NEW YORK — Relatives of imprisoned Soviet dissident Josef Begun were arrested Monday for crossing barricades near the Soviet Mission to the United Nations after they joined a demonstration seeking his freedom.

"should step forward and straighten this out. We don't want to create animosity but let's not get people's hopes high and then drop them."

Last week, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov said Begun declined to sign a statement asking for a pardon.

"He wouldn't sign that because he would be saying that he wouldn't practice his religion any more."

Spokesmen for the Zionist Organization of America and the Greater New York Conference for Soviet Jewry said the Begun affair raised questions about how much of glossed, the Russian term for the new openness in Soviet society, was window-dressing and how much was real.

"Our hopes were raised with the announcement by the prestigious Central Committee member Georgi Arbatov," said Glenn Richter of the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry.

Tax on vegetable oils may spark trade fight

The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The European Economic Community on Monday proposed a stiff new tax on vegetable oils and fats that a U.S. farm lobby predicted would trigger another trans-Atlantic trade fight.

The proposal came a month after U.S. and European negotiators narrowly averted an outbreak of retaliatory tariff increases on other farm exports.

Frans Andriessen, the European community's commissioner for agriculture policy, said in announcing the proposed tax that it would help restrain European output of vegetable oils and fats without harming the interests of foreign producers.

The proposed tax is one of a series of measures by which the European community's executive commission proposes to manage its agricultural market for the 1987 season, which officially begins April 1.

The measures must be approved by all 12 member governments. Their farm ministers are scheduled to open debate on the measures next Monday.

The proposed tax of $373 per metric ton would be applied to oils and fats, such as margarine and olive oil, made from domestically produced as well as imported soybeans, sunflower seeds, olives, rapeseed and other oilseeds. It would take effect July 1.

While the tax would not be levied on the soybeans, sunflower seeds and fish oil they ship to Europe, U.S. exporters fear it would reduce demand for the refined oils and fats. That in turn could shrink the European market for their products.

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev told an international peace gathering here Monday that "the broad democratization" of Soviet society "is irreversible" and at the same time he charged the Reagan administration with attempting to scrap the 1972 U.S.-Soviet treaty banning anti-ballistic-missile defenses.

Addressing about 850 visiting Americans and other foreigners and Soviets, Gorbachev used the occasion to boost Moscow's recent domestic and foreign policy initiatives and undercut what he sees as Western prejudices against the Soviet Union and Soviet motives behind its reform drive.

"You have arrived in the Soviet Union when essentially revolutionary changes are under way," he told an audience including hundreds of western celebrities, film stars, economists, physicians and businessmen who were brought here at Soviet expense for the three-day meeting. "It is often said — we still hear it — that there is some threat stemming from the U.S.S.R.," he said, "a Soviet threat to peace and freedom."

"But we want to be understood," he added, "and we hope that the world community will at last acknowledge that our desire to make our country better will hurt no one, with the world only gaining from this."

"And I must disappoint those who think that this has been the result of pressure on us from the West, that we want to gain somebody's fancy in pursuit of ulterior motives," he said, insisting that the changes were in accordance with "socialist choice."

"Our new approach to the humanitarian problems is there for all to see," he said, adding, "This too, is an example of the new way of thinking."

Citing recent Kremlin arms control initiatives as other examples of the Soviet Union's so-called new way of thinking, Gorbachev said that Soviet arms proposals made at the Reykjavik summit meeting in October had resulted in an arms control "breakthrough," and that Moscow's recently ended 18-month ban on nuclear testing "showed the world that a nuclear test ban is realistic."

In Washington, a White House spokesman said the Reagan administration would "look at (Gorbachev's) speech very closely. At first glance it has no new proposals," United Press International reported.

Contrasting his own policies to those of the Reagan administration, Gorbachev blasted recent attempts by Washington to define the 1972 anti-missile (ABM) treaty broadly enough to allow accelerated work on the Strategic Defense Initiative, a planned space-based anti-missile system.

"Whatever the pretexts used to justify this, the aim is clearly to scrap the treaty," he said. "When the treaty is annulled," he added, "the nuclear arms race will acquire new dimensions, and will be complemented by an arms race in space."

At one point, Gorbachev said the Reagan administration "has already officially suggested in Geneva legitimizing such an interpretation. The U.S. negotiators have defended the legal base for such a broad interpretation of the ABM treaty but are not yet believed to have proposed actually proceeding under that definition."

It's East vs. West on 55 mph speed

By ALAN FRAM The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When members of the Senate and House meet shortly to thrash out whether the federal 55 mph speed limit should be increased, the lawmakers' arguments are likely to pit public preference against public safety.

"If you set out to drive from Fort Worth, Texas, to Lubbock at 55 mph, one of two things is going to happen to you," Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, told the Senate earlier this month. "No. 1, you are going to get discouraged and turn back or, No. 2, you are going to get run over by somebody going a lot faster than 55 mph."

It is mostly legislators from large Western states containing long stretches of highway through sparsely settled areas who argue the maximum speed should be increased, a move they say would be sensible and popular.

Earlier this month, before Congress took a winter break, Westerners in the Senate provided 42 of the 55 votes when an amendment to a highway construction bill was approved that would allow states to increase the maximum speed to 55 mph on stretches of interstate highways outside urban areas.

The American Automobile Association, which favors allowing states to set higher speed limits, commissioned a poll last September asking whether speed limits should be increased on rural interstates. The results: 56 percent said yes and 40 percent said no.

The telephone survey of 1,014 randomly selected adults had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent, and represented a reversal of an identical poll in 1985, when 43 percent said speeds should be increased and 57 percent said no.

"There is some feeling the roads are designed for higher speeds, and people want to use the roads," said John Archer, AAA's managing director for government affairs.

The lower limit was instituted in 1974 in response to the gasoline shortage. Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, chief sponsor of the 55-mph measure, argues "the energy scare has passed" and says the 55 mph limit costs 1 billion additional hours of passenger time each year.

"While it is difficult to assign a dollar value to this additional travel time, clearly it represents some economic loss in terms of reduced productivity," he said.

Washington's parting words ring true

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — George Washington's parting words, in which he urged careful use of government power, resounded through nearly empty Senate chambers Monday.

Freshman Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., elected to Congress 191 years after Washington's speech was first published, returned early from a recess to deliver the speech that Washington wrote but never delivered.

His audience for the day's only item of business, however, was typically sparse, including only two of his Senate colleagues, William Proxmire, D-Wis., and John Stennis, D-Miss., who presided, plus a smattering of reporters and tourists.

Washington used his speech to tell the American people his reasons for resigning after two terms and to give the young nation some advice on unity, peace and prosperity. He warned against excessive partisanship, "overgrown military establishments," excessive debt, and against "habitual hatred or an habitual fondness" for any nation.

His also talked about government power in ways hauntingly applicable to the Reagan administration's current Iran-Contra arms flap.

A free country, Washington said, "should inspire caution in those entrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department, to encroach upon another."

"The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism."

In the Iran-Contra affair, investigations are focusing on whether the president's National Security Council or the CIA overstepped the bounds of their authority or circumvented the law of Congress. The probe centers on the secret sales of weapons to Iran and the diversion of the profits to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Washington said that if the people find the distribution of power is wrong, it should be changed "by an amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed."

Washington also talked about the importance of morality and virtue in government, and McCain said after reading the speech that those passages are particularly relevant today.

Residential property taxes could take sharp leap upward

By QUANE KENYON The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho home owners could have a major shock in store the next time they get their property tax bills.

It could amount to a 50 percent increase in property taxes — or about $27 million worth, if the House Revenue and Taxation Committee has its way.

At the urging of Rep. Dean Haagenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, the committee voted 10-7 on Monday to print and introduce a bill repealing the so-called "50-50" property tax exemption.

It was enacted by voter initiative in 1982, but Rep. Michael Simpson, R-Blackfoot, argued the voters didn't know what they were doing when they approved the initiative, and many people have changed their minds about it since then.

"This was probably misunderstood initiative ever put before the people," he said.

The initiative exempts up to 50 percent of the value of a owner-occupied residential dwelling from property taxes, up to a maximum value of $50,000. It would take a house valued at $100,000 to get the full exemption; most homes receive a lesser amount.

The amount of taxes each home owner would have to pay would depend on local tax levies, sponsors said.

Rep. Ken Robison, D-Boise, one of the prime sponsors of the initiative in 1982, told committee members it was approved to stop a "dramatic shift of property taxes from farms, commercial property and utilities to homes owners."

But despite the tax exemption, Robison, said, taxes paid on homes have increased much more than taxes on other forms of property.

Between 1975 and 1986, he said, taxes on homes went from 35 percent of all property taxes to 49 percent. In the same period, he said, farm property taxes went from 17 percent of the total to 11.4 percent; taxes on utilities went from 16 to 7 percent of the total, and commercial taxes stayed about the same.

He noted a 1980 law exempted about 62 percent of all farm property from tax. "This measure stopped the shift of the tax burden to home owners and restored balance," said Robison.

Sponsor Rep. Dean Haagenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, saw it differently. He argued that the 50-50 exemption built into law a special exemption for homes that makes the state unattractive to businesses.

Repealing the exemption, he said, "would be healthier for our economy. It would make Idaho a good place to do business."

To the argument that legislators should not tinker with an initiative passed directly by the voters, Haagenson said, "A law is a law. If we have a bad one, we should fix it."

At the suggestion of several legislators the printed bill will be amended to make it effective next January, not immediately as Haagenson proposed.

Voicing against introduction of the Haagenson bill were the four committee Democrats and Republicans Gary Robbins of Dietrich, Chris Hooper of Boise and Phil Childers of Boise. Rep. Boyd Hill, R-Meridian, left the meeting before the vote was taken.

that Moscow continue its moratorium, which ended when the United States conducted a nuclear test Feb. 3, he said. "We regret that continued American testing put us into our moratorium." But "the Soviet Union will not relinquish attempts to get nuclear testing banned," he added.

In a criticism of the U.S. rejection of Soviet proposals made at Reykjavik, he said, "Some people were scared by the new opportunities and they are now pulling back hard."

Referring to an earlier agreement he signed with Reagan to prevent the arms race in space and end it on Earth, Gorbachev said, "By undermining the ABM treaty, the U.S. administration scorns that pledge."

Gorbachev's speech Monday was his first appearance before participants in the Moscow Forum for a Nuclear-Free World and the Survival of Mankind.

Soviet dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov, also a forum guest, was part of the Kremlin audience, posing a contrast to the seven years he spent banished to the closed city of Gorky, an exile that ended only two months ago.

Reactions from visiting westerners — many of them long-time peace movements — to Gorbachev's speech and to the Soviet positions exposed to them during the forum were positive: the scattered clapping, however, the Soviet leader broke from his text and said, "I counted on more fervent applause, but that was sufficient."

German Social Democratic politician Egon Bahr, American physicist Bernard Lown, co-chairman of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, and others praised the new Soviet leadership's initiatives.

The Soviet leader said that it is "important that the ideas and the spirit of the forum should reach the broad public opinion and political circles, and more important still, should be reflected in the work of those at the helm of states."

When the audience reacted to Gorbachev's call for a treaty banning all weapons in space with only scattered clapping, however, the Soviet leader broke from his text and said, "I counted on more fervent applause, but that was sufficient."

Sandinistas take no position

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista government has no official position on a regional peace plan put forth at a meeting of the four other major Central American nations, Vice President Sergio Ramirez said Monday.

The leaders of Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador agreed at a meeting Sunday in San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, to invite President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua to meet them in 90 days to discuss a 10-point peace plan presented by President Oscar Arias of the host country.

Ramirez led reporters after a meeting with Sen. Christopher Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat, that Nicaragua "still has no opinion" on the plan. He said the government had not received a copy to study.

Faction denies holding Waite

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Iranian-backed Shiite Muslim faction Hezbollah on Monday denied allegations that it holds Anglican Church hostage negotiator Terry Waite, who dropped from sight nearly a month ago.

Walid Jumblati, leader of the Druze militia responsible for Waite's security, had accused the militant group of taking Waite captive.

American Moslem M.T. Mehdi, visiting Lebanon to seek the release of hostages, called for a U.S.-led embargo on arms sales to the 15-year-old civil war and kidnappings of foreigners. Twenty-six foreigners are missing in Lebanon, including eight Americans.

Contra army head quits group

MIAMI (AP) — The head of the main Contras army resigned from the rebel umbrella group Monday in the middle of a leadership crisis, but he refused to surrender control of his troops as other leaders had demanded.

Adolfo Calero denied he was caving in to other Contra leaders of the U.S. State Department, saying: "The only pressure I have had, and the only pressure to which I would answer, is patriotism."

He said he was stepping down "with a conviction of unity and firm national purpose."

Arturo Cruz and Alfonso Robelo, the two other members of the three-man directorate of the United Nicaraguan Opposition, have threatened to resign from the body unless Calero left.

First episode puts ABC on top

NEW YORK (AP) — The opening episode of the miniseries "Amerika" gave perennially third-place ABC better ratings for the night than the other two networks combined.

In the 13 major cities included in Nielsen overnight ratings, the first two hours in the politically controversial, 11-hour miniseries rated a 27.7 and pulled a 43 share on Sunday night.

ABC has consistently been third in the ratings all season. Its average rating for the previous Sunday was 15.6 with a 23 share.

Anchor damages supply train

HANOYER, West Germany (AP) — A freight train carrying U.S. military supplies was damaged by assassins who threw a boat anchor attached to a cable from a railroad overpass, a railroad spokesman said Monday.

The heavy anchor ripped the train's electric power cable supports and 150 yards of cable, the spokesman said.

The attack occurred near the northern port city of Bremen late Sunday. Railroad maintenance personnel worked until midday Monday to repair the damage and reopen the track, he said.

No one was injured and no one claimed responsibility for the attack, said the spokesman, who refused to be identified.

There was no immediate estimate of the damage, and the official refused to say what kind of supplies were on the train.

from urban states like Chairman James Howard, D-N.J., of the Public Works and Transportation Committee, approved a highway bill last month that would retain the 55 mph limit. A House-Senate conference committee will meet shortly to try to reach agreement on the measure.

"My main argument for 55 is it saves fuel. It saves lives and it saves money," Howard says.

Howard and his allies say the low speed limit saves about 167,000 barrels of oil daily, and reduces automobile maintenance costs because cars run more efficiently at the lower speed. And they say the billion extra hours of passenger time works out to an average of one minute for each car trip.

But their major point is lives saved.

The National Safety Council, a Chicago-based group which monitors highway issues, estimates the 55 mph speed limit has saved 20,000 to 35,000 lives since 1974. The National Academy of Sciences, a private group that studies scientific issues, estimates that 2,000 to 4,000 lives are saved each year because of the lower limit.

Says Robert Mann, spokesman for the American Trucking Association, "Every recognizable piece of evidence indicates that speed on highways kills and that trucks and other vehicles operate most safely at lower speeds."

Symms and his allies say, however, that part of the reason for the decline in fatalities has been improved auto and road technology, and less driving due to higher gasoline prices.

Part of the dispute is tactical. According to Symms' office, the bill would allow higher speeds on 33,910 miles of the 43,291 miles of interstate. Says Al Lauersdorf, traffic safety specialist with the National Safety Council, "We look at that as probably an opening. If they get that, probably they'll go further."

The two sides clash over other issues as well.

Supporters of 65 mph say at stake is a question of rights. Each state should set speeds on its roads, they say.

"What we are seeing here among some of the opponents is the mentally that Washington knows best," Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., said during Senate debate.

Opponents say the federal government has the right to oversee the interstate highway system, which Washington has paid for. Adds Howard, "My New Jersey drivers drive all around the country, and I want them protected."

Advocates of the higher speed also say that on rural stretches of highway, 55 mph is an unenforceable law. Commissioner James E. Smith of the California Highway Patrol says that on many segments of interstates in his state, more than 90 percent of traffic moves above 55 mph.

"If we don't have the vast majority of people obeying a law, then in my opinion the law is wrong and should be changed," said Smith in an interview. "In my opinion, any law that's ignored breeds contempt for other laws."

But 55 mph supporters say if speed limits are increased, people will still disobey them.

"All of us have a tendency to fudge on motor vehicle laws," said the safety council's Lauersdorf. "At 65, you'll find people saying, 'I'll go 70.' They won't arrest me for that." The average driver is aware most safety specialist with the National Safety Council, "We look at that as probably an opening. If they get that, probably they'll go further."

With only brief discussion, the committee voted to print and introduce legislation imposing a 1 percent surcharge on tickets and admission fees to movies, recreation areas, cultural, artistic and entertainment activities. It was presented to the committee by Rep. Hilde Kelllogg, R-Coeur d'Alene.

Revenue raised by the new tax, an estimated $300,000 per year, would go to the Idaho Commission on the Arts.

Exempt would be athletic events and admissions to physical fitness facilities. Taxed would be tickets to rodeos and cutter races.

"I don't think there's an awareness of what the arts do to every corner and pocket of this state," said Boise lobbyist Jay Webb. "The public good is really significant."

Budget writers move ahead

BOISE (AP) — Legislative budget writers wrapped up most of their preliminary work on Monday and prepared to try forcing the House and Senate Republican majorities to take a firm stand on the 1988 state budget.

After completing work on all but a few emergency funding requests for the current year, the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee said it would begin drafting the 1988 budget plan even though it has yet to receive solid direction on how much the overall budget should total.

In an attempt to force a decision on that issue, House Appropriations Chairman Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, said the panel will almost immediately take up the two bills most critical to crafting a budget — the state allocations to public and higher education.

Meanwhile, the Senate GOP caucus, which has been leading the way toward a consensus on a new state spending plan, ran into trouble trying to build a working majority for some kind of state employee pay raise, caucus Chairman Jerry Twigg of Blackfoot said.

Conferences may be coming

BOISE (AP) — Nine House conservatives might have to have a little talk with James Hawkins, new director of the Department of Commerce.

Hawkins, the first major appointee of Gov. Cecil Andrus, said earlier he was hoping for a unanimous vote in the Legislature for a special $400,000 appropriation. It gives an immediate transtusion to the Department of Commerce, more than doubling the agency's anemic budget from last year.

Hawkins said if the proposal received any opposition, he might have to talk to the dissenting lawmakers to see why they did not want to put money into an agency working to boost the state economy from its doldrums.

When the House took final action on the appropriation on Tuesday, nine conservative Republicans voted against it, although the debate turned into more of a vote of confidence in Commerce agency than on the merits of the bill.

The appropriation goes to the Senate, along with an accompanying bill allocating an immediate $100,000 to fund Idaho's efforts to land a major scientific research project, the Superconducting Super Collider.

Senate passes waste package

BOISE (AP) — A legislative package setting the framework for long-range state management of hazardous materials and bills implementing the plan has cleared the Idaho Senate.

In a series of unanimous votes on Wednesday, the Senate sent the management plan and two implementing bills to the House for final action.

"We're looking at a long-range approach to a problem that is always going to be with us," Senate Health and Welfare Committee Chairman Denton Darrington, R-Deer, told his colleagues.

The management plan, drafted by a 17-member citizen's committee over the past year, was reduced from 20 to 19 points by Darrington's committee when it voted 6-5 last week to strip a provision that called for state regulations to be stricter than those imposed by the federal government.

That so-called stringency provision has been at the heart of legislative debate for the past several years over state hazardous waste and materials regulation. Repeated Democratic-backed attempts to allow stricter state regulations have been rebuffed by the Republican legislative majority.

Questions over PUC nominee circulate

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Questions over ethics and qualifications continued to circulate on Monday over the nomination of a Pocatello Republican to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, and Senate Republicans say they have the votes to block the nomination of one of their own.

But Pocatello businessman Tom Sahlberg, who was nominated by Gov. Cecil Andrus to fill one of two vacancies on the PUC, said he will not withdraw his name from consideration.

The nomination is running into stiff opposition, which seems to be growing stronger daily.

On Monday, Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said he received several calls over the weekend from people opposing Sahlberg's nomination.

"What I have heard involved questions of competency and ethics, and it came from previous employers," Noh said on Monday. "It came from both the Potato Commission and the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation."

"Noh said he was satisfied the complaints 'were not just rumors.'"

The 63-year-old Sahlberg handled governmental relations for the Potato Growers of Idaho from 1972-76. He now owns and operates the Sahlberg Marketing Association in Pocatello, a firm that markets potato seed to commercial potato growers. He is also a partner in Macro Solutions of Idaho, a computer marketing business.

"I think he tended to shoot from the hip," Stecklein said.

Both men also said Sahlberg had use of the association's credit cards, and "expenses were getting out of hand."

"I didn't think we got our money's worth when he worked for us," Matsura said.

Senate Majority Caucus Chairman Jerry Twigg said on Monday he was opposed to Sahlberg's nomination the minute he heard it.

"I know Tom Sahlberg personally," Twigg, R-Blackfoot, said. "I worked with him on the Potato Growers of Idaho and, based on my knowledge, I didn't think he fit the qualifications."

Andrus supporters' last week were charging that Twigg's motives were strictly political, because Sahlberg was part of the "Republicans for Andrus" movement during the election.

Twigg, however, denied it was a partisan political issue.

"I haven't received one call in support of this guy, and I've received numerous calls," said Twigg, who is leading the effort to block Sahlberg's appointment.

Twigg said he discussed the situation with Andrus on Friday, and Andrus indicated he would not withdraw Sahlberg's nomination, even though Twigg said he has the votes to block it.

Marc Johnson, an Andrus spokesman, said the letter of nomination was going to the Senate on Monday.

"It's definitely going up," Johnson said.

But members of the Potato Growers of Idaho did have reservations about Sahlberg's ability to handle the 6-year PUC appointment.

Glenn Matsura, president of Potato Growers in 1976, and LaVerelle Stecklein, treasurer during the same period, both said Sahlberg had a tendency "not to do his homework" when he worked for Potato Growers.

The executive director of the Idaho Farm Bureau in Pocatello said Monday that Sahlberg works with the bureau on a contractual basis, and his work was "satisfactory."

"I'm not aware of any problems," said Bill Brown, director of the Pocatello office. "I've known him personally for 10-12 years."

Steve Antone said the panel would discuss on Tuesday a bill repealing the Idaho Investment tax credit.

That's a cornerstone of Gov. Cecil Andrus' budget proposals this year, although it appears that Republican opposition has been building to repeal. Andrus contends the tax credit has done little to generate new jobs, and the $14.5 million it costs could better be used in the education and economic development budgets.

Andrus Republicans to come up with their own tax proposals. If they do not like his suggestion on repealing the investment credit. But so far this session, the Revenue and Taxation Committee has routinely rejected most alternatives.

A bill keeping Idaho's sales tax at 5 percent has been up for final action in the House since Friday, but wasn't put up for final passage on Monday.

Rep. Jack Kennebeck, R-Boise, majority floor leader, said some Democrats didn't make it to Boise for the Monday legislative session, and legislative leaders agreed to put the debate off for another day.

Sales tax vote today

BOISE (AP) — After skipping around major tax decisions for several days, the Idaho House appears headed toward a couple of key votes on Tuesday and the outcome could be critical to the state budget for next year.

Freshman legislator faces tough decision on day care vote

There are times in our lives when we have to make difficult decisions. This was perhaps the hardest decision I ever had to make. The choices weren't simple ones — each had its detractors. One of the first things you learn as a freshman legislator is the difference between reality and desire. Sometimes that turns out to be very painful. The reality comes with understanding that some things aren't just a simple black or white or a yes or no situation.

I was elected in part on a pledge to support mandatory statewide day care licensing — and I still do. But, after several weeks of behind-the-scenes discussions, several things became very apparent. First of all, every year the House would pass one bill, and the Senate a different bill — and each would crash as they passed the threshold between the House and Senate. Finding that to be the potential case this year, was perhaps one of my greatest disapboard to a rubber stamp and specifically indicating that rule-making could not be limited.

Perhaps the most difficult feature in the section, to me as a father, was the section authorizing police to take children from unlicensed homes and hold them till their parents could be found. The impact on the children as well as the parents would have been traumatic.

Choice 2, Senate Bill 1078 drafted by Sens. Crapo and Darrington. The bill used Health and Welfare, was statewide, uniform and mandatory using local health districts. Rules were very specific and limited — excluded were homes with children having five or fewer. Included in the formation of the bill were representatives of the House, Senate, and the governor's office. After facing the stark reality that we would face another year without a day care bill, it became necessary to choose between the bills. The choice was between backing a work. Republicans, Democrats, conservatives and moderates have begun to do something good for Idaho's kids. Am I taking a chance? Yes, I am. But what's the alternative? Another year of stalemate and no bill? Only time will tell if these actions will pan out — but it has to be tried since all else has failed in the past. As of this writing, I have met with the state fire marshal to discuss rules applicable to homes as different than centers, and am meeting with all members of the House and Senate that are interested in seeing a success this year. While I understand that I will be held accountable for my votes, I would ask that those trying to stop Senate Bill 1078 try instead to help build it into something we can speak of with pride as a start in the right direction.

What has been achieved by my actions? I hope a new beginning of cooperation. As of this letter, opposing factions of the Legislature have begun serious talks on what they can do to make Senate Bill 1078

Breakdown sought on Pence expenses

I am a city taxpayer and I am very concerned about how our tax dollars are being spent.

A month ago you ran an article on Dick Pence's travels. According to your article, Mr. Pence is traveling far more than other county clerks. He spent $610 at a convention in Las Vegas. He must have spent a week there to spend that much money. I have been to Las Vegas and I know what motels cost. Did Mr. Pence bring back receipts for his meals and motels? I know this is necessary when you are spending the other fellow's money.

He won't be attending conventions this year as he has now learned how to run his office. It's funny to me that all the meetings he attended, there wasn't a one that taught him how to handle the absentee ballots.

I am asking The Times-News to get a breakdown on his expenses to Las Vegas. Mr. Pence said he didn't have to report to the council as he is an elected official. I would like to hear from other taxpayers on this.

People now awakening to Reagan's antics

In the past, the Republican conservative view, by my understanding, has always been don't spend more than you take in. Live within your means. Well someone has forgotten to tell Ronald Reagan this. In 1979 Mr. Reagan was telling the people, "We have to balance the budget."

So let's see what has happened. First, he cut taxes, which at first we thought was okay. But then, he began spending at a pace that has never occurred in the history of the United States, "especially in peacetime."

Now let's examine what happens when this occurs. First someone must pay the costs. Unfortunately the ones who have paid have been the SS recipients, veterans, the low income minorities and the working class in general. The family farmer and the small businessman have paid very dearly to this policy Mr. Reagan has pursued.

One good example of this spending is the SDI program in our national defense. There is no way to estimate the final cost of this project. Now everyone will agree that we need a safe and secure defense. But I wonder if you are guarding a nation that is slowly dying of hunger and disease (such as AIDS) because of the lack of funds to fight these social problems. What have we gained? It has been stated that we have fell to fifth in our living standards. Now if we pursue the path that Mr. Reagan has set us upon, where will we be in 1988?

In 1984, Mr. Reagan asked the people "Are you better off now than you were in 1980?" So now I ask the people "Look in your billfold, and your savings account (if you are fortunate enough to have one) and ask yourself. Are you better off?"

The environment has suffered greatly at the hands of this present administration. There has been scandal in the EPA. World travel has become increasingly unsafe. And now we have begun secretly trying to rearm a nation that held our embassy personnel hostage; and in truth held the entire country hostage for a whole year. From the environmental scandal to the Iran and Contra scandal the Republican Party has worked very hard to cover up for Mr. Reagan. But the people, as they did with the Nixon mess (which was Republican) are beginning to awaken. So let me ask you this question one more time. Are you better off?

Coverage of death does family injustice

"Vengeance is mine said the Lord." Well I am not the Lord, and I have no power to invoke vengeance. I only want people to know the injustice done to my family by the North Side News.

My father shot himself after much suffering, and the pain of losing his wife six months ago.

The day it happened no member of my family were ever interviewed or asked any background as to why such a thing could happen at all. We had asked the police that arrived (three of them) not to release any information. They said they wouldn't.

But the good old freedom of the press put a lot of misinformation and half truths on the front page the next day in large two inch type, that Jack Spohn had shot himself, never taking time to find out the real facts. They were very interested in gossip writing.

I want everyone to know the type of press we have in Jerome County and let everyone not in the North Side News again, before it hurts you with half truths and lies.

Let them know they can't treat people like dogs and expect to get away with it.

Getting more help first step

I read in yesterday's Times-News a letter to the editor from a Gayla Rosen, which I feel demands a reply. I understand why she is upset, but things are not always as rumor says they are.

1. The law requires that the state prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused is in fact guilty.

2. In any incident there is only a certain amount of evidence available. Sometimes, even all that there is, is not enough to get a case through court, and convict a suspect.

3. Since the incident mentioned, many hours of investigation have been logged by local officers, and by experts from the state and the FBI. For local officers, many of these hours are "off duty" hours for which no pay or time off will be received.

4. Lincoln County consists of approximately 1,180 square miles, including approximately 100 miles of state and federal highways. We have only three officers to patrol the entire county 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

5. Many of those "coffee breaks" since the incident have been after an early morning patrol of some of this county's highways.

6. Crimes can be committed anywhere, and at any time. Without a huge increase in our budget, we cannot provide enough coverage for our whole county 24 hours a day. It is interesting to note that only a few minutes before the incident in question, one of our deputies patrolled the section of road where the incident occurred. We cannot be everywhere at once.

Conclusion: If you are concerned about crime, get us more help so we can have 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week patrol, not as it is now, just during the times when statistically more crimes occur. Or try "walking in our moccasins" for a while. Don't just throw rocks.

Take lesson from forefathers

In the 1800's, when our forefathers came from the eastern states and began to settle in the western states, they had to begin from scratch. There were no counties, no cities and no communities. The economy, of course, was very weak.

Our forefathers realized that very little help from the government would be forthcoming and it would be basically up to them to develop and create their own future. So they set forth and did just that.

It is very clear that our cities and counties will receive very little help from our state and federal government, to improve our local economy.

They either are not able to help or just plain and simply will not. So we must take a lesson from our forefathers.

The time has come (and certainly the need is there) to join forces and work together, the same as our forefathers did in the beginning. We Democrats and Republicans can always do battle in the election years.

Suppose a good many merchants, businessmen, citizens and farmers were to form a corporation together. Then they could join together and purchase or build several old concord covered wagons and teams.

They could put together an old wagon train trip, perhaps through the foothills of the south hills, winding down into Nevada. Perhaps they could even make a deal with some casino owners to build a couple of small buildings (western style) where the guests could gamble a little, then the wagon train could return to Twin Falls. The wagon train trip could last from four to five days.

I'm sure it would attract a good many tourists, because a lot of eastern people would like to experience first hand, the life of a pioneer, such as eating and sleeping on the prairie.

Old time square dances could be arranged on the train, plus they could gamble as well. I believe this will attract more tourists, more money and create more jobs in this area.

We must work together and not sit back and let the economy go from bad to worse. We must take a lesson from our forefathers and begin to build within our own communities, cities and counties. This we can do.

Policy would end conflict

What's happening here? The press is reporting Rep. Jerry Callen as pushing the development of a sophisticated space defense system, but there must be some kind of mistake since Mr. Callen has consistently worked against such foolishness by doing his best to implement a stone-age educational system both within his district and the entire state of Idaho.

While a member of the Jerome School board, for example, he warmed up by eliminating kindergarten in the district and has since, steadfastly refused to consider any progressive proposal for investing in the state's educational development.

If the world would only follow Mr. Callen's lead away from progressive educational policy, there would be no such thing as east-west conflict. Nobody would know how to build boats or airplanes, and it's impossible to throw rocks that far.

Callen's action applauded

Many thanks to Rep. Jerry Callen for his introduction of a memorial funding for the Strategic Defense Initiative. I applauded Callen's action.

Contrary to editorial opinions expressed by The Times-News and by Terry Gilbert, whose "Perspectives in education" should more properly be entitled "Tirades in liberalism" — i.e., opposition to Contra aid;

Darwinism, secular humanism, etc.). I believe a legislative memorial not only to be a proper channel for the expression of the sentiments of a majority of Idahoans, but also it will serve to bolster the arguments of Idaho's congressional leaders as they represent the viewpoint in the Congress of the United States.

Chief among Mr. Gilbert's objections to SDI was the projected cost. (He says one trillion, but figures released by U.S. News and World Report as late as Feb. 9 approach nowhere near that amount.)

But whatever the cost would, nevertheless maintain that SDI, if successful, would ultimately be a cheaper route to peace than would be still another round of conventional arms build up madness.

The Soviets are spending around 10 percent of their $350-$400 billion defense budget on creating their own strategic defense system. The fact that the Soviets want so badly to see the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative discarded indicates they are quite certain it will work.

The threat to world peace does not come from nuclear weapons themselves, but from open aggression of the Russian toward the free world. Placing faith in arms-control puts the cart before the horse. Successful arms-control must be built on real progress in the full range of bi-lateral relations.

The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, repression in Eastern Europe and military aggression of the Third World reflect Moscow's aggressive designs. Last week's treatment of Soviet Jews gives real clues that the "new soviet" is not so new after all. The U.S. has documented Soviet violations of every past arms-control agreement. Moscow regards arms control as a ploy to gain an edge over the west. Clearly we should not give Russia the benefit of the doubt again. SDI precludes this.

So bravo, Representative Callen. Thank you for your memorial and for not putting a price tag on our freedom.

Look at cost of opportunity

How would the Special Isotope Separation plant (SIS) and the Superconducting Super Collider project (SSC) affect Idaho?

If both projects come to the Gem state, we could expect some $6 billion of investment funds, the creation of about 3,000 permanent jobs, and a $250 million operating budget for at least 30 years.

It all sounds so very promising, especially for Idaho's flagging economy. And so our governmental and business leaders are anxiously making plans to woo these wonderful projects to our state.

But I submit that both the SIS and the SSC, like the MX and the SDI ("Star Wars") are simply two more examples of the dangerous and destructive technological seduction of humanity. Despite a guarded admission that these projects might be justifiable, if one truly thinks on their implications, they will be seen as they really are — modern-day "Golden Calves" erected to appease the false gods of the "Pentagon of Power."

The powerful groups that propose and support these projects have succumbed to the grandiose myth of the machine age; the myth that our world can be made into a safer, saner, happier and more prosperous place by bigger and better machines.

It is a myth that ignores issues like quality of life, humanistic and spiritual values, and our real social priorities; a myth that even now perpetuates the sacrificing of millions of lives and livelihoods upon the altars of microchips, nuclear bombs and robotics.

So what are our national priorities anyway? But for the more nuclear weapons? I doubt it. Today there are in excess of 55,000 nuclear weapons and we are adding about three more weapons to the world arsenal every day.

The Super Collider plan? That too is questionable. Neither the 1980 "Global 2000 Report" or the President's 1983 "The Nation at Risk" report issued in 1983 listed the need for such a project to insure America's survival.

Interestingly, however, both of these reports made a vigorous appeal for overhauling our educational system so that our nation might remain competitive in the inter-national market place. Let us give our youth for life in an emerging Global Village, promote the ideals of world citizenship and peaceful coexistence, and enable our people to "make sound judgments for the ordering of individual and social life."

So we begin to consider the SIS and the SSC projects for the gem of Idaho (and humanity). Let's also consider what the opportunity costs are. HARRY MASSOTH

Educators support funding formula change

May set aside 'funding floor' concept in exchange for higher fixed tax rate

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — School officials statewide said Monday they are willing to sweep aside demands for a public education "funding floor" in return for greater and swifter changes in the funding formula.

Because the floor would cost millions more in legislative funding, school officials from Twin Falls, Pocatello and Meridian who backed a flooring concept for public education funding now say they will settle for a bigger change to the fixed tax rate in the funding formula.

Superintendent Nick Hallett, of Meridian Joint District, said that if the tax level in the state funding formula is raised from .25 percent to .30 percent this year, he could put the "flooring bill on the back burner."

Twin Falls Assistant Superintendent Keith Tözlín and Pocatello Superintendent Rulon Ellis agreed that a compromise could be reached if the rate changed to .30 percent.

But the three officials said a flooring proposal would have to accompany a lower rate increase.

Issues concerning equalizing state public education funding will be raised Thursday at 7 p.m. during a hearing before the Joint House and Senate Education committees in Boise.

A turf battle over an education bill ended on Monday when the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee voted to send a measure back to the Senate Education Committee.

Senate Bill 1083 would change the equalization formula used to figure how much state money goes to local school districts. The bill, written by state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans, would increase the formula .02 percent a year.

Evans, on the recommendation of a committee that spent 1½ years studying equalizing funding, proposed to raise the tax rate by which all districts figure their education funding. The Senate bill would raise the tax rate in the funding equation from .25 percent by .02 percent a year for 5 years, he said.

The bill was introduced in the Senate Education Committee, but Senate Pro Tem James Risch assigned it to Local Revenue and Taxation when it came up on the floor.

"The pro tem assumed it should go to local government" because it looked as though it would raise taxes, said Sen. Terry Sversten, R-Cataldo.

The bill is similar to a House bill, called "The Meridian Plan," to send more state money to poor school districts.

Officials from Twin Falls, Pocatello and Meridian have been promoting a funding "floor," where under a House bill, every district would receive 97.5 percent of adjusted revenue of the highest operating district.

Because the Twin Falls School District ranked 113th last year out of 116 districts for per-student funding, local officials supported increasing state funding to raise the district closer to the top.

The House flooring plan introduced by Assistant Majority Leader Gary Montgomery, R-Meridian, would cost an extra $15.5 million in state spending. It would mean an extra $3,000 for each Twin Falls School District student, or about $900,000.

Across the Capitol building, the proposed Senate bill takes a different tack on how to equalize funding.

Because state funding complements local contributions to the same amount for all districts, and because the tax rate used in the funding formula is fixed at .25 percent, districts with higher property values receive less from the state. If the tax rate is raised, districts with higher property values will inversely receive a smaller portion of their budget from the state.

Blaine County is such a district, and school officials are leary of the proposal. Blaine County School Superintendent David Noonan told The Times-News Monday that he was not aware of the meeting Thursday night in Boise and had no comment on the matter until he studied the proposals further.

But Hallett, Tözlín and Ellis said that going only to .29 percent in the

Addressing plan pushed for county's rural areas

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The days of route numbers for rural Twin Falls County may be numbered — through an effort by Mountain Bell, which is seeking help from other utility companies to pay for rural addressing.

The addressing should help not only utilities, but the U.S. Post Office, emergency units, law enforcement and even people who deliver flowers to more easily locate rural residents, said Fred Tilman, Mountain Bell's rural address coordinator.

Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners Chairman Judy Felton said the Board of Commissioners has committed to rural addressing — as long as it doesn't cost the county too much money.

The majority of the funding, however, will probably come from the utilities who serve the county.

Mountain Bell will seek support from the Idaho Power Co., Intermountain Gas Co. and the Piler Mutual Telephone Co. to help pay for the addressing, Tilman said.

In other counties, utilities have normally donated $5 for each customer they serve. Civic groups, especially granges, have also made contributions in the form of money or labor.

Emergency units have been the biggest supporters of rural addressing because they no longer have to follow directions, such as "1½ mile west and 2 miles south," to find a house or business, he said.

"Right now we are in the process of assessing the price," Tilman said. "Once we agree we want to do the project, the county contracts with each of the utilities."

The county will be responsible for establishing an address system by contracting the work out or completing it with county employees, and making sure it remains current.

Tilman said, "We (Mountain Bell) want that local control."

The costs and time involved in addressing the rural areas depends on the size of the county, he added. The process takes about a year to 1½ years to complete, with a price tag at $8,000 on up.

Felton said the County Board had wanted rural addresses for several years, but the costs were prohibitive.

If the financing falls into place, the county will put the work out to bid, she said.

The telephone company is supporting and committed to addressing of rural residences, farms and businesses to help them find their customers.

In the old days, telephones remained at a residence when people moved, Tilman said. Now when people move they take their telephones with them and the

BLM: Funds needed for Hagerman Fossil Beds

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Bureau of Land Management says that more than $800,000 should be spent to protect the Hagerman Fossil Beds, a designated national landmark described as "in 100-percent poor ecological condition."

The greatest damage has occurred from irrigation-canal leakage above the landmark, causing fossils to wash away and polluting the Snake River with sediment, according to a draft of a BLM resource management plan for the area.

BLM officials estimate it would take $750,000 to correct the canal leakage problem affecting the fossil beds, which hold clues to the life of mammals on Earth some 2 million years ago. Of that amount, $150,000 would have to come from private funds, the BLM report said.

The federal agency estimates canal lining could be done by 1988 and it names this as a top priority, along with hiring a full-time employee to be at the site.

Budget problems and a shortage of personnel have hampered and are continuing to limit what can be done to appropriately manage the Hagerman National Landmark, BLM said.

Fossils were first discovered there in the 1920s. Another problem is runoff from farmland next to the landmark. "Severe damage is continuing to occur because of overland water flow," the report said.

The BLM district office in Boise is proposing many other steps to maintain the site in top condition.

The BLM wants to share up unstable slopes to prevent and would seal trails scarred by off-road vehicles and motorcycles. It calls for erecting signs to impress ORV users with the significance of the internationally recognized site.

Research at the site has been concerned with fossils of animals with a backbone, such as the horse, otter, beaver and birds. Information from these animals, ancient mollusks and the geology have given scientists clues to evolutionary trends, the development of biological communities and interaction between organisms.

"The materials present are, in general, particularly well-preserved specimens of a fragile, rare and irreplaceable resource that is sensitive and vulnerable to loss and destruction," the report said.

The BLM wants to shore up unstable slopes to prevent further erosion. Plantings of willows and other native trees are called for to make the area more scenic.

The agency wants to acquire a 492-acre section within the site, which is owned by the state, in order to establish a secure setting for the landmark. The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation has already proposed this.

TRIM speaker contends media liberal and pro-communist

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A radio broadcaster told an audience of about 100 persons here Monday night that information being broadcast, telecast and printed for their consumption is strictly liberal in nature and is nearly all pro-communist.

"The media is not the enemy," he said, "but there are enemies within the media."

Richard Faterley, a native of Topeka, Kansas, addressed a public meeting sponsored by the Magic Valley TRIM Committee (Tax Reform Immediately) at the Holiday Inn. Faterley, who said had been employed by several radio stations around the United States, blasted all forms of the media as biased liberal information sources and charged that the media is programmed to keep the truth about communism from the public.

He said the major newscasters of the nation's largest radio and television networks are hiding anti-communist facts and calling for such things as a better understanding and relationship with the Soviet Union.

He questioned the U.S. government's investigation of the Challenger space shuttle explosion in January 1986. Faterley said the investigative committee blamed the blast on an O-ring failure, but has since approved the same part for continued use.

"Never once did the committee mention possible sabotage," Faterley said. "I believe it was sabotage," he said, suggesting that the shuttle was blown up by communists to delay U.S. programs so that the Soviet space shuttle program could catch up and move ahead. The sabotage would also delay deployment of this country's Strategic Defense Initiative, he said.

The speaker said the Soviets have monitored the American space program and their own is a "clone" of the U.S. system.

He also charged that many smaller nations that have been taken over by communism have been helped along that course with American tax dollars, through foreign aid programs.

He warned against tax dollars being used to aid the nation's enemies with technology and other types of assistance.

The U.S. State Department is pro-communist, Faterley said, and has been following that course since the close of World War II.

He warned also that the federal government is declaring "economic warfare" in states such as Kansas and Idaho through excessive taxation.

Faterley called on the people of Magic Valley to work to elect conservative candidates to state and national offices and to work to defeat liberal office holders.

Describing democracy as "mob rule and anarchy," Faterley said, "Our founding fathers greatly feared democracy. The U.S. constitution, he noted, guarantees a republican form of government, but that does not support the Republican Party, which was formed in the mid-19th century.

Republicans and Democrats alike were skewered by the John Birch Society speaker, including President Ronald Reagan — who, he said, has given "aid and comfort" to the communists.

He described the John Birch Society as a "reliable source" of information and one of the few anti-communist organizations willing to tell of the communist threat the world is facing. The John Birch Society is helping to sponsor the TRIM Committee.

To counter what he described as a news media "blackout" of important news regarding communism, Faterley suggested the dissemination of Birch Society publications, and improving relationships with local news organizations in order to educate poorly informed journalists.

Black's-smoking bill clears hurdle

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

BOISE — A new bill banning smoking on buses made it out of the House Transportation Committee on Monday.

The latest measure is sponsored by Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, who sponsored another bill that was shot down in the House on Feb. 5.

The old bill made smoking on a bus a misdemeanor, punishable by 6 months in jail and a $300 fine. It also allowed fellow passengers to assist the bus driver in physically restraining the offending smoker.

Opponents argued the measure would allow passengers to lose little old women off the bus in the middle of the night between stops. The measure was defeated by a 44-39 vote.

The new bill eliminates the misdemeanor penalty and the "vigilante" provision, Black said.

Under the same bill a person guilty of smoking on a bus would be subject to a $50 fine, the same fine assessed against a person who violates the Clean Air Act of 1986.

Under the Clean Air Act a person is prohibited from smoking in a public place or at a public meeting, except in designated areas.

Rep. Dean Haugenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, questioned why smoking was permitted on buses with 14 passengers or fewer.

Black said he did not want to infringe on individual rights, and personal vans are usually the vehicles with fewer than 15 people.

Black predicted his new version will pass the House.

Wendell garbage policy questioned

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Questions, not direct complaints, about garbage collection were raised at the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday.

Dawn Trace, operator of the Iron Skillet Cafe, asked if her business could haul its own garbage or hire a different sanitation service to do it.

Councilman Lloyd Little said Ron Fager of C & R Sanitation has a contract with the city giving him exclusive rights to all trash collection. Even if people haul their own, they must still pay for the service of C & R Sanitation, Little said.

Councilman Matt Bunn said the city needs to protect the contractor.

"We've got to give him the right to take care of the job," he said.

Irace said her business has to deal with competition in Wendell.

"We can't get an exclusive license to be the only restaurant in town," she said.

Fager said his prices are equal to or below the prices of his competitors.

Irace asked why Wendell contracted the garbage collection service to Fager four years ago instead of continuing to use the city garbage truck and city employees to do the job.

Councilman Marshall Howsen said the change was made only after much study and discussion.

"We thought we could save the city some money, and we did," he said. High insurance rates, truck maintenance costs and the probable need to purchase a new truck were factors in the decision, he said.

Bunn said the city lost $549 during its last year of doing its own garbage collection. City Clerk June Holm reported the city makes $150 per month for including the garbage collection fee on city water bills and then paying Fager.

Irace also asked why the city hired

Freshman legislator faces tough decision on day care vote

Rep. Ronald L. Black

There are times in our lives when we have to make difficult decisions. This past week was perhaps the hardest decision I have ever had to make. The choice wasn't simple ones — each had its detractors.

One of the first things you learn as a freshman legislator is the difference between reality and desire. Sometimes that turns out to be very painful. The reality comes with understanding that some things aren't just a simple black or white or a yes or no situation.

I was elected in part on a pledge to support mandatory statewide day care licensing — and I still do. But, after several weeks of behind-the-scenes discussions, several things became very apparent.

First of all, every year the House would pass one bill, and the Senate a different bill — and each would crash as they passed the threshold between the House and Senate. Finding that to be the potential case this year, was perhaps one of my greatest disappointments.

Each bill had made major concessions, yet the distance between the two appeared insurmountable.

After hours of discussion with the leadership from both the House and Senate, several things became very clear. While neither was a great bill, both had potential.

Choice 1, House Bill 65 drafted by Reps. Brockmoss, Hooper and the Child Care Coalition, while comprising on some areas, added features more stringent than any of the previous bills. Additional demands such as background checks and fingerprinting for anyone watching one or more children were added, (according to District Health, "a nightmare"). Language gave priority to the Board of Health and Welfare, relegating the advisory board to a rubber stamp and specifically indicating that rule-making could not be limited.

Perhaps the most difficult feature in the section, to me as a father, was the section authorizing police to take children from unlicensed homes and hold them till their parents could be found. The impact on the children as well as the parents would have been traumatic.

Choice 2, Senate Bill 1078 drafted by Sens. Crapo and Darrington. The bill used Health and Welfare, was statewide, uniform and mandatory using local health districts. Rules were very specific and limited — excluded were homes with children having five or fewer. Included in the formation of the bill were representatives of the House, Senate, and the governor's office.

After facing the stark reality that we would face another year without a day care bill, it became necessary to choose between the bills. The choice was between backing a bill (65) which was guaranteed a death in the Senate Health and Welfare Committee by its chairman and Senate leadership, or backing Senate Bill 1078 which was weak, but at least acceptable. Then Senate Bill 1078 was passed out of the Senate committee with unanimous support and recommendation. Democrats and Republicans voting together. Decision time was at hand.

When time came for debate, I debated on the shortcomings of House Bill 65 as I saw them. At the end of the debate, I moved to guarantee that one bill would be voted on by both houses. I lost that vote, but I believe we may have won the war. The next vote on the bill itself resulted in a tie (42-42); the bill was defeated.

What has been achieved by my actions? I hope a new beginning of cooperation. As of this letter, opposing factions of the Legislature have begun serious talks on what they can do to make Senate Bill 1078 work. Republicans, Democrats, conservatives and moderates have begun to do something good for Idaho's kids.

Am I taking a chance? Yes, I am. But what's the alternative? Another year of stalemate and no bill? Only time will tell if these actions will pan out — but it has to be tried since all else has failed in the past.

As of this writing, I have met with the state fire marshal to discuss rules applicable to homes as different than centers, and am meeting with all members of the House and Senate that are interested in seeing a success this year.

While I understand that I will be held accountable for my votes, I would ask that those trying to stop Senate Bill 1078 try instead to help build it into something we can speak of with pride as a start in the right direction.

Rep. Ronald L. Black represents Twin Falls County, district 23, in the Idaho House.

Breakdown sought on Pence expenses

I am a city taxpayer and I am very concerned about how our tax dollars are being spent.

A month ago you ran an article on Dick Pence's travels.

According to your article, Mr. Pence is traveling far more than other county clerks. He spent $610 at a convention in Las Vegas. He must have spent a week there to spend that much money. I have been to Las Vegas and I know what motels cost. Did Mr. Pence bring back receipts for his meals and motels? I know this is necessary when you are spending the other fellow's money.

He won't be attending conventions this year as he has now learned how to run his office. It's funny to me that all the meetings he attended, there wasn't a one that taught him how to handle the absentee ballots.

I am asking The Times-News to get a breakdown on his expenses to Las Vegas. Mr. Pence said he didn't have to report to the council as he is an elected official. I would like to hear from other taxpayers on this.

REED JOHNSON

People now awakening to Reagan's disasters

In the past, the Republican conservative view, by my understanding, has always been don't spend more than you take in. Live within your means. Well someone has forgot to tell Ronald Reagan this. In 1979 Mr. Reagan was telling the people, "We have to balance the budget."

So let's see what has happened. First, he cut taxes, which at first we thought was okay. But then, he began spending at a pace that has never occurred in the history of the United States, "especially in peacetime."

Now let's examine what happens when this occurs. First someone must pay the costs. Unfortunately the ones who have paid have been the SS recipients, veterans, the low income minorities and the working class in general. The farm farmer and the small businessman have paid very dearly. Due to this policy Mr. Reagan has persued.

One good example of this spending is the SDI program in our national defense. There is no way to estimate the final cost of this project. Now everyone will agree that we need a safe and secure defense. But I wonder if you are guarding a nation that is slowly dying of hunger and disease (such as AIDS) because of the lack of funds to fight these social problems. What have we gained? It has been stated that we have fell to fifth in our living standards. Now if we pursue the path that Mr. Reagan has set us upon, where will we be in 1988?

In 1984, Mr. Reagan asked the people "Are you better off now than you were in 1980?" So now I ask the people "Look in your billfold, and your savings account (if you are fortunate enough to have one) and ask yourself, Are you better off?"

The environment has suffered greatly at the hands of this present administration. There has been scandal in the EPA. World travel has become increasingly unsafe. And now we have begun secretly trying to rearm a nation that held our embassy personnel hostage, and in truth held our whole country hostage for a whole year. From the environmental scandal to the Iran and Contra scandal the Republican Party has worked very hard to cover up for Mr. Reagan. But the people, up for Mr. Reagan. But the people, (which was Republican) are beginning to awaken. So let me ask you this question one more time, Are you better off?

Coverage of death does family injustice

"Vengeance is mine said the Lord." Well I am not the Lord, and I have no power to invoke vengeance. I only want people to know the injustice done to my family by the North Side News.

My father shot himself after much suffering, and the pain of losing his wife six months ago.

The day it happened no member of my family were ever interviewed or asked any background as to why such a thing could happen at all.

We had asked the police that arrived (three of them) not to release any information. They said they wouldn't.

But the good old freedom of the press put a lot of misinformation and half truths on the front page the next day in large two inch type, that Jack Spohn had shot himself, never taking time to find out the real facts. They were only interested in gossip writing.

I want everyone to know the type of paper we have in Jerome county and get everyone not to buy the North Side News again, before it hurts you with half truths and lies.

Let them know they can't treat people like dogs and expect to get away with it.

Getting more help first step

I read in yesterday's Times-News a letter to the editor from a Gayla Rosen, which I feel demands a reply. I understand why she is upset, but things are not always as rumor says they are.

1. The law requires that the state prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused is in fact guilty.
2. In any incident there is only a certain amount of evidence available. Sometimes, even all that there is, is not enough to get a case through court, and convict a suspect.
3. Since the incident mentioned, many hours of investigation have been logged by local officers, and by experts from the state and the FBI. For local officers, many of these hours are "off duty" hours for which no pay or time-off will be received.
4. Lincoln County consists of approximately 1,190 square miles, including approximately 100 miles of state and federal highways. We have only five officers to patrol the entire county 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.
5. Many of those "coffee breaks" since the incident have been after an early morning patrol of some of this county's highways.
6. From personal experience, on a patrol from 3 a.m. to 7 a.m. I will seldom see more than four or five vehicles on the highways.
7. Crimes can be committed anywhere, and at any time. Without a huge increase in our budget, we cannot provide enough coverage for our whole county 24 hours a day. It is interesting to note that only a few minutes before the incident in question, one of our deputies patrolled the section of road where the incident occurred. We cannot be everywhere at once.

Conclusion: If you are concerned about crime, get us more help so we can have 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week patrol, not as it is now, just during the times when statistically more crimes occur. Or try "walking in our moccasins" for a while. Don't just throw rocks.

Take lesson from forefathers

In the 1800's, when our forefathers came from the eastern states and began to settle in the western states, they had to begin from scratch. There were no counties, no cities and no communities. The economy, of course, was very weak.

Our forefathers realized that very little help from the government would be forthcoming and it would be basically up to them to develop and create their own future. So they set forth and did just that.

It is very clear that our cities and counties will receive very little help from our state and federal government: to improve our local economy.

They either are not able to help or just plain and simply will not. So we must take a lesson from our forefathers.

The time has come (and certainly the need is there) to join forces and work together, the same as our forefathers did in the beginning. We Democrats and Republicans can always do battle in the election years.

Suppose a good many merchants, businessmen, citizens and farmers were to form a corporation together. Then they could join together and purchase (or build) several old covered covered wagons and teams.

They could pull together an old wagon train trip, perhaps through the foothills of the south hills, winding down into Nevada. Perhaps they could even make a deal with some casino owners to build a couple of small buildings (western style) where the guests could gamble a little. Then the wagon train could return to Twin Falls. The wagon train trip could last from four to five days.

I'm sure it would attract a good many tourists, because all of eastern people would like to experience first hand, the life of a pioneer, such as eating and sleeping on the prairie.

Old time square dances could be arranged on the train, plus they could gamble a while. I believe this will attract more tourists, more money and create more jobs in this area.

We must work together and not sit back and let the economy go from bad to worse. We must take a lesson from our forefathers and begin to build within our own communities, cities and counties. This we can do.

Letters/Star Wars, SIS project bring comments from readers

Policy would end conflict

What's happening here? The press is reporting Rep. Jerry Callen is pushing the development of a sophisticated space defense system, but there must be some kind of mistake since Mr. Callen has consistently worked against such foolishness by doing his best to implement a stone-age educational system both within his district and the entire state of Idaho.

While a member of the Jerome School board, for example, he warmed up by eliminating kindergarten in the district and has since, steadfastly refused to consider any progressive proposal for investing in the state's educational development.

If the world would only follow Mr. Callen's lead away from progressive educational policy, there would be no such thing as east-west conflict. Nobody would know how to build boats or airplanes, and it's impossible to throw rocks that far.

Callen's action applauded

Many thanks to Rep. Jerry Callen for his introduction of a memorial urging funding for the Strategic Defense Initiative. I applaud Callen's action and the support it has received.

Contrary to editorial opinions expressed by The Times-News and by Terry Gilbert, (whose "Perspectives in education" should more properly be entitled "Tirades in liberalism" — i.e., opposition to Contra aid, Darwinism, secular humanism, etc.), I believe a legislative memorial not only to be a proper channel for the expression of the sentiments of a majority of Idahoans, but also it will serve to bolster the arguments of Idaho's congressional leaders as they represent this viewpoint in the Congress of the United States.

Chief among Mr. Gilbert's objections to SDI was the projected cost. (He says one trillion, but figures released by U.S. News and World Report as late as Feb. 9 approach nowhere near that amount.)

But whatever the cost, I would, nevertheless maintain that SDI, if successful, would ultimately be a cheaper course of peace than would be still another round of conventional arms build up madness.

The Soviets are spending around 10 percent of their $350-$400 billion defense budget on creating their own strategic defense system. The fact that the Soviets want so badly to see the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative discarded indicates they are quite certain it will work.

The threat to world peace does not come from nuclear weapons themselves, but from open aggression of the Russian toward the free world. Placing the arms-control pact cart before the horse. Successful arms-control must be built on real progress in the full range of bi-lateral relations.

The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, repression in Eastern Europe and militarization of the Third World reflect Moscow's aggressive designs. Last week's treatment of Soviet Jews gives real clues that the "new soviet" is not so new after all. The U.S. has documented Soviet violations of every past arms-control agreement. Moscow regards arms control as a ploy to gain an edge over the west. Clearly we should not give Russia the benefit of the doubt again. SDI precludes this.

So bravo, Representative Callen. Thank you for your memorial and for not putting a price tag on our freedom.

Look at cost of opportunity

How would the Special Isotope Separation plant (SIS) and the Superconducting Super Collider project (SSC) affect Idaho?

If both projects come to the Gem state, we would expect some $6 billion of investment funds, the creation of about 3,000 permanent jobs, and a $250 million operating budget for at least 20 years.

It all sounds so very promising, especially for Idaho's flagging economy. And our governmental and business leaders are anxiously making plans to woo these wonderful projects to our state.

But I submit that both the SIS and the SSC, like the MX and the SDI ("Star Wars") are simply two more examples of the dangerous and destructive technological seduction of humanity. Despite a justified admission that these projects might be good, if one truly reflects on their implications they will be seen for what they really are — modern-day "Golden Calves" erected to appease the false gods of the "Pentagon of Power."

The powerful groups that propose and support these projects have succumbed to the grandiose myth of the machine age: the myth that our world can be made into a safer, saner, happier and more prosperous place by bigger and better machines.

"It is a myth that ignores issues like quality of life, humanistic and spiritual values, and our real social priorities; a myth that even now perpetuates the sacrificing of millions of lives and livelihoods upon the altars of microchips, nuclear bombs and robotics.

So what are our national priorities anyway? Building more nuclear weapons? I doubt it. Today there are in excess of 55,000 nuclear weapons and we are adding about three more weapons to the world arsenal every day.

The Super Collider plan? That too is questionable. Neither the 1980 "Global 2000 Report to the President" nor the "Nation at Risk" report issued in 1983 listed the need for such a project to insure America's survival.

Interestingly, however, both of these reports made a vigorous case for overhauling our educational system so that our nation might remain competitive in the international market place, prepare our youth for life in an emerging Global Village, promote the ideals of world citizenship and peaceful coexistence, and enable our people to "make sound judgments for the ordering of individual and social life."

So as we begin to consider the SIS and the humnity, let's also consider what the opportunity costs are.

Educators support funding formula change

May set aside 'funding floor' concept in exchange for higher fixed tax rate

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — School officials statewide said Monday they are willing to sweep aside demands for a public education "funding floor" in return for greater and swifter changes in the funding formula.

Superintendent Nick Hallett, of Meridian Joint District, said that if the tax level in the state funding formula is raised from 25 percent to 30 percent this year, he could put the "flooring bill on the back burner."

Twin Falls Assistant Superintendent Keith Tolzin and Pocatello Superintendent Rulon Ellis agreed that a compromise could be reached if the rate changed to 30 percent. But the three officials said a flooring proposal would have to accompany a lower rate increase.

Evans, on the recommendation of a committee that spent 1½ years studying equalizing funding, proposed to raise the tax rate by which all districts figure their education funding. The Senate bill would raise the tax rate in the funding equation from .25 percent by .02 percent a year for 5 years, he said.

Officials from Twin Falls, Pocatello and Meridian have been promoting a funding "floor," where under a House bill, every district would receive 87.5 percent of adjusted revenue of the highest operating district.

Because state funding commitments local contributions to the same amount for all districts, and because the tax rate used in the funding formula is fixed at 25 percent, districts with higher property values receive less from the state. If the tax rate is raised, districts with higher property values will inversely receive a smaller portion of their budget from the state.

Addressing plan pushed for county's rural areas

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The days of route numbers for rural Twin Falls County may be numbered — through an effort by Mountain Bell, which is seeking help from other utility companies to pay for rural addressing.

The addressing should help not only utilities, but the U.S. Post Office, emergency units, law enforcement and even people who deliver flowers to more easily locate rural residents, said Fred Tilman, Mountain Bell's rural address coordinator.

Twin Falls County Board Commissioners Chairman Judy Felton said the Board of Commissioners has committed to rural addressing — as long as it doesn't cost the county too much money.

The majority of the funding, however, will probably come from the utilities who serve the county.

Mountain Bell will seek support from the Idaho Power Co., Intermountain Gas Co. and the Filer Mutual Telephone Co. to help pay for the addressing, Tilman said.

In other counties, utilities have normally donated $5 for each customer they serve. Civic groups, especially granges, have also made contributions in the form of money or labor.

Emergency units have been the biggest supporters of rural addressing because they no longer have to follow directions, such as "1½ mile west and 2 miles south," to find a house or business, he said.

"Right now we are in the process of assessing the price," Tilman said. "Once we agree we want to do the project, the county contracts with each of the utilities."

The county will be responsible for establishing an address system by contracting the work out or completing it with county employees, and making sure it remains current.

Tilman said, "We (Mountain Bell) want that local control."

The costs and time involved in addressing the rural areas depends on the size of the county, he added. The process takes about a year to 1½ years to complete, with a price tag at $6,000 on up.

Felton said the County Board had wanted rural addresses for several years, but the costs were prohibitive.

"If the financing falls into place, the county will put the work out to bid, she said."

The telephone company is supporting and committed to addressing of rural residences, farms and businesses to help them find their customers.

In the old days, telephones remained at a residence when people moved, Tilman said. Now when people move they take their telephones with them and the

BLM: Funds needed for Hagerman Fossil Beds

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Bureau of Land Management says that more than $800,000 should be spent to protect the Hagerman Fossil Beds, a designated national landmark described as in 100-percent poor ecological condition.

The greatest damage has occurred from irrigation canal leakage above the landmark, causing fossils to wash away and polluting the Snake River with sediment, according to a draft of a BLM resource management plan for the area.

BLM officials estimate it would take $750,000 to correct the canal leakage problem affecting the fossil beds, which hold clues to the life of mammals on Earth some 2 million years ago. Of that amount, $150,000 would have to come from private funds, the BLM report said.

The federal agency estimates that a plan could be done by 1988 and it names this as a top priority, along with hiring a full-time employee to be at the site.

Budget problems and a shortage of personnel have hampered and are continuing to limit what can be done to appropriately manage the Hagerman National Landmark, BLM said.

Fossils were first discovered there in the 1920s. Another problem is runoff from farmland next to the landmark. "Severe damage is continuing to occur because of overland water flow," the report said.

The BLM district office in Boise is proposing many other steps to maintain the site in top condition.

The BLM wants to shore up sediment runoff and would seal trails and remove off-road vehicles and motorcycles. It calls for erecting signs to limit ORV users with the significance of the internationally recognized site.

Research at the site has been concerned with fossils of animals with a backbone, such as the horse, otter, beaver and birds. Information from these animals, ancient mollusks and other fossils have given scientists clues to evolutionary trends and development of biological communities and interaction between organisms.

"The materials present are, in general, particularly well-preserved specimens of a fragile, rare and irreplaceable resource that is sensitive and vulnerable to loss and destruction," the report said.

The BLM wants to shore up unstable slopes to prevent further erosion. Plantings of willows and other native trees are called for to make the area more scenic.

The agency wants to acquire a 492-acre section within the site, which is owned by the state. In order to establish a secure setting for the landmark, The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation has already proposed this.

TRIM speaker contends media liberal and pro-communist

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A radio broadcaster told an audience of about 100 persons here Monday night that information being broadcast, telecast and printed for their consumption is strictly liberal in nature and is nearly all pro-communist.

"The media is not the enemy," he said, "but there are enemies within the media."

Richard Fatherly, a native of Topeka, Kansas, addressed a public meeting sponsored by the Magic Valley TRIM Committee (Tax Reform Immediately) at the Holiday Inn. Fatherly, who said had been employed by several radio stations around the United States, blasted all forms of the media as biased liberal information sources and charged that the media is programmed to keep the truth about communism from the public.

He said the major newscasters of the nation's largest radio and television networks are hiding anti-communist facts and calling for such things as a better understanding and relationship with the Soviet Union.

He questioned the U.S. government's investigation of the Challenger space shuttle explosion in January 1986. Fatherly said the investigative committee blamed the blast on an O-ring failure, but has since approved the same part for continued use.

"Never once did the committee mention possible sabotage," Fatherly said. "I believe it was sabotage," he said, suggesting that the shuttle was blown up by communists to delay U.S. programs so that the Soviet space shuttle program could catch up and move ahead. The sabotage would also delay deployment of this country's Strategic Defense Initiative, he said.

The speaker said the Soviets have monitored the American space program and their own is a "clone" of the U.S. system.

He also charged that many smaller nations that have been taken over by communism have been helped along that course with American tax dollars, through foreign aid programs.

He warned against tax dollars being used to aid the nation's enemies with technology and other types of assistance.

The U.S. State Department is pro-communist, Fatherly said, and has been following that course since the close of World War II.

He warned also that the federal government is declaring "economic warfare" in states such as Kansas and Idaho through excessive taxation.

Fatherly called on the people of Magic Valley to vote to elect conservative candidates to state and national offices and to work to defeat liberal office holders.

Describing democracy as "mob rule and anarchy," Fatherly said, "Our founding fathers feared democracy. The U.S. Constitution, he noted, guarantees a republican form of government, but that does not support the Republican Party, which was formed in the mid-19th century.

Republicans and Democrats alike were skewered by the John Birch Society speaker, including President Ronald Reagan — who, he said, has given "aid and comfort" to the communists.

He described the John Birch Society as a "reliable source" of information and one of the few anti-communist organizations willing to tell of the communist threats the world is facing. The John Birch Society is helping to sponsor the TRIM Committee.

To counter what he described as a news media "blackout" of important news regarding communism, Fatherly suggested the dissemination of Birch Society publications, and improving relationships with local news organizations in order to educate poorly informed journalists.

Black's smoking bill clears hurdle

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

BOISE — A new bill banning smoking on buses made its way out of the House Transportation Committee on Monday.

The latest measure is sponsored by Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, who sponsored another bill that was shot down in the House on Feb. 5.

The old bill made smoking on a bus a misdemeanor, punishable by 6 months in jail and a $300 fine. It also allowed fellow passengers to assist the bus driver in physically restraining the offending smoker.

Opponents argued the measure would allow passengers to toss little old women off the bus in the middle of the night between stops. The measure was defeated by a 44-50 vote.

The new bill eliminates the misdemeanor penalty and the "vigilante" provision, Black said.

Under the new bill a person guilty of smoking on a bus would be subject to a $50 fine, the same fine assessed against a person who violates the Clean Air Act of 1986.

Under the Clean Air Act a person is prohibited from smoking in a public place or at a public meeting, except in designated areas.

Rep. Dean Haengson, R-Coeur d'Alene, questioned why smoking was permitted on buses with 14 passengers or fewer.

Black said he did not want to infringe on individual rights, and personal vans are usually the vehicles with fewer than 15 people.

Black predicted his new version will pass the House.

Wendell garbage policy questioned

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Questions, not direct complaints, about garbage collection were raised at the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday.

Dawn Trace, operator of the Iron Skillet Cafe, asked if her business could haul its own garbage or hire a different sanitation service to do it.

Councilman Lloyd Little said Ron Fager of C & R Sanitation has a contract with the city giving him exclusive rights to all trash collection. Even if people haul their own, they must still pay for the service of C & R Sanitation, Little said.

Councilman Matt Bunn said the city needs to protect the contractor. "We've got to give him the right to take care of the job," he said.

Trace said her business has to deal with competition in Wendell. "We can't get an exclusive license to be the only restaurant in town," she said.

Fager said his prices are equal to or below the prices of his competitors.

Trace asked why Wendell contracted the garbage collection service to Fager four years ago instead of continuing to use the city garbage truck and city employees to do the job.

Councilman Marshall Howsden said the change was made only after much study and discussion.

"We thought we could save the city some money, and we did," he said. High insurance rates, truck maintenance costs and the probable need to purchase a new truck were factors in the decision, he said.

Bunn said the city lost $548 during its last year of doing its own garbage collection. City Clerk June Heim reported the city makes $150 per month for including the garbage collection fee on city water bills and then paying Fager.

Trace also asked why the city hired

IPC to replace dam's coils

HAGERMAN — Idaho Power crews are scheduled to begin replacing the electrical coils of Unit 2 at the Lower Salmon Dam hydroelectric plant next week. The 18-megawatt generator is the last of Lower Salmon's four units to receive refurbishing, after nearly four decades of service.

The rewinding is expected to take about 4 months to complete. The Lower Salmon plant is located on the Snake River near Hagerman. Originally built in 1910 by a predecessor company of Idaho Power, it was replaced by the existing 70-megawatt plant in the late 1940s.

Thieves break into church

TWIN FALLS — Two churches in Twin Falls were visited by thieves during the weekend, including a break-in at the Bethel Temple Church where about $6,000 worth of office equipment and other items were taken.

Police reports indicated the Bethel Temple Church, at 2320 9th Ave. E., was entered sometime between 11:30 p.m. Saturday and 7:04 a.m. Sunday. Police said entry was gained by breaking a window. After entering the building, the burglars broke into the pastor's office. Items removed included a copying machine valued at $3,500, other office machines and equipment, and $100 in cash.

Wills Rider reported that someone also entered the office of the First Baptist Church, 910 Shoshone St. E., sometime Saturday and took her purse. She estimated the loss at $475, which included cash and a pay check.

Meeting set on Idaho Co.

TWIN FALLS — A town meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, at 7 p.m., at the College of Southern Idaho's Shields Building Auditorium, to explain The Idaho Company, a private sector initiative aimed at stimulating economic growth throughout Idaho.

The Idaho Company's goal is to advance the business prosperity of Idaho and its citizens, spokesman Bill Babcock said in a news release. The company seeks to create jobs and to expand the state's tax base to help ease the severe fiscal constraints state and local governments face. Babcock said.

The Idaho Company was formed by the chief executives of Albertson's, Boise Cascade Corporation, First Interstate Bank, First Security Bank, Hewlett-Packard, Idaho Bank and Trust, Idaho First National Bank, Idaho Power Company, Intermountain Gas Company, Mountain Bell and Ore-Ida Foods.

The speaker at Wednesday's meeting will be Dave Edson, executive vice president of First Interstate Bank of Idaho.

The public is encouraged to attend.

Police investigate burglary

TWIN FALLS — A house burglary and entry of an unlocked vehicle were among crime reports Monday at the Twin Falls Police Department. Jerry Lee Griggs, 146 Addison Ave. W., told police someone entered his home Sunday and removed a video cassette recorder unit valued at $435. Police said the home was entered by breaking in a door. Nothing else in the house was taken.

A radar detector valued at $240, was reported taken from a vehicle owned by Rob Pearson of Buhl. The vehicle was parked at 532 N. Washington St. in Twin Falls Saturday night when the theft occurred.

Autopsy set in man's death

TWIN FALLS — An autopsy is scheduled for today in the death of Mike Howell, 41, whose body was found late Monday in his apartment. Twin Falls County Coroner Calvin Edwards said he believed the man died late last week but a cause of death was not immediately evident.

The man's body was found in his apartment at 231 3rd St. E., by his daughter and a police officer. Edwards said Howell's daughter became concerned when she had not seen Howell for several days and asked officers to check his residence.

Edwards said the body was found on a couch in the apartment. He said there was some blood evident and the couch was broken, but a fall onto the couch by the man could have caused the damage. City police said the investigation is continuing.

Noxious weed report prepared

CHALLIS — The Challis National Forest is preparing an environmental assessment for the control of noxious weeds and poisonous plants.

The species that will be considered in the assessment are: black henbane, Canada thistle, dalmatian toadflax, dilute knapweed, hoary cress, leafy spurge, milk thistle, spotted knapweed, tansy ragwort, yellow toadflax, larkspur, poison hemlock and water hemlock.

Infestation of these plants range from individual plants to several acres, Forest Service officials said in a news release. The majority of these weeds are located adjacent to roadways and on disturbed sites.

Any concerns or comments should be addressed to the forest supervisor, Challis National Forest, P.O. Box 404, Challis 83226, and must be in by the closing of work hours on March 12.

Hunger politics discussed in series

TWIN FALLS — The politics of hunger kicks off a four-part series in which Northwest academics address international issues via television.

Lewis-Clark State College's World Perspectives Lecture Series will be televised on cable Channel 10 at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., starting today with Montana State University International Affairs Program Chairman Don Clark, who lectures on "World Hunger and U.S. Exports: Are We Contributing to the Problem or the Solution?"

Clark, in a press release, contended that politics, not the lack of food, interferes with distribution and creates hunger. CIA undercover operations, from embarrassing political figures to assassination, will be covered by Washington University political science professor David Ziegler in "The CIA and Covert Actions: Who Can We Believe?" on Feb. 24.

Whitman College political science Professor Graeme Auton discusses "Star Wars and the Soviet Response" on Feb. 26. Auton has an extensive background with NATO, Malaysia and Brunei, Association of Southeast Asian Nations members.

International Affairs and in discussions on arms reductions and strategic defense initiatives in The Hague and Vienna, respectively.

Similarities and differences in Idaho and Southeast Asian life will be examined by Reese Parker, LSCS dean of professional studies, in "ASEAN and Idaho: What is the Connection?" on March 2. Parker, who spent several years designing an educational television system in Indonesia, looks at that country, Singapore, Thailand, the Philippines, Malaysia and Brunei, Association of Southeast Asian Nations members.

Addressing

company has a hard time locating people in the rural areas.

With new rural customers, the structure to develop directions for finding the customer and which lines serve them, he said.

With rural addressing, every structure would have a specific address.

In-depth mapping of the county is the first stage of rural addressing, Tilman said. During mapping, rural residences and business are assigned numbers, shown on reflective signs next to the structure.

Only rural residents would be included in the project. City residents would keep their present address, Tilman said.

Mapping involves talking with residents about who is occupying the structures and what utilities they use.

The information may be used by utilities and counties, he said. Map books are also compiled for use by utilities or other agencies that want to find rural residences.

The kind of problems Blaine County encountered in 1984 over allegations of inadequate addresses would be eliminated with the rural addressing, he said.

Election results were challenged, because many voters used post office box numbers as mailing addresses, but no evidence was ever found of improper voting.

Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln and Blaine Counties have already adopted a rural-address system, said Tilman, whose job at the company includes organizing such systems.

Jerome County Commissioner Carl Montgomery said he's found most of his constituents pleased with rural addressing, completed in 1985.

The commissioners approved the system and partially funded its establishment because "it helps emergency and law enforcement agencies more easily find rural residents," Montgomery said.

Not all the intersections have been signed to help people find the rural addresses, so there may be some confusion, he said. But rural residents will eventually become accustomed to the new system, he predicted.

someone from outside the city.

"You could afford to hire a man and keep the money in Wendell instead of sending it to Gooding," she said.

Fager said C & R Sanitation serves all of Gooding County and does "a considerable amount of business here locally (in Wendell)." Also, he said, C & R supports the Wendell Chamber of Commerce and Wendell schools.

"So don't feel that I'm an outsider just because I happen to live in Gooding," Fager said.

Mayor Otto Lemke said Fager responded promptly and willingly to calls and complaints. And Howdsen said C & R Sanitation has done a good job for the city.

Councilman Dick Beck said Fager still has three years remaining on his contract with the city. Later in the meeting, the council voted to wait to extend Fager's contract.

Other activities harming the landmark include grazing and private collecting.

Hagerman is within the Jarbidge Resource Management Area, and other BLM officials called for a ban on uses that destroy fossil specimens. A ban on grazing is proposed. The BLM would allow for cattle drives on a paved road at the south end of the landmark, for 2 miles per year. Exploration and development of non-energy minerals would be allowed.

Hagerman is a designated — but not registered — National Natural Landmark. The BLM, National Park Service and the state should register it, the BLM said.

Public comment on the plan will be sought, but no date has yet been set for it.

first year is not enough. "It just doesn't go far enough fast enough," Hallett said.

Evans said the smaller increase was proposed this year because his proposal last year to raise the rate to 30 percent was seen as too big a jump. "That's why we backed off and proposed a practical" amount, Evans said.

The Boise School District, with its higher property values marking it as a suspected opponent to equalization, will join in support at the hearing Thursday for Evans' "reasonable" suggestion of raising .02 percent a year.

"It seemed like the plausible course to take," said Assistant Superintendent Edward Davis. "It will hurt Boise, but it is a reasonable approach to accomplish this (equalization)."

Group provides legislative hotline

BOISE — Magle Valley residents can telephone messages to their state legislators in Boise which, in most cases, would be delivered the same day.

The Citizens' Alliance for Progressive Action, a privately funded, bi-partisan citizens' action coalition based in the state capital, is providing a free telephone message service for a second year. Service coordinator Fuji Kreider said.

The toll-free number is 1-800-423-

5241. Volunteers take messages using a word-processing system and usually deliver them to the Legislature three times each weekday — at 8 a.m., between 11:30 a.m. and noon and at 3 p.m., Kreider said.

The service, which also offers legislative information, is provided weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. through the duration of the legislative session, she added, noting that 3,500 messages had been left and 550 information calls taken in the first 8 days of operation. The messages have covered a variety of issues and political leanings, Kreider said.

"We're getting lots of calls from Twin Falls," said Bob Ehlert, in charge of public relations for the coalition.

A bill that would establish a similar service run by the Legislature passed the state Senate and is currently being considered by the Idaho House.

'Tough girl' image brings weird offers

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "On the Outside Looking In," the graduate student who's shy and insecure.

He described himself as "nice looking, personable, intelligent, sensitive, with a good sense of humor." Well, I have the same qualities as this male, only I'm 23, not ugly, tall with long blond hair, and I'm female. I also have trouble connecting with members of the opposite sex, but I think it's the way I dress.

I dress like a "biker" — black leather jacket and black knee-high leather boots. Guys, especially the clean-cut ones, the kind I like — usually get the wrong impression of me; they think I'm a "tough" girl and they don't bother to talk to me. I'm not "tough" — I have very high moral standards — I just like the look of leather.

Very often when my friends and I go dancing at the "rough" girl club, they don't bother to talk to me. I go dancing at the "rough" girl club and take us outside to tango in the back seat of their car. Meanwhile, we try to think of a nice, polite way to say, "Leave us alone."

Here's a message for "Looking In": Don't give up, I'd love to meet you, but I know that's impossible because Abby isn't running a dating service. So next time you're at a bar, or walking down the street, if you see a tall blonde in a black leather jacket, please stop and get acquainted.

— A LEATHER-LOVING GIRL

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR GIRL: You say clean-cut guys don't bother to talk to you because you dress in black leather and look like a "biker." The guys whom you call "weirdos," who want to pick you up for immoral purposes, may just LOOK like weirdos — their moral standards might be as high as yours.

The way a person dresses is a statement he makes about himself. If you don't want to look like a "tough girl," don't dress like one. And don't you judge another person's character and motives until you get to know him, and if you're lucky, no one will judge you before he gets to know you. But start with yourself.

DEAR ABBY: So macho Al in Santa Barbara says he hates pants on women because he can't tell the women from the men. How about when you're driving down the street and the driver in front of you has a nice head of hair down to her shoulders, and when you pass her, you notice that "she" also has a beard and moustache.

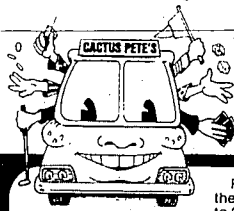

Now that is what I call ridiculous!
— LIKES PANTS ON WOMEN

CONFIDENTIAL TO FURIOUS IN FORT LAUDERDALE: My response to Mr. Barrett's letter about what an unborn child would miss had to be one of the most misunderstood columns I have ever written. For the record: I AM PRO-ABORTION — I AM PRO-CHOICE. When "Hurting in Fort Worth" wrote that she and her husband had agreed to have no children, and she became accidentally pregnant, her husband, knowing that she was opposed to abortion on religious and moral grounds, insisted that she have an abortion. I advised her: "If you have to choose between your husband and the baby, choose the baby." I did not encourage her to have an abortion. I received a barrage of critical mail and a few supportive letters. I maintain that every child should be a wanted child, and God help the child born into a family that does not want him, cannot provide for him and resents his presence. Relatives wait for word on Soviet activist's fate

MOSCOW (AP) — The family of Josef Begun waited for word Monday that he was a free man, but they quoted Soviet officials as saying the Jewish activist was still in prison and no order was issued to free him.

"I was fairly optimistic this morning after hearing what Georgi Arbatov said, but I'm not so optimistic this evening," Begun's son, Boris, said by telephone Monday.

Arbatov, head of a Kremlin think tank known as the U.S.A.-Canada Institute, said from Moscow on the CBS television program "Face the Nation" Sunday that he was informed Begun was free.

The Hebrew teacher, an activist in the Jewish emigration movement, was sentenced in October 1983 to seven years in prison and five in internal exile after being convicted of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

Begun was sent to Chistopol Prison about 500 miles east of Moscow.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said last week Begun declined to sign a statement asking for a government pardon that Gerasimov said freed 140 other jailed dissidents.

Begun's family and supporters demonstrated for five straight days on Moscow's Arbat shopping mall.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, security agents in pinclothes violently broke up the demonstrations.

Boris Begun was detained twice. On Friday, he was told to report to police headquarters this Wednesday to begin a 15-day jail term for "petty hooliganism."

He said Monday he heard about Arbatov's comments and telephoned the Interior Ministry in Moscow, which has administrative supervision over jails and labor camps.

He said a ministry corrections department official named Vladimir Belykh told him he had spoken to Chistopol authorities and was told they had no directive to free Begun.

The prisoner's wife, Inna, said another ministry official, Vladimir Khrabkov, "told me that my husband is still in Chistopol—and the ministry knows nothing about his release."

Khrabkov, an aide to a deputy interior minister, told The Associated Press by telephone he had no information about Begun.

"I have no connection with this matter," he said.

The official news agency Tass said in a commentary Friday the Begun "problem" was considered "closed," implying he was to be freed. It said his family had been informed.

Filipino troops told to heed civil rights

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Defense Minister Rafael Hilo on Monday ordered soldiers who are fighting Communist rebels to respect the rights of civilians.

The military, meanwhile, reported new guerrilla attacks.

Hilo spoke at a ceremony at Camp Aguinaldo military headquarters in which about 1,000 troops swore allegiance to the newly ratified constitution.

His remarks followed charges that soldiers massacred 17 civilians near Lupao in Nueva Ecija province last Tuesday after rebels killed an army lieutenant.

President Corason Aquino has ordered an investigation into the charges.

The defense minister said soldiers serve "as subordinates of the duly constituted civilian authority," adding: "The maintenance of law and order is a delicate task—we have to perform, for while we are privileged to impose the law on others, we have to respect the rights of our people and we have to show that we are peace-loving and law abiding as other citizens."

The Philippine Constabulary said four of its men were killed and four were wounded in an ambush Sunday by the Communist New People's Army in Davao del Sur province of Mindanao. It said two other soldiers were wounded after they followed a raid by 60 suspected NPA guerrillas on the town hall of Morong, 10 miles south of the U.S. Navy base at Subic Bay.

The New People's Army said about 40,000 troops, Defense Department employees and dependant government forces since a dents at installations in the Philippines cease-fire expired Feb. 8 and peace talks have collapsed.

The United States maintains Department of Defense and dependant government forces since a dents at installations in the Philippines cease-fire expired Feb. 8 and peace talks have collapsed.

Iraq says Iranian shells kill civilians in Basra

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said shelling by Iranian artillery killed 10 civilians Monday in Basra, the southern capital, and Iraqi warplanes bombed three cities in Iraq.

The official Iraqi News Agency said shells landed in a residential area of Basra, which had a population of one million before an Iranian invasion force began to drive toward it Jan. 9. It said 28 people were wounded.

The shelling made— "a devastating raid" on the Shiite Muslim holy city of Qom in central Iran and bombed the northern city of Tabriz and the western garrison town of Dezful, the agency reported.

Dispatches from Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the bombing killed some staff members and patients at a hospital in Tabriz, but did not give numbers.

It said other civilians were killed in raids on the Allgurud and Ilam, IRNA said. Iraq did not mention attacks on those cities.

According to the agency, Iranian shells destroyed oil installations in Iraq territory, not far from the eastern town of Ah-Gharat, from which 120,000 barrels of oil a day had been exported to Saudi Arabia.

Attacks on its oil export facilities have caused Iraq to transship oil through Saudi Arabia by pipeline.

Polish paper hits 'Amerika'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The official Polish government newspaper said Monday the American television miniseries about a Soviet take-over of the United States was "a political scandal" aimed at stirring anti-Soviet attitudes.

The commentary in the communist government's daily newspaper, Rzeczpospolita, appeared a day after the first episode of ABC-TV's 14½-hour series "Amerika" was broadcast in the United States.

The newspaper said the goals of the series were "scaring American society, shaping a belief that the Soviet Union is threatening America, and by this to convince people to support military programs forced by the military-industrial complex," including the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Cronkite begins South Africa visit

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Former CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite arrived in South Africa on Monday, but South African authorities refused to let CBS News film his visit.

Cronkite, who is still active with CBS News, said he planned to meet prominent South Africans, including government and opposition leaders.

He said the government issued him a restricted visa that apparently prevents CBS from filming his interviews and travels. "No photography," he said when asked about the restrictions.

But Cronkite said he plans reports based on information gathered his five-day visit.

The detainees Parents Support Committee said its report, based on allegations from parents of detainees, mainly dealt with cases in the Johannesburg area and elsewhere in southern Transvaal province.

The committee said at least 720 children under the age of 18 remain in detention under the emergency decree, imposed June 12.

The group previously estimated that more than 20,000 people, including 8,000 children, have been detained at some point under the decree.

Mistreatment of detainees alleged

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Some black children detained under South Africa's emergency decree get an inadequate diet and have been teargassed and beaten with broom sticks, a monitoring group said Monday.

The Detainees Parents Support Committee said its report, based on allegations from parents of detainees, mainly dealt with cases in the Johannesburg area and elsewhere in southern Transvaal province.

The committee said at least 720 children under the age of 18 remain in detention under the emergency decree, imposed June 12.

The group previously estimated that more than 20,000 people, including 8,000 children, have been detained at some point under the decree.

Ireland votes today; FitzGerald loss forecast

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Battered by record unemployment and high taxes, Ireland votes in a general election today with polls predicting defeat for Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald.

Challenger Charles Haughey, a former prime minister, was favored to win this fourth election in six years, despite FitzGerald's internationally acclaimed efforts for peace in Northern Ireland.

But Haughey's key goal — an overall majority in the 166-seat Dail (Parliament) — remained elusive, according to opinion poll experts. That would avert another spell of fractious coalition government and the outside chance of another election within the year.

The last published opinion poll gave Haughey 45 percent, the minimum usually needed for outright control. Ireland's complex electoral system, however, made the final outcome impossible to predict.

The two candidates wound up their campaigns with last-minute swings through their Dublin constituencies Monday.

Haughey said he remained confident the electorate of 2.3 million would give him and his Fianna Fail party an overall majority.

FitzGerald, head of Fine Gael, predicted only that neither party would win a majority.

Fears of a stalemate set in, with the Irish Independent editorializing: "The election seems to be about to produce a hung Dail, surely the worst of all possible outcomes, especially since it would almost certainly mean another election this year."

The number of undecided voters rose from 11 percent to 15 after a televised Haughey-FitzGerald debate Thursday.

King unveils monument

DOS HERMANAS, Spain (AP) — About 70,000 people cheered Monday as King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia unveiled a bronze monument in the monarch's honor in this southern town near Seville.

The 16½-foot tall statue sculpted by Jaime Gil Arevalo shows the king holding a book of the 1978 Spanish constitution. It is the first monument erected in Spain for Juan Carlos.

Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez also attended the ceremonies at Constitution Square in Dos Hermanas.

The city decided to erect the monument in December 1985 on the 10th anniversary of Juan Carlos' ascension to the throne.

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Guard Kevin Nixon scored 19 points and Reid Newby and Jeff Anderson each added 13 as Utah State defeated Pacific 85-61 in Pacific Coast Athletic Conference play Monday.

With the victory, the Aggies, 1-13 and 7-7, moved to a four-way tie for second place in the PCAA with Long Beach State, New Mexico State and San Jose State. Those three schools were idle Monday night.

Utah State, picked to finish 10th in the conference prior to the season, never trailed.

Brent Cousins had 20 for Pacific and Christian Gray had 19. Danny Conway had 12 for Utah State.

ASU 67, UCLA 64

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A three-point shot by Arthur Thomas at time expired Monday night gave lowly Arizona State a shocking 67-64 victory over UCLA in a Pacific-10 Conference basketball game at Pauley Pavilion.

Despite the loss, the Bruins still lead the Pacific-10 with 11 records. They are a half-game ahead of Oregon state, which is 10-4. The teams met Tuesday night at Corvallis, Ore., with first place at stake.

UCLA, which had won 14 of its previous 15 games, fell to 17-6 overall. The Bruins are 12-2 at Pauley Pavilion this season. ASU now has a 4-10 conference record and an 8-18 overall mark.

UCLA freshman Trevor Wilson tied the game at 64-61 by making one of two free throws with 22 seconds left.

The Sun Devils then called timeout and ran the clock down before Thomas, a 5-foot-9 junior guard, fired from just to the right of the top of the key over Reggie 12-1. The shot of about 25 feet hit nothing but net as the buzzer sounded.

A three-point shot by Bobby Thompson

College basketball

with 1-35 to go gave the Sun Devils a 67-61 lead, but freshman Kevin Walker made two free throws with 56 seconds to play to put UCLA back on top.

The Sun Devils regained the lead when Mark Carlini tipped in a missed shot with 41 seconds to go. Wilson then made his game-tying foul shot to set the stage for Thomas' heroics.

Thomas led ASU with 15 points. Steve Beck and Thompson added 14 and 12 points, respectively, for the Sun Devils.

Miller paced the Bruins with 16 points. Hatcher and Jerome "Pooh" Richardson added 10 points apiece for UCLA.

Indiana 86, Wisc. 85

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Dean Garrett hit a follow shot through four seconds left in the third overtime as second-ranked Indiana overcame an 86-85 Big Ten basketball victory over Wisconsin Monday night.

Garrett, who led all scorers with 21 points, grabbed a rebound off a missed shot by Joe Hillman and put it in off the badgers.

J. J. Weber scored 20 points for Wisconsin before fouling out in the second overtime. Mike Heineman also had 20 for the Badgers.

Steve Alford scored 13 points to become the Indiana's all-time leading scorer.

The Hoosiers, similarly surprised last week by Northwestern before winning 77-75, improved their record to 21-2, including 11-1 in the conference. Wisconsin dropped to 11-15 and 1-12.

Travis Jackson, who scored 18 points for the Badgers, hit a jumper from the corner to give Wisconsin a 83-82 lead with 1:39 left in the third overtime. Following a charging foul on Garrett, Rod Ripley made two free throws to extend the lead to 85-82 with 48 seconds left.

Keith Smart, who scored 15 points, hit two free throws with 37 seconds left to bring Indiana within 84-82. Shelton Smith missed two free throws with 26 seconds left, setting up Garrett's shot.

Alford missed a lean-in shot from the side with four seconds left and Isle missed a shot at the buzzer in the first overtime.

Alford had another chance to win the game in the second overtime, but his lean-in shot from the lane with two seconds left also missed.

Ripley had tied the game for Wisconsin in the second overtime with a three-pointer with nine seconds left.

Indiana overcame a four-point Wisconsin lead in the last two minutes of regulation to send the game to overtime.

DePaul 88, M'mouth 53

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — Terence Greene and Kevin Edwards each scored 18 points as fourth-ranked DePaul bombed Monmouth 88-53 Monday night in college basketball.

The game was billed a gross mismatch, but the visitors from New Jersey, 7-15, kept the score respectable until a 31-run at the start of the second half gave DePaul a 74-38 lead.

The Hawks of the ECAC Metro fell apart in the second half, scoring only eight points in 11 minutes. Even in the first half, Ken Henry chipped in with 14.

For DePaul, 23-1, Rod Strickland scored 12 points and Stanley Brundy had 10.

The Blue Demons have won seven straight since suffering their only loss, Jan. 25 against Georgetown.

Temple 84, Duquesne 56

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nate Blackwell scored 21 points and Ramon Rivera had 14 points and 11 rebounds as fifth-ranked Temple ran its winning streak to 13 games by routing Duquesne 84-56 Monday night in an Atlantic 10 Conference game.

The Owls scored 17 consecutive points late in the first half to build a 44-23 halftime lead, then cruised to their 24th victory in their last 25 games to clinch a tie for the Atlantic 10 regular season title.

Jerome Dowdell came off the bench in the second half to score a career-high 14 points, including nine on three-point field goals.

Duquesne shot only 29 percent in the first half and 33 percent in the game. Only one opponent has shot 50 percent or better against Temple this season.

The Owls are undefeated in 15 conference games and are 28-2 overall. They haven't lost since Jan. 8.

Freeman and Brian Shanahan each scored 12 points for Duquesne and Mark Beavers added 11. The Ducks' leading scorer, senior Emmett Sellers, was held to eight points.

Duquesne is 11-14 overall and 7-9 in the Atlantic 10.

NFL players make profits scalping, Dallas paper says

DALLAS (AP) — Some NFL players make huge profits by scalping Super Bowl tickets, the Dallas Morning News said Sunday.

Under the league's collective bargaining agreement, players are given the option to buy two Super Bowl tickets at face value of $75 each.

Of the 28 NFL teams, only New England, Tampa Bay and San Diego have tried to prevent players from reselling the tickets at inflated prices, the newspaper said.

One player said he sold two end zone tickets to the Giants-Broncos game in the Rose Bowl three weeks ago for $1,600, a profit of $1,450.

"I used the money for Christmas presents," he said.

The newspaper said the players spoke of ticket scalping under the condition they not be identified.

A former Pro Bowl player it was easy last year to turn 10 tickets into $4,000.

"You're looking at a clear profit. It's hard to turn a profit if you're scalping your mouth waters," he said.

"If you don't need them for yourself, you say, 'I'm selling these tickets.' It's such easy cash money and Uncle Sam doesn't get any of it."

At the end of the 1985 season, a ticket broker in Los Angeles called a member of the Dallas Cowboys and offered $400 for each Super Bowl ticket he could provide, the paper said.

According to the News, the player went around the locker room and came up with 18 tickets. Each player made a $325 profit per ticket.

NFL policy prohibits management, coaches, staff members and game officials from selling Super Bowl tickets for a profit. Since it is not in the collective bargaining agreement, the policy does not affect players, although some teams have their own policy prohibiting players from selling Super Bowl tickets.

NFL officials said they want a policy written into the next collective bargaining agreement that would include players.

KMVT will carry CSI games if Eagles make JC nationals

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls television station KMVT-TV will broadcast all of the College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball games if the Eagles make it to the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament next month.

CSI President Jerry Meyerhoeffer said Monday those games would include CSI's tournament opener on Wednesday, March 18 at 12:45 MST, and all the other games in which the Eagles are involved subsequently in the 16-team, double-elimination tourney in Hutchinson, Kans. Last year, the station broadcast the final game the Eagles played in the national tourney.

KMVT General Manager Lee Wagner said KMVT sports director Cliff Naylor would handle the color commentary for the broadcasts.

College basketball

with Wichita, Kans., station KSN-TV providing the play-by-play announcer and handling production.

To get to the national tournament, CSI must win the four-team postseason Region 18 tournament, which will be played here March 6-7.

Meyerhoeffer said CSI will learn this week from Region 18 officials when tickets for the regional tournament will go on sale and how many tickets will be sold in Twin Falls, although all of the participants in the tournament might not be determined until as late as Feb. 5 depending upon the outcome of the games played during the next two weeks. CSI must reserve an undetermined number of tickets for the other three schools that will be playing in the regionals.

CSI season-ticket holders will be given a chance to buy tickets for the regionals.

CSI Coach Fred Trenkle said he doubted CSI fans attending the national tournament would have trouble getting tickets because it is unlikely the hometown school, Hutchinson Community College, will qualify for the national tournament this year.

UNLV, 26-1, stays firmly atop AP poll

By The Associated Press

With Nevada-Las Vegas leading the way, the top three clubs remained unchanged in the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll. There was some shuffling beneath the top three, although the same teams as last week remained in the rankings.

UNLV, 26-1, was again an easy pick for the top spot, collecting 50 of 65 first-place votes and 1,279 points from a nationwide panel of sportswriters and sportscasters.

Indiana, with eight first-place votes, saw its lead over North Carolina shrink to a single point — 1,206-1,205. The difference came with North Carolina's seven first-place votes.

DePaul, Temple and Purdue each improved one spot as Iowa, an 80-73 loser to Purdue, dropped three spots to seventh. Pittsburgh, Syracuse and Clemson, which was 12th last week, rounded out the Top Ten.

Oklahoma took the biggest tumble, falling from eighth to 13th after losing 75-74 to Oklahoma State and 86-84 to Kansas.

The Second Ten is led by Georgetown, followed by Alabama, Oklahoma, Illinois, Kansas, Texas Christian, Duke, Florida, Providence and St. John's.

Last week's Second Ten featured Illinois, Clemson, Georgetown, Alabama, Duke, St. John's, Kansas, TCU, Florida and Providence.

UNLV remained unbeaten in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association with victories over Pacific (73-59), Fullerton State (74-64) and California-Santa Barbara (86-76).

Indiana, the Big Ten leader, went to 20-2 with a 77-75 squeaker over Northwestern while North Carolina, 23-2 and tops in the Atlantic Coast Conference, beat Wake Forest 94-85 and Maryland 93-86 in league play before stopping Marquette 83-74 on Sunday.

The defeat of Wake Forest incidentally was the 600th coaching victory for North Carolina Coach Dean Smith.

DePaul, 22-1, beat Marquette 88-76 and Alabama-Birmingham 83-71, while Temple, 25-2, got by Penn State 73-70 in overtime and West Virginia 87-57 to maintain its lead in the Atlantic 10 race.

Aggies pull away from Pacific, coast to win

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Guard Kevin Nixon scored 19 points and Reid Newby and Jeff Anderson each added 13 as Utah State defeated Pacific 85-61 in Pacific Coast Athletic Conference play Monday.

With the victory, the Aggies, 13-13 and 7-7, moved to a four-way race for second place in the PCAA with Long Beach State, New Mexico State and San Jose State. Those three schools were tied Monday night.

Utah State, picked to finish 10th in the conference prior to the season, never trailed.

Brent Counts had 20 for Pacific and Christian Gray had 19. Danny Conway had 12 for Utah State.

ASU 67, UCLA 64

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A three-point shot by Arthur Thomas as time expired Monday night gave lowly Arizona State a shocking 67-64 victory over UCLA in a Pacific-10 Conference basketball game at Pauley Pavilion.

Despite the loss, the Bruins still lead the Pac-10 with a 14-4 record. They are a half-game ahead of Oregon State, which is 10-7. The teams meet Thursday night at Corvallis, Ore., with first place at stake.

UCLA, which had won 14 of its previous 15 games, fell to 17-6 overall. The Bruins are 12-2 at Pauley Pavilion this season. ASU now has a 4-10 conference record and an 8-10 overall mark.

UCLA freshman Trevor Wilson tied the game at 64-61 by making one of two free throws with 22 seconds left.

The Sun Devils then called timeout and ran the clock down before Thomas, a 5-foot-9 junior guard, fired from just to the right of the top of the key over Reggie Miller. The shot of about 25 feet hit nothing but net as the buzzer sounded.

A three-point shot by Bobby Thompson

College basketball

with 1:35 to go gave the Sun Devils a 62-61 lead, but freshman Kevin Walker made a free throw with 36 seconds to play to put UCLA back on top.

The Sun Devils regained the lead when Mark Carlini tipped in a missed shot with 41 seconds to go. Wilson then made his game-tying foul shot to set the stage for Thomas' heroics.

Thomas led ASU with 15 points. Steve Beck and Thompson added 14 and 12 points, respectively, for the Sun Devils.

Miller paced the Bruins with 16 points. Hatcher and Jerome "Pooh" Richardson added 10 points apiece for UCLA.

Indiana 86, Wisc. 85

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Dean Garrett hit a follow shot with four seconds left in the third overtime as second-ranked Indiana overcame its 86-85 Big Ten basketball victory over Wisconsin Monday night.

Garrett, who led all scorers with 21 points, grabbed a rebound off a missed shot by Joe Hillman and put it in off the backboards.

J.J. Weber scored 20 points for Wisconsin before fouling out in the second overtime. Mike Helmenau also had 20 for the Badgers.

Steve Alford scored 13 points to become the Indiana's all-time leading scorer.

The Hoosiers, similarly surprised last week by Northwestern before winning 77-75, improved their record to 21-2, including 12-1 in the conference. Wisconsin dropped to 11-15 and 4-12.

Trent Jackson, who scored 18 points for the Badgers, hit a jumper from the corner to give Wisconsin a 53-42 lead with 1:39 left in the third overtime. Following a charging foul on Garrett, Rod Ripley made two free throws to extend the lead to 85-82 with 48 seconds left.

Keith Smith, who scored 15 points, hit two free throws with 37 seconds left to bring Indiana within 85-84. Shelton Smith missed two free throws with 26 seconds left, setting up Garrett's shot.

Alford missed a lean-in shot from the side with four seconds left and Isle missed a shot at the buzzer in the first overtime.

Alford had another chance to win the game in the second overtime, but his lean-in shot from the lane with two seconds left also missed.

Ripley had tied the game for Wisconsin in the second overtime with a three-pointer with nine seconds left.

Indiana overcame a four-point Wisconsin lead in the last two minutes of regulation to send the game to overtime.

"If you don't need them for yourself, say 'Heck, I'm selling these tickets.' It's such easy cash money, and Uncle Sam doesn't get any of it."

At the end of the 1985 season, a ticket broker in Los Angeles called a member of the Dallas Cowboys and offered $400 for each Super Bowl ticket he could provide, the paper said.

According to the News, the player went around the locker room and came up with 18 tickets. Each player made a $325 profit per ticket.

NFL policy prohibits management, coaches, staff members and game officials from selling Super Bowl tickets for a profit. Since it is not in the collective bargaining agreement, the policy does not affect players, though several teams have their own policy prohibiting players from selling Super Bowl tickets.

NFL officials said they want a policy written into the next collective bargaining agreement that would include players.

NFL players make profits scalping, Dallas paper says

DALLAS (AP) — Some NFL players make huge profits by scalping Super Bowl tickets, The Dallas Morning News said Tuesday.

Under the league's collective bargaining agreement, players are given the option to buy two Super Bowl tickets at face value of $75 each.

Of the 28 NFL teams, only New England, Tampa Bay and San Diego have tried to prevent players from reselling the tickets at inflated prices, the newspaper said.

One player said he sold two zone tickets to the Giants-Broncos game in the Rose Bowl three weeks ago for $1,600, a profit of $1,450.

"I used the money for Christmas presents," he said.

The newspaper said the players spoke of ticket scalping under the condition they not be identified.

A former Pro Bowl player said it was easy last year to turn 10 tickets into $4,000.

"You're looking at a clear profit. It's hard to turn down. It's so tempting, your mouth waters," he said.

"If you don't need them for yourself, say 'Heck, I'm selling these tickets.' It's such easy cash money, and Uncle Sam doesn't get any of it."

UNLV, 26-1, stays firmly atop AP poll

By The Associated Press

With Nevada-Las Vegas leading the way, the top three clubs remained unchanged in the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll. There was some shuffling beneath the top three, although the same teams as last week remained in the rankings.

UNLV, 26-1, was again an easy pick for the top spot, collecting 50 of 65 first-place votes and 1,279 points from a nationwide panel of sportswriters and sportscasters.

—Indiana, with eight first-place votes, saw its lead over North Carolina shrink to a single point — 1,206-1,205. The difference came when North Carolina totaled seven first-place votes.

DePaul, Temple and Purdue each improved one spot as Iowa, an 80-73 loser to Purdue, dropped three spots to seventh. Pittsburgh, Syracuse and Clemson, which was 12th last week, rounded out the Top Ten.

Oklahoma took the biggest tumble, falling from eighth to 13th after losing 75-74 to Oklahoma State and 86-84 to Kansas.

The second Ten is led by Georgetown, followed by Alabama, Oklahoma, Illinois, Kansas, Texas Christian, Duke, Florida, Providence and St. John's.

Last week's second Ten featured Illinois, Clemson, Georgetown, Alabama, Duke, St. John's, Kansas, TCU, Florida and Providence.

UNLV remained unbeaten in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association with victories over Pacific (73-59), Fullerton State (74-64) and California-Santa Barbara (86-61).

Indiana, the Big Ten leader, went to 20-2 with a 77-75 squeaker over Northwestern while North Carolina, 23-2 and tops in the Atlantic Coast Conference, beat Wake Forest 94-85 and Maryland 93-86 in league play before stopping Marquette 83-74 on Sunday.

The defeat of Wake Forest, incidentally, was the 600th coaching victory for North Carolina coach Dean Smith.

DePaul, 22-1, beat Marquette 88-76 and Alabama-Birmingham 83-71, while Temple, 25-2, got by Penn State 73-70 in overtime and West Virginia 67-57 to maintain its lead in the Atlantic 10 race.

Modest interest rates spur home purchases

By JERRY ESTILL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The lowest interest rates in nearly a decade prompted Americans to buy existing homes at a record pace late last year, but rising prices may put a damper on things, a trade association said Monday.

While sales soared to an annual rate of 4.37 million units during the fourth quarter, Oct. 1-Dec. 31 period last year, the median home price climbed 5.5 percent from the fourth quarter of 1985, said the National Association of Realtors.

The organization said the median price is likely to increase an additional 4 percent this year.

Interest rates are expected to wind up 1987 about where they were at the end of 1986, however, and that would sustain sales at a strong level, if not the record spurt just posted.

The NAR report said the average effective interest rate for loans closed on existing homes during the fourth quarter of 1986 was 9.82 percent, the lowest figure since the third quarter of 1978.

Home sales rates for states in last quarter of 1986

The sales pace in the fourth quarter, up 15 percent from the three-month period from June through September last year, topped the previous high — 4.26 million units sold during the fourth quarter of 1978.

The median price went from $75,200 in the fourth quarter of 1985 to $80,100 at the end of last year. The median price means half the existing homes sold for less and half cost more.

"We expect mortgage interest rates to gradually decline during the first half of the year and then gradually increase toward the second half," said John Tuccillo, chief economist for association. "By the end of '87, they should be about where they were at the end of '85."

"Price increases will make it a little less clear where affordability will go," Tuccillo said in a statement accompanying the figures. "But we do expect housing to remain affordable."

The strong fourth-quarter sales gain was broadly based. Increases were recorded in 40 states and the District of Columbia and 14 states had gains of 20 percent or more over the previous year. Hawaii led with a 50 percent jump, followed by Wisconsin, 40.1 percent; Pennsylvania, 36.2 percent; California, 34.6 percent, and Washington state, 33.1 percent. The biggest loss was in Indiana, with a 17.5 percent decline, followed by Arizona, 5.6 percent, and West Virginia, 4.5 percent.

Figures were not available for Alaska. The median price for a single-family home ranged from $49,700 in the Grand Rapids, Mich., metropolitan area to a high of $167,600 in the Boston area, according to the NAR's quarterly survey of 52 metropolitan areas.

The median home price declined 11.9 percent in the Houston area from the fourth quarter of 1985, and the next sharpest drop was Baton Rouge, La., at 6.3 percent.

The median price rose 37.3 percent in the Providence, R.I., area and 29.5 percent in the Hartford, Conn., region.

The association notes that increases or decreases in the median home price for a particular area may be due to a change in the size of homes sold during the measured quarter rather than a change in the price of similar homes.

Siegel: Wall Street king of takeover defense

Guilty plea ends career, shocks many

By BILL SING
Los Angeles Times

To the many companies that feared hostile takeover bids in recent years, Martin A. Siegel was Chief Rescuer.

Siegel was Wall Street's king-of-the-takeover defense. In his 15-year stint as a takeover specialist at Kidder, Peabody & Co., he devised defensive strategies for hundreds of companies, reaping annual compensation of well over $1 million by the time he left Kidder a year ago to join the rival investment house Drexel Burnham Lambert.

But high pay and nationwide respect apparently was not enough. During his later years at Kidder, Siegel admitted, he passed inside information about takeover deals to prominent Wall Street stock speculators such as Ivan F. Bosky.

And this past Friday, Siegel, 39, finally paid the price for such illegal activity. He resigned from his highly paid job at Drexel, agreed to give up $9 million in cash and stock, and pleaded guilty to one felony count of insider trading and another felony count of tax evasion.

The episode sent shock waves through Wall Street and ended the career of one of the nation's most respected investment bankers.

Although Siegel has been the subject of insider trading rumors for weeks, he was widely regarded as a candidate for such criminal wrongdoing.

"Of all the people in the (mergers and acquisitions) field, he was the least likely to be involved in something like this," said A.A. Smergen, a Washington securities attorney and former commissioner of the Securities and Exchange Commission, who described Siegel as a "good friend" who was "widely respected."

"He certainly was highly regarded, extremely bright and capable," said E. Norman Vessey, a Wilmington, Del., attorney specializing in takeover defenses. "He had a lot of ideas in different areas."

Those ideas clearly made Siegel highly sought-after in the high-stakes world of corporate takeovers. "He's handsome, articulate former Harvard Business School whiz kid worked on more than 800 mergers and acquisitions while at Kidder, including some of the biggest takeover battles of the past decade.

"For a while, Marty Siegel was the only thing going for Kidder, Peabody" in the merger and acquisitions field, a competing merger specialist said Friday. "Many companies have Kidder, Peabody as their investment bankers because Marty Siegel developed their defense strategies."

Siegel was described as a master marketer and leader in the business of "defense retainers," where an investment banker helps a possible takeover target develop and implement defensive strategies before attackers enter the scene.

"He really did a tremendous job in developing defensive strategies in advance of a problem," said John C.

Siciliano, head of corporate finance in Los Angeles for the Smith Barney-Harris Upham investment house.

Defense techniques advocated and perfected by Siegel included a range of financial restructurings to raise share prices, such as selling off divisions, as well as financial reorganizations and the repurchase of a company's own shares.

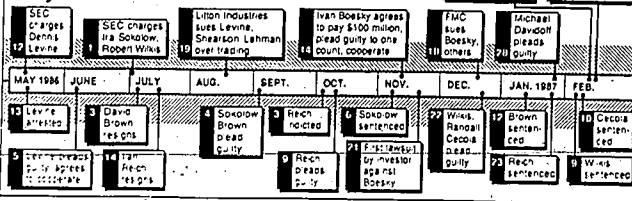

He also advised companies in setting up such defensive maneuvers as "super-majority voting" that requires the favorable vote of 75 percent or more of a company's shares to approve changes in ownership, or requiring that directors be elected on staggered terms to prevent a sultan from ousting an entire board in one election.

He also devised so-called "shark repellent" and "poison pill" defenses such as the issuance of special growing high-yield "junk" bond operation run out of Beverly Hills, Calif., by financial wizard Michael Milken. But Drexel needed greater capabilities to develop takeover strategies for clients.

And his hiring of Siegel, for compensation reportedly as high as $1 million a year, was seen as a major coup.

Several investment bankers familiar with Siegel's short stint at Drexel said that he did not have time there to get his operation fully rolling. "He didn't have the profile he had while at Kidder, Peabody," said one competing merger specialist, adding that it appeared Siegel operated under the shadow of Milken.

Siegel's plans began to fade when Siegel's name was charged last year with widespread insider trading charges. Siegel was known to have funneled information to Bosky, who had been subpoenaed in the Bosky case already, former SEC Commissioner

Richard Wigton, who was charged with insider trading.

The SEC, in announcing its charges against Siegel on Friday, contended that Bosky received inside information from Siegel on possible takeover bids in exchange for $700,000. Bosky's agents met Siegel in public places and handed him briefcases stuffed with cash, the SEC alleged.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani in Manhattan said Friday that Siegel became an informant, code named CS-1, who gave evidence leading to the arrest Thursday of top stock speculators Richard M. Freeman of Kidder, Peabody & Co., formerly of Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Timothy L. Tabor, formerly of Kidder, Peabody & Co.

Siegel, in a statement Friday, acknowledged that he made some serious mistakes and violated the law.

"Friends, however, wondered why," he made so damn much money already," former SEC Commissioner said Friday.

Consider carefully need for buying extra travel insurance

When you decide to indulge in a coveted week or two of vacation, seldom do you consider the tragedies that can turn the proverbial dream holiday into a disaster.

Once the planning is under way, you will be offered travel insurance and forced to consider the grim possibilities.

What if you're stuck in traffic on the way to the airport and miss your charter flight? How would you manage if your spouse suffers a heart attack in a foreign country? What are the chances that you will be injured or even die on vacation?

Vacationers traditionally have avoided these questions. But with the spread of terrorism abroad, there is a surge of interest in protecting yourself when you travel. It's fear that generally provokes you to purchase travel insurance.

But before you buy, consider two key questions: Do you really need certain types of coverage? If so, does your present coverage already protect you?

Especially if you're not a frequent traveler, you may rest up on all types of travel insurance with the attitude of better safe than sorry. You will may be wasting your money, for there is a wide variety of coverage available, and often it's difficult to shop around for different policies.

Statistically, there's no basis for assuming that you're more likely to be injured or die on vacation than at home. Neither the National Safety Council (NSC) nor the National Center for Health Statistics has this type of information.

"We keep records on the number of injuries and deaths that occur in the home workplace, in motor vehicles or in public places, but there's no way to tell if the victims are on vacation," reports Terry Miller, a statistician with the NSC.

But you are more susceptible to certain types of illnesses when you travel. From stomach disorders in Mexico to malaria in Kenya, you increase your risk abroad, says Dr. B.H. Kean, a medical expert on travel-related health issues. For this reason, you would probably want insurance, he notes.

Obviously, you're more prone to specific diseases when you travel in certain places. "In London, for example, there's a pretty small risk, whereas in Nigeria, your chances are greater," he adds.

No matter where you vacation, consider the following about travel insurance before you buy:

MEDICAL/SICKNESS/ACCIDENT INSURANCE. Examine your health insurance plan. Most employee health plans or individual policies will reimburse you for your medical expenses at home and abroad. Check your policy for specifics. Also, make certain you bring your claim forms on your trip.

Note: In many countries, the doctor or hospital may insist that you pay your bill full before you leave or even before you receive treatment.

Alternative travel assistance programs offer all types of emergency services — from paying your medical bills on the spot to helping with legal and financial matters. Thoroughly investigate these programs and decide whether the type of assistance they provide is worth the premiums you will pay.

While many travelers may feel more secure with added insurance, Robert Hunter, president of the National Insurance Consumer Organization, complains that "travel insurance plans play on the fears of those who don't travel much."

Socialized medicine in Europe, for example, makes it unnecessary to worry about affording medical bills, he says. He adds that for most people, if you become sick on your vacation, you simply go home.

With any type of travel insurance, understand what's included — and more important, what's excluded. If you were treated for an illness two months before your trip and the condition flares up on vacation, will you be covered?

If you belong to a Health Maintenance Organization (HMO), and an emergency occurs on your trip, you can go to the nearest health care provider and you'll be covered.

Medicare patients are not covered outside of the United States except for certain limited circumstances in Mexico and Canada.

FLIGHT INSURANCE. Generally, this is a preset amount for accidental death or injury while traveling on the airplane. Many travelers pay this type of coverage as a last-minute decision at the airport.

"It's a terrible rip-off," complains Hunter. Usually for about $7, you can cover yourself for $100,000 for a two-hour time period. If you have the proper life insurance, why is the right amount of coverage if you have a heart attack at home, but not enough for a two-hour plane ride?

The point is a good one. You don't buy extra insurance when you take a two-hour drive in your automobile. What's more, if you consider paying $7 for every two hours on the ground, you would realize how astronomical this rate is.

If you pay for your ticket with a major credit card, you are often automatically covered for accidental loss of life or injury. Check the details for your particular credit card.

TRIP CANCELLATION/INTERRUPTION. Depending on how much money you pay out in advance, this may be a helpful option. For charters and package deals where you make large, non-refundable payments, it's a good bet.

Northeast gripped by record cold

By the Associated Press

A second day of record cold and single-digit temperatures gripped the Northeast on Monday, while an icy storm rolled north from Dixie, glazing highways from the Tennessee Valley to the Appalachians. The bad weather was blamed for at least 10 deaths.

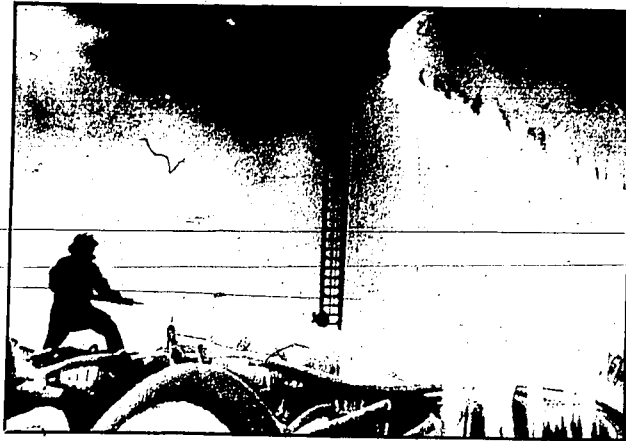

Boston reported a morning low of 4 degrees. Buffalo, N.Y., had 3 degrees and the low was 8 degrees in Pittsburgh and New York City, chasing thousands of homeless people into shelters for a second consecutive night.

New York City police pulled a dozen homeless people off the street overnight as the temperature dipped to 7 degrees in Central Park.

The city's heat complaint bureau, which responds to reports of inadequate heat and hot water, took 2,108 calls between midnight Sunday and noon Monday, according to a supervisor who would not identify himself.

A Philadelphia shelter filled beyond its capacity took in 87 homeless people Sunday night, some of them sleeping in offices, said Leona Smith, director of the Committee for Dignity and Fairness for the Homeless.

The temperature reached 18 degrees below zero Monday in Watertown, N.Y., coldest in the nation for a second day after Sunday's reading of 30 below.

Brockton, Mass., firemen hose down ice-clad ruins of clothing firm which burned Sunday

Binghamton, N.Y., eclipsed the 1979 record for the date by 2 degrees, and 4-degree lows in Bridgeport and Stratford, Conn., broke 1963 records by two degrees.

The Deep South storm, blamed for a string of Gulf Coast thunderstorms and tornadoes killed a Louisiana woman Sunday, spewed rain, freezing rain, sleet and snow from the lower Mississippi Valley to central Virginia by midday.

Up to 6 inches of snow was expected in the mountains of North Carolina and up to 5 inches in the southern mountains of the Virginias. Winter storm warnings were posted over northeastern Kentucky, southern West Virginia and most of Virginia and North Carolina.

Gates to face tough confirmation questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — When career intelligence analyst Robert Gates was named the No. 2 job in the CIA last April he promised to help maintain "mutual trust, candor and respect" between the spy agency and Congress.

Now that he has been nominated to replace the ailing William J. Casey as director of Central Intelligence, the 43-year-old Gates is prepared to make that pledge again, but the circumstances have changed drastically.

The confirmation hearing that starts Tuesday — Gates' second in a row — will be held in the shadow of the Iran-Contra affair and the suspicion "It has stirred that the CIA has demonstrated a lack of candor and trust."

Gates faces intense questioning on the extent of the CIA's knowledge of the diversion of arms sale profits to Nicaragua's Contra rebels and whether he and his agency were completely forthcoming about it.

The central question last April and now is this: Is the CIA prepared to submit to the congressional oversight, the 43-year-old Gates is prepared to make that pledge again, but the circumstances have changed drastically.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., the Intelligence Committee's new chairman, said "last week it has become clear that the Iran-Contra affair marked a low point in the rocky history of relations between Congress and the CIA."

Drone program suspended

WASHINGTON — The Navy, after losing four of five "eye-in-the-sky" drone aircraft worth $250,000 to $400,000 apiece, has suspended a program to equip warships with the pilotless planes, military sources say.

The embarrassing losses, involving drone dispatched recently with the battleship Iowa, occurred over the past month and most recently on Feb. 6, said the sources who asked not to be named.

Four of the five drones dispatched were lost, they said. One source said the four drones "are in little flyable pieces." The cost of the drones depends upon what surveillance and camera equipment they carry.

The Navy already had opened an investigation into the string of accidents, the sources said. The service suspects a number of causes, but believes one problem might involve the remote control system for the drones.

"One of them was lost as she when the engine cut off," one source said.

U.S. debt makes economists nervous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government earned $769 billion last year and spent $990 billion, while Americans imported $387-billion in goods and exported $217 billion.

These facts-of-life make economists nervous. Politicians are quick to cite the big budget and trade deficits as the biggest threats to U.S. economic health. But the impact of these troublesome statistics on a typical American has been difficult to gauge.

Interest rates and inflation are at their lowest levels in more than a decade, and there hasn't been a recession since 1982. The stock market has been booming. And consumers have been out on a four-year shopping binge.

Economists agree that the two deficits don't necessarily mean hard times for most Americans today, or even tomorrow. But down the road, they argue, something has to give.

Inflation, higher taxes, higher interest rates, lower standards of living, recession, perhaps another depression — all appear in various scenarios of what may happen if the nation fails to get the budget and trade imbalances under control.

But private analysts differ on when the day of reckoning might come. Of the two deficits, the trade shortfall — a record $170 billion last year — may have the most immediate impact.

As the nation uses imports to fill the gap between what it consumes and what it produces, factories close, throwing people out of work — or at least on the kind of work they're best suited to perform.

Reducing the federal deficit is a major goal of both the Reagan administration and Congress. The Gramm-Rudman Act, passed in late 1985, seeks to do just this with an annual deficit-reduction steps that supposedly lead to a balanced budget by 1992.

ABA refuses to back ban on tobacco ads

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The American Bar Association refused on Monday to support a proposed ban on tobacco product advertising, after a spirited debate over health risks and censorship.

The ABA's policy-making House of Delegates voted down a proposal that would have lent the 330,000 lawyer group's backing to an ad ban being studied in Congress. The vote voice of the 411 delegates sounded like a wide margin of defeat for the proposal.

"Tobacco is the worst health killer in the history of our country," lawyer Henry G. Miller of White Plains, N.Y., said in urging ABA support. "We are talking about 1,000 deaths a day."

Dr. Robert McAfee of the American Medical Association, which supports outlawing tobacco ads, told the lawyers, "Let's lay to rest the fallacy that a ban on tobacco advertising would somehow lead to a ban on advertising for meat or salt or coffee. Tobacco is uniquely harmful because it is unsafe when used as intended."

But Hector Reichard, a lawyer from Halo Ray, Puerto Rico, and a member of a special ABA-Association of Newspaper Publishers Association committee, warned that such a ban could "lead to forms of censorship that strike at the very core of our national freedoms."

Floyd Abrams, a prominent news media lawyer from New York City, contended, "Censorship is contagious. Censorship is habit-forming. Banning speech always makes some people feel good. But it is wrong to do so."

Other ABA members said the dispute is not one on which the organization need take a stand. "Let's sit this one out," urged Joe Stamper of Antlers, Okla.

Diplomat calls it quits, charges 'McCarthyism'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veteran diplomat Francis J. McNeil has resigned from the State Department, alleging that he was the victim of an "exercise in McCarthyism" by Elliott Abrams, head of the Latin American affairs bureau.

McNeil, a former ambassador to Costa Rica, said in an interview with The Associated Press that he wrote Abrams in November, announcing his intention to resign.

"I am leaving the Foreign Service," McNeil wrote. "In response to your exercise in McCarthyism, a reference to Sen. Joseph McCarthy, who destroyed the careers of many foreign service officers in the 1950s with unsubstantiated charges that they were pro-communist."

McNeil, 54, who left the foreign service early this month, maintains that Abrams' questioned his loyalty after the diplomat had expressed doubts about U.S. policy in Central America. According to McNeil, Abrams also suggested McNeil may have been responsible for two news leaks in 1985.

But a senior State Department official denied that Abrams had used such tactics, contending that their falling out began when Abrams blocked McNeil's prospective nomination as ambassador to Peru in 1985.

The high-ranking State Department official, agreeing to discuss the McNeil matter only on grounds of anonymity, said, "There are a lot of people who raise doubts about the current policy — and nothing happens to them except they get promoted." So the notion that raising doubts about policy damages one's career is ludicrous.

Another State Department official, who also asked not to be identified, said a number of department officials were investigated for the 1985 news leaks.

Super Dream Pill Guaranteed Weight Loss

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH — According to a review of customers' files, here's what people are saying about the amazing, vastly improved "new version" of the world famous Dream Pill System for fast, guaranteed weight loss featuring Super Lite Dreams tablets:

"I lost 25 lbs. in 30 day supply." Mrs. J.N.S., Ft. Payne, AL

"Losing 1 lb. per day." Mr. J.G., Pineville, KY

"I've lost 34 lbs. and I'm still losing." Mrs. J.K., Garden Grove, CA

"I have been on Dream Pill for one month and feel great... have lost 27 lbs." Mr. A.D., Anadarko, OK

The System's Dream Pill combines two natural substances called L-arginine and L-ornithine which can stimulate the body's production of growth hormone. Diet researchers believe that growth hormone may be what's responsible for allowing teenagers to down thousands of calories in hamburgers and other foods and still be thin as a rail.

Growth hormone is present in people up through the teenage years, then slowly diminishes with age. But L-arginine and L-ornithine make the body "think" it belongs to a teenager again, allowing adults to eat as much as they want — and still be thin and wiry.

Life Extension Authors Confirm Results

Durk Pearson and Sandy Shaw, graduates of MIT and UCLA respectively, introduced these miracle substances to the public in their runaway best selling book, Life Extension: Much to Her amazement, while taking L-arginine for its healing effects on a broken foot, Sandy lost 25 pounds of fat and put on 5 pounds of firm-toned muscle in six weeks. According to Durk's calculations, the pill caused Sandy to lose 400 times as much fat as she would otherwise have lost — without dieting!

THE ACES®
BOBBY WOLFE

"There are people who want to be everywhere at once and they seem to get nowhere."
— Carl Sandburg.

The defense against today's heart game is relatively easy. It's not so easy against four spades. Muriel Richens of San Mateo, Calif., showed she was on her toes when she found the only defense to beat the spade game.

When North played in four hearts at a recent duplicate game, East had an obvious trump shift after winning his club of clubs. After that, North had to play well to limit his losses to one down. After drawing trumps, North wins a spade in the South hand (dummy) and leads a diamond toward his king. If he doesn't, the defenders get one spade, two clubs and two diamonds for down.

At four spades, an inaccurate defense pays the price. After South ruffs the second club and leads a spade to dummy's jack and East's ace, what should East do?

It's futile to think about that now, since it's too late to beat the game.

In fact, if East leads clubs or spades, declarer makes an over-trick.

When Muriel held the East cards, she allowed the spade jack to win and took the next spade with her ace. A diamond lead to West's ace and a diamond back to dummy's king meant early removal of a vital entry to dummy. South had no way back to his hand to draw the last trump except to play hearts prematurely. The heart suit was neutralized and the defenders collected four tricks for one down.
