U.S. bomber breaks SALT weapon ceilings

By TIM AHERN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States violated ceilings in the unratified SALT II nuclear arms treaty Friday when another Air Force B-52 bomber capable of carrying atomic-tipped cruise missiles became operational.

The treaty's numerical limits were breached when the eight-engine B-52 arrived at Carswell Air Force Base in Texas after having been modified to carry up to a dozen of the low-flying cruise missiles.

Regrets, anger — A10

It is the 131st B-52 which has been modified, putting the United States over the limit in the treaty which permits only 130 cruise-equipped bombers if no other atomic weapons are eliminated from the U.S. arsenal.

The Navy isn't retiring an aging Poseidon missile-firing submarine from the U.S. force to keep America under the total limits of various types of weapons permitted by the 1979 treaty, the Pentagon said earlier this week.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, concluding a visit to India, criticized the U.S. decision, saying, "we regard this as a major mistake, which will make it more difficult to search for the approaches for disarmament."

Several Democrats Congress also criticized the U.S. action. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who will become chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee in January, said in a statement,

"I believe the president's decision... gives the Soviet Union a military advantage, with its near-term missile production capabilities, as well as a substantial world propaganda advantage."

"It will cause our allies abroad considerable political discomfort and it will now be much harder to reach a bipartisan consensus on strategic weapons and arms control here at home," said Nunn.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., incoming chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, termed the U.S. action "a very bad decision" that was being taken now because "it shores up Ronald Reagan with the right wing."

Aspin, interviewed on the "CBS Morning News," said conservatives are unhappy with the SALT II pact and are feeling "such unhappiness with Ronald Reagan over the hostages-for-equipment swap and the way that that was done..."

House Speaker-designate Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, called it a setback to the cause of nuclear disarmament and a further blow to the credibility of U.S. foreign policy.

Stormy winter forecast

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coastal areas from Maine to Texas can expect stormy, wet weather this winter while the south central regions of the country are likely to have lower than normal temperatures, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration predicted Friday.

In a long-range forecast, NOAA said that warm Pacific Ocean waters, which could be the harbinger of another El Nino weather phenomenon, would likely make this winter a wet one with increased amounts of either snow or rain in much of the country.

The forecast for stormy weather over the next 90 days covered states along the Great Lakes and the coastal states from Maine down to Florida and across the southern part of Texas and into Arizona.

NOAA's 90-day forecast said that the chances for below-normal temperatures were centered in Arkansas and portions of the surrounding states of Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma.

NOAA said there was a 60 percent chance that the weather in this area would be colder than normal this winter.

The chances of lower-than-normal precipitation are the greatest in a region stretching from central California northward through the states of Nevada, southern Oregon, southern Washington, Idaho, Montana and part of Wyoming, NOAA said.

The chances for higher-than-normal temperatures this winter were greatest in all states west of the Rocky Mountains except portions of Idaho, Oregon and Washington, the NOAA forecast said.

The forecast for stormy weather was based on a widespread warming in the Pacific Ocean from the Solomon Islands west of Hawaii to near the South American coast. Surface waters in this area have been running between 1 and 3 degrees above normal this fall, according to NOAA long-range forecaster Donald L. Gilman.

While such a warming has in the past been a forerunner to an El Nino, Gilman said it was too early to say whether such a weather pattern would develop this time.

But he said the warming in the central Pacific was likely to strengthen the southern jet stream, the air flow blowing from west to east at high altitudes which influences weather patterns. He said these variations had already started occurring, giving rise to a wetter-than-normal fall in parts of the United States.

House panels demand information

By TIM AHERN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two House committees Friday increased pressure on the White House for more information about the diversion of money from Iranian arms sales profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

At the same time, both congressional intelligence committees also plan to question key White House figures in the case, according to Capitol Hill sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said, "the committee will issue subpoenas" but declined to say who would get them.

The latest calls for further Reagan administration disclosures came as President Reagan continued a Thanksgiving vacation at his California ranch amid what has become the most serious foreign policy crisis of his six-year presidency.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee wrote Reagan to ask that the panel be provided with relevant

Iranian aid offer given cool reception

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. officials reacted coolly Friday to an Iranian offer to help free more American hostages from Lebanon if the United States ships to Iran armaments purchased by the ousted Shah but never delivered.

"We are standing by the president's remark of last week" that no more U.S. arms would be sold to Iran, said a State Department official who spoke on condition he not be further identified.

Another department official said he did not expect any formal response to the offer made in Tehran by the speaker of the Iranian parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani.

Six Americans kidnapped by terrorists in Lebanon linked to Iran are still missing.

In a sermon at Tehran-University, Rafsanjani said his government would help free more U.S. hostages if America delivers weapons bought by the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. The Shah was ousted in February 1979 by the revolution that brought Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to power.

"If America stops being a bully and returns our material held there, we will call on the Lebanese people to help you on the question of the hostages," Rafsanjani said.

Shipment of the arms, about $300 million in spare parts for Iran's U.S.-built arsenal, has been blocked since 1979 by the arms embargo.

President Reagan partially lifted the embargo last January as part of the convoluted transaction that sent anti-tank missiles and anti-aircraft missile parts parts to Iran. But in a news conference last week, he appeared to close the door on further arms sales.

His statement seemed to leave open the possibility of sending Iran weapons already paid for by the government of the Shah, although the public and congressional outcry against the earlier transaction made that seem unlikely.

Memo orders White House, NSC staff to aid arms probe

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — White House staff and the NSC staff to go horseback riding and chop wood.

The announcement of the memo came as the White House and NSC staff were busy in Washington trying to determine whether a fired-up North, destroyed documents relating to the diversion of profits from U.S. arms sales to Iran rebels lighting to overthrow the government in Nicaragua.

Howard said the Wallison memo was not prompted by any reluctance on the part of the White House or NSC staff people to cooperate with the Justice Department or commission named by President Reagan to review the "role and procedures" of the NSC staff.

"It is simply to assure the staff that they should have instructed to cooperate," he said.

The president is to meet with the three members of the commission, headed by former Republican Sen. John Tower of Texas, on Monday. Howard said the president would issue an executive order at that time "giving them authority to do whatever they need to do."

He said he did not know the timetable for the Tower commission to report, and assumed that would be discussed Monday in appointing the commission, the president said.

Howard said he did not know how soon a successor would be named to John Potokowski, who resigned as national security adviser and head of the NSC staff after the disclosure that up to $30 million of the arms deal profits had been diverted to Central America.

"People are still making suggestions" as to a successor, he said.

Drugs result in fine for airline

MIAMI (AP) — The U.S. Customs Service fined Aviana, the Colombian national airline, $4.7 million Friday after 200 pounds of cocaine was discovered in a Thanksgiving shipment of flowers, a Drug Enforcement Administration agent said.

The drug was found in four of 2,600 cartons of roses and carnations, said special agent Jack Hook. He said smugglers routinely believe such highly perishable items have a good chance of being ruined unnoticed through customs.

Customs agents at Miami International Airport check flower shipments by pushing probing rods through the boxes.

Appeals court cuts judgment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An appeals court Friday cut in half an $8.3 million judgment against the federal government in a malpractice case involving the birth of a severely disabled child at an Army hospital in Tacoma, Wash.

A three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said a lower court had overvalued the emotional losses suffered by the child and her parents. The court had awarded more than $1.7 million for lifelong attendant care.

U.S. withdraws resolution

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States on Friday withdrew a resolution accusing Cuba of murdering and torturing political prisoners in the resolution.

The United States agreed to a motion by India's U.N. Ambassador, Chinmaya Gharekhan, that no action be taken by the U.N. Social Committee on the resolution.

Under the same motion, Cuba agreed to drop resolutions accusing the United States of mistreating American Indians and Puerto Ricans.

Lebanon cease-fire ignored

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinians and Shiite Muslims ignored a cease-fire Friday and blasted each other with artillery, tank cannon and rocket fire.

Sources in Damascus, the Syrian capital, said a truce agreement was reached with the help of Syrian, Libyan and Iranian officials. The boom of shell fire reverberated through Beirut at 3 p.m., when it was scheduled to take effect.

Fighting that began Monday in the hills above the ancient southern port of Sidon spread to the Palestinian camps on Beirut's fringes where a sporadic war has been fought for 18 months.

outside the SALT II limits at this time" and said it means "the future in the search for peace and as the cause of the renewal of the nuclear arms race," Wright said.

Rep. Ed Edwards, D-Colo., a member of the House Armed Services Committee, was also critical.

"It's a tremendous mistake that this administration is going to regret," he said. "Once we break the limits, the other side can also, and it's much more profitable for them. The Soviets have a number of huge missiles that can carry more warheads and they have remained under the limits up to now but they can add more warheads to their weapons more quickly than we can."

account controlled by Contra leaders.

In announcing the connection between the two controversial programs, Attorney General Edwin Meese said the Justice Department would conduct a full investigation of whether any U.S. laws were violated.

Reagan fired Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, the National Security Council aide identified by Meese as overseeing both programs, and accepted the resignation of North's boss, national security adviser John Poindexter. Meese said only North knew the full scope of the Iran-contras link.

But several congressmen have questioned whether North was acting on his own and Leahy said Friday that "Colonel North did not act alone. There are some in the administration who would like him to be the scapegoat for the whole matter but the fact is that he did not act alone."

Leahy, speaking in a telephone interview from his Middlesex, Vt., home, said, "I don't know who gave the orders but Colonel North did not act on his own. He got orders from higher authority."

Leahy did not say who gave those orders or how he came by his information; but he said the committee will find out just who gave those orders, why they gave them, and when they gave them, and whether they violated laws in doing it."

The separate intelligence oversight committees in both the House and Senate are investigating and the sources said witnesses may include North, Poindexter, and McGarane, who was Poindexter's predecessor.

Soviet fuel exports lead trading surge

GENEVA (AP) — East-West trade rebounded the first of this year, paced by Soviet oil and natural gas exports to the West, a U.N. study said Friday.

Trade between Soviet-bloc nations and the West was greater than had been projected in early 1986, when observers had predicted that the lapse in oil prices would threaten Soviet hard currency income, the study said.

About 80 percent of Soviet export earnings came from the export of oil and other fuels.

During January-June 1986, a 30-percent rise in the volume of Soviet exports to the West was accompanied by a 16-percent cut in Soviet imports, the study said. In contrast, non-Soviet East European imports from both developing and Western industrialized countries showed a sharp rise.

But world economic trends point to only a modest expansion of East-West trade in the near future, the study said. It did not give a figure.

The study was prepared by the U.N. Economic Commission for Europe, a 34-nation body grouping European countries, the Soviet Union, the United States and Canada.

Soviet bloc net foreign debt is expected to rise to $83 billion this year from $74 billion in 1985, mainly because the value of the dollar fell against most major currencies.

Warning by pope

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Pope John Paul II said Friday that mankind would do itself serious harm if it ignores moral and ethical considerations when applying new technologies in medicine.

John Paul said the church was not opposed to progress in medicine and biotechnology. But he said Catholic medical spokesmen must emphasize that doctors and scientists remain subject to moral laws, especially when dealing with "human patients, human embryos or human tissue."

In the past the pope has warned of the dangers posed by genetic experimentation and artificial insemination.

Flowing lava hits the sea

KALAPANA, Hawaii (AP) — A lava flow met the sea here Friday, sending clouds of smoke and steam billowing skyward as tourists watched from a nearby hiking trail on the Islands of Hawaii, officials said.

The eruption from Kilauea Volcano already has destroyed nine homes and threatened six others Friday, said Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim. The lava spread into three streams of molten rock over the sparsely settled hillside of southern Hawaii island, he said.

One stream coursed into a tidal pool within view of a short trail leading to the coast from Hawaii Volcanoes National Park's Wahaula Visitor Center.

"They are letting people walk the trail to view the lava flow as it reaches the ocean," said park spokeswoman Virginia Thomason. "You can see a lot of smoke and steam, but that's about it."

Residents of the area had been evacuated, and no injuries were reported, although firefighters had to be called out Thursday night to rescue a stranded hiker, said Kim. Roadblocks had been set up along the two-lane Kalapana Highway, which had been crossed by lava, isolating residents who use the road as the only thoroughfare between rural communities in south Hawaii County and the schools and stores of Pahoa, the largest town in the area.

The westernmost of the sea lava flows crept toward the sea Friday, passing the Queen's Bath area, a freshwater pool once used by Hawaiian royalty. "Since the area is flat, the movement of the flow is hard to predict," said Kim.

30 homeless day after fires plague town

MCDONALD, Ohio (AP) — About 30 people remained homeless and about 100 homes were still without gas Friday as a result of fires caused by a surge of pressure in natural gas pipelines, authorities said.

Fire Chief Dan Nagy said nine homes were gutted during Thursday's fires, forcing their occupants to seek shelter with friends or relatives.

East Ohio Gas Co. spokesman John Tidyman said most of the homes still without gas service were occupied by people away for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Officials said they expect damage to exceed $1 million from fires at one tavern and 32 homes in this community of 3,000 people near the Ohio-Pennsylvania border. Tidyman said a malfunctioning pressure regulator caused the surge in pipelines to 700 to 1,000 houses and businesses.

No one was seriously injured, although one Liberty Township firefighter was treated for bruises and was taken to Warren General Hospital for treatment, Nagy said.

Merchants in 43 cities anti-fur protest targets

By The Associated Press

Demonstrators protesting the killing of animals for fur coats but- tonholed shoppers and blocked store entrances in 43 cities Friday, and 27 protesters were arrested, the organizers said.

"Our primary focus is on the widespread institutionalized abuse of animals," said Trans-Species International president George Cave. The non-profit group is based in Williamsport, Pa.

Two-thirds of the protests, collectively called the Campaign for Fur Free America, were directed at Sears and Roebuck stores, Cave said in a telephone interview.

"They are the most mainstream and family oriented of all department stores," the animal rights activist said. "Advertising fur in their catalogs give fur a credibility it would not otherwise have."

Seven of the animal rights activists were arrested for blocking the entrance to the fur salon at Macy's in the Menlo Park Shopping Center in Edison, N.J. They linked arms across the entrance and turned away shoppers until police arrested them an hour later, said Diana Petrya, a member of the New Jersey Coalition to Ban Fur.

"We want to make people aware of the atrocities involved in the killing of animals for the making of fur coats," she said. "Each year 39 million animals are slaughtered for fur coats and that has got to end."

Macy's officials refused to comment on the incident. In San Francisco, 10 protesters were cited for blocking a sidewalk in front of a Saks Fifth Avenue store. Another 10 animal rights activists were cited for trespassing at a Weststock's department store in Sacramento, Calif., officials said.

In Pittsburgh, about 40 demonstrators implored Christmas shoppers at Kaufmann's department store not to buy furs and passed out leaflets showing maimed fur-bearers.

"We think animals have rights not to be exploited just to produce some items of luxury and vanity," said Dan Kinney, 36, president of the Pennsylvania chapter of Mobilization of Animals.

A few shoppers were discouraged from entering the salon, but several shoppers did, so despite the demonstrators to browse racks of silver fox and mink bearing signs offering to "take an additional 10 percent off."

About 12 members of Defenders of Animal Rights, one dressed as Santa Claus, held a brief protest at a Sears at Oakland Mall in the Detroit suburb of Troy before police and mall security officers asked them to leave.

Engine trouble halts flight

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A Delta Air Lines jetliner carrying 188 people made an emergency landing Friday in Amarillo after developing problems in an engine, officials said.

Flight 796, en route from San Francisco to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, made a "short, abrupt landing" at about noon, said Dick Jones, a Delta spokesman in Atlanta.

The Lockheed L-1011 carried 175 passengers and a crew of 11. No one was hurt, Jones said.

"It lost power in one engine, and the pilot had to shut it down before it ruined it," Jones said.

The cause of the engine failure was not known, the spokesman said. The L-1011, which has three engines, is capable of flying with only one, Jones said.

Half the passengers were transferred to another flight bound for Dallas and the other flight was making arrangements for the others, Jones said.

Holiday shoppers start annual spree

By The Associated Press

Spurred by special sales and short supplies of the most sought-after gifts, shoppers mobilized at the crack of dawn Friday to embark in earnest on the 1986 Christmas shopping season.

Americans packed malls, invaded ritzy and cut-price stores alike and strolled down famous shopping avenues to snatch up the items heavily advertised as the year's hottest gifts: infrared light-firing "laser" guns; stuffed animals both talking and mute; electronics; and clothing.

"We're mobbed," said Robert Dahms, manager of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store in Holyoke, Mass. "Three hours into the day it's turning out to be spectacular."

Many retailers have been pushing Christmas merchandise for months, but shoppers stuck with tradition by coming out in force on the day after Thanksgiving, the biggest shopping day of the year.

And they came out early, with a number of national and local retailers opening early with special sales.

Helen Brigman said she traveled 100 miles from her home in Marshall, N.C., to the East Towne Mall in Knoxville, Tenn., the nearest major mall. "We left home at 5:30 and were here when the doors opened at 8," she said.

Besides special sales, there were other attractions. Dayton's stores in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area gave away boxes of Cracker Jack, with one box at each store containing a certificate for a $500 shopping spree.

And then there was Santa. "I might lift two tons of kids today," said a Santa Claus at the Green Hills Mall in Nashville, Tenn., before he faced a line of children and their parents already waiting for him. "It's a good thing they only weigh about 40 pounds apiece. It's going to be fun."

Regional economic setbacks and high levels-of consumer debt weren't deterring many shoppers, who were buying big ticket items as well as smaller goods.

"I've read about (consumer) debt being high, but right now they're sure buying," said William Tobin, president of Kaufmann's, the largest department store in Pittsburgh.

Clothing was in demand as usual, and shoppers weren't sticking to the typical sweaters, neckties and bedroom slippers.

"We'll sell a lot of (leather) boots and G-strings," said Debbie Boss, assistant manager of the Ravissant lingerie shop in the Woodland Mall in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Saks Fifth Avenue, the top New York City department store, reported brisk traffic in items in alligator, ostrich and other-axolotl animal skins, as well as cashmere, said Joseph Gromek, senior vice president and store manager.

In toys, the hottest item was infrared.

Lazer Tag by Worlds of Wonder Inc. and Photon by L.J.N. Toys Ltd., which shoot infrared light for space-age tag, were tabbed as the hottest toys in pre-season picks by retailers and industry analysts, even though supplies would be short.

Homeless pair die

CHICAGO (AP) — Two people believed homeless died on Thanksgiving Day as they sought shelter from the cold, authorities said.

Park District employees found the body of a man in his 50s in a North Side fieldhouse often used by homeless people as a shelter, said Detective Scott Keenan.

Keenan said there were no signs of foul play. The man remained unidentified Friday.

Holiday toll on highways stands at 170

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's traffic accident death toll for the Thanksgiving holiday weekend had risen to nearly 170 late Friday.

Between 350 and 450 people may die in traffic accidents during the four-day weekend, the National Traffic Safety Council said Wednesday.

At 4 p.m. MST Friday, 166 people were known to have died in accidents since 6 p.m. local time Wednesday, when the holiday begins for counting purposes. It ends at midnight local time Sunday.

During last year's Thanksgiving holiday, 409 people died on the nation's highways.

The highest toll for the four-day weekend was in 1983, when 764 people died in traffic accidents.

The traffic safety council says about 470 people could be expected to die in traffic accidents during a non-holiday, four-day weekend at this time of the year.

The safety council urged motorists to avoid drinking alcohol before driving. Alcohol is a factor in approximately half of all fatal motor-vehicle accidents and in 40 percent of all pedestrian deaths, the council said.

Salary hike dispute leads to vote criticizing superintendent

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

HANSEN — The Hansen Education Association announced Friday a vote of no confidence in Superintendent Richard Smith and, without asking for his resignation, hoped the community would insist on a real change in educational leadership.

HEA President Galen Stimpson said teachers expressed "a profound lack of confidence" in the administrative competence and educational leadership of Mr. Richard Smith, superintendent of schools.

The HEA vote and a threatened lawsuit brought contentions to a boil over the issue of increasing the salaries of two teachers in the small district. Two teachers who compiled college credits and expected salary increases in return for the post-graduate work were denied the raises.

Stimpson noted that the master contract teachers have with the School Board apparently supports the teachers' and HEA's position. "All graduate credits earned after the conferring of a bachelor degree shall be accepted... to advance on the salary schedule," the contract states.

But the Hansen School Board, under Smith's advisement, denied the increase for one teacher and hasn't taken action on the other, Smith said. He added that the board requires approval of courses before they are taken, if they are to be used toward salary increases, Smith said.

He argues that the same section of the contract quoted by Stimpson also supports the board's position asking for prior approval of the courses. "Undergraduate in-field classes or workshops approved in advance by the board shall be accepted for advancement on the salary schedule," the contract states.

Smith added that the contract is misunderstood by HEA and that all courses must be approved.

"The workshop credits need prior district approval, and that was written into the master contract," Smith said. He added that the district offered to move both the teachers up the salary schedule in return for HEA agreeing prior approval is needed for all courses.

But, Stimpson said, "the minutes of the negotiation sessions clearly show it was the intent of both parties that teachers earning these credits receive remuneration."

Board Chairman Bill Allen declined to comment on denying the increases, but said a statement of the board's position will be made at its meeting Monday.

Hansen teachers Renee Remaley and Lucy Hall each applied for a 4-percent step up the salary schedule in return for taking courses. Hall declined to comment on the issue Friday.

Remaley said she's completed a raise.

total of 14 graduate credits toward the increase requiring only 10 credits. But 11 of her credits were from disputed workshops on topics including physical education, grading and coaching clinics.

Remaley is a physical education and physical science teacher, and coaches girls' varsity volleyball at Hansen High School. She expected $703 plus a 10-percent coaching bonus of that amount for completing the course.

Hall expected a raise of $568 annually, Stimpson said.

Remaley noted that the district paid for several of the workshops, so she expected that the board knew she wanted to use the credits for a raise.

Smith agreed the district had paid for at least one workshop. But he said the board must still be notified because they can't keep track of every course someone takes.

With regard to the vote of no confidence, Smith said, "I'm proud of my six years here. We've brought the district from weak financial status to a fairly strong one."

"I stand by this record and I think we've done a great deal here."

Stimpson said a lawsuit seeking the salary increases would be filed Dec. 5 against the district, if the increases aren't granted. He said the lawsuit drew teachers together in light of the district underspending its instructional budget by $20,000 last year.

Cranes folded for world peace

Area kids try origami as message to the UN

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Japanese legend claims that the gods will grant one wish for every piece of paper folded into the shape of a crane.

A group of children from the Magic Valley Peace Project, formed locally to help promote the International Year of Peace, are reaching out to the entire world by promoting the concept of "Thinking Globally and Working Locally."

"Our effort has been sustained throughout the entire year and has set in motion a growing state-wide movement to help make world peace by the year 2000 a reality," said Gerry Warner, a member of the committee.

group should receive four wishes. These wishes were voiced by Lonnie Anderson and Heather West of the Buhl Middle School and Bob McCulloch and Kristy Kemp of Lincoln Elementary in Twin Falls.

Respect and love for all human beings; food, clothing and shelter for everyone; equal treatment for people of all races; and getting rid of all weapons used in a war are the four wishes being sent to the UN.

Also being sent with the necklaces and wishes are 100 "We Are One" friendship cards and an invitation to the world leaders to make world peace by the year 2000 — "an idea whose time has come."

Edna Kulken, a Lincoln teacher who coordinated the peace crane project for that school, said all children hope that "people in power might love peace and justice more than power and greed."

Students from Edna Kulken's fifth grade Lincoln Elementary class pose with some of the peace crane necklaces they helped make, which are being sent to the UN

The package fulfills one of the major objectives the Magic Valley Peace Committee set for this year — reaching out to the entire world by promoting the concept of "Thinking Globally and Working Locally."

"Our effort has been sustained throughout the entire year and has set in motion a growing state-wide movement to help make world peace by the year 2000 a reality," said Gerry Warner, a member of the committee.

Highlights of the Magic Valley Project this year have included the creation of a "Magic Peacemakers Kit," which outlines 10 activities for the promotion of peace; the hosting of two "We Are The World" shows; sponsorship of a Global Village Conference held at CSI and "Hands Around The Park," which was coupled with an International Peace Day balloon launch.

"The Magic Valley Project is like a seed which, if planted in peoples' hearts, will germinate and bring forth a new, conscious yearning for a more peaceful world," said Mayor Bob Port of Filer, a supporter of the project.

Outlook for skiing: Downhill must wait

By RUSSELL WHITING
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — While alpine skiers wait with bated breath for more snow to cover Mount Baldy, it may be comforting to know they can start their ski season on cross-country trails in the area with only a little bit of cooperation from Mother Nature.

Baldy opened on a limited basis Thanksgiving Day, with man-made snow covering the Lower Warm Springs run. And with snow storms expected through the weekend, cross-country skiers will be waxing their skis in hopes that one of several local Nordic centers will be open for business.

At present the only cross-country skiing to be found in the area is from Galena Lodge to Galena Summit for light touring and back-country skiing and at Busterback Lodge, 40 miles north of Ketchum.

"We've groomed about four kilometers up around Alturas Lake and are inviting anyone to come up and ski it," said Bill Leavell of Busterback.

Leavell said that when in full operation the lodge accommodates day skiers as well as overnight guests with 40 kilometers of trails leading toward Pett Lake and Alturas Lake.

Sun Valley realtor leads city programs

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Donald W. Keirn, a Sun Valley real estate agent, will lead the city of Boise's business recruiting programs beginning Jan. 1. Mayor Dirk Kempthorne has announced.

Keirn, 57, was general sales manager for the steel products division of Kaiser Steel Corp. for more than 25 years until 1981, when the company closed the Oakland, Calif.-based division.

After moving to Ketchum, he and his wife Jo Ann owned and operated a gift store.

Political pressure may have influenced Andrus water policy

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Political pressure from on high may have been behind a switch in the water policy stance of Governor-elect Cecil Andrus when he was secretary of the interior, according to the author of a new book on water policy in the United States.

"I like Andrus, I think he was one of the best interior secretaries we had, but I believe he was pressured from the Carter administration,"

Marc Reinsner, author of a new book entitled "Coddling Disaster," said this week in a telephone interview.

The book examines pork barrel water projects and takes a scathing look at the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation and how it operates.

The book also examines the Carter administration's ill-fated "hit list" of pork barrel water projects, and how that list played out in the West.

As secretary of the interior, Andrus was point-man during the debate that turned the West, including Democratic governors and congressmen, against Carter.

Although Reinsner does not cover the California-Andrus connection per se in the book, he did spend seven years researching water projects in the West and how those projects affected farmers such as J.G. Boswell and Salyer Land Company, the two largest farming operations in California.

When Andrus served as interior secretary in 1980, he supported an exemption from the federal reclamation law for Boswell and Salyer, who later contributed $10,000 each to the Andrus campaign.

The switch and the donations became a heated issue during the gubernatorial race, one that Andrus survived. Supporters of Republican candidate Lt. Gov. David Leroy charged in radio ads and mailers that the switch by Andrus amounted to influence-buying by California interests, and raised the question whether Andrus would try to sell water to California if he were elected governor.

Andrus vehemently denied the allegations.

Reinsner, during a phone interview this week, said the switch by Andrus was "completely out of character for him."

"I believe he was pressured by the Carter administration, and specifically Rosalynn Carter," Reinsner said. "When he was running for president, he attended big fund-raisers in Fresno attended by several growers, and Boswell was a key landowner. I think Andrus gave in to what they (Carter administration) wanted."

Eager bunches of buyers hit the shopping season running

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — They were waiting for the doors to open for "early bird" specials.

They were jostling side-by-side down the main concourse at the Magic Valley Mall.

They were filling up bags and emptying pocketbooks.

Christmas shoppers arrived at stores in force Friday, with the opening of the holiday buying season.

Many Magic Valley merchants were hustling to keep up with the first — and generally the biggest — customer crush of the year.

Retailers surveyed said late in the day reported brisk, but not overwhelming traffic — with two main exceptions.

Heavy crowds turned out for the first Christmas shopping rush at the new Magic Valley Mall. "It's jam-ed," said Mall Manager Don Chandler. "It's shoulder to shoulder. You just kind of walk along with the masses."

Early morning sales events also brought customers to area discount department stores. "Early was better than last year. I've never seen such a crowd in my life," said Terry Tess, store manager at K mart in Burley.

Some Twin Falls shoppers were hopping from one early bird sale to others, said Jim Maslaniak, store manager for F.W. Woolworth Inc. at Blue Lakes Shopping Center Mall. He found five shoppers armed with lists and waiting for his "early bird" opening at 8 a.m. "They had already been at K mart and PayLess (Drug Store)," he said. "I think it's going to be a very, very competitive market (this season)."

Many merchants had beckoned customers with blitzes of Thanking Day advertising and with promotions. Hospitable weather also added to the shopping. Sales on the day after Thanksgiving in 1985 were hurt by a snowstorm.

The lure of the Magic Valley Mall may have trimmed traffic at the competing Blue Lakes Shopping Center Mall. "It's been real steady all day," said Tracy Turner, manager of B. Dalton Bookseller there. "It was a little slower than last year, but of course, with the new mall..."

"The store looks crowded, but it wasn't the same as last Thanksgiving. I think the new mall is taking an effect on our Christmas business already, but we won't really know until the end."

But people came to buy. They were not merely browsing, both managers said. Turner said his store sold many "top 10" hardback books, the types normally purchased as gifts. Maslaniak reported quick sales of a $140 video entertainment

At K mart, Tess said 40 videocassette recorders on sale at $227 disappeared within an hour after opening.

Electronic toys also were popular at stores such as M.H. King's in the Lynwood Shopping Center. "That (toy department) has been the hot spot," said Manager Bob Kullm. Shoppers also were reaching for wrappings to decorate the gifts.

Downtown Twin Falls stores also were well-shopped. Tom Ashenbrenner, part owner of Price's True Value Hardware, said parking lots were full and traffic was "as good... as I can remember in recent years."

Shoppers in his store were snapping up basic kitchenware and hardware, not extremely unique items. "They're price conscious, but also quality conscious," he said.

A block away at The Bon, Manager Carl Koehler said customers strolled through his store's aisles later in the day. While the numbers were about the same, they were buying a little more than last year, he said. "It (sales) is running about 3 percent ahead," he said.

The action was not only in the bigger retail centers. At Winslow's Wendell Department Store, discounts on clothes were drawing shoppers. "It's been a good day," said part-owner Irma Winslow. But she said she was preparing for a late-evening mark-down on merchandise, she said.

Beyond the decorations and holiday music, there was another sign of Christmas spirit. Some K mart buyers in Burley pledged to purchase a gift for needy children.

Store Manager Tess said tags with children's names were hung on a Christmas tree. "We had 350 tags," he said. "So far, we've been able to sign up over 250 people."

Man 'lucky' to have survived fumes Briefly

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A Portland man who survived a mysterious carbon-monoxide poisoning last week at a convention in Nashville, Tenn., says he feels "mighty lucky."

Earl Shellum said Friday that he was unconscious for at least 24 hours after he was overcome by fumes in his hotel room.

"I went to bed at 1 a.m. Sunday and they didn't get me out of my room until 9 o'clock that night," said the 64-year-old Shellum, who is president of Western School Supplies.

He said he didn't regain consciousness until about 6 a.m. Monday. When he was revived, he had trouble with his memory.

"I didn't even remember I was in Portland, Oregon," he said.

Shellum was in Nashville for a national school supplies convention.

His room at the Ramada Inn at Opryville was next door to the room occupied by his friend, John Spalding and Spalding's wife, Joan, Spalding, executive vice president of the association staging the convention, died and his wife became seriously ill. Spalding's body was found in his room about noon Sunday.

"It's very strange that they didn't find it and get me out of there sooner," Shellum said.

Hotel officials have said they initially had difficulty determining what was wrong with the people who suddenly became ill. The hotel was evacuated until about 10 p.m. Sunday.

When asked if he planned to sue the hotel, Shellum said, "I hadn't even thought about that."

"I'm sure they can't help what happened," he said, "but I would hope that they will be able to do something better in getting everybody out of there in an emergency."

Shellum, one of four people who recovered from the poisoning, said he didn't "very very close" to dying during eight hours of treatment at Nashville Memorial Hospital.

"Evidently the doctor who was in that emergency room was one of those fellows who wouldn't give up," Shellum said.

He said he was released from the hospital Wednesday night and returned to Portland on Thanksgiving Day.

Authorities still are trying to learn why the deadly gas accumulated in the hotel pool's mechanical room, then entered three adjacent guest rooms.

Nashville Fire Chief Fred Davis said the mechanical room has vents and fans that were functioning, but the outside temperature and winds may have helped cause the problem.

Rupert boy loses arm in tractor

RUPERT — A Rupert boy suffered a severed right arm in a farm accident Friday morning at the Claude Beasley farm northeast of Rupert.

Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said Scott Allen Snow, 13, was accompanying Beasley, who was operating a tractor.

"Somehow the boy slipped and fell into the power take-off equipment at the rear of the tractor, where implements are attached," Jarvis said. The boy's right arm was severed just above the elbow and he suffered several other fractures.

Jarvis said no one saw the accident happen and it wasn't known whether the boy was riding on the back of the tractor or where he was when he fell into the power equipment.

He said the boy was extricated from the equipment by ambulance personnel and County deputies who were called to the scene. He was taken to Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert and then transferred by Life Flight ambulance to the LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City.

Hospital officials there listed him in serious condition, with arm and leg injuries, and said he was going into surgery shortly after 3 p.m.

He is the son of Russell and Karen Beasley of Route 4, Rupert.

The accident was reported at 10:30 a.m.

Masked robber hits liquor store

JEROME — A man wearing a nylon stocking mask and armed with a knife robbed the clerk at the State Liquor Store at 223 1/2 Ave. E. in Jerome at about 6:45 p.m. Friday.

Police Capt. Milo Alonzo said the exact amount of money taken had not been determined, but that it was apparently close to $700.

Alonzo said the man, thought to be in his late 20s, apparently waited until there were no customers in the vicinity, just before the store was to close. He then displayed a hunting knife and demanded the money. Alonzo said the robber on duty cooperated, and then was led by the woman into the bathroom. He shut the door and told her to count to five before she came out. The clerk was not hurt.

There were no other witnesses and officers could not determine if the man left by vehicle or on foot.

Alonzo said city and county officers were called out and a search of the area and adjoining highways failed to turn up any suspects.

Keirn

Speedy B Service Co., a property management firm. He was active on the marketing committee of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce. Keirn has worked for Elkhorn Realty since selling Speedy B Service 15 months ago.

Keirn said Boise could attract light-manufacturing and warehouse operations. However, "I'm going to go out and do quite a bit of research and see what fits best," he said.

In his position as development director, Keirn said he will report directly to the mayor.

In his speech, Kempthorne said that during 1968 Boise has begun to overcome its image as a stagnant city. He cited Keirn's appointment, the Dec. 4 ground-breaking for a regional shopping mall and the Dec. 12 declaration of the Boise Redevelopment Agency's downtown plaza as solid signs of progress during the first year of his administration.

Rehabilitation of levees slated

WALLA WALLA, Wash. — Rehabilitation work on Big Wood and Salmon river levees will begin the first week of December by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Walla Walla District.

Levees at three locations on the Big Wood River and two locations on the Salmon River received damage during last spring's runoff, the Corps said in a news release.

Under Public Law 84-99, which provides for emergency flood control work, the Corps is authorized to spend $152,880 on levee repairs at Broadford Bridge; Eccle and Zinc Spur on the Big Wood River from Bellevue to Ketchum; and $168,850 on Tomamovich and Carmen levee repairs on the Salmon River at Salmon.

Repairs are expected to begin during the first week of December and should be completed within two weeks, depending on the weather.

Thurling, chief of Walla Walla District's emergency management branch, said repair work along the Big Wood River would consist of reconstruction of levees damaged by last spring's runoff and placement of riprap on the face of the flood-control structures.

On the Salmon River riprap will be replaced on the Tomamovich levee. A levee section will be built at Carmen.

CSI trustees to run unopposed

TWIN FALLS — Incumbent College of Southern Idaho trustees Leroy Craig, Jerome, and Dr. Charles Lehrman, Buhl, will run unopposed for their seats on the board.

At the deadline for filing nominating petitions Wednesday afternoon, they were the only ones to have submitted petitions. Both seats are for six-year terms.

The election will be held Dec. 16, with polls open from noon to 8 p.m. Polling places are at the Buhl Senior Citizens Center, Castelford Red Barrel, Filer High School, Hansen City Hall, Valley High School, Hollister Grade School, Jerome Senior Citizens Center, Kimberly Senior Citizens Center, Murtaugh City Hall, Twin Falls County Courthouse and the Taylor Administration Building on the CSI campus.

People wanting to vote must be qualified electors under the general election laws of the state, residents of Twin Falls or Jerome counties and be at least 19 years of age.

Obituaries

Seralda E. Hudson

TWIN FALLS — Seralda E. Hudson, 82, of Twin Falls, died Friday morning at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Born April 22, 1903, in Barbourville, Ky., she moved to Fort Collins, Colo., as a child. She moved to Castelford in 1916, where she was postmistress for many years. She married Ed Hudson Jan. 27, 1921, in Twin Falls.

Mrs. Hudson was a member of the Ascension Episcopal Church in Twin Falls.

Surviving are: a daughter, Mrs. L.C. (Gertrude) Bost of Twin Falls; three brothers, Gorman Miracle of Washington and Jim Miracle of California; a half-brother, Arthur Miracle of Twin Falls; two sisters, Carrie Jenkins of Beaverton, Ore., and Helen Smith of Kansas City, Mo. She was preceded in death by her husband in 1974, a half-sister and a half-brother.

Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery at Heyburn. Friends may call at the church one hour prior to the time of the funeral. The Hansen Mortuary in Rupert is in charge of arrangements.

TWIN FALLS — A cryptside service for E. Lucile Morris, 75, of Overland Park, Kan., who died Wednesday, will be held today at 11 a.m. in Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. The family suggests memorials to a favorite charity. The service is under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

BUHL — A private graveside service for Bessie Bernard, 83, of Buhl, who died Wednesday, will be conducted Monday at 2 p.m. in West End Cemetery. No visitation is planned. Funeral arrangements are under the direction of the Farmer Chapel in Buhl.

Six injured in car-truck accident

TWIN FALLS — Six persons suffered minor injuries in a car-pickup truck accident on Blue Lakes Boulevard Thursday evening.

Police in Twin Falls were called shortly after 8 p.m. after a 1981 pickup driven by Jose Gomez Martinez, 24, of Twin Falls collided with a 1964 sedan operated by Oran B. Hansen, 41, of Twin Falls.

Martinez was parked in the 7-Eleven store parking lot in the 700 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard North, facing west and waiting to make a left turn into the traffic. Police said Hansen was traveling north. Martinez thought he had time to make the turn ahead of the approaching car, but he misjudged the distance and the two vehicles collided.

Martinez was cited for failure to yield right-of-way. He suffered minor injuries.

Rancher's property burglarized

RUPERT — Burglars visited the property of Minidoka County sheep rancher Calvin Dredge, located at 270 South Meridian Road, sometime Thanksgiving night and took $1,600 worth of items.

The theft was reported about 9 a.m. to the Minidoka County Sheriff's Department. Sheriff Ray Jarvis said it was discovered by Dredge when he went to feed his dogs Friday morning. Jarvis said Dredge does not live on the property where the pens and buildings are located but goes there every day to feed the dogs that are kept there.

He discovered Friday that the bunkhouse, cookhouse and barn had all been burglarized. Missing were a 20 inch color television set, three chainsaws, numerous hand tools, bedding and a shotgun.

Jarvis said the incident was under investigation Friday.

Vera Louise Clements

HAGERMAN — Vera Louise Clements, 77, of Hagerman, died Friday at Green Acres Care Center in Gooding.

The service arrangements are pending and will be announced by Demary's Gooding Chapel.

Lottie Meyers

JEROME — Lottie Meyers, 76, of Jerome, died Friday morning at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Born Nov. 2, 1906, in Hastings, Neb., she moved to Kimberly, where she attended school. She married Wiley W. Meyers Feb. 5, 1938, in Kimberly. They were moved to Jerome, where they farmed for many years. Mr. Meyers died April 8, 1965.

Surviving are: two daughters, Fern Serr of Jerome and Carol Schaeffer of Hagerman; two sons, Dale Meyers of Jerome and Robert Meyers of Twin Falls; eight grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and a brother, Walter Tew of Sunset Memorial Park.

The funeral will be held Monday at 11 a.m. in Reynolds Funeral Chapel, with the Rev. Albert Schudde officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park.

Friends may call at the mortuary Sunday from noon until 6 p.m. and on Monday until the time of the service.

Andrus, contacted at home on Friday, said he had not seen Reinsler's book and could not comment on it until he did.

Reinsler also devoted a section in his book on the Tetons Dam, near Reberburg. He said he wanted to study the dam "because it broke, and a right-wing small businessman, ran against and defeated Sen. Frank Church, one of the Senate's most respected liberals; the one thing they ever agreed on was that the Bureau of Reclamation ought to build Teton Dam," he said in the book.

Reinsler also said that the Teton Dam failure, which killed 11 people in 1976, destroyed more farmland than would have been opened to irrigation by the dam.

"That was merely the first in a long string of ironies that followed in the wake of the tragedy," he wrote. "As it turned out, the farmers on the Reberburg bench, the rich irrigators for whose benefit the dam was mainly built, were entirely spared." The rest, farmers on the floodplain, "would have to search the region, the state, even the country to find a decent farm they could afford with their settlement money."

Skiing

In Ketchum, best hopes for early cross-country skiing are with Wood River Nordic and Sun Valley Nordic, both with trail systems based on and around golf courses.

"We only need about four inches of good composite snow to open," said Annie Vandervill, co-owner of Wood River Nordic. "Once we get that we can stay open."

Vandervill said grading and clearing an obstruction such as sagebrush and rock will make for smooth skiing this season. The center is located just north of Ketchum and offers 20 kilometers of groomed trails.

Other cross-country ski areas in the valley beginning at the southern end and driving north include:

Rotarun Ski Trails located west of Hallett near the Rotarun downhill ski area; Sun Valley Nordic, the oldest training center in the Wood River valley; near historic Sun Valley Lodge; Lake Creek Trail System, set and maintained by the Junior Nordic Ski Team, 3 1/2 miles north of Ketchum on Highway 75; Sawtooth National Recreation Area Trails beginning at the headwaters of nine miles north of Ketchum; Prairie Creek Trail System approximately 15 miles from Ketchum and beginning at the United States Forest Service Station there.

Some of the areas have trail fees to the cost of trail maintenance while others only ask for donations.

Jackson Dam gravel search brings call for added studies

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — The search for additional gravel needed to rebuild Jackson Lake Dam has brought a call for a supplemental environmental impact statement of the project.

The National Parks and Conservation Association said excavation for gravel by Bureau of Reclamation contractors above the high water mark of the Jackson Lake bed breaks an agreement made with Grand Teton National Park.

Robert Welch, Bureau of Reclamation project engineer, said the digging started when it became apparent more gravel would be needed to finish reconstruction of the 70-year-old dam.

Jackson Lake has been significantly drawn down for the project, reducing the available water-storage capacity in the Snake River system.

One area where contractors have looked for gravel is Hermitage Point, near a scenic national park, and was included in the environmental impact statement, Welch said. But since environmentalists spoke up, Hermitage Point apparently has been taken out of consideration.

"It (digging at Hermitage Point) seemed to stick in people's craw," Welch said. "We will go to Pilgrim Creek if we have to. We think at this point we can get it all from the lake bed."

But the National Parks and Conservation Association also opposes excavating at Pilgrim Creek. Digging further there would and is expected to be completed in 1988.

The reconstruction project began last year and is expected to be returned to its original flood stage by the end of the year. The dam is being rebuilt because of fears it could fall during a major earthquake.

Briefly

Sex case proceeding set over

CALDWELL (AP) — The arraignment of a 68-year-old Caldwell man on eight charges of sexual misconduct involving minors has been continued until Dec. 5, Canyon County Deputy Prosecutor Bill Morrow said.

Arraignment of John Oliver Morrison, rural Caldwell, began Wednesday in Canyon County Magistrate's Court. Morrison was arrested Tuesday on five counts of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor and three counts of sexual abuse of a minor child, according to Nampa police.

Suspect shot at Nampa store

NAMPA (AP) — A Star man accused of battery, assault, burglary and using a deadly weapon in commission of a felony was in custody Friday at Mercy Medical Center in Nampa after being shot by police outside the Nampa Fred Meyer store Thursday night, officials said.

Paul S. Drummond, 30, was inside the locked store shortly before 10 p.m. Thursday when he was spotted by two Fred Meyer employees on their way to work, Nampa Police Chief Marshall Brislin said.

Brislin said Drummond was outside the store by the time police arrived. Officers ordered him to drop his rifle, and one fired a shotgun when he failed to obey. Authorities said Drummond was wounded in the abdomen.

Brislin would not immediately release the name of the officer who did the shooting, but said he had asked the state Department of Law Enforcement to investigate the incident.

Drummond was arraigned Friday afternoon before 3rd District Magistrate Judge Milton Birnbaum. Bond was set at $50,000, Canyon County Deputy Prosecutor Bill Morrow said.

Boise candidate seeks recount

BOISE (AP) — Democrat Linda Clark has formally requested a recount of her 49-vote loss to Republican incumbent Rachel Gilbert in the Nov. 4 election for Idaho's District 17 state Senate seat.

Deputy Attorney General Pat Kole said Ms. Clark filed her request with the attorney general's office late Wednesday, and paid the $1,700 fee required for the state to conduct the recount.

Kole said no exact date has been set, but the recount probably will be conducted the end of next week or the beginning of the week after.

Mrs. Gilbert's final margin of victory over Ms. Clark, 37, principal of Boise's Joplin Elementary School, was 5,403 to 5,354.

Utility may decide on appeal

POCATELLO (AP) — Utah Power & Light Co. could decide within the next two weeks whether to continue its appeal of an Idaho Public Utilities Commission ruling making Idaho Power Co. the sole supplier of electricity to the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, a company spokesman said.

The Idaho Supreme Court on Wednesday upheld the PUC decision.

"Obviously, we're disappointed over that," UP&L spokesman John Ward said Friday. He said company attorneys have not yet received the Supreme Court opinion and would examine it before deciding whether to ask for a rehearing.

Grant will assess drug course

BOISE (AP) — A federal grant will be used to assess a statewide drug and alcohol abuse education program for students from kindergarten through high school.

The $20,000 grant was awarded to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare by the U.S. Department of Transportation's Office of Highway Safety, said Jane S. Smith, a prevention education specialist for the substance abuse section of Health and Welfare.

One of the goals of the grant is to reduce alcohol- and drug-related fatalities and the incidence of driving under the influence.

Ms. Smith said teachers in 74 of Idaho's 116 school districts have received training and teaching materials through the "Here's Looking at You" program.

Test shows high radon levels

CASCADE (AP) — A preliminary test for radon in the home of a Valley County doctor indicated four times the national average level of the naturally occurring radioactive gas.

Results from a sample taken last month by the University of Pittsburgh's Radon Program at the rented home of Steve Ollie, Cascade, showed 6.5 picocuries of radon per liter of air. Most health experts agree that the "danger point" for radon is 4 picocuries.

"I don't like it. I don't like it one bit," Ollie said. "It's important to watch our area very carefully. We've had some lung cancer deaths here in nonsmokers and it's proven that radon is a very major factor in lung cancer."

Pocatello wants streets clear

POCATELLO (AP) — Pocatello officials are drafting a new ordinance that would require removal of all parked cars from the city's 202 miles of streets following a significant snowstorm.

The ordinance, which will be presented to the Pocatello City Council at its Dec. 4 meeting, would allow Mayor Dick Findlayson to issue a "snow proclamation" when snowfall amounts to more than four inches, City Attorney Ivan Legler said.

Once the declaration is made, vehicle owners will have 24 hours to move their cars from the streets or be ticketed by police. However, Legler said the proposed ordinance would not allow the city to tow violators away.

Oregon man outlines role in Iran deal

WEST LINN, Ore. (AP) — An Oregon businessman said Friday that he was asked late last year to tell U.S. officials that the government of Iran was interested in opening talks with the United States.

But Richard J. Brenneke would not confirm or deny a report in Friday's New York Times that government sources told him early this year that the Defense Department was planning to use profits from the sale of arms to Iran to help the rebels in Nicaragua.

"Beyond the fact that it's a statement attributed to me, I really have nothing to say," he said.

He denied he was involved in the actual transfer of arms.

"I don't want myself characterized unfairly," he said, "because I'm not some arms merchant."

RICHARD BRENNEKE.
Keeps silent on reports

Brenneke, 45, said he was approached by business associates and asked to provide information to the U.S. government about Iran's efforts to buy arms.

"Iran indicated a desire to talk to the United States on a very informal level initially," Brenneke said. "My point in bringing the information to the United States was the very sincere hope and belief that it would lead to the release of the people who are being held hostage in the Middle East."

However, Brenneke would not say why he was approached to serve as an intermediary between the Islamic nation and the U.S. government.

"I would have to say someone did select me to do that," he said.

Brenneke, who has a masters degree from the University of Toronto and taught for two years at St. John's University in New York, describes himself as a real estate property manager whose company provides computer programming assistance in foreign countries.

Brenneke's involvement came to light in a series of confidential memos he wrote to various U.S. officials regarding the Iranian's desire to open talks with the United States and to buy U.S. arms.

The memos, dated Nov. 30, 1985, to Feb. 25, 1986, were released to defense attorneys in an Iran arms sale case in New York. Brenneke said he didn't know how the defense attorneys learned of the memos. He said he was shocked and upset that the material had been made public.

"I never intended that anything I submitted to the government be made public," he said. "It was submitted to them in confidence and I expected it to remain that way."

When asked if he thought the information he supplied was accurate, Brenneke said he never had been told it was inaccurate and U.S. officials were interested enough to keep coming back to him to maintain communications with his sources.

One of Brenneke's memos said that John Poindexter, who resigned

Tuesday as President Reagan's national security adviser, approved the sale of 10,000 anti-tank missiles to Iran — five times the number of missiles the United States has said Iran received.

Other memos said Iran deposited $1 billion in an account in a New York bank to pay for weapons and offered to let the United States examine Soviet military equipment captured from Iraq.

Brenneke refused to say whether his information means administration officials have not been telling the truth about the scope of the process that led to the sale of arms to Iran.

"I don't have any comment with regard to any government official lying or telling the truth," he said.

Asked if he felt he was a major figure or a minor one in the Iran arms situation, Brenneke said, "I don't know because I don't know exactly what went on."

Asked if the recent publicity has compromised his position in the eyes of those who first approached him, Brenneke said, "I think so."

PUC advises notifying utility over heat bills

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission wants people to call their utility companies this winter if they do not have money to pay their heating bills.

"The key thing for customers who cannot pay the heating bill is to communicate — to take some kind of action," Beverly Barker, head of the PUC's Consumer Assistance Division, said. "The worst thing to do is to take no action at all."

Ms. Barker said PUC commissioners in 1980 imposed a moratorium on gas and electric companies shutting off service to some residents for non-payment of bills between Dec. 1 and March 1 of each year.

Customers affected by the rule include the elderly, sick and children. Ms. Barker said the moratorium was not designed to protect non-payers, but to protect people with real financial troubles.

She urged customers to act before they are warned by their utility. She said people should contact the company and say that "you have elderly, sick or children in the home, and that you will make every attempt to pay the bill — even if it is a little at a time."

"If not, the company can, and often will, disconnect if non-payment when the moratorium is over, and that can be devastating, too," Ms. Barker said.

Ms. Barker added that customers can call her office if they cannot work out a satisfactory arrangement with a utility. In cases where the customer has no prospect of being able to pay in the future, he or she often is referred to other agencies or programs that can help find resources to pay heating bills.

Tick knocks Iowan out of Congress but his health is back

SPRIT LAKE, Iowa (AP) — A tick's tiny bite knocked U.S. Rep. Randy Bedell out of Congress, inflicting him with a rare, wasting disease and the punctures of a physician's hypodermic needle made him well again.

Back in robust health, Bedell said he'll miss Congress and is returning to Washington for the winter. "I'd have never run again. I really loved the job," said the Iowa Democrat.

A fishing tackle manufacturer from Spirit Lake, Bedell was stricken with the debilitating malaise of Lyme disease after he was bitten by tick on a July 1985 fishing trip.

The disease was discovered by researchers only about 10 years ago, said Dr. Raymond Dattwyler of the Division of Allergy, Rheumatology and Lyme Disease at New York University School of Medicine at Stony Brook, N.Y.

Bedell, who represented the northwest Iowa 6th District, gradually weakened. He tried to run for reelection. He tried to pass the seat to his longtime aide Clayton Hodgson, but actor Fred Grandy won the seat in a tight race.

The congressman finally heard about Dattwyler's work with the disease, made an appointment and received a series of shots over two-week period during the August-congressional recess.

Within a week Bedell's symptoms were clear, and by election time he felt fully recovered.

Bedell says he's not certain what he'll do with the rest of his life, but said the choice is to feel sorry for himself or to rejoice in his returned health.

"That's a pretty easy decision as to what you are going to do," he said. "I've got a pretty great life. I've got nothing to feel sorry for myself for."

Gayle's winning entry released on records

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Warner Bros. Records has released the song "I Still Hear the Music of Nashville" by Crystal Gayle, the winning entry in a contest to pick the official tune for "Music City USA."

The song released Monday was written by Nashville composers Chris Waters and Kix Brooks and was picked from more than 90 entries in the contest.

Miss Gayle, a Nashvillean, premiered the song in June at the city's annual Summer Lights Festival.

Cosby, Perry, Earp get S. Carolina votes

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Entertainer Bill Cosby and football star William Perry, and Western lawman Wyatt Earp never ran for office in South Carolina. But their names were among 4,500 write-in votes cast in the Nov. 4 election.

"The Refrigerator" of Alken County and the Chicago Bears, got at least one vote for governor.

Cosby, America's favorite television dad, got one vote for probate judge and another for a state representative's seat. Earp, the long-dead marshal of Dodge City, Kan., got one vote for Hampton County sheriff.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson received two votes against U.S. Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C.

And someone named Rock Zambello got a write-in vote for lieutenant governor.

Singer a new regular on Grand Ole Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Randy Travis, who won the Horizon Award for career development this year from the Country Music Association, says he's going to be a regular performer on the Grand Ole Opry.

"They've asked me to join the Opry," said Travis, whose "Storms of Life" album already has sold more than 500,000 copies. "And I think that means more to me than anything else."

Travis said no date has been set for his debut.

The Opry, a live country music broadcast that began in 1925, has approximately 50 regular cast members and airs on radio and cable television's Nashville Network.

Hotel offers couple room at the '46 rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Sol Richman thought it would be romantic to bring his bride back to New York to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary in their honeymoon hotel, the elegant and sedate Commodore.

The Commodore, now the glitzy Grand Hyatt, thought so too and offered the couple a room at the 1946 rate, $7.51 a night. "How could you turn a thing like that down?" Richman asked.

He and his wife, Elizabeth, of Raleigh, N.C., arrived Friday for their sentimental stay. The Hyatt also provided champagne and roses when they checked in.

"The first thing I'm going to do is buy her some jewelry," said Richman, 72. "We're going to see some plays and then hit the Calcutta and proposed," said Richman, a retired psychologist who works as a consultant.

They were married Nov. 24, 1946, but are a little late commemorating during World War II while he was in the Air Force. "We fell in love and three years later I came back from children, Mrs. Richman said.

Big bills left behind by skiers

GLACIER, Wash. (AP) — There were fire extinguishers in the pine trees. Beer bottles in the Bible camp. Shredded sheets in the motel suites.

That was some party a group of stranded skiers had while a blocked road kept them on Mount Baker for three days this week, say residents of this mountain village who must clean up the mess.

Boulder Creek, swollen by rainfall and runoff, on Sunday dumped tons of gravel, rock, and trees onto Washington 542, the only road out of this northwest Washington ski resort, stranding about 1,200 skiers for three days.

The skiers found lodging where they could, sleeping in vehicles, a motel, the trehouse, private homes and two Christian camps.

Even though the resort offered free skiing Monday, some of the enforced campers got a touch of malaise before the state Department of Transportation opened the road Tuesday afternoon.

"There was just mainly a lot of partying, and quite a few lights and stuff like that," said Mark Hanson, relief manager at the Snowline Inn.

At 11 p.m. and the same Jean Norton's Mount Baker Conference Center, a 40-acre Christian camp, at least 300 American and Canadian skiers sought food and shelter.

"On Sunday night there was a lot of partying and drinking going on," Mrs. Norton said Thursday. "We told them that normally we don't allow smoking and drinking, but under the circumstances we would if they would keep it under control."

The Nortons spent their Thanksgiving holiday washing and drying blankets and bed linen, cleaning cabins and picking up litter that included beer bottles strewn throughout the camp.

The Nortons used up $1,000 in food, had two $2 fire extinguishers stolen and must recharge three others used in spray lights.

Norton estimated that costs, including electricity and propane, could reach $4,000, assuming skiers called collect when they used the camp telephone to notify their families.

Norton said they asked skiers for donations, and by Wednesday, the skiers had come up with $450. "I assume people (skiers) will send donations in the mail," he said.

He also said he hopes to recover some money from the Whatcom County Emergency Services Department. And he says he'd still open up the camp for another emergency.

"That is what the Lord would have us do," he said.

Hanson said people got so rowdy that the town's two taverns shut early. Stranded skiers reached by telephone Monday complained that beer was running low.

Hanson said a few skiers solved the problem by hiking a half-mile up the creek, crossing the raging floodwaters by shimmying over a log, hitchhiking to a store about eight miles away, then returning to be stranded with their beer.

"It could wind up having negative consequences, depending on the in- tensity of the scandal," said rebel spokesman Pedro Joaquin Chamorro. "It clearly is not going to help us."

Alfonso Robelo, a top leader of the rebels, called the scandal "a major setback."

"What a mess! It move next year to end all aid to the Contras."

He referred specifically to a covert supply program disclosed in October 1979 after when a C-123 loaded with arms for the Contras was shot down over southern Nicaragua, and an American crewman, Eugene Hasen- fufus, was captured. A Nicaraguan People's Tribunal later sentenced Hasenfufus to 30 years in prison.

Hasenfufus case effects slight

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Nicaraguan lawyer for a convicted American mercenary Eugene Hasenfufus said Friday that his client's case should be unaffected by the disclosure that Contra rebels benefited from secret U.S.-Iranian arms deals.

Enrique Sotelo Borgen said in an interview with The Associated Press, "I there were any complications in the Iranian affair, those im- plicated would be the Contras and not my client."

The Contras are fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Sotelo Borgen said he did not know when he will ask the Sandinista government for a pardon for Hasenfufus.

Allies' regret, Soviet anger follow SALT terms violation

By The Associated Press.

The leaders of France, West Ger- many and Belgium said Friday they regretted President Reagan's de- cision to violate the SALT II nuclear arms treaty by adding the latest modified B-52 bomber to the U.S. Soviet advantage in conventional fleet, one over the limit.

Soviet officials denounced the move, with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev calling it "a major mistake."

The U.S. Air Force upgraded the bomber, modified to carry nuclear- tipped cruise missiles, to operational status Friday, while the Navy failed to retire an aging Poseidon mis- sile-firing submarine. The SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union limits the number of such bombers to 130, unless other nuclear weapons are withdrawn from service.

French President Francois Mit- terand, speaking at a news con- ference in Paris with visiting Premier Bettino Craxi of Italy, said he thought "it would have been very wise and very useful" for the United States to continue to comply with the treaty.

Craxi did not address the SALT II issue, but told reporters he and French officials held similar views on the possible consequences of U.S.-Soviet negotiations on reduc- tions in nuclear stockpiles, perhaps down to zero.

"If the zero option is a good one," nevertheless it should offer guaran- tees to assure the overall balance of European security," Craxi said.

Officials of many Western Euro- pean countries have said removing all nuclear weapons would leave Western Europe vulnerable to a Soviet advantage in conventional forces.

In Bonn, West Germany, chief government spokesman Friedhelm West Germany did not welcome the development. He added that "the should adhere to the agreed upon upper limits on strategic weapons systems."

Ost did not directly criticize the United States, but he made clear that both superpowers should development. He added that "the should adhere to the agreed upon upper limits on strategic weapons systems."

But Jürgen Trittgen, arm- policy spokesman for the governing Christian Democrats, said: "People in Washington to begin see why you have to keep observing an agree- ment that the Soviet Union has not been complying with for a long time."

Peier Gluck, general secretary of West Germany's opposition Social Democratic Party, said: "Regain's action would 'make peace less secure.' He added: 'Now we see threatening a loss in (East-West) stability and a new burden on the NATO alliance.'"

Belgian Foreign Ministry spokesman Peter Maddens said "any non-compliance with the provisions of SALT II undertaken by whichever side is regretted." But he added "the Soviet Union was the first one to make several violations" of the accord.

Former President Jimmy Carter and the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev signed the SALT II treaty in 1979, but the U.S. Senate Congress never ratified it. The United States has repeatedly said the Soviets have already surpassed the ceiling.

some overlight, but quite definitely has come." Lomelko, a special am- bassador, spoke at a news con- ference in Vienna where he was to meet with Austrian officials.

"They are doing this not out of some oversight, but quite definitely with the desire for a further con- tinuation of the arms race," Lomelko said of the American ac- tion.

"They (Americans) speak of peace but go on producing more weapons. This is unfortunately not an exception, but a very dangerous tendency — for the whole world — of general U.S. policy," he added.

Asked about U.S. accusations that the Soviets have violated SALT II, Lomelko said: "For us this is a legitimate treaty. It is valid for us until it is violated."

In Moscow, a commentary carried by the official Tass news agency said America's reputation as a reliable partner in arms talks and treaties has fallen to "a very low point."

The U.S. action removes a barrier to the American military is prepared to continue to sacrifice the security interests of the nation to the arms merchants and their profits," military writer Vladimir Bogachev said.

Quake hits Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — A moderate ear- quake rocked Tokyo Saturday morning. It lasted about 30 seconds and caused buildings to sway, but there were no reports of injury or damage.

The earthquake occurred at 7:29 a.m. (3:29 p.m. Friday MST) and was centered in Ibaraki prefecture (state) north of Tokyo, where it measured 6.0 on the Richter scale, meteorological officials said.

Big Sky fratricide — Idaho vs. Reno

Vandals take memory of 17-13 regular-season loss into playoff opener

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

RENO, Nev. — There is absolutely no mystery to either University of Idaho football Coach Keith Gilbertson or to Nevada-Reno Coach Chris Ault about the teams they will be playing here this afternoon in the first round of the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

Still, neither of them knows quite what to expect.

"Variety is the spice of life," says Gilbertson, whose Vandals lost to UNR 17-13 here on Oct. 18. "We wanted a chance to line up against somebody else from some other part of country. This will be our second time against Reno and we play them all the time."

So more of the same?

"Both teams can score a lot of points, so I don't know what to expect," says the first-year Idaho head coach, whose team received an at-large invitation to the I-AA playoffs following a 21-14 victory over Boise State last weekend. "Turnovers played a big role in October and that will probably decide whether it's a high-scoring game or not."

How's that again?

"I don't know what to expect from them either," says Ault, whose Wolf Pack rallied down the Big Sky championship two weeks ago. "I know they have a solid defense and their offense is very explosive."

What is certain is that kickoff will be at 1 p.m. MST, with the winner to advance to the second round of the I-AA playoffs. KIVI-TV in Nampa, channel 6 on cable in the Magic Valley, will broadcast the game live.

There's nothing impendable about either Idaho's or UNR's offenses; they rank first and fourth in the conference and first and 11th in the country, respectively, in total offense and they both run and pass the ball effectively. What is less certain is the state of the two defenses, defenses which dominated the team's earlier meeting.

"In October, the running game was there because that's what they gave us," says Ault, whose Wolf Pack is ranked No. 1 in the country and seeded No. 1 in the playoffs. "To tell you the truth, I would like to pass the ball a bit more to balance our offense."

"Whether it's a high-scoring game or not doesn't matter," he continues. "Both teams are capable of taking advantage of each other's defense."

"No matter what they do offensively, they're tough," says Gilbertson, whose defense gave up 277 yards rushing but just two touchdowns to Reno in October. "I think they'll come out doing the same things they have been doing all year. We'll definitely have to control their running game. Their offense is so good that they can do several things. We just have to play good football."

Ault says the secret to controlling the 16th-ranked Idaho, which led 6-3 at halftime in October, was not allowing his team to get preoccupied with the threat posed by Vandal quarterback Scott Linehan. Consequently, the Pack took its fifth defensive back out of the game in the third quarter and played with four for the rest of the second half.

"It helped us," he says. "We'll nickel and dime a lot, and so will they — but we might be doing that a little too much."

"We're a tough second-half football team," Ault continues. "Our staff makes the adjustments and shows the opposition things they haven't seen."

Of course, the last thing the opposition saw that Saturday afternoon was a ferocious hit by free safety Bryan Kaskie that forced Idaho wide receiver Neer Morris to fumble on the UNR 18-yard line with 3 minutes and 25 seconds left in the game.

"We just have to never let up on them," says Gilbertson. "They're the kind of team that kills you when you're weak. We have to be just as ready for them in the fourth quarter," as in the first — maybe more so.

averaged 34 points and almost 400 yards a game.

"We're probably a better team now than we were then, particularly on offense," Gilbertson says. "Our defense has improved too, but they're the No. 1 team in the country."

The numbers the Vandals face are daunting. Reno is averaging 492 yards a game total offense and 33.4 points, also the best in I-AA. The Pack has outscored its opponents 433-170, leads in first downs 263-199, has converted 46 percent of its third downs and scores on 45 percent of its possessions. Senior quarterback Eric Beavers ranks first in the league and second in the country in passing efficiency and third in the Big Sky and seventh in the nation in total offense, while UNR has two of the top three ground gainers in the Big Sky in junior tailback Lucius Floyd and sophomore fullback Charver Fogger.

Still, it was missed opportunities

Colt owner ready to pay price

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Robert Irsay, owner of the 0-12 Indianapolis Colts, says he's not happy with Coach Rod Dowhower, and that he is prepared to put "out a huge sum of money" for Dan Marino of Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde.

Of Dowhower, Irsay said, "I'd be a liar if I said I was happy."

Dowhower is in the second year of a three-year contract, but has a two-year option.

Irsay made his comments in an interview published Friday with The Indianapolis News.

"We just don't keep the pressure on to get into the winning column," he said. "We go off like a bat out of hell and then stop. The reason for that will have to come from the coach."

"I see that he respects the players and keeps saying that they have their human rights. I agree with all of that, but I see people like Don Shula (of Miami) on the sidelines chewing out players. I know that's Shula's way of doing things, but I do know that he's won. But Rod's way is different."

"Rod has given me orders that he wants to run the team completely and I've been do it," said Irsay. "He also has violated his contract. I haven't talked with Dowhower in eight or nine weeks and he's supposed to call me every Friday and every Monday — but he never calls."

"We just played along to see what he's going to do. My attitude and my interest will be what the team is doing. I'm not going to let the bottom line do it. It's the Colts' record that puts the team in the driver's seat for the first-round pick in the NFL draft, and Irsay was asked if getting Testaverde would help attract any coach he wanted.

"Yes, I think they would go together," he said. "I've already had several calls for good coaches."

"I told them the same thing I've told everybody — that I'm not going to do anything until the end of the season. I want to look at everything."

Irsay said he had two goals for the franchise. "I want to have a Super Bowl contender and I want to bring the Super Bowl to the Hoosier Dome," he said. "I am committed to whatever is necessary — within reason, of course — to develop the Colts into a contender for the NFL title. That includes putting out a huge sum of money for Testaverde."

"Sure, I want to see my team in the Super Bowl and I'm 63 now and counting the years. I already have proposed the Hoosier Dome as a site for the Super Bowl — in 1990, '91 or '92."

Bears can clinch division title

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Bears, becoming accustomed to playing without first string quarterback Jim McMahon and winning with a first-string backup, can become the first NFL team to clinch a division title this season.

The Bears, four games ahead of the Minnesota Vikings in the NFC Central with four games remaining, can wrap up their third straight division crown Sunday with a victory at home against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The long NFL weekend began Thursday, with the Green Bay Packers outscoring the Detroit Lions 44-0, and the Seattle Seahawks upsetting the Dallas Cowboys 31-14.

The injury prone McMahon, who has led the Bears to victories in his last 23 consecutive starts, is out for the season with a shoulder injury last Friday. Backup quarterback Jim McMahon, who has been sidelined much of the season with the shoulder problem and was knocked out of commission for the year last Sunday on a late hit by the Packers' Charles Martin, the Bears offense has been struggling.

However, the defense, ranked No. 1 in the league, has been outstanding. It has allowed only 140 points, fewest in the NFL. It has allowed only three touchdowns in the last five games. It has allowed only four rushing touchdowns TDs this season.

Auburn-Alabama battle adds final touches to bowl picture

Alabama's travel plans are up in the air pending Saturday's traditional season finale against Auburn.

Fourteenth-ranked Auburn, 8-2 overall, 3-2 in the Southeastern Conference, has a Citrus Bowl date against Southern California locked up. Seventh-ranked Alabama (9-2, 4-1) also is going bowling but doesn't know where.

Alabama needs a victory to the LSU for the SEC championship. No. 5 LSU hosts Tulane Saturday night. If Alabama and LSU both win, the Sugar Bowl Committee will meet Sunday to pick the host team against Nebraska.

One committee member said he would try to delay the decision until the Associated Press releases its final regular-season poll Monday.

If LSU, which beat Alabama 14-10, is the Sugar Bowl's choice, the Crimson Tide will play Washington in the Sun Bowl.

Three other games involving a member of the Top Twenty find No. 12 Arizona vs. Stanford in Tokyo (11 p.m., EST, Saturday), Notre Dame at No. 17 Southern Cal. and Georgia Tech at No. 18 Georgia. In addition, Brigham Young visits San Diego State for a key Western Athletic Conference game and Tennessee can nail down a trip to the Liberty Bowl by winning at Vanderbilt.

Two top bowl pairings were decided Thursday night. Top-ranked Miami, minus quarterback Vinny Testaverde, defeated East Carolina 36-10 to complete an 8-0 regular season and finalize its national championship. Fiesta Bowl showdown with No. 2 Penn State.

And 10th-ranked Texas A&M won its second straight Southwest Conference crown and a berth in the Cotton Bowl against Ohio State by downing Texas 16-3.

What can Alabama and Auburn do for an encore in a series that has seen the last four games decided by a total of eight points?

How about a tie? There has only been one (6-6 in 1977) in this bitter intrastate rivalry (Alabama leads 39-19-1) but it could happen again if you listen to the rival coaches.

"I think that perhaps they (Auburn) are the best team they've ever played since we've been here (four years)," says Alabama's Ray Perkins. "I say perhaps. I know they're the most talented team we've faced since we've been here."

Auburn's Pat Dye calls the Crimson Tide a special event. "I think the finest Alabama team we have played against since we have been at Auburn (six years)." What makes the Alabama-Auburn rivalry extra special is that so many families in the state have ties to both schools.

It is a special event," says Perkins. "I don't just mean vs. teams; players vs. players, coaches vs. coaches. It's people vs. people — Alabama people vs. Auburn people."

"To Coach (Bear) Bryant, there was nothing bigger than the Auburn game. He said it was bigger than any championship game, bowl game, anything. I feel the same way that Coach Bryant did."

"When the game is over," says Dye, "there is 100 percent elation for the winner, but I don't know a word that describes how the loser feels." SEC championship with a 23-20 victory.

In 1984, favored Auburn dined a chip-shot field goal with less than four minutes left that would have put it in the Sugar Bowl. The Tigers were turned back on fourth-and-goal at the 1 and missed a 42-yard field goal attempt with nine seconds remaining.

In 1983, Bo Jackson rushed for 256 yards, including touchdown runs of 69 and 71 yards, as Auburn won the SEC championship with a 23-20 victory.

BOISE — One of Boise State's more haunting and humbling experiences of this year was a "look to AJJ." Lewis-Clark State in the Real Dairy Classic College Basketball Tournament — was put to its final rest Friday in the Pavilion.

Broncos, paying strict attention to business from the start, moved down to College of Idaho, 82-77, in a day's slaying of the annual tournament involving Idaho college teams.

outset, cheering the 6,120 in attendance.

Fast starts by Childs' teammates, twinning Eric Hayes and postman Jeff Kelley, helped carry the Broncos to a lead that grew to as much as 17 points in the 10 minutes.

The Broncos hit 15 of their 19 field goal attempts and for the first half finished a blistering 71 percent — 37 of 53.

of 12 shooting — including two of three three-point tries. Shelton, late of a junior college on the Navaho Indian Reservation, darted through the Broncos for 15 points and three steals.

Former College of Southern Idaho players, Lowell Cisowski and Kevin Hulsey, contributed without seeing much of the ball. Cisowski scored 12 points and Hulsey hit for eight to go with his three rebounds, even though he rarely got hold of the ball.

Childs, three of four from three-point range, finished with 25 points. He hit 11 of his 14 field goal attempts.

The athletic Hayes broke free for 18 points and Kelley, struck for 16 points and six rebounds.

ball in the first half. Holston's slaying shooting came to the fore to produce a game-high 20 points and 13 rebounds coasted to victory in their season opener.

Transfer forward George Davis worked hard inside for 17 points and six rebounds for ISU.

The Bengals snuffed LCS out with 53-48 in the first half goal shooting and a 41-34 command of the boards.

Guard Rodney Purvis, spectacular in the Bengals' 23-early explosion, added 12 points and three steals.

Reserves Glenis Snow, a post-14-33 guard, and forward Maurice Tanner scored 15 and 12, respectively, for LCS.

Celtics roll to 48th straight home win

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics built a whopping lead in the first half and then survived their "last" game in the Real Dairy Classic consecutive home court spurs, a 111-90 NBA romp over the San Antonio Spurs.

"After we get a lead, our minds seem to click off competitively," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "It's what we call the ups and downs."

"When we get a big lead, we have a tendency to let up," center Robert Parish said. "But when they closed to 10 or 12 points, we go back."

Pro basketball

Including six in a 12-3 run early in the period that ended with a Danley field goal and gave Detroit a 72-51 lead by 6:15 left. After a three-point field goal by Craig Hodges, Detroit ran off eight straight points, taking an 80-54 lead with 5:27 left in the third quarter.

The Pistons carried a 9-1 lead into the fourth period. Milwaukee got no closer than 17 points, 94-77, the rest of the game.

Sixers 116, Blazers 112

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley powered his way to 31 points and 12 rebounds Friday night as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 116-112.

Pacers 126, Nuggets 102

INDIANAPOLIS — Robbie Chuck Indiana scored seven of his 20 points in a decisive Indiana spurt to start the second half as the Pacers beat Denver 126-102 Friday, snapping their four-game losing streak and the Nuggets' four-game winning streak.

N.C. State, Iowa post Shootout victories

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — North Carolina State looked rugged and "lacked juice," but the Winnetka Wolves might play 45 minutes of good basketball. And that, says Coach Jim Valvano, was enough to defeat a stubborn Texas squad.

"We played 4 1/2 minutes of good basketball and that's what it took to win."

Hager and Ott pace bowling action

TWIN FALLS — Byron Hager had the high game and Fred Ott the top series in last week's city league bowling action.

In the same league, was the week's runner-up, six pins behind.

Many jobs in timber work gone

BOISE (AP) - Structural change in Idaho's wood products industry means many of the jobs lost during the recession of the early 1980s are gone for good...

The article, "Wood Products: An Idaho Industry in Transition," cites production and employment statistics showing that the state's lumber producers are nearing output levels achieved in the late 1970s, but that employment has recovered only modestly since the depths of the recession.

When lumber production reaches 1.9 million board feet, and plywood production hits 300 million square feet as it may in 1987, the industry will likely employ no more than 16,000 workers, at least 2,500 less than in 1979, Brunelle wrote.

1986 CHRISTMAS CAROL

SONGBOOK

Deck the Halls

TRADITIONAL

Old Welsh Air

1. { Deck the halls with boughs of hol-ly, Fa la la la la, la la-la la. }
 'Tis the sea-son to be jol-ly, Fa la la la la, la la-la la. }

2. { See the blaz-ing Yule be-fore us, Fa la la la la, la la la la. }
 Strike the harp and join the cho-rus, Fa la la la la, la la la la. }

Don we now our gay up-par-el, Fa la la la la, la la la la,
 Fol-low me in mer-ry meas-ure, Fa la la la la, la la la la,

Troll the an-cient Yule-tide car-ol, Fa la-la-la la, la la la la.
 While we sing of Yule-tide treas-ure, Fa la la la la, la la la la.

Delivering you and yours warm wishes for a joyous Holiday season.
