Gooding facility would employ up to 300

Spud processing plant plans in works

By CRAIG LINCOLN Times-News writer

GOODING — An Idaho corporation has purchased an 80,000-square-foot building four miles east of Gooding, and with the help of California financing, plans to start a potato-processing plant by the fall of 1988.

The plant would employ up to 300 people. Company officials say their plans are still pending and they're uncertain of exactly what they'll do with the plant, but they should have final plans within a week. Mary Brown, president of the Gooding Industrial Development Corp., announced the sale Friday. The announcement comes four days after Tupperware Co. said it would close its Jerome plant by the end of the year, laying off 700 workers.

The plant would be run by Cal-Ida Inc. and is tied in with Idaho Russet Inc., owned by the Arkoosh family in Gooding, said Jim Arkoosh. Idaho Russet was incorporated June 3.

"It's a positive thing for Idaho with all the declining employment," Brown said.

"I'm very excited about the economic impact on the whole Magic Valley," said Gooding Chamber of Commerce President Bill Skaggs. Skaggs said the plant could employ some of the workers laid off when Tupperware closes its plant, even though there will probably be at least a six-month gap between Tupperware's closure and the opening of the potato-processing plant.

Powell leaves high court due to health

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell, who played a pivotal role in shaping American law for 15 years as a swing vote in some of the court's most controversial cases, retired Friday.

Powell, who will be 80 on Sept. 19 and has suffered from prostate cancer, said he was leaving the bench "with a great deal of sadness."

His departure will give President Reagan an opportunity to change significantly the court's ideological balance, but Powell said that did not play a part in his decision.

Powell's retirement, announced from the bench by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist just before the court concludes its 1986-87 term, surprised White House officials.

Howard Baker, the White House chief of staff, learned of Powell's decision in a morning telephone call from Rehnquist. He immediately told Reagan.

The president acknowledged it, expressed ... mild surprise, not great surprise. He had no forewarning," Baker told a reporter.

Reagan said in a statement that he considered naming Powell's successor "one of the most significant duties of my office."

"I believe that the court should end the next term at full strength, and so I will soon be submitting to the Senate my nomination for

JUSTICE LEWIS POWELL. Often cast pivotal vote

Justice Powell's successor," Reagan said.

The nomination must be confirmed by the Democratic-controlled Senate. The court's summer recess will end on the first Monday in October, when its 1987-88 term is to begin.

Speculation about potential nominees most often has centered on Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and two federal appeals court judges, Robert H. Bork in Washington and Richard Posner in Chicago.

Committee issues 291 pages of ideas

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House Ways and Means Committee, under orders to write the biggest one-year tax increase in history to cut the budget deficit, made public on Friday a 291-page list of ideas for meeting that goal — ranging from a luxury levy on stereo equipment to a broad national sales tax.

Senior aides to the committee said none of the more than 200 tax-increase options has enough support to become law — at least at the moment. And they said there is no assurance, because of President Reagan's firm opposition, that any tax increase can be enacted this year.

Nevertheless, under terms of the 1988 target budget adopted by Congress, the Ways and Means panel and the Senate Finance Committee must write a bill that would increase taxes by $13 billion during the 12 months beginning Oct. 1.

Among other ideas on the list: • Boost excise taxes on gasoline, alcohol, tobacco and telephones. • Impose a new tax on energy. • Tax part of the value of employer-financed employee health insurance, group life insurance and death benefits.

• Withhold taxes from interest and dividends.

• Limit the interest deduction on home-equity loans.

• An across-the-board reduction in the value of itemized deductions.

• Tax part of the investment income of tax-exempt organizations.

• Deny U.S. businesses a full tax credit for income earned in South Africa.

• Limit the deductibility of advertising costs.

The budget gives the committees only until July 28 to write the tax bill, which would be about $1.3 billion larger during the first year than the tax increases enacted in 1982. It took Congress six months to produce the 1982 bill, which cost the taxpayers an estimated $98 billion over three years.

In a letter to other House members, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means panel, emphasized that the list contains nothing but options.

However, Rostenkowski has made clear that some big provisions on the list are unacceptable to him. Those are several options for freeing or raising some of the individual income-tax rates that were cut as part of the 1986 overhaul.

Margin startles workers

UFF employees not surprised by vote on unionizing plant

By BART JANSEN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — White Thursday's decision against unionizing Universal Frozen Foods didn't surprise workers, they said Friday they were startled by the margin of defeat.

"I thought it would be a lot closer," said Betty Conak, who works in the division for french fries. "I wasn't sure quite how it would be — that's hard to predict," said Clarence Brown, who works potato steam peelers.

Company officials welcomed the decisive vote — with 76 percent of the employees voting against joining Local 280 of the 350,000-member International Union of Operating Engineers. The vote was 147 to join the union, 469 against, with 18 ballots contested, out of an estimated 660 eligible workers.

"We were pleased the turnout was so high," said Plant Manager Mike Johnston of the 97-percent rate. "It tells us where we stand with the employees — that by and large the employees are behind us and the way we've handled" worker complaints.

The National Labor Relations Board rejected last week five NLRB charges of bad treatment by management, unfair firings and safety problems. NLRB could not verify any of the charges, said Larry McCargar, assistant regional director.

"Every time I had a problem they've handled it great for me," said Dana Jasper, who works on the half-shell line.

"I feel like this is a good company to work for," said Mary Kerr. Brown added that the vote was a great forum.

"Everybody has a right to voice their opinion just like with a presidential election," Brown said.

At least one worker wasn't surprised by the landslide vote. "I feel like most of the people are against the union," said Dave Hawkins. "There will always be some discontent."

IUOE Representative Ron Green credited Tupperware's announced closure with much of the "no" vote. And a chorus of workers agreed with the perception of potential union weakness.

HENRY CARVAJAL Ads were the last straw

STEVE ABSHIRE No help with grievances

Tupperware announced Monday the closure of its Jerome plant, which would throw 700 people out of work. UFF workers said that displaced workforce could replace UFF workers in the event of a strike.

And Idaho's passage of a right-to-work law last November further weakens a union's bargaining leverage.

But more to the point, several workers said the union couldn't raise wages and benefits substantially and that it couldn't help with grievances with supervisors.

Custodian Steve Abshire said wages might be increased, but that the union couldn't help with grievances.

"I think we needed something as far as representation," said Jeff Woods, but he added problems with supervisors have to be worked out individually.

Clarence Brown believes the vote was a good forum

The Operating Engineers' tactics may have scared off supporters. The fourth attempt to unionize in the past 22 years was apparently more vigorous than earlier efforts.

"I think the union had a lot bigger push," said Woods, who's worked for UFF for 16 years and witnessed two other union defeats.

IUOE Local 280 members passed out handbills outside the plant and knocked in doors to gather support. But they misstepped during a short television advertising campaign that raised the ire of workers and company officials.

Ads on K49AZ allegedly misrepresented a former worker's experience, without permission, to argue in favor of unionization, according to the worker's sister, Elizabeth Owen. She wrote a letter to the editor of the Times-News.

The ads may prompt a lawsuit against the union and did cost some votes.

Johnston said UFF's lawyers are studying the videotapes.

"Past that, I really don't want to comment on whether we are planning to sue the union, Johnston said.

Workers said the union's tactics were too aggressive.

"There was a lot of noise inside," said Henry Carvajal of organizers inside the plant. He echoed other workers saying the advertising was the last straw.

"That was why I voted against union," said Woods.

North used his shredder at least twice, released evidence shows

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. Oliver North shredded documents pertaining to the Iran-Contra affair on at least one occasion in addition to the frantic events that Fawn Hall described at congressional hearings earlier this month, congressional sources said Friday.

Those sources, who refused to be identified by name, said North's shredding activities occurred sometime between his interrogation by Attorney General Edwin Meese at the Justice Department on Sunday, Nov. 23, and the time the National Security Council aide's offices were sealed two days later.

No further details were immediately available, and it was not clear whether the Marine officer was alone at the time. Nor was it known whether North's activities were the shredding incident that Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., referred to on Thursday when he said that shredding had occurred beyond what has been described in public testimony.

Some committee members have criticized Justice Department officials for failing to seal North's office earlier.

The disclosure came as investigators released additional evidence of deception by former Reagan administration officials as the Iran-Contra affair unraveled last November.

The committees made public the declassified testimony of former CIA Director William Casey before the House Intelligence Committee last Nov. 21, when Casey largely carried out a cover-up plan that had been contrived a day earlier by North and other senior administration officials.

Thanks to objections from the State Department and elsewhere, Casey did delete one outright lie from his prepared remarks but still withheld the truth about administration knowledge of a November 1985 shipment of missiles to Iran.

The broadening story of deceit raised doubts in the minds of some members of the House and Senate investigating committees about whether they can count on North to tell the truth. The congressional questioning of North — under a limited grant of immunity that bars special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh from using North's own words against him — begins with a private session next Wednesday.

PRESIDENT REAGAN Still in 'excellent health'

Doctors lift 2 polyps during examination

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's doctors discovered and removed two "benign-appearing polyps" Friday during a routine exam to check for a recurrence of colon cancer, the White House announced.

"The president continues to be in excellent health," said a statement released by Reagan's physician, Col. John Hulton, after the test, which was conducted in the White House medical office.

Since his July 1985 cancer surgery, Reagan has had three colonoscopy checkups and in each, doctors discovered and removed small polyps.

Hulton said the polyps, which are small fleshy growths that often are found in the intestines of older persons, would be analyzed and the results made available on Monday. Shortly after the exam, the 76-year-old president and his wife, Nancy, left the White House to spend the weekend at Camp David.

Reagan, dressed in a plaid cowboy shirt and green slacks, walked slowly and deliberately across the lawn to the waiting helicopter. When reporters asked how he felt, Mrs. Reagan gave reporters a thumbs-up, the president grinned and gave an "O.K." hand signal. He then took a tiny skip for the benefit of the cameras.

White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker Jr., told reporters he had spoken with Reagan's doctors and they had not been surprised to find the intestinal growths.

"It had been anticipated, based on the president's previous medical his-

Group examines 40 years of UFOs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers, trying to document that the government recognizes the existence of unidentified flying objects, believe that Washington has tried to keep UFO information under wraps.

"We've been dealing with a kind of cosmic watergate," said UFO researcher Stanton T. Friedman at a briefing Friday on this weekend's "International Symposium on Unidentified Aerial Phenomena, 1947-1987."

Friedman is one of the scheduled participants in the weekend session at American University coinciding with the 40th anniversary of the first

... and the fact of the matter is, the group polyps," Baker said.

"The chief of staff told the doctors 'had fully expected to find these polyps and fully expect to find them benign.'"

Baker said the president was in "a state of shock" as he was "after the procedure, which can be painful."

Baker said Reagan confided to him after the test, "This is a hell of a way to start the weekend."

In addition to being checked for cancer, Reagan also received a routine prostate examination "and was found to be entirely normal," Hutton's statement said. The president had undergone surgery for prostate discomfort last January.

In checking for cancer in the colon,

"Two small, benign-appearing polyps were discovered and removed and will be subjected to microscopic pathologic analysis," Hutton's statement said.

The statement said four physicians were present at the procedure — Reagan's physician, Col. John Hutton; Dr. Robert W. Beart, a colon and rectal surgeon from Mayo Clinic; Dr. Oliver H. Rehrns, a retired Mayo Clinic surgeon; and Beart's son, Dr. John Randolph Beart, who is a physician in private practice in St. Paul, Minn.

The elder Beart is an old friend and associate of Mrs. Reagan's stepfather, the late Dr. Loyal Davis of Chicago. Beart performed Reagan's last colonoscopy.

Prior to the examination, Fitzwater, told reporters that Reagan's physicians believed the procedure could be performed at the White House, instead of Bethesda Naval Hospital, because "adequate" facilities were available.

"It could be done quickly and comfortably here, without disrupting the president's schedule," Fitzwater said.

The colonoscopy, an internal examination of the full length of the large intestine, was to be performed without any type of medication or anesthesia, Fitzwater said.

On Thursday, White House officials issued only a brief, three-sentence announcement about the planned checkup, saying there was no need to repeat other tests such as an X-ray or a CT scan.

But that will only happen if the company's plans come together.

"We've spent all our time just trying to acquire the building, and now we're sitting down and doing feasibility studies," said Rick El-Chellery, who is the president of Cal-Ida and lives in the Bakersfield, Calif., area.

Arkoosh said Cal-Ida is planning to produce frozen-potato products, such as french fries.

"They're pushing plans as hard as they can, and they don't want to say something's going to happen when it's not," Arkoosh said.

Hatch, a member of the Judiciary Committee, told a news conference he doesn't think there is a chance he will be nominated. "I would imagine they're already have picked someone. I'm running for the Senate. I have no comment on the court selection," he said.

Asked if he would take the job if asked by White House officials, he replied: "They won't."

Baker himself has been mentioned by some as a potential nominee but said Friday he was not interested in the position. "I took this job (chief of staff) at the president's request and intend to return to private life," he said.

Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Byron R. White and Sandra Day O'Connor.

Burger since has been replaced by Justice Antonin Scalia, who before joining the court was critical of the 1973 ruling.

The court is expected to decide next year whether states may require some girls under 18 who seek abortions to wait 72 hours to have the operation after telling their parents or a judge about their decision.

The case may have some procedural flaws, but conceivably could serve as a test case for a newly constructed circuit's views on abortion.

Throughout his tenure, Powell avoided the rigid ideology that at times isolated the court's liberal and conservative wings.

It is the court's center — Powell most notably — that most often has controlled the outcome of the close cases.

Powell once said, "I try very hard to reconcile views I may have to help put a court (majority) together."

He considers his controlling opinion in the much-heralded 1978 "Bakke" case, in which the court for the first time upheld the concept of affirmative action, a highlight of his tenure.

In 1982, Powell spoke for the court in a case dating back to the presidency of Richard M. Nixon, who had chosen him for the court. By a 5-4 vote, the court ruled that presidentially and morally divisive issues confronting the court: abortion.

In its latest major ruling on abortion, which was legal by the official duties.

At a news conference, Powell said his decision was made with the help of family members, particularly his son Louis, a lawyer in Richmond, Va.

Powell voted with the majority in it's a whole lot better to go out when that case, as he had in most "pro-choice" rulings since 1973.

Hail damage hits $10 million

NAMPA (AP) - Damages from a devastating June 15 hailstorm here have climbed from the original estimate of $2 million to $10 million. But insurance agents say it isn't all bad. "No one was hurt, and the insurance companies may bring as much as $10 million to the community," said Bob Henry, a partner of Brandt Agency insurance.

Judge declares woman dead

CALDWELL (AP) - Three years ago, dancer Linda Marie Hatfield, 32, left her job at a Garden City nightclub. She hasn't been seen since, and on Thursday, a 3rd District Court judge declared her legally dead. Judge Edward Lodge ruled there was "clear and convincing" evidence to believe the woman is dead. A request to have her declared legally dead was submitted by her husband, Shane Hatfield. He said he has not seen or heard from his wife since her disappearance. She was last seen on May 30, 1984. After she left work, Adams County authorities found her car parked in a rural area of Boise. Clothes and a large purse were found in the car. In November, 1984, a small clutch purse identified as belonging to Mrs. Hatfield was found in the New York Canal, after it was drained for the winter, about a mile from where the car was found.

No raise for Pocatello mayor

POCATELLO (AP) - Pocatello Mayor Dick Finlayson will not be getting a pay raise this year, despite reports to the contrary, Pocatello officials say. Pay for serving as mayor remains $40,000 a year. "As an elected official, the mayor is ineligible for the 3 percent across-the-board pay hike granted city employees," said Jana Villmeze, personnel director. Last week, Ron Timponson, the city's budget analyst, said Finlayson would be getting a $1,200 salary hike come Oct. 1, because the mayor was a full-time employee, and therefore eligible for the increase. According to Idaho law, the council must approve any changes in either the mayor's or council salaries, and it must be done at least 60 days before a general election. The council has not authorized a pay raise for Finlayson, according to Council President Earl Pond.

Colorado man found guilty

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) - Michael McCormick was found guilty of murder and kidnapping Friday in the death of an Idaho trucker who vanished from a Wheat Ridge truck stop five years ago. McCormick, 30, maintained throughout the trial that his father, Thomas McCormick, had killed the trucker, Bert Donoho of Caldwell, Idaho. The elder McCormick was initially charged in the death, but those charges were later dropped and the younger McCormick was charged instead. Michael McCormick was convicted of first-degree murder, felony murder and second-degree kidnapping. He was acquitted of being an accessory to murder. Sentencing was set for Aug. 31. Donoho was last heard from on Aug. 30, 1983, when he called a friend in Greeley and arranged to meet him at the truck stop. When the friend arrived, Donoho and his 18-wheel truck rig were gone. Prosecutors contended the younger McCormick killed Donoho because he wanted the trucker's custom-built 1977 Kenworth truck.

Boise may get horse patrol

BOISE (AP) - Boise Mayor Dirk Kempthorne wants to bring an idea back to Idaho. His proposed 1988 city budget of $33.5 million, unveiled on Thursday, includes funding for two horseback-riding police officers. The mayor, wanting the horse-riding officers to patrol downtown Boise, the Greenbelt along the Boise River, and city parks. The two new officers are among more than 17 new positions proposed for the city. Kempthorne's budget, up 4 percent from last year, will go to the City Council for formal hearings next week.

Superintendent on suspension

POST FALLS (AP) - Post Falls school Superintendent Richard McAlister, accused of soliciting sex from an undercover police officer at an off-highway rest station, has been suspended without pay by the school board. After three hours of testimony in a closed board session Thursday night, board members announced the motion to suspend and to consider whether McAlister should be fired. The suspension was effective Thursday and will continue until an investigation by acting Superintendent Kathy Canfield-Davis and attorney Linda Judd is complete.

Indian activist plugs his '88 candidacy

BOISE (AP) - Indian activist Russell Means says every Indian should be a libertarian. "Every Indian is born a libertarian," he said here Friday. "Because Indians have such an advanced social order, they do not need government." Means, 47, is running for the Libertarian Party nomination for president. He was in Idaho for the party's state convention through today, and spoke at a party dinner Friday night. The party's other major contender for the nomination, former Texas congressman Ron Paul, is scheduled to speak today, along with Andre Marrou, Las Vegas, who is running for the vice presidential nomination. Means told a news conference he joined the party formally earlier this year but has supported it since 1980. He said the Libertarian Party offers an alternative to the "Dempublicans" in the major parties, who he said have alienated so many voters that 63 percent refused to vote last year. Means, who founded the militant American Indian Movement in 1969, said if defending one's self means being militant, then he's the biggest militant in the country. "I am very proud to consider myself a militant because I believe in self-defense," he said. "The government has no business robbing the people of their sovereignty." He said he likes the Libertarian Party's goals of expanding personal liberties and limiting government. Means, who was born on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota, said he does not consider himself a member of a minority, but rather from a "divergent nation." "America is fast becoming one vast Indian reservation," with loss of individual rights, he said. "I do not want America to become totally dependent on the federal government, as Indians are," he said. Means said he expects it will cost at least $10 million to make a respectable campaign for president, and he will not accept taxpayer funds or seek contributions from special interest groups. Instead, he said he hopes to raise money the American way, through capitalism. He said he hopes to sell dolls of himself and family members to raise money. Means also said he would not accept Secret Service protection if he becomes the nominee. "I am not afraid of the American people," he said. Means called former Idaho congressman George Hansen "an example of the victims of an Orwellian government," because he is being prosecuted for speaking out against such government agencies as the Internal Revenue Service. Hansen is serving a prison term for violating federal personal financial disclosure requirements. Allen Dalton, state secretary, said about 30 delegates were expected for the party's state convention. The chief item of business will be electing four delegates to the national convention in Seattle in September. Barbara Sall of Boise is state party chairman, and a new chairman will be selected during the convention, Dalton said. The Idaho Libertarian Party does not have ballot status in Idaho, and will have to collect 8,000 signatures of registered voters to regain a spot on the next general election ballot. Dalton said the party will have 12 months starting in August to gather the required number of signatures from registered voters, and he's confident it will be accomplished.

Rhoades' lawyers want insanity defense back

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - Court-appointed attorneys for accused multiple murderer Paul Ezra Rhoades want the Idaho Legislature's 1982 action barring use of the insanity defense in criminal cases declared unconstitutional. The request was included in defense motions filed Thursday in 7th District Court on Rhoades' behalf. The 30-year-old Idaho Falls man faces trial Oct. 6 on two counts of first-degree murder and 11 other charges related to the March slayings of teacher Susan Michelbacher and convenience store clerk Nathan Haddon in Bonneville County. He also is charged with first-degree murder in Bingham County in the late-February death of a convenience store clerk in Blackfoot. The motion to have the Legislature's repeal of the Insanity Rollover kills man north of Pocatello defense declared unconstitutional is scheduled to be heard Aug. 5 by 7th District Judge Larry M. Boyle. The old law said a person was not responsible for criminal conduct "if at the time of such conduct as a result of mental disease or defect he lacks substantial capacity either to appreciate the wrongfulness of his conduct or to conform his conduct to the requirements of law." It allowed acquittal on those grounds and to set aside the verdict and judgment to state the grounds. Under the current law, anyone convicted of a crime who has a mental condition requiring treatment must be placed in an appropriate treatment facility. If the treatment is completed before the person's sentence ends, the person gets credit for the time spent in treatment but must serve the remainder of the sentence in prison. Thursday's motion contends these changes are "unprecedented in the history of Anglo-American common law and are therefore constitutional-ly suspect and invalid," Rhoades' attorneys argue they cannot develop his defense without a ruling on the issue. John Ambrose of the National Mental Health Association in Alexandria, Va., said Friday that he believes Idaho is the only state that does not permit using mental condition as a defense to a criminal charge. Rhoades' attorneys also asked Thursday that his trial be moved out of Bonneville County because of adverse pretrial publicity.

'Hopper level low; spraying starts next week

By CLAUDE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — According to a recent grasshopper survey compiled by the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), the insect can no longer be jokingly referred to as the Idaho state bird.

The survey indicates that current infestation levels in Idaho are dramatically below those of last year and 1985.

Primary areas of infestation are forecast along scattered lands in Washington, Gem, Ada, Owyhee and Twin Falls counties in southwestern Idaho.

Approximately 698,000 acres of Idaho land last year and 6.5 million acres in 1985 were treated for grasshopper infestations. This year well over 100,000 acres will need treatment, said Roger Pollard, Idaho officer of APHIS.

"This year the weather has been on our side," he said. An early spring hatch was followed by two weeks of rain and cold temperatures which cut populations in half, he said.

"In the western part of the state, unseasonably cool and wet weather has prevailed, and areas that just a few weeks ago looked as if treatment would be needed now do not appear to be a problem," he added.

Rain and cool temperatures kill the young insects by fostering growth of fungi and viruses.

Spray programs over the past two years have also been quite effective in knocking down the peak populations, Pollard said. "Very few" farmers have reported grasshopper sightings so far this summer, he added.

The two chemicals being used in this summer's grasshopper control program are malathion and carbaryl. No long-term health effects have been associated with either chemical, Pollard said.

Spraying will begin as soon as APHIS receives environmental assessments from Idaho BLM offices, which should be "anyday," he said.

"I'd say the spraying will start next week," he added.

Federal grasshopper control assistance will continue to be available for individuals having problems with grasshoppers through local offices of the Bureau of Land Management, Forest Service, County Extension Agent and APHIS. This year's assistance program remains the same as last year, including the cropland protection program.

Under the Food Security Act of 1985 (the Farm Bill) the federal government will pay 100 percent of the cost for needed grasshopper control on federal lands, 50 percent of the cost on state lands and 33.3 percent of the cost on private rangelands of 10,000 acres or more.

The Farm Bill also authorizes the federal government to treat public land tracts under 10,000 acres to protect adjacent croplands. Before 1986, infested public land had to be in blocks of at least 10,000 acres before assistance was granted.

Those whose cropland is threatened by grasshoppers on adjacent land should contact their local BLM office. Offices are located in Boise, Burley, Malad, Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Salmon, Shoshone, Cottonwood and Coeur d'Alene.

If the adjacent land is owned by the Forest Service, the local Forest Supervisor or Ranger District Office should be contacted.

Grasshopper problems on state and private lands are handled by the local County Extension Agent or APHIS.

Early alert assistance to keep Idaho beekeepers informed of upcoming spray projects is also available through local BLM and County Extension Agent offices.

Job Corps: Training disrupts poverty cycle

By CLAUDE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Going on the belief that "unskilled job seekers get unskilled jobs and earn less," the Job Corps has been providing on-the-job training to young men and women since 1964.

Job Corps is the only one out of many anti-poverty programs established in the 1960s still existing today, said Becky Black, a screener for the Job Corps placement center in Pocatello. The program trained 95,000 students in the United States last year.

To be eligible for the program, participants must be between the ages of 16 and 21, residents of the United States, in need of vocational training, out of school and unable to benefit from continuation in public school, from a low income family and without a history of serious behavior or medical problems.

Most important, though, is the student's desire to participate, Black said. "We won't take someone who isn't willing," she said.

The program is targeted for high school drop-outs, but also accepts graduates who fill the other requirements, she added.

Those accepted for participation in Job Corps live in centers within their region, where they receive training in a field of their choice. Completion of the program may take from six months to two years, Black said.

The offerings meet a wide range of needs. The students can take it as far as they want," she said.

There are 10 training centers in the Northwest region, which includes Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Alaska. One of the region's centers is located in Marsing, Idaho, about 40 miles southwest of Boise.

The center houses 200 students. Many Twin Falls participants in the program go to Marsing to stay close to home, Black said.

Job Corps is an important benefit to society because it "takes high-risk young people and makes them employable," she said. Experts estimate that for every federal dollar spent housing, feeding and training students, $1.48 eventually goes back into the economy, she added.

"The program has support because it makes them contributing members of society. They work hard and they pay taxes," she said.

Another reason for the program's continued existence over the years has been bipartisan support in Congress. When so many federal programs suffered financial cuts due to the Gramm-Rudman bill, funding for Job Corps stayed at the same level, Black said.

"Congressmen Hatch and Kennedy agreed on support of Job Corps and they never agree on anything," she said.

Money for Job Corps was established by the Job Training Participation Act, she said.

Not many other programs are available to the students who enter Job Corps, Black said. Some colleges offer vocational training, but costs may be too high for the students.

Training is available through Job Corps in 32 vocational fields, ranging from auto mechanics to the culinary arts. Popular areas among local participants are forestry, auto mechanics, data processing and drafting, Black said.

For high school drop-outs, Job Corps provides not only vocational training but also an opportunity for them to receive a General Equivalency Degree or an Idaho State

McClure opposes BLM seed harvest

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Sen. James McClure joined private seed companies in opposing a U.S. Bureau of Land Management Plan to harvest grass seeds from its land in Owyhee County.

McClure, R-Idaho, is asking U.S. Interior Secretary Donald Hodel for an executive review of the plan involving 100,000 pounds of crested wheat grass seed.

Hodel oversees BLM, which is reaping a bitter harvest of criticism for the idea.

First, private seed companies in southern Idaho are elsewhere in the state slashed BLM for being in direct competition with private enterprise.

Now, McClure is saying BLM's action could set a precedent for other federal agencies.

"I cannot stress enough my opposition to this policy," McClure said in a press release Friday. McClure has intervened successfully in BLM issues before. Recently, he helped shelve a proposal to consolidate BLM Burley and Shoshone offices in Twin Falls.

BLM says private suppliers don't have enough seed available to meet the land managers' agency's needs for reseeding burned acreage. Recently, BLM bought some 12,000 pounds of crested wheat grass from commercial suppliers but is seeking another 100,000 pounds from its own lands, the agency said. BLM will let bids for the seed harvest which is to take place July 15.

The next step on our end is to see what the secretary indicates to us," says Trudy Olson, a spokeswoman for the BLM state office.

McClure says the BLM should directly approach private growers to meet its need or request more funds in its budget next year, explaining why seed prices were higher than projected.

Prices for some varieties of crested wheat grass have tripled and quadrupled in recent years due to a shortage of growers and a growing market for the seed. The demand for grass seed from farmers participating in the federal government's land set aside program, says Roger Slymer of Grassland Ventures, Caldwell, Idaho, near Lewiston.

Hightower to stump for new farm policy in swing through Magic Valley July 13-14

By JANE HOBISSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The populist, controversial, articulate Texas Commissioner of Agriculture is coming to the Magic Valley in July to stump for a new national farm policy, and his visit is expected to ignite a few sparks.

Jim Hightower, the main author and spokesman for the Save the Family Farm Act sponsored by Sen. Thomas Harkin, D-Iowa, and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., will be in the Twin Falls-Burley area July 13 and 14.

Hightower, elected to the commissioner post in Texas in 1982, was invited by state Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey. His visit is also being sponsored by the Idaho Rural Council, the College of Southern Idaho, and the Idaho Department of Agriculture.

"I think his visit is going to generate some creativity," said Mike Glenn, assistant to the president of the College of Southern Idaho. "It's always good to get some fresh ideas into the area and let them percolate."

At several scheduled public meetings, the 44-year-old Hightower will speak on economic development and ways family farmers can diversify and market their products.

He will also be stumping for the Harkin-Gephardt bill, a proposal to raise commodity price supports to cover the farmers' cost of production while eliminating government subsidy payments. The proposal is controversial because it would impose mandatory production controls.

"He's trying to build support for the bill, but he's also trying to bring farmers and businessmen together," said Heather Ball, an agricultural economist in the Texas Department of Agriculture. Ball, a Hightower aide, is also a former Idaho resident whose family has a cattle feedlot in Weiser.

Although Texas has felt the impact of the economic depression in agriculture, Hightower has opened up markets for Texas farmers by increasing trade to Mexico "five-fold," Ball said.

New markets, new crops, new ideas are tantalizing prospects to Idaho officials, who look forward to the populist Democrat's visit to a conservative, Republican state.

"I've heard him speak once, and I've read a lot of his stuff, and he always draws controversy," said Dick Rush, director of Idaho's Department of Agriculture. "But I think he's going to be very enjoyable. He's fun to listen to, and the things he will talk about really aren't debated a lot."

Peavey, long a supporter of the Gephardt-Harkin bill, said he hopes Hightower's visit will stir up support for the measure.

"The current farm bill is such a disaster, we've got to fix it and do something else," Peavey said. "He's a real strong spokesperson for another program that makes far more sense and will turn the country around."

Hightower, the subject of a recent "60 Minutes" profile, received his B.A. degree in government from North Texas State University in 1965, while also serving as the assistant general manager of the Denton Chamber of Commerce. He has served as legislative assistant to a U.S. senator and worked in Washington, D.C., for Ralph Nader's Agribusiness Accountability Project.

He has written two books, "Hard Tomatoes, Hard Times," and "Eat Your Heart Out." In 1984, Hightower served as chair of the Democratic National Committee's Agriculture Council, and he is co-founder of the National Populist Forum.

He will speak at the free, public meeting at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer on July 13th at 8 p.m. A dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p.m., and residents may either by a dinner or bring their own.

On July 14th, a 7 a.m. breakfast at the Turf Club is scheduled in Twin Falls sponsored by CSI and the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. It, too, is open to the public. He will speak on agricultural marketing and development.

At noon on July 14th, Hightower will speak in Burley at a luncheon sponsored by the Burley Chamber of Commerce and the Idaho Farm Bureau and the Idaho Rural Council. It is a no-host luncheon at the Burley Inn. It is open to the public. He will travel to Soda Springs for a rally at the Soda Springs High School that evening.

"It's a multi-purpose visit," said Diane Joseph, coordinator for Hightower's visit. "He has strong feelings about what the state Department of Agriculture can do to help farmers and about how to improve agribusiness. The saying's true — if you eat, you're involved in agriculture."

Rupert approves Sunday liquor sales in emergency action

By CLAUDE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Liquor will be sold in taverns here on July 5, the Sunday of Rupert's annual community celebration, after the Rupert City Council used emergency provisions to approve a Sunday liquor ordinance.

The Sunday sales ordinance passed by a 2-1 vote Thursday morning at a special City Council session. The ordinance will go into effect Sunday.

A "sunset" clause is included in the ordinance, which means that after five weeks of Sunday retail liquor sales, the council will review the decision and either keep or cancel it, said City Attorney Don Chisholm.

Sales of liquor by the drink at retail outlets within the city will now be allowed from noon until 8 p.m. on Sunday, in accordance with the regulations of Minidoka County, he said.

"The city can't have more liberal ordinances than the county allows," he said, explaining that Minidoka County allows the sale of liquor on Sunday, but not before noon or after 8 p.m.

The ordinance was adopted by a two-thirds majority under state provisions for emergency measures that allow repeal of a law to be waived before a public law effect. Chisholm said the council believed that the public was aware of the proposed ordinance and had been given adequate chance to comment.

Councilmembers June Dombek and Ronald Klebe favored passage of the ordinance with Clark Cameron opposed.

The sale of beer and wine on Sunday is already allowed in Rupert from 7 a.m. until 1 a.m., Chisholm said.

The ordinance originated in a petition by Rupert bar owners who said they were losing money to competitors in surrounding communities who sold liquor by the drink on Sunday.

In a letter to the council, the owners said they were "suffering financial repercussions due to the economic situation in the area," and needed the additional day to make up for the low profits generated by the depressed farm economy.

Lawyer named to state ed board

BOISE (AP) — J. Ray Cox, 61, a Coeur d'Alene lawyer, has been appointed to the Idaho Board of Education Friday.

"J. Ray Cox brings a wealth of talent and great knowledge of Idaho to the board," said Gov. Cecil Andrus, in announcing the appointment. "His legal background and long-time interest in, and concern for, education in Idaho will serve the state extremely well."

Cox, 61, replaces another Coeur d'Alene lawyer, Dennis Wheeler, who has resigned, effective after Friday board meeting in Moscow.

Cox is a partner in the law firm of Cox and Davis in Coeur d'Alene. He served in the Idaho State Bar from 1958 to 1962. In 1974, was the Democratic nominee for 1st District congressman, losing by about 21,000 votes to Republican Steve Symms.

He has served on the Idaho Personnel Commission. Cox is a 1953 graduate of the University of Idaho College of Law and served in the U.S. Navy in the South-

GOP try to draw Stallings into NRA fray

BOISE (AP) — Citing statements made during a radio call-in show, the Idaho Republican Party says Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, has sided with the National Rifle Association in its feud with Gov. Cecil Andrus, a fellow Democrat.

But in a telephone conversation from his Falls Church, Va., home, Stallings said Friday that his comments should not be interpreted as taking any position in the dispute.

The Republican Party and NRA leaders have been at odds with Andrus since his statement during taping of a May appearance on KTVB-TV's "Viewpoint" program that the NRA leadership represented "the gun nuts of the world."

During Stallings' June 1 appearance on Twin Falls radio station KJLX's "Party Line" call-in program, the congressman responded to a listener's question about whether he agreed with Andrus' position toward the NRA.

"I'm not sure what Cecil was talking about. I was a little surprised by his statement," Stallings said. "I've known the leadership of the NRA. I know that they campaigned heavily against Mr. Andrus and bought some ads in the last campaign, and I guess they offended him. . . . I think it was unfortunate. I think it was unwise on his part to make those statements."

A Republican Party press release issued Friday, including a partial transcript of the congressman's statements, was headlined "Stallings Sides with NRA in Feud Against Andrus." The release also cited $9,900 in contributions Stallings received from the NRA during his 1986 re-election campaign.

"I was asked if I agreed with the statement on the gun nuts, and I said I do not," Stallings said Friday. "I was not taking sides with anyone on this battle. To me it's like watching two friends in a scrap."

Idaho Republican Party Chairman Blake Hill wrote Stallings earlier this month asking him to intercede in the dispute between Andrus and the NRA, which supported Republican Lt. Gov. David Leroy in last year's race for governor. Andrus has been critical of the group's position on issues such as an anti-terrorism bill passed by the 1987 Legislature only after revisions urged by NRA leaders.

The Republican Party and NRA leaders, in turn, have accused Andrus of being vindictive over the group's support for Leroy.

Stallings said he does not plan to get involved in the fray, but was grateful to the GOP for reminding his constituency in the 2nd District that he has been an NRA backer.

"I appreciate what the state Republican Party is doing for me," he said. "They're pointing out that I've been very supportive of the NRA."

Young aviator receives keys to city of Loveland

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — A boy trying to become the youngest pilot ever to fly across the United States was presented Friday with the keys to this northeastern Colorado city and was lauded for his pioneering spirit.

John Kevin Hill, 11, of Arlington, Texas, was given the keys to the city by Mayor Don Riedel at a brief ceremony attended by about 100 people at Fort Collins-Loveland Municipal Airport.

Hill, accompanied by his flight instructor, Mike Fields, had landed his blue and white Cessna 30 minutes earlier.

"You are showing us a pioneering spirit. You are setting a standard for your generation," said state Sen. Bill Yare.

Hill, a young, sandy-haired boy, admitted to reporters he had been frightened in the flight crossing the Rocky Mountains earlier in the week.

"There was a lot of turbulence that made us go up and down, down and up," he recalled. However, after completing his cross-country flight, Hill wants to try a round-the-world flight in two years and then become an astronaut.

Hill landed Loveland as a stopover on his cross-country flight at the insistence of his aunt, Marilyn Moore, a member of the Loveland City Council.

Gov. Roy Romer will attend a breakfast in Hill's honor Saturday.

Hill will then ride in the Colorado Firefighters' Conventions parade through downtown Loveland and is scheduled to take off at 3 p.m. Saturday for St. Louis.

Hill and Fields landed at Denver's Stapleton Municipal Airport Wednesday night. The boy spent the following day relaxing with his parents, John and Patsy Hill.

His flight is scheduled to end July 1 in Washington, D.C.

Briefly

Parachutist jumps off bridge

TWIN FALLS — An unidentified parachutist dived off the 475-foot-high Perrine Bridge Friday evening.

Twin Falls Sheriff Jim Munn said the parachutist took the leap about 9 p.m. Twin Falls and Jerome county sheriff departments responded to the parachuting call promptly but the chute of the Snake River and was quickly picked up by an accomplice in a boat described by witnesses as either a small gray raft or flat-bottomed rigid boat.

Munn, who supervised the search for the parachutist, said divers watched the boat float downstream for short distance before the boat disappeared in a cove or under the thick bushes on the river's bank.

"We saw him walking around," Munn said, as he kept watch of the river from the Canyon Springs Golf Course road. "We know he's injured."

At press deadline, the deputies were still staking out the river, waiting for the parachutist and accomplice to appear.

City Clerk Eddy Widmer said Friday the city is asking residents with odd numbered house numbers to water on odd-numbered calendar days and those with even-numbered houses to water on even-numbered calendar days.

Widmer said the water demand in Kimberly has been extremely high this summer — so high that an electrical panel on a city water well burned out this week. The well, one of four that supplies the city, will be inoperable until a new panel is received.

Odd-even watering will continue until September, Widmer said.

Newborn's father still in captivity

BOISE (AP) — There is no celebration in the home of Estelle Ronneberg of Boise cited the recent birth of her first grandchild.

Mrs. Ronneberg is the mother of Jesse "Jon" Turner, who was kidnapped in Lebanon six months ago. Turner's wife, Badr, a Lebanese native, gave birth to a baby girl earlier this week at American University Hospital in Beirut.

The birth of the child is a painful reminder to Mrs. Ronneberg that her son is a prisoner in war with shifting sides and a myriad of players.

"I don't even know if she was born the 24th or 25th," she said.

The Boise woman received a telephone call with the news from the State Department Thursday morning. No one can guess when Turner will be able to see his little girl or if he even knows he is a father.

Turner was taken captive Jan. 24 by three men posing as security guards at Beirut University College, where he was teaching math and computer science. The kidnappers are members of an unidentified faction in the struggle to control Lebanon.

Since the time of his abduction, Turner has been seen in two videotapes released by his captors to the United States and Israel to free Arab prisoners in Israel in exchange for release of ailing hostage Alan Spector.

Syrian military leaders in Lebanon recently pledged themselves to rescuing the American captives. But U.S. State Department officials cautioned against taking the promises too seriously.

State Department spokesman Ken

Durkin said the Syrians have almost completely surrounded the southern suburbs of Beirut.

But Durkin said that the hostages could be anywhere in the area, and it is unlikely that the Syrians would conduct a house-to-house search for the Americans.

"It's just anarchy out there. There are a lot of competing groups, and they don't answer to anyone," he said.

In the meantime, Turner's mother, wife and new daughter will continue their vigil until his release.

"I try not to get my hopes up too far, because when I've done that in the past they've just been dashed," Mrs. Ronneberg said. "I have remained fairly optimistic because I know I will eventually get him back."

Odd-even watering plan begins

KIMBERLY — The city of Kimberly is asking residents to start an alternating lawn and garden watering system until September because of a severe water shortage.

City Clerk Eddy Widmer said Friday the city is asking residents with odd numbered house numbers to water on odd-numbered calendar days and those with even-numbered houses to water on even-numbered calendar days.

Widmer said the water demand in Kimberly has been extremely high this summer — so high that an electrical panel on a city water well burned out this week. The well, one of four that supplies the city, will be inoperable until a new panel is received.

Odd-even watering will continue until September, Widmer said.

Scheel named governor-elect

TWIN FALLS — Shella Scheel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Willie Scheel, Twin Falls, was picked this week to serve as governor of Girls State in 1988.

Holly Hamilton, Hamilton, Jerome, was elected lieutenant governor.

The Twin Falls girl, who will be a senior this fall at Twin Falls High School, was elected governor-elect this week during the 51st annual session of Springs Girls' State at Northwest Nazarene College at Nampa.

Only the governor is chosen a year ahead, according to Karen White, Girls' State secretary. The session closes today after a week of legislative activities during which delegates from throughout Idaho are elected to city, county and state offices.

BOISE (AP) — Two Mexican couples have filed a wrongful death lawsuit asking almost $2 million from two Madison County farmers over a 1984 traffic accident that killed their children.

Morayma Nevarez and Uriel Villalba were killed last Aug. 10 when their car ran into the front of a hay wagon driven by John Pinnock and his son John Terrell Pinnock, according to the complaint filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Boise.

The suit was filed by Miss Nevarez's parents, Godalupe and Virginia Nevarez; Villalba's parents, Cirilo and Rita Villalba; his uncle, Ramon Villalba; and estate conservator Burt & Trust Co. It names John Pinnock and his wife Thelma, and John Terrell Pinnock and his wife Sirl.

Both the Nevarezs and Villalbas are Mexican citizens, but the Nevarezs live in Jensen, Utah. Cirilo Villalba lives in Jensen, Utah. Cirilo hauling a wide load without proper markings or lighting and without permits, hauling farm equipment after dark and failing to dim their lights to oncoming traffic.

The Nevarezs ask $350,000 in general damages, $500,000 in punitive damages, $50,000 for Miss Nevarez's suffering and almost $4,800 for medical and funeral expenses.

Higher standards of academic excellence were set, within Idaho public schools, some students have been dropping out to join Job Corps due to their difficulty in meeting those standards, Black said.

"I feel bad for those students. They realize that to graduate, they'd be in school until the age of 20," she said.

About 90 percent of the men and women who complete Job Corps either go immediately to jobs, return to school and continue their education or join the military. If a Job Corps graduate goes on to college, the program will pay for the first two years, Black said.

Job Corps participants also receive salaries starting at $40 per month plus $100 to $150 to get aside each month for living expenses after completion of the program.

All medical and dental costs are covered by Job Corps and annual tuition for students in the first year, $103 the second, is provided.

Lisa Pope, 20, entered Job Corps three and a half years after dropping out of 10th grade. "I needed to do something that sounded like a good thing to do," she said.

She trained as a nursing assistant at the Marsing center from November in 1986 to June 8, 1987. She plans to go on to college and finish her nursing education, she said.

"I thought I wanted to be a nurse and I thought Job Corps would be the best step," she showed me what a nurse does," she said.

Pope also received her GED while enrolled in Job Corps. "The program encouraged me all around," she said.

Students interested in joining Job Corps should do it because they want to, she added. "If you let somebody force you into it, you won't like it and you won't finish," she said.

Korean police arrest 1000s, haul away opposition leader

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 200,000 Koreans stampeded through streets in dozens of cities Friday, shouting "Democracy now!" and demanding the ouster of President Chun Doo-hwan.

Teargas, firebombs and rocks were hurled during protests

Police blasted protesters and bystanders with tear gas, and students hurled firebombs and rocks. The violence lasted into the early morning hours Saturday in some cities.

News reports said hundreds of people were injured in demonstrations staged in at least 37 cities, and police said thousands were arrested.

Police hauled away opposition leader Kim Young-sam to prevent him from participating in the Seoul march but later freed him. Chun's other main political foe, Kim Dae-jung, was put under house arrest but released Friday night.

Armored cars filled with multiple launchers blasted protesters with thousands of rounds of strong tear gas, and waves of students battled legions of riot police.

Officers were seen beating many people. Police grabbed men and women by the hair, slapping them on the face and kneeing them on the shins.

Dozens of people were hit by rocks and tear gas canisters, and at least 10 police officers were hurt when they were pushed over a wall by protesters.

Riot police had to use their shoulders to shove more suspects into buses crammed with detainees. The nation's security forces were on maximum alert, with at least 30,000 riot police in Seoul alone.

Opposition leaders claimed more than 1 million people protested nationwide, but their figure of 800,000 just in Seoul appeared exaggerated. Police put the total number at about 58,500, but that figure appeared far too conservative.

Domestic news reports and witness estimates indicated the overall total was about 200,000.

Police said 3,467 people were detained across the country and that 2,665 were released after warnings. The police report also said 573 officers had been injured, but gave no figure for civilian casualties.

Reports said the violence lasted until just before daylight Saturday in areas of Seoul, and the cities of Kwangju, Chonju and Masan. Thousands of people led by 50 Roman Catholic priests and 60 nuns marched with banners calling for democracy in the southern port of Pusan, the country's second largest city.

In Seoul, police seized Kim Young-sam and other leaders of the main opposition Renewal Democratic Party when they tried to march from party headquarters with a large Korean flag.

Supporters screamed and fought police when officers forced Kim into a van as he tried to hold on to the vehicle's door.

Police took Kim on a long drive to Kimpo International Airport outside the city before taking him home.

The government put Kim Dae-jung put under temporary house arrest until midnight. He had been released from 78 days of house arrest on Thursday.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the U.S. government was disappointed by the arrests and urged the government to exercise restraint.

The National Coalition for a Democratic Constitution, an alliance of opposition groups, called for the marches — after leaders rejected an offer of talks to end the unrest that has swept the country since June 10.

The opposition is demanding Chun's ouster, immediate democratic presidential elections and abolition of the electoral college system. It says favors the party in power.

Chun met with Kim Young-sam on Wednesday for the first time since he became president in 1980.

Reports say 2 Hezbollah leaders in Iran for 'trial' of U.S. hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two senior officials of the Iranian-backed Shiite Muslim Hezbollah faction are in Iran to "testify" against American hostages moved there from Lebanon, the weekly Ash-Shiraa magazine reported Friday.

It also said Shiite militants kidnapped U.S. journalist Charles Galt on June 17 because he knew too much about the hijackers who killed a U.S. Navy diver aboard a TWA jet in Beirut in 1985.

Beirut's independent al-Nahar daily said Syria, the major power broker in Beirut, knows who holds Galt and where they are holding him.

Sources close to the Syrian military command in Beirut, who demanded anonymity, said Syria remained poised to crack down on Hezbollah, or Party of God. But Iran said Syria probably would not yield to U.S. pressure to attack. Fourteen gunmen kidnapped Galt; Ali Osseiran, son of Lebanon's defense minister, and Osseiran's driver on June 17.

The kidnapers released Osseiran, who is a Shiite, and the driver on Wednesday but kept Galt despite Syria's demand that they release all three. Hezbollah denied involvement.

Galt was the first foreigner kidnapped in west Beirut since 7,500 Syrian troops moved in Feb. 22 to end three years of war among Shiite militias. He was the ninth American and 25th foreigner kidnapped in Lebanon since 1985.

Ash-Shiraa has contacts among militant Shiite groups in Iran and first reported secret U.S. arms sales to Iran last November. Editor-publisher Hassan Sabra gave the Associated Press an advance copy of the latest report, which will be published Saturday.

The magazine said Mohammed Maghniyeh and Abdul Hadi Hamadi, security chiefs of Hezbollah, had gone to Tehran "to testify in the case of some American hostages" who have been moved from Beirut to Iran.

It said the two "are believed to have engineered the TWA hijacking."

Hamadi is the brother of Mohamed Ali Hamadi, a Lebanese Shiite arrested in West Germany this year and charged in the United States with air piracy and murder in the hijacking.

Glass, 36, of Los Angeles covered the 17-day hijacking for ABC television.

Bonn Wednesday rejected a U.S. publisher Hassan Sabra gave the request to extradite Mohammed Ali Hamadi.

Philippine crash kills 50

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A twin-engine 115-748 turboprop. Philippine Airlines plane crashed into a fog-shrouded mountain and burst into flames Friday about nine miles from its destination in northern Luzon, killing all 50 people aboard.

U.S. Embassy spokeswoman Mary Carlin said at least one American and possibly as many as 10 were among the 46 passengers on the airline officials said most of the others were Filipinos.

Government television said nine passengers were Americans of Filipino descent.

The embassy withheld names of those known or believed to be Americans until the families were notified and citizenship was verified.

Nuke accident likely, doctor says

BONN, West Germany (AP) — An American doctor who treated Chernobyl victims said Friday that another major nuclear accident is unavoidable and that chances are about even of a meltdown in the United States in the next two decades.

Dr. Robert Gale told a news conference in Bonn he did not oppose nuclear energy, but said that safe nuclear reactors must be developed.

"There is very little disagreement that there is a strong probability of another accident," Gale said.

He said the likelihood of such an accident occurring in the next decade was "not less than 25 percent."

He said the projection was the consensus of experts on nuclear power, but did not cite specific reports.

"In the United States, the possibility of a core meltdown is 50 percent over the next 20 years," he said, quoting the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission as his source.

In a meltdown, one of the worst possible accidents at a nuclear power station, the radioactive core begins melting into the earth.

Gale was invited to Bonn by the German Atom Forum.

Market eases off high in quiet trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined in quiet trading Friday, retreating from Thursday's record high.

Analysts said rising interest rates and oil prices helped induce traders to cash in on their recent gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 14.19 to 2,436.70, cutting its gain for the week to 16.01 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange slowed to 150.54 million shares from 173.52 million Thursday.

The NASDAQ composite index advanced by more than 3 to 2 in the overall tally on the NYSE, with 589 up, 902 down and 445 unchanged. The exchange's composite index of all listed common stocks lost .88 to 172.67.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges, and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 177.09 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial firms fell 1.83 to 356.48, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 1.80 at 307.16.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market lost .52 to 426.68. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 337.65, up .21.

Analysts said traders seemed reluctant to chase after a market advance that has lately been concentrated in a few blue chips and has lacked convincing volume.

Rising rates spur existing home sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of existing homes jumped 5.1 percent as many home buyers rushed to close deals before mortgage rates went higher, a real estate trade group said Friday.

The National Association of Realtors reported that existing single-family homes were sold at an annual rate of 3.74 million units last month, the strongest sales pace since last December and the biggest monthly increase since a 6 percent jump in February.

Sales had declined 3.2 percent in April and 0.3 percent in March.

Analysts attributed the May increase to two months of rising mortgage rates.

The median price of an existing home rose to $85,400 in May, up $400 from the April level. This was 2.7 percent higher than a year ago and generally in line with the rise in inflation during the same period.

However, home prices have soared 27.7 percent in the last year in the Northeast, the largest gain for any area, and now stand at $134,000, the highest regional average. By contrast, the Midwest had the lowest average price of any region at $66,800, up 3.4 percent from a year ago.

Becker loses to Australian in Wimbledon

By SCOTT OSTLER
The Los Angeles Times

LONDON — Boris Becker has lost at Wimbledon.

What now? Do the Lords of Wimbledon roll up the lawns and send everyone home a week early, the party ruined? Or do they simply paint the balls mourning black and try to carry on, stiff upper lips, with the cocktail flags at half-mast? Nobody knows, because it wasn't supposed to happen this way. Boris Becker, seeded No. 1, the champion in 1985 and '86, was not supposed to lose in the second round of the tournament to a two-legged piece of cannon-fodder named Peter Doohan.

But mighty Boris struck out Friday afternoon on No. 1 Court, outslugged by the unknown Australian, 7-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

The biggest upset in Wimbledon history? Name a bigger one, a more surprising one. Maybe defending champion Manuel Santana losing to Charles Pasarell in the first round in '67? Naah. Several people at the time had heard of Pasarell. Maybe Roger Taylor over Rod Laver in '70 in the round of 16? Naah. Taylor was a seeded player.

This was King Boris losing to John Doe.

"I did what I had to do, I cannot do more," Becker said, shrugging off the epic upset.

Another bolt of Wimbledon lightning was narrowly averted Friday, when Ivan Lendl battled back for a 3-6, 7-6, 6-7, 7-5, 6-1 win over Italian holdover Paolo Cane.

BORIS BECKER
Shocking casualty

But Becker? Wimbledon is his joy, his home.

So strong is Becker's identification with this tournament that when his representatives went to the Soviet Union recently to arrange a series of exhibition matches with the Soviet-Linister of Sport said, "Becker? Ah, yes, the English player."

Boris is German, of course, but his home is Wimbledon. He has an enormous following here. He is the most popular player at Wimbledon since Bjorn Borg.

In two years, Becker has developed his very own Wimbledon mystique. He had won 15 straight matches here, the only loss coming in 1984, at the age of 16, when he injured an ankle and was carried off.

Five new event leaders emerge as state's prep rodeo enters final round

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

FILED — Five new hands jumped into the lead and need only to survive one more session of the Idaho High School Rodeo to wear state championships.

Just who will wear those titles won't be decided until tonight, however, as the rodeo grinds into its final go-round at 8:15 p.m. at the Twin Falls Country Fairgrounds arena. But the changes definitely came quickly in Friday night's session.

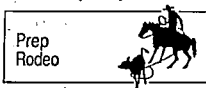

Shawna Elsberry of New Meadows posted a time of 21.156 seconds to take over the average and go leads in pole bending and relegate previous leader Marty Kinzer of Kamiah to second. Kinzer clocked a 22.653 Friday to fall just behind.

Debbie Filch of Arbon took over the barrel racing average lead with an 18.15-second ride, protecting her advantage going in against Heather Hallman of Pocatello, who at 18.5 moved ahead of previous runner-up Tammy Richins of Montevideo.

Another girls' event that had a new leader was breakaway roping where Emily Price of McCammon clocked a solid 3.112, the best of the night, and moved far ahead of her closest competitors. Twin Falls' Shawna Stutzman overtook Cynthia Taylor of Eagle for the goat-tying leadership and both of them zipped past five other competitors.

Taylor had just taken the lead with an 8.653 when Stutzman followed with an 8.649. Only one other previous leader, Nicole Stephens of Parma managed to break 10 seconds.

The lone boys' event lead change came in steer wrestling where Tony

Prep Rodeo

Rawlings of Preston was timed in 2.305 seconds to pull comfortably ahead in that event.

Session leaders in the other events had Mike Giannini of Blackfoot, awarded a reride earlier, claiming the saddle bronc lead with a score of 64. Only Josh Amrein of Blackfoot, another rerider, made it to the whistle and collected a 57.

Best time in calf roping was a 16.399 by Paul Coe of Nampa and only Jeff James of Mackay, at 18.132, broke 20 seconds.

Team roping provided a lot of blanks, although Cliff Evans of Blackfoot and Snicker Ruby of Pocatello, had a 13.113 seconds, while Stacie Hanson of Blackfoot and Jodi Rhoades of Inkom were caught in 16.613.

Cow cutting leader for boys was Cliff Evans of Blackfoot followed by Ben Arave of Blackfoot, Barry Jones of Boise and Jeremy Hutchinson of Malta. Becky Anderson of Eagle led the girls with Kelly Caywood of Tandy, Rhonda Winberg of Kooskia and Paige Kaufman of Eagle rounding out the top four.

Tonight's final go will be preceded by the crowning of the state high school rodeo queen and her court at 8.

The top four finishers in each event will qualify for the National High School Rodeo in Pueblo, Colo., July 27-Aug. 2.

Johnson leaps into USA-Mobil high jump final

By The Times-News

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Recent College of Southern graduate Joey Johnson made all three of his high jumps Friday, the last of feet 4 1/2 inches, to qualify for today's men's final at the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Johnson cleared 7-1 1/2 and 7-3 before he made 7-4 1/2, one of only four jumpers to get through the qualifying round without a miss.

In Friday's women's high jump final, Twin Falls' Amber Welty, a junior-to-be at Idaho State University, made the opening height of 6-10 but missed three attempts at 6-10 to tie for 12th. Welty cleared 6-11 to finish third in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships earlier this month and jumped 6-10 in the prelims of her event here Friday.

USA Track

Colleen Sommer of Chandler, Ariz., the former Colleen Reinstra of Buhl, won the women's high jump with a meet record 6-5. Reinstra, who set the Idaho Class A-2 high jump record as a freshman at Buhl High School nine years ago, completed her high school career in Reno, Nev., and attended the University of Arizona.

In the men's high jump preliminaries, Johnson and 15 other jumpers cleared the national qualifying mark of 7-4 1/2 to gain today's finals. They included Boise State University graduate and former NCAA outdoor champion Jake Jacoby, American record-holder Jimmy Howard of Sugarland, Texas, and defending national champ Doug Nordquist of Lallahra, Calif.

Johnson and the others will jump in the finals at noon MDT today on the campus of San Jose City College.

"I fell real good about the way Joey jumped today," said CSI track Coach Rick Neill. "Coming after last week when Johnson leaped 7-1 to win The Athletics Congress intermediate championship in Arizona, getting three good jumps like he had today was a real confidence-builder for him."

Another bolt of three today will earn Johnson an automatic invitation to participate on the U.S. team at the World University Games this summer. A top-five finisher could well earn the San Pedro, Calif., resident an invitation to the Pan American Games or the U.S. Olympic Festival.

Johnson, who is bound for Arizona State University in the fall on a basketball scholarship, has a personal best of 7-5 1/2, which he achieved last July in Bucharest, Romania. He jumped 7-5 1/2 this year to win his second straight National Junior College Athletic Association championship.

Neill said Halley's Lisa Bernhagen, who will be a senior next fall at Stanford University, was obviously still suffering from an injured ankle when she failed to qualify for the women's high jump finals on Thursday. Bernhagen, who set an NCAA indoor record of 6-5 1/2 in the high jump last winter and missed the NCAA outdoor championship because of the injury, didn't come close to making opening height in Thursday's prelims here, according to Neill.

"It was obvious she was having trouble," he said. "There was no strength there at all."

Lewis, two other long jumpers surpass 28 feet

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Carl Lewis scored his 50th consecutive long jump victory Friday in the best competition in the event's history, then captured the 200-meter dash title in the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships at San Jose City College.

Lewis, the 1984 Olympic long jump champion, took only three of his allowed six jumps, winning with a leap of 28 feet, 4 1/2 inches. He beat Larry Myricks and Mike Conley, who also cleared 28 feet. It was the first time that three jumpers surpassed 28 feet in the same meet.

Myricks, the last jumper to beat Lewis when he won the 1981 national indoor championships, had a best of 28-3 1/2, the best of his career, and Conley had a wind-aided leap of 28-9 1/2.

Lewis later took the second step toward a possible triple gold-medal performance by winning the 200 in a stadium record 20.12 seconds.

Lewis, trying to conserve his energy for the 200-meter final, opened the long jump competition with a jump of 27-8 1/2, then passed during the next rounds as it stood up.

But when Myricks leaped 27-11 in round four, Lewis uncorked what proved to be the winning jump.

Myricks went 28-0 1/2 in the fifth round, a distance matched by Conley in the sixth round. Myricks pulled into second place on his final jump.

In the 200 final, Lewis, unperturbed by a false start caused by an electronic malfunction, burst out of the blocks in the restart and held the lead throughout. He slowed near the finish line yet won easily over Wallace Spearman, who was timed in 20.33. Calvin Smith, the 1983 world champion, was third in 20.34.

Lewis recorded his first triple in the 1983 national championships by winning the 100- and 200-meter dashes and the long jump. Later that year, he won gold in the 100, long jump and 400-meter relay in the inaugural World Championships at Helsinki, Finland.

A year later, he swept Olympic gold in the 100, 200, long jump and relay. He'll try to duplicate that feat at the second World Championships staged at Rome from Aug. 29 through Sept. 6.

"I didn't want to see him take one jump and sit the rest of the day out," Myricks said of Lewis. "I think the days of him taking one jump and winning are over."

In the 1984 Los Angeles Games,

Lewis was booed for taking only two jumps — one his winning 28-0 1/2 effort, the other a foul — and then passing his final four tries.

There was no booing Friday when he passed three times.

Myricks said that Lewis might have jumped even better if he hadn't been bothered by an ailing left knee, injured slightly during about the crowd's support for him and Myricks.

"Carl is probably the greatest long jumper now, but America loves the underdog," Conley said about the crowd's support for him and Myricks.

"It's like (5-foot-7) Spud Webb winning the (NBA's slam) dunk contest. Michael Jordan might be there, but the crowd still roots for the underdog."

Myricks said, "OTTE fans like to see someone challenge him. If he

Tough week faces Ore-Ida Challenge riders

By FLVNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

BOISE — The fourth renewal of the Ore-Ida Women's Challenge, billed as the premier all-women's cycling race in the nation, will be more grueling than ever, according to race organizer Jim Rabaud.

Cycling

Rabaud, father of the Challenge and a top manager at Ore-Ida's corporate headquarters here, said race officials have toughened the eight-day, eight-stage event that starts today because of the degree of competition in women's cycling has intensified.

The Elkhorn Circuit race is an indication of that. Rabaud said Stage 7 of the Challenge, a hilly 15-lap spin around Elkhorn Village in Sun Valley. "We had two in the lead pack in the first Challenge (in 1984), in the next year, and then 20 last year.

"My intention this year is to make this tougher, so we don't have 30 in that lead pack," he said.

Eighty-four individual cyclists and 21 teams will test the toughness of Rabaud's revamped race as they

Gold medalist Carpenter-Phinney to give free cycling clinics

By The Times-News

HAILEY — U.S. cycling gold medalist Connie Carpenter-Phinney will present several free clinics this week in conjunction with the Ore-Ida Women's Challenge.

The clinics will be held on Thursday, July 2, and Friday, July 3. On Thursday, the Mountain Bell Clinic is scheduled for the Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters on State Highway 75 north of Ketchum, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The clinic will include instruction on racing and riding techniques followed by a 7-mile bicycle race into Ketchum, which is scheduled to finish just before the Stanley-to-Ketchum leg of the Ore-Ida Challenge.

Thursday night, Carpenter-Phinney will present a clinic at Elkhorn on bicycles and equipment, including buying tips and how to fit bikes with equipment. It is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Registration will be held just prior to each of the clinics. They are free and open to cyclists of all ages.

Further information can be obtained by phoning the Blaine County Recreation District office at 768-2117.

The clinics are being sponsored by Mountain Bell and Ore-Ida.

2:30 p.m., with the race following at 4 p.m. The awards ceremony is set for 7:30 p.m.

All of last year's best performers will be back, including 1986 Challenge winner Rebecca Twigg, the 1984 Olympic silver medalist who has won the individual overall title in every Challenge. (Twigg, now Rebecca Whitehead, was married after the '86 Challenge.)

Also returning will be Madonna Harris and Susan Ehlers, who took second and third place in 1986, respectively, and Katrina Tobin, the Ketchum native who took sixth overall.

Inga Benedict, formerly Inga Thompson, also will be back after missing the 1986 Challenge because she was competing in the Tour de France.

In addition to the 7-Eleven squad of Whitehead and Benedict, this year's Challenge will feature the Lowrey's team, which won last year's Washington Trust Classic race in Spokane. Lowrey's includes Tobin, a gold medalist at the 1988 National Championships, and Jennifer Lowrey, who took a silver medal at last year's World Championships.

The team competition should see 7-Eleven fighting it out with Lowrey's and Celestial Seasonings, Harris's new team.

take off on Bogus Basin Road at 9 a.m. today for the Challenge's Prologue, a 1.6-mile individual time trial. At 4 p.m. they will officially begin Stage 1 of the event, a 32-mile trek from Emmett to Bogus Basin Road, a course that is more than 15 miles longer than last year's initial stage.

Stage 2, starting Sunday at 3 p.m., will feature a course added just this year to the Challenge — the St. Luke's Women's Life Critterium, a one-hour race around a 77-mile track near the Capitol building.

On Monday, Stage 3 will be a 40-mile road race from Boise to Idaho City, beginning at 10 a.m. As part of Rabaud's attempt to make the Challenge more difficult, the Boise to Idaho City stage will include two new sprints, in which money is awarded to the first cyclist to reach a designated spot along the course.

"This year the Challenge is longer," Rabaud said of the estimated 350 miles the cyclists will cover in the eight days. "And the races are going to be faster... because the women will be going for sprints."

Riders also will be able to earn a sprint leader's jersey in addition to the mountain race jersey awarded to the best hill climbers in earlier Challenges.

Racers will face a punishing fourth stage on Tuesday, the Round the horn road race where they will begin at 11 a.m. and ride 57 miles from Lowman to Stanley, climbing 2,500 feet for a Queen of the Mountain sprint before dropping almost 500 feet into Stanley.

Stage 5 on Wednesday will start at 10 a.m. for the Sawtooth Time Trial, a fast-paced sprint out-and-back to Stanley for a total of 25 miles.

One of the more grueling stages of the Challenge will come Thursday during Stage 6, the 60-mile Mountain Bell and Distance road race from Stanley to Ketchum. Riders will go up and over Galena Summit, pedaling 2,400 feet for another Queen of the Mountain sprint payoff. Dropping another 2,950 feet, the riders will come in on Main Street in Ketchum at about 11:30 a.m.

The Elkhorn Circuit race is set for Stage 7 — 15 laps around a torturous and light 1.6-mile Elkhorn Village course, beginning at 1 p.m. in previous Challenge's, the circuit race was cut from 15 to 12 laps.

The winners will finish next Saturday, the fourth of July, with the Stage 8 Parkcenter Critterium, 30 laps around a 1-mile track that runs past Ore-Ida's headquarters in Twin Falls.

Three Challenges, the Parkcenter Critterium has been shorter, with cyclists riding for one hour flat, rather than 30 laps.

Minico run-ruled twice by Boise's Legion clubs

By The Times-News

RUPERT — When the pitching's going bad, the hitting has to come up.

That didn't happen for the Minico Sage Friday when they dropped a pair of non-conference American Legion games to the Boise Senators and the Boise Gems.

The Sage were run-ruled in both games, the Senators walking off with a six-inning 12-0 decision while the Gems needed five innings to end it.

"No pitching, no intensity," said Sage Coach Cory Bridges, who has seen a not overly abundant pitching staff decimated by some arm-wrecking wild pitches. Minico managed just three hits in each contest.

Both Boise teams picked up nine hits off Minico hurlers but benefitted more from a plethora of walks and wild pitches. Minico managed just three hits in each contest.

It doesn't get any easier for Bridges and his 7-11 Sage Sunday as they travel to Idaho Falls, the defending state and regional Legion champs.

Legion baseball

The Senators scored twice in the first inning and really didn't start bombing Minico until the final three frames when they pushed across nine runs. RBI singles by Chris Miller and Scott Pulice highlighted a three-run fourth inning. Miller's three-run triple drove in all but one of the runs in the fourth.

Senator pitcher Dirk Fuller had trouble until the fourth inning when Minico came up with two of its three hits. But the shutout wasn't threatened in the final two frames.

Gem Richie Davis struck pretty close to off-center on a largely curve — in controlling the Minico bats in the nightcap.

Three Sage errors and singles by Scott Burum and Pat Lee got the Senators off to a 2-0 start in the top of the first. It looked like an offensive duel when Minico immediately replied with a run off an error and Kevin Condie's run-scoring single. But the Gems broke it open in the second when singles from John Mangum, Dave Young and Burum, a hit batsman and Brett Janssen's two-run double amounted to five runs.

Four of the Gems' last six runs scored on wild pitches.

The Gems had one chance to get back into the game when it loaded the bases with two away in the third and managed to pick up their second run when James Frost singled in Craig Lewis.

But Davis stopped that and then returned six of the last seven Minico batters to preserve the win.

Senators 12, Minico 0.

he had won it with one jump, it would have been a dead event."

In his winning streak, Lewis has won 10 meets outdoors and 17 indoors.

This was his 39th consecutive meet over 27 feet and 47th overall, and the 26th time over 24 meets that he has jumped 28 feet.

Lewis has twice achieved a career-best 28'10" — in the 1983 outdoor trials at the University of Illinois and in the 1984 Millrose Games at New York's Madison Square Garden.

In his only other long jump competition this year, Lewis became the first jumper to record six 28-foot jumps in one meet. The best was a wind-aided 28'9", and he also had two legal 28-5 in the Mount San Antonio College Relays at Walnut, Calif., on April 26.

Friday's competition also marked the second time in history there were four 27-foot jumpers in the same meet. Gordon Laine reached that distance on his final try, leaping 27-0.

For the first time ever in the same meet, three American women went over 200 feet in the discus. Connie Price won at 212-5, followed by Carly Cady at 206-11 and Ramona Page at 203-2.

Duncan Atwood, who returned to competition last month after being suspended for 18 months for using steroids, won the javelin with a heave of 271-5, his best since the new javelin was introduced last year.

"I modified my training while I was out of competition," Atwood, the winner of the U.S. Olympic Trials in 1984, said. "I had planned to take '86 off anyway, but not quite in the fashion I did. I needed a break from competition.

"I did make a difference that I had the year off. I think drug testing is great, but I don't know how well it works. A lot of people are learning their washout times. That's what I've been hearing, but I'm no scientist."

Tom Petranoff, the American record-holder with the old and new javelin, finished second at 261-0, followed by Mark Bahleb at 259-7.

Maryanne Torrellas, a 28-year-old mother of three from Clinton, Conn., broke her American record in winning the women's 10,000-meter walk in 47 minutes, 23.8 seconds.

The next three finishers — Lynn Welk, 47:36.5; Debbie Lawrence, 48:30.3; and Teresa Vail, 48:57.7 — also went under Torrellas' old mark of 49:16.4.

A.L.: Bosox blow 9-run lead, lose to Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — It took the smallest Yankee to decide one of baseball's biggest comebacks.

Trailing 9-0 after two innings, the New York Yankees scored five runs in the third against Boston ace Roger Clemens and two relievers and beat the Red Sox 12-11 Friday night at Fenway Park.

"When you have a 9-0 lead and Clemens pitching you think you're in pretty good shape," Boston Manager John McNamara said in the morgue-like Red Sox clubhouse. "The Yankees thought otherwise."

"I don't think we've got anybody here who's going to give up," said Tomlin, who is listed at 5-foot-9 but is closer to 5-7. "Winnie (Dave Winfield) hits a three-run homer and all of a sudden we think we're back in the ballgame. After the home run I felt like everybody got a pickup. When you're down 9-0 you're waiting for something to happen — and it did."

Mike Paglarulo opened the 10th with a walk off Calvin Schiraldi, 4-6, the sixth Boston pitcher, and Rick Cerone sacrificed. Tomlin, who came into the game in a 2-0-1-8 slump that dropped his batting average to .228 but had a two-run bloop single in the big third inning, took a pitch for a "11 and rapped the next pitch up the middle, easily scoring Paglarulo. "What — a game!" — Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said. "It was a slugfest to start with, then all of a sudden it became a pitchers' race. It's not a situation you want to be in (trailing Clemens 9-0), but unfortunately we were. It's a credit to the team. They battled back with an 11-run inning and the pitching did the rest."

Coupled with Toronto's 10-5 loss to Milwaukee, the Yankees climbed within four percentage points of the first place — Blue Jays in the American League East.

Tim Stoddard, 1-1, the fifth Yankee pitcher, was the winner, facing just one batter and striking out Jim Rice with runners on first and second to end the top of the 10th. Cecilio Guante pitched 3 1/2 scoreless innings and Pat Clemens went 2 1/2 before Stoddard came on. Schiraldi was the sixth Boston pitcher and gave up the winning run to Tom Bolton, Bob Stanley and Kevin Mitchell combined to pitch 5 1/2 shutout innings.

Although the Red Sox had 15 hits, Wade Boggs' hitting streak ended at 25 games when he went 0-for-3, and walked three times, twice intentionally. Tolson's decisive hit was New York's 11th.

Texas 1 Minnesota 0

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Bob Witt and Dale Mohoric combined on a one-hitter, a solid single by Roy Smalley Jr. in the second inning — and the Texas Rangers beat the Minnesota Twins 1-0 Friday night. Witt, making his second appearance since coming off the disabled list June 20, left the game after Al Newman drew a leadoff walk in the ninth inning. Mohoric got the final three outs for his 10th save.

Witt, 3-3, struck out seven and walked six. He has not completed any of his 39 major-league starts. Smalley's hit was a two-out line drive to left-center field. Witt and Mohoric outduelled Frank Viola, 6-6, who had won eight straight decisions against Texas.

The Rangers ended their three-game losing streak and stopped Minnesota's four-game winning string.

Milwaukee 10 Toronto 5

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ceell Cooper's two-out, two-run single keyed a seven-run rally in the eighth inning Friday night that gave the Milwaukee Brewers a 10-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Trailing 5-3, the Brewers tied the game on Dave Secor's two-run double off reliever Tom Henke, 6-2. Henke then struck out Mike Felder and walked Brock Yount intentionally. But Juan Castillo drew another walk to load the bases and Cooper, who struck out against Henke with the bases loaded in the seventh, mped his single down the left-field line.

Rob Deer followed with an RBI double off reliever Jose Nunez. Another run scored on an error by left fielder George Bell and B.J. Surhoff singled home the final run of the inning.

Reliever Dan Plesac, 5-0, got the victory as Milwaukee edged a four-game losing streak. Bell hit his major league-leading 16th homer and drove in two runs for the Blue Jays.

The Brewers scored a run in the eighth on Yount's RBI single that cut the deficit to 4-3 before the Blue Jays scored in the eighth on an RBI bunt single by Manny Lee.

Oakland 5 Cleveland 0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jose Canseco hit a solo homer and Luke three-run triple and made an outstanding catch Friday night as the Oakland Athletics defeated Cleveland 5-0 for the Indians' fifth straight loss.

Steve Stewart, 9-7, allowed five hits in 6 1/2 innings. Gene Nelson, who got his first save, relieved with the bases loaded and retired Tony Bonnard on a line drive to Canseco in left field that ended the seventh inning.

Earlier in the inning, Canseco robbed Cory Snyder of a three-run homer with a leaping catch at the fence. Steve Carlton, 5-5, took the loss. He gave up eight hits and struck out six in his second straight complete game and third of the season.

Seattle 5 Kansas City 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dave Valle went 4-for-4 with two triples and drove home three runs Friday night in leading the Seattle Mariners to a 5-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Valle had the first four-hit game of his major-league career. He had an RBI single in the fourth inning and a two-run triple in the sixth that gave the Mariners a 5-0 lead.

Mike Morgan, 6-8, stopped his personal three-game losing streak as Seattle won for the ninth time in 11 games. Morgan gave up one run on four hits before Bill Wilkinson relieved with runners at first and third and none out in the seventh.

California 3 Chicago 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Reuss, a 38-year-old National League castoff, scattered six hits over 8 1/2 innings Friday night and the California Angels beat the Chicago White Sox 3-1 for their fifth straight victory.

Reuss was "Kenny's second American League start and came after an 8-0 shutout against Kansas City on Sunday. Reuss gave up one run, struck out three and walked two. He did not allow a hit until Greg Walker had an RBI single in the fourth after Gary Redus walked and took second on an infield out.

Detroit 9 Baltimore 0

DETROIT (AP) — Walt Terrell relieved Steve Garvey and Kirk Gibson and Darrell Evans each homered and drove in three runs Friday night, leading the Detroit Tigers over the Baltimore Orioles 9-0.

The Orioles have lost 23 of their last 27 games, including eight straight on the road. Terrell, 6-7, struck out six and walked three.

NL: Luckless Show pitches revitalized Padres over Atlanta

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eric Show fasted just 1/2 of an inning last Sunday in an 11-2 loss to the San Francisco Giants.

When he gave up hits on his first two pitches Friday night, he looked like he was headed for an early shower again.

But Show, 3-9, recovered and threw only three more pitches as he pitched 7 1/2 innings and led the San Diego Padres to a 5-1 victory over Atlanta, the Braves' fifth straight defeat.

"That wasn't the greatest way to start a ballgame," said Show, who beat Atlanta for the eighth straight time and won for the first time since June 5. "I felt I had better muster any type of brain power I could to get out of there. I was fortunate to make some good pitches in the first inning and that was the game."

Show improved his career record against the Braves to 10-1. He has not lost to Atlanta since Oct. 1, 1982. Atlanta starter Rick Mahler, 4-8, pitched the Padres for four innings but in the fifth, Bruce Bochy led off with a walk and went to third on Garry Templeton's double.

Show followed with a sacrifice fly to score Bochy and send Templeton to third. Templeton scored on Stan Edwin's sacrifice fly to put San Diego ahead 2-1.

The Padres added three runs in the sixth as Tony Gwynn — who was batting .346 to raise his league-leading average to .378 — led off with a single, moved to second on a groundout and following an intentional walk to John Kruk, scored on Kevin Mitchell's single. Bochy's single scored Kruk and Templeton tripled for a 5-1 lead.

"Right now is the best I've ever swung the bat in my life," said Gwynn, who is batting .533 (16-30) over the last seven games. "I hope it goes on the rest of the year."

Rich Gossage pitched the final 1 1/2 innings for his sixth save and has not allowed a run in 14 1/2 innings since May 22, a span of nine games. He has gained saves in his last four outings.

Cincinnati 6 Los Angeles 0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ted Power pitched his first major league shutout and Tracy Jones, Dave Parker and Bo Diaz homered as Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-0 Friday night.

Power, 6-3, continued his mastery over his former team with his seventh victory in eight career decisions against the Dodgers.

The converted reliever allowed seven hits, struck out three and walked one on route to his second complete game of the season in his 38th career start. The Dodgers sold Power to the Reds on Oct. 16, 1982.

Montreal 5 St. Louis 1

MONTREAL (AP) — Bob Sebra plied a six-hitter, striking out a career-high 10 batters, and Hubie Brooks drove in three runs as the Montreal defeated St. Louis 5-1 Friday night.

"The victory was the Expos' fifth in six games with the East Division leading Cardinals this season. Sebra, 4-8, walked none on route to his second complete game of the season. Sebra's last victory was on May 26 against Los Angeles.

Rookie Joe Magrane, 5-1, allowed eight hits in 6 1/2 innings and lost for the first time in the big leagues. The Expos beat the Cubs for the fifth time in seven meetings this season.

with a one-out single. Reid Nichols followed with an infield hit and Tim Raines lined a single to right, scoring Sebra.

Tim Lincecum followed with a double to right, driving in two runs. In the seventh, Raines reached on a fielder's choice, advanced to second on a bunt pitch, and scored on Brooks' double to left for a 5-1 lead.

Pittsburgh 5 Chicago 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Andy Van Slyke drove in three runs with a solo homer and two-run single and threw out a runner at the plate as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2 Friday night.

Robby Bonilla's one-out, pinch-hit RBI double triggered a three-run Pittsburgh seventh inning as the Pirates beat the Cubs for the fifth time in seven meetings this season.

Philadelphia 5 New York 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Steve Brodoski tied a major-league record with his 11th consecutive strikeout and starter Kevin Gross allowed two runs over 6 1/2 innings and drove in two runs as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Mets 5-2 Friday night.

Brodoski pitched the final two innings to tie Sparky Lyle's major-league consecutive saves record set in 1973 with the New York Yankees. It was Brodoski's 18th save of the season overall.

Gross, 5-7, allowed eight hits in snapping a personal three-game losing streak and gave Philadelphia its first victory against New York in seven games this season.

Houston 9 San Francisco 6

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Craig Reynolds hit two homers to drive in five runs and Bob Knepper snapped a personal six-game losing streak as Houston defeated San Francisco, 9-6, Friday night.

Knepper, 3-8, allowed six hits in seven innings en route to his first victory since May 17. Pinch-hitter Jeffery Leonard opened the Giants' eighth with his 14th homer to knock Knepper out of the game and move San Francisco within 6-4. Larry Anderson came on and loaded the bases with none out on two singles and a walk. Houston relief ace Dave Smith replaced Anderson and hit Candy Maldonado with a pitch, allowing another run to score.

Smith then struck out Chili Davis, got Chris Brown on a pop out to third, and struck out Will Clark to end the threat. Smith then got the last three outs — allowing an RBI double to Chris Speier — for his 14th save.

Alan Ashby led off the ninth with his fifth homer and Denny Walling added a two-run shot, his third, off reliever Jeff Leonard.

Trailing 1-0, Houston's Jose Cruz beat out a chopper to third with two outs and Reynolds followed with his first homer of the season. Robby Thompson's seventh homer tied the score 2-2 in the bottom of the third.

The Astros took 3-2 lead against Mike LaCoss, 6-4, in the fifth on a single by Ron Reynolds. Knepper's sacrifice, Billy Halcher's single and Kevin Bass singled and took third on Cruz's third single of the game. Craig Lee's sacrifice fly followed with a three-run homer for his first career two-homer game.

Wimbledon

the court on a stretcher.

So strong was Becker's affinity with the green, green grass of Wimbledon that last year, in his first year, upon first arriving in town, he went immediately to Centre Court, alone, and stood surveying his domain.

"I feel I belong here," Becker had said. "Wimbledon completely changed my life."

Friday, the 2-year-old Becker did not crumble and he was swept off the court like the daily grass clippings.

However, overtones of Greek tragedy were overtaken by Becker himself, who closed his post-match press conference with the assurance, "I'll give it a shot next year."

"Then he smiled slightly. "I'm not sure."

Still, until Friday, his grass game was aggliss and seemingly unbeatable. What happened? Becker and Doohan remember him, the winner, agreed that the turning point came at the beginning of the third set. Becker had taken the previous set by breaking Doohan's serve in the final game, broke Becker to open the third set and went on to win the set, 6-2.

"I broke him and I started to feel better," Becker said. "But he broke me right back."

Survival was the operative word of the day. The weather was a surprise.

It didn't rain. Another surprise: In the opening game, Becker had Doohan 40-love and Doohan knocked out five British spectators to take the game. Is this the way champions begin a match, letting the underdog get his confidence up?

The weather surprised Doohan himself. He played Becker a week ago in Wimbledon warm-up tournament at Queen's Club, and Becker won easily, 6-4, 6-2. Doohan started the year 21st on the computer rankings, but he had worked his way up to 70th by Wimbledon time. He figured to be nothing more than a decent workout for Becker.

All anyone knew about Doohan was in his short bio in the press guide. He is a 26-year-old journeyman from Newcastle, Australia, who played tennis at the University of Arkansas.

He's also 6-foot-3. Somebody should have seen the danger signs. Australian player, raised on grass, 6-foot tall and strong, big serve, the perfect profile of a Wimbledon upsetter.

"Guys from Australia," said former Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, shaking his head. "All Australians can play on grass. He grew up on the stuff."

The weather first seemed to help Doohan. There was no rain, and the sun appeared often enough to harden up the spongy grass.

"The courts at Queen's were green and spongy," Doohan said. "I had better feeling. I could get out and do the serve back, give him a low volley."

Indeed, the big serve of this match belonged to Boom Boom Doohan, who had 37 service winners to Becker's 21.

"I'd definitely play him different, especially on my return," Becker said when asked to second-guess his own strategy. "On Court No. 1, if you go back (from the base line when receiving serve), the court goes (slopes) down."

Becker's manager, Ion Tiriac, agreed.

"The only thing I would have done different would be change his position on return," Tiriac said. "I'd move him a half-step back, it would give him more time."

But maybe it wouldn't have made any difference. The element of magic cannot be overcome by simple strategy.

"The second set was like magic," Becker said. "He was guessing everything right. I was hitting one way, he would guess that way, he was guessing I was hitting low. He couldn't miss, the guy."

Becker said. "He was guessing everything right. I was hitting one way, he would guess that way, he was guessing I was hitting low. He couldn't miss, the guy."
