Duties set on European cheese, beverages

By W. DALE NELSON
The Associated Press

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — President Reagan, retaliating against European trade policies that the United States says cost American farmers about $400 million a year, will impose duties likely to raise U.S. consumer prices for imported gin, brandy, inexpensive white wine and cheese.

The decision was disclosed on Tuesday as the president and first lady Nancy Reagan vacationed at the home of publisher Walter Annenberg, where they will attend a private New Year's Eve party this evening. They will return to the White House on Friday.

The trade action followed lengthy negotiations between the United States and the European Economic Community over compensation for high tariffs imposed by the EEC on U.S. grain feed imports to Spain, which formerly was a lucrative market for American corn and sorghum.

The retaliation, likely to be met with European action against U.S. farm products, takes the form of a 200 percent U.S. duty on European gin, brandy, white wine, assorted varieties of cheese, canned ham, endives, carrots and olives.

The highest items are the duty on gallon containers or less of white wine costing less than $4 per gallon, on gallon containers or less of brandy costing more than $13 per gallon and on gin in containers of one gallon or less.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said the brandy and wine, mostly from France, would account for $250 million of the $400 million a year, and the gin, from Britain, would amount to $70 million of it.

"Clearly prices will rise," Yeutter told reporters. He added that he could not say how much, but "it will be significant."

Duties on most of the products now are about 15 to 20 percent, he said. If exporters and retailers choose to absorb the higher duty, the prices of the imported good will go up. If, as expected, they do not, prices would still go up because there would be less of these goods coming into the United States.

"The intent is to stop the trade dead in its tracks," Yeutter said.

The higher duties are to go into effect at an unspecified date but no later than Jan. 30. Yeutter said there would probably be further talks with the EEC, also known as the Common Market, between now and then but the two sides are far apart.

The United States is demanding full compensation for its loss and Yeutter said he estimated the EEC's latest offer at about 30 cents on the dollar.

Higher barriers against U.S. feed grains were imposed on Spain and Portugal when the Common Market was enlarged to include those nations, bringing the number of countries to 12.

Yeutter said the Portuguese barriers have been negotiated separately so that U.S. farmers are no longer losing their markets in that country.

He said the retaliation against the Spanish trade barriers were chosen to hurt as many as possible of the original 10 EEC countries.

which the United States holds responsible for the barriers.

Much of the cheese, for instance, comes from Denmark and The Netherlands.

As an example of the price impact, Yeutter cited Edam and Gouda cheese, on which the duty would jump from 15 percent to 200 percent. This would mean that a cheese valued at $10, currently increased to $11.50 by the duty, would cost $30 because of the higher duty.

Yeutter conceded that Reagan's action could precipitate a stepped-up trade war between the United States and the EEC if the European retaliate in turn.

"Certainly it has that probability," he said, adding that if the Europeans take counter-retaliatory measures "we will also have to consider counter-counter-retaliation at that point."

Barbel Jacob, deputy head of the European Community mission to Washington, also said the Europeans will retaliate should the U.S. restrictions take effect.

Israeli denies North's claim

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. Oliver L. North told Attorney General Edwin Meese III that a senior Israeli official had originated the idea of funneling funds from Iran arms sales to the contra, Justice Department sources said Tuesday in confirming closed congressional testimony by Meese about the incident.

David Kimche, former director general of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, denied North's claim that he conceived the Iran-contra link and said that the former national security aide may have panicked under Justice Department questioning and attempted to shift the blame to "an Israeli he hardly knew."

Justice Department attorneys and FBI investigators have been unable to corroborate North's statement, which Meese obtained Nov. 23 in questioning North as he emerged as the central figure in the scandal. North was fired two days later.

North's statement, which Meese testified about two weeks ago before the Senate and House Intelligence committees, was first reported Tuesday by the New York Times.

Some former colleagues of North have questioned his veracity, but if support is developed for his claim it would suggest that Israel played a role in the contra operation, which Israeli officials have denied knowing anything about.

Meese, in his congressional testimony, quoted North as saying that he had conferred with an Israeli official about a year ago on channeling aid to the Nicaraguan rebels. A source familiar with Meese's responses before both intelligence panels said that he had named Kimche as the official before one of the committees.

North, who allegedly took part in efforts to line up private aid for the rebels after Congress outlawed government support for the contra in 1984, met with Kimche after the ban.

According to Meese's testimony, North said that Kimche saw three options for the United States. It could provide U.S. funds to the rebels directly or divert U.S. foreign aid to Israel, but these alternatives would violate the congressional ban.

Kimche's third option, North said in Meese's recollection of the questioning, was to inflate the price charged the Iranians for the arms and divert the proceeds to the contra.

Kimche, who lost his post in Israel's Oct. 29 change in government, made his denial in an interview on Israel's state radio.

Kimche has emerged as an important figure in arranging contacts between the United States and Iran in the administration's arms-and-hostages efforts. Kimche said that he met North only twice: in Washington in November 1985 and in London the next month. Others were at the meetings, Kimche said, and the subject of diverting funds to the Nicaraguan rebels was never raised.

Bonner County Deputy Sheriff John McHorse examines scene of blast, fire near Athol

Suspects sought after explosion, fire destroy drug-making lab

ATHOL (AP) — Authorities sought three suspects Tuesday after an explosion and fire at a rural home in northern Idaho yielded evidence that a major drug-manufacturing operation had gone awry.

The force of the blast Monday at the rented home led authorities to believe someone may have been seriously injured, said Lt. Wayne Longo of the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement.

"I'd be very much surprised if someone isn't hurt very badly," Longo said.

Officers asked hospital to notify them if anyone sought treatment for thermal or chemical burns.

State agents and sheriff's deputies found chemicals and laboratory equipment amid the blast debris that are consistent with what is needed to manufacture methamphetamine, Longo said.

He refused to name the suspects, but said an investigation had been under way for months into alleged speed-manufacturing in Bonner County.

"We've been about two steps behind these guys for a while," he said. "We felt we were pretty close, and evidently we were."

The search of the wreckage also yielded six safes. Three outside the home were missing their doors; three inside the home were still locked.

Tools and other items found inside the home appeared to be stolen and sheriff's deputies were checking their reports.

A Spokane, Wash., man who owns the home is not connected to the drug operation, Longo said. The landlord told authorities he had met his three tenants just once, when they arrived at the house to pick up the keys about two months ago.

He described them as a man, woman and girl, Longo said.

The explosion first blew apart a vacation trailer behind the home, 3 1/2 miles south of Athol, and flames spread to an abandoned school bus next to the house. The two vehicles contained the lab, Longo said.

Claims talks make progress

The Associated Press

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Progress has been made in the U.S.-Iranian talks aimed at returning $507.7 million in blocked assets to Iran, both sides reported Tuesday.

Return of all Iran's U.S.-held assets has been linked to possible Iranian intention to help free American hostages in Lebanon.

Officials from the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the U.S. Treasury Department, the Iranian Central Bank and the Iranian government scheduled a second meeting in The Hague today at the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal, according to U.S. Embassy spokesman Sam Wunder.

Reason was given for cancellation of a meeting planned for Tuesday. The talks opened with a 3 1/2-hour session on Monday.

In Washington, State Department deputy spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said that the meeting at The Hague was "constructive, that progress was made, but we do not expect that we will be able to reach final agreement on all issues at this session."

Mrs. Oakley said the U.S. team was expected to return to the United States soon to prepare for the next round of talks, but she would not give any dates.

She also repeated the U.S. position that the talks are technical dealing.

Document forgery probe involves Utah bombing suspect

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — New York authorities are investigating as a possible forgery a purported early American document offered for sale by bombing suspect Mark W. Hofmann, a former Utah prosecutor has confirmed.

Meanwhile, speculation in Utah about a possible plea bargain in the double-murder case against Hofmann has angered prosecutors and defense attorneys.

Hofmann, 32, is charged with capital homicide in the Oct. 15, 1985, deaths of Stephen Christensen, 31, and Kathleen Sheels, 50. He also is charged with 28 felony counts of bomb making, fraud and theft by deception.

Prosecutors contend Hofmann turned to murder to cover up dealings in which allegedly fraudulent historical documents, some of which challenge Mormon Church doctrine, were sold to the church and other collectors for hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Former Deputy Salt Lake County Attorney Gerry D'Elia said he has discussed with New York authorities Hofmann's attempts to sell "The Oath of a Freeman," purportedly printed in 1837. The Oath is believed to have been the first document printed in North America.

However, an official in the New York County district attorney's office would neither confirm nor deny that information provided by D'Elia had been submitted to a grand jury there.

Hofmann, who is free on $250,000 bail, is scheduled for trial March 2 on the murder and bomb-making charges.

The "Oath of a Freeman," which Utah prosecutors believe is a forgery, is in the possession of New York antique dealers Justin Schiller and Raymond Wagner, who have invested more than $100,000 in it, D'Elia said.

"We've shared our evidence with them, and there is always the potential of the information going to a grand jury for possible indictments," he said.

D'Elia made the trip to New York before he was taken off the Hofmann case by newly elected Salt Lake County Attorney David Yocum.

Wagner said extensive testing of the document has shown nothing to contradict its authenticity.

However, Utah prosecutors contend the oath was printed at a local engraving company, DeBouzek Engraving, and used by Hofmann to entice investors into lending time, him large amounts of money.

Prosecutors say Hofmann told investors the oath had been sold to the Library of Congress for $1 million and that he was awaiting full payment to secure his financial investments.

Asked about a grand jury investigation involving Hofmann, James Fogel, deputy chief of Frauds Bureau of the New York County district attorney's office, said: "I can't confirm or deny that a grand jury is investigating Mark Hofmann. It's a felony in New York to reveal anything that goes on before a grand jury."

Fogel stressed that in New York, a grand jury is purely investigatory in nature and that at least eight grand juries may be in session in New York County at any given time.

The grand jury standard is equivalent to the Utah system of preliminary hearings, where "probable cause" is the rule, he said.

While refusing to specify details of the evidence shared with New York authorities, D'Elia agreed to discuss the possibility of a plea bargain in the murder cases facing Hofmann.

However, he said he has no direct knowledge that such negotiations are under way. D'Elia, who presented the scientific evidence surrounding the bombings and the alleged forgeries during a lengthy preliminary hearing last spring, said: "I don't think"

Idaho population estimate declines

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Florida, continuing a Sun Belt population boom, became the fifth most populous state in the country in 1986, marking the only change in ranking among the 10 largest states, the Census Bureau said Tuesday.

The bureau said its latest state population estimates showed that California held onto the No. 1 spot, with a total population of 26.98 million, followed by New York, Texas and Pennsylvania. The top four rankings were unchanged from 1985.

Idaho, which ranked 41st on the population list, showed a decline in population over the past year to 1,003,000, but a gain of 6.2 percent since 1980.

Florida moved ahead of Illinois as the fifth largest state, continuing a growth boom in which Florida's population has jumped 20 percent since 1980, the fourth largest percentage gain of all the states.

The new Census Bureau population estimates showed that the South and the West continue to have most of the nation's population growth, increasing by 13.2 million in this decade. This compares to a population rise of 1.3 million in all the rest of the nation.

Among the big gainers of this decade have been Alaska, with a 33 percent population increase, and Arizona, up 22 percent; Nevada, with a 20 percent gain matching Florida's; Texas, up 17 percent; California, Utah and New Mexico, with 14 percent increases, Colorado, up 13 percent, and Georgia, up 12 percent.

Idaho's population on July 1 this year was 1,003,000, a decline of 1,000 from 1,004,000 on July 1, 1985. The figure for 1986 is an increase of 6.2 percent from the 944,000 recorded in the 1980 census.

Since the 1980 census, California has added the most people, 13 million, followed by an increase of 2.5 million in Texas and 1.9 million in Florida.

U.S., Canada settle lumber tiff

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and Canadian negotiators reached an 11th-hour agreement Tuesday night to end a long and divisive dispute over Canadian construction lumber imports, U.S. trade officials said.

The negotiated breakthrough was announced by Under Commerce Secretary Bruce Smart only hours before the department was scheduled to make a final decision on the preliminary finding last Oct. 16 that Canadian lumber-cutting policies amount to an unfair subsidy.

Under the settlement, Canada agreed to impose a 15 percent tax on lumber imports, beginning next month, Smart said.

But the tax would be phased out once Canadian provinces begin raising their own lumber-cutting fees.

As a result of the agreement, U.S. lumber producers dropped their complaint against Canada, and the Commerce Department suspended an expected 15 percent U.S. levy on Canadian shipments, the U.S. officials said.

Earlier, the Commerce Department had issued a preliminary finding that called for a 15 percent surcharge on imports of Canadian softwood lumber, including pine, spruce, Douglas fir and other woods used extensively in home construction.

Negotiators reached the agreement during more than 30 hours of virtual round-the-clock bargaining aimed at meeting a Tuesday midnight deadline for the penalty ruling by the Commerce Department.

Last year, $2 billion in Canadian softwood lumber was shipped to the United States, accounting for about 32 percent of the entire U.S. market.

U.S. homebuilders have estimated that the 15 percent tariff could raise the cost of a typical home in the United States by $1,000.

At issue in the long dispute were "dumpage fees" paid by Canadian lumber companies to provincial government for the right to cut timber in government-owned forests. U.S. lumber producers, who initiated the case, claim these fees are so low that they amount to an illegal subsidy and undercut U.S. prices.

declines in the 1970s, every state in the Northeast grew between 1980 and 1986, led by a 12 percent rise in New Hampshire. The total population increase for the region was 900,000 since 1980.

All of the industrial states of the Midwest showed population increases from July 1985 to July 1986, with the date of the new estimate, reflecting a gradual rebound in the economies of those states, the Census Bureau said.

But problems in the farm belt caused population losses in Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, Montana and Idaho. Also sustaining population losses between 1985 and 1986 were West Virginia, Oklahoma and Wyoming, states where depressed energy industries have caused layoffs and rising unemployment.

The report noted that Texas and Louisiana, two other states suffering because of recession conditions in the oil patch, had population increases for 1986 — but at a slower rate than before.

If Texas had moved up from 10th place in the population rankings since 1960, the only other state with a similar gain has been Texas, which has risen from sixth to third place since 1960.

The population of the country as a whole stood 241,077 million on July 1, a 1 percent gain from a year ago, the bureau said.

Here are top 10 as of July 1: California, 26,981 million; New York, 17,772 million; Texas, 16,682 million; Pennsylvania, 11,885 million; Florida, 11,676 million; Illinois, 11,523 million; Ohio, 10,752 million; Michigan, 9,145 million; New Jersey, 7,622 million; and North Carolina, 6,331 million.

Hospital fire kills patient

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Fire broke out in a hospital room Tuesday, killing a patient and critically injuring a man sharing the room, officials said.

Dozens of patients, many of them bedridden, had to be evacuated by firefighters as smoke spread through one floor of the Truman Medical Center.

Dale Wheeler, 39, of Kansas City, who had been scheduled for brain surgery, was killed in the blaze. Roommate Stephen Stacy, 27, of Kansas City, was burned and taken to the University of Kansas Medical Center, authorities said.

Three nurses, one medical student and two security officers were treated for minor smoke inhalation, said Dr. Jim Mongor, hospital executive director.

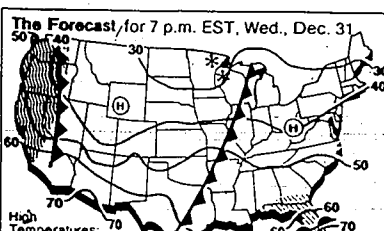

The three-alarm blaze was confined to the patient's room, but heavy smoke rolled down the hallway and forced the evacuation of up to 40 respiratory patients, who were moved in their beds or dragged out on blankets, said the Department spokesman Harold Krebs.

The cause of the fire, which was reported at 6:23 p.m. MST, was not immediately known, he said.

Quake rocks Missouri town

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) — An earthquake roused some residents of Missouri's Bootheel out of bed Tuesday, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

The 12:15 a.m. MST quake, which registered 3.5 on the Richter scale of ground motion and lasted only a few seconds, was centered about 10 miles south of New Madrid, said Waverly Person, a geophysicist at the National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo.

The New Madrid County Sheriff's Department received no calls about the quake, a dispatcher said. But a secretary in the sheriff's office who lives in nearby Portageville said the tremors woke her up.

The Missouri area produces nearly 300 earthquakes a year, most of them minor, experts have said. New Madrid was hit in a shambles by a series of quakes in 1811 and 1812. The largest, estimated at 8.7 on the Richter scale, was said to have rung bells in Boston and caused the Mississippi River to flow backward.

Leaves door open for possible changes

Panel: State tax law should conform

BOISE (AP) — A special legislative committee studying possible changes in Idaho income tax law has decided the state should conform to the basic changes Congress made this year in the federal income tax law.

But it is leaving open the possibility of recommending some changes in the law for state income tax purposes, including continuing the investment tax credit.

"The committee voted to conform," said its chairman, Rep. Don Loveland, R-Boise. "Now we're going to look at what would happen if we tinkered with it... what will be the best interests of the people of Idaho."

The six-member committee, appointed by House Speaker Tom Boyd, R-Geneseo, considered the issue at a meeting last Friday. The committee will meet next Monday to hear testimony on the effects of possible changes in the law.

"I guess the objective of that is to come up with all the 'what-ifs' that can happen if we adopt the code verbatim or adopt the brackets or make it revenue neutral," Boyd said. "Revenue neutral provisions would mean that the state would receive neither more nor less revenue from the income tax than it would without the changes."

He said he would like the committee to study the matter and "have it down in lay terms for all the legislators to have in their hands" when the Legislature convenes Jan. 12.

Specifically, the panel has been asked to report its findings to the House Revenue and Taxation Committee — where tax bills originate — and to Boyd.

Besides Loveland, committee members are Reps. Robert Fry, R-Horsehoe Bend; Gary

Robbins, R-Dietrich; Golden Lintford, R-Rexburg; Harold Reid, D-Craigmont; and Albert Johnson, D-Pocatiello.

The provisions of Idaho's income tax law are tied tightly to the federal law, and the Legislature usually has voted to conform with changes in the federal law. The state uses different tax rates than the federal government.

If passed without other changes, the federal changes would yield about $21.5 million next year in extra state revenue, according to the Division of Financial Management.

Gov. select Cecil Andrus has proposed spending that money — mainly on education and economic development. But some legislative leaders have proposed cutting tax rates to make the changes revenue-neutral, or altering some specific federal provisions such as elimination of the investment tax credit.

N. Idaho customers face phone rate hike

BOISE (AP) — State utility regulators have approved a 41.5 percent increase in the in-state long-distance phone rates General Telephone Co. can charge its 65,000 northern Idaho customers.

But the 2-1 decision announced Tuesday also saw the Public Utilities Commission reject a request for nearly another $1 million a year in surcharges on local and extended area service and criticize the federal policies that prompted the rate increase.

The higher long-distance rates, effective on New Year's Day and applicable to long-distance calls with the utility's service area, are intended to offset nearly $2.5 million in losses General Telephone has sustained because of the 1984 break-up nationwide Bell Telephone system.

Commission President Perry Swisher dissented from approval of the rate hike, arguing that it imposes costs on customers that are the result of decisions the state of Idaho did not make and did not intend.

phone network, General Telephone lost the benefits it had been receiving from an accounting system that dispersed the costs of long-distance service among all the various local telephone operating companies in the region. That change resulted in the revenue loss the in-state long-distance rate hike will make up for.

Swisher contended that state lawmakers should be allowed this winter to take action to restore the earlier policy so phone customers throughout Idaho are treated equally.

In rejecting the two surcharge proposals — 8.4 percent on local service and 33.6 percent on extended area service — the commission said those requests could be deferred until the company files for a general increase in rates, probably within the next few months.

Order affects Gooding rancher

Give up permits, holders told

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — In the wake of federal legislation to protect the Henry's Fork of the Snake River, the holders of preliminary hydroelectric development permits on the river have been ordered to surrender them.

"They were given the choice of either surrendering their permits, or the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission would cancel them," Steve Jakubowicz, a commission spokesman in Portland, Ore., said.

The order, issued earlier this month, directs the corporations and partnerships holding the permits for five hydro projects between Harrison State Park and the confluence of the Warm River to give them up by Jan. 15.

"You can't fight the government when they have their mind made up," said Mitch Arkoosh, a Gooding rancher who holds several preliminary permits on the Henry's Fork. He has no plans to contest the action.

Last fall, President Reagan signed legislation that included a ban on hydro development on a 61-mile stretch of the Henry's Fork from Henrys Lake to the Ashton Reservoir except for the Island Park Dam, where a hydroelectric project has been proposed by Fall-River Electric Cooperative.

The ban was offered by Idaho Republican senators James McClure and Steve Symms as an alternative to a bill by Idaho Congressman Richard Stallings that would have authorized a study of a 42-mile stretch of the river for protection under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act.

The ban affects three groups which either had preliminary permits to study hydro projects or had applied for those permits.

Sheep Falls Associates, a subsidiary of Great Western Power and Light Co. in Manit, Utah, holds a preliminary permit to study Sheep Falls located north of Upper Mesa Falls in the Henry's Fork Canyon.

Arktech Inc., a company run by Arkoosh, holds preliminary permits to study projects known as George 2 south of Riverside Campground and on Upper and Lower Mesa Falls.

A partnership called Henry's Fork Conservationists has a permit for a project known as Henry's Fork 1, also located near Riverside Campground and had applied for a permit for a project known as Henry's Fork 2 south of the George 2 site.

"We spent a lot of time and money," said Arkoosh. "We knew the rules of the game. But when they change the rules on you in the middle, I don't think it's quite fair."

Briefly

Utility passes on power system

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Power Co. and CP National Corp. have terminated their 16-month-old contract for the sale of an eastern Oregon power distribution system to Idaho Power.

Larry Taylor, spokesman for Idaho's largest electric utility, said on Tuesday there were a number of circumstances prompting the decision to call the $65 million deal off, but he declined to elaborate. He said only that it appeared trying to close the transaction would drag on for too long a time to make it beneficial to either company.

Idaho Power will continue supplying about 60 megawatts of electricity to CP National's 25,000 customers in Baker, John Day, Burns and La Grande, Ore., and Taylor said there was no indication that supply agreement would not be disrupted, at least in the near future.

Accident claims snowmobiler

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A Miles City, Mont., man died at an Idaho Falls hospital on Tuesday from injuries he sustained last weekend in a snowmobile accident near West Yellowstone.

Authorities said Ernie Putnam, 44, suffered multiple head and chest injuries when his snowmobile missed a turn on the West Denny Creek logging road along the Lionshead Trail.

Slayer sentenced to 14 years

POCATELLO (AP) — Sixth District Judge Peter McDermott has sentenced Lester Joe Negashoah of Fort Hall to a 14-year fixed prison sentence for the slaying death of a 31-year-old Heyburn man.

Eugene Romero died earlier this year at a party in Pocatello when his throat was slashed. Negashoah, 33, originally was charged with second-degree murder.

But in a plea-bargain agreement, Negashoah pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of voluntary manslaughter in exchange for the state dropping the murder charge.

Idaho Falls chief to step down

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Idaho Falls Police Chief Robert D. Pollock, who has held the position almost 22 years, will retire in January several months before his 40th anniversary with the department.

Pollock, 69, was on vacation this week at his cabin in Star Valley, Wyo., and was not available for comment. Beverly Branson, Mayor Tom Campbell's secretary, said Pollock would retire Jan. 17.

Pair draw penalties for fraud

BLACKFOOT (AP) — A former part-time Butte County sheriff's deputy and his father have been placed on probation and ordered to pay restitution to state and local governments in connection with a fraudulent auto body shop operation.

Cary VanEtten, 28, and his father, Dee J. VanEtten, 52, had been charged with 17 felony counts ranging from racketeering to tax evasion. But Dee VanEtten finally pleaded guilty to one count of racketeering and his son to one count of destroying or altering a motor vehicle identification number in a plea bargaining arrangement.

Seventh District Judge Arnold Beebe, in ordering withheld judgments against the pair on Monday, placed each man on three years probation and ordered him to pay $2,000 in restitution.

Assault case ruling overturned

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals has overturned a district judge's decision granting a new trial to a man convicted of sexually assaulting an elderly woman and ordered the judge to clarify whether new evidence would likely result in the man's acquittal.

In a decision handed down Tuesday, the court said Roger L. Ames sought a new trial on his conviction of assault with intent to commit a serious felony in connection with a sexual assault on an elderly lady.

After his conviction, Ames located a taxi cab dispatcher who later gave a statement saying that Ames was at a hotel-waiting for a cab at the time the attack occurred.

Drugs search warrant upheld

BOISE (AP) — A magistrate who issued a search warrant for drugs on a tip that was later disputed by the informant had sufficient basis to believe there was probable cause, the Idaho Court of Appeals ruled in upholding a drug conviction.

Michael Forshaw, who in February 1984 was arrested at the Idaho Falls airport with 2.2 pounds of cocaine, contended there was not probable cause for a warrant and asked the court to overturn his conviction for possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

The ruling issued Tuesday said Forshaw's girlfriend, with whom he had lived with for two years in Laguna Beach, Calif., was the informant. She provided information to Laguna Beach police, who were investigating Forshaw along with Idaho Falls police.

Bank's accountants seeking court move

BOISE (AP) — A Salt Lake City accounting firm is asking the U.S. District Court to accept jurisdiction on a lawsuit filed over the failed First Bank and Trust of Idaho of Malad City.

The petition filed with the federal court by KMG Main Hurdman asks that a lawsuit filed in October by Idaho Bank and Trust against it and First Bancorp of Idaho, owner of the failed bank, be removed from 6th District Court in Malad City and heard in U.S. District Court.

The lawsuit, filed in October, alleges that KMG overestimated First Bank and Trust's asset values, overstated shareholders' equity values and understated allowances for loan losses.

KMG partner Roger Richins of Salt Lake City declined comment and referred questions to attorney Doug Parry, who was out of his office Tuesday.

Based on accounting reports, which the suit said misrepresented the true financial condition of First Bank and Trust, Idaho Bank and Trust in 1983 rewrote a 30-day loan for $840,000, converting the note into a five-year loan calling for monthly payments, the suit said.

But First Bank and Trust on Oct. 1, 1985, defaulted on the loan, leaving an unpaid balance of $436,112, according to interest of $10,887, according to the suit.

IB&T alleges in the suit that KMG didn't follow generally accepted accounting and auditing standards and failed to "present fairly FB&T's financial position, and thus tainted the financial statements and adversely affected the accuracy of the financial picture of FB&T's owner, Bancorp."

"KMG negligently, carelessly and recklessly conducted its examinations of FB&T's books and records, by preparing financial statements and reports that reflected something other than the true financial condition of IB&T," the suit said.

According to the suit, IB&T made a 30-day loan of $840,000 to Bancorp on March 3, 1983. A month later, based on the reports from KMG, IB&T extended the loan for five years, but the suit said Bancorp defaulted seven months before First Bank and Trust was taken over by the FDIC.

IB&T is seeking a judgment against First Bank and Trust for the unpaid principal of $436,112, accrued interest totaling $10,887 as of April 1986 and additional interest that has accrued since then, plus attorney fees of $10,000.

More phone bill cuts ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government on Tuesday ordered the American Telephone & Telegraph to reduce rates an additional $550-$700 million, bringing its scheduled New Year's Day long-distance price cut to almost $1.9 billion, or 11 percent.

Federal Communications Commission Chairman Mark S. Fowler said a large portion of the new reductions will come in the night and weekend time periods to benefit people who make long-distance calls from home.

AT&T's competitors said earlier they will reduce their long-distance rates to remain competitive. Fowler estimated that their reductions, coupled with AT&T's cuts will bring the total reduction in 1987 phone bills to more than $2 billion.

The cuts were made possible in large part by reductions in the rates long-distance companies pay local phone companies for making the connection between an individual phone and the long-distance company's switching center.

Part of the cost of those circuits is now paid by each customer as a monthly $2 subscriber line charge.

Even with that $2 cost, the commission estimates that any customer who makes $4.65 a month in long-distance calls will save money on out-of-state toll calls, compared to 32 months ago when they will reduce their long-distance rates to remain competitive.

Fowler also predicted local rates generally will remain flat in 1987 and may be reduced in some states.

AT&T spokeswoman Edith Herman outlined roughly how the additional savings will be distributed:

- Calls made between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. or on weekends prior to 5 p.m. on Sunday would come down about 5.9 percent. A 2.7 percent reduction had been proposed.
- Rates for WATS lines, used by businesses to accept toll-free calls from customers, were ordered down by 5 percent, more than double the rate reduction AT&T had planned.
- Weekday rates, for calls made between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. were slated for a 11.6 percent cut, but under the commission-ordered reduction the cut will be 14.5 percent.

Onlookers observe waves caused by high tides crashing into breakers at Pacifica, Calif.

High tides along Oregon coast result of rare celestial alignment

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A rare alignment of the sun, moon and Earth will produce the highest tides in a decade Wednesday, but forecasters expect no serious problems along the Oregon Coast.

The highest tide is predicted at Newport, where it's expected to peak at 10½ feet at 10:38 a.m. MST. At Waldport, where erosion has been a problem, the tide is forecast at 10 feet at 11:01 a.m. MST. At Astoria, a 10.4-foot tide is predicted at 10:42 a.m. MST.

The high tides are only inches above normal, but problems could arise if a major storm hits the coast at the same time, forecasters said Tuesday.

A weather system was headed for the coast late Tuesday, but it was a small one that was expected to be inland by the time the tides peak, said Bob Roe, supervisory meteorological technician with the National Weather Service in Portland.

A large storm that could reach the coast by Friday was of "major concern," however, the weather service said in a statement issued Tuesday.

Although tides will be below record levels by then, they still will be around 10 feet.

"The direction of movement and timing of this weather system is uncertain but the potential combination of this storm with high tides Friday seems sufficiently possible that special attention should be paid to this situation," said the statement, signed by head meteorologist George Miller.

Roe said the storm still could change direction or speed. "It's going to do something, but when they're that far out it's kind of risky to say it's going to cause all these problems," he said.

In Waldport, where a sandspit was lost during the El Nino weather phenomenon two years ago, emergency management officials have been preparing for the worst.

Mary Metcalf, deputy coordinator for the Lincoln County Office of Emergency Management, said between 2,000 and 3,000 sandbags were filled a month ago and were distributed to critical areas.

"Waldport is the most vulnerable because of the way the ocean comes through the bay there, and so we are monitoring conditions carefully," said weather service meteorologist Don Northrop.

U.S. debt per capita increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government debt burden for every man, woman and child in the United States grew to $10,048 in 1985, a 14 percent increase over 1984, the Census Bureau said Tuesday.

The amount every individual in the country would have to contribute to eliminate the combined debt of the federal government and state and local governments has risen at double-digit rates for the past four years.

Three-fourths of the 1985 combined debt, $7,655 for each American, was owed by the federal government.

Local government accounted for 15 percent of the debt, $1,506 per person. State government debt was $888 per person, or 10 percent of the total.

Combined state and local debt per resident was highest in Alaska, at $18,560, followed by North Dakota with a state and local debt burden of $6,060 per resident.

Residents of Idaho had the lowest non-federal debt level at $1,140, followed by Mississippi with a state and local debt burden of $1,240 per person.

The combined debt per person of $10,048 in 1985 compared to a total of $8,813 in 1984, when the debt total had risen 12.3 percent from the previous fiscal year.

The three levels of government reported $2.4 trillion in debt outstanding for 1985, up $317 billion or 15 percent since 1984. Federal debt increased $251 billion or nearly 16 percent over 1984. The increase for state and local debt was $66 billion, a rise of 13 percent.

Best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year to all. We have enjoyed your patronage during 1986 and look forward to seeing you in 1987.

Soviet procedural changes said to be possible trade link

WASHINGTON (AP) — A change in procedures may make it easier for U.S. companies to make use of research conducted in the Soviet Union, according to the president of a firm that seeks out Soviet technology for American businesses.

John W. Kiser III, president of Kiser Research, Inc., says American firms already use substantial amounts of technical know-how from the Soviet Union, including some with military uses. But more can be profitably acquired, he says.

"In the business community ... there is a long history of underrating the Russian and Eastern bloc capabilities. Most of the people who worry about the Soviets 'stealing' our technology, I say that the best defense is a good offense."

Kiser's firm searches out technologies in Eastern Europe for licensing to American firms.

U.S. companies are evaluating nine technologies his organization has found, and have signed four options-and-one license for Soviet, Czech and East German processes, he said, adding that 16 firms already buy patent know-how and licenses from the Soviet bloc, including DuPont, Dow Chemical, Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical, and the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co.

New procedures that go into effect with the new year in the Soviet Union will enable 70 Soviet industrial enterprises and 20 Soviet government departments to make separate trade deals with other countries, including the sale of Soviet technology to American firms were filtered through a single Soviet trade organization, Licensingort.

The new rules will allow the Soviet enterprises to keep at least some of the dollars they earn and use them to enhance their own operations.

"It will be better for trade in the long run if the individual Soviet agencies turn out to be more aggressive about making deals," Kiser said in an interview.

He estimated that over the past 10 to 15 years, the Soviets and their Eastern European allies have earned about $80 million in this country from royalties and licensing fees. He said the Soviets seem to be less worried than U.S. military authorities about the possibility that some of the processes they sell may have military applications.

Kiser likes to recall a remark attributed to former Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev. Khrushchev said maybe the United States should not sell buttons to the Soviet Union, because if a Soviet soldier finds his pants falling down, he can't handle his rifle.

Kiser points on the Soviet side to an electromagnetic process called electroslag casting, which could make cheaper gun barrels with fewer impurities in the metal. The process is already being used by American companies.

The Washington subway system uses rails welded by an American company using Soviet machines, he said.

Mail carriers' sacks heavier

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's mail carriers hauled a billion more pieces of mail during the four weeks before Christmas than they carried last year, the Postal Service said Tuesday.

From Nov. 22 to Dec. 19, the four weeks officially designated the Christmas mailing period, 12 billion pieces of mail were delivered, up 9.2 percent from last year's figure of 11 billion. Of that number, 2.76 billion pieces were letters and greeting cards with stamps that had to be canceled — as opposed to business mail sent with permits or postage meter imprints.

The nation's card writers were probably busiest licking stamps over the Dec. 13-14 weekend, because Monday, Dec. 15 was the peak cancellation day, with 171 million pieces processed.

With weather delays at a minimum this year, the on-time delivery record was improved over 1985.

Postal Service spokesman Lou Eberhardt said 95 percent of the local mail was delivered overnight, 84 percent of the mail to nearby states was handled in the required two days and mail to the rest of the country was delivered within the three-day standard in 89 percent of the cases.

Researcher advocates 'moderate drinking'

By ALLAN PARACHINI
Los Angeles Times

CLAREMONT, Calif. — Roger Vogler has opined, in interviews and talk shows, about holiday drinking so often that he has a shoal of papers specially prepared for such occasions, summarizing what hosts and guests can do to get through this time of year as safely as possible. As such, with appearances on television and radio and in newspaper and magazine interviews, Vogler, a Pomona, Calif., college psychologist, has emerged as a key spokesman in what seems to be a new national emphasis on "moderate" drinking. The scientific community is quick to say this is happening, though, a controversy of sorts has opened up. Critics contend that trying to define such amorphous terms as moderate or socially responsible drinking is pointless and that the new attention to the concept is little more than finding ways to rationalize alcohol abuse.

The main alcoholic beverage industry group, the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, has joined in the fray, distributing a holiday season press kit noting that the council's research shows that "promote safe, moderate consumption of alcoholic beverages for those who choose to drink." The industry campaign also draws on a small number of research studies that have tentatively linked moderate drinking with modest health benefits.

In response, a quartet of alcohol abuse experts published a letter in the Journal of the American Medical Association criticizing the new emphasis on moderation and health as a "warning" that "the scientific community and the media should rebut attempts... to exploit these research findings." Among those signing the letter was Dr. Jokichi Takamine, a Los Angeles alcohol abuse expert, who discussed his views in an interview. "Just the other day," Takamine said, "I heard one guy on some television show poo-pooing alcoholism and saying crack (cheap street cocaine) is the big thing (in terms of abuse potential)."

"But other drugs come and go and alcohol keeps winning like the Mississippi River," Vogler does not argue the point about alcohol's pervasive role in society. But in his media appearances and in "The Better Way to Drink," a book he first published in 1982, Vogler has become a champion of the contention that drinking in moderation can be learned behavior and that most alcohol abuse is not a sickness at all, just bad behavior that can be corrected. The book was written in concert with Sacramento psychologist Wayne Bartz.

Vogler argues that, except for a small number of extreme alcohol abusers, the notion that there is a disease called alcoholism is inaccurate, a point on which he comes into direct contact with much of mainstream alcoholism therapy — most notably Alcoholics Anonymous, a spokesman for which declined to discuss Vogler and his work.

Sitting in his office at Pomona College's campus in Claremont, about 30 miles east of Los Angeles, Vogler riffled through his special holiday drinking file, expanding on tidbits uncovered as he went.

Vogler's ideas about moderate drinking are predicated on the objective of drinking so as not to exceed a level of alcohol in the blood of .055 percent — a little more than half the 10 percent alcohol content necessary to be presumed guilty of drunk driving. A .20 blood alcohol level would comote extreme drunkenness and a level of .50 could mean coma or death.

Drinking and party-going behavior, then, Vogler said, should be predicated on means to stay within the .055 limit — a level of alcohol influence that stops short of the feeling most people would equate with "being tipsy or drunk" but recognizes that perhaps the main reason humans use alcohol is to feel a little high.

Staying within the limit may be a little trickier than it would seem at first. "I hope you will run it every New Year's Eve. I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me."

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve you published some New Year's resolutions. I cut that column out and taped it on my bathroom mirror where I could read it every morning. I want you to know that it has helped me to become a better person. I am not saying that I kept every one of those resolutions every day, but I kept most of them, and they have now become habits that have made a remarkable improvement in my personality and character.

I hope you will run it every New Year's Eve. I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me. NEVER TOO OLD DEAR NEVER: The "resolutions" column has become an established annual tradition. DEAR READERS: These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Alcoholics Anonymous. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own: Just for today I will live through this day only, and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once. I know I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Just for today I will be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts.

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will correct those things that I can correct and accept those things I cannot correct.

Just for today I will do something positive to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to cut down. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know is fattening. And I will force myself to exercise — even if it's only walking around the block or using the stairs instead of the elevator. Just for today I will be totally honest. If someone asks me something I don't know, I will not bluff. I'll simply say, "I don't know."

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll finally write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today, before I speak I will ask myself, "Is it true? Is it kind?" And if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision. Just for today I will have a quiet half-hour to relax alone. During this time I will reflect on my behavior and will get a better perspective on my life. Just for today I will be unafraid. I will gather the courage to do what's right and take the responsibility for my own actions. I will expect nothing from the world, but I will realize that as I give to the world, the world will give to me. Have a happy, healthy New Year. And pray for peace.

—LOVE, ABBY
P.S. If you are driving tonight, don't drink. And if you're drinking, please don't drive.

Class of '90 money-conscious

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The college graduating class of 1990 is more money-conscious than the students of some 20 years earlier, according to a survey made by UCLA's Higher Education Research Institute and the American Council on Education. Of 280,000 college freshmen from 550 campuses surveyed, 71 percent said "being very well off financially" was their primary goal as opposed to 83 percent of the freshmen of 1967 who named "developing a meaningful philosophy of life." One in four wants a business career and fewer than 1 percent will be English majors (down 80 percent in 1967).

Politically, college freshmen have moved towards the center. Middle-of-the-roadsers grew to 56.7 percent, up from 45.4 percent.

China officials tell students they can't defeat communism

PEKING (AP) — National television showed a film Tuesday night of great student agitation in Shanghai, and a top Education Ministry official said student protesters must realize that attempting to challenge Communist rule is futile.

month joined protests to demand democratic reforms. His news conference, in which he said the government's present tolerance toward protesters does not extend to those who repudiate Communism, came as the government added a new twist to its propaganda war against the students.

The TV nightly news ran segments showing wrecked cars and uprooted trees in Shanghai, bicycles strewn across streets and buses stuck in great waves of marchers. It showed two factory workers being brought to trial on charges of damaging cars during the Dec. 19-23 demonstrations there.

That was followed by a woman veteran of the revolution preaching the values of public order and a 10-minute editorial on the illegality of "big character" posters being put up by pro-democracy students around the country. The posters are roughly akin to banner headlines on big sheets of paper.

At Peking University, more than 100 students stood in sub-zero temperatures Tuesday to read new posters pasted where the previous day's signs had been removed. Several read the contents into tape recorders, to be transcribed and passed on to students at other universities.

"Without democracy there's no China," said one, in imitation of the old slogan "Without the Communist Party there will be no new China." One poster, repeating a message from the day before, called on students to prepare slogans for a demonstration in Tiananmen Square, the central Peking landmark, on New Year's Day. The city has stated demonstrations are prohibited at the Great Hall of the People, which is next to the square.

S. Africa readies for racial violence

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Extra police, helicopters and "whites only" signs were deployed along the seaboards Tuesday in an effort to head off New Year's racial violence after mixed bathing prompted Christmas beach battles.

Many South African beaches are racially segregated, but some cities, mostly in the Cape province, have eliminated discrimination laws or refused to enforce them.

French rail workers demonstrate

PARIS (AP) — Several thousand striking railroad workers and supporters demonstrated in Paris and other major cities Tuesday, and union heads walked out to Lam Voe in a symbolic protest against the railroad's refusal to withdraw a contested salary system.

On Tuesday evening, the heads of the federation and two other major unions, the Workers and the French Democratic Confederation of Workers, left the talks but insisted this was a "gesture" rather than a "rupture." Union delegations remained to discuss working conditions and other issues under dispute.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iranian soldiers protesting the government's "challenging policies" set fire to a Revolutionary Guards base in Tehran, an opposition group said Tuesday.

What's what

Don't tell the folks

Have you told your mother or dad about any of the weird and dangerous stunts you pulled as a youngster? If not, don't. True, now that everybody's grown up, there's pleasure in new friendship with the folks. But their old anxieties can be revived, say the advisers. They'll be happier if innocent of worrisome revelations.

The "naut" in astronaut means "navigator."

THE FLAMINGO
The flamingo sits down to bathe.

And to nest. What makes this a curiosity is that the flamingo doesn't sit down much. It's on its feet, or foot, whichever, more than any other bird.

Hardly any verse has inspired more variations since Voltaire wrote this: "The other day by a little lake... Jean Freron was bit by a snake... What was the sequel? Needless to say... The snake, not Freron, passed away."

Q. What type of wild animal kills the most bears?
A. Porcupine. If its quills stick in a bear's tongue, the bear can starve to death.

In that pidgin paradise called Hong Kong, a discotheque is a "dixie-go."

EYE COLOR
Some medical scientists seriously report their recent research convinces them that the color of your eyes suggests certain personality traits. People with light blue eyes tend to show patience and stamina; they contend that people with dark brown eyes, though impulsive, are inclined to react better in crises.

If you know anybody who's into 'drugs, consider whether this applies. According to a professor at the University of Kansas Medical Center, habitual users tend to fall into two categories — the angry and the lonely.

When trailing a rabbit, remember, it's the hind feet that make the front tracks.

An airplane's shadow is the same size regardless of altitude.

The Lone Ranger loses luggage in L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Lone Ranger rode the West helping the downtrodden, righting wrongs and restoring stolen property, but even he is powerless when it comes to disappearing luggage.

Actor Clayton Moore, who starred in television's 1947-59 series "The Lone Ranger," lost luggage containing $20,000 worth of memorabilia from the show, including 50 of his trademark sterling silver bullets, two Colt .45-caliber revolvers, a gunbelt and two costumes, on a flight from Houston to Los Angeles.

"There's nothing to indicate the luggage has been stolen," Los Angeles County Sheriff's Deputy James Morrow said Tuesday. "We're working under the assumption they've been misrouted, but the investigation is continuing."

But Moore, 72, had carried the Lone Ranger's mask and white cowboy hat aboard the Continental Airlines flight, so they were not lost.

Shultz agrees to attend King holiday service

ATLANTA (AP) — Organizers of Atlanta's observance of the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday say Secretary of State George Shultz has agreed to attend.

Shultz will speak at an ecumenical service Jan. 19, said Lloyd Davis, executive director of the federal King holiday commission.

civil rights leader's native city, Davis said.

Vice President George Bush came last year to help mark the first national holiday honoring King.

A.B. Guthrie says he is confirmed non-smoker

CHOTEAU, Mont. (AP) — Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist A.B. Guthrie Jr. says he'll enter the new year as a confirmed non-smoker.

Guthrie, 85, had smoked for 65 years before quitting two days after Christmas last year and has completed a full year without a cigar rette or pipe.

"I know I feel better," Guthrie told the Great Falls Tribune in an interview published Tuesday.

Guthrie won the Pulitzer Prize in 1950 for his novel, "The Way West." He is still active as a writer and recently finished revisions on the latest in his series of mystery novels involving a fictional Montana sheriff, Chick Charleston.

World traveler relates adventures to children

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A man who walked around the world in the early 1970s is spending most of his time now retracing his footsteps for school children.

"I tell them the whole story and the kids love it. They get all the lessons. They get motivation. They get goalsetting. They get geography and history and sociology because I tell the stories of real people in the countries I walked through. They get culture, and they get great adventure," said Dave Kunst, 47, formerly of Waseca but now of Costa Mesa, Calif.

Graham stays in touch with his 'workdays'

MIAMI (AP) — Gov. Bob Graham's term in office is nearly over, but his "workdays" at jobs outside the governor's mansion aren't.

Graham, 50, helped a caseworker interview clients, served lunch to homeless men and then worked at a warehouse Monday at Salvation Army shelters in Miami on his workday No. 199, the last of his eight-year administration.

His longest 1978 gubernatorial campaign was built around his "100 Workdays," in which the Harvard-educated millionaire spent days working at jobs ranging from migrant worker to picking chickens. As a bellhop, he carried the surprised front-runner's bags.

Music video station to give away 100-acre Texas ranch

SHAMROCK, Texas (AP) — Most folks in this Panhandle town are more amused than alarmed by a contest promotion that proposes to give the isolated ranch community a rock 'n' roll neighbor.

"I think it's funny," said Sam Pagan, who lives on his father's 83-year-old farm two miles from the 180-acre piece of ground to be given away by the cable music channel MTV, which calls the land a town site.

"Just the thought of someone that listens to MTV wanting to have a ranch put here in the booms, it's a strange gimmick," Pagan said.

On New Year's Eve, amid the televised revelry of a Roman-themed bash called "Nero's Eve Rock 'n' Roll Ball," MTV will announce the name of the winner of "MTV Town."

The channel is very well known for its outlandish contests, MTV promotion coordinator Peter Danielsen told the Dallas Times Herald.

Danielsen cited the New York-based cable network's $1 million giveaway in 1985 and a contest this year that sent rock idol Prince to Sheridan, Wyo., to give the winner and her guests a private screening of Prince's new movie.

"Now we're giving away a town," Danielsen said from New York City. "What's next? We keep asking ourselves."

He conceded that "MTV Town" is little more than windblown grassland.

"But it is (a town) because we bought it and we'll make it a town," he said, adding that the site will be incorporated at the winner's request.

Not everyone around this town of 3,000 about 90 miles east of Amarillo is amused.

"We have two small kids, we're Christians, and I just kinda worry about what's gonna be going on over there," said Kim Cadra, who lives across the road from the site.

MTV chose the site because, at about $300 an acre, it was cheap, Danielsen said.

The contest winner also is to get a house full of stereo equipment and 1,000 compact discs, Danielsen said, along with a jeep to traverse his roadless town, the satellite dish he will need to keep watching MTV, "a town's supply" of candy and gum from the contest's co-sponsor, Nabisco, and $100,000 cash.

Oregon transition team backs multistate lottery

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — A plan that would allow Oregon to participate in a multistate lottery has received the endorsement of Gov.-elect Neil Goldschmidt's transition team.

James Davey, Oregon State Lottery director, said Monday the transition team had given the agency permission to seek revision of state laws so it could join a lottery with other states.

Davey said no decision had been made on whether Oregon would take part in the proposed lottery.

The law changes, if approved by the Legislature, would remove the major legal obstacles to Oregon's participation, Davey said.

Portland lawyer David Lohman, who headed a subcommittee of Goldschmidt's economic development task force, confirmed the panel had given the Oregon Lottery approval to submit its proposal to the Legislature.

Lohman said he did not know whether Goldschmidt, who takes office in January, supported a joint lottery.

Davey said the Oregon State Lottery Commission would decide whether to join a multistate lottery next year and likely would be guided by Goldschmidt's wishes.

He said that an agreement that states would sign to participate in the joint lottery was being drafted for consideration at a national meeting of lottery officials in June.

Davey, who supports the multistate lottery proposal, said it could mean individual prizes of between $5 million and $40 million. He estimated that Oregon's annual lottery sales could double to $200 million.

The other potential participants in the joint lottery are Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, New Hampshire, New York, Rhode Island, West Virginia and Washington, D.C.

The plan has been under discussion since last summer. The proposed starting date for the lottery is January 1989.

Davey said the Oregon Lottery would ask legislators for two revisions to permit it to take part in a lottery that would otherwise violate state law.

Judge drops suit against Utah town

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A U.S. District Court Judge dismissed a suit brought by seven Washington County clergymen against the city of St. George over discontinued subsidies of Mormon temple lighting.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Greene ruled since the city had stopped paying the $280-per-month bill for lighting the outside of temple at night, the issue was irrelevant.

He also dismissed a suit by St. George resident Phillip Foremaster over the same issue because Foremaster was not a subscriber to the city electrical company which had lighted the temple.

However, Greene said he would retain jurisdiction over the matter and would bring it back to court if the city started paying the temple lighting bills again.

Foremaster brought suit against the city in 1985 to stop it from paying for temple lighting. The Washington Ministerial Association, consisting of seven local clergymen, joined the suit in November.

Crash victims hospitalized

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — Four family members who were rescued from the wreckage of their single-engine airplane after it crashed during a sightseeing trip remained hospitalized Tuesday, officials said.

The crash of the Cessna 172 was reported at about 5 p.m. Monday by an airline pilot who communicated with the downed craft.

The pilot, James Stoneking of St. George, his 2-year-old son, Scott, and his father, Steve, and Donald Stoneking, were in satisfactory condition at Dixie Medical Center, said Washington County sheriff's dispatcher Pam Humphrey.

The pilot's mother, Jackie Stoneking, was in critical condition.

Rescue helicopters from Hill Air Force Base, Utah, and Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., and a Life Flight helicopter from Las Vegas, Nev., were called in shortly after the plane was spotted in the rugged Pine Valley Mountain area about 35 miles north of St. George.

Escapees taken back to Delaware

DOVER, Del. (AP) — A team of state police officers will leave for Arizona by Jan. 7 to escort three prison escapees back to Delaware, police spokesman Sgt. John Miller said Monday.

Law enforcement agencies have indicated they will not press charges against the trio, two of whom are convicted murderers and one a rapist, for allegedly trying to rob a Utah store. That clears the way for their return to the Delaware Correctional Center from which they escaped Dec. 1.

The three, Richard N. Irwin, 26; Mark A. McCoy, 25 and Larry D. Nave, 22, are being held in the Mojave County jail while police agencies work out the details for their return, Miller said.

Andrus blasts CSI over catalog printing bid

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Governor-elect Cecil Andrus blasted the College of Southern Idaho Board of Trustees on Tuesday for spending Idaho tax money out of state, but CSI officials defended the move, saying they are restricted by state law.

The furor is over an $18,142 bid to print 13,000 college catalogs.

At his December meeting, the CSI board approved the low bid from Gilliland Printing of Arkansas City, Kan. Five other printing companies, all in Idaho, also submitted bids. The second-lowest bid was only $135 higher, submitted by Graphic Arts of Boise, followed by Moore Publishing of Jerome, with $18,940.

"This is a prime example of what we've been talking about when we say 'Buy Idaho, invest in Idaho,'" Andrus said on Tuesday. "Public money is being spent out of state, and I think they should have a darn good excuse for going out of state."

Gilliland printed the last two editions of the CSI catalogue. At the December board meeting, CSI Treasurer Karl Black recommended Gilliland because it produced a known product.

But Skip Nadeau of Graphic Arts in Boise said his company printed the last two catalogs for Boise State University, and he also asked why contracts were going out of state.

"If this were a bigger spread, I'd understand it," he said. "But the bid was so close, it's a gray issue."

CSI President Jerry Meyerhoefer said the college was caught between law and conscience.

"We postponed this decision a month, trying to find a way to keep it in state," Meyerhoefer said on Tuesday. "I agree with Gov. Andrus. And I think we have tried to keep business in Idaho whenever we can."

The issue also raises questions over which laws apply to what state agencies.

Meyerhoefer said CSI questioned the state Division of Purchasing on whether state law allowed the college to give preference to in-state bids. The answer from the Division of Purchasing was "no," he said.

But Andrus questioned whether CSI fell under the law governing the Division of Purchasing.

"Whoever wrote that letter to CSI didn't have authority," Andrus said. "My main concern is that if there's anyway CSI can cancel that bid, they should do it."

CSI lawyer Bob Alexanders said the verbal contract with Gilliland is binding, and the law is specific.

"The law is pretty simple. We're required to go with the low-quality bidder, and that's precisely what we did," Alexander said.

Buk, Gary Sylvester, with the Department of Purchasing, said "different entities have different requirements" in following bidding procedures and accepting bids.

Although Alexander said the contract was binding, Meyerhoefer said CSI is trying to contact Gilliland to see if the company will allow the contract to be re-bid.

"I don't know what's going to happen to it," Meyerhoefer said.

Andrus conceded that if the law is ambiguous, "then I want to change it, but by George, I don't want to see this happen again."

Burley steps up push for prison

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Burley officials will try to shatter a stalemate between two state boards before the decision on the location of a new prison lands before the Idaho Legislature, the chairman of the Burley Area Development Commission says.

The economic development group will lobby members of the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council to view a proposed penitentiary site on the city's northwest side and to hear supporting arguments, Truman Bradley said Tuesday.

The council earlier this month rejected sites in Burley and 23 other cities in favor of expanding the state prison near Boise.

The commission and city officials also advocate a joint session between the council and the Idaho Board of Corrections, which has endorsed Burley's bid for the $30 million facility.

Bradley, businessman Dennis Curtis, who chairs an ad-hoc prison siting committee, and Burley Mayor Ken Frank said Tuesday they will press their campaign to land the prison as far as necessary. "We can't stop. We're not going to stop," Bradley said.

At the same time, they criticized the recommendation by Brian Chase, administrator of the Idaho Division of Public Works, as the most cost-effective alternative. Chase's rating resulted in the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council's unanimous approval.

"I think we can say every community on that list (of applicants) was shocked by that recommendation... because that site was never to have been one that was to be considered," Bradley said.

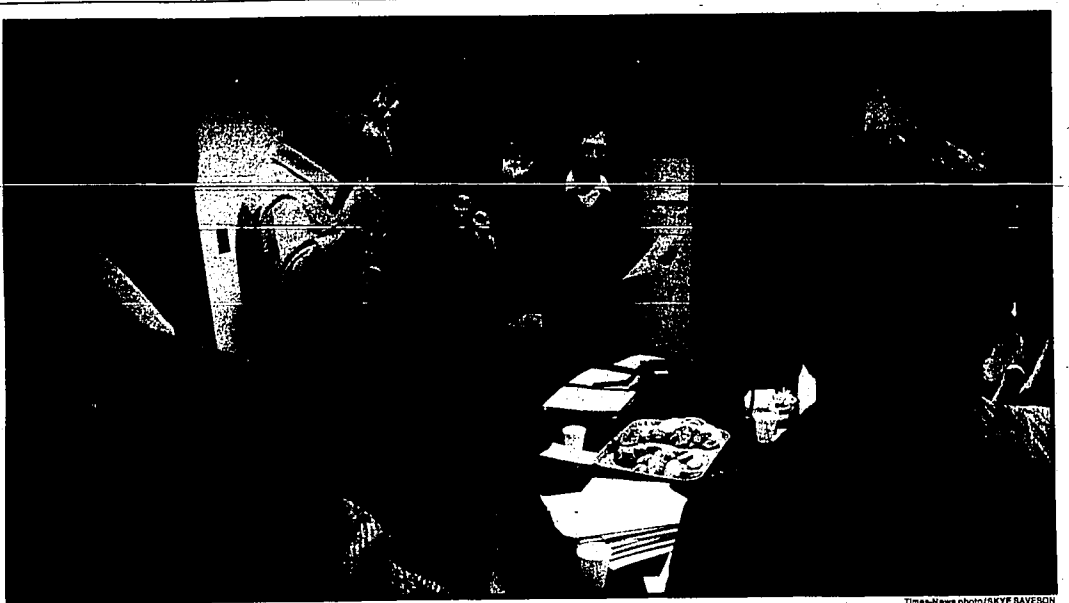

Bob Anderson, chairman of the Idaho Board of Corrections, agreed Tuesday that "We never really were interested in adding another prison onto the current site." The board and the building fund council had asked for a list of the top three to five locations, he said.

Curtis went farther in a news conference, accusing Chase of "overstepping his bounds" in picking a specific site.

Nevertheless, Chase defended his proposal, saying Gov. John Evans had ordered construction of all appropriate sites at the outset of the search last spring.

"It's just obvious that you always

Gooding County Commission Chairman Robert Thackeray swears in the new board members for the Gooding County Hospital District

Gooding County creates hospital taxing district

Transfer of operations to come later

By JANE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The voter-approved Gooding County Hospital District is ready to begin levying taxes, but has not yet taken control of the county-owned Gooding County Memorial Hospital.

The County Board of Commissioners dissolved the GCMH board of directors at a special meeting Monday and adopted an ordinance establishing the new taxing district approved by voters in May.

Commission Chairman Robert Thackeray said the commissioners will oversee operations at the financially troubled hospital until the operation can be transferred to the taxing district.

A seven member board to operate the tax district was also appointed Monday. It includes: Elmer Schraft of Wendell; Jim Davis, Hagerman; Doran Butler, Bliss; Eugene Morris, Bliss; Joyce Scanlon, Dale Butler and Mary Jan Simis, all Gooding.

The seven member panel was appointed in July, but the district was unable to levy taxes in 1986 or take control of the hospital. The board was then appointed as an interim county hospital board and, advised by hospital attorney Fred Decker of Twin Falls, the panel could serve as board of directors for both the hospital and the taxing district to facilitate transfer of operations.

But Thackeray acknowledged Monday that the members of the district board had resigned from the district position in early November when they took the interim hospital board position because of difficulties over liability insurance coverage.

The hospital board (chaired by Doyle Pugmire) and the district board (chaired by Elmer Schraft) both resigned about the same time. Then the district board became the hospital board," Thackeray said.

Because of the November resignations it was necessary to re-administer the oath of office to the district board members Monday.

The tax district-board has no authority to operate the hospital, enter into contracts for hospital services or any other aspect of the operation because the hospital still belongs to the county. Thackeray said the commission will ask the Walker ACT Center which shares district's advice on operational space and some services with the hospital; and review of proposals from companies interested in operating the facility. Although the board could not make decisions on any of the issues, Thackeray said the commission wants the district's input.

The district will also begin drawing up a proposal for transferring the property to district control. Thackeray said such an agreement could be in the form of a management contract, a lease agreement, or purchase proposal.

"Right now the facility does not belong to you, and you have no district board to continue meeting agreement to operate it," he said.

on the third Thursday of the month, at noon in the hospital board room, until district bylaws can be adopted.

The commission also asked the district board to hold its first meeting Tuesday to deal with immediate issues, such as the departure of Administrator Duane Cutright who has asked to be relieved of his responsibilities for health reasons; negotiations for an operational contract with the Walker ACT Center which shares the hospital; and review of proposals from companies interested in operating the facility. Although the board could not make decisions on any of the issues, Thackeray said the commission wants the district's input.

The district will also begin drawing up a proposal for transferring the property to district control. Thackeray said such an agreement could be in the form of a management contract, a lease agreement, or purchase proposal.

"Right now the facility does not belong to you, and you have no district board to continue meeting agreement to operate it," he said.

"but we want to get that resolved as soon as possible."

The district is expected to raise $150,000 a year in tax revenue towards the operation of a health care facility and will begin levying the new tax at the start of the fiscal year Oct. 1.

The commission has received two petitions asking that the hospital be closed because of its financial position and the taxing district dissolved. A third petition requesting the hospital remain open has also been presented to county officials. Thackeray said Monday that none of the petitions are legal binding and that the commission has not taken a stand on whether the hospital should remain open or be closed. Once the district takes control of the facility, the decision on whether to close or continue operating will be up to the district board directors.

The new district directors will serve in staggered terms, following which the board will be elected by Gooding County voters. Three positions will be on the ballot in 1988, two more in 1990 and two more in 1992.

New Year's Eve: Help keep drunk drivers off the roads

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho State Police, the American Cancer Society, a local taxicab company and local bars will all be cooperating this New Year's Eve to keep the streets safe from drunk drivers.

Sgt. Dave Neal of the ISP gives these tips to those planning to celebrate the new year by drinking.

Use the designated driver plan. One person in each group should assume the title of designated driver and stay sober throughout the night. This person would have the responsibility of making sure the others are driven home safely.

If you do plan on driving yourself home, one or two drinks over a 6- to 7-hour period will usually not be enough to make a driver legally impaired. But, Neal warns, this is something that changes with an individual's height and weight and varies for different people.

Plan ahead. If you know you or

Cancer society offers rides for party-goers

TWIN FALLS — The American Cancer Society's shuttle service to provide transportation for party-goers on New Year's Eve isn't just for drinkers — it's for anyone needing transportation to and from parties or other festive events.

Event Chairman Jim Leavitt said the service is a fund-raiser for cancer projects and anyone wishing transportation can call for a car and driver. The cost is $10, which covers a full carload to and from festivities.

"The idea is to give people who may be drinking a chance to relax without worrying about driving, but it is also for anyone's New Year Eve's plans," Leavitt said. "It could be for a church service or a church party."

Health and Welfare workers say computer snags continue

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Problems continue with the state Department of Health and Welfare's computer system. Although a department spokeswoman said she is encouraged about expelling the bugs in the multi-million dollar Eligibility Programs Integrated Computer System, or EPICS — regional workers are not so enthusiastic.

"We aren't at a point of seeing the light at the end of the tunnel or seeing the advantage of this system," said Judy Brooks of Twin Falls, regional eligibility programs supervisor.

Lindy High of Boise, the department's public information officer, said EPICS' processing of the January payroll went "smoothly." The payroll amounted to 14,293 medical cards, 4,889 benefit checks and 13,353 authorizations for food stamps. The food-stamp coupons are issued out of Sacramento.

"It's real encouraging," High said.

She didn't have the number of benefits issued to date through the manual system, implemented in November because of the problems in the system. The manual process allows eligibility workers to bypass EPICS to issue benefits in "priority" cases.

The system, a complex computer program, processes applications for welfare programs such as food stamps, Aid to Families of Dependent Children and Medicaid. Troubles with the system began shortly after it was implemented in October.

High said the department was successful in stabilizing access time to the system for eligibility workers in the field. About 3 weeks ago, the workers were given 3 days during the week to use the system. Previously, access was on an irregular basis.

Brooks agreed the examiners had more time with the system, compared to 6 weeks ago.

"This is so much better," Brooks said. "I would say a significant improvement, especially on the time we have access to the system."

But there is still a log-jam of cases, she said. Without the manual system there would be the same crisis clients experienced weeks ago, when benefits were delayed for weeks because of the computer "glitches," Brooks said.

One of the present problems with the system is its inability to accept changes on complex cases, Brooks said. As a result, pending cases back up.

Eligibility worker Norma Requa of Twin Falls, who works with benefits for the elderly, said she used to have two to three pending cases waiting for processing before EPICS. Now she has 50 cases piled up on her desk.

"We're buried now," Requa said.

The welfare workers don't have the full 3 days to enter changes to old cases or process new cases, because the system is often down during parts of those days, she said. At times the system is only available during the weekends.

She is concerned that some clients who are unaware of the computer problems may think they have been dropped from the programs because they didn't receive their benefits, Requa said. Because of the system, the

Green's record rushing lets UCLA tip BYU

UCLA's Gaston Green shows how to set Freedom Bowl rushing records against BYU

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Junior tailback Gaston Green rushed for 266 yards, the most ever in a major college bowl game, to lead UCLA to a 31-0 victory over Brigham Young Tuesday night in the third annual Freedom Bowl.

Green ran for three touchdowns and passed for another as UCLA won its fifth straight bowl game. The 15th-ranked Bruins, who completed their season with an 8-3 record, were victorious in bowl games on each of the last four New Year's Days.

The previous major college bowl game rushing record was 265 yards by Dickie Moegle of Rice against Alabama in the 1954 Cotton Bowl — a game better known because Alabama's Tommy Lewis came off the bench to tackle Moegle on a run down the right sideline.

The Cougars, who were appearing in a bowl game for a ninth consecutive year, wound up 8-3.

Green, who carried 33 times, scored on a three-yard sweep of left end midway through the first quarter to tip UCLA ahead for good, and on a one-yard sweep of right end and a 79-yard off-tackle burst in the third period.

Then, with six minutes left in the game, Green tossed a 13-yard touchdown pass to Karl Dorrell on an option run-pass play.

UCLA got its other points on a 49-yard field goal by Dave Franey in the third quarter.

Green's big night enabled him to set UCLA single-season records for rushing and touchdowns scored. The 5-foot-11, 190-pounder wound up with 1,465 yards or 253 carries and 17 touchdowns this year.

The Cougars took a 3-0 lead on a 32-yard field goal by Leonard Chilly after only 3:23 of play, shortly after Andy Katao recovered fumble by reserve UCLA quarterback Brendan McCracken.

Brigham Young got its only touchdown on a three-yard run by Bruce Hansen with 1:21 left to play.

Green finished the season by rushing for 102 or more yards in seven straight games. He had 224 in UCLA's regular-season finale, a 45-25 whipping of crosstown rival Southern California.

Green had 150 of his yards in the first half Tuesday night. But despite his efforts, the Bruins led just four times. They blew the game open by scoring 17 points in the third quarter.

Green was selected as UCLA's most valuable player in the game and cornerback Shane Shumway was honored as BYU's most valuable player.

UCLA had two turnovers in the opening 4:49 of play — McCracken's fumble and a pass by Matt Stevens that was intercepted by Shumway and returned 20 yards to the BYU 29.

The Bruins scored their first touchdown on their third possession, moving 71 yards on four plays. The big play of the drive was a 49-yard run by Dorrell on a flanker reverse play.

UCLA had 203 yards rushing and 276 yards in total offense in the first half, but just the seven points. Richard Hobbs blocked a 33-yard field goal attempt by Franey on the final play of the half.

Green scored his second touchdown two plays after fullback Marcus Greenwood ran 70 yards on a trap play. That made it 14-3 with 7:05 left in the third quarter.

Greenwood carried only one five times but had 104 yards. James Washington intercepted a pass by BYU quarterback Bob Jensen and returned it 18 yards to the Cougars' 17-yard line to set up UCLA's final touchdown.

Stevens completed 7 of 20 passes for 82 yards, and Dorrell had six receptions for 83 yards.

Steroids, racism push football out of bowl-games spotlight

By The Associated Press

Preparations for this season's major college bowl games were overshadowed Tuesday by continued talk of drugs and a flareup of animosity between opposing teams in the national championship Fiesta Bowl showdown.

The issue of drugs moved into the courts Tuesday in the aftermath of a testing scandal that saw a number of players, including All-American linebacker Brian Bosworth of Oklahoma, banned from postseason play. Most of those suspended, including Bosworth, were found with steroids in their systems.

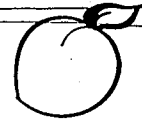

While Bosworth said he would not fight the NCAA action, Louisiana State defensive end Roland Barbay asked a state court in New Orleans to allow him to play under an injunction in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day against Nebraska.

Maneuvering over jurisdiction Tuesday postponed that decision. A motion by the NCAA and LSU moved the case into federal court, where U.S. District Judge Robert Collins scheduled a hearing Wednesday.

In the showcase bowl of the season, top-ranked Miami and No. 2 Penn State meet in a clash of unbeaten for the national title in the Fiesta Bowl Friday night in Tempe, Ariz.

Unfueled by the drug scandal, controversy of another sort has erupted in this bowl with Miami players charging their opponents are racist. The charge followed Miami's walkout at a dinner for both teams over the weekend.

made fun of Miami's togetherness theme, saying Penn State was a family, "because the white players let the black players eat at the training table once a week."

"I really question the intelligence of the black guys on the Penn State team to take a racial slur like that," Miami's All-American defensive tackle Jerome Brown said.

At the same time, there were reports that even after the bowl games, the NCAA might conduct further drug testing, although it was not known how many bowls could be affected.

And what if drugs were found in a player's system after a game?

"I'd say the player's team with the victory would be forfeit," NCAA assistant executive director Dave Coward said. "It may be up to the NCAA Council to decide what to do."

Peach Bowl, 1 p.m. EST

N.C. State quarterback Erik Kramer threw for 2,092 yards and 14 touchdowns to help the Wolfpack turn around three straight 3-8 seasons.

Virginia State has a more ground-oriented offense, led by Maurice Williams and Eddie Hunter, both of whom rushed for six touchdowns this season. Williams ran for 1,029 yards, Hunter for 877.

Bluebonnet Bowl, 3 p.m. EST

Baylor won its last four games of the season behind quarterback Cody Carlson. The Bears offense ranked fifth in the nation with an average of 38.2 total yards, including 2,250 passing and 2,577 on the ground.

Carlson, a fifth-year senior who shared time at quarterback with Tom Muecke until this year, finished with 5,411 yards passing in his SWC career.

Sugar Bowl, 3:30 p.m. EST

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne feels the key to containing fifth-ranked LSU is containing freshman quarterback Tom Hodson, who led the Southeastern Conference in passing with 2,261 yards and 19 touchdowns. Wendell Davis caught 11 of the TD passes.

"We will probably play quite a few defensive linemen because if you have a consistent pass rush it is sometimes fatiguing," Osborne said.

Nebraska, runnerup in the Big Eight, is slightly favored. The No. 6 three-yard TD toss with 4:26 to play, and Houghtlin's conversion put Iowa ahead 36-35.

The pass to Flagg ended an eight-play, 70-yard drive, and Houghtlin's extra point was Iowa ahead.

But San Diego State rallied, as quarterback Todd Santos, who had three first-half touchdown passes, connected with spill-end Alfred Jackson, who made a circus catch with two Iowa defenders draped over him, for a 45-yard gain to the Iowa 9.

Three running plays moved the ball to the 4 before Rahill kicked what looked like the game-winner.

Iowa, 9-3, was making its sixth straight bowl appearance, while San Diego State was making its first bowl trip since 1969. The Aztecs, who finished 6-4, won their first Western Athletic Conference title since joining the WAC in 1976. They were 5-6-1 in 1985, their third straight losing season.

Oklahoma, the Big Eight champions, lost only once this season — to Miami. The Sooners led the Big Eight in rushing, averaging nearly 405 yards per game, and are 17-point favorites over Arkansas.

Both teams run a Wishbone offense, the Sooners' led by quarterback Jamelle Hollieway, the Razorbacks by quarterback Greg Thomas, who also led the Southwest Conference this year.

Rose Bowl, 5 p.m. EST

Despite a 1-6 record in the Rose Bowl under Coach Bo Schembechler, Michigan is a slight favorite over Arizona State, making its first trip to Pasadena.

The Wolverines are led by quarterback Jim Harbaugh, who helped Michigan average 30.3 points per game. Quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst leads Arizona State, which averaged 32.5 points per game.

Despite the quarterbacks, both teams essentially are ground-oriented.

Cotton Bowl, 1:30 p.m. EST

Ohio State quarterback Jim Karlitsos threw for 13 touchdowns past the season, three more than Big Ten rival Harbaugh. Buckeyes wide receiver Kris Carter thinks Texas A&M's pass defense could suffer.

"They play a lot of man-to-man coverage," Carter said. "If we can hold out their rush and Jim has time to throw, I think we should pile up a bunch of yards against them."

Texas A&M had the best pass defense in the SWC.

Citrus Bowl, 12 p.m. EST

Southern Cal ended its season with consecutive losses to Notre Dame and UCLA, and has the worst record of any New Year's Day bowl team. The Trojans see this game as a way to regain some pride.

"We're seeking some respect again," quarterback Rodney Peete said. "The people in L.A. don't think we're that good a football team anymore."

While finishing second in the SEC Auburn led the conference in total offense, averaging 417 yards per game.

Fiesta Bowl, 8:15 p.m. EST

Penn State, a slight underdog, will send its ground game against the passing attack of Helmsman Trophy winner Vinnny Testaverde in the Fiesta Bowl.

cluding senior tailback D.J. Dozier. Dozier rushed for 811 yards but carried only 171 times. Tailbacks David Clark and Blair Thomas combined for 114 carries for 730 yards, and fullbacks Steve Smith and Tim Manoa carried another 152 times between them for 941 yards.

"We have five running backs and we didn't need Mr. Dozier to carry 20 or 30 times a game," Dozier said. "We had four other guys doing a great job."

Testaverde, on the other hand, led the nation in passing with 2,557 yards, a completion ratio of 63.4 percent and 26 touchdowns.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said he planned to play mostly zone defense against Miami to try to stop Testaverde. "With somebody like Testaverde to get the ball to them, I can't think about our corners matching up one-on-one," Paterno said. "We have to think more of a team approach to covering them."

Perkins headed to Tampa

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —

After meeting for several hours on Tuesday with Tampa Bay Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse, Alabama Coach Ray Perkins decided to accept the head coaching job with National Football League team, The Associated Press has learned.

The AP also learned that Perkins scheduled a meeting of his staff Wednesday morning, one hour before a news conference at which Perkins said he would discuss the Tampa Bay situation.

The Dallas Morning News, quoting an unnamed Alabama official, reported that Perkins would become the Buccaneers' coach, general manager and vice president of operations under a five-year contract that would also allow him to purchase part of the team.

After a meeting in Birmingham, Culverhouse, who fired Leeman Bennett as the coach on Monday after consecutive 2-14 seasons, declined to comment on whether he had made an offer to Perkins, who coached the New York Giants before succeeding Bear Bryant at Alabama in 1982.

"It's obvious what we talked about," Perkins said. "I have not made up my mind."

Iowa's last-play field goal tips San Diego 39-38

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Rob Houghtlin's 41-yard field goal as time expired Tuesday night gave 19th-ranked Iowa a 39-38 victory over San Diego State in the ninth annual Holiday Bowl.

San Diego State's Kevin Rahill had kicked a 21-yard field goal with 47 seconds left to give the Aztecs a 38-36 lead. But Kevin Harmon ran the kickoff back 48 yards to the Aztecs 37. Two running plays sandwiched around an incomplete pass moved the ball to the San Diego State 24 with four seconds left.

Houghtlin then kicked the winning field goal, capping a fourth quarter that saw the lead change hands three times in the last 4:26.

The game was in keeping with the Holiday Bowl's tradition of close finishes. Seven of the eight previous games also had been decided by seven points or less.

San Diego State, which led 21-13 at the half and 28-21 after three quarters, took a 35-21 lead on the first play of the fourth quarter when Chris Hardy ran six yards for a touchdown.

But quarterback Mark Vlasic rallied — the Hawkeyes, connecting with Mary Cook on a 29-yard scoring pass on a fourth-and-4 play with 8:39 left. The Hawkeyes then faked a kick on the extra-point attempt, and holder Chuck Hartlieb hit Flagg for a two-point conversion to make it 35-29.

Vlasic then hit Flagg with a
