North says he never acted without authority

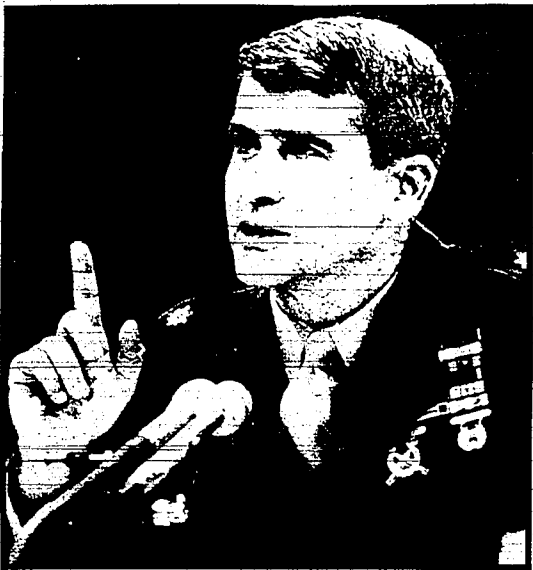

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. Oliver North testified Tuesday, "I never carried out a single act, not one, without authorization and told a congressional hearing that he assumed President Reagan had approved the diversion of Iranian arms sale profits to Nicaraguan rebels. But, he said, "No memorandum ever came back to me with the initials from the president." And he said that on the day Reagan fired him, the president called and said, "I just didn't know."

North said during testimony tinged with barely controlled anger, "I have not in the 23 years that I have been in uniformed service violated an order, not one." North testified that he drew up five memos for Reagan's approval on the subject of the Iran-Contra connection but didn't know if Reagan ever saw them. He said he had thought last November — incorrectly — that he had shredded all versions but wasn't sure exactly when. He was confronted with one surviving copy at the hearing. House committee chairman Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said he found it curious that North could not recall the exact fate of the five memos. And Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., called the revelation of diversion memos "a very important new wrinkle." Nunn also said he was impressed by the intensity of North's belief that he was acting only on higher authority. North said he saw Poindexter's office copy of the earliest intelligence finding from November 1985 that had been signed by the president. The document had been hastily drafted to cover a clandestine Hawk anti-aircraft missile shipment to Iran which already had taken place, possibly in violation of the law. The finding was a statement of the "hostage nature of the deal containing no rationale of an opening to "moderate elements" in Iran. It had not been clear from previous testimony whether the Business as usual at White House but Pentagon watched

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House made a determined show of being too busy to watch Lt. Col. Oliver North testify about the Iran-Contra affair Tuesday, but it was a markedly different story at the Pentagon among his military colleagues. Everyone from generals to privates at the Defense Department seemed to be working within earshot of television or radio that was broadcasting live coverage of North's testimony. "I know we should finish this quickly so we can get back to the television," Robert Sims, the Pentagon spokesman, said as he began his regular midday briefing for reporters during a break in North's testimony. However, the White House adopted an attitude of business as usual as North, the key figure in the Iran-Contra episode, was questioned on Capitol Hill about what President Reagan had said in a television address. "We think it's more important to carry on the business of government than to be watching television," said presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater. He said "there are any numbers of decisions that have to be made in the course of a day and the course of a week, pressing business of the people. People are elected to government to carry on that business, and that's what we intend to do."

Reagan, who has repeatedly professed an eagerness to learn what happened in his White House, was too busy with other things to watch North, Fitzwater said. White House communications chief Tom Griscorn said he watched only about two minutes of the hearings and that chief of staff Howard Baker lived in for about five minutes. The president spent his morning in regular meetings with his staff. He also met with a panel that investigated security problems at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. Reagan's afternoon appointments — with businessman Peter Grace and columnist Jack Anderson, leaders of a citizens' group against waste and fraud in government, and with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger

Anderson, leaving the White House, said that Reagan "walked with a light step and didn't seem greatly concerned." He understood from the news services that North had exonerated him, and none of the commentators (on noon news programs) mentioned it. Vice President George Bush watched North but only briefly, said a spokesman. "He's had it on in his office a couple times but not for long," said Stephen Hart, acting press secretary. At the U.S. Courthouse, independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh, who had opposed giving North limited immunity, said only a few members of his staff watched the hearings. Everyone else working for Walsh was under orders to avoid broadcast and press accounts of the hearings. That rule was imposed so that defense lawyers could not later argue that the independent counsel's investigation developed leads from the hearings. "Except for a small talented team, no one is watching television," said Walsh, who has filed more than 25 boxes of evidence under seal in federal court. The evidence was put under seal to prove that it was gathered without the aid of congressional testimony from witnesses who received immunity. Attorney General Edwin Meese III watched portions of North's testimony but for the most part "has been tied up on other things," said spokesman Terry Eastland.

Former Chernobyl plant officials reject accusations as trial opens

The Associated Press

CHERNOBYL, U.S.S.R. — Six former top officials and technicians at the Chernobyl power plant went on trial Tuesday charged with "blatant violation" of security regulations that led to history's worst nuclear accident. But all six, including the plant's former director, chief engineer and his deputy, rejected some of the accusations. Three defendants blamed the disaster on the reactor's design and equipment. Soviet officials said the April 26, 1986 accident was caused entirely by human error. "With so many human deaths, I can't say I'm completely innocent," said Anatoly S. Dyatlov, former assistant to Chernobyl's chief engineer, when asked to respond to the charges. At least 31 people died after unauthorized experiments led to an explosion and fire at Chernobyl's No. 4 reactor. More than 200 others suffered acute radiation sickness. A cloud of radiation was released that eventually circled the globe. Most of the 135,000 people evacuated from the northern Ukraine and southern Byelorussia are still unable to return home because of radioactive contamination. The trial is being held in a makeshift courtroom in the auditorium of Chernobyl's House of Culture. It was attended by relatives of accident victims, plant workers and people brought in to take part in the massive cleanup operation. Film footage of the trial opening was shown on the national television news program Time as an announcer read a brief Tass news agency report. Chernobyl town, 11 miles south of the power station, remains evacuated, although officials overseeing administration of the nuclear plant and decontamination of the zone work out of the former town of 12,000. The decision to hold the trial here appeared designed to add drama to the proceedings. "It's logical to hold the trial here at the scene of the crime, as it were," said Chernobyl's information director, Alexander P. Kovalenko. A small group of Moscow-based reporters were driven by bus from Kiev under police escort for the first day's proceedings. All were checked by white-coated technicians at the courtroom entrance for traces of radiation.

Kuwait plans tanker shuttle increasing escorts' exposure

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Kuwait plans to shuttle its U.S.-flagged oil tankers up and down the Persian Gulf, a change in the shipping protection plan that could mean a bigger U.S. commitment, a key congressman said Tuesday after returning from the region. Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said that "until things get sorted out," he did not think the refueling would begin "anytime soon." The plan has tentatively been scheduled to begin next week, although no formal date has been announced. President Reagan said in a recent week that he was putting the plan into effect despite congressional opposition. At the White House, presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said in reaction to Aspin's comments, "I'm not aware of any (delay) but I haven't heard of this new concern.

I'm not aware of any change in the status of our refueling or our operation." State Department officials also said they knew of no changes in the administration plan to refuel the ships. Spokesman Charles E. Redman said there was no disagreement between the Kuwaitis and the United States. The issue involves Reagan's plan to protect 11 Kuwaiti tankers with U.S. flags and captains and have the tankers escorted as they travel through the war-torn Persian Gulf. U.S. officials have previously said the tankers would be protected while they were traversing the 6,000-mile long gulf. The ships wouldn't be watched by U.S. Navy ships once they were outside the gulf enroute to locations such as Europe. But according to Aspin, Kuwait's plan would require many more U.S. ships to be involved in the protection effort than originally envisioned. Aspin told reporters that he and 11 other congressmen were told in a July 4 meeting in Kuwait that Kuwaiti officials now plan to use the 11 tankers in a continuous shuttle of ships up and down the gulf. The tankers would unload their oil once they left the Strait of Hormuz at the bottom of the gulf and then would return to Kuwait to pick up more oil. He said the Kuwaitis told the group they also planned to charter two U.S. tankers. Those ships would be used in addition to the 11 refueled tankers and that would mean a total of 13 ships would be protected. Aspin said U.S. embassy personnel, who were present told congressional members after the meeting that the Kuwaiti plan was the meeting. The embassy personnel planned to send a cable to the State Department outlining the new arrangement, he said. Redman said that both sides have agreed to the new arrangement. See GULF on Page A2

Attorneys challenge procedures in selecting grand jurors

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Attorneys representing individuals charged with felony drug offenses are attempting to quash state grand jury indictments against their clients on grounds that jury members were selected improperly. The motion was filed by Public Defender Michael Wood and private attorneys who represent several of the defendants in the drug cases. A joint hearing by two 5th District Judges on the motion to quash the 20 indictments in Twin Falls County will move into its second day today. In a day-long court session Tuesday, witnesses were called by the defense and questioned in an effort to show irregularities in the selection of the grand jury members who returned the indictments. The indictments cover the past six months or more of investigation by law enforcement agencies in Twin Falls County. The 20 individuals indicted are facing 33 charges that include possession, delivery and manufacture of controlled substances, and aiding and abetting in delivery, Cocaine, marijuana, and prescription and mushroom-type drugs were involved in the cases. The 5th District Judges Daniel Hurlbutt and Daniel Meehl are hearing arguments on the motion. Meehl was presiding judge over the grand jury that met last month and Hurlbutt is administrative trial court judge of the district. At Tuesday's hearing, Wood and attorneys

Curtis Webb and Laird Stone challenged the procedure of jury selection. They called witnesses who said there had been no special training for clerks who select and prepare jury panels; no permanent records other than the juror qualification sheets as to why jurors were disqualified or approved; no indication on the sheets as to who is responsible for disqualifications and no public witnesses to the selection of jury members. Witnesses were also questioned about lack of supervision of deputy clerks who draw names from the "master wheel" and prepare the lists of jurors. Deputy clerks who testified Tuesday said that County Clerk Richard Pence did not directly supervise or participate in the jury selection, but passed the responsibility to

Under cross examination, they told the prosecutor that there was never an effort made to diversify a juror on a basis of race, religion, sex or community status. Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said following the day's session that her office is dedicated to prosecuting drug cases and will do everything possible to proceed against the 20 defendants currently facing grand jury indictments. Efforts to complete the hearing Tuesday evening broke down when discrepancies in figures compiled on dismissals of prospective jurors were discovered by Judge Hurlbutt. More time was needed to correct the figures. County Clerk Pence testified that only voter registration lists have been used as a source of jury selection in Twin Falls County since before he took office nine years ago. He said he did not know why other sources such as driver license lists and utilities are not used, but said the cost of eliminating duplications in multiple lists could be one reason. Deputy Clerk Sherri Broyles testified that there is no individual jury commissioner or a jury commission in Twin Falls County. She said the jury panels are selected from a master list made up from voter registration rolls. The grand jury selection made on June 1 of this year came from this same master list of prospective jurors, she said. Robert Stevenson, data processor for the county, said he prepared the master jury list. See JURY on Page A2 document had ever been signed by the president. The document itself has not been found.

Leaving the hearing room, North told reporters: "My only disappointment today is that I couldn't give my opening statement. He declined to say what it contained saying only that the investigating panels must have found something in it that they don't want the American people to hear."

"I'm a good Marine — I'll wait," he added. Senate committee chairman Daniel K. Inouye held North to a file of the special House-Senate committees that opening statements must be submitted 48 hours in advance. North could read the statement on Thursday, the senator said.

North's testimony was the most sought-after in the congressional Iran-Contra hearings to date and it lived up to its advance billing. His more than six hours in the witness chair was punctuated by sharp exchanges with committee counsel John Nields, and between North's lawyer and the committee chairman.

"Speaking with fervor, North said 'Thank God' there were people willing to help the Contras with money and the Nicaraguans' resistance didn't die as perhaps some other intended."

North contradicted the testimony of former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane that McFarlane had told his staff not to solicit assistance from foreign leaders for the Contras after Congress had cut off U.S. aid.

"I never heard those instructions," North said and added that he once gave McFarlane a card containing the number of a foreign bank account that could accept contributions earmarked for the rebels.

Repeatedly, North laid the committees that had been conducting covert operations whose details were not for the American people.

"There are boxes within boxes to protect the operation," he said. Of secret documents being aired in the hearings, he said, "I pray to God you are not going to turn these loose."

North made no secret of the fact that other countries, including China — identified at the hearing only as

"country No. 4" — were asked to contribute to the Contras. When he was asked by a Chinese representative, North said, he asked that the FBI keep tabs so his meeting would not be misunderstood.

But he denied strongly that he solicited money himself. That was not because of a congressional amendment forbidding official U.S. aid, he said, "but because I understood there are regulations against government officials soliciting money."

He had the approval of my superiors" and assumed they would approve from Reagan concerning plans for Iranian arms payments to help finance the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government, he said.

Still, he quoted Reagan as saying in a telephone conversation last Nov. 25: "I just didn't know." Reagan, earlier that day, had fired North on an aide on the National Security Council.

At times, North angrily denounced what he thought were questions about his motives.

To a question about diversion of the Iran arms profits to the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government, North snapped: "The only thing we did was divert money out to Disneyland if we could have gotten our hostages home for it," North added.

At the White House on Tuesday, officials took pains to indicate they were too busy to watch North's testimony on television.

As for memos North said he prepared for Reagan on the proposed diversion, presidential spokesman Martin F. Fitzwater, noting that Reagan has previously denied knowledge of the operation, said, "The president said he was not aware of the diversion and to me that means he was not aware of the diversion by any source or any means."

Committee members withholding judgment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Senate Iran-Contra committee said Tuesday he withheld judgment on the president's activities but never had any proof.

"It is an ingenious argument for him to say that throughout these proceedings the president had knowledge which authorized his activities and then when it was revealed, the president did not know," Mitchell commented.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, characterized North's testimony this way: "He's established that he was a very active cowboy in the arena but he wasn't running the show."

As a result of North's testimony, said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., North's former boss — ex-National Security Adviser John Poindexter — will be the single most important witness his committee will hear from.

In addition to Poindexter, he said, the committee will need crucial testimony from former White House chief of staff Donald Regan.

"I have never believed North was a policymaker. He was a policy implementer," Rudman said.

"I think Col. North came across as a witness who was, at least on the main issues, trying to tell the truth," Nunn said. "Whether we will believe him is a matter of the end of four days or not; I don't know."

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, said, "I think all of us ought to withhold assessments of the candor of anyone until he has completed his testimony. But Mitchell sharply criticized North's testimony that he assumed the president approved his activities but never had any proof.

and gave it to Pence. He said the names were listed according to procedure given to him by the county clerk, and no effort was made by him to select individual names.

Broyles said the clerks are given envelopes with addresses of the master list of jurors. Each is then mailed a juror's qualification form. When these are returned, she said deputies all work, as their time permits, to select the qualified jurors for all court trials. She said this same procedure was used to select members of the grand jury last June.

Broyles and other clerks who testified said they were trained in jury selection by other deputy clerks working at the time they were hired. Broyles said her other training consisted of a one-day jury seminar held in Twin Falls earlier in the year.

Deputy Clerk Bonnie DeVall listed juror qualifications as being a United States and Twin Falls County resident.

"I would doubt it," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., in answer to a question about whether Democrats can win the vote now scheduled for this morning.

Kerry and other supporters of the resolution need 60 votes to win a so-called cloture vote, which is necessary to end the unlimited debate that is permitted under Senate rules.

Democrats hold a 54-46 margin in the chamber, meaning they would have to hold 41 Democrats and pick up six Republicans to halt the filibuster which began last week when Democrats first sought a vote.

"We're seeking support," Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said Tuesday when asked if the non-binding measure would pass.

"The resolution asks that the plan be held 'in abeyance.'" ident, never being convicted of a felony, not having been called for jury duty in the previous two years, understanding English, and having a telephone and an automobile. She said the telephone is a necessity for calling a juror on duty if a case is cancelled at the last minute, and the car is necessary for transportation to court.

She said these are not status symbols and that if a person is within a few blocks of the courthouse and can walk, they are not disqualified. She and other witnesses said persons over the age of 70 can be disqualified unless they choose to serve. Other reasons, she said, are decided by the judges.

Donna Lynn, a former clerk now living in Portland, Ore., was called to testify about her work in the recent grand jury selection. She said persons who do not respond to the letter and qualification form are generally taken from the list and that those who say they have physical or mental disabilities are also eliminated by the clerks.

Questions on Meesee dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department lawyers raised questions a year ago about Attorney General Edwin Meese's $54,600 investment with a business man now involved in the Wedtech scandal, Meese's personal attorneys said.

But the matter was quickly dropped after the department lawyers briefly interviewed the attorney general. Meese's attorneys acknowledged Tuesday. As a result, there was no financial disclosure of where Meese's money was invested until this week.

Meese will appear Thursday before the Senate Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and Information about his finances, said Justice Department spokesman Terry Eastland. The panel will focus on the fact that Meese failed for more than a year to report that he had made the investment.

The questioning a year ago by department attorneys was revealed in a report released Monday by Meese's lawyers, who are trying to lay to rest suggestions that the attorney general might have invested money in Wedtech Corp.

Iraqi planes damage tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraqi warplanes attacked a Cyprus tanker anchored at Iran's main Kharg Island oil terminal, causing extensive damage but no casualties, Persian Gulf-based salvage executives said Tuesday.

The air conflict attacked that ship Monday night and sent its jets three hours later to a second "large maritime target," a term Iraq uses to describe tankers. The executives' sources could not confirm the second raid.

The air conflict, as U.S. military forces prepare to protect 11 U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti oil tankers against Iranian attacks.

Iraq jet fighters hit the 87,200-ton Nikos Kazantzakis on Monday with two Exocet missiles, setting the tanker ablaze, salvage executives said.

Sikhs kill 34 more Hindus

CHANDIGARH, India (AP) — Sikh terrorists massacred 34 Hindus on two buses in Haryana state Tuesday night, the day after Sikh gunmen killed 38 Hindu passengers on a bus in neighboring Punjab, officials reported.

"The modus operandi of the killings is the same as the one we had inside Punjab," said Munish Chandra Gupta, interior minister of Haryana.

He said an unknown number of Sikhs halted a station in Haryana. Roadways bus at about 8:30 p.m. on a bridge near Fatehabad, about 150 miles southwest of Chandigarh near the Punjab border, dragged four passengers out and killed them with automatic weapons fire.

When a second bus happened along from the opposite direction, the gunmen stopped it and killed 30 of its occupants, Gupta said.

Eighteen people in the two buses were wounded, he said. The wounded in the Monday attack totaled 32.

Leaking gas claims 8 lives

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Eight people found dead at a Memphis apartment complex were killed by carbon monoxide leaking from a hot water heater and spread by an air conditioner, authorities said Tuesday.

The victims, discovered by a visitor Monday night, had been dead about 12 hours before their bodies were found, said police spokesman Dan Chalk.

A vent pipe on the apartment's hot water heater was not connected properly, Chalk said. Leaking carbon monoxide, a colorless and odorless gas, was picked up by air conditioning ducts nearby, Chalk said.

Neighbors said the victims shared a chicken dinner Sunday night but were not seen around the apartment building Monday.

Today's weather Sunny, mild conditions to continue

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding: Today and Thursday, mostly sunny and mild with highs 80 to 85. Lows 50 to 55. West winds 10 to 15 mph afternoons and evenings.

Camas Prairie, Halley and Lower Wood River Valley: Today and Thursday, mostly sunny and mild, days with highs in the 70s. Lows tonight 40 to 45.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Utah — Fair to partly cloudy through Thursday. Lows in the 40s. Highs in the upper 80s and 90s.

Nevada — Mostly sunny today, except for a slight chance of afternoon or evening thunderstorms over the east. Fair tonight. Mostly sunny on Tuesday with a chance of afternoon or evening thunderstorms over the east. Overnight lows in the mid-40s to mid-50s. Highs in the mid-80s to lower 90s.

Summary: Mid-afternoon skies were sunny at most reporting locations with mostly high thin cloudiness across the state Tuesday.

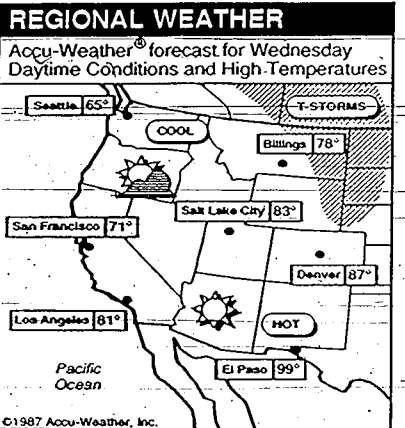

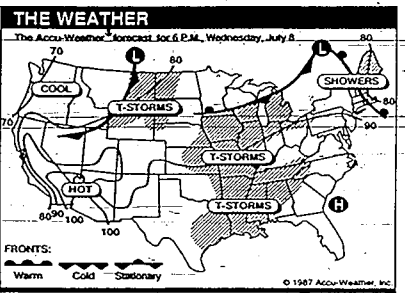

Mid-afternoon temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s and winds were light.

The warmest temperature in the state Tuesday was 90 degrees at Mountain Home, while Elk City had the low of 29 degrees.

The agricultural outlook for southern Idaho shows conditions for "light" crops may be good through Sunday as cool, dry weather continues. Light showers will be confined to northern mountains, while the valleys and southern mountains will have only occasional clouds. Irrigation demands will be about normal. Daytime winds will be southwest through northwest about 5 to 15 mph today and Thursday. Early morning and night winds will be southerly less than 10 mph.

The extended outlook for southern Idaho, Friday through Sunday, shows fair and mild. Highs in the 80s. Lows in the 50s.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday the highest temperature was 111 degrees at Laughlin, Nev., and the lowest was 32 degrees at Jackson and Yellowstone Park, Wyo.

Faces conspiracy charges Innocent, declares LaRouche to court

BOSTON (AP) — Fringe presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges he conspired to stymie a federal investigation into an alleged $1-million credit card fraud scheme to finance his 1984 campaign.

U.S. Magistrate Robert B. Collins released LaRouche on $20,000 bond, and told him that he would be liable for an additional $200,000 if he failed to appear for trial Sept. 21. The bond was posted by a LaRouche supporter.

The magistrate allowed LaRouche, whose wife lives in West Germany and who has spent much of his time in recent years out of the United States, to keep his passport until Sept. 8, when he will have to surrender it to federal authorities.

LaRouche, 64, was named last week as a conspirator with 13 aides and five of his organizations in the alleged fraud scam and plot to block an investigation of their fund-raising tactics.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Markham had requested that he be stripped of his passport immediately, but LaRouche and his attorney, Odin Anderson, had requested he be allowed to keep it.

Collins said he gave LaRouche until Sept. 8 to surrender the passport, because of his stated plans to visit several foreign countries by then and to spend most of the time campaigning in the United States for the Democratic presidential nomination after Labor Day, which is Sept. 7.

If LaRouche travels to countries other than West Germany, he must provide court officials with an advance itinerary, Collins ruled.

Anderson said LaRouche has no assets, and that it is ridiculous to think he wouldn't appear for trial because he will be campaigning in the United States.

"Mr. LaRouche could not hide if he chose to," he said. "He is about as conspicuous a public figure as one could imagine."

LaRouche said it is easier for him to visit West Germany as the base for his international trips because of varying time zones and security reasons.

"I am an endangered person," said LaRouche, who frequently travels with armed guards.

He said he plans to visit several countries between now and Labor Day, and then concentrate his campaign in the United States.

LaRouche smiled and posed for courtroom artists during the proceeding. He has scheduled a news conference for today.

He returned to West Germany a week ago after voluntarily spending four hours before a federal grand jury in Boston.

Dole to push for hearings on Bork soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Tuesday he will push for Senate Judiciary Committee hearings this month on President Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court.

"We want to get this thing going as quickly as we can," Dole said during a picture-taking session in his office with Bork, a staunchly conservative federal appeals court judge here, and Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

"Asked if the committee hearings could begin before September, Dole said, "That's our hope. We have 30 days."

But a Democratic committee aide who asked not to be identified said it is unlikely hearings will begin before mid-September. Democratic committee members planned to meet today to discuss plans for the hearings, which they have said will be exhaustive.

Referring to Bork, Thurmond said, "We've got an excellent man here. There's no reason he shouldn't be confirmed."

Thurmond is the ranking Republican on the Judiciary Committee and Simpson is also a member of the panel and a staunch defender of Reagan's judicial appointments.

Meanwhile in Des Moines, Iowa, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., predicted the Senate will block the nomination of Bork, named by Reagan to succeed retired Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell.

"I don't think they'll (Bork's supporters) have the votes to stop a filibuster on the floor," Simon said. "The odds are against approval."

It requires 60 votes to break a filibuster and force a vote on confirmation, Democrats control the Senate.

Simon, a Judiciary Committee member, said he is leaning toward opposing Bork.

"I do not want someone who is a rigid ideologue and this man appears to fit that mold," Simon said.

Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., like Simon a Democratic presidential candidate, canceled an Iowa campaign trip this week to concentrate on the Bork nomination.

Spokesman Bruce Fisher said Biden "is doing the most important thing he can do at the moment: preparing to conduct confirmation hearings on a Supreme Court nominee. The campaign has to come second."

Senate approves cutoff of loans hurting farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday approved a plan aimed at shutting off international development bank loans that critics say represent subsidies for foreign competitors of U.S. farmers and energy producers.

"This legislation would use the U.S. contribution to multilateral development banks as leverage to make sure their loans don't hurt Americans," Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., said as the Senate attached the plan to its sweeping trade bill on a voice vote.

The Senate then turned to an issue the Reagan administration has called one of the most important in the current trade debate: import restraints to buy time for U.S. industries to upgrade themselves and become more competitive.

Under current law, the president is free to reject import restraints recommended by the U.S. International Trade Commission to aid domestic companies. President Reagan did so in 1985 after the panel called for aid to the shoe industry, a decision that still reverberates politically.

Hunt for prison escapees widens

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The search for six New Mexico penitentiary escapees moved to the Canonicito area south of Santa Fe Tuesday after a woman reported being assaulted by two armed men and identified one as an escapee.

Department spokesman Don Caviness said the victim was shown pictures of the escapees and identified one of the assailants as David Gallegos, 33.

The woman, who was attacked about 12 miles south of Santa Fe, said the assailants both carried portable radios, Caviness said. It is assumed those were the radios taken from the prison control center when seven inmates escaped from the penitentiary Saturday night.

The woman, Yvonne Garcia, 19, was treated for superficial laceration and rib injuries and probably would be released, said Charlie Cullen, spokesman for St. Vincent Hospital in Santa Fe.

She told the doctor that a man cut her arm with a knife, then kicked her in the ribs, Cullen said.

In Amarillo, Texas, meanwhile, police were investigating whether the New Mexico escapees were involved when three men beat a 30-year-old man in a parking lot early Tuesday, demanding his car keys, then fled when another auto approached.

The description of the men matched at least two, if not three, of the New Mexico escapees, officer Ralph Fletcher said. But officials declined to say which three fugitives may have been involved.

One of the escapees, Hector Torres Jr., was picked up Monday morning near The Downs at Santa Fe racetrack, 12 miles west of the prison.

In Texas, authorities recaptured one of the two convicts who stole a Department of Corrections truck and escaped Monday from the department's Wynne Unit, crashing through two gates.

Jerry Wayne Ables, 28, was captured after abducting three people and holding up a fast-food restaurant, authorities said. Carl Lang, 44, remained at large.

Ables broke into a Huntsville home, stole a shirt, called a taxi and held the driver at knifepoint during an aimless four-hour drive, Huntsville police spokesman Robert Reese said.

In Michigan, authorities continued searching Tuesday for three convicted killers who escaped Saturday from the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson.

The wife of one of the inmates had come from her home in Pittsburgh to visit the prison hours before the breakout and was being sought for questioning, the FBI said.

Questions on Meese dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department lawyers raised questions a year ago about Attorney General Edwin Meese III's $54,000 investment with a "businessman now involved in the Wedtech scandal, Meese's personal attorney said.

But the matter was quickly dropped after the department lawyers briefly interviewed the attorney general, Meese's attorneys acknowledged Thursday.

The questioning a year ago by department attorneys was revealed in a report released Monday by Meese's lawyers, who are trying to lay to rest suggestions that the attorney general might have invested money in Wedtech Corp.

Sikhs kill 34 more Hindus

CHANDIGARH, India (AP) — Sikh terrorists massed 34 Hindus on two buses in Haryana state Tuesday night, the day after Sikh gunmen killed 31 Hindu passengers on a bus in neighboring Punjab, officials reported.

"The modus operandi of the killings is the same as the one we had inside Punjab," said Manish Chandra Gupta, interior minister of Haryana.

He said an unknown number of Sikhs halted a state-run Haryana Roadways bus at about 8:30 p.m. on a bridge near Fatehabad, about 150 miles southwest of Chandigarh near the Punjab border, dragged four passengers out and killed them with automatic weapons fire.

When a second bus happened along from the opposite direction, the gunmen stopped it and killed 30 of its occupants, Gupta said.

Eighteen people in the two buses were wounded. The dead were in the Monday-attack-totaled 32.

Leaking gas claims 8 lives

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Eight people found dead at a Memphis apartment complex were killed by carbon monoxide leaking from a hot water heater and spread by an air conditioner, authorities said Tuesday.

The victims, discovered by a visitor Monday night, had been dead about 12 hours before their bodies were found, said police spokesman Dan Chalk, quoting from a report by the Shelby County Medical examiner.

"He put the cause of death as due to acute carbon monoxide poisoning," Chalk said.

A vent pipe on the apartment's hot water heater was not connected properly, Chalk said. Leaking carbon monoxide, a colorless and odorless gas, was picked up by air conditioning ducts nearby, Chalk said.

Neighbors said the victims shared a chicken dinner Sunday night but were not seen around the apartment building Monday.

Iraqi planes damage tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraqi warplanes attacked a Cyprus tanker anchored at Iran's main Kharg Island oil terminal, causing extensive damage but no casualties, Persian Gulf-based salvage executives said Tuesday.

Iraq confirmed it attacked that ship Monday night and said its jets three hours later raided a second "large maritime target," a term Iraq uses to describe tankers. The executives sources could not confirm the second raid.

The air action came as U.S. military forces prepare to protect 11 U.S.-flagged Kuwait oil tankers against Iranian attacks.

document had ever been signed by the president. The document itself has not been found.

Leaving the hearing room, North told reporters: "My only disappointment today is that I couldn't give my opening statement." He declined to say what it contained, saying only that the investigating panels must have found something in it. "I don't want the American people to hear it."

"I'm a good Marine," he said, he added. Senate committee chairman Daniel K. Inouye held North to a rule of the special House-Senate committees that opening statements must be submitted 48 hours in advance. North could read the statement on Thursday, the senator said.

North's testimony was the most sought-after in the congressional Iran-Contra hearings to date and led him up to his advance billing. His more than six hours in the witness chair was punctuated by sharp exchanges with committee counsel John Fields, and between North's lawyer and the committee chairman.

Speaking with fervor, North said "Thank God" there were people willing to help the Contras with money. "I'm not a Communist," he said. "I didn't die as perhaps some others intended."

North contradicted the testimony of former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, that McFarlane had told his staff not to solicit assistance from foreign leaders for the Contras after Congress had cut off U.S. aid.

"I never heard those instructions," North said and added that he, once gave McFarlane a card containing the number of a foreign bank account that could accept contributions earmarked for the rebels.

Repeatedly, North told the committees that he had been conducting covert operations whose details were not for the American people. "There are boxes within boxes to protect the operation," he said. Of secret documents being aired in the hearings, he said "I pray to God you are not going to turn those loose."

North made no secret of the fact that other countries, including China — identified at the hearing only as

"country No. 4" were asked to contribute to the Contras. When he met with a Chinese representative, North said, he asked that the FBI keep tabs so his meeting would not be misunderstood.

But he denied strongly that he solicited money himself. That was not because of a congressional amendment forbidding official U.S. aid, he said, but because he understood there are regulations against government officials soliciting money.

"I had the approval of my superiors" and asked they had approval from Reagan concerning plans for Iranian arms payments to help finance the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government, he said.

SNH, he quoted Reagan as saying in a telephone conversation last Nov. 25: "I just didn't know," Reagan, earlier that day, had fired North as an aide on the National Security Council.

At times, North angrily denounced what he thought were questions about his motives.

Committee members withholding judgment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Senate Iran-Contra committee said Tuesday that Oliver L. Royer, McFarlane, that McFarlane had told his staff not to solicit assistance from foreign leaders for the Contras after Congress had cut off U.S. aid.

"I never heard those instructions," North said and added that he, once gave McFarlane a card containing the number of a foreign bank account that could accept contributions earmarked for the rebels.

To a question about diversion of the Iranian arms profits to the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government, North snapped: "The only thing we did was divert money out of Mr. Ghorbanifar's pocket and put it to better use. Manucher Ghorbanifar was a middleman in contacts with Iran. I would have offered the Iranians a free trip to Disneyland if we could have gotten our hostages home for it," North added.

At the White House on Tuesday, officials took pains to indicate they were too busy to watch North's testimony on television.

As for memos North said he prepared for Reagan on the proposed diversion, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, noting that Reagan has previously denied knowledge of the operation, said: "The president said he was not aware of the diversion and of what means he was not aware of the diversion by any source or any means."

But Mitchell sharply criticized North's testimony that he assumed the president approved his activities but never had any proof.

"It is an ingenious argument for him to say that throughout these proceedings the president had knowledge which authorized his activities and then when it was not was told the president did not know," Mitchell commented.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, characterized North's testimony this way: "He's established that he was a very active cowboy in the arena but he wasn't running the show."

As a result of North's testimony, said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., North's former boss — ex-National Security Adviser John Poindexter — will be the single most important witness this committee will hear from.

In addition to Poindexter, he said, the committee will need crucial testimony from former White House chief of staff Donald Regan.

"I have never believed North was a policymaker. He was a policy implementer," Rudman said.

always envisioned the use of some of the tankers as a shuttle while the larger tankers would continue on to their ultimate destinations.

The dozen congressmen, all members of the House Armed Services Committee, were in the Persian Gulf on a trip which arose from congressional fears about U.S. involvement in the Iran-Iraq war. Kuwait has asked Iraq.

The new plan would involve at least three times more convoys, he said.

The Navy has planned to increase its "fastest task force" from five to eight ships, but the plan envisioned by the Kuwaitis would require a larger number of Navy warships, Aspin said.

Senate opponents of Reagan's policy admitted Tuesday that they lack the votes to end a Republican filibuster of a resolution criticizing the plan.

"I would doubt it," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., in answer to a question about whether Democrats can win the vote now scheduled for this morning.

Kerry and other supporters of the resolution need 60 votes to win a so-called cloture vote, which is necessary to end the unlimited debate that is permitted under Senate rules.

Democrats hold a 54-46 margin in the chamber, meaning they would have to hold all Democrats and pick up six Republicans to halt the filibuster which began last week when Democrats first sought a vote.

"We're seeking support" — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said Tuesday when asked if the non-binding measure would pass.

Jury

and gave it to Pence. He said the names were listed according to procedure done to him by the county clerk and that they were made by him to select individual names.

Broyles said the clerks are given envelopes with addresses of the master list of jurors. Each is then mailed a juror's qualification form. When these are returned, she said, deputies all work as their time permits, to select the qualified jurors who are then used to form panels for all court trials. She said this same procedure was used to select members of the grand jury last June.

Broyles and other clerks who testified said they were trained by jury selection by other deputy clerks working at the time they were hired. Broyles said her other training consisted of a one-day jury seminar held in Twin Falls earlier in the year.

Deputy Clerk Bonnie DeVall listed juror qualifications as being a United States and Twin Falls County resident, never being convicted of a felony, not having been called for jury duty in the previous two years, understanding English and owning a telephone and an automobile. She said the telephone is a necessity for calling a juror on duty if a case is cancelled at the last minute, and the car is necessary for transportation to court.

She said these are not status symbols and that if a person is within a few blocks of the courthouse and can walk, they are not disqualified. She and other witnesses said persons over the age of 70 can be disqualified unless they choose to serve. Other reasons, she said, are decided by the judges.

Donna Lyman, a former clerk now living in Portland, Ore., was called to testify about her "work" in the recent grand jury selection. She said persons who do not respond to the letter and qualification form are generally taken from the list and the names are not used. They have physical or mental disabilities and are eliminated by the clerks.

Faces conspiracy charges

Innocent, declares LaRouche to court

BOSTON (AP) — Fringe presidential candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges he conspired to stymie a federal investigation into an alleged $1-million credit card fraud scheme to finance his 1984 campaign.

U.S. Magistrate Robert B. Collins released LaRouche on $20,000 bond, and told him that he would be liable for an additional $200,000 if he failed to appear for trial Sept. 21. The bond was posted by a LaRouche supporter.

The magistrate allowed LaRouche, whose wife lives in West Germany and who has spent much of his time in recent years out of the United States, to keep his passport until Sept. 8, when he will have to surrender it to federal authorities.

LaRouche, 64, was named last week as a conspirator with 19 aides and five of his organizers in the alleged fraud scam and plot to block an investigation of their fund-raising tactics.

U.S. Attorney John Markham had requested that he be stripped of his passport immediately, but LaRouche and his attorney, Odin Anderson, had requested he be allowed to keep it.

Collins said he gave LaRouche until Sept. 8 to surrender the passport because of his slated plans to visit several foreign countries by then and to spend most of his time campaigning in the United States for the Democratic presidential nomination after Labor Day, which is Sept. 7.

If LaRouche travels to countries other than West Germany, he must provide court officials with an advance itinerary, Collins ruled.

Anderson said LaRouche has no assets, and that it is ridiculous to think he wouldn't appear for trial because he will be campaigning in the United States.

"Mr. LaRouche could not hide if he chose to," he said. "He is about as conspicuous a public figure as one could imagine."

LaRouche said it is easier for him to use West Germany as the base for his international trips because of varying time zones and security reasons.

"I am an endangered person," said LaRouche, who frequently travels with armed guards.

He said he plans to visit several countries between now and Labor Day, and then concentrate his campaign in the United States.

LaRouche smiled and posed for courtroom artists during the proceeding. He has scheduled a news conference for today.

He returned to West Germany a week ago after voluntarily spending four hours before a federal grand jury in Boston.

Dole to push for hearings on Bork soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Tuesday he will push for Senate Judiciary Committee hearings this month on President Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court.

"We want to get this thing going as quickly as we can," Dole said during a picture-taking session in his office with Bork, a staunchly conservative federal appeals court judge here, and Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

Asked if the committee hearings could begin before September, Dole said, "That's our hope. We have 30

But a Democratic committee aide who asked not to be identified said it is unlikely hearings will begin before mid-September. Democratic committee members planned to meet today to discuss plans for the hearings.

The Senate is scheduled to recess on Aug. 7 until after Labor Day. If committee hearings are not held before the recess, it is extremely unlikely the full Senate will act on Bork's nomination before the Oct. 5 Democrats have not set a date for the hearings, which they have said will be exhaustive.

Referring to Bork, Thurmond said, "We've got an excellent man here. There's no reason he shouldn't be confirmed."

Thurmond is the ranking Republican on the Judiciary Committee and Simpson is also a member of the panel and a staunch defender of Reagan's judicial appointments.

Meanwhile in Des Moines, Iowa, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., predicted the Senate will block the nomination of Bork, named by Reagan to succeed retired Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell.

"I don't think they'll [Bork's supporters] have the votes to stop a filibuster on the floor," Simon said. "The odds are against approval."

It requires 60 votes to break a filibuster and force a vote on confirmation, Democrats control the Senate, 54-46.

Simon, a Judiciary Committee member, said he is leaning toward opposing Bork.

"I do not want someone who is a rigid ideologue and this man appears to fit that mold," Simon said.

Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., like Simon a Democratic presidential candidate, canceled an Iowa campaign trip this week to concentrate on the Bork nomination.

Spokesman Bruce Fisher said Biden "is doing the most important thing he can do at the moment, preparing to conduct confirmation hearings on a Supreme Court nomination. The campaign has to come second."

Senate approves cutoff of loans hurting farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday approved a plan aimed at shutting off international development bank loans that critics say represent subsidies for foreign competitors of U.S. farmers and energy producers.

The legislation would use the U.S. contribution to multilateral development banks as leverage to make sure their loans don't hurt Americans.

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., said as the Senate attached the plan to its sweeping trade bill on a voice vote.

The Senate then turned to an issue the Reagan administration has called ed one of the most important in the current trade debate: import restraints to buy time for U.S. industries to upgrade themselves and become more competitive.

Under current law, the president is free to reject import restraints recommended by the U.S. International Trade Commission to aid domestic companies.

President Reagan did so in 1985 after the panel called for aid to the shoe industry, a decision that still reverberates politically.

Hunt for prison-escapees widens

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The search for six New Mexico penitentiary escapees moved to the Canoncito area south of Santa Fe Tuesday after a woman reported being assaulted by two armed men and identified one as an escapee.

Corrections Department spokesman Don Caviness said the victim was shown pictures of the escapees and identified one of the assaulters as David Gallegos, 33.

The woman who was attacked about 12 miles south of Santa Fe, said the assaulters both carried portable radios. Caviness said it is assumed those were the radios taken from the prison control center when seven inmates escaped from the penitentiary Saturday night.

The woman, Yvonne Garcia, 39, was treated for a superficial laceration and rib injuries and probably would be released, said Charlie Cullen, spokesman for St. Vincent Hospital in Santa Fe.

She told the doctor that a man cut her arm with a knife, then kicked her in the ribs, Cullen said.

In Amarillo, Texas, meanwhile, police were investigating whether the New Mexico escapees were involved when three men beat a 30-year-old man in a parking lot early Tuesday, demanding his car keys, then fled when another auto approached.

The description of the men matched at least two, if not three, of the New Mexico escapees, officer Ralph Plecher said. But officials declined to say which three fugitives may have been involved.

One of the escapees, Hector Torres Jr., was picked up Monday morning near The Downs at Santa Fe racetrack, 3 1/2 miles west of the prison.

In Texas, authorities captured one of the two convicts who stole a Department of Corrections truck and escaped Monday from the department's Wynne Unit, crashing through two gates.

Jerry Wayne Ables, 28, was captured after abducting three people and holding up a fast-food restaurant, authorities said. Carl Lang, 44, remained at large.

Ables broke into a Huntsville home, stole a shirt, called a taxi and held the driver at knifepoint during an aimless four-hour drive, Huntsville police spokesman Robert Reese said.

In Michigan, authorities continued searching Tuesday for three convicted killers who escaped Saturday from the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson.

The wife of one of the inmates had come from her home in Pittsburgh to visit the prison hours before the breakout and was being sought for questioning, the FBI said.

Taxes on mail orders overdue as revenues

The Idaho Department of Revenue and Taxation has launched a campaign to get Congress to allow states to collect sales taxes from out-of-state mail order firms, a move which would bring an estimated $5 million into Idaho sales tax coffers.

The campaign is a noble one which addresses a developing problem, the huge growth in mail order retail business in the past decade.

Making an effort to collect tax from this developing form of selling is a valid response to a change in the economic marketplace.

But even if states are allowed to capture mail-order sales tax revenues, no one in Idaho should overestimate the impact. Five million dollars, as Sen. Everett Dirksen used to say is "real money," but even in a small state like Idaho, $5 million is less than one percent of the state's annual budget.

Nonetheless, the Taxation Department's effort should be met with approval from Idahoans and people in other states whose use of mail-order purchasing is extensive.

Yes, we will all pay more for products we buy in this way. But there is little doubt that the purchases are, in fact, made for "in-state" use and hence, ought to be as subject to sales tax as any other purchase. The money, after-all, will go into Idaho's needs services, including education.

The mail order business naturally will lobby heavily against this proposal. They have a lot at stake. But is there any legitimate reason why they should not have to do what every in-state merchant does in collecting tax on sale of merchandise?

A serious effort to collect this revenue is long overdue.

Letters/ Editorial reversal on SIS was a disappointing stand

A shameful rationale offered

In my 20 years as an activist I have never witnessed as blatant a case of social, spiritual and environmental whoring as your editorial reversal on SIS (bomb maker) and its shameful rationale. You make Jim and Tammy Bakker look like Sunday school teachers.

I can only wonder if the "good" Germans in World War II fighting the Nazis were going to incinerate and exterminate the Jews sought the concentration camps and gas chambers for their communities in the interest of economic development.

"We all are going to be built somewhere, so they might as well be built here." Isn't that the rationale? Isn't that also the philosophical point which the Nuremberg principles of which the U.S. is a signatory tries to attack? Isn't it wrong still a wrong?

"A couple of weeks ago, your newspaper reported that plutonium had been found in East Wells Bay on the dump site of ENEL. And now you want to bring on some more, all for the sake of money. The capitalist's drug. Makes no difference if you get it through a socialist project like SIS. Looks like the economy is built somewhere, so they might as well be built here."

At the environmental impact statement scoping hearings — many good questions were raised against SIS. Like our development crazed Lt. Governor Butch Otter, Idaho Power and Mt. Bell, you sucked for it even before the questions were addressed. Money, money, money — rip and rape — you folks are more pitiful than the heroin addict. Just say no to drugs.

"I have never seen a bird rise up above the ranks to stardom. Hey baby — it's all for sale and that's whoring."

Why hasn't the state?

AFL-CIO boss Jim Kerens' letter attacking Idaho's Right-to-Work law and comparing Idaho to Soviet Russia was worthy of publication in PRVA.

"Witness people trying unsuccessfully to leave Basin and the 27,000 workers who have left Idaho since January 1985," said Kerens.

In fact, Kerens "pay up or you're fired" philosophy would receive warm welcome from Kerens in basins.

Angela Davis, Communist Party USA's 1984 candidate for Vice-president, made clear Communist support for Conrad Kerens' compulsory system when she vowed: "We will join our brothers and sisters in the AFL-CIO to defeat Right-to-Work."

Kerens' attack on Idaho follows that of Paul Wissel, head of Kerens' anti-Right-to-Work in last fall's referendum. Boise's Idaho Statesman reported: "Wissel described Idaho as a state that harbors Nazis and people who hate unions."

To Kerens' never-ending dismay, Idaho will remain a Right-to-Work state — where workers have the freedom to choose — for the rest of his lifetime and beyond. I was proud to play a part.

If Kerens thinks that freedom makes Idaho comparable to Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia, why hasn't he joined those he despises in their own referendum?

Management outsmarted

Many have put forth the idea that the recent announcement by Tupperware officials that they plan to close their Jerome, Idaho plant is due to the Idaho Right-to-Work laws. Others have suggested that our taxes in this state are too high. Now is the time to sort through the myths and theories and find the real answers.

Tupperware makes products that are usually pretty reliable. When I was a small boy, the only time my mother would have to replace a piece of Tupperware was when her car's tires got caught in the dishwasher. But recently, others manufacturers have broken into the plastic dish market. Brands like Rubbermaid are sold in many stores locally, and can be purchased at a lower price than Tupperware. I wait for a Tupperware party any longer.

There lies Tupperware's failure. I don't admit that the product is good, but Tupperware has been outsmarted by the market of other similar goods. Business has gone down, and Tupperware has to tighten its belt, so Southern Idaho is first to be affected. We're losing Tupperware not because of something we did, but because of things the hot shots at Tupperware HQ did not.

There is perhaps only one other reason for Tupperware to go, and that is geography. It's somewhat surprising to me that the company has several plants in a small region in the southwestern part of our country, and then only one other plant in Jerome, Idaho. Our Tupperware plant here carries its corporate weight as far as Tupperware is concerned, but one need only look at a map of the continental United States for a few seconds to realize that the guys at Tupperware HQ got their asses kicked by the market. Our carries its own weight sufficiently, the Tupperware top brass has decided that now is a good time to cut losses while they can.

These are the real reasons Tupperware is going. This community has supported the Tupperware plant just as much as it's supported us. But now, if the Tupperware high command wants to retreat from this well-guarded front, then I think it's high time we defect to the enemy. If Tupperware can't help us out, then why should we continue to help them?

Some will benefit personally from relocation, and that's great. I applaud Tupperware for the offer. But this community will not benefit from Tupperware; all we can hope for is another more concerned industrial suitor to move to our area. Now is the time for those of us left behind to say "Tupperware, here we come."

Let's work hard to find a replacement for Tupperware. That probably seems like the kind of job "somebody else" should do, but the fact is that we'll all benefit from industry in our area. When outsiders come to look at the Magic Valley, they should see a group of neighbors working together for their mutual good. If we do work together from this point on, we can be a great attraction industry will eventually fly up in the Magic Valley along with the industry we now seek.

State should guard its water

Is the water in Idaho really for sale? I find this difficult to imagine that especially in a year of irrigation drought there is water to be sold.

We have five near Star Falls for 19 years and never the slightest of the endless resources the river has to offer.

It seems Bonneville Power has already purchased land on the south of the Falls. This tells me they must be quite assured of their goals. And since we of our great politicians have spoken out it leaves me quite assured of their goals also.

From what I have read, the flow of water will be cut back permanently to the smallest amount flowing during the year. That means no more rapids, no more kayakers, bunters, or tubers. We have watched kayakers come from Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona, Oregon and Washington to float the stretch of rapids from Star Falls to Twin Falls. They rate these rapids an 8 on a scale from 1 to 10. It seems to me in an economically depressed area we could benefit from these people, even slightly.

This also is an area for nesting of geese year round. They will be building a dam 20 feet high and 50 feet long. What will this do to the sandbars and beaches where the geese and other birds nest?

We have also watched eagles and many raptors in the area. What effect will the huge power poles have on them?

Star Falls and the Coudron Lin are on the historical register and I thought that meant they would always remain unspoiled for all to see and enjoy.

If you haven't been to Star Falls, please do so. It is one mile north of Murtaugh Bridge, one mile east and one mile south. I realize there must be an impact study, public meetings, etc. but while we are trusting our bureaucrats to do the right thing, Bonneville Power is on the job. They are not sitting idle. We see their people coming to work.

Someday, these decisions will affect every Idahoan directly. Once this decision to sell Idaho water is made it will never be reversed. Can you really afford to take on this responsibility?

Surrounding states are short of water because of their growth. Will Idaho find herself short of water because of our stupidity?

Work to enhance area appeal

There have been complaints the past number of years and recently by some members of Region IV Idaho Travel Committee that a "Can't find a sign" find. Balanced Rock and when you do it's a mess (graffiti, trash, vandalism). We avoid sending people to places like Crystal Springs and those that are always a mess or hard to find, so only after breakfast in that Sugarbrush Days) my wife and I took a drive through Castletford to Balanced Rock and Salmon Falls Creek Park.

Once started in the right direction out of Buhl (don't be afraid to ask) signs are plentiful and the road is in top condition all the way to the Rock. By the way, the canyon and area have another unusual rock formations and the park and creek are a delight with new trees lining the river bank, ten picnic tables and many trash containers with liners for easy cleaning. A nice place for a picnic, hiking, climbing, fishing and tubing.

The results of vandalism (shotgun holes in the toilet building on the creek and the canopy over the picnic tables below the rock as well as graffiti) can be seen but perhaps not be stopped by signs. We need $100 rewards for information and conviction of vandals. Something must be done; why wait until after the fact? A county ordinance?

One other need is for the town of Castletford to spruce itself up. It's a mess on the front street. Travelers will avoid stopping or make it very brief if it isn't attractive. We must work hard at making our particular area attractive if we want the travelers' business.

His message worth hearing

Everyone who eats should be interested in the speech that Jim Hightower will be delivering at the Filer Fairgrounds on July 13th at 8pm.

The 1985 Farm Bill has used all the money the government gave to the Agriculture Department for the payments of the dairy buy-out or the set-aside programs. These payments are literally bankrupting the nation and the farmers are still going broke or filing Chapter 12's trying to stay in business. We still can if you want to change the system.

Jim Hightower will be speaking about a new concept in the farm situation and will be giving family farmers a new lease on life so they won't have to sell their farms and moving off the land.

Why do the Export Trade Companies think they need to pay the farmer the same price as the export business allow? Seventy percent of the commodities we produce are used right here in the United States. This is where our markets are and this is where consumption is, and this is where we need to establish the market. Not through export trade. If we keep operating on the export market level, we will be lowering our living standards to the level of these competing countries. Is this what we want here in the U.S.? Remember if living standards go down for farmers it also means living standards will go down for everyone else in the working field.

Please come and buy your supper at the chuckwagon from 6:30 to 8:00 or bring your own picnic lunch and listen to Jim Hightower. I guarantee you will leave with enthusiasm and you'll have an enjoyable evening. We can change the agriculture picture here in the U.S. You will have many things to think about and will understand the overall effect agriculture has here in the U.S.

Pulling plug on family farm is murder

It has become fashionable in recent months to talk about how Congress needs to "fix the debts" and "pull the plug" on the family farm. If Congress adopts such a narrow-sighted approach, it will not be a case of mercy killing. It will be cold-blooded murder.

What Congress needs to end is the disastrous farm policies of today, policies which have sent prices to post-Depression lows, pushed up federal farm subsidies to $26 billion a year and given us our own home-grown equivalent of the Latin American debt crisis, a $50-60 billion un-recoverable farm debt that threatens to boost short-term interest rates by two full percentage points.

The Administration should be commended for its frankness in acknowledging that its current program does little or nothing to increase farm income, nothing to ease the explosive farm debt crisis, and nothing to increase the value of U.S. farm exports. The only thing the current program does is flush billions more tax dollars down the rat hole, while eliminating tens-of-thousands of productive farmers.

The Family Farm Act, sponsored by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and Rep. Dick Gephardt, D-Missouri, is the one means that Congress has to save rural America. The legislation, based on hundreds of grass-roots meetings held across the heartland of America, authorizes a February-1988 nationwide referendum of farmers to decide their own fate.

If a majority of farmers votes to settle current farm policies, the production of American agricultural products will be increased, both in domestic and export demand and world hunger needs.

In exchange for production cuts and an end to costly farm subsidies, farmers will receive a price floor at a level that covers their cost of producing crops.

Family-sized livestock operations will benefit two ways from Harkin-Gephardt: During the initial three-year "transition" period, they can purchase lower-priced grain from government surplus stocks, and they will be able to feed or sell as much grain as they currently raise at prices equal to 70 percent of parity.

The Congressional Budget Office has concluded, "Passage of the referendum would ensure that the family farm remains viable budget-wise while raising farm income an estimated 52 percent. The projected savings of $8.9 billion a year would come through the elimination of costly direct federal subsidies, which are falling to the job now because the bulk of the money does not go to the farmers who need the help."

The commonsense, business-oriented approach of the Harkin-Gephardt bill means that farmers would stop producing more than they can sell — and that they would earn their income from the marketplace, not from taxpayers' pockets.

Critics say supply management would hinder U.S. farm exports, but the prestigious Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute (FAPRI) shows this farm policy would actually increase the value of U.S. exports by 66 percent.

This break with the failed policies of the past makes the Harkin-Gephardt bill the cheapest farm proposal before Congress and the only one that will dramatically increase farm income — the first big step to easing the $50-60 billion short-term debt crisis in rural America.

The FAPRI analysis also shows that the one-shot impact on consumer prices would be minimal — an annual 1.6 percent increase in the Consumer Food Price Index, which would merely restore the farmers' share of the food dollar to where it was in 1981.

The Harkin-Gephardt bill also is the best plan Congress has to fight world hunger and to institute the long-overdue, aggressive conservation steps that are needed to prevent an even more disastrous Dust Bowl.

The sound principle of balancing supply with demand is used by every successful business in America from McDonald's to General Motors. The same supply management approach is now being used profitably for American farmers producing other commodities, including peanuts and a long list of specialty crops.

If good business sense will not drive the current farm bill debate, perhaps the prospect of another deeper deficit will. With the prediction of another near-record grain crop harvest in 1987, the options available to Congress have boiled down to either more costly million-dollar farm subsidies or sensible business controls for our runaway farm production. It's a simple choice between continuing to mask the symptoms and confronting the real problem.

The farm bill needs to be the death certificate for the family farm. But if Congress continues on the current path, we will be filing one all too soon, with the cause of death listed as a "Total Failure of Federal Farm Policy."

Jim Hightower, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, will speak at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer next Monday evening and in Twin Falls on Tuesday.

Governors ask Congress to lead search

SNOWBIRD, Utah (AP) — Members of the Western Governors' Association closed their annual meeting Tuesday by calling on Congress to take control of the Department of Energy's search for a high-level nuclear waste repository site.

The governors' resolution said the Energy Department had allowed political considerations to override safety concerns in picking sites in Washington, Nevada and Texas as finalists for the repository.

Failures in control crash key

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal panel on Tuesday blamed failures in the air traffic control system for the collision last August of an Aeromexico DC-9 airliner and a private plane near Los Angeles that killed 82 people.

The National Transportation Safety Board also cited as key factors in the accident the unauthorized entry of the smaller plane into restricted airspace and the "limitations" of putting too much reliance on pilots scanning the skies for other aircraft.

The safety board, adapting its final report on the Aug. 31, 1986 accident over Cerritos, Calif., sought to not, specifically, blame either the controller handling the plane or the pilots involved.

Instead, it sharply criticized the air-traffic control system, which the board said has "limitations" that make it unable to "provide collision protection" for aircraft under its control.

In addition, the NTSB said, the longstanding philosophy that "see and avoid" is the pilot's primary protection against other aircraft may be outdated in today's airspace in which fast-moving jetliners routinely mix with slower, smaller planes.

The board criticized standard Federal Aviation Administration policy that does not specifically require a controller to "advise" planes under air traffic control about planes flying under visual flight rules and not under controller direction.

Under FAA rules, a controller is required to make advisories about planes not under direct control only as the workload permits. The NTSB investigators suggested that at times, a "mindset" may keep a controller from doing so even when he is not busy.

The FAA had no immediate comment on the safety board's findings.

NTSB Chairman Jim Burnett told reporters the board wanted a new philosophy that would require the air traffic control system to provide broader protection for aircraft against aerial collisions.

He and board member John Lauber cited the "inherent weakness" of the see-and-avoid concept, arguing that it provides little protection in an airspace such as the Los Angeles basin where large numbers of small private planes share the skies with commercial jets.

The NTSB suggested that the controller who was handling a Mexican jetliner should have seen the impending collision because the electronic signal of the private plane — a single-engine Piper PA-28 Cherokee — was on his radar screen.

Walter White, who has insisted that he never saw the small plane on his screen and has suggested that a shortcoming in the radar might have been faulty.

Engines checked for links to crash

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) — The engines of a Beechcraft airplane that crashed last weekend near Lakeside killing 10 people are being torn down by a Kalispell mechanic in an effort to determine the cause of Montana's worst civil air disaster, a federal official said Tuesday.

Norm Wiemeyer, an investigator from the Denver field office of the National Transportation Safety Board, said he has completed his field investigation of the crash, which killed all the members of a bluegrass group known as The Montana Band.

Also killed were the 12-year-old son of a band member, two others affiliated with the group and the plane's pilot and his female friend.

With the exception of the engines, the remainder of the wreckage has been released to the plane's owner, Tom Cannarozzo of Athol, Idaho.

Investigation so far has turned up no indications that mechanical failure caused the plane to crash, Wiemeyer said, and "there is no indication of any problem in the external inspection of the engines."

Nevada and Washington both are members of the WGA, Texas is not. "I believe the Department of Energy is lying, just plain lying," said Oregon Gov. Neil Goldschmidt, a Democrat. "I think we've got to send these guys back to the beginning."

The underground repository would become the sole storage site for the nation's highly radioactive waste. A final site is to be selected by the mid-1990s.

The governors approved the resolution during the final session of the three-day conference at this mountain resort. They also officially turned over chairmanship of the 19-member association to Washington Gov. Booth Gardner, a Democrat, who succeeded Republican Gov. Norm Bangert of Utah.

The governors contend that the Energy Department has ignored safety both in terms of transportation of waste to the site and geologic hazards.

Goldschmidt said building the repository at the Hanford, Wash., site would create the risk of radioactive material leaking into the Columbia River.

He said that of nine sites originally considered by the Energy Department, Hanford has been rated as the least acceptable in scientific evaluations.

Furthermore, the governors were angry that Energy Secretary John Herrington canceled plans to build a second repository in an eastern state.

"The decision should be made on the basis of safety, not politics," said Gardner, who sponsored the resolution. "What I am most interested in is when they start over again, they do it on the basis of scientific data."

The resolution was opposed by Bangert, who agreed that the selection process was flawed by said he did not want to start over.

Among 17 other resolutions approved by the governors were calls for better state and federal cooperation on foreign trade initiatives, improved health care for native Americans, and the development of a synthetic fuels industry.

Selby execution date set

GODEN, Utah (AP) — Pierre Dale Selby, one of the two convicted "H. P." killers, was sentenced Tuesday to die by lethal injection on Aug. 28 for the torture murders of three people in 1974.

The execution, which still may be reviewed by the State Board of Pardons, would be the first in Utah since Gary Gilmore's in 1977.

No execution date has been set for William Andrews, who was also convicted in one of the most sensational crimes in the state's history.

Selby, 34, appeared under tight security before 2nd District Judge John F. Waiquist, who first sentenced the former Air Force helicopter mechanic to death in November, 1974, along with fellow airman Andrews.

As he did at the original trial, Selby declined to choose between lethal injection and firing squad.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You will expect a change of scenery today. Expect some delays and ups and downs in your plans and use this time to contemplate your actions before you get in over your head.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): A situation which was not resolved in the past will reappear. Get it settled for good this time so you won't pop up again.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Patience will be needed to handle a difficult business situation. Tonight would be fine for enjoying your TV at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't complain about fulfilling a promise to a partner. Take no risks in public or while driving today.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Your mate may be in a difficult mood today, but a smile from you is all that will be required to rectify the situation.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 23): Attending to correspondence you've ignored will bring a surprising message. Be more considerate.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Clear up the situation with your debts, and be careful about creating more. Property repairs would be wise at this point.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): You may feel limited by current situations, but there are actually more opportunities than meet the eye.

Virgo (August 22 to September 22): Accept home situations as they are. Arguments could make matters worse. The time is not for having guests in.

Truck crash, fire kill at least 30 people

HERBORN, West Germany (AP) — A tank truck loaded with gasoline crashed into a concrete pillar Tuesday night, exploded and set off a ruptured gas main, killing at least 30 people and injuring 29, officials said.

The truck driver survived. A police officer on the scene told Frankfurt radio: "I have never seen so many dead bodies in a pile."

The downtown section of Herborn looked as if it had been firebombed. It took hundreds of firemen about five hours to bring the flames under control after the 9 p.m. accident.

Police said three buildings in the town of 21,000 were destroyed and five were heavily damaged in the series of explosions from the truck and the broken gas main. Dozens of cars were set ablaze.

Police spokesman Helmut Kremen told The Associated Press the explosions killed at least 30 people. He did not say how many bodies had been recovered.

Ernst Achilles, a spokesman for the rescue team, said up to 50 people were believed missing or dead. He said some of the missing may have failed to register with authorities.

"We don't know how many more bodies may be in the ruins. Rescuers are now starting to sift through the debris," town spokesman Gerhard Beckel told reporters.

People were inside at the time. Achilles said at least 25 people were hospitalized. Four of them were flown by helicopter to a burn unit of a hospital in Cologne and were in critical condition.

Five firemen were among the injured. Beckel said more than 100 people were evacuated from the area of the blast and taken to a local school to spend the night.

Gerhard Heilmann, another police spokesman, said the 46-year-old bus driver survived the accident "by a miracle" and was hospitalized. A pizza parlor on the floor above the ice cream parlor apparently was closed at the time of the accident, Heilmann said.

Police also warned of fire or explosions from gasoline that spilled into the sewage system. Authorities sealed off Herborn and banned traffic to allow rescuers and fire engines to reach the town.

Pope plans to take a week's vacation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — For the first time in his nearly nine-year-old papacy, Pope John Paul II will take a full vacation, spending a week in the Dolomite Alps in northeastern Italy, the Vatican announced Tuesday.

Deputy Vatican spokesman Monsignor Giulio Nicolini said the pontiff will leave Rome Wednesday for Lorenzago di Cadore, about 90 miles north of Venice. He will stay in a simple, two-story house normally used by seminarians on retreat, Nicolini said.

John Paul, an avid skier, has taken at least two overnight skiing trips in Italy.

390 feared dead after barge sinks in crocodile-filled river

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Rescue teams recovered 16 more bodies Tuesday from the crocodile-infested Lupatula River where officials fear that 390 passengers died in the sinking of a barge.

The barge Marla was carrying 470 people from Zaire to Zambia when it hit a sandbar and overturned during a crossing early Sunday.

One officer said the man at the tiller may have dozed off.

A statement from the office of Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda in Lusaka, capital of Zambia, said 39 bodies had been found so far.

Twenty-three bodies were recovered immediately after the sinking.

"Eighty passengers on the upper deck swam ashore in pre-dawn darkness, but 351 of the 470 men, women and children crowded onto the barge remained missing, the statement said.

"The area is infested with crocodiles," said a police officer in the northern Zambian town of Mansa, 30 miles from the river.

"We don't know whether the crocodiles attacked anyone or had eaten any bodies," he said. "We are battling to find the rest of the bodies." The strong current is making this task more difficult.

A telephone interview, said communications with the area were poor, and a complete picture of the tragedy had not yet emerged.

"The river is swollen by summer rains," he said. "It appears the Zairean coxswain dozed off and the barge hit a sandbar and sank."

The officer said the barge was completely submerged and he feared most of those missing drowned inside the craft when it sank.

However, police reinforcements and villagers were combing the river banks for survivors, said the officer, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He said the coxswain, sailing from Mpweto village in Zaire to Kasenge village on the Zambian side, surrendered to police and was detained pending an investigation.

The semi-official Zambian News Agency said Kaunda expressed shock at the tragedy and sent a message of condolence to President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire for any Zaireans who may have died in the incident.

It said the nationalities and identities of the victims recovered so far had not yet been established.

Diesel-powered barges like the Marla frequently cross the Luoapani River between Zambia and Zaire, ferrying traders or villagers visiting relatives.

Aquino puts anti-crime drive in gear

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino ordered the military Tuesday to act on a wave of major, unsolved crimes since she took power, saying the lack of results was becoming "embarrassing," a spokesman said.

Earlier Tuesday, she said she was shocked to learn that a personal friend, American Steve Pinauskis, was arrested in San Francisco on 52-year-old charges involving explosives that were filed by ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

She told her foreign and justice departments to help Pinauskis in the case.

Mrs. Aquino met behind closed doors at Malacanang Palace with more than 40 generals to discuss violent crimes in the capital area.

Benigno spokesman Teodoro Benigno quoted Mrs. Aquino as saying the lack of arrests in violent crimes is "really getting to be embarrassing."

The president reiterated her demand for results. Benigno told reporters, "She failed to see enough results being produced, especially for the major crimes. She emphasized the PMA bombing."

Four people were killed last March when a bomb planted in the roof of the grandstand at the Philippine Military Academy exploded four days before Mrs. Aquino was to address a graduation ceremony.

'People's funeral' due slain student

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Anti-government students said Tuesday they will hold a "people's funeral" and a cross-country procession from a dead comrade despite pleas from the family and politicians to avoid provoking more unrest.

President Chun Doo-hwan said he was returning letters of resignation from members of the governing party's executive council, indicating the leadership shakeup expected by political observers will not take place.

Student Lee Han-yul was hit in the head by fragments of a tear gas canister June 5 during a battle with riot police at Yonsei University and died Sunday. The funeral is scheduled for Thursday and a student committee said the body would be driven afterward to his hometown of Kwangju in the military.

Thousands of students rallied and marched at Yonsei on Tuesday. About 1,000 riot police looked on, but did not interfere.

The government is expected to grant amnesty Thursday to about 2,100 political prisoners, including opposition leader Kim Dae-jung. The amnesty would free Kim from a ban on political activity in effect since his conviction on sedition charges in 1980.

Chun agreed to free political prisoners when he acceded on July 1 to opposition demands for democratic reforms. Officials said about 300 people charged with Communist or pro-Communist crimes would not be included.

In a change of position, the main opposition Reunification Democratic Party said Tuesday it is willing to begin talks with the governing Democratic Justice Party next week without prior conditions.

Party leader Kim Young-sam and Kim Dae-jung had said Saturday they would not proceed with talks until all political prisoners were reinstated.

On Tuesday, Chun said he was returning letters of resignation from 28 members of his party's executive council.

Soviets set off nuclear test shot

MOSCOW (AP) — A nuclear test blast with a yield up to 20 kilotons was conducted Tuesday in Siberia, the 10th underground nuclear explosion since the Soviets abandoned a unilateral testing ban.

A kiloton is equivalent to 1,000 tons of TNT.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the explosion "was made in the interests of the people's economy," an indication it was for non-military purposes.

The explosion occurred at 4 a.m. Moscow time in the vast autonomous region, an area in Siberia rich in gold and diamonds.

The last underground nuclear blast the Soviets announced was made at 20 at the Semipalatinsk military weapons testing center.

Other apparently non-military blasts included two in April in the Perm region of the Ural Mountains. Those blasts were the result of experiments on new-poll extraction methods.

Andrus, IPC work to keep Tupperware here

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

JEROME — Gov. Cecil Andrus still is trying to turn Tupperware back toward their 15-year-old plant at Jerome, but to little avail so far.

Andrus and Idaho Power Co. President Robert J. O'Connor recently have explored ways to lower operating costs for the factory, which now is scheduled to close and idle 700 workers by the end of the year.

"We attempted to put together a consortium of people who provide services to the Tupperware plant with the hope that we could negotiate downward some of their costs," said Andrus on Tuesday.

Idaho Power Co. is a major supplier to the plant, delivering electricity used to run its 79 molding machines. But projected savings from Idaho Power and other private businesses aren't large enough yet to persuade the manufacturer to keep the plant's doors open.

"Frankly, we don't have a deal to take to anybody yet," he said.

Andrus, who has talked several times to Tupperware officials, also said state officials continue to seek a donation of the factory south of Jerome to a local government, if the closing can't be averted. The donation would help efforts to sell the plant and fill it with one or more new businesses, he said.

The Idaho Department-of-Commerce has been researching several plans to deal with the announced closure. Tupperware officials said late last month the company plans to phase out the facility, which manufactures food containers and other plasticware.

Clark Leslie, Tupperware vice president of manufacturing for North America, then termed the company's decision "irrevocable." Tupperware Home Parties is transferring the production to two other factories located closer to most major markets, he said.

Andrus tried to dissuade Leslie and executives of Premark International Inc. Tupperware's parent company, in the days after the announcement, but met with little success.

Jay Engstrom, Department of Commerce manager of economic development, said the department is looking at cost savings and at other alternatives. "Maybe we can give them a good enough reason to keep it open, but I wouldn't put my last dollar on it," he said.

State officials also are cooperating with local and regional economic development leaders to find a new tenant for the factory and to attract new jobs to offset payroll losses from Tupperware's anticipated pull-out.

Idaho Power's O'Connor was traveling and not available Tuesday for comment on the cost-saving idea. However officials of Idaho Public Utilities Commission said the electric utility has not filed for any rate changes recently.

Officials will solve pasture dilemma

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS Whatever your definition of a pasture, the one being considered by the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission is as follows:

An enclosed parcel of land where grass and fodder are grown for the grazing of domestic livestock.

That definition and other proposed changes to a county zoning ordinance, including restricting the placement of mobile homes, are up for discussion Thursday by the zoning commission.

The meeting will be held at the Theron Ward Judicial Building at 8 p.m.

The proposed changes originated with observations by the zoning commission or questions or comments to the zoning officer, Zoning Administrator Lee Taylor.

Several months ago, a woman complained that her neighbor's feeding of his animals near her home was causing an odor problem, he said. Upon further research, it was discovered there was no definition of a pasture in the ordinance.

Barns, corrals, pens, coops or huts in which animals are kept can't be located closer than 100 feet to a structure used for human occupancy, such as a home, school or church, according to present county law.

Under the proposed definition and changes, pastured animals may be kept up to a fence line of an adjoining property, Taylor said. But if the animal owners bring hay, grain, fodder or feed into the pasture, the area will fall into the same category as a barn or corral and be subject to the 100-foot restriction.

Another proposed change would further restrict the placement of mobile homes.

Any number of mobile homes are allowed on a farm when they are used by farm laborers, states the present ordinance.

The ordinance would be changed, however, to include a definition of a farm as containing 20 acres or more, which is the same definition used elsewhere in county codes. Without the addition, a person who owns a five-acre parcel could claim it is a farm and haul in several mobile homes, Taylor said.

Conditional-use permits are the subject of more proposed changes.

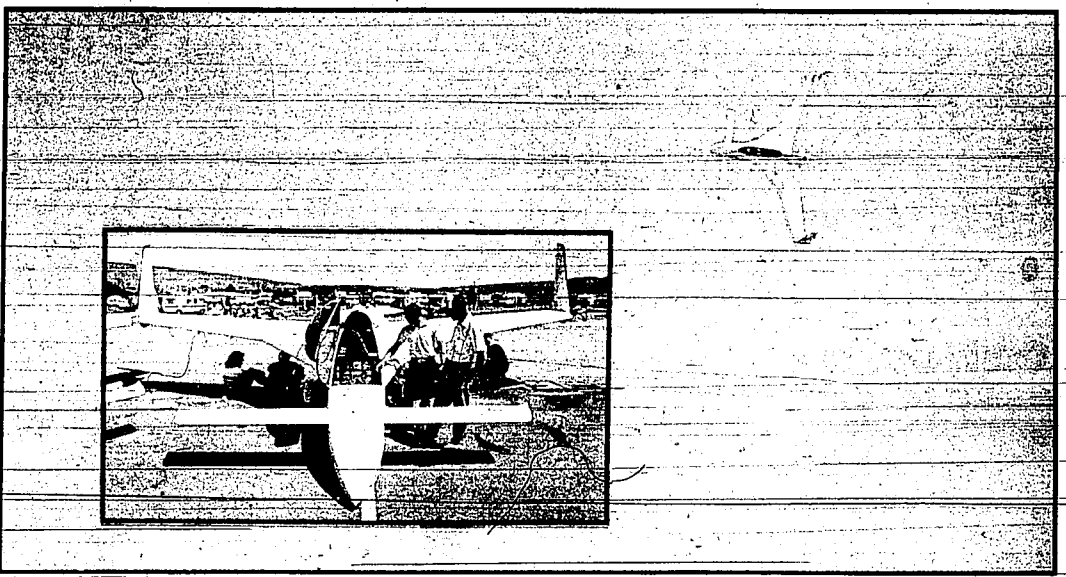

Although the zoning officer requires a new permit application when land changes hands, it is not specified in the ordinance, Taylor said. The proposed change would make the county practice official by stating that it "conditional-use permit is issued to a person, firm or corporation and not to the property."

As a result, the permit can't be sold, leased or transferred along with the property.

Another proposal would give a permit holder one year to commence the operation for which he had sought the permit. Extensions would be available for another year.

Several years ago, the zoning commission had approved conditional-use permits allowing industrial use.

The International Varize Hospitality Club fly-in in Jackpot Saturday drew homebuilt fiberglass airplanes with a pusher-prop, canard design

Fiberglass designs

Homebuilt planes fill Jackpot skies during annual fly-in

JACKPOT — Homebuilt aircraft filled the skies above Jackpot over the weekend as the International Varize Hospitality Club held its fifth annual fly-in and flying competition.

The event is hosted by Cactus Pete's in Jackpot, and the casino put up $1,800 in prize money for the 120-mile race and skill competition.

The fly-in was open to all fiberglass constructed, homebuilt aircraft. But this year, as in the past, the aircraft competing were Rutan Aircraft Factory-designed Varize or Long-EZ planes.

These planes are a pusher-prop, canard wing style and are made of fiberglass. Pusher refers to a propeller in the rear of the aircraft, giving the craft the appearance of flying backwards.

The planes were designed by aviation pioneers, brothers Dick and Burt Rutan of Mojave, Calif. The pair are famous for the Voyager aircraft, which Burt designed and Dick, with co-pilot Jeana Yeager, flew around the world on a single tank of gas last September.

Both the brothers and Yeager attended the Jackpot event. The Rutans demonstrated the flying ability of their aircraft design by piloting a Long-EZ and a Defiant design in the races and ribbon-cutting competition.

The Defiant is a particularly unusual twin-engine design, with a propeller at the front and the rear of the aircraft in a "push-pull" configuration.

IVHC spokesman and event organizer Shurt Dickey of Salt Lake City said the event has grown steadily over the years. According to Dickey 30 planes participated in 1985, with the number growing to 45 in 1986 and more than 60 planes this year.

Several of the Rutan design planes are located in Idaho and the Magic Valley. Planes from Boise and Idaho Falls joined other pilots from around the West at the Jackpot event.

Sun Valley may test water system for asbestos fibers

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The city of Sun Valley may test for the presence of asbestos fibers in its water system, says Jack Brewer, manager of the water and sewer district.

"There is a possibility. I have to re-familiarize myself with the situation," the West Valley City manager said. "We've tested for asbestos five to six years ago and found there was no problem, Brown said."

About four to five miles of Sun Valley's 40 miles of pipe are asbestos-cement, he says. The pipe is located in the Elkhorn area, Brown says.

Asbestos is a suspected cancer-causing agent, some researchers say.

But Dick Rogers, senior water quality engineer for the state Division of Environment, says there are no documented health problems from absorbing low levels of asbestos. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is giving a higher priority to community water systems testing for organics such as the solvents benzene and toluene than asbestos testing, he says. Testing for pesticides in water systems is also ahead of asbestos, Rogers says.

Some of the larger community water systems will have to test for organics next year, Rogers says. Organics can cause cancer, he says.

Boise Water Corp., which has 60 percent asbestos-cement pipe, says it will test water for asbestos fibers after the Idaho Conservation League, the state's largest conservation organization, issued a call for testing in response to a newspaper article.

The city of Twin Falls has no asbestos pipe in its 125-mile water system, says Joe Koon, water superintendent. Some communities went to asbestos pipe because it was cheaper in the short-run, he said. But in the long-run, more durable cast iron or ductile iron pipe is cheaper, Koon says.

Lloyd McLeod, city of Gooding water superintendent, also says Gooding doesn't have asbestos pipe. Gooding has already tested for organics and found the levels to be well within EPA limits, he says.

A common denominator in Boise and Sun Valley water is its corrosiveness. North Fork Store, north of Ketchum, Halley, N. Oakley,

CSI works on devising small-business strategies

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS A new small business assistance center at the College of Southern Idaho will use a three-stage, problem-solving system to help business owners survive.

The crux of the Small Business Assistance Center's approach is planning, says its counselor, Rod Grzadzieski. But he said before a plan of action for a small business is developed, the business owner must follow a problem-solving analysis.

The first part of the SBAC's analysis is to define the business's problem.

"You're going to spill your guts out to me," Grzadzieski said to 25 businessmen attending a seminar Tuesday. "That's the only way it will work."

Grzadzieski spoke at the second of a series of five seminars organized by the Greater-Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and the College of Southern Idaho Continuing Education program.

The seminars feature presentations on doing business with the government, analyzing markets, Idaho economic development activities and the economics of Magic Valley agriculture. The seminars run until Feb. 2, 1988.

After Grzadzieski helps a business owner identify his problem, a list of possible solutions is drawn up. For this step, the SBAC will draw on the expertise of accountants and professors at CSI and, according to Grzadzieski, the center.

The center will also use computers to link into databases with industrial and market information.

Laxalt: If funds come he'll take presidential bid all the way

By the Times-News and the Associated Press

SUN VALLEY — Presidential hopeful Paul Laxalt, of Nevada, said Tuesday in Sun Valley that if he can raise $2 million dollars by September, he will go all the way with his bid for the Republican nomination.

His hopes in the election are pinned on his fellow Westerners, he said during his campaign launch through Idaho on Tuesday. His stops Tuesday included a discussion of the Iran-Contra affair at a meeting of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry in Sun Valley and a press conference about his campaign with reporters in Boise.

He predicted the huge GOP field will come out of Super Tuesday in the South next spring without a clear-cut winner.

"Unless there is a quick kill on the front end by (Vice President George) Bush or possibly (Kansas Sen. Bob) Dole, I think probably this (the West) will be the battleground," he said in Boise.

"In my opinion, Iowa, New Hampshire and the South will end up inconclusively," the close friend of President Reagan and former National Republican Party chairman said. "For that reason we're concentrating on the western states at this time."

"I'm the only western candidate running for president," he said. "I'm a westerner. I know western problems. I would hope that would be of some importance in the western states."

With the support of some key members of Reagan's California "kitchen cabinet," Laxalt said his fund-raising efforts have already netted around $1 million in cash or pledges, and he expressed only minor concern about reaching his Oct. 1 campaign treasury goal of $2 million.

During his speech in Sun Valley to business leaders, Laxalt said he would be "greatly surprised" if the day's testimony from Lt. Col. Oliver North before the special counsel for the Iran-Contra investigation revealed that President Reagan knew of the matter.

Sliding with North as to why the official did not level with the American people concerning the matter, Laxalt said covert operations are necessary to prevent the Soviets and U.S. enemies from knowing what is happening within our government.

"Washington is a very leaky place," Laxalt said, explaining why congressional members should not always be informed.

To achieve more effective committees, Laxalt recommended forming a light intelligence committee composed of "old-timers" and no staff people. Now, typically the investigative committees are comprised of 20 to 40 members and as many staff members, Laxalt said.

Laxalt said the press and the investigative committee will "come down hard" on Reagan for his "loose management style," adding that foreign policy cannot be carried out in such a climate.

During his speech Laxalt said that while there is far less interest around the country in the Iran-Contra affair, "Washington is consumed by it."

In other national matters, Laxalt said the federal deficit is "tantamount to a national disgrace," but said that the president should not be held solely accountable for it.

He favors a mandatory, balanced budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution, just as states are now required to have balanced budgets. He said he feared too much foreign money is financing the United States' debt with too much of that coming from Japan.

"I'm convinced we've got a ticking bomb going on here," Laxalt said.

Bringing his talk closer to home, Laxalt addressed a question concerning Congress mandating benefits and increasing minimum wage.

"I think we can forestall a vote," he said. "A lot of that will impact small business."

Speaking on the matter of arms control, Laxalt said "President Reagan should not get into an arms control agreement if it included decreasing the number of nuclear weapons in western Europe, obtaining ground verification of such actions and having a conventional parity."

Laxalt announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president April 28. He served as Nevada's lieutenant governor from 1983-86, governor from 1986-70 and U.S. senator from 1974-85.

Guyer Springs to phase out its general service

KETCHUM, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has accepted an agreement settling a rate dispute over Ketchum's Guyer Springs Water Co. that calls for the company to phase out its general service within two years.

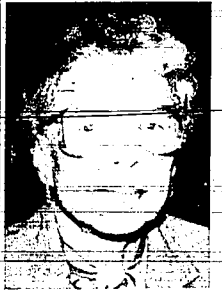

Paul Houston, a Guyer Springs customer, asked the PUC to assert its regulatory authority over the geothermal water company after it proposed raising its rates from 8 cents to 45 cents per square foot of heated space for its 64 customers.

A conditional-use permit is applicable when a proposed use of land generally fits into a respective zone, but possesses characteristics that require review by the zoning commission.

A variance, on the other hand, would remain with the land and be recorded on the deed, under another proposed amendment.

The zoning commission on Thursday will review the proposals, Taylor said.

The public will have plenty of opportunity to comment later because public hearings will be held by the zoning commission and the County Board of Commissioners, which has the final say.

Business

Finally, the business owner and the center draw up a plan of action to overcome the business problems, Gradzicki said.

The center opened the middle of June at the Region IV Development Center offices at 1300 Kimberly Road, Region IV Director Joe Herring said he's seen small business owners come to him who don't have a viable plan for their businesses.

Since Region IV works mostly with financing for small businesses, Herring said he often had to refer those businessmen to Small Business Assistance Centers in Boise and Pocatello.

Those centers, along with the newly-opened CSI office, are affiliated with the Idaho Small Business Development Center. Offices are located in Lewiston, Coeur d'Alene, Pocatello, Boise and Twin Falls.

The services of the SDAC are free and open to any business with less than 500 employees. However, Gradzicki said the center does not help farmers.

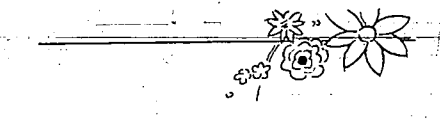

But the center's free services drew fire from some businessmen attending the seminar, who said that by offering free services like accounting and bookkeeping assistance, the taxpayer-subsidized center would compete with private enterprise.

Herring said a lot of the businessmen getting assistance from the centers are in dire financial straits and unlikely to seek help from accountants.

"A lot of people aren't going to pay $70 an hour to get help," Herring said. "We pull the private sector back into the network."

Herring said he's compiling a list of moderately-priced accountants and lawyers in the area to refer businessmen to.

State's automated support collection system wins praise

BOISE (AP) — The state of Idaho, which has had severe problems with the five demonstration projects being financed by the federal government around the country, has praised for another automated system used to collect delinquent child support.

This state is making maybe $1 million to $2 million a year in additional revenue because of its efforts in collection. Wayne Stantum, administrator of the federal government's Family Support Administration, said Tuesday.

"It's the best in the nation in terms of collection," he said.

Stantum was in Boise to assess Idaho's

Stantum hopes to take the best aspects of each of the projects and combine them into a composite program that can be implemented nationwide.

While no decision has been made yet on the components of that composite, he said, "Certainly, we're going to recognize certain aspects of the Northwest as achievers, and they're doing it at substantially less cost than others. Tying it all together seems to be the way to go nationwide."

Under federal laws, the money states collect from parents who have failed to keep up with court-ordered child support payments, helps offset the cost of general welfare programs. It not only saves a state money that it would otherwise have to pay out to help support the families in question but it also reduces the social problems created by welfare dependency, Stantum said.

"For every dollar they spend, they collect back $1.50," he said of Idaho's program. "So it's very lucrative."

Idaho's progress under the special automated program, has also been impressive. Stantum said last year alone, the state increased its collection of delinquent child support payments by over 60 percent.

The assessment of the child support collection system came less than a week after state Health and Welfare officials announced that they would have to undertake a multimillion dollar program to resolve all the problems that have occurred in the computer system used for welfare benefits.

Since that system went into use last year, hundreds of welfare recipients have had benefits delayed for weeks at a time because of glitches in the $8-million computer plan. Department officials said they have finally been able to resolve most of the benefit problems.

Briefly

Store owner gripes about law

FRANKLIN (AP) — The owner of Franklin's only convenience store says he is being discriminated against because his is the only store in Franklin County not allowed to sell beer on Sundays.

The store owner, the Late 20s store, said Tuesday's vote by the Franklin City Council to retain its ordinance banning Sunday beer sales showed the "puritanical standards" of council members.

Both the city of Preston and the county have removed Sunday beer laws from the books, leaving Franklin the only city in the county with an active prohibition against Sunday alcohol sales.

In recommending the ordinance be retained, Mayor Brent Atkinson said the city's founding fathers put this ordinance on the books and it is a good ordinance. There is no need for us to change just because other communities have done so," he said.

Death in China leads to suit

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Two expedition leaders and a film producer are the plaintiffs in a lawsuit filed Tuesday by the widow of an Idaho photographer who died during last year's Yangtze River expedition in China.

The lawsuit was filed in behalf of Margit Shippee in U.S. District Court in Boise, Idaho. Ms. Shippee is seeking $1 million in punitive damages.

Her husband David, 29, a photographer for the Boise Statesman newspaper, was a member of the Sino-U.S. expedition that attempted to raft 2,000 turbulent miles of China's Yangtze River. Shippee died Aug. 3 of acute pulmonary edema, or high-altitude sickness and was buried beside a tributary of the Yangtze. He had suffered headaches and breathing problems earlier during the trip.

Ms. Shippee's complaint charges expedition leaders Ken and Jan Warren of Portland and film producer John Wilcox of Aspen, Colo., with failing to adequately prepare for the trip. It also charges the three with not providing helicopter support and neglecting to have a functioning radio when the photographer became ill.

Inmate cleanup effort lauded

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus says the use of prison inmates to clean up the course for last week's Ore-Ida Women's Challenge was a success.

State prison minimum security inmates, supervised by Department of Transportation personnel, helped pick up litter on the race routes between Emmett and Boise, and Boise and Idaho City.

Andrus last spring initiated the use of inmate workers for litter cleanup on state highways as an extension of the Clean-Up Idaho campaign, begun in April.

Court orders claim reopened

BOISE (AP) — A sharply divided Idaho Supreme Court has ordered the state Industrial Commission to conduct further proceedings in the claim for workmen's compensation benefits by a former employee of Bennett Lumber Co. in Elk City.

Justice Robert Huntley, writing for the three-member majority on Tuesday, said the commission had failed to support its denial of benefits for Robert Lynn Johnson with "substantial competent evidence."

Justices Robert Bakes and Charles Donaldson flatly disagreed, claiming the former record bookkeeper on the commission's decision.

Ms. Johnson sought workmen's compensation after being forced off the job in February after following several weeks of intensifying back pain. She said it was caused by heavy lifting and other work she was doing at the lumber mill.

Hill takes post in Harrison

HARRISON (AP) — Ronald Hill, the former assistant superintendent of the Kuna School District in southwestern Idaho, will replace the departing Francis Olson as superintendent of the Kootenai School District next Wednesday.

Hill, 45, has worked in the Kuna district for the past 17 years.

Olson, 64, announced his retirement in April, though his plan was short-lived. He will begin work Aug. 1 as director of student assessment for the Montana Department of Education.

Coroner identifies slain man

MALAD CITY (AP) — Authorities have finally identified the man found shot to death last weekend at an Interstate 84 rest stop in southern Idaho as Karl R. Behm, 24, of Highland Heights, Ohio.

Oncida County Coroner Sylvester Harsley released the name of the victim after determining that Behm had been shot twice with a pistol last Saturday morning at the Juniper rest area just five miles north of Snowville, Utah. The fatal bullet pierced Behm's heart, Harsley said.

Oncida County Sheriff Lee Pfeiffer declined to comment in the identification, saying he was not satisfied the man had been "100 percent identified." He said his office was continuing to check the man's work history to establish identity before contacting relatives.

Chubbuck man struck, killed

CHUBBUCK (AP) — An elderly Chubbuck man was killed Tuesday when he was hit by a pickup truck as he walked near his home, authorities reported.

The 72-year-old died from extensive head, chest and internal injuries suffered when the vehicle hit him about three blocks from his home.

Authorities were continuing to investigate the incident.

Child dies from immersion

POCATELLO (AP) — A 2-year-old child has died after falling into an apartment complex swimming pool over the holiday weekend, authorities reported.

The child, Joshua Bennett, who was in the Oxbow Inn Apartments' pool in Chubbuck for an undetermined amount of time on Sunday, died Monday night at the Bannock Regional Medical Center. Officials said the boy never regained consciousness.

The child apparently fell into the pool after wandering away from his parents and was discovered later by a neighbor.

Bingham officials deny claim

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Bingham County commissioners have denied a $1 million damage claim filed by the husband of a woman who was found dead of a drug overdose in her car on Interstate 15 April 17.

The claim was filed by James R. Gustafson, who alleges that either Bingham County sheriff's deputies or Blackfoot police officers were negligent because they did not take adequate measures to protect his wife, Judith Rethy.

Gustafson said local authorities were told by a friend of Ms. Rethy's on April 17 that Ms. Rethy had planned to take her own life, and had taken an overdose of drugs.

Pocatello appeals street fee ruling

POCATELLO (AP) — The city of Pocatello has appealed a district judge's decision invalidating the city's controversial street maintenance fee, giving the city a temporary stay that will allow the city to collect this month.

City Attorney Ivan Legler said the city is hoping to make the temporary stay permanent. A July 20 hearing is scheduled before 6th District Judge William Woodland, who invalidated the fee.

Woodland also can rule at the hearing whether the city must refund an estimated $300,000 collected since the monthly fee was imposed on residents and businesses nearly a year ago.

Woodland on Monday ordered the city to halt to monthly collections of the fee, but stopped short of ordering stay of the city to refund the money collected since the monthly fee was imposed on residents and businesses nearly a year ago.

Legler said by filing the appeal, the city was granted a temporary 30-day stay, which would allow the city to collect one more month. The bills will go out next Tuesday.

The request for a permanent stay, but stopped short of ordering stay of the city to refund the money collected since the monthly fee was imposed on residents and businesses nearly a year ago.

Boise Water firm to test for asbestos

BOISE (AP) — Boise Water Company has decided to test its water for asbestos fibers, reversing an earlier announcement that it would forego a study.

Water company officials said the study of Boise's water system could be undertaken, following a call for the procedure by the Idaho Conservation League and a Sunday article about possible asbestos contamination of Boise's water in the Idaho Statesman newspaper.

"The reason we're testing is because it has been made into an issue," said Greg Wyatt, assistant manager of Boise Water, which serves about 105,000 customers in the area. "When the facts are brought out, people will feel more secure."

Meanwhile, Ada County commissioners have voted to launch a study of asbestos hazards in 21 county buildings.

Asbestos in drinking water, which was linked in one study with stomach cancer, has been found in water systems throughout the country by the Environmental Protection Agency. But the asbestos findings of that 1979 survey, which included Caldwell andampa were below levels the government believed harmful.

No other Idaho cities were tested. Although occurring naturally at low levels in some cities like Caldwell, asbestos can contaminate water that is filtered through pipe made of 95 percent cement and 5 percent asbestos. The fiber was used to strengthen the composite pipe that was widely used in water systems in the past. Under certain conditions, asbestos pipe can erode. Wyatt said the company does not believe its pipe is releasing asbestos fibers because it adds chemicals to the water that tend to coat the inside of the pipe, inhibiting deterioration.

Jerome links gird for state amateur golf test

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Writer

JEROME — With 63 players heading for or less handicaps, this year's Idaho Men's Amateur Golf Championship should be a wide-open affair.

Just how those 63 individuals will adjust to the vagaries of the Jerome Country Club beginning Friday morning remains to be seen. But it certainly will be the largest championship fight in the tournament's history.

The tournament will run Friday through Sunday, the title decided over 54 holes of medal play. The only adjunct to the three-day event will be the Stanwood Cup team competition and the special putting championship—the finals of that being held Saturday night following tournament competition.

One of the historical highlights of this year's tournament will be the appearance of Harper Jerome Country Club member, who will be marking the 50th year since he won the title at Idaho Falls' Placerst Golf Course. At the time he was the youngest ever to win state and he held that distinction until Jeff Thomsen, now a pro at Indian Lake Golf Course in Boise, nipped him by two strokes in the early 1970s.

Harper may not be a contender for this year's title but he still packs a respectable 14 handicap.

The IOC has selected two former champions will be Dave Molitor of Pocatello, defending champion Joe Malay of Weiser, Glenn Blakeley of Burley and others.

The Magic Valley contingent gunning for the title will be Blakeley and Terry Spackman of Burley and Duane Durgar, Perry Hanchey, Dr. Chic Cutler, Kevin Packard, Jim Purves and Jason and Steve Meyerhofer of Twin Falls.

In addition to the former champions, competition is expected from Steve Hays of Blackfoot, Chuck Rizzo of Mountain Home air base, Mitch Lowe and Aaron Bengoechea of Boise and Bill Stangwin of Caldwell.

But with such a large championship field, no one is being discounted.

Host Professional John Peterson said the 187-man field is looking at a toughened Jerome golf course, "but nothing tricked up with micky mouse pin placements and things like that."

Groundskeeper Rod Morgan has contoured the fairways in three stages with the outer fringes being high grass that will make second shots difficult.

The mowed part of the fairways range from 36 to 39 yards in width.

"We're going to set the pins so you will have to hit some good iron shots to get the ball close," Peterson. "We have the greens fairly fast but not out of reason."

From a pro's standpoint, Peterson says the course setup as "one where you're going to have to drive the ball but in a lot of cases placement will be more important than length."

But overall, I feel that iron play may decide the championship here more than anything else.

"That brings at least three former champions to most minds, not the least being last year's titlist Malay. He is consistently the long-horner of Idaho, uses an air-pressurized shaft in his driver and goes for length off every tee.

He felt his driving was the difference last year, noting immediately after his victory at Riverside Golf Course, "I defy anyone in the championship flight to hit their second shot from where I hit mine all three days and not win the title."

When they start discussing iron play and putting, the name that pops immediately to most minds of Masingill, who has won this title four times.

Masingill is sneaky long off the tee and trudged shoulder-to-shoulder with Malay on a few fairways last year. But when Masingill gets the irons going, he can be awing. He also is considered one of the best putters around.

Inbetween is Molitor who similarly has all parts of the game and is particularly gifted with the short wedge. With the tiger grass being grown around the Jerome greens, his wedge could make a big difference.

The putting tournament generally provides good spectating, especially on finals night when the gallery participates verbally in a lot of it.

Each member of the field will be asked to qualify on the practice green immediately after completing play Friday. The top 32 qualifiers by medal play will advance to the match-play finals Saturday. The head-to-head competition will eliminate putters down to the state champion.

IOC president says it's Seoul or no 1988 Olympics

LONDON (AP) — The International Olympic Committee would cancel rather than move next summer's Olympics if political problems make it impossible to hold them in Seoul, a London newspaper reported Tuesday.

"It is Seoul or no 1988 Olympics," IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch was quoted as saying in the Daily Telegraph, a London-based national newspaper. "Either we go to Seoul or there will be no Games."

Although Samaranch has said in the past that no alternative sites to Seoul have been discussed, this was his strongest statement to date on the matter.

"The last time we discussed it was in Seoul, but we have not discussed it since," he said.

South Korea's capital was in turmoil the last two months because of violent protests against the government of President Chun Doo-hwan.

Last week, Chun accepted a series of opposition proposals and the situation has stabilized somewhat, although demonstrations have sparked violence again in recent days.

In Los Angeles, Anita De Frantz, one of two U.S. IOC members, said she was neither surprised nor shocked by Samaranch's strong statement.

"I've been confident all along that the Games would be in Seoul," she said in a telephone interview. "I think there have worked hard. Certainly they have an important set of issues to resolve for the future of their nation."

Some American athletes still were training with their sites set on Seoul.

"Of course, I'm here in Los Angeles, so I don't know what actually has happened in Korea," she said. "But I've been very impressed with the speed with which the leadership of South Korea has moved to work together and come to proper solutions."

The IOC has said throughout the Korean troubles that it was sticking by the 1981 decision awarding the Games to Seoul, and noted that, under the Olympic Charter, only war could be cited as a reason for moving the Olympics.

Several cities, including Los Angeles, New York and Berlin, offered to host the '88 Games should Seoul be unable to do so. Mexico City also has been suggested as a possible backup site.

"We have never discussed an alternate site," Samaranch said. "The Games were awarded to Seoul, and the Games will go on in Seoul. We will not change that decision."

Gammon said the situation in Seoul appeared to have improved in the last week, and "we have 15 months until the Games. ... I am sure that by then the improvement will have taken place. Seoul has made us no promises, but we are keeping in close contact."

Even before the political protests caused concern, "North Korea's officials worried. And they still are."

Samaranch is scheduled to meet next week in Lausanne, Switzerland, with delegations from North Korea and South Korea in the fourth set of talks over the north's demand to co-host the '88 Games. North Korea has threatened to lead a communist boycott if its demands are not met.

Samaranch was not at his office in the IOC headquarters in Lausanne, and Michele Verdier, the IOC spokeswoman, also was out of the office and unavailable for comment.

"The situation in Seoul once again, however, has given life to old arguments favoring a permanent site for the Olympics. De Frantz said she was opposed to that thinking."

"I don't think there's anyplace in the world that's perfect, and you would have to find a perfect place for a permanent site," she said. "I saw what effect it had on Los Angeles in 1984. It gave the city a much better understanding of what the Games are all about, and it would be a shame to deny that opportunity to the rest of the world."

As for suggestions that the IOC name a backup site when it makes its original award of the Games, De Frantz said, "A city awarded the Games and has full and exclusive rights to host the Games. In practically every city that's ever had the Games, there's been some element of risk, as part of it, to the fact, risk is part of sports, so that's not unusual."

James Worrall, a Canadian representative to the IOC, said he agreed with Samaranch's stand.

Speaking from Toronto, Worrall said, "As far as I know, there has been no discussion of alternative sites. It's time the world realizes the Games are allotted to just themselves. The Koreans have a single city. They've got to be considerably better constructed excellent facilities."

"The political question is a Korean problem and I believe they are quite capable of resolving it. I am confident it will be straightened out. This is all premature. The Games are 15 months away."

Worrall also said he opposed a permanent site, but he opposed a permanent site to anchor the Games.

The Games could not be held in Seoul, they would not be held at all.

Usher was asked to comment on the hypothetical question.

"The question is really framed, should there be one where you could continue the tradition," Usher said. "If you acted pretty soon, it could be done in Los Angeles."

"It's not going to be as perfect, it's not going to be as well-planned because of the time problems, but it could be done."

"My feeling is that the IOC has to give a strong affirmation to Seoul because it is necessary to give Seoul the confidence to go forward. I believe the Games will take place in Seoul and take place very well."

De Frantz agreed, saying, "There's no way to know if Los Angeles could have hosted the Games and fortunately, there's no reason to know. I'm confident the games will be held in Seoul."

If Seoul was scratched LA was set to bid for games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Harry Usher, one of the architects of the extremely successful 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, believes the city could have hosted the Games next summer should such an emergency situation have arisen.

But Anita DeFrantz, the President of the Amateur Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles and one of two International Olympic Committee representatives to the United States, isn't sure that such a task could have been undertaken.

And Amy Quinn, the press secretary of the 1984 games, estimated that she wouldn't have wanted to see such an attempt made for aesthetic reasons.

In answer to a hypothetical question Usher, the Executive Vice President/General Manager of the 1984 Games, said Tuesday that time would have been the main opponent of such an undertaking by Los Angeles.

Probably have been too formidable an opponent.

"The one thing I'm not concerned about is the manpower in Los Angeles to take care of it," Usher said. "We have a tremendous number of people who could get it done. The question is timing, money, but not people power."

Usher said that "if Seoul had been denied, maybe you should call Las Vegas."

"I think it would have taken maybe an extra year to get it done."

Mayor Tom Bradley said last month he had spoken informally with IOC officials about using Los Angeles as an alternate site for the 1988 Summer Games if the political situation in Seoul, South Korea, made it impossible for the 1988 Summer Olympics to be held there.

On Tuesday, however, IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch said if the Games could not be held in Seoul, they would not be held at all.

Usher was asked to comment on the hypothetical question.

"The question is really framed, should there be one where you could continue the tradition," Usher said. "If you acted pretty soon, it could be done in Los Angeles."

"It's not going to be as perfect, it's not going to be as well-planned because of the time problems, but it could be done."

"My feeling is that the IOC has to give a strong affirmation to Seoul because it is necessary to give Seoul the confidence to go forward. I believe the Games will take place in Seoul and take place very well."

De Frantz agreed, saying, "There's no way to know if Los Angeles could have hosted the Games and fortunately, there's no reason to know. I'm confident the games will be held in Seoul."

Area BCI cage stars selected

Minico places six on squad

TWIN FALLS — The Minico Spartans dominated the Magic Valley BCI basketball team in selection by area coaches Tuesday night.

After two days of tryouts, the participating fourth district coaches picked six Spartans, two Twin Falls Bruins, two Jerome Tigers and one Wood River Wolves to participate in the state BCI tournament at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium next week.

Named to the team, which will be coached by Minico Mentor Craig Dexter, were Robert Greener, Jack Bagley, Dan Poulton, Robert Davis, Kelen McKenzie and Pete Dexter. All Minico; Joel Judd and Svedek Trenkle, both Twin Falls; Clint Balley and Shawn Thompson, both Jerome; and Brad Jaques, Wood River.

That team will practice at Minico high school the rest of the week and then return to CSI Sunday evening to begin the state playoffs. They will be joined by all-stars from Eastern Idaho, Boise Valley and North Idaho, playing through a round-robin tournament that will establish seedings toward the championship game.

From those four teams, the participating coaches will select 10 players to represent Idaho in the national BCI tournament in Phoenix July 25-Aug. 1. Prior to leaving for Arizona on July 25, Idaho team will practice two days in Boise.

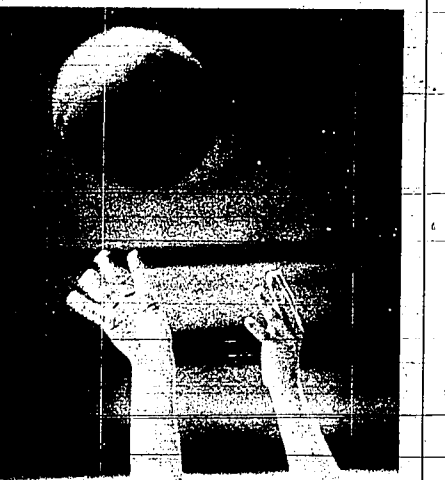

The state playoffs will begin Monday morning at CSI gymnasium with Boise Valley meeting North Idaho at 10 a.m. and Eastern Idaho playing Magic Valley at 11:30 a.m. After taking the afternoon off, Boise Valley will play the East at 6:30 while North goes against Magic Valley at 8 p.m.

The round-robin portion winds up Tuesday morning with Boise Valley playing Magic Valley at 10 a.m. and North meeting East at 11:30.

The first round of the finals will pit the second and third best record at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday with first place meeting fourth at 8 p.m. The consolation game is set for 10 a.m. Wednesday with the finals at 11:30 a.m.

The all-state team will be announced immediately after the title game.

BCI officials noted that $1 for adults and 50-cents for students will be charged throughout the tournament to defray the Idaho team's travel expenses.

Minico's Jack Bagley lets go with a jumper

Sievers' national title dreams realized at LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. — Success being the flickle thing it is, small wonder that Gary Sievers, a major piece in Twin Falls High School track dynasty in the early 1970s, figures he's one of the blessed.

Making a coaching career change from Oregon State University to Louisiana State brought along some cultural shock. By all that was offset when the LSU women's team won both the NCAA indoor and outdoor track championships this year, Sievers, who was a half-mile runner for the Bruins as a senior, coaches everything from 800-meter run on up for both the men and women's teams.

"I didn't know until later that this was the first time one school had won both of these years in the same year," said Sievers in a telephone interview. "It got me thinking about guys like Oregon State basketball Coach Ralph Miller. He's been up there, I don't know how long, done a great job but still has never won national titles. Now I've been coaching six years and have the honor of being on two national championships in one year."

Sievers said he felt he was able to give something to LSU and LSU to him. He has a chuckle that he was aware that the Tigers track team was close to the national championship when the chance for him to leave Oregon State arose.

"The prospect of two national championships didn't dissuade me," he said.

The first title was kind of anticipated, Sievers says. "I think I would have been a little disappointed if we hadn't won the indoors. Our (Southeastern) conference meet is always tough and Alabama is very tough to beat them by more than 100 points so we felt we had a good shot at nationals. We had a 2:27-108 long jump, another at 29.6, a shotputter at 54.6, the nation's second fastest female hurdler who is a freshman and a lot of guys back with another year's experience and another year's improvement."

Combined for his 800-meter runners, four of an NCAA champion-ship and indoor record of 8 minutes, 26.04 seconds in the 4-by-800 meter relay — one-half second off the world mark.

"Our mile relay team ran a 3:35 for an American collegiate record in the 4-by-400 and that's just two seconds slower than we ran it for the state championship my senior year at Twin Falls," he added with a laugh.

Two things bothered LSU's thinking about the NCAA outdoor title, which the Tigers won last month in their own stadium. First, Alabama had two girls become eligible for the outdoor title, who hadn't been qualified for the indoors. One of those had won two gold medals at the 1984 Olympics.

Secondly, Sievers noted that the west coast teams and the schools in the area had a lot of experience and other coaches had some success, it just snowballed. It was not what I did so much as getting them to believe in it."

Surgery shelve Walton for year

BOSTON (AP) — Boston center Bill Walton, who has played 10 NBA seasons, is expected to miss his fourth year after undergoing surgery Tuesday to make his right foot less vulnerable to injury.

Celtics' General Manager Jan Volik is hopeful Walton can return in 1989-90, when the player will be 36 years old.

"There's no certainty in any of this," Volik said. "There's no certainty he'll be back. All we know is he had the same surgery on his left foot and he missed two seasons."

He added that Tuesday's operation was "slightly less radical."

Bone was removed from three areas of his right foot and ankle at Presbyterian-Intercommunity Hospital in Whittier, Calif. The surgery was done by Dr. F. William Wagner and Dr. Anthony Daly.

Surgery shelve Walton for year

"I felt we were a long-shot going into the outdoor finals but things really fell into place for us. Our girls did a little better than we had anticipated. We had a couple of events and we won it," he said.

Basically, Sievers simply is savoring the titles.

"This year I was on a team that set 10 school records in the 800 (meters) on up and coached 10 people who accumulated 15 all-America certificates, outdoors and indoors," he said.

He said his major contribution was injecting some of the Oregon State philosophy into the LSU program.

"Oregon State is pretty well distance-oriented. It's all-American, where LSU was oriented to the sprints. It took a while to get the parts of the Oregon State philosophy that would help into the LSU program but once the athletes and other coaches had some success, it just snowballed. It was not what I did so much as getting them to believe in it."

Beanball brawl dominates Cubs' 7-5 victory over Padres

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball showed its ugly side at beautiful Wrigley Field Tuesday.

Chicago's Andre Dawson was hit in the face by an Eric Show pitch in the third inning, triggering an intense clearing brawl. After the game, Show was by the Cubs' 7-5, the San Diego Padres insisted it was not intentional.

National League

Cubs' worst-pitcher

Dawson, who hit his 41st homer in the first inning and seventh of the Padres this year, suffered lacerations of the left lip and a contusion of the left cheekbone and the report from the hospital was there was no fracture.

Dawson was one of five Cub players ejected from the game. Andre Dawson was hit by pitcher Rick Sutcliffe came out of the dugout after Show and players from both teams ran onto the field.

Dawson remained face down on the ground for a couple of minutes but when he got up he also went after Show as another fight broke out.

Sutcliffe also was ejected as was Manny Trillo for throwing equipment on the field. Chicago starter Greg Maddux and Manager Gene Michael were tossed out in the fourth inning when Maddux hit Benito Santiago with a pitch. A reliever and winner Scott Sanderson and coach Johnny Oates were ejected in the eighth when Sanderson threw a pitch behind Chris Brown.

Show was given a warning but was removed from the game because he hurt his foot during the fight.

The pitcher left the park before the game ended but issued a statement saying "I sincerely regret the unintended pitch—that hit Andre Dawson. I have never intentionally thrown a pitch to hit a batter in my life."

Padre Manager Larry Bowa conceded.

The Cubs thought Show was intentionally trying to hit Andre, then they weren't out of line. You would have to know the individual. Eric would never throw at anyone intentionally. All he was trying to do was pitch inside.

"I have been a manager a short time but I never told anyone to hit anyone," Bowa said. "I know some of my pitchers would but Show is not one of them."

Michael was still angry after the game.

"If I see anymore balls at our players' heads, I'm going to go after him if that's what it takes to stop it."

Asked about Sanderson possibly hitting Michael.

"Draw your own conclusions. But Andre has been getting upset at people throwing at his head recent ly."

Michael added "The sad part is you can never really tell if someone is throwing intentionally. I wish there was a way of telling, like an alarm would go off."

Mets 6-5, Braves 2-1

ATLANTA (AP) — Unbeaten Terry Leach won his eighth consecutive game and Don Darling won for the first time in 2½ months Tuesday night as the New York Mets swept a doubleheader—from the slumping Atlanta Braves, 6-2 and 5-1.

Mets shortstop Rafael Santana drove in the winning run in the seventh inning of each game. His two-run single in the first of the New York ahead to stay and his RBI double in the nightcap broke a 1-1 tie.

The first game victory ended a three-game losing streak for the Mets. The Braves now have lost five in a row and 12 of 15.

Expos 2, Astros 0

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Sebra pitched a five-hitter and knocked in the winning run, leading the Montreal Expos to a 2-0 victory over the Houston Astros Tuesday night.

Sebra, 35, allowed only one Astros baserunner after the third inning, retiring the last 18 batters. He struck out six and walked none. It was Sebra's second major league shutout and second straight complete game. In his last start, Sebra lost 1-0 to the Cubs, allowing three hits in a 2-1 loss.

Bob Knepper, 39, was the loser, his seventh defeat in his last eight decisions. He allowed six hits in eight innings.

The Phillies' trailing 8-1 in the fourth inning came back with nine straight runs. ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mickey Hatcher committed two of Las Angeles' three errors in the seventh inning as St. Louis came from behind to win for the 27th time this season in a 5-4 victory over the Dodgers—in the first game of a doubleheader Tuesday night.

St. Louis scored both of its seventh-inning runs without a hit. Vince Coleman and Ozzie Smith set up the comeback with walks off Tim Leary, 1-1, and first baseman Hatcher aided St. Louis by booting Tommy Herr's grounder to lead the bases.

Clark's sacrifice fly was dropped by left fielder Ken Landreaux for an error, leaving the game. Smith scored on Hatcher's wild throw home on McGee's grounder, giving the victory to Ted Worell, 4-3. McGee's play delayed the start of the game by two hours and 20 minutes.

Yankees erase seven-run deficit, overhaul Minnesota 12-7

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees rallied from a seven-run deficit with seven runs in the seventh inning and took the lead on consecutive wild pitches by Minnesota reliever Juan Berenguer in the eighth en route to a 12-7 victory over the Twins.

After being blanked by former teammate Joe Nickro on four hits for six innings, the Yankees erased a 7-0 deficit in the seventh, including home runs by Mike Gianfranco, Rick Henderson and pinch-hitter Gary Washburn. Henderson and Nickro had the Yankees' game-tying two-run single. Six of the runs were unearned because of an error by second baseman Steve Lombardozzi.

"That's not a rally, that's an explosion. That's the quickest runs I've seen score in a long time," Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said, apparently forgetting an 11-run third inning against Boston on June 26 that wiped out a 9-0 deficit.

New York broke the tie with five runs in the eighth, starting when Rick Cerone drew a leadoff walk from Keith Ahernton, 4-4.

After Wayne Tolleson sacrificed and Henderson walked, Berenguer took over and got ahead of Willie Randolph 1-2. But his next two pitches sailed over the head of catcher Tim Laudner, allowing Cerone to score to put the Yankees in front.

American League

Rand Mattingly singled to make it 9-7 and Claudell Washington hit a three-run homer, his fifth.

"When you never think you're out of a game you're a dangerous club," Mattingly said. "But I don't think we know we can do it as much as we go up (there and continue) swinging the bats."

Tim Stoddard, 2-1, the third New York pitcher, worked two scoreless innings as the Yankees ended Minnesota's four-game winning streak.

TORONTO (AP) — Tony Fernandez hit a two-run double and Toronto took advantage of sloppy fielding by Flisk, 9-for-18 in his last four games, hit his ninth Texas in the fifth inning.

Blue Jays starter Jim Clancy, 9-6, won for only the second time in his last nine starts. He entered the eighth with a three-hitter, but with one out, Mike McDowell hit his 10th homer to make the score 6-2. Tom Lonke pitched the final 2 1/3 innings for his last save.

Texas starter Mike Loynd, 1-5, was the victim of poor fielding and his own wildness when the Blue Jays broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the fifth inning.

Entertaining now... alfresco

The perfect invitation for a summer barbecue is a light entree prepared alfresco. Guests can't resist the delicate flavor of fresh herbs, summer vegetables and halibut cooked to perfection over a barbecue grill. Follow this with an attractive but no-fuss dessert and you're sure to have a summer barbecue success.

Lemon Grilled Halibut combines fresh summer peppers, zucchini and halibut with a lemon and fresh basil marinade. Firm in texture, with a mild, delicate flavor, halibut steaks adapt well to the grill. To enhance the barbecue flavor, use mesquite wood chunks or chips, and use a covered grill to enclose aromas. The entree is ready in about 10 minutes.

An Apricot Pear Tart is an attractive finale for this outdoor meal. You can use canned pears, chilled and fanned on top.

For another great barbecue meal, prepare Grilled Halibut with Vegetables. This combination captures the flavor of halibut, fresh vegetables and pecans. Use foil to make individual cooking packets, grilling the halibut and vegetables together for about 15 minutes.

For dessert Try Pears Foster, a rum-flavored sauce with fruit that is the perfect topping for ice cream.

LEMON GRILLED HALIBUT

- 4 halibut steaks (about 6 oz. each)
- 1 red pepper, cut in thin strips
- 1 green pepper, cut in thin strips
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 2 medium zucchini, thinly sliced
- Marinade:
  - 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
  - 5/8 cup vegetable oil
  - 1 garlic clove, minced
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon fresh ground pepper
  - 2 tablespoons dried basil leaves
  - 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Place halibut steaks and peppers in a 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Combine marinade ingredients, pour over halibut and peppers. Cover dish and marinate for about an hour, turning fish once. Place half of the onion slices in bottom of grill pan (foil can be used). Remove halibut and peppers from marinade and place halibut steaks, peppers and zucchini slices on top of the onions. Pour any remaining marinade over top. Cook halibut and vegetables in covered grill over medium hot, direct-heat, allowing 10 minutes cooking time per inch of thickness of halibut measured at its thickest part, or until halibut flakes at thickest part when tested with a fork. Serve halibut and vegetables with a slotted spatula.

Makes four servings.

APRICOT PEAR TART

- Pastry for 9-inch single slice tart
- 1 can (16 oz.) Bartlett pear halves, chilled
- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened to room temperature
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons ground orange peel
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 can (8 oz.) apricot halves, drained
- 1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin

Line a 9-inch tart pan with pastry; prick bottom and sides. Bake at 400 degrees F. 10 minutes or until golden; cool. Drain pears; reserve liquid. Blend cream cheese, three tablespoons reserved pear liquid, sugar, orange peel and vanilla; spread evenly over bottom of tart. Drain apricots in a blender or food processor. Sprinkle gelatin over 1/2 cup reserved pear liquid; heat and stir to dissolve. Stir into apricot puree. Spread apricot mixture over cream cheese. Slice pear halves vertically to one inch from top; fan halves and arrange on tart. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate two to three hours, or until ready to serve. Makes eight servings.

GRILLED HALIBUT WITH VEGETABLES

- 4 halibut steaks (about 6 oz. each)
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- Salt and pepper
- Thyme leaves
- Vegetable Mixture:
  - 2 1/2 cups shredded carrots
  - 2 1/2 cups finely chopped fresh broccoli
  - 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
  - 1/2 cup chopped pecans
  - 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
  - 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Place each halibut steak at center of 14x18-inch foil sheet. Brush both sides of steak with two tablespoons melted butter. Season with salt, pepper and thyme. Combine vegetable mixture. Place one cup vegetable mixture in a circle around each halibut steak. Foil loosely, allowing for heat circulation and expansion—Fold up remaining ends, crimp to seal. Cook packets in covered grill over medium-hot, direct heat, allowing 15 minutes cooking time per inch of thickness of halibut measured at its thickest part, or until halibut flakes easily at thickest part when tested with a fork.

Makes four servings.

Barbecuing saves the day in a hectic week

It's been one of those weeks. I can hardly type because I tried to cut off the end of my finger with the grass clippers. This was after I fell off my bike and a dog bit me.

Then I spilled a can of cocoa all over the kitchen and while cleaning it up, I up-ended a sack of flour into the cupboard below.

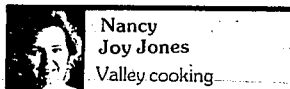

By now, I should just give up, right? Go to bed and eat bon bons and read novels! But it's company week, so again I'll tackle the kitchen.

You've been there, I know you have. And the only thing that will salvage the whole mess is good grub with a minimum of work by you, and flair and panache by hubby as he becomes the star of the barbecue.

You can have a few things ready for semi-emergencies like this week of mine. Here's a barbecue sauce that makes a generous amount (about 6 cups) tastes especially great with beef and pork and can be frozen.

BARBECUE BEST

- 2 cups ketchup
- 2 cups commercial chili sauce
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 cup onion, chopped fine

Nancy Joy Jones
Joyful cooking

- 1 teaspoon celery seed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1-2 mashed cloves of garlic (or 1/2 teaspoon instant minced garlic)
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 3-4 drops hot pepper sauce
- Combine all ingredients in a saucepan and heat to boiling. Stir until everything is dissolved and blended. Simmer for 10 to 15 minutes. I like to freeze this in 1 1/2 cup amounts.

Here's a no-cook barbecue sauce that's good as a final basting or glazing sauce.

- NO-COOK BARBECUE SAUCE
  - 1/2 cup light or dark corn syrup
  - 1/2 cup ketchup
  - 1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce (or soy sauce is also good)
  - 1/4 cup prepared mustard
  - 2 teaspoons ground ginger
  - Just stir together and brush on meats as you turn them frequently during last part of grilling. This makes 1 1/2 cups.

Here's one more good sauce to use as a glaze.

TART HONEY MEAT GLAZE

- 1 cup honey
- 1 cup apple cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup prepared mustard (Dijon is excellent)
- 1/2 cup onion, finely chopped
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 2 teaspoons celery salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- Bring everything to a boil in a saucepan and simmer 5 minutes.

Taste regional flavors in prepared sauces

Los Angeles Times

Sometimes food stories have rather unusual origins. This one began when a plane from Los Angeles to New York was diverted to Kansas City because of weather. Situated in an unfamiliar city and being a food writer, I did the only logical thing — looked into the local cuisine specialties.

Searching my memory, only one thing came to mind: Kansas City barbecue. Despite arriving at the hotel at 9 p.m. and leaving again at daylight, two bottles of locally made barbecue sauce were in hand when I boarded the bus back to the airport.

On arrival back at the Los Angeles Times Food Department, those bottles prompted a discussion of how barbecue sauces vary around the country, which led to collecting bottled sauces from different regions. Food experts in the local areas were consulted for background information and their recommendations of products.

Unfortunately, some of the most famous sauces — Arthur Bryant's in Kansas City, Mo.; Fincher's of Macon, Ga.; and Lexington from North Carolina — were not available by mail-order. Still, those that were acquired provided excellent insight into regional differences.

From the Southeast came mustard-vinegar style products that most of our panel thought looked and tasted more like a basting sauce (None of the panel members were from that area of the country). The recipes undoubtedly originated in Europe and were brought to this country by early colonists. Since tomatoes were considered poisonous until the 19th Century, it makes sense that they were not used in these early recipes. Because of tradition and people simply being used to and liking the flavor, the sauces never changed.

Begin moving west, even just from eastern to western North Carolina, and sauce-change in color from mustard yellow to orange and red. They also become sweeter with the addition of brown sugar.

By the time one gets to Memphis and Kansas City, tomato flavor becomes the norm and molasses or honey may replace the brown sugar.

A valuable ingredients for making the sauces and a shift in meat supplies from pork to beef necessitated many of these changes. So did the fact used for cooking — from hickory wood in the East to the mesquite of Texas. Southwestern chiles took the place of

'Heavenly Helpings': Catholic women share favorites

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Out of this world recipes can be found in a cookbook compiled by the Council of Catholic Women of St. Edward's Catholic Church. Called "Heavenly Helpings," the book has more than 300 family favorites.

Jackie Turner, CCW president, says pre-reading the recipes during meetings made everyone hungry. "And, the ones that I've tried are certainly good," she says. "I've already gone through several of them."

Turner says her family enjoys salads. "The pasta salads in the book are great," she says. "They're so easy, too, in the summer especially."

She says Betty Mielak submitted similar recipes for spinach salad, so they are both credited for this one.

FRESH SPINACH SALAD

- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 2 tablespoons cider or red wine vinegar
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2-1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 6 tablespoons salad oil
- 8 cups cleaned spinach, stems removed
- 1 hard cooked egg, grated
- 8 slices bacon, fried and crumbled
- 2-3 green onions, chopped fine
- Fresh mushrooms, sliced "T" shape
- 1 cup cauliflower, sliced "T" shape
- Beat together vinegar, oil, mustard, salt, sugar and salad oil. Refrigerate. Prepare remaining ingredients. Add dressing just before serving.

BEET-GRATED POTATO CHILI

- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup mustard
- 1/2 cup pepper
- 1/2 cup onion
- 1/2 cup celery
- 1/2 cup carrots
- 1/2 cup celery salt
- 1/2 cup paprika
- 1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 cup ketchup
- 1/2 cup chili sauce
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup white sugar
- 2 cup oil
- 2 eggs

SPONSORS OF SALAD OIL

CCW board member, Barbara Arndt, says her children, mother, sister, sister-in-law, nieces and nephew contributed recipes for the cookbook. "They didn't leave my house until they had written a recipe," she says. Her favorite is an enchilada casserole, which is credited to her sister, Brenda Ford of Boise. She says they both added little touches to the recipe, making it almost an original.

ENCHILADA CASSEROLE

- 1 large package corn chips
- 1/2 cups sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
- 2 pounds hamburger
- 15 ounce can enchilada sauce
- 15 ounce can chili and beans
- 8 ounce can tomato sauce
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1 cup sour cream

Mix 1 cup corn chips with all the cheese, and set aside. Brown hamburger and drain well. Combine remaining ingredients with hamburger and put into baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove from oven and spread top with reserved chips, cheese and sour cream. Return to oven to warm.

Ford and Arndt put 'chopped lettuce, tomatoes, avocado and olives over the top of the casserole.

CCW BOARD MEMBER ANGLE BURGESS SAYS

her recipe for rhubarb bread is an adaptation of banana bread. "It's just a good way to use rhubarb because rhubarb is so hard sometimes to use up," she says.

RHUBARB BREAD

- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup white sugar
- 2 cup oil
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup sour milk*
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1 1/2 cups diced rhubarb
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 cup nuts
- Combine all ingredients and mix well. Pour into two greased loaf pans. Dot each loaf with 1 tablespoon butter and sprinkle with 1/2 tablespoon sugar. Bake at 350 degrees for about one hour.
- *Sour milk can be made by adding 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice to enough milk to make 1 cup. Then let stand 5 minutes. Or, add 1/4 teaspoons cream of tartar to 1 cup sweet milk.
- Burgess freezes rhubarb, and makes this bread all year round. The bread itself also freezes well.
- Another board member, Lila Chidichimo, submitted a recipe for the King Ranch.

Sauces

West Coast sauces seem to combine both Midwest and Southwest traits. Naturally, there is always an exception to the general rule, and we found variety in the sauces collected from each area in a mobile "society," this is only to be expected.

Here is a description of the sauces tasted: They were tasted alone, and with cubes of bread, beef brisket and chicken breast. The object was not to judge — it would be impossible to compare one to another because many were so different — but simply to detect regional differences. All sauces listed were found to be acceptable by a majority of the panel members.

WEST COAST

K.C. Masterpiece
The Kingsford Products Co.
Oakland, Calif.
Original flavor was tasted. Dark red in color from the tomato concentrate and molasses, with a rather thick consistency. One taster noted a smoky flavor. Two commented on a taste of fruit. The sauce also comes in four other flavors — mesquite, hickory, spicy and original with no salt added — which were not tasted by our panel. The company originated in Kansas City, but was sold to the Kingsford Products Co. in 1985. The sauces are available in 19-ounce bottles for about $1.80 at many major supermarkets.

Everett and Jones Barbecue Sauce

Everett and Jones Barbecue
2676 Fruitvale Ave.
Oakland, Calif. 94601
(415) 533-0900

Pifhouse No. 1 Bar-B-Que Sauce
501 Clement St.
San Francisco 94118
(415) 854-2031

The "rat-trap" flavor was tasted. It had the lightest red color in this regional group. Tasters found it spicy and less sweet. The sauce is also available in 2- and 3-ounce hotness, not tasted by the panel.

La Mont's Barbecue Sauce
La Mont's Authentic Barbecue Restaurant
San Diego
Pale, almost salmon color with a relatively thick consistency. Tasters commented on the creamy texture and sweet, soy flavor.

SOUTHWEST

Bull's Eye Original Barbecue Sauce
Sara's Bar-B-Que
Ridge's Finer Foods Inc.
Garland, Tex. 75040
(214) 272-0623

Dark red-brown in color. Southwestern group and thickest in consistency. Smoky, sweet flavor. The sauce also comes in a spicy hot variety, which was not tasted by our panel.

D.L. Jardine's Chuck Wagon

Recipe Barbecue Sauce
D.L. Jardine's Texas Foods
Box 18868
Austin, Tex. 78760
(512) 444-5001

Original flavor was tasted. Red-orange in color with a relatively thin consistency. Tasters found the sauce "spicy," with a "Mexican" chili and cumin flavor. The company also produces hot and mesquite varieties, which were not tasted by the panel. A minimum order of four (13-ounce) bottles is available from the above address for $15.80.

Texas Barbecue Sauce
Cattlebrand Foods Inc.
P.O. Drawer 00037
Dallas, Tex. 75289
(214) 271-5691

Regular and mesquite flavors were tasted. Dark red-brown in color and relatively thick in consistency. The regular flavor was described by a majority of tasters as very sweet; one taster noted a soy sauce flavor. The smoky flavor of the mesquite, which was commented on by two panelists. A new flavor — Jalapeno Hot — has just been introduced and was not tasted by the panel. The sauces are packed in home canning jars with a net weight of 17 ounces. The minimum order is one case, costing $23 plus shipping, billed collect.

SOUTHEAST

Maurice Bessinger's Piggie Park Barbecue Sauce
Piggie Park Enterprises
Box 6847
West Columbia, S.C. 29171
(800) 628-7423

Regular, "spicy hot" and hickory flavors were tasted. These were the most yellowish in color of the entire collection and all three had a relatively thin consistency. Subtle differences were detected in the three flavors. Tasters felt they were more of a basting sauce and sugary notes included with ham and stirred into deviled eggs. Sauces are available from the above address for $6 for one (16-ounce) bottle, $12 for three, $18 for six, or $28 for a case of 12. Flavors may be mixed within orders.

Johnny Harris' Famous Bar-B-Cue Sauce
Johnny Harris Bar-B-Cue Sauce Co.
2801 Wicklow St.
Savannah, Ga. 31404
(912) 354-8823

Regular and hickory flavors were tasted. Catsup gives a red-orange color to this sauce with a dominant mustard taste and relatively thin consistency. Not much difference was detected between the two varieties. One taster commented on a Worcestershire sauce flavor. The manufacturer suggests heating the sauce to increase flavor and brushing it onto meats and poultry only during the final minutes of grilling. A minimum order of six (12-ounce) bottles is available from the above address for $16, when shipped west of the Mississippi River. Flavors may be mixed within the order.

MIDWEST

Gates and Sons Bar-B-Q Sauce
Best of Kansas City
6233 Brookside Plaza
Kansas City, Mo. 64113
(816) 333-7900

Red in color with medium consistency. Tasters found it very spicy, with the flavors of cumin, chili powder and vinegar. A gift pack of two (18-ounce) bottles is available from the above address for $14 plus shipping. The company will mix one bottle of "Gates" and one of Hayward's (see below), if requested.

Hayward's Pit Bar-B-Q
Best of Kansas City
6233 Brookside Plaza
Kansas City, Mo. 64113
(816) 333-7900

Lighter red in color than others in the regional group, with a relatively thin consistency. Tasters commented on the honey flavor. A gift pack of two (18-ounce) bottles is available from the above address for $14 plus shipping. The company will mix 1 bottle of Hayward's and 1 of Gates', if requested.

Lloyd's Rich & Natural Barbecue
Lloyd's Food Products Inc.
St. Paul, Minn. 55120

Dark red-brown in color with a very thick consistency. Tasters commented on the sweet, smoky flavor. This was the only refrigerated sauce included in the tasting and is found in supermarket meat departments.

Zarda Bar-B-Q
World Headquarters
214 North 7 Highway
Blue Springs, Mo. 64015
(816) 229-9599

Original and mild flavors were tasted. Both were red in color with a medium consistency. Little difference was noted between the two flavors. Both were found to be spicy and sweet with a smoky aroma and catsup flavor. The sauces are available from the above address in a gift pack of two (18-ounce) bottles for $3.65 plus shipping, or cases of 12 bottles for $24.95. Flavors may be mixed within the order.

When you're thinking about barbecue, don't limit yourself to the first thing that comes in your mind. Let your imagination run free.

For example, if you have always wanted to make kabobs, then do it your easy way. Get some of the super-sausages, in fat rolls, and cut them into pieces. Then thread them on skewers with pieces of fruit (apple wedges or orange segments are easy and good) and chunks of vegetables (squash pieces or whole small onions).

Remember, if you are using the bamboo skewers, soak them first in water and they won't burn.

Lamb makes a good barbecue meat — and not just the chops. Mix 2 pounds of ground lamb with ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper. Shape into 8 patties and barbecue 6-8 inches from hot coals, turning once, for 8 to 12 minutes for medium rare. Serve these in pita breads with chopped onions, chopped tomatoes and shredded lettuce.

If you are going to marinate the meat, do it in a plastic bag that can be sealed. These are great and travel especially well.

A thick-cut round steak marinated in soy sauce, then grilled, is best served sliced very thin in diagonal pieces.

A good budget piece of meat to barbecue is a flat chuck roast. This needs to be marinated overnight. Try this recipe.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — An incorrect ingredient was included in last week's story about Donna Stalley's Fourth of July picnic. Our apologies to Stalley and any confused cooks.

DONNA STALLEY'S BEAU MONDE VEGETABLE DIP
1 cup sour cream
1 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon oil
1 teaspoon Beau Monde seasoning
1 teaspoon parsley
½ teaspoon onion
Mix and chill. Serve with vegles.

2 tablespoons oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup fresh parsley, chopped (or cup dried parsley)
¼ cup soy sauce
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon rosemary leaves
1½ tablespoons brown sugar, firmly packed
1½ cup or 10 ½ ounce can beef broth

Meat tenderizer.
Sauté the onion and garlic in the oil. Stir in everything else except the tenderizer and bring to a boil. Then remove from heat and cool.

Apply the tenderizer to the meat, according to directions. Place in a sealable plastic bag and add marinade. Refrigerate at least 6 hours. Overnight is even better.

Drain excess marinade and save. Place the roast on a grill (about 4 to 6 inches) over hot coals. Turn frequently and baste with remainder of marinade. It should be medium rare in 3 to 40 minutes.

Finishing in take stock of what's in the freezer and let friend husband do the honors this week. With my present luck, I think that's best.

Enjoy!

Beyond Neapolitan: Important facts for ice cream lovers

By CAROLE SUGARMAN
The Washington Post

Ice cream, perhaps more than any other food, is in our hearts and minds and freezers. We eat it not just at the table, but in the park and on the street; and when we wake up in the middle of the night, we crave it above all foods. For some people, there is no such thing as enough ice cream.

Still, like many things that we love, it is not perfect. We don't examine it all that closely. In our infatuation, we ignore those nagging questions that, perhaps they should be asking. How do all those Oreos get smashed on Cookies 'n Cream? Why is pistachio ice cream green? And what happens to a Baskin-Robbins flavor-of-the-month when its month is up?

We propose to answer those questions, as well as provide other answers that you as ice-cream consumers have a right to know.

Why are upscale ice creams invariably named after take-scandinavian towns? Reuben Mattus, founder of Haagen-Dazs, told a Newsday reporter in 1981 that although the name doesn't mean anything in Danish, nor is it any place he knows of, Haagen-Dazs is Haagen-Dazs, because it "sounds good." Mattus sold his New Jersey-based company to Pillsbury in 1983. He is now semi-retired, incommunicado and probably very rich because of those umlauts.

What happens to a Baskin-Robbins flavor-of-the-month after its month is up? Flavor-of-the-month heaven is located in Burbank, Calif., where the stores for close to 600-flavors are stored in a locked vault, according to company spokeswoman Marilyn Novak. (After all, "IBM locks up their designs," Novak noted.) While some flavors are revived seasonally, e.g., Winter White Chocolate, Quarterback Crunch, many topical flavors are "long gone and will never come back," said Novak. Among them: Lunar Cheesecake, developed after the 1969 moon landing; Summer Power, developed during the hippie era; and Beagle Nut, named after the famous singing group. Is there a proper way to eat ice cream, or is it proper to eat it any old way? Miss Manners responds, "Always lick your ice-cream cone clockwise. Why? We don't ask why in the etiquette business. There's a right and wrong, but not a because."

To avoid melting, lick the overlapping part constantly in swirls. Avoid pushing the ice cream into the bottom of the cone, so that the top melts. That's a disaster. Then you have to hold it over your head (and suck it out the bottom). To precipitate melting, although Miss Manners does not believe stirring a bowl of ice cream is appropriate behavior, "everyone knows it tastes better all mushed. Nature has a way of solving this. Get involved in animated conversation.

Cookbook

casserole. She says her family received this dish as a welcoming gift when they moved to Texas from Illinois about 20 years ago. It has been a hit ever since. "It's easy," she says. "I'm sure there are plenty of variations on it."

KING RANCH CASSEROLE
1 fryer chicken, boiled and cooled
1 onion, chopped
8 corn tortillas
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can-Ro-tel tomatoes (tomatoes with green chili pepper)
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup Cheddar or Velveta cheese, grated
Butter a 1 1/2 quart-casserole. Place

1/2 chopped chicken, pieces of 4 tortillas; 1/2 onions and 1/2 cheese in casserole. Pour 1/2 of the soup, tomatoes and 1/2 cup chicken broth over all. Repeat layers, leaving cheese for top. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

*She substitutes homemade salsa — about one pint — for the Ro-tel tomatoes.

Brothers John Anderson and Phillip Urrutia, novice monks at the Ascension Priory in Jerome, contributed their recipe for a quick quiche.

Brother Anderson says they took parts of Bisquick's impossible-pie recipe and adapted it, cutting down on some things, and adding others. "We both enjoy cooking," he says. "I like to cook, because I like to eat!"

QUICK QUICHE
Serves 6-8
1 1/2 cups grated Cheddar cheese
2 cups diced cooked chicken
1 cup chopped shallots
10 ounces frozen broccoli, thawed and drained
1 1/2 cups milk
3 eggs
3/4 cup Bisquick mix
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Mix together Cheddar cheese, chicken, shallots and broccoli, and put into a deep, greased, 10-inch pie pan. Blend the remaining ingredients together, and pour over the cheese and vegetable mixture. Bake in preheated 300 degree oven 35-45 minutes, or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Cover with 1/2 cup grated Cheddar cheese and bake until melted. Allow to cool for 5 minutes before serving.

Ham or almost any meat may be substituted for chicken. In addition to the recipes in "Heavenly Helpings," helpful hints are given at the beginning of each section of this handy spiral-bound book on everything from how to make appetizers, to salad-making tips, to cooking charts for meat. There is a page devoted to the canning of vegetables, and there are substitutions, candy testing rules, causes of baking failures, pans to use and other cooking hints.

The cookbook sells for $6.50, including tax, and is available at the St. Vincent de Paul store or by calling Kathleen Hayden at 733-2493, or Karen Rosliut at 733-2458.

Demonstration plots at Ricks College filled with gardening ideas

One of the most highly rated demonstration gardens in the Intermountain area is located on the Ricks College campus in Rexburg. Flowers, vegetables, fruits and landscape plants provide a pleasant place for anyone to stroll and relax. There is a wealth of ideas for those interested in improving their own landscapes and gardens. Picnic facilities are available for those who want to bring a lunch. Groups can make reservations for picnic facilities by calling the Ricks College Agriculture Division.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College.

Each year new varieties of flowers, vegetables, fruits and ornamentals are planned to test their adaptation to the northern Intermountain climate. For example, 74 new varieties of flowers and 85 new vegetable varieties have been included in this year's plantings. Most plants are labeled with variety names. Other research underway includes the testing of hardy rootstocks for apples and rose covers and plastic mulching materials for vegetables.

The Ricks College Research and Demonstration Garden has recently been designated as an official All-America demonstration garden by All-America Selections. This non-profit testing organization has supplied seeds for All-America Award winning vegetable and flower varieties. Winners for the last five years, including 16 flowers and 13 vegetables, are prominently displayed. The flower winners are near the main entrance and the winning vegetables are displayed together on the east end of the vegetable plot.

Plant collectors should look for oddities

By HENRY MITCHELL
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Often there are slight variations in plants that make a difference to gardeners. It is well worth keeping one's eyes open for the oddities.

Sometimes they are worth growing simply because they are odd, but sometimes because they are more beautiful or have another great advantage.

I was told by a daughter of a famous plant collector that some of her mother's happy discoveries were made when they stopped for gas. You read that such-and-such was collected in a remote river country of some far-off place and you assume the collector climbed cliffs, but sometimes there was no such difficulty.

I recall seeing a wild American plioch that looked like all the others, but it had an intense perfume of heliotrope. Why? Nobody knows, it just did.

In our alley I used to admire a sprig of the porcelain berry that had leaves beautifully silvered, with just enough green to provide the chlorophyll of life.

This was Parthenocissus around town. Many other of our native plants variegated-silvered, and usually were used for gas. Rhododendron austrinum, can have rather thin strappy flowers or they can be full, otherwise green plant. If cuttings and are made of the silver form, the whole plant will be silver.

It is beautiful—very, by the way, with distinguished leaves more or less cut, like those of a Japanese anemone or maple, or the human hand—and some are more deeply tinted than others. Some are almost lacy.

If looks delicate, and I thought it would handsome in one part of the garden so I let it grow from a bird-dropped seed.

But it quickly overwhelmed everything in its path, romped up a medium-large Norway maple and killed a vigorous, white wisteria—just smothered it. I never knew anything smothered a wisteria, but when I was away for a couple of months, the dire deed was done.

In early fall great clusters of the berries, somewhat like those of the Virginia creeper, turn a gleaming blue with tiny black dots like other members of the family, the Boston ivy and so forth. It can be a plant of embarrassing vigor, and like some of us it gives little hint in its slender youth of the giant creature it becomes with age.

Still, as I say, the white-splashed leaf form is very good looking and is occasionally seen in waste places around town.

Many other of our native plants variegated-silvered, and usually were used for gas. Rhododendron austrinum, can have rather thin strappy flowers or they can be full, otherwise green plant. If cuttings and are made of the silver form, the Good nurseries take care to propagate the best forms, and I always felt lucky in my Tennessee garden to have a really nice one, approaching orange, and dazzling in bloom.

It is well known that roses sometimes sport; that is, genetic accidents may happen on some twig or other, changing the flower color, and these may be propagated from cuttings.

One of the most beautiful of "old" roses is "Variegata di Bologna," a 3-inch globular, very double flower of white with dark purple-red stripes that turn to purple with age. It has been a solid color, the color of the stripes. No doubt, the striped form was a sport of some old dark red rose and now the striped form was sported back to the original color, one's eyes open.

Such things add interest to the garden, though—of no practical importance. A friend of mine, Roberta Case, sent me a root of a pink waterlily she found in some remote part of Michigan. She felt it was wild, not escaped from a garden or deliberately planted.

It bloomed last week and is a surprisingly beautiful pink flower, the color of petals interestingly almost red near the heart of the bloom.

The leaves are fully circular, like the wild Nymphaea odorata, and the new ones are rich red bronze, turning to green with age. The flower suggests the garden variety "Rose Aray," which I have never grown, but I suspect this one is different. Mrs. Case calls it "Shupae Pink," for whatever reason.

Whatever it is, it is one of the more beautiful of hardy waterlilies and shows the wisdom of keeping one's eyes open.

Photo skirmish sets off war of words

DEAR ABBY: My husband was married before and has a daughter who is living with her mother in another state.

A few years ago, this daughter sent us a picture of herself, and it was beautiful. I bought a nice frame and proudly put the picture on the dining room living room for all our friends to see.

A few weeks ago, this daughter sent us a new picture. (She just turned 15.) I don't care for this picture at all. She's wearing too much makeup—great big earrings, a sexy, low-cut dress, and her hair is all frizzy. I really would be ashamed to put this picture out for everyone to see.

Here's the conversation between my husband and me when we got the new picture:

Me: "I don't like this picture."

Me: "I agree. She looks like a prostitute."

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

We had a big fight over this picture. My husband hit the roof, and said, "Don't ever call my daughter a prostitute again!"

I said, "I never called your daughter a prostitute — I just said she looked like one."

He said, "I never called your daughter a prostitute — I just said she looked like one."

My husband has called my sister a "whore" many times because she dates many men. She is not a whore; she's just a popular, friendly girl. I never demanded an apology.

Do you think I owe my husband one?

thought his daughter looked like a prostitute. And don't remind him that he called your sister a whore.

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with the family in Kansas who recently lost their 4-month-old son. My 6-month-old nephew died in April, also while on a waterbed. However, the coroner's report listed the cause of death as Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS), not asphyxiation.

Several states now require an autopsy whenever there is a sudden death of an infant. This allows the family to know if the child was ill, had a congenital problem, and also to conduct research on this unexplained and unpreventable tragedy.

Maybe the Kansas grandsons died of SIDS. If so, it might help the family to know that they could not have prevented his tragic death, thereby relieving them of any guilt.

There may be a local SIDS support group where they can obtain more information. If not, they can phone 800-221-SIDS. (In Maryland, the number is 301-459-3388.) Sign me... — D.V., ALSO GRIEVING

DEAR D.V.: Thank you for your compassionate letter. Please accept my sympathy on the loss of your nephew. In the hopes that your letter may enlighten other families stricken by this kind of tragedy, I am sharing it with my readers.

Carbohydrates gaining respect

Carbohydrates have long been slandered as the No. 1 enemy in the battle of the bulge.

But now, they are getting new respect, reports Better Homes and Gardens magazine. In addition to their primary function as an energy source, high-carbohydrate foods tend to be low in fat yet high in fiber, vitamins and minerals. Carbohydrates fattening? Look for another scapegoat. One gram of carbohydrate has 4 calories; a gram of fat, 9 calories.

Carbohydrates are the most efficient food source of energy there is. The human body burns what it needs immediately and stores what's left as an energy reserve. High-carbohydrate foods including fruits, vegetables, cereals, legumes and grains are made up of both simple and complex carbohydrates.

Foods that are high in simple carbohydrates (sugars), such as honey, are easily digested and provide quick energy followed by an energy slump.

Dollar value ups stock prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose broadly Tuesday, spurred by strength in the dollar and bond prices and by foreign buying.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 20.25 points to close at 2,449.78.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 200.73 million shares, up from 155.01 million in Monday's session.

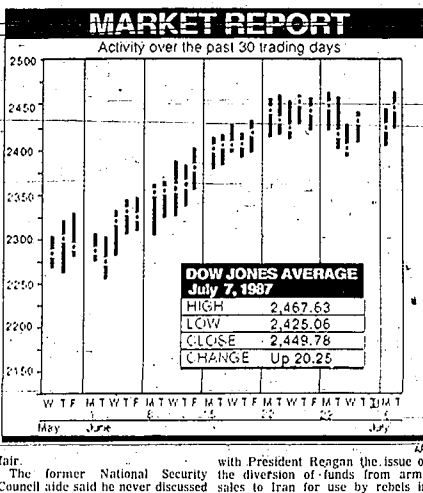

The rally began early in the trading session and was sustained through most of the day, although prices retreated slightly in late trading. Analysts attributed the day's advance largely to foreign demand, especially from Japanese investors, and to the strong dollar and stable bond prices.

The dollar topped the psychologically important level of 150 Japanese yen for the first time in more than three months.

Declines in the dollar earlier this year raised fears of high inflation, which could erode corporate profits, and in turn pushed bond prices lower and interest rates higher.

The day's rally was traced early in the session by J. Col. Oliver North's testimony at a congressional hearing on the Iran-Contra affair.

The former National Security Council aide said he never discussed with President Reagan the issue of the diversion of funds from arms sales to Iran for use by rebels in Nicaragua. North also said Reagan never raised the issue of arms sales.

There had been speculation in the financial markets that North testimony would be detrimental to Reagan's weaker share prices.

Despite the strength of Tuesday's rally, some analysts said the market remained vulnerable to profit-taking or to bad news from the stream of second-quarter corporate earnings reports expected soon.

Many investors expect the corporate earnings to show strong gains over the second quarter of 1986, even though economic growth remains fairly subdued. But if those expectations are not fulfilled, many observers believe the market might be vulnerable to a setback.

Among actively traded NYSE issues, Texaco was unchanged at 44 1/2, USX advanced 2 1/2 to 35 and AT&T rose 1/2 to 29.

Kidde jumped 9 1/2 to 61 1/2. The diversified manufacturer said it was considering a possible restructuring or sale of all or a major part of its business.

Southland declined 1/2 to 75 1/2. The company says it is the subject of shareholder lawsuits over its proposed leveraged buyout and said it would challenge the suits.

Phillips Petroleum rose 1/2 to 17 1/2. Schlumberger advanced 1 1/2 to 49 1/2. Halliburton gained 2 1/2 to 40 1/2. Ammax was up 1 1/2 to 23.

Old National officer named Moore president

BOISE (AP) — D. Michael Jones, former president of Old National Bancorp, Spokane, has been named president of Moore Financial Group.

The appointment, made by the Moore Financial board of directors, will be effective Aug. 1.

Jones, 45, will assume the title now held by Daniel Nelson, who will remain chairman and chief executive officer, said Dianne Pifer, corporate spokeswoman.

"It's common to separate the jobs of president and CEO," Pifer said.

"This completes the management team at Moore Financial."

In December 1986, Moore underwent two rounds of management changes. Chairman Fred Humphries resigned Dec. 18, and the next day, Nelson was named chairman.

Nelson, 49, had been named president in January 1985 and CEO in August 1986.

"I'm pleased Jones' appointment was not a reaction to the $3.3 million loss Moore Financial suffered last year."

Jones has been president of Old National Bancorp for the past five years. He had been executive vice president for the previous eight years.

"I'm very pleased to be joining one of the premier financial institutions in the Western states," Jones said. He said Moore Financial is "well positioned to achieve longer-term success with its three-state banking network in Idaho, Utah and Oregon."

Old National is a bank holding company with assets of $1.8 billion and 73 branches in eastern and western Washington. Pierce said. Old National recently was purchased by U.S. Bancorp. of Portland.

Moore Financial is a Boise-based bank holding company with assets of $3.3 billion and 113 offices in three states. It is the parent company of Idaho First National Bank, Oregon First Bank and Continental Bank and Trust in Utah.

Housekeeping: Industry's rising star

Cleaning franchises are soaring, sweeping across the country and reaping financial rewards.

This is a $2.5-billion industry that should not surprise you.

The need for help to clean our houses is clear, as more women enter the work force and dual families are increasingly considered the norm. Once thought of as a luxury reserved only for the rich, today maid services are being used by a growing number of middle- and upper-income families.

Franchises providing housecleaning services have capitalized on this demand.

Sales are up 20 percent, totaling more than $49 million in 1986 as compared with $31 million in 1985 for housekeeping franchises, reports Andrew Kostacka, franchise director for the Home Service Department. And sales are expected to total more than $68 million by the end of 1987 — a whopping 39 percent jump over last year.

Business is rapidly expanding. Of 14 housekeeping/maid-service franchisors in 1985, there were 669 units, which include both company and franchisee-owned operations. Last year that figure surged to 1,652 units, and more than 1,360 of these establishments are expected by year end.

In the last five to six years, franchising in this area has been going gangbusters. "Geraldine Strozger of the International Franchise Association (IFA) notes:

If you are considering purchasing a maid-service franchise, the fees vary. The typical initial franchise fee ranges from $8,000 to $15,000, according to IFA.

Women account for a large portion of the entrepreneurs entering this business. Unlike the stereotype of the female forced to clean houses, these women are returning to the workforce, only now in the form of a lucrative business venture.

"Ninety percent of our franchise owners are women and most operate out of the home," Frank Plack, president of Ann Arbor-based Molly Maid Inc., told my research associate Beth Koblender.

"I think women are better equipped to run small businesses than men," Plack adds.

In this reason, men typically have been involved in narrower pursuits, while women who traditionally have had to manage a home, were involved in many different areas — everything from seamstress to cook to psychologist. The ability to manage a wide range of varied skills is essential in order to operate a small business effectively.

More than 40 percent of our franchisees are women, 40 percent are couples, and 20 percent are men," says Jim Fowler of Merry Maids Inc., an Omaha-based firm, which has grown from just eight franchises in 1980 to 100 in 1987.

While housecleaning franchises offer tempting business opportunities to mounting numbers of entrepreneurs, they are also creating a huge demand for maids.

The number of maids and housemen employed by cleaning-service companies and working in private homes has been steadily increasing. In 1986, there were 563,000 individuals in this category, compared with 563,000 in 1985, according to the BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS.

"On-line housekeeping personnel, many of these companies are providing perks, everything from uniforms to vacation pay to health insurance benefits. In general, the shift to a service economy — with maids falling into the category of "personal service professionals" — encourages the upscale image that many maid-service franchisees are creating for both employees as well as customers.

Customers are attracted to these housecleaning franchises for several reasons. Certainly, marketing campaigns and the resulting name-recognition play a part.

But franchisors also stress more substantial benefits to prospective clients. No longer will you have to search for a housekeeper; you will avoid the hassles of looking for a replacement if your maid is not available; aspects such as transportation, meals and insurance, which most customers neglect to consider, usually are included when you deal with a large, established company.

Costs vary, depending on which company you use, where you live, the size of your house, and, of course, what you want cleaned.

No matter which type of housecleaning service you choose, for most, more valuable than any other factor is the time you will save.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"The money of the miser is coming out of the earth when he himself is going into it." — Scard.

Today's game posed a test to top trickers—Should South aim high by trying for overtricks or should he play cautiously to ensure his game?

South saw only blue skies when the dummy hit the table. With good luck, he might even score an easy overtrick.

Playing quickly, he won dummy's diamond ace, played two top hearts and ruffed a heart with dummy's nine. Had this held, South planned to ruff a diamond and ruff his other heart with dummy's trump king.

Now a good guess in clubs would score the overtrick (two overtricks if he were lucky enough to drop a singleton trump queen).

South's dream was shattered early when East overruffed the third round of hearts and returned a trump. The net result was four tricks (a trump, two clubs and a heart).

To make the game, South must ruff a third heart with dummy's trump king. He then ruffs a diamond with his trump ace and his last overtrick with dummy's nine. East overruffs, but the game is safe.

South loses two clubs and a trump but he chucks up a cinch game in a trade for a possible overtrick.

Vulnerable: Both Dealer: South
The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♣ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

Opening lead: Diamond queen

BID WITH THE ACES
7-8-8

South holds:
♥ 10 9 8 6
♣ A Q 10

North holds:
♠ 10 9 8 6
♣ A Q 10

ANSWER: Two no-trump. An invitational bid. The good intermediate cards justify the slight stretch.
