Floods in Washington block roads, rail lines

By GEORGE TIBBITTS The Associated Press

SNOQUALMIE, Wash. (AP) — Flooding caused by heavy rain and melting snow forced dozens of families from their homes Monday and blocked the only highway to a mountain resort where about 1,000 weekend skiers were stranded. Railroads were cut east and south of Seattle by flooding and mudslides, including one slide that cut a 300-foot-deep gap through 60 feet of track. Interstate 90, the state's major east-west highway, also was closed for part of the day. Most of the evacuated families had returned home by late Monday. But another storm system was expected to hit the coast today, the National Weather Service said. Officials declared emergencies in King County, around Seattle, and in Lewis County south of Tacoma. Several towns also declared emergencies. One firefighter was killed Sunday when he was hit by a train while helping evacuate a nursing home threatened by flooding. Plans had been made to airlift the skiers off Mount Baker, near the Canadian border north of Seattle, where they were isolated Sunday, but Neil Clement, spokesman for the Whatcom County Department of Emergency Services, said Monday that apparently wasn't necessary.

Aquino aide says 180 in coup plot

The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A spokesman for President Corason Aquino said Monday about 180 plotters were involved in a coup that was foiled over the weekend. Spokesman Teodoro Benigno, saying "a dagger" had been plucked from the heart of the presidency, gave the first official account of events leading to the president's dismissal of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile. He said the plotters included diehard backers of ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos and rebels in the military. He said about 180 plotters had planned to take over the National Assembly building, reinstate the legislature Mrs. Aquino had abolished and set up new presidential elections. They met last Saturday at the home of Antonio Carag, a former assemblyman and prominent Marcos supporter, the presidential spokesman said. Benigno said Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, the armed forces chief of staff, "checkmated" the plans after infiltrators discovered the plot. Leaders of the pro-Marcos New Society Movement issued a statement Monday saying the meeting was a regular party meeting and any accusations against them were "a figment of the imagination." Mrs. Aquino asked her entire Cabinet Sunday to submit resignations. She named a new defense minister, replacing Enrile with his deputy, Rafael Nieto. A palace official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said more Cabinet ministers would be replaced soon. The president, under pressure to get tough against a 17-year communist insurgency, also said she was giving government negotiators until next Sunday to reach a cease-fire agreement with the rebels. In a statement distributed Monday to news organizations, the communist-controlled National Democratic Front welcomed the departure of Enrile, who had served as defense minister throughout the 17-year-long insurgency.

Official challenges Reagan's statement

By TERENCE HUNT The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A top-ranking State Department official on Monday bluntly challenged President Reagan's assurances that there's been no recent evidence of Iranian involvement in terrorism, while Reagan defended anew his decision to approve arms shipments to Tehran. "I don't like to have to differ with my president, but I believe there is some evidence of Iranian involvement with terrorists," Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead said during an extraordinary appearance before the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Whitehead testified as Reagan said "I didn't make any mistakes" and declared that "I'm not lying anybody," then sat down with members of his Cabinet and top advisers to weigh new moves, amid a crescendo of calls by members of Congress for a White House shakeup. According to a Justice Department source, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified, the White House meeting, whose participants included Attorney General Edwin Meese, lasted over three hours, more than two hours longer than planned. The source said Meese returned to the department by an entrance he seldom uses because he didn't want to talk to reporters waiting to ask him about Iran. In his nationally broadcast speech Nov. 13, Reagan defended his policy of selling arms to Iran, saying that "since U.S. government contacts began with Iran, there's been no evidence of Iranian government complicity in acts of terrorism against the United States." But Whitehead contradicted that Monday.

State Department attacks NSC role

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The second-ranking official at the State Department on Monday attacked the National Security Council, declared the White House's "policy of secret contacts with Iranian officials and arms shipments to the Persian Gulf" and said that "I do not think it is in the White House's best interest to do the damage quickly." Whitehead said "we in the State Department still believe we have a detailed record of what happened." Whitehead said Reagan agreed to provide the weapons as "a token of our seriousness in opening a dialogue to improve U.S.-Iranian relations." He said the "Iranian" was "a Muslim" and "Iranian" and "with the freedom of American hostages held in Lebanon." But he said there is "no need for further signals of our commitment" in purchasing the arms. He said the U.S. State Department "remains in place and will continue to encourage other countries from shipping arms to Iran." He said Iran had been relatively effective until word of the Iran by Council's operational activities. Whitehead said the department welcomes the council's advisory role. "But when they become involved in operational matters we have concerns, particularly when we don't know about them," he testified. "I do think it is in the White House's best interest to do the damage quickly." Whitehead said "we in the State Department still believe we have a detailed record of what happened." Responding to the committee's questions, he said: "There continues to be terrorist acts in Iran of the type that we find to be reprehensible." Whitehead did not immediately elaborate. White House deputy press secretary Dan Howard said there would be no comment on Whitehead's testimony. State Department spokesmen had been saying for weeks that while Iran remained on a list of nations of- ficially identified as "terrorist-sponsoring states," they would not provide evidence that nation has sponsored any recent terrorist acts. On Friday, however, Whitehead, and other State Department officials speaking privately, linked Iranian-sponsored groups to the kidnapping of three Americans seized in Beirut since Sept. 9. They are Frank H. Reir, director of a private school in Beirut, Joseph J. Cicipio, acting controller of the American University in that city and Edward A. Tracy, a writer. A department official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said the United States was initially unsure who was responsible for some of the recent kidnappings because a group unknown to terrorism experts — the Revolutionary Justice Organization — had claimed responsibility. Subsequently, the department has

Idaho Legal Aid files court action but agency claims problems solved

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho Legal Aid Services has made good on its threat of court action against the state because computer problems have delayed issuance of welfare benefits to hundreds of needy Idahoans. But a Health and Welfare Department spokesman, claiming the most serious problems have already been cleared up, says the lawsuit could be counterproductive. "In documents filed with the U.S. District Court in Boise on Monday, Legal Aid asked for a court order requiring Health and Welfare to comply with state and federal regulations on the timely issuance of assistance benefits." Attorney Howard Belodoff said that despite assurances from the state that the benefit backlog had finally been cleared there are still reports of poor people who have yet to receive benefits and have been told it would be next week at the earliest before they do. He acknowledged, however, that some delayed benefits have finally gotten to recipients. Legal Aid put the state on notice last week that if the problems were not resolved by Monday, the lawsuit would be filed. As many as 2,000 applications for benefits have been delayed this month because of problems in the state's shift to a computerized benefit program. Spokeswoman Linda High said Health and Welfare employees have worked nights and weekends for nearly two weeks to process the case backlog and "we've picked up all the hanging destitute cases out there." Saying the state was doing everything possible to comply with time requirements for benefit issuance, Mrs. High contended the lawsuit could slow the process down again because at least some of the people trying to work the bugs out of the new computer system will have to divert their attention to the legal claim. But Belodoff called that state 60 days.

ment self-serving. "It's too late for. 'We're doing our best,'" he said. "That's the key here. Their best isn't good enough. We've had hundreds of people who have gone without food, have gotten a limited amount of food from food banks, for six weeks to two months almost. How long are they supposed to wait. Some of them don't have anything." "You know, 'The check's in the mail,' is the oldest excuse in the world," Belodoff said. "It doesn't do much good to point the finger at the computer. You have to think about the people and getting the benefits to them." Under state and federal regulations, emergency requests for food stamps must be handled within five days and non-emergency requests within 30 days. Applications for Aid to Families with Dependent Children and accompanying Medicaid benefits must be processed in 45 days and Medicaid applications based on disability must be processed within 60 days.

American Eagle dollars soar high on first day of sale

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The new American Eagle silver dollars were snapped up quickly Monday, with the initial supply of 1.4 million coins gone within hours. Officials at the U.S. Mint said the demand for the silver coins matched the frenzied demand for the gold coins when the American Eagle gold coins were first offered, the Denver Mint. The Mint was forced to allocate the available silver coins, allowing 20 bulk purchasers to buy 50,000 coins each, an amount far below what most of them had requested. The shortage occurred even though the Mint has gone to around-the-clock production at its San Francisco facility, where most of the silver dollars are being produced, and added a second production line at the one-ounce silver coins. Like the gold coins, the silver dollars will be sold for the market price of their bullion content. But with silver selling for a little over $5 an ounce compared with $380 an ounce for gold, the retail price of the silver coins put them within the budgets of most Americans. The cheapest gold coin, the one-tenth-ounce piece, is selling at the retail level for around $70, compared with an expected retail price of between $4.50 and $8.50 for the one-ounce silver coins. Donna Pope, U.S. Mint director, said 5 million silver dollars will be turned out by the end of this year. She predicted every one of them will be sold, helped along by expected heavy demand from people buying the silver dollars as Christmas presents. "Sales are phenomenal," she said, noting that the gold coin has been named "product of the year" by Fortune magazine, outranking the new Bruce Springsteen record album. "To read that we have the No. 1 selling product in America is a real treat."

The American Eagle gold coin, the first general-circulation U.S. gold coin in 33 years, first went on sale Oct. 20. The initial supply of 800,000 gold coins sold out in two days, catching Mint officials off guard. Michael J. Brown, a spokesman for the Mint, said the Mint expects to offer the silver coins for sale on a one-day-a-week basis, but he said it had not been decided what day the sales will take place or when the next sale will occur.

Speakes 'on verge' of leaving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Monday he was "on the verge" of leaving the White House after serving executive position with Merrill Lynch & Co., which reportedly offered him more than $250,000 in salary and benefits.

A senior administration official said Speakes likely would be replaced by Interior Department Under Secretary Ann Dore McLaughlin, a former public affairs aide to White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan. The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said McLaughlin has been advising Regan during the rising controversy over the secret sale of arms to Iran.

Reagan

Continued from Page A1 received "pretty good" information that pro-Iranian factions are behind the kidnappings, the official said. He also said that groups sponsored by Iranians also have been held responsible for attacks in Kuwait, a Persian Gulf country that has been tough on terrorism.

"I'm not commenting either way," he said. "I'm not commenting either way." As for whether he would admit it was wrong to approve arms for Iran, the president replied, "I'm not going to lie about that. I didn't make a mistake."

Flood State

Continued from Page A1 "It looks like the road is intact, but it's strewn with large debris, including boulders and stumps," Clement said. "Boulder Creek is aptly named."

Boulder Creek surged over state Route 542 leading to the mountain after a culvert that carried the creek under the road was blocked about 28 miles east of Bellingham and five miles west of the town of Glacier, he said. Bulldozers and backhoes were put to work to clear the highway.

Linda Allen said she left when rescuers "came by in a rowboat and stuck the nose of the boat in the door."

Continued from Page A1 Whitehead said. "I know you all know his standing in the United States and his popularity," Whitehead said of the president. "But I am not sure you realize how much he is admired and even revered by leaders around the world. If we leave him without clothes, he will lose the opportunity to lead the free world."

Whitehead later made clear that while he has reservations about how the Iran initiative was carried out he is not criticizing Reagan's decision to approve it.

"Taking the whole event, I wouldn't criticize the president for doing what he did," Whitehead said. "It didn't turn out very well. But I think he had a good rationale for doing what he did and I wouldn't criticize him for it... what he wanted to accomplish might have been accomplished."

Several committee members said the Iran initiative is a demonstration that "the emperor has no clothes." But Whitehead closed his testimony with a reference to that and an interminably long decision to appeal for Congress not to overreact that Reagan is left as an impotent force in world affairs. "I know you all know his standing in the United States and his popularity," Whitehead said of the president. "But I am not sure you realize how much he is admired and even revered by leaders around the world. If we leave him without clothes, he will lose the opportunity to lead the free world."

Court dismisses land deal challenge

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has dismissed the last legal challenge to the state's Priest Lake land deal, a ruling Attorney General Jim Jones says will free the state to go about the business of managing its timber holdings in the area.

In May, 1985, the state Land Board traded 3,700 acres of state land on the east side of Priest Lake for 11,300 acres of timber land owned by Diamond Lands Corp. The company planned a massive residential-recreation development at Huckleberry Bay on the lake.

A Bonners Ferry environmental group, the Priest Lake Coalition, filed legal action, contending the project would have a massive impact on the local environment.

Fourth District Judge Alan Schwartzman last summer upheld the trade. The coalition appealed to the Supreme Court, but later withdrew its opposition when it became evident no massive development was planned.

The Supreme Court on Friday formally dismissed the appeal.

Jones said it has been his contention all along that the land deal was one of the best ever made by the state. He said the state obtained land valued at $2.5 million more than it traded.

"This matter can now be laid to rest," said

Jones. "The exchange clearly was in the public interest since it removed large in-holdings from the state's Priest Lake Forest, while turning a nice profit for the state."

"Those of us who supported the exchange had said all along that no massive development would take place unless it had the support of local citizens," he said.

"Apparently that fact is understood now by the people of the area, as well as by Diamond Lands Corp. officials. Development plans have been scaled back to a level which will be compatible with the area and in keeping with the desires of those who live there," he said.

U.S. attorney wants cabin suit dropped

BOISE (AP) — A federal attorney says legal action filed over removal of the contents of a summer cabin near the Henry's Fork of the Snake River should be dismissed because the lawsuit has a number of legal flaws.

Even as the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution approaches, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeffrey Ring here Monday, "merely waving the word Constitution around in your lawsuit" doesn't provide legal grounds for claiming constitutional rights have been violated.

The Justice Department on Monday asked U.S. District Judge Marion Callister to dismiss a lawsuit filed by a Salt Lake City developer and his family after Forest Service workers last winter went into the family's cabin and removed personal possessions and furniture.

After listening to arguments, Callister took the case under advisement and said he would rule later.

The Brennan cabin and others in the Big Springs area along the Henry's Fork of the Snake River in eastern Idaho have been the subject of controversy for years.

The Brennan cabin, including a main cabin, smaller cabin and outhouse, were built in the 1920s under a special use permit. Andrew Brennan and his family have owned it since 1933.

In recent years, Targhee National Forest officials have been trying to remove several cabins near the river to return the area to its natural state.

In 1984, a federal judge approved a settlement between the Big Springs Summer Home Association and the Forest Service for removal of the cabins. The association had until last October to move the cabins so they no longer could be seen from the river.

But Brennan was not a member of the association at the time of the settlement, and disagreed with it. He claimed the old cabin would be destroyed if an attempt were made to move it.

He sought nomination of the cabin to the National Register of Historic Places. State Architectural Historian Jennifer E. Attebury said the cabin was eligible for nomination because it was characteristic of summer homes of the area in the 1920s and 1930s.

Brennan said he thought he had an agreement with the Forest Service to hold off action until completion of negotiations to turn over the cabin and its furnishings for preservation. But there was a dispute over wording of the agreement transferring ownership.

Preston school board fears effects of 'C' rule

PRESTON (AP) — Unless the Idaho State Board of Education modifies its existing "C" average rule, Franklin county school administrators anticipate shrinkage in the size of the 1988 graduation class.

The "C" average requirement has been controversial in Idaho since its implementation in 1984 and last week the Idaho School Boards Association voted in favor of doing away with the rule.

The association would like each school district to be allowed to develop individual programs to challenge students academically.

West Side School District Superintendent Steve Norton, who has been on a state committee reviewing the issue, said Monday he worries that the rule discourages students who are trying but are unable to make the 2.0 grade point.

"Under a strict interpretation of the rule, about 20 percent of our junior students would not be able to graduate in 1988," he said.

Al Koch, principal of Preston High School, estimated that 28 percent of the juniors in his school would fall into the same category.

He said a recent survey by the Idaho Department of Education showed 29 percent of the juniors and 28 percent of the sophomores statewide are now falling short of the "C" grade.

Koch said the requirement was a mistake in the first place because "Grades at best are a formative evaluation of a student's competency level and a 'C' grade in English at Preston is different than a 'C' grade at Pocatello or at West Side."

He said if the state really wants to develop a minimum level of proficiency, it should implement something that would offer a better evaluation of a student.

Koch said he would like to see a standardized test developed to measure levels of proficiency in the core areas which would be given to all Idaho juniors.

Former swami sent to prison

PORTLAND (AP) — The former mayor of Rajneeshpuram, who provided investigators with an inside look at crimes committed at the now-defunct religious sect commune, was sentenced Monday to two years in prison.

The sentence was imposed on David Berry Knapp by U.S. District Judge Edward Leavy despite the strong recommendation of U.S. Attorney Charles Turner that he be placed on probation.

Knapp, known as Swami Krishna Deva when he was a disciple of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, faced a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on the conspiracy charge.

Men killed in crevasse plunge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two laborers supporting the United States' scientific efforts in Antarctica were killed when they fell into a crevasse while hiking near the principal U.S. on McMurdo Sound, the National Science Foundation said Monday.

The foundation, which manages all U.S. activities in Antarctica, said the two men, and a companion who was not injured, were employees of ITT Antarctic Services, Inc. The Paramus, N.J., company is the prime support contractor for American activities on the continent.

The announcement identified the men killed Sunday as John E. Smith, 44, of Portland, Ore., a carpenter, and Matthew M. Kaz, 25, of San Carlos, Calif., a carpenter's helper.

'Special files' worrying Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon, who is trying to block access to his presidential documents, is less concerned with Watergate papers than with a set of "special files," his former aide John Ehrlichman says.

Ehrlichman, writing in the upcoming issue of Parade magazine, said those files were assembled by Nixon's chief of staff, H.R. Haldeeman, during Nixon's first term.

"These papers are considered to be most instructive on the 'abuse of power' by the staff of the Archivist of the United States," Parade said in an announcement Monday.

A limited number of Nixon documents are scheduled to be made available to the public at the National Archives beginning Dec. 7.

Study backs Alaska refuge oil drilling

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Interior Department study recommended Monday that the energy-rich coastal plain of Alaska's Arctic National Wildlife Refuge be opened to full-scale oil development so long as its fragile ecology and wildlife are protected.

"The area is clearly the most outstanding oil and gas frontier remaining in the United States and could contribute substantially to our domestic energy supplies," according to the study mandated by Congress in 1980.

At the same time, the study warned that "oil and gas development will result in widespread, long-term changes in wildlife habitat, wilderness environment and native community activities."

Environmental groups, saying development and protection are not compatible on the coastal plain, said they would work to convince Congress to bar oil and gas drilling in the frozen tundra.

"We think we can kind of have it both ways," Assistant Secretary William P. Horn told a news conference.

"You have here the potential for super-giant oil fields... We see substantial economic and substantial national security benefits."

The study said geologic tests indicate that as many as 9.2 billion barrels of oil could be recovered from the 1.5 million-acre tract, the northernmost section of the 18 million-acre Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

This production level would rival the nearby Prudhoe Bay fields that account for about 20-percent of the nation's production and would represent about 589 days supply at current consumption levels.

The Fish and Wildlife Service study was forwarded to Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, who plans to make a formal recommendation to Congress early next year following a public comment period and hearings in Alaska and Washington.

House Interior Committee Chairman Morris Udall, D-Ariz., will introduce legislation to prohibit development of energy resources in the coastal plain, according to a committee aide who spoke on condition he not be identified by name.

On the Senate side, Bennett Johnston, D-La., who will take over the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, said any development legislation will be viewed "with the greatest care and caution."

Red ink keeps running deep

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government started its new budget year with a giant $75.26 billion monthly deficit, the Treasury Department said Monday.

The October deficit resulted from spending of $84.27 billion far outpacing revenues for the month of $59.01 billion.

The government ran up a record $220.7 billion deficit for the 12 months of the 1986 fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30.

The Reagan administration estimated in August that the deficit for the current fiscal year would shrink to $144 billion, the target set in the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

However, an internal document circulated recently to Cabinet officials by the White House budget office estimated that the deficit for fiscal 1987 is likely to total $163 billion, and private economists believe even this estimate underestimates what the actual deficit will turn out to be.

For October, the top spending categories were as usual — defense, Social Security, other programs in the Department of Health and Human Services and interest on the national debt.

Defense spending totaled $15.76 billion in October, with the administration estimating military programs for the entire fiscal year will total $274.38 billion.

Spending for Social Security, the country's largest domestic program, totaled $15.76 billion in October, and is estimated to total $201.98 billion for the entire fiscal year.

The rest of the Health and Human Services Department spent $14.14 billion in October, with spending for the entire year projected to total $137.18 billion. Much of this money goes for two health care programs, Medicare and Medicaid.

Bombs found hours before papal visit

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Police arrested a former mental patient with five gasoline bombs at Brisbane's city hall hours before Pope John Paul II's scheduled visit Tuesday, and said the man had planned to kill the pope because he "has too much money."

Assistant Police Commissioner Ron Redmond said the 24-year-old man was from Sydney, but did not identify him further.

The man "was acting a little strangely" and had a cardboard box containing the bombs when he was picked up in a security check in the city hall lobby, Redmond said.

He said the bombs were soda bottles filled with gasoline and cloth wicks.

Redmond quoted the man as telling detectives "he planned to assassinate John Paul because 'the pope has too much money.'"

Redmond told The Associated Press the man was released recently from a mental hospital and came to Brisbane three days ago, staying at a Roman Catholic hotel where he told police he assembled the bombs.

Redmond also quoted the man as telling detectives he had been "acting city hall for an elevated position" where he could ignite and throw the devices, when he was arrested by police.

Police said another man was arrested earlier Tuesday at the Brisbane airport. They said he also had been acting strangely, but gave no further information.

Security in Brisbane, a city of about 1 million people, was tight. Police were out in force along roads leading from the airport to downtown Brisbane and from there to Queen Elizabeth II stadium where the pope was to celebrate Mass later Tuesday for about 70,000 people.

The pope was to spend about six hours in Brisbane before heading to Sydney; the third stop of his Australian tour.

In 1981 John Paul was shot and wounded by Turkish gunman Mehmet Ali Agca in St. Peter's Square. A year later a Spanish priest lunged at the pope with a bayonet in Fatima, Portugal, but the pope was not harmed.

Mass in Canberra Monday, the biggest crowd of the pontiff's current tour, and he praised Australia for its work toward disarmament and peace.

The Mass in Canberra was the first public event of John Paul's six-day visit to Australia. He is on a two-week Asian and Pacific tour that has taken him to Bangladesh, Singapore, Fiji and New Zealand and included a stop in the Seychelles Islands on the way back to the Rome on Dec. 1.

In remarks to Prime Minister Bob Hawke and other government officials after the Mass, the pope mentioned "the urgent need for appropriate disarmament and world peace" and noted that Australia has an ambassador for disarmament issues. They met at the Parliament building.

Inexperienced pilot lands

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — A teen-aged pilot with no experience in turboprop aircraft successfully landed one Monday after the pilot collapsed at the controls, company and aviation officials reported.

An Aviation Department spokesman said Peter Spalding, 19, of Melbourne landed the Nomad turboprop of Sun City Airlines at the Broken Hill airport 380 miles west of here, following radio instructions from a pilot on the ground and another in the air.

A spokesman for the airline later Spalding and the pilot, Lester McDougal, were the pilot, said in the plane, which was carrying freight from Mildura to Broken Hill.

Third World trip 1st for Gorbachev

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — When Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev arrives here today, it will be his first trip to his own country but only the latest overture in a long and close friendship between the Kremlin and non-aligned India.

Government and political leaders are busing an estimated 30,000 villagers to the capital to provide a rousing greeting. New Delhi schools will be closed so children can join in the welcome.

Banners have been hung hailing India-Soviet friendship, and the city is bristling with street sweepers and government sharpshooters.

Gorbachev set out from Moscow on Monday, accompanied by his wife, Raisa, and about 250 ministers and aides. He stopped en route in Uzbekistan, one of the Soviet republics.

He plans to spend four days in India and hold two days of talks with Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi.

Washington and Moscow are rivals in wooing India, one of the most powerful members of the 101-nation non-aligned movement. But India and the United States disagree on most key global issues, and the United States sells arms to India's neighbor, Pakistan.

By contrast, India and the Soviet Union are old and close friends with similar views on most major international problems, including the Middle East, South Africa, Afghanistan and Cambodia. Moscow is India's major arms supplier and a major trade partner.

Security for Gorbachev's visit will be the tightest yet for any visiting leader. At least 15 Afghan activists have been ordered to stay indoors and five have been arrested to prevent protests against the occupation of Afghanistan by about 115,000 Soviet troops.

Police said Monday they will post at least 3,000 police along the route planned for Gorbachev's trip from the airport to the president's palace. They have planned two alternate routes in case of emergency.

Violent demonstrations by Afghan refugees forced the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to suddenly change his route when he visited New Delhi in December 1980, one year after Soviet troops entered Afghanistan.

In addition to talks with officials, Gorbachev will meet Indian Communist Party leaders, address a joint session of Parliament and hold a news conference. He will not travel outside New Delhi.

He and Gandhi, who are said to have a strong personal rapport, are expected to discuss the arms race, the Soviet push for better ties with China and Moscow's call for an Asian-Pacific security arrangement.

Details of the security plan have not been released. Gorbachev, who announced it July 28, indicated it would be open to both superpowers and all Asian and Pacific nations and would seek to reduce the region's military buildup.

In addition to talks with officials, Gorbachev has expressed fears it would mean carving up the region into U.S. and Soviet spheres of influence.

Valian spokesman, Joaquin Navarro, said he had no immediate comment on Tuesday's incident.

John Paul arrived in Canberra from Christchurch, New Zealand, where his Mass was marred by a sudden downpour and the arrest of a barefoot young woman who ran toward the altar.

Police said the woman, in her late 20s, was "overcome by a sense of emotion" and in an incoherent state. Police spokesman Terry Blumberg said she did not pose a danger to John Paul or anyone else.

Lawyer to file appeal

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The lawyer for imprisoned American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus said Monday he expects to file an appeal for a pardon this week and a Roman Catholic archbishop said he believed a pardon would be approved.

Nicaragua Vice President Sergio Ramirez said in Boston that a pardon could depend on improved U.S.-Nicaragua relations.

Hasenfus' attorney, Enrique Sotelo Bergen, said in an interview with The Associated Press that he was waiting to consult with his client's American lawyers before presenting a formal request for a pardon to the Sandinista government's National Commission for Protection and Promotion of Human Rights.

Any pardon must be approved by the human rights commission, the president and congress.

Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., was sentenced Nov. 15 to a 30-year prison term after being convicted of flying weapons to U.S.-supported Nicaraguan rebels.

Cardinal Bernard Law, the Catholic archbishop of Boston, met with President Daniel Ortega late Saturday and said before leaving to return to the United States on Monday that his "reading of my conversation" with Ortega "would lead me to believe a pardon will be granted by time." His comments were taped by NBC News here.

Law met privately with Hasenfus for about 15 minutes Sunday night at the Tiptapa prison, 12 miles east of Managua. The cardinal was in Nicaragua to attend the National Eucharist Congress, a Catholic conference attended by religious leaders from throughout the world.

By contrast, India and the Soviet Union are old and close friends with similar views on most major international problems, including the Middle East, South Africa, Afghanistan and Cambodia. Moscow is India's major arms supplier and a major trade partner.

Soviet SDI program advanced, expert says

LONDON (AP) — Soviet "Star Wars" research is much further advanced than is commonly believed, and Moscow is benefiting from "a very dark cloud" over U.S. space programs, says British expert Bernard Blake.

"Anyone who thinks the Soviet Union is lacking a comparable SDI program should think again," writes Blake, editor of the respected Jane's Weapon Systems. In the latest edition of its annual survey of defense systems around the world.

Soviet SDI and its major advances in nuclear weaponry and anti-nuclear defenses "should be remembered when reviewing some of the Kremlin's arms control proposals," Blake writes in the annual, which goes on sale Tuesday.

"Since the early 1970s the U.S.S.R. has had the world's only anti-satellite system, whereby an offensive device enters the same orbit as the satellite and destroys it by exploding a conventional warhead," he writes.

Blake lists the hardware in the "very extensive" Soviet early-warning network and says these are allied with Soviet nuclear-armed, ground-based missiles to intercept warheads in space before re-entry.

"A particle beam research program comparable with that of the United States is also under way" and is expected to produce systems to disrupt or destroy satellites in the 1990s, he writes.

Shots fired at man on Wall

BERLIN (AP) — East German border guards fired dozens of shots Monday at a young man trying to climb over the Berlin Wall to the West and he fell to the ground covered with blood, Western authorities said. They said he probably died.

Another East German succeeded Monday in escaping to the West by setting out on a raft into the Baltic Sea, where he was picked up by a passing ship, West German police said.

The 36-year-old man on the raft identified himself as a nephew of Karl-Eduard von Schnitzler, Communist East Germany's propaganda chief and the leading commentator on state-run television, sources told The Associated Press.

A West Berlin witness to the wall shooting reported hearing shouts of "Halt, stand still," followed by 30 to 50 shots on the eastern side of the wall at about 1:30 a.m., West Berlin police said.

Bingham says transfer will give hospital needed flexibility

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Hospital Administrator John Bingham Monday went beyond simply reiterating the declining admissions and occupancy figures of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, while describing the plight of the hospital.

"This issue is not the financial numbers but the flexibility to pursue alternatives," Bingham said after a Twin Falls County Republican Women's luncheon for about 55 people.

The comment came when Bingham and Twin Falls County Commissioner Judy Felton spoke with Times-News Managing Editor Stephen Hartgen after the lunch.

Hartgen had questioned the need for transfer of ownership of MVRMC from the county to a non-profit corporation.

Bingham and Felton argued in favor of the transfer. Bingham presented a slide show at the lunch that is a trademark of his campaign since early November to educate people about the proposed transfer.

Twin Falls County residents will vote Dec. 9 on whether to support a transfer. County commissioners have said they will abide by the decision of the advisory election.

Citing figures that MVRMC took to about $1.5 million more than it spent in each of the last two years, with projections it will clear about $1.3 million during the current fiscal year, Hartgen asked when the hospital would fall financially if the transfer were not approved.

Bingham said he couldn't estimate when MVRMC would begin to lose money. But he said that looking beyond concerns about whether hospital expansion was appropriate in 1981 and 1982, and past fears of its $29 million bond indebtedness and declining admissions figures, the transfer should still be approved.

Even if the state were wiped clean, the transfer is still needed to allow MVRMC to enter into partnerships with medical organizations and increase its own profits, he said.

"It means crossing county lines and doing whatever it takes to survive," Bingham said. "We are limited to geographic restrictions."

The "regional" medical center is prohibited under county ownership from doing business outside Twin Falls County or from entering joint ventures with doctors or medical centers.

Bingham said some proposed ventures could not be revealed, but that working with St. Luke's Regional Medical Center, in Boise, for cancer treatment, and combining efforts with Physicians Laboratory, were being discussed.

When Hartgen asked how much money would be made in the projects, Bingham said specific projections had not been made because agreements can't be finalized without the transfer.

A written question raised during the lunch asked why vacant rooms in MVRMC hadn't been utilized as a nursing home.

Bingham said the hospital was considering converting the fifth floor into a sub-acute care facility, which he described as between a nursing home and a hospital. He added that the conversion would not require a transfer.

But switching the beds to a nursing-home status would require their decertification as hospital beds, leaving the beds useless if the hospital's admissions improved, Felton said. She favored not losing the potential of using the hospital beds in case medical business improved.

"I would prefer to not have a nursing home in there," she said.

Twin Falls council approves increase of farm operations

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls will be expanding its farming operations.

Airport Manager Harry Merrick was authorized last week by the Twin Falls City Council to proceed with planning, creating, wheat on about 124 acres near the Twin Falls-San Valley Regional Airport. The acreage would be in addition to the 300 acres now farmed near the facility.

Merrick had reported to the council the previous week that the farm operation could yield as much as $90,000, to help fund the airport.

Present airport personnel and extra help hired during the season could do the work, with an initial expenditure of about $30,000 for farm equipment.

Merrick said the city could earn more money by farming the low-maintenance crop than by renting the land.

Bill Claiborn, an Airport Board member and farmer, told the council at the Nov. 17 work session, "I think it will work."

City Manager Tom Courtney said the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners were in agreement with the plan.

Airport revenue was reduced about two years ago when the commissioners cut the county's share of funding to the operation.

Gary Wolverton, another Airport Board member, said Merrick was doing a good job with the present farm operation, but the council should consider hiring a farm manager in the future.

"The whole thing will be a success if properly managed," he said. In light of the poor farm economy, the city would have no trouble finding a young farmer who has the experience to run the operation.

No action was taken on Wolverton's suggestion.

Later, at its regular meeting, the council:

- accepted several bids toward the construction of a water storage tank and pumping station to serve a new water improvement district, which includes everything south of Highland Avenue and east of Locust Street South.
- Completion of the new system will mean increased water pressure for the area, especially for firefighting purposes, City Engineer Gary Young said.
- The council accepted a $314,300 bid from Ross Enterprises of Jerome for construction of a water-booster station. Two other companies submitted bids for the project.
- The council also accepted a proposal from a single bidder for construction of a 720,000-gallon water reservoir at Ramon Construction Inc. bid $239,500.
- The sale of more than $2 million worth of certificates of participation financed the water district construction and the replacement of Grandview sewer trunk line, now under construction.
- Some preliminary construction was started this week at the site.
- made several appointments for advisory boards:

- Dennis Voorhees, a Twin Falls attorney, was named to a five-year term on the board of the Twin Falls Public Library.
- Voorhees, the first choice of the board, will replace David Mead, who term expires Dec. 31.
- Lois Madock, Keith Ray, Phyllis Taylor and Milo Pearson were appointed to two-year terms on the board.

Councilman suggests Twin Falls adopt annexation policy

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The question of establishing a policy on annexation was raised Monday at a work session of the Twin Falls City Council.

While the council discussed the subject, it didn't answer the question.

Councilman Rick Carr suggested that the city form a policy on annexation instead of considering land on a piecemeal basis. The impetus for his suggestion was a negative public reaction last week to the city's proposal to annex several parcels.

A roomful of people attended last week's council meeting to oppose any annexation. Two more public hearings will be held before the council makes its decision.

City Manager Tom Courtney told the council that the amount of land considered for annexation, was conservative. Some cities seek all the annexable land available.

The targets of annexation by Twin Falls were considered mainly for administrative purposes, such as ironing out irregular city boundaries, Courtney said. The city had to consider how much the annexed parcels would cost the city in services, such as maintenance and fire protection or street lighting.

"We could have gone farther," he said.

Under state law, the city can annex any land that is contiguous to the city and surrounded by city and less than five acres. Larger parcels may be considered, if they were once split into five-acre parcels.

For future annexations, there should be a policy about what land to annex, Councilman Rick Carr said. "I think we need to proceed with this annexation and next year proceed with long-term goals."

Councilman Erick Anderson said the city didn't worry about annexation during the past few years, because of state property-tax restrictions.

The city began considering annexation this year because of a change in the law allowing annexation to the city, totally with a policy were those "exceptions to every rule."

Councilman Jack Miller said the trouble was that the city had no exceptions to annexation was not unexpected, he said. When his property was annexed years ago he opposed the idea.

"(But) the city would be one-city block without annexation. The city is going to have to grow," Miller said.

Anderson said the opposition to the annexation centered on an increase in taxes.

Courtney said annexation raises the issue of tax equity. County residents living near the city did use city services, such as its streets and parks. Yet, city residents were footing the bill.

Mayor Doug Vollmer said one opponent to the annexation said she didn't use the city services "very much." He added, "It's a tough question."

No action was taken by the council on establishing a policy for annexation.

In other business, council also reviewed a report from Finance Director Rick Thompson on the itemized bill for the construction of a new clubhouse at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course. The construction project is being paid for by a surcharge on golfers.

Most of the $376,368 project was spent on design and construction. The bill for that was $318,022.

The next-largest item, at $22,000, was the installation of a sewer system. The old clubhouse had used a septic tank. Instead of using the same system for the new facility, a city sewer line was installed to serve not only the golf course, but the area, Courtney said.

'Holiday Shopper' makes its first run

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Its loudspeakers broadcasting Christmas songs, the "Holiday Shopper" made its first loops among Twin Falls retail centers Monday.

The music from the free shuttle bus turned a lot of heads, but attracted few shoppers. By late afternoon, only five riders had boarded, said Charlie Chambers, who is operating the service.

"We anticipated these first three days would be mainly a shakedown cruise," he said. Chambers — and the eight sponsors of the service — will be waiting for the day after Thanksgiving, traditionally the biggest buying day of the year and the opening of the holiday shopping rush.

"We're holding our breath, seeing what Friday and Saturday will bring," Chambers said.

Five retail areas, two independent stores and the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce here pooled their money to put the bus on the street as a convenience for shoppers.

The downtown Business Improvement District, Lynwood Shopping Center, Emerald Home Stores and Blue Lake Plaza, Magic Valley Mall, Blue Lakes Shopping Center Mall and the Chamber each contributed $400 for the month-long service. The two independent stores are Leas Drug Stores and K Mart, clipped in $150 apiece, Chambers said.

Using the shuttle bus, shoppers can park at one group of stores and travel to others. Chambers said the bus will stop for pedestrians who want to flag it down along its route, which generally follows Shoshone Street North, Addison Avenue East and Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

The Holiday Shopper is scheduled to run until Dec. 27. It makes seven routes daily. The bus stops at the following times and locations:

- Downtown, The Bon — 11

Supreme court upholds award to area woman

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has voted 3-2 to uphold a $400,000 award to a Twin Falls County woman who said she was blinded in one eye when the cap on a soft drink bottle exploded and struck her.

The court on Monday upheld a judgment awarded by a 5th District Court jury to David and Carolyn Silman against Aluminum Co. of America, a Pennsylvania corporation, and Noel Canning Corp., boiler for Seven-Up USA.

The Silmans sued, claiming that just over seven years ago, Mrs. Silman was injured when she tried to use pliers to remove the "puffer-proof band" around the aluminum cap on a two-liter bottle of soft drink.

Mrs. Silman said she suffered a complete loss of sight in her left eye.

After a trial, the jury awarded the plaintiffs damages of $100,000 and assessed punitive damages of $200,000 against Seven-Up USA and $100,000 against ALCOA. ALCOA appealed the damage award.

The majority opinion was written by Justice Stephen Blattline and supported by Chief Justice Charles Davidson and Jesse Walters, chief justice of the Idaho Court of Appeals, who sat on the case.

Dissenting were Justice Alan Sheppard and Joseph McFadden, a retired Supreme court justice who heard the case.

The majority noted that ALCOA marketed the caps from 1967 until the date of the accident in 1979. ALCOA's procedures did not meet established consumer industry standards.

The dissenting justices held that the Silmans failed to state and prove a claim against ALCOA, and that the judge erred in submitting the issue of punitive damages to the jury.

evidence a list of 229 claims for similar incidents.

The Supreme Court also upheld District Judge Daniel Meehl's decision to send the issue of punitive damages to the jury, and his ruling that an expert could testify that the date of the accident in 1979 ALCOA's procedures did not meet established consumer industry standards.

The dissenting justices held that the Silmans failed to state and prove a claim against ALCOA, and that the judge erred in submitting the issue of punitive damages to the jury.

Parents become students for a new perspective

By TERESA Z. TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Parents of Jerome High School students were given the opportunity to switch places with their teen-agers for a day last week.

The activity, designed to give parents a firsthand look at their kids' education, was part of a number of special events celebrating more in their classes than when she attended school in Wendell. Debby said she had enjoyed the day and commented that students these days were allowed to participate more in their classes than when she attended school in Wendell. Debby opted to attend school with her mother rather than take the day off.

Debby Carrell's mother, Mary, said she had enjoyed the day and commented that students these days were allowed to participate more in their classes than when she attended school in Wendell. Debby opted to attend school with her mother rather than take the day off.

Parents Judy Guiley, who took the place of her daughter Gina, a junior, and Charles McEntarffer, who replaced freshman daughter Brandi, both commented on the curriculum, which they said was broader than when they attended school.

"The teachers also are much more knowledgeable about their subjects than when I went to school," McEntarffer said.

Jerome's Junior High students, in honor of Education Week, were given the opportunity to hear several local community leaders, professionals and business owners speak on a variety of subjects.

Seventh and eighth grade students signed up to hear speakers on such topics as nuclear engineering, the life of a rodeo professional, preventive medicine, the media, self-image, substance abuse and other subjects.

County Commissioner Pam Smith told one eighth grade class about the importance of voting.

"During a recent election, there was an instance where a candidate won by one vote, so you can make a

Heart beats yes, head says no to Irishman on expired visa

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old single woman, attractive, successful (real estate) and, like most people who write to you, I have a problem.

I have fallen in love with a charming, handsome, 29-year-old man whose friends tell me is feeding me a line. He came here from Ireland, his visa expired and now he is an illegal alien. My friends say he's only using me so he can remain in the States and bring his girlfriend over from Ireland.

He told me about the girl, back home, but says he really loves me and will break off with her when he can tell her in person because he doesn't want to hurt her. Abby, I have been in love before, but never like this. We have a wonderful time together, and the chemistry between us is perfect.

Now for the bad part: He has borrowed money from me — yet unpaid; I've caught him in several small lies; he drinks more than he should and he has a bad temper.

I know all his faults, but I am drawn to him like a giant magnet. I

What do you say?

IN LOVE IN NEW JERSEY
DEAR IN LOVE: Listen to the half with the brains in it and forget him. What you call "love" is a temporary emotional condition brought on by a physical reaction to a biological urge.

DEAR ABBY: My supposed sister-in-law and I are having an argument about our relationship. We are married to brothers. She says she is not related to me.

DEAR IN LOVE: The girl who gave my husband a beautiful woolen scarf, which I thought was wonderful, but, to my distress, there was no gift for me, even though I had given her one.

She says she is not related to me but she is a sister-in-law to my husband. I say we are sisters-in-law. What do you say?

SISTERLESS OUT EAST
DEAR SISTERLESS: The big issue is not whether your brother-in-law's wife is your sister-in-law; it's her rude insistence that she is not related to you when you claim her as your sister-in-law.

I don't know how they figure relationships "out East," but "out West," where I come from, my husband's relatives are mine, and mine are his.

DEAR ABBY: One more comment about introducing children as "step," "half," "own" or "adopted." Charles, my husband's son from a previous marriage, came to live with us.

Three days after Charles moved in, my own son trooped through the living room with an entourage of his peers to join Charles and me, who were talking. Son paused long enough to make the proper introductions, identifying Charles as his "brother."

As his friends moved on toward the den, I held my son back briefly, explaining that Charles was his "stepbrother." He quickly brushed me with, "Look, Ma, if somebody's going to live in your house and share your parents, he's your brother — unless, of course, it's a girl, in which case she's your sister!"

Utah to approach Court on TV appeal

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court will be asked to hear Utah's appeal of a lower court ruling that the state's Cable Television Decency Act is unconstitutional, the attorney general says.

The controversial law, passed by the 1983 Legislature but never enforced, twice has been found unconstitutional — once in U.S. District Court and again by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

"We don't guarantee the state of Utah will win this case," Attorney General David Wilkinson said Monday. "But we wouldn't go forward if we didn't think we had a chance."

Rex Lee, former U.S. solicitor general, has been retained by the state to argue the case before the high court if it agrees to hear it, Wilkinson said.

If the Supreme Court hears the case, the $200,000 state has incurred in "out-of-pocket" costs for outside counsel could mount by another $70,000 to $80,000, he said.

The federal appellate court in September concurred with an earlier decision by U.S. District Judge Ailon Anderson, who held the law is "unconstitutionally overbroad and vague and void on its face."

The act calls for fines for showing by cable television systems any "indecent material," which includes visual or verbal depiction or description of "human sexual or excretory organs or functions."

The three-judge panel agreed with Anderson's ruling that federal law, the Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984, preempts state legislation of the content of cable television programming.

However, Appeals Court Judge Bobby Baldoock wrote in a special concurrence that the Utah law was unacceptable because it constituted complete prohibition, rather than regulation, by not providing a reasonable "window" of time for dissemination of indecent material.

Wilkinson said his office would have preferred that the law contain the window clause to avoid that argument. But he said a powerful lobbying effort by citizens groups persuaded lawmakers to leave it out.

Asked why he had decided to appeal the previous rulings, Wilkinson said: "I have a constitutional duty... to defend that law if it can be defended. I won't defend a law if I opine it is indefensible."

Year-long probe exposes prison drug ring

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — FBI agents and Utah Corrections Department officers on Monday arrested at least a dozen inmates, former inmates and prison guards following a year-long investigation of a drug ring operating inside Utah State Prison, authorities said.

More than a dozen federal indictments, naming past and current prison inmates and some guards, were unsealed Monday. The indictments were returned by a federal grand jury Nov. 5 and Nov. 19 but kept sealed until arrests were made, said U.S. Attorney Brent Ward.

Charges include distribution of heroin and marijuana, conspiracy to distribute illegal drugs and use of a telephone in commission of a crime. The heroin distribution charges are said to involve former inmates working outside the prison, while the marijuana charges are reportedly against inmates still in prison.

Names of those arrested and the specific charges against them were not immediately available.

The investigation began last January after authorities received information about the drug ring from another law enforcement agency, the paper said. The investigation focused on the illegal supply of drugs to prison inmates and staff corruption.

No challenge on validity

POCATELLO (AP) — Kathy Lacy Schless, the independent candidate narrowly defeated in the Bannock County clerk's race, has dropped any plans to challenge the validity of over 900 unmarked ballots.

But Mrs. Schless says she is awaiting the results of an investigation by the state attorney general's office into possible election law violations. That inquiry could be completed later this week.

Mrs. Schless lost to incumbent Larry Ghan by 137 votes out of about 27,000 cast after Bannock County Prosecutor Larry Echohawk upheld the validity of 915 absentee ballots that had not received the official election stamp. Had the ballots been voided, Mrs. Schless would have won by nine votes.

Though attorneys consulted by her said Mrs. Schless had a good chance of winning in court, she said she could not afford the estimated $4,000 to retain a lawyer or the thousands of additional dollars needed to pursue the legal challenge.

Wheat growers back formation of barley panel

BOISE (AP) — With the battle over Idaho's controversial right-to-work law finally over, the Idaho State Wheat Growers Association has endorsed expanding the state Wheat Commission to include promotion of barley with mandatory contributions from producers.

The wheat growers have also again urged the state Legislature to make major changes in the Idaho tax structure, shifting most of the burden for support of government services from the property tax to other taxes.

On the federal level where association members face higher federal taxes under the sweeping overhaul of the tax system, the growers went on record in favor of restoring favorable income tax provisions abolished by the new bill. Those included the investment tax credit, preferential treatment of capital gains and income averaging.

Financial analysts have said the loss of those provisions will raise federal income taxes for farmers over the next three years or so with that additional burden likely to force many already on the edge out of business. But they also say the new tax bill in the long-run should benefit the producers who survive the short-term adversities, making them more efficient and better able to cope in increasingly competitive international markets.

At their annual convention in Boise this month, the wheat growers ended their one-year, self-imposed moratorium on seeking legislative approval of the barley check-off to promote research and market development. The issue was dropped last year because members feared it would become entangled in the heated debate over the state law banning mandatory union membership.

Some growers feared that trying to expand the mandatory check-off to barley could jeopardize the check-off that has been in effect for wheat research and promotion because of legislative in-fighting between right-to-work. The debate ended on Nov. 4 when voters overwhelmingly endorsed passage of the law that prohibits mandatory financial support for unions as a condition of holding a job.

With Idaho producing more barley than any other state except North Dakota, the growers said it was time for producers to underwrite expansion of the economically important crop rather than continue relying on money diverted from wheat promotion. The growers generally backed a two-cent per hundredweight mandatory check-off for the barley promotion, but they avoided any specific reference to the actual amount in their resolution so leaders would have some flexibility in negotiating with lawmakers this winter.

On the tax issues, the association again called for equalization of property taxes with any future increases limited to taxes other than those on real estate.

The growers contended agriculture bears too great a share of the property tax burden, and they called for the financing of public education, a major contributor to local property tax levies, to be shifted to the state income tax. Such a move, the association said, would remove public education from "his perilous position" of having to rely on voter approval of property tax hikes to maintain operations.

Speed mark set

LONDON (AP) — British Rail said one of its diesel trains has set a world record speed of 144.7 mph over a one-mile stretch between York and Darlington in northern England.

The previous world record also was held by a British Rail diesel that averaged 125 mph over the same track in 1973.

That record was broken during test runs for the new T4 bogie.

District has worst quarter

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — The 12th District of Farm Credit Services had its worst quarter ever during the period ending Sept. 30, showing a net operating loss of $131.6 million during the three-month period, according to a report published Sunday.

The 12th District includes Federal Land-Banks-and-Production-Credit Associations in Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Alaska and the Spokane Bank for Cooperatives. The district provides agricultural credit to about 42,000 members.

The district's combined net loss for the first nine months of 1986 was $221.1 million — three times the yearly total for 1985. Previously the record loss year for the five-state district, the Great Falls Tribune reported.

The losses include $96.75 million in financial assistance to other FCS institutions during the third quarter and a total contribution of $146 million during the first nine months of the year, according to FCS Vice President Al Haslebacher in Spokane, Wash.

No state-by-state figures were available for the district, as land banks and PCAs in the five-state area were consolidated last year into one Spokane-based system. Formerly-autonomous local units now serve as branches for the central banks.

Land Banks had nearly $693 million in non-accrual loans — 22 per cent of total volume. PCAs' non-accrual loans of $124 million amounted to 19 per cent of total loan volume.

Haslebacher said any loan 180 days or more past due is in the non-accrual category, along with loans overdue at least 90 days that show no plan for restructure or repayment.

FCS President Ken Krueger said weak commodity prices and corresponding declines in real-estate values continue to strain borrowers' financial resources, impairing their repayment abilities.

The hike in non-accruals caused the 12th district to increase its allowances for loan losses by one-third since the year began, from $13.6 million to $167.2 million as of the end of September, the newspaper reported.

The district's troubles were only part of nationwide problems for the cooperatively owned FCS, which posted losses of $1.5 billion for the first nine months of 1986 — compared to 1985's full-year loss of $2.7 billion.

Haslebacher said the final quarter of 1986 will "certainly be a key period for the Farm Credit System" as borrowers typically come in for the following year's credit lines.

McMahon could be out for season

By JOE MOOSHLI
The Associated Press

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Quarterback Jim McMahon could be out for the remainder of the NFL season after his shoulder injury was aggravated when a Green Bay lineman slammed him to the turf, Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka said Monday.

"I doubt if we will have his services the rest of the year," Ditka said. "He has shoulder discomfort. It's all up to the doctors in Los Angeles."

McMahon was scheduled to leave for Los Angeles Tuesday and see Dr. Frank Jobe, an orthopedic doctor who specializes in elbows and shoulders.

In the second quarter of Sunday's 12-10 home victory, McMahon was tossed to the ground by Green Bay nose tackle Charles Martin, who was ejected from the game for the personal foul by referee Jerry Markbreit.

"The ball had been thrown, the quarterback was at rest and he (Martin) came in and took the quarterback, picked him up and stuffed him," Markbreit said.

McMahon, making his first start in nearly a month because of a rotator cuff tear in his right throwing shoulder, landed on the injured shoulder.

"I'm sure the flagrant foul affected him," Ditka said of the play, "but he was having problems before that."

Unavailable for comment Monday, McMahon had said after the game that the Martin foul "didn't help" the injury.

NFL officials Dick Maxwell said Sunday night the league automatically reviews plays involving ejections, and Martin faces possible a fine or suspension.

"But we will await review," he said. Martin said Sunday that his hit on McMahon was a mistake.

"I did the wrong thing, true enough, and they took me out of the game for it," Martin said. "I think I got a little too rough."

"I just took him down," Martin said. "I wasn't thinking of shoulder injury or knee injury or anything."

Green Bay quarterback Randy Wright defended Martin, saying, "The first interception I threw, (Dan) Hampton did the same thing to me."

Ditka said backup quarterback Mike Tomczak would start Sunday against Pittsburgh, adding, "We've got to get Doug Flutie ready to play in the next two weeks."

Flutie was acquired by the Bears from the Los Angeles Rams for a sixth-round draft choice last month and has been busy learning the system. The Bears' fourth quarterback is veteran Steve Fuller.

"I already know what Steve can do and I know what Mike can do," Ditka said of his quarterbacks. "Now I want to know what Flutie can do."

Miami attack obliterates Jets, 45-3

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

Dolphins running back Lorenzo Hampton breaks into a long run for a touchdown

MIAMI — It may be too late to salvage their 1986 season, but for one night at least, the Miami Dolphins looked like a Super Bowl team again.

With Dan Marino throwing for 285 yards and completing four touchdown passes for the 11th time in his four-year career, and Lorenzo Hampton rushing for 148 yards and scoring three times, the Dolphins crushed the New York Jets 45-3 Monday night.

Entering the game with just five wins — all over losing teams — the Dolphins ended New York's nine-game winning streak by scoring seven of the first eight times it had the ball. Miami controlled the ball for 40 minutes and 19 seconds of the 60-minute game and limiting a team that had scored 51 points against it nine weeks ago to just three.

"I always felt we were better than our record indicated, but we never proved it," said Miami Coach Don Shula, whose team is now 6-6 with only flickering playoff hopes.

"Tonight I felt we proved it." The keys to the game were Marino and Hampton.

Marino, who completed 29 of 36 passes, threw TD passes of 22 and 21 yards to Nat Moore, and one yard each to Hampton and Bruce Hardy. That gave him 31 for the year, making him the first NFL player to throw for more than 30 TDs in three different seasons.

Hampton, who got his 148 yards in 19 carries and caught five passes for 40 yards, exactly doubled the Dolphins' single-game rushing high this year. He became the first player to run for more than 100 yards against the Jets this year. He started his night with a 54-yard burst on Miami's first possession.

That was the plan — to run

Montana's Rice wins conference pass-catching title

BOISE (AP) — Twin Falls' Mike Rice, a senior wide receiver at the University of Montana, has claimed the Big Sky Conference pass-receiving championship.

Rice, who was a first-team all-Big Sky selection at wide receiver last season, caught seven passes for 145 yards against Portland State on Saturday. That left him with 1,046 receiving yards for the season, 64 catches and 13 touchdowns.

Northern Arizona sophomore Shawn Collins caught more passes, 70, but played one more game than Rice.

Rice ranks third in NCAA Division I-AA in receiving.

Montana's quarterback from Mountain Home, claimed the Big Sky's total offense championship on the last day of the regular season Saturday, but otherwise players from league champion Nevada-Reno captured most of the honors.

Pease managed 3,094 yards total offense and passed and ran for 34 touchdowns. His TD output and yard per game average, 309.4, were the best in the Big Sky and Pease also led the nation's I-AA quarterbacks.

Runner-up was Idaho quarterback Scott Linehan, who will lead the Vandals in a first-round Division I-AA football playoff game Saturday at Reno.

Linehan managed the most yardage, 3,279, but his per-game average of 298 total yards, even though it was third-best in the nation.

UNR's Eric Beavers was the Big Sky's top-rated quarterback, 151.3 on the NCAA point system with 189 completions in 321 attempts, 2,810 yards and 25 TD passes.

Reno's Lucius Floyd, a junior, was the Big Sky's only 1,000-yard runner, with 1,065 yards and an average of 27.6 yards per game.

MIKE RICE
Garnered 1,046 yards distant second with 945 yards and an average of about 85 yards per game. Reno's Charvez Foger didn't repeat as Big Sky rushing champion, but led the league in scoring average with 90 points in 10 games. NAU placekicker Goran Lingmerth, who set a Big Sky record with eight field goals against Idaho earlier in the season, scored 93 points in 11 games, just behind Reno's Marty Zendejas, who had 95 points.

UNR's average of 492 yards per game led the Big Sky and the nation on offense, and it was his unding 15 touchdowns this season. Weber State wound up second in both total offense and passing offense.

Boise State, which had its first losing season in 40 years with a 5-6 mark, led the league in total defense with 196 yards and finished second in Northern Arizona in pass-defense by 6 yards.

Setencich more a victim of personality than poor coaching

In October of 1985, I went to Boise to interview a Boise State University football player who was to play against Idaho State the following weekend after having transferred from ISU a year earlier, where he had been a starter. As we were standing on the sideline before practice, Coach Lytle Setencich called him over.

Setencich said something to the player, and he came back to the sideline. "Coach Setencich said I'm not supposed to say anything pro or con about Idaho State," he paused for a moment. "I don't know what to say."

I thought about that Sunday after Setencich resigned under fire in the wake of Boise State's first-ever losing season, the victim not of his coaching but of his personality. Fittingly, he announced his resignation on his weekly TV show — and announced he wouldn't talk to reporters afterward. For most Boise State fans and for the media who cover the Broncos, Setencich remained to the end his 24-20, four-year regime an enigma wrapped in a riddle. He seemed unapproachable, defensive and resentful of criticism, real and imagined. He seemed convinced from the beginning that there were a lot of people out there comparing everything he did with Jim Criner, and comparing him unfavorably.

The fortress mentality enveloped the Varsity Center long before the end of Setencich's first 6-5 season. It's hard to say why. There weren't exactly a lot of boosters trooping into Athletic Director Gene Blymaier's office demanding that Setencich clamor for his ouster. About the most pointed question asked of Setencich during his four-year tenure was why he didn't have a more productive offense.

But there was a pattern of declining attendance over the past two years, and flagging season ticket sales this year. The Broncos were turning the faithful off, which is something Boise State with its big sports budget and its expensive facilities can't afford to do.

The truth is that the private Setencich is a likeable guy — shy, to be sure, but intensely loyal to his players and to his assistant coaches. He took personally the shortcomings of his teams at BSU — and face it, the shortcomings were mostly on offense, which he didn't coach.

"The community doesn't see what goes on inside a team," said Twin Falls' Lance Sellers, a senior defensive end, following the Broncos' 21-14 loss to Idaho Saturday. "One thing about the community is that they think, win or lose, that the coaches do it all — that they're responsible for everything. That's wrong."

"There are two kinds of coaches," Setencich said on his TV show Sunday after he resigned. "One of them always has the media around him ... that's not the way I am."

To be fair, he might still be around if he had been. There are coaches with losing records still coaching in the Big Sky because they're liked by the boosters, the fans and the media. They can pull it off because they're frank and realistic. They don't promise more than they can deliver, which is the first deadly sin of football coaching.

But BSU's is a program of great expectations. Setencich was sensitive to that — too sensitive. In the end, it was his unding that are good as you'll find in NCAA Division I-AA and to coach them into as good a defense as there is at this level. But he was never able to recruit an offense to match, or, perhaps, hire the coaches to put it together.

Some of NFL's big stars slumping

By BARRY WILNER
The Associated Press

Has the refrigerator been unplugged? Has Boomer lost his explosiveness? Does carrying the name Craig — as in Roger or James — mean not carrying or catching the football so well anymore?

What has happened to some of the big names in the NFL, players who had major impacts on their teams last year, but this season have either disappeared or disappointed?

The names read like an All-Pro list, starting with Jim McMahon, the Chicago Bears' outrageous and outstanding quarterback who has been plagued by shoulder problems all season. It extends to Williams Perry, the Bears' media phenom last season who may have eaten his way out of stardom.

Just as with McMahon, injuries have been a factor in many of the slumps being suffered by 1985 stars.

San Francisco's Roger Craig and New England's Craig James, two of the most versatile running backs in the league, have been slowed by injuries.

So has Seattle safety Kenny Easley, who won't play again this year after needing surgery for bone spurs in his ankle. And New York Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau, who tore up a knee last Sunday and won't be back until the playoffs, if then. Prior to an abdominal injury that limited the perennial leader in sacks to just two quarterback traps.

"I haven't been 100 percent," said Craig, who became the first NFL player to rush and receive for more than 1,000 yards each last season. "I know I haven't been as effective as last year because of a strained hip muscle. If I start worrying about the hip and change my attitude, it's only going to hurt the team."

Craig also has been limited by the loss of QB Joe Montana, who was sidelined for eight weeks with back surgery. Jeff Kemp, Montana's replacement, threw more to his wide receivers than in his first two years, and the emergence of wideout Jerry Rice as the game's most dangerous deep receiver, Craig's role has been curtailed.

"I think having Joe back will balance the whole offense," said Craig, who has 490 yards rushing in 101 attempts and 367 receiving on 47 catches this year; last season, it was 719 on 134 runs and 757 on 64 catches at this time. "By this time of year, I usually get going, turn it on."

His counterpart in New England, Craig James, hasn't had an better a season. The whole New England rushing game has ground to a halt, ranking 21st in the league through 11 weeks. Last year, led by James' 1,227 yards and 657 by Tony Collins, the Patriots were sixth in rushing.

Teams battle for bowl berths

By The Associated Press

The late scramble this weekend for berths in the Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Sun Bowls will create some strange bedfellows.

Imagine an Arkansas Razorback rooting for a Texas Longhorn? That hasn't happened for a while.

"I'm going to be there hooking those horns all week," said Arkansas nose tackle Tony Cherco, who dates Texas coach Fred Akers' daughter. "I'm a big Longhorn fan now. I'll even suit up for them."

A Cotton Bowl opponent for seventh-ranked Ohio State will be decided Thursday night when Texas plays Texas A&M. A victory by the Aggies, ranked 13th in The Associated Press poll, would give Texas A&M the Southwest Conference title and the host berth in the Cotton Bowl, sending No. 11 Arkansas to the Orange Bowl ... maybe.

A victory by Texas would give the Razorbacks their first trip to the Cotton Bowl since 1976. As a loser, Texas A&M would go to the Orange Bowl to oppose third-ranked Oklahoma ... maybe.

Those maybe's would be definite if second-ranked Penn State didn't have an escape clause in its Fiesta Bowl contract. The Nittany Lions will play at Tempe, Ariz., against top-ranked Miami on Jan. 7 ... probably.

Should the Hurricanes lose to 2-8 East Carolina on Thursday night, Penn State would face Big Eight champion Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl. That would leave Miami awaiting an opponent at Tempe.

Enter Arkansas or Texas A&M. The SWC runner-up will need a place to play should be replaced in the Orange Bowl by Penn State.

With that problem solved, the next question is the identity of the Sugar Bowl host against Nebraska.

The Southeastern Conference champion is the host team in the Sugar Bowl, Alabama can tie Louisiana State for the title by defeating Auburn on Saturday.

"We will not make a decision relative to a tie — if one should occur — until the season's over," said Mickey Holmes, the Sugar Bowl's executive director.

Holmes said the selection committee would meet Sunday, after Alabama plays Auburn and LSU closes its season against Tulane on Saturday night.

There will be no head coaching change in another Idaho college football program that has fallen upon hard times. Jim Koetter will be back for a fifth season as head coach at Idaho State next fall.

The Bengals finished 2-9 this season, their third consecutive losing campaign after going to the I-AA playoffs in 1983.

Koetter is looking for a new defensive coordinator, however. Under Claude Tomasi, ISU finished last in the Big Sky in total defense this season.

Wendell staves off Hagerman, 54-52

By The Times-News

HAGERMAN — Devin Pharis ignited a Hagerman rally that fell just short Monday evening as the Pirates fell to Gooding County rival Wendell 54-52 in the non-conference season boys' basketball opener for both teams.

The 6-foot-6 Pharis, who led both teams with 27 points, and stalked Hagerman to a five-point lead at intermission. But Wendell's Jim Prince, who ended the night with 20 points, restored the lead to Wendell behind a pair of long-range bombs early in the second half.

Casey Riley, a 6-foot-1 sophomore, led the Tigers with 16 points and senior forward Steve Bowers with 15 in the contest.

A 3-2 zone paid dividends for Hansen over the middle quarters as they moved within seven at the end of third periods. The visitors twice allowed Hansen within five in the last four minutes before putting the game away at the charity line where they held a 17-4 advantage.

The Hansen JV's took a 40-39 decision in the opener.

By The Times-News

DIETRICH — Crystal Miller and Jennifer Dugan combined for 27 points Monday as Camas County edged Dietrich 44-42 in a Northside Conference girls' basketball game.

Miller tallied 11 of her game-high 17 points in a first half that saw the visitors carry a seven-point lead into intermission. But her biggest four, which came in the final minutes, proven even more critical.

Those came after a third-period Dietrich rally which Becky Southwick and Kim Bowman, who paced Dietrich with 14 on the night, scored six apiece to pull the Blue Devils within a pair heading into the final eight minutes.

The loss drops Dietrich to 1-2, all in conference action.

Partial ban on carts goes before JCC board tonight

By The Times-News

Golf

JEROME — A proposal from Greenskeeper Rod Morgan to ban all power golf carts on the Jerome Country Club course during certain times of the year is expected to attract considerable discussion at the group's annual meeting tonight.

Morgan's proposal would ban the carts only during the time of the year when the grass goes dormant and needs to be replanted.

"The carts wear the grass down," he said. "And if the carts run on the grass while we're trying to grow it, well, it's just not going to grow."

Morgan said that keeping the carts off the grass during the season the grass goes dormant, and maintaining the current $50 annual increase in dues to pay for that system.

Carlyle Butler, longtime JCC member, is heading a group opposed to the proposal on the grounds that the interest and needs of the older members are being ignored. The same older members that over the past years have developed the course "from a sheep pasture to the golf course it has now become," he said.

"There is no major damage being done by the operation of golf carts on the course. This will prevent the younger people and others from walking if they so desire," Butler says.

The group also will consider drilling a well on land currently not controlled by the club; installing an automatic sprinkling system on the front nine, and maintaining the current $50 annual increase in dues to pay for that system.

The meeting is scheduled to 7 p.m. in the clubhouse.

DU banquet set tonight

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Chapter of Ducks Unlimited will hold its 16th annual banquet tonight at the Elks Lodge.

Proceeds from the dinner and accompanying auction will go to DU's international wildlife habitat preservation projects.

Tickets are $30 per person, which includes a year's DU membership.

The event is scheduled to start at 6:30 p.m.

Fryar hurt in accident

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England Patriots wide receiver Irving Fryar, who suffered a concussion in a car accident, was in satisfactory condition Monday and will be hospitalized for an undetermined time, the team physician said.

"Irving is awake and alert but has a headache and chest pains," Dr. Bertram Zarins said. "He's still under close observation. We're doing further testing."

Fryar's condition has improved since Sunday's accident but it was uncertain if he would play next Sunday in New Orleans, Zarins said.

49ers re-sign Tyler

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers are bringing back Wendell Tyler, the former starting halfback released three weeks ago, and may seek even more running back help, Coach Bill Walsh said Monday.

Tyler accepted an invitation to re-join the 49ers on Monday, then flew from Los Angeles to San Francisco and signed a contract late in the afternoon.

Angels release Jackson

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Reggie Jackson was officially released by the California Angels Monday and the 40-year-old slugger said that if he doesn't sign with another club, "I'll step aside with dignity."

Jackson, who served predominantly as the Angels' designated hitter in 1986, batted .241 in 132 games, with 10 homers and 58 runs batted in.

Kelly retained by Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Kelly, who replaced fired Minnesota Twins Manager Ray Miller on an interim basis Sept. 12, on Monday was named manager for 1987.

Kelly, 36, the Twins' third-base coach since 1983, becomes the first native Minnesotan to manage the team since the franchise moved from Washington in 1961. He is the 11th manager in Twins history.

Federation bans athletes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The world governing body in modern pentathlon banned 15 athletes from the 1988 Summer Olympics and all other international competition Monday in one of the biggest sports drug crackdowns in recent years.

Thirteen of the athletes were from Eastern Europe, the other two were from the United States — Blair Driggs, of San Antonio, Texas, and Lori Norwood, of Bryan, Texas.

Bucs send Rhoden to N.Y.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates have conditionally traded 15-game winner Rick Rhoden and two other pitchers to the New York Yankees for promising pitcher Brian Fisher and two other players, General Manager Syd Thrift confirmed Monday.

Martina wins Slims title again

NEW YORK (AP) — Martina Navratilova wanted a little something to take with her when she hits the ski slopes at Aspen, Colo.

"I wanted to finish (the year) on a high note so when I go down that mountain I won't have to think of a loss," the world's top-ranked player said.

Tennis

She accomplished that Sunday by beating West German Steffi Graf 7-6, 6-3, 6-2 for her fourth consecutive Virginia Slims Championships title.

"The whole year's been great," Navratilova said. "I've won the Slims twice and Wimbledon and the U.S. Open, and going to Czechoslovakia and winning there and just being there, and finding my dog when he got lost."

"That's probably the happiest I've been all year."

She also collected $428,657 Sunday, bringing her 1986 earnings to $1,905,841 and her career total to $11,792,315.

That's enough, apparently, to keep her warm and her skis waxed.

"It's funny how people come up to you after a loss and say 'Bad luck' when it's weeks later and you've forgotten about it," she said. "Or they say it was a great match and say, 'If it was a great match, I would have won.'"

In her ninth consecutive trip to the Virginia Slims singles final, Navratilova didn't play a "great match," but she dispelled any thoughts that the 17-year-old Graf was ready to take over. After all, Graf had nearly beaten Navratilova in the semifinals of the U.S. Open.

Hockey's high-scoring Gil Perreault retires at 36

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Gilbert Perreault no longer the Buffalo Sabres' star after 17 seasons marked by his rink-long scoring rushes, retired Monday with more goals than all but 10 players in NHL history.

Perreault, 36, met with his teammates Monday morning after conferring last weekend with Sabres management, said team spokesman John Gurtler.

He added that Perreault, who spent 12 weeks starting last June 17 confined to a return, was not pressured by Sabres management to quit.

However, Perreault needed just 20 more games to qualify for a $180,000 pension bonus at age 55 under a new NHL Players Association agreement. When he returned following his first retirement, Perreault insisted that money was not what motivated him.

The Sabres did not hold a news conference to announce their team captain's decision, but simply had Gurtler make telephone calls alerting reporters.

The team's poor record, which has reached 4-13-3 and already resulted in Craig Ramsay taking over as coach, was prominent in his mind, Perreault said.

"I decided I had enough, after the start we had it was time to make a change," Perreault said. "I think it will help put a different light on the team and hopefully help turn things around."

"It's everything. It's not only that," he said in a telephone interview from his home. "It's the way I felt. You need that certain feeling, to want to practice, to want to play the game. I just didn't have it anymore."

Perreault, who played his entire career with the Sabres and will see his No. 11 jersey become the first retired by the team, said he will remain retired this time.

Asked if he would consider a coaching or scouting job with the club if one is offered, Perreault said he wants to rest, consider his options, take a vacation and avoid hasty decisions about his future.

"We respect Gil's decision to retire at this time," said Scotly Bowman, the Sabres' general manager and director of hockey operations who stepped down as the team's coach Nov. 6. "Only a player knows when it is the time to retire."

Perreault scored 20 or more goals in 15 of his 16 full NHL seasons.
