Congress returns, faces familiar concerns

By CLIFF HAAS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The 100th Congress, firmly in Democratic control, convened Tuesday amid traditional ceremonies and the usual bickering to face familiar issues ranging from trade to cleaning up the environment and a new concern — the Iran-Contragate scandal.

after six years of Republican control of the chamber. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who was trading places with Byrd and becoming "minority leader, said, somewhat wryly, it would be "a new and different Senate."

Wright, who had been House majority leader, savored his new position, saying it "is a treasure more precious than any material possession and an honor more sublime than royalty."

ed with a pocket veto last year, but Democratic leaders in both chambers have made passage of the measure an early priority.

Senate to decide later to extend the report deadline. A resolution to create a similar 15-member investigative panel in the House was on that chamber's calendar for today.

Gloom likely over hearings

The Associated Press

BOISE — The economic optimism that has pervaded the statehouse during the transition to the administration of Gov. Cecil Andrus is likely to be punctured today when economists begin outlining for lawmakers their forecasts for Idaho's economic prospects over the next 18 months.

and two tenths of a point less than analysts had projected. But some economists have seen that trend as much a sign of economic weakness as anything because the total workforce has been consistently running below year-earlier levels.

Impatient president receives clean bill of health

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, saying he's feeling fine and signaling impatience to leave the hospital, received a clean bill of health Tuesday after completing tests that showed "no abnormalities or disease."

computerized, three-dimensional X-ray known as a CAT scan. Army Col. John Hutton, the president's physician, issued a statement late Tuesday saying the CAT scan "was performed on the president this evening and showed no abnormalities or disease other than evidence of previous surgical procedures."

consistency of the liver were compatible with that of a man much younger than the president, who will be 76 in one month, Hutton noted.

might be back at the White House as early as Thursday. First lady Nancy Reagan told reporters outside the hospital that results of the CAT scan were "wonderful."

Hotels face fire safety checkups

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Puerto Rico's fire chief said Tuesday every hotel on the island would be inspected for safety violations, starting at once, to head off any repetition of the Dupont Plaza Hotel disaster.

Scientists say swirling gases, dust offer evidence new planets forming

The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — Gases racing around one nearby star, and minute particles orbiting another, provide the strongest evidence yet that planets are taking shape around stars other than our own, scientists said Tuesday.

Astronomical Society's annual meeting. A separate study revealed that line grains of material orbiting the star Beta Pictoris have clumped into larger particles, showing the planet formation process also has started there.

year-old solar system and others, if they exist, formed as such disks rotated around young stars and condensed into planets. The scientists can't tell if Beta Pictoris already orbit HL Tauri or Beta Pictoris because, unlike the "protoplanetary disks," planets don't reflect enough light to be detected.

Congress wades into Iran mess

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Congress tackled a top priority Tuesday, creation of a pair of Watergate-style committees to investigate why the United States clandestinely sold arms to Iran and how some money wound up supporting Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

"Our first duty in this new Congress is the restoration of public trust in the formulation of American foreign policy," said Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the majority leader in the new Democrat-controlled Senate, as the body opened for business.

"The Iran misadventure has hurt the presidency, made a shambles of American foreign policy and called into question just how our foreign policy is formulated and implemented," Byrd said.

But Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., now the minority leader in the 100th Congress, urged colleagues not to be consumed by the Iran-Contra issue to the exclusion of other issues.

A few blocks west of the Capitol, former federal judge Lawrence E. Walsh, appointed last month by a three-judge panel to be independent counsel for the Iran-Contra affair, was settling in at the U.S. Courthouse. Walsh also was to meet with high-ranking Justice Department officials, government sources said.

The 74-year-old independent counsel, they said, will likely take over a series of separate Justice Department investigations into various elements of the private support system—for the Nicaraguan rebels, merging these efforts with his broad-based investigation.

Senate Democrats prepared legislation that would establish an 11-member Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Contras. But there were lingering arguments over the scope of the panel's investigation and how long it would have to complete its work.

Senate Republicans worried that permitting the panel to issue its initial report on Oct. 30, as envisioned in the legislation, would drag the controversy into 1988, a presidential election year, and that the special committee's mandate was too broad and should be limited.

Dole also renewed pressure for the Intelligence Committee to release a 160-page staff report on its investigation into the affair last month, saying it would help the public to be better informed about the controversy.

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes reiterated Tuesday that Reagan's is "outraged" at the Intelligence Committee action.

Boy not bothered by airport incident

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — A 10-year-old boy who was held at gunpoint for eight hours at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport said Tuesday that the abduction—won't give him nightmares and his captor "was kind of a nice guy."

Authorities credited the boy, Michael Caruso Jr., with helping to calm the agitated Syrian man who snatched him from his parents and demanded to be flown to Egypt.

The gunman released Michael unharmed at 10:39 p.m. MST Monday, and Solah Kas' Abou-Kassem, 26, of Damascus was being held under $750,000 bond.

At a news conference Tuesday before he and his family flew to Phoenix, Ariz., Michael said that during the ordeal, he pretended he was playing a game called "Guns" with a friend of his.

Swiveling in a chair and appearing at ease with reporters, Michael asserted that he could have walked away from his captor at one point after he was abducted from a line where he stood with his parents at a Delta Airlines ticket counter.

The incident Monday temporarily halted Delta air travel for about 6,000 people headed to or from Dallas.

Negotiators used a take document, which they passed off as a passport, to persuade Abou-Kassem to surrender, and they promised him there would be some amicable way for him to leave the country," said airport spokesman Joe Dealey.

Dealey said it appeared the man had "nothing but the clothes on his back. I'm not even aware that he had any money."

Dealey described the suspect as "very excited...very agitated" while he held the boy hostage, threatening to kill the child unless he got his wish.

Michael, whose family was moving from Sunrise, Fla. to Phoenix, Ariz. when he was taken hostage, was partly credited with the successful conclusion of the ordeal.

"He displayed a courage that won the admiration of a lot of seasoned law enforcement officers. Those negotiations could have gone sour very suddenly, and the success is due in no small part to the actions of young Mr. Caruso," said Dealey. "He's a neat kid."

Northbound Amtrak train passes coaches back on rails after being in Sunday's collision

Amtrak trains run past site of wreck; test data weighed

CHASE, Md. (AP) — Amtrak restored limited passenger service Tuesday past the site of a deadly train wreck, while investigators weighed conflicting claims about the operation of signal lights moments before the collision that killed 16 and injured more than 170.

Amtrak said its own tests of the signals, conducted shortly after Sunday's wreck, showed they were functioning properly and should have prevented the accident in which a 12-car Amtrak train rammed into the rear of three Conrail locomotives.

But sources close to the investigation said Conrail engineer R. L. Gates has reported that the first of the two sets of signals gave him no warning to slow down, and by the time he was approached the second—and an indication to stop—it was too late.

The accident occurred as the 12-car passenger train, packed with more than 500 people, rammed the rear of the locomotives as they pulled from a siding onto the main track.

Sources close to the investigation, who refused to be identified by name, said NTSB officials intend to interview Gates on Wednesday, and have completed their own independent tests of the signals.

"There was no official confirmation and NTSB spokesman Bill Bush said "We probably have done most of the work we'll be doing on the signals out there."

Amtrak spokesman Clifford Black said 20 trains were being permitted to make the run during the day on the busy Northeast Corridor between Washington and New York, rather than the normal 80.

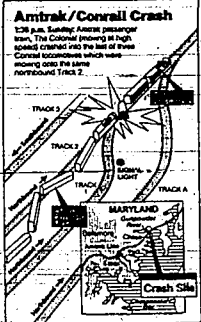

Trains were held to 30 mph below the estimated 100 mph at which the 12-car Conrail was traveling Sunday when it ramed the diesel engines.

Conrail spokesman Don Holloschutz had no comment except to say the freight rail line was cooperating with the NTSB investigation.

But in a statement released at its headquarters in Washington, Amtrak said the two signal lights considered crucial worked properly in tests conducted immediately after the accident, and should have warned the Conrail engineer to slow and then to stop before proceeding onto the main track.

At least a dozen of the injured remained hospitalized, including one reported in critical condition at the University of Maryland Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore.

At the rural wreckage site northeast of Baltimore, Amtrak crews continued repair efforts on the railbed where four tracks narrow to two in an approach to the Gunpowder River. Black said full service would be restored along the route Wednesday.

Ship hunt goes on

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon and State Department officials said Tuesday they were having difficulty establishing the identity of a merchant ship that fired a missile at a Navy helicopter over the Persian Gulf.

The incident, which the Defense Department disclosed Monday, "is still being investigated and we have nothing further on it," said Col. Marvin Braman, a Pentagon spokesman.

"Since there were a number of vessels in the area at the time, the investigation is taking longer than expected," added State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman.

"Our information on the incident is still incomplete. We're making a number of inquiries to determine the reason for the firing and the identity of the ship involved."

The Navy helicopter, dispatched from the destroyer O'Bannon on a routine surveillance mission, was fired upon Monday morning as it approached the unidentified vessel at the southern end of the gulf, about 75 miles from the coast of the United Arab Emirates.

The pilot took immediate evasive action and the missile missed the aircraft by about 500 yards, the Pentagon said.

Casey's recovery progresses slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William J. Casey is having difficulty speaking, has weakness on one side of his body and is undergoing radiation therapy following surgery for a cancerous brain tumor, a hospital spokesman said Tuesday.

The hospital said he is "slowly improving."

The statement was the first official description by doctors at Georgetown University Hospital of the extent of difficulties Casey has been suffering since he was stricken at CIA headquarters Dec. 15 and underwent brain surgery three days later.

Casey, 73, is in stable condition and continuing to convalesce, hospital spokeswoman Cynthia Byers said.

Changing procedure on bids route to go

Gov. Cecil Andrus can hardly be blamed for wanting to get off to a strong start, but his comments last week on whether the College of Southern Idaho should have dumped a low bid from an out-of-state firm strike us as a bit too hasty.

From what we can tell, the college followed the law in giving the college's catalog printing bid to a Kansas firm, despite the fact that an in-state bid was only $135 more.

We agree with Andrus that Idaho work should go to Idaho companies whenever possible. Growing our own economy by expansion from within is a point made by many in economic development.

But should CSI violate what looks like a pretty clear bidding process by going with an in-state company which has bid higher than an out-of-state one? In the absence of a clear authority, we don't think so.

Public bids are designed to get the best possible price for the public's dollar. If a company wants to win a contract, it has to submit the low bid for the work to be done. That is a process which has long been in effect in contract bidding.

Perhaps the Idaho Legislature should look at this issue. If it wants to create a preferential bid scale, which favors Idaho bids, then it can do so.

But in the absence of such a law, we see nothing in what CSI did which should be overturned. The school invited bids, then picked the low one. It happened to be from an out-of-state firm.

Until the law is changed, we think the school had little alternative which would not have resulted in a hue and cry that it was "wasting" taxpayer dollars.

Andrus has already served notice that he wants the state to be pro-active in its economic development approach. That alone is a welcome change.

Additionally, he has brought in a host of new people to run agencies. He is moving vigorously and confidently. All of this is to the good.

If the bid process should be adjusted, the governor might well propose a change to the Legislature. That's the way to go.

'Investment' approach is cold-hearted

Steven Keiman

A change seems to be coming over the way we think about government social programs.

"We still want to inoculate children against disease," Americans for Democratic Action director Ann Lewis was recently quoted in Fortune magazine as saying, "but now we call it an investment in human resources."

Programs to help poor children, such as subsidized day care and expanded child health efforts, have been growing apace recently at the state level. Neal Peirce reports in National Journal, but the arguments used to justify such programs have "diverged sharply from the bleeding heart rhetoric that might have carried the day in the 1960s." Instead, Peirce reports, "economics, a pitch for investing now to save money later," has been at the core of the appeals.

In the words of Delaware Gov. Michael N. Castle, "Investing in young children is like compound interest — the benefits, in reduced costs to society, accrue year after year after year."

I find the "investment" approach to thinking about social programs troubling. It is troubling because it fails to account for why we really should be considering having these programs in the first place. Why do we have an obligation to feed those who otherwise might starve, to educate children, to provide health care to the sick? Surely it must be because failing to do so commits a wrong against those individuals whom we have failed to help. Surely the benefits that otherwise these individuals might suffer needlessly, fail to realize their potential or even die.

We have an obligation to help because of what is required in order to show them respect. If helping them helps us as well, by reducing crime or unemployment or whatever, that's wonderful. But it's not a precondition for justifying the effort. If a cost-benefit analysis showed — as it will might — that the discounted present value of the benefits society gains in the future from helping people is less than the cost to society of helping them right now, that doesn't mean we shouldn't help.

But the "investment" approach would suggest the opposite — that social programs must pass a cost-benefit test requiring that society as a whole gain in order to justify helping individuals with problems.

This is oddly out of step with the American tradition of cherishing individuals, for it takes our attention away from individual human beings. It is too ready to sacrifice an unfortunate minority on the altar of the maximum collective benefits. Without the moral compass of a notion of obligations to others, we can quickly head toward the abyss. For if all we care about is saving society money, it would doubtless be cheaper to sterilize the poor — or even (at a modest proposal) to kill them.

The "investment" approach is also dishonest. I don't for even a second take seriously the view that the real reason people advocate programs to provide pregnant mothers with special nutrition or to educate children is that they want to save taxpayers from having to pay out unemployment insurance 20 years from now. Many people were upset and angry over efforts to cut or eliminate such programs.

Do we really believe that anybody dignified wrote letters to his congressman or demagogued on the streets because it pained him to learn that the government was about to cancel a prudent investment? The "investment" argument is disingenuous, and we have enough disingenuousness in political debate as it is.

Finally, the "investment" view contributes to the unfortunate trends toward reduction of political discourse to the categories of discourse of the marketplace, where the appropriate questions are ones such as return on investment and the bottom line.

In stating this, I don't mean to suggest that we shouldn't be concerned with the efficient and effective management of government programs, which may require more businesslike thinking than we now show in public management. Nor am I arguing that a bottom-line mind-set is universally evil or inappropriate. My only point is that bottom-line categories of thought aren't all there is to life. We want, I think, to preserve some space for discourse that thinks in terms of values other than calculation, and money. There are so many areas of life, whether they be questions of how best to manage business firms or of how best to manage garbage pickup, where the bottom line is important. It is precisely because of this fact that we must fervently protect a sphere for discourse conducted in other terms. Otherwise, we may forget how to think in those other modes altogether.

Public discourse should be a sphere where values other than the bottom line have pride of place.

If social programs don't help their intended beneficiaries, that is good reason to examine and reconsider them. It's one thing to suggest that our hearts should indeed bleed, another foolishly to persist in throwing money away at some program that doesn't help those whom the program is intended to help. Having our bleeding heart shouldn't mean being stupid.

But such concerns are different from demanding that programs for those with problems justify themselves not only in terms of whether they help the beneficiaries but also in terms of whether they end up saving us money as well. There's a difference there as a bleeding heart, and that's a cold one.

Steven Keiman is a professor of public policy at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

Letters/Prison at Burley will be of benefit to all of South Central Idaho

Good neighbors help others

Burley has qualified for the prison and needs the strong support of the eight counties of South Central Idaho, Magdalen, Region IV.

Why should we help? Because it will help us in the long run if we live or own property here. How? Through jobs created by the building of the prison over a period of a year or two, the suppliers of construction material for the prison and for the workers and the families of the two or three hundred permanent employees as well as the need for them all to recreate.

Many hundreds will be looking for recreation along the Snake River Corridor, Bliss to Burley/Rupert, in the mountains for skiing and hunting and the deserts and lakes for scenic wonders and water sports.

We have a recreation wonderland that will draw newcomers, their relatives and friends to visit and while doing so, spend money which means sales taxes which would help to lower the taxes you and I must pay.

What if we support Burley and then find out that for some reason they can't qualify for the starting gate? Twin Falls was second on the list and I feel sure that we'd then like Burley to support Twin Falls for the prison and the benefits that go with it.

We ought to be a good neighbor and do what we can to help them thereby helping ourselves.

Unbiased counseling needed

On Dec. 24, the Times-News carried an Associated Press article entitled "Bogus Abortion Clinics Criticized," documenting complaints that the clinics in question, while at first appearing to offer a choice which would include abortion, were actually espousing a strict anti-abortion stance.

The people interviewed in the article felt that they had initially been misled by the clinics — the people had assumed the clinics would include abortion among the choices for the crisis pregnancies — and felt that they had been subjected to severe emotional stress due to the methods used in attempts at their re-education, notably by some very graphic anti-abortion films which were shown.

On Dec. 30, the Rev. Roger Robins from the Pilgr Memorial Church wrote a valuable article on the editorial page in which he says that the "counseling, testing services, material aid and offer of abortion alternatives" of the clinics in question "do, in fact, constitute help of the crisis pregnancy." He also points out that the films shown "are not fictional, Hollywood horror flicks fabricated to shock and intimidate potential abortees. They are rather composed of footage of actual abortion results and footage illustrating human developmental stages.

He views these clinics as a necessary balance to a system in which "pregnant women are often subjected to ethically indeliberate counsel, where abortion is narrowly viewed as the career cure-all to problem pregnancies."

Providing this kind of balance to the system, it seems, was unable to help the people in the Dec. 24 article.

On the other hand, providing this kind of balance to the system also does nothing for the people who, having gone to a clinic where abortion is an easy and totally acceptable alternative, look back in later years and wonder if they were really prepared to make Informed decision after all.

The practical reality also is that abortion is one of the solutions considered seriously by some people when they have a crisis pregnancy, and I remember too well the horrible realities from the years before abortions were legal — the realities of back alleys, infection, suicide — to want to go back to those days by simply eliminating legal abortion as a possibility.

But I also hold strongly the conviction that there can never be a circumstance so extreme that it would be necessary to take a life in order to alleviate that circumstance.

I think that I and others who feel the way I do, including the people who run "bogus abortion clinics," could do better than waiting around for a fly to fall into an anti-life and energy owing all the various alternatives to crisis pregnancies, and that includes abortion, but making sure that the "pro-life" stance is so attractively presented that it is as inevitable a choice for others as it is for us.

The conviction I have to be stacked against abortion as an alternative; they already are. What is needed now is information and counseling for pregnant people that is unbiased and realistic, that helps them grow without denying their dignity and their right to make ultimate decisions — right or wrong — for themselves.

Blueprint for peace offered

In the Times-News series "The Prince of Peace: Reflections and Expectations," I have read with interest five views of Jesus Christ and the meaning of his title, "the Prince of Peace." The authors, each from different religious perspectives, have discussed him historically and prophetically, sharing insights into the richness of his teachings and his promise of peace on earth.

When and how will world peace happen if indeed it does?

Pastor Ron Beal said that global peace will be ushered in only with Christ's second coming. On the other hand, Harry Mansho suggested that peace on earth is just around the corner and that a new revelation has already addressed the "critical needs of our emerging global age." I believe that mankind must work collectively to make peace happen and that the method of doing so are found in history, religion and science.

In no other time has mankind been subjected to such a rapid multiplicity of changes as those of the past 150 years. Our means of communication has evolved from the Pony Express to modern satellite technology. The time-distance from one side of the earth to the other has shrunk from weeks to seconds. The size of our planet is relative to the technology we possess.

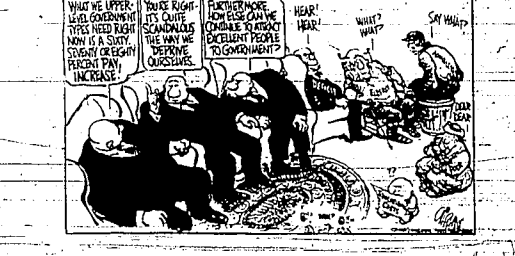

We are in a time that is unique in human history. Our relationships in the material environment is being rapidly restructured. Never before have we had the ability to mold the future of our planet as we do today.

Therefore we have a choice, we can persist in our old ways of thinking in order to adapt to our changing environment.

The world is in a chaotic mess. And yet if we look out upon the world in search of hopeful clues for a solution, it is astonishing what we find. There is a new song on the lips of many old adversaries.

In Persia in the middle of the nineteenth century a great teacher emerged named Bahá'u'lláh. In his many writings he gave us a framework for obtaining world peace. He foresaw the problems we face today and handed us a blueprint for a new mode of thinking. Many of his ideas are now being espoused by people of all faiths. The way to peace, he said, can only be established when we recognize the causes of our contentions and work to resolve not only the conflicts at hand, but the root problem itself. The seeds of our conflicts lie in our hearts, they are prejudices, racial, sexual, national, political, and religious. We must do all we can to purge ourselves of these demons. We must build love among neighbors and recognize that our neighborhood is a global one.

Kremlin angles for cease-fire

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin strongly desires a cease-fire in the war in Afghanistan so Soviet troops can return home to their families. Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said in a speech in Kabul Tuesday.

Anatoly Dobrynin arrived there Monday for talks following last week's announcement by Afghan leader Najibullah that the government would initiate a cease-fire on Jan. 15.

Afghanistan since an April 1978 socialist revolution. Soviet troops were sent to back the Kabul government in December 1979, and an estimated 115,000 Soviets remain in that south central Asian country.

Narcotics target in Soviet war on social ills

MOSCOW (AP) — More than 4,000 people were arrested in a sweep called Operation Poppy 86, Pravda said Tuesday in a report indicating that narcotics are the latest target of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's war on social ills.

Alexander V. Vislov, who is in charge of the nation's police. He castigated the practice in previous regimes of calling drug abuse a capitalist phenomenon that did not exist here.

The immediate response last week from Islamic, anti-Marxist rebels was negative. Tass carried Najibullah's cease-fire proposal on Thursday.

Libya admits attacks in Chad south of French-drawn line

PARIS (AP) — Libya admitted for the first time Tuesday that its military forces struck targets south of the defense line France has drawn across Chad but said it will not happen again unless there is "aggression."

Africa, President Hissene Habre's government organized a mass demonstration of support for loyalist forces and paraded 22 Libyan soldiers it said were captured in northern Chad.

Libya accused the United States and France of trying to bring down a large strip of territory in northern Chad.

What's what

Sushi is not fish

Everybody thinks "sushi" is raw fish. It isn't. It's cooked rice with vinegar rolled around vegetables, mushrooms, "cooked" fish, so on: "Sashimi" is raw fish. So writes a client.

Water levels above ground - across the Great Lakes - have never been higher. Water levels under ground - across the Great Plains - have never been lower. Not since the recorders started keeping such statistics. Our Chief Prognosticator, that optimist, thinks a wise power eventually will rechannel funds to rechannel water. To get these highest-lowest levels into better balance.

HARD WATER SHOES

Ice skates in Thailand's Bangkok are called "hard water shoes."

What you didn't know they ice skate in Bangkok? Indeed. Even though temperatures run over 90 degrees F. much of the year. One rink there accommodates 1,500 people. Busy place.

An official timekeeper marks the New Year entry by setting in motion a falling Apple at New York City's Times-Square. His-umpiece of record in this event is a $9.95 Mickey Mouse wrist-watch.

Crying of babies disturbs stage actors, understandably. A Salt Lake City theater manager in 1862 dealt with it. Tickets cost 35 cents each for adults, $10 for infants.

pioneers Pierre Blanchard and Dr. John Jeffries made quite an impression on spectators as they drifted up from England to cross the Channel. They made quite an impression on spectators when they drifted down at the shore's edge in France, too. The wind had died. They'd left us everything. They were stark naked.

Evangelist appealing for 'quick money'

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oral Roberts leads about $1.5 million in "quick money" from followers or "God won't let him live past March," the evangelist says.

"I'm asking you to help me extend my life," Roberts told his television audience Sunday. "We're at the point where God could call Oral Roberts home."

Speaking from the clinic laboratory at the City of Faith Medical and Research Center, Roberts asked viewers to send $100 immediately and pledge additional amounts for February and March.

Roberts said he needs the money to fund scholarships for medical school students at Oral Roberts University.

The evangelist, who will be 69 on Jan. 24, said God told him that raising the possibility of his death was necessary to get the attention of his followers.

Dallas star files suit against TV comedienne

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Victoria Principal, a star of the television series "Dallas," has filed a $3 million invasion of privacy suit against comedienne Joan Rivers for allegedly broadcasting on her talk show the actress' unlisted phone number.

Ms. Principal, 34, who plays Pamela Ewing in the series, said in the Superior Court suit filed Monday that she suffered "humiliation and anguish" and required medical care after being besieged by fans' calls.

Ms. Rivers, 49, telephoned Ms. Principal Dec. 15 during the comedian's "Late Night" talk show, on which she was interviewing Ken Kercheval, who plays Cliff Barnes on "Dallas," according to the suit.

The actress was not home, but the number was mentioned on the air and soon her phone was ringing incessantly, said her attorney, Gerald Edelman. The nature of the calls was "all over the lot," Edelman said.

Ms. Principal quickly changed her phone number, he said.

A "Late Night" representative referred calls for comment to Ms. Rivers' publicist, Richard Grant. "We have no comment," Miss Rivers has not been served," Grant said Tuesday.

The suit seeks unspecified general damages and $3 million punitive damages.

Rock star turns to pen, pencil to communicate

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Rock star Elton John, who underwent an hour of exploratory surgery on his throat, was communicating Tuesday with pen and pencil, the singer's publicist said.

In a separate statement, the hospital said the surgery went "fairly well."

"It is hoped he will not need further surgery. There's every possibility he will not," said the statement from St. Vincent's, a private hospital in Sydney.

The hospital did not say what was ailing the 39-year-old entertainer, who has canceled all remaining performances in 1987, including a 32-date American tour. It said he was in satisfactory condition.

The flamboyant entertainer canceled one concert in Perth because of throat problems and collapsed on stage during a performance in Sydney toward the end of a 37-date Australian tour.

John said Monday when he was admitted to the hospital that he had suffered spasmodic bouts of pain during a recent 15-month tour that included 200 concerts.

Throat surgeon John Tonkin said the pop singer would remain in the hospital for a week, during which time he would not be allowed to speak. Tonkin said John will not be able to sing for several months.

"He is communicating with pen and pencil at the moment," said Patti Mostyn, the singer's Australian publicist.

Welsh choirboy retires, concentrates on school

LONDON (AP) — Welsh soprano Aled Jones, Britain's most famous choirboy, has decided to end his singing career at the age of 18 to concentrate on his schoolwork.

Jones said on a British television show Monday night that he took the decision to retire on his 18th birthday last week because his smooth, high-pitched voice would soon crack.

The hospital did not say what was ailing the 39-year-old entertainer, who has canceled all remaining performances in 1987, including a 32-date American tour. It said he was in satisfactory condition.

Ban backers blow down blowers

BELVEDERE, Calif. (AP) — City leaders say they will ban noisy, gas-powered leaf-blowers from this idyllic island, forcing gardeners to groom the lawns of the wealthy with peaceful implements such as brooms and rakes.

"I can't wait to go out in my garden without the noise of the next-door leaf blower. I just can't wait," said an excited Joan Hockaday on Tuesday.

A writer and avid gardener who complains the popular, gas-powered leaf blower frequently disrupts her work, Ms. Hockaday is a leader of Ban Leafblowers in Belvedere.

Armed with a petition, the group lobbied the City Council on Monday night to vote 4-1 against the group known as Save Our Blowers, and in favor of banning the gas-powered leaf blower.

"We're just delighted and we're hoping that any other cities will do likewise and say 0 decibels is just an outrage in a single-family community," Ms. Hockaday said.

Her group demonstrated a new gas-powered leaf blower and it registered at 95 decibels. The group said a standard lawnmower registers at 71 decibels.

One woman told the council the leaf blowers prevent her son from taking naps, a woman in a wheelchair said she isn't free to escape the noise, and a man running a gardening supply firm said the devices are disruptive and damaging to plant life.

"It's not a gardening tool; that's a misnomer," said Paul Hawken, the group lobbyist. The leaf blower spreads airborne plant disease, damages topsoil and magnifies its noise when used on hard, flat surfaces, he said.

Opponents of the ban said it would increase gardening costs and discriminate against owners of the gas-powered blower while not addressing noise problems linked to other gardening machinery.

It will be at least another month before an ordinance can be implemented, but the foes of the leaf blowers say they're looking forward to tranquil days in the affluent Marin County village of 2,600 on the north edge of San Francisco Bay.

Similar bans have been undertaken in Beverly Hills and Carmel.

Dog can't sue, judge rules

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A federal judge ruled Tuesday that a dog does not have the right to sue an airline for $50,000 because animals are not considered American citizens.

The judge ruled that a dog is not a person... and does not have the legal status to sue anybody in Federal Court," wrote U.S. District Court Judge Michael Telesca in his 11-page decision to dismiss the case.

Anthony Felstock, a blind, paraplegic and nearly deaf dog, had been traveling to his suburban Rochester home last Jan. 5 when an oversight by USAir baggage workers left him circling on a Tampa, Fla., airport conveyor belt, while his owners were on a plane home.

Carl Felstock and his wife, Susan Fowler-Felstock — who refer to Anthony as their "baby" — were angry and later, Felstock, a lawyer, filed a lawsuit against USAir over the incident, naming the dog as the plaintiff.

However, Telesca said, only U.S. citizens can sue, and, according to the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, a citizen is any "person born or naturalized in the United States."

"It's not a gardening tool; that's a misnomer," said Paul Hawken, the group lobbyist. The leaf blower spreads airborne plant disease, damages topsoil and magnifies its noise when used on hard, flat surfaces, he said.

Opponents of the ban said it would increase gardening costs and discriminate against owners of the

A decision in favor of the dog would have created a new law regarding a dog's ability to sue, said Felstock.

Truck flips, dunks cargo

CLEVELAND, Texas (AP) — A truck carrying 21 tons of frozen doughnuts and other bakery goods flipped into a water-filled ditch Tuesday, officials said.

Driver Roy Lee Hyatt from Anderson, Ind., told Department of Public Safety troopers he averted to avoid hitting an animal, but could not keep his rig on the road.

Hyatt was slightly hurt when the truck rolled and the trailer doors broke open, spilling the frozen goodies, authorities said.

The accident occurred shortly after midnight, between Shepherd and Cleveland in East Texas, the DPHS said.

The truck was hauling doughnuts and other sweets from Kentucky to a grocery store warehouse in Houston, officials said.

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Mountain Bell is preparing legislation to introduce to the state Legislature this month that will keep things the way they are, but lawmakers and small phone companies are leery of the bottom line.

"We can live with this bill, but we can also live with the present arrangement," said Wayne Cassaway, general manager of Filer Mutual Phone Company. "My main question is why do we need it?"

Lawmakers such as Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls; Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer; and Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, question the need for a 20-page bill that may allow large rate increases to consumers.

"I have big reservations about proposed reregulation on the community," Black said. "If it means large rate increases, no way will I support it."

Mountain Bell last year tried to get a phone deregulation bill through the Legislature, but the attempt failed. This year's version is largely rewritten to satisfy the 11 independent phone companies that operate in Idaho, officials said.

Mountain Bell argues that the bill is necessary to "streamline regulations," but a Mountain Bell official on Tuesday conceded that much of the 20-page bill merely protects the status quo.

"The legislation proposes to allow a company entry come under guidelines of the legislation, or remain status quo," said Roger Selber, public-affairs manager of Mountain Bell.

When asked why Mountain Bell would want to introduce a 20-page bill that keeps things the same, Selber said, "When you start with one thing, you have to have a comprehensive package, that's why we had the status quo."

"Where we're going with this is trying to broaden competitive services," he said. But Cassaway, who has worked 18 years in small phone companies in Kentucky, said Monday he has seen phone deregulation in other areas and it has meant higher prices, not lower prices.

"Between 1978 and 1984, we had complete phone deregulation in this country, and it didn't work," he said. "People were fighting over service areas and building redundant services. It increased costs to everyone."

A recent study on the effects of the breakup of AT&T found that basic local telephone service rates increased 41 percent for urban customers and 61 percent for rural customers.

For about 2,000 Filer Mutual phone customers, the basic rate is $5.20 a month for a dial tone, compared to more than $18 a month for Mountain Bell customers.

The proposed bill would allow a phone company to raise rates $1 a month, without going through the PUC, although that was disputed by Mountain Bell.

Selber said the bill would only allow a $1 rate increase for a year. But local lawmakers said they understood the language of the proposed bill to mean $1 a month.

The language of the proposed bill says the PUC would review rate increases. "If the increase in the basic local exchange rate exceeds $1 per month in the preceding 12 consecutive-month period."

The phone companies are scheduled to meet Thursday with the PUC to review the proposed bill.

But even if the PUC agrees with the proposal, there may not be any more support for this year's bill than the last one. Last week, Noh said he did not think the bill had much chance in the Legislature.

Nursing home starts anew

Evergreen Manor administrator, manager promise upgrading

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The new manager and the administrator of Skyview-Hazeldel Manor nursing home, which has been renamed Evergreen Manor, are anxious to build up the facility and put a turbulent year of state inspections behind it.

"What we need is the support of the community," said Miles Taggart, a resident of Orem, Utah, who manages nine nursing homes around the country. "We intend to do a lot of refurbishing and upgrading of the facility."

Seven state inspections, beginning last May, criticized Skyview's lack of nursing care and attentiveness to patients' needs. But Taggart said in an interview Tuesday with The Times-News that all problem areas, which focused most recently on rehabilitative therapy for residents, would be examined and improved.

"We have identified most of these problems and brought programs to bring these up to state standards," Taggart said.

He began managing Evergreen Jan. 1 after the facility was bought by a Chicago real-estate developer. Taggart will hold the state care license and lease the home from Zevco Karkoni, owner of Zevco Real Estate.

Taggart said improvements in the patient care include increasing the nursing staff. An estimated $100,000 will be poured into the facility during the next year for repairs, including those to floors, and to paint areas of the facility, he said.

Evergreen's new administrator, Ralph Chinchurreta, now of Boise, will move to Twin Falls and take over daily operations beginning Feb. 1.

"We're all excited to get the program going," Chinchurreta said. Former owner Richard Drake, who ran the home for nearly 7 years, breathed a sigh of relief at finally completing the sale. An attempt to sell the facility in August collapsed at a time when critical Department of Health and Welfare inspections the home currently records in an threatened to close the home to Medicare and Medicaid residents.

Taggart, who also would have leased the home from the previous owner, said that deal fell through because another sale that company expected never materialized.

Drake and Karkoni declined to release the sale price of the home. But the August offer totaled more than $2.1 million to $2.4 million since federal officials threatened to cut off Skyview's government financing for about 80 residents. It is licensed to care for 183 residents, and Taggart expects the number of residents to grow to 63 percent of capacity.

A 60-bed home being built in Twin Falls by Brent Brockmoe, who holds interest in six other homes, will not present much competition because it will be a private facility, while Evergreen competes for federally assisted residents.

Taggart holds Evergreen's state license as he does for two other Idaho care facilities — Homedale's 38-bed Homedale Nursing Home and Nampa's 100-bed Plaza Valley shelter home.

Chinchurreta said he's held management positions in nursing homes for the past 12 years, including running the 164-bed Emerald Care Center in Boise for the past 5 years.

He said he plans to incorporate the suggestions from family members of residents to improve Evergreen. "One thing I'm going to do is get in closer contact with the community," Chinchurreta said. "I want them (family members) to speak up about what they see and tell us."

Both Taggart and Chinchurreta receive passing grades for their care-facility affiliations in Idaho. Joan Schoonover, manager of DHW's facility standards program, said each man has received satisfactory marks in running their homes.

Schoonover added that Taggart's Plaza Valley and Chinchurreta's Emerald care were each improved under their guidance.

Acting Administrator Julie Johnson will run the facility until Chinchurreta arrives next month. Taggart said he will also visit the home weekly during the first months of operation to oversee its transition.

Taggart manages nine care facilities around the country, including several in Missouri, Kansas and Arizona. Health officials said Taggart's record for running facilities in those places has been "fine."

Students attack peers' drug abuse at Moose congress

By CLAUDE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Fighting a problem that starts as early as elementary school and affects about 75 percent of the students at Twin Falls High School alone is not an easy task.

Drug abuse — a problem that has been receiving more and more attention through nationwide campaigns — was the focus of a meeting of 18 high school students from around Idaho last Saturday.

Faith Arp and Jason Miciak attended the Boise meeting as Twin Falls representatives. The meeting, part of an international student congress on drug abuse sponsored by the Moose Lodge 337 in Boise.

The purpose of the meeting was to formulate ideas and suggestions for fighting drug abuse among teens. Two students were chosen at the meeting to represent Idaho at the international congress in Mooseheart, Ill., on Feb. 7.

Idaho's two representatives will be 16-year-old Sonja Martin from Moscow High School and 17-year-old Susan Reddington from Borah High School.

Meetings such as the one in Boise were held Saturday in 47 locations, representing 49 states and four Canadian provinces. "About 90 students and 100 Canadian students are expected to attend the Mooseheart meeting.

The students' ideas will probably not be acted upon until early spring, when two students from the meeting in Mooseheart will present the group's suggestions to the National Symposium on Volunteerism in Washington, D.C.

Volunteer organizations at the symposium will then look at the students' final recommendations for fighting drug abuse and possibly turn the ideas into a national campaign, Arp said.

Arp and Miciak both felt strongly about the need to stop drug use and abuse. They estimated that, considering alcohol as a drug, over 75 percent of the students at Twin Falls High School were involved in drug use.

Alcohol, they agreed, is the most widely used drug on campus. Marijuana would come in second, they said.

But because of the smaller population in Twin Falls and the smaller number of high school students, drug use is probably not as much of a problem here as it would be in larger cities, Miciak said.

Ideas formulated at the Boise meeting focused on the need to educate young children about the dangers of using drugs. The target age group would be ages 8 to 12, Arp said.

Nurseryman opposes annexation; council takes bids on 5 vehicles

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jack Wright of Kimberly Nurseries asked the Twin Falls City Council on Monday to reconsider the annexation of his business, because he is "scared to death" of restrictions.

At a council meeting, Wright said he was afraid to expand his operation, located east of Twin Falls on Addison Avenue, by adding 40 acres for a sod farm.

"I don't want to do it and then have it sucked into the city limits," he said. He was also concerned he won't be able to burn trash, spray pesticides and spread manure because of the annexation, Wright said.

Another worry is the additional taxes, and he doesn't see any advantage of belonging to the city, he said.

"Over 10 years, that's $20,000," Wright said. "I don't look lightly at that."

City Attorney Shane Bengochea and Community Development Director LaMar Orton are preparing a response to Wright's concerns about the burning and spraying.

Mark Simber, Wright's attorney, said he and his client would like to return to discuss the response with the council.

Wright said, "It just scares me to death. I really want some consideration."

Wright's opposition to annexation was not unusual. At the three public hearings held on the subject a majority of those who testified didn't want to be included in the proposal.

In other business Monday, the City Council accepted bids for a dump truck and four police cars. But preceding the vote was a lengthy discussion about the bid process and how to stay "out of trouble."

The council accepted a $148,995 bid — excluding trade-in — for a 10-cubic-yard dump truck from David Steed and Associates Inc. of Idaho Falls. Magic Valley International

Atrium planned for library

Jerome will receive federal grant to help fund addition

By TERESA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Jerome library will receive $100,000 in grant money to help fund a new atrium addition to the building.

The money received from the grant will be matched with approximately $70,000 already collected to complete the project.

Public Works Director and Library Board Trustee Lamy Sloan said that when construction was done, the most recent, 1984, addition to the Jerome Public Library, a foundation for the atrium, had partially built. Sloan wrote the grant proposal for the latest grant along with

Plans for the atrium have already been drawn, Sloan said, but the plans will be modified before construction begins to expand the portion of the building which will be used for the atrium.

The atrium, which will be located on the east side of the building, will have a skylight and a series of plants to give the structure a light, comfortable feeling.

Librarian Nita Becker said while "official notice" that the funds have been awarded has not been received yet, she has received word by telephone that Jerome will receive the money.

Becker said the $70,000 pledged locally came from citizens' contributions and civic clubs that had provided from various activities. She has the grant proposal for the latest grant along with the one that led to the $100,000 addition.

Charboneau attorney backed

JEROME — The appointment of attorney Greg Fuller to represent convicted murderer Jaimal Charboneau in his death-sentence appeal was confirmed Tuesday by 5th District Judge Phillip Becker, pending additional information.

Becker continued the Tuesday hearing and said the appointment will remain in effect until Charboneau can appear in court in Idaho to present his arguments against the appointment.

Charboneau was sentenced to death sentence following his conviction in Jerome last year for the murder of his former wife Marilyn Arbaugh, 36, of Jerome.

Truck and trailer damaged

BURLEY — A motorist escaped unharmed in an accident on icy roads early Tuesday morning, but the pickup truck and trailer it was towing sustained severe damage.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $6,000, with another $500 damage to the trailer.

Correct the skid and the truck and stock trailer it was pulling jackknifed and went off the road. The truck hit a concrete abutment, causing the trailer to break loose from its hitch.

Stallings brings Swan Falls bill to opening day of 100th Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Stallings is trying again with Swan Falls legislation. On the opening day of the 100th Congress, the Idaho Democrat re-introduced a bill ordering the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to approve a master agreement on Idaho water rights.

Swan Falls Water Rights Agreement is "Idaho's roadmap to future economic growth and quality of life."

It could produce final federal approval of water rights agreements hammered out between the state, Idaho Power Co. and the federal government.

2 men plead guilty to cow killing

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls men pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges involving killing a range cow and were sentenced in Magistrate Court here Tuesday.

Both men pleaded guilty to a destruction of property charge when they appeared in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls Tuesday.

Sheriff James Munn said the killing of range cattle is a serious offense and persons arrested in such crimes can expect to pay a penalty for the killing or theft of ranchers' cattle.

LDS elder: Lotteries 'corrupt'

REXBURG (AP) — An apostle in the Mormon Church Tuesday lambasted support for state lotteries as a "reprehensible" and "politically unwise" invitation to moral degradation.

"Gambling is a game of chance that takes without giving value in return," Oaks said. "Gambling tends to corrupt its participants. Its philosophy of something for nothing undermines the virtues of work, industry, thrift and service to others."

"In November, Idaho voters overwhelmingly passed an initiative creating a state lottery. However, the measure is being challenged in court, and the Idaho Supreme Court recently indictated that the initiative probably violates the state constitution.

Until resolution of the legal questions, state officials have held off establishing the commission created by the initiative to run the lottery.

Oaks, a longtime Utah Supreme Court justice, said seemingly innocent state-sponsored lotteries can ultimately attract the immoral influences of crime, prostitution and alcohol.

Oaks said those supporting state lotteries should be aware not only of moral objections, but political ones, too.

"Gambling is bad political policy," he said. "A law that permits gambling is hard to justify and a law that sponsors or promotes gambling is a sure loser."

Oaks said gambling undercuts productivity and encourages crime — while feeding a "hunger" for far less than it is worth that spawns "theft, robbery, looting, embezzlement, fraud and many other kinds of plunder."

The Mormon leader also criticized lotteries for poor cost-effectiveness, saying that between 60 and 75 cents of every dollar spent on lottery tickets goes to operating expenses and prizes.

Further, Oaks took issue with lottery proponents who claim legalized gambling reduce illegal gaming.

"There is no evidence this has occurred. Instead, legalized gaming wins new participants, which expands the market and the potential revenue of illegal gambling," he said.

Oaks said that lottery proponents who decry opposition to legalized gambling as "legislating morality" forget that "a high proportion of all legislation has a moral base."

"That is true of all of the criminal law, most of the laws regulating families, businesses and commercial transactions; many of the laws governing property and a host of others," he said.

Craig will discuss timber agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, plans a meeting here today to discuss a timber agreement with Canada designed to help Pacific Northwest sawmills.

Craig said Tuesday an agreement reached last week should curb the Pacific Northwest members of Congress to attend, along with Deputy U.S. Trade Representative M. Alan Woods and Under Secretary of Commerce Bruce Smart.

Governor will move ahead with lottery

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus says he took an oath Monday to uphold Idaho's laws — and that includes one requiring him to work on organizing a state lottery.

Therefore, Andrus said Tuesday, he will continue work on the lottery until a court says otherwise.

Two lawsuits have been filed in an effort to stop the state from implementing the state lottery approved by voter initiative in the general election.

The lottery law requires the governor to appoint a five-member lottery commission to organize and operate the lottery. The governor's office said it has received a couple dozen applications from people interested in serving on the commission.

"Unless a court tells us specifically to do or not do something, we are bound by the law to enforce the law," the governor said.

Associated Taxpayers of Idaho last week filed a lawsuit attacking the constitutionality of the lottery. This week, a 4th District Court lawsuit was filed on behalf of Help Idaho Thrive and the Idaho Allied Christian Forces, Inc.

Fourth District Judge Deborah Ball was assigned the Help Idaho Thrive-Allied Christian Forces lawsuit. Judge Gerald Schroeder was given the Associated Taxpayers lawsuit. Courts Administrator Grant Yee said case assignments were made by computer.

Help Idaho Thrive was an informal organization which campaigned against the lottery. Idaho Allied Christian Forces, Inc., was organized in 1975 to "work toward the elimination of gambling and its attendant social evils."

An Associated Taxpayers spokesman said the organization has no stand on the lottery itself, but contends it is improper to attempt changing the state Constitution by initiative. The Constitution contains a flat ban on the state of Idaho conducting a lottery.

Stanley Crow, Boise attorney, said he filed the second lawsuit because the organizations he represents oppose the lottery itself. "The taxpayers group has made it very clear that it does not oppose a lottery, but only the attempt to amend the constitution by initiative," Crow said.

The Crow lawsuit also asks a court order banning the spending of any public funds starting or operating a state lottery. It estimates the start-up cost of a state lottery at $14 million.

Idaho congressmen reintroduce death penalty, Swan Falls bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the opening of the 100th session of Congress here on Tuesday, members of the Idaho congressional delegation reintroduced several bills which surfaced last session.

Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones said one of them could help expedite court consideration of appeals in death penalty cases and stop the almost endless appeals which have prevented any executions in the state for nearly 30 years.

At the request of Jones, Sen. Steve Symms reintroduced a bill calling for expedited consideration of death penalty cases in the federal courts.

Jones said Tuesday it requires a strong showing of innocence by a death row inmate before the defendant could file a federal court appeal.

The bill would allow a judge to block a scheduled execution only for 60 days, while the appeal was heard, with a 60-day extension available in some cases.

"Public confidence in our justice system has eroded because of the public's perception that the courts cannot adequately deal with death-penalty cases. You can't blame people for being discouraged when they see death row inmates receiving stays of execution time and again in the federal system, even after their cases have been thoroughly and fairly reviewed in the state courts," Jones said.

Both Symms and Sen. James McClure introduced Senate legislation calling for ratification of the Swan Falls Snake River water rights agreement in Idaho.

Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, introduced similar legislation in the House.

Both Rep. Larry Craig and Symms introduced legislation designed to keep U.S. funds from going to countries which use the money to produce commodities or minerals — already in surplus — on world markets.

Symms also sponsored a bill barring municipalities from participation in federal law enforcement programs if they prohibit ownership or possession of firearms and ammunition. He also reintroduced his proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution, making English the official language of the United States.

Symms inserted into the Congressional Record an Idaho Statesman article honoring Barbara Morgan of McCall as Idaho's "1986 Citizen of the Year." The McCall teacher is scheduled to be the first school teacher in space early next year.

Garden City man files suit over arrest

BOISE (AP) — A Garden City man is asking $10 million damages from Garden City over his arrest by a former police officer in a drug case.

Charles E. Webster, 26, alleges that unnamed Garden City police officers violated his rights by holding him eight hours without allowing him to consult with an attorney or to refuse to answer questions. He also said he was beaten by police officers, and that an officer threatened to shoot or otherwise kill him unless he talked.

Named as defendants in the lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court here Tuesday, were Garden City, its police department and eight men listed as employees of the police department. The lawsuit asks general damages of $1 million and the same amount in punitive damages on each of five counts.

Included as a defendant was Larry Johnson, 30, a former police lieutenant. After an investigation, the attorney general's office in October filed one felony and three misdemeanor-criminal charges against Johnson. Johnson, who resigned four days after Webster was arrested Sept. 11, was scheduled to undergo a preliminary hearing on the charges this week.

Johnson was charged with aggravated assault by threatening Webster with a 12-gauge shotgun and three misdemeanors, including inhumane and oppressive treatment of prisoners.

Hikes in school district support raise overall state property taxes

BOISE (AP) — The voter-approved increases in property tax support for local school districts, fueled by the state Legislature's refusal to provide any significant boost in state support for education, drove overall property tax charges in Idaho up 11.4 percent in 1986.

Statistics compiled by Associated Taxpayers of Idaho show the 1986 property tax charges certified to the state totaled $250 million, up $35.7 million from 1985.

Over a third of the increase was the result of local school district elections in which property owners agreed to hike their liability over their basic tax bills by more than $72 million statewide this year.

The bulk of those additional property taxes came in spring elections

after lawmakers approved a state budget for schools of just $314 million. That amount was more than $6 million below the level education officials said was needed to halt further deterioration in the school system. Almost $30 million of the voter-approved school tax hike was earmarked to just keep schools operating, an increase of nearly $10 million above the override-level total approved in 1985.

Another quarter of the overall increase in 1986 property tax charges was prompted by rising costs of damage claims against local governments and charges for indigent medical care.

Local taxing districts assessed over $10.4 million to pay off damage claims, more than 43.7 million from 1985, and counties were forced to shell out nearly $11.4 million for medical care for the poor, up $2.9 million from the year before.

In all, the average 1986 property tax levy in Idaho stood at just over $1.39 on every $100 of assessed valuation. That was about 13.5 cent higher than the 1985 average and substantially above the average of under 95 cents in 1979, the year after voters approved an initiative to hold property taxes at $1 or less per $100 assessed value.

The survey of tax rates in 68 cities, conducted by Associated Taxpayers, showed Driggs was the only city with a total 1986 tax rate below that level, and only five cities reported tax rates declining from 1985 to 1986.

Dubois, Homedale, Grace, Paris and Shoshone. The largest reduction was nearly 15 cents in Homedale. At the other end of the scale, 16 cities reported tax rates above $2 per $100 assessed valuation, up from just five with levies above that level in 1985. The highest levy was just over $2.94 in Wallace.

Firing claimed unfair

BOISE (AP) — A former northern Idaho miner claims in a U.S. District Court lawsuit here that he was fired by a mining company in 1984 in an effort to keep his father, a federal mining inspector, from doing his job.

Joel T. Arnold, listed as a Michigan resident, originally filed the lawsuit in 1st District Court. It was transferred this week to federal court in Boise. Asarco, Inc., was listed as the defendant.

Arnold said he was employed by the Core Unit mine in Shoshone County from April, 1981 until March, 1984. He claims he was terminated because his father, Jim, is a federal mine inspector and the action was intended to intimidate the elder Arnold from carrying out his inspection duties.

The lawsuit asks unspecified damages.

In a response filed to the lawsuit, Asarco said Arnold was terminated because of misconduct. The company also asked for dismissal of the claim, because it already was considered by the Idaho Department of Mines. Asarco said it also had received a hearing before a federal mining panel and cannot bring up the same claims in a civil lawsuit, the company said.

It denied other allegations in the lawsuit.

Athol man's body found in ravine

BOISE (AP) — The body of an Athol man has been found near the wreckage of his car off U.S. 95, but Idaho State Police officials do not know when the accident occurred.

Fred Lee Hibdon, 26, was found Sunday in a ravine two miles north of Athol, said Rick Owens, ISP public information officer.

Owens said Hibdon's car, north-bound on a downgrade, apparently went out of control on a right-hand curve. He said the vehicle struck a guard rail and went over an embankment.

Owens said the accident might have occurred in 1984.

Charboneau attorney backed

JEROME — The appointment of attorney Greg Fuller to represent convicted murderer Jaim Charboneau in his death sentence appeal was reaffirmed Tuesday by 5th District Judge Phillip Becker, pending additional information.

Becker continued the Tuesday bench and set the appointment to remain in effect until Charboneau can appear in court in Jerome to present his arguments against the appointment.

Charboneau, 25, is appealing his death sentence following his conviction in Jerome last year for the murder of his former wife Marilyn Arbaugh, 36, of Jerome.

Charboneau was represented by James May of Twin Falls, who has since been appointed judge in the Blaine County area.

As a result of May's new assignment, the court named Fuller to take over the appeal duties for Charboneau. May had been hired several months ago by Charboneau's mother to represent her son.

Charboneau objected to Fuller's appointment, saying he wanted May as his attorney, or he would represent himself.

Becker continued the hearing until a time and date to be set later, when Charboneau can be brought to Jerome and when Marc-Hawa of the Idaho Attorney General's Office can be present. Haws served as special prosecutor in the case.

Fuller was appointed by the court on Dec. 16 and advised the court that he and his associate, Danjeh Mink, met with Charboneau at the state prison where he is being held for execution. Charboneau told Fuller then that he did not wish him to serve as his attorney. Fuller then advised the court of the situation and requested an order from the court to clarify the matter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Stallings is trying again with Swan Falls legislation.

On the opening day of the 100th Congress, the Idaho Democrat reintroduced a bill ordering the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to approve a major agreement on Idaho water rights.

President Ronald Reagan vetoed similar legislation in November, expressing concern about some of the provisions.

Stallings said Tuesday that the

Swan Falls Water Rights Agreement is "Idaho's roadmap to future economic growth and quality of life."

It could produce final federal approval of water rights agreements hammered out between the state, Idaho Power Co. and the federal government. Stallings said the new bill was necessary to clarify the rights to the use of water by more than 3,100 water users. It also would allow water-right applications on file from another 2,400 users to be settled.

"This important agreement is in the public interest and will serve as a sound management plan for the Snake River," Stallings said.

"Irrigation, energy production, recreation and fish and wildlife all benefit from effective stewardship of Idaho's Snake River."

Stallings said he would push for quick approval of the agreement to end the long-running dispute over Snake River water rights.

Truck and trailer damaged

BURLEY — A motorist escaped unharmed in an accident on icy roads early Tuesday morning, but the pickup truck and trailer it was towing sustained severe damage.

Cassia County Sheriff's officers said Darrell C. Washburn, 33, of Oakley was traveling east on 1000 South Road at its intersection with 1100 West, about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, when the vehicle skidded on the icy roadway. Washburn attempted to correct the skid and the truck and stock trailer it was pulling jackknifed and went off the road. The truck hit a concrete abutment, causing the trailer to break loose from its hitch.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $6,000, with another $500 damage to the trailer.

No citations were issued. Officers said the accident was caused by icy road conditions.

2 men plead guilty to cow killing

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls men pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges involving killing a range cow and were sentenced in Magistrate Court Tuesday.

Dennis Schmidt, 26, and Robert Elliott, 27, were arrested by Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department officers and charged with killing a cow owned by Vic Nelson of Twin Falls last Nov. 27.

The complaint against the two said the cow had been shot and attempts were made to skin the animal before the thieves were frightened away. The dead animal was then left to deteriorate, officers said.

Both men pleaded guilty to a destruction of property charge when they appeared in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls Tuesday. Each was fined $300, plus court costs and $10 assessment for the victim recovery fund. They also ordered to make restitution for the cost of the animal. A 60-day jail sentence for each was suspended and the men placed on 12-month probation.

Sheriff James Munn said the killing of range cattle is a serious offense and persons arrested in such crimes can expect to pay a penalty for the killing or theft of rancher's cattle. He said there are usually several instances this time of year in which range animals are killed.

Usually the animal is skinned at the site and the meat cut and taken away before the rancher misses the animal.

Inc. of Twin Falls offered a bid of $50,562, and Steed Inc. submitted another bid of $45,700 for a truck used as a demo business model. The latter Steed bid was declined.

On another purchase, the council accepted a $51,160 bid from Kim Hansen Chevrolet of Burley for four police cars, including trade-ins. Randy Hansen Chevrolet of Twin Falls offered a $23,876 bid and a Ford Inc. of Burley placed a bid of $51,509. The Young Ford bid, however, didn't meet specifications and was disqualified.

The discussion over the truck bid started when council members learned that some businesses believed the city's specifications might only fit a certain type of engine.

"We get into problems when we over- and under-specify," said City Engineer Gary Young. He "technically preferred" the engine in the Mag Valley International truck, but admitted the two were a "close call."

But a representative from Steed said the engine his company offered and the one from the other bidder were compatible.

City Manager Tom Courtney said state law dictates accepting the lowest bidder. Bengoechea advised the council to follow the specifications as closely as possible or "you might get into trouble." But the city does reserve the right to "what is in the best interest of the city" and that gives the council leeway.

Councilman Erik Andersen said the council should be concerned about following the specifications.

On the police car bids, one of the blanks in the bid form had not been filled out by Kim Hansen Chevrolet. Bengoechea said city law says the bid information shall be complete, but also gives the council the right to waive "technical" errors.

"I think what you have is a grey area," Bengoechea said.

A program suggested at the meeting that would help this age group is the Big Brother/Big Sister program. Art explained that a drug-free high school student would be chosen as a Big Brother or Sister for an elementary school student and would serve as a role model for that student.

"That way, if someone tries to get into the drugs, they can say 'My big brother doesn't do that, so I'm not going to,'" Art said.

Also, to prevent drug abuse at a later age, younger students should be taught high self-esteem, Miclaci said. Because a low self-image tends to stay with a child until high school, it should be stopped in elementary school.

"If you try to tell a person with a low self-esteem about the dangers of drugs, they won't listen. It won't stop them. If they like themselves, they won't want to get into drugs," he said.

Recent efforts to fight drug abuse, such as Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No" campaign, have helped — by causing, but not necessarily by decreasing, drug use. "It's brought more of an awareness about drug abuse," Miclaci said.

Art explained, "Before, parents didn't want to talk about it or admit that their kids might be involved. Now, people are aware of what's going on," Miclaci said.

While a greater awareness of the danger of drug use has been seen recently, there still is a great amount of peer pressure at the high school level to use drugs, he said.

"You're not considered a real top-notch person if you don't use drugs," Art said.

Those who choose not to use drugs tend to stand out, Miclaci added. "Everyone knows if you don't do drugs," he said.

Art and Miclaci have both decided that drugs are not for them. "I just don't want to risk my future by taking drugs. I've seen the way drugs can ruin people's lives," Miclaci said.

"Drug abuse is demoralizing the youth. Drugs are another way of keeping people from knowing what's going on in the world, because people on drugs can't appreciate the freedom they have in America," Art said.

Buhl High School student Amy Butler also attended the meeting, but was not available Tuesday for comment.

Specialties has contributed $7,000 towards the project, she said, which has helped tremendously.

Total cost of the atrium project is estimated at $50,000. Funds to be raised from the grand fall about $4,000 short of the $25,000 that was slated to fund half the project, but Becker said the city "has assured us it would make up the difference."

However, Becker said any donations would be welcome.

Construction of the atrium is scheduled to begin sometime in March, Becker said.

Grant monies for the atrium will come from funds set aside for such construction by the Library Services and Construction Act, which provides federal monies for library projects to be matched at the local level.

LSCA grant monies will also fund a number of books on tape to be received by Magic Valley libraries as a result of a joint effort by area librarians.

Becker said Gooding Librarian Lucy Perrine and about 15 other area librarians combined efforts to apply for an LSCA grant in the amount of $6,000 to be matched equally by local monies.

The libraries which worked to raise the $6,000 will receive a portion of the taped-book collection, depending upon how much the library contributed, Becker said.

The initial collection of books, which Becker said consists of everything from children's books to "how-to" books to fiction and non-fiction, will be processed at Jerome and then divided among participating libraries. Circulation of the collection is expected to begin in March, she said.

LDS elder: Lotteries 'corrupt'

REXBURG (AP) — An apostle in the Mormon Church Tuesday lauded support for state lotteries as a "reprehensible" and "politically unwise" invitation to moral degradation.

Speaking to students at Mormon-owned Ricks College here, Elder Dallin H. Oaks, a member of the church's Council of the Twelve Apostles, said state-sponsored lotteries are "sugar-coated with the phony sweetness of a good cause," such as meeting financial crises.

"Gambling is a game of chance that takes without giving value in return," Oaks said. "Gambling tends to corrupt its participants. Its philosophy of something for nothing undermines the virtues of work, industry, thrift and service to others."

In November, Idaho voters overwhelmingly passed an initiative creating a state lottery. However, the measure is being challenged in court, and the Idaho Supreme Court recently in-decided that the initiative probably violates the state constitution.

Until resolution of the legal questions, state officials have held off establishing the commission created by the initiative to run the lottery.

Oaks, a longtime Utah Supreme Court justice, said seemingly innocent, state-sponsored lotteries can ultimately attract the immoral influences of crime, prostitution and alcohol.

Oaks said those supporting state lotteries should be aware not only of moral objections, but practical ones too.

"Gambling is bad political policy," he said. "A law that permits gambling is hard to justify and a law that sponsors or promotes gambling is a sure loser."

Oaks said gambling undercuts productivity and encourages crime while feeding a "something for far less than it is worth" attitude that spawns "theft, robbery, looting, embezzlement, fraud and many other kinds of plunder."

The Mormon leader also criticized lotteries for poor cost-effectiveness, saying that between 60 and 75 cents of every dollar spent on lottery tickets goes to operating expenses and prizes.

Further, Oaks took issue with lottery proponents who claim legalized gambling reduces illegal gambling.

"There is no evidence this has occurred. Instead, legalized gambling wins new participants, which expands the market and the potential revenues of illegal gambling," he said.

Oaks said that lottery opponents who decry opposition to legalized gambling as "legislating morality" forget that "a high proportion of all legislation has a moral base."

"That is true of all of the criminal law, most of the laws regulating families, business and commercial transactions, many of the laws governing property and a host of others," he said.

Craig will discuss timber agreement

widespread layoffs in the industry. "It is essential that we explore and fully understand every nook and cranny of the agreement so we can monitor its progress and effectiveness," Craig said.

Craig said Tuesday an agreement reached last week should curb the flow of Canadian softwood timber in the United States.

Domestic timber companies claimed the subsidized Canadian imports undercut American producers and led to

Governor will move ahead with lottery

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus says he will take an oath on Monday to uphold Idaho's laws — and that includes one requiring him to work on organizing a state lottery.

Therefore, Andrus said Tuesday, he will continue work on the lottery until a court says otherwise.

Two lawsuits have been filed in an effort to stop the state from implementing the state lottery approved by voter initiative in the general election.

The lottery law requires the governor to appoint a five-member lottery commission to organize and operate the lottery. The governor's office said it has received a couple dozen applications from people interested in serving on the commission.

"Unless a court tells us specifically to do or not do something, we are bound by the law to enforce the law," the governor said.

Associated Taxpayers of Idaho last week filed a lawsuit attacking the constitutionality of the lottery. This week, a 4th District Court lawsuit was filed on behalf of Help Idaho Thrive and the Idaho Allied Christian Forces, Inc.

Fourth District Judge Deborah Ball was assigned the Help Idaho Thrive-Allied Christian Forces lawsuit. Judge Gerald Schroeder was given the Associated Taxpayers lawsuit. Courts Administrator Grant Vee said case assignments are made by computer.

nized in 1975 to "work toward the elimination of gambling and its attendant social evils."

An Associated Taxpayers spokesman said the organization has no stand on the lottery itself, but contends it is improper to attempt changing the state Constitution by initiative. The Constitution contains a flat ban on the state of Idaho conducting a lottery.

Stanley Crow, Boise attorney, said he filed the second lawsuit because the organizations he represents oppose the lottery itself. "The taxpayers group has made it very clear that it does not oppose a lottery, but only the attempt to amend the constitution by initiative," Crow said.

The Crow lawsuit also asks a court order banning the spending of any public funds starting or operating a state lottery. It estimates the start-up cost of a state lottery at $3.4 million.

Idaho congressmen reintroduce death penalty, Swan Falls bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the opening of the 100th session of Congress here on Tuesday, members of the Idaho congressional delegation reintroduced several bills which surfaced last session.

Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones said one of them could help expedite court consideration of appeals in death penalty cases and stop the almost-endless appeals which have prevented any executions in the state for nearly 30 years.

At the request of Jones, Sen. Steve Symms reintroduced a bill calling for expedited consideration of death penalty cases in the federal courts.

Jones said Tuesday it requires a strong showing of innocence by a death row inmate before the defendant could file a federal court appeal.

The bill would allow a judge to block a scheduled execution only for 60 days, while the appeal was heard, with a 60-day extension available in some cases.

"Public confidence in our justice system has eroded because of the public's perception that courts cannot adequately deal with death penalty cases. You can't blame people for being discouraged when they see death row inmates receiving stays of execution time and again in the federal system, even after their cases have been thoroughly and fairly reviewed in the state courts," Jones said.

Both Symms and Sen. James McClure introduced Senate legislation calling for ratification of the Swan Falls Snake River water rights agreement in Idaho.

Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, introduced similar legislation in the House.

Both Rep. Larry Craig and Symms introduced legislation designed to keep U.S. funds from going to countries which use the money to produce commodities or minerals in surplus on world markets.

Symms also sponsored a bill barring municipalities from participation in federal law enforcement programs if they prohibit ownership or possession of firearms and ammunition. He also reintroduced his proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution, making English the official language of the United States.

Symms inserted into the Congressional Record an Idaho Statesman article honoring Barbara Morgan-McCall teacher as Idaho's "1986 Citizen of the Year." The McCall teacher is scheduled to be the first school teacher in space early next year.

Garden City man files suit over arrest

BOISE (AP) — A Garden City man is asking $10 million damages from Garden City over his arrest by a former police officer in a drug case.

Charles E. Webster, 26, alleges that unnamed Garden City police officers violated his rights by holding him eight hours without allowing him to consult with an attorney or refuse to answer questions. He also said he was beaten by police officers, and that an officer threatened to shoot or otherwise kill him unless he talked.

Named as defendants in the lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court here Tuesday, were Garden City, its police department and eight men listed as employees of the police department. The lawsuit asks general damages of $1 million and the same amount in punitive damages on each of five counts.

Included as a defendant was Larry Johnson, 30, a former police lieutenant. After an investigation, the attorney general's office in October filed one felony and three misdemeanor criminal charges against Johnson. Johnson, who resigned four days after Webster was arrested Sept. 11, was scheduled to undergo a preliminary hearing on the charges this week.

Johnson was charged with aggravated assault by threatening Webster with a 12-gauge shotgun and three misdeamors, including inhumane and oppressive treatment of prisoner.

Hikes in school district support raise overall state property taxes

BOISE (AP) — The voter-approved increases in property tax support for local school districts, fueled by the state Legislature's refusal to provide any significant boost in state support for education, drove overall property tax charges in Idaho up 11.4 percent in 1986.

Statistics compiled by Associated Taxpayers of Idaho showed 1986 property tax charges certified to the state totaled $350 million, up $35.7 million from 1985.

Over a third of the increase was the result of local school district elections in which property owners agreed to hike their liability over million statewide this year.

The bulk of those additional property taxes came in spring elections

after lawmakers approved a state budget for schools of just $314 million. That amount was more than $6 million below the level education officials said was needed to halt further deterioration in the school system. Almost $30 million of the voter-approved school tax hike was earmarked to just keep schools operating, an increase of nearly $10 million above the override levy total approved in 1985.

Another quarter of the overall increase in 1986 property tax charges was prompted by rising costs of damage claims against local governments and charges for indigent medical care.

Local taxing districts assessed over $10.4 million to pay off damage claims, up more than $3.7 million from 1985, and counties were forced to shell out nearly $11.4 million for medical care for the poor, up $2.9 million from the year before.

In all, the average 1986 property tax levy in Idaho stood at just over $1.39 on every $100 of assessed valuation. That was about 13.5 cents higher than the 1985 average and substantially above the average of under 95 cents in 1979, the year after voters approved an initiative to hold property taxes at $1 or less per $100 assessed value.

The survey of tax rates in 68 cities, conducted by Associated Taxpayers, showed Driggs was the only city with a 1986 tax rate below that level, and only five cities reported tax rates declining from 1985 to 1986 — Dubois, Homedale, Grace, Paris and Shoshone. The largest reduction was nearly 15 cents in Homedale.

At the other end of the scale, 16 cities reported tax rates above $2 per $100 assessed valuation, up from just five with levies above that level in 1985. The highest levy was just over $2.94 in Wallace.

Firing claimed unfair

BOISE (AP) — A former northern Idaho miner claims in a U.S. District Court lawsuit here that he was fired by a mining company in 1984 in an effort to keep his father, a federal mining inspector, from doing his job.

Joel T. Arnold, listed as a Michigan resident, originally filed the lawsuit in 1st District Court. It was transferred this week to federal court in Boise, Asarco, Inc., was listed as the defendant.

Arnold said he was employed by the Core Unit mine in Shoshone County from April, 1981 to August, 1984. He claimed he was terminated because his father, Jim, is a federal mine inspector and the action was intended to intimidate the elder Arnold from carrying out his inspection duties.

The lawsuit asks unspecified damages.

In a response filed to the lawsuit, Asarco said Arnold was terminated because of misconduct. The company also asked for dismissal of the claim, because it already was considered by the Idaho Department of Employment. Arnold also has received a hearing before a federal mining panel and cannot bring up the same claims in a civil lawsuit, the company said.

It denied other allegations in the lawsuit.

Athol man's body found in ravine

BOISE (AP) — The body of an Athol man has been found near the wreckage of his car off U.S. 95, but Idaho State Police officials do not know when the accident occurred.

Fred Lee Hibdon, 36, was found Sunday in a ravine two miles north of Athol, said Rick Owens, ISP public information officer.

Owens said Hibdon's car, north-bound on a downgrade, apparently went out of control on a right-hand curve. He said the vehicle struck a guard rail and went over an embankment.

Owens said the accident might have occurred in 1986.

Dow edges closer to 2,000 mark

Market falters, loses steam

By VIVIAN MARINO
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market ran out of steam Tuesday after a robust two-day rally. Still, it managed to slightly extend the previous session's gains and push the Dow Jones industrial average to a new high and within four points of the vaulted 2,000 mark.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 8.31 to 1,974.83, topping the previous closing high of 1,971.32 set on Monday.

The closely watched index soared 44.01 points in that session, surpassing the previous record one-day point increase of 43.41 points set on Nov. 8, 1982. On Friday, the industrial average rose 31.38 points.

Gainers outpaced losers by about 7-to-5 on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 189.30 million shares.

"The market seems to be backed off a touch, which seems to be a healthy development," said Hildegarde Zagorski, a market strategist with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. "It's better that we go slow and steady."

Traders said the market failed to surge ahead Tuesday due in part to some profit-taking among investors, a weak bond market and the dollar's poor performance on world currency exchanges.

Robert Malcolm, a market analyst with Laidlaw, Adams & Peck, said, "There's widespread belief that there's going to be some kind of market correction sometime in January."

And looking ahead, "when you have a couple of very strong days as we just had some people would take that as an opportunity to sell," he said of the day's profit-taking.

Prices of some 30-year Treasury issues were off about 1/4 point, or $2.50 per $100 face amount, by late Tuesday, while the dollar fell against most major currencies in worldwide exchanges.

"Right now, we need something to push the (stock) market even further, such as a reduction in interest rates or a (positive) change in the economic outlook," added Mary Farrell, a stock market analyst for Paine Webber Inc.

When interest rates fall, stocks become a more attractive investment over bonds.

Traders had attributed the two-day rally in part to the end of traditional year-end tax-selling pressures, which were especially acute in 1986 due to changes in the tax law which took effect Jan. 1.

Investors who sold their stocks last year to deduct losses and take advantage of tax benefits for capital gains were now pouring their money back into the stock market, traders said.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 224.12 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index rose 0.42 to 144.81. Among those on the NYSE's most-active list were several blue-chip stocks, including: International Business Machines, down 1/4 to 123; American Telephone & Telegraph, down 1/2 to 25; American Express, up 1 to 60; and Sears

Roebuck, up 1/4 to 45 1/2. Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 0.74 to 281.69, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 0.59 to 252.73.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was 373.48, up 1.41. The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 366.02, up 4.83.

Construction decline forecast for region

SEATTLE — Tax reform, federal budget cutting and "six years of the new federalism" will eat into the Northwest's construction industry during 1987, a Seattle trade magazine forecasts.

Pacific Builder & Engineer, which covers the heavy construction industry, is projecting a 2.7-percent decline in non-residential building during 1987. Major factors are tax changes and a shift of public works funding from the federal government to the states, Editor Douglas Canfield says.

"Developers will spend 1987 planning how to make projects earn money without tax incentives. State- and local public works officials will spend their time looking for new sources of non-federal funding," he says.

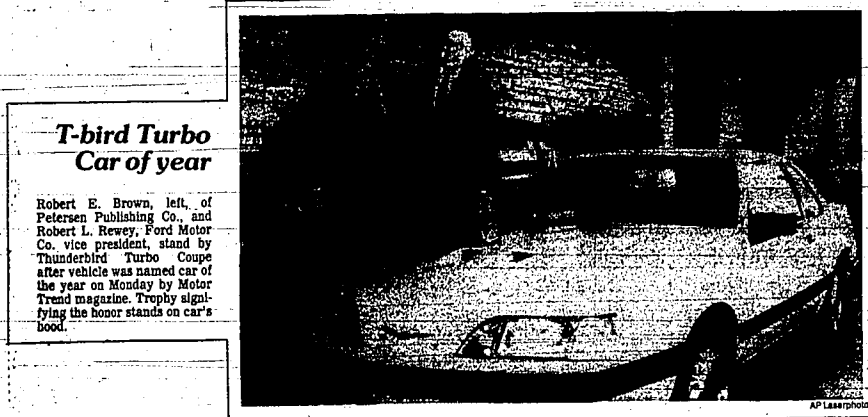

The magazine says non-residential construction in four states — Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Montana — will decline to $5.01 billion from $5.15 billion in 1986.

Non-residential construction includes all building but single-family homes and duplexes. Industrial activity had grown 3 percent in 1986, with most activity occurring in the Seattle and Portland areas.

Idaho activity will drop 4 percent, and Washington activity also will fall, according to the report in Pacific Builder's Jan. 5 edition. Construction in Montana should not slide, and Oregon's activity should be up 2 percent, it says.

While Washington and Oregon are adjusting for losses in federal revenue sharing and other aid, "Unfortunately, Idaho and Montana have not prepared adequately for the impending decline in federal assistance," Canfield says. Legislators are scrambling to find new funding to stem deterioration of basic services, he says.

The magazine is forecasting non-residential construction in Northwest states at: Washington, $2.94 billion; Oregon, $1.2 billion; Montana, $.46 billion; and Idaho, $.42 billion.

Buyers rush for last minute tax break

Mid-December car sales rise sharply

DETROIT (AP) — A rush by buyers seeking a last-minute tax break in mid-December propelled domestic car sales by the eight U.S. automakers to 27.5 percent above the corresponding period last year.

The automakers said Monday they sold 210,654 cars between Dec. 11th and 20th, compared with 185,132 in the same period a year ago.

Sales by Ford Motor Co., the nation's second-largest automaker, rose sharply to 65.6 percent above the year-ago period. Sales by General Motors Corp., the largest automaker, were up 11.5 percent, and sales by third-ranked Chrysler Corp. rose by 23.2 percent.

"I think what we're looking at is a rush to buy cars before the end of the year-to-take advantage of the expiring sales-tax break," said David Henry, automotive analyst with the New York brokerage house Drexel Burnham Lambert.

GM's sales accounted for 59.3 percent of all domestic sales, down from 57.6 percent a year earlier. Ford's share was 29.7 percent, up from 22.9 percent, and Chrysler's share was 13.6 percent, down from 14.1 percent.

Adjusted for seasonal fluctuations, cars sold at an annual rate of 8.9 million vehicles, compared with 8.1 million vehicles a year earlier.

Car sales this year through Dec. 20 totaled 7,948,056 vehicles, down 0.4 percent from the corresponding period last year.

GM sales for the year were down 1.8 percent; Ford, down 1.1 percent; and Chrysler, up 2.6 percent.

Among smaller automakers, mid-December car sales by American Honda Motor Co. Inc. were more than double the year-ago period; Nissan North America Inc. up 50.5 percent; Volkswagen of America Inc., down 27.3 percent; and American Motors Corp., down 36.6 percent. Toyota Motor Corp., which began U.S. production in 1986, sold 933 cars in the period.

Financial firm adds branches in K marts

Los Angeles Times
First Nationwide Financial, the aggressive California savings and loan company owned by Ford Motor Co., said Monday that its subsidiaries and affiliates will open at least another 150 branch offices in K mart discount department stores across the country.

First Nationwide already operates 53 branch offices in K marts in California, Michigan and Kansas, and the agreement announced Monday means that it will add like outlets in Florida, Missouri, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The move represents another major expansion for First Nationwide, a San Francisco-based financial K mart. It owns savings and loan companies in eight states and has franchise-style, affiliate operations in 39 states.

Utah, Ohio firms to merge

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Valtek Inc. of Springville, Utah, will become a wholly owned subsidiary of Duriron Co. Inc. of Dayton, Ohio, under terms of a merger, company officials say.

The agreement calls for Duriron to pay Valtek stockholders $11.75 per share in cash, said Valtek spokesman Phil Skousen. Valtek stock has been running around $9.60 recently.

He said the merger is contingent upon approval by Valtek shareholders at a special meeting to be called as soon as the financing of the deal is arranged by Duriron.

Valtek, incorporated in 1966, is known worldwide for its design and manufacture of high-performance metal control valves.

During the fiscal year ending April 30, 1986, Valtek reported revenues of $29.5 million. Duriron, in its fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1985, had $146.7 million in revenues, company officials said.

Threat closes U.S. embassy

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Drug traffickers threatened to blow up the U.S. Embassy in Bogota and the building will be closed for two days because of the threat, an embassy source told The Associated Press Tuesday.
The source, who insisted on anonymity for security reasons, said the embassy was shut Tuesday and would reopen Thursday. He said the bomb threat came after President Virgilio Barco ordered a roundup of suspected drug traffickers throughout Colombia.
More than 300 people were arrested in the roundup, the largest ever of drug traffickers in Colombia, following the Dec. 17 killing of Guillermo Cano, editor of the Bogota daily El Espectador.
Barco said Cano was slain by drug traffickers because of the editor's relentless campaign against the illegal drug trade.
Normally, there are about a half-dozen policemen and private guards around the U.S. Embassy in this city of 6 million people.

Paper quotes Deng, condemns protests

PEKING (AP) — China's leading newspaper Tuesday invoked past statements by top leader Deng Xiaoping in condemning the "pro-democracy" student demonstrations in Beijing, the protest a "very grave event."
"Student posters at Peking University lashed out against the official media bill, opposing the demonstrations and vowed the movement for freedom and democracy has just begun.
There were no reports of more demonstrations Tuesday, although sources said about 1,000 students demonstrated in Dalian on Thursday. No details were immediately available.

The front-page editorial in the Communist Party newspaper People's Daily called the demonstrations a "very grave event."
They are the outcome of several years of unbridled ideological trend of bourgeois liberalization and of the failure on the part of some of our comrades to take a clear-cut stand and resolute attitude toward it," the editorial said.
The term "bourgeois liberalization" has been used by Communist Party leaders to mean opposition to the party's leadership, Marxism and socialism, and advocacy of a multiparty system.
The term had been used by leaders in a crackdown that squelched the Democracy Wall movement of the late 1970s.
Deng, Premier Zhao Ziyang and Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang, the main architects of China's economic reforms and proponents of political reform, have made no direct statements about the unrest since it began in early December.

Until this week, the media campaign against the demonstrations was led by leaders believed to have reservations about Deng's reforms.
Student protesters, many of whom say they support Deng, have asked that he and other top reformers reveal their views on the protests.
The People's Daily editorial said the Communist Party Central Committee, made up of China's top leaders, was baffled and that there was no basis for turmoil such as that which occurred during the 1966 Cultural Revolution.

No accord on agenda for talks

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Government and rebels met for two hours Tuesday but failed to agree on an agenda for talks to end the Philippines' 18-year-old Communist insurgency and adjourned until next week.
A month remains of a 60-day truce meant to facilitate the negotiations, but both sides said earlier the cease-fire could be extended if "substantial progress" is made in the talks.
The two sides met behind closed doors at the State Auditorium building in suburban Manila. They said later they will study each other's positions and meet again next Tuesday to try to reconcile differences on a common agenda.
About 80 militant farmers, who marched from central Luzon island to Manila to demand land reform, raised clenched fists and cheered the arrival of the three rebel negotiators.
Some farmers asked the chief negotiators on both sides for autographs when the session ended.
President Corazon Aquino convened a special committee at the presidential palace Wednesday to study demands by Moslem rebels for ending the 14-year separatist revolt in the south.
Formal talks are to start Feb. 9 in Manila on autonomy for the Philippines' estimated 6 million Moslems, but there are fears that snags on a draft new constitution could delay a settlement.
Moslems are a minority in this mainly Christian nation of 55 million.
After Tuesday's meeting with the Communist-led National Democratic Front political alliance, chief negotiator negotiator of the front, Gerry Abadina, said a panel decided to work for agreement under the framework of "food and freedom, jobs and justice."
The front submitted 10 "priority demands" and asked the government to act on them immediately as a goodwill gesture.
The demands included: release of remaining political prisoners; punishment of military and government officials guilty of human rights violations; an end to torture; dismantling of military and private armies; a "thorough reorientation and reorganization" of the armed forces; compensation to victims of abuse; removal of police from military control; and punishment of those who killed a leftist labor leader in November.

Leftists open new offensive

OSICALA, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas say an attack on a military outpost in northeastern Morazan province was the beginning of a new offensive in their 7-year-old war against the U.S.-backed government.
Col. Mauricio Vargas said Tuesday that his troops repelled the guerrilla raid after seven hours of hand-to-hand fighting the previous day at Osicala, a village 115 miles northeast of San Salvador. He said four soldiers, two civilians and 23 guerrillas were killed.
Venceremos, the clandestine rebel radio, put the toll at five soldiers dead and 16 wounded, with two guerrillas slightly wounded.

Classes to report

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Anti-apartheid groups have urged black students to end school boycotts, and officials say they expect nearly two million to report for the new academic year that begins Wednesday.
Some schools that were closed last year because of boycotts will open because parents have wanted to make sure their children attend regularly and stay out of trouble, government spokesman Roger Mundell said Tuesday.

Vietnam says border attack repulsed

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam reported Tuesday it repulsed a Chinese attack at the border and killed or wounded nearly 50 enemy soldiers.
The official Vietnam News Agency, in a brief report broadcast in Bangkok, said Vietnamese troops fought three attacks launched by Chinese regiments at several hilltops in northern Ha Tuyen province early Monday, "putting out of action almost 500 band robbers."
Vietnam often uses that phrase to describe enemy casualties.
The news agency did not say whether there were Vietnamese casualties.
Chinese news media did not report the border clash, and the Vietnamese report could not be independently confirmed.

Foods to offer respite from that holiday culinary overkill

Mexican soup tops Rupert woman's list

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — For the past three years, Carol Whitlom has been sharing her favorite recipes with 500 neighbors through her weekly, incredible "Edibles" column in the Mindoka County News. In addition, she writes a food column for the publication "Farm Lines," which is distributed throughout the Magic Valley.

Whitlom got her chance to write columns after working in the newspaper's advertising department for half a year. "I've always enjoyed cooking," she says, "so I asked them if they wanted somebody to write cooking. And they said I could give it a try. So I did, and just kept doing it since then."

She says she did not have a writing background, but decided "in a little town like this, I could give it a try, and wouldn't make too big of a fool of myself."

She doesn't have a worried. Her columns have been well-received, inspiring favorable comments from readers. "Anytime we go anywhere, someone mentions that they read it. I've done fine with it, and I enjoy doing it," she says.

As a resource, Whitlom has a collection of about 200 cookbooks. In her travels, she also picks up recipes and ideas for recipes. They may come from her hostess when dining in a private home or from an especially good dish served in a restaurant. "If it is not often possible to obtain a recipe from a chef, so she says she usually finds out "enough that I can go back and find one like it, or something close, that I can work with."

She is a creative cook, who does not follow recipes to the letter. She says she has a knack for combining ingredients and flavors. "It's like somebody that dresses well," she says, "sometimes you see somebody dressed terrifically, and you would never have put the things together, but somehow they do it, and it looks good. They just have that ability."

"I think it's the same with cooking. Some people just know in their head whether two spices are going to be good together — that maybe you wouldn't have thought to put together."

In order to do her work, as well as care for five daughters, a 15-year-old Brooke, a 12-year-old Brianne, a 10-year-old Zia, a 7-year-old Zabelle and a 5-month-old Paige, she needs cooperation. And this she gets from the children.

"We're pretty big on chores in our house," she says. "With so many kids, everybody has jobs, and they do real well at their jobs."

For a week or longer each month, she works evenings on advertising. During this time, Brooke does most of the meal preparation, which helps her to develop her own cooking ability.

Dad also pitches in. On weekends, Bill, who is Rupert's mayor, fixes breakfast for the family. When Whitlom doesn't know what to fix for dinner, she sees MEXICAN on Page C8.

After too many goodies, soup hits the spot

By BETSY BALSLEY
Los Angeles Times

With the holiday season coming to an end, most of us are already suffering the letdown that follows holiday overkill. We crave foods that are comforting, easy to eat, and that don't require a lot of preparation time. Foods that can be refrigerated or frozen if there are leftovers. When you have had your fill of all the rich and indulgent goodies that are so prevalent this time of year, a simple hot soup can be the most satisfying meal you have ever eaten. And if, by chance, that nice, simple soup isn't the quick fix you need, so much the better.

Fill out an easy menu with a crisp, tossed salad, some hot buttery bread or warm flour tortillas that have been rolled into convenient cylinders, and you will dine well.

The following soups have one thing in common: None take long to prepare, thus they are good choices when time is limited.

BAKED ONION SOUP

1 quart sliced onions
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 (14-ounce) cans beef broth
¼ (14-ounce) can chicken broth
¼ cup dry Sherry
Salt, pepper
12 small slices French bread
Parmesan cheese
½ pound shredded Jack cheese
Sauté onions and garlic in butter in large Dutch oven over low heat until browned and tender. Stir occasionally to prevent scorching. Add beef and chicken broths; heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer about minutes to blend flavors. Add Sherry and season to taste with salt and pepper. Pour soup into slices. Bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Sprinkle with melted cheese. Makes 6 servings.

SPINACH SOUP

2 (10-ounce) packages frozen leaf spinach
1 (14-ounce) can chicken broth
1 cup chopped onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups whipping cream
1 (12-ounce) lemon juice
Salt, pepper
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced crosswise

Place spinach in heavy pot or Dutch oven. Add broth and bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer about 5 minutes or until spinach is completely thawed and tender. Sauté onion and garlic in butter in skillet until tender but not browned. Stir in flour until cooked through and smooth. Add 1 cup whipping cream and cook, stirring, until mixture is well blended. Stir onion mixture into spinach and broth. Blend in remaining 2 cups whipping cream and heat just to a simmer. Puree mixture in 2 cup quantities in food processor until smooth. Return to pan, add lemon juice and salt and pepper to taste. Garnish each serving with hard-cooked egg slices. Makes 6 servings.

CRAB AND CORN SOUP

1 (14-ounce) can chicken broth or 7 cups homemade chicken broth

¼ (10-ounce) package frozen corn
½ cup cornstarch
½ cup water
1 (6-ounce) package frozen cooked crab meat, thawed
1 tablespoon Sherry
1 egg white, beaten until stiff
Few drops sesame oil
Finely chopped green onions
Heat chicken broth in medium saucepan to boiling. Add corn and simmer 5 minutes. Combine cornstarch and water until smooth. Add to pan and simmer just until thickened. Add crab meat and Sherry. Break crab meat up slightly. Gently fold in beaten egg white. Drizzle with sesame oil as desired. Serve at once, garnished with green onions. Makes about 6 servings.

ONION-POTATO CHOWDER WITH ITALIAN SAUSAGE

2 large onions
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 cups diced potatoes
4 cups beef broth or bouillon
1 (12- to 16-ounce) package
• See SOUP on Page C2

Time to get back in shape after that glorious holiday glut

Yes, I'm glad it's over. The only problem is that I'm also so tired of food (and what great food it was) that my taste buds have gone on a brief strike and refuse anything richer than fresh-baked, whole-grain bread with a bit of butter (well, maybe a tad of jam or honey).

We ate well and hearty and enjoyed every morsel, but today I looked through cookbook after cookbook and cooking magazines and found about a thousand recipes, but nothing to eat!

You see, our palates are still saturated with egg nog, whipped cream, chocolate everything (did you know they actually dip Oreos cookies in chocolate — now that's true decadence!), cream-sauced entrees, etc., etc.

Nancy Joy Jones

Wouldn't it be wonderful to try all of one of those spas where they serve you great meals for under 500 calories and you get to have facial and sun bathe and exercise and get back in shape after the assault of the holidays. Instead of picking pine needles out of the carpet and finding out how much you really spent on the presents?

Oh well, I guess I'll stay right where I am and put together a post-holiday program of sorts to get over the doldrums and back in shape.

One gorgeous book I received is "Spa Food" by Edward J. Faldut of the Sonoma Mission Inn. In beautiful pictures he shows page after page of appetizing foods, most which keep you under 500 calories a day. It's an inspiration, and I liked the fact that there were not any pictures of BYTs (Beautiful Young Things) that intimidate most of us.

I'm sure following his recommendations and food selections would be a bit difficult for most of us because it calls for equipment and ingredients not available in every kitchen but most of us could do at least some.

He recommends a cleansing day to start out, and he even says one a week (like every Monday) would be good.

On these days, you have four small fruit drinks, a broth soup and a special evening drink. For example, you can puree together and serve in a chilled glass the juice of a lime and half of a cold pineapple, peeled and cored. The other drinks are a carrot-apple concoction, a grapefruit-lemon mix and a papaya-banana smoothie.

If you would decide to do a day or a week of this kind of pampering, then invite a friend and split the cost for the fresh produce.

You must do some exercise to make the rejuvenation work, but you can also give yourself a special bath just before bed. You probably have lots of things in your kitchen that would help.

Try a milk bath by mixing 3 quarts of hot milk from dry-milk powder and add a cup of honey and a cup of chamomile tea to your bath. If you're itching from your exercises, add a handful of Epsom salts to the bath. A cup of vinegar helps mid-winter, dry, itching skin feel smooth again.

I got another good cookbook for Christmas that I want to share with you. Crescent Dragonwagon (yes, that's her name) and Jan Brown have written a book called "The Dairy Hollow House Cookbook."

It's about an inn in the Ozarks where they must serve the best food of just about anywhere. They are innovative cooks and seem to put small twists on familiar recipes that make them just a bit more special. Here is one I tried and loved.

Salads

1/4 cup water
1/4 cup diced red pepper
1/4 cup diced green pepper
1 tablespoon minced onion
French dressing

Wash, core and hollow out center of lettuce. Drain and set aside. Combine avocado, cream cheese, mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and hot-pepper-sauce-in-blender-or-food-processor. Process until smooth.

In a small-sauce-pan combine gelatin and water, allow to soften. Cook over medium heat, stirring to dissolve. With blender or food processor running, slowly pour gelatin into avocado mixture. Immediately pour mixture into medium bowl and stir in red and green peppers - and onion.

Spoon avocado mixture into lettuce. Wrap overnight with plastic wrap and chill - overnight. Slice into wedges and serve with French dressing. Garnish each wedge with a sprig of parsley and a radish rose.

Makes 6 servings.

GARDEN TRIFLE

1 medium-head-iceberg-lettuce, core and torn into bite size pieces
 2 medium avocados, seeded, peeled, cubed and lightly tossed in fresh lemon juice
 1 small purple onion, thinly sliced
 1/4 cup radishes, thinly sliced
 1/4 cup yellow squash, thinly sliced
 1/4 cup shredded carrots
 1 cup mayonnaise
 1/2 cup sour cream

1 package (0.2 oz.) dry dressing mix (any flavor)

In a shallow medium-size salad bowl layer half of the lettuce, avocado, purple onion, radishes, yellow squash and carrots. Top with remaining lettuce.

Combine mayonnaise, sour cream and dry dressing mix. Spread evenly over lettuce, sealing to edge of bowl. Arrange remaining avocado, purple onion, radishes, yellow squash and carrots in a diagonal stripe pattern over surface of dressing. Cover tightly with plastic wrap. Refrigerate for several hours. Makes 6 servings.

Serving hint: Can be arranged in individual serving salad bowls.

MEDITERRANEAN STUFFED TOMATO

1 large avocado, seeded and peeled
 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
 1/4 cup diced celery
 1/4 cup diced red peppers
 2 green onions, thinly sliced
 9/16 oz. can white tuna (packed in water) drained and flaked
 1/4 cup creamy Italian dressing salt and pepper
 4 medium tomatoes
 1 head iceberg lettuce
 Chopped nuts (optional)
 Chopped parsley (optional)

In a small bowl mash avocado and mayonnaise. Set aside. Combine celery, red peppers, onions, tuna, and creamy Italian dressing. Salt and pepper to taste. Peel tomatoes, if desired, and cut out stems. Without cutting all the way through, cut tomatoes in 5 or 6 wedges. Arrange 3-4 lettuce leaves on a salad plate to form a cup and place one tomato on each. Carefully open up tomatoes like tulips, and spoon equal amounts of avocado mixture in each, reserving small amount of tuna mixture over avocado. Garnish each tomato with a dollop of avocado, chopped nuts, and parsley. Chill. Serve with additional dressing. Makes 4 servings.

Variations: Diced cooked chicken turkey or ham may be substituted for tuna.

GUACAMOLE SALAD SANDWICH

1 small avocado, seeded, peeled and quartered
 1 small tomato, peeled and quartered

1/2 cup buttermilk dressing
 1 teaspoon garlic salt
 3 pita breads, cut in half
 2 cups iceberg lettuce, finely shredded
 6 ounces cheddar cheese, shredded
 1 cup diced cooked ham
 1/4 cup alfalfa sprouts

In a blender or food processor combine avocado, tomato, buttermilk dressing, and garlic salt. Process until smooth.

To prepare sandwiches, spoon 2 tablespoons avocado mixture and 1/4 of the lettuce, cheddar cheese and ham into each pita bread half. Repeat this process to make 6 sandwiches. Top each pita sandwich with sprouts and serve with remaining avocado mixture.

Makes 6 servings (1/2 pita bread per serving).

FIFTH AVENUE FRUIT SALAD

2 cups citrus fruit sections
 1 medium avocado, seeded, peeled and sliced into thin strips
 1 cup red grapes, halved and seeded
 1 cup dark grapes, halved and seeded
 1 cup green grapes, halved and seeded
 1 pint medium strawberries, halved
 1 head iceberg lettuce, cut into 4 rafts

Plus cheese dressing
 Drain citrus sections, reserving juice. Sprinkle sliced avocado with approximately 1/4 tablespoon of reserved citrus juice. Make lettuce rafts by cutting head crosswise into slices about 1 inch thick. Spread rafts with blue cheese dressing. Arrange all fruit on iceberg lettuce rafts. Serve with additional blue cheese dressing. Makes 4 servings.

Mexican

she can throw a soup together in a hurry. "I like soups real well, and so does the family, so I do a lot of soups," she says.

One of her favorites is a Mexican soup called...

SOPA de TORTILLA

Serves 6

3 pounds chicken
 4 quarts water
 1 teaspoon celery seed
 1 teaspoon whole peppercorns
 2 cloves
 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
 1 pound canned tomatoes
 1 onion, cut in 1-inch pieces
 3 sprigs of cilantro, optional

1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 1 clove garlic
 At least 4 teaspoons salt
 1 green pepper, cut in 1-inch cubes
 4 green onions, coarsely chopped
 One 10 ounce package corn
 1 cup cooked rice
 2 teaspoons parsley
 Tortilla chips
 Grated cheddar cheese

Combine the first five ingredients, and cook, covered, one hour. Remove the chicken, and strain the broth. Add next eight ingredients, and simmer 30 minutes. Add-green-pepper, onions and corn. Cut the chicken into pieces. Put it back into the broth. Add rice and parsley. Put a handful of tortilla chips over the top, and sprinkle with the cheddar cheese.

"The cheddar cheese kind of melts onto the chips, and it's just real good. I make it quite a bit," she says.

The next recipe is for a crab soup that's easy, but good. "It's real elegant tasting, and it's just a real snap to throw together," she says.

CRAB SOUP

Serves 2-4

1 can tomato soup
 1 can consommé soup
 1 can green pea soup
 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
 1 can crabmeat or about 1/2 pound

fresh crab
 Combine first three ingredients, and cook about 30 minutes on very low heat. Add curry powder and crabmeat, and serve.

"You don't think it with anything. It's real thick. It's like a Chowdry kind of thing," she says.

CREAM OF DUTCHESS SOUP

Serves 4-6

4 cups chicken broth or consommé
 3 cups carrots, sliced
 2 onions, sliced
 1/4 cup chopped bell pepper

1 cup small cauliflowerettes
 1/2-1 cup mushrooms, finely chopped
 1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
 1/4 cup butter
 1/4 cup flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 Pepper to taste
 1 cup milk
 1/2 tablespoons butter

Dice the vegetables. Cook them for three minutes in the 1 1/2 tablespoons butter. Add the milk, and boil 15 minutes. Add the milk. Thicken with remaining 1/4 cup butter and the flour. Cook together, and add seasonings. Stir in the cheese.

The last one is a soup she likes a lot, because her family likes it.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP

Serves 8-10

2 tablespoons oil
 1/4 cup chopped onions
 1 small carrot, peeled and grated
 1 cup celery, chopped
 1 head cauliflower, about a pound, cut into flowerettes
 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 1/2 teaspoon tarragon
 8 cups chicken stock
 1/4 cup butter
 3/4 cup flour
 2 cups milk
 1 cup half and half
 1 tablespoon salt, or to taste
 1 cup sour cream

Saute the onions till they are transparent. Add the carrot and celery. Cook 2 minutes. Add the cauliflower, and 1 tablespoon parsley and tarragon. Cover. Reduce heat, and simmer five minutes. Make a white sauce out of the butter, flour, milk and half and half and salt, and stir it into the soup. Simmer 15-20 minutes. Just before serving, mix in the sour cream, and rest of chopped parsley.

hot or mild Italian sausages
 2 cups milk
 1/2 teaspoon summer savory or basil
 Salt, pepper

Finely chop onions to measure 3 cups. Melt butter in Dutch oven, add onions and saute 4 to 8 minutes. Stir in tomatoes and broth. Bring to boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes.

Slice sausages into 1/4-inch-thick chunks. Cook in skillet until browned and cooked through. With slotted spoon, add sausages to chowder. Add milk and summer savory. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Heat through. Makes 6 servings.

CHILI SOUP

1 pound ground beef
 1 cup chopped onion
 1 (8-ounce) can tomato paste
 1 (1-pound) can stewed or plain tomatoes
 1 1/2 cups water
 2 (15 1/2-ounce) cans kidney beans
 1 garlic clove, crushed
 4 tablespoons chili powder
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon cumin
 Brown ground beef with onion in large saucpan. Drain off excess fat. Stir in tomato paste and stewed tomatoes. Break up tomatoes. Add water, beans, garlic, chili powder, salt and cumin. Mix well. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Makes 9 cups.

CURRIED LAMB SOUP

Chopped green onions
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1 tablespoon curry powder
 1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
 4 cups tomato juice
 3 cups cubed, cooked lamb, cut in 1/2-inch chunks
 1/2 cup raisins
 1 tablespoon lime juice
 1 large green banana
 Salt
 Sliced almonds

In large saucpan, saute 1/2 cup green onions in butter until tender.

Add curry powder and garlic. Cook, stirring, 1 minute. Blend in tomato juice. Add lamb, raisins and lime juice. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Cut banana into chunks through peel. Remove peel from each chunk, slice banana and add to soup. Cover and simmer 30 minutes more. Season to taste with salt. Sprinkle with sliced almonds and additional chopped green onions to serve. Makes 8 servings.

CREAM OF TURKEY AND MUSHROOM SOUP

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
 1 cup mushrooms, sliced
 1-1/2 cup flour
 4 cups chicken broth

1 1/2 cups half and half
 1/2 cup dry white wine
 1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
 3/4 cups diced cooked turkey
 1 teaspoon fresh tarragon leaves or 1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon leaves
 Salt
 Chopped parsley

In large kettle melt butter over medium heat. Add onion and cook until tender. Add mushrooms and cook 10 minutes. Blend in flour and cook 1 minute. Stir in chicken broth, half and half and wine. Stir over medium heat until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add hot pepper sauce, turkey and tarragon. Season to taste with salt. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 20 minutes. Garnish with parsley. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

3 cups oatmeal
 1 tablespoon salt
 1/2 cup mild honey
 1 1/2 cups heavy cream
 1/4 cup water
 1/4 cup butter
 1/2 cup lukewarm water
 2 tablespoons yeast
 2 tablespoons honey
 2 cups unbleached white flour
 Place the oatmeal, salt and 1/2 cup honey in a large bowl. Heat the cream, water and butter until the butter melts, and pour over the oatmeal mixture. Let stand until lukewarm.

Meanwhile, combine in a small bowl the 1/2 cup water, yeast and 2 tablespoons honey. After this is bubbling and the oatmeal mixture is lukewarm, combine and mix well. Then stir in a cup at a time of the flour and continue adding small amounts of flour until dough is stiff enough to knead.

Knead for 5 or 6 minutes on a floured board until dough is smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl and let rise until doubled in bulk, about an hour. (Cover with a towel while rising.)

Punch down and shape into 2 large and 1 small loaves (or 3 medium) and put in 3 greased breadpans to rise again. This time it should take about 45 minutes.

Bake 30 minutes (less for little loaf) and let cool before slicing. Boy is it good!

These brownies from the same book are really good. If you like chocolate.

2 teaspoons vanilla
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 1/2 cups unbleached flour
 1 to 2 cups chopped nuts (pecans or English walnuts)

Preheat oven to 375. Melt together the chocolate and butter over very low heat, stirring constantly. After melted, remove from heat.

In a bowl, beat with an electric mixer the eggs, sugar, vanilla and salt for at least 8 minutes. Then beat in the slightly cooled chocolate mixture. Remove the electric beaters and now use a wooden spoon to mix in the flour, just enough so it's blended well. Then carefully stir in the nuts.

Pour into a greased 9x13-inch pan and bake for 35 minutes. Take care not to overbake.

How's that for a couple of New Year ideas? One for a drastic reduction in food and then one for absolutely great brownies! These resolutions never last very long, do they? Enjoy!

Orange boats

Serve this refreshing fruit mixture for orange shells for breakfast, an appetizer or dessert.

BROILED ORANGE BOATS

1 large orange
 1/2 cup seedless green or red grapes, halved
 2 teaspoons sugar
 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
 2 tablespoons cream

Halve oranges, using a sawtooth cut. If desired, carefully remove fruit from each orange half, leaving shells intact. Section orange; cut fruit into chunks. Combine orange chunks, grapes, sugar and cinnamon. Stir in melted butter. Spoon mixture into orange shells. Place filled shells in shallow baking pan. Sprinkle coconut over fruit. Broil 5 to 6 minutes from heat for 3 to 4 minutes or until coconut is golden. Serve warm. Makes 4 servings.

CRESCENT'S CLASSIC CHERRY BROWNIES

8 ounces (8 squares) unsweetened chocolate
 1 cup butter
 5 eggs
 3 cups sugar

Catalogs a source for garden information

Among the best free sources of gardening information are seed and garden catalogs. Seed companies begin sending out free catalogs to their customers right after Christmas.

I purchase most of my seeds and plants from local nurseries and garden stores, but I find catalogs have some very helpful planning information. Catalogs also seem to have the newest varieties first, and I like to try a few new things every year.

I plant a lot of flowers around my home and catalog pictures help me choose colors and combinations. It also helps get me out of the petunia/marigold rut by bringing new varieties to my attention. Catalog descriptions help in choosing sizes for flower borders.

My wife and daughter have good ideas for compatible color combinations. The flowers always look better when they participate in the planning.

If you have a local greenhouse which starts flower plants for spring planting, you may want to ask them about unusual flowers which you have seen in the catalog. They may be able to grow some for you or advise you about locally adapted flowers which have similar colors or textures. You may even want to start a few plants in your own sunny window. Some flower seeds can be planted directly outside with good success.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

Some vegetable catalogs have excellent information on planting distances, times and amounts to fit family needs. The days to maturity information is helpful in choosing varieties which will mature in a short growing season. You can choose two or three varieties of corn or cabbage with different maturity periods for continuous harvest.

For helpful planning information, my favorite flower seed catalogs are Park Seed Co. in Greenwood, S.C. 29647; Stokes Seeds in Buffalo, N.Y. 14240; and Burpee Seeds in Warminster, Pa. 18974.

For vegetable seed information, my favorites are Willey Seeds in Treviso, Pa. 19047; Johnny's Seeds in Aiblon, Maine 04910; plus Stokes and Burpee.

You can obtain free catalogs from these companies by sending to these brief addresses listed above. They receive so much mail that a street address or box is not necessary. For the best prices on seeds you will usually find local nurseries and garden stores as the best source. They can usually recommend varieties which are well adapted locally. If you like to try new varieties, the catalogs are a good source.

Take care with roses

By EARL ARONSON
The Associated Press

Get the most from your roses, whether you cut them from your own garden or they arrive in a florist's box.

First, remove any leaves that might decay under water in the arrangement. Then, using a sharp knife, cut an inch off each stem. When removing leaves or thorns, do not cut through the bark. Use a glove or cloth and simply pull it down over the stem to remove extra foliage and thorns. Do not scrape the bark.

Put roses in a clean, deep vase of warm water. Leave them in a cool room or refrigerator to condition for several hours before arranging. Use a floral preservative in the water, following package directions.

To help with your arranging, use florist's porous foam. Saturate the foam thoroughly in advance in clean water-containing the preservative. The foam should not be reused. It is a vase large enough to permit submerging the block of foam. Be sure the stem ends are below the water surface and add water daily to replace that used by the flowers. Do not move the rose stem after inserting. To do so may leave an air pocket at the base of the stem.

Should your roses arrive in a vase, add water immediately and refill the vase daily. Roses are porous flowers. If the florist used a heavy foam in the vase to hold the roses in place, keep the foam covered with water. If the foam extends above the top of the container keep the water as high in the vase as possible. The stem ends should be below the water surface.

The florist may have added a floral preservative to the water. If not, you can buy a small packet. This will add days of life to your flowers. Premature wilting of your roses is not necessarily a sign that they are old. Sometimes wilting occurs if the bud has been cut before it is mature, even if a cut has been made through the bark, or if the bark has been scraped. When this injury is a vase large enough to permit submerging the block of foam, Be

Gardeners seduced by tropical plants

By HENRY MITCHELL
The Washington Post

Our first home must have been tropical, as so many gardeners yearn for yearning seem. In fact, the tropics are not nice to garden in—the storms, the winds, the monotonous drudge of one perfect day after another, and (worst of all) the failure of lilies, daffodils, peonies.

All the same, I know there are gardeners like me who (and never mind the blunt reality that we lack the energy to keep our temperate gardens in fine order) are continually seduced by some tropical plant or other.

The great triumph, naturally, is to grow a tropical plant outdoors and keep it alive through the winter. Few joys equal that of a buddy of mine in Connecticut who grows and flowers his ginger lilies outdoors, year after year.

And to keep a night-jasmine (Cestrum nocturnum) year after year under a south wall (with a considerable much of bay or branches over it) is wonderful. I have known gardeners determined to keep the banana trees outdoors over winter. In November they cut the great leaves off and surround the eight-foot stump with bog wire in a cylinder four feet in diameter, into which they pack leaves. It takes a billion bags of leaves. The reward is a crown of banana leaves and sprouts out again.

Of course it is easier to dig the stem up, with a water-pail-size ball day after another, and (worst of all) the failure of lilies, daffodils, peonies.

I have known gardeners who just pulled up their bananas in fall and laid the great stems horizontally across water pipes in the basement. One woman, who knew no better, had a crawl space (quite open to the elements at the sides) beneath part of the house, and she simply dumped the trunks on the dirt there. On winter nights that went to zero, she did nothing and didn't even worry—knowing enough to let it be and was rewarded for her faith at the end of the season, beautifully—when she planted them out the next spring.

Some people loathe bananas in a garden. To me they are one of the great good plants, regular prices of the vegetable kingdom. Usually I restrain myself. I love them all the more, and I love those hot days when it flaunts its six-foot-long leaves 14 feet in the air. You understand there is a difference between an innocent quirk of introducing a tropical banana and the dog's out by The Banana Tree, 715 Northampton St., Easton, Pa. 18042. Gardeners who are not seriously interested in buying banana trees, etc., really should send a dollar and two to defray the cost of the modest 20-page list.

The bananas begin on the first page, where you learn there are 50-odd varieties of bananas. There are 30-odd varieties offered for sale, from corms, which you plant in an eight-inch pot. Ideally you then give them a temperature of 75, and 12 to 16 hours of light a day. And you want to keep the humidity at 75 percent. Still, there can be lapses from the ideal without disaster.

The corms or bulbs or sucker bases sell from $5.50 to $22 each, depending partly on rarity and partly on size. It is more costly to handle large corms.

Recently I have debated at length which bananas would be best. The little six-foot Cavendish is easy to manage; the giant Cavendish, at 20 feet, would take more doing. So, would the Giant Pisang, no doubt, which can reach 30 feet.

It takes a stronger hold on reality than most gardeners possess to pass over the French Horn, Grand Nain, Hua Moa, Dwarf Jamaican Red, Mysore, Rajapuri and Pink Orinoco.

Often, the gardener will pass over the years of the passion and long abate somewhat. Most gardeners go through dreadful yearnings—weeks on end of desperate desire—for some plant or other. Old codgers can look back on their Peony Period, Daffodil Paranoia, Iris Psychosis, Rose Neurosis, and gardeners with high thresholds of pain usually have also endured the Oleander Attack and Arum Moratorium (in which nothing seems real but arums).

I have had banana fits before, and know that in time they will pass. Still, it is not unreasonable surely to have just one little Cavendish? And there is a good west window on the stair landing—a good-stubbed top on the living room floor, and a slight bending of the stem over the stair rail, with plenty of light from that window, and the stem could continue up to the height of the upstairs hall. Let's see, 17 feet. Well, upon my word, I see I really could have the Mysore banana, which often stops at 14 feet.

Choosing the right nail

By The Associated Press

Driving a nail with a hammer is almost everyone's first and most frequent do-it-yourself accomplishment—but choosing the right nail for the job is not as simple as it sounds.

Nails are available in hundreds of styles, shapes and sizes, according to an article in the January issue of Popular Mechanics, and each is designed for a particular application.

Use nails that are too small and the joint won't hold; too big and the wood splits.

Among the considerations when picking nails are the material they are made from, their length and gauge (diameter of shank), surface finish and the type of head, shank and point.

Most nails are made of mild steel. Aluminum, stainless steel, copper and bronze also are used. Nail length is designated by "penny" size, symbolized by the letter "d," which derives from the denarius, a Roman coin. As the penny size increases, so does shank diameter.

Most nails have a bright, uncoated surface; others are coated for better grip or to resist corrosion.

The designed purpose of a nail is often indicated by its head. Large, flat-headed nails distribute pressure over a wider area and hold best; finishing and casing nails and brads have small, round heads for setting below the wood surface.

For extra holding power, pick nails with shanks with spiral grooves, flutes, annular rings or barbs. When possible, nail through the thicker piece of wood toward the thinner piece. As a rule, two-thirds of the nail's length should be driven into the thicker wood.

Among the different kinds of nails:

Common nails are the most widely used, ranging from 1/4-inch to 4 inches. Use them for general construction and carpentry.

The next most common group includes brads and finishing nails. Brads are designed by length and gauge number, with the highest number representing the thinnest shank. Use finishing nails to install door and window trim, moldings and for lightweight construction.

Others in the lightweight category include wire nails and panel nails. Wire nails are superthin, flat-headed and used to tack thin materials other nails would spill. Wall panel nails have small, flat heads and annular-ringed shanks.

Aluminum nails have the advantage of being lightweight, rust and stain resistant.

Some nails are made for specific applications. Shake nails are used for installing wood shingles and hand-split shanks.

The drywall nail used to install gypsum wallboard and the nail used to build crates and boxes both have long diamond points, small-diameter shanks and a resin coating. Drywall nails have large flat heads to prevent pulling through.

Underlying nails with medium-sized flat heads, long diamond points and annular-ringed shanks are used to anchor plywood subflooring and other underlayment sheet material.

The scaffold nail or duplex head nail is designed for temporary construction such as scaffolding and concrete forms. These "removable" nails can be driven tight, then yanked by pulling on the protruding upper head.

Cut nails, with rectangular cross-section and tapering flank, are used to attach wood to concrete blocks and to fasten hardwood strip-flooring to the subfloor.

Concrete screw nails are made from square tempered steel stock and turn as they are hammered.

Los Angeles Times' food staff picks the year's best recipes

By BETSY BAISLEY
Los Angeles Times

It was not easy. Taste is so subjective that getting 10 people to agree on exactly how good a specific dish is becomes almost impossible. However, the Los Angeles Times' food staff once again has managed to remember, discuss, argue about and finally decide on the best recipes we published during the past year.

Our personal tastes are diverse. Some love sweets, others are relatively indifferent to them. Foods that are rich and most un-fashionably fattening have tremendous appeal to some, while others on this staff would avoid them at all costs. In other words, we are just like you. We have certain foods we like, others we do not. Thus, it is hardly surprising that in compiling our list of the best, there was no one recipe that made everyone's list. But the following recipes, very eclectic group, earned the most votes.

FAIRY PIE

- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 2 dash salt
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1/4 cup goat milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup chopped walnuts, optional
- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen raspberries, packed in sugar syrup
- 1/4 teaspoon cornstarch, or less
- 2 Whipped Cream
- 2 Cream together butter and 1/2 cup sugar. Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks with goat milk. Add flour and egg mixtures alternately to creamed mixture. Four batter into 2 greased 8-inch round layer cake pans. Spread evenly to edge, forming thin layer. Beat egg whites until stiff—gradually beat in 1/4 cup sugar. Blend in vanilla. Add nuts.
- 2 Spread meringue on batter in layer pans to within 1-inch of edge. Bake at 350 degrees 25 minutes or until wood pick comes out clean. Remove from oven. Cool on racks 10 minutes, then remove from pans and cool completely. Drain syrup from raspberries into saucepan. Blend in cornstarch. Cook and stir until thickened. Add berries.
- 2 To serve, cut each layer into 4 to 6 wedges. Top each wedge with spoonful of whipped cream. Drizzle some of raspberry sauce over cream. Makes 8 to 12 servings.

385 NORTH'S TAKATI OF BEEF (Marinated Beef)

- 1/4 teaspoon grated ginger root
- 1/4 teaspoon grated garlic
- 1/2 cup dark soy sauce
- 1 bunch chlo (ooba leaf), julienned
- 1/2 cup lime juice
- 14 ounces culotte or New York steak
- 2 pappeps
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- Green onions, sliced
- Combine ginger, garlic, soy sauce, thiso and lime juice in flat glass dish just large enough to hold steak. Set aside. Trim steak to remove excess fat and season to taste with pepper on top and bottom. Sear beef quickly in hot peanut oil on all sides over high heat. Cook to rare stage only.
- 2 Place in dish with marinade and turn to coat well. Refrigerate, turning occasionally, at least 1 hour. Steak should be very cold and firm before slicing.
- 2 To serve, thinly slice diagonally. Sprinkle steak slices with thinly sliced green onions cut on bias and spoon small amount of marinade over, or serve on bed of julienned carrots, Chinese pea pods, or other thinly-sliced vegetable, if desired. Makes 4 servings.
- Note: Chlo or ooba leaf is available in Oriental markets.

CAMELIONS' CREME BRULEE

- 7 egg yolks
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 3 cups whipping cream
- Dash salt
- 1 vanilla bean
- 1/2 to 1 cup brown sugar, packed
- Mix egg yolks and granulated sugar. Place cream and salt in heavy saucepan. Slice vanilla bean lengthwise, scrape out inner portion and add scrapings to cream mixture. Heat to scalding. Gradually beat cream into egg-yolk mixture, then strain through fine sieve. Pour into 6 to 8 (4-ounce) souffle cups. Cover with foil, place in pan of hot water and bake at 350 degrees 30 to 40 minutes, until set.

Remove foil. Top each with 2 tablespoons brown sugar and place under broiler until sugar is melted and caramelized. If desired, drizzle brown sugar slightly by spreading on this layer on platter, then grind to consistency of powdered sugar in food processor. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

FROM SCRATCH TUNNEL OF FUDGE CAKE

- 1 1/4 cups butter or margarine, softened
- 1 1/4 cups granulated sugar
- 6 eggs
- 2 cups powdered sugar
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1/4 cup cocoa powder
- 2 cups chopped walnuts
- Glaze
- Beat butter and granulated sugar in large bowl until light and fluffy. Add eggs, 1 at a time, beating well after each addition. Gradually add flour, sifted, ordinary doneness test cannot be used. Accurate oven temperature and baking time are critical. In altitudes above 3,500 feet, increase flour to 2 1/4 cups plus 3 tablespoons.
- Glaze
- 1/4 cup powdered sugar
- 1/4 cup cocoa powder
- 1 1/2 to 2 tablespoons milk
- Combine sugar, cocoa and milk in small bowl until well blended. Store tightly covered.

BASEBALL BARS

- 2-3 cup butter
- 1 cup brown sugar, packed
- 1/4 cup light corn syrup
- 1/4 cup chunky peanut butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 4 cups quick oats

ALICE AQUINO'S CHICKEN RELLENO

- 1 (3-pound) chicken
- Salt, pepper
- 1 to 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3/4 pound ground pork
- 1/4 pound lean bacon, chopped or coarsely ground

BOUDIN BLANC AUX HERBES ST. GERMAIN

- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1/4 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 bunch tarragon
- 1/2 bunch basil
- 1/2 bunch parsley
- 2 green onions, chopped
- 2 shallots
- 14 ounces lean veal, trimmed
- 14 ounces lean chicken meat, trimmed
- 14 ounces pork fatback or veal fat
- 1 pound ice cubes with a little cold water
- 1 1/2 tablespoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1/4 teaspoon ground mace or nutmeg
- Pork or sheep casings
- Butter
- Bring milk and cream to boil. Add tarragon, basil, parsley, green onions and shallots. Let boil 1 minute. Drain. Chill herbs and

BOUDIN BLANC AUX HERBES ST. GERMAIN

- 6 ounces cheddar cheese, shredded
- 1/4 cup raisins
- 3 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
- 1 egg
- 1 carrot, cooked and cut julienne
- or 1/4 cup green peas, cooked
- 8 ounces cooked ham, cut julienne
- 2 Spanish chorizo de Bilbao or pepperoni, about 6 ounces
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, cut in halves
- 1 to 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- Bone chicken for stuffing, leaving wing and drumstick bones intact
- Season chicken to taste with salt and pepper, soy sauce and lemon juice. Let stand at least 30 minutes. (Refrigerate if marinating longer than this time.)
- Combine ground pork, bacon, cheese, raisins, pickle relish and egg. Mix well. Place chicken on board, skin side down. Place half of stuffing in boned cavity of chicken. Arrange carrot and ham strips, sausage and egg halves in rows on top of pork mixture. Cover with remaining mixture, stuffing pointed thighs.
- Bring 2 cut sides of chicken together. Fasten edges at 1-inch intervals with wood picks or skewers, then lace with string. Turn bird over and mold it back to resemble original shape. Tie legs with string and tuck wings akimbo. Place on rack in roasting pan and cook with foil. Bake at 350 degrees 30 minutes and remove foil. Continue baking additional 1 hour or more until golden brown, basting with melted butter. Collect drippings. If desired, and make flour gravy.
- Remove skewers and string. Place on serving platter and garnish as desired with vegetables or fruit. Carve into 1/2-inch-thick diagonal or crosswise slices, starting from wing sides. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

BOUDIN BLANC AUX HERBES ST. GERMAIN

- 1 (12-ounce) package semisweet chocolate pieces
- 1 (12-ounce) package butterscotch pieces
- 2-3 cup chunky peanut butter
- 1 cup chopped unsalted nuts
- 1/2 cup chocolate and butterscotch pieces, peanut butter and nuts in saucepan. Heat over medium heat, stirring until blended.

BEF PAPIRKASH FOR TWO

- 1/4 pound beef sirloin
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 teaspoon butter or margarine
- 2 cups beef stock
- 2 tablespoons sweet Hungarian paprika
- 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
- Salt, pepper
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1/4 teaspoon lemon juice
- Cooked noodles for 4
- Chill beef until very firm but not frozen. Slice in thin strips about 3 inches long. Brown in 1 tablespoon oil in heavy skillet. Remove beef from skillet and set aside.
- Pour off excess fat. Sauté onion and garlic in same skillet in remaining 1 tablespoon oil and butter until tender, but not browned. Return beef to pan and add beef stock, paprika and mushrooms. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Bring mixture to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer until meat is tender, 45 minutes to 1 hour.
- When beef is tender, stir flour into sour cream and add to beef mixture. Bring to boil and cook, stirring, until thickened. Stir in lemon juice. Serve at once over hot noodles. Makes 2 servings.

- 1/4 teaspoon lemon juice
- Cooked noodles for 4
- Chill beef until very firm but not frozen. Slice in thin strips about 3 inches long. Brown in 1 tablespoon oil in heavy skillet. Remove beef from skillet and set aside.
- Pour off excess fat. Sauté onion and garlic in same skillet in remaining 1 tablespoon oil and butter until tender, but not browned. Return beef to pan and add beef stock, paprika and mushrooms. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Bring mixture to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer until meat is tender, 45 minutes to 1 hour.
- When beef is tender, stir flour into sour cream and add to beef mixture. Bring to boil and cook, stirring, until thickened. Stir in lemon juice. Serve at once over hot noodles. Makes 2 servings.

TOPPING

- 6 ounces cheddar cheese, shredded
- 1/4 cup raisins
- 3 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
- 1 egg
- 1 carrot, cooked and cut julienne
- or 1/4 cup green peas, cooked
- 8 ounces cooked ham, cut julienne
- 2 Spanish chorizo de Bilbao or pepperoni, about 6 ounces
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, cut in halves
- 1 to 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- Bone chicken for stuffing, leaving wing and drumstick bones intact
- Season chicken to taste with salt and pepper, soy sauce and lemon juice. Let stand at least 30 minutes. (Refrigerate if marinating longer than this time.)
- Combine ground pork, bacon, cheese, raisins, pickle relish and egg. Mix well. Place chicken on board, skin side down. Place half of stuffing in boned cavity of chicken. Arrange carrot and ham strips, sausage and egg halves in rows on top of pork mixture. Cover with remaining mixture, stuffing pointed thighs.
- Bring 2 cut sides of chicken together. Fasten edges at 1-inch intervals with wood picks or skewers, then lace with string. Turn bird over and mold it back to resemble original shape. Tie legs with string and tuck wings akimbo. Place on rack in roasting pan and cook with foil. Bake at 350 degrees 30 minutes and remove foil. Continue baking additional 1 hour or more until golden brown, basting with melted butter. Collect drippings. If desired, and make flour gravy.
- Remove skewers and string. Place on serving platter and garnish as desired with vegetables or fruit. Carve into 1/2-inch-thick diagonal or crosswise slices, starting from wing sides. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

TOPPING

- 1 (12-ounce) package semisweet chocolate pieces
- 1 (12-ounce) package butterscotch pieces
- 2-3 cup chunky peanut butter
- 1 cup chopped unsalted nuts
- 1/2 cup chocolate and butterscotch pieces, peanut butter and nuts in saucepan. Heat over medium heat, stirring until blended.

TOPPING

- 1/4 pound beef sirloin
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/4 teaspoon butter or margarine
- 2 cups beef stock
- 2 tablespoons sweet Hungarian paprika
- 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
- Salt, pepper
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1/4 teaspoon lemon juice
- Cooked noodles for 4

Disappearance is open-and-shut case

DEAR READERS: How safe is your child in his or her crib? Well, listen to this:

A 68-year-old California woman was taking her usual early morning walk when she spotted a tiny toddler in his crib crawling, walking and toddling merrily on his way down the sidewalk! She immediately called the police who came at once and took the bright-eyed, happy little adventurer into custody.

It seems that Sean, a 20-month-old toddler, simply crawled over the side of his crib and escaped to the outside through the doggie door, wandering a half-mile from home. When his parents awoke at 7:30 a.m. to discover that their child was not in his crib, they searched the house and the manufacturers of baby furniture will build a better crib from which Houdini himself could not escape.

The parents never dreamed this could happen to them, but it did. Could it happen to your home? By the way, they have not owned a pet in some time, and you can be sure that the doggie door has been nailed shut!

Now that nature has built more acrobatic and resourceful children, perhaps the manufacturers of baby furniture will build a better crib from which Houdini himself could not escape.

DEAR ABBY: On Saturday afternoon I drive three women from my apartment building to the market for groceries. A few months ago another neighbor, Mae (fake name), asked if she could join us. We all agreed.

Mae has become a terrible pain in the neck. She has turned our weekly trips into thoroughly disagreeable experiences. She talks, talks and talks until we are ready to scream. She has a loud, harsh voice, and interrupts constantly to turn the conversation back to some uncles or personal anecdotes. On top of that, she's one of the dullest people I've ever known.

I've heard that she has complained

Letters of thanks

Young thanks those who helped daughter

The old saying if someone does something wrong it is always on the front page and if you try to thank someone for being so kind and thoughtful you have a hard time finding it in the ad section, even though you paid to have it put in the paper.

There should be a section in your paper for "thank you" notes except in the want ad section.

The wonderful people like the Denis Taylor family, the First Baptist Church, the Soroptimist Club, the staff, students and faculty of CSI, and the Rupert Christian Church should be recognized for the wonderful things they have done for my daughter Denise Young Flores, and I'm sure very few of them found my thank you note in the Saturday (Dec. 27) paper.

Scout troop fund raiser brought in over $1,500

The Elk's Boy Scout Troop No. 88, the troop committee and the Ladies of the Elks wish to thank Buttreys store and the Twin Falls community for support on the coupon fund raiser during November. It was an outstanding success raising over $1,500.

It's nice to see "big corporations" establish programs which help to raise funds for our community's youth programs. We encourage the community to patronize Buttreys to aid in other worthwhile projects.

Korsen family enjoyed KLIX holiday display

I'd like to express my gratitude for the absolutely beautiful arrangement of lights that Charlie Tuma's KLIX Radio Station displayed this year. I'm sure that a great deal of time and expense is involved in a spectacular display of this kind and I and my children thank Mr. Tuma for the feeling and spirit of the holidays his site brought to us this year as we returned late Christmas Eve to Twin Falls from the Burley area.

We hope, for the beauty of our community, that you can do this for the young generations to come every year.

Dear Abby

to other tenants that we rush her too much and don't take her to the markets she (and only she) prefers to patronize. She's a born complainer, although she tries to be a good neighbor and is basically a nice person.

We've tried all sorts of subtle suggestions to let her know that we don't enjoy her dominating the conversation, but they've gone over her head. Is there any gentle way to solve this dilemma without hurting her feelings?

— A MAN IN HOLLYWOOD

DEAR MAN: You are not going to change Mae, so either accept her as she is, or tell her she may no longer come along grocery shopping, and tell her why. It's just that simple.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and father were divorced 15 years ago. My father has remarried, my mother has not. I lived with my mother after the divorce, but visited my father, and we remained close.

I have been married for four years. My mother thinks that when I invite her to a party at my home, I should let her know if my father was also invited as she does not want to attend if he will be there. She attended my wedding with no complaints, knowing that my father was going to be there.

It's my house, and my party, and I don't feel I'm obligated to tell my mother who else is coming. Don't you agree?

— THEIR SON
DEAR SON: You are not "obligated" to tell your mother who's coming, but since she asks if her ex-husband (whom she clearly does not want to see) will be there, as a kind and considerate host, you should tell her.

Humorist will address club

BURLEY — Joan Johanson, a professional speaker and humorist from Iowa, will address the Burley-Rupert Knife and Fork Club dinner meeting Saturday at the Burley Inn.

Her topic will be "Feeling Good." Johanson is the first woman ever to win the Toastmasters International humorous speech contest. She says her speech contains "70 percent humor and 30 percent message." The formula appears to be popular, keeping her on the road most of the year entertaining groups all over America.

A member of the National Speakers Association, Johanson has worked as an office manager and bookkeeper for an Iowa telephone company. She's been a Red Cross volunteer, served as an emergency medical technician on her local volunteer ambulance and has been active in politics.

But she's happiest with a microphone in her hand, making people laugh, according to Ler Kunsau, president of the Burley-Rupert club.

George Burns said "Someone who makes you laugh is a comedian. Someone who makes you think and then laugh is a humorist." Johanson is in the second category, Kunsau says.

Golden Eagles looking to realize some goals this month

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

COEUR D'ALENE — Although the basketball season will last through the end of February, the College of Southern Idaho men can wind up all their goals by Jan. 31.

In the next three weeks, Coach Fred Trenkle and his Golden Eagles will be on the road for three major games and home for two. If the undefeated fifth-ranked Eagles hit Jan. 26 still unbeaten, the best designation for the Region 18 tournament will be in hand and that, historically, has meant a trip to the national tournament (without a bi-regional playoff).

Whether CSI can accomplish that begins unfolding Friday night when the Eagles (men and women) invade North Idaho College for games scheduled to 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. MST, respectively. Coach Fred Trenkle has won just once there in four years — the second game last year.

This is a little different North Idaho team than the Eagles have been lately — and most of that difference is found at center.

"Sven Meyer (the Cardinals' 7-foot West German) finally has moved on," said Trenkle with a sigh of

CSI, 14-0, ranked fifth in junior college poll

By The Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball team remained ranked fifth in this week's National Junior College Athletic Association poll.

CSI, 14-0, kept the fifth position

with 106 points, seven points behind fourth-rated Allegany of Maryland, 14-1.

The Eagles' Region 18 opponent Dixie College, now 16-0, remained in third place.

CSI has been ranked fifth for the past four weeks.

San Jacinto of Texas kept its

Going into the weekend, CSI is averaging 110.2 points per outing while allowing 64.8. North Idaho is 84.5 offensively and 78.8 on the other end in compiling an 8-4 overall mark.

CSI has several category leaders in the regional statistics with sophomore Erick Newman tops in offensive rebounds — at 6.9 — and third overall with 9.8. Joe Johnson is tops in blocked shots at 2.4 and steals with 2.9 and fifth in offensive rebounds with 3.3. Johnson and Newman ranked eighth and ninth in scoring with 18.8 apiece (not counting last weekend's games). Newman is 63 and Eduardo Dzwiniak is 61 percent in field goal shooting, making them second and third, while Johnson, at 58.2, is 10th.

Freshman Mauro-Gomes is the best three-point shooter, hitting 23 of 32 for 71.9 percent and his 80-percent free throw mark is good enough for fourth. Johnson is 10th in free throws at 73.3.

CSI really rises to the top in the matter of steals. Johnson and Keith Jackson rank one-two with 2.9 and 2.8, respectively, with Dale Karst Christmas while we've played two fourth at 2.3 and Dzwiniak eighth at 1.9.

relief. "They can put a 7-footer (the Netherlands' Johan Reinaida) in the middle, but he isn't nearly as mobile or the scorer that Meyer was and I think with our quickness, we can defend the middle against North Idaho now."

The Cardinals are paced by their two best-known returnees, 5-7 guard Kenny Goodlow and 6-7 forward Gabe Parrizla, an Argentinian. Goodlow possesses "excellent quickness and was a major problem for CSI to defend here last year."

The Tacoma, Wash., product currently is Region 18's leading scorer with a 22.8-point average and that swells to 27.5 in region-only games. Parrizla ranks 10th on both counts with an 18.6 average. North Idaho has shown a liking for the three-point goal and no one likes it better than Goodlow. He's attempted 131 of them and made 55. Parrizla, who tops the region with a 68.7 percent free throw shooting percentage, has shot 41, making 13. Goodlow also leads the region with 5.8 assists per game. Parrizla, ranked second with 11.7 per game average, is the only Cardinal to show up in total rebounding, although Johan Reinaida is 10th in defensive takedowns with 4.2.

But this game takes on a little added emphasis under the new method the region is using to fill the four-team regional tournament. It will be

Currently CSI, Dixie and Snow are running 3-0 in region games with North Idaho at 2-2, Utah Tech 1-1, Treasure Valley 1-2, Colorado Northwest 1-3, Kicks 0-2 and Eastern Utah 0-4.

A win Friday by the Eagles, currently 14-0, would give the Eagles a three-game lead in the last column and very difficult to overtake. But the same remains true two weeks later with a trip to Snow and Dixie. Road victories basically are worth one and one-half more than previously.

"We feel we have the depth, the defense and the rebounding strength to win at North Idaho," Trenkle said. "We have to keep someone in the face of Parrizla and Goodlow because they are good players and they can shoot. I suspect we have better quickness in the other spots."

"But I never go into North Idaho overconfident," Trenkle added with a smile. "One win on that floor in four years is enough of a warning for me."

"But if the signs are right, we're hitting there at the right time," Trenkle said. "This will be North Idaho's first game since before Christmas while we've played two. They aren't in school yet so their-

Bobcats overcome tough Buhl squad in final 2 minutes

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

BUHL — The highly favored Burley girls broke away from a tie at 48 with just over two minutes remaining here Tuesday night, then held off a determined Buhl five for a 56-50 win which virtually wrapped up the South-Central Conference girls' basketball championship for the Bobcats.

Hettie DeJong, who tied for scoring honors with Buhl's Nancy Stevens at 24 points, hit a turnaround jumper for Burley's go-ahead points, but it was three consecutive points from senior forward Cindy Williams over a 23-second span that clinched the victory.

Burley, a 24-point winner on the Bobcat court in the first meeting, never had it easy in this one trailing until the last half-minute of the opening period of play. A DeJong jumper from 18 feet left the Bobcats up 14-12 at the first break.

half. Tara Jagels knocked one in for the homesteaders at the 12-second mark cutting the visitor's advantage back to a pair at intermission.

Burley nursed leads ranging from two to seven points into the final eight minutes before Stevens' period-opening follow-up shot got Buhl even at 42. Cold shooting from the foul line and a rash of turnovers kept either from gaining the upper hand and when Lynette Easton capped one from in the paint with 2:35 left, Buhl was even for the last time at 48.

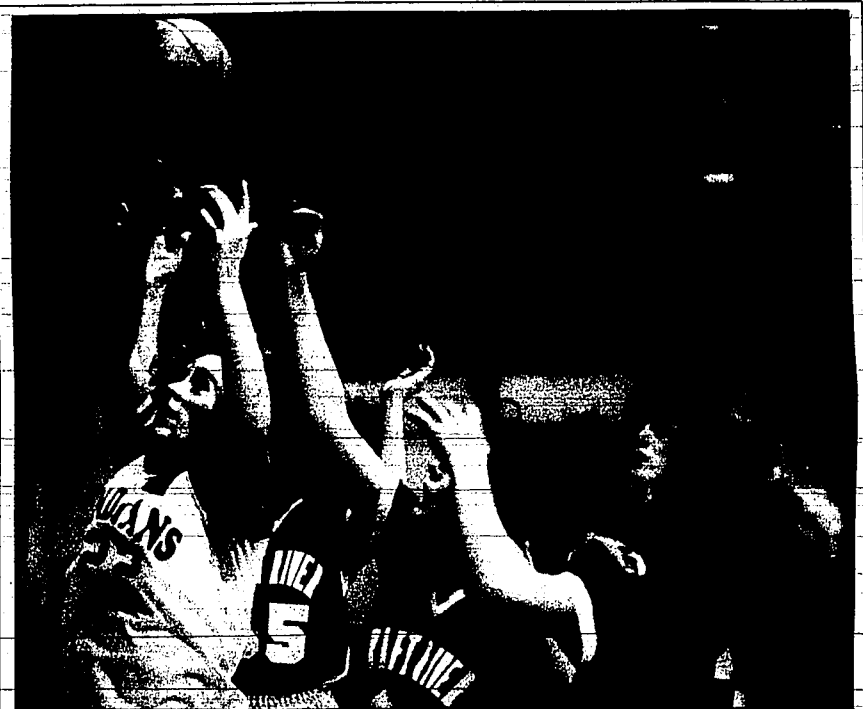

"It was disappointing," said Buhl Coach Janet Smutey. "But I thought that for the most part the girls played well. We got hurt four different times with long rebounds they missed and then scored on. We've got some things to work on."

To Burley Coach Gordon Kerbs, the closer-than-expected win sounded a warning.

"Execution-wise, that's the worst we've played. Maybe it was the layoff," he said. "Saturday (Highland) is a big game for us, but we have another one with Mountain Home the night before that."

The Burley junior varsity captured the first win in 46-42 in overtime. After a six-day off layoff Buhl will

Erickson reportedly tapped WSU coach

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Wyoming's Dennis Erickson will be Washington State University's next head football coach, several sources said Tuesday.

The choice of Erickson for the post left by Jim Walden last month was first reported by the Idahoan in Moscow, and the Seattle Times Participants in the NCAA convention in San Diego, who refused to be identified by name, later confirmed it for The Associated Press.

WSU scheduled a news conference this morning on campus to introduce its coach, said Bill Gammie, a member of a committee established to select the new coach.

Gammie refused to say who'd been named to replace Walden, who resigned Dec. 15 after nine years as head coach to take the state's coaching position at Iowa State.

WSU Athletic Director Dick Young was in San Diego Tuesday for the NCAA convention, and was to return to Pullman Tuesday night, Gammie said. Efforts to reach Young at his San Diego hotel were unsuccessful.

Erickson signed a four-year contract with a base salary of $60,000 plus another $20,000 guaranteed from radio and television shows when he went to Wyoming in December 1985. The football season just concluded was his first at Wyoming.

While with the University of Idaho for four seasons, his salary was $49,000.

The campuses of WSU and Idaho are eight miles apart.

Erickson has had success turning around run-oriented teams at Idaho and Wyoming by using a passing game, dubbed "Erickson's Air Express."

He dumped the veer offense when he was named coach at Idaho prior to the 1982 season, and led the Vandals to a 24-1 record that year and into the Division I-AA playoffs.

Idaho won the Big Sky Conference crown in 1985 and earned a playoff berth again, finishing 9-3.

Erickson's four-year record at Idaho was 32-15.

At Wyoming, Erickson scrapped the wishbone in favor of his more daring passing game. The Cowboys went from 3-8 in 1985 to 6-5 last season.

Reached Tuesday morning in San Diego, Erickson told the Idahoan that he stood by his previous statement that he was not interested in the position.

"That's the same way I feel now," Erickson said.

Indians hold off late Raft River rally

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Somehow, it was typical.

"The steady nine-point lead the Shoshone Indian girls held over the Raft River Trojans throughout most of the their Magle Valley Conference contest Tuesday night didn't seem quite right. The margin should be closer.

So it became that way.

Holding a 45-39 lead going into the fourth quarter, the Indians staved off a late Trojan rally to win, finally, 51-49.

The win capped Shoshone's conference record to 7-1 (12-3 overall) and dropped Raft River to 5-2 (9-2). The loss dropped the Trojans into a second-place tie with Oakley and the win gave the Indians the inside track to the MVC title and the top seed in the postseason District-4 Class A-4 Shoshone Subdistrict tournament.

In their previous matchup in Malta on Dec. 5, the Trojans slipped past the Indians 47-40, setting up Tuesday's crucial confrontation.

While the Indians had the lead for most of the Tuesday game, it became evident right from the beginning of the final quarter that the Trojans were going to inch up on the Class A-4 defending state champion Indians — or more accurately, Raft River center Melodie Jones drove the Trojans up even with the Indians.

Jones scored seven of her total 19 points in the fourth quarter, including four rebounds of offensive rebounds to open the quarter. Shoshone tried to offset Jones' scoring spree with a quick passing offense, intending to get the ball to Shoshone's leading scorer Fatti O'Maley.

But "we didn't take care of the ball," said Shoshone Coach Ed Sandy. "We didn't play like we should have and almost threw the game away."

One strategy for the Indians to regain control of the game was to tighten their 1-2 zone defense, giving Jones little room to score her inside buckets. But Trojan point-guard Mamie Williams drilled two shots from the free-throw line and Raft River had closed to within three at 47-44 with just over three minutes left in the game.

After O'Maley tipped in a rebound to put the Indians back ahead by five, Jones drew a foul on a fast-break basket and hit her free throw to complete the three-point play, and the scoreboard now showed 49-47 Shoshone.

The Indians thought they had put the game away when Nancy Helsley sank two free throws following Jones' three-point play, giving the Indians a four-point lead. But Raft River's Robin Holtman nalled a bucket from the outside and after O'Maley lost the ball out-of-bounds on the ensuing play, the Trojans had a chance to tie. But O'Maley redeemed herself by stealing the inbound pass and insuring the Shoshone win.

"I think it shows the character of our team that we were able to come back from our mistakes to make the big play," said Sandy. "Fatti (O'Maley) made the big mistake but came back with the big steal. We did what we had to do."

Shoshone's Shelly Rowlan rises in the air to score a lay-up in front of three Raft River defenders during third quarter action.

Comments sought on controlled hunt permits

JEROME — There will be an open house at the Jerome regional office of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game office today from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. to obtain public comments on the proposed regulations for issuance of landowner permits in controlled hunts, spring turkey seasons and trophy hunts in region 4.

A new law passed last year allows the Department of Fish and Game to issue controlled hunt permits to landowners within the boundaries of the hunt. The department is presently developing the criteria of eligibility for these permits and would like to obtain the public views before final adoption of the regulations.

The current proposal states that a person must have at least 160 contiguous acres of land within the designated controlled hunt unit; they must be the owner or lessee plus immediate family member who appears on a deed or lease agreement to qualify and a lessee or immediate family member must have a notarized signature of the owner on their application for a controlled permit to show they are eligible.

An additional 10 percent of the number of controlled hunt permits may be issued as landowner preference permits.

Where the number of landowner preference applicants exceeds the number of landowner preference permits in a unit, successful applicants will be determined by a drawing.

The restriction on applying for other trophy species such as sheep, mountain goat and moose would not apply to landowner permits and they also could put in for deer, antelope or elk.

Landowner permits sold to non-residents shall not be considered part of the non-resident quota. Landowners would only be eligible to hunt on their own land and not any state or federal lands within controlled hunt unit.

Golden Eagles looking to realize some goals this month

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

COEUR D'ALENE — Although the basketball season will last through the end of February, the College of Southern Idaho men can wind up all their goals by Jan. 31.

In the next three weeks, Coach Fred Trenkle and his Golden Eagles will be on the road for three major games and home for two. If the undefeated and fifth-ranked Eagles hit Jan. 26 still unbeaten, the best destination for the Region 18 tournament will be in hand and that, historically, has meant a trip to a national tournament (without a B1 regional playoff).

Whether CSI can accomplish that begins unfolding Friday night when the Eagles (men and women) invade North Idaho College for games scheduled at 8:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. MST, respectively. Coach Fred Trenkle has won just once there in four years — the second game last year.

This is a little different North Idaho team than the Eagles have seen lately — and most of that difference is found at center.

"Sven Meyer, the Cardinals' 7-foot West German, finally has moved on," said Trenkle with a sigh of relief. "They can put a 7-footer (the Netherlands' Johan Reinalds) in the middle but he isn't nearly as mobile or the scorer that Meyer was and I think with our quickness, we can defend the middle against North Idaho now."

The Cardinals are paced by their two best-known returnees, 5-7 guard Kenny Goodlow and 6-7 forward Gabe Parrizia, an Argentinian. Goodlow possesses excellent quickness and was a major problem for CSI to defend here last year.

The Tacoma, Wash., product currently is Region 18's leading scorer with a 22.6-point average and that swells to 27.5 in region-only games. Parrizia ranks 10th on both counts

CSI, 14-0, ranked fifth in junior college poll

By The Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — The College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball team remained ranked fifth in this week's National Junior College Athletic Association poll.

CSI, 14-0, kept the fifth position

with 106 points, seven points behind fourth-rated Allegany of Maryland, 14-1.

The Eagles' Region 18 opponent Dixie College, now 18-0, remained in third place.

CSI has been ranked fifth for the past four weeks.

San Jacinto of Texas kept its season-long hold on first place with 238 points and 22 of 23 first-place votes.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The top 25 teams in the National Junior College Athletic Association basketball poll for this week were:

Rank	Team	Points	First Place Votes
1	San Jacinto, Tex.	238	22
2	Allegany, Md.	141	1
3	Dixie College, W. Va.	106	0
4	CSI, Colo.	106	7
5	San Jacinto, Tex.	106	0

Rank	Team	Points	First Place Votes
6	San Jacinto, Tex.	106	0

8	San Jacinto, Tex.	106	0
9	San Jacinto, Tex.	106	0
10	San Jacinto, Tex.	106	0

crowd may be a little smaller and quieter."

Going into the weekend, CSI is averaging 110.5 points per outing while allowing 64.8. North Idaho is 84.5 offensively and 78.6 on the other end in compiling an 8-4 overall mark.

CSI has several category leaders in the regional statistics with sophomore Erick Newman tops in offensive rebounds at 6.3 and third overall with 9.8. Joe Johnson is tops in blocked shots at 2.4 and steals with 2.3 and fifth in offensive rebounds with 5.5. Johnson and Newman ranked eighth and ninth in scoring with 18.8 apiece (not counting last weekend's game). Newman is 63 and Eduardo Drewniak is 61 percent in field goal shooting, making them second and third, while Johnson, at 53.2, is 10th.

Freshman Mauro Gomes is the best three-point shooter, hitting 23 of 71.9 percent and his 80-percent free throw mark is good enough for fourth. Johnson is 10th in free throws at 75.3.

CSI really rises to the top in the matter of steals. Johnson and Keith Jackson rank one-two with 2.8 and 2.6, respectively, with Dale Karst Christmas while we've played two fourth at 2.3 and Drewniak eighth at 1.9.

with an 18.6 average. North Idaho has shown a liking for the three-point goal and no one likes it better than Goodlow. He's attempted 131 of them and made 55. Parrizia, who tops the region with a 86.7 percent free throw shooting percentage, has shot 41, making 15. Goodlow also leads the region with 5.8 assists per game. Parrizia, ranked second with 11.7 per game average, is the only Cardinal to show up in total rebounding, although Johan Reinalds is 10th in defensive takedowns with 4.2.

But this game takes on a little added emphasis under the new method the region is using to fill the four-team regional tournament. It will be the best four records regardless of geographical position with the site being the highest-ranked northern division team.

Currently CSI, Dixie and Snow are running 3-0 in region games with North Idaho at 2-2, Utah Tech 1-1, Treasure Valley 1-2, Colorado-Northern 1-3, Ricks 0-2 and Eastern Utah 0-4.

A win Friday by the Eagles, currently 14-0, would give the Eagles a third very difficult to overtake. But the same remains true two weeks later with a trip to Snow and Dixie. Road victories basically are worth one and one-half more than previous.

"We feel we have the depth, the defense and the rebounding strength to win at North Idaho," Trenkle said. "We have to keep someone in the face of Parrizia and Goodlow because they are good players and they can shoot. I suspect we have better quickness in the other spots."

"But I never go into North Idaho overconfident," Trenkle added with a smile. "One win on that floor in four years is enough of a warning for me."

"But if the signs are right, we're hitting there at the right time," Trenkle said. "This will be North Idaho's first game since before Christmas while we've played two that they aren't in school yet so their 1.9.

Bobcats overcome tough Buhl squad in final 2 minutes

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

BUHL — The highly favored Burley girls broke away from a tie at 48 with just over two minutes remaining here Tuesday night, then held off a determined Buhl five for a 56-50 win which virtually wrapped up the South-Central Conference girls' basketball championship for the Bobcats.

Hettie DeJong, who tied for scoring honors with Buhl's Nancy Stevens at 24 points, hit a turnaround jumper for Burley's go-ahead points, but it was three consecutive points from senior forward Cindy Williams over a 23-second span that clinched the victory.

After hitting the back end of the bonus, Williams picked up a loose ball on the Buhl end and drove the length of the floor for the clincher.

Burley, a 24-point winner on the Bobcat court in the first meeting, never had it easy in this one trailing until the last half-minute of the opening period of play. A DeJong jumper from 18 feet left the Bobcats up 14-12 at the first break.

Following a third tie at 16, DeJong, Donna Allen and Williams scored in rapid succession for a 22-18 bulge, Burley's largest of the first half. Tara Jagels knocked one in for the homesteaders at the 12-second mark cutting the visitor's advantage back to a pair at intermission.

Burley nursed leads ranging from two to seven points into the final eight minutes before Shogen's period-opening follow-up shot got Buhl even at 42. Cold shooting from the foul line and a rash of turnovers kept either from gaining the upper hand and when Lynette Easton canned one from in the paint with 2:25 left, Buhl was even for the last time at 48.

"It was disappointing," said Buhl Coach Janet Smuty. "But I thought that for the most part the girls played well. We got hurt four different times with long rebounds they missed and then scored on. We've got some things to work on."

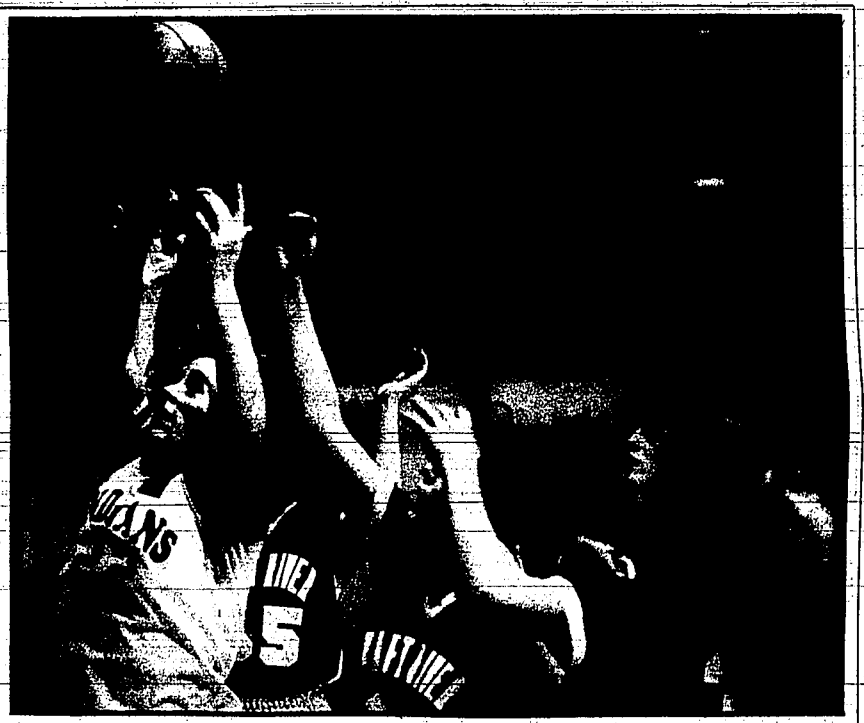

To Burley Coach Gordon Kerbs, the closer-than-expected win sounded a warning.

"Execution-wise, that's the worst we've played. Maybe it was the layoff," he said. "Saturday (Highland) is a big game for us, but we have another one with Mountain Home the night before that."

The Burley junior varsity captured the first game 46-42 in overtime.

Erickson reportedly tapped WSU coach

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Wyoming's Dennis Erickson will be Washington State University's next head football coach, several sources said Tuesday.

The choice of Erickson for the post left by Jim Walden last month was first reported by the Idahoan in Moscow, and the Seattle Times Participants at the NCAA convention in San Diego, who refused to be identified by name, later confirmed it for The Associated Press.

WSU scheduled a news conference this morning on campus to introduce its coach, said Bill Gammie, a member of a committee established to select the new coach.

Gammie refused to say who'd been named to replace Walden, who resigned Dec. 15 after nine years at head coach to take the head-coaching position at Iowa State.

WSU Athletic Director Dick Young was in San Diego Tuesday for the NCAA convention, and came to Pullman Tuesday night, Gammie said.

Efforts to reach Young at his San Diego hotel were unsuccessful.

Erickson signed a four-year contract with a base salary of $40,000 plus another $20,000 guaranteed from radio and television shows when he went to Wyoming in December 1985. The football season just concluded was his first at Wyoming.

While with the University of Idaho over four seasons, his salary was $48,000.

The campuses of WSU and Idaho are eight miles apart.

passing game, dubbed "Erickson's Air Express."

He dumped the veer offense when he was named coach at Idaho prior to the 1982 season, and led the Vandals to a 9-4 record that year and into the Division I-AA playoffs.

Idaho won the Big Sky Conference crown in 1983 and earned a playoff berth again, finishing 9-3.

Erickson's four-year record at Idaho was 32-15.

At Wyoming, Erickson scrapped the wishbone in favor of his more during passing game. The Cowboys went from 3-8 in 1985 to 6-4 last season.

Reached Tuesday morning in San Diego, Erickson told the Idahoan that he stood by his previous statement that he was not interested in the position.

"That's the same way I feel now," Erickson said.

Indians hold off late Raft River rally

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Somehow, it was typical.

The steady nine-point lead the Shoshone Indian girls held over the Raft River Trojans throughout most of the their Magic Valley Conference contest Tuesday night didn't seem quite right. The margin should be closer.

So it became that way.

Holding a 45-36 lead going into the fourth quarter, the Indians staved off a late Trojan rally to win, finally, 51-49.

The win upped Shoshone's conference record to 7-1 (12-3 overall) and dropped Raft River to 5-2 (9-2). The loss dropped the Trojans into a second-place tie with Oakley and the WVC gave the Indians the inside track to the MVC title and the tie seed in the postseason District 4 Class A-4 Southside Subdistrict tournament.

In their previous matchup in Malta on Dec. 5, the Trojans slipped past the Indians 47-40, setting up Tuesday's crucial confrontation.

While the Indians had the lead for most of the Tuesday game, it became evident right from the beginning of the final quarter that the Trojans were going to inch up on the Class A-4 defending state champion Indians — or more accurately, Raft River center Melodie Jones drove the Trojans up even with the Indians.

Jones scored seven of her total 19 points in the fourth quarter, including four points of offensive rebounds to open the quarter. Shoshone tried to offset Jones' scoring spree with a quick passing offense, intending to get the ball to Shoshone's leading scorer Patti O'Maley.

"But we didn't take care of the ball," said Shoshone Coach Ed Sandy. "We didn't play like we should have and almost threw the game away."

One strategy for the Indians to regain control of the game was to tighten their 1-2-3 defense, giving Jones little room to score her inside buckets. But Trojan point guard Mamie Williams drilled two shots from the free-throw line and Raft River had closed to within three at 47-44 with just over three minutes left in the game.

But O'Maley tipped in a rebound to put the Indians back ahead by five: Jones drew a foul on a fast-break basket and hit her free throw to complete the three-point play, and the scoreboard now showed 49-47 Shoshone.

The Indians thought they had put the game away when Nancy Helsley sank two free throws following Jones' three-point play, giving the Indians a four-point lead. But Raft River's Robin Holtman nailed a bucket from the outside and after O'Maley lost the ball out-of-bounds on the ensuing play, the Trojans had a chance to tie. But O'Maley redeemed herself by stealing the inbound pass and insuring the Shoshone win.

"I think it shows the character of our team that we were able to come back from our mistakes to make the big play," said Sandy. "Patti (O'Maley) made the big mistake but came back with the big steal. We did what we had to do."

Comments sought on controlled hunt permits

JEROME — There will be an open house at the Jerome regional office of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game office today from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. to obtain public comments on the proposed regulations for issuance of landowner permits in controlled hunts, spring trophy seasons and trophy hunts in region 4.

A new law passed last year allows the Department of Fish and Game to issue controlled hunt permits to landowners within the boundaries of the hunt. The department is presently developing the criteria of eligibility for these permits and appears on a deed or lease agreement to qualify and a lessee or immediate family member must have a notarized signature of the owner on their application for a controlled permit to show they are eligible.

An additional 10 percent of the number of controlled hunt permits may be issued as landowner preference permits.

The restriction on applying for other trophy species such as sheep, mountain goat and moose would not apply to landowner permits and they also could put in for deer, antelope or elk.

Landowner permits sold to non-residents shall not be considered part of the non-resident quota.

Landowners would only be eligible to hunt on their own land and not on any state or federal lands within the controlled hunt unit.

Richfield hands Carey its 1st Northside loss

By The Times-News

RICHFIELD — The Richfield girls handed Carey its first Northside conference setback here Tuesday, 39-36.

Carey's loss left Bliss alone in first place in the Northside standings pending a Thursday night game in Bliss against Richfield. The Tigers are now 5-1 in conference and 9-3 overall for the season, while Bliss is 10-3 and 7-0 and Carey 6-2 and 4-1.

The Tigers jumped out to a 13-4 first quarter lead but got their lead cut to three in the third quarter when Richfield's leading scorer, Carol Norman, went out with a knee injury.

But the Tigers' two guards, Annie Whitesell and Renee Hyatt picked up the slack and led Richfield to their win.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Dwight Playlow scored 13 points and Henry Carr added 12, all in the second half, as unranked Wichita State upset 19th-ranked Kansas 54-49 Tuesday night for the Shockers' second victory in nine meetings between the two schools.

The Shockers, 9-4, limited Kansas forward Danny Manning to 12 points — 10 below his average — in the sloppy, turnover-plagued contest. The 6-foot-11 Manning seldom touched the ball in the second half and was scoreless over the final 11:50 of the game.

The loss dropped Kansas to 7-4 and was its third loss in four games.

The Shockers lead never grew beyond six points until Kansas' punters fouled late in the game.

The Shockers, who outscored the Jayhawks 18-2 from the free-throw line, sank six of eight free throws in the final minute to take a 54-43 lead and seal the victory.

Kansas led 13-11 with 12:55 to go in the first half but managed only two baskets, both by Manning, the rest of the half and trailed 20-15 at halftime.

Cedric Hunter and Keith Harris each added 11 points for the Jayhawks.

hunt in all of Units 46 and 53. This would allow for two permits from April 20 to June 2, permits April 25-May 1 and two permits May 2-10. This would allow some hunting on those Rio Grande turkeys released on the Niagara Springs Wildlife Management Area in January 1982.

There have been about 50 to 60 birds in that population for the past two years and it appears they have reached the carrying capacity of that area.

A permit hunt with a total of six permits for gobblers only would allow some hunting opportunity without a serious loss to the breeding population. The other turkey hunt in Region 4 is the same as last year with a total of 15 permits spread over three separate hunts in Unit 55.

Trophy species are limited to mountain goats in Region 4 at the present time.

Girls' basketball

Kimberly 63 Decio 38

DECOLO — Cindy Holcomb poured in 22 points and Aurora Urle added 18 more here Tuesday night as Kimberly rolled to a 63-38 Canyon Conference girls' basketball victory over Declo.

The victory was the 13th without a loss this season for Kimberly, which improved its conference record to 8-0. Declo fell to 7-3 overall and 3-4 in league games.

Kimberly's Tanner paced the Hornets with 12 points.

Kimberly 63, Declo 38.

Kimberly — Tanner 12, Klemion 6, Peterson 3, Farris 4, Galt 3, Mead 1, Daily 4. Totals: 16-17-23-38.

Three-point goal: Kimberly, Anderson, Declo, Tanner 12. Fouled Out: Declo, Payne.

Murtaugh 33 Harsan 31

HANSEN — Hansen shot just 3-for-19 from the free throw line and missed three of five foul shots in the final quarter, which proved the difference in Hansen's 33-31 Magic Valley Conference girls' basketball victory here Tuesday night.

The Huskies never led in the game, but stayed with a few points of Murtaugh throughout.

Murtaugh's Chantelle Stasny and Hansen's Audra Morrill led the scoring with 12 points apiece.

The Red Devils improved their season record to 3-8 and their conference mark to 2-6, while Hansen fell to 3-8 and 1-6.

Murtaugh 33, Harsan 31.

Murtaugh — Stasny 12, Stasny 12, Ward 9, Anderson 4, Wall 2. Totals: 11-17-23-33.

Hansen — Morrill 12, Morrill 12, Jones 4, Hansen 4, Audra Morrill 12, Jones 4. Totals: 11-17-23-31.

Wendell 58 Gooding 48

GOODING — JoLynn Pope hit 11 of 19 field goal attempts and five of seven free-throw tries here Tuesday night in leading Wendell to a 58-48 Canyon Conference girls' basketball victory over Gooding.

Wendell's offensive onslaught was added by Leesa Jasper's 14 rebounds.

The victory improved the Trojans' season record to 4-9 and their conference mark to 3-6, while Gooding fell to 10-18 and 0-8.

Kim Pence paced the Senators with 12 points.

Switzer: Perhaps Bosworth can come back

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — One day after telling linemen Brian Bosworth that he shouldn't return to the Oklahoma football team next year, Coach Barry Switzer on Tuesday said the All-American's college career may not be over.

BRIAN BOSWORTH Lengthy apology

College football

"If Brian does not opt to play pro football, he and I will discuss his possible future participation at a later date," Switzer said in a statement issued by the school's sports information office.

Bosworth, a fourth-year junior eligible to graduate in May, was generally expected to make himself available for the National Football League draft. Switzer's declaration on Monday that it would be "in the best interest of the university" for Bosworth to forego his final year of parent banishment on Monday with a lengthy apology for things he had said and done this year, and Switzer said Tuesday he was "very impressed" with the statement.

"After further discussions with him, I am completely convinced his statements were sincerely from the heart and that he has experienced much personal remorse over his earlier actions," Switzer said.

"I don't believe he had any idea of the embarrassing position he placed himself, the university or our football team in. It is my hope that Brian can continue to reflect this positive image to all the fans who support him and our program.

"I hope, too, that he and I can continue to communicate in a manner that can serve his and the University of Oklahoma's best interest," Switzer said.

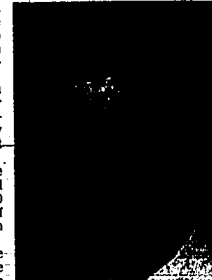

In his apology, Bosworth said he was "terribly embarrassed" by the concern he caused university officials.

"Coach Switzer has often said that I am an actor and that the lights are bright at OU. In that regard, I have benefited beyond comprehension from my association with the university," Bosworth said.

"At times I have acted and spoken foolishly and without regard for others. I would hope that those people I have mentioned and everybody else would accept my sincerest apology."

Tom McCurdy, a member of the Oklahoma Board of Regents, said Tuesday he had received 25 to 30 telephone calls in support of Switzer's action advising Bosworth to forego his senior season.

Bosworth was "banned" by the NCAA from playing in the Orange Bowl because drug tests showed he had used steroids. He later blasted the NCAA for its drug-testing policy, and during the Orange Bowl game wore a T-shirt that, using the NCAA initials, read "National Communists Against Athletics."

BARRY SWITZER Change of heart

McCurdy said he was contacted by former Sooner football players who said if Switzer had not reacted to

Bosworth's conduct, the coach "would in time lose control of the team."

In his three-sentence statement Monday, Switzer said "Brian is one of the greatest players to have ever performed for the Sooners. I am sure his future with the National Football League will parallel if not exceed his career accomplishments at the University of Oklahoma."

Bosworth finished fourth in the balloting for the Helmsman Trophy this year, was a finalist for the Lombardi Award and won the Butkus Award as the nation's top linebacker for the second year in a row. He was the Big Eight defensive player of the year and an All-American for the second consecutive year.

Bosworth led Oklahoma in tackles this season and was the standout performer in a defense that led the nation in rushing defense, passing defense, scoring defense and total defense.

Defendant in Tulane point-shaving case pleads guilty to lesser charge

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Tulane basketball player David Dominique avoided a trial on felony sports bribery charges by pleading guilty to a lesser charge of misdemeanor point shaving.

The theory of our case was that Dominique took money, but did not intend to alter his play in a Tulane game in February 1985, Orleans Parish First Assistant District Attorney Jack Peebles said in a statement.

Former Tulane star John "Hot Rod" Williams was acquitted in June on sports bribery charges, but the district attorney's office said it had decided to prosecute remaining defendants. Williams is a starter for the Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association.

College basketball

defendants, entered his plea Monday in New Orleans Criminal District Court.

Conspiracy or sports bribery charges were dropped against Dominique in connection with Tulane games against Virginia Tech and the University of Southern Mississippi.

Judge Patrick Quinlan sentenced Dominique, of New Iberia, La., to a three-month suspended sentence and three months unsupervised probation. He also ordered Dominique to pay $250 to a court fund and $100 in other court costs.

Before the one charge was reduced and the others dropped, Dominique faced up to 20 years in prison and $40,000 in fines if convicted. Roland Ruiz is scheduled to be tried in the case, charged with one count of conspiracy and five counts of sports bribery. He is accused of conspiring to bribe and then paying five Tulane players to shave points in a Tulane game against Memphis State in 1985.

Shaving points is intentionally losing by fewer points or winning by fewer points than the established betting line. In the wake of the point-shaving scandal, Tulane dropped its men's basketball program.

Three former Tulane players and three former students all pleaded guilty to reduced charges in exchange for their testimony in the case. Jurors in Williams' trial said they acquitted him because they did not believe the testimony of the former players and students.

NCAA to study I-A playoff

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An NCAA committee said Tuesday it would study the possibility of a national major-college football championship playoff. If approved, the new system could be in place by January 1989.

A four-member subcommittee of the Postseason Football Committee was appointed to study possibilities for such a playoff system. Purdue Athletic Director George S. King, chairman of the committee, said.

The subcommittee, to be headed by Texas Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds, will present its findings to the full Postseason Football Committee at its April 6-10 meeting, King said. A plan, if any, which comes out of that committee meeting would then have to be approved by a two-thirds vote of the full NCAA membership. The earliest such a vote could be taken ing decisions. That's left to the (NCAA) Council," King said.

Joining Dodds on the subcommittee will be John Swortford, athletic director at North Carolina; Glen Tuckett, athletic director at Brigham Young; and Carl James, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference.

"I'm not even sure I'm in favor of a playoff at this point," Dodds said, adding that he would favor a plan that keeps the current bowl structure intact.

"The bowls put $41 million each year into the colleges. The bowls have been good for college football. There are 18 bowl games accredited by the NCAA. There are six games played on New Year's Day, the Citrus, Cotton, Sugar, Rose, Orange and Fiesta bowls. This year's Fiesta Bowl was moved to Jan. 2.

Lowly Pacers capture fourth straight on goaltending call

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — With three seconds remaining, a goaltending call against San Antonio's Artis Gilmore on a short jumper by Vern Fleming gave Indiana a 101-99 NBA victory Tuesday night, the Pacers' fourth in a row.

Fleming's shot came after Indiana rebounded a missed San Antonio shot with eight seconds left and called a timeout.

Prior to the rebound, San Antonio's Alvin Robertson, Johnny Dawkins and Mike Mitchell missed 10 consecutive shots with less than 30 seconds remaining. The inbound pass went to Fleming and the third-year guard drove to the middle and put up the shot that turned out to be the game-winner.

The Spurs had one final chance after Fleming's shot, but a tight Pacer defense prevented San Antonio from even taking a shot.

Stipanovich led the Pacers with 19 points, while Fleming had 17 and Wayman Tisdale 16. San Antonio was led by Mitchell and Dawkins with 24 points each, while Robertson added 16. The Spurs led 45-39 at halftime as Dawkins and Stipanovich each had 12 points in the first half.

Washington 124 New Jersey 112

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ricky Pierce came off the bench to score 27 points, including 17 in the decisive third quarter, to lead Milwaukee to a 124-112 NBA victory over the New Jersey Nets Tuesday night.

The Bucks, who won their third straight, led 61-55 at halftime and then opened the third quarter with a 9-2 run that made it 70-57 with 9:35 left in the period.

Pierce scored four of those nine points and added eight more during a 16-6 Milwaukee spree that put the Bucks ahead 88-71 with 2:50 remaining in the quarter.

New York 118 Atlanta 86

NEW YORK (AP) — Patrick Ewing scored 14 points and Gerald Wilkins 11 as the New York Knicks outscored the Atlanta Hawks 32-22 in the third period and coasted to a 118-86 NBA victory Tuesday night.

New York, which won its fifth straight game at home for the first time since March 1984, extended a three-point halftime edge to 79-68 in the third quarter.

The Knicks then opened the fourth period with an 11-0 spurt for a 90-66 edge, and the Hawks got no closer than 20 of the rest of the way.

Ewing finished with 31 points, while Wilkins added 19, Trent Tucker 17 and Bill Cartwright 15 for the Knicks. Dominique Wilkins, Ewing's brother, led Atlanta with 22 points and Cliff Levingston finished with 16 for the Hawks, who hit only 32 of 91 field goal attempts for the game, or 35 percent.

The victory margin is the largest of the season for the Knicks whose biggest previous triumph was 114-100 over Milwaukee on Dec. 27. It was also their worst — a 107-108 eight-point loss this season. The previous worst was 120-106 at Phoenix on Nov. 26.

Neither team led by more than six points in the first half, which ended with the Knicks scoring 44 of the Cavaliers' 47 — a 47-44 halftime advantage.

Chicago 99 Cleveland 95

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 27 points and the Chicago Bulls held off the Cleveland Cavaliers to one field goal over the final eight minutes, 45 seconds to take a 99-95 NBA victory Tuesday night.

The loss was Cleveland's fourth in a row as the Cavaliers made one of their final 16 shots after shooting 56 percent over the first three quarters.

Cleveland led 43-39 entering the fourth quarter and held an 89-87 lead after Ron Harper, who scored 22 points, made a reverse layup with 8:45 remaining. The Cavaliers' next and final basket came when Phil Hubbard made a short jump shot and followed with a free throw to put Cleveland ahead 92-91 with 5:14 to play.

Jordan, who was held under 30 points for only the fifth time this season, then hit a 20-foot jumper to put Chicago ahead to stay 93-92 with 3:39 left.

Gene Banks gave the Bulls a three-point lead on a drive before Hubbard pulled Cleveland within 95-94 on two foul shots.

John Paxson hit a 20-foot jumper to give the Bulls a 97-94 lead with 2:27 left before John Williams got the Cavaliers' final point on a free throw with 1:14 remaining.

Paxson ensured the Chicago victory when he capped a 22-foot shot with 12 seconds left.

Washington 112 LA Clippers 97

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Jay Vincent scored 23 points in his Washington debut Tuesday night, as the Bullets beat Los Angeles 112-97, the Clippers' 13th consecutive defeat.

The Clippers have won one of 26 games since Nov. 1. They lost 12 straight games prior to their last victory on Dec. 10.

Vincent, acquired in an off-season trade with Dallas, suffered a ruptured tendon in his right ring finger in Washington's first exhibition game Oct. 10 and sat out the first 30 regular-season contests.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Once one of the most feared guards in the NBA, injured veteran Andrew Toney has been banished from practice and the bench by the Philadelphia 76ers as a "negative influence," club officials say.

Pro basketball

"The coach does not want him here," General Manager John Nash was quoted Tuesday in the Philadelphia Daily News. "He feels he has been a negative influence. That's descriptive enough, without going into a lot of detail. His demeanor on the bench has been a source of distraction."

Toney, who watched from the stands Monday night as the Sixers beat the Los Angeles Clippers 102-102, is not allowed to sit on the bench in street clothes, the newspaper said. The guard, placed on the injured list earlier Monday, also has been told to stay away from the team's home locker room on game days and cannot attend practice.

Coach Matt Guokas said Toney "has not taken an approach positive enough to my liking," the Daily News reported. Toney, who differed with club officials often last season over his readiness to play after he suffered stress fractures in both feet, disagreed.

"He (Guokas) says I'm a negative influence; I can't buy that," Toney said. Toney said he has "the same personality I had as when I was playing well," when he had some problems with Guokas' predecessor, Billy Cunningham.

Nash and Guokas were not in their offices and were unavailable for comment. Toney has an unlisted telephone number.

Toney's move to the injured list leaving a spot open for 11 players cut the club's roster to 11 players after center Jeff Ruland, who has been out since the second game of the season with an injured left knee.

Ruland, who had arthroscopic surgery on the knee Nov. 19, was examined Tuesday in Rochester, N.Y., by Dr. Kenneth DeHaven, and given approval to resume practice with the club. Ruland was acquired in the off-season from Washington in the trade that sent Moses Malone to the Bullets.

Sixers spokesman Harvey Pollack said Ruland will practice with the team Thursday and Monday and, if all goes well, will be in uniform for the 76ers' home game Jan. 14 against Atlanta.

Toney, a former All-Star and a Sixers' 1980 first-round draft choice from Southwest Louisiana, was a major contributor in the Sixers' drive to the 1982-83 NBA championship.
