USDA sends drought aid to 10 counties

By BOB FREUND Times-News writer

Short reprieve — A4

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has set aside more than $1 million in drought relief for farmers in 10 southern Idaho counties...

emergency conservation funds on Friday. The USDA will contribute as much as 64 percent of the costs for several types of conservation projects benefiting livestock...

However, the cash is not available for irrigating crops, except in orchards or vineyards. It also is not available for drilling irrigation wells, the government said.

Idaho lawmakers expressed "disappointment" at the decision to exclude wells. "The one thing we need to help farmers immediately is ECP (Emergency Conservation Program) money for well drilling..."

While not providing direct grants, the USDA said the drought-stricken Idaho farmers wanting to drill wells or construct irrigation ditches will have priority in seeking $2.7 million in FFA loan guarantees and $8.1 million in loans.

Idaho still is considering requests from Gov. Cecil Andrus to declare the 10 counties as agricultural disaster areas. Other counties outside the Magic Valley seeking disaster status are Adams, Adams, Canyon, Owyhee, Valley and Washington.

A disaster declaration would benefit livestock producers. They could obtain permission to graze their animals on 93,000 acres of land that also could be eligible for aid to buy livestock feed and for purchases of grain from government stocks at rates 25 percent below the price support loan rate.

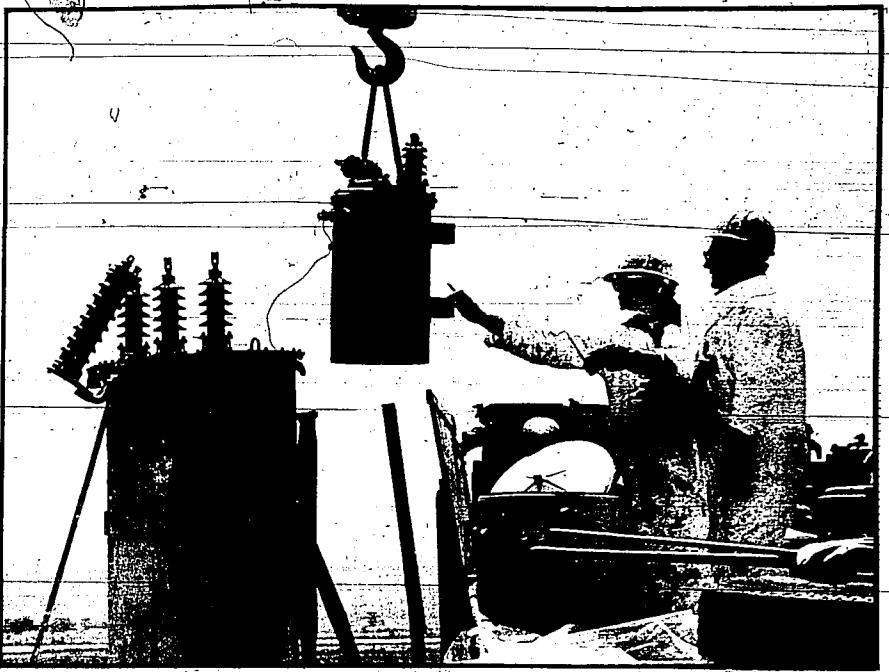

But Idaho's Republican delegation to Congress said it will continue to press Lyng for direct grants so that farmers can dig emergency wells.

"Today's announcement is a start, but there's clearly much more that has to be done," said Sen. Jim McClure and Steve Symms and Rep. Larry Craig in a joint statement.

The USDA Friday funneled close to $1.1 million into water conservation measures. The money will be available from two existing programs operated by its Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

More than half, $578,000, will come from regular conservation funds in 10 counties and statewide reserves. Federal officials can provide as much as 75 percent of expenses for installing new irrigation pipe or for developing livestock watering holes.

Lyng also released $300,000 in federal officials can provide as much as 75 percent of expenses for installing new irrigation pipe or for developing livestock watering holes.

Idaho Power Co. workers load transformers onto a truck Friday at the Idaho Highway Department yard east of Fairfield.

Utility continues transformer cleanup

By BART JANSEN Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — Idaho Power Co. continued Friday to clean up contaminated transformers that leaked PCBs along a stretch of U.S. 20 east of Fairfield.

The transformers were being drained of hazardous PCB oil and prepared for shipment, either to a dump or the Idaho Falls salvage company that bought them from Idaho Power.

A truck crash last Saturday nine miles east of Fairfield littered the highway and adjacent borrow pit with hundreds of transformers leaking hazardous PCB oil in the area.

Bill Fretzel, overseeing the clean-up effort for the Environmental Protection Agency, said there is no community health threat from the spill, where clean-up efforts began promptly after the accident.

About 100 yards of dirt and a foot-and-a-half square of road asphalt were contaminated with PCBs at the accident site and must still be dealt with. But earthen dams were built to prevent PCB oil or contaminated rain water from flowing downhill to a creek and house three-tenths of a mile away, Fretzel said.

The accident site has been roped off and the dirt will either be mixed with cement or removed to a chemical dump, he said. Those options will be explored after the holiday weekend.

PCBs, poly-chlorinated biphenyls, are suspected of causing cancer. Their common use as transformer coolant was outlawed in 1979, after Congress learned of documented cases of liver, eye and skin damage from heated PCB oil, Fretzel said.

PCBs do not break down in the environment and accumulate in body fat, Fretzel said. Thus, disposed of in chemical dumps and liquid PCBs must be incinerated, he said.

FPA usually requires dirt contaminated with PCBs be removed within 48 hours. But Fretzel said that since the dirt and part of the road to be removed were not volatile, the deadline was waived.

South Central District Health Department and Idaho Power workers last weekend gathered the 67,000 pounds of transformers and brought them to a Highway Department yard in Fairfield.

Idaho Power no longer owns the transformers, but has assisted in the clean-up effort. Once the level of PCBs in the transformers is tested and determined low enough for transport, approved as "drained-and-tested," Idaho Power Shop Supervisor Sherna Smith said his company will determine whether the transformers should be transported to a dump or the Idaho Falls

Food, energy, import prices push inflation

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Higher prices for food, energy and some imports nudged consumer prices up 0.4 percent in April.

The brief brought inflation to an annual rate of 6 percent so far this year, the government reported Friday.

Economists suggested a weak economy could be keeping prices from rising even higher. Recent declines in the value of the dollar, making many foreign goods more expensive, accounted for some of the April increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index, analysts said.

But one category that bucked the trend and went down in April — by 0.4 percent — was home appliances and electronics goods, of which imports comprise a major share.

Kimche indicated he would leave soon for Israel.

An attorney who represented Israel at a federal court hearing on the matter said no guarantees had been made "that Kimche" would return if the court eventually upholds the validity of Independent Counsel Lawrence E. Walsh's subpoena for him to testify.

However, a source speaking on subpoena. North, the former National Security Council aide, is Israeli did give U.S. District Judge Aulrey Robinson Jr. assurances that Kimche would come back if ordered to do so.

Iranian hints USSR role in raid

The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran's Parliament speaker said Friday the Persian Gulf war has become a superpower conflict and the Soviet Union may have ordered Iraqi pilots to attack the U.S. Navy frigate Stark.

Hashemi Rafsanjani also said flying the American flag on Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from Iranian attack "will not solve anything."

"One of the things that we must do is to board their ship and take their flag and bring it here so that they will know that the flag will not solve anything," he said during Friday prayers at Tehran University. His remarks were broadcast by state radio and television and were monitored in Nicaragua.

Iran and Iraq, at war since September 1980, have attacked commercial shipping in the Gulf since early 1984.

Washington has agreed to place Kuwaiti tankers, frequent targets of Iranian attack, under the U.S. flag so the Navy can provide protection.

"This is a war of the superpowers," Rafsanjani said. "When a Soviet ship hits a mine, an American ship cannot go unburnt."

President calls Stark sailors heroes at memorial

MAYPORT NAVAL STATION, Fla. — President Reagan on Friday praised the 37 sailors killed aboard the USS Stark as heroes who willingly sacrificed their lives "so that wider war and greater conflict could be avoided."

Amid a growing controversy over America's increasing involvement in the Persian Gulf, Reagan said "our own nation's security and freedom" are at stake in the region, torn by more than six years of war between Iran and Iraq.

Accompanied by his wife, Nancy, Reagan joined Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, Navy Secretary James Webb and other military leaders at a solemn memorial service in an airport hangar at the frigate's homeport near Jacksonville.

Navy probers silent — A3

About 300 relatives and friends of the victims sat on folding chairs in front of the stage in the hot, muggy building where 2,000 people gathered to pay final respects. A wreath of white carnations—in the shape of an anchor—faced the audience.

Several members of the Stark crew — lucky enough to have been at home on leave when the ship was attacked Sunday by an Iraqi warplane in the Gulf — were present. One of them broke down in the arms of a woman with him.

At the playing of taps, sobs and cries of grief filled the building.

The outpouring of emotion continued as the Reagans walked through the rows of chairs, shaking hands and consoling family members for nearly 45 minutes. An elderly woman collapsed and was helped up by the president, then carried away by someone else.

The United States and Iraq both say Sunday's missile attack was inadvertent. Baghdad has offered to pay compensation for the victims and the ship.

Stressing the strategic importance of the Gulf, Reagan told the mourners, "Were a hostile power ever to dominate this strategic region and its resources, it would become a chokepoint for freedom — that of our allies and our own."

"That is why we maintain a naval presence there," he said. "Our aim is to prevent, not to provoke, wider conflict; to save the many lives that further conflict would cost us. "The fallen sailors of the USS Stark understood their obligations. They knew the importance of their job," Reagan said.

"So, too, I believe that most Americans today know the price of freedom in this uneasy world; they know that to retreat or withdraw would only repeat the imprudent mistakes of the past and hand final victory to those who seek war who make war."

He said, "Young Americans of the USS Stark gave up their lives so that the terrible moments of the past would not be repeated; so that wider war and greater conflict could be avoided, so that thousands, and perhaps millions, of others might be spared the final sacrifice these men so willingly made."

The Iraqi attack focused sharp attention on the

The poorest showing in three months.

The same agency said after-tax corporate profits fell 5.5 percent in the first quarter, the biggest decline since a 9 percent drop in the first three months of 1986.

"Overall, the economy looks like it's very sluggish," said Michael Renner, vice president and senior economist for the Bank of America in San Francisco. "With the economy so sluggish, it would be difficult to envision much higher rates of inflation this year, if not approaching the double-digit pace of the late 1970s and early 1980s, with dwarfing the scant 1.1 percent increase posted for all of 1986 and was running well above the 3.8 percent rate projected for 1987 by the Reagan administration.

April's price increases were widespread but the consumer price figures were not higher, citing last week's report that wholesale prices in April had averaged 0.7 percent, or an annual rate of 3.9 percent.

April's price increases were widespread, if not as high as 0.3 percent, after accounting 0.1 percent in March, with most of the increase coming from sharply higher fruit and vegetable prices.

Energy prices, still rebounding from last year's collapse in world oil prices, also rose 0.3 percent. Gasoline cost 0.7 percent more at the pump than it did the month before, home heating oil was up 2.5

percent. But these increases were partially offset by a 0.3 percent decline in natural gas and electricity costs.

Goods other than food and energy — the category that most affects the higher cost of imports — were up 0.5 percent in April.

The sharpest major increase was a 1.5 percent advance in the index for clothing costs, following a 1.7 percent rise the month before. It was the largest two-month increase for clothing and apparel costs since 1981.

"The strong pickup in clothing prices is because of quotas on Asian imports and as a result prices of imported clothing are going up," said Manny Harris, chief economist for PaineWebber.

Tornado wrecks Texas town, killing over 25, injuring 110

SARAGOSA, Texas (AP) — A tornado ripped through this tiny town in the part of west Texas on Friday night, killing at least 25 people, injuring more than 110 and trapping some residents in a community building, officials said.

Mike Cox, a department of Public Safety spokesman in Austin, confirmed the death toll and number of injured.

"The town is gone," an unidentified amateur radio operator said about the community of 165 residents about 100 miles east of El Paso.

"The town is without power, the roads are impassable and we have reports of people trapped inside Saragosa Hall," Cox said.

"The residents trapped inside the demolished building apparently were taking part in a safety course, officials said. Cox said the building was 'knocked with people.'

Cox said an assistant administrator at Reeves County Hospital, said a short time later that at least 60 people were hurt and en route to the hospital. She said more injuries were expected.

Cox said at least another 50 injured people remained at the scene.

Johnny Morgan, 43, of Midland said he and his family saw the tornado from their car.

"We watched it grow. I got to the edge of Saragosa and came right through the thing, and it turned around the other way," he said in a telephone interview from Reeves County.

"Buildings were flattened. Cars were strewn about. Power lines were down," said Morgan, who was not injured. "As we watched it, the tornado's stem became wider and wider and darker. As we got to the edge of Saragosa, I really became frightened by it."

Reeves County Red Cross spokeswoman Katherine Stockton said Reeves County authorities had asked for cots, water, blankets and other aid because of the storm's extensive damage.

The tornado hit about 8 p.m., striking ground west of nearby Dalhart, then east of that town and then smack in the middle of Saragosa, a few miles to the north, the National Weather Service said.

The storm was moving northeast toward Fort Stockton, and the National Weather Service reported that funnel clouds had been sighted within 28 miles of the town.

Meanwhile, heavy thunderstorms dumped marble- and golfball-size hail 3 inches deep near Whiteface about 45 miles west of Lubbock. Hockley County sheriff's deputies, said.

"The storm was among a series of intense thunderstorms (treaching the western half of the South Plains) that were moving eastward."

Weather spotters reported a tornado in Cochran County about four miles southeast of Whiteface, but sheriff's dispatcher Steve Dunn said no damage was reported.

The worst single tornado in Texas history hit Wichita Falls on April 10, 1979. The destruction left 42 dead, 1,740 injured, more than 3,000 homes destroyed, causing $400 million in damage. An estimated 20,000 people were left homeless by that storm.

of retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord.

The pre-hearing questioning was expected to continue into the weekend for Hakim, who controlled Swiss bank accounts apparently used for channeling money to the Contras. Sales and later diversion of profits.

After appearing with Ramon Amador and other witnesses at a closed court hearing to oppose the subpoena obtained by Walsh, Hakim said, "As you can see, I am leaving."

The judge's decision to excuse Kinche from testifying on Friday may preclude Walsh from ever questioning him about his role in setting up an arms deal with them in 1985 or his later involvement in the Contra affair.

Walsh's lawyer, the attorney who represented Israel at the hearing, said, "The Israeli government was not required to make any guarantees."

Richter confirmed, however, that the case is still pending before the court.

Today's weather

Ideal forecast for a holiday weekend

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

Partly cloudy today and Sunday. Chance of showers and thunderstorms during afternoons and evenings. Highs from upper 60s to low 70s. Lows tonight from 40 to 45. Winds mostly light.

Outlook for Memorial Day: continued partly cloudy with chance of thunderstorms. Lows from 40 to 45. Highs in the 60s.

Camas, Prairie, Hagley and Lower Wood River Valley:

Partly cloudy with a chance of showers or thunderstorms during afternoons and evenings. Highs in the 60s. Lows tonight from 30 to 35. Winds mostly light. Outlook for Memorial Day: continued partly cloudy with a chance of thunderstorms. Lows from upper 30s to mid 50s. Highs from upper 50s to low 60s.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

Utah — Partly cloudy today and tonight with widely scattered afternoon showers and thunderstorms. Variable cloud Sunday with scattered showers and thunderstorms. Lows in the 40s, and highs 70s, cooling to the 60s on Sunday.

Nevada — Scattered thunderstorms developing today. Thunderstorms ending in the extreme west with partial clearing overnight and thunderstorms clearing Sunday to scattered showers elsewhere. Mostly cloudy in the north with occasional showers and afternoon thunderstorms with snow above 7,000 feet in the Sierras. Highs today from low 60s to mid 70s and lows tonight from upper 30s to near 50. Highs Sunday from mid 50s to low 70s.

The National Weather Service in Boise says a broad area of low pressure extending from the western United States Friday and expected to persist through the Memorial Day weekend.

The air in the low pressure system will be mostly dry over Idaho, however, scattered areas of instability and moisture were drifting around the low and may produce a few showers and thunderstorms mainly in the mountains through the weekend.

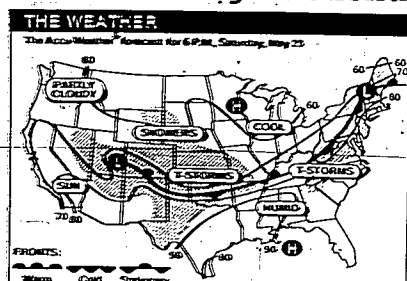

Otherwise, it should be fair and warmer through Memorial Day.

Nevada temperatures were mostly in the 50s and 60s with low to mid 70s over the southwest.

Some afternoon showers occurred over the east-central mountains and the southeastern highlands with Madrid recording 0.1 inch of precipitation.

Ski areas were partly cloudy over most of the state, though some areas of cloudy skies covered the southern half.

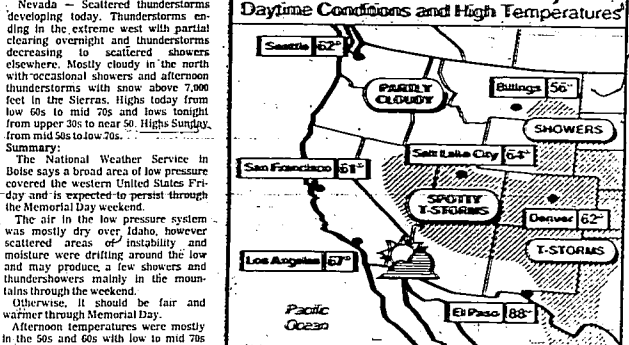

The agricultural outlook for Southern Idaho shows conditions for field work have improved to good through Wednesday. Widely scattered thunderstorms through Wednesday will produce light rainfall but with local amounts up to one-half of an inch in Iran, in collusion with the United States and Saudi Arabia, were planning to attack Iranian ships at night in the area where the Stark was hit.

Rafsanjani laughed as he said U.S. and Soviet warships were the best and easiest targets for Iran. "If you want to hit a mouse you have to run around after it to catch it, but all you have to do is throw a stone at a bear from afar."

Idaho Power has voluntarily placed a dozen workers this week clearing the debris from the accident site, preparing the transformers again for shipment and sealing wastes for disposal at a chemical dump.

"I think our feeling is we should be reimbursed," said Toney, who added that Idaho Power felt clean-up should be handled immediately and billing settled later.

The owner of Rocky Mountain Supply, the Idaho Falls trucking company transporting the transformers, was out of town Thursday and Friday and unavailable for comment.

Toney said Idaho Power sells about 700 tons of transformers a year, or about 2100 tons. This accident involved about 350 tons, 90 percent of which were damaged, totaling 67,000 pounds.

On a 91 to 5 vote, the Senate voted to authorize administration to inform Congress about the Persian Gulf situation in the gulf before U.S. ships escorting 11 Kuwaiti vessels.

A three-member Senate delegation — Jim Sasser, D-Tenn.; John Glenn, D-Ohio; and John Warner, R-Va. — prepared to fly to the Persian Gulf this weekend on a fact-finding mission.

En route to Florida, presidential spokesman Martin Flitwater said the administration believes that consultations already under way with Congress "will probably meet the spirit certainly, if not the letter" of the reporting requirement.

He said the White House would not make a final judgment on the matter until it sees if the House also approves the measure.

Reflecting a split within the administration, Flitwater also disagreed with testimony Thursday by Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy, the State Department's senior Middle East specialist.

Flitwater had said that an attack by Iran on American naval forces would open a new dimension to its war with Iraq, leaving open the possibility of American involvement.

"We disagree with Murphy's testimony," Flitwater said on air Force One. "He was not authorized to say that."

Flitwater said, "Our position is that refueling of Kuwaiti vessels is just a deterrent but does not represent an increase in hostilities in any way."

American officials said Iraq will allow U.S. investigators to interview the Iraqi pilot, who warplane attacked the Stark, and the Iraqi military officers who ordered the mission. The New York Times reported in Saturday's editions.

Administration officials told the newspaper the Iraq gesture is an effort to limit damage to American-Iraq relations as a result of the missile attack.

Friday's service marked the sixth time Reagan has attended a memorial service for members of the military or the seven Challenger astronauts. Some 300 servicemen have died in the line of duty during his administration.

Here, Reagan recalled the dead of World War II and said that, "In some ways, it was easier to bear than because it was easier to understand why we were there, why we were fighting."

"The burden of our own time is so different," Reagan said.

Noting that U.S. ships have patrolled the gulf since 1949, Reagan pointed out the importance of the region in supplying oil the rest of the world.

"Even more important," he said, "this is a region critical to avoiding larger conflict in the underbelly that is the Middle East, and our role there is essential to building the conditions for peace in that troubled, dangerous part of the world."

Reagan told the memorial service, "The men of the USS Stark stood guard in the night... They were great. And those that died did embody the best of us."

"Kp, they were ordinary men who did extraordinary things," he said.

Navy team silent about probe; Iran shells Qatari freighter

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A Navy team investigated the USS Stark disaster Friday, saying nothing publicly and an Iranian gunboat attacked a Qatari freighter in the Persian Gulf sea war.

U.S. officials in Washington said air power might be used to prevent further assaults on American warships.

Another American team was expected to visit Baghdad soon for a joint probe with Iraq of the raid on the Stark, in which 37 sailors were killed and 21 wounded Sunday night by missiles launched from Iraqi aircraft.

In an attack overnight, an Iranian gunboat fired 12 rocket-propelled grenades into a small freighter from the Persian Gulf coast of Qatar and raked it with machinegun fire.

generally wounding three crewmen, the cutter reported. The engine room by flames. The quarters were destroyed

Other vessels rescued crewmen of the 2,596-ton Qatari freighter. Rashid after the Iranian attack but the ship sustained "tremendous damage" and was in danger of sinking, said a statement from the owner, Qatari National Navigation and Transport Co. of Doha.

The Rashid was carrying steel to Kuwait. Iran has made a special get of Kuwaiti ships and cargo, accusing the emirate of supporting Iraq in the war.

Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980 and began attacks on commercial shipping early in 1984.

U.S. Navy spokesman Michael Cherry said the 10-man team headed by Rear Adm. Grant Sharp was conducting an "open-ended" investigation into why the guided-missile frigate Stark did not try to defend itself against the missiles.

In Washington, sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said investigators were directing the probe toward suspicions that the Stark's defense system was not working properly.

A Western diplomat said security surrounding the probe was "like Fort Knox," where U.S. gold reserves are stored.

Another Western diplomat said the team began its work aboard the crippled vessel by questioning Capt. Glenn Brindel, the Stark's commander, and other officers.

All survivors in the crew of 182 will be questioned but Brindel is the "chief witness," he said. Both diplomats spoke on condition of anonymity.

The investigating team consists of six officers and four enlisted men. Cherry would not give details of the investigation but noted that the ship's Phalanx anti-missile system was out of order when the missiles struck the ship broadside off Qatar.

"I have no knowledge of any such failure and I stick with my statement that the equipment was operational at the time," he said.

Brindel has said the defense system was in the manual mode at the time of the attack to avoid firing at friendly aircraft and that he didn't have time to switch it to automatic. But Washington sources said even in the manual mode, the Phalanx system should have alerted its crew that its radar was tracking something.

"It would not have fired, but it should have provided alarms," said one official who asked not to be named. "The report that it didn't fire is troubling, and that's where the investigators are starting."

In Washington, Pentagon and State Department officials said the United States was considering sending carrier-based jet fighters over the gulf to protect the seven-vessel U.S. Navy task force.

They said increasing the number of ships in the force was another option.

Richard Murphy, an assistant secretary of state specializing in Middle East affairs, said Pentagon and State department officials would go to Baghdad for the joint investigation with Iraq.

Hugs, president's words offer help

MAYPORT NAVAL STATION, Fla. (AP) — Families struggled to gain strength from one other's hugs and President Reagan's words of comfort during a memorial service Friday at which 1,200 people paid tribute to 37 USS Stark sailors.

Sailors in dress whites and young women holding babies and gray-haired mothers were among those crowding into the helicopter hangar used for the service at the Stark's home port. Several women wore dark glasses as they clenched their jaws. One had to be helped out of the service shortly after it began.

An estimated 300 to 500 relatives of the 37 sailors killed during an Iraqi air attack in the Persian Gulf on Sunday comforted one another as Reagan spoke. One young sailor hugged the woman seated on either side of him as they dabbed their eyes with tissues.

Most of those who were not relatives were sailors from Mayport and two other Navy bases in the area. Many wore small purple ribbons, the official color of the Stark.

Several members of the Stark crew, those who had left the ship before Sunday, were among those sitting on chairs set up in the 300-foot-long hangar. Behind the podium where Reagan delivered his remarks ling the official emblem of the USS Stark, bearing the motto "Strength for Freedom."

"The men of the USS Stark have protected us," Reagan said. "They have done their duty."

He defended America's presence in the Persian Gulf.

"Peace is at stake here, and so too is our nation's security, and our freedom." The fallen sailors of the USS Stark understood their obligations. They knew the importance of their job.

Following the 30-minute memorial service, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, moved down the long rows of family members. They greeted and hugged each relative, wives and husbands standing each other, many of their faces streaked with tears. The process took more than an hour.

The service also featured admirals reading from the Bible and a 21-gun salute. The sounds of sobs mingled with the playing of taps.

An earlier, private service also was offered to relatives at the tiny base chapel. By presidential order, immediate family members of those killed were flown in at Navy expense. Local hotels provided free rooms.

"It was a great comfort that he (Reagan) took time out to pay tribute to our boys," said Nancy Erwin, who lost her only son, Steven, 22, of Troy, Mich.

"I think it helps to know that other people care," she said, adding that she was moved by the ceremony attended by officials including Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, Navy Secretary James Webb, Gov. Bob Martinez and several congressmen.

Webb told the family members that they would always be a part of the Navy.

"Your sons, fathers and husbands purchased that guarantee," he said. "I pledge to you that neither you nor they will be forgotten."

Pilot abandons flight along Lindbergh route

NEW YORK (AP) — A pilot trying to duplicate Charles Lindbergh's 1927 solo New York-to-Paris flight abandoned the attempt after 7 1/2 hours Friday and landed his plane in Canada when he realized he was burning too much fuel, a spokesman said.

Mark Hirt, 24, landed the "Spirit of St. Louis" safely in St. John's, Newfoundland, about 2:30 p.m. EDT, said Win Perkins, a spokesman for the project.

Hirt took off from Kennedy International Airport at 7:12 a.m. with 100 gallons of fuel. He had hoped to land about 22 hours later, late Saturday morning French time. Le Bourget airport in Lindbergh did 69 years ago this week in the "Spirit of St. Louis."

"His fuel burn was higher than he anticipated," said Perkins. "He elected to terminate the flight at that point while he still had an airport beneath him." It was unclear why caused the experimental airplane's problem. "I think climbing to 7,500 feet, he used a lot more fuel to get up there than he thought he would." Hirt had packed chicken soup, potato chips and soft drinks along with the fuel and survival equipment for the journey. A brisk tailwind and clear skies aided him after takeoff.

About five hours after takeoff, the plane was 300 miles southwest of St. John's, and Perkins said the flight was on schedule with no reported problems.

"He got to Newfoundland, the last place he could make a decision like this, and decided it would not be prudent to try and make it across the ocean," said Perkins.

Perkins said Hirt was "a little dejected" right now. Hirt, of Kansas City, Mo., said his interest in planes began early, with model airplanes, then radio-controlled planes, then the real things. "I watched Jimmy Stewart in the 'Spirit of St. Louis' and this is just the realization of an eight-year dream," said Hirt. When he's not building and flying planes, he works for a newspaper delivery company.

Remains to arrive home next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bodies of the sailors killed aboard the USS Stark last Sunday will be flown from West Germany to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware next week, probably Tuesday, the Pentagon said Friday.

The bodies were flown earlier this week from the Persian Gulf nation of Bahrain to the Rhein Main Air Base in West Germany for positive identification.

Thirty-seven sailors died in the May 17 attack on the Stark and 35 bodies were recovered. Two men were lost at sea.

PTL officials want Bakker's bonus back

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — PTL ministry officials said Friday they have accounted for $80 million out of $92 million in missing donations and an environmental shower that includes a sauna.

Bakker resigned as PTL chairman March 19 after admitting to a 1980 sexual liaison with a church secretary, and turned the troubled cable television ministry over to the Rev. Jerry Falwell. Dortch resigned a few weeks later.

The ministry also announced it had raised $3.5 million in one week and was hoping to raise an additional $500,000 with an auction Saturday of items including a 7-foot bronze giraffe, a 1927 Franklin car, and an environmental shower that includes a sauna.

Nims said Bakker and his wife got $480,000 during the first 10 days of February alone. Hefty bonuses also went to former PTL President Richard Dortch, aide David Taggart, and Taggart's brother, an interior decorator used by PTL.

"Usually you get bonuses for success, but at the time they took the bonuses, this ministry was going down $1 million to $4 million per month. Those bonuses, when you add them up, are in seven figures," Nims said.

Bakker resigned as PTL chairman March 19 after admitting to a 1980 sexual liaison with a church secretary, and turned the troubled cable television ministry over to the Rev. Jerry Falwell. Dortch resigned a few weeks later.

The Washington Post on Friday reported further allegations about Bakker's sexual activities, quoting a circus ringmaster turned preacher saying he once found Bakker "frolicking in the nude" with three men in a steam room.

However, the newspaper quoted other sources as saying that when Bakker learned two employees were engaged in wife-swapping, he docked their pay and exiled one to a television station in Canton, Ohio.

Money was the focus of Friday's news conference. A week after declaring $92 million had disappeared into "a black hole," Nims said he and other PTL officials are more optimistic.

Speechwriter flays Post over death coverage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anthony Dolan, President Reagan's chief speechwriter, attacked The Washington Post on Friday for "a fraud upon the public" in its coverage of the death of his brother, conservative activist John T. "Terry" Dolan.

In a two-page advertisement in The Washington Times headlined "What The Washington Post doesn't tell its readers," Dolan said the Post had broken its word to his family before publishing a story on May 11, which discussed the reaction among conservatives to the death of Terry Dolan last Dec. 28.

The Post said Terry Dolan, chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, had died as a result of complications of AIDS.

"The greatest and most malicious falsehood in this story was its entire thrust: its basis—the claim that my brother lived, and died a homosexual," Anthony Dolan wrote. "The truth — which I believe the Post editors did not want to print or believe — is about as obvious as the day-after-the-progay bias they sought to promote through this story — was my brother's deep religious conversion and his complete and total rejection of homosexuality as immoral." "The Post's story, as it stands, was a fraud upon the public," Dolan added.

He went on to say that "finally and most important, the Post broke its word — repeated on many occasions — to give the Dolan family a chance to respond to this attack on my brother."

Benjamin C. Bradlee, Post executive editor, said he did not return a reporter's telephone call seeking comment.

In the ad, Dolan referred to "the callous manner in which they broke their word. There is no excuse for this. It is the worst sin a newspaper can commit — the refusal to hear both sides of the story."

Reached at his White House office, Dolan said the ad, which filled two full pages, cost $5,000 and was paid for by the Dolan family.

When Terry Dolan died, at age 36, his physician, Dr. Cesar A. Careres, said death was due to congestive heart failure brought on by an enlargement of the heart for unknown reasons.

In its obituary, the Post said the condition was a result of AIDS.

Air Force trainer, private plane collide; 4 die

TEHACHAPI, Calif. (AP) — An Air Force training jet and a single-engine private plane collided Friday over the Tehachapi mountains north of Los Angeles, killing all four people aboard the two aircraft, the Air Force said.

Two Air Force officers were aboard the T-38 Talon from Edwards Air Force Base, and two people were in the civilian plane, said Air Force Sgt. Darren Dirk. The names of the dead were not released.

"The debris" spread out over a very large area, said Kern County Sheriff Lt. Jack Campbell. The private plane, a Cessna P-208, was owned by Pacific Aerographics of Santa Ana and may have been on a topographical mission for geological studies, said Russell

Park, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Los Angeles. He said there was an unconfirmed report the Cessna had taken off from China Lake Naval Weapons Station in the eastern Mojave Desert.

Park said the T-38, from the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards, was flying in support of an F-15 on a test mission in a military operating area.

Civilian planes are allowed to fly through the area where the crash occurred under visual flight rules, Park added. Kern County sheriff's deputies secured the site after the 12:18 p.m. MDT accident, and the Air Force set up a command post.

reported to Kern County authorities that he saw a parachute. An Air Force rescue team in a helicopter searched for survivors, but found none, said Dirk.

Kern County firefighters contained two grass and brush fires triggered by the crash.

The crash occurred in the Cameron Canyon area about eight miles east of the city of Tehachapi and about 140 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Wildlife group dropping Swan Falls protest

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Wildlife Federation, representing hunters and fishermen, is dropping its protest against the Swan Falls water rights agreement between the state and Idaho Power Co., said a spokesman on Friday.

The move clears another obstacle toward passage of the agreement by Congress. The agreement guarantees IPC a minimum stream flow at its hydroelectric dams and also reaching consequences for the future of agricultural development in the state.

"We don't feel Swan Falls is a good agreement biologically, but it is politically inevitable," says Keith Henderson, executive director of the federation which has about 1,500 members in Idaho.

Rep.-Richard Stallings-D-Idaho, has added some language to his bill which makes it more acceptable, says Henderson. "We are reluctantly dropping our protest. There is no sense in beating a dead horse," Henderson says.

The Idaho Congressional delegation wants Congress to order the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to approve the agreement. FERC, which licenses hydroelectric dams, has had the agreement before it for years but has not approved it.

The agreement was hammered out in 1984 after years of tumultuous debate which pitted agricultural water users against IPC rate payers and stockholders.

It was approved by the Senate with little debate about its environmental consequences but has been stalled in the House since at least last March when representatives of the National Wildlife Federation, Audubon Society and Friends of the Earth protested.

The Idaho Wildlife Federation urged Stallings to conduct hearings regarding the financial and environmental impacts of the 3900 cubic-feet-per-second flows specified in the agreement. Hearings were never conducted.

Idaho Wildlife and the other environmental groups feel the 3900 cfs flow will damage fish and wildlife at the Deer Flats National Wildlife Refuge on the Snake River by depriving them of adequate water.

"It's a politically based figure, not one based on biology," Henderson said.

Stallings accepted two amendments to his bill offered by Idaho Wildlife. One requires FERC to include the State of Idaho, the National Marine Fisheries Service, the U.S. Department of the Interior, IPC and the Idaho Natural Resources Legal Foundation in its certification of the agreement.

The other amendment says FERC's approval of the agreement would not affect the ability of a federal agency to argue for a reserved water right at the appropriate place to protect fish and wildlife.

These amendments together with a suggestion to adequately fund U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service studies of the Snake's resources are before the House Energy and Commerce Committee, says Cary Jones, an aide to Stallings. A spokesman for the committee who was familiar with the Swan Falls legislation could not be reached for comment Friday on the status of the bill.

Rain gives Blaine, Camas farmers a break

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

Although almost two inches of rain fell in Blaine and Camas counties last weekend, water supplies are still low and the drought of 1987 is still alive and kicking.

The rain gave farmers a one-week reprieve on irrigation demand and may have saved the first crop of hay. But it did little to help reservoir levels in the area.

The approximately 1.8 inches of rain that fell on Blaine County a week ago may have extended the irrigation season a week, said Blaine County Extension Agent Rod McCoy. Cut-off dates for reservoirs in the area had been estimated at July or August.

Carey farmer Ray Sweat said the rain was as beneficial as one watering of his 160 acres of hay and grain. But if the weather stays dry, "it's going to make everybody pretty careful."

Some of the farmers probably wouldn't have gotten even one crop of alfalfa off their land without the soaking, Sweat said, and other farmers probably wouldn't have harvested their grain.

McCoy said the rain might reduce the loss on the first crop of alfalfa from 50 percent to 20 percent.

However, he said the rainfall wouldn't reduce crop losses significantly.

Last week, the Cooperative Extension Service estimated crop and livestock losses in Blaine County to be $9 million, and in Camas County, losses were estimated at $3 million.

But that rainfall only added about three days of water to Little Wood Reservoir, according to Boyd Stocking, Upper Little Wood River watermaster.

He said about 1,000 acre feet of water flowed into Little Wood Reservoir from the rains. Before the rain, farmers were drawing about 300 acre feet of water from the reservoir each day.

He did say most of the farmers on the 13,000 acres that are irrigated with reservoir water turned off their sprinklers this week and he's estimating the water system will be out of water about the middle of July now.

Before the rain, Stocking said, he was estimating a cut-off date of July 1.

Although the storm reduced irrigation demand through most of eastern Idaho, it won't have much effect on reservoir levels, said Hydrologist Bill Ondrechen of the state Department of Water Resources.

"If we had one every month during the summer, it would make a difference," Ondrechen said.

He said the snow at the mountain sites where the state measures snowpacks is about the depth as it would be in June during a normal year — in other words, gone.

"Basically, all sites in the southern part of the state are melted out," he said, except for some snow on northern slopes.

Streams will soon be flowing at August and September levels, although he didn't know exactly when that would be.

"That level is too low to satisfy irrigation demands," he said. "Only those with early water rights will have any water."

McCoy said the farmers drawing water directly out of the Big Wood River and Fish Creek without the benefit of reservoir storage are going to "be in trouble real soon."

The same rainstorm dropped about the same amount of rain on Camas County, said Brian Miller of the Camas County Soil Conservation District.

And like the Blaine County storm, it didn't solve the problem.

"We still need more rain," he said. "It definitely helped, but every little bit helps."

He said some of the alfalfa in Camas County had received so little water that last week's rainstorm may not help, because the plants were already under too much stress.

Miller said he didn't know if the rainfall would reduce crop losses, and the Camas County Extension Agent was unavailable for comment Friday.

There was one bright spot in the drought situation since last week, though.

McCoy said rain kept falling on higher-elevation pastures through much of the week, "and those pastures were looking 'lush.'"

Rupert reviews plans for A Street

By ADELL HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council this week reviewed plans for the A Street improvement project.

It is "one of the biggest potential improvement districts to come our way in a long time," Mayor Bill Whitton said. "This is a massive project with so many benefits for our city."

The project calls for sidewalks, curbs, gutters, underground laterals and visibility clearances on intersections for all of A Street from Highways 24 and 25 to county road 100 South.

Whitton said that $500,000 of the total amount of $700,000 for the project has already been allocated from federal gas tax money. "This will not increase property taxes or city fees," he emphasized.

Public Works Director Eric Peterson said the Department of Transportation conducted public hearings in Rupert last week to address property owners' questions. Peterson said there was "positive feedback from the public, and the proposal was very well received."

Peterson displayed the project specifications and encouraged council members to study them thoroughly. According to Peterson, they would also be open to the public to "come in and look at the drawings," which are on display at City Hall.

In other business:

- Whitton reported he is also working with numerous government agencies, seeking help to develop several community programs. One possible project Whitton feels the community needs is a senior housing program, a care facility somewhere "between private residence and nursing home care." He indicated two individuals in Rupert last week are investing in such a project, and there is still the possibility of receiving help from some federal agency.
- The council reviewed the city employee insurance program and decided to stay with the current plan through June. A committee of Councilman Hank Conroy and Peterson will review alternative plans, in an attempt to get the deductibles lowered from the current $200 individual and $500 family rates.

"Those deductibles are just too high for the average employee to deal with," Peterson said.

Whitton announced that Jim Hawkins, director of the Department of Commerce, will be in Rupert from 10 a.m. till noon on June 2 to do a "walk through" of local projects. He will be shown a slide presentation of the city's sewer problems, and will also visit Kraft and Magic Valley Foods.

Thundering fly-by

Twin Falls student, Cpt. Lance Undhjem, now a pilot in the squad. The Thunderbirds on their way to Mountain Home for an air show, gave the city a fly-by at the same time the students were outside on drills. Inset, Undhjem's mother, Virginia, a teacher at O'Leary Junior High, behind, and fellow teacher Gloria Harder observed the brief visit.

Memorial Day: Flags go on veterans' graves this weekend

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Flags will be placed on the graves of veterans this weekend and at least two American Legion posts will hold memorial services Monday to commemorate Memorial Day.

Today, 50 to 75 volunteers and the American Legion Auxiliary will place 400 flags at the veterans' graves at Twin Falls Cemetery and Sunset Memorial Park, said Roland Gardner, the commander of American Legion Post #7 in Twin Falls.

He estimated the number of veterans in Twin Falls cemeteries at 500.

In Twin Falls and Wendell, the American Legion Posts are sponsoring memorial services at 11 a.m. Monday.

The memorial service in Twin Falls includes participants from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, the Vietnam Veterans and Pearl Harbor Survivors are participating at the memorial at Sunset Memorial Park.

Gardner said the ceremony will start at 11 a.m. The Rev. Gregory Winkle of the First United Brethren Church will give the welcome and speech.

Chaplain Ken Shew will present a prayer followed by the traditional 30-second silent prayer.

A memorial service will also be held at the Wendell Cemetery, said Mike Spelman, commander of the Wendell American Legion Post.

The service will also be at 11 a.m. and State American Legion Commander Dee Collins will give the speech.

All schools in the state will have the day off. Twin Falls garbage will be picked up one day late through the week, said Barbara Heeling of Parks and Sons.

The postal service will not deliver mail on Monday and all state offices and some businesses, such as banks, will be closed.

H&W task force tackles problems with in-home nursing care set-up

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — And they're off. A state Department of Health and Welfare task force is on the road to smooth out problems with its Personal Care Services program, which offers in-home nursing care as an alternative to living in a nursing home.

"We heard from a lot of people working right on the line with Personal Care Services," said Task Force Chairman Ken Patterson, H&W regional director in Coeur d'Alene.

He said eight people, including social workers, aides and people who train the aides offered observations and suggestions at a task force hearing last week in Boise.

H&W's administration of Personal Care Services came under fire for delays in crucial aspects of the system — from patients becoming eligible for the services to paying aides once the patient is on board.

Kelly Buckland, co-chairman of the Idaho Disabilities Coalition, said he told the task force that "it takes three months to become eligible and that's too long."

IDC prompted the appointment of the task force by lobbying Gov. Cecil Andrus and H&W officials, he said. Patterson said that since no portion of the system was to blame for the problems, the task force divided into committees to study different aspects of the same problems.

"It's no one part of the system that can always be faulted," Patterson said.

Patterson said part of the eligibility snafu stems from securing two doctor's orders. A doctor must first certify that a patient requires nursing home care, and then certify that the patient could live on his own with PCS, he said.

Patterson said one option to ease eligibility backlog is to give all Medicaid patients the option of PCS. But opening up PCS that much might strain the need for providers and further tax budgetary restraints, he said.

PCS helps handicapped or elderly people who don't need full-time nursing care. Instead of paying for the full care of a nursing home, those eligible can get an apartment, hire aides for specific hourly work and still save money.

Through Medicaid funding, PCS brings about $2.66 in federal money in Idaho for every dollar the state spends on the program. And PCS is only granted when in-home services are proven cheaper than institutionalization.

Primary recipients of PCS are physically and mentally handicapped and the elderly. Dave Humphrey, H&W administrator for field operations, who appointed the 13-member task force, estimated there are 340 PCS recipients in the state.

While no one disputes the value of PCS, its administration "has been criticized."

Brent Marchbanks, a Boise attorney specializing in these cases, earlier told the Times-News that about 75 "handicapped" people registered PCS complaints with him during the past 18 months. Beyond eligibility problems, H&W fell far behind in paying some aides, he said.

Buckland said he echoed those concerns about the shortage of aides or providers, who are "ridiculously paid at $5 per hour, and not reimbursed for mileage."

Patterson said there were about 600 registered providers in the state, but that more may be needed. He added that the level of pay will also be addressed by the task force.

Patterson said three committees were appointed: a study, administrative, provider, and payment

Significance of first nuclear event not realized — scientists

IDAHO FALLS (AP)—The significance of the first production of electricity by nuclear power was not fully realized by many participants 36 years ago, say scientists and technicians involved in the event.

Those nuclear pioneers were honored Thursday as the American Nuclear Society dedicated Experiment' Breeder Reactor I at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory as a nuclear historic site.

"It was just getting a job done," said Reid Cameron, a member of Argonne National Laboratory's technical staff when electricity was first produced at EBR I on Dec. 20, 1951.

"We built the thing and we had to make it run," said Bertie Cerutti, who was an Argonne engineer.

But Walter Zinn, ANL laboratory director, and EBR I project director and designer, knew immediately the significance of their feat.

"I think he was probably the most elated one of the group," said Kirby Whitlam, another engineer who also was one of 16 people who operated the reactor 36 years ago.

"I think he realized the magnitude of what we did more than anyone else," said Cerutti.

But the promise of EBR I, a sodium-cooled reactor, has not been fully realized. Nuclear power has blossomed, and withered, as the industry used only water-cooled, non-breeding reactors.

"They missed the boat," said Whitlam. "We could have built a water reactor or a gas-cooled reactor, but it looked like a sodium-cooled reactor had more air tributes."

Sodium-cooled breeder reactors are more efficient, produce more fuel than they use and have more built-in safety features than water reactors that are used for nuclear power production in the United States today, Whitlam said.

It is the safety features that are more again being considered, with the design that was overlooked by nuclear planners 36 years ago, EBR I needed an auxiliary cooling system since it used simple convection to cool from its high operating temperatures.

"A typical day here we'd come in at eight, fire it up and at four we'd shut it off," Whitlam. "When you knew it was coming, you'd shut it off."

In modern nuclear power plants, a shutdown or startup is a major procedure.

Alfred Christensen, president of Control Equipment Co. in Salt Lake City, was a visitor from General Electric when EBR I was first critical on Aug. 24, 1951.

"Our lab already had 2,000 to 3,000 people and here was the world's first power reactor operated by 12 to 15 people," he said. "I was impressed."

The technology demonstrated at EBR I may yet prevail. Argonne is developing a third generation of breeder technology called the Integral Fast Reactor.

The IFR uses sodium coolant with a metal nuclear fuel that is housed in a compact package that includes reprocessing and waste management facilities.

"In the end you have to go to a fast breeder because it makes more fuel than it burns," said Whitlam.

In addition to Whitlam, Cameron and Cerutti, Wes Molen and Jay Barrow, who were also at EBR I in 1951, attended the dedication.

All signed their names on a blackboard in the building the day following that historic day. The blackboard, seen by more than 7,000 visitors annually, has a devilish figure drawn above the names.

Cameron, who drew the figure, said he has often been asked what it meant.

"When my daughter was asked that she said, 'It doesn't mean anything. My dad just draws them everywhere.'"

Former BYU curator pleads 'no contest' in art works case

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Former Brigham Young University art curator Wes Burnside Friday pleaded "no contest" to unlawful dealing in school property following an investigation into the disappearance of more than 1,000 art works worth an estimated $2 million.

Burnside, who served as acquisitions director for BYU for more than 10 years until his 1983 retirement, entered the plea before 10th Circuit Judge Lynn Davis. The plea was the result of an agreement with prosecutors.

Utah County Attorney Steve Killpack said Burnside has been promised immunity from future prosecution on condition he disclose all he knows about the case.

Davis noted that it was Burnside's first offense—imposed no jail time during sentencing that followed the plea, but did fine Burnside $500. The judge said the fine had to be paid by June 30.

"My client wants to have this behind him. He will cooperate with investigative authorities and prosecutors," said Casey Christensen, Burnside's attorney. "But we make no admission to any guilt. He entered the plea simply in order to remove the pressures that were attendant."

"The way BYU has played this in the press, even an innocent person could be convicted," Christensen said.

Killpack said prosecutors hope Burnside will help them further investigate the case. "Hopefully," it will result in more serious charges against others, he said.

The missing art, including the works of 19th Century Impressionist J. Alden Weir, a painting by Claude Monet, and a sketch by Rembrandt, were discovered missing during an inventory completed last August.

An eight-month investigation followed involving five full-time BYU police officers, art investigators from San Francisco and New York City, FBI agents and law enforcement agencies from across the country, said BYU spokesman Paul Richards.

Wendell takes bids on lagoon project

BY TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL—Preliminary bidding on the lagoon grant in Wendell has begun.

The city is advertising for bids from this week through June 1. Sealed bids will be opened at a special City Council meeting June 18 at 5 p.m., with the bid award to be announced a week later at the regular council meeting.

At the last council meeting, J. L. A. "Bud" Raab, mayor, said he predicted the city will get a good volume of bids.

Construction on the lagoon project could begin as soon as the contractor is selected, he said.

"They'll probably be anxious to start on it right away," Raab predicted.

In other business, the council granted a variance request to Lloyd Lantz to build a garage to the property line of an alley right-of-way.

Harry Thurston requested a variance of about three feet into a street setback requirement for the purpose of building a carport. The council agreed to advertise the variance request and send letters of intent to residents near Thurston, at Thurston's expense.

Fire Chief Keith Hosack was granted his request for $1,000 to help pay for a one-ton 1973 International truck with a utility body, recently purchased by the volunteer firemen of Wendell. The firemen spent the money they get for attending fires to buy the truck, which will be used to carry extinguishing equipment and extra fire-fighting equipment.

The council also agreed to spend $120 to close four windows on the west side of the fire station with cinder blocks and stucco.

Ford says too soon to blame for Stark

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—It is too early to assess blame for the Iraqi missile attack on the USS Stark, although a ship's captain responsible for incidents at sea, former President Gerald R. Ford says.

"I think it is premature to assess any blame about who was responsible for our ineffectiveness in responding to the attack. Those of us who served in the Navy... know the law of the Navy: The captain is responsible."

Ford told a packed auditorium at Weber State College here Thursday.

"But in this case, I don't want to level any blame until the full facts as to what transpired have been laid out," the former president said.

Ford also defended the American military's presence in the Persian Gulf as being in the interests of the United States and its allies, since 30 percent of the world's crude oil is shipped through the volatile waterway.

The former president fielded a host of questions from students, ranging from the Stark tragedy to the downfall of former presidential candidate Gary Hart.

Ford defended the Reagan Administration's motives in seeking to improve relations with Iran.

"But under current circumstances, to undertake an initiative with the Ayatollah and his gang would be the worst operation," Ford said. "And when you have high-risk activity, you'd better supervise it. The truth is nobody was supervising it."

The media scrutiny that made public Gary Hart's relationship with a Miami woman and prompted his withdrawal from the presidential race was "absolutely" justified, Ford said.

"I think any person running for the presidency of the United States should have his private and public life up to full view," he said.

On his speech, Ford focused on the U.S. Constitution, which is the focus of celebrations and events throughout the country commemorating the document's 200th anniversary.

There will be some criticism of the Constitution by those who feel it will not be applicable in future decades, but Ford said it is too rigid or too flexible, Ford said.

Throughout history, power has swung like a pendulum from the executive branch to the legislative branch, he said.

"What we really want is balance... not the extreme here or the extreme there. We don't want an imperial presidency," he said.

Ford also criticized the 1973 War Powers Act, calling it "impractical and unconstitutional" for requiring that Congress be consulted and given a 60-day review period before the U.S. may enter a war.

Nozzle test for shuttle booster postponed

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP)—Delays on a series of nozzle tests won't affect plans by Morton Thiokol Inc. to conduct the first full-scale test-firing of a partially redesigned space shuttle booster rocket next Wednesday, a company spokesman said Friday.

Next week's test will proceed as scheduled at 11 a.m. EDT despite a 23-hour delay in the first of a series of Nozzle Joint Environment Simulator tests, said spokesman Rocky Raab.

The tests had been scheduled for 3 p.m. EDT Friday at Thiokol's northern Utah plant, but was delayed when lightning strikes in the vicinity forced workers to halt preparations.

The test was rescheduled for Saturday at 11 a.m. EDT, but Raab said additional delays were possible because of continued chamber stress tests.

Raab said company policy required employees to evacuate the building where they were working because of concern lightning could ignite the 65 pounds of solid propellant packed into the test device.

"When you're working with live propellant, you can't want to be in a building when lightning strikes," Raab said. "Preparations are continuing as best as we can."

But Raab said the nozzle test was not affected by the more than a 24-hour full-scale test planned for Wednesday.

The company has been working on a redesigned nozzle since a presidential commission found that a joint failure was responsible for the explosion that destroyed the shuttle Challenger Jan. 28, 1986, and killed its seven-member crew.

The purpose of the NJEST test is to study the nozzle-to-case joint in its original booster rocket configuration used on the Challenger mission. Raab said the NJEST test will incorporate new, anti-oxidant O-ring materials.

However, he said an intentional leak has been built into the test article's insulation putty to allow gas pressure to reach the rings. During the Challenger disaster, experts say, super-hot vapors escaped and ignited an external fuel tank, causing the explosion.

Previous nozzle tests have used pressurized water rather than fuel.

In Wednesday's test, engineers will load a 126-foot-long booster rocket with more than 1 million pounds of fuel for a two-minute test firing.

One of the booster's three joints will use O-rings made of a rubberized material used in the Challenger's booster rockets. A third will be made of silicone. Further, more, the joint joints will be wrapped with graphite fiber. The joints will be sealed with same type of putty that was used in the Challenger launch.

Heaters will be fitted to each joint maintain a constant 75-degree temperature, Raab said.

Man drowns in Snake River
HAGERMAN—A 39-year-old man drowned Friday afternoon in the Snake River in Hagerman Valley, according to Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn.

Munn said details of the drowning were still under investigation, but that it appears accidental. He declined to release the name of the man until relatives are notified.

The man and a companion were repairing a pipe-line running along the bottom of the Snake River when the incident occurred at about 12:45 p.m., Munn said. Both men were using oxygen tanks while working at the site about a quarter mile north of the Sportsman's Lodge, he said.

The companion apparently got the man out of the water, but the man was pronounced dead at the hospital, Munn said.

Academy hopefuls invited to apply

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Idaho Sen. Jim McClure announces he is accepting applications for the nation's naval, military, Air Force and Merchant Marine academies for the class of 1992.

"Applicants must be United States citizens, be single and have no other child and without children, McClure said. They must be at least 17 years old and not older than 22 on July 1, 1988.

"I strongly urge students to apply now for the classes entering the academies in July 1988," the senator said. Initial letters of application should be sent to him at the Hart Senate Office Building, Room SH-309, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Mexican economy still weak

MEXICAN ECONOMY

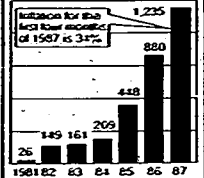

Foreign debt:
What they owe
in billions of dollars

Growth in the GDP:
(Gross Domestic Product)

Pesos to the dollar:
Exchange rate for the last four months of 1987

Source: Associated Press

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, with the developing world's second highest foreign debt, will probably qualify for $500 million in special foreign loans to help pull its sluggish economy out of recession, government and private economists say.

The $500 million account was provided for when the Mexican special committee recently negotiated a $7.7 billion loan agreement with its bank creditors. The agreement provided that the extra money would be made available for investment projects if the economy was slow to recuperate in the first quarter of the year.

Both economists and government officials indicate it was.

The slow performance of Mexico's economy is a fresh sign of the economic woes of the Latin American debtor nations. Earlier this week, Citicorp, the second biggest U.S. banking company, set aside $3 billion to cover possible losses on foreign loans. It also gave a gloomy economic forecast for the region.

The Mexican economy has been hurt by falling oil prices, inflation and a delay in negotiating the loan agreement.

A high-level government official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Mexico will likely be able to tap the additional loans.

"Most likely that (money) will be drawn," he said in a recent interview.

"They will get the money," said Rogelio Ramirez de la O, who has a private economic forecasting firm in Mexico City. The economy as a whole, he said, "is very weak yet" and is unlikely to begin turning up until next year.

Neither the government nor the bankers has made an official announcement about disbursement of the money.

Under terms of the arrangement, Mexico would be eligible for the money if economic activity increased less than 1 percent in the first quarter of the year, said a government analyst, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The index of manufacturing production, used as the trigger for the account, fell a hefty 5.7 percent in January and 5.5 percent in February, he said.

The analyst also said preliminary figures for March show a decline of 0.1 percent, which would give an average fall of 3.8 percent in the first quarter. This would be well under the trigger provided for the additional loans.

The Center for Private Sector Economic Studies, the research arm of the nation's leading business group, estimated in a recent report that the economy, as measured by the gross domestic product, contracted about 1 percent in the first three months of the year.

As a result, analysts both inside and outside the government are predicting a stagnant — no growth — economy or a gain of just 1 percent to 2 percent in the inflation-adjusted gross domestic product.

The economy contracted a sharp 3.8 percent last year, a decline spurred in part by plunging oil prices on the world market. Mexico's economic health is heavily dependent on foreign revenues from oil sales.

The economic recovery, said Ramirez de la O, "has taken much longer than expected" partly because of the delay in the nation's negotiations with commercial bankers for the new financing package.

Mexico argued it needed fresh loans from its creditors to start the economy. Some bankers, however, were reluctant to put up more money. Mexico has a foreign debt of more than $100 billion, the second highest in the developing world after Brazil's $108 billion.

The agreement with the bankers for $7.7 billion in loans was signed March 20 and, according to the Treasury Department, $3.5 billion, was drawn April 30.

International financial organizations, such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, and industrialized governments offered Mexico an additional $6.7 billion in credits and other aid for a total rescue package of $14.4 billion.

The fresh money, analysts say, has helped boost the nation's international reserves to more than $12 billion, nearly double the $6.8 billion of last December.

The reserves also have been lifted by a continuing return of money Mexicans had invested abroad, estimated by the government at roughly $200 million a month so far this year.

The reversal of the capital flight has been attributed to the government's tight credit policy, which has made loans to the private sector scarce and forced businessmen to bring back money to finance their operations. Also, high interest rates have made Mexican investments attractive.

The government had forecast an inflation rate of 70 percent to 80 percent for all of 1987, well under last year's record 105.7 percent.

But consumer prices soared 34 percent in the first four months of the year, well ahead of the 25 percent recorded in the same period a year ago.

Economists have predicted annual inflation of 115 percent to 135 percent, blamed largely on reduced government subsidies for goods and services like gasoline and public transportation.

Citicorp stressed it was not hardening its bargaining position in debt negotiations and said it would attempt to convert some of its foreign loans into equity investments in Latin America.

Brazil suspended interest payments three months ago on $67 billion it owes to foreign commercial banks. Brazil has not made principal payments since 1982.

Brazilian President Jose Sarney said his country was forced to suspend interest payments to preserve its foreign reserves in the face of a shrinking trade surplus.

The left-leaning newspaper Uno Mas Uno said in an editorial Thursday that Citicorp's decision recognizes that "the nominal value of credits to the developing world is greater than its real value, and that is the criterion the creditors should use for collecting and accounting."

Latin American nations as a whole owe $300 billion to creditors worldwide, including $68 billion to American banks.

Richard Handley said the bank has no intention of pulling out of that South American country. He noted that the bank is involved in a new Mexican-Argentine project to build a natural gas line from Neuquen in southwestern Argentina to Buenos Aires.

Mexico, which makes only interest payments, is not expected to return to the negotiating table for a fresh financing agreement before late 1988 at the earliest. It recently obtained $7.7 billion in new loans as part of a $14.4 billion financial rescue package.

Colonel in control of affairs in Fiji

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — The governor general retained executive power in a compromise Friday after his election last month.

Rabuka is a member of the council and chairman of a nine-member committee drawn from the council that will rewrite the constitution to ensure ethnic Fijians the political dominance over the council has only three.

Marcos followers in protest

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — pro-Marcos New Society Movement. Deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos said Friday he hoped his followers would not start trouble as 5,000 opposition supporters marched and chanted "Down with Cory" to protest last week's congressional election.

Government television was knocked off the air for most of the day after station officials said someone removed a piece of equipment affecting the transmitter.

There was no word on who was responsible. Radio and television stations previously have been targets of conspirators during periods of political tension. Officials said they hoped to resume broadcasting Saturday.

Latin America takes decision in stride

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Citicorp's decision to protect itself against bad foreign loans set off no shock waves Thursday in Latin America, where governments and businesses are braced to handle difficult debt situations.

"We think it's a good move for Citicorp. We don't see anything harmful for us," said a key official at the central bank of Mexico, who agreed to be interviewed only on condition of anonymity.

Citicorp, the largest bank in the United States, announced Tuesday that it planned to set aside $3 billion to cover possible losses on foreign loans.

"The largest debtor nations in the Third World are Brazil, with a $108 billion foreign debt, Mexico with more than $100 billion owed and Argentina with a foreign debt of $52 billion.

"It's (Citicorp) simply facing up to reality," the bank of Mexico official said. "European and Japanese banks have been recognizing reality faster than the American banks."

A non-American foreign banker based in Mexico City said he expected the biggest impact of the Citicorp move to be on other banks in the United States which now must decide whether they should take similar positions.

"Personally, I think it's a wise move. It recognizes the real position of the American," the foreign banker said, also speaking on condition of anonymity. "I imagine it puts a lot of pressure on the other American banks to make a decision as to what they'll do."

The banker said his institution already has adopted measures to protect itself against the Third World debt situation and he did not expect Citicorp's move to make future debt negotiations any more tense than they are already.

"I can't think of many banks that are lending voluntarily to Latin American countries at the moment," he said.

The Bank of Mexico official said Citicorp sent advance word to Mexico City of its decision. He said government officials don't expect that the amount of credit available in the future will drop as a result of it.

If Mexico comes up with a sound project and presents it to Citicorp, the official predicted, "They will go for it."

In Argentina, local Citibank head Richard Handley said the bank has no intention of pulling out of that South American country. He noted that the bank is involved in a new Mexican-Argentine project to build a natural gas line from Neuquen in southwestern Argentina to Buenos Aires.

Egypt, creditors agree to reschedule debts

PARIS (AP) — Egypt and its Western creditor governments agreed to reschedule about $12 billion of the country's debt during a meeting in Paris, diplomatic sources said Friday.

The amount includes arrears and covers 100 percent of principal and interest payments that are due between January 1987 and June 1988, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Details were not immediately available.

Participants at the two-day meeting said the agreement fell short of the Egyptians' wish to stretch their repayments over 15 years with a seven-year grace period.

Taking part in the Paris meeting were government representatives from Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan, Kuwait, the Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The group of representatives, from creditor governments, meets regularly to examine debt-rescheduling requests from cash-strapped nations.

Egypt's total foreign debt is almost $40 billion.

The United States is Egypt's biggest creditor government, accounting for about half of the $12 billion rolled over by the Paris meeting.

Moslem-Hindu riots rage in India's capital

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Moslems armed with daggers and swords stormed out of India's largest mosque Friday and attacked Hindus in the ancient center of the capital. Four people were killed and 134 injured, officials said.

In Meerut, 45 miles northeast of New Delhi, more people died overnight in a fifth day of Hindu-Moslem rioting, the United News of India reported.

The rioting in New Delhi occurred after the army lifted a three-day curfew to allow 2,000 Moslems to pray in Jama Masjid mosque in Old Delhi.

Arvind Kaul, a businessman who lost an eye in the riot, said Moslems armed with daggers, swords, hockey sticks and iron rods poured out of the mosque and "attacked Hindu shops and also Hindus on the street." Kiran Bedi, a local police chief, told reporters that Moslems "leaving the mosque chanted 'We want Babri Masjid' back with us," a reference to a disputed shrine in Uttar Pradesh state. Last year, an Indian court opened the shrine to worship by Hindus only. Moslems claim it is a historic mosque.

Police said at least 40 shops were looted or set ablaze.

Hospital officials said four people died and more than 134 were injured in the ensuing riots. Most of the casualties were Hindu. Officials said it was the second outbreak of rioting this week in Old New Delhi.

20,000 Swedes line streets to welcome Dutch royal couple

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands and Prince Claus toured Stockholm's picturesque old town Friday after receiving a warm welcome on the first visit here by Dutch royalty in 30 years.

The Dutch royal couple were accompanied by King Carl Gustav and Queen Silvia as they strolled through the narrow streets of Gamla Stan, old town.

Sunny skies marked the first break in nearly two weeks of gloomy weather here. Gardeners, meanwhile, put the finishing touches on a gift display of more than 14,000 Dutch flowers at City Hall.

Police estimated that 20,000 people lined the streets to welcome Beatrix and Claus as they rode to the royal palace in a horse-drawn carriage on Thursday. Later that day, Beatrix visited museums and got a briefing on how the Swedish Academy of Science chooses Nobel Prize winners.

Following Friday's tour, Beatrix opened a symposium on labor problems and visited a vocational training center.

Twelve veterans of the band are taking part in the tour, including guitarist Tommy Johnston, the hard-rocking first leader of the band, and keyboardist Michael McDonald, who succeeded Johnston in 1972 and led the Doobies' transition to a bluesy, street-rock sound.

"(Tonight) was the best feeling I've had in 10 years playing with the band," said drummer Keith Knudsen. "I expected it to be a little nervousness, a little loose (musically)." However, he said, "We laughed a lot out there."

The Doobies started playing biker bars in the San Francisco Bay area in 1969 and made their last album in 1980. Their hits include "Rockin' Down the Highway," "Jesus Is Just Alright" and "Minnie by Minnie."

34 countries, 25,000 miles later Wheelchair hero makes world trip

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — When Rick Hansen left a Vancouver shopping plaza 26 months ago vowing to circle the globe in his wheelchair, some thought he'd be lucky to reach Seattle.

But 34 countries and 25,000 miles later, Hansen burst through a yellow "Welcome Home" ribbon Friday in bright sunshine and completed his odyssey as a national hero.

"It's almost like a dream or something," he said as he entered Okridge shopping center, where his trip began.

About 20,000 people lined streets and parking lots in a bolsterous welcome, many waving yellow ribbons at Hansen, who wore a blue athletic shirt. He waved back to the left and right.

Organizers estimated that he turned the wheel of his customized wheelchair 16 million times to complete a journey he had dreamed of for a decade.

"It's an incredible feeling to travel this far for so long and to finish off on a positive note," he said as his "Man in Motion" tour resumed Friday.

The 29-year-old wheelchair athlete, whose spinal cord was severed in a pickup truck accident when he was 15, propelled himself across the Swiss Alps, met Pope John Paul II and ascended the Great Wall of China on a journey to raise awareness about handicapped people and raise money for research.

His convoy-like entourage, including a motor home, became a familiar sight on Canadian highways as he zigzagged across the country. His total mileage exceeded the Earth's circumference.

Hansen lost track of how many gloves he wore out rolling his extended-frame wheelchair. And he dismissed the setbacks, such as the theft of customized clothing in New Zealand and a motor home crash in Florida.

In Shanghai, half the wheelchair athletes who joined Hansen on the road flocked to their wheelchairs and walked away after he left. The incident became known as the "Great China Miracle."

When he began the final push across Canada last August, there was just $129,000 in a trust fund Hansen had hoped would reach $7.5 million by the time he was through. But funds poured in as schoolchildren, housewives, workers and the disabled welcomed him on the westward trek to his home province of British Columbia. The total was expected to hit nearly $11.25 million because of a last-minute flurry of donations.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, calling Hansen "a fantastic ambassador," pledged $750,000 from the government.

One grateful mother, Janice Laberge, whose 5-month-old daughter was born with spina bifida, wept Thursday as she presented Hansen with $28,500 from the sawmill town of Mission.

Cradling her daughter, she said: "I want to thank you for providing a more hopeful and brighter future for her and other disabled children."

Hansen, Canada's champion disabled athlete in 1983, said Thursday the crowds had left him drained and he was struggling to remain composed.

"But don't let looks deceive you," he said. "Inside is just a raging fire of emotion."

In addition to raising money for spinal cord research, rehabilitation programs and disabled athletes, Hansen has convinced many municipalities to improve ramps and other facilities for the handicapped.

Hansen said he was inspired by Terry Fox, who lost a leg to cancer but ran a cross-Canada marathon in 1980 and raised $11 million for cancer research before succumbing to the disease.

Hansen's heroics brought criticism that he has set an example most disabled people cannot match.

"He's done a tremendous amount of damage to our image," said Jocelyn Level, a former world-class cyclist paralyzed in a 1983 accident. "When the media picture people in a wheelchair now, we're always supposed to be smiling or playing basketball. That's an outrageous lie."

But Hansen defended his mission, saying his only message was to do the best you can.

He returns with a warehouse full of gifts received around the world and plans to marry his physiotherapist Amanda Reid, complete an autobiography and return to wheelchair athletics.

Asked if he would miss the open road, he said: "Not at all. I'm looking forward to getting back on the road again of my life."

Texas pastor named 'Everyman's Father'

Dad awards: 1 unknown joins 9 celebs

NEW YORK (AP) — Texan Harold Halcomb was heralded as "Everyman's Father of the Year" on Thursday, while such famous fellow fathers as actor Ossie Davis, baseball star Bob Ojeda and U.S. Labor Secretary William Brock were honored as role models.

Also feted at the 52nd annual Father's Day Luncheon were NBC sportscaster Marv Albert; author Tom Clancy; New York Rangers General Manager Phil Esposito; U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani; NBC-TV "Today" show newscaster John Palmer and former Virginia Gov. Charles Robb.

Halcomb, pastor of the North End Baptist Church in Beaumont, Texas, said that if he could live his life over,

"I would ask God for some more children."

He and his wife, Patsy, have two daughters: Teri J. Halcomb Riley, 27, and Tina R. Halcomb, 16. Both were born prematurely and a doctor had told them that Tina might not survive.

"Being a father is one of the greatest honors and privileges any man could have," said Halcomb.

Ted Kaufman, chairman of the National Father's Day Committee, said recipients were chosen by a committee of previous winners. The purpose is to raise the reputation of fathers "from the level of Dagwood to a reliable guardian of the family."

"It means we're paying attention to the need for parents to be involved with their kids," said Brock. He and his wife, Sandra Schenbert Mitchell Brock, are the parents of six children.

"I love them very much. ... That makes life worth living," he said. "My family — nothing comes before that."

Brock also said he and his wife share household duties, noting that tradition had made it "too convenient for fathers to put the load on mothers."

Davis, who with his wife, actress Ruby Dee, has three children and four grandchildren, said kids who drop out of school need to be motivated by their parents.

"The difference between a winner and loser is motivation," said Davis.

Houston man wins World Series of Poker

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A Houston man drew to a pair of nines on the last card Thursday to beat a fellow Texan and win the $625,000 first prize in the 18th annual World Series of Poker.

Johnny Chan's nines topped a pair of fours for Frank Henderson, who had bet all of his $300,000 in chips in the showdown hand that climaxed the four-day unlimited Hold 'Em event at Binion's Horseshoe Club.

Chan, who outlasted 151 other poker professionals for the win. Each player put up $10,000 to enter the competition Monday.

Henderson, a mechanical engineer, put in all of his chips several times and won hands before losing the deciding hand. He won $250,000 for second place.

In the final hand, Chan held an ace and nine of clubs while Henderson had a pair of fours. The first four common cards turned over did neither player any good, and it was down to the final card.

To win, Chan needed either an ace or a nine on the final card turned over by the dealer. He got the nine.

Hold 'Em is a modified version of seven-card stud. Players are dealt two cards, then three cards are "flop" in the center of the table. After bets, two more cards are added, and a player makes his or her best hand.

parents. The couple remains unmarried, although they plan to marry in the future.

Jesse's case made headlines last June when the Right to Life League of Southern California charged that Loma Linda University Medical Center officials had, cited the parents' unmarried status and Ms. Binkley's age as factors in his initial decision to refuse him as a heart transplant candidate.

The hospital denied the charge. Officials asserted they were only concerned about the couple's ability to provide post-operative care, and reversed their decision after the grandparents agreed to accept legal custody.

The parents were on Phil Donahue's syndicated television talk show on June 10 when they learned that a Michigan couple who watched the program volunteered the heart of their brain-dead child as a donor for Jesse.

Business development group widens board representation

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Co., finding investors put off by regulatory delays and a perception of southern Idaho parochialism, has expanded the geographic representation of its board of directors in an attempt to spur more statewide interest in its stock offering.

"What we need is to have the state of Idaho know that this is truly a statewide organization," Idaho Power Co. President Robert O'Connor, chairman of the fledgling business development corporation, said Friday. "It's just totally important that we all support this, because we all have a stake in it."

O'Connor announced the appointment of nine new members to the Idaho Co. board, bringing the total number of directors to 15. Among the new members are northern Idaho industrialist Harry Magnuson, head of H.F. Magnuson Co. of Wallace; Joseph R. Piedmont, vice president of Spokane-based Washington Power Co., which owns a portion of northern Idaho; John A. Church, a partner in J. Church and Associates of Lewiston; and Art Helbling of Helbling Bros. farm equipment company in Moscow.

Other new directors include state Rep. Con Mahoney, R-Idaho Falls, chief executive of Atlas Mechanical; Dennis Curtis, president of the Barley division of Evans Grain & Elevator Co.; Jerry Hess, president of J.H. Hess Construction of Nampa and a member of the state's Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council; C. Richard Rupp, president of Teton Machine Co. of Payette; and Jack Muldoon of K-2M Co. in Twin Falls.

"All of these people are quality people; they are respected community leaders," O'Connor said.

He said The Idaho Co. still expects to add four more directors, from the Soda Springs, Pocatello, McCall and Ketchum-Sun Valley areas. The board will hire a general manager after final operating approval is received from the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

O'Connor said there has been a mistaken perception by some potential investors that The Idaho Co. might be dominated by corporate leaders headquartered in Boise. That has hurt stock sales, which so far have totaled pledges of $87,000 and actual receipts of only $25,000, which is being held in escrow.

"We do have that reluctance from various areas of the state because they fear it might be a southern Idaho company. It's not," O'Connor said.

The company needs to sell $2 million worth of stock by Nov. 1 under registration requirements set by the SEC. If it does not, all money will be refunded without interest. The company's stock is being sold through brokers for $10 a share, with a minimum investment of 10 shares required.

The Idaho Co. was put together by O'Connor and a handful of other executives from major Idaho corporations early last year as a way of stimulating Idaho's beleaguered resource-based economy. It hopes to provide seed money for new businesses and help secure financing for expansion of existing Idaho businesses. Its stock was registered by the SEC in March.

The company is organized as a for-profit venture. But O'Connor and Robert Klumpp, Idaho Power's vice president of finance and secretary-treasurer of The Idaho Co., said Friday that investors should not expect an immediate return for their money. What return is realized, at least in the form of an expanded state tax base created by more businesses and jobs.

It was that lack of focus on more personally tangible dividends for investors, as well as the speculative nature of the company's stock, that caused the SEC to hesitate in registering The Idaho Co.'s stock for sale, O'Connor and Klumpp said.

"They were very, very curious as to how we would structure this company," O'Connor said. "It's a little different type of company than they're used to approving."

Symms: This year a good one for wilderness accord

BOISE (AP) — This year could be the best in years for Idaho's political leaders to agree on a wilderness bill, says Sen. Steve Symms.

"We have a chance to get a compromise," said Symms, interviewed Friday for KTVB's weekend "Viewpoint" program.

Symms said he expected that Sen. James McClure and Gov. Cecil Andrus would sit down and negotiate a settlement to end the state's long-running deadlock over how much Idaho land should be preserved as wilderness.

"Most of the rest of us will be able to swallow hard and go along," said Symms. He said he felt it important that Idaho finally resolve the wilderness dispute so land that has been under study for years, and thus de facto wilderness, can be released for either multiple-use or wilderness preservation.

Symms said it's possible that a wilderness bill can be prepared and introduced in Congress early enough so it has a chance of passing this session.

But he said agreement is possible only if "outside interests" stay out. He defined them as national environmental groups interested only in keeping the wilderness controversy going in Idaho to help generate more votes and members.

"This is as good a year as any to reach agreement," said Symms.

He said it's the first year of the term of a new governor; the Legislature had a relatively smooth, productive session and McClure won't be up for reelection for three years.

It's the best time politically to get it done this year," he said.

Symms said he was more optimistic than he has been in recent years that Idaho will finish work on a wilderness bill.

The Idaho Republican said he was a little disappointed that former Colorado senator Gary Hart dropped out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination next year. He said if Hart had won the Democratic nomination, that would have made it more likely that the GOP nominee would have been elected president.

Symms, who spent an Idaho record $3.5 million in his reelection campaign against Democrat John Evans last year, said he would be against any attempt to limit campaign spending. He's also "unalterably opposed" to using tax funds to finance political campaigns.

Symms said he also felt any attempt to limit contributions from political action committees wouldn't survive a court challenge.

"I am not happy that it costs so much (political campaigns) but that's part of the system," he said.

Plastic spoken here: Court accepts credit cards for fines

POCATELLO (AP) — At a county jail in southeastern Idaho, not far north of the Utah border, they don't take crime lightly and they don't take American Express.

Visa and MasterCard, however, are another story.

In fact, Bannock County court officials are encouraging more people to just say "Charge it" when faced with a fine or jail bond.

The Bonds and Fines Department at the Pocatello courthouse began accepting plastic earlier this year. But data entry coordinator Susanne Johnson said few people are taking advantage of the convenience.

Credit cards can be used to pay fines and bonds up to $1,000. There is a service charge of $5 to $37.75, and Ms. Johnson said court officials have started adding a minimum administrative fee of $10 on any fines applied to a credit card.

But she said using the cards helps speed up the process of clearing fines and closing cases, and allows people caught a little short on cash to post bail in a pinch.

Woman's drug charge dropped

OROPINO (AP) — A charge of delivery of marijuana has been dropped against a Peck mother of four who was jailed in Lewiston for two weeks last month after refusing to comply with an order to send her children to school.

Clearwater County Prosecutor John Swayne said he dropped the felony charge against Nea Tholke, 37, after evaluating the case. Ms. Tholke still faces one misdemeanor charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

She was arrested on the drug charge May 8. Three boys also were charged in connection with the same incident along the Clearwater River in Orofino under the state's Youth Rehabilitation Act, Swayne said.

State OKs water release to farmers

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Department of Water Resources has approved the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation's request to divert 44,700 acre-feet of water from the Boise River storage system for use by drought-stricken irrigators in the Boise Project Basin of Control.

Department spokesman Norm Young said Friday that Water Resources director A. Kenneth Dunn had approved the request made on behalf of farmers in the five parceled southwestern Idaho irrigation districts covered by the board of control.

The water previously earmarked for storage will be allocated to farmers in those districts according to need and will be returned to the Boise River storage system from planned irrigation allotments over the next several years, Young said.

The Bureau of Reclamation also is considering whether to ask permission to divert additional water to other irrigators in the area now under the Boise Project Basin of Control but with storage rights in the river system that includes Lucky Peak, Anderson Ranch and Arrow Rock reservoirs.

The Sellers and Pioneer irrigation districts dropped their objections to the original diversion, which would not have benefited them, when the bureau offered to make additional water available later in the summer.

Bureau spokesman Neil Stessman has said an application for any additional diversion probably will be made by June 1. The bureau has water rights for about 50,000 acre-feet it could shift from storage to irrigation use, pending Department of Water Resources approval. But Stessman said the decision on how much additional diversion to request would depend on the level of the storage system during the next few weeks.

If there is no additional inflow to the system this summer, releasing the additional 44,700 acre-feet for irrigation, about a year later, diversions would deplete the system to less than 10 percent of its 998,000 acre-foot storage capacity.

An acre-foot of water is the amount of water it takes to cover one acre of land with one foot of water.

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — Marty Harris found his spot taken by four St. Anthony youths who arrived at Clyde Keefe Memorial Park at 3:30 a.m. Friday to be the first in line for the 32nd Annual Free Fisherman's Breakfast.

It's held traditionally here on the opening weekend of the general fishing season. Sponsors estimated 5,000 would eat a hot breakfast of pancakes, sausage and hash browns.

"They let tradition go down the drain," Harris said. The St. Anthony resident had been first in line for the past 18 years. He said he stood in line during his first Fisherman's Breakfast in 1965 and "decided the breakfast I'd be the first one in line." But he said it's tough to beat someone willing to start standing in line at 3:30 a.m., and he doesn't plan to try next year.

"Second place is just fine," he added.

Eleven-year-old Mike Park went through the line at 6 a.m. with his brother, David, and two friends, Jona and Christian Maupin of St. Anthony.

Mike Park said he planned to be the first one in line. The younger brother said he "instead of going to the end of the line."

"Christie Maupin said he kept warm by drinking five cups of coffee. They keep the coffee going all night," said David Park.

Weather for the Fisherman's Breakfast was better Friday than in recent years.

"There was no ice on the seats like there was last year," said John Tanner of Marysville as he left the park. He's been attending the breakfast for the past five years.

Father sentenced for beating death

BOISE (AP) — A 4th District judge has sentenced a Meridian man to seven years in prison for the beating death of his 4-year-old son. The "debt must be paid," Judge Duff McKee said before pronouncing the sentence Thursday.

Kenneth John Bloom, 30, who originally was charged with a second degree murder, pleaded guilty March 2 to voluntary manslaughter in the death of his son, Brian, who died Nov. 21.

Bloom's seven-year indeterminate sentence means he will be eligible for parole after a third of the sentence is served.

Investigators in the case reported finding 21 bruises on Brian's body as well as 13 puncture wounds from a comb.

"I am aware of (the death) but not intentional, but I'm satisfied that the crime was in a sense deliberate," McKee said.

Bases-loaded walk lifts Cardinals to victory over Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack Clark drew a bases-loaded walk from Houston's Nolan Ryan that broke a seventh-inning tie and the St. Louis Cardinals went on to beat the Astros 7-5 Friday night.

With the score 1-1 in the seventh, Vince Coleman and Ozzie Smith drew two-out walks from Ryan. Terry Pendleton followed with a single that loaded the bases and Clark walked, forcing home Coleman. Aurelio Lopez then relieved Ryan and gave up a run-scoring single to Willie McGee.

After Billy Hatcher's RBI single in the bottom of the seventh pulled Houston within 3-2, the Cardinals scored four times in the eighth on a double by McGee and a RBI double and Clark had a run-scoring double.

The Astros scored twice in the eighth on a triple by Jose Cruz, a balk by Ricky Horton and Glenn Davis' sixth home run. Bill Doran hit an RBI single in the ninth before Todd Worrel got the final out for the Cardinals.

Hawks 9, Cubs 5

CHICAGO (AP) — Dale Murphy hit two home runs and Dion James and Gerald Perry hit one each Friday, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 9-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Flyers overhaul Edmonton 5-3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Scott Mellanby scored the tying goal early in the third period and set up Brad McCrimmon's game-winning 17 seconds later. As the Philadelphia Flyers rallied from a three-goal deficit to beat the Edmonton Oilers 5-3 Friday night in Game 3 of the Stanley Cup final.

The Oilers still hold a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series, which resumes Sunday night at the Spectrum, where the Flyers are 11-2-1 in the Oilers' last 14 visits.

Edmonton led 3-0 less than two minutes into the second period and appeared to have a game wrap-up before the Flyers rallied to hand the Oilers their first road win in seven playoff games this year.

Mellanby tied the game at 3-3 when he beat Edmonton goaltender Grant Fuhr on a goot shot from beyond the right circle at 4:37 of the third period.

On the Flyers' next rush, the rookie right wing hit a perfect pass to McCrimmon, who finished off Fuhr by leading Fuhr just outside the crease at 4:54.

It was the first time in his last 12 games that Fuhr has surrendered more than three goals.

Murphy hit his 12th home run of the year to right field in the fourth inning off loser Scott Sanderson, 3-1, giving the Braves a 1-0 lead.

James hit a three-run homer in the fifth after seven Thomas doubled and Palmer singled. Ken Oberkell singled and one out later Murphy homered into the left field bleachers to give Atlanta a 4-0 advantage.

The Braves scored three more runs in the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Oberkell and Perry's two-run homer.

Chicago scored three of its runs in the bottom of the sixth. Leon Durham hit a two-run homer, his 11th, and Jimmy Davis scored on Dave Martinez's groundout-to-shortstop.

Pirates 4, Reds 1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rick Reuschel pitched five-hit ball for seven innings and hit a tiebreaking solo home run in the eighth Friday night, giving the Cincinnati Reds a 4-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Reuschel broke a 1-1 tie with two outs in the eighth with his fourth career homer, his first of the season. Reuschel connected off Ron Robinson, 1-1, and sent the Reds to their sixth loss in nine games.

Philadelphians ahead to stay. "I think they were getting tired (after McCrimmon's goal). We picked up the pace and forecheck and better than we have in the series," he said.

The Oilers, who led the NHL in shorthanded goals during the regular season, took a 1-0 lead on Messier's goal at 15:46 of the first period with Edmonton down a man.

Craig MacVieville blocked McCrimmon's weak shot and fed Messier to short lead pass in the neutral zone. Messier raced in alone from the red line and beat Flyers' goaltender Ron Hextall between his legs for his 11th goal of the playoffs.

The Oilers made it 2-0 on Coffey's goal with nine seconds to play in the period. Only moments before, it appeared that the puck had been knocked over the goal line by Oilers right wing Jar Kur after a shot by Esa Tikkanen. On the television replay, the puck seemed to go over the line, but the red light did not go on and Hextall swept the puck out to the left faceoff circle.

After batting for himself in the top of the eighth, Reuschel, 32, was relieved in the bottom of the inning by John Smiley, who earned his second save. Reuschel struck out five and walked two.

The Pirates added two runs in the ninth when Johnny R. Fredeski hit an RBI triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Diaz.

Jerry Reuss allowed just three hits over the first seven innings for the Reds — his first good performance in three starts for Cincinnati since signing May 12 as a free agent. He lasted a total of just six innings in his previous two starts, giving up 12 earned runs.

Giants 2, Phils 1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Altee Hamaker, making just his second start since October 1986, scattered three hits over six innings and singled home a run Friday night as the San Francisco Giants beat the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1.

Hamaker, who missed the entire 1986 season with shoulder and knee injuries, struck out three and walked one in winning his second game against one loss. Scott Garretts pitched the final three innings, allowing two hits, for his sixth save, as San Francisco won its third straight game.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the fourth against Don Garman, 2-3. Jose Uribe opened with a single, stole a second, moved to second on a groundout and scored on Jeffrey Leonard's sacrifice fly. Don Melvin opened the San Francisco seventh with a double and scored on Hamaker's two-out single.

NEW YORK (AP) — Reliever Matt Young's throwing error enabled New York to score the tiebreaking run in the seventh inning Friday night as the Mets beat Los Angeles 4-3, the Dodgers' sixth straight win.

Home runs by DeWayne Stateberry, Kevin McReynolds and Mookie Wilson off Fernando Valenzuela helped New York overcome a three-run homer by Los Angeles' Pedro Guerrero in the first inning.

With the score 4-1, pinch-hitter Lee Mazzilli opened the Mets' seventh with a single in the fifth. Mookie Wilson followed with a tapper in front of the plate for an infield single, but Young, 1-5, threw the ball into the right-field corner. Mazzilli scored on the play and Wilson reached third, and McReynolds hit an RBI grounder.

Guerrero put Los Angeles ahead with his 11th home run in winning his second game against one loss. Scott Garman pitched the final three innings, allowing two hits, for his sixth save, as San Francisco won its third straight game.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the fourth against Don Garman, 2-3. Jose Uribe opened with a single, stole a second, moved to second on a groundout and scored on Jeff-

BOSTON (AP) — Carlton Fisk is still making the Boston Red Sox pay for unwittingly letting him become a free agent in 1981.

"Judge really likes playing here," Chicago pitcher Richard Dotson said Friday night after Fisk's ninth-inning home run gave the White Sox a 4-3 victory over Roger Clemens and the Detroit Tigers.

With one out in the ninth, Fisk homered high into the screen above the 39-foot mark in left-center. The home run was Fisk's third of the season and 21st in 63 games against Boston since he signed with the White Sox as a free agent.

"He hits well in this ballpark, no question about it," Chicago Manager Jim Fregosi said. "He's the type of individual who gets himself sky high in certain situations and he's got some strong memories about this place."

"It's always nice to come back here," Fisk said. "I always have liked playing in this ballpark."

Fisk's homer came after the Red Sox led the bases loaded and failed to score in the eighth inning.

Clemens, 3-4, struck out 10 for the second time this season and the 14th in his career and pitched his third consecutive complete game, allowing six hits. But the setback gave him the same number of losses as last year when he was 2-4 and started the Cleveland Indians' first Cy Young Award.

Dotson allowed three hits and three runs in seven innings before needing help from Ray Searage and Jim Wynn in the eighth. Wynn, 1-1, with a hit batsman, led by reliever Mike Greenwell on a grounder, after hitting Don Baylor with a pitch 14 out of the bases. Bob James pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

Clemens and Dotson settled down after rocky starts, each giving up a two-run homer in the first inning.

Tigers 3, Twins 2. MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jack Morris boosted his record to 11-6 Friday night as the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 3-2 for their eighth triumph in nine games.

Larry Herndon opened the Tigers' off first with a double to left-center and later Chet Lemon hit an opposite-field double off the right-field wall for the winning run.

Morris, 5-2, a St. Paul, Minn., native, is 4-0 in the Fibert 8.1. He pitched from after going 3-4 at old Metropolitan Stadium. He is 17-5 lifetime against the Twins.

Morris, who has won four straight decisions, gave up 10 hits but only two runs in seven innings. Eric King pitched the final two innings for his second save.

Brewers 4, Indians 2. MILWAUKEE (AP) — Cecil Cooper, who hadn't homered all season until Wednesday, hit his second in as many games and Bill Wegman pitched 8 2/3 innings as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Cleveland Indians 4-2 Friday night after a 12-game losing streak.

Cooper homered in the first inning off Phil Niekro, 2-4, and got his second straight game-winning RBI in the fourth. B.J. Surhoff singled home two runs in the seventh off reliever Scott Bailes as the Indians suffered their 11th loss in 18 games.

Wegman, 3-4, broke a personal four-game losing streak. He blanked the Indians after Pat Tabler's RBI single in the first inning until the fifth, when he needed last-out help from Dan Plesac.

The 48-year-old Niekro pitched 6 1/3 innings, giving up three hits and all four runs.

Royals 8, Rangers 1. ARLINGTON, TEXAS (AP) — Danny Tartabull hit a pair of two-run homers, Bo Jackson also homered and Charlie Leibrandt pitched a four-hitter as the Kansas City Royals beat the Texas Rangers 8-1 Friday night.

Leibrandt, 6-2, walked one and struck out five in pitching his third consecutive complete game. Loser Mike Loynd, 1-1, went five innings, giving up six runs and six hits.

Tartabull started the scoring in the first inning with his fifth home run of the season. Two outs after a four-hitter by Willie Wilson. He also accounted for Kansas City's final two runs with a ninth-inning homer off Greg Harris as the Royals won for the 14th in 18 games.

Kansas City built its lead to 4-0 in the second inning when Steve Babboni walked, Jamie Quirk singled, Wilson walked to load the bases and Juan Beniquez singled home two runs.

Jackson's homer leading off the sixth, a 440-foot shot to straightaway center, was his seventh of the season. When Angel Salazar followed with a single, Loynd was relieved by Jeff Russell, who later gave up an RBI single to Quirk, making it 6-0.

After giving up a single to Scott Fletcher in the first inning and a two-out double to Don Slaught in the second, Leibrandt retired 12 batters in the sixth, including pitcher Fletcher with two out in the sixth.

Hall only needed one chance

ATLANTA (AP) — All Albert Hall wanted was a chance. He got it two weeks ago, and he has made the most of it.

Hall, now the Atlanta Braves' starting center fielder, broke into the lineup when Don James suffered a minor chest injury. He went on a tear, hitting in 12 consecutive games before being stopped in Thursday night's 7-2 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals.

During the streak, Hall was 19 of 63, a .358 clip. He had raised his average to .323 before going hitless against St. Louis in three at-bats to fall to .309.

"He's hitting as well as he's ever hit in his entire career anywhere," said Braves Manager Chuck Tanner. "He has hit much better than anybody had anticipated."

Once James was healthy, Tanner kept Hall in the lineup because of his speed and moved James to left field.

"He took advantage of his opportunity," Tanner said. "He hasn't stopped hitting, and he was doing so well I couldn't take him out."

Who's next? Tanner says the Braves is a headoff hitter with speed. He has seven stolen bases in 10 attempts since earning the starting job, and stole 72 bases last season at Richmond of the International League.

Fisk keeps Fenway mastery

Sonic coach warns against expecting miracles

SEATTLE (AP) — Coach Bernie Bickerstaff of the SuperSonics does not hide his admiration for the Los Angeles Lakers, who lead Seattle 2-0 in their NBA Western Conference final.

"They are a much better basketball team than we are," said Bickerstaff, who believes his SuperSonics have no need to be embarrassed by their showing in Los Angeles.

"I think we still have to keep this thing in perspective," he said. "This team has taken the greatest basketball team in the league down to the wire in two games."

"I don't want to get all hung up on people expecting this, people expecting that. We are still playing the Lakers."

Game 3 of the best-of-seven series will be played Saturday at 7 p.m. EDT at the Seattle Coliseum. The Lakers won the first two games in Los Angeles 112-101 and 92-87. Game 4 is scheduled in Seattle Monday at 7 p.m. EDT.

The Lakers may be headed for a championship series match with the defending champion Boston Celtics.

The Celtics lead Detroit 2-0 in the Eastern Conference finals.

The Angels had a 63-17 regular-season record, the best in the league, and has won nine of 10 playoff games, beating Denver 3-0 and Golden State 4-1. In contrast, the Sonics were only 39-43 during the regular season, the 15th best record in the NBA.

James Worthy and A.C. Green, the Lakers' starting forwards, have hurt the Sonics in the first two games. Worthy has scored 57 points in those games and is averaging 23.6 points in the playoffs. Green scored 15 points and had 14 rebounds in Game 2.

"I think the playoffs pretty much bring out the best in everybody," Worthy said. "Every game is so crucial."

Lakers Coach Pat Riley hopes Green will take greater advantage of his scoring opportunities. Green had only three points in Game 1.

"When you have a guy who is shooting over 50 percent from the floor, you want him to take some shots," Riley said.

The Lakers also have done an outstanding job defending Sonics playoff hero Dale Ellis. Ellis was held to 11 points in Game 1 and scored 22 in Game 2 after averaging 28.9 points in the Sonics' first two series: a 3-1 victory over Dallas and a 4-2 win over Houston. Ellis led the Sonics in scoring during the regular season with a 24.9 average.

Ellis admits a double-teaming strategy against him by the Lakers has worked.

"They did a good job of taking me out of the offense in Game 1, plus I was a little fatigued," he said. "In Game 2, I got some shots that I take to get but I wasn't able to get as many."

The Lakers dominated the Sonics on the boards in Game 2, outrebounding them 42-29. Los Angeles had 15 offensive rebounds in the second game. The Sonics had a 40-34 rebounding edge in Game 1.

"We just have to play better," Ellis said. "We are getting them beat us on the boards and that's not characteristic of us. We beat Dallas and Houston on the boards and we can do better than we have."

Alton Lister, Seattle's 7-foot star-center, had just three rebounds in Game 2. He said things will be different Saturday.

"That's ridiculous," he said of his performance. "I've got to do better than that. I'm not going to make any predictions, but I'll show you. We do better."

To set history, Pistons must alter Celts' past

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons have a shot at NBA history, but first Isiah Thomas and his teammates must overcome some Boston Celtics history.

The Celtics hold a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series which resumes at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Silverdome.

And that's where the history part comes in.

Only four teams have ever come back to win after losing the first two games of a seven-game playoff series. And the Celtics have never lost such a series after grabbing a 2-0 lead.

"Nobody's ever had Isiah on their team before," Thomas said after the Celtics 110-101 victory in Game 2 at Boston. Detroit Coach Chuck Daly hopes his perpetually smiling guard is correct.

"This team has done strange things," Daly said. "Ever since I've been here they've done strange things. We had the long losing stretch last year and I thought, 'There goes Charles down the river.' Then we came back with the long winning streak."

"We scored 116 points one year in a game in Denver. Strange things just happen with this team."

"I'm very happy and proud of the way our guys are playing now. Our record is not bad in the Silverdome, but Boston is a proud team, and they'll come in looking to end it."

"Because the Celtics are still trying to nurse some aches and pains, the Boston team flew into Detroit late Friday afternoon and didn't bother to practice. The Pistons went through a light workout at the Silverdome."

"It was very important that we won those first two games at home," Bird said. "If you lose one, then the team coming in got exactly what it wanted, a split. Game 2 was very important."

It was Bird's work on Pistons' forward Bill Laimbeer that helped turn around Game 2. The Pistons led by nine points in the third quarter when Bird, who had held Adrian Dantley to a standstill, was assigned to guard Laimbeer.

"Adrian was getting to me early and I was getting to him," Bird said. "We tried to switch it up and stay switched."

"If he hits three or four jumpers, it just opens things up for Isiah, and we'd had enough of him already."

Indeed, Thomas scored 25 of his game-high 35 points in the first half but was only 2-of-7 from the field in the second half while being guarded by Jerry Sichting and Sam Vincent, both playing in place of injured Danny Ainge.

"I don't know if he got tired of scoring or what," Vincent said. "But that was a big win. It puts us in the driver's seat."

Love's second seven-under leads Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Davis Love III, playing on the same course where he learned the game as a youngster, shot his second consecutive under-par 69 Friday to build a three-shot lead after two rounds of the $600,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I'm comfortable here," Love said of the 7,007-yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course which yielded a profusion of low scores for the second straight day. "I probably know where all the trouble is better than anybody."

Love, a 23-year-old PGA Tour sophomore, played the hilly Atlanta layout for several years when his father was the club professional, a position the elder Love held until 10 years ago. Love's 36-hole total was 14-under par 130, lowest on the tour this season.

The biggest moves of the day came from Richard Zokol, who shot a 9-under 63, and Gis by Masters champion Larry Mize and Ken Green.

Love held his three-shot lead over four golfers — Steve Pate, Gary Koch and Jack Renner, who had 67s, and George Burns, the first-round leader, who shot a 69.

Burns aceed the 190-yard No. 6 hole with a 5-iron two holes after taking a double-bogey 6.

"The ace got me rolling again, and I'm in good position," Burns said.

Asked if playing a familiar course gave him an advantage, Love said, "A little maybe, but I play a lot different than when I was 13."

Love, who posted his only tour victory at the Heritage Classic last month and finished second in the Colonial National Invitational last week, continued to lead the par-55 Friday and eagled the other, bringing his two-day total on those four holes to 10-under-par.

"I played a lot like I did yesterday," he said. "I didn't hit the ball superfly, but I saved par four times."

He used only 21 putts in his round, only 10 on the front side, which he played last.

Love had seven birdies, one eagle and two bogeys. His eagle came on the 520-yard No. 8 when he chipped in from 40-45 feet. Three of his birdies came on tap-ins from less than one foot.

"I'm very lucky to have gotten out of the day with only two bogeys," said Love, who got his saving pars on No. 1, 5, 6 and 15.

Koch's round was highlighted by a 45-foot birdie putt on No. 7.

There are two types of players on tour now," Koch said. "The power players and the control players. Obviously, Davis (Love) is one of the power players. I'm a control player."

Straight birdie golf no good in invitational

TWIN FALLS — Even birdie in the first round of the Blue Lakes Country Club member-guest invitational wouldn't have done you any better than second.

That's what Dr. Greg McKim and Greg Berger found out when they toured the course in 18-under par 54 fashion. When they looked up at the scoreboard, they found that Armour Anderson and guest John Mulligan had taken a couple of net eagles at the field to go along with a flock of birdies.

The two-day tournament pits members and their guests against each other in a full-handicap, no-holds-barred battle. It will conclude with the final round today.

Anderson and Mulligan ended the first round with a 20-under 20, two strokes ahead of McKim and Berger.

Lodged at 85 were Steve Fisher and Ken Steelman while four teams knotted up at 56. Those teams included Bob Willis and Bill Oakley, Dave Korson and Dave Markert, Pat Keegan and Sonny Pompei and Bob Latham Jr., and Larry Haag.

One of the tourney's highlights occurred in Thursday's practice when Jack Brennan, Pocatello, carded the first hole-in-one of his career. With Bill Koch, Alex Findlay and Bill VanEngelen looking on, Brennan knocked a seven-iron shot in the No. 2, 156-yard second hole.

Rinker clings to LPGA championship advantage

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Laurie Rinker shot a 5-under par 67 Friday to take a 1-stroke lead after two rounds of the LPGA Championship at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center.

Rinker, who has been in the top 10 in only one of her 31 starts this season, shot a first-round 69 for a 36-hole total of 135 and a 135 over the 6,202-yard, par 72 Grizzly Course.

Deh Rinker followed a first-round 68 with a 69 that she completed just as darkness fell to move into second place at 137.

Five players — Ayako Okamoto of Japan, Lori Garbacz, Patty Sheehan, Rosie Jones and first-round leader Patty Bizzo — were tied at 6 under-par 125 midway through the second leg of the women's tour's grandstand.

Rinker, 24, completed her first round before heavy rain suspended play Thursday. She made the turn in the second round with eight pars and a bogey to go to 4 under, then made four birdies on the back nine for her lowest competitive round of the year.

Mulconery earns karate honors

TWIN FALLS — Mike Mulconery of Twin Falls has become one of three Idahoans to attain gold (5th degree black belt) status in the dual Filipino martial arts of KAJI Kijimi and Kali-Escrima. The promotions, culminating 20 years of work and study, were announced by Raymond Tobasa-Hawaii, who is master of the system.

Joining Mulconery are Glenn Harmoning, Nampa, and former Twin Falls resident Rick Hills of Boise.

Parachutist begins sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Sergio, the daredevil parachutist who jumped into Shea Stadium during last year's World Series, wound up in jail Friday for refusing to tell federal authorities the identity of his pilot.

Sergio, who traveled by subway to surrender in Brooklyn federal court, was sentenced last week to six months in jail and fined $18,000 on a civil contempt charge.

"It's the funniest feeling," he said before surrendering. "I feel lonely. I'm scared."

Sergio, a New York Mets fan, jumped through LaGuardia Airport's airspace last Oct. 25 and drifted into Shea Stadium during the sixth game of the World Series between the Mets and Boston Red Sox.

Gooden gets call from Mets

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Dwight Gooden still has not shown any consistency or an overpowering fastball, yet the New York Mets insist they see improvement.

"Enough progress," they say, that he is right on schedule to resume pitching in the major leagues during the first week of June. Gooden left the Mets near the end of spring training for treatment to overcome a cocaine problem.

In his third start since undergoing rehabilitation, Gooden gave up nine hits in six innings Thursday night for Class AAA Tidewater in an 8-5 victory over Maine.

NBA levies playoff fines

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee-Bucks guard Sidney Moncrief and Boston Celtics center Greg Kite were fined $1,000 apiece and six other players were fined $500 each for involvement in a fight during Game 6 of the Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series, the NBA announced Friday.

At the same time, Seattle forward Tom Chambers was fined $1,000 for criticizing an official after Game 2 of the SuperSonics' Western Conference final playoff series against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Moncrief was fined for "initiating an altercation with the Celtics' Danny Ainge with 10:11 remaining in the second period" of the May 15 game at Milwaukee, the NBA said. Ainge was fined $500 for retaliating in the 121-111 Bucks' victory, the league said.

"Kite was fined for leaving the bench and escalating the incident."

Dodgers trade with Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers feel they got just what they needed Friday when they sent relief pitcher Tom Niedenzur to the Baltimore Orioles in exchange for outfielder John Shelby and left-hander Brad Havens.

"(Shelby) has a great deal of talent and at the age of 29 we feel he is coming into the prime of his career," said Dodger Executive Vice President Fred Claire. And "as a left-hander, Havens will help to balance our relief staff."

"We feel Shelby has the experience to do a good job as a major league centerfielder," Claire said.

Lofton wins with jury

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Football star James Lofton was found innocent Friday on a charge he forced a 30-year-old Michigan woman to commit oral sex in a stairwell near the Green Bay nightclub where they met.

A Brown County Circuit Court jury reached the verdict after deliberating about two hours.

Cafe manager helps Cade

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — A restaurant night manager testified Friday a man who looked like Green Bay Packer Mossy Cade ate there at the time Cade is accused of sexually assaulting a woman.

But David Lund told a Brown County Circuit Court jury he could not positively identify the patron as Cade, 2, a defensive back charged with three counts of second-degree sexual assault.

Lund, night manager of a restaurant in Axaubenton, Wis., was the final witness Friday. The trial is scheduled to resume Saturday morning with Cade, who has pleaded innocent, as the day's first witness.

Rodriguez stays redhot

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez started quickly in his bid to win his third straight PGA Senior Tour event, shooting a 6-under par 66 Friday to get a share of the lead after the first round of the $250,000 Silver Pages Classic.

Rodriguez, the leading money winner on the Tour, played his second straight bogey-free round in competition, something he said he had never done before. Last week, he carded a final-round 63 to win the United-Hospitals Championship in Pennsylvania.

All the players in the field benefited by playing winter rubber-tipped golf balls. The rules change was prompted by 4 1/2 inches of rain that fell on the Quail Creek Golf Club overnight.

Harold Henning, a winner of only two tournaments in 32 years, was one of four others tied for the lead. Miller Barber, Jim King and Don Massengale also shot 66s.

Henning had an eagle on the 374-yard par 5 14th hole, and also played the first hole of the 11-hole specialty plays to 557 yards, but the heavy rains made part of the hole unplayable and forced tournament officials to use a temporary green.

King, a non-winner in four years on the Senior Tour, birdied five holes on the back nine to tie for the lead. King is playing only his third tournament since missing all of April due to arthroscopic surgery on his leg.

Auto output drives GNP upward at solid clip

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy, powered by strong auto production and an improving trade deficit, grew at a 4.4 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year, slightly better than previously thought, the government reported Friday.

The GNP figure represented a slight revision from a preliminary report a month ago which had put the GNP first-quarter increase at a lower rate of 4.3 percent.

The government said inflation, as measured by a price index tied to the GNP, was higher in the first three months of the year than previously thought. The GNP deflator, which measures a changing market basket of goods, shot up at an annual rate of 4.2 percent, six times the rate of increase in the October-December quarter.

The price spiral, which was the fastest in three years, was blamed almost entirely on higher energy costs.

The 4.4 percent increase in the GNP, the fastest rise since a 5.0 percent advance in the second quarter of 1984, came from a large jump in business inventories, which was offset by a decline in the first time since the end of the 1981-82 recession.

"The first-quarter GNP number is deceivingly high because it has been pumped up almost exclusively by the inventory buildup that isn't going to be sustained because sales are too weak," said Jerry Jaschnowski, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"The truth is that the underlying growth rate is far below what the first-quarter GNP number would suggest," said Lawrence Chimnerie, director of Wharton Economics.

"While we may not be in a recession, the economy is not very buoyant."

Many economists forecast that the GNP will dip sharply in the current quarter, with some even saying the GNP could decline for a first time since the end of the last recession.

While such weak growth is likely to spark concerns of a recession, defined as two consecutive quarters of declining GNP, analysts said economic growth probably will be strengthened in the second half of the year.

David Wyss, an economist with Data Resources Inc., said growth for all of 1987 is likely to come in at 3.1 percent, a forecast close to the Reagan administration's 3.2 percent prediction. That would contrast with growth of 2.5 percent for 1986, the poorest showing since 1982.

Final business sales dropped by $23.7 billion, a 2.5 percent rate of decline that was the first setback for sales since the third quarter of 1982.

The weakness in sales included a 1.1 percent drop in consumer spending, a 9.7 percent plunge in business investment and a 4.3 percent decline in housing construction.

Key: Protein is crude protein level. ADF is acid detergent fiber, the basis for estimate of digestible dry matter shown in chart. Quality grade is based on following system used in California:

- Premium — no more than 29.5 percent ADF, no less than 66 percent digestible dry matter.
- Good — no more than 32 percent ADF, no less than 64 percent digestible dry matter.
- Fair — no more than 35.8 percent ADF, no less than 61 percent digestible dry matter.
- Poor — more than 35.8 percent, less than 61 percent digestible dry matter.

Wall Street advances as trading slows

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put together its second straight advance Friday, but trading slowed on the eve of the long Memorial Day weekend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 17.43 to 2,243.20, reducing its loss for the week to 29.32 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 135.92 million shares, down from 164.83 million Thursday and the lightest total since a 134.93 million share day on April 16.

Before the market opened, the Labor Department reported that the consumer price index rose 0.4 percent in April, matching the increases posted in February and March.

Analysts said the news was greeted with some relief by investors who have been fearful lately of worsening news on inflation.

Gainers among the blue chips included Ford Motor, up 1 1/2% at 90 1/2; Procter & Gamble, up 2 at 88; American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/4 at 25 1/2; and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, up 1/2 at 126 1/2.

The best performer on the active list was Digital Equipment Corp. up 5 1/2 at 155. Enthusiasm for the stock was attributed in part to anticipation of new ventures by the company in cooperation with Cray Research.

Cray, which recently told analysts their earnings estimates for this year were too high, fell 3 1/2 to 69 1/2.

Harcourt Brace Jovanovich dropped 2 1/2 to 43 1/2. The company said it retained First Boston Corp. for assistance in defending against a takeover bid by Robert Maxwell of Britain.

Precious metals issues were broadly lower, pressured by profit-taking and the lessening of inflationary fears. ASA Ltd. fell 3 1/2 to 38 1/2; Homestake Mining 1 1/2 to 35 1/2; Freeport McMoran Gold 1 1/2 to 16 1/2; Hecla Mining 1 1/2 to 19 1/2; and Callahan Mining 1 1/2 to 32 1/2.

Kaufman & Broad gained 1 1/2 to 21. The company withdrew a planned offering of up to 2 million shares of stock, citing unfavorable market conditions.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by nearly 3 to 1 in the overall tally on the NYSE, with 897 up, 628 down and 428 unchanged. The exchange's composite index added 98 to 159.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trading of these stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 156.35 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 2.24 to 328.19, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 1.99 at 282.16.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market gained 1.90 to 408.47. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 332.32, down 2 1/2.

Serious problems ahead for banks, regulators' report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The health of the U.S. banking industry is less than robust and serious problems lie ahead, the five principal bank regulatory agencies told Congress Thursday.

In a status report to the Senate Banking Committee, the regulators said the industry has been battered as never before — by the economy, new competition and foreign borrowers.

Some said there are hopeful signs of recovery and that much of the industry is healthy. But William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., while noting that 90 percent of the industry is healthy, said that is illusory.

"The condition of the banking system has been better and in a number of areas the trends are adverse," he said. "Overall, the statistics show a reasonably sound industry, but the averages mask a number of problems."

"Simply put, a large segment of the banking industry today is suffering from, and will continue to suffer from, relatively weak earnings and poor asset quality," added Robert Clarke, director of the Currency and Credit Control Division of the Federal Reserve Board.

The status report came from the

First Interstate to acquire Texas bank in complex deal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — First Interstate Bancorp., the nation's ninth-largest banking company, agreed Thursday to acquire troubled Bancshares Inc. of Houston in a complex deal valued at between $415 million and $450 million.

At the same time, Allied announced it plans to make a $112 million provision for loan loss reserves in the second quarter, resulting in a operating loss for the three-months of slightly over $100 million.

In the previous five quarters, the company had operating losses of $94.2 million, but gains on the sale of securities lowered its net deficit to $38.1 million. In 1985, before its energy and real estate loans went bad in droves, it posted a profit of $122 million.

Allied is the sixth-largest bank holding company in Texas and the 53rd largest in the United States.

The deal came after months of rumors that Los Angeles-based First Interstate had been buying up banks in Texas, where regulators and lenders have been battered for years by severe slumps in the energy and real estate industries.

In an unusual twist, Allied's shareholders will retain $250 million, or about half, of that bank's non-performing assets — soured loans and foreclosed real estate. As of March 31, Allied had $592 million in such assets.

In current dollars, those $250 million in assets would be worth between $71 million and $83 million, according to Allied's investment bankers, said Allied spokesman Jay Cragan.

The price of the deal is tied directly to the performance of Allied in the future. Each Allied share will be exchanged for a share of new First Interstate Class A common stock plus a share of adjustable-rate preferred stock.

Allied's investment bankers, Morgan Stanley and Co. of New York and Montgomery Securities of San Francisco, valued the entire deal at between $10 and $10.85 per share for Allied's holders.

Allied has about 41.5 million shares outstanding.

On trading Thursday, Allied's stock closed at $10.75.

Allied, with $9.15 billion in assets, operates 51 banks under its holding company and has 3,300 employees.

First Interstate, with assets of $52.07 billion, owns banks with 1,100 offices in 12 states and has 40,500 employees. It also franchises the First Interstate name and services to 13 holding companies that own 45 banks with 147 branches in six states including Idaho.

raising money in the securities market.

"I am concerned that unless something is done to give banks additional flexibility to respond to competitive pressures, there is the potential for an erosion of the safety and soundness of the banking system," said Clarke.

Also, the insurance funds for the bank and thrift industries are in trouble.

The General Accounting Office has said the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. has $5 billion in the hole and losing $104 million a day. Gray said bankrupt S&Ls are being kept open at a loss because there is too little money to close them. He said the GAO also says proposed rescue plans pending in Congress are inadequate.

Meanwhile, Seidman said, the FDIC has a balance of $18.2 billion, but "is beginning to show some effect from the unprecedented number of bank failures."

Reserves are declining in proportion to new competitors because of outdated regulations. For instance, they cannot underwrite commercial paper, though commercial borrowers have virtually quit taking out bank loans in favor of ed this year with Mexico, Chile, Venezuela, Argentina and the Philippines.

Banks also are losing important business to new competitors because of outdated regulations. For instance, they cannot underwrite commercial paper, though commercial borrowers have virtually quit taking out bank loans in favor of blem loans in oil and farm states. Bank board Chairman Edwin J. Gray says 387 S&Ls are listed as seriously troubled.

Foreign borrowers pose a constant threat of default on billions in loans from major U.S. banks, though Fed Vice Chairman Manuel Johnson noted at the same time that new lending agreements have been signed

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"Better use medicines at the outset than at the last moment." — Publius Syrus.

West beats today's game only if he chooses the best opening lead. And unless he listens carefully to the bidding, there's little chance of his finding the right card.

Most tests will agonize over today's choice of opening leads. However, they will most likely not be wavering between the winning and opening leads but will be fussing over the choice of either of the equal minor suit leads.

Against the lead of either minor, South wins the trick and plays the ace and another spade. East wins and shifts to trumps. If West wins and leads another trump, South establishes spades with two ruffs in dummy and the trump lead at trick three, the sequence of play is different but the result is the same. South still escapes with 10 tricks.

The only way to beat the game is for West to lead a trump on opening bid. If he does, East must not lead a trump. West must choose low trump. When East wins the second spade, he can lead a second trump, and West will play the ace and a third trump to eliminate the vital dummy ruffs.

When North makes it known that he has a decided preference for West to lead the ace, West should reason that dummy will ruff spades. The time is ripe for West to lead trumps.
