Iran paid $12 million for weapons

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The first shipment of arms to Iran from the U.S. government was in February 1985, and the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini later paid more than $12 million into a Swiss bank account for American weapons, administration officials told members of Congress Friday.

After five hours of closed-door testimony from CIA Director William J. Casey and President Reagan's national security adviser, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, many House and Senate members intensified their criticism of the White House-directed operation. Some claimed that the administration broke the law by failing to notify Congress of the operation for 10 months.

House Majority Leader James C. Wright Jr., D-Tex., who attended Casey's briefing of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, said he thought that the $12 million paid for some, if not all, of the weapons shipped to Tehran. He said the arms included 2,008 TOW anti-tank weapons, 1,800 of which had been assembled in San Antonio, Texas.

Wright said he wanted to distinguish the other third countries from Israel, which "believed (it was) carrying out our wishes." U.S. and Israeli sources have said that Israel shipped arms to Tehran in 1985 on Washington's behalf; Reagan subsequently authorized direct U.S. involvement in the shipments in a secret order dated Jan. 17, 1986.

who is expected to be elected speaker of the House in January. Reagan, as part of his secret order, directed Casey not to inform Congress of the operation despite the legal requirements and a written agreement between the CIA director and the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence that covert activities would be reported within 48 hours.

TWIN FALLS — L.L. "Buzz" Langdon, a newspaper publisher from Twin Falls, was named Friday as the executive vice president of the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

Langdon, 51, said he was looking forward to the job and that he wanted to thank the people who helped him achieve the position. "I had an awful lot of people who wrote letters and made calls," said Langdon, who added, "I appreciate the faith of the search committee and the Board of Directors."

Wagner, general manager for KMVT-TV; Jack Miller, district manager for Idaho Power Co.; William Howard, publisher of The Times-News; and Steve Soran, owner of Soran Inc., which operates the Depot Grill and the Turf Club, were the selection committee.

Langdon's wife Sue, who is secretary for the five years for the chamber, was paid $37,000 annually plus benefits, when he left Dolton's left by mutual agreement with the chamber.

Board asks for alternatives to existing C-average rule

The Associated Press
POCATELLO — The Idaho Board of Education wants the Department of Education to submit one or more alternatives to the state's controversial C-average rule for the board's January meeting.

Clearly, what we need to do is develop programs to address the lower 23 percent," Ms. Wood said. A proposal approved overwhelmingly by ISBA members last week would allow individual districts to propose plans for basic competency.

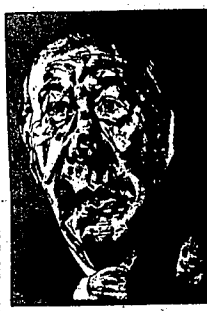

The board also put off action on creating a task force to study high school athletic scheduling. Board members heard an appeal from officials of the Moscow School District, who claimed that Idaho High School Activities Association policy forces smaller high schools to compete against larger schools.

Evans asked the board to delay further study to allow the IHSA to respond to the Moscow district's claims. On Thursday, a divided Board of Education voted to retain the state's current funding distribution formula for higher education at least through the next budget year.

The board retained the formula on the condition that the state will not be required to pay for the cost of the program.

Shultz states he discussed policy twice

OTTAWA — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday that he took part in two "full-scale discussions" last winter on the secret U.S. policy toward Iran, but continued to distance himself from involvement in the affair.

He also denied a report in Friday's Los Angeles Times that he asked President Reagan to fire Adm. John Poindexter, the White House national security adviser, and one of the chief architects of the arms sale to Iran.

Critics of the arms sale have said it will disturb allied nations, like Canada, that have joined in an arms embargo against Iran. Questions about Shultz' involvement were raised Thursday when former national security adviser Robert McFarlane said the secretary of state "repeatedly" was informed about the operation.

Shultz would not respond directly to McFarlane's assertions, nor did he give any indication of what he said in the two meetings he said he attended.

Shultz did, however, suggest that lack of State Department knowledge of the affair had a mixed effect on the policy. To underscore what he said was his lack of State Department involvement, Shultz said he and his aides were taking no active part in the current, belated effort by the administration to inform Congress about the arms shipments.

Wright and other legislators claimed Reagan violated the law by ordering Casey last winter not to tell Congress about the secret Iran operation, contrary to laws requiring the reporting of covert operations to congressional intelligence committees in "timely fashion."

TWIN FALLS — L.L. "Buzz" Langdon, a newspaper publisher from Twin Falls, was named Friday as the executive vice president of the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce. Chamber president-elect Lee Wagner made the announcement during an afternoon press conference. He said Langdon was chosen from a field of 41 candidates during a six-week search to replace Mike Dolton, who resigned Sept. 30.

Langdon, 51, said he was looking forward to the job and that he wanted to thank the people who helped him achieve the position. "I had an awful lot of people who wrote letters and made calls," said Langdon, who added, "I appreciate the faith of the search committee and the Board of Directors."

He will be paid $26,000 a year with benefits, including a vehicle allowance, country club and service club memberships, and a family medical plan. His predecessor, Dolton, who had worked five years for the chamber; was paid $37,000 annually, plus benefits, when he left.

Board asks for alternatives to existing C-average rule

The Associated Press

POCATELLO — The Idaho Board of Education wants the Department of Education to submit one or more alternatives to the state's controversial C-average rule for the board's January meeting. The board heard an appeal here Friday from Idaho School Boards Association President Layle Wood, Boise. She said the ISBA supports the intent of the C-average rule, but said implementation is difficult.

"Clearly, what we need to do is develop programs to address the lower 29 percent," Ms. Wood said. A proposal approved overwhelmingly by ISBA members last week would allow individual districts to propose plans for basic competency. This system would be the basis for high school accreditation. "We are willing to put our accreditation on the line," Ms. Wood said. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said he hopes any alternatives would adhere to the intent of the original C-average rule, but allow districts increased flexibility.

Earlier, the board unanimously rejected a request by the Pocatello School District for an emergency authorization of a special education teacher at Alameda Junior High School. The board retained the formula on See RULE on Page A2

GEORGE P. SHULTZ Tries to keep his distance

He also denied a report in Friday's Los Angeles Times that he was asked to endorse the policy over the wisdom of Reagan's Iranian policies followed the secretary northward. Shultz has expressed opposition to the plan to send military equipment to Iran and has said previously that he had only "fragmentary knowledge" of the operation. Giving a bit more detail Friday, he said, "There were discussions and I participated in two of them that were full-scale discussions."

Critics of the arms sale have said it will disturb allied nations, like Canada, that have joined in an arms embargo against Iran. Questions about Shultz' involvement were raised Thursday when former national security adviser Robert McFarlane said the secretary of state "repeatedly" was informed about the operation.

Those meetings were on Dec. 6, 1985, and last Jan. 7, said his spokesman, Charles E. Redman. On Jan. 17, Reagan signed an order permitting the military equipment sales to Iran. At another news conference, at the end of his meetings with Canadian officials, Shultz again refused to give any details of what was discussed at the meetings he attended. Asked specifically whether he was present when a determination to send arms to Iran was made, Shultz declined to answer.

Shultz did, however, suggest that lack of State Department knowledge of the affair had a mixed effect on the policy. To underscore what he said was lack of State Department involvement, Shultz said he and his aides were taking no active part in the current, belated effort by the administration to inform Congress about the arms shipments. "I am letting this question alone," Shultz said. "People are testifying about it, those who are the ones involved in it, whose agencies were. And that is where the action is."

A 43 vote, over the objections of Evans, who favored immediate study of the formula. In a separate motion, board members voted unanimously to study revisions.

Presidents of Idaho's colleges and three universities all claimed their schools were victims of inadequacies in the formula. But three presidents, said they supported retaining the existing system for one more year.

"I don't think the time for review is appropriate," said Idaho State University President Richard Bowen. He claimed a full debate of the funding formula, in the weeks approaching the 1987 legislative ses-tion, would create a "public squabble."

Bowen, along with University of Idaho President Richard Gibb and Lewis-Clark State College President Lee Vickers, favored retaining the system.

Evans urged the board to examine the formula immediately, rather than delaying action until after the legislative session. He said the board has taken a "one more year" stance on the formula for the last four or five years.

This sentiment was shared by board member Cheryl Hymas, who joined Evans and board member George Alvarez in voting against the current formula.

"When is there a good time and a good year to address this sort of thing?" she asked.

Evans, meanwhile, disputed the argument that retaining the current formula would avoid involvement by the Legislature. He cited a letter, signed by over 15 lawmakers, expressing concern over the formula.

"Maybe we just ought to get it all out on the table," he said.

Boise State University President John Keiser blasted the current formula, saying it has not avoided funding inequities and has not included enough input from administrators.

arms, fit within applicable law and executive orders."

Durenberger said he thought that the administration "had no intention of informing the committee until (the operation) became public."

He charged that the White House was "willing to trust the lives of hostages to radicals in Iran," but not to Congress. He and Leahy both feared that the committee "cannot accept such logic."

In an interview on the MacNeil-Lehrer news broadcast Friday night, Durenberger added, "How are we avoiding exposing this kind of activity to a somewhat larger circle of realistic, knowledgeable people who can be helpful to him in assessing his merits in advance? The law requires that. And in this particular case they took great pains to avoid the law."

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said after the Senate briefing, "I can't believe what I heard, and I don't. It's hard to believe that such things could be planned and undertaken."

Moynihan added that the damage done in failing to report the operation will fall on the intelligence community, which has been working to establish credibility with Congress.

Casey, however, could not be held responsible for his failure to abide by an agreement to keep the committee informed since the whole operation was incredibly clumsy and amateurish."

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd, W.Va., said after the session with Casey that "this whole operation was incredibly clumsy and amateurish."

"I think more than ever," Byrd said, "that the president needs to say this thing is a mistake."

Neither Casey nor Poindexter provided the Senate panel with details of the arms shipments to Iran in 1985, before the president's secret order was signed, sources said. At that time, McFarlane, then the president's national security adviser, permitted two Israeli arms shipments to be sent to Iran in September as a signal of American "good faith," and on Sept. 14, the Rev. Benjamin Weir was released.

In their letter to Reagan, Durenberger and Leahy said, "It is not yet clear how the arms transactions in 1985 came about, what they contained, and how these transactions and especially the U.S. role in shipment of arms - fit within applicable law and executive orders."

Durenberger charged that "no one has all the facts" on the Iran operation which had taken place "over a substantial time."

"Both Mr. Casey and Mr. Poindexter," Durenberger and Leahy wrote Reagan, "are themselves still engaged in piecing together the full record of this operation."

The congressional inquiry continues Monday with the House Foreign Affairs Committee summoning Undersecretary of State Michael H. Armacost to testify. Armacost was sent to Friday's hearings by Secretary of State George P. Shultz as an observer because "we're in the process of collecting information, ourselves," Shultz told reporters, during a trip to Canada Friday.

Even Reagan's defenders who argued that he had the right to bypass Congress have questioned the wisdom of such policy. Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., said after the House briefing Friday that "timely is a word of art. The law in that regard, was deliberately drawn in a vague fashion. Clearly the president has the right to withhold information from Congress. I'm not saying it is wise. I'm saying it was unwise."

Sen. Frank H. Murkowski, R-Alaska, said that "the law has no provisions for enforcement" with respect to the "timely" informing of congressional committees. He added that "Congress is going to have to put parameters in time limits."

Tariff dispute may be settled

TORONTO (AP) - A compromise agreement with U.S. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige could settle the dispute over a 15 percent U.S. tariff on Canadian softwood lumber, Canadian Trade Minister Pat Carney said Friday.

Under the plan, endorsed late Thursday night by all but one of Canada's 10 provincial premiers, the Commerce Department would withdraw the countervailing duty imposed last month, but Canadians would raise lumber prices by about 15 percent.

The tariff is in effect but under appeal by American lumber producers who want to win back part of the U.S. market from Canada, which now has about one-third of the sales.

Comedian Colonna dies at 82

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Jerry Colonna, the mustachioed, saucer-eyed comedian who made more than 13 overseas tours to entertain troops with Bob Hope during World War II, died Friday of kidney failure following a long illness. He was 82.

Colonna appeared in a number of light comedies with Hope, including "Road to Singapore" in 1940, "Star Spangled Rhythm" in 1942 and "Road to Rio" in 1947.

Colonna was a dear friend, a great entertainer whom I traveled all over the world with for 25 years," Hope said in a statement issued through his spokesman Ken Cantor.

Cantor said Hope, 83, would preside at Colonna's funeral, but no date was immediately set for the services.

Tax collections still sluggish

BOISE (AP) — Evidence of the persistent weakness in the Idaho economy continued to mount Tuesday with indications of sluggish personal income tax collections and questionable sales tax receipts.

The state Division of Financial Management reported that total state revenues for the first third of the current budget year ran over $6 million behind projections.

Through October, the state had received just over $199 million in receipts from all general revenue sources compared to the relatively conservative forecast for slightly more than $205 million during that period.

The bulk of the shortfall was due to lagging miscellaneous revenues from interest earnings and other categories, which totaled just half of the amount forecast for the first four months. Because of the traditionally erratic receipt of those revenues, however, the division was expressing no major concerns.

But analysts remained worried about the sluggish collection of personal income taxes through paycheck withholding, which accounts for the vast majority of the over $260 million that tax generates. Through October, collections totaled only $85.1 million, over $2 million short of the projection.

Box only sealed heating duct

POCATELLO (AP) — The mysterious box in a sealed room in an old mansion here lost some of its glamor Thursday when a police officer revealed it's nothing more than a long-forgotten heating duct.

"It's an abandoned cold air heating duct," said Capt. Lynn Harris, Pocatello Police Department. "That's all it is. It's nothing mysterious or strange."

Harris' discovery deflates the Pocatello Historic Preservation Commission's plans to open the Standrod House's "secret room" and so-called wooden box. Chairman Jerry Myers said.

Today, a hand-picked group of masons, architects and other officials armed with hammer and chisel planned to begin breaching the historic Standrod House's basement room. Officials recently discovered what appeared to be a 3-by-3-by-3-foot box inside a room that apparently hadn't been opened since near the time the Standrod house was constructed at the turn of the century.

Police investigating shooting

BOISE (AP) — Police were investigating the circumstances surrounding the shooting death of the teenage son of former state legislator Daryl Sallaz, a Boise junior high school teacher.

David Sallaz, 17, died Thursday night from a gunshot wound in the chest, police said.

Lt. Dick Linderer said the shooting appeared to be accidental but was still under investigation. The teenager and a friend were apparently examining the small-caliber handgun at the Sallaz home when it discharged, Linderer said.

The other youth was not identified.

Alumni to honor Gem justice

BOISE (AP) — A University of Idaho alumni association was to present Idaho Supreme Court Justice Robert Huntley Jr. with the University Award at a banquet Friday in Boise.

The award was to be presented to the 54-year-old jurist for his contributions to the legal profession and legal education in Idaho.

Huntley, appointed to the state's highest court four years ago, received his bachelor's and law degrees from the University of Idaho in the 1950s.

Hansen aide rips Reagan for inaction

POCATELLO (AP) — An aide to former Congressman George Hansen blames the Internal Revenue Service and Department of Justice for putting his boss in federal prison, and Thursday criticized President Reagan for keeping Hansen there.

John Scoresby, who continues to work for Hansen, said that up to a few weeks ago he was convinced that the president was not aware of the details of the Hansen case. He said that was despite the fact that the White House has received a deluge of telephone calls since Hansen was jailed five months ago.

"As of this date, he has to be aware of George," Scoresby said in a news conference. "I'm disappointed that he has not taken action before now and I'm disappointed with his advisers."

Though calls have been directed to communications director Pat Buchanan, the White House has not made the effort to pardon Hansen.

The former congressman, who in May started serving a 5-to-15 month sentence, is the first person to be prosecuted on criminal charges under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act.

He was convicted on four felony counts of filing false financial disclosure documents with the House of Representatives. Hansen completed five months in prison on Thursday, the earliest date he could have been released.

Scoresby said he wanted to draw further attention to the Hansen case and encourage supporters to continue pressuring the White House to work for Hansen's release from a prison in Petersburg, Va.

Rexburg man sues

REXBURG (AP) — A Rexburg man is seeking more than $500,000 for injuries suffered in a farm accident in Fremont County in July 1985.

In a lawsuit filed in 7th District Court, Angel Hernandez and his wife, Ana, seek general damages, medical expenses, past and future earnings and attorneys' fees from the estate of Lyle Hansen. Irene Hansen, representative of Hansen's estate, also was named in the suit.

Cattle futures controversy airing due

BOISE (AP) — The presidents of America's state cattle organizations are being called to the National Cattlemen's Association headquarters in Denver next month to hash out the controversy over alleged manipulation in the cattle futures markets.

"We're going to lay the futures issue on the floor," NCA President Don Butler told the Idaho Cattle Association on Friday.

But he emphasized the meeting was not intended to form a national association; position on whether futures trading should be abolished — an issue NCA leadership has avoided taking a position on because of the severe division within its ranks between cow-calf producers and feeder cattle operators.

The mid-December session, Butler said, is only intended to clear the air in the debate before top association officials receive a preliminary report at the end of January on the government investigation into those allegations.

Butler warned the cattlemen that if the NCA were forced into calling for the abolition of futures trading as 69 percent of the NCA members responding to a recent poll urged, it would likely prompt the federal-cattle members to pull out and form their own organization. Such a schism would be devastating to the industry, he said.

At the same time, however, Butler said the NCA would back elimination of futures trading if the government investigation by the General Accounting Office reveals evidence the markets had been manipulated.

Butler said the GAO investigation was "well under way" and that House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, would provide the preliminary report on its findings when he meets with NCA committees in Reno, Nev., at the end of January.

Medicaid funding, staff pay raise lead agency's legislative agenda

POCATELLO (AP) — Requests ranging from increased state funding for Medicaid to a pay raise for employees are included in the Health and Welfare Department's agenda for the 1987 legislative session.

In a meeting with area lawmakers Thursday, regional service director Steven Weeg outlined the department's goals for 1987.

A top priority is a pay increase — something state employees have not received three of the past four years. Most employees would list a salary increase as a higher priority than funding for new programs, Weeg said.

Also high on the H&W wish list is an increase in funding for Medicare. The department is currently facing a $10 million shortfall, forcing a supplemental appropriation in the upcoming session, Weeg said.

"That's an immediate issue that you'll be hit with in January," Weeg told lawmakers.

However, the Legislature probably will have to come up with only $3 million, since matching federal funds would pick up the difference.

H&W also will lobby lawmakers to exempt food stamp purchases from the Idaho sales tax. Idaho now collects sales tax on food stamps, in violation of federal law, but has received a temporary extension to allow for interim legislative study of the issue.

The next legislative session is expected to discuss day-care licensing again, and Weeg said legislators should consider whether proposed legislation will protect children, and who will pay for any new requirements.

"We are, essentially, the human services agency for the state," he said. "You can't put (day care licensing) in the Department of Agriculture."

"I do not have anybody who could administer a day care law that would protect children," he said.

While H&W is an unpopular agency among some state lawmakers, Weeg said his department would be the logical department to handle day care licensing.

Alta avalanche buries Czech

ALTA, Utah (AP) — A 27-year-old Czechoslovakian man has died after being buried overnight in an avalanche at Alta ski resort in Little Cottonwood Canyon east of here, authorities said. The unidentified victim, a new employee of the resort's Alpenglo day shelter and cafe, was reported missing Friday morning after he failed to return from a hike, said Alta Town Marshal Eric Ellason. Alta Ski Patrol members were searching the Alibon Basin area near the day shelter when they discovered the avalanche and saw tracks leading into it, Ellason said. They found the man's body buried in about seven feet of snow.

U.S. informed on 3 Viet MIAs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnamese government has informed the United States it is prepared to repatriate the remains of three individuals believed to be missing American servicemen from the Vietnam War, the Pentagon said Friday. Arrangements are now being made by the Defense Department to recover the remains in Hanoi on Nov. 28, the Pentagon added in a prepared statement. The Pentagon said Vietnamese officials had informed U.S. representatives during talks late last month that it had located the three remains in the course of investigating 16 reports from rural areas of the country about the location of crash sites or other sites of combat action. The Pentagon said it did not know in which areas of the country the remains had been located, but would immediately transfer the remains to the U.S. Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii for possible identification.

Kemp to announce '88 move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y. will announce next month the formation of a committee to explore his candidacy for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, his office said Friday. Kemp's office also confirmed that the committee's "top political operative" will be Charles Black, a Republican strategist who worked for President Reagan. Black is a partner in a political consulting firm with Lee Atwater, who will be managing Vice President Bush's presidential campaign. Kemp, who won re-election Nov. 4 to a ninth term from a suburban and rural district outside Buffalo, is chairman of the House GOP caucus. Kemp said during his campaign that he would make his presidential intentions known early next year.

Official defends Lara decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior State Department official has strongly defended the U.S. government's decision to bar Colombian journalist Patricia Lara from entering this country on grounds that she is a member of a terrorist group and linked with Cuban intelligence operations. Elliott Abrams, assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs, asserted in a letter to the American Society of Newspaper Editors that the editors' group should adopt a code of ethics making it clear that "journalists who engage in espionage and terrorism will be censured by their colleagues." Through her attorney, Arthur Hellon, Ms. Lara issued a statement earlier this week branding Abrams' charges "ridiculous." The Colombian government said Tuesday it has no evidence that Ms. Lara was a member of a terrorist group or an agent of the Cuban government.

2 Chicago aldermen indicted in probe

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven people, including two aldermen, were indicted Friday in an FBI investigation of alleged City Hall corruption that employed a high-rolling "mole" who sought to buy influence in the awarding of city contracts. The charges are the first to be brought in the case and include racketeering, mail fraud, extortion, federal income tax violations and federal firearms violations, according to U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas. He praised Mayor Harold Washington for his cooperation in FBI enlisting Raymond's services following his arrest in July 1984 in the inquiry, dubbed Operation Incubator, and said the investigation continues. The indictments centered on payments to past and present officials made by Systematic Recovery Service Inc., a New York-based bill-collection agency, and Michael Raymond, a convicted swindler and con man who operated as the company's Chicago representative. Duffy family maintaining low profile

BOULDER, Mont. (AP) — Members of the Duffy family continued to maintain a low profile here Friday following the shooting deaths of Terrence and Marie Duffy in their bar Tuesday night. One resident reported seeing members of the family driving in town, but Patrick Duffy, who portrays Bobby Ewing on the popular CBS television show "Dallas," continued to elude photographers. "Things are quieting down," said Phil Yanzick, owner of Phil and Tim's Bar and Bowl. "It's business as usual," he said, noting few media representatives remained in town. Rudy Jones, fiscal services director at the Montana Development Center, said few Boulder residents are willing to give details about Patrick Duffy's whereabouts because they respect his request for privacy. "We're being more protective because he's a member of the community through his parents. We're just waiting till everything gets back to normal, to the extent that things can be normal again," she said. Jones said people also are doing their best to cope with the tragedy that struck their peaceful community. "People are pretty rugged around here," she said. "Everybody deals with it in their own way and has to get on with their lives. The world doesn't stop."

What's what

Young women now seem less interested in their hands than were young women of the past. In how they manure their nails and cream their skin, and in how they gesture. In this century even, the finishing schools made much to do over correct hand movement. Earliex, some of history's more renowned beauties — the Mesdames Pompadour and Bovy come to mind — were said to owe much of their charm to how they used their hands to manipulate admiration.

Q. Didn't the Chinese invent wallpaper?
A: They invented the decorative paper. It was the Europeans who first pasted it onto walls.

It's said the average child spent more time during the last 25 years with Mister Rogers than with said child's own father.

ICEBOX
This Thomas Moore was a man for all seasons, too. He farmed in Maryland's Montgomery County, and in 1803 invented the first icebox. Or so say those who insist on giving credit where credit may be due. Myself, I think the first icebox really goes back about as far as ice.

Comedian contributes $1 million toward Home project

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope donated $1 million to help in a $50 million expansion project at the entertainment industry's Motion Picture Country Home and Hospital in Woodland Hills.

Ground-breaking for an 81-bed nursing facility was planned for Dec. 11 with Hope officiating as master of ceremonies, said Robert Blumof, co-chairman of the fund-raising campaign for the hospital.

Hope's donation brings the amount raised so far to $23 million, Blumof said Thursday.

When the expansion is complete, the complex will have 200 beds, a lodge with capacity increased from 70 to 237 and 184 cottage-type apartments, Blumof said.

Di, Charles separate following Arabian tour

HURGADA, Egypt (AP) — Britain's Princess Diana, ending a royal tour with her husband Prince Charles, disembarked from the royal yacht Britannia on Friday and flew home from this Red Sea port.

The Prince and Princess of Wales had completed their nine-day Arab tour on Wednesday and left the Saudi port of Jidda aboard the Britannia. The yacht stopped briefly off Hurgada, 300 miles southeast of Cairo, for Diana to get off.

A 6-year-old Egyptian girl named Sharia Ibrahim presented a bouquet of orange and blue bird-of-paradise flowers to Diana during the three-minute welcoming ceremony.

Charles remained aboard the yacht and was to sail through the Suez Canal to the Mediterranean Sea and Cyprus, where he will visit a British military base.

Major actor Eastwood trades Magnum for pen

GARMEL, Calif. (AP) — Mayor Clint Eastwood has traded in his 357-caliber Magnum for a pen, opening fire on his political foes in the first of a series of occasional columns he intends to write for his town's weekly newspaper.

Eastwood's first column, published in the Pine Cone last week, was true to Hollywood form, with sharp criticism for his detractors and a staid tone. In the time I've known him," the actor-mayor wrote. Undaunted, Wright responded that the mayor's column shows "he doesn't know how to handle criticism."

"I think he's so eager to please

That criticism stings him," said Pine Cone Managing Editor Mac McDonald of his newest columnist.

Eastwood, in Los Angeles working on a movie, said he has written for trade journals and on screenplays but never for a newspaper. "A man must know his limitations, and I'm not going to claim to be the best columnist," said the mayor.

Designer helps China take steps into fashion

PEKING (AP) — French designer Yves St. Laurent is helping the Chinese garment industry through its first hesitant steps into the international fashion market.

"The Chinese garment industry cannot truly enter world markets today without two necessary pillars: design and technology," said Pierre Berge, president of St. Laurent's company YSL, who is visiting Peking this week.

Berge will serve as chief management adviser while St. Laurent is chief design adviser to the Chinese. No payments will be made to or by YSL, Berge said.

Chinese models strutted through a fashion show Friday for visiting YSL executives and other enthusiastic viewers. To the tune of Michael Jackson's "Thriller," the models showed off summer shorts with simple blouses, stylishly modified Mao hats and lots of blue jeans.

Fashion was reviled as decadent during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution, but textiles are now a crucial industry for China.

Iacocca selling house located near the Fords

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca and the man who once fired him won't be neighbors after all.

Iacocca and his wife, Kathy, are selling the red-brick pillared house they bought down the street from Henry Ford II in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Ford, grandson of the auto pioneer, is retired chairman of the Ford Motor Co., the post he held when he fired Iacocca as president in a celebrated corporate battle. Iacocca went on to lead Chrysler Corp. away from the brink of bankruptcy. The Iacoccas bought the east side suburban home near the Fords in June but have decided to stay in the northern suburb, at the home Iacocca shared for many years with his late wife, Mary, said Chrysler spokesman John Gulivlen.

Home of 'Roots' stories now heritage museum

HENNING, Tenn. (AP) — The old house where author Alex Haley first heard the stories that turned into the best seller "Roots" has been opened as Tennessee's first museum focusing on black heritage.

"I feel blessed to be here," said Haley, who spoke at the formal opening Thursday along with Gov. Lamar Alexander.

"The blessing is in great part because of the many of you being here to share it with me," Haley told about 2,000 people standing in front of the wood-frame house that was once the home of his grandparents, Cynthia and Will Palmer.

Alexander told the crowd that Henning has become "a classroom for every American family to study their roots."

The stories Haley heard from his grandparents and aunts in Henning inspired him to begin the search for his ancestral history in Africa and formed the foundation for his Pulitzer Prize-winning book, he said.

The old house, built in 1919, was renovated by the Tennessee Department of Conservation at a cost of $182,000. It is filled with 18th-century furnishings and portraits of Haley's relatives.

Woman regains home

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A mortgage company that evicted a 71-year-old widow from her home because she couldn't pay for burglar bars has agreed to return the house and pay a cash settlement.

Trans-Continental Mortgage Co. of Dallas had financed Juanita Snell's loan to buy burglar bars, then foreclosed when she didn't make about $6,000 in payments.

Under the out-of-court settlement reached Wednesday, Trans-Continental will pay $34,000 to buy Mrs. Snell's house from the present owner so that she can regain title. In addition, she will receive monthly payments totaling $22,500 beginning in January.

"This is a case that everyone had written off and said there's nothing we can do," said Perry Cockerell, an attorney who heard about Mrs. Snell's situation from his minister and represented her at no charge.

"I think this is a good example of a horrible situation turning out to have some glimmer of hope because she got back her house," he said.

A lawsuit he filed said Trans-Continental's claim against Mrs. Snell's house was invalid because she was mentally incompetent to sign the burglar-bar contract.

Since her eviction in February, Mrs. Snell has suffered problems requiring hospital treatment.

"She is happy, but she's having to live with me" in a larger house, said Mrs. Snell's niece and legal guardian, Inez Thompson. "She said she doesn't want to live alone now."

Idaho Power diversifies to deal with market

Lower energy demands spur moves

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Times-News city editor

TWIN FALLS — The heady growth days of the 1970s appear to be over for Idaho Power Co., forcing the firm to look more seriously at new strategies, such as diversification, an IPO and a new Thursday in Twin Falls.

Speaking to participants in the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce's Magic Valley Leadership program, Larry R.

Gunnoe described IPC's strategy for coping with the uncertainties of the utility business today, including surplus energy and decreased demand for it.

Gunnoe, vice president for division operations, said the firm is projecting slow, steady growth in revenues of about 1 percent a year into the 1990s, down from the 5- to 7-percent annual growth rates of the '70s.

Market forces conspired to slow growth since 1981, Gunnoe said, pointing to, among other things, a net loss of customers this year in 15 cities, including Twin Falls; continued problems with Southern Idaho's agricultural economy and sharp reductions in the mining and timber industries.

Compounding these local problems, lower oil prices are enabling electric utilities in the Southwest to generate their own power for less than they would pay for IPC's cheap hydro power, creating an energy surplus that IPC can't sell. And the company is required by federal law to buy electricity from independent cogeneration firms at a rate IPC officials say is too high, at a time it isn't needed.

While the company cannot accurately predict what the future holds for it, it is taking steps to position itself more solidly, Gunnoe said. Among those steps are:

- diversification. Gunnoe sees the reversal of a trend that began during the Great Depression, when large holding companies were forced by the federal government to divest themselves of their ownership of utilities.
- Until 1943, for example, IPC was owned by Electric Bond and Share, now known as EBASCO, with current operations in New York and California. IPC went public and has been primarily an electric utility since then.

But "times are changing," Gunnoe said. IPC, since 1974, has had a one-third interest in Bridger Coal Co. and the Jim Bridger coal mine, which supplies coal to the Jim Bridger generating plant in Wyoming.

The Bridger ownership is through Idaho Energy Resources Co., one of IPC's wholly owned subsidiary companies. IERCo is also into resource exploration, primarily for thorium, Gunnoe said. Thorium may soon

Carriers, shippers evaluate new rule

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Remote from most major markets, the Magic Valley's commodity shippers and truckers who carry the freight are feeling acute effects from deregulation of transportation industry.

Shippers gained the flexibility to shop around and make deals when the government got out of the business of regulating interstate freight rates. At the same time, shippers must search further for carriers who can economically deliver to distant markets.

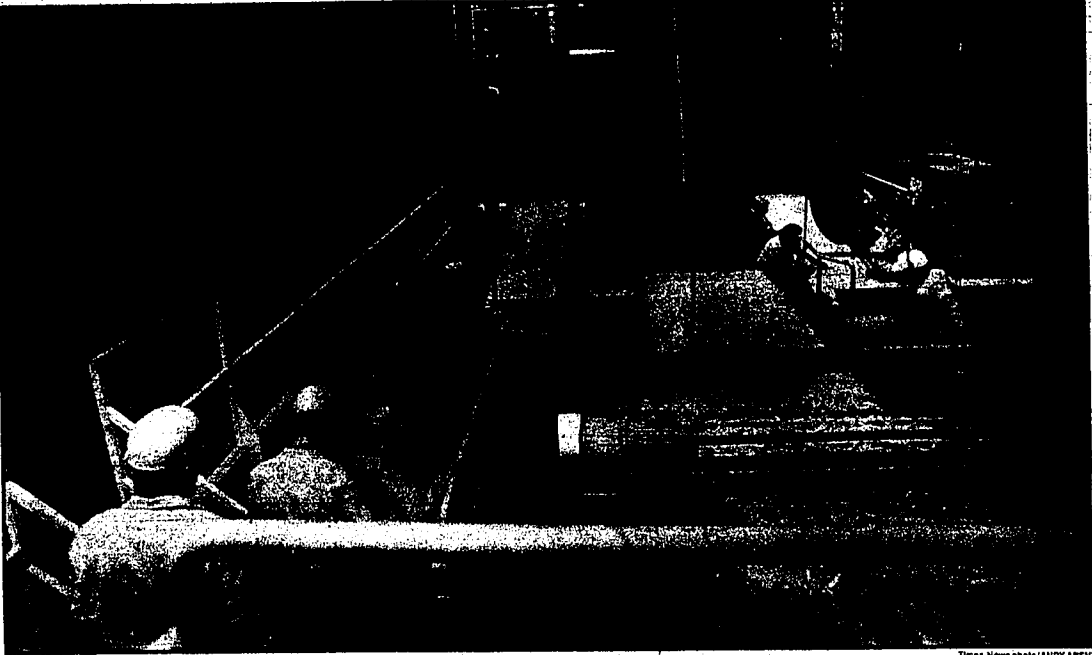

Motor carriers also have been forced to shove down their rates to combat lower rail rates and to become more efficient, sometimes by eliminating unprofitable runs.

Experts from processing companies, as well as a truck brokerage, weighed deregulation Thursday before Magic Valley Leadership '86, a program of the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce. The day-long monthly session was held at Universal Frozen Foods in Twin Falls.

The end of the production line at processing plants is the beginning of the distribution network. For UFF, which last year shipped 230 million pounds of frozen potatoes, transportation alone costs $10 million, said Jay Bailey, director of transportation and warehousing.

Getting the product to market has become a more complex business. "The industry has become very competitive," he said. Instead of relying on set rates, Bailey and his staff now can seek out the lowest cost among a variety of carriers.

Both truckers and motor carriers have become more aggressive in searching out business among shippers, Bailey said. For example, some rail representatives, who used to wait for freight orders to arrive, now are soliciting business among shippers personally, he said.

But, in some locations, shippers also are susceptible because of little or no competition. Regulated rates may have evened off rates in those locations previously.

Businesses in Southern Idaho that send fresh potatoes by rail are a "captive" market of Union Pacific Railroad, said David Smith, executive for the Idaho Grower Shippers Association.

Traditionally, when rail rates rise, potato shippers have responded by piling more potatoes into the cars.

But, in some locations, shippers also are susceptible because of little or no competition. Regulated rates may have evened off rates in those locations previously.

Although buyers have been willing to pay more in the past because of the high quality of Idaho spuds, changes in freight rates to distant markets make a large difference in prices, Smith said.

"We're going to lose markets unless we can be competitive in the transportation area," he said.

Vicious competition with railroads and among each other has put the trucking industry under great economic strain.

Truckers have been trying to economize, sometimes even by refusing shipments to destinations where they don't have a "backhaul," or a paying load, to bring back.

Among the major strains, as in other industries, has been liability insurance, said Austin Hall, owner of Austin's Truck Brokerage at Twin Falls. Hall said that the typical trucker's investment of $75,000 in the equipment alone places him or her as an independent business owner.

"Those that didn't address those (economic) issues are not in business today," Bailey said.

In other sections of the program:

- Larry Cope, president of Clear Springs Trout Co., was optimistic about the future of the industry in the Magic Valley, with only the amount of available water as the limiting factor. Growing interest by consumers in fish such as trout is a long-term benefit.

- Alex Sinclair, chairman of Sinclair and Co. and a commodities broker, attributed the crisis in agricultural trade to the strength of the U.S. dollar against other currencies, which cuts purchasing power by foreign buyers. Sinclair said the dollar's strength, one effect of large federal deficits, is easing, but it will take close to five years to regain commodity customers lost in the past four years.

State seeks input to plan centennial

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Representatives of the Idaho Statehood Centennial Commission held a public meeting at the College of Southern Idaho Wednesday to get input from Magic Valley residents on the state's 100th birthday.

The commission was established to commemorate the state's 100th birthday, on July 3, 1990. Events will take place not only on that day, but throughout 1989 and 1990. The kickoff will be on July 3rd, 1989.

Commission member Aldrich Bowler and Executive Director Constance Arana gathered ideas from the crowd of about 20 Magic Valley citizens interested in the celebration.

Members of the crowd represented groups such as the South-Central Idaho History Council, the Twin Falls Public Library Foundation, the Twin Falls Library Foundation and the Friends of Stricker Ranch.

One idea, suggested by several members of the group, was "development of the Stricker Ranch site."

The ranch is located southeast of Kimberly and is the site of what used to be a stage stop for travelers on the Oregon trail. The site has been well-preserved and members of the group thought it should be promoted and marked, with funding from the commission.

Other suggestions included development of the Thousand Springs area, promotion of the Twin Falls Public Library Foundation's selling of Thomas Moran prints, and coming up with a central theme for each community to use for their individual celebrations during the year of the centennial.

Two theme suggestions were "Idaho: The Last Frontier" and "Centennial Treasures: Idaho's Past, Present, and Future."

Jerome eyes loosening zoning rules for garages

By TERESA Z. TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — A new ordinance that would amend Jerome's municipal code to loosen zoning requirements for the construction of garages and carports within the city limits was given its first reading at a City Council meeting this week.

The ordinance was introduced by Mayor Jim Jurgens and is being considered by the Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council.

The ordinance would allow detached garages, carports or other accessory buildings to be built within three feet of any property line in residential zones and those allowing neighborhood services such as convenience stores.

The ordinance revision was considered when both the Planning and Zoning Commission and the Jerome City Council decided that the present setback restrictions for the construction of those types of buildings might be too strict and interfere with the best use of property.

Another proposed ordinance, amending Jerome's Uniform Fire and Building Code, was given its second reading. City Building Inspector Jim Jurgens said the amended state supervisor with the department.

On Friday, however, the department started to process priority cases manually to make sure citizens are receiving food stamps and other benefits.

Since it was put on line in mid-October, the $8 million system has had an on-again, off-again life. New applications for public assistance couldn't be fed regularly into the system by regional offices because programmers were busy eliminating problems in Boise.

In the region covering the Magic Valley, more than 200 applications or changes in cases were backlogged last week when eligibility officers had access to the system about one day a week. As a result, benefits were delayed — often past the legal time limit set for issuance of benefits.

There are just as many cases on hold in the region this week because of the system problems, Regional Manager Willard Abbott said. But the computer is available for use about three days out of the week.

"It's steadily getting better and we're able to issue more benefits," Abbott said.

Murdock said problems with a system "this massive and

Buhl youths hurt in accident

BUHL — Two Buhl youths escaped with minor injuries when their small pickup truck went out of control and broaddaded a utility pole Thursday afternoon.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers said Mark Werner, 16, was driving the vehicle owned by Virgil Ruhter of Buhl. A passenger was William Ruhter, 17, son of the owner. The accident occurred at 4:07 p.m.

The two were traveling north on County Road 400 North near the city limits of Buhl when the vehicle slid sideways after leaving the roadway and crashed into the utility pole. The pole struck the pickup just behind the cab on the passenger side. The vehicle was totaled, officers said.

Ruhter was treated for cuts, bruises and released. Werner suffered lacerations and a possible leg injury.

Truck mishap injures driver

JEROME — A Colorado truck driver was injured and damage of $80,000 resulted in an accident late Thursday night.

State police reported a truck driven by Charles Welch, 39, of Pueblo, Colo., went out of control on I-84 near the Kimberly-Hansen interchange.

Officers said Welch probably fell asleep and his truck, a car carrier loaded with new cars, went off the highway. As he tried to get it back into the traffic lane, the truck and carrier overturned onto the right side damaging several vehicles and the truck. Welch was taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released after emergency room treatment. The accident was still under investigation Friday.

Double parking mete#stolen

TWIN FALLS — Someone went to a lot of trouble to earn a few coins, city police reports showed Friday.

Sometime prior to 2 p.m. Thursday, police said a double parking meter post in the 100 block of 3rd Street East was sawed off and both meter heads and the post were stolen.

Loss to the city was estimated at $300 for the meters, in addition to whatever coins may have been in them.

Several burglaries reported

TWIN FALLS — Several burglaries were reported to Twin Falls Police Friday, including break-ins at a restaurant and a residence. Police said someone broke out a window to gain entry to a home at 6354 Blue Lakes Boulevard N. sometime Wednesday or Thursday. After entering the building, the burglars searched the home and removed a collection of coins and cash amounting to $200.

Earlier in the week, Francisco's restaurant, at 360 Main Ave. N. was entered after a glass door was broken. About $500 in cash was taken from the business, owners reported.

A vehicle parked in the Twin Falls High School parking lot was entered Thursday and a radar detector taken. Officers said burglars were able to open an unlocked sun roof on the vehicle and reach inside to lift out the anti-radar equipment. The vehicle was owned by Thayne T. Baker, who estimated loss at $210.

Thieves steal dog, 20 geese

TWIN FALLS — Thiefs reported to the Twin Falls County sheriff's Department Thursday sounded like a verse from Old McDonald's Farm.

Kathy McMaisters, who resides five miles south of Kimberly, told officers someone stole her dog from an enclosed pen in the backyard of her home. The dog was taken sometime late Wednesday, she said.

Archie Quasnell, who lives five miles south and a quarter-mile north of the intersection of Addison Avenue West and Grandview Drive, said thieves took 20 geese from his farm.

Officers said it would take some planning to carry off such a caper. The case was under investigation Thursday.

Two restaurants burglarized

TWIN FALLS — Two restaurants in Twin Falls lost cash this week after thieves entered their businesses.

Me & Ed's Pizza, at 705 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., reported the loss of $117.60 from the office area late Wednesday morning. Jill Gasser, assistant manager, told police two young men were believed to have entered the unlocked office and taken the money in a bank deposit bag.

The West Addison Restaurant lost about $420 sometime between 2:30-4 p.m. Wednesday. Employees told officers someone entered an unlocked door in the office area and was able to get the business safe open, taking the change and bills from the safe. Officers said there was no indication of force used to open the safe.

Klan leader's possible move draws protest

COOS-BAY, Ore. (AP) — More than 130 Coos County residents jammed a library Thursday night to protest a possible move to this coastal town by a former leader of the Ku Klux Klan.

The community meeting was the work of the "Coos Bay is Colorful Committee," a group hastily formed after Robert E. Miles said last week that he was considering retiring in Coos Bay.

Miles, who lives outside Flint, Mich., is a Midwest regional coordinator of the Aryan Nations and was one of the leaders of the World Aryan Congress that met last summer in Idaho. He heads the Mountain Kluks, an Identiy church outside Detroit.

He also is a former grand dragon of the United Klans of America, the largest KKK group in the country.

Many at Thursday's meeting in Coos Bay said there was nothing that could be done legally to stop Miles from moving to Oregon's southern coast. However, others warned of the possible consequences if Miles settled there.

Terry Freeman, a Coos County native, said "the Klan is alive and well" in Coos County, "but it has no leader. There is hate in this community but it is unorganized. The man knows what he's doing."

Coos Bay resident Doug Richardson said residents need to "look within ourselves to find prejudice and eliminate it. "We are being watched. We should be careful and not overreact. But we should speak out soon and be firm."

Centennial

All proceeds from the sale of the plates will go to support the commission. Arana said that 1.4 million plates are issued in Idaho, and that a reasonable number goal for the sale of centennial plates is 100,000.

The license plate shows a Western white pine tree silhouetted in navy blue against light-blue mountains and a burgundy sky. These three colors will probably also be used for the centennial logo, Arana said.

In addition to the money received from the sale of license plates, the commission was given $100,000 from the state's general fund.

Idaho is working with five other states that have centennials within a year of 1990, such as Wyoming, Montana, Washington, and North and South Dakota, said Arana.

Local citizens wishing to get involved with the commission may write to the Office of the Governor, Statehouse Room 226, Boise 83720, or call 345-1990.

Owens planning legislation to ban nuke tests in Nevada

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Congressman-elect Wayne Owens said Friday he plans to introduce legislation to ban nuclear weapons tests in Nevada or move the tests to a site in the Pacific Ocean.

Owens, who was re-elected to the 2nd District seat he held in 1973-74, said he also plans legislation to extend the boundaries of Canyonlands National Park to include Lavender and Davis canyons, two possible sites for a high-level nuclear waste repository.

Owens said the Canyonlands legislation is currently being drafted, and he probably will introduce it soon after Congress convenes in January. The nuclear test bill, he said, is more complicated and will take longer.

The nuclear tests should be halted because a base would possibly improve chances for a new arms control treaty with the Soviet Union, and because radiation from the bias continues to fall on Utah, Owens said.

"We've got all the fallout up here, so my proposal would have something to do with either stopping it or putting it somewhere in the South Pacific where there aren't any people," Owens said.

He said both bills will stir controversy and, as a result, move slowly through Congress.

"There's an issue to be made and a fight to be fought. I don't look for immediate success," Owens said.

Davis and Lavender canyons, near the borders of Canyonlands, are among nine possible sites the Department of Energy has identified for the burial of highly radioactive waste materials. Neither Utah location is on the department's list of preferred sites; but neither has been ruled out entirely.

Building the repository in Utah would destroy the state's tourist industry, one of the few bright spots in a sagging economy, Owens said.

Making the canyons part of the park would take them off the list, since Congress has forbidden the DOE from building a waste repository in a national park.

"It really would be quite controversial. It wouldn't be anything that would be a fast solution," Owens said.

Republican Rep. James V. Hansen, in Utah's 1st District, introduced a bill to bring the canyons into the park two years ago, but the effort was not successful.

Owens is lobbying for a seat on the Energy and Commerce Committee, which oversees the Department of Energy, the agency that will not only waste the site to the President, but which supervises atomic weapons tests as well.

But he said membership on the committee would not have any significant impact on the success of the proposed legislation.

sophisticated waxes. There are a million uses of computer data equivalent to 1 million pages in a book, he said.

The system, really a program used by an existing state computer, takes information about a client and computes the benefits for four different food stamps, medical assistance, Aid to Families of Dependent Children and Supplemental Security Income for the elderly.

With the old system, eligibility workers had to compute by hand the benefits for four different rules from different agencies, such as the U.S. Department of Agriculture and U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The system, however, computes the benefits for the different programs in less time, Murdock said. Despite months of testing, problems arose when the system was put into actual service, Murdock said. One "glitch," for example, was the system printing information on the wrong lines of checks.

While the problems were being eliminated, the system would be stopped. That delayed processing of cases and issuance of benefits.

Although some problems were expected, the state computer using the new system didn't have the information from the old system and the new one, Murdock said.

The new system is "working and working right," he said. Since Nov. 6, more than 1,157 food stamp cases and more than 100 AFDC checks have been processed.

"But it is slower than we want until we get all the glitches out," he said.

Because of the delays, the department established a temporary system of handwritten vouchers for people who should have already received their benefits but didn't.

Regional offices will teletype information to Boise and benefits will be mailed to the client as soon as the information is received, Murdock said. He had no figures on how many cases would be processed under the temporary system.

Abbott said he didn't know how many priority cases from the region would be processed.

stopping at a grocery store in the evening. But, Mrs. Novis says, things are different in a more populated area. Redlands, where Corinna moved in April, is just east of Los Angeles and while it is a relatively small town, it is in a heavily populated area.

The former Gooding and College of Southern Idaho student and cheerleader was working for an insurance firm in Redlands and holding down a job in California. She went to California "to make it big," her mother says.

"Her goal was to own her own insurance company, and she would have made it, too," says her older sister, Brenda. Her employer told her she was "not qualified."

When the young woman didn't arrive at a sorority party the night of Nov. 7 at the college in Redlands, where she volunteered as a cheerleader instructor, friends became worried.

They assumed she had decided to go somewhere else. The following morning her employer and co-workers knew something was wrong when she didn't come to work and was not at her apartment. They found her apartment door open and the apartment ransacked. Several items were missing and police say the murderers probably used her key to go to her home after she was killed.

Mrs. Novis said she wasn't notified until about 12:30 p.m. on Nov. 8, after police contacted a cousin in California. He had information that William Novis was in the area with a truck and went immediately to Redlands to help in the search while Donna and Brenda Novis stayed home in case Corinna might try to contact them. The couple's son, William, is stationed with the U.S. Marine Corps in California and joined the family later.

After the body of another young woman was found and Corinna's car was located in the same general area, the family began to realize she may have happened.

Even yet, the family says it is hard to believe there are people like Corinna's murderers who care nothing for others' lives and kill for the thrill of it.

Brenda says officers feel there were probably drugs involved, but they described the suspects in the case as parasites, who live by taking what they want and need from others.

Four persons, two men and two women, have been arrested in connection with the murder of Corinna and the other young woman whose body was found near Big Bear resort, about 40 miles from where Corinna was buried. William Novis says the arrest was made by officers linking the two deaths together and tracing a credit card found with the other girl's body.

"They killed her for a credit card, and it wasn't even any good," Donna Novis says. "The officers also learned that they apparently forced Corinna to take money from her bank account at an automatic teller machine shortly after she was abducted."

"Why couldn't they have just taken the money and her car and let her out somewhere?" Mrs. Novis asks herself.

"I just hope that the justice system there will not get too concerned about the rights of the criminals. They didn't give my daughter's rights any consideration," says William Novis.

He and his wife say there isn't anything they can do for their own daughter now, but they don't want to see the same thing happen to anyone else's daughter.

"It's hard to take. We are a small family and class," the father says. "It's starting to get a little easier, but it's going to take a lot of time."

Others are Idaho Utility Products Co., formed in 1983 to develop and market products directly and indirectly in the utility industry; Power Products Inc., formed in December 1985 to develop, license and sell utility-related instrumentation and monitoring equipment; and Idacorp, Inc., formed this past summer to develop and create and developing new investment opportunities.

"We've sort of come full circle," Gunnoe said Friday, but added: "You can diversify, but there are obstacles to a holding company."

Other strategies being considered by IPC include:

* developing new markets. IPC is attempting to put together a group of Northwest utilities to sell power to the Southwest through what is described as the "Inland Inter-tie."

This would be a power transmission line from IPC's Mid-Point Substation near Shoshone through Jackpot to Las Vegas, Nev.

* the purchase of other utility properties within the boundaries of its service territory, such as CP Nevada, which serves 25,000 customers in southeast Oregon. IPC has offered $64 million for the company. The sale is being field by the Oregon Public Utilities Commission.

* considering lower, incentive rates to attract new customers.

* participation in the Idaho Company, a coalition including IPC, banks, other utilities and large Idaho-based firms. It will be incorporated next week, Bob Klumpp, IPC's senior vice president for finance, told The Times-News Friday.

Thirteen incorporators, which he declined to name, have pledged to purchase stock in the corporation and will attempt to raise additional funding for economic development, Klumpp said. They will seek $2 million from the private sector and $2 million from the state Legislature this coming session, he said.

If sleeping rooms are upstairs, Jurgen said, the smoke detector must be placed on the ceiling above the stairs; and if the residence has a basement that can be entered from within the house, there must be a detector installed in the basement, too.

Further, Jurgen said, existing structures may use battery operated smoke detectors, but new buildings must have a separate power source for the alarm.

A third proposed ordinance, which would regulate placement of fences more strictly, was also scheduled to be discussed. However, Councilman E.B. Pharris said the second reading

American bishops' actions point to distance from Rome

By MARJORIE HYER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Though the formal response last week of the nation's Roman Catholic bishops to the controversy over Seattle Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen appeared to tilt more toward Rome than Hunthausen, the bishops "are not letting him twist slowly, slowly in the wind."

So said the Rev. Richard O'Brien, head of the theology department of the University of Notre Dame and a noted analyst of U.S. Catholicism. Many bishops agree with him.

In the complex world of Catholic politics, the bishops' actions during their four-day annual meeting spoke louder than their official pronouncement on Hunthausen, who had been charged with lax enforcement of orthodox church doctrines.

They gave resounding approval, 225 to 9, to a far-reaching pastoral letter on economic justice, a document widely expected by influential and well-financed groups of conservative Catholic laymen.

In choosing leaders for posts within the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and to represent American Catholicism at a world-wide Synod of Bishops in Rome next year, they consistently rebuffed candidates including some of the most powerful men in the U.S. hierarchy—perceived as too subservient to Rome, in favor of more central bishops.

A set of more conservative guidelines that would sharply restrict use of general absolution, in which Catholics make ritual confessions and receive absolution on mass, was rejected by influential bishops. O'Brien argued that they needed to make their own judgment on when the process could be used.

Even their statement on the Hunthausen affair, with its pledge of "unwavering" loyalty to the pope and seeming endorsement of the Vatican's action against the Seattle prelate, was more eloquent for what was omitted. And it left open the doors for further negotiations.

The statement on the Hunthausen controversy by Bishop James W. Malone, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said only that "the principles of church law and practice were followed" in the probe of charges against the archbishop.

Significantly, phrases in an earlier draft describing both the investigation and Vatican action against Hun-thausen "just and reasonable" were stricken from the final statement. In a disciplinary move the Vatican feared this year stripped Hunthausen of some authority and ordered him to share responsibilities for his diocese with Auxiliary Bishop Donald Wuerl.

Boyed by the bishops' willingness to incur the wrath of the Reagan administration by denouncing nuclear weapons and government policies insensitive to the poor, some liberals had hoped that the hierarchy would take on the Vatican. Such hopes were unrealistic.

Beyond the fact that the Catholic Church is not a democracy but an autocracy, the bishops are not insensitive to the fact that the church in this country is already perceived by Pope John Paul II as doctrinally lax and not sufficiently attuned to Rome.

To have added publicly with Hunthausen against Rome would have been fatal, for Hunthausen as well as for the bishops' conference.

So they found other ways to send Rome a message. They elected as their president a low-profile, centrist, thoughtful foot-soldier type, Archbishop John May of St. Louis, who will lead the conference along the same path it has followed.

Meaningfully, they rejected the presidential bid of Cardinal Bernard Law of Boston, who, as one bishop explained, "is perceived by the bishops as currying favor with Rome, and the bishops don't like it."

Law, who wrote in his diocesan paper that the Vatican "had no choice but to act against Hunthausen," said the view of Notre Dame's O'Brien, "made himself the point man of the Vatican."

In another upset that raised eyebrows, the powerful, conservative Archbishop Roger Mahony of Los Angeles was beaten for the chairmanship of the important Social Development and World Peace Committee by Auxiliary Bishop Joseph M. Sullivan of Brooklyn.

Cardinal Joseph L. Bernardin of Chicago, on the other hand, was re-elected chairman of the "pro-life" committee despite right-wing opposition to his "seamless-garment" platform, which calls for abortion threats to life.

"For anyone who can read the tea leaves, there's a strong message to the Vatican," O'Brien said. A number of the bishops agreed with him.

Bible Week noted

...The church is not a democracy but an autocracy, the bishops are not insensitive to the fact that the church in this country is already perceived by Pope John Paul II as doctrinally lax and not sufficiently attuned to Rome.

Church gets support in rise from ashes

KIRTLAND, Ohio (AP) — Librarian Paula Shepherd believed that the church of Jesus Christ at 1676 South Main St. in Kirtland, Ohio, would rise like a phoenix from the ashes of the fire that destroyed it and its genealogical library.

She didn't realize how many people would play a part in that resurrection. Three years of work were destroyed in the May 4 fire, as well as books detailing community and family histories and records with names of names used in genealogical research. Ms. Shepherd and co-worker Pam Rockover thought there would be no way to recoup the loss of some of the rare documents.

But they didn't take into account genealogists and supporters from here to Salt Lake City who donated books, equipment and money to the church.

"I didn't need to put out an appeal," she said. "It's been gratifying to know people really cared. It really says a lot about the church. People will write or call and send. It's not much and send us donations."

Others, including representatives from local genealogical programs in Lake and Ashtabula counties and Morley Public Library in Palmsville, searched shelves for copies of volumes needed to restock the library. Kirtland City Council allowed church members to house the library in a trailer near the local historical museum.

Ms. Shepherd said the greatest need now is more staff space for volunteers that have come in from such sources as a scholar in Salt Lake City to local librarians and genealogists who used the library for research.

The church is expected to be rebuilt by Nov. 5, 1987.

Idaho group opposes sex ed

NEW MEADOWS (AP) — Members of a religious group in New Meadows are trying to convince the Meadows Valley School board that sex education doesn't belong in school.

Walter Barrett, member of Christian Outreach, formerly the Assembly of God Church, told trustees this week that teaching sex education was equal to school giving permission to students to engage in sexual activity.

Christian Outreach spokesman Bill Nichols said his group opposes efforts by a group of Meadows Valley parents to improve current programs in the school on sex and relationships.

The committee has been looking at the district's sex education programs the last several months to battle what some residents said is an increase in the number of pregnant and married students attending school.

Committee spokesman Darcy McDaniel said the committee is trying to find ways to help youths make responsible decisions about relationships.

Volcanic eruption forces evacuations

TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of people fled a small island south of Tokyo on Friday after a volcano burst open, spewing rocks and flames and sending molten lava toward the island's largest town.

Directly related to the eruption, but an elderly man died of a heart attack en route to a rescue vessel, police said.

The 2,349-foot-high volcano, Mount Mihara on Oshima island, began rumbling last Saturday. Shortly after 4 p.m. Friday, the volcano started spewing bright orange flames from several openings, including a 600-yard-long fissure on the side of the mountain. Giant plumes of black smoke shot two miles into the sky.

Authorities ordered the evacuation of everyone on the 35-square-mile island, which is 70 miles south of Tokyo. By Saturday morning, 33 rescue ships had evacuated the 11,000 residents and an undetermined number of tourists, Tokyo police said.

The evacuees were taken to schools and welfare centers near Tokyo. About 300 scientists, police, firemen and power company officials stayed behind to monitor the volcano.

Police said the eruption began to abate early Saturday and the lava flow stopped 200 yards short of Motomachi, a town several miles west of the volcano. No damage to Motomachi was reported, but the lava sparked more than 40 forest fires.

The eruption Friday was accompanied by hundreds of earthquakes, some of them major tremors.

"There was a sudden blast and then another and in a matter of about 15 minutes, there were three (erupting areas). I didn't know what was happening," said Tsugutomi Matsumoto, an Associated Press photographer who was about 500 yards from the mountain.

"The jolts from the eruption and the earthquakes were beyond words" an elderly resident told Japanese television. "It was like being on a boat all day," added an elderly woman, also a resident.

Moderate earthquakes continued to rock the island Saturday.

Fiji lauded by pope

NADI, Fiji (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Saturday praised Fiji's existence as a united nation despite cultural differences that have caused some tension among its citizens.

"In a very visible way you are a symbol of hope in the world," he told a gathering of 1,000 children at Nadi International airport at the end of a 25-hour visit. "You have something to teach the world about solidarity and loving respect for every person."

The pontiff said, "You differ widely among yourselves, yet you are one united nation."

John Paul then left for New Zealand. At a Friday outdoor Mass in Suva, the capital, the pope urged Fijians to appreciate and respect their cultural differences.

The Fiji Islands cover 7,055 square miles in the South Pacific, about 1,750 miles northeast of Australia.

Fiji has a population of about 650,000 — about 300,000 of them Christians, 234,000 Hindus and the rest Moslems or Contucians.

Rhine suffers 2nd spill

LUDWIGSHAFEN, West Germany (AP) — Nearly 300 gallons of a toxic herbicide leaked into the Rhine on Friday, three weeks after a disastrous chemical spill that destroyed life in long stretches of the river.

The environment ministry of Rhineland-Palatinate state said the spill from the Ludwigshafen plant of the BASF chemical company did not pose a serious environmental or health hazard.

"A fish kill is highly unlikely. By next week, it certainly will no longer be noticeable," ministry spokeswoman Cornelia Quennet said in a telephone interview from Mainz.

Her ministry said in a statement that a breakdown in a cooling-water system at the BASF plant caused the leak into Europe's busiest river at 8 a.m. Ms. Quennet said the company alerted officials, "according to regulations."

In Ludwigshafen, company spokesman Hans-Dietrich Gaertner said the leaked chemical, dichloroacetic acid, dilutes rapidly in water.

He said it would not be dangerous in the amount released, but environmental officials in nearby Hesse state ordered a temporary shutdown of the water purification plant that serves Schierstein-on-Rhine.

Philippine officials targeted

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The military chief of staff asked on Friday that several Cabinet ministers be fired for incompetence, piling further pressure on a government faced with a growing polarization between the left and right.

An adviser of President Corazon Aquino, meanwhile, claimed the CIA might have been involved in recent political violence, but he offered no proof. The U.S. Embassy issued a statement stressing Washington's "unequivocal support" for the Aquino government.

Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, the military chief of staff, said after a 90-minute meeting with Mrs. Aquino that the military urged changes in her 9-month-old Cabinet.

At a later news conference, presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno made no mention of possible Cabinet changes, but he said Mrs. Aquino was "moving in the direction" of appointing a chief of staff to improve efficiency.

Television Channel 7 quoted Benigno as saying the president may dismiss "one or two" ministers and trim the powers of a third. But Benigno told The Associated Press he had made "absolutely no statements" about Cabinet changes.

Ramos said he and senior generals recommended "the immediate replacement of Cabinet officials who have not performed adequately, especially in putting into operation in the field the mechanisms for efficient government performance."

He did not name the ministers on the list and denied press reports that the military had demanded a purge of leftists from the Cabinet.

Newspapers said Ramos asked for the ouster of, among others, Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo and Labor Minister Augusto Sanchez, both prominent human rights lawyers during the 20-year-rule of Ferdinand E. Marcos, and Local Governments Minister Aquilino Pimentel who has been criticized for appointing inept local and regional government officials.

Ramos denied that he asked Mrs. Aquino to call new presidential elections and reconvene the pro-Marcos National Assembly she dissolved shortly after taking office in February.

Those two demands have been made by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, a hardliner who has criticized the president for seeking to negotiate an end to the 17-year-old communist insurgency.

World body gets U.S. payment

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States on Friday gave the financially hard-pressed United Nations $100 million, less than half what Washington owes in dues but enough to enable the world body to cover costs to the end of the year.

The payment was made to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar by U.S. delegates Herbert Okun and Joseph Reed, assistants to Ambassador Vernon Walters.

As things now stand, the United Nations will end the year with $10 million in cash, enough for only one week's operations, said U.N. spokesman Francois Giullant.

Spanish abortion restrictions eased

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Socialist government on Friday eased restrictions in a 1985 law to make abortions more available in Spain.

The current law allows abortion in cases of danger to the mother's life, malformation of the fetus or pregnancy resulting from rape. The changes end the requirements that a five-member commission approve each abortion, and that they be performed in government-approved hospitals during the first 12 weeks pregnancy.

The government decree, which takes effect one day after publication in the Official Gazette, permits abortions in private clinics.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"A matter that becomes clear ceases to concern us."

Nietzsche

Most believe that the best place for one's ace is on an opponent's king. This is as reasonable a guideline as any, but as usual, there are exceptions to the rule.

South wins his club king and draws trumps in two rounds. Next, he cashes the club ace and ruffs a club to eliminate that suit. Declarer plays three rounds of spades, ending in dummy, and plays a low diamond back to his king. Should West take his ace or should he wait for better things?

Following rules will not provide the winning answer. To make an intelligent decision, West must reconstruct South's distribution.

Since East followed to two rounds of trumps, South is known to have started with five hearts. The play also revealed that South had three spades and two clubs. That accounts for 10 of South's cards; obviously he must have three diamonds.

Back to West's problem. If he wins South's diamond king with his ace, the slam scores. South gets either a free finesse or a ruff and discard. However, when West knows that South has three diamonds, he also knows that a duck cannot hurt. He refuses the diamond king with confidence, and South must lose two diamonds for a minus score.

Burley girls have hot first half, rip Mountain Home, 78-38

By The Times-News

MOUNTAIN HOME — The Burley girls went on a first-half scoring tear and rolled over the Mountain Home Tigers 78-38.

"The pace was unbelievable, especially in the first half," said Burley Coach Gordon Kerbs. "Everything both teams fell in the first quarter and we stayed with it in the second quarter while Mountain Home kinda cooled off. The difference in this game was we ran tonight like we are capable of running. The Bobcats put four players in double scoring figures, headed by senior Hettie DeJong. She was followed by sophomore Jennifer Beck who had 12 assists along with 14 points. Laura Barnes, nine rebounds and 16 points and junior Donna Allen with 13 points.

The victory raised Burley's record to 4-1 overall and 2-0 in the South Central Idaho Conference.

Burley also won the preliminary by 35 points.

Burley will be off until Dec. 2 when it entertains Pocatello in a rematch. Pocatello topped the Bobcats in the season opener.

Records: Burley 4-1, Mountain Home 1-4, Pocatello 2-2, Boise State 2-2, Idaho Falls 2-2, Shoshone 2-2, Teton 2-2, Twin Falls 2-2, Valley 2-2, Wendell 2-2, Woodbury 2-2, Yonkers 2-2.

Valley 54 Buhi 42

HAZELTON — Lori Reed scored 13 points, nine in the second half, to send the Valley Vikings past the Buhi Indians 54-42 in girls' basketball action Friday night.

The Vikings took the lead right from the opening buzzer and only fell behind once in the game. Late in the third quarter, the Indians took the lead behind the scoring of Nancy Stevens but the two seniors on the Valley club, Lisa Huttig and Toni Perkins, powered the Vikings fast break and regained the lead for Valley.

The win was a team effort for the Vikings with three players scoring in double figures, topped by Joyce Scheible's 14 points.

Records: Valley 10-1, Buhi 1-5, Hazelton 1-5, Shoshone 1-5, Teton 1-5, Twin Falls 1-5, Wendell 1-5, Yonkers 1-5.

Glenns Ferry 44 Rimrock 32

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenns Ferry Pilots had no problem in posting a 44-32 non-conference victory over the Rimrock Raiders Friday night.

Barb Johank hit 15 points, Pam Pender 13 and Kelli King had three three-pointers to account for most of Glenns Ferry's points in the easy decision.

Jordan scores last 18 points; Bulls rally past Knicks, 101-99

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan set an NBA record by scoring Chicago's final 18 points, including an 1-foot jump shot with one second remaining Friday night that gave the Bulls a 101-99 NBA victory over the New York Knicks.

Jordan, leading the NBA in scoring points with a 35.4 average, finished with 40 points. With the score 99-99, Jordan took an inbounds pass near his own basket and drove down the left sideline before connecting on his leap-in shot. After a timeout, Gerald Wilkins missed a three-point shot as time expired.

Jordan's burst surpassed the previous NBA record for consecutive points by a player for his time of 16, set by Washington's Leon Wood last season.

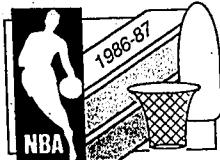

Jordan had tied the score 85-85 with 6:22 left to start his big scoring spurt. He later scored 10 points in an 87-second span.

Jordan had given the Bulls a 97-95 edge on a driving layup and free throw after New York's Bill Cartwright had put his team ahead 95-94 with two free throws.

Boston 135 Golden State 120

BOSTON — Larry Bird hit on four three-point bombs and scored 32 points Friday night as the Boston Celtics whipped the Golden State Warriors 135-120 for their 46th consecutive home court victory.

Kevin McHale had 23 points,

Robert Parish 19, Danny Ainge 17 and Jerry Sichting 15 in helping the Celtics dominate the Warriors, who have not won in Boston since Jan. 29, 1978.

The Celtics, unbeaten at Boston Garden for nearly one year, ran a 17-4 surge in the second period to a 67-56 halftime lead, but the Warriors, led by Chris Mullin, pulled within five points early in the third period.

Then, with the score 82-77 shortly after Boston veteran Dennis Johnson was ejected on two technical fouls, the Celtics came alive again.

The Celtics breezed to their fifth consecutive victory, raising their season record to 8-2.

Detroit 120 Philadelphia 110

PHILADELPHIA — Isiah Thomas and Adrian Dantley scored 27 points to lead the Detroit Pistons to a 120-110 NBA victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Friday night.

Detroit led 59-54 at the half and held on throughout the third quarter

Washington 115 Houston 99

LANDOVER, Md. — Jeff Malone scored 38 points and Moses Malone set a team record for foul shots in scoring 34 points Friday night in the Washington Bullets' defeated the Houston Rockets 115-99 in the NBA.

Moses Malone made 20 of 33 free throws, the most ever made by a Washington player.

Malone scored the first seven points of the game and led the entire way. The Bullets were ahead 27-16 after the first quarter.

Dallas 130 Phoenix 126

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Rolando Blackman scored six of his 31 points in overtime as the Dallas Mavericks rallied to beat the Phoenix Suns 130-126 in an NBA game Friday night.

The loss snapped Phoenix's three-game winning streak and was the Suns' first setback at home in five games this season.

Alvan Adams layup nine seconds into the overtime period gave Phoenix a 118-116 lead before Dallas rattled off eight unanswered points with Blackman scoring four of them for a 124-118 lead with 2:21 left.

Defense

team with a great defensive line and a great defensive coach," says Walters, who was an inside linebacker at L.A. Valley. "That meant a lot of (college) people saw me play. (UCLA Coach) Terry Donahue watched me and I could have gone to UCLA if my grades had been better."

So Walters, by then a 23-year-old college sophomore, opted for Boise State.

"The biggest thing is that I wanted to get out of California," he says. "The city of Boise, and the program, really appealed to me."

Walters was thrust into a position vacated two years before by John Rade, who is now a starter for the Atlanta Falcons. Senechuk had created Rade's "rush" linebacker position at Boise State in 1981 to take advantage of Rade's great strength and speed. After Rade graduated in 1982, BSU reverted to the 3-4 until Senechuk found somebody he thought could fill Rade's shoes.

"He's definitely in the mode of John Rade," says Senechuk. "He's a physical player with a lot of desire. The Marines, I think, helped him have more determination."

Senechuk was expecting Walters to be an impact player immediately, and the adjustment was a big one for the ex-Marine.

"The position was new, so I had to learn as I went along," says Walters. "It was a big change from junior college, but it didn't take me too long to pick it up."

Walters ended his junior season with 54 tackles, 13 tackles for loss and two forced fumbles.

"His presence, his maturity make him a solid catalyst for the team," explains Dutton. "His maturity does a lot for the other players. He's a complete person to coach."

For Ellis, who came out of high school with a better reputation as a wrestler than as a football player, the apprenticeship was much longer. When he joined the team in 1982 as a redshirt, the incumbent inside linebackers were Chuck Butler and Kirk Keever, both of whom eventually made it to the NFL.

"I learned a lot that first couple of years, but I had a lot to learn," says Ellis. "My high school (football) program was pretty weak. Our coach called plays from what he'd seen on Monday Night Football the week before."

By his sophomore season, Ellis was a starter at Boise State, having impressed Senechuk not only with his physical and intellectual skills, but with his conditions and discipline.

"He's a more physical player than Keever," says Senechuk. "Jim just doesn't seem to get tired."

Indeed, Ellis' four-year statistics surpass Keever's in many areas. Going into today's season-ending game against Idaho, Ellis has been responsible for 466 tackles in four seasons, forced eight fumbles, deflected nine passes and intercepted five Ellis.

Senechuk believes both Ellis and Walters have pro potential, and others agree.

"He has the mobility and he has the skills, but I don't know his intangibles," says Wnek.

"A number of scouts have come to look at Rex," says Dutton. "But one negative is his age. A few of the scouts we have spent here. I think he has a great chance in the CFL, though, because he's so mobile and so quick."

Ellis says he doesn't think much these days about the pros; Walters says that's much on his mind.

"That's what I've been working all these years for," he says. "How old was (former Oklahoma and Detroit Lion running back) Billy Sims when he was drafted? Twenty-five?"

Both players say their proudest legacy to Boise State is the fact that they won't be missed much — or at least too much. In the Broncos' system, most defensive players can handle two positions.

"I can play linebacker or end, Jimmy can play outside or inside," says Walters. "The guys who are playing behind us (Junior Rick Gore, in Walters' case; freshman Joe McCarthy behind Ellis) have gotten their playing time and a lot of experience in this system. With the kind of coaching they've had, they'll be great players."

How great?
"I said before the season began that you don't replace a Markus Koch," says Senechuk of his former defensive end who is now a rookie with the Washington Redskins. "The same thing with Ellis and Walters. You find somebody who can play the position. A year ago we switched back to the formation that we used in 1982 with Rade. I felt that he improved on defense because of it."

Pomerelle opens for '86-'87 season

ALBION — The Pomerelle Ski Resort is open for the season on a regular schedule with the exception of night skiing that will begin next month.

Resort Owner Woody Anderson said Friday that about another 12 to 18 inches of snow has fallen this week and a heavy storm continued most of Friday.

He said the resort opened a week ago with some rocks and a few bare spots, and about 24 inches of snow.

"There might still be occasional snow to watch for, but it's a lot better this weekend," Anderson said.

Lifts are operating Tuesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Packing equipment is operating during and following the snow storms and the road is kept open by the Cassia County Highway District.

Vandals

The Broncos, of course, excel at forcing turnovers — nine of them against Northwestern State last week and 26 for the season. Most of them are attributable to the physical nature of the BSU defense, and to the fact that Boise State possessed of several pass rushers like Twin Falls Sellers and outside linebacker Rex Walters.

"Turnovers will be important," says Senechuk. "But I don't think turnovers have hurt Idaho as much in the last two weeks."

In last year's 44-27 Idaho victory in Moscow, the Broncos picked off five of Rick Sloan's passes, two of which led directly to touchdowns. But they couldn't stop the Vandals' running game — fullback Todd Haines had 63 yards and a touchdown, and wide receiver Sloan passed for 325 yards and 10 TDs. Perhaps more importantly, Idaho kept BSU's defense on the field for almost 32 minutes and scored the last 24 points of the game.

Because of the weakness of Boise State's offense this season, that has been a recurring problem. Through 10 games this season, the Broncos have generated an average of 346 yards — seventh in the eight-team Big Sky — and held on to the ball an average of 30 minutes and 5 seconds. They've converted 28 percent of their first downs and scored on 28 percent of their possessions, figures which rank BSU eighth and seventh, respectively, in the league. By contrast, last season Boise State generated 396 yards per game, kept the ball for an average of 32:24, converted on 41 percent of its third-down plays and scored on 31 percent of its possessions.

Of course, the Broncos' talkback-oriented offense has operated for much of this season without a talkback — and certainly without a Chris Jackson. Jackson, a 5-foot-10, 180-pound transfer from Texas A&I, ingtion, blew out his knee in Boise State's season-opening loss to Eastern Washington and didn't return to full-time duty until the Nevada-Reno game two weeks ago.

In that game, he rushed for 148 yards and last week, against Northwestern State, for 158 yards and a touchdown. In short, it isn't the same Bronco offense when Jackson's in the game.

"I told everyone before the start of the season that Chris Jackson was a big-time running back," says Senechuk. "When he's in the offensive backfield, it gives our offensive attack a new look. If he's healthy, he'll be a big key. We'll run him."

"He's the guy they rely on, so we will have to slow him down," says Gilbertson.

Ranked against that offense will be an Idaho defense that ranks fourth in the Big Sky in total defense and sixth in rushing defense. The Vandals have had big trouble with backs that run behind big offensive lines — giving up 156 yards and touchdowns to Central Michigan's Rodney Stevenson in a 34-21 loss on Sept. 13 and allowing 134 yards to Lucius Floyd and 124 yards to Anthony Foger in the Vandals' 17-13 loss to Nevada-Reno on Oct. 18.

"It could be a big key," agrees Gilbertson. "Right now I like the way our defense is playing. We've found a way to play to score 31 points against a good team from Northwest Louisiana. Boise is playing better on that side of the ball."

Another key will be how well the Vandals do what they do best — against Bronco quarterback Keith Jarrett, a redshirt freshman — force mistakes.

Jarrett, who came on in relief of starter Vince Alcide in the third game of the season and has been the starter ever since, ranks eighth in the conference in passing efficiency and has thrown 10 interceptions.

"Their quarterback is playing much better now, partly because he seems to understand his role better," says Gilbertson.

And partly because Jackson has taken the pressure off him. When the Broncos' running game has ground to a halt, as it did against Idaho State in September and Oregon State last month, Jarrett has been his shackles.

Idaho leads the Big Sky in interceptions with 20 and ranks third in the league in passing defense.

For his part, Gilbertson is convinced that an Idaho victory today will put the Vandals into the playoffs — but he isn't allowing himself the luxury of saying so.

"We're not going to worry about anything except playing Boise State," he says. "We're just going to think about this week's opponent and try to match up with them. They've got great athletes, lots of speed and are a real physical team. We just have to concern ourselves with that."

The four-man NCAA committee that met on Nov. 15 with the 16-team playoff final will announce its decision Sunday morning.

Eagles

and one in the second half and that tells me we weren't taking it to the bucket. And we must have thrown the ball away 20 times," the coach complains.

"Still, it's a good victory over a top team. Northwestern isn't a bad club. We made them look a little bad at the start but they held together and came back to play well. That's a mark of a good team," he says.

Northwestern remains in town tonight to play the Mountain Home Air Base Plainsmen at 5:30 p.m. CSI squares off against Columbia Basin about 7:30 p.m.

Northwestern couldn't handle CSI's defense in the first 10 minutes of the game and the Trappers' defense never came close to stopping Newman.

Newman had 12 of CSI's first 25 points and though most of the first half it became a matter of whether this was a hamburger night or not. Wendy's has offered a single burger to all attending games in which the Eagle defense holds opponents to under 50 points.

Actually, that looked like a pretty good bet for local fans when Newman opened the second half with two field goals and Joey Johnson and Mauro Gomes added two-pointers to blow things into a 23-0 difference.

But it was at that point that instead of willing, Northwestern started coming back. Farr and John Stemmler picked up most of the points in the Trapper inched back — Newman into a point of making CSI uncomfortable on the scoreboard but not enough to let the Eagles know it could have been a lot different.

But 81-57 as close as Wyoming could come and the Eagles then closed with a final rush.

Sooner McCalister scores 44 as OU downs BYU, 119-110

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Tim McCalister hit five three-point field goals as he scored a career-high 44 points Friday night to lead No. 7 Oklahoma to a 119-110 victory over Brigham Young in the opening round of the postseason NIT.

McCalister, a senior guard, made five of six three-point shots in lying former Sooner All-American Wayman Tisdale for fifth place on Oklahoma's single-game scoring list.

Tisdale holds the four higher marks. Oklahoma advances to a second-round home game Monday night against the winner of Friday night's Arizona-Nevada-Las Vegas game.

McCalister scored 21 points in the first half, but Brigham Young's Jeff Chatman had 10 to help the Cougars take a 53-51 halftime lead.

Oklahoma went on a 16-4 run in the first five minutes of the second half to grab a 67-57 lead. During that span, McCalister had consecutive three-pointers and Darryl Kennedy, who scored 25 points, had eight scored six of Oklahoma's 11 points in a four-minute stretch and the Sooners took an 88-83 lead.

Brigham Young pulled within a point on two occasions down the stretch before the Sooners went on a 19-7 run to put the game away.

Ricky Grace scored 18 points for Oklahoma. Chatman wound up with 26 for the Cougars, while Capener had 23 and Jim Usevitch 20.

Picture in close NFC West race poised to shift

By The Associated Press

The NFC West, where the San Francisco 49ers and Los Angeles Rams have ruled for years, can be turned into one huge knot this weekend by the Atlanta Falcons and New Orleans Saints.

In a rare all-division scheduling situation Sunday, the Falcons visit the 49ers and the Saints play the Rams at Anaheim. If the visiting teams win, all four teams would be within a half-game of each other.

New Orleans is largely responsible for the situation, having won five of its last six games, including a 6-0 victory over the Rams in the Superdome two weeks ago — one week after defeating the 49ers 23-10.

Now, the Saints are 6-5, one game behind the first-place 7-4 Rams, and in between San Francisco, 6-4-1, and Atlanta, 5-5-1.

"Anyone can win it (the division title)," San Francisco coach Bill Walsh said. "I wouldn't be surprised to see a 9-7 record or an 8-7-1 come out on top."

The NFL's 12th week opened Thursday night with the Los Angeles Raiders beating the San Diego Chargers 37-31 in overtime. Marcus Allen ran 28 yards for the winning touchdown 8:33 into the extra period. The Chargers forced the overtime by rallying from a 21-point deficit in the second half, then blocking Chris Bahr's 35-yard field goal attempt on the final play in regulation.

In other games Sunday, Buffalo will be at New England, Denver at the New York Giants, Detroit at Tampa Bay, Green Bay at Chicago, Indianapolis at Houston, Minnesota at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, Kansas City at St. Louis, Dallas at Washington, and Philadelphia at Seattle.

The tough fight NFC West

| Team | W | L | T | Pct | This week | Last week |
|---------------|---|---|---|------|------------------|------------------------|
| L.A. Rams | 7 | 4 | 0 | .636 | vs. New Orleans | Lost 30-28 to Patriots |
| San Francisco | 4 | 4 | 1 | .591 | vs. Atlanta | Lost 14-6 to Redskins |
| New Orleans | 6 | 5 | 0 | .545 | at L.A. Rams | Beat Cardinals 16-7 |
| Atlanta | 5 | 5 | 1 | .500 | at San Francisco | Lost 13-10 to Chicago |

The New York Jets are at Miami Monday night.

New Orleans' defense has been the main instrument in the rise of a team that never finished over .500 or made the playoffs in its previous 19 years of existence.

But Coach Jim Mora, whose Saints limited Eric Dickerson to 57 yards on 21 carries in their first meeting, warns that the Rams aren't the same team that the Saints blanked two weeks ago. He points to rookie quarterback Jim Everett, who made his long-awaited debut for the Rams against New England last week and completed 13 of 19 passes for 183 yards and three touchdowns.

"Everett makes a big difference in how we prepare for them," Mora said. "Before, you could zero in on stopping their running game, and it's still their strength. But now you have to prepare for other things. I get the feeling they're going to throw the ball more with Everett."

But Coach John Robinson of the Rams suggests he will bring Everett along slowly.

"We have to be careful not to assume he's going to go out and play at an All-Pro level each week," Robinson said. "This is only his second game coming up."

Atlanta's starting quarterback, David Archer, suffered a bruised shoulder in last Sunday's 13-10 loss to Chicago and is lost for the season. He will be replaced by Turk Schonert, who complained of a bruised shoulder after spelling Archer against the Bears and will be making his first start in two years.

"We will push on, and I think Turk will play well," Coach Dan Henning said. San Francisco, meanwhile, will be playing its third game since the return of Joe Montana, out seven weeks after undergoing surgery on a ruptured disc in his back. Jeff Kemp played the first game against Atlanta.

Bowl officials nervously await outcome of two key games

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

Games at State College, Pa., and Lincoln, Neb., on Saturday will determine whether the Miami Hurricanes, the nation's No. 1 college football team, can stay home for the holidays.

The Fiesta Bowl, which has lined up Miami and No. 2 Penn State in the biggest postseason coup since the Sugar Bowl, sweet-talked Alabama and Notre Dame into their 1973 game, will be roofing for Penn State to beat Pitt.

The Orange Bowl, which has produced three of the last five national champions, will be pulling for Pitt to upset Penn State and for fifth-ranked Nebraska to beat No. 3 Oklahoma. If Pitt and Nebraska win, Miami will play the Cornhuskers on College football

New Year's night in the Orange Bowl and the Fiesta will be left with once-beaten Penn State and dreams of what might have been.

Besides 10-0 Miami, 10-0 Penn State, 9-1 Oklahoma and 9-1 Nebraska, the only other team in position to make a pitch for No. 1 is fourth-ranked Arizona State, 9-0-1, which will represent the Pacific-10 Conference in the Rose Bowl. The Sun Devils end their regular season Saturday at No. 14 Arizona.

Contrary to NCAA regulations, most of the bowl invitations already have been issued. Saturday is merely RSVP day.

The visiting team in the Rose Bowl will be decided when sixth-ranked Michigan plays No. 7 Ohio State at Columbus for the Big Ten crown. The loser goes to the Cotton Bowl.

Eighth-ranked Louisiana State has clinched at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference championship and can move closer to a Sugar Bowl berth by defeating Notre Dame Saturday night at Baton Rouge.

Ninth-ranked Alabama can tie LSU for the SEC title by defeating No. 15 Auburn next week (both teams are idle this weekend).

That would leave the decision up to the Sugar Bowl, which prefers Alabama but has said it would invite the highest ranked team in The Associated Press poll to represent the SEC against the Oklahoma-Nebraska loser.

The rest of Saturday's schedule involving the AP's Top Twenty finds No. 10 Southern California at No. 18 UCLA, No. 11 Arkansas at Southern Methodist, No. 12 Washington at Washington State, Texas Christian at No. 13 Texas A&M, No. 16 Stanford at California, Texas at No. 17 Baylor, and South Carolina at No. 19 Clemson. Georgia, the No. 20 team, is not scheduled.

Pitt not only is Penn State's oldest rival but is the last team to win a regular-season game from the Nittany Lions. That came in the 1984 finale, 31-11. Penn State has won all 21 regular-season games since.

Penn State quarterback John Shaffer had, according to Coach Joe Paterno, "probably one of the best games he's ever had" in last Saturday's 24-19 victory over Notre Dame. Shaffer was 9-of-13 passing for 182 yards, including a 37-yarder for the go-ahead score, and had a one-yard run for the decisive touchdown.

Meanwhile, Pitt was starting its third quarterback in as many weeks in beating Rutgers 20-6. Joe Pellitsky made his first collegiate start and passed for 253 yards and one touchdown.

Sal Genilla, who started a week earlier against Miami, was hospitalized with an asthma attack, and John Congemi, Pitt's No. 1 quarterback, suffered an injury the previous week.

Besides the Orange Bowl, Nebraska has a fan in Colorado Coach Bill McCartney, whose team upset the Cornhuskers 20-10 last month and lost to Oklahoma 28-0 a week ago.

"I like the Cornhuskers. I like the home field advantage and I like Nebraska's defensive line," McCartney said. "I'm also banking on Oklahoma — turning the ball over (something the Sooners haven't done in their last two games). There is a law of averages, and with that Washbone offense, they ought to turn it over once in a while."

"Nebraska has one thing we didn't have to defend Oklahoma better — that's the size and strength up front to keep them from getting that (Washbone) going inside. Nebraska has a much better chance of getting some offense going than we did. Nebraska has the kind of speed you need to combat their speed."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer won't argue about that. "I agree with (Coach) Tom Osborne's assessment before the season that Nebraska has more team quickness than in the past," Switzer said. "They have better team speed on defense. Their linemen have the ability to run, their secondary has the ability to run. Offensively, they still have great team speed."

The annual Big Eight showdown matches the two highest-scoring teams in the country — Oklahoma at 44.6 points per game, Nebraska 39.9 — against the two top defensive teams — Oklahoma has yielded an average of 15.4 yards per game, Nebraska 22.9.

Arizona State will be out to snap a four-game losing streak — by a total of 21 points — against Arizona.

"I think the state of Arizona can be real proud of these two teams," Arizona State Coach John Cooper said.

Arizona Coach Larry Smith said that "Arizona State earned the title. Our thought is that if you can't win the title, then try to beat the team that won it."

"We don't dwell upon the four previous victories over ASU," Smith added. "Each victory was hard-earned, and different from the others. It's a state pride thing."

Ohio State, meanwhile, needs only a tie against Michigan to go to the Rose Bowl, but Buckeye Coach Earle Bruce still wishes the Wolverines hadn't lost to Minnesota last week.

"I would normally like Michigan to come into Ohio Stadium undefeated," he said. "It's always a defensive battle. The team whose defense plays the best and whose kicking game plays well will win."

"We'll go for the tie if we have to. You'd be crazy not to."

Michigan quarterback Jim Harbaugh, normally a reserved individual, boldly predicted, "I guarantee you we'll beat Ohio State and be in Pasadena."

What did Coach Bo Schmechler think of Harbaugh's brashness? "I would worry more if he predicted defeat," he said.

If things go according to form, the anticipated bowl lineup looks like this:

Fiesta — Miami-Penn State; Rose — Arizona State vs. Michigan-Ohio State winner; Orange — Oklahoma-Nebraska winner vs. Texas A&M or Arkansas; Cotton — SEC champion vs. Michigan-Ohio State loser; Sugar — LSU or Alabama vs. Oklahoma-Nebraska loser.

Citrus — Auburn-Southern Cal; Sun — Washington vs. LSU or Alabama; Aloha — Arizona vs. undecided; Gator — Clemson-Stanford; Bluebonnet — Baylor-Georgia Tech; Freedom — UCLA vs. Air Force or Brigham Young; Hall of Fame — Boston College-Georgia.

Holiday — WAC champion vs. Iowa; All-American — Florida State-Indiana; Peach — North Carolina State-Virginia Tech; Independence — Mississippi-Mississippi State winner vs. Texas Tech; Liberty — Kentucky-Tennessee winner vs. Minnesota; California — Miami, Ohio-San Jose State.

World Series alpine skiing under way

SESTRIERE, Italy (AP) — The European Alpine ski season gets underway Saturday with a women's World Series slalom race.

Swiss Veteran Erika Hess, winner of the slalom title of the World Cup last season, is favored in the two-hour event down the Kandahar track which is covered with a layer of artificial snow.

A women's World Series giant slalom, originally scheduled for Sunday, has been cancelled for insufficient snow and replaced by a second slalom.

The men's giant slalom scheduled Wednesday will be held only if snow falls over the next few days. A men's slalom will be run Tuesday.

The World Series competition is considered a warmup for the World Cup, whose European stage begins in Sestriere Nov. 29-30 with a slalom and a giant slalom for men.

Two men's World Cup downhill races were staged in Argentina and Chile last August.

Coleman appeals for KSU eligibility

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Norris Coleman, last season's basketball newcomer of the year in the Big Eight as a freshman at Kansas State University, made a final appeal Friday to be declared eligible for the start of the upcoming season.

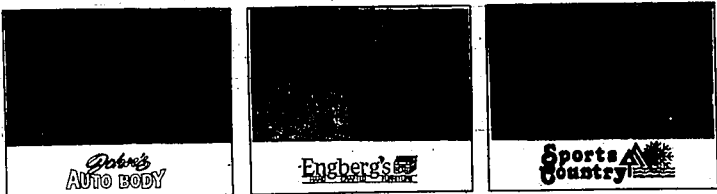

The five members of the NCAA's subcommittee on eligibility appeals, which has turned down earlier appeals from the 6-foot-8 forward, scheduled a meeting by telephone conference call for another review of the case. Coleman and his attorney, Jeff Schemmel, planned to be at NCAA headquarters in Mission for the meeting.

"We're extremely hopeful of what might come from this," Schemmel said earlier in the week. He has indicated that Coleman could take legal action if he is not allowed to play at the start of Kansas State's season, which opens Nov. 29 against South Dakota.

TREVOR BERBICK
Predicts a knockout

MIKE TYSON
Favored by 3-1 odds

In this corner ...

Berbick, Tyson to vie for heavyweight title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mike Tyson, who likes to ram about and watch films of oldtime fighters, will try and become the youngest heavyweight champion Saturday night.

The aggressive, exciting Tyson is a 3-1 favorite to beat Trevor Berbick and win the World Boxing Council title at the age of 20 years, 4 months, 22 days.

"This is a chance to prove myself as the greatest fighter in the world," Tyson said. "If I break the record for being the youngest champion ever, that's immortality. No one's going to break it."

Floyd Patterson has been the youngest heavyweight champion. He was 21 years, 11 months, when he won the vacant undisputed title with a fifth-round knockout of Archie Moore on Nov. 30, 1956.

Patterson has said he is rooting for Tyson to break his record, secure his first title, and regain the heavyweight championship. The careers and lives of both Patterson and Tyson were heavily influenced by Cus D'Amato, who died Nov. 4, 1985, at the age of 77.

Tyson will take a 27-0 record, with 25 knockouts, into the scheduled 12-round bout at the Las Vegas Hilton. The fight will be televised live by HBO and start about 7:30 p.m. PDT.

"Most definitely, I will go for the knockout," Tyson said.

But Berbick predicts he is the one who will get it.

"I'm looking to take him out by the seventh round," said the champion, who has a 31-4-1 record, with 23 knockouts.

Berbick has met unbeaten fighters in championship bouts twice before.

In a bid for the WBC title April 11, 1982, Berbick became the first fighter to go the distance with Larry Hiest in a championship bout. He lost a 15-round decision.

Last March 22, at Las Vegas, Berbick, a 6-1 underdog, won the title with a 12-round unanimous decision over Pinklon Thomas.

Berbick also was the first fighter to beat Greg Page and the last fighter to beat Muhammad Ali. He scored a 10-round decision over Ali on Dec. 11, 1981.

But Ali was the star of that show despite his eroded status, just as Tyson is the star of Saturday night's show even though he still has boxing lessons to learn.

"He's just fighting maybe 30 percent of his capabilities," said Kevin Rooney, the former junior welterweight who trains Tyson.

"What's going to happen when he reaches his potential? What will people say then?"

It doesn't seem that Tyson ever will be a personality on the order of Ali, who transcended the bounds of boxing. But Tyson could become a major star in a sport that has seen many of its stars fade in the last couple of years.

Should Tyson beat Berbick, then beat the World Boxing Association champion (currently Tim Witherspoon) and the International Boxing Federation champion (Michael Spinks) and win the undisputed title, he would be one of the most valuable attractions in sports.

The youngster, who learned street fighting in Brooklyn's tough Brownsville section and who was in reform school at 13, stirs a crowd from the moment he appears.

He enters the ring wearing black trunks, but no robe and no socks. He stands with his arms as his hands waiting for the business at hand to begin, giving the impression he intends to get the job done quickly.

He appears nerveless. But, he said, "I always have butterflies." Then, he added, "But as far as being intimidated, no one intimidates me."

Tyson, who is listed at 5-foot-11 but appears to be closer to 5-9, is extremely quick. In many fights, he has been on an opponent almost before the sound of the opening bell has died.

Tyson has scored 15 first-round knockouts, and five of those were in a span of from 30 to 50 seconds. His 27 fights have totaled 76 rounds. His longest layoff since he turned pro was 76 days, and all of his fights have been packed within 18 months. That's how the oldtimers he admires fought.

But Tyson has been past six in the knowledge that he was the first fighter to regain the heavyweight championship. The careers and lives of both Patterson and Tyson were heavily influenced by Cus D'Amato, who died Nov. 4, 1985, at the age of 77.

what will happen if a battle-tested veteran like Berbick forces him into the late rounds.

Berbick, who has exhibited excellent stamina in the past, dominated the second half of his fight against Thomas. The native of Jamaica, who lives in Miami, has fought 249 rounds and has gone between six and 10 rounds 15 times and between 11 and 15 rounds five times.

The fight will be the fifth in the eight-fight HBO series of heavyweight title bouts. No. 6 will be Witherspoon's defense of the WBA title Dec. 12 at Madison Square Garden in New York. Then, the WBC and WBA champions will fight March 7 at the Las Vegas Hilton, with the winner to meet Spinks at the Hilton in May.

Two former champions will fight in scheduled 10-round bouts on Saturday night's card. Thomas, in his second fight since losing to Berbick, will meet William Hosea, and Page, who once held the WBA title, will oppose Wimpy Halstead.

Hosea was one of Tyson's first-round knockout victims.

Royals offer Smith, Law slimmer contracts

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two free agent members of the Kansas City Royals are unhappy with contract offers that call for wage reductions of about 50 percent and may be looking to play elsewhere in 1987.

"Let's just say I was surprised what the offer was," said outfielder Lonnie Smith, who reportedly was offered a contract worth about $425,000 — half of his 1986 salary and well below the $950,000 he was to receive for an option year.

The Kansas City Times said reserve outfielder Rudy Law, who hit .261 last season, was the other player offered a 50 percent reduction — to about $225,000 for 1987.

Cher-third baseman Jamie Quirk was offered a slight raise from his 1986 salary of about $150,000. Quirk, who had a .315 batting average in 1986, said he expected to reach agreement with the Royals soon.

SMU's Shields retires because of poor health

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University President L. Donald Shields is retiring immediately under rising pressure from a diabetes condition and allegations about SMU's football program, officials said Friday.

"Reaching this decision has been extremely difficult, but the advice of my physician has made it imperative that I step down from the presidency effective immediately," Shields, 50, said in a statement.

If the latest allegations about cash payoffs and improper inducements for athletes prove true, the Southwest Conference school could be the first to have its football program suspended for two years under an NCAA sanctions package approved last year.

His announcement came two days after SMU's Faculty Senate called for a halt to "quasi-professional athletics" and urged administrators to abolish scholarships and special admissions criteria for athletes.
