Indicted Aryan Nations leader held in jail

REV. RICHARD BUTLER Says he's never run yet

The Associated Press COEUR D'ALENE — The Rev. Richard Butler, one of 15 white supremacists indicted on a long list of charges, founded his Church of Jesus Christ, Christian (Aryan Nations) in 1973, a few miles from the northern Idaho jail where he surrendered on an arrest warrant Friday. Told later by U.S. Magistrate Stephen Ayers that he would be denied bond at the request of federal authorities, Butler objected. "I've never run from anything," the 68-year-old Butler said in a quiet voice. "I've always been where I said I would be. I'm not running from anyone."

during most of his courtroom appearance, his hands folded over the 22-page indictment against him. A federal grand jury in Fort Smith, Ark., accused Butler and nine others of seditious conspiracy, or trying to topple the federal government, over a 21-month period beginning in July 1983. Others have been charged with conspiring to kill federal officials and in the slaying of a Denver radio talk-show host. The scheme outlined in the Arkansas indictment allegedly began at Butler's "compound" outside Hayden Lake, north of Coeur d'Alene. The former dairy farm has a pine-paneled church hung with swastika flags and log cabins where guests can stay. Inside a small headquarters building, racks of Nazi books and neo-Nazi tracts line the walls. For the last several years, the an-

Charges cite murder, anti-government plots

Fifteen white supremacists have been indicted on charges of plotting to overthrow the U.S. government and of murdering a Denver radio talk-show host in 1984, the Justice Department said Friday. A federal grand jury in Fort Smith, Ark., charged 10 of the defendants with conspiracy to assassinate federal officials, including a judge, and to kill members of ethnic groups through bombings. Named in the indictments were Richard Girt Butler, 69, of Idaho, leader of the Aryan Nations Church, and nine others affiliated with the church and other white supremacist groups such as The Order and the Ku Klux Klan. The Arkansas indictments were returned Tuesday and unsealed Friday after the Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested eight of those charged. The other seven defendants are in prison on previous convictions. In Denver, a federal grand jury Friday returned indictments against five members of The Order in connection with the murder of radio talk show host Alan Berg, Berg, who was Jewish, frequently used his show to attack white-supremacist leaders. Berg was shot with a submachine gun on June 18, 1984, as he left his car in front of his apartment. Following an investigation by the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, the defendants were charged with violently interfering with Berg's right to engage in employment because of his race, religion and national origin. The Order is a neo-Nazi group that has issued a "declaration of war" against the United States. FBI officials have said that the group's activities seem to have been inspired by a novel by white supremacist William Pierce of Arlington, Va., in which armed American Nazis overthrew the U.S. government, launch a nuclear attack on Israel and murder prominent American Jews. The Anti-Defamation League (ADL) of B'nai B'rith said it was not surprised by the indictments. See INDICT on Page A2

Inflation staging a return

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices jumped 0.4 percent in March after equal or greater increases in the previous two months, the Department of Labor reported Friday, raising fears that inflation is staging a comeback. So far this year inflation is running at an annual rate of 2.2 percent, double last year's 3 percent rate and the highest in five years. A steep rise in the price of clothing and continued higher fuel and energy prices spurred the latest surge in the consumer price index. But economists noted that virtually every category of goods and services showed increases, suggesting that the general inflation long threatened by the sharply falling value of the dollar has at last arrived. Even without counting the latest energy price increases — up 26.1 percent so far this year after a 19.7 percent decline in 1986, but still 31.2 percent below the peak of March 1981 — inflation so far this year is running at an annual rate of 4.8 percent. That is noticeably higher than the 3.5 percent to 4 percent economists have estimated as the basic, "underlying" rate of inflation in the U.S. economy. "It's clear inflation is back, and back with a vengeance," said Irwin Kellner, chief economist at Manufacturers Hanover Bank in New York. "All the major categories went up; housing (and) an amazing 1.7 percent increase for clothing." Kellner traced much of the increase to the dollar, which is buying less and less in world markets. That not only drives up the price of imports but also allows domestic manufacturers who are competing with imports to let their prices rise as well. Martin Mauro of Merrill Lynch in New York found some comfort in the fact that the inflation rate for services, for years running above the inflation rate for goods and commodities, declined for the third consecutive month to 0.3 percent. Mauro said he expected inflation of about 0.3 percent to 0.4 percent per month for the rest of the year, leaving an annual increase of 4.5 percent to 5 percent.

Probable cause found to revoke Hansen parole

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A regional U.S. parole commissioner found probable cause Friday for revoking the parole of former Rep. George Hansen, who has been jailed in Alexandria since his arrest last week for parole violations. Commissioner Daniel Lopez's finding is the first step toward putting Hansen back in prison to complete his 15-month sentence for breaking ethics laws while he was in Congress. After a hearing scheduled for Wednesday, Lopez will decide whether to recommend parole revocation, and four other commissioners must concur before Hansen could be re-imprisoned. While Lopez was deliberating, Justice Department attorneys met with Hansen concerning complaints about his treatment by federal marshals and the Alexandria City Jail. "He had made allegations of mistreatment and misconduct by department representatives," said Justice spokesman Tom Stewart. "The purpose of the meeting was to lay out the list of grievances so we could begin checking them out."

Hansen, 56, a conservative Republican, served seven terms in Congress before his conviction under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act. He was the first congressman jailed for breaking financial disclosure laws. He served five months of his 15-month sentence before being paroled Dec. 19 from the Petersburg Federal Corrections Facility in Virginia. Under terms of his parole, he was to file financial forms and stay within the state. However, he has said that he could not pursue his consulting business — if he followed those restrictions. He told authorities when he was released that he would stay in prison rather than adhere to the limitations, but was paroled anyway. Friday's meeting of Hansen, U.S. Attorney Henry Hudson of Virginia's Eastern District, Deputy Assistant Attorney General William Landers and Hansen attorney Frank Campbell was called after Congress members earlier this week asked the Justice Department to review Hansen's treatment. Rubble gives up 3 bodies

The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — Rescuers slowly cut through a 60-foot tangle of shattered concrete and bent steel Friday, searching for spaces that might hold missing survivors but finding only the bodies of the dead. At least 12 workers were killed and 16 were missing when a downtown high-rise apartment building under construction collapsed Thursday. Forty-one workers were alive and accounted for, including six who remained hospitalized Friday, authorities said. "We plan to pull out three more dead bodies tonight who are not part of the original nine," Lenny Grimaldi, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Buccell, said Friday night. Buccell had said the search was continuing. "We've told families that the chances that their loved ones are alive are slim," Buccell said. Hopes fluctuated throughout the day, with rescue workers thinking they heard moaning and a member of a dog unit saying there were indications of survivors at another location. But as the search dragged on through the evening, nothing was found. Radio stations broadcast a plea for rain slickers for workers at the site, where a cold, windy rain was falling and a fog was creeping in. At a news conference Friday evening, Buccell discounted reports that tapping had been heard, saying the sounds could have been caused by shifting rubble. But Caroline Hebart, a member of the U.S. Disaster Team, a dog unit that has been used at earthquake sites, noted that survivors were found for 10 days after the Mexico City earthquake of 1985. "You wouldn't stay doing this type of work if you didn't have hope," she said. Officials wielded sensitive listening devices called for quiet and closed Interstate 95 exits in Bridgeport for a time to prevent rush-hour traffic from entering the area. Builders and government agencies all were investigating while rescue efforts dominated the scene Friday afternoon, with six cranes picking See SEARCH on Page A2

Catholic church to help Idaho aliens apply for legal status

By PAT MARCANTONIO Times-News writer

BOISE — The Roman Catholic Church may have answered the prayers of illegal aliens with its announcement Friday of a new program to help them apply for the legalization and legal-worker status under the new immigration law. The Catholic Diocese of Boise in Idaho has been approved by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service as a Qualified Designated Entity, QDE, to aid aliens in applying for legalization.

Call these numbers to get details of program

TWIN FALLS — The Roman Catholic Diocese has announced the formation of a new program to help aliens apply for citizenship and legal-work status through the new immigration act. Volunteers of the diocese's Idaho Legalization Project will help aliens with the application process. A sliding scale will be charged based on income and family size, said Co-Director Joanne Gouger. Anyone seeking information about the diocese program in the Magic Valley, may call the following telephone numbers: In the Burley-Rupert area, call 678-5433 or 436-3787. In the Twin Falls or Jerome area, call 734-2221. For the Mountain Home or Glens Ferry area, call 687-3046. Information provided by aliens to the project volunteers, who speak Spanish, will be kept confidential, Gouger said.

With the church's involvement, aliens who believe they may be eligible under the new law can call any Catholic Church for the names of Director Paul Hayes of Helena application process, she said. The church is also extending its aid to aliens on a nationwide basis. The diocese program will charge for its services on a sliding scale, based on income and family size. Anyone with a fee amounting to more than $50 can pay within six months if they don't readily have the money. "No one will be turned away," she said. Under the new immigration regulations, QDE's may charge fees up to $100, Gouger said. The fee for the diocese program will be in addition to the fees the Immigration Service will charge. Immigration processing offices in Idaho Falls and Boise will open May 5. Immigration District Deputy Director Paul Hayes of Helena Mont, said a Nampa agency called the Center for Employment Training has also been classified as a QDE in Idaho. A complete list of QDEs for the state will be available next week. Officials from the Center for Employment Training couldn't be reached for comment Friday. Under the new law, illegal aliens may earn citizenship if they have resided continuously in the United States since Jan. 1, 1982, and meet other requirements. Temporary residential status, which may lead to a permanent status, is available for aliens who have worked in the country at least 90 days during the 12-month period that ended May 1, 1986. # Official: Part of Idaho facing $50 million drought 'disaster'

BOISE (AP) — Federal and state officials said the drought in western Idaho could be worse than the state's last drought, 18 years ago.

One federal official said southwestern Idaho alone could be looking at a $30 million "disaster" because of a lack of water for irrigate crops.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, summoned federal and state agency representatives to a meeting here Friday to discuss the drought.

"It is a disaster," McClure said. "We're looking at what can be done to provide financial assistance to farmers hit by that disaster," he said.

"Asside from a rain dance that really works, there are no pat answers," McClure

Officials said the drought problem is worst in southwestern Idaho. Eastern Idaho was described as having generally adequate water storage. Northern Idaho has much less reliance on irrigation.

The officials said the drought has been estimated by a combination of below-normal precipitation last winter, and reduced storage capacity at Rocky Peak Reservoir just west of Boise, because of construction of a new power plant.

As of Friday, Gov. Cecil Andrus had signed orders requiring federal disaster assistance for six southwestern Idaho counties. Officials said another five counties are preparing similar resolutions, including Camas, Coster, Butte, Lemhi and Owyhee.

Rex Brattwhite, Idaho director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said his agency has asked for $500,000 to launch programs to help Idaho farmers through the drought.

Larry Silver, Canyon County ASCS chief, said it might take $1.5 million to $2 million for the federal government's share of cost-sharing programs.

They asked McClure to help expedite approval for the federal money.

McClure first wanted to know how the problem occurred. Lt. Col. Richard Eby, Corps of Engineers, said water storage at Lucky Peak Reservoir had to be reduced to allow work on the power project at Lucky Peak Dam.

The Corps of Engineers also must save 300,000 acre-feet of storage capacity for flood protection, he said. "If you do not have that storage, you are subject to some really serious flooding in Boise," he said.

"That means some water had to be dumped" that in retrospect could have been stored for use by irrigators this year, he acknowledged.

Since Dec. 10, there has been no "dumping," Eby said but other officials said precipitation has been far below normal since then, meaning there was little water to be stored.

The officials involved said it couldn't be ascertained until after the first of January, when intensive snowpack measurements start, that the area was heading toward a water shortage.

But Idaho Water Resources Director Kenneth Dunn said even if he were asked, he might not be able to approve a request to let farmers use the water.

Besides protecting fish and other wildlife values, Dunn said minimum Boise River flow is needed in the fall, after irrigation ends, to dilute outflow from Boise sewage treatment facilities.

McClure said there were a lot of "imponderables" to consider.

He said someone might have to decide whether it would be better to cut water off to a livestockman with pasture, or to give the water to orchards and vineyards, which could be destroyed by a single year without water.

Symms talks with Hansen; asks Meese for guarantees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho Sen. Steve Symms, concerned about the way former Idaho Congressman George Hansen has been treated since being jailed for parole violations, has asked U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese for guarantees that Hansen's constitutional rights are preserved.

Symms aide Tom Lowery said the Republican senator met with Hansen earlier this week in his Alexandria, Va., City Jail cell, where the congressman is awaiting a decision whether his parole will be revoked for unauthorized travel and failure to file periodic financial reports.

Lowery quoted Symms as saying Hansen "looked like he was in pretty good shape" but expressing concern about what the senator said appeared to be federal treatment of Hansen "like Machine-Gun Kelly, what with the leg irons and chains."

But while Symms called Meese immediately after the jailhouse meeting to see that George's rights were protected, Lowery emphasized that the senator has not stand on whether Hansen has been improperly jailed or should receive a presidential pardon.

"That case is in the hands of the Justice Department," Lowery said, although Symms plans to watch how Hansen continues to be treated by authorities. "He wants to make sure George is treated properly and that his rights are protected."

Hansen, who served six months in prison before being paroled on his conviction for falsifying federal financial disclosure statements, was arrested last week in Omaha, Neb., on parole violations. He had been warned by the U.S. Parole Commission in February about unauthorized travel.

He said he was held in a Nebraska jail under a false name, so the media would not be alerted to his arrest and then transferred back to Virginia in chains.

Since he has been in jail, Hansen has been on a hunger strike, and after Hansen advised Symms he was consuming "but a few ounces of fluid a day, ... the senator had George deny to drink a substantial amount of water each day," Lowery said.

Questions posed by the rules.

One is that a seasonal worker, already in this country, might have to return to Mexico or the country of his origin, to apply to work in this country.

"It's foolish to make them go back to Mexico to apply if they already are here," he said.

Some rules propose a Sept. 1 cutoff on the time alien workers can stay. "This should be extended, at least in this first year of operation," said McClure.

"There should be a degree of tolerance in the first year of a program while they are working it out," he said.

McClure defends the marketplace; derides Stallings' silver legislation

BOISE (AP) — Sen. James McClure says he doesn't like the Democratic proposals for a $7.50 per ounce floor price on imported silver.

There's only one way the price of silver should be determined, McClure said Friday. "That is the marketplace," he said.

Rep. Richard Stallings has introduced legislation calling for a $7.50 floor on the price of imported silver. If silver from foreign countries fell below that price, it would be subject to a tariff to bring the price to $7.50 per ounce.

At a news conference earlier in the week Gov. Cecil Andrus urged support for the Stallings proposal. Andrus said since silver is above the $7.50 price, the law would have little immediate impact, but would protect silver producers in Idaho from price declines.

McClure said a majority of the silver industry does not favor the idea, and in fact opposes anything linking silver prices to government action.

But McClure said he supports laws already in place forbidding "dumping" of foreign products on American markets. He defined that as a country's attempt to "dump" products here below the cost of production, thus driving down domestic prices.

President Reagan already has taken action under the anti-dumping law against foreign microchips, McClure said, and has imposed a countervailing duty on Canadian lumber for the same reason.

He was interviewed Friday, for KTVB's "Viewpoint" program to be telecast this weekend.

Silver prices dropped below $5 per ounce last year, causing most northern Idaho silver mines to close.

Interconnections between government and business.

"I made a deficit — too high — and that they should correct it. We should say, 'You figure out how to make the deficit smaller,' and when we get to that goal, all tariffs will be cut off," he said.

McClure said he has not talked recently to Gov. Cecil Andrus on the issue of Idaho wilderness, but stands ready to attempt to negotiate a settlement to an issue that has dragged on for years.

McClure said former congressman George Hansen continues to have a loyal following in Idaho, despite his legal problems. "That group of people will stick with him through thick and thin," McClure said.

Groups unite to alter worker rules

BOISE (AP) — Idaho farm groups are organizing to seek changes in new alien farm worker rules they say could cause a damaging shortage of labor this year.

Spokesmen for the Idaho Farm Bureau, Idaho Cattle Association, Idaho Wool Growers and other groups met in the office of Sen. James McClure here Friday to come up with a plan of action, McClure said.

Congress adopted a new farm labor law last year. The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has proposed rules to carry out the new requirements, aimed at legalizing the nonresident aliens who come into this country to work on farms.

The closed period on the new rules closes Monday, McClure and other Idaho leaders are urging some changes to make the regulations more workable.

McClure said Idaho groups will be joining their counterparts in other states pressing for changes. He said he did not know when INS plans to adopt its final rules.

"We're trying to make it work. If (the new rules) has to work, and it has to work now, not six months from now. You can't just wait to see how it works out," he said.

McClure said the Idaho groups have some basic questions about requirements posed by the rules.

One is that a seasonal worker, already in this country, might have to return to Mexico or the country of his origin, to apply to work in this country.

"It's foolish to make them go back to Mexico to apply if they already are here," he said.

Some rules propose a Sept. 1 cutoff on the time alien workers can stay. "This should be extended, at least in this first year of operation," said McClure.

"There should be a degree of tolerance in the first year of a program while they are working it out," he said.

Firm accuses Mountain Bell of preferences

BOISE (AP) — Northwest Telco, Inc., an Idaho long-distance telephone company, filed a complaint against Mountain Bell before the Public Utilities Commission on Friday, alleging that Mountain Bell is granting preferential access rates to a competitor.

Named as codefendant in the complaint, filed late Friday on behalf of Northwest Telco, was Tel-America of Salt Lake City, Inc.

The complaint alleges that both companies offer long-distance services.

It claims that Mountain Bell charges Tel-Am for calls originating and terminating in Idaho under interstate rate charges, but charges Northwest Telco for similar calls under intrastate rates, which are higher.

"Mountain Bell is charging different rates for the same service to two similarly situated customers, and thus is granting a preference and advantage to Tel Am ..." the complaint alleged.

The complaint said under current state law (Section 61-315, Idaho Code) Mountain Bell must charge the same amount for the same services to all customers.

Moscow councilman, UI student arrested on drug charges

MOSCOW (AP) — A Moscow city councilman and a University of Idaho student have been arrested for investigation of narcotics charges.

Moscow police said Councilman John Cunningham, 40, and James Jenista, 23, a student from Boise, were arrested Thursday by city police and the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement's Bureau of Narcotics.

Cunningham was booked into the Latah County Jail for investigation of possession of a controlled substance and possession with intent to deliver.

Cunningham is accused of buying 4 grams of cocaine from an informant for $225 on April 2 and another $75 just before he was arrested.

Jenista was arrested in the same operation. He was booked for investigation of possession of a controlled substance and conspiracy to deliver a controlled substance.

Police allege Jenista bought 2 ounces of cocaine from an undercover officer for $700 and the title to his 1977 Toyota.

A Bradley armored personnel carrier is shown during training exercises in Fort Hood, Texas.

Army says 12 vehicles sink; denies lawmaker's assertion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army acknowledged Friday that 12 Bradley Fighting Vehicles have sunk during amphibious testing, nearly double the number previously reported, but it denied a congressman's assertion that the combat personnel carrier "leaks like a sieve."

As recently as last week, the Army said there had been only seven sinkings of the armored vehicles. But Army Undersecretary James R. Ambrose told a House panel that the service had not counted either "swampings" or sinkings that caused less than $700 damage.

"You've got a vehicle that will not float, won't swim and won't climb a bank," said Rep. John Dingell, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce oversight subcommittee.

"The vehicle leaks like a sieve," Dingell, D-Mich., said.

But Ambrose said a dozen sinkings out of 10,000 tests was a good track record. "I don't believe that warrants the assertion that the vehicle won't float or swim," he said.

Ambrose also criticized testimony earlier Friday by retired Air Force Col. James Burton, a former military-weapon tester, who said the Army has been unwilling to modify the Bradley to make it safer.

The Bradley, designed to replace the M-113 armored personnel carrier, is a 25-ton tracked vehicle that resembles a tank and is armed with a 25mm cannon, 7.62mm machine gun and anti-tank missiles. FMC Corp. of San Jose, Calif., has built 3,500 Bradleys, and the Army estimates it will cost $9.8 billion to acquire 6,880 of the vehicles.

Halfway through the production program, the Bradley has come under intense criticism on Capitol Hill for both its vulnerability to enemy fire and its swimming capability.

On April 13, the Army temporarily suspended all aquatic operations pending modifications of the vehicle. At the time, it acknowledged seven sinkings. In March, it had counted only five.

Ambrose said he discovered the Army was making a distinction between sinkings when the vehicle sank surrounded by water, and swampings, when the vehicle sank but there was turf nearby, as in a river bank. Also not counted were incidents when the vehicles sank but damage was less than $700.

"I don't want to get into a book-keeping contest," Ambrose said. "It's a distinction I don't support."

He blamed all but two of the sinkings on the collapse of a flat metal "trim vane," that serves as a prow for the vehicle during amphibious operations. He said the device was being modified in hopes tests could resume in a few weeks.

He said the Army ordered the suspension out of concern for the safety of its personnel, but added, "If war broke out tomorrow, we'd probably authorize it."

Dingell's staff also showed a videotape depicting the Bradley's problems in entering and exiting banks with 40 percent to 50 percent slopes, reaching a maximum speed of 4.5 mph in water and turning in water.

In an exercise at Vicksburg, Miss., Dingell said water poured in a rear door of the vehicle, so troops bought caulking at a local hardware store to fix the problem. "This is going to be under enemy fire," Dingell said. Ambrose said he was not aware of the incident.

The latest sinking occurred April 6, when a trim vane collapsed during an exercise in Fort Benning, Ga. A week later, the Army suspended tests.

Burton said the Bradley as built now provides little or no protection against anti-tank rounds.

"If this vehicle is used to fight the enemy, there are going to be a awful lot of casualties," he said.

Burton said he urged modifications in 1984 that the Army is just now considering. One approach, apparently favored by the Army, involves adding armor to prevent fire from penetrating the hull.

The other involves flak curtains inside the vehicle and moving fuel and ammunition to external compartments. Burton favors the latter approach, but the Army said it would take 42 months to install.

Reagan quote on price rise is corrected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan in a misstatement, said Friday that energy costs were not a factor in rising consumer prices, which he blamed on "fringe items like toothpaste and Kleenex."

The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index showed that gasoline prices rose 2.3 percent in March as overall consumer prices rose 0.4 percent.

Reagan was asked during a plenary session in the Oval Office whether he was concerned about the increase.

"I'm kind of counting on those authorities that have been saying that this is a kind of temporary thing," Reagan replied. "It happens to be that it is not in main items — the increase in inflation has been in sort of fringe items like toothpaste and Kleenex and things of that kind. So I'm hopeful that it does not mean there is any change in our economy."

When a reporter suggested that higher oil prices were a factor, Reagan replied, "That's been relatively stable. That's not a contributing factor this time."

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater later told reporters that Reagan did, in fact, know that energy prices were a major factor in higher inflation.

Six reporters to see Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will be interviewed by six reporters for 15 minutes in the Oval Office on Tuesday as part of a White House campaign to increase the president's contact with the media.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater pledged Friday that more such sessions would be held in the future.

Fitzwater said the president did not plan to hold a formal, broadcast conference in April, but that other types of meetings with the media were under consideration.

"We're looking for alternative ways to provide access to the president, and we are scheduling a number of things over the months ahead — press conferences, individual interviews, trip press conferences," Fitzwater said.

Weinberger blasts Soviet spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet espionage campaigns cannot be excused by suggesting the United States does the same, faking because American society has never sanctioned the type of "anything goes" attitude embraced by the Russians, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said Friday.

Weinberger, addressing the Society of American Military Engineers in San Francisco, also said the United States and its allies cannot ensure freedom and peace without maintaining a realistic view of Soviet behavior.

"This argument ignores the enormous difference between the nature of each side's intelligence activities, which reflect the fundamental differences that separate our two systems. For example, given our democratic government of checks and balances, our intelligence activities could never approach the scale of the 'anything goes' Soviet operation, and properly so."

"As a democratic people, we demand that our nation's action be consistent with our values. Our ends — no matter how noble — do not justify resort to any means to achieve them," Weinberger said.

The need to maintain military strength, although expensive, is essential in the world of today, Weinberger said. While the United States and Soviet Union have made progress toward reaching a nuclear arms control pact, any such agreement "will increase, not decrease, the importance of and the need for our conventional forces."

defendants to notify the prosecution of their intent "to introduce expert testimony relating to a mental disease or defect or any other mental condition of the defendant bearing on the issue of his guilt."

Such a notice must be filed along with other pre-trial motions.

Randall Turk, one of Deaver's defense attorneys, declined to comment, saying the notice was under court review.

Deaver is charged in a five-count indictment with giving false answers under oath when he testified before a House subcommittee and a federal grand jury that investigated his lobbying business for possible ethical violations.

Expert may take stand for Deaver's defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — An expert witness may testify for the defense at Michael K. Deaver's perjury trial about the former presidential aide's psychological state when he gave grand jury and congressional testimony.

Deaver's "Notice of Intention to Introduce Expert Testimony" was filed in federal court earlier this week.

The notice, filed the same day the defense submitted its pre-trial motions, was placed under seal by U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson at the request of Deaver's attorneys.

It apparently was filed under a rule of criminal procedure requiring defendants to notify the prosecution of their intent "to introduce expert testimony relating to a mental disease or defect or any other mental condition of the defendant bearing on the issue of his guilt."

Such a notice must be filed along with other pre-trial motions.

Randall Turk, one of Deaver's defense attorneys, declined to comment, saying the notice was under court review.

Deaver is charged in a five-count indictment with giving false answers under oath when he testified before a House subcommittee and a federal grand jury that investigated his lobbying business for possible ethical violations.

The trial is scheduled to begin June 8.

Deaver, former White House deputy chief of staff, is accused of lying to the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee by failing to fully disclose his efforts to arrange a meeting between a South Korean official and President Reagan.

Suspect in Florida mall rampage faces 6 murder charges

PALM BAY, Fla. (AP) — A rambling, incoherent man who neighbors said loved guns and hated children was charged with six counts of murder Friday after a shooting rampage at two neighborhood shopping centers.

William Bryan Cruse, 59, who was captured by police Friday morning after he broke off negotiations, apparently began his shooting spree after two children raced across his lawn, neighbors said.

In addition to those killed, 14 people were injured and several were held hostage in a wild night which eventually involved 200 police officers from Palm Bay and surrounding communities. Police said the suspect fired about 150 rounds.

Cruse was charged Friday with six counts of first-degree murder, 10 of attempted first-degree murder and multiple other counts, including kidnapping, said Palm Bay Police Chief Charles Simmons.

"We're trying to find out what brought it about," said Simmons. "At this time we don't know." Two civilians were detained during the evening. One who exchanged gunfire with the suspect was released, police said, and the other, who was wearing a badge, police hat and a revolver in a shoulder holster, was taken to a mental facility. Neither man was identified.

WILLIAM B. CRUSE
Loved guns, hated children

Cruse, who had no criminal record in Florida, appeared Friday before Brevard County Judge Harry Stein for a brief hearing.

Thin, ashen-faced and wearing a brown prison uniform, Cruse briefly answered questions about his finances. "I had a car," Cruse said. "I don't know what happened to it." Stein found him indigent and appointed a public defender, Valerie Brown, to represent him. She then objected to a statement signed by Cruse which allowed him to be interrogated without counsel present.

Stein did not rule on the objection, and set Cruse's next appearance for May 15 in Titusville, the county seat. Neighbors Euel Grant, 38, and Detrick Suter, 14, said Cruse came out of his house Thursday yelling and firing a gun after children crossed his lawn. Teen-ager John Rich was hit by a shot but not seriously injured, they said.

"All of a sudden I heard Cruse screaming and saw him drive away," said another neighbor, Marguerite Hall. Friday morning police took Cruse barefoot to the scene of the shooting and apparently interrogated him, then took him to the jail.

Witnesses said Cruse fired wildly at anyone in his path as he crossed from one shopping center into another Thursday night, shooting children and firing down at wounded victims. Gunfire killed the first two police officers on the scene.

As the rampage began, police reports of the number killed ranged up to 12 before an accurate count could be made. The area around the Winn Dixie supermarket, where Cruse was captured, was roped off Friday. Cars, many with bullet holes, remained as they had been parked when the shooting broke out—and the front of the supermarket was pocked with bullet holes.

SWAT teams stormed the store after issuing tear gas and a "flash bang" percussion device into the store. Police said a 22-caliber rifle, a bag of ammunition and an apparently unused pistol were seized. Earlier reports had said the gunman had two rifles.

Officers moved in following hours of negotiations. "He went from melancholy to fits of rage," Simmons said, adding that Cruse "was incoherent, rambling, (and) talked about getting away."

Simmons identified the slain officers as Ronald Ridgley Grogan, 27, and Gerald Douglas Johnson, 28. Cruse shot through the officers' patrol car window eight times. Simmons said, killing one. The second officer exchanged gunfire with Cruse, and was shot while reloading.

Also killed were Nbbi Abdul Alhaneid and Emad, Muhammad Al-Juwakly, both of Kuwait, along with Lester Watson and Ruth Green, Simmons said. Police did not know their home towns.

Ten others were hit by gunfire, and four people suffered other injuries in the panic and confusion. Two were in critical condition Friday, two in serious condition, three fair and two satisfactory. The other five, including one with a gunshot wound, had been treated and released.

Witnesses said Cruse shot one older couple just leaving the Public supermarket at the first center. Jodie Pearson, a 16-year-old checkout girl at Public, said she was shot and killed two dogs in his path.

The gunman then crossed the street in his car to a second shopping center, where he fired at pedestrians before entering the Winn Dixie store.

As many as 100 people were in the Winn Dixie when the gunman burst in, but most ran out. Finally Cruse held only three hostages, releasing two women after saying "he didn't want to hurt any more women," said police spokeswoman Louise Brown. The third hostage, a man, later escaped or was released.

When police learned that some store employees were hiding in a cooler in the back of the store, they decided to move in before they were discovered.

After firing tear gas and the flash device into the store, about 200 officers, many of them from SWAT teams from across Central Florida, charged the building.

Utility office shooting leaves 2 hurt, 1 dead

ATLANTA (AP) — A disgruntled employee walked into a crowded office at Georgia Power Co.'s downtown Atlanta headquarters Friday, shot and wounded two of his supervisors, then sat at her desk and killed herself.

Mozella Dansby, 31, had been upset because she did not get a promotion, company officials and police said. She had submitted her resignation earlier this week, officials said.

Before killing herself, Ms. Dansby shot and wounded David Phillips, 33, her immediate supervisor, and John David English, 58, the utility's payroll manager, police said.

Len Sturdivant, who said he was in a cubicle adjacent to Ms. Dansby's, said he heard Phillips shout, "No, don't do that," and then heard shots. No one else was wounded, police said, although there were as many as 100 people on the floor at the time.

Ms. Dansby, an accounting clerk in the company's payroll department, bought the .38-caliber handgun Thursday, police spokeswoman Marion Lee said.

She said Ms. Dansby's husband told police his wife seemed in good spirits before leaving for work Friday morning and had said nothing to indicate she was contemplating suicide.

Dwight Dansby said his wife had not worked Thursday, but had looked for a new job. She came home optimistic about her chances, he said.

Minister given support

DALLAS (AP) — Church leaders denounced racism and rallied Friday in support of a minister whose wife attacked earlier this week following his outspoken sermons on civil rights. But police discounted any links between the attack and white supremacist groups.

Margaret Rayley, wife of Methodist minister Dr. Walker Rayley, remained unconscious and in critical condition Friday, hospital officials said.

Mrs. Rayley, 38, an organist and harpsichord player, was found unconscious by her husband early Wednesday after he returned home from doing research at the library of Southern Methodist University. She had apparently been choked with a thin cord or wire.

A series of anonymous death threats sent to the minister are their prime lead, police say, but they have found no link to white supremacist groups. Rayley, pastor of First United Methodist Church, had said earlier he believed racist groups made the threats.

What's what

FIRST, A CHURCH

In 1880 something happened in the Montana mining town of Wickes that had never before happened in any Montana town — the locals opened a church before they opened a saloon. What this did for Wickes is clear by everything you've ever heard about the place.

When telling a lie, a man tends to do some bit of stage business with his hands. Touch his nose, stroke his chin, rub his cheek, scratch his eyebrow, cover part of his mouth, or maybe pick lint off his jacket. So say the researchers. Seems to me a child does that, too, sort of, swinging on a gate, rolling the eyes, wagging the head from shoulder to shoulder, telling about the gorilla that came to visit last night.

HOUSE PLANTS

People without much money take better care of their house plants than people with a whole lot of money. Surveytakers found out how many house plants died each season in a given number of homes, then cross-checked the family incomes. and other people. In that order, Comes up because a client asks if anybody ever dies of a human bite. Medical records show it happens, dangerous sex stimulants isn't the though rarely. Infection. The item is they used to...

No experienced public speaker wants a long flattering introduction. It freezes up the audience. They get hostile. Some toastmasters don't know any better, though. So professional speakers quickly learn to counter the flowery intro with some disarming opening. Such as: "My mother might've believed all that..." Or whatever.

BITES

Most common animal bites inflicted upon people are by dogs, cats

A preacher told me this: People, however honorable in their faith, tend to have the common weakness of the inability to see the difference between self-interest and Divine Will.

Was a time in Rumania when a man had to buy an official permit from the government to grow a beard.

Actress wins support in AIDS fight from Japanese minister

TOKYO (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor, fighting Japan as part of her crusade against AIDS, won a pledge of support Friday from Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone.

The Hollywood star paid a 15-minute courtesy call on the prime minister, and he promised to ask Japanese companies to cooperate with her movement to combat the deadly disease, his office reported.

Miss Taylor heads a foundation aimed at eradicating acquired immune deficiency syndrome. She arrived in Japan on Wednesday to solicit donations.

Cycle racer improving from effects of wound

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Bicycle racer Greg LeMond's condition has been raised to good as he continues to recover from a gunshot wound suffered in a hunting accident.

LeMond, 25, was accidentally shot by his brother-in-law from about 150 feet away on Monday while hunting turkeys on his uncle's ranch.

"His backside looks like a pattern like when you shoot a shotgun at a target. It covers his whole backside," said LeMond's father, Bob. "It was a wide pattern. If it was any closer, he would have had fatal problems."

The elder LeMond, of Reno, Nev., told reporters Thursday that his son will certainly race bicycles again.

Elizabeth Taylor, Prime Minister Nakasone laugh after hand-holding drew comments but he has given up bunting in favor of golf and fly fishing.

"This accident scared him, and he's been in so much pain," the father said. "Greg thought he was going to die."

The racer, who previously had been listed in fair condition, will have to forget about defending his Tour de France championship in July, his father said. LeMond, who last year became the first American to win the race, would have to begin training immediately to be prepared properly for that 23-day, 2,500-mile Tour de France.

Deputy Chief Bill Allen of the Los Angeles Facilities Management department said no one is allowed in the tunnels below 11:30 p.m. and a.m. under a curfew order covering the county-mall-area in the Civic Center area.

The protest Thursday was peaceful. Asner, former president of the Screen Actors Guild and seven-time Emmy award winner, is best known for his television roles in "Lou Grant" and "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." He has been active in many political causes over the years.

Kohl cut his rolls into several pieces and munched them for 20 minutes each before spooning down the milk, it said.

Kohl otherwise limited himself to herb tea and water.

The 57-year-old chancellor will resume work in Bonn on Monday.

Romney observes 80th birthday with benefit

NEW YORK (AP) — George Romney, former auto executive, Michigan governor, presidential contender and Cabinet member, celebrated his 80th birthday at a black-tie benefit.

The party Thursday featured a display of a 1962 Rambler, which Romney merchandized as head of American Motors, and a recitation of his achievements by Ralph Edwards, host of the "This Is Your Life" television shows.

It raised $250,000 for VOLUNTEER: The National Center, an organization for volunteerism based in Arlington, Va., said Cindy Vizca, a spokeswoman for the group. Romney founded the organization and is its chairman.

Some 550 people attended the party for Romney, who led American Motors from 1954 to 1962, when he left to become governor of Michigan. He ran for president in 1968, and served as secretary of Housing and Urban Development in the early part of the Nixon administration.

Asner joins in demand for shelter in tunnels

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Ed Asner and 40 others demonstrated outside the downtown Music Center to demand that underground pedestrian tunnels be kept open at night for the homeless to sleep in.

Liquids, 3 rolls a day trim 14 pounds off Kohl

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl shed 14 pounds during his annual slimming cure in Austria, limiting his diet to liquids and three rolls per day, the newspaper Bild said Friday.

The mass-circulation newspaper, in a front-page report, said the 6-foot, 5-inch Kohl, known for his love of hearty food, is down to 264 pounds.

During his annual visit to the Austrian retreat of Bad Hofgastein, which began early last week, he followed a strict diet of three rolls a day washed down with teaspoonfuls of milk. Bild reported.

Iacocca highest paid executive in '86

NEW YORK (AP) — Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee A. Iacocca's $20.5 million in salary, stock options and bonuses made him by far the nation's highest paid executive last year, according to an annual Business Week survey.

Paul Fireman, chairman of shoe-maker Reebok International Ltd., was second on the survey of executive compensation with $13.1 million in total earnings, the magazine said in its May 4 edition, released Tuesday.

Victor Posner, the financier who held the top spot in 1985, placed third with $4.1 million in salary and bonuses from one of his holding companies, DWG Corp. Coincidentally, DWG reported Thursday that it lost $2.3 million in 1986 on revenue of $1.1 billion.

Much of Iacocca's 1986 compensation came from a lump-sum payment of Chrysler stock and from the exercise of stock options he had accumulated over his seven-year tenure as head of the nation's No. 3 automaker.

After being elected Chrysler's chairman in September 1979 when the company was near bankruptcy, Iacocca worked one year for a token salary. He also received a variety of stock options and incentives that proved valuable once Chrysler recovered.

Business Week, which compiled its survey with Standard & Poor's Compustat Services Inc., said that among the 317 companies studied, the average salary and bonus for the chief executives jumped 17.9 percent last year... to $229,897.

That was nearly double the 9 percent average increase in 1985, even after excluding the total of $22 million in one-year bonus payments to Iacocca and Fireman, it said.

Chief executives' total average pay climbed 29 percent last year to $1.2 million, the magazine said. The increase included a 56 percent rise in long-term incentive compensation, such as stock options.

Most managers and "run-of-the-mill executives" at the 317 companies received raises of less than 6 percent last year, the magazine added.

Here are the seven other highest paid executives in 1986, followed by their total compensation:

- John J. Nevin, chairman of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., $6.36 million.
- Charles E. Ezley Jr., chairman of MCB Corp., $6.20 million.
- Sidney J. Shelnberg, president of MCA Inc., $6.08 million.
- Maurice R. Greenberg, president of American International Group Inc., $4.60 million.
- Donald E. Petersen, chairman of Ford Motor Co., $4.34 million.
- Rand V. Araskog, chairman of ITT Corp., $4.26 million.
- Alan C. Greenberg, chairman of Bear Stearns Cos., $4.05 million.

30,000 say farewell to beluga whale pair

APPLE VALLEY, Minn. (AP) — More than 30,000 people, 10 times the norm, jammed the Minnesota Zoo when it threw open its doors for a final appearance by beluga whales Big Mouth and Little Girl.

"Admission was free and visiting hours extended Thursday so residents could say goodbye to the whales, which have entertained zoo-goers for a decade."

The two belugas will be shipped Sunday to Sea World in San Diego, where Big Mouth, a 14-year-old male, will be treated for a bone infection that is expected to be fatal. Sea World has better facilities for treating Big Mouth, zoo officials said.

"Little Girl, 12, is going along because zoo officials fear that a separate would be too traumatic for her. In San Diego, if worst comes to worst, she will have the opportunity to find another mate."

More than 32,000 people visited the zoo Thursday, said Lucinda Bee, general manager of admissions and visitor service. Normal attendance on a Thursday is between 2,500 and 3,000, and the turnout was a record, zoo officials said.

Children carried signs reading "Goodbye Big Mouth" and "Get Well Soon." They also lined up to sign a large cardboard get-well card.

"This is sad," said Sandra Spigner of Woodbury. "It's real emotional. It's like losing a family member."

For Becky Hendrickson, who watched Big Mouth and Little Girl with her year-old daughter, it was the second time in a week that she and her family had come out to say goodbye.

"It's not the same without them," she said. "They're special. They seem so personable; they're just happy that you'd come out and watch them swim."

Big Mouth and Little Girl will not be fed Saturday to prevent motion sickness, said Ron Tilson, the zoo's director of biological programs.

The 1,775-pound whales will be loaded by crane into water-filled tanks on the back of a flatbed truck Sunday morning, and will be sent to San Diego on a chartered, specially designed Boeing 727.

Blast injures 16 Americans aboard bus

PIRAEUS, Greece (AP) — A road-side bomb exploded Friday, spraying a military bus with shrapnel and debris that wounded at least 16 Americans en route to a U.S. Air Force base and two Greeks, police and the U.S. Embassy said.

An embassy statement said 12 of the Americans were military personnel and the four others civilians, and the two of the Americans remained hospitalized while the others were treated for minor injuries and released.

But the Pentagon said late Friday 5:10 p.m. near the central market in

The Army's count of injuries had climbed to 18 Americans, with two still hospitalized and one of them in serious condition. The reason for the discrepancy in numbers was not immediately clear.

The bomb, detonated by remote control, blew a three-foot hole in a stone wall beside the road and smashed the windows of the Greek military bus. The vehicle careened off the road into a tree.

No group claimed responsibility? Police said the bomb exploded at 4:30 p.m. near the central market in Piraeus, the seaport for Athens. The bus was en route to a U.S. Air Force base in the Athens suburb of Glyfada on a regularly scheduled run, carrying both Greek and American personnel.

Officers said the bomb was placed on a wall that runs along a paved dry river bed and was set off from the other end of a wire 300 yards long. Windows were shattered in a five-story plastics factory across four-lane Kifissou Avenue, which connects Piraeus and Athens. Police said traffic was light at the time but a car was also hit.

The drivers of the military bus and the car were also injured. Both are Greeks.

"It was a very powerful bomb that was detonated by a length of wire running across the bottom of the cement river bed," a police officer said.

The explosion was sudden and very strong. There was a loud blast and smoke everywhere. The windows on my car broke, the hood caved in and I was trapped in the car," said 37-year-old Constantinos Pitaras.

Police, crowd clash

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Police briefly clashed with about 10,000 people and used truncheons to control a crowd Friday in ethnically tense Kosovo province, Yugoslav media said.

The incident occurred when thousands of people gathered outside the Hall of Culture in Kosovo Polje. There Slobodan Milosevic, the Serbian Communist Party chief, was listening to complaints about alleged harassment of minorities in Kosovo, Yugoslav Television reported.

Witnesses said about 300 delegates of the crowd of Serbs and Montenegrins were admitted to the hall to talk to Milosevic, but between 10,000 and 15,000 people were present at the talks.

The clash started at about 8:30 p.m. half an hour after Milosevic began to listen to the complaints, when police trying to control the crowd pushed people away from the entrance and across the street, said eyewitnesses.

The national news agency Tanjug said "a number of citizens threw stones at police."

Witnesses said police used truncheons during the clash, which lasted about 10 minutes, but there were no reports of serious injuries.

Workers enter pleas in fire case

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Three hotel employees pleaded guilty Friday to federal charges of setting the New Year's Eve fire that killed 97 people at the Dupont Plaza, and two of them pleaded guilty to murder counts.

The three changed their arson pleas from innocent as part of a plea bargain with federal prosecutors. The trial had been scheduled to begin Monday in U.S. District Court. Sentencing was set for June 22.

Hector Escudero Aponte, a 35-year-old maintenance worker, pleaded guilty to a federal charge of first-degree murder in the death of Secret Service agent Manuel de Jesus Marrero Otero, who was investigating a counterfeit-money case and died in the fire at the beachfront hotel.

The two other defendants are Armando Jimenez Rivera, 29, a bartender's assistant, and Jose Francisco Rivera Lopez, 40, a bartender.

Immediately after the federal court hearing, Jimenez Rivera was taken to Puerto Rico Superior Court, where the three face charges of first-degree murder, arson and conspiracy.

Jimenez Rivera pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of second-degree murder, arson and conspiracy. Second-degree murder carries a prison sentence of 12 to 30 years.

The trial for Rivera Lopez and Escudero Aponte in Superior Court is scheduled to begin Aug. 24.

U.S. Attorney Daniel Lopez Romo, who filed the murder charge against Escudero Aponte at Friday's hearing, said he would not seek the death penalty. The maximum sentence for federal arson charges is life in prison or death.

He said they recommended Escudero Aponte be given concurrent terms — up to life — and that Jimenez Rivera and Rivera Lopez be sentenced to 24 and 25 years respectively. Judge Jose A. Fuste, who is not bound by the recommendations, agreed to a pretrial request that the terms of the plea agreement be sealed.

The three defendants were charged with arson that interfered with interstate commerce.

Retaliatory raids go on in Sri Lanka

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Helicopter gunships attacked Tamil areas on Friday in the third straight day of retaliatory raids designed to destroy the strongholds of rebels blamed for this week's massive car bombing.

The government said the helicopters strafed Tamil bunkers and weapons depots in the Jaffna Peninsula at the northern tip of the island. But a Tamil rebel group said most of the casualties were civilians, including 15 children who were killed and 50 who were injured when the air force attacked their school in Jaffna city.

The reports could not be verified, because the government has cut off communications with the north.

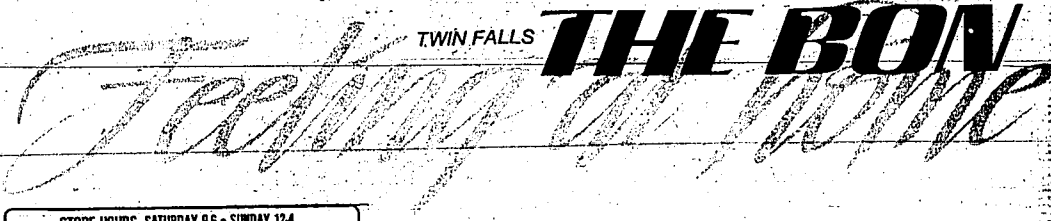

National Security Minister Lalith Athulathmudali said the raids would continue until northern hideouts of two Tamil extremist groups blamed for massacring Sinhalese are eliminated.

Sinhalese, the biggest ethnic group in this island nation on the south coast of India, control most top government posts. Militant Tamils, who say the Sinhalese discriminate against their people, are seeking independence or autonomy.

Government spokesman Tilak Ranasinghe, who reported the air force attack in Jaffna, said he had no casualty figures.

But a rebel group, the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, said in a statement issued at their exile headquarters in southern India that probably more than 100 people, most of them civilians, were killed in Friday's raids, including those in the school in Jaffna.

In parliament Friday, Prime Minister Ranasinghe Premadasa pledged the government would be unrelenting in its drive against Tamil militants.

State gives over $206,000 to area for tourism

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

POCATELLO. — Travel-oriented groups will spend more than $206,000 in state money to beckon tourists and conventioners to the southern Idaho during the next year.

The Idaho Travel Council Thursday gave more than one-quarter of the $797,532 distributed statewide to non-profit organizations in the Magic and Wood-River valleys.

However, despite record amounts of money from the state's 2 percent tax on hotel rooms and campground spaces, ITC officials said Idaho is falling behind other states in tourism spending.

"We need to look for additional funding if we are to compete with 11 other Western states," said ITC Chairman Mike Smith, who operates Three Rivers Resort at Kootenai.

The Idaho Travel Council has $1.8 million to spend in the year beginning May 1, about half used for promotions at the state level and the rest given to groups in six regions of the state.

The non-profit groups use the money for advertising campaigns, convention marketing, brochures and other types of promotions.

In Region IV, covering the Magic and Wood-River valleys, the money will pay for projects ranging from ready-to-TV film of the Burley Boat Regatta to targeted advertising in the Sall Lake City market.

Six area groups received $208,543 in state money.

Magicaland Regional Travel Committee, which represents the entire area — $107,500.

most of it in advertising. The grant sets aside $60,000 for television ads in the Sall Lake City market this spring and late in the summer. The committee will continue to display brochures at the Perry Visitor Center just inside Utah on Interstate 84 and will pay for a toll-free number for tourism information. The phone will be relocated from the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce to the offices of the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce — $36,000 for promotion of winter activities. The grant includes image advertising, hosting of writer trips, activities connected with the Society of American Travel Writers Convention in Sun Valley in June, and other promotions.

Wood River Lodging Association — $32,628 for promotion of summer activities in the Wood River Valley, including many similar activities to the Sun Valley-Ketchum chamber.

Both Wood River and Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber applications were part of a $265,000 program that matched private funds from businesses, chamber money and rebates on sales from American Express Co. with state cash, said Wendy Jones, executive for the chamber. The Sun Valley area generates two-thirds of the tourism taxes in the southeastern region, according to state statistics.

Burley Area Chamber of Commerce — $20,500 primarily for production of a professional film about the annual Burley Boat Regatta, a series of powerboat races on the Snake River.

Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce — $7,750 for a Magic Valley

Hosting Program designed to help business people serve travelers better and understand the impact of tourism on the local economy.

Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association — $1,337 for magazine advertising, slide program and attendance at travel shows. The grant is a portion of one requested in several other regions.

Grants in other regions of the state fell between a low of $500 given to the Old Fort Boise Historical Society in Parma for a brochure and the high of $145,372 to the Southern Travel Association for a list of activities promoting both recreation and business travel.

The northern Panhandle, nicknamed Big Water Mountainland, received $118,710. Among the programs in the Coeur d'Alene area —

Salmonella cases traced to dairy antibiotics

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS. — There was a nearly five-fold increase in the number of human salmonella cases in Los Angeles County, Calif., in 1985 and the epidemic strain came from hamburger traced to dairy cows, according to a recent study reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

The salmonella was resistant to the antibiotic chloramphenicol which was being used at the dairies to promote growth even though it has been banned by the Food and Drug Administration.

The study again raises the issue of the effects of antibiotic use in animals and humans, not to mention the illegal use of some antibiotics in animals.

"We conclude that food animals are a major source of antimicrobial resistant salmonella infections in humans and that these infections are associated with antimicrobial use on farms," the study said.

Idaho cattle are a source of meat for Los Angeles County but Dr. Stephen Waterman, one of the authors of the study, declined to say whether any of the meat came from here. He said the dairies and fast food restaurants involved have been informed of study results. Since confidentiality was a condition of participating in the study, the names of the dairies and restaurants were not available either.

The methods employed by the medical detectives included sampling fat from Idaho beef in California slaughterhouses.

Idaho farmers, feed industry workers, doctors and veterinarians were divided on whether the use of antibiotics presented a danger to humans. Few were convinced that the problem in Los Angeles County could be traced to problems with Idaho beef.

The authors studied 45 patients with the epidemic strain and 89 controls, people who were not sick but were useful for purposes of comparison. Salmonellosis, the disease, is characterized by fever, malaise and intestinal disorders.

The number of salmonella Newport strains isolated from humans at the Los Angeles County Public Health Laboratory rose from 69 in 1984 to 288 in 1985, the study said. Two patients from whom a chloramphenicol-resistant strain were isolated.

The investigators looked at the sources of hamburger and the circumstances of its consumption. Twenty percent of the patients and three percent of the controls ate hamburgers from one producer, the study said.

More than half the patients took an antibiotic before eating a hamburger compared to eight percent of the controls. Fifteen percent of 41 patients had eaten raw meat (salmonella is killed by thorough cooking) compared to three percent of controls.

and this is checked by FDA.

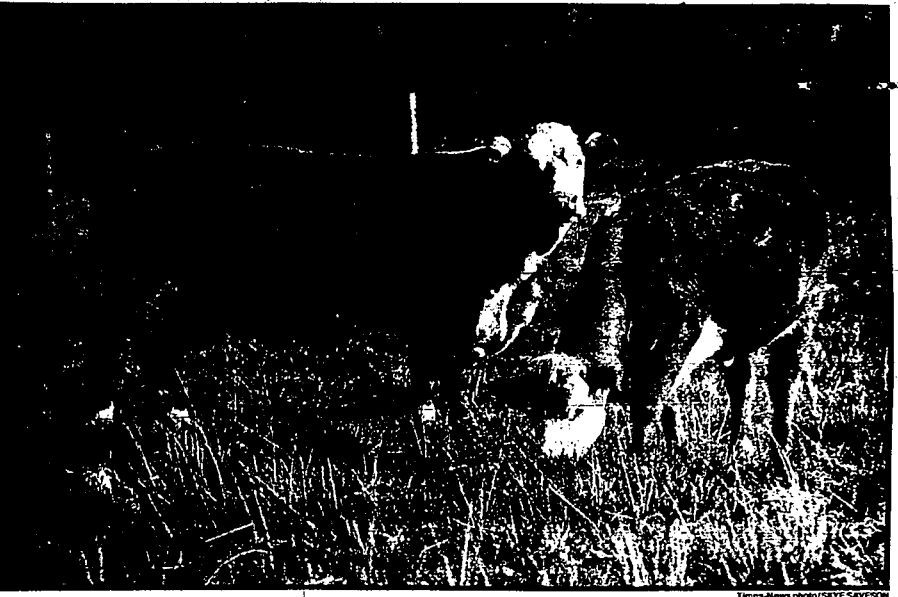

Asked what he thought of the study in California he said, "You do get the oddball case now and then. William W. Hoopes, who makes 1,500 pigs southwest of Twin Falls, says he attended a seminar on the use of antibiotics in animal feed and his impression was that some of the studies were flawed."

"The main thing I have seen is as long as you follow the recommended directions, antibiotics are OK," Loughmiller said.

The antibiotics Aureomycin, Tylan and Teramycin are used on pigs at low levels as growth promoters at the rate of 10 grams per ton, he said. Antibiotics are also used during stress periods such as when seasons change and before pigs go to market, Loughmiller said. Another use is to combat diarrhea in younger pigs.

"Ten years ago we used a lot more. Today vaccines given in the first two weeks of life eliminate (many disease) problems in the hog industry," Loughmiller said.

He says he doesn't worry about organisms that produce diseases in pigs becoming resistant to treatment because of their widespread use of antibiotics. "There is enough variety of antibiotics and we don't use them — long enough — to build resistance," he said.

Antibiotics are used both to promote growth in animals and to cure disease or prevent it during times of stress.

Some scientists believe widespread use of antibiotics leads to microbes becoming resistant to them. In addition to being growth promoters, antibiotics are used in animals to cure disease and prevent it during times of stress.

The question of whether antibiotics are being overused in animal feed is clearcut to people in the feed business and farmers. And the answer is no.

The use of antibiotics in feed has not increased, said Jerry Murphy, a nutritionist at Rangen Feed in Buhl. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is making it harder to use anything that can leave a residue in meat, he said. Rangen doesn't routinely add antibiotics to feed, Murphy said.

"We don't put it in unless we need that particular medication. A lot of times we work with the veterinarian," he said.

The feed industry has strict controls on what can and cannot be put in pigs. In fact, antibiotics are used on pigs at low levels as growth promoters at the rate of 10 grams per ton, he said. Antibiotics are also used during stress periods such as when seasons change and before pigs go to market, Loughmiller said. Another use is to combat diarrhea in younger pigs.

"Ten years ago we used a lot more. Today vaccines given in the first two weeks of life eliminate (many disease) problems in the hog industry," Loughmiller said.

Dr. James S. Gafford, a Twin Falls internist, thinks antibiotics may be overused as a growth promoter but is justified as a treatment for animal diseases.

"There is an increase in the number of allergies to antibiotics and he attributes this to the indiscriminate use of antibiotics in the 1940s. Years ago people who had a cold could routinely ask for a penicillin shot," he said.

Gafford said the simplest way to avoid salmonella is to cook meat well. He said there has been no increase in the number of salmonella cases in his practice.

State Veterinarian Dr. W.G. Nelson said he expects to see more regulation of antibiotic use in animals. Nelson said he is not convinced by the New England Journal article that the salmonella problem in Los Angeles can be traced to Idaho but he said anytime an article like this comes out it will have an effect on what can and cannot be put

Proposal to annex riverfront properties raises concerns

By LAURA BELLEGAENTE
Times-News correspondent

OLENNS FERRY. — Proposed annexation of riverfront properties was the primary concern of residents who attended a recent Glenns Ferry City Council meeting.

The varied properties include land which is platted, agricultural areas, and R-1 residential areas.

Some residents whose property is already within the city limits were concerned about a suggested greenbelt along the river which would include portions of their property.

Mayor Dayle Messery assured the concerned individuals that each property would be considered under the state laws governing annexation, including size (under 5 acres), whether surrounding properties are in the city or not, and city services which the property is receiving.

Residents Claude Griggs and Pat Walker told the council that they wanted annexation attempts would be firmly resisted by every legal means. They also requested individual notification of any meetings or hearings that would affect annexation, and this was promised to them by the mayor.

Bob Uptmor summarized the concerns, with two points: trash and upkeep problems created by recreation use along the river, and the potential for a "shantytown" of minimal recreation homes or recreational vehicles creating an eyesore in the proposed recreational zone.

Messery reminded everyone that no annexation can take place until the new zoning plan is completed and adopted so that new areas included in the city will be properly zoned.

An unsuccessful attempt to notify Bob Echols, owner of two derelict properties at 102 and 109 E. Harrison, opened the way for the city to

Gooding prosecutor charges Hagerman man with murder

By The Times-News

GOODING. — Gooding County Prosecutor Lynn R. Nelson Friday charged Ronald L. Stigall of Hagerman with the first-degree murder of Wilbert Loren Groves, 55.

The charge was in connection with an incident that may have begun in Hagerman, Boise police said Thursday. The Groves, reported to be Stigall's grandfather, was apparently beaten several times during a 110-mile drive from Hagerman to Boise.

Preliminary autopsy reports place the time of death between 6:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Thursday, said Lynn Bowerman, chief deputy for the Ada County Sheriff's office. The deputy said Groves died from multiple blows to the head.

Police found Groves' body at 4 a.m. Thursday. The body was in a pickup camper owned by Groves and parked by the Meadows Apartments in Boise.

The 22-year-old Stigall was arrested at 5 p.m. when he returned to the camper. Boise police, acting on a tip, had the camper under surveillance. Stigall was arrested without incident.

The Gooding County charges came at the conclusion of investigations by Gooding County Sheriff's office, the Elmore County Sheriff's office and the Boise City Police Department. Gooding County filed charges because the incident started in Hagerman, which is in Gooding County.

Stigall is being held in the Ada County Jail without bond. It is not known when he will be transferred to Gooding County.

Wendell sets school levy vote May 19 to fund roof repairs

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL. — The Wendell School Board this week decided to ask voters to approve a $75,000 supplemental levy, then turned to other financial matters and grappled with the problem of declining enrollment.

Roof repair and replacement is urgently needed for schools, but the district's regular budget does not have the estimated $75,000 to pay for it, board members said. The levy election is set for May 19, the same day trustee elections will be held.

School Board Chairman Clayton Pope said the district has waited as long as possible for the roof repairs. This levy, he said, is urgent and is only for the minimal amount of money needed to make immediate repairs.

The Wendell School District is financially solvent. Pope said, but it will not be if roof repairs are neglected and an emergency situation develops.

School Superintendent George Crawford said the roof improvements must be done now to save remodeling expenses from water damage inside the school buildings.

The $75,000 is "strictly" for roof repair, Crawford emphasized. "We're not going to spend it on anything else," he said.

In response to questions about the school's current budget and fund balance, Crawford said sound accounting practices require the school to keep a minimum of 10 to 15 percent of its $2 million annual budget available for cash flow. This cash keeps the school district "in the black" with a positive cash flow so bills can be paid and the district does not have to borrow money, he said.

The fund balance, amounting to $241,566 in the current budget, is less than two months' operating capital, Crawford said. This money must be used only for cash flow purposes, such as regular bills and summer payrolls, he said.

Because of delinquent taxes revenues, much of the fund balance exists on paper but not in cash, he said. The balance is not excess funds, and it cannot be depleted for roof repair, he said.

On the matter of enrollment, Crawford said the number of students attending school had declined 60 students from February of 1986 to February of this year. The Wendell school district next year will lose 2.3 units of funding, amounting to an estimated loss of $65,000.

Because of this drop in funding, Crawford said the school has little choice but to make reductions in the teaching staff.

At the board meeting, trustees accepted the resignations of elementary music teacher Sue Walsh, who is moving from Wendell, and of fifth-grade teacher Lula Mae Correll, who is taking advantage of the district's new early retirement program.

Crawford said the school will not hire replacement teachers for Walsh and Correll, but instead will reassign the remaining elementary school teachers to fill the positions. This will save the district about $40,000.

The reassignments may be tentatively recommended to the trustees at the meeting in May, but probably will not be permanently decided until enrollment counts are available next fall, he said.

This year, the kindergarten has 82 students, the fourth grade has 74 and the sixth grade has 76. Crawford said dividing these groups into classes next year with fewer teachers will require some very difficult decisions.

If the 82 students are divided into three classes, the classes will be too large for ideal academic achievement and, in four classes, they will be too small, he said.

Next year's fifth grade, he said, has the same dilemma. A division into two classes would be on the borderline of being too large, and a division into three classes would be on the borderline of being too small.

"While that (three smaller classes) is very desirable educationally, it is not something we can afford to do," he said.

Crawford said it has not been decided if the elementary school will have a music teacher next year. Also, he said, the junior high school is going to need another half-time teacher because of this year's large sixth grade class moving to the seventh grade.

The elementary school has lost 50 students in the last year, Crawford said, but unfortunately, the loss has been evenly spread throughout the school. As a result, the decision on how to reassign teachers has become a sensitive issue that has drawn some public concern, he said.

Next year, the superintendent said, staff reductions will have to be made from either the kindergarten, the first grade, the fifth grade or seventh grade.

"We don't have the funds to keep small classes in all these areas," he said. "We don't have the solution yet... and we don't know yet how staff assignments will be."

choice but to make reductions in the teaching staff.

At the board meeting, trustees accepted the resignations of elementary music teacher Sue Walsh, who is moving from Wendell, and of fifth-grade teacher Lula Mae Correll, who is taking advantage of the district's new early retirement program.

Crawford said the school will not hire replacement teachers for Walsh and Correll, but instead will reassign the remaining elementary school teachers to fill the positions. This will save the district about $40,000.

The reassignments may be tentatively recommended to the trustees at the meeting in May, but probably will not be permanently decided until enrollment counts are available next fall, he said.

Drivers cited in 2-car accident
 TWIN FALLS — Three citations were issued by state police Friday morning following a two-car accident at the junction of Interstate 84 and Highway 55.
 Police cited Rick Staker, 35, of Rupert for failure to stop after turning off the station onto the westbound off-ramp.
 Staker pulled in front of the station wagon driven by Steven Sullivan, 16, who hit Staker's car on the left side, police say.
 Sullivan was ticketed for failing to purchase insurance and failure to purchase a driver's license. The accident occurred shortly after 8 a.m.

Possibly 5 injured in accident
 TWIN FALLS — The Gooding Sheriff's office and the Idaho State Police responded to an accident possibly involving five injuries near Hagerman Friday night.
 The state police also responded to a one-car rollover about 13 or 14 miles north of the Idaho-Nevada border on Highway 93. Early reports indicated one person was trapped in the rollover and that an ambulance was responding from the Elko Hospital.
 No further details were available at press time Friday. The Gooding County Sheriff's office said it may be Monday before a report is available on the Hagerman-area accident.

Andrus will dedicate motel
 FAIRFIELD — Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus will be in Fairfield Friday morning.
 The grand opening of the Country Inn, a 16-unit motel, represents several years of effort by owners Gene and Ruth Sullivan and the people of Fairfield. It took the combined resources of the state of Idaho, through the Idaho Tourism Development Block Grant program, administered by the Department of Commerce and First Interstate Bank of Gooding, to assist the Sullivans in making the Country Inn a reality.
 The Country Inn will provide 11 new jobs with an annual payroll of approximately $30,000.
 Schedule for the grand opening:
 10 a.m. to noon — Country Inn open for tours.
 Noon — Luncheon: cost $4.25 at the Country Kitchen.
 12:45 p.m. — Dedication by Governor Andrus.
 1 p.m. — Presentation on the Idaho Tourism Industry, Carl Wilgus, administrator, Division of Tourism, Department of Commerce.
 2 to 4 p.m. — Business workshop, Ms. Bobbie Paterson, Boise Tourism and Convention Bureau.

CSI student officers named
 TWIN FALLS — John Peck, Carey, was re-elected president of the Associated Students of the College of Southern Idaho this week.
 He defeated Mike Laybourn, Twin Falls, for the 1987-88 job. Andy O'Crowley, Picoabo, was re-elected vice president over Phil Facer of Malad. Brad Tingey, Carey, and Shelley Green, Jerome, won the two sophomore academic seats, ending out Kristi Haddfield, Twin Falls. Cindy Marshall, Vale, Ore., was elected senator-at-large over Libby Koonitz, Twin Falls, and Guy Hopkins, Rupert.

 Destry Brown, Gooding, was named to the vocational senator seat with write-in ballots.
 Freshmen representatives will be elected during the fall.

3 businesses report burglaries
 TWIN FALLS — Three businesses in Twin Falls were visited by burglars early Thursday morning, police reports showed.
 The Main West Chiropractor Offices at 717 Main W. were broken into between 3 and 5:30 a.m. when owners reported. Officers said the building was entered but it appeared the intruders may have been frightened away by a patrol car or other traffic before they could complete their work.
 Freddie Bar, owner of 727 Main Ave. W., was also alerted sometime between 5:30 and 5:15 a.m., police said.
 The burglars were poorly rewarded for their efforts as only $3 in change was taken.
 At about the same time, someone broke into the Hightest Bar at 157 Washington St. The burglary there occurred between 12:30 a.m. and 4:21 a.m. Owners told police they were missing coins and other change amounting to $150.

Beginning computer class set

Higher-education funds allocated

LEWISTON (AP) — The Idaho Board of Education made lump-sum allocations Friday to the state's four higher-education institutions, for faculty salary increases that should average 3 percent.
 The board also set the fiscal year starting July 1 gives institutions discretion on how they distribute pay raises to faculty and staff.
 The board doled out a total of $130 million, including $101.7 from a legislative appropriation.

The University of Idaho's fiscal 1988 allocation was $50.1 million, a 9.1 percent increase over last year's budget.
 Through the board's funding policy, the UI's base budget has been cut by $585,268, which reflects a drop in enrollment.
 The school was able to receive $78,611 for salary equity. That money, coming from Idaho State University's physical plant allotment. The other allotments were $34.1 million to Boise State, an increase of 10.2 percent; $30.2 million to Idaho State, up 11.5 percent; and $6.3 million to Lewis-Clark State College, up 10.5 percent.

 The board will delay distribution of about $2.8 million. That would include about $2 million for economic development-related research projects and another $800,000 to be used for the improvement of so-called critical academic programs.

Muscat joins Gooding City Council, filling seat vacated by resignation

By JANE BUCKWAY
 Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Jim Muscat was named to the Gooding City Council Monday.
 Muscat replaces 73-year-old veteran councilman Harold Reed, who resigned earlier this month. Reed said he felt no need to leave the position after being cleared of charges he tried to use the city position to make a profit.
 Muscat was sworn in Monday. He has served on the council before, being elected to a two-year position in 1983. But Muscat lost his bid for reelection in 1985 and will face the ballot again this November.
 In appointing Muscat to the eight months remaining in Reed's term, mayor Gene Heller said Muscat was the next highest vote getter in Bank 1985 election, so he had popular support. Heller also said Muscat has council experience and is familiar with some issues facing the city.

Heller thanked Reed for his service on the council, which included helping to secure a federal grant for development of the Gooding Municipal Airport.
 One of the first issues facing Muscat will be the possible city lease or purchase of an unused transmission and swimming pool at the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind.
 The pool is presently being used on a temporary basis for public swimming since the aging Gooding city pool was declared unfit for public use three years ago. Heller said Monday the two facilities are expected to be declared surplus property by the state land board.
 Muscat will help develop a public questionnaire for Gooding residents asking what, if anything, the residents want the council to do about the swimming and recreation facilities at the state school.
 Heller said the questionnaire will also seek public input on a proposed juvenile detention center being studied for development in the now-vacant state-owned tuberculosis hospital.

 The city is also still accepting bids and applications for city attorney. The new "lawyer" will be hired on the position May 31, to work in Billow, Spain.
 The rotating guidance beacon at Gooding Municipal Airport has been dismantled and removed, Heller told the council.
 The beacon was discovered earlier this spring to be on private property, not city-owned land at the airport. The new "lawyer" Heller said the beacon will be left in place there was no lease agreement for it to be on his land or for the city to have access to the beacon.
 Heller said the beacon will be installed in use as a marker beacon for the municipal airport. He said the new placement will be made under the direction of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Plea agreement for robberies struck with man linked to Aryan Nations

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — A man who has been linked to a white supremacist group will plead guilty to armed bank robbery charges in five states under a plea agreement with prosecutors, his attorney said.
 Thomas G. Harrelson, 29, was scheduled to stand trial Monday on charges stemming from a Feb. 19 holdup of the First State Bank. He and two companions were arrested later that day after a chase that ended in northwestern Minnesota.
 Before his capture, Harrelson had been on the FBI's list of its most wanted fugitives. The FBI has linked him to the Aryan Nations, a white supremacist group based in Idaho.

 Under an agreement reached Thursday, Harrelson is to plead guilty to a single armed-robbery charge in connection with the Drayton slippup, said Harrelson's attorney, William Yull of Fargo.
 In addition, he is to plead guilty to a single armed-robbery in Arkansas, Michigan, Minnesota and Illinois as soon as the paperwork is completed, Yull said Friday.
 The U.S. Attorney's office will recommend a 15-year prison term on each of the counts in North Dakota, Arkansas, Michigan and Minnesota, Yull said. Harrelson would have to serve a minimum of five years in prison, the attorney said.

 Sentences in those four states would be served concurrently, according to the plea agreement, Yull said. The sentence on the Illinois charge would be left to the judge, Yull said; the maximum penalty is 25 years.
 The attorney said he would argue for leniency for Harrelson once he had served the mandatory five-year term.
 U.S. District Judge Patrick Conroy must approve the agreement.

 let a contract to board up the buildings and clean trash from the sites. The estimated cost of $3,600 will be billed to Echols, along with taxes which are delinquent on the property. This action comes after more than two years of unsuccessful attempts to secure remedial action from the owner. The clean-up will be completed before summer, the railroad spokesman said.
 In other business, the city completed negotiations with Union Pacific Railroad to continue leasing property which includes the Glenns Ferry Area Rural Health Clinic, and to extend a city lease between Malib

Street and trackside through the old depot site. The city will plant the neglected area to grass to extend the current sidewalk park. The area is often used for community and business activities and is an effort to continue downtown beautification.
 The council held its first reading of proposed Ordinance 378, an agreement with Union Pacific Railroad, which rewords the agreement requiring watchmen stopping and flagging at the crossings if there should be a failure of the crossing signals. The proposed changes also increase the permitted speed of trains through the crossings from 20 to 35 miles-per-hour.

The council voted to declare a moratorium on zoning ordinances for 120 days until the new zoning plan is completed. City Attorney Michael McLoughlin stated that the old zoning ordinance remains in effect until the new plan is adopted. The action is intended to allow sales and transfer of property in the interim period.
 Merchant's Committee member Liz Gluch requested that Main Street between Commercial Avenue and Logan be closed to traffic to allow a sidewalk sale, promotion on July 3. This was taken under consideration by the council.

 Dr. Richard Teske, deputy director of the FDA's Center for Veterinary Medicine in Maryland, said the article is an example of the new information on the subject that needs to be part of the FDA's risk assessment. But he said it is premature to say that the study has changed the agency's thinking on the subject.
 It has been 10 years since the FDA ordered withdrawal of the antibiotic tetracycline for use as an animal growth promoter in doses below therapeutic levels. Congress stopped the withdrawal and ordered more research. Now FDA is awaiting the results of a study of the withdrawal by a panel of outside experts. There is no precise time frame for this to be completed, but the hope is it will be done in months, not years, Teske said.

 "It's a very complex issue with a lot of scientific controversy. It's difficult to reach a consensus among scientists whether there is a hazard," he said.

Defeat leaves Nakasone's future shaky

By ELAINE KURTENBACH
The Associated Press

TOKYO — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's failure to win approval of his proposed sales tax raises the possibility he may be forced from office before his term expires.

The political uncertainty coincides with increased trade friction between the United States and Japan and comes just a few days before Nakasone leaves for a visit to Washington.

Nakasone's ruling Liberal Democratic Party was forced to shelve a proposed 3 percent sales tax Thursday to win lower house approval of a $82 billion budget for fiscal 1987. Since April 1, when fiscal 1987 began, the government has been operating on a provisional 50-day spending plan.

Because the budget contains spending aimed at stimulating Japan's domestic economy and thereby reducing its trade surplus, Nakasone needed it in hand for his trip to Washington on Wednesday for talks aimed at easing trade friction between the two countries.

The Diet, Japan's parliament, had squabbled for months over the tax package, the plan for Nakasone's tax reform and the biggest challenge to his political career.

It would have been the nation's first ever sales tax and part of a package that was intended to be Japan's most sweeping tax system overhaul since 1950.

Public opposition to it was so strong that even many Liberal Democratic Party members pushed for its withdrawal. The move to shelve it was seen as a major party concession and defeat for Nakasone, who had made its passage his top priority and who vowed Thursday to fight on. But the controversy that surrounded the issue could spell an early end to Nakasone's term, which has just six months left.

A Diet member from the Liberal Democratic Party predicted a race to replace Nakasone could start as soon as the prime minister returns from his six-day visit to the United States, the Kyodo News Service reported.

The news agency did not identify the legislator who made the prediction but said he belonged to a party faction headed by former Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe.

If Nakasone is forced to step down, several key party leaders, including Abe, are set to contest the premiership.

While the opposition views the shelving of the sales tax as a victory, the conservative Liberal Democratic Party is certain to keep control of the government it has ruled for 28 years.

Nakasone was granted an unprecedented one-year extension in October of his term as party president and thus prime minister after leading the party to a landslide victory in parliamentary elections last July.

But his approval rating in newspaper polls has plunged from a high of 52 percent to a recent low of 24 percent to 26 percent, due largely to the sales tax issue.

Critics charged the proposal was a blatant contradiction of Nakasone's election pledges and that it would raise taxes for lower-income groups, reduce private consumption and increase business operating costs.

Nakasone said the plan was necessary to cut government deficits and ease the tax burden on middle-class salaried workers.

Some analysts, who spoke on condition of anonymity but are familiar with the situation within the Liberal Democratic Party, say a power struggle is taking shape and that Nakasone is likely to receive the greatest blame for the sales tax debacle.

As a leader of a medium-sized faction within the party, Nakasone has depended on personal popularity to build his political strength, analysts say, but some party members are already speaking of a "post-Nakasone" era.

Commentaries in several local newspapers harshly criticized Nakasone for hanging on to the sales tax proposal so long that meaningful Diet debate on key economic issues was pre-empted.

Even with the tax proposal at least temporarily shelved, Nakasone faces criticism for failing to reduce trade friction and for not controlling the rapid appreciation of the yen against other major currencies, which had led to slumping profits and investment. Unemployment climbed to a record 3 percent in February.

Chernobyl reactors postponed

MOSCOW (AP) — Construction has been stopped until at least the 1990s on two new reactors at the Chernobyl power station, site of the world's worst industrial nuclear accident, the plant manager said Friday.

Mikhail Umanets and other plant officials spoke to a few Western reporters, two days before the first anniversary of the disaster, in a telephone interview arranged by the official press agency Novosti.

An explosion and fire in the Ukrainian plant's No. 4 reactor in the early hours of April 26, 1986, sent a huge, invisible cloud of radiation over much of Europe. The accident eventually worked its way around the world.

The casualty toll, all in the Soviet Union, is at least 31 people dead and 200 stricken with radiation sickness.

Umanets said a decision on whether to proceed with construction of the fifth and sixth reactors has been delayed until the next Soviet five-year plan, which begins in 1991. He did not indicate what stage construction he reached.

The proposed reactors are of the same type as the 1,000-megawatt unit destroyed a year ago.

"They are in the program," Umanets said when asked whether the accident and poisoning of the area caused reconsideration of the expansion plans, which were made in the late 1970s.

"On the other hand," he added, "the decision has been passed to continue the decontamination process in this five-year plan and decide on future construction in the next five-year period."

He disputed criticism in Friday's issue of the Moscow News, a small-circulation weekly aimed primarily at foreigners, which said not enough information about the Chernobyl situation was being released.

It also said Ukrainian officials decided building two more reactors "in the present-day conditions" would be unprofitable.

Andriak Petrovants, chief of the government's atomic energy commission, and other Soviet officials had contended previously there was no reason to halt or scrap construction of the two new units.

They have said repeatedly that the accident was caused entirely by human error and that the cleanup process ensured an eventual return to normal at the power station 80 miles north of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

Chernobyl's three surviving reactors were shut down after the accident for decontamination and inspection of their safety systems.

After some additional safety measures were taken, reactors No. 1 and 2 were returned to normal last fall and are now operating at full capacity. The No. 3 reactor, housed in the same complex as the one destroyed, is expected to go back on line later this year.

A spokesman for the newly created Ministry of Atomic Energy confirmed Friday that similar reactors are being built in Smolensk, Kursk and the Lithuanian city of Ignalina.

Dollar skids but metals, interest rise

NEW YORK—The beleaguered dollar skidded to new lows against the Japanese yen Friday, again triggering a chain reaction in U.S. financial markets that sent stock and bond prices tumbling and interest rates soaring.

Gold and silver prices also climbed, with silver reaching its highest level in nearly three years.

The turmoil was the latest illustration of how investors have become increasingly concerned that the dollar's slump will lead to higher inflation, higher lending rates and, perhaps, an economic recession—all of which are bad news for financial assets such as stocks and bonds.

Some professional money managers and economists said, however, that the market's concern might be overstated.

They said that despite the dollar's decline, the U.S. economy's continued sluggishness, reasonable growth in the money supply and other factors suggest the upturn in inflation and interest rates will be modest, especially if the dollar soon stabilizes.

The Labor Department reported Friday that consumer prices rose 0.4 percent in March, matching the February increase. The increases, although moderate, represented an annual inflation rate of 3.1 percent, well above the target rate of 3 percent set in 1986 when costs were held down by plunging oil prices.

"There's only a whiff of inflation in the market, but there's a tremendous amount of panic—and the two don't mix from the standpoint of an intelligent response to the economic news," said William Gross, managing director of Pacific Investment Management Inc., a money management firm based in Newport Beach, Calif.

Investors are extremely nervous because the tumbling dollar has, at least for now, abruptly altered the environment of stable interest rates and inflation of the past few years.

Investors' fears were exacerbated Friday when the dollar plunged in Tokyo to 139.50 Japanese yen, its lowest level since modern exchange rates were set in the late 1940s.

In response, prices of long-term Treasury bonds skidded nearly 2 points, or $20 for every $1,000 of face value, and interest rates soared in the money market. The rate on six-month Treasury bills, for instance, jumped to 6 percent from 5.82 percent.

The stock market fared no better. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 46.60 points—10.235, or 7.6 percent, since it hit a record high 2,405.54 on April 6.

With investors worried that higher inflation would erode the value of their financial assets, they have increasingly moved money into "tangible" assets such as precious metals and other commodities whose prices are expected to rise in tandem with inflation.

In London the price of gold jumped $8 an ounce to $462, and silver climbed to $9.10 an ounce from $8.33—the first time silver has been above $9 since 1984.

"A lot of people are getting antsy, and the tendency then is to convert some of your money into a safer haven," said James U. Blanchard, who heads a precious metals firm bearing his name in New Orleans.

Amid the rise in interest rates, investors also are increasingly attracted to short-term financial instruments—such as Treasury bills and money market funds—whose yields change with interest rates.

Money market fund assets soared $1.83 billion to a near-record $28.77 billion in the week ended Wednesday, according to the Investment Company Institute, a trade group. It was the biggest weekly gain in three months.

Some analysts contended the setback in stock and bond prices is only a temporary setback—known as a "correction" on Wall Street—that probably will abate over the next few weeks as the dollar stabilizes. Once that happens, interest rates are likely to fall back, they said.

But its an edge time for stockholders, particularly. Many have big profits on paper from the market's meteoric rise from the beginning of January into early April, and they must decide whether to cash in those profits or stay put and hope the market's drop soon subsides.

Dow closes at lowest since March

NEW YORK (AP)—A slumping dollar and rising interest rates sent the stock market a broad setback Friday, leaving the Dow Jones Industrial average at its lowest level since early March.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 46.60 points to 2,235.37, for its seventh largest point drop in a year.

The average finished the week with a net loss of 66.62.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 177.96 million shares, against 173.93 million in the previous session.

Analysts said the dollar's fall to new lows against the Japanese yen prompted increased speculation about the outlook for inflation and interest rates.

The credit markets, which have been under severe pressure over the past several weeks, encountered more selling Friday. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, dropped $10 to $15 for every $1,000 in face value.

Barring a strong rally next week, April stands to lose the books as the market's first losing month of 1987. With four sessions left in the month, the Dow shows a loss of 69.32 points since the end of March.

The continued rise of interest rates took a toll on homebuilding and savings-and-loan issues. Kaufman & Broad Home fell 1 1/2 to 12 1/2, U.S. Home 3/4 to 5 1/4, and Great Western Financial 1/4 to 4 1/4.

Exxon dropped 1/2 to 56 1/4. The company posted first-quarter profits of $1.50 a share, down from $2.35 in the comparable period a year earlier.

Other losers among the blue chips included International Business Machines, down 2 1/2 at 151 1/4; RJR Nabisco, down 1/4 at 52 1/4; International Paper, down 3/4 at 96; Procter & Gamble, down 1/4 at 89 1/4; and Ford Motor, down 2 1/2 at 62 1/4.

Cray Research fell 10 1/2 to 117 1/2. Some analysts said the recent trend of orders at the company was disappointing.

But Cummins Engine, which reported sharply higher first-quarter earnings, climbed 1/2 to 8 1/2.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 7 to 2 in the daily tally on the NYSE, with 358 up, 1,262 down and 360 unchanged. The exchange's composite index lost 2.86 to 159.77.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 203.83 million shares.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"The sky is not less blue because the blind man does not see it."
Danish-proverb

After today's play to the first trick, only the most reckless declarer would blind himself to the dangers of a diamond ruff. At times like this, it is foolish to fall to do whatever is possible to guard against impending disaster.

Dummy's diamond 10 was inserted at trick one but East wisely refused to play his ace. In spite of the threatening diamond ruff, South blindly led trumps. West winning his ace. The diamond deuce was led to East's ace, and West ruffed East's diamond return and exited safely in spades. Eventually West scored his club king and the game fell one short.

After the good play at trick one, it was impossible for South to avert the diamond ruff. However, he should have done something about West's safe exit in spades.

At-trick two, South should lead a spade to his queen for a winning finesse, cash the spade ace and ruff a spade. Now it's safe to lead trumps.

West wins and gets his diamond ruff, but there is no safe exit. A spade lead offers a ruff in dummy and a club discard. (After cashing dummy's trump king, South safely discards his last club on dummy's high diamond.) A club exit by West makes it easier. South wins the free finesse, draws trumps and discards his last club on dummy's diamond.

Deferring the play of the trump suit doesn't guarantee today's game. However, it does improve South's chances and it costs next to nothing to make the winning play.

ANSWER: Two clubs. In standard methods, this is an attempt to correct the contract. It shows no interest in game but announces a preference to play in clubs. (Some tournament players use this particular bid as a force to clarify opener's distribution.)

Bucs send Young to 49ers for draft choices

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Young, who the Tampa Bay Buccaneers signed two years ago in hopes of turning the struggling NFL franchise around, was traded Friday to the San Francisco 49ers in exchange for two draft picks and cash.

The move came three weeks after the Bucs signed Heisman Trophy winner Vinny Testaverde to a six-year, $3.2 million contract and cleared the way for the former University of Miami star to step right in as Tampa Bay's starter.

In exchange for Young, who started 19 games in two seasons with Tampa Bay, the Bucs received San Francisco's second and fourth-round picks in Tuesday's NFL draft — No. 50, No. 106 overall — as well as an unspecified amount of cash that will reimburse the club for signing bonus it paid Young in 1985.

Young, who bought his way out of a celebrated $40 million contract with the Los Angeles Express of the dormant United States Football League, signed a six-year deal worth nearly $5 million with Tampa Bay two days after the start of the 1985 NFL season.

"I feel this is an equitable trade for both franchises," said Ray Perkins, Tampa Bay's first-year coach and vice president of football operations.

"I think it will be good for Steve Young," Perkins added. "I certainly hope so. I hope he finds happiness and great success."

Young started 19 games in two seasons with Tampa Bay, completing 267 of 501 for 3,317 yards, 11 touchdowns and 21 interceptions. His ability to run put added pressure on defenses and Young averaged 5.8 yards per carry, scrambling for 558 yards on 114 carries.

His mobility is one asset that attracted the attention of the 49ers whose starter, Joe Montana, was sidelined part of last season with a back injury.

"We think that Steve's style of play will fit into our system and he will be able to display his vast talents," San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh said. "This move is not a reflection on Joe Montana."

"We fully expect Joe to continue as the leader and mainstay of our team," Walsh added. "Steve will compete with Montana, Jeff Kemp and Bob Gagliano for a position on our team."

Young replaced Testaverde as the Bucs starter after Tampa Bay got off to a 1-10 start in 1985. A slow start in preseason cost Young the No. 1 job last summer, but former Coach Leeman Bennett turned to him again after DeBerg threw nine interceptions in two games.

Young, who had four years left on his contract with Tampa Bay, never requested a trade. He said he expected a deal, however, if the Bucs decided to draft Testaverde.

Friday's move leaves Testaverde, who Tampa Bay will make the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft Tuesday, and DeBerg as the only quarterbacks on the Bucs roster.

"I want to thank Steve for the great contributions he made to the Buccaneers," said Tampa Bay owner Hugh Culverhouse. "He gave us much enthusiasm and displayed the true colors of a true competitor."

"I will miss him well and believe he'll be a great partner with the 49ers," Culverhouse added.

Young left Brigham Young University in 1983 as the most accurate passer in NCAA history. He played two seasons in the USFL, throwing for 4,102 yards, 16 TDs and 22 interceptions.

"We have great regard for Young's athletic ability, his quick release and fine instincts," Walsh said. "He is probably the fastest runner and any quarterback in the league and his play is similar to Joe Montana's."

"Our quarterback coach, Mike Bloomgren worked with Steve and Bill and considers him a fine talent," the 49ers coach added. "Young was the top-rated quarterback in the draft his senior year but has had a difficult road in the professional ranks in play with the L.A. Express and Tampa Bay."

With the addition of San Francisco's second- and fourth-round picks, the 49ers now have 18 selections in Tuesday's draft, four more than any other NFL team.

Perkins, trying to rebuild a club that compiled a 12-5 record the past four seasons, has seven choices in the first four rounds.

Glenns Ferry, Declo keep track dynasties perking

By LARRY HONEY

DECLO — The Declo Invitational held out very little in the way of surprises once the teams were lined out Friday.

The Glenns Ferry boys ran off with their title while the Declo girls maintain their season-long mastery in the distasteful division. And chances for change might show up a little when most of the seven teams participating in the meet show up at Kimberly next Thursday for the Canyon Conference championships. It will mark the first time all seven of Magic Valley's A-3 teams will collide in one meet this year.

Declo's Shawn Mal was the major individual scorer of the day, picking up three individual firsts for the Hornets as they tried to stay within hailing distance of Glenns Ferry. He won the short sprints and the discus to account for 30 Declo points.

Glenns Ferry's double-barreled distance reply from brothers Jesse Lopez, a sophomore, and senior Jesse Lopez, offset that, however. Jesse won both events with Jesse finishing second and third, respectively, in the 8200 and 1600 runs.

The other double winner was Barry Ken Shaw, who claimed both hurdles in untested fashion.

The girls division had some outstanding individual performances but not too many double winners. Laurie Reed of Valley claimed the 100-meter dash and triple jump while Declo's Jessie Miller won the two long distance runs.

But having a great day was Declo's Melissa Jenkins who took the Hornet medley baton from third to first on the anchor leg and turned in two other strong performances.

"She was kinda typical for the day for us," said winning Coach Jay Darrington. "She can't weight 85-90 pounds but she just works hard and runs her heart out for the team. Just like every other girl we have."

The tight race of the day came in the girls 400 where Glenns Ferry's Kim Fast and Declo's Tracy Giles were judged to finish in a dead heat. The boys medley was a three-man finish with a foot covering all three. The nod went to Valley's Peter McDonald who got up in the last stride to nip Glenns Ferry and Kimberly.

Mets squeeze to 2-1 win over Cardinals

NEW YORK (AP) — Sid Fernandez pitched a six-hitter, striking out 11, and Keith Hernandez's RBI single keyed a two-run rally in the sixth inning, giving the New York Mets a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a steady rainstorm Friday night.

The game began in a light drizzle and ended in swirling showers with temperatures in the upper 40s.

The Mets, swept in a three-game series at St. Louis last weekend, and the Cardinals began the game tied for first place in the National League East.

Fernandez, 3-1, seemed unfazed by the bad weather and had even better control than usual. He walked only one batter, Vince Coleman, with one out in the sixth, and it led to the game's first run.

Coleman stole second — he is 20-for-20 in career stolen base attempts against New York — and scored one out later on Terry Pendleton's one-pitch field single to right. Coleman singled with two outs in the eighth and stole second again, giving him a major league-leading total of 14. But Fernandez got himself out of trouble by speaking Ozzie Smith's liner up the middle in self-defense.

Grand jury hikes Suns probe to find other NBA contacts

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A grand jury which has been probing Phoenix Suns players who allegedly had contact with other NBA teams, said Friday it was trying to determine whether players had used or trafficked in cocaine with Suns players.

James Keppel, the deputy Maricopa County attorney who heads the grand jury investigation, was said by his office to be out Friday and unavailable for comment. His boss, County Attorney Tom Colangelo, did not immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press.

Regarding the indictments already issued by the grand jury, "I'd be surprised if that was the end of it," Keppel said.

"Things don't usually work that way," The Gazette quoted a source "familiar with the investigation" as saying.

The grand jury on April 16 indicted some players — James Edwards, Grant Goodrich and Jay Humphries and former Suns players Mike Bratz and Garfield Heard on a variety of drug charges. They are scheduled to be arraigned Thursday.

The Gazette reported April 14, two days before the April 16 indictments, that the grand jury investigating included trying to determine whether players for other NBA teams were involved in gambling activities.

There was no mention of gambling in the April 16 indictment, but NBA Commissioner David Stern said April 17 he'd ordered a league investigation.

Also Friday, a Phoenix police spokesman said police in 1984 found a small amount of marijuana in Edwards' car but that the center was not prosecuted.

Sgt. Brad Thiss said police tried to file charges against Edwards, but they were rejected because the case played "60" and "save percentage" of marijuana was found.

Larry Debus, an attorney for Edwards, said he told his client not to comment on the matter.

"He does not want to make a statement about this," Debus said. "Technically, he was never arrested unless the police are trying to rewrite the law, and that's scary.

Suns General Manager Jerry Colangelo said a cousin of Edwards was driving Edwards' car after a Suns game in 1984 when the cousin and Edwards were stopped by a Phoenix officer.

"The car was stopped — and the police did find a small amount of marijuana in the vehicle," Colangelo said. "It was in James' car under the seat. When questioned, Edwards' cousin said the police was his."

Colangelo said Police Chief Ruben Ortega called him several days later, and told him about the incident "as a courtesy."

"He called me to tell me the incident had taken place but they weren't going to prosecute," Colangelo said. "Ortega said it was something I should know about."

Thiss confirmed that Ortega had called Colangelo.

"He did call and tell him no charges would be filed but only after the city prosecutor had turned charges down," Thiss said.

Thiss said police could not release a report on the incident because no charges were filed.

Canadiens roll by Nordiques

QUEBEC (AP) — Sergio Momesso, inserted into the Montreal lineup to provide some added muscle, scored 14 goals as the Canadiens defeated the Quebec Nordiques 7-2 Friday night in Game 3 of their Adams Division final series.

The win reduced the Nordiques' lead to 2-1 in the best-of-seven NHL series, with Game 4 scheduled at the Coliseum Sunday night.

Momesso, who scored only 14 goals in the regular season and had not played at all in this series, put a sharp-angled backhand over the shoulder of Quebec goaltender Mario Gosselin before many of the Quebec fans were in their seats.

Veteran Bob Gainey scored his first goal of the series to make it 12-0 at 6:18.

Quebec's Risto Siltanen beat Montreal goaltender Brian Hayward on a power play slapshot from 20 feet just 37 seconds into the second period, but Mats Naslund scored on the power play at 13:10 to restore the Canadiens' two-goal lead.

Defenseman Normand Rochefort made it 3-2 when he beat Hayward through traffic for his first goal of the playoffs at 15:49, but Lator again restored the Canadiens' two-goal lead as his first goal of the playoffs, a 25-foot shot past Gosselin at 17:00.

Ryan Walter, Lator and Shayne Corson added goals for the Canadiens in a penalty-filled third period.

The Canadiens, though scoring just once, on only eight power plays, limited the potent Nordiques to eight one goal in nine man-advantage situations.

Howe assisted on a first-period goal by Al Hill, then scored in the second period to give the Flyers a 3-0 lead.

Hextall, who led the NHL in victories (37), games played (66) and save percentage (.902) during the regular season, made 23 saves, giving up only a goal by Pat LaFontaine late in the second period.

The Flyers scored at 11:41 of the first period when Howe took a 50-foot shot and Hill deflected it, past Islanders goalie Kelly Hrudey from the slot.

Brian Propp gave the Flyers a 2-0 lead with a goal at 10:21 of the second period, when he knocked in a backhand shot from the left faceoff circle on the rebound of a shot by Tim Toohey.

Howe then gave Philadelphia a three-goal lead with a 20-foot wrist shot from the left faceoff circle at 16:13, his second goal of the playoffs.

Just 11 seconds later, LaFontaine scored for the Islanders when he tipped in a pass from Mikko Makiela.

The Flyers' final score was Felix Eklund's empty net goal with 20 seconds left, with Howe getting his second assist.

The loss was the Islanders' third in four home playoff games this month.

The Flyers continued to play well at Nassau Coliseum, where they won three of their four regular-season games. Except for a heads-up play by Islanders defenseman Gerald DiDuck, the Flyers' margin of victory would have been greater.

The Islanders pulled Hrudey for a sixth attacker when a delayed penalty was called on Philadelphia midway through the second period. During a scramble around the Flyers net, LaFontaine knocked the puck away and it seemed headed for the Islanders' net when DiDuck slotted across ice and slapped it away at the last second.

Hrudey again was busy in the nets, facing 33 shots.

Flyers 4, Islanders 1

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Defenseman Mark Howe scored a goal and assisted on two more and rookie goalie Ron Hextall turned in a star performance as the Philadelphia Flyers beat the New York Islanders 4-1 Friday night to take a 2-1 lead in their second-round NHL playoff series.

The best-of-seven Patrick Division final resumes with Game 4 at Nassau Coliseum Sunday night.

Perry's cousin, Kenneth Johnson, 29, was sentenced to a six-year term earlier this month after pleading guilty in February.

Perry, born in Newark, N.J., played for the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association in 1974-75. He was signed by the Knicks but was cut before the 1975-76 season.

He joined the Maccabi Tel Aviv basketball team in Israel in 1977 and helped it win a European Cup championship that year and in 1979. He holds a dual U.S.-Israeli citizenship.

U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents arrested Perry and Johnson in September 1985 at Kennedy International Airport after learning from a tipster that Johnson was carrying 1,600 grams of nearly pure heroin.

Perry plea doesn't lessen sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — A former professional basketball player whose career led him to stardom in Israel was sentenced Friday to 10 years in jail on a heroin smuggling conviction.

Arlene Perry, 36, was found guilty in February of three counts of conspiring to import and sell $1.8 million worth of heroin in 1985. He faced 20 years on the charges.

Perry was also fined $45,000.

In court, Perry said he "couldn't have imagined or dreamed" years ago that he would find himself in his present situation.

Standing 4-foot-10 in a brown sports coat and slacks, he pleaded unsuccessfully with U.S. District Judge Mark Costantino to be freed.

"In my life I've fought very hard for everything I did and everything I accomplished," he said.

"I can't argue about the case, this is what the jury did," he added. "I know from being locked up for 15 months that jail is not the place I belong either, because I don't think I'm a criminal."

But Costantino was unwayed.

"You're not the only man in the United States of America who works hard," Mr. Perry including this judge, sitting in front of you," he said. "You got something out of America and you failed to take what you got and tried to get more. That's what you did."

Levi takes early lead in Houston

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Wayne Levi birdied three of his first four holes, then broke away from six challengers on the final three holes Friday to take a 1-shot lead after 36 holes of the $500,000 Houston Open.

Levi, who started the day four strokes off the first-round pace set by Dave Barr and Ed Flett, got his sixth birdie with a 20-foot putt on the par-4, 413-yard No. 7 hole and finished with a 5-under-par 67.

It was good enough to break him from the pack for a two-round total of 137, 7 under par for the par-72, 7,042-yard Tournament Players Course at The Woodlands Country Club.

The 156-man field was cut to 73 players who shot 1-over par 145 or better for 36 holes. Failing to make the cut were No. 3 money winner Ben Crenshaw and host pro John Mahaffey.

"The ball kind of slipped about 20 feet past the hole and I made it coming back for a birdie," said Levi, who has missed four cuts and withdrawn once in 10 tournaments.

"It boils down to the fact I haven't been managing my game," he said. "I keep getting myself in trouble."

Jay Haas, Dan Forsman and Aki Ohmachi took advantage of softer greens with early tee-off times and matched 3-under-par rounds of 69 and were at 138, along with Barr, who shot a 72, Payne Stewart, who had a 68, and Jack Renner, who had three back-nine birdies for a 69.

By the time Levi played in the afternoon, the dried-out greens were in poor condition.

"It looked like we were playing in the dirt on the greens," said Levi, who won this tournament in 1979.

"They were leaving foot prints on the greens."

Levi shot a 2-under-par 70 in Thursday's opening round.

Mike McCullough and Danny Edwards also with early tee-off times, shot 6-under-par 66a Friday, the low rounds for the day.

Haas struggled on the greens, missing birdie putts of 4, 7, and 7 1/2 feet. He also sank putts of 12 and 25 feet to save par.

"I hit a lot of greens and also made some questionable shots," Haas said. "But overall, I felt pretty good about my round."

Haas came out of the rough twice before sinking a 25-foot putt on No. 6 for his first birdie of the day.

"At that point I felt I was two shots ahead of what I deserved," said Haas, who also had birdie putts of eight feet on No. 10 and six feet on No. 15 to go 6 under for the tournament. His 25-foot par-saver on No. 18 kept him at 6 under.

Haas has played well in recent weeks, with three top 10 finishes in the past four tournaments. He finished in the top seven at the Masters.

Forsman started the day at 3 under on the back nine and ran the birdies on No. 15 and went 5 under with a 3-foot birdie putt on No. 2.

He hit in the water on No. 7, but salvaged a bogey and sank a 12-foot putt for a birdie on No. 8 to regain a share of the lead.

"I started the first round with a couple of tricky putts and I think that's been the key the past two days," Forsman said. "I was thankful to wiggle those in."

Ohmachi, playing in his seventh PGA event, overcame two bogeys with six birdies to join the early leaders.

Barber-Charles lead Legends by 5

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Miller Barber and Bob Charles combined for a best-ball 62, an 8-under-par effort that gave them a 5-shot lead Friday after the second round of the Legends of Golf tournament.

"Slow starters, fast finishers," said Charles after he and Barber had played the back nine in 22.

Barber and Charles reached the halfway point of the tournament for senior players 50 and over, with a 36-hole total of 123, 17 under par on the Onion Creek Club course.

While they held the lead in the tournament that offers $500,000 in total prizes with $120,000 to the winning team, they were upstaged by some even older players, Jerry Barber, 70, and Doug Ford, 64.

Barber and Ford, who chose to compete in the Legends of Golf section — for players 60 and older — birdied the first five holes they played and finished with a 9-under-par 61, within one shot of the tournament record.

The Legends of Golf competition, held separately but simultaneously, has a $100,000 purse with $20,000 to the winning team.

"We're calling our lawyers, applying to move back here to the other section," joked Barber, one day short of his 71st birthday. Tournament rules do not allow such movement.

Barber and Ford, who birdied their first five holes, held a 5-shot lead in the 8-team Legends of Golf Champions field at 127, 13 under par.

"One of those days," said Barber, who holed out two shots from off the green. "Some days you play good, some days you don't."

Howie Johnson and Jack Fleck, the first-day leaders among the over-60 competition, dropped back to second at 67-132. Julius Boros and Kel Nagle were next at 67-133.

Gene Littler and Don January, who have won Legends the last two years, also had a 61 and got back into contention at 128, 12 under par and tied for second with two rounds to go.

"We figured we had to play three good rounds to get back in it. It looks like we made up most of it in one day," January said.

They were tied with Orville Moody and Bruce Crampton, who won seven titles and led the seniors in money-winnings last year, and Butch Baird and Bobby Nichols. The Moody-Crampton team shot 65 and Nichols-Baird rallied for a birdie-birdie finish and a 67 in the warm, sunny weather.

Dale Douglass and Dow Finsterwald and Jack Burke and Paul Harney were next at 129. Burke-Harney had a 64, Finsterwald-Douglass 64.

Gooden release imminent

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden will be released from a drug rehabilitation center next week, his attorney said Friday.

"I believe it's Thursday, but I don't believe the date is definite," Charles Ehrlich said in an interview in St. Petersburg, Fla. "It could be a day earlier or a day later, but it's to that time frame."

Gooden, who won the National League's Cy Young Award in 1985, was admitted to the Smithers Center for Alcohol and Drug Treatment on April 2 after he tested positive for cocaine.

Ehrlich said doctors at the center determined that Gooden was an occasional cocaine user, not an addict.

"We always felt that was the case," he said. "We knew that Dwight was not a big drug user."

Ehrlich said he expects Gooden to return to the Mets within a few weeks after he is released from the center.

"He's still in good shape, but he'll need some time to get his pitching eye back," he said.

Ehrlich said he is confident Gooden will be able to handle the pressure he faces when he returns to the Mets.

"Pressure is part of his business," he said. "All he's thinking about right now is getting back on the field and playing baseball again. He's feeling good. He's anxious and ready to go."

Mets spokesman Jay Horwitz would not comment on reports that Gooden would be released Thursday. Dr. Allan Luns, associate director of the center, also declined comment.

Horwitz said the Mets will know more about the 22-year-old pitcher's status after General Manager Frank Cashen talks with doctors at the Smithers Center this weekend. He also said Mets officials will discuss Gooden's situation with the National League's Peter Ueberroth before making any decision about the pitcher's future.

Richard Levin, a spokesman for Ueberroth, said the commissioner will be involved in the final decision on Gooden's playing status. Gooden was not penalized by Ueberroth because he agreed to undergo treatment.

In 1985, Gooden was 24-4 with a 1.53 ERA and became the youngest player to win the Cy Young Award. Last season, he slipped to 17-6 with a 2.84 ERA and was hit hard in two World Series starts.

Schuler is NBA coach

NEW YORK (AP) — Portland Trail Blazers rookie coach Mike Schuler was voted runaway winner of the Red Auerbach Trophy as the NBA's 1987 Coach of the Year on Friday, after rebuilding his team around defense and a gaping hole left by the injury of Sam Bowie.

"There's no substitute for winning," Schuler said, and he did.

He led the Blazers to 49 victories, the third-best record in the Western Conference, even though Bowie was lost to the club in its fifth game with a broken leg.

In voting announced by the NBA, Schuler was named on 30 of a possible 78 ballots cast by three media members from 10 league city and nine national media representatives.

George Karl of the Golden State Warriors was second with 9 1/2 votes, followed by Pat Riley of the Los Angeles Lakers with 9, Jack Ramsay of the Indiana Pacers with 6 1/2 and Doug Collins of the Chicago Bulls with 6.

The 46-year-old Schuler replaced Ramsay as Blazers' coach last May 28 after six seasons as an NBA assistant, three with New Jersey and three more at Milwaukee. Before that, he spent 16 years as an assistant and head coach in college. Schuler was an assistant under Bob Knight at Indiana and Terry Holland at Virginia.

"I guess it really has surprised me that we have done as well without Sam," Schuler said of his 7-foot center. "I never imagined we could play the entire season without him and win."

From the outset, however, Schuler had planned to structure his team around defense. The Blazers allowed opponents to shoot only 48.5 from the field, down from .502 a year ago.

"It's something we stressed in training camp," Schuler said. "From Day One we told them our major emphasis was going to be defense. That was what was needed for us to become a better team."

With Steve Johnson filling in at center and Kiki Vandeweghe setting a franchise record with 2,122 points, the Blazers finished the season 49-33.

Drake relay records tumble

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State, which decided to run only 40 minutes before the race, overcame the loss of one of its top runners to easily win the 6,400-meter relay and Vernon George of Texas Southern set a meet record in the 110-meter hurdles Friday at the 78th Drake Relays.

Georgia's Gwen Torrence, the American and collegiate record holder in the 100-meter hurdles, and late entry Russ Schmelchel set a Drake record in the master's 800.

Iowa State had planned to drop out of the 6,400 relay because lead runner Paul Blonk had to return to his native England for his grandmother's funeral and the team's alternate runner, Darrell Smith, got sick on Thursday.

Junior anchor runner Raf Wynn convinced Coach Bill Bergan to enter the race with Al Green, who normally runs only 800 meters, in the leadoff 1,600 spot. Green was in the leadoff at the 100-meter race, but the baton to Barnaba Korir, but Korir ran an outdoor career-best of 4:02 to give Iowa State the lead.

Jim Wakeland and Wynn then widened the lead and the Cyclones finished in 16 minutes, 25.73 seconds — more than eight seconds ahead of second-place Rice. Rice was timed in 16:34, while Notre Dame took third in 16:38.07.

"In the last 40 minutes before the race I said, 'Coach, we have to run,'" said Wynn, who was so far ahead on the final lap that he waved the baton over his head in the backstretch. "I can't even say you put on the first leg, we have to try."

"I just couldn't sit sitting up in the stands watching the race. This is my senior year and I really wanted to win. I had run it three times before and we never won."

George's time of 13.49 seconds in the preliminaries of the 110 hurdles eclipsed the Drake mark of 13.55 set by Wisconsin's Wayne Roby in 1985.

Defending NCAA champion Keith Talley of Alabama, Purdue's Rod Woodson and Prairie View's Kevin McKinley won the other heats to join George in Saturday's finals. Talley was second at Drake last year.

Schmelchel, a high school track coach from Jamestown, N.D., who turned 40 last August, won the master's 800 in 1:58.1. The old record in the event for runners 40 and older was 1:59.36 by Ralph Trimble of Urbana, Ill., in 1983.

Schmelchel said he didn't find out he would run until Thursday morning and made some hasty flight arrangements to get to Des Moines in time.

"Those last 200 meters were tough, but the crowd here was great," he said. "They really pulled me through."

Kansas State's Felicia Carpenter soared beyond her own meet record in the women's triple jump, but the wind at her back was too strong so her jump of 42 feet, one-half inch won't go down as a new mark. She set the record of 41-8 last year.

Torrence, the collegiate and American record holder in the indoor 55 meters, beat defending Drake champion Pauline Davis of Alabama in the women's 100.

Torrence shot out of the blocks quickly and led all the way, finishing in 11.62 seconds. Davis was blocked in 11.62.

"In other women's events, Purdue's Tia Hensler cleared 5-10 to win the high jump."

Georgetown claims medley

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Georgetown, anchored by Mike Stahr, won the distance medley relay at the 93rd annual Penn Relays Friday in a blanket finish with a world's best time of 9:29.26.

Stahr, the NCAA and ICIA indoor mile champion, gained the lead on the gun lap and outlasted Villanova's Gerry O'Reilly at the tape, with Mount St. Mary's Kip Cobby of a couple of steps behind.

Mount St. Mary's team of four Africans finished ahead of fourth-place Arkansas, the holder of the previous record for the event contested only in the United States.

Arkansas' old record was 9:22.6 set at last year's Penn Relays.

Villanova ran in 9:21.02 and Mount St. Mary's 9:21.66, also ran under the world's best time.

John Trautman ran the opening 1,200-meter leg for Georgetown and settled in fourth place. Darren Outler on the 400 leg moved the Hoyas into third where they hung during Miles Irish's 800 leg.

Stahr took the baton behind Cherulov and O'Reilly and Doug Consiglio of Arkansas.

In the middle of the gun lap, Stahr overtook both and opened a slight edge.

The three raced over a wet artificial track around the far turn and into the stretch almost as a tandem.

Stahr held his lead, but barely, as O'Reilly failed in a desperate last lunge to catch the Georgetown runner at the wire. They were almost shoulder to shoulder at the finish.

Trautman ran a 2:53.1 on the 1,200 meter, and was followed by Outler's 46.9 for the 400 and Irish in 0:46.1 in the 500. Stahr finished with a 3:54.9 in the 1,600.

"With 1/5 mile to go," Stahr said, "I closed my eyes and ran as fast as I could."

He said since his eyes were shut, "I didn't know who won."

Stahr said that if he had to run another 10 meters, "I don't think I could have made it."

"I had started to tie up in the last 75 meters."

Georgetown coach Frank Gagliano said it was not decided until Monday to compete in the distance medley.

"Georgetown has two better relay teams, the two mile and spring medley, but I chose the distance medley because it was a challenge."

"The strength of the field was tremendous."

Arkansas held in on the early going when Roddie Haley turned in a 44.3 in the 400, but slipped under the flight of Georgetown, Villanova and Mount St. Mary's.

Ohio State mum about gridder's suspension

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State football coach Earle Bruce Friday refused to offer a reason for his suspension of All-America wide receiver Chris Carter in the face of published reports that Carter failed a drug test.

"He (Carter) is going to have to take his hits. He's going to have to take it now," Bruce said in his office. "His suspension is going to be out. I'll tell you this, as long as he didn't do anything with that agent, there's nothing to worry about. Right? That's what I told him. Because I know what he did."

On Wednesday it was disclosed by Bruce that Carter, the leading receiver in Ohio State history, had been suspended from the team for "a violation of team rules."

Published reports immediately centered on an alleged relationship between Carter, his brother George and George Carter's employer, player agent Norby Walters. Under assignment are forbidden by the National Collegiate Athletic Association to sign a contract with or accept money from an agent at the risk of forfeiting their remaining eligibility.

The NCAA and Ohio State athletic director Rick Bay had investigated the allegations separately. The OSU investigation found no proof of any payments by an agent to Carter.

But the College Sports in its Friday editions cited an unidentified source close to the OSU athletic department who said that the suspension "has nothing to do with any NCAA investigation or anything with advance payments from agents. It involves a social thing."

The source said Carter tested positive to a drug test April 13.

"I think there's always someone who will leak something out," said Bruce. "I know of the one big leak. I'm not dumb. I know where it gets to. The Dispatch from I do know that."

But Bruce, saying it was a personal matter, refused to clear the air on the reasons behind the suspension.

"I'm not giving (the reason) to anybody," he said. "It (speculation) is going to have to run wild. The only guy that's going to say anything as far as I know is Chris Carter, if he wants to say something. I got to keep his mouth shut because I can't control the speculation and neither can he."

"Once he puts it down, he can also be in trouble with people that say what's right and wrong. You know what I mean? He's judged one way or the other. If he keeps his mouth shut, then you do all the speculating but then you never been told the official word. The only way I know to deal with this. It's a personal thing."

Bruce added that his players were shielded because "we're dealing with college kids. I don't think they should have to have things like this brought out in public."

Carter caught a school record 69 passes last season for 1,127 yards and 11 touchdowns. Ohio State records. He also owns the Buckeye career marks with 168 receptions and 27 touchdown catches and is 68 yards short of becoming the all-time leading Buckeye receiver in terms of yardage.

Bruce was unavailable for comment.

Bruce said Thursday that he had not decided on the length of the suspension.

"All the allegations of a failed drug test, Bruce said, 'I think that's speculation on the part of some ... writer that wants to break a story. How do they have the facts? How do they have the facts? I looked into the damned thing as much as anyone ... and my story is that I think (Chris Carter) is OK.'"

He added that after his own investigation he felt that Carter had not accepted money from an agent.

"As far as I know, all of my investigation, which includes a lot of things, if there is that he hasn't taken anything, he hasn't had any violation. If there is (a violation) I don't know about it."

Ohio State "concludes its spring workouts May 2."
