IRS set for flood of returns

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service, heading down the homestretch of a successful tax filing season, is bracing for a flood of last-minute returns and refund processors that will have to wait a bit longer for their refunds.

"We're on target and our inventories of unprocessed returns are especially low," IRS spokesman Larry Baldorf said Monday. The filing deadline is midnight Wednesday.

Although the agency has been processing returns at a pace that has produced refunds in four or five weeks, the big end-of-season push means a wait of six to 10 weeks, Baldorf said.

Through April 3, the latest figures available, the IRS had received $1.1 million returns. The agency is forecasting 105.5 million returns for all this year, although many of them will be delayed in filing by several months. From last Friday through the deadline, the IRS was "expecting 23 million returns."

"This is not an unusual crunch and we expect no problems in dealing with the last-minute filers," Baldorf said.

In previous years, there has been no recurrence of the computer problems of two years ago in the 10 service centers where returns are processed. "Most of the problems were responsible for the worst filing season in IRS history and required millions of people to wait 10 weeks or longer for their refunds."

On the other hand, tax advisers and return preparers say that passage of the big tax overhaul last year has many taxpayers confused, and that may be responsible for some of the late returns.

"People have been bombarded about changes in the tax law from away back when they were still proposals," said John Stolp, a tax adviser with Merrill Lynch Inc. in Princeton, N.J. "Some are not sure which of the changes have taken effect."

Shultz, Soviet discuss nuclear arms

Secretary of State George Shultz gives Vladimir Slepak album of family pictures

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz held three rounds of talks Monday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev and Shevardnadze, taking up the critical issue of nuclear arms reductions at an unscheduled late night session.

There was no immediate word on the outcome. At the California White House, meanwhile, presidential Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. said he would not be surprised to see a decision on a superpower summit emerge by the end of Shultz's three-day visit.

The Soviet news agency Tass, however, accused Washington of "a fresh cock-and-bull story" of Soviet espionage at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. The dispatch said the Pentagon came up with the "spy scare" in an effort to undercut the State Department.

Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman, said Shultz and Shevardnadze brought their arms control experts to the evening meeting.

The meeting was held after a Passover Seder attended by Shultz at the U.S. Embassy with about 40 prominent Jewish "refuseniks," people who have been refused permission to emigrate.

Wearing the traditional Jewish skull cap, Shultz told those assembled at the supper, "Never give up, never give in."

Shultz also delivered to one of them, Vladimir Slepak, a photograph of the refusenik's grandchildren that Slepak's son Alexander gave him in Washington.

Shultz attended the Seder, which recalls Jewish deliverance from slavery under the Egyptian pharaoh.

to demonstrate continued U.S. support for Soviet Jews. He told them Shultz and Shevardnadze held two rounds of talks Monday morning and afternoon to try to stabilize relations in the midst of a bitter exchange of spy charges.

Those sessions and a working lunch were held at a Foreign Ministry guest house about a mile from the Kremlin. Sunny skies, meeting the little slush left, spoke of spring.

A special van was set up to provide secure communications for Shultz to Washington and for meetings with his staff. The United States has accused the Soviets of infiltrating the embassy with the collusion of some U.S. Marine guards and gaining access to classified materials.

About three dozen reporters and photographers were taken on a tour of two rows of red-brick townhouses where American diplomats have lived since late last year. Construction on the new embassy building stopped in 1985.

President Reagan said last week the new $191 million embassy complex might have to be torn down.

Raymond Benson, the U.S. press and cultural counselor, said "we've never seen any listening devices" in the residences. But last week congressional probes claimed that eavesdropping devices were hidden during unsupervised Soviet construction.

Shulton planned to complain to Shevardnadze about a "pattern of intrusiveness and hostility." But he also said before coming to Moscow on a three-day visit that he wanted to change our way to a more constructive relationship and to lower the level of nuclear weapons.

Navy recommends several steps to tighten embassy security

Study says guards should take lie detector tests

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Marine guards at embassies should be subject to random lie-detector tests, an internal Navy study concludes. Pentagon sources said late Monday.

In addition, the Marine Corps and State Department should abandon their practice of relying on senior non-commissioned officers to head up embassy guard units, says the study.

The "intermittent" of a sex-and-spy scandal that has rocked the Marine guard force at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

American intelligence agencies also should work to improve their sharing of information on potential espionage threats to U.S. personnel abroad, and the State Department should better delineate its policies regarding contacts with foreign citizens, the report adds.

Those recommendations, disclosed by Pentagon officials who asked not to be named, are contained in a recently completed internal study performed by the Navy's inspector general.

The sources said the study was forwarded within the last week or so to Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and to the State Department.

The inspector general's study was conducted independently of the Naval Investigative Service, which is spearheading the investigation that so far has led to the arrests of three Marines on spying charges.

Navy officials have been overseeing both efforts, because the Marine Corps is part of that service.

The inspector general's recommendations are expected to be incorporated into a new plan to tighten embassy security, particularly in Communist countries, now under formulation by the State Department, the sources add.

Pentagon and Navy spokesmen declined to discuss the inspector general's report Monday, describing it as confidential. Robert Sims, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, would say only that the report had been forwarded to Weinberger by John Lehman, who stepped down last Friday as the Navy's secretary.

However, other Pentagon officials said the report includes a recommendation that may prove to be controversial, that Marine guards should be added to the current list of "critical security" jobs subject to random polygraph tests.

The Marine guards now being interrogated by Navy investigators have been subjected to lie-detector tests, but that is a result of the criminal espionage probe and not because of standing security concerns, the sources noted.

The Pentagon officials also said the report calls in general for a stronger emphasis on training Marine guards and on enforcing conduct regulations.

The sources said the inspector general particularly faulted the reliance on senior non-commissioned officers to head the guard detachments. In the case of the Moscow embassy, for example, the 28-man guard detachment was headed by a gunnery sergeant.

"The report recommends that in Communist-controlled countries and other major vulnerability areas, you install a commissioned officer in charge of the Marines, reporting directly to the embassy's security officer," one source said.

Hinckley letters to Bundy halt hearing on unescorted visit

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. wrote to serial killer Theodore Bundy and obtained the address of mass murderer Charles Manson, a psychiatrist said in surprise court testimony Monday.

Hinckley, who is trying to convince a judge his mental illness is in remission, recently wrote Bundy to "express his sorrow" about the "awkward position he must be in" on Florida's death row, Dr. Glenn Miller testified in U.S. District Court.

The stunning testimony prompted a bench conference during which Hinckley's lawyers told the judge Hinckley may still have the letters he received from Bundy, who is awaiting execution for three 1978 murders, according to a transcript of the private conference.

Miller also testified that Hinckley, 30, received a letter several years ago from Manson follower Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, asking him to write to Manson at a California prison.

He said Hinckley declined but obtained Manson's address.

Miller's unexpected testimony came at a hearing on Hinckley's request to make an unescorted 12-hour Easter visit to his family from the mental hospital where he was sent for shooting President Reagan.

The psychiatrist, who was testifying on behalf of Hinckley, cited these incidents as examples of lapses in Hinckley's judgment.

Miller's disclosure appeared to stun and anger U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker and federal prosecutors, who had subpoenaed Hinckley's letters, diaries and medical records, including psychiatrists' notes from St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Hinckley has been held at St. Elizabeths since 1982, when he was found innocent by reason of insanity in the March 30, 1981, shooting of Reagan, White House Press Secretary James Brady, a city police officer and a Secret Service agent.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Adelman told the judge prosecutors had no information about Hinckley's mail since the hospital stopped screening it in 1984.

"The stuff about Mr. Bundy, we'd never heard of it," Adelman said.

Miller testified that he learned about the Bundy letter from Dr. Joan A. Turkus, a staff psychiatrist at St. Elizabeths.

During the bench conference, Hinckley's attorney Vincent J. Fuller told Parker "there may be two letters in Mr. Hinckley's possession which related to Bundy that he received from Bundy," according to the transcript. The contents of the Bundy letters was not disclosed.

"They are in his possession now and not in St. Elizabeths' possession," Fuller said during the exchange that could not be heard by court spectators.

Adelman told Parker that Miller had never mentioned the correspondence with Bundy or the letter from Fromme when he interviewed him before the hearing.

"We talked to Dr. Miller on two occasions and we never learned of that," Adelman said.

Parker angrily noted that "the government should be surprised." See HINCKLEY on Page A2

Hofmann interviews clearing up schemes

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Confessed killer Mark Hofmann is revealing more than expected in a series of prison interviews with prosecutors about his documents scheme and twin bombings that left two people dead.

Deputy Salt Lake County Attorney Robert Stott, who led the prosecution, said the former document forger seems to be coming clean.

"We've interviewed him quite extensively. We're getting more information probably than we've ever had," Stott said Monday. "As long as it's on the topic of the charges, he's very open with us."

Stott would not say what has been learned in the interviews, which have been held about once a week since Hofmann agreed to them as part of a plea bargain in February when he pleaded guilty to two counts of second-degree murder and two counts of second-degree theft by deception.

Stott said prosecutors "are about three-quarters through their list of questions for Hofmann, who escaped a possible death penalty by agreeing to the deal."

A complete transcript of the interviews will be made available sometime in May or June, Stott said.

Hansen could carry Populist standard

By JANE ROBISON Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Despite earlier disclaimers, former U.S. representative George Hansen is flirting with the Populist Party, a group with white supremacist and Ku Klux Klan ties, to be its presidential candidate in 1988.

"A lot of people asked him, and he said he would be willing to be a candidate," said Jack Bright, spokesman for the Populist Party in Pittsburgh. "He did not commit definitely, but he said he would look on it favorably, and he didn't discourage his supporters."

But Hansen on Monday played the role of a squeakish jelly-in-waiting with suitors falling at his feet. During a phone interview from his Washington, D.C., office, the former Idaho congressman said flatly that he was not a candidate. Yet, he did not rule out the possibility entirely. He also said he had no knowledge of the party's tactics.

"I don't plan to run for anything," said Hansen defiantly. He paused slightly before adding, "at this point."

Hansen said he did agree to be a "stand-in" candidate to "rally the forces."

"The point is, I'm trying to build a political movement," said Hansen, who has several speaking engagements lined up with the Populist Party in several states. "It has nothing to do with running for office."

Hansen gave his OK for his name to be used as a presidential candidate when he spoke to a Populist Party meeting in Pittsburgh on March 7, Bright said.

At that meeting Hansen shared the platform with David Duke, orator of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and president of the National Association of the Advancement of White People.

The Populist Party has been called a front organization for ultra-right wing racist groups, such as the KKK and neo-Nazi groups, by the National Anti-Klan Network and the Klan-watch group, both based at Atlanta, Ga.

Lenny Zeskind, a researcher with the Center for Democratic Renewal, an Atlanta, Ga., organization that monitors the KKK and neo-Nazi groups, said the Populist Party was organized by Willis Carter.

Carter also publishes "The Spotlight" newspaper, called one of the strongest and most successful neo-Nazi voices in the country by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Zeskind said Carter has been successful in creating "organizational

Judge fines smut merchants

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two dial-a-porn firms offering callers taped telephone sex messages pleaded guilty Monday to federal decency charges and paid a $30,000 fine each to what federal attorneys say is the nation's first conviction under a new anti-smut statute.

U.S. Attorney Brent Ward said Adult Entertainment Network Inc. and Adult Entertainment Network Inc. II, both of Los Angeles, have pleaded guilty to federal charges of using a telephone to provide obscene or indecent communications to two Utah youths.

Judge J. Thomas Green fined each firm $30,000 and ordered him to discontinue dial-a-porn services on all 38 lines available to callers throughout the nation. The lines are located in Los Angeles; San Francisco; San Diego; Sacramento; Washington, D.C.; Seattle; Portland, Ore.; New Orleans; New York City; Baltimore; Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, Ward said.

Ward said this is the first conviction in the nation under a "dial-a-porn" statute passed by Congress in 1983. The statute makes it illegal for companies to distribute obscene or indecent messages by telephone to minors or those who do not request them, said Richard Lambert, assistant U.S. attorney.

Lambert said companies still can provide telephone sex messages to people with credit card numbers or access codes not normally available to children.

However, Lambert said the judge's order prohibits the two firms, which Ward said are among the largest telephone sex operations in the nation, from distributing sexually oriented material by telephone again, legally or illegally.

"In view of the harm caused by dial-a-porn services to minors, I deemed it essential that the defendants 'pull the plug' on their services as part of the resolution of this case," Ward said, adding the lines will be disconnected by April 31.

Ward said the fines were called by an "estimate" of 2.2 million people, ages 10 to 16.

Hansen said the goal in lending his name to the cause was to encourage the disenfranchised to get back in the political process.

Hofmann agreed to provide details of the pipe-bomb murders of Steven Christensen and Kathleen Sheets on Oct. 15, 1985, and to discuss forgery of documents in historical documents most of them dealing with the origins of the Mormon Church.

Hofmann said last week he was willing to resolve the issue through negotiations.

Idaho man flies home from Kansas

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — A man who dropped in and out of sight with his wife as they drove hundreds of miles back and forth across Kansas and Colorado was headed back home to Idaho by plane Monday.

Orville Obendorf, 71, was released from Hadley Regional Medical Center, where he was under observation for the trouble he suffered when he and his wife were trapped for 13 days after they became lost on their way to Iowa.

Obendorf was expected to check into a hospital in Boise for continued observation. His wife, Nelle, was with the sister in Iowa that the couple originally started out to visit.

The couple's son, Jay, was going to Iowa to help his 65-year-old mother make arrangements for flying to Idaho. It was not known when she would leave.

The couple survived on Girl Scout cookies and diet soda while they were trapped in snow up to the roof of their car. A farmer plowing a road for the mailman finally rescued them April 4.

After they were released from a hospital in Norton in southwest Kansas Wednesday, the couple said they would continue on to Iowa in southeast Kansas.

When they did not arrive, authorities in Kansas and Colorado started looking for them.

The couple apparently had changed their mind and decided to head home to Nampa, Idaho. They had traveled as far west as Eagle, Colo. west of Denver when Mrs. Obendorf invincibly turned around and drove back to Quinter, Kan., arriving Friday night.

Obendorf was in stable condition and was alert when he left the hospital for the flight home, said Dave Brittain, director of community relations for the Hays hospital.

He was flying in an airplane used by the Lifewatch organization to ferry patients to hospitals in the area.

Lifewatch was paying about $3,000 of the $6,000 trip while the Hays hospital was paying about $1,000, Brittain said.

"Lifewatch and the hospital are underwriting part of the expense as a helping hand kind of thing and just so we can make sure that he finally gets home," Brittain said.

In March, 6.34 percent of all license plates issued were centennial plates. Clark County had the largest percentage of centennial plates, 11.9 percent, followed by Franklin County, with 9.44 percent, according to the commission.

Sales of the burgundy, blue and silver plates continue to exceed even the most optimistic expectations of the Idaho Centennial Commission officials said.

Evans says his leaving smoothed path

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The 1987 Idaho Legislature has received high marks from the man who battled a Republican-dominated Statehouse for a decade.

And former Democratic Gov. John Evans says the change in the cast of characters at the Capitol, including his own departure and the demise of the "veto-proof" GOP majority, was the key to a session in which "everybody walked away a winner."

Evans cited a different leadership style and the bargaining chip of a sustainable veto for the success his Democratic successor, Cecil Andrus, enjoyed in a multimillion-dollar approvement in the Commerce Department budget. While Evans failed to secure even minimal funding for an economic development campaign, Andrus gained almost unanimous support for a multimillion-dollar approvement in the Commerce Department budget. While Evans failed to secure even minimal funding for an economic development campaign, Andrus gained almost unanimous support for a multimillion-dollar ap-

Department of Commerce, and we were laughed-off the third floor," said Evans, who lost his bid to unseat GOP Sen. Steve Symms last fall and now is president of a family-owned bank in Burley.

"There was too much friction before, and that had a lot to do with me running for the Senate," Evans said. "It particularly colored the last session. Here again, I was posing a threat, and it thwarted my administration in the last two years. They did not want to make John Evans look good."

The replacement of retired House Speaker Tom Slivers — Evans' arch-conservative adversary — with northern Idaho moderate Tom Boyd also was critical, the former chief executive said.

"The turnover in the speaker's position was very important," Evans said. "Slivers and (Senate President Pro Tem James) Risch presented problems I could not overcome. There was no way they were going to work with me."

But possibly more important, Evans said, were the victories of two Democratic challengers over incumbent GOP senators, ending the veto-proof Republican grip on the Statehouse.

"I can't emphasize enough the importance of veto power," Evans said. "With a veto-proof majority, they were able to have their own agenda in the last two years. But without that, Andrus had an important bargaining chip."

Senator says Nature holds key to drought

BOISE (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms says he will do everything possible to ease the impact of the looming drought on Idaho producers but that only Mother Nature can ensure that farm losses are held to a minimum.

"Nothing is going to offset this massive shortage of water," the two-term Republican said Monday during a news conference. "There's not that much the government can do."

Without thoroughly reviewing all the options and suggestions, Symms indicated some support for a proposal from some southwestern Idaho farmers that sign-up be reopened for the government's land-filling programs.

The senator would let some producers facing severe reductions in irrigation water this summer to at least partially offset potential drought losses with income from the government.

But the senator offered little else beyond traditional post-disaster assistance to the farmers who could be hard hit by drought this year.

"If we're short of water, we want to make available every possible means to spread it around so people can make it through a short season," he said.

Symms also pointed out that in some cases, farmers with water in storage will be able to sell their reserves to neighbors to ease the shortage.

"As bad as it sounds right now, we will manage to get by," he said.

Symms, back in Idaho during a congressional recess, accepted an antique 30-30 Winchester rifle from the Roy Rogers family and the National Antique Arms Association to mark his solid voting record against gun-control issues and for what the association called legislation preserving the right of Americans to bear arms.

"It's basically a freedom issue," Symms said in attacking all attempts to control guns, including the ban on waterfowl hunting with lead shot. He called that ban "a way to get a law on the books that says it's okay to regulate ammunition."

Superintendent raps formula change

SODA SPRINGS (AP) — Soda Springs School District Superintendent Lawrence Rigby contends a major change — in the formula — for distributing state aid to schools has undermined the value of next year's huge increase in public school funding.

Rigby criticized Gov. Cecil Andrus and the Legislature for approving said the plan, which he said will retard economically expand because they will receive less in state aid as their property values rise.

"I don't believe the governor nor the Legislature really meant to produce an anti-growth bill, but that is exactly what this bill achieves," he said.

Symms makes wise move on PAC funds

Sen. Steve Symms is not exactly known as a liberal in Washington circles. Nor is he someone who courts the Israeli lobby, or has shown any particular sensitivity to issues involving civil liberties.

But this week, Symms turned a potentially damaging contribution from an anti-Semitic group headed by a former Nazi into a political plus: he gave the money to the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish group, and to the Idaho Holocaust Council.

The $1,000 contribution to Symms came at the tail end of his 1986 campaign from the German-American Political Action Committee, headed by Hans Schmidt, a former Hitler youth member. Symms' campaign people say they didn't make the connection. When the contribution was revealed recently, Symms decided to give it to groups who, ironically, it was designed to combat.

That kind of deft turn is not something Symms is noted for. He has a wide following in Idaho, not so much because people agree with every position he takes, but because he generally speaks his mind, sometimes more directly than he should.

Now one nod to the left does not a liberal make. Symms' handling of this issue doesn't strike us as a change in philosophy, or even in style.

His, after all, still a maverick from the West who can stand against his own party's president, as he did last week on the highway bill, when he thinks he has to.

We may disagree with him on issues. Indeed, we don't see the highway money bill the same way, but then, we had a lot of company on this one, including Symms' colleague, Sen. James McClure.

But just in case the contribution issue has raised the possibility of a more moderate perspective from Symms, we'd like to encourage him to do more of it. We'd guess there's a better audience for that in Idaho than he might think.

Dallas' act leads to single conclusion

I have been waiting, not exactly patiently, for the Claude Dallas fiasco to sink into the obscurity it deserves. I have been hesitant to involve myself in the issue simply because it may somehow dignify the man and his actions.

However, his latest crackpot scheme, a defense fund for the despot, proposed by people so desperate for recognition that they can somehow justify a "High Noon" mentality, is more than I can tolerate.

It is extremely disturbing to contemplate what flaw in American society creates and breeds the pathological delusions of those that would condone and embrace one man depriving other men of their precious life.

By what giant leap in logic do people persuade themselves that what took place on the banks of the Owyhee River was something more than cold blooded murder?

To somehow equate that heinous act to frontier psychology, where grievances were settled by the Colt 45, simply boggles my imagination.

An article in Maclean's Magazine about John Hinckley Jr., observed that society is saddled with a cultural handicap that somehow dilutes the authority of family, school, church, and state. I suspect part of that handicap springs from the grossly distorted view of the good guys facing down the bad guys, fostered by left over images of Roy, Gene, and Hoppy.

The distortion of those times was that the good guys always won and then ran away in the sunset. That old seemed OK for childish minds, but as we mature it is supposed to be diluted by realism. Some place along the way, we are supposed to grasp that in real life everyone doesn't get up and go to lunch when the scent ends. Those left dead, remain dead. What inadequacy have we spawned in some people that causes them to seek relief through the adoption of a misguided cause? There is little doubt that an illness exists in society.

Speaking of the Hinckley affair, Sen. Bill Bradley once suggested to his colleagues that "we might address ourselves to the underlying sickness that exists in a society where these kinds of events have become commonplace."

Commonplace is a key word in the senator's observation. The word denotes acceptance which in turn denotes condonation. Those who have studied the psychology of the American roots, and the West, have identified some characteristics of the illness as it applies to violent individuals.

Lawrence Z. Freedman, a Chicago psychiatrist and member of Lyndon Johnson's 1968 Commission On Violence in America, drafted a profile of a future assassin. A loner, white male, withdrawn, no girlfriend, either married or a failure in marriage, unable to work steadily.

Claude Dallas fits quite well into this template. Unfortunately little study has been done regarding people who sympathize with and attempt to justify the actions of these violent people.

Earlier I spoke of a cultural handicap that dilutes authority. The roots of this handicap lie in the '60s. The revelation of human tendencies in leaders who had long been revered, did not sit well with young people already questioning a country's right to send them to war. When these tendencies turned out to be greed, avarice and ego mania, among others, we had a general rebellion against authority on our hands.

Those events have caused a general deterioration of respect for all authority in a society which depends upon authority for stability. What has happened to the idea that we respect the wishes of those in authority and seek redress later if injustice has been done?

This idea that seems so distasteful to many in today's society served us well for some time. Admittedly it held some flaws but when one measures the value of compliance to authority in a free Democratic society, as opposed to defiance, the answer has to be clear — no contest.

Yes, under the old system dissent was a bit stifled, but we managed to live through that. On the other hand look at the results of defiance: two good men dead and a third life wasted, and no end to hatred and sorrow. Defiance of authority spawns the "High Noon" mentality.

Dr. Freedman applied it very nicely to society when he said "and it's much to fear to let that hypothesis — the high noon mentality — and apply it across the board. We've got to react as rationally as we can."

There was nothing rational in Dallas' actions that hateful day, Jan. 5, 1981.

There is nothing rational today in the continued lament of his innocence.

Only widely perverted logic can bridge the gap between fantasy and fact. Claude Dallas did not act during that sick scenario on the banks of the Owyhee River leaves only one conclusion: A desperate man committed an unspeakable crime. He should live in infamy, that is his just due. Please spare us further protestations on his behalf.

Fat knees or covered, it mini-mizes the latest fashion issue

BOSTON — Just when we thought it was safe to wade back into high fashion along comes this news from trend spotters on the shore: "THE MINIS BACK!"

Yes, yes, THE mini, the very same skirt that brought goosebumps to the arms of men and chills to the thighs of women in the late 1960s. The mini is back and it is after YOU.

There were, of course, scattered sightings of this menace over the past year or two. Teen-agers — a generation once carried in the wombs of women dressed immodestly in maternally minis — were spied innocently baring their knees. But who among us ever imagined the mini would reappear in such a big way, threatening to swamp our hopes for a graceful mid-life?

Didn't designers promise us that this was the era of choice, that hemlines were a matter of personal preference? Hadn't they pledged that no modern woman could ever again be driven into a fashion pool, or forced to travel upstream to where the thigh meets the hip?

Ellen Goodman

But while most women of a certain age spent this spring gazing at resurrected crinolines; giggling at the reappearance of hoops, and wondering why anyone would want to return to the ghastly yester-years of the 1960s; these same perfidious designers were sharing their 1960s scrubbooks and scissors.

The reports out of Paris and New York predict that next fall will be mini and skin. Skirts are going up — as is their price per inch — and the fashion writers are predicting that a breathlessness I haven't heard in years that anyone doesn't want to look dumpy better dump a few inches. The only good news is that these are vertical inches. According to Goodman's Rules, anything you wore the first time around, you are too old to wear the second time. This is applied, by and large, to Dr. Dentons; Mickey Mouse hats and pedal pushers. But it also works for miniskirts. I have therefore taken a personal exemption. Still, I cannot figure out why designers think the time for the mini has come, back.

In the 1960s, this shortest skirt was regarded by some as an artifact of the youth cult. In "The Language of Clothes," Allison Lurie lumped it with babydoll pajamas, as evidence of the era when grown women wore their clothes at the same distance from the waist as 2-year-olds.

Others thought it was part and parcel of the '60s sex cult. Exactly 20 years ago, the Vatican weekly condemned the fashion saying: "Some braless women, possessing a pseudo non-conformism end up resembling monkeys in adopting the most capricious excess of fashion."

There was clearly a touch of rebellion in 1968's fashion: Baring your knees was thumbing your nose. In Greece, the Minister of Health ordered all female workers to keep their knees covered. In Morocco, school children were asked to pray for the salvation of women in miniskirts. In Zambia, miniskirted women were attacked on the street. In America, there were mini and non-mini jobs and restaurants.

But the '80s are supposedly the sober era of AIDS and aerobics, entrepreneurship and values curriculum in the schools. A fashion that seemed liberating to women in the '60s can be utterly inhibiting in the '80s. Any woman can remember the restrictions of real life in a miniskirt. You cannot bend over, sit down, get out of a car, or run... for Congress.

The only thing that's truly "eighties" about the mini-surge is the attempted coup by a traditional junta to get the hierarchy back in order. They make, we buy.

The original mini was probably brought down, literally, by three things: December, January and February. Now the same designers want to see if women will once again prove their allegiance with a badge of frostbite.

What to do when you find yourself surrounded by racks of miniskirts? When you catch yourself holding your own skirt in the mirror just to see how they look? When you try to remember how to do the hemstitch? In the event of a miniskirt attack, remember my favorite retic at the 1960s:

In 1959 a bulletin from the federal government warned: "The legs of young women respond quite rapidly to exposure of cold temperatures. The bodily response is a quick buildup of successive layers of fatty molecules under the skin areas of the thighs, knees, calves and ankles of female legs." There you go. Fat knees or covered knees: It mini-mizes the issue.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Letters Nicaraguan threat only scare tactic used by administration

Deficit is real threat

The Reagan administration wants the U.S. citizenry to believe that Nicaragua, an impoverished country governed by a bunch of young leftists, is a major threat to our country. How absurd! The U.S. military could crush Nicaragua's military in a matter of hours.

The real threat to this country is the mammoth federal budget deficit which Mr. Reagan and his friends in the Congress have created in order to finance a huge arms build-up. Our children and grandchildren will be paying for this extravagance well into the next century.

In order to justify this waste of our national wealth, the administration tries to scare us into believing that Nicaragua's revolution is some sort of Soviet beachhead in the Americas.

If that is true, why is the administration using such obviously inadequate means to control the situation? It seems to me that the answer is that there has to be something to scare the American people into accepting the military build-up and Nicaragua is that convenient scolding.

Next Dallas reward big

...? Follis here. You know all about that fella that put down those two fur cops over in Bull Basin and I know that you may speak for that cowboy type that has been his so-called friend. Maybe they had a good deal going and that is what I want to talk to you about.

— Hold on, O.J., don't try to pull that "What did I shift on me. You know dang well what I'm saying."

When my fella was on the run the first time he used up his half-share of that first $20 grand of bloody money but it did last long enough to get him back to Paradise. He borrowed against the come this last time out.

These new reward bucks total about $30 grand; split down the middle my fella has only about $7,000 of that left to last him until he gets things in shape up there again in Murphy's hotel in Boise.

He is going in the max pen this time, and it will be maybe three years before he can get things in order. That gives him about $200 bucks a month to maintain himself. Wait a minute, Mister Bart, let me finish! I'm talking about the most popular killer in America today.

— He's got to keep himself in a style that fits his position. Now he can't do that on $200 a month and it is unfair for you and your guy to even ask it! He wants seventy/thirty now or when the time comes for the next must he will have to think about a new outside man.

There is no paucity of takers. There's a bunch of guys out there that will jump at the chance fast as a cat when he hears one of ol'

Clode's traps snap.

That's the way it's laid out, Bart, take it or leave it.

I know your guy has got to be represented so that his best interests are served and I'm appreciative of your efforts. But remember that without my fella, your guys got nothing at all. When that fella goes next time, that reward is really going to be a bundle. Handled right, this could mean a nice little piece of change for all of us.

Get back to me, O.J., by Tuesday. We've gotta move on this thing. Sign me Follis.

Question on a reference

Eminent conservative columnist James Kilpatrick wrote about the Senate highway override (Times-News April 10, 1987). The column headline focused readers' attentions to "one of Browning's poems." In the first sentence Kilpatrick was dismayed to the point of recalling "some of Browning's better poems."

No other literary reference appeared in the column until near the end. Referring to the recall of the Sen. Symms, Kilpatrick wrote that President Reagan might have recalled a line from King Lear: "How sharp a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child." (Act I, Scene IV.) The playwright William Shakespeare (1564-1616) could have been plagiarized by one of the Browning poets, Elizabeth Barrett (1806-1861) or Robert (1812-1889). Not likely.

Now that could have been that Kilpatrick's Browning poem fell under the blue pencil of a conservative editor. Surely a stickler for accuracy such as Kilpatrick would not suggest the play King Lear is a Browning poem. Curiously overcomes me. Which Browning? Which poem?

Get it? HANJ. BELLWOOD

Huckster turns her off

I agree with the former complaints concerning the loud, lewd, and bawdy Latham Motor Co. I have kept records and find this man is on from morning until after midnight, from 5 minutes apart to 15 minutes, to 30 minutes on more than two stations.

It is a public nuisance to have to listen or turn him off that often. I have considered throwing a shade through the TV and billing Bob Latham for a replacement. Can't anything be done by these stations to eliminate the aggravation or is money more important? I would not buy a car from this company, and pay for the exorbitant TV time.

They are buying low-key

One more letter concerning the commercials on TV.

I am with Merline 100 percent, and I am C.O. with you on Carey.

The thoughts I think whenever I hear these commercials don't belong in the minds of my religious, and would you believe that the voracious one followed me to Boise? His ad for the Nampa dealer is just as obnoxious.

To end so many are trying to initiate this annoying person.

I know what my family is doing, buying our cars from a low key ad in the paper.

Just lower voices, please

This is a message for the loud salesmen on TV:

Whenever you match the female voice, you've got it made. She makes her point just as well as the real.

We don't care how much you advertise, just lower your voices.

We can't read the fine print, you don't leave it up long enough.

We can hear very well. We can't see fine print.

Hart announces bid for nomination

DENVER (AP) — Gary Hart, standing coatless before the snow-capped foothills of the Rocky Mountains, announced his bid for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination Monday and promised a return to American ideals and a "presidency you can be proud of."

The 50-year-old former Colorado senator opened his second bid for the presidency by stressing idealism and the power of ideas, themes that almost won him the 1984 Democratic nomination from former Vice President Walter Mondale.

This time, it is Hart who is ahead in the early polls, with the rest of the still-increasing field of candidates bunched far back.

"I intend to be a candidate for the presidency of the United States in 1988 and I do so for one single reason: and that is because I love my country," Hart said as he stood in Red Rocks Park for the morning announcement.

Later, Hart asked several thousand supporters at a rally in downtown Denver to give him their help and their time: "You give me 20 days in the next 20 months and I will give you a presidency you can be proud of."

GARY HART Stressed idealism

Invoking the idealistic rhetoric of John F. Kennedy, Hart concluded: "Let us go forward from this day committed to restore this land to all of its people, to restore a sense of genuine true patriotism to America. And if we do, we will have done the greatest thing for this country, any of us could ever do."

"March on!" His formal announcement came at Red Rocks, a park 16 miles from downtown Denver, before his wife and daughter, reporters, cameras and staff. Hart said the park, begun with federal funds during the Depression, "is a symbol of what a benevolent government can do."

"Sadly, in recent years we've fallen far short of the ideal of America," Hart said. "We've let personal greed replace a sense of social justice and equity and the national good. We've let right-wing ideology skew this nation's basic priorities. We've increasingly let narrow special interests finance our campaigns and control our political process."

"Most of all I think we have lost a sense of national interest and are in serious danger of letting our future pass us by."

Hart, known in the Senate for his work on military reform and arms control, warned that domestic policies must not be shortchanged as he said they have been under President Reagan.

"We must not be so preoccupied with the superpower confrontation, that we neglect as we have in recent years the genuine human needs of our people here at home—the poor, the elderly, our children, sick, disadvantaged and disabled," he said.

Hart spoke for eight minutes in a cold wind, without notes or a text.

Hart is the third candidate to formally join the Democratic presidential competition, joining former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, Sens. Paul Simon of Illinois, Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, and Joseph Biden of Delaware, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson will enter the race later this spring. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton is still considering a bid.

Hart's 1988 effort is dogged by questions about the $13-million debt remaining from his 1984 bid.

Rocket company seeks FBI report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rocket builder Morton Thiokol Inc., which has been sued by one of its own engineers in the wake of the Challenger space shuttle tragedy, asked a judge on Monday to force an FBI-criminal investigation report about the company.

The document, which had been under seal, inadvertently made part of the public record briefly and was seen by reporters. Neither Morton Thiokol nor Roger Boisjoly, the engineer who is suing his former employers, has had a look at it.

The document, a communication from the Justice Department to U.S. District Judge Harold Greene, disclosed for the first time that the FBI has developed informants among MTI employees as part of its criminal investigation.

"If I decide to remove the seal, I'll give the government 24 hours to run to the court of appeals," said Greene after hearing 30 minutes of argument. He said his inclination is to rule in favor of releasing the report and that he would make his decision in a few days.

"We don't know whether it (a copy of the report) will help or hurt us," Robert Jordan, an MTI lawyer, told Greene during a hearing. "But we are in a difficult position of just not knowing."

In making the motion, MTI said it first learned of the FBI investigation from media accounts of the document and that as a result of the stories the company's common stock on the New York Stock Exchange had dropped as much as five points.

"Due to the resealing of these documents, MTI is unable to respond to press accounts and to take the steps required to protect itself," the company said.

Near-misses with jetliners investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating four incidents over a 10-hour period in which commercial jetliners came within danger of colliding with smaller planes, officials disclosed Monday.

The four near-collisions last Friday involving jetliners from United Airlines, Trans World Airlines, Northwest Airlines, and American Airlines are considered an unusually high number, according to aviation safety experts.

FAA spokesman Fred Farrar, commenting on the Friday incidents, said in two of the cases air traffic controllers had provided the jetliner pilots with advanced traffic advisories and in another case the smaller plane was not on radar.

The incidents, in which two aircraft in each case came within 500 feet of each other, occurred at altitudes ranging from 3,300 feet to 9,000 feet near Chicago, Newark, Saginaw, Mich., and Burbank, Calif.

Here are the incidents as described by the FAA:

• 12:42 p.m., EDT. A Northwest Airlines DC-9, Flight 203, was flying at 9,000 feet 22 miles southeast of Saginaw, Mich., and came upon a single-engine Piper PA-28 Cherokee which passed just 500 feet ahead at the same altitude.

• 12:25 p.m., CDT. An American Airlines Boeing 737, making an approach to land at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, suddenly noticed an unknown aircraft passing 500 feet below and 100 feet away. No flight number was available.

• 1:45 p.m., EDT. A Trans World Airlines L-1011, Flight 32, was flying into Newark International Airport when it banked sharply and began to climb, allowing an unidentified plane to pass underneath. The pilot reported the two planes narrowed to within 200 feet horizontally and 50 feet vertically of each other at 7,000 feet.

• 7:25 p.m., PDT. United Airlines Flight 737, a Boeing 737 on an approach into Burbank, Calif., came within 300 to 500 feet of an unknown plane at the same altitude and reported to the FAA that he had been unable to contact the approach controller.

Homeowner force legislation vetoed

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. Henry Bellmon vetoed a bill Monday that would have allowed homeowners to use force, including shooting to kill, against intruders no matter what the circumstances.

Bellmon, in a statement, said the bill was "well-intentioned" but state defense vigorously the rights of self-defense, "defendants in our courts, and the safety of our homes."

The bill would have given homeowners immunity from criminal prosecution and lawsuits if they injured or killed intruders. It was opposed by state prosecutors.

In his veto message, Bellmon said the so-called "Make My Day" bill goes further than laws on self-defense "and in doing so creates a safe harbor for anyone who shoots enough to manipulate the statute."

Robertson hopeful on chances

ATLANTA (AP) — The Rev. Pat Robertson predicted Monday that grass-roots support would help him emerge "a runaway front-runner" after March's primaries if he enters the race for the GOP presidential nomination.

Robertson, an ordained Southern Baptist minister who in 1960 founded the Christian Broadcasting Network and was host of its "700 Club" program, said he will use the contacts he has made through his work to win the Republican nomination.

He told reporters following a luncheon with about 150 ministers that he does not know how many Georgians have signed so far.

Iran affair evidence presented

WASHINGTON (AP) — The independent counsel in the Iran-Contra affair has turned over to a court of evidence a report by Albert Hakim, an Iranian-American businessman linked to Swiss bank accounts that are central to the investigation, a source said Monday.

Prosecutors in Washington indicted the evidence against Hakim last week in U.S. District Court in Washington, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Such actions are designed to protect Hakim from being tainted by grants of immunity from Congress. Friday was the day congressional investigators were permitted to begin questioning Hakim under a grant of immunity from prosecution, though there was no indication such questioning has actually begun.

Once witnesses testify under such grants, no information from what they say may be used against them unless they lie. Filing information with the court in advance spells out the evidence Hakim has gathered against Hakim prior to his being questioned by congressional investigators.

Hakim is a business partner of retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord, who is under investigation for an alleged role in taking some of the U.S. arms to Iran and diverting them to the Contras fighting the government of Nicaragua.

Meanwhile, on Monday, U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson Jr.

ordered two secretaries employed by Secord to testify before the Senate investigating committee.

The Senate panel voted last week to seek immunity grants for both women and Walsh did not seek to delay their testimony in order to give his office time to develop independent evidence.

The Washington Post reported on Monday that those witnesses include retired Air Force Lt. Col. Richard Gadd, Robert Earl, Robert Owen and Tomas Castillo.

Also on Monday, a congressional source confirmed that the Senate committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair has received from the Senate Intelligence Committee documents made available last week by FBI Director William Webster.

AMA head issues AIDS warning

DETROIT (AP) — The president of the American Medical Association on Monday called for a new morality to combat the spread of AIDS, and said doctor-patient confidentiality hinders physicians' ability to protect people whose partners may have the deadly disease.

"If people out there are having multiple sexual experiences and going to houses of prostitution, they're playing Russian roulette," said Dr. John A. Coury Jr., "What we're talking about is preventing death."

Coury, at a news conference before addressing the Economic Club of Detroit, said efforts to impose moral standards to prevent the spread of disease had failed because the stakes weren't as high as they are now.

"The difference is they got gonorrhea and herpes, which are not killers," he said. "The difference is, this is 100 percent death if this doesn't frighten people into changing their lifestyles, then they are the stupid ones, not us."

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome erodes the body's ability to fight off other diseases. It has claimed the lives of 18,000 of the 33,000 Americans who have been diagnosed as having the virus since 1981.

Medical ethics and the threat of legal action, however, keeps doctors from disclosing the presence of a risk of AIDS in an individual, even when the physician's silence may result in the patient's partner being infected or in the birth of an AIDS-infected baby, Coury said.

"We have been urging all people who have had multiple partners to voluntarily tell that partner," Coury said. "Under patient confidentiality, we can't tell."

If a woman tests positive for AIDS, there is about one chance in four or one chance in five that her baby will be born with the disease and will die in a year, he said.

People who have had more than one sexual partner in the last 10 years may be at risk of AIDS, he said.

Sentencing guidelines released

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Sentencing Commission issued guidelines Monday to increase prison terms for many federal crimes and to allow judges to sentence people convicted of such offenses according to a uniform set of regulations.

The guidelines are designed to wipe out wide disparities in penalties for similar offenses.

"We want to correct the two extremes of our justice system, the hanging judge and the Baby Ruth judge, and pull them in together," commission Chairman William Wilkins, a federal appellate court judge, told news conference.

Because of "unwarranted disparity" in sentencing, he said, "fairness is sometimes lacking."

Wilkins also said the guidelines require courts to take into account convicted of antitrust offenses such as price-fixing serve prison terms. Currently, only 28 percent of those convicted of antitrust offenses are sent to prison. The main reason for doing time behind bars is intended to serve as a deterrent to businessmen, Wilkins said.

The guidelines also are expected to cause a 10 percent increase in the federal prison population over the next decade, the commission said. That population is now 42,000, a 75 percent jump since 1980.

The guidelines, which will take effect on an experimental basis this year, will increase prison terms for robbery, fraud, forgery, drug violations and many other crimes.

The impact of the guidelines will be even more significant when combined with other measures — such as abolition of parole and reduction of time off for good behavior — required by the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984.

In addition, new federal laws now going into effect target drug dealers and repeat offenders with a background of violent crime for longer prison terms.

The commission approved the new sentencing system on a 6-1 vote over the weekend and it now will be reviewed by Congress before going in effect.

Bank robbers would have another three months added to their terms by the guidelines, two months would be added for fraud and forgery and eight months would be added to the terms of heroin dealers. Currently, bank robbers serve an average of 64 months, those convicted of fraud and forgery serve just under seven months and heroin dealers serve 29 months.

Congressional and other critics predict the commission's approach to sentencing will overwhelm already-overcrowded prisons.

Under the new rules, the burden of sentencing criminals falls totally on judges. Convicted serve their full sentence, less a small amount of time earned for good behavior.

The commission devised a scheme in which each federal crime falls into one of 43 different levels.

Such actions are designed to protect Hakim from being tainted by grants of immunity from Congress. Friday was the day congressional investigators were permitted to begin questioning Hakim under a grant of immunity from prosecution, though there was no indication such questioning has actually begun.

Once witnesses testify under such grants, no information from what they say may be used against them unless they lie. Filing information with the court in advance spells out the evidence Hakim has gathered against Hakim prior to his being questioned by congressional investigators.

Whitehead to visit Baby M in secret

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The biological mother of Baby M will resume visiting the child this week at a place and time kept secret because all those involved in the custody case want privacy, lawyers said Monday.

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled Friday that Mary Beth Whitehead should be allowed to see her daughter once a week for two hours pending her appeal of a lower court decision upholding a surrogate contract in which she agreed to bear the child for William Stern.

Mrs. Whitehead, who was artificially inseminated with Stern's sperm, later decided she wanted to keep the baby.

Stern was awarded custody last month and his wife, Elizabeth Stern, was allowed to adopt the girl the Sterns named Melissa. Mrs. Whitehead was stripped of parental rights.

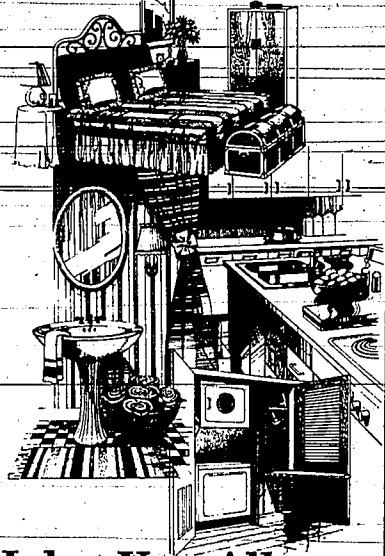

Mrs. Whitehead said Monday she did not expect to see the baby before Tuesday.

Evans explains his opposition to base salaries for teachers

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—School districts can raise teachers' base salaries to $15,000 on their own this year, or they can wait until the Legislature orders a minimum salary next year.

Either way, officials are reluctant to raise the starting levels of salaries in an effort to lure new out-of-state teachers to Idaho. Without funding to raise entire salary schedules, pay hikes throughout the schedule would become smaller at the expense of experienced teachers, officials fear.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said he lobbied against a bill imposing a $16,000 base salary.

"If I said if you want to pass that, there will be horrendous problems," Evans said Monday.

Evans briefed Magic Valley school administrators Monday on the progress of same. The threat of legislative mandate for the law allowing a 2-year override levies, but the limiting voters to those who are registered with the county.

Without money to raise entire salary schedules, steps along the schedule would be made smaller, and the most-experienced teachers might go without raises this year, Evans said. The bill wasn't passed, but the Legislature voted its intent through a resolution that districts meet a $15,000 salary minimum at their own expense.

"If it's not dealt with this year, I'll almost guarantee a minimum salary for next year," Evans said.

Legislators felt salary-equity raises during the last 3 years unfairly favored experienced teachers, Evans said.

"The feeling is that when the money is ploughed in that the base remains the same," Evans said.

The threat of legislative mandate for the minimum starting salaries was echoed by Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, who serves on the Education Committee and attended Evans' legislative review.

"I think a good deal of what you've heard is accurate," Noh said.

The Legislature's resolution states "...we strongly recommend and implore and encourage each school board of trustees in Idaho to revise its teachers' pay schedule to provide that no Idaho teacher start his or her employment at a salary less than $15,000 per year."

The Twin Falls School District's salary schedule currently starts at about $13,500 but could be raised to $15,000 during negotiations, said Superintendent Carl Snow. Increases for the rest of the pay schedule would also have to be dealt with, he said.

While aware of the Legislature's intent, Idaho Education Association's Director Terry Gilbert hedged against endorsing the minimum salary.

"We are hopeful that there will be flexibility during salary negotiations," Gilbert said.

Twin Falls salary negotiations are scheduled for April 29-31.

Another highlight of the legislative session involved lengthening the time that override levies could be in effect. But in return for getting a 2-year override timeframe, districts could override only registered voters may vote for levies starting July 1.

No registration at all is necessary now.

Evans suggested that the law may force districts to go beyond just advertising school bond or override elections to encourage voter registration.

Public education's funding of $29 million this year, to a state total of $343 million.

also drew attention during Evans' talk. These gains are reflected in the state raising its basic funding unit, or that which it pays for about 30 students, from the current $29,151 to $32,781 next year.

While appearing substantial, several factors detracted from the apparent gains. An extra Social Security payment this year and a one-time allotment for books and supplies cut the basic funding unit from $32,781 to $31,794.

The state Department of Education will pay through the "next fiscal year" an amount of Social Security payment which the districts must pay in June. The payment amounts to $210 of each funding unit, or about $63,000 for the Twin Falls School District's 300 units, which will appear as a loss on the current year's school budget.

The one-time funding for books and supplies amounts to about $777 per funding unit that won't apply to salaries.

Former dispatcher Joann Loveland is the first woman to be a patrol officer in the Twin Falls Police Department.

City gets its first female patrol officer

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—There's a new woman in uniform patrolling the streets of the Twin Falls Police Department.

The department's first female patrol officer, Joann Loveland, is set to begin her duties on Monday.

Ms. Loveland, a resident of the city, has been training for the past several months at the Idaho State Police Academy in Pocatello.

She is the first woman to be hired as a patrol officer in the city's history.

Ms. Loveland has a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Idaho and has worked for the city for several years as a dispatcher.

She is excited to be part of the police force and to represent women in the profession.

"I'm really looking forward to it and I want to be treated as an equal. I think I can take care of myself and I don't want any favoritism. I want to make it on my own," she said.

So far, Loveland says, she is being treated "like one of the guys." Aside from some good-natured kidding, no one has taken much notice of her as a female among the ranks.

Part of her training includes physical challenges such as weight lifting. She is expected to qualify on the pistol range in order to wear a badge.

"There are some female habits I have had to give up. There isn't any way to carry a purse, for example, without it being a uniform hip pocket," she said.

Most of my encounters so far have been with juveniles, or calls to settle disturbances, and quiet down loud parties. We haven't had any burglary calls assigned to us, but those will probably come," she said.

Loveland isn't sure when she will be going on her own, but she isn't pushing it. Right now, she says, she wants more training.

"There are still a lot of things to learn, and the more I learn, the more I realize that there's still more learning to be done," she says. "I just want to take a step at a time. I want to make sure I'm ready and I want my supervisor to be ready, too."

She knows there are some hazards in daily routine of being a police officer, and she's ready to accept the situation.

"I don't know whether me because I really don't think about it," she says. "I love the work and it is interesting enough to keep me from being concerned about the possible dangers."

She had got bogged down in that kind of thinking, you can become part of the problem, rather than its solution.

the training. Loveland will take over the wheel of her patrol car and begin working alone. Both Loveland and Qahs make it clear that she will be expected to carry out all of the responsibilities of the male officers.

"No, that doesn't bother me," Loveland says. "I'm looking forward to it and I want to be treated as an equal. I think I can take care of myself and I don't want any favoritism. I want to make it on my own."

Twin Falls plans survey of residents

Taxpayers to rate city services

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Will a new way to pay for Twin Falls' long-sought swimming pool hold water? Should the city put the brakes on growth? Should developers be given zoning and fee incentives to fill in vacant lots? City Hall will be floating some trial balloons during the next few weeks in its second survey of Twin Falls residents.

It could be nicknamed "J-U-B II." In many respects, it's a follow-up to a city planning poll done two years ago by J-U-B Engineers, a consulting firm. It contains the same check-up on city services, but it also opens up some new topics involving the city's future.

The survey will be sent to between 2,000 and 2,500 Twin Falls households at random from water billings. City Manager Tom Courtney said Monday. The random sampling will insure statistical reliability, he said. The survey may be in the mail by the end of the week.

The core of the survey is a customer satisfaction poll. Residents are asked to rate police, fire, sewer, traffic, animal control, park and other services from "Satisfied" to "Pissed." They also can make specific comments on the services, as well as the employees or the city-hired contractors who deliver them.

But city officials also are sounding out taxpayers on the issues ranging from softball diamonds to local option taxes.

They'd like some advice on:

- A voluntary way to paying for a special area program like the pool.
- The council is trying to find out if residents would be willing to contribute $3 more a month in the water bills to build the pool, with 90 percent participation. "We can raise the necessary funding ($400,000) in 16 to 18 months," the survey says. Votes in the past have fallen just short of a two-thirds majority needed for passage. The city already is spending another $200,000 for the project in a pool fund.

- Acquiring land or trimming back recreation programs when city parks are full to capacity. Several parks already have reached their limits for organized activities, Courtney told the City Council.
- Rate of city growth. The council wants to know if the community supports further growth and at what pace. A recent survey of city accountants estimates Twin Falls' population at 26,151, slightly below 1980 levels. The figure also includes several annexations.
- Incentives for developers to build on vacant lots. The city estimates that 20 percent of all land within its limits is vacant. Incentives could be waivers of various fees or zoning changes.
- Encouragement of tourism and general economic development.
- Preserving the downtown in preference to other commercial areas in the city. The city already has substantial investment in public facilities downtown.
- Financing for sidewalks, traffic lights, drainage facilities etc. Some options beyond traditional municipal bonds include: property tax overrides, local improvement districts, "certificates of participation" sold to investors.
- Extension of fire protection service beyond city limits on a contract basis. Property owners would pay for the service.
- Publishing a periodic newsletter for city residents.

The survey also asks residents for their pet peeves or their congratulations.

The city council authorized the survey on Monday at a council meeting.

"We are the only business that really has no way of telling customer satisfaction," he said.

The original survey, conducted by consultants J-U-B Engineers in 1985, suggested long-term plans for the council, drew 863 responses from about 2,000 sent.

Pivoting off the original survey, city staff constructed the follow-up questionnaire. Results should be available later this spring.

Travel promotions head optimistic on tourism

By RONDA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY—The future of tourism is "very bright and potentially very good for us," Carl Wilgus, Idaho's newly appointed travel director, said Monday. He told the chamber that tourism could be an important factor in helping Idaho's economy.

"Tourism is economic development. It helps all of us," he said. A statewide tourism marketing plan has just been drafted that he hopes will instill cooperation between his department and other state agencies. The plan will be released during a two-day governor's conference in May, he said.

Wilgus cited the Department of Parks and Recreation, the Department of Fish and Game and the Department of Transportation as being responsible for large sub-markets of tourism such as the RV market, fishing, hunting and tourist information centers.

"I'm hoping that once we establish a plan, a blueprint, and get it into place, we have to have a cooperation instead of competition," he said.

The Department of Commerce really has two interests, he said. One is to sell Idaho products and the other is to bring people into the state, he said.

He is also looking into the possibility of combining with other western states to form a coalition that would promote tourism. River rafting, skiing and the "western experience" of camping, horseback riding and barbecuing are activities that Idaho could promote more effectively with the aid of other western states, he said.

These areas are "not something Idaho can do in and of itself," he said. "However, working together will instill cooperation between his department and other state agencies. The plan will be released during a two-day governor's conference in May, he said.

Minidoka OKs liquor sales on Sunday

By RONDA TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT—The Minidoka County Board of Commissioners unanimously passed an ordinance providing for Sunday liquor sales following a public hearing Monday, but withdrew a compromise portion of the measure that would have restricted the hours of beer and wine sales on Sundays.

However, the commissioners have still made liquor available fewer hours than beer and wine sales in other areas, since city laws on liquor sales govern bars and restaurants within city limits.

Upon publication of the new ordinance, beer and wine sales may take place between 7 a.m. and 1 a.m. seven days a week. Liquor sales may be made from 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. Monday through Saturday, and between noon and 8 p.m. on Sundays. The ordinance makes no distinction between on- and off-premise consumption of liquor, beer, or wine, according to county prosecuting attorney Charles Creason Jr.

Six-bar-and-restaurant managers told the commissioners they objected to a proposed section of the ordinance that would have restricted beer and wine sales to between noon and 8 p.m. on Sundays.

Richard Johnson, manager of the Rupert Elks Lodge and spokesman for the group, said state law allows beer to be sold between 7 a.m. and 1 a.m. and that county bars were operating under these hours. Reducing these hours for beer and wine sales on Sundays "penalizes beer lounges," he said.

Johnson stated that the county follows the state guidelines and "allow us to let us compete with other areas that do allow sales in state hours."

Commissioner Clarence Bellem said that the commissioners had differing opinions among themselves on the Sunday liquor sale issue.

"We felt this (restricting beer and wine) was a compromise," he said. Both he and Commissioner Lyle Barton said that they had no public feedback on the Sunday liquor sale issue.

Johnson said that the Rupert Elks Lodge would like to begin offering a Sunday champagne brunch that would be affected by the noon starting time on wine sales. He noted that all of the other managers have different needs and different hours, with beer lounges more likely to be hurt by the earlier closing time.

"We do not want to jeopardize beer lounges in any way," he said.

Bellem warned the group that they were likely to get "some animosity" from religious groups opposed to liquor sales on Sundays. He said the compromise restriction was proposed because the commissioners wanted an easy, soft-peddy that wouldn't create community resentment. Beer and wine sales weren't the real issue, he said.

"If you get bogged down in that kind of thinking, you can become part of the problem, rather than its solution."

Commissioner Norm Selbold said he had heard some negative comments from the public, but attributed to his religious affiliation that he "got the word." He said he had a "strong hunch" that you people (bar managers) want no restrictions.

He warned that some in the community opposed Sunday liquor sales.

"There are people out there, but they aren't here to voice their opinion as to what they want and don't want," he said.

Blaine board may discuss admittance of child with AIDS

By JOHN ZILLY Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Tonight the Blaine County School Board is scheduled to hear an evaluation team's recommendation on the future of a child with AIDS who wants to attend Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum. The board also could decide whether to admit the child to Hemingway.

Superintendent Dave Noonan announced that the parents of a child with AIDS requested immediate admission to Hemingway school for their child. In accordance with the school board's policy on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome adopted last October, Noonan created an evaluation team charged with studying the circumstances of this particular AIDS case and making a recommendation to the school board.

Although the team had not completed the evaluation process as of Monday, Noonan said he was confident the evaluation team would be able to make a recommendation to the school board tonight as to whether the child with AIDS will be able to attend Hemingway. The board, though, will not be bound by that recommendation.

According to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, AIDS has been transmitted only through sexual intercourse, by dirty needles, from mother to fetus and, before 1985, through blood transfusions. A documented case of AIDS exists in which the disease was transmitted by casual contact, such as would normally occur in a classroom.

The child's parents have requested immediate admission, but Noonan has said that if the board decides to admit the child it will not be instantaneous. "I'll tell the board that I need several days to prepare the faculty at Hemingway," Noonan said.

Also on the board's agenda for tonight is a discussion of the $1.6 million override election set for Thursday and the possible purchase of a portion of the Union-Pacific Railroad right-of-way near Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum.

Fires hit Minidoka County

RUPERT — A fire Saturday that destroyed a rural machine shop is the latest in an epidemic of fires during the past 2½ weeks in Minidoka County.

Chief Terry Tracy, of the Rural Fire Department, says there have been 23 fires during that time, but there was no indication that the fires were all related.

The fire Saturday was one of the largest in the county, destroying the machine shop and all of the equipment inside. Tracy said the fire was reported about 9:30 a.m., while a wind of about 25 mph was blowing.

Wendell plagued by blowing trash

By TERRELL WILLIAMS Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Trash is blowing out of dumpsters at the two-grocery stores in Wendell, and the City Council has received complaints.

The other store piles trash in that people often dig through the trash bins and scatter the trash out on the ground. Also, the dumpsters are overflowing—sometimes because people from outside the city bring their trash into town instead of driving to the dump.

Fager said he has some netting that could be used as dumpster covers when the wind blows. Mayor Otto Lemke said he will discuss the trash problem with the store owners.

Stallings to hold town meeting in Carey

CAREY — U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, will host a town meeting in Carey tonight at 7 in the Carey High School.

Community leaders and other local constituents are invited to attend. Stallings, back for the congressional Easter recess, said he hopes to hear local opinions on the proposed designation of the Craters of the Moon National Monument as a national park.

At noon, Stallings will lunch with Blaine County senior citizens at their Halley center.

Scott's Refrigeration to present rezoning plan

TWIN FALLS — Scott's Refrigeration Inc. will present a preliminary plan for rezoning its land at 502 Madison St. to the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission at 2 p.m. today, said LaMar Orton, Twin Falls community development director.

Scott's Refrigeration's request to change the zoning from residential to a planned commercial development. The commission plans to hold a public hearing on the proposal April 28, Orton said.

Changes can only be made every 6 months, and the rezoning request came less than 6 months after another change. At its April 23 meeting, the commission will also hold a public hearing on a request by Allen D. Lee for a special-use permit to operate a young adult's entertainment center at 1115 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Tourism

Continued from Page B1 "The marketing niche that Idaho has is bringing the access roads to the City of Rocks and paving the gravel road to the Pomerelle ski area. Darrington said road development is a "serious problem in the future" for tourism promotion.

Widgus replied that these problems with poor road access are not unique to the Mini-Cassia area. He cited the Bruneau Sand Dunes and the Bird of Prey area as having similar problems.

"We have such great, such unique natural resources that have potential — and I mean potential with a capital P," he said. However, accessibility to tourists and others can be a problem in many of these areas, he said.

The fee is $10 plus materials.

To register call 324-3389, the recreation district office.

Mom says son, 26, can get own lunch

DEAR ABBY: Our son, 26 years old, married three years, is attending college full time. The college is located near our home. He and his wife live in a small but very nice mobile home. She works.

Now the problem: Our son comes to our house every day for lunch, which I have to make. Then he goes back to school for classes, and returns here to lift weights and exercise in our basement. (He hasn't space for his exercise gear in his mobile home.) He plays loud rock music (nerve-wracking to me) while exercising.

He is a sensitive and well-meaning person, and he would be hurt if he knew how much I resent this daily intrusion on my privacy.

Abby, each day I fix his lunch, give him a hug, then go "somewhere" just to get away from all that noise. I feel as though I'm being driven out of my own home.

My husband says if we say anything to him, he'll be hurt—but close friends say I'm foolish for putting up with it. What do you say?

—IMPOSED UPON

DEAR IMPOSED: I say tell your son you love him, but his daily routine — lunching and exercising to loud music in your home — is more than you can handle. The alternative is to keep quiet and let your resentment grow and fester, which in my view would be a sorry choice.

DEAR ABBY: While standing on a corner in downtown St. Paul one afternoon, I saw a man in a brown car. He was the best-looking man I have ever seen.

I don't know what came over me, but I smiled at him, and when he smiled back at me I thought I was going to faint! I got on the bus thinking I would never see this man again, but I was wrong.

I saw him five days later in a shopping mall. This time he was not alone and neither was I. We looked at each other. He didn't smile this time, but I know he remembered me.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

I cannot get this man's face out of my mind. He is the image of the man I have always dreamed I would marry.

Abby, do you believe in love at first sight?

—HAUNTED IN MINNESOTA

DEAR HAUNTED: No. But I believe in physical attraction at first sight. You were bowled over by the appearance of this man because he fit the "physical" description of your preconceived dream man.

If to you "physical attraction" means "falling in love," then you have indeed fallen in love.

DEAR ABBY: My lady and I were introduced last year by mutual friends, and our relationship has grown to where we are seriously discussing marriage.

While we both appear to be in above-average physical condition, due to our respective ages, plus the fact that both of us have lost our spouses to cancer, the suggestion that we have complete physicals appeared to be in order. Both her doctor and mine concluded that we would probably be around for some time to come.

I am in my 60s, she is in her 70s, and that is her only concern impeding a total commitment on her part. My view is that even if we were to receive a revelation that one of us would be gone in five years, I wishes, and do not waste another would rather spend those years with her in loving marriage than to remain apart. Neither of us would consider a "live-in" arrangement. Your views would be appreciated.

DEAR YOUNG: If you need someone to say "Go for it," Dear Abby, written to the right person. All good Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Pope's comments on rights softer in Argentina than Chile

By FRANCES D'EMILIO
The Associated Press

ROME — Pope John Paul II denounced human rights abuses in Chile, but he disapproved those who hoped for the same in Argentina, where the church has been criticized for endorsing torture and killing under past military rule. During the two-week tour ending Monday, the pope spoke firmly against the conduct of Chile's right-wing government. In neighboring Argentina, which is adjusting to a 5-year-old democracy and struggling with economic crisis, John Paul provoked criticism for not saying more about the military juntas that governed for nearly nine years and had a close relationship with the Argentine church. "I believe there are serious deficiencies because Pope John Paul II did not make contact with the human rights organizations," said Adolfo Perez Esquivel, an Argentine who won the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize. He said local Roman Catholic leaders "organized a beautiful tourist trip but not a pastoral visit." After arriving in Rome on Monday, the pontiff said of Argentina: "You don't see the tension that you saw in Chile." Chilean church officials kept meticulous records of presumed kidnappings, allegations of torture and harassment of labor activists, priests, nuns, lawyers, social workers and others who have denounced the 13-year-old military government President Augusto Pinochet.

The church in Argentina has the reputation of doing little during the military's "dirty war" on leftists from 1976 to 1983. President Raul Alfonsin's government says at least 9,000 people disappeared, presumably killed, but human rights groups say the number may be four times that. John Paul also visited Argentina in 1982 during Argentina's war with Britain over the Falkland Islands, and met Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, the military president at the time. Galtieri now is serving a 12-year prison sentence for his role in the war. Flying across the Atlantic on March 31 to visit to Uruguay, Chile and Argentina, the pope told reporters it was his "task" to condemn abuses of human rights under Chile's "dictatorial" regime. He linked the church's role there to guidance the hierarchy in the Philippines gave to the civilian-military uprising that drove President Ferdinand E. Marcos into exile in February 1986. Pinochet made his speech of welcome at the airport a cool lecture about what he called the "reality" of a country threatened by a Marxist conspiracy. The pope and Pinochet met privately the next day and prayed together in the chapel of the presidential palace. Pinochet's forces attacked the palace during the September 1973 coup that overthrew the elected government of President Salvador Allende, a Marxist. When John Paul returned to Rome on Monday, the city was plastered with posters showing the pontiff and Pinochet on the balcony of the palace. A leftist Catholic group that criticized the meeting put up the posters, which carried the word "reconciliation," the major theme of the pope's six days in Chile.

The pontiff had urged Chile's bishops to guide the nation toward a prompt return to democracy, while reminding them to condemn violence from either right or left. Communist guerrillas have waged a terrorist campaign to oust Pinochet. The pope's presence gave Chileans a rare chance to gather in huge numbers and speak out. At a Mass attended by 500,000 poor people in a Santiago slum, a woman took the microphone and told John Paul: "We want a dignified life, but one without dictatorship." In a Santiago park, pockets of young people in the crowd of 600,000 hurled stones and police responded with water cannon and tear gas. The pope watched in amazement from the altar.

Tutu urges South Africans to defy restrictions on speech

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Archbishop Desmond Tutu and other clergymen urged people at a special prayer service Monday to defy new limits on speech and assembly. The 55-year-old ambassador was among 700 people in the congregation. Ambassador Edward Perkins issued a statement saying: "It is sad that a government which claims to be the vestige of human dignity and which purports itself to be secure and strong, should be so intimidated by the peaceful protestations of its citizens that it declares those protestations to be illegal." Perkins' attendance and his statement represented one of his most visible gestures since he became the first black African ambassador to South Africa last November. The ambassadors of Canada, Sweden and Austria also attended the ecumenical service dedicated to people detained without charge under a nationwide state of emergency the white government imposed 10 months ago. Regulations issued Saturday by Police Commissioner Johan Coetzee make it a crime to call for release of detainees by word, action or in writing. Gatherings in support of detainees also are banned. Penalties for breaking the rules range up to a fine of 20,000 rand ($10,000) or 10 years in prison.

Tutu, the black prelate who is Anglican-archbishop of southern Africa, organized the service. He was joined at St. George's Cathedral by Jewish, Dutch Reformed and Roman Catholic clergymen in defying the regulations. Although Law and Order Minister Adrian Vlok said prayer services at churches were not prohibited, Tutu and his colleagues openly violated a section of the rules making it a crime to urge other people to support detainees. Tutu said he would make similar calls to the synagogues and churches. "I will continue to urge, as I do, the authorities to release all detainees or bring them to court, and I hope you support me in such a call," he said, apparently leaving himself open to incitement charges.

East German leader rejects invitation to visit West Berlin

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Explaining Honecker's refusal, the agency cited statements by Dieppgen Monday — to become the first last year — objecting to East German Communist East German leader to visit West Berlin. German sources said Moscow also apparently objected to Honecker visiting West Berlin. Honecker's decision came a day after a West Berlin newspaper — Berliner Morgenpost, published a letter written in July by Dieppgen to the East German leaders.

The letter urged them to turn down an invitation from Honecker to participate in East Berlin's 750th anniversary festivities. East Berlin is not recognized as a separate capital city by West Germany and the three Western Allied powers — Britain, France and the United States — which control Berlin along with the Soviet Union. The Soviets support the East German claim.

Members of the St. George's congregation, sitting on wooden chairs and on the floor among Palm Sunday branches in the stone cathedral, shouted "Yes!" in response and applauded. According to the archbishop, Vlok's decision to allow the church service meant the regulations were too broad and vague or that the law and order minister "awoke to find he had made a monumental boob (mistake)." Coetzee, the police commissioner, issued a statement Monday saying the regulations did not bar prayers for detainees at "bonafide religious gatherings" or prohibit political candidates from addressing the detention issue in speeches. "The notice prohibits the making of a statement in which members of the public are incited to participate in a campaign which is aimed at the release of security detainees," it said.

Israeli troops disperse Arab protesters

BIR ZEIT, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli soldiers dispersed a university campus in the West Bank Monday to disperse hundreds of rock-throwing demonstrators, and an army spokesman said one Palestinian was shot to death. The army cited the 4,000 student Bir Zeit University for four months, a military spokesman said, speaking on condition of anonymity in accordance with army rules. He said at least three students were wounded in the clash and 15 were injured. Press Service put the number of injured at seven.

The violent confrontation came two days after a firebomb attack that killed a pregnant Jewish woman and wounded five other Israeli settlers. The slaying provoked renewed army crackdowns on Palestinians in the occupied West Bank. The army said it arrested several dozen Palestinians late Sunday and early Monday. Israeli army radio reported 30 arrests. The Palestine Press Service said more than 100 people were placed under administrative detention, which permits jailing without trial. University spokesman Albert Alghazarian said about 400 students demonstrated Monday against "an accumulation of things," including the arrests and "provocations" by Jewish settlers. He did not describe the "provocations." But Bir Zeit students and an American who lives in the nearby town of Ramallah, Marty Ebenbluth, told reporters about 200 settlers with large dogs patrolled the streets of both towns early Monday, questioning residents and demanding to see their identity cards. The settlers have expressed growing frustration with the Israeli army, claiming it is not doing enough to protect them.

Abu Nidal in PLO talks

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal, one of the world's most wanted men, turned up in Algiers to take part in negotiations aimed at reuniting the PLO, Palestinian sources said Monday. Abu Nidal was in the Algerian capital during the weekend and met with PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's closest aides, including deputy Palestine Liberation Organization commander Khalil Wazir, the sources said. The sources, who were contacted by telephone in Algiers and spoke on condition of anonymity, said Abu Nidal left Algiers on Sunday for an unknown destination after several hours of talks with Wazir, who is also known as Abu Jihad. It was the first reported meeting between Abu Nidal and an Arafat supporter since 1972 when the terrorist broke with Arafat, the main PLO faction. In 1975, Abu Nidal formed a splinter group that became known as Fatah-The Revolutionary Council.

Bosworth ineligible for draft

By OWEN CANFIELD
The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth did not make contact with the NFL by Monday's deadline and thus is ineligible for the April 28 draft, a league official said.

Joe Bussert, director of player personnel for the NFL, said shortly before his office closed that Bosworth had not submitted the required written statement saying he wished to be included in the regular draft.

"We don't have anything, and it has to be in writing," Bussert said.

"A phone call would not be sufficient. Had he heard from Bosworth at all," No. 2 Bussert said.

Earlier Monday, Bosworth said he had not made up his mind. Efforts to reach him in Norman and at his parents' home in Irving, Texas, later in the day were unsuccessful.

Bosworth may now choose to enter a supplemental draft to be held later this year, or he can return to Oklahoma where he has one year of eligibility remaining.

If the two-time All-America returns to school, however, it likely would be to play football. Oklahoma

Coach Barry Switzer has said Bosworth will not be back, and the linebacker has not taken part in spring drills.

Bosworth, 6-foot-3 and 240 pounds, was expected to be one of the top five players drafted. His reluctance to enter the draft centered mainly on his wish not to play for the Indianapolis Colts or Buffalo Bills, who have the second and third picks.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who pick first, will take Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde. The Heisman Trophy winner has already signed a contract with the Buccaneers.

Bosworth has said he prefers to play on a grass field instead of artificial turf, and that he wants to play with a winner or in a high-profile city such as New York or Los Angeles.

He was interested in playing with the Philadelphia Eagles and their coach, Buddy Ryan. The Eagles play artificial turf and won only five games last year. Ryan is not guaranteed as an outstanding defensive coordinator this year, but he is just the other inside linebacker.

The Eagles, who pick ninth, made Ray Wooley, a very substantial offer to Indianapolis in an effort to acquire the Colts' spot in the draft. The Colts refused.

While Bosworth has avoided being chosen by the Colts or Bills in the regular draft, there is no guarantee that the Colts would get him in the supplemental draft.

In that process, Tampa Bay will get to toss 25 slips of paper into the hopper. Indianapolis will get 27, Buffalo 26, etc., with the Super Bowl champion New York Giants getting one slip of paper.

Seven-year-old Cory Edwards of Twin Falls practices some laps in the Twin Falls YFCA pool

Twin Falls' swim team thriving again

By MICHAEL VANAUDELN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When sports enthusiasts come to Twin Falls, they watch football, basketball, baseball, College of Southern Idaho basketball — even track and volleyball.

But rarely in this inland state known for its winters, skiing and Claude Dallas is there a thought of swimming.

Think again.

Huddled in the deep corridors of the Twin Falls YFCA, a competitive group of underwater athletes practice "the sport they like most," coach Greg DeVeraux said.

"Swimming is alive and well, not down and out, in Twin Falls, Idaho. Having finished either second or third in the first few of the more than 20 meets scheduled this season, including ones in Boise and Oregon, this team has been a darkhorse within the Snake River Association. If the success continues at the end of the season when the team competes in regionals (called zones here) and then nationals (if qualified), swimming could become one of the primary Magic Valley sports.

At the moment, with only 44 members on the team, ranging from six to 18 years old, placing high among 82 and 90 member teams has made this Twin Falls team an obnoxious gnat inside a beehive.

"We do surprisingly well for a team that doesn't have the numbers," said DeVeraux. "It's taken some hard-core kids to make up such a fine team and they just want to swim."

The success of the team is also surprising for a group that hasn't been together long. Actually, this team has a long history. It's just that it's only been recently that this squad has found its present identity. It started out as a private club in the late '70s with its own coach, its own administration and about 80 swimmers. The team was a powerhouse, sending several swimmers, including Arizona's Sherri Stellante, to the college ranks.

But that team had an advantage — a big, lovely, open pool at Harmon Park. 10-12 team meets would be held and the crowds would come in waves. But after the pool sprung a leak, so did the team.

"They had some administrative problems," said DeVeraux, who took over as coach two years ago. "and after the pool was taken out, they really didn't have a place to swim."

With the help of DeVeraux and assistant coach Karen McCarthy, though, the team has been recruited and now sports a crew that is being noticed by other teams in the SRA, which is part of the United States Swimming Association.

Among the ones drawing the most notice are Ben Brudick, a 13-year-old from Jerome who has "excellent potential to be a top swimmer at zones," said DeVeraux, and Sherra Holcomb, another 13-year-old with potential. She has finished either second or third in all her meets, and she will get better if things keep going for her the way they have been.

Also, Willy Smith, a 14-year-old who "might now may be our best male swimmer, if it's not Ben," has been strong, said DeVeraux, and 18-year-old Kathy Nutsch, who by her own admission "does very well" when I work like I should, has also impressed folks.

"It's a good team," said McCarthy. "These kids are genuinely committed and they work hard."

Most all of the Twin Falls swimmers race in several events, and in the case of Smith, Brudick and the veteran Nutsch, they race in every one of them.

That, though, is no obstacle — and neither is the seemingly youthfulness of the team.

"It's best to start them young, anyway," responded DeVeraux, "you get them young and get them excited about swimming, then they can be very good. Of course, as a coach, you have to be careful not to burn them out."

The main problem is getting the numbers. The potential is there, said McCarthy, as evidenced by the big numbers that were out in the Harmon Park days.

But in Idaho, "you work so hard but get so little recognition," added DeVeraux. "Swimming doesn't get the kind of recognition in Idaho that it gets elsewhere."

That problem might be corrected "if we had a community pool," added McCarthy. "When the pool at Harmon was there, it attracted the swimmers. If we had a pool like that now, our numbers would increase."

Nonetheless, this group is "competitive enough," said DeVeraux. "We have some kids who, I think, will do well at zones. And some of them have the talent to compete on a national level."

Amazing Brewers get 1987 season off to a 7-0 start

By GORDON BEARD
The Associated Press

BALTIMORE Cecil Cooper couldn't wait to join in the fun of the longer season, scoring a winning streak in the history of the Milwaukee Brewers.

"I got a little antsy, but I didn't want to be a jinx," Cooper said after he drove home two runs on sacrifice flies as the unbeaten Brewers dealt the Baltimore Orioles 6-3 Monday night for their seventh consecutive victory.

Cooper twice hit the first pitch to drive in the runs, the second sacrifice fly coming with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to snap a 5-3 tie.

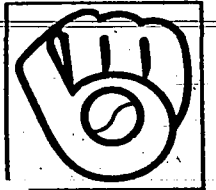

"It was a funny feeling, sitting and watching everyone contributing," said the 37-year-old designated hitter.

It was the first game of the season for Cooper, who was placed on the disabled list in spring training after pulling a muscle in batting practice.

"Going on the DL was probably best in the long run," Cooper said. "If I had started the season with less than 100 percent, I could have wound up being out longer."

"I'd give myself a 'B' for my first game, after missing that much time," Cooper said. "I hit two balls well, a line drive to center and the last sacrifice fly. I broke my bat on the first one but it went far enough to get the run in."

Fred Moltzer, who had two RBI in the game, started with the bases loaded with a bunt single, moved to second on a sacrifice, and stole third before

Glen Braggs was intentionally walked.

A single by Rob Deer, his third hit of the game, filled the bases before Cooper delivered his game-winning sacrifice fly. Dale Sveum followed with an RBI double to give the Brewers a 5-3 lead and Moltzer capped Milwaukee's scoring with an RBI single.

The winner was Chris Bosio, 20, the third Milwaukee pitcher, who allowed three hits over the final 3 1/2 innings. The loser was Scott McGregor, 40, who was relieved after Sveum followed Cooper's sacrifice fly with a double.

The Orioles scored two runs in the sixth — to forge a 3-3 tie after Milwaukee's slugger, Mike Birkbeck, had to leave after five innings with a blister on his right middle finger.

John Henry Johnson walked the first two batters he faced and Bosio, who took over with one out, yielded run-scoring singles by pinch hitter Lee Lacay and Alan Wiggin.

Jerome may be tested in X-State-SCIC meet

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

JEROME — Jerome High School's track team have to dominate at the South-Central Idaho and Cross State conferences that it takes Tiger boys' Coach Tim Dumme, whose teams have done most of dominating to remember when they started.

"We have a lot of respect for Caldwell," says Dumme. "Caldwell has usually finished a strong second to us in the Cross State meet and the one year we lost it to them, we lost by a hair's breadth."

Dumme is concerned that could happen again when the two conference meets, combined for the first time this year, unfold on the Jerome High school track today.

"Tiger girls' Coach Skip Andrew, whose teams have also been winning Cross State and SCIC meets with nothing regularity, has similar fears about Mountain Home.

"They're going to be all we can handle," he says. "You take a girl like (senior sprinter-harder-jumper) Jemy Jacquet and add that shot-discus thrower (Mary Toy) and that sprinter (Annie Taylor) — and that's a lot of potential points."

The Tigers, Mountain Home and Wood River, Buhl, Burley, Jerome and Shelly starting at 10 this morning, when the 3,200-meter relay will begin, followed by preliminaries and the other running events and the field events. The other running finals are set to begin at 2 p.m.

Both Dumme's and Andrew's teams will be on the sprint, and unbalanced and with their usual depth, tradition and home-track advantages, but the Tigers will be hard-pressed in a lot of events. On the boys' side, the attention will be on the sprint matchups among Mountain Home's Maury Toy and Gary Taylor, Jerome's John Gourley and Wood River's Alan Schwartz.

The relay times between Jerome and Caldwell recast nearly a dead heat: "The Tigers' 400-meter relay team turned the quarter in 44.8 seconds last week; so did Caldwell's. The Cougars ran the half-mile relay last week in 1:33.4. Jerome's time was the same.

"I think the meet is probably going to boil down to the fact that we have a little more strength in the distance events," said Dumme. "We have an excellent shot putter (Steve Dennis), a 51-foot

Youth will be served in Magic Valley small-school prep tennis this year

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

Youth will be served in District 4 Class B high school tennis this spring.

With the exception of defending state champions Tory Thornton of Ketchum-Sun Valley Community School and Brandon Farris of Jerome, most of the players of influence on the small-school teams of the Magic Valley will be underclassmen this year.

The situation at Wood River is typical.

"We have a real young team this year," said Coach Nancy Smith, whose teams have won two state titles in her six years at the school. "We've lost a lot of kids from last in a tournament in Kuna. Wood River has played just one match, losing to Bonneville last week, while Gooding and the Community School won't open their seasons until this afternoon in Gooding.

Wood River and Jerome will play their first intra-district match this afternoon in Jerome.

"Although the Tigers win the nod among the other district coaches because of depth and experience, everyone agrees that the team to watch is the Community School."

Jerome was a surprise winner of the District 4 championship last spring, defeating a Wood River team that went 7-1 in state. The Tigers won't sneak up on anybody — The only other seniors on the team this time, but Coach Ken Wright still has some questions.

"I'm never optimistic," quipped Wright. "We have a mix of experienced players and younger players, so you never know. If we can get four or five girls, who can play steadily, and if the boys play up to their potential, we'll be a contender for district tournament time."

The Tigers, who have won the last four District 4 crowns, return Farris, a senior, who along with partner Kim Gourley won the district and state mixed doubles championships last year ago. Also back is senior Dustin Farris, who with partner Brent Rucker, finished second in boys' doubles at district and made it as far as the state semifinals.

The other seniors on the team are Pam Skinner, who just missed qualifying for state a year ago, and Mike Welch, who got a late start this spring because of Jerome's participation in the state tournament. So far this season, Wright has used Skinner as his No. 1 girls' singles player, Dustin Farris as his No. 2 boys' singles player and Welch and Brandon Farris as his No. 1 boys' doubles team.

"We had 30 kids turn out this spring, but a lot of them haven't played much tennis and a lot of them are freshman and sophomores. It's going to be a real test of the unknown quantity for us."

Several of those youngsters have gotten off to a strong start this spring, notably freshmen Paul Lloyd, Mike Wade of Thornton. "She works for the Tigers," Sophomore Karie

Wright has been playing girls' singles and mixed doubles, while juniors Belz Johnson and Laurie Oringer have started the season as Jerome's No. 1 girls' doubles team.

"Fortunately for us, Wood River isn't as strong this year as they were last year," said Wright. "It's going to take some time for us to come around."

Ketchum-Sun Valley Starting with defending district and state B girls' singles champion Thoriana the Outthroat have instilled respect among the other prep tennis teams in District 4 this season.

"She's generating a lot of interest," said Community School Coach Mike Wade of Thornton. "She works for the Tigers." Sophomore Karie

Pack packs Lofton off to L.A.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—Former all-pro wide receiver James Lofton, facing a trial in Green Bay on a sexual assault charge, has been traded to the Los Angeles Raiders, the Packers announced Monday.

—The Packers said Lofton was traded for the Raiders' 10th-round draft choice in the upcoming NFL draft and an undisclosed conditional choice in 1988.

JAMES LOFTON
Facing charges

Pro football

"James Lofton has been a truly great football player for the Green Bay Packers," Packer Coach Forrest Gregg said. "He has had an outstanding career by any yardstick you might use — productivity, consistency or durability. The fact he has caught more passes than any other player in our history speaks for itself."

The acquisition of the 15th pick in the third round will give the Packers a fifth choice in the third round.

Rommel said he knew of no conditions on the deal involving the criminal charge against Lofton, which could lead to a prison term if he is convicted.

Steve Hartman, a Raiders spokesman, declined to say what might occur if Lofton were to be convicted and sentenced in prison.

"The charge has been made. But yes, you can assume there are provisions pending the outcome of the trial," Hartman said when contacted Monday.

He refused to elaborate.

Lofton, a No. 1 draft choice of the Packers from Stanford in 1978, last year became the 15th player in pro football history to catch 500 passes.

But his recent history in Wisconsin has been clouded by accusations of sexual misconduct.

He is scheduled for trial May 18 in Brown County Circuit Court on a count of second-degree sexual assault.

Mantle in hospital with chest pain

IRVING, Texas (AP)—Baseball Hall of Famer Mickey Mantle was in fair condition Monday after being hospitalized for chest pains, a hospital spokesman said.

Mantle's condition was upgraded from serious to fair early Monday, according to Sharon Peters, a spokesman for Irving Community Hospital. She said Mantle was in the intermediate coronary care unit.

—The former-New York-Yankees star released a brief statement through hospital officials. "I'm tired, but I'm feeling fine," he said.

He experienced chest pain later in the day while on a Delta Airlines flight bound for Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. Paramedics were called to meet the plane, but doctors said Mantle did not suffer a heart attack.

In December, Mantle ended his association with Del Webb's Claridge Hotel Casino in Atlantic City, where he'll be paired with senior Jason Roth.

"They should get a lot of attention because they play a strong game," she said. "They've become one of those teams that did well right from the first time they played together."

ing on going to state for the fourth straight year. She took fourth place as a freshman, second as a sophomore and won state last year."

Thornton has also won the last three District 4 girls' singles titles, according to Wade.

"It's a weaker team in that we had two very strong players who transferred and one of them didn't come out for tennis this year," said the third-year Community School coach.

Still, the cupboard isn't bare. In addition to Thornton, Wade will have senior Jennifer Pinkerton back. Specializing in doubles, she was broken only once last season.

"They'll be joined by Brian Cronin, who played last year for the Clutthroats as a sophomore, and Clay Pereira, a sophomore transfer from Washington when Wade describes as an advanced player.

But like Pereira, the rest of the Community School cast is young. Trina Katz and Josh Pinkerton, both sophomores, are the leading mixed doubles team candidates, while two freshmen, John Driscoll and Greg Fairfield, will play boys' doubles.

Sophomore Michelle Ebeling will play singles, behind Thornton and Pinkerton, but few newcomers will probably make up the girls' doubles squads. They are junior Jennifer Smith, sophomore Jessica Davies and freshmen Nevada Fine and Lissa Fryer.

With only 12 players, Wade worries about the numbers game against Jerome and Wood River.

Baseball

Peters said Mantle is scheduled for cardiac catheterization Tuesday morning. She said the process is a diagnostic procedure which allows doctors to examine heart chambers for any abnormalities that might exist.

Mantle, who lives in Dallas, became ill while signing autographs in Schenectady, N.Y., on Sunday.

Jerome is the strongest team in the district, but Wood River led a lot of seniors," he said. "We'll be competitive, but we can't match their depth."

Wood River

To grasp Smith's dilemma this spring, it's only necessary to look at the team scores from last year's state B tournament.

The Wolverines won it by 22 points over runnerup Parma. Most of the largest margins of victory in the state tournament's history. Most of those points were earned by state boys' singles champion John Jacoby, state boys' singles runnerup Jamie Hjort, the state champion girls' doubles team of Ann Ferriss and Marianne Moore and by the girls' doubles team of Julie Katz and Margaret Shaughnessy and the mixed doubles team of Thayne Liffick and Heidi Jorgenson, both of which made it to the state semifinals.

Of that group, only Shaughnessy returns this spring.

"I feel pretty confident, but at this point I'm not sure what we'll be like," Smith said. "We have a lot of sophomores, but I think they have quite a bit of potential."

Nonetheless, Smith is happy about the progress of her younger players, upon whom she'll have to depend almost exclusively in singles this spring.

"If this year isn't another big one for us, our youth next year surely will be," Smith said.

Smith will keep Shaughnessy, now a senior, in girls' doubles, where she'll be teamed with junior Stephanie Reed.

"They've been playing real well together even though this is their first time as a team," Smith said. "If our girls' team does well again, it will be because of Margaret and Stephanie."

Junior Brad Jaques, who's played on the varsity for three years and was overshadowed last season by Jacoby and Hjort, will play doubles, where he'll be paired with senior Jason Roth.

"They should get a lot of attention because they play a strong game," she said. "They've become one of those teams that did well right from the first time they played together."

Gooding

First-year Gooding Coach Chris Perry is operating under the double handicap of being new to the program and having predominantly a young group of players to work with.

"We have about 20 players on this spring, which is not a bad turnout, but I really don't know what kind of team we'll be," says Perry, whose replaces Mike Schreman as the Gooding coach. "We really won't have a very good idea until our first match."

There are three seniors on the team — Wendy Anderson, Nick Gonzales and Kelli Skabronski — but the Senators' squad is dominated by the class of '88 youth. They are: Franco, Darrin McFadden, Glenn Reed, Tim Erkins, Scott Munchow, Honey Helken and Heather Adams. They'll be joined by six sophomores and three freshmen.

Thomsen wins T.F. Muni pro-am

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Boise professional Jeff Thomsen returned to the scene of his youth Monday, posting a seven-under par 61 to lead all scorers in the annual Twin Falls Municipal pro-am golf tournament.

But he didn't have a lot of room to spare as Burley Professional Fray Frank was one step back, followed by John Lewis, Boise, at 63; Bob Campbell, Boise, 64; Mike Hamblin, Twin Falls, 65; and John Graham, Idaho Falls, 66.

Frank had two eagles on 11 and 12 and Jackie's Bill Downs had three eagles — 15, 18 and 19 — and ended up with a par round 68.

Host Pro Don Hamblin won the senior division at 69, one ahead of Mike Cerrillo, Twin Falls.

Campbell and Twin Falls amateurs Nick Hansen, Ace Hansen, Pete Peterson and Boles's John Lindsay won the best ball division at 50-under 105, followed by Don Hamblin and his crew of Greg Lanting, Larry Whittle, Perry Sanchez and Lowell Wills at 107. At 109 were Downs and amateur KAVIN PARKER, DAVE Devenport, Jeff Petersen and B.J. Hackett with Thomsen and amateurs Gary Duncan, Tom Standley, Jeff Alexander and Dick Reese at 109.

Dave Driscoll's two-under 66 won the amateur C-11 handicap gross prize with Burley's Glenn Blakeley at 67, Kevin Packard at 68, Lloyd Shawver, 69, and Tom Standley, Joe Malby and Bill Caffrell all at 73, followed by Arnie Ringenberg at 63, John Lindsay and John Cramer, both 64; Jim Ochsner, Gary Duncan and Chuck Martin all 65.

In the higher handicap division, Bob Skredsteri sur on off with gross at 70, three ahead of Pocatello's Parry Harrison and Tom-on-Chuck Porter, west. Harrison and Burley had 70 while Bob Leonard, Dwight Sandmark, Roger Jones and Jeff Petersen all had 72.

Net prize went to Lowell Wills at a blistering 10-under 58. B.J. Hackett had 61, Greg Lanting and Vern Doshier, both 62, and Wayne Ballard, Rudy Willocke and Dick Transtrum.

NL: Dodger rookies hand Houston first loss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tracy Woodson always will remember hitting the first pitch he ever saw from a pitcher. Ryan, his first major-league home run, but he'll also make a mental note of how unwise it will be to keep digging in against the Houston Astros' all-time strikeout king.

"He threw some serious gas," said the rookie, third baseman, who hit a two-run home Monday night helped the Los Angeles Dodgers end the Astros' six-game winning streak.

"I feel good," he says, "the first one being my first. He's one of the best pitchers I ever threw."

Ryan, 1-1, allowed three strikes and four hits over six innings, striking out nine and walking five.

"It was a nice pitch," Ryan said of Woodson's homer. "It hit the middle part of the plate at the belt. I can't believe there's too many pitchers like that this guy is not going to hit."

Woodson made certain he didn't do a slow, dramatic trot around the bases after his home run, but he made sure that the first thing he did when he got to the dugout was tell someone to write Ryan's name on the recovered baseball.

"I didn't want to show him up, because he's a great player," the rookie said. "I didn't want to be a big deal."

Ryan backed Woodson away three times before walking him in his next at-bat, and caused him to hit the dirt twice. Ryan explained that he did it with curve balls.

"I can't expect to be the first close pitch," (Catcher Alan) Ashby said. "If you want to go dancing, go after the game."

Another Los Angeles rookie, pitched five innings for the fourth victory of his career.

Holton, 1-0, entered the game after starter Rick Honeycutt was forced to leave with a pulled muscle in his right side. Holton, in his longest stint in 18 major-league appearances, allowed four hits, including Phil Garner's homer with two outs in the sixth.

The Dodgers took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Franklin Stubbs singled and scored on Woodson's high deep into the left field bullpen on Ryan's first pitch. The Astros got a run back in the next half-inning off Honeycutt, but a couple of fundamental lapses prevented more.

Garner chopped an infield hit to the left side and Honeycutt hit Pena with a pitch. Ryan, trying to move the runners up a base, then hunted hard to the left of the mound and Honeycutt's throw to third retired Garner on a force. Pena scored on Bill Doran's single, but Ryan was thrown out at third by Pedro Guerrero for the second out.

Guerrero's fifth-inning sacrifice fly made it 3-1, and the Dodgers added a run in the seventh on Steve Sax's leadoff triple and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Reggie Williams.

Chicago 5 Philadelphia 2
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jamie Moyer, making only his 18th major-league appearance, pitched a no-hit ball for eight innings as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 Monday night.

Moyer, a 24-year-old left-hander who pitched his first major-league game last June 14, was going for the first no-hitter ever at Veterans Stadium until Juan Samuel led off the ninth with a line single to center field.

AL: Cleveland gets off to 1-6 start for season

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees hoped Charles Hudson, acquired during the winter from Philadelphia for Mike Easler, might make some contribution this year. One week into the season, he has become their best pitcher, a commodity the Cleveland Indians are still missing.

Hudson, forced into an emergency start when Tommy John became ill with a stomach virus thirty minutes prior to the game, struck out 10 and allowed just three hits — all solo home runs — as the Yankees won their home opener by routing Cleveland 11-3.

Willie Randolph drove in five runs, with four hits, including a pair of doubles as New York trounced 15-1.

Hudson was scheduled to start his first night game since Oct. 2, 1985, just a few hours after seeing the inside of Yankee Stadium for the first time in his life. Hudson's wife Nikki and daughter missed the game because they had time to drive north from Georgia to watch him Tuesday.

"I just had to put my game face on," said Hudson, who won his first decision with the Yankees last week by pitching 4 1/3 innings of perfect ball. "When there's a big crowd, I get pumped."

Randolph and the rest of the Yankees were excited by Hudson's performance, particularly because pitching was thought to be their weak spot.

"We need Charlie desperately," Randolph said. "He just picks up the ball and goes right to work."

The fans are more than desperate for pitching, having allowed 52 runs this season in seven games, six of them losses, including the last

Baseball

Von Hayes followed with a walk and Mike Schmidt singled home Samuel. Then he got the last three outs for his first save despite allowing another RBI single to Lance Parrish.

Moyer, who has a 7-4 record and a 3.02 earned run average for his career going into the game, struck out 12 Phillies and walked six.

Only two batters came close to getting a hit before the ninth, both in the fourth inning. With one out, Schmidt hit a high-drive-to-deep-center field that Bob Dernier caught at the base of the wall.

After Parrish walked, Glenn Wilson hit a slow roller to third baseman Keith Hernandez, who threw to first just clipped Wilson for the third out. The Phillies protested umpire Satch Davidson's call to no avail.

The Cubs scored their first run in the first inning when Andre Dawson hit his second home run of the season of loser Don Carman, 0-1.

The Cubs made it 2-0 in the second on a passed ball by Parrish after Jody Davis walked and moved to third on Brian Dayett's double.

In the third, Dernier gave the Cubs a 3-0 lead with his first home run of the year.

The Cubs scored their final two runs in the seventh off reliever Tom Hummel with the help of an error by Schmidt, his first in 64 games.

St. Louis 8 Pittsburgh 4
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jack Clark and rookie Jim Lindeman hit homers Willie McGee had a three-run triple as the St. Louis Cardinals used a pair of four-run innings to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-4 Monday.

The Pirates led 1-0 after five innings on Johnny Ray's RBI single in the first as Doug Drabek, 0-1, limited St. Louis to two hits.

But Jose Oquendo singled with one out in the sixth and Tommy Herr followed with an RBI double into the right field corner.

Herr followed with his second homer of the season and the 31st of his career against Pittsburgh. One batter later, Lindeman hit his third homer of the season and third of the series.

The Pirates cut the deficit to 4-3 in the bottom of the inning against Danny Cox, who allowed six hits and three runs over six innings to improve to 2-0. One run scored when Herr drew mid on Johnny Ray's field hit and the other came in on Sid Bream's double play grounder.

But the Cardinals broke it open in the eighth off Brian Fisher.

Oquendo walked and Herr and Clark singled to load the bases, setting up McGee's triple into the left field corner. McGee scored on Terry Pendleton's single off shortstop Rafael Bellard's glove.

Ricky Horton pitched the final three innings for his first save, allowing the final Pittsburgh run in the eighth on doubles by Andy Van Slyke and Bream.

Cincinnati 7 Atlanta 2
ATLANTA (AP) — Eric Davis had three hits, including a tiebreaking double in Cincinnati's two-run fifth inning, leading the Reds to a 7-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves Monday night.

Greg Swindell, just over five runs on eight hits in just over three innings, giving Cleveland starters an 8.16 earned run average this year.

"Yes, I'm surprised by my pitching," Indians' Manager Pat Corrales said. "I didn't think it would be that bad."

Corrales was Hudson's first major league manager in 1983 with the Phillies. Hudson, with a 34-42 big league record, has been hurt by inconsistency in his career.

"He shut us down. He's done it before," Corrales said.

Davey Horfield homered and Don Mattingly and Ron Kittle hit two-run singles. Mattingly, however, struck out three times for the first time in his career in going 1-for-5, leaving him at 6-0 on 2.

Ray drove in two home runs to Mel Hall in the second inning, Brook Jacobson in the fifth and Joe Carter in the ninth while striking out 10 and walking two.

Ray's total of 55,612, largest for a home opener since the new Yankee Stadium opened in 1976, watched in 47-degree weather and light rain as the Yankees scored twice in the first inning on Kittle's broken-bat single off Ed VanDe Berg in the eighth and his third RBI. VanDe Berg's Josh Skinner was ejected in the second inning after bumping first-base umpire John Hirschbeck after a close play.

Davis' grounder over the third base bag ignited the Reds to their fifth victory in six games.

With the score tied 2-2, Dave Concepcion opened the fifth for the Reds with a single off Braves' starter Zane Smith, 0-1. Dave Parker then singled before Davis' double knocked in Concepcion. Bo Diaz brought Parker home with a sacrifice fly.

The Reds added two runs in the eighth on Tracy Jones' RBI double, and struck out two in seven innings.

Concepcion. Then Davis singled in the ninth and scored on two grounders.

The Braves had tied it in the fourth off Reds' starter Bill Gullickson, 2-0, when Dale Murphy hit a triple off the center field fence and came home on Ken Griffey's single.

Griffey, who had three hits, also had a solo homer — his second of the year.

The Reds scored a pair of runs in the first on a run-scoring double by Parker and an RBI bouncer by Buddy Bell.

It was the 14th consecutive start in which Smith has failed to win. The left hander, who was 3-16 last season, last won on July 2, 1986 against San Francisco, and since then he is 0-8.

Gullickson allowed six hits, walked one and struck out two in seven innings.

San Francisco 13 San Diego 6
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Robby Thompson hit a grand slam to highlight a four-homer attack as San Francisco Giants, overcoming a record homer binge by San Diego, beat the Padres 13-6 Monday night in San Diego's home opener.

The Padres established a major league record when the first three batters in the bottom of the first inning hit homers off San Francisco starter Roger Mason. Twenty-five times in baseball history a team had gotten homers from its first two batters in a game.

Thompson overcame that homer barrage by himself in the seventh inning. After striking out the first two hitters of the inning, San Diego reliever Tom Gorman gave up singles to Chris Brown and Bob Melvin. Gorman intentionally walked Matt Williams in order to face Thompson, who frustrated that strategy with a homer that gave the Giants a 12-6 lead.

Thompson singled in the Giants' final run in the ninth.

The Padres, trailing 2-0, got homers from Marvel Wynne and Tony Gwynn to open the bottom of the first. After Manager Roger Craig conferred with Mason, John Kruk put the Padres into the record book on the next pitch, send an opposite-field liner over the left field fence.

The Giants, who tied the game at 3-3 and 4-4 before falling behind 6-4, took the lead for good with a four-run fifth inning. Chili Davis' double off reliever Dave Dravecky, 0-3, drove in two runs.

Red-hot Atlanta collects its 7th win in a row

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The NBA Eastern Conference standings got tighter Monday night as Dominique Wilkins' 34 points carried the streaking Atlanta Hawks to a 102-101 victory over Indiana.

"I don't know who you'd rather have in the playoffs," Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said of the possible first-round matchups. "Any of them can be headaches."

"How much difference is there between us and Indiana? Not much. Regardless of who you play, you'll be playing good teams."

Wilkins scored 22 of his 34 points in the second half to rally Atlanta from a nine-point deficit.

It was the Central Division-leading Hawks' seventh straight victory and pulled them within one game of the Atlantic Division's Celtics for the best record in the East and the home court advantage throughout the conference playoffs. Each team has three games left in the regular season, including the final game against each other at Boston.

"We don't look ahead," Fratello said. "That's the worst thing this team can do. We have a game tomorrow (Tuesday) night and that's the biggest game of the season for us. One game at a time."

Boston is 56-23 and Atlanta is 55-24.

"We've still got a chance to catch Boston and have the best record in the East," Fratello said.

Wilkins had 14 points in the final period, including two free throws that put the Hawks ahead by four with under two minutes to go. Indiana pulled within one point on a basket by Wayman Tisdale with 35 seconds left, but Antoine Carr hit a basket and Kevin Willis hit one of two free throws to push Atlanta's lead to 102-98.

Indiana's John Long got the final basket on a 3-point goal at the buzzer.

"I thought that was the difference," Wilkins said of his scoring burst after he collected only six points in the first half. "Because we really got going; we got on top of our game.

"I felt good going into the third quarter. We made a couple adjustments, put me at guard some, and I was able to get myself going early in the third quarter."

Philadelphia 113 Washington 105

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Phil Robinson scored 22 points and Maurice Cheeks added 15 points and a season-high 19 assists to help the Philadelphia 76ers to a 113-105 NBA victory over the Washington Bullets Monday night.

A basket by Robinson completed an 8-0 run and gave the 76ers a 105-93 lead with 2:16 remaining in the game. Washington could move no closer than seven points in the final two minutes.

Trailing 52-50 at the half, Washington outscored Philadelphia early in the third quarter on an 8-2 run and took a 58-54 lead on Jeff Malone's basket with 9:36 remaining in the quarter.

Philadelphia went on a 12-2 spurt to take a 66-60 advantage with 7:02 left in the third quarter. Washington cut the 76ers' lead to 75-73 on a pair of free throws by Terry Catledge with 1:24 left, but the 76ers scored the last four points of the quarter for an 83-73 edge.

Detroit 120 New York 100

NEW YORK (AP) — Adrian Dantley scored nine of his 30 points in Detroit's runaway third quarter and Isiah Thomas added 21 as the Pistons snapped a five-game road losing streak with a 120-100 NBA victory over the New York Knicks Monday night.

The Pistons, who also broke a three-game losing streak overall, increased an eight-point halftime lead to 94-75 at the end of three quarters by outscoring New York 32-21 in the third period. Dantley gave the Pistons the first of two 24-point leads, their largest of the game, by converting a three-point play at the 9:06 mark of the fourth quarter, making it 103-79.

The Knicks never got closer than 16 points after that as Detroit went on to post its 50th victory, the most since the team had a team-record 52 in 1973-74.

The Pistons, ahead by two points after one quarter, pulled away in the first 5:35 of the second quarter with a 16-2 streak for a 43-27 lead. But a little more than a minute later, Bernard King, making his first start and third appearance since March 8, 82, left gave the Bulls the lead for good at 48-44.

Trailing 83-78 after three quarters, the Bulls outscored the Bucks 12-3 to begin the final period.

Jordan's steal and basket with 8:02 left gave the Bulls the lead for good at 84-84.

Milwaukee trailed 94-83 with 5:16 to go, but Jordan led the Bulls on an 8-0 burst with six points as Chicago took a 102-93 lead with 2:45 left. Jordan added five free throws in the final 19 seconds to seal the victory.

The Bucks, leading by one at the half, scored the first eight points of the third quarter to begin a 17-7 run that gave them a 74-63 lead with 5:29 to go in the period. The Bulls cut the deficit to five at the end of the quarter.

Charles Oakley added 22 points and Brad Sellers and Elston Turner 14 each for the Bulls.

Terry Cummings had 24 points and Ricky Pierce 20 for the Bucks.

the 3,000-point mark for the season. The only player in NBA history to reach the 3,000-point mark in a season was Will Chamberlain, who did it three times.

Blue chips speed decline

The Associated Press
 NEW YORK — Stock prices fell sharply Monday, as a late selloff in blue chips accelerated a broad decline in a market haunted by worries over rising interest rates and inflation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks down more than 51 points last week, fell 51.71 to 2,287.07. The average's drop was its fourth-largest daily loss ever. Prices in the broader market were widely lower for most of the session. Decliners outpaced advances by nearly 7 to 1 on the New York Stock exchange, with 285 up, 1,425 down and 284 unchanged.
