Record spending slash looms for '88 budget

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's proposed budget for the next fiscal year may seek up to a record $54 billion in spending cuts and other savings, a 6 percent increase in defense spending and no new taxes, administration officials said Tuesday.

Those figures, confirmed in part by budget director James C. Miller III and in part by other administration officials, would be included in a budget document designed to pare the federal deficit to $108 billion in the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1.

Miller said "judicious trimming of bloated programs," along with new user fees, sales of federal assets and loan portfolios and some program eliminations would be proposed to meet the $108 billion level, which is the fiscal 1988 target of the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

In a speech to the National Electrical Association, Miller said the White House still intends to meet the target, despite recent talk by Democratic congressional leaders of easing it.

One administration source, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said the Office of Management and Budget headed by Miller is considering resubmitting many of the same proposals it proposed unsuccessfully this year, but with some major modifications and exceptions.

For instance, the administration has abandoned its proposals to eliminate the Small Business Administration and Amtrak subsidies, although it likely will recommend large cuts in both programs, the source said.

But so far, the administration isn't making much headway toward coming up with the size of budget savings that will be needed, Miller indicated.

Speaking with reporters after his speech, Miller confirmed that all but two federal agencies — the Education and Energy departments — had submitted preliminary spending requests exceeding White House targets.

He said this was not unusual so early in the budget process, a view echoed by White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

"The same thing happens every year," Speakes told reporters. "What we do is send them a little note back and say, 'You are over budget, pare it down,' and if they don't pare it down, we bring 'em in here and whup 'em."

The requests will be returned to the agencies for reworking in early December, Miller said. The budget will be submitted to Congress in late January or early February.

The budget director also said in his speech that he is likely to recommend to Reagan a "real" defense spending increase of 3 percent above the $289.7 billion appropriated by Congress for this year.

OMB spokesman Edwin Dale Jr. said this would translate to an actual increase of 6 percent once inflation was calculated into the formula, suggesting a defense spending request in excess of $308 billion.

This is still $10 billion below the spending increase reportedly being sought by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Flames destroy home

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A Jerome family lost its home and furnishings, their clothing and all personal possessions in a fire at the Big Little Ranches development Tuesday afternoon.

The Bob Berentz home at 530 Propector Drive was destroyed by a fire that started about 3 p.m. in the rural subdivision about seven miles southeast of Jerome.

Jerome Rural Fire Department officials Darryl Smith said Berentz estimated the loss of his home and furnishings at around $125,000.

Smith said the fire is still under investigation, but it believed to have started in a dog shelter made of straw bales adjoining the east wall of the building. He said a welder had been working on the deck earlier in the day and a spark probably fell in to the straw and smoldered, then burst into flames a few hours later.

Marie Sweet, a neighbor and one of several persons who called in the alarm, said she saw black smoke coming from the east end of the house and within minutes the entire building "exploded into flames."

"The fire department responded right away but there just wasn't anything they could do. It was completely engulfed in flames by the time they arrived," she said.

She said the two-story frame home was probably built about seven or eight years ago.

Mrs. Gene Busserman, who with her husband owned the entire subdivision at one time, said the home was a nice one and one of the later ones built in that part of the project.

Berentz served as chairman of the subdivision's water board at one time and had been active in attempting to drill additional domestic wells for property owners.

Smith said lack of an adequate water supply was a problem, along with wind that blew the flames from the starting point back into the east end of the house. He said additional wells would probably not have helped since individual wells cannot provide enough water for fire fighting.

Reagan wants Poindexter to stay on job

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan wants his national security adviser to remain on his job and is not annoyed at Secretary of State George Shultz for speaking his mind about U.S. arms shipments to Iran, a White House spokesman said Tuesday.

John Poindexter, the president's assistant for national security affairs, has been widely reported to have coordinated the administration's secret diplomatic contacts with Iran, which have brought sharp criticism from Capitol Hill and elsewhere.

The New York Times meanwhile, reported in its Wednesday editions that Shultz has asked Reagan for a firm commitment not to provide more military equipment to Iran and to agree that future diplomatic contacts with Tehran have State Department participation.

The newspaper quoted unidentified officials as saying that Shultz had told Reagan that unless those requests were honored, it would not make any sense to keep serving in the administration.

In related news, The Washington Post, quoting informed sources, reported in Wednesday's editions that the administration's secret shipments of arms to Iran are part of a seven-year-long pattern of CIA operations — some that date back to the Carter administration — designed both to gain favor with the Iranian government and to support Iranian exiles seeking to overthrow it.

The newspaper, quoting sources, said that in 1983, for instance, the CIA provided a list of Soviet KGB agents and collaborators operating in Iran to the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. The regime then executed as many as 200 suspects and closed down the communist Tudeh party in Iran, the newspaper's sources said.

At the same time, the newspaper reported its sources as saying, the CIA also was authorized to support Iranian exiles opposed to the Khomeini regime, and provided nearly $6 million to the main Iranian exile movement, financed an anti-Khomeini exile group radio station in Egypt and supplied a miniaturized television transmitter for a clandestine broadcast by Reza Pahlavi, who vowed to return.

In a separate story, the Post also reported that administration sources said components of Hawk anti-aircraft missiles were included in the secret arms shipments to Iran.

Those missiles could become an issue, the newspaper said, because Congress earlier this year blocked an administration request to sell Hawk missiles to Jordan, a U.S. ally.

On Tuesday, former President Gerald R. Ford was asked whether Poindexter should have to pay for any errors that may have been committed.

Average allowance to kids $3.34 a week

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The average American child gets an allowance of $3.34 a week, with 5-year-olds starting at $1.40 and 16-year-olds taking in a sweet $8.3, according to a survey of families with working mothers.

Nine out of 10 parents give their children allowances, and 70 percent of them expect something in return, like a clean room or a good report card. Working Mother magazine reports in its December issue.

Sixty-five percent of parents who give allowances are happy with the way they are spent; more than half impose no restrictions.

The survey of 961 Working Mother readers found:

- Most kids started getting their allowance when they were about 6½, and more than three-quarters had one by age 8.

- Boys were asked to do more chores for their allowance than girls — and more often disappointed their parents with their performance. Boys started off getting more than girls, but at age 12 girls took the lead and held it through the teen ages.
- Family income had relatively little bearing on children's allowances. "Parents seem to have reached an unspoken consensus about what children should get," the magazine reports. "At each age level, there is rarely more than 50 cents to $1 difference between what the poorest and richest households allot."
- But parents with lower incomes, the survey found, expect children to do more for their money.
- Seventy-four percent of kids spend some or all their money on toys.

Election sent Congress no clear farm message

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Farm discontent may have helped Democrats win back the Senate, but polls and political analysts say it created no clear national mandate to guide congressional debate on agriculture policy.

Only in the Dakotas, where Democrats ousted two incumbent Republican senators, was the role of farm issues clear. Across the rest of the electoral map, and particularly through the Midwestern grain belt, Democrats saw their hopes for a bumper crop of farm votes largely stunted.

A Defense Ministry spokesman in Seoul acknowledged North Korean news media reports that Kim was alive and added: "We are closely watching whether these developments in the North have resulted from a serious internal power struggle or its (the North's) high-level psychological warfare hiding a sinister plot for military provocation."

An Asian diplomat in Pyongyang, reached by The Associated Press by telephone from Peking, said he saw the 74-year-old Kim at Pyongyang Airport on Tuesday "and he is in absolutely good health."

The diplomat, who spoke on condition of anonymity, added: "Everything is all right in this country, the situation is absolutely normal. . . There seems to be nothing correct about these reports (of an assassination or power seizure). . . It is absolutely normal, there is nothing wrong farming area was defeated, and in the case of Rep. Webb Franklin, R-Miss., forces other than agriculture were at work as well.

"The signals definitely are mixed," said John Schlichter, an agricultural consultant and former No. 2 official at the Agriculture Department in the 1960s.

"One can say with certainty that many farmers were trying to send a message," he added. "But what that message was is something else again. It certainly wasn't any great mandate for any one approach."

Rep. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., who narrowly defeated incumbent Republican James Abdnor

He is absolutely normal, he is in good health." U.S. military authorities said conditions were normal Tuesday around Pannunjom, the truce village in the DMZ.

Questions about Kim were raised Monday when the South Korean Defense Ministry said North Korea's propaganda loudspeakers along the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea announced that Kim was killed in a shooting incident.

North Korean embassy officials at various posts abroad denied Kim was dead, but official North Korean media kept silent.

Court denies 'double dipping'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veterans cannot "double dip" from the federal treasury by drawing both their full military retirement pension and disability pay, a federal appeals court says.

In upholding a lower court dismissal of a lawsuit brought by a New Mexico-based group of military retirees, a three-judge panel of the federal appeals court said the Veterans Administration's policy of "double dipping" is not unconstitutional.

Congress first prohibited veterans from receiving both retirement and disability in 1951. Beginning in 1944, veterans were allowed to receive the full tax-free disability payment by waiving an equal amount from their retirement checks.

The government has estimated that it would cost taxpayers more than $7 billion a year to allow veterans to collect both in full.

"It is hard to imagine a more rational basis for congressional action than fiscal restraint," the court said in an opinion issued Friday.

"For nearly a century, Congress has held to the same view that there was no entitlement to both retired pay and a disability pension for the same period of military service."

"For over 40 years it has allowed retirees to elect which benefit they wish to accept. The balance it has thus struck is not only rational, it also bears a demonstrably fair and substantial relation to legitimate legislative objectives and does so without depriving equal protection."

The Uniformed Services Disabled Veterans' Group, a group based in Albuquerque representing 2,048 military retirees, brought the lawsuit in 1984, seeking recovery of six years' worth of retirement pay waived by the veterans.

"They argued their constitutional rights were violated because disabled veterans who earn private pensions or federal civil service pensions are allowed to receive full disability benefits."

The government, however, argued successfully that Congress has a legitimate financial interest in limiting total compensation to an individual for government service.

The group's lawyer, Jeffrey Glosner, said the ruling would be appealed to the Supreme Court.

Briefly

Report of resignation denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both White House and State Department officials denied a report by National Public Radio Tuesday that the Secretary of State George Shultz had offered his resignation to President Reagan.

The NPR report, quoting unidentified administration sources, said that Reagan asked Shultz, who has made no secret of his opposition to sending arms to Iran to remain on the job for at least two months, possibly until after the president delivers his State of the Union address.

Pope arrives in Bangladesh

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived Wednesday in the poor Moslem country of Bangladesh, a heavily populated nation of 103 million people that has only 280,000 Christians.

The pope spends a day in Bangladesh on the first stop in a six-nation Asian tour, his 32nd foreign visit. His longest-ever pilgrimage to spread his message of brotherly love, social justice and unity among religions.

The pope, who became pontiff in 1978, was invited by President Hussain Muhammad Ershad, who met him at the airport.

Robertson says he can do it

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Pat Robertson, saying President Reagan lacks experience "out on the street with the people," said Tuesday he could implement conservative social and economic goals that the president has been unable to achieve.

During a luncheon meeting with The Associated Press, Robertson said Reagan "does not have the lesson I have out in the black community and the Hispanic community."

Right-wing politician slain

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — David Puzon, a politician linked to Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, was shot and killed Wednesday on the outskirts of Manila, officials reported.

No group asserted responsibility for the slaying, but it appeared they were in revenge for the death six days ago of Rolando Olalia, a union leader and leftist politician, whose body was found in northeastern Manila.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The heads of the United Nations and Organization of American States on Tuesday offered a "peaceful arsenal" of services to resolve Central American conflicts.

The offer was made as the General Assembly passed a resolution calling for the Contadora Group of Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama to continue its efforts to mediate in the disputes between Nicaragua and its neighbors and with the United States.

Hasenuf's release possible

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The government of Nicaragua may be willing to release convicted American fugitive Eugene Hasenuf in an attempt to improve relations with the United States.

Nicaraguan Vice President Sergio Ramirez said Tuesday.

Hasenuf, 45, of Marinette, Wis., was convicted Saturday by a three-member tribunal of crimes against the state and was given the maximum sentence of 30 years in prison.

Grand jury indicts Korean

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted a South Korean fishing boat master Tuesday on charges of assaulting and sexually harassing a U.S. fisheries observer aboard the vessel at sea.

Lee Jung Sik, 34, master of the Shin Yang Ho, was being held in jail on $50,000 bail in the alleged attack last month on Jackie Helmreich, 26, of the National Marine Fisheries Service, authorities said.

Layton's trial moving along

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On the eighth anniversary of the Jonestown massacre, a prosecutor Tuesday called former Peoples Temple member Larry Layton part of a plot to kill the world from learning about conditions at the jungle compound.

"A number of persons, including Larry Layton, knowingly agreed to kill everyone who was planning to depart Jonestown" in November 1978, including Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., temple dissidents, relatives and reporters, said U.S. Attorney Joseph Ruscionele in his final argument to the jury.

Senate staff agreed that there was no specific mandate from the balloting. But he did say the election indicated a need for some kind of change.

Daschle, according to ABC News, has been a proponent of the federal farm vote, compared to 52 percent for Abdnor. Daschle said his figure should be even higher, and that either way it represented a turnaround from normal patterns in farm votes.

"It was so involved when we arrived we didn't have a chance of saying 'We were about 50 feet from the wall and it was so hot we could hardly stand there,'" Smith said.

He said about 14 firefighters were on a fire from 3:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. with all available equipment.

Clare Harkins of the Jerome City Fire Department, who was dispatched for the rural fire fighters Tuesday afternoon, said because there is no water at the subdivision and irrigation laterals are dry this late in the season, it was necessary for firemen to rely on tanker equipment.

"We have about every tanker we can get out there," Harkins said during the late afternoon. "We have two trucks from the rural fire department of about 1,000 gallons each and a 2,000 gallon pumper from the city department. We also borrowed a 2,000 gallon tank truck from the Jerome Highway District and one from the Jerome State Department," he said.

In order to keep water on the fire, the tankers had to refill by driving to the nearest city fire hydrant at Cindy's, a store on South Lincoln, a distance of about 5 miles, Harkins said.

Mrs. Sweet said all that remained Tuesday night at the scene of the fire was the garage area, the home and the rest was totally gutted.

Mrs. Sweet said Berntz and his wife and their daughter, son-in-law and infant grandchild were living in the home but all were away when the fire started.

and that's a judgment that the president has to make," he replied.

In a joint appearance on NBC's "Today" program with former President Jimmy Carter, Ford said that "who initiated this dealing with Iran, who carried it out, a deal, deserves some condemnation by certain people in the Congress, by people on the outside because it hasn't been in my opinion, nor as well as it ought to have been."

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes was asked whether Reagan wants Poindexter to stay.

"Yes," Speakes replied.

He gave the same one-word reply when asked whether Poindexter would remain at his post.

Shultz has made no secret of the fact that he opposes sending arms to Iran, but has acknowledged that he did not have authority to speak for the administration on the subject.

Asked whether the president was annoyed with Shultz for being outspoken, Speakes said, "No, he's not." When asked about one published account saying that Reagan and his senior staff were miffed at Shultz, the spokesman replied:

"I don't know. What does miffed mean?" Speakes replied, adding that "All these questions are sort of imprecise." Referring to another report suggesting that there would be a Cabinet reshuffling, Speakes said, "I haven't heard anybody give him (Reagan) that advice and I haven't given it to him."

Asked directly whether Shultz would remain in the Cabinet, Speakes said, "As far as I'm concerned, as far as the president's concerned."

A reporter asked Speakes, "You don't know if he (Shultz) is going to resign or not?"

"He hasn't told me that he is," Speakes replied.

which farmers vote heavily Republican.

Daschle observed that many GOP survivors in farm states had held on only by divorcing themselves from the administration on agriculture policy. "I was in Vin Weber's district (R-Minn.) and he sounded as much like a Democrat as his opponent," he said.

"There is an opportunity for Democrats to construct an alternative policy," said Daschle, who said he already introduced by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., would be "a very sound beginning."

That proposal, dubbed the "Save the Family Farm Act" by its sponsors, would allow farmers to vote on whether to sharply limit their output in return for a doubling of price-support levels. The effect, backers say, would be to shift the cost of supporting farmers from the government to consumers.

The proposal is strongly opposed by the Reagan administration, and there are sharp divisions among Democrats about whether it would work.

But the measure, which is diametrically at odds with current farm policy aimed at reducing commodity prices to bolster overseas sales, is likely to become a focal point of policy debate when the 100th Congress convenes next year.

Similar proposals were voted down during the last full-scale farm policy debate in 1985, but a Democratic Senate majority could give them new life, several analysts said.

"Mandatory (acreage) controls now could be added to be a viable threat," said Bill Lesher, former top USDA economist and now a Washington farm consultant. He said budget outlays for agriculture have reached "runaway" proportions — hitting a record $25.6 billion in fiscal 1986 — meaning that some policy changes will have to be made.

"Moos said he still sees an uphill battle for any program of mandatory production controls such as that advocated by Daschle, Harkin and Gephardt."

"It may be good politics, though," he said. "This is an area where they feel they can embarrass the administration and make a political base for the 1988 presidential elections."

Correction

An article in Sunday's Times-News on campaign contributions incorrectly reported that Sally Muller Gullick received $1,200 in contributions from the AFL-CIO. Gullick received a total of $500 in campaign money from AFL-CIO.

The Times-News regrets the error.

State canvass board convenes

BOISE (AP) — Kootenai County's abstract of votes from the Nov. 4 general election arrived in Boise on Tuesday, and that means the state Board of Canvassers will meet today to certify the results of all the elections.

Kootenai was the last of the 44 counties to send in abstracts, which are precinct-by-precinct tallies of the votes in every race. Election night reports always remain unofficial until the Board of Canvassers meets.

Once the results are certified, election results become final, unless a losing candidate asks for a recount.

The board, which is made up of Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, Auditor Joe Williams and Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, also will certify results of statewide ballot propositions, including one authorizing creation of a state lottery.

As soon as Gov. John Evans signs the measures, they become law or part of the state Constitution.

Candidate may contest vote

POCATELLO (AP) — Kathy Lacy Schless, the independent candidate narrowly defeated by incumbent Bannock County Clerk Larry Ghan in the Nov. 4 election, says she still may contest the outcome of the race and validity of 915 unstamped ballots.

"I am one who doesn't go along with the belief that this was a clerical error," she said Tuesday. "It's another beautiful representation of the mismanagement of that office."

Mrs. Schless, who lost the race by 137 votes, said she will decide whether to challenge the outcome after consulting with Idaho Falls attorney Blake Hall, who is Idaho Republican Party chairman.

Ghan claimed his seat Nov. 10 when Bannock County Prosecutor Larry Echolfhawk upheld the validity of disputed absentee ballots, contending an "unintentional oversight should not disenfranchise voters. If the ballots had been disqualified, Mrs. Schless would have won by nine votes.

The final margin was 13,517 votes for Ghan to 13,380 for Mrs. Schless.

County officials plan efforts

POCATELLO (AP) — Southeastern Idaho county officials say they'd like some help from the Idaho Legislature in such areas as funding for services and paying bills for the medically indigent.

At a gathering of county officials here on Monday, many said their influence on the Legislature depends on solidarity from the Idaho Association of Counties.

"If we don't all hang together, we're going to lose whatever legislation we go for," said Lois Bauer, outgoing chairman of IAC's 5th District.

Mrs. Bauer made the statement to officials from Bannock, Bear Lake, Bingham, Caribou, Franklin, Oneida and Power counties before they met with state lawmakers seeking support for the association's legislative package.

Opening secret room favored

POCATELLO (AP) — Curiosity appears to be stronger than historic preservation here.

Public opinion is running 3-1 in favor of opening the historic Standard House's "secret" room and the mysterious box inside.

Members of Pocatello's Historic Preservation Commission, however, are undecided whether to tamper with the room or the box. "We want to be sure we're doing the right thing," said HPC Chairman Jerry Myers. "Understandably people are curious, but we have a responsibility to preserve the house and its contents."

On Saturday, more than 500 people poured through the front door of the 65-year-old Standard House on North Garfield. The basement and its secrets appeared to be the main attraction.

Crewmen survive Air Guard jet crash

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — An experienced instructor pilot and his trainee lost control of an Idaho Air National Guard reconnaissance jet Tuesday but ejected safely before the plane crashed and burned on the southwestern Idaho desert, their commander said.

"All indications are that neither flyer has an injury of any great extent," said Lt. Col. Gary Brewington, acting commander of the 124th Tactical Reconnaissance Group in Boise.

A preliminary military investigation into the crash was already under way and should be completed within three to six weeks, Brewington said, although, "My personal opinion is it would have to be a mechanical malfunction."

Any decision to change current operating procedures, he said, will be tied to the investigation findings.

The crewmen were identified as Lt. Col. Marty Lynch, 44, of Boise, who is in charge of flight training for the group, and trainee Lt. Roy Davis, age unavailable, of the 189th Tactical Reconnaissance Training Flight based in Lincoln, Neb. Both were picked up by an Air Force rescue helicopter and taken to the hospital on Mountain Home Air Force Base for medical evaluation.

It was the first crash of an Idaho Air National Guard plane since two guard pilots lost their lives in the 1975 jet crash in Bear Valley in central Idaho. In early 1984, an Air Force F-111 crashed in southwestern Idaho, killing its pilot.

The RF-4C went down at about 9:40 a.m. MST about 55 miles southwest of the air base. It had taken off from the Idaho Air National Guard headquarters at Gowen Field in Boise some 40 minutes before.

"They were going through a series of maneuvers known as confidence maneuvers," Brewington said. "The airplane went out of control during a maneuver, a maneuver that should have been routine . . . We have no idea why the plane went out of control, went into an upside-down spin."

Brewington said the maneuver in question would have been conducted at between 12,000 and 15,000 feet at speeds of between 250 and 375 miles an hour. It generally involved rolling the plane over while it was in a moderate nose-up attitude.

"We've never had an airplane depart controlled flight under these conditions before," he said.

Lynch has over 4,000 hours of military flying time, the vast majority of it the RF-4C, Brewington said. Davis has about 372 hours of military flying time, but it was only his sixth ride in the Phantom II, he said.

PUC study finds phone use, service cost tied

BOISE (AP) — After a major study, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission has concluded that when the cost of telephone service goes up, more people will go without phones.

And that's bad for everyone, says Commission President Gerry Swisher.

"The phone line is a life line. When the phone count goes down, costs go up and results decline for schools, health services, law enforcement," said Swisher.

The PUC said Tuesday it launched a "major study of residential telephone service demand, and came up with an expectable conclusion, that when phone service costs more, fewer people will have it."

The report, prepared by former PUC administrator Don Reading and PUC economist Derek Santos, said residential telephone penetration rates drop by 0.4 percent for each real dollar increase in the monthly charge.

The study also found that lower-income communities generally have below-average telephone penetration, and that penetration levels tend to be lower in areas served by the Bell System when prices increase.

The PUC said it surveyed 127 Idaho communities, representing 85.6 percent of the population, to come up with information for the public, regulators and lawmakers on the impact of price increases.

The report noted that in the past, Idaho residents have benefited from a national policy to make affordable phone service to as many households as possible.

Accused escapees fight extradition to Idaho

PENDLETON (AP) — Three men accused of escaping from the Washington County Jail in Welsler, Idaho, have refused to sign extradition papers for their return to Idaho, Umatilla County authorities said.

Mario Chacon, 26, Welsler, and Richard C. Johnson, 30, and Paul Sheets, 23, both of Washington state, are accused of leaving the jail last Tuesday. They were arrested by Oregon State Police at a truck stop near Pendleton late the next day in the pickup of a Welsler man who had been shot.

Umatilla County (Ore.) Sheriff's Capt. Joyce Gerdes said Monday that the three men will appear at an extradition hearing, but that it could be several months before they are returned to Idaho.

They remained in the Umatilla County Jail on Tuesday in lieu of $75,000 bond each.

Meanwhile, Dwayne Kerner, 28, of Welsler, was in satisfactory condition Monday at Holy Rosary Hospital in Ontario, a nursing supervisor said. He was shot in his home and his pickup was stolen last Wednesday by three men believed to be those held in Pendleton.

Holiday granted

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's state employees will be getting an extra-paid holiday between now and Jan. 2 — courtesy of outgoing Gov. John Evans.

In an unpublished memo sent to all state employees and department chiefs this week, Evans granted state workers one extra holiday. He called it "a little gesture of support" for the state workers, who have supported him during his nearly 10 years as governor.

Evans said state workers can take one of three Fridays which fall after holidays, days which traditionally see little business transacted at state offices.

GOP choice: Conciliation or confrontation

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans, faced with being in the minority for the first time in six years, are quarreling among themselves over whether to adopt a confrontational or conciliatory approach in dealing with the new Democratic majority.

Sara Fritz

But moderate Republicans like Sen. Richard G. Lugar of Indiana, who headed the Foreign Relations Committee during the past two years, argue that the Republicans have a responsibility to build coalitions with conservative and moderate Democrats to provide sustained congressional support for President Reagan's policies.

Caught squarely in the middle of this dispute is Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who as an aspiring candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, would like to win the support of conservatives while building support for Reagan's policies. Dole said Dole would try to combine the two approaches: seeking compromise when there is a chance of success but choosing confrontation when it appears that the Democrats are going to prevail.

Warning to creative persons hard-learned

Although this may sound to you like a gripe session, it really is not. I feel a great need to put out this warning to everyone in general and to the creative people secondarily, and to songwriters in particular. I assure you that the information in this article was obtained at great price.

The creation of a special thing is a joy and a satisfaction to the one who is doing the creating and the deepest hopes of all are that he or she can share the joy and satisfaction with those who will enjoy and appreciate the love and work expressed. Especially is this true with the songwriter, (beware songwriter) (beware everyone), who if they are like me, and I believe most of them are, can hear the music of angels and the voice of their favorite singer or themselves laying down the tracks of a multi-million dollar album.

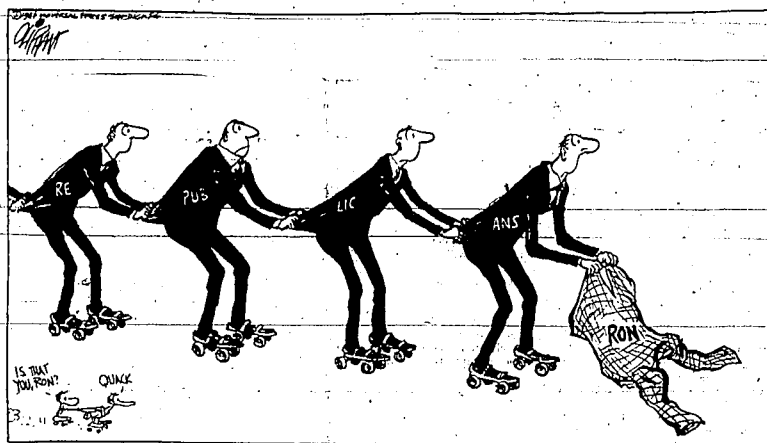

I shall now begin to divulge my own experience as a songwriter. I began writing songs about 15 years ago and began to try to attract attention to my work, and although there is more than enough rejection, I finally got through. This was unbelievably exciting (beware). At this point I began to receive letters from so-called record companies wanting to hear my compositions to determine if they may be worthy of recording. Here is the sequence.

- 1. Letter, stating that no one can say if a song will be a hit. But, you'll never know if you don't try. (which is true).
- 2. So you send your songs. (wow)
- 3. A few days later you receive a contract in the mail that says your song is the kind they're looking for, and although there's no guarantee that your song will be a hit, they

Ban alcohol ads as well

I am a smoker and I can attest to the fact that smoking is bad for your health. I agree with the ban on cigarette advertising. The point I wish to make is, when you draw the line on advertising, I would like to see the same effort made to ban the advertising of alcoholic beverages. TV programs seem to promote the idea that alcohol consumption is OK. Larry Hagman of the TV series "Dallas" is a promoter of the "Great White Sakeout Day," yet in almost every scene of the show he has a drink in his hand. Sports figures promote the sale of beer. It leads our youngsters to believe that drinking beer is "macho."

Most of the crimes today are alcohol related. A good share of sporting events such as football and the World Series are sponsored by beer companies. It should be stop-

Helms, feeling an obligation to the enormous tobacco industry in his home state, chose to take command of the Agriculture Committee two years ago, though he could have become chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee by virtue of his seniority.

However, in the wake of the Republican Nov. 4 loss, he disclosed recently that he had decided to take the top GOP job on Foreign Relations away from Lugar this year. In a letter to Lugar, he suggested that the Indiana senator could instead assume the position as ranking Republican on the agriculture panel. But Lugar has balked at Helms' suggestion and announced that he would fight to retain his position on the Foreign Relations Committee. A spokesman said that Lugar opposed Helms' bid to take the position because he views it as "a recipe for two years of ideological trench warfare" with the liberal Democrats who now control the panel.

"Lugar is worried about the bomb-throwers," he said. "Sinking into a minority mentally would be a mistake."

In his letter to Lugar, Helms said he had decided to take the ranking position on Foreign Relations because he did not know whether he would seek re-election in 1990 and "this may be my last shot at a leadership post on Foreign Relations, something I have greatly desired since I came to the Senate in January 1973."

He recalled that he took the agriculture chairmanship two years ago only because he had promised he would do so during his 1984 re-election campaign.

Although Lugar was believed to have more support than Helms among GOP senators, sources said that many Senate Republicans welcomed Helms' challenge as a warning to Lugar that he should be less conciliatory with the Democrats than he has been in the last two years.

Among other things, conservatives were upset with Lugar's authorship of legislation imposing new economic sanctions on South Africa, which was enacted by Congress over a veto by President Reagan — the biggest legislative setback to the president during the 99th Congress.

Conservative Republicans also were angling to put another conservative on the Senate Intelligence Committee to counter-balance the influence of moderate Sen. William S. Cohen of Maine, who will be the ranking Republican on that panel. Their leading candidate for the position is Sen. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming.

Sources said the conservatives wanted to take control of the Intelligence Committee because they were angered by the performance of Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., who as chairman during the last two years, has frequently used the position to criticize the president, often echoing the sentiments of the committee's ranking Democrat, Sen. Patrick Leahy, R-Vt.

"Some Republicans hold Durenberger personally responsible for the re-election of Pat Leahy," who will become chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, a GOP source said. He will no longer be serving on the Intelligence Committee, which will be headed by Sen. David L. Boren, D-Okla.

The piano player's giving it his best try

WASHINGTON — Politicians and pundits are giving the president a terrible drubbing these days.

Whole columns in last Sunday's papers reviewed the recent record: Daniloff, Reykjavik, disinformation, loss of the Senate, now the Iranian air-fair. To listen to the uproar you might conclude that all has been lost, including honor.

Let me suggest that the sky isn't falling. Mr. Reagan has run into a string of bad luck. These things happen. Wade Boggs of Boston barely hit his weight in the Series. Too bad, but a slump doesn't mark the end of the Western world. Good hitters stonically accept their strikeouts as the price of going for the fences. Knowledgeable fans stand by their stars.

Think back for a moment to the Daniloff incident. We had arrested a Soviet spy, Gennadi Zakharov, who was caught red-handed in New York. In retaliation the Soviets arrested a newsman, Nick Daniloff. Wheels began to turn, and a series of moves happened in rapid succession. We released Zakharov after first taking him to court. The Soviets released not only Daniloff, but also the dissident Yuri Orlov.

We voted 55 Soviet spies out of the United Nations. The Soviets countered by ousting household help from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Sure, it was a swap, and the White House gained nothing by insisting it was not a swap. But you got the better of the deal? We traded Zakharov, six cooks and 10 chambermaids for Daniloff, Orlov and 55 spies. Not bad; not bad at all.

Reykjavik. The complaint here is that Mr. Reagan squandered a magnificent opportunity to abolish ballistic missiles and to move toward abandonment of nuclear weapons altogether. Magnificent opportunity? Horsefeathers.

Reykjavik. The complaint here is that Mr. Reagan squandered a magnificent opportunity to abolish ballistic missiles and to move toward abandonment of nuclear weapons altogether. Magnificent opportunity? Horsefeathers.

James Kilpatrick

The Soviets set a trap; the president refused to walk into it. He came home from Iceland without compromising his Strategic Defense Initiative. The summit that was not a summit produced no agreement, but none had been realistically expected.

The "disinformation" scheme was dumb. No doubt about it. John Poindexter, chief adviser for national security, sold the president on a disloyal plan to keep Moammar Gadhafi from sleeping well at night. The idea was to spread disinformation about a possible renewed attack on Libya. Nothing came of it, but we lords of the press were mortally offended.

What else? The president is belabored for saying that the Salt II treaty is dead. Salt II never was alive: The treaty never was ratified, and the Soviets' patent violation of its terms had long ago rendered the non-instrument a nullity.

Mr. Reagan is catching it for not saving the seats of six weak-sister Republican senators. Let us lay some of the blame on the senators themselves. The aging Gipper did his best.

And now Iran. The affair is being denounced as a fiasco, a debacle, an act of hypocrisy, a repudiation of anti-terrorist policy, a violation of the arms embargo, an insult to Congress, a slap in the face to Secretaries Shultz and Weinberger, a devastating blow to unity among our allies, and the total destruction of any credibility the White House may have had left. That is for starters.

Let me offer a more charitable view. Put in the perspective of Jimmy Carter's botched effort to rescue our hostages in Tehran, this was not a fiasco. The president's laudable purpose was to look to normalization of relations with Iran at some point in the future. For all the reasons Mr. Reagan set forth in his Thursday evening address, such an effort embodies the essence of statesmanship.

Toward that end, he sent envoys to talk in confidence to potentially influential factions in Iran. Eighteen months after the overtures began, the confidence was blown — not by our people, but by theirs. From the beginning the president's advisers had accepted the risk of premature disclosure. They took the gamble, and they lost. Along the way, as a concomitant of the secret talks, the possibility developed that Iran might intervene helpfully toward the release of American hostages held prisoners in Lebanon. For such intervention a price had to be paid. Mr. Reagan paid it.

In tangle terms the price was low. The president authorized the transfer or sale to Iran of a few million dollars worth of spare parts and defensive weapons. The intangible costs were high. Indirectly at least, the president negotiated with terrorists, while publicly proclaiming a desire to stop the flow of arms. He permitted the flow of arms. But three hostages were released, and some groundwork may have been laid for future relations.

A century ago a famous sign hung in each Western saloon: Don't shoot the piano player, boys. He's giving the best he can. Mr. Reagan's best looks pretty fair to me.

Help for affliction available

The enclosed was an article Times-News published in October. Since then, as you can see by this article, there has been a change for the better. I found this article in the Seattle Times shortly after returning from a trip to Vancouver, Canada for a Botulism treatment.

I too have the disease and only those who have this disease can wholly appreciate what we have to contend with, and can appreciate what great help we get from this treatment. It is no cure, but it is such a relief to get any kind of help to be able to live a fairly normal life for a few months, two to six, between treatments. As this article says, 3,000 will see again — more like many thousands can be helped, there are 50,000 estimated people suffering from this disease.

you did publish the first article. I know there are others in Magic Valley who need help and should know it on its way.

If you need any more information on Btprospasm, I have many articles from the support group and Mattie Lou Koster.

There is no perfect jail

There's no such thing as a perfect jail for men, women or juveniles. But sometimes there's no choice. The young man that hung himself in the Minidoka County Jail had 24 hour supervision.

The jailer on duty that discovered the young man, you can say it was just minutes after the young man had hung himself. The jailer was radio equipped. The dispatcher and a Rupert patrolman responded in less than 50 seconds, both of them were emergency medical techs.

Some of the comments I have heard and read make us people who work and supervise these jails are crude and uncaring. That is far from the truth. Also, Mr. Lawyer, if you feel so strongly about juveniles not going to jail, open your house to them (Don't grandstand). You sound like those people who wanted to save the jack rabbits that were destroying our crops. You know what, they did not want to feed or house these rabbits, they just wanted to holler.

Also, thank you Judge Grumbach, MILTON DAVIDSON
Deputy Jailer, Minidoka County

People will receive blame

Mr. Reed Larsen of Virginia and Gary Glenn of Idaho seem to be ecstatic over the passage of the failed work for less bill just voted in by a gullible and misinformed electorate. They take great pride and comfort in the fact that Heston and Reagan promised the people freedom of choice if they pass Referendum One.

Now, when the economic picture gets worse and it surely will, considering our huge national debt and the continual disregard of the underpriced basic resources of our state, agriculture, mining, timber, these accountants will fade into the background and lay the blame on the people themselves for voting it in.

The Times-News will have to share blame in the worsening economic picture for lowering themselves to the same level as the right wing (Minidoka County News) and the nothing John Birch (South Idaho Press) for endorsing work for less and favoring the reelection of the arrogant and congealed Symms over a real gentleman, John Evans.

How a beautiful state like ours can let itself by used and abused by a bunch of anti-environmental Republican hypocrites that encourage nuclear waste imports and storage and support a pro-nuclear in the White House that pocket vetoes a clean water bill and does other degrading things is hard to understand. Who is brainwashing Idahoans?

Republican leaders are forever bragging about bringing down inflation and lowering interest rates. How is this possible when the price of a pickup truck has doubled in the last five years? The price of a tractor, combine and most every other implement a producer has to buy has tripled in cost, proper taxes up, water taxes up, everything up except what a farmer has to sell, and at the same time the value of his land taxes a nose dive, this does not reflect progress or stability. What it does reflect is Voodoo economics and smoke blown in the eyes of the people. As it all is added to the price of everything in the form of hidden taxes and Reagan administration deception. I am glad he finally got caught up in his lies and I hope he pays dearly. As Jimmy Carter might say (Lyellville, So.)

Complex tax-withholding forms presented by IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service, apologetic for the complexity, on Tuesday unveiled a new tax-withholding form that every worker will have to file to reflect this year's landmark tax overhaul.

The new tax law, which initially was billed as simplification, turned a two-page W-4 withholding form and worksheet into four pages that includes a 22-column, 29-line table of figures.

"We know that this looks like it might be complicated," Arthur Altman of the IRS told reporters as the agency began a campaign to make Americans aware of the need to file a new W-4 form by next Oct. 1.

But the payoff, Altman added, is a more personalized form that will allow workers to adjust withholding so that all their tax liability — no more and no less — is withheld during the year.

"No more bill-and-miss," said IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs. "A simpler form might be more popular now. But the positive reception would be short-lived indeed come January 1989 when so many taxpayers would learn they owed thousands more in taxes and, in some cases, penalties as well."

The tax overhaul law, most of which takes effect Jan. 1, cuts tax rates, repeals some popular deductions and reduces others. A worker whose tax withholding under present law is reduced because he or she takes some of those deductions is likely to be under-withheld in 1987 by the loss of the deductions.

A person who does not have enough tax withheld during the year has to pay the IRS a check when filing a tax return in the following year. If the under-withholding is "serious," significant penalties can result.

Although the law requires only that a new W-4 be filed by Oct. 1, the IRS said most workers would be better off filing as soon as possible, starting Jan. 1, taxes will be withheld on the basis of the old W-4 until a new one is filed.

To fill out the form, workers will have to estimate what adjustments (such as Individual Retirement Account contributions, itemized deductions and tax credits) will have under the new law for 1987.

The IRS promised to have a supply of the new forms and instructions in the hands of employees within the next few weeks. It is up to employers to get the forms to workers. The completed forms are not filed with the IRS; rather, they are used by employers to determine how much to withhold from each paycheck.

For the three-quarters of taxpayers who receive refunds each year, taxes withheld and owed are out of balance. IRS officials said the new W-4 will allow taxpayers to bring the two more closely into balance.

More than half of all workers will be able to adjust withholding without any calculations at all on the new form, Altman said.

A worker may claim one withholding allowance each for self, spouse and each dependent. A special allowance will be permitted a single person with only one job; a married person with only one job, and a non-earning spouse, or a married person whose second-job earnings or spouse's earnings total $2,500 or less.

In 1987, one allowance will be worth $1,900, the value of the personal exemption under the new law. That means that for each allowance claimed, $36.54 of a worker's weekly wages will be exempt from withholding.

The new form gets more complicated for those with a working spouse, more than one job or a significant amount of non-wage income. And it will be more complicated still for those who itemize deductions, claim a tax credit, take the special new deduction for being 65 or blind, or those with deductible IRAs, business expenses, moving expenses or other adjustments.

Workers who want to be absolutely sure that enough money is withheld through the year — including those who count on getting a refund as a way to force savings — may avoid most of the trouble and simply file a W-4 claiming zero allowances.

To illustrate effects of the new withholding scheme, the IRS offered the example of a two-earner couple with two children and wages of $39,000, $30 interest, a $900 child-care credit and itemized deductions totaling $7,200.

The family takes one allowance for each member and, through tables on the worksheet, calculate the additional allowances because of their deductions and credit. They claim all seven allowances, resulting in total withholding of $3,057.

Newspaper denies terrorist claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Colombian government said Tuesday it has no evidence that journalist Patricia Lara is a member of a terrorist group or an agent of the Cuban government as a top U.S. State Department official has alleged.

In addition, an executive at Ms. Lara's newspaper denied the journalist has membership in a terrorist organization.

Colombian Foreign Minister Julek Londono said "we don't know where the U.S. government obtained such information about Ms. Lara, who was barred from entering the United States last month without explanation." Londono's comments were made to the national television network "Noticiero Promec."

Elliot Abrams, undersecretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, said in an interview aired Sunday night on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" that Ms. Lara has been "a member of some of the ruling committees, some of the administrative committees" of the terrorist group M-19.

Ms. Lara, a reporter for El Tiempo, Colombia's largest newspaper, is an active liaison between that terrorist organization, which is in the business of murdering people, and the Cuban secret police," said the State Department official.

Abrams offered no evidence for his statements, but he said they were based on intelligence information dating back nearly 10 years.

Also on Tuesday, Enrique Santos, editor of El Tiempo, said that Patricia Lara is not a member of M-19 but that she "congenial with the guerrilla" movement.

On the allegation that she is a Cuban agent, Santos said Mrs. Lara told him that she has her heart in Cuba and her money in New York.

Denton concedes election loss to Democrat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jeremiah Denton, who in September became Alabama's first Republican senator in 112 years, conceded defeat Tuesday to Democrat Richard Shelby after two weeks of considering a possible challenge of the razor-thin loss.

Denton's concession came only hours after the Alabama secretary of state's office announced that Shelby had been certified as the winner over Denton by 6,822 votes out of more than 1.2 million cast.

The final vote count, including late absentee ballots from military personnel overseas, showed Shelby with 609,360 votes, Denton's 597,537.

Denton told a news conference in his Senate office that he made the decision to concede the election after Shelby was certified by state officials as the winner.

Prospects for farm incomes improves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects for 1986 net farm income have improved slightly but will still fall short of last year's level, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Moreover, USDA economists predicted dire results, including sharp increases in consumer food prices and unemployment, if new programs are designed to take massive amounts of cropland from production in the coming year.

According to the latest Economic Research Service, net farm income may be in the range of $26 billion to $30 billion, a $1 billion increase from the agency's forecast last month.

In calendar 1985, net farm income dropped to $30.5 billion from a record of $32.7 billion in 1984, a year in which a huge rise in farm inventories ballooned net income figures from only $13 billion in 1983.

By USDA reckoning, net income figures reflect changes in the value of crop and livestock inventories.

Under another method of calculation, the "net cash income" of farmers this year is expected to be in the range of $42 billion to $46 billion, down $1 billion from the October forecast. Net cash income in 1985 was at a record high of $44 billion, according to the report. The midpoint in the 1986 range would also be $44 billion.

The agency computes net cash income of farmers by subtracting gross cash expenses from gross cash income from farming operations.

"Net cash income for crop farms is expected to be down in 1986, going from 1985's average $27,000 per farm to about $25,000," the agency said in a brief summary of a December outlook report. "Government payments to crop farms will rise more than 50 percent, cushioning this year's drop in commodity prices."

Economists said lower expenses this year should save crop farms more than $3 billion in 1986.

"The average livestock operation, which typically includes some crop production, had cash income of more than $17,000 this year because of higher prices, production and government payments and lower expenses," the report said.

Although wheat, corn and soybean exports are expected to rise 12 percent, 5 percent and 3 percent, respectively, in 1986-87, the increases "will not be enough to drop (surplus) stocks sharply" and there have been suggestions that USDA implement marketing loans to boost exports further, the report said.

Under a system of marketing loans, farmers repay the loans made by USDA at the prevailing world price, not at the face value of the loan. The idea is to allow prices to decline enough to make commodities more competitive in the international market.

"However, if marketing loans had been implemented for 1986-87, wheat exports might be only about 30 million bushels higher than without the loans, at a cost of $8 to $9 per added export bushel," the report said. "The per-bushel cost of extra corn and soybean exports would also have been well above the current market price."

President discusses foreign policy legacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, under severe criticism from Democrats in Congress for his secret dealings with Iran, asserted Tuesday that one of the legacies of his administration will be the emergence of "a bipartisan consensus on foreign policy."

Reagan made the remark at a dinner honoring conservative columnist William F. Buckley. It was the president's first public appearance since his revelation of arms shipments to Iran.

The president did not mention the flap over Iran in his speech, nor accusations from top Democrats that he has broken the law by not informing Congress in a timely fashion of the covert operation.

Last week, Reagan said he had approved a secret effort to establish contacts with moderate elements in the Iranian government and admitted sending some arms to Iran as a result.

But the president denied that the arms shipments were a trade for the release of three Americans held hostage in Lebanon.

"I hope it will someday be said that one of the enduring legacies of my administration was that in these years America at last put in the past the divisions of more than a decade ago and united in a new bipartisan consensus on foreign policy," Reagan said.

Reagan said that during the past two years, the Democratic-controlled House of Representatives had not only sent aid to "freedom fighters" on three continents, but also had supported "striking hard in retaliation against terrorism by Godhafi's Libya," and "our mission in Grenada."

"We are seeing once again a bipartisan consensus emerge on foreign policy," the president said.

Consolidating his efforts to build up U.S. military forces, Reagan said that the "new position of strength for the West" has become the backdrop "for U.S.-Soviet arms negotiations."

But Reagan noted that bipartisan support was needed here as well, warning those who would cut his defense buildup, "We will not give away in Washington what we are negotiating in Geneva."

Error caused near-collision

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — An error by an air traffic controller caused a near collision involving two American Airlines jets, and the person responsible must go through a retraining and recertification program, officials said Tuesday.

No one was injured and neither pilot had to take evasive action.

SIBERIAN IVORY
Q. What's "Siberian Ivory"?

A. Is that what they call it? Between 1890 and 1900, about 200 tons of ivory were shipped from Siberia to London. Not elephant ivory. There aren't any elephants in Siberia. It came from the 16-foot-long tusks of woolly mammoths frozen up there in the Ice Age.

Horse breeder sells artwork collection for over $21 million

da Vinci's 'Child with a Lamb' sold for $3.6 million

NEW YORK — John Ryan Gaines, who owns a thoroughbred horse breeding farm in Kentucky, has sold, for more than $21 million, his collection of artwork by the masters, including rare sketches by Leonardo da Vinci.

A London dealer purchased the sheet of da Vinci sketches, circa 1500, for $3.6 million. It features a child with a lamb, the head of an old man, studies of machinery and several lines of explanatory text.

"Child With Lamb" was understood to be only one of two da Vinci drawings still in private hands, according to John L. Mason, chairman and president of Sotheby's in North America, the auctioneer.

"I have bare walls now. Do you know where I can get some nice wallpaper?" Gaines joked after the auction Monday night.

Gaines said he had attained his goal of finding the best examples from several centuries of master drawings and was ready for a change in collecting.

Kidney stone puts Clapton in hospital

BOSTON (AP) — Back singer Eric Clapton known for his quick-fingered guitar playing, was released from a hospital Tuesday after suffering from back pain apparently caused by a kidney stone.

Clapton's physician, Dr. Alan Hackler, said Clapton probably passed a kidney stone Monday, according to New-England Medical Center spokeswoman Diane Millikan.

"Everything is returning to normal. He feels much better," she said shortly after he was released.

Clapton was grounded by back pain Monday as he rehearsed for a series of club engagements in New York and Boston nightclubs, said his tour manager, Peter Jackson.

Kennedy's son tours to promote movie

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Kennedy Jr., son of U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has embarked on a tour to promote the television movie about his battle with cancer that cost him his right leg.

"I'm quite pleased with the movie, but I'll let the reviewers review it," the younger Kennedy, 25, said Monday before he left for New York City.

Kennedy, who lost his leg to cartilage cancer in November 1973, wrote and reads the epilogue for the NBC movie, "The Ted Kennedy Story." The film stars Craig T. Nelson, Susan Blakely and newcomer Kimber Shoop III, and will be aired Monday at 8 p.m.

Letterman in trouble again for speeding

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP) — Talk show host David Letterman is in trouble with his local police again.

Letterman, fined $40 in May when caught using a radar detector in his car, was stopped last week for speeding. He also received a ticket for not having a valid Connecticut driver's license, police said.

Letterman was cited for driving 57 mph in a 40 mph zone in New Canaan at 11:34 p.m. Friday, police said Monday. After he was stopped, police discovered that Letterman lacked a Connecticut driver's license.

"He had a valid California license," said New Canaan Police Chief Ralph Scott. "But the law says once you establish residency in a state you must get a valid operator's license."

Town hopes for uplift from dinosaur footprint

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Officials are gambling that 200 million-year-old dinosaur footprints are a step in the right direction to lure tourists to this slightly down-at-the-heels city.

Holyoke Mayor Ernest E. Proulx said Tuesday that the Trustees of Reservations, a private corporation that oversees the state's public parks, will turn over 7.5 acres of dinosaur prints to the city at no charge.

Officials plan to spruce up the tracks, which are preserved in petrified mud, and advertise them as a tourist attraction, Proulx said.

The 134 tracks, ranging in size from 5 to 14 inches, are of three species of dinosaurs — Eubrontes giganteus, Anchisauri pussillimanti and Gallitator cuneatus. They lie along the Connecticut River Valley at the base of Mount Tom.

Such tracks are plentiful in the valley, said Yale University professor John H. Ostrom, who has studied the Holyoke tracks. He said they have suffered from weather and vandals.

A man who makes a living selling dinosaur tracks—a town away said Holyoke was in for hard work.

"It is a job to protect them, seven days a week, 365 days a year," said Carlton Nash, owner of Dinosaur Land in South Hadley.

Nash has been digging up the fossilized tracks and selling them since he discovered the footprints in the valley 55 years ago. He gradually bought 32 acres of land and has sold thousands of stones, with tracks embedded in them at prices ranging from $85 to $700.

He said he has also sold more than 3,000 plaster casts of tracks, some to the likes of Gen. George Patton and author Dale Carnegie. A tiny part of the land is open to tourists for a fee.

Proulx said he has no plans to charge admission to the Holyoke tracks, adding, "I'm not trying to compete with Nash's Dinosaur Land, the former name of Dinosaur Land."

"The tracks are just another reason for people to come to Holyoke," he said.

Sprucing up the dinosaur tracks will be the area's second foray into the fossil business. Last year the state purchased a privately owned dinosaur museum in nearby Granby.

The site has become part of the Holyoke Range State Park.

The trustees agreed to turn over the land because "the tracks are gradually deteriorating," Proulx said.

Definition of noon sparks debate

LOWER TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A man has gone to court to challenge the fine print on his town's parking meters, which indicate the devices are in effect from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Dennis Hart contends 12 p.m. is noon, but Wildwood maintains it's midnight and Superior Court Judge Paul Porreca says he needs more time to decide the question of time.

Hart's battle began earlier this year when he was ticketed at 1:30 p.m.

In September, he tried unsuccessfully to convince Municipal Judge Kenneth Calloway that he was ticketed wrongly. The judge agreed with town officials that 12 p.m. is midnight, and found Hart guilty and imposed fines and court costs.

Hart appealed to Porreca, who said Monday in Lower Township that for every argument Hart's attorney, Louis F. Hornstine, makes to show that 12 p.m. means noon, Cape May County First Assistant Prosecutor Robert Wells can present an opposite contention.

Hornstine presented a video cassette recorder instruction sheet stating that 12 a.m. means midnight. He also included a picture of a sign at the U.S. Post Office in Wildwood indicating that 12 p.m. is the window's closing time on Saturdays.

Post office officials in Wildwood obviously believe 12 p.m. is noon, Hornstine argued.

But Porreca countered that maybe the person who made up the sign believes 12 p.m. means noon.

In the municipal court proceedings, Calloway used Funk and Wagnall's dictionary definition, which says 12 p.m. is midnight. It becomes a.m. one second after midnight, he said.

Wells said Webster's dictionary defines p.m. — or post meridiem — as beginning after noon. He said that a.m. — or ante meridiem — fills the period extending after midnight until the following noon.

An argument that 12 p.m. means noon is "absurd," Wells said.

"Anyone with common sense" knows that gives Wildwood's resort nature the meters are in effect longer than from 8 a.m. until noon, he said.

As of July 1, this new category is placed between the current PG and R ratings. It is designed to provide parents with a more precise definition of children's film. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G: General Audiences, All Ages Admitted.
- PG: Parental Guidance Suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.
- R: Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X: No one under 17 admitted. All films rated X are not in the new five-category system.

Bundy's reprieve angers Floridians

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — Residents of this small North Florida town expressed frustration Tuesday after a court granted Theodore R. Bundy a reprieve less than seven hours before his scheduled execution for the murder of a 12-year-old Lake City girl.

The (Bundy case) has become a focus in the eyes of the public," said City Councilman Mike Collins.

"I feel like he should be punished. If it was my child, I'd certainly want him punished," said Pearl Walker, clerk at the Holiday Inn where Bundy stayed the night before the slaying.

Kimberly Diane Leach was abducted Feb. 9, 1978, from Lake City Junior High School and was assaulted before her body was left in an abandoned house, her mother, Freda Leach, refused comment on the stay granted Bundy by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

THEODORER BUNDY
Granted indefinite stay

"The stay was indefinite, to allow the attorneys to present briefs and oral arguments."

"It could be weeks or months," said Joyce Larkin, case manager at the court.

The Florida Attorney General's office asked the U.S. Supreme Court to dissolve the stay.

"It was the second time in five months that the suspected serial killer, who turns 40 on Nov. 24, came within 24 hours of dying in the electric chair at Florida State Prison near Starke."

The 11th Circuit on July 2 indefinitely blocked Bundy's execution for the Jan. 15, 1978, strangulation-murderings of two Florida State University sorority sisters in Tallahassee. The Atlanta court later heard oral arguments, but hasn't ruled on whether to send Bundy's appeal back to Florida in that case.

Gov. Bob Graham, who signed the death warrants for Bundy, said he was disappointed, but not surprised at the stay.

"The surprising thing was that it took so close to the execution for the court to do what it has done so many times in the past — which is to grant a stay of execution on the question of competency of counsel — in a trial that took place in 1980," Graham said.

"That's the kind of procrastination and delay in our criminal justice system as it relates to capital cases that is extremely frustrating to anyone who is interested in the sense of justice."

In the crossroads town of Lake City, "before Ted Bundy, people didn't even lock their doors," said Brad Rogers, executive editor of the Lake City Reporter. "There has been a lot of social upheaval in this town because of Bundy, and people resent it. I guarantee you he sat over there and snickered when the decision came down."

Bundy showed little reaction to the 11th Circuit decision, said Vernon Bradford, spokesman for the Florida Department of Corrections at Florida State Prison near Starke.

Bundy's case moved through three courts — Circuit Court, the Florida Supreme Court and U.S. District Court — on Monday before the 11th Circuit action. The Atlanta court said more time was needed to consider Bundy's claim that he was mentally incompetent to stand trial and act as his own attorney in the Lake City case.

Bundy has survived two death warrants in the Chi Omega sorority slaying. This was his first warrant in the Leach case. Of 16 people executed in Florida since the state reinstated the death penalty in 1979, none was on his first warrant.

Col. Eldridge Beach, the Florida Highway Patrol official who directed the search that found Miss Leach's body nearly two months after her slaying, said he thinks Bundy is running out of time.

"The chances of his being electrocuted are getting better, and I will be there (as a state witness) when it happens," he said.

Flamboyant 'Flukey' slain in seat of his car

CHICAGO (AP) — A reputed drug kingpin who gained national attention when he buried his slain son in a Cadillac-shaped casket was gunned down himself Tuesday as he sat in his Cadillac on the city's South Side.

Willie "Flukey" Stokes had become a legend on Chicago's mean streets with his silk suits and diamond rings. But authorities said that flamboyant lifestyle also made him an easy target.

"A person of this visibility is tempting not only to the person that wants to just rip him off for the money but maybe people he went sour on with deals," said Patrick Healy, director of the Chicago Crime Commission. "It's not terribly surprising he got hit."

Stokes, 49, was killed by a shotgun blast to the head as he sat in the passenger seat of his car, police said. His driver, Ronald Johnson, 48, also was killed by at least two gunmen. Another passenger, whom police would not identify, escaped injury.

Sgt. Richard O'Connell speculated the killing may have been over a dispute with another drug-dealing organization. Police said they wanted to question a man Stokes had wanted killed.

Stokes' record of arrests on weapons and drug charges dates back to 1962, including a 1979 conviction for which he served 18 months.

But he was best known for his lavish taste in clothing and jewelry and his opulent parties.

"I think he got more play not so much because of his big drug dealings, which were probably substantial, but because of the flamboyant way he went about it," said Healy.

Stokes' son, Willie "The Wimp" Stokes Jr., died, like his father, from a shot in the head. At his 1984 funeral, attended by more than 5,000 guests, mourning relatives placed $1,000 bills between his fingers.

His body was dressed in a red silk suit and gray hat and his fingers gripped the steering wheel of a $10,000 casket resembling a Cadillac Seville, complete with wheels made of flowers, a front grille and a license plate with the legend "WIMP."

Stokes, who favored a dangling diamond earring and a horseshoe-shaped ring made of nine, one-carat diamonds, threw a $200,000 bash last year to celebrate his 30th wedding anniversary.

At that party, which featured the Staple Singers and the Chiffons, Stokes strolled the floor, stuffing $50 and $100 bills into the guests' pockets.

Stokes, who listed his occupation on police records as "professional gambler," apparently was a softball fan. Healy said he sponsored six South Side teams last year.

Motion deadline set

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Defense attorneys agreed Monday to a Dec. 5 deadline for all pretrial motions in Mark Hofmann's upcoming trial on first-degree murder charges in the pipe-bomb slayings of two people last year.

Hofmann, 31, is charged with two counts of first-degree murder and 28 others counts of fraud, theft by deception and bomb-making in the deaths of a man and woman on Oct. 15, 1985.

His trial on the murder and bomb-making charges, the first of two separate trials, is scheduled to begin March 2.

Prosecutors contend that Hofmann, a dealer in rare historical documents, killed collector Steven Christensen, 31, and Kathleen Sheets, 59, in a desperate attempt to cover a five-year scheme in which Hofmann allegedly sold bogus documents to the Mormon Church and others.

Third District Judge Kenneth Ritztrup met in chambers for nearly an hour with defense attorneys Ronald Venghe and Brad Rich and prosecutors Robert Stott and Jerry D'elia to discuss the pending motions.

The judge signed an order directing that all defense motions must be before him by Dec. 5, and said the defense attorneys indicated they would file all the motions at that time.

Police arrest suspect in bouquet bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man identified by police as the tuxedo-clad bomber who delivered a booby-trapped bouquet that injured two women was arrested Tuesday at a country house he reportedly shared with the estranged husband of one of the victims.

Shawn Small, 27, was taken into custody in rural Lake County on a federal warrant charging him with detonation of an explosive device involving personal injury. Bail was set at $100,000.

The bomber allegedly tried to deliver a second flower arrangement to one of the victims' parents a short time after Monday's explosion, but the woman's 78-year-old father turned him away.

Lake County sheriff's Capt. Glen Perkins said Small was arrested without incident when he left a house and got into a car in Clearlake Park, about 75 miles northeast of San Francisco.

He said the FBI had asked officers to watch the house because it was believed Small was sharing it with longtime friend Peter Pilsaki.

Pilsaki is the estranged husband of one of the bombing victims, Melanie Pilsaki, 41. FBI agent Robert Delinaki said Tuesday that authorities also were searching for Pilsaki, but only to question him.

Authorities said the bombing apparently stemmed from an ugly divorce proceeding between the Pilsakis. Ms. Pilsaki's father, Willard Swanstrom, said Small recently threatened his daughter because she had frozen the couple's bank accounts.

County rejects action against Pence over absentee ballots

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter will not prosecute County Clerk Dick Pence for opening more than 70 absentee ballots before election day, because there was no criminal intent. Pence said Tuesday that he had "no doubt" about the outcome and maintained he had done nothing wrong.

While Pence is clear of any criminal sanctions, Twin Falls County Democratic Party

Chairman Joe Gulick said the party's central committee today will discuss possible civil actions, such as seeking the recall of Pence for alleged incompetence.

"Why is he (Pence) in office if he can't read election laws?" Gulick asked.

Pence admitted that he and three deputy clerks had opened "paper absentee" ballots about a week before the election to enter the votes on a voting machine used to record absentee votes.

The procedure had been used for years, because it would be time-consuming to enter the votes on election day on the county's lever voting machines, he said.

Baxter's investigation was sparked by a telephone call Nov. 8 from Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker, an unsuccessful Democratic legislative candidate. Walker also notified the Secretary of State's Office of the procedure.

According to Idaho law, absentee ballots must be opened election day, said Walker. Soon after Walker's notification, Deputy Secretary of State Ben Yursa called Pence and asked him to stop opening the absentee ballots. Yursa said the ballots should be opened on election day, in the presence of a bipartisan observers.

But Yursa also said he thought the procedure used by Pence was "an unfortunate, innocent mistake."

Pence said he didn't know the procedure was wrong.

In her investigation, Baxter interviewed Pence and the deputy clerks and reviewed written statements from them to determine if there were any criminal activities requiring prosecution. She also sought the opinion of the Attorney General's Office.

"It is my determination there has not been any such criminal conduct," Baxter wrote to Pence.

Baxter said she reviewed Idaho Code of elections and applied the criminal codes. The laws required proof of criminal intent and that an election officer "knowingly and fraudulently" acted in violation of the law. She found none.

"I am therefore declining prosecution of this matter," Baxter wrote. "I do strongly

Liability law reforms spark lively debate

Insurance industry accused of attacking civil court system

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Tort reform proposed by an Idaho coalition can be traced directly to the insurance industry, says the president of the Idaho Trial Lawyers Association.

"It's a transparent attack on the civil justice system," said Boise attorney, Bill Mauk, at a debate Tuesday sponsored by the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

Jan Weatherly, a board member of the Idaho Liability Reform Coalition proposing the reform, countered that there was no "conspiracy born in London," referring to the famous insurer, Ethwyds of London.

"It's not been manufactured by any group," he said during the lively encounter at the Turf Club.

Weatherly outlined at the meeting a proposed tort-reform bill drafted by the coalition, a group of almost 70 public entities, businesses and medical associations.

Some of the changes include a cap on non-economic damages, such as pain and suffering, and emotional distress. The cap would be a floating one, using a formula involving life expectancy and average income, with a maximum of about $400,000.

The bill, if adopted, also would eliminate joint-and-several liability, in which one defendant in a multi-defendant lawsuit could be held liable for the entire judgment, if negligence is found.

"We reject the deep-pocket approach," Weatherly said.

Insurance industry officials have said increased premiums and the "crisis" over liability insurance coverage was the real goal of the coalition.

Escalating premiums and cancelled policies were the catalyst for the formation of the coalition earlier this year, Weatherly said.

But the group is pursuing changes in the tort system — where people seek compensation for injuries and wrongs — regardless of the insurance premiums. The coalition believes the system, with its growing number of civil cases and mounting of judgments, needs changes, he said.

A survey of Idaho cities over a five-year period revealed losses from liability claims 160 percent more than the premiums they paid, Weatherly reported.

"We do have a problem in Idaho," he said.

But Mauk charged that the coalition's reform package could be traced not from state sources, but to the American Insurance Institute, a non-profit insurance organization, which he called the "Pravda" of the industry.

The Idaho tort-reform proposals were similar to those passed in other states such as Washington and West Virginia, Mauk said.

The coalition, Weatherly answered, borrowed from the "experience" of other states. "And, we fashioned it to the needs of Idaho," he said.

Weatherly admitted it was too early to gauge the impact of tort reform adopted in other states.

Mauk replied it was that unavailability of information that demonstrates "we are on precarious footing" with the tort-reform proposals.

Two large insurance companies did report to the state of Florida that tort reform wouldn't have significant impact on insurance rates or profitability.

"The (tort reform) legislation will not put a 'single lawyer out of business,' nor will the price of insurance decline, Mauk predicted.

But, he predicted, the largest impact will be on the victims of injury, especially those catastrophically injured because of the proposed caps.

Injuries must be looked at on an individual basis by juries and not by a detached legislature, Mauk said.

The insurance industry is financially healthy, he said. But it was caught in a "web" it created when companies had price wars and investment interest fell, which resulted in lower margins of profits.

Nothing in the insurance industry's financial picture justified the large increase in premiums, some up to 500 percent, he said.

"We are concerned about the hysteria created by the insurance industry," Mauk said.

The tort system, through tort reform, is being attacked by people who "don't understand the legal doctrines they are playing with," Mauk said. The concepts, although not perfect, are part of a process evolved over 200 years.

"The system works and works well," he said.

But Weatherly replied it won't be the first time the system has been touched. Cities no longer are exempted from lawsuits, as they once were, for example.

"We are tampering with the system on a continuous basis," he said.

Corrections director spins records and discusses state prison problems

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Department of Corrections Director Al Murphy is "ham" at heart.

In Twin Falls Tuesday he hosted a radio disk jockey show, he said, "It's a diversion from my other, more serious duties."

Murphy took over the controls as a disk jockey in a three-hour appearance in a guest host for Doug McConaughy, on KLIX radio.

"People think I talk funny, so they like to get me on the radio," Sen. Fairchild (Roger Fairchild, R-Fruiland) did it in Boise several times, and I thought if he could do it, I could do it," Murphy explained.

Murphy appeared in Boise several times when McConaughy was working there, he said. He accepted an invitation to make the Twin Falls visit because he enjoys an occasional radio appearance.

Murphy's sideline career as an entertainer includes doing a sports program on Channel 7 TV in Boise recently.

While in Twin Falls, Murphy met with local probation and parole officers and news media for some more serious discussions.

The state's correctional system is facing problems similar to those in Twin Falls County with overcrowded prison facilities and a need for costly expansion or new prison accommodations.

Murphy said the state Board of Corrections will probably make a decision on a site for a new prison building next month.

"At least I hope to have it tied down in December, so we can have a firm proposal to make to the Legislature when the next session opens (in January)," Murphy said.

Twin Falls is still very much a contender in competition for a new state prison site, Murphy said. But there have been so many proposals submitted for a location that he doesn't know if the state should build one, 500-

Ministers to administer Burley utility assistance program

By RONDA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The Mini-Cassia Ministerial Association will administer the city of Burley's new financial assistance program for low-income, residential customers, Mayor Ken Frank said at a Monday night City Council meeting.

The announcement came after members of the Idaho Neighbors Network objected to administering the program last week.

Members said they wanted a reliable utility policy that would allow low-income people to pay their bills, rather than a charity program.

The Rev. David Henry, chairman of the Ministerial Association, has agreed that his organization would administer the funds collected from $1 donations solicited on utility day in a separate city account for the program, Frank said.

At the recommendation of City Attorney

Bill Parsons, the council will adopt guidelines during its next meeting for the Ministerial Association to use when administering the fund.

The council will also have the final say on disbursements and will vote during council meetings in who receives aid. Numbers will be used in place of names to keep the identity of recipients confidential.

Frank said that the Ministerial Association is cooperating with the local Social Community Action Agency to distribute Idaho Power's Project Share monies this year. The Salvation Army has disbursed Project Share monies in the past, but is no longer able to do so since its Burley Thrift store was closed last October.

Working with Project Share funds will give the Ministerial Association knowledge about who is receiving aid, and help alleviate double payments, according to Frank.

Councilman Clay Handy said that the council would like to emphasize that persons who are opposed to receiving charity donations, but are having difficulties meeting their utility payments, should contact the city to make other arrangements.

"Some don't want charity up front," he said, and the city would be willing to work with them.

Last week the Idaho Neighbors Network rejected a plan that they oversee the program, which is patterned after Idaho Power's Project Share. In a news release issued Thursday, INN members said they

Jerome man argues own case in appeal of tax conviction

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Jerome County man who says the state of Idaho has no jurisdiction over him as a "sovereign citizen" and no authority to impose income taxes on him, argued his own case before the Idaho Court of Appeals in Twin Falls Tuesday afternoon.

Kenneth Staples was convicted in Jerome County of failure to file a state income tax return for 1983 and has appealed that conviction.

He told the three Appeals Court justices Tuesday that the state Tax Commission violated its own rules by denying him the right to administrative hearing before that commission, prior to his prosecution.

He also introduced a letter from the Jerome City attorney stating that he is a "citizen" of Jerome.

Asked by Justice Donald L. Burnett Jr., if he filed a return for 1983 showing his earnings or if he simply did not file a return, the Staples said he did not have to file a return because he had no "taxable income."

He argued that the state had failed to prove that it had a right to tax his "activities" and that it had failed to show he is a taxpayer.

Shad Priest, deputy attorney general from Boise, quoted state law to the court defining "taxpayer" and the law covering the levying of income taxes on all taxpayers earning in excess of $5,400 per year.

Staples told the court that a 1929 law established an excise tax, which is accepted as the same as an income tax. He said the 1929 law defined what is eligible under excise taxes and it did not include taxing his activities as a sovereign citizen.

Chief Justice Jesse E. Walters asked Staples why he wanted a pre-trial administrative hearing before the Tax Commission. Staples said this would have given the state a chance to show whether it had jurisdiction over his income and to attempt to prove he is a taxpayer.

Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn and two deputies were on hand for the hearing in case of a large showing of the Aryan Nations membership. Only Wayne Jones of Kimberly, a local Aryan Nations member, attended the hearing.

Staples has said previously that he is not a member of that organization.

The Staples case was one of six heard in Twin Falls this week by the Appeals Court. The justices moved back to Boise Tuesday afternoon, where another half dozen appeals will be argued.

An appeal by Clinton Mills of Twin Falls for reduction of sentence was withdrawn Tuesday morning. Instead, the court heard an appeal from the state to a court order granting a new trial for Berry Caldwell of Burley. He was convicted of grand theft, but the court granted a new trial on the basis of additional information after a witness who could not be located at the time of the initial trial came forward and offered testimony.

Rupert man accused of rape

RUPERT — A Rupert man in custody in the Minidoka County jail Tuesday on a criminal charge of rape.

Ronald Coleman Keeton, 33, was arrested at his apartment, 1724 D Street, Apt. 13, early Sunday morning and charged with the crime.

The victim, a 30-year-old Rupert woman, reported she alleged rape by Rupert police officers when she arrested at the police station at 3:22 a.m. Sunday. She alleged in court records that she had been attacked and raped by Keeton a short while before at his apartment.

According to the affidavit of probable cause filed in Fifth District Court, the woman returned with Keeton to his apartment, where her children were sleeping, at approximately 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning. She said Keeton suggested that she stay overnight since her children were already asleep there.

She said she was asleep on the living area couch for 10 or 15 minutes when the rape allegedly occurred. She said she called the police and left the apartment when Keeton fell asleep on the floor.

Rupert Officer Kendall Warr said in the affidavit that the woman's wrists were scraped and bleeding, and she had a scrape and red marks on her right jaw when she arrived at the police station. A doctor's examination that morning confirmed recent sexual intercourse, court records say.

Rupert Police Officers Stan Clark and Richard Koyler found Keeton asleep on the floor of his apartment when they arrived at the apartment Sunday morning, according to be court affidavit. They observed fresh blood on bedding located on the couch, the affidavit said. The officers reported in court records that Keeton said he had sexual relations with the woman, but had no knowledge of how she received her injuries.

Magistrate Judge Donald R. Workman Monday set Keeton's bail at $25,000. A preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 25 at 2 p.m.

Drivers escape serious injury in collision

BURLEY — Two drivers escaped serious injury in an intersection collision Tuesday morning that overturned two vehicles, when the accident, at the intersection of Overland Avenue and 16th Street, resulted in an estimated $7,000 damage to the two vehicles.

Burley City Police officers said

Jared Skaggs, 18, of Burley was driving a small 1981 Ford pickup west on 16th Street East. The second vehicle was a 1984 Buick sedan driven by Barbara Ann Bedke, 32, of Burley and was traveling north on Overland Avenue.

Police said Skaggs had stopped for a traffic light; when it turned green, he went ahead as Bedke pulled in front of him. Her vehicle overturned, coming to rest on its top. Damage to Skaggs' car was $400 to the vehicle and $3,000 to Skaggs' pickup. Bedke was cited for a stop-light violation. Neither driver required hospitalization. Both were wearing seatbelts.

Minidoka school board discusses school safety

By ADELL HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Safety of children in the Big Valley School area was again the major problem facing the Minidoka County School Board Monday night.

"We need a joint effort of city, county and schools to resolve this," said Paton Debert Trawl, "if you keep passing the buck nothing ever will get done."

The school trustees agreed that the 18th Street area is dangerous for children going to and from school and discussed several possible solutions.

They authorized Transportation Director Lou Freese to check the possibility of using a shuttle bus to transport students down the most dangerous part of the narrow street. They will also ask the city to have a patrol car on 18th Street when school children are present.

The board also voted to send a resolution to the newly formed Safety Commission recommending that it consider pursuing a local improvement district to have sidewalks installed.

In other business

Bids were opened for four new school buses. Apparent low bidders were Amtram of Boise for the bus bodies and Gem International of Burley for the chassis. Cost of the new buses will be $35,794 each.

Superintendent Gene Gustaf requested clarification of the appropriateness of scheduling activities for students on Monday nights. Pointing out conflicting resolutions in board minutes, he said several problems have occurred already this year when Minico students were involved in activities scheduled by other schools on Mondays.

Snapp said he had heard guidelines, he didn't know if he should send student buses to such activities or not. After considerable discussion, the board resolved that "the district will avoid Monday night scheduling as much as possible, but whenever there needs to be participation on Monday nights, we will allow it."

The board approved teaching contracts for Alan Catron, music teacher at West Minico; Joan Spencer, fifth grade teacher at Big Valley; and Susan Cooper, second grade teacher at Memorial.

were surprised and unhappy that the city had assumed they would handle the program.

The news release protested recent messages on Burley utility bills which said "by adding a $1 you can help INN help your neighbor."

The INN was not designed to administer charities, according to the release.

"Our role is to educate people on their rights and to help them develop a voice in their community. It would be inappropriate for us to take this on," INN member Alice Harkness was quoted as saying.

"It was suggested to INN they would be good people to handle the transaction, and they've declined that offer," Frank said.

Henry, contacted Tuesday, said he had agreed to help with the program Monday afternoon, and was currently unable to offer details about the project.

Pence said he already has talked with Yursa about changing the procedure.

Violations of the election laws are felonies, carrying punishments of fines and imprisonment. The election laws also contain language allowing for civil actions if violations are found.

It's the civil side of the law the Democratic committee will be looking at, Gulek said. Attorneys have been reviewing election laws, but one solution may be in seeking a recall of Pence.

"I don't think ignorance is an excuse for violating the law," Gulek said.

Copies of Baxter's letter to Pence were sent to the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners, Yursa and the Attorney General's Office.

Walker couldn't be reached for comment on Tuesday.

Telephone conversion completed

KIMBERLY — Conversion of the Kimberly exchange to full one-party telephone service availability has been completed by Mountain Bell as part of a statewide One Party Universal Service (OPUS) project.

By acting quickly, customers with a 423 prefix can change from two- or four-party service to a private line without a service charge.

"Until Jan. 12, Mountain Bell will exempt the normal $75.50 conversion charge. Thereafter, the normal service charge will apply," said Mountain Bell spokesman Steve Gueber in a news release.

Mountain Bell has finished the Kimberly phase of a $50 million OPUS project required by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to change all Idaho party lines to one-party service. Party lines will not be available to Kimberly customers after Nov. 13, 1988.

Telephone numbers will stay the same when a customer changes to the new service.

For more information, Mountain Bell customers should contact their service representative (toll free) at 1-333-8440.

bed facility in a single location or 500 one-bed facilities around the state.

"There is a simple solution to juvenile detention space needs, he said. It was to build regional centers built in several areas around Idaho, which a group of counties in each area could utilize.

"We could build a half-million dollar regional center with about 50 beds," he said. If it were financed over a 20-year period, it could be paid for at the rate of $2 per day per bed. Other costs of operation and maintaining the facility, calculated on a basis of an average of 50 inmates, would bring the total cost to the counties to about $22 per day per youth, or an annual operating cost of about $300,000."

This would depend upon how many juveniles of each sex were housed in the facility and how the space would be divided, Murphy said. If there were only one female, for example, it could tie up an entire block of beds.

Murphy had not seen the new, privately owned juvenile center in Jerome County, but said he plans to learn more about it. The center has run into several problems, including complaints about its location from residential neighbors and charges that it does not meet state standards.

DOE gets blame for lax Hanford standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has failed to quickly identify, manage and clean up radioactive and hazardous waste at a Washington state plutonium production facility, congressional investigators said Tuesday.

The General Accounting Office report said the Department of Energy is not bringing the Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash., into compliance with state and federal hazardous waste laws.

"I like Synar, D'Oyley, who resigned the post, said it suggests his view that "DOE has an abysmal track record in managing its waste."

"Instead of getting a grip on the magnitude of its waste disposal problems and addressing them, the department is still dragging its feet on compliance with federal and state laws and regulations and maneuvering through legal loopholes," Synar said in a letter to Energy Secretary John Herrington.

DOE officials said they had not seen the report and would have no immediate comment.

The Hanford reservation on the Columbia River has generated radioactive, hazardous and mixed waste for 40 years and disposes of it onsite.

The GAO, the investigative arm of Congress, listed the following findings:

- Hanford has not identified all units that may need to be regulated under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 (RCRA) or sites that may require cleanup under the 1980 "Superfund" law.

Fort Hall man admits killing man at party

POCATELLO (AP) — A preliminary investigation has been ordered for a 33-year-old Fort Hall man who admitted killing a Hoyburn man at a party last March. Judge Peter McDermott is charged with a charge of voluntary manslaughter. Eugene R. Romero died a few hours after his throat was cut with a knife at a party March 2. Negashoah had been freed on bond after pleading "innocent" to the charge in March.

Warrant for arrest issued

POCATELLO (AP) — A federal arrest warrant has been signed for William Theodore Jackson, 57, charged by the Justice Department with last week's robbery at an Idaho First National Bank branch.

The arrest warrant was signed Monday by U.S. Magistrate Craig Jorgensen, according to FBI agent Pete Walsh. The criminal complaint charging Jackson with armed bank robbery was authorized by the U.S. attorney's office.

The complaint accuses Jackson of walking into the bank last Thursday and demanding money from a teller. Walsh said witnesses to the robbery identified Jackson in a photo lineup.

Jackson was described as a transient who had been staying in Pocatello for the past two months. He is a native of Pocatello but has lived in other areas, Walsh said, including Washington state.

This section of Columbia River Gorge will be protected under new legislation

President signs Columbia Gorge scenic area legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan signed legislation Monday to create the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area, despite what he called "grave doubts as to the constitutionality" of part of the bill and a Justice Department recommendation to veto it.

The bill was signed at 3 p.m. MST, only eight hours before it would have expired. It ended years of debate over federal protection of the 60-mile-long gorge, where the Columbia River cuts through the Cascades between Oregon and Washington.

"I am signing this bill because of the far-reaching support in both states for a solution to the long-standing problems related to management of the Columbia River Gorge," Reagan said.

The legislation was the subject of last-minute lobbying by Sens. Mark Hatfield and Bob Packwood, both Oregon Republicans, who sought to overcome the Justice Department's criticism.

Reagan echoed concern by the Justice Department that the measure could lead to "federal intervention in land-use decisions in Oregon and Washington."

Department officials questioned the constitutionality of a provision that would permit a two-state commission to veto condemnation actions taken by the U.S. secretary of agriculture in administration of the gorge.

"In signing this bill, I have grave doubts as to the constitutionality of the provision which would authorize the governors of Washington and Oregon to disapprove federal condemnation actions," Reagan said in a written statement.

"To avoid this unconstitutional interpretation, I am signing this bill with the understanding that state disapproval of a federal condemnation action under this legislation will not operate as a veto but will be merely advisory," Reagan said, with the federal government proceeding to make the final decision.

Oregon's senators said they were pleased the effort to get the bill signed into law had been successful.

"The long-overdue national scenic status for the gorge is now law," Packwood said. "A very important and unique environment will be given the special treatment it deserves."

"I can't remember a time when so much energy, anxiety, and frustration have been devoted to convincing a president he should sign a bill," he said.

Hatfield said the bill's passage was "an uphill battle won only by consensus, compromise and commitment."

"After nearly 30 years of effort, I'm ecstatic that we've secured protection for a gem of God's creation," he added.

Hatfield spokesman Rick Rolf said the president's concerns about the commission's power to veto federal decisions could be addressed by the next Congress.

"The senator views it as a minor technicality that can be addressed in future legislation," he said.

Packwood said he and Hatfield "have promised the president to pursue in earnest several changes that will alleviate the immediate concerns of several of the agencies." He added that it was too early to pinpoint what changes may be made.

"Some of the various technical problems raised by the Department of Justice are troublesome to me as well, but I believe they can be properly addressed once the bill's basic framework is in place," Hatfield said. Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., who helped push the legislation through the House, called Monday "a banner day for the Northwest." This is a great conclusion to six years of work on one of the region's top priorities for public lands legislation.

Oregon Gov. Vic Attyeh thanked those who had worked to gain the bill's passage and the president's signature.

"What a wonderful day it is for Oregonians now and those yet unborn!" he said.

"Since I embarked on this mission several years ago, I have yearned for this day to arrive. I am almost overwhelmed with joy and emotion which I know is shared by so many others."

In Olympia, Washington Gov. Booth Gardner said, "That's great! I think it serves the interests of not only the people who live in the area, but both states very well."

Rep. Bob Smith, R-Ore., voted against the bill but said it was the best that could have been achieved from the last Congress.

"Therefore, while I don't herald the signature, I believe we can work because of my amendments, for the protection of the gorge, while providing the opportunity for the economic development throughout the Columbia River," Smith said.

In a news release, Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., said: "The Gorge needs this federal protection, and the governors of Oregon and Washington have called on Congress to protect the area from a patchwork of local land use regulations that is ineffective at countering unsightly development."

"Despite horror stories and misinformation, Gorge residents need not fear for their homes or livelihoods."

THE MAGIC VALLEY REGIONAL MEDICAL CENTER FOUNDATION PROUDLY PRESENTS

THE SECOND ANNUAL "FESTIVAL OF TREES"

The Festival of Trees features dozens of specially decorated Christmas trees and wreaths that have been decorated by individuals, organizations, clubs, schools and businesses who then donate the trees to the Foundation. The decorated trees are in turn sold to local patrons. In addition, home made food items, Christmas gifts, Santa Claus, and continuous entertainment by local performers are all part of the Festival of Trees celebration. The Medical Center Auxiliary, the South Central Medical Auxiliary and the Twin Falls County Junior Club will assist the Foundation in presenting this event. The three day festival will be open to the public on:

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5, 10:00 A.M. - 6:00 P.M.
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 10:00 A.M. - 9:00 P.M.
SUNDAY, DECEMBER 7, 12:00 Noon - 5:00 P.M.

Admission to the event will be $1.00 for adults and 50¢ for children. Money raised from the event will be used to support the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. Lunch will be available each day.

Hope to block advance by Contras

Nicaraguan troops cross border

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaragua's Sandinista government has moved several thousand troops across the border of neighboring Honduras in an apparent bid to block Contra guerrillas from advancing into Nicaragua during the upcoming dry season, administration officials said Tuesday.

The Nicaraguans have also now taken delivery from the Soviet Union of a more advanced, longer-range anti-aircraft missile that could prove a formidable weapon against low-flying airplanes, the officials added.

The deliveries of the Soviet-made SA-14 ground-to-air missiles are occurring at the same time that U.S. military equipment has begun to flow to the American-backed Contras inside Honduras, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The presence of Nicaraguan troops inside Honduras, near several Contra bases in the so-called Los Vegas salient, is officially being ignored by the Honduran military at this point, said the sources.

"The Hondurans will deny the Nicaraguans are in-country because it is their policy to look the other way," said one official. "But there are several thousand Sandinista troops in the salient. They are moving there in strength and it's been going on for some time now, for quite a few days."

The official declined to provide a precise estimate of the number of Sandinista troops, and there were some indications of an intense dispute among intelligence analysts. One official reached late Tuesday said the problem was in gauging how many Sandinistas had actually crossed over the border.

"There are certainly thousands of Sandinista troops that have moved to that front, but it's difficult to say how many are across the line," the source said.

The administration officials agreed to discuss the latest U.S. intelligence analysis of the situation along the Honduras-Nicaragua border in the wake of recent reports of extensive fighting in the region.

The administration sources said Tuesday that despite the official denials, the Sandinistas are not showing any regard for the Honduran border, either from the standpoint of pursuing Contras during the heat of battle or in establishing base camps of their own.

"And they're engaging in perfectly sound tactics," said one official. "They're trying to head the Contras off at the pass."

"They're trying to pre-empt a dry-season infiltration by the Contras into Nicaragua by moving closer to their camps. And they're fairly heavily equipped for operating in that type of terrain. They definitely outgun the Contras."

The Pentagon announced late last month that the Soviet Union had already sent more military supplies and weapons to Nicaragua so far this year than in any previous year. The Sandinistas have received about 18,800 metric tons of military materiel so far in 1986, including six Mi-25 Hind helicopter gunships, spokesman Robert Sims said Oct. 22.

Since Sims' briefing, it has become clear that the Soviets have also provided SA-14 ground-to-air missiles to Nicaragua for the first time, one source said Tuesday.

The SA-14 is a shoulder-fired, anti-aircraft missile that carries a bigger warhead and offers superior range compared to the SA-7 missiles that the Sandinistas have been using for some time, the source added.

The presence of the SA-14 missiles "will make the resupply of the Contras by air a more perilous operation," said another official.

The sources refused to say Tuesday whether American-made anti-aircraft missiles had been delivered to Contras in the border region for use against the Soviet helicopter gunships.

But one official indicated such weapons were "in the pipeline." If not yet delivered.

LONDON (AP) — The government said Tuesday it rejects Argentina's offer of a formal end to hostilities because it appears linked to a discussion of sovereignty in the Falkland Islands, which Britain says is not negotiable.

Eggar said Argentina "sabotaged" the only formal talks between Britain and Argentina on normalizing relations held in Switzerland in July 1984, by raising the sovereignty issue.

Mrs. Thatcher repeated Tuesday in the House of Commons that "we are not going to negotiate the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands."

Argentina called Monday for "an open dialogue" with Britain as a step toward negotiations on sovereignty in the archipelago 250 miles off its coast.

Police say terrorists killed industrialist

PARIS (AP) — Police said Tuesday they believe two women from the terrorist group Direct Action were responsible for killing industrialist Georges Besse, who was shot about 8 p.m. Monday a few steps from the front door of his apartment building near the Montparnasse railway station.

Witnesses said one of women calmly walked up to Besse, 58, and fired the shots that killed him while the other acted as a lookout.

Police sources, quoted by the French news media, said questioning of witnesses gave this version of the slaying.

Besse came face to face with the two women as he was about to enter the apartment building.

One woman, about 30, shot Besse first in the shoulder, and when he fell to the sidewalk she shot him twice more at pointblank range in the chest and head. She was "covered" by the other woman, but the accounts did not say if the second woman also was armed.

The second woman then asked the killer: "Is it really the right one?" and her companion replied, "Yes, it's sure."

Then the killer told a pedestrian, a woman who was walking by at the time of the shooting, "Beat it!" and the killer and her companion fled on foot.

Pamphlets found in a Paris subway station claimed responsibility in the name of Direct Action, a terrorist group of the extreme left that has carried out many other attacks.

A police spokesman said the printed statements "appeared authentic" and carried the organization's symbol, a five-pointed star. The same spokesman said earlier that the source of the attack "is undoubtedly Direct Action."

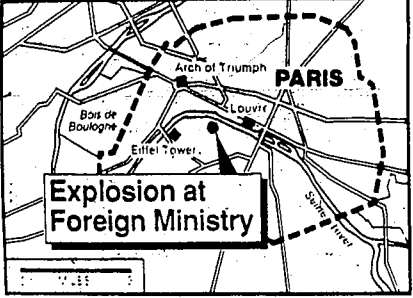

An autopsy report said Besse was hit by three bullets: one just above

Explosion not called attack

PARIS (AP) — A basement fire Tuesday in a Foreign Ministry building apparently blew up bottles of welding gas, and eight firemen battling the blaze were injured in the explosion, Fire Brigade headquarters reported.

The firemen suffered serious burns and the others lesser injuries.

An investigation will be conducted, brigade officials said, but the explosion was almost certainly an accident without any link to recent terrorist attacks in Paris.

They said the welding gas was being used in the remodeling of a section of the basement next to the room where the fire broke out.

Some people were temporarily evacuated from the main Foreign Ministry building next to the building in central Paris where the fire and explosion occurred in mid-afternoon, the officials said.

Mexico gets emergency loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Bank on Tuesday released $300 million in emergency loan funds to cash-starved Mexico, its first installment in a complex rescue package that could total $1.2 billion.

Bank President Barber Conable said the money was being released because the part of the package to be financed by commercial banks was beginning to take shape.

The loan was approved by the bank last July. However, the funds had been held up pending final agreement on the full package, designed to help Mexico meet payments on its $98 billion foreign debt.

The $300 million is "available immediately for withdrawal by the Mexican government," the World Bank said in announcing release of the funds.

It is part of a $500 million loan from the International lending institution designed to support trade liberalization measures in Mexico.

Although basic agreement on the full $1.2 billion package, orchestrated by the International Monetary Fund, was announced at an IMF meeting last September, commercial banks have been slow to come forward with commitments toward their $6 billion share.

The banks have generally expressed reluctance to lend new money to Mexico because interest rates under terms of the aid package are low.

However, Conable said Tuesday: "The progress made by commercial banks now leads me to believe that they will soon fully commit their share of new resources to Mexico."

Of the full amount of the loan, half will come from private banks and the other half from multinational organizations like the IMF and the World Bank and from industrialized nations.

Some 475 banks around the world are expected to participate in the program of new loans at low interest rates and the stretching-out of payments on old loans.

Conable noted that many of the trade-liberalization programs called for in the rescue package have already been implemented by Mexico.

"Mexico's resource needs are urgent to finance the costs of its trade liberalization and its investments in expanded output and exports," he said.

Health officials close Caffe Greco

ROME (AP) — Health authorities Tuesday closed one of Rome's most celebrated cafes, Caffe Greco on fashionable Via Condotti, where they said they found mice droppings, cockroaches and spoiled milk.

Municipal health officials said laboratory tests also showed traces of fecal matter in water from the cafe, which was declared a national monument in 1953.

Caffe Greco was closed by police for six days last February because of alleged financial irregularities.

U.S., Britain reject Libyan, Syrian claims of innocence

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The United States and Britain hurled back at Libya and Syria their claims of innocence on Tuesday and charged anew that the two Arab nations were involved in international terrorism.

On a day of mutual recriminations, Libyan and Syrian spokesmen addressed the 35-nation Helsinki conference at Vienna and accused both America and Britain of a variety of offenses against other nations.

The conference is one of a series which review compliance with the 1975 Helsinki accord on security, human rights and international cooperation. The accords were signed by the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada and all European nations except Albania.

Libya and Syria were among non-participating Mediterranean nations invited to speak Monday and Tuesday.

Enkheta M. Wadi, secretary of the Libyan

Embassy in Vienna, assailed the United States for air strikes against Libya last April and also condemned a "hysterical campaign" against Syria.

"The peace in the Mediterranean is gravely endangered because of the aggressive and criminal policy of the Reagan administration," Wadi said, according to the English text of his speech given to reporters. Syrian Ambassador Adib Daoudy, like Wadi, rejected Western contentions that Syria was involved in international terrorism, in particular in the attempted bombing of an Israeli airliner in London.

Daoudy condemned Israel, the United States and Britain for continuing to "quell" Arab resisters (fighters) as terrorists and states backing them as supporters of terrorists.

Wadi charged the United States with invading Grenada and of involvement in the deaths of Chilean President Salvador Allende during a right-wing coup in 1973 and of Congolese politician Patrice Lumumba in 1961.

He expressed Libya's "unlimited support and solidarity" with Syria.

The U.S. and British delegates, respecting a precedent, did not comment on the accusations at the meeting but hurriedly called news briefings to respond.

U.S. chief delegate Warren Zimmermann defended U.S. bombing of Libya as "self-defense under ... the United Nations Charter."

He said the raids followed "repeated warnings after conclusive evidence that the (Moammar) Gadhafi government continued to involve itself in support and control of terrorist actions against U.S. targets."

Zimmermann said a West Berlin discotheque bombing was planned and directed "under direct orders of the Libyan regime."

The bombing killed two U.S. servicemen and a Turkish woman and prompted the U.S. bombing of Libya.

Zimmermann said Gadhafi openly supported the Irish Republican Army and called for setting up an international army "fighting America everywhere." He said Libya was "deeply involved" in supporting the Abu Nidal Palestinian terrorist group.

Daoudy had said that "it is ... clear that this well-orchestrated offensive ... (against Syria) was unleashed by Great Britain and then fed by the United States, both trusted allies of Israel."

In a statement read to reporters, British chief delegate Laurence O'Keefe replied, "The Syrian and Libyan representatives abused their invitations to address this meeting today by attacking my government and denying any connection between ... (the Syrian) government and the activities of Nazem Hindawi, sentenced to 45-year imprisonment for his attempt to blow up an El Al aircraft in flight over London."

He said Britain had "conclusive evidence" showing that Syria's Ministry of Foreign Affairs helped Hindawi by providing documents and that the Syrian ambassador to London "met Hindawi immediately after the discovery of the bomb and congratulated him."

Zimmermann said Hindawi's conviction in Britain "made it absolutely clear to the United States ... and I think to the world ... that the Syrian government was implicated in a major terrorist act, which, had it been successful, would have killed 230 Americans and some 200 people of other nationalities."

In a statement read to reporters, he said "Syrian-supported terrorism has introduced an unpredictable element of insecurity in the region of the Middle East and risks the danger of open violence there."

Mysterious 'Dear leader' official successor choice

TOKYO (AP) — "Dear leader" Kim Jong Il is officially designated to succeed his father, "great leader" Kim Il Sung, as North Korea's ruler, in what would be the first dynasty in a Communist state.

But the mysterious Kim Jong Il has been rumored at times to be out of favor within the regime, and his late seemed increasingly inky with this week's reports of a possible power struggle in North Korea.

Although the 45-year-old eldest son of North Korea's president is the No. 2 man in the ruling Korean Workers (Communist) Party, he is rarely seen in public.

Some observers believe his virtual disappearance from view for nearly three years in the late 1970s stemmed from his being blamed for a bloody attack at the Panmunjom truce village in 1976. Two U.S. military officers were killed, and North Korea was forced to apologize.

But in August 1984, official Radio Pyongyang confirmed for the first time that Kim Jong Il officially was chosen to succeed his father, whose mixture of iron-handed rule and personality cult has spanned about four decades.

"This is because the Party reverses the dear leader comrade Kim Jong Il as the only lofty successor to the great leader comrade Kim Il Sung," the announcement said. It gave no schedule for the change.

North Korea doctrine that once called such transfers a "reactionary practice of the old exploitative system" was deleted from official publications in 1972.

KIM JONG IL Remains in obscurity

Communist nations initially opposed the idea of the father-to-son power transfer. But in June 1983 China received Kim Jong Il as a VIP on a secret visit to Peking.

South Korea on Monday said broadcasts by North Korean propaganda loudspeakers along the demilitarized zone dividing the peninsula claimed Kim Il Sung had been shot dead.

But a Defense Ministry spokesman in Seoul, the South Korean capital, on Tuesday acknowledged North Korean news media reports that Kim was alive.

The ministry said North Korean loudspeakers blared that O Jin U, North Korea's defense minister, had seized power. It said the loudspeakers later said Kim Il Sung had delegated all power to Kim Jong Il. There were no details.

Although Kim Jong Il has no specific government title, he holds several party posts and has increased his political clout in recent years, according to South Korean officials and specialists in North Korean affairs in Tokyo and Seoul.

He is secretary of the central committee of the ruling party, a member of the Supreme People's Assembly and the presidium of the political bureau, and is generally referred to as supreme commander of the armed forces.

Kim Jong Il also has appointed three political allies to important posts — Kang Song San as premier, Kim Yong Nam as foreign minister and Kim Yong Sun as head of the ruling party's international department, the analysts say.

South Korean analysts have said the North Korean military remains a potential source of trouble for the younger Kim. He reportedly was critically injured in 1978 in what was believed to be an assassination attempt by a small group of officers.

The influence of the Kim Jong Il's major political rival, his stepmother Kim Song Ae, who holds the post of chairman of the North Korean Women's League, also has been thought to pose problems.

In 1982 the son was awarded the title of "hero" for "energetic efforts to perform great exploits in the glorious struggle for accomplishing the revolutionary cause of 'Juche,'" his father's philosophy of national self-reliance.

Syrian connection crops up at trial

BERLIN (AP) — Testimony read Tuesday at the trial of two Palestinians charged in a West Berlin bombing said the explosives came from the Syrian Embassy in East Berlin and indicated part of the plan may have been made in Damascus.

Ahmed Nawaf Hasi, 35, said in a pre-trial statement read by the presiding judge that he was handed the explosives in the kitchen of the embassy by a man later identified as a Syrian intelligence officer.

Hasi admitted under questioning by judges that he and co-defendant Farouk Salameh, 39, smuggled the explosives into West Berlin and used them to bomb the German-Arab Friendship Society on March 29. Nine people were wounded.

Western governments are monitoring the trial for further signs of official Syrian complicity in international terrorism.

Nazem Hindawi, Hasi's 32-year-old brother, was convicted last month of trying to smuggle a bomb onto an Israeli jetliner last April at Heathrow airport in London. Evidence of Syrian involvement caused Britain to break diplomatic relations with the government of President Hafez Assad.

The United States and the European Common Market countries imposed sanctions on Syria, the Soviet Union's main Middle East ally.

West Germany says the Berlin trial will determine whether it replaces its ambassador in Damascus, who is scheduled to leave by Jan. 1 at the end of his tour.

Syria denies involvement in terrorism.

Salameh said in a pre-trial statement also read in court that part of the plans for the attack were made in what appeared to be a Syrian secret service building in Damascus with the help of a man identified as Abu Ahmed.

He said Abu Ahmed also used the name Hailam Saed and was a ranking officer of Syrian intelligence.

Saed was implicated in the Heathrow bombing attempt.

Presiding Judge Hans-Joachim Heinze read the pre-trial statements into the record after Hasi and Salameh refused to answer questions about the testimony they gave police after their arrests last spring.

They are charged with attempted murder, conspiracy to carry out a bombing and violating weapons laws.

Disputes on table at Geneva

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. and Soviet envoys will meet in an extraordinary session in Geneva next month to tackle nuclear arms control disputes that have embittered superpower relations since the Iceland summit, a Kremlin official said Tuesday.

"There is no way to escape the resolution of these issues," Viktor P. Karpov, the chief Soviet arms negotiator, told a news conference. "They have to be resolved."

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov, asked by reporters whether he considered the December talks distinct from the regular negotiating process at Geneva, replied: "You might call it a sixth and a half round."

The sixth round of Geneva talks ended last week and the seventh round is scheduled to begin in mid-January.

Karpov told the conference at the ministry's press center that the special session was proposed by the Soviets and agreed to by Washington. He said it would take place in early December but gave no dates.

A U.S. official, who spoke Monday in Washington on condition he not be identified, said the discussions would take place Dec. 2-5 as a "de facto" extension of the formal arms talks held in the Swiss city by the superpowers since March 1985.

During the sixth round at Geneva, Soviet negotiators submitted a proposal on missile reductions and space-based defensive systems, but U.S. officials said it did not represent movement toward agreement.

Karpov rejected a suggestion that the December meeting would focus on Star Wars. He said it would cover the "entire three areas" — strategic weapons, medium-range arms and space and defensive systems.

"We expect that during this meeting the United States will again discuss the Soviet proposals and provide clear-cut answers to those proposals," Karpov said.

Takeover-tied stocks tumble

NEW YORK — Takeover-related stocks tumbled again Tuesday as investors worried that the aftereffects of the Ivanhoe insider-trading case might make financing for the deals more difficult to obtain. Shares of Gillette Co., USX Corp., Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and other companies that had risen sharply in recent weeks because they faced real or rumored takeover threats all fell in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Boesky, considered Wall Street's most successful takeover speculator, settled government charges of insider-trading by paying a $100 million penalty, pleading guilty to a criminal charge and helping the SEC with its investigation. Wall Street is worried that Drexel's involvement in the SEC's case might disrupt the firm's junk-bond business and thus hinder its clients' ability to quickly obtain the necessary financing for takeover attempts.

Group Inc., a Drexel client. USX, facing a takeover threat from financier Carl Icahn, another Drexel client, lost 12 1/2 cents a share to $12.12. Borg-Warner dropped $1.25 a share to $38.62; recently GAF Corp., also a Drexel client, bought a major stake in Borg-Warner and said it might seek control. GAF fell $1.07 to $38.50.

This, insurance companies must try to collect billions in advance to bear interest. Meanwhile, legislation at federal and state levels is on the table to tilt every rule in favor of the carrier and against the accident victim in any way possible.

The "assumption of risk" defense used to keep people from collecting if they should have known the activity was hazardous. A realistic approach would forbid someone going on a wilderness trip from suing for accidents.

Clemens chosen as AL MVP

By MICHAELA LUTZ
The Associated Press

KATY, Texas — Roger Clemens, who won 24 games in his first full season with the Boston Red Sox, capped a dream year Tuesday by becoming the first starting pitcher in 15 years to win the American League's Most Valuable Player Award.

The 24-year-old right-hander captured 19 of 23 first-place votes for 339 points in the second half as the Kimberly Bulldogs posted a 46-35 victory over the Glens Ferry Pilots in a major Canyon Conference confrontation Tuesday night in the league-opener for both teams.

It was a key victory for the Bulldogs that gave them the early lead in the league and the inside track in the battle between the two teams favored to contend for the conference championship.

The Pilots kept the game close, trailing by one point at the half. But the Kimberly defense shut down the potent Pilots offensive attack in the second half.

The shots wouldn't fall for the Pilots in the fourth quarter after Kelli King hit a three-point shot, Glens Ferry didn't score a basket for five minutes.

"The defense won it," said Kimberly Coach Wes Remaley. "Kimberly also kept the ball from getting inside to the Pam Pember and Barb Johannek of the Pilots."

"That's the key right there," Remaley added, pointing out that Pember only managed two points.

Glens Ferry Coach Ken Fatt agreed with Remaley's assessment.

"It was the 1-3-1 zone. We didn't handle it well. We didn't do the things we needed to do," he said. "They made the 1-3-1 work well."

That defense kept the Pilots off the offensive boards all night as Glens Ferry didn't get an offensive rebound.

Kimberly's Cindy Holcomb, however, was a force in the middle, keeping Pember from scoring.

good chance even though I was a starting pitcher," Clemens said at his home in Katy. He conceded, though, that the news still was a bit of a shock.

"I was going to come home tonight and see on TV if I finished second or third, but Debbie (his wife) wanted me to stay around the house."

He learned of the award by telephone, and immediately called his wife, who was at an obstetrician's office. She is expecting the couple's first child in five days.

"I hope by winning this award I have put an exclamation mark in the minds of voters about starting pitchers winning it. It was voting 19 votes for my teammate Jim Rice.

But I felt one of us should win it."

Mattling, in a telephone news conference from Yankee Stadium following the announcement, said he believed strongly that an everyday player should win the MVP award.

"I know he is valuable," Mattling said of Clemens. "But it's hard for me to conceive that a guy who is in 33 or 34 games can be as valuable as an everyday guy who is out there 162 games."

The Yankees' first baseman played an all-162 games in 1988, missing only six innings all season as New York finished second in the American League championship Red Sox in the East.

"A guy like (Clemens) does a great job every fifth day, but the other four days you're counting on somebody else," Mattling added.

The media descended upon the Clemens' home for the second time in a week — he won the Cy Young award last Wednesday — and the scene was chaotic with utility crews working on the new home and a cleaning service using vacuum in the background.

"Now all we need is a few 100 animals around, and everything will be perfect," Clemens said.

The awards, he said, would be displayed in the family room, where he already has his high school, college and pro uniforms ready to hang.

Mattling, the 1985 MVP, had five first-place votes and 258 points as he failed in a bid to become the first to win the award in consecutive years since the Yankees' Roger Maris in 1960-61.

Clemens, the league's 1979 MVP, was third with the other four first-place votes and 241 points in the balloting by two writers in each of the 14 league cities.

Coming back from right shoulder surgery that cut short his rookie season in 1985, Clemens had a rousing season by winning his first game, 7-2, in Chicago on April 11. He went on to pitch the Red Sox to their first pennant since 1975, and only their fourth since 1918.

Bulldogs top Pilots, 46-35, in CC opener

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Audra Urile scored 13 of her game-high 18 points in the second half as the Kimberly Bulldogs posted a 46-35 victory over the Glens Ferry Pilots in a major Canyon Conference confrontation Tuesday night in the league-opener for both teams.

It was a key victory for the Bulldogs that gave them the early lead in the league and the inside track in the battle between the two teams favored to contend for the conference championship.

The Pilots kept the game close, trailing by one point at the half. But the Kimberly defense shut down the potent Pilots offensive attack in the second half.

The shots wouldn't fall for the Pilots in the fourth quarter after Kelli King hit a three-point shot, Glens Ferry didn't score a basket for five minutes.

"The defense won it," said Kimberly Coach Wes Remaley. "Kimberly also kept the ball from getting inside to the Pam Pember and Barb Johannek of the Pilots."

"That's the key right there," Remaley added, pointing out that Pember only managed two points.

Glens Ferry Coach Ken Fatt agreed with Remaley's assessment.

"It was the 1-3-1 zone. We didn't handle it well. We didn't do the things we needed to do," he said. "They made the 1-3-1 work well."

That defense kept the Pilots off the offensive boards all night as Glens Ferry didn't get an offensive rebound.

Kimberly's Cindy Holcomb, however, was a force in the middle, keeping Pember from scoring.

The 6-foot-1 senior scored 10 points herself and grabbed 22 rebounds.

But Kimberly didn't put away the game until the Glens Ferry drought in the fourth quarter.

The teams traded leads through the entire first half with the Bulldogs taking a slim one-point lead at the half.

Dusty Byce opened the scoring in the second half bombing in a three-point shot, but baskets by Johannek and Kelly Mitchell led the game 23-23 just two minutes into the third quarter.

Kimberly made another run midway through the third quarter with Urile scoring five points, but Glens Ferry storming back on a Kelli King three-point bucket.

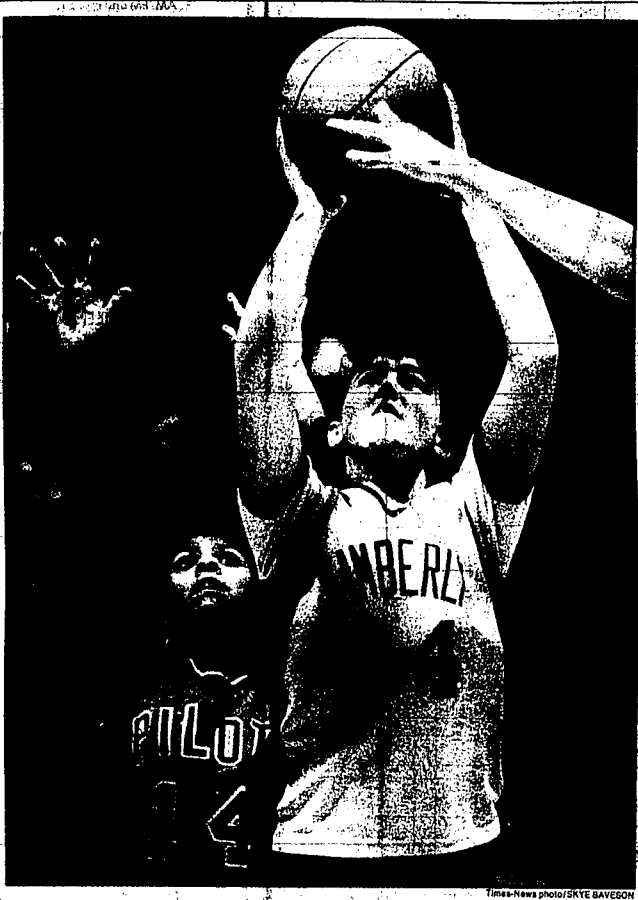

At the two-minute mark in the third quarter, Pember went to the bench after picking up her fourth foul.

A jump shot by Urile gave Kimberly its biggest lead in the game as the Bulldogs took a five point lead into the final eight minutes.

King cut the lead to three points early in the fourth, but Kimberly ran away with the game after that basket.

With four minutes left, a free throw by Tammi Osbourne gave Kimberly a 37-31 lead. A basket by Urile and a pair of free throws extended the lead to 10 points and two free throws by Shantell Anderson gave Kimberly the lead by a dozen.

Johannek led the Pilots with 16 points while King had 11.

Weber favored in BSC

In preseason poll

BOISE (AP) — Weber State College, under second-year Coach Larry Farmer, is a strong preseason favorite to capture the Big Sky Conference basketball championship.

The conference on Tuesday released the results of its preseason polls, and both Big Sky coaches and media reporters selected Weber State as the favorite this year.

Farmer, former UCLA coach and player, was named Weber State coach last year after Ned McCarthy left. Weber State had an 18-1 record but was just 7.2 in conference games.

Both polls also picked Montana State, which surprised the rest of the league to capture the post-season tournament and the Big Sky championship last spring, to finish second this year.

The Bobcats are 39-49 in three years under Coach Stu Starmer.

Idaho State, which has an almost new squad under second-year Coach Jim Boutin, was picked third in both polls.

In the coaches' poll Weber State got 53 points with four of the seven first-place ballots and also received three second-place votes with coaches not allowed to vote for their own teams.

Montana State had 50 points in the coaches' poll, followed by Idaho State, Idaho, Nevada-Reno, Montana, Northern Arizona and Boise State.

In the media poll the Wildcats received 19 of the 23 first-place ballots and two for second, although one skeptic predicted Weber State would finish no better than seventh this season.

Montana State was the only other league team to receive a first place ballot in the media poll with three and had 14 total points.

Following were ISU and UNR tied for third, Idaho and NAU tied for fifth, followed by Montana and Boise State.

Latest evidence indicates abuses at SMU part of the system

By STEVE JACOBSON

Official representatives of Southern Methodist University went helmet-in-hand before the NCAA to keep their institution of learning from being embarrassed. They thought that it might be embarrassing to be appealing the current penalty while the hammer was about to fall on a new penalty.

They did not make it clear who it was that would be embarrassing SMU.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions agreed to postpone the school's appeal of the 1985 probation until the current mess is resolved. SMU currently is being charged with having cash payments being made to football players while the school was on probation. The payments were allegedly made by booster-club members.

It was the fourth time in the past 11 years that the school has been sanctioned. According to the NCAA, SMU was involved in violations 11 of the past 14 years. Apparently there is no shame.

The penalty hanging over SMU now is known as the death penalty. Any school found guilty of additional major violations while it was on probation could have its football program closed down for two years. In Texas that would be an institutional death penalty.

At the very least, the football coach, the athletic director and the university president should resign. What goes on at the Mustang Club is not a violation of law but it is a violation of ethics, decency and common sense. If those people knew what was going on with the Mustang Club, then they should be dismissed for complicity. If they didn't know, they should be dismissed for stupidity. They're the ones embarrassing the university.

In 1984, SMU was serving probation for football recruiting violations. One of eight schools on probation at the time, SMU athletic director Bob Hitch argued: "Of the things we were accused of and which were proven, none pertains to dollars or things of value like cars or that kind of money."

At the time, if a leading recruit, Keith Blazer, then playing at Oklahoma — said that he might have chosen SMU if an alumnus hadn't offered him cash and a car to sign with the school. He said that Oklahoma and Texas did offer anything excessive, only SMU, and he "didn't want to be part of that position."

The violations cited by the NCAA included one of "a representative of university athletic interests" offering $5,000 in cash and a rent-free apartment. "There is money through the whole thing, through almost 40 violations," an NCAA official said.

At that time L. Donald Shields, SMU president since 1981, could argue that the violations were carried out of university precincts. This time charges are that the violation bears the fingerprints of official office.

David Stanley, a former SMU linebacker, claims that he and his mother were paid $52,000 by university officials, much of it after the school was placed on probation. He said that he was paid $25,000 to sign with SMU in 1983 and that he was paid $300 a month and his mother $50 a month after he agreed to play.

In a 45-minute television interview in Dallas, Stanley presented envelopes with the school insignia and initials of Henry Lee Parker, assistant athletic director. Stanley said that those envelopes had contained money from the university. That happened within the staff. That's serious.

The envelopes were the smoking gun. Shields said that the credibility of the young man is suspect.

Albert Reese, a senior end on this team, was suspended by the school after a published report said that he had not paid rent for an apartment where he has lived since May. Former employees of Dallas developer George W. Owen said that Owen directed them to provide the apartment to Reese and to Stanley.

These things don't go on unknown for long at any school in any program. People don't give $25,000 out of their pockets to boost the football team and stay anonymous. They want to be part of the program and want credit for it. They want to tell people they went places where others could not go — like the dressing room or on the sidelines. They want to tell the cocktail party that the coach is not giving away money stuff for next week. They don't give $25,000 without a pat on the back.

The last time around, SMU football boosters were thick on the sidelines, putting fannies for good

NCAA hopes for bigger check from network for Final Four

By HAL BOCK
The Associated Press

This is a tense time along Broadcast Row.

CBS' 30-day period of exclusive negotiations with the NCAA for broadcast rights to the college basketball tournament expires this week.

The last time the NCAA and CBS bargained this deal, the three-year package produced $96 million for the colleges. By way of comparison, consider that NBC paid $8,550,000 for the 1981 tournament. The 1987 tournament — the last one on the current CBS contract — carries a $33 million price tag and that may be a bargain.

The tournament championship delivers a 21 rating in prime time," said Ken Schanzer, vice president for sports at NBC. "It lends prestige to your network and allows you to charge a premium (advertising rate). It's a wonderful property to be associated with."

When NBC lost the tournament to CBS in 1981, network officials were depressed. "We made a decision that we were going to be in college basketball and we have continued to be involved at varying degrees of profitability or lack of profitability," Schanzer said. "It's attractive programming. But the tournament is what you want most."

Schanzer was part of NBC's effort to regain the tournament when CBS' first contract with the NCAA was expiring. Dave Gavitt, chairman of the tournament committee, called him with an update on the talks.

"He told me, 'We've made an offer to CBS,'" Schanzer recalled. "I said, 'It's gone, then. I knew there was no way CBS would let it get out.'"

So now, Schanzer sits and waits again for news from the CBS-NCAA talks. "Some things are deflating in value," he said. "Others are increasing. The NBA got a huge increase. The Olympics got a smaller one. The NFL is looking at a decrease. You look at each property on its own merits. There is no rule of thumb. I think college basketball is one of those that is increasing."

Three years for $36 million was a bargain for CBS, Schanzer said.

In a time of network belt-tightening and warnings of dwindling rights fees, college basketball remains a profitable, attractive vehicle. So much so that ABC, leaders of the dollar rollback trend, plunged into the market for the first time with a 10-game schedule over eight Sundays beginning Jan. 18.

"It's a great sport that we want the association with and one we feel we can do profitably," said Dennis Swanson, president of ABC Sports.

That the bottom line in the networks. Profitability. "You can make any sport profitable depending on your ability to negotiate a deal," Swanson said. "We were able to put this together at rights fees and production costs that will allow us to come out ahead. We won't make a huge amount of money."

ABC's first-year involvement in college basketball is considerably smaller than NBC, which is doing 32 games on 22 telecasts or CBS, which has scheduled 30 games on 23 broadcasts.

"They're doing it the cheapest, most economic way possible," Schanzer said. "Ten national games reduces production costs. We're doing twice the number of exposures and three times the number of games. If you do more than one game per exposure, you impinge on your profit. At some point, you cross the profitability line."

That is something ABC is trying to avoid.

"We want to be in the sports business and we want to be in it aggressively," Swanson said. "But we want to negotiate deals consistent with our ability to make a slight profit. That's what our shareholders expect."

Johnson's torrid finish lifts Lakers over Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson has been the catalyst for the Los Angeles Lakers for many years. As Magic goes, so do the Lakers.

It was no different Tuesday night as the Lakers defeated the Dallas Mavericks 114-110 in an NBA game.

The victory was the sixth in seven games for Los Angeles, giving the Lakers the second-best record in the NBA.

Johnson scored nine of his game-high 29 points to spark a fourth-quarter comeback. Dallas had led the entire final period until Byron Scott hit a 16-footer to tie it at 100. Then, Johnson went to work.

Lakers Coach Pat Riley said, "It did a great job of coming from behind. When we went back to our starters in the fourth quarter, our offense started clicking. The way Dallas had been blowing away people at home this year, it was important for us to stay close in the fourth quarter."

Dallas made eight more field goals than the Lakers, but Los Angeles was 27 of 37 from the free-throw line, where Dallas was only eight of 11.

Johnson put the Lakers ahead 101-100 when he made one of two free throws with 4:03 left in the game. It was the first lead for Los Angeles since late in the third period.

The 6-foot-9 guard went on to score nine points in a 3½-minute span as the Lakers increased their lead to 107-102 with 1:43 left.

HOUSTON (AP) — Kiki Vandeweghe scored six of his 23 points in the final 1:18 of overtime, carrying the Portland Trail Blazers to a 135-111 NBA victory over the Houston Rockets Tuesday night.

With Houston leading 110-107, Vandeweghe took charge, sinking three of four free throws and a field goal, giving Portland its fourth straight win. Caldwell Jones added a pair of free throws

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Long scored 12 of his 24 points in the third quarter and Wayne Tisdale made a crucial three-point play down the stretch as the Indiana Pacers captured a 98-93 NBA victory over the Los Angeles Clippers Tuesday night.

Los Angeles, losers of four straight games, went into the third quarter trailing for the 40th time in as many games this season. But they quickly whittled an 83-71 deficit to 94-80 with a 3-1 spurt in the first 3:41 of the fourth period, led by Mike Woodson and Rory White.

SEATTLE (AP) — Dale Ellis scored 29 points, including nine in the decisive fourth quarter, and Tom Chambers added 27, lifting the Seattle SuperSonics to a 119-105 NBA victory over the Sacramento Kings Tuesday night.

Vikings open CC by downing Gooding

By The Times-News

HAZELTON — The Valley Vikings benefited from some solid defense by Lisa Huettig and Tom Lind Perkins and the usual strong rebounding of Joyce Schutte to turn back the Gooding Senators 55-44 Tuesday night in the Canyon Conference girls' basketball opener for both teams.

Huettig had four steals and Perkins had steals and rebounds as those two combined to give Gooding's offense some problems. For the third straight game Schutte picked up at least 20 rebounds.

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone girls took the lead just before the end of the third quarter and owned the fourth in downing Filer 48-35 Tuesday night in a non-conference girls' basketball game.

The teams fought evenly through the first half and traded the lead a couple of times in the third quarter. But in the final eight minutes, Fatti O'Malley picked up eight of her 29 points and got scoring help from Nancy Hiesley to put Shoshone safely in front.

Shoshone won the opener 43-39.

Jerome JV 35

HANSEN — The Hansen Huskies kept Jerome's jayvees off stride with multiple defenses Tuesday night and collected a 41-19 non-conference girls' basketball victory.

Hansen's decision came rather easily after Jerome failed to score in the first quarter, falling behind 8-0.

Wood River 37

FAIRFIELD — Janice Anderson hit two of her 30 points in the closing minutes Tuesday night to lift the Wood River Vikings past the Camas County Mushers 37-34 in a non-conference girls' basketball game.

After a seesaw middle two quarters, the teams were tied at 32 and 34 before the Wolverines' tucked it away.

He became the Boston stopper. The Red Sox did not lose more than four games in a row all season and Clemens followed 14 losses with a victory.

His other accomplishments included:

- Setting a major-league record by striking out 20 batters in a game against the Seattle Mariners in Fenway Park on April 29.
- Going 14-0 at the start of the season.
- Winning the only games as Boston went 3-10 on the road, but tying the AL East lead immediately after the All-Star Game in mid-July.
- A 24-1 record, leading the majors in victories and topping the AL with a 2.38 earned run average.
- Struck out 238 batters in the season, second only to Seattle's Mark Langston with 245.
- Became only the third AL pitcher to win the Cy Young Award unanimously. Joining Detroit's Denny McLain, 1968, and New York's Ron Guidry, 1974.
- There were several outstanding pitchers in the league this year, but only one Roger Clemens," Boston Manager John McNamara said.
- Clemens, a No. 1 draft pick, was given a couple of weeks after he pitched Texas to the College World Series championship in 1985.
- In addition to his 19 first-place votes, he received five seconds, two thirds, one fourth and one sixth. He, Mattingly and Rice were the only pitchers listed on all ballots.
- Vida Blue of the Oakland A's in 1971 was the last starting pitcher to boosted its season record to 2-1 by topping Hagerman 91-48 in a Magic Valley Conference girls' basketball game.

Reynolds led all scorers with 25 points while Ulrich chipped in 13.

The Wolves were cruising with an eight-point advantage in the first quarter, but Hagerman took a one-point lead into the fourth quarter. The Wolves regained the advantage and held off a late Pirate rally to win.

Cindy Aja had 11 points for the Pirates.

Hagerman won the junior varsity game 32-31.

Bliss 49
Dietrich 23

BLISS BEARS — The Bliss Bears tucked things away with a 20-point second quarter in rolling past the young Dietrich Blue Devils 49-23 Tuesday night in a Northside Conference girls' basketball game.

Bliss led all the way, coming out of the first quarter with a 12-7 advantage before hitting its best offensive quarter of the yet-young season.

Wendell 53

WENDELL — Angle Tanner kept Declo's fast break swinging Tuesday night when the Hornets ran past the Wendell Trojans 67-53 in the Canyon Conference girls' basketball opener for both teams.

Tanner, who picked up most of her 21 points on break buckets, and Declo led throughout the game and took all the suspense out of things by outscoring Wendell 20-5 in the third quarter. The Hornets built up a 34-24 halftime lead, hitting a solid 11-11 from the foul line.

Declo's aggressive rebounding — it was the shorter team — let it control the boards.

Castleford 51
Hagerman 48

CASTLEFORD — Vicki Reynolds and Bonnie Ulrich combined for 38 points Tuesday night as Castleford win both the MVP and the Cy Young the same year.

Since the start of the MVP award in 1931, only six other pitchers have won both honors the same season — Don Newcombe of the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1955, Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1963, Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals and McLain, both in 1968, Rolfe Fingers of the Milwaukee Brewers in 1981 and Willie Hernandez of the Tigers in 1984. Fingers, and Hernandez were relievers.

Murtaugh 24

MURTAUGH — Ralf River overcame a three-point opening quarter and held Murtaugh to five second-half points as the Trojans cruised to a 39-24 Magic Valley Conference girls' basketball victory.

The win for Ralf River kept its record unblemished after three games.

Melodie Jones led the Trojans with 11 points. Ralf River put eight players into the scoring column.

ISU player files assault complaint against coach

POCATELLO (AP) — An assistant football coach at Idaho State University faces two misdemeanor battery charges after a black football player and his wife claimed he struck them during an argument last Saturday night.

Gerald Richardson, a senior defensive back from Sacramento, Calif., and his wife, Adrian, signed complaints against assistant coach McCall. McCall is scheduled to appear in magistrate court by Monday to answer the charges, which carry a maximum fine of $300 and up to six months in jail.

College football
Police Department said police were called to the Idaho State University Midlands during the ISU-Montana Big Sky Conference football game.

Montana trounced Idaho State 57-13, the highest point total ever scored against the Bengals in the Midlands, giving ISU a season-ending seven-game losing streak.

Harris said Richardson said he walked off the field just before halftime and said he was quitting the team, Harris said McCall struck him in the jaw. Harris said McCall disputes that. Richardson was struck.

Richardson alleges McCall struck him in the jaw. Harris said McCall disputes that. Richardson was struck.

Harris said Richardson's wife, Adrian, attempted to enter the locker room, but McCall kept her out. Her complaint alleges Richardson struck her, although McCall denies it.

McCall, 29, has been assistant coach for running backs and special teams for three years under Coach Jim Kooter. He's a graduate of Southern Colorado and had a tryout with the Detroit Lions before entering coaching.

Richardson was a sometimes starter at defensive back during three varsity seasons.

In August of 1984, just before the football season, Richardson and his wife announced that they were leaving Pocatello because of racial harassment. Richardson reported to police that someone sprayed "KKK" on his automobile and home. He returned to the Pocatello school one year later and played last season and this year.

Because of the incident, then-mayor L. Ed Brown formed the Pocatello Human Rights Task Force. It has been active since then in working to ease racial tensions and combating discrimination of all types.

At Atlanta, the Rev. Joseph Lowery, head of the Southern-Christian Leadership Conference, said he planned to send telegrams Tuesday night to Idaho Gov. John Evans and Richard Bowen, president of Idaho State University, demanding an investigation.

Fan support puts 4-5 Tennessee into Liberty Bowl

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When shopping for Thanksgiving gifts, the next best thing to having a great football team is having great fans within driving distance of the stadium.

Despite a 4-5 record with two games left, the Tennessee Volunteers can apparently sew up a Liberty Bowl invitation Saturday with a victory over backyard rival Kentucky.

The 90,000-plus that fill Tennessee's Neyland Stadium every home game are an obvious draw for the Liberty Bowl in Memphis, where only 38,000 watched LSU and Baylor play in 1985.

"We want to fill the motels and restaurants," said Liberty Bowl executive director Bud Dudley, who plans to offer Kentucky the invitation if the Wildcats, who are 5-4, beat the Vols in Knoxville.

After the disappointments of 1986, Vol Coach John Majors says he isn't in the mood to question the Liberty Bowl's reasoning. "They can do anything they want to. It won't hurt my feelings," Majors said Tuesday. "In fact, if I beat Kentucky I'll be feeling pretty good."

Kentucky Coach Jerry Claiborne said the Wildcats have been too busy trying to reverse their early season misfortunes to ponder the postseason.

"I haven't thought about the Liberty Bowl. Our mind is on Tennessee. The results of the game will decide what happens afterward," said Claiborne.

Dudley says he likes the Vols even if they stand the chance of losing their final game to Vanderbilt and thus becoming the only bowl team in the country with a losing record.

"It's a gamble, but you have to take some gambles in this business," said Dudley.

The season has been a major disappointment for Big Orange fans, who thought glory days were back when star quarterback Tony Robinson got hurt and the Vols still won the 1985 Southeastern Conference championship.

Tennessee went on to whip Miami in the Sugar Bowl 35-7 and finish No. 4 in the nation. But shortly after New Year's Day the dream began to unravel.

Robinson and a former teammate were arrested on cocaine trafficking charges Jan. 8 in a case that was not resolved until the two accepted a plea bargain and entered Knox County Penal Farm this week.

While Majors was worrying about finding a new quarterback, newspapers published stories about violations of the NCAA's "extra benefits" and complimentary pass rules.

Ten Vols sat out the first game because they put someone other than relatives and classmates on the stadium pass list. Dozens of others were saved by a blanket pardon from the NCAA.

Distractions aside, Tennessee found itself beset with a rash of injuries that claimed its top two runners and poked holes in a defense that returned nine starters.

Suddenly, a team that was supposed to repeat as SEC champs was eliminated from the conference race by losses to Mississippi State and Auburn.

Losses to Army, Alabama and Georgia Tech came after victories over New Mexico and Texas-St. Paso. Only recently have the Vols hit stride with a 33-3 win over homecoming opponent Memphis State and a 22-10 win over Mississippi.

The Liberty Bowl has tabbed Minnesota as its top choice for an opponent of the Tennessee-Kentucky winner.

Erickson Wisconsin finalist

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Dennis Erickson, the University of Wyoming head football coach and former University of Idaho coach, is one of four finalists for the vacant University of Wisconsin football coaching job, according to two Madison newspapers.

The Capital Times reports that Erickson, along with Tulsa University head Coach Don Morton, University of West Virginia head Coach Don Nehlen and interim Wisconsin head Coach Jim Hillis are the final four candidates to fill the job previously held by Dave McClain, who died of a heart attack last spring.

Madison's other daily newspaper, the Wisconsin State Journal, said these four along with Washington State University head Coach Frances Peay and Washington State University head Coach Jim Walden are finalists for the position.

Erickson spent four seasons at Idaho, winning the Big Sky Conference championship in 1985.

BSC honors Bronco Jackson

BOISE (AP) — Boise State running back Chris Jackson and Nevada-Reno linebacker Henry Bunting have been named the Big Sky Conference football players of the week.

Jackson, a junior from Dallas, rushed for 158 yards as Boise State defeated Northwestern State of Louisiana, 31-17, in an NCAA Division I-AA non-conference match. Jackson scored one touchdown on a 46-yard run and had two pass receptions. In his last two games, Jackson has gained 306 yards on 51 attempts.

Also nominated for the weekly award were Boise State defensive end Lance Sellers; Idaho quarterback Scott Linehan and linebacker Tom Hennessey; and Idaho State tailback Dutch Caston.

Fly tying clinic Thursday

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Fly Fishers will hold their second annual fly tying clinic all day Thursday at Juan's College of Hair Design in the Lynwood Shopping Center.

Eight of the club's best tiers will be on hand to provide the instruction. There is no admission charge, and the public is invited.

Gobbler Classic set Saturday

TWIN FALLS — The seventh annual Gobbler Classic, consisting of twin runs of three and six miles, will be held Saturday.

The event will be sponsored by the Magic Valley Rim Runners. Turkeys will be awarded as prizes to the top finishers and to the runners who best predict their own finish times.

The three-mile run will begin at 9:45 a.m., with check-in 30 minutes earlier. The six-mile event will begin at 10 a.m., with check-in at 9:15 a.m.

Start and finish of the race will be in the College of Southern Idaho parking lot.

Further information can be obtained by phoning CSI track Coach Rick Neill at 734-9554.

Tickets on sale for ICA finals

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Cowboys Association will hold its first-ever finals rodeo Friday and Saturday in the Expo Center on the campus of the College of Southern Idaho.

The season-ending event will include competition among the top 15 cowboys in each of eight events, as ranked at the conclusion of the ICA's 40 rodeos.

The finals will be sponsored by Charmac Trailer Co. Competition will start at 7:30 both nights. Advance tickets, which are $4 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and children under 12, are available at Vickers' Western Store, Macle's Boots and Western Wear and Petersen's Western Wear in Twin Falls or from any CSI rodeo team member.

Ski swap next weekend

SUN VALLEY — The Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation will sponsor its 16th annual ski swap Saturday and Sunday at Elkhorn.

The swap will be held in the Idaho Room. Skis, poles, bindings, ice skates and ski clothing will be sold at prices below cost, and will include new as well as used merchandise.

Twenty percent of the proceeds will go to the Sun Valley Ski Team. Admission price is $1, and the sale will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Further information can be obtained by phoning the ski team office at 622-4250.

Turkey shoot slated Nov. 30

FILER — The Filer High School chapter of Future Farmers of America will sponsor a turkey shoot on Sunday, Nov. 30, at the Twin Falls Gun Club.

The shoot will be held from noon until all prizes are gone. Proceeds will be used for travel, contest and awards for the FFA chapter.

Smokeless day can start new habits

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow will mark the 10th Annual Great American Smokeout, an upbeat, good-humored, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to quit smoking for 24 hours — just to prove they can do it.

The idea was conceived by the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever. So, if you're hooked on cigarettes (or cigars) and you really want to quit, why not start tomorrow — just for 24 hours?

The following information may motivate you: According to John F. Benhart III, executive director of ASH (Action on Smoking and Health) in Washington, D.C., lung cancer is the single largest contributor to the total cancer death rate. It accounts for 25 percent of all cancer deaths in the United States. It is estimated that 85 percent of all lung cancer cases are due to cigarette smoking. As a smoker, you are 10 times more likely to die of lung cancer than a non-smoker.

This year there will be 100,000 lung cancer cases among men and 49,000 among women. Of these, 89,000 men and 41,000 women will die of the disease. The number of women who will die of lung cancer is increasing at an alarming rate. Breast cancer used to be the biggest killer for women — now it's lung cancer!

A word about smoking-related diseases — emphysema, chronic bronchitis and heart disease. This year an estimated 350,000 will die from one of these. This total exceeds the number of U.S. deaths in World War II: It is eight times as many people who die in automobile accidents.

A congressional study has just reported that health costs from the adverse effects of smoking have reached a new high of $100 billion a year in increased medical bills and lost productivity. The loss in death and disability cannot be measured. (And how does one measure the amount of heartache, remorse and guilt suffered as a result of a preventable, self-induced tragedy?)

What about "secondhand" smoke? Is it actually damaging to non-smokers to be in the presence of those who are smoking? Yes! Furthermore, studies reveal that the children of smokers are more prone to lung problems and allergies than children of non-smokers.

For years I have begged my young readers, "If you smoke, quit now. If you don't smoke, don't start!" Yet an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 kids light up for the first time every day.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Why? Peer pressure, no doubt. "How about the rights of smokers?" you ask. Of course they are entitled to smoke if they wish. But they will have to find a place where they can smoke to their hearts' content without offending those who can't tolerate it.

"Quitting 'cold turkey' is the hardest way to quit, but my readers have told me it's the most effective, and in the long run, the easiest way. Cutting down is less traumatic, but the temptation to smoke is often too powerful to resist while smoking just one, two or three cigarettes a day.

Those who are heavily addicted may require professional help to break the habit.

So, if you're hooked on cigarettes, or have been telling yourself, "One of these days I'm going to quit," why not start tomorrow — just for 24 hours?

It won't be easy, but I can promise you, it will be the best Thanksgiving present you can give yourself — and those who love you.

The American Cancer Society has put together a wonderful booklet,

"How to Stay Quit Through the Holidays." It's free. Pick one up at your local American Cancer Society office, or write for one, and please include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. The address is in your telephone book. P.S. A favor, please? If you quit tomorrow even for 24 hours, I want to hear from you. Then write again and let me know how long you were able to stay clean. Good luck.

Engagements

Sanchez-Anderson

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Leo G. Sanchez announce the engagement of their daughter, Marie Alicia, to Eric Cole Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gib Anderson, all Twin Falls.

Sanchez, a 1976 graduate of Twin Falls High School, graduated from Boise State University and is employed at Tupperware in Jerome as a manager-trainer.

Anderson, also a 1976 graduate of Twin Falls High School and a BSU graduate, works for the U.S. Sports Academy as a strength and fitness consultant in the country of Brunel.

A Dec. 6 wedding is planned.

Boys edge girls in baby poll

NEW YORK (AP) — If Americans could choose the sex of babies, boys would edge out girls among those willing to choose, but most people would refuse the choice, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

Overall, the poll of 1,464 adult Americans found strong resistance to choosing the sex of babies, a choice now possible because of advances in "test tube" fertilization.

When asked, "If you were able to choose the sex of a child, would you choose a boy or a girl?" 27 percent of the respondents said they would choose a boy, 16 percent said a girl and 57 percent had no preference or were unsure.

About 30 percent of the men and one-quarter of the women wanted boys. Only 12 percent of the men would choose girls, compared with 20 percent of the women.

Respondents were also asked, "If you were given the opportunity to choose the sex of your child, would you take the opportunity to do so, or no?" When the question was phrased that way, 72 percent said they would not do it, 21 percent said they would, and 7 percent were unsure.

About half the respondents thought the whole idea of choosing the sex of babies was wrong, while three in 10 liked the idea and two in 10 weren't sure.

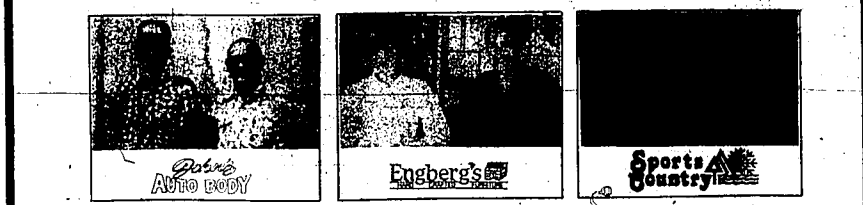

In January, what was apparently the first sex-selected test-tube baby was born in Louisiana. The boy, Justin Spencer, was the product of in vitro fertilization, in which eggs were extracted from a woman's ovaries, fertilized with a man's sperm in the laboratory and implanted in the woman's womb. This "test tube" fertilization is done without the couple cannot conceive by natural means.

In Justin's case, doctors used a technique that allowed them to collect sperm with predominantly male chromosomes, thus increasing the chances that the baby would be a boy. Doctors say the technique is about 70 percent effective.

"If it wasn't going to complicate things, I wanted a boy," said Phyllis Spencer, the baby's mother. "There are more girls in the family, and we definitely wanted a boy, you know, to carry on the name."

Knight in orange armor helps disabled woman

Thank goodness there are still people around Twin Falls who care. I am a 42-year-old woman who, as the result of an auto accident three years ago, have been confined to a wheelchair.

On Nov. 3, as I left the highway onto Pole Line Road, my van spluttered and lurched. There I was — stranded, five miles from town, and because I must exist via an electric lift located on the passenger side of my van, I was stuck. I got stuck because of the 5- to 6-foot drop-off on that side of the road. Then, along came a knight in shining orange armor. I never got his name, but he came up to my van and asked if he could help.

A quick inspection revealed a hole in my radiator hose which he promptly removed with some tools he had in his 4-wheel drive. He said he would be back in a flash and to hold tight. Approximately 10 to 15 minutes later he returned with a new hose and two cans of antifreeze and some water.

Crawling under the van he went to work replacing and replenishing the fluids in my radiator and within one-half hour, I was on the road again. He followed me for several miles to make sure everything was A-OK.

One more thing, when he returned from town I refused to pay him, he steadfastly offered even reimbursement for the parts he had to buy.

From the bottom of my heart I thank him, whoever he was and if anyone knows him, please tell him, I do thank him greatly.

He drives a big orange 4-wheel drive Blazer with five yellow KC lights on the top.

Visitors to Idaho say they want to come back

This is when we had the good fortune to talk with Jack, from the R.V. Barn in Twin Falls. Jack told me how to get to his shop and said he would be expecting me. Jack also told me he would have the parts I needed to fix the refrigerator.

We arrived at Jack's R.V. Barn on Aug. 27. I was counting on this guy named Jack. Jack did come through. He was working on another R.V. when I arrived. Jack dropped everything and started working on our refrigerator. Jack was polite and courteous. In less than 30 minutes he had the refrigerator working and had me back on the road.

Jack could have put in a new refrigerator or charged me hundreds — I would have never known the difference — the part and the labor cost me $22.25.

Thanks again Jack, you do know your business. I will tell all my friends about you and we will be back to your beautiful state of Idaho.

Ball game to benefit cancer group a success

As special events chairman for the Twin Falls unit of the American Cancer Society, I want to express my very sincere thanks to the people of the Magic Valley who attended and participated in the first annual American Cancer Society basketball game that was held on Nov. 12. It was a great success from my point of view and I'm looking forward to doing it again next year.

I would also like to extend a special thanks to Zeb Bell from KEZI, Fred Trenkle and the CSI Golden Eagles, Eric Hovey and the City All Stars, Tony Mammen and Bon Mauldin from CSI, Bev Hackney and her dancers and last but not least, Chris Harvey from K49Z — all of whom were especially helpful and generous.

Bike-a-thon fund-raiser will benefit education

We here at Twin Falls Christian Academy would like to express our sincere appreciation to all those in the community who sponsored any of our students for the bike-a-thon. We had a safe and successful rally.

The funds raised will greatly benefit the education of the students and, in the long run, our community. Thank you again.

Cook calls for encore of Sourdough Theater

I heard it through the grapevine. Everybody is talking about it. They say the review of Robert Service stories performed at the Renaissance Academy last weekend was outstanding. Some even went so far as to say that it was the best live show they'd ever seen in Magic Valley.

Maybe they just said that to make me feel bad because I missed the show, which is sure unusual for me. Is there a chance you Sourdoughs might consider another performance (besides the one in Hagerman next Thursday) for all the folks in Twin Falls who missed you? Please.

Scholarships available for veterans' kids

TWIN FALLS — The American Legion Auxiliary is awarding three scholarships in its Northwest division and one in the state of Idaho.

Phyllis Gerber, of the Twin Falls auxiliary, says there are two national president's scholarships to be given in the Northwest division to children of veterans. One is for $2,000 and the other for $1,500. Applicants must be in their senior year or graduates of an accredited high school.

The Department of Idaho auxiliary will award a nursing scholarship of $750 to a veteran or a veteran's child who has chosen nursing as a career. The applicant must have lived in Idaho for five years immediately prior to applying and be between 17 and 35 years old.

Connoisseurs celebrate with cheesecake

November is National Cheesecake Month — a time to celebrate one of America's most popular year-round desserts. Set for the start of the season, when tradition reigns supreme, cheesecake month places this time-honored treat in the holiday dessert spotlight.

Everybody loves cheesecake. In restaurants it challenges the cream and apple pie as the most treasured holiday dessert. At home it's a knock-down favorite for entertaining. Most every cheesecake lover has a special cheesecake recipe, but devotees are always seeking new variations of this rich and creamy indulgence.

Celebrate National Cheesecake Month by making a delectable homemade cheesecake. Try Tempting Triple Cheesecake as the great finale to a special meal. Topped with the classic fruit-filled dessert, it boasts a coconut-macadamia crust, sweet cherry-flavored filling and a topping of raspberry preserves, whipped cream and almonds.

Banana Pecan Cheesecake is just the dessert to please chocolate lovers in the crowd. Its chocolate crust and topping showcase a rich, satiny, moist filling and wear a new sheen for a contemporary, luscious appeal.

Not every cheesecake is round. Festive Cheesecake Squares are a non-traditional cheesecake treat with special appeal for kids of all ages. Their rich filling and brown-sugar walnut and cranberry-topped base and topping are sure to become a new dessert favorite.

As a clearly classic mealtime companion, Old-Fashioned Philly Cheesecake starts with a graham-cracker crust, lemon filling and sour-cream topping. It boasts a rich flavor that tastes of tradition.

- Tempting Triple Cheesecake
- 1 1/2 cups soft coconut macaroon cookie crumbs
  - 3 8-oz. packages cream cheese, softened
  - 3/4 cup sugar
  - 4 eggs
  - 1/2 cup sour cream
  - 1/2 cup whipping cream
  - 2 tablespoons sweet cherry
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1 10-oz. jarred raspberry preserves
  - 1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped
  - Toasted slivered almonds

Press crumbs into bottom of greased 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees, 15 minutes. Combine cream cheese and sugar, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Blend in sour cream, whipping cream, cherry and vanilla; pour over crust. Bake at 350 degrees, 1 hour and 10 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan just before removing rim of pan. Chill.

Heat preserves until melted. Strain to remove seeds. Spoon over cheesecake, spreading to edges. Top with whipped cream and almonds. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

- Banana Pecan Cheesecake
- 1 cup chocolate wafer crumbs
  - 1/2 cup margarine, melted
  - 3 8-oz. packages cream cheese, softened
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 cup milk
  - 1 cup maple syrup
  - 1 cup chopped pecans
- Combine crumbs and margarine, press onto bottom of 9-inch

Fabulous fudge makes a festive treat

Fabulous fudge, the ultimate sweet temptation, is an all-time favorite holiday treat. Whether shared with family and friends or given as a gift, this festive sweet treat is the ideal holiday indulgence.

Fudge Orleans is much more than just a candy. The innovative recipe boasts a buttery-tasting pecan cookie base and a rich and creamy topping of chocolate fudge. The easy-to-prepare, two-layer treat sports real New Orleans praline flavor.

A creative confection with West Coast flair, California White Chocolate Fudge is a soul-satisfying experience. Silently sweet and sensuous, the satiny white fudge is flecked with dried apricots and walnuts. Sour cream provides richness and an unexpected flavor accent.

Chocolate lovers will rave about Dark, Chocolate Almond Fudge. The sensational combination of rich dark chocolate and toasted almonds is a hands-down holiday winner. Prepared with unsweetened chocolate, its deep, satisfying flavor will make it a new-found favorite.

- FUDGE ORLEANS
- 1 cup margarine
  - 1 cup packed brown sugar
  - 1 egg
  - 2 cups flour
  - 1 cup chopped pecans
  - 3 cups granulated sugar
  - 1/2 cup margarine
  - 1/4 cup (5 ounce can) evaporated milk
  - 1 12-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
  - 1 7-ounce jar marshmallow creme
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Beat margarine and brown sugar until light and fluffy. Blend in egg. Add flour; mix well. Stir in pecans. Spread dough into 15x10x1-inch jelly roll pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until edges are lightly browned.
- Combine granulated sugar, margarine and milk in heavy 2 1/2-quart saucepan; bring to full rolling boil, stirring constantly. Continue boiling 5 minutes over medium heat or until candy thermometer reaches 234 degrees, stirring constantly to prevent scorching. Remove from heat; stir in chocolate pieces until melted. Add marshmallow creme and vanilla; beat until well-blended. Spread over crust. Cool at room temperature; cut into squares.
- Makes 5 pounds.

- CALIFORNIA WHITE CHOCOLATE FUDGE
- 2 cups sugar
  - 3/4 cup sour cream
  - 1/2 cup margarine
  - 12 ounces white chocolate, coarsely chopped
  - 1 7-ounce jar marshmallow creme
  - 3/4 cup chopped walnuts
  - 1/2 cup chopped dried apricots
- Combine sugar, sour cream and margarine in heavy 2 1/2-quart saucepan; bring to full rolling boil, stirring constantly. Continue boil-

Thinking about Thanksgiving pies

Boy, did this ever shake me up! I saw two calendars the other day that were plainly marked with Thursday the 20th as Thanksgiving.

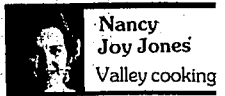

Well, it isn't. It's Thursday the 27th of November. I wonder where those particular calendar editors were hiding their heads? I'll bet their watches are still set on daylight-saving time.

This year I'm having to start all over with my fall decorations. For years I collected colorful bunches of Indian corn and preserved leaves along with a few really gorgeous gourds.

Much to my dismay, I discovered the attic had been raided by a critter, probably a mouse, who proceeded to eat every kernel of the dried corn and nibble holes in the other things.

I think this same critter is the one who recently moved to our basement, found my 20-pound cache of birdseed for the winter and proceeded to devour all of it.

By all rights that critter ought to be pretty good-sized by now. If I had just finished reading a Stephen King book, I might be getting a bit nervous. Yes, we do have a cat. But she doesn't do mice.

We finally set up a formidable trap line to catch the critter, and we did snare him.

We know because Pipkin (the cat) drug the trap up the stairs (mouse and all) and paraded it in front of us as if to say "See what I did."

Anyway, I'm getting new fall centerpieces. This family of mine really is totally tradition-bound when it comes to Thanksgiving dinner, so I treat lightly if I try to change anything.

This year there are going to be some devious changes in the pumpkin pies. I have several new versions, and

Winter does not mean the end for barbecuing

By JOAN BEAN Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — As opening night co-chairwoman for the Festival of Trees, to be held Dec. 5-7, Laurie Wagner has been working on preparations for about six months. The early start was necessary, because there is a great deal of groundwork involved.

A number of people will have been involved with trimming the trees, resulting in about 50 beautiful Christmas trees, ready for delivery. And, for those who purchase them, there will be the added satisfaction of knowing their money will go to the neo-natal intensive care unit at the Magic Valley Medical Center.

All the decorations and lights will be wired to the trees, to prevent their loss during transportation. Wagner says she thinks she should do the same when she decorates her own Christmas tree.

"I thought it sounded like a great idea," she says. "With a 3-week-old black lab and a 4-year-old daughter, Lindsay, who likes to take all the ornaments off the tree, it's going to be an unusual Christmas."

In all likelihood, she will be prepared for just about anything, having worked as an airline stewardess for six years. She retired a couple of years before starting her family, but many aspects of her job had a striking similarity to those that apply to motherhood.

She said her duties ranged from "being a psychologist, to a waitress, to a nurse, to a sister, to a mother, someone to comfort somebody and being prepared for any kind of emergency."

If the plane was late, and there were a group of grumpy passengers, her goal was to make at least two people change their attitudes. This would usually rub off onto the others on board.

And nowadays, with both feet on sold ground, she still does this. When she runs into a person whose day is obviously not going well, she tries to say something nice, such as, "Your hair looks good."

 "Even if they don't register with it right then and there," she says, "sometimes down the line — maybe five minutes after you've left — a light may turn on. And, they say, 'Oh, that was nice. Yes, I guess I do like my hair now.'"
 "So many people need a lot of strokes, and they just don't seem to be given out that much. I try to do that a lot. I try to teach that to my daughter, as best I can to a 4-year-old."
 During both winter and summer, Wagner might well be hearing compliments herself, for preparing a lovely barbecue. She and her husband, Lee, have a brisk barbecue in their den. It has a large fan above it, which removes the smoke.
 When she plans to barbecue outdoors, she buys them in the flat. Her cooking method and barbecue sauce recipe follows and is appropriate for an indoor or patio grill.
 Bake the spareribs slab, without sauce, on a broiling pan in the meat side-up, at 350 degrees for about a half hour — just long enough to take the color out.

 you might want to try one of them. These all call for a 9-inch unbaked pastry shell with a high, fluted edge. So you can make your favorite crust or buy one ready-made and fill it with one of the following.
Vanilla Custard Pie (for doneness by inserting a knife close to the center and seeing if it comes out almost clean. Generally you want to catch it just before the custard sets completely and before it is over-baked. It will set up soon after removing from the oven. If it is overcooked, it will form cracks as it cools.)
 Most pumpkin pies are best made ahead and cooled at room temperature. If you do them a day ahead, cool slowly before chilling overnight in the refrigerator.

MAPLE SYRUP PUMPKIN PIE
 2 eggs
 1 1-pound can pumpkin
 1/4 cup brown sugar
 1/4 cup real maple syrup
 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
 dash of nutmeg
 1 1/2 cups half-and-half or evaporated milk
 In a large bowl, beat the eggs until frothy. Then add the pumpkin, sugar, maple syrup, cinnamon, salt, ginger and cloves and mix completely.
 Stir in the half-and-half and pour the mixture into the prepared pie crust.
 Bake in a preheated 425 degree oven for 45 minutes. Then lower the temperature to 350 degrees and continue cooking for 45 to 55 more minutes.
 If your crust seems to be browning too fast, you can cover it with foil. Cover the crust, not the filling.

PUMPKIN-PECAN PIE
 3 eggs
 1 cup canned pumpkin
 1 cup sugar
 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
 3/4 cup corn syrup, light or dark
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
 1 cup pecan halves
 First make the pumpkin layer by stirring together one of the crusts which you have slightly beaten, the pumpkin, 1/2 of the cup of sugar, cinnamon, ginger and cloves. Mix very well and then spread in the prepared

BARBECUE SAUCE
 1/2 cup water
 1/2 cup chili sauce
 1/2 cup lemon juice
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon garlic salt
 1/4 cup brown sugar
 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 1/2 cup ketchup
 1/2 cup chopped onions
 2 teaspoons vinegar
 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
 1 teaspoon tobacco sauce
 1/4 teaspoon paprika
 1/4 teaspoon ginger
 1/2 cup lemon juice
 Mix ingredients together and heat until bubbly, and set aside.
 When the meat is ready, put whole slab of meat on the barbecue and cook, basting with some of the sauce. Use the remainder of the sauce for dipping the ribs.
 Wagner says her all time favorite is her Aunt Holey's lasagna. "It's one of those I can make for a mass of people, and it's never bad. It's always one of my fail-safe recipes."

AUNT HOLEY'S LASAGNA
 The sauce:
 2 tablespoons olive oil
 1 pound ground beef
 1/2 pound ground pork
 1 minced onion
 2 minced garlic
 3 tablespoons minced parsley

HONEY OF A PUMPKIN PIE
 1 cup honey
 1 cup sour cream
 1 1/2 cups canned pumpkin
 2 teaspoons pumpkin pie seasoning (check the spice department of your grocery store)
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 3 eggs, well beaten
 1/4 cup coarsely chopped nuts, walnuts preferred
 In the large bowl of your mixer blend the honey, sour cream, pumpkin, spices, salt and cornstarch and beat until smooth. Fold in the eggs.
 Pour into the prepared pie shell and sprinkle the nuts over the top.
 Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 45 minutes or until knife stuck in comes out clean.

2 cans tomato paste
 3 cups water
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons oregano
 2 teaspoons pepper
 1 teaspoon basil
 1 teaspoon fennel seed
 1 pound mozzarella cheese, sliced thin
 1 pound ricotta cheese, whipped with one egg
 1/2 pound fresh grated Parmesan cheese
 Brown the beef and pork in the olive oil, with the garlic and parsley. Add tomato paste, water and salt, and shake it up. Add pepper, oregano, basil and fennel seed. Simmer about two hours, uncovered. She sometimes cooks it on a low simmer for about two days, adding a little more tomato sauce, oregano, basil, fennel seed and water, as necessary. Or, it can be prepared in the early morning, and simmered until an hour and a half before mealtime.
 Boil lasagna noodles in 3 quarts of water, with 2 tablespoons salt and a little olive oil, to prevent sticking.
 In a rectangular baking dish, arrange 4 noodles on the bottom, and then alternate with layers of sauce and the mozzarella and ricotta cheeses, more noodles and ending with the cheese. Top it with the Parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves about eight.
 She says the sauce, which is also good on spaghetti, makes the house smell good.
 "I have a hard time trying to get through lunch, without saying, 'Well, I'll just make us some noodles.' ... but I just have to remember, by dinner time it will be tasting so great that I've got to keep my hands, and my spoon, and my little chunk of bread out, and not to dip it — just to make sure it tastes okay," she says.

For hundreds of years blocks have been a child's favorite

By the Associated Press

On Christmas mornings in the late 1800s, starry-eyed children raced downstairs to find an evergreen tree-sprouted overnight — abloom with a serendipitous assortment of treats and toys.

There were mechanical banks that plopped change, china dolls with their sawn dishes, and rocking horses with real leather tack. There also were simpler toys: tops, balls, and brilliantly lithographed puzzle blocks in sturdy wooden boxes.

Toy makers cut prints into pieces arranged on onto sets of wooden blocks. Every side of each block in the set was faced with a section of a different picture. Each way the blocks were turned, they created a new picture — 16 pictures in all.

The concept was ingenious, but from a child's point of view, the prints on the blocks inspired little more than a yawn. Color printing was still in its infancy and the reproduction was poor. Many of the pictures were recycled, out-of-date subjects originally drawn for adults.

Even when they used duplicate prints called pictures gables included with each set of blocks, children often found the puzzles difficult to assemble. Eventually, enterprising block builders took a good idea and made it better. In a perfect marriage of art and technology, during the late 1890s, the dazle of newly perfected chromolithography was matched to charming illustrations commissioned especially for children.

Colors never before seen in printed pictures on blocks, and captured children's hearts. Scenes by artists as beloved as Kate Greenaway and Beatrix Potter, as well as unnamed masters whose names are today unknown, were Victorian art at its sentimental best.

When properly arranged, block sets depicted angelic children in playful poses. Fairy tale favorites from Aesop, Andersen, and the Brothers Grimm, also brightened dozens of sets as did nursery rhyme friends and the North Pole's own men in red: Santa Claus, Sinterklaas, and Kris Kringle.

Though some puzzle sets were pure whimsy, the vast majority were also educational. Young Shipbuilders' Puzzle Cubes features the fleet of the United States. Dissected Maps of the Universe taught global and planetary geography. Talking-Far Animals Puzzle Blocks mooded or brayed at the tug of a cord, though a pig might shriek "cock-a-doodle-do!" if cubes were improperly arranged. There were even blocks that reinforced religious lessons with pictures of favorite Bible stories such as David and Goliath.

Picture puzzle cubes were not the only type of lithographed blocks that entered children's lives at the turn of the century. Alphabet blocks had been used to teach young children their ABCs for at least 300 years; they were popularized by English philosopher John Locke in the late 1600s. He claimed the blocks taught children letter recognition painlessly, through play.

Action preempted boredom with Bliss Manufacturing's Read and Learn Cylinders, which could be rolled back and forth across the floor when attention spans grew short. Another maker, Schoenbut, offered stand-up Alphie Blocks. Lithographed with children on one side and animals on the other, they came with a key to help children play tempus when they tired of playing.

Perhaps — the grandest — alphabet blocks were made by W.S. Read Toy

Co. They were building materials for a tower that featured moving parts, including a pulley that operated elevators and rotated flags.

By 1890s, the U.S. Census Bureau listed 178 game and toy manufacturers, most offered blocks. In addition to the companies mentioned above, notable manufacturers were Singer, Converse, and McLoughlin Brothers,

Loire wines offer charm and delicacy

By NATHAN CHROMAN The Los Angeles Times

The red wines of France's Loire Valley have long unjustly suffered from a bum rap. Bad-mouthed by prejudiced Bordeaux and Burgundy authorities as lackluster, light-structured and short-lived, it is no wonder the wines have never attained their deserved popularity.

This unfortunate situation — for Loire vintners, however, has become a plus for consumers who can currently buy these wines of beguiling charm and subtle delicacy for reasonable prices at less than $10.

The best come from near the town of Touraine — from the vineyard regions and villages of Chinon, Bourgueil, Saint-Nicolas-de-Bourgueil and Anjou. Made principally from the Cabernet Franc grape, also known in the Loire as the Breton, the wines generally offer fine varietal fruit and a testy spiced taste without oppressive tannin producing astringency. They are excellent table mates for veal, chicken and beef — and even for Touraine's prized wild game dishes.

Some wineries incorporate Cabernet Sauvignon grapes into the blend to add punch and durability.

Because of the lightness and early charm of concentrated fruit intensity, do not confuse these wines with Beaujolais, the styles are decidedly distinct. Loire reds are racier and leaner, with aromas that are described by local vintners as violet for Chinon wines and raspberry for Bourgueil. Frankly, I could not always perceive the difference but I found as much pleasure in the aromas as in the taste.

The wines are exceptionally easy to drink. They seldom show harsh edges and consumers who shy away from reds in general should find pleasing even with a hamburger. Long-term cellaring is not necessary and indeed the long, soft, supple flavors so typical of the style are meant for early drinking. Some authorities suggest five to six months of age to develop all of the depth and complexity, but frankly the pleasure and even the nuances seem to be available soon after bottling.

A delightful wine and one that is sold in the United States, Bourgueil-Audebert "Cuvée du Centenaire Liberté" is typical of the agreeable style and a delight to drink. Made by Jean Claude Audebert, it uses Cabernet Franc grapes — entirely, displaying a light, lean, peppery taste with a light bubbly touch of "petillance" for added zest.

Audebert says that the vintage of 1985 qualifies as excellent and occurs only once in 10 years. Interestingly, the bottle carries a stamped and serigraphed label featuring a likeness of the Statue of Liberty and for its restoration he donated 1.5 francs for each bottle sold. This is an excellent example of a fine Bourgueil and at $8 it is a good value.

For contrast, Audebert offered a 1976 Bourgueil with the vineyard designation of Domaine du Gran Clos. It showed an obvious violet nose, a thicker body with lovely developed seductively generous Cabernet Franc flavors, all of which belie the myth that Loire reds do not age and develop complexities. While all Loire reds cannot be aged with complexity as a goal, there are many like this bottle that are worthy of longer term cellaring.

Besides reds, Chinon produces whites made from the Chenin Blanc grape. Generally these whites are not as favored as the reds, but are especially deserving. Chenin Blanc, 1984, Olga Raffault, is a must buy, for here is a rich 100 percent Chenin Blanc, somewhat austere yet with lively nuances that come across in a style suggesting a blend of Vouvray and Chablis. Its earthy finish is an easy companion for most white wine foods and was perhaps the best white I sampled. A superbly made wine, but alas, in small production.

A tasting of Chateau du Cheman, Cabernet d'Anjou 1980, 1981 and 1983 displayed excellent Cabernet Franc spiced aromas and fresh, clean, distinctive, lively tastes. Not powerful wines, they show extraordinary depth of flavor but with the thinness of the body of roses; though it may be inaccurate to describe them as roses.

The '85 Cheman made from one-third Cabernet Sauvignon and two-thirds Cabernet Franc was easily the best of the bunch with more complexity in nose and taste and a fuller, rounder concentrated taste. For the type, this is a big wine in a good year and should develop much like a Claret allowing for longer term aging.

To prove the point of durability and survivability of the wines, the winery showed a 1964 (considered a great year) that sported a superb violet like nose together with flavor and depth that suggested claret. Though light in structure this was a round and rich noble wine characteristic of the best of Anjou reds. Equally interesting is Cheman's Rose d'Anjou, 1982. Not showing any modernized character the wine's fruit was amazingly still intact with refinement and charm.

Regrettably many fine Loire reds are not shipped to the United States; not because they cannot make the journey but because demand for them is not strong. If Americans became more interested, as indeed they should, not only will they find harmonious and appealing softer-styled reds; but they will add yet another dimension of taste to the wide spectrum of world's wines.

It is not likely Loire reds will ever replace Bordeaux and Burgundy wines yet their easy style is worthy of more praise than criticism.

Afternoon teas began with the duchess' sinking feeling

By the Associated Press

It all began, legend has it, in 1840, with Anna, wife of the seventh duke of Bedford, recounts Country Home magazine.

People in that era consumed large breakfasts and did not eat again until eight or nine o'clock in the evening. The duchess often had a sinking feeling in the afternoon, which she remedied by serving tea and cakes around four o'clock. Thus began a British institution that continues to this day.

At first, afternoon tea was limited to the aristocracy, though today the habit has spread to the general populace. The food served at tea varies with the occasion. A quiet interlude for two might include tea accompanied by hot scones with butter and jam or clotted Devonshire cream. A more formal occasion calls for an assortment of sweet and savory dainties: dainty biscuits (in American parlance, cookies), pastries, small cakes and finger sandwiches. And there's usually sherry for those who prefer to drink something other than tea.

Although a great tradition was pulled around the tea, the beverage was drunk in England for almost 200 years before tea as a meal came into being. There's no precise record of tea's first appearance on England's shores, but we do know its image was boosted by the marriage of Catherine of Braganza, a Portuguese princess, to Charles II in 1662. Included in her dowry was a chest of tea.

England was a nation of coffee drinkers when tea was first advertised in 1658 as "That Excellent and by all Physicians approved China drink." Two years later in his advertisement known as the "Tea Broad-side of 1660," tea purveyor and coffee-house proprietor Thomas Garway extolled the virtues of tea. He wrote that, among other attributes, tea "vanquisheth heavy dreams, eneth the Brain, and strengtheth the Memory." He also praised tea as a cure for headaches, sleepiness, scurvy, dropsy, colic and a number of other assorted maladies.

Though tea was expensive — it was taxed heavily — its consumption rose steadily over the years. In 1699 England imported 40,000 pounds of tea a year. By the end of the 18th century, the level had ballooned to 17.8 million pounds. From the mid-1600s until the beginning of the 19th century, the British imported their tea from China, via the powerful East India Co. In 1833, when it appeared China was closing its doors to foreign trade, the British Committee established a plan for growing tea in India. Five years later, the first crop of Indian tea arrived in England, and the question, "China or India?" became a standard line at tea tables throughout the country.

The taking of tea moved from the parlor to more public places in the late 18th century. In the countryside surrounding London, pleasure seekers relaxed in moderately priced tea gardens.

The urban equivalent of the tea garden was the tea shop, a British institution that supposedly owes its existence to the manager of the Aerated Bread Company shop near London Bridge. In the mid-1860s, she used to invite her friends to tea in the back of the shop. Their enjoyment prompted her to suggest to her employers that they sell tea on the premises. The tea shop thrived, and soon others opened around London.

For most people, though the classic vision of tea remains that of a relaxing ritual at home. William Lyon Phillips' "Essay on Tea," published in New York in 1930, offered an American's view of this British predilection: "At precisely 4:13 p.m. every day the average Englishman has a thirst for the astirring taste of tea. He does not care for hot water or hot lemonade colored with tea. He likes his tea so strong that to me it has a hairy flavor. There are several good reasons (besides bad coffee) for tea in England. Breakfast is often at nine (the middle of the morning to me), so that early tea is desirable.

Drink is often at eight-thirty, so days in the year in England, very, but in most British interiors really that afternoon tea is by no means very few are warm; and afternoon necessary to start the blood circulating. Furthermore, of the 365 tea is not only cheerful and sociable, cultivating."

Study microwaves when buying

By the Associated Press

Before you begin your microwave-oven shopping, think about your needs and make some notes. Take your notes with you, says Better Homes and Gardens Microwave Recipes magazine, and evaluate several models and brands. Start by jotting down just what you expect from a microwave oven. Are you a cooking enthusiast ready to micro-cook cakes and casseroles, or are you a student limited by space, time and money who wants to heat pizza and frozen dinners?

Next decide where you will put your microwave oven. Measure the space. Check the electrical outlet and circuit to make sure you will have enough power (usually a 15- to 20-amp grounded outlet supplying 115 to 120 volts). Plan which direction the door will open and where the oven air vent will be (top, side or front). Now figure out how much you're willing to spend, then shop for the oven that matches your specifications. Evaluate the basics, then look for any special features you'd like. With no-frills ovens selling for as little as $100 and fancy convection-microwave ovens selling for as much as $750, you should find one just right for you.

Before you make a decision, read the warranty. Most manufacturers offer a five-year warranty on the magnetron tube (the microwave generator).

If you can't spare counter space for the oven, shop for an over-the-range or under-the-counter model. If you're remodeling, consider building your oven into the wall or buying it as part of a new range. You can also choose an oven that offers micro-cooking and convection or conventional cooking in the same cavity.

To check an oven's capacity, try putting large dishes into it. If you want to cook items such as a whole turkey, consider the height of the cavity as well.

Find out how much cooking power the oven will yield. Generally, the higher the wattage output, the faster the oven will cook on high power. For speediest cooking, look for an oven with at least 650 to 720 watts.

Solid-state controls are the most accurate type of control and let you set cooking times to the exact second. If ovens are needed to control extra features such as clock, sensors and keep-warm. Dials, on the other hand, are simpler to operate, especially if you anticipate several persons using the oven.

You'll find many gadgets to choose from, but each adds to the cost of the microwave oven and many require extra steps to use.

Sweet potato a holiday meal delight

By the Associated Press

The native American sweet potato helped the first colonists survive the hard early years — and today it just naturally seems part of festive holiday meals.

Although stored for year-round availability, the sweet potato is at its best and most plentiful now, according to the November issue of Country Living, after the September harvest has been cured and shipped to market.

Columbus and his sailors ate sweet potatoes in the West Indies. De Solo found them growing in Indian plantations in Louisiana in 1540 and Spanish and Portuguese explorers are credited with carrying the vegetable to India, China, Malaya and the Philippines.

When the colonists arrived in this country, they found American Indians growing sweet potatoes in what is now Georgia. Indian farmers taught the new settlers how to grow and use sweet potatoes and corn and there are records of colonists cultivating sweet potatoes in Virginia in 1648.

During the years between 1838 and 1938, Georgia was the leading producer of sweet potatoes. Today, North Carolina leads in sweet-potato production. Louisiana is famous for its Mameya variety, originally smuggled into this country from Puerto Rico. Its name means yellow yam.

The sweet potato belongs to the morning-glory family. It is noted for its quick growth, easy care and, in many South American species, for its beautiful flowers.

These tuberous-rooted perennials thrive in areas where summers are long, with temperatures averaging 70 to 75 degrees Fahrenheit. No area in the United States is too hot or, too moist for them, although many areas are too cool.

Two important types of sweet potatoes grow in the United States. One is soft, moist and sweet when cooked; the other has dry, meaty flesh. Sometimes the moister, bright-orange variety is called a yam and the dryer, lighter-colored one a sweet potato. Both types are sweet potatoes — the true yam belongs to another genus.

When buying sweet potatoes, select well-shaped vegetables with blemish-free skin. Avoid those with signs of decay. Thick, medium-sized potatoes tapering at both ends will cook most evenly.

Stored for any length of time, sweet potatoes must first be cured for about 10 days at 85 degrees, with a relative humidity of at least 90 percent. Sweet potatoes bought at a market have most likely already been cured.

Sweet potatoes should be kept in a cool, dry, well-ventilated place. Do not store them in the refrigerator. Prolonged exposure to temperatures below 50 degrees will cause decay or hard, pithy streaks.

Although sweet potatoes appear quite hardy, they bruise easily and should be handled gently.

One medium-size sweet potato provides "more" than twice the recommended daily allowance of Vitamin A, 36 percent of Vitamin C and 20 percent of the iron.

Most people are familiar with candied or baked sweet potatoes, but the versatile vegetable also is tasty when baked, broiled, fried, whipped and as an ingredient in biscuits, bread, muffins, croquettes, pies and cookies.

Family feuds can disrupt get-togethers

By the Associated Press

Families all over America will be getting together to celebrate Thanksgiving; but for some the holiday will be marred by the hurt, anger or bitterness of family feuds.

Feuds start over money or power or values or politics, or a real or imagined insult. Judith Viorst wrote in the November issue of Redbook. They exist between parents and children, brothers and sisters, relatives in all combinations. Some are poignant, others absurd, and they may have gone on for years.

"To those of us on the outside, family feuds can seem pathetic, petty, irrational. Why can't they, for heaven's sake, just kiss and make up?" Viorst wrote.

"But often a family feud is about a lot more than we — or the feuders — readily recognize. Often a family feud is the eruption of a lifetime of buried feelings — of rivalries and resentments, of all kinds of unhealed hurts stretching back into childhood."

Some feuders do not make up because they believe what happened is unforgivable, or because each is waiting for the other to make the first move. Even people who are neither self-righteous nor stubborn unwillingly find themselves caught in family feuds. But, sometimes, even bitter feuds can be mended.

Rachel, who with her mother, put an end to several years of silence with a telephone call announcing a new grandchild and an invitation to see her.

Paul, whose father forced him out of the family business because he disapproved of Paul's "hippie" values, came home when he learned his father was dying — in time for them to tell each other, "I love you."

A sister called a sister-in-law after 17 months of not speaking and announced, "We're making up. It's enough already."

Sometimes all that is needed is for one feuder to reach out and make a gesture — but sometimes that gesture must be made again and again.

"A psychiatrist observes that it's the style of some families to feud," Viorst wrote. "He says in some families it is generally accepted that conflicts are resolved by X not talking to Y."

Other families keep on getting together and hurting each other terribly, but they don't — and never will — cut off the relationship. The psychiatrist says sometimes ending a relationship may be the healthy thing to do, but even the bitterest family feuders should leave the door ajar and retain the option of ending the feud.

There is another option — not to let the feud get started in the first place.

"Feud avoidance is easier if we don't expect the impossible from our relatives — if we can accept them as they are and not demand that they be what we want them to be," Viorst wrote.

Other ways to avoid feuds are not to burden relationships with the angers and grudges of ancient history, nor feel compelled to get revenge or win every battle.

Gardening/home

Use windows to grow herbs in the winter

If you have a sunny window, you can grow a few herbs in pots this winter for seasoning and salads.

Fluorescent lights or special grow lights can also be used if a sunny window is not available. Plants must be within a few inches of artificial light source for good growth. Fresh herbs have more flavor and a brighter color than dried ones.

Some garden and gift stores have combination packages of growing container, seed and soil mix. Herb seeds can usually be purchased wherever vegetable seeds are sold. The most readily source this time of year is a garden store or mail order seed catalog. The best herbs to grow in a window are small compact ones such as chives, oregano, thyme, small-leaved or bougainvillee, sweet marjoram and dwarf, curled parsley.

Almost any pot with drain holes and any indoor potting soil can be used to grow herbs. If space is limited, four-inch pots can be used. Six-inch pots are better if you want to maintain the plants through the winter and spring.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain

Moisten the soil and scatter several seeds over the top. Sprinkle a little soil over the top of the seeds. They seeds do not need to be covered. Water again and then place a clear piece of plastic or plastic bag over the top. This reduces evaporation and keeps the seeds from drying out. Moisten the soil whenever it starts to dry out on top. If placed near a heat outlet or on top of the refrigerator near the back, seeds will sprout faster.

As soon as the seeds start to sprout, remove the plastic and place them in full light. Once they are well rooted, you can let the top of the soil dry before watering. They will also need regular fertilization. Any outdoor plant fertilizer can be used. I prefer those which are added in small amounts each time plants are watered. Yellow lower leaves is an indication that plants are not receiving enough fertilizer.

Some herbs can be harvested within four to six weeks after planting. Never remove more than about a third of the leaves at one time. Some plants have a stronger flavor as the plants become more mature.

For more information on growing and using herbs, books are available in garden and book stores and from the library.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College.

Give cookies flavor with molasses

MOLASSES BUTTERBALLS

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup molasses
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 cups very finely chopped walnuts

Powdered sugar
In a mixer bowl beat butter or margarine with electric mixer on medium speed for 30 seconds. Add molasses and beat until fluffy. Add flour; beat at low speed until well blended. Stir in nuts. Shape dough into 1-inch balls, using about 1 tablespoon dough for each. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 325-degree oven for 20 minutes. Remove to wire rack to cool. When cookies are cool, gently roll in powdered sugar to coat. Makes about 4 dozen.

Bullpen pick of plant tryouts admired

By EARL ARONSON
The Associated Press

A new star has come out of the "bull pen" of plants given tryouts. The No. 1 pick in this case for the coming season is named "Nandina domestica Gulf Stream," really a re-arranged veteran in a new uniform playing as "Gulf Stream Heavenly Bamboo."

I joined the coaches and trainers admiring this patented plant at Hines Wholesale Nursery facilities in California and Texas recently. It was in the test areas, called the bullpen, where several hundred new plants undergo vigorous development annually.

In soil, Hines produces about 20 million new and tried and true plants annually, from tiny... iners in flats to big specimen trees in 15-gallon containers.

In development since it was first spotted in 1989 in Texas by Bill Barr, Hines propagation manager, Nandina is hardy outdoors in the southern half of the United States (Zone 6) and for indoors in winter in the north. It is dwarf, 3 to 3 1/2 feet tall, densely compact with new growth a unique bronze color that contrasts nicely with the green mature leaves.

The Hines facility in Santa Ana, Calif., grows more than 1,400 varieties of plants primarily for California and desert-state markets on its 420 acres; Houston-Fulshear, Texas, about 350 varieties for South Central states on 200 acres; and in Vacaville, Calif., 500 varieties for cold-climate markets on 168 acres.

I asked Barr to tell me the story of Nandina, found growing in a selection of dwarf Heavenly Bamboo.

"There was a lot of excitement," he related. "That excitement has continued to this day." He added:

"On that first day, we saw a plant that was distinctly different. The plant was more compact, the older foliage was a nice darker green and the new foliage was a very eye-catching bronze color that was held in an ascending manner."

"As time went on we observed that this plant maintained nice characteristics throughout the growing year. Then, as fall approached, the color intensified and this lasted the remainder of the winter."

"As we started to propagate this plant all of the offspring showed the same outstanding characteristics."

"After six years of evaluation we are sure that a very beautiful, useful plant has been discovered."

Barr related that when he saw the prize, symmetrical, densely-compact Nandina growing in the field, he fortunately took half a dozen cuttings before sending the plant to a tissue culture (cloning) facility, "where somehow it died."

In obtaining a U.S. Patent for Nandina Gulf Stream, Hines reported it was disease- and insect-resistant and "has withstood temperatures ranging from 20 to 102 degrees F without any harmful effects," and while it had not been exposed to temperatures lower than 20 degrees "It is derived from a plant species hardy in Zone 6, where low temperatures range from 0 to 10 F."

Hines Nursery was founded in 1920 in Altadena, Calif., by James W. Hines as a small business. Weyerhaeuser, of Tacoma, Wash., acquired it in 1975 and a company official said it had become "one of the major trendsetters in the wholesale nursery industry."

Rejuvenate lack-luster furniture with cleanser

By The Associated Press

Dirt, oil and wax combine and accumulate to darken and dull finishes on wood furniture. Even the rejuvenation of a lack-luster, near-antique might be as simple as cleaning with an appropriate cleanser, according to Wood magazine. Murphy's Oil Soap — one commonly available, old-time favorite — cleans and conditions at the same time.

Wornish, recognizable by its tiny surface cracks, cleans well with a half-and-half mix of turpentine and tung oil (or boiled linseed oil). Rub the dirty surface with a cloth saturated in the mixture.

Some finishes will be so heavily coated with dirt and grime that you'll have to use steel wool with the cleanser, scrub lightly with the grain to avoid scratches.

All furniture picks up minor surface scratches during normal use. Moisture, too, shows up as surface cloudiness or rings left by drinking glasses. Combat tiny scratches with the help of finely ground abrasive powders. Pumice is powdered volcanic ash, has a medium grit. Mixed to a paste with lemon oil, it polishes well. Working with the grain, rub the paste into the finish with a felt pad until the scratches disappear. Wipe off the pumice paste with a clean cloth. For a higher gloss, follow the same procedure using rottenstone, a much finer abrasive powder of ground slate.

On pieces finished with penetrating oil (Danish, tung or linseed), bad spots are easy to repair. Just rub the mottled area with steel wool, then apply a new coat of the appropriate oil to the entire surface.

Resistance to the pumice and rottenstone treatment calls for a heavy remedy. Step up to silicon-carbide (wet-dry) sandpaper. To use it, pour a small amount of lemon oil on the surface, then sand lightly with the grain until the blemish disappears. Start with finer grit 600 and progress down to heavier grit 320 as the blemish's stubbornness dictates.

Wet-glass rings and surface cloudiness usually surrender to the pumice-and-oil paste treatment mentioned above if the moisture hasn't penetrated too deeply. If spots resist, the only solution is sanding and refinishing.

PATIENT APPRECIATION DAY!

The Sirucek Chiropractic Clinic wants to say THANKS to all our past and present patients for making our office such a tremendous success. MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1986, we have declared as PATIENT APPRECIATION DAY. That means that all of the following will be performed at no charge: Spinal Manipulation (adjustment), Diathermy, Intergemental Traction, Passive Traction, Multi-Stem and Galvanic Therapy. If your x-rays are out of date or there is a new injury and x-rays are necessary, we are reducing our x-rays and examination fees by 65% - that's a savings of over $100.00. We welcome you to bring in your friends and families for this tremendous opportunity.

Again, THANK YOU from Dr. Tony Sirucek and his staff for your continued support as we work toward your better health. Since this will be a busy day, we request that you make an appointment.
