Syrian forces move in to halt Beirut fighting

The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syrian troops and tanks began moving into embattled west Beirut today after Lebanese leaders appealed for intervention to end six days of fighting between Moslem factions, officials in Damascus reported. "Syrian forces, who have been preparing for this for several hours, are already rolling," said one Lebanese source in the Syrian capital. He spoke on condition of anonymity. The official Syrian News Agency said Syrian President Hafez Assad, after meeting with Lebanese leaders late Friday, agreed to "provide Syrian military assistance... to help impose security and stability" in Moslem west Beirut.

Neither the agency nor the Lebanese sources gave the size of the Syrian force entering the western sector of the Lebanese capital, but one Lebanese official said: "It is adequate to cope with the situation" and includes armor and mechanized infantry.

It was the first time Syrian troops had entered Beirut in force since they evacuated the city during Israel's 1982 invasion. Lebanese officials said the soldiers would move as far south as Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut. A "Green Line" divides the Lebanese capital between Moslem west Beirut and Christian east Beirut.

A communique signed by five Lebanese leaders after the all-day meeting in Damascus said they had appealed for Syrian help to end the factional fighting in west Beirut in which Lebanese authorities reported at least 200 people were killed and 400 were wounded since Sunday.

Grenade and sniper fire plinned thousands of civilians in basements and shelters with little food and water. Some telephoned Moslem radio stations to appeal for a truce. A spokesman for Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam of Syria said Rashid Karami, Lebanon's prime minister, and Parliament speaker Hussein Hussein officially requested Syrian intervention.

The spokesman quoted Khaddam as saying after meeting with the two Lebanese, "The Syrian leadership is very seriously considering the request and is determined to help our people in Lebanon."

Fighting began last Sunday between the Shiite militia Amal, led by Nabih Berril, and a leftist alliance of Walid Jumblat's Druze fighters and those of the pro-Moscow Lebanese Communist Party. Syria backs all the factions, which are nominal allies against the Lebanese Christians in the 12-year-old civil war but often have territorial fights among themselves in west Beirut.

Syria, the main power broker in Lebanon, maintains 25,000 military personnel in north and east Lebanon under a 1976 Arab League peacekeeping mandate. The main Syrian enclave is about 20 miles east of Beirut.

The Syrians sent about 500 commandos and a contingent of plainclothes security agents into west Beirut last summer in an unsuccessful effort to end a wave of lawlessness by the various Moslem militias battling each other for domination.

Nominee's tie to Nazi youth unit unknown

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan stands behind his appointment of John O. Koehler as White House communications director, his spokesman said Friday, although the administration hadn't known that as a 10-year-old in his native Germany, Koehler belonged to a Nazi youth group.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Koehler "was an excellent candidate" on the basis of his qualifications, experience and recommendations by USIA Director Charles Z. Wick and others to succeed Patrick Buchanan in the post, effective March 1. Later, Koehler announced he had cancelled plans to take a vacation next week and will hold a news conference in Washington on Saturday.

Nathan Perlmutter, national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, said it was ludicrous for Koehler to be judged because of an episode dating from childhood 46 years ago.

To judge a 56-year-old person by his association as a 10-year-old is ludicrous logic and mean politics," Perlmutter said.

The White House announced the appointment of the German-born former Associated Press executive on Thursday. Joseph D. O'Connell, director of public affairs at the U.S. Information Agency, where Koehler has served as a consultant, said, "He had told security people looking into his background before he came on as a consultant, but Wick did not know" about Koehler's membership in the group.

Deputy presidential spokesman Albert R. Brashear said Koehler met Friday with White House personnel director Robert Tuttle, but he said he could give no details of the meeting.

Fitzwater said Koehler volunteered to meet with Tuttle "to see that all parts of his record are clearly understood."

After the meeting, Koehler flew home to Stamford, Conn., where he told a reporter: "I start to work March 2. It did not affect my appointment."

Koehler, acknowledged in a report by NBC News, said

Wisconsin environmental effort nation's best

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The best state environmental programs are found in Wisconsin, California and New Jersey and the weakest in Mississippi and West Virginia, according to a new assessment by an environmental organization.

Representatives of the winners said their states did well because, among other reasons, "environmentalism is good politics."

The rankings from the Fund for Renewable Energy and the Environment, a private group favoring strong environmental protection action, covered six areas: air pollution, soil conservation, groundwater protection, hazardous waste management, solid waste and recycling and renewable energy and conservation.

Idaho tied for 23th place on the list with 18 points out of a possible 60. The scoring included 2 for air pollution; 1 for soil conservation; 6 for groundwater; 1 for hazardous waste; 2 for solid waste, and 6 for renewable energy and energy conservation.

Points were awarded according to the group's judgment of what a state program should contain and what it should accomplish. For example, a state groundwater protection program got more points if it allowed no degradation of an aquifer than if it allowed some degradation.

Scott Ridley, author of the report, was asked at a news conference about a hypothetical state with a weak air pollution program because there is no air-pollution problem there.

Such a state, he replied, "would rank toward the middle," but "all states have some needs" in the six areas.

Each state could earn 10 points in each area. Wisconsin had 49 out of a possible 60, California had 48 and New Jersey 47. Mississippi had 14 and West Virginia 15.

A second group of states had scores between 41 and 44: Connecticut, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Florida, Illinois and Massachusetts.

On the lower end, Wyoming, Utah, North Dakota and Alabama were tied with 16 points each.

"Not surprisingly, some states with the worst problems have the best programs," the fund's analysts said. "Also, states with high per capita income are generally able to direct more funds to environmental protection."

Some highlights of state efforts, according to the group:

• Six states have passed their own laws to control the precursors of acid rain, and 50 require the so-called toxic air pollutants such as heavy metals. California's strict program is "clearly the best working model."

• Twenty-six states offer farmers financial incentives for soil conservation and 19 require approval be

President says final act his best

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Friday that political pundits are trying to ring down the curtain on his administration "even before the show is over" but he is "saving the best stuff for the last act."

Reagan's address to the Conservative Political Action Conference followed a speech in which Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, a contender for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, called for the resignation of Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

"When the question becomes whether the president will conform to his secretary of state or the secretary of state will conform with the president, it is time for Mr. Shultz to do the only correct thing," Kemp said. "In my view, it is time for George Shultz to resign."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, asked for comment, said "The president has full confidence in his secretary of state."

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas drew cheers from the conservatives when he reminded them he was one of only 19 Republicans who supported Reagan's attempt to veto legislation imposing sanctions on South

Telephone deregulation bill receives committee approval

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

HOUSE — After hearing more than 14 hours of testimony over several days, the House State Affairs Committee has voted "do-pass" approval of the telecommunications deregulation bill.

Consumer groups argued Friday against the measure, saying it could result in huge increases in telephone bills. Independents also argued it was an "anti-competition" bill sponsored by Mountain Bell.

"It has enormous potential for preventing competition in long distance services," said David Leroy, former attorney general and lieutenant governor, lobbying for US Sprint.

But businessmen argued deregulation is necessary to allow telecommunications technology to develop. In the end, the panel sent the bill to the House floor for action, probably next week, by voice vote. It was not a recorded vote, but Democrats James Stolecher of Sandpoint and Carl Braun of Orofino asked to be recorded as voting no.

The 12-page measure was sponsored by Mountain Bell. Last year, the telephone company tried similar legislation, which cleared the Senate but did not get to the House until the final week of the session. The House State Affairs Committee refused to consider it that late.

This year, several versions of the deregulation bill have been before State Affairs.

The legislation allows companies to ask for deregulation. The PUC must hold a hearing and determine whether that will eliminate competition, and whether it will promote the goal of universal, high-quality service.

How the legislation would accomplish that was the subject of much conflicting testimony.

Leroy urged the committee to seek an attorney general's opinion whether the entire proposal was constitutional.

Leroy said the Idaho Constitution, Article 11, Section 13, declares that telephone companies shall have the right to operate in the state, which might be in conflict with provisions in the bill.

"There are important Idaho considerations," he said. • See PHONE on Page A2

Searchers find 4th victim of avalanche

The Associated Press

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo. — Searchers using radar and metal detectors Friday to scan the site of an avalanche found the body of a fourth man killed when tons of snow thundered down a mountain-side.

The last missing skier's body was found near where the avalanche began Wednesday, Matt Krane of the Breckenridge Ski Patrol said.

About 100 searchers, some with dogs wearing red quilted blankets against temperatures in the low teens, probed a 400-by-500-yard area of the Breckenridge Ski Area, about 65 miles west of Denver.

The slide Wednesday piled snow 40 feet deep on 11,600-foot Peak 7. The first body was found hours after the avalanche, and two more bodies were found Thursday in the hard-packed snow.

Sheriff Delbert Ewald said the radar device, loaned by the Colorado School of Mines, should be able to detect any object suspended in the deep snow left by the avalanche.

The searchers returned to the mountain Friday to look for a fourth body. Snow fell while the search went on in the out-of-bounds area, and skiers packed the ski resort slopes only yards away.

The dead were identified as Alex Gates, 17, of Locust Valley, N.Y., whose body was found Friday; Martin Donnellan, 21, of Peekskill, N.Y., found Wednesday; and New Zealanders Paul Way, 23, of Auckland, and Nick Casey, 23, of Cambridge.

Heavy snow buries Colorado, plains

By The Associated Press

Heavy overnight snow in eastern Colorado left nearly 7 feet piled up Friday, while up to 8 inches fell across the southern Plains. Heavy rain caused flooding in Louisiana.

A winter storm warning was posted over the Texas Panhandle and northwest Texas, the National Weather Service said.

In Colorado, 28 inches of snow fell overnight at Mount Evans, west of Denver, bringing the total accumulation to 85 inches.

Snow fell from western Texas across the eastern Nebraska, eastern Colorado and the eastern two-thirds of New Mexico and was scattered from southwest Utah into northern Arizona and over northern Minnesota.

Travelers' advisories warned of snow over the Panhandle and northwest Oklahoma, and northern Texas and of icy roads and occasional snow in southwest Texas.

In Texas, up to 8 inches of snow had accumulated.

at Jackson, 6 inches at Albany, 5 inches at Graham and 4 inches at Decatur and Decatur, Okla. Schools were closed in Graham.

Advisories warning of icy roads and occasional snow were posted over Arizona's White Mountains and Mogollon Rim, where up to 4 inches of snow fell overnight.

A winter storm watch was posted through Saturday over southern New Mexico and much of central New Mexico.

Morning Santa Ana winds gusted to 40 mph at Mojave, Calif., and a high-wind warning was posted over the southern Sierra Nevada.

Overnight and morning thunderstorms dumped as much as 3 inches of rain over north-central and west-central Louisiana, causing flooding.

Showers and thunderstorms also dampened southern Louisiana and eastern Texas, and rain fell from western Tennessee across Mississippi, the lower Mississippi Valley, southern Oklahoma and northeast Texas.

Conservation plan supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Critics of President Reagan's proposal to end fuel economy standards said Friday it's senseless for the government to try to repeat a successful conservation program when America soon may face another energy crisis.

But while Chrysler Corp. and several conservation groups expressed opposition to the president's proposal, General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. praised the move to scrap the fuel efficiency rules as a job-saver and a step that would help control auto prices.

Airline merger receives OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department gave tentative approval Friday to American Airlines' acquisition of Air California, saying there is no evidence the merger will hurt competition.

The department said it would provide 25 days for objections and responses to the decision before the $225 million merger is given final approval. American holds about 70 percent of Air California's shares.

Critics had raised concern that the deal would give American Airlines too much strength at the Orange County Airport in California where the two airlines hold 37 of 66 permanent landing and takeoff slots.

Drug testing will proceed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Friday refused to issue a temporary restraining order that would bar Trans World Airlines from testing employees for drugs and alcohol abuse.

U.S. District Judge Louis Oberdorfer ruled that the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers had failed to demonstrate a need for a temporary restraining order under the Railway Labor Act.

The union, which represents TWA employees, contended that the airline was violating the terms of labor contracts by unilaterally instituting the drug testing program that was announced Feb. 15.

Cuomo felt he could win nomination

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Mario Cuomo said Friday that he felt he could have won the Democratic presidential nomination, but "part reason and part instinct" told him not to make the run.

Cuomo said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Can you win? Obviously. If you're going to run second in the polls without even trying, it's kind of silly to say you can't win."

Recent nationwide polls had shown Cuomo running strongly behind former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado as the choice among Democrats for the top spot on the 1988 ticket.

Cuomo surprised much of the political establishment when he announced at the end of a call-in show on New York City's WGBS radio Thursday night that he would not be a candidate.

"The polls indicate I had strong second-choice support from my supporters. We have to earn the support and we will let my supporters and followers know that they have a place in our campaign," he said.

"You have to do what you think is right, and sometimes it's difficult to explain," the 54-year-old Cuomo said Friday. "There are bound to be two feelings of regret. How could there be not?"

Nonetheless, Cuomo said that "after thinking very hard, I believe that this is the best thing for the state ... The state is No. 1. I have an obligation to be governor."

Thursday night that he had belonged for six months, when he was 10 years old, to Jungvok, which he described as "the boy scouts run by the Nazi Party."

Fitzwater said he talked to Koehler by telephone after the story was broadcast and Koehler indicated he had mentioned the youth group "to some material he had filed out, although it was not in the resume that I saw."

"We were not aware of it," the spokesman added.

Koehler said Thursday night that his participation 40 years ago in the Jungvok was irrelevant in judging his qualifications for the White House position.

Elliott Wells of the Anti-Defamation League said Jungvok members were about the same age as American Cub Scouts, 8 to 10 years old, and the Hitler youth organization was for older boys.

Amid the controversy, a friend and journalistic colleague recalled that Koehler also had told of harassment of his family by the Nazis.

Chancellor, the NBC News commentator, with NBC Berlin correspondent in the early 1950s, when Koehler was AP chief of bureau there.

"I remember going to Dresden with Jack to visit his parents," Chancellor said. "My memory is that Jungvok was harassed by the Nazis because of their socialist-politics."

Chancellor said Koehler told of fleeing Dresden as a youth on the advice of his father. "As I recall it, before the great allied air raid on Dresden in 1945, my father told me he should leave and leave Dresden," he said.

Chancellor said Koehler told him of making his way through the German lines to a U.S. Army unit that virtually adopted him. That led eventually to his U.S. citizenship and to his own tour in the U.S. Army.

Dole said now that Democrats control the Senate as well as the House "the liberals are not content to carve out for Congress a better role in the defense and foreign policy process; they want Congress to dominate it."

Kemp was the overwhelming winner of a straw poll of delegates to the conference who were asked their preference for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination.

The New York congressman received 195 votes, or 68 percent of the total. Second was White House communications director Patrick J. Buchanan with 25 votes, or 9 percent.

Reagan renewed his pledge to overhaul the nation's welfare setup, saying, "A federal welfare system, constructed in the name of helping those in poverty, wreaked havoc on the poor family, tearing it apart, calling away the underpinnings of their community, creating fatherless children and unprecedented despair."

Kemp criticized Schultz for meeting with Oliver Tambo, head of the African National Congress, a group opposed to the current government of South Africa, and accused the secretary of state of dragging his feet on deployment of the Strategic Defense Initiative, Reagan's space-based missile defense proposal.

"The going may be a little rough at the moment, but all I no doubt our resolve." In his letter, he was interrupted by applause 11 times.

"Our game plan is still the best one in town," the president said, repeating his opposition to "government controls, central planning, and bureaucracy."

Reagan made no direct reference to the controversy over secret arms sales to Iran, and diversion of profits to Nicaraguan rebels, that plunged his administration into its deepest crisis since his election in 1980.

House agrees on state pay raise; may clear way for budget

BOISE (AP) — House Republicans switched their stand Friday, agreeing in caucus to grant state employees a 4 percent pay raise, the amount favored by the Senate.

If the proposal gets through the House next week, and later clears the Senate, it would free up $4 million from Gov. Cecil Andrus' budget recommendations. And that might be enough extra revenue to allow the Legislature to start work on budget bills next week.

In a day of tax developments, the House passed a bill conforming Idaho's income tax laws to the new federal tax code. If there are no changes in tax brackets or deductions, the measure would result in a $7 million state income tax increase.

Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, also won tax preliminary approval on Friday for his proposal to modify the investment tax credit. The House didn't center on the fact that the bill, approved for printing and introduced by the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, would limit the investment credit to $1,000, and disqualify utilities from claiming it.

The House voted 67-10 late Friday for the treatment for certain income. Separate legislation has been introduced in the House to restore the credit for farmers.

The legislation also does away with the partial credit for political contributions, which sponsors said would add $50,000 to income tax revenue.

The 10 legislators voting against the bill on Friday all were Republicans. They were representative Elizabeth Allan-Hodge, Ron Black, Ron Crane, Dolores Crow, R.L. "Dick" Davis, Robert Geddes, Bruce Newcomb, John Sessions, Ron Slater and W.O. "Bill" Taylor.

Earlier in the week, the Revenue and Taxation panel voted down the Andrus proposal to repeal the investment credit. Robbins came up with a modified version Friday. Some committee members said they wanted to print and introduce the legislation only to have a revenue alternative available if needed. "This is just one other choice," Rep. Robbins said.

He said "pay-as-you-go" is a much less expensive way of raising money for projects than borrowing it through long-term bonds and paying interest.

In response to criticism to an earlier bill, Brown put a provision in the law that the agency involved would have to repay the special tax once enough money was raised for the project involved. The earlier version allowed the taxing agency the option of terminating the special tax.

"If a project receives 60 percent approval, clearly that project would be popular and perceived as needed by the voters," said Brown.

Brown said it's possible the legislation will clear the Revenue and Taxation Committee and the House, but its fate was less clear in the Senate.

Brown said either measure could be used by a city or county to generate income for a specific project.

Senate approves commerce funds

BOISE (AP) — Declaring that "the race is about to begin," the Idaho Senate has given final legislative approval for an immediate $500,000 infusion into the Department of Commerce, including $100,000 for the state campaign to secure the multibillion-dollar Superconducting Super Collider.

"We need to get into the thick of the battle for this project," Sen. William Ringert, R-Boise, said.

The emergency appropriations for the current budget year were sent to Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus by unanimous votes on Friday, marking a major victory for the chief executive in his drive to fulfill 1986 campaign pledges to bolster state spending for economic development.

The $100,000 to underwrite the campaign to win the $4.4 billion state-of-the-art physics facilities for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory will be used to prepare the state's proposal, which will have to be submitted to the federal Department of Energy this summer. Two people will be added to the Commerce Department's small staff to handle the SSC campaign.

The remaining $400,000 will be used to add another nine people to the department payroll to get the state campaign toward economic revival under way.

Unanimous approval of the appropriations measures by the Senate came a day after Andrus, during a speech in Idaho Falls, pointedly criticized several House members for opposing the bills earlier this week. One House member opposed the SSC appropriation and nine voted against the economic development money.

Nearly every other state in the nation is vying for the SSC and the 6,000 jobs that come with it, and some have committed millions of dollars to the bids.

While Idaho officials concede they cannot match those high-priced campaigns dollar-for-dollar, they have contended the state has to commit some money to prove to federal officials that Idaho is the best and most logical choice for the project.

"You're all aware of the very heavy, serious competition that's going on for this project," Ringert said. "We are in the running, ... and this $100,000 is just a drop in the bucket to what this program will mean for the state of Idaho."

"I don't think I have to tell you how important it would be not only in the present to have a project of this magnitude in Idaho," he said. "This project is probably the greatest opportunity Idaho will have in this century."

GOP legislators blazing away at governor

BOISE (AP) — Not only is the honeymoon over, but some southeastern Idaho Republican legislators are ready to file for political divorce from Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Rep. Preston Brimhall, R-Idaho Falls, is calling Andrus "a liar," and Rep. Stan Hawkins, R-Ucon, claims the governor has taken a "cheap shot."

Brimhall said the governor was telling an "outright lie" by suggesting a lack of Republican support for the state Department of Commerce.

Andrus said earlier that Brimhall voted against a $400,000 supplemental appropriation for the department in the Joint Finance Appropriaopriations Committee, then thought better of it and voted for the appropriation on the House floor.

"He's a liar, and I'd tell him to his face if he ever let me in to see him," Brimhall said of the Commerce Director Jim Haines. Brimhall knows that I support the Department of Commerce."

Brimhall was recorded as voting against the appropriation in committee. He said he was waiting for a vote on an original motion that would take the money from the Water Pollution Control Fund, and that he also favored giving the department carryover authority in case the money could not be spent during the current fiscal year.

He voted against taking it out of general funds, because there was no evidence we had the money in the general account," Brimhall said. "I'm very disappointed in the governor."

Marc Johnson, the governor's press secretary, said two other legislators in JFAC changed their votes on the supplemental appropriation and that Brimhall had the same opportunity. Johnson noted that Brimhall voted against two proposed funding increases for the Department of Commerce last year.

Park offer under study by Simplot

POCATELLO (AP) — Boise industrialist J.R. Simplot is considering a proposal for his company to donate land in downtown Pocatello for development of a landscaped area named in his honor.

The Pocatello City Council has joined the Downtown Merchants Association in support of turning the vacant lot where the Bannock Hotel once stood into a downtown square named for Simplot, who owns the property.

Dale Dunn, J.R. Simplot Co. president, said Simplot and members were evaluating the proposal. He said he expects a decision later this month.

Last week, Lt. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, Simplot's son-in-law, expressed his personal support for the project and said he would carry his endorsement to other family members.

Turning the hotel site into a park is the latest idea to be considered since the Bannock was razed in 1983. At one point, Simplot considered constructing an office building for his company's Minerals and Chemicals Division.

The idea for a downtown square is being coordinated by Deborah Bohrer, Rev. Paul Hegg of the First Baptist Church, Doug Houston of CSHQ Architects and Dave Crea of FMC Corp.

Waste bins roll off line

KELLOGG (AP) — The first of thousands of portable storage containers for hazardous waste has rolled off an assembly line in Kellogg, destined for Washington Water Power Co.

The 40-foot buildings are intended for sale to industries that generate or store hazardous materials. The first one came off the line Friday.

Such materials must be stored in containers approved by the Environmental Protection Agency.

New EPA regulations, effective March 27, are intended to prevent flammable transformers or oil barrels from spilling contents onto the ground.

The sealed bins have false steel doors, allowing drops and spills to be collected in pans underneath.

Their design has approval of a variety of federal hazardous and toxic-waste regulators, said Al Ross, president of Utility Transformer Service Inc., which has several patents pending on the portable steel buildings.

Option tax back again

BOISE (AP) — Rep. L. Ed Brown, R-Pocatello, is trying again to get the Legislature to approve local-option taxing authority for Idaho's cities and counties.

On Friday, the Revenue and Taxation Committee voted to print and introduce his bill calling for local option sales or income taxes.

The latest measure would allow a city or county to impose a local sales tax up to 1 percent, if at least 60 percent of the voters approve in an election.

It also authorizes city-county income tax surcharges, up to 10 percent of the individual taxpayer's state income tax obligation. That also would require 60 percent approval by the voters.

Brown said either measure could be used by a city or county to generate income for a specific project.

He said "pay-as-you-go" is a much less expensive way of raising money for projects than borrowing it through long-term bonds and paying interest.

In response to criticism to an earlier bill, Brown put a provision in the law that the agency involved would have to repay the special tax once enough money was raised for the project involved. The earlier version allowed the taxing agency the option of terminating the special tax.

"If a project receives 60 percent approval, clearly that project would be popular and perceived as needed by the voters," said Brown.

Brown said it's possible the legislation will clear the Revenue and Taxation Committee and the House, but its fate was less clear in the Senate.

Noh bill seeks tougher campaign reporting

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

BOISE — The third time may be the charm for a bill that would toughen the reporting requirements of political campaign contributions. The bill, sponsored by state Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, is expected to pass the Senate soon, but with some alterations. As drafted, the bill seeks to change three areas in reporting political campaign contributions. The most significant change would close the loophole in reporting out-of-state campaign contributions. The bill would not prohibit or restrict out-of-state contributions.

But Noh said it would require political action committees to disclose the names of people who contribute to out-of-state PACs. Under current law, in-state PACs are required to keep a list, but they are not required to file it with the Secretary of State's Office. Two notable examples illustrating the amount of out-of-state money pouring into Idaho would be the two sides in the right-to-work debate. At the height of the campaign, the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee, headed by Gary Glenn, received thousands of dollars daily from a group called the Rocky Mountain States Right-to-Work Coalition, based in Salt Lake City. Utah is one of the few states that does not require disclosure of individual contributors to political action committees. In all, the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee received $984,508 in contributions. Of that amount, $304,000 came from one source — the Rocky Mountain States Right-to-Work Coalition. The Idaho Employee Rights Campaign Committee, also headed by Gary Glenn, received an additional $165,000 from RMSRTW, state records show. Although the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee was required to keep a list of individual contributors to the Rocky Mountain States group, it was not required to file that list with the Secretary of State's Office, said Ben Ysursa, chief deputy secretary. Opposing right-to-work was Idahoans Against Deception. It raised $1.8 million, much of it in out-of-state money, Ysursa said. "Our big races are now dominated by out-of-state money," Ysursa said on Friday. "It's ludicrous to require a committee to keep a list of contributors, but not to disclose it." Ysursa said the problem was just oversight in the original sunshine law, approved by voters in 1974. Two previous attempts to correct the problem have failed, but that of the Noh bill tried to get a similar bill through last year, an election year. Ysursa called Noh's bill "a good have that improves disclosure concept," which improves disclosure laws in Idaho. But Noh's bill is stalled in the Senate. Some senators are balking at the second provision of the bill, requiring winners in primary elections to file a campaign disclosure statement after the primary. "It would treat winners and losers equally in primary elections," Noh said.

But Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, just opposes the additional report required after a primary. Noh said several senators have joined Risch, and that part of the bill will probably not make it through. "The winners just don't want to allow to disclose until the general election, and the losers aren't around to debate the issue," Noh said. The third provision would raise the minimum reporting amount from $50 to $200 to bring Idaho in line with other states. Ysursa said that if only the first section, the out-of-state section, makes it through the Legislature, "Idaho's laws will be improved."

3-way land swap plan would expand industrial park

Gooding County, city set zoning hearings

By JANE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — A proposed, three-way land swap could increase the size of a developing industrial park northeast of Gooding, but zoning laws still need to be clarified for the site. City Planning and Zoning Chairman Dwan Butler told the City Council Tuesday a land trade involving the city, private landowner Don Walker and Amalgamated Sugar Co. could be worked out. The trade would give Walker 40 acres of city land near the city airport southwest of the city. Walker would then deed ownership of a beet dump site to the sugar company, which would deed ownership of an old beet dump site near the Union Pacific Railroad track to the city. The old dump site is outside of city limits, adjacent to a northeast Gooding area being developed as an industrial park. The City Council agreed to examine the proposal. In related business, Gooding County Planning and Zoning Commission representative Joyce Scanlon asked the city to expedite public hearings on the city's request to extend its area of impact. The proposed impact zone would include the area now being developed as an industrial park. Arkoosh Brothers Produce, a business being developed in the area to fresh-pack potatoes, is asking the city for sewer and water service, but at present is outside city limits and the city impact area. Scanlon said the produce plant is located in unincorporated county land, zoned agricultural. "They have been given permission to build an agriculture storage building, but if they start putting in machinery they will be in violation of county zoning laws and the county will have to prevent installation of the equipment," he said. If the area becomes part of the city impact zone, city zoning and use laws will apply and the area could be designated commercial, allowing such use, she said. The county is holding public hearings Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Courthouse to consider changes to its comprehensive plan and zoning maps. Scanlon said members of the county planning group would like to have a firm idea of city intentions beforehand "or we will have to make our changes without you, and then the city won't have any involvement," she said. Councilman Robert Moline told the council he felt hearings on the whole question of the impact area and using city tax money to extend sewer and water lines to the industrial park site need to be held quickly. "The city does need to move on these questions, but we must consider the wishes of the taxpayers and how much this will benefit the city for the amount of money spent," he said. Moline said he would also like to see a more comprehensive plan for the park. That would allow plans for future water and sewer needs in the area to be developed before "we just piecemeal this thing together, or get more involved than we should or are prepared to be," he said. He told the council that city policy has been not to extend city services outside city limits. "Do people want us to change for this situation?" he asked. Moline said the Gooding Chamber of Commerce is backing the industrial park, as is the planning and zoning commission. "Now we need to know what the residents want," he said. A public hearing for the proposed city impact zone change was set for March 9 at 7:30 in City Hall. Study eyes Sawtooths for national park use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, has launched a feasibility study into designating the White Cloud-Sawtooth mountains area of central Idaho as a national park. "The potential economic benefits to Idaho are obvious," Craig said Friday. "Yellowstone and Grand Teton national parks are right next door, and they're bursting at the seams. A new major park in the heart of Idaho could benefit the entire state." The area of the proposed park has been discussed periodically for that status since early in the century, and much of it currently is under consideration for wilderness designation. "I believe designation of the area under study as a park would be the most reasonable compromise for everyone involved," Craig said. "It would preserve unique environmental assets, promote Idaho and provide increased access."

He said his study would include economic analyses of alternative uses and the impacts for Idaho, adding that his office plans to involve the University of Idaho College of Forestry in the process. The Idaho Legislature has been considering a resolution urging Congress to designate the Craters of the Moon National Monument near Arco as a national park. The state has no national parks, though more than 750,000 acres of the Sawtooth and White Cloud mountains are included in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area. One-fifth of the Hells Canyon National Recreation Area also is in Idaho, and the state has more than 42 million acres of federal wilderness land. "As Idahoans consider further resolution of the wilderness question, it is imperative that we look at all possible uses of our land," Craig said. "The reason to believe a national park could be part of the solution for Idaho."

Grants offered to agencies dealing with domestic violence

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

BOISE — More than $44,300 in state and federal funds will be available to agencies in the Magic Valley aiding victims of domestic violence, child abuse and sexual assault. The Idaho Council on Domestic Violence is accepting applications from non-profit organizations and other local agencies for 1-year grants for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Applications to submit proposals must be obtained by Friday. The final deadline for application is March 31.

Almost $350,000 will be distributed statewide. About $200,000 of the funds comes from the Federal Victims Assistance Grant and the Federal Family Victim Prevention and Services Grant, said Dawn S. Statham, executive director of the council. The remainder of the funds are provided through the state Domestic Violence Project, which generates money by placing a surcharge on marriage licenses. Last year 20 agencies in Idaho received federal and state funds for programs ranging from a rape hot-line to shelters for battered spouses, Statham said. When the council first began distributing money, 4 years ago, there were 12 programs. In the Magic Valley the recipients of the state and federal funds are Volunteers Against Violence and the South Central Community Action Agency's Guardian Ad Litem Program. Volunteers Against Violence operate a crisis "hot line" and a shelter in the Twin Falls area for victims of domestic violence, said Program Co-ordinator Karen Mack. More than 300 women and children have been sheltered since the program started about 6 years ago, while calls to the crisis line exceed 100 per month, she said. The organization has about 20 volunteers and three paid staff workers. Grants administered by the council make up a major part of its budget, Mack said. The Guardian Ad Litem Program provides volunteer and legal help to children who have been abused or neglected. Director Penni Jones said the program logged 104 cases during the last calendar year. The program has 20 active volunteers serving the Magic Valley. A training session is planned for those interested in becoming a part of the program, Jones said. Statham said the division of the federal funds among the regions in the state depends on the size of the area, among other items. The formula used to divide state funds, meanwhile, is based on population, the number of marriage licenses, and the number of days victims were sheltered in the various regions. To qualify for a grant, applicants must be a private, non-profit corporation or a local governmental agency; provide direct service. "It's a particular assumption that some building inspections, Courtney said. But Courtney said privatization was not the "solution to all problems." In the case of street sweeping, for example, the city asked for company bids from the private company running the sewage plant and the city's own street department. Idahoans are turning more to self-service pumps, like Johnny McBride of Hazelton at a Twin Falls station

Most Idahoans pump own gas

By DOUG BREWER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Almost nine out of every 10 gallons of gas sold in Idaho are flowing from self-service pumps, a new study says. Amoco Oil Co. of Chicago reports that self-service gasoline holds an 89-percent share of the Idaho market, well above the national average of 78 percent. Do-it-yourself gas became a more popular in the state during 1986, based on Amoco's comparison of volumes from October 1986 to October 1985.

A survey of south-central Idaho stations that offer both full- and self-service gasoline found some deviation from the statewide figure, however. Veri Yergenson, who runs the local Lynwood Chevron, estimated the self-service figure to be 95-percent for Twin Falls as a whole. Yet he said that only 75 percent of his customers choose self-service. "On a cold day, we get a little more full-service," explained Lynwood Chevron bookkeeper Edna Rice. Jim Gasser, of Jerry's 66 Service in Twin Falls, said that one-half of his customers pumped their own gas, while Don Christian, owner of the local Don's Service, pegged his self-service clientele even lower — at 40 percent. Jerome Gas & Oil Inc. owner George W. Silver estimated the area self-service sales figure to be 75 percent, adding that the self-to-full-service ratio was 74-0-3 at his station. He cited older customers, more of whom don't choose to pump their own gas, as reasons for the lower self-service percentage. Max Cunningham, owner of Max's

Courtney briefs House panel on privatization

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Privatization of government services can work well, but not in every case, Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney said on Friday. Courtney testified before a House subcommittee studying whether it was feasible and would save money to contract government services-out to private companies. Courtney presented a brief history of the problems Twin Falls had in running its sewage treatment plant. Although the city built a new plant that began operating in 1977, there was not a single month in 3 years when the city complied with Environmental Protection Agency standards, Courtney said. The city was sued by EPA and was facing a $10,000-a-day penalty if it did not correct the situation, Courtney said. The city finally turned to a private engineering and consulting firm, OMI, to operate its sewage treatment plant. "The only real reason we contracted out was because they could provide the expertise and people we couldn't afford to hire in the city," Courtney said. Courtney praised OMI for helping the city out of a tight spot, and saving the city $150,000 in the process. Now the city is considering hiring private business to seal-coat roads, prosecute criminal cases, and do some building inspections, Courtney said. But Courtney said privatization was not the "solution to all problems." In the case of street sweeping, for example, the city asked for company bids from the private company running the sewage plant and the city's own street department. In the end, the city could do it more cheaply, Courtney said. "It's a particular assumption that

'No cover-up' of Reagan role, aide says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman declared Friday there is no cover-up of President Reagan's role in the Iran-Contra controversy, but the spokesman reserved comment on actions former administration officials reportedly took to obscure Reagan's part in the affair.

Comment by presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater came as the White House was hit with a fresh wave of disclosures about secret administration activities in the Middle East and the sale of arms to Iran.

Reagan, leaving by helicopter for a weekend at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., was asked what would be in an investigative report on the matter which is due next week and replied, "I don't know." Asked if he was worried, he said, "No."

Among the disclosures, confirmed to The Associated Press by a knowledgeable source who insisted on anonymity:

- The decision to seek closer ties with Iran, including the sale of weapons, came after Iranian officials helped secure the release of Americans held hostage during the June 1985 hijacking of TWA Flight 847 in Lebanon.

- About the same time, the State Department stepped in to block a CIA plan for a joint U.S.-Egyptian invasion of Libya aimed at overthrowing Muammar Gadhafi.
- The CIA drafted plans to kidnap suspected terrorists from West European countries for prosecution in the United States.

All three initiatives were prompted by the administration's intense effort to curb international terrorism, but were not directly linked to each other, the sources said.

In addition, The New York Times and The Los Angeles Times reported in Friday's editions that Reagan's former national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, had told members of a special presidential commission probing National Security Council operations that he had helped prepare an inaccurate chronology of the Iran arms deal last November to protect the president.

In testimony Thursday in the hospital room where he is recovering from a drug overdose, McFarlane reportedly told the commission headed by former Sen. John Tower of Texas, that the chronology was intended to give Reagan a basis for denying that he had authorized the first shipment of arms to Iran in August 1985.

At the White House, Fitzwater declined to address the conduct of former or current officials in the matter while strongly reiterating the president's position that there was no cover-up.

"As far as the president's concerned, there is no cover-up. He certainly wasn't aware of any," Fitzwater said. "Now, what these gentlemen did, in terms of their advice to the president, I don't have any idea. I speak for the president."

The spokesman did deny a report in Friday editions of The Washington Post that Robert Gates, the deputy director of the CIA and the president's nominee to head the agency, had helped draw up plans in 1985 for Egypt and the United States to attack Libya and force Gadhafi from power.

"There was no decision directive to invade Libya. I don't know about discussions and so forth... but there was no policy or plan to do that that was put in motion," Fitzwater said.

But a source familiar with the discussions told the AP that the CIA and Egyptian officials prepared the initiative in 1985 after the signing of the Suez Canal and an attempt against the life of a Libyan emigre in Cairo, apparently at the hands of Libyan agents.

When the State Department learned of the plan, it moved to derail the effort, including ordering the U.S. ambassador to Egypt, Nicholas A. Velotes, back to Washington for confidential talks on how to halt the effort, the source said.

Shortly thereafter, the source said, officials at the Justice Department and CIA drafted plans to kidnap suspected terrorists abroad and bring them to the United States for trial.

Abell in line for Justice promotion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan plans to nominate Richard Bender Abell, deputy assistant attorney general for the Office of Justice Programs at the Justice Department, to be the assistant attorney general in charge of that department. The White House announced Friday.

Tampa tensions continue to sizzle

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa's mayor appealed Friday to young people in a mostly black neighborhood for weekend calm as tensions simmered in the aftermath of a melee blamed on the death of a young black man in police custody.

Officers cordoned off five blocks Friday night after isolated rock- and bottle-throwing by small groups of teenagers, but no arrests were made and no injuries were reported, said police Capt. R.W.B. Seal.

Seal said he had no estimate of the number of people in the barricaded zone. Extra officers were on duty in the area, police said.

At least one store was burned and a car and trash bins were set afire Thursday night as a crowd of rock- and bottle-throwing blacks, many of them teenagers, swelled to 200 Thursday night following the death of a man who had been subdued by a white officer using a choke hold.

Police barred use of the neck hold indefinitely as of midnight Thursday.

Four people were injured slightly during the disturbance. No arrests were made, but four people, including a 13-year-old girl, were picked up Friday and accused of looting.

City officials said they wanted to avoid "a Tampa showing" of heavy police presence or a weekend curfew, but urged youths to stay off the streets.

Black leaders blamed the unrest on the choke hold death Wednesday night and the release Thursday by the city of a report about the December arrest of baseball star Dwight Gooden, the Tampa-born New York Mets pitcher.

The 166-page document said officers also used a choke hold to try to overpower Gooden, 22, and suggested police review their training methods. The city attorney also said the situation might not have turned into a riot if Tampa had more black police officers.

Tampa's population is 25 percent black; less than 9 percent of the police force is black.

Gooden pleaded no contest to charges of battery on a policeman and resisting arrest with violence last month and was sentenced to three years probation.

Bob Gilder, a community leader and former head of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, complained about poor timing for the release of the report.

Mayor Sandy Freedman went into the troubled area Friday and used public address systems and assembly halls in three schools to urge students to stay off the streets.

The mayor said she was aware of concerns in the black community and would do "everything in my power" to address them.

Absenteeism was high Friday; parents, both black and white, kept children at home.

Supremacist, friends face robbery charges

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A white supremacist on the FBI's Most Wanted list and two companions were ordered held without bail Friday for allegedly robbing a rural North Dakota bank whose president helped chase them down.

The trio surrendered at a roadblock in northwestern Minnesota Thursday after they robbed the Drayton, N.D., State Bank and took a family hostage while trying to elude police and others who chased them, authorities said.

Thomas G. Harrelson, whom the FBI links to the Aryan Nations white supremacist group in Idaho, was arrested along with Cynthia Elizabeth Ehrlich, 22, and Stuart Kenton Skarda, 28, both of Little Rock, Ark.

In a complaint filed Friday in Fargo, N.D., they were charged with aggravated bank robbery, felony possession of firearms and aiding and abetting a bank robbery, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Lynn Crooks.

U.S. Magistrate Floyd Bolin denied them bond at a hearing Friday afternoon in Minneapolis pending a detention hearing Monday. They were being held in the Ramsey County jail in St. Paul.

Harrelson was sought in connection with an August bank robbery in Illinois, said FBI spokesman Byron Giger. Harrelson, 29, told Bolin that he has no permanent address.

Harrelson is believed to be an expert with firearms and explosives, Giger said. About $50,000 was stolen in the August holdup in Rossville, Ill., in which Harrelson is a suspect, he said.

What's what

Round rings

Worst thing that could happen to an overmatched boxer in the prizefight ring was to get caught in a corner. If he couldn't spin out, he could be punished pretty brutally. For safety's sake, the medics urged the fight bosses to use round rings. They wouldn't do it. What do you think of that notion?

"All right, you guys, line up alphabetically by height." That was one of the orders given to his players by Casey Stengel.

The Wright Brothers plane flew 120 feet. If it had taken off inside a Boeing 747 from the tail end, it would have touched down 111 feet short of the nose.

BING

Q. Didn't the late Bing Crosby once play professional baseball?
A. Semi-pro. With the Spokane Ideal Laundry team.

Q. What language has the most letters in its alphabet?
A. Cambodian. With 72.

Casualties were high at the Battle of Borodino. History records a report that Napoleon's surgeon, Baron Dominique Jean Larrey, performed 200 amputations in the 24 hours immediately thereafter. Think of that -- an amputation every 7 minutes 12 seconds.

That renowned editor, Horace Greeley, founder of the New York Tribune, believed in phrenology. He once wrote: "To avoid accidents, trainmen should be hired on the basis of the shapes of their skulls."

GOODNESS!

Q. What was Mae West's first movie?
A. "Night After Night," 1932.

That's the one wherein a hatched girl looks at Mae's necklace and says, "Goodness! What lovely diamonds!" And Mae says, "Goodness had nothin' to do with it, dearie."

Business tycoon H. Ross Perot gets roasting in fund-raiser

DALLAS (AP) — Billionaire businessman H. Ross Perot was roasted by friends, politicians and newsmen, who took aim at his ego, his ability to speak at length and his celebrated dealings with General Motors.

"It's said that this man could be president of the United States, and I think it's great for us to be here tonight to honor the man who said that," former television newsmen Murphy Martin said Thursday night at the fund-raiser for the Dallas Press Club's scholarship fund.

Martin told about 900 guests that he was the first person to put Perot on television.

"I learned he could talk two hours about any given subject," Martin said. "And if he knows something about it, he can go on for four hours."

Television newsmen Tracy Rowlett, said Perot had recently been injured while taking a walk. "He was hit by a ski boat," Rowlett said.

Perot founded Dallas-based Electronic Data Systems in 1962, a computer company, which became a subsidiary of GM in 1984 in a $2.5-billion merger. But after a falling out with GM officials, the automaker bought out Perot's share of stock last year for $700 million.

"Ross is so dedicated and loyal.... He didn't even deposit the check for three weeks," said Norman Brinker, a longtime friend.

'Brady Bunch' parents to reunite on cable TV

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Florence Letterman and Robert Reed, who raised television's "Brady Bunch," will be reunited when Reed appears on Miss Henderson's cable TV show.

Reed will be a guest on "Country Kitchen," a cooking and interview program on The Nashville Network.

No date for the appearance has been set.

The actors played Bob and Carol Brady on "The Brady Bunch," a family sit-com that went off network television more than 10 years ago after five seasons.

Gooden's girlfriend says she carried loaded gun

NEW YORK (AP) — The girlfriend of New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden has pleaded guilty to carrying a stolen, loaded .38-caliber handgun through a metal detector at La Guardia Airport.

Carlene Pearson, 21, of Tampa, Fla., pleaded guilty Thursday to attempted criminal possession of a loaded weapon. She is to be sentenced April 3.

Ms. Pearson could have gotten seven years on the original charge of criminal possession of a loaded weapon, but was given the option of pleading to a lesser charge because she had no criminal record.

Ms. Pearson told police she had forgotten the gun was in her bag when she arrived to meet Gooden's plane Jan. 30. She admitted in court Thursday that she knew she had the gun.

Singer looks at tourism project in Ivory Coast

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Robert Bell of the pop band Kool and the Gang says he wants to contribute to African development by investing in a tourism project in the Ivory Coast.

"I see music as a vehicle to move into other areas, and one is enterprise," said the 36-year-old singer, who is on a two-week visit to the Ivory Coast.

He said he has approached musicians Diana Ross, Lionel Richie, Michael Jackson, Stevie Wonder and Paul McCartney about co-investing in the Ile Boule project, which he would call "Island of the Stars." The development would include a hotel and casino.

Bell has been holding exploratory talks with the tourism officials, but nothing has been officially approved. The officials said, however, they were enthusiastic about the idea.

Montana town invites Letterman to 'do' lunch

SUPERIOR, Mont. (AP) — David Letterman has done some pretty strange things to entertain fans tuning in to his late-night television show.

But will he do lunch in this small western Montana community? That's what resident Kevin McDonnell wants to know, so he's invited the talk-show host to do just that.

"I figure he's the only one who'd be bizarre enough to do it," McDonnell said.

In his efforts to bring Letterman to Superior, a town of about 1,000 people, McDonnell has posted a David Letterman dashboard on the wall of his cafe. Customers are urged to "hit the gap between Letterman's teeth and win a free lunch."

He's convinced local school officials to hold a "David Letterman Look-Alike Contest" at the high school. The winner will lead a parade this spring to honor McDonnell's lunch guest.

He's also sponsoring a monthly "Quest for Dave" sit-down luncheon in his cafe, The Breadboard. A plate, a chair and a taco salad will be reserved at the head of the table. Just in case the invited guest of honor surprises everybody and does show up.

"If there's any 'funny' in it at all, David Letterman will put it on his show," said lunchroom customer and "Quest for Dave" enthusiast Jim Kinyon of Superior. "He's had some pretty goofy stuff on there."

Meanwhile, friends are videotaping all the Letterman-related goings-on in town and plan to mail the tapes to the show's producers.

"They're always looking for something new," said George Betz, who helped tape the "Quest for Dave" campaign kickoff Feb. 19 in the Breadboard's lunchroom.

McDonnell is giving Letterman six months to show up for lunch, or at least acknowledge the Superior's "Quest for Dave" campaign in some way on his national TV show.

What happens if the town's "Quest for Dave" efforts are in vain? "To put a little pressure on, we're going to hold a human sacrifice in August, and throw somebody off the Clark Fork (River) Bridge every day," McDonnell said. "I guess we'll decimate the population of Superior. But the responsibility will be on his shoulders."

Bikini calendar sales soar

GILROY, Calif. (AP) — Gilroy High School seniors hoped to sell 500 calendars to finance a trip to Disneyland. That was before word got out that the calendar would feature bikini-clad students.

"I'm actually certain we'll sell 2,000, if not more," senior Frank Haseler said. "I'll say we can safely count on $4,000 for profit."

Seven television crews have been spotted at the school since the story was featured in newspapers. Principal Ernie Terreno said calendar sales will be prohibited on campus to prevent class disruptions.

Only five of the 14 calendar photos are of girls in swimsuits.

"I don't think any of these girls thinks it's sexist," senior Jennifer Pate, who took the photos, said Thursday. "If they don't think it's bad, then I have a lot of trouble with someone telling me that it's disgraceful."

Condom giveaway cleared

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — City officials have cleared the way for volunteers from an AIDS counseling center to pass out free condoms during spring "break rovery."

"We have no problem allowing these things to be distributed," John Schlegel Jr., assistant director of the Building, Zoning and Licensing Department, said Thursday.

Hundreds of thousands of college students pour into Fort Lauderdale each spring for sun and fun.

The Rev. Fred Tondalo, director of Center OneAnyone in Distress, volunteers would begin handing out condoms on a beachfront sidewalk next week.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is caused by a virus that knocks out a body's immune systems. It may be spread through intimate contact, blood transfusions or sharing needles tainted with AIDS-infected blood.

Quintuplet survivor off to good start

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The only survivor of quintuplets born a month ago celebrated Friday by breathing on his own and is "off to a fantastic start," his father said.

"This birthday makes us feel better," said James Hawkins of Hendersonville, father of Stephen Darrel. "He's Stephen now — not just Baby Boy No. 1 anymore. He's our little boy."

Stephen was the first of the quintuplets to be born Jan. 20 at Vanderbilt University Medical Center. The others died within 48 hours of their birth.

Stephen now weighs 1 pound, 12 ounces, which is 5 ounces more than at birth. He was taken off a ventilator Tuesday.

Revenge: Eagles down No. 2 Dixie, 112-94

Johnson, Drewnick offer 1-2 punch

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Joey Johnson early and Eduardo Drewnick after in-linuation Dixie College couldn't stand Friday night.

With Johnson hitting 17 points in the first half and Drewnick 19 in the second and the rest of the team have a pretty solid night, the College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball team, belted the Rebels 112-94 to avenge their lone loss of the season. Again the quickness of Keith Jackson was a major factor in the Region 1B decision.

The 28-1 Eagles were nipped in two overtimes by Dixie in St. George, Utah, last month and that has kept the Rebels ranked No. 2 nationally against the third position for CSI. But since Dixie now has been beaten twice in the past week, the Eagles may climb to second — provided they can keep themselves going tonight when they entertain the Snow Badgers here tonight — which, coincidentally, was the team that ruined the 1976 national championship team's undefeated year.

This game did nothing to change the top two spots in regional seeding but Ricks and Utah Tech saw their hopes dented again. Both fell to 7-7 as Colorado Northwestern Beat Ricks 84-75 and Eastern Utah dumped Tech 87-79.

Dixie made a game of it for quite a while and at one point early managed a 15-11 lead. But after CSI outscored the Rebels 21-4 over the next six minutes, the lead was pretty well settled. In fact, the Rebels didn't keep it as close at the end here as Ricks and North Idaho have.

"I was very disappointed in our first half," Coach Fred Trenkle said of the 54-45 situation. "I thought we'd played pretty good but were only up nine. The reason for that was my decision to not let anyone get his foul in the first half and substituted a lot. But with about three minutes left, I buckled and threw that philosophy out the window," he added with a smile.

Trenkle said the sudden point explosion of Drewnick was a planned thing, noting "we felt Eduardo is a little quicker and more a post player than their inside people who are mostly forwards."

Trenkle said he remained upset with the officials allowing Dixie to handcheck throughout the contest. "They called it twice tonight, one at each end. I guess we're going to have to start coaching that — or putting handles on the jerseys," he laughed.

The 3,800 crowd filled the gym to a turn-away point by 5:45 p.m. with some eager fans showing up as early as 2:10 and playing cards in front of the ticket door. Actually, it looked more like an NCAA coaches convention on the north end of the gymnasium as the scouts were out by the dozens.

But they didn't seem to like what they saw early as Roger McDonald sparked the early surge that took Dixie to that 15-11 advantage. Mauro Gomes started the comeback with a three-point and Erick Newman followed with a cripple off a steal. Drewnick scored his only bucket of the half before Johnson drove the baseline for a spectacular finger-roll.

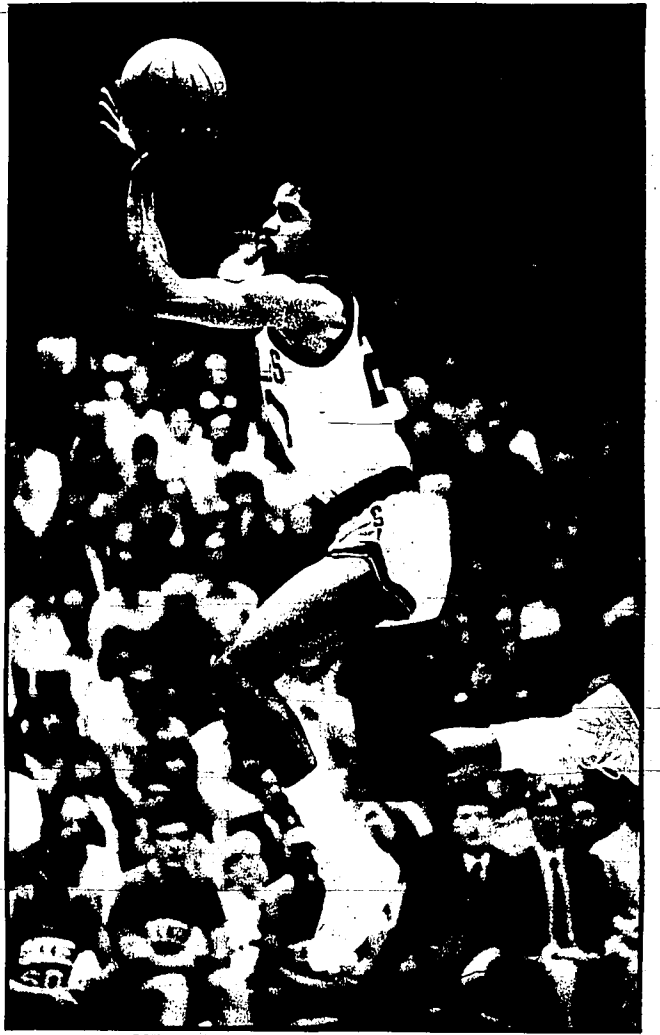

After Darrel White and Dave Faldmo sandwiched field goals around a two-pointer by Keith Jackson, Jackson hit five straight points. Dale Karst added a three-

WENDELL — Throw the seedings out the window.

Glenns Ferry and Filer, the No. 5 and No. 6 seeds, respectively, each turned back opponents ranked four spots better in second-round District 4 Class A-3 boys' basketball tournament action here Friday.

The double upset sets up a Glenns Ferry-Filer meeting Wednesday — a game in which a victory means an automatic ticket to the state A-3 tournament opening March 5 in Moscow.

The Pilots, who relinquished the lead with 57 seconds remaining in the first quarter, got it back on Glenns Ferry struggled through the middle quarters and trailed by as many as seven points in the first half. But 6-1 swingman Joel Tew's called 14 of his game-high 26 in the second half as the Pilots outscored top-seeded Gooding 36-25 to remain in title contention.

"We kind of got our confidence up against Decie (Thursday) and I think it will carry over," said Coach

Marty Slegwehn of Glenns Ferry. "Tews has had good games against Gooding before and I guess he figured he could go out and do it again — he did."

Straessler, a 6-foot, 4-inch senior center, complimented Tew's effort with 19 points for the Pilots. "If I had to pick any team in this district that I don't want to play, it would be them," said visiting Coach Larry Messick of Shoshone pointing at a Filer crew performing warm up drills prior to the tipoff.

The Wildcats made that startling announcement stand up by dominating every aspect of the game en route to a convincing 70-57 drubbing of second-seeded Kimberly. With BOISE — If you don't remember Bus Connor, suffice it to say that it's been a long time since there has been a basketball game this big at Boise State University.

The Big Sky Conference-leading Montana State Bobcats came calling at the Pavilion tonight at 7:30 for a showdown with the team that is occupying second place in the league standings at the moment.

That's right, Boise State — a program that has compiled a 121-135 record since the school's last, and its only, Big Sky championship under Connor in 1976.

"There's no question it's a critical game," said BSU Coach Bobby Dye.

GOODING — For 24 minutes, the Dietrich Blue Devils' leading scorer, Alan Stoddard, was held to just 7 points — 19 below his average — by the Richfield Tigers Friday night.

But in the final quarter, Stoddard doubled his three-quarter scoring total and led his third-ranked and top-seeded Blue Devils into the District 4 Class A-4 Northside Sub-district boys' basketball tournament

Camas County matchup in the championship game Monday night. Earlier Friday night, the fifth-ranked and second-seeded Mushers took care of business and crunched the Bliss Bears 54-41, thus eliminating the Bears' and sending Camas against Richfield in a loser-out semi-final.

While Stoddard's fourth quarter sport was the primary key in Dietrich's victory over third-seeded Richfield, it was the fouling out of Tiger point-guard Barry Ward at the 2:26 mark in the fourth that opened the door for the Blue Devils to step

"I'm disappointed," said Buhl Coach Janet Smutny, whose teams have made the state tournament for five straight years and been knocked out in the preliminary rounds each time. "We got into our offense in the first half and played good defense, but in the second half we just didn't come out and play. We didn't take good shots and we didn't rebound."

Offense, which all but deserted the Indians in a 43-30 opening-round loss to Bonners Ferry here Thursday, petered out in the second half Friday

Consumer spending plunges in January

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer spending plunged a record 2 percent in January as Americans put away their pocketbook after an auto-buying spree... Personal incomes were unchanged. Private economists said both the big decline in spending and the weak income figure were signs that the economy got off to a sluggish start at the beginning of the year.

With the new law. "People are spending this tax windfall and may not realize that it will have to be paid back," said Doug Handler, an economist with Wharton Econometrics of Philadelphia... Personal consumption spending fell by $56.2 billion at an annual rate in January, following an increase of $52.2 billion in December.

more quarters of an economy which is basically in neutral. The 2.2 percent decline in personal consumption spending, which includes virtually everything except interest payments on debt, was the largest monthly drop since the government began keeping records in 1959. The wide swings in December and January were attributed to changes in the tax law, which spurred sales of big-ticket items such as autos in December as consumers rushed to make purchases while they could still deduct sales tax charges.

White personal incomes were flat in January, disposable, or after-tax, incomes shot up 0.8 percent, the biggest increase since last April. The big jump in after-tax incomes was attributed to the new tax law. The law cut back on income withheld from paychecks because of the lower tax rates which went into effect on Jan. 1. However, the figures are actually understating Americans' tax liabilities because most persons have not filed new W-4 forms to adjust their withholding to conform

Resistance from profit-takers key to Wall Street's mixed close

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed Friday, faced with continuing resistance from profit-takers. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 8.85 to 2,235.24, reducing its gain for the week to 51.89 points. Most other, broader market indicators recorded small gains on the day.

47%. Retailing issues, by contrast, turned in a strong showing. Sears Roebuck rose 1 1/2 to 53 1/2; K Mart 3/4 to 39; J.C. Penney 1 1/4 to 94 1/4, and Federated Department Stores 2 1/4 to 94 1/4. In the current bull market, said Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co. in his market commentary for the day, "money that comes out of one area quickly finds a home somewhere else. Notice the strength that has developed in the retailers, a sector that had done relatively little up to this week."

Money-center bank stocks were generally weak amid reports of new troubles for Brazil in meeting its foreign debt commitments. Citicorp fell 3/4 to 58 1/4; Chemical New York 3/4 to 49 1/4; Chase Manhattan 1 1/4 to 40 1/4, and Manufacturers Hanover 3/4 to 49 1/4.

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"God is usually on the side of big squaddons against little ones."
— Roger de Bussy-Rabutin.

East had some big guns to deploy against South's heart game. Unfortunately for him, he didn't realize that his most effective weapon was that little peashooter he held in trumps.

East took his top clubs and switched to the diamond king, just as many others would. South took his ace, led a spade to dummy's ace and ruffed a spade with a high trump. A trump was led to dummy's jack, and another spade was ruffed with another high trump. A second trump was led to dummy's 10, and yet another spade ruff established dummy's fifth spade. Finally, a low trump was led to dummy's seven, and dummy's fifth spade netted the game-going trick. In all, South scored seven trumps, two spades and one diamond to post his double game.

How does East beat the double? After he wins his two top clubs, the game goes down if East returns the most worthless-looking card he holds — the three of trumps. This elusive play removes a dummy entry prematurely, and although South can still establish dummy's fifth spade, he will be short the crucial entry with which to cash it.
