Reagan vows to veto 65 mph highway bill

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The Senate gave final congressional approval Friday to a new 65 mph speed limit for rural interstate highways, sending the White House an $88 billion highway and mass transit bill that President Reagan promised to veto as too costly.

Veto called 'foolish' — B1

"demonstration projects" sought by lawmakers for their home districts. These funds, which the White House criticized as intended for "favorite pork barrel projects" of individual legislators, are contained in a compromise highway bill which passed the House in January and the Senate in February.

Republicans supported, and 10 Democrats and 11 Republicans opposed, the speed limit provision, which was "attached" to the previously approved highway bill. Dole said the president's veto would provide a major test of his strength in Congress as Reagan seeks to rebound from the political damage of the Iran-Contra affair.

Idaho's Republican senators, James McClure and Steve Symms, both voted for passage of the bill. The overall $88 billion bill includes $10 billion for road construction projects and $78 billion for mass transit programs over the next five years, funds that should have started flowing to the states when the current fiscal year began Oct. 1.

brusing parliamentary floor battle over the $890 million provision opposed by Reagan because he doubted whether he had enough votes to prevail. Dole told his colleagues that with warm weather approaching, he did not want to stall road construction projects by risking further delays in federal funds which the states should have received months ago. Reagan, in a statement issued before the Senate vote, promised to veto the highway bill even with the 65 mph speed limit provision that he and many lawmakers from rural states should have received months ago.

Costly AIDS drug receives FDA approval

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — The government on Friday approved sale of the first drug for treatment of AIDS, a costly and potent chemical that despite serious side effects has been shown to keep people alive who otherwise would die.

Commonly known as zidovudine, or AZT, the drug is not considered a cure for the deadly disease because it does not kill the AIDS virus. It does, however, inhibit an enzyme needed for the virus to replicate itself and therefore helps control growth of the virus.

Clinical trials last year demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Food and Drug Administration that AZT prolongs life for AIDS sufferers. The death rate for people receiving placebo was about 16 times higher than the people receiving AZT.

These results prompted the FDA to end the trial early so all patients participating in the test could get the drug.

To be marketed under the trade name Retrovir by Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, N.C., the drug — taken in capsule form every four hours — could cost a typical patient $10,000 or more for a year's supply.

Derived from herring sperm in a complex chemical process, the drug suppresses bone marrow in many patients, thereby reducing the production of infection-fighting blood cells.

That effect is so threatening to some patients they have to be given blood transfusions to be able to stay on the drug. Less serious side effects include nausea and various gastrointestinal problems.

Because Retrovir is still in short supply, the manufacturer has outlined a restricted distribution system intended to see that it goes first to seriously ill patients whose symptoms are closest to those who participated in the clinical trials last fall.

"Today's approval marks an important step, but by no means a final victory, in our ongoing war against AIDS," Robert E. Windom, assistant secretary of health at the Department of Health and Human Services, said in announcing FDA approval.

"Retrovir is not a cure for AIDS, but it has a demonstrated ability to improve the short-term survival of AIDS patients with recently diagnosed PCP and certain other complications," he said.

Bakker may have foiled 'hostile takeover' of PTL ministry

The Associated Press
FORT MILL, S.C. — Television evangelist Jim Bakker, done in by blackmail over a 7-year-old sexual encounter, may have averted a "hostile takeover" of his $129 million ministry by turning it over to the Rev. Jerry Falwell, Bakker's attorney said Friday.

Obstacles for Falwell — B3 payments totaled $115,000, and the encounter involved a church secretary. Attorney Roy Grutman said: "The reason for his abdication was not simply because of the story concerning an event seven years ago. The reason Bakker stepped down was that a rival of his had set up that and (N.C.) Observer reported the blackmail was hoping to make use of that as an instrument to take over" the PTL ministry.

Grutman, contacted in his New York office, said he would not identify who was attempting a takeover. "I don't want there to be a religious civil war. But if there is going to be one, wow — watch out."

Falwell, in an interview Friday on Cable News Network, said Bakker's actions were "wrong, wrong, wrong."

"I think, first of all, it should not have occurred," said Falwell. "It doesn't really matter whether someone seduced you or you raped someone. If you're a man of God, a leader of the flock, (and) you yield, as far as I'm concerned, you're out of the ministry. I don't think that's a judgmental or condemnatory statement. I think the Bible supports that."

But Falwell also preached forgiveness for Jim Bakker. "Yes, I'm against sin. Yes, what Jim Bakker did is wrong. Yes, he is paying a terrible price. But no, I'm no more willing to consign him to the scrap heap of human flesh than I would be willing to consign Richard Nixon to that. I personally pray for Jim Bakker. He's my brother in Christ."

PTL reported $129 million in revenues in 1986, has 2,000 employees, and runs Heritage USA, a 2,300-acre retreat that includes hotels, an amusement park and homes for single mothers and the homeless. PTL reported that 6 million people visited Heritage USA last year.

According to Neal Eskelin, vice president for public relations for PTL, a half-million "prayer partners" pay at least $15 a month to the ministry. The initials stand for "People that Love" and "Praise the Lord."

New lottery resolution wins quick OK

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press
BOISE — A new resolution designed to clear the way for a state lottery in Idaho won quick and overwhelming approval from a House committee Friday.

Idaho
Legislature
1987

The House State Affairs Committee voted 13-4 to send the latest lottery proposal directly to the House floor for a vote. Under normal procedures, that won't come until next week.

Two legislators urged the committee to approve the resolution, because so far this session, the Legislature has done nothing to implement a state lottery despite the fact voters gave a 74,000-vote margin of approval to a lottery initiative in the last general election.

"We must implement the will of the people," said Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise, chairman of the committee.

She noted that the lottery initiative received about 68 percent approval from her legislative district. "It is absolutely imperative that we act on the lottery," she said.

Sen. Mike Blackbird, D-Kellogg, who has been working to get lottery legislation approved this session, said there has been "great concern" expressed by voters that the Legislature is attempting to weaken the initiative process.

He said the fact that the Legislature has done nothing to carry out the lottery initiative, and lawmakers have been talking about trying to repeal tax initiatives passed in 1978 and 1982, leads people to think that the Legislature wants to "ignore the will of the people" as expressed through initiatives.

"They are concerned that the Legislature is subverting the will of the people," he said.

Idaho's Constitution says the Legislature may not enact a lottery. But an initiative produced more than 60 percent approval for a lottery last November. Two lawsuits are challenging whether the process was constitutional.

The Legislature this session has considered a number of amendments to simply remove the constitutional ban on lotteries. But that route to enact a lottery means there could be no state lottery before 1989 at the earliest.

But Blackbird said the latest proposal, drawn up by Rep. Patricia McDermitt, D-Pocatello, and Charles McDevitt, a Boise lawyer who sued for Rep. Jack Kennebeck, R-Boise, this week, was "much prettier than the other."

He said it is a "very good, clean constitutional amendment that still meets all the concerns of the Legislature."

Blackbird urged the committee and the Legislature to settle the lottery issue this session, rather than next year, when it might get caught up in election-year politics.

But Rep. L. Ed Brown, R-Pocatello, said he was convinced that the people would vote for almost anything put on the ballot concerning a lottery.

Voting against sending the bill out of committee to do-pass endorsement were Republicans Brown, Jerry Callen, Mark Duffin and John Wood. Absent were Republicans Ron Crane and Francis Field and Democrats Dorothy McCann and Ms. McDermott. Other committee members approved the resolution.

Compromise tort reform plan zips through Senate

The Associated Press
BOISE — Amid claims of sweeping public support, the Senate has overwhelmingly approved a new legislative plan to resolve Idaho's liability insurance crisis by restricting civil court damage claims through so-called tort reform.

Although the compromise plan remains the target of criticism from the Idaho Trial Lawyers Association, it was expedited 40-2 vote.

The bill, retailing early all the key elements of an earlier plan fashioned by the Idaho Liability Reform Coalition, now goes to the House. While the Trial Lawyers Association maintained the bill will not result in skyrocketing liability insurance premiums or make coverage more available, it conceded the bill also likely will win House approval. Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus has also endorsed many of the concepts it contained.

"We have taken a step that a majority of us feel is necessary and that the people of Idaho feel is necessary to limit the liability of tort," Senate Judiciary Chairman Roger Fairchild, R-Fruiland, said.

"In doing so, we have limited some of the rights of the people of Idaho, and we do it mindful of the potential risks," he said, "and now the burden lies with the insurance companies."

Contra aid funds available

WASHINGTON (AP) — The final $40 million installment of a $100 million aid package for Nicaragua's Contra rebels became available for spending this week — putting it out of reach of Democratic opponents for all practical purposes.

But the opponents say their chances of defeating President Reagan's next Contra-aid request are better, and their hopes were bolstered Friday by Sen. Sam Nunn's suggestion that his consistent support for such aid can no longer be counted on.

"I'm not locked into voting for the military program in the fall," Nunn, D-Ga., an influential senator on military issues, said in an interview with Georgia reporters. "I'm going to keep an open eye on it and see what the administration plans."

Nunn, who is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, voted with the administration this week when the Senate narrowly defeated a Democratic effort to withhold the $40 million.

But he said Friday that "numerous mistakes" have been made in the administration's efforts to use the Contras to keep military pressure on the Sandinista government.

Meanwhile, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the passing of the Friday night deadline for congressional disapproval of Reagan's aid request for the $40 million will mean an effort by opponents to place a moratorium on aid for the Contras will become virtually meaningless.

Legislation now bottled up by a

Senate filibuster would give the administration six months to give an accounting of past aid money — including any funds diverted from Iranian arms sales or donated by other countries or private parties — and would cut off any further aid in the meantime.

Even backers of the legislation have not held out hope that approving the moratorium could back the $40 million in military assistance because Reagan would be certain to veto such a resolution.

However, they are looking ahead to an administration request for $165 million in new aid for the Contras for next year, and several members of Congress are signaling that they may switch sides when that vote comes.

Lutheran merger moves step closer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Delegates from three Lutheran churches are expected to affirm a merger of their denominations later this spring, following approval by congregations of the American Lutheran Church, officials said Friday.

The new church to be created by the merger of the three denominations, which represent 5.5 million people, is to be called the Evangelical Lutheran Church of America.

Eighty-one percent of the members of the Minneapolis-based ALC voted to approve the merger of the ALC and two other Lutheran groups, ALC Bishop David W. Preuss said Friday. The vote was taken between Sept. 15 and March 15.

Preuss said that out of 4,660 valid ballots cast by ALC congregations, 3,732 voted yes, 863 voted no, and 45 abstained. A two-thirds vote was needed to ratify the merger.

The two other groups, the New York-based Lutheran Church in America, and the St. Louis-based Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, have also tentatively approved the merger.

The church is to be based in Chicago and will begin operating next Jan. 1.

The 1,945 delegates of the three churches will meet April 30 for a four-day convention in Columbus, Ohio, to formally affirm the merger and elect a bishop and other church leaders.

The only vote that could jeopardize the merger is one scheduled April 29 by more than 500 delegates of the LCA. In August, the LCA approved the merger in its first ballot of delegates, but a second ballot is required under the church's constitution.

and Western states favor.

"Congress can't have it both ways," he said. "They can't talk about cutting unnecessary deficit spending and then vote in favor of bills that bust the budget."

Said the president: "My vote will be to veto bills that spend unnecessary billions on projects the American people cannot afford. I am in full support of reasonable funding levels for these programs similar to the legislation passed by the Senate. But I am adamantly opposed to the excessive spending that is in the bill as it emerged from the conference committee."

The Senate originally approved the bill without the $89 million in third-party projects approved by the House, but went along with them in exchange for House acceptance of the 65 mph speed limit overhauled by the Senate.

House approved the new rural interstate speed limit Wednesday on a 217-206 roll call vote.

In Salem, N.H., Thursday night, after a presidential news conference dominated by questions about the Iran-Contra affair, Dole told a group of reporters he was not sure that Byrd, D-W.Va., replied: "I don't know."

Congress to sustain a veto of the highway bill. It would require two-thirds majorities of both the House and Senate to override his veto.

"The veto will be a key test of the president's strength, or the president will be back in the soup," Dole said.

Dole said Friday that a Senate vote on overriding a Reagan veto of the interior secretary James Watt and evangelist Rex Humbard, whom Senate passed the bill on Feb. 6. Asked if he had the votes to override a veto, Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., replied: "I don't know."

Eskekin said "99 percent" of the calls PTL received in response to Bakker's resignation were favorable.

But leader of the International Assemblies of God, which ordained Bakker, said the scandal has hurt the church and cast doubt on the integrity of ministers who raise funds through televised appeals.

"I think that the church needs to be very cautious in protecting its integrity," said the Rev. Everett Stenhouse, assistant general superintendent of the church, which is based in Springfield, Mo.

Bakker did not say whether he would come back. In the CNN interview, Falwell hinted in a change in direction for PTL — away from the Falwell will put excellent people in his own fundamentalist beliefs. "anti-charismatic," in contrast to Bakker.

USAF silent about crash

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — It will be two to three months before the Air Force releases any details of its investigation into a jet tanker crash that killed seven men, a Fairchild Air Force Base spokesman said Friday.

"There is nothing to report," Capt. Bob Ballew said a week after the March 13 crash.

Seven men died when the KC-135 crashed at Fairchild, six inside the four-engine jet and one on the ground. All were part of a newly formed bomber-tanker demonstration team called the Thunderhawks.

Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash., said he will ask the House Defense Appropriation Subcommittee to review the Air Force probe of the crash. The same subcommittee's questioning of a transport crash in Gander, Newfoundland, resulted in changes in policies on military use of commercial charters.

Major Fred Harrop, public information officer for Strategic Air Command headquarters — at Offutt Air Force Base outside Omaha, refused for a seventh straight day to discuss the demonstration team's mission.

BOISE (AP) — In sharp contrast to recent sessions of almost autocratic Republican control, leaders of a badly divided Senate GOP majority turned to the Democratic minority on Friday for help in resolving the 1988 budgeting dilemma and bringing the 1987 Legislature to a close.

"I don't see us getting a consensus out of the caucus," GOP Caucus Chairman Jerry Twigg of Blackfoot said after another 45-minute closed-door session saw no movement in the nearly even division of the 26 members on the ambitious 1988 budget draft or underwriting the $21 million revenue disparity it has generated. The legislative budget draft is effectively more ambitious than the original recommendation of Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"They found out they can't do it without us," assistant Senate Democratic Leader Bruce Sweezy of Lewiston said before the initial meeting between Republican and Democratic leaders on budget and tax issues.

Although Republican Senate President Pro Tem James Risch of Boise was playing down the development as less than unique, Democratic Leader Kermitt Kiebert of Hope said it was the first time in a decade that the minority has been given a significant voice in resolving revenue and budget problems.

"It's a big step forward when the majority is willing to work with the minority," Kiebert said.

Two years ago when the GOP took veto-proof two-thirds control of the Legislature for the first time in three decades, Republican leaders made it publicly clear that policy decisions would be made without the need for Democratic involvement.

After the first of what Kiebert said would be countless meetings with Black and other GOP leaders, the Democratic floor chief said, "We told them we're looking for anything that was equitable. We understand that if there's going to be funding, there has to be taxes... We're willing to vote for some tax increases as long as they are fair and equitable."

The 1988 budgeting problem arose after the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, no longer controlled by a conservative faction that has kept a tight rein on spending in past years, sent a new state spending blueprint to the floor that totaled over $667 million. Anticipated revenues, including planned tax increases still awaiting final approval, were put at less than $626 million.

GOP leaders had hoped to reduce the effect of the two key elements of that package: a $34.5 million allocation to public schools and a $101.7 million allotment to higher education, to significantly reduce the revenue gap.

Dinoseb use approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has issued a preliminary ruling that will allow pea and lentil growers to continue using the herbicide dinoseb.

The decision came Friday after an administrative law judge in Washington recommended that the EPA's ban on dinoseb be lifted for use on pea and lentil crops.

The judge granted a limited-use exemption mandating that the popular pre-emergent herbicide be applied only from enclosed applicator systems. EPA Administrator Lee Thomas said he would decide by Wednesday whether to uphold the preliminary ruling.

"This is welcome news," said Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho. "The economic ramifications of the ban could cost farmers millions of dollars. I strongly urge Mr. Thomas to uphold this decision."

"Without it, Idaho pea- and lentil growers have estimated they would lose $33 million out of a $96 million crop.

"The testimony clearly shows that our pea and lentil growers can't do without dinoseb until there is a satisfactory substitute," said Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho.

Committee introduces revenue-raising bills

BOISE (AP) — The House Revenue and Taxation Committee, which has been searching almost the entire session for politically acceptable ways to raise more state tax revenue, came up with three major proposals on Friday.

All of the bills propose higher state income taxes on corporations and wage earners in top brackets. All were approved for printing and introduction, but will have to receive final approval from the committee later.

Support wasn't unanimous. "I just think we are going about the budgeting process completely wrong," said Rep. Stan Hawkins, R-Ucon. "I can't go about my business this way."

Two of the proposals increase the corporate tax rate from 7.7 percent to 8.7 percent. The third boosts corporate taxes even higher, to 9 percent.

Idaho's top state income tax now is 7 1/2 percent. One bill proposes adding another bracket, 8 1/2 percent, for taxable income over $29,000 for a single taxpayer and $40,000 for couples filing joint returns.

That would raise $4.4 million in the current taxable year and $12.3 million per year thereafter.

For a single taxpayer, for each $1,000 of taxable income over $29,000, the proposal would boost state income taxes by $10 and the same amount for each $1,000 of taxable income reported on joint returns over $40,000.

A second bill boosts the top bracket to 9 percent, which would boost taxes $15 per $1,000 of taxable income over $30,000 for single taxpayers and $40,000 on joint returns. Along with the corporate tax increase, that would generate an additional $12.5 million in the current tax year and $15.4 million per year thereafter.

The third proposal includes a top bracket of 9 percent for individual taxpayers but boosts corporate taxes to 9 percent. That would generate $11.3 million this tax year, and $17.9 million per year thereafter.

Dog bets OK'd

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — After a debate that ranged from border wars with neighboring Washington to what happens to has-been racing dogs and horses, the Idaho House has approved allowing pari-mutuel wagering on dog races.

The vote was 47-36 as the proposal was passed and sent to the House on Friday.

The legislation is designed to prohibit dog racing in southern Idaho, but would allow it in northern Idaho.

PUC nomination confirmed

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Senate has restored the Public Utilities Commission to its full three-member complement.

Without dissent on Friday, the Senate confirmed the nomination of Coeur d'Alene accountant Ralph Nelson to the utility regulating board.

The 48-year-old Republican was nominated two weeks ago by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus to replace outgoing Republican Commissioner Richard High, a former state senator from Twin Falls.

The Senate also confirmed the reappointment of state Tax Commission Chairman Larry Looney.

Nelson's addition to the commission brings it back to full strength after the resignation of Democrat Conley Ward four years into his six year term and the decision by Andrus not to reappoint High. The governor named Democratic attorney Joe Miller of Caldwell to complete Ward's term. Miller's nomination was confirmed a week ago.

Senate gets 'lifeline' bill

BOISE (AP) — House-passed legislation that would provide a $4 break on the monthly telephone bills of thousands of needy senior citizens in Idaho has been sent to the state Senate for a final vote.

The so-called "lifeline" telephone bill was endorsed by the State Affairs Committee on Friday. Some committee members wanted to expand the coverage to other needy groups, but House sponsors of the bill urged that it remain unchanged.

"Let the program operate for a number of years," Rep. Janet Hay, R-Nampa, said. "Let's see what it does to telephone rates."

Backed by the telephone industry, the bill has the endorsement of Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, who has indicated he sees it as a mandatory piece of legislation in view of passage of a controversial telephone deregulation bill earlier this week.

Dinners drain lobby coffers

BOISE (AP) — A train trip from Boise to Shoshone and tickets to the Democrats' Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner were among the expenditures of Idaho's registered lobbyists last month, but the lion's share of their expenses went to big banquets.
 Lobbyists who had filed reports with the secretary of State's office by midday Thursday shelled out a total of $41,813 in February, up from $34,307 in January.
 The biggest spender during the first two months of 1986: Owen Sproat of the Idaho Financial Services Association, who doled out $7,085 in January. Most of that was reported on spending to entertain lawmakers in February.
 The biggest spender in February: Lobbyist Jean Weston, representing the Idaho Cable TV Association, reported spending $4,989.

Reagan's Bush remark gets reaction

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading Senate Democrat and a House Republican leader agreed today that President Reagan's comment that Vice President George Bush raised no objection to the Iran initiative puts Bush "in a very difficult position."

The Senate GOP leader, meanwhile, said that, whatever Reagan meant, he believes Bush.

"The vice president had not said in the past where he made his reservations known and the president indicated they had not been known to him," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "That did not mean he (Bush) had not made reservatons known somewhere else.

"So I think Vice President Bush probably is going to have to speak to the subject again," Nunn added during an appearance on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

"The vice president is always in a very difficult position, in any circumstances, even without this controversy," said Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., vice chairman of the House committee probing the Iran affair.

"If he challenges the president in policy meetings, disagrees with him, he's viewed as being disloyal," Cheney said on the same show. "I don't think this is any different for Vice President Bush."

The president, asked Friday at a proclamation signing ceremony regarding Afghanistan whether he was satisfied with Bush, replied, "Always has been."

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater, who was Bush's press secretary before assuming his present post in February, said he saw no conflict between Reagan's statement and previous statements by the vice president.

"The vice president has said he expressed reservations during the process, but has never said he objected to it in terms of telling the president about the policy," Fitzwater said. "He has said he supported the president and the policy and that mistakes were made."

Reagan and Bush held their daily morning meeting, but Fitzwater said he did not know whether they discussed the question.

The issue arose Thursday night at the conclusion of the president's nationally broadcast news conference when Reagan was approached by reporters trying to get in a last question or two.

"Did the vice president object to the plan in Iran?" Reagan was asked.

"No," he replied.

In Salem, N.H., meanwhile, Senate Republican leader Bob Dole said he believed Bush and wasn't sure what Reagan's answer meant.

Utah mid-air collision investigated NTSB to hold air crash hearing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board announced Friday it will conduct a public hearing here to determine the cause of a January mid-air collision between a commuter airliner and a private plane that killed 10 people.

NTSB investigator John Lauber said the agency's four board members voted Thursday to hold the hearing, but a date likely won't be scheduled for another three weeks.

"We will call witnesses," Lauber said. "The list will be determined on the basis of issues that have come up in the investigation and where we think we need to hear sworn testimony so that we can determine the cause and develop recommendations."

The NTSB is investigating the Jan. 15 collision between a SkyWest Airlines Metroliner on approach to Salt Lake International Airport and a private Mooney M-20C with two experienced pilots aboard that strayed into restricted airspace only minutes before the crash.

Federal investigators continue to examine recorded radar data to get a better understanding of what hampered the air traffic controller's ability to determine the whereabouts of the Mooney, Lauber said.

"We've pretty much wrapped up everything else except that having to do with air traffic control and radar," he said.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said Friday that radio communications between the air traffic controller and the Metroliner revealed "nothing unusual" up to the time of the collision, which showered the Salt Lake suburb of Kearns with bodies and debris.

The radar tape shows the Mooney had penetrated about 1½ miles into the restricted Airport Radar Service Area when the crash occurred, investigators have said. In order to fly in the ARSA, an aircraft must establish radio contact and be cleared. The Mooney was never in radio communication with Salt Lake International.

The air traffic controller reported seeing the private craft once near a small airfield southwest of the main airport sometime before the crash, Lauber said.

Senate OKs SBA head

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Friday approved the nomination of former Sen. James Abdnor, R-S.D., to head the Small Business Administration.

Abdnor, 64, was defeated by Democrat Tom Daschle, then a member of the House, last November in his bid for a second term in the Senate. He was nominated by President Reagan to head the SBA on March 10 and was confirmed by the Senate Small Business Committee last week.

"It is Jim's commitment and understanding of small-town America, of small businesses, its special needs and concerns, that makes his nomination so right," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said in a statement after Abdnor was approved without objection by the Senate.

Kampelman hospitalized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Max M. Kampelman, the chief U.S. negotiator in U.S.-Soviet arms control talks, was hospitalized Friday with what an assistant described as "a minor heart attack."

Kampelman, 66, was sent to George Washington University Hospital by his physician earlier in the day, the assistant said. "The prognosis is good and he should be out about a week," she said.

He was scheduled to testify next Tuesday to the Senate Appropriations Defense Subcommittee on President Reagan's program to develop a space-based defense against missiles.

Kampelman's assistant said he would "come out of the hospital angry with himself for having to be away from work for a week."

The negotiations in Geneva recently look on new steam.

Teachers earn excellence grants

Twin Falls district names program's first honorees

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN-FALLS — Creating the delicate curve to a violin's bow takes experience not taught in the Magic Valley.

Pernambuco wood, namesake for the Brazilian province where it is found, must be curved over dry heat — historically a pot of coals. Apprentices still learn from masters to scrape the hard wood into shape and then bend it according to the wood's character.

"With a master, it's the technique of the feel for where the weaknesses in the bow are," says Ernie Moss, an elementary orchestra teacher in Twin Falls School District. "It's a matter of developing a feel for the wood you're working with."

Moss repairs bows for the district's 100 instruments from what he's learned from books on the subject. But this summer, thanks to a School District grant, the 55-year-old instructor will travel to University of New Hampshire as one of a dozen people learning bow repair at the Violin Craftsmanship Institute.

"This is really a unique opportunity for me," said Moss, who has taught in the district for 17 years. "Once I have the knowledge, it's something that no one can take away from me."

Moss is one of three Twin Falls teachers given grants under a new program, "Investment in Excellence," in which the board awards money to teachers to gain more experience.

Moss was awarded $1,600 to learn more about bow repair. Fellow music teacher William Sweet got $1,500 to enhance his education for singing. And Jane Brumbach received $1,580, to learn how other districts run their programs for gifted and talented students.

These three from the field of six teachers interviewed received grants. The selection committee included Assistant-Superintendent Keith Tolin, Morningside Principal Dennis Sonius, Sawtooth elementary teacher Miriam Reed, Times-News Managing Editor Stephen Hartgen, and community members Donna Stalley and Camden Meyer.

Tolin, in recommending the winners to the board, said Moss, Sweet and Brumbach each represented "a sense of excellence."

The board did not distribute all of the planned $10,000 because of inadequate applications submitted during the program's inaugural year. But board members voted to carry over the remaining money and award it next year, when teachers become more familiar with the application process.

"I hope the rest of the faculty learn from these and, hopefully, we'll be able to give away all the money next year," said Board Chairman Gene Champlin.

Sweet will travel this summer to Coeur d'Alene to learn more about Kodaly method, named after the Hungarian founder, to teach children how to sing. The method — already used in Twin Falls schools — teaches elementary children common folk songs with few notes.

Murtaugh turns down school levy

By TERESA Z. TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

MURTAUGH — Murtaugh School District patrons voted "no" on a proposed supplemental override levy that would have taxed the district $125,000.

Superintendent Frederick DiazGranados said of the 279 district residents who voted, 155 — or 56 percent — cast a "no" vote. A simple majority was required to pass the levy.

"It was about three-fourths the number of people that voted in the school consolidation election last year, but there were more people that voted in this year's levy election than last year's," DiazGranados said.

DiazGranados said although he feels many factors influenced the community to vote against the levy, the amount the school district was asking for in this election may have been a key factor for the levy proposal's defeat.

"The only thing I heard was that some people felt the amount was too high and that if the election was not passed, the school district would come back to the voters with a lesser amount," DiazGranados said.

Last year, the Murtaugh School District passed a levy of $100,000. Some residents who attended last month's town meeting said they were concerned that the school district was asking for much more money this year, than patrons had been led to believe last year was actually needed by the district.

"We are very disappointed," DiazGranados said. "We will not make any decisions for about a week... we want to consider our alternatives. I don't know at this time if we will call another town meeting."

School board members voted to hold the special election after hearing the opinions of area residents who attended a town meeting in February. At that meeting DiazGranados appealed to the community to support the supplemental levy, saying the money was needed to provide a "quality" education for Murtaugh's students and to prevent the district from losing state accreditation.

The district was placed on the "advised" list after this year's annual review by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges. Additionally, the district has been going deeper into debt over the last several years, with the deficit now standing at $80,170.

Had the levy been passed, a portion of the revenues from the supplemental levy would have been dedicated to paying off the district's deficit.

DiazGranados said that patrons would have needed to raise a $125,000 override for up to 16 years to pay off the debt.

Senate eyes loopholes in 911 bill

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Phone customers could be paying another $1 on their phone bill in return for faster emergency service, if the Senate approves pending legislation.

Critics of the measure say the bill is riddled with loopholes, and they tried to put the phone bill on hold, but failed.

The measure, already approved by the House, comes on the heels of a phone deregulation bill that could add another $1 monthly charge within the next two years. And that gave critics the election willies.

"There's a lot of problems with this bill, and besides, it's really going to upset phone customers," said Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey.

Sen. Jerry Thorne, R-Nampa, said that although the bill allows county commissioners to impose rates, voters will blame state legislators.

"We just passed the phone deregulation bill, and you know who is going to get blamed for this," he said.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Hilde Kellogg, R-Post Falls, allows counties to set up a county-wide, consolidated, emergency communications service.

Idaho
Legislature

To pay for the service, the bill also allows counties to levy up to a $1 surcharge on all phones, business and commercial.

Close to a dozen county officials from around the state testified that the bill is necessary to pay for better emergency response. The result, they said, will save lives.

Kellogg told senators that most communities do not have the 911 emergency number "because they cannot afford it."

The committee also heard that small communities no longer have operators. So if a person calls the operator in Twin Falls, the call could be handled in Seattle or Portland.

Evelyn Adams, a Kootenai County commissioner, said another problem in Coeur d'Alene is that there are 33 phone numbers, from fire to police, residents must remember or look up to call for help.

Senators were concerned that the bill did not require a countywide vote to set up the emergency 911 number.

Peavey, who tried to get the bill held in committee, but failed, said he will add that provision to the bill on the Senate floor.

Critics of the bill include state Rep. Ken Robinson, D-Boise, who debated against the measure last week in the House.

"To charge people $1 a month is outrageous," Robinson said this week. "That would raise $4 million statewide, and I can't see how they could possibly use that much money."

Robinson also said the measure allows counties to levy the fee and use it for just about anything they want to label emergency services.

But the bill's biggest weakness is that counties could set up a consolidated emergency communication system, levy a $1 surcharge on phones, and never put in a 911 number, said a state official.

"This bill allows them to charge a fee, but it does not require the 911 number," said Paul Anderson, director of the state Emergency Medical Service.

Judge rules Cassia possibly negligent in flood ordinance

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge in Boise says Cassia County may have been negligent in implementing an ordinance enacted in May 1984 allowing it to build a channel to carry floodwaters from Lower Goose Creek Reservoir to the Snake River.

But the memorandum order issued earlier this month by U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan said the state of Idaho, the Idaho Department of Water Resources and Water Resources' Director A. Kenneth Dunn were immune from a damage complaint filed by Union Pacific Railroad and Oregon Short Line Railroad.

The Cassia County Commission passed an emergency ordinance on May 16, 1984, allowing it to channel water away from runoff-swollen Lower Goose Creek Reservoir, which was threatening to breach Oakley Dam and flood the surrounding area.

Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line pressed for compensation from the county for railroad property they said was damaged in the process of building the channel. At one point, former Gov. John Evans interceded, urging the railroad to settle the matter without a large monetary award.

The railroads filed suit last September against the county and the state, adding the Department of Water Resources in an amended complaint in October.

Besides the damage to railroad property, Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line argued that construction of the channel forced them to install additional drainage facilities under their rails to prevent them from washing out.

The suit alleged that the county knew or should have known that the existing overflow facilities from Oakley Dam were unsafe and inadequate, and that officials should have taken action to remedy the situation earlier in the spring of 1984.

But in his ruling this month granting a motion for summary judgment by Dunn and Water Resources, Ryan said that both the state and the department were constitutionally immune from such civil action in federal court.

The judge also granted part of Cassia County's motion to dismiss claims against it, but denied others. Ryan said the county did not qualify for constitutional immunity and could be found negligent for the way it implemented the ordinance allowing construction of the channel, though not for the action of adopting the ordinance.

Stallings: Speed limit veto 'foolish'

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Democratic Rep. Richard Stallings says a presidential veto of the 62-mph speed limit bill would be "foolish."

"I don't think he needs another legislative defeat right now," Stallings told the Idaho Legislature Friday. Congress would almost certainly override a veto by President Ronald Reagan, he said.

Stallings and Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, voted for the legislation Wednesday. The bill, containing $8.6 billion for highway and mass-transit aid, narrowly passed the U.S. House by 11 votes. It passed in the Senate Friday, 60-21, with support from Idaho Sen. Steve Symms and opposition from his Republican colleague James McClure.

The speed limit provision, sponsored by Symms, would let states raise maximum speeds to 65 mph on Interstate highways outside urban areas with at least 50,000 people.

Stallings, on Friday, urged state lawmakers to beef up enforcement because the law was sold on the idea that it would be strictly enforced.

Following a brief address to the Senate and the House, Stallings met with reporters and talked about several topics, including an economic summit in Idaho and the Superconducting Super Collider project.

Stallings announced he was organizing a one-day spring economic summit in Idaho which would involve Idaho's congressional delegation and Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"We can't wait for the SSC; economic recovery has to come from us," Stallings said.

Stallings said the summit would probably be at the end of May. He had no firm commitments from specialists who would participate.

On the SSC, Stallings said that if it is a purely political battle to attract the $4.4 billion research project, "Idaho is in serious trouble."

But Stallings said the decision is based on merit. "I think we have a good shot to make it on the short list," he said. "We can build and operate it cheaper than any other state."

The Super Collider is a giant atom smasher used for research to answer the most fundamental scientific questions of all: What is matter and how is it created?

Stallings also said he did not believe the U.S. Department of Energy would pick a site in the summer of 1988, as announced, as it is just 3 months from a presidential election.

Families recycle child abuse — counselor

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A vicious cycle in which abused children are, in turn, swept toward mistreating their own children was examined Thursday during a workshop.

Judy McAllister, a private counselor, outlined for four women how childhoods are torn away from abused children as they are forced to become "parental."

The children learn to distrust their parents and begin taking care of themselves, McAllister said, as the unstable relationship with their parents fluctuates between being beaten to being the only person in the abuser's life who might care for them.

"Once they become a parental child, they do not get the nurturing they need," McAllister said.

That lack of emotional development then berds the children toward immature adulthood, where they often wind up, abusing their own children, she said.

The free workshop was the second of eight scheduled on Thursdays at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, sponsored by Volunteers Against Violence and the hospital's Women's Health and Education Center.

The abused women attending the workshop testified to the theory by each raising their hands when asked if they were abused in their children. One abused woman said her daughter, as well as granddaughter, are also abused.

To break the cycle of WAR, or World of Abnormal Rearing, the child's self-esteem must be built up, McAllister said. Otherwise, the victims seek friends and spouses, who also think they are worthless, and go on abusing or being victimized, she said.

"It's the old phrase — water seeks its own level," McAllister said.

The counselor said that using cards with words describing emotions helps children talk about their feelings. After picking out a card with "scared" on it, the counselor asks what the child was afraid of during the last week.

"I felt afraid last night when my father was beating my mother," McAllister said she's been told. Simple, one-sentence descriptions expand on why the child picked one of the five basic messages — hurt, ashamed, sad, mad and scared.

"There is a lot of misplaced aggression in violent parent situations," McAllister said. Abusive parents endlessly repeat abusive behavior they endured in order to try and finally do the right thing in their parent's eyes.

"He's trying to be the parent his parent would have wanted him to be," McAllister said. "He tries to master the traumatic experiences he's had as a child."

The counselor said men tend to be physically abusive, while women tend to be verbally abusive. She added that she finds herself also mimicking the parental behavior she swore as a child she would never repeat.

"With me it was yelling. I was never going to be a yell-er... but I am," McAllister said.

Paul parents air concerns about Minidoka kindergarten

By ADELL HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Minidoka County School Board came under fire for its proposed kindergarten at Monday night's board meeting at Memorial School in Rupert.

Residents of the Paul area questioned the board on its proposed program, and asked if the board had allowed enough lead time to plan a kindergarten properly.

Paul asked if a parent from the Paul area had a plan for an attack? A game plan? "I'm in favor of kindergarten, but I'm not in favor of not knowing what is going on. We need you to tell us specifically about the curriculum, scheduling and plans so we can make intelligent decisions whether or not to enroll our children in private kindergartens," Superintendent Gene Snapp said that some teachers had already been sent to a kindergarten workshop, and that a committee had been appointed to develop a philosophy of kindergarten for the district. Snapp said the furnishing would be ordered "in the next day or so."

"We've not gone into this totally blind as you're intimating. We've been studying this for six years," said Trustee Russ Holland. The board surveyed residents this winter.

Trustee Warren Snyder said it would take a large unexpected enrollment increase to cause space problems for a kindergarten at Paul.

However, parents were still concerned that their sixth graders might have to be bused to the junior high to make room for the kindergarten.

The Paul parents said they were concerned about space problems the original kindergarten report showed would be caused by adding the extra class at the Paul Elementary School.

"If you bus our kids to Heyburn or some other school, will we have to pick them up there, or will they be brought back to Paul?" a parent, Daryl Neibauer, asked.

Trustee Warren Snyder said it would take a large unexpected enrollment increase to cause space problems for a kindergarten at Paul.

However, parents were still concerned that their sixth graders might have to be bused to the junior high to make room for the kindergarten.

Snapp agreed that was a possibility. In other business, the board rejected a lengthy proposal from parent Carol Landon requesting changes in the district's discipline policy. Landon prepared the proposal to offer alternatives to what she termed "a short-sighted suspension policy."

She said the board should consider in-school detentions, make-up time for tardies or Saturday school in lieu of "automatic suspensions for every minor infraction."

Letters of retirement were accepted from Ila Moon, of special services, Ruth Mary Sequist, district offices, and Mary Lindstrom, a business teacher at Minico.

John Rogers, junior varsity volleyball coach, was granted release from her coaching assignment. The board also approved a leave for Pete Espinosa to serve as Idaho Education Association vice president. The board accepted a bid from Edstrom's of Rexburg for the demolition of the Lincoln and Washington school buildings. Edstrom's bid of $40,007 was the lowest received.

However, because additional asbestos has been discovered in the buildings, a change-order was added to the bid to allow for additional costs of removal. Total demolition and clean-up of the property must be complete by August.

Procurement conviction set

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man found guilty by a 5th District Court jury Tuesday evening of charges of procurement for prostitution.

Darrell Murray, 50, owner of a battery business in Twin Falls, was charged last September with attempting to hire a young Twin Falls woman to work as a prostitute.

The trial for Murray began this week with selection of 12 men and women to serve on the jury. Two days of testimony ended when the case was given to the jurors Wednesday afternoon.

Court officials said jurors spent about 4 hours in deliberating the details of the case, before returning the verdict at 6:30 p.m.

During the trial, witnesses said Murray had asked several girls to work as prostitutes. One witness who came to police and agreed to help provide information said she was asked to charge $50 per customer and told that Murray would be paid by "sexual favors" for providing the customers.

Charges against Murray stated that he had attempted between Aug. 27 and Sept. 24, 1986, to get a witness to work as a prostitute under his management.

A date for sentencing will be set later.

Red Cross reports burglary

TWIN FALLS — A burglary at the Twin Falls American Red Cross office at 718 Shoshone St. E., was under investigation Thursday by city police.

The burglary was discovered early Wednesday. Officers said someone broke through a window.

The only items reported missing Thursday were a number of gold medals and other awards. Ann Livingston, chapter business manager, said the loss would amount to about $250.

Car hits, injures Rupert boy

RUPERT — Matthew Lallman, 7, of Rupert, was listed in good condition Tuesday night after he was struck by a car early in the day on Baseline Road just west of Rupert. Idaho State Police said the child ran into the path of a vehicle driven by Barbara Marshall, 35, also of Rupert, at about 7:30 a.m. The woman was traveling east when the child ran into the lane of traffic in front of the car.

The child was treated at Minidoka Memorial Hospital and transported to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls where he was being treated for fractures.

Refund request leads to arrest

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman was arrested for alleged petty theft Thursday when she attempted to turn in a refund at a store for a refund.

Store personnel told Twin Falls police that Mary Helen Curiel, 18, allegedly attempted to turn in a fishing reel for a refund, but without a sales slip. She said the item had been given to her as a gift.

Police said store officials checked and could find no cash register slips for a fishing reel on the date of purchase.

A check with the sporting goods department also indicated a reel was missing from the display. The value of the reel was $59.99.

VCR, purse reported stolen

TWIN FALLS — Thefts reported in Twin Falls Friday included the loss of a $500 video cassette recorder and a purse containing $407.

Police said Ferrell Bell reported that someone entered the Bell home at 165 Taylor St. sometime Wednesday afternoon or night and removed the VCR unit from the top of his television set.

Officers said there appeared to be no force used in gaining entry, but the intruder probably entered and left by a back door.

Bonnie Poe told police she was in the Country Inn, 1886 Addison Ave. E., Thursday night when she left her purse at her table to go to the bathroom.

When she returned, the purse was gone. In addition to the contents, the purse value was estimated at $20.

Senate committee puts higher drinking age bill up for final vote

BOISE (AP) — With available money well short of amount needed to halt the deterioration of Idaho's highway network, a Senate committee has sent legislation to raise Idaho's legal drinking age to 21 to another final legislative vote.

"We've fought this battle the last three years. I don't think we have any other choice," Sen. Rick Ricks, R-Rexburg, said Friday as the State Affairs Committee voted 6-4 to push the bill to the full Senate.

It will be the third time the Senate has voted on the emotionally-charged issue, created by the federal government's mandate to return all state drinking ages to 21 or face the loss of millions of dollars in federal highway funds.

The committee also introduced legislation authorizing the state Transportation Commission to raise the speed limit to 65 on 270 miles of state's 600 miles of interstate highways 30 days after enactment of federal government permits the increase.

That federal legislation cleared the Senate on Friday attached to an $88-billion highway aid bill but while President Reagan has endorsed the higher speed limit plan, his advisors are recommending a veto, calling the bill a budget buster.

Democratic Congressman Richard Stalling, addressing the Legislature on Friday, bashed the aid bill but raised the almost-totally ignored 55 mph limit, but he warned lawmakers that if they want to keep the higher limit they better ensure it is strictly enforced.

Transportation Committee Chairman C.A. Smyser, R-Parma, said his committee will act on the bill early next week. Similar legislation is being considered in the House.

"The drinking-age bill is similar to one that passed both houses earlier in the session, clearing the Senate by a 27-15 vote after a half-hour of highly charged debate only to be vetoed by then Acting Gov. C.L. "Bud" Otter," Senate leaders predicted the bill would again win Senate approval, and Gov. Cecil Andrus, who supports it, has made sure he will not be out of the state when it reaches his desk this time.

Lawmakers, accusing the federal government of blackmail, balked at complying with the mandate until the U.S. Department of Transportation made good on its threat and notified Idaho it would lose $1.1 million this year in federal highway funds and twice that amount if the drinking age was not raised in this session.

"We're finally going to succumb to the federal blackmail," conceded Education

Sen. Kermit Kiebert, D-Hope, although he continued to oppose the move, and Sen. Roy Fairchild, R-Fruitland, added, "There's a whole bunch of kids out there who are insulted, and you might have to deal with them some day."

But with the backing of needed state highway work growing and nearing the billion-dollar mark, Sen. Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewiston, admitted, "I don't feel we can afford to lose the highway funds."

Under the bill, the drinking age will be raised from 19 to 21 10 days after it is signed by Andrus. Persons 19 and 20 on the day before the bill takes effect would continue to be legally able to purchase alcoholic beverages.

"The Senate had been pushing an alternative measure raising the drinking age but automatically returning it to 19 the U.S. Supreme Court upholds a South Dakota challenge to the constitutional validity of the mandate. The House has rejected that concept twice.

Without opposition on Thursday, the Senate approved the nomination of Belton Pally as director of the Department of Finance and Education.

Gary Fay to the state Board of Education.

to music." While the Kodaly method is already taught in Twin Falls, Sweet plans to share his more-intense training this summer with the other local teachers. If she pursues the national instruction for three years, he becomes certified to teach Kodaly.

In a more exploratory vein, Brumback plans to attend programs featuring administrators of "gifted and talented" programs in Salt Lake City and at the University of Connecticut.

"I'll look at what we're doing in our program and what we might upgrade," said the 37-year-old coordinator of the district's program for gifted and talented children.

Brumback currently teaches computer programming at I.E. Perrine Elementary, but mainly organizes special teaching opportunities within the community.

But, from the national conferences, Brumback hopes to learn how to better identify G&T students who aren't performing well in school and gain information about in-school programs not taught here.

October 1984 to July 1986. The indictment against Mrs. Shank includes allegations that on 22 separate occasions she either "decreased letter cash" by a total of more than $18,000 or improperly made deposits or withdrawals totaling $24,000 involving letter cash and the accounts of six different individuals.

The largest of the transactions was for about $5,000, according to the indictment.

Home Federal officials said Thursday that the total amount lost was between $25,000 and $30,000, but that depositors and the thrift itself actually suffered no loss. Because all of the savings and loan's officers are bonded, the responsibility for any lost funds would fall to the bonding agency, officials said. Individual accounts are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

There are a lot more interests and needs that I can't give them; that's a bitter pill to swallow as a child learns to sing in tune.

Brumback said. But she delivers the district's 60 G&T children between third and eighth grade to learn about a wide variety of topics. Scheduled this year is a program on aerodynamics, with real airplanes and a helicopter at the airport, or learning creative dramatics from a College of Southern Idaho professor.

"Our program is very much oriented toward the community," said Brumback, who added that other districts across the country probably don't have that luxury.

But, from the national conferences, Brumback hopes to learn how to better identify G&T students who aren't performing well in school and gain information about in-school programs not taught here.

Uncharismatic Falwell out of step with PTL ministry

By LARRY LAUGHLIN The Associated Press

Analysis

RICHMOND, Va. — Taking on the fallen Jim Bakker's ministry will boost the Rev. Jerry Falwell's stature in the evangelical community...

work to do." In accepting PTL, Falwell called Bakker "a personal friend and a brother in Christ."

The financial engine of Bakker's $129 million enterprise is the "PTL Club," a fervent talk and variety show on which he and his wife, Tammy Faye Bakker, were hosts.

"Among evangelical leaders, Falwell is recognized to have a measure of public integrity," Hunter said.

"One of the reasons people come to touch and see" the Bakkers, said Jeffrey Hadden, a University of Virginia professor and author of the book "Prime Time Preachers."

The Rev. Everett Stenhouse, assistant general superintendent of the International Assemblies of God, said he expects PTL to change under Falwell.

"There's also a strong element of German nationalism, centering around the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick I, 'Barbarossa,'" said Amy Carr, an assistant professor of art at Lake Forest College, who is staging the play.

"Jerry Falwell is not a charismatic. PTL is a very charismatic kind of ministry. It's just hard to put them together," said Stenhouse from the church's headquarters in Springfield, Mo.

Richard Dertch, who has been executive director of PTL, was named new host of the show, which is broadcast nationally on cable television.

Hadden said Falwell, a fundamentalist Independent Baptist, does not approve of speaking in tongues, laying on of hands and emotionalism that are hallmarks of the charismatic pentecostals such as Bakker.

Hadden and James Hunter, another University of Virginia professor, said Falwell and Bakker offer widely differing brands of fundamentalism, and Falwell's approach may not be attractive to Bakker's followers.

Falwell has been trying to build a cable television network of his own, but Hadden said a target date has been pushed back indefinitely.

"I will be traveling a lot back and forth," Falwell said on the Christian Broadcasting Network's "The 700 Club." "Obviously, we have a lot of

The women expect to become acquainted with the dramatic changes that have occurred in the lives of the Chinese people since 1949.

"For Falwell, this increases his stature as a senior statesman on religious broadcasting," said Hadden. "But we'll have to see what unfolds."

'Apocalypse Then': medieval vision

CHICAGO (AP) — A musical drama that hasn't been performed in eight centuries is going back before audiences this week, thanks to some international detective work that turned up at least some of its music.

The manuscript was found in a Benedictine monastery at Tegernsee in southern Germany, said singer Andrew Schultze, who is directing the production.

The plot comes from the darkest prophecies in the biblical books of Daniel and Revelation. "There's also a strong element of German nationalism, centering around the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick I, 'Barbarossa,'" said Amy Carr, an assistant professor of art at Lake Forest College, who is staging the play.

Nationwide observance marks prayer day

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF. — In the wake of President Ronald Reagan's announcement that May 7 is the 100th National Day of Prayer, the National Day of Prayer Task Force and its parent, the National Prayer Committee, are urging all Americans to become personally involved in the observance.

"National days of prayer have been part of our country's heritage since the first one was declared by the Continental Congress in 1775. Through the influence of General Washington and many other founding fathers, prayer became an essential foundation stone in the establishment of our United States of America," said Gladys Dickelman, executive director of the National Day of Prayer Task Force, in a news release.

A privately sponsored, non-governmental group of citizens, the task force is co-chaired by entertainer/author Pat Boone and Vonnette Bright, chairman of the National Prayer Committee.

While the task force is responsible for coordinating and distributing information and materials to interested individuals across our country, a network of state coordinators and sponsoring churches from many denominations encourage individual and group prayer, special services and gatherings. Although several important events will be held in Washington, D.C., on May 7, the major event for this historic day is collectively the events held in states and communities nationwide.

President Reagan noted in his presidential proclamation, "On our National Day of Prayer, then, we join together as people of many faiths to petition God to show us His mercy and His love, to heal our weariness and uphold our hope, that we might live ever mindful of His justice and thankful for His blessing."

Ministries represented on the National Prayer Committee include The Salvation Army, World Vision, Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Campus Crusade for Christ, Youth With A Mission, United Prayer Ministries, Change the World Ministries, International Prayer Ministry and Support for Action.

For further information, contact the National Prayer Committee, P.O. Box 6825, San Bernardino, Calif. 92412, or call (714) 882-9932.

Boise Cascade to redeem stock

BOISE (AP) — Boise Cascade Corp. will redeem its $3 cumulative convertible preferred stock, Series A, on April 30 at a price of $5 a share.

The company said Tuesday there are about 62,000 shares of the Series A preferred stock outstanding.

Holders of the Series A preferred shares also may convert their shares to Boise Cascade common stock through April 29 at the rate of 0.84896 share of common stock for each preferred share.

Boise Cascade is an integrated forest products company based in Boise.

Rudd chosen for state board

BOISE (AP) — Albertson's Inc. executive Gerald R. Rudd has been picked by Gov. Cecil Andrus to replace retired Boise bank executive Robert Montgomery as a nominee to the Idaho Public Employee Retirement Board.

Montgomery, 65, was nominated by Andrus on Wednesday to replace Lewiston funeral home owner Richard A. Vassar, whose confirmation was denied by the state Senate earlier this month.

But Montgomery, a former Idaho Bank and Trust Co. executive vice president, withdrew his name from consideration on Thursday after learning that his years on the state Board of Education, Endowment Fund Investment Board and Air Pollution Control Advisory Board would force him to give up his state retirement benefits.

Rudd, 57, is senior vice president of human resources for Albertson's. He has worked for the Boise-based grocery store chain since 1959 and has extensive experience in employee benefits and retirement programs, Andrus said.

M-K chief sees light in gloom

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of Morrison Knudsen Corp. said lower than expected growth in engineering and construction might not be able to offset a previously forecast decline in earnings from the company's wholly owned National Steel and Shipbuilding unit.

W.J. Deasy, chief executive of the Boise-based engineering, construction and shipbuilding giant, told a group of securities analysts in New York that the corporation's 1987 earnings are likely to be lower than those achieved in 1986.

Still, Deasy said he expects a strengthening trend in performance as the year goes on.

Lumber orders, shipments rise

PORTLAND (AP) — Lumber shipment fell, but orders and shipments picked up in 12 Western states in the week ended March 14, a trade association report.

The Western Wood-Products Association reported lumber production at 431 million board feet, down 2 million feet from the previous week.

Orders, however, were up 19 million board feet to 416 million board feet, while shipments increased 27 million feet to 405 million board feet.

Figures for the same week one year ago show production at 381 million board feet, orders at 402 million feet and shipments at 395 million feet.

Japanese acquire stake in firm

NEW YORK (AP) — Japan's biggest life insurance company has agreed to buy a stake in the Shearson Lehman Brothers investment firm from American Express Co.

The Nippon Life Insurance Co. agreed in principle Thursday to pay $50 million for a 13 percent interest in Shearson, a major investment firm that accounted for nearly a third of American Express' revenue and about a quarter of its profit in 1986.

Dow ignores 'witching hour'

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market surged ahead Friday, setting record highs for the fourth straight session and extending its advance through the "triple witching hour" to the close.

The Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks soared 33.95 to 2,333.52, stretching its gain for the week to 74.86 points. The average crossed 2,300 briefly Wednesday and Thursday, but had never closed above that point before Friday.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange reached 224.01 million shares, up from 166.12 million Thursday and the eighth largest total on record.

Friday marked the last trading in a set of expiring options and futures on stock indexes.

This quarterly occasion in the past has often been accompanied by wide swings in stock prices as professionals engaged in computer-program trading complete their maneuvers.

Until a few days ago, the speculation was that Friday's witching hour might bring a sell-off in the stock market.

But by late Thursday, expectations began to shift, with market participants looking for an uneventful or even positive outcome. As it turned out, prices jumped ahead, adding to the gains they had built up earlier in the session.

Omega looks to report loss

ROY, Utah (AP) — Omega Corp., a manufacturer of computer data storage products with production facilities in Roy, said it expects to report a first-quarter loss in excess of $10 million, and also anticipates a loss for its entire 1987 fiscal year.

The company announced Feb. 18 that it expected revenues for the first quarter of 1987 to be significantly lower than planned, and that it anticipated a loss for the first quarter of 1987.

"Even though we announced that the company is expecting a loss for the entire year, we're still cautiously optimistic that sales of our new Beta 20 line of computer data storage products will take off as expected," Linda Dalton, executive assistant to Omega's chief executive officer, Michael Kucha, said.

Omega produces removable cartridge disk data-storage products for desktop computers based on a patented technology. The devices, according to the company, offer users the removability of floppy disks and the high capacity and speed of rigid disk drives.

West: Hawkeyes slip by Oklahoma in OT

By the Associated Press

SEATTLE — Kevin Gamble sank a 22-foot 3-pointer with three seconds left to overtime Friday night to give sixth-ranked Iowa a 99-91 victory over Oklahoma in the West Regional semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament.

Gamble, a 6-foot-6 senior, led the Hawkeyes with 26 points and blocked a late Oklahoma shot to force the overtime.

The Hawkeyes, 30-1, play the winner of Friday night's contest between No. 1 ranked Nevada-Las Vegas and Wyoming in Sunday's regional finals.

Oklahoma, 24-10, led by as many as 16 points in the first half but led only by one at intermission.

The game was close throughout the rest of the way. Iowa's biggest lead was six points at 78-72 with 6:54 to play in regulation. But the underdog Sooners built an 85-80 lead with 2:17 to play.

Then Iowa scored the final five points of regulation, the last on a 3-point bomb by B.J. Armstrong with 51 seconds remaining.

Oklahoma had a chance for the game-winning shot, but Gamble blocked Tim McCallister's 15-footer and Kennedy's desperation 10-footer failed to connect at the buzzer.

Iowa scored the first five points of the overtime, but the Sooners, plagued by foul trouble all night, managed one more comeback. They grabbed a 91-90 advantage on Kennedy's inside-basket with 1:02 to play.

The Hawkeyes missed two 15-foot shots but got the ball back both times, once on an offensive rebound by Gamble and once when Oklahoma knocked the ball out of bounds. That set up Gamble's winning shot.

Armstrong added 16 points for the Hawkeyes, who had five players in double figures.

McCallister scored 25, including seven 3-pointers, for Oklahoma. David Johnson added 20.

Midwest Indiana 88 Duke 82

CINCINNATI — Keith Smart and Rick Calloway each scored 21 points as No. 3 Indiana defeated No. 17 Duke 88-82 Friday night in an NCAA Midwest regional semifinal basketball game.

Indiana, 27-4 and the region's top seed, advanced to Sunday's regional final against Louisiana State, 24-14, which beat fifth-ranked DePaul 63-58 earlier Friday.

Indiana's All-American guard Steve Alford added 18 points, 12 in the second half, despite an off-shooting night as he made just six of 10 shots from the field.

The Hoosiers used a 21-1 run in the first half to overcome Duke, which held a 29-21 lead. The Blue Devils, 24-9, went 7-30 without a field goal as Indiana made 15 runs with Calloway scoring eight of the points.

When Alford finally broke Duke's shooting slump, Calloway answered with a short jumper before Alford scored again. Dean Garrett made two free throws for Indiana and Calloway added a basket on a drive for Indiana's largest lead of the half, 48-31, with 1:19 left. The Hoosiers led 49-39 at halftime.

Indiana took its largest lead of the game with Alford's pull-up jumper to start the second half. The Hoosiers were in control until Duke managed a brief run that made it 76-70 with 3:57 to play.

Danny Ferry, who finished with 20 points, made a 3-pointer with 3:27 left and Tommy Amaker, who led the Blue Devils with 23 points, did the same with 2:58 left after Calloway hit a jumper. That cut the lead to 78-76.

Indiana ran off five straight points, three by Alford, to put away the victory.

Midwest Louisiana State 63 DePaul 58

CINCINNATI — Anthony Wilson said he didn't have a good night shooting — until the game was on the line.

It was Wilson's 15-foot shot with 25 seconds left which supplied 10th-seeded Louisiana State with the job it needed to upset No. 3-seeded DePaul 63-58 in the Midwest Regional semifinals of the NCAA Tournament at Riverfront Coliseum Friday night.

Wilson hit just seven of 20 shots from the field, but the last of those successful attempts gave his team a 60-57 lead. Nikita Wilson, no relation to Anthony, scored 24 points to lead LSU in scoring, while Anthony contributed 17 points.

"You're not going to go out and shoot extremely well every night," said Anthony Wilson, a 6-foot-4 senior. "That was the case for me. Nikita had the hot hand. If one guy doesn't do it, somebody else has to take up the slack."

The victory moved LSU, 24-14, into Sunday's regional final against the winner of Friday's second game between Indiana and Duke.

"In the last six minutes, only two people were allowed to shoot the ball unless it was a layup," said LSU coach Dale Brown. "Anthony was the only one allowed to shoot from the outside and Nikita was the only one who could go inside."

As proof, the Wilsons scored all six of the Tigers' points over the last six minutes, until Bernard Woodside put the game out of reach with a layup with four seconds left.

LSU, which started only one player taller than 6-6, the 6-8 Nikita Wilson, outrebounced the Blue Devils 27-15. "Because of that we ended up losing the game," Woodside added 11 points for LSU. DePaul was led by the 14 points of Dallas Comerys, with Kevin Edwards scoring 12 and Green 10.

DePaul hit 24 of 47 shots from the field for 51 percent to become only the third team in 38 games to shoot better than 50 percent against LSU. The Tigers hit 29 of 64 shots from the field for 45 percent.

LSU led 38-34 at the half and stretched its lead to 42-34 at the outset of the second half before DePaul pulled 1:01 remaining. LSU went into its even with 13:48 remaining. Neither delay game with Anthony Wilson team led by more than two points driving and hitting the jump shot the rest of the way until Anthony Wilson's shot at the 25 second mark.

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley had 25 points and 25 rebounds, leading the Philadelphia 76ers to a 116-106 victory over the Denver Nuggets Friday night.

In relief of injured Maurice Cheeks, Steve Colter went in for 44 minutes, his longest game of the season. He scored 15 points and had six assists.

"Steve Colter did a great job again running the team," Philadelphia Coach Matt Guentz said. "Steve was sharp and he played solid defense. That's two games in a row, and I'm happy to see that."

Denver Coach Doug Moe wasn't quite so happy with his team, which was outrebounced 61 to 50.

behind Detroit and Atlanta in the divisional race.

After Randy Wittman hit a jumper to put the Hawks ahead 24-23 late in the first period, Atlanta never trailed again.

Midway through the second quarter, the Hawks scored 11 consecutive points to build a 51-34 lead with 3:55 remaining. Atlanta led 57-45 at the half.

Cleveland 106 New Jersey 105

RICHFIELD, Ohio — John Barkley's jumper from the top of the key with three seconds to play Friday night gave the Cleveland Cavaliers a 105-106 NBA victory over the New Jersey Nets.

The Nets, who lost to Cleveland for the second time this week, took a 105-104 lead with 10 seconds left when Buck Williams put in a rebound off of Dwayne Washington's missed layup on a New Jersey last break.

After a Cleveland timeout, Barkley fed the inbound pass near mid-pin, who quickly passed it back out to Bagley at the top of the circle.

New Jersey called another timeout with two seconds left, but Orlando Woolridge, stepping on the out-of-bounds line on the ensuing inbound pass.

The Cavaliers, who won for only the third time in the last 11 games, were led by Ron Harper's 28 points. Phil Hubbard added 23.

Houston 126 L.A. Clippers 98

HOUSTON — Akeem Oluajun led 28 points and eight rebounds to lead the Houston Rockets to a 126-98 NBA victory over the Los Angeles Clippers Friday night.

Rodney McCray followed with 17 points in only three periods as five Rockets scored in double figures for Houston, which won its third straight game.

The Clippers, who have lost five straight and 10 of their last 11 games, got 19 points from Mike Woodson and 17 from Michael Cage. Houston's Robert Reid combined for an 8-0 surge that gave the Rockets a 78-57 lead with eight minutes left in the third quarter. A 9-2 spurt, capped by Allen Leavel's technical foul shot, made it 101-74 going into the final period.

McCray had 11 points and four assists in the first quarter and Oluajun scored 18 points in the first two periods as the Rockets built a 64-50 half-time lead.

Boston 112 Seattle 108

BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 19 of his 42 points in the fourth quarter as the Boston Celtics held off the Seattle SuperSonics 112-108 and extended their Boston Garden winning streak to 21 games Friday night.

Bird, whose season high is 43 points, scored from the corner with 7:15 left in the game, giving him 10 points in the fourth period and the Celtics a 97-86 lead.

Then Bird capped off his outstanding game by scoring the Celtics' last nine points. The Sonics, who were led by Dale Ellis with 31 points, got as close as 104-108, but Bird responded with a layup with 1:12 left and Seattle's Tom Chambers finished the scoring by converting an offensive rebound with 31 seconds to go.

Robert Parish and Dennis Johnson each scored 20 points for Boston and Kevin McHale added 16 as the Celtics won for the 68th time in their last 69 games at the Garden.

A.C. Green added 21 points and a career-high 17 rebounds for the Lakers, who raised their league-leading record to 53-14 and equaled their longest winning streak of the season. San Antonio was led by the Celtics closed the first half with a 15-7 run that gave them a 60-52 Sunday lead with 17

L.A. Lakers 146 San Antonio 115

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Byron Scott scored 22 points and Magic gave Los Angeles a 62-52 lead with the eighth-year veteran guard, tying for his fourth NBA assist title, in an NBA victory, a 146-115 decision over averaging 10.9 over 552 regular-season games.

Johnston, who finished with 11 assists, became the ninth player in league history to accumulate regular-season 6,000 assists when he set up Scott's 3-point field goal that gave the Lakers a 62-52 lead with 1:01 remaining. LSU went into its even with 13:48 remaining. Neither delay game with Anthony Wilson team led by more than two points driving and hitting the jump shot the rest of the way until Anthony Wilson's shot at the 25 second mark.

West: Hawkeyes slip by Oklahoma in OT

By the Associated Press

SEATTLE — Kevin Gamble sank a 22-foot-3-pointer with three seconds left in overtime Friday night to give sixth-ranked Iowa a 53-51 victory over Oklahoma in the West Regional semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament.

Gamble, a 6-foot-6 senior, led the Hawkeyes with 26 points and blocked a late Oklahoma shot to force the overtime.

The Hawkeyes, 30-4, play the winner of Friday night's contest between No. 1 ranked Nevada-Las Vegas and Wyoming in Sunday's regional final.

Oklahoma, 24-10, led by as many as 16 points in the first half but led only by one at intermission.

The game was close throughout the rest of the way. Iowa's biggest lead was six points at 78-72 with 5:54 to play in regulation. But the underdog Sooners built an 85-80 lead on Darryl Kennedy's stuff shot with 2:17 to play.

Then Iowa scored the final five points of regulation, the last on a 3-point bomb by B.J. Armstrong with 51 seconds remaining.

Oklahoma had a chance for the winning basket, but Gamble blocked Tim McCallister's 15-footer and Kennedy's 10-footer failed to connect at the buzzer.

NCAA Tournament Semifinals

Iowa scored the first five points of the overtime, but the Sooners, plagued by foul trouble all night, managed one more comeback. They grabbed a 91-90 advantage on Kennedy's inside basket with 1:02 to play.

The Hawkeyes missed two late shots, but got the ball back both times once on an offensive rebound by Gamble and once when Oklahoma knocked the ball out of bounds. That set up Gamble's winning shot.

Armstrong added 16 points for the Hawkeyes, who had five players in double figures.

McCallister scored 26, including seven 3-pointers, for Oklahoma. David Johnson added 20.

Midwest: Indiana 88 Duke 82

CINCINNATI — Keith Smart and Rick Calloway each scored 21 points as Indiana defeated No. 17 Duke 88-82 Friday night in an NCAA Midwest regional semifinal basketball game.

Danny Ferry, who finished with 20 points, made a 3-pointer with 3:27 left and Tommy Amaker, who led the Blue Devils with 23 points, did the same with 2:58 left after Calloway hit a jumper. That cut the lead to 78-76.

But Indiana ran off five straight points, three by Alford, to put away the victory.

Midwest: Louisiana State 63 DePaul 58

CINCINNATI — Anthony Wilson said he didn't have a good night shooting — until the game was on the line.

It was Wilson's 15-foot shot with 25 seconds left, which supplied 10th-seeded Louisiana State with the job it needed to upset No. 3-seeded DePaul 63-58 in the Midwest Regional semifinals of the NCAA Tournament at Riverfront Coliseum Friday night.

Wilson hit just seven of 20 shots from the field, but the last of those successful attempts gave him a 60-57 lead. Nikita Wilson, no relation to Anthony, scored 24 points to lead LSU in scoring, while Anthony contributed 17 points.

"You're not going to go out and shoot extremely well every night," said Anthony Wilson, a 6-foot-4 senior. "That was the case for me. Nikita had the hot hand. If one guy doesn't do it, somebody else has to take up the slack."

The victory moved LSU, 24-14, into Sunday's regional final against the winner of Friday's second game between Indiana and Duke.

"In the last six minutes, only two people were allowed to shoot the ball unless it was a layup," said LSU's Dale Brown. "Anthony was the only one allowed to shoot from the outside and Nikita was the only one who could go inside."

As proof, the Wilsons scored all six of the Tigers' points over the last six minutes, until Bernard Woodside put the game out of reach with a 3-point layup and free throw with four seconds left.

LSU, which started only one player taller than 6-5, the 6-8 Nikita Wilson, outrebounded the Blue Demons 33-27.

"Their physicalness was the difference," DePaul Coach Joey Meyer said. "Their physicalness took us out of our game offensively. We could not run our offense."

DePaul, ranked No. 5 in the final AP poll, dropped out at 28-3.

The Tigers took the last 13 lead changes in the game for a 58-57 advantage on Nikita Wilson's short turnaround shot with 2:48 remaining.

LSU's Oliver Brown then stole a pass from DePaul's Andy Laux with 1:01 remaining. LSU went into its own half with 13:48 remaining. Neither delay game, with Anthony Wilson driving and hitting the jump shot the rest of the way until Anthony left for a 60-57 lead.

DePaul's Terence Greene was fouled by Woodside on a 3-point attempt with 13 seconds remaining. He hit the second of two free throws to make it 60-58.

The Tigers nearly threw the ball away on the ensuing inbound play, but Darryl Joe made a scrambling catch in the corner. He flipped a pass upcourt to Anthony Wilson, who hit Woodside behind the DePaul

And (because of that) we ended up losing the game."

Woodside added 11 points for LSU. DePaul was led by the 14 points of Dallas Comegys, with Kevin Edwards scoring 12 and Green 10.

DePaul hit 24 of 47 shots from the field, for 51 percent, to become only the third team in 36 games to shoot better than 50 percent against LSU.

The Tigers hit 29 of 64 shots from the field for 45 percent.

LSU led 38-34 at the half and stretched that to 42-34 at the outset of the second half before DePaul pulled 1:01 remaining. LSU went into its own half with 13:48 remaining. Neither delay game, with Anthony Wilson driving and hitting the jump shot the rest of the way until Anthony

In relief of injured Maurice Cheeks, Steve Colter went in to play 44 minutes, his longest game of the season. He scored 15 points and had six assists.

"Steve Colter did a great job again running the team," Philadelphia Coach Matt Guokas said. "He was sharp and he played solid defense. That's two games in a row, and I'm happy to see that."

Denver Coach Doug Moe wasn't quite so happy with his team, which was out rebounded 61 to 50.

Cleveland 106 New Jersey 105

RICHFIELD, Ohio — John Bagley's jumper from the top of the key with three seconds to play Friday night gave the Cleveland Cavaliers a 106-105 NBA victory over the New Jersey Nets.

The Nets, who lost to Cleveland for the 11th time this week, took a 105-104 lead with 10 seconds left when Buck Williams put in a rebound of Dwayne Washington's missed layup on a New Jersey fast break.

After a Cleveland timeout, Bagley took the inbound pass near midcourt, fed the ball inside to Mel Turpin, who quickly passed it back out to Bagley at the top of the circle.

New Jersey called another timeout line with two seconds left, but Orlando Woolridge, stepped on the out-of-bounds line on the ensuing inbound pass.

The Cavaliers, who won for the third time in the last 11 games, were led by Ron Harper's 28 points. Phil Hubbard added 20.

Woolridge scored 27 and Williams added 23 for the Nets.

The Clippers, who have lost five straight and 10 of their last 11 games, got 19 points from Mike Woodson and 17 from Michael Cage.

Olajuwon and Robert Reid combined for an 8-0 surge that gave the Rockets a 78-57 lead with eight minutes left in the third quarter. A 9-2 spurt, capped by Allen Leavell's technical foul shot, made it 101-74 going into the final period.

McCray had 11 points and four assists in the first quarter and Olajuwon scored 18 points in the first two periods as the Rockets built a 64-50 halftime lead.

Then Bird capped off his outstanding game by scoring the Celtics' last nine points. The Sonics, who were led by Dale Ellis with 31 points, got as close as 110-106, but Bird responded with a layup with 1:12 left and Seattle's Tom Chambers finished the scoring by converting an offensive rebound with 31 seconds to go.

Robert Parish and Dennis Johnson each scored 20 points for Boston and Kevin McHale added 16 as the Celtics won for the 68th time in their last 69 games at the Garden.

Seattle, which has lost five of its last six games, got 30 points from Chambers and 19 from Xavier McDaniel.

The game was tied 13 times before the Celtics closed the first half with a 15-7 run that gave them a 60-52 lead.

Twin Falls harriers surprise in season debut

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bruins were in fine form Friday as both the boys and girls won their divisions of a four-team, season-opening prep track meet here.

The Bruins took the girls' division easily with 47 points compared to Madison's second-place finish with 58 points. But the showing of the Twin Falls boys was a welcome surprise, powered by a strong performance from distance runners Todd Sims and John Conover, the Bruins cruising to 103 1/2 points, outstanding Jerome's 90 points.

Jerome and Minico finished second and third, respectively, in the girls' division while Madison and Minico finished the same way in the boys' competition.

Prep track

"I was pleased with the way everybody performed," said Twin Falls Coach Duane Stands. "I was especially pleased with our distance runners. I really hadn't expected much from that department, but the guys really came through."

Sims, a sophomore, finished second to Jerome's Troy Ness in both the 1,600- and 4,200-meter runs and Conover, a junior, took fourth in the mile.

The Bruins also got some solid early-season performances out of sprinter Matt Chidichimo who won the 100-meter dash with a time of 10.79 seconds and in the 200, which he would have won if he hadn't stepped out of his lane on the corner.

"After he crossed the finish line I looked at him and long before it was decided, Matt knew he had crossed over," Stands said.

In the girls' division, Jenny Hannah won the 800 and the 1,600, then ran the first leg in the 1,600 relay without showing any signs of letting up.

Twin Falls swept the jumping events with high jumper Gabe O'Slyn beginning his senior season with a 6-foot, 1-inch jump and Curt Bywater winning the long jump with a mark of 20-5. Other winners include Alex LaBeau in both hurdle events and Mike Kay in the triple jump.

For the girls, in addition to Hannah's heroics, Angela Ciccone won the discus while Kris Horner and Shelley Hart finished 1-2 in the shot put. Jennifer Mattson won the 400.

"The performance of Kansas transfer Dana Robertson also impressed Stands. The junior finished second to Hannah in the 800.

"Dana ran well," said Stands. "She's been a real plus for us and I'm really looking forward to watching her improve the rest of the season."

Hostage released in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Kidnappers on Friday handed over another foreign captive, the second released this week, to Syrian forces in Muslim west Beirut.

"They kept me blindfolded all the time, but not handcuffed," said Khalid Deeb, a 23-year-old Saudi Arabian freed after 54 days as a hostage. "I was not beaten."

Bakr Damanhour, a Saudi employee of his embassy's cultural section, was freed Wednesday after 66 days in captivity.

"I am very happy to be free," Deeb told a news conference.

His release left 24 foreigners, including eight Americans, missing and believed held hostage in Lebanon. Most of the hostages are believed held by radical Shiite Muslim organizations.

Abdallah al-Amin, an official of the Syrian-backed Baath Party, said earlier that Deeb was released Friday morning at a Syrian military office in west Beirut.

Amin said Nabil Jiser, a representative of Lebanese-born Saudi business tycoon Rafik Hariri, was at the office to receive Deeb. Hariri is an adviser on Lebanese matters to Saudi King Fahd.

Italian air force general gunned down

ROME (AP) — Two young men shot to death an air force general Friday in the capital.

The government blamed the Red Brigades and a caller claimed responsibility for a group thought to be an offshoot of the leftist terrorist organization.

Cmdr. Francesco Di Mento, a Defense Ministry spokesman, said the victim was Gen. Licio Giorgieri, 61, an engineer in charge of buying and maintaining arms and aircraft.

Police said the 6:45 p.m. shooting occurred in the Aurelia neighborhood, a verdant section near the sprawling Villa Doria Pamphili park and about three miles from the historic heart of the capital.

The general was in a chauffeur-driven air force car when two youths on a motorcycle, their faces covered by the shields of their white helmets, pulled alongside and shot him with pistols, the news agency AGI reported.

About an hour later, an anonymous woman caller told the Milan office of the Rome newspaper La Repubblica that the killing was the work of the Fighting Communist Union, the ANSA news agency reported. It said the group is believed a splinter group of the Red Brigades, which orchestrated a reign of terror in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

Israeli planes attack base

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked an abandoned Palestinian base on the fringe of a refugee camp outside this southern port Friday, police reported.

No casualties were reported in the seventh Israeli air raid inside Lebanon this year. Police said the abandoned base and a nearby bridge were destroyed.

Police said three jets fired 12 rockets at a one-story building at Darb el-Sim on the Ein el-Hilweh refugee camp's southern edge. They said Yasser Arafat's Fatah faction had used it to train guerrillas for attacks on Israel from the sea.

Police and Fatah spokesmen in Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut, said Fatah abandoned the base three months ago and there were no casualties. The planes attacked at 2:45 p.m., they said.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli command said its pilots reported accurate hits on a guerrilla headquarters near Sidon and returned safely to base.

Korean police break up rally

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Riot police swept onto a university campus Friday and fired tear gas to disperse an anti-government rally of about 600 students, witnesses reported. They said the youths fought back with rocks and firebombs.

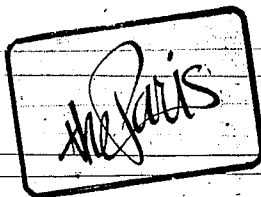

About 900 police moved into Seoul National, South Korea's leading university, and dozens of protesters were arrested, the witnesses said. There was no immediate reports of injuries.

The newspaper Joong-Ang Ilbo said 132 students from other schools who tried to join the demonstration were stopped at the gate and taken away by police.

Student sources said sporadic clashes continued on the campus for about 90 minutes and protesters shouted anti-government slogans.
