House passes day-care license law

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — After five years of trying, the Idaho Legislature finally passed a law requiring statewide licensing of day-care centers, ending the state's distinction as the only one without such rules.

After a long, emotional debate Tuesday afternoon, the House voted 54-30 for a law setting minimum standards on day-care centers. It now goes to Gov. Cecil Andrus, who has indicated he will sign it despite the fact he would like stricter regulations.

In a two-hour debate, quoting everyone from Alexander Hamilton to Shakespeare, sponsors urged the House to end the long battle and pass the bill.

Roll call — B3

"It is day-care legislation. It is your last opportunity to vote for it this session," said sponsor Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise. "It will do some good. I urge you to vote for it."

The 64 House Republicans split 34-30 on the bill. All 20 House Democrats voted for it. The bill calls for no regulation of day-care centers with six or fewer children. For centers with 7 to 12 children, it requires background checks for operators and their employees.

For larger centers, it requires health and fire safety inspections by local officials, under regulations set down by the seven public health districts in the state. In five years of previous battles, a bloc of legislators wanted tougher regulations, to be carried out by the Department of Health and Welfare. Another bloc urged the Legislature not to pass anything. A third element wanted decisions left at the local level.

After a more stringent day-care licensing regulation went down to defeat in the House earlier this session, the statewide Child Care Coalition switched its efforts to getting something through.

"We view Senate Bill 1127 as a very basic structure for child-care licensing in Idaho," said Gordon Storrs, cochairman of the coalition. Storrs said coalition members would watch application of the proposal closely, to see if it works.

But the coalition released a list of 10 deficiencies it sees in the bill. The major objection is the fact that the public health districts in the state will set regulations, which will not allow a uniform state law, the coalition said.

Much of the debate was on emotional grounds. Rep. Preston Brimhall, R-Idaho Falls, used the debate as a forum to attack government in general. He contended that once the law was passed, the state would assume more control over day-care centers, and eventually the federal government would run them.

"We are doing the wrong thing here," said Rep. Joan Wood, R-Rigby. "I have a moral conviction that we are stepping off into an abyss."

"Regulation will grow and grow," said Rep. Sam Clark, R-Pocatello. "My head says yes and my heart says no. I'm listening to my heart."

Immediately upon passage of the bill, coalition supporters unfurled a big banner in the house gallery, celebrating passage of a bill that ends Idaho's distinction. Just as quick, an opponent objected, and House leaders ordered the banner removed.

Tale of a tail

Brad Owens, a grade school boy, says he was the first to see the dog's tail after the case. "Meted" took all his own way Owens was able to identify the dog during a Monday afternoon walk near his home on 4th Street North in Twin Falls.

East produces latest Idaho wilderness bill

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Pennsylvania Rep. Pete Kostmayer introduced a new Idaho wilderness bill Tuesday, calling for the addition of 3.9 million acres to the state's wilderness areas.

But Kostmayer, a Democrat, said the acreage figure is negotiable, and may wind up much lower. Idaho's political leaders also said they thought the acreage proposal was up for negotiation.

The legislation was another in a series of proposals which started in 1983, attempting to resolve Idaho's long-running wilderness controversy.

Environmental groups want most of the roadless areas preserved as permanent wilderness. Business groups want the ability to develop resources such as timber and minerals.

The 1987 bill includes 42 areas on Idaho's 12 national forests, about 500,000 acres more than Kostmayer's previous wilderness legislation. It was introduced Tuesday through the House Interior subcommittee on public lands.

When hearings might be held on it is up to the chairman, Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., said Kostmayer, in a telephone interview.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, immediately attacked the proposal, saying it would serve no useful purpose and probably would go nowhere.

"Legislation like this only polarizes the debate," said McClure. "At a time when there is the potential to enter into meaningful discussions on a wilderness bill for the state, this is exactly what we don't need."

Idaho's political leaders have been working on wilderness legislation since 1983 to decide how much, if any, of the more than 8 million acres of roadless land in the state should be set aside as permanent wilderness.

A McClure bill in 1984 called for the addition of about 526,000 acres, and a McClure side said Tuesday that was intended as a starting point for negotiations. However, other Republican leaders at times have called for 500,000 more wilderness, or no more than the 526,000 acres originally proposed.

Democrats generally have called for more wilderness. Gov. John Evans in 1984 endorsed adding 1.8 million acres. Gov. Cecil Andrus said in an appearance before

Dallas waives extradition hearing; return this week likely

Los Angeles Times

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Escaped killer Claude Dallas waived his right to an extradition proceeding in Municipal Court here Tuesday and could be returned to the custody of law enforcement officials in Idaho before the end of the week, authorities said. "I expect you'll be gone shortly back to Idaho," Municipal Court Commissioner Norman Turner told Dallas, who appeared fatigued as he sat in the heavily-guarded courtroom in leg and arm shackles. Flanked by his court-appointed attorney, San Bernardino County Deputy Public Defender Robert Hurley, Dallas was all but expressionless throughout the 15-minute hearing, which was held in a borrowed Riverside Superior Court courtroom for security reasons. Only once did he acknowledge the presence of news reporters and photographers with a wide grin.

Dallas, 38, was found guilty of manslaughter in the 1981 slayings of two Idaho game wardens and sentenced to a 30-year term in the Idaho State Penitentiary. On March 30, 1986, he escaped and became the subject of a widespread search until Sunday afternoon when he was captured by FBI agents at a Riverside convenience store.

Dallas, who vowed never to be taken alive and had been on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted list for months, is being held without bail in Riverside County Jail.

"We'll be moving within the next 24 hours to have agents from the sheriff's office here pick him up and bring him back," said Greg Bower, Ada County prosecutor in Boise, in a telephone interview.

"We are going to fly him back, most likely in a chartered aircraft," added Ada County Undersheriff Dee Pfeiffer. "I am not prepared to say exactly when that will be for security reasons."

Pfeiffer said Dallas will be kept in the Ada County Jail until his arraignment on the escape charge, which could be held as early as Monday. If tried and convicted on the charge, Dallas faces an additional five years in prison, Pfeiffer said.

After the arraignment, Dallas will be returned to the Idaho State Penitentiary where he will be held in "administrative segregation" from the rest of the prison population, Pfeiffer said by telephone.

As expected, an additional federal charge of unlawful flight was dropped by federal authorities.

"An unlawful flight federal warrant is usually dismissed in this sort of situation," said Fred Reagan, FBI spokesman. "We helped locate this guy, arrested him and booked him. Now, we will be fading (from the case) very shortly."

Reagan added that he was "not dissatisfied" with a U.S. attorney's office decision not to prosecute two men who were arrested Sunday on suspicion of harboring Dallas before his capture. "The harboring

U.S. primed to offer verification proposals

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States, after consulting with five allied nations, is ready to make specific proposals to the Soviet Union for verifying a proposed treaty on eliminating medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe, the State Department said Tuesday. The consultations Monday produced "excellent progress," department spokesman Charles Redman said, adding that the verification proposals will be made soon to the Soviets at Geneva.

many and Italy — all of which are providing sites for U.S. missiles that would be dismantled under the proposed treaty.

Redman refused to provide details of the talks, but American officials have said they favor reciprocal on-site inspection to ensure compliance.

At the same time Tuesday, President Reagan sent Congress a report that renewed charges of Soviet violations of past accords, saying they "undermine the political confidence necessary for concluding new treaties."

Although Reagan noted he has decided not to be bound by the provisions of the unratified SALT II

Vatican forbids artificial procreation

The Associated Press

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican warned against "unforeseeable and damaging" consequences of artificial procreation Tuesday, condemning surrogate motherhood, test-tube births, cloning and experiments on living embryos.

In setting out the Roman Catholic Church's moral position on rapidly developing techniques of fertilization, the Vatican also called for laws against embryo banks, attempts to fashion animal-human hybrids and the planting of human embryos in artificial and animal uteruses.

"It left the door open to research on helping sterile couples conceive, and withheld judgment on fertilization techniques in use or development that neither substitute for marital intercourse nor result in deaths of "spare" embryos.

"We encourage scientific research... but science is not absolute, to which everything must be subordinated and eventually sacrificed, including the dignity of man," Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, head of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, told a news conference.

The church position is contained in a 60-page document written by the Congregation, the guardian and promoter of Roman Catholic doctrine, and approved by Pope John Paul II.

Some Vatican officials described it as the most important pronouncement on human procreation since the 1968 "Humane Vitae" encyclical of Pope Paul VI, which banned artificial birth control.

Any Catholic who "willingly and knowingly" violates the directives will be committing a sin, Vatican officials said. The document asks all church-run hospitals and Catholic doctors and scientists to follow the directives.

Central to Vatican reasoning are two time-honored church principles: that every human life must respect from the moment of conception, and that the only acceptable way to give birth to a child is through sexual intercourse between married spouses.

According to the document, the church opposes all forms of "test-tube" births because it is "immoral to produce human embryos destined to be exploited as disposable biological material."

"By virtue of its substantial union with a spiritual soul, the human body cannot be considered as a mere complex of tissues, organs and functions, nor can it be evaluated in the same way as the body of animals," the church declares in the document.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawrence E. Walsh, the independent counsel investigating the Iran-Contra affair, asked Congress on Tuesday to wait at least 90 days before granting limited immunity to key witnesses, and vowed to challenge in court any attempt to act sooner.

The danger in recent days they hoped to move quickly to grant limited immunity from prosecution to Foindecker and North in order to compel their testimony.

Following a meeting late Tuesday between leaders of the House and Senate investigating committees, Sen. Daniel Inoué, D-Hawaii, said it was unlikely either key figure would testify under immunity before the end of May. He said he was confident investigators on Capitol Hill could work out a compromise with Walsh on the timing of an immunity grant.

But Inoué, chairman of the Senate panel, made it clear that he would eventually seek immunity. "If we are to carry out the mandate of the Senate... then I would have to say that testimony from these witnesses would be an absolute necessity," he told reporters.

Contra aid delay sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, including one declaring Nicaragua's Contra rebels "mired in corruption," urged colleagues Tuesday to delay $40 million in military aid and insist the Reagan administration pursue opportunities for peace in Central America.

House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas told reporters that today's House vote on the aid installment will represent the start of a new, long-term struggle over the administration's policy.

He said that while Democrats may lose the opening skirmish, the vote will serve as an important building stone in the battle to cut off aid to the Contras permanently.

House Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois acknowledged that the Contra-aid cause had been hurt by revelations of the Iran-Contra affair, including allegations that profits from arms sales were diverted to the rebels.

"That hasn't helped us... I have to be realistic when I see votes slipping away," Michel said.

However, Wright conceded that he cannot count on the votes to enforce a moratorium on spending the money in view of President Reagan's certain veto. He said the $40 million, the last installment in a $100 million aid package approved last year, "probably will go forward."

Both the House and Senate panels planned meetings for today to vote limited immunity for more witnesses. Inoué said the Senate would move on one witness, and a House source said the panel probably would vote on immunity for a number of persons. The officials declined to name the witnesses.

Walsh, speaking with reporters after a nearly two-hour session with the House panel, said if Congress moves before 90 days, "we would then have to do whatever we could to get ourselves as much time as possible to perfect our case" against anyone who might be indicted.

Walsh said he will deliver a similar message when he meets with the Senate investigating committee today.

Also today, Contra leader Adolfo Calero was expected to testify again before the grand jury Walsh has convened. Calero has turned over bank records of the largest rebel army, the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, which he heads. The grand jury is interested in where the Contras got their money and how it was spent.

Walsh said his request for a delay covered any grant of immunity to retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, who according to investigators played key roles in both the Iran arms sales and a resupply operation for the Contras.

The independent counsel said that he was not sure all loose ends in the investigation could be tied up in 90 days but that the time period represented "a fair balance" between his need to develop evidence and the need of Congress and the public to resolve unanswered questions.

Walsh said he also had discussed with congressional investigators the possibility of granting immunity to other, lower-level witnesses, but that no names had been cleared so far beyond an initial list of three, including North's secretary, Fawn Hall.

In a related matter, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater read a statement praising Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger as "a distinguished member of the Cabinet who has served the president long and well. The president has the highest confidence and trust in Secretary Weinberger."

Speedy AIDS drug handling proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government proposed regulations Tuesday to formalize the process used by the Food and Drug Administration to give last-track handling to an AIDS drug and to let companies charge for certain experimental medicines.

The detailed guidelines for handling promising drugs for AIDS and other life-threatening diseases, in essence, would create a new category of FDA approval under which pharmaceutical companies could be paid for experimental drugs before they receive final approval for general use.

The FDA has allowed some experimental drugs to be used for treatment for more than a decade, but companies could not charge for them until they received final approval.

An FDA advisory panel of outside experts recommended approval of the anti-AIDS drug AZT in January only after complaining repeatedly about the absence of some mechanism — short of final approval — under which promising drugs could be made widely available to patients facing certain death.

AZT is expected to receive final FDA approval by the end of March. At a hastily called late-afternoon news conference, FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young acknowledged that similar proposals for new regulations has been under consideration within the administration since 1983.

He further acknowledged that — with the exception of companies being paid for experimental drugs — the fundamental procedures being outlined were used in consideration of AZT.

Why, then, the sudden administration decision to formalize the proposal? he was asked.

"It takes a long time, coming from academia to government, to realize when things absolutely do get finalized," Young said. "In the interim, we were not going to disadvantage people with AIDS on bureaucratic procedure. So we did (with AZT) what we felt was appropriate and within our jurisdiction," he said.

"This provides a very important expansion of that," he said. "AZT was a signal that the administration is committed to this approach on very serious and life-threatening diseases. The difference here is that we are now proposing to make it wider, broader and more available than we have ever done before."

In another development Tuesday, a House panel grappled inconclusively with the question of who will pay the high cost of AZT for poor patients.

"This subcommittee has wrestled with aspects of these problems before," said Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., in convening the hearing.

U.S. casts eye on space operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger has approved a new policy directive on military operations in space that emphasizes the need to prepare for combat beyond the earth's atmosphere.

The new directive, disclosed by the Pentagon on Tuesday, calls for rapid deployment of a "satellite-killing" rocket, completion of research on President Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense system and studies on the need for manned military space stations.

It also calls for construction of more survivable U.S. satellites and embraces previous decisions by the Pentagon to develop a mix of unmanned rockets to augment the capacity of the space shuttle fleet.

In addition, Weinberger's directive says the military should draft procedures by which the Pentagon could take over commercial boosters to launch military payloads in an emergency.

Beyond those individual goals, however, is an overall policy statement making it clear the U.S. military should be prepared to fight in space.

The Department of Defense must assure "that forces of hostile nations cannot prevent our own use of space," the directive said, adding that it is clear the Soviet Union is seeking "dominance of space."

"Space is recognized as being a medium within which the conduct of military operations in support of our national security can take place, just as on land, at sea and in the atmosphere," it said.

The new policy directive was signed by Weinberger on Feb. 4 and was immediately classified secret. A censored version of the document was released Tuesday, however, when the Pentagon announced the secretary's action.

The Pentagon said the new directive updates a "Department of Defense Space Policy" that was last revised in 1982, long before the start of the Star Wars program and the changes wrought by the loss of the space shuttle Challenger in 1986.

Uniformed Secret Service officers protest low pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 100 uniformed Secret Service officers who guard the White House gates marched in front of them Tuesday, demanding a pay raise and improved benefits.

Some of the officers, who were not on duty or in uniform during the demonstration, carried placards reading, "I'm a target every day, why can't I get better pay?" and "The president can sleep because the U.D. doesn't."

Many of the officers carried children in their arms or pushed baby carriages. The march was peaceful and the participants paced back and forth in front of the White House gates on Pennsylvania Avenue.

The demonstration was organized by a union representing officers from the Uniformed Division of the Secret Service, the 600-strong security force which staffs posts around the clock at the White House, the vice president's home and other federal sites.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawrence E. Walsh, the independent counsel investigating the Iran-Contra affair, asked Congress on Tuesday to wait at least 90 days before granting limited immunity to key witnesses, and vowed to challenge in court any attempt to act sooner.

Industry extends deserved accolades

The livestock industry of Southern Idaho took time last evening to recognize the long-time contributions of six of its own.

The occasion was the induction of new members into the Southern Idaho Livestock Industry Hall of Fame at its annual dinner. Their introduction brings to 147 the number of persons who have been honored by the organization over the past 27 years.

This year's slate of honorees include: J. Vard Chatham, Albion rancher and long-time member of the Idaho House of Representatives, where he was an advocate of the livestock industry and agriculture.

Lloyd C. Merrill of Paul, whose poultry operation is one of the largest in the West. Dwight Osborne, who ranches in Gooding, Lincoln and Camas counties and is also an influential voice in Spokane Federal Land Bank policy.

Robert W. Reed of Gooding, a cattlemen who has also built a wheat and grain warehousing business into a major exporter of grain and beans.

Jack VanBeek of Jerome, prominent in the Idaho dairy industry and in farm credit affairs.

J. Pat Hamilton, Buhl, whose bank has long been an important supporter of the livestock industry and agriculture in the Magic Valley.

In extending its recognition to these six men, the Livestock Hall of Fame is paying tribute to their manifold achievements and contributions which have helped make agriculture a strong contributor to the economy of Idaho.

The accolades extended to these six men by their peers in agriculture are well-deserved.

Ruling produces massive confusion

WASHINGTON — Judge Brevard Hand has ruled in the Alabama textbook case that "secular humanism" is a religion — presumably a secular religion. "Secular is religious" is a perfect example of newspaper, as in Orwell's "1984," (and only three years later) "There is a mass of confusion here that needs to be sorted out.

First and most obvious, "secular" means non-religious, independent of religion. So there's an overt contradiction in the idea of a secular religion. But of course a very cunning religious ideologue can use "secular" in order to infiltrate the textbooks, and that's no doubt what they think happened in Alabama.

Second, then, we might look at what "religion" means. The "lig" in "religion" is like the corresponding part of the word "ligament," and it comes from a Latin verb meaning "to bind." Religions characterized by a binding effect in one or both of two ways: they bind men and women to God or to some transcendent being or state, through church or mosque, or faith, or a covenant; or they bind them to one another, in a church, or synagogue, or congregation. To call a set of beliefs that does neither of these things a religion is to misunderstand the history of ideas. The separation of church and state has been directed not against systems of belief, but against coherent, but against the political effect of binding in my second sense.

The movement known as "secular humanism" (which isn't really a movement at all) seems to have been baptized as such by some philosophers in Buffalo who were rightly concerned about the resurgence of fundamentalism and superstition, and the exploitation of the media for this purpose in a society where the kind of education that would protect people against such "isms" is no longer available. I understand don't need the label, and those who don't will always abuse it.

Humanistic learning, the domain of the liberal arts, is not anything other than the painstaking accumulation of human understanding, free of dogma, that has been going on since the Greeks. It can perfectly well include the sympathetic study of religion, and ought to do so. It does not preach atheism, but it weighs the evidence for and against it, and this does have consequences for religion. It is bound to observe that, since there are many religions and they contradict one another, they can't all be right.

Maybe none of this is, maybe the world's historical conflicts and religions provoke are less pointless and tragic. This idea regularly occurs to bright students who have studied the evidence. They draw their own conclusions, helped along by the example of fanatics such as Oral Roberts and the like. The result has been a series of textbooks, which should have been thrown out by the curriculum committee, not by the courts.

All this is the last move in a sorry story of religious sniping between Christians and non-Christians that has led to absurdities — and they are absurdities — such as the story of Thanksgiving with no reference to the Pilgrims' beliefs. The result has been a series of textbooks, which should have been thrown out by the curriculum committee, not by the courts.

What Judge Hand and his clients (for that is what they seem to have become) appear to have done is to exploit this situation so as to roll back the educational clock, to the advantage of their own brand of religious obscurantism. One of the plaintiffs said a while ago, "The Christian is called upon to close her mind." ... Contrast this with what Judge Hand's namesake Learned Hand (and what a contrast that is!) said in "A Plea for the Open Mind and Free Discussion" — "all education which includes the 'humanities' is essential to political wisdom."

What is happening in Alabama is a recipe for political folly.

Another side to the story

In regard to Sunday's editorial by The Times-News standing behind Independent Meat Company's decision to lower their employees' wages, I have several questions I would like to ask the employer Pat Florence.

Did the company make a profit last year, or lose money? Would the company allow a neutral accountant to audit the books to prove Independent Meat Co. lost money?

If they are really losing money, I think the employees would understand and realize that a wage cut would be necessary; but I am not convinced the company lost money, when read in The Times-News that the plant's production is up.

I also understand that Independent Meat Co. has opened up new areas, such as Alaska, Montana, Oregon and has picked up several government contracts. If this is so, wouldn't a wage cut be corporately and socially appropriate? I am a backer of the "Buy Idaho Co." which is asking people to buy Idaho products. I am all for that, but isn't it a little hypocritical to say "Buy Idaho" when your company, Mr. Florence, buys boneless beef from Australia and pork bellies for your Falls Brand from New Zealand. All the employees of Independent Meat Co. know you buy foreign meat products, so are we to believe you Mr. Florence when you say you have cut wages by 15 percent? I can't.

Now a word to The Times-News, you should know there is two sides to every story.

He's reminded of a saying

Sunday afternoon a bunch of the guys dropped over. We were sitting around talking about fishing politics and the KLLX Home and Garden Expo.

The subject soon turned to the editorial in Sunday's newspaper about Independent Meat Packing Co. We were discussing the pros and cons of it when I brought out the fact to the guys that the managers of Independent Meat were strong supporters of "Buy Idaho" — a program that, on the whole, was good for Idaho.

His claim was that they never bought from the farmers around here because of price and requirements. Now I do not know if this statement is true or not, but the pictures are quite damaging to the theme Buy Idaho. If these statements are true, then the public should be informed.

On the same token, if these statements are false, the people should be informed on that also. So I am asking the readers if they have information on this to write letters to the editor and inform us of this matter. I am very interested in any responses and will be watching the paper for them.

I am reminded of a saying that fits this should this turn out to be true. "Oh what tangled webs we weave, when we practice to deceive."

Idaho phone usage increases

Idahoans have always been known as an independent lot, so it's surprising to me how some consumer groups are insistent that we be limited in with the generality of a national survey when specific information is available about this state.

Such is the case with a poll taken by the American Association of Retired Persons that leaves the impression there has been a decline in the number of Idahoans with telephone service since the Bell System breakup. The survey was mentioned in a recent letter from four members

If state's roads fail, all Idahoans suffer

Tom Lancaster
Income on roads, while being taxed at the rate of 14.5 cents. In 1986 we purchased an average of 551 gallons per car. As you can see from this, we are steadily paying a lesser amount of our personal income on the roads we use.

It appears that you are getting somewhat worked up over the proposed gas tax increase. Did you know that the legislators are considering not only a three cent gas tax but also a four cent increase, with good arguments for both? You have put into perspective some of the results of a three cent increase, so please allow me to enlighten you a little more about just what it will mean.

of the Idaho Neighbors Network in opposition to a new permitting regulation of the telecommunications industry in Idaho.

In some areas of the United States where local rates may have skyrocketed (they haven't in Idaho), claims that people are dropping off the network may be true. But according to statistics of the Bureau of Census and the Federal Communications Commission that deal specifically with Idaho, that's definitely not the case.

The November, 1986 Census Bureau/FCC figures for Idaho show the percentage of people subscribing to telephone service in this state is at 92.7 percent — up 3.2 percent since 1983 (before the Bell System breakup). In the age group over 70 years old, subscription is up 1.3 percent. Among those earning less than $10,000 a year (low income), subscription is up 2.4 percent. And among those classified as residents living on farms (rural locations), the number of people with phones is up 4.2 percent.

The value of telephone service increases as the number of people having telephones goes up. Mountain Bell knows that and intends to keep providing service to people at affordable rates — not force them off the network as some groups claim. Surveys of Idaho people show the company is doing a good job of achieving the goal of providing service to anyone who wants it.

Wilderness bill preferred

(U.S. Rep.) Larry Craig made the statement that supports national park status for the Boulder Mtns. and White Clouds. Sorry Larry, who are you trying to kid, the people of the Magic Valley, the Wood River Valley and the Stanley Basin?

We do not want a national park for the Wood River Valley and Stanley Basin. It would only bring in more people than this summer.

I propose that this summer Congress pass the Boulder White Clouds wilderness bill, with the backing of Sen. John Sclerling of Ohio, so we don't need a national park in Idaho.

Time to nurture the goose

The law of diminishing returns is overtaking our legislator buddies. They are painfully aware that any increase in taxes whether property, income, sales, gasoline, alcohol, tobacco, you name it, hurts more people than it helps. When you increase public services, salaries, and the inflation rate than the supportive economic base, you are, in effect, eating your seed corn.

Every community in Idaho feels the effect in closed businesses, vacant buildings, weakened agriculture, mining and lumbering. Jobs are lost, people move to where they can get work. Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming have healthy, growing economies. The people have had the good economic sense to let their economies expand before notching taxes higher. There is no income tax in Nevada and Wyoming.

The enormity of short-range legislative tax policies will soon be upon us. As you continue to raise taxes, you will be dismayed to discover you cannot repeal the "Law of Diminishing Returns." As your taxes went up, revenue went down. Businesses curtailed or closed, jobs were lost, people going with less or moving away, smaller cars or less driving. As gas goes up, the miles go down.

A recent article by Tom Silvers stated that "millions were wasted on unnecessary highway beautification" without a challenge or protest from any legislator, and now they have the gall to raise the gas tax. It doesn't make sense.

It is just a matter of time until we get a constitutional amendment that allows the county or city must be authorized by a majority vote in a general election. This will free legislators, commissioners and councilmen to concentrate on positive measures for the good of the order.

Stool pigeons soon forgotten

Being a stool pigeon must be a lonely life. Contacts must be made, secret circles penetrated, confidences acquired, facts gathered, and then the most brazen of threats and collect the reward. The timing must be right or another stool pigeon will beat him to the prize.

He must then find a hole deep enough to hide in, while he spends his ill-gotten money and watches over his shoulder. Because someday, somewhere stool pigeons receive their just dues. They will long be forgotten dust in their coffins when the memory of Claude Dallas remains a standard in the hearts of men everywhere who refuse to knuckle under to cowards with badges and false authority and low-life squealers.

Now about the drinking age — I agree in principle with you and Dutch Otter. My disagreement is that at this time we cannot afford to be so straight on this issue. Our young adults will have plenty of time to experience the effects of alcohol as they mature and as the benefits to them drinking will not exceed the liabilities (pollution). I think most of them agree it is the right thing to do, this raising of the drinking age to 21. The "feds" will hold back 4.5 million in 1987, and if we don't "comply," they will make 11.9 million in 1988. Are you willing to add two more cents of gas tax to make up the shortfall? We have an existing need for at least three cents to help pick up the lagging maintenance. Are you willing to go to a five cent increase? I expect not. Let's not settle for a "get by" policy — we have been "getting by" for too many years already.

Our present level of funding is a maintenance budget only. Our roads, on the local level, are wearing out. We must provide for their replacement. The distribution formula is not sacred, and it will be revised in the near future. One thing that we have learned over the years is that money trees will not grow in Idaho. We have to provide for ourselves.

In closing let me say that good roads are an economic necessity. In the recent past, there has been no significant road construction done in Idaho. This is costing the state and the citizens. If we don't provide increased funding for local roads, driving on dusty gravel roads to get to town is inevitable. If we have good local roads, we will be better able to attract new industry into our county. No prospective investor wants to locate in an area where travel is restricted. We need roads that will get the goods to and from the pits and mines and then get them to the markets and feedlots. We must have roads that a truck can pass over and make a profit. If the roads fail, we will all suffer.

I wish to tell you to keep up the pressure on the Idaho Transportation Department — They need to know we are watching them. I have my own dirt roads and I don't want them to be any worse across as defending them. I just want the facts about Idaho presented as they are.

Arizona's Babbitt off and running

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Former Gov. Bruce E. Babbitt of Arizona, drawing applause when he criticized "amateurs in charge of the White House," declared his candidacy Tuesday for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination.

Moving quickly to try to separate himself from his rivals for the nomination, Babbitt proposed increasing the tax on Social Security benefits for higher-income Americans, capping the mortgage interest deduction, and setting new rules for world trade.

The 45-year-old former governor also pledged he would "never trade anything of value for a hostage," even if it meant some would be killed.

Babbitt chose to spend his first day as a candidate in the three areas that will be crucial to his dark-horse effort. He began in New Hampshire, which holds the first primary, then flew to Iowa, where the first caucuses will be held, and was spending the night in the South where most states are holding their primaries and caucuses on the same day, March 8, 1988.

During a campaign stop in Des Moines, Iowa, Babbitt said he would consider hostage-taking as "an act of war."

He conceded it's "heart-wrenching" to see hostages pleading for their lives—but said leaders should stand firm, and the public has that view.

He said his policy would be "simply to say the taking of hostages will be treated as an act of war."

"What we are going to do is say we are at war with that nation," Babbitt said. He said the country should use "diplomatic and economic" sanctions, but "we can't exclude the use of force and I don't."

Babbitt joined Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri in the Democratic race.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts plans to announce his plans next week and former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado has scheduled his announcement for April 13.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson and Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware also are expected to enter the race and Sen. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas is considering becoming a candidate as well.

With his wife and two sons on the platform, Babbitt declared his candidacy before about 200 supporters at Science Enrichment Encounters, a display of science and industrial exhibits geared to children.

His speech contained several allusions to the Iran-Contra affair although he never referred directly to the investigations that are bedeviling the Reagan White House.

Pepper puts gray power for Gephardt

MIAMI (AP) — Rep. Claude Pepper, who's been campaigning for Democratic presidential candidates since Franklin D. Roosevelt's first run, has pledged to add some gray power to Rep. Richard Gephardt's dark-horse 1988 bid.

"He's not a spectacular-type fellow, but I think he's going to slowly rise," Pepper said. "I've always known that his ability is outstanding, that he is a dogged, public office."

down-to-earth, honest man who's been doing some of the most innovative work I've known of.

"I had some reservations about whether or not he had enough charisma to win the campaign," Pepper said. "But I believe he's the most capable man in the race and the people in 1988 won't be looking so much for a charmer like Roosevelt or Reagan. # Keep consumers first, Baker tells Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III on Tuesday urged Congress in its rewrite of banking laws to focus on consumer needs rather than pleas by special interests to reduce competition.

Baker said concern for the safety and soundness of the banking system should not be used as an excuse "to treat for measures that entrench anti-competitive behavior."

In a speech to the National Council of Savings Institutions, Baker said the country is in the grips of a new "market-oriented populism" rooted in a class of middle-income Americans — especially younger Americans — who are suspicious of laws and regulations that protect elites of any sort.

Baker said that "satisfying consumer needs has not been the hallmark of a financial industry protected by laws that sought stability at the expense of service."

"The game has changed," Baker said. "New technology, the inflation of the 1970s, new competition — they have all combined to change the marketplace."

The Senate Banking Committee is preparing to begin debate of a comprehensive banking bill sponsored by committee chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Baker, in his speech, took issue with Proxmire's approach, contending that what Congress should do immediately is resolve the crisis facing the savings and loan industry rather than try to pass comprehensive legislation.

Baker specifically addressed the issue of closing the loophole which has allowed creation of limited service banks, or so-called non-bank banks. He said this would be a serious mistake which could jeopardize the coalition in Congress fighting for more competition in banking services.

"To wipe out the non-bank bank now would likely prevent any congressional reform for many years," he said.

Proxmire's bill would place a temporary ban on the establishment of new limited-service banks. Limited-service banks either accept deposits or make commercial loans, but not both. They are not subject to the restrictions put on full-service banks.

Instead, Baker urged quick congressional passage of a bill addressing only the question of providing more money for the beleaguered Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., the agency which insures deposits of up to $100,000 at savings and loans associations.

Baker said that FSLIC reserves have dwindled to $1.4 billion even though it insures nearly $300 billion in deposits.

Random drug test bill breezes through panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A random drug-testing bill covering tens of thousands of airline and railroad workers and several million truck and bus drivers breezed through a Senate committee Tuesday despite concern about its constitutionality and potential for abuse.

The measure, sought by the Reagan administration to combat drug use in transportation industries, was approved 19-1 by the Commerce Committee and sent to the full Senate where it is likely to be subject of extensive debate.

While the drug-testing legislation received widespread support, many of the senators who voted for it also expressed "serious concerns" about the accuracy of such tests, questions of privacy, cost and a potential for misuse by employers.

The random testing requirement could lead to a needless court case and countless lives being disturbed," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass. He said there is evidence that there are false readings on as many as half of the tests, "creating such a mishmash that we're really not going to accomplish what we're trying to accomplish."

Kerry, like a number of other senators who raised doubts about random testing, nevertheless voted for the legislation. The only vote against the bill was cast by Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., who said he was worried that the testing requirement would cause burdens for small truck and rail operators.

While many questions about such tests remain, said Sen. John D. Rockefeller IV, D-W.Va., "there is an absolute need to protect the traveling public" in the transportation industries and random testing "is the only real deterrent to drug or alcohol abuse."

The measure calls for the Transportation Department to implement a drug testing program in aviation and rail industries within a year, including pre-employment, probable cause and random testing, and begin a pilot testing program in the trucking and bus industries. For the first time truck and bus drivers would be required to undergo drug tests after a fatal or serious accident.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, who had sought the new testing requirements for aviation and railroads, has said she doubled that similar tests could be applied to the trucking industry because it is fragmented.

The legislation, however, would require commercial truck and bus drivers to be covered by the testing provisions, although a limited testing program in four yet-to-be-determined states would initially be established to see how best to conduct the program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater announced Tuesday he will hold one briefing for the press corps at 11 a.m. each day instead of the traditional two.

Fitzwater, who took over his post on Feb. 11, said he had attempted to hold two briefings daily but found there was not enough time in the morning to meet with President Reagan and other White House officials before answering questions from reporters.

"It is a problem. There are so many of you and so little time, even though there is so much of me," Fitzwater said in a joking reference to his stocky appearance.

A giant salvage crane lifts the first articulated truck from the deck of the capsized ferry

Officials discount reports ferry leaked toxic chemicals

ZEEBRUGGE, Belgium (AP) — Officials sent bodies of some of the 134 people killed in the British ferry disaster back to England Tuesday and discounted reports that toxic chemicals, from the vessel might contaminate the North Sea.

Salvage teams hauled to the surface a tractor-trailer truck that had washed out of the Herald of Free Enterprise when the ferry capsized Friday night. But the truck's cargo, a solvent chemical in drums, fell back into the sea.

The government said 106 drums of various chemicals had been fished from waters around the ship. It denied reports that highly toxic dioxin had been on the ferry and could contaminate the sea.

While salvage boats maneuvered around the 7,951-ton car ferry, officials on shore sent coffins home to Britain and reported that relatives identified seven more victims. All 41 of the dead identified so far were British.

Of the ferry's 543 passengers and crew, 409 survived and 81 remain trapped and are presumed dead. Fifty-three bodies have been recovered so far.

Freighters belonging to Townsend Thoreson, the ferry's owners, took 33 bodies to Dover, England, on Tuesday.

The ferry had begun an 85-mile trip to Dover when it suddenly turned onto its port side and drifted until it settled, half-submerged, on the sandy seabed.

Seawater rushing through the bow loading doors apparently caused the vessel to capsize, but investigators say they have not found out why the doors were open.

The ship's captain, 46-year-old David Lewry, was among a dozen people seriously injured in the accident. He was flown home Tuesday to Kent and was taken by ambulance to hospital, the British news agency Press Association said.

Company officials said 106 of 176 drums containing various chemicals, including some waste cyanide being shipped to England for destruction, had been recovered, mostly by ships off the Belgian navy.

Oliver Vanneste, governor of West Flanders province, said water samples were being taken regularly around the ferry and had turned up no hazardous chemicals from the wreck.

Ecuador seeks quake disaster aid

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Ecuador on Tuesday appealed for international aid to confront the devastation a series of earthquakes wreaked on jungle villages and the nation's vital oil export industry.

In Geneva, the International Red Cross said the provisional toll from last week's quakes was 300 dead and 4,000 missing.

"This is the most serious problem in our history," said President Leon Febres Cordero.

The International Red Cross, in a statement appealing for aid for quake victims, said the disaster affected 90,000 people. It said the figures were based on information from the Ecuadorian Red Cross.

The quakes, which began Thursday night and continued Friday, caused landslides and mudslides that entombed entire hamlets, covered roads, destroyed bridges and ruptured a 25-mile stretch of the country's main oil pipeline.

Febres Cordero asked Ecuador's 12 fellow members of the Organization of Oil Producing and Exporting Countries and other oil-producing nations to assume Ecuador's sales commitments. He said Ecuador would pay them back in oil when it was able to resume exports.

Cruz says Contras undemocratic

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Arturo Cruz said Tuesday he quit the Nicaraguan rebel leadership because the Contra movement has come under the sway of "an exclusive clique" opposed to democratic ideals.

"I have given all I can give," he said in a resignation letter published in the Miami Herald and the Costa Rican newspaper La Nacion.

Word of his resignation from the three-man directorate of the United Nicaraguan Opposition, or UNO, leaked to the press on Monday, catching fellow Contra leaders by surprise.

"I think it's a loss for us," said

Alfonso Robelo, another UNO director. "It weakens our position, but we have to keep on fighting for our struggle."

The departure of Cruz, who is considered a moderate, raises questions about continued United States congressional financing of the rebels' 5-year-old war against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Just three weeks ago, another director, Adolfo Calero, stepped down largely at the urging of Cruz and Robelo.

Calero was replaced by Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, a former editor of the newspaper La Prensa, which until it was shut down by the government last June was the only opposition daily in Nicaragua.

No replacement was announced immediately for Cruz.

In a related development, Chamorro said Tuesday that civilian Contra leaders agreed to give up control of rebel military funds in order to maintain their political base in neutral Costa Rica.

They had been threatened with expulsion by President Oscar Arias if they persisted in a plan to control financing of all Contra military units, including the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, or FDN.

Blast shakes Soviet center in Laos

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — An explosion apparently caused by a bomb shook a Soviet cultural center in Laos that the Soviet foreign minister had been scheduled to visit Tuesday.

The explosion occurred at about 6 a.m. Monday in Vientiane, capital of Laos, but Japan's Kyodo News Service quoted unnamed Laotian sources as saying the device, that caused it was timed to go off during Eduard A. Shevardnadze's visit 12 hours later.

Officials of embassies in Bangkok and Vientiane said a Laotian guard was killed and another wounded by the explosion outside the center. They reported only minor damage to the three-story building.

"There was a blast in front of the Soviet cultural center, apparently a bomb," a Western embassy official said, speaking on condition of anonymity. "You can suppose it was related to Shevardnadze's visit, but who knows?"

Whether Shevardnadze actually visited the center as planned was not known.

No claim of responsibility was reported, but diplomats speculated the explosion was intended to embarrass either the Soviets or the Laotian authorities during Shevardnadze's visit. Several groups are fighting the communist government in Vientiane, but they are not considered threats to security.

In Moscow, Kremlin spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told a regularly scheduled news briefing: "We only have quite preliminary information that there was an explosion in the center of the city. We have no information as to causes and results."

Shevardnadze arrived in Vientiane on Sunday for his first visit to Laos and other communist allies in Indochina, Cambodia and Vietnam.

Hunters rescued after week on floe

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Two polar bear hunters were rescued after a week adrift on an ice floe of the northwestern coast of Greenland, but 16 sled dogs were lost, newspapers reported Tuesday.

Police in Qaanaaq, Greenland, confirmed the report.

The hunters were following three polar bears on the ice of Greenland's northwestern tip when a sudden storm caused the ice to break and they started drifting away from shore.

They survived on biscuits and other provisions, but 16 of their 29 dogs died, the reports said. The hunters shot nearby seals but could not collect them for food because the surrounding ice was thin.

When a police helicopter came to their rescue Saturday, the ice floe had already drifted back to land.

Greenland, a semi-autonomous Danish territory, has 53,000 inhabitants, including 43,600 Eskimos.

Fastest-growing segment: ages 35-44

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early middle age is the nation's fastest-growing population segment, with people 35 to 44 now accounting for nearly one American in seven, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

But people age 85 and over are close behind in growth and are, in fact, the fastest growing segment among blacks, the new study disclosed.

And toddlers are making a comeback too, with their numbers once again on the increase.

Overall, the population is getting increasingly older and the focus of society may well change to reflect that, Census analyst Louisa Miller said.

As of July 1, 1986, the median age of all Americans was 31.8 years, meaning half of the people were older than that and half younger. The median age was 30.0 years in 1980 and has been increasing steadily since 1971, when it was 27.9.

Reflecting that, changes may occur in the development and sale of products and services and in the expectations of people and companies.

For example, the McDonald's fast-food chain is advertising for older workers, a reflection of the shrinking supply of youngsters to staff the counters.

Between the 1980 national head count and 1986, the number of Americans aged 35 to 44 increased 29 percent to 33.1 million, the Census Bureau reported in the study.

That growth reflects the maturing of the post-World War II Baby Boom generation, the huge group that overwhelmed the nation's schools, then focused national attention on young adults and now is beginning to enter its 40s.

With a national population now estimated at 241.6 million people, the 35-44 age group constitutes about one person in seven.

In addition, the younger members of the Baby Boom group helped the 25-34 age group maintain its position as the largest single age segment, totaling 42.9 million in 1986. This group has grown by 15 percent since 1980.

While that 15 percent is a strong growth rate, it trails the performance of older Americans who, helped by improving health care are extending their numbers as lifespans increase.

The 85-and-over age group, the second fastest growing, increased 28.8 percent to 2.8 million between 1980 and 1986. Among blacks, the jump was even more startling, with the over-85 segment increasing 33.9 percent to 213,000 people. The 35-44 age group among blacks increased 28.2 percent to 3.5 million.

Black life expectancy, though still less than for whites, has improved faster than that for whites, Miller explained.

For example, between 1980 and 1985, life expectancy for whites increased by 0.9 years to 75.3, while for blacks it jumped 1.4 years to 68.4, she said.

Meanwhile, the Baby Boomers are having an echo effect.

As those maturing Americans complete their educations and get careers well under way, they are settling down and producing offspring — resulting in a jump of 0.9 years to 84.

While that 15 percent is a strong growth rate, it trails the perfor-group, according to the study.

The under-5 population grew to 18.1 million by 1986, and "there are now more preschool-age children than there have been since July 1, 1967," the report said.

This group is termed an echo of the Baby Boom because it reflects the large number of potential parents in that earlier group.

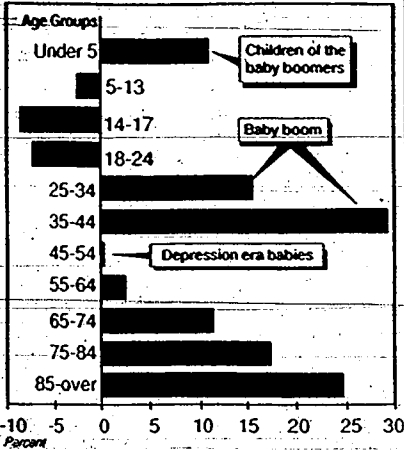

However, the new crop of youngsters does not represent another boom in itself, since birth rates remain low.

Here is a rundown of the estimated population totals, in thousands, by age group as of July 1, 1986, and the percentage change since 1980:

Group	Total Change since 1980
Under age 5	18,128 10.9
5-13	30,345 2.6
14-17	14,797 -8.9
18-24	27,973 -7.6
25-34	42,884 15.4
35-44	33,143 29.0
45-54	22,822 0.1
55-64	22,230 2.4
65-74	17,325 11.2
75-84	9,051 17.1
85 and over	2,796 24.8

Children surveyed

Improving sibling relations a priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of children and teen-agers finds that better relations with brothers and sisters is a top priority and that one-quarter of youngsters believe they have trouble discussing problems with their parents.

According to the survey, conducted among 1,000 boys and girls aged 8 to 17, 90 percent are generally happy with their home life, 93 percent are happy with the amount of love their parents show to them, but only 79 percent are satisfied with the amount of time their parents spend with them.

In that category, only 62 percent are happy about their relationships with brothers and sisters and improving those relations tops the list of "things which would make home life better."

Talking openly with parents ties the "better relations" category at 39 percent. Others, in order in the 30 percent group are: being treated more as an adult, spending more time with parents, family having more money, having more responsibility, parents getting along better.

Parents less involved with personal life was listed by 18 percent as making home life better. Parents more involved with personal life was listed by 14 percent as being treated less as an adult, with 8 percent. Only 3 percent thought that spending less time with parents would make them happier.

Burns W. Roper, whose organization conducted the poll for the American Child Group, said it was the first time such an in-depth survey was made among children and teen-agers.

The sampling error was about three percentage points either way.

In general, young people believe that their parents are doing a good job guiding them through their lives, the poll report said. It contrasted that with the poll of adults last year that found adults thinking the opposite.

Of the majority, 62 percent said children do no better or worse in school if their mothers work, 7 percent thought they do better and 28 percent said worse. But 40 percent thought that children of working mothers get into more trouble and 47 percent thought they are more independent.

The students were asked to assign a grade to their school on a scale of A to F. The result: A-29 percent; B-48 percent; C-16 percent; D-4 percent; F-2 percent.

Asked to grade specific aspects of their school, "how safe you feel" got an "A" from a solid 69 percent of the children. In contrast, the cafeteria food rated lowest, with only 16 percent giving As.

The poll divided responses about which "subjects are important to study" for those 8 to 12 years old and those 13 to 17.

In the first group, arithmetic and reading and grammar tied for highest with 92 percent, science was next with 86 percent and computer skills next with 81 percent. Among the older group, math, English and computer skills rated the first three more as important, with 94, 91 and 89 percent, respectively. Art and music were at the bottom.

With growing controversy over whether sex education should be taught at home or in school, teen-agers were asked where they think it is best taught.

The replies, with multiple answers allowed, 61 percent thought it should be taught in the home, 55 percent said school and 9 percent said it should be left to religious schools. Only one percent said it should not be taught at all.

And on another controversial subject, school prayer, 75 percent of those in non-public schools favored organized prayer, while those in public school were evenly split.

What worries young people?

Kidnapping, said 76 percent. Possibility of nuclear war and AIDS, said 65 percent. Drug use by professional athletes, said 52 percent. Having to fight a war and air and water pollution, said 42 percent. Increasing divorce by parents, said 39 percent.

And things that make them feel good?

Being an American is first with 95 percent. But singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" is last.

Cloudy skies, but not much rain for nation

By The Associated Press

Most of the nation was under cloudy skies Tuesday, but there were only patchy areas of light rain or snow, while cold arctic air covered much of the country east of the Rockies.

Rainshowers extended across southern New Mexico and southwestern Texas.

Some snowshowers lingered near the Great Lakes, and patchy light snow extended from southeastern Colorado into the Texas panhandle.

Snow also was scattered over northern Dakota and northern Montana.

Light rain was scattered over the northern Pacific Coast and the northern Plateau region. Light rain also fell from northeastern Georgia into South Carolina.

On Tuesday morning, snow and sleet fell over much of northern North Carolina and southern Virginia.

Strong winds whipped the coastline of Virginia and North Carolina, with gusts over 50 mph clocked at Manteo and Cape Hatteras; N.C. Gusts to 48 mph occurred in Norfolk, Va.

An air mass centered over the Great Lakes brought cold weather to much of the nation, with midday temperatures below freezing over much of the Northeast. Freezing readings extended as far south as the Texas panhandle and northern North Carolina.

What's what

THE NAVY SAYS FISH

Legislation always has its less apparent purposes, what? The Privy Council of Elizabethan London passed an ordinance limiting the number of butchers who could work during Lent. To force people to eat more fish. So more fishermen could get work. So the British navy would have a bigger labor pool of trained seamen from which to draw in time of need.

Michael J. Fox wouldn't mind playing 'raving sex maniac'

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael J. Fox doesn't mind his boy-next-door image but he says he also wouldn't mind an occasional role as "a raving sex maniac."

"I don't want to set myself up as a 25-year-old Alan Alda," Fox said in an interview in the April edition of Ladies Home Journal.

"I've been fortunate that up until this point I've been able to play nice guys," he said. "But if a script popped across my desk that had an interesting character who happened to be a raving sex maniac, I'd consider playing him, too."

"Fox's character in his latest movie, 'Light of Day,' is a departure from his clean-cut Alex Keaton role on the NBC-TV series 'Family Ties.' In the movie, he plays a struggling sheet-metal worker who moonlights in a rock band.

Music scholars study cache of Gershwin, others' tunes

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's wonderful, marvelous — a windfall of long-forgotten tunes by George Gershwin, Jerome Kern, Richard Rodgers and others, discovered in a dusty warehouse and now revealed to musical scholars.

Among 20,000 new-found treasures being studied are Kern's hand-written copies of "Ol' Man River" and "Gentle Help Lovin' Dat Man"; 90 hand-written Gershwin manuscripts; and works by such composers as Vincent Youmans, Victor Herbert, Sigmund Romberg and Richard Friml.

"Manuscripts turn up from time to time, but this was surprising, considering the magnitude and importance of this find," said music historian Robert Kimball, who is editing the National Institute for Music Theater's "Catalogue of the American Musical."

"It's like finding a Stephen Foster song, or a Walt Whitman poem," said Kimball, who led the treasure hunters who examined the contents of 80 cartons found five years ago in a Warner Brothers warehouse in Secaucus, N.J.

Warner Brothers acquired the manuscripts in the 1920s and 1930s, during a foray into music publishing inspired by the changeover from silent pictures to talkies. In ensuing decades, the papers were shifted around and forgotten.

"It didn't take long for historians to gauge the importance of their find, although the work was filled with surprises.

Kimball said the first envelope, which "had Cole Porter written on it, had songs I'd never heard of — and I'm a Cole Porter scholar and biographer. I sat there quite stunned. As we went on, I was more and more stunned."

Of particular interest was U. Kern material: more than 175 unpublished Kern songs, and a half-hour of music dropped from "Show Boat" after previews, hand-written manuscripts, various arrangements, piano-vocal scores, orchestra scores and individual orchestra parts.

"All of a sudden we have a lot of Kern's manuscripts, which until now were as scarce as hen's teeth. Lots of dark closets suddenly opened," said H. Wiley Hitchcock, founding director of the Institute for Studies in American Music at Brooklyn College.

"A discovery of this dimension is just unbelievable, unique in American music, or world music for that matter," he said.

A 178-page inventory lists about 70 songs by Gershwin that had been forgotten over the years, Kimball said.

Prince Charles smartest, Lady Di dumbest, poll says

LONDON (AP) — The British consider Prince Charles the smartest member of the royal family and Princess Diana the least intelligent, according to results of a poll published Tuesday.

Queen Elizabeth II is the hardest-working, least outspoken and most serious member of the family, and Prince Andrew's wife, the former Sarah Ferguson, is the most pleasant and most fun, said the nationwide survey published by London's Daily Express newspaper.

Asked which of the nine best-known members of the royal family is the most intelligent, 47 percent chose Charles and 38 percent the queen. Diana came in last at 3 percent, 1 point behind Sarah.

Forty-seven percent said the queen was the most hard-working, ahead of her daughter, Princess Anne, 39 percent, and Charles, 41 percent. Andrew, the Duke of York, got 3 percent and Sarah, the Duchess of York, was last with 1 percent. The Duchess of York topped the "most pleasant" list with 37 percent, edging out Queen Mother Elizabeth, who had 36 percent. The queen's husband, Prince Philip, and her youngest son, Edward, shared last place with 5 percent.

Sarah also was rated the most fun with 55 percent; ahead of Andrew, 50 percent; and Diana, 35 percent. Only 3 percent said the queen was the most fun, and 4 percent chose Prince Philip.

Philip was voted by far the most outspoken with 61 percent; ahead of Anne at 40 percent. The queen and Edward, both with 2 percent, were considered the least outspoken.

The poll was conducted last month by Market Opinion Research International among 1,062 people over 15 years old. No statistical margin of error was stated.

Ann Landers' motive for job switch a mystery

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Columnist Ann Landers' decision to defect from the Chicago Sun-Times to the Chicago Tribune was "not about money," she said.

But Miss Landers declined to say exactly what it was about. Miss Landers, who has written an advice column for the Sun-Times for 31 years, will do the same for the rival Tribune starting Sunday.

"One day last week they asked Dr. Ruth, Joyce Brothers and Ask Beth," Miss Landers said at a news conference Monday. "Apparently they need advice."

She confessed to "a little sadness" at leaving the Sun-Times.

Miss Landers joins her twin sister, Abigail Van Buren, at the Tribune, where she has written "Dear Abby" since 1956. Her sister says the two will not be competing. Miss Landers' column will be distributed by a new syndicate, but it will continue to appear in 1,157 newspapers where it is now printed, she said.

Robert Coover receives award for short stories

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Coover, an American author fascinated with mythology and folk tales, was named Tuesday as the recipient of the 1987 Rea Award for the Short Story.

Coover, 55, an adjunct professor of English at Brown University, is the author of several novels and two collections of short stories, "Prickles and Descants" and "A Night at the Movies."

He is the second recipient of the $25,000 Rea Award, established last year by Michael Rea, a New York book and art collector. The first recipient was Cynthia Ozick.

The award is given annually to a writer who has made a significant contribution to the short story as an art form. It is based on the author's body of work, not a single book or story.

Judge dismisses writer's suit against Enquirer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has dismissed a $1.1-million lawsuit filed on behalf of free-lance writer Chris Van Ness, who contended the National Enquirer stole his story since 1956. Her sister says the two Belushi. Superior Court Judge Miriam Vogel said Monday the Enquirer wasn't notified within the prescribed period that the August 1983 suit had been filed.

The Enquirer didn't receive its copy until last October. Under state law, defendants must be notified of such filings within three years.

Van Ness alleged that the Enquirer promised him $25,000 in May 1982 if his interviews with Smith would support the headline "Was John Belushi Murdered?" He said the Enquirer later changed the headline to "I Killed John Belushi" and told him his information on the comedian's overdose death wasn't detailed enough.

Enquirer attorney Gerson Zwielfach contended Van Ness was paid $1,000 for tipping the tabloid but that Van Ness wanted more. Zwielfach said the Enquirer sent his own reporters to Toronto to interview Miss Smith.

Miss Smith began a three-year prison term last September after pleading no contest to one count of, voluntary manslaughter and three counts of furnishing and administering dangerous drugs in the March 1982 death of Belushi at the Chateau Marmont Hotel. She will be eligible for parole a year from now.

Plans for new jail approved

By FAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A proposal for a new Twin Falls County jail look on an added dimension Tuesday night.

The Jail Advisory Committee, composed of county residents, voted unanimously to approve exterior and interior plans for a proposed 90-bed jail. The committee's recommendation goes to the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners, which will make the final decision on design.

Committee member and former Idaho House speaker T.W. Silvers, known as a conservative in the Legislature, said the proposal provided the bare minimums required by the code and courts.

"This is a practical move," he said.

Next Tuesday the county hired firm of Lombard Conrad Architects of Boise will return with cost estimates and a model. An estimate of $3.9 million has been baffled around previously by architect Ed Lombard, who called it only a "ballpark figure."

Architect Joe Conrad told the committee on Tuesday that a jail was one of the most expensive types of facilities to build, surpassed only by a hospital operating room in terms of cost per square foot.

The most expensive item in the jail, however, will probably be the electronic gear, he added.

The materials and construction methods are simple. Last week the committee approved preliminary floor plans.

This week Conrad presented exterior drawings of a building that looked more like an office than a jail.

Conrad proposed walls composed of concrete blocks, filled with concrete and steel. Concrete blocks are cheaper than pouring concrete walls, he said. And, if installed properly, they were just as good as a thick concrete wall.

"In essence, it is a concrete wall," Conrad said.

A "lid" of 8-inch concrete would be the ceiling of the cell blocks and adjoining day rooms. Above the concrete would be heating units, covered by a sloping metal roof.

Individual heating and cooling units in each cell-block allow jailers to shut down unused areas, he said.

Cell doors would be electronically controlled and composed of steel and tempered glass that is almost impossible to break, Conrad said. Solid doors are cheaper than steel bars, and reduce the noise in a jail.

Exposed concrete would make up the floors, while paint would be added to the concrete in the ceilings.

Glass in cathedral-type roofs will invite the natural light to cell blocks required in federal standards, he said. The security glass in the roof would be 15 to 16 feet above the floor.

The exterior would be half brick-half stucco, with few windows.

Conrad presented computer drawings showing the dimensions of the proposed building, which would have cell blocks radiating from a central booking office.

County officials want to build the jail on the back part of a lot adjacent to the Judicial Annex building and Courthouse.

"It sits well on the property," Silvers said.

After reviewing the floor plans approved last week, Sheriff Jim Munn suggested placing a work-release cell block closer to the main jail area because of what he saw as a potential problem with observing the inmates in the area, Conrad said. As it had been designed, a guard would have to go through two doors to get to the work-release cell block.

Munn liked the remainder of the floor plans, particularly the 13 "lines of segregation," to separate inmates, Conrad said.

When committee member Jay Proost expressed concern at the previous estimate nearing $4 million, Silvers replied the plans were a "Taj Mahal" concept.

Committee member Garry Nielsen said it should be emphasized that the proposed jail will last a long time, although the construction materials and methods would be simple.

Claude Dallas fans found in Kimberly

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Claude Dallas, convicted killer of two Idaho Fish & Game Department officers, apparently still retains some of the "hero image" officers had hoped would vanish after his recapture Sunday.

Dot Moody, owner of Dot's Kimberly Cafe, took an unofficial poll among her customers Monday and Tuesday.

"When I opened Monday morning all of my coffee-hour customers were discussing Dallas' capture in California," she said. "Some of them were arguing that he should have been left alone and that he was harassed by the Fish and Game officers. I just decided to find out how people around here felt about that."

Moody put up a ballot on the wall asking "How do you feel about Claude Dallas' capture?" It listed three choices: "sad," "glad," or "don't care."

"People here voted about 2-1 in support of Dallas," Moody said. "The ballot was a bit down, but Moody said Tuesday afternoon she believed everyone who wanted to had expressed their views."

The final count was 42 who felt sad about the arrest, 22 who were glad and 18 who just didn't care.

Moody said that, to her surprise, some of the customers told her that Dallas is a "mountain man" and his only "mistake" was that he shot the two officers a second time to make certain they were dead.

Moody said those debating Dallas' actions from the opposite standpoint argued that he had to pay his debt for murder and they were glad to see him back in custody.

Action postponed on bill to bar drug dealing teachers

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

BOISE — A proposed bill to close the loophole in state law allowing convicted drug dealers to continue teaching may not get at the problem, officials were told on Tuesday.

The Senate Education Committee postponed action on a bill brought by state Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls.

Members said they wanted more information from the Attorney General's Office and the state Professional Standards Committee before taking action.

The bill would define conviction or "finding of guilt" for a drug offense as grounds for revocation, suspension or denial of a teaching certificate.

The bill was the result of the case of Twin Falls High School teacher Robert Moreland, who resigned in February after his conviction on a misdemeanor charge of selling pharmaceuticals.

The state Professional Standards Commission decided not to revoke or suspend Moreland's teaching certificate because he was convicted of a misdemeanor. The PSC also received no request from the Twin Falls School District to revoke Moreland's certificate, officials said.

Anderson said seeing the "inability of the state and of the School Board to respond" in the Moreland case showed "the strong need to plug a hole."

But state Sen. John Hansen, R-Idaho Falls, a lawyer and member of the Education Committee, said he did not see how Anderson's proposed bill would force the firing of a teacher.

"I don't see how this bill gets at that," Hansen said.

Jim Shackelford, assistant director with the Idaho Education Association, also testified that the proposal would probably not "provide any more than the law already provides."

"The IEA agrees with the premise that a teacher selling drugs should not be allowed to continue teaching, but we're not sure this does it," Shackelford said.

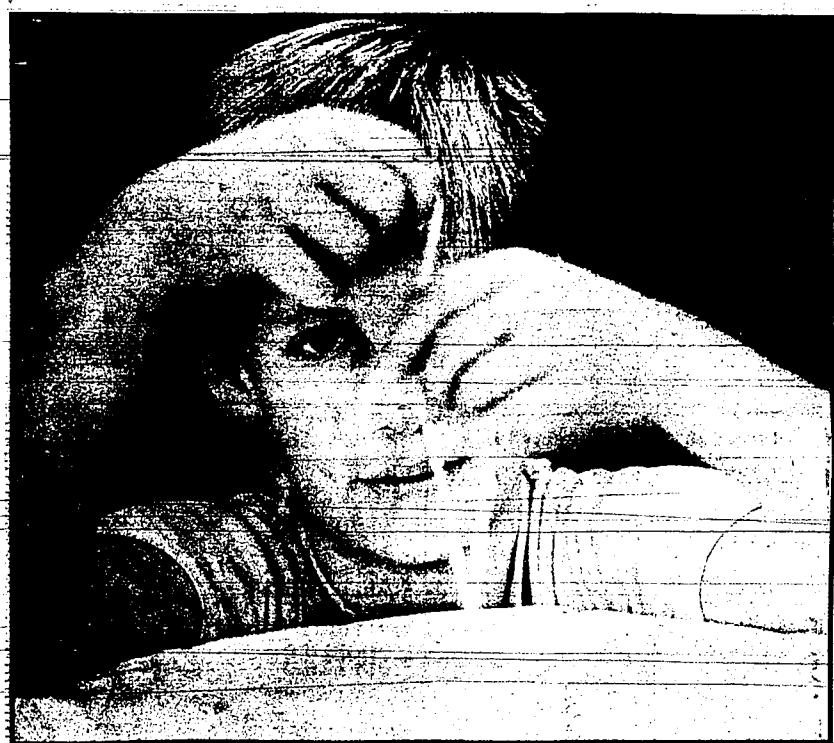

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, a Senate Education Committee member, said the bill currently allows for a teacher to be dismissed or his license revoked on grounds of moral turpitude, or for violating any professional codes or standards of ethics or conduct adopted by the state Board of Education.

Noh said the problem was that the Twin Falls School District did not outline the specific violation in the district's rules and regulations, nor did the state board.

Anderson said he did not want to overreact to the situation, and he agreed the bill was loosely drawn to give the PSC and local school boards discretion.

"This is not a redneck bill," he said. "I did not want to reach back to the '60s and get a person who sold a little pot to be dismissed. I know people who use drugs. I'm sure you know people who use drugs."

The committee will continue hearings on the bill today.

Cody Cox pays close attention to a tie he is making in a class project quilt. Some 20 students in Louise Miller's fifth grade class at Lincoln Elementary School in Twin Falls recently completed a large baby quilt they made as a pioneer studies project. The quilt, which took the class a week to make, is to be raffled off Friday with proceeds going to the Lincoln Elementary PTA.

Evolution workshop polarizes theorists

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — And on the sixth night there were no answers.

Harry Massoth said he tried to describe the importance of interpreting the world using both science and religion in his six-part workshop at the College of Southern Idaho, "Evolution on Trial."

But instead of blending natural and inspirational explanations for the world, the workshop series, which ended Monday seemed to further polarize the positions.

"I think it's been almost a psychological or a cold war," Massoth said of the sides becoming mutually exclusive in the "debate" about what is doing its yearning in apart inside."

The reason for going through the painful discussion, Massoth told The Times-News after the workshop, is to reconcile those opposing viewpoints for practical living. He noted that real-life applications follow the debate, seen last Wednesday when a U.S. District judge's ruling in Alabama banned a textbook there for promoting secular humanism as a religion in public schools.

The workshop strived to harmonize scientific and religious views on Man's origin, Massoth said. But instead of "responsibly grappling with the issue," the approach failed as participants and observers clung to narrower views of either creationism or evolution being right, he said.

"They still don't see it here," Massoth said.

Local side-effects of the conflict, sharing the federal judge's concerns about keeping religious teaching out of public schools, were introduced Monday during the workshop's final installment.

Both High School biology teacher Ed Richards said that seven of his students, illustrated how he teaches, skirting religious interpretations and presenting science as "tentative" theory, open to modification.

His students hunger for explanations — shows through their questions about Man's beginnings. "Could the stories in the Bible be symbolic of greater universal truths?" a student had asked him, he said, and "Could the days of creation have been great periods of time?"

But Richards said he doesn't try to answer those interpretation questions for fear of "violating personal or religious views because I don't want to do that."

Instead, he tries to arouse curiosity — rather than settle disputes. He reads carefully through both evolution and creationism. — See EVOLUTION on Page B2

Meat plant, union at uneasy impasse

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A visitor to Independent Meat Co. might never suspect the Twin Falls packinghouse is divided by a wage dispute.

Workers cut carcasses and manufacture hot dogs at an uninterrupted pace. The plant's Falls Brand labels arrive at supermarkets and other Northwest destinations as usual.

Despite the lapse of a labor contract 10 days ago, negotiators for the company and United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 368A have yet to arrange another bargaining session, much less trade new offers. Although they remain "in contact," the official stance, from both camps has been simple: "The ball's in their court."

To date, the atmosphere has been business as usual. But, even though they've been through this same face-off before (in 1985), both management and workers are uneasy.

In interviews, Independent Meat President and General Manager Pat Florence repeatedly has said he is not sure how things will turn out. The company hopes for a solution, but also has recruited replacements if it doesn't come, he has said. Union President Sam Miller has expressed the same hope and called any job action a "last resort."

In letters published in today's Times-News, union supporters with obvious connections in the plant take Florence and other Independent Meat executives to task for imposing a 15-percent pay cut and for another hot topic, importing some meats.

The overriding issue is a classic meatpacking industry dispute. The company says it must modernize at great expense and cut costs in order to remain competitive in what now is a global marketplace.

Other high-volume packers can come in with lower costs and snatch markets that Independent Meat once had to itself. To maintain its financial strength, the company must turn out more volume and sell its products at competitive prices.

Florence says. In this case, that means investing in new machinery — now almost finished — and temporarily cutting back a major cost, workers' wages, he says.

Unionized workers don't differ with the aim of boosting competitiveness. However, they do object to paying for new machinery through lower wages. They also protest rolling back wages without need.

Does Independent Meat really need a rollback? Of it the company trying to maintain profitability for its owners and investors at the expense of the laborers?

As many privately held companies do, Florence declined to reveal 1986 profits to The Times-News Wednesday. But he did say the workers would share in future profits. "We firmly feel the advantages gained ... will gain us a greater market share and will increase our cash flow and income flow," he says. The pay plan now in force "offers them a wage increase in 10 months" and a profit-sharing plan.

The wage increase would come to 5 percent of the 15-percent cut, union sources say. The profit-sharing plan involves lump-sum payments.

BPA offers lower surplus rates to Burley, Malta

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Customers of Unity Light and Power in Burley and Raft River Electric in Malta may have more incentive to turn on irrigation pumps earlier, or switch from wood to electric heat, under a plan proposed by the Bonneville Power Administration to cut surplus power rates.

BPA is faced with declining surplus power sales to California and dolebrums in the aluminum industry, a major industrial customer. In recent years BPA revenue from aluminum plants and California has dropped from 50 percent to 33 percent, said Robert Laffel, BPA district manager in Idaho Falls.

The federal power marketing agency is proposing selling a block of power to Idaho and other utilities at a lower, surplus power rate through Sept. 30.

Unity's proposal will require some changes and Raft River, which will only participate during April, has received verbal approval from BPA to go ahead.

The city of Burley will not participate, according to BPA. "We're trying to sell surplus power and we have got to make a market for it," said John Jones, Unity manager. He said the target is to use 3 million watts more than normal during the year. That amounts to about one-fifth of Unity's usage in the summer, he said.

The electrical load would not have been there under the ordinary rates, said David R. Anderson of BPA's marketing branch in Portland, Ore.

Most of the utilities which BPA sells power to have a large number of customers who use wood for heating, Anderson said. BPA lost electrical load because of that and now is trying to get some electrical load back, he said.

Cable TV rate hike hearing set

JEROME — A public hearing will be held March 16 at 7 p.m. in the Jerome City Hall to consider King Videocable company's plans to raise its basic subscriber monthly rate for cable television service from $12.95 to $14.25 on May 1.

As part of that plan, a low-income senior citizen monthly rate of $12.85 will be offered to qualified cable subscribers.

Castleford fills council seat

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford City Council accepted council member Terry Milton's resignation at its meeting last week and appointed a replacement.

Richard Schlund will take Milton's place. Schlund will be sworn in at the next council meeting, and he will serve until the regular city elections next fall.

Milton resigned because he recently moved out of the city limits.

He will be a special council meeting Tuesday at City Hall to open bids to lease 20 acres of unused city irrigation water. Anyone interested in leasing this water must have their bids in to City Hall by Tuesday.

Also at the meeting, the city decided it will work with Castleford student Russ Hulise to put numbers on residences-and businesses in the city. Hulise is working on the project to complete work on his eagle scout badge.

"The numbers will benefit the quick response unit, UPS and utility services when they need to find a house," said City Clerk Patsy Kinyon.

Stallings, Huntley to speak

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, and Idaho Supreme Court Justice Robert Huntley will be speaking Friday in Twin Falls to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution.

Stallings' speech, entitled, "The Constitution at Work in Contemporary Washington and America" will begin at 10 a.m. Huntley's speech, "The Constitutional and Legal Issues Facing Idaho and America," will begin at 2 p.m.

Both speeches will be in rooms 117-118 of the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The Snake River Symposium organized the free program.

6 juveniles taken into custody

BURLEY — Six juveniles, ranging in age from 13 to 16, were surprised Monday night by Cassia County Sheriff's Department officers in the basement of a city residence which had been broken into.

Deputy Sheriff Dennis Dexter said Tuesday that the two girls and four boys were taken into custody originally on a second-degree burglary charge, which was later reduced to unlawful entry.

All were released Tuesday to "responsible adults."

Dexter said Entry to the residence was gained through an outside basement door after a padlock on the door was broken. Dexter said officers arrived and apprehended the youngsters before anything was taken from the home.

Burglary victim posts reward

TWIN FALLS — Pierce Street residents have had more than their share of burglaries and costly vandalism recently, and one burglary victim is offering a reward to get her stolen property back.

Jule Schwerman told Twin Falls police officers that someone entered her parked car Monday night and took some items which would be useless to anyone else, including a blue cloth zipperbag and a plastic file folder.

The car was parked in the driveway of her home, at 320 Pierce St.

The bag and folder contain papers that she uses in her work as a physical therapist and some material for a test that she gives to children who may need treatment.

She said one of the documents would cost $45 to replace. She is offering a $50 reward for return of the papers. She said the burglar has probably discarded the items in an alley or trash can after they found there was no money or valuables inside it. If found, items may be dropped off at the Twin Falls Police Department.

This is the second time Schwerman and her husband have been burglarized recently, she said. Two weeks ago several parked vehicles were vandalized on Pierce Street, leaving hundreds of dollars in damage. Schwerman said she didn't lock her car Monday night but thought for a test that she gives to would want, adding if the vehicles are locked, the burglars break a window to check out the contents.

Judge search continues

TWIN FALLS — Judge Philip Becker of Gooding, who is administrative judge for the 9th Judicial District, said Tuesday he has not found a judge to hear the case of a former Twin Falls County sheriff's employee who is charged with grand theft.

The woman, Charlene Hine, 42, was scheduled for arraignment Monday in District Court in Twin Falls, but the appearance was cancelled after a second judge, Daniel Meehl, was disqualified.

Hine had worked for the Sheriff's Department the past eight years. Because judges in the district know her, Becker said, it has been difficult to find a judge who can qualify to hear the case.

Both District Judges Dan Hurlbutt and Meehl of Twin Falls have been disqualified.

Woman held on lewd conduct charge

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman is waiting a preliminary hearing on a charge of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor child, after she allegedly assisted a man in a similar charge.

Mary Horton, 32, was arraigned Tuesday in 5th District Magistrate

Court on the felony charge and was held in lieu of $50,000 bond. The complaint against Horton states she assisted Donald Cook, 27, who is charged with lewd and lascivious conduct with a 12-year-old girl. The court appointed the public defender to represent Horton.

Impasse

Continued from Page B1 foreign beef in today's letters carry a more emotional tone. They say independent Meat should not be shopping publicly "Buy Idaho," when it imports some of its products.

Handling imported meat also deprives the work force of the processing time for cattle or pigs that could have been purchased in independent Meat's backyard, they argue.

Florence agrees that between 2.5 percent and 3.9 percent of its products are sold weekly are imported — some boneless beef from Australia and pork bellies and other specialty meat products from Denmark, among them.

However, he says Independent Meat generally does not solicit business for the products, but rather sells imports as a convenience to customers who, for cost reasons, demand them. "We try to sell them (clients) Idaho or domestic products like we always have," he says. They buy from Independent Meat instead of other distributors. As with most labor disputes, the main questions seem to be understood by a maze of details. Some are obvious; some are missing. Some also are factual; others are emotional products of rumors. But the basic questions resolve to the view of executives that the health of the company is at stake, and the conviction of the union that workers cannot afford — and maybe should not be asked — to take further cuts.

Wages are the only issues shown in the table automatically reopened in the 3-year contract.

Richards offers viable theories for students to evaluate and help develop their own beliefs.

Richards' approach was approved by his administration, and so far, I have received no complaints from parents about the material, he said.

"I risk public outcry" and losing teaching credentials for offering interpretations of the Bible or judgments on religion, he said. So he steers clear of conclusions and merely offers religious and scientific alternatives for students to evaluate on their own.

 earlier than usual, said Golden Gardner, Ruff River manager.

The monthly demand charge, which is about $350 on an average pump, is based on the size of the pump, he said.

Estimates on how many people will take advantage of it are not available, he said.

Prior to the new program, irrigators received a discount of 3.7 percent, but allowt hour on their power rates.

Ruff River won't offer an irrigation discount to customers who take advantage of the new program. "If an irrigator runs (pumps) 75 percent of the time, it would be cheaper to go with the irrigation discount," Gardner said.

Unity would also drop the demand charge for irrigators who start pumping earlier, Jones said.

The proposal comes as a time when BPA is facing a $70 million to $80 million net loss at the end of fiscal 1987, due to declining sales. It has proposed making up part of its shortfall by raising rates 8.5 percent.

This is a scaled-down rate increase proposal. An earlier one, seeking an 11.5-percent hike in power sold to rural cooperatives, brought widespread opposition from farmers during a hearing last month in Burley.

Major changes in education approved

BOISE (AP) — With little debate and no vocal dissent, the Idaho Senate has endorsed two major changes in the state's educational structure.

On a 37-3 vote Tuesday, the Senate endorsed a proposed constitutional amendment splitting the state Board of Education into two distinct boards, one governing public schools and one governing higher education.

And moments later on a unanimous vote, the chamber approved revisions in the formula used to distribute over one-third of a billion dollars in state aid to schools in an attempt to close the growing gap in district-by-district support for students across the state.

The change would funnel more state money to the poorer districts but ensure that none of the so-called richer districts would receive less than they have from the state in past years.

Both issues, which now go to the House, were expected to be divisive — the proposal to create two education boards having severely split the Legislature in past sessions. But Senate Education Committee Chairman Terry Sverdsten, R-Cataldo, said supporters of both measures have been laying the ground work for each over the past several months.

The proposal for two education boards was originally recommended in late 1983 by the state Commission on Excellence in Education, sponsored by the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry. As a constitutional amendment, it requires a two-thirds vote in both houses before it can be submitted to voters in November 1988 for final consideration.

Opposing the measure were Republicans Atwell Parry of Malba, Neal Crystal of Lewisville and Lynn Tomlinson of Rupert. Democrat Bruce Sweeney of Lewiston and Republican Jerry Hanson of Boise were absent for both votes.

The push to modify the state-aid allocation formula was prompted by rising indications that some of the poorer-school districts were on the verge of suing the state because the distribution of state dollars has become so inequitable the constitutional mandate that all children be offered a uniform public schooling opportunity was being violated.

The problem, resulting from the divergence in the value of the property each district has to levy its operating taxes on, has intensified since voters approved a property tax limitation plan in 1978. Sverdsten said in some cases the difference between overall support for each student runs 1:1 in poorer districts.

"This disparity among districts is increasing at an alarming rate," he said. "We have a situation in Idaho between the poor and the rich districts by which one student receives $1,700 less (in overall financial backing) than another."

Under the plan, a key factor used in measuring the local financial effort in the formula for distributing state aid is increased from one-quarter of a percent to three-tenths of a percent and then allowed to rise 5 percent each year after that. The annual 5 percent adjustment is the same annual increase allowed under the property tax limitation laws.

Sverdsten said that by the 1991-1992 school year, the formula factor should have reached the point that the current disparity will have essentially eliminated the disparity.

But Sen. Call Bray, D-Boise, a member of the Education Committee, told the Senate that even more revisions in school funding and other school matters must still be made.

Boyd puts tax study request on hold

BOISE (AP) — House Speaker Tom Boyd says he will have to confer with the leadership of the House and Senate before deciding the fate of a request from a northern Idaho state legislator for a major study of the state's property tax system.

Both last week and again on Monday, Rep. Dean Haagenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, has urged the Legislature to do something about its tax system, rather than just talk about the need for change.

Haagenson sent Boyd a formal request for an interim legislative study on property taxes.

Another drinking age bill heads for House floor

BOISE (AP) — Another bill raising Idaho's legal drinking age from 19 to 21 is headed for a vote on the House floor.

With only minimal discussion, the House Transportation and Defense Committee on Tuesday voted 65 to send the bill to the floor for a vote with 60-pass endorsement.

It will be the second time the House has decided whether to meet a federal requirement to raise the drinking age. The first bill was vetoed by Acting Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter as a states' rights issue.

Gov. Cecil Andrus has indicated he probably will sign the latest drinking-age bill. It goes into effect 10 days after the governor signs it into law.

Opposing sending the bill to the floor for a vote were Republicans Ron Slater and Mary Hartung and Democrats Carl Braun, Dorothy McCann and Richard Adams.

Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, said Idaho will lose $4.5 million if it does not meet the congressional requirement to raise the drinking age this year.

Tort reform faces tough Senate vote

BOISE (AP) — The tort reform bill, which already has passed the House, may be in trouble in the Senate, says Rep. James Stoicheff, D-Sandpoint.

On Tuesday he won approval of an alternative, a measure granting the state authority to disapprove increases in liability insurance rates, if they cannot be justified.

The House State Affairs Committee voted unanimously to print and introduce the legislation, although the bill likely is to be assigned to the Business Committee for final action.

The tort reform places a number of restrictions on court judgments and awards from personal injury lawsuits. It was backed by the largest coalition ever put together in Idaho for a single bill, an organization of nearly 150 groups and companies.

Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, Senate president pro tem and a trial lawyer, opposes the legislation and Stoicheff told committee members the tort reform act may not make it through the Senate.

"This is too important an issue to wait until next year," said Stoicheff. In defending introducing a 13-page bill so late in the session.

His proposal calls for insurance companies to submit proposals for increases in liability insurance rates to the Department of Insurance, which would review them to determine if they are justified. Stoicheff said it would cost about $200,000 per year for the Department of Insurance to handle the responsibility.

Stoicheff said the state of Washington has enacted similar legislation, but he had no report on how it is working.

"After the committee meeting," Stoicheff said, "it was not a 'message' bill to the Senate."

"I wouldn't send them a 13-page message," he said.

"If they don't do anything over there (in the Senate) with the tort reform bill, this is needed," he said.

Stoicheff said even if the Senate approves the tort reform bill, his bill is needed to place some restriction on increases in liability insurance rates.

Andrus vetoes employer tax freeze

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus signed his first veto of the 1987 session on Tuesday, rejecting the Legislature's attempt to freeze the unemployment tax charged employers.

Andrus said he would not accept the legislation unless the Legislature also did something for workers, such as restoring benefits trimmed back four years ago.

The proposal was to go to the Senate on Wednesday. It passed that chamber originally 27-15, and Democrat Caucus Chairman Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, said Democrats have enough votes to uphold the veto.

Republican leaders immediately attacked the Andrus veto as anti-business. "I'd hate to think the chief executive was repaying campaign debts, but it makes you wonder when he is willing to take 20 million job-producing dollars out of the economy so easily."

Sponsor Rep. Boyd Hill, R-Meridian, also charged that Andrus was in effect ordering a $20 million tax increase on employers, money that would go into the unemployment trust fund. Instead of being available for the state economy.

"This is a jobs bill. It puts $20 million back in the economy. That opportunity now is lost," said Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise.

Andrus said when the unemployment fund was in trouble four years ago, worker benefits were cut and employer taxes were increased.

Now that the fund has a $97 million balance, Andrus said the Legislature should restore the benefits to workers in addition to giving employers a break.

Andrus called the bill "a one-dimensional approach to the needs of Idaho."

"I cannot agree with an approach that freezes the unemployment tax rate for employers, but fails to understand the legitimate need to restore benefits to workers; benefits which were withdrawn in 1983 while the fund was facing insolvency," said Andrus, in the veto message to the Legislature.

"Now that the fund is once again healthy, we can safely freeze taxes for employers and restore some of the lost benefits to unemployed Idahoans," said Andrus.

He urged the Legislature to press on with a bill that addresses the needs of both employers and employees, not just employers.

Senators say Japan dumping chips

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho's two Republican senators claim the Japanese are cheating on last summer's agreement with the United States to halt dumping of their computer chips on the U.S. market at below their cost of production.

"We're convinced that Japan has not held up its end of the agreement," James McClure and Steve Symms said in a statement issued after a meeting with Deputy U.S. Trade Representative Michael Smith on Tuesday.

"If our trade negotiators can document that, then Ambassador (Clayton) Yeutter will recommend action against Japanese imports," the statement said. "It seems to us it's going to take that kind of leverage to move Japanese chip manufacturers back toward free and fair trade."

The agreement barring dumping was reached after Boise-based Micron Technology, later joined by other American manufacturers, initiated proceedings against the Japanese in the International Trade Commission on grounds they were using unfair trade practices to take over the U.S. computer chip market.

The voluntarily negotiated agreement last year halted further action on Micron's allegations.

But McClure and Symms claimed that since the pact was signed, the Japanese have been circumventing its anti-dumping prohibitions by funneling chips at below their cost of production through third countries, which then dump those chips on the U.S. market.

Land board sticks with plan to sell cottage sites near lakes

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Land Board will continue with its plan to sell state-owned cottage sites at Priest and Priest Lakes, despite protests from leases that the proposal will be "planting the seeds of a major controversy."

The board has been working for months on a plan to sell some of the prime recreation lots at the lakes, to establish market value to set fair rental rates. It voted Tuesday to continue with the plan, despite opposition from Priest Lake cottage owners. There will be some changes in sale plan recommendations made by Department of Lands personnel.

Attorney Scott Reed, representing the Priest Lake Lessees Association, posed a number of problems with the process. He urged instead that the sales be dropped, and the Land Board set up a new committee to negotiate fair rental rates.

That could include Department of Lands employees, the lessees, Bonner County commissioners and area legislators, Reed suggested. He is the husband of Sen. Mary Lou Reed, D-Coeur d'Alene.

Reed said the appraisal and sale process recommended by the Department of Lands was mostly "guesswork," with major unresolved problems.

He said it would violate local or county zoning ordinances and could cause sewage or water problems.

State-owned land around the lakes has been leased for generations for recreation cabins, cottages and in some cases elegant summer homes. The state has been trying to increase rates sharply to more closely reflect the value of the lakefront land. Comparable private land sells for upwards of $1,000 per foot of waterfront.

After an estimate of the value of the land produced suggested rents in some cases quadrupled, the Land Board decided to sell some of the lots to establish real market value.

But that hasn't been easy. The recommendations adopted on Tuesday call for appraisals to be finished by summer, cottage owners to be given an opportunity to buy, and then some of the property to be put up for public auction by August.

A report from Lands employee Lance Nielsen suggested a couple of major changes to enhance the value of state lots.

He said the state has a vast amount of secondary lots which could be worth up to $40 million if guaranteed access to beaches or waterfront.

The department suggested preserving key lots to guarantee access. One of those discussed Tuesday is held by Idaho industrialist J.R. Simplot.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said he went along with the idea of withdrawing the Simplot lot and six others from possible sale. But he said he would not vote to have the state hold the lots permanently until he sees plans for the area.

Andrus also suggested looking for improved lots that could guarantee access to the lakes and beaches. Nielsen said there aren't any.

Petitions for recall turned in

CALDWELL (AP) — A group seeking to oust three of Caldwell's six city council members has turned in petitions with more than the required 1,662 names to force a recall election.

But the signatures must be verified against voter registration lists before the petitions are declared valid, said Canyon County election director Beth Fergusson.

Two of the three council members, Jack Carter and Duane Marcus, said Monday they will not resign. The third, Kent Marmon, declined comment.

The petitions were circulated by a group called Citizens for Intelligent Government, which claims the three members gave Caldwell a negative image when they disagreed with Mayor Pete Cowles.

City services were suspended for a short time recently when the council refused to honor Cowles' recommendation to reappoint a number of city managers, finally rehiring them.

"I think that the recall effort is not warranted... the effort itself," Carter said. "If we were guilty of malfeasance or criminal acts... but just because we disagree occasionally with the mayor is not reason enough for a recall."

"There's no real reason for this except for some political aspirations of some people," Ms. Marcus said.

Petition spokesman Wayne Hopper said the three council members have not provided enough information to the public or how much money the city has.

"Why should our property taxes be raised another 5 percent when they are sitting there with $3 million unbudgeted dollars? Why do we have a $1,000 shortfall in the Irrigation budget when we have over $89,000 in that fund that is not budgeted and consequently can't be spent?" Hopper said.

Former Boise teacher faces prison terms

BOISE (AP) — A former Boise teacher has been sentenced to three seven-year prison terms on sexual abuse charges.

In handing down the sentence to Terry Swenson, 31, on Monday, 4th District Judge Deborah Bail said the concurrent sentences were necessary to send a message to other potential offenders.

Swenson, a former fifth-grade teacher at Whittier Elementary School, pleaded guilty to three charges of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor under 16. A criminal complaint accused him of fondling a 10-year-old boy and an 11-year-old boy in 1984.

He was arrested after other teachers at the school contacted authorities, said Ada County Chief Deputy Prosecutor Roger Bourne, who asked for three 10-year concurrent sentences.

Swenson told the court Monday he was now active in the SANE (Sexual Abuse Now Ended) program and was trying to rehabilitate himself.

"It is just inescapable to me that a person of your background didn't immediately cut it off and seek help," Judge Bail said.

Magistrate's wife enters guilty plea

CALDWELL (AP) — The wife of Canyon County Magistrate Jack Swafford has pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter in the traffic death of an elderly Caldwell man.

Lisa Swafford, 20, entered the plea on Monday in the death of Wayne Allen Hume, 62, who died last Oct. 14 when his car was hit from behind by a Mrs. Swafford's vehicle.

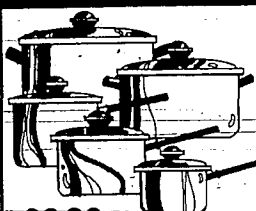

Mrs. Swafford was issued a withhold judgment and suspended 120-day jail sentence. She was placed on two years probation and ordered to perform 100 hours of community service. If the probation and community service are completed without incident her record will be expunged.

Hobbyists drop search for documents

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Before Mark Hofmann agreed to plea bargain that saved him from execution for two 1985 bombings murders, one joke making the rounds was that he would be freed because he had a pardon signed by President Lincoln.

The joke illustrates the damage Hofmann has done to the hobby of collecting historical documents. Authorities say Hofmann resorted to murder on Oct. 15, 1985, to cover up a scheme to forge historical documents, many involving early Mormon Church leaders.

The forgery debacle has scared off many hobbyists who otherwise might collect antique papers, particularly those related to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Dealer Paul Hartunian said hobbyists across the country are aware of the Hofmann scandal, "and they're very concerned about it."

Most of Hofmann's forged documents were purportedly from the 19th century and supposedly shed new light on early Mormon history. If authentic, they would have been among the most valuable papers, journals and notes in private hands.

"Mormon collecting is very popular," Hartunian said.

"The Brigham Young and (Joseph) Smith material has always been popular. Brigham Young's signature — just a little signature on a piece of paper — would sell for $225. But if he signed an important document, it would go way up, into the thousands and thousands."

Hobbyists have become afraid of investing in some valuable manuscript, because it might turn out to be a fake. Hartunian finds that a sad development.

"It's just so tempting" to forge a document, he said. "That's the real problem. Elvis Presley, for instance, has a signature that's so easy to forge."

Stamps and coins, also popular with collectors, are difficult and expensive to forge. That's not the case with documents.

"All you have to do is pick up a pen and give it a shot," he said.

Unfortunately, he said, many forgeries are cleverly done and well researched. Some professionals may be able to detect the falsification, "but an amateur just isn't going to be able to tell," he said.

Idahoans join spud fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho Reps. Richard Stallings and Larry Craig have joined more than two dozen of their colleagues in calling for U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Youtter to take action against South Korea's "highly restrictive" barriers to U.S. potato exports.

In a letter to Youtter, the congressmen urged Youtter to repeat his efforts to last summer in successfully negotiating a reduction from 37.5 percent to 30 percent in the tariff placed on U.S. potatoes by Taiwan.

The letter cites South Korean restrictions including an import quota of 150 metric tons set in 1985 and a 50-percent duty on all potato imports.

"This increased intensification of trade barriers concerns us greatly, particularly in light of the excessive bilateral trade surplus enjoyed by South Korea."

New public defender due in sex trial

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Blackfoot accountant Gary Higgins will be represented by a public defender in his second trial on nine felony charges of sex-related crimes against his daughter.

Higgins was tried in October for count of lewd and lascivious conduct, two counts of incest and six counts of rape. The charges were brought by his daughter Lisa, who testified that the crimes occurred from the time she was 13 until she left home a year ago at 18.

Former 7th District Judge Arnold Beebe declared a mistrial in the case when the jury deadlocked 11 to one in favor of conviction.

Higgins and his former attorney, Stephen Blaser, appeared Monday before 7th District Judge James Herndon and requested Blaser be released as Higgins' attorney because Higgins could no longer afford to pay him. Herndon granted this request but denied another motion that Blaser be appointed by the court and paid by the county to represent Higgins.

Blaser argued he should be appointed because the case was so complicated and he had spent so much time working on it. Herndon disagreed and ordered a public defender to be appointed to represent Higgins.

The state also will have a new prosecutor for the case. Marc Haws, former deputy attorney general, prosecuted Higgins in the first trial. Haws since has gone to work for a Utah-based computer firm. His replacement, Peter Erbland, will prosecute the case at the second trial, which is scheduled for April 7.

Lawyer says street utility fee not a tax

POCATELLO (AP) — Pocatello's controversial street utility fee is legal and not a tax in disguise, City Attorney Ivan Legier says.

The city's claim is contained in a legal brief filed Monday by Legier in response to an antedated lawsuit brought by attorney Steve Larsen, representing Al Brewster, Logan Robinson, Glen Marshall, Isaac and Ann McDougall and others who are fighting the street fee.

Legier's brief, filed in 6th District Court, contends that the Pocatello City Council in June, 1985, acted within the authority of state law and the Idaho Constitution in imposing the fee.

In August, Brewster filed suit against the city claiming the monthly street utility fee actually was a tax. His complaint was filed about three weeks after the city began charging residents for street repairs and maintenance.

City officials have repeatedly denied the allegation. In its brief, the city is seeking $2,000 in attorney fees from opponents.

Besides the street fee issue, the city also denied allegations from Brewster that the city's practice of funding ambulance service with fees and taxes was contrary to law.

Legier argued in his brief that using tax dollars from both city and county sources is not double taxation.

The case will be decided by 6th District Judge William Woodland. A hearing date has not been set.

Caldwell infant dies in accident

CALDWELL (AP) — A Caldwell infant has been killed in a vehicle accident south of Caldwell.

Mario Alberto Alaniz, 6 months, and his mother were in the passenger seat of the vehicle being backed out of a parking space by his father Monday, The Canyon County sheriff's office said.

As the vehicle made a circular turn, the passenger door came open. The child and mother were ejected and the infant was run over by the vehicle.

The parents' names are Alberto and Margarita Alaniz, of Caldwell, a sheriff's deputy said.

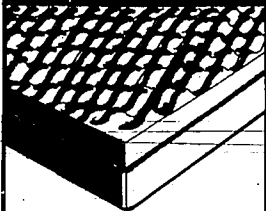

Canyon County Child Deputy Coroner Tim Lewis said the child died instantly of head injuries.

Experience the taste of the Emerald Isle

St. Patrick's Day

Good old St. Patrick! Irish legend tells us many tales about this famous saint. Some say St. Patrick could raise the dead, banish evil spirits and make fire blaze from snow. Others remember him as the saint who drove all venomous snakes from Ireland by the beat of his drum. But, most of all, St. Patrick is remembered as the saint who spread the word of Christianity to the Emerald Isle.

Today, people of all nationalities gather together to commemorate the death of this famous saint by wearing a bit o' th' green, sipping a few drafts and settlin' down to a hearty lamb stew.

Celebrate St. Patrick's Day in style this year with Emerald Isle Lamb n' Barley Stew made special with fresh American lamb. Tender cubes of lamb shoulder and flavorful neck slices are the winning ingredients in this recipe. The shoulder is an excellent cut for soups or stews and can also be enjoyed as chops or a boned, rolled and tied roast. Neck slices are an often overlooked cut of lamb that is economical and adds delicious flavor to a variety of recipes.

Emerald Isle Lamb n' Barley Stew is quick to prepare, needs little attention while cooking and is ready to enjoy in no more than two hours. The lamb is quickly browned, locking in juices, and added to sauteed carrots, onions, celery and turnips. Mixed with a delightful blend of chicken stock, tomatoes, barley, parsley and seasonings, this stew becomes a mouthwatering combination of flavors. Serving fresh American lamb for St. Patrick's Day couldn't be easier.

Two other recipes to enjoy for the holiday are Creamy Leek and Potato Lamb Stew and Irish Currant-Lamb Chops—again featuring lamb shoulder, these recipes may become St. Patrick's Day traditions in your home. Serve with crusty slices of Irish Soda Bread or hot dark rolls and frosty mugs of golden ale for an unforgettable St. Patrick's Day celebration.

Beloved spud links Ireland to Idaho

What do Idaho and Ireland have in common? Yep, the greatest link between the two is the beloved potato.

Did you know before the great potato famine in Ireland, Irish peasant families ate an average of 10 pounds of potatoes PER PERSON each day? Boy, if we could get that kind of consumption going in the USA, Idaho would be the richest state in the union.

There's been a lot of nonsense lately mouthed by some who would like to put our "lowly" potato down. Actually the potato is the one crop in Idaho that is doing quite well.

We supply over a fourth of the potatoes to the United States, and that's quite a job, because every state grows some of their own. There are nearly 3,000 potato growers in Idaho, and they produced over 8 billion (that's BILLION) pounds of tubers last year.

Now that crop was worth a mere $450 million dollars in the raw state. However, after you take into consideration the total industry, that figure grows to over a BILLION dollars for Idaho. There are over 30,000 people directly employed by this industry. I guess I'm on a bandstand and not an exactly objective person when it comes to this delicious product. But in the last six years my husband and I have been in 26 countries promoting Idaho Potatoes, and not once have we even felt like hanging our heads. Instead we've been pleased and oftentimes overwhelmed by the recognition that our potatoes have given our state.

Maybe those that are ashamed of the potato ought to think twice about the old adage, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it!" Now for the recipes. It's really hard to find a recipe for Idaho potatoes; I have over 15 inches of files on recipes for our most famous export. If I ran one a day for 50 years, I would need just over 18,000 recipes, and I have no doubt I could do it.

Here are a couple you might like to try.
SAVORY SALMON-TOPPED POTATOES
4 Idaho (R) potatoes

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 1/2 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 1 large can (1 pound) salmon, drained and flaked
- 1/2 cup chopped, canned pimiento
- 1/2 cup chopped, pitted; black olives
- Scrub potatoes, dry and prick with a fork. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 55 to 60 minutes, until soft (squeezable). While baking, prepare this topping:
- In a medium saucepan, melt butter. Add flour and cook 3 minutes over medium heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and gradually stir in milk.
- Return to heat and bring to a boil. Reduce the heat and cook 5 minutes. Then add the mustard and hot sauce and fold in the salmon. Just before serving, stir in pimiento and black olives.
- IMPORTANT: You should never cut a potato open with a knife, it's best to take a fork and stick the tines into it in a line or an X shape on top, then blossom the potato open with your hands by squeezing and pushing the ends.

Rachel Nickels displays one of her Irish tea towels

Irish immigrants keep the culture alive

By JOAN BEAN Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — On March 17, it seems there is a bit o' the Irish in most of us, but Maggie Arrington and her mother, Rachel Nickels, are the real McCoy. Though both are American citizens now, they were born in Ireland — where except for a school holiday — not much fuss is made of St. Patrick's Day.

In 1972, at age 16, Arrington came over here by herself and was met at the airport by her brother, Alfred Nickels, who was living in Idaho Falls at the time. She was "immediately introduced to American fast food."

"I got a hamburger," she says, "and bit into it. I bit into a dill pickle — and I thought I was dead. The taste of that was just terrible. To this day, I can't eat them (dill pickles)."

"The root beer was O.K., but I'm not too crazy about it, even now. It tasted like an antiseptic," she says.

There were no fast-food restaurants as we know them in Ireland.

"When we went to a movie or something," she says, "we got fish and chips. That was our thing. We'd get them wrapped in newspaper. They drained the grease, and wrapped them in the newspaper, and salted them."

She adapted very well to American culture — so much so, that when she returned to Ireland after eight months here, she says she was very unhappy. "I knew I wanted to live in America. I knew this is where I wanted to be," she says.

"When she had the opportunity to work as a nanny in 1974, she jumped the chance and has not been back to Ireland."

"I have no regrets. This is where I want to be. This is where I want to raise my children. Why I was born and raised in Ireland, I don't know, but this is where I was meant to be. This believe," she says.

Arrington's parents, three brothers and two sisters all live in the United States now. Her mother, Rachel Nickels, shares her enthusiasm for their adopted country.

"We love it," she says. "It has been really good for us here. My husband said when we were on the plane that we had burned our bridges, and couldn't look back. We made up our minds we were going to make a go of it here, and we did it."

Nickels keeps the culture of the old country alive for her 15 grand children, by telling them what life was like in Ireland. She also shares Irish-folklore with children in the community.

"They (the Irish) have stories about giants all over the place. And leprechauns are the little folk — they're the faerie folk," she says.

"Asked if she believes in leprechauns, she answers in a delightful brogue, "I wouldn't say we didn't believe in them, but you have to be up very early in the morning to see them."

Once when she was speaking to a group of children, she showed them a leprechaun doll, and asked if they would each like to become one of these little folk.

They did, even when she warned them that even though she could tell them how to become a leprechaun, she would not be able to reverse the process.

The first step was to have them roll up their sleeves.

"They did that," she says. "And I said, 'Are you sure this is what you want to do? You want to become a faerie?'" They said "Yes," so I said, "Okay — kiss your elbow."

"Those kids were like cotton-woolists. You should have seen them trying to kiss their elbows!"

Though the Irish folklore is unique, she says, for the most part, the food is similar to ours. There are some differences in the way it is served. Jello is a dessert, not a salad, and salads are usually a part of the meal, instead of in a side dish.

"I would have a plate, and spread it out about three lettuce leaves," she says. "Then, if I was having a chicken, I would put it on the plate, or if I was having ham, I would put it on the plate."

"On top of the lettuce leaves, I would sliced tomatoes, sliced cucumbers, carrot sticks. I would arrange those with chicken, or maybe serve french fries with the salad. We call them 'chips.'"

Here is her recipe for Irish stew.

- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 1/2 cup parsley stalks
- 1/2 cup celery tops
- Put into saucepan or Kettle. Cover with cold water. Season to taste with salt and pepper and bring to a boil, slowly. Skim off fat. It is best to let stand overnight before skimming. Then simmer gently over lowest heat possible for 1 1/2 to 2 hours, until meat is tender. Add vegetables, and cook until tender.

And, the following is another Irish dish, called ...

POUNDIES OR CHAMP

- Wash and peel three pints of potatoes. Boil in saucepan until fully cooked. Mash them. Wash about 1 dozen spring onions, and chop small. Add to mashed potatoes. Mix onions well into the mashed potatoes, adding a little milk, approximately 1/2 cup, as you go along. Season with salt and pepper. Put it on a plate, and make a hollow in the center. Put butter in hollow.

The next recipe came about, she says, because "at one time in Ireland, people were very poor. Food was very scarce — not so much scarce, as much as the English landlords sent it over to England, and left the Irish people without the time of the famine."

- IRISH STEW
- 1 1/2 pounds mutton or lamb, cut in 1 1/2 inch cubes
- 3/4 pound potatoes, sliced
- 3/4 pound onions, sliced

- IRISH SODA FARNS
- 5/8 pint all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Consumers will be rewarded if they persevere on refunds

By MARTIN SLOANE

Here is a letter from a reader in Nebraska who experienced problems getting a manufacturer's refund that she deserved — problems that would cause most people to give up in frustration. Kathryn Murray deserves an award for her perseverance:

Dear Martin — I purchased a store-bought appliance on which there was a $4 refund. Since it was Christmas, an additional $2 was offered. I sent in my proof of purchase, the sales receipt and the mail-in form and waited for my $6 refund.

Two months went by, and when nothing happened I wrote to the address of the offer and enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Six weeks later I received a check. Still no reply.

I wrote to the action editor of our local newspaper. After his inquiry, I received a letter from the fulfillment company, Young America, stating that the offer was no longer available. Enclosed were my two letters of inquiry — unopened.

About that time, your column encouraged readers who had problems like this to write to the president of the company that made the offer. I did, and I enclosed copies of all the correspondence.

Eight months after I first sent for a refund, I finally received my check for $6. — Kathryn Murray, Hastings, Neb.

Supermarket shopper

While it took Kathryn several letters and many months to see her problem solved, some problems get solved quickly. Consider this letter from a reader from Corvallis, Ind.:

Dear Martin — I recently sent for a Colgate refund that promised $1 plus the return of my postage. Several weeks later, I received an envelope, and inside were two checks. One was for $1 and said it was only redeemable at "Kains," a store I had never heard of. The second check was for 22 cents, and just cashing it would have cost me more than its value.

Needless to say, I was perturbed. I wrote to the Colgate company and returned the two checks. A short while later, I received a letter from Colgate apologizing for my inconvenience. Along with the letter was a check for $1.25 and a coupon for a free package of Colgate toothpaste.

So it does pay to air your complaints. — Mrs. Carl Ely, Corvallis, Ind.

Have you had a problem with a manufacturer's product or promotion offer? Whether your experience was a triumph or a minor tragedy, please write and share your experience with other readers. Write to me in care of this newspaper.

Use dried herbs to create some extra flavor

covered, light-proof containers in a cool, dry place — not above the range. Heat, moisture and light rob herbs of flavor.

To use a dried leaf herb, measure it first, then finely crush it in the palm of your hand or with a mortar and pestle before adding it to the mixture.

Go easy adding dried herbs at first. Begin by adding one herb at a time, about 1/4 teaspoon for each 4 servings. If you want a stronger flavor, add more herb gradually, tasting as you go, until you're satisfied.

Add whole herbs such as bay leaves at the beginning of long cooking periods to draw out more flavor.

Ground herbs tend to lose flavor when cooked for a long time. To prevent flavor fade-out, stir ground herbs into soups, stews and pasta sauces during the last few minutes of cooking.

Spoon the topping over the potatoes and serve.

This would make a great Lenten meal.

If you want a good quick meal from potatoes, here is a recipe that calls for a package of dehydrated Idaho or grain potatoes (5.5 ounce size).

IDAHO SUNSHINE CASSEROLE

23 pound link sausages (the original recipe called for regular sweet sausage, but the hot worked just as well.)

1 cup sliced green pepper

1 cup sliced onion
1 can (1 pound) whole tomatoes
1 package dehydrated or grain potatoes (the scalloped packages would work well too)
1/2 teaspoon pepper
4 eggs

In a large skillet brown the sausage over medium heat, then remove and set aside. Pour off the fat and return 2 tablespoons to skillet. Sauté the green pepper and onion in the fat over medium heat until soft.

Drain the tomatoes, reserving the liquid. Add water to the liquid to measure 3/4 cups. Chop the tomatoes.

Add the liquid, tomatoes, potatoes and contents of sauce packet, sausages and pepper to the skillet. Mix well and heat to boiling, stirring frequently.

Reduce heat, cover and simmer for 25 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Stir occasionally.

Make 4 depressions in the potato mixture and break an egg into each. Cover and cook for 5 more minutes or until eggs are set. There you have dinner for four.

Enjoy those potatoes!

Irish

1/2 pint buttermilk or sour milk
1/4 cup oil, add soda and salt. Stir in buttermilk or sour milk. Mix until dough is soft. Knead very lightly. Turn out onto floured board, and shape into a round, about 1/2-inch thick, and cut into quarters. Bake on a floured griddle (preferably an iron skillet) for four minutes. Or, bake in a floured pan in oven at 350 degrees, about 45 minutes.

Here is another Irish bread.

IRISH POTATO BREAD

Mix 8 ounces mashed potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 or 2 ounces butter, sufficient flour, with a little milk to make a stiff dough. Roll out to 1/4 inch thickness, and cut into pieces. Cook on a griddle or hotplate, browning on both sides. Cook until both sides are done.

Nickels says she used to buy a breast of lamb, and ask the butcher to remove the little rib bones. She would then spread it on aluminum foil, and spread turkey dressing over the lamb, roll and tie it. With string, and bake it in the oven at 350 degrees for one hour. She would then reduce the heat to 300 degrees and bake another half hour.

Traditionally, the farns are baked on open fireplaces.

"They had a metal arm on the chimney, and they pulled that down," she says. "There was a part where they could hang a kettle to boil water or another arm where they could put their griddle, and this was done over the teak fire.

The flour was brushed off the griddle with a goose feather, each time they put a new batch of bread on the griddle, she says.

Soda farns are cut into four triangles, then arranged standing with the four points coming together so air circulates through them.

"When they serve you fried eggs and bacon back home, they serve you Irish potato bread," she says. And here's one more Irish recipe.

IRISH BANNOCK

Mix 8 ounces whole-wheat flour, 1/4 cup oil, 1/2 cup water, 1 level teaspoon soda and 1 teaspoon salt. Make a well in the mixture and stir in sufficient buttermilk to make a firm dough. Put on a floured board and turn again. Put into a greased layer cake pan, and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. Run a knife across in a criss-cross not all the way through, so it can be broken in four and sliced after it has been baked.

Study shows variety of food stimulates voracious appetite

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — 4,000 new food products introduced each year to the American palate, the lure of more than 15,000 varieties of food displayed in the average supermarket, according to a researcher at State University of New York at Binghamton.

In a test involving 90 students, Connor told them to eat as much as they wished of their single favorite of three possible foods. In another test, they were directed to eat as much as they wished of all three.

Offered the variety, most consumed more and demonstrated less self-control.

"These people might end up eating everything at a buffet, even if they are already full," Connor says.

Some of the variety stimulated their appetites. Some people find it impossible to stop eating once they start, and the more food choices they face the harder it is for them to control their intake.

Connor found women tended to eat more than men, under the same test circumstances, and she speculates this could be linked to the fact that most information on food preparation, consumption and purchase is directed at women.

"Women's magazines are filled with food ads and articles not found in men's magazines," she says.

Prepare potato bread for your favorite leprechaun

The potato has played a major role in the course of Irish history. In the 1840s, a blight wiped out the crop and a severe famine resulted. More than a million Irish men, women and children emigrated overseas.

Times have changed. However, the land follows the legend of St. Patrick. An old Irish saying has it that Saint Patrick turns the warm side of the stone uppermost, and today farmers still start planting their potatoes on March 17.

Why not bake a loaf of Potato Bread for your favorite leprechaun? For the Irish "a day without potatoes is a day without nourishment."

POTATO BREAD

- 3 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup mashed boiled potato, at room temperature
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 package rapid-rise yeast
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- Cornmeal

Set aside 1 cup flour. In large bowl, mix remaining flour, mashed potato, sugar, salt and yeast. In saucepan, over low heat, heat milk, water and margarine or butter until hot to touch (125 to 130 degrees); stir into dry mixture. Mix only enough reserved flour to make soft dough. On lightly floured surface, knead 4 minutes.

Roll dough to 16x8-inch rectangle; roll up from long edge as for jelly roll; seal seam and end. Place on greased baking sheet sprinkled with cornmeal; cover. Place large shallow pan on counter, half-filled with boiling water. Place baking sheet over pan; let dough rise 20 minutes.

Cut 3 slashes on top of loaf. Beat egg white and cold water; brush on loaf. Sprinkle with cornmeal. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheet; cool on wire rack.

"I'm sick of her ruining our lives."

When confronted with a mental illness, families experience a wide range of emotional responses: From outrage to shame and denial. They often blame victims for causing worry, embarrassment, family strife. And they often blame themselves.

But mental illness is no one's fault. Least of all those afflicted. It's a serious medical illness that affects one in four families—afflicting 35 million Americans from all walks of life.

Recognizing the warning signs and seeking treatment for your loved one can be the first steps to reducing family fears and confusion. And to actually healing the sickness. Today, mental illness need not be hopeless.

Young chef achieves success with simple, elegant meals

By MARIE BIANCO
Newsday

Steve Schimoler always wanted to be a chef. His idol was Graham Kerr, because "he always looked like he was having a good time cooking on TV," Schimoler says, "especially when he was pouring himself a glass or two of wine."

As one of six children, Schimoler, now 28, was encouraged to spend time in the kitchen sharing the cooking chores. It wasn't unusual to have 12 family members and friends seated around the dinner table. His experience with mass feeding had begun.

Schimoler was attending Paul Smiths College in upstate New York when the entire school moved during the 1980 Winter Olympics, and all the students worked in Lake Placid feeding the athletes.

"It was my first experience with exotic food, including how to cook wild boar," he says. "There were 20 different head chefs from all over the world, all arguing and bickering at the same time about how to prepare the seven meals that had to be cooked every day. It was a circus." But he was hooked.

After graduation Schimoler worked for the Marriott Corp., which at the time was feeding 50,000 people a day at the Great America theme park in Chicago. Later Schimoler ran 22 different food operations at "Playland in Rye Beach, N.Y."

After feeding thousands, Schimoler switched gears and bought a small restaurant, Terrace on the Plaza, in Locust Valley, N.Y., in 1984. So it wasn't totally unexpected that he set up a catering operation, Terrace Too, in the restaurant.

"When I went from small cocktail parties to black-tie dinners for 300 in two months," he says. But the Terrace on the Plaza kitchen was too small for mass cooking, and in 1984 he moved the catering operation to Loafers, a bakery and cheese store in Locust Valley.

"A year ago, while Schimoler was busy operating all three of his enterprises, he was offered a 20-year lease to open a restaurant in Tower Square, a complex of elegant shops in East Norwich, N.Y. "I rose to the challenge," he says. "It was hard to say no." (He later sold Terrace on the Plaza.)

The new restaurant, Black Walnut, is only three blocks from where he lives with his wife, Nora, and children: Stephen, who will be 2 in May, and 6-month-old Kirsten.

Schimoler wanted Black Walnut to be simple and elegant, and the food to be the same. "Simple food means the flavors should shine," he says. "You should taste the vegetables — not the garlic, not the heavy sauce."

Even in his swordfish recipe below, the jalapeno pepper is subtle and does not mask the flavor of the fish. "We do as little as possible to the raw product, so you know whether it's venison or steak or fillet of flounder."

When it came to naming the restaurant, "we were looking for something historically or geographically significant," says Schimoler. In his father's basement that stood at an intersection very close to the restaurant.

A committee that was responsible for disposing of the tree gave a limb to Schimoler's father, a veterinarian with a talent for carving in wood. The restaurant became the Black Walnut, and from the limb, Schimoler's father carved a 2-foot likeness of St. Francis, the patron saint of animals, which stands in a corner of the dining room.

The following recipes for grilled swordfish and stir-fry vegetables display Schimoler's flair for combining flavors so that they remain identifiable while complementing each other. The recipe for the jalapeno butter may be more than required. The rest may be used for vegetables, grilled chicken or beef.

GRILLED SWORDFISH WITH JALAPENO LIME BUTTER
1 1/2 pounds butter, preferably unsalted, at room temperature
1/4 tablespoons shallots, minced
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1/4 tablespoons minced fresh ginger root
1 1/2 tablespoons fresh cilantro or leaf parsley, chopped fine
1/4 cup freshly squeezed lime juice
2 tablespoons freshly grated lime zest
2 tablespoons fresh minced jalapeno peppers, lengthwise, seeds removed 1 teaspoon cummin seed
1/2 teaspoon salt

6 to 8 swordfish steaks, 3/4 inch thick, weighing 8 to 10 ounces apiece
1/4 pound butter, room temperature

1. Cream the butter and add shallots, garlic, ginger, cilantro, lime juice, lime zest, jalapeno, cummin and salt. Blend thoroughly and set aside, unrefrigerated, for three hours for flavors to meld.

2. If using a propane gas grill, preheat at highest temperature for 10 minutes with top closed. If using charcoal, heat until embers are white-hot. Lower grill as close as possible to coals.

3. Brush both sides of swordfish with plain butter.

4. Lay the swordfish at a 45-degree angle across the bars of the grill. To obtain diamond grill marks, midway through the cooking time, turn the whole piece to an opposite 45-degree angle.

5. Cook swordfish 2 1/2 minutes on each side. After turning, brush liberally with jalapeno-lime butter. Remove fish from grill and top with another tablespoon of butter. Allow fish to rest 2 minutes before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

BLACK WALNUT'S STIR-FRY VEGETABLES
2 tablespoons vegetable oil or clarified butter
1 cup sugar snap peas or snow peas
1 cup julienned carrots
1 cup julienned red pepper

1 cup julienned yellow pepper
1 cup julienned green pepper
1 cup 1/2-inch broccoli florets
1 cup 1/2-inch cauliflower florets
1 cup julienned zucchini
1 cup shredded red cabbage
3 tablespoons water
Salt and white pepper to taste
2 tablespoons softened butter

1. Cut vegetables by hand into uniform, 2 1/2-inch-long julienne strips.
2. Heat a 10-inch saute pan and add oil. Add peas, carrots, peppers, broccoli and cauliflower. Stir fry 1 1/2 minutes. Add zucchini and cabbage. Cook 30 seconds. Add water, season with salt and pepper. Add butter and toss until-melted. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Noted vintner recommends top choices in sweet treats

By BARBARA HANSEN
Los Angeles Times

What desserts would wine makers serve with the sweet wines they produce? Anything from cakes and tarts to ice cream and fruit, depending upon the character of the wine. Dessert-wine specialist Andrew Quady recommends that the wine be at least as sweet as the dessert it is to accompany.

"As there come more and more familiar with these wines, we're going to see lots of interesting pairing," he said.

One example is a chocolate cake flavored with dried ancho chile created around Quady's Orange Muscat wine, Essensia. The cake, which is topped with the glaze and served with a wine sauce, was created by Susan Andrews, pastry chef at the Fourth Street Grill in Berkeley, Calif., and is a popular dessert at that restaurant.

The recipe for a plainer cake made with Essensia appeared in the Good Cook's Almanac, a booklet formerly issued monthly by Bon Appetit, a gourmet grocery with outlets in San Francisco, Tiburon and Danville, Calif.

been sprinkled with bread crumbs. Return remaining batter to mixer. Slowly beat in Chocolate Syrup, remaining 1/2 teaspoon baking soda and ancho chile. Spread in even layer on top of first mixture in bundt pan. Cover pan loosely with foil. Bake at 350 degrees 30 minutes. Remove foil. Bake 40 minutes longer or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool pan on rack 10 to 15 minutes. Remove cake from pan. Brush all over with Essensia Glaze. Until all glaze has been incorporated. Serve cake at room temperature with Essensia Sauce. Makes 10 servings.

Chocolate Syrup
1 1/4 cups water
6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons honey
10 ounces semisweet chocolate
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
Place 3/4 cup water, 1/4 cup butter, honey and chocolates in top of double boiler. Heat very gently over simmering water until mixture blends together and sets.
Remove from heat and stir in remaining 2 tablespoons butter and remaining 1/4 cup water. Set aside 1/2 cup syrup for cake. Reserve remainder for another use.

Essensia Glaze
Juice of 1/2 orange Juice of 1/2 lemon
1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons Essensia wine
Combine orange and lemon juices and sugar in small saucepan. Heat until sugar dissolves. Remove from heat and stir in wine.

Essensia Sauce
6 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup orange juice
Juice of 1/2 lemon
Grated zest of 1/2 orange
Grated zest of 1/2 lemon
3 tablespoons Essensia wine

Combine sugar, cornstarch, orange and lemon juices and zest in small saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to full boil. Reduce heat and cook 1 minute longer, until sauce thickens. Do not overcook or sauce will be bitter. Remove from heat and stir in wine. Strain and cool. Serve at room temperature.

DESSERT WINE SAUCE PAPANIGI
1/2 cup fortified Muscat wine
1/2 cup honey
2 1/2 tablespoons unsalted butter
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
Dash salt
Grated peel of 1 lemon
Sliced or chopped toasted almonds

Place wine in small saucepan and warm over medium heat. Stir in honey, butter, lemon juice, nutmeg, salt and lemon peel. Cook gently until blended. Cool to room temperature. Drizzle sauce over cake, ice cream, frozen yogurt or fruit. Sprinkle almonds over top. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Early spring is best time for pruning

Pruning is one of the earliest gardening activities. The best time to prune most trees and shrubs is early in the spring before new growth starts.

March, April and most of May are excellent times to prune. Plants can also be pruned at other times too, but spring is best for most plants. New growth quickly seals the pruning wounds. It is also easier to see what to prune on deciduous plants when they don't have leaves.

Allen Wilson
gardening

The main reasons for pruning ornamental shrubs and trees is to remove dead or broken branches, reduce the size or improve the shape. Whenever a branch is pruned, it should be pruned just above a leaf or bud or side branch.

Unless you want thick, hedge-like growth, do not use hedge shears to prune. Make each cut individually. Slagger the length of pruning cuts to give a more natural appearance. This is particularly true if you are reducing the size of an overgrown shrub. Pruning cuts can often be hidden under an overhanging branch.

Fruit trees need regular yearly pruning for best quality of fruit. With large trees, the main pruning job is to thin out the excess branches which are growing inward or rubbing against other branches.

Young fruit trees need training to develop branches low enough for easy picking. Have a leaflet on pruning which includes information on pruning ornamentals and both large and small fruit trees.

Supergrass never requires weeding

By the Associated Press

Picture this: A lawn that seldom needs watering, never requires weeding or fertilizing and looks fine with only three mowings a season.

That's the prediction of Jan Welter, University of Alberta (Canada) genetics professor, based on research following his discovery of one plot of weed-free grass half the height of adjacent weed-filled plots. He was checking select-grass plantings at the time. Welter says the supergrass, gathered from the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains and perfected during 12 years of work, eventually could replace varieties used now in lawns around the world. The grass grows in poor soil under most climatic conditions and reproduces without pollination sort of by immaculate conception," the professor says. His grass excretes a natural herbicide that discourages most other weed seedlings from growing, although Canadian thistle and dandelion weeds already in the soil may continue to grow, he says.

'Bugwiser' leads list of new gardening 'twoos'

By EARL ARONSON

Along with the garden seed and plant catalogs come handsome garden equipment brochures to help decide the hours until planting time. Some of the items are intriguing. One company, Rugg Manufacturing, Greenfield, MA 01301, offers "Twoos," indicating multi-use, convertible garden tools "to appeal to every gardener who has ever had to long-handled garden chores with a short-handled tool."

Quiche makes easy freeze-ahead food

This quiche tastes fresh as just-made even though the crust filled with cheese and vegetables is a convenient freeze-ahead. Wrap and store the pastry carefully so it does not break or crack. To serve, beat and pour in the egg-cream mixture and bake. Don't try to freeze the egg-cream mixture with the crust and vegetables; the outside of the quiche will overcook before the center is done.

VEGETABLE QUICHE

- 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup shortening or lard
- 3 to 4 tablespoons cold water
- 1/2 cup shredded Swiss cheese
- 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup shredded carrot
- 1/2 cup sliced green onion

The system features an add-on extender handle that can be used with any of the nine crafted garden tools in the line. There is a special package of one extender handle and three superior hand tools — a three-prong cultivator, a wide-bladed digging trowel and a small spring rake. A new polyethylene "Bugwiser," a 1 and 1/2-gallon capacity sprayer from H.D. Hudson (500 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60611) is lightweight, easy to use, ideal for small yards and gardens. It is useful around the house for cleaning windows and screens, removing mildew from bathroom tiles, spraying plants for fleas, spraying fabric protectants on furniture and clothing, preserving wood, misting houseplants.

Handy for the garden is a nylon garden tarp, 5 feet by 5 feet, with a seamed-in, nylon gathering rope exposed on all four corners. Ideal for gathering and hauling leaves, weeds and garden debris to dump or compost piles.

Brookstone (127 Vose Farm Road, Peterborough, NH 03458) offers a tool to help split wood safely without wedge and sled.

The directions: Just rest the wedge-splitting head on the wood, raise the handle and slide it down the shaft. With this device, wood can be split evenly in closed areas such as a garage or basement with no fear of hitting things overhead. Weighs 13 1/4 pounds; is 40 1/2 inches long.

Gardener's Supply Co. (128 Intervale Road, Burlington, VT 05401) offers such unusual items as build-your-own birdhouse kits, potting herbs for windowsills, endive forcing kits for mid-winter salads, seed starters, and season-extender, clear plastic, double-wall "winter tunnels."

A wide range of garden tools and accessories is available from Smith & Hawken (25 Corte Madera, Mill Valley, CA 94941). Including a "Seedkeeper" that holds 40 varieties of flower, wildflower and vegetable seeds in individual air- and water-tight containers. # 'Bear' tied on gullible Yank

UKIAH ABBY: This concerns "J.F. in Vancouver, Wash." who visited Munich, Germany, where she took a tour of eight model homes open to the public.

He was shocked to find that all the homes had bathrooms located about six feet from the front door. On inquiring of the salesman, he was told that homeowners were required by law to provide toilet facilities for anyone who asked to use them.

He asked if you had ever heard of such a thing and you replied, "Never."

Abby, I recently saw a TV program showing several interiors by Swedish and Norwegian home designers, and they all had indoor bathrooms by the front door, so maybe there is such a law abroad.

LOUISE, EVERETT, WASH.
DEAR ABBY: Being German, I would like to put my 3 cents in about the model homes in Munich.

A Vancouver visitor was shocked to see the bathroom located near the entrance of the house. It is not a "bathroom" with a shower and tub; it is simply a toilet and a washbasin — to accommodate guests, so they do not have to go into the family's living quarters to use the facilities.

There is no such "law" requiring homeowners to tie strangers in to use the toilet. I know; I have lived all my life in Germany.

BORN IN GERMANY, PORT ST. LUCIE, FLA.
DEAR ABBY: Having lived in

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Holland for eight years, I think the salesman must have been pulling that tourist's leg.

I am not sure about Germany, but I know for a fact that the building codes in Holland state that bathrooms must be separated from the general living quarters by two doors for reasons of privacy. These bathrooms are always located in the front hallway.

However, there is no law requiring a homeowner to open his door to a stranger from off the street.

LEX BORGER, LAGUNA HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the person who wondered why bathrooms in Bavarian homes were built so they were accessible to the public: I don't know the official reason.

—However, having been born in Bavaria, I suspect that the centuries of beer drinking have prompted the town fathers to legislate an oasis of comfort for emergencies.

HELEN WATKINS, MISSOULA

DEAR ABBY: It is my impression that "J.F. in Vancouver" got a stupid answer to a stupid question. I spent seven years in Munich, and no you do not have to let strangers into your home to use the bathroom, kitchen, broom closet or anything else.

The architect put the bathroom near the front door because nothing infuriates Germans more than children running in and out of the house to use the john. This way, the neighborhood kids can use the bathroom without running across the well-to-well carpet with their dirty shoes.

Apparently "J.F." not only lacks a sense of humor, but also displays a certain amount of hostility toward people of other cultures, or the salesman would not have tied that bear on him — as the Bavarians would say.

I'll bet the Bavarian salesman is still laughing at that gullible Yank.

A.N.M., DENTON, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: A question came up, and we hope you can answer it. A widower gets remarried. Is he a widower any longer? Some say yes and some say no.

What do you say?

JERRY U-IN-FORT MYERS
DEAR JERRY: I say he is no longer a widower — he's a married man.

Heart shortage worries Idaho man

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Doctors who do heart transplants in Northern California say there has been a sudden shortage of donor hearts that is crippling their programs, leaving some patients to die.

The number of transplants at Stanford University Medical Center and Pacific Presbyterian Medical Center in San Francisco have fallen off dramatically since the first of the year because of the shortage.

"We feel pretty helpless," said Marguerite Brown, donor coordinator for Stanford's transplant program. "It's terribly difficult for everybody. There aren't any answers."

Four potential transplant patients at Stanford have died so far this year while waiting as long as two months for replacement hearts. That number matches the total for all of 1986.

The Northern California Transplant Bank in California could not find a single heart for transplant in January, as compared with 10 in the same month in 1986, said director Phyllis Weber.

James Garchow, a 50-year-old radio station owner from Idaho Falls has rented an apartment in Mountain View while he and his wife await a donor heart.

"We came to Stanford because we thought the whole thing would get over with faster," said Garchow, who had triple-bypass heart surgery at Stanford four years ago. "We did not anticipate the wait being this lengthy at all. The hard thing is that you can't do absolutely one thing about it."

Stanford doctors transplanted 71 hearts last year, 24 percent more than in 1985. So far this year, only six transplants have been performed.

At the smaller program at Pacific Presbyterian, only four transplants have been performed this year.

Officials speculate that the sudden lack of donor organs may be a result of safer driving conditions — use of seat belts and crackdowns on drunk driving. —Donor hearts frequently come from traffic accident victims.

Competition also plays a role in the shortage. The number of hospitals offering transplant programs increased from 74 in 1985 to 93 last year, and the number of transplants rose from 731 to 1,430, said Arthur Harrell, director of professional and public affairs for the Maryland-based American Council on Transplantation.

David Olney's eight children launched a media campaign in search of a donor organ, getting segments about his need on four television stations. But Olney, a 52-year-old Hayward veterinarian, suffered a massive heart attack on Dec. 13 and died Dec. 20.

"You're just hoping every minute it's going to happen," said his widow, Marge Olney. "At Stanford, they make you feel very up, like it's going to happen. It was a shock when it didn't happen to us."

Daylight-saving conserves energy

NEW YORK (AP) — The new law extending daylight-saving time by three to four weeks annually also will be a boost to the nation's energy conservation efforts and its desire for energy independence, says Energy User News.

The weekly journal notes that the federal law — which moves the first day of daylight-saving time to the first Sunday in April rather than the last — is projected to save the equivalent of 100,000 barrels of oil per day.

Additionally, the new extra daylight hours are expected to help reduce crime and automobile accidents.

Eagles will open vs. NE Mississippi

BOONVILLE, Miss. — Northeast Mississippi Community College emerged as the first-round challenger for College of Southern Idaho in next week's National Junior College Athletic Association men's basketball tournament.
Northeast Mississippi, breaking away from a 17-17 deadlock in the first half, outscored South Union, Ala., 20-0 from the foul line to win 89-85 in the bi-regional playoffs here Tuesday night.
They will meet CSI at 12:45 p.m. on Wednesday, March 18, to the game Tuesday night. "They have three excellent athletes in Johnny Payton (6-foot, 1-inch guard); Wayne Sears (6-2 off-guard) and Derek Pears (6-2 forward). All of them have excellent quickness. Payton, their point guard, already has signed with University of Mississippi so you know he's a good player."

"They start a 6-5 1/2 banger inside and the other forward spot is either a 6-2 or a 6-6 player. They only played six men all night so I suspect that depth may be a weakness," Trenkle said.
"They played a soft man-to-man defense most of the lead and looked to break when they could. They tried a little pressing but not much. They went to the boards pretty hard defensively but not offensively. All in all, I think this is a pretty good opening-round game for us."

"The thing that you have to remember, is that you can get some really backward impressions of a team in only one look," he continued. "The Alabama team didn't appear to be very strong and Mississippi might have known that and decided not to show any more than it had to or get up emotionally for it."
"From what I saw tonight I would say a key would be to contain their looking for that."

"They know nothing about us," he said. "I listened to their post-game show driving back to the hotel and they talked to the coach and the players. The only thing they think they know about us is that we grow potatoes. One of the players said he hoped we'd be bigger because they always played better against a bigger team."
Trenkle said he planned a practice with his Golden Eagles this afternoon and then would take in the state Class A-1 and A-2 tournaments in the cherry-pick fast break on Boise on a recruiting safari Thursday because one of their guards is always D.

CSI splits with BYU JV in opener

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor
TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho baseball Coach Jim Walker resembled the weather Tuesday afternoon after his Eagles split their home-season opening double-header with the Brigham Young University junior varsity — gloomy.
"We made a lot of mistakes and the kids didn't show me any intensity," said Walker, whose ballclub beat the BYU JVs 4-2 and then lost 6-1. "What we're missing right now is someone who will go out and take charge. (Sophomore first baseman Shawn) Whalen and (sophomore third baseman Jeff) Moore have the chicken pox, and with them out of the lineup, we're hurting. There were seven freshmen on the field today and I haven't given up on them, but we have a long way to go."

dugout and get mad about it," the coach said. "They just went back out and made the same mistakes again."
The split, which left CSI at 2-2 for the season — all in non-conference games — was a prelude to a seven-day, nine-game road swing through southern Utah and Arizona, which starts Friday night in St. George, Utah, against Dixie College.

"We're going to be seeing better teams down there than the two we've faced (BYU and Treasure Valley Community College), and the experience can be a killer for young players," Walker said. "If you get bent badly, you start wondering if you can play. And all of those (Arizona) teams enjoy beating the Eagles."

The bright spot for Walker was CSI's sophomore-dominated pitching staff.

"We're throwing strikes and they're getting their breaking pitches over the plate," said pitching coach Jim Dawson. "For the most part, our pitchers are off to a good start."
Pitching stood the Eagles in good stead in the opener after they had erased a 2-0 first-inning deficit with two runs in the third and two more in the fourth. In the third, freshman infielder Chris Betrom singled, went to second on a pas-

Domako named MVP of Big Sky

BOISE (AP) — Junior forward Tom Domako from Montana State is the unanimous selection as the Big Sky Conference regular-season outstanding player, league Commissioner Ron Stephenson has announced.
Boise State forward Arnel Jones was named as the Big Sky's top newcomer, while Northern Arizona junior guard Anthony Ingram was honored as the league's top reserve.
Scott Williams, a guard from Northern Arizona, was selected as the Big Sky's leading freshman.
The coaches were made by the Big Sky coaches, who could not vote for their own players.
Domako, a Livonia, Mich., native, led the Big Sky in scoring during the regular season with a 20.3-point per game average. He was recently named to the United States Basketball Writers of America District 7 team and was also a unanimous selection on the All-Big-Sky Conference first team.
Domako helped guide the Bobcats to the No. 1 seed in the Big Sky Tournament in Flagstaff, Ariz., as Montana State recorded an 11-3 league record and 21-7 overall, heading into this week's game in the NIT with the University of Washington. Domako shot over 50 percent from the field and led the Bobcats in three-point goals with 52. Also receiving a vote was Nevada-Reno guard Boris King.
Jones, a junior from Chicago, Ill., was among the Big Sky scoring leaders at 16.2 points per game. While helping the Broncos to an NIT bid last week, he shot 77.3 percent from the field while grabbing 8.5 rebounds a game. Jones was named to the AD-Big Sky Conference second team.
Also receiving mention was Boris King and junior forward Andrew Jackson of Idaho.

Boise St. seeks redemption in NIT opener against Utah

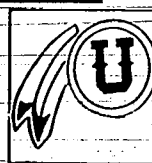

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor
BOISE — Redemption will be on the minds of Boise State University Coach Bobby Dye and his Broncos tonight when they host the University of Utah in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament at the BSU Pavilion.
"The players are feeling pretty bad about the (Big Sky) conference tournament," says Dye, whose Broncos were upset 78-77 by eventual league champion Idaho State in the tournament opener last Thursday in Flagstaff, Ariz. "I think their attitude now is still one of disappointment, but I think they're ready to play hard against Utah. We have an opportunity to beat a good team and, depending on the attendance, maybe the opportunity to host a second-round game. But that, no, they're still wishing they were playing in the NCAA tournament."
For two teams that last met in 1978, National Invitational Tournament foe Boise State and the University of Utah should know each other pretty well.
"A lot of people think Boise State is the best team in the Big Sky (Conference), maybe in a long time," Archibald said. "Some coaches say Boise is the best man-to-man team on the West Coast."

Utah at the BSU Pavilion at 7:30 p.m.
Beyond the fact they are from neighboring states, there are some intriguing connections between Boise State and Utah that are expected to help. Hill, the 12,000 Pavilion to near capacity.
Boise State, which lost by one point in the first round of the Big Sky tournament to eventual league champion Idaho State, has an ex-Ute on its roster.
Reserve center Gregg Dodd, who jumped from Archibald's tutelage last year, has been a somewhat inconsistent contributor for the Broncos. But at 6-foot 9-inches and 245 pounds, he's added muscle to a front line that has pulled down three more rebounds per game than its opponents this season.
Utah has its own Boise State connection in point guard Tommy Connor, who has been the Utes' star man for most of the season. The 5-11 Connor led Boise's Borah High School to back-to-back state championships. His father, Bus Connor, is a former BSU coach, and his brother Steve, who played in the 1970s, is the Broncos' all-time leading scorer.
There are only three NIT teams with better records and four with records equal to Boise State, which finished tied for first in the Big Sky regular season race with Montana State, another NIT participant.
But despite their records, Utah would have to be considered a slight favorite because of its tougher schedule in the Western Athletic Conference. The Utes finished fifth in the regular-season race before losing in the first round of the league tournament to Wyoming.

Still, Boise State has done better than Utah against common opponents.
The Broncos defeated San Diego in Boise by 15 and lost by two in San Diego, while the Toreros dropped the Utes by three points. Boise State handed Weber State its worst home loss ever and thrashed the Wildcats by 23 at home, while Utah edged Weber by two in Salt Lake City.
Boise State also has lost only once at home this season, falling 69-59 to Idaho. But Utah has been so slouch on the road, posting a 5-7 record including victories at Arizona, New Mexico and Brigham Young.
Dye is counting on some help from a home crowd tacking opponents that stoke a line for tickets for up to four hours on Monday.
"I would think that the University of Utah would be a very exciting team for our fans to see," Dye said. "It's very uplifting to know we'll play again and have a chance to play at home."
The Broncos last played the Utes in 1978, when Utah won by 19. Boise State has since built a new facility. But Utah already has had some success in the Pavilion in the 1983 NCAA subregionals, beating both Illinois and UCLA.
This time, Archibald said cumbering a Boise State defense led by guard Doug Ustitalo, ranked third nationally in steals, will be crucial. The Broncos have limited their opponents to 62.1 points per game while scoring 73.8

Steve Bivens, a fielder's choice an RBI single by Brown. In the third, BYU ignited a six-run, fire-hit rally off freshman right hander Tom Prater that ended 10 batters later. From that point on, CSI had at least one runner on base in every inning except the fourth, but couldn't push one across.

Final Four could become All-Big Ten affair

By The Associated Press

The Big Ten, the only major conference without a postseason tournament, has a chance this year to make the NCAA tournament its own.

With six teams in the field of 64 and four in the first 11 of the AP Top 20, the conference could turn the Final Four in New Orleans into an All-Big Ten affair.

"The poorest seed we got was nine," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "Now all we've got to do is win some games."

Indiana is ranked No. 3, Iowa No. 6, Purdue No. 7 and Illinois No. 11 in the final Top 20. They might be good well—for a moment in New Orleans.

But Illinois Coach Lou Henson remembers what happened last year when the Big Ten also put six teams in the tournament.

"Last year, the top teams were rolled over by upsets in the first round," Henson said. "I think that will happen again."

Last year's conference champion Michigan beat Akron 70-64 before being eliminated 72-60 by Iowa State.

Indiana fell 83-79 to Cleveland State in the opening round last year and Purdue lost 94-67 in double overtime in the first round in the Final Four-bound Louisiana State. Iowa was eliminated in the opening round 66-64 by North Carolina State and Illinois beat Fairfield 75-51 before losing to Alabama 58-36. Michigan State, which did not make the NCAA field this year, went the farthest of any Big Ten team last year, defeating Washington 72-70 and Georgetown 80-68 before losing to Kansas 96-66.

Ohio State, which is the ninth seed in the Southeast Regional this year, won the National Invitational Tournament last year after finishing seventh in the Big Ten under former-coach Eldon Miller. Ohio State, 19-12, has a first-round game Friday at Atlanta against Kentucky, 18-10.

"Michigan, the Big Ten's other ninth-seeded team with a 19-11 season record, plays Navy, 26-5, in a first-round East Regional game Thursday at Charlotte, N.C.

Indiana, the Big Ten champs at 24-4 overall, is in the NCAA tournament for the 15th time. The Hoosiers are top seeded in the Midwest and play Fairfield, 15-15, on Thursday at Indianapolis. Iowa, second seed in the West at 17-4, plays Santa Clara, 18-13, on Friday in Tucson.

Third-seeded Illinois, 22-7, plays Austin Peay, 19-11, in a Southeast Regional at Birmingham, Ala., and third-seeded Purdue, 24-4, plays Northeast, 22-6, in an East Regional game at Syracuse, N.Y.

The seedings reflect the strength of the conference, Indiana Coach Bob Knight said. "This year, everybody has said that our "league is the best in the country," he said. "All season we've had four teams—Illinois, Iowa, Purdue and I—I ranked in the top 10. Since I've been at Indiana, I can't remember when we've had four teams with such good records."

Knight is all for letting the NCAA tournament stand in for a conference tournament. "From a coaching standpoint, I don't like one tournament leading to another," Knight said. "I'm only interested in one tournament pointed towards that."

"The NCAA—and everything we do is done the whole season. It's not fair that the Purdue Coach Gene Keady also opposes a conference postseason tournament."

"I'm an old-fashioned guy," Keady said. "I think the championship should be determined by the whole season. An 18-game schedule is the only fair way to do that. An NCAA berth should be a reward for what you've done the whole season. It's not fair that a team such as North Carolina State is in the NCAA tournament because it got hot and won three games and maybe left someone else out."

"I would be more in favor of the NCAA said the automatic bids went to teams who won their conference regular season championships. "I think conferences still want to have a post-season journey after that, that's up to them."

Davis has said all year he is keeping an open mind about a conference tournament but said the number of conference games would have to be reduced to fit in the postseason play. Suggestions have been made to split the Big Ten into two divisions, with teams in each division playing each other twice and playing teams in the other division only once.

The conference champion then would be determined by a tournament. Big Ten coaches expected six teams to get NCAA bids this year because six teams went last year and the league was stronger in 1987.

Ohio State was the Big Ten team "on the bubble" this year and first-year Buckeye Coach Gary Williams said he did not sleep Saturday night after his team lost 90-81 to Indiana on Saturday. The NCAA field was announced Sunday.

Washington finds itself on the road against Montana State

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Washington, coming off a crushing loss that kept the Huskies out of the NCAA basketball tournament, now finds itself in the ignominious position of playing on the road in the first round of the 32-team National Invitation Tournament.

Last year's conference champion Michigan beat Akron 70-64 before being eliminated 72-60 by Iowa State.

Indiana fell 83-79 to Cleveland State in the opening round last year.

But a 76-64 loss to UCLA in the title game of the Pacific Ten Conference tourney on Sunday in Los Angeles ended Washington's hopes of an NCAA tournament berth.

"We won our last two at home and two in the (Pac-10) tournament, and I felt pretty good," he said. "But the type of year we had was mirrored in what we did in Los Angeles. Our kids would seemingly have the thing licked, and then they'd go out and not play together. It was really a strange year."

"The Huskies—front line includes 7-foot center Christian Weip and 6-foot Phil Zevenbergen.

Zevenbergen will present problems for Washington. "We can't play with Montana State coach Stu Starnes. Both Weip and Zevenbergen are considered to be number one draft picks in the NBA."

"We're a little familiar with them because we've seen them on TV," he said. "But at this time of the year, your preparation isn't that much. It's playing time. You just go out and play."

Starnes said he also was disappointed his team didn't make it to the NCAA after being upset 106-101 in the opening round of the Big Sky tournament by Weber State, a team the Bobcats had beat twice during the regular season by a total of 35 points.

"I think if we're able to get a couple of rounds in the NIT, it's as good as getting eliminated in the first round of the NCAA," he added.

"There really are some values connected with this tournament (NIT)," he said. "This tournament means a lot to us for recruiting and national exposure."

Marquette is at Nebraska and Utah at Boise State in the other two opening-night games.

Marquette, 16-12, and Nebraska, 17-11, will be meeting from two different perspectives.

"For Nebraska, where football over shadows basketball, this is a chance to get some needed exposure at home. For Marquette, it's routine business—this is the Warriors' fourth straight NIT and its 21st postseason appearance."

Both coaches, Bob Dukiet of Marquette and Danny Nee of Nebraska are in their first seasons.

"Financially, the NIT's not as much help as the NCAA, but psychologically and prestige-wise, you can't put it in dollars and cents," Nee says. "You're in a postseason tournament, only 56 teams can say that. When you play at this time of the year, it just gives you more credibility and recognition."

On Thursday night, La Salle, 16-12, plays Villanova, 15-15, in Philadelphia; Rhode Island, 20-9, visits Florida State, 18-10; Cleveland State, 24-7, travels to Tennessee; Chattanooga, 21-7, Akron, 21-4, is at Illinois State, 17-12; Jacksonville, 19-10, visits Vanderbilt, 15-15; and Baylor, 18-12, is at Arkansas-Little Rock, 22-9.

The first round continues Friday night with Arkansas State, 21-12, at Arkansas, 18-13 in the first meeting between those schools.

"In other games, Seton Hall, 15-13, at Niagara, 20-9; St. Peter's, 21-7, at St. Louis, 24-9; Mississippi, 15-13, at Southern Mississippi, 18-11; Fullerton State, 17-12, at Utah State, 18-14; and Oregon State, 16-10, at New Mexico, 25-9.

Second-round games will be played on March 16 and 17, and quarterfinals will be played at campus sites on March 20 and 21. Semifinals and finals will be played at Madison Square Garden on March 24 and 25.

Clemens may skip 1987 season

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — A spokesman for pitcher Roger Clemens said Tuesday that sitting out the 1987 season is an option being "seriously considered" by the 1986 American League MVP and Cy Young award winner.

Handicapped by a shoulder injury, Clemens is being treated at a clinic in Dunedin, Fla., where he is recovering from a torn rotator cuff.

"I'm tired of reading the Red Sox have the hammer," he said. "Other people have hammers, too."

He added that he had hadn't discussed the line threat with Clemens, but "I think it will harden his position."

"We understand the consequences if he doesn't play all year," Hendricks said. "We realize we'll lose bargaining position and seniority. But he's prepared to take the most punitive action he can. Let the Red Sox understand their commitment to winning and putting good players on the field."

Hendricks said that the Red Sox offer of $500,000 for the 1987 season "is ridiculous. You can't get that," he said. "They've got to get the message," Hendricks said. "Roger is at the head of his class. He is not going to make an example of 10 years from now he doesn't want people saying Roger Clemens took this lousy contract, you can't do."

"Roger is not only determined. He also is disappointed. He feels insulted," Hendricks said he has not attempted to contact the Red Sox since General Manager Lou Gorman rejected Clemens' proposal of a $2.4 million contract for two years and walked out of the Boston training camp in Winter Haven during practice last Friday.

However, he said he would agree to renegotiate the talks "if the Red Sox change their position."

He said the Red Sox so far have refused to discuss a two-year contract.

"If they're willing for us to come, gelling to them, they have a very long wait," he said. "They can wait until next year."

Hendricks ridiculed the Red Sox's contention that the club offer includes $350,000 in incentive clauses, which could push the pitcher's pay to $500,000 while pitching the Red Sox to the pennant with a 24-4 record last year. Clemens earned $340,000, including $120,000 in bonus money.

Younger players using lighter bats

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Willie McCovey went to the San Francisco Giants' bat room Tuesday night planning to use what was left of his Hall of Fame swing at age 49. He struck out in his search.

"I didn't bring any of my own bats to spring training, and I couldn't find one big enough. Joel Youngblood has a big bat, but I didn't see any of the other bats," he said.

"I'm amazed that they're all going that route. I'm even more amazed that they think they can't handle bigger bats."

"I think it's the main reason you don't see many guys having 40-homer seasons. With a light bat, you have to make perfect contact to hit the ball out."

Willie Mays, who reached the Hall of Fame seven years before his former teammate, shares McCovey's opinion that the light bat serves as a spring training instructor.

"I've tried to convince some of the players that with more wood at the end of their bats they could get more distance," Mays said. "Richie Allen used a 40-ounce bat, and he could swing the ball."

Bats 35 inches or longer and weighing 35 or more ounces were commonly used, especially by power hitters, not too long ago. The averages now are 34 inches and 32 ounces, according to Chuck Schupp, director of sales for Louisville Slugger bats on the pro level.

"The drop is because the younger players have become so used to the feel of aluminum bats. There's no doubt in my mind," says Giants President Al Rosen, and that's the consensus around baseball.

Rosen swung 36 ounces during a playing career which included a 40-homer season for the Cleveland Indians.

"I don't know if 5,000 is high compared to other organizations, but it's too high for us," said Rosen.

On the big league club, said Mays, "I think Chris Brown and Jeff Leonard are going to try going up about an ounce and a half. They're both line drive hitters, but they're strong, too. With heavier bats, instead of hitting 20 home runs, they might hit 25."

Hawks down Spurs in overtime

By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — Guard Glenn Rivers hit overtime to lift the Atlanta Hawks to a ninth straight victory, a 113-106 NBA decision over the San Antonio Spurs Tuesday night.

Dominique Wilkins, who scored 37 points, made a short jumper with five seconds left in regulation for a 101-101 tie. Rivers then capitalized on an opportunity to win in regulation when David Greenwood, unable to find a teammate underneath, missed on a 3-point attempt.

Down 103-102, the Hawks then rallied behind Rivers' run in overtime. San Antonio helped Atlanta by committing five turnovers in the overtime.

Atlanta led by as many as 16 in the third period, but held only an 81-74 advantage going into the fourth as Spurs rookie Larry Krystkowiak scored 24 points in his second NBA game.

The Spurs pulled even at 89 on a free throw by Krystkowiak with 3:16 remaining in the game and the teams traded baskets through the end of regulation.

Walter Berry led the Spurs with 27 points.

NBA Roundup

The 79-point defensive effort was also the Nets' best of the season and the output was the lowest of the year for Washington, which lost its fifth straight road game.

This one was never in doubt as the Nets scored 18 of the first 21 points with Gminski capping the run with a 14-foot shot in a 1:58 span.

Washington managed to get a lead 23-17 at the end of the first quarter and stayed within range for half of the second period. But Gminski, who finished with 20 first-half points, scored eight to key a 17-8 run over the first six minutes and give New Jersey a 38-35 margin at the intermission.

Philadelphia 100 Cleveland 91

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Charles Bakley's 23 points and grabbed 15 rebounds made rookie Andrew Wengate, making his first pro start, scored a career-high 22 points Tuesday night as the Philadelphia 76ers sent the Cleveland Cavaliers to their fifth straight loss.

Bakley, a product of Georgetown, started in place of guard Andrew Toney, who was out with the flu. He scored 11 points in the third quarter, including eight in the final 2:50 of the period, to help Philadelphia extend a 33-51 halftime lead to 82-75 entering the first quarter.

The move moved the 76ers back into second place in the NBA's Eastern Division, one game ahead of Washington but 11½ behind Boston.

Barkley hit two straight baskets to put the 76ers ahead 91-79 with 5:45 to play and Cleveland got no closer than nine points the rest of the way.

Ron Harper led Cleveland with 28 points and Brad Daugherty added 25. Philadelphia ran off 10 straight points early in the second quarter—added 25 points.

Mazzilli's two-run homer gives Mets 5-4 win over Astros

By The Associated Press

Lee Mazzilli hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning to give the defending world champion New York Mets a 5-4 exhibition victory Tuesday over the Houston Astros in a rematch of the National League playoffs.

The Mets had lost their first three exhibition games. The Astros, who lost to the Mets in last year's playoffs in six games, are 0-3.

Left-hander Steve Engel walked Dave Magadan to start the eighth, and Mazzilli followed with his second home run in two days.

Houston had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the eighth off Jesse Orosco. They loaded the bases on a walk to Chuck Jackson, a single by Glenn Davis and a walk to Gerald Young.

Jim Pankovitz drove in one run with a fielder's choice grounder, and pinch-hitter Bert Pena gave the Astros the lead with a sacrifice fly.

ORIOLES 11, TWINS 4

All-Star infielder Mike Bielecki, who drove in two runs, and Eddie Murray, who drove in one run, and Don Scott also drove in two runs.

apiece as Baltimore defeated Minnesota.

PIRATES(10), ROYALS 7
At Bradenton, Fla., Mike Diaz hit two home runs and drove in five runs as Pittsburgh beat Kansas City.

Bret Saberhagen, who allowed six runs, took the loss for Kansas City.

CARDINALS 9, TIGERS 7
At Lakeland, Fla., Tom Herr and Jack Clark each drove in two runs in a fourth-inning inning as St. Louis beat Detroit to remain unbeaten in exhibition play. Clark finished with four RBI and Herr also had a solo home run as the Cardinals improved to 4-0.

WHITE SOX 4, PIRATES 3
At Sarasota, Fla., Julio Cruz's bases-loaded fielder's choice with one out in the ninth inning gave Chicago its third straight victory. Cruz went 0-for-5 but he dived back first into first base to avert an impending double play and allow Carlos Martinez to score.

RANGERS 11, YANKEES 5
At Port Charlotte, Fla., Jeff Kunkel and Pete O'Brien each hit home runs as Texas outlasted New York.

O'Brien's two-run shot capped a three-run seventh and put the Rangers ahead 6-1.

The Rangers announced that pitcher Dale Mabourc agreed to terms on a one-year contract and they renewed the contract of outfielder Oddie McDowell, completing negotiations with the 36 players on their major-league roster.

DOGGEARS 9, BRAVES 4
At Vero Beach, Fla., where Atlanta scored four times in the first inning off left-hander Fernando Valenzuela, Los Angeles came back with five runs in the second to beat the Braves.

an 8-3 tie with a Boston split squad.

The two clubs agreed before the game not to play more than nine innings because Boston was traveling with the split squad and didn't have enough pitchers.

BLUE JAYS 4, RED SOX 3
At Dunedin, Fla., Jesse Barfield homered and drove in two runs to lead Toronto over a Boston split squad.

Tony Fernandez, who had sat out the Jays' first three exhibition games to protest his failed contract talks, had his pact automatically renewed earlier in the day and was back in his regular position leading off the batting order against the Red Sox.

MARINERS 6, GIANTS 2
At Scottsdale, Ariz., Mike Kingery's home run triggered a four-run eighth-inning rally that snapped a tie and carried Seattle past San Francisco.

CUBS 10, ANGELS 9
At Mesa, Ariz., Brian Dayett's two-out single in the bottom of the 10th inning lifted Chicago over California.

The Cubs scored two runs in the bottom of the ninth to tie the score 9-9.

Dayett and Paul Noce walked to lead off the ninth inning for the Cubs and pinch-hitter Bob Dornier beat out a bunt to lead the bases with none out.

Jody Davis pinch hit and grounded into a double play, scoring Dayett. Rolando Rones then hit a two-out RBI double off the center-field wall to score Noce and tie the score.

A's 7, INDIANS 6 (11 innings)
At Phoenix, Ariz., Stan Javier singled through the middle-of-five Cleveland infielders with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the 11th inning to lift Oakland over Cleveland.

Wall Weiss led off the Oakland 11th with a double off Scott Roberts. Rob Nelson sacrificed Weiss to third, prompting Cleveland Manager Pat Corrales to walk the next two A's intentionally to load the bases. Javier, Oakland's hottest hitter this spring with eight home runs in 12 at-bats, singled sharply to center to end the game.

Mets' pitchers shellacked in first three exhibition games

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Their first three exhibition games, the opening day pitcher for the world champion New York Mets might have to be John Mitchell.

Mitchell, more likely to open for AAA Tidewater, allowed one run in three innings against Toronto Monday, a brilliant performance compared to his predecessors.

Gooden, who threw in the first three innings, surrendered 11 runs, including five home runs.

That came a day after Dwight Gooden allowed nine runs to St. Louis in a first-inning-capped by Terry Pendleton's grand slam. It was the first grand slam every allowed anywhere by Gooden, who pitched in two games during batting practice that he had regained the old pop on his fastball.

That left the team that won 108 games in the 1986 regular season and eight more in the playoffs and World Series, at 0-3 in their first three exhibition games.

Gooden, who threw a combined 33-1/2 last season, had allowed a .545 opposition batting average and had an ERA of 22.40 in five innings.

"Dwightmare!" exclaimed the headline in one New York tabloid on Monday. "Shellied!" shrieked another over a picture of Fernandez on Tuesday.

The reaction?

"We'll schedule an 'intra-squad' game so half the squad knows what it's like to win one," said Manager Davey Johnson.

"You don't expect something like this to happen, but you're surprised when it does," said pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre. "The early part of spring training doesn't really mean anything because the pitchers aren't working yet on all their pitches. All I can say is that they ain't ready yet."

The victims also appeared unconcerned.

"I never had a day this bad, but I don't think it's a concern," said Fernandez, who was 16-6 last season and was one of the heroes of the World Series with 2 2/3 hitless innings that kept the Mets in the seventh game that they eventually won.

"I don't like to give up all these runs but it doesn't mean I'm giving up. I can turn it around."

Fernandez's performance came with heavy winds blowing out and seven of the runs he allowed were unearned because of a throwing error by rookie third baseman Dave Magadan.

Gooden, who also has to contend with the publicity of his off-season run-in with the police in his hometown of Tampa, didn't have those excuses and his performance was more mystifying.

Stottlemyre said Gooden had great stuff warming up and two days earlier had thrown batting practice faster than the wind. "I didn't get better than any pitches he threw last year, when he followed a 24-4 1985 with a 'disappointing' 17-6."

"It got behind on hitters and since

"I'm a power pitcher, they knew what was coming," said Gooden, who didn't throw a curve during his debut. "I can't let it bother me. But after a while, I just hoped they'd hit hard at someone to get the inning over."

Gooden and Fernandez will get more chances this spring, which is about the way the Mets are taking things.

"My only concern is if it happens at the end of March," second baseman Wally Backman said after the Fernandez-shelling. "Then it would be a concern of mine ... and about 12 million others."

Hagler could lose title in legal action

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler might go into his fight against Sugar Ray Leonard with a mid-weight champion, but could come out of it without one of his three titles even if he wins.

Leonard could win a 12-round match April 6 at Las Vegas, Nev., but he can't win the undisputed title.

There has been legal action. There could be more.

"Leonard doesn't care about the belts. He just wants the fight," said Pat Petronelli, who manages Hagler, "with his brother Gene."

The fight has been sanctioned as a championship by the World Boxing Council, but will not be sanctioned by the World Boxing Association and the International Boxing Federation.

Jose Sulaiman, president of the WBA, has said that his organization can sanction a fight involving a distinguished champion coming out of retirement even if he hasn't gained a ranking.

Pat Petronelli said Tuesday he understood that Leonard would become only WBC champion if he won, but that Hagler would remain champion of all three organizations if he won.

It was announced last week by the WBA that it had withdrawn title recognition from Hagler for failing to make a mandatory defense against Herol Graham of Bulgaria.

Hagler had obtained an injunction against the WBA, but James Blinn, counsel for his group, said by telephone from his office in Philadelphia that the restraining order was no longer in effect.

"There's an injunction," Petronelli said.

Blinn said that the WBA's Championships Committee had voted to strip Hagler and that decision was appealed. The appeal will be acted on by the WBA's Executive Committee March 21 at Maracay, Venezuela, Blinn said.

"If they do anything (vote to strip), it will be contempt of court," Petronelli said.

Blinn said even if the WBA doesn't strip Hagler before the fight, the title would become vacant even if Hagler wins because there is a rule a champion cannot fight an unranked opponent in a bout scheduled for more than 10 rounds.

Bob Lee, president of the IBF, said by telephone from his home in New Jersey that his organization's Championships Committee has voted to vacate the title now, and that appeal would be ruled on sometime this week.

Should the IBF not strip Hagler, the title would become vacant if Leonard won.

"We're not sanctioning the Leonard-Hagler fight because Leonard is not ranked by us and we can't rank him because he had a detached retina."

Leonard, the former undisputed welterweight and WBA junior middleweight champion, underwent retinal surgery in May, 1983, and retired for the first time in November of that year.

Rangers acquire Dionne from Kings

NEW YORK (AP) — Marcel Dionne, the NHL's second all-time scorer, was acquired Tuesday by the New York Rangers from the Los Angeles Kings.

The Rangers sent defenseman Tom LaDalla and center Bobby Carpenter to the Kings and also acquired left wing Jeff Crossman and Los Angeles' third-round draft choice Gordie Howe, with 1,850, has scored more points than Dionne's 1,673. Dionne, a center, is also second on the all-time goals scored list with 689 to Howe's 801.

The Rangers are fourth in the Patrick Division with 64 points, one ahead of Pittsburgh for final playoff spot in the division. The Kings are fourth in the Smythe Division with 60 points, 10 ahead of Vancouver for the last playoff spot.

"Marcel is the man who can help the Rangers right now," Rangers General Manager and interim coach Larry Rupp said in announcing the trade. "Our feeling is the Rangers have a chance to win (the Stanley Cup) this year or next year."

In Los Angeles, Kings General Manager Rogie Vachon said, "There is a considerable sadness that the Marcel Dionne era of hockey in Los Angeles has come to an end. He is a special player and person. Because he has given so much of himself physically and mentally to the Kings through the years, I felt we had to try to accommodate his request to be traded."

Dionne said he had asked Vachon just Monday night if he could be moved.

"It was a combination of a few things," Dionne said in explaining why he had asked to be traded. "I was the general manager to renegotiate his contract and I could see that I was struggling a little bit the last couple of months."

"It was a combination of a lot of things and I didn't have a chance to sit down and make my point. I didn't think I was going to go anywhere (in the renegotiations), so that's why the trade happened. I'm still surprised that it did happen, but sometimes you have to stand for what you believe, and I think it was time for me to go."

Dionne, 35, began his NHL career in 1971 with the Detroit Red Wings and signed with Los Angeles as a free agent prior to the 1975 season. In his second season with the Kings, Dionne scored 83 goals and added five 50-goal seasons after that — with a high of 99 in 1978-79.

He led the league in scoring in 1979-80 when he scored 53 goals and added 84 assists for 137 points. He won the Art Ross trophy that season.

This season, his 16th, Dionne has 24 goals and 50 assists for 74 points.

"We feel we have acquired the man who will become the greatest scorer in the history of the National Hockey League," Esposito said.

Soviets lead in ice dancing

CINCINNATI (AP) — Natalia Bestemanova and Andrei Bukin of the Soviet Union began their quest for a third consecutive title by winning the compulsory portion of ice dancing Tuesday at the World Figure Skating Championships.

Bestemanova and Bukin were first in all three required dances — the Waltz, minuet and polka. They received seven marks of 5.9 out of a possible 6.0, including five 5.9s in the final dance.

Another superb Soviet couple, Marina Klimova and Sergei Ponomarenko, was second in a continuing chase of their countrymen. Klimova-Ponomarenko have been runners-up in the last two World Championships.

Canada's Tracy Wilson and Robert McCall, who won the bronze medal in last year's world, were third in all three dances.

The top American couple, U.S. champions Suzanne Semanick and Scott Gregory, placed fifth and were particularly strong in the polka. The other American duo, Susan Wynne and Joseph Druar, were 10th.

"We come here expecting to win," Bukin said. "We feel we will win. We want to be first in the Olympics and what we try to do is get ready for the Olympics."

Bestemanova and Bukin were second to Britain's Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean in the 1984 Olympics.

Wilson and McCall expressed satisfaction with their showing.

"We were technically on in the first dance, artistically good in the second and combined it in the third," McCall said.

Semanick-Gregory also were pleased with their performance.

"Fifth in the world is not bad," Gregory said. "We're skating as well as we can and that's what is important."

"It's very difficult to move up because the dance is so slotted, with no obvious mistakes. So you try to do the best you can and hope it works out."

Another booster, Bob Warner, said, "Bill Yeoman never asked me for one penny of illegal funds. Mr. Terry never needs to worry about an occupation. Evidently he can write fairy tales better than most writers."

Houston boosters deny making cash payments

HOUSTON (AP) — Several University of Houston boosters named as contributors of about $11,000 for cash payments to Cougar football players deny the allegations being made against them.

Baytown businessman Frank Terry said he and other supporters gave money to former head football coach Bill Yeoman could make "fraditional payments" to the school in 1985, a school memorandum released Monday says.

"Frank Terry is out of his ground, had you can quote me on that," said Dick George, one of the boosters Terry named.

Terry's statement was taken during an in-house investigation by a Houston law firm. The probe was launched in response to allegations that Yeoman and his assistant coach violated NCAA rules by paying players.

In a similar report, Yeoman said he occasionally gave players money for humanitarian reasons, but never more than $250.

Yeoman, who resigned last fall after heading the Cougars 25 years, has refused to comment, but university President Richard Van Horn defended him calling his career "long and distinguished."

Yeoman currently serves the school as a $103,000-a-year fund raiser.

The head of the school's Athletic Advisory Committee said he will offer a resolution Wednesday to cut Yeoman's ties with the university.

Terry, a member of the university's Intercollegiate Athletics Council, declined comment Monday on the fact at least six boosters he implicated denied any part of knowledge of cash payments to athletes.

"Unfortunately, I was one of the ones to do the dirty work," Terry said. "I don't have anything to hide. I'm going to make one statement and then be through with it. I'm for tree information."

Added businessman Frank Cole, "This guy (Terry) fabricates more damn stories. I haven't had much dealings with him socially for a year, because he comes up with some of the most outlandish stories. I got to point where people didn't want to listen to him."

Another booster, Bob Warner, said, "Bill Yeoman never asked me for one penny of illegal funds. Mr. Terry never needs to worry about an occupation. Evidently he can write fairy tales better than most writers."

Board member Edwin Cox repeated his denial that he knew of the payments, and said of Clements' statement, "That's his decision; not mine."

Several board members left the meeting without comment.

Faculty Senate President Leroy Howe said he was cheered by Clements' apology, but disappointed that he did not divulge board members' names. Clements had said he and other board members were aware of the payments.

"Many people wondered if Governor Clements would ever say he was sorry," Howe said.

Governor apologizes for allowing SMU violations

DALLAS (AP) — The names of any Southern Methodist University boosters involved in recruiting violations after 1985 will be released Thursday in a report to the NCAA, SMU Board of Governors Chairman William Hutchison said Tuesday.

And SMU officials said they appreciate the apology offered by Gov. Bill Clements Tuesday, but said his call for other board members involved in improper payments to step forward was not enough.

Clements apologized for approving paying out cash payments to football players instead of stopping them immediately. He said he would make clear the chronology of a payment network to a committee investigating the board's role in the matter.

"That's terrific. I'm proud of him for that," Hutchison said, but indicated he still urges the governor to name names.

After the board met for seven hours Tuesday to discuss their response to the NCAA concerning the boosters.

In eliminating the school's 1987 football program, the NCAA said one booster among nine banned from associating with the school in 1986 had been involved in improper cash payments to players since then.

When asked whether any names will be made public, Hutchison said, "We'll have all that public on Thursday."

He refused to elaborate on his statement, nor did he give any explanation for the change in policy.

The board passed a resolution that in response to the "show cause" order handed down last month, it would fully disclose any "subsequent activity" of any named booster, constituting violation of NCAA regulations or previously imposed sanction by the university.

The board said that if any booster previously named was shown to have engaged in subsequent violations, he should be permanently ban-

THE ACES

"Experience enables you to recognize a mistake when you make it again." — Franklin P. Jones

How do you tell whether partner's opening lead is a singleton or 'top of a doubleton'?

West led his club eight in search of a ruff and East had a problem after dummy played low.

Table with scores for various clubs: NORTH 3-1-A, K J 7, 9 8 6, 4, K 4, 3 Q 9 6. WEST: 10 6 4, A 4 2, 10 8 3, 8 4. EAST: 4 3, 9 3, 9 7 6 2, A 7 3 2. SOUTH: A Q 9 5, K Q 10 7, K 5, K 10 6.

East decided to take his ace to return the suit and the defense was finished.

How does East tell whether to win or wait at trick one? The bidding provides the answer.

South's response to North's Stayman inquiry revealed that he had two four-clubs, giving West a singleton.

South had a good opening lead with his seven at trick one, and the defenders earned a plus score.
