U.S. places new sanctions on Syria

By GEORGE GEDDA The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan imposed additional diplomatic and economic sanctions against Syria on Friday as an expression of "outrage" over alleged Syrian involvement in international terrorism.

Reagan's spokesman, Larry Speakes, also said the government has informed U.S. oil companies that it considers their continued involvement in Syrian oil operations "inappropriate under these circumstances."

Announcement of the action was timed to coincide with the arrival here Friday of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, whose government broke relations with Syria last month after a British court directly implicated Syria in the attempted bombing of an Israeli airliner last spring.

He said the measures will send a "clear and unequivocal message to Syria: its support of terrorism is unacceptable to the international community of nations."

visits between the United States and Syria will take place. That, however, did not appear to rule out such contacts in third countries.

Weapons crucial to Iran

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The weapons shipped to Iran by the United States and Israel during secret negotiations for the release of American hostages may be crucial to Iran's war effort against Iraq, despite Reagan administration claims that the supplies were insignificant.

Administration officials said Friday that the secret arms shipments included key parts for Hawk anti-aircraft missiles, which Iran could use to defend its oil terminal on Kharg Island. Oil exports are Iran's sole significant source of foreign earnings to keep the war going.

Equally important, the officials said, Israel appears to have taken advantage of the handful of arms shipments that President Reagan authorized to reopen its own secret arms pipeline to Iran. And, although the U.S. shipments to Iran were restricted to defensive equipment, Israel observed no such rule, officials said.

"We did allow the Israelis to make shipments to Tehran. They did it with our knowledge," a knowledgeable U.S. official said.

The total volume... certainly could not have affected the outcome of the war," said Robert C. McFarlane, the former White House adviser who originated the idea of a new U.S. relationship with Iran.

The issue is critical to the credibility of the administration's policy on the war, Reagan said, that the United States remained neutral between Iran and Iraq, and U.S. diplomats have been instructed to assure Saudi Arabia and other Arab countries friendly to the United States that the arms shipments were carefully designed not to tip the balance in the war.

But other administration officials, speaking on the condition that they not be identified, said that the quality of the equipment, and its value to significant, whether it clearly changes the course of the war or not.

"They've been desperate to get their Hawk batteries working again," said one official who had closely followed the course of the war. "If they can stop the traips from attacking Kharg, that would be a development of great significance."

Batt drops from race for top Senate office

TWIN FALLS — State Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder, said Friday he has pulled out of the race for leader of the Idaho Senate, while over in the House, members say the top spot is still up for grabs.

Critics firing away

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, insisting the United States will not ransom hostages, predicted Friday that most Americans will approve the administration's limited arms shipments to Iran.

Even as members of Congress from both the Democratic and Republican parties continued to criticize the administration's secret dealings with Iran, Reagan defended his policy anew before a White House audience. At the same time, his top aides promised continued efforts to free Americans held captive in Lebanon and Iran's president, Ali Khamenei, denounced the Reagan account of U.S.-Iranian relations as "mere lies."

Meanwhile, the FBI Director William Webster said there has been little recent Iranian-sponsored terrorism aimed at U.S. targets, but he vowed that the bureau would aggressively pursue investigations of any terrorist kidnappers in the Mideast with ties to Iran.

The FBI director also indicated during a news briefing that disclosure of secret U.S. ties with Iran over the past 18 months might make it somewhat more difficult for the bureau to carry out its mission in the field of counter-terrorism.

Webster emphasized that Reagan and the bureau are emphasizing the same "fundamental point" — that no concessions are to be made to terrorists. "Things have been pretty quiet," he said.

Iran recently has been sponsoring or supporting new terrorist activity against American targets.

Webster added, however, that "there has been a history that can't be overlooked... terrorist groups demanding support from Iran."

Immigration reform may end shadows, but bias fears stay

By PAT MARCANTONIO Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — To aliens who have resided illegally in America for years, the new immigration reform law may mean the opportunity to come fully out of the shadows.

But for some, the reform package signifies potential discrimination against Hispanic Americans and victimization of immigrants hoping to become a legal part of America.

Does he expect a flood of immigrants when the centers do open? Okins says he doesn't know and can't even estimate how many aliens may be residing in Idaho illegally. "I think there's an awful lot more than anyone thought."

Americans, Grant predicts. The aliens in the H-2 program didn't take any jobs because the association — as required — had to make every effort to recruit domestic workers first, he says.

alien workers. The group now has more than 300 members. Two years ago, Bell Rapids farmer Bruce Brown and his brother, Greg, lost four alien workers during harvest in a raid by the Border Patrol, the enforcement arm of the INS.

Analysis

The law also establishes amnesty for those eligible aliens who have resided continuously in the United States before January 1982, and grants temporary resident status to some agricultural workers.

While he worked hard for temporary Mexican labor, he doesn't favor the full-time residency of the amnesty provision. "It's going to be a real taxpayer drain. They will come up and bring their families and just create huge increases in welfare," Grant says.

Lawmakers will meet in Boise on Dec. 4 and 5 to choose leaders, and • See BATT on Page A2

The new law will better the lot of some aliens, now forced to hide in poor housing to elude the Border Patrol, Brown says. But he also believes the new bill will burden employers who have to verify documents to make sure they aren't hiring aliens. The possible sanctions may force him and others to be suspicious of all Hispanics seeking work. "And I don't like that feeling," Brown says. • See IMMIGRATION on Page A2

Picking and packing boughs provides jobs in Silver Valley

KELLOGG (AP) — The pay isn't fantastic, but a Puget Sound-area man is providing seasonal jobs picking and packing white pine boughs in the Silver Valley for use in Christmas wreaths and garlands.

Foy Tachell has leased land from the Bunker Hill Forest Service near the Silverhorn ski area. Some 22 tons of boughs have been shipped to Seattle so far this year, and Tachell said he plans to have 50 tons shipped before Christmas. The cutting season runs through Dec. 12.

The boughs are shipped from Seattle to the Orient and other parts of the United States.

"This will be an annual deal for as many years as we have Christmas," Tachell said.

Cutters are paid 6 cents a pound and packers-weighers are paid 2 cents a pound.

"It's work, and people aren't going to go out on the first-day and get rich," Tachell said. "It won't pay mining wages, but it'll pay a living wage."

Income grows with experience, Tachell said. A 16-year-old who has experienced made $33 for five hours' work, he said. One couple used the money they made to pay for their marriage license.

Fifteen people were working for Tachell, who said he is always hiring. Cutting has been in progress for six weeks.

Tachell said branches can be re-harvested from trees in two to three years.

He also said he is interested in selling his portion of the business to a local resident.

Tachell found out about northern Idaho's stands of white pine from a cousin who ranches in Montana.

Suit claiming illegal search dismissed while another filed

BOISE (AP) — A $340,000 federal lawsuit alleging illegal search and seizure against a number of officials in Fremont County has been dismissed, but a similar complaint has been filed against many of the same people.

U.S. District Judge Marlon Callister dismissed all the claims in a lawsuit filed by Franklin Scott Manastfield, who now is in the Idaho State Penitentiary serving a term for grand theft.

But at almost the same time, a Chester couple filed a complaint over events surrounding the husband's arrest for allegedly poisoning a neighbor's cattle.

Manastfield's suit named Fremont County Prosecutor Penny Stanford, Sheriff Terry Thompson, deputies Bret Sabow and Bert Bates, members of the Fremont County Commission, Ashton Police Chief Edward Sebek, Ashton policeman

Robert Perez, members of the Ashton City Council, and Idaho Falls policeman Gary D. Bateman.

The complaint alleged Manastfield's car was illegally seized and searched in September 1984 and that some property in it was stolen. Manastfield asked in February 1985 that the car and its contents be returned to him, but court records said some of the property already had been released to other alleged owners.

In the other suit, Lyle R. and Krista Soderquist named Fremont County, Sheriff Thompson, deputies Bates, Kurt Hillman and Brian Loseki, and their neighbors, Keith and Kim Saurey.

Soderquist was arrested and jailed in St. Anthony for about eight hours on Nov. 15, 1985, for allegedly poisoning the Saureys' cattle by putting the insecticide Phorate in their hay, according to the complaint.

preliminary hearing Dec. 5, but the lawsuit contends Soderquist's pickup had been seized without a warrant and that some property was returned damaged and some not returned at all.

Additionally, "Fremont County has since conducted itself so as to leave a cloud of accusation and suspicion" over Soderquist, the suit said. The Saureys were named as defendants because they "unreasonably and unjustifiably" demanded Soderquist's arrest.

Even after the charges were dropped, the complaint contends the Saureys continued to "wrongfully defame" Soderquist, even though they "knew of the probably impact of such a claim in the close community and cattle area of Fremont County."

The Soderquists asked unspecified general, specific and punitive damages and attorneys fees.

Smyser dropped as suit defendant

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho state legislator and one-time gubernatorial candidate Vernon Ravenscroft, 10 days to submit legal arguments to back up his bid for a similar judgment.

Portland-based TH Research filed the defamation lawsuit Feb. 5 after Smyser told a November 1985 news conference that the company intentionally slanted a public opinion poll reportedly showing Democratic gubernatorial candidate Cecil Andrus with a big lead over the Republican hopeful. Lt. Gov. David legislator and one-time gubernatorial candidate Vernon Ravenscroft, 10 days to submit legal arguments to back up his bid for a similar judgment.

Callister also gave another defendant in the suit, former state

Leroy.

In subsequent letters to Idaho newspapers, Ravenscroft said the poll was rigged to produce results favorable to Andrus.

Smyser filed an affidavit June 6, formally retracting his claims about bias in the poll, saying the statement had been prepared for him by Helen Chenoweth, who was Leroy's campaign manager at the time.

Andrus narrowly defeated Leroy in the Nov. 4 election.

Town forced to boil water

AMERICAN FALLS (AP) — A resident living in the Sunbeam Springs area has contaminated American Falls' water supply with a microscopic organism that's caused at least two confirmed cases of the illness commonly called "beaver fever" the Idaho Division of Environment said.

Residents were advised to boil any water used for drinking or food preparation until the problem could be cleared up, which state water quality specialist George Spinner said could take several days.

The contamination by giardia lamblia was found in samples taken from the springs last week. Test results were reported to the city on Thursday.

The organism is responsible for an intestinal disorder called giardiasis, which causes severe diarrhea, cramps, chills, vomiting and nausea.

Spinner said two people have been hospitalized with the illness and other cases have been reported.

Fringe benefits called part of salary

BOISE (AP) — Premiums paid by a school district for fringe benefits as part of a "cafeteria plan" should be considered part of the employee's salary, an attorney general's opinion says.

Without that designation, the opinion said Friday, a school district employee might opt against receiving cash under the "cafeteria plan" until nearing retirement, then could include the benefits as part of salary.

Vote fraud reports probed

POCATELLO (AP) — Bannock County officials have certified vote totals from the Nov. 4 election amid a continuing investigation into possible election law violations.

Acting as the board of canvassers, the Bannock County Commission on Thursday examined tallies from the county's 51 election precincts and sent the information to the secretary of state's office in Boise.

By Friday afternoon, state election officials said they had received 34 abstracts of votes from the county. That leaves 10 to arrive by the time the state Board of Canvassers is scheduled to meet on Wednesday to certify all state election results and issue certificates of election.

Commissioner George Shiozawa told elections officer John Moore the minutes of the meeting should indicate that 515 absentee ballots were not marked with the official election stamp.

Prosecutor Larry Echohawk Monday upheld the validity of the ballots. He said the error was an unintentional oversight which should not disenfranchise voters.

If the ballots had been disqualified, independent Kathy Lacy

Schless would have unseated Democrat Clerk Larry Ghan by nine votes. The incumbent won by a 137-vote margin, 13,517 to 13,380.

However, an investigation is continuing into allegations of election law violations. Echolkaw said he is considering seeking assistance from Attorney General Jim Jones because his office does not have adequate staff or resources to conduct such an investigation.

While details of the probe were not released, the prosecutor did say his office has received "less than a dozen" complaints.

New hospital prices to be higher

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A new hospital is scheduled to open here next month, and its owners say prices will be 7 to 8 percent higher than in two other hospitals it replaces.

But administrator Max Lauderdale said hospital charges would have to go up 10 to 12 percent if the two older, less-efficient hospitals were kept in operation.

"The rate increase is not based on the $44-million construction project," Lauderdale said. "We're just looking at the factors involved in doing business."

Lauderdale said frozen Medicare payments set against inflation are going to cause health care costs to rise across the nation. "Our intention in 1987, from a pricing standpoint, is to look at what our competitors are doing," he said. "We feel the average rate increase will be from seven to 10 percent."

The hospital will stop paying $15,000 every month to the city of Idaho Falls for ambulance service between the two hospitals. Utility expenses will be cut $275,000, and Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center Controller John Metke estimates the new building will be cheaper to heat.

The work force will be cut by about 150 people from the old River-view and Parkside hospitals.

Family sues over death

POCATELLO (AP) — A McCammon couple whose 1-year-old son was killed in a 1985 traffic accident, and their insurance company, have filed a lawsuit seeking more than $500,000 from a Pocatello towing business, its owner and the driver of a truck involved in the crash.

State Farm Insurance, Barry and Tina Hall and their children filed the complaint in 8th District Court against driver Dennis Lloyd Felsman, Denny Jones and Jones' business, Denny's Wrecker Service.

The Halls seek $4,502 for the loss of their car, $4,792 for medical expenses and $500,000 in general damages. Attorney fees of at least $30,000 also are sought.

Mrs. Hall was driving the family car on July 5, 1985, when it collided with a Denny's Wrecker Service truck driven by Felsman at a rural Bannock County intersection.

The couple's son Stetson died in the accident when he was thrown from the vehicle. Mrs. Hall and her two daughters were injured.

Felsman was charged with failing to obey a stop sign, but criminal charges against him also were filed. He was ordered to pay a $500 fine and court costs in May on a misdemeanor charge of vehicular homicide.

Many questions left unanswered after president's address

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, who told the American people in his televised address they would "hear the facts" about his 18 months of secret dealings with Iran, also left many questions unanswered. Reagan, who harshly criticized his predecessor Jimmy Carter for his handling of the Iranian revolution and the 1979 seizure of American diplomats in Tehran, spoke on Thursday of Iran's strategic importance to the United States and the importance of re-establishing ties with the strategically located nation. But it was just last year that Reagan referred to Iran as an outlaw state, "run by the strangest collection of misfits, loonies, lunatics and equal criminals since the advent of the Third Reich."

Analysis

Office address. White House spokesman Larry Speakes had warned there would be "certain things that he can't talk about." That promise was fulfilled. Here are a few things the president did not address: The president said the United States did not send "hostile" or "plainclothes" of American weapons for the return of the hostages. Although Reagan said "small amounts" of "defensive weapons and spare parts for defensive systems" were delivered to the Iranians, he did not say what type of weapons were delivered and how. The president argued that the amount of arms shipped was small and would not affect the outcome of the Iran-Iraq war, and that what he did in compliance with federal law. But the president did not discuss the U.S. embargo against shipping arms to Iran and why his action did not contradict that ban. The president did not discuss why the United States asked other nations to hold to the embargo, even as it was secretly shipping weapons. The president said the Iranians with whom contact was being established had asked for "a signal of our serious intent," but he did not explain whether something other than weapons might have fulfilled that request. The president said "various countries" had made overtures to stimulate direct contact between the United States and Iran. Yet he did not address the many reports that Israel has played a central role in the transfer of weapons to Iran. The president argued it was "widely reported" that Congress and top federal officials "were circumvented." The president said "all appropriate Cabinet officers" were briefed, but he failed to say congressional leaders were not told about the operation until this week. The president repeatedly has said he would not pay terrorists ransom for hostages. Even though he said there had been "no evidence of government complicity in acts of terrorism against the United States" following the renewal of contacts with Iran, he did not explain why Iran remains on the State Department list of nations that promote terrorism. A senior administration official, briefing reporters on condition he not be identified, argued that the administration was still unable to be more forthcoming about the situation because of the internal turmoil in Iran. "If we reveal actually what went in — amount, dates, specifics — then the factors that are not operating in our interest in Iran will use that information against those nations that are more moderate and that are trying to help," the official said. The official argued that members of Congress were not notified in advance because of the sensitivity of the operation and the safety of the hostages — the lives that were involved, both our own plus Iranian lives. Asked whether it went against Reagan's principles to argue for an arms embargo against Iran while secretly shipping weapons, the official replied that Reagan secretly authorized "some specific waivers of that embargo" to send weapons to Iran and added: "We never said we weren't shipping arms to Iran. That would be a matter of principle if we never shipped any. We haven't commented on it. At the same time, we've worked to stop uncontrolled (arms) shipments (to fuel the war). I don't see anything inconsistent with that at all."

Negative reactions pour in from Congress on dealings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several members of Congress, unsatisfied with President Reagan's explanation of secret U.S. dealings with Iran, said Friday the shipment of arms to Tehran might harm American efforts to win allied support in the fight against worldwide terrorism. Negative reaction from both Democratic and Republican lawmakers continued in the aftermath of Reagan's prime-time speech on the subject Thursday night, in which Reagan said the arms shipments were intended as a signal that the United States wanted better relations with the Muslim fundamentalist nation. Reagan on Friday reiterated in a White House speech that he would not use arms as ransom to liberate Americans held hostage in Lebanon by pro-Iranian elements.

"There's no way you can justify, in my opinion, the policy of this government in giving arms to Iran," he told reporters. O'Neill said Congress "ought to have an investigation" and said the House Intelligence Committee will begin an investigation next week when Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the panel, returns to the United States from a trip abroad. In Indianapolis, Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., defended Reagan's policy. However, Lugar also predicted that "there will be considerable debate over the judgment of the president" to keep the relationship with Iranians a secret for 18 months. "The president was on the right course in attempting to fashion a new relationship with Iran," said Lugar, who has been chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for the past two years. Lugar said that the arms shipments were a good-faith gesture to Iranian moderates and that they responded by helping secure the release of three American hostages held in Lebanon. Lugar told a news conference that Reagan's decision not to inform key administration officials and Congress of the relationship with Iran could be a mistake.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., said Friday, "I think the strategic goal of trying to open contacts with Iran were commendable. It is a high-risk situation because of the risk that our allies would see it as a break in the policy that we have announced of not dealing with terrorists." But he also said, "Personally, I think they (the Reagan administration) should have chosen some other means (to show good faith) than arms, like medical supplies. The president took a risk in sending the arms. I'm not sure I would have taken that risk." Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said in a statement issued in Istanbul, Turkey, that "there should be no exception to the practice of a coordinated policy against terrorism. If the Western countries agree to act collectively, we cannot make exceptions." Sen. Joseph Biden, D-De., second-ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said, "The president seemed very uncomfortable with the explanation he was giving in my view." Biden, interviewed on the "CBS Morning News," said, "It seems as though the president just underscored the fact that this is a policy that somehow went awry."

Sen. James Exon, D-Nebr., said Reagan's actions "are certainly morally wrong" and called his dealings with Iran "a clear case of duplicity." Exon said he was fooled by Reagan last summer when Exon voted to sustain a presidential veto of a congressional resolution that would have blocked the sale of missiles to Saudi Arabia. Exon's vote was critical because the Senate voted to override the veto by a 66-34 margin, one vote less than the two-thirds majority needed to enact the measure into law. "He told me that the Saudis needed the arms to protect their oil fields from Iran," said Exon. "Before and after that, he was secretly supplying arms to Iran that obviously could be used against the Saudis." Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said, "the more we learn, the clearer it becomes that the administration has been duped by our enemies and duplicitous with our allies — and with the American people." Levin told a news conference, "It is a terrible policy. The explanation doesn't wash."

Peace trek reaches final goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cross-country trek for peace arrived triumphantly in the nation's capital Friday, preaching its final destination in a blaze of colorful banners eight months after it had been given up for dead in the California desert. The group, more than 1,000 strong, crossed the district line in the brisk, midday sun, waving signs, banners and the American flag. Some in the band of travel-toughened idealists hailed from Maine to Hawaii but had been with the Great Peace March for 3,700 miles, walking and camping to promote nuclear disarmament. Diane Clark, honorary mayor of the moving municipality named Peace City, then told her fellow members that "an hour ago, the earth was shattered by a nuclear blast" — a major, earthquake-causing nuclear weapons test detonated in the Nevada desert. "But she said their footsteps had 'put peace in the headlines' and exhorted them to continue spreading their message: "Global nuclear disarmament. Say it to a few people." The group camped at a retreat grounds Thursday night in Beltsville, Md., and hiked 8.2 miles to the D.C. border Friday before continuing on to Capitol University to set up a final encampment. "I was reduced to tears to the point where I couldn't walk," Clark

Official assures British on arms as Thatcher begins talks in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher began two days of talks Friday with U.S. leaders eager to assure her that Britain's independent nuclear forces will remain untouched in any arms deal worked out between the United States and the Soviet Union. "There's no question of our firm and continuing support for Britain's independent nuclear deterrent," said a senior U.S. official speaking on condition of anonymity. Mrs. Thatcher planned to meet President Reagan at Camp David today for a wide-ranging discussion of nuclear issues and their government's efforts to isolate Syria with economic sanctions. Hours before her arrival Friday, the United States announced a series of anti-Syrian measures similar to those set by Britain last month after Mrs. Thatcher's government said it unearthed evidence of Syrian complicity in a plot to blow up an airliner departing London's Heathrow Airport. "Before ending her visit to the United States tonight, Mrs. Thatcher is expected to praise the U.S. sanctions. At the same time, she may have questions for Reagan about his decision to ship military equipment to Iran at a time the administration was calling publicly for adherence to an arms embargo against that country. Reagan called the dealings an "initiative" designed to improve relations with Iran and secure the release of American hostages held by kidnapers with ties to Iran. British Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe said on the eve of Mrs. Thatcher's departure that Britain refuses to deal with terrorists to secure the release of hostages. Mrs. Thatcher, whose schedule called for meeting with Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger at the British Embassy on Friday, did not speak to reporters on arrival at Andrews Air Force Base earlier in the day and her embassy said she was not expected to make any public statements after the "closed" meetings with the two U.S. cabinet officials. In London this week, she failed to express concern about Reagan's long-range goal of eliminating ballistic missiles, which she said are necessary to defend Western European countries "vulnerable to attack by conventional forces and chemical weapons in a way which the United States is not." After his summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Iceland, Reagan called for an immediate agreement to reduce U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear forces by roughly 50 percent.

Bill signed to aid victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan signed a bill Friday to compensate victims of injuries caused by childhood vaccinations, but said Congress should approve follow-up legislation to assure that the system is not bankrolled by the U.S. Treasury. Reagan approved the bill, "with mixed feelings," saying he had reservations about the compensation program but liked another feature of the bill that will permit drug companies to export pharmaceuticals not yet approved for use in the United States. He said one of the reasons he signed the bill despite his reservations was that it would not be effective until a separate measure is enacted to provide the funds. Richard D. Godwin, president of the Industrial Biotechnology Association, hailed Reagan's decision to sign the health bill.

Break in cold will follow record lows

By The Associated Press

The East's warmest, coldest weather in record topped marks for low temperatures in nearly 50 cities from Caribou, Maine, to Mobile, Ala., on Friday, but forecasters predicted a break in the cold wave.

"We're glad to hear that everybody else is freezing because now they're feeling what's usual for us," said police Sgt. Art Gurney in Caribou, where Friday's 4-degree low broke the 1923 record of 13 degrees.

In air northern cities, Friday morning's low readings eclipsed records for the date that stood since 1880 and broke or tied marks in 40 cities in 23 Eastern states, according to the National Weather Service.

The big chill, which filled shelters for homeless in the Northeast, was obscured by the fact that it was the earliest, coldest day of the winter season in at least a dozen cities.

Those "so cold, so early" cities included Akron, Ohio, (11 degrees); Beckley, W. Va. (8); Flint, Mich. (12); Newark, N.J. (21); Philadelphia (19); and Worcester, Mass. (10).

By early afternoon, temperatures were in the 20s and 30s over much of the Northeast, and the 30s in the mid-Atlantic states, the Carolinas and northern Georgia, said Paul Fike, a broadcaster with the Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

"The good news about that is that temperatures are going to return to levels we'd normally expect at this time of year," Fike said. "We're looking at a warming trend."

He said readings in the 70s and 80s would return Saturday to southern New England and the 70s extending from the Carolinas to northern Florida.

"Just because it got off to an early start doesn't mean it's going to be any worse than any other winter," Fike said.

Snow, fell across parts of the northern Rockies Friday afternoon and travelers advised to be posted for the mountains and passes of western Montana, where 10 inches of snow fell overnight at East Glacier.

In northern New York, where Buffalo's first 15-degree low Friday broke the 1933 record of 21 inches of snow was on the ground in Sherman from the first heavy "lake effect" snow squalls blowing off the Great Lakes.

In Louisville, Ky., where freezing temperatures forced officials to cancel racing Thursday at Churchill Downs, the track was open again Friday, despite a 15-degree low that was the coldest since 1949's 18 degrees.

The mercury fell to 13 degrees early Friday at Washington Dulles International Airport, breaking the 10-year-old mark of 14.

Record single-digit readings included 5 degrees at Elkins, in the mountains of West Virginia, and 13 degrees at Charleston and Huntington, in the lowlands.

Other record cold readings included 10 degrees in South Bend, Ind.; 15 in Buffalo, N.Y.; 13 in Binghamton, N.Y.; and 13 in Roanoke, Va.

Low-temperature records were broken at 124 locations in 18 states from 10 cities east of the Rockies, the weather service said.

The deaths of 21 people have been blamed on the weather since last week, when the season's first major snowstorm struck the northern Plains and heralded the influx of a vast arctic air mass.

Schooling problems may result

Pushing tots to learn often backfires

WASHINGTON (AP) — The force feeding of reading, writing and arithmetic on pre-schoolers often undermines a child's self-confidence and can lead to learning problems in later grades, two education experts said Friday.

Nearly half of the reading problems found in students result "not from starting children too late but from starting them too early," said child psychologist David Elkind.

"When children are forced too early on, they become turned off with respect to education," said Samuel Sava, executive director of the National Association of Elementary School Principals. "We find it very difficult to turn these youngsters back on to learning."

Elkind, a professor of child psychology at Tufts University, said some learning problems don't show up for many years, even after the child has appeared to have performed well under early pressure.

Sava and Elkind made their comments at the annual conference of the National Association for the Education of Young Children.

Many working couples who subconsciously feel guilty about putting their children in day care choose a pre-school program that stresses academics because they mistakenly think it helps the child, Elkind said.

"But much of the learning pushed at these day care centers is not appropriate for pre-school children, who have not grown enough to have the skills necessary to absorb the material," said Elkind, who is also the association's president.

"There are pre-schools that advertise that if your youngster will attend their pre-school, he or she will become a little Einstein," Elkind said. "There is no finish line. Education is a lifelong process."

Both Sava and Elkind emphasized that neither objected to pre-school programs but stressed that academic subjects such as reading, foreign languages or the playing of musical instruments were too difficult for children of that age.

"It would be inappropriate for four-year-olds to be sitting, doing hard intellectual work all day," Elkind said.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A newborn Baltimore, were arrested Thursday infant who was snatched from his at a suburban shopping mall, mother's arms a week ago by authorities. They were each woman posing as a nurse was charged with one count of kidnapping returned to her embrace Friday in

The infant, found in a car with Mr. Thompson, spent Thursday night in a foster home and was reported in excellent health. He was taken from Grand View Hospital a week ago, when he was 1 day old, by a woman posing as a nurse.

The FBI delayed reuniting the Washington, D.C., with their baby because the poor quality of the footprint taken at the hospital where Phillip was born made it difficult to make a positive identification, said Andy Manning, an FBI spokesman.

An examination revealed the baby had an indentation in the lower lip which was similar to that known to be on the missing child. The fourth toe of the recovered child was bent under, as was the same toe on the kidnapped infant.

The FBI also said the blood type of the Washington, infant and the recovered child were B positive.

According to the affidavit, Soustek said he knew nothing about the kidnapping and told the agents that the baby had been kidnapped. He was Thompson's problem and not his.

Ms. Thompson said the baby was born Oct. 25 in Montgomery County, U.S. Magistrate Daniel Klein ordered Ms. Thompson held without bond until a hearing Wednesday. She entered the courtroom with the hood of her sweater over her head and her hands clasped in front of her face.

Soustek, an electrical contractor, was freed Friday on $100,000 bond. Soustek and his wife, Patricia, from whom he is separated, put up their home as collateral.

Ms. Thompson said she would like a $100,000 bond to get her baby and going into a hospital and taking a baby.

Test rocks Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear weapons test detonated in the Nevada desert Friday sent shock waves through the upper levels of some buildings in Las Vegas.

The test, which had an explosive punch of up to 150,000 tons of TNT, registered 6.5 on the Richter scale of ground motion at the National Earthquake Information Center in Boulder, Colo.

"We felt considerable ground motion," said Department of Energy spokesman John Boyer who was at a concrete control point 18 miles from ground zero. "My chair began to move and I had to pause to get a better grip on the desk. The ground motion from this one rates (spiry high up the line. No damage was reported at the control point, Boyer said.

The device was buried 1,950 feet beneath the surface of Yucca Flat.

The test, code-named Gascon, was reported to have an explosive yield of 20 to 120 kilotons. Test announcements specify either a yield of less than 20 kilotons or 20 to 150 kilotons.

Janel Coppa, a secretary in a law office in downtown Las Vegas, 32 miles from ground zero, said hanging plants and a chandelier began to sway seconds after the blast. A security guard at the Landmark Hotel said a chandelier at the top of the resort's tower swayed.

Malloy appointed

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The Rev. Edward A. Malloy, a theologian and associate provost at the University of Notre Dame, was named the university's 16th president Friday and will succeed the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh.

Malloy, 46, a native of Washington, D.C., and an ordained Holy Cross priest who once played basketball for Notre Dame, was chosen from among five candidates during an afternoon meeting of the school's board of trustees.

Leftist's murder breaks off peace talks

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist rebels broke peace talks Friday after a prominent leftist was murdered, and thousands of people rallied outside military headquarters to demand a Duterte minister quit.

President Corason Aquino said Friday that despite the impression of instability left by rumors of an impending coup, "Japan came through with unequivocal expressions of support for the Aquino government."

Japan pledged to give her government $649 million in aid this year.

Finance Minister Jaime Ongpin said Japanese officials were "sympathetically" considering to add at least $50 million more to the package.

Ongpin said at a news conference a "general strike for Monday in Manila to protest his killing, but some labor leaders expressed fears this would provoke military action."

The National Democratic Front, a Communist-dominated umbrella group that has negotiated with the government on behalf of Communist rebels, refused to attend Friday's session.

Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra, a member of the government negotiating team, said the front cited Orla's murder as part of an alleged "pattern" they think could endanger their safety and security.

He said no new date for talks was set, but that the front "stopped short of closing the door to any future negotiations."

He said they had been close to reaching a ceasefire agreement as the first step toward ending the Communists' 17-year insurgency.

Rhine recovery may take years

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — Rhine river was so "massively" polluted by a toxic chemical spill that it may need a decade to recover, and new breeding stocks of fish will not be introduced for years, Swiss officials said Friday.

About 30 tons of chemicals spilled into the river during a fire Nov. 1 at the Sandoz plant in Basel and followed its scenic winding course to the North Sea.

Meanwhile, controversy increased over a chemical leak from another Swiss plant a day before the Sandoz fire. Gertrude Bader-Waerleberg, state secretary in West Germany, claimed the discharge from the Ciba-Geigy plant was at least 15 times greater than the 100 gallons of herbicide reported by the company.

Death takes Nazi

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Nazi administrator Erich Koch, who was blamed for millions of deaths and accused of enriching himself with wartime plunder, has died in a Polish prison at age 90, the official news agency PAP said Friday.

He was sentenced to death in 1959 but escaped the noose because of a Polish law that prohibits the execution of someone in poor health. The news agency said he feigned various illnesses to escape the hangman.

Hasenfus awaiting verdict

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista People's Tribunal has reached a verdict in the case of American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus but will not announce it until Friday, court president Reynaldo Monterrey said.

Monterrey, a lawyer, told reporters Friday. "The verdict has already been decided but we cannot say what it is. It has not been translated (from Spanish into English) and the document is lengthy."

The government radio station in a brief broadcast, indicated Hasenfus had been found guilty. It gave no details but said the verdict would be read Saturday at 11 a.m. (10 a.m. MST).

Hasenfus, 45, who could receive a maximum sentence of 30 years in prison, was not present when Monterrey made his statement outside the building where the tribunal of Monterrey, a laborer and a truck driver, conducted the trial.

A three-day period set for the tribunal to deliberate its verdict had ended Tuesday afternoon.

Alberto Fernandez, a press attaché at the U.S. Embassy, said the leftist government may have delayed the announcement of the verdict with the idea of getting more coverage from the U.S. television network.

In a telephone interview he said that by issuing the verdict Saturday morning "they (the Sandinistas) can make it in time for the evening news in the states."

Hasenfus' attorney, Enrique Sotelo Borgen, contacted by telephone at his office, said he had not been informed of the verdict but added: "Of course, they are going to declare him guilty and pronounce sentences at the same time."

A Sandinista army patrol captain, Hasenfus, of Marinette, Wis., on Oct. 6. He was cargo handler on a C-47 filled with supplies and weapons for U.S.-backed rebels that was shot down the day before in the jungles of southern Nicaragua.

Hasenfus hailed out and the three other crew members, two of them Americans, were killed in the crash.

Protestants demonstrate in N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Thousands of Protestants demonstrated throughout Northern Ireland Friday at the start of weekend protests marking the anniversary of the Anglo-Irish agreement on this British province.

Effigies of the British and Irish prime ministers were burned and two homes occupied by Roman Catholics were firebombed.

Police and army units cancelled all leaves for their personnel.

Bands led demonstrations in at least two dozen towns with Protestant activists chanting "No!" to the agreement. The accord gives the government of predominantly Catholic Ireland a consultative role in the administration of Northern Ireland, where Protestants outnumber Catholics 5-2.

In Lurgan, southwest of Belfast, protesters burned effigies of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Irish Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald, who signed the accord on Nov. 15, 1985.

A major rally organized by militant Protestant organizations is scheduled outside Belfast's City Hall today.

In one of the biggest demonstrations Friday in Belfast, hundreds of Protestant shipyard workers marched through working-class areas. But the British government said again it has no intention of deviating from the agreement.

No, navigators in the Southern Hemisphere can't see the North Star.

Raisin city braces for televised spoof

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Residents for the CBS affiliate, KJEO-Channel 47, are bracing for a party apprehensive about having Sunday night at the convention the nation watch them on prime time TV when the soap opera miniseries stars and real members of Fresno's raisin family dynasty.

"If this show flops, Fresno will be seen as even more of a big dud than miniseries T-shirts, and the post-office is now," said Fresno native Tom Jennings, 43. "People will say 'even as a joke Fresno can't make it.'"

At Benson's boutique, a shirt their hearts, that's what scares reads, "Fresno: Raisin Basket of the people most about this program."

Q88-TV's $12 million comedy miniseries, which stars Carol Burnett, Charles Grodin and Teri Garr, is a five-part saga of warring families that sends up prime-time soaps like "Dynasty," "Dallas," and "Falcon Crest."

"Spoofs are nothing new for residents of Fresno, where ignoring veiled insults about their hometown is a tradition. Fresno has long been lampooned by every comic from Johnny Carson to the author of the B.C. comic strip."

"Two years ago, the city was ranked least desirable on a Rand-McNally list of 277 places to live, and image-obsessed Californians haven't stopped snickering since."

"People around here don't want to get excited too much beforehand about this program because many are afraid it'll be a big letdown if it turns into a joke on us," said Todd Richmond, 19.

"Despite the lack of pre-show fervor, many of Fresno's 275,000 residents apparently plan to watch it, according to viewer surveys."

But most people are more excited about Fresno State University quarterback Kevin Sweeney's attempt to break Doug Flutie's NCAA all-time career passing record. He is expected to do that Nov. 22 on home turf.

Legend of teddy bear noted by dedication

ONWARD, Miss. (AP) — A group of school playfights. Several teams have unveiled a historical marker Friday made the playfights and you have to dedicated to Teddy Roosevelt and his legendary compassion for a captive bear, which launched America's love-affair with the cuddly teddy bear.

Gov. Bill Allan proclaimed it Good Bear Day in Mississippi as dozens gathered in the Onward Store for the first Bear Hunt Reunion, marking the 84th anniversary of the hunt.

"People have really gotten behind this thing," said Nancy Virdon, vice president of the Bank of Anguilla. "We have people all the way from California here."

But Mississippi never officially summoned the president, who told Collier to put it out of its misery. Another man then stabbed the animal.

A more romanticized version appeared in a Washington Post cartoon two days later, however, and that launched the teddy bear legend.

The gathering celebrated the Nov. 14, 1902, hunt on the banks of the Little Sunflower River in the Delta National Forest north of Vicksburg.

According to Associated Press reports from the time, President Theodore Roosevelt's guide, Holt Collier of Greenville, knocked a 235-pound black bear unconscious while Roosevelt and some friends were having lunch. The bear had killed several dogs during the hunting party's pursuit of it earlier in the day.

Collier tied the bear to a tree and summoned the president, who told Collier to put it out of its misery. Another man then stabbed the animal.

A more romanticized version appeared in a Washington Post cartoon two days later, however, and that launched the teddy bear legend.

'Cannonball Run' leads to a bevy of speeding tickets

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What was billed as the "Cannonball Run" and a junior road rally for students of the Meridian High School kept Idaho State police officers across much of southern Idaho busy Friday afternoon.

paper (tickets) with them." Schwartz said a number of speeding tickets were issued despite the fact that the young drivers were using radar detectors and C.B. radios to communicate along the way.

They also had worked out warning systems with their lights that they used when a police car was observed.

'They just don't realize those cars are not toys. They are lethal equipment at 90 miles an hour. We are trying to slow them down before somebody gets hurt or killed.'

— ISP Sgt. Glen Schwartz

ISP Sgt. Glen Schwartz of Twin Falls said officers in Magic Valley became aware of the situation shortly before noon when patrol officers in the Mountain Home area initiated heavy radio-traffic about speeding vehicles and asked for additional help.

By early afternoon, several state officers in the Magic Valley area encountered the Ada County licensed vehicles speeding along I-84 over a stretch of highway from Bliss to Burley.

"Some of them were traveling two and three abreast at high speeds and were clocked at 70 to 90 miles an hour," Schwartz said. "As far as I know nobody was placed under arrest, but some of them took a lot of

Schwartz said apparently the Meridian students had set up the race after their high school football team earned a place in the state football championships for Friday evening.

Meridian was playing Coeur d'Alene for Class A state championship and several dozen students drove cars to Pocatello for the event.

Officers said they understood the students set up a "kitty" that was used to hire a driver crew that made the 234-mile drive in the shortest time.

Rigors of the road race had sidelined a number of the speedsters Friday afternoon, Schwartz said.

Jailing Juveniles: Hanging focuses attention on issue

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

JEROME — The hanging death of a Twin Falls teen-ager in the Minidoka County Jail once again has focused Idaho's attention on the lingering problem of what to do with juveniles who break the law.

"A kid died in jail needlessly," Twin Falls attorney Joseph Stanzak said of the suicide of 17-year-old James Blunt last Monday. "That's a black mark against every official in this state, and it damn near makes me want to cry."

The boy's death recalled the Memorial Day 1982 beating death of 17-year-old Christopher Peterman in Boise's Ada County Jail, which was at least partly responsible for changes in the Idaho Youth Rehabilitation Act.

But thousands of Idaho children, though segregated from adults, still go to jail each year. Some consider the new Southern Idaho Youth Center as a possible positive alternative, said Stanzak, who represents the facility.

Nearly everyone seems to think the private, short-term holding faility is a good idea, but that's where the agreement ends and controversy begins.

At issue is responsibility, and so far it has kept the center virtually empty as Magic Valley counties wait for some official recognition that it meets at least basic health and safety standards. Others want more.

'A kid died in jail needlessly. That's a black mark against every official in this state, and it damn near makes me want to cry.'

— Joseph Stanzak

"The only controls that are over the facility right now are the contracts that we sign with the county commissioners," said administrator Henk Bekker, also a Jerome County commissioner.

So far, only Jerome County has contracted to house juvenile offenders at the 30-bed complex 4 miles east of Jerome near U.S. Highway 93. It opened Oct. 1, only the second facility in Idaho designated specifically for holding juveniles. The other is Ada County's public juvenile detention center.

"Some counties say they'll talk to us after we go through the Legislature," Bekker said. "But again, they're going to have to realize that they're totally, 100 percent liable for the kids where they're putting them now."

Bekker and former Twin Falls County Coroner Cloyce Edwards, owner of American National Detention Centers Inc., parent company of the Southern Idaho Youth Center, are optimistic they will have agreements by the end of the year with at least some of the other seven Magic Valley counties.

But despite broad consensus that Idaho is in dire need of facilities that meet constitutional and even the minimal legal requirements, center officials acknowledge they must clear some imposing hurdles, before being accepted.

The most imposing, they say, is the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, which opposes detention of juveniles in its care at the facility, even when they commit crimes.

"All we want to do is make the jails legal so these kids don't hang themselves," Edwards said. "We meet state and county requirements for holding children. They're the ones who are supposed to endorse us; no one else."

Last year, 2,702 juveniles were held in adult jails in Idaho for periods longer than 30 minutes. No precise records are available, but state Youth Services Coordinator Steve Woodworth said "hundreds were ordered detained by courts for crimes committed while under Health and Welfare care.

"I would not put my own child in an unlicensed facility, and I wouldn't want to put children who are committed to us in an unlicensed facility," said Willard Abbott, Health and Welfare director for

"Before I'll feel comfortable with one of our children being placed there I'd want some assurance that they meet the same sort of standards as other places we would place children," he said.

Center officials said they would welcome creation of state licensing standards for juvenile detention and assignment of a regulatory agency or commission, but do not think it should be left up to Health and Welfare.

"They have good intentions, I'm sure. But many times their actions do not achieve the intentions they have," Stanzak said. "They no longer are seeking the best interest of the children, they're seeking to complete the procedures they've set up."

The Region V Children and Youth Council, a local arm of the Idaho Commission for Children and Youth, wants the center to meet stringent standards set by the American Corrections Association or be shut down. The statewide commission, however, quickly disavowed the recommendation.

"They just didn't realize it wasn't a position any of us could take," said Sharon Hixon, commission administrator under the Office of the Governor. "None of us are experts, nor do we claim to be."

But neither the Southern Idaho Youth Center nor any other jail in Idaho meets ACA standards for juvenile detention, which include about 30 considered "mandatory" minimums for life, health and safety and another approximately 39 considered "essential" in such areas as programs and security.

Earl Dunlap, executive director of the Louisville, Ky.-based National Juvenile Detention Association, said he and another professional consultant will use those criteria to evaluate the Jerome center during the coming week for the federal Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

Dunlap's findings could go a long way toward answering the concerns of county and state officials.

Twin Falls County Commission Chairman Ann Cover said she and her colleagues would study the report before making any decision about whether to use the center,

Probe completed in youth's death

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Minidoka County sheriff and prosecutor said Friday that they have completed their investigation into the death of James Hoover, 17, of Twin Falls, also known as Jamie Blunt, and found no blame with county jail personnel or their procedures.

The Twin Falls youth hanged himself in his cell just prior to 12:55 a.m. Monday.

Sheriff Ray Jarvis said investigation showed the youth was observed at 12:12 a.m. on a routine check by authorities at the juvenile detention facility and had spoken to officers at that time. At 12:35 a.m., he was observed resting on his bed.

When another routine check of the juvenile cells was made at 12:55 a.m., Blunt was found hanged with a bed sheet wrapped around his neck.

Jarvis said deputy Earl Hubbard found the victim and Deputy Cindy Shaw and Rupert police officer, Lou Jones, administered emergency medical treatment and the young man was then taken to the Minidoka Memorial Hospital where he was later pronounced dead.

Jarvis said Blunt had been placed in the Minidoka County facility on Oct. 24 on a commitment order commanded by Magistrate Charles Brumbach of Twin Falls.

His medical history, Jarvis said, did not contain any information of previous suicide threats or tendencies, and the youth had given no such indications or any incidents while housed in Minidoka County.

However, Jarvis and Prosecutor Charles Creason Jr. said there was a suicide note found among his personal effects, but they did not release its contents.

"A review of the case indicates that proper jail procedures were maintained at all times," the joint statement of Jarvis and Creason said.

Audio and visual observation equipment located in the juvenile detention area were operating correctly.

A postmortem examination was conducted by deputy county coroner Arvin Hansen. It indicated the death was a suicide and that the young man died of asphyxiation.

Detention center gets inspection

JEROME — State electrical inspectors will take another look at the Southern Idaho Youth Detention Center in Jerome Monday, hoping to give their approval on the building's electrical system.

Jerome County building inspector Al Hepworth said he went with Ray Lundin and Chris Martin, state electrical inspectors from Twin Falls, Friday morning to check the building again.

"They went over everything with a fine tooth comb," Hepworth said, "and gave the contractor a list of things that need to be done to meet the state code."

Hepworth said the contractor will use state inspectors he would work during the weekend to revise or add to the list of items that do not meet the state requirements.

Richard Lloyd, state electrical division supervisor in Boise, said Lundin and Martin inspected the building late last month and found a number of electrical violations.

"If corrections are not made," Lloyd said, the state would have the authority to order a "disconnect" of power until standards are met. An occupancy permit has been issued by Hepworth, and the building has been housing only one or two occupants since it opened.

Felton details non-profit corporation proposal for MVRMC

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Commissioner Judy Felton outlined Thursday the board to run the hospital, a nonprofit corporation which might be represented in the membership of a proposed nonprofit corporation controlling the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Her description came during a meeting at MVRMC where about 25 people asked questions about the proposed transfer. Twin Falls County voters will decide Dec. 9 whether to approve the transfer.

While the economic ramifications of the organization and not just "window dressing" are broad, the change in how the hospital would be managed is relatively simple.

Instead of Twin Falls County commissioners appointing the 11-member hospital board to run the hospital, a nonprofit corporation of between 50 and 75 members would elect those board members.

Under the transfer, the commissioners would appoint the initial members of the corporation and the 11 current hospital board members would remain in that positions.

Felton said the corporate members would represent community interests in the new organization and not be just "window dressing" as one woman suspected.

Felton met with the two other commissioners and decided on the positions with the help of MVRMC Administrator John Bingham and Kent Taylor, MVRMC legal counsel.

Felton suggested a commissioner and each of the eight mayors in Twin Falls county should be members, as should six physicians from MVRMC. Eight additional people, again from each of the cities, would be complemented by four rural representatives.

Senior citizens, perhaps through nursing home advocates or simply the age of members, will also be represented. Two state legislators, a senator and a representative, a judge, the district health director and a member of the College of Southern Idaho would be included.

For the business community, two people from large companies and two people from companies with 10 employees or less. A church representative and then 12 at-large positions would round out the list.

These positions have not been voted on, nor are they set in stone. Felton said they were announced to allow people to suggest changes or additions before the transfer went into effect.

"I think we're looking for comments at the public hearings," Felton said. "What we were trying to do is make a balance in the board for representation in the community. Board positions and membership in the corporation will be limited to two three-year terms. All of the positions will be voluntary — if a mayor didn't want to serve, another at-large seat would be added, Felton said.

None of the board or corporate positions is paid.

However, one man at the meeting said the way corporate and board members will choose each other after they are initially appointed by the county commissioners.

The 11 board members appoint new members to the corporation, which in turn elects the board members.

Felton responded Friday that the wide range of people serving in the positions would prevent potential problems with their selection.

Immigration overhaul bill contains long list of provisions

By The Associated Press

Here are the major provisions of the landmark immigration overhaul bill:

EMPLOYER SANCTIONS

- Makes it unlawful for any person to knowingly hire, recruit or refer for a fee any alien not authorized to work in the United States.
- Requires employers to verify the residency status of all new hires by examining either a U.S. passport, a U.S. birth certificate or a Social Security card, and a driver's license, state-issued identification card or an alien identification document.
- Provides for a six-month education period during which no enforcement actions would be taken, and a subsequent one-year period with only a warning citation issued on the first offense.
- Establishes a fine-grained civil penalty system beginning with a first offense fine of $20 to $2,000 per each alien illegally hired. By the third offense, the fines would grow to $3,000 to $10,000 per alien. For additional offenses, an employer could additionally be given a six-month prison term and a $3,000 fine.

• Requires employers, referrers and recruiters to keep records, and sets a civil fine system of $100 to $1,000 for violations.

• Establishes an affirmative defense for employers who comply in good faith with the verification procedure.

• Relieves employers of verification requirements when a state employment agency verifies the worker's status and the worker retains a certificate.

• Terminates the sanctions after three years if the General Accounting Office determines they have resulted in discrimination in employment or unduly burdened employers, and if Congress agrees by passing a joint resolution.

ANTI-DISCRIMINATION

• Makes it illegal for employers to discriminate based on citizenship or alien status, if the alleged victim is a U.S. citizen, permanent resident or refugee, asylee or newly legalized alien who has filed a notice of intent to become a U.S. citizen.

• Exempts employers of three or fewer workers from these provisions.

INCREASED ENFORCEMENT AND SERVICE

- Provides additional funding for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to carry out its added responsibilities.
- Requires the attorney general to establish an INS program of community task forces to help aliens applying for legal status.
- Fully reimburses states for costs of verifying the status of non-citizens applying for public assistance.
- Requires INS officers to obtain a search warrant to enter outdoor agricultural operations.

LEGALIZATION

• Provides temporary resident status for non-excludable aliens who have resided continuously in the United States since before Jan. 1, 1952.

• Awards permanent resident status after 18 months if the alien can show "minimal understanding" of English and knowledge of U.S. history and government, or is taking courses in those subjects.

• Forbids federally-financed public assistance to newly legalized aliens for five years, except for emergency medical care; aid to the aged, blind or disabled; and cases of serious injury or safeguarding public health.

• Provides $1 billion a year for four years to state and local governments to help finance public assistance, health and education costs incurred under the legislation, and reimburses states for costs of jailing certain aliens.

LEGAL IMMIGRATION

For seasonal workers for non-perishable farm crops: Employers must apply to the labor secretary within 60 days before foreign workers are needed, and then try to recruit domestic workers.

Workers are guaranteed housing, worker compensation, travel and subsistence costs, to be provided by the employer if not available under a state program, and can obtain legal services only for work-related matters.

For foreign workers used for perishable crops: Temporary resident status is granted to aliens who have worked at least 90 days during the 12-month period ended May 1, 1968. They may shift to permanent resident status two years after the application period ends. That waiting period is one year for aliens who have worked 90 days a year for three years.

Workers are disqualified for Aid to Families with Dependent Children welfare payments for five years. Replenishment workers are allowed to enter as temporary residents so long as they work at least 90 days in agriculture each year for three years in the event of a farm labor shortage. After three years, they can shift to permanent resident status. These workers are disqualified for most forms of public assistance.

The replenishment worker provision is terminated seven years after enactment.

MISCELLANEOUS

Brief, casual and innocent trips outside the United States will not violate an alien's requirement for a continuous physical presence in the country to avoid deportation.

It is the intent of Congress that political prisoners from Cuba be refused admission to the United States.

Requires speedy deportation of convicted aliens and a list of facilities available to jail deportable or excludable aliens.

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) —

Snowmobile owners who plan on riding the winter landscape this season will pay twice as much as last year to register their vehicles with the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation.

Snowmobiles can be registered at vendors across the state for $10, up from $5 last year, said Chuck Wells, the department's off-road motor vehicle planner. The fee hike, the first since 1969, is a result of the increased cost of grooming snowmobile trails on public lands.

"We were trying to provide the same service as we have since 1969, but it can't be done with the increasing cost of gas and machinery," Wells said.

Parks and Recreation took over the registration program in 1983. It previously was handled by county motor vehicles offices and administered through the Idaho Department of Transportation.

Snowmobile registration fees higher

Snowmobile owners can choose where their fee will be spent by designating a county when they complete the registration form.

Parks and Recreation also administers the statewide Park & Ski cross-country trail system, and will take over registration of boats, boat trailers and off-road motorcycles beginning in January.

However, county license bureaus will serve as vendors during the year-long transition period, Wells said.

Testimony heard in Newton lawsuit

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A former business partner of Wayne Newton testified Friday he split with the entertainer over business differences, and not because of publicity from NBC broadcasts linking Newton to organized crime figures.

Ed Torres told a federal court jury he felt Newton was giving too many comps and paying entertainers too much when the two owned the Aladdin Hotel.

The testimony came in Newton's multimillion-dollar defamation suit against the NBC network for broadcasts in 1980 and 1981 which linked him to organized crime figures.

The reports began within days after Newton and Torres purchased the Aladdin Hotel and Casino on the Las Vegas Strip Sept. 30, 1980. Some reports questioned whether the purchase was made with mob money, but testimony in the week-old trial indicates the money came from the Valley Bank.

Torres testified Friday that the hotel funding had, in fact, come from Valley Bank.

some of the cars dropped out and were stalled along the Interstate highway by overheated engines after drivers pushed their "street rods" and "muscle cars" a little too hard.

Schwartz said he could appreciate the young drivers enjoying a little competition, but he said he and other officers were very concerned that the young drivers may not have had the experience to handle their cars safely at such high speeds.

"You just, dog, realize those cars are not just toys, they are lethal equipment on the race course. We are trying to slow them down before somebody gets hurt or killed," Schwartz said.

"I now there have been a lot of speeding tickets handed out, but I don't know if any more serious violations may have been involved."

School officials of Meridian could not be reached for comment. Family members said they, too, were en route to Pocatello for the football game.

As of 6 p.m., ISP dispatchers in Twin Falls said the young drivers had apparently reached the Pocatello area "without any accidents occurring in the Magic Valley portion of the race course. Police also said they had no word on who won the race.

Hunthausen affair reflecting rift among Catholics in U.S.

By MARJORIE HYER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In early September, Roman Catholic Archbishop Raymond G. Hunthausen of Seattle announced to his stunned priests that the archbishop had ordered them to hand over his authority in five key areas to Rome's hand-picked auxiliary bishop, Donald Wuerl.

In the history of Catholicism in this country, such drastic arrangements have heretofore been reserved for prelates who were either senile or in final decline. Neither category applied to Hunthausen, 65, a bishop for 24 years.

In the days following his announcement, it became virtually impossible to go to a gathering of mainstream Catholics anywhere in the United States without hearing a supporter-Hunthausen petition thrust at you to sign. Organizations as varied as the Canon Law Society and the Episcopal Diocese of New York have passed resolutions registering their dismay.

Congress only weeks after the Vatican's censure of theologian Charles Curran, the Hunthausen case reflects the growing polarization in American Catholicism between progressives who have absorbed the reforms of Second Vatican Council and conservatives who stress unchanging tradition, with the pope siding, in most things, with the latter.

The Vatican's knee-capping of Hunthausen climaxed a long and labyrinthine process that was triggered by complaints from disgruntled Catholics disgruntled by

Volunteer chaplain records successes in freeing innocent

By ANDREA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. — The release after eight years of a man wrongly convicted of sexual assault is the latest triumph for a volunteer chaplain whose work ministering to prison inmates has led to freedom for three men.

James McCloskey, who volunteers at Trenton State Prison, said Thursday his work is in keeping with the Bible.

"There's a strong and clinging biblical mandate to seek justice for the brokenhearted and the afflicted," said the 44-year-old McCloskey, who left a 12-year career as a management consultant in Tokyo and Philadelphia for the ministry.

His latest victory came Wednesday, when Nathaniel Walker, 44, of Elizabeth was freed from prison after serving eight years of a life-plus-30-year sentence for a 1974 sexual assault he did not commit.

Previously, his investigations gained freedom for two men wrongly convicted of murders.

Superior Court Judge Alfred Wqlin dismissed the Walker case after prosecutors agreed that tests on a forgotten sperm sample kept refrigerated in the Elizabeth police property room proved Walker could not have committed the crime.

"The criminal justice system is a leakier vessel than those who work for it, and those who participate in it dare or care to believe," said McCloskey, who was graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1984 and expects to be ordained soon as a minister in the Church of Christ.

He established "Christian Ministries," a non-profit organization incorporated by the state, to carry out his work. His home and office is a donated room in a Princeton house.

McCloskey said he survives solely on donations from churches, businesses and individuals and describes himself as a maverick and a "very practical Don Quixote."

His work began in the fall of 1980 when he volunteered to be a student chaplain at Trenton State's maximum-security unit.

His first success was in the case of Jorge De Los Santos of Newark, who was in his sixth year of a life sentence for the 1975 murder of a Newark used-car dealer.

"From the first day that I met him, almost from the first moment, he very compellingly was proclaiming his innocence to me," McCloskey said.

Three years later, as a result of McCloskey's digging, then-U.S. District Judge Frederick Lacey freed the 37-year-old De Los Santos, saying one of the state's main witnesses had lied.

McCloskey then took on the case of Ren Santana, who was serving a life sentence for double-murder. Once again, McCloskey's digging showed that the state's witness had lied and Santana was released.

In a deal with prosecutors, Santana agreed to say he provided the gun to the killers, said McCloskey.

"In every case I've taken on, there's no tangible evidence that links the defendant to the crime," McCloskey said. "Far more innocent people get lost and are in prison than the public cares to believe."

Walker's 12-year legal nightmare began in 1974 when an Elizabeth woman picked him out of a police lineup as the man who kidnapped her at knife-point and forced her to drive to a Newark housing project, where she was sexually assaulted.

Walker's attorney, Paul Castellero, said his client's trial was filled with conflicting evidence, including the woman's detailed physical description of her attacker that did not match Walker's appearance.

Castellero, who also worked with McCloskey on the De Los Santos case, agreed to take on Walker's case about a year ago and discovered that a sperm sample in the case never was tested.

When it was examined recently, it showed Walker's DNA had not been the victim's attacker.

Walker spend Wednesday evening enjoying a home-cooked meal of fried chicken and pork chops at the Elizabeth home of his mother, Irene, and talked into the night with McCloskey. "He's a great man," Walker said of McCloskey.

Hindu temple plans stir up controversy

PARKER, Texas (AP) — A proposed Hindu temple to be built near Southfork ranch of television's "Dallas" fame will be "a blight in the neighborhood, an eyesore," some residents are complaining.

The 4,000-square-foot temple also would be a target for terrorism and would decrease property values, the residents said at a hearing Tuesday night.

But Dallas-area Hindus say they want a place to preserve their ancient culture.

"Now our population has grown, our children have grown and say, 'Hey Dad, what is Hindu culture?'" said Pradeep Pandya,

Order inmate reportedly says he directed group from cell

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — An imprisoned member of the Order says he directed from his cell a group of white supremacists charged with bombings in northern Idaho, a Spokane television station reported Thursday.

But David Lane, who is serving a 40-year sentence at the nation's top-level security penitentiary in Marion, Ill., denied he ordered the group to set off any bombs.

Lane, in an interview with Spokane station KREM, said he also has never heard of Robert Pires, one of those charged with the bombings who came forward to the FBI with information about the explosions that rocked Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Sept. 15 and 29.

Pires, 22, of Silver Springs, Md., is accused of being a member of a group calling itself "Bruder Schweigen Strike Force II," which authorities allege planned to take over operations of The Order.

Federal authorities allege The Order, a Nazi-like sect also known as White American Bastion and Bruder Schweigen, German for "silent brotherhood," pursued counterfeiting, arson, armed robbery and murder in a plot to overthrow the government and establish an "Aryan homeland" in the Pacific Northwest.

In December 1985 in U.S. District Court in Seattle, Lane and nine others identified in testimony as Order members were convicted of racketeering and conspiracy to racketeer. Twelve others pleaded guilty in the case, and one has yet to come to trial after being convicted of killing a Missouri state trooper.

Lane was described in court as the driver of the getaway car in the slaying of Denver radio talk show host Alan Berg on June 18, 1984, but the jury did not issue a finding on that specific allegation.

Lane, 47, told KREM reporter Jeff Burnside that he directed Bruder Schwigen members, who are all from northern Idaho, but never directed Pires, who Lane alleged was hired by the Rev. Richard Butler, head of the Church of Jesus Christ-Christian (Aryan Nations), to infiltrate groups that threatened Butler's authority.

Lane said he never would have directed the group to set off bombs "in their own back yard."

Telephone calls were not answered Thursday night at Butler's residence in Hayden Lake, Idaho.

When asked about Lane's statement, Pires' attorney, Kerwin Bennett, replied, "It's all news to me. I never heard of any of this before."

Officials have said Bruder Schweigen members had ties to Butler's church, based eight miles northwest of Coeur d'Alene, but drifted away when they believed Butler became too ineffectual in the white-supremacist movement.

Charged in Idaho along with Pires in the Coeur d'Alene bombings are David Dorr, 35, former security chief at the Aryan Nations compound; and Edward Hawley, 22, who attended services at Butler's church.

Dorr, Hawley, and his wife, Olive Hawley, 26, also are charged with federal counts of conspiracy and counterfeiting. They are being held without bond at the Spokane County-City Jail.

Lane told KREM he believes Pires planned the bombings and then went to authorities to discredit Bruder Schweigen, a group that Lane said Butler views as a threat.

Dorr's wife, Debbie, who has not been charged, also told KREM she believes Pires infiltrated the group at Butler's request to discredit its operations.

"I say that somebody had to be guiding him," she said. "I don't think he has the mental capability of doing this on his own."

Mrs. Dorr told KREM that Pires and another man she knew only as

"B.C." appeared at the Aryan Nations compound at about the same time this summer. She said Pires and B.C. left the compound at the same time one day, and only Pires returned.

Mrs. Dorr said she later identified B.C. through a picture of a man named Kenny Shray, who she said also was from the Baltimore area and had white-supremacist ties.

Shray's body was found in Idaho's Bonner County on Aug. 18. He had been shot through the abdomen.

Bonner County Sheriff Don Nelson said there are no suspects in the case.

"We have an open and ongoing investigation, but I can't divulge anything in light of what we've done. I can tell you this, I'm surprised by Debbie Dorr's comments," Nelson said Thursday night.

Bennett declined to comment on whether his client was being investigated in Shray's death, but added, "You have to put into perspective who this is coming from and who she's trying to protect."

Bennett further declined to comment on any investigation involving Pires.

On Thursday, Pires pleaded innocent in Idaho's 1st District Court to three counts of explosion of a building and one count of attempted explosion of a building.

One bomb exploded Sept. 15 at the Coeur d'Alene home of a priest outspoken against the white-supremacist movement in the Northwest. Three others, including one at the Federal Building, exploded Sept. 29. A fourth bomb that did not explode was found on the roof of a building that houses military recruiting offices.

Pocatello hit by 1st bank heist in 3 years

POCATELLO (AP) — The university branch of Idaho First National Bank was robbed of an undisclosed amount of money Thursday evening, marking Pocatello's first bank robbery in more than three years.

The last incident was at the Yellowstone branch of United First Federal Savings and Loan on April 13, 1983, and involved the theft of less than $500.

FBI agent Pete Welsh said a lone robber entered the Idaho First branch about 4:45 p.m. Thursday armed with a small handgun and demanded money from a female teller. It was believed he fled on foot.

There was a handful of customers and several employees in the bank at the time of the incident.

Welsh said. No one was injured.

He would not disclose the amount of cash taken, but said it was in large bills. No suspect had been identified on Friday.

"We're covering every lead we can get our hands on," Welsh said.

The suspect was described as a white male, 45-55 years old, 5-foot 4-inches to 5-foot 6-inches tall, about 135 pounds with round wire-rim glasses. He was wearing a tan and orange baseball cap that covered his hair and a waist-length, rust-colored coat.

The robbery is being investigated jointly by the FBI and the Pocatello Police Department.

Radioactive spill closes lab at U of I

MOSCOW (AP) — A laboratory in the University of Idaho's Agricultural Sciences Building was closed briefly Thursday following a radioactive chemical spill, a university spokesman said.

The lab was reopened at 3 p.m. after the spill was cleaned up, said spokesman Terry Mauer.

A researcher was heating a small quantity of a compound containing phosphorus-32 in an experiment Wednesday night when less than a thimbleful of the chemical spewed out of a container, Mauer said. Radiation contamination measuring about 100 microcuries was detected, and the amount was considered low-level, he said.

There were no injuries, although the clothing of the researcher and the shoes of a co-worker who walked through the area after the spill were contaminated and impounded, said Robert McPherson, university safety officer.

No doubt as to A-2 football kings: Jerome

Rolls by Wallace to repeat crown

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — Jerome's second consecutive Idaho state Class A-2 football championship came so easily Friday night that one is tempted to describe it as overachieving.

But first-year Coach Joe Mattie said it was anything but.

"He said it was preparation, conditioning and a lot of heart from a lot smaller team" that provided the 42-20 decision by the third-ranked Tigers over the top-ranked Wallace Miners in the Idaho State University Mindome.

Wallace managed one thing — the second-best point total scored against the Jerome defense this year — but it also gave the Tigers 28 points in the second quarter and it was no contest thereafter.

A-2 Prep playoffs

And, please don't forget, junior running back Jay Ostler set a playoff record with 205 yards rushing — and didn't play in the final 6 minutes and 52 seconds. Mattie turned those last two possessions over to his second unit, the first time with the ball on the Wallace 14. They came away empty.

Mattie, who was an all-Big Sky Conference linebacker here more than a decade ago, said he has never felt this Jerome team has been accorded the respect it has earned probably because it is a very small and really quite young. But Mattie pointed out the lineup is loaded with students who carry grade-point averages of between 3.5 to 4.0 and are dedicated athletes in excellent condition.

"I think the big payoff in this game was our conditioning," he said. "I think we put the game away at 21-0 and then made just enough mental mistakes to let them back in. But in the end, the boys kept their poise and were dominating at the end again."

All of Wallace's touchdowns came as the result of big plays, a 77-yard pass from Rolf Panke to Robbie Jones and 62-yarder from Jones to Robb Mesa in the second quarter. Jeff Lang added a third TD on a two-yard early in the second half. But despite having 14 points scored against it at halftime, the Tigers' defense had held Wallace to minus-3 yards on the ground.

"It surprised me we were able to shut them down like that because of their size," said Mattie, who was the defensive coordinator on last year's state A-2 champion team. "I don't know whether it was the trip down here or the heat in the Mindome, but they appeared to tire badly and, believe me, we worked hard on conditioning this week."

After a false start on its first possession, Jerome started rolling when Ostler did. He scored on a two-yard run in the first quarter after having runs of 22 and 26 yards in the drive to set it up. Fred Gano hit the first of six straight conversion kicks.

On the first play of the second quarter, Ostler broke a 45-yard scoring dash and four minutes later Jerome was in the end zone again, this time on a Mike Welch quarterback sneak.

Two plays after that, the Panke-to-Jones touchdown clicked for 77 yards, but Jerome got that back when Mike Aardema recovered a muffed punt on the Wallace 5. Alan Leavitt scored from there.

On the first play after the ensuing kickoff, Wallace exploded a 62-yard bomb to Mesa, but just as quickly Welch came back with a 57-yard strike to sophomore John Gourley.

Jerome freshman Shawn Mallett scored on a four-yard run and Gano capped his high school career by blocking a punt through the end zone with 3:34 remaining in the game for a safety.

The victory, which left both teams at 10-2 for the season, marked Jerome High School's third straight state championship this fall, including both the girls' and boys' Class B cross country titles. That's believed to be the fastest start by a high school in Idaho High School Activities Association history.

Round 2: Tigers, Council

Richfield bested 'Jacks previously

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — Any coach will say that the only thing harder than beating a good football team is beating a good football team the second time.

8-man Prep playoffs

So Richfield High Coach Rudy Miles, whose Tigers are 8-0 for the season and were the unanimous choice as the No. 1 eight-man team in the state in the final Associated Press prep poll, is more than a little apprehensive about his team's rematch with second-ranked Council here this morning at 9 for the state eight-man championship.

The Tigers ended Council's 25-game winning streak last Sept. 6 in Boise, and did so in convincing fashion — 26-6. Neither team has lost since, and Miles knows the Lumberjacks are spilling for a payback.

"It's going to be tough," said Miles on Friday. "They're the most physical team we've played the year. The thing is, if we play ball the way we're capable of playing, we know we can beat them. We've already proven that."

Council Coach Larry Russell, who was using a new quarterback and a couple of new running backs in the team's previous meeting, came away from that game convinced his two-time defending state champion Lumberjacks are capable of better than they showed on that 90-degree Saturday afternoon in September.

"We're definitely going to do a few things differently," he said, "at least different in performance."

All the indicators favor the Tigers. Richfield has given up just three touchdowns all season and senior running back Todd Swainston is rushing per game. Moreover, he's healthy — which he hasn't been for Richfield's last two games — as is Barry Ward, who was hurt when he guided the Tigers to a 48-9 romp over third-ranked Garden Valley two weeks ago in the eight-man semifinals.

"If comparative scores mean anything, I think we have an advantage," said Miles. "Council really struggled against both Garden

Raft River running back Wayne Anderson avoids Kendrick tackler Gary Stenzel

Raft River gets on track to prevail

2nd-ranked Trojans take first-ever A-4 title, 20-14

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — A coaching point provided some critical early composure and that may have been exactly the dividend the second-ranked Raft River Trojans needed to cash in their first-ever Idaho Class A-4 football championship here Friday.

The Trojans, giving up a touchdown to No. 1 Kendrick in the first 2½ minutes, pulled themselves together and came back with the next two touchdowns and simply grew stronger as the game progressed to its 20-14 conclusion in the Idaho State University Mindome. In fact, Raft River was falling on the ball at the Tiger 10-yard line as time ran out.

But for the least-experienced team, Kendrick was runner-up to Oakley here a year ago — the Trojans refused to choke when an excellent opportunity presented itself. That came on the opening kickoff when Kendrick executed a perfect onside kick and recovered at the Trojan 44-yard line. Five plays later, a four-yard pass from Ron Hewitt to Brian Parks had the ball in end zone. Jim Woods, the younger of the brother running back tandem, punched the two-point conversion across.

It was then Magic Valley fans began wondering if the considerably smaller Trojans might give in to an early frustration.

But Trojan Coach Tom Harrison did not share in those concerns, noting "we knew they were coming with that. It showed up on their scouting reports."

"We just never seem to be able to play in either the early first or early third quarters, and that problem was with us today," he continued. "They hurt us with that first touchdown, but we told our kids we just had to hold on until we get our offense on track and get going."

Quarterback Rob Hitt was the one who started the Raft River comeback as he hit four key passes in a 77-yard march that culminated two plays into the second quarter on a 19-yard strike to his favorite receiver, Joey Wight. The two-point conversion pass failed, leaving Raft River trailing 8-6 with 11 minutes and 38 seconds left in the first half.

A-4 Prep playoffs

Within four plays, however, Raft River was back in business, forcing a punt and springing Steve Frederickson loose on a 43-yard return to the Kendrick 18-yard line. From there, Wayne Anderson and Frederickson took turns popping off-tackle before Hitt kept on an option and scored from three yards out. He then threw to Wight for the two-point conversion.

Harrison's complaint about early-half woes surfaced again as the third quarter began. Mark Wight recovered a Kendrick fumble at the Tiger 32-yard line, but that chance ended on an interception three plays later. The teams then traded punts until late in the third when Mike Harris returned a Trojan kick 27 yards to the Raft River 30. The Trojans punched down to the 5 and scored on the first play of the final period to knot the thing on a five-yard strike from Hewitt to Scott Weissenfels. Raft River baited the pass away on conversion attempt.

Immediately after the kickoff, the Trojans put together the drive that clinched the championship.

"They seemed to be getting tired and our little guys kept pounding them," said Harrison. "We told our line we've got them tired — keep after them a few more plays and they'll crumble. Their coach felt them getting tired too because he used a couple of timeouts trying to help them."

The drive started at the Trojan 25-yard line and covered 14 plays, but more importantly ate up

All hail Columbia! Loss streak in danger

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — They cannot stop their team a burly lineman or a fleet flanker, but fans of Columbia University's losing Lions are doing all they can to end Columbia's 29-game losing streak.

They are chanting ritual incantations. They are sending the coach and athletic director invective plays. And they are writing fight songs that have little in common with the Ivy League's genteel traditions.

"Kill Lions kill, kill them now," goes one.

"Gnaw on their bones and drink their blood. Kill them, Lions, anyway, anyhow, for Columbia's glory and brotherhood."

Will these measures be enough to end a streak that extends back to 1983, and threatens to eclipse the record of 34 set by Northwestern last year on Saturday, when the Lions are 32-point underdogs to Cornell.

But the fans keep the faith. "I think Columbia fans — and I'm one of them — understand the meaning of the word 'hope,'" says Jamie Katz, editor of Columbia College Today, the school's alumni magazine.

Al Paul, Columbia's athletic director, says he has received calls at night and on weekends from fans who want to give money or recruit. Others have sent 12-page treatises on how to put the Lions on the road to No. 1.

Ricks gets past CSI to advance to final

Golden Eagles blow 2-game lead

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ricks College tottered on the brink of defeat before staging a dramatic turnaround, coming from two games down to move past the College of Southern Idaho and into today's championship round of the Region 18 junior college volleyball tournament.

After taking the opening two games, 15-11, 15-7, it appeared that CSI would advance in a walk, but round at 1 p.m. in the CSI gym-volleying-hitters-Seleste-Summers-nasium-with-a-rematch-between-the Karle Willey and Mollie Wilkings Golden Eagles and Utah Tech. The thought occurred: With scarcely a winner takes on Ricks at 5 p.m. in a kill between them at that point, the championship final. Should a set those three accounted for most of the damage offensively while the Eagles did little to aid their own cause.

"We just lost it mentally and never did get it back," said CSI Coach Ben Stroud. "Missed serves at critical times, hits out of bounds and into the net at the wrong times."

Play resumes in the concluding set at 1 p.m. in the CSI gym-volleying-hitters-Seleste-Summers-nasium-with-a-rematch-between-the Karle Willey and Mollie Wilkings Golden Eagles and Utah Tech. The thought occurred: With scarcely a winner takes on Ricks at 5 p.m. in a kill between them at that point, the championship final. Should a set those three accounted for most of the damage offensively while the national finals in Miami on Nov. 24-26, that game would begin at 8 p.m.

Though faced with the challenge of winning three straight, Stroud feels good about his team's chances.

"It's going to be tough, very tough," he added. "We'll just come out and play our game — play with confidence and play to win. We've had our backs to the wall before — we just have to stay hungry."

Earlier, CSI advanced to the first semifinal contest behind a close 15-12, 8-15, 15-11, 8-15, 15-10 match victory over the Lady Wolverines of Utah Tech. But the first major upset came in game two.

to down the Badgers in three straight 17-15, 15-7, 15-4.

That unexpected defeat started the Badgers on a skid that saw them fall to Tech in the early evening game 8, 15-15, 15-10, 9-15 and close the 1986 campaign with a 4-6 record.

Snow Coach Ann Bricker made no excuses for her team's showing.

"We just didn't come here and play the way that we can," she said.

Lori Richards, Bricker's counterpart at Tech, was delighted with the victory — her team's first in six tries this season against the Badgers.

"It was just a great team effort," she said while accepting congratulations from a throng of fans who followed their team from Provo.

"They're fifth in the nation and we beat them. We're a team with nine freshmen — it takes a real team spirit."

Suns dust off Philadelphia by biggest margin ever, 127-97

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Walter Davis scored 24 points and rookie forward Rafael Addison added 22 in his first NBA start as the Phoenix Suns broke a four-game losing streak with a 127-97 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Friday night.

It was the Suns' most lopsided victory ever over the 76ers in their 63-game series, which Philadelphia still leads 35-28.

Phoenix, which had lost its last five meetings with the 76ers and nine of the past 10, scored 24 of the game's first 32 points en route to a 39-20 lead by the end of the first period.

Davis scored 10 first-period points while Addison and James Edwards added eight each. The 76ers shot just 34 percent from the field in the quarter.

Larry Nance had nine points in the second period as the Suns, up 55-28 at one stage, led 89-48 at halftime.

After Pierce's basket, the Knicks had a chance to score, but turned the ball over on a trap by the Bucks with 18 seconds left. A steal gave the Knicks' another opportunity, but Patrick Ewing missed a layup with six seconds remaining.

Cummings led the Bucks with 25 points, while Pierce added 21 and Paul Pressey 19 for the Bucks.

Bill Cartwright led the Knicks with 20 points. Pat Cummings and Ewing had 15 each and Kenny Walker added 11.

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Kevin Willis had 31 points and 20 rebounds Friday night, powering Atlanta to a 105-100 victory over the Detroit Pistons, the Hawks' sixth win in seven NBA games this season.

The Hawks, who had the best record in the league, also got 24 points from Dominique Wilkins and 14 from Randy Wittman. Adrian Danley and Isiah Thomas, who fouled out with 1:02 to play after scoring nine consecutive Detroit points, led the Pistons with 21 apiece, while Vinnie Johnson had 19.

Wittman's running one-hander, followed by his three-point play with 5:02 left, put the Hawks on top 94-86, and Detroit never got closer than a basket the rest of the way.

Lions

One roster repeatedly sent letters advising coach Larry McElreavy to "install a shotgun offense, and McElreavy tried it out.

Did it work? "Not a lot has been working," Paul says, sadly.

The Columbia Daily Spectator, a campus newspaper, publishes a box in each issue that contains a count-up to the Northwestern record: 26 ... 27 ... 28 ...

Winning is not a tradition at the school, which has had but one winning season since 1962. While much is made of the losing streak, it also should be noted that the Lions have gone 32 games without a victory. Ties may not be as good as wins elsewhere, but at Columbia they take what they can get.

At WNCN-FM, a commercial classical music station, morning host Bob Evans has rallied the city for the Lions. "The Columbia Lions are New York's hometown Ivy League team," Evans said, by way of explanation.

Evans solicited help from his listeners. One suggested that the Lions switch to a high school league. Another suggested that real lions be unleashed on the visiting locker room. A third suggested poisoning the opponents' food.

An outbreak of salmonella soon followed at Princeton. "I emphatically deny that I was anywhere near the tuna fish that day," Evans said.

On Halloween, Evans and his listeners sought supernatural help:

"Slip loose you demons and vengeance wreak, pray break Columbia's losing streak." They wrote the bloodthirsty fight song. They wrote new cheers for Wall Street types: "Money gallop if you roar, Lions, roar!"

This week, a pep squad of 100 WNCN listeners will attend the game at Wen Stadium at Baker Field. The stadium holds 17,000, but the largest crowd this year was 8,000 for homecoming.

The man whose name is on that stadium, attorney Lawrence A. Wien, says he is confident that better days are ahead for Columbia. The freshman team has won two games this year, and though they have also lost three, this is as close to a winning season as Columbians have been in some time.

"We have a long tradition of losing," said Wien.

There have been some moments of glory — a 7-0 victory over Stanford in the 1934 Rose Bowl, a 21-20 victory in 1947 to end Army's 32-game unbeaten streak on a spectacular touchdown pass from Gene Rossides to Bill Swacki — but Columbia and defeat have long been a twosome.

Wien jokes about the streak. "We're all young. We all have plenty of time," he says. He is 81 years old.

And if, heaven forbid, Columbia's streak surpasses Northwestern's? "Then Columbia will be outstanding. We will have another record," Wien says.

But Miles knows that the Idaho State University Mindcore turf, on which Council has won the last two state championships, could change things drastically.

"That's where they have the advantage," he said. "I've never coached on artificial turf and our quaterback Jamie Fry in the waning moments of their game in September, and Miles knows he's capable of doing it again.

"That's the thing that scares me," he said. "If he gets open on us, I don't know if we have the speed to catch him."

Little else went right for Council that day, however. Richfield outgained the Swainlocks 429 yards to 267, and Lumberman had a quite literally — a field day. He rushed for 183 yards and two touchdowns on his own and passed for a third.

"We had a real good pass rush that day, and I think that was the big thing," said Miles. "Offensively, we got pretty good line surge; we've been working on coming off the ball then on taking out the guards and linebackers."

Since that day, Council has become more of a run-oriented team, however, behind 5-foot-10, 155-pound senior Craig Green and 5-9, 140-pound junior Greg Woods.

Although the Fry-Rosegrain combination hasn't clicked for a lot of touchdowns, the threat is always there.

"We know they'll be an improved team from the last time we saw them, so we're going to have to be ready to play good football," said Miles. "If we stay away from the big play, stay away from turnovers and play some consistent football, I think we'll win it."

"After that, Kendrick had just one more chance with the ball, but had given it back to the Trojans. They elected to throw the final drive that ended at the 10-yard line.

"We were able to stay pretty close to our game plan and our ability to connect on the midrange pass was a big part of our success," Har-risson said. "We took advantage of their secondary's fast-lane ability to bring our receivers to throwbacks and passes underneath. Hill throws that type of pass extremely well."

The victory improved Raft River's season record to 10-1. It was Kendrick's first loss in 10 games this season and only the second in two years for the Tigers.

Robbins' last-ditch efforts enough for Spartans

By The Times-News

RIGBY — Carolyn Robbins grabbed a rebound off the offensive glass with four seconds left in the contest and scored on the putback to hand the Minico Spartans a hand-fought 50-57 Gem State Conference girls' basketball victory here Friday.

The senior's last-minute goal decided a game that saw the Trojans, trailing after the first eight minutes, pull even at intermission and carry a narrow two-point advantage into the fourth quarter.

All-GSC guard Rose Stuart scored five field goals and was 11-for-12 at the free throw line to pace the Spartans. Robbins backed Stuart with 18 to help offset the double-figure scoring of a trio of Trojans.

"It was a tough game physically," said first-year Minico Coach Val Christensen, whose team (now 1-1) returns home for a Tuesday evening conference contest against Skyline.

"They were a better team that I expected," Robbins captured the junior varsity victory on 33-27.

Murtaugh had taken the lead at 13-12 at the one-minute mark on Tiffany Ward's two free throws. But the Red Devils picked up an offensive foul a few seconds later, and Quigley converted it into the game-winning and game-winning points.

The victory in evened Castleford's MVC and season records at 1-1, while Murtaugh fell to 0-2 for the season.

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration announced approval Thursday of the first artificial ligament — a braided strand of synthetic fiber used to repair certain types of sports injuries.

The artificial ligament attaches between the thigh and the lower leg bone to stabilize the knee after the natural ligament — called the anterior cruciate — is torn, a frequent occurrence in football, soccer and skiing.

The artificial ligament is made of expanded polytetrafluoroethylene, or Gore-Tex, a tough, durable material already used in sutures and blood vessel grafts, as well as in ski pants, running clothes and foul-weather gear.

Criner faces NCAA committee

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Iowa State President Gordon Eaton and Jim Criner, fired on Wednesday as the Cyclones' football coach, faced alegation of school officials into a long meeting Friday with the NCAA Infractions Committee.

Allegations reportedly include illegal cash payments and loans to players and recruits and free airline tickets to athletes and their parents.

More allegations at SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist light and Albert Reese won't be allowed to play Saturday against Texas Tech so that school officials can study allegations that he stayed in a rent-free apartment supplied by a school booster, SMU Athletic Director Bob Hitch said Friday.

In a copyright story in the Dallas Morning News Friday, former and current employees of Dallas developer George Owen said Owen's office told them to provide apartments for Reese and David Stanley, the former SMU player who says school officials gave him $25,000 in 1983 to play at SMU.

The Reese development followed Stanley's assertions Wednesday in a WFAA-TV interview about the $25,000 plus $750 in monthly payments he said he continued to get even after SMU was placed on NCAA probation last year.

Unloved by many, 3-point field goal joins the NCAA

By TRUDY TYNAN
The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Lou Carnesecca calls the three-point goal a Mickey Mouse shot.
Denny Crum calls it a step backward.
Stu Starner says it can't hurt to try it.

A shot through the net from 19 feet, 9 inches means three points in college basketball this season, one of the most drastic changes in the game since James Naismith invented it in 1891.

"It could put the smaller man back in the game, and that's good," said Dr. Edward S. Stietz, secretary-editor of the rules committee and athletic director at Springfield College.

College basketball

make some adjustments."
Of 744 college coaches surveyed by Stietz at the end of last season, 64 percent said no to the three-pointer.

Crum said he was surprised the committee adopted the rule despite the coaches' opposition.

"It's aimed at cleaning up the play on the inside, but I think it's going to benefit the big man because teams are no longer going to be able to afford to double- and triple-team him underneath," Crum said. "I just don't see the need for it. Why mess with a game that's at its peak?"

They may not like it, but coaches haven't wasted any time figuring out how to deal with it.

"We spent three hours in practice just working on defenses against the three-point shot in the closing minutes of the game," Villanova's Rolfe Massimino said.

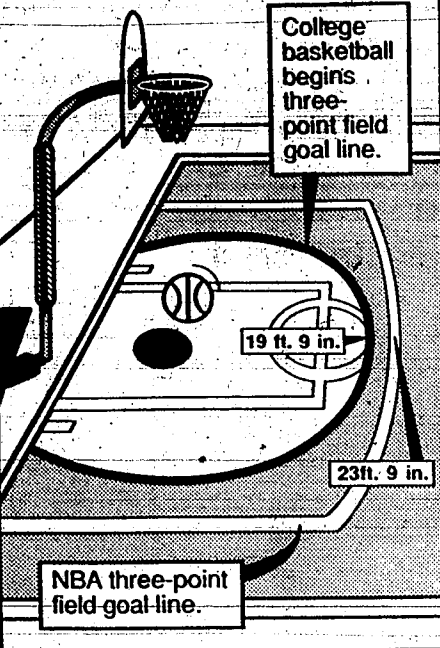

"Teams are going to have to play more defense away from the basket," he said.

"Not everyone is thrilled with the change, including Carnesecca, coach at St. John's, and Crum, coach of NCAA champion Louisville.

However, Starner, coach at Montana State, urged his peers to be open-minded: "Try it. You might like it." The Bobcats belong to the Big Sky Conference, one of 15 conferences that experimented with the three-pointer from varying distances during the past five years.

"We've probably gotten more questions about this than any other change we've made excepting the shot clock," he said. "I still have a lot of comment about whether we've chosen the right distance and we may have to

Hitting for three points

"The one thing it could lead to is creation of a three-point specialist, who could come into the game when you are down and get things going."

Starner said the average accuracy of the three-pointer was about 39 percent, based on the trial runs in different conferences.

To score the same number of points with two-point shots, a team would have to shoot 57 percent from the field. Michigan State led the nation in field goal shooting percentage last season with 56.1 percent.

Starner said fouls — a three-point shooter gets only two free throws if fouled in the act of shooting — were not a problem because one of the basic rules of coaching is don't foul the perimeter shooter.

Stietz said the rules committee "considered awarding three four shots, as is done under the international rules, but decided to go along with the two until we can get some data."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Five years of basketball success are but a memory at Memphis State.

It all unraveled like a cheap pair of pants in the last few years, beset by booster interference and allegations that players were paid off and black athletes exploited.

It all ended with the firing of Dana Kirk, who led the Tigers to the NCAA tournament five years in a row, including the "Final Four" in 1985.

And now it's up to Larry Finch to rebuild a shattered program.

"I don't consider myself Moses, but I'm going to try to lead the team through this," the seven-year Tiger assistant coach said.

"I'm sure that's a job, I'm concerned about my alma mater," said Finch, who, as a player, led the Tigers to the NCAA championship game in 1973.

"It will take a little time to get things back in order, especially since all the stuff that's been going on in the last two years," he said. "Some of the things that have been said were unjust, but we can't control that."

Much has been said and written about Memphis State in the past two years.

The Tigers were placed on two years' probation in May for giving approximately $58,000 in federal finanial aid to more than 100 athletes, exceeding the NCAA's $5,000 limit. It was also forced to return almost $1 million in basketball tournament revenue.

The Tigers' loss center William Beck Jr. for two games last season after the NCAA determined he violated rules by using cars furnished by boosters.

The Commercial Appeal, Memphis' daily newspaper, and Sports Illustrated magazine reported that in 1983 Kirk offered $10,000 to relatives of forward Keith Lee while the 6-foot-10 star was being recruited. A university investigation failed to turn up evidence supporting those allegations.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People issued a protest after a survey by The Commercial Appeal showed Memphis State had the lowest graduating rate among five area colleges for scholarship athletes recruited in 1978 and 1979.

Without discussing their reasons, Memphis State officials fired Kirk in September, his seven years at the reins of his home team for about $159,000. In his seven years as coach, he was 158-58.

Kirk, 51, had been called before a Memphis grand jury investigating sports gambling in the mid-South. He acknowledged that his personal finances were under review by the panel, but denied any wrongdoing.

Afterward, however, the Innuendo increased and the school's image, many thought, dimmed.

"An institution like Memphis State desires getting some attention across the country, but if you can't have your teams respected, it becomes a negative," said Dr. Thomas G. Carpenter, the school's president.

Memphis State, meanwhile, has instituted a new academic counseling program for athletes, revamped its procedure for dispensing federal grants and demanded a written commitment from each of its boosters that they will abide by all NCAA regulations.

A lot of athletic departments are accused of overemphasizing athletics, but that charge should be leveled at the public," Carpenter said.

Athletic Director Charles Cavagnaro said Memphis State has written agreements with all booster clubs that money given to the school will be deposited in an account for the university to disperse.

Also, we now have a yearly audit of all athletic records, both academic and financial, and I can say with confidence the university is doing everything to help our student-athletes graduate," Cavagnaro said.

Carpenter, however, warned that problems will still arise at his school and others if the NCAA doesn't revamp its own way of governing athletics.

"The impression has been created that college athletics has become a situation of incompetent athletes and that just isn't the case," Carpenter said. "We have some very fine men and women engaged in athletics. I think that now there are very few 'outlaws' involved in athletics."

"We have a concern that the NCAA has not really served to protect the student. Their rules are based on money and competition between schools. In their zeal to make sure the student-athlete doesn't get more than other students, they have seen that they get less," he said.

Only time will tell if the new administrative checks and balances solve the school's problems.

Kerr is expected to return in 1987, but Arizona still is faced with a challenging non-conference schedule that includes Nevada-Las Vegas, Iowa, Illinois and Georgetown.

"In the past, I think our league has made some big mistakes in agreeing to play at some of these other sites, without getting the return game. It seems like every time you turn around, if there's a televised game, it's from the other team's site," Olson said.

Eleven of the 13 players on Arizona's roster are from California: Redshirt freshman forward Brian David, a reserve, is from Iowa, while starting sophomore forward Sean Elliott is a native Tucsonian.

"The only time we'll go East is if we don't have players available in the West," the silver-haired Olson said.

Pelluer and the running tandem of Herschel Walker and Tony Dorsett.

The Big East is back! Not exactly, although Pacific-10 coaches are confident a conference tournament is imminent — one that would put Western basketball back on the map.

"These things tend to run in cycles. I think the Big East will be on the down cycle now," said new Southern Cal Coach George Raveling, who formerly coached at Washington State and Iowa. "I think the Pac-10's on the way back now."

"I think the pendulum is swinging," Arizona Coach Lute Olson said. "The top dozen players in our league last year are returning while I think the ACC lost like 20 of its top 40. It's indicative when Georgetown is picked to win (the Big East) with only one returning starter. You wonder how tough that league is going to be from top to bottom.

"The Pac-10, with so many experienced players, is going to be tougher and the recruiting is going to allow us to continue to make the strides we want to make," Olson added.

"We are making every effort to get the type of status we think the conference deserves."

After UCLA's 10 NCAA titles in 12 years (1964-75), the Pac-10 hardly made a dent in the national scene.

Since 1978, only one team from the West has made it to the NCAA's Final Four (UCLA, 1980). UCLA hasn't won an NCAA playoff game since.

In the last two years, six Pac-10 teams — two last year — have made the NCAA tourney and all were eliminated in first round.

Arizona is one of the best examples of a weak Pac-10 program now pumping iron.

Just four years ago it was in shambles: The Wildcats went 4-24 overall and 1-17 in the Pac-10 — the worst record in school history.

Arizona then hired Olson, who was 167-91 in nine years at Iowa with five straight 20-win seasons. Before that he had built a strong program at Long Beach State.

He turned the Wildcats' fortunes around as they went 21-10 overall and 12-6 in conference play in his second season. It was the school's first 20-win season in eight years and brought them to within one game of the Pac-10 title.

Last season, Arizona won its first Pac-10 championship with a record of 23-9 overall and 14-4 in league play. The Wildcats were preseason favorites to repeat this year until guard Steve Kerr suffered a severe knee injury last July in international competition.

Kerr is expected to return in 1987, but Arizona still is faced with a challenging non-conference schedule that includes Nevada-Las Vegas, Iowa, Illinois and Georgetown.

"In the past, I think our league has made some big mistakes in agreeing to play at some of these other sites, without getting the return game. It seems like every time you turn around, if there's a televised game, it's from the other team's site," Olson said.

Eleven of the 13 players on Arizona's roster are from California: Redshirt freshman forward Brian David, a reserve, is from Iowa, while starting sophomore forward Sean Elliott is a native Tucsonian.

"The only time we'll go East is if we don't have players available in the West," the silver-haired Olson said.

last week behind QB Warren Moon, who had a big game against Cincinnati last Sunday. Pittsburgh is at the bottom of the NFL in sacks (13).

Miami, 4-6, has swept Buffalo, 3-7, the past two seasons and is one victory away from doing it again. A victory by the Bills could pull them even with the Dolphins in the AFC East. Buffalo is looking for its second straight victory under new coach Marv Levy.

New Orleans, 5-5, with the best record among last-place teams, has been 6-5 only three times in its history. Both the Saints and Cardinals have top returners — the Saints' Mel Gray, who leads the NFL with 20.7 yard average and rookie Val Sihakema at 24.4.

Both Seattle and Cincinnati are back on the AFC. As far as the quarterbacks are concerned and are trying to stay alive for the playoffs. Dave Krieg is back at QB for Seattle and Boomer Esiason again is the Cincy signal-caller. The Seahawks are 2-8, their last five starts while the Bengals have dropped two of their last three.

San Diego, 2-8, which broke an eight-game losing streak last Sunday, goes against Dallas' pass defense, tops in the NFL. In the past four games, the Chargers have held opponents to less than 300 total yards. The task should be tougher because of Cowboys QB Steve Pelluer and the running tandem of Herschel Walker and Tony Dorsett.

Green Bay, 1-9, has beaten Tampa Bay, 2-8, three consecutive times.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"Man is still the most extraordinary computer of all."

Give today's West hand to a computer and it will surely defend inaccurately. Put a man in the same seat and he might have a chance to beat the game.

South wins his club king and bangs down his king of hearts. Chris Computer, a $1,000,000 machine, takes the heart king with the ace and leads another club to South's ace. A low heart is led to dummy's ace and East's queen, and East catches the queen of clubs. The spade 10 comes whistling back, but South goes up with his ace and leads a heart to dummy's 10. A low diamond is finessed to South's jack, and the ace of diamonds and the high heart come next. Finally, South leads a low diamond to dummy's king to split the suit and land nine tricks.

A lucky hand? You bet. But a human sitting West would have had a better shot.

The machine is programmed to put aces on opponents' kings; a human might ask himself, "Why should I do so South wishes?" If West ducks the heart ace, the game must fall. South has no second entry to win four diamond tricks, and instead of nine tricks, South wins only eight.

Chalk one up for a human over a computer.

Car sales drive wholesale prices up

October retail sales skid as fewer autos sold; producer index up 3rd month

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices rose a moderate 0.3 percent in October while retail sales took a 5 percent nosedive, the largest decline on record, the government reported Friday.

Erratic automobile sales played a key role in both changes.

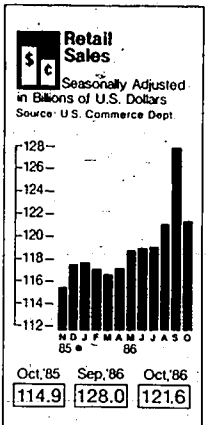

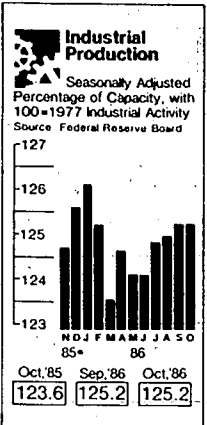

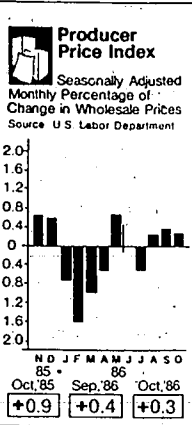

Car prices went up sharply with the new-model year, and consumers bought fewer of them.

The increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index was the third in a row, following 0.3 percent and 0.4 percent boosts in August and September. A 4.7 percent surge in new auto prices and a 0.9 percent hike in food costs more than offset a 4.3 percent drop in energy prices.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said the record 5.9 percent decline in retail sales followed a record 5.3 percent increase the month before.

The plunge was due almost entirely to a giant swing in auto sales, which soared by a record 22.3 percent in September and then plunged by a record 18.8 percent in October, after special cut-rate financing programs were ended.

The special incentives were offered by U.S. automakers to clear economist for Data Resources Inc., a private forecasting service based in Lexington, Mass.

In still another report relating to automobile sales, the Labor Department said that 1987 model cars cost $776.38 more at the retail level than similarly-equipped 1986 models a year ago. Of this price increase, only $47.31 went into improvements or new features, the report said.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said that, discounting the wild swings in automobile sales, "careful analysis of both the retail sales and producer price pictures shows an American economy where consumer demand is strong, helped by low inflation and the steady creation of new jobs."

October's 0.3 percent increase in producer prices, if continued for 12 consecutive months, would equal a 4.2 percent annual rate of inflation at the wholesale level.

However, because of tumbling oil prices earlier this year, the producer index for the 10 months of 1986 has actually declined at an annual rate of 3.2 percent.

Economists predict only slight inflation for the rest of this year, but say prices will rise more moderately in 1987 as oil prices stabilize and imported goods continue to become more expensive — reflecting declines in the value of the U.S. dollar against other major currencies.

Gasoline prices fell 7.4 percent in October, following a 9.5 percent gain in September. Heating oil declined 7.5 percent after a 7.7 percent increase. Natural gas dropped 1.3 percent, their third consecutive decline.

Food costs advanced 0.9 percent in October, following a 0.2 percent dip in September. Leading this increase was a 16.6 percent jump in the price of fresh fruit and a 9.1 percent advance in poultry prices. Beef and veal prices increased 2.8 percent while egg prices dropped 5 percent.

"The jump in food prices is due primarily to the effects of the drought and bad weather last summer," said Jerry Jasnowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

Lawrence Chimerline, president of Chase Econometrics, said increased prices of imports due to declines in the value of the dollar against other major currencies should drive inflation next year to the 3.5 percent to 4 percent range at the retail level and to 2 percent to 2.5 percent at the wholesale level.

"This is higher than we've seen in a while. But it's not mega-inflation by any means," Chimerline said.

Dow climbs on takeovers

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market turned upward Friday in a session given over almost entirely to takeover news and speculation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 11.39 to 1,873.59, cutting its loss for the week to 12.94 points. The average had fallen 31.50 points on Thursday.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 172.06 million shares, against 163.95 million the day before.

As the trading day began, investors were confronted with some weaker-than-expected economic news.

The Commerce Department reported that retail sales fell 5 percent in October, and the Federal Reserve said industrial production was unchanged in the same month.

Analysts had been expecting a decline in the retail sales data, because of the expiration of cut-rate financing offers that had stimulated auto sales in September. But there had also been hopes that industrial production would show further gains.

Nevertheless, analysts said traders' belief evidently wasn't shaken that the economy was still growing at a modest pace.

Also, whatever negative implications the data might have had for growth prospects were offset by a drop in open-market interest rates. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, climbed more than $5 for every $1,000 in face value.

For many traders, it seemed, economic and interest-rate developments commanded little attention in a marketplace bubbling with takeover news and rumors.

The news of the involvement of out their inventories of 1986 models. With the new model year, prices went up and sales plunged.

Since financing incentives are also figured into the producer price figures, their discontinuance also contributed to the October price surge.

Excluding autos, sales rose a slight 0.2 percent in October.

"Consumers are retrenching sharply after an extended shopping spree," said Sara Johnson, a senior

GM continues losing market share

By JANET BRAUNSTEIN
The Associated Press

DETROIT — U.S. automakers reported Thursday that domestic sales rose 5.7 percent in early November over the period last year, but industry-leader General Motors Corp. sales continued to slide without incentives.

Domestic-made cars sold at a seasonally adjusted rate of about 6.3 million a year during the eight selling days from Nov. 1-10, said David Healy, an auto industry analyst with Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York.

The sales rate is "pretty low. It's lower than the rate which they're building cars, so dealer inventories are starting to build up again," Healy said. "I would expect incentives again probably before the end of the year."

Sales have been improving slowly since mid-October, when they dropped off sharply after GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. discontinued deep-discount incentives launched by GM in August to clear out inventory backlogs.

"But you would need a microscope to see it," Healy said.

The eight major U.S. automakers reported early November sales of 155,280 cars, up 5.7 percent from 146,969 a year ago. But sales for the year so far were down 1.4 percent from last year, with reported sales of 7,175,799 this year against 7,277,885 for last year.

GM sales were down 5.2 percent for the period as the target automaker's early November market share slipped to 5.3 percent from 5.9 percent in early November 1985. GM sold 82,729 domestic-made cars, nearly 4,500 fewer than in the year-ago period.

"In October, GM had its worst market share in 21 months and its share was still lousy in the first 10 days of November. I think GM will offer incentives on Fiero, Cavalier, Sunbird, Firenze, Skyhawk, Camaro and Firebird in the next few weeks," said Ron Glantz, analyst with Mon-gomery Securities in San Francisco.

Ford reported sales of 41,492 cars for the period, up 32.8 percent over a year ago, and Chrysler reported sales of 21,181 cars, up 1.4 percent.

American Motors Corp.'s sales of 1,120 cars were off 51.3 percent from the year-ago period and Volkswagen of America sales slipped 25.7 percent to 831 cars for the period.

American Honda Motor Co., Nissan Motor Corp. in U.S.A. and Toyota Motor Corp.'s U.S. arm all contributed to the increase in sales for the period. Toyota began producing its FX-16 model in October in Fremont, Calif.

Honda, the No. 4 U.S. automaker, reported sales of 6,055 domestic-made cars in early November, 110 percent more than a year ago. Nissan's sales were up 27.5 percent, with 1,657 U.S.-made cars. Toyota sold 215 U.S.-made cars in early November, bringing its total to 1,042 so far.

OPEC tries again for price solution

By MONTE HAYES
The Associated Press

QUITO, Ecuador — OPEC's price committee held private talks Friday on developing a strategy for trying to stabilize world oil prices at higher levels.

The delegates declined to comment after their first meeting of a two-day session.

The three-member committee, which has no decision-making authority, is trying to devise a policy to be presented at the next meeting of the 13 oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries on Dec. 11.

The cartel has been struggling all year to find a way to boost prices, which plummeted from about $22 a barrel last November to levels below $10, before rising to a current range between $13 and $16 a barrel.

OPEC faces formidable obstacles in finding a strategy to raise prices. There is a huge oil surplus on the world market, much of it supplied by non-OPEC producers. OPEC also has serious internal divisions, mainly the 6-year-old war between Iran and Iraq.

Friday's meeting centered on various proposals for future pricing mechanisms for the cartel, including a return to official selling prices of $18 or $20 a 42-gallon barrel, said one source, who spoke on the condition he not be identified.

Javier Espinosa Teran, the energy minister of Ecuador, told reporters before the meeting that it was unlikely OPEC would achieve a fixed-price immediately.

"But obviously we can start taking certain steps in that direction," he said.

The price committee is made up of Espinosa, Shiek Ali Khalifa al-Sabah of Kuwait and Fawsi al-Shakshuki of Libya.

Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, Venezuela's energy minister, attended as an observer, along with OPEC Secretary-General Fadhil al-Chalabi of Iraq.

The committee planned to review marketing systems, production controls and ways to achieve a balance between supply and demand.

Espinosa said most OPEC members support a fixed price of $18 a barrel for crude. He said Ecuador supported a range of prices as a step to returning to a single fixed price.

Ecuador is pushing for a price range of $18 to $20, but several other countries want a spread of $17 to $19, he said.

Ecuador's deputy energy minister, Fernando Santos, told reporters outside the meeting room that Friday's discussion focused on two price proposals.

He said one proposal, being championed by Libya and Iran, calls for an immediate increase to $18 a barrel coupled with a drastic reduction of OPEC's current daily output of 17 million barrels. He said supporters of that approach believe it would force oil prices up to $28 a barrel by the end of 1987.

A second proposal, which Ecuador and Venezuela advocate, calls for a strategy of setting a scale of prices with $18 as the minimum, he said.

Equity loan time bomb in many homes

NEW YORK — Americans are accustomed to hearing of national economic events such as the budget and trade deficits being referred to as ticking time bombs that, unless defused, could blow up in their faces.

But many of them have a time bomb in their own homes, and it may be that they are careful to take the roof from over their heads sometime in the distant future.

It is the home equity loan, or a loan based on the money value built up in a house through inflation or by having paid the mortgage down during years of ownership. Spurred by a new tax law, it is now the hottest product in personal finance.

Among the dangers of equity loans is the characteristic they share with budget and trade deficits. Early in their life, that is, the benefits are great, and the consequences so far into the future they can be ignored.

That, economists point out, is what halted Uncle Sam into allowing budget deficits to get out of hand. Government spending spurred the economy, and the adverse impact on interest, prices and jobs could be worried about later.

They call attention also to the fact that the trade deficit was allowed to continue for the same reason: The immediate impact was a flood of attractive, priced goods from abroad. The lost jobs and damaged industries came later.

The syndrome is even more detectable in big business, and among bankers who otherwise espouse a conservative philosophy.

A decade ago, for example, big-city bankers shipped billions in loans to less-developed nations because the rates were high and the consequences were far enough in the future to permit them the luxury of fuzzy thinking.

Perceiving the equity loan as a way to have their cake while eating it, homeowners are now borrowing billions on their homes, and the long-term consequences could be explosive.

Immediately, the equity loan puts money in the pocket for paying bills, buying necessities and indulging in luxuries. Moreover, the interest on such loans remains deductible, within certain limitations, under the tax law due to take effect in 1987.

The urge is great, therefore, to pay off existing credit-card, auto and personal loans, whose tax-deductibility will be phased out under the new tax law, by bundling them into one equity loan.

The procedure provides 1) a tax shelter, 2) a lower rate of interest, 3) a longer repayment period.

The immediate advantage can be overwhelmingly attractive, and cause the borrower to ignore the loan's conditions.

Because an 18.5 percent credit card loan can be replaced by a 10 percent equity loan, and because repayment might be over a 10-year period rather than a few years, the borrower might lower monthly repayments by hundreds of dollars.

But:

1. The equity loan might have no cap. Many do, some don't.

2. Most first mortgages are capped by an amount the interest rate can be raised within a certain period, 6 months to 5 years — and over the life of the loan.

3. While many financial institutions and economists expect a return to rate-cutting next year to remain roughly where they are now or even lower, there is no assurance that some day they won't rise swiftly.

The possibility cannot be discounted. In December 1980 the prime lending rate to high-quality corporate borrowers reached 21.5 percent. At that time, many smaller companies reported their rates at close to 25 percent.

High interest rates generally are accompanied by bad times generally. They may coincide with inflation; they could coincide with unemployment, too. Either possibility would exacerbate home-equity repayment problems.

Home equity loans could be the ideal way for some families to handle financial pressures. For others, they could be the force that blows them out of house and home.
