the competitive fare-slashing we've grown to expect since deregulation.

Since deregulation in 1978, consumers have saved $2 billion per year in benefits, including lower fares and increased service, reports the Brookings Institution.

Airline deregulation promoted competition. The threat of a new airline entering the market is a factor that kept the larger airlines responsive to the consumer.

But the reality today is that entry by a new carrier is tough.

"There are a limited number of slots at airports for newcomers," says Christopher Witkowski, execu-

And according to the complaints received by the Department of Transportation, this seems to be the case.

The No. 1 complaint made by passengers concerned flight problems such as cancellations, delays and irregularities.

Of all complaints, 34 percent concerned flight problems. It's no surprise that the low-budget, no-frills airlines were often the targets of a substantial number of these complaints.

Are we seeing a change in attitude on the part of the consumer and the airlines?

Some, delays do not matter; cost is a priority. But most people want to be able to rely on getting to their destination as scheduled with as few hassles as possible.

"Consumers were screaming for cheap, cheap flights. But no company could maintain quality service for a passenger and his baggage at those prices," says Harriet Emerson, a national director of the American Society of Travel Agents.

What, then, are the keys to getting the best fares and services?

Booking early is your best bet. But there are penalties for changes and cancellations. If you're flexible, you can typically get less expensive flights with restrictions.

Use travel agents more than ever before. But be specific when booking a flight. If you want the cheapest flight to get you there as soon as possible, ask for it!

If it's a reputable travel agency, you should be able to get the best deal for your particular needs.

You deserve what you pay for, so a flight that's too cheap is a flight you don't want.

If you're dumped involuntarily, for example, if the airline does not get you to your destination within an hour of your original arrival time, it is required to pay you compensation equal to your fare with a maximum of $200.

After two hours, it doubles, with $400 maximum.

"Make sure to note the time. Also insist on receiving your compensation right there. If not, the law requires the airline to mail it within 24 hours," reports Witkowski.

Sylvia Porter writes on consumer matters.

Sylvia Porter

the director of the Aviation Consumer Action Project, a Washington, D.C., consumer group.

"Our concern is that a few major airlines will control most of the air traffic," he adds.

Continental Denver, which used to have three major carriers: United, Continental and Frontier. Texas Air Corp. acquired both United and most of Frontier with United buying some of Frontier's assets.

Now there are only two major competitors: Continental and United. Frontier is gone and so are its low, no-frills flights, which once fell as low as $9 on some one-way tickets.

Frontier Airlines and People Express, which also went bankrupt by Texas Air, offered extremely low prices, but did not offer the services of the larger airlines.

"No service is not what the consumer wants," says a spokesman for Continental Airlines.

Burroughs reappears as Unisys

DETROIT (AP) — Burroughs Corp. swollen by its acquisition of Sperry Corp. into the world's second-largest computer manufacturer, on Monday adopted a new name: Unisys Corp.

Chosen from 31,000 suggestions submitted by Burroughs and Sperry employees, the name is meant to suggest united information systems, but those words won't be part of the new corporate logo, said W. Michael Blumenthal, Unisys chairman.

Adoption of the name ends a century of office-equipment production under the name Burroughs. The company, established in 1886 to make adding machines, was named after its founder, William Seward Burroughs.

Sperry was founded in 1910 as the Sperry Gyroscope Co.

Burroughs became No. 2 in the industry, after International Business Machines Corp., with the $4.78 billion acquisition in September of Sperry, which at the time was moving its headquarters from New York to Blue Bell, Pa. Unisys will have dual headquarters, in Detroit and in Blue Bell.

Blumenthal said the company needed a new name to show that it was "no longer Burroughs and Sperry, but something new, one name that we could all identify with."

The company said it will begin an advertising campaign in 32 countries to introduce the new name.

Hyundai honors war vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American subsidiary of Hyundai-Motor Co. of Korea contributed $1 million on Monday toward a memorial in Washington to honor Americans who fought in the Korean War.

President Reagan signed into law last month the Korean War Memorial Act, which anticipates construction of a monument within five years. It is to be financed largely through private donations honoring the 5.7 million U.S. men and women who served in Korea during the 1950-53 conflict. More than 84,000 were killed, roughly the same number killed in Vietnam.

The legislation calls for spending $1 million in public funds for planning and site preparation, with construction financed by $5 million in private funds. The public money has yet to be actually appropriated, however, and retired Gen. Andrew J. Good, past chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission, said Hyundai's early gift could therefore "speed up the construction process six months to two years."

If all goes smoothly, planning could be completed within two years and construction finished two years after that, said the commission, an agency of the Defense Department.

In a letter to Reagan, S.H. Park, president of Hyundai Motor America, headquartered in Gardon Grove, Calif., said "please permit me this opportunity to convey a small token of our gratitude for the supreme sacrifices your countrymen made in the defense of our freedom and liberty."

"Over three decades have passed, Mr. President, but bonds between brothers of the battlefield of freedom are eternal," Park wrote. He added: "As a boy of eight, I remember the outbreak of hostilities and my father going off to fight the Communists in Vietnam. Our family were refugees moving often at the tide of the war shifted. I will never forget the personal kindness shown to us by the GIs we met."

One major issue yet unsettled is site selection.

We're now beset by winter greys and winter browns in Magic Valley on every hand. Cheerful green relief from this dull scene can be found five or six hundred miles south or at Swensen's Produce Dept. where winter is always green. Fresh winter greens and other bright fruit and vegetable colors can be enjoyed by using less of your green, than anywhere else! Better stuff for less bucks! Ask any produce lover who's discovered — Swensen's SEE BELOW!

Milk administrator ends tour

SEATTLE — Frank Shekarski, administrator for the Northwest's three federal milk marketing orders, has retired after 30 years with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Assistant Administrator Jerry L. Coburn has been appointed acting marketing administrator until Shekarski's successor is picked.

Magie Valley dairy producers send milk to the Southwest Idaho-Eastern Oregon marketing order. Others in the Northwest are: Puget Sound-Inland order serving Washington and northern Idaho; Oregon-Washington order serving southern Washington and eastern Oregon.

Amfac plans stock offering

SAN FRANCISCO — Amfac, Inc., a national wholesale and services company, is planning a public offering of 2 million shares of convertible, exchangeable preferred stock.

The company, which operates an electric supply house in Twin Falls, has asked the Securities and Exchange Commission to approve the offering at an anticipated price of about $35 a share. The sale of the securities is expected to begin later this month. Salomon Brothers Inc. of New York is underwriting the offering.

Amfac recently reported a third-quarter net loss of $20.3 million on $373.1 million in revenues. The loss was due to a $30 million pre-tax charge from a reorganization in its distribution businesses, as well as to lower sales and higher expenses in its electric and supply divisions, the company announced.

The third-quarter loss compares with $3.8 million net income in the same period of 1985.

For the first nine months of the year, Amfac has lost $22.7 million on $1.7 billion in sales.

China buys corn from U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — China has bought some corn from the United States for the first time in three years, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

The sales totaled 36,000 metric tons — about 1.2 million bushels — and consisted of corn for industrial use, which "may signal improving prospects for U.S. corn sales to China," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

The U.S. sale was credited to work by the U.S. Feed Grains Council, a private group of trade and farm associations that has been seeking to expand China's use of corn for industrial and feed purposes.

Boyle chosen AMS director

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Patrick Boyle, an aide to Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., has been named head of the Agricultural Marketing Service, a regulatory agency in the Agriculture Department.

Boyle, 52, a native of Detroit worked for Wilson since February 1985 as a legislative assistant for agricultural issues. His new job as administrator of the USDA agency pays $70,500 a year.

Utility reports customer gains in only 11 cities

BOISE (AP) — As an indication of the stagnant Idaho economy, Idaho Power Co. says only 11 of the more than 30 communities it serves in Idaho, Oregon and Nevada gained residential customers in the last 12 months.

The utility is the state's largest, serving 228,608 residential customers, up 1,667 overall from the year before.

Boise reported most of the growth with a net gain of 1,427 residential customers. Meridian gained 266, Nampa 133, Halley 97 and Caldwell, 85.

Pocatello reported the largest net loss, with 123 fewer residential customers than the year before. Twin Falls was next with a drop of 92; Nyssa, Ore., had a drop of 54.

Blackfoot had an increase of 12 customers. In the Western Division, only Ontario, Ore., and Payette in Idaho show an increase in residential customers over the year before, said Idaho Power spokesman Larry Taylor.

But Idaho Power said the number of customers who heat their homes electrically continues to grow.

Ten years ago, the company said Monday, less than 25 percent of its residential customers used electric space heating. The current figure is 42.5 percent.

Idaho Power also said a survey shows its residential customers use 84 percent more electricity than the national average, but the average residential bill is lower than the national average.

The utility said a survey by the Edison Electric Institute said Idaho Power customers use an average of 15,000 kilowatt-hours per home annually. The national average is just under 9,000 kilowatt-hours.

The national average electrical bill is $64; the Idaho Power average is $80; the company said.

Hydroelectric generating facilities provide 67 percent of Idaho Power's electricity during a normal year, compared with a national average of 12 percent. Fossil fuels such as coal, oil and gas provide 72 percent of the nation's electricity and nuclear another 16 percent.

Airline delay endangers tax credits

SEATTLE (AP) — Horizon Air reports that production delays in the Boeing Company's de Havilland subsidiary in Canada could result in the loss of nearly $2.8 million in investment tax credits.

The airline has five Dash 8 turboprop planes on order in a 10-plane deal and says it needs to get the aircraft by December to qualify for the tax breaks.

De Havilland delivered Horizon Air's fifth Dash 8 plane in October.

"The production line for an airplane is not like some other things," said John Davy, a spokesman for de Havilland in Toronto. "You can't just turn up the work and make them happen faster."

In place of the more fuel-efficient Dash 8 aircraft, Horizon Air will have to fly its less efficient F-7s longer than it would have liked, said Mel Keys, chief financial officer for Horizon Air.

Keys said it will cost the airline money, because it will have to squeeze the new aircraft deliveries into a few weeks' time instead of stretching them out over several months. He estimated the delays will cost Horizon more than $300,000 to pay for extra flight crews to maintain regular schedules while other crews undergo training on the new planes.

The Story of AN AMERICAN TAIL
It's 1850, and the Mousetz family of mice — Papa, Mama, baby Fievel, daughter Tanya and son Fievel — depart the bitter cold Russian winter for the land of freedom and opportunity, America.

Seven-year-old Fievel is tragically thrown overboard and, wearing a hat from Liberty Island, vows to find his beloved family in this strange and wonderful new country.

Along the way, the heroic little mouse meets mice from all walks of America: his first friend, a young French boy, who is as much a symbol of American freedom and opportunity as the proud new Statue of Liberty soon to be unveiled in the harbor.

DON'T LET UNCLE SAM GET YOUR SLICE

Tax Planning

Because the Tax Reform Act of 1986 is full of "TRAPS for the unwary," it is vital that you meet with your accountant before December 31, 1986.

The professionals at Cooper Norman & Co. are fully trained in the new tax law and will reduce your tax cost to the lowest possible amount.

Call us today, before it's too late!
