British ferry capsizes; over 200 feared dead

The Associated Press

ZEEBRUGGE, Belgium—A ferry bound for Britain with 543 people reported aboard capsized Friday night in an accident that sent icy water rushing through the decks and trapping more than 200 people in darkness with little hope of survival. The ship's owners said there were 48 dead.

At a news conference early Saturday, officials said there was little hope of survivors. Rescue workers were on the scene throughout the night, and divers reported seeing many victims apparently dead and trapped inside the vessel.

Olivier Vanneste, governor of West

Flanders province, told reporters there were 20 confirmed dead, 97 injured and 202 saved by small crafts, nearby freighters, helicopter, winches and other available means of rescue.

He said 224 people were missing and that the confirmed death toll was expected to climb.

Paul Ovington, a spokesman for the ferry's owners, Townsend Thoresen, said a few hours later that there were 48 confirmed dead and 339 known survivors, without giving a breakdown on those injured.

"There was little hope," for those unaccounted for and believed trapped inside the 7,951-ton, British-owned Herald-of-Free Enterprise.

Belgian Transport Minister Herman de Croos told reporters more than seven hours after the accident.

"We are faced with a tragic accident, this is a real catastrophe," said Prime Minister Wilfried Martens, who went to the scene along with King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola.

The British coast guard at Dover, England, the ferry's destination 85 miles away, said earlier that at least 25 people were known dead and that there were approximately 300 survivors. The later information from Belgian government authorities upped the toll of this missing and presumed dead.

The rescued were taken to three nearby hospitals, and those not needing immediate attention were given first aid, coffee and blankets at waiting stations at the harbor.

Some 20 divers worked through the night, with search lights blazing through the inky water, looking for survivors. The ship was lying on a sandy bed in the Strait of Dover, a half-mile outside this North Sea harbor. Its propeller was sticking up, with about one-fourth of it above water as the evening tide receded.

Helicopters hovering overhead dropped rescue workers to grab survivors, many of them wearing orange life vests over business dress, and haul them to the docks swarming with people looking for loved ones and trying to help.

"Divers told us they have seen ... a great number of victims inside the ship," Vanneste said.

"I thought we were going to die," said Clifford Byrne, 22, from London, who said he was freed after about half an hour inside the overturned vessel.

"We started gushing in and we were climbing up the tables. I fell in the water when I reached to save a baby," he said. "We were trapped in darkness for the whole time and then we heard a helicopter coming near and later rescuers smashed the windows and got us out."

Shultz to visit Moscow

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—President Reagan said Friday he is dispatching Secretary of State George P. Shultz to Moscow next month for talks on a new U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms pact, a step that brightens prospects for a superpower summit.

"I am determined to maintain the momentum we have generated," Reagan said in a statement issued after an hour-long Oval Office meeting with his top arms control negotiators. The three-member team flew to Washington to brief the president on their latest round of discussions with the Soviets in Geneva.

Reagan's announcement came amid repeated appraisals from administration officials that chances for an arms-control agreement removing all medium-range nuclear weapons from Europe appear better than ever.

It also comes as Reagan, who said Thursday that "enough time" has been spent on the Iran-Contra affair, has sought to shift attention to his arms control proposals.

National security adviser Frank Carlucci told reporters that prospects for a summit between the president and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will be one of the topics of discussion in Moscow. The two leaders last met in October in Reykjavik, Iceland, even though Reagan had invited the Soviet leader to come to the United States in 1985.

"If there's progress (in the arms talks), and as I've just indicated, developments look promising, that would certainly be a possibility," Carlucci said of a summit session.

Shultz, scheduled to return to Washington on Sunday from a trip to the Far East, will visit Moscow April 13-16 and confer with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, Reagan said.

It will be the first high-level U.S.-Soviet meeting since November, when talks in Vienna between Shultz and Shevardnadze broke up in discord.

"These talks will provide a good opportunity to review the entirety of our relationship, including regional conflicts, human rights and bilateral issues and to consolidate the progress we have made" in arms talks, Reagan said.

He said he hoped the April meeting will produce further recommendations.

Board modifies 'C' rule

The Associated Press

BOISE—The Idaho Board of Education has ended more than two years of wrangling by modifying the controversial C-coverage requirement to allow students other ways of proving academic competency for high school graduation.

At its monthly meeting in Boise Friday, the board unanimously approved a plan submitted by state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans giving local districts more flexibility in judging student competency.

The C-coverage rule had required that students beginning with the graduating class of 1988 earn grade averages of at least C in the "core" subjects of English, mathematics, reading and speech.

Supporters of the rule have said it motivates staff and students to work harder. But critics contend it discourages academically marginal students and promotes grade inflation.

A study released by the Idaho Department of Education last year showed that only 29 percent of Idaho's ninth and 10th graders were meeting the C-coverage requirement.

The new competency options open to school districts include:

- Keeping the C-coverage rule.
- Requiring placement in at least the 15th percentile on a test given to all Idaho 11th graders, and a score of at least a three on a scale of five on a state writing test.
- Allowing local school boards to develop core competency plans of their own, in keeping with guidelines to be established by the state board.

Board President Dennis Wheeler asked Evans to develop those guidelines by the board's June meeting.

Before Friday's vote, representatives of the Idaho Education Association, the Idaho School Boards Association and the Idaho Association of School Administrators all said they supported modifying the requirement.

Only Russ Steiner, a New Plymouth school board member, spoke in support of keeping the C-coverage rule in place. He said the requirement encourages academic excellence.

"We need to stand behind it all the way," he said. "We should not throw the baby out with the bath water."

Contras deny money came from sales of arms

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Contra leaders said Friday they received nearly $200,000 in 1985 from a company believed to have received payments from the secret sale of U.S. weapons to Iran, but the Nicaraguan rebels denied their money was derived from those sales.

Former Sen. John Tower, head of a presidential commission that investigated the Iran-Contra connection, said he did not think there was a diversion of money from the Iran sales to the Contras in 1985.

The three shipments of U.S. weapons from Israeli stockpiles to Iran that year appear to have been "pretty straight transactions," Tower said in a telephone interview from Dallas, Texas.

He said the commission's "big problem" was that "we knew there was an intention to divert money and we knew it was diverted, but we didn't know who got it."

Contra official, Bosco Matamoros said the rebels received two deposits in October 1985, totaling nearly $200,000, from the "Lake Resources" account. The Tower commission says Lake Resources was a Swiss account controlled by Richard V. Secord, a close associate of fired White House aide Lt. Col. Oliver North.

Charts put together by the Tower commission staff show profits from the arms sales first going into Lake Resources in February 1986, when the United States began selling the weapons directly instead of shipping arms from Israeli stockpiles.

Matamoros said the Lake Resources receipts do not change the Contras' previous statements that they are aware of no profits diverted to them from the Iranian arms sales.

He said the $200,000 was part of about $1 million in private aid received by the largest rebel army group from the end of 1985 through 1986. He said the only source of the $1 million was conservative Washington fund-raiser Carl "Spitz" Channell. All the money was used for non-military assistance to the Contras and their families, Matamoros said.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Republicans denounced a Democratic plan to pressure the administration to account for past Contra aid money by temporarily denying the last $40 million of $100 million Congress approved last year.

'Lifeline' phone service bill up for vote

The Associated Press

BOISE—Legislation designed to help people over 60 afford basic telephone service has been sent to the House floor for a vote.

So-called "lifeline" legislation, giving a $4 per month subsidy in the cost of basic telephone services to 11,000 households, was approved by the House State Affairs Committee on Friday.

Opposing were Republicans Jerry Callen of Jerome, Elizabeth Allan-Hodge of Caldwell, L. Ed Brown of Pocatello and John Wood of Rigby.

The legislation grants people over age 60, who qualify for federal low-income energy subsidies, $4 per month off their monthly telephone bills. The half the cost comes from federal funds. The other half per month would be covered by a surcharge on basic monthly telephone charges, expected to average 7 1/2 cents per month.

Sponsor Rep. Janet Ray, R-Nampa, called the proposal "much-needed legislation."

She said it is vital for the elderly, who might lack mobility, to maintain telephone service and links to health and emergency services.

The legislation was supported by Mountain Bell, the Communication Workers of America and a spokesman for the 800-customer Capbridge Telephone Co.

John Stocks, of Idaho Fair Share, said the organization does not oppose the concept, but would like to make the subsidy available to more people.

Stocks said he didn't like the idea of imposing surcharge on everyone, including welfare recipients under age 60, to benefit low-income families over the age of 60. But committee members noted that if the goal was to subsidize people over age 60, it was unavoidable to place a charge on everyone else.

Brown led opposition to the proposal, noting that senior citizens have a variety of tax breaks and subsidies available to them. He listed "Circuit Breaker" and "5050" property tax breaks, low-income energy assistance programs, food stamps and in many cases, subsidized rents.

All of those programs are leading to a soaring federal deficit, he said, suggesting making the program voluntary by allowing other telephone customers to donate toward the cost.

Rep. Emerson Smock, R-Boise, who is retired, suggested that because of Brown's relative youth, he isn't aware of the financial problems faced by senior citizens. "I think we need a little tender, loving care," he said.

Even when jokes abound, bills are taken seriously

The Associated Press

JACKSON, Miss.—Bills to allow dwarfs to run with crossbows, and make the American foxhound the state dog prompted jokes and jeers in the Legislature this session, but lawmakers don't take them lightly.

"We laugh about it, but these are serious matters to some people," said Sen. Bill Minor. And all legislation, serious or not, costs taxpayers money.

In Mississippi, handicapped people are allowed to use crossbows. Dwarfs are not considered handicapped under state law.

At the request of a constituent, Rep. Will Green Poindester introduced a bill this session to allow dwarfs the exception. The measure died in the back of the Legislature in a dead-end vote.

Poindester said he'll probably try again next session.

"The request is that dwarfs have a hard time pulling back crossbows, but they don't want to be exempted from it, and that legislation was important to them," said Minor.

The foxhound bill gave

'50-50' tax exemption tabled

BOISE (AP) — Acknowledging that he has learned the proposal was extremely unpopular with homeowners, a northern Idaho state legislator has dropped his legislation repealing the "50-50" property tax exemption approved by voters in 1982.

At the request of Rep. Dean Haagenen, R-Coeur d'Alene, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee voted unanimously Friday to table his bill.

But Haagenen said it is obvious that many people feel Idaho's tax system is not equitable and fair. He called for a major study on overhaul, particularly on the property tax and sales tax laws.

Last month, Haagenen introduced a bill repealing the homeowners' exemption. It exempts from property taxes the first 50 percent of assessed value of an owner-occupied residence, up to $50,000.

Wire repair deadline extended

BOISE (AP) — Idaho utility regulators have extended until July 1 Mountain Bell's deadline for signing up customers who want the company to repair and maintain the telephone wires inside their homes or businesses.

But the Public Utilities Commission denied Mountain Bell's request to be allowed to take orders for the wire maintenance service over the phone without a signed contract.

The PUC ordered Idaho's regulated telephone companies in December to notify their customers of the new inside wiring policy by April, but later extended that deadline to May after both Mountain Bell and Continental Telephone asked the commission to reconsider.

Under this week's order, Mountain Bell customers who do not sign up for wire maintenance by July 1 will be dropped from the service. Those choosing to continue the service agreement will find the monthly maintenance fee listed separately on their bills. The fee had been included in Mountain Bell's basic charge for local service.

Andrus prison budget reduced

BOISE (AP) — Legislative budget writers, trying to balance intensifying state spending demands against relatively secure revenues, have reduced slightly Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus' proposed 13 percent increase in the prison system budget for 1988.

But the members of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee said the decision made Friday is a major step toward easing overcrowding that has brought the prison system under federal jurisdiction.

In a series of relatively close votes, the panel approved a $16.6 million 1988 budget for the Corrections Department that includes about half the money Andrus sought to house state inmates in county jails, additional professionals for educational and pre-release programs at prison facilities, extra probation and parole officers and more guards and security fencing to handle planned expansion at the prison in Orofino.

Racial harassment law backed

BOISE (AP) — With state officials continuing their campaign to erase Idaho's image as a haven for white supremacists, a Senate committee has endorsed legislation allowing victims of racial or religious harassment to seek civil damages.

"We need every available tool to show people this type of behavior will not be tolerated," Sen. Mary Lou Reed, D-Coeur d'Alene, said as the Judiciary Committee sent the measure to the full Senate on a unanimous vote.

The bill expands the state's anti-racist civil damages law by allowing authors of criminal charges to permit civil suits for monetary damages as well.

Although the criminal sanctions for malicious harassment have been successful, those fighting racism, particularly in northern Idaho, contend jail penalties often do not deter white radicals, who claim jails and prisons offer them some of their most fertile recruiting ground.

Supremacist pleads guilty

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The fourth person charged in a white-supremacist countering scheme pleaded guilty to reduced charges Friday as more details were revealed of a reported scheme to finance a race war.

David Ross Dorr, 36, was to have gone on trial Monday in San Diego on three counterfeiting charges filed here last fall. The trial was moved because of publicity about northern Idaho bombings.

He also was charged Thursday in San Francisco with distributing counterfeit money.

Dorr pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to conspiracy to manufacture, possess and pass counterfeit money and to the new distribution charge.

The first charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine; the second charge as much as five years in prison and $250,000.

Judge Justin Quackenbush scheduled sentencing for April 23. Government lawyers did not recommend a term but asked that the two sentences run concurrently.

Students suggest legislation

BOISE (AP) — The House Revenue and Taxation Committee usually hears from the state's top tax and business experts, since all tax legislation originates in the committee.

On Friday, the panel received suggested legislation from a different source — members of a Salmon seventh-grade class for the education and talented.

The students didn't do badly at all.

"You did a good job," said Rep. Don Loveland, R-Boise, a former member of the state Tax Commission. "It makes me think that maybe all the money we have appropriated for education has not been in vain."

Three students presented two legislative proposals, which were perfectly logical, one to impose a 5-cent deposit on aluminum beverage containers to encourage recycling, has been proposed to the Legislature for years and only stiff lobbying efforts by retailers have kept it from becoming law.

The other, a bill dealing with the state lottery, suggesting that the state pick three winners per month, with the three sharing in that week's prizes. It also suggested that 40 percent of the revenue from the lottery should be dedicated to education.

GOP mulls new budget plan

BOISE (AP) — Public school teachers could get 10-percent raises under a budget option distributed to Republicans in the Idaho House Friday.

But that will take some new source of revenue, and it doesn't appear lawmakers are close to agreement on how that will be accomplished.

The House, after ducking the vote all week, on Friday finally mustered enough votes to pass legislation nearly doubling the cigarette tax. The vote was 51-32.

But the extra $7.7 million per year the increased tax would generate would go mainly to catch up with long-postponed preventive maintenance projects, and not into the general budget.

If the Senate goes along and the governor signs the bill, immediately, smokers will have to pay 18 cents per pack instead of 9.1 cents in state taxes.

In the Senate, the Local Government and Taxation Committee sent the so-called federal tax conformance bill to the floor for a final legislative vote. But backers of that bill — a key to underwriting any kind of 1988 state budget that can win legislative approval — had to fight off attempts to open the bill to changes.

The House-passed conformance measure will raise $7 million in additional income tax revenue, mostly from business and high-income taxpayers who have relied heavily on deductions in past years. Democrats and Republicans on the committee wanted to open the way increasing and cutting state revenues from the tax changes, but Chairman Vearl Crystal, R-Lewisville, warned them that any attempt to modify the measure could kill the bill completely.

Excluding the revenues the bill will generate, state tax commission officials and industry leaders said conformance is crucial to businesses so they are not forced to keep two sets of records — one for federal taxes and one for state taxes.

Those were the developments Friday as the 1987 Idaho Legislature closed its eighth week, apparently only a little closer than when it started on agreeing on funding for public schools.

Republicans in the House, who have worked for nearly two weeks on education budgets, caucused again Friday afternoon, shortly before adjourning for the weekend.

The weekend adjournment was more complete than legislative leaders expected. Leadership urged a 24-member Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee to meet on Saturday to start major budget work.

It takes nearly three weeks of meetings for the budget panel to do its work, and legislative leaders say unless the work is started, it may be difficult for the 1987 session to wind up around March 27.

But, apparently reflecting the lack of decisions on what to spend, and how to pay for it, JFAC voted 12-11 against working on Saturday.

Caucus Chairman Rep. Dean Sorensen, R-Boise, said House members were given two more budget "options" to consider over the weekend.

One calls for a state appropriation for public schools of $23,816,300. That's nearly $4 million less than the minimum amount Gov. Cecil Andrus says he will accept.

That option calls for a 4 percent increase in school district personnel costs, plus 5 percent to improve teacher salaries for a total increase of about 9 percent. That suggestion also calls for a one-time appropriation of $7 million for textbooks, supplies and equipment.

The second option distributed on Friday is slightly higher than the Andrus recommendation. Sorensen said it calls for total teacher salary increases of about 10 percent.

It also calls for 4 percent raises for school district personnel, but with an extra 6 percent to improve teacher salaries. That would add about $3 million per year to the cost.

Sorensen said the proposal with 6 percent "salary equity" option calls for total public school support of $342,667,400.

Phone deregulation bill sent to Senate

BOISE (AP) — A House-passed bill supporters claim will open the telephone industry to healthy competition and critics warn is only a dangerous experiment has been sent to the full Senate for a final legislative vote.

By a 7-4 vote Friday, the State Affairs Committee recommended final approval of the telephone deregulation bill, taking the action without any significant discussion of its ramifications.

"The legislative process is not set up to handle something as complex and complicated as this," said Sen. Mary Lou Reed, D-Coeur d'Alene, who opposed pushing the bill to final action. "This has become a matter of which side you believe the most."

The measure, pushed by Mountain Bell Telephone Co., would allow regulated telecommunications companies to petition the Public Utilities Commission for "modified regulation." They would have to show reduced regulation would not hurt competition and continue telecommunications services at reasonable costs.

The measure, which cleared the House last week on a 53-30 vote, is similar to one approved by the Senate late in the 1985 session. That bill failed to come to a House vote before final adjournment.

But while the 1987 version has been significantly modified from its predecessor and has won some former critics to its side, opposition has continued from consumer groups and long-distance telephone companies currently not regulated by the state.

They contend the bill is still more far-reaching than any other approved by the Legislature by other states, and because of some of those concerns supporters of the measure have put together a so-called "trailer" bill making some additional modifications. Among the most major is one that clearly, the Public Utilities Commission authority to rescind or modify any deregulation order it previously issues.

In addition, Senate Democratic Leader Kermit Klebert of Hope expressed concern that another bill guaranteeing subsidized service for qualified residential customers under a so-called "lifeline" plan be approved.

Mountain Bell contends it needs the increased flexibility the deregulation bill would provide to compete in the more intensive marketplace created by the court-ordered breakup of the national Bell system three years ago. The company claims it is particularly at a disadvantage in the area of business service, but supporters of the overall deregulation measure say it would be unworkable to deregulate only the business side and maintain regulation on residential service.

To help offset residential deregulation, the bill would cap at one dollar a month per year any rate increases imposed on those customers. While that might prevent skyrocketing rates, critics contend it still allows that annual dollar increase in the monthly charge whether it's justified or not.

The critics also insist there are other vague provisions in the bill that could work to limit competition rather than encourage it.

BPA urged to meet with Idaho irrigators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, has urged the Bonneville Power Administration to meet with Idaho irrigators to discuss the impact of the federal energy program on the state's agricultural sector.

Stallings said recent tightening of eligibility criteria has placed as many as 600 Idaho irrigators in jeopardy of losing their volume discount on power from the federal energy wholesaler.

In a letter to BPA and UP&L officials, Stallings said he was "gravely concerned that adequate attention has not been given to the number of producers affected by implementing an abrupt change in qualifying definitions."

"Although the situation facing

Utah Power & Light and BPA deserves attention, current actions preserve producers in peril with no recourse of any kind," the second-term Democrat said.

The congressman asked for a meeting with his staff, representatives of the BPA and UP&L and irrigators. The group should address definitions of qualifying farms as outlined by the BPA, assure that farms are given the pumping credits they qualify for and ensure that a transitional assistance program is implemented by Utah Power & Light to help those losing credits, Stallings' letter said.

He said he recognized the need for change in the system, but stressed that officials should not take the transition lightly.

"With the potential of so many Idaho irrigators affected by the change in procedure, we must do what we can to help them make the change," Stallings said.

McClure seeks fund release

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, has asked the Farmers Home Administration for an early release of $4 million in direct operating loan funds that currently are set for distribution in Idaho between April and July.

The Idaho Farm Bureau last month loaned the last of $14 million in direct loan money that was earmarked for distribution in the first six months of the current federal budget year.

In a letter this week to FmHA administrator Vance Clark, McClure said demand for the money was greater than the amount allocated, leaving many credit-hungry farmers without operating capital.

"This is a critical time of year for farmers," he said. "Spring planting is contingent on the availability of loan money. An early release of the remaining loan money will prevent a potential crisis."

McClure said he hoped Clark would decide on his request within two weeks.

Bush says U.S. must clearly restate policy on terrorism

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Vice President George Bush said Friday the United States must clearly restate that its policy is to resist giving in to terrorists or making deals with them.

During a question-and-answer session with about 300 people here, Bush noted that he would soon be calling

New W-4A form to be improved

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House paperwork police said Friday they have a few minor suggestions for improving the new, simpler W-4A tax-withholding form but hope to approve the document within a week.

Compared to the complex four-page W-4 that went out to wage-earners in December, the two-page W-4A "is far superior, a vast improvement," said Wendy Lee Gramm, who heads the Office of Management and Budget regulatory division.

"The IRS has done an excellent job of simplifying a complex form," Mrs. Gramm told the Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee that oversees federal paperwork. However, she added that her agency hopes to obtain more comment from the public before giving final approval to the form.

The IRS, which took heavy criticism about the four-page form, released the simpler W-4A on Monday and said it is an excellent document that should be approved and shipped to employers as quickly as possible.

"We hope that no one loses sight of the fact that there is a cost to further delays in approval of the form," said Deputy Commissioner James I. Owens. "As long as the simpler alternative is not available to taxpayers, they must continue using the four-page form."

"Thus, for each day of delay, even if some incremental improvement of the short form was made, the burden on taxpayers who have only the longer form available would continue to be high," Owens said.

The 1986 tax-overhaul law requires every wage-earner to file a tax withholding form by Oct. 17 so the amount of tax withheld from paychecks will approximate actual tax liability. The IRS is urging taxpayers to file as quickly as possible since the form cannot affect wages paid before it was filed.

together the Task Force on Counterterrorism, as President Reagan has requested.

One of the principal aims, Bush told Republican Party activists, will be to review the February 1986 task force report and to return to the policies advocated at that time.

"I learned from my experience" as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations that, in many instances, "one guy's terrorist is another man's freedom fighter," Bush said.

Still, Bush said, the United States has to "reiterate to our allies" that the no-trade, no-deal policy is the official one.

This task force recommendation, Bush acknowledged, "was contradicted by the Iran thing." The arms did not go to the hostage-holders, but the Tower commission said it was a violation of the policy.

Bush steadfastly has supported Reagan during his political fence-mending trip to Iowa as he moves closer to an official declaration of candidacy for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination.

The vice president said earlier Friday in Mason City that he has begun to "shift gears" to move toward giving greater emphasis to his political ambitions. But he stressed that would not affect his job.

On the second day of a two-day, seven-city tour of Iowa, Bush told Republicans that "I'm going to do my job for the next two years." But he also said he must begin to tell people what he would do if elected president.

Bush, appearing before some 300 people at the Mason City Sheraton, suggested his final decision on whether to run could depend on how people react to "my vision of America down into the 1990s."

So, Bush said, he has to let people know what his vision is, and he said his principal themes would be "jobs and peace, . . . but peace with an adherence to democratic principles."

Rich Bond, Bush's deputy campaign manager, said he thinks the town-meeting, informal talk format "is a Bush strength."

Bond also said it was possible that Bush would seek to visit Iowa at least once a month from now on, and that Bush's operation also will mount a "low to the ground, grass roots" effort in New Hampshire.

Judge rules against Nixon on release of Watergate papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge dealt a setback Friday to former President Nixon's attempt to stop the release of 1.5 million sensitive documents from his presidency that include the Watergate papers.

U.S. District Judge George H. Revercomb ruled that the National Archives, which has custody of all 42 million pages of Nixon's presidential papers and 8,000 hours of tape recordings, is not automatically bound to honor Nixon's claims of executive privilege against the release of documents.

Revercomb's opinion invalidates a year-old Justice Department legal opinion directing the Archives to honor all of Nixon's executive privilege claims.

Nixon's attorney, Herbert J. Miller Jr., said at a Feb. 2 hearing that the former president would invoke executive privilege and may file suit to block the planned May 4 release of the 1.5-million White House Special Files, which contain the Watergate papers.

"There will be claims of executive privilege lodged by Richard Nixon and maybe in the near future a lawsuit will be filed against the entire process," Miller told the judge.

But R. Stan Mortenson, another attorney representing Nixon, said Friday the former president would not try to stop the release of Watergate-related materials in the file.

Mortenson called the ruling a victory for the former president because "the court specifically affirmed the fact that the presidential privilege of confidentiality is presumptive."

Revercomb's decision, however, means that Nixon must go to court if he disagrees with an Archives decision to reject a claim of executive privilege over certain documents.

The judge said the Archives should "assess the validity of any claims of executive privilege asserted by former presidents in accordance with its own regulations."

After five tries, the Archives published regulations Jan. 30 for releasing the Special Files.

So far only one batch of Nixon papers, another file of 1.5 million documents, has been released. That file, released in December, contained no material related to Watergate.

The Archives published regulations on Feb. 25, 1986 setting forth procedures under which Nixon's papers are to be released, including guidelines for determining whether to honor claims of executive privilege.

Revercomb ruled that the regulations, issued in accordance with a 1974 law, cannot be overridden by the Justice Department memo.

Nixon is still free to assert his executive privilege in court, the judge noted.

"The presumptive privilege is preserved for the former president to assert in court" if he disagrees with an Archives decision, the judge said.

Eric Giltzenstein, attorney for Public Citizen, a Ralph Nader-founded advocacy group which filed the lawsuit, said Revercomb's decision "vindicates the public's right to know about the Nixon era."

Probe of Nofziger protected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department on Friday brought the independent investigation of former White House political director Lyn Nofziger under its protection, the day after taking similar action to protect the probe into the Iran-Contra scandal.

The appointment of independent counsel James C. McKay to a parallel position inside the department will "ensure that his investigation (of Nofziger) can go forward unimpeded," Associate Attorney General Stephen S. Trott said in a statement.

"Because constitutional objections to the authority of an independent counsel to conduct investigations of this kind have been raised in other cases, there could be a potential question concerning Mr. McKay's activities," Trott's statement added.

On Thursday, Messer gave independent counsel Lawrence Walsh a backup appointment as a Justice Department prosecutor, heading off a constitutional challenge to the probe of the Iran-Contra affair by Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, the former National Security Council staffer who is a central figure in the affair.

The North lawsuit challenged Walsh's status as a court-appointed official under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act. No such challenge has been filed in the Nofziger probe.

The action moving McKay under the control of the Justice Department was done by Trott, with McKay's support. Attorney General Edwin Meese III has withdrawn himself from considering matters in the Nofziger probe because the two men have known each other for years and worked together in the White House earlier in the Reagan administration.

Nofziger faces conflict of interest allegations in connection with his lobbying activities following his departure from the government in 1982.

The independent counsel has been investigating whether Nofziger broke the law by seeking to help a New York defense contractor get an Army contract.

Hudson widow didn't know he was gay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Breaking a 30-year silence, the widow of Rock Hudson tells in a new book that she had no knowledge of his homosexuality during their three-year marriage in the 1950s.

Phyllis Gates also reveals in "My Husband, Rock Hudson" that Hudson once tried to choke her and twice slapped her during their marriage.

Miss Gates, an interior decorator in Palm Springs, collaborated on the book with Bob Thomas, a writer for The Associated Press.

The book will be published by Doubleday in April.

Miss Gates, 61, never remarried. Nor did Hudson, who died of AIDS in 1985.

Born on a farm in Minnesota, Miss Gates was working as a secretary and an inter-restaurant agent to Henry Willson, who discovered Hudson, Tab Hunter and other actors.

Miss Gates wrote that after a few dates, she moved in with Hudson for a few months before they were married on Nov. 9, 1955. The marriage seemed like a happy one until he slapped her during an argument in a Rome hotel.

After the final break with Hudson, Miss Gates consulted famed Hollywood lawyer, Jerry Giesler, who warned her not to remain alone in her home at night. He feared that Willson and Hudson might try to frame her, and she said she was followed by a detective for months.

Miss Gates writes that she was still unaware of her husband's homosexuality until they had separated. Then, she says, a friend revealed to her that Hudson had remained in Italy after the filming of "A Farewell to Arms" to stay with his lover, an Italian actor.

For five months, she had been pleading with him to return to Los Angeles, where she had been seriously ill with hepatitis.

Miss Gates last saw Hudson in a Santa Monica divorce court in 1958. She wrote the divorce but collected a relatively small alimony of $250 a week for 10 years.

She reflects on watching Hudson, Willson and the lawyer leaving the courtroom: "How relieved I was that I had not been hurt."

"I have the power to destroy Rock and I didn't use it. To have exposed his other life would have been vicious and vindictive. I faced enough trouble rebuilding my life without burying that guilt."

Report says calls monitored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government taped telephone calls of top national security officials and continued monitoring Robert F. McFarlane's calls at home after he left the White House, an article in the Progressive magazine said Friday.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater denied McFarlane's home calls were monitored after he quit as national security adviser.

Spokesmen for the House and Senate committees investigating the Iran-Contra affair said the panels were unaware of any such taping but that if the report proved true they would want copies of the recordings.

In its April issue, the magazine said a private security firm conducted a sweep of McFarlane's home in January at the direction of his lawyers and found a National Security Agency electronic device capable of monitoring telephone calls.

Israeli politicians call for probe of Pollard case handling

JERUSALEM (AP) — Politicians called Friday for a probe of the government's handling of the Pollard spy case, but aides said Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir opposed further investigation.

Jonathan Jay Pollard, a 32-year-old former U.S. Navy intelligence analyst, was sentenced in Washington Wednesday to life in prison after pleading guilty to spying for Israel. His wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, was sentenced to five years for helping him.

The issue was expected to come to a head Sunday when Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin reports to the regular weekly meeting of the 25-member coalition Cabinet.

Some Cabinet members, in an effort to placate U.S. officials, plan to propose removing Aviem Sella as commander of the Tel Nof air force base, said political sources who demanded anonymity.

Sella, who had recruited Pollard to spy for Israel, was promoted to commander on Sunday. The promotion caused a serious strain in U.S.-Israeli relations, because U.S. officials had believed that those involved in the Pollard case would not be rewarded.

Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, Shimon Peres, said his country would do its best to help the Pollards.

"We are involved whether we like it or not," Netanyahu told Israel television's Washington correspondent. "We have a certain obligation, and the government of Israel recognizes it and will act on their behalf."

Netanyahu described the affair as "a personal tragedy, a human tragedy, almost a Greek tragedy. It is clear that beyond any other consideration... their aim was not to act against the United States but on behalf of Israel."

A senior official who spoke on condition of anonymity said Shamir would discuss strategies for handling the fallout from the Pollard affair with other senior ministers. But he said Shamir does not want to investigate further because Israel already has moved to ensure that there will be no more similar affairs.

Israel radio said Shamir, Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres oppose the appointment of a special commission to probe the affair.

But newspaper editorials and leading political figures, most of them liberals, demanded further probes, either in Parliament or by a special commission.

Energy Minister Moshe Shahal, a leading member of Peres' Labor Party, said he would ask at Sunday's meeting why relations with Washington had become so frayed.

Labor Party legislator Simcha Dinik said Parliament's Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee, probably would discuss Sella's promotion next week.

Isser Harel, former head of Israel's Mossad intelligence agency, called for a special commission to investigate the affair.

Mordechai Wilshinsky of the leftist Shinui Party called for the resignation of two prominent members of Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc, Trade Minister Ariel Sharon and minister without portfolio Moshe Arens.

Wilshinsky contended that Sharon, defense minister between 1981 and 1983, and Arens, his successor until September 1984, were accountable because they held office when spy master Rafi Eitan set up the special ministry unit that recruited Pollard.

Shultz, Japanese officials discuss trade tension

TOKYO (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, during the end of a Far East trip, turned his attention to U.S.-Japanese trade tensions Friday after being assured by South Korea's president that he will step down next year and call free elections.

In Tokyo, Shultz met with Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and Foreign Minister Tadashi Kuranari, briefing them on his six-day visit to China.

Despite much harmony on global and regional issues, said Shultz, the Japanese and U.S. sides were "also quite frank in acknowledging that persistent trade imbalances threaten the well-being of both countries and the global free trade system that has served us both so well."

During his talk with Nakasone, Shultz told a news conference, he praised Japan's efforts to improve its self-defense capability, urged it to increase economic assistance to developing countries and stressed the seriousness of the threat of protectionism.

Shultz told Nakasone that effective measures to open Japanese markets to American goods would be the most effective weapon the U.S. government could wield against protectionist moves in Congress, a Foreign Ministry official said.

Both senior Japanese officials emphasized that they are well aware of the importance of resolving Japan's trade imbalance with the United States and other nations, and that they are committed to boosting domestic demand toward that end, said the ministry official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Kuranari stressed that Japan shares "the same pains as the U.S." in carrying out economic structural adjustments, pointing to a record high 3 percent unemployment rate, declining corporate profits and severe recessions in Japan's coal and steel industries, the official said.

A senior U.S. official said, meantime, that in a meeting with Shultz in Seoul earlier Friday, South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan "made it very clear he was stepping down" next February and would schedule free elections for his successor.

After the meeting, Shultz delivered a carefully crafted statement that aides said was designed to put the Reagan administration firmly on record as backing a transition to an elected government of South Korea after decades of domination by the military.

The United States maintains a major military presence in South Korea, as it does in the Philippines, which was shaken by a revolution a year ago. Thus, American officials are concerned about political unrest in South Korea.

Both sides optimistic about ban on missiles

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union expressed optimism Friday about agreeing to ban medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe.

The Soviets said they favor strict verification, which the United States has expected to be a problem.

The seventh round of arms talks formally adjourned Friday, but negotiations on medium-range weapons will resume next week. The other two fields are long-range (strategic) weapons and the combined field of defense and space.

A U.S. statement cited "good prospects for reaching agreement" on medium-range missiles.

Yuli Vorontsov, chief of the Kremlin delegation, said in an interview with the official Soviet news agency Tass that negotiators will begin drafting a treaty next week.

He also said the treaty Washington proposed was "a very complicated text overburdened with technical details" and he expected negotiations to last several weeks. Vorontsov flew to Paris on Friday, where he told a news conference the Soviet-Union would demand strict verification on both sides.

"We are interested in being present wherever any American missiles are deployed to be sure that nothing takes their place, and we will agree to the same conditions for the Americans," he said.

Asked whether the Soviets would insist on access to infrastructures around launching sites and to factories that produce components of Pershing 2 and cruise missiles, Vorontsov said the principle of reciprocity would apply.

He said he told American lawmakers in Geneva last week they might have to pass a law to facilitate Soviet access to missile component factories.

Vorontsov said the Soviets have an "interesting proposal" about sensors to be placed at sites where missiles are dismantled, but he gave no details.

Although predicting long and difficult negotiations, he said an agreement "has to be ready to be signed by this summer."

Former Nazi deputy falls to pneumonia

BERLIN (AP) — Rudolf Hess, the 92-year-old former Hitler deputy who occupies Spandau Prison alone as a frail relic of Nazism, has been taken to a British military hospital with pneumonia, the family lawyer said Friday.

Andrew Purdon, spokesman for the British diplomatic mission in West Berlin, said Hess was taken to the hospital Sunday "simply for observation... because he said he wasn't feeling well."

Family lawyer Alfred Seidl said by telephone from Munich that Hess had pneumonia, but he would say nothing further about the former deputy Fuehrer's condition.

When asked about Seidl's comments, Purdon replied: "We are not allowed to say anything about his condition."

A U.S. Army medical expert in Heidelberg said pneumonia "is potentially life-threatening for the elderly."

"Pneumonia is sometimes referred to as the 'old man's best friend' because it ends his suffering," said Dr. George Brown of the 7th Medical Command.

The disease "can be very dangerous" in a person at or beyond age 90," he said, adding that it "can cause the failure of other organs in the elderly and the very young because they have little reserves" of resistance.

A report in the mass-circulation newspaper Bild, based in Hamburg, said Hess was comatose and mentally unstable on recent occasions, had become blind and was being given medicines for his heart and circulation.

It said the "Soviets took Hess to the British hospital and are keeping a black coffin for him."

Purdon said Hess' family had been notified, but the prisoner's daughter-in-law, Andrea, said they had to call British authorities in Berlin on Friday to inquire about him.

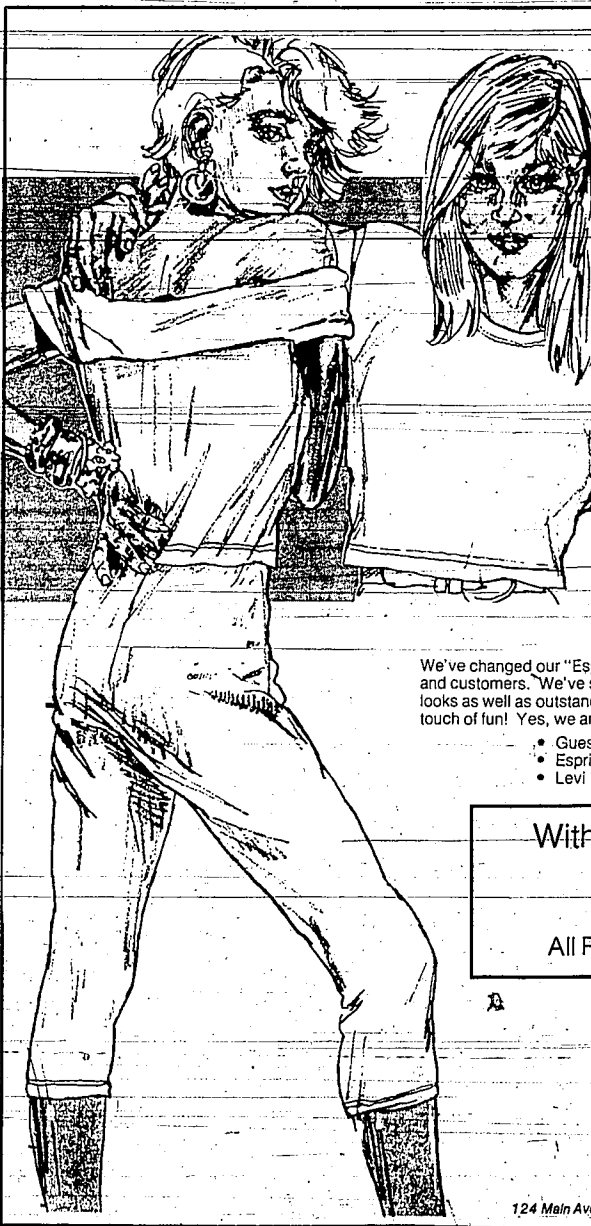

Jewish emigration from USSR rising

GENEVA (AP) — A total of 146 Jews were allowed to emigrate from the Soviet Union in February, the third straight monthly increase, the agency helping in their resettlement said Friday.

Regina Boucault, spokeswoman of the Intergovernmental Committee for Migration, said that 29 of them chose to settle in Israel while the rest were headed for other countries.

In January 98 Jews were allowed to leave the Soviet Union for a transit camp in Vienna. In December only 77 arrived at the Vienna camp.

The 1986 total was 943, compared with an exodus of 51,330 in all of 1979 before the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan chilled East-West relations.

France bestows highest arts awards on Connery, Hepburn

PARIS (AP) — Film stars Sean Connery and Audrey Hepburn were named Friday as Commanders of Arts and Letters, France's most prestigious award for excellence in the arts.

Deputy Culture Minister Philippe de Villiers congratulated them for "having managed to escape the stereotypes despite their worldwide fame."

Connery, who starred in several James Bond thrillers, recently played a detective monk in Jean-Jacques Annaud's medieval Jean "The Name of the Rose." Miss Hepburn starred in "My Fair Lady" and "Breakfast at Tiffany's."

Miss Hepburn's eyes filled with tears as de Villiers tied the green and white striped ribbon around her neck. Speaking perfect French, she said French novelist Colette, author of "Gigi," helped her start her film career 35 years ago.

Connery said he was "much more moved than I thought I'd be."

Michael Levine said the ceremony Thursday was the second marriage for both Hamill, 30, and Forsythe, 40. The couple will live in Los Angeles, where Forsythe has a practice in sports medicine.

Hamill won two gold medals in ice skating at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, Canada.

Utah man in critical condition with grandson's transplanted heart

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — His dead grandson's heart—beating steadily in his chest, Thomas A. Nielson remained in critical but stable condition Friday as he continued recovering from transplant surgery.

Nielson, believed to be the first recipient of a relative's heart, was conscious and communicative, though unable to talk because he was attached to a respirator.

LDS Hospital spokesman Tim Madden said Nielson, a 62-year-old Logan, Utah, brick mason, was waving and making other motions to doctors and relatives visiting him in the cardiac intensive care unit.

"He's awake and alert and very aware of what's going on," Madden said. "He seems to be handling everything very well; he seems to be in good spirits."

Nielson received the heart of his maternal grandson, Jonathan Simper, during a four-hour operation Wednesday. Simper was one of four teen-agers killed in a car-train crash Tuesday night.

Three others — sisters Carrie Christensen, 16, and Sarah Christensen, 15, and Melissa Handy, 15 — died instantly. Simper died Wednesday from his injuries.

Simper's death both stunned and offered hope to the youth's grieving family, which before the accident had learned that Nielson would die without a heart transplant.

Teri Nielson Simper, the boy's mother, said the first time she ever saw her father cry was when he learned that his grandson had died.

"Dad didn't ever say he would not accept Jonathan's heart, but his own heart was broken and he just kept

Comedian's home for sale

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Comedian Steve Martin, who once called this west Texas city "the most nowhere place in America," has decided to sell his home in Abilene's posh Fairway Oaks subdivision, a real estate agent said.

Martin recently bought property in Beverly Hills, Calif., and also owns a ranch in the Los Angeles area and has decided to consolidate his holdings, according to Don Holloway.

Martin purchased the Fairway Oaks home in 1980.

Glenn Martin of Corona Del Mar, Calif., the comedian's father, said Steve Martin had intended to make Texas his permanent residence.

"He got into these big movie contracts," Glenn Martin said, "so it would be impractical to live in Texas. He did three movies last year."

"He never spent one night in the house," Martin's father said, "Well, maybe one night, but we've stayed there more than he has."

An advertisement announcing a sale price of $99,500 for Martin's house was published this week.

He said he was about 16 at the time and was released with the help of Lib Hatcher, a nightclub owner in Charlotte, N.C., who is now his manager.

"They told me if she hadn't testified, I probably would have gone to prison," Travis said. "I look back at that and wonder why in the world I was that dumb."

Travis' album, "Storms of Life," has sold 1 million copies. His single hits include the recent "Diggin' Up Bones."

Inoperable brain tumor puts Rich in hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jazz great Buddy Rich has an inoperable brain tumor and is receiving chemotherapy treatment at UCLA Medical Center, the drummer's representatives said Friday.

The chemotherapy is being given in an attempt to shrink the tumor, said booking agent Bill Monnot of the Willard Alexander Agency in Chicago.

"He has been there a couple of weeks," business manager Joan Resnick said Friday in Los Angeles. "They're hoping that Buddy will be released from the hospital in a week or so."

She said he hopes to return to work. "That's his main desire right now. He wants to be with his band."

Rich, 69, was hospitalized about a month ago in New York with paralysis on the left side; physicians first thought he had suffered a stroke. He was transferred to UCLA for tests and released briefly but was readmitted late last week when the tumor was diagnosed, according to longtime friend Terry Gibbs, a jazz vibraphonist.

First woman in space receives Soviet award

MOSCOW (AP) — Valentina Tereshkova, the first woman in space, turned 50 Friday and received one of the Soviet Union's top awards for her work in state-sanctioned social organizations.

She is also a member of the Communist Party's powerful Central Committee.

The Tass news agency said Mrs. Tereshkova was awarded the Order of the Red Banner of Labor for her "active and fruitful social work."

She has often appeared in public forums to support Soviet positions on arms control and other issues.

Mrs. Tereshkova, who worked in a

Billy Idol's girlfriend cleared of drug charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Socialite model Grace Hattersley, a girlfriend of rock star Billy Idol, has been cleared of charges stemming from her arrest during a drug sweep, authorities said.

The charge of criminal possession of a controlled substance was dismissed Thursday in Manhattan Criminal Court. Assistant District Attorney Lewis Chimes said a chemical analysis of a bag suspected of containing cocaine indicated no drugs were present.

Mrs. Hattersley, 21, was arrested Feb. 18 as she stood with Idol, 31, in Washington Square Park.

Matthew Marl, the model's lawyer, said his client had not heard from Idol during the ordeal.

Weekly proclaims Pasternak's honors

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet weekly has proclaimed Boris Pasternak's elevation from official disgrace to honor with a two-page spread about the writer, who won the Nobel Prize but died scorned and reviled by his homeland.

It carried the headline: "Pasternak Is With Us."

The Soviet Writers Union posthumously reinstated the author of "Doctor Zhivago" last month, and the literary monthly Novy Mir has announced plans to publish the celebrated novel in installments next year.

His change in status has been one of the most spectacular cultural events since Mikhail S. Gorbachev assumed power in March 1985. The spread about Pasternak in this week's English-language Moscow News was the longest since the rehabilitation began.

Pasternak won the 1958 Nobel literature award after publication in the West of his novel recounting a doctor's growing disenchantment after the 1917 Bolshevik revolution.

At home, "Dr. Zhivago" set off a savage campaign of denunciation in the official press, which was followed by Pasternak's expulsion from the Writers Union. He died in 1960.

Moscow News quoted poet Andrei Voznesensky, chairman of an official commission established to honor the writer, as saying: "May the grave story of Pasternak serve as an example warning against the repetition of anything like this in the future."

"All the 'blank spots' in our culture must be filled in after Pasternak. Not a single violated fate should remain in the history of our literature."

According to the weekly, Voznesensky supplied a verbal report of the commission's meeting. It was held Feb. 12 in the same hall of the Writer's Union building where members had voted Pasternak's expulsion.

The commission discussed projects to honor Pasternak that include televised readings of his poetry, publication of memoirs by people who knew him, inclusion of his poetry in school texts, records and a documentary film.

Snow grips Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Snow fell for a record fourth straight day and temperatures dropped to a 31-year low Friday as Athens braced for more snowstorms over the weekend.

Windblown flurries dusted the deserted city center throughout the day. Many Athenians took the day off, some schools were closed and restoration work on the ancient Acropolis temples was suspended.

The persistent snowfall in Athens is extraordinary. It's already snowed four consecutive days and we expect at least two more," said Angelos Kakouras, four-day nationwide cold snap to forecast director for the National Weather Service. In the northern province of Thrace, officials banned hunters from killing wild boars and wolves descending from the mountains to escape six-foot drifts. On the eastern island of Mytilene, 40 farm animals died in the cold.

Police said about 100 northern mountain villages remained cut off by ice and snow, but sunshine Friday helped police and army personnel clear some roadways.

Authorities Thursday blamed the weather for five fatal heart attacks and one traffic death, raising the death toll for the more."

Senate OKs premarital testing for AIDS bill

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Senate debate over mandatory AIDS testing was just the beginning in a series of debates on the deadly disease, legislators said.

A bill to require premarital testing for AIDS before a marriage license is issued narrowly passed the Senate on Friday by a 22-20 vote.

The measure, initially drafted by state Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, and co-sponsored by Sen. Mari Calabretta, D-House Health and Welfare Committee, "If Osborn, now goes to the House, where some of the legislators have reservations."

Rep. Russ Newcomb, R-Twin Falls, a physician, said he has concerns about the

"My main question is what is the purpose of this bill?" said Newcomb, who sits on the House Health and Welfare Committee. "If it's just a population sampling, it's not going to pick up the population we want to find so we can treat."

Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise, chairman of the Health and Welfare Committee, said the bill will receive a full and fair hearing, even though he personally is against it.

"I think it's obvious that body acted without sufficient knowledge," said Hooper referring to the Senate action on Friday.

Hooper said his main concerns are whether testing couples before marriage is effective and appropriate.

"Those questions are going to have to be answered before we enact it," he said.

In debate in the Senate, Anderson and Calabretta said the mandatory AIDS testing would identify between 20 to 37 people with the lethal virus who are carriers.

Both senators said education would discourage the spread of the disease to others "and particularly discourage the conception of newborn infants that would be impacted by the disease," Calabretta said.

Anderson said a marriage license would not be denied if one or both tested positive for the virus.

Sen. Laird Nob, R-Kimberly, said Friday's debate was "one of the better, more serious debates we've had this session."

"People were really trying to get to the bottom of this," he said.

Nob, along with Sen. Darrel McRoberts, R-Twin Falls, and Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, voted against the bill.

Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, and Sen. Lynn Tomlinaga, R-Rupert, joined Anderson in favor of the bill.

Nob said he was influenced to vote against the bill after hearing the Idaho Medical Association withdrew its support and a national conference sponsored by the Centers for Disease Control also recommended against it.

Nob said he also thought there were other major concerns about the bill, especially how the law would handle the large number of false positives of AIDS tests.

But Nob said it was a tough issue to deal with.

"This was not a partisan issue," he said. "It wasn't a Democrat or Republican or moderate or conservative or liberal issue. Every person here was struggling with how they felt they could best serve citizens and control the disease."

Jobless rate dips locally, steady in state

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer
and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment in the Magic Valley dove during February, as potato processing plants resumed production and mild weather beckoned workers back outdoors.

However, the improvement in the jobs picture was confined mainly to the Magic Valley and to Canyon County. Taking in all regions, Idaho's unemployment rate remained steady at January's level of 6.2 percent, the Idaho Department of Employment reported Friday.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties tumbled .9 of a percentage point to 5.7 percent during February, said Len McDonald, state job force analyst based at Twin Falls.

Universal Frozen Foods completed an extended maintenance shutdown, bringing back hundreds of workers into the Twin Falls factory. Agricultural preparations were beginning, and some construction and service workers ventured outdoors because of extremely warm weather.

The Twin Falls Job Service office also logged the fewest number of unemployment claims for a February since 1981, McDonald said. Claims had been high going into the month.

Department figures estimated 2,330 workers actually off the job and 30,130 at work.

Statewide, the weather also played a part in stabilizing the unemployment rate at 6.2 percent, Employment Department Director Julie Kilgore said. "Last winter's cold record stopped virtually all outdoor work, while this year most seasonal jobs continued with few interruptions," she said.

Kilgore cited construction work, food processing and agricultural preparations as showing job gains statewide.

The nation's unemployment also stood still at 6.7 percent. But, while the national economy generated more than a third of a million new jobs during the month, ac-

Bellevue questions price of UP land

By Times-News writers

BELLEVUE — Bellevue may not be buying any of the Union Pacific Railroad land that the Idaho Department of Transportation is offering to sell the city.

The City Council has not been interested in buying land adjoining the city, according to state District Engineer Howard Johnson. And the council is questioning the ownership and asking price of 5.66 acres within the city limits.

The right-of-way land under question was acquired by "possession" along with "deeded" or purchased land and received by federal grant between 1875 and 1883. According to council member Teresa Bergin, UP does not have title to the land which was acquired by possession.

"They have to prove ownership or they can't sell it," Bergin says. The land is part of 54 miles of unused right-of-way UP agreed to

FmHA suspends leasing on 45 farms

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Farmers Home Administration will take "For Rent" signs off 45 Magic Valley farms due to a recently announced moratorium on leasing its land.

The farms are among 174 statewide that have been acquired by the agency either by foreclosure or by voluntary conveyance to satisfy debts, Dennis Nelson, Idaho FmHA chief of farmer programs, said this week.

"We have suspended our leasing efforts on anything that hasn't been rented," he said. The action complies with a moratorium issued by FmHA Administrator Vance Clark last week. The only exceptions are in cases where "it is obviously to the government's best financial advantage to lease the property," Nelson said.

The government lending agency was holding 69 farms in the Magic Valley, Lemhi, Custer and Salmon counties in January, according to the latest available figures. Of those, 24 had been rented, Nelson said. Leases on those properties will continue in effect until the end of the crop year.

Clark ordered the moratorium in reaction to protests that FmHA sales in some areas were driving down farmland rental markets. The action also would take excess land out of production.

However, the moratorium "does not prevent FmHA from selling the farmland. After being out of the farm sales market for most of 1986, Idaho's FmHA office has begun selling off properties once again, Nelson said.

Idaho Director W.C. "Bill" Norberg had ordered a ban on sales a year ago, but released it when a November FmHA survey found they would no longer depress farmland prices.

"The public was thinking that this land someday would have to come on the market. They were holding off (buying) until it did," Nelson said. Properties now are being appraised for future sale, he said.

The 174 farms in the agency's statewide inventory take in 50,371 acres. The holdings in the Magic Valley and Salmon areas — the agency's south central Idaho district — comprise about 1.3 percent of the total farms in the area.

FmHA offices in Shoshone, Arco and Gooding together account for more than three-quarters of the Magic Valley inventory.

Holdings by offices are:

- Shoshone (Blaine and Lincoln counties) — 16.
- Arco — 17.
- Gooding (Gooding, Camas counties) — 20.
- Salmon (Lemhi, Custer counties) — 1.
- Jerome — 8.

Livestock Industry Hall of Fame welcomes 6 new members

By BOB FREUND
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The Southern Idaho Livestock Industry Hall of Fame welcomes six new members to its ranks this week, among them a banker, a poultry producer and a longtime legislator.

All have been picked for contributions to the businesses of ranching and livestock production. They join 141 other members recognized in the past 27 years.

Being honored this year are: J. Vard Chatburn of Albion; J. Pat Hamilton of Buhl; Loyd Merrill of Paul; Dwight Osborne of Hagerman and Jack Van Beek of Jerome.

They will be honored into the Hall of Fame at its annual banquet, which is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Holiday Inn at Twin Falls. A no-host cocktail hour precedes the dinner and ceremonies. Tickets are available from area banks and Hall of Fame directors. The 1987 inductees are:

J. Vard Chatburn

J. Vard Chatburn, 78, of Albion, holds the record for the longest continuous service in the Idaho House of Representatives, having served 30 years before retiring in 1988.

During that tenure, he was a strong advocate for livestock interests. As chairman of the Resources and Conservation Committee, he presided over lawmaking about grazing, water, public lands, fish and game, timber, mining, parks and recreation.

Chatburn traces his concern for the livestock business to his roots on a ranch northeast of Albion near his current home. He has told his friends about one impression that left a mark. A scratchy ride on a horse through sagebrush gave him such a dislike for the desert plant that he spent many of his adult years trying to replace brush with grass seedings, Chatburn says. He still serves as an assistant supervisor on the East Cassia Soil Conservation District.

A graduate of Albion State Normal School, Chatburn also had a 10-year career as a teacher. After retirement from the Legislature, he returned to his 3,200-acre ranch near Albion, where his family raises 300 head of beef cows, along with hay and grains to feed them and their calves.

John Patrick Hamilton, J. Pat Hamilton, 63, of Buhl has been president of Farmers National Bank for the past 21 years. He is receiving a special honorary membership for support of the livestock industry.

Farmers National has been an important agricultural lender for livestock operations in the west end of the Magic Valley. It financed many dairies during the expansion of the Woman killed in car crash

HAILEY — One woman was killed and two people hospitalized as the result of a traffic accident at the intersection of State Highway 75 and U.S. 20 south of Bellevue in Blaine County Friday night.

Deputy Sheriff Gene Ramsey said a westbound vehicle went through a stop sign about 7 p.m. and collided with a southbound vehicle. Both drivers and the passenger in the westbound vehicle were taken to Blaine County Hospital, where the passenger died a short time later.

Ramsey said the investigation was still under way late Friday night and names were not released.

5 arrested on drug charges

KETCHUM — Five men were arrested Thursday on drug charges in a cooperative effort by five law enforcement agencies working with a search warrant for a residence north of Ketchum.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Gene Ramsey of the Blaine County Sheriff's Office said Ketchum, Sun Valley and Hailey city officers worked with Blaine County and the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement Narcotics Bureau in the investigation and arrests.

He identified the five who face drug charges as Kevin Lee VanHoozer, 27; Matthew E. Edwards, 22; Jim Stover, 20; Jules M. Guyaz, 24, and Mark A. Swarwell, 29, all of Ketchum.

Charges against the five range from simple possession of a controlled substance to felony possession with intent to deliver and possession of stolen property.

All five appeared in magistrate court Friday and were released on bond pending further court appearances. Bonds were set by the court at $100 for each of the men ranging to $2,000 and $2,500 for the four others.

Ramsey said he did not want to announce the kind and amounts of the drugs found in the Ketchum area home at this time.

Insurance office reports theft

TWIN FALLS — The theft of $300 in cash was reported to Twin Falls police Thursday by officials of State Farm Insurance Co. at 1822 Addison Ave. E.

The police said the building was entered by forcing open a locked door between 5 p.m. Wednesday and 8:20 a.m. Thursday.

Inside the building they also pried open a locked cash box and removed the money that was in bills and coins.

Deputy prosecutor joins staff

TWIN FALLS — A new deputy prosecuting attorney joins the staff of Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter on Monday.

Baxter said Thursday that J. Scott James, formerly a city prosecutor at Garden City, has been selected to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Jeff Hosking.

James is a 1985 graduate of the University of Idaho Law School, Baxter said.

Hosking left the Twin Falls County position last month after more than 2 years as a deputy prosecutor. For the past 18 months, he had held the position of chief-deputy. Rocky Lammer, who has been on Baxter's staff since July of 1985, has been promoted to the chief deputy position.

Hosking left the office to enroll in the Federal Bureau of Investigation academy and to join that federal agency on completion of a 10-week academy training program. He is currently attending FBI classes at Quantico, Va.

Baxter said the appointment of James gives her a full staff, including herself and three deputy prosecutors. Joel Horton, who has been with the office since last August, holds the other deputy post.

Industry in southern Idaho during the 1970s.

Fresh out of the University of Idaho with a degree in business administration, Hamilton purchased stock in Farmers National and became a director of the company.

Hamilton currently also is board chairman of Farmers Securities Co. of Shoshone, which finances farm operations as a private lender.

He also has been active in the banking industry, having served as a director on the Western Independent Bankers Association and treasurer of the Idaho Bankers Association.

Locally, Hamilton has led the Buhl Economic Development Council and been president of the Buhl Chamber of Commerce. He has chaired fundraising committees for parks and the city library.

Lloyd C. Merrill, 63, and his family own Merrill's Poultry Farm and Hatchery at Paul, one of the biggest poultry hatcheries west of the Mississippi River.

The hatchery produced and delivered 4 million pullet chicks last year to customers throughout the West, including Hawaii. It has 80,000 breeding hens and can hatch 1 million eggs at a time.

Merrill has studied extensively and his ideas are in use by poultry farms worldwide, a biography indicates.

Born at Paul, Merrill has worked the family's business since his youth, obtaining a degree in poultry science from the University of Idaho along the way. He is active in community affairs and also serves on the advisory board for Idaho Bank and Trust Co.

Dwight Osborne, 61, is a major partner in Osborne Cattle Co., which operates a ranch at Tuttle, near Hagerman, and a farm at Fairfield.

The company has a 650-head cow-calf yearling operation that grazes land in Gooding, Lincoln and Camas counties. It also operates a small feedlot.

Although a lifetime rancher, Osborne perhaps is best known for his participation in industry, community and civic affairs. He is an influential voice in Spokane Federal Land Bank policy.

For 16 years, Osborne represented Camas County borrowers on the board of directors of the Federal Land Bank Association of Gooding and then moved up to 12th District Federal Land Bank Advisory Board.

He now represents borrowers throughout southern Idaho and eastern Oregon on the succeeding Interstate Federal Land Bank Association board of directors.

Osborne also has been a Camas County Commissioner, as well as member of the Sawtooth National Forest Advisory Board. He currently is a director of the Hagerman Highway District and chairs the Camas Grazing Association.

Robert W. Reed, 59, owns Reed Grain Co. of Gooding, a major wheat and feed grain warehouse in the Magic Valley. Reed founded his 23-year-old business on sales to cattle feeders throughout the West, with feed barley at one time accounting for 85 percent of his volume.

Since then, the business has shifted heavily to wheat for export, and has grown into dry edible beans as well. In the past two years, Reed Grain & Bean Inc., operated by his sons, purchased four warehouses owned by now-defunct Shields of Idaho of Twin Falls. The acquisition boosted the company's grains capacity and put Reed in the bean business supplying an international marketing firm.

Personally, Reed also is a cattle raiser. He operates a 250-cow beef herd in Wendell and Fairfield areas.

A Twin Falls native, Reed holds a degree in agricultural economics from the University of Idaho. Before starting his own business, he worked in both cattle and bean companies.

He is past president and a director of the Idaho Feed and Grain Association, as well as a member of the National Grain Trade Council. He also holds memberships in Idaho and national cattle organizations.

Jack Van Beek, 47, of Jerome, has won prominence in both the dairy industry and farm credit affairs. His family's dairy cows average one-third more milk per cow than the state average with production of 19,215 pounds annually. Van Beek holds a chair on the board of directors of the Magic Valley Milk Producers Association.

He also has been active as a commodity broker, buying and selling feedstuffs to other dairy producers with a partner in Interstate Commodities.

Van Beek represented many area borrowers as a director of both the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association and the Eastern Idaho Production Credit Association. In 1980, he and his family were featured in an SIPCA television commercial. He also served two years on the board for the Federal Land Bank Association of Gooding and on the Jerome County Farmer Home Administration Committee.

Born in Sanborn, Iowa, Van Beek broke into the dairy industry through his father's dairy hoof-trimming business in Minnesota. He came to Idaho in 1973 with $15,000 to start his Jerome County dairy, which now has 1,000 cows, extensive facilities and 393 acres of irrigated farmland.

Jobs

tual employment in Idaho slipped by 500 jobs to 412,400 from January to February.

The department said 27,300 people of a total labor pool of just under 440,000 were unemployed during February. That is 1,000 less than one year ago, but the work force a year ago also was 12,000 people smaller.

February was the fourth straight month in which the Idaho unemployment rate topped year-earlier levels. Previously, it had run 10 months below the prior year.

Department analysts said Friday the moderating unemployment trend will not signal any real economic recovery for the state unless it persists through spring and into summer. They now project average unemployment of 6.5 percent for 1987, the same rate as last year's.

Analyst Jim Day has predicted non-farm job losses of 4,000 in 1987, slightly above the 3,600 lost in 1986.

Regionally, unemployment statistics were mixed, rising in some areas and falling in others. The February rates and the change from January were:

- Magic Valley — 5.7 percent, down 9 percent.
- Pocatello area — 7.2 percent, up 3 percent.
- Idaho Falls area — 4.5 percent, up 2 percent.
- Boise area — 4 percent, down 2 percent.
- Canyon County — 6.7 percent, down 1 percent.
- Lewiston area — 5.5 percent, no change.
- Panhandle — 9.2 percent, up 2 percent.

sell to the Idaho Department of Transportation. Most of the 54 miles is in Blaine County.

The Department of Transportation has offered the land, which it plans to purchase, to the city for $202,996 — a price that committee members have said was extremely high. The price of the land within Bellevue ranges from $25,000 an acre (an area where the abandoned track runs through Second Street) to $50,000 an acre.

Bergin has suggested the council write UP and require them to prove ownership and prove how many acres it owns through the town.

"We can't just roll over dead and say take this land," Bergin says. "I feel (and County Assessor) Bob Thomas feels, and the man I talked to from the Public Utilities (Commission) feels that the Union Pacific should show proof of ownership," she says.

Although Bellevue was not chartered at the time the land was acquired by UP, the town was laid out. "They (UP) came through city land," says Bergin.

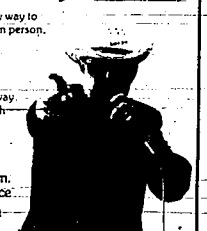

Bellevue resident Will Huxford says that according to the state map of UP right-of-way, some of the property he owns and has been paying taxes for over the last seven years is owned by UP.

Council objects to food stamp plan

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature is trying a new approach to meet a federal requirement to stop collecting state sales tax on food stamps and other welfare benefits.

The Idaho Hunger Action Council says the new approach won't work. Director Wanda Michaelson said Friday the state of Virginia has tried the same tactic, and was turned down by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"I will take an act of Congress to allow Idaho's proposal to be accepted," she said. "And since only Idaho and two other states have not gone along with the federal requirement to quit collecting sales tax on food stamps, it is unlikely that Congress will act," Michaelson said.

Idaho was notified last year that unless it stops collecting the state 5 percent sales tax on food stamps, the state could lose its food stamp program. The deadline is Oct. 1.

Legislation introduced in the House Revenue and Taxation Committee on Thursday would attempt to continue collecting sales taxes, but gives food stamp recipients an extra 5 percent to offset the tax.

Department of Health and Welfare figures estimate food stamp purchases in Idaho at $37.6 million. The special supplemental program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) adds $6.8 million.

If Idaho cannot collect sales tax on the $44.4 million, the state would lose $2.2 million in sales tax revenue. The Rev and Tax bill appropriates $2 million, or as much as is necessary, to cover the cost of paying sales taxes on food stamps.

Legislation was introduced earlier to simply remove sales tax from food stamp purchases.

Mormon temple in Boise reopens

BOISE (AP) — The Mormon temple in Boise has reopened after being closed five months for remodeling and expansion.

Remodeling, which began last spring, will not be finished until mid-April, but the expansion is close enough to complete to allow Mormons to perform most temple work, said Ted Johnson, regional spokesman for the LDS Church in southwest Idaho.

The addition will add nearly 10,000 square feet to the original 15,735-square-foot Boise temple built in 1964. Johnson had no cost estimate on the remodeling.

"We had not anticipated it would be so busy," Johnson said. "It's the most actively used temple for its size in the world."

The Boise Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was the first of a line of economy-sized temples, scaled down from the Salt Lake City-based church's traditionally large structures of up to 45,000 square feet.

There are 26 older-style temples. More than 20 new temples are under construction or have opened recently.

The temple, one of two in Idaho, serves about 100,000 Mormons in an area from Pendleton, Ore., to Malta and from Pullman, Wash., to the Idaho-Nevada border. It is closed to all but the most devout members of the church.

Clemens walks out of Red Sox's camp

By The Associated Press

The fallout over the salary cut-back for players with less than three major league seasons continued Friday when Roger Clemens, the American League MVP and Cy Young Award winner, walked out of the Boston Red Sox training camp.

Baseball

Clemens, 24-4 in leading Boston to the AL pennant last season, left the team's base in Winter Haven, Fla., when he was advised by agents Alan and Randy Hendricks that the Red Sox were automatically renewing his contract at $450,000. Clemens has been seeking a two-year, $2.4 million contract.

Boston right-hander was the second front-line pitcher in two days to leave his team because of a dispute. Seventeen-game winner Kirk McCaskill of the California Angels walked out on Thursday. On Friday, the Angels renewed his contract. Although General Manager Mike Trout wouldn't comment on details of the contract, renewal, it was believed to be for $210,000, $12,000 less than the club's last offer.

Neither Clemens nor McCaskill is eligible for salary arbitration because neither has completed three seasons in the major leagues. Under the terms of the 1985 labor contract, the length of service to qualify for arbitration was increased from two years to three.

One illustration of the changing times is the contract between Clemens and Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, who also was 24-4 in his second season. In incentive money, his third, Gooden's salary was increased to $1.3 million and this year, after going 17-6, he agreed to a $1.5 million contract instead of going to arbitration.

Clemens received $340,000, including $120,000 in incentive money. Boston General Manager Lou Gavegan, who said the Red Sox offer would make Clemens the highest-paid third-year player in the majors, said the Hendricks brothers asked for $1 million for 1987, and $1.4 million for 1988.

"We're leaving Winter Haven and Roger is leaving Winter Haven," Alan Hendricks said. "The Red Sox original offer was $400,000, then $500,000 on Wednesday. It's too low. You're talking about an MVP and Cy Young Award."

"We're still apart, they didn't

ROGER CLEMENS Seeking raise

budge," Gorman said.

One source said the Red Sox renewed Clemens' contract for $450,000 and that the club's offer, including incentives, was about $450,000.

Gorman would say only: "We feel we made an attempt to narrow the gap. Our offer was double his contract of last year with incentives beyond that."

Gorman stressed that the renewal figure "had no bearing at all," saying, "Hopefully, when all emotion dies 'down' the 'I'll go back to negotiating a new contract. We made it very clear we still want to talk and get something settled."

Meanwhile, free-agent outfielder Andre Dawson and the Chicago Cubs came to terms Friday on a one-year agreement after the former Montreal slugger and his agent had presented the Cubs a unique offer.

Dawson's agent, Dick Moss, gave Cub president and general manager Dallas Green a blank check and told him to fill it in the terms.

Although the Cubs would not disclose terms, Moss, reached in Florida, said Dawson, who turned down a $1 million offer from Montreal, signed a one-year contract for $650,000 of which $500,000 is guaranteed.

Dawson was expected to join the Cubs on Sunday.

Dawson batted .274 last season with Montreal with 20 home runs and 78 runs batted in. He has a .279 lifetime average with 225 home runs in a 10-year career.

Other Contracts

The New York Mets announced the contract signings of pitcher Sid Fernandez, shortstop Rafael Santana and centerfielder Len Dykstra. Fernandez, who had a 16-6 record with a 3.52 earned run average and 20 strikeouts in 1986, signed for $308,000. The left-hander was paid $300,000 last season. Santana, who was four days shy of qualifying for salary arbitration, was given a $115,000 raise to $250,000 and batted .218 with one home run and 28 runs batted in. Dykstra, who received $292,500 last season when he hit .255 with eight homers, 45 RBI and 31 stolen bases, received $202,500.

The Kansas City Royals signed pitcher Danny Jackson and outfielder Danny Tartabull, the last two of the 50 players to sign. The Royals did not release the terms of the Jackson and Tartabull deals. But sources said that Jackson had to sign a one-year contract for $225,000 and the Royals would have automatically renewed him for $200,000.

The Minnesota Twins signed centerfielder Kirby Puckett, who hit .328 with 31 homers. They finished the rest of their contract business by coming to terms with infielder Alvaro Espinoza and announcing they had verbal agreements with agents of infielders Greg Gagne and Steve Lombardozzi and pitcher Mark Portugal.

General Manager Bobby Cox of the Atlanta Braves said the team will continue talking through the weekend with its six unsigned players — shortstop Andres Thomas and pitchers Zane Smith, Paul Assenmacher, Chuck Cary, Ed O'Leary and Randy O'Neal. But he said that if they aren't signed by Friday, their contracts will be automatically renewed.

Medical Report
Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, unable to throw batting practice for several days in the Boston Red Sox' training camp, was given a cortisone shot Friday for a sore right shoulder. But Dr. Arthur Papavasiliou, team physician, said he doesn't believe the ailment is serious and said Boyd can resume throwing in three or four days. Red Sox rightfielder Dwight Evans, who underwent surgery on both knees after the World Series, will start for the Red Sox in their exhibition opener against Detroit Saturday.

Philadelphia team physician Phillip Marone said pitcher Kevin Gross' herniated disc problem has improved. He said Gross can pitch, but not run. "If he breaks down, so what," Marone said. "It just means we'll have to back off. He'll have more down time. I don't foresee any long term problem."

Bold Predictions
Jack Clark, who missed two-thirds of last season with a thumb injury, predicted a National League East title for St. Louis, which finished 28½ games behind New York last year. "I can guarantee that this team will be better than in 1986," Clark said. "I think we'll win because we have the personnel, the manager and the support of the city."

SMU trustees seeking names from governor

College football

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist's Board of Governors demanded Friday that Gov. Bill Clements get specific about his claim that some members knew of a decision to continue improper cash payments to athletes.

Clements has repeatedly refused to do that in public and rebuffed pleas from four board members to name names in a private meeting at the governor's mansion in Austin.

"The governor, I think, feels he is helping the university — clearing everything up — taking whatever burden on him alone that he thinks he needs to take," board member Robert Dedman said after a day-long board meeting.

Clements said earlier this week that he and some of the board members knew of the continued payments and that they were being phased out.

Several board members vehemently denied knowing anything about the payments, and have asked John Russell, the United Methodist Church bishop of the North Texas area, to appoint a committee to verify the accuracy of their statements.

On Friday, the board passed a six-point resolution that included a request that Clements make a full disclosure of any board members who joined with him in continuing improper payments.

"We're asking him to be specific on that if he will," Dedman said.

Later Friday, Clements was interviewed by reporters while talking from the Capitol City steps. "I want to compliment all of you on really a great job you're doing on this story. I really do," the governor said. "I think that, and I'm being serious about this — it's a serious matter. I'm interested in the truth."

But as far as specifics were concerned, Clements said: "I don't know how many times I have to repeat what I said. I want the facts to come out. And everybody has to be comfortable with their own position. So, we'll see what develops as time goes forward."

The board asked each of its current members to cooperate fully with the bishop's committee, including giving a sworn deposition if requested. It also authorized the university's committee to hire outside counsel if necessary.

Dedman said he will meet with Clements over the weekend and plans to ask the governor then to clarify his statements.

But he conceded that he and three other board members — Gilman Edwin — Cox, O. Paul Carter and William L. Hutchison, who replaced Clements as chairman — weren't able to persuade the governor to "point any fingers" after their Thursday night meeting in Austin.

Friday's board meeting came on the heels of an NCAA investigator's statement to the Dallas Times Herald that he was "intentionally misled" in his probe of SMU and that disclosures were squelched in what amounted to an official cover-up.

SMU's attorney, enforcement director for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, told the newspaper in a copyright story he believes that SMU officials were instructed to withhold information about board-level approval of the payments.

Kleiver, the faculty member responsible for overseeing the university's internal investigation, said he believes "there was information that I could have been given that I wasn't given."

The Times Herald also reported that SMU officials joined Clements in the decision to continue payments to football players after the NCAA placed the school on probation in 1985.

The newspaper said former Dallas mayor Robert Folsom, a board member, and Cox were among other SMU officials who joined Clements in the decision to continue the payments.

In another copyright story, the newspaper quoted sources as saying the other two who knew of the payments were Dallas banker Robert Stewart II, who has acknowledged he knew of the decision but did not participate in it, and former SMU president L. Donald Shields.

Friday, Folsom and Cox denied any knowledge of the payments.

"I would not be involved, have not been involved in ever paying any athlete anything. I was totally not knowledgeable of the continuation of payments," Folsom said after emerging from the board meeting.

Revelations of $61,000 in continuing payments between September 1985 and December 1986 prompted the NCAA to cancel SMU's 1987 football season and limit the 1988 season to seven games, none at home.

Coghlan falls in prelim; Foster sets new record

Indoor track

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan, the fastest indoor 1,500-meter runner in history, fell during his heat Friday and failed to make the final in the inaugural World Indoor Track and Field Championships at the Hoosier Dome.

The first three finishers in each of the two 1,500-meter heats, plus the next three fastest runners, advanced to Saturday's final.

Coghlan finished fifth in his heat and 10th overall, one place out of qualifying for the event in which he was the overwhelming favorite for the gold medal. He was reinstated by meet referee John Chaplin, but a three-member Jury of Appeals overturned the reinstatement.

"If I'm quite qualified, I shouldn't go through but if they want the winner, I should win," Coghlan said. "I'm a racehater. In this indoor, I'm a racehater. Set a world indoor best for 2,000 meters and is the acknowledged master of indoor racing. It was his first fall ever indoors."

The 34-year-old Coghlan was in fourth place, just ahead of West Germany's Dieter Baumann, when his left leg clipped Baumann's right leg. Coghlan tumbled to the track while Baumann continued running despite a leg gash and bleeding on his leg.

Friday night's action was highlighted by a world indoor record in the men's 60-meter high hurdles by Greg Foster of the United States, victories by U.S. and Soviet field event athletes, and strolling women's 200-meter clockers by East German's Helke Drechsler and Jamaica's Melvina O'Leary-Page.

Foster, who had shared the listed hurdles mark of 7.7 with Mark McKoy of Canada, was timed in 7.46 in winning his first-round heat, leading to Saturday's semifinals.

Briefly in Sports

Legion meeting Sunday

TWIN FALLS — A meeting of prospective players — for both A and B divisions of the American Legion baseball program — and their parents are asked to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Sunday at the community room of the KMYT-TV studios.

The Legion-baseball team committee will hold a business meeting, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The KMYT studios are located at 1110 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

O'Leary teams prevail

TWIN FALLS — O'Leary Junior High boys' teams took championships in eighth- and ninth-grade tournaments Thursday. O'Leary's frosh completed what is believed to be the school's first undefeated season by winning East Idaho 76-68 in the finals. O'Leary ends the season at 15-0.

The eighth grade season at 14-0 for its crown.

Walker, Walton share lead

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Robin Walton and Colleen Walker, each seeking for their first PGA Tour check, matched 2-under-par 75 Friday to share the second-round lead in the $250,000 GNA-Grande Federal Classic golf tournament.

The co-leaders were at 142, two shots ahead of defending champion Chris Johnson, first-round leader Betsy King and Cindy Rarick.

Walton and Walker were the only players under par as the tournament reached the halfway point at Oakmont Country Club, rated the toughest course on the women's tour.

Although there was little rain Friday and the course was in good condition, scores generally were higher than the first day, when it rained constantly.

Connors-Lendl postponed

KEY BISCAVAY, Fla. (AP) — In a repeat of their wild semifinal last year, Ivan Lendl and Jimmy Connors played more than three hours of raucous tennis Friday before rain halted the match at the start of a third-set tiebreaker in the International Players Championships.

Connors won the first set 6-3 and Lendl took the second 7-6 with a 9-7 victory in the tiebreaker. The rain came just in time to cool tempers, which were getting out of control.

Langer goes up by two

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Bernhard Langer mastered extremely difficult conditions with a 5-under-par 67 and moved into a two-stroke lead Friday in the $600,000 Honda Classic.

The former Masters champion from West Germany completed two trips over the wind-raked Tournament Players Club at Eagle Trace in 137.

22nd at Doran.

CSI nine rained out

ONTARIO, Ore. — The College of Southern Idaho's season-opening baseball game against Treasure Valley Community College was rained out here Friday.

The two teams are scheduled to play a doubleheader today at noon at TVCC's field.

Pankratz seeks support

BOISE (AP) — Former Borah High School head football coach De Pankratz is awaiting a decision from the Boise Education Association on whether the group will support his bid to win back his coaching job.

Pankratz presented his case to the BEA's five-member Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee on Wednesday, said his wife, Pam Pankratz, Deputy Superintendent Dehryl "Tony" Dehryl presented the Boise School District's side.

Pankratz and Dennis could not be reached for comment.

The committee has four working days to decide whether there is reasonable cause for Pankratz' grievance, according to the contract between the BEA and the Boise School District.

Dear Mr. Wolff: At duplicate, partner deals and passes, and I open one diamond in third seat with 13 HCP. If partner responds one heart, should I pass or bid one spade? I had J-9-8-2 of spades and Q-9-8 of hearts.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: Had you made a sub-par "third-seat opening," there would be some reason for passing. With a full opening bid, I see no reason not to rebid normally. If you don't, you might well miss a 4-4 spade fit.

Dear Mr. Wolff: On this bidding, what is my best call with this hand?

Me Partner
1 ♠ 2 NT

ANSWER: It's usually best to play in an eight- or nine-card major suit fit; however, this hand might prove an exception. If both hands have flat distribution, there will be no ruffing values and I opt for a boost to three no-trump.

Dear Mr. Wolff: What are the main arguments for partner suit limit raises?

ANSWER: A major-suit limit raise

Dear Mr. Wolff: What is the minimum stopper in an unbid suit if I jump partner's one-spade opening to two no-trump?

Jobless rate remains steady

By MATT YANCEY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate remained frozen at 6.7 percent last month as the economy generated 370,000 new jobs, more than three out of four going to married women, while the number of working husbands dropped by nearly 100,000, the government said Friday.

February was the third consecutive month that the civilian jobless rate stood at that level, the lowest it has been since March 1980. Virtually all of the new jobs were created in businesses providing services, and 275,000 of them were part-time positions that were filled only because full-time jobs could not be found elsewhere.

The Labor Department said employment also dropped by 79,000 among unmarried, divorced or widowed women.

While private economists generally agreed with a White House assertion that the ability of the nation to keep churning out a quarter-million new jobs month after month indicates a healthy economy, some pointed out that changes in the labor market are causing pain for many people.

The number of married women at work has risen by 1.1 million over the last year to 27.8 million. Since December, it has risen by 400,000. The number of working husbands dropped from 40,102,000 in January to 39,313,000 in February.

"Part of the shift from a goods to a service economy is that men are being let go from jobs paying $20 an hour; so both he and his wife — and maybe his kids — are having to take full- or part-time jobs at $5, $7 or $8 an hour just to keep their income at two-thirds what it used to be," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Bros.

While that represents a hardship for those families, Sinai and other analysts said the trend bodes well for the economy as a whole.

"The rate of well-trained women to men is increasing sharply," said David Jones, an economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer. "That's helping keep costs down and should increase productivity, which has to be good news for the longer term."

At the White House, spokesman Martin Fitzwater said the February increase in jobs exceeded the expectations of most economists.

"Unemployment remains about the same, the economy is still creating jobs at a good news," he said.

The number of people working part time only because they could not find full-time jobs rose from 5,505,000 in January to 5,780,000 last month, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Still, nearly 1.2 million Americans have found work since October. The proportion of the civilian population at work is a record high of 61.2 percent.

The greatest employment gains last month, seasonally adjusted, were in retail trade, with 130,000 new jobs. Nearly half that growth was in department and general merchandise stores, traditionally the most fertile source of jobs for women entering the labor force.

Factory employment grew by 50,000 after a gain of only 3,000 in January.

"But most of the increase represented the return to work of people who had been involved in labor-management disputes," Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress.

The number of Americans listed as officially unemployed fell by 56,000 to 7,967,000 in February, only the second month in the last 5 1/2 years that

Profit-taking leaves market mixed

Dow climbs to another record close

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrial average nudged ahead to another record high Friday, but the stock market settled for a mixed showing overall.

Analysts said rising interest rates in the credit markets helped induce some stepped-up profit-taking.

Dow Jones' average of 30 blue chips rose 3.80 to 2,280.23, hitting a new closing high for the third straight session. The average finished the week with a net gain of 54.24 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 181.59 million shares, down from 205.43 million Thursday.

Interest rates headed higher in the government securities market Friday, sending prices of long-term Treasury bonds down as much as $10 for each $1,000 in face value.

The upward pressure on rates was attributed to stronger-than-expected employment figures reported by the Labor Department.

The department said nonfarm payroll employment increased by 37,000 in February, leaving the civilian unemployment rate unchanged at 6.7 percent.

Some analysts look the news as a preliminary signal that the pace of business activity improved in February after a sluggish January. That, in turn, raised questions about whether the Federal Reserve would be willing to take any further steps to ease credit conditions in the months ahead.

Raytheon was actively traded, up 3/4 at 18 1/4. The company's biggest stockholder, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, said it is considering a bid to take the firm private.

Profit-taking was evident in such blue-chip and technology issues as Procter & Gamble, down 3/4 at 88 1/4; Digital Equipment, down 1 1/4 at 169 1/4; and General Electric, down 1/2 at 107 1/4.

Bakery franchise holder sues over poor dough

SEATTLE (AP) — A company that holds exclusive franchise rights for 15 French-style bakeries is suing PepsiCo and its bakery subsidiary over what it says was lumpy dough.

A spokesman for PepsiCo called the suit "laughable."

The dough provided by the PepsiCo subsidiary caused the 15 La Petite Boulangerie bakeries in the Seattle-Tacoma area to bake "drastically underweight, frequently deformed and non-salable" croissants, according to the suit.

Calvo Inc. of San Mateo, Calif., filed suit against PepsiCo Inc. and its subsidiary, La Petite Boulangerie Inc. of Mill Valley, Calif., in San Mateo County Superior Court on Monday.

"We don't take the suit seriously," Keith Anderson, spokesman for PepsiCo in Purchase, N.Y., said Thursday.

Calvo, in its legal complaint, described a business statement that it called a breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty and a violation of Washington state franchise law.

Calvo said it bought the exclusive right to franchise the bakeries in the Seattle-Tacoma area for $350,000. Between February 1985 and April 1986, it opened 15 bakeries. Part of the deal, said Calvo, was that it could not buy its dough from anybody but La Petite Boulangerie for reasons of quality control.

"But the Mill Valley people, complain Calvo, 'repeatedly delivered product which was unmarketable and in many instances was contaminated ... (by) metal filings, stones and ink.'

The supplier, Calvo claims, had not mixed the dough properly, "leaving lots of shortening in the supposedly ready-to-bake dough even after baking."

La Petite Boulangerie in Mill Valley declined comment.

"They only returned $600 worth of dough from the entire 15 stores last year," said Anderson. "This is not a problem they brought up with us."

As for the dough — being underweight, he said, "They weighed it after baking it. Of course it weighed less."

UP puts its Idaho branches on block

BOISE (AP) — Union Pacific Railroad is looking for a buyer for all eight of its branch lines serving southwestern Idaho.

The railroad sent letters in February to several large Idaho companies that use the lines, as well as to regional railroads, to see if any are interested in purchasing the lines. The company would not reveal to whom the letters were sent.

"We're trying to sell the lines as a package," said Joe Thibodeau, Union Pacific spokesman in Salt Lake City. "We're trying to stick to (business) on the main trunk line."

Morrison-Knudsen Co. and J.R. Simpson Co. have received letters from Union Pacific and are examining the proposal, spokesmen said.

Thibodeau said he did not know how many miles of track were involved. The eight branch lines up for sale are:

- Homedale branch, from Nysa, Ore., to Maring.
- Stoddard branch, from Nampa to Melba.
- Wilder branch, from Caldwell to Wilder.
- Boise cut-off, from Orchard to Boise to Nampa.
- Oregon eastern branch, from Ontario, Ore., to Burns, Ore.
- Idaho northern branch, from Nampa to Emmett to Cascade.
- New Meadows branch, from Weiser to Council to Rubicon.
- Payette branch, from Emmett to Payette.

Thibodeau said the branch lines could be turned into a regional railroad, "Regional Railroads," in other parts of the country have had great success in serving shippers (that need to get to the mainline).

"They operate more efficiently because they don't have to adhere to the national labor agreements (with unions) that Union Pacific does," he said.

Thibodeau emphasized that the railroad has no intention of abandoning the lines before a sale takes place.

Idaho Transportation Department Director Dean Tidwell, in a Feb. 10 letter to Thibodeau, said he would "closely monitor the situation in cooperation with the railroad, shippers and communities involved."

Boise Cascade is a major user of the line between Horseshoe Bend and Nampa, but the company is not interested in purchasing the track, spokesman Andrew Drysdale said.

Retailers' February sales rise

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's largest general retailers had unexpectedly strong February sales to lift them from their winter doldrums, but analysts differed Thursday on whether the positive results portend a strong first half for the storeowners.

"On balance, they all looked pretty good," said Joanne Legomsky, a retail industry analyst with Standard & Poor's Corp. "It says the consumer is still in there participating."

Ms. Legomsky said consumers, who have less deducted from their paychecks under the new tax law, may have been more free-spending.

Jeffrey Feiner, an analyst at Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc., called the results "better than expected," and noted other factors contributing to the February performance.

As for the weather, it was favorable and warm. Retailers benefited from some good selling of spring merchandise, and after paying back bills in January after Christmas, consumers returned to the store," he said.

K Mart Corp. said its overall sales jumped 13.1 percent last month over sales in February 1986. Sales from stores open at least one year rose 8.2 percent.

The rapidly expanding Wal-Mart Stores Inc. reported its overall sales jumped 44 percent while sales at

Mine workers can get training

SEATTLE — The U.S. Department of Labor announced that 30 employees of the Clayton Silver Mines, Inc., of Clayton, Idaho, have been certified as eligible to apply for training and other employment assistance under the provisions of the Trade Act of 1974.

Under the Trade Act of 1974, workers who are adversely affected by employment due to increases of imports may petition the Labor Department for certification to apply for cash benefits, training, job search assistance, relocation allowances and other employment-related assistance.

The workers at Clayton Silver Mines produced silver ore. Sales, production and employment related to the production of silver ore declined in 1986, as compared to 1985. The mine was closed by the end of 1986.

The Office of Trade Adjustments Assistance conducted fact-finding investigations which found that increases of imports or articles like or directly competitive with silver ore produced at the Clayton Silver Mines, Inc., contributed significantly to the decline

Incentives spur sales of domestic cars

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic auto sales picked up slightly in late February, spurred by buyer incentives, and ended up 6.7 percent over the same period a year ago, automakers reported Wednesday.

Sales by industry-leader General Motors Corp. continued to sag, however, dropping 8 percent in the seven selling days from Feb. 21-28 compared with last year. Ford Motor Co. sale jumped 29.3 percent and Chrysler Corp. sales went up 11.3 percent over the 1986 period.

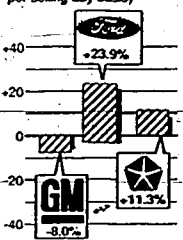

"We've had a dull, plodding market for a while even though it's a market that has been favorably influenced by incentives," said Maryann Keller, analyst with Furman, Selz, Mager, Dietz & Birney in New York.

The eight domestic makers sold 198,818 U.S.-made cars during the period, up from 186,353 a year ago. Domestic makers sold 103,824 light trucks, up 26.8 percent from 81,889 a year ago.

For the month, sales of U.S.-made cars fell 9.1 percent from February 1986. U.S. makers sold 556,953 cars during February, compared with 612,632 a year ago, and 284,835 light trucks, up 7.5 percent from 265,051 a year ago.

Car sales by domestic makers jumped at a 7 million seasonally adjusted annual rate for Feb. 21-28 and a 7.4 million rate for the month. Import car sales, which are reported every 30 days, were up 0.5 percent from February 1986. Foreign makers sold 219,915 cars in this country in February, compared with 218,854 in February 1986.

Import light truck sales fell 0.8 percent in February, to 66,829 from 67,396 a year ago.

Foreign makers improved their February share of the U.S. car market to 23.3 percent from 25.3 percent in February 1986, a change which reflected their increasing use of incentives.

GM continued losing market share in February. In late February, GM's share fell to 48.1 percent of the domestic car market from 53.8 percent a year ago. For the month, GM's share of the total car market fell to 49.9 percent from 57.4 percent in February 1986.

"Ford and Chrysler have continued not only to make substantial improvements in quality but Ford and Chrysler's incentive programs are also much better," said Thomas O'Grady, analyst with Integrated Automotive Resources Inc. in Wayne, Pa.

Until Wednesday, many of GM's incentives were discounts tied to purchase of options. Wednesday, GM added a choice of loan-financing ranging from 3.9 percent for 24 months to 9.9 on 60 months on all Pontiac cars and most Buick and Oldsmobile models.

"You can't turn around and sell an option before you sell the car," O'Grady said, adding that poor market added to problems GM has had selling products that haven't attracted buyers.

Changes in the tax law prompted a buying binge in late December and an ensuing hangover in January, when sales slumped. Although sales remained slow, analysts predicted a recovery begun in February would continue gradually in March and April.

stores open at least a year rose 14 percent.

May Department Stores Co. said it saw a 15 percent jump in overall sales, including a 9.4 percent gain at stores open at least a year.

Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, said its sales rose 4.9 percent.

At J.C. Penney Co. Inc., sales were up 5.3 percent, and by 7.1 percent at F.W. Woolworth.

The analysts cautioned against reading the figures too optimistically in terms of how well retailers will fare this year.

Ms. Legomsky noted that February's contribution to retailers' annual earnings is usually small, while Feiner said many storeowners reported their sales were stronger in the early part of February before trilling off later in the month.

Many analysts predict a weak first half of 1987 for retailers.

A more optimistic view was taken by Jeffrey Edelman, an analyst with Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

"While February is not a big month, I think it's interesting to point out some continuity and maintenance of consumer spending," he said.

It bodes well for the first quarter, Edelman said.

He said he expected retailers would see a fairly consistent spending pattern throughout the year.

Thursday's figures cover general merchandise and specialty apparel companies and not retailers in general, such as supermarkets or car dealers.

ConAgra, Monfort agree on merger

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — ConAgra after approval from Monfort Inc., a diversified foods company, stockholders and the ConAgra board, and Monfort of Colorado Inc., an agribusiness, said they have signed a letter of intent to merge.

The companies said in a joint statement Thursday that they plan independent operating company to complete the merger in June under ConAgra.
