Farm prices sagging

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Prices farmers got for raw products in February, on the average, were unchanged from a revised January index but still were 0.6 percent below a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The report said higher prices for cattle, hogs, oranges and sweet corn were offset by lower prices for lettuce, corn, cotton and milk, which held the preliminary February reading at the revised January average.

"Cattle and hog prices were higher, but prices for most other items in the livestock and products index were below the previous month," the report said. "Field crop prices generally declined from a month earlier. Compared to a year earlier, only oats, dry edible beans and potato prices were higher."

According to the preliminary figures for February, the overall index of commodity prices at the farm has held steady since declining 2.4 percent in December.

No new figures were reported to show what happened to prices paid by farmers to meet expenses. The most recent average compiled in January showed farm expenses running 0.6 percent higher than last October but 1.2 percent below a year earlier.

The "prices paid" index is revised only once every three months because of a cutback in funds. Meanwhile, the January figures were carried forward into February, with the next revision scheduled in April.

Crop prices overall dropped 2 percent from January and were down 12 percent from a year ago, reflecting lower price supports and huge stockpiles of key commodities, including corn and wheat, that have built up in recent years.

Prices paid commercial vegetable growers dropped 9.4 percent from a year earlier.

Regan out; Baker takes over

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Donald T. Regan, President Reagan's strong-willed chief of staff, resigned under fire Friday.

He was replaced by former Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr., who abandoned his own presidential ambitions to help restore the administration's tattered credibility.

The resignation and the appointment were announced simultaneously just one day after the Tower investigating commission blamed Regan for the "chaos that descended upon the White House" after the disclosure of the Iran-Contra affair last November.

In a one-sentence letter to Regan, Regan said, "I hereby resign as chief of staff to the president of the United States."

Regan had been the target of a determined campaign by first lady Nancy Reagan to force him from the White House. She had complained to friends that Regan was not doing enough to protect the president as his administration became enmeshed in the Iran-Contra affair.

In his report Thursday, the Tower commission excoriated Regan, saying that as one of the most powerful chiefs of staff in recent history, he should have done more to shield the president.

Critics — including many on Capitol Hill — had urged Regan's ouster to give the White House a fresh start. They had accused Regan of being arrogant and unwilling to deal with members of Congress.

It was not clear immediately whether there would be a staff shakeup beyond Regan. Other key presidential aides, including Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, were criticized by the Tower commission, although less harshly than Regan.

Baker, who was Senate majority leader during the first four years of Reagan's presidency, told a news conference that he took the White House job "with the full knowledge this will eliminate me as a candidate for president (in 1988). You can't do both."

"Ronald Reagan is an historic president," he said. "If we go forward, credibility will follow."

Baker, a 61-year-old Tennessean, is a one-time political rival of Reagan's who competed for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, but eventually endorsed Reagan. Despite his national reputation, Baker remained a longshot for the 1988 nomination.

Regan called Baker "a distinguished American" and a man of "unquestioned integrity and ability."

Mrs. Reagan, who had campaigned for Regan's departure, said of Baker, "I am delighted he will be with us." The first lady's press secretary, Elaine Crispin, said the Regans are "old friends" of Baker and his wife, Joy.

In accepting Regan's resignation, the president said in a statement that the 68-year-old former Wall Street executive, had indicated "many months ago" that he would like to return to private life "in the near future."

"However, after the revelations about Iran, he indicated he would like to stay and help me and the administration through the investigations."

Regan said Regan had indicated that with the release of the Tower board's report, "he felt he would like to go through with his original plans to return to private life. I am therefore accepting with regret his resignation as chief of staff, effective today."

Consumer prices shoot up in January

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices, restrained through most of 1986, shot up 0.7 percent in January for the largest monthly increase in nearly five years, the government reported Friday.

Sharply higher prices for gasoline and heating oil led the increase in the Consumer Price Index. However, prices were also up in most other categories, which economists said partly reflected declines in the dollar.

If the January pace continued for a 12-month period, it would equal annual inflation of 8.3 percent — nearly eight times the 1.1 percent rate for all of 1986. Last year's inflation rate, held down by the collapse of world oil prices, was the lowest in 25 years.

January's report was the first issued by the Labor Department under a major revision in the CPI designed to reflect changing buying habits of U.S. consumers.

The new method gives more relative importance to services than in the past, as opposed to goods. At the same time, housing costs are given more weight in the new index, while energy expenses and food costs receive less.

And several new items were added for price monitoring, including personal computers, video cassette recorders and personal financial services.

Had the old methods been used, the January increase would have been even higher, between 0.8 percent and 0.9 percent, Labor Department analysts said.

The CPI measures the cost to urban consumers of a fixed "market basket" of goods and services, with each entry given a different weight based on its relative importance to a consumer's budget. The old CPI reflected spending patterns of 1972-73, while the new one reflects those of 1982-84.

January's increase was the steepest since a 1.1 percent rise in June 1982.

"It's clearly a sign that we're back into a higher inflation mode — and it's not just temporary," said John Hagens, a senior economist at Chase Econometrics. "Increases were fairly widespread across most major product groups."

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, asked for a reaction to report, said: "It's up, so that's always disappointing."

Gasoline costs rose 6.6 percent in January, while household fuels climbed 7.2 percent — including a 9.8 percent hike in heating oil, the largest increase in this category since January 1974.

Trade deficit surge dashes turnaround hopes

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. trade deficit surged to $14.78 billion in January, dashing Reagan administration hopes for signs of a turnaround in the country's trade problems and leading to a renewed call in Congress for tough trade legislation.

The Commerce Department report Friday said the imbalance between imports and exports jumped 38.7 percent above the original December deficit figure of $10.66 billion.

Much of the deterioration came from a steep 11.7 percent drop in American exports, which fell to $16.38 billion. This was the lowest monthly export total in more than three years and a blow to the administration, which expects a weaker dollar to make American goods more competitive on overseas markets.

Imports in January rose 7.1 percent to $31.16 billion as foreign oil shipments shot up almost 13 percent while imports of manufactured goods rose 7.1 percent despite a drop in car shipments.

The deterioration in the trade figure provided more ammunition for sponsors of congressional legislation seeking higher tariffs and quotas in an effort to save American jobs lost to foreign competition.

"We cannot just stand by and allow the trade deficit to set another record in 1987," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said in reaction to the January deficit total.

"It's obvious that the ineffectual 'Mr. Peppers' style of this administration is not doing the job," said Bentsen, who is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and author of one of the trade bills the administration is fighting. Mr. Peppers was a mild-mannered character in an old television series.

The Reagan administration sought to play down the big January increase, contending that it mainly reflected a bounce back from an unusually low December figure with bad weather delaying some export shipments.

"Exports grew 9 percent in the fourth quarter and should resume their upward trend in February and March, leading to lower deficits," said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige.

The administration is pinning hopes for stronger economic growth this year on expectations that the trade deficit will shrink by between $30 billion and $40 billion from the record $169.38-billion deficit rung up in 1986.

Lottery backers victors in Senate

The Associated Press

BOISE — Bowed by last fall's overwhelming voter endorsement, supporters of a state lottery have gained an easy victory in the Idaho Senate.

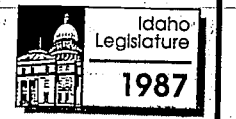

By a 32-19 vote on Friday, the Senate approved a proposed constitutional amendment repealing the ban on state-run lotteries and sent the measure to the House.

The vote, obviously influenced by November's 60 percent voter approval of a legally questionable lottery initiative, totaled four more than the two-thirds majority needed to approve the measure.

Idahoans, Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said, "want to see us implement what the people voted for by a very wide margin in November."

The only opposition to the amendment came from eastern Idaho lawmakers, whose constituents constituted the only bloc in the state to reject the initiative. A number of past opponents of the lottery continued to maintain their personal opposition to the concept but voted to approve the amendment because of the general election results.

It was the second straight year that the Senate has approved a lottery amendment to the constitution, but last year the measure passed with no votes to spare and fell short of the needed two-thirds supermajority in the House as it has in past years.

If approved by the House this session, the measure will go to the voters in November 1988.

The proposed amendment was prompted by the court challenge to the validity of the successful voter initiative on grounds that it amounted to an indirect attempt to amend the constitution by initiative, which is prohibited in Idaho. Although the state Supreme Court allowed last fall's vote, three of its five members indicated they would void the initiative if a challenge to it reached them.

The measure approved in the Senate Friday was the most restrictive of four considered by the State Affairs Committee and it was written by one of the lottery's leading Stanley Crow.

Inflation

Excluding energy, consumer prices rose 0.5 percent in January, including a 0.5 percent increase in food and beverages and a 0.5 percent rise in housing costs.
Economists said many of the price increases reflected higher import prices due to sharp declines in the value of the dollar. "We are now beginning to see imported inflation from the lower dollar, which may add as much as half a percentage point this year," said David Berson, a senior economist with Wharton Econometrics.

The revisions in the CPI, the first major overhaul since 1973, put a sharply higher weight on housing costs — 42.9 percent compared with 37.9 percent previously. That reflects the greater share of Americans' budgets that shelter costs represent.
At the same time, gasoline and heating oil were given lower relative importance in the overall index. Motor fuel, which accounted for 5.4 percent of the old index, was reduced to a weight of 2.9 percent. Fuel oil, which was 1.3 percent in the old index, has a 0.4 percent weight now.

Analysts said these changes reflect the fact that consumers spend a smaller share of their budgets on energy in 1982-84 than they did in 1972-73, due to a combination of lower prices, increased fuel efficiency and energy conservation awareness.
In the new index, food and beverages account for 17.8 percent of the total, compared with 19.8 percent before.
The January increase left the CPI at 331.1, meaning that the market basket that cost $10 during a 1967 base period cost $33.11 last month.

percent from January but averaged less than a year ago.
Declines for lettuce and tomatoes were mainly responsible for the price drop since January.
The index for livestock and livestock products was up 1.4 percent from January and 8.3 percent from a year earlier.
According to the preliminary February figures, based mostly on mid-month averages, fruit prices rose 5.6 percent from January and averaged 13 percent from a year earlier. Higher prices for apples and oranges were mainly responsible for the increase from January.
Cotton prices at the farm declined an average of 8.3 percent from January and were down 18 percent from February 1986.
Prices for feed grain and hay averaged 3.8 percent lower than in January and were 33 percent below a year ago.
The decline from a month earlier was attributed to lower grain prices, while hay prices were up.
Net farm income was estimated by USDA at around $28 billion last year, down from $30.5 billion in 1985. Economists are forecasting an increase to about $32 billion in 1987.
Consumer food prices are expected to continue rising, perhaps averaging 2 percent to 3 percent higher than in 1986, when they gained 3.1 percent.
February commodity prices averaged 121 percent of a 1977 base used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures, the same as in January and December, according to the latest revision. A year ago, the February index averaged 122 percent.

Before selecting Baker, Reagan was selected by a longtime associate, former Sen. Paul Laxalt, and by former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis.
"The president has a home run" in selecting Baker, said Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas.
Rep. Robert Michel of Illinois, the House Republican leader, said Baker "has a depth of understanding of domestic and foreign policy issues that few others have. His judgment is excellent, his integrity unquestioned and his abilities are simply unequalled. He will bring new strength to a strong president."
Baker was first elected to the Senate in 1956. He was elected minority leader in 1977 and was chosen majority leader when Republicans took over control of the Senate in 1981.
He retired from the Senate in 1984, saying he would be more free as a private citizen to devote the time to another try for the White House in 1988.
Others on Capitol Hill said the appointment was a wise move at a time when congressional unhappiness about the White House handling of the Iran-Contra affair was rising.
Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said earlier in the day that his informal survey of 20 or 30 senators indicated Reagan's nomination of Robert Gates to be CIA director was "in deep trouble" because a lot of senators feel they've been lied to by this administration in this whole Iran affair and Gates will pay the price.
And Dole said he had told Reagan concerning Gates, "I think if there's an early vote he's in trouble."
Reagan has yet to comment on the report and was said by Dole to be one-quarter of the way through it.
However, Vice President George Bush did comment Friday, in a speech in Bedford, Mass., noting that the Tower report said the Iran arms dealing was meant to win the freedom of Mideast hostages. Bush said, "arms for hostages is wrong, and at this stage the implementation of the policy failed. It failed the American people and it failed the president."

In other Iran-Contra developments Friday:
• Investigators from the independent counsel's office interviewed conservative fund-raiser Carl "Spitz" Channell, the head of a network of foundations and political committees whose ties to fired NSC aide Oliver North have been under scrutiny, said a source who spoke on condition of anonymity. A diagram from North's safe that was included in the Tower commission report linked Channell's organizations to North's private Contra aid network.
• Congressional committees worked to build upon the Tower report and resolve some of its unanswered questions about what happened to millions of dollars of so-far untraceable arms sale profits. The special Senate investigating panel sent an investigator to Denmark and one to another, unspecified foreign country.
Denmark is the country of registry for a ship controlled by North which the commission report said apparently was used to carry out a series of weapons deliveries to the Contras through two Central American countries.
• A CIA spokesman denied an ABC News story, aired Wednesday night, that said that in recent years then-CIA Director William J. Casey had run an operation — outside normal channels — seeking South African military assistance for the Contras. Neither Casey nor another CIA officer mentioned in the story "solicited such assistance from the South Africans," said CIA spokesman George Lauder, who called the ABC story a "fictionalized account."

FBI informant pleads guilty

MOSCOW (AP) — A 22-year-old Maryland man was charged and pleaded guilty Friday to four federal felonies in the last part of a triple plea bargain intended to gain his testimony against others in the White supremacist movement.
Robert Pires appeared before U.S. District Judge Howard Ryan in a brief court session late Friday afternoon. He has been in custody since early last October, soon after a series of bombings in Coeur d'Alene.
Pires pleaded guilty Friday to attempted bank robbery, malicious damage to government property, possession of unregistered and illegally converted firearms, and aiding and abetting possession of counterfeit money.
Ryan did not set a date for sentencing. Pires has a July 6 sentencing scheduled in Bonner County.

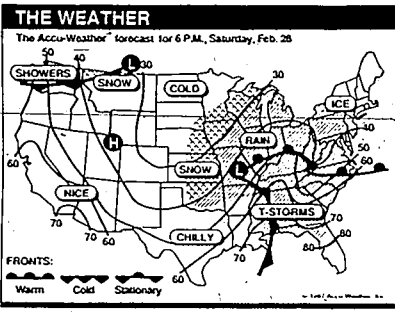

McMurrin Demos' spokesman

TWIN FALLS — Donald McMurrin has been appointed as official press spokesman and campaign coordinator for the Twin Falls Democratic Party.
McMurrin will be looking for new Democratic Party candidates, coordinating community activities, and helping form a young Democrats organization.
Twin Falls County Democratic Party Chairman Joe Gulick says he and McMurrin's highest priority is to have a full ballot in the 1988 elections, with "good, qualified candidates."
Saturday, at the China Gardens Restaurant, at 7 p.m., there will be a meeting of representatives from the eight counties in District 25 to elect a district chairman to preside over all eight counties. Gulick says this will bring about closer cooperation and unity within the party.

Pay-raise, sales tax hike win approval

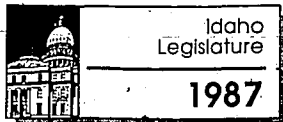

BOISE (AP) — Two House-passed measures crucial to legislative drafting of a 1988 state budget, the permanent 5 percent state sales tax and the controversial 4 percent state employee pay raise, have won final legislative approval.

The sales tax bill was on its way to Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus after the Senate easily approved it on Friday. Although the final vote was 36-5, support for the measure was less than enthusiastic as an attempt to delay action so changes to the bill could be made failed by only seven votes.

The pay-raise plan, harshly criticized by Democrats because it will leave 1,500 or more state workers with their salaries still frozen, gained final passage on a 24-18 vote that saw only two Republicans, Jerry Thorne ofampa and Rachel Gilbert of Boise, side with the Democratic minority in opposing it.

"This resolution demonstrates the difficulty of taking care of the state's obligations without unduly burdening the taxpayer," Sen. Phil Batt, R-Boise, said.

Both bills are critical to the Republican legislative leadership's drive to come up with an overall state budget of about $650 million that still matches Andrus in spending on education. The governor has proposed a $662.6 million spending blueprint, but it relied on repeal of the state's 3 percent investment tax credit, a move Republicans have staunchly opposed.

Final approval of the two measures also cleared the way for legislative budget writers to step up their work on the new spending plan for the year that begins July 1, and Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, predicted the legislature could complete its work in three more weeks. Risch called the sales tax bill "a keystone in putting this (budget) plan together."

Action on the sales tax measure, originally scheduled for Monday, came after Democratic minority leaders discussed the bill with Andrus and finally agreed to expedite the final vote.

"If we are to give money to education and higher education, it's necessary to keep this tax," conceded Senate Finance Committee Chairman Atwell Parry, R-Melba, who said his vote for the tax bill was the first for what amounts to a tax hike in his seven years in the Senate.

The additional penny was added to the sales tax on a temporary basis last spring to bail the state out of a massive budget deficit. It was scheduled to expire at the end of June, but the nearly $48 million it will pump into the state treasury in the coming budget year has become a necessity if the state is to meet its most imperative spending obligations.

Opposing the bill were Democrats Gail Bray of Boise and John Peavey of Carey and Republicans Larry Anderson of Twin Falls, Roger Fairchild of Fruitland and Thorne. Democratic Floor Leader Kermil Kiebert of Hope did not vote.

On the pay raise, however, Andrus and the Republican majority were at odds to the end. The governor had proposed a 5 percent across-the-board pay raise beginning in July that would have boosted the pay of every state worker but at a cost of nearly $10 million. His plan was already less than half the recommendation of the state Personnel Commission, which had called for a 12 percent pay boost to lift all state salaries up to levels paid for comparable work in private industry.

But GOP leaders, trying to shave spending in other areas so more money would be available for meeting the governor's education goals, leveled the back pay plan even further, dropping the total amount to 4 percent and delaying its effect until October. The move freed up another $4 million in general tax receipts that could be shifted to other programs like education.

Group blasts bill passage

BOISE (AP) — The Campaign for Fair Telephone Rates says the House passed Mountain Bell's telephone deregulation bill.

He also pointed to Sandpoint Democrat Steve Herndon, who co-sponsored the bill and received no campaign funds from Mountain Bell.

In a news release issued Friday, the group said, "All but one of the House members who received campaign money from Mountain Bell voted for the company's bill."

But Steve Guerber, spokesman for Mountain Bell, said a large number of the yes votes in the House's 53-30 decision came from

House OK's unemployment tax freeze

BOISE (AP) — House Republicans rammed through legislation freezing unemployment taxes on businesses on Friday, although Democrats said afterward they want Gov. Cecil Andrus to veto it.

The measure cleared the Senate earlier. All 61 Republicans voting in the House Friday approved the action, joined by Democrats Harold Field of Craigmont and Carl Braun of Orofino in a 63-18 vote.

House Speaker Tom Boyd and Senate President James Risch hailed the action as a $20 million boost to the Idaho economy.

The legislation freezes for two years unemployment taxes at last year's rate. Under legislation passed in 1983, an increase went into effect Jan. 1, but now will be rolled back.

House Democrats argued that it wasn't fair to freeze business payments into the fund, without improving benefits for unemployed workers.

Idaho's maximum unemployment benefit is $185 per week, which Rep. Jerry Deckard, R-

Eagle, said is up $30 from four years ago. Deckard noted that in 1983, an employer paid a maximum of $528 on a maximum of $13,200 in worker pay; now the maximum is $907 on $16,200 in worker pay.

"Millions of dollars will stay in the market place by the passage of this bill for the betterment of Idaho's economy, improvement of the employee-wage base and creation of new jobs," said Risch.

Boyd said one of the biggest handicaps businesses in this state face is instability in the tax structure. "The passage of this piece of legislation sets a course of stability for the future," he said.

In 1983, Idaho's jobless fund was headed toward insolvency. Employer taxes were increased and benefits cut to build the fund.

Now there's $96 million in the fund. Republicans contended it should stay at that level or climb gradually, recalling 1983 when a $50 million balance wasn't enough to carry a long period of high unemployment.

Democrats argued that worker benefits should be improved. As they tried in the State Affairs Committee, Democrats tried to amend the bill to add about $7 million in benefits for jobless benefits. Republicans would have none of it, and voted 56-23 against the attempt by Rep. James Stoicheff, D-Sandpoint, to amend the bill.

Stoicheff said later he would urge Andrus to veto the bill. A spokesman for the governor said Andrus has been sticking to a policy of not committing himself on legislation until it reaches his desk and he has a chance to study it.

Boyd said the federal government recommends that the Idaho fund should be allowed to grow to about $200 million, but he feels $150 million is enough.

Democrats wanted to ease eligibility a little, saying current requirements cut off a lot of seasonal workers. They also wanted to add two weeks to the current 26 weeks a worker can qualify for jobless pay.

Senators settle on $346 million school budget

BOISE (AP) — Intent on keeping their campaign promise to significantly bolster state aid to education, members of the Senate Education Committee have recommended a 1988 public school budget nearly $4 million over Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus' proposal.

On a 7-2 vote Friday, the committee formalized its recommendation of $346 million for distribution to public schools next year, specifically excluding another $2.1 million that will be needed to underwrite a one-time increase in school district Social Security obligations.

The recommendation of the panel, which has had some success in past years in persuading lawmakers to put additional money into education budgets, effectively matched the recommendation of the House Education Committee earlier this month.

Although not unanimous, the two members opposing the recommendation, Republican Jerry Twigg of Blackfoot and Lynn Tominga of Rupert, did back a proposal for $342.2 million in public school aid, identical to the governor's plan.

Republican legislative leaders have embarked on a budget strategy that calls for education spending to meet the governor's proposal while the overall budget totals about $10 million to $12 million less.

Their commitment to that plan has been heightened by their staunch opposition to the governor's proposal to repeal the investment tax credit. With Andrus having directly tied the $14.5 million repeal of education budgets, the GOP majority has been intent on showing that retaining the credit will not force education spending below the Andrus levels.

The Education Committee's recommendation, however, is too high to be accommodated in the leadership's budgeting scheme.

Sverdrsten said the committee would take up a recommendation for higher education spending next week.

Grace woman dies in auto accident

THATCHER (AP) — A 19-year-old Grace woman was killed and three others were hospitalized in a one-car accident on Idaho 34 near Thatcher, said a dispatcher for Idaho State Police.

Deborah S. Mallory died when the car in which she was riding flipped over about 4:30 a.m. Friday. The dispatcher said the car was driven by Michael Kelsey, 20.

Kelsey and another passenger, John Mansfield, 24, were taken to Caribou Memorial Hospital in Soda Springs, where each underwent surgery, a nurse said. Both were in stable condition Friday.

Bennett denies spirits were part of his Charboneau defense

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

JEROME — "I don't believe in psychic phenomena, then or now," said attorney Golden Bennett on Friday about claims that he based his defense of convicted murderer Jamie Charboneau on clairvoyance.

Those who claimed he did use the supernatural, such as former Jerome County prosecutor Dan Adamson, had lied or were mistaken, Bennett claimed.

Charboneau's new lawyer, Greg Fuller, of Jerome, had sought the hearing after filing several motions, including one seeking a new trial, on the grounds Bennett had based his defense strategy on clairvoyance and other supernatural phenomena.

Charboneau's former attorney, Public Defender Randy Stoker, testified Thursday that he believed Bennett relied on clairvoyance, and that some of Bennett's actions adversely affected the case.

Charboneau was sentenced to death on a conviction of first-degree murder after more than 4 hours of testimony on Friday, Judge Philip Becker told Fuller and special prosecutor and Deputy Attorney General Peter Erbland to submit arguments by March 23. Becker said he will then prepare a written decision focusing on the clair-voyance issue, because he had already ruled on other issues raised in a previous post-conviction relief motion filed by another attorney who represented Charboneau.

Over the opposition of Erbland, an Aug. 23, 1984, letter from Bennett's niece, Linda Black, was entered into evidence on Friday. The letter described a scene held in California at which Black claimed she saw one of Arbaugh's daughters shoot her mother.

Bennett, a Twin Falls attorney, testified that clairvoyance never played a part in his defense strategy.

Before Aug. 22, 1984, Charboneau added to an earlier version of the murder by saying he saw Arbaugh's daughter, Tiffany, fire the fatal shot at her mother, Bennett said.

"I believed him then and now," he added. The version was consistent with evidence, Bennett said. He took several steps to find evidence to support it and found none to disprove it, he said.

Bennett said he never authorized the release of the letter. While Coakley worked for him, he took some unauthorized action in the case.

Coakley was a qualified investigator, who said he was a psychic, Bennett said. Coakley said he could have "sex on the astral plane" but it was treated as a joke at his office, he added.

Man missing from Rupert home found shot to death

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A 48-year-old Rupert man, missing from his home since Feb. 13, has been found shot to death in Virginia City, Mont., possibly the victim of a homicide, Minidoka Sheriff Ray Jarvis said Friday.

Sheriff Jarvis said the death of Darrell Dean "Fec Wee" Goodnight, 48, is being investigated by Montana and Minidoka county authorities as a probable homicide.

Jarvis returned late Thursday night from Virginia City, where he and a member of Goodnight's family made positive identification of the body.

Jarvis said Goodnight disappeared Feb. 13 from his home at 1509 K. Dr. in Rupert.

"I was contacted by the family on Feb. 15, and a missing person broadcast was made, but with no response," Jarvis said. "Then on Feb. 25, I put out another broadcast and I got a call from the Madison County sheriff in Montana."

Jarvis said Madison County Sheriff Lee Edmisten of Virginia City informed him by telephone that an unidentified body, that could be that of the missing Rupert man, was found late Feb. 16 in the water at the edge of the Beaverhead River.

The man had died of a single bullet wound in the right rear portion of his head, Jarvis said, and a hand gun was recovered at the scene where the body was located.

Because the description matched that of Goodnight, Jarvis left Thursday for Montana to examine the body.

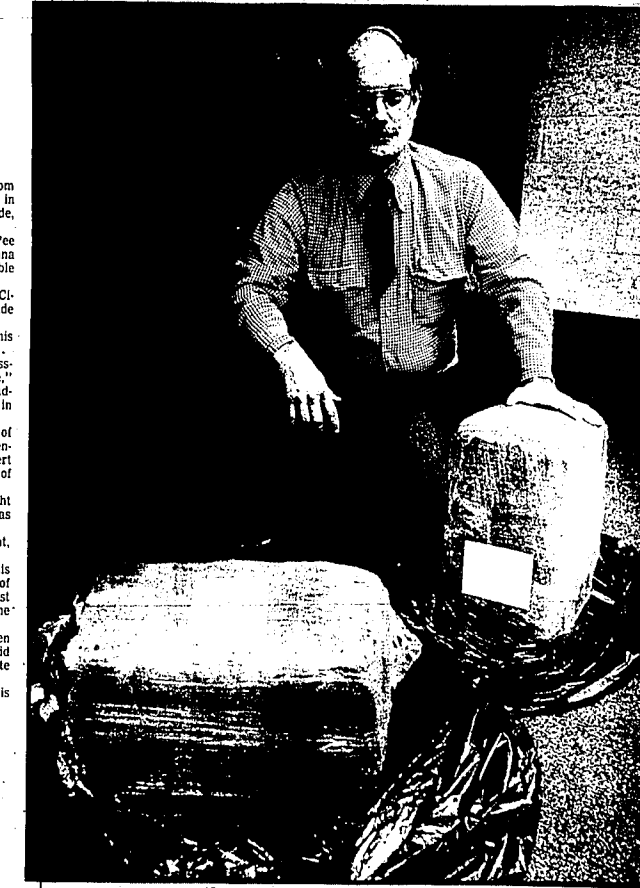

The sheriff said Goodnight is well-known to his department. He served as city marshal for the town of Minidoka for a number of years and was one of the first members of the Mini-Cassia Search-and-Rescue unit, the sheriff said.

Goodnight was a semi-retired farmer, who had been living in Rupert, and owned farm property, Jarvis said. Goodnight didn't need to work, but drove interstate trucks occasionally because he enjoyed doing it.

When last seen in Rupert, Feb. 13, he was driving his

Man jailed on marijuana possession charge

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A 45-year-old man, who listed his address as both Arizona and Twin Falls, was in the Twin Falls County jail Friday under $50,000 bond, following his arrest on charges of possession of 40 pounds of marijuana.

Jose Luis Mendoza Guzman, 45, until Thursday residing on Gulch Lane, southwest of Twin Falls, was arrested Thursday at his residence and charged with a felony, possession of a controlled substance — marijuana.

Sheriff James Munn said Guzman was arrested and the marijuana confiscated after officers obtained a search warrant and went to the residence. The two bales of marijuana were found in a freezer there, Munn said.

Munn said the arrest was made through cooperative efforts of the Twin Falls Police Department, Idaho Bureau of Narcotics, and Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

The sheriff said the street value of the marijuana is estimated at about $100,000.

Guzman was arraigned before 5th District Magistrate Charles Brumbaugh Friday afternoon and the judge set bond at $50,000. Deputy Prosecutor Joel Horton asked the court for a bond of $100,000, saying Guzman came here only recently from Arizona.

Horton told the court that Guzman may have previously brought as much as 100 pounds of marijuana to the area. Horton argued that Guzman would not be likely to stay for further court proceedings, unless bond were set at a large amount.

Guzman said he lived in Twin Falls until last May, when he moved to Arizona, but was planning to return here permanently.

Guzman told the court he works as a mechanic and bartender and makes $1,000-$1,100 a month, but that he had no property or savings. The court appointed the public defender to represent him.

EPA probes methods used to remove old school boilers

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

GOODING — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has found apparent violations with the way boilers were removed last September during a construction project at the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind.

"There appear to have been violations," EPA's Mike Schultz said Thursday, of the removal of two boilers suspected of being contaminated with asbestos.

The EPA's section chief for air operations in Seattle said the conclusion was drawn from formal responses to written questions about the unauthorized boiler removal.

While violations are apparent, Schultz said more specific questions are being prepared to help clarify what punishment is warranted, if any.

Initial questionnaires were sent to three people, asking about the boiler removal. A fourth source may be added this time, when new questions are sent out, Schultz said. He declined to say who was interrogated, because of the sensitivity of his investigation.

Previous investigations by an asbestos consultant and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration found that White Plumbing and Heating, a Twin Falls subcontractor on the project, used the boilers. The investigations also found asbestos was present in the boiler room and on the ground outside the heating building.

Special precautions must be taken when handling materials contaminated with asbestos, because it flakes easily and is then inhaled, causing lung cancer and other fatal diseases. However, low levels of exposure to asbestos do not represent the direct threat to health.

Construction officials have said that if the boilers were contaminated and mishandled, the problem has already been cleaned up.

Wayne Meuleman is an attorney for the Idaho State Building Authority, which is overseeing the $9 million construction project. He said the boiler removal was unauthorized, because tests had not been run to determine if the boilers were contaminated.

Police seeking cause of death of ex-Idahoan

The Associated Press

EUGENE, Ore. — Oregon State Police are still trying to determine the cause of death of Florence businessman Harold Dean Hill, former resident of Jerome, Idaho, whose body was found in a Eugene-area park.

Detectives were not yet calling the 62-year-old Hill's death a homicide and said an autopsy Thursday failed to pinpoint the cause.

"It is not a death that is plainly obvious. A knife or gun was not the cause of death," Officer Sgt. Bob Smilt said. Analysis of laboratory samples and consultation with outside pathologists may give police more information, he said.

Police have not ruled out drowning, suicide or illness as a cause of death, and have not discounted robbery as a motive, Smilt said.

Hill was the manager of the Florence Emporium department store and a retired minister who moved to Oregon after working 10 years at a church in Jerome.

Hill traveled to Eugene weekly to visit family and friends, often staying in a downtown motel, pool associates of his in Florence. He enjoyed playing pool and apparently visited local pool parlors, Smilt said.

Police believe he drove from Florence to Eugene in his car late Tuesday afternoon and died at Aubrey Park, where he was found, sometime between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

His car remained missing Thursday night. Smilt would

A trip to Hagerman Valley offers fossils, trout farms, hot springs and wine

By SHEILA ROBERTSON
The Associated Press

HAGERMAN — One of southern Idaho's best day trips includes a graveyard of fossils striking enough to be included in a mural at the Smithsonian Institution.

A trip to the Hagerman Fossil Beds includes opportunities to visit one of the largest hydrologic systems in the world and the biggest trout farming area in the United States. The route is past one of southern Idaho's newest and smallest wineries, a historic turn-of-the-century bank and several natural hot springs.

The Journey begins on Highway 30 two and a half miles south of Bliss. A viewpoint along the Snake River points to the Hagerman Fossil Beds across the river.

As the river cuts through the Snake River Plain 5.5 million years ago the area was a prairie with saber-toothed cats prowling through the tall grass, and zebra-like horses dozing in the shade of scattered trees. Ground sloths, mastodons and camels foraged and browsed in the savannah that rose from the margins of the Snake River.

The river followed a course much the same as today, but was bordered by a series of lakes, swamps and meandering streams. Many of the animals lived near the water and eventually were preyed upon or died in the flood plain. Their bones joined those of giant beaver, swans, cormorants, turtles, fish and snakes, collecting on the banks until the rainy season when they were swept up in piles on sand bars.

The bone piles were covered with sediments, and as the high waters receded, a bone graveyard accumulated quickly enough to be preserved at Hagerman.

When the fossil beds were discovered in the 1920s, the Smithsonian Institution sent expeditions to Idaho to conduct studies. What they discovered was one of the largest and best-preserved late Pliocene fossil areas in the world.

A mural of Hagerman, as it might have appeared during the Pliocene, was commissioned to be painted for one of the Smithsonian's exhibits.

Ten years ago the site was proposed as a national monument. It is as important as Dinosaur National Monument, the La Brea tar pits in Los Angeles or the Agate Fossil Beds National Monument in Nebraska, experts believe.

While it has not been made a national monument, it is a national natural landmark. But lack of protection has allowed off-road vehicles to cut gullies across it, and construction of two huge water pipelines for irrigation have been built through the middle of it.

Further along Highway 30 is a house built of Oakley stone overlooking the Snake River. The house was designed by Frank Lloyd Wright for international award-winning artist Archie Teater and his wife Pat.

Half a mile further the highway crosses the Malad River Bridge. The Malad River, billed as one of the shortest in the world, has a canyon that once harbored bootleggers during Prohibition.

Budget for highways short of requirements

BOISE (AP) — Legislative budget writers have approved a $178.7 million 1988 budget for the state Transportation Department that they concede will do nothing to stop the continued deterioration of Idaho's transportation network.

With state fuel tax revenues remaining depressed and not enough general tax receipts to supplement them, the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee on Friday had little choice but to approve the spending plan that runs more than $5 million below the amount needed just to continue the present inadequate maintenance schedule. The current budget totals $188.6 million.

Transportation Director Dean Tisdale blames the department's budget crunch on the move toward fuel conservation by motorists and the increased fuel efficiency in the cars they drive. Since 1985, gasoline tax receipts have declined from over $65 million to less than $63.5 million this year.

Aggravating the problem is the loss of nearly $4 million in federal highway construction funds because the state has yet to raise its drinking age to 21, and the delay of nearly $7 million more from the federal government because of congressional bickering of the interstate highway speed limit. A bill to comply with the 21-year-old drinking age mandate was vetoed earlier this week by Republican Lt. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

Tisdale said the backlog of needed highway maintenance and construction work around the state is approaching $1 billion, and the budget possible under current conditions will only increase that backlog.

Lost in budget cutting to avoid red ink was nearly $5.5 million in road-way seal coating, which Tisdale said was not even keeping pace in better times.

Committee approves circuit-breaker financing

BOISE (AP) — Legislation ending what has become a perennial county property tax assessment to cover full-financing of circuit breaker property tax relief for the elderly and disabled has won approval of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

The House-Senate panel endorsed the measure on Friday. Sen. Vearl Crystal, R-Lewisville, the bill's sponsor who also heads the Senate

Local Government and Taxation Committee, said it would eliminate the confusion that has been plaguing the multimillion-dollar program for the last several years.

Since the state-financed local property tax relief plan was introduced in 1974, the state allocation to underwrite it has fallen short six times, including the last five years in a row. Although the state has agreed to make up the difference on several occasions, county property owners have had to underwrite anywhere from 5 percent to 20 percent through higher tax payments.

The bill, now awaiting final action by both houses, would eliminate the need for the Legislature to allocate money to pay for the tax break each year and instead allow the Tax Commission to divert as much money as is needed to meet the obligations each year, eliminating year any chance that property taxpayers would have to cover any of the tax relief.

Under the circuit breaker law, low-income elderly and disabled homeowners receive reduced property tax liability through direct subsidies for their property taxes.

The benefits are allocated on a declining scale as income reaches the maximum of about $13,000 a year.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find this is not the day to get involved in new activities. Go along on an even keel and bring your deep-seated urges into expression now.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Quietly evaluate whatever is not good for your plan of existence. Be with those who help you remain calm.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Contact friends who have proven themselves in times of need and show how much you appreciate them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid allies who are apt to try to limit you today. You can now handle a civic duty you have neglected.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): It's not a good day to do whatever is annoying you, so concentrate on releasing tension.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Forget about romance and fun for now and get busy on keeping promises you have made. Keep your car running well.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): An associate can be of great assistance to you at this time. Get your heads together and produce results.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Today is fine for making arrangements for a good time later. Take any health treatments you need.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Put an added touch on whatever you are working on and make it more effective and valuable.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Do something of a progressive nature. Tonight is fine for having guests in and enjoying their company.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Do something different to your home. Some sight-seeing with friends can prove quite interesting.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): You know how to show your finest abilities, so get busy on this. Plan to be with people you like.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): You know how to make your life more interesting now. Do whatever will please your mate the most.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: — he or she will definitely be a modern age product, but it would be wise to teach this one more about conventional, standard principles. Upon reaching adulthood your progeny will be able to communicate with almost anyone, but don't forget about a fine education.

Storms halt travel on plains, leave regions of South awash

By The Associated Press

A storm that dumped as much as 5 feet of snow on the Southwest moved across the Midwestern prairies Friday, bringing travel to a halt, while another storm swamped parts of the Southeast with rain and blanketed the Blue Ridge mountains with up to a foot of snow.

In Jackson, Miss., the Pearl River rose toward 33 feet, 5 feet above flood stage and a level high enough to send water over low streets south of downtown.

Rivers and streams throughout the state swelled past flood stage, and forecasters said 6 more inches of rain was possible before the storm moved out during the weekend.

"With the ground saturated, only an inch of rain from one thunderstorm is like to result in flash flooding, especially in the urban and flood-prone areas" of Mississippi, the National Weather Service said. "This is a potentially dangerous situation."

Residents in low areas prepared to evacuate their homes, and emergency workers set up 24-hour phone lines for weather updates, officials said.

Winter storm warnings were posted from West Virginia to North Carolina, and snow was expected to reach New York and Vermont on Saturday.

Up to a foot of snow covered southwest Virginia and 10 inches had fallen in the foothills of North Carolina's Wilkes County, with 24 inches in the Raleigh area. In Boone, in the Blue Ridge, Appalachian State University took the unusual step of canceling classes.

It was the fourth significant snowfall of the winter in southwest Virginia, where crews had cleared about 3 feet of snow in the Roanoke-Lynchburg area since late January.

And while only a few flakes fell Friday, snow-choked sections of Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado, in the 60s and 70s. Friday, after 8-12 inches of snow fell in western South Dakota, Interstate 90 was closed for nearly 90 miles by snowdrifts. The eastern half of the state was pelted by freezing rain.

A foot of snow had fallen in the Nebraska panhandle by early Friday, and officials urged motorists to stay off the roads.

"We've been lucky all winter so I guess we can't complain," said Ramona Ver Maas, dispatcher for the police department in Sidney, Neb., which got 12 inches. "I don't think we'd had over 3 inches all year."

The rain and snow were spawned by a large Pacific storm system centered over the southern Rockies. Before it moved east, it shut down schools, roads and airports across the Southwest and Colorado.

Five feet of snow fell in parts of Arizona from Tuesday to Friday, while the snow came down at the rate of an inch an hour in Colorado on Thursday.

The 10 inches of snow that Los Alamos, N.M., received made this season the snowiest on record for the area, with a total of 131 inches. The old record of 123.6 inches was set in 1957.

An 89-year-old Flagstaff, Ariz., woman froze to death in a blizzard, and a 75-year-old Navajo woman was reported missing on the reservation in northeastern Arizona.

The Hopi tribe planned to deliver 40 tons of hay to for animals starving in the 24-inch snowpack, said tribal chairman Ivan Sidney.

In Durango, Colo., an America West jet that skidded off a runway and into a muddy snowbank was pulled free Friday after blocking the runway for two days. There were no injuries.

Durango received 21 inches in the snowstorm, Fairplay received 36, and Colorado Springs had 15. Skiers eager to try out the new powder were warned to beware of avalanches.

IRS bringing out another W-4 Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service plans to introduce a second W-4 form, giving taxpayers two choices of how to calculate the amount of federal income tax withheld from their paychecks, an IRS official said Friday.

The IRS, peppered with complaints since unveiling a new four-page W-4 package last November, promised that the second form, to be introduced on Monday, will be considerably less confusing.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said every employee would be allowed to choose which form to use.

For millions of taxpayers, the longer form would increase chances that the taxes withheld would be close to their actual tax liability.

The shorter version would be much easier to calculate but, the official said, there would be a greater chance that too much or too little tax was withheld, especially for those with non-wage income.

Under the 1986 tax overhaul, every person who works for another is required to file a W-4 by Oct. 1. The IRS has cautioned that a worker who waits until the deadline to fill out the form risks underwithholding, which could result in having to pay a penalty.

Despite scramble no wave appears

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Trawlers scrambled from harbor and people headed for higher ground early Friday to avoid a possible tsunami from a powerful earthquake that rattled the Aleutian Islands, but no tidal wave materialized.

Little damage was reported from the quake, which struck at 11:47 p.m. Thursday and measured 6.9 on the open-ended Richter.

The tremor, centered about 60 miles south of the Aleutian island Unalaska, prompted seismologists to issue an immediate alert for a huge wave, since residents would have had little time to react had one materialized.

Syrians tighten control

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian forces guarded empty Western embassies Friday, tightened their control on west Beirut and were reported ordering young men to shave off beards, which have become virtual badges of militant men.

Syrian units raided arms caches and escorted more food convoys into Palestinian refugee camps that had been under siege by the Shiite militia Amal for three months.

Brig. Gen. Ghazi Kenaan, commander of the 7,500 Syrian soldiers, said his men had the city's Moslem sector under control. He has urged Western diplomats to move back into the embassies.

The Syrians entered west Beirut last Sunday, at the request of Moslem government officials, to end a week-long war between Amal and a Druse-Communist alliance in which at least 300 people were killed and 1,300 wounded.

Kenaan, also is Syria's military intelligence chief in Lebanon, warned rival Moslem gunmen to release Lebanese captives they abducted just before the Syrians moved into the city.

The general also said his troops could do little to gain the release of 26 missing foreigners, including eight Americans, most of whom are believed held by Shiite extremists. He has said they are not in Syrian-controlled territory and has ruled out a military rescue operation.

Western diplomats and most other foreigners moved out of the lawless Moslem sector because of frequent kidnappings and territorial battles between rival factions.

Police said Kenaan's troops erected 23 checkpoints Friday and raided seven Amal arms dumps.

Clash report shares blame

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican reacted with "profound astonishment" Friday to reports of arrest warrants for three Vatican bankers and noted that a long-standing treaty with Italy bars interference in its internal affairs.

The official Vatican statement also said Archbishop Paul C. Marcinkus, American head of the Vatican bank, would cooperate with magistrates investigating Italy's worst post-World War II financial scandal.

A Milan judge investigating the 1982 collapse of Banco Ambrosiano and its dealings with the Institute of Religious Works, or Vatican bank, has said warrants were issued for the arrest of Marcinkus, longtime head of the institute, and two colleagues.

The warrants went out this month, but an exact date was not disclosed.

The 65-year-old Marcinkus, a 6-foot-4 native of Cicero, Ill., who has acted as bodyguard to Pope John Paul II, has denied wrongdoing throughout the 4½-year-old investigation.

The bank collapse cost the Vatican $250 million.

Warrants out for bankers jolt Vatican

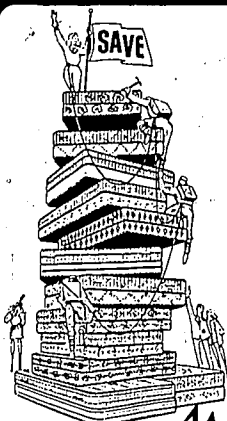

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Both sides were to blame for a confrontation in which 12 people were killed when security forces opened fire on a land reform march last month, a special panel reported Friday.

His report to President Corason Aquino I recommended sedition charges against the leader of the march and administrative action against seven senior army and police officers for failures of command in the Jan. 22 shooting at the Mendocia Bridge.

Peasant farmers and other protesters were marching to Mrs. Aquino's office at the Malacanang palace. She appointed the three-member commission after the shooting, the bloodiest clash between protesters and troops since the "people power" uprising that swept Mrs. Aquino into office a year ago.

"Although the evidence does not positively indicate who started the firing in view of conflicting eyewitness accounts, the inescapable fact is that there was shooting from both sides, albeit mainly from the government forces," the report said.

It added that more investigation was needed to determine specifically who fired at the marchers.

Eckert's 31 leads Buhl in 63-52 win

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

A-2 Boys Basketball
District 4

TWIN FALLS — On a night when neither coach would acknowledge the established star of the other team, the Buhl Indians manufactured a new one in guard Mike Eckert.

Eckert, who averaged about nine per game during the regular season, responded to the tournament atmosphere, scored 31 points and lifted the team to a 63-52 decision over Wood River's Wolverines in the opening game of the Fourth District A-2 basketball tourney Friday.

That sets up a rematch with the Jerome Tigers at 8 p.m. today at the College of Southern Idaho and Buhl Coach Tom Chivers anticipates a lead-off Tiger showing up since it was just a week ago that his Indians ended Jerome's hopes for an undefeated regular season in the year's finale.

Before this game started, Wood River Coach Dick Reuschel said his goal was not to let the inside player of 6-5 Kyle Wilson and 6-7 Kevin Cato beat his Wolverines.

"And I sure wasn't going to let (Wolverine guard Brad) Jaques beat us if I could help it so I was never in the plan for this to be the regular season night," Chivers summed up the situation.

All that worked well. Buhl blanked Jaques until he scored five meaningless points in the last 53 seconds of the game. Wilson was a factor early when he scored eight points but his 12 for the night amounted only to about half of his regular amount. Cato was limited to six.

That meant that Wood River's defense would be packed in, surrounding the Indians height. It also meant that Eckert would be roaming the perimeter loose. But percentages usually dictate the defender is better than the 19-9 shot and Reuschel's game plan had merit.

Wood River was slow enough getting back that Eckert had time to shoot set shots — and that should take you back in time. He knocked down the first nine points of the game with three-pointers to get it started and at one point was five-for-five on bombs. He ended up hitting seven for 10 and those bonus points were the only things that prevented Wood River from taking the lead in the second quarter.

"He's had a couple-three big scoring nights for us but usually he's scored eight or nine. Once in a while a little less. But, no, I wasn't that surprised that he could have that big a scoring night for us," Chivers said.

In the second quarter Buhl got out to a 28-15 lead as Eckert hit his fifth three-pointer but Wood River picked up its scoring spark from Phil Uhrig and Mike Chou to pull back to within five at intermission.

"We went with a diamond and one on Jaques and held him scoreless but Chou and Uhrig — what did they get in the first half — 14 and 10?" Chivers asked. "In the second half we just decided to go with a straight man. Fortunately, by then Wood River wasn't looking to get the ball to Jaques and he quit looking to score. It was a gamble we had to take because Jaques is a good scorer and he's had some great scoring nights against us."

The victory didn't come all that easily. Although Buhl held double digit leads in the first half, it wasn't until uncalled an 11-2 spurt in the third quarter that things finally appeared heading totally in its direction.

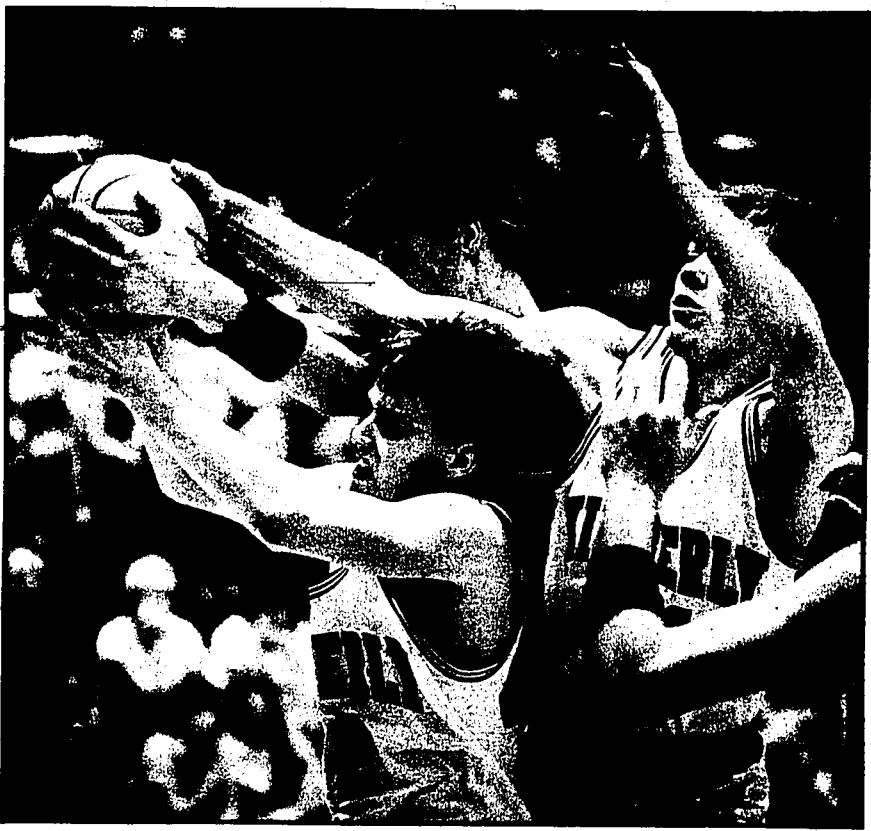

Chou's putback bucket brought Wood River to within one at 31-30 early in the third quarter and then came a quick four-point swing. Wilson got inside for a field goal and when Wood River got lackadaisical on the in-bounds pass, Eckert intercepted and laid it in. Chou got two back for the Wolverines but then Eckert, Davis and Eckert again reeled off six quick Indian points to make it 42-32 with 4:30 remaining in the third.

After that Buhl held a double-digit lead except for a brief moment after Uhrig collects his third — and final — three-pointer of the night late in the period. But two Davis free throws and Eckert's seventh three-point before the buzzer saw Buhl back out to a 12-point advantage.

Davis and Cato started the last quarter with Buhl points to make it 55-39 and the Indians coasted home.

The other statistic of note was that Wood River's 19-9 shot, a throw until Jaques hit a pair with 33 seconds left in the game. Buhl hit nine of 11 from the stripe.

WENDELL — The Glens Ferry Pilots, seeded fifth going into the 1987 District 4 Class A-3 playoffs, turned on the offensive power Friday night to blast Kimberly 71-55 and claim the journey crown.

Todd Gill's bucket at the 4:20 mark of the first quarter broke the Pilots away from a 4-all tie and opened a 19-6 run that didn't end until a minute had elapsed in the second quarter.

Brian Straessler, Glens Ferry's 6-1 center, scored 10 of his game-high 21 in that stretch as the Pilots coasted to a 37-24 halftime advan-

Glens Ferry players. One would grab the ball and another shield him off for a second shot.

"Their wanting a fast tempo surprised me," countered Glens Ferry head man Marty Siegwien. "They did very much the opposite in our two earlier games and controlling the tempo worked very much to their advantage."

"Our game plan was to cut off their passing lanes," he continued. "They have a bad habit of jumping and passing. That's a cardinal sin at Glens Ferry. If you jump, you shoot."

Joel Tews, who edged his senior teammate for the tournament scoring title by a single point, finished with 17 for Glens Ferry and 10 Jose Lopez broke into double figures at 10.

Both teams move on to the state tournament next Thursday through Saturday in Moscow. Kimberly meets District 6 champ Challis in the first round while Glens Ferry draws the winner from District 2, Likell, the undefeated and No. 1 ranked Lapwai Wildcats.

Facing player losses, SMU may cancel its 1988 schedule

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University, its 1987 football season already wiped out by the NCAA, may also call off its limited 1988 schedule, school officials said Friday.

Facing the loss of as many as 52 players through transfers, and reduced scholarship slots by the NCAA penalties, SMU officials are concerned that the 1988 team would not be competitive.

"We're not going to put a team out there unless we can really have a team," interim athletic director Dudley Parker said. "I'm sure the administration wouldn't want to just throw together a bunch of youngsters and send them out there if they aren't capable of competing."

Leroy Howe, president of the SMU faculty senate, said there have been some preliminary discussions about dropping the 1988 season. "It's ominous to think about sending these kids out to a slaughter every week."

Sanctions announced Wednesday by the NCAA canceled the 1987 season; limited the Mustangs to

Coaches shop for SMU players idled by edict

DALLAS (AP) — Football coaches, more than 100 strong, rushed into the vacuum created by the cancellation of this year's football schedule at Southern Methodist to shop for players who will be idled by the NCAA edict.

The toughest sanctions ever imposed on a football program, the first under the "death penalty" for repeat violators, gave 52 of SMU's players the unusual chance to go to another school without having to sit out a year.

Arizona, Tulsa, Alabama, Kansas, UCLA, Oklahoma and Houston

seven games in 1988, all on the road; and stripped SMU of any new scholarships this year and only 15 in 1988.

The campus became a super-market for more than 100 football coaches Thursday as they shopped for talent from among the idled SMU players. The NCAA action gave 52 players the unusual chance to transfer other schools without losing a year of eligibility.

"Got a minute? I'd like to talk to you about coming to our school," was a typical line from talent scouts approaching SMU players Thursday.

"It's incredible. They're like vultures," said linebacker Ricky Roden, who will be a sophomore next season.

"My phone started ringing about 12 last night," said defensive tackle Robert McDade, a starter last season as a sophomore. "And it hasn't stopped ringing, this morning. It all makes your head spin. Some of these guys have films of me. I don't even know how they did that."

Quarterback John Stollenwerk, who will be a sophomore in eligibility next season, gave five interviews in 20 minutes to recruiters within a five-foot radius.

The University of Houston launched the most intensive recruiting effort, sending four assistant coaches to the SMU campus, and it may be rewarded for its efforts.

Some schools had planned part of their recruiting season around the SMU situation by leaving a few of their scholarships open.

"We kind of expected it from what we had read in the papers," said Bill Rees, recruiting coordinator for the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Every option will be looked at, certainly, but I think it's too early to speculate on 1988," Kliever said. "I know there is some concern over having a critical mass of players for competition."

Howe said: "A lot of people have said we would have been better off if the NCAA had given us the gas chamber for a second year and I think they may be right. If we play (in 1988), it would be like meeting the lions in the Roman coliseum."

If SMU does not play in '88, the school may be forced to pay opponents a fee for voluntarily breaking existing contracts.

"My guess would be that the NCAA couldn't hold SMU liable for any games missed this year but they could next year," said Southwest Conference Commissioner Fred Jacoby.

Meanwhile, several SWC schools have been able to fill the holes in their 1987 schedules left by SMU. Friday Texas Tech said it will play Oklahoma on Sept. 19 and leave Nov. 14, when the Red Raiders were scheduled to meet the Mustangs, an open date.

U.S. Olympic plans begin to take shape

CHICAGO (AP) — The size and scope of the U.S. effort for the 1988 Olympic Games began taking shape Friday as the U.S. Olympic Committee considered issues ranging from approval of head coaches to toughening drug-testing measures.

Among the most visible business conducted during the two-day meetings will be approval of Georgetown men's Coach John Thompson and North Carolina State women's Coach Kay Yow to lead the U.S. basketball teams for the Games.

Similarly, Denny Crum of Louisville and Jody Conradt of Texas, coaches of the defending NCAA champion men's and women's basketball teams, are expected to be named to lead the U.S. teams in the 1987 Pan American Games.

Other well-known coaches likely to be approved during the meetings are track coaches Tom Tellez of Houston and Sue Humphrey of Texas; and volleyball coaches Marv Dunphy and Terry Liskevych, who now head up the U.S. national teams.

Most of those announcements will be made Saturday, when the full 94-member executive board conducts its public meeting.

Friday's sessions of the membership committee and the USOC's top officers were held behind closed doors.

While the business of approving big-name coaches will attract much of the attention, deciding the less glamorous matters such as team-selection procedures and how to allocate limited financial resources could prove just as significant by the time the 1988 Games are held in Canada during the winter and South Korea later that summer.

The team-selection procedures become important because athletes gear their training to deliver peak performances in specific competitions, and the governing body for each sport requires USOC approval before it can target that event.

Some governing bodies, for instance, have asked the committee to allow them to begin making their selections based on performance at the U.S. Olympic Festivals set for July 17-26 in North Carolina.

Others have proposed to use the Pan Am Games, set for Aug. 7-23 at Indianapolis, to make their selections, while still others have proposed using their respective national championships.

The Chicago meetings were convened to deal with unfinished business from the USOC's last full session, held in Reno, Nev., last November, said USOC spokeswoman Gayle Bodin.

"During the meetings, the USOC is also expected to rule on several drug-testing measures, including a proposal to include growth hormones — human, animal and synthetic — to the list of banned substances."

Briefly in Sports

Richfield to battle Rimrock

MOUNTAIN HOME — Richfield High School's boys' basketball team will square off against Rimrock High School of Bruneau here this afternoon for the right to advance to the state Class A-4 tournament next week in Moscow.

The Tigers, runners-up in the Northside Subdistrict, defeated Southside Subdistrict runner-up Hagerman 54-48 in the District 4 playoffs in Jerome. Thursday night to win the right to advance to the Inter-district playoffs. Rimrock beat Couer 79-76 in overtime Thursday night in Homedale to gain the Inter-district playoffs.

Game time is 2 p.m. in the Mountain Home High School gym. Rimrock is 18-6 for the season, while Richfield is 16-7.

Chess competition scheduled

BOISE — Preliminary competition for the Idaho Scholastic Chess Championships will be held today at Valley High School in Hazelton.

Winners of the preliminary competition in all classes with earn the right to advance to the state championships in Meridian March 21 or March 28.

The Magic Valley competition at Valley High on Saturday, one of the regional preliminary tournaments scheduled around the state, will begin at 9:30 a.m. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m.

There will be a $3.50 registration fee for high school students, $2.50 for junior high students and $1.50 for grade school students.

The number of divisions in the Saturday tournament will be determined by the tournament director on the basis of the number of participants.

Triple jumper leaps 58 feet

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Conley became the first triple jumper to leap 58 feet indoors, reaching 58-3/4 Friday during the Mobil Indoor Track and Field Championships at Madison Square Garden.

Conley's jump, on his final attempt, shattered the world indoor record of 57-11 1/2, set by Oleg Protsenko of the Soviet Union on Jan. 15 at Osaka, Japan.

Earlier in Friday's competition, Protsenko had broken the meet record and set a U.S. all-comers' record, with a leap of 57-7 3/4.

Female long jumper hits 24 feet

NEW YORK (AP) — East Germany's Heike Drechsler bettered the world indoor record in the women's long jump Friday, leaping 24 feet, one-quarter inch in the Mobil Indoor Track and Field Championships at Madison Square Garden.

In becoming the first jumper to surpass 24 feet indoors, Drechsler broke the mark of 23-11 she had set Jan. 25, 1986, at Berlin.

Drechsler's sensational jump came on her second attempt in the long jump competition, after she had fouled on her first try. She also fouled on three of her last four jumps and had a legal attempt of 23-7 1/4.

Grand jury blasts Maryland's program

UPPER MERRIBORO, Md. (AP) — The Prince George's County grand jury investigating the death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias has issued a tough report strongly criticizing the university's athletic program and the way the school polices drug use on campus.

The report also said the university was "less than honest with the public" about the importance of academics at the school.

The grand jury report, issued Thursday, said the university was running an athletic program based "to a large extent on the talents of students who had a less than reasonable chance of graduating."

Many of the athletes recruited by the university had poor academic records in high school, the report said, and "coaches and administrators often have used 'questionable tactics' to keep them academically eligible."

The grand jury report was written after the 23-member panel heard 130 hours of testimony from 90 witnesses about Bias' death, illegal drug use on the College Park campus and the academic affairs of the university's athletes. The 21-page report was edited by Circuit Court Judge Joseph S. Casula.

Many of the recommendations listed in the report also were made by a university task force formed by Chancellor John B. Slaughter after Bias' death. Some grand jury suggestions, including a shortening of the men's basketball season and changes in the athletic department's drug-testing program, already have taken place.

The report also criticized the university for not enforcing laws against illegal drug use by students.

The report accused the campus police of doing a poor job in arresting and prosecuting drug offenders on campus. It says that only four students out of an enrollment of 35,000 are arrested on average each year for illegal drug use on campus.

"Worse yet, the administration has policies which indirectly permit rather than discourage continued illegal drug use," the report said.

To remedy this, the grand jury suggested that the university increase the number of campus police, increase their salaries and establish a division within the campus police whose sole responsibility would be drug cases.

As of Friday afternoon, the university had no comment on the report. Slaughter and interim athletic director Charles F. Sturtz were said to be out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Former Terrapin basketball coach Charles G. "Lefty" Driscoll, who resigned after Bias' death, also was unavailable for comment.

Allen L. Schwait, chairman of the University of Maryland Board of Regents, declined to comment on the grand jury report. However, he did say that he was pleased with the university's efforts to come to grips with its problems through the academic and drug task forces formed after Bias' death.

The grand jury returned indictments against three men, all of whom were with Bias when he collapsed in his dormitory suite June 19.

Brian Lee Tribble was charged with distributing and possessing cocaine, and obstructing justice.

Decision due on Jaworski's future with Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A decision on whether to keep veteran NFL quarterback Ron Jaworski for the 1987 season will depend on his ability, not on the issue of guaranteeing his $600,000 salary, Philadelphia Eagles owner Norman Braman said.

"It's far as I'm concerned, it will be a football decision, pure and simple," Braman said. "And it always will be."

According to unidentified sources, the Eagles must inform Jaworski by Sunday that they plan to guarantee his contract for the coming season, or make the 14-year NFL veteran a free agent. The Philadelphia Daily News reported in Friday editions that if Jaworski were to become a free agent, the newspaper said, the Eagles would pay the quarterback an unspecified sum and waive any rights to compensation if Jaworski made a deal with another team. Normally, that compensation would be two first-round draft choices, the Daily News said.

Braman offered no direct comment on that information, saying he wasn't involved with any discussions and wasn't familiar with the intricacies of Jaworski's contract.

Speaking in broad terms on whether money would be part of any decision on Jaworski's future with the Eagles, Braman told the Daily News in a telephone interview from his Miami office that it would not.

"Absolutely not. There are no financial constraints. That's the way it is. As far as I'm concerned, that's the way it is. I think we've proven that in the past," he said.

Jaworski was the No. 1 quarterback for the Eagles before suffering an injury, and Randall Cunningham became the starter.

Evans arrives at spring camp

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Darrell Evans has arrived at spring training camp and is ready to play baseball, but the 18-year veteran said Thursday he isn't about to discuss his new pact with the Detroit Tigers.

"I'm not even going to talk about the contract," Evans said. "All the time this was going on, I didn't say anything publicly and I don't want to talk about it now."

"When I go out on the field, I want to concentrate on baseball. I don't want to be thinking about anything else."

Evans' new $550,000 pact is considerably less than the $793,333 he reportedly made a year ago. Still, it is more than the $500,000 the Tigers offered him.

Age, is the reason behind the Tigers' argument to lower Evans' salary, but he says he isn't ready for the rocking chair.

"I worked hard this winter. I feel fine," Evans said. "I've never had any major injuries, so I don't see any reason why I can't continue playing."

"I think staying in condition is the most important thing."

Jordan hits 58 points

CHICAGO (AP) — Fifty and counting ... the points kept coming, the crowd kept chanting, the Nets kept sliding, and Michael Jordan kept asking for the book.

Chicago Bulls Coach Doug Collins finally complied, but only after Jordan completed a typical three-point play to total 58 points and become the NBA's single-game scoring leader this year.

There was 2:44 to play Thursday night, the Bulls were well on their way to a 128-113 win over New Jersey, Bulls' teammate John Paxson was at the free-throw line and Jordan was molting to Collins, mouthing the words, "Take me out. Get me."

A moment later, the league's premier offensive player ran a gauntlet of bolsterous, back-slapping teammates and took a set alone at the end of the bench. The crowd continued howling.

"I don't know if he realized it or not, but he took a lot of pressure off my back," said Collins.

"You've got 14,000 people who wanted to see him get 60," Collins continued. "But Michael showed a helluva lot of class. He felt like his work was done. He didn't even look at the numbers."

But they clearly were worth looking at. Jordan scored 17 points, including the final 11 in the opening quarter, and made his first 19 free throws. He finished 16-of-25 from the floor, 26-of-27 from the line.

Dow posts slight gain on quiet day

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market struggled for a small gain in quiet trading Friday, capping off its second straight advancing month. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 0.66 points to 1,223.95, ending its loss for the week to 11.25 points.

Force hopes that have become widespread in the financial world for improved economic growth with continued low inflation. American Express rose 1/4 to 74, propelled by persistent speculation that the company might be considering spinning off its Shearson Lehman Brothers subsidiary.

Friday's volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed to 142.80 million shares from 165.80 million in the previous session. Analysts said investors were encouraged by the continued stability of smaller "secondary" stocks lately, even as many of the big blue-chip stocks have bogged down.

Bank issues, likewise, bounced back from selling earlier in the week that had been prompted by international-debt worries. Citicorp picked up 3/4 to 53 1/2; Manufacturers Hanover 1/4 to 45 1/4; Chemical New York 1/4 to 46 1/4; and Chase Manhattan 3/8 to 38 1/4.

Wall Streeters had been expecting a pickup in the reported inflation rate, given the rise in energy prices that occurred early in the year. Lately, oil prices have turned downward again.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 5 to 4 in the daily tally on the NYSE, with 859 up, 618 down and 393 unchanged.

Still, brokers said, the latest statistics haven't served to reinforce hopes that have become widespread in the financial world for improved economic growth with continued low inflation.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"One swallow does not make a summer; neither does one fine day."
—Aristotle.

A good defender counts his own winners and then plays his partner for the additional winners needed to break the contract. Often one must take a second look; wishing for too much is likely to add up to wasted effort.

Today's East won his diamond ace and wondered what to lead at trick two. He had two aces to contribute. What might West hold to total four defensive winners?

East decided to hope for either two defensive trump tricks by West or one trump trick and the ace of spades. And in case West had a singleton club, East led his club ace and another club.

The rest is history. West got his one trump trick, and South got his game and rubber.

East's reasoning did not go far enough. Had West held two major-suit winners, the game was always destined for defeat. So the best chance for success lay with a quick trump winner and a club ruff. Since West would have probably led a singleton had he held one (together with a quick trump entry), East should play West for two clubs. At trick two East leads a low club, and when West wins his trump king, a club to East's ace and the ensuing club ruff add up to down one.
