Energy costs fuel return of higher inflation

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sharply higher energy costs, including the steepest gasoline price spurt on record, pushed up wholesale prices 0.6 percent in January, the Labor Department reported Friday, signaling a reappearance of moderate inflation after a year's lull.

The rebound in the Producer Price Index, the largest increase since November 1985, reflected higher prices across a wide range of products.

Food, however, was down 1.9 percent.

The January increase came on the heels of the best annual inflation performance in 37 years, a drop of 2.5 percent for all of 1986 for the index.

By contrast, January's increase was equivalent to an annual inflation rate of 7.7 percent.

Economists did not expect inflation for all of 1987 to be that high, but they suggested that rising oil prices and a weakening dollar would keep both wholesale and consumer prices climbing at about 3.5 percent to 4.5 percent through the year and into 1988.

"I think we've pretty much run out of our luck," said Michael K. Evans, president of a private economic forecasting service in Washington.

The January increase follows a revised 0.1 percent decline in December. December's producer prices were initially reported as flat.

Pacing the January boost were across-the-board gains in energy prices. Gasoline rose 15.7 percent, the biggest jump since the 1947 heating oil prices were up 18 percent and natural gas 4.2 percent.

In December, gasoline prices had risen 2.6 percent; home heating oil costs had been up 5.1 percent and natural gas prices had fallen 7.8 percent.

The energy price increases followed the agreement late last year by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to limit oil production. It was the collapse of world oil prices in early 1986 that produced last year's dramatic respite from inflation.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said January's increase "was expected, given the recent rise in the price of imported crude oil. We expect to see similar effects for several months, but other inflationary pressures still appear to be held in check."

Apart from energy and food, prices rose 0.5 percent in January. Analysts said this suggested that declines in the value of the dollar against other major currencies are beginning to show up in the form of higher prices for industrial products.

A weaker dollar makes imported products and parts more expensive while making U.S. goods more competitive abroad.

In fact, increased U.S. sales abroad appeared to be a factor in the solid 0.4 percent gain in industrial production for January reported on Friday by the Federal Reserve.

Possible hostage trade off

The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Kidnappers holding three Americans and an Indian said in a statement released Saturday that a possible deal to trade them for 400 Arab prisoners in Israel was off.

A handwritten statement signed by Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine also appeared to indicate the kidnappers were not considering killing the hostages in the near future.

Earlier this week they let a deadline for killing the hostages pass because of what they said was a need to seek a clarification from Israel of its intentions.

The statement delivered before dawn to the office of a Western news agency in Beirut said the proposed swap had been suspended because of the U.S. failure to respond to its demands. It was accompanied by a picture of American hostage Robert Pohlill, 53, of New York City.

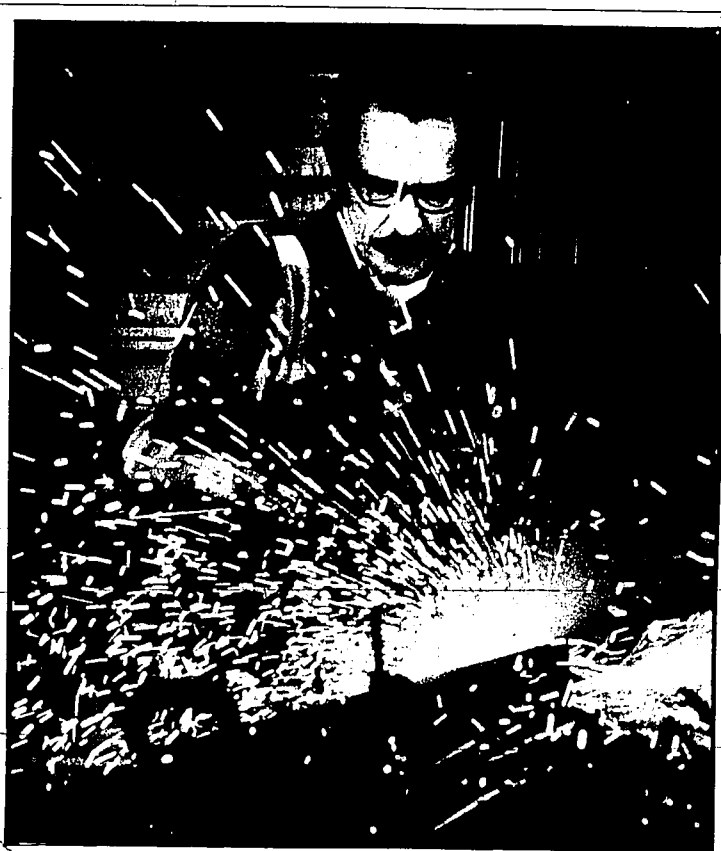

"This issue will now remain suspended because of the American administration's insistence on exposing the lives of the hostages to grave danger and the unknown fate awaiting them, and because of its failure to respond to our just demands," the statement said.

"The demand for the release of the 400 strugglers in exchange for the four hostages who have been convicted of working against the interest of our people in the region is within the framework of swaps that are done in wars, and absolutely not a form of negotiations," it said.

Pohlill is held along with three other Beirut University College professors: Jesse Turner, 37, of Boise, Idaho; Alann Steen, 47, of Boston; and Mihleshwar Singh, 60, an Indian with resident alien in the United States.

Steen had said in a message from captivity that Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine was comprised of "Moslem Palestinians."

The four professors were kidnapped Jan. 24 from the college campus in Moslem west Beirut where they taught.

Empty prison cells quickly, expert advises

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

BOISE — A corrections expert recommended to a federal judge during a five-hour hearing on Friday that the population of the Idaho State Penitentiary be trimmed by 58 inmates within 120 days.

The Idaho Department of Corrections fails to comply with the requirements of a court order, according to the report submitted by court-appointed monitor W. Raymond Nelson.

While agreeing with most of Nelson's plan to ease crowding at the prison south of Boise, Corrections Director Al Murphy testified that it would take at least 180 days to meet the requirements.

"We did some brainstorming on what I would do in his position, and it came out remarkably the same," Murphy said. But as far as what to do with the extra inmates, "Right now I'm not real clear what my options are."

Dean Schwartzmiller, an inmate lay-attorney who has represented fellow prisoners in the suit, also said Nelson's recommendations generally were acceptable. But he said 180 days was too long to wait for action.

"It shouldn't give the court much heartburn to order them to release some of these non-violent offenders, especially some of the young men out there," Schwartzmiller said. "The court is a good court, but the court can, as the court's expert has recommended, cap the institution on a per-building basis."

U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan said he would take Friday's testimony under advisement. The hearing continued proceedings in an inmate lawsuit against the Department of Corrections over living conditions at the penitentiary that began in 1978.

Besides overcrowding, inmates alleged their Eighth Amendment right to freedom from cruel and unusual punishment was being violated by inadequate medical and psychiatric care, improper food and even a shortage of suitable clothing.

Ryan ordered a number of improvements in November 1984, but has left open the question of what to do about overcrowding since he felt the state was showing a good-faith effort to comply with his requirements.

Department of Corrections officials maintain they have been able to take care of all of the problems except overcrowding. But Schwartzmiller said Friday that the department has "failed miserably" in dealing with an inmate population almost 150 percent of the prison's design capacity.

Nelson, of Boulder, Colo., toured the penitentiary Jan. 7-8 and again on Thursday after being hired by the court as an outside expert.

Nelson is former director of the National Institute of Corrections' Jail Correctional Institute in the Southern District of Ohio. He said he has been in corrections for

Health plan architect sees little expansion

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An architect of the administration plan to insure the elderly against massive medical bills acknowledged its shortcomings Friday but predicted Congress will hard-pressed to vote an expansion.

The reason: lack of money.

Despite intense opposition by conservatives, health care officials view the Medicare expansion embraced Thursday by President Reagan as a pay-as-you-go program because the monthly premiums assessed Medicare beneficiaries, along with a $2,000 annual deductible, would be indexed to inflation.

The money, $1.8 billion the first year, would come from an additional $4.92 a month premium charged under the Part B Medicare program that generally covers doctor bills. Although voluntary, about 98 percent of the elderly pay for the Part B coverage.

HHS officials estimate no more than 1.4 million of the 30 million Medicare beneficiaries would have to use the so-called catastrophic coverage in a given year, with an average additional benefit of $1,300 each.

By contrast, the annual average charge for nursing home care is $22,000.

Oysters not pearls of romance

By The Associated Press

Casanova may have downed hundreds of oysters, and passionate kings may have sworn by chocolate and champagne, but experts say modern-day romantics had better not count on mythicized aphrodisiacs this Valentine's Day.

While there's no harm in trying fancy love potions, there's simply no scientific evidence to back them up, according to experts.

"Hee, hee, hee, the only aphrodisiac needed is between your two ears," says Dr. Ruth Westheimer, author and celebrated sex therapist.

"Now I'm not saying that some strawberries dipped in whipped cream or some champagne or some good chocolate can't be pleasurable," she said.

Liability reform proceeding on schedule, backers claim

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Liability reform is not a dead issue, despite a strategy memo that caused a stir among lawmakers, liability coalition members say.

"We're still going to proceed on the same schedule," said Ken McClure, the coalition's chief lobbyist, on Thursday.

A confidential strategy memo written by Donna Scott, field coordinator for the Liability Reform Coalition, gave a detailed summary of where certain legislators stand on the issue.

Sen. Jim Risch, pro tem and a member of the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee, was listed as "other lawmakers were listed as either 'lost causes,' 'weak' or 'OK.'"

Scott met on Thursday with some of the people named on the memo. She said Friday that the situation had been resolved.

DONNA SCOTT
"Tempest in a teapot"

She called the whole issue a "tempest in a teapot."

"Gary (Robbins) and I had lunch together, and I met with Sen. Roger Fairchild," Scott said during a phone interview.

Asked if the controversy that erupted over the memo would affect chances for passage of liability reform legislation, Scott replied, "Heavens, no. This is not going to hurt anything."

Scott said she had no plans to resign, even though some lawmakers suggested it would be a good idea.

"I have a string of speaking engagements and more memos to go out," Scott said. "I'm doing my job, and lawmakers didn't hire me."

Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Idaho, said he met with Scott, and "We got it all worked out."

In the memo, Scott said Robbins was "weak" on liability reform and needed calls from constituents. She also said that he was influenced by Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, "in many ways."

Scott retracted that assessment on Friday.

"Gary is not taking any leads from me. See SCOTT on Page A2 prices, the deflation we had is now over," said Lawrence Chimeras, president of Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "Clearly there will be a significant acceleration."

Doug Handler, chief forecaster at Wharton Econometrics in Philadelphia, said, "This 0.6 percent (increase) is not a sustainable number, but we will see inflation coming back in the second half of the year as we get ordinary demand pressures from a strong economy."

Food was one of the few categories to show a price decline in January. The 1.8 percent dip followed a 0.4 percent fall in December.

Beef prices were down 3.8 percent, poultry prices dropped 1.2 percent and egg prices were off 6.5 percent.

more than 30 years. His report recommended a total reduction of the state's inmate population to 688 from the 741 on hand when he visited in January.

Nelson based the call for reduced populations in seven of the prison's nine units on square footage. But he also recommended that the main prison should end its practice of putting more than two prisoners in a cell.

Nelson said the best long-range answer to overcrowding would be to build a new prison. But he acknowledged that would take two years or more. "I don't think that new construction is an acceptable remedy for the immediate problem."

Last month, Gov. Cecil Andrus and legislative leaders agreed to start on a new, 248-bed task force to study maximum security prison adjacent to the main prison.

Besides population problems, Nelson noted in his report that as the state puts more burdens on water and plumbing system, it is breaking down with increasing frequency.

Robert Gates, deputy attorney general for the Department of Corrections, said the shorter time reformation would encourage inmates to repeatedly violate plumbing fixtures to "break the spirit" of the program.

Ralph Pierce, the prison's deputy warden for professional security inmates from the main prison, said that would be the kind of person from the standpoints of authority and credibility with inmates who could effectively monitor compliance with any court order.

MOSCOW (AP) - Security agents beat protesters and journalists and smashed cameras Friday, ending a week of demonstrations for an imprisoned Jewish activist that began peacefully but grew increasingly violent.

Disident sources said four of the demonstrators were sentenced to brief jail terms. Protest on behalf of Josef Begun have been held since Monday at the Arbat, a shopping mall in central Moscow about a mile from the Kremlin.

Three American reporters were detained for more than two hours. Others were punched or shoved to the ground while covering the demonstration.

Police in Peru raid campuses

LIMA, Peru (AP) - Anti-terrorist police raided five university campuses in Lima early Friday, arrested 793 people and seized 500 pounds of explosives, Interior Minister Abel Salinas said.

He said police encountered resistance at the University of San Marcos, where three police officers were wounded in a shootout. Salinas said one suspect was wounded there and died later.

Salinas displayed to reporters weapons, explosives, banners of the Maoist Shining Path guerrilla group, and propaganda that he said was confiscated during the raids.

Bishops endorse abstinence

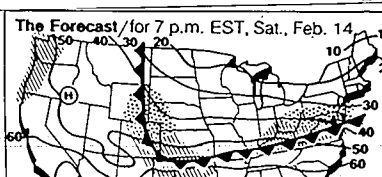

DALLAS (AP) - More than 150 Roman Catholic bishops meeting here concluded that abstinence and marital fidelity are weapons to fight AIDS than are condoms, which create a false sense of security, a bishop said Friday.

The group determined that health officials in promoting condoms may be misleading the public since condoms do not always prevent transmission of the disease, said Bishop Leroy Mathieson of Amarillo.

The Catholic church has traditionally opposed artificial birth control.

Oysters

The lowly oyster, everyone's favorite aphrodisiac, is said to be sorely lacking in passion-provoking powers.

From a chemical standpoint, there's no reason why oysters should be more aphrodisiac than toothpaste, said Marian Childs, associate professor of medicine and nutrition at the University of Washington.

The search for culinary delights has led from the mundane to the mad: garlic, honey, artichokes, figs, pomegranates, caviar, herbal teas, bird's nest soup and even deer musk glands.

Today, aphrodisiacs abound. In Jackson Hole, Wyo., for instance, hundreds gather every May to bid on antlers shed by elk. South Korean businessmen regularly snap up the majority of corgis and grind them into an aphrodisiac powder.

Like most local folks, Carol Dahlen, marketing director for the Jackson Hole Chamber of Commerce, doesn't put much stock in elk antlers' desire-inducing abilities.

Nevertheless, she said, laughing, "I've always wanted to try it." "The difficulty in obtaining elk antlers probably explains much of their appeal," according to Fred Parks, an Allentown, Pa., restaurateur and author of the "Celebrated Oysterhouse Cookbook."

Still, a delicacy to most people are oysters, which Parks recommends "raw, as in nature." "You're left after dining on oysters with a very light feeling. You have energies to pursue other endeavors," Parks said.

Continued from Page A1 Chris Hooper. He's as ornery as I am," she said. "Other lawmakers were less willing to shake hands, and instead, came out fighting."

Scott responded on Thursday after seeing the memo. "Donna was speaking totally from subjective judgment. She never talked to me," Bray said. "But then she never speaks from a basis of knowledge."

The chairman of the Judiciary and Rules Committee, Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruittland, was characterized as the "savior" of the bill. Scott attributed that observation to coalition lobbyist Ken McClure.

McClure told The Times-News that he never used the word "savior" in the did say Fairchild was in a delicate situation.

Fairchild said Friday that Scott apologized "for putting it in writing." Fairchild said he did not think the memo would cause people to "take a closer look at the whole issue."

"I think tort reform is a lot of demagoguery," Fairchild said. "It takes away blame for the insurance companies' self-inflicted problems."

However, Kline said, the memo should not be an element in the debate, as the issue is complex enough. Before Scott met with Robbins and others on Thursday, Robbins and other legislators hinted they would she should resign.

McClure supported Scott and said she would continue working with the group. "We hired Donna because she has many assets," McClure said. "She is well known and she knows people, and she knows the process, and that hasn't changed."

Chocolate, however, may be the December issue of The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition that obese individuals craving carbohydrates were happier and less depressed two hours after filling up on carbohydrate-rich snacks.

Those who did not crave carbohydrates were more depressed after consuming cookies, crackers and candy, according to the MIT team. Large amounts of carbohydrates, the scientists hypothesize, alter the levels of a chemical in the brain known as serotonin which is believed to regulate a variety of moods including depression and sleepiness.

Funds to help boy, 7, pass $300,000 total

MIAMI (AP) - Touched by the plight of a 7-year-old boy who needs liver transplant, syndacators from a millionaire industrialist to fast-food restaurant workers followed President Reagan's lead with more than $300,000 in donations Friday.

At least three businesses called to pledge $5,000 each, quickly offsetting the more than $1,000 raised by Ronnie DeSillers' classmates but stoken Thursday from his school in Fort Lauderdale.

Volunteers said a $200,000 gift from Victor Posner, one of the nation's highest-paid corporate executives, took the total over $300,000 even though they hadn't been able to come up with a complete tally.

"The calls are coming in so fast we haven't had time to add up today's figures," said a man who identified himself only as Tom, answering the telephone at a hot line set up to take pledges for a bank account at Coral Gables Federal Savings and Loan.

The stolen money was part of $80,000 raised to that point for Ronnie, who needs $150,000 to get onto a waiting list for a transplant at Pittsburgh's Children's Hospital.

Maria DeSillers, 31, lost her medical insurance 4 1/2 years ago when she was unable to make payments because of an extended absence from work to be with her only child during one of his hospital stays. Ronnie was born with a condition that caused cirrhosis of the liver.

House moves to take a stronger role in stream flow policy

BOISE (AP) — Despite warnings from opponents that it could seriously weaken state efforts to protect stream flows, fish and wildlife, the Idaho House has voted 54-30 to take a stronger role in decisions on minimum stream flows.

The measure passed Friday and was sent to the Senate. It is opposed by the Fish and Game Department, Department of Water Resources and the Idaho Conservation League as potentially devastating to state efforts on minimum stream flows.

Rep. Stan Hawkins, R-Union, pushed the bill as a means of giving the Legislature greater control over minimum stream flow decisions.

State law now requires the Department of Water Resources to consider applications for minimum stream flows, generally intended to prevent the diversion of so much water that fish and other wildlife suffer.

Here's how representatives voted

BOISE (AP) — Here is the roll call vote by which the Idaho House voted 54-30 Friday for legislation changing the procedure for ratifying minimum stream flow decisions.

Republicans for (51) — Allan-Hodge, Antone, Lowder, R. Black, Boyd, Brimhall, Brown, Burt, Callen, Childers, Clark, Crane, Crow, Davis, Deckard, Duffin, Field, Polkinga, Geddes, Hale, Hartung, Hawkins, Hill, Inganor, Kellog, Kennevik, Lintorf, Loertscher, Loveland, Mahoney, Martens, Montgomery, Nelbaur, R. Newcomb, B. Newcomb.

Republicans against (13) — Brocksome, Fry, Gurney, Haggen, Hansen, Hay, Hooper, Jones, Lucas, Reynolds, Robbins, Smock, Steele.
Democrats for (3) — Hall, Herrndon, Stolcheff.
Democrats against (17) — Adams, P. Black, Braun, Giovannelli, Givens, Horvath, Johnson, Clemm (Judd), Lasun, Lloyd, McCann, Pino (McDermott), Reid, Robison, Tucker, Vickers, Vincent.

Resources Board. Hansen told House members not to write him off as a "tree-hugger," or extreme environmentalist. He said he's an Idaho Falls-area potato farmer, and has been in the farming business all his life.

"Water rights are critical to individuals and the state of Idaho," he said. "The current law is not broke, it does not need fixing. I urge that we leave it alone."

Opponents argued that by reversing the thrust of the legislation, if even a single legislator, the chairman of an important committee, opposes a minimum stream flow decision, the chairman could block the legislation, and thus defeat the Water Resources Department, ruling by inaction.

Rep. L. Ed Brown, R-Pocatello, said most minimum stream flow applications come from the Fish and Game Department. "This will give the Legislature final judgment to help the people in a responsible way," he said.

Idahoan's counterfeiting trial set

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that a northern Idaho man facing federal counterfeiting charges will stand trial beginning March 9 in Tucson, Ariz.

Don Ross Dorr, 36, of Athol, had been scheduled to stand trial Feb. 2 in Tucson with co-defendants Edward and Olive Hawley.

U.S. District Judge Justin Quackenbush had granted Dorr a separate trial because he underwent surgery in January for an arm injury. Because he underwent medication, Dorr couldn't fully participate in his defense, the judge determined.

Dorr's lawyer, Mark Vovos, contends Dorr was injured when he was being taken to jail by Kootenai County, Idaho, sheriff's deputies.

Vovos said Thursday, when Quackenbush set the trial date, that he had asked a neurosurgeon to re-examine Dorr to determine whether he will be able to stand trial March 9.

The Hawleys agreed to plea bargain three days after their trial began and are to be sentenced March 19 in Spokane.

The trials were moved to Tucson because Quackenbush ruled that extensive news coverage in the Northwest about white supremacists and September 1986 bombings in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, would prevent the Hawleys and Dorr from receiving a fair trial.

Dorr and the Hawleys had links to the white supremacist Church of Jesus Christ Christian (Aryan Nations).

Because of their guilty pleas, the Hawleys lost their constitutional right against self-incrimination pertaining to the counterfeiting case. Therefore, they could be compelled to testify as government witnesses against their friend Dorr.

Hopeful Senate committee kills drinking age measure

BOISE (AP) — A Senate committee's narrow majority holding out hope that the federal government could be turned back has rejected a revived, it would take a two-thirds vote of the Senate State Affairs Committee to clear the way for final Senate action.

The state has balked at complying with the federal mandate to raise the drinking age to 21. The state's State Affairs Committee called it "federal blackmail."

But lawmakers grudgingly caved in after federal transportation officials withheld $4.5 million in federal money last fall and threatened to withhold another $9 million this fall.

It postponed until next Monday further consideration of legislation to lend $1.4 million for underwriting the voter-approved initiative.

Legislation to raise the drinking age to 21 was passed by the House in 1976 and 1977, but the Senate has not acted on it.

While effectively killing the measure by a 6-5 vote on Friday, the State Affairs Committee sent to the full Senate for a final vote a similar measure that includes a provision to return the legal drinking age to 19 if South Dakota wins its court challenge to the federal mandate.

Sen. Michael Blackbird, D-Kellogg, sponsor of the Senate alternative, contended it would resolve Idaho's problem with lost highway money and still leave open the possibility that the drinking age could ultimately be returned to 19.

He said 26 other states have included similar "fall-back" provisions in the compulsory laws.

Although the committee's positive action on Blackbird's measure keeps hopes of Idaho compliance alive this session, some Senate leaders feared the flat rejection of the House-passed version could again lead to a stalemate that would result in continued noncompliance with the U.S. Transportation Department directive.

The House passed its version of the measure, a straightforward raising of the age to 21 with a clause that allows those 19 or 20 on the day before enactment to continue drinking legally, on a 53-30 vote last Monday.

Should that measure need to be revived, it would take a two-thirds vote of the Senate State Affairs Committee to clear the way for final Senate action.

The initiative has been challenged on constitutional grounds in 4th District Court.

And while the panel agreed to introduce another version of the constitutional amendment to properly authorize creation of a state lottery, it delayed any floor action to clear the way for a final vote on it and two other similar proposals.

No date was set for further consideration of those proposals. If approved by the two-thirds of both houses, a constitutional amendment would have to be submitted to voters for their approval in November 1988.

The initiative, despite its questionable legality, was endorsed by 60 percent of the voters last November.

Chilled David Bast, top, Brent Rasmussen call for help

Rescuers wrap David Bast in blankets at lakeside

Diners help pull men from icy lake waters

MACATAWA, Mich. (AP) — Diners at a restaurant overlooking frozen Lake Michigan saw two college students fall through the ice and joined others to pull the young men from the turbulent water, authorities said Friday.

Brent Rasmussen, 21, of Greenville, and David Bast, 20, of South Holland, Ill., were treated at Holland Community Hospital in Holland for hypothermia and released Friday, one day after the rescue, said nursing supervisor Bea Moore. "It just kind of avalanched, the whole thing went at the same time," Bast said.

Patrons at the Point West Inn and others nearby saw the Hope College students fall through the ice about 6 p.m., threw lines to them and pulled them from the water, the Ottawa County Sheriff's Department said in a statement.

The turbulent water made the rescue difficult, the department said.

"I hit the ice so many times I was semi-conscious," Rasmussen said. "The waves would pick up out of the water and throw us right into the ice. My hands are all cut up."

Ship saves 25 off sinking freighter

NEW YORK (AP) — A West German freighter battled heavy seas Friday to rescue 25 crew members of a foundering Turkish freighter, but three men from the sinking ship were lost at sea after their lifeboat capsized in the stormy North Atlantic.

The crew of a Coast Guard C-130 airplane searched five hours for those missing from the Bora Isik before abandoning the search around 3 p.m., said Chief Quartermaster Jim Green. The Coast Guard did not plan to resume the search, he said.

The Bora Isik issued its first distress call at 11 p.m. Thursday, when it said it was taking on 400 metric tons of water each hour and sinking fast, said Coast Guard Lt. J.G. Ross Bryan.

The freighter Colombo battled 35-knot winds and waves the height of a two-story house to reach the Turkish vessel shortly before 2 a.m.

Using two lifeboats and a life raft, the Colombo's crew rescued 17 of the Bora Isik's men within two hours, said Petty Officer Matthew Pleasant.

But one of the rescue vessels was thrown against the 580-foot Colombo as it pulled alongside. It capsized and only four of the seven men on board were saved, he said.

Unable to do more amid the wind and waves, the Colombo backed off. The Colombo continued its rescue operations at daybreak and by 8 a.m. four more crew members, including the captain, were safe aboard.

All of the rescued crew members from the 387-foot ship were reported to be in good condition.

The Bora Isik, bound for Bridgeport, Conn., from Istanbul, Turkey, remained afloat shortly after 3 p.m. The bow was down, but the decks were not yet awash, said Green, adding that the Bora Isik was abandoned as a derelict.

It was not known what caused the ship to begin taking on water, he said.

Air Force tanker burns on landing

ALTUS, Okla. (AP) — Fire broke out on an Air Force KC-135 Stratotanker as it landed Friday at Altus Air Force Base, injuring seven people, including four crew members, officials said.

The jet, which had been on a refueling mission, was destroyed in the 12:30 p.m. MST accident, said

Dana Coppock, a spokeswoman for the base.

The four crew members aboard scrambled off the burning plane on their own, said Airman John Brecka.

Almost all of the plane burned in the two-hour fire, leaving only the tail section and engines, Brecka said.

Misconduct charges bring Marines' recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps said Friday it had recalled seven Marines from its U.S. Embassy guard force in Moscow because of alleged misconduct "following a party" in December.

The corps, breaking its silence on reports that at least five guards had been transferred back to the United States, said the transfers bore "no relation to the case of Sgt. (Clayton) Lonetree," a former Moscow embassy guard who has been charged with espionage.

"Seven Marines formerly assigned to the Moscow embassy have returned to their parent unit, the Marine Security Guard Battalion at Quantico, Va., for administrative and disciplinary reasons," the corps said.

"Two Marines are being investigated for charges of alleged misconduct following a party attended by off-duty Marine security guards on Dec. 14, 1986. Five other Marines have been implicated in complicity, falsifying the log and not informing their superiors of the incident."

Lt. Col. John Shottwell, a Marine Corps spokesman, said he could not elaborate on the statement by explaining the nature of the incident.

But he said some of the charges that could be preferred against the men ranged from "disrespect toward superiors, drunk and disorderly conduct, assault, false swearing, damaging government property and other violations of orders such as breaking curfew."

"Additionally, one of the seven Marines who has been implicated in connection with the incident is also being investigated separately for alleged illegal currency exchange," he said.

The corps declined to identify the seven Marines, noting an internal probe was underway. No charges had been pressed.

Legislator rips 'short-term' bail-out of Farm Credit System

By BOB FREUND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A $15 billion bail-out of the Farm Credit System would bring only short-term relief to the beleaguered lending network, Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, says.

interest rates and other ways of propping up the system. An interest rate "buydown" would aid borrowers directly, as well as support the flagging finances of the system, Stallings said.

"It's not because the law is not good," Stallings said. "It's because we have a chairman of the Farm Credit System that doesn't want them to work."

Weldon Barton, agricultural representative for the Association of Independent Bankers of America, said any attempt to aid the FCS alone will attract opposition from other financial institutions.

is undertaking a "rather drastic change of posture regarding agriculture."

Mild winter heats up Jackpot business

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN Times-News correspondent

JACKPOT, Nev. — Business is booming in Jackpot these days, according to business owners in the area, mainly because of the unusually warm weather that Jackpot has received this winter, keeping critical U.S. Highway 93 open all season.

just good common business sense. Such things as good maintenance and watching the pricing that goes on in nearby Twin Falls is part of keeping his station competitive in the Southern Idaho/Jackpot market, he says.

Also, Sheltrown has advertised more and is offering more services than in the past, proving that "anytime business is improving," he said, "there's no one reason why. There's always a number of factors."

Lawmakers get in-depth tour of air force base

By JANE ROBISON Times-News writer

BOISE — Legislators took a holiday on Wednesday, packed their lunches and traveled to see the state's only military installation, Mountain Home Air Force Base.

In addition to showing off the base's 70 fighters, Mountain Home AFB officials offered a peek at the training that pilots receive.

Mountain Home's contribution to the state.

But the heart of the tour came when guests were taken to F-111A simulators and shown how ordinary people are turned into lean, mean, fighting pilots.

Panel OKs super collider bid money

$1 million appropriation sought to fund Utah's campaign to land project

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The House Energy and Natural Resources Committee has endorsed a $1 million appropriation to fund Utah's campaign to land the $8 billion Superconducting Super Collider particle accelerator project.

The panel unanimously passed the appropriation on to the House Rules Committee, which has oversight of all bills seeking new budget money. The SSC is envisioned as the world's biggest atom smasher. Sub-atomic particles would be speed around a 52-mile ring at almost the speed of light, then allowed to crash into each other. Physicists thereby hope to gain insights into the secrets of matter and energy.

Gov. Norm Bangerter considers bringing the supercollider to economically depressed Utah his highest priority. Lt. Gov. Val Oveson said Thursday.

"We can smell the Superconducting Super Collider, and we're hungry for it," he said. "It smells like greenbacks."

Utah already has done much feasibility work, putting the Beehive State ahead of more than a dozen other states seeking the project, Oveson said. The SSC would create 2,500 permanent jobs for scientists and technicians, he said. It would have an annual research budget of $300 million. The facility would use 250 megawatts of power at its peak, benefiting Utah's coal and power industries.

This would be a significant boost to our economy, and also would put us in the forefront of advanced technology into the 21st century," Oveson said.

The SSC could be finished by 1996, Utah's statehood centennial, he said. State Science Adviser Randy Moon, University of Utah physics professor Eugene C. Loh and Gil Moore, a Morton-Thiokol executive who serves as chairman of the Utah Science Council, seconded Oveson's sentiments.

President Reagan has given the go-ahead for the SSC. The Department of Energy will request proposals in April, "and we'll only have a short summer to get it done before August," Moon said. A short list of five or six prime states will be released in the summer of 1988, he said.

Utah has several factors in its favor, Loh said. The land considered suitable for the huge ring — near Delle, on the north end of Skull Valley — is under state and federal control. Further, the geology is uniform, so building the accelerator's ring by trenching instead of tunneling would be possible.

6 youths suspected in Papoose Springs hatchery vandalism

POCAHELLO (AP) — Six Bannock County juveniles will be petitioned into court on charges that they went on a rampage of vandalism at the Papoose Springs Trout Ranch west of Pocatello, officials said.

"I have been in law enforcement for 14 years and I have never seen such aimed aggression," Detective Capt. Chris DeWald of the Power County Sheriff's Department said Thursday. "The destruction was appalling."

Police believe four 16-year-old males and two 14-year-old females vandalized the trout farm Monday night, DeWald said. There were no fish at the facility, which is owned by Aqua-Lite Co. of Buhl.

The main hatchery building and three outbuildings were heavily damaged. Windows and window frames were ripped from the walls, all of the light fixtures were broken, doors were torn from hinges and walls were kicked in. A small pickup, a trout transport vehicle and a small bus all were overturned. "It will take $15,000 just to repair the structural damage in the main house," DeWald said. "That does not include repainting over the obscenities" spray-painted on the walls.

The vandalism was reported Tuesday evening. With the help of police in Chubbuck, DeWald said with Power County Sheriff's Lt. Greg Will had identified suspects by Wednesday morning.

"The criminals left clues at the scene that we were able to trace with the help of the Chubbuck police," he said. "They were aware of the suspects."

Court petitions for the juveniles were expected to be obtained as soon as damage estimates are completed, DeWald said.

Briefly

2 arrested on drug charges

RUPERT — Two Rupert men were arrested Friday by Rupert police after a search warrant was obtained for entry into a residence in the southeast area of Rupert during a drug investigation.

Police Chief Paul Fries said two men were taken into custody on charges of possession of a controlled substance. Some drug materials were confiscated, but not a large amount, he said.

He said Allen Norris, 36, and Blaine R. Short, 34, defendants in that case, are scheduled for arraignment Tuesday on the possession charges.

Fries said the arrests were made in connection with an ongoing investigation and on information furnished by an informant.

Vandals strike businesses

TWIN FALLS — Vandals caused an estimated $400 damage to the Wholesale Carpets building at 762 Main Ave. N., Thursday night and slashed tires in a number of locations around Twin Falls.

Penny Gentry told police someone shot out a large plate glass window in the front of the carpet store.

Wills Motor Co. officials said vandals also visited there Thursday night. Someone used a knife or other sharp instrument to cut tires on a van in the company's sales lot, police said. Damage was estimated at $300.

Several residents also reported the damage during the past several days while vehicles were parked on the streets.

Driver injured in accident

TWIN FALLS — One person was slightly injured and $1,000 in damage resulted to a vehicle Thursday when a car crashed into a tree on Washington Street in Twin Falls.

Police said Ericen Mae Stevens, 21, of Hansen, was driving south on Washington Street about 1:10 a.m. when she lost control of her vehicle and it crashed into a tree at the Henrietta Johnson residence, at 240 Washington St. She told officers she swerved to miss a dog that ran into the street at about the time someone pulled onto Washington Street from 8th Street West.

A passenger in her vehicle, Randy Wright, no age given, was treated for minor injuries and released.

Hansen man suffers burns

HANSEN — A Hansen man was treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center for facial burns and released late Friday after an oil furnace he was attempting to light exploded.

Hansen Police Chief Earl Knutsen said the name of the victim was being withheld until all family members could be notified.

He said the man had gone into the basement of his home about 6 p.m. to light the oil furnace and somehow it exploded as he was bending over it.

Members of the Hansen Quick Response Unit administered medical treatment at the scene, Knutsen said. The man appeared to have only first-degree burns confined to his face and one eye.

At first the report, called to the Twin Falls County sheriff's office and relayed to the Hansen officer, said an explosion had occurred at the Hansen Cafe. Knutsen said when he arrived he learned it was actually in a home to the west of the cafe. The victim was alone in the home at the time and no fire resulted from the blast.

Trooper charged with kidnap, rape and assault

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A suspended Utah Highway Patrol Trooper was charged Friday with multiple counts of rape, attempted rape, kidnapping and assault and booked into the Salt Lake County Jail authorities said.

Ernest B. Wilcock, 31, who was suspended without pay Monday after allegedly firing his service automatic 13 times as a woman drove away in his patrol car, was arraigned late Friday afternoon before 8th Circuit Judge Robert C. Gibson, who set bond totals of $185,000.

Wilcock was given a March 3 preliminary hearing to determine if he should be bound over for trial in 3rd District Court.

An aggravated assault charge and another of attempted rape stem from an incident Sunday, when Andy Schaefer, 20, claimed Wilcock picked her up downtown and threatened her with arrest if she did not have sex with him, Deputy Salt Lake County Attorney Ernie Jones said.

After a police lineup Friday, Wilcock was also charged with two counts of rape and two counts of aggravated kidnapping in incidents involving another woman.

Wilcock allegedly stopped the woman's car on September and threatened to arrest her for drunk driving and take her children away from her unless she had sex with him, according to court documents.

Last month, a law enforcement officer in uniform stopped the woman and threatened to arrest her, the complaint said. The victim advised authorities of both incidents. But, "the defendant gave a false name to the victim so it was difficult to determine the identity of the officer," the complaint said.

In a hearing against a motion to reduce Wilcock's bail, Jones told Gibson the woman "was absolutely terrified after seeing the defendant in the lineup." He also said there was "reason to believe (Wilcock) may have been involved in other incidents of similar nature."

Highway Patrol officials have recommended that Wilcock be fired for alleged gross misconduct, but spokesman Gary Whitney said no decision would be made until after state Public Safety Director John T. Nielsen reviews all complaints filed against the trooper.

During a news conference following filing of charges against Wilcock, Nielsen said that while the recommendation to fire would stand, the action cannot be carried out until after Wilcock's appeal hearing, expected to be held within the next few days.

Nielsen said the patrol was cooperating fully with the investigation. He also said all UHP policies and procedures were being reviewed in light of the allegations.

"Allegations and charges of this nature bring disrespect and dishonor to the entire police profession, not just the Utah Highway Patrol," he said. "We cannot and will not tolerate such a breach of the ethics we are sworn to uphold."

Jackpot

Continued from Page A5. crease in slot-machine playing. "We've just had such an overall increase that, naturally, business would improve in the slot machine area without us being hurt anywhere else," said Hayden. He did admit he "never seen so much slot machines being played before."

The same thing has occurred at Barton's Club 93 — especially with the poker machines, whose "use has grown dramatically," said Whitehead. "I think that, in contrast to other slot machines, people feel they have some kind of control in the poker machines. With the other machines, they pull the lever and wait for a result. With the poker machine, they can choose to keep or throw away cards and play against the machine."

Sheltrova feels that although his business has been good, casino business may not be as good as it could be. The Chevron station owner feels that the local casinos "haven't marketed the way they used to."

"It used to be that you'd see 15 to 18 buses travel in here a week, and now you see only one or two," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised if business isn't quite as good as they say in the casinos."

Thomas calls for agency head to quit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The chairman of a federally funded agency providing legal help to poor people should resign because of his proposal to abolish the agency, the head of the American Bar Association said Friday.

"He has a conflict of interest," ABA President Eugene C. Thomas said. "I am sure that Mr. Thomas said of W. Clark Durant, chairman of the Legal Services Corp., Speaking to reporters at the ABA's national convention here,

Thomas, a lawyer from Boise, Idaho, said Durant's "legal duty requires that he stand behind and further the purposes of that organization."

Appearing before the ABA's board of governors Thursday, Durant called for ending federal support of the Legal Services Corp. a move President Reagan has sought since 1980, Durant is a Reagan appointee.

Congress has refused to abolish the agency, which currently has a $305.5 million annual budget.

On another topic, Thomas said the nation's lawyers "probably have over-litigated some of our disputes" in contributing to "the huge number of disputes clogging the courts."

Weather shows variety; snow falls in Sun Valley

TWIN FALLS — Weather provided variety Friday in Magic Valley. Rain, thunder, lightning and even some hail were reported around Twin Falls Friday afternoon, while mountain regions reported snow.

Reported snow was a foot of new snow falling at Sun Valley. "We didn't get much in the valley; but we got a good foot of snow on the mountain (Baldy), said Don Anderson of the Sun Valley Sports Center. He said the snow was heavy, but excellent for cover, adding that it "sweetened" conditions on the 80 percent of the mountain that is open. No new runs were expected to open, however, he said.

Pomerelle, south of Burley, had 4 inches of new snow by late afternoon, and owner Wandy Anderson said the storm was continuing. Both ski areas said forecasts are for continued storms, as more fronts move in from the West Coast.

Idaho State Police officers reported wet conditions on highways throughout Magic Valley. The Blaine area reported a house shortly after 4 a.m., left "a mess of slush," which officers Department of Law Enforcement.

No reports of damage were received, although some gutters in Twin Falls were filled to overflowing from the sudden downpour of rain and freezing temperatures. Courts expected to be obtained as soon as damage estimates are completed, DeWald said.

5 held in drug bust

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Police battled poison gas at a home suspected of being a drug manufacturing lab and arrested five people Friday, including a man wanted for a shooting earlier in the week.

John Stewart Hale, 49, of Spirit Lake, was charged with manufacture of a controlled substance and aggravated battery for allegedly wounding a California man Monday night in Spirit Lake.

Hale was also out on bond on felony drug charges stemming from the explosion of a drug lab last December in Athol.

Hale and four others were arrested after state and local authorities searched a house shortly after 4 a.m. Lt. Wayne Lumgo of the state left "a mess of slush," which officers Department of Law Enforcement.

Speakers to address religious groups

TWIN FALLS — Following are speakers due to address various religious organizations in the Magic Valley this week:

Bea Cartmel, missionary with the Christian and Missionary Alliance since 1947, will speak during the annual missions conference Sunday through Wednesday at Heritage Alliance Church, 3/4 mile south on Blue Lakes Boulevard. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

Mrs. Cartmel and her husband served in India for 20 years before accepting a teaching position at Fort Wayne Bible College. In 1984, they returned to the mission field, teaching at the Alliance Biblical Seminary in Manila, Philippines. Mrs. Cartmel has recently completed a year of missionary residence at Simpson College, an Alliance college in San Francisco.

The Alliance launched its year-long Centennial Celebration in May, 1986. It was founded in 1887 as a mission preaching society and later developed into a worldwide denomination with more than 2 million members. It continues to place a major emphasis on increasing the pace of world evangelization. Churches in the United States, Puerto Rico, Canada support 1,174 missionaries working in 231 languages and dialects.

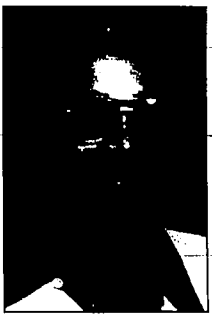

The Alliance' Centennial will culminate at its General Council to

Church news

KIMBERLY — Mary Jane Carlisle of Kimberly has been called to serve in the South Carolina, Columbia mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Carlisle has been employed at Harvey's Stationery in Twin Falls for many years.

Her farewell report will be given Sunday at 10:45 a.m. at the Kimberly 2nd Ward building, 222 Birch South in Kimberly.

Jack and Dollie Harvey, who have taught seminars on the tabernacle, will conduct a series of seven lessons, syllabus, charts and visuals they have prepared. Mrs. Harvey has also taught the subject in public high school classes in "Bible as Literature" curriculum.

Harvey says in a news release, "The tabernacle is foundational to an understanding of Scripture. Every New Testament truth is pictured in the tabernacle. The Bible devotes but two chapters to the entire creation, while more than 40 chapters are devoted exclusively to the building of the tabernacle. Apparently God felt it was of utmost importance."

The class format will be informal, and the public is invited to attend the sessions. The series will be held for an hour each Sunday for approximately six weeks.

HEYBURN — Bea Cartmel, missionary with the Christian and Missionary Alliance since 1947, will be featured speaker during the annual missions conference of Gentle Shepherd Alliance Church, Alfreo Road in Heyburn.

The conference will begin Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. with a special report on missions in Japan by Chuck and Linda Small. The Smalls are graduates of Big Sky Bible College and have served in Japan for the past 15 years with The Evangelical Alliance. Mission, and are home on furlough.

On Thursday, Mrs. Cartmel will be guest of honor at a ladies' luncheon at 1 p.m. and again at an open house at the parsonage from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Cartmel and her husband served in India for 20 years and later taught at the Alliance Biblical Seminary in Manila, Philippines.

Friday evening the teens will host an International mystery dinner at 7 p.m. and Mrs. Cartmel will speak and discuss her work in India following the meal.

Mrs. Cartmel will speak at a special Kids' Missionary Rally Saturday at 2 p.m. at the church. Children ages 4-14 are invited to attend. Activities will include learning about the building of the tabernacle. Apparently God felt it was of utmost importance."

On Sunday morning, Mrs. Cartmel will speak during the 11 a.m. worship hour.

For further information on the services, call 678-3021.

Bombing made him 'expert' — clergyman

NAMPA (AP) — A northern Idaho clergyman says he didn't become an "expert" on the human rights movement until his house was bombed by members of a neo-Nazi group.

"I made me an expert," the Rev. Bill Wassmuth said here Wednesday, in a speech to North-West Nazarene College students.

He spoke at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) as a part of NANC's Issues Awareness Week.

Wassmuth is chairman of the Kootenai Task Force on Human Relations, a group he said was formed because of the presence of the Aryan Nations.

Wassmuth described how the Aryan Nations group, led by Richard Butler, settled near Hayden Lake, and became a threat to his town.

He said the people of northern Idaho who had a generation of Scotch-Irish live and let live," said Wassmuth.

Bishop ready to lead split over women priests

LONDON (AP) — The bishop of London said Tuesday he is prepared to lead a breakaway from the Church of England if women are allowed to be priests.

River Godwin Leonard, 65, third-ranking prelate in the state church, called on opponents of women clergy to make an immediate start on planning for an historic split.

In an open statement to bishops, priests, deacons and laymen worldwide, Leonard said that once the ordination of women has begun, "those who could not remain in communion with the See of Canterbury would need to find other ways of continuing their existence within the universal church and would be entitled to explore such ways."

He said some who could not accept women priests "would claim that they represented the traditional faith and practice of the Church of England and would therefore believe themselves entitled to a share in its resources."

The church has been arguing for more than 20 years whether to open the all-male priesthood to women. A final decision is expected in the 1990s from the church's policymaking general synod of 574 bishops, clergy and laity.

Leonard has long been the leading opponent.

A minority of the 44 diocesan bishops oppose women priests. But Leonard claims about 20 percent of the 10,700 clergy support him and he said 18,000 church members have registered their opposition to the ordination of women.

The report followed a statement made last Friday by the bishops who said they were ready to help with all the processes needed to ordain women. It was signed by Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, spiritual head of the church.

The report stressed the need to keep the church united, saying that opponents of women's ordination should accept the majority view.

But the bishops recognized the extent of the opposition and said they want a code of practice for "safe" guard parishes, priests and bishops who could not accept women priests.

The bishops said full-time clergymen who resign over the issue would have to be financially compensated for 60 days of unpaid payments could wait until all church authorities had approved women priests.

Runcie heads the worldwide Anglican Communion in which nine of the 27 provinces have ordained women, 600 of them in the United States, where the move provoked controversy and breakaways.

Leonard upset Runcie and most of his fellow bishops last October when he conducted a confirmation in a traditional Episcopal parish in Oklahoma.

Tower Commission receives materials from White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Friday it has turned over thousands of documents, computer discs, telephone logs and other material to an investigatory board probing the Iran arms affair and expects "a very critical report and a very tough report."

"We have said from the beginning: Let the chips fall where they may. We'll take our lumps. Get to the bottom of this. Tell us what happened," said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

"And if this report is critical and tough and lays it all out, that's exactly what we want," he said.

Playing down reports of friction between the White House and the board, Fitzwater said the administration and the panel have a very good relationship. However, he acknowledged the White House was surprised by a request for Reagan to order two former aides — Oliver North and John Poindexter — to end their silence and testify.

Reagan denied the request, arguing that such an order would be unwieldy.

The board, named by Reagan last November and headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is reviewing some 3,000 documents and other information stored in the White House computer system.

Citing recently acquired new information, the board asked for and received an extension of its deadline for reporting its findings. The report — delayed twice — now is due Feb. 26.

Asked whether the board was investigating a cover-up by White House officials, as The Washington Post reported on Friday, Fitzwater said "that's a matter for the investigatory bodies to work out."

Reagan himself, asked whether there was a cover-up as he left the White House for a helicopter trip to the weekend presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., shook his head and said simply "No."

On the same subject, Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and a member of the special House Iran investigating panel, said in an interview that recent reports had raised questions for investigators about whether there had been efforts within the administration to cover up aspects of the scandal.

"It does become very serious if the president himself is directly involved in any obstruction of justice. Was there a plot? Did they doctor testimony? Did they destroy documents?" Fascell asked.

Fitzwater said the board has been requesting more information as it discovers "new conversations or new issues that they want to get into. We have provided everything the Tower board has asked for."

Based on his requests, he said, "it is clear to us . . . that they are doing a very thorough job."

the more critical the better."

The board is the only investigatory group that has talked with Reagan about his recollections of the affair. It also is the only panel that has reviewed typewritten transcripts of his personal notes.

Promising a quick release of the report, Fitzwater told reporters, "Our intention is to give it to you as soon as we get it." He said the board and the White House would set up a process to determine how much classified information can be contained in the document and what should be deleted.

Reagan did not take part in any illegal fund-raising for the Contra rebels in Nicaragua. ABC News said that people who contributed thousands of dollars to the Contra cause were told they would be invited to White House briefings given by the president.

Acknowledging that Reagan spoke with the groups, Fitzwater said he was "assured by White House communications chief Patrick Buchanan and Mari Maseng, the director of the public liaison office, "that fund raising has never been a part of those meetings."

However, he said he could not speak for the activities of North, who was instrumental in the meetings.

North was fired from the National Security Council staff and his boss, Poindexter, the president's national security adviser, resigned last year after disclosure that profits from the Iran arms deals were diverted to the Contras.

Reagan will answer when he gets ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan had a rare and brief exchange with reporters Friday, but his chief spokesman said the White House had made an arbitrary decision to deny journalists their best regular opportunity to question him.

As the president walked from the executive mansion to a helicopter for a flight to the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., shouting reporters asked him whether there was a cover-up of the Iran-Contra affair and whether Secretary of State George Shultz was resigning.

"No. No," the president responded. Reagan was also asked why he had not been talking to reporters more frequently.

"I've been working out with the New York Giants," joked the president, who had just come from a meeting with the winners of football's Super Bowl game.

Asked at a news briefing earlier why Reagan was being "shielded from questions," spokesman Marlin Fitzwater at first cited the president's reputation from his Jan. 5 prostate surgery.

"We've had the combination of the operation and recovery period and the nature of the coverage," he said. "Shielded from questions? What does that mean?"

"He will answer questions when he's ready and when the doctors say there are no restrictions on his activities," the spokesman said.

Reagan has not been exposed to reporters' questions at any of his meetings in the White House offices in the West Wing since Dec. 4.

Rebel leader backs off threat to quit coalition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaraguan rebel leader Arturo Cruz has withdrawn his threat to abandon his post in the United Nicaraguan Opposition and is expected to make a formal announcement next week, U.S. officials said Friday.

The circumstances of Cruz's change of heart were unclear, but it apparently came about as a result of an intense State Department mediation effort.

Cruz has had repeated clashes with his rebel colleague, Adolfo Calero, and the two Nicaraguans met separately with Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams in an attempt to work out a reconciliation.

State Department officials said they were under instructions to say nothing about the consultations, but one source said he understood an accommodation was worked out.

Abrams said Wednesday it would be a "real blow" to the resistance if Cruz were to leave UNO. Other officials, who requested anonymity, said the prospects for continued congressional support for the Contras would be sharply diminished if Cruz were to carry out his threat to resign.

Hospitalized McFarlane receives call

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Robert C. McFarlane, still hospitalized while he recovers from a drug overdose, talked briefly by telephone with President Reagan on Friday.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan telephoned McFarlane and they talked for two or three minutes. The spokesman said he did not know what was said.

McFarlane is expected to remain in the hospital at least through the weekend, his attorney said.

"He's going to have a quiet weekend," Leonard Garment said about McFarlane, who was hospitalized Monday in what a police source said was a suicide attempt.

The former national security adviser swallowed between 25 and 30 tablets of Valium, a tranquilizer, and was rushed to Bethesda Naval Hospital hours before he was to testify before a presidential commission investigating the sale of U.S. weapons to Iran.

Garment said he would not guess when McFarlane would be discharged, saying only, "He'll go home when his doctor tells him to." Asked about McFarlane's condition, his attorney said, "He's doing all right."

IRS expert discounts sapphire's worth to under $100,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Star of America" sapphire, touted by its discoverer as worth $2.28 million, is actually an "insignificant" stone worth less than one-twentieth that amount, according to gem dealers, curators and appraisers.

"I don't think the word million can enter into the conversation," said Elly Rosen, an independent appraiser who has been a consultant to the Internal Revenue Service. "I think the difficulty would be in the figures."

Roy Whetstine of Kilgore, Texas, said he similar suit was settled out of court, the newspaper said.

Cosmo Altobelli, one of several gem experts interviewed at the winter show by the newspaper, commented that "none of the people in any of the national press... ever questioned it (the value)."

"They thought it was a fairy tale story and ran with it," said Altobelli, appraisal committee chairman for the American Gem Society.

"It's an insignificant stone," said John Sampson White, curator of the National Gem and Mineral Collection at the Smithsonian Institution. "We wouldn't buy it. We wouldn't want it. I don't think even if it were offered to us. We certainly couldn't accept it as a gift, given the crazy values on it."

Whetstine provided no specifics on negotiations for the stone, which he says he bought with $5 from each of his young sons. "I bought it for them," he said. The six-pointed star has been cut and polished to a fine lavender luster.

"It is nice to see. It is an oddity... but that's it," Rosen said from New York. The man who initially appraised the stone for Whetstine, Lawrence Ward, owner of a jewelry store in Fallbrook, was dropped from membership in the American Gem Society last November over complaints that he had inflated appraisals, according to Laurie Hudson, the society's marketing manager.

He bought the stone in February 1986 and the next month had the Gemological Institute of America certify it as a 1,906-carat, natural star sapphire.

Tower Commission receives materials from White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Friday it has turned over thousands of documents, computer discs, telephone logs and other material to an investigatory board probing the Iran arms affair and exposing a very critical report and a very tough report.

"We have said from the beginning: Let the chips fall where they may. We'll take our lumps. Get to the bottom of this. Tell us what happened," said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

"And if this report is critical and tough and lays it all out, that's exactly what we want," he said.

Playing down reports of friction between the White House and the board, Fitzwater said the administration and the panel have a very good relationship. However, he acknowledged the White House was surprised by a request for Reagan to order two former aides — Oliver North and John Poindexter — to end their silence and testify.

Reagan denied the request, arguing that such an order would be unlawful.

The board, named by Reagan last November and headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is reviewing some 3,000 documents and other information stored in the White House computer system.

Citing recently acquired new information, the board asked for an extension of its deadline for reporting its findings. The report — delayed twice — now is due Feb. 26.

Asked whether the board was investigating a cover-up by White House officials, as The Washington Post reported on Friday, Fitzwater said, "That's a matter for the investigative bodies to work out."

Reagan himself, asked whether there was a cover-up as he left the White House for a helicopter trip to the weekend presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., shook his head and said simply, "No."

On the same subject, Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and a member of the special House Iran investigating panel, said in an interview that recent reports had raised questions for investigators about whether there had been efforts within the administration to cover up aspects of the scandal.

"It does become very serious if the president himself is directly involved in any obstruction of justice. Was there a plot? Did they doctor testimony? Did they destroy documents?" Fascell asked.

Fitzwater said the board has been requesting more information as it discovers "new conversations or new issues that they want to get into. We have provided everything the Tower board has asked for."

Based on its requests, he said, "it is clear to us . . . that they are doing a very thorough job."

While not providing any details on what the final report will contain, Fitzwater said, "I think it's going to be a very critical report and a very tough report, and the tougher and the more critical the better."

The board is the only investigatory group that has talked with Reagan about his recollections of the affair. It also is the only panel that has reviewed typewritten transcripts of his personal notes.

From a quick release of the report, Fitzwater told reporters, "Our intention is to give it to you as soon as we get it." He said the board and the White House would set up a process to determine how much classified information can be contained in the document and what should be deleted.

On another matter, Fitzwater said Reagan did not take part in any illegal fund-raising for the Contra rebels in Nicaragua. ABC News said that people who contributed thousands of dollars to the Contra cause were told they would be invited to White House briefings given by the president.

Acknowledging that Reagan spoke with the groups, Fitzwater said he was assured by White House communications chief Patrick Buchanan and Marj Maseng, the director of the public liaison office, "that fund raising has never been a part of those meetings."

However, he said he could not speak for the activities of North, who was instrumental in the meetings.

North was fired from the National Security Council staff and his boss, Poindexter, the president's national security adviser, resigned last year after disclosure that profits from the Iran arms deals were diverted to the Contras.

Reagan will answer when he gets ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan had a rare and brief exchange with reporters Friday, but his chief spokesman said the White House had made an arbitrary decision to deny journalists their best regular opportunity to question him.

Reagan was also asked why he had not been talking to reporters more frequently.

"I've been working out with the New York Giants," joked the president, who had just come from a meeting with the winners of football's Super Bowl game.

Asked at a news briefing earlier why Reagan was being "shielded from questions," spokesman Marlin Fitzwater at first cited the president's recuperation from his Jan. 5 prostate surgery.

"We've had the combination of the operation and recovery period and the nature of the coverage," he said. "Shielded from questions? What does that mean?"

"He will answer questions when he's ready and when the doctors say there are no restrictions on his activities," the spokesman said.

Reagan has not been exposed to reporters' questions at any of his meetings in the White House offices in the West Wing since Dec. 4.

IRS expert discounts sapphire's worth to under $100,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Star of America" sapphire, touted by its discoverer as worth $2.28 million, is actually an "insignificant" stone worth less than one-twentieth that amount, according to gem dealers, curators and appraisers.

"I don't think the word million can enter into the conversation," said Ely Rosen, an independent appraiser who has been a gem consultant to the Internal Revenue Service. "I think the difficulty would be in the five figures."

Roy Whetstone of Kilgore, Texas, said he bought the potato-sized rock last year for $10 and claimed he got offers of more than $2 million. He has been displaying it this week at the annual Winter Gem and Mineral Show in Tucson, Ariz.

"If I had any questions about the stone, I wouldn't have brought it here and put it on display," Whetstone said, according to Friday's editions of The Los Angeles Times.

The Times also reported that court records show Whetstone was ordered to pay $64,000 to a man who complained that a gem he'd been sold was overvalued. Another similar suit was settled out of court, the newspaper said.

Cosmo Altobelli, one of several gem experts interviewed at the winter show by the newspaper, commented that "none of the people in any of the national press ... ever questioned it (the value)."

"They thought it was a fairy tale story and ran with it," said Altobelli, appraisal committee chairman for the American Gem Society.

"It's an insignificant stone," said John Sampson White, curator of the National Gem and Mineral Collection at the Smithsonian Institution. "We wouldn't buy it. We wouldn't want it. I don't think, even if it were offered to us, we certainly couldn't accept it as a gift, given the crazy values on the market."

Whetstone provided no specifics on negotiations for the stone, which he says he bought with $5 from each of his young sons. "I bought it for them," he said. The six-pointed star has been cut and polished to a fine lavender luster.

"It is nice to see. It is an oddity ... but that's it," Rosen said from New York.

The man who initially appraised the stone for Whetstone, Lawrence Ward, owner of a jewelry store in Fillmore, was dropped from membership in the American Gem Society last November over complaints that he had inflated appraisals, according to Laurie Hudson, the society's marketing manager.

He bought the stone in February 1986 and the next month had the Gemological Institute of America certify it as a 1,966-carat, natural star sapphire.

L.M. Boyd What's what

FISH IN SAHARA

It happens occasionally in the Sahara Desert that people digging for water create small pools in which they catch fish. Underground streams criss-cross the Sahara. They break into the well digger's work sometimes.

Our Chief Prognosticator, who enjoys a minor interest in seismology, predicts a Richter-7.5 earthquake near New Madrid, Mo., within the next decade. He's aware, true, that three great quakes of the 8.5 variety hit New Madrid in 1811 and 1812.

COFFEE BAGS

Am told the coffee purveyors are about to come out with single-cup coffee bags. Like tea bags.

Q. If you buy a seashore lot, how far down the beach do you own the land?

A. In most states, only to the high-tide mark. In a few states, all the way to the extreme low-tide mark. In Massachusetts, a low-tide slate, nine out of every 10 miles of beach, are off-limits to the public therefore.

Q. How old is a mouse -- according to the lifespan tables -- before it's ready for retirement?

A. Two and a half years.

TEDDY'S BREAKS

When Theodore Roosevelt made up his mind as a boy to build up his puny body, he showed some dedication, all right. In his exercises to that end, he broke his arm, wrist, nose, shoulder and several ribs.

The year Thomas Jefferson became President, one out of every five individuals in the United States was a slave.

Weather reporters say their four-day forecasts now are about as accurate as were their two-day forecasts a decade ago.

Takes about seven seconds from the first puff for the nicotine in the cigarette smoke to reach the brain.

Used to be the key ingredients in Coca-Cola were secret. It's now reported Coke includes extracts from the cola nut, coca leaf, cinnamon, vanilla, nutmeg, lime juice and lavender plus caffeine. What else it contains remains a secret.

Town not aglow with idea of Stallone as possible resident

BEACON, N.Y. (AP) — Yo, Beacon. Sly Stallone may be coming to town.

The rumor is that the star of the "Rambo" and "Rocky" movies is looking for a getaway home here, but some residents are not impressed.

"We've already-got our national celebrities," said Dave Burke, owner of Bob's Corner Store. "We've got Mello Bettina and Digger Phelps."

Bettina is a former boxing champion, Phelps is Notre Dame basketball coach, and both are Beacon natives.

"Sylvester Stallone who?" asked Alice DeGroat after handing her state lottery ticket to Georgia Joseph, a clerk behind the counter at Bob's. "Oh, Rocky. Sure, let him come here. The more the better."

Dani C. Nelson, a New York City developer, said Stallone has visited Dutchess County to look at property Nelson wants to develop.

The Mid-Hudson Vietnam Veterans Outreach Center in Beacon got a $500 check from Stallone earlier this week. The check was delivered by Jonathan Slocum, former owner of Nelson's property, who got the check from Nelson.

Nelson said the check was Stallone's attempt to "right a situation." Several weeks ago the veterans had received only an autographed photo in response to their request for a donation.

Kathleen Kennedy has campaign politician post

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — As politician-in-residence at Goucher College, Kathleen Kennedy Townsend will be doing a lot of what politicians usually do. But it may sound a bit academic.

The daughter of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy won't be making speeches, taking meetings or pressing the flesh, but she will be delivering lectures, holding seminars and introducing herself to students and faculty, Goucher announced Thursday.

Her first lecture, due Feb. 25, is titled, "Can You Call It Courage? Political Commitment in a Passive Era."

Goucher's first politician-in-residence was recently appointed to the Baltimore County Economic Development Commission after losing a tight congressional race to Republican Rep. Helen Delich Bentley in November.

Paul Simon has 16 tons of equipment for tour

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — One thing you can say about pop stars on tour is that they don't travel light.

When Paul Simon flew into Zimbabwe on Friday he was accompanied by several black South African musicians, but most of the tour's baggage was already here.

It weighs 16 tons and is worth $2.2 million.

Simon is here for concerts Saturday and Sunday based on his best-

More charges in club crimes

DENVER (AP) — New charges have been filed against a teen-ager who was accused of being involved in a series of golf-club attacks last month.

Sixteen additional counts have been filed against Gerald Graham, Chief Deputy Denver District Attorney Mike Little said Thursday.

Graham, 18, who is in jail on $1 million bond, was charged on Wednesday with counts involving seven victims, including robbery, aggravated robbery, attempted aggravated robbery and second-degree assault, authorities said.

Graham and a juvenile were arrested in the series of assaults last week after they were spotted leaving a stolen car in which police later found golf clubs. Several other juveniles were arrested the next night.

Meanwhile, police have begun to beef up their monitoring of gang activity.

Chief Thomas Coogan and several officers met to discuss the new strategy, under which patrol officers will be ordered to watch carefully for gang activity.

Sheriff's men in hot water

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Angry customers said sheriff's officials took them to the cleaners when they dumped clothes on the street after evicting a laundry owner.

Passing motorists made off with whatever took their fancy.

Jefferson County sheriff's spokesman Bob Deutsch said deputies were following the law when they piled the clothing outside Scotch Professional Dry Cleaning.

"It's in the statutes that we have no obligation to guard the property even if it's susceptible to theft," he said. "But looking back, perhaps there was something else that could have been done."

Deutsch said the laundry-owner had been warned that eviction was imminent and should have notified his customers.

selling album, "Graceland," and the equipment is needed to record a video of the tour.

Simon was accompanied by South African singer Miriam Makeba, trumpeter Hugh Masekela and the choral group Ladysmith Black Mambazo, featured on "Graceland." The album has been nominated for four Grammy awards, including album of the year.

Simon's manager, Andrew Zwick, said he expected Harare's 45,000-seat soccer stadium to sell out. The musicians have waived fees for the local concerts, part of a three-continent tour, and proceeds will go to charities that benefit lepers, cripples and orphans.

Simon was briefly blacklisted by the United Nations after being accused of violating a cultural boycott of South Africa when he made part of "Graceland" at a Johannesburg studio.

Georgia model wins Miss Photogenic award

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Sophia Marie Bowen, Georgia's entry in the Miss USA pageant, said she heard other contestants say they thought she'd win, but until the Miss Photogenic award was announced she didn't believe it.

The brown-haired, green-eyed model and fitness instructor was voted most photogenic of the 52 Miss USA contestants Thursday night by photographers.

"The whole key is being positive; I try to be positive about everything," she said.

The 5-foot-10 Marietta resident said the award was meaningful even though it has no bearing on the selection of Miss USA. The pageant's finals are Tuesday.

Boy George testifies at trial he lies to media

LONDON (AP) — Boy George, the Culture Club singer known for his androgynous dress and pancake makeup, admitted at a drug trial that he lies to the media.

In testimony at London's Knightsbridge Crown Court, Boy George also said he bought heroin at the apartment of Steven Luben, 38, and Diane Flener, 34, who have pleaded innocent to charges of supplying heroin to unidentified people.

"Why should I tell about my life to the press and be truthful?" the singer asked when an attorney queried him Thursday about contradictory reports on the extent of his drug addiction last year.

Boy George, whose real name is George O'Dowd, was convicted and fined about $370 last summer for possessing heroin. He was arrested again Dec. 20 on suspected drug offenses, but has not been charged.

"Boy George was a likely target because his wealth was such that he could afford to pay. Feiner and Luben fastened on to him like leeches," prosecutor David Bate said at the opening of the trial.

"The law blames Luben and Feiner. I don't blame them. I'm not a policeman," Boy George said. "I don't want anyone else to take the blame for what I have done or have been through," he said.

Wild tales add to mystery of Waite fate

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Speculation and wild reports have, if anything, deepened the mystery of what happened to Terry Waite after the Anglican envoy left his hotel Jan. 20 to negotiate for the freedom of American hostages.

TERRY WAITE Last seen on Jan. 20

He was on his fifth hostage mission since November 1985 as the personal emissary of Dr. Robert Runcie, the archbishop of Canterbury, and dropped out of sight eight days after arriving in Beirut.

Waite has been reported taken hostage, tried in a kangaroo court, shot trying to escape, traveling in Syrian-controlled east Lebanon, kidnapped by the KGB and, most recently, seen in Moslem west Beirut by taxi drivers who knew him.

There are many bearded men in Lebanon, but not beaklike ones who stand 6-foot-7 and weigh 230 pounds, so Waite would not be easy to miss on the street.

He left the Riviera Hotel in west Beirut, dodging reporters, photographers and television crews, for what apparently was a meeting with the captors of two Americans, journalist Terry Anderson and educator Thomas Sutherland.

Nabih Berri, Lebanon's justice minister and leader of the Shilite Moslem militia Amal, has said twice that Waite would be released. Berri has described the 47-year-old church envoy's status as "arrested, but not kidnapped" — apparently by pro-Israeli Shilite fundamentalists of Islamic Jihad, whose captives include Anderson and Sutherland. The United States seeks Hamadi's extradition on murder and air piracy charges in the June 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner to Beirut in which U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem was killed and 39 Americans were held hostage for 17 days.

Hamadi's arrest led to "a split within the ranks of the hostage-holders," the Lebanese official said. "One wing wanted to hold Waite pending the release of Hamadi; the other wanted Waite freed."

A Lebanese security official, usually well informed on underground matters, said Waite has been in west Beirut all the time.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Waite's Druse militia escort drove him to the west Beirut residence of Shilite gynecologist Adnan Mroueh, a former health minister, the evening of Jan. 20.

"A Shilite Moslem official of the American University Hospital drove Waite from Dr. Mroueh's residence to the Bir el-Abed district the same evening," the official said. Bir el-Abed is a Shilite stronghold in south Beirut.

He described the man as "an executive of the hospital," but would not give his name.

According to the security official, Waite's main problem on the current mission was the arrest Jan. 13 in West Germany of Mohammed Ali Hamadi, a 22-year-old Shiite.

The United States seeks Hamadi's extradition on murder and air piracy charges in the June 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner to Beirut in which U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem was killed and 39 Americans were held hostage for 17 days.

Hamadi's arrest led to "a split within the ranks of the hostage-holders," the Lebanese official said. "One wing wanted to hold Waite pending the release of Hamadi; the other wanted Waite freed."

A foreign power, which has influence on both wings, has been keeping Waite as a de facto guest pending a solution to either the split or the Hamadi case," he added without elaboration.

An official of Waild Jumblatt's Druse militia, which was in charge of Waite's security, also said the envoy had remained in Beirut.

Eleven foreigners, including three Americans, have been kidnapped since Waite arrived. Foreigners missing in Lebanon now total 26: eight Americans, six Frenchmen, two Britons, two West Germans, two Saudi Arabians, an Italian, an Irishman, an Indian, a South Korean and two men who have not been identified.

Gunmen kill Iranian envoy, stop food run

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen killed an Iranian envoy and foiled a mercy mission Friday when they fired on two U.N. trucks carrying food to besieged and hungry Palestinian refugees, police reported.

They said the Iranian was in an ambulance accompanying the two trucks into the Bourj el-Barajneh refugee camp, which has been under siege by the Shilite Moslem militia Amal for 11 weeks.

The ambulance managed to enter the camp as the gunmen opened fire with automatic weapons, police said.

"The Iranian delegate was hit in the head and died later," they said.

The Iranian Embassy identified the victim as Musa Hammoud. It said in a statement he was part of a delegation sent by Iran's revolutionary patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, to help end the fighting at the camps.

Police said the gunmen shot the trucks' tires out. One witness, who declined to be identified by name, said the drivers jumped out and ran for cover.

A Palestinian spokesman, who declined to be identified, blamed Justice Minister Nabih Berri's Amal fighters for the shooting.

Amal accused the Palestinians of firing at the food convoy from inside Bourj el-Barajneh.

The United Nations Relief and Works Agency, which sponsored the relief mission, also donated two truckloads of food supplies to Shilite Moslems living in slums around the camp, police said.

The foiled mission came after day-long clashes in Beirut and an Israeli air raid against Palestinian positions in south Lebanon.

Libyan planes bomb 2 towns in Chad

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Libyan warplanes bombed the northern Chadian desert towns of Fada and Zouar, Chad radio reported Friday.

The brief broadcast, monitored in Abidjan, also said that "after a short lull, the Libyan Army has returned to the offensive" with attacks on the two towns Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

The report made no mention of casualties.

Libyan television reported on Thursday "heavy human and material losses" had been inflicted during a guerrilla ground attack on Chadian forces in the northeast, but denied its troops were involved.

Charges of massacre bring military probe

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The military on Friday ordered an investigation of charges that soldiers massacred at least seven civilians after a battle with rebels in the bloodiest violence since a cease-fire ended five days ago.

In other developments: Two rebels were wounded in a clash with soldiers near Davao City.

About 800 people rallied outside a U.S. air base to demand an investigation of reports that nuclear weapons are deployed there.

A rebel leader on the main Luzon island rejected government overtures for regional peace talks.

Insurgents on southern Mindanao island announced the formation of a provisional council, to be the forerunner of a rival national government.

Armed Forces chief Gen. Fidel V. Ramos ordered an investigation of reports in The Philippine Star news paper that troops killed civilians Tuesday in retaliation for the death of a lieutenant slain by the Communist New People's Army.

The violence occurred in a farming community near Lupao in Nueva Ecija province, 90 miles north of the capital of Manila.

Ramos said Thursday that 38 people have been killed since the 60-day cease-fire ended Sunday.

Duarte says extremist attitudes bar solutions

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte says extremists on both ends of the political spectrum are equally destructive and are blocking solutions to the country's problems.

The Christian Democrat, who took office in 1984, faces one of his worst political crises because of widespread discontent over recent tax increases and other austerity measures.

At the same time, fighting continues between leftist rebels and the U.S.-backed military after three failed rounds of peace talks.

"Have you ever found any guerrillas in the world who say they're willing to surrender? ... What they want to discuss is not the end of the war, but power," Duarte told The Associated Press in an interview Thursday.

Duarte said he is ruling out serious negotiations with the rebels until they lay down their arms. The guerrillas have said that if they disarm, there is nothing to talk about.

Duarte also blamed the rightists for adding to what he calls a "pre-revolutionary spiral." He noted that conservatives at all levels last year attempted to incite the military into overthrowing his government, but failed.

Right-wing political parties recently staged a legislative boycott to protest new taxes on income and luxury items. Last month, they staged a widespread, day-long general strike against the measures.

Criticism wins praise

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev praised criticism by the Soviet media that exposes official shortcomings but told press and broadcast officials Friday that no one, including them, is the final authority on the truth.

The agency said the Soviet leader also told senior officials of the Soviet Union's mass media that they should consider Soviet history "as it was."

"We had everything, we had mistakes, and bad ones at that, but we were moving forward," Gorbachev said.

passed its judgment on mistakes and miscalculations, on our delusions. But even at that time, the party was living and fighting."

Since Gorbachev came to power in March 1985, the Kremlin has encouraged "glasnost," or openness in the state-run media that allows a wider discussion of selected social problems.

Gorbachev and his followers have sharply criticized social and economic stagnation under President Leonid I. Brezhnev, who died in 1982. But some events in the Soviet past, such as mass repression and purges under Josef Stalin, have remained taboo.

Pro football can no longer take the networks for granted

By GREG GARBNER
The Hartford Courant

For many years, the National Football League has lived in a prosperous world of its economic trends, the league's owners have operated secure in the knowledge that a fall-safe was in place.

Television was the golden goose. With every new contract, owners sold their coffers filled with 250 percent increases. In 1982, the three major networks paid $2.1 billion for a five-year contract to televise NFL games. CBS ($750 million), ABC ($570 million) and NBC ($540 million) kept the NFL teams fat and happy through last season.

And now the plug has been pulled, relatively speaking. When sponsors began rejecting the networks' across-the-board 15 percent annual increases in advertising prices in the fall of 1983, the delicate balance of the NFL's television contract was lost. To wit: The networks actually lost money on NFL football for the first time, a collective $50 million on the package that expired Feb. 1. The skepticism born of this financial surprise has left the NFL in an unprecedented position — leverage has shifted to the networks.

"I've never been through anything like this," said Cleveland owner Art Modell, chairman of the NFL's television committee, earlier this week in a break from negotiations. "Nothing is automatic any more. Nothing is being taken for granted."

Modell has been commuting between his Cleveland office and New York since the end of November. He and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle have been meeting separately with the heads of the networks' sports divisions. There is a lot on the line.

Consider that each of the NFL's 28 teams averaged a $14.7 million share of the television kitty for each of the past five years. None of the league's teams, including the New York Giants, who sell out a 76,000-seat stadium for every home game, can even approach that figure in annual ticket revenue. It's likely that the new package, probably a three-year deal, will not offer significantly more.

"We need a reduction in order to make money in 1987," said Neal Pilson, president of CBS Sports, the week before Super Bowl XXI. "We've reached a ceiling. I said 2½ years ago that the cycle of escalating rights fees for sports eventually had to slow down. That's where we are now. You'll see it first with the NFL, then with baseball."

Adding to the NFL difficulties is the new management in place at all three networks. Capital Cities-ABC Inc. owns ABC, General Electric controls NBC and Larry Tisch is chairman of CBS. Budgetary restraint has been a familiar theme with these new managers.

The NFL, long astute in television matters, hasn't been caught completely unaware.

"The two significant issues are," Pilson said, "one, the economics and, two, whether or not the NFL will bring in a fourth carrier."

—HBO, Showtime, ESPN, Turner Broadcasting System and Fox Broadcasting all have shown an interest in the NFL. One is quite likely to come away with a five-to-eight-game prime-time package.

Five of these games were part of ABC's "Monday Night Football" deal. With ABC already committed to cut those games out of the budget, the NFL plans to add three games to the package to air Thursday and Sunday nights. The additional games will be chosen during the second half of the season to avoid a conflict with post-season baseball.

Obviously, this doesn't sit well with the networks.

"We would be opposed to such a package and don't think one would be in the best interest of the NFL," Pilson said. "For one thing, if the fourth carrier is supported by commercials, such as ESPN, then the advertising marketplace for NFL football is diluted. Because of that, there would be less revenue coming from the networks."

HBO reportedly has the early lead among the cable interests, but not because it functions without commercials. Money will be the bottom line, and HBO has shown a willingness in the past to part with it in large amounts. If the networks come up with more, cable may not be invited to join the club.

Lifestyles of the rich, famous and pestered

Young zillionaires feel the pressure

By JOHN NELSON
The Associated Press

When she was 21, Nancy Lopez felt like she was 26. Before long, she was crying herself to sleep at night. Boris Becker is 19 and feels like he's 24. He long since fled his hometown for privacy.

"When you're young, deep down inside you can't cope," Lopez said. "You think you can, but you really can't."

"Sports zillionaires — I'm going on 50, hounded for time and money, pestered by agents and friends looking for meal tickets."

Fame is thrust upon them at an age when their peers worry about acne and dating.

It happened to Dwight Gooden. Mike Tyson, too.

"You wake up one morning, and all of a sudden you've got more money and more attention than you ever dreamed of, more people who want a piece of you than you ever dreamed possible," Michael Jordan said.

It was in her third season that Nancy Lopez's life began to crumble. Barely 20 years old, she won a record nine tournaments in her 1978 rookie season, perking up her tour the way Arnold Palmer revived the men's game 20 years earlier. She was No. 1 again in '79 with eight victories. She married sportscaster Tim Melton on Jan. 6, 1979, her 22nd birthday.

In 1980, she won four events, three in '81 and two in '82. She lost her golf swing and gained weight.

"I had gotten married, and I kind of stopped working my game," Lopez said. "I got into bad habits. I didn't practice. I was miserable. I cried every day back at the hotel. I was really disgusted with myself."

She was on the road 10 months of the year, playing in 25 tournaments as a rookie. In '79 and '80 in each of the next two seasons. In her spare time, she managed a growing endorsement empire, which now includes accounts with Nabisco, Dingo-Johnson shoes, Geritol and interests in Japan.

She and Melton were divorced in May 1982.

"My husband really couldn't handle the time that I was away from him and the things I was doing to further my career," Lopez said. She also said she was worried, at one point, that Melton "was marrying me for my money."

Now working in Houston, Melton told The Associated Press he was not ready to talk about the breakup.

Lopez said her false sense of maturity contributed.

"It was an unreal time," she said. "All the time I was winning, I never got to sit back and enjoy it because I was so busy. It's hard for me to even remember what happened because I never absorbed it."

"My biggest problem was getting married at 21. When I was 19, I never thought I would have gotten married at 21. But when I was 21, I thought I was 26. I felt like I was grown up, but I really wasn't."

"The way my career started, I felt like I really was thrown into golfing up too quick."

"Lopez is 30 now. She was No. 1 again in 1985, setting records for single-season earnings ($416,472) and scoring average (70.73). She took off most of last season to have her second daughter — with Ray Knight, whom she married in 1983.

Their home on Trowbridge Road, in a pricey section of Albany, Ga., has a batting cage on the back and a Volvo in the driveway. Knight won the car as MVP of the World Series with the New York Mets.

Lopez's first victory this season at Sarasota, Fla., was the 35th of her career, qualifying her for the Hall of Fame. It was her dream as well as her father's.

Before she ever went on tour, Domingo Lopez admonished his daughter: "Even if you're the greatest player in the world, and the richest player in the world, you be the same Nancy."

"I told her, 'You don't see people like some women do. They get good and turn their backs on people. Those people are the ones who like you and they keep you where you are.'"

"That's why she's still my Nancy."

Elvira Becker watched her red-haired, freckle-faced son of 17 walk through the lobby of an English hotel on his way to the awards dinner. Boris Becker, who had just won Wimbledon, was dressed in a white dinner jacket — suave and elegant, looking more like '007 than Tom Sawyer.

"He's not our little boy anymore," she said.

Becker, now 19, has since won another Wimbledon title. His earnings in 1986, including endorsements, were estimated at $10 million, and sports newspapers report his career bankroll already at $24 million.

West Germans, particularly teen-agers, gave him a hero's welcome in 1985 when he became the youngest player to win Wimbledon. The love affair lasted until they found out he had left home for Monte Carlo.

Becker was criticized by reporters and by the German parliament for pulling up stakes. He said he wanted privacy, but he was accused of leaving for tax purposes and to escape military service in his homeland. An "Anti-See PRESSURE on Page B2"

Dick Vitale: A voice that could peel the skin off a potato

By NORMAN CHAD
The Washington Post

He is Dick Vitale. He's in our homes and he cannot be ignored any longer. He's the Crazy Eddie of college basketball, shouting and screaming to more than 40 million homes, and squealing and squealing endlessly.

From pre-game to post-game, he is in overdrive. He goes from zero to 60 in less than five seconds and races through the consciousness indiscriminately. If you're in his way — which means you happen to be watching the game — he'll be shouting and screaming and running over by halftime and run over again and again and again until the final buzzer.

You can turn the sound down on your TV set and still hear him.

Vitale, 48, once was just a cult hero of sorts on ESPN. But these days the cable network goes to more than 40 million homes, and this season, Vitale has joined ABC as analyst for its Sunday afternoon college telecasts. So now, Vitale has become more than a small anomaly. After all, anyone could accidentally stumble upon him because he's available on free television.

Analysis

This is a state of video emergency. Like the supermarket checkout counters that don't stock candy or the prescription counters with hard-to-open bottle caps, TV sets ought to be equipped with devices to prevent young children and otherwise sensitive and emotionally troubled individuals from seeing an ABC basketball game with Vitale.

There is an up side to Vitale's color work — he has a lot of interesting opinions and an unquenchable love and knowledge of the game. But there is a down side — he expresses those opinions over and over again.

His voice could peel the skin off a potato, and when he's on one of his shrill riffs, he only braves for small animals and commercials.

He went from coaching the University of Detroit to coaching the NBA's Detroit Pistons in 1979, and after he was fired 10 games into his second season, Vitale landed with ESPN. He's been with ESPN for eight years.

"I have a three-fold approach," Vitale said recently. "One, I try to be as enthusiastic as is possible. ... Two, I like to believe I'm as prepared as anyone in the business. I eat, drink and sleep the game. Three, I try to be candid and objective. I try to entertain and educate."

Indeed, Vitale succeeds in his goals — he is enthusiastic, prepared and candid. And Vitale often offers sharp analysis. But his preparation can be unhelpful to the sober, sane fan who just wants to know the score. The game is almost just a backdrop for him; his play-by-play partners act almost as props. In his obsession to entertain, he forgets to pause from time to time to let us catch our breath.

"Sometimes he's hype — it seems as if every other player or team is the greatest 'this or the greatest that. Sometimes he's honest — he'll tell us that a rout is a rout — but he'll do it his way: 'Blowout City, here we come!'"

Then, of course, there are his trademark expressions. A long shot is a "Reeggie" and a short shot is a "Pete Rose." An unselfish player is a "blender" and a big player is a "human spaceshuttle." Players who try harder but get no respect are on his All-Axis Team and players who are sleepers are on his All-Rip van Winkle Team. (See accompanying glossary for a closer look at the language that makes Latin look practical in modern America.)

For all of his sayings, his signature call is the "Siam, Bam, Jam!!!!" that he thunders when a player makes an impressive dunk. When Vitale's in form, his "Siam, Bam, Jam!!!!" can shake a TV set off its stand.

Unquestionably, he has a following. At many of the games ESPN does, students wear "Dick Vitale Fan Club" T-shirts, which might indicate that a college education ain't what it used to be. Other viewers, with or without a college background, also might enjoy his comments much the same way that some people enjoy hitting their head against a wall repeatedly.

He was asked recently about his unbending carnival-barker's approach, the fact that he comes across like a neon-filled, billboard-plastered highway. "If you were around me, you'd find out I'm a likable guy. I'm an overachiever, there's no question in my mind," he said. "I'm an enthusiastic, up-tempo type of guy. ... I can keep people's interest. I'm not the type of guy who puts you in Z'sville."

Kimberly downs the Pilots, 38-27

By LARRY HOVEY

BLACKFOOT — It was obvious these teams had met before.

For the fifth time this season, the Kimberly Bulldogs defeated Glens Ferry — this time 38-27 — to advance to the consolation finals of the Idaho Class A-3 girls' basketball tournament Friday.

The Bulldogs will play defending state champion Grace, a 55-34 winner over New Plymouth in the other loser-out game here Friday, for the consolation trophy and fourth-place in this tournament — this morning at 10:15 at Blackfoot High School.

The game passed largely without a lot of enthusiasm — typical of most consolation battles. The difference this time seemed to be the early push that Audra Urie provided for the Bulldogs, plus some early points from Cindy Holcomb. Kimberly led 22-13 at halftime and it was never closer thereafter.

Urie provided six points plus two good assists and most of the rebounding to help the Bulldogs into a 13-6 advantage early in the second quarter. That lead immediately grew to 10 points on Holcomb's three-point play inside.

Glens Ferry's Barb Johannek hit eight first-half points in an effort to keep things close, but found little scoring support from her teammates. Throughout the second half, she was a matter-of-factly hitting eight points in the third quarter to keep the lead out in the 12-to-13-point area. Holcomb later left the game with a leg injury, but by then Glens Ferry had lost Johannek and Kelli King to fouls and had little offensive punch.

Kimberly Coach Wes Remaley said simply, "We were trying to do the same things we tried to do all year — keep Johannek off the baseline. If she drives the baseline at all, she can score a lot of points."

Remaley added he felt his Bulldogs, "played better this afternoon than I did yesterday (in an opening-round loss to Prairie of

Bliss Bears fall to Greenleaf, 44-30

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BLACKFOOT — The foot in the frame of Suzi Jones completely eclipsed the state championship hopes of the Bliss Bears Friday night as the Greenleaf Friends Academy senior scored 22 points in pacing the Grizzlies to a 44-30 victory in the semifinal of the Idaho Class A-4 girls' state basketball tournament.

Earlier Friday, defending state champ Shoshone stayed alive in the consolation bracket with a 49-45 win over Salmon River of Riggin.

The loss by Bliss put the Bears in to a 3:15 p.m. showdown today at Blackfoot High School against Council for the third-place trophy in this tournament. The Lumberjacks lost to Genesee in the tournament's 12th of her points.

the short Bliss lineup faced, however, as Greenleaf had three more players in the 5-to 5-11 range and that gave the Grizzlies complete domination of the inside both offensively and defensively.

Bliss had to play a half-court game offensively and was forced to rely on perimeter shooting. At times the Bears hit a few long shots, but the percentage was all with Greenleaf. The smaller Bliss team was again ineffective in their tight defense, harassing Greenleaf and surprisingly staying well in contention into the third quarter.

But the game started to unravel on the Bears when JoAnn Riggs scored six straight points for the Grizzlies in the second quarter which helped the District 3 champions build an 18-11 margin. Jennifer Kast

Parma Panthers dominate Thursday's A-3 wrestling action

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Parma Panthers dominated Thursday's action in the Idaho Class A-3 state high school wrestling tournament here with over a 40-0 point lead over second-place Tetoum of Driggs.

The Panthers ended the first day of a three-day tournament with 85.5 points while Redskins, the second-place team, had only 45. The nearest Magic Valley team, Gooding, had 21 points, good enough for eighth place after two rounds in the 30-team field.

The tournament will continue through Saturday.

There were some successes Thursday for Magic Valley wrestlers. Gooding's Brett Bingham, the No.

1-seed in the 98-pound class, coasted into the third round by pinning his two opponents, Frankie Rollins of Kootenai and Charlie Brown of Sugar-Salem. The Gooding sophomore will face Nat Waldron of West Side of Dayton today.

Bingham's teammate Chet Loveland, also advanced to the third round in the 105-pound class. Loveland, like Bingham, No. 1 seed, crushed Tetoum's Greg Nelson 15-0, then pinning Grace's Robert Pearson in the second round.

At 119, Jim Brady of Wendell upset the third seed, Aberdeen's Aaron Beck, 8-6 in the second round to advance in the winner's bracket. Brady had drawn a first-round bye.

Brady's teammate, Greg Hiral, the third seed at 126, advanced to the third round with style by pinning Grace's Shaun Perkins in only 35 seconds. The Wendell senior will face Dion Zimmerman of Parma, the second seed, today.

One of the most promising of area wrestlers, First's James Schroeder, drew a first-round bye at 167, then dethroned Homeless's John Hyde 6-1 to advance. The Filser senior, the No. 1 seed in the weight class, will face Sam Richey of North Fremont of Ashton today.

Kimberly's Chad Zea pinned Malad's Randy Skidmore, the second seed at 185, in the third period of his second-round match. Riding the tide of the upsets, Zea will face Shawn Riley of Parma in today's semifinals.

The only other Magic Valley wrestler to end the day undefeated, Filer's Toby Kastor, pinned Clearwater Valley's Bill Jackson in his first-round match, then defeated Darin Wood of Sugar-Salem in the second round 15-4.

Other area wrestlers didn't fare so well. Doug Hunter of Oakley lost 23-3 to West Jefferson's Kip Messerl in the 98-pound division; Gooding's pastor Bradshaw was pinned by Tetoum's Matt Green at 105; Damon Schott of Wendell lost to Mario D'Oraz of Challis 4-0 at 112; in the same class, Gooding's Cory Child lost to Kamiah's Ed Alva 15-2; Dustin Watson of Kimberly was pinned by Scott Price of Sugar-Salem at 119.

After drawing a bye in the first round, Oakley's Doug Van Tassel lost of Ririe's Kris Parker 11-6 at 119; his teammate, Zane Milton, lost to New Plymouth's Mike Phillips 12-4 at 126; Filer's Richard James lost to Doug Ball of West Jefferson 14-4 at 135; Mike Jenks of Oakley won his first-round 132-pound match by pinning Harry Bain of Pocatello, then lost a 12-11 decision to Rocco D'Orazio of Challis; John Simon of Glenns Ferry lost to Joe Hewerd of North Fremont 12-6 at 138; Gooding's Jason Cheney lost his first-round 138-pound match to Pocatello's Jim Carpenter 7-6; Tim Mood of Kimberly lost to West Jefferson's Darrin Wood 15-0 also at 138; Jon Hartway of Glenns Ferry was pinned by John Wilson of Clearwater Valley in his first-round 145-pound match. Rich Hill of Gooding was pinned by Brad Hill of Tetoum at 145.

Deco's only state wrestler, Jeff Talford, was pinned by Parma's Troy Ford at 155; Kimberly's Doug McAdams was pinned by New Plymouth's Shon Smith in the 155-pound class; McAdams' teammate, Kevin McAdams, also lost his first 155-pound match, at a 10-0 decision to North Fremont's Frank Eggert; Tim Martin, also of Kimberly, was pinned by Tetoum's Nick Suwyn at 167; Filer's Bruce Huetl lost a 10-8 first-round 185-pound match to Clearwater Valley's Steve Lyons; Gooding's Yancey Yere was pinned by Parma's Paul Garza in the heavyweight division, and David Anderson of Glenns Ferry was also pinned, losing to Dean Butterfield of Pocatello after drawing a first-round

TWIN FALLS — Led by the strong wrestling of Rob Gamache, Derek Rutherford and Lon Egbert, the Jerome Tigers ended the first day of action at the Idaho Class A-2 state wrestling tournament in fifth place.

Through two rounds of action, Snake River High School of Moreland and Lakeland of Benewah were neck-and-neck at the top of the 25-team field. Snake River, which has won three of the last five state titles, led with 67.5 points while the Hawks followed with 63.5. Jerome had 28.

Gamache, the No. 4 seed in the 126-pound class, began his wrestling in the second round after drawing a bye in the first. For his only match of the day, Gamache drew Marty Huest of Weiser and had a tough go of it before finally winning on a 5-2 decision.

Gamache's teammate Rutherford easily pinned his second-round opponent, Aaron Huff of Wallace, with 55 seconds left in the first period.

Rutherford, the No. 1 seed in the 138-pound class, had beaten David Blochman of Marsh Valley earlier in the day on a 16-0 decision.

After crushing Mark Skelton of Boise's Bishop Kelly High School in the first round, Egbert, the No. 2 at 145, dethroned Lakeland's Ron Starr 9-0 in the second round.

Becker Club" was formed by a Frankfurt post office worker, and there were three threats.

At the same time, he was applauded at home for being named sports ambassador of UNICEF, and he was still pursued by the media. Demands from the press became so intense he signed a contract with West Germany's largest circulation newspaper, Bild-Zeitung, to limit his exclusive interviews.

Out of this mixed bag of adoration and revilement, Becker says he most misses his freedom and lost youth. "Others think he's just another spoiled tennis brat.

"It's not easy for me to walk around the streets at home anymore," Becker said. "I can walk in the streets in Monte Carlo, and I can go to the movies. I can go to discos, and I won't be mobbed by fans like I am in Germany."

"Said his manager, Ion Tiriac: "Being young or being old, you can't help but be the center of attention. He's handled it decently. He has to get used to it and cope with it."

Meantime, Becker says he has aged beyond his years. "I feel like I'm 24, not 19, like I skipped a few years in my life."

Last month his trainer, Guenther

Bosch, quit after Becker spelt at the tennis, broke his racket and threw tennis balls at the crowd while logging to a nobody in the Australian Open. Bosch said Becker had poor work habits, and he feared further association with Becker would "put my good name at risk."

slow Tiger comeback, bringing them to within eight before Dietrich's Rick Astle and Mike Robbins combined for seven unanswered points giving the Devils a 35-30 cushion going into the final period.

Bowers scored four quick points at the start of the fourth period, trying for a second comeback. It seemed this time it would turn into something substantial as Dietrich's offensive mistakes were numerous, but again it was short-lived. The Devils pushed to a 20-point lead behind their consistent shooting and Richfield couldn't gain any ground against the deficit.

Stoddard led all scorers with 27 points, while Bowers topped the Tigers with 21.

Gooding beats Trojans, clinch title

GOODING — Late Hutcherson scored 21 points and Todd Kimball added 19 hers. Friday night as Gooding clinched the Canyon Conference boys' basketball championship with a 81-61 victory over Wendell.

The win, which put the Senators at the 500 mark for the first time this season, gave Gooding the top seed and a first-round bye in next week's District 4 Class A-3 tournament, which starts Thursday in Wendell.

Boise St.-Vandal rematch like original

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

MOSCOW — When Boise State hosted the University of Idaho a month ago in the BSU Pavilion before a Big Sky Conference-record crowd of 12,255, the Broncos were hoping for a victory that would boost their 12-2 record and legitimize their claim as the league's front-runner.

Big Sky

Game of the Week

weekend and a 35-point romp over Eastern Washington Boise Wednesday night. The Broncos are 16-5 for the season, in third place in the league standings with a 6-3 record and in a good position to at least tie for the regular-season Big Sky championship with league-leading Montana State and runner-up Montana State scheduled to play in Boise next week.

Things, according to BSU Coach Bobby Dye, are going too well.

"Any time you're as high as we were coming back from Idaho State... you know the old adage: What goes up must come down," he said.

The Broncos could crash in the Kibbie Dome tonight, but the Vandals would have to play better than they have been recently for that to happen. Idaho has lost two straight — by an average of 26 points — and five of its last six, going from the top of the Big Sky after the BSU game last week with Nevada-Reno for fifth place pending tonight's games. The Vandals rank last in the league in field goal offense, fifth in rebounding and fourth in field goal percentage.

"We're not the type of team that can shoot the ball poorly and hang in there," said Floyd. "Last weekend (against Idaho State and Weber State) our guards shot just 33 percent. Last weekend we got ourselves into a rebounding game with Idaho State and Weber, and when you're 67 and 6-4 that doesn't work to your advantage. We have to start taking better shots and get out of the perimeter game."

Floyd is also disturbed as what's happened in his defense, which is second in the Big Sky with an average of 63.1 points.

"We gave up 88 points at Weber, which is something this team can't do," he said. "All year long, we've had three guys, basically, doing our scoring — (junior point guard Vinson) Metcalf, (junior guard Ken) Luckett and sophomore forward Andrew) Jackson. There are very few games when those guys are going produce 88 points among them, so it's obvious we have to improve our defense."

Idaho's best defensive effort of the season was the previous Boise State game, when the Vandals limited the Broncos' guard to 5-for-33 shooting from the floor.

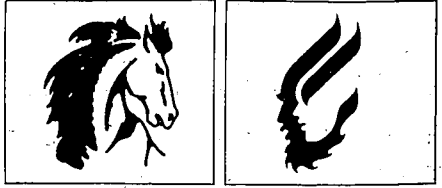

"We can't expect that to happen again," Floyd said. "So we've got to hold our own on the boards and not turn the ball over. We had 17 turnovers in Boise."

For Boise State's part, the resurgence has dovetailed with the return to health of junior point guard Doug Usitalo and the growing confidence of off-guard Chris Childs, just a sophomore. Usitalo was sick with the flu in the previous Idaho game, but he's healthy enough at the moment, having broken the BSU single-season record for steals last week. Childs, who has been the Big Sky player of the week the past two weeks, has risen from 15th to ninth in the conference's scoring rankings during that period and is now averaging 15.4 points per game. He also ranks second to Usitalo in the conference in steals.

Boise State ranks first in the league in team defense, and has risen to fourth in team offense.

"We're going to have to be razor-sharp to beat them, but we haven't played that poorly until last weekend," said Floyd. "We're not going to panic at this stage and change our lineup. I like our guys. They've practiced hard this week."

Game time tonight is 8:30 p.m. MST with Boise television station KTVB-TV, channel 7 in the Magic Valley, scheduled to televise the game live.

Quick facts

Site: Kibbie Dome, Moscow
Time: 8:30 p.m. MST, tonight
What it means: A victory for Boise State puts the Broncos squarely in the middle of the race for the Big Sky Conference regular-season championship with a record of 7-5. Although the Vandals are probably out of contention for the regular season title with a 4-5 league record, they could still finish in the top three with a win over Idaho and victories over Montana State and Montana here next week.
Season records: Boise State is 17-5; Idaho is 16-9.
Big Sky Conference records: Boise State is 6-3; Idaho is 4-5.
The series: Idaho leads 17-16. The Vandals have won the last two meetings, including a 69-50 victory in Boise Jan. 17. Boise State's last victory came in Moscow on Jan. 14, 1986, 61-55.
The coaches: Bobby Dye, in his fourth season at Boise State, has a career record of 218-115. Tim Floyd, in his first year at Idaho, is 19-19.
Radio: KIBBIE (AM) (Boise); KTVB-TV (Boise), Channel 7.
TV: KTVB-TV (Boise), Channel 7.
Basic offense: Both teams use multiple offenses.
Basic defense: Both teams use both man-to-man and zone defenses.
Injuries: Neither team reports any major injuries.
Team offense: Boise State averaged 77.7 points per game, Idaho scored 65.5 points on the average.
Team defense: Boise State allowed 62.2 points per game, Idaho allowed 62.0 points on the average.
Starting lineup: Boise State — Doug Matney (G), Chris Childs (G), Chris Childs (G), Eric Hayes (F), Andrew Jackson (F), Vinson Metcalf (G), Ken Luckett (G), Doug Usitalo (G), Andrew Jones (G). Idaho — Jeff Roney (G), Mike Anderson (G), Tom Stucky (F), Jason Jones (G), Mike Anderson (G), Tom Stucky (F), Jason Jones (G).

College basketball

Idaho spoiled those hopes 60-50, and the Broncos went on to lose successive road games to Montana State and Montana.

But a lot has happened since that Jan. 17 upset, and tonight's rematch in the Kibbie Dome is taking on much of the significance of the first meeting.

"We recognize that they had a lot of guys that were ill and may have had a little tired at the end," said first-year coach Tim Floyd. "They've gotten better since then, and we'll have to be as sharp as we can to stay with them."

Since losing to Montana by 11 points and to Montana State by 12, the Broncos have won five straight — including a 22-point victory over Weber State and a five-point win over Idaho State on the road last

Soviets even Rendez-Vous '87 with 5-3 win over NHL stars

By KEN RAPPOPORT
The Associated Press

QUEBEC — Valeri Kamenky, a rising young star from the powerful Red Army team, scored twice in a three-goal second period and added an assist in the third to lead the Soviet national team to a 5-3 victory over the NHL All-Stars Friday night.

Vladimir Krutov also scored two goals as the Soviets' won this summit meeting of hockey superpowers at Rendez-Vous 87 to gain a co-championship of the two-game series. The NHL won Wednesday night 4-3 on Dave Poulin's goal with 1:15 left in the game.

Featuring many of the world's best players, the high tension, low scoring game belonged to the NHL before the Soviets broke it open with three straight goals in the second period.

Hockey

The back breaker was the second goal of the period by Kamenky with just 19 seconds left that gave the Soviets a 3-1 lead.

That didn't entirely take the steam out of the emotion-charged NHL squad, who didn't let down in the final period against the swift Soviets.

Down by two goals, the NHL made things close on a score by Chicago's Doug Wilson. Ray Bourque scored with 37 seconds left in the game for the NHL's third goal.

The savvy Soviets nailed things down with a clinching goal by Vladimir Krutov, a key member of the so-called "KLM Line" featuring Krutov, Igor Larionov and Serge Makarov.

It was Larionov who stole a blind pass from Pittsburgh's Mario Lemieux to set up Krutov's goal.

Andrei Khomutov sewed things up for the Soviets with a goal late in the third period for a 5-2 lead.

Edmonton's Mark Messier had scored a first period goal to give the NHL a 1-0 lead before the Soviets roared back with three goals in the second period. Kamenky scored the first and third goals, sandwiched around a goal by Krutov.

The NHL All Stars, who had only one power-play opportunity in the opening game Wednesday, were scored with a man advantage early in Friday night's game to take a 1-0 lead.

The same line that scored the NHL's first goal in Game 1 was also responsible this time when Messier dribbled the puck into the net past Soviet goaltender Evgeny Belosheikin at 3:32.

The NHL had a little help from the Soviets on this one when defenseman Mikhail Tatarinov tripped while trying to clear the puck behind the net.

Edmonton's Wayne Gretzky pounced on the puck and delivered it to Oiler teammate Jari Kurri, who set up Messier in front of the net.

The NHL, meanwhile, continued to play the fine defense that helped them win Wednesday night.

The Soviets, who were only able to get off one shot in four power-play opportunities Wednesday night, failed to put a shot on goal in their first opening game with a man advantage in Game 2.

The second battle of these two hockey-superpowers this week was a good deal more physical than an opening night.

The Soviets showed their first real edge in the series when defenseman Vacheslav Pestov roughed up Hartford's Kevin Dineen in the slot at his own end. Festlov and Dineen almost came to blows before officials stepped in to calm the situation.

It was a contrast to the fast paced first game, which was cleanly played with no hint of anger.

Montreal's left wing Claude Lemieux established the tempo when he threw some thunderous body checks at Soviet defenseman Vasily Pervuhin early in the period.

Except for the lapse on the NHL's power-play goal, the Soviet defense was equal to the NHL's in the first period. The NHL had a second-power play opportunity, but was unable to get off a shot. Two of the three goals by the NHL were on the power play.

The Soviets tied it 1-1 on a goal by the 20-year-old Kamenky at 3:13 of the second period, just seconds after shot by Khomutov hit the post to the left of goaltender Kamenky.

who beat Fuhr from the lower edge of the right circle. The puck grazed the right post as it went by Fuhr.

The swift, crimson shirted Soviets scored again at 5:17 when Larionov worked the puck free to Fetlov in the corner. Fetlov passed the puck between defenseman Rod Langway's legs to Krutov, who flipped a hard shot from the slot past Fuhr before he could react.

Kamenky scored again for the Soviets with 19 seconds left in the period when he dug the puck out of the end boards and whirled by Montreal defenseman Rick Green and tucked the puck past Fuhr's glove side. That gave the Soviets a 3-1 lead heading into third period.

In 10 visits prior to Rendez-Vous 87, the Soviets had a 33-20-4 record against either NHL All Star teams or individual NHL clubs.

Course record puts Stadler in lead

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Craig Stadler, beaten in a playoff last week, turned in a course-record 10-under-par 62 Friday that gave him a share of the lead after two rounds of the $500,000 Andy Williams Open golf tournament.

CRAIG STADLER
10 under par

Golf

Stadler reached the tournament halfway point at 131, 13 strokes under par, after scoring a 62 for the second straight week.

Stadler was tied with George Burns, who had a 68. His effort, which included nine birdies and an eagle, broke the course record on the North, set a day earlier by Burns with a 63. Burns played the second round on the South, where the rest of the tournament will be held.

"It's something I wouldn't mind getting used to," said Stadler, a former Masters champion who is trying to fight his way out of a 2½-year non-winning string. "Stadler said, 'It feels like it used to feel a few years ago.'"

Stadler played the North course, at 6,659 yards the shorter and easier of the two ocean-side layouts at Torrey Pines that are used for the first two rounds of this event.

"That 68 isn't a bad number on the South," said Burns, who hasn't made a bogey in the tournament. "The way they're lighting up the scoreboards, I had to make some just to keep up," he said.

Andy Bean also had a 62 on the North course and was tied with Lon Hinkle at 132, 12 under par and a single stroke off the pace. Hinkle shot 69 on the South.

U.S. Open champion Ray Floyd managed a 68 on the South and led the group at 133, 11 under par. That also included J.C. Snead, Dave Eichelberger, Tim Simpson, Canadian Dan Hallidorson and Chip Beck.

Beck closed up with an 8-under-par 64 on the North course, where Simpson shot a 66.

Hallidorson held out a 5-iron shot for an eagle-2 in his 65 at the South course; Eichelberger had a 68 and Snead a 69, both at the South.

Tom Watson shot 69 in the cool, cloudy, breezy weather at the north and completed two-rouns at 137, seven under par.

PGA champion Bob Tway had his difficulties, however, in the tournament that he won a year ago and started him toward his 1986 Player of the Year honors. He shot 72 on the North and at 145, failed to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Lakers get Thompson for players, draft picks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have acquired forward-center Mychal Thompson from the San Antonio Spurs in exchange for reserves Frank Brickowski and Peter Gudmundsson, two draft choices and cash. Lakers' General Manager Jerry West announced Friday.

MYCHAL THOMPSON
Seven-year veteran

The 6-foot-10 Thompson had been averaging 12.3 points and 5.9 rebounds in 49 games this season with the Spurs. The first first player chosen in the 1978 college draft, Thompson is a seven-year NBA veteran. He sat out the 1979-80 season with a broken leg.

It is expected he will join the Lakers for Sunday's game at the Forum against the Boston Celtics. In addition to receiving Brickowski and Gudmundsson, the Spurs got a first-round draft choice in the 1987 college draft and a second-round pick in the 1990 college draft. The Spurs will also get an undisclosed amount of cash.

The Spurs had acquired Thompson last June in a trade with the Portland Trail Blazers. "Brickowski," a 6-10, three-year veteran, averaged 3.9 points and 2.6 rebounds in 37 games for the Lakers, who acquired him from Seattle in October.

The 7-foot-2 Gudmundsson has not played this season after undergoing surgery for a herniated disc in November.

Arbitrator awards Morris $1.85 million contract

DETROIT (AP) — Pitcher Jack Morris, who reluctantly agreed to stay with the Detroit Tigers after four other teams rebuffed him as a free agent, won a $1.85 million salary through arbitration Friday, the largest such award ever made.

Arbitrator Richard Bloch said from Chicago, where he heard presentations Thursday from Morris and the Tigers. Bloch, a Washington, D.C. labor lawyer, is one of about 10 arbitrators who handle baseball salary cases.

Baseball

Under the procedure, the arbitrator must choose either the figure asked by the player or the one offered by the club, and cannot settle for a middle ground. The Tigers had offered Morris $1.35 million.

Morris, showing little emotion, took the news in stride. "Deep down, I thought we presented the case better than the Tigers presented their case," he said from the Detroit suburb of Farmington Hills. "I thought the same thing in 1981 and lost in arbitration. I was more cautious this time."

Morris said he felt confident he could put his differences with the Tigers aside and play baseball. "I don't think there's any real, deep-down hate between the management and myself," he said. "I just think it got to a point where business is business and I did what I had to do and they did what they had to do."

Ex-Met Knight agrees to one-year pact with Orioles

JACK MORRIS
Biggest award ever

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ray Knight, the Most Valuable Player with the New York Mets in the 1986 World Series, could become the Most Valuable Player of the Baltimore Orioles.

The 34-year-old third baseman left members of the media gasping for breath Friday at his first Baltimore news conference.

Veteran observers said he sounded a lot like former pitcher Jim Palmer with his rambling, rapid-fire delivery. One reporter suggested he already has talked more than first baseman Eddie Murray had in 11 years.

"That's it in a nutshell," he said at one point, after a lengthy explanation of his futile negotiations with the Mets before he became a free agent. Several times he said, "Talk is cheap." Then went full steam ahead.

Merger specialist enters guilty plea

NEW YORK (AP) — A leading Wall Street investment banker, turned in by stock speculator Ivan F. Boesky, tearfully admitted to insider trading Friday and said he had agreed to surrender $9 million to the government.

On the street — B5

Martin A. Siegel, 38, pleaded guilty to conspiracy and tax evasion in U.S. District Court as part of the widening insider trading investigation that has shaken the securities-dealing community the past year.

Siegel is the confidential informant whose information led prosecutors to charge three other Wall Street executives on Thursday with insider trading. U.S. Attorney Rudolph W. Giuliani said at a news conference.

In a separate civil matter, a complaint by the Securities and Exchange Commission charged that Boesky paid Siegel $700,000 for secret information that helped Boesky companies make $33 million trading stock.

Three times, in late 1982, 1983 and 1984, Boesky's company, Siegel in a "conspicuous public location" in Manhattan, exchanged passwords with him and handed him a briefcase stuffed with cash, the SEC complaint alleged.

Siegel, without admitting or denying the SEC's allegations, agreed to relinquish $4.3 million in cash, and securities worth more than $4.7 million, said Gary Lynch, the SEC's enforcement chief.

Though Siegel's only alleged profit was the $700,000, he wanted him to disgorge more than he had put in his pocket," Lynch said. He said the SEC had demanded the $9 million to settle the matter, arriving at the sum by figuring Siegel's alleged responsibility for Boesky's profit.

In the biggest insider trading case thus far, Boesky in November agreed to pay a record $100 million in penalties and to plead guilty to an unspecified criminal charge. He has been barred from the U.S. securities industry for life, a condition also accepted by Siegel.

Boesky has been cooperating with prosecutors, and it was he who led them to Siegel, who in turn agreed to cooperate, Giuliani said.

He identified Siegel as the informant whose cooperation led to Thursday's insider charges against Richard Wigton, 52, a vice president at Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Timothy L. Tabor, 33, a former Kidder, Peabody vice president; and Robert M. Freeman, 44, a partner at Goldman, Sachs & Co.

The three have not entered pleas, pending indictments. They are accused of trading secret information, then using it to buy or sell securities, making millions of dollars for Kidder Peabody as a company and Freeman personally.

It is illegal to trade stocks on the basis of important information that is not available to the public.

Tabor and Wigton worked for Siegel at Kidder Peabody until February 1986, when Siegel moved to Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. as co-head of the mergers and acquisitions department. He resigned from the firm Friday.

With tears on his face, Siegel pleaded guilty before Judge Robert J. Ward to two counts — conspiring to trade securities on the basis of inside information and understating his income on his 1985 taxes by $365,000.

Technology, drug stocks help set pace after early hesitation

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market advanced broadly Friday, as traders overcame some early hesitation in the face of Wall Street's growing insider-trading scandal.

Technology and drug stocks were prominent among the advancing issues.

Analysts said the news that four Wall Street professionals had been charged with trading illegally on confidential corporate information may have unsettled the market early in the session.

But they said the market bounced back as traders considered the evidence in new government economic reports that suggested the economy may be picking up.

They said relative stability in the bond market, which had fallen sharply earlier in the week, also helped stock prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 17.57 to 2,183.35, finishing down 3.52 for the week.

Gainers outnumbered losers by better than 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 1,956 up, 509 down and 371 unchanged.

Big Board volume amounted to 184.38 million shares, down from 200.38 million shares in the previous session.

On Thursday, the government charged three Wall Street professionals with insider trading violations.

On Friday, another Wall Street executive, Martin A. Siegel, pleaded guilty to insider trading charges, agreed to settle a non-criminal insider-trading complaint with the Securities and Exchange Commission and resigned from his job with the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

The Dow Jones Industrial average was off nearly 11 points after the first hour of trading, but the market then bounced back.

The government, meanwhile, reported that producer prices rose 0.6 percent in January, for their biggest increase since November 1985, and that industrial production rose 0.4 percent in January, the fourth consecutive monthly increase.

Texaco was among the most actively traded issues, and fell 3 to 33 $\frac{1}{2}$ , while Pennzoil rose 10 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 81 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

Late Thursday, an appeals court in Texas upheld $9.1 billion of the original $11.1 billion judgment in favor of Pennzoil and against Texaco in a case involving the takeover of Getty Oil.

General Electric climbed 5 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 103 $\frac{1}{2}$ . GE directors voted to recommend a 2-for-1 stock split and said they would consider an increase in the cash dividend.

IBM rose 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 134 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Also in the technology group, Hewlett Packard was up 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 56 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and Xerox was up 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 70 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

Among the drug issues, Upjohn rose 4 to 118. Squibb climbed 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 134 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Pfizer was up 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 70 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and Bristol-Myers was up 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  to 97 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

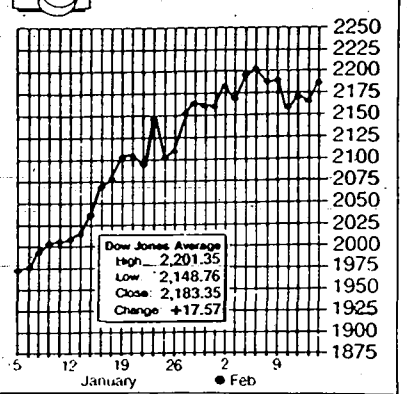

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 211.59 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 1.98 to 159.56.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 5.01 to 317.40, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 4.08 at 279.70.

Domestic new car sales hinting at recovery

Los Angeles Times

DETROIT — Domestic new car sales fell 1.3 percent in early February compared with the same period in 1986, the auto manufacturers reported Friday.

But the slight decline represented a recovery from last month when the sale of 11,347 cars—down 2.6 percent from the previous year.

Industry experts attributed the improvement in sales to the diminishing negative effect of the largest decline of Detroit's Big Three auto makers, down 9 percent from the new tax law eliminated sales tax in the Feb. 1-10 period, the comparable 1986 period. Chrysler also said its sales were down for the new cut-rate financing incentives period off a scant 1.7 percent from a new extended warranties that many year ago, but Ford reported an increase for the period of 8.2 percent.

Cost of treating Americans' hypertension tops $10 billion

More than $10 billion will be spent this year in the United States to provide direct medical care for an estimated 10 million Americans with high blood pressure.

Hypertension is responsible for more visits and prescriptions than any other ailment; in 1985 over 200 million prescriptions were written for high blood pressure medication at a cost of $2 billion.

In comparison, total health care expenses for 1985 amounted to $425 billion, according to the Health Care Financing Administration, and they are projected to increase to $452.2 billion this year. What's more, many Americans pay all or most of their prescription costs out of their own pocket, as opposed to hospital bills that receive fuller insurance coverage.

The prescribing pattern is causing an unwelcome inflationary spiral, which some health officials estimate could eventually double the nation's prescription bill for high blood pressure medication. Medical experts also caution that the newer and costlier drugs provide no proven advantage over existing medications for a majority of patients.

Drug Topics reports the range of pharmacy costs for hypertension drugs is on the upswing. Costs range from less than $100 a year to nearly $450, with drugs soon to receive FDA approval for hypertension costing patients up to $977 annually.

The calcium channel blockers are presently only available for other heart conditions but are soon expected by industry sources to receive FDA approval for the treatment of hypertension.

Left untreated or uncontrolled, high blood pressure can lead to heart attacks, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases that cause nearly a million deaths a year and cost Americans $78 billion annually.

A Gallup survey shows that almost 70 percent of practicing physicians have changed their treatment protocol for hypertensive patients in the last few years. Of those making changes, eight out of 10 changed the type of medication they prescribe, almost three-quarters of whom revealed a distinct trend to the newer and costlier prescription drugs.

But in a companion Gallup survey in which 46 percent of patients took less expensive drugs, known as diuretics, nine out of 10 stated that the medication they receive is "very effective" in controlling their high blood pressure.

Sylvia Porter

Some of the nation's foremost experts are seriously concerned over the spiraling cost of high blood pressure prescriptions caused by inappropriately widespread use of new drugs that have no proven medical advantage for patients.

"Surely there is no gain if the price of the product prevents the patient from buying it in the first place," observes Dr. Mark Pugh, executive director of the Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics. "Quality of life can't be measured by the amount of money left in a patient's pocket."

But the slight decline represented a recovery from last month when the sale of U.S.-built cars slid 25.8 percent from the previous year.

Industry experts attributed the improvement in sales to the diminishing negative effect of the sales boom in December that was sparked by consumers buying before the new tax law eliminated sales tax deductions.

In addition, analysts pointed to the low-cut-rate financing and extended warranties that many auto companies introduced recently.

General Motors reported the largest decline of Detroit's Big Three auto makers, down 9 percent in the Feb. 1-10 period from the comparable 1986 period. Chrysler said its sales were down for the second consecutive period, off a scant 1.7 percent from a year ago, but Ford reported an increase for the period of 8.2 percent.

But in a companion Gallup survey in which 46 percent of patients took less expensive drugs, known as diuretics, nine out of 10 stated that the medication they receive is "very effective" in controlling their high blood pressure.

Based on these findings, physicians and patients must question whether switching to costlier drugs is necessary, especially for people on low or fixed incomes. Not unrelated, hypertension is most common among blacks and the elderly.

Insurance coverage for drug expenses is directly related to household income, with seven in 10 patients in households with an annual income of $15,000 or greater reporting that their plan paid part of the prescription cost. However, in households with less than $15,000 annual income, only four in 10 had help in paying for prescriptions.

This again becomes an important concern because hypertension is more likely to affect the elderly and blacks. Medicare, for example, which provides coverage for many of America's elderly, does not provide reimbursement for outpatient prescription costs.

A newly released study carried in the American Journal of Public Health found that the cost of drugs prevents at least 22 percent of lower and fixed-income people from continuing to take their medication for hypertension. Drug cost can become an overwhelming obstacle to a patient's ability to comply with a physician's advice.

Some of the nation's foremost experts are seriously concerned over the spiraling cost of high blood pressure prescriptions caused by inappropriately widespread use of new drugs that have no proven medical advantage for patients.

"Surely there is no gain if the price of the product prevents the patient from buying it in the first place," observes Dr. Mark Paul, executive director of the Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics. "Quality of life can also be measured by the amount of money left in a patient's pocket."

Corporate restructuring cuts credit

The restructuring of corporate America that dominated the financial pages in 1986 contributed heavily to a downturn in corporate credit-worthiness...

Recapitalizations, often under the threat of a hostile takeover, were the most damaging to credit quality, the report said.

The report said 365 corporate and international bond ratings affecting $217 billion in debt were downgraded...

While noting that corporate restructuring may ease this year, the report said fewer downgradings, the overall trend remains negative...

Included in this group are the energy companies - producers and oil service companies - plus numerous oil prices and expectations of a sluggish pickup resulted in 55 downgradings...

Double the number of upgrades. And, said S&P, "There is little evidence that the weak industries will recover in the near term and, as such, exposure to these sectors should continue to depress asset quality and performance."

Crowd cheers delay of sale

LEON, Iowa (AP) - A crowd on hand to protest a foreclosure sale in Iowa cheered Friday when an insurance company's attempt to foreclose on a family farm was postponed because the firm had not first submitted the matter to a mediator.

John Hancock Insurance Co. had started foreclosure proceedings against Grant and Norma Becker...

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"By a small sample we may judge of the whole piece." - Cervantes.

South made one small slip in his play of today's game. If you look at all four hands, it's easy to see where he went wrong...

NORTH ♠ 3-1-A ♠ Q 6 4 ♠ K 10 3 ♠ 7 4 2 ♠ J 9 6 3

EAST ♠ A 10 5 2 ♠ Q 7 6 5 ♠ Q 9 6 3 ♠ 5

Vulnerable: Both Dealer: South The bidding: South West North East 2NT* Pass 3NT All pass

West led a "top-of-nothing" spade nine, and East won his ace. Seeing little future in a spade continuation, East shifted to diamonds...

South went wrong in actual play, leading a low club to dummy's jack. West's club 10 became a defensive winner...

What clues were present to guide South to the winning "guess" in clubs?

West's opening lead suggested shortness in spades. From the play, West was known to have started with only three diamonds...

Opening lead: Spade nine

BID WITH THE ACES

South holds: ♠ A 10 5 2 ♠ Q 7 6 5 ♠ Q 9 6 3 ♠ 5

North South 1 NT 2 ♣

ANSWER: Four hearts. South's 10 good points opposite the heart fit are enough for a good play for game.

Dan Massie, for many years the Used Car Sales Manager believes you should have a choice in makes, models, colors and body styles and your choice in price should be from $187 to $16,000. Year in and year out Dan makes sure there is a great selection of previously owned used cars to choose from. Of course, you can call the previous owner.
