Critical Congress looks at 'mistake' today

By TIMAHERN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders on Thursday brushed aside President Reagan's defense of his secret sale of arms to Iran, branding it a "mistake" that may have violated the law.

As two congressional committees prepared for closed door sessions with CIA Director William Casey today, Republican and Democratic leaders used nearly identical terms to criticize the president's actions.

In separate closed-door sessions this morning, the House and Senate Intelligence Committees will question Casey, who reportedly opposed the arms sale although he favored an attempt to open talks with Iranian moderates.

Next week, the House Armed Services Committee will meet in public session to hear from Adm. William Crowe Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who reportedly was kept in the dark about the shipment of what Reagan said were defensive Ayatollah rules out reconciliation with 'Satan'

The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran's revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini on Thursday ruled out reconciliation with Washington and said any Iranian officials who seek to improve relations are "Satan-oriented."

"I never expected such things from these people," Khomeini said in a speech at his residence in north Tehran. His remarks were broadcast by Tehran radio and monitored in Nicosia.

"This is a time when they should be screaming at America. (But) they are shouting at themselves," Khomeini said in his first public comment on contacts between Washington and Tehran.

He also urged unity within Iran's revolutionary leadership, in which Western observers recently have reported deep divisions.

Without mentioning names, Khomeini criticized Iranian leaders who publicly have demonstrated flexibility towards the United States in recent weeks. He accused them of falling prey to propaganda from the White House, which he called the "Black House."

Several Iranian leaders, including Parliament speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, have spoken of possible reconciliation with the United States, but they have stipulated that Washington first must meet certain conditions, such as releasing weapons bought by the Shah's government but never delivered. The Shah was ousted during the 1979 revolution.

Khomeini, who has the final say in Iran's affairs, responded, "What has come upon you? Where are you going?"

The radio said he was referring to an unidentified group of lawmakers who submitted a letter to Iran's parliament, the Majlis. The broadcast did not disclose the letter's contents, but it apparently urged some sort of dialogue between Washington and Tehran.

ble" that at least gained the release of three American hostages.

Reagan's former national security adviser Robert McFarlane, who delivered a pleneload of weapons to Iran, issued a statement taking responsibility for "a serious error in judgment" in not realizing that the sale would have a damaging effect on the national interest.

Late Thursday, McFarlane, in a speech to a suburban Gaithersburg, Md., audience, said Secretary of State George Shultz, who has claimed his knowledge of the arms shipment to Iran was "fragmentary at best," had been kept informed.

"It was not kept from the secretary of state," McFarlane said. "I'm somewhat surprised at the portrayal that it was. I told him repeatedly and often of every item that went on in this enterprise."

Hospital a merger prospect

Gooding facility may share services

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding County Memorial Hospital, blighted earlier this year by debt and earnings losses, now is blossoming into a more attractive prospect for mergers with area county hospitals.

Debt load eases — B1

Corporations hoping to merge services with the financially troubled hospital were discussed at a Hospital Board meeting Thursday.

A plan from St. Benedict's Family Medical Center, in Jerome, claimed it would save Gooding Hospital $200 per month by combining certain services. And the board voted to allow the company that manages Blaine County Medical Center, in Halley, to visit Gooding and make its own recommendations of cooperative means for each hospital to make more money.

Both Blaine County and St. Benedict's medical centers are competing to share services with Gooding Hospital, which might allow it to break even or make money, instead of losing $20,000 per month — as it did earlier this year, said Board Chairman Elmer Shraut.

"They're going to tell us if it can fly," Shraut said of the proposals to combine services and personnel.

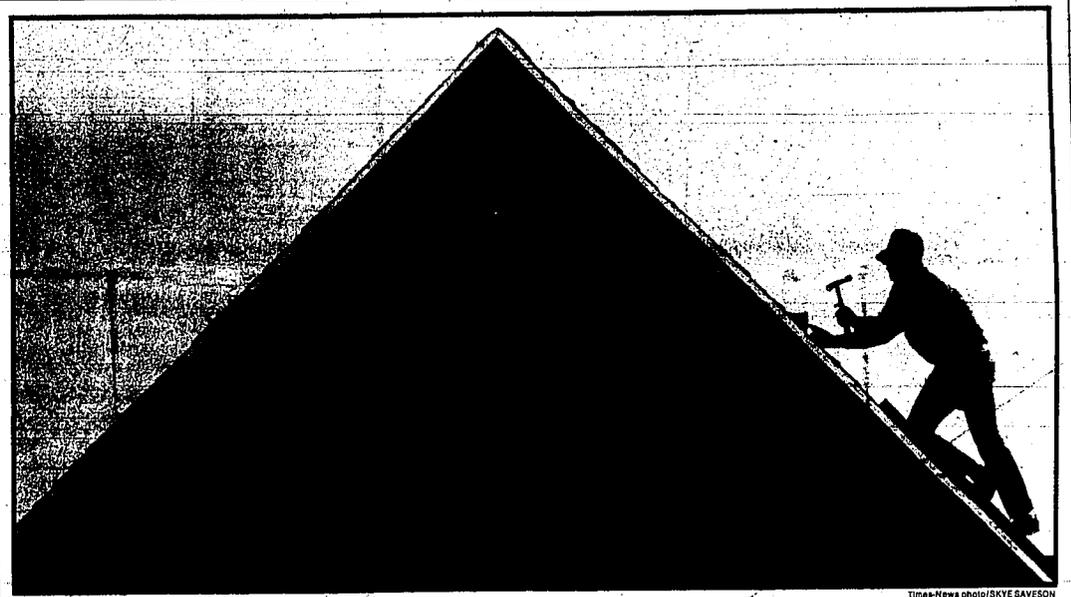

Each of the two surveys will suggest ways its hospital would share certain medical and managerial services with Gooding Hospital, which might allow it to break even or make money, instead of losing $20,000 per month — as it did earlier this year, said Board Chairman Elmer Shraut.

"We think it offers the small hospitals something that they might not be able to afford on their own," said Jerry Hart, president of health management systems of Holy Cross Health Systems, which manages Blaine County Medical Center.

Hart said it's premature to specify which services the hospitals might share, because his company's evaluation will not be completed until next week or the week after.

But he said part-time people in 'Smokeout' lures fewer participants

The Associated Press

Anti-smoking forces staged quit-for-a-day rallies and cigarette bonfires Thursday for the 10th annual "Great American Smokeout," and the American Cancer Society estimated that a third of the nation's 54 million smokers tried to free themselves of cigarettes.

The society's preliminary estimate, based on a telephone survey by volunteers of 173 million participants was lower than last year's figure and

Medicare premium increase proposed Aid for catastrophic illness cost sought

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Health Secretary Otis Bowen proposed a $4.92-a-month hike in Medicare premiums Thursday to help elderly Americans pay for catastrophic illness.

The premium increase would be used to limit beneficiaries' annual share of Medicare-covered expenses to $2,000.

Bowen also called for tax breaks for businesses to improve insurance coverage for catastrophic illness for the estimated 10 million employees whose health policies don't adequately cover those expenses.

The secretary proposed tax-deferred savings accounts, similar to Individual Retirement Accounts, for wage earners to finance long-term care in nursing homes.

"I know it will provoke much debate and that is good," Bowen said of his proposal, the product of a 10-month study ordered by President Reagan.

"The problem is complex. There are many potential answers. None are simple or easy," he said.

Bowen acknowledged that the premium hike for 30 million Medicare beneficiaries would be an added burden to many low-income elderly people who will pay $17.90 a month next year for Part B coverage of doctors' bills.

But he called the proposed increase "a very cheap price to pay for the peace of mind of even those people."

About 800,000, or less than 5 percent of all Medicare beneficiaries, spend more than $2,000 a year for medical bills not picked up by the program.

The proposal, which will be reviewed by the Domestic Policy Council, is expected to be criticized by administration conservatives who argue the government would be creating a new entitlement program.

The premium hike proposed by Bowen would raise $1.77 billion each year to completely finance the hospital costs of Medicare beneficiaries who exhaust their Part A hospital coverage.

After Medicare patients pay $520 for the first day of hospitalization, Part A coverage pays all hospitalization costs through the 60th day. After that Medicare pays a declining percentage of the costs until the 90th day of a hospital stay, when the patient pays all costs.

Under the proposal outlined by Bowen, a beneficiary would only be required to pay up to $2,000, including the 20 percent of doctor bills not covered by Part B. But Medicare beneficiaries would still have to pay for eyeglasses, prescription drugs and other expenses not covered by Medicare such as physician charges above what Medicare accepts as reasonable.

The plan would also limit the number of first-day hospital charges to two per year. Medicare would pay the first day of a third or any subsequent hospital admission in a given year.

The Individual Medical Account proposal outlined by Bowen would allow people to start putting up to $1,000 a year in a deferred-tax savings account.

Study shows doctors' blood pressure rises if income falls

The Associated Press

DALLAS — When doctors' average annual income declines, their blood pressure goes up and stays high for as long as five years.

That's according to a new study that shows it's not just poor people whose health is affected by economic status.

The finding, in a professional group with an average annual income of $108,000 in 1984, parallels findings previously made in blue-collar workers, said Robert Swank, an economist from Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore.

He presented his findings Thursday at the annual meeting of the American Heart Association.

"There are not many decreases in income among physicians, so their hypertension is fairly low," Swank said in an interview.

But the national average of doctors' incomes did decline in six separate years since World War II, he said.

For each 1 percent drop in income, the number of doctors with elevated blood pressure rose 2.5 percent the next year.

"The association is strong," Swank said.

He counted only those cases of high blood pressure serious enough to require medication.

Swank studied 1,130 white males who graduated from Johns Hopkins Medical School between 1948 and 1964, and compared their incidence of blood pressure with national figures on doctors' incomes.

The incidence of high blood pressure, or hypertension, went up in each of the six years that doctors' income declined, and it remained higher than normal for five years after the decline, Swank said.

He noted that some doctors developed higher blood pressure in difficult times even though their own incomes might not have declined.

Doctors are sensitive to the economic outlook for their profession, and they react with stress and high blood pressure whether or not they are personally affected, Swank said.

He said the incidence of high blood pressure was an indicator of other heart disease.

"High-blood pressure can also lead to other life-threatening cardiovascular diseases," he said. "Therefore the results suggest even more serious effects of economic stress on health."

Previous studies have found that the overall population and blue collar workers, in particular, suffer from poorer health during difficult economic times, Swank said.

"Some people believe that it's only poor people whose economic status affects their health," Swank said.

He has now shown that the same is true in an affluent group that has virtually no unemployment and presumably still has adequate access to medical care even when its income declines.

ings account after they reach the age of 65 or 70.
The principal and half the interest would be used to pay for nursing home care and the other half would go to pay for insurance coverage for such care.
"It has not been endorsed by anyone except me," said Bowser, who declined to speculate whether Reagan would support such a program. Medicare premiums would also be subject to approval by Congress, where Bowser said "there is intense interest" in proposals to relieve the financial burdens caused by catastrophic illness.

The proposal was attacked by a representative of private companies that sell so-called Medigap policies for expenses not covered by Medicare.
"The $4.92 a month is really just taking over what the private sector is already doing and it's not really creating any new benefit," said John B. O'Day, president of the Insurance Economic Society of America.
The proposal was halted by Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging.

"Secretary Bowen has shown great personal courage by issuing a major catastrophic health care proposal in spite of opposition from less far-sighted members of the administration," Roybal said.
Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., incoming chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, said, "After six years of Reagan administration cutbacks in health-care coverage for the elderly and the poor, Secretary Bowen deserves credit for recognizing the dimensions of the health-care crisis.

Iran

ly, Reagan was taking bipartisan criticism from Congress.
"The bottom line is that we should not even have a perception of trading arms for hostages," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. Dole said the policy was "a mistake" — echoing Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who declared Reagan "made a mistake and he ought to say so and get this behind him."
Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., went a step further in his criticism. "It's the end of the Reagan era," he said.
After meeting with Reagan, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, told reporters that the administration had not complied with several laws requiring that Congress be notified in a "timely" way of major transfers of arms.

"I think the law is unequivocal," said Wright, who is in line to become House speaker when the new Congress convenes in January. "The law commands (a) timely report (to Congress)."
Asked whether the president had been well advised by Attorney General Edwin Meese to delay in forming Congress, Wright said, "If the attorney general says to the president that he doesn't have to follow the law, that would have been very bad advice indeed."
But House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., who also attended the White House meeting, said there was a "gray area" involving requirements that Congress be notified.

The 1977 Arms Export Control Act requires notification of Congress of sales or transfers of major items of defense equipment worth more than $14 million. In addition, a 1983 amendment to the 1947 National Security Act permits covert actions but requires that they be reported to congressional leaders.
Wright, saying he had been briefed by a top White House aide, said Thursday the United States has shipped more than 2,000 anti-tank missiles and more than 200 anti-aircraft missiles to Iran, a figure higher than earlier published estimates.
Wright said that national security adviser Vice Adm. John Poindexter told him that the United States sent Iran 2,008 TOW missiles and 235 Hawk missiles.

Current formula may be kept

POCATELLO (AP) — The State Board of Education's finance committee appears to be leaning toward retaining its current formula for disbursing state money to the four tax-supported colleges for at least one more year before shifting to what many consider a more equitable system.
Although the board, meeting in Pocatello on Thursday, has been reviewing alternatives to the current formula that has sparked dissatisfaction among the schools in the past, member Diane Bilyeu said it was too close to the opening of the 1987 legislative session to adopt a completely new formula.

Machine tool restraint signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan has agreed to reduce exports of machine tools to the United States for five years in a "voluntary" restraint agreement signed by the two governments Thursday, the U.S. Commerce Department announced.
The level of the new ceiling was not disclosed. However, Donald Creed, a Commerce Department spokesman, estimated that the agreement would boost U.S. sales of domestic machine tools by about $1.5 billion during the five-year period.
The U.S. machine tool industry welcomed the agreement, saying it would roll back Japan's share of the U.S. market to about the 1981 level.

Plane crash kills Idaho pilot

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — A single-engine plane crashed shortly after Thursday on an airstrip at a ranger station in the Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness Area, killing the pilot and injuring a passenger, authorities said.
Idaho County Sheriff Randy Baldwin identified the dead pilot as Greg Hill of Grangeville. His passenger, Fred Schuch, also of Grangeville, was taken to St. Joseph's Regional Medical Center at Lewiston, where his condition was being evaluated in the early evening. Baldwin confirmed that Schuch was injured.

Air bag delay appears likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department has tentatively decided to allow automakers more time to equip cars with front-seat automatic passenger restraints as long as they put driver-side air bags in additional cars, government sources said Thursday.
The decision, which is expected to be announced today, suggests that "a several year extension" of the federal passive restraint deadline is necessary because of "technical, engineering and supplier... problems" in installing passive restraints that protect both the driver and front-seat passenger.

Hospital

personnel, credit and accounting from one hospital might easily perform those duties in both hospitals to avoid overlapping the services.
The Gooding County Hospital physical therapy, could also rotate between the hospitals so that their time is not wasted, he said.
"We don't risk the autonomy of a small hospital," said Hart, adding that the management company still responds to the concerns and orders of the hospital board.
Hart said Holy Cross manages hospitals in Cottonwood, McCall, Cascade and Mountain Home.
The Gooding County Hospital Board is searching for a course of action to replace its outgoing administrator, Duane Cutright, who leaves Dec. 31. Running both hospitals under a single administrator or administrative staff will be an option for the board to consider in deciding whether to merge services, Shraft said.
St. Benedict's Family Medical Center is conducting a survey Nov. 10-14 of 125 people in Gooding County about their medical preferences. The questionnaire appeared to focus on the common, or overlapping, market between Gooding and St. Benedict's for medical care.
About half of the respondents said they frequented Gooding Hospital. St. Benedict's was favored by about one-third of the people. Further, if Gooding Hospital were closed for inpatient or outpatient care, about half of those responding said they would turn to St. Benedict's for medical care.
St. Benedict's management company also submitted proposals to the Hospital Board on ways the medical centers could work together to cut overhead and, thus, improve each other's profits.
Shraft declined to release those proposals Thursday, because he wanted to ensure that an independent report was submitted by Holy Cross.
"If they made a proposal to combine services and save (Gooding Hospital) $27,000 a month," Shraft said.

'Secret room' will be opened

POCATELLO (AP) — Barring last-minute legal obstacles, any secrets contained in the Standrod House's "secret room" and its mysterious box may be revealed, Pocatello's Historic Preservation Commission says.

However, reporters and cameras may be excluded to keep the opening from becoming a "media event and circus," said commission member Ron Hazenbuehler.

A legal opinion is expected by Monday whether the commission has authority to enter a sealed room and mysterious box which have plagued the curiosity of Pocatello residents.

The decision to tear into the stone and mortar wall located in the basement of the historic Standrod House came over objections from commission members Dick Carroll and Leo Aiken.

Benefit delays may hit court

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Idaho Legal Aid attorneys have put the state Department of Health and Welfare on notice that they will go to court next week if computer problems delaying benefits for hundreds of needy Idahoans are not cleared up before then.

Legal Aid attorneys met with state officials earlier this week on the problems that significantly delayed benefits for as many as 2,000 people at its peak, spokesman Alan Wasserman said Thursday.

"We try to assure you that things would be taken care of by Friday," Wasserman said. "As far as we can tell, there are still a lot of people without benefits, and we don't know what other recourse we have" than going to court.

"At this point we are planning on filing the lawsuit Monday unless there is some dramatic change," he said.

Trials set in murder case

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Trials have been scheduled here for next month for two Port Hall men accused of killing a Pocatello man last spring.

Seventh District Judge Arnold Beebe set trial for Dec. 2 Levester Eagle, 26. On Dec. 10, trial is scheduled to begin for Tyrone Edmo, 21.

Both have been held without bond in Blackfoot since being charged with the murder of Delbert McCoy, 18, last May. His body was found in a concrete spillway of the equalizing reservoir east of Blackfoot.

Beebe earlier denied a motion to set bail for Eagle.

GOP to keep eye on Stallings

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Democrat Rep. Richard Stallings has just been elected to his second term in Congress, but Republicans say they are going to closely watch on his votes the next two years.

"I think we were a little too kind to him in his first term," said Sheila Olsen, who conducted a panel discussion about the recent election here Wednesday.

Mrs. Olsen said Republicans will start immediately watching Stallings' votes and contrasting them with those of Republican Rep. Larry Craig in Idaho's 1st District. "We're gearing up for two years from now," she said.

Sustain sentence, court asked

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals has been urged to sustain the sentence of up to 10 years in prison for an Idaho woman who admitted dragging her boy friend to death with her automobile.

Verna Simons, 46, was ordered to serve up to 10 years in prison after she pleaded guilty to a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Investigating officers said the woman's boyfriend, J.D. Jamison, apparently became caught by the hand in the window of the woman's car, and died when he was dragged about eight miles dangling on the outside of the car.

Mrs. Simons was charged with second-degree murder, but pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter under a plea-bargain agreement.

Grazing fees to rise, BLM head warns

BOISE (AP) — Bureau of Land Management Director Robert Burford is warning Idaho cattlemen to brace for a substantial increase in federal land grazing fees and the possibility of a significant increase in the wilderness in the state once the new Congress convenes.

"A lot of uncertainty exists with the changeover in the Senate," Burford told the cattlemen at their annual meeting in Boise on Thursday.

"Where this new leadership will take us remains anyone's guess. However, it's likely we'll undergo a renewed focus on grazing fees and other public rangeland issues, wilderness bills and coal and oil and gas legislation."

Although the committees are still in the midst of realignment because of retirements in the House and the Democratic takeover of the Senate, Burford said it appeared likely that Sen. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana would replace Idaho Republican Sen. James McClure as chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee with either Montana's John Melcher or Arkansas' Dale Bumpers assuming control of the critical public lands subcommittee from Wyoming Republican Malcolm Wallop.

"We'll not get the Western welcome from either one that we got from Sen. Wallop," Burford said. "They have a different outlook... I personally feel the loss of Jim McClure as committee chairman because he's been an effective force in protecting me from personal attack and the interests of the West."

On the House Interior Committee, he said it appeared likely that either Bruce Vento of Minnesota or George Miller of California would replace the retiring John Selberling of Ohio as public lands subcommittee chairman, offering little change in what he views as a relatively hostile Western philosophy.

Almost immediately, he said, legislation to raise the federal grazing fee will be introduced. Burford predicted that while not inevitable he believed the votes would be garnered in the next few years to approve a fee increase along the lines contemplated last year by Selberling.

That proposal, although never formally introduced, would have boosted the current fee of less than $1.40 a month per unit to about $2 gradually rising to about $3.50 over the following five years. It would also earmark additional money for wildlife and riparian programs.

On the wilderness issue, which has stirred major controversy in Idaho where over 4 million acres have already been preserved, Burford ticked off a series of instances where Congress has approved new wilderness areas over the objections of the local congressmen and in the process locked up valuable mineral and other resources.

State housing agency offers financing plan

POCATELLO (AP) — In an attempt to spur Idaho's lagging housing economy, the state Housing Agency is initiating an innovative financing plan that could give potential homebuyers the additional cash they need to purchase a house.

"Through it, the homebuyer can reduce the amount of federal income tax paid and increase his household's disposable income, therefore making a home purchase more affordable," said Idaho Housing Agency Director A. Robert Kucab.

The so-called mortgage credit certificate program, being used as an alternative to the agency's traditional bond financing plan, is expected to begin in about three weeks and run into next spring.

Kucab said he hoped it would increase home purchases by as many as 1,000 over that period.

Under the credit certificate program, authorized by the new federal tax act and in use in several other states, income-qualified households can receive a direct dollar-for-dollar federal income tax credit on 20 percent of their annual mortgage interest payment. The remaining 80 percent of the interest would still be deductible in calculating taxable federal income.

For example, the regular federal tax savings under the new tax bill on the interest deductions from a 30-year, $50,000 mortgage at 10 percent would be about $300, but under the credit certificate program the savings would be nearly $1,600. That would amount to $70 a month a family could commit to a house payment instead of taxes.

"It's a matter of economics. Income not sent to Washington in the form of federal taxes will be spent here in Idaho. We think that's important," Kucab said.

The agency's last low-interest mortgage loans were issued in the fall of 1985 at 9.65 percent interest. It has been unable to provide similar funding this past year because of impending federal tax reform legislation that threw up obstacles for bond-financed programs of any type.

In addition, Kucab said, the nationwide mortgage rate averages 9.5 percent, making it difficult to sell a bond issue and develop a mortgage rate substantially below that.

Reagan a symbol, not a role model

President Reagan's waffling over the trading of arms to Iran for hostages has created the kind-of stir Washington loves.

Government officials, former and current members of Congress as well as the media have all joined in what has clearly been the best chance yet for Reagan-bashing.

But, we predict, the president will escape from this brush with the "Velcro" as easily as he has in the past.

The reason is that, for all his mistakes and obvious ineptitude, Reagan occupies a unique place in the presidency: he is a symbol, not a role model.

We simply don't expect him to actually make the presidency work; it is enough that he symbolize the office.

Some cracks may appear now in this image. The Reagan who attacked the press at his news conference Wednesday for "publicity" over the Iran arms sales was a defensive, almost petulant man.

Not many people, we suspect, believed him a week ago when he claimed there was no link of the arms sales to hostage releases, and not many will believe him now.

But in the long-term way of how his presidency is judged, the event remains a minor one. Reagan began as an image president. He brought that ability to the job, straight from television.

He has always been unprepared and ill-informed when it comes to the specifics of the job, preferring to leave the "details" to others.

Sometimes those details are not so minor. Has a law been broken? Shucks no, he shrugs. Are we hypocrites for negotiating with terrorists? Heck no, he says.

Like every president before him, Reagan has learned that the things one says in a campaign are not the same as what one does when one is president. Ideology is not really very important. If we have to negotiate with terrorists to free our hostages, well, so be it.

Yes, he has not told the truth about negotiating with Iran. But we would guess that a huge proportion of the American people recognize Reagan's good intention in this regard and will not hold him accountable for whatever mistakes he has made by talking to the Iranians.

Think of Reagan's years as parenting

BOSTON — I was never keen on the description of the Reagan Years as a Teflon presidency.

When historians go searching for a label to mark the first six years of this administration, they won't find it in cookware. It's in that other domestic art: parenting. The 1980s will go down as nothing less than the era of the Permissive Presidency.

How often did Ronald Reagan warn us about the evils of the permissive society? "No rules, no brakes, no discipline, anything goes. It turns out the man was absolutely right. Throughout his formative early years as President, Ronald Reagan was a hapless victim of a politically permissive upbringing.

Consider the words of no less an authority on child-raising than Dr. Spock. Unfairly accused of being pediatrician to a permissive generation, the doctor himself warns: "A child like an adult, the child is getting away with too much naughtiness. . . . If she isn't corrected, she's likely to behave worse and worse. It's as if she were saying, 'How bad do I have to be before somebody stops me?'"

Does he have to be shipping arms to the ayatollah?

Apparently, it took the Iranian arms deal to get the American people to finally say "no" to their favorite son.

For the first time, the overwhelming majority of Americans in this week's Los Angeles Times poll said they didn't believe the President when he denied trading arms for hostages.

In the United States, people are supposed to be custodians of the ward called democracy. But they've been unwilling to hold the President they love accountable for his actions.

Maybe there was a little bit of leading here, a bit of diplomatically lying there, gun-running in Nicaragua, disinformation in Libya, tale-telling over the KAL 007, disorder in Reykjavik. We allowed an escalating series of events to be treated as if they were well-meaning acts or "mispeaks." Merely a stage he was going through.

Many chose to trust Ron rather than the evidence or, certainly, the evidence-bearers. Of course, the more we allowed his dubious behavior, the more the boundaries were pushed. It's textbook stuff. What do the child psychologists call it? Testing.

The final test came when the man who promised he would never deal with terrorists got caught dealing and he couldn't charm his way out of it.

From my vantage point, permissiveness — either in the body politic or in parenting — bears a strong resemblance to another P-word in the caseworks: passiveness.

Parents who prematurely resign as family rulemakers often delude themselves with the idea that their offspring are old enough to take care of themselves without "a watchdog."

It's the same with permissive politics. The eagerness to totally trust the President to ignore any early warnings signs, any notices that get sent home, allows us to go about our lives without paying attention. We actively want to be able to leave our public wards on their own.

In all this, there is yet another P-word: powerlessness. The most permissive parents or citizens I know are people who don't believe in their ability to have an impact, to effect change when things or people go awry. They go through Parent Ineffectiveness Training.

But what happens when the misbehavior keeps escalating? Let me return to Dr. Spock: "Eventually (this) behavior becomes so provoking that the parents' patience snaps."

How do you prevent this generation from falling back into our permissive ways. There's a new and trendier way for raising politicians these days. They call it "tough love."

The sad electoral truth is that negative campaigns work

If there was a theme to this year's midterm elections, it was that any substantive messages were drowned out by the relentlessly negative tone of campaigns on both sides, for all offices, across the country. We had candidates excoriated for missing votes — not showing up for work, that is — for voting against God, motherhood, apple pie and fiscal security, for being chronic grunks, embezzling funds, not filing income tax returns, and for being anti-male (read, lesbian) or homosexual pedophile.

Voters, reporters, political pros and editorial writers are all understandably appalled by this. But it is important to put the negative campaigning into the proper perspective — we won't find any way to change the tone of campaigning otherwise. Basically, there are several axioms that must be stated first:

• Negative campaigns are not new. It will not make anybody feel any better, but the fact is that there is a 150- or 200-year tradition of negative campaigning in American politics, and it has often been as gamy as it was this year.

Norman J. Ornstein

Sexual peccadilloes, drinking habits and other personal characteristics have been rated before. We have seen records grossly misrepresented, candidate intelligence impugned, candidate personal characteristics such as weight or amount of hair ridiculed. So what is new now?

The basic difference is television. When charges are raised in a flood of 30-second spots over and over, saturating the airwaves, and when the spots themselves became the major focus of the news coverage on television and in the print press, both the reach and the penetration of the negative messages expand enormously.

And this campaign year, in small states and large, from the Dakotas to California, the campaigns have been television wars. Retail campaigning — rallies, face-to-face encounters — has been pushed so far into the background that it is barely visible. And the TV messages are graphically negative.

Negative campaigns work. This, unfortunately, may be the key axiom. Politicians are not naturally vicious, vengeful and low self-esteem or somebody, they will use what works and discard what flops. And no pious candidate who pledges to avoid negative campaigns will do so if he or she thinks that this decision will cost the election. The sad reality is that candidates turned negative this year because negative works — the public responds. And where negative doesn't work — as in, for example, the Vermont Senate race, where attacks on incumbent Sen. Patrick Leahy boomeranged on the attacker, former Gov. Richard Snelling, they were promptly dropped.

Negative ads fill a vacuum. We saw more negative ads this year because there were no dominant issues that truly had a grip on the public.

If there are no issues to dominate, candidate personalities dominate. Why, then, don't candidates simply accentuate their own positive personalities and characters? The answer is that often the only way for a challenger to differentiate himself or herself from the current officeholder is to make negative comparisons. Incumbents have in turn learned, through bitter experience, that ignoring attacks can be fatal. Thus, attack breeds counterattack.

There are a few things that could be done to dampen the negative trend in campaigns, but precious few. Disillusioned pollster and media expert Charles Guggenheim has suggested, creatively, that we eliminate 15- and 30-second spots on television and make the minimum political commercial two minutes — that in two minutes one either has to be positive or provide ample evidence for a negative charge.

While the suggestion is creative, it is also questionable.

Any move by government to regulate advertising in campaigns could easily set a precedent for more government involvement than a free election-based democracy would want. Probably the best hope is that reporters, especially television reporters, become more aggressive in uncovering, highlighting and pinpointing dubious and scurrilous claims. We cannot rely on claim and counterclaim to force out the truth — at least not before an election.

Unfortunately, we are basically going to have to hope that issues arise that crowd out negative campaigns; that voters get so turned off by the attacks that they start to backfire; that we find ample examples where negative campaigns don't work, and that the campaign experts start to use other techniques.

But these developments will not come soon. If they come at all. That negative campaigns are traditional American politics, that they are used because they work and because there are no big issues to make them unnecessary may come as scant comfort to a turned-off electorate. But there is little additional comfort out there to provide.

Letters/Missive focuses on debate over funding a new county jail

To: Judy Felton, Twin Falls County Commissioner

You may have been surprised by my recent remarks, but I was simply flabbergasted that your personal letter to me was printed in the paper (Nov. 16) six days after I received it in the mail.

In your letter you note that a vicious public battle is not needed and a public response to my remarks was "degrading." Obviously that was a prerogative upon which I should not have relied. I must be forced to answer you publicly.

Either you or someone in your office leaked the letter to The Times-News and went to the considerable effort to see that many people in the community were furnished with copies. Were the copies sent postage at county expense? I guess you can't be held responsible for keeping your private correspondence confidential?

Congratulations. You indicate what I already knew, that you and your fellow commissioners have been trying to build a new and magnificent jail.

It is possible you and the other commissioners quickly agreed to an out-of-court settlement with county inmates last spring, to force the issue of a new jail.

You and your two colleagues were elected to stand up for the taxpayers' rights. You chose instead to roll-over and play dead, surrendering to inmates who were already perpetrated crimes against county citizens. We simply have got to have county officials who will say No. No. No. If the board does not have the spine to do that, voters must say so.

Last spring I moved to Twin Falls County from Ada County. But, I have carefully followed the board of county commissioners' for four years. Because I changed neighborhoods doesn't mean I don't have a right to express my opinion regarding obvious county operation errors.

Please do not forget another ridiculous jail bond scam upon the voters.

We need a jail — but we don't need a "Holiday Inmate Hotel."

Please show restraint with public monies and cutback your bond expectations. If you can't do that, maybe you should follow your acknowledged temptation to "turn and walk away," joining Tip O'Neill in retirement. And please stop telling everyone that I'm "after your job." I'm sure we can find another conservative besides me to take your job.

DOUG MCCONNAUGHEY
Twin Falls
Editor's note: Mr. McConnaughey is in correct as to the source of Commissioner Felton's letter.

The Times-News (11-15-88) "audio and visual observation equipment, located in the juvenile detention area were operating correctly on the day a youth hung himself in the Minidoka County Youth Facility."

Deputy Jailer, Milton Davidson writes a letter to the editor in Nov. 19, 1986 Times-News, stating "the young man that hung himself in the Minidoka County Jail had 24 hour supervision."

Now let me get this straight. We are assured that the audio visual observation equipment was working and there was 24 hour supervision. This would indicate to me that the monitor was not being watched when Jamie Blunt hung himself or the Jailer just sat and watched him do it. And the person in charge of the "24 hour supervision" must have also just stood by and watched Jamie Blunt hang himself and then called for help.

Something seems to be amiss in these stories.

Gooding tourism needs push

I'm always trying to find a way to get the attention of tourists to our men and women Gooding County to recognize the value of our location to our county.

One location of great importance, economically to Gooding County, is Malad

George State Park. Dennis Coyle, manager, reports that the park had over 24,000 visitors this past summer (6 months — $8,000 in July). State Travel Bureau reported the average tourist spends $100 to $115. At a five percent tax potential income to state is over $120,000.

Did Bliss, Gooding, Wendell and Hagerman get their share? I doubt that. How would that tourist know that just north of Gooding are two "City of Rocks?" or that there are magnificent caves near-by? How would that tourist know that Niagara Springs ("a national natural landmark") is just nine miles south of Wendell?

Attractive signs are needed to get that tourist off the freeway — a stop for gas, tires, coffee, meals, fishing gear, pharmaceuticals, clothing, groceries, bars, you name it.

A rise in property values will occur when the tourist returns to live. To top the above, would you believe that Niagara Springs had over 78,000 visitors this summer? Figure that out, at a five percent tax, and smile. Bull! Others? Call me if you agree our chamber of commerce should be talking together.

Use of the media excessive

To all Idaho politicians:
O.K. people, it's over — win, lose, or draw,

The people of this state should get together and see that this cost of reaching an elected office should be reduced. Also that excessive ads be charged and time before election to office be reduced to an amount that controls this cost.

Byrd, Dole exchange offices in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats, flexing their new political muscle, reinstated Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia as majority leader Thursday and Republicans picked Bob Dole of Kansas as minority leader for the 100th Congress which convenes Jan. 6.

That reverses the roles Byrd and Dole played in the 99th Congress and reflects the outcome of the Nov. 4 elections, which ended six years of GOP control in the Senate.

"We are in the majority and we are ready to do business," said Byrd, who has led Senate Democrats since 1977. He is returning to the majority position he held until 1980.

With each party's choices for its leadership posts all but settled in advance, there was no suspense as the U.S. upper Democrats and 45 Republicans met privately in different rooms near the Senate chamber.

On Thursday night the Republicans put on their biennial celebration of gaining the Senate majority in 1980. A GOP aide said the party this year — including an appearance by President Reagan — would be more "a black tie gala."

In remarks prepared for the dinner, Reagan consoled Republican senators who fell to Democrats in the election, saying, "Each of you has my thanks and that of your colleagues. But more important, you have the gratitude of the nation."

He added, "Yet, no two ways about it, the outcome of the Senate races was a disappointment. We're in a minority again in the United States Senate — but we've been there before and know what must be done."

"As Everett Dirksen, a great Republican leader, said, 'We must stand up and be counted in our generation.'"

Reagan said the Senate's shift of power "may make our task more difficult." However, he insisted that the Senate vote, "contrary to what our opponents have been saying, reflected a continued evolution in our direction."

The party caucuses Thursday were overshadowed by the controversy over Reagan's secret arms sales to Iran and his explanation of the action.

After his re-election, Dole had virtually no comment about his own contest as reporters pressed him instead on the administration's dealings with Iran.

Dole said the administration should admit it was "a mistake," adding, "I think we ought to move on to something else."

"The credibility of this administration and the nation has been greatly impaired by this action," Byrd said, adding, "The American people are tired of excuses. They want to know what the facts are. Meanwhile, the feisty Democrats served notice they intend to put together a comprehensive agenda of domestic and foreign policy issues to try to capture the legislative initiative from the White House early next year."

"We are not going to wait three weeks in the presidential waiting room. The president has his timetable, we have ours," Byrd said. "We're going to send to the American people a signal that it is no longer business as usual."

Byrd called on the administration to send its fiscal 1982 budget to Congress on Jan. 5, as required by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law. However, administration officials have said the spending proposal may not be ready until early February.

Byrd also said the Senate will be working in early January, instead of taking a recess that had been expected to last until the late that month.

Along with Byrd, who also was celebrating his 69th birthday, the Democrats re-elected their top leaders from the last Congress, including Alan Cranston of California as assistant majority leader and Daniel Inouye of Hawaii as chairman of the Senate Democratic caucus, the formal organization of Senate Democrats.

The Democrats also elected 85-year-old John C. Stennis of Mississippi, the oldest member of the Senate, to the largely ceremonial post of president pro tempore.

In addition to Dole, who will be facing his first Congress as minority leader, the Republicans re-elected their entire leadership team, including Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming as assistant majority leader and John H. Chafee of Rhode Island as Republican Conference chairman.

The Republicans also appointed Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota as chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, and he vowed to work to regain Republican control of the Senate, while conducting campaigns in a positive way.

'Dallas' star asks for bit of privacy

BOULDER, Mont. (AP) — Boulder, but probably not much more than a couple of days. Lorimar's fans Thursday for their concern and love but asked for privacy as he and relatives mourn his slain parents.

A statement from the actor, who plays Bobby Ewing on the popular CBS television series, was read to reporters outside the sheriff's office in Boulder on Thursday, a few blocks from the bar where Terrence and Marie Duffy were gunned down Tuesday night.

"Up until now, I never fully appreciated the loyalty and depth of concern my fans all over the world had for me and the character I portray," Duffy said in the statement.

"To those who have voiced this concern, I want to thank them for their love and for understanding my family's need for privacy at this time," he said.

He remained in seclusion with his wife, Charlyn, and sister, Seale. Police Lt. Joanne Hunt, frustrating photographers from as far away as West Germany who roamed the main street of the town of 1,500 looking for him.

In the statement read by Bob Crutchfield, a spokesman for the producers of "Dallas," Duffy and his sister said:

"One of the most difficult things has been our inability — due to the tremendous media coverage — to personally be with those people who loved our parents and whom we love," they said. "Hopefully, as time passes, we will be able to contact these friends."

At the request of his parents, no funeral or memorial service will be held, and their bodies will be cremated, said Crutchfield, a spokesman for Lorimar-Telepictures.

Crutchfield said he did not know how long Duffy would remain in Station reassigns reporter for query

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio Marti, the U.S. government station that broadcasts news to Cuba, reassigns its White House correspondent Thursday for violating an agency policy by questioning President Reagan at his news conference Wednesday night.

Voice of America director Richard W. Carlson said the reporter, Annette Lopez-Munos, broke a rule dictated by U.S. Information Agency Director Charles Z. Wick that reporters who work for VOA and its station to Cuba, Radio Marti, not seek to question the president at formal news conferences.

USIA is the parent agency for the radio operations.

Appearing on the Cable News Network, Miss Lopez-Munos said she was unaware of the rule.

Carlson told reporters at a news conference that she had been reminded of the prohibition on Tuesday. And the president of the White House Correspondents Association said Miss Lopez-Munos had asked the group to reverse the policy.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said "Our rule is that, as far as the White House is concerned, all briefings and all press conferences are open to all legitimate news organizations and we have no bar against anyone asking questions."

White House deputy press secretary Dan Howard said "The White House has no set policy with regard to whether or not U.S. government news people may ask questions at presidential press conferences."

FBI wants to question man about bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI said the explosion Monday of a woman injured by a day may be the second attempt on booby-trapped bouquet returned Melani Pilaski's life by her estranged Thursday to San Francisco, where her husband's reputed homosexual FBI agents want to question him, lover.

According to an FBI affidavit, Peter Pilaski, whose wife Mrs. Pilaski, one of two women reportedly believes he is behind the bombing, informed the FBI through descriptions of the FBI through an intermediary that he had returned bombing, even though another man died from his native West Germany, has been charged.

The affidavit said Mrs. Pilaski obtained a restraining order last month because her husband had physically and verbally assaulted her on numerous occasions. The couple is in the midst of a bitter divorce and had been quarreling over money, relatives said.

Shawn Jerome Small, 27, was arrested Wednesday on three felony counts for allegedly building a small pipe bomb and delivering it to Mrs. Pilaski's office in a basket of dried flowers.

A law enforcement source said Pilaski would meet with investigators today.

His attorney, John Mueller, said Pilaski had been on vacation in West Germany since Nov. 7.

FAA orders airliner wing inspections

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration ordered airlines Thursday to inspect nearly 100 Lockheed L-1011 jetliners for possible cracking in the wing after a fracture was found in one of the Delta Air Lines wide-body jets.

The FAA action was taken after the National Transportation Safety Board, investigating the Delta incident, raised concern about possible metal fatigue in the wing support beams of the L-1011 jets and urged an "immediate inspection" of the planes.

The FAA directive requires inspection within 60 flying hours, or about a week, of the wing supports, or spars, on the wide-body jets if they have had at least 10,000 takeoffs and landings, said agency spokesman Fred Farrar. There are about 112 of the Lockheed L-1011s being flown by U.S. airlines and almost all of them are owned by Delta, Eastern Airlines and Trans World Airlines. At least 93 of the planes would likely fall under the inspection provision, officials said.

Farrar and airline industry representatives said the inspections are likely to have little impact on airline flights. Spokesmen for Delta and Eastern have said that the required inspections have been completed or are underway. A TWA spokesman said its inspections would begin late Thursday or early Friday.

The NTSB, meanwhile, was to conduct mechanical tests on the wing support of the Delta plane in hopes of determining what caused the crack, according to safety board sources, who spoke on the condition they not be identified by name.

The Delta jet, Flight 194, was landing at the Newark International Airport on Aug. 13 when the airport tower informed the crew smoke was coming from the right wing landing gear area. All of the crew and passengers left the plane safely.

But upon inspection, the crew found the smoke actually was fuel vapors and that fuel was leaking from the right wing tank, according to the safety board. NTSB investigators later found the crack in the rear support beam near the fuel tank inlet valve as well as "substantial damage"

Veracity in doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans think President Reagan's assertion that the secret arms sales to Iran were not part of a deal to trade arms for hostages.

Most of those interviewed said they didn't believe Reagan's assertion that the secret arms sales to Iran were not part of a deal to trade arms for hostages.

The sample of 500 people picked at random and interviewed by telephone after Reagan's nationally televised news conference Wednesday showed that 59 percent thought Reagan has not told the truth about the operation. The same percentage disapproved of the way he has handled relations with Iran.

Most said they did not approve of such a deal. And a majority of those interviewed said they believe Reagan has been negotiating with terrorists, contrary to his statement, that he has not.

Still, 62 percent said they trusted Reagan to make "the right decisions when it comes to what the United States should do in world affairs."

Training of Contras under way

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, as part of its effort to get aid to the Nicaraguan guerrillas, began military training for a small group of Contras at an undisclosed location earlier this month, administration sources said Thursday.

The training began about two weeks ago inside the United States following the refusal of several nations that border Nicaragua to allow training camps inside their borders, the sources said.

The officials, who insisted on anonymity, said the training operation was being conducted under strict conditions of secrecy and that class sizes were being kept deliberately small.

In a related development, a Pentagon spokesman agreed Thursday that the United States had reason to suspect that a new, more powerful type of air-defense missile had been provided to Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government by the Soviet Union.

The Associated Press reported on Tuesday that, based on intelligence assessments, SA-14 ground-to-air missiles had been delivered to Nicaragua. The sources said the new shoulder-fired missiles would further complicate attempts to resupply Contra guerrillas by air.

Spokesman Bob Sims said he was not in a position to "conclusively confirm" the delivery of SA-14s, "but there are indications of that."

Sims refused to discuss the issue of Contra training, noting only that Congress had approved the resumption of training and arms shipments by passing a $100 million aid package sought by President Reagan.

The administration sources also declined to disclose the location of the training site or discuss specifics of the training.

One official agreed that it was "fair to assume" the Contra guerrillas were receiving instruction in the use of specific weapons as well as on war-lighting tactics and leadership. But this source added that this did not mean U.S. military personnel were dispensing the training.

The instructors could just as easily be drawn from outside contractors or the Central Intelligence Agency, the official said.

Nicaraguan, Hasenfus kin discuss case

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Nicaraguan Vice President Sergio Ramirez met Thursday with relatives of Eugene Hasenfus, the mercenary shot down in that country, but said he could not promise that Hasenfus would be home for Christmas.

However, Hasenfus' pardon is "an open possibility," said Ramirez, and family members said they were encouraged by their brief meeting at a Catholic center on the University of Wisconsin-Madison campus.

"It went very well. We were received very warmly by the vice president," said Sandie Coppens, Hasenfus' sister.

Sylvia Hofherr, Hasenfus' sister-in-law, and Jack Hasenfus, his cousin, also sat in.

"I explained to them that we don't have any hate for Mr. Hasenfus nor for his family," Ramirez told a news conference at the state Capitol. "It is not a personal case against Mr. Hasenfus."

Ramirez said he told members of Hasenfus' family of the suffering caused by the U.S.-supported war in Nicaragua and invited them to the country to see for themselves.

Earlier, at an airport news conference, Ramirez had nodded his head when asked whether a pardon of Hasenfus was likely, but he also used the word possible to describe the chances.

"Possible; likely," Ramirez replied when asked if he really meant the latter.

Ramirez, who was traveling with Nicaraguan Ambassador to the United States Carlos Tunnermann and met briefly with Gov. Anthony Earl, said his government is giving serious consideration to the case because of the relationship between Wisconsin and Nicaragua.

UN condemns U.S. for attack

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly voted 79-28 on Thursday to condemn the United States for its bombing raids on Libya in April. There were 33 abstentions.

The resolution was sponsored by 27 countries, mostly Arab and Soviet bloc states. It was opposed by the United States, most of its Western allies, Japan, Israel and a few Third World nations. NATO members Greece and Turkey abstained.

The non-binding resolution said the raids violated international law, called on the United States to refrain from threatening or attacking Libya again and said Libya was entitled to compensation for the "material and human losses inflicted upon it."

In April, Libya had asked the 15-member U.N. Security Council to condemn the raids, but the measure was killed by veto from the United States, Britain and France.

A condemnation by the Security Council would have carried more political weight than one by the General Assembly.

Irene Payne, spokeswoman for the U.S. mission to the United Nations, said the resolution passed Thursday "failed to address the central issue of importance, which is Libyan terrorism."

She said the fact that only half of the 158 voting members of the General Assembly supported the measure "illustrated the view that it was an unnecessary resolution."

Couples must decide family size, pope says

SINGAPORE (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Thursday told a crowd in Singapore, a country worried about a too-successful birth control program, that it is the exclusive right of married couples to decide, without governmental coercion, how many children to have.

The pope, on a 2-week trip through six Asian and Pacific nations, stayed only five hours in this Southeast Asian city-state and prosperous financial center.

About 100,000 of Singapore's 2.5 million citizens are Roman Catholics. Almost three-fourths of the population is of Chinese descent. Professions Buddhism, Confucianism or Taoism.

John Paul was seen off on an overnight flight to Fiji by Minister of Communications and Information Yeo Ning Hong.

The 65-year-old pontiff paid courtesy calls at the presidential palace on President Wee Kim Wee and Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew.

Without mentioning Singapore by name at a rain-drenched open air mass in the national stadium, John Paul said: "I wish to assure couples that the Church supports them as they strive to exercise responsibly their fundamental right to form families, to bear and rear their children without any form of coercion or pressure.

"It is the right of the married couple to make a free, informed and mutual decision, in accordance with accepted moral principles, regarding the spacing of births and the size of the family," he said.

About 200 people attended the Mass, the highlight of the first papal visit to the tiny island republic. Most were drenched when a violent thunderstorm broke as the pope arrived.

"When I was young I loved water sports," John Paul said in impromptu remarks thanking the crowd for remaining through the deluge. A rainbow appeared as he gave attention to the disabled and elderly confined to wheelchairs.

The crowd chanted "Viva, Viva, Viva" and then sang the hymn "We stand for God as the pope, after Mass, rode around the stadium in an open car."

Worried that it could not support a population much larger than 3.5 million because of its lack of natural resources, Singapore launched a "Two is enough" drive in 1966. Parents who had three or more children were hit with "disincentives" that included higher material charges and other financial penalties.

Israel would welcome U.S.-Tehran warmup

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Thursday he would welcome warmer U.S.-Iranian relations, but he refused to say whether Israel had helped its ally by shipping arms to Iran.

Shamir also said Israel was concerned about the persecution of the estimated 30,000 Jews in Iran.

"We are looking all the time for means to help our brethren there," Shamir said, answering questions at a luncheon of the Foreign Press Association.

Although Iran is openly hostile to Israel and supports anti-Israeli militias in Lebanon, Shamir said better ties between the United States and Iran would be beneficial.

"It will contribute to the improvement of the atmosphere in our area, and it's not a secret that we are interested, as allies of the United States, in the strengthening of the United States' positions in this area," he said.

Shamir fended off a barrage of questions about reports that Israel had served as a conduit for U.S. arms shipments to Iran.

"I can only say that it is not our policy to sell arms to Iran," he said. Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin hinted last week that Israel had been involved in the Reagan administration's secret dealings with Tehran.

Without identifying countries, Rabin said that "if a very friendly nation turns to us with certain requests in order to help it free hostages, we will help it one way or another."

President Reagan has said he authorized an arms shipment in a bid to improve relations with Iranian moderates. He maintained the weapons were not ransom for American hostages held in Lebanon by underground groups loyal to Iran.

The White House confirmed Wednesday that an unidentified third country was "involved in our secret project with Iran."

Israel had close but discreet ties with the late Shah, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, trading arms for oil. Contacts were reduced but not severed after fundamentalist Shiites overthrew the Shah in 1979.

One reason for maintaining ties with Tehran was to help protect the remnants of the Jewish community, which dwindled from 80,000 before 1979 to less than 30,000.

He declined to say what action Israel was taking or if it was involved in helping Jews leave.

Enrile comes under fire during funeral

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — More than 100,000 people joined the funeral procession of slain labor leader Rolando Enrile on Thursday in the biggest display by the police since a communist rebellion began 17 years ago.

At a stop about 500 yards from President Corason Aquino's office in Malacanang Palace, speakers urged him to use the left in confronting rightist challenges from Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and loyalists of former President Ferdinand E. Marcos, who fled the country last February.

Enrile, who also was defense minister under Marcos, has been outspoken in criticizing government policy. Rumors of coup plots by his supporters in the army have filled the city.

About 50,000 people followed a truck carrying the caskets of Enrile, 53, and his driver, Leonor Alayay, in a day-long procession that was largely peaceful. It wound for 12 miles from suburbs to the downtown district.

An equal number lined the route, many chanting "Revolutionary Revolution!" "Long Live the Communist Party of the Philippines!" and slogans demanding Enrile's ouster.

Riot police were deployed in the city but kept away from the procession.

Many people wore T-shirts bearing the hammer and sickle symbol of the party. Rumors of coup plots by his Philippines. Party pamphlets accusing Enrile of Olalla's murder circulated in the crowds.

Olalla, 53-year-old leader of the Partido ng Bayan (People's Party) and the militant May 1st Movement labor federation, and Alayay were kidnapped and murdered last week.

As the funeral formed after a Roman Catholic Mass in the University of the Philippines chapel, Mrs. Aquino told a business group her 6-month-old administration had "broadened the leeway for reasonable dissent" after 20 years of authoritarian rule by Marcos.

She added, however: "We cannot tolerate any plan to undermine the authority of the government and the stability of Philippines society."

The large funeral crowd heartened leftist leaders, but it also was expected to increase apprehension among conservatives and the military about the growing power of the left.

Olalla's political party and labor organization had called a general strike in Manila on Monday, but it had little effect.

Many of the people who turned out Thursday may have done so because of revulsion over the murders rather than in support of leftist causes.

Leftist leaders planned to meet on Friday to plan what Joe Castro, Manila area president of the People's Party, called "sustained protest" actions.

S. Koreans squabble over reports of death

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Opposition sources said the prime minister refused their demands Thursday that the government apologize to South Koreans after incorrectly reporting North Korean President Kim Il Sung had been killed.

Members of the governing Democratic Justice Party and the opposition New Korea Democratic Party began shouting at each other over the issue during a meeting of the National Assembly budget committee, according to sources in the opposition party and Korean reporters who were present.

Only accredited Korean media reporters are allowed to cover National Assembly proceedings.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Prime Minister Lho Shin-yong insisted North Korean loudspeakers along the demilitarized zone had reported Sunday that Kim was shot to death.

Defense Minister Lee Ki-baek said the broadcasts could not be recorded because the military lacked the necessary equipment, the sources said.

They quoted Lho as saying the incident a power struggle in the Communist north but now were viewed as a form of North Korean psychological warfare against South Korea.

The reports were shot down Tuesday when North Korean television distributed a film showing Kim welcoming a visiting delegation from Mongolia.

Opposition lawmakers have said publicly that the government's handling of the reports caused it to lose credibility and created unrest in South Korea. The opposition sources at the budget committee meeting said their side reiterated its criticism and demanded the government apologize to South Koreans.

The president of the New Korea Democratic Party, Lee Min-woo, has said the government should present recordings and photographs to bolster its account of the North Korean broadcasts and North Korean flags being flown at half-staff in the DMZ.

South Korea also claimed the loudspeakers reported at different times that Kim's 45-year-old son, Kim Jong Il, or the defense minister had taken over.

The pro-government Korea Herald said the affair was a "telling example of the Pyongyang regime is so absurd and unpredictable that it cannot be judged from standpoints of common sense and rationality."

"There is little doubt that something ominous has been brewing in recent weeks in North Korea," it said.

Moslem guerrilla positions overtaken

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Soviet and Afghan government troops captured a string of Moslem guerrilla positions near the Pakistani border after a week of bitter combat, guerrilla officials said Thursday.

The guerrilla spokesmen said their forces were trying to retake the positions.

Soviet and Afghan troops supported by tanks and artillery captured the guerrilla positions at the Kama Dhaka about five miles from the Pakistan border overnight, the officials said.

The positions had been under heavy air, artillery and rocket attack for a week, they said.

The guerrilla spokesmen said the defenders lacked heavy weapons.

Idaho charities get 1st 'Hands' funds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hands Across America has distributed the first funds from its transcontinental linking-of-hands, with $676,645 due to reach organizations in 15 states before Thanksgiving, officials announced Thursday.

"This is the turning on of the spigot of the Hands Across America money," said Ken Kragen, who organized the May 25 effort to raise money for the homeless.

The first 35 grants went to charity organizations in states that were authorized to receive less than $50,000 each, based on a formula of poverty levels and population in the states. Other states have been authorized to receive more.

The organizations are in Alaska, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Maine, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont and Wyoming.

Among the states, Alaska received $20,245; Delaware, $39,503; Hawaii, $30,267; Idaho, $50,312; Maine, $44,472; Montana, $40,754; Nebraska, $72,017; Nevada, $40,086; New Hampshire, $29,433; North Dakota, $34,025; Rhode Island, $29,638; South Dakota, $40,511; Utah, $61,170; Vermont, $19,314; and Wyoming, $24,904.

superstar charity anthem released in March 1985.

Typical was a $10,000 grant for Food Conservators of Wilmington, Del. It will use the money to buy equipment, make repairs and support the operation, which collects and distributes surplus food to more than 150 other agencies.

A $25,000 grant was made to finish renovation of a storefront space for the Greater Bangor Area Shelter of Bangor, Maine. There was $1,500 grant for the Chippewa Cree Tribe Meals on Wheels program in Montana, and $5,000 to Lucy's Hearth, a temporary shelter for homeless women and their children in Middletown, R.I.

Beard ordered removed

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Officials at Brigham Young University, which forbids students to wear beards, ordered an artist to redo a portrait so an early school president would sport only a moustache on the cover of the campus directory.

Artist Ron Bell said Thursday he was commissioned by the College of Student Life to paint an oil portrait of Karl G. Maeser, who became president of the Mormon Church-owned school, known then as Brigham Young Academy, in 1876.

But Bell said his first effort, based on a photograph of the bearded Maeser taken during his 16-year tenure, was rejected by school officials who said they didn't want today's students to believe they could follow suit.

BYU dress and grooming standards forbid beards, although students can wear moustaches, said R. Michael Whitaker, director of University Standards.

"I'm sure it would be found more appropriate to have Brother Maeser pictured with beard than without," Whitaker said. "The decision was made to use one without."

The no-beard policy has been challenged unsuccessfully in the past by students who argued that Brigham Young himself and other early church leaders wore beards.

Search of barrels lambasted

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Crews on Thursday began testing materials found in barrels discovered during a search for illegally stored toxic wastes at the closed Twin Buttes copper mine of Anamax Mining Co., and a company official blasted the "heavy-handed" nature of the search.

"They pulled out some drums yesterday and are pulling the tops off them today," said Julie Paterson, a spokeswoman with the state Attorney General's Office, which obtained a warrant to search the mine 20 miles south of here after an anonymous tipster alleged hazardous wastes were buried at the mine in May.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials were performing on-site tests of the material, which later was to be taken to Phoenix for more thorough tests, Ms. Paterson said. She said results might not be made public immediately because that could damage the investigation.

"The search began Wednesday morning when Pima County sheriff's deputies closed off the mine and clearing the officials moved in with backhoes to search for drums of toxic waste. The warrant had been issued after the tipster told state Rep. Larry Hawke, R-Tucson, about the alleged illegal dumping and Hawke told state officials.

Anamax general manager Rick Ramseler in a telephone interview Thursday accused the state Attorney General's Office of "heavy-handed" tactics in the search, officials with Ramseler said Anamax's lawyer was prevented by officials from entering company offices.

"I'm shocked by the allegations," Ramseler said. "I don't believe they're true. I don't know if this anonymous informer is a knock edgeball, or if he's angry or disgruntled."

Ramseler said Anamax officials were well aware of regulations governing the handling of hazardous materials used in mining operations, and he said the company would not save much money by burying wastes on its premises rather than hauling them to a dump.

The tipster had alleged the wastes were buried at the mine in May to save money.

Ramseler said drums of chemicals could have been moved around on the property during May, as workers sought to clean up the mining area.

Hawke said he saw officials locate barrels above ground Wednesday in what was believed to be a collection area.

"They were in various stages of corroding and oozing, the whole nine yards," Hawke said Thursday.

UFW leader visits Boise for two days

BOISE (AP) — United Farm Workers President Cesar Chavez will arrive in Boise on Saturday for a two-day visit, part of a 24-city tour to promote his union's fight against non-union grape growers in California.

In Boise, Chavez will address four demands the union has made of California growers, UFW spokesman Armando Garcia said. The California-based union since 1984 has boycotted grape products in that state produced by non-union growers.

The group's demands include free and fair elections to form unions at all farms and "good faith" bargaining between workers and management, Garcia said. Its main demand, however, is a ban on some pesticides that the UFW contends have been responsible for abnormalities in babies born to farm workers and a high incidence of cancer in communities near vineyards.

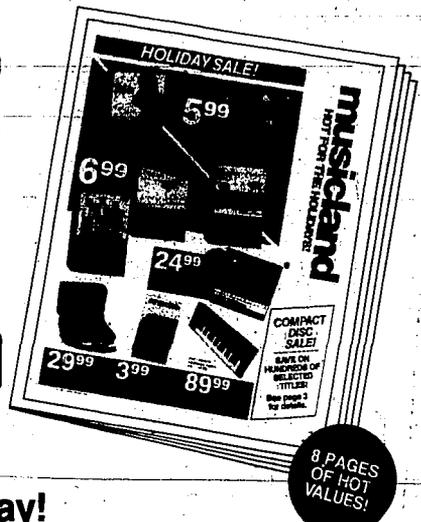

Consumers of grapes also are being exposed to the chemicals, Garcia said.

The Grape Workers and Farmers Coalition, based in Los Angeles, has opposed efforts to reform by the union. Chavez's tour represents an attempt to start a chemical scare as part of the union's boycott, coalition spokesman Adam Ortega said.

"The Environmental Protection Agency and the California Department of Agriculture have year after year certified that California grapes are clean and wholesome," Ortega said.

Monument to American crew brings memories in Poland

LOMIANKI, Poland (AP) — Villagers who witnessed the crash of an American airplane shot down by German artillery during World War II have fulfilled what they felt was an obligation and erected a monument to honor the crew.

The 9-foot-tall stone memorial, believed to be the first in Poland for American soldiers, was erected after a five-year campaign.

"They were young Americans trying to save our Poland," said Stanislaw Niegodzicz, who lives in a farmhouse about 200 yards from the crash site in Lomianki, six miles north of Warsaw.

"We want all of America to know what they did," he said.

The B-17, nicknamed "Til We Meet Again," was shot down Sept. 18, 1944, with 10 U.S. soldiers aboard. Two of them survived.

The plane was one of 107 American aircraft dropping supplies that day for Polish partisans fighting the Nazis in the Warsaw uprising. About 220,000 Poles were killed during the 63-day battle.

Standing outside the farmhouse recently, Niegodzicz's wife, Janina, reminisced about the day the plane was shot down.

"We thought it was the day of the liberation," she said. "There was a whole cloud of planes. It blocked out the sun."

The planes dropped arms, food and clothing for partisans in the nearby Kampinos forest. The Americans were unaware at the time that most of the partisans had already left the area. Most of the supplies fell into German hands.

Mrs. Niegodzicz, 76, said she saw thousands of parachutes carrying metal cylindrical supply containers floating to the ground. She said she noticed one of the planes losing altitude.

"I was standing there with my father," she said. "It was coming from the northeast, burning, losing parts that were falling to the ground."

She said she saw one airplane floating to the ground with its parachute, waving a white handkerchief at approaching German soldiers.

"A German went up to him and shot him with a pistol," Mrs. Niegodzicz said, pausing to brush back tears from the corners of her eyes. "I will never forget, to the day I die, the face of that young man, alive, so close to the ground, waving his handkerchief."

Two survivors — Sgt. Marcus L. Shook of Missouri and Sgt. James D. Christy — were taken captive by the Germans and returned to the United States after the war.

Mrs. Niegodzicz and other village residents buried the eight others in a common grave 50 yards from her house. In 1946, the bodies were transferred to the military cemetery in Warsaw and a year later returned to the United States.

Five years ago, residents first sought permission from government officials to erect the monument. The proposal came during the height of liberalizations spawned by the outlawed Solidarity free trade union movement.

The imposition of martial law later that year and the subsequent deterioration of U.S.-Polish relations temporarily put the plan on ice.

The government finally granted permission in the fall.

On Sept. 21, the monument was unveiled in a ceremony attended by villagers and veterans group. The monument is located in a small military-civilian cemetery about a mile from the crash site. Polish soldiers killed during the 1939 Nazi invasion also are buried there.

The names of all 10 crew members were inscribed on a brass plaque.

Killed in the crash were Lt. Francis Akina of Derry, Pa. (the pilot); Lt. Lt. Forrest D. Shaw of Exeter, N.H. (the co-pilot); 1st Lt. Ely Ebenerson of New Jersey (the navigator); and 1st Lt. Myron S. Merrill of New Jersey (the bombardier).

Also, gunner Sgt. Frank de Cilla of New Jersey; Sgt. George A. MacPhee of Massachusetts; Sgt. Walter P. Shimbach of Minneapolis, Minn.; and Sgt. Paul F. Haney of West Virginia.

At the top of the monument, the villagers wrote: "To the memory of the heroic crew that brought help to the Warsaw uprising in the plane of the U.S.A. Air Force B-17. 'Til we meet again.' Shot down Sept. 18, 1944, by German artillery." It is signed, "The People of Lomianki."

South only region with migratory gains

Migration trends no longer point West

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least three recent trends have been reversed, with the number of Americans moving to new homes jumping sharply as people headed back to metropolitan areas and halted their decades-old flow to the West, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

"The South now stands as the only region of the country experiencing population growth through migration from other regions," marking the first time in years that the West hasn't been importing residents from other areas, the Bureau reported.

Metropolitan areas experienced a gain in migrants, a reversal of the 1970s pattern when rural areas gained, the study of "Geographical Mobility between 1980 and 1984" reported.

And overall moving by Americans jumped by more than 2 million to a total of 33.4 million people, "a reversal of the decline in mobility that occurred in the 1970s," the study reported.

"It's a relatively rare occurrence that we'll see an increase of that amount," said Donald C. Dahmann of the Census Bureau, who wrote the report.

"I think we're seeing a response by certain economic groups to increased economic opportunity," Dahmann said in a telephone interview.

It is not a sign that unemployed factory workers from one area are finding jobs elsewhere, he cautioned, but rather that people with special skills are moving to areas which need their abilities.

Teachers and other professionals are moving to the southern states, for example, because that is a region where recent growth and development has created a demand for their skills, he said.

By the same token, states with technical jobs such as California, attract skilled people from other regions, he said.

The result is what Dahmann termed a "migratory elite," people with special skills seeking and finding jobs in other regions — while the unemployed workers still have problems locating jobs.

"We're not building a transcontinental railroad or superhighway system" to provide those jobs which once attracted workers from region to region, Dahmann commented.

This same process is reflected in the movement into metropolitan areas where computer and technical jobs have increased as corporate offices and technological firms increasingly locate in these areas, he said.

The slackening of growth in the West, he pointed out, has occurred despite California's high-tech increase. That growth is balanced by job losses in the Intermountain region where mineral and energy developments have declined recently, Dahmann said.

The Census study covers people who moved between 1983 and 1984 and is the most recent set of mobility statistics available.

Americans were highly mobile in recent decades, with as many as one person in five moving some years, according to government statistics.

The share of people relocating has been gradually declining over the last couple of decades, however, dipping to 16.6 percent in 1982-83 before the reversal reported for 1983-84, when it increased to 17.3 percent.

The last time the share of Americans relocating increased from the year before was in 1954-55, when it went from 19.3 percent to 20.4 percent.

As usual, most moves involved people relocating to a new home in the same general area, but a number involved movement between regions and relocations to cities, suburbs and rural areas.

Suburbs were the major gainers among the 11.2-million non-local movers, gaining both from central cities and from rural areas.

Unlike the 1970s when rural areas were gaining population at the expense of cities and suburbs, this study confirms earlier reports that have found suburbs rebounding.

Suburbs gained 5.6 million movers, while 3.5 million people left the suburbs, for a net gain of 2.1 million. By comparison, central cities has a net loss of 1.7 million and rural areas lost 300,000 people.

Regionally, "the West did not experience significant population growth in 1984 as a result of net immigration from other regions of the country, a radical change from the past several decades," the Census report stated.

Debt-stricken hospital, with court's aid, may turn a profit

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding County Memorial Hospital appears to be staggering out from under the burden of huge debt and earnings losses that crippled it earlier this year, forcing the creation of a new tax district.

With the help of a court order assessing nearly $300,000 in property taxes to cover a debt to Walker ACT Center, the hospital might be able to make money during the next year, said Board Chairman Elmer Shratt.

"We've got a gift," Shratt said. Shratt's comment came during a routine board meeting Thursday. He noted that Gooding County Memorial had expected to pay about $294,000 collected by the hospital but not turned over to Walker ACT, which operates in conjunction with the hospital.

Because that money now has been erased from Gooding's debt ledger, Shratt said money may be left over after bills are paid during the coming year. He noted that the hospital has assets totaling $819,842 and liabilities totaling $844,274. But when the $234,000 Walker debt is deducted from the liabilities, as the county takes responsibility for the debt through property tax, a surplus of about $270,000 emerges.

Shratt said that if the hospital can break even during the next year, that "gift" money should be saved. "The excess cash should be skimmed off and put into an account," Shratt said. "We're looking at a surplus that we should be pigeon-holing."

The news brought apparent sunshine to the hospital's bleak financial picture. Losses during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 totaled $227,000.

A judge in September ordered a special property tax to pay bills for $234,000 to Walker ACT Center. The tax cost about $12 per $10,000 assessed property valuation.

But Administrator Duane Courtright said Thursday the $20,000 per-month losses had turned around to become several thousand dollars in profits during October. He credited cost-cutting measures with creating the turn-around.

Bright financial prospects were also found in alternatives for decreasing overhead costs at the hospital by sharing facilities with other treatment centers.

A plan from the company managing St. Benedict's Family Medical Center claimed it could save the hospital $27,000 a month by combining certain services between the two hospitals. Another management company is also studying ways to merge services with the hospital.

And closer to home, Walker ACT will also help cut the hospital's overhead, Director Gail Ater said. Walker ACT and the hospital would each make about $15,000 in profit from a state contract Walker received for alcohol treatment.

Two people have already completed his program under state funding, Ater said, and four more are participating now. The $70,000 contract will allow Walker ACT to treat about four people per month.

Because the facilities share laundry, food, and janitorial services, they will also share state funding for the patients. Ater said the hospital would be paid about $28 of the $70 per day Walker ACT will get for each patient.

He said these amounts represent small profit margins, but that the state patients effectively help cover the overhead costs of the entire facilities.

"We knew when we took these patients that there wasn't going to be much profit," Ater said.

Juvenile facility subject of check

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

JEROME — Two juvenile-detention administrators this week inspected the private Southern Idaho Youth Center as part of a review by the Idaho Commission on Children and Youth.

Operators of the Southern Idaho Youth Center, located about four miles east of Jerome, are hoping for a positive report from the youth commission to encourage more business from Magic Valley counties.

Unless more counties contract to use their juvenile detention center, it may be necessary to sell it or invite counties from outside the region to send inmates, said office manager Henk Bekker.

Earl Dunlop, administrator of a Lexington, Ky., center, and David Rousch, who operates a Calhoun County, Mich., center, will file a report on the Jerome-area center to the federal Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention in 30 days, said Sharon Hixon, director of the youth commission, a governor's advisory board.

The commission was invited by the center owners to review its operation and make any recommendations for improvement.

The inspection by the two administrators Tuesday was financed by the commission through a technical assistance grant with the OJJDP, an arm of the U.S. Justice Department. Hixon said. After Dunlop and Rousch make their report to the OJJDP, it will be released to the commission and youth center.

The report then will be used by the youth commission in preparing its report on the center, she said. Hixon didn't know when the commission will meet to prepare that report because of the holiday season and the entrance of the new administration of Cecil Andrus, elected governor.

Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker makes a point criticizing media coverage of the 1986 campaign during a Sawtooth Press Club meeting Thursday

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Instead of trading blows with each other, a Democratic candidate and Republican campaigner on Thursday smote the news media for its election coverage.

The criticism by Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker, who unsuccessfully ran for a legislative seat, and Mark Stubbs, chairman of the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee, was invited by the press, however, at a luncheon sponsored by the Sawtooth Press Club.

The most pointed barbs were cast by Walker, who challenged Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, for the floriol District 25 seat.

Of the coverage in general, Walker said, "You can't be critical of it, because it wasn't there."

At one Gooding political debate, it went unreported that several GOP candidates had a lively disagreement amongst themselves. What appeared in The Times-News, however, was a large photo of and much publicity for Anderson, who had done little campaigning up to then, Walker said.

"I tried being cute," he said. "You get on the front page if you're cute."

His stand-and-those-of-other-candidates on tort reform also went unreported during the campaign, Walker said. After the election, however, a presentation by a Twin Falls attorney on the subject received coverage, Walker added.

At another political debate the newspaper failed to report he had even participated, he said.

To top it off, a Times-News endorsement for Anderson called the race dull.

"Sure, it's going to be dull as hell if it's not been reported at all," Walkers said.

He also claimed Times-News coverage was immersed in the "AP (Associated Press Wire Service) syndrome," characterized by an institutional and superficial tone and no individuality in reporting.

Reporters from KMYT-television in Twin Falls also felt Walker's sting. One person who interviewed him "didn't know who I was" and asked less than pertinent questions, he said.

Stubbs said he was disturbed at the labeling of politicians, which they feared would stick with them through the campaign. The bottom line to several of Stubbs' examples about what constitutes a conservative or liberal was that one man's conservative was another man's liberal, and vice-versa.

Stubbs also said he noticed the "cub-reporter" syndrome plaguing new reporters, who didn't have time to develop a good relationship with their "sources."

Sewer line proposal officially down drain

By ADELL HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The on-again, off-again plans for a local improvement district to install sewer lines in the Wiley Craven Subdivision in Rupert are officially off.

The Rupert City Council passed a resolution Tuesday night, resolving to establish the LID, even though several residents of the subdivision attended the meeting, some to ask the city to reconsider the decision to drop plans for an LID.

Mayor Bill Whitton said that the council had tried to work with the residents since Nov. 19, 1985, to develop a program that would be fair to all involved.

"Some of you requested our help, then got systems of your own, and told us you didn't want an LID," he said. "Last month we felt the majority were in agreement to go with it, so we passed the resolution. Then, before we could publish it, we got phone calls and e-mails from lawyers if we pursued the sewer installation project."

Cities group pushes for sales tax, repeal of initiative

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Association of Idaho cities on Wednesday lobbied for its fair share of taxes and for liability reform, before a group of Magic Valley lawmakers.

The group has two main Legislative priorities for the 1987 session: making the 5-cent sales tax a permanent tax, and repeal of the 1 Percent Initiative.

AIC Executive Director Jim Weatherly, of Boise, also briefly touched on the loss of federal money he "enthusiastically" supported it.

"It's not a panacea, but I feel it's necessary," he said.

If the current debate over liability reform is any indication, the debate promises to provide fireworks between groups supporting liability reform and trial lawyers who oppose it.

Weatherly said he was "not a communist," as someone tried to imply during a Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce luncheon program Tuesday on liability reform. The proposed bill would put limits on the amount of an award during a personal injury case.

Turning from funding, Weatherly also plugged liability reform, saying for cities and the impact it will have.

Weatherly said the United States is giving "more money to Israel and Egypt" in foreign aid than money to American cities. Idaho cities have lost $9 million in federal revenue dollars since 1976, he said.

To replace that money locally, Weatherly said it would take a 17-percent increase in local property taxes, which he said "is impossible."

The alternative is to make permanent the additional 1-cent sales tax the Legislature passed this year, and to channel that money into the state sales tax formula. Lawmakers

this year bypassed the sales tax formula and allocated the money to one-time expenditures.

Putting the sales tax revenue through the regular distribution formula would mean an additional $4 million to help offset the $9 million loss in federal funds, Weatherly said.

The other AIC priority will be to convince lawmakers to repeal the 5-percent cap placed on cities by the 1 Percent Initiative. AIC made some gains this year with the passage of House Bill 764, the so-called "growth bill," which eased the strict, 5-percent tax limit.

Democrats form list of election irregularities

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Democratic Central Committee will present to the county prosecutor a list of what it saw as election irregularities under County Clerk Dick Pence.

Topping the list will be Pence's admission that he allowed the opening of about 475 absentee ballots before election day.

Central Committee member Dick Chilcote said the intent of the action, voted on at a Wednesday meeting, is to make sure the problems are not repeated. But if Pence won't cooperate on the problems aren't solved, the committee will consider pursuing legal action through court to attempt to remove him from office.

Committee Chairman Joe Gulick said.

Although he wanted the committee to take the stronger stand of going to court, Gulick said, "I am encouraged."

Pence was out of town Thursday and couldn't be contacted about the Democratic action.

The committee, expected to present its list to County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter and Pence early next week, would like Pence to sign an agreement outlining how he will solve the problems, Gulick said.

Besides the absentee ballots, committee members expressed concern about what they considered to be delayed and inadequate appointment of registrars and more Republican election judges than Democrats.

tee member Virginia Ash said.

Chilcote, Ash, Gulick and Twin Falls attorney Emil Pike volunteered to serve on a subcommittee to prepare the list.

The Democrats' decision to take action came on the heels of an announcement by Baxter not to prosecute Pence for opening the ballots.

According to Idaho law, the ballots should have been opened only on election day and in the presence of bipartisan observers.

Baxter said she declined prosecution because she couldn't find criminal intent or that Pence "knowingly and fraudulently" violated the election laws.

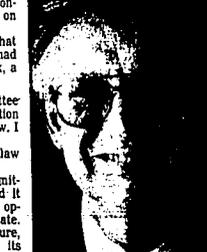

said it would have been time-consuming to enter all the ballots on election day.

He also said he didn't know that the procedure was wrong and had learned it from the previous clerk, a Democrat.

At the Democratic Committee meeting, Pike said Pence's action was a "clear violation of state law. I have no doubt about it."

The many safeguards in the law had been ignored, he said.

Pike suggested that the committee go to Baxter. He mentioned it after he had outlined two legal options the Democrats could initiate. One of them was a civil procedure, with removal from office as its "remedy."

5th District judgeship to be decided

BOISE - Selection of a district judge in the 5th Judicial District will be made soon, according to a representative of the office of Gov. John Evans. The three final candidates for the judgeship were interviewed Wednesday and letters of recommendation of the state bar association, were still arriving at the governor's office Thursday. Dave McAllindin, assistant to the governor, said the response has been very heavy, with many recommendations being received. The candidates, James May, a Twin Falls attorney, and Magistrate judges - Nathan Heiger of Burley and John Varin of Fairfield - were interviewed by Evans Wednesday.

James C. Reynolds, mortician, dead at 76

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - James C. "Jim" Reynolds, 76, of Twin Falls, was remembered by friends Thursday for his contribution to the life of the church; his participation in musical organizations and his rare sense of humor.

JAMES C. REYNOLDS
A noted Kiwanis member

Reynolds, the founder of Reynolds Funeral Chapel, died suddenly Wednesday afternoon at his home of a heart attack. Claude Brown of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club said Reynolds will be missed by Kiwanians for his long service as long leader and his faithful attendance at club meetings. He said he had known Reynolds for many years through the activities they shared in the Kiwanis Club and the Magichords barbershop singing group, almost up to the day of Reynolds' death.

"I think he was at practice (for the Magichords) Tuesday night. He will certainly be missed by us all," Brown said Thursday. O.A. "Cus" Keller, another Kiwanian, said Reynolds was well-known for his sense of humor, as well as his singing talent. "He went with a group of us one week ago to an inter-club event in Buhl and you might say he was the life of the party," Keller said. "I enjoyed his humor. He always had a few funny stories to tell."

Keller said Reynolds was one of only about 3,000 of the Kiwanis International. He received the award in 1980 and also awarded the D.P. Award Kiwanian of the Year honor in 1969. Reynolds joined the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club in 1934 and had a perfect attendance record at the weekly luncheon meetings, covering 40 of the years since his membership. "For nearly all of the 34 years of his membership, he served as club song leader. A special memorial tribute to Reynolds is planned by the Kiwanis Club membership at its annual thanksgiving meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the CSI cafeteria.

He had a family that was not very particular and would mind to do the solos this time," Huih recalled. "He was a great guy. I can say that I have lost a best friend." Reynolds attended Magichord rehearsals on Tuesday and had participated in the barbershop program on Friday and Saturday nights, Huih said. He was recognized two years ago for his 55 years of participation in the First Christian Church choir, and was in charge of music for the church during summer months. He served on the board of elders and as a deacon for the Christian Church and was an elder emeritus at the time of his death.

Rev. John Parish, pastor of the First Christian Church, said Reynolds was "the backbone of the choir" in his church and served as secretary of the Sunday school. "He was always there. He had a magnanimous spirit," Rev. Parish said. He said Reynolds was active in the church when Parish was a youth, and was still there when he returned as the pastor 40 years later. Reynolds had served the community through other organizations over a period of many years. He was a member of the Twin Falls Elks Lodge and a board member of the local American Red Cross Chapter. He was also active in the Snake River Council of Boy Scouts, and a former president of the Idaho Funeral Directors Association.

Surviving are two daughters, Mary Margaret and Cheryl, and three sons, William of Leavenworth, one, William King of Everett, Wash.; eight grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. Burial will be in the Hillside cemetery, and will be held at 10 a.m. in St. Jerome's Catholic Church, with the Rev. Father Bill Taylor as celebrant. Friends may call at the Home-Robertson Funeral Chapel today from 5 to 8 p.m. The family suggests memorial contributions to the First Education Fund at the Ascension Priory.

James C. Reynolds

TWIN FALLS - James C. Reynolds, 76, of Twin Falls, died Wednesday afternoon after a sudden illness. Born Dec. 1, 1909, at Camp Point, Ill., he moved to the Northwest with his parents, living in Washington and Idaho, where he was minister for the Christian Church. He graduated from high school at Pasco, Wash., and attended Spokane College. He moved to Twin Falls from Miles City, Mont., in 1930. He graduated from California College of Mortuary Science in 1932. He worked for Alta White at White Mortuary and later purchased Drake Mortuary. He established the Reynolds Funeral Chapel, which operated until his retirement. At the time of his death, he still was active on a part-time basis. He had been a member of the First Christian Church choir in Twin Falls for more than 35 years and was an active member of Magichords barbershop. Mr. Reynolds was a member of the First Christian Church, and had served on the board of Elders and as a deacon. He was an Elder Emeritus at the time of his death. He joined the Kiwanis Club in 1934 and had served as song leader and as the Snake River Council of Scouts. In 1957-58, he was president of the Idaho Funeral Directors Association, and was a member of the church bowling league. He married Mary Ann Reynolds Oct. 9, 1934, in Twin Falls. Surviving are his wife, Jan, of Twin Falls; a son, Paul Reynolds, of Twin Falls; and three grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his son, David, in 1963, his sister, Maurine Terry, and a brother, Paul. The funeral home will be held Monday at 2 p.m. at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, with the Rev. John Parish officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park. Friends may call at the chapel Saturday and Sunday.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the First Christian Church Choir Fund or the Idaho Youth Ranch.

RUPERT - Alta Bernice Hackney, 83, of Rupert, died Thursday. The funeral arrangements are pending at the Hansen Mortuary in Rupert.

Marguerite 'Marge' King

JEROME - Marguerite "Marge" King, 84, of Jerome, died Wednesday evening at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center, Ohio, on Dec. 27, 1967. Born July 21, 1902, in Cincinnati, Ohio, where she was reared and educated, she married William A. King in Hamilton, Ohio, in 1924. They moved to Alaska in 1947, then lived in Salt Lake City from 1960 to 1963 before moving to Jerome, where she had lived since. She taught pottery and painting classes, and also worked for Jerome Chamber of Commerce. She was a member of the AARP.

Jail

Continued from Page B1 error Nov. 4, she said. Dunlop and Rousch, who spent several hours at the center, couldn't be reached for comment. Officers from the OJDP in Washington, D.C., also were unavailable for comment. The center now is contracting with Jerome County to house juveniles charged with a crime, such as truancy. Since its opening, it has held five juveniles for about a week each. But center operators say they need more business. "I'm simply now because (other) commissioners are scared," said Bekker, a Jerome County commissioner. County officials have been frightened off by "negative" publicity to close the center, such as a reported recommendation to the youth commission by one of its regional committees. The Region V Council on Children and Youth reported its investigators found the center out of compliance with national standards and asked the youth commission to pursue the center's closure. "I don't know if the standards were met," said Cloyce Edwards, a former Twin Falls County coroner and an investor in the center, said it was built for the eight counties of the Magic Valley. But some county officials have said they wanted to wait for the commission report before using the center. "I can't see these county officials fail to realize that the commissioners have the power to authorize the center, which meets state codes for holding juveniles. No other state

Walmart stores receive bomb threat

TWIN FALLS - The Walmart grocery building in Twin Falls, along with those in several other Idaho cities, closed doors Tuesday after a bomb threat was received at the store following a bomb threat. The call was made to the Boise general headquarters of the firm shortly before noon, reportedly saying that there was a bomb in one of the firm's stores. Twin Falls Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said the report was that it would discharge at 1:30 p.m. About 1 p.m., he said, Walmart officials in Twin Falls decided to close the building and store personnel left the building and it remained closed about 45 minutes. Qualls said officers went into the building, made a visual search and found nothing. The business reopened shortly after 1:30 p.m. with no further incidents or threats.

Pence

Continued from Page B1 on the alleged violation of the election laws. If it determined that the case should be pursued, a jury then would hear the case and decide if there was neglect of duty. "The jury would have to determine the case was 'willful,'" Pike said. But case law has regarded ignorance of the law as willful neglect. Asked Thursday night whether the Democratic committee had a case, Pike said, "You definitely have a good case. You definitely have a good case." The disavowal of the court action was its cost, possibly ranging between $5,000-$10,000 for attorney fees, but Pike said if the committee lost, it might have to pay attorney fees for the other side. Court action also was risky because no one knows how a jury will react, he said. Although the case would be held Saturday, it might lose steam when the jury discovered it was initiated by the Democratic Party, which had a candidate who unsuccessfully attempted to challenge Pence in the election. If the committee chose the court agency has licensing authority, he said.

Surviving are two daughters, Mary Margaret and Cheryl, and three sons, William of Leavenworth, one, William King of Everett, Wash.; eight grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. Burial will be in the Hillside cemetery, and will be held at 10 a.m. in St. Jerome's Catholic Church, with the Rev. Father Bill Taylor as celebrant. Friends may call at the Home-Robertson Funeral Chapel today from 5 to 8 p.m. The family suggests memorial contributions to the First Education Fund at the Ascension Priory.

"It's frustrating," Bekker said. He also produced a copy of an Oct. 16 letter to Jerome County Commissioners Pam Smith and Carl Montgomery from the Attorney General's Office on the county's relationship with the center. Smith and Montgomery couldn't be reached for comment. According to Assistant Attorney General P. Mark Thompson, the law authorizes the use of private facilities by counties as long as they meet Department of Health and Welfare licensing criteria. Counties also have a duty to provide such facilities. "However, the statute places upon the county commissioners and the court the responsibility for insuring the adequacy of those facilities," Thompson wrote. Bekker accused Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn and Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal of having "political reasons" for not wanting to use the Jerome-area center, because they both want new jails. "I don't have any comment on Bekker's accusations. Crystal couldn't be reached for comment. Bekker said the center administration will have a little longer for the regional counties to use the facility. In the meantime, he and Edwards will meet with other interested counties, such as Canyon County. The center went through another inspection Wednesday. This time by the Jerome County Board of Commissioners, as part of its contract with the center.

action, it should 'move on it right away,' Pike said.

The other legal option was a recall, requiring the committee to collect a petition with signatures of 20 percent of the registered voters in the county, just to get it on the ballot. "It'd be quite a job," Pike said. After a lengthy discussion, the committee decided to go to Baxter and Pence with its concerns. Gulick said the state Democratic organization has promised support in the actions related to Pence. Donald McMurrain of Twin Falls, a legislative candidate, said something had to be done. "If we don't stand up and fight... we might as well forget about elections," he said. Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker, a Democratic legislative candidate who had alerted Baxter and the Secretary of State's Office about the ballot opening, said the central committee action was going in the right direction. Upon Walker's notification, Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa called Pence and asked him to stop opening the ballots.

Press

Continued from Page B1 Walker said new reporters often lacked ties to the area and were concerned more about getting to larger newspapers. In defense, Times-News reporter Mark Pratter said the criticism is valid, but any omissions were not conscious. Reporters were faced with time constraints and making judgments about the most newsworthy aspects of an event, he said. KLIX News Director Jerry Marcantonio told Walker that radio and television stations had a small number of reporters to cover all the races and "everything else."

Responding to the comment about uncaring out-of-state reporters, Times-News Managing Editor

Herb Hargis said that most of the past five political reporters on the newspaper staff had ties to Idaho. KMTV General Manager Lee Wagner said the same thing of his staff, adding, "I won't buy that indictment." Stubbs did have nice things to say about the news media. "I thought the coverage was fair," he said. Stubbs also respected what he thought was a "pretty independent group of people." And he was glad to see the election sense of humor in the needed coverage, such as stories about "lucky corner" or an anonymous person's description of a corner at Addison Avenue and Blue Lakes covered with political signs. "Those tacky corner articles were great," he said.

Sewers

Continued from Page B1 The council unanimously adopted the resolution rescinding plans for the LID. However, the council also provided that contracts be drafted for four homeowners in the area to hook onto the city's present system. The city will annex lots 3 and 4 and extend sewer lines to the Stark and Joesten properties south of 100 South Street, providing all four property owners sign a contract and pay the $1,500 fee covering costs of sewer lines and hookups. The LID was not the only issue that drew people to the Rupert City Council meeting. The council also grappled with questions about the lease agreement for the new senior citizens' center and apartment dwellers' utility rates. The lease agreement between the city and the senior citizens was considered at length, with the main disagreement being who was responsible for utilities and insurance on the city-owned building. "We have no right to make future councils responsible. These things should be considered on an annual basis, not written into a long-term contract," said Councilwoman June Dombeck. Whitton pointed out that the senior citizens group is a county-widely entity. "I think they should go to the budget hearings of the county and all the cities within the county and request funding as part of the recreational budget," he said. The letter stating the city's position will be drafted and presented to the senior citizens by Public Work Director Eric Petersen, who has worked closely with the group in the building project. *Interim Development of Twin Falls protested what they termed "excessive utility rates" in apartment units owned by their firm and asked that the city review rate charges for multi-family developments. The council decided to check into previous ordinances to clarify rate schedules.

Engagements Latin no longer dead in public schools

BUHL — George Hecker, Phoenix, Ariz., and Susan Rambo, Mesa, Ariz., announce the engagement of their daughter, Alana Valerie Hecker, to Robert Lee Brinkman Jr., son of Robert and Janice Brinkman, Buhl.

Hecker, a graduate of Mountain View High School, Mesa, attends Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff.

Brinkman, who graduated from Buhl High School, also attends Northern Arizona University.

The couple plans a Dec. 27 wedding in the Queen of Peace Catholic Church in Mesa.

Gentlepeople dating service matches only the discerning

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — "My client is a marriage-minded Harvard MBA. He is successful, intelligent, attractive and popular. If you are 30-35, slim and fit, well-educated (and your interests include informal dinner parties, good conversation, writing and reading.)"

The ad was run by Zeldia Fischer, founder and prime mover behind an upwardly mobile spouse search agency called Gentlepeople Ltd., which doesn't accept business from just anyone.

"I don't find the word 'snob' offensive," she said. But she'd prefer describing her clients as "fussy." "Discerning" is a word I'm comfortable with.

"I wouldn't turn away an intellectually curious trades person," said Fischer, who carefully screens prospective clients by telephone and turns down about one-fifth of them.

"A plumber is fine if he's comfortable exchanging ideas with someone of your bright, civilized people."

But she admitted the closest she's come to having a "trades person" among her upscale clientele was a furniture designer.

Gentlepeople seeks to match the achievers, the successful, the sort who enliven dinner party conversation and drive home in expensive sports cars. "Money is very important in all this," she said.

Gentlepeople charges a $2,500 fee. "I think it's high but not too high," said one satisfied client, a 45-year-old, thrice-married pediatrician who declined to give her name.

"It's a terrible thing to say, but I despise the fee sorts the wheat from the chaff."

"A lot of us are very busy people," added the physician, who for eight months has been dating a successful entrepreneur introduced by Gentlepeople. "I have an accountant who takes care of my taxes, doctors who take care of my body and I have someone who takes care of my social life — Zeldia — and it's wonderful."

As hefty as the fee is, it's soon going up to $5,000, Fischer said, because more matches are being arranged through her recently opened London office and this raises costs. The charge covers six months of selected introductions and informal evenings with all current "members."

Not taken on are smokers and people Fischer just can't work with.

To determine the sort of person a caller is, Fischer, a conservatively dressed woman of 59 with carefully graying blond hair, might ask whether his or her favorite comedian is Joan Rivers or Woody Allen.

"I would tell those who chose Joan Rivers that Gentlepeople doesn't seem to be consonant," she said. "But if they say 'Oh no!' at the mention of her name, I feel reassured."

A typical client would be someone who reads the swank Town & Country magazine but is not too eccentric or, if from an old wealthy family, too tight, she said.

If a woman demands to meet a man of a certain high earnings level, Fischer says she patiently explains that many people with inherited wealth simply aren't aware of their annual income.

The Cambridge office has about 150 active clients. About 30 percent of the clients end up marrying mates selected by Gentlepeople, Fischer claimed, adding that none of the matches has ended in divorce. "I've been in business only five years."

She recalls one case in which a couple she introduced tried to get their money back because the man proposed on the first date. "Men are more decisive than women in these matters."

But, of course, Gentlepeople doesn't make refunds in such cases.

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Sometimes referred to as a dead language, Latin is gaining so much popularity in U.S. public schools that teachers like Lurline Todd are being forced out of retirement.

During Todd's one year off enrollment in Latin classes in Roanoke County public schools, she taught 42 percent. School officials coaxed her back to work the following year to teach eighth- and ninth-graders at Hidden Valley Junior High.

"Latin's gotten the reputation — if you've got a brain, take Latin," said Todd, who returned to teaching four years ago. "Some kids want that on their college applications. Some are taking it because of their parents, and a few are adults enough to realize it will do them some good."

The nationwide increase in Latin enrollments has prompted a corresponding teacher shortage that is forcing some schools to hire instructors who lack training — either in the language or in teaching, said Robert M. Wilhelm, placement director with the American Classical League at the University of Miami in Oxford, Ohio.

Latin has not been widely spoken since the fall of the Roman Empire. But at the turn of the century, half of the students in U.S. public schools were studying Latin, which is the source of countless English words, said Ed Seebold, executive director of the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages.

The language fell out of favor in the late '60s and '70s because teenagers came to believe it did not make sense to study a language that was no longer spoken. By 1978, only 151,782 public high school students — 1.1 percent of the total — were taking Latin, Seebold said. The percentage increased to 1.3 by 1982, the last year the council gathered figures.

But the American Classical League has reason to believe that enrollments have risen substantially since then. For example, the number of students in junior classical leagues, or Latin clubs, has risen from 37,000 in 1982 to just under 50,000 last year, said Richard A.

LaFleur, immediate past president of the American Classical League. "We've also seen phenomenal growth in the number of students taking the National Latin Exam," said LaFleur, who heads the classics department at the University of Georgia. "It would be fairly safe to assume that there was similar growth in enrollments during that period."

In Virginia, the number of Latin students in public schools has jumped from 10,602 to 17,160 during the past decade, said Marshall Brannon, supervisor of foreign languages with the Virginia Department of Education.

"The pendulum swings in education," Brannon said. "During the student revolts of the '60s, students were dropping anything that was not considered relevant by the student populace. In the '70s, there was, and I suppose there still is, much more emphasis on back-to-the-basics. What is more basic than Latin?"

Todd says she has seen Latin go through cycles of popularity and disfavor during her more than 30 years of teaching. Her college instructors warned her not to become a Latin teacher because they feared she would not find a job, she said.

Latin teachers have changed their emphasis during the past few decades, she said. Instead of assigning students lots of translation, Todd said instructors now teach vocabulary and how English words derive from Latin. Ancient Roman culture and history also are stressed.

At the same time greater numbers of students have been signing up for Latin classes nationwide. Seebold said enrollments have been increasing in all foreign languages, and the figures probably will keep rising as states toughen the requirements for graduating from high school.

Increasing Latin enrollments will make it even harder for school systems to find qualified Latin teachers, Wilhelm said. The number of college students graduating with a certification to teach Latin has dropped from 452 in 1969 to less than 100 today, he said.

Wilhelm received a $150,000 endowment to hold an institute on classical humanities last summer for elementary teachers. LaFleur said the University of Georgia and the American Classical League are using a $250,000 grant to school Latin teachers who are not certified in the language.

Woman's ex-husband is an unwelcome guest

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen months ago, I took my two children and left my husband of 10 years. For nine years I took an emotional battering from this man until I finally reached the point of "Let me out, or lock me up!"

We live in the same city with my entire family. They have seen how abusive he has been to me and my children, yet they continue to invite him to all family functions — birthdays, anniversaries and holidays — just as though nothing had happened. I have hinted that I'm very uncomfortable with him there, but they continue to invite him.

With the holiday approaching soon, I dread seeing him wined and dined by my family who know how rotten he's been to me and my children. I hate to stay away from family gatherings, but I am miserable when he's around acting extra charming as they will wonder what is wrong with me.

I may have to ask my family to make a choice between him and me. What do you think?

J. TORN
DEAR TORN: The moment of truth has arrived. Quit hinting and tell your family exactly how you feel. And if they continue to invite him, they will have made a choice.

DEAR ABBY: You nominated the word "hors d'oeuvre" as the word most frequently misspelled.

After grading tens of thousands of essays in the last 17 years, I have found that the most frequently misspelled commonly used word is "occurrence."

Amazingly, fewer than 10 percent of the students in my classes have spelled it correctly the first time. The most common misspelling of occurrence is "occurence," but there are several others.

I consider the most difficult word to spell for one who has not heard it before to be "chthonic" (pertaining to the gods of the underworld). Whoever would expect the "ch" to be silent?

MARK GRAHAM, ENGLISH DEPARTMENT, ARVADA SENIOR HIGH, ARVADA, COLO.

DEAR MR. GRAHAM: Thanks for the spelling lesson. Consulting the dictionary is a daily occurrence for me, but I have never heard of chthonic, and my chances for using it are slim. However, if I'm ever on a quiz show (or in a spelling bee), the information may come in handy.

DEAR ABBY: Thanksgiving will soon be here, and I want you to know how much your column helped us. Being single can be devastating during the holiday season, so I organized the "First Annual Lonely Hearts Thanksgiving Day Bash" (our second will be even better).

Please continue to print that beautiful Thanksgiving prayer every year, and may God bless you this year and always.

DEAR JAN: Thank you for writing. Perhaps other readers will giggle at the idea of the annual gibles Thanksgiving Day bash!

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been laid off for nearly a year and we are having a really rough time of it. Is there a tactful way to stop exchanging Christmas gifts? We can't afford to send any gifts this year, and we don't want anyone to send us anything. So how can we get the word out?

DEAR SHORT: I've made this suggestion in previous years: Come Thanksgiving, write a note to those on your Christmas gift list saying: "We are thankful for folks with whom we can be honest. We're not in a position to send Christmas gifts this year (nor do we expect any), but please accept our love and sincere good wishes for a happy, healthy, blessed holiday."

Some new U.S. gold coins destined to become jewelry

NEW YORK (AP) — While coin collectors are delighting in the new gold coins being issued by the government after more than half a century, those who fancy coin jewelry are equally enthusiastic, says Kae McCulloch, fashion consultant to the Jewelry Industry Council.

"Through the ages, mankind has always had a fascination for wearing their wealth as bodily adornment," she says. "Right up to the American Indians, who used beads made from shells as necklaces and belts. The shell beads, called wampum, were also a medium of exchange or barter, just as money is."

The new coins are so sought after, she notes, that the West Point Mint, Depository where they are minted, is working overtime to meet the demand.

"There is no doubt that an impressive number of the new coins will wind up in coin jewelry," says McCulloch, who reports that major jewelry houses are making the $5, $10, $25 and $50 gold pieces into rings, cufflinks, pendants and earrings.

The fine detailing and craftsmanship in our gold coins makes them ideal for rings and pendants," McCulloch points out. "Coin jewelry houses are careful to preserve the integrity of the coin itself when they use it in jewelry, enclosing the coin in a frame rather than piercing or soldering it to a mounting."

Anyone considering having a gold coin made into a piece of jewelry should make sure they are minted to not deface the coin, but is sturdy enough to protect it against loss, she advises.

"Contrary to popular belief," she adds, "it is not against the law to melt down or alter coins, but altered coins cannot be put back into circulation, so it makes sense to preserve the coin in its original state to maintain its numismatic worth."

U.S. citizens have been prohibited from holding monetary gold since the '30s, when President Franklin Delano Roosevelt called in all gold and gold certificates from general circulation.

The infant nation had used British, Spanish and French coins before the Articles of Confederation, adopted in 1781.

Americans put away wallets; income up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal spending plunged 2 percent in October, the biggest drop in 27 years of recording, as consumers put away their pocketbooks after an auto-buying spree, the government reported Thursday.

But at the same time, Americans' incomes rose by a moderate 0.4 percent, the best showing in six months, the Commerce Department said. The gain was helped along by special factors, including bonuses paid to auto workers.

The combination of a steep plunge in spending and a pickup in income growth helped boost Americans' savings rate slightly from a record low in September.

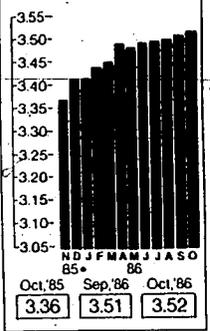

Analysts were encouraged by the new figures, especially a strong pickup in wage and salary growth, saying this reduced the likelihood that weak consumer spending could push the country into a recession.

"I think income growth now is healthy enough to keep consumer spending from collapsing and at least keep us out of a recession," said Sandra Shaber, director of personal economics for Chase Econometrics.

"We are not looking for a boom in growth, but we are looking for the economy to perform about like it has for the past two years," she said.

David Wyss, an economist with Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass., said the big decline in spending in October, following the big September advance, was all attributable to a swing in auto sales and had been expected.

Even with lower auto sales in the months ahead, Wyss said, consumer spending should remain strong through Christmas as Americans step up purchases of big-ticket items in order to take advantage of the last year that sales tax will be deductible on their income taxes.

But he said economic growth could weaken considerably in the early part of next year under the adverse impact of the new tax law on both consumer and business spending.

"If it weren't for the fact that the trade deficit is starting to turn around, there would be a real risk of a recession next year," Wyss said.

The spending decline in October was the biggest monthly drop since the government has been keeping such records in 1959. It followed strong increases of 1.4 percent in September and 0.9 percent in August.

The 0.4 percent rise in personal incomes was the biggest monthly advance since a 1.2 percent rise in April. It followed gains of 0.3 percent in September and 0.2 percent in August.

Americans' disposable, or after-tax, incomes edged up 0.2 percent in October, matching the September advance.

The personal savings rate, savings as a percent of disposable income, rose last month to 4.1 percent as a result of the cutback in car sales. The savings rate had plummeted to a low of 2.0 percent in September.

The Commerce report figures the U.S. economy grew 1.2 percent in October, following the big September advance, was all attributable to a swing in auto sales and had been expected.

Even with lower auto sales in the months ahead, Wyss said, consumer

Kemp seeks to block Soviet bid

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y., has urged Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III to make a specific declaration that the United States would reject a bid by the Soviet Union for membership in the World Bank and International Monetary Fund.

Kemp wrote Baker on Nov. 7 to say that the Soviet "record of aggression and oppression of dissent at home" make it clear that Soviet membership would not be in the interest of the institutions nor of the United States.

A Treasury official said that a response to Kemp was being prepared but was not yet completed.

Kemp's comment was triggered by a comment Oct. 16 by World Bank President Barber B. Conable Jr. that the bank "would be happy to explore" a Soviet application for membership. Such an application would have to be based on the Soviets' having been accepted into the IMF.

Conable made clear at the time that there was no pending Soviet application, and bank sources said Wednesday that there was no change in the situation.

Traders irate about Boesky deal reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The anger on Wall Street over the insider trading scandal rose Thursday over reports that an investment fund managed by Ivan Boesky unloaded more than $400 million worth of stock just before the government announced he had been implicated in the case.

Investors already were upset because the Boesky case sent take-over-related stocks into a tailspin since the government announced he had been implicated in the case.

They charged it was unfair for him to trade with the benefit of knowing his settlement with the Securities and Exchange Commission could have adverse effects on the stock market.

"Clearly there are many, many people who are outraged and deservedly so," said Marshall B. Front of Chicago-based investment and mutual-fund management firm Stein Roe & Farnham. "I think it's something that clearly should be thoroughly investigated to determine what, if any, courses of action might be warranted."

Max Heine, president of Mutual Shares Corp. in New York, said, "It was really unprofessional... surprising."

However, Heine noted Boesky had to keep in mind his duties to investors in the Ivan F. Boesky & Co. limited partnership. His fiduciary obligations required him to protect their investments, Heine said.

Sales totaling at least $400 million worth of stocks reportedly took place shortly before the SEC announced late Nov. 17 that Boesky had agreed to pay a record $100 million "penalty" to settle charges that he engaged in illegal stock trading using inside information.

Boesky, one of Wall Street's top specialists in corporate takeovers, agreed to plead guilty to one criminal charge and help the SEC's investigation. In addition, he will be barred from the U.S. securities business after an 18-month period to phase out his market positions.

The turmoil in the stock market seemed to have subsided by Thursday, with professional traders getting accustomed to daily revelations of the spreading scandal surrounding Boesky.

Some stocks suffered severe losses. In the first half of this week amid worries that a widening government investigation could make pending corporate mergers and other deals more costly to finance or even impossible to carry out.

Some of the investors and money managers contacted for reaction to the report said the Boesky fund's sales might have taken place with the SEC's permission.

Neither the law firm representing the Boesky fund nor the principal attorney for Boesky himself returned calls from The Associated Press. Calls to various SEC officials also were unavailing.

"It's hard for me to believe that the SEC would have permitted the Boesky fund's sales if it had been given the go-ahead," said Warren K. Green, president of American Investors Income Fund Inc. of Greenwich, Conn. "We can only speculate about what went on."

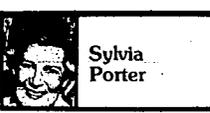

Heine has to wonder at what the circumstances of facts will show as to whether there were no restrictions put on his transactions until after the notice was put out to the public," said Gerald Walpin, senior partner at the New York law firm Rosemann Collin Freund Lewis & Cohen.

Federal law bars trading in stocks by using non-public information on a company, such as another company's plans to make a takeover bid. But sales by Boesky's fund would not violate insider-trading regulations since the trades did not involve using information about the companies whose stock was sold, some legal experts said.

"I've never heard of anybody violating insider rules by using information peculiar to their own situation," said one Wall Street lawyer who agreed to discuss the matter on condition that he not be quoted by name.

Employee assistance helps many ways

Fred, a computer operator, was overwhelmed. His wife was in the hospital, his finances were a horror, and his landlord was threatening to evict him if he didn't come up with the rent. It seemed that there was no way out. Fred began to drink.

Sylvia Porter

"In no surprise that Fred's job performance suffered, and his boss noticed. In the past, Fred was considered an excellent employee, but he began to be late to work, if he showed up at the office at all."

Fortunately, Fred's firm had an employee assistance program, or EAP. His boss suggested that Fred speak to the counselor. After discussing his situation, the counselor directed Fred to a community service group that helped him face his financial and family problems. In addition, he sought help for his drinking problem.

Most jobs entail some degree of stress. And if you're having a personal problem — from a marital mess to drug abuse to financial worries — odds are it's going to affect your performance at the office.

For this reason, about 70 percent of Fortune 500 companies have some form of employee assistance program, reports Richard Bickerton of the Association of Labor/Management Administrators and Consultants on Alcoholism Inc. (ALMCA), a private non-profit group that has a professional association with EAPs.

Sometimes called employee counseling services, these programs focus on the prevention, education and rehabilitation of workers with all types of problems in all types of work settings.

The type of EAP depends on the specifics of the office or workplace. Most have a part-time staff member or outside counselor who refers workers to community centers where they can get help for their particular needs. An EAP counselor is often a psychologist, social worker, certified alcohol counselor or physician — who is not only familiar with the treatment of workers with problems but also in touch with the workplace and community.

"Stress is the word these days. It's one of the problems people admit to with no stigma attached," reports Marilyn Sneiderman. Community Action Coordinator for American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, who sets up these programs across the country.

More and more companies are seeing the results of these types of programs. "In 12 separate studies we've seen dramatic turnarounds," reports Bickerton. Implementing these programs reduces the number of sick days, accidents, and health care and health insurance costs.

In brief: It makes good management sense. When job performance, productivity and morale improve, it costs only pennies for each employee.

In general, it's estimated that an employer gets back $5 for every $1 invested for each worker, reports ALMCA. Other studies also cite savings of $10 to $12 for each dollar spent.

What's more, with a growing trend to implement these programs, it's becoming quite profitable for private consulting firms to get involved. "It's really the creation of a new benefit," reports Daniel Klein of Hansen Inc. "Every company we've worked with has viewed it as successful." He cites one manufacturing firm that saved 50 percent by reducing absenteeism and increasing productivity. Confidentiality is a key concern with employee assistance programs. Most EAPs deal primarily with alcohol and drug counseling. But a number of counselors deal with or direct workers to community groups that can help with a wide range of problems concerning personal finance, health care questions, legal matters, child or spouse abuse, job stress, child care and general family concerns.

Despite the recent surge of interest in drug testing, the No. 1 problem in the workplace is alcohol. "Drug testing is not the real issue," says Bickerton. "Drugs in the workplace is." Experts agree that helping workers in a constructive way, through education and counseling, is the better solution.

But still some companies remain unconvinced that they will get a return on their investment when they implement an EAP. Also, some doubt that workers involved in the lives of their employees. But the complexities of life are such that the well-being of workers and the end result are inextricably linked.

Buying spree erupts

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street thrusted aside its worries about the insider trading scandal and went on a buying spree Thursday, sending stock prices sharply higher in a broad-based quest for blue chips and bargains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed at 1,866.66, up 34.03 points from Wednesday's close. When added to Wednesday's 9.42-point gain, the total of 43.45 points wiped out a good share of Monday's and Tuesday's combined loss of 56.38 points.

Thursday's gainers outpaced losers by almost 11-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 1,308 stocks up, 359 down, and 349 unchanged. Total volume totaled 158.120 million shares, against 183.239 million in the previous session. The blue chip buying trend accelerated Thursday, along with some bargain-hunting among deal stocks that had been hit hard earlier in the week.

Agency, state can be sued

BOISE (AP) — The state of Idaho and its Brand Board are not immune from a lawsuit alleging negligence on the part of a brand inspector, a divided Idaho Supreme Court says.

The court on Wednesday ruled 3-2 to reverse 3rd District Judge Dennis Goff, who ruled the Brand Board could not be sued by a Delaware corporation which claimed 1,681 head of cattle were improperly sold.

The Supreme Court relied on an earlier decision in a Pocatello case, which held that public employees and agencies are not immune from lawsuits while performing certain functions if negligence was involved.

In a Canyon County case, a Delaware corporation, Oppenheimer Industries, Inc., sued the Brand Board, seven cattle companies and three individuals over the sale of 1,681 head of cattle. The claim was for $888,000.

Oppenheimer alleged it left the cattle with Bolen Cattle Co. but Bolen changed hands on the cattle and sold the animals without Oppenheimer's permission. Bolen later went into bankruptcy, attorneys said.

Two justices who dissented, Robert Bakes and Alan Shepard, argued that there's nothing in the law to support Oppenheimer's claim against the state.

"The State Brand Board owes no duty to protect Oppenheimer against loss, damage or theft of its cattle by third parties," they said.

A brand inspector testified that he found two brands, one new, on the cattle, as they were being sold. But he did not require bills of sale or additional proof of ownership because he relied on the reputation of the seller, Bolen.

Goff found it was within the inspector's discretionary authority to decide whether to demand additional proof of ownership.

The Supreme Court majority, however, pointed out that the state law involved says if two or more brands are found on cattle, the inspector may ask for additional proof. If a fresh brand is found, the inspector must ask for the proof.

As it ruled in a Pocatello police case, the court said there's a difference between a public agency carrying out discretionary or planning functions, something not found in private business, and "operational" functions conducted without proper care.

Since the law clearly requires additional proof of ownership when a brand inspector encounters a fresh brand, and the inspector did not require that proof, the majority said the judge erred by dismissing the complaint under the "discretionary function" exemption.

In verbal arguments in the case, the brand board's attorney argued the earlier days of the state had every police and fire officer, judge and public officials at jeopardy for their acts.

Injunction for Waremart in ad action

BOISE (AP) — Waremart Inc. has won a preliminary injunction against Smith's Management Co., barring the Utah-based store from conducting any false advertising or using ads comparing the two stores' prices.

Waremart President William D. Long said he was "extremely happy" about Wednesday's ruling by 4th District Judge Alan Schwartzman. Attorneys for Smith's could not be reached for comment.

Boise-based Waremart said advertisements distributed by Smith's in September and October that compared the prices of a number of grocery stores to its own misrepresented Waremart's prices, according to court documents.

Besides the injunction, Waremart is seeking compensation for unspecified damages and attorney's fees from the Salt Lake City-based company.

Tom Welch, Smith's vice president and general counsel, said earlier that his company acknowledged to Waremart that there were errors in the advertisements and that Smith's would print a retraction and apology in an advertisement.

However, Smith's and Waremart officials could not agree on the appropriate size for such an ad, officials said.

Wood exports up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exports of wood products are up from a year ago, mainly because of improved sales to Japan, Taiwan and the European Community, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Shipments in July-September were valued at $730 million, an increase of 10 percent or about $63 million from the third quarter of last year, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said in a report.

Allen saves Raiders from Chargers

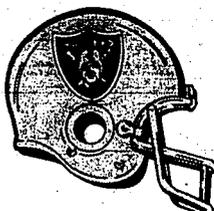

By DENNIS GEORGATOS
The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Marcus Allen, hampered much of the season by an ankle injury, is feeling better. Scoring the winning touchdown in overtime can be effective medicine.

"I haven't been in the end zone in quite some time, so it felt good," said Allen, whose 22-yard run with 2:33 gone in the extra period won the Los Angeles Raiders a 37-10 victory over the San Diego Chargers on Thursday night.

Allen had last scored in the Raiders' 30-28 victory over the Miami Dolphins a month ago.

"Obviously, I think they thought we were going to pass, so it was a perfect situation for us to run the ball. We just had some excellent blocking to get me through the hole and I think it was up to me to get the rest."

Chargers Coach Al Saunders' four games as head coach have included two losses with opponents scoring in the final two minutes and Thursday night's overtime decision.

"I'm proud of the way we came back," said Saunders, whose team rallied from a 31-10 deficit through the third quarter. "We made too many mistakes to beat a good football team. We played a team that was better than us and they deserved to win."

"We fought back. No one ever gave up. It's a shame all those efforts have not paid dividend," said Chargers quarterback Mark Herrmann, who came off the bench to rally San Diego.

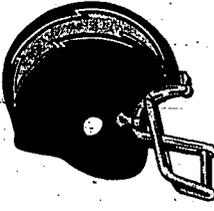

The Raiders' win reversed last year's outcome in San Diego, won by the Chargers in overtime.

"I don't want it to be about coming to San Diego. Anyone who would miss a Raider-Charger game in San Diego has got to be crazy because it's always entertaining," Los Angeles Coach Tom Flores said. "When you look up there and you see a com-table lead and all of a sudden, they start picking away and picking away. The big thing is we won and I'm exhausted again."

The Raiders, winning for the eighth time in nine games after an 0-3 start, drove 56 yards in five plays on their second possession of the overtime period. A key play in the drive was a 22-yard pass completion from Jim Plunkett to Todd Christensen that moved the ball to the San Diego 38. Allen ran for 10 yards to the 48 and, after an incomplete, Allen scooped around right end, broke a couple of tackles and carried two Chargers into the end zone for the winning score.

The Raiders, stung by San Diego's second-half rally from a 21-point deficit, had a chance to win the game with seven seconds to play in regulation. But Chris Bahr's 35-yard field goal attempt was blocked by rookie lineman Jeff Walker, who had blocked two kicks already this season.

Although the kick was attempted on second down and the Raiders recovered the ball, officials didn't allow Bahr a second attempt because time had expired. Herrmann, playing only because regular Dan Fouts was injured and starter Tom Flicek was ineffective, rallied the Chargers, 2-10, to three touchdowns after the Raiders had ridden their defense and Plunkett's arm to a 31-10 lead.

Curtis Adams ran one and 13 yards for touchdowns before Herrmann guided the Chargers 66 yards in eight plays for the tying score. Los Angeles helped the San Diego drive with two penalties — its fourth personal foul infraction of the game and an offside call that negated a pass interception.

Herrmann threw 16 yards to Charlie Joiner with 1:01 left in regulation to tie it.

Los Angeles defensive stars Lester Hayes and Jerry Robinson teamed up to convert two San Diego turnovers into touchdowns.

Little big man At 5-8, Idaho's Bengen specializes in getting 'em where they ain't

By STEVE CHRISTILAW
Special to The Times-News

MOSCOW — Certain jobs just seem to go together.

Like the comic and the straight man.

Or the quarterback and the receiver.

It would be difficult to imagine the game of football, as it is played today, without envisioning pocket receivers hauling in passes from strong-armed quarterbacks.

The quarterback is oft-times referred to as a gunslinger, shooting down defenses with loaded arm and a quick-draw holster.

That being the case, then, the receiver would be the wrangler, toiling all day in the dust to corral loose Mustangs and convert them into first downs and touchdowns.

Brant Bengen, then, is one of the elite wranglers in the Big Sky Conference, both because of his knack for rounding up strays and because of the uncanny mind link that occasionally develops between Bengen, the catcher, and Scott Linehan, the pitcher.

"A lot of times, he (Linehan, the team's quarterback) will have a play called and I'll adjust on the run and he'll know exactly what I'm doing," Bengen explains. "It's kind of funny. The coaches ask what route was that and what was called and what route I actually ran and if Scott knew what was going on. He says, 'Yeah.' They ask, 'did he tell you?' and he says, 'nope, I just knew.'

"I guess it comes from experience."

And a little bit more.

"We have certain rules. If he does this, then you do that. Sometimes we just kind of stretch out the rules a little bit," Bengen says. "If he does this and we're supposed to do that, then I might do that and a little bit more. Or Scott might throw the ball a little bit differently than he is supposed to — on paper — throw the ball."

That kind of synch is the stuff that has made for some exciting quarterback-receiver combinations: Unitas and Berry, Staubach and Pearson, Tom and Largen, Linehan and Bengen.

And don't think Linehan isn't glad to have a receiver like Bengen catching his passes.

"I've always said that the receiver makes the quarterback, and that's true," says Linehan, who has completed 55 passes for 943 yards and eight touchdowns to Bengen this season. "If I didn't have them to help me out... It's important that we have guys like Brant, Eric Varber and Scott Auker and all the guys we have in our program this year — it's just amazing what these guys can do to help you out."

The soft-spoken Bengen, who doesn't look like a standout wide receiver, stands just 5-foot, 8-inches. But that's something of a tradition at Idaho, where Coach Keith Gilbertson and his predecessor, Dennis Erickson, have been recruiting pass-catchers for years who are considered too small to play Division I football.

Last season, Bengen played flanker to Varber's split end, and in that position, Varber caught 75 balls for 1,103 yards and 10 touchdowns. Bengen ended up with 41 catches for 674 yards and three TDs.

This season, Bengen's in the hot seat.

"After the (Northern Arizona) game (a 24-0 loss on Oct. 29), I had a chance to kind of step back and evaluate the season, what was going on and what wasn't happening," Bengen explains. "Kind of reflect back on what kind of effort every has put into this program. (We did that) as individuals, in a collective sense. Everybody just thought about it themselves, and you could tell (the next week) in practice that everybody had thought about it and we just went out and did our own jobs and took care of that."

Since that drubbing — which effectively eliminated Idaho from contention for the Big Sky Con-

Playoffs or no playoffs, BSU-Idaho matchup looms large

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

Idaho's hopes of making the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs again this year hinge on defeating arch-rival Boise State in the featured Big Sky Conference football game of the week.

It's the last weekend of the regular season, and Big Sky champion Nevada-Reno already has qualified for the playoffs. This year there will be 16 teams in a tournament won by Big Sky teams three times in the six years it has been held.

In a nonconference game, Montana 5-4, is at Portland State, with a chance for the Grizzlies to have the first winning football season at Missoula since 1981.

Weber State, struggling through a disappointing 3-7 season, hopes to finish on a high point at Nicholls St., playing at Thibodaux, La., Nov. 29. Idaho, 11-0 and the nation's No. 1-ranked Division I-AA team, has finished its regular season, as have Montana State, 3-8; Northern Arizona, 7-4 and Idaho State, 2-9.

Boise State hasn't had a losing season in 40 years, and Coach Lyle

Setelech's job may be on the line. The Broncos carry a 5-5 record into the Vandals game, but have lost four straight to Idaho, including an embarrassing 37-0 shellacking before a sellout crowd at home two years ago.

Besides hopes for a playoff spot, first-year Idaho Coach Keith Gilbertson said he knows that Idaho-Boise State is the game for both teams.

"The game has become such a big game," he said. "I've never considered a favorite based on a game before I got here. It will be a big game after I leave."

In a statement that might be disputed by some of the other coaches, Gilbertson said Idaho-Boise State is the best rivalry in the conference, this year because it's a season-ending contest.

Setelech, who ordered his practices closed to the news media this week, agrees that if the game were played in a population center, it would be as big as the storied California-Stanford game.

The Vandals have averaged 42 points in four straight victories over BSU. But this year, the Broncos have the league's best defense, giving up just 16.2 points per game and just five touchdown passes. In contrast, ISU gave up 34 TD passes this year and Weber State has surrendered 25.

Setelech has one factor in his favor, the return to action by junior tailback Chris Jackson, hurt in the season-opening game with Eastern Washington, missed seven games but has run for 308 yards the last two weeks.

"Nobody's seen him healthy, nobody has seen what he can do," said Setelech.

The Montana-Portland State game will be a homecoming for UM Coach Don Read, who was head coach there before this season.

"This should be an emotional game for us. We have a ton of respect for them, and I feel they have one of the top quarterbacks around (sophomore Chris Crawford)," he said. Read compared Crawford's potential to that of Idaho star Ken Hobart, who holds many Big Sky passing and total offense records.

Montana lost three of its first four games, but has lost only one of the last five.

ICA's top hands gather for rodeo finals

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Professional rodeo comes to the College of Southern Idaho's Expo Center tonight and Saturday where the Idaho Cowboys Association will be holding its first-ever year-end finals.

The two-day event will draw the top 15 finishers for the season in event each. Finals contestants have earned their positions in competition in many of 40 Idaho sanctioned rodeos.

In addition to a bevy of top hands from the immediate area are cowboys and cowgirls coming from Montana, Oregon, Washington, Nevada and Utah.

Slash T Rodeo Company of Shoshone is one of four rodeo producers providing the stock for the rodeo. Slash T will be featuring the top bucking bull in U2 — ridden only once in three years of competition — along with Super Star, an animal valued bucking bull of the year in the Idaho Cowboys Association in 1985. A horse named Try Me, saddle bronc of the year in both the ICA and Eastern Idaho Rodeo Association, will also be featured.

Saturday's go-round climaxes a long season with the leaders fighting to hang on to leads over second and third place entrants battling for the coveted title. With just a few dollars separating the leaders in most events it's a wide open competition.

One tight race shapes up early where Caldwell's Rolfe Wilson, Marty Bennett of Moscow and Lynn Smith out of Idaho Falls enter bareback riding with only 3:33 separating them.

Less than $200 separates the top three saddle bronc contestants. Chel Pearce of Danville, Wash., is considered a favorite based on his performance in winning the Northwest Rodeo Association title the past two years. Pearce though, will face stern tests from Casey Bequeath, another Caldwell wrestler, as well as Col cowboys Frank Norcutt and Jim Ruby.

Sooty Brown of Rogerson, who trails bull riding legend Brett King of Caldwell by $269, joins locals Shawn Jones, Louis Leguineche and Tom Colechcha in hoping the luck of the draw will provide bulls tough enough to take them to the payoff window close.

More close races to be in store in the timed events.

Jerome barrel racer and Miss College Rodeo, Joni James, will be pushing hard to overtake the lead held by Joan Eckman out of Heppner, Ore. Finishing second by just $48 this year and a close third in the 1984 season should provide all the motivation Eckman needs, but she

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Junior Mindy Gilbert hit three crucial free throws in the final 39 seconds Thursday night to give Twin Falls a 56-53 win over Minico in a Gem State Conference girls' basketball game.

The victory is the first for Twin Falls, now 1-2 for the season and in GSC competition; after a rough start against Highland and Pocatello.

Gilbert's last-minute heroics overshadowed a 17-point performance by Minico's Rose Stuart, who scored 15 points in the second half.

The game seesawed for the first three quarters with Twin Falls capturing the lead for good with three minutes left on a pair of Shelley Wageman free throws.

Gilbert helped extend the lead to four points with a pair of free throws with 39 seconds left and

The biggest problem with basketball's three-point goal is this: It's here

"We've never made it a secret that we dislike the three-point goal in basketball. But until we saw the Polish National Team plan against College of Southern Idaho, we didn't understand how badly we did hate it."

"It was," summed up CSI Coach Fred Trenkle when asked what he thought about the way Poland played to "the line," "the epitome of the three-point mentality."

That was amply reinforced the next day when ESPN carried the Soviet National Team playing Iowa. There it was again — but not to the degree that Poland used it.

Simply put, the three-point mentality moves the focus of offensive attention from the basket to the line. Work the ball inside, then reverse it back out for the three-point shot. Fast break, kick — go for three, save energy and reap greater dividends.

For those of you who saw the game, you will be hard put to remember an instance where anyone but the 6-10 center shot the ball from 12 to 19 feet. If one of them thought of trying a 16-footer, he just went back 3 feet, 9 inches more and shot a three-pointer.

It is a lousy thing to happen to a good game.

It is another example of people wanting something (increased action and scoring) but going about it the wrong way.

The thinking behind the three-point is to "draw out" the defenses, open up passing and penetration lanes and get the offense moving.

So the easy way is simply to enact legislation stating "no zones."

Basketball is filled with using the wrong methods to attain goals. People who decay the height say the basket should be raised to 11 or 12 feet. That does nothing, if you want height neutralized, lower the basket to where the six-footers can slam dunk. That equally inside neutralizes the big guys defense to a greater degree and lowers rims DECLO — The Declo Hornets broke out of a third-quarter scoring lull just in time to turn back the Filer Wildcats 42-34 Thursday night in a Canyon Conference girls' basketball game.

The Hornets never trailed, moving ahead 25-17 at intermission. But they struggled for over seven minutes with just two points as the Wildcats crept back to within a pair.

Richfield 38 Wood River 35

RICHFIELD — Karla Norman scored 15 points in the third quarter Thursday night, leading the Richfield Tigers to a 38-35 non-conference girls' basketball victory over the Wood River Wolverines.

Norman, a senior, hit six buckets from the floor, including a three-point goal, to break a tie game and give the Tigers a five-point lead going into the final quarter.

Wood River, led by Janis Anderson's 18 points, could never get back into the lead after the third quarter.

Richfield also won the junior varsity game 37-12.

FAIRFIELD — The Carey girls picked up scoring from all five starters in the third quarter to break away from Camas County and claim a 40-35 Northside Conference victory Thursday night.

Carey's 15-point effort let them turn a 15-14 halftime deficit into a 29-24 advantage going into the final period.

4 MV cowboys shine at rodeo

MESQUITE, Nev. — Four Magic Valley cowboys won awards at the Wildernesse Circuit Finals Rodeo here recently.

Rob Jaker of Buhl won the average competition in steer wrestling at the finals. Winning saddle buckles for their performances were Kent Cooper of Albion in saddle bronc riding; Mickey Young of Jerome in bareback riding; and Shelley Kendall of Rupert in barrel racing.

The Wildernesse Circuit consists of Idaho, Utah and Nevada, and the finals involved the top 15 finishers for the season in each event.

No shorn locks for hoopster

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A Shoshone-Bannock Indian on the Blackfoot High School basketball team can keep his long hair as long as it doesn't bother the other players, Principal Vaughn Huggle says.

Huggle said Thursday basketball coach Jeff Hironaka wanted all of his players to cut their hair short, but changed his mind following protests last week.

"It was the coach's idea as part of his discipline program," Huggle said, "but he has rethought his position. . . . The boy has to keep it tucked away so it doesn't swing around and hit somebody in the face," Huggle said.

Arvin Osborne and Willis Dixey, members of the Fort Hall Business Council, protested to the school administration about the hair rule. They said tribal religion encourages males to wear long hair.

X-country meet in Washington

CASTLE ROCK, Wash. — The 18th annual Region XII AAU/USA Junior Olympic cross country championship will be held here Sunday.

The competition is open to all runners under the age of 18. The first event, the boys' 10-and-under three kilometer run, will start at 11:30 a.m. PST. The last-race, the girls' 18-and-under race, will begin at 3:10.

The top three teams and top 15 individuals that are not part of the winning teams will earn the right to advance to the national championships in Los Angeles Dec. 6. Age divisions include 10-and-under, 12-and-under, 14-and-under, 16-and-under and 18-and-under.

Medals will be presented to the top 25 finishers and the top three teams in each age group.

Further information can be obtained by phoning Gary Swanson at (206) 274-4473 after 5 p.m. Registration will be taken the day of the meet between 9 a.m. and race time.

CSI's Walker receives award

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho baseball Coach Jim Walker has been selected as the western districts' Diamond Baseball Coach of the Year for 1988.

Diamond Sports Co. of California will present Walker with a plaque at the national coaches convention in San Diego in January.

Walker, who was the coach of the West team at last summer's National Olympics Festival, has coached four straight Region 18 champions, including last year's.

Boosters sponsor shoot-out

BUHL — Buhl High School boosters are sponsoring a $10,000 basketball shoot-out this season at selected boys' and girls' basketball games.

"Tickets for the contest will be sold at each game, with two shooters chosen each evening. At halftime, each contestant will shoot five shots from different points on the basketball floor. If someone makes all five shots, he will win the $10,000 prize. If there is a winner, he will receive $8,000 and the Buhl High activities fund will get $2,000.

The games include the boys' game on Dec. 2 against Glenns Ferry, the girls' game on Dec. 16 against Wood River, the boys' game on Dec. 20 against Gooding, the girls' game on Jan. 6 against Burley, the boys' game on Jan. 9 against Wood River, the girls' game on Jan. 13 against Valley, the boys' game on Jan. 16 against Mountain Home, the boys' game on Jan. 21 against Bishop Kelly, the girls' game on Jan. 29 against Jerome, the boys' game on Feb. 7 against Filer and the boys' game on Feb. 21 against Jensen.

Sampson-less Rockets coast by the Jazz

HOUSTON (AP) — Reserve guard Steve Harris scored 10 of his season-high 14 points in the fourth quarter and Rodney McCray had a career-high 14 assists to lead the Houston Rockets to a 104-90 NBA victory over the Utah Jazz Thursday night.

Harris made three baskets in the first five minutes of the fourth quarter to boost Houston to a 86-74 advantage. The Jazz cut Houston's lead to eight with 6:33 left but were never that close again.

night against New Jersey.

Denver led by as many as 23 points in the first half before Portland began rallying. The Blazers, however, got no closer than 10 points in the second half and that came in the game's final minutes.

Milwaukee 116 Seattle 105

SEATTLE (AP) — Terry Cummings scored 32 points and Ricky Pierce added 27 to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 116-105 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics in NBA play Thursday night.

Milwaukee took the lead for good in the second period when Cummings hit a 19-foot jump shot on the baseline with 2:58 remaining in the period.

Kookie Jerry Reynolds came off the bench to add 10 points in the second period, including six in a row, as Milwaukee overcame a 10-point deficit to take a 60-56 halftime lead.

Tom Chambers led the Sonics with 35 points and Xavier McDaniel added 24.

Dallas 113 LA Clippers 108

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mark Aguirre scored 31 points and reserve forward Detlef Schrempf scored 10 of his 14 points in the fourth quarter Thursday night to help the Dallas Mavericks lead off the Los Angeles Clippers 113-108 in an NBA game.

With Dallas leading 111-106 with 1 1/2 minutes left, the Clippers got two free throws by Cedric Maxwell to pull within three, but missed an opportunity to pull within a point when Lancaster Gordon missed a 10-foot jumper on their next possession.

Schrempf sank two free throws with seven seconds left to clinch the outcome. Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman each had 17 points for Dallas.

Sacramento 92 Indiana 83

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Eddie Johnson scored 22 points and assisted on another during a 75-second stretch in the final period to help spur the Sacramento Kings to a 92-83 NBA victory over the Indiana Pacers Thursday night.

Johnson's spurt started seconds after Kings center LaSalle Thompson was ejected for his second technical foul with 7:49 to go. Thompson was called for throwing an intentional elbow into the Pacers' John Long, who made one of two free throws for a 73-72 Indiana advantage.

Johnson's efforts, coupled with two free throws by Mark Oberding, gave the Kings an 89-75 lead with 6:15 left.

Atlanta 108 Cleveland 89

ATLANTA (AP) — Dominique Wilkins scored seven points in a 12-point Atlanta burst in the second quarter and the Hawks coasted to a 108-89 NBA victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers Thursday night.

The run, with five points from Glenn Rivers, gave Atlanta a 62-55 lead late in the quarter. Wilkins, who also keyed an 8-0 first-quarter run, led Atlanta with 27 points. Kevin Willis had 18 points and 20 rebounds and Rivers scored 17.

Ex-coach Kirk indicted on series of charges

Faces maximum 62 years in prison if convicted on all counts against him

By WOODY BAIRD
The Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Dana Kirk, former Memphis State basketball coach, was indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury on charges of obstruction of justice, mail fraud, income tax evasion and filing false tax returns.

College basketball

If convicted on all counts, Kirk, 51, could draw a maximum sentence of 62 years in prison and fines of $912,000, the U.S. attorney's office said.

Kirk, who turned Memphis State into the Top Twenty contender, also was named in the 11-count indictment with seeking payoffs to have his team play in tournaments.

Kirk, who surrendered to federal authorities shortly after the indictment was issued, was released on his own recognizance pending an appearance next Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Aaron Brown.

Kirk refused comment on the charges.

The coach was fired from Memphis State in September after seven seasons. Memphis State President Thomas Carpenter has refused to outline his reasons for firing Kirk except to say it was in the best interest of the university.

Kirk was indicted by a grand jury that for the past 1 1/2 years has been investigating allegations of sports gambling in the Midwest.

He testified before the panel last year and acknowledged that his personal finances were under review. He denied any wrongdoing.

U.S. Attorney Hickman Ewing Jr. said the charges against Kirk were not related to gambling.

Ewing also said that rumors of point-shaving on Memphis State basketball games were unfounded.

"Based on what we have determined, there is no evidence of any point-shaving or any game-fixing at Memphis State University," Ewing said after the indictment was returned.

Kirk was charged in the indictment with soliciting a $2,000 payoff to have Memphis State participate in a basketball tournament at New Orleans in 1982 and a $10,000 payoff to send the Tigers to a tournament at Los Angeles in 1983.

"The negotiations for Memphis State's participation in the 1982 Sugar Bowl tournament were terminated due to Kirk's demands for a personal payment," the indictment said.

The indictment said Kirk was paid $10,000 for program telephone interviews with the media covering the Los Angeles tournament. The money was paid by tournament organizers and was required for Memphis State's participation in the games, the charges said.

The officials at Memphis State were not told about the payment, and by receiving the money, Kirk defrauded the university of the loyal and honest services required by his contract with the school, Ewing said.

The indictment also accused Kirk of trying to influence the grand jury testimony of Memphis businessman Ira Lichterman, who was expected to testify about basketball tickets allegedly sold by the former coach.

Kirk told Lichterman to lie or refuse to answer if the jury asked about such ticket sales, the indictment said.

The tax charges accuse Kirk of under-reporting his taxable income in 1982 and 1983 and of understating income received from summer basketball camps from 1980-1983.

In 1982, he reported an income of $122,630 when his actual income was $171,707, and in 1983, he reported an income of $164,483 when he actually made $231,338, the indictment said.

Kirk took over a struggling basketball program at Memphis State and posted records of 13-14 in his first two years with the Tigers.

But the Tigers had a 24-5 record the following year and were on a roll that took them to the Final Four of the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament in 1985. They returned to the playoffs last season, but were eliminated in the second round.

The NCAA later sanctioned the Tigers for fielding ineligible players in the 1985 and 1986 tournaments, told Memphis State to return almost $1 million gained from those games and put the school on two years' probation.

"The players, who were not named, should have been ineligible because they received more than they should have in federal student grants, the NCAA said.

After his firing, Kirk agreed to a cash settlement of $170,833 for the 30 months remaining on his contract with Memphis State, the university has said.

Kirk has refused to make any public statements about his dismissal except to say that it came as a surprise.

After testifying before the jury last year, Kirk acknowledged that his personal finances were under review. But he insisted he had done nothing illegal.

Kirk was offered in published reports last year of having received $10,000 to former star Keith Lee's family to get him to sign with Memphis State.

Kirk has denied the allegation, and Lee, now with the Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association, has refused to discuss it. There have been no charges filed against Kirk in relation to that.

At Memphis State, Kirk became a local celebrity, hosting television and radio shows, appearing in various TV ads and drawing glowing praise from Memphis State fans.

He was selected as the city's No. 1 celebrity in a 1982 newspaper poll and was chosen "Communicator of the Year" by the Memphis chapter of the Public Relations Society of America.

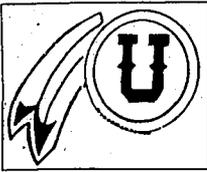

Kirk had an overall record of 158-58 at Memphis State. He previously coached at Tampa and Virginia Commonwealth.

Utes face bowl game of sorts against arch-rival Cougars

By BOB BLACK
The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — To Utah, Saturday's game with arch-rival Brigham Young is akin to a bowl game.

BYU, it's a must-win contest if the Cougars are to have a chance for an 11th straight Western Athletic and a Holiday Bowl berth, but they must get by Utah and conference contenders San Diego State and Air Force, all away from home.

"The pressure is on them," Richey said. "They're playing for a bowl bid. If they lose, you're pretty much out of any bowl bid. We're just playing for pride and more or less bragging rights."

The Cougars are coming off a 10-7 loss last weekend to lowly Oregon State of the Pac 10. BYU defensive back Rodney Thomas said the team is trying to forget about that loss and concentrate on the last three games.

"We have put it past us because we have three games at stake here," Thomas said. "There's so much at stake that we can't look at the past. We have to look forward and go out and get the next three wins."

The Cougars do have one factor in their favor. It's been four years since BYU has lost two straight. Since then, BYU has scored 50 points or more in three games following their six losses.

"From our standpoint and the kids' standpoint, it helps," Ute Coach Jim Fassel said of BYU's 1983-84 season.

passes for 100 yards and one TD.

BYU's quarterback again will be a mature football team and they'll come back."

of things," said Lindsay, starting his first season for the Cougars. "It may be a lack of confidence and a lack of execution when it comes down to it. I don't know."

Wide receiver Mark Bellini has accounted for 718 of those yards, Trevor Muller 420, Lakei Helmuli 318 and Robert Parker 301.

Helmuli, a fullback, also is a threat on the ground. He's carried 171 times for 716 yards and has three games remaining to break the 1,000-yard barrier.

Utah's Eddie Johnson, who gained 1,021 yards two years ago as a freshman, needs just 53 yards against the Cougars to eclipse the 1,000-yard mark a second time and become the first Ute to do so twice.

The Utes, who finished 8-4 overall last year and third in the WAC, now face the prospect of having their third losing season in five years. This is a team which started off last season with five wins and had a chance for the WAC title going into the final two games.

"We're to the point where we started last season 5-0 and now hope to end this season at 4-7," Richey said. "Going into the season, if we had anticipated a 4-7 record, we would have been devastated. Now we'll take it without a doubt."

Conference title and 10th straight post-season bowl invitation.

"This is our bowl game," said Utah wide receiver Loren Richey. "A win here could salvage the season and give our team a lot of momentum."

The 2-7 Utes have had their problems this year. They began the season hoping to challenge for the WAC title and get their first post-season bowl invitation since 1964.

Both the hard-luck Utes began with seven straight losses and didn't win their first game until Nov. 8, a 38-28 victory over Colorado State. Last week, the Utes beat Utah State 27-10.

Brigham Young's story is only slightly better, at least by BYU standards. The Cougars, 4-1 in the WAC and 6-3 overall, still have a chance to win the conference title

"The winner of the game gets the Beehive Cup, awarded to the team in Utah with the best in-state record. Both Utah and BYU have beaten Utah State in earlier games, with Brigham Young taking a 52-0 victory in the season opener."

"I think whenever BYU and Utah get together, you should throw the records out," Thomas said. "They could be 0-10 or 0-5 (and) I think we still would be concerned."

Utah's Larry Egger threw for 256 yards and one score in last weekend's win over USU, while Richey, the WAC's leading receiver and No. 4 in the nation, caught 10

Big Eight showdown features contrasting styles — of words

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska linebackers Mike Munford and Kevin Parsons have great respect for the talents of Oklahoma All-American Brian Bosworth, although they don't have time for his public personality.

"He's a great player," Munford said. "He's got all the tools and great linebacker instincts. When we've watched film while preparing for other teams, he sticks out. You can't miss him."

Parsons said, "He's obviously a good player. He's aggressive and strong and does a good job finding the ball."

But as a public personality, the Huskers' respect for Bosworth stops.

"Generally, people who have a lot to say about themselves don't think very much of themselves," Parsons said. "I wouldn't say Brian Bosworth shouldn't do the things he does because that's his business."

"But that's not my style. And I don't think it's right to handle the game or your private life that way either."

Bosworth and his third-ranked Oklahoma team met Saturday in a nationally televised showdown. Both teams have 9-1 records.

The Sooners are 6-0 in the Big Eight Conference and would win the league title with a victory. A Nebraska victory would give the Cornhuskers, 5-1 in the Big Eight, a share of the title, along with Colorado and Oklahoma.

Bosworth has been featured in publications from Sports Illustrated to The Wall Street Journal to the current issue of People.

He admits to spitting on ballcarriers. He has said the NCAA probe of Nebraska was good because it tarnished the Huskers' clean image. And he said UCLA was a legitimate doormat in a 38-3 season-opening loss to Oklahoma.

Munford said he didn't read the previous Sports Illustrated story on Bosworth, which included a picture of the junior All-American in the shower.

"I saw the pictures," Munford said. "That was enough for me. He's a pretty tough guy. I seem to be a media-type person. I suppose I can handle it, more power to him. But I don't think the way he conducts himself is the proper way."

Bosworth's habit of standing over tackled opponents and taunting them also bothers Munford.

"That's a bunch of baloney," he said. "We're taught to make a good hit and if you want to help him up, then help him. But if you don't, you get off him and go back to the huddle. You don't stand over him and count him out."

But Bosworth isn't the only Oklahoma contender for the lead role in "The Mouth That Roared."

Some of his fellow defenders have predicted a shutout Saturday. Quarterback Jamelle Holloway, who said Oklahoma would win 23-7, called Nebraska middle guard Danny Noonan — a Lombardi Trophy nominee as the nation's best lineman — "just another lineman."

"He won't even get to me," Holloway said.

hate to do all that talking and have to eat it afterward."

Offensive tackle Tom Welter said he doesn't think any Nebraska players take the Oklahoma talk personally.

NEBRASKA COACH TOM OSBORNE Said to take a more closed-mouth approach than Sooners

Noonan just smiled when asked about Oklahoma's comments.

"I really don't like to talk," he said. "I don't like the attention that much. Then you've got everybody shooting for you."

"Last year, people didn't know who I was. When I played well, the other teams would go, 'Wow, who was that?'"

Noonan said that if a player needs to talk a lot to play well, then it's all right with him. But Nebraska cornerback Brian Davis doesn't like it.

"They do a lot of popping off," Davis said. "I don't understand it. They're always being hot dogs."

"It's a big game Saturday, so they'll probably do a little extra talking. But no matter what anyone says, it still comes down to what happens on the field. And I would anyway," he said. "That's the way they run their organization."

"Coach (Tom) Osborne doesn't run this organization like that. He doesn't believe in talking a lot of garbage and allowing his players to do the same. He's a real respectful man. Whether he wins or loses, he's respectful of the other team."

Welter said he wouldn't trade the Nebraska way for freedom of speech Oklahoma-style.

"Look how much trouble they've caused this year — one person in particular — with their talk about UCLA and things like that," Welter said. "We don't try to self-center one individual. We're more of a team. And if you're good enough, you won't have to tell everybody how good you are. You'll stand out anyway."

terence championship—the Vandals have been on a roll, winning their last three games and putting themselves in a position to make the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs if they beat Boise State Saturday.

"That's like the '68 1964," Bengen says. "I was worse off in '64. We had fewer breaks or however you want to say it—we were 2-5 (after the first seven games). That was a real downer. We went out and that's what I believe and just took it from there. I got that same feeling now."

"There are a lot of strong leaders and characters on this team that give it its personality," he continues. "It's just a lot of guys who realize what has to be done and going out and doing. Most of it is leading by example. There is some talk going in, but most of it's done on the field."

"The 1988 season has been different from 1987 and not just because the Vandals have a new coach. The class of '88 led the team with some question marks heading into the new season, and those questions have had to be answered along the way. In these bleak situations have been filled in, the Vandals have developed a personality—a character of their own."

From Bengen, a senior from the Boise suburb of Selkirk, Wash., who transferred to Idaho in 1983 after a year at the University of British Columbia, much was expected this season. As a junior, he finished ninth in the Big Sky in all-purpose running, first in the league and fourth in the nation in punt returns and seventh in the conference in kickoff returns.

Although he's nearly 300 yards above last year's pace in all-purpose running and has already doubled last year's kickoff return yardage, Bengen hasn't inherited Vander's starter status. The Vandals' leading transfer, Neil Morris, who already has 16 more receptions this year than Bengen did all of last season, and Bengen is behind his own pace of last year in punt returns.

"It's a balanced offense of which Bengen is an important part—but only a part."

Still, there's little doubt that Bengen is Idaho's little big-play man—the straw that stirs the drink in the Vandals' offense.

"Week in and week out, everybody has seen the pass," Bengen explains. "We go back to Central Michigan and they haven't seen the pass that Bengen has. The Vandals lost that game, 34-21, in September. But, everyone has seen it here and they know how to defend it very well. It just comes down to execution; whether they execute better than we do or whether we do better than they do. In some cases, if we self-destruct, it helps them."

"It's a crazy league," he continues. "These weeks are just totally opposite from the week before. One week, they have a lot of respect for you as a receiver and next—none at all."

would reduce arch on shots, meaning rebounding would be flatter and easier. Then everyone would play defensive tactics inside because girls would be at least partially be preferable to height."

"But if such a rule is enacted, it would limit the situation that quarried men not allowed under the boards or the country will be filled with widows and orphans."

If you want greater offensive action and increased defensive effort, you'll have to have a 10-foot, 6-inch shot. You shrink the playing area. Make any shot over 19-9 worth just one point. The offense then will bring the ball inside. The defense has 20 men then. Now, you have put pressure on action on both sides, one pushing out the other pushing in.

"Perhaps we worry too much because to really get a three-point shot, you have to have great shooters like Poland and him."

It will be infrequent that high schools will have three or four three-point shooters. If they turn to the line, it's probably more a case of poor coaching than anything. College teams would have to come the closest. The most logical would be the NBA but it has the no-zone rule and, consequently, the slow-release, great shooters haven't taken that same over and probably a lot of it. But let's take it to its logical conclusion for high schools. Once each week every Gem State Conference team could arrive at a predetermined site for a three-phase competition. Each coach could have five starters and five reserves and they would dutifully go out and shoot 10 and six three-point goals, respectively. Then each would have four free throws. Then the first part would be repeated.

The totals then could be compared against every other team and, voila, you could play every team in the conference six times during the season. How fun?

Then you wouldn't have to wonder at the inequities of a team working 36 minutes to build up a six-point lead and then losing because the other team brings in a fat kid who can't dribble straight from 21.

You see there is one other major drawback to the thinking that has foisted this three-point thing on us. CSI is a prime example.

One can say for certain that Coach Prentke will not emphasize the three-point goal. He likes it inside. He likes the break. He believes you take the shot according to your rhythm rather than a line on the floor. Also, Greg Boyd is gone and right now CSI doesn't have a proven bomber although it has a couple of suspects.

Prentke is hopeful that the thinking of defense pushing out is correct because then things open up for his guys. CSI's quickness and a lot of dribbling fun.

But I won't take long for foes to understand that CSI isn't a three-point mentality team so it will play the pre-three-point way—stand back and let the other team's Johnson don't sneak behind them for a slam dunk.

ced the game with a charity shot with 30 seconds later.

"I was glad to see Minda make those free throws to the end," said Twin Falls Coach Paul Stover. "The kids played hard. Both teams played very hard."

For Minico Coach Val Christensen, it was another game the Spartans could have won.

"That's par for the course for us," he said. "It was just a typical game for us, rebounding killed us."

The Spartans looked like they would cruise to the win after scoring eight straight points in the second quarter after Twin Falls had tied the game 16-16.

Late baskets by Wageman, Dana Cowan and Rachael Carter cut the Minico lead to three points at the half.

Stuart caught fire in the third quarter scoring six points as Minico took a four-point lead into the final quarter.

Twin Falls started its comeback about three seconds into the fourth when Gilbert drove to the middle, scored and laced on a free throw cutting the Spartans' lead to 39-38.

Two minutes later, Twin Falls tied the game and then went ahead at the five-minute mark, but Stuart helped keep Minico within striking distance, bombing away from the outside.

Stuart hit a 3-point shot and added another field goal giving Minico a one-point advantage at the 3:30 mark.

The Spartans kept coming close and tied the ball with a second left and looking at a two-point deficit.

The ending was wild as two Minico shots were off to the left side and Gilbert finally grabbed the rebound with three seconds left and was fouled.

Loss left Minico at 1-3 for the season and in GSC play.

will have to keep her eye on 1985 ICA champ James.

Brothers Steve and John Maggard of Caldwell decided to split up their money-losing act for the team roping finals. Steve will rope with Barry Johnson while John team up with Dan Roiser.

Holding a 3940 lead on Hepper, the cowboy Tony Curran, call rope Kelsey Fulton of Lewiston is the sole leader assured of winning the year end title. But the remainder of the field will vie for go-round wins and average to end the year. Included in that field are Goding's Walt Parke, several times the Wilderness Circuit Rodeo Ullitt, Wendell's Todd and Kirk Webb and Joe Sagers of Burley.

Three of Oregon's best cowboys hope to keep the family in the rodeo. Willgoose, Mike, Tony and Steve Curran of Hepper are tough in all of the timed events and will be out in calf and team roping as well. Tony presently holds a 3700 lead over Felton and will need to pocket some prize money to maintain that advantage.

Some local ladies can be seen in the breakaway roping—an event just added to this year's finals. Castleford's Stacey and Shelley Hill and Kayla Peterson, along with Shoshone's Patti O'Maley are top selections in the crowd-pleasing event.

Performances are scheduled for 7 p.m. each evening. Advance tickets are on sale at Vickers' Western Store, Macle's Boots and Western Wear and Peterson's or can be purchased from any CSI rodeo team member. Prices for advance tickets are $4 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and children under 12. Ticket prices at the door will increase to $4.50 and $2.

Comic relief

Headliner Bobby Kosser, who has appeared on David Letterman's Late Night Show, reaches the punch line of a joke. Inset: Tim Wiggins, the night's second comedian, entertains

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Every Thursday night an air of giddy expectation permeates Diamondfield Jack's. The lights dim. The room is full. The crowd is antsy with anticipation.

And then, out of nowhere, comic relief appears. Live comés. In person. Direct from Pocatello. Professional comedians flow in from the West Coast, plying their trade and honing their craft on a festive crowd. And the crowd loves it.

The night's two main performers Nov. 13 were Tim Wiggins, a 30-year-old Wally Cox in tennis shoes, and headliner Bobby Kosser, a mag working up to be "Nerd Royalty" who has appeared on The Johnny Carson Show and David Letterman's Late Night Show.

"Are turn signals optional equipment on cars in Idaho?" asks a perplexed Kosser. "No, I know what it is. You see a turn signal, and you think it means, 'I've got to block that person.'"

Kosser also finds ready material in kids who dye their hair purple on one side, and shave their heads on the other.

"How does a punker know when he gets a bad haircut?" he asks. "When he gets a job."

Wiggins milks mileage out of Tupperware. Women love to party. They love any excuse for a party, even Tupperware, he said.

"Can you imagine a guy yelling up his friends and asking, 'Hey, Joe, I'm having a crescent wrench party. Wanna come over?'"

Jokes about politics, jokes about their appearance, jokes about sex. Life is fair game for these professional performers who want to break into the big time. And Twin Falls is on the road to the big time.

Since Sept. 18, Diamondfield Jack's at the Canyon Springs Inn offers a live comedy show every Thursday night beginning at 8:30 p.m. For a $3 cover charge, the audience can be entertained by professional comedians who travel throughout the West on a comedy circuit.

Most of the comics are from the West Coast — Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. While in Idaho, they play Pocatello, Twin Falls and then travel to Boise for two nights. From Boise, they may travel to Salt Lake City or Las Vegas.

Although they make jokes about Pocatello, and you have the feeling they will joke about Twin Falls at the next stop, while they're in Twin, they love it.

Even though Kosser has appeared on national television, he still loves to play the smaller towns, such as Twin Falls.

"It's great practice playing before real people," he said. "Twin Falls is terrific. The crowd was very nice and more sophisticated than I thought."

The crowd was also more sophisticated than they thought, Kosser said. People came up to him afterward and asked, "How were we," he said.

"I'd like to tell this town that I enjoyed being here," said Wiggins.

Comedy right now is king of Wiggins' life. Admittedly a shy man offstage and awkward around people, he blossoms in front of a crowd, he said. He has done some comedy writing for others and some comedy advertising writing. One night, he went to an amateur show and figured, "I could do that well, or better."

He is married and lives in Oakland when he's not traveling. But he's traveling 50 per-

Dinner theater plays to families

A smattering of musical styles — from comic opera to string music to scenes from the Broadway musical "Grease" — will be served along with ham dinner at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts today and Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets for the Junior Musical Playhouse Company presentation, designed for family entertainment, cost $2 per adult, $5 for students and $25 per family.

Artists' volcano views on display at Herrett

TWIN FALLS — "Living with the Volcano: The Artists of Mount St. Helens," an exhibit which explores the responses of 21 artists to the force and energy of the volcano, will be on display Nov. 25 through Dec. 18 at the Herrett Museum Art Gallery, College of Southern Idaho.

The public is invited to attend the opening reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Nov. 25 at the museum.

In 1983, the Museum of Art at Washington State University, Pullman, Wash., one of the few institutions in the ash fallout zone, presented an exhibition by artists who interpreted the closely monitored events surrounding the eruption and its aftermath. This exhibit was curated by Galen Hansen, Egádra — Percival — and Patricia Walkson and offers a wide variety of artistic responses in a wide range of forms. Although most of the artists in the exhibition are from the Northwest, artists from as far afield as Michigan and Virginia also are featured.

The 33 paintings, prints and photographs reflect the beautiful, the awesome and the absurd aspects of the volcano's impact. Far from being a gloomy depiction of a powerful natural disaster, the exhibit reveals an underlying spirit of optimism and celebration at having lived through an extraordinary experience, according to the exhibit sponsors.

Museum hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday; 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 1 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday. For more information contact Mike Green at 733-9554, ext. 260.

'Nutcracker' ballet set Dec. 17

TWIN FALLS — More than 60 dancers, three scene changes and 100 costumes will help bring to life the story of "The Nutcracker" Dec. 17 at the College of Southern Idaho. Performed by American Festival Ballet, this world-famous ballet has become a holiday tradition in Twin Falls.

Tickets, costing $7.50, will go on sale Monday at all branch offices of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, Judi's Bookstore in Twin Falls and at the CSI Bookstore. Patron tickets, which provide special seating and recognition, are $30 for two.

"We have toured 'The Nutcracker' for 12 years," said tour manager Joann Muneta, "but each year we add or change something to keep the production alive and zestful. This year we are adding the 'mice and soldier' scene which was dropped three years ago when we re-choreographed Act I."

In this scene, which is especially popular with children, the Nutcracker, aided by Clara and the wooden soldiers, battles the Mouse King and his helpers. When Clara helps defeat the Mouse King, the Nutcracker is transformed into a Prince who takes her on a magical Christmas journey.

Other dances included in the production are the Waltz of the Flowers, the Dance of the Snowflakes, the Grand Pas de Deux danced by the Sugarplum Fairy and

Scorsese brought own idea of script to 'Hustler' sequel

By BOB THOMAS
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Martin Scorsese was finishing "After Hours" in London when a telephone call came from Paul Newman. "Would you be interested in doing a sequel to 'The Hustler'?"

"Yes," the director replied. The result of his snap decision is currently crowding the nation's theaters. It is "The Color of Money," starring Newman and Tom Cruise.

As the film was opening, Scorsese was in Los Angeles to do his bit in a media blitz that may not have been needed. The director attracted almost as much attention as his stars, since he is a prime and influential figure among the new breed of filmmakers.

He is a smallish man with a trimmed black beard and a staccato delivery of ideas and observations. He admitted that after coming in late on "The Hustler" sequel, he brought his own concept about the script.

"I usually find that when I start to work with someone new, I like to be in on the very beginning of the script," he said. "I brought in another writer (Richard Price) and changed to a whole new idea, which Mr. Newman accepted. "The only use we made of 'The Hustler' was not to try to make a sequel but to do a follow-up to the character of Fast Eddie Felson and let the new film stand on its own. The original script that Paul gave me had sequences from the original film, and I felt that was not the way to go for me."

At one point the filmmakers considered an appearance from Jackie Gleason, Minnesota Fats in the original film, but the idea was discarded. "It would have seemed like an insert, with no organic connection to the new film."

The casting of Fast Eddie's young protégé was crucial; the actor had to match the charismatic Newman. When Tom Cruise was proposed, Scorsese approved. He had met Cruise in 1983 and had seen him in "All the Right Moves" and "The Color of Money" under heavy training for the pool shooting. "Every shot he does in the picture is real, except for a very difficult shot where the cue ball jumps over two other balls and hits the 9 in the pocket. He could have learned that in another few days, but we didn't want to take the time," the director said.

Newman, of course, had already demonstrated his skill with the cue. Scorsese stressed the importance of having both actors do their own playing. "The relationship they had with the table was very important, the way they stood around the table, the way they cared about it when they played."

Any nervousness that Cruise may have had in co-starting with an icon was dispelled in two weeks of day-long rehearsals. "I think they became pretty good friends," said the director.

Some critics have called "The Color of Money" the most accessible of Scorsese's films, which have included "Taxi Driver," "New York, New York," "Raging Bull" and "King of Comedy."

"I think they're all accessible, but maybe to smaller parts of the audience than maybe what the industry would like to have," he said.

"I tend to like pictures where the character takes prominence, rather than the plot. That doesn't mean I like films where people wander through rooms for 2½ hours, just to develop character. There has to be some plot also."

Director Martin Scorsese says he didn't want to make 'The Color of Money' a mere sequel to 'The Hustler'

Shows raise funds for arts academy

TWIN FALLS — The Sourdough Supper Theater production of "An Evening with Robert Service and Friends" raised more than $2,000 to benefit the Renaissance Academy of the Arts, according to Esther Nicholson, president of the Renaissance Academy, producers of the show.

Tickets for the performances Nov. 13-15 were sold out within a day after notice of the fund-raising appeared in "The Times-News." Nicholson said.

The money was raised to help keep the academy open, she said. "It's the only thing of its kind in the community, the only place where young people have to go and perform with their peers."

'Oklahoma' slated

RUPERT — Minico High School students will perform Rogers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma" today and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. Directed by Maren Oppeil, the musical features a cast of 33 students, plus Tausha Spaulding's clogging students.

Starring in the production are Kim Moore, Kyle Johnson, Teresa Eames, Kristen Mechem, Richard Ramirez, Phillip Hayden and J. P. Bodey.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students under 12 and senior citizens. Family tickets are $10. There is no charge for Minico students with activity cards.

'Okie' fever cools off

Just as well to star

"We don't burn our draft cards down on Main Street. We like livin' right and bein' free. We don't smoke marijuana in Muskogee. We don't take our trips on LSD." Merle Haggard, "Okie From Muskogee" (1969).

By JOE EDWARDS
The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country music star Merle Haggard isn't sure if his hit song "Okie From Muskogee" was a curse or a blessing to his career. But now he says audiences are starting to forget about it.

"It's finally cooled off over the last three years," the 49-year-old performer said. "It's not necessary for us to do that song every night. Sometimes I even forget to sing it. We have new hits and I'm kind of glad. I always wondered if I needed that song to make it."

Haggard, whose criminal record was erased when Ronald Reagan pardoned him while governor of California in 1972, has long felt the song branded him as a hawk with a casual social conscience and pure lifestyle.

"It has political overtones that I'd rather not get involved in," he said in a telephone interview from his home in Redding, Calif. "It's not that I don't feel that way. It just mixed politics and music."

"It established a career or kicked a great career right in the butt," he said. "The song became the anthem of hardhats and made Haggard the populist poet. But antiwar activists thought the tune was bunk."

Haggard's songs have carried him to the No. 1 spot on the charts more than 30 times dating back to 1965. He's released more than 70 albums, including the platinum "Pancho and Lefty" in 1983.

His current album, "A Friend in California," echoes more positive themes than usual with such songs as "I Had a Beautiful Time," "This Time I Really Do" and "Thank You for Keeping My House."

He's been unpredictable, though, with one gospel album ("Songs for the Mama That Tried") and another satiating Dixieland ("I Love Dixie Blues"). He's also a student of the guitar stylings of jazz artist Howard Roberts.

Veteran country music star Merle Haggard reports that he sometimes forgets to perform 'Okie from Muskogee'

He is a craftsman as a songwriter, blessed with insights that pour out portraits of everyday life.

Haggard's parents left Oklahoma for Bakersfield, Calif., in the 1930s. His father died when he was 9. Merle was a child runaway and was later sent to reform school. He's been divorced three times and recently remarried.

When he was 20, he was California prisoner 945200 at San Quentin for burglarizing a cafe during a drunken spree with friends.

He was paroled two years later in 1960 and went to play guitar for Wyna Stewart. He recorded "Sing a Sad Song" and it rose to the country Top 20. Two years later, he had his first big hit with "All My Friends Are Gonna Be Strangers." By the end of the decade he had become a country music star.

His hits have included "You Take Me for Granted," "Mama Tried," "Barroom Buddies" (a duet with Clint Eastwood), "The Way I Am" and "Going Where the Lonely Go." He won a Grammy award in 1984 for "That's the Way Love Goes."

His most requested song: since "Okie From Muskogee" is the melodious "Silver Wings," which was recorded more than 15 years ago.

"There are some nights when we don't sing 'Okie,' but we have to do 'Silver Wings,'" he said. "I've had club entertainers tell me it's the most requested song they've had over the past 15 years."

Haggard still performs on the road 150-200 dates a year. "It's necessary for me to do it to feel young. If I take time off, I find myself looking more like the easy chair. I feel better working."

"I'm getting stronger; cranker and stronger. To be serious, the road seems to get longer but the music is more rewarding. It offsets itself."

He describes his special talent as "the ability to shape melodies and recitations into songs and get them on tape and make them presentable to the public. It takes some talent, because the experience wasn't there to begin with. But 90 percent of talent is experience. You refine the talent by repetition: How do you get to Carnegie Hall? Practice."

Arquette, from a talented family, making a film career breakthrough

By BOB THOMAS
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — After an early career of playing runaway teenagers, alcoholic teen-agers and pregnant teen-agers, Rosanna Arquette has made a breakthrough as an adult actress of amazing skill and range.

As a performer she is hard to categorize but easy to remember. In "After Hours" she was the eccentric Greenwich Villager who started Griffin Dunne on his perilous adventures. In the comedy, "Desperately Seeking Susan," she held her own against the flamboyant Madonna. Even though her role in the Western "Silverado" was severely cut, she enough remained to make her memorable.

Now Miss Arquette is appearing opposite Eric Roberts in Island Pictures' "Nobody's Fool," which she describes as a black romantic comedy. She plays a small-town young woman who discovers a whole new world when she becomes involved with the scenic designer of a theatrical company.

"I saw the movie and I liked it, so I am doing publicity for it," she remarked. "I don't usually see my films. I feel uncomfortable watching them. This is the first time I was able to sit and watch and not judge it."

"This is not a blockbuster movie like 'Top Gun.' People keep telling me, 'Don't call it a small movie! Well, it is a small movie. We made it for $1 million. But it's well shot, with big scenes and a lot of background people in them. It's a movie I'm proud of.'"

"I'm proud of it, too, because it was written by a woman, Beth Henley, who wrote the play 'Crimes of the Heart,' and directed by a woman, Evelyn Purcell. I love Beth's work; she's so emotional. A lot of men who write for women try to hide their emotions. Not Beth. She lets her emotions hang right out there."

Rosanna Arquette is a fourth-generation performer. Her great-grandfather was a vaudevillian, her grandfather was Cliff Arquette, remembered for his television role as the old coddler Charlie Weaver. Her father, Lewis Arquette, has been involved with some of the seminal acting companies such as The Committee and Paul Sills Theater. He plays her "mean boss" in "Nobody's Fool."

"I was raised around actors, musicians and artists, so I was exposed to the arts when I was young," she remarked. "The first movie I can recall seeing was 'Red Shoes' at the age of 3 1/2 or 4. After that I always wanted to be a dancer."

Miss Arquette was born in New York 26 years ago, and much of her youth was spent wherever her activist parents went (her mother Mardi is a poet and artist). That included Chicago, Washington, Hollywood and an artists' commune in Virginia.

She did her own traveling at the age of 15 when she made a cross-country tour with three other teenagers, remained in San Francisco and became active in the theater world.

At 19 she was back in Hollywood to play a succession of troubled teenagers in television movies. Her second assignment was "The Dark Secret of Harvest Home" with Bette Davis. "I asked her question after question, so eager was I to learn about those great days in Hollywood," Miss Arquette said. "I remember sitting on her lap one day on location while the company took hours to prepare a shot. 'This is hell!' she said, and I realized how much time she had wasted waiting on movie sets."

The turning point came for the young actress with the television movie "The Executioner's Song," in which she played the wife of the convicted killer Gary Gilmore.

Plodding 'American Tail' relies too much on cliché

By MICHAEL HEALY
The Denver Post

"An American Tail" is an animated feature of the old-fashioned Disney sort, hand-drawn by many, many artists and hand-drawn by many, many animators. The process is something of a dying art, and badly for Steven Spielberg, the movie's executive producer, for trying to give it an infusion.

Now the bad news. "An American Tail" is pretty innocuous fare, which might keep the interest of very small children, but will bore and annoy anyone older.

The main problem is the stock story of 19th century immigrants' dreams of America, and their disillusionment when they actually get here. This story has been told and retold in the movies, and must be specific for it to have any emotional power. That is this standard American myth only has strength when it is exemplified by one immigrant or one family. Otherwise it is just a re-enactment of a pious lesson.

And that is the main difficulty with "American Tail." It does not matter that the story is now told from the point of view of mice, who flee Czarist Russia to get away from marauding cats. Because the mice in question are the Mousekewitz family, we must assume that the cats are anti-Semites, and nasty on in the movie we are treated to a razzle-dazzle free-for-all pogrom, full of narrow escapes and comic chases.

To reduce the persecution of the Jews to a game of cat and mouse is offensively simplistic and just plain misinformation. Parents who bring their kids to the film to learn something about American history had better be ready to do some intensive explaining of the way it really was back then.

But these are the movie's central metaphor. (mice equal immigrants, cats equal oppressors) is so silly. It is a wonder the movie is not even worse than it is. On shipboard we find that there are Irish mice and Italian mice too. The Irish ones are sentimental drunks, of course — there is something here to prickle many ethnic groups who are tired of these clichés being reiterated for yet another generation of innocents.

The story centers on little Fievel Mousekewitz (the voice of 7-year-old Phillip Glasser), who gets separated from his family while on the way to New York City and wanders those mean and cat-ridden streets looking for his home. Along the way he meets villains like Warren T. Rat (John Finnegan), who gyps the newcomers and runs teenage-weeale sweat shops. And he meets nice creatures, like a French pigeon (Christopher Plummer) who is building the Statue of Liberty (sort of puts a whole new light on pigeons' primary use of that lion, eh?) and urges Fievel to "never say never." And our mouse even meets a cat, Tiger (Dom DeLuise), who likes mice and helps the wee one look for Mom and Dad.

At a certain point, the mice decide to unite and drive the cats off Manhattan, and Fievel plays a big part in this plot, led by the richest mouse in New York, Gussie Mausheimer (Madeline Kahn).

Kids key to matinee resurgence

By BOB THOMAS
The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD — The matinee is making a comeback with youngsters and their parents clamoring to see daytime flicks at the nation's movie houses.

With an eye toward profit, theater owners are increasingly scheduling youth-oriented films for special morning and afternoon showings and on weekends only during the school year.

"Matinees can be profitable for theaters, especially at the concession stand," said Meyer Gottlieb, executive vice president of the Samuel Goldwyn Company. "They can sell a lot of popcorn with many kids in the theater. And if the movie can play enough weekends, the distributor can make money, too."

Goldwyn started the trend with "The Care Bear Movie," which astonished the trade by becoming a 1984 hit. Based on the popular dolls, the animated feature cost $4.5 million and sold $27 million worth of tickets in the United States and Canada. The "Care Bears" was shown as a matinee in some theaters and as the main feature in others.

Goldwyn and other producers invaded the territory that had once been considered the exclusive property of the Walt Disney Co. at a time when Disney was drawing back from the kiddie market and seeking a wider audience for its product.

Sweetly likable 'Fool' still needs to breathe

TWIN FALLS — Following are capsule reviews of movies currently playing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America, and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

NOBODY'S FOOL (PG-13). There is often something sweetly likable about this picture; a misfit romance between a quirky small-town mechanic and a young woman traveling breezily in her life with a dapper Shakespeare festival. Writer Beth Henley has an eye for all-American gargoyles, lots of letheaded wit and a kind of mean-eyed sympathy for underdogs and oddballs. But the film — though very well-written, sympathetically directed by Evelyn Purcell, well acted by everybody, and breath-takingly shot in the Arizona landscapes — sometimes does seem to open up and breathe. It is a good movie that frustratingly falls short of wonder.

'CROCODILE DUNDEE (PG-13). The sunny, reassuring personality of Paul Hogan (the fellow who says "G'day") in the Australian tourism ads) is at the heart of this movie — which he designed and co-wrote for himself. It is more than enough to carry it as a "fish out of water" story, with Hogan as adventurer-hunter Dundee, wooing Linda Kostlow's inquisitive Newsway reporter in the Aussie outback, and then in the wilds of Manhattan itself. "Dundee" is really nothing more than a pleasant, amiable, good-natured crowd-pleaser, but it is hard to think of many crowds it could not somehow please.

Movie reviews

Newman, in his old "Hustler" Past Eddie Felson role, against Tom Cruise as a strutting, unbeatable young natural, Scorsese goes beyond pool tables and generation gaps into a kind of a Harvard scholarship in the result — a bold, exhilarating, nearly perfect dramatic comedy — New Newman performances (and it will not disappoint Tom Cruise fans either).

'SOUL MAN (PG-13). Though it may have had honest intentions, this film — in which a white student masquerades as a black in order to qualify for a Harvard scholarship — is a mess at almost every level. Steve Miner's direction stabs at force and misses; much of Carol Black's script is mortifyingly callow, and much of what transpires has neither wit nor compassion.

'STAND BY ME (R). "Stand By Me" is the summer's great gift, a compassionate perfectly performed look at the real heart of youth. Its atmosphere is full of the great, crude, cruddy, ripe banter of four 12-year-old boys, and these four young actors (River Phoenix, Will Wheaton, Corey Feldman and Jerry O'Connell) have a depth and understanding that makes each character soar and live for days after the film. And what a director Rob Reiner has become: He has seen that this cast stays honest and his movie marvellously restrained.

'TAI-PAN (R). The film version of James Clavell's hugely entertaining epic novel of the early China traders. Hamfisted, tasteless and incoherent; a waste of splendid locales and a cast headed by Bryan Brown as Brown. With John Stanton, Jean

Nation's 'royal family' approved drama on Ted's bout with cancer

By ANDREW J. EDELSTEIN

"Veteran film director Delbert Mann ("Marty," "Never Come Back") admits that he had some reservations before he agreed to helm "The Ted Kennedy Jr. Story." The TV movie tells the story of young Kennedy, who lost his right leg to cancer when he was 12, but with the help of his parents has overcome the handicap to pursue a vigorous lifestyle. The movie airs Monday, Nov. 24, on NBC.

"Obviously, the Kennedys have been dramatized to death," says Mann, in reference to the numerous TV movies about other members of America's royal family. "But one way to overcome that problem was to make 'The Ted Kennedy Jr. Story' seem more like a drama about a family that suffers a tragedy rather than a drama about the Kennedy family suffering a tragedy. Sen. Kennedy very quickly agreed with our idea not to use the often phony-sounding Boston accents and not to cast for visual look-alike quality."

The Kennedy family had "consultative rights" about casting the three lead actors, according to Mann. In the TV movie, Craig T. Nelson ("Call to Glory," "Poltergeist") plays Sen. Ted Kennedy, Susan Blakely ("Rich Man, Poor Man") plays his wife, Joan, and newcomer Kimber Shoop plays Ted Kennedy Jr.

Another reservation for Mann was whether the telefilm was going to be viewed as merely another "disease of the week" movie. "But clearly the accuracy of the script and the human interest and empathy of the character dispelled that as an objection for me."

"Ted faced adversity with tremendous courage," says Mann. "He was a personable boy at the time it happened and he's now a personable young man. He turned a devastating experience to tremendous advantage."

Ted Jr. appears on camera during an epilogue, speaking about his foundation to aid the handicapped, whom he calls the "differently-abled," both Ted Jr. and his father visited the set during the final day of the shooting at Ashford Castle in Ireland.

The role of Ted Kennedy Jr. is played by newcomer Kimber Shoop, whose work was previously limited to commercials. Mann says the young man was chosen because of his likability and vulnerability.

"When we cast him, he was 12 years old, the same age as Ted," Mann explains. "The other principal candidates were 15 and small for their ages, but there's a distinctly different quality to someone who's really a boyish 12 than to someone who's a small 15."

Burt & Loni play game together

BY ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q. Is Burt Reynolds' movie career in such bad shape that he's taking a job as a TV game show host as I've heard? — A.R.

A. Burt and his actor friend Bert Convy recently came up with the idea of turning a parlor game Reynolds used to entertain guests at his home into a TV show. The Walt Disney TV syndication company liked the idea, and bought the rights to the as yet untitled show. Convy, host of NBC's "Super Password," will co-produce but won't appear on camera. Reynolds along with girlfriend Loni Anderson will appear — but only in the pilot edition of the new TV game show. The show's set, I'm told, will be an exact replica of Reynolds' own living room. Burt and Loni should feel right at home. As for his movie career, Burt's off to Rome to film "Rent a Cop" with Liza Minnelli.

Q. Although we realized that Sissy Spacek was made up to look like a terribly depressed woman in the new film "Night, Mother," there was something really different about her looks which we couldn't figure out. Any ideas? — R.S.

A. Just one, besides dying her hair a drab brown, Sissy's bright blue. • See GOSSIP on Page 4

sparkling eyes were covered by brown contact lenses — which certainly changed her looks.

Q. We hear that Lucille Ball is furious at everyone because the critics and, apparently, the public weren't fond of her new TV show. Anything to it? — G.H.

A. You're dead right. It's clear that not everyone loved Lucy's TV comedy comeback. Ball complains that TV critics in assessing her just cancelled "Life With Lucy" TV series on ABC were more interested in reviewing her age — 75 — than in reviewing her show. But don't worry about Lucy. She's proved that she is a capable actress as well as comedienne and word is that CBS apparently agrees and would like her for another TV movie.

Q. Is it true Sylvester Stallone's throwing his weight around at a big studio in order to land a job for his younger brother? — W.U.

A. Sly's brother, Frank Stallone, is a singer-composer and occasional actor. He just signed a three-picture deal with Cannon Films, the big Hollywood independent producer. The deal went through shortly after completion of Sly's latest flick, "Over the Top," at the same studio. I'll let you draw your own conclusions.

Q. A friend told me that Priscilla Buckley is no longer the managing editor of her brother Bill Buckley's magazine, The National Review — the result of a bitter family feud. I always thought the Buckylys were a close family like the Kennedys. — M.G.

A. They are a very close family and, in fact, three Buckley sisters still live on the family estate in Sharon, Connecticut. When the property was broken up after the demise of the senior Buckylys, son Bill bought the dormitory-style barn for the continued use of the seniors' dozens of grandchildren. As for the brilliant Priscilla, she wanted to retire to write and travel, but was persuaded to edit the NR on alternate weeks and has simply replaced herself as managing editor.

Q. How is Tony Curtis going about making a new life for himself after his publicized bouts with drugs and alcohol? — C.W.

A. Tony tells me that he's taking a two-pronged approach to his recuperation. You recall that he underwent a stint at the Betty Ford Center in California after years of alcohol and pill problems. Curtis now 4 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho reveals that he's gotten deeply into painting. In fact, he's readying his first official exhibition in Hawaii. He's also planning to move there. "That's part of my recovery," he tells me, "and my happiness."

Q. Is it so, as printed and hinted, that Dudley Moore hates signing autographs and is becoming high hat with fans? — G.W.

A. I can't think of a more obliging star than Dudley, so scratch that report as pure hokum. Recently, the actor sent a letter of appreciation to a shop in Manhattan, which was placed in a loose-leaf binder holding testimonials and put on display. When some young fans spotted the letter, they began writing Dudley at his California home for autographs, gradually enlarging this to a full-scale correspondence! Gentleman that he is, Moore answered their mounting requests. However, soon even his patience ran out, and Dudley asked the shop's proprietor to erase his address from the book; it was, of course, but the letter still remains on display.

Q. We keep waiting for Michael Jackson to star in a big-time Hollywood movie. Will we have to wait much longer? — A.R.

A. Afraid so. A much-publicized movie deal Michael had with a prominent Hollywood producer has just collapsed — not with a bang but with a Jacksonesque whimper. Michael signed the deal in late 1984. Problem was that Jackson turned his shapely nose up at every single proposal that came his way. When the contract ran out, the producer threw up his hands and turned Jackson loose. Advice for Michael fans: be very patient.

Q. I always thought Cher was a great singer and quite a comedienne when she had a TV show with her then-husband, Sonny Bono. How come all of her films are serious dramas? She's certainly good, just wondered what the story was. — J.J.

A. The story is that Hollywood considers Cher a first-rate dramatic actress. Remember "Silkwood" and "Mask"? I hear her next movie, "Moonstruck," which Norman Jewison will begin directing this month in New York for MGM, is the one that could deliver Cher her Oscar.

Q. I was amazed at Tom Cruise's skill at pool in "The Color of Money," his latest flick. Is he naturally gifted? — R.F.

A. Hardly. Cruise had never even held a cuestick until one month before filming began. In fact, Tom tells me, the acting demands of "The Color of Money" didn't make him nervous, but the snazzy pool playing called for certainly did. Truth is that Cruise and co-star Paul Newman were coached extensively by 33-year-old Mike Sigel, a top-ranked pool champion. "He made it easy by helping me understand the game," says Tom.

Q. Is it true that Dina Merrill has given up her acting career to stay close to her young daughter, who was seriously affected when her mother and father, Cliff Robertson, separated? — R.S.

A. Daughter Heather, 18, is fine and dandy and in high school. As for Dina, she is busy pursuing her film career. Rather than sit around and wait for projects to come her way, she has just purchased Brooke Astor's best-selling novel, "The Last Blossom on the Plum Tree," as a starring role for herself.

Intriguing storylines give 'World' interesting turn in ratings battle

By JOHN N. GOUDAS

In a recent ratings report, "As the World Turns" ranked third in the highly competitive soap sweepstakes. It's no surprise since the storylines have been fairly intriguing these days. One of those interesting plotlines concerns Duncan McKechnie, a man clothed in mystery. Michael Swan is the fine actor who brings Duncan to life each day on "World."

Unlike many other actors who go from one soap to another, this is the first time Swan has had a continuing role in a daytime drama. He has spent the bulk of his career playing heavies on prime time series. His face is familiar to viewers of such action shows as "Magnum, P.I.," "Simon and Simon," "The A-Team" and "Murder She Wrote," among many others.

After all those heavies, Swan is happy to be a character that isn't clearly defined as a villain nor as a hero. Duncan McKechnie can be either. That's the intriguing aspect to the character that appealed to Michael when he was offered the role.

"I saw that Duncan didn't fit into the black or white category of hero or heavy. He had both sides going for him. That's always interesting for an actor to play. I was told to play him with a glint in his eye and I guess it's working, judging from the reaction I've received so far."

One of the difficult decisions Michael had to make when he was offered the part of Duncan was leaving California, where he was born, went to college and worked for most of his career. In fact, as strange as it may seem, Michael had never been to New York before he came to work in the soap. He fell in love with New York and thinks it is a very exciting place to work. When time permits, Michael would like to do some stage work in New York and he's excited at the prospect.

Like so many of his fellow actors, Michael made his decision to become an actor very early in his life. His mother was an actress-singer (mostly in community theater) and that probably triggered his interest. His father, on the other hand, is involved in the wine growing business. Michael worked as a wine consultant between acting jobs. Ironically, he was cast as a regular in the plot of

Cast members of 'Search for Tomorrow' recently toasted 35 years on the air, but NBC axed the venerable show

"Falcon Crest" but his part was eliminated when the show was revamped. Prime time soaps' loss is daytime's gain.

CHANNEL CHATTER:

Middle age has caught up with "Search for Tomorrow" and NBC has decided to call it a day. The long-running soap opera recently celebrated its 35th anniversary on the air and despite the producers' efforts to infuse new life into the show, the fans just weren't tuning in. It's always sad when a show reaches its finale but "Search" had a long run and will have its final show the day after Christmas. It now belongs to the record books where it will always have an honored place. It's not as if NBC didn't give the show a second and third glance either. Its recent trip to Ireland and aggressive casting seemed to make no difference to the daytime viewer.

With "As the World Turns" on the upswing, fans were given a bonus two weeks ago when Anthony Herrera returned to the show after a three-year absence in the role of the manipulative mogul James Steinbeck. Herrera had joined the cast of "Loving" after leaving "As the World Turns" in 1983, but no role was as appealing as the evil James Steinbeck. Most assumed that Steinbeck had died in a plane crash, but as fate would have it, he miraculously was able to grab hold of a parachute.

PLOT PORTENTS:

Peter refuses to allow Brittany to take the blame for the shooting on "Another World." Donna keeps a vigil at Michael's bedside, while Matthew gets in trouble.

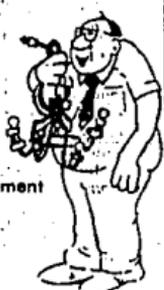

Rick arrests John for the murder of Harlan on "Ryan's Hope." Slobhan goes undercover dressed as a prostitute. Hartman makes special arrangements for Max.

Californian publisher wins Cronkite prize

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Otis Chandler, chairman of the executive committee of Times Mirror Co. and former publisher of The Los Angeles Times, has received the third annual Walter Cronkite Award for Excellence in Journalism and Telecommunication.

The award is sponsored by the Walter Cronkite Journalism and Telecommunication Endowment at Arizona State University. It was established in 1983 to further journalism in Arizona through the support of the school's department of Journalism and telecommunication.

Chandler "stands as a leader in a field which has many great leaders today," said C.E. "Pep" Cooney, president and general manager of KPXX-TV in Phoenix and president of the endowment.

NBC changes time slots of three dramatic shows

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC will put its popular police drama "Hill Street Blues" up against ABC's hit "Moonlighting" on Tuesdays and shift "L.A. Law" and "Crime Story" to new time slots beginning in December, the network said.

"L.A. Law" will be seen Thursdays at 10 p.m. EST in place of "Hill Street" starting Dec. 4, and "Crime Story" will follow "Miami Vice" on Fridays at 10 p.m. EST as of Dec. 5. "Hill Street" will move to the 9 p.m. Tuesday time period on Dec. 2.

The rumored changes were confirmed Wednesday in a statement released by NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff.

NBC hopes "Hill Street," which has a loyal following in its seventh season, will fare better against

"Moonlighting." ABC's comedy detective series starring Cybill Shepherd and Bruce Willis; than has the gritty new 1985 Chicago police drama "Crime Story."

"L.A. Law," set in a spiffy law firm, new this season from "Hill Street" co-creator Steven Bochco, will benefit from following NBC's Thursday night hit comedy lineup — "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties," "Cheers," and "Night Court."

"After the season's first seven weeks, we feel 'L.A. Law' has done reasonably well on Friday, but we think it could explode to hit potential on Thursday," Tartikoff said.

"Crime Story" will follow producer Michael Mann's "Miami Vice."

SINGLE FOLD ELECTRIC ADJUSTABLE BED

Now you can save money on an adjustable electric bed. Our Adjust-a-Magic single fold beds are just right for many homes. At the flick of a switch the head section will incline or recline to the exact angle most comfortable for you... for reading, writing, watching TV or just relaxing. This is today's way of reducing stress at the end of the day or any other time. And Adjust-a-Magic adjustable electric beds are great for sleeping when in the horizontal position. Come in and let us demonstrate for you. No obligation.

It's not what you save... but what you pay that counts.
And you pay less because you buy factory direct.

NBC declares itself a news winner

NEW YORK (AP) — In the back-and-forth ratings race among network news broadcasts, NBC has pretty much declared itself the new leader.

For the week ending Nov. 16, NBC's "Nightly News" had a rating of 12.7. The "CBS Evening News" was second with a rating of 12.4, and ABC's "World News Tonight" was third with a 10.7.

Each rating point stands for 874,000 homes with television.

"I think, in essence, we have moved into first place," said Gerald Jaffe, NBC vice president for research projects.

In the four previous weeks of news ratings this season, NBC won three times and tied with CBS once.

"ABC may be dropping out as a major factor in the news," Jaffe added.

"Five weeks does not a trend make," said Elise Adde, a spokeswoman for ABC news. The network is struggling in third place in prime-time ratings.

Ms. Adde said "World News

Tonight" is enjoying an increase in ratings compared with the same period last year — up 3 percent in ratings and 5 percent in percentage share of the audience.

She said there was no immediate explanation for a dip in ratings for "World News Tonight" last week. There were no special broadcasts that interfere with regular programming.

ABC's network-owned New York affiliate has announced it is moving "World News Tonight" to 6:30 p.m. EST next month and replacing it at 7 p.m. with the game show "Jeopardy," so ABC will no longer go head-to-head with the other networks.

7 p.m. (KIVI) Professional Football New York Jets (10-1) at the Miami Dolphins (5-6).

On paper, Don Shula's Dolphins should be having another winning season. In fact, they should be contending for the AFC East title. But paper doesn't hold much weight when your defense is dead last in the AFC, second only to that of Tampa Bay in yards allowed.

The Jets, whose 10-1 record leads the NFL, are having their best year of the decade. Despite the considerable setback of losing defensive end Mark Gastineau for the remainder of the regular season to torn ligaments in his left knee, the Jets should continue to cruise toward the playoffs with their high-scoring offense.

Though the Jets favored to beat Miami, this game could be an interesting clash of rival quarterbacks. New York's Ken O'Brien is recalling the glory days of Joe Namath while he leads the conference with 2,749 yards passing. And despite their 5-6 record, Miami's Dan Marino still has an arm to be reckoned with.

The Law Today: Auto Accidents

It is now a law in Idaho that each person in the front seat of a motor vehicle must wear a seat belt. You may be held partially responsible for your own injuries if you do not have your seat belt on and are involved in an accident.

Despite a strong surge by ABC, NBC remains in top ratings spot

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's "Moonlighting," "Who's the Boss" and "Growing Pains" had all-time high ratings last week and gave the third-place network three top 10 shows, but NBC was still on top.

"Moonlighting," the screwball detective comedy starring Cybill Shepherd and Bruce Willis, was No. 4 with a rating of 25.9.

A rating point stands for 874,000 homes equipped with television.

"Obviously, we're happy with Tuesday," said Larry Hyams, ABC's director of audience analysis.

NBC continued its sweep of the season, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week ending Nov. 16. The network won its eighth straight week with an average rating of 17.4. CBS was second with a rating of 15.1.

"Moonlighting" turned out to be a lot stronger than anybody expected," said NBC's Gerald Jaffe, vice president for research projects. He said analysts dubbed the show a "powerhouse" last season when it garnered an average 30 share, or percent of the viewing audience. Last week, it drew a 33 share.

"It's a whole new level," Jaffe said.

"Who's the Boss" was seventh with a rating of 25.2, and "Growing Pains" was ninth with a 24.8. The two 30-minute sitcoms precede "Moonlighting."

Jaffe pronounced the week "typical" — i.e., NBC in first place, "The Cosby Show" in first place, and the top 10 dominated by NBC half-hour comedies.

"Cosby" had a rating of 35.6, drawing half the audience for the time period.

CBS had two top-10 entries — "Murder, She Wrote" and "Dallas," which continued to strengthen against NBC's "Miami Vice" on Friday nights. "Dallas" was No. 10 with a rating of 23.7. "Vice" was 28th with a 18.5.

"Dynasty," ABC's counterpart to "Dallas," is not faring well against its Wednesday night competition, which now includes CBS' "Magnum, P.I." "Magnum" has prospered since being moved from the death slot opposite "Cosby" last season.

"Magnum" beat "Dynasty" for the second week in a row. But both trailed a 90-minute "Highway to Heaven" on NBC that ran into their time period.

"If 'Highway' wasn't there, 'Dynasty' would have beaten 'Magnum,'" said Larry Hyams, ABC's director of audience analysts.

Nevertheless, he said, "Dynasty" is undergoing a creative revamping. "We're hoping when the story lines pick up a bit the ratings will return."

CBS wasn't helped any by "Dynasty" star Joan Collins. The second part of her two-parter, "Monte Carlo," was 52nd with a rating of 12.2.

However, the first installment of CBS' comedy miniseries "Fresno" was 15th, though the audience started dropping off before the end of the first two hours, and overnight figures for Monday indicated the takeoff on nighttime soaps was wearing thin.

It airs in one-hour installments through Thursday.

On Sunday, "Fresno" had a 33 percent share of the audience in the first half hour but only a 29 share in the last half hour, while ABC's movie "Sudden Impact" starring Clint Eastwood edged up, starting with a 25 share and ending with a 33.

The lowest rated shows were ABC's canceled "Ellen Burstyn Show," in last place with a rating of 6.2, and "Life with Lucy" in 67th place with a 6.6.

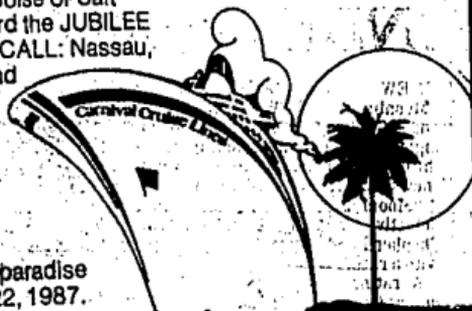

The rest of the bottom 10, from the bottom, were ABC's analysis of Reagan's address on Iran, "Downtown," "Crime Story," "Sidekicks," "Cobys," "Sledge Hammer," "Life: 50 Years" and "Starman."

"Crime Story" was NBC's only bottom 10 series. The network is moving it to Fridays following "Miami Vice" in December.
