Soviets ready to scrap test moratorium

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said Thursday its 16-month-old unilateral moratorium on nuclear testing will end with the first American explosion of 1987 because continuing it would endanger national security.

This situation is continued, grave damage can be caused to the security of the U.S.S.R. and its allies. The Soviets said the decision against extension of the ban was dictated exclusively by security interests.

In a government statement distributed by the Tass news agency, the Soviet leadership deemed it "deeply regrettable that the current U.S. administration has never given a positive response to the Soviet Union's appeal for joining its peace initiative."

Acceptance of the Soviet nuclear testing moratorium is not in the security interests of the U.S. or our friends and allies. Nuclear weapons will remain for the foreseeable future a key element of our deterrent.

U.S. sources have said an underground nuclear test is planned in Nevada on Jan. 29. The Soviets first announced a moratorium starting Aug. 6, 1985, to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the U.S. atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Japan. It was extended three times to run through Jan. 1.

In such a situation, where we depend on nuclear weapons to deter aggression, nuclear testing is required to insure the safety, security, reliability, survivability and effectiveness of those nuclear weapons — in short the credibility of our deterrent.

At a time when the United States stubbornly refuses to fulfill its nuclear test program to develop new nuclear weapons and build them up, the Soviet Union cannot show unilateral restraint indefinitely. It

Washington also has cited what it considers difficulties in verifying compliance with a test ban. The Environmental Defense Council, a private U.S. environmental group, and the Soviet Academy of Sciences agreed earlier this year to set up monitoring facilities in Nevada and near the Soviet test site in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan. The groups intend to demonstrate that compliance can be verified.

Senators puzzled over funds' routing

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate investigators said Thursday that despite three weeks of secret testimony, they are unable to fully trace funds diverted from the secret sale of arms to Iran to Contra rebels battling the Nicaraguan government.

Brashers indicated that Reagan has not ruled out taking the unusual step of appearing before a congressional committee to testify about the controversy, if he receives an invitation. "It's still very hypothetical," Brashers said.

All the money could be sitting in a Swiss bank account as far as we know," he said. In a separate interview later, Durenberger said he also had come to the conclusion that President Reagan in "one way or another" had approved the arms sales to Iran.

Several members of Congress, including some Republicans, have urged that he step down. Regan made the comment after testifying in closed session before the House Intelligence Committee. The panel reportedly was interested in what Regan knew about an Israeli shipment of arms to Iran in August of 1985 — a delivery that former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane says the president approved of in advance.

Announces 7 appointments to administration Prison site situation nettles Andrus

By QUANE KENYON The Associated Press

BOISE — Governor-elect Cecil Andrus said Thursday he isn't happy with the way the state has tried to decide a site for a new $30 million, 500-bed maximum security state prison. Andrus also announced the appointment of seven people to his new administration. He appointed a new director and two division chiefs for the Department of Administration, the state agency that has been working on the prison site.

John Evans has handled the prison site selection, said he wasn't making major changes in the agency because of that. He said he was fulfilling a campaign pledge to go after the best possible people for the job. He called his new appointees "first-class people, who will bring experience, dedication and skill to the top levels of state government."

With many Idaho communities suffering serious economic problems, Evans said, it would be a good idea to give one of them a huge economic shot in the arm by locating the prison there. One Evans appointee, Richard Rush, was retained by Andrus director of the Department of Agriculture. The new appointments: Rich Donovan, 37, chief of the Department of Health and Welfare, succeeding Rose Bowman; Donovan is Health and Welfare regional services manager for the Boise area.

Voyager passes halfway mark on world flight

The Associated Press

MOJAVE, Calif. — Voyager passed the mid-point Thursday in a nonstop, unrefueled trip around the world with the aircraft's pilots bruised by rough weather as they reached Africa after setting at least two aviation records.

Christmas Eve. But the floppy-winged plane is built to be a glider when fuel is gone. Voyager passed the coast of East Africa at about 5 p.m. MST Thursday, passing over Mogadishu, Somalia, at 45 degrees east longitude, said spokesman Lee Herron.

despite a battering they took when Voyager was tossed around by storms over the Pacific and Indian oceans. Voyager Thursday unofficially eclipsed a 15,332-mile mark for unrefueled straight-line distance set by a U.S. Air Force B-52 in 1962. And late Wednesday it surpassed a 40-year-old distance record of 11,235 miles for straight-line flight by a piston-driven plane.

Concern about fuel consumption persisted and pilots Dick Rutan and Jeana Yeager began a series of tests to determine how much fuel was left on board. Spokesman Peter Riva said at the worst, Voyager might run out of gas from its 17 tanks 40 miles short of Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., on Meteorologist Len Snelman said sharply fluctuating African land temperatures probably mean more turbulence for Voyager, but Rutan and Ms. Yeager were said to be in high spirits

Y Voyager, which last July flew in circles for 11,600 miles without refueling, a closed-course record, surpassed that distance Thursday. If it finishes at Edwards, it will set another closed-course record.

Hasenfus mum on Nicaragua

The Associated Press

MIAMI — Gunrunner Eugene Hasenfus, a convicted 30-year jail term in Nicaragua and carrying the key to his cell, returned to the United States on Thursday, thanking God that "I was able to be free and with my family" for Christmas.

these special holidays that I was allowed, and thank God I was able to be free and be with my family, and I'm looking for a little private time with them," he said. He told reporters he couldn't "explain the gratitude in my heart at seeing all of you here and being able to step on American soil again. My great gratitude and appreciation I have to send to many people who have morally helped my family, my wife Sally, my in-laws and myself with cards and letters and phone calls."

Hansen to leave prison today

By JANE ROBINSON Times-News writer

PETERSBURG, Va. — Former congressman George Hansen is expected to walk out of the federal prison camp in Petersburg, Va., this morning after serving 6 months of a 5-to-15 month prison sentence. Hansen, the first member of Congress prosecuted under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act, was scheduled to leave Dec. 20, Saturday. But officials said that because it fell on a weekend, he would be released today between 8 and 9 a.m.

lawyer, Frank A.S. Campbell, said Thursday that Hansen is still requesting changes in the standard probation conditions. Campbell said Hansen will meet with his probation officer on Monday. Hansen is expected to return to his northern Virginia home this weekend and resume his political consulting business, called The New Continental Congress, in Washington, Campbell said.

commissary with a grocery bag packed full of stuff last week," Chapman said. "I saw where he said he was fasting, but I have no reason to believe that is a true statement." Chapman said that prisoners may either eat in the dining room, or buy food at the commissary, which is similar to a corner store. Hansen said he has lost 71 pounds since he entered prison in May. He began his fast on Dec. 1 over food he described as having flies in the salad and worms in the soup in early December, Hansen told reporters he was down to 235 pounds on his 6-foot-6-inch frame.

 with it. It had happened. It was water over the dam. We did not want to reopen it at that time. Durenberger said that at his Senate news conference by Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vermont, who said his own personal conclusion was that the Iranian-Contra connection was an "obvious violation" of law. Durenberger said—investigators are not likely to find out the remainder of the story until they can take testimony from the stricken CIA Director William Casey, from former National Security adviser John M. Poindexter and his former aide, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North. Both Poindexter and North have refused to testify before congressional committees, citing their Fifth Amendment rights. Durenberger offered this summation: "Money was paid for the arms in an amount excess of the cost of those arms... The difference between the two was used to repay investors who put up the money for the first place and a portion of that money went into an account which was denominated for the Nicaraguan resistance." Durenberger told reporters that he was not concerned by the discrepancy between McFarlane and Reagan over whether the president approved the initial plan in August 1985. "I don't think the August thing is that big a problem," he said. "With a little bit of reminding, the president would acknowledge he was informed." Durenberger said McFarlane's testimony was much more specific in detail than that of Reagan and other top officials and said, "When you have contradictions one tends to go with the person who is more specific." Leahy also said the Republican-led committee had concluded it was "premature" to consider granting limited immunity for North and Poindexter, as Reagan has recommended. Durenberger and Leahy both said they would turn their material over to the new committee.

 Portland offices and assignments with the presidential protection detail. Loren Nelson, 41, to head the Division of Administration, replacing Glenn Nichols. Nelson is deputy director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Services. Boyd Harris, 60, Caldwell, heading the Idaho Liquor Dispensary System, succeeding Mike McAllister. He spent 25 years with United First Federal, Caldwell, before retiring in 1979 as senior vice president, and heads Boyd Harris Insurance and Canyon Abstract and Title Co.

Anne Barker, 38, replaces Brian Chase as administrator of the Division of Public Works in the Department of Administration, and Lloyd Howe will become chief of the Division of General Services.

Ms. Barker, who has a civil engineering degree from Oregon State and a masters degree in planning from Cornell, headed the Division of Management Services in Health and Welfare, was a financial consultant in the Division of Financial Management and most recently has been manager of profit planning for Morrison Knudsen Co., Boise.

Howe served under Andrus and Evans from 1971 to 1979 as chief of what was known then as the Division of Economic and Community Affairs and now is the Department of Commerce.

For the last six years he has been area manager for Upland Industries Corp., real estate and development arm of Union Pacific Corp. When he thought about the process used so far to select a prison site, Andrus said, "Not very much. I am not looking forward to it being handled by this administration."

"I do not appreciate being handed that situation," he said, and apologized to Ms. Barker for getting her involved immediately in a highly political decision.

"I wish it would go away," said Andrus. But he said if the site selection is not settled by the time he is inaugurated, "it will be resolved."

Andrus said he favors no site, because he has not looked extensively into it. And the governor-elect said after the news conference he's not even certain a $60-bed maximum security prison is needed.

He said it might be possible to build a 200-bed module for double-celling. That might relieve the current overcrowding but not commit the state to the $11 million cost of a 500-bed prison, he said.

But the prison situation is not resolved by Jan. 5 and he expects it will not be, Andrus said he would consult with legislative leaders and then decide how to proceed.

About the current administration, he said, "It has been their responsibility to resolve it, and they have been unable to do so."

The Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council favors a Boise site for the prison and the Board of Corrections wanted the prison at Burley. Andrus said he would try to resolve the differences.

 he would hold other comments for a later date. "If you'll please understand and bear with me." He landed in Miami one day after Nicaragua's leftist government freed him in what it called a goodwill gesture to the United States. In Miami, the secretary general of the Contra umbrella group, the United Nicaraguan Opposition, Thursday questioned the motives of the Sandinista government in freeing Hasenfus.

"I do not think that it was in the spirit of the Nicaraguan tradition that this was done," said Leonardo Somarriba. "We think it is an effort to manipulate United States public opinion, and especially the U.S. Congress."

Hasenfus in Guatemala that Nicaragua Interior Minister Tomas Borge who oversees the national penal system, had given him the key to his cell at Tiptapa prison, 12 miles east of Managua.

He said he believed the Sandinistas released him as a Christmas gesture. He declined to give his view of the Nicaraguan government, saying, "This will be talked about in time."

He said he was told shortly before noon Wednesday that he was going to be freed.

"Grab your things, you are leaving," he quoted the prison commander as telling him.

Hasenfus was captured Oct. 6, the day after his plane was shot down while ferrying weapons and supplies to the U.S.-backed Contra rebels in Nicaragua. He had been turned over in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, on Wednesday to Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., who discussed the Hasenfus case with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega the previous day.

On Wednesday night, Hasenfus telephoned a relative, saying, he hoped to visit his northern Wisconsin home by Friday, his mother-in-law, Ellen Weber, said.

She said he wept as he talked to his children and told them, "It feels good to be free." He talked to each of his three children, who have stayed with Mrs. Weber and her husband Michael at their home in Peshigo, Wis., while Mrs. Hasenfus was in Nicaragua. "I really didn't think he'd be there for 30 years," said Sandle Coppens, Hasenfus' sister. "Even a year would have been very devastating—to be away from his family and friends."

"We'd always hoped he'd be home for Christmas. The poor man is just going to be swamped with people wanting to hang on to him," she said.

Hasenfus was the only survivor when the Sandinistas shot down his plane over southern Nicaragua. He said he was working "as a cargo handler on the flight. Two other Americans and a Nicaraguan died in the crash."

Sakharov may end exile today

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov will soon be released from internal exile in the closed city of Gorky and allowed to move back to Moscow, according to broadcast reports Thursday.

Sources inside and outside the Reagan administration said the 65-year-old physicist and Nobel laureate was expected to be permitted to return to Moscow, NBC news reported. The report said there was no indication when this would happen or what prompted the Soviet decision.

A CBS News report said an announcement of Sakharov's release from internal exile to Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow, was expected today.

A White House spokesman, Ben Jarrett, said he would be none until Sakharov was released.

Sakharov, a nuclear physicist in the Soviet Union, won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for his work in behalf of human rights. He was arrested after criticizing the 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, and was exiled in January, 1980.

Consular official visits Hall

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government allowed a U.S. consular official to meet for the first time Thursday with the brother of an American congressman accused of spying on the leftist Sandinista government.

Luis Moreno, in charge of U.S. citizens' affairs at the consulate in Managua, gave Hall a list of lawyers during the 10-minute visit and asked him to choose one, said Embassy press attache Al Luan.

Hall has not been charged, but President Daniel Ortega said earlier he would be tried by the same revolutionary tribunal that sentenced American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus to 30 years in prison for flying arms to the U.S.-backed Contra rebels. Ortega pardoned Hasenfus on Wednesday and the left-for home.

Hall is the brother of U.S. Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio. Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., who met with Hall on Wednesday, said he is getting adequate food, attention and exercise.

Today's weather

December's fogs are sticking close

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

Today, partly cloudy. Local morning fog or low clouds. High in the 30s.

Tonight and Saturday, partly cloudy with local areas of night and morning fog. A few snow flurries possible Saturday. Low in the low to mid-teens. Highs in the 30s.

Camas Prairie, Halley and Lower Wood River Valley:

Today and tonight, furies ending in the morning, becoming partly cloudy. Local areas of valley fog or low clouds. Mainly nights and mornings. Highs in the mid to upper 30s. Lows 5 to 15.

Saturday, variable clouds with a slight chance of light snow. Highs in the 30s.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Utah: Areas of dense fog in the northwestern valleys otherwise variable mid and high clouds through Saturday. Isolated mountain showers possible. Lows at night mid-teens to low 20s. Highs both days in the 30s.

Nevada: A few showers today. Snow level near 5,000 feet. Partial clearing from the west tonight. Partly cloudy and mostly sunny west Saturday. Highs mid-30s. Lows mostly teens to mid-20s.

Synopsis:

The National Weather Service says a storming Pacific storm system along the northwest coast will make its way eastward, joined by another weak system moving across the Gem State today and Saturday.

These two systems will bring light snow showers to much of Idaho and will cause the valley inversions. On the whole, the weather pattern over the state will show little change into next week, with a strong high pressure system continuing to be the dominant feature.

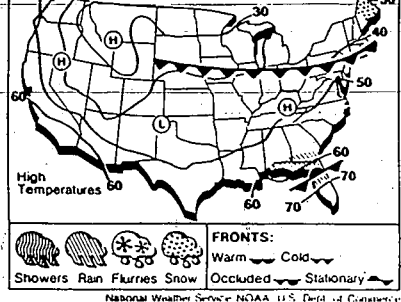

The highest temperature in the state Thursday was 45 degrees at Malia, while the low in 19 degrees below zero was reported at Stanley.

Water will begin to freeze at the 0.2 p.m. MST Sunday. At that time, the sun will reach the apparent southernmost point in the sky, and will soon begin moving northward.

Extended forecast for Southern Idaho: Dry Sunday. Widely scattered snow showers Monday. Dry again Tuesday. Highs 30s. Lows teens to mid-20s.

Elsewhere in the nation, Thursday's high temperature was 84 degrees in prison, but he refused, and will wear the same clothes he wore when he entered prison, he said.

Chapman also said he was not aware of any going-away parties planned by fellow inmates. "If there are, they didn't invite me," he said.

In an interview before Thanksgiving with The Times-News, Connie Hansen said her husband was well liked by the other prisoners, and that he was an inspiration to family members.

Hansen, who served seven terms in Congress from Idaho's 2nd Congressional District, was found guilty of failing to report $334,000 in income, including some from Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt, plus profits from the sale of silver contracts and other transactions.

After the U.S. Parole Commission granted Hansen an early parole this month, the former congressman said he might not accept it if he had to report his income, standard parole conditions.

Hansen's lawyer said Thursday that the restrictions "are unnecessary in Hansen's case."

"They were developed for the average offender, who requires a great degree of supervision," Campbell said. "Given Hansen's history of exemplary citizenship, I think they're unnecessary."

During his parole hearing, Hansen maintained his innocence of criminal wrongdoing, Campbell said.

Lottery challenge looms in Gem courts

BOISE (AP) — A taxpayer group here says it's going to court soon in an effort to keep the state lottery from organizing a state lottery.

Russell Westerberg, president of Associated Taxpayers of Idaho, told the Idaho Press Club on Thursday that as early as next week, his organization will seek a court order blocking a lottery.

Westerberg said his tax-lobby association does not have a stand on the lottery itself, but will seek a clear court ruling that it is improper to amend the state Constitution by initiative.

"We stand untidely against amending the Constitution by initiative," he said.

Idaho's Constitution says the Legislature may not enact a state lottery. The Legislature has been asked several times to approve an amendment to remove that ban. But it never has mustered the two-thirds majority required in each chamber to put the question on the ballot.

Last spring, an initiative produced enough signatures in an petition drive to put the issue before voters. They approved it, 226,816-151,132, in the general election.

Associated Taxpayers of Idaho and other groups tried to get the Idaho Supreme Court to remove it from the ballot. But the court declined.

Westerberg said three of the five Supreme Court justices stated at the time that they questioned whether the procedure used was constitutional. He said he expects they will rule the same way again.

The initiative calls for the governor to appoint five persons to a commission to organize and run a lottery. Gov. John Evans, who leaves office Jan. 5, has called for applications but will leave the appointments up to governor-elect Cecil Andrus.

Andrus, in announcing a series of appointments on Thursday, said he has talked with John Rooney, outgoing director of law enforcement, about being lottery administrator, but won't make an announcement until later.

The initiative law says the director will be appointed by the governor after consultation with members of the lottery commission.

If legal action is filed against the lottery before the Legislature convenes, Westerberg said he hopes that will stir the Legislature into action.

"We hope they will give the people a legal opportunity to vote on a legal lottery," he said. "We hope the Legislature will recognize the validity of our concern and decide if the people should have the opportunity to vote on that question."

The lottery has been touted as a means of pumping new revenue into the state budget.

Tests may determine death cause

POCATELLO (AP) — It may take two weeks for lab tests to help determine the cause of death of an Idaho State University instructor found dead at his residence.

Bannock County Coroner Jim Allen, said he said Corvelli was in a foul play. He said Corvelli was in a car accident some years ago Wednesday by a neighbor, said Capt. Lynn Harris, Pocatello Police damage and internal injuries which may be related to the death.

Anti-tax attitude strong, lobbyist says

BOISE (AP) — Even though some of the faces and the mood of the Idaho Legislature has changed, it still won't be easy to get new taxes approved, says a tax lobbyist.

"Even though there is a new governor and new people in the Legislature, you will find it just as hard to get more taxes out of people," said Russell Westerberg, president of Associated Taxpayers of Idaho. He was on a panel appearing Thursday before the Idaho Press Club here.

Weatherby said the Association of Idaho Cities, which has been trying for years to get more local control for cities and counties, has more reason for optimism this year.

"There is some indication there will be more support for local control," said Weatherby. He called for a partnership between the state and cities in solving the problems of municipal government.

Charles Lentz, new executive director of the Idaho Education Association, said last year, "there wasn't a smile in our building" preparing for the start of the Legislature. There was little optimism the IEA or education would fare well. Preparing for the session was drudgery, he said.

"We have reason to be very hopeful for the 1987 session," he said. Most candidates expressed support for education. More candidates also realize there should be a strong link between education and business, Lentz said. An investment in education helps business, he said.

It will take an extra $48,523,500 for education, "just to keep it afloat" next year, he said. That includes 3 percent more, or $13.3 million, to pay for current operations. IEA also wants 2 percent more, $7.7 million, for program improvements. It's calling for $17 million for salary improvements and $4 million for career ladder programs.

Westerberg and Weatherby agreed on a prediction the session could be one in 45 days. Lentz, going into his first session as IEA director, said it probably would run until the end of March.

The 1987 Legislature convenes Jan. 12.

Weatherby said local government will push the Legislature to adopt the new federal tax code. Cities want to make the 5 percent sales tax rate permanent. A coalition also is working to get the Legislature to change liability laws, he said.

Westerberg said the state could reap $25 million to $31 million in new revenue if it adopts the federal income tax laws without making corresponding changes in Idaho income tax rates.

If it does not make those changes, he said, state adoption of the federal tax changes "will be the largest income tax increase in state history."

Common Cause says time at hand to push for campaign ethics laws

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — With campaign costs getting out of control, and an increasing trend toward strident and negative campaigning, now may be the time to push for campaign ethics laws, says Common Cause.

With more moderates in the 1987 Legislature, chances appear improved for some limit on spending, or a panel on campaign ethics, says Jim Hall, Boise, president of the Idaho chapter of Common Cause.

He said James Risch, Senate president, and Lou Rocco, Boise Democrat, spent nearly $180,000 between them this year running for a state Senate job that pays about $4,200 per year.

"The hand that feeds the legislators should not be special interests," said Hall. He presented a Common Cause study here Wednesday on the cost of legislative races.

"It's time to get the food out of the hands of special interests," he said. Immediate solutions may be to place financial restrictions on political action committees, close loopholes in the disclosure law and change the primary election from May to August.

He also called for an independent ethics commission to review complaints of negative campaigning.

"The history of campaign finance reform in America, unfortunately, is one of reaction," Hall said. "Reform usually follows some form of scandal."

Hall also suggested pressuring the Legislature to view the current system of financing legislative and statewide political campaigns.

"People have to be outraged enough to talk to legislators about it," he said.

The concept of an ethics commission to review negative campaigning is fairly new. Hall said one state has two members appointed by Democrats, two appointed by Republicans and the fifth member named by the supreme court.

If campaign reform is successful, it will be necessary to have support from the Legislature. With Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder, going in as chairman of the Senate State Affairs and Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise, chairing House State Affairs, Hall said he was optimistic.

"We're positive about the new makeup," he said. "It's a different atmosphere than what we've seen in the last five years."

EPA releases Bunker Hill site report

BOISE (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency released a study of the Superfund cleanup site at the Bunker Hill mine and smelter complex on Thursday, despite Bunker Limited Partnership's continued insistence that confidential information, mostly on waste disposal, should not be made public.

The report, dated Aug. 4, identifies 36,500 tons of waste remaining at the site, including such contaminants as lead, beryllium, cadmium, mercury, arsenic, asbestos and PCBs.

"Most of the area within the project area boundaries must be regarded as significantly contaminated," the report said. "Extremely high concentrations of lead and cadmium are indicated around the smelter complex. Very high concentrations extend over the city of Smelterville with a secondary high concentration area centered over the Smelterville Flats."

The "interim site characterization report" is a preliminary step in the cleanup process at the Silver Valley complex, which was included in the Superfund program after studies beginning in the 1970s showed elevated levels of lead in the blood of area children.

EPA officials said in August that Bunker Limited Partnership was stalling the agency's release of the report, which was culled from 40,000 pages of corporate documents obtained under a search warrant issued by a federal judge in November 1985.

In July, Bunker claimed confidentiality on all 40,000 pages. Superfund cleanup manager Wayne Grotheer said Thursday that the company primarily objected to internal memos on waste disposal being made public as part of the report.

The EPA report said lead and cadmium are the primary contaminants of concern in the area, mainly because they have been identified in soil and air samples over a long period. Mercury and polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCBs, also are listed as important sources of pollution.

Twin Falls offers a model for nation

When President Reagan made the jet-age version of the whistle stop in Twin Falls on his last-ditch campaign for Republican candidates, the police officers of 12 jurisdictions joined forces to assure that the visit would go smoothly.

When he went on to Spokane, the city council there submitted a bill for $30,584.67 for the additional police work the event required.

The Twin Falls approach is better. True, the president was on a purely partisan political mission. And when he is on a political outing, the costs are expected to be borne by political funds, not tax money.

But presidents should be encouraged to break out of the White House and move about the country more often, even if it takes an election threat from the opposition to arouse them to go calling.

An extra burden does fall on a community when the president visits, but coping with it ought not become as complex as Spokane would make it.

Be it utterly political or purely civic, a presidential appearance qualifies as a special event, a category for which Portland now has a budget.

Presidents thus find themselves in the company of such activities as peace marches, Rose Festival parades, marathon races and rock concerts in taxing the capacity of municipal services. So far this city has handled them without special billing.

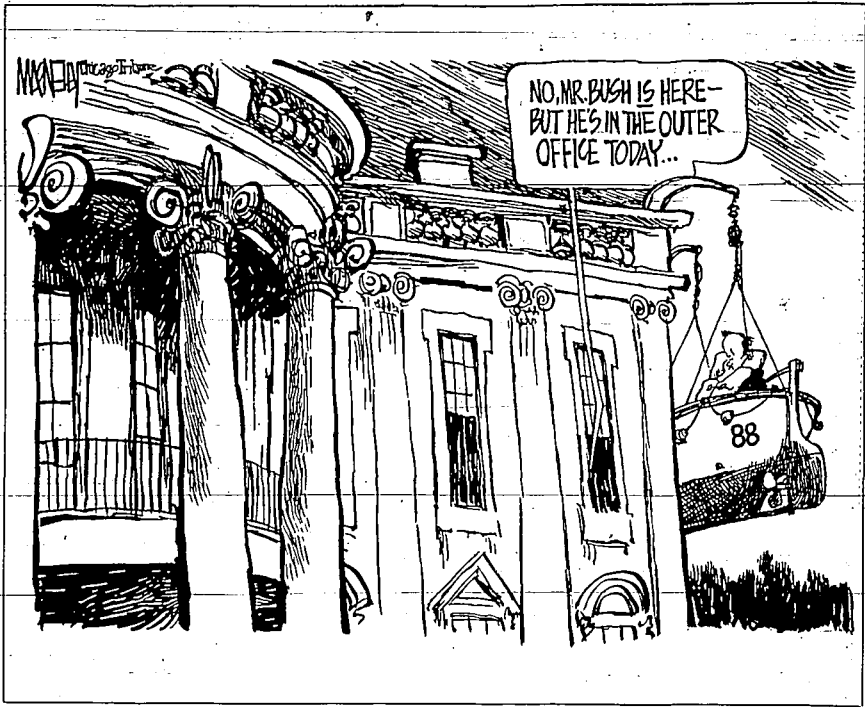

Certain activities that make a community attractive or exciting do generate costs. Among them would be political rallies, a fundamental part of the American fabric. Recalling the days when Oregon's primary was so prominent that it brought all presidential candidates to the state, Portland indeed might like to be saddled with the problem of how to handle more of them.

Old hands in city hall recall that the event that gave Portland its greatest overload had nothing to do with presidential visits. It was the time Elvis Presley came to town. But the city did its duty without sending him a bill.

Of course Spokane had additional costs when Reagan stopped to campaign, but it also drew the benefits of being picked for the honor. Its very billing for police service is itself suspect of being a political reaction to a political act. At least one commissioner voted to submit the bill to protest the loss of revenue sharing under Reagan's policies.

Twin Falls offers the better model for the nation. As a police official said, "We got the job done and then went on about our business."

'One last drink' too often is simply that

The focus of most drunk-driving campaigns is a concern for the myriad unpleasant events that can befall an individual who gets behind the wheel while intoxicated.

Yet the thought of going to jail, high insurance rates, major injury or even death does not seem to have much of an effect against the six-week holiday party season. From Thanksgiving to New Year's Day, having a good time with family and friends is the tradition — parties with co-workers, visits with far-flung relatives, fancy dinners with all the trimmings, including fine wine and special drinks.

So this year I'd like to change the authoritative pitch about avoiding "one more for the road" with a twist appropriate to the season: Think about how family and friends and co-workers will have to deal with your "one too many."

If you are one of the fortunate drunk drivers who is apprehended before you get into an accident, someone you care about, and who cares for you, will journey down to the local station house to bail you out. They'll have to come up with a substantial piece of cash, anywhere up to $1,000, and that can be inconvenient; at holiday time it may be close to impossible.

If it is their first time at a station desk posting bail, the atmosphere is bound to be depressing. Still, you should count yourself among the fortunate: While you have humiliated yourself and your family, you and yours will still be around to enjoy the holiday.

Of course, just bailing out of jail is not the end of the matter: It is the beginning. You and your family still have a court trial to look forward to, and possibly some time in jail. Try to think of the most tactful and easiest way to tell the people you care about that you will be spending some time "away."

How would you phrase the message that your financial future is a shambles and that you might have to move to a "smaller place"? Picture telling your employer that you might need a leave of absence for "personal reasons." Test your creativity by coming up with a story for your kids to tell their friends.

Attempt to construct some logical, rational excuse to explain your part in the injury or death of some innocent person. This last one can be real tough, because you will know that the people really close to you just don't believe you.

If you are among those whose "one last drink" literally will be that, your loved ones will experience a unique and unpleasant holiday visitation.

In Los Angeles, if you are the victim of a fatal traffic accident, the officers assigned to investigate your death will also have the task of notifying your next of kin.

Imagine the scene: your husband or wife, maybe your kids and your parents, all gathered in your home waiting for you, wondering where you are and probably annoyed that you've delayed the festivities.

The doorbell rings, and there stand two uniformed officers. "Are you Mrs. Mr. (fill in your last name)?" From this point on the dialogue is standard: "There has been an accident," then the name, the place and "I'm sorry; is there a neighbor or friend that we can call for you?" Perhaps a brief account of what happened or some information on how to obtain the body will be offered.

Now your family will face the numbing prospect of seeing to it that you are picked up from the coroner's office. In Los Angeles that procedure is much more sterile than in many places. They won't have to see you in the actual morgue, laid out in a steel drawer with a tag affixed to your toe; your loved ones will merely have to view your face on a video screen from an office. Then they can go home and try to cope with the fact that it will haunt them all their days: You died for the sake of a drink.

If for only a moment you can visualize your family, your friends, your co-workers and your world without you, then perhaps the attraction of that "holiday cheer" might diminish. Then you will be ready to contribute toward what may be the most meaningful gift that we all can give to one another: the promise of a non-impaired driver behind every wheel for a safe holiday season.

Don Irvine is a lieutenant in the Los Angeles Police Department.

More than a suitor's desires can eventually go up in smoke

BOSTON — Last spring, at a televised seminar, the bearded and benign-looking U.S. Surgeon General, C. Everett Koop, was asked to imagine that his daughter had just brought home the man in her life. Let's call him Jerry Ash.

Jerry Ash tells Papa Koop that the hopes to marry this daughter. Having happily delivered that sentence, the poor chap then nervously reaches for a cigarette. What does Papa Koop say next?

Well, the Surgeon General and potential father-in-law spoke right up and he didn't mince his words. Instead he Cuisinarted poor Jerry Ash.

Jerry, he said, you are a man of good taste, but for the butts. "You know what my parents used to call them? Jerry? Coffin nails. And they were right."

He went on to tell this hypothetical and sweaty suitor that his life, his whole life, is going to be changed if he keeps on smoking that stuff. Not only does it produce disease and disability but eventually death.

Ellen Goodman

At the time, seated around the same seminar table and caught up in the fictional family scene, I blanched a bit for Jerry. There goes one romance up in smoke. As for Dr. Koop, he didn't win points for tact.

My reaction was mild compared to that of the man from the tobacco lobby. The smoking people have been trying to convince the American public to resolve the conflict between smokers and nonsmokers with "a daring solution; greater courage." But here was the Surgeon General advancing on a potential smoking son-in-law like a mortal enemy.

Jerry Ash, however, was just a beginning. Dr. Koop has now advanced on the entire smoking population with a gull trip entitled: "The Health Consequences of Involuntary Smoking." The 18th in a series of direct reports on the effects of tobacco focuses entirely on ETS, environmental tobacco smoke, or passive smoking. Jerry is not just risking his own health by lighting up, says the report. He's a menace to others.

Passive smoking may not be as lethal as active. Second-hand smoke does come with a discount in risk. But this thorough and convincing report documents the real danger to those who share the same air.

To put it in Koop's blunt father-in-law voice: "Involuntary smoking is a cause of disease, including lung cancer, in healthy nonsmokers."

At home, the children of parents who smoke show the effects in their respiratory system. Smokers are making their own kids sick.

At work, not even the simple separation of smokers eliminates all the effects of ETS if they share the same air space. Smokers are making their co-workers sick.

This study arrives, well-timed, as smokers gradually are being forced to relinquish their claim to air rights. They have been driven to the back of the plane and the corner of the restaurant. In 40 states and 400 municipalities, the right to puff in public is restricted. In ten states, there are laws about smoking in the workplace. Even the military, whose motto was "smoke if you got 'em," is trying to restrict tobacco and the federal government is setting up nonsmoking work areas.

It's been hard for smokers to defend addictive and unhealthy behavior. It's much harder to defend addictive and unhealthy behavior that's also harmful to others.

The tobacco people, who worry more about social pressure than about lung cancer, emphysema or heart disease, have tried to portray the active nonsmoker as both rigid and rude.

They insist rightly on the need for courtesy, on the importance of avoiding a mid-air collision at work or home.

Indeed, the Tobacco Institute, which disputes this report (it also disputes that smoking causes lung cancer), would have us believe that smokers and nonsmokers can share space like the cowmen and the farmers. Maybe so, but only on the open range and when the wind is in the right direction.

In everyday life, smoke travels. Giving smokers equal rights to the air is like giving toxic-waste polluters equal rights to the water.

This is not a matter of etiquette but of health. As Dr. Koop writes, "The choice to smoke cannot interfere with the nonsmokers' right to breathe air free of tobacco smoke."

Is the Surgeon General persecuting smokers? Nah. Some of his best friends may even be smokers. He just doesn't want your daughter to marry one.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Letters/ Lack of information didn't defeat hospital restructuring proposal

Citizens resent past stings

The members of the Hospital Planning Board shouldn't take so personally the nature of Twin Falls County residents to pass the proposed restructuring of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. It wasn't a lack of information that was responsible. Actually, I thought the information was very well distributed.

I read a pamphlet that was circulated and watched the televised program in which Doug Maughn interviewed those proponents of the plan. I felt Mr. Maughn's questions were well thought out and certainly Judy Felton answered them well. She impresses me as a very well-informed and articulate person.

I read every article in the paper and felt they covered everything very well, too. No, the problem wasn't that we weren't given enough information. The problem is that residents of Magic Valley have too often been the victims of a sting.

And we resent it and are quite naturally suspicious of everyone who serves on a board and is proposing any change.

I thought the editorial in last Friday's paper covered it pretty well. As a group we aren't stingy. But we are basically too practical to be led down the primrose path repeatedly.

With the feeling of resentment running high, any bond issues should be delayed. Leave us alone for a while. Let us cool down before you try to pick our pockets again.

Burley needs more jobs

We in Burley were really let down over the change in prison site. We had all looked up to better times for Burley.

Jobs are few and empty houses and stores and all — so sad, and this looked so good for us. I pray the Legislature look in to it and gives us the chance to get it, as Burley is slowly becoming a ghost town with even the potato plants' down so much, we truly need more jobs for this city to survive. Thank you prayers are answered.

Hold hearings on SIS plan

I appreciate the article you ran in today's paper by Liz Paul regarding the proposed SIS project in Idaho Falls. I have been reading what little there is available on the SIS project and felt that her article was the most collectively informative.

In that vein, I would appreciate it if you would kindly print the following open letter to Carl Gertz, the SIS project manager. I am hoping that it will inspire others to write to Mr. Gertz requesting hearings in our area.

Dear Mr. Gertz: I am developing a growing concern regarding the proposed SIS project in Idaho Falls. I do not feel enough information has been made readily available so that the people of Idaho may accurately and fairly assess whether this is the wisest and best use of land in Idaho or, in a broader context, the wisest and best use of our tax dollars.

By way of this letter, I am requesting that you send me the historical facts regarding the impact of the SIS project upon our land, environment, safety, and economy in the long term.

I am not interested in what the DOE "projects" and "feels" or "thinks" regarding the use of spent nuclear fuel in producing plutonium. I am requesting that you send me information regarding a like or similar project which has been created, and the effect it has had upon the local economy, as well as its effect upon the safety of the air, water, land and people.

I am quite interested in the "human interest" stories which can be found in Connecticut. While the SIS project may not appear to be related to the Hanford project in Connecticut, I believe it may be related in a subtle, but important way. What has been the impact of the Hanford project upon all life in that area?

Can you give me the name of any nuclear project of this kind which has had a positive, long-term effect upon all forms of life in its surrounding area? I would be interested in seeing any information.

Lastly, I am requesting hearings in our county so that we may meet you, face-to-face, with our questions. Please let us know when these hearings will be held. This is an issue which will have a lasting effect upon every citizen in Idaho. We should be allowed to have as many facts as possible and, once the facts have been evaluated, we should, as residents, have some input regarding whether we want the SIS project here or not.

Native son sets up $3 million trust fund

Early Christmas for Missouri town

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP) — This southwestern Missouri town is ready for Christmas, with a fat evergreen strung with popcorn in the courthouse and $3 million in the bank from a man who left many years ago but never forgot.

David Delarue, who grew up in Bolivar and made his fortune in San Francisco, set up a trust fund earlier this month to support various programs in Bolivar and Polk County.

"It was the best Christmas present that a city and county could receive," said Mayor Joe L. Lemmon.

"It gives me real pleasure to be in a position to do this for an area where my basic foundation and life's values and character were nurtured," Delarue, 61, wrote in a letter published in Bolivar's weekly newspaper.

The trust is expected to generate about $240,000 a year, until the year 2100, when the principal will be given to the city.

Polk County is to distribute its 40 percent share among fire and rescue services and the local University of Missouri extension service. The city's 20 percent will be used for municipal services, the hospital, training for the handicapped, and other programs. Forty percent goes to Polk County schools.

Elizabeth Simmons, spokeswoman for a workshop for the handicapped, thanked Delarue with a letter "and a real nice Christmas card."

"We were real happy about it, real excited," she said.

"It's not going to help us so much, but generations to come," said 61-year-old Virginia Johnson, who has known Delarue since second grade.

"Now how many people would have thought that out?"

For the past 15 years, Delarue has been a partner in a firm that analyzes new companies and sells the information to stock brokers. He plans to retire at the end of the year.

Friends in his hometown, where his family owned a department store, describe him as friendly and unassuming, with a strong sense of community. He returns occasionally for high school class reunions, though he left Bolivar in his senior year to attend a military academy in Virginia.

"His mother and father were a loving couple. They just implanted in him to care, and not to forget," said Mrs. Johnson.

"I have never forgotten my friends," Delarue said in a telephone interview from San Francisco.

"I've had money to do things with for quite a while. I wanted to benefit the community as a whole."

Bolivar, population 6,000, boasts that it is the largest town in the United States named after a Latin American revolutionary. Simon Bolivar, who helped force the Spanish from Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Venezuela.

It shares few of the economic ills of other small rural towns. The Polk County Courthouse, four grey stone floors topped by an imposing clock tower, is surrounded by bustling businesses in the center square.

The area lost 250 jobs last year when a garment factory closed. Since then, officials have lobbied to bring such small businesses as a software firm and a flooring manufacturer, and Delarue contributed $118,000 a few months ago for the industrial development campaign.

Officials speak proudly of their recovering and diversified economy, and Lemmon noted that the publicity surrounding Delarue's gift has helped the industrial development effort.

"I think when we get through with this, they'll all be able to pronounce Bolivar," he said — it rhymes with Oliver. "They ask where it is, and I tell them, 'The heart of the Ozarks, the land of milk and honey.'"

Delarue said he left because he could make best use of a degree in economics in a large city.

"People in Bolivar were good to my father and my grandfather," he said. "Let's just say I'm returning some of the money I took away — with interest."

Flowing lava may force evacuations

KALAPANA, Hawaii (AP) — A helicopter pilot reported that lava molten lava flow marched toward a coastal road here Thursday, and authorities responded by putting back roadblocks and urging about 100 people to prepare to evacuate a coastal area.

Geologists said the report was not yet confirmed by observatory or civil defense personnel.

Agency wants age limit on ATV riders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal safety agency urged a voluntary age-limit on riders of all-terrain vehicles Thursday, seeking to stem the rising toll of deaths and injuries involving the popular off-road machines.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission also called on manufacturers of the machines to halt marketing of the smaller versions, designed for youngsters under age 12.

The three- and four-wheel recreational vehicles, known as ATVs for short, have been associated with 559 deaths and more than 220,000 injuries since 1982, prompting the commission to launch a detailed study of the problem.

Some 2.3 million of the vehicles are in use in the United States, where they have become increasingly popular since about 1980.

"The ATV issue is the most serious problem this commission has ever addressed... serious problems require serious solutions," said Commissioner Anne Gramham.

Commission Chairman Terrence Scanlon noted that 21 percent of deaths in ATV accidents involved people under age 12, and said studies by the safety agency found that youngsters do not have the knowledge or skills to operate these vehicles.

"The message is clear," Scanlon said. "The ATV is not just another bicycle that any child can safely ride. Even the smallest... can tip over or roll over bringing serious harm to even the most capable of child riders."

But Alan Eley, head of the Specialty Vehicle Institute of America, which represents the manufacturers of the machines, com-tended that elimination of small all-terrain vehicles could actually cause increased danger.

Riding ATVs is a family sport, Eley said, and if the smaller machines are not available for youngsters, parents may decide to begin riding double, or children may try to ride larger, heavier adult machines. Both are dangerous practices, he added.

Rolling over appears to be the major danger of these vehicles, especially the three-wheel versions.

The vehicles have a solid rear axle, which requires a rider to lean outward when making a turn. Unless the rider is skilled, this leaning can result in overturning on corners, commission testing specialists said.

Four-wheel versions of the vehicles have gone on sale in the last year or so, and they seem more stable, officials said.

Thursday's vote on the recommendations culminates 18 months of reports, hearings and testing.

In addition to the request to stop marketing the machines to people under 12, the agency:

- Directed its staff to begin working on possible mandatory safety standards for the machines.
 - Urged state governments to adopt rules requiring helmets for riders.
 - Called for improved danger warnings on the machines, including warnings that they are unsafe for youngsters.
 - Urged better training programs for beginning riders.
 - Criticized the makers of the vehicles for slow progress in developing voluntary safety standards.
- Legally, the commission could ban the machines as a safety hazard, but that is a complex and lengthy process that the agency uses only as a last resort.

Nuclear waste goes a-wandering

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A railroad car carrying nuclear waste bound for a dump site in Washington state went astray and wound up parked in a small Minnesota community, officials said Thursday.

The shipment, which left a power plant in Palo in eastern Iowa on Friday, was found Monday in Willmar, Minn. It was brought back to Iowa and again sent west, and by Wednesday had reached Lincoln, Neb.

"I'm not going to make a big issue about it, but I'll be in contact to find out the reason," said Ellen Gordon, head of the Iowa Office of Disaster Services. Ms. Gordon said she had no indications the error posed a danger.

Activists seized on the incident as evidence that the safety of nuclear power can't be guaranteed. "This is just another one of those cases where the nuclear industry can't be depended (upon)," said State Rep. David Osterberg, whose district is next to the plant that produced the waste.

The Burlington Northern Railroad, which was transporting the low-level wastes, is investigating the matter, said spokesman Al Wiegold.

The wastes, about four tons of control-rod blades from the Duane Arnold Energy Center in Palo, were inserted into a 65-ton protective cask and loaded onto a flat-bed rail car for the trip to the dump in Hanford, Wash.

Ms. Gordon said a big concern with the diversion was that local officials along the route the waste actually took had no idea what was going through their communities and couldn't have reacted if there had been an accident.

It was the first time Iowa Electric made such a shipment. While there had been news stories about it, the shipment's exact route and time of departure had been kept secret to avoid any protests.

Anti-nuclear activists said they were upset because utility officials constantly laud the elaborate precautions they take in shipping wastes.

"I've felt like there are securities in the system that may be pretty strong, but the risks are still high," said Bob Brammer.

Surgeons remove cancerous tumor from CIA chief's brain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeons removed a cancerous tumor from the brain of CIA Director William J. Casey on Thursday, and said that his condition "appears treatable" and that the 73-year-old Casey probably will be able to resume normal activities.

During the surgery, which lasted more than five hours at Georgetown University Hospital, a tumor was removed from the inner side of the left brain, the area relating to movement and sensation of the right side of the body, a hospital statement said.

"The operation was performed without complication and Mr. Casey is in stable condition and doing well," the statement said. CIA spokesman George Lauder said the agency "participated in drafting" the hospital's statement and "we subscribe to it."

Casey's troubles came amid a hectic period. He testified before congressional committees investigating the CIA's role in the sale of arms to Iran and the transfer of profits to the U.S.-backed Contras in Nicaragua.

Casey was scheduled to return to the witness table again Tuesday, but he was rushed by ambulance from his office at CIA headquarters to the hospital on Monday after suffering what doctors described as "a minor cerebral seizure" that caused spasms in his arms and legs.

Casey entered the hospital after arriving at the hospital and had been undergoing tests since then to determine what had caused those seizures.

It was only after Thursday's surgery, which began at 5:40 a.m. MST and lasted until 11 a.m. MST, that the hospital issued a statement. But hospital officials declined to elaborate on it or to make Casey's doctors available to reporters.

WILLIAM J. CASEY
Condition 'appears treatable'

The statement said, "A preliminary examination of the tumor revealed a lymphoma, which appears treatable. Physicians are awaiting final pathology reports, which will be available next week. The attending physicians anticipate that Mr. Casey will be able to resume his normal activities."

The statement said, "There will be no further medical details available on Mr. Casey before the test results are final. The length of his hospitalization will be determined at that time."

Dr. Henry Brem, director of neurosurgical oncology at Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore, said brain lymphomas are "sensitive to radiation or anticancer drug therapy and often 'just melt away under treatment.'"

Although doctors can remove all or most of a tumor in this kind of operation, Brem said subsequent therapy is required to attack residual cancer cells in the brain.

"The prognosis for this type of tumor generally is very good in the short term — the first year or two," Brem said in a telephone interview. However, he said, although it varies greatly from patient to patient, few people with such tumors survive more than four or five years after treatment.

Dr. Victor A. Levin, chief of neuro-oncology at the Medical Center at the University of California at San Francisco, said the adverse effects of the subsequent therapy generally are less with the brain than other parts of the body. Following the announcement from the hospital, President Reagan said in a statement issued at the White House he and his wife, Nancy, were "deeply distressed and concerned."

During Casey's absence, the CIA will be run by his deputy, Robert Gates, 43, who joined the CIA in 1966 and has specialized on Soviet affairs, CIA spokesman Lauder said. Gates' career includes seven years on the National Security Council staff under Presidents Nixon, Ford and Carter and responsibility from 1982-86 for U.S. intelligence analyses. He was sworn in as deputy director on April 18, 1986.

Casey, who became CIA director in 1981 after playing a key role in Reagan's campaign for the White House, held three high governmental positions in the Nixon administration, including director of the Securities and Exchange Commission from 1971 to 1973. He also was a member of the advisory council of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and was an undersecretary of state for economic affairs.

Poindexter slowed FBI probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unusual delay in an FBI investigation of Southern Air Transport, the cargo airline involved in both the Iranian arms deal and the shipment of weapons to Nicaragua, was disclosed Thursday.

Poindexter telephoned Attorney General Edwin Meese III in late October to request a delay in the FBI's preliminary inquiry into the Miami-based carrier completed their participation in U.S. weapons sales to Iran, said Justice Department spokesman Terry Eastland.

Eastland said Meese described Poindexter's request as "unusual" in a 10-day delay of the FBI probe in early November. In closed-door testimony to the Senate Intelligence Committee on Wednesday, the delay in the investigation has become a controversial issue because of the possibility that the delay may have been due instead to fears that the probe would uncover diversion of funds to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua from the Iran arms sales. The FBI's preliminary inquiry was into Southern Air's shipments of arms to the Contras.

The Justice Department last week issued a statement denying that diversion of money to the Contras had anything to do with the probe. On Thursday, Eastland emphasized that the first Meese knew of the Contra connection was when Poindexter and National Security Council aide Oliver North were questioned by Justice Department officials on Wednesday, Nov. 22-23.

However, the fact that the request for delaying the probe came from Poindexter is significant because, as Meese said at a Nov. 25 news conference disclosing the Contra connection, the national security adviser had general knowledge of the diversion of money to the Contras.

Poindexter contacted Meese and indicated that certain Southern Air employees were scheduled to be involved "in a mission that was critical to the securing of the release of American hostages held in Lebanon," said Eastland.

Poindexter told Meese that the FBI preliminary inquiry into Southern Air "would interfere" with the mission and he asked if the investigation could be delayed, said the Justice Department spokesman.

According to Eastland, the attorney general advised Poindexter that "in effect, he would look into the status of the FBI investigation."

In an interview, Eastland emphasized that Poindexter gave no other reason for wanting the probe delayed.

Broad scope of Iran-Contra affair most difficult task for tribunal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the judicial panel that names independent counsels said Thursday the Iran-Contra affair presents the tribunal with its most difficult task yet because the Justice Department asked for a probe that is "unlimited as to persons and unlimited as to offenses."

"We're moving as fast as we can" in selecting a counsel to investigate arms sales to Iran and diversions of money to the Nicaraguan rebels known as Contras, said U.S. Circuit Judge George E. MacKinnon.

The judge told The Associated Press in an interview that a counsel could be named today, but that he was not certain. "These people have to all be cleared by an FBI security check," he said.

MacKinnon, who serves on the independent special court in addition to the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, said the Iran-Contra case is unique compared to the six previous investigations ordered under provisions of the Ethics in Government Act of 1976, which was amended in 1983.

"The breadth of the investigation is considerably different" this time, he said.

"It's unlimited as to persons and unlimited as to offenses. There's not one offense designated in the attorney general's request. It says (to investigate) all violations of federal criminal law. It never comes over like that. Because of the breadth of this, we're limited in the people we can get."

MacKinnon said that despite the complexity of the case, it has not been difficult to find people willing to accept the appointment.

"There are so many qualified people," MacKinnon said. "So many are willing to take on such a burdensome task. But the case is the most open-ended."

The judge noted "we have only one name" in the Justice Department's request for a counsel, that of former National Security Council aide, Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North. But the application then seeks a probe of "all other government officials for all crimes," MacKinnon said.

Army checks calculations on arms cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger recently ordered an Army investigation of the way the cost of missiles shipped to Iran was calculated, a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday.

Spokesman Robert Sims refused to predict when the investigation by the Army's inspector general would be completed, but said Weinberger hoped to receive the results in the next several weeks.

"We do have an Army inspector general inspection into the procedures employed in establishing the price of the missiles that were transferred from the Defense Department to the Central Intelligence Agency and as to whether proper procedures were followed in that transfer," Sims said.

"That's an ongoing investigation by the Army at the request of the secretary."

After Weinberger testified privately Wednesday before the Senate Intelligence Committee, Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, told reporters the Pentagon had sharply discounted the costs it charged the CIA for the missiles, possibly to create inflated profits that could be funneled elsewhere, such as secret aid to the anti-government Nicaraguan rebels.

Reagan seeks report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has asked the Senate Intelligence Committee to compile for him a detailed report of its three weeks of hearings on the Iran-Contra affair so he can inform the nation about what has been uncovered, it was learned Thursday.

Reagan's proposal was coupled with his request Tuesday for the Senate committee to grant immunity to former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and his hired aide, Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, to compel them to testify.

In a letter to committee leaders, Reagan wrote, "I am requesting that your committee promptly make a comprehensive and detailed report as to the findings of its hearings on this matter."

"It would be my intention to review such a report upon its completion with a view toward making its contents known to the American people, consistent with the security interests of our nation," the president said.

The committee has rejected the idea of immunity for Poindexter and North. Both are said to possess crucial information about the diversion of profits from the Iranian arms sales to the Nicaraguan rebels, and both have invoked the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination in refusing to testify. It was not immediately known how the committee would respond to Reagan's request for compilation of a report or how the president planned to make the findings public.

In recent days, Reagan has expressed frustration about difficulties in getting out the story of what happened in the Iran-Contra affair.

New leader sparks riots by Kazakhs

MOSCOW (AP) — "Hooligans and parasites" riot in the streets of Alma Ata, capital of Kazakhstan, after the Kremlin replaced the Central Asian republic's long-time leader with an ethnic Russian, Tass reported Thursday.

It was believed to be the first report of riots in the Soviet Union to be published by official media.

Tass said the riots occurred Wednesday and Thursday. The news agency's report indicated the riots were continuing.

Dimukhamed Kunayev, a 74-year-old Kazakh and Politburo member since 1952, was replaced Tuesday by a Russian who has held party posts in the Volga basin and in Georgia. The Russian, a republic wide Josef Stalin was born.

Kunayev also is expected to lose his seat on the ruling Politburo at the next meeting of the national Central Committee, which Soviet officials say will be held Tuesday.

His dismissal was expected because of the riotous and other anti-social persons made use of this situation and resorted to unlawful actions against representatives of law and order. They set fire to a food store, to private cars, and insulted housewives.

Meetings at factories, schools and party organizations condemned the "totally unwarranted actions" by rioters, the agency reported.

Tass said they called for "restoration of complete order in the city," an indication the riots had not ended. "The actions taken in this direction are supported by the working people," it said.

In concluding its brief report, Tass said stores, industries, schools and public transportation were functioning normally.

It did not mention casualties or give an estimate of damage.

Kremlin watchers expressed surprise when Kunayev was re-elected regional leader before the national party held its 27th congress in February. His retention may have indicated official awareness of the nationalist feelings that produced this week's riots.

The unprecedented report by Tass could mean the disorder in Alma Ata, a city of more than one million people, was widespread and the Kremlin realized the word of it probably would reach the West.

Volcano on Japanese island erupting again

TOKYO (AP) — Mount Mihara shot flames and hot rocks into the sky in a new eruption on Thursday, just as more evacuees from last month's volcanic explosion were preparing to return home for the holidays.

Officials said the return of residents to Oshima Island, 69 miles south of Tokyo, would continue on schedule but vessels were waiting offshore in case they were needed for another evacuation.

About 2,000 of the island's 11,000 residents had returned from the mainland as of Thursday, said Takemi Satori of the Tokyo Metropolitan government.

The latest eruption sent columns of flames about 800 yards above the island peak, a Tokyo Metropolitan official said.

Red-hot ash blew out of the 2,486-foot volcano but there were no reports of a lava flow, said the Central Meteorological Agency.

The volcano erupted late last month for the first time in 12 years, triggering "numerous" earthquakes and a lava flow that continued for several days.

The evacuees began returning early this month, and all were to return by Monday.

Satori said 373 residents of the island's southern towns of Habu and Sashikiji were sent to a nearby high school Thursday evening as a precaution. But the government later canceled the order for Sashikiji residents.

Satori said that after last month's eruption, those towns had been designated danger areas by the Earthquake Prediction Committee of seismologists and other experts.

The towns lie along a crack that broke open during the latest eruption.

Satori said the sea off the area was discolored, indicating that hot lava inside the earth was flowing into the ocean, which could result in an underwater eruption.

An additional small explosion was recorded about two hours later, but no further activity was reported.

Reformer heads new Hanoi hierarchy

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Economic reformer Nguyen Van Linh was chosen Thursday to lead a new hierarchy replacing the revolutionaries who saw the Communist Party through half a century of colonial and civil wars.

The Vietnamese party's sixth congress concluded by making Linh, 71, party chief and moving other reform-minded figures into positions of control.

Linh's emergence appeared to reflect the victory of reformers over conservatives who were criticized for relying too much on central control and leading Vietnam into economic crisis.

He leads a new 13-member Politburo, the party's ruling body, as general secretary. Six members of the former Politburo were dropped, including the three men who retired Wednesday: party chief Truong Chinh, 79; Premier Pham Van Dong, 80, and key Politburo member Le Duc Tho, 75. Those three will become advisers to the party Central Committee.

Ranking second to Linh in the new lineup was Pham Hung, who became associated with party founder Ho Chi Minh in the 1920s and is one of the few "old guard" members left in the leadership. He is 74.

Vice Premier Vo Chi Cong, a 73-year-old former agriculture minister, ranks third. He has supported reforms that increased agricultural production by allowing farmers a free market for whatever they produce beyond assigned quotas.

Linh made his final speech as party leader in the Ba Dinh conference hall from a stage containing a bust of Ho, who died in 1969, and portraits of Marx and Lenin. He received a standing ovation.

Linh said in his acceptance speech that Vietnam faces "numerous difficulties" and he will try to unite the nation behind reforms that would resolve them.

The congress made important changes in the "process of inheritance and renovation in... leadership," he said, an apparent reference to changing leaders by retirement rather than giving them life tenure.

With the strains of the "International" resounding in the hall, Linh walked over to Chinh and Dong and embraced them as a symbol of the passage of power.

Wednesday's retirements followed months of unusually strong public criticism of the leadership and calls for reforms to revitalize an economy plagued by shortages, inflation and poor distribution.

The new party chief was a key party organizer in the south during the wars against the French and Americans. He was removed from the Politburo in 1982, but reinstated in 1985.

He was party leader for Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, after the North Vietnamese victory in April 1975. Linh turned the city's economy around by decentralizing management to individual factories and other small units.

Also elected Thursday was a new Central Committee of 124 full members and 49 alternates, which is substantially larger than before. It immediately passed resolutions that included statements supporting economic reform.

The National Assembly is to convene next week and approve a new government. The jobs of premier and chairman of the State Council normally go to the top party leaders.

Vo Van Kiet moves up in rank under the new alignment. He has pushed for reforms as chairman of the State Planning Commission.

Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach becomes a full member of the Politburo, rather than an alternate. Thach is believed to be a strong supporter of reform and of efforts to improve relations with the West.

Lo Xuan-Dong, main spokesman for the congress, said three members of the new Politburo are 70 or older and the rest are in their 60s.

Among those ousted from the Politburo was To Huu, the nation's poet laureate, who was held responsible for disastrous currency reforms. Cong replaced him as vice premier in June.

Defense Minister Van Tien Dung, who directed the final offensive against Saigon in 1975, also was removed.

Chinese officials seize illegal books

PEKING (AP) — Authorities have seized 707 kinds of illegally published books this year, the official China Press Service said.

The report, which reached Peking Hong Kong, the report said.

Most of the books were published by criminals or under false pretenses, although some were illegally brought into China from News Service said.

Illegally published books were found in every part of China this year and included pornography,

U.S., France aiding Chad against Libyans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and France are sending military equipment to Chad following attacks by Libyan troops occupying the northern section of the country, the State Department said Thursday.

On Tuesday, President Reagan ordered that up to $15 million in equipment and services be sent to Chad in response to a request from Chad's pro-Western government, department spokesman Charles Redman said.

The French Defense Ministry said Wednesday French cargo planes dropped food, fuel and ammunition to a pro-government force fighting the Libyan troops in the former French colony. Libyan troop strength is believed to number about 5,000.

The Chad government asked for U.S. help following attacks beginning in early November by Libyan troops, armor and aircraft on Chadian armed forces and civilians, Redman said. An initial shipment of U.S. light arms, ammunition and clothing was made on Dec. 4. President Hissene Habre of Chad had been seeking outside help in supplying a force of about 2,000 rebel fighters who rallied to the central government in late October.

They previously had supported Goukouni Oueddei, who had received Libyan backing in his fight to overthrow Habre.

Goukouni recently had a falling out with Libya's Col. Moammar Gadhafi and reportedly was wounded in a shootout with Libyan troops in Tripoli, the Libyan capital.

Habre said in an interview published Tuesday that three armored Libyan columns had encircled the rebels in the Tibesti Mountains.

The French Defense Ministry statement said the special delivery "was requested by the Chadian government to help the inhabitants of the region, directly threatened by Libyan armored columns coming down from the north."

It said France "condemns one more time the action of Libyan forces in Chad."

Court convicts American of slaying

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A court in Rwanda convicted an American considering the evidence since a wildlife researcher in his absence Thursday of murdering Dian Fossey, a noted expert on gorilla behavior slain at her remote jungle camp a year ago.

The three judges delivered the verdict against Wayne Richard country.

McGuire, 34, of Hazlet, N.J. after in Rwanda convicted an American considering the evidence since a wildlife researcher in his absence Thursday of murdering Dian Fossey, a noted expert on gorilla behavior slain at her remote jungle camp a year ago.

McGuire was charged with the slaying of Fossey, which has no extradition treaty with the central African country.

Eastwood buys ranch, ends battle over development plans

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, Calif. (AP) — Mayor Clint Eastwood has bought the 22-acre Mission Ranch, appeasing environmentalists and officials angered by a its owners' proposal to build about 60 townhouses on the site.

"It's not what an investment counselor would say to fly into," Eastwood told the Carmel Pine Cone newspaper. "But the more I sold everybody else, the more I decided I'd do it."

The actor, who has promised not to build on the site, did not reveal the cost of the purchase. The owners asked $5.5 million for the former dairy farm that houses a bed-and-breakfast inn, tennis courts, restaurant and piano bar.

Eastwood, currently starring in the movie "Heartbreak Ridge," bought the property through Terra Productions, his movie-making company.

Morning news anchor leaving network job

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — ABC-TV's morning news anchorman Steve Bell is leaving the network to anchor newscasts for NBC affiliate KYW-TV in late January, said the station's news director.

Bell, 51, a former White House and Vietnam War correspondent for the network, will anchor the station's 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. news shows, KYW news director Randy Covington said Wednesday.

Carol Danell, Bell's assistant in Washington, confirmed on Thursday that Bell was leaving ABC to work for KYW.

Bell has anchored the ABC news segments on "Good Morning America" since 1975 and co-anchored "ABC World News This Morning" since 1982.

Weaver joining staff to qualify for benefits

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jim Weaver will join Republican Sen. Mark Hatfield's staff as a consultant until August so the outgoing Democratic congressman can qualify for congressional retirement health benefits.

Weaver will receive $112 a month for his services. Without remaining on a congressional payroll, he would be about seven months short of qualifying for continued health benefits, Hatfield's office said Wednesday.

The six-term congressman from Eugene dropped out of his race against Republican Sen. Bob Packwood in August because of an investigation of his campaign finances.

The House ethics committee found in October that Weaver had violated House rules by improperly borrowing $82,000 from his campaign and by failing to fully disclose the investments he made with the funds.

Weaver wrote to Hatfield Dec. 5 to ask for a minimum-salary consulting position while living on his farm near Eugene, according to correspondence released by Hatfield's office.

Hatfield agreed to the request in a Dec. 10 letter to Weaver, saying Weaver's "knowledge of pressing energy and nuclear power issues would be of great assistance to me during the coming months."

Host to Steinbeck wants land preserved farmland must be preserved. Arthur Rogers, described by the Nobel prize-winning writer as "one of the very few contented people I met on my whole journey," has asked that his 500 acres be protected by the state. "This place has got to have a cow on it, not a golf course," said Rogers, 61, who wants to quit dairy farming but would rather turn the operation over to a young farmer than to developers.

Under a program designed to preserve Massachusetts farmland, the state will pay Rogers the difference between the land's worth as a farm and its worth as acres filled with condominiums and tennis courts.

Rogers, who took over the farm from his wife's family in 1952, let Steinbeck and his poodle Charley spend the first night of their famous journey there in 1958.

"The dairy man had a Ph.D. in mathematics, and he must have had some training in philosophy," Steinbeck wrote. "He liked what he was doing and he didn't want to be somewhere else."

Driver stops bus, then dies from seizure

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — A school bus driver who suffered a heart attack managed to pull the loaded vehicle to a safe stop at the side of the road before he died, officials say.

Leon Boozer, 50, was pronounced dead on arrival Wednesday at Rockdale Hospital.

Officials said Boozer had pulled the bus out of the main lanes of traffic, avoiding a steep ravine. The bus glancing off a fire hydrant before running into an embankment and stopping, said Andy Olsen, director of communications for the DeKalb Board of Education.

Six of the 37 Rock Chapel Elementary School students aboard sustained minor bruises.

"The driver had his annual physical back in August and apparently was in excellent health," Olsen said. "He was an excellent driver."

Campus bans tobacco sales

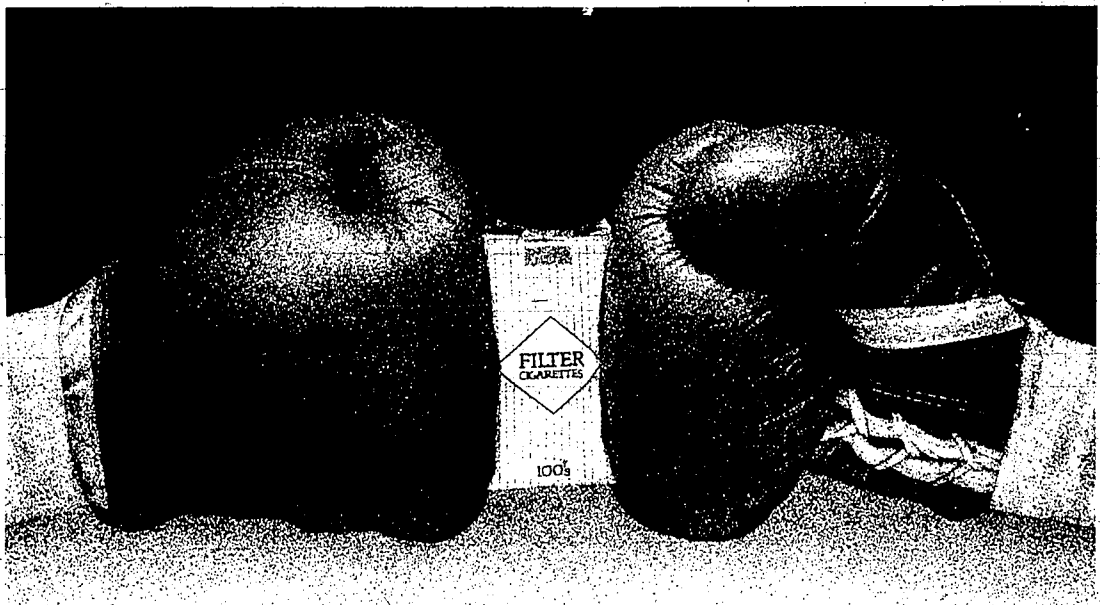

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia State University students no longer will be able to buy cigarettes on campus.

The decision to remove 10 vending machines will cost the downtown Atlanta school about $7,200 in lost sales, but Auxiliary Services Director Waldtraut Lavroff said she hopes sales of other items, including the "Official GSU Nutty Bar," will fill the gap.

GSU's University Senate, a faculty-dominated panel, voted 49-28 this fall to impose the ban on all on-campus tobacco sales.

"It's a statement that the university should not support this kind of endeavor," said Dean of Students William R. Baggett.

Ms. Lavroff said the $7,200 the school will lose is the campus' cut of $30,000 in total annual cigarette sales, all of it from vending machines.

Farm credit tactic won't aid Spokane bank

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Federal Land Bank of Spokane today remains in a "very, very weakened condition" after federal regulators rejected an accounting change that could have recouped at least $30 million for the ailing institution.

The U.S. Farm Credit Administration Thursday allowed a more lenient type of accounting for beleaguered banks in the national Farm Credit system. However, the agency's Board of Directors also permitted the new reporting tactic only after Oct. 1, too late to aid the Spokane bank.

Introducing Regulatory Accounting Practices on July 1, as once proposed, could have recaptured most of $96.8 million in capital withdrawn from the Spokane bank to prop up other Farm Credit System lenders in the Midwest, officials of the Spokane systems said.

"If the third-quarter assistance is not going to be reversed in large measure, it leaves the Spokane Land Bank in a very, very weakened condition and possibly a candidate for assistance itself," said Al Haslebacher, a vice president and spokesman for 12th District Farm Credit Services.

Under loss-sharing agreements, the strong institutions in the national network aid the weak ones by moving money surpluses. They are assessed by formula, and transfers of capital generally are made electronically. The assistance prevents weak banks from "impairing" their bedrock capital — stock owned by their borrowers.

During the first 9 months of 1986, the Spokane bank has anted up $135.8 million in assessments. Meanwhile, its own surplus has plummeted from $212.8 million to $13.2 million.

The FCA's permission to use Regulatory Accounting Practices allows troubled banks to spread loan losses over 30 years, instead of booking them immediately, as under current rules. If the permission reached back into the third quarter, executives of Farm Credit banks receiving the aid had agreed to "reverse" or refund unneeded assistance, officials said last week.

The Spokane Land Bank could have recaptured $30-$36 million, enough surplus to keep the bank solid for another year, the bank's chief financial officer said last week.

However, the agency's directors Thursday allowed the new accounting procedure to begin only at the outset of the fourth quarter.

"Their concern was that if they had to less than $10 million, less than 5 percent changed (earlier), there would have been six banks that would have been impaired compared to two that might be impaired," said Bill Hendrix, FCA director of public affairs. The federal decision came less than a day after the 12th District's Board of Directors delayed forming a strategy to deal with the thin surplus in the 12th Bank. "We're going to go back up there the 29th (of December)," said Chairman Clarence Hollifield, who lives in Hansen. Going to the system for assistance is not yet inevitable. But "I would say there is a possibility," Hollifield said.

Haslebacher said the bank's internal losses from non-performing loans have continued to drain reserves during the fourth quarter, which ends Dec. 31. He said the bank's capital surplus probably has dwindled any massive, coordinated effort," he said.

While acknowledging the FCA's authority, Spokane executives believe Congress intended to allow a third-quarter start for regulatory-style accounting in the law authorizing this bill, Haslebacher said.

"The apparently-made-there-views-known — We have received more calls on Spokane's assessments than anyone else's," FCA's Hendrix said. In fact, the agency received "not one call... from another district," suggesting a "parochial" campaign to sway FCA directors, he said.

Haslebacher said he knows that some individuals called about the Spokane situation, but "I certainly wouldn't be able to call it

Jerry Evans, superintendent of public instruction, tells seminar participants that Idaho's education should be 'well above the national average'

Unequal school funding issue grows

Legislators will face mounting pressure to solve disparity, say Evans, Noh

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Equalizing school district funding across Idaho will be one of the major issues confronting the Legislature next year, two state officials said Thursday.

Jerry Evans, Idaho's superintendent of public instruction, said the disparity in state funding is growing between districts with high property values and low property values. Evans said he tells people: "If you don't think it's bad now, wait until next year and it will be worse."

"The pressures are growing from the urban centers to look again at the sources of funding," echoed state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly. Noh said he will suggest that a committee be formed to study the issue, but that political interests may hinder movement toward change.

Districts with high property values, such as Boise, are expected to oppose equalization. "Then, it's just a matter of who can scrape together enough votes when the body is divided-up," he said.

The comments were part of a day-long seminar called Magic Valley Leadership. The seminar, sponsored by the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, featured state and local speakers specializing in the seminar's topics of education.

The state's portion of education funding relies on the amount of funding raised locally through property taxes. Those amounts fluctuate between districts, even at the same tax rates, because of differing property values. Districts with high property values are able to raise more money than poorer districts when both implement the same tax increases. And poorer districts, such as Twin Falls, find their hands are tied even if they want to increase taxes, because the 1 Percent Initiative limits the rate of those increases.

Evans said the push toward equalizing funding would raise the minimum required level of taxation to be more in line with actual tax rates across the state.

This was the fourth seminar of 12 planned in which local business people are encouraged to learn more about the community and area. "It really gives the a chance to see how these particular areas work in this community," said Chamber Executive Vice President Buzz Langdon.

Several local educators spoke to the group during a morning session, explaining what the Twin Falls School District and College of said.

Evans outlined for the local audience Thursday afternoon his proposal for the Legislature to increase state education funding next year, for 7 years after consolidating, despite savings he said he will ask for $42 million more than this year's $421 million budget.

Evans said the increase request is more realistic than the $22 million request last year, which the Legislature answered with $10 million.

"This year we said 'Let's tilt this a little more toward economic reality,'" Evans said. "The $42 million would maintain current levels of service and provide a jumping-off point for increasing Idaho teachers' salaries, and family values, Evans said. "We ought to which he said are ranked among the lowest in well above the national average."

Noh echoed that there is a need for greater funding, but said greater accountability, raising standards for school administrators, may also be implemented.

He suggested that $17 million more a year for the next 3 years for "teacher salary equalization" would bring Idaho salaries up to the current national average. Another $4 million would fund a "career ladder" to reward good teachers with raises above current salary schedules that ignore teacher competency, he said.

Evans also said he is a fan of consolidating some of the state's 416 school districts. But he said there were no takers for an incentive of providing districts their same state funding to increase state education funding next year, for 7 years after consolidating, despite savings they might enjoy after merging.

Evans concluded that Idaho, while giving its more students an average or even above-average education, should still be able to do such as New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, each with race and economic problems not prevalent in Idaho, dictate those averages.

"We don't have the disadvantages and we level of service and provide a jumping-off point for increasing Idaho teachers' salaries, and family values, Evans said. "We ought to which he said are ranked among the lowest in well above the national average."

Noh echoed that there is a need for greater funding, but said greater accountability, raising standards for school administrators, may also be implemented.

Fire chief orders jail center shut in Jerome

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

JEROME — The state fire marshal ordered a private juvenile detention center near Jerome closed last week, until the operators sign an agreement to correct alleged fire-code violations.

Fire Marshal Bill Wallis of Boise's Southern Idaho Youth Center, said only the main dormitory was closed. Three new cells in the office section are being used. He also said the deficiencies noted by the fire marshal are being corrected.

Fire Marshal Bill Wallis of Boise said he expected the agreement with the center to be signed today. He used his discretionary authority to use an agreement to attempt to solve the problems at the center, because he believed the center was needed to house juveniles, he said.

Investigation showed the youths might be "better off" at the center, he said.

"But that doesn't eliminate the fact the building had violations," Wallis said. "Why the building was allowed to be occupied I don't know."

The center began accepting youths, under a contract with Jerome County, during the first week of October. Most recently, Lincoln County contracted with the center.

Normally, said Wallis, a designated building inspector issues an occupancy permit after determining that a structure complies with the Uniform Building Code, Wallis said. If a building meets the UBC standards, it generally will meet the Uniform Fire Code. Both codes were adopted by the state, he said.

Jerome County Zoning Administrator Al Heworth said on Thursday that he hadn't signed an occupancy permit for the center because all the building problems were not yet corrected.

"They weren't supposed to be open," Heworth said.

Edwards said the center had Heworth's verbal approval to open. Wallis said his office became involved after being contacted by "private citizens." Upon his request, Jerome Fire Chief Jim Auclair inspected the facility Oct. 27 and found several violations of the fire code, Wallis said.

Auclair said, "The facility is unsafe as it is, but not built like this."

Another inspection was made of the center on Nov. 4 by a state fire deputy, who confirmed the problems, Wallis said.

The alleged violations included inappropriate location of fire doors; lack of a fire-sprinkler system and an emergency-lighting system; lack of an approved fire wall between the dormitory and office; lack of an ap-

Demos decide not to seek recall election against Pence

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Democratic Central Committee on Wednesday decided not to seek a recall election against Twin Falls County Clerk Dick Pence, but the Democrats are still pursuing legal charges against the Republican clerk.

The Democratic Central Committee voted unanimously to file another complaint with County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter against Pence. The Democrats are alleging that Pence mishandled absentee ballots during the Dec. 9 special election on hospital restructuring.

"I'm not out to pick on the man; I'm out because I think there's a definite problem," said Democratic Chairman Joe Gulick. "If Pence can't read election laws, the man should not be in office."

Gulick said that when he voted on Dec. 9, he noticed that election judges were not checking the signature against the voter registration book, and were not calling out names of absentee voters, as outlined in state election laws.

Gulick said he had not called Baxter about the latest problems, but he had called the Attorney General's Office, which advised him to pursue the case through Baxter if they had more complaints.

In November, the Democratic Central Committee presented a list of election "irregularities" against Pence to Baxter. Baxter declined to prosecute after she investigated the opening of the absentee ballots during the Nov.-4 general election. Barter said she found no criminal intent.

Gulick said he also checked with the state Democratic Committee and was told there may be money to pursue the case, if Baxter again fails to prosecute.

Gulick told about 20 Democrats on Wednesday that he first favored a recall, but he has since changed his mind.

"It would take a lot of time and effort, and I question whether we could get the same number of people out to vote to recall him," Gulick said. About 1,800 signatures would be needed to force a special election. But more than 9,500 votes would be needed to defeat him, because he received more than 6,500 votes when he was re-elected Nov. 4.

Pence was unavailable for comment Thursday.

Commissioners announce Boise firm will design jail

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Lombard-Conrad, Architects, a Boise firm with local ties, was named by the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners on Thursday to design a new jail.

After the commissioners made their announcement, Sheriff Jim Munn reported that the costs of transporting and boarding inmates in other jails to meet a cap at the present jail had hit an all-time monthly high of more than $21,000.

The firm of Ernie Lombard and Joe Conrad, organized in 1972, was selected for its work on detention facilities, Commissioner Judy Felton said. Its projects include a secure juvenile detention facility at the North Idaho Children's Home in Lewiston. A current project is a 64-inmate facility for Elko County, Nev.

Other detention-related projects include a 96-bed unit at the Idaho State Penitentiary, and planning for a facility in Caribou County and Washington, Lombard said. The firm also designed the Morrison Center in Boise.

The firm's organizational talents for pre-planning and its ties to the Magic Valley were other items in its favor, Felton said. Lombard was raised near Eden and Conrad was born in Castleford.

The firm had applied 2 years ago, but was rejected, when the county was preparing for a jail bond and a preliminary design of the jail, Felton said. The funds will be taken from the county's general reserve. If a bond is approved to finance a new jail, the firm will be paid a negotiated fee for the final design of the facility, she said.

The firm's first step will be the formation of a study committee.

constituting of county residents, to guide them on what the community and county needs in a new jail, said Councilman Felton said the people who served on a jail committee 2 years ago and on the more recent site-selection committee — which chose a vacant lot near the Courthouse — will be invited to participate, along with any other interested person.

An organizational meeting of the study committee is planned for Jan. 15, Councilman said.
Bills for transporting and boarding inmates out of the county during the month of November amounted to $21,105, Munn said. One bill, expected to be about $1,000, is still outstanding.

Not counting the pending bill, the amount is the highest the county has paid per month since it began complying with the agreement in February, Munn said.

4 burglary suspects arrested

TWIN FALLS — Two adults and two juveniles were arrested Wednesday night by Twin Falls County sheriff's officers in connection with several burglaries, and officers said most of the stolen goods was recovered.
Officers arrested the four after a search of the home they all share, and after burglaries were found in several businesses and personal property in the area of 3200 East and 3800 North, near Kimberly.
Officers obtained written permission from the residents to search the home.
Charged with first-degree burglary are David Lee Routh, 18, and David Gilbert Mondragon, 20, both of Twin Falls, and two juvenile males under 18 years of age.

They are charged with the burglary of Tucker Lumber Co., David Steed and Associates, and the Bob Clevenger shop and with the theft of a pickup truck from the C.K. Brown Co., also located nearby.
Deputies said most of the missing items were recovered during a search of the residence. The pickup truck was recovered damaged, just south of the Steed building.
Officers received a call from a resident in the area, reporting that some tools were found in a ditch beside the road. The tools were identified as having been taken in one of the burglaries. The suspects were arrested when the same person called again to say two men were walking along the road where the tools had been seen and appeared to be looking for something.

County officers said several items believed to have been taken in recent burglaries in the city of Twin Falls have also been found.
Routh and Mondragon were arraigned Thursday in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls and held in county custody under $1,500 bond, pending further court appearance.

Suicide victim's father sues jail

BOISE (AP) — The father of a man who hanged himself in the Twin Falls County Jail is seeking more than $5 million in a lawsuit that contends jailers allowed the prisoner's constitutional rights to be violated because the present exit doors were located all on the same wall, Wallis said.
Earl Courtney said in the suit filed Wednesday that jail officials failed to recognize that his son, Timothy, was suicidal and addicted to cocaine, according to the complaint.
He contended that Sheriff Jim

Munn and Jail Administrator Wayne Tousey allowed the younger Courtney's rights to be violated because the prisoner was a homosexual.
According to the lawsuit, the younger Courtney was stopped by Idaho State Police for speeding on Dec. 18, 1984, and a computer check showed an outstanding warrant for auto theft.
"The next afternoon, he was found hanging in his cell and was pronounced dead at a Twin Falls hospital an hour later, the lawsuit said.

The lawsuit contends that Munn, Tousey and county commissioners maintained an unsound jail, failed to supervise the younger Courtney and failed to provide enough guards for the number of prisoners in the jail.
He is seeking a total of $5.8 million for: burial expenses, loss of companionship and financial contributions his son might have made.

Fire

proved dust system and hood with automatic suppression capabilities for the kitchen; Jack of an approved alarm system; and improper placement of fire extinguishers. The dormitory also needed another fire exit because the present exit doors were located all on the same wall, Wallis said.
Most of the alleged violations were found in the dormitory where the youths would be held, Wallis said.
Under the agreement, prepared by the Attorney General's Office, the center operators will have to remedy the problems by certain deadlines, Wallis said. The first deadline is Feb. 1, 1987, when the fire doors should be corrected.
Wallis said he would release a copy of the time schedule after the agreement is signed. Edwards, who verbally agreed to the terms on Tuesday, is scheduled to meet with Wallis today to sign the agreement.
Fines can be levied for the alleged violations found at the center.
"But there was no sense in fining," he said. The center operators were willing to work with him to solve the problems.
Edwards said the problems with the fire code arose when the center operators decided to "switch streams" and aim at a higher fire rating. He had invited a fire inspection in relation to obtaining the higher fire rating, he added.

Judy Felton said the commissioners would use the facility "in a minute," if the fire-safety problems cited by its own building inspector were solved.
Twin Falls County Zoning Administrator Lee Taylor toured the center last week and found problems similar to those noted by the fire inspectors. In his report to the commissioners Taylor noted them and an alleged violation of the UBC for a non-conforming access to the ceiling.
If the facility had been in Twin Falls County, he wouldn't have let it open, Taylor said.
Felton said the commissioners asked Taylor, who has no jurisdiction in Jerome County, to tour the center because the county was interested in using the facility. The commissioners had been waiting for a report from the Idaho Youth Commission about the center.

"We decided we can't wait any longer," Felton said.

Don't Jump Too Fast
For Just Any Home Equity
Line Of Credit

Wait a minute. It's taken Congress decades to do something about tax reform. So don't feel you've got to jump on the home equity line of credit bandwagon by December 31, 1986 to save on 1987 taxes.
The fact is, you've got plenty of time to consider which bank offers the most flexible, versatile and economical home equity line of credit to fit your financial requirements. And taking the time to shop around is the smartest way to save money from the start.
First Interstate Bank offers a wide menu of home equity secured and unsecured personal lines of credit, as well as conventional installment home equity loans to fit every financial requirement.
We think you'll agree that being a wise buyer of goods and services means shopping all the available options. Talk to the others; then talk to us. Don't rush into just any home equity line of credit. Find the best.

• Talk to your tax advisor to find out if a home equity line of credit will benefit you in the first place.
• Compare origination, annual fees and other bank charges.
• Compare each bank's repayment options.
• Compare how easy or difficult it is to access your line of credit.

AIDS patient has advice for women

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old woman who was recently diagnosed as having AIDS. I started having sex at age 15 and have had too many partners to know who I contracted it from. I have never used drugs or had a blood transfusion.

At the urging of several friends, I went on the pill so I wouldn't get pregnant. I didn't know that I could get something far worse than that.

Anyone who is having sex, unless you have been in a long-term monogamous relationship, please listen to me. When you sleep with someone, you are also sleeping with EVERYONE THAT PERSON HAS BEEN WITH. Are you willing to take that risk?

Abby, please print this. I want your readers to know that going on the pill or using another form of birth control other than a condom can be giving yourself a death sentence. You have to be very stupid these days to have sex without a condom.

It's too late for me, although my parents and I still pray for a cure, but maybe this letter will save other lives.

— BARBARA H. QUEENS, N.Y.

DEAR BARBARA: You and I will never know how many lives will be saved because you wrote as you did. In a recent column I said, "Who is absolutely safe? Only couples who ALWAYS use a condom, unless they are in a long-standing monogamous relationship."

I SHOULD HAVE stated that there are no "absolutes," — that a condom alone cannot be considered "absolutely" safe. However, with proper use and the additional use of a spermicide containing Nonoxonyl-9, one can reduce the chances of infection from the AIDS virus.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six months. Today I received an anonymous typewritten note that read: "Hope to hear from you soon." The envelope was addressed to "Mrs. R. S.," the sender enclosed two Dear Abby clippings, both concerning brides who had not sent thank-you notes for their wedding gifts.

One writer said a year had passed and she was still ashamed, but wondered if she should write anyway. The other was from a bride who asked how long was considered OK to wait before writing thank-you notes for wedding gifts. She said she thought she had read in your column that the bride had a year. (You replied, "No way, not in my column!")

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Abby, here's the situation: My husband and I had agreed that I would write the thank-you notes for gifts from my friends and relatives, and he would write the thank-you notes for his. Well, mine were written a long time ago.

I hope this makes your column so the anonymous clipper will know that the Mrs. wrote all her thank-you notes, but the Mr. obviously did not.

— NOT GUILTY IN ELGIN
DEAR NOT GUILTY: Let's hope the anonymous clipper sees this. Then what happened to the overdue thank-you note will no longer be a "Mr.-ry."

DEAR ABBY: That lady from New Mexico who resented workmen who asked to use her bathroom facilities sure did burn me up. I have a message for her: If the plumber who comes to repair her toilet isn't good enough to use it, fix it yourself!

— PLUMBER'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Read on for a reader who waxed poetic on the subject:

DEAR ABBY: That housewife who begrudged her latrine

Is the stingiest we've ever seen. She deserves some compunction. And a bladder dysfunction. Then she might be less high and prissier.

— SYLVIA SWAIN RUMMEL, FULLTON, MO.

Idaho reporting Taiwan flu

ATLANTA (AP) — Eighteen states and the District of Columbia have reported confirmed cases of Taiwan flu this fall, the national Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday.

Texas also has reported isolated cases of the other two major flu types, Type A-H1N2, or the Mississippi flu, and Type B, or the Ann Arbor flu, the CDC said in its weekly report. California also has reported Ann Arbor flu, the CDC said.

Lab tests show most cases of influenza being reported in the 18 states to be the new Taiwan flu strain that federal health officials warned about earlier this year, said Dr. Tom Torok, a CDC flu specialist. CDC officials recommended a new supplemental flu shot to protect against the Taiwan flu, known as Type A-H1N1.

The CDC listed the jurisdictions reporting Type A-H1N1 flu as: Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Hawaii, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Texas, Wisconsin and Washington, D.C.

A conventional three-component flu shot — guarding against the Ann Arbor flu, the Mississippi flu and the previous strain known as the Chile flu — was already in production when health researchers found the Taiwan strain was replacing the Chile strain in Asia, and might be headed here.

Local elderly lack gifts

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls area residents are reminded that Santa's helpers are needed if all residents of Skyview-Hazeldeil nursing homes are to be remembered on Christmas morning.

Readers are urged to call Shirley Harris at 733-7232 immediately to obtain a number. Each resident listed two or three simple items they need and these were listed by numbers which were run in the Times-News last week.

Harris says response has not been as good as usual this year and urges people to call her. The items should be gift wrapped and taken to the nurses station or office at the nursing home by Wednesday morning.

The Johnstons

BELLEVUE — Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Johnston, former Bellevue residents, now of Sisters, Ore., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 13.

Johnston and Clara Davis were married Nov. 13, 1936, at the home of her parents in Jerome. He worked in the mines at Halley and Bellevue and at the Triumph mine until it closed. Then he worked as a carpenter in the Ketchum area until retiring.

They then moved to Sisters, where they now reside. They were honored at a gathering earlier at the home of their daughter at Lake Stevens, Wash., hosted by their children.

The Johnstons have five children, Beulah Brooks, Gooding; Edwin Johnston, Kent, Wash.; Juanita Barkdull, Lahs, Stevens, Wash.; Ruth Disher, Fremont, Calif.; and John Johnston, Pocatello; nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Parents engage in tug-of-war over joint custody

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON Matt has two daughters, but most of the time he feels as though without a fatherly influence, and how they turn out will also be remembered. "Love, understanding, help — whatever they need, I could provide."

Joint custody has a simple definition, but it's an increasingly controversial issue. Usually, it means the divorced parents consult about the major decisions affecting their child. Less frequently, it involves joint physical custody, where the child spends significant portions of time with each parent.

No one on either side of the issue says the law should resolve all couples. Obviously, some divorces are so nasty that it's impractical. And everyone says it's a wonderful solution if both parents agree on it.

The issue reaches the boiling point only with the public policy question: whether the law should require judges to consider joint legal or joint physical custody as either a "preference" (the first option considered) or a "presumption" (assumed to be the best option). In other words, should a judge order joint custody if one of both parents can be successful in the first place, they won't be able to coparent successfully. This leaves the child in the middle of a conflict that is never settled.

Six years ago, David L. Levy spent $20,000 trying to win custody of his 4-year-old son. Now, he says, he and his ex-wife are friends. He also thinks they made a mistake. "Because the system said go for sole custody, each of us did. That's the prevailing view. But... we're both good parents, so why not cooperate?"

As a result of that experience, Levy formed the National Council for Children's Rights early last year. "We believe we're the only national organization trying to reduce the trauma of divorce for children," he says. Opponents, however, say the group is more ideological than it appears. "If they tell you they're not a fathers'-rights organization, they're lying," says Pollitt.

Here's how Levy, a copyright lawyer at the Library of Congress, says the situation. "Each year, there are a million children whose parents divorce. There are 100,000 custody battles, so at least 100,000 children are subjected to bitter court fights. Those are traumatic, and for the other 900,000, it's often not much better."

Studies show that single-parent families, Levy says, "have a higher percentage of drug and scholastic problems, teenage pregnancy and runaways. Clearly, the single-parent custody idea we've had in this country isn't successful."

That, he says, is why joint custody — usually joint legal, but sometimes joint physical too — is now accepted as an option in 41 states, up from only three in 1980. In 13 of those states, he says, it is a presumption or a preference.

But even if the current is running with him, Levy is worried. "The prevailing sentiment for 50 years has been single custody," he says, noting that most courts do not keep track of what kind of custody is granted. He estimates that about 10 percent of divorces now involve some form of joint custody. His goal: 45 percent.

Joint custody may be increasingly fashionable, says Richard Neely, but it's still "a harebrained solution." A

West Virginia Supreme Court judge and author of "The Divorce Decision," Neely asserts that "joint custody works well for responsible, mature people who have decided if all conditions are perfect. To allow it to be an option in every case would have the effect of prolonging child custody disputes to the great injury of the children... and of placing children in a less stable environment if joint custody is awarded than they would be if custody was simply given to one parent."

Levy of the National Council for Children's Rights concedes that if two parents are "bent on destroying each other, or if there's a lack of emotional stability, nothing's going to work... but you have to look at the 90 percent who don't litigate. If the social system dictates cooperative custody, most parents will work together."

Study of women finds few marriage worries

NEW YORK (AP) — Most single women don't worry about whether they will get married and most women do not feel marriage is a prerequisite for having children, according to a Glamour magazine survey.

Other findings are that women fear sexually transmitted diseases, coifet personal relationships and feel sexual discrimination is still a widespread problem.

The magazine questioned 800 women between the ages of 18 and 45 about their attitudes on marriage, relationships, jobs, money, and other subjects and published the results in its upcoming edition. It was the magazine's fifth annual survey on women's attitudes.

Only 14 percent of all single women surveyed expressed concern about finding a mate. That figure dropped to 11 percent for 18- to 29-year-olds and rose to 21 percent for women between the ages of 35 and 45.

Just half of the single women described marriage as being very important.

The survey also found that 76 percent of the respondents believed it is acceptable for a single woman to have and raise children; 73 percent felt that way in 1985.

No change in sexual attitudes noted was an increase in acceptance of extramarital sex. In 1985, 18 percent approved of it compared to 12 percent in 1985.

Glamour said sexually transmitted disease headed the list of women's concerns. Almost two-thirds of those surveyed said they have become more worried about such diseases.

The need for good personal relationships remained a strong goal, according to the magazine, which said four out of five rated them as very important. For the past five years, personal relationships have headed the "very important" list of factors in women's lives.

On the subject of discrimination, Glamour said education was the only area in which more than half of the women surveyed felt they were treated equally.

The women reported that discrimination hurt them most in wages. Only 13 percent said they felt they received equal pay for the same work as men.

In other categories, 44 percent hold full-time jobs; 41 percent feel financial success is very important; 9 out of 10 working women said they would prefer to stay home with their children if they could afford it.

Search on for best mother

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Association of American Mothers Inc. is searching for candidates for the 1987 Idaho Mother of the Year.

Helen Thompson, Sandpoint, chairman of the search committee, said civic, church or any organization other than the family is a requisite for an outstanding woman of their community. She must be active in church and community and have raised respected and successful children. Her youngest child should not be younger than 15 and her own age must be between 45 and 75.

Nomination forms are available from Thompson, 2000 Helen Thompson Road, Sandpoint, Idaho 83864. They must be returned by Feb. 1, when they will be reviewed by a panel of five judges.

There also are art and literary contests available to mothers in

Police raid Garden City home, seize bootlegged, pirated tapes

GARDEN CITY (AP) — A raid at a Garden City house netted police 571 bootlegged and pirated master cassette tapes and recording equipment, in all valued at nearly $600,000.

The name of the 25-year-old man who lives at the house was not released after Wednesday's raid pending issuance of a summons for his appearance in court, police Detective Sgt. Mike Caldwell said. A summons was expected to be issued within a week for a misdemeanor offense punishable by not more than $1,000 and six months in jail.

The year-long investigation resulting in the raid began after the New York-based Recording Industry Association of America Inc. contacted Garden City and Boise police about an advertisement in Goldmine, a national magazine for record collectors. The ad offered "rare and unreleased" materials from Rainbow Recordings and listed a post office box mailing address in Boise.

Police found a Beatles album of outtakes — or never-before-released songs — on EMI records, the group's English record label. Also confiscated were cardboard boxes filled with master cassette tapes from concerts and cable TV shows featuring rock groups and singers such as Pink Floyd, Genesis, Badfinger, Chicago, Supertramp and Neil Diamond.

Caldwell said. A pirated tape is an unauthorized copy of a legitimate recording that does not duplicate the original cover artwork. Bootlegs are commonly unauthorized recordings of concerts, radio, TV and cable broadcasts that were not intended for release.

The value of each of the master tapes seized in the raid was estimated at $1,000 by the Department of Law Enforcement, Caldwell said. The department estimated that each tape causes $1,000 damage to the recording industry in lost royalty payments.

"But it is the consumer who pays for it in the long run," Caldwell said.

Recording equipment worth less than $1,000 and a seven-page catalog of merchandise also were seized, he said.

A press release from RIAA said $78 million worth of illegal sound and video recordings and related equipment was seized by law enforcement officials nationwide in 1984. The figure represents the loss to the legitimate industry that was prevented by these seizures.

The RIAA estimated the total economic loss to the recording industry from the sale of illicit products at more than $300 million in 1984.

Sportsmen want fund caps lifted

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho sportsmen are joining together to pressure state lawmakers this winter for removal of the $300,000 caps on funds used to underwrite improvements for boaters and off-road vehicle users.

"A cap on those funds is unrealistic, now because it doesn't take into account inflation," said Clark Collins, chairman of the Idaho Public Land Use Committee, and Pocatello Trail Machine Association President Fred Stoll added, "I'm going to get real ornery and say it's our money in the first place."

The $300,000 cap on both the Waterway account and the Off-Road Vehicle fund were imposed in 1978 when both were created by the Legislature. But last year alone, state boaters and off-road vehicle users contributing more than twice that much to each through gasoline taxes.

Money in excess of the ceiling has been diverted to Parks and Recreation Department projects.

Supporters of at least raising the cap on both accounts contend it would bolster tourism and recreation throughout the state by allowing improvement projects on the waterways and in the national forests that would draw tourists to Idaho. Some officials claim that they are able to accomplish under the current law is insignificant com-

Indian educator cites economics in pushing drive against alcohol

PABLO, Mont. (AP) — As long as a large number of Indians abuse alcohol and drugs, they will not be able to develop economically, a Canadian professor says.

"No matter who the tribal elders were that were speaking 100 years ago, they warned us of the dangers of alcohol and they warned us it would be destructive to the people," said Phil Lane Jr.

Lane, originally from South Dakota, is a Yankton Sioux tribal member and professor of education at the University of Lethbridge in Alberta.

He visited the Flathead Indian Reservation Wednesday as part of an on-going crusade against alcohol among Indians. Lane took part in a day-long training session at the Kootenai College in Pablo.

He is working with native tribes and bands throughout North America toward a goal of eliminating alcohol and drug abuse by the year 2000, Lane said.

He is a founder and coordinator of the Four Worlds Development Project, which helped produce a videotape on the struggle of the Alkali Lake Indian band in British Columbia to rid itself of alcohol abuse.

The band of Shuswap Indians, who live about 750 miles north of the Idaho-Washington border, began a slow, painful campaign to rid itself of alcoholism, Lane said. After 12 years, the band boasts 95 percent sobriety, he said.

Four Worlds has developed dozens of other videos and curriculum packages to promote education, community development, alcohol and drug abuse prevention and research, he said.

Lane said the name Four Worlds reflects the project's philosophy, which is grounded in Indian culture and spiritual values.

The principles are symbolized by the medicine wheel, a traditional circle divided into four parts. Those parts reflect the four directions of the compass, as well as human qualities, phases of life and qualities of the natural and spiritual worlds that are to be kept in balance, he said.

Last June, the vision of an alcohol-free society drew 2,000 people for a four-day "Celebration of Sobriety" at the Arlee powwow grounds.

Lane also is helping develop an educational program on the Flathead Reservation to give a boost to tribal youths who show college potential.

School plans drafted

BOISE (AP) — Left substantially short of the cash needed to build the new, five-domed high school, the Emmett School Board decided to contract for all but the interior work on the five domes.

Then ask voters again for enough money to complete the job.

The plan, offered by a citizens' group pressing for completion of the school, was adopted Wednesday night in the wake of voter rejection a month ago of an additional $1.8 million bond issue to underwrite completion of the project.

Voters approved a $4.4 million bond issue in 1985 after district officials said it would be enough to complete the domed structure. But costs have exceeded original projections, and engineers believe at least another $1.6 million and possibly more will be needed to complete all work.

Still, district officials contended that even with the overruns, the domed school will still be cheaper overall than construction of a traditional building.

The district has not rescheduled the election on the supplemental bond, but it will likely be held in late spring and possibly sooner if the district can receive permission from the state to hold a second vote less than six months after the first.

Boise Marine dies in cycle collision

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A Boise, Idaho, man has been killed in a head-on collision with another motorcyclist in Santa Ana, Calif., the Highway Patrol reported.

The victim was identified as Edward Brian Ransom, 25, of Boise, a Marine lance corporal stationed at Tustin Air Force Base.

Police said the other motorcyclist also died in the accident.

Utah tax hike call won't be repeated

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — If the Utah Legislature approves his proposed $206 million tax increase for another hike next year, Gov. Norm Bangerter says.

"I think it would be very difficult to follow it with another next year," the governor said at his monthly televised news conference today.

On Wednesday, Bangerter unveiled a $2.8 billion budget for 1987-88, a lean spending plan he said would be the first of several bare-bones fiscal blueprints over the next several years.

The Legislature will take up the proposed budget next month when its regular session convenes.

Telephone switchboards at the governor's mansion and the capitol logged some opposition to the tax increase following Bangerter's address to members of the House and Senate, but he said, "I don't make my decisions based on the polls."

"I make them on what's achievable and what's right," the governor said.

Much of Bangerter's tax increase package would go to undergird the state's overcrowded and underfunded public school system, which is reeling under the weight of several years of rising enrollment.

However, the governor said the pace of enrollment growth is expected to peak within the next decade, and after that pressure on state coffers should ease somewhat.

Meantime, Bangerter said he will push school administrators to run their programs more efficiently. However, he hesitated to detail the manner in which he will hold school districts accountable.

"I can't expect the same utilization in a rural district as in an urban district," Bangerter said.

For example, he said, the state will not pay the heating and lighting bills for three schools "when two will do the job."

By the same token, Bangerter said he would not allow districts to build new schools if they could avoid construction by going to year-round programs.

On another matter, the governor defended his $50 million Great Salt Lake pumping project, despite recent-dry weather that had held the 39-mile-wide, 80-mile-long inland sea in check.

Former Idaho legislator dies at 88

EMMETT (AP) — Frank Everett operated a farming and livestock operation near Sweet Goodwin, 88, a three-term state senator and a Gem County commissioner for two years, died of natural causes Wednesday in an Emmett nursing home.

Goodwin helped form the Snake Creek Soil Conservation District and served 17 years as its chairman.

Goodwin was a state senator from 1951 through 1958 and a county commissioner in 1947 and 1948.

He was born April 20, 1897, at Payette, and was educated in Payette and at Link's School of Business in Boise. He served in the Army during World War I and later

Agreements pave way for gas lines

CEDAR CITY, Utah (AP) — Mountain Fuel Supply Co. this week received franchise agreements from several key communities, paving the way for the company to begin construction of a $47 million natural gas pipeline to southern and central Utah, an official said.

Mountain Fuel spokeswoman Susan Glasmann said the company received franchise agreements from Richfield, Mt. Pleasant and Manli, giving the utility a large enough base to move forward with service plans.

Bulldog girls nip Pilots, 51-50, for a leg up in A-3 seedings

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

GLENN'S FERRY — It was everything expected and then some. The Kimberly Bulldogs, putting only four girls in the scoring column, won Glenn's Ferry 51-50 in Canyon Conference Thursday night for a leg up in the district playoff seedings chase with a perfect 11-0 record. The hometown Pilots dug themselves in a hole in the first quarter and then spent the entire game trying to get out of it. "The first-quarter defense won the game. They beat us the other three," said Kimberly Coach Wes Remaley, who saw his team build a 20-11 lead in that span. "The first quarter is always the key. Our game plan was to win the first quarter. The key point in the game for

Glenn's Ferry Coach Ken Fast actually came in the third quarter when Pam Pember had to sit out the entire quarter after picking up four fouls in the second quarter. "That was a big factor," he said. "You can't sit your starter at the post position who scores 15 points per game and, stay close," referring to the six points that separated the teams at intermission. With Barb Johaneck recovering from the flu, two starting Pilots on the bench with five fouls and Pember on the pine with four fouls Kimberly took full advantage in the third quarter. Kelli King, who had 22 points for the Pilots, hit an early three-pointer cutting the Bulldogs advantage to four points midway through the quarter but the Bulldogs boosted it back to seven points minutes later. The Pilots, however, weren't ready to roll over. With 1:37 left, King stole the ball and went coast-to-coast, scored and converted a free throw to cut Kimberly's lead to two points. The spotlight in the final twenty seconds of the third quarter was put on Kimberly's Shantell Anderson who knocked in five free throws. A couple of minutes into the final quarter Kimberly moved out to double-digit-advantage after Clady

Holcomb hit two baskets and Audra Urice added another to make it 49-33. In the next two minutes Glenn's Ferry took control. Four points each by Johaneck and Pember cut the lead to a point before both teams went scoreless over the next two minutes. Holcomb finally broke the scoreless streak with a turnaround jumper, giving the Bulldogs a four-point lead with thirty-seven seconds left. Kimberly knew the Pilots would look for King, but King shook off the defender and canned her fourth three-pointer — the contest — with seven seconds left. Kimberly was able to keep the ball away from Glenn's Ferry in the final seconds to keep their record perfect. "The pressure is really getting to us," said Remaley. "Everybody wants to beat the Bears. They want to beat us." Urice had 15 points for Kimberly while Anderson chipped in 10. For the Pilots, Pember had a dozen despite sitting out the entire third quarter. Glenn's Ferry won the junior varsity game 33-22.

49ers, Rams fight for NFC West title in televised match

By ERIC PREWITT
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco 49ers' last nationally televised night game was a nationally televised embarrassment. Coach Bill Walsh's team ends the regular season on Friday night by playing the Los Angeles Rams, 10-3, before another national TV (ABC) audience and with a division title at stake. The winner will be the NFC West champion and the loser will go into the playoffs as a wild-card entry.

"When you play for a championship, they want it on national TV and there's no other game on at the time, that's a great arena," said Rams Coach John Robinson. "The playoffs are starting a week early for the 49ers and us."

The Rams could have clinched the title last Sunday, but they ran into a five-touchdown passing barrage by Miami's Dan Marino and fell 37-31 to the Dolphins in an overtime game.

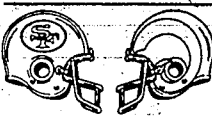

San Francisco, 9-5-1, has beaten the New York Jets and New England Patriots, AFC East co-leaders, since suffering what Walsh considers the 49ers' most devastating loss in its eight years as coach. They held a 17-0 halftime lead over the New York Giants, but lost 21-17 in the Dec. 1 Monday night game.

"Basically, we still feel we should have won that game," says fullback Roger Craig.

In the playoffs, the 49ers could get an opportunity to avenge the loss.

"That brought out the character of the 49ers, believe me, because that loss struck us right in the middle, tested our team totally as far as character is concerned," Walsh said at the end of the week. "We were out to prove we're competitive with any team in the league, and I think we are."

In the last two games, the 49ers have played excellent defense and, on offense, displayed a strong running game, led by Craig and Joe Cribbs, to complement the passing of Joe Montana. The Rams' Eric Dickerson has virtually clinched the NFL rushing title, with 1,733 yards so far, and rookie quarterback Jim Everett has thrown for 867 yards in his five NFL games. Everett has passed for seven TDs, one more than the seven-game total of Montana, who was out for eight weeks after back surgery.

Steve Bartkowski was the Rams' quarterback and Jeff Kemp was the 49ers' passer on Sept. 14, when the Rams won 16-13 at Anaheim. "We're rapidly moving into a different team," said Robinson, meaning that the Rams' offense is no longer so dependent on Dickerson's running.

Walsh said, "Everett has one tremendous advantage over other young quarterbacks, and that's Eric Dickerson. He hasn't yet had to throw 30, 40 or 50 times in a football game."

The 49ers' first priority on defense, as always, will be to stop Dickerson, Walsh said. They held the Giants to character is concerned. Walsh said at the end of the week. "We were out to prove we're competitive with any team in the league, and I think we are."

The Rams' running back, selected as a Pro Bowl starter, has reached 100 yards rushing 11 times this year and 33 times in his four NFL seasons, but he's had less than 100 in his last five games against the 49ers.

Morris offers to sign with Yankees

For just one year, with arbitrated pay

By FRED GOODALL
The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Free-agent pitcher Jack Morris, shopping around for a new team after nine seasons with the Detroit Tigers, met with Yankees owner George Steinbrenner Thursday and offered to sign with New York for one year and let an arbitrator set the salary. Steinbrenner, Morris and his agent, Dick Moss, also presented Steinbrenner with several other packages rejected by the Minnesota Twins earlier this week. The proposal to sign a one-year contract was not given to the Twins.

Morris, the winningest pitcher of the 1980s, said he was willing to sacrifice the long-term security sought by most free agents for a one-year deal with New York because the Yankees are a contender and he is confident of his ability to win for them.

"The Ysp has been that you can't give pitchers long-term guaranteed contracts because they're not going to come through and be worth the money you give them," Morris said after meeting with Steinbrenner. "I'm willing to try to prove that to be wrong."

The session at the Bay Harbor Inn, owned by Steinbrenner, lasted just more than an hour. And Moss said he was confident he had presented Steinbrenner with a proposal the Yankees owner "can't refuse."

The meeting created one of the most interesting scenarios in free-agent bargaining history. It was Moss who successfully argued the 1975 Andy Messersmith decision that essentially created free agency, and Steinbrenner was the first owner to take advantage of the system.

"There has been a free-agent freeze over the past year, with none of the prominent ones changing teams or getting any outside offers. The players' union has protested the act of filing a charge of collusion against the owners."

Kirk Gibson, who was a free agent last season, was not pursued by any other teams and eventually re-signed with Detroit. The Yankees used 12 different starting pitchers last season and are in need of front-line pitching.

"I think he was very interested in the proposal and I'm confident that he will accept," Moss said, adding that he expects to hear further from Steinbrenner by noon Friday.

Steinbrenner called the offer to go to arbitration "unique." He said he will study all the proposals received from Morris and Moss, but that he will not be rushed into a decision.

"I'm not going to be put to a deadline," he said. "But in fairness to Dick and Jack, who want to move on to New York, I can't reach an agreement. I'm going to try to move as expeditiously as possible."

Morris and Moss planned to be in New York Friday. If Steinbrenner decides against signing the pitcher, Moss said he would talk to the Yankees.

Packers' wide receiver Lofton arrested on assault charges

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers wide receiver James Lofton was accused Thursday of sexually assaulting a woman in a stairwell, but was later released on $10,000 bail pending formal charges next week.

Lofton posted the bond and left the Brown County courthouse with his wife and attorney. He declined to comment.

Green Bay Packer Coach Forrest Gregg suspended the nine-year veteran without pay shortly after his arrest, saying the action "must be taken at this time for the good of the team and the Packer organization."

Lofton was arrested at home about 7:30 a.m. and booked at the Brown County Jail on a tentative charge of second-degree sexual assault, Deputy Green Bay Police Chief Robert Langan said.

At the request of Brown County District Attorney Peter Naze, Circuit Judge Charles Kuehn ordered Lofton not to leave the county before his scheduled court appearance of Tuesday. Naze said the police investigation of the early-morning incident delayed necessary paperwork from reaching his office, so he was unable to prepare the charges. The criminal complaint would be completed by the Tuesday appearance, he said.

Milwaukee attorney Steve Glynn said he and the Packers' suspension of Lofton and are in need of front-line pitching.

"I think he was very interested in the proposal and I'm confident that he will accept," Moss said, adding that he expects to hear further from Steinbrenner by noon Friday.

Steinbrenner called the offer to go to arbitration "unique." He said he will study all the proposals received from Morris and Moss, but that he will not be rushed into a decision.

"I'm not going to be put to a deadline," he said. "But in fairness to Dick and Jack, who want to move on to New York, I can't reach an agreement. I'm going to try to move as expeditiously as possible."

Morris and Moss planned to be in New York Friday. If Steinbrenner decides against signing the pitcher, Moss said he would talk to the Yankees.

EWU's Frederickson deserved his last laugh in the Big Sky

Dr. H. George Frederickson, Twin Falls High School class of '52, got the last laugh after all.

Eighteen months ago, following a three-year campaign to get Eastern Washington University, of which he is president, admitted to the Big Sky Conference, Frederickson had the door slammed in his face.

Now the Big Sky Conference presidents told him. Maybe later.

Last Wednesday in Reno, Nev., those same eight individuals welcomed Frederickson into the fold with open arms.

"Oh, I think it was a process of them getting to know us," says Frederickson, whose school will become the Big Sky's ninth member in July. "Three years ago when we'd go into a Big Sky city and play, fans would say, 'who are these guys?' Now they say, 'Oh, yeah, Eastern Washington — they beat us last year.'"

In truth, Eastern became a lock for Big Sky membership on Nov. 30, 1985, when the Eagles' football team defeated league champion Idaho in the first round of the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs. EWU was no longer a jumped-up NAIA teacher's college whose reach exceeded its grasp. The Cheney, Wash., school had achieved athletic parity with the programs of the Big Sky — and maybe more.

Between Nov. 6 of 1985 and Eastern's admission to the conference last week, the school's football teams were 11-5 against the Big Sky competition, its basketball teams were 6-4 and its press guides were proclaiming pointedly, "The Eastern Eagles own the sky."

"Winning made a little difference," concedes Frederickson. "No one wants to admit it, of course, but I think changed some attitudes."

Eastern Washington isn't a household word outside, well, eastern Washington, but Frederickson set out to change that soon after he got the presidency of the institution 10 years ago. First he moved Eastern out of NAIA and into NCAA Division II and hired football coach Dick Zornes away from Columbia Basin Community College with the eventual goal of building up to the Big Sky.

It was a slow process. Moving from non-athletic scholarships to 65 for football and a dozen for basketball is expensive.

"It involved putting together a good plan-and sticking with it," says Frederickson, who came under intense pressure last year to try to get EWU into the Big Sky when the school was having financial problems. "A lot of people said that the state of Washington didn't need another Division I institution of higher education and that we were overemphasizing athletics. I think a lot of times colleges tend to be wimps about things like that. We're here because we decided to tough it out."

Eastern has some formidable competition for the dollars and the athletes necessary to sustain such a program. High school seniors in eastern Washington who can play at the

Capener's 20-fuel Cougars to 84-69 win over Wildcats

By The Associated Press

OGDEN, Utah — Senior guard Bob Capener scored 20 points and led a balanced scoring attack as the Brigham Young Cougars posted an 84-69 nonconference basketball victory over host in-state rival Weber State Thursday night.

The Cougars broke open a tight contest midway through the second half as they outscored Weber 18-2. Tied at 59 with 10 minutes to go, the Cougars used a tough defense to build a 77-63 lead and led by as many as 13 points during the rest of the game.

Junior Jeff Chatman added 17 for the Cougars, now 4-4, while sophomore Michael Smith had 13.

Greg Boyd led Weber with 22 points and forward Harry Willis added 11 for the Wildcats, now 1-7.

Boyd scored 12 points in the first half and led the Wildcats to a 38-30 halftime advantage.

Montana 101 Irvine 80

MISSOULA, Mont. — Forward Wayne Tinkle's career-high 16 rebounds and 24 points led five Montana players in double figures as the Grizzlies downed Cal-Irvine 101-80 Thursday night in a nonconference college basketball game.

Tinkle scored 16 points in the first half as Montana scored the final 30 points to take a 44-24 lead.

Cal-Irvine outscored Montana 13-2 at the start of the second half to close to 48-47 with 17:16 left.

But buckets by Mike Ahlers and Tinkle gave the Grizzlies some breathing room, and the visitors never threatened again.

Montana steadily pulled away and took a 101-77 lead, the biggest of the game, with 1:20 left. Also in double digits for Montana, now 7-2, were Scott Zanon with 22 points, Tony Reed with 18, Ahlers with 12, and Steve Vaneck with 10.

Cal-Irvine, now 3-3, was led by Wayne Englestad with 22 points, Scott Brooks with 19, and Joe Buchanan and Mike Doktorczyk with 10 each.

Auburn 89 Augusta 66

AUBURN, Ala. — Jeff Moore, benched for missing practice on Wednesday, scored eight of his 10 points during a 29-9 spurt in the first half that put No. 6 Auburn in control and the Tigers downed Augusta College 89-66 in basketball Thursday night.

The Tigers trailed 18-16 on Jeff Hodson's three-point basket, with 11:05 left in the first half before Moore and Gerald White led the surge that carried the Tigers to a 45-27 halftime lead.

White, making his first appearance of the season after being sidelined with a lower back problem, has four assists during the Auburn run.

The Tigers, 6-0, were led by Frank Ford's 17 points, Mike Jones added 16, and Chris Morris and Johnny Lynn had 15 each.

Stumped

Witherspoon can't fathom how he failed drug tests before and after his fight

By ED SCHUYLER JR. The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Tim Witherspoon doesn't understand how he could have failed drug tests before and after his first-round knockout loss to James "Bonecrusher" Smith in defense of the World Boxing Association heavyweight title, the attorney for the boxer said Thursday.

"Either the tests were bad or someone else's urine was used," attorney Dennis Richard said by telephone from Miami.

Jose Torres, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said Wednesday both tests proved positive for marijuana.

"The only reason he fought was to avoid being suspended," Richard said. "He knew he would get suspended if he smoked marijuana."

Torres announced the finding Wednesday. He said commission technicians came up with the results Monday and that there were reconfirmed by an outside laboratory.

Witherspoon contended his contract to fight Smith, who was substituting for Tony Tubbs, should be nullified because he had not signed it. But Torres said manager Carl King had signed it, making it legal.

Richard said Witherspoon "was tested before he knocked out Frank Bruno in the 11th round July 19 in London, in Atlanta on Nov. 8 and a week before the (Smith) fight and was free of it."

Witherspoon won the title on a 15-round decision over Tubbs last Jan. 17 at Atlanta, but tested positive for marijuana after the fight.

The Atlanta Commission suspended Witherspoon and ordered him to return to Atlanta for random tests, to attend a drug rehabilitation program and to speak out against the use of drugs. The WBA fined Witherspoon $25,000 and ordered him to give Tubbs a rematch.

TIM WITHERSPOON Doubts the test results

Tubbs withdrew from the rematch, contending he had an injured left shoulder. Torres suspended Tubbs and Carl King, who also manages Tubbs, for failing to report the injury sooner.

King is also co-manager of Smith. The fight ended at 2:12 of the first round when referee Luis Rivera invoked the three-knockout rule, which states any fighter knocked down three times in a single round loses.

Richard contends the three-knockout rule was not in effect at the time when referee Luis Rivera invoked the rule and that was made clear at the rules meeting, which was attended by Slim Robinson, Witherspoon's trainer.

Brodhead, former LSU athletic director, fined for gifts to employees

By AUSTIN WILSON The Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — Bob Brodhead, former Louisiana State University athletic director, received a suspended $2,500 fine Thursday in a ruling which could have far-reaching implications at LSU and other state schools.

The Commission on Ethics for Public Employees found that Brodhead and Baton Rouge media executive Douglas Manship Sr. violated state regulations involving payments and gifts to public employees.

"It seems they did so without intending to do wrong. Neither Manship nor his Baton Rouge Broadcasting Co. was fined for giving a free trip to Brodhead and his wife or paying Brodhead for his weekly radio show."

The commission also recommended that state schools be told to review their employees' contracts with outside business interests.

"That could make it difficult for state schools to attract and keep first-class coaches, administrators and faculty members, Manship said."

"It seems to me thoroughly impractical," he said.

Since most football and basketball coaches have their own shows, it could bring those sources of income under the commission's scrutiny.

Peter Wright, a commission attorney, said that even with the commission's instructions, it is possible to have a coach's show without violating the ethics code.

Compensation would merely have to go to the university for record keeping before going to the coach, he said.

"I think that would work. And it's more than just a shuffling of money. In that case, you've got the university in control," Wright said.

Brodhead agreed with Manship that if the commission ruling extends to coaches' shows, it could make it difficult for a state school to have top-quality coaches for its major sports.

"You can't attract a nationally renowned coach unless he has peripheral sources of compensation," Brodhead said.

But LSU football coach Bill Arnsparger said a coach's show never was a top-quality coach for his major sports.

"I've never been a guy who took a job because of the money or who stayed because of the money," he said.

He also said the National Collegiate Athletic Association Presidents' Commission has been talking for some time about coaches' shows and other outside sources of money.

"I believe...all of the things like that will be reviewed on a national level by the NCAA and I think that's good," he said.

Manship and Baton Rouge Broadcasting were accused with Brodhead in both allegations. One said that Manship gave Brodhead and his wife free transportation and lodging for a weekend trip to Mexico and the other that Manship's radio station, WJBO, paid Brodhead $300 a week for his radio show.

Manship also is president of WBRZ-TV and publisher of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate and State Times.

Brodhead said that he was pleased that the commission recognized there was no criminal wrongdoing and no intent to do anything wrong.

"I think we knew all along that (the allegation) was technical in nature, technical but very serious," he said.

"When you are running a $14 million business, it's very hard to wade through all of the regulations and rules."

"I didn't know I was doing anything wrong."

Much-touted Horford excited at opportunity to start for Hurricanes

By JOEY HOLLEMAN The Associated Press

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Tito Horford, the most publicized college basketball player never to play a game, hopes to lose that distinction with a flourish Saturday night when he starts at center for Miami.

"Now the time has come that I don't have to watch anymore," Horford said Thursday. "I'm looking forward to playing."

"It's been a hard time for me watching everybody else play."

The pressure has been building on the 19-year-old center from the Dominican Republic for more than a year in a series of much-chronicled moves — from the University of Houston to Louisiana State to Miami. He wants to put the controversy and doubt behind him Saturday simply by playing the sport he loves against Dartmouth.

"I'm not nervous," he said. "There is some pressure, but I'm looking forward to playing and I hope to do my best."

Miami Coach Bill Foster had hoped to bring Horford along slowly, allowing him to mature along with a young team that he coached last year with a freshman-dominated lineup. But the first-year success hasn't carried over as Hurricanes have stumbled to a 1-4 start without Horford.

"If this once promising season is to be salvaged for Miami, Foster admits, Horford is going to have to be the one who does it."

"I don't know if the poor guy will be able to lift his arms, we're putting so much pressure on him," Foster said. "He's only one 19-year-old kid."

But he is a kid with a massive body and incredible athletic skills. He runs more like a cheetah than a giraffe. Unlike many young seven-footers, he has excellent coordination.

"That's why he was one of the most highly recruited players in the country two years ago out of Marian Christian High School in Houston. He chose to stay in town at the University of Houston, but the NCAA ruled that he could not play for the Hurricanes because he had violated recruiting rules to get him."

A transfer to LSU lasted less than a semester, ending when either he quit the team or was kicked off by Coach Dale Brown, depending on which side is telling the story.

Horford said he read about the Miami program which was starting up last year after a 14-year hiatus.

He knew Miami was close to home and had a diverse ethnic community where he wouldn't feel like an out-cast. So last January, he transferred to Miami.

Horford said he wouldn't stick around long enough to play a single game. But he has had no problems at Miami, diligently attending classes and practices while trying to become as close to a normal college student as he can be.

He will be as anything but normal on the basketball court.

"He's just a great raw talent," Foster said. "He's an excellent athlete and he'll become an excellent player in time with effort."

Blazers trade Berry to Spurs

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Portland Trail Blazers traded Walter Berry, last season's college basketball player of the year, to the San Antonio Spurs Thursday for rookie reserve center Kevin Duckworth.

The 7-foot, 280-pound Duckworth was the 33rd player chosen in this year's NBA draft of college players. Berry was Portland's first-round pick and was the 14th overall selection.

The Blazers had three selections before Duckworth was chosen. Berry has had a difficult time since joining the Blazers. He has missed 12 games because of back pain although Blazers officials say examination showed no sign of injury.

The 6-foot-8 former St. John's star was fined an undisclosed amount when, while injured and not playing, he failed to show up for a home game Dec. 2.

McKinney takes women's race

COURMAYEUR, Italy (AP) — Tamara McKinney won a women's slalom race Thursday, giving the United States ski team its first victory of the season.

The 24-year-old, from Olympic Valley, Calif., the only American woman to win the World Cup overall title, edged Austrian Roswitha Steiner and Monika Maierhofer with a time of 1 minute, 20.02 seconds for her two runs down the Chetif track, at the foot of Mount Blanc.

Steiner finished second in 1:23.50 and Maierhofer was third in 1:23.66.

Four Swiss skiers and another Austrian filled the fourth through eighth places, in the race held over falling snow.

McKinney's victory was marred by a controversy between the U.S. and Austrian teams over illegal advertising.

Fifth-place finisher Ida Laedsterfer of Austria raced under protest because she wore unauthorized logos on her skis and pants. Laedsterfer was first disqualified, following a protest by the Americans, then reinstated on an appeal by her team.

The International Ski Federation will make a final decision in the case within a few days.

Italians favored to win slalom

KRANJSKA GORA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Italian skiers, led by Ricardo Pramotton, are considered the favorites in the fourth men's World Cup giant slalom of the season Friday.

Pramotton, 22, has two victories and one second-place finish in the three races so far.

But Pramotton faces strong competition from teammates Oswald Teutsch, Robert Erlacher and Alberto Tomba, as well as Swiss, Swedish and Austrian rivals.

Pramotton has only 12 fewer points in the overall Cup standings than Swiss all-rounder Pirmin Zurbriggen, the leader with 105 points after 10 Cup events.

"I hope that I can score another victory," Pramotton said. He ruled out overall title ambitions, though, saying, "I am thinking of the giant slalom cup only."

Zurbriggen, who has one third, one fourth and an eighth in giant slaloms this season, said that downhill training had reduced his efficiency in the technical events.

Rangers get Froese from Philly

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers obtained Philadelphia goaltender Bob Froese Thursday in exchange for defenseman Kjell Samuelsson and a second-round draft pick in 1989.

Froese tied for the NHL lead in victories last season, but lost his starting job this season to rookie Ron Hextall. He has played in three games this season, with a 2.67 goals against average.

Last season, he had a 2.65 goals against average in 51 games. His 31 victories tied Rangers' goalie John Vanbiesbroeck for the league lead.

Braves' Horner a free agent

ATLANTA (AP) — Slugging first baseman Bob Horner, captain of the Atlanta Braves for the past two seasons, is pursuing free agency now that the club has withdrawn its original contract offer.

General Manager Bobby Cox said the offer, reported to be $4.5 million over three years, was withdrawn because the Braves felt it was too high.

"We never felt comfortable with the (original) offer," Cox said. "We've had it out there for a few months for them to ponder, and they haven't taken it."

Horner earned $11 million this year, when he hit .273 with 27 home runs and 87 runs batted in. His agent, Buckley Coy, was seeking a four-year deal worth $2 million annually. The Braves now are expected to scale down any new offer to about $1 million a year.

Knicks' Ewing fined $3,000

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Knicks center Patrick Ewing was fined $3,000 by the NBA Thursday for punching Boston's Greg Kite during a game this week.

Ewing threw an elbow at Kite and then slugged the reserve center in the second quarter of Tuesday's game, which was won by the Celtics 107-96. Ewing was charged with a punching foul, but was not ejected.

Knicks spokesman John Cirillo said the team had no comment on the fine and that Ewing was not available.

The NBA said Rod Thorn, vice president of operations, had leveled the fine after the league's security department had investigated the incident and reviewed a videotape of the fight.

Kite was not injured.

Conner: Would rather not face New Zealand

But veteran skipper is confident his boat could repeat victory

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — Veteran 12-meter skipper Dennis Conner said Thursday he would rather face fellow Californian Tom Blackaller and his USA in the America's Cup challenge semifinals than the red-hot entry from New Zealand.

At the same time, Conner said he was confident his yacht, Stars & Stripes, could repeat its first-round success against the New Zealand entry in the challenge finals.

He also there was no bad blood between him and Blackaller, as speculated. "That's the media," Conner said. "It's a long-time rivalry. We had to beat Tommy the last two times and we will do it in 1989."

Conner won the America's Cup in 1980 but lost the trophy to Australia in 1983 of Newport, R.I.

Although he said Blackaller's yacht had improved over its earlier performances, "I don't see any problem beating him."

In the preliminary round to see which foreign yacht would challenge the Australian defender for the America's Cup trophy, Conner's boat handed New Zealand II its only loss in 34 matches races during the series.

"After racing Tom in a good series, we'll be better prepared for the finals. I consider it a very positive situation," Conner said. Asked if he could repeat his first-round victory over the fibreglass New Zealand boat, Conner said: "I know we can."

Conner pointed out that Stars & Stripes and New Zealand have sailed 72 miles with only 37 seconds difference between them.

"The people who don't think we're competitive with them haven't been out watching the races," he said.

Asked if New Zealand had a psychological advantage because of its proximity to Australia and strong backing from the people, Conner said: "They have 3 1/2 million New Zealanders behind them. We'll have 200 million Americans behind us when we meet."

He dismissed French Kiss as a mediocre boat which won't win a race against New Zealand in the other challenger semifinal.

"They did a good job. They didn't have any major gear failures. They didn't lose anybody onboard, they didn't lose any sails onboard, and they beat the boats they had to, but they are not fast. They're slower than Canada II," Conner said.

Conner wasn't surprised by the fate of America II, the New York Yacht Club entry that failed to advance in the challenge round.

"I felt they were off the pace," he said. "You must remember that this is the first New York Yacht Club challenge. In the past, they picked the defender who did all the work."

"This was their first challenge and in many ways it was a Texas challenge," Conner said, referring to the large role played by America II skipper John Kollas, a Texan, and members of the Fort Worth Boat Club.

Asked if he would move the America's Cup to his home port of San Diego should Stars & Stripes win, Conner said he had not made that decision. Conner's Sail American syndicate represents the San Diego Yacht Club, of which Conner is a former commodore.

"San Diego would be the logical place for it," he said as prepared to see off at the Royal Perth Golf Club during a rare moment of relaxation.

"Our commitment is to do what is best for yachting and the America's Cup, and to see how that works out with San Diego because it is a large commitment on part of the town, financially and in a lot of other areas."

Paterno's odd axioms are the stuff of legends

By MAUDS. BEELMAN
The Associated Press

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — For Joe Paterno, it has been what the Penn State football coach would describe as a very, very big league week.

First, he was named Sportsman of the Year by Sports Illustrated and Wednesday night he won the Bear Bryant award, given by the Football Writers Association of America to his choice as the college coach of the year.

Penn State, with a perfect record and ranked No. 2, will play top-ranked Miami in the Fiesta Bowl Jan. 2 for the national championship.

The man who paces the sidelines with his cut-up pants, white socks and black shoes, has added to his stature, if not his vocabulary this year.

His speech — peppered with coaching axioms and what can be described only as "Paternoisms" — has remained relatively constant through the years.

Paterno is fond of descriptive like "big-league" and "awfully tough (good)." But it's the "outta whacks," "willy nillys" and "loosey gooseys" which are the vintage Paternoisms.

Most opponents Paterno's team

most face — have "a big-league player."

His own passer, John Shaffer, "is a big-league quarterback" and Pittsburgh quarterback Joe Fellitsky has "a big-league arm."

"Dink Pella" did very, very well for them against Rutgers. I think he'll be tough," Paterno said before the Pitt-Penn State game.

"Rutgers could not get him outta whack."

However, Penn State did — outta whack 34-14.

In Paterno's language, running backs have "awfully good feet" and receivers make "awfully big catches."

And each opponent seems to have had a component of its game plan that is "the best we've played so far this year."

Even pronounced underdogs had the potential of being "a very explosive football team."

"If we get beaten by (X) it will be because (X) is a better football team," he says. And remember, the coach warns often, "you're never as good as you think you are when you win and never as bad as you think you are when you lose."

Paternoisms hold that the surest way to lose a game is "to kick the ball around." Always "you got to play your game," although it's sometimes hard to judge team progress "because some of the people have not played their game against us."

JOE PATERNO

'Outta whack means your're all screwed up. Willy nilly means you just don't care what happens. Loosey goosey is close to willy nilly. A loosey goosey might care, he may be interested, but if it happens it's good and if it doesn't that's O.K.'
— Penn State coach Joe Paterno

Sometimes opposing players are well-traveled: "They got a guy (Miami's Vinny Testaverde) that's been around the block." Sometimes they're not. In the Orange Bowl last January, Oklahoma quarterback Jamelle Holloway "hadn't been around the block much."

Paternoisms can rub off on others. Example: Penn State All-America linebacker Shane Conlan (talking about Helman Trophy winner Testaverde: "We'll have to keep him in the pocket, keep him from scrambling, because that's when he gets you outta whack."

While no one has actually kept a record, "outta whack" would have to rank right up there with "loosey goosey" and "willy nilly."

Before the Rutgers game, the coach lamented, "Brian Syerling can be as good a tight end as you'd want in college, except that every once in a while he goes down there and the ball's coming and he very loosey-goosey — just trails on it, doesn't get hit."

To the 59-year-old Paterno, the phrases he grew up with as a boy in Brooklyn, N.Y., have quite specific meanings.

"Outta whack means your all screwed up. Willy nilly means you just don't care what happens," Paterno carefully explained.

"Loosey goosey is close to willy nilly" but not the same, he said in rapid-fire explanation. "A loosey goosey might care, he may be interested, but if it happens it's good and if it doesn't that's O.K."

There are theories for why Paterno keeps using his favorite descriptive.

"It's a way he deals with the media without revealing a lot. I think he relies on phrases sometimes to just sort of fill-in-the-blanks," said Ron Bracken, a sports writer for the hometown Centre Daily Times who has covered Paterno for 19 of Paterno's 21 years at Penn State.

Southwest Conference punt return king's more than halfway toward the major-league record of 4,695 set by Vanderbilt's Waltley almost 40 years ago. And he is Tech's fourth leading receiver with 18 catches for 184 yards.

"He's been told all his life that he couldn't do a thing," says Dykes, "but he makes his grades (a 3-plus grade point average) and he plays football at the next level."

Thurman is even hopeful of a career in professional football.

"I told me I was too small to play college football," he said. "I lied but because it pushed me to strive to be a better player than the people wrong, that I could play football."

Smurf... er, Independence Bowl set for Saturday

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Officially it is Independence Bowl XI. But if Mississippi junior Willie Goodloe and Texas Tech sophomore Tyrone Thurman get their hands on the football, Saturday night's game could turn into the Smurf Bowl.

Goodloe, a 5-foot-6½, 165-pound junior, became Ole Miss' starting tailback at midseason and led the Rebels in rushing with 526 yards. He ranks fourth in career kickoff returns (36), fifth in kickoff return yardage (51) and sixth in punt returns (47) and return yardage (409).

According to Coach Billy Brewer,

Independence Bowl

Goodloe "was all smiles" when the two squads mingled at a midweek get-together and he met Thurman.

"Actually, Brewer said, Goodloe looked down" at Thurman, which he does not do to many people but something that often happens to Thurman, the smallest player in major-college football at 5-3, 135.

"He was only 5-1 and 111 when I started coaching him," says Spike Dykes, Texas Tech's new coach who was the head man at Lee High School in Midland, Texas, during Thurman's junior year when the team reached the state finals.

"The first time I saw him play football was in junior high school and I couldn't hardly see him. I thought he'd be devastated, but he just proved me wrong."

Although Thurman claims to run a 4.3 forty, it is his quickness and darting moves rather than blazing speed that has made him the nation's fifth leading punt returner with a 13.5-yard average. With 863 career yards, the two-time

"The most critical thing we must answer is 'What will the distractions in our program do to the mental state of this football team?'" Tollner said. "It's hard to play your best game if you don't think it's the most significant thing in your life. Our staff is looking for jobs, players are unhappy with the situation and are concerned with their future."

In the Trojans' immediate future awaits Auburn, whose 9-2 record was not far from perfect.

"The more we look at the film, the more we see a legitimate top-10 team," Tollner said. "If they had played a tougher schedule early, they'd be in the top 10. They're five points away from being undefeated. They lose by one point to Florida and by four points to Georgia."

Auburn held its opponents to less than 11 points per game, five times holding them to nine points or less. Only three times this season did the Tigers fail to score 30 points in a game.

"The thing that gets our attention is that nobody has scored more than 20 points against us," Tollner said. "When you have a guy like Brent Fullwood on the other side of the ball and you combine that with a stingy defense, it makes things difficult."

Fullwood, Auburn ran for an average of 24.3 yards per game, Fullwood carried 167 times for 4,919 yards (an 8.3-yard average). Tollner called the 5-11, 205-pound senior the "best breakaway, big-play back in the country."

Despite Citrus appearance, bell tolls for USC staff

By TIM LIOTTA

LOS ANGELES — Soon-to-be-deposed Southern Cal Coach Ted Tollner needs to find a way to turn his team's attention away from his parole into the Smurf Bowl.

Last week, Southern Cal President James Zumberge announced that Tollner and his staff would be relieved of their coaching duties after the Trojans' last post-season football game.

The weight of that announcement can be felt at the Trojans' practice sessions.

"Our practices have been emotional and business-like. There isn't the joy and total commitment in the program that goes with being in a New Year's Day bowl game," Tollner said Thursday. "I've got to find a way to eliminate the distractions."

Speculation has swirled through local newspapers as to who will replace Tollner and what awaits the Trojans, who lost their final two games of the season to finish 7-4.

NFL news: Seahawks' Knox needs 5th straight to reach playoffs

By JIM COUR
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Seattle Seahawks coach Chuck Knox likes to say that football is not an exact science.

And there's been nothing exact about Knox's 1988 season. The Seahawks, who have bounced back to win four straight games after a four-game losing streak.

"There's been no magic formula for us," said Knox. "We just stood the course when things weren't going well. We didn't press any panic buttons. We just kept working hard to get better and then we started making some plays."

The enigmatic Seahawks 9-6 wind up their regular season Saturday in Seattle's Kingdom in a crucial game against the AFC West champion Denver Broncos, 11-4.

A Seattle victory — combined with two losses among Kansas City, Cincinnati and New England — would put the Seahawks into the NFL playoffs for the third time in Knox's four seasons in Seattle.

The Seahawks are 31st favorites in the 1 p.m. PST game in the Kingdom.

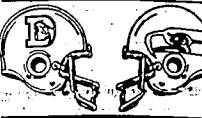

Seattle's players insist they can't explain the team's inconsistency.

"I can't really come up with any one reason why we're playing so well now and why we weren't playing very well earlier," said quarterback Dave Krieg.

Krieg's own rejuvenation has been a major factor in the club's resurgence. During the past four weeks, he has completed 67 percent of his passes, with nine touchdown passes and only one interception.

Krieg actually lost his starting job to backup Gale Gilbert for two games this season. But he got it back. During the past four weeks, he has completed 67 percent of his passes, with nine touchdown passes and only one interception.

Krieg's brilliant 305-yard, four-touchdown passing performance in a 34-24 victory in San Diego last Sunday moved him up to No. 5 in the NFL quarterback ratings with a pass efficiency mark of 88.3. He was perfect in the second half against the Chargers, hitting 10 for 19 on 192 yards and two touchdowns.

"I just hope you can continue to play the same way this week that we've played the last four weeks," said Krieg. "If we do that, we've got a chance. Then, hopefully, everything will take care of itself."

"If we find a way to win this game and have a 10-6 season, then we can sit around and see what's going to happen," added Knox.

The Seahawks missed the playoff last season, going 8-8. At the start of this season, they thought they could make it back to the playoffs again, but they needed to stay healthy.

That did not happen. Ken Easley and Blair Bush were lost.

Easley, a veteran strong safety and 1984 NFL Defensive Player of the Year, underwent ankle surgery. Bush, a veteran center, was sidelined with a knee injury.

Paul Moyer, a former free agent from Arizona State, has replaced Easley and Will Grant, a nine-year veteran who was released in Seattle's training camp this summer.

Easley is starting for Bush. Moyer is not. Easley and Grant are not. Bush and they're playing well, Knox coach says.

"It comes down to the fact that this group really has wanted it," said Knox. "They've battled and fought hard."

It's never hard to pick a football season's heroes. But the NFL extends beyond Eric Dickerson, Lawrence Taylor, Dante Marino, Dexter Manley, Mike Ditka, Bill Parcells, Joe Gibbs and Doug McTomczak-Fuller.

Here are some people and teams who've missed the limelight.

Most overlooked coach: Marly Schottenheimer, Cleveland. After Don Rogers died of a cocaine overdose in the off-season, Schottenheimer lost his other safety, Al Kross, to an injury in the opener. Kevin Mack also was hurt in that game, and Schottenheimer's best receiver, Brent Johnson, was injured, suffered an injury that bothered him all year. NCAA completes random testing of 20 teams in post-season games

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The NCAA has completed random drug-testing of athletes on 20 Division I football teams scheduled to participate in post-season football games, an official said Thursday.

Frank Uryasz, assistant director of research and sports sciences at the NCAA, said the urine tests began Dec. 1 and the last were completed on Monday.

Players tested in the past two or three weeks to be tested — or who refused ineligible from post-season competition, but Uryasz said the NCAA will not make any public announcement on the results.

"The NCAA doesn't release the results," he said. "We only provide the results to the schools, and they are responsible for any release."

The drug testing is an outgrowth of action taken in January at the NCAA convention at New Orleans. In September, Executive Director Frank Uryasz announced that the testing would begin this fall for athletes in post-season football bowl games and 74 NCAA championship events.

Uryasz said the first testing was done earlier this fall immediately after the Division I men's and women's cross country championships. He said quarterly participants in the Division I-A, Division II and Division III football championships were also tested. Five players have been banned from the Division II and Division III football tournaments, but Uryasz declined to any comment on results of the testing.

Of the players banned, four, including two from North Dakota State, were found to have taken steroids and one had too large a dose of a decongestant.

Uryasz said that participants in only 10 of 18 post-season Division I football bowls were tested because the testing is being done on a random basis.

"This first year of testing, all championships, post-season championships, and post-season bowl games are subject to testing, though not all of them will be tested," Uryasz said.

He also said there is "a possibility" for additional random testing to be conducted immediately after a bowl game.

Uryasz said the NCAA had proposed to test players both before and after bowl games, and if a school had any player who tested positively for drugs after a game, the team's performance would be invalidated.

However, the NCAA Executive Committee later suspended the team sanction penalty through the spring championship season. The matter is scheduled for further consideration at the NCAA convention next month.

Uryasz said that the NCAA tried to give seven days advance notice to bowl-bound schools whose football players were tested.

The regulations call for testing 36 players per team — the 22 who have the most playing time and 14 others chosen at random. The NCAA has 25 testing crew chiefs, 20 of whom are either physicians or registered nurses, who are responsible for training crew members and administering the on-site testing.

The urine specimens are analyzed by laboratories at the University of California-Los Angeles and the University of Quebec in Montreal. There are seven categories of prohibited drugs, including stimulants, anabolic steroids and diuretics and well a street drugs such as cocaine and marijuana.

If marijuana use is detected, the regulations call for only a warning on a first offense, with suspension if it is found again.

Uryasz said that the NCAA budgeted $250 per individual tested, of which about $170 covers the cost of laboratory analysis. He said that the cost is charged to the championship event or bowl involved, with the NCAA paying the rest from the amount it has budgeted for drug testing.

Grand jury completes Bias report

By DAVID GINSBURG
The Associated Press

UPPER MERLBORO, Md. — The grand jury investigating the cocaine-induced death of basketball star Len Bias completed a report on Thursday that sources close to the investigation said covers all aspects of the case.

Bias, who achieved All-America status at the University of Maryland, died June 9 of cocaine intoxication. The grand jury began its probe of the death in July and, after interviewing 20 witnesses, started to compile their final report in mid-October.

"The report is 20 to 30 pages long and contains extensive information on everything (the grand jury heard) since July," a source said after the panel met six hours Thursday. "A great deal of time was spent to make sure that no detail was overlooked."

The report touches on the circumstances surrounding — Bias' death, but concentrates on making recommendations to the University of Maryland in such areas as athletics and campus drug policies, the source said.

The report was submitted to Prince George's County Circuit Judge Joseph Casula for a final review. Casula said he was going on vacation next week and will likely not be able to read the report until sometime in January.

AT&T sets sharp cuts in forces

NEW YORK (AP)—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. will cut as many as 27,400 jobs and set aside a $3.2 billion reserve to cover the costs of streamlining for the future, the company said Thursday.

The sweeping job cuts cover 5 percent of the company's management and 8 percent of non-management workers and extend across the company.

Including the latest round, AT&T will have cut about 84,000 employees since the breakup of the Bell System on Jan. 1, 1984. More than 290,000 will remain on the payroll.

After the company said, net income in the fourth quarter was expected to be reduced by $1.7 billion, or $1.63 per common share.

On Wall Street, AT&T stock fell $1.12 1/4 to $26.12 1/4 on the New York Stock Exchange, where it was the most heavily traded issue.

Although the cost-cutting should help AT&T in the long run, investors are concerned about the effect on the company's profits in the coming year, said analyst Frank Governale of Kidder, Peabody & Co.

Proposal on lumber set forth

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. negotiators have offered an "extremely generous" proposal to Canada that will soon lead to settlement of a trade battle over Canadian lumber exports, a lumber industry official said.

The proposal was made by Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, since the lumber dispute is seen as a chief obstacle to negotiation of a free trade agreement between the two countries.

"The offer was transmitted today to Canada's negotiating team, and I anticipate we will reach agreement in principle by the end of the week," said Gus Kuehne, executive director of the Northwest-Independent Forest Manufacturers.

"The proposal would have the Canadian government accept a 25 percent cut of about 15 percent on lumber headed to the United States.

"It was closely in line with a proposal the Canadians have already made," Kuehne said. "While they haven't agreed or accepted it, the initial offer was very positive."

Canada is expected to export about $2.9 billion worth of softwood lumber to the United States this year, and it has captured almost a third of the American market.

In October, the U.S. Commerce Department made a preliminary finding that Canada's lumber exports are subsidized because of low prices Canadian provinces charge on trees harvested on government-owned land. It set a temporary 15 percent import penalty duty on the products at that time.

GIVES AWAY FORD MOTOR COMPANY MONEY

Instead, Lincoln/Mercury pays Theisen Motors FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS for every '87 automatic transmission Topaz, SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS for every standard transmission Topaz. They pay Theisen Motors ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS for every Merkur XR4Ti. They pay Theisen Motors THREE HUNDRED DOLLARS on every Mercury Lynx.

This Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Theisen Motors gives the cash back. We will give you Ford's Dealer Payment direct. You buy one of the above mentioned cars and Theisen Motors will sign over their factory payment. This is not a guaranteed $2000 trade-in sale. This is not a lower interest rate. This is Ford Factory Money. No dealer contribution will affect your savings.

So what can you do with this money? Use it for cash down. Use it for lower interest rate. Use it for Christmas money, or, Just Keep It . . . Whatever, you get the cash, not the dealer.

NO DEALER CONTRIBUTION JUST COLD CASH!!

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"Either men will learn to live like brothers or they will die like beasts."

— Max Lerner.

Today's West holds the keys to a cooperative defense. If he defends routinely, East may not cooperate.

If West sounds a loud alarm, East is sure to rise to the occasion.

West cashes his heart king and notes East's five and South's troy. He continues with his queen, and both East and South follow. How should West continue?

If West plays a wooden heart ace, he is contributing to the probability that East will take a nap. East may discard, South will ruff low and the defenders will score only two hearts and one trump, conceding game and rubber.

How does West make sure that East will cooperate if he can? Instead of leading his heart ace at trick three, West should lead a low heart. The bidding makes it unlikely that East has a defensive trick, so the best chance lies with a trump-promotion play.

After this mind-jostling lead, East will surely realize that it's time to ruff with his 10. South overruffs, of course, but instead of one trump trick, West now takes two, sending the game one down.

Peter Jenkins takes close-up look at China

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A trip of a lifetime. A dream experience come true. A nightmare of legal/entanglements. An occasional humorous and heartwarming incident.

Such was Peter Jenkins' 1984 trip to China, a trip he details in his new book, "Across China."

Jenkins, who also wrote "Walk Across America" and "Walk West," will be in Twin Falls Saturday from 6 to 7 p.m. at Judi's Bookstore in downtown Twin Falls to autograph his latest work.

It is Jenkins' third appearance in Twin Falls. Five years ago, he kicked off his promotional tour of "Walk West" here, since the book featured his stay in the area with two area families.

"I'm genuinely looking forward to returning to Twin Falls," Jenkins said during a phone interview on Monday. "I feel like I have family there."

Jenkins' last effort, which was also a National Geographic article, made the best-seller list. He is hoping this book will do the same.

Unlike his two previous adventures, Jenkins does not walk across China. He flies, takes trains and is ferried on wild mountain rides in beat-up trucks. Yet, there are a lot of similarities to his trip to Twin Falls, he said.

"I think it's what sets me apart from the average, or most, travel writers," Jenkins said. "I stayed with people in China, just like I lived with the (T.W.) Williams family in Twin. And I think it's what people like best to read about."

The book begins in Tennessee, when Jenkins receives a surprise phone call from a friend inviting him to a Mount Everest expedition. He accepts with a mixture of excitement and guilt, because his wife is pregnant.

The first part of the book deals with the Mount Everest expedition and the men and women who undertake it.

But Jenkins does not stay through the entire climb. He sees them through to the first base camp, and then takes off for Inner Mongolia. He hooks up with a Chinese woman, Ran Ying, whom he met in Tennessee. Together they explore a land few foreigners get to see, he said.

"I think the reason they allowed me to live with a family in Inner Mongolia was because I was fortunate enough to have Ran Ying," Jenkins said. Although she had moved to the United States, her family still lived in China. Her mother was editor of China Daily, the largest English language newspaper in the country. Her father was a high-ranking official in the Chinese equivalent of the State Department.

Jenkins said he was not sure if Ran Ying was being used to keep tabs on him. "I've had thoughts about it," he said. But she says that her aggressive style helped get him through Chinese red tape.

The most interesting parts of the book are chance conversations with Chinese, who talk freely about the changes since Chairman Mao died. The Cultural Revolution was a bust, and they are glad it's over.

A Chinese general Jenkins met on a train ride told him that "China is much better now and the policies are much more open since Mao die."

The same general also showed his pride in his country when he told Jenkins that there was "no doubt that the judging at the Olympics for men's gymnastics was rigged."

"The Chinese gymnasts deserved to win every gold and silver medal, but Americans bribed all the judges," the general told Jenkins.

Although China may be more open in allowing foreigners to travel, the country is still under communist control. And Jenkins said he recognized that fact.

"I changed the names of anyone who could be adversely affected by the book," he said. In some cases, he said he also changed their occupations.

Jenkins said he had no difficulty, nor has he heard of anyone who had problems after he left. But he said he did receive a call from U.S. government officials — he would not say who — who warned him to keep three separate copies of his book "in case my office caught fire."

In one incident, that Jenkins said was sure to be embarrassing to the Chinese government, Jenkins and a friend stumbled into a propaganda movie in Tibet. The movie depicted Buddhist monks as child molesters and their temple as a den of ill repute. A girl kidnapped by the monks is saved by a Chinese soldier in the movie. The Chinese communists have for years harassed Tibetans and destroyed Buddhist temples in efforts to wipe out their religion.

Jenkins said the Tibetans did not try to stop him from seeing the movie, and he was not escorted by Chinese interpreters. Tibet is so isolated, it makes Idaho look like New York City, Jenkins said.

"The Tibetans are like natural hippies. They're a very easy-going people," Jenkins said. "I think they thought the movie was funny."

In his book, Jenkins, however, did not find the experience a real hoot. "I felt stunned, and then a raging anger began to build," he wrote. "How could they dare show this radical propaganda to these innocent and trusting people?"

That experience, along with others, strengthened Jenkins' appreciation of America, he said.

"I would never again complain about critics," he wrote. "If anything, I would push more criticism of our way of life, our media, our government. Freedom, I loved it. And I was beginning to understand how free I really was."

Twin Falls ornaments grace state tree in D.C.

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Christmas tree ornaments from Twin Falls, along with 38 other ornaments from all over Idaho, decorate Idaho's National Christmas Tree, which stands at the Capitol in Washington, D.C.

The tree stands with 55 others around the National Christmas Tree to form the Pathway to Peace on the Ellipse.

The two handmade ornaments from Twin Falls were the artwork of Susan Orr, an Idaho native. One ornament is Idaho pine cones decorated with silk roses, moss and a small bluebird. The second is a giant jingle bell, decorated also with a bluebird and small pine cones.

Orr says she wanted the ornaments to be symbolic of Idaho. The bluebird is the state bird, and the pine cones were Idaho Ponderosa pine cones, collected in McCall, she explained. Also on the ornaments is dried yarrow, a plant frequently found in Idaho.

"I feel really special about contributing to the tree," she says. "Ornaments are a special thing with me. Part of me and my Christmas decorations are also going to Washington."

The Idaho Commission on the Arts coordinated gathering the decorations for the national tree. Earlier this fall, a statewide invitation was issued to artists, artisans and art groups, to make and submit ornaments.

Forty were selected to represent the state on the national tree, and the others are being used to decorate the Idaho Artists' Tree at the St. Alphonsus Festival of Trees in Boise.

Orr received an invitation to participate in the event because she had earlier taken part in the Beaux Arts Society's art show in Boise.

Orr, 39, has been in the business of making Christmas ornaments for about three years, she says. She has a workshop at her home where she makes ornaments and then markets them around the area.

She describes herself as a "frustrated artist." She works eight hours a day and has had trouble finding time for her creative needs. Crafts have helped to solve that problem, she says.

"Crafts are easier to find time for, but also expressive," she says. During especially creative times, Orr says she will stay up most of the night working on her ornaments.

Aside from ornaments, she also enjoys working with folk art — especially animals, she says. In the past, she has made "old-time pull toys" with grizzly bear and sheep figures on them, she says.

Orr says she has also participated in many art shows and has shipped her work all over the United States.

Ski resort plans holiday activities

By JIM McPHERSON
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The major winter activity in Sun Valley, of course, is skiing.

And even though Mother Nature has been less than cooperative, the Sun Valley Company's snow-making capabilities should insure that parts of both sides of Baldy will be open by Christmas. Cold weather and steady maintenance have kept the man-made snow in good condition for skiers.

Besides skiing, though, a wide variety of other activities will also be available to Sun Valley residents and visitors during the coming week, ranging from Hemingway to the "Messiah," from art to hockey, from history to fireworks, and from chariot racing to a torch-light parade.

Opening activities include ice skating at Sun Valley's outdoor rink, cross-country skiing in many locations, trips in gliders and hot air balloons, and a variety of styles of musical entertainment in clubs and lounges throughout the valley.

In addition, many activities have been scheduled specifically for the upcoming week. Some of those are:

SATURDAY
The Wood River Chariot Racing Association continues its season on the Rotarun track, west of Halley, with racing to begin at 1 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults, free for children.

The Romberg Christmas Studio pottery sale will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Community Clay Studio in Ketchum. Call 726-5655 for more information.

"The Ketchum Kiddie Christmas Show," featuring puppets, costumes and music, will begin at 2 p.m. in the Old City Hall on Main Street in Ketchum. Admission is $1.

Handel's "Messiah" will be performed by the Wood River Community Choral at Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church in Ketchum, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

The Sun Valley Snos hockey team will host the Boise Blues, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Sun Valley Skating Center. Admission is $2.50 general, and $3.50 for balcony seating.

SUNDAY
Jackpot Team Roping will begin at 11 a.m. at the Susie Q Ranch, east of Pleebo. Call 726-4869 for more information.

A statue honoring Sigi Engl and Sepp Froehlich, two of Sun Valley's early leading citizens, will be dedicated at 4 p.m. on the Sun Valley Mall.

Handel's "Messiah" will be performed by the Wood River Community Choral at Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church, beginning at 6 p.m. Admission is free.

MONDAY
Sun Valley Company will host three lectures in the Gammas Room, across from the main entrance of the Sun Valley Inn. At 2 p.m., local author and historian Marsha See HOLIDAY on Page D2

'Christmas in Sun Valley' features local music

By JIM McPHERSON
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Idaho residents can add a local touch to their Christmas music collections this year, thanks to a new tape recently released in the Wood River Valley.

"Christmas in Sun Valley," featuring ing the music of a number of Sun Valley area musicians, is available at the Music Center in Twin Falls and at many stores in Ketchum and Sun Valley.

Conceived and produced by Ron Black, a writer, performer and producer of radio and television commercials, the tape contains Christmas music from local performers Joe Fos, Lei Lam Guyot, Alan Peaney, Michael Wenzling, Patty Parsons, Leana Leach, Muzzy Braun, Kip Alkaway, The Yarnettes, Mike Murphy, Joe Cannon and The Joe Maccarillo Trio.

Also featured are two choirs. The Ketchum Children's Choir, made up of children 8 to 11 years old, sings "Silent Night" in both English and German and "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer"; the Wood River Community Choir contributes "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah."

Twin Falls, Rupert singers headline 'Messiah' concert

Tri-County Lutheran Church of the Big Wood. The chorus and soloists will perform the Christmas Story for the birth of Christ. Selections from the second and third parts, dealing with his death and rebirth, will also be performed. Several choruses, including "Hallelujah," "Glory to God" and "Amen" will be sung during the production, then the audience will be asked to join in singing popular Christmas carols.

KETCHUM — Two Magic Valley singers will be the featured soloists for the Wood River Community Chorus production of Handel's "Messiah," to be held at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday at Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church in Ketchum.

Bass singer Robert Newman of Rupert is a graduate student at the University of Idaho who recently won an audition with New York's Metropolitan Opera. He sings regularly with the Boise Opera, the Spokane Symphony and the Intermountain Opera.

Tenor Balhasar Buldar of Twin Falls, who has a doctorate in music from the University of Texas, will be the other featured soloist for the Chorus' fifth production of the "Messiah," which is expected by organizer Dave Carter to draw more than 500 people for each of the two performances.

The chorus is made up of about 70 people of varying ages and churches from throughout the Wood River Valley. They will be joined by organist Dorinda Vevik, pianists Karen Erickson and Leana Leach and timpanist Ted Dyer, who performs regularly with the Joe Fos Trio. Directing will be Patty Parsons, a popular local performer who also directs the choir for the Presbyterian Church.

Shelley collection donated to New York Public Library

NEW YORK (AP) — A collection of documents left by English Romantic poets, including the largest set of autographed letters by Percy Bysshe Shelley and a lock of hair from the author of "Frankenstein," has a new home at the New York Public Library.

The collection, known to scholars as "Shelley and his Circle," was donated to the library by the Carl and Lily Pforzheimer Foundation.

"The collection is conservatively appraised in excess of $20 million," Mayor Edward I. Koch said at a City Hall news conference Thursday. "But its value as a scholarly resource is absolutely priceless — and future generations of scholars will always have access to the collection, thanks to an additional $3 million endowment."

Vartan Gregorian, president of the library, called it "one of the most important collections ever received in the library's history."

"Its arrival marks a great event for scholars nationwide — and worldwide," he said.

However, the foundation restricted use to qualified researchers who presented valid identification and an explanation of their research topic, and similar restrictions will apply at the library, said Lauren Moyé, a library spokeswoman.

In most cases, she said, access will be restricted to university graduate students, professors and professional scholars. College students, typically, would not be allowed to see the papers.

Some items from the collection, including a lock of Mary Shelley's hair, will be on display to the general public for several months.

The 8,000 manuscripts and 13,000 printed volumes document Shelley and his associates, shedding light on their political views as well as their intimate relationships.

Highlights of the collection include "The Esdaile Notebook," a copybook containing the bulk of Shelley's early poetry; a pocket notebook with the only text of "A Philosophical View of Reform," Shelley's longest prose work; and more than 300 letters and manuscripts by Mary Shelley, Shelley's second wife and author of "Frankenstein."

The collection includes much material on Lord Byron.

community — for Christmas," said Black, who is spending his second holiday season in the Wood River Valley. He is familiar with Sun Valley Audio's recording studio, which he called "the best sound studio in the state, easily," but admitted that he wasn't used to working regularly with the musicians involved.

"A lot of them didn't know me before this," he said. "But all were eager to participate in the project, he said, and the production took only a little over two weeks. The tape was finished in October, then packaged by Black. The cassette is a black and white photo of Baldy Mountain by local photographer Steve Snyder.

The tape benefits from both the high quality studio and the fact that the Wood River Valley is blessed with an extraordinary number of talented musicians, said Black. He only regret he said, is that the project was finished so close to Christmas, leaving little time for promotion and distribution.

"I'm going to put it way out there next year," he said, adding that he will probably rearrange some of the music, perhaps adding new songs or musicians, and repackage the album before next year's Christmas marketing season.

The current edition has traditional Christmas songs on one side, and "lighter" tunes on the other. Two of the numbers are originals written and recorded by Pennay and Guyot. One is titled the same as the tape, "Christmas in Sun Valley," the other is called "Magic."

Attaway and Braun join Braun's four children, "The Little Braun Brothers," in singing "Nutcracker Christmas," and the Joe Maccarillo Trio contributes a Christmas medley of "I'll Be Home For Christmas," "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" and "Winter Wonderland."

Other songs include "A Merry Little Christmas," "We Three Kings" and "Jingle Bells" by Foss; "Jesus, My Man's Desiring" by Wedding; "I Wonder As I Wander" by Parsons and pianist Dorinda Vevik; "What Child is This" by Leach; "It Happened in Sun Valley" and "A Yuletide Christmas" by the Vuarnettes; "My Favorite Things" by Cannon and "Christmas Song" by Murphy.

Romance in the West continues to fascinate Idaho Falls author

By CATHY ARNOLD
Times-News correspondent

LINDA SANDIFER
Goes for happy endings

TWIN FALLS — Linda Sandifer began writing as a 13-year-old girl, living on her family's farm near Rigby. She decided then that writing would be her profession.

Twenty-one years later, in 1984, the Idaho Falls writer's first novel, "Tyler's Women," was published by Avon. The Western romance, set in Colorado and Texas in the 1890s, won her the Idaho Writers' League 1985 Writer of the Year Award.

Avon has just released the sequel to Sandifer's first book, "Pride's Passion," continues the Chanson family saga in Colorado at the onset of the Cripple Creek gold rush in the waning days of the great Western cattle bonanza, Sandifer said.

Although Sandifer never was a whiz at history in school, she said that doing research for a book is different. Instead of memorizing dates and famous names, she looks for details that will give her a feel for the period and help her get to know her characters. She spent about a year researching and writing each of her books.

Sandifer is working on another Western romance, this one set in Texas in 1875. It will not be a sequel.

The romance novel is currently so popular because "women and men enjoy getting away from the realities of life for a while and slipping into some fantasy," she said. "I think women like to read about a relationship that ends happily between a man and a woman who are in love."

Sandifer will sign copies of "Pride's Passion" at B. Dalton Booksellers in the Blue Lakes Shopping Center Mall Saturday from 1-3 p.m.

Raising money to produce 'Crimes of the Heart' tough

Newsday

"Problems in raising money for this picture were not slight," said veteran producer Freddie Fields, the man most responsible for bringing "Crimes of the Heart" to the screen.

For Fields, that's quite a statement. A theatrical agent who founded Creative Management in 1960 and later ran MGM, Fields has overseen dozens of film projects, including Diane Keaton in one of her early movies, "Looking for Mr. Goodbar" (1977). But Beth Henley's Pulitzer Prize-winning "Crimes of the Heart" was a special case. Despite the promise of a first-rate director and cast, studio after studio turned him down before the DeLaurentis Group came to the rescue. Fields explained the Hollywood mind-set this way:

"Beth wrote dialogue for performance. But when the studios see it as three sisters in the South, they say: 'Where's the audience? Who do we sell it to?' It's not youth-oriented.

It's got no violence. No sex.' But then, what do you call 'Terms of Endearment,' 'Charlies Fire' or even 'Star Wars'? I saw exactly what we have here, a piece with terrific performances. And a picture that would make you feel good."

Director Bruce Beresford echoed Fields' sentiments.

"I saw the play in 1981 and I called my agent the next day," he said.

"But a lot of studios are wary of doing a movie based on a play. This one, after all, was not as successful in Los Angeles as in the East. As for winning the Pulitzer Prize, that's anathema to the studios. It has an egghead connotation. But 'Crimes of the Heart' is enormously accessible, an extraordinary piece."

After seeing the movie at a recent Los Angeles preview, Henley, who wrote the adaptation, was overcome with emotion at seeing her vision up there at last.

"I was really moved," she said. "I couldn't leave the theater. I cried."

Dilettantes set another 'Sugar' tryout

TWIN FALLS — Because of the holidays, the Dilettantes of Magic Valley theater group is extending auditions for the cast of the musical "Sugar," to be presented in mid-March in the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho.

Auditions will be held at 7 p.m. Jan. 6 at the Renaissance Academy, 505 Second Ave. E. Director Howard Miller, of Dietrich, says persons who have tried out in the previous auditions need not try out again, but may if they wish.

Both men and women are needed for the cast, Miller says, especially dancers.

Aileen Weir, Jerome, will choreograph the show. Bruce

For further information call Vicki Brunyer, 734-4718, after 5 p.m.

Idaho Falls free-lance photographer Dennis Neltzel said nothing prepared him for 'grandeur of the wildlife'

Photographer bags Kenya book shots

Drew assignment through magazine ad

By CATHERINE ARNOLD
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Dennis Neltzel can open a book to see five of the 2,000 pictures he shot last June in Kenya.

He was one of 67 photographers who contributed to "Kenya, the Adventure," the first in the "Earth Trek" series of books published by Kenway Publishing Ltd. of Mombasa, Kenya.

Neltzel, a free-lance nature photographer, works as an electrical training specialist at Westinghouse Idaho Nuclear Co. in Idaho Falls.

His response to an ad in Modern Photography magazine brought him an invitation to join a nine-day expedition of professional photographers to photograph Kenya. The expedition was divided into groups, and each chapter in the book represents the work of one of these groups.

Neltzel belonged to the Amboseli Expedition, which produced all of the photos in the "Big Game" chapter. They visited the Amboseli National Park, West Tsavo and East Tsavo, where the film "Out of Africa" was shot.

Neltzel seems especially proud of one picture in particular. He said, "It's the one of the elephants with Kilimanjaro in the background. They gave it two pages and there are only about six in the book that got two pages."

His other contributions to the book are also wildlife pictures, including a water buffalo and one of a kipspringer, a tiny deer which grows only to 20 inches at maturity. Several times a year Neltzel travels to national parks and primitive areas to take pictures of wildlife. His winter scenes of Yellowstone and the Grand Tetons have been featured on magazine covers and in calendars.

Sometimes his wife and children accompany him in their motor home on his treks through backwoods and ghost towns of the West.

Neltzel said his experience in the wilds of the West helped prepare him for his African journey.

"It has given me an eye for a good scenic or wildlife shot," he said. "That has been my primary interest and so knowing what to look for in composition was easier. Some of the studio photographers had difficulty because they are used to having more control."

But nothing could prepare him for the "grandeur of the wildlife," he said.

"There's just no comparison, seeing them in the wild instead of in a zoo or park. The elephants look bigger, the giraffes look taller—I can probably never completely enjoy seeing animals in a zoo again."

Neltzel hopes to do at least one tour a year for this series. He has his application in for the European project which will include 100 writers and only 10 photographers at Walden Books, the Magic Valley Mall on Sunday from 2-5 p.m. He will also have framed prints of his photographs on display and for sale.

'Aliens' to land in video tape

Los Angeles Times

tor Brian De Palma, best known for his gory thrillers, should stick to thrillers.

HOLLYWOOD — February's big home-video release, scheduled for Feb. 26 by CBS-Fox, will be "Aliens," the sci-fi and horror shocker that was one of this year's biggest hits. This will be one of the first cassettes marketed at the new $99.98 price tag, that may become the industry standard for major movies by midyear.

Because of the higher price, sales to customers will certainly drop. Most likely rental prices will rise slightly but legions of fans will be eager to rent this crowd-pleasing blockbuster anyway.

That final week in February will be a busy one in video stores. Touchstone is releasing "Ruthless People" Feb. 24, starring Bette Midler and Danny DeVito. This comedy about a riotous kidnapping was a huge success. Instantly turning DeVito into big box office.

Because he is so popular now, "Wiseguy," a CBS-Fox release due Jan. 29, should do good business in the home-video market. Audiences and most critics were lukewarm toward this comedy about the misadventures of two petty gangsters played by DeVito and Joe Piscopo; consensus was that director Brian De Palma, best known for his gory thrillers, should stick to thrillers.

'Messiah'

Resounding popular Christmas music once frowned on by clergy

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
The Associated Press

BOSTON — No piece of music, not even "Silent Night" or "O Little Town of Bethlehem," so symbolizes the spirit of Christmas giving as Handel's "Messiah."

People have been giving their all in furious fortissimo ever since the thunderous Hallelujah Chorus, with George Frederick Handel conducting from the harpsichord, brought King George II to his feet more than 240 years ago.

Thus began the custom of audiences rising from their seats during this best-loved and most exuberant of all choral masterpieces and every year, hundreds of thousands of people, joining in with uninhibited enthusiasm.

In London, at what Charles Dickens called "this rolling time of the year," the streets around the Albert Hall annually are jammed with music-lovers armed with cellos, sousaphones, oboes, trombones, bassoons, bagpipes, vocal chords rused and robust.

Seized with what was early diagnosed as "Handelmania," they swarm from double-decker buses, taxis, hired vans and the South Kensington underground station merely to take their places in a come one, come all, do-it-yourself "Messiah" that has been assaulting the heavens and the pained eardrums of the critics for decades.

Is it any wonder then that Handel, a German who composed 40 operas in Italian but lived most of his life in London and unveiled his "Messiah" in Dublin, lies buried in Westminster Abbey "cheek by jowl," as one biographer put it, with Charles Dickens, that other great custodian of the Victorian spirit?

The young old Horace Walpole, an astute observer of the Georgian scene, had a bleak vision of eternity after witnessing the effect of Handel's surging anthems on a London audience: "For my part, they give me an idea of heaven, where even the angels are singing whether they have a voice or not."

Enormous orchestras and choruses, numbering into the thousands, have over the years rendered a Christmas message of the more the merrier in booming out Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus." The oratorio was composed as a solemn penitential drama for the Lenten season.

"The custom of performing 'Messiah' at Christmas really took hold in America," pointed out English conductor Christopher Hogwood, artistic director of Handel and Haydn Society in Boston, which poured forth the joyous Hallelujah Chorus at its very first concert on Christmas Eve in 1815.

Boston's seasonal observance of Handel's explosive genius has continued this day, gripping audiences the way it did Ralph Waldo Emerson, who on the night before Christmas in 1843 first heard the rapturous chorus, "Wonderful Counselor!" Afterward he was moved to write:

"I walked in the bright paths of song, as if like them when the long continuance of a chorus had made the ear sensible to the music, made it as if there was none; then I was quite solitary and at ease in the melodious uproar."

It took Handel only 24 days, from August 22 to Sept. 15, 1741, to complete the entire melodious uproar that has echoed ever since down the vault of time and in great cathedrals, concert halls and college gyms around the world.

Beethoven regarded Handel as the "greatest composer that ever lived," and in reverence to his "Messiah," would "kneel down at his tomb." Gluck opened his eyes every morning to a full-length portrait of the portly, bewigged Handel hanging at the foot of his bed. "When he chooses," said an adoring Mozart, "he strikes like thunder."

Legend has it that Handel, wrestling with his soul and the "Messiah" manuscript in his locked London study, alternated between weeping and praying, barely touching the food his servant left at the door. Finally he burst forth, emotionally spent, exclaiming, "I did think I did see all heaven before me and the great God himself."

Pietly, undoubtedly was the well-spraying of his imagination, but Handel was also a shrewd impresario, who stage his own operas and concerts and controlled the sale of tickets from his flat on Brook Street. He turned to composing oratorios, sacred dramas, as a way of filling the opera houses and music halls during the Lenten season when the stern Anglican bishops sitting in the House of Lords and His Majesty's Inspector of State Plays banned frivolous entertainment.

Even so, "Messiah" provoked moral outrage. The libretto, written in English by Charles Jennens, was singled almost entirely of lines taken from the Bible. Pious clerics and righteous journalists were shocked to hear the very word of God sung in a playhouse by theater folk, opera divas with "indecorous and immoral" reputations, castrati singers and women who sang in the choir.

Handel premiered his "Messiah" in Dublin, where churchgoers were thought to be more liberal, but Jonathan Swift, the dean of St. Patrick's Cathedral, at first irascibly forbade his chorists and singers from participating in the performance at the New Music Hall on Fishamble Street. He called on his sub-dean and chapter heads "to punish such vicars as shall ever appear there as songsters, fiddlers, pipers, trumpeters, drummers, and singers of any kind, and to be according to the flagrant aggravations of their respective disobedience, rebellion, perfidy and ingratitude."

But after that fortissimo blast, worthy of maestro Handel himself, the great "Messiah" resounded. "Messiah" made its debut on April 13, 1742, and was judged in the Dublin press "to be the finest Composition of Musick that ever was heard."

Handelene Hogwood, who has conducted "Messiah" in many parts of the world, remarked in an interview that for audiences today its soaring raptures are a religious experience, "quite like going to church."

Ironically, for years the oratorio was scorned by many as blasphemous and "profane" in his lifetime, Handel only once heard it performed on consecrated premises.

At the centenary of the composer's birth, celebrated a year too early in 1784, a "Messiah" recital in Westminster Abbey brought down clerical thunder. Handel, as Newton, urged on by his lodger, the poet William Cowper, preached and published an indignant "Fifty Sermons on Handel's Messiah."

From the very beginning, "Messiah" inspired a spirit of giving. Its Dublin success, funded as the posters proclaimed, for "the relief of the prisoners in several Goals, the support of Mercer's Hospital in Stephen St. and of the charitable Infirmary on the Inn's Quay."

Some 400 pounds was raised and purchased the immediate release of 142 prisoners languishing in Ireland's wretched debtors prisons. During the remaining 17 years of his life, even as approaching blindness kept him from seeing beyond the first tier of players, Handel usually conducted "Messiah" for the London Foundling Hospital, which he served as governor.

As Charles Burney, the acid-tongued musical historian, of that age, tartly observed, Handel's masterpiece "fed the hungry, clothed the naked, fostered the orphan and enriched succeeding managers of oratorios more than any single musical production in this or any country."

The charitable tradition quickly crossed the ocean. Bostonians in 1784 subscribed to a "concert of sacred Musick," including jubilant extracts from "Messiah," for "the relief of the poor prisoners confined in the jail of this town" and, a year later, to a "Benefit concert" for the humongous orchestration that have made "Messiah" a triumph of mass production. For subsequent Foundling Hospital performances he befeared up the chorus and soon was adding oboes, bassoons, more trumpets and more strings, oboes, tubs, kettle drums from the ordinance keeper at the Tower of London.

There was no stopping now. Within two decades of his death in 1759, more than 800 performers were arrayed before the great organ in Westminster Abbey for a "Messiah" concert. Like "Handelmania," in later generations, Handelmania spread throughout the land, with "monster performances," as they came to be called, echoing the "righteous bellowing" of the Hallelujah Chorus in Birmingham, Manchester, York and Sheffield.

By 1786, Philadelphia resounded with a "Messiah" of 230 voices and 50 instrumentalists. The oratorio was featured at the first Edinburgh Festival in 1815, where ladies in the audience fainted during the era of a Beattie by fainting away from "fright and pressure."

In 1857, London's huge Crystal Palace quaked to its glass seams as 2,000 vocalists and 500 instrumentalists blared forth "the Divine thunder chorus," as Queen Victoria's great time with a fan and Prince Albert with a roll of music.

The all-time record may have been reached on the same premises in 1883 with a choir of 4,000 backed up by a 500-piece orchestra.

By then George Bernard Shaw was protesting that making it a capital offense to perform an oratorio by Handel with more than 60 performers.

Nothing of course came of it. There is no holding back a deluge, even of sound. A century later, in 1984, conductor Hogwood, who has written a delightful biography of Handel, waved his baton over a "modest aggregation of 500 performers" delivering an "Olympic Messiah" in the Hollywood Bowl.

Hogwood admits to having attended "several do-it-yourself 'Messiahs' at the Albert Hall without wincing." In the spirit of Christmas tolerance, he regards such exuberant audience participation as "a very interesting social phenomenon. Like a lot of mass events, making 'nowadays,' it has great value as therapy."

He remembers as a child "being taken to the Albert Hall for large-scale professional 'Messiah' productions," but thinks the "sing-along 'Messiahs' now also so popular in America are a fairly recent invention. This idea that you go along as to a baseball game relies, I think, on the false assumption that everyone knows the piece.

"It's fun for people involved. Anything can turn up in the way of instruments or even voices. Socially, if not musically, such holiday happenings do show after all these years the place that 'Messiah' still occupies in people's minds."

Or as Tiny Tim might have phrased it, adjusting his earmuffs, "God help us everyone."

Bell Labs researcher Lillian Schwartz used a new computer program to juxtapose a da Vinci self-portrait and the Mona Lisa, revealing the mirror image Mona Lisa: da Vinci disguised?

NEW YORK (AP) — A computer researcher has concluded that the Mona Lisa is a self-portrait by Leonardo da Vinci, according to an article in Arts & Antiques magazine. The researcher juxtaposed a red chalk self-portrait of da Vinci next to the Mona Lisa and found that the eyes, hairline, cheeks, and nose were identical, the magazine said in its January issue.

And Bell Laboratories researcher Lillian Schwartz found that the inefable Mona Lisa smile is merely the mirror image of da Vinci's as painted in his 1518 self-portrait, the magazine said.

The identity of Mona Lisa has long been a matter of speculation, which has been compounded by the painting's unusual features. The sphinx-like model-lacks eyebrows and identifiable jewelry, wears a plain dress and holds a strange pose, the magazine noted. Da Vinci was intensely attached to the painting but failed to mention it in his journals unlike his other works.

After completing the portrait in 1504, he carried it with him from Florence to Milan to Rome and to the court of Francois I at Amboise in France where he died in 1519.

The mystery fell to a new computer program manipulated by Ms. Schwartz, an artist in residence at Bell Labs who has won an Emmy and Oscar using computers to create new visual technologies, Arts & Antiques said.

About seven weeks ago, Ms. Schwartz reversed the self-portrait of da Vinci and set the two paintings to the same scale by making the distances between the centers of the eye pupils equal to one another. The composite result, the magazine reports, is a mirror image. The discovery "may be one of the most important in the history of art," said Wick Allison, the editor and publisher of Arts & Antiques.

It "meets all the external evidence of Leonardo's life" and "fits everything that is known about the painting from art historical sources," he said in a statement.

The ruse is in keeping with da Vinci's lifestyle and outlook, the magazine said. It added that the famous painter was most likely homosexual who, like many of his contemporaries, favored painting androgynous subjects.

Da Vinci, who was also an inventor, engineer and scientist, was fascinated with optical tricks. He wrote "script" in reverse that is legible only when viewed with a mirror.

Play lampoons black experience

The Washington Post

NEW YORK — Lorraine Hansberry's "A Raisin in the Sun" may be enjoying a triumphant engagement at the Kennedy Center, but it is mercilessly — and hilariously — lampooned in "The Colored Museum," a new play by George C. Wolfe at the New York Shakespeare Festival Public Theater.

It isn't just "Raisin" that takes it on the chin, either, but Ebony magazine, Afro wigs, "Soul on Ice," Josephine Baker and strutting musicians like Bubbling Brown Sugar, among other components of the black experience.

In the 1970s, the rallying cry was "black is beautiful." In Wolfe's play, the underlying message is "black is ugly, confusing." All the icons and isms of the past have produced, Wolfe suggests, is a case of racial cultural schizophrenia.

In the last of the 11 sketches that make up "The Colored Museum," a quintessential good-time girl, Topsy Washington, finds herself at a party "somewhere between 125th Street and Infinity."

Pop-gospel hit Amy Grant sings up storm in NBC holiday special

By ANDREW J. EDELSTEIN

Combining that old-time religion with slick country-pop arrangements and some provocative outfits that may tarnish a few buckles on the Bible Belt, pop-gospel diva Amy Grant has given new meaning to the term "crossover." This week, the four-time Grammy winner moves closer to the mainstream when she stars in her first TV special, "Amy Grant ... Headlin' Home for the Holidays." It airs Sunday, Dec. 21, on NBC.

The special was taped entirely on location in Montana's Big Sky Country and includes such guests as Art Garfunkel, Ed Begley Jr. ("St. Elsewhere"), composer Jimmy Webb, Kaleena Ruff and Dennis Weaver.

The special incorporates musical numbers into an extremely simple story line. It begins with Grant performing in concert. After finishing the concert tour, Grant and her real-life husband Gary Chapman (who is a guitarist in her band) decide to take a vacation in Montana. When their rented truck runs out of gas, they stop at a local ranch, where they meet Tom Ellis (Weaver) and his daughter Jenny (Kiff). Ellis offers to take the couple sightseeing — so off they go on a sleigh ride through the snow. To return the favor, Grant (along with her new friends, Garfunkel and Webb) agrees to join the Glacier Orchestra and Choir for a musical Christmas celebration.

The special marks Grant's dramatic debut and she seems unsure whether an acting career is what she's aiming for.

"I don't know if television work will ever be my forte," says Grant, 25, a Tennessee native. "It's very intimidating to work year after on one area of specialty, like singing, and then somebody says, 'Oh, I forgot to tell you. You're going to have to act.' I don't think any Emmys are gonna come down from my performance in the Christmas special."

The music on the special combines traditional Christmas music ("Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Sleighride") with Grant's own gospel hits ("Love Will Find a Way").

AMY GRANT

A four-time Grammy winner

Garfunkel and Webb's appearance is no accident; Grant and Garfunkel also sing material from their new LP, "The Animals' Christmas." The songs, which look at Christmas through the eyes of the animals in the manger, were written by Webb, whose works include such pop classics as "MacArthur Park" and "Up, Up and Away."

Grant has found even more mainstream acceptance since her musical coupling with Peter Cetera, the former lead singer of Chicago. Their duet, "The Next Time I Fall," became a top single on the Billboard charts. The association with folk-rock star Garfunkel should further increase her visibility.

"He and I both have what I would call layered voices," she says. "It doesn't sound like sibling harmony, but it kind of smacks of that. It was interesting for me to hear our voices together. I don't think we sound like Simon and Garfunkel. I think we sound like Grant and Garfunkel."

Jody not unduly spooked by John

BY ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q. Was it the trauma associated with her name following the attempted assassination of President Reagan which forced Jodie Foster out of show business? — K.M.

A. While it's true Jodie hasn't made a movie in a while, it has nothing to do with John W. Hinckley, Jr., the young man who shot Reagan five years ago. Hinckley, you'll recall, claimed at the time that he wanted to impress Jodie to win her affections. The notoriety did follow Jodie for a while, but she managed to graduate from Yale and did do some films ("The Hotel New Hampshire" was one). I ran into Foster a while ago. Q. Isn't it true that Richard Gere is press shy because he's trying to keep many aspects of his personal life secret? — O.P.

A. Gere hates giving interviews because he's truly shy. Even though he takes his clothes off onscreen at the drop of a hat, Richard doesn't like to reveal much about himself otherwise. He's loosening up, however. To promote his new movie, "No Mercy," in which he has a percentage of the profits, Gere has been chatting away to the media. He talks about his latest girlfriend — Brazilian painter Sylvia Martins — his past movie roles and his pet political cause opposing U.S. involvement in Central America.

Q. We hear so much about the Italian-American actors — De Niro, Pacino, Lo Bianco, Franciosa and so on. What about the ladies? — J.M.

A. Suddenly emerging as important new discoveries on the movie front are — to name a few — Linda Fiorentino in "Wildfire"; Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio in "The Color of Money"; Isabella Rossellini in "Blue Velvet" and "Tough Guys Don't Dance"; and (who else?) Madonna Ciccone.

Q. Grace Jones is known for the bizarre wardrobe she wears. Does she ever have trouble with such far-out costumes? — P.R.

A. Ed Libonati is director of a company which recently produced Grace Jones' new video for Manhattan Records, "I'm Not Perfect." In it Grace plays a woman living a fantasy who's joined by Andy Warhol and Timothy Leary, cast as a psychiatrist. In one scene, Grace was suspended 30 feet in the air, wearing an 80-pound, 30x60-foot dress designed and hand-painted by Keith Haring, the well-known avant-garde artist. Half-way through the taping, with 200 actors milling below, the dress suddenly dropped, landing on the stunned actors' heads! Shooting stopped while Grace and the cast broke up as she was left up there wearing just her headdress. It took several hours to get it all together again, but "Ms. Jones certainly behaved with amazing grace and humor under fire," Libonati says.

Q. What in the world could super-nice Donny Osmond have done that would cause "60 Minutes" to prepare a harsh, investigative piece on him? — C.W.

A. True, Donny is the subject of a forthcoming profile on "60 Minutes," but it's nothing scandalous. I ran into him during a Hollywood rock concert and was surprised to discover him in the audience amidst cameramen from the TV show. "60 Minutes" regularly spices up its weekly menu with showbiz pieces, and Donny's segment will be an important part of an upcoming show — all about the growing pains of a young entertainer.

Q. Please settle an argument. I say Cher's real last name — her maiden name, that is — is La Pierre, but my sister says it's quite different. Who's right? — H.T.

A. Don't fight — in a sense you're both right. Cher's dad was named John Sarkasian, but young Cherilyn was adopted by her mom's fifth (!) husband, Gilbert La Pierre, and she used that name until she became Mrs. Sonny Bono. But the one name, Cher, has always been sufficient for the beautiful and talented lady, who starts filming her latest big movie, "Moonstruck," at the end of this month, in New York and Toronto.

Q. Has Michael Jackson ever confessed to having problems with drugs? — G.W.

A. Absolutely not. Jackson is super-careful about what he eats and drinks, and drugs in any form are a strict no-no. In fact, Michael has joined the national showbiz campaign against drug abuse. He's currently working on a new music video directed by moviemaker Martin Scorsese. It's anti-crack, the cheap and highly dangerous form of cocaine that produces an instant high. Michael is dead set against the stuff.

MEDICAL PROBLEMS: A famous star is hiding out at home in deep depression as a result of recent surgery. Doctors had to do a temporary colostomy, which means wearing a bag, but have assured him that as soon as he is fully healed he will have another operation which will leave him as good as new.

Q. Does Barbara Walters dye her hair? — M.K.

A. Like many of today's fashionable women, she does. At a charity event in New York not long ago I saw a slide show about great moments in Barbara's career. Walters told the audience that she considered the whole thing a "retrospective of my hairdo." Then she conceded, "There was a time my hair was a little darker." Light or not, Barbara's hair styles always look great.

Q. It appears from recent photos that Madonna has shed all those jangly teenie-bopper clothes to take on the appearance of a sophisticated, older woman. How come? — M.S.

A. Times change. It was 1985 when rocker Madonna was all the rage. Since then she's become a film star, shuffled her wardrobe a bit, dyed her severely shortened hairstyle stark blonde, and made noises about comparing herself to Marilyn Monroe. Madonna does indeed have a new

Cast of 'Search for Tomorrow' recalls 35-year history of series

By JOHN N. GOUDAS

Christmas is generally the time when most of the soap opera stars get together at festive parties, mulling over the year that has just passed and discussing the possibilities that lie ahead for the new year. However, this year, there will be no Christmas joy for the cast of "Search for Tomorrow." On Dec. 26, the long running soap will air its very last installment. After 35 years and 3 months, the old stalwart soap is calling it a day.

As most fans know, the soap premiered on CBS in September 1951, and had a long run before going to NBC in March of 1982. During many plots, often being the first to deal with such taboo subjects as incest, rape, menopause, and mental illness. Although these days, such subjects seem commonplace, it took a soap with guts to introduce them to the daytime viewer.

Through all those provocative plot lines, two characters were seen daily. Joanne and Stu, played respectively by Mary Stuart and Larry Haines. Actually, Mary was with the show from day one while Larry joined the cast a few months later.

The veterans have enough stories between them to supply Jackie Collins and Sidney Sheldon with plots for volumes and volumes. They have seen young unknowns come on the show and burn out because they didn't know how to pace themselves. They have seen good and bad writers come and go and come back again. Various producers have entered the picture with ideas that have either bolstered the ratings or made them sink even lower.

Mary and Larry have been through it all and have managed to keep their characters interesting. The diehard fans have been watching "Search" for three and a half decades and no matter what chaos may have been going on, they could always depend on Jo and Stu to come up with a sensible, solution or at the least, solid support.

Mary Stuart and Larry Haines always knew the show would have to end someday but it's never easy when it comes. The two actors plan to take some time off before giving serious consideration to their next acting jobs.

CHANNEL CHATTER:

"As the World Turns" traveled to Europe recently, and fans will be rewarded with some special footage over the next few months. Leading players Don Hastings and Kathryn Hays (who play Bob and Kim Hughes on the show) are featured as "As the World Turns" took its cameras around London, England, Venice, Italy, and the noted Orient Express railroad route. Jullanne Moore, who portrays Frannie, Bob's daughter, and her romantic interest Seth (actor Steve Bassett) can also be seen in these sequences. The storyline initially has the Hughes family gathering in Europe for the Christmas holidays, but soon, various mysterious characters pop up complicating matters for everyone involved.

The trial of Brittany Love (played by Sharon Gabel), who faces an attempted murder rap, comes to a conclusion with the Monday, Dec. 29, edition of "Another World." The writers have devised two separate scenarios (guilty and not guilty) and will air the correct verdict as determined by the real life jury in New York. The writers have to wait for the jury's decision before they can proceed with a storyline for Sharon Gabel's character. It's one of the few cases where the future path of a soap opera character is out of the writers' hands.

PLOT PORTENTS:

Brittany accepts Callin's marriage proposal on "Another World." Mitch doesn't care for the fact that he's always running into Felicia.

Reginald asks Mary to quit her new job.

The big holiday bash turns sour and Della is very upset on "Ryan's Hope." Max faces new legal problems as certain facts are made public. Frank and Jill reminisce.

Cliff and Nina exchange wedding vows for a second time as Palmer walks away from his wheelchair on "All My Children." Tad leaves for a new life in Los Angeles. Mark turns himself in.

Cord turns down Tina's desperate attempts to win him back on "One Life to Live." Viki is cold to Clint who is trying to get back in her good graces. Kate and Cord try to retrieve a treasure left behind at the island.

Kat is shocked and dismayed with "Malcolm's" confession on "Search for Tomorrow." Jerry tries to revive the flame with Evie. Quinn and Hogan discuss their parentage.

Q. While visiting New York's famed ice skating rink at Rockefeller Plaza a loud-speaker announcement mentioned that such Hollywood stars as Sonja Henie, Cary Grant and others had filmed sequences there for various movies. The announcer said that Jack Nicholson skated there in two different films, but I can't think of even one. Was the commentator skating on thin ice? — L.B.

A. No. Jack Nicholson was photographed at the Rockefeller Center rink (which is celebrating its 50th anniversary) in "Carnal Knowledge," in which he co-starred with Ann-Margret in 1971; and once again in "The Last Detail," a comedy-drama, just two years later.

Q. Has Griffin Patrick O'Neal, the actor-son of Ryan O'Neal, kicked his drug habit? — H.J.

A. Apparently not. Griffin was recently charged in Beverly Hills with reckless driving, marijuana possession and breaking probation from an earlier brush with the law.

It's the latest bit of bad news about Ryan's boy. Earlier this year, Griffin was involved in a boating accident on the South River near Edgewater, Md., that resulted in the death of Gian-Carlo Coppola, son of moviemaker Francis Coppola — a case still pending.

Cable TV is in 48.1% of U.S. homes

NEW YORK (AP) — Cable television has taken over almost half the households in the United States, according to latest estimates by Nielsen Media Research.

Nielsen says in November 1986, cable was in more than 42 million households, or 48.1 percent of the total.

That number is up 4.1 percent over November 1985, an increase in one year of 2.3 million households.

The ratings research company said that of the top 50 designated market areas it measures, San Angelo, Texas, had the highest concentration of cable television, in 86.1 percent of its households. Second was the Santa Barbara-Santa Maria-San Luis Obispo area between Los Angeles and San Francisco, with 85.8 of its households having cable.

The lowest concentration of cable television among the top 50 markets was Topeka, Kansas, with 51.1 percent.

Hello, Dolly; Hello, L.A. Law; CBS says 'goodbye' to 'Twilight'

By ROBERT BARR
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Dolly Parton brightened the holidays for ABC, cracking the A.C. Nielsen Co. top 10 with her Christmas special, while NBC welcomed a potential hit to its potent Thursday night lineup.

CBS, meanwhile, had seen enough dismal ratings on Thursday night to realize that its midseason schedule swapping was a mistake: "Designing Women," a modest hit on Monday night but a disaster on Thursday, was pulled from the schedule, to return somewhere else later in the season, and "Twilight Zone" was canceled, the network announced Tuesday.

"L.A. Law," in its second week at 10 p.m. on Thursdays, was the 11th rated show for the week with a 19.9 rating and a 32 percent share of the audience in its time period. It was the show's best rating in its regular run this season.

"Smoky Mountain Christmas," starring Dolly Parton and featuring several of her songs, was ranked No. 7 in the list released Tuesday, with a rating of 23.2 and a 35 share.

CBS did well against the frothy Parton special with the solemn "Promise," a Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation starring James Garner which ranked 14th with a rating of 19.5.

Each rating point represents 1 percent of the nation's estimated 87.4 million homes equipped with television. The share is the portion of sets in use at the time which were tuned to a particular program.

NBC's Thursday night comedy quartet — "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties," "Cheers" and "Night Court" — topped the Nielsen ratings last week, followed by CBS' "Murder, She Wrote," NBC's "Golden Girls," ABC's "Smoky Mountain Christmas," CBS' "60 Minutes," part two of NBC's "Anastasia" and CBS' Dallas.

Two ABC programs, "Our World" and "Heart of the City," tied for last place.

NBC won the ratings for the 15th consecutive week with an average rating of 17.4. CBS was second at 16.3 and ABC was third at 14.2. For the 12 weeks of the current season, NBC's average is 18.5, CBS' is 15.9 and ABC is averaging 14.3.

CBS won the evening news ratings with an average rating of 12.7 and a 22 share, followed by NBC at 12.2 and a 21 share and ABC at 10.7 and a 19 share.

The surge of "L.A. Law" makes NBC's powerful Thursday night — Cosby night — lineup even stronger. "Hill Street Blues" had been averaging a 27 share in the time period, while "L.A. Law" has done 30 or better in two outings.

"L.A. Law" gained at the expense of ABC's "20/20," which been up and down in the ratings all season. Last week it was 51st with a 13.1.

In its new Tuesday time period, "Hill Street" is doing better than had "Crime Story," which has moved to Friday.

Friday night has been a big disappointment for NBC, which had hoped to knock off CBS' "Dallas." Instead, "Dallas" has been consistently in the top 10 while its competition on NBC, "Miami Vice," has lagged several points behind. Last week, "Vice" ranked No. 31.

CBS found it was doing worse on Thursday night after cancelling "Kay O'Brien, Surgeon." With "Designing Women" and a half-hour version of "Twilight Zone" plugging the holes, CBS' Thursday night ratings dropped from an average of 13.9 to 13.1, said David Poltrack, the network's vice president for research.

"Designing Women" remains in production. "It did well and had very good demographics," Poltrack said, "so I'm sure it will be back."

"The Cavanaugh's," which replaced "Designing Women" on Monday, dropped from No. 15 in its premiere week to No. 35 last week, and its rating of 16.4 was a full point worse than the average for "Designing Women," Poltrack said.

Nielsen plans to measure VCR use

NEW YORK (AP) — Thought you were safe, just watching "Punky Brewster" late at night on the VCR?

Nielsen Media Research could put an end to that, at least in the households where it measures television viewing. The ratings research company is getting ready to start measuring playback of network television programs on video cassette recorders.

Other ratings research companies are also developing VCR playback measurement technologies.

Nielsen says it can put a video code in the program that the VCR will record. A monitor can then sense the code when the program is played back.

The coding system can also record when a commercial is "zipped" or played on fast speed.

Nielsen plans to test the system in some of its metered households by next spring.

CBS signs deal to keep Tony Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS and the Tony Awards people are patting each other on the back after signing a long-term broadcast deal.

The agreement also included the signing of Emmy Award-winning producer and director Don Mischer to produce the theater awards show to be broadcast later this season.

CBS Entertainment President Donald Grant said regional stage productions and touring companies are making Americans more aware of theater. "The network is thus enormously pleased to continue broadcasting the Tony Awards, which annually honors the theater's finest talent," he said.

The Tony Awards have been broadcast on television for almost three decades and were first broadcast on CBS in 1978.

'PM Magazine' undergoes a facelift

NEW YORK (AP) — "PM Magazine" is undergoing a revamping after 10 years on the air.

Under the reorganization, announced by Westinghouse Broadcasting, the syndicated show will be pared down to an exchange of stories among Group W television stations, and Westinghouse will give up its national advertising time on the show.

Responsibility for production of "PM Magazine" will be transferred from Group W Productions to Group W Television Station Group.

'PM Magazine' undergoes a facelift

NEW YORK (AP) — "PM Magazine" is undergoing a revamping after 10 years on the air. Under the reorganization, announced by Westinghouse Broadcasting, the syndicated show will be pared down to an exchange of stories among Group W television stations, and Westinghouse will give up its national advertising time on the show. Responsibility for production of "PM Magazine" will be transferred from Group W Productions to Group W Television Station Group.

PAC memo shakes up NBC News

By JOHN CARMODY
The Washington Post

Creating considerable stirrings at NBC News these days is word of a month-old memo circulated to the very top brass of NBC by president Robert Wright before last month's meeting with the affiliates board in California, proposing the creation of a political action committee for the network.

It has since been in the hands of the lawyers at NBC, who are expected to approve the idea soon, providing it violates no FCC regulations.

One member of the President's Council who received a copy of the Nov. 9 memo said Monday that employees could earmark the recipients of any donation made but, lacking a specific recipient, their donations could be distributed as the network PAC saw fit.

"The PAC would be done with sensitivity," this executive insisted. Regarding any proposed political donations, "the News division would not be involved in any way," he stressed.

Grossman said Monday that "it's recognized at NBC that under News guidelines it would be totally inappropriate for anybody in News to participate in a PAC."

He said Wright "understands that point absolutely and has been very good on such points."

Asked if he thought a network should form a PAC, Grossman said that "as a news guy I feel I should stay out of that kind of conjecture." Wright, like executives at CBS and ABC, is concerned by the political clout of the major studios and producers in Hollywood who, under current laws, can own the programming they produce as well as the stations that air their shows, while networks are severely limited as to both production and control of distributed rights.

Hollywood producers spend their money freely on powerful politicians to keep the networks at bay, Wright's memo argues on behalf of countering that power.

While no network has set up a PAC, a spokesman for NBC Monday pointed out that Ted Turner, owner of Turner Broadcasting System, and RKO General are among broadcasters who have formed political action committees.

Designing Women' is put on hold

By KATHRYN BAKER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — When CBS announced it was moving the sassy sitcom "Designing Women" from Monday to Thursday night, the show's sassy stars took to the road to tell viewers.

Their efforts were not immediately successful. "Designing Women" dropped in the Nielsen rankings, and CBS plans to take it off the air temporarily after its Jan. 1 broadcast.

But with any luck, it will get another chance so that Delta Burke, Dixie Carter, Annie Potts and Jean Smart can continue cracking wise on a California soundstage.

The series, about four Southern women who run an interior design business, was written by Linda Bloodworth-Thomason as a snappy-dialogue vehicle specifically for its four stars.

The show was moved to Thursdays as a lead-in to the soap "Knots Landing" — but opposite NBC's hit sitcom "Night Court."

Days before the ratings came out, Carter and Potts stopped off in New York. They said they were "not exactly worried," but "alert."

"Very alert," added Potts.

Potts was the off-the-wall receptionist in the movie "Ghostbusters." Carter co-starred with Delta Burke in the short-lived series "Filthy Rich" and is married to actor Hal Holbrook, who recently did a guest spot on "Designing Women."

The Southern accents are for real.

Carter is from Tennessee, Potts from Kentucky.

Not only are they funny, each thinks the other is hilarious, so they tend to digress during an interview. For instance, they decided they would do a play together this spring, perhaps something by an English writer:

Potts: "I have the most insipid English accent. I mean, it's just, you want to smack me immediately!"
