Lots of loose ends left after hearings close

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three months of public Iran-Contra hearings, documents piled four feet high, 29 public witnesses and more than 500 private interviews haven't added up to a neat package but to one with dozens of loose ends.

Seven months of investigation into the affair that sent arms to Iran and money and weapons to Nicaraguan's Contra rebels have revealed thousands of details and traced dozens of separate lines of inquiry.

They have outlined the process by which a handful of administration officials, binding themselves with tight secrecy, planned and directed operations that thwarted congressional bans and violated the nation's public policy against selling arms to terrorists.

"Ninety-eight percent of the major questions have been answered," Sen. Warren Rudman,

Analysis

R-N.H., said of the public hearings, which ended on Monday, a day for summing up the 41 days of testimony spread over the months since May 5.

"You'll be surprised how short the list is of facts that remain in dispute" when the committee's final report is issued next month, Rudman said.

But despite the exhaustive effort, there remain important gaps in what the public knows.

President Reagan will give his general views on the hearings in a speech next week, but his spokesman says not to expect Reagan to get into much detail.

Eventually some questions may be resolved in court, where Lawrence E. Walsh, the government's independent counsel, is expected to seek criminal prosecutions of some figures in the affair.

Many of the questions remain because of the death in May of former CIA director William Casey, Lt. Col. Oliver North persuaded Casey as a driving force behind the affair, but Attorney General Edwin Meese III testified Casey told him he knew nothing of the diversion of arms-sale money to the Contras.

Other nagging doubts remain because of North's talk of a "full guy" plan, raising suspicions that administration higher-ups knew more than they would admit about what was going on and planned to leave it to North or Rear Adm. John Poindexter to take the blame if details became public.

And the answer to a central question in the inquiry — whether Reagan knew about the diversion of Iran arms sale proceeds to aid the Contras — rests primarily on the testimony of Poindexter, his former national security adviser whose credibility has been questioned by several panel members.

Saudis watch pilgrims

The Associated Press

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia — Iranians joined 2 million other Muslims in a pilgrim procession Monday outside the holy city of Mecca, watched by armed Saudi police flanking the columns and helicopters hovering above.

An anti-American demonstration by Iranian pilgrims in Mecca last Friday led to a battle with Saudi police in which at least 402 people were killed, 275 of them Iranians. Hundreds were injured.

Saudi news media portrayed some Iranian pilgrims as terrorists. Iran vowed to overthrow the Saudi ruling family and seize its vast oil wealth.

The Mecca violence was widely viewed in the region as a manifestation of Arab-Persian jealousy and the divisions of Islam.

Nearly all the Muslims belong to the Shiite minority. Shiites have been at odds for 1,300 years with the Sunni sect, which the Saudi royal family follows and which makes up 85 percent of the world's 800 million Muslims.

Arab diplomatic sources said President Hafez Assad of Syria had offered to mediate a reconciliation between Iran and Saudi Arabia. Syria has good relations with both countries.

An estimated 2.1 million pilgrims, known as hajjis, moved in a smooth procession Monday in groups of 100,000 to the Plain of Arafat six miles from Mecca.

Police with rifles, on foot and in cars, flanked the 157,000 Iranians while military helicopters chuffed overhead, residents of the area reported. Police planned to guard the Iranians while the pilgrims camped overnight on the plain in preparation for the culmination Tuesday of the hajj, or Muslim pilgrimage.

The Saudi newspaper Okaz, quoting officials, it did not name, said Monday that Iran sent about 20,000

No links to Reagan found in hearings

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's daytime summer hearings, the Iran-Contra affair, came to a quiet end Monday as the 29 witnesses having God President Reagan directly to the use of arms-sales profits for the guerrillas fighting in Nicaragua.

The president has indeed been telling the truth," said Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., the vice chairman of the House committee. However, Republicans joined Democrats in a final round of speeches denouncing the secrecy and deception that brought the Reagan administration its greatest embarrassment.

"The story has now been told," said Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate committee. He called it a chilling story of a "flawed policy" kept alive by a secret White House junta despite repeated warnings and signs of failure."

Reagan will deliver a speech on the Iran-Contra affair next week on a day still unspecified, but spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president does not intend to "go into every detail" about the testimony which was spread over three months of hearings.

"It's the overall issues involved that the president wants to address," Fitzwater said.

The rare collaboration of committees from the House and Senate will continue the rest of the month. First, they will hear testimony from three CIA officials behind closed doors, then they will draft a report on the affair.

In the meantime, independent counsel Lawrence Walsh continues his separate investigation into the possibility of criminal prosecution of some of the affair's main figures.

Seeking the crown

At 91, Verne Hawkes is a bit older than the average rodeo queen contestant. Hawkes was one of six women taking part in a grandmotherly Mindoka Fair and Rodeo Queen contest at the Mindoka County Fair Monday night. The entry requirements are simple: contestants must be grandmothers at least 50 years old. The winner will be crowned Mindoka Fair and Rodeo Queen tonight.

Sole man riding stricken raft could do little to aid others

The Associated Press

ALEXIS CREEK, British Columbia — The only business executive left in an inflatable raft after 11 others were pitched into a river during a whitewater trip said Monday there was little he could do as five companions died in the pounding rapids.

"I think you can kind of play it out in your mind what I was going through," said Jack Collins, president and chief executive officer of Clorox Co.

In a telephone interview from his Oakland, Calif., office, Collins described the Saturday accident that ended a Canadian wilderness outing by a group of friends that included several top officials of U.S. corporations. The five who died all were prominent executives in advertising.

Most had taken river trips before and about half had made a run down the same stretch of the Chilko River on Thursday, Collins said.

"We thought, we were all pretty smart guys; none of us would have been there if we thought there was any danger of injury or dying," Collins said. "We looked at whitewater as sort of an ersatz roller coaster."

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police identified the dead as Robert V. Goldstein, 50, of Cincinnati, vice president of advertising for Vector and Gamble Co.; James Fasulis, 63, Glen Ellyn, Ill., a former senior vice president of the advertising firm DDB Needham Worldwide; Richard T. O'Reilly, 66, director of the New York-based Media Advertising Partnership for a Drug-Free America, Inc.; and Stuart Jon Sharp; 37, and Gene Yovetich, 41, both Chicago residents and senior vice presidents of account management at DDB Needham.

O'Reilly also was president of Greenwich, Conn.-based advertising firm that bears his name. The firm handled advertising for President Reagan's 1980 campaign. RCMP officials declined to identify survivors, but Needham officials identified two as Michael Miles, president and chief operating officer of Kraft Inc. in Glenview, Ill., and Al Wolfe, 55, of Lake Forest, Ill., president of the U.S. division of Needham.

Collins said the other survivors were Earl Madsen; 49, a Golden, Colo., lawyer; Joe Morrison, an advertising and marketing executive with Mattel Co. in Los Angeles; Arthur Zeickel, an executive with Merrill Lynch in New York; and Tom Thompson, the river guide. The RCMP said Thompson owned Thompson Guiding Ltd. of Riske Creek.

The accident happened shortly after noon Saturday on a stretch of the river called the "Whitewater Mile," about 35 miles west of Alexis Creek, which is about 200 miles north of Vancouver, said RCMP Sgt. Ken Williamson.

All on the raft were wearing life jackets, Collins said.

Board approves reinforcing cell walls at Idaho prison unit

The Associated Press

BOISE — Corrections Director Al Murphy won backing on Monday from the Board of Corrections for steel reinforcement of the cell walls on Death Row and throughout the close-custody unit at the main prison following a weekend disturbance in which eight condemned killers damaged their cells.

No one was injured in the upheaval late Saturday and early Sunday that began in the maximum-security tier just above Death Row, and Murphy said no force was needed to restore order.

Cell walls on that maximum-security tier were reinforced with steel after a similar disruption last year.

But the three-tier cellblock unit was locked down on Monday after inmates, including those involved on Death Row, were shifted to undamaged cells. Murphy said a shake-down inspection for weapons and other contraband would be conducted on Tuesday.

Murphy flew back to Idaho on Sunday from New Orleans, where he was attending a national corrections meeting, to assess the situation, and he briefed the three-member Corrections Board in an emergency telephone conference call on Monday morning.

"I'm not sure what the cause was," Murphy said. "It looks like a personal conflict between inmates." None of it makes much sense to me.

He identified the most prominent Death Row inmates involved in the disruption as:

Thomas Eugene Creech, 36, awaiting execution for the 1981 slaying of fellow inmate David Jensen.

Donald Parada, 38, and Thomas Henry Gibson, 36, both sentenced to death for the 1980 slaying of Kimberly Ann Palmer near Post Falls.

Gene Francis Stuart, 36, ordered execution for the 1981 beating death of the 9-year-old son of his girlfriend.

Donald Fetterly, 30, facing death for the 1983 stabbing of Sterling Grammer in Canyon County.

Officials said the disruption began about 10 p.m. Saturday when maximum-security inmates began to pound on cell doors and windows. They said some Death Row inmates in the tier below took up the cry and began using beds as battering rams to punch holes into the unreinforced walls of their cells. A special response team was called in, and the inmates were persuaded to disband and return to their individual cells, Murphy said.

Damage was estimated at $50,000 on Death Row, and Murphy said the plan to steel reinforce all 26 cells on that tier as well as the 26 on the top close-custody tier would probably total $75,000. He began discussing financing arrangements with state Public Works officials on Monday.

Maximum-security inmates trashed 15 cells in December in the center B tier of Unit 8, starting fires and grazing a correctional officer with a bullet from a homemade zip gun.

The Corrections Department responded to the damage by repairing cement bunks which could not be moved to demolish walls and lining the cells with steel plates.

Major test firing for rocket today

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP)—The first major test firing of a fully redesigned joint for the space shuttle's solid-fuel booster rockets is planned for today, according to a spokesman for Morton Thiokol Inc.

The launch condition in the redesigned joint between the boosters' four segments.

The new design includes new insulation materials and a "capture feature" aimed at preventing the escape of superhot, flaming gases, Raab said Monday.

The leak of hot gases through a booster joint has been blamed for igniting the Jan. 28, 1986, explosion of the shuttle Challenger, which killed the seven-member crew.

The insulation in the new design meets at the joint and is bonded with an adhesive. In the old joint configuration, the insulation did not meet. The new design also includes a third O-ring joint to seal the joint.

Raab said one joint would include deliberate flaws in the insulation and O-rings.

Poll

Among those who made donations to the television ministry from charismatic to fundamentalist, and he also angered Bakker loyalists by accusing the PTL founder of homosexuality and greed.

In the Media General-AP poll, people who donate money to television evangelists were less likely than those who did not to say the scandal would "hurt all evangelists. They were also more likely to believe the scandal would be quickly forgotten.

Seventeen percent of those who donate money said they sent donations to Billy Graham's ministry, while 12 percent said they sent money to Oral Roberts and 11 percent made donations to Pat Robertson. Five percent said they made donations to Bakker or PTL, and 5 percent said they donated to Falwell's ministry.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,348 adults across the country June 1-10. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,300 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample.

Midlands swelter in heat

The heat wave blamed for 83 deaths chased people from golf courses and kept power plants straining Monday for a 17th day in the eastern two-thirds of the nation; but a cold front over the northern Plains promised some relief later in the week.

"It's like living in the tropics, it's getting to be a way of life," said police dispatcher Nancy Bolyard in Moline, Ill., where the high Sunday was 101.

"Sometimes you feel like you're suffocating," complained John Morgan of Topeka, Kan.

Heat and high humidity also pushed back into parts of the Northeast after about a week's respite, with New York City hitting 90, Norfolk, Va., had a high of 87, and a heat alert urging people to take it easy and check on the elderly was extended to Tuesday in Alabama. A 77-year-old Kentucky man died Sunday after succumbing to the heat while working on his car, officials said Monday.

The Tennessee Valley Authority ordered its offices in seven states to turn off lights and turn down air conditioners to help ease an expected record demand for electricity.

Special School District officials in St. Louis County, Mo., closed the district's extended school year program Monday because its buses are not air conditioned.

Two sisters drowned in Kentucky on Monday while wading with their family in the Little Kentucky River — a trip made to escape the heat wave. Joyce Shivers, 9, and her 7-year-old sister, Hectora, slipped on rocks and were carried downstream by the current.

Questions

The massive shuffling of documents by North adds to those doubts. What could have been direct evidence is now confetti.

"Among the key dangling questions:

•What were the real motives of those who ran the covert arms sales and Contra aid network? Was it the Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord a patriot, as North contended, or a profiteer as several committee members suggested.

•When did the president first know about the initial Israeli shipment of TOW antitank missiles to Iran in August 1986? Witnesses have given conflicting testimony, and the president himself says he doesn't remember.

•Was there really a covert, privately funded "off-the-shelf" intelligence network begun by Casey and North, as North testified, and what was it to be used for? And how much did Reagan or other officials know of such an operation?

•Which version of Poindexter's story is correct: the one he told the president and Meese, that he was vaguely aware of North's activities but failed to follow up? Or the one he told congressional investigators, that he authorized the diversion and followed it in detail?

•Why can't Poindexter, a man described as having a photographic memory, recall many of the major details of the affair? In five days of testimony, he answered nearly 200 times with some form of, "I don't recall."

•Where did the diversion idea originate? North said Iranian intelligence officer Manucher Ghorbanifar first suggested it to him. Others say Israeli officials came up with the idea.

•Who has legal ownership of the approximately $8 million remaining from the deals, now frozen in Swiss accounts? Secord and his cohorts or the U.S. government?

—When the affair began to unravel, why did Meese and others fail to ask many important questions of some of the administration's top officials who were involved to at least some extent?

The congressional committees have learned enough to draw what they consider the most important lessons: the need for trust and good faith between the executive and legislative branches of government, and the need for open and bipartisan making of foreign policy.

Raft

Collins, 65, said the 15-foot-long raft had run about 1 1/2 miles of rapids when it struck a large rock to the side of the river channel. The raft turned broadside, he said, and Thompson, at the oars, couldn't maneuver it back into the main channel.

"The raft hit the rock and climbed up the side of it. The rock with the force of the water pushing it," Collins said. "The procedure when that happens is for everyone to move to the high side of the raft. But it was too late for us to do it."

In an instant, "everyone else but me was in the water," Collins said. "People have asked me why I didn't go out and the answer is I haven't the slightest clue."

Madsen clung to the side of the raft, and after a mile of further rapids we were able to get to the shore," Collins said.

Three survivors were thrown into the eddy and were able to get out of the river within a few minutes, Collins said. "No one could swim in this current."

Wolfe apparently was in the water 45 minutes, but, "most of us who survived got out very quickly or, in my case, never went in," he said.

Collins said he tried his best to steer the inflatable while helping Madsen hang on.

A lot of emotions flashed through his mind: "Surprise it happened, couldn't get into the boat, frustration I couldn't get other guys into the boat."

Collins said he saw Morrison grab a tree branch on shore as the raft sped by. When it happened I never knew of people in the water, then we started spreading apart. Because I had some limited maneuverability with the raft, I could see three or four people out in front of me. As more time went on we became more and more spread out."

Collins said he and Madsen at first thought they were the only survivors. They were able to walk back to their campground, where they found Zeiske. He had hiked from the boat to a dirt road, where he was picked up and given a ride, Collins said.

Symms reports healthy campaign fund

BOISE (AP) — Nearly one year after a record-setting U.S. Senate election victory over Democrat John Evans, Sen. Steve Symms reports a healthy campaign fund and a steady stream of substantial contributions.

Symms spent $3.2 million to defeat the ex-governor last year, by far the most money ever spent on an Idaho election and about $1 million more than Evans spent.

As of the end of June, in reports received at the secretary of state's office here on Monday, Symms reported cash on hand of $191,007 with no debts. Four congressional candidates, including the two winners from last year's election, and Sen. James McClure also filed their reports on Monday.

For the last six months, Symms reported contributions of $52,838, even though he won't be up for re-election for five years. Symms also reported a refund of $34,299 from the amount he deposited to cover expenses of President Reagan's campaign visit to Idaho last year.

Symms was topped in raising money only by Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho. Stallings, elected to his second term last year, reported raising $64,900 in the first six months of the year.

Despite the fact the campaign has been over for nine months, Symms reported spending $87, 464 on campaign expenses.

The largest expenditure was $20,200 to the DCM Group, Arlington, Va., a fund-raising consultant.

Symms also paid members of his staff. Listing $6,472.45 to Al Henderson of Boise and $750 to Loretta Fuller, Alexandria, Va.

The Symms report shows the senator contributed $1,000 each to the Senate campaigns of Republicans in Alabama, Florida, North Carolina and Georgia.

Between Jan. 1 and May 10, Symms reported receiving $37,331 in contributions, including $1,000 each from six executives and officials of a California company, Berger and Co. Symms also received $1,000 from Lisa Berger, listed as a self-employed freelance writer, Washington, D.C.

The Republican senator also reported receiving $19,284 from political action committees. Included were political organization for aircraft builders Lockheed and McDonnell-Douglas, Federal Express, the American Road and Transportation Builders Association, Health Insurance Association of America, J.C. Penney, Philip Morris, Phillips Petroleum, Rathcon, Western Dow Employees and the American Electronics Assn.

Stallings reported a balance of $32,570, spending of $24,186 this year and unpaid debts of $6, 207, including a $5,000 personal loan.

Republican Rep. Larry Craig, who won his fourth term in 1986, reported $15,986 on hand and spending of $31,808.

McClure, who will not be up for re-election until 1990, reported the largest campaign war chest. McClure reported a balance of $234,812, no debts, contributions of $12,000 for the last six months and spending of $2,567 including $100 for refreshments for other members of the Transportation Committee.

Former state senator Dane Watkins reported paying off some of the debt left over from his unsuccessful bid for the GOP 2nd Congressional District nomination last year.

Watkins reported a debt of $16,456 and payments of $1,423 from personal funds. He showed a balance of $8.79 in his campaign account.

Idaho Falls Republican Mel Richardson, who defeated Watkins and three others for the party's congressional nomination, showed he has cut his debt to $16,904. Richardson lost to Stallings in the general election last year.

Richardson reported contributions of $16,947, including $6,400 in personal funds, spending of $14,554 and a cash balance of $3,177.

Court upholds short hair for prison inmates

BOISE (AP) — It's perfectly logical for the Department of Corrections to require prison inmates to have short hair, both for security and hygiene reasons, the Idaho Court of Appeals says.

But prison officials must provide hair-cutting services in a sanitary manner, the court said Monday.

In a unanimous decision, the Court of Appeals rejected a claim by two inmates that the short-hair rule violates their freedom of expression.

The court also ordered the prison system to comply with the general rules required of professional barbers to sanitize equipment between each use, provide clean towels and refrain from cutting hair in living, dining or sleeping areas.

Inmates Mike Wilson, William Wolfe and John Merrifield filed legal action against the short hair policy. The prison generally requires male inmates to have short hair. Beards are prohibited, although mustaches are permitted if short and neatly trimmed.

Exceptions are granted to inmates with "sincerely held" religious beliefs requiring them to wear long hair or beards, although U.S. District Judge Marion Callister ruled last year that must be a sincere religious belief, and not simply secular or philosophical belief.

The inmates alleged the short-hair rule violated their freedom of expression. The legal action also claimed the state wasn't following health-related barbering regulations.

The Court of Appeals concluded that even though the inmates are not members of the general public, which would require prison barbers to follow the sanitation rules which govern commercial barbers.

Jones wants tight PUC power system controls

BOISE (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission should exercise tight control over power-generating facilities and the construction of transmission lines that might be used to ship electricity to other regions, Attorney General Jim Jones says.

Jones on Monday told a Boise news conference he has filed a request to take part in the PUC's major review of a policy requiring utilities to purchase power from cogenerators and small power producers.

A federal law requires such purchases, and sets the cost at the amount a utility would save by not having to build presumably expensive new generating plants.

But the PUC, in a recent order, questioned whether the "avoided cost" policy is really valid, in a period when there is a power surplus in the region. It's studying whether to change the policy.

Jones said the PUC should expand the scope of the study to make it clear it has full authority to regulate such things as the construction of power transmission lines.

Idaho industrialist Jack Simplot heads a group of investors who have proposed building a power transmission line to ship surplus electricity out of state.

Jones said the PUC is supposed to protect state residents against the possibility that state resources are used to benefit other states.

"It's statutory charge to regulate all privately owned electric power production and transmission in the state is an essential tool in securing the highest and best use of the state's resources," he said.

"This state has to have a policy to deal with cogeneration projects, the attorney general said. "We can't leave it to the federal government."

Area residents want adequate response

Despite what many consider to be the worst agricultural depression in more than 50 years, Magic Valley counties have once again experienced high tax collection rates.

That reflects, in our view, a continuing and ongoing commitment of Valley residents to maintaining their local government services, despite the obvious difficulties of doing so.

We would guess that many people feel their municipal and county governments are, with some notable exceptions, doing an efficient and cost-effective job of providing essential services.

People are willing to pay for these things, as long as they feel they are getting their money's worth. That is a lesson which is sometimes lost to elected officials once they get into office.

No one wants to pay taxes, particularly when they seem to go up relentlessly. But not many of us, we suspect, would want a community without police or fire protect, without zoning, without street maintenance, without well-maintained public schools. Those are some of the directions our tax dollars go.

What we expect in return is a public sector which is genuinely responsive to needs, but one which neither coddles nor patronizes.

That is not an easy objective to meet, but it is one which we think public officials and agencies should strive for on a continuing basis.

Letters

Quick response was impressive

My thanks to officer Glen Wells and all of the other individuals who assisted in the rescue of the young man who crashed into a power pole at the intersection of Falls Ave. E. and Mountain View Drive on Wednesday afternoon. As one of the many spectators, I was impressed by the quick response and the organized and efficient manner in which those involved handled the situation.

Many of us take for granted the services provided by the dedicated and often underpaid people who risk their own lives in order to save others.

I was appalled to learn from another onlooker, whose son is a fireman, that the fire department was called and responded to four crank calls during the hours the previous night when most of us were asleep. I wish that the person or persons responsible for this prank could have witnessed this terrifying accident. If our firemen and policemen are responding to non-existent emergencies, they may not be able to make it on time for someone in real need. Because of the selfish private citizens and city personnel, a potentially tragic ending was averted. I am sure that most of the people in Twin Falls will concur with me that a "thank you" is long overdue.

Buhl woman did nothing wrong

In reference to "Buhl woman nets reckless driving charge" in transporting injured teen."

It was very hard for me to believe what I was reading. Here's a lady who has an injured person in her car and a policeman (Martin Cox) takes time-out to handcuff her. She does not sound like a criminal to me. The boy - man - whatever - should of been first on the agenda. OK, I'm sure he glanced at him. But what if he had internal bleeding?

I thought a law officer was suppose to help you when you are in need. You want our children to have examples set by you. No wonder some of the younger generation does not speak so highly of law officers.

As far as Tim Qualla and others saying, we find it better and safer for the public concern if we are behind - well, I do not agree with that. I want you in front - clearing the traffic. Most people will either move over or stop off the road. There will always be the curious ones. Whether the police car is in the front or back.

I can't believe that you would add injury to injury - by giving her a reckless driving offense, whether she was speeding, giving the officers a chance to go around her - or whatever.

If you decide to take to court, Barbara, I hope and pray you win. To me you did nothing wrong - your only concern was for the patient you had in your car. I'm sure anyone that would be in your shoes would have done the same thing.

To me it's shameful that your name has to be blackened by such. It's a shame that our law officers have to go to such lengths to handcuff a person and not to say "lady or mister - follow me - I'll help you."

A full inquiry into Bork's views will serve nation best

Nearly 200 years ago the Senate rejected President George Washington's nomination of John Rutledge for chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

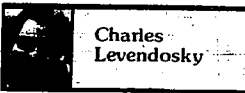

The Senate debated for over five months before it rejected Rutledge's nomination by a 14-to-10 vote.

The Senate denied the nomination primarily because Rutledge had attacked the Jay Treaty, a conciliatory treaty which was to ease tensions between Great Britain and our young country.

By this action, the Senate firmly established its right to veto a Supreme Court nomination based upon the nominee's position on political as well as legal issues.

It is especially appropriate to remember that in this year of the bicentennial celebration of our Constitution when President Reagan has nominated Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court.

In the past 15 years, since the Senate rejected Nixon's nomination of G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court, conservative commentators and some politicians have promulgated a convenient fiction suggesting that the role of the Senate in regard to Supreme Court nominations is merely to consent, as in "advice and consent." Nixon himself, after the Carswell veto, complained that he had been denied his constitutional right to appoint a Supreme Court justice.

Charles Levandosky

Baldorddash. Presidents have no constitutional right to appoint Supreme Court justices; they have the right to nominate them. A Supreme Court confirmation is a joint venture of president and Senate. And anyone who pretends that the Senate should merely confirm has a short memory.

In my life time, four nominations have not received Senate confirmation. Those who contend the role of the Senate is to rubber-stamp presidential nominations also betray a lack of historical perspective. Since the Supreme Court's first meeting in 1790, 27 Supreme Court nominations have been rejected by the Senate.

That's more than a 19 percent veto rate - nearly one out of five nominations historically haven't made it past "advice and consent" - hardly the record of an historically passive Senate. Only three of those 27 rejections were based upon the nominee's lack of legal competence. Most of the others fell to substantive questions based on political and social philosophy.

It can be argued that it is appropriate for a Senate to merely rubber-stamp a president's Cabinet appointment; Cabinet appointments end when a president leaves office, if not before. The Cabinet helps the president lead the country. However, the Supreme Court is a third branch of government and should be independent of the executive branch - and on the legislative branch. The court, to fulfill its constitutional mandate, should not be made up of cronies of either the Senate or the presidency.

It is more than the right of the Senate to scrutinize the credentials and political and social philosophies of Supreme Court nominees, it is the Senate's constitutional duty. While a nominee to the Supreme Court may be "the president's man," and reflect the president's attitudes and positions, a Supreme Court justice will affect the nation long after the nominating president has left the White House. A Supreme Court justice serves for life. And the law as interpreted by the Supreme Court enters our lives every single day - from conception to grave.

In 1930, President Herbert Hoover's nominee for the Supreme Court, John J. Parker, was defeated primarily because of his anti-union sentiment and his opposition to voting rights for blacks. Some senators were alarmed that Parker's appointment could tip the balance of the court and make it "reactionary." Parker was rejected solely on political and philosophical grounds. There is ample precedent for the Senate to require a nominee to live up to its sense of what is right for the Supreme Court and for the nation based upon the nominee's answers to significant questions concerning human liberty.

Historically, it has been difficult for a lame-duck president, late in his tenure, to win Senate approval of his choice for a seat on the high court. President Lyndon Johnson ran into this difficulty. Johnson named liberal Associate Justice Abe Fortas to be chief justice and, at the same time, nominated Homer Thornberry to fill the seat Fortas would vacate. The Fortas nomination was stopped by Republican senators and conservative Democrats who joined in a filibuster. Johnson had to concede defeat and withdraw the Fortas nomination. Fortas retained his former seat, thereby canceling Thornberry's nomination.

The current cry of anguish by Republicans that the Senate shouldn't play politics with the Supreme Court nomination proves to be self-serving claptrap.

It should not be a surprise to anyone that the Bork confirmation debate will be a long and intense, even bitter, battle. Although the Democrats may strive, if they can, to keep Justice Lewis F. Powell's vacated position open for the next president's committee inquiry into the central issue. The key issue will be whether the Senate thinks that Bork represents a balancing factor on the high court, or whether Bork is considered to be out of mainstream political and social thinking.

When a president and the Senate have sharply differing views, it suggests a nation divided, or at least a nation which lacks consensus. During these periods, it is wisest for the Supreme Court nominee to be a compromise candidate, a nominee whose views are neither wholly ideologically congruent with the president's, nor with the Senate's.

There is no reason for the Senate to be stampeded into a confirmation vote until it is satisfied that Bork will either represent a balancing force on the high court, or he won't. The Supreme Court has already proven that it can function for long periods of time while there are judicial vacancies. The American people will be best served by a nominee who is willing to discuss, relate to the broad issues which confront the nation now.

Letters/ LDS doctrine, rattlesnakes, costs of therapy bring reader comments

Why didn't they know?

The LDS Church manifests that the office of the presidency of the church, the members of the council of the twelve and the patriarch to the church are chosen and sustained as prophets, seers and revelators to the church.

Bruce R. McConkie (Mormon Doctrine, page 701) states that a seer can know things that are past, and also things which are to come. ... and these things shall come to light and things which had been kept secret which otherwise could not be made known, etc.

How come the LDS Church invested large sums of money in fraudulent documents if these men holding positions such as these, were deceived by Mark Hoffman's paper? Aias - Mark was a fraud. Could it be said that these men are frauds also - Who claim to be prophets, seers and revelators? Why didn't they know by this "power" they were being deceived?

Zoological fallacies show up

In response to your article, "Cattle herder battles rattlesnake," I found the content amusing from the humanistic view, but fallacious zoologically. I suggest that Mr. Jacobson allow his quarry to survive long enough to permit him the opportunity to make a few basic biological and behavioral observations before he is deemed a leading herpetologist.

Rattlesnake activity is temperature dependent and not limited by time. At least, it has not been shown scientifically that rattlesnakes know or care when it is 9 o'clock.

It is true that rattlesnakes may appear more abundant during late August in certain areas. This period typically marks the homing of males and barren females back to the hibernaculum.

In contrast, gravid females tend to localize near the den throughout the summer. However, "blindness" is not more prevalent in August. Eye opacity is correlated with shedding, although not caused by the skin itself.

If there is actually a periodic shedding time, it would appear shortly after spring emergence. Unpublished data indicate that most mature rattlesnakes shed only once per year.

The assertion that bullsnakes drive rattlesnakes from their territory is absolutely erroneous since both species will actually co-habitate in the same den.

The treatment for snake bite has been in parlance since the "shot of whiskey" days. Current research advocates the use of the tourniquet, but the ice pack is no longer recommended since this impedes the mobility of the venom away from the bite area, resulting in inordinate necrosis of the tissue.

Recent studies suggest a high voltage-low amperage electro-shock treatment to the bite area, which apparently lessens the affect of the toxins. Most importantly, don't lay down and rest. Seek medical attention immediately.

Finally, concerning the myth that only a third of the rattlesnakes in the area are venomous, I counter with this thought. The sole purpose of the rattlesnake venom is to envenomate prey items e.g. voles and ground squirrels.

If only one-third of the snakes are venomous, this leaves two-thirds of the population starving to death. Researchers at Washington State University have identified three strike patterns in Rattlesnakes including a "defensive strike." This strike, unlike the predatory strike may result in a "dry" bite, meaning no or very little envenomation may occur.

No congratulations are due

Contrary to the editorial opinion of July 29, 1987, no member of Idaho's congressional delegation deserves congratulation or particular censure for his stance on the congressional pay raise.

It goes without saying that Senator Symms and Congressman Craig would have done well to remain quiet about Congressman Stallings. However, Congressman Stallings did not "refuse to take" the pay raise.

If the congressman had "forfeaken" the raise, as you mistakenly assert, the decision to donate $12,100 to an Idaho university scholarship fund "would not have been his decision to make.

That it was "Stallings' decision" to donate the amount of the pay raise means that he accepted the money and dispensed with it as he saw fit rather than returning it to the United States Treasury for disbursement in accordance with decisions made by all of the elected representatives of the American taxpayers.

If Congressman Stallings had really refused the pay raise and then donated $12,100 to the scholarship fund from his salary before the raise, that would have represented a truly laudable sacrifice on his part. Such, however, is not the case and why should we now congratulate him when there are doubtless many Idahoans who contribute to scholarship funds where it represents a far greater sacrifice than the $12,100 donation made by the congressman.

In addition, Congressman Stallings should answer one question. Keeping in mind that the pay raise went into effect because the House of Representatives - not the Senate - conveniently put off a vote on this issue until after the raise had already taken effect, what did the Democratic congressman do as a member of the party which controls the House calendar to insure that the vote would have been taken in time to actually abolish the raise?

Therapy does offer benefits

I would like to respond to the recent letter written by Mr. Raymons regarding the high cost of physical therapy, and how useful the profession is in the overall scope of care of the injured and disabled.

I agree and sympathize with his complaint that he may have had to pay too much for his son's physical therapy treatment. But while it is true that the high cost of health care is a problem that affects many people, it is not appropriate to dismiss the benefits of physical therapy to many people both locally and nationally.

Physical therapy in many forms is helpful to injured and elderly persons who are trying to regain strength or function they have lost. Insurance companies have no problems with paying charges for physical therapy unless they are considered too high as they were in Mr. Raymon's case. Insurance companies often benefit from the help of physical therapists who may decrease the amount of time a patient is disabled.

Any individual, who in their physician's opinion may benefit from physical therapy, has the right to choose the facility at which he or she receives those treatments.

There may be many factors involved in that decision. Distance to the facility, courtesy of the staff and even the amount of money a person may have to pay could all be factors. I don't believe it is fair or even necessary however, to suggest that physical therapy is not beneficial to many people due to the high prices that are evidently being charged at some facilities.

Management of pain, increased independence in activities, and education in preventing further injury are a few of the many areas in which physical therapists are involved. As a physical therapist and as a person who has benefited from physical therapy treatments in the past, I think it is important to inform people of these facts.

House moves to ban flights below rim of Grand Canyon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House completed congressional action Monday on legislation requiring the Reagan administration to ban tourist flights below the rim of the Grand Canyon.

The bill was sent to President Reagan by a voice vote. Ed Dale, a spokesman for the president's Office of Management and Budget, said the administration opposes the bill.

Prompting the legislation was a collision which killed 25 people at the national park in Arizona in June 1986. In addition, there have been complaints of increased aircraft noise there and at other landmarks.

The legislation would also set minimum altitudes for sightseeing aircraft over Yosemite National Park in California and Haleakala National Park in Hawaii and direct the National Park Service to study the impact of tourist flights on its facilities.

For the Grand Canyon, the park service would have 60 days to draw up a plan that would ban below-the-rim flights and establish aircraft-free zones in an effort to help restore the canyon's natural quiet.

The Federal Aviation Administration would have 30 days to implement the plan unless it could show that it would create safety problems at the canyon, which draws more than 50,000 sightseeing flights a year.

Dale said the administration is against the bill because the study would cost $3 million and because adequate authority already exists to regulate tourist flights over national parks.

"The president reserves the right to veto it, but no veto signal has been given," Dale said.

But Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., who along with Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., sponsored the bill through Congress, said that the actions, or better put the inactions, of the Interior Department and the FAA to do anything meaningful to protect the park and the public have forced the Congress to step in.

"The Grand Canyon is going to be a quieter, safer and more serene place because of what we accomplished," Udall said in a statement.

House moves to restrict taping

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee Monday approved legislation to restrict for one year the import of digital audio tape recorders without an anti-taping chip to prevent home taping of prerecorded material.

The House Energy and Commerce subcommittee, however, also voted to give the Commerce secretary authority to suspend the restriction if a government study finds that the chips degrade the sound quality of the recorders.

The measure, approved on a voice vote, was sent to the full committee. A similar bill has been introduced in the Senate.

The digital recorders, which can reproduce music at a quality far superior to existing tape recorders, are expected to be available in the U.S. this fall.

Music copyright holders argue that the sophisticated technology of the digital recorders will increase home taping and deprive record companies and recording artists of income.

President Reagan included a restriction on the study in the trade package that he submitted to Congress. The requirement later was removed from the trade package by Congress.

Senate OKs Greenspan for FRB head

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 91-2 Monday to approve the nomination of economist Alan Greenspan to succeed Paul Volcker as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire, T-Wis., said Greenspan, 61, widely respected economist who chaired the Council of Economic Advisers under President Ford, had a "clear commitment to follow monetary policies to counteract inflation."

Proxmire said that in the past, President Reagan ignored the Fed chairman's recommendations for new appointments to the board. Now, with his own man as Fed chief and another vacancy to be filled, "once again the president can rely on the chairman" to fill vacancies, Proxmire said.

That should make for a better board, he added. And, Proxmire said, if Greenspan were rejected by the Senate, "it is unlikely the administration would appoint a better qualified person."

Greenspan also received brief praise from Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., and Kit Bond, R-Mo.

Bill banning Titanic items in legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Souvenir-seekers would not be able to buy any Titanic wreck artifacts in the United States under legislation approved Monday by the Senate.

The Senate bill was introduced by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., in response to a French team's decision to remove items from the 1912 wreck site. Divers in a miniaubmarine brought up the first pieces, including dishes, late last month.

Weicker's bill, passed by voice vote, would make it illegal to bring Titanic artifacts into the United States for commercial purposes. The ban would include the "vessel RMS Titanic, her cargo or other contents, including those items which are scattered on the ocean floor in her vicinity."

Provisions of the bill would be terminated if the United States signs an international agreement governing exploration and salvage of the Titanic. The luxury liner wreckage sank off Newfoundland in 1912 with a loss of 1,513 lives. The ship lies on the ocean floor in two main pieces, with wreckage and artifacts scattered nearby.

Weicker said salvaging the Titanic wreck was "not a fitting treatment of this marine memorial." Separate legislation is under consideration in the House where Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, has proposed that the wreck remain undisturbed as a memorial to its victims.

Senator Nunn contemplates presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Monday's completion of the public phase of the Iran-Contra hearings, Sen. Sam Nunn said he plans to turn his attention to deciding whether to seek the Democratic nomination for president next year.

"I'm going to do some serious thinking," Nunn, D-Ga., told reporters during an informal discussion in his office. "I've already done serious thinking about it. I've done a lot of serious thinking."

"I've had meetings with various people who are experts in various aspects of both substance and campaign procedures," he said. "I've had a number of papers that have been written for me at study, giving me both sides of the argument."

Nunn said he would "make a decision by late summer or early fall, there's no doubt about that."

Frowns on arms-reduction offer

S. Korea proposes talks with North

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea on Monday proposed a meeting between its foreign minister and that of North Korea, saying it could take up all matters of concern between the two countries on the divided peninsula.

A statement by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs also said, however, that a recent proposal by the Communist government on a reduction of armed forces ran counter to the principle of self-determination.

North Korea on July 23 proposed a massive reduction of troops in both countries and a summit meeting that would include the United States. The Pyongyang proposal called for two Koreas to reduce their armed forces to 100,000 members each between 1988 and 1991.

The Seoul government did not respond, following the usual pattern of disregarding announcements by the North until it was ready to come up with its own proposals.

On Monday, the ministry statement went through a chronology of contacts in recent years moves to elect the country's president in a direct, popular vote probably later this year.

The statement suggested the foreign ministers' talks could be held in New York in September when they will be at the opening of U.N. General Assembly session.

The U.S. State Department hailed South Korea's proposal Monday, calling them "realistic and practical."

The 1950-53 Korean war deepened the division of the peninsula that was divided into a communist North and an anti-communist South after World War II. The Korean conflict ended with a 1953 armistice, but the two sides have not signed any treaty of peace.

Search deadlock over

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — The government agreed in three days of talks with U.S. envoy John W. Vessey to end months of deadlock and resume efforts to account for American servicemen still missing from the Vietnam war.

A joint statement issued Monday said: "Specific measures were agreed upon to accelerate progress toward accounting for Americans missing in Vietnam and to address certain humanitarian concerns of Vietnam."

Vessey, a retired general who is President Reagan's personal envoy, met with Nguyen Co Thach, foreign minister and deputy premier. The former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff was the highest-ranking American official to visit Vietnam in a decade.

He flew to Bangkok on Monday for meetings with Thai officials before returning to Washington on Wednesday.

The five-sentence statement issued in Hanoi said the two sides had "detailed, candid and constructive" talks on humanitarian issues arising from the war, which ended with a communist victory in April 1975.

Escorted ship makes it through strait

KUWAIT (AP) — U.S. warships escorted a Kuwaiti tanker out of the Persian Gulf through the Strait of Hormuz on Monday, and Iran announced naval maneuvers in a narrow gulf gateway where it has attack boats and anti-ship missiles.

In Washington, Pentagon officials hailed the successful passage of the Gas Prince as a "textbook" operation, and a source said the first elements of a unit of mine-sweeping helicopters had arrived at the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia for use in the gulf.

European allies with interests in the region have refused to help with mine-sweeping and Kuwait and Saudi Arabia have offered only limited assistance, forcing the decision to send in additional U.S. units.

Eight RH-53D Sea Stallion mine-sweeping helicopters that arrived on Diego Garcia on Monday will be transferred to the amphibious helicopter carrier Guadalcanal, according to a Pentagon source who asked not to be identified.

Pentagon sources also said the amphibious landing ship Baleigh was dispatched over the weekend from Norfolk, Va., to Charleston, S.C., where it was being loaded with several small Navy mine-sweeping boats. The sources would not say when it would sail for the gulf.

Iran said its three days of exercises in the 44-mile-wide strait would be called "Martyrdom" and start at midnight Monday. It said they will show the readiness of thousands of volunteers for suicide attacks on the U.S. Navy, which Iran says helps Iraq in the 7-year-old gulf war.

It warned all ships and aircraft out of Iranian territorial waters in the gulf, the Strait of Hormuz and the Sea of Oman.

Iranian waters are difficult to define. Gulf shipping executives note that international law puts the territorial line 12 miles off the coast of a nation, but also that the limit would apply to each Iranian island. — The reflagged 46,732-ton Kuwaiti tanker Gas Prince, whose cargo of ill-gotten petroleum gas makes it a floating bomb, negotiated the strait into the Gulf of Oman with two Navy ships on guard. Its ultimate destination is Imari, Japan.

A Defense Department official in Washington, speaking privately, told reporters the Chinese-built Silk-worm missiles Iran keeps on its side of Hormuz have a range of about 50 miles. "We've gotten word they are beyond the missile envelope," he said of the convoy.

The supertanker Bridgeton, also flying the American flag, sailed north with the Gas Prince last month in the first Navy-escorted convoy. It hit a mine July 24 off Iran's Farasi Island about 120 miles south of Kuwait.

Tehran radio broadcast a communique that said Iran was preparing for "possible aggressions by the United States, a world-dominating United States, and her hiring servants, in the southern blue waters of Islamic Iran."

Gorbachev: No progress without arms pact

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Monday his policies have led to a slight reduction of world tensions, but a nuclear arms pact with the United States is needed for further progress.

"After the known aggravation of the international situation which confronted mankind with an increased danger of a world-wide catastrophe, the pointer of the barometer is now wavering," he said.

"Though not as quickly as (we) would have liked, it is tilting toward an improvement of the international climate," Gorbachev made his comments in a speech at a dinner for Mozambique President Joaquim Chissano, who arrived in Moscow for talks.

The policy of restructuring Soviet society he has pursued since taking power more than two years ago "cannot but influence the world situation in general," Gorbachev said.

He has said an arms control agreement would allow him to devote more resources to his goal of developing and restructuring the Soviet economy.

If the United States and Soviet Union can negotiate a ban on medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles, "the prospects of advance to a more reliable, and in the long run, a non-violent and nuclear-weapon free world will become brighter," he said.

Delegation seeks nuclear weapon contracts

By The Times-News and the Associated Press

Attacked for not gathering public input

TWIN FALLS — An Idaho delegation including Gov. Cecil Andrus met with U.S. Secretary of Energy John Herrington Monday to lobby for more nuclear weapons material production at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The Idaho delegation is seeking an Idaho location for the New Production Reactor, a $3 to $5 billion project to produce weapons grade plutonium and tritium. But the Snake River Alliance, an environmental group, criticized the delegation for making the pitch to Herrington, "before the people of Idaho have had a chance to learn about the project or talk to public officials about it."

The 30-minute visit by the state delegation follows a similar visit two months ago by a delegation from Georgia and South Carolina. Those states are vying for the New Production Reactor that they want located at a DOE facility at Aiken, S.C.

A decision on the location is expected in a couple of months, Troy Wade, assistant secretary for defense programs, told the delegation after the meeting with Herrington.

Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, says there is a public perception that INEL is changing its mission from nuclear safety research to military projects.

DOE says INEL is the preferred site for the Special Isotope Separation project to clean up impurities in material from Hanford, Wash., that after processing could be used in nuclear production. The INEL reactor safety program is on the wane at INEL because of the dwindling number of new nuclear reactors planned or under construction.

When INEL officials announced the SIS effort, they said contractors were stabilizing employment at the facility west of Idaho Falls. SIS would add 400 jobs to the INEL payroll which is currently about 10,000 jobs. But with the New Production Reactor, INEL employment would jump by about 1,000 jobs, according to DOE figures.

Stallings says he has not received a lot of correspondence and calls about a change in the INEL mission from nuclear safety research.

"If they are going to build the new production reactor and the (INEL) site is the best place in the country, then why not. At this point this is a potential project, says Stallings who supported it in when he ran in 1984.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho also attended the meeting Monday together with Stallings, Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, Logan Lamham, Idaho Power Co. senior vice president and representatives from the Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce.

H.D. Palmer, a McClure spokesman directed questions about a change in INEL mission to INEL.

Peter Mygatt, a DOE spokesman in Idaho Falls, says these days the defense issue is where the money is for federal facilities such as INEL.

In 1983 INEL was named by DOE as the preferred site for the New Production Reactor but Jack Vandenberg, a spokesman for DOE in Washington says that does not apply to the current situation. "No site has been ruled out and none is preferred," he said.

Stallings disputed the interpretation by Vandenberg that past selection of INEL played no role in the latest deliberations. Sen. Strom Thurmond and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina are among those pushing for a New Production Reactor at Savannah River at Aiken, S.C. Savannah River has three nuclear materials production facilities and two facilities for chemically separating nuclear materials. With 16,000 employees, it has 6,000 more workers than INEL. The annual Savannah River budget is $283 million.

INEL has an annual payroll of $285 million in fiscal 1985 and INEL programs cost about $593 million, according to INEL.

Savannah River has seen several of its facilities shut down, says Palmer, McClure's spokesman. The New Production Reactor is intended to replace the M Reactor at Hanford, Wash., which was closed Jan. 7 for a six-month, $50 million safety improvement program, the Associated Press reported. The action came in the wake of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster in the Soviet Union. Both facilities share design similarities.

The N Reactor is facing permanent closure in the 1990s because the graphite used to modify the nuclear reactions is subject to swelling during that period, says DOE.

Jerome's all set to double your fun

By CLAUDINE CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

JEROME — There will be plenty to do in Jerome this week, with a double celebration planned to mark the Jerome County Fair and the start of Gem Dandy Days.

Merchant buildings and community exhibits on the fairgrounds will open at 9 a.m. Thursday, the first day of the fair. There will be a $1 parking fee for spots on the fairgrounds, but no admission charge for the fair, said Carolyn Sullivan, event coordinator.

The carnival will also begin that morning and rides will operate until about midnight, although exact hours of operation have not been set, she said. The midway rides will be provided by Great Western Carnivals from Arizona.

The Snake T Rodeo will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday at the rodeo arena. Admission will be $4 for adults and $2 for children ages 6-12. Children under age 6 will be admitted free. Wild cow milking will precede each rodeo, Sullivan said.

A parade of champion 4-H animals will be featured Friday night at the rodeo. Grand prize, winning beef, hogs and sheep will be shown in the rodeo arena.

The community parade will start at 5:30 p.m. Thursday at Jerome High School. Entrants should arrive by 4 p.m. for judging, she said. Awards will be given out shortly before the parade starts.

Entries will be accepted until the day of the parade, Sullivan said. Approximately 50 entrants are expected.

The parade route will follow Main Street, wind around the city park and end at the fairgrounds.

The Fat Stock Sale will be held on Saturday at noon on the fairgrounds. Businesses are invited to attend the sale and support local 4-H members by bidding on their animals.

Also Saturday, the arts, crafts and gem festival will be held in North Park all day. In South Park, the Magic Valley chapter of the Veteran Motor Car Club of America will display vintage autos.

The Gem Dandy Days barbecue will be held

Dairy site requests nostrils aflame in Jerome County

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

JEROME — Protests over odor, pollution and flies dominated a Jerome County Commission public hearing Monday on a 600-cow dairy near the Leisure Acres subdivision southwest of Jerome.

To a dairyman, that odor smells like dollars, said Larry Berg, who lives near the proposed dairy. "To the rest of us, it smells like something else."

Kenneth Vanderham, who has been involved in a family dairy near Ontario, Calif., said he has looked for several years for an appropriate site for his own dairy.

The Jerome site met his criteria, he said at the Monday hearing, and added his dairy will be a "first class dairy," without odor or fly problems.

"I would also like to make-it clear this dairy site is not adjacent to the people who are concerned," Vanderham said.

Marion Vance of Homedale, who Vanderham hired to design and build the dairy, said it will be designed to overcome odor and fly problems.

"Kenny looked about three years for a site," Vance said. "This one is excellent because of the slopes and soils."

Vance said the farm will be designed to prevent spillage from lagoons and those lagoons will be larger than the law requires.

Although the area is zoned agricultural, Jerome County planning and zoning regulations require special use permits before a dairy farm can be operated.

The commissioners took the zoning request under advisement after the hearing, which lasted more than two hours.

Vanderham is proposing a dairy on an 80-acre parcel of land about three miles south and three west of Jerome.

Although the dairy would be located near Leisure Acres subdivision, setting lagoons and

Invitations are out for crime seminar

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County-Crime-Prevention Council is extending an invitation to everyone from the governor and attorney general to the general public to join in a statewide crime stopper seminar in Twin Falls later this month.

The purpose of the seminar, says Marion Peterson, chairman of the local council, is to expand what has already been an effort by the public to help reduce crime in the state.

Peterson said letters explaining the seminar on Aug. 21, at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls, are being sent to the governor; all legislators; law enforcement officials and an open invitation is extended to everyone interested in getting involved.

She said that while statistics indicate crimes such as murder, rape, burglary, thefts and vandalism have increased, other crimes are on the decline. These in the decreasing numbers side of the record include robbery, aggravated assault, vehicle thefts and arson.

Peterson said the seminar is the Twin Falls County crime stoppers effort toward "discouraging criminals through an aware and supportive citizenry in Idaho."

Presentations will be made by Larry Wieda, who has successfully operated the program in Boulder, Colo. The program there has gained national recognition and is handled in the community high school.

Another speaker is Greg MacAleese, who originated the crime stopper program in Albuquerque, N.M.

Jim Jones, Idaho attorney general, is also scheduled to address the seminar participants and will be delivering the keynote address at the noon luncheon.

At 3 p.m. Thursday, the 4-H home economics students will present a style show at the Community Church. From 6-8 p.m., a Superstar Obstacle Course will be held at the grade school, followed by a frog-jumping contest on Main Street.

Friday's events will begin with a horse show at Frostenson Park at 10 a.m. In the afternoon, the show will move to Floyd Crandall's arena on Highway 20.

At 2 p.m., a bread-baking contest will be held at the courthouse and winners will be announced at the community pot-luck picnic in the park at 6 p.m. The Miss Prairie Dog Contest and the cow chip throw will follow the picnic.

This year will be the second anniversary for the Miss-Prairie-Dog Contest, an event which originated from comments on KBØI radio station in Boise. According to county extension office secretary Connie Funkhouser, D.J. Paul Snyder asked colleague Lon Dunn what a prairie dog was.

"A woman from Camas Prairie," was the answer, which prompted fair officials to establish the contest. Five women, "dressed really crazy," represent various occupations in the Camas Prairie area and compete in a mock beauty contest, Funkhouser said.

Nan Reedy, Miss Logger, is the reigning queen.

On Saturday livestock judging will take place at the 4-H arena in Frostenson Park. At 11:30 a.m., the top 4-H showmen will take part in the round robin, an event where the champions in each category trade animals and show them.

The bed race will be held at noon. See CAMAS on Page B2

Bills are bills, court rules

Benefit extent not a factor in BID levy

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Downtown stores and offices can argue about the benefit they get from the city's Business Improvement District, but like it or not, they must help pay BID bills.

That was the ruling Monday in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls, as the downtown organization Monday collected close to $1,300 in long-past-due fees. Magistrate Judge Barry Wood from Lincoln County entered judgments against five businesses, some with bills dating back to 1983.

Another business delivered the money to the Twin Falls city attorney a few minutes before court convened and two hundred over hundreds of dollars worth of fees during the weekend.

The BID is a special assessment district authorized by the City Council in 1982 to maintain the open-air mall downtown and to promote public events, among other duties. It levies quarterly fees based on the sizes and types of businesses within its boundaries.

current and former businesses to small claims court for payment of $3,650 in overdue fees. It was the first, general attempt to collect assessments in court. However, the city had successfully defended the BID ordinance in District Court at Twin Falls in 1985 against a similar challenge by six other stores in the fringe areas of the downtown.

John Stedeford, who has run a phone answering service called Tolansover in Twin Falls for nine years, said he had paid about $32 worth of fees since at least October 1983.

"I have a business which does not depend on any foot traffic or any people coming to my office at all," he told the court. The BID's promotions, parking and other projects do not give him or his employees any value, Stedeford claimed.

However, lack of direct benefit "does not give you a legal defense to the account," Wood said. He compared the BID fees to other mandatory fees, such as those of some irrigation districts. They apply whether or not the landowner actually uses any water.

The judge also noted Stedeford — who said he protested the BID before it was formed — had not attempted to withdraw his business legally since the formation of the BID.

"Waiting until four years later and then complaining is not the way you do it," Wood said.

Stedeford paid fees of $92 plus $24 in court and service fees, later in the day. But, "I am certainly going to try to get myself out of the BID," he said.

Getting out is not as easy or automatic as getting into it. Under state law and city ordinance Stedeford would have to come before the BID board of directors and ask for a change in the district boundaries. If agreeable, the board would ask the city council to act.

State law also provides for "disestablishment of a district," providing businesses paying a majority of fees vote to disband it.

Carolyn Folsom, co-owner of Smokey's Hobbyland formerly located downtown, argued the business was not informed of the fees when it moved "in" for a "three-year stay." "When you move in downtown, nobody tells you there is a business improvement district," she told Wood. However, Wood said city ordinances are public. See BIDS on Page B2

Cyprus interviews Challis workers

The Associated Press
CHALLIS — Representatives from Cyprus Minerals in Arizona have been in Challis the past two weeks interviewing some of the 180 employees who will be laid off Sept. 1 from the company's Thompson Creek molybdenum mine in the southwest of the state.

The company's Sierra and Bagdad copper mines are expected to employ most of the workers laid off from Thompson Creek who are accepted for transfers.

The Thompson Creek mine, one of only two primary domestic producers of molybdenum still operating, has been plagued with a declining market since its opening in 1963. Its main customer, Amstar Corp.'s Herculon mine in Colorado, recently laid off 240 employees, said Richard Hagman, manager of public relations for the Colorado-based company.

"The fact of the matter is that by product producers are copper producers," he said, "and copper prices are running wild for the first time in over six years. Any contraction in the supply side of the moly equation has to come out of the primary producers such as Thompson Creek and Henderson."

Although the reduction in force at Thompson Creek is slated for Sept. 1, a number of employees have left to accept positions at Copperstone and Sierra. The cutback will leave just over 130 employees at the mine, Chris Jones, mine general manager, said.

Sierra, located south of Tucson, is a major copper producer for Cyprus Minerals and produces molybdenum as a byproduct.

Cyprus recently announced plans to increase copper production at Sierra by $0 million per year to take advantage of a bullish market. As a result, molybdenum production will be increased by just under three million pounds, Hagman said.

The cutback at Cyprus' Thompson Creek mine to 3.5 million pounds of production a year, 17.6 percent of the mine's operating capacity, will mean that components for the increased production at Sierra, Hagman said.

Laid-off employees are being offered a $1,200 supplemental unemployment payment as well as up to $1,600 additional unemployment expenses. In addition to job interviews for other Cyprus projects, employees are receiving job counseling, said Steve Cherry, mine human resources manager said.

"We're going to great lengths to try and place our people at our other mines," Cherry said. "In some cases we're creating positions for them. We're limited by how many people they can take, what skills the employees have and how many want to move to Arizona, but we're trying to place them."

Bicycle collision

serves up citation

HEYBURN — A young bicyclist served a citation Friday from Idaho State Police for improper operation of a bicycle after he collided with a car on U.S. Highway 30 near the Heyburn interchange off-84 Sunday night.

Gilbert Vasquez, 13, of Heyburn, was cited for failure to use due caution on a bicycle after his bike, which was traveling on the right side of U.S. Highway 30, crossed to the left side and collided with a car driven by Steven NeSmith, 38, of Meridian.

State police said Vasquez was treated at Cassia Memorial Hospital for minor injuries and released.

State police said bicycle riders must observe traffic laws when traveling on streets and highways.

2 hurt in collision

TWIN FALLS — Two persons were injured shortly before 6 p.m. Monday in a collision on U.S. Highway 30 at Curtis.

Violent Rae Rowe, 49, of Filer, driver of a 1981 sedan and Elizabeth Ebbers, 76, of Buhl, a passenger in the second vehicle, driven by her husband Fred E. Ebbers, were taken to Magay Valley Regional Medical Center. Rowe was released after emergency room treatment and Mrs. Ebbers was admitted in fair condition.

Twin Falls County sheriff's office said Rowe was stopped waiting for traffic to clear before making a left turn when her car was struck from behind by the Ebbers vehicle. Mr. Ebbers was cited for inattentive driving. The two injured women were taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Damage was estimated at $3,500 to the Ebbers 1982 sedan and the Rowe vehicle was a total loss, officers said.

Zoning

The dairy operation would be screened from many nearby houses by a natural ridge, Vanderham said.

But attorney Robert Paine, who represented area residents, said 41 homes are in the "immediate" vicinity of the proposed dairy and 91 homes were within a mile of the dairy.

Paine said the dairy, which would have 600 cows and 250 heifers, would produce about 90,000 pounds of waste a day.

"The fact of the matter is, with 850 head of dairy there is a great class dairy or not, there are going to be significant odor problems and significant fly problems," Paine said.

Vanderham said, with proper management, he could control flies and odors at his dairy.

"The dairy is at least 920 feet away from the subdivision," said attorney Gene Fredericksen, who represented Vanderham at the meeting. He said people in the area know what they were getting into when they moved to the subdivision.

"I often wonder why people want to build in the country and live out there and then complain about it later," Fredericksen said.

The Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission recommended June 28 to deny the special-use permit requested by Vanderham.

Al Hepworth, county zoning director, said the commission recommended denial because, among other things, Vanderham has increased his estimate of the number of cows to 850 from 600 and he did not guarantee there would be no groundwater contamination from the dairy.

Residents of the area were not convinced by arguments by Vanderham, his attorney or his engineer.

"I have not been offered any profit," said area resident Dennis Lambert. "I have not been offered anything but the files and the odor."

ves public rewards for information that assists police in solving crime or preventing crime in the communities where such organizations now function.

In the Twin Falls area, Peterson said, Crime Stoppers has paid $7,750 in rewards and the information furnished has assisted in making 146 arrests and clearing 148 criminal cases since it was organized in 1982.

The work of the Twin Falls crime stoppers has also resulted in recovery of $1.24 million in property.

Peterson said she has had letters from crime stopper officials in other towns reporting high success in crime control as a result of public involvement.

These communities include Idaho Falls, Pocatello and Burley.

Court of Appeals sides with upstream property owners

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals sided with upstream property owners Monday in a Blaine County water dispute.

The court affirmed a lower court ruling protecting water rights and awarding $6,000 to Faulkner Land and Livestock, Inc., Bruce and Linda Butler and the L.H. Rainin Profit Sharing Plan. The ruling went against W.V. Mary and Kent McAtee.

The McAtees alleged the Faulkners and Butlers lost their water rights in Crook Creek by not using the water for at least five years. But the court accepted testimony that water had been diverted to irrigate pasture.

The irrigation of pasture land is an acceptable "beneficial" use of water, the court said. The Faulkners and Butlers' water rights date back to June of 1880, the court said.

Downtown's benefit barbeque raises $2,710 for city pool

TWIN FALLS — A benefit barbeque held Saturday raised $2,710 to help build a new city pool.

Close to 1,995 people donated $1 or more per plate for a mid-afternoon meal of barbecued beef sand-wiches and fixings at the open-air mall downtown. Sue Ann Jones, coordinator for the Twin Falls Business Improvement District estimated.

All proceeds are being contributed to the fund for a city pool.

Downtown businesses donated $3,600 to put on the event, which was promoted as an 83rd birthday party for the downtown shopping district.

Lance Clow, head of the citizen's committee for the pool, welcomed the donation Monday.

Including amounts in its 1987 budget, the city has close to $850,000 of the $1 million cost of the facility. It is asking for citizen contributions in a fundraising

Accident totals sheriff's car, gives 5 minor injuries

JEROME — A Jerome County sheriff's car was demolished and five people treated for minor injuries in a double traffic accident that remained under investigation Monday by Idaho State Police.

Officers said Deputy Sheriff Bill Reid, 45, of Jerome was at the intersection of Highways 93 and 25 east of Jerome Friday blocking traffic at the site of an accident when his car was broadsided by another vehicle.

State Police Dispatcher Lori Oliver said the first accident occurred about 3 p.m. Friday when a 1983 car driven by Zelma Parker, 42, of Jerome collided with a Utah pickup truck pulling a fifth-wheel travel trailer.

Parker and Fred Roberts, 49, of Grantville, Utah, and Pacific Messenger, Gladys Olsen, 72, of Jerome, were all treated at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center and released.

Deputy Sheriff Reid arrived at the accident scene and parked blocking both northbound lanes of U.S. 93. Oliver reported Barbara Murray, 26, of Ketchum, was traveling north and crossed from the outside lane to the inside northbound lane, colliding with the county vehicle.

ISP Trooper Kent Oliver, who investigated the two accidents, said citations in both accidents are pending.

Murray was treated at St. Benedict's and released. Reid was treated by his physician and released.

State police said damage to the Jerome County car was about $4,000 and another $2,100 damage was reported to the Murray vehicle. In the original accident damages included $900 to the trailer $1,600 to the Parker vehicle.

A check for $914 from Ketchum Dry Goods, which recently closed its downtown Twin Falls store, arrived in the Mayor's mail at City Hall, and R.S. Gemmer Enterprises, an auto repair shop, satisfied a $833 bill during the weekend.

The Men's Room barber shop, Belmont Hearing Aid Center and lawyer Lloyd J. Walker, all of whom owed $225 or less, paid before going to court.

Gay son needs acceptance

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are beside ourselves with grief and frustration. Our 18-year-old son has just told us that he is gay.

This doesn't seem possible. He is an honor student, excelled in athletics and has even had girlfriends all through school. Abby, he is so masculine looking, no one would ever guess...

He didn't express any great sorrow about it. He just stated the fact that he has "known" how he felt ever since he was 7 or 8 years old. He swore he has never been molested by a man at any time in his life and was not introduced into this kind of sex by anyone. He says he just "feels" a sexual desire for men that he has never felt for a woman.

Abby, his father is an elder in the church, and our son loves the Lord and knows what the Scriptures say about men lying with men.

Could our hearts be so numb that our only son will never marry and have children. How do other parents handle this problem?

What can we do apart from praying for him?

GRIEVING PARENTS IN L.A.

DEAR PARENTS: You can accept him and love him. You can also learn more about homosexuality and meet with other parents who have lived through this experience and are now supportive of their gay children.

Many parents in PARENTS FLAG are also religious and some are members of the clergy.

Please send a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: PARENTS FLAG (Federation of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays Inc.), P.O. Box 24566, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024. It is a non-profit organization, and will provide you with enlightening literature at no cost.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the beautiful poem "In Memory of Beau" with "author unknown," I knew I had to write.

Abby, the author is not known. That poem was written by Jimmy Stewart, the famous actor. I heard him read it on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show." If Mr. Stewart did indeed pen those moving words, I feel he should be given credit for touching so many of us with that beautiful tribute to a beloved pet.

— BERNICE COGGAN, DENVER

DEAR BERNICE: Many readers wrote to tell me that they had heard Jimmy Stewart recite his beautiful tribute to Beau, so I wrote to Mr. Stewart and asked him if he was indeed the author. His response:

DEAR ABBY: I have your letter and the copy of the piece from your column titled "In Memory of Beau." This one was not composed by me. I once wrote a poem about my dog, Beau, but it's completely different than "In Memory of Beau." Very sincerely, JAMES STEWART.

DEAR MR. STEWART: Thanks for setting this bone of contention and getting me out of the doghouse.

DEAR ABBY: I am a R.N. in the intensive care unit, so I know how "The Doctor's Wife" feels when people telephone her husband at home (or drop in) expecting free medical advice or prescriptions. I am neither qualified nor licensed to give medical advice, yet when people I meet casually find out I'm a nurse, they ask me medical questions.

Doctors could stem those rude interruptions from people who are not their regular patients by saying something like this when people call or drop in for free professional advice: "I'm sorry, but I can't give you proper medical advice without first giving you a complete physical examination, studying your medical history, plus knowing about any current and recent prescribed medications. Anything less than that would be not only a disservice to you, but also to my professional ethics. If you wish, please call my office for an appointment."

— DENNIS L. OEHLLER, R.N., GALT, CALIF.

DEAR DENNIS: Beautiful. That little speech was just what the doctor (or nurse) ordered.

Our New Rate Cap Offer Is For Those Who Aren't Sure Where Interest Rates Are Headed.

Some say they'll go back up. Some say they're going down. Either way, you'll benefit from First Security's Home Equity Line rate cap offer. Our variable rate loan will follow the prime rate if it falls. It stays at 3% over prime, quite a competitive rate. Currently, that works out to an 11.25% Annual Percentage Rate (as of June 4, 1987). And should interest rates snap back up, you're protected. Our rate cap is 13.25% Annual Percentage Rate. That's the absolute highest our variable interest rate could go, and it's good through January 1, 1991. All you have to do is apply before September 11, 1987. TAX DEDUCTIBLE THIS YEAR. AND NEXT, ETC. You might elect to use your credit line to pay medical bills. Or to finance a college education. Or purchase a new camper. Or make home improvements. Or even to pay off another home equity loan that doesn't have a rate cap. In any case, chances are excellent that you'll still be able to deduct all the interest. (For specific details, see your tax advisor). NO ANNUAL FEE. NO IMMEDIATE CLOSING COSTS. During our Home Equity Line sale, we've eliminated loan origination fees. And we've deferred closing fees, such as appraisal and filing fees, until you actually take out a loan on your credit line. CALL NOW FOR AN APPLICATION. For your Home Equity Line application, call 1-800-538-1133. Or stop by your nearest First Security Bank office. And stop worrying about the ups, and downs, of interest rates. *Exclusive of deferred closing costs. After January 1, 1991, the rate will again vary. First Security Bank Member FDIC

There's really only one show in Indy: U.S. vs. Cuba

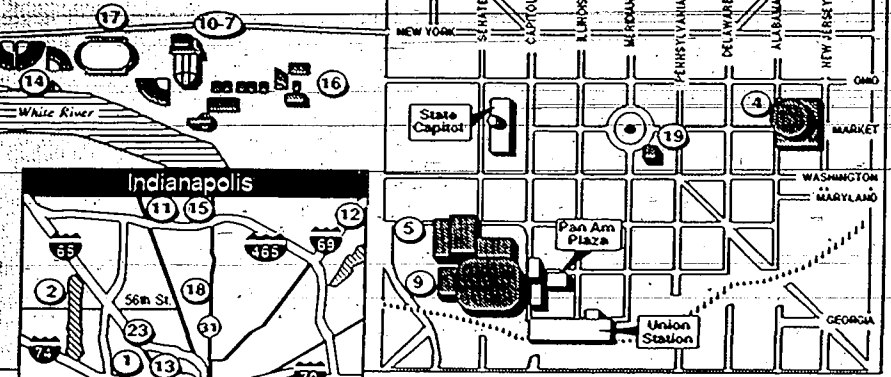

By MICHAEL KNISLEY
The Denver Post

INDIANAPOLIS — They're called the Pan American Games, and they involve 30 different sports and about 4,500 athletes from 38 nations throughout the Western Hemisphere, all converging on the heart of the city of the country next weekend in Indianapolis. Those are the facts. But the reality, for the most part, is that the 10th Pan Am Games, which begin Saturday with the opening ceremony at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, will be a two-team competition. Make no mistake: The 14 days of competition, which run through

Aug. 23, shape up as a showdown between the United States and Cuba in a number of the Games' high-profile events. "The last time we competed in the world championships," said gymnast Scott Johnson, "we (the gymnastics team) finished a very disappointing ninth. That was in 1985, and the Cubans beat us. That's why this Pan American Games is so important to us. We've got to beat the Cubans. We're going to show the rest of the world that the United States is better than Cuba, and that we're going to beat them at the next world championships this fall." Cuba is sending teams in each of competition, which run through

Indianapolis reaps PR bonanza from games

By RANDY HARVEY
Los Angeles Times

INDIANAPOLIS — It says a lot about Indianapolis that when its National Football League team, the Colts, won three straight games at the end of last season, improving its record to 3-13, there was a celebration at City Hall. That was the city's way of expressing its appreciation to the Colts, not because of how they play but where. Even if the Colts are not yet an honest-to-Pete Rozelle major league team, the presence in the Hoosier Dome makes the people of Indianapolis feel as though they live in a major league city, something the National Basketball Association's Pacers were not able to do. Someone in, say, Chicago, where a 3-13 Bear team would be considered a pox on the city, would say Indianapolis' just-happy-to-be-here-in-the-big-leagues attitude. Actually, it says more about the innocence of a reborn city. That youthful exuberance will be on display in abundance during the 16 days of the Pan American Games.

Cubans, Americans will square off for supremacy in world amateur boxing

By TIM DAHLBERG
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Watching the 1984 Olympians reap professional rewards from their nine gold medals has done wonders for U.S. amateur boxing. Sparked by the success of Olympic fighters such as Mark Breland, Evander Holyfield and Tyrrell Biggs, many young boxers have remained amateurs while pointing toward the 1988 Olympics and the fame and fortune that could follow. The result is an unusually experienced U.S. team that heads into the 10th Pan American Games with high hopes of matching the powerful Cuban squad medal-for-medal in the 12 weight classifications.

These guys do to well here," said U.S. boxing coach Roosevelt Sanders. "This is the most important tournament other than the Olympics, and I expect seven or eight of them are going to be on our 1988 Olympic team." Among the favorites to make the U.S. squad are three reigning world champions, Kellee Banks at 125 pounds, Kevin Conlan at 147 pounds and Darin Allen at 165 pounds. Other possibilities are three-time U.S. title-holder Michael Collins at 119 pounds and heavyweight Michael Bent, who lost in the semifinals at the 1986 world championships. Sanders, an assistant coach on the U.S. team that dominated the Los Angeles Olympics, readily admits the television exposure and big money the Olympians are making as pros have kept many amateur fighters from turning pro for a while. "The last Olympics we turned out a lot of great boxers, and all of them are doing well as pros," Sanders said. "The bottom line is money. They're on TV, making the money, the notoriety and the exposure that most of us desire." Sanders likes the chances of his team, which was narrowed to 24 fighters this week during the Olympic Festival. The remaining fighters will square off July 31-Aug. 1 in Colorado Springs, Colo., with the winners advancing to the Pan American Games. "Anybody that makes the team will do well," Sanders said. "We have enough depth that we could field two teams that would do equally well." Despite optimism, U.S. fighters will probably still be underdogs to the Cubans, who won seven gold medals in the world championships and took eight of the 12 gold medals in the 1983 Pan Am Games. —Cuba figures to bring a veteran squad, expected to be led by three-time world champion Adolfo Horta at 122 pounds. Three-time Olympic and world champion Teofilo Stevenson reportedly has had legal troubles with the Cuban government and is not expected to compete. Sanders said he would just as soon see Cuba send its veteran fighters. He thinks young, pressing U.S. fighters could be a step quicker than the Cuban veterans. "They're prime prospects to get knocked off," Sanders said of the Cubans. "We've got the potential to do real well against them." U.S. hopes are bolstered by an encouraging showing in last year's world championships in Reno, Nev., where American fighters captured three gold medals and two silver medals. In the finals, U.S. boxers won two of three fights against Cubans. "If we have a repeat of the world championships, plus add a few weight classes, we should do all right," Sanders said. "I think skill-wise we're the best in the world, although the Cubans have an edge in conditioning." About 200 boxers from 29 countries are expected to compete in the boxing, which opens Aug. 13 at the Convention Center.

Seven countries — the United States, Cuba, Canada, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Peru and Puerto Rico — are sending full squads of 12 fighters, with Venezuela, the Bahamas and Guyana sending 10 fighters apiece. One fighter is entered from Costa Rica. Venezuela, which won two silver medals in the 1986 world championships, is expected to have several fighters in contention in the late rounds, and Canada and Puerto Rico also should have strong teams. "A lot will come down to the luck of the draw," Sanders said. "The draw will tell what fighters have it easy early and what fighters will have their toughest fights in the early rounds."

Widespread drug tests mounted to avoid repeat of '83 steroid scandal

By JODI PERRAS
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The lingering image of the 1983 Pan American Games is 10 athletes stripped of their medals and of 11 U.S. athletes withdrawing from competition as drug testing began. The Athletics Congress, the governing body for U.S. track and field, blamed the departure of its athletes from Caracas, Venezuela on "confusion... compounded by rumor." Some athletes doubted the qualifications of physicians conducting the tests, a TAC committee concluded. Others feared that legitimate, over-the-counter medications might show up as banned substances.

The lessons learned then are being applied to the 1987 Pan Am Games in Indianapolis. "To avoid the scandal that characterized the Caracas, every U.S. athlete competing in this year's Pan Am Games will have been tested for drugs before the games." "We've been doing that in all of our competitions since Caracas," said Dr. Robert O. Voy, chief medical officer of the U.S. Olympic Committee. Athletes also have been educated about drug abuse and drug testing, including what common medications, such as cold remedies, are banned. But while athletes are aware of the barrage of drug testing facing them at the games, that probably hasn't stopped the use of performance-enhancing drugs, says U.S. javelin thrower Duncan Alwood, one of those who left Caracas in 1983. "I think drug testing is great, but I don't know how well it works," said Alwood, who was suspended in 1985 for a positive steroid test in a meet at Brussels. Alwood admits taking the steroids. "A lot of people are learning their without times (the time it takes a drug to leave the system). I'm no scientist, but that's what I'm hearing." "That's the perennial problem," Voy said. "Whenever you get a class of drugs that purportedly enhance performance and we test for them, then athletes are going to find a way to use a drug that is very short-acting and may be out of their system, but the effects are still there." That problem is particularly rampant in steroid use. Voy said, as athletes apparently have stopped using long-acting anabolic steroids in favor of shorter-acting water-soluble steroids. Dr. Ronald Blankenbaker, chairman of the games' medical services division, has a warning for athletes who think they can trick the drug laboratory. "The use of banned drugs gives an athlete an unfair advantage and it is also unhealthy and dangerous," Blankenbaker said. "It has no place in sports, and if an athlete is a user, he's going to be discovered. If he thinks he'll fool the testing, he might as well stay home." Urine samples from about 1,000 athletes — roughly one-fourth of 725 athletes competing in the August games — will be tested at the $2 million, high-tech Sports Medicine Laboratory at the Indiana University Medical Center. "Our equipment is very sensitive. It will be able to detect even an occasional use of a banned substance," said Dr. Carleton B. Nordschow, the lab's director. Organizers plan to test most medal winners and other athletes at random. Positive results will be forwarded to the Pan American Sports Organization, the sponsor of the 38-nation event. "Be assured we will not be lenient on those caught using illegal drugs," said Mario Vasquez-Rana, PASO's president. "Our organization struck out against drug use in 1983, and we will be even more forceful in 1987. Athletes who have violated the rules will lose their medals and could be sent home in disgrace." Even with the precautionary measures being employed, there is no way to predict whether U.S. athletes will test positive in Indianapolis, Voy said. "Drug abuse in sport is something that starts at young high and high school level. Each year we get young athletes in amateur sports at this level, who have not been subjected to testing or educational programs about drug use," he said. "We think we have a good feeling for what athletes are being talked into taking by the gurus out there."

Five QBs? Harbaugh joins Bears

By The Associated Press

The crowded field in the race for backup quarterback on the Chicago Bears has been filled. First-round draft choice Jim Harbaugh, who set several passing records at Michigan, joined the five-man competition on Monday after signing a multi-year contract at the club's summer headquarters in Platteville, Wis. Harbaugh will battle veterans Doug Flutie and Mike Tomczak for the number-two spot behind Jim McMahon, who spent the off-season recovering from an injured throwing shoulder, but is scheduled to open in Miami in the first exhibition game Aug. 16.

Steve Fuller, another of Chicago's five quarterbacks, watched Monday's workout from the sideline after hurting his right shoulder last week. The Bears list his availability as day-to-day. Bears' officials and Harbaugh's agent, Leigh Steinberg, said the Harbaugh contract totals more than $1.3 million over four years. The signing came as a relief to Harbaugh, who skipped two days of training camp awaiting the agreement. "I've been itching to get out there," he said. During his Michigan career, Harbaugh set Wolverine single-season and career records for passing yardage and completions. Top Money. James Brooks, Cincinnati's record-setting running back, is the Bengals' top-paid player, according to an Ohio newspaper. The Cincinnati Enquirer reported Brooks signed for $500,000 a season for the next two years when he reported to the Bengals' Wilmington, Ohio camp last Thursday. The newspaper, which said it based the story on figures supplied by the NFL Players' Association, reported Brooks now earns more than wide receiver Cris Collinsworth, who makes $450,000, and quarterback Boomer Eslason and defensive end Eddie Edwards.

Buhl agrees to finance X-country

By The Times-News

The board ended financing of the program four years ago. It will be re-financed with the district's general fund. A coach is being hired to run the program, relieving parents of that burden. School Board trustees approved the program on Monday. The program will be financed at a cost of about $600,000. Total cost, including transportation to meets, should be less than $1 million. Buhl High School Principal Jim Buhl said about 15 students will participate in this fall's contests.

Trustees Leo Poppelwell and Leonard Crisner were concerned about establishing a precedent with respect to bringing back the athletic program. School Superintendent Gus Spiropoulos said that if cross-country is brought back it must be funded by the school district. He said the principal should not have to solicit funds from private sources. In an interview, Spiropoulos said, "I think it's time the school district find all extra-curricular activities, and not have to go door-to-door for donations. I did not want to bring back cross-country running and not fund it." Trustees Barbara Weaver and Armand Eckert approved the program. It was opposed by trustees Leo Poppelwell and Leonard Crisner. Chairman Grant Atkinson made the deciding vote.

AL: Yanks shut out; Jays now 1 1/2 games out

CHICAGO (AP) — Kelly Gruber would welcome a lot more nights like the one he had Monday when he led the Toronto Blue Jays to a 14-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Gruber had a two-run homer in the fourth inning, then keyed a 10-run sixth inning by driving in two more runs with a double and a single.

Not bad for a guy who came into the game in a 3-for-20 slump.

Baseball

"I'd welcome many more like that, especially when you're not hitting the ball," said Gruber. "It's a good way to come out of it. The last couple of nights, I hit the ball good in Toronto but had nothing to show for it."

Gruber said he had been "pressing a little bit. I think the home run relaxed me. It felt good. I don't know how it went, but I got most of it."

It was a shot deep in the center-field bullpen on the 40-foot way.

The White Sox scored another run in the bottom of the fourth, prompting Manager Jimmy Williams to lift starter Jose Nunez in favor of eventual winner Jeff Musselman, 10-4.

"I thought, 'Here we go again. Another close game,'" said Williams later. "You can't wait. This is August."

After the big sixth, Williams admitted he started looking at the

Gedman undergoes surgery; Bosox will lose him for season

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran catcher Rich Gedman of the Boston Red Sox underwent surgery for a torn ligament at the base of his left thumb Monday and will miss the remainder of the 1986 season.

Gedman, injured in a home plate collision in Toronto on July 27, was operated on by Dr. Arthur Pappas, an orthopedic specialist at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester.

Earlier hopes that Gedman might be able to rejoin the Red Sox in September were dashed as the club reported he will be "inactive the remainder of the season."

Gedman, injured his thumb shortly after returning from the disabled list because of a pulled groin muscle. The surgery, ended a frustrating year for the slugger, who grew up in the Worcester area.

In January, he rejected a multiyear contract worth $2.65 million and elected to test the free agency market. He came up empty with no offers higher than the one from the Red Sox and re-signed with Boston when he became eligible on May 1.

After reclaiming his job behind the plate, Gedman experienced his worst major league season both on offense and on defense. In 52 games, he hit .315, for a .265 batting average, with just 11 home runs, 13 runs batted in and 11 runs scored.

On defense, he committed eight errors and had eight passed balls.

To replace Gedman on the 24-player roster, the Red Sox called up rookie catcher John Marzano, a former Temple University and U.S. Olympic team star, from Pawtucket of the International League on Thursday. Marzano was hitless in his first two major league games in Kansas City but was impressive behind the plate.

League, and held the Angels to one hit the rest of the way.

The victory, combined with Oakland's loss to Seattle, gave the Twins a two-game lead over the A's in the American League West.

Minnesota 1 California 3

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Gary Gaetti drove in five runs, three with an eighth-inning homer, as the Minnesota Twins Sunday night despite pitcher Joe Niekro's fourth-inning ejection for allegedly defacing baseballs.

Niekro was ejected by plate umpire Tim Tschida after a body check on left fielder Doug Mientkiewicz.

Dan Schatzeder, 3-0, took over for Niekro, who faces an automatic 10-day suspension by the American League, and held the Angels to one hit the rest of the way.

threw three wild pitches. Charles Hudson pitched 5 1/2 innings of three-hit scoreless relief, striking out seven.

Seattle 4 Oakland 3

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jim Presley hit a three-run homer in the first inning, and the Seattle Mariners held on to beat the Oakland Athletics 4-3 Monday night.

Presley's homer, his 19th, scored Scott Bradley and Alvin Davis, each of whom singled with two outs of Joaquin Andujar, 3-5.

John Ferguson, 8-1, gave up six hits over 5 1/2 innings for Seattle before giving way to Dennis Powell. Mike Trujillo pitched 2 1/2 innings, giving up a ninth-inning run on Carney Lansford's RBI single, before Edwin Nunez came on to get the final out and earn his fifth save.

Nunez left the game after giving up the homer to Presley, and the A's said he had tendinitis in his right elbow. Left-hander Dave Leiper came on and threw a career-high 6 1/2 innings, giving up just three hits and one earned run.

Boston 11 Texas 2

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rookies Sam Horn and John Marzano hit home runs, and Bruce Hurst pitched a three-hitter Monday night as the Boston Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 11-2.

Marzano, playing in only his third game since being called up from Class AAA Pawtucket, drove in four runs. His home run was his first major league hit.

In addition to his fifth home run, Horn had a double and two singles and scored three runs.

Kansas City 4 Detroit 3

DETROIT (AP) — Danny Tarrabini hit a two-run homer off Jack Morris in the 10th inning, helping the Kansas City Royals to a 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers Monday night.

Morris, 12-6, who leads the American League with 29 home runs yielded, also gave up solo shots to Steve Balboni and Frank White.

Cleveland 2 New York 0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Right-hander Tom Candiotti, whose no-hitter was spoiled by Mike Easters's soft bloop to center field leading off the eighth, settled for a one-hitter Tuesday night as the Cleveland Indians beat the New York Yankees 2-0.

Candiotti, 4-11, walked one and struck out five for his third complete game and second shutout of the season.

The knuckball pitcher, who has struggled this season after he led the American League with 17 complete games in 1986, reduced his 1987 ERA to 4.93.

His best career performance previously was a three-hit, 7-0 shutout of the Baltimore Orioles April 21, 1986.

Aside from Easter, the only other Yankee to reach base was Dave Winfield, who walked on a 3-2 pitch leading off the second inning.

Winfield took second when Easter hit a fly ball to deep right center, the hardest-hit ball of the night off Candiotti. But Mike Pagliarulo flied to left and Mark Salas grounded out to the infield.

Steve Trout, 6-3, gave up two runs, one of them earned, on three hits in 3 1/2 innings. He walked five and threw three wild pitches. Charles Hudson pitched 5 1/2 innings of three-hit scoreless relief, striking out seven.

Monday night

Bass, who hit two home runs both left and right-handed, drove in Alan Ashby, who had walked against reliever Joe Franco, 1-0.

Juan Agosto, 1-0, was the winner with one inning of relief.

Bass had tied the score 3-3 in the fourth with his 11th home run of the season.

Hernandez's starting Nolan Ryan pitched seven innings allowing five hits. He struck out 12 and walked one. It was the 17th time in his career Ryan has struck out 10 or more in a game, extending his major-league record to 413.

Record Ryan has 165 strikeouts this season in 130 1/3 innings.

New York 3 Philadelphia 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Hernandez homered with two outs in the 14th inning off Kent Tekulue to give the New York Mets a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Monday night before 50,297 at Shea Stadium.

Hernandez hit his 11th homer of the season to extend his hitting streak to 12 games. The game-winning homer off Tekulue, 5-4, just cleared the right-field wall.

In his last 12 games, Hernandez is 18-for-42.

It was the Mets' sixth victory in their last seven games and moved them into second place in the National League East, 6 1/2 games behind St. Louis.

Reliever Roger McDowell, 6-3, pitched two innings for the victory. In his last seven relief outings, McDowell has two wins and five saves.

Sid Fernandez, who was scheduled to start for the Mets, never threw a pitch following his warm-ups because of a sore left shoulder. Don Schulze was called in from the bullpen and pitched five innings, allowing two runs, before being hit on the right bicep in the fifth by a Mike Schmidt line drive. He arm stiffened, and he was relieved by Doug Sisk.

Pittsburgh 6 Chicago 4

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Doug Drabek pitched four-hit ball over eight-plus innings for only his second victory since April 19 and Bobby Bonilla hit a three-run save.

With runners on first and second via walks, Jim Gott — acquired from San Francisco earlier in the day — relieved and allowed a pinch RBI single to Brian Dayton before getting the final out for his first homer as the Pittsburgh Pirates ended a seven-game losing streak with a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday night.

The Pirates, whose losing streak matched the longest in the National League this season, improved to 9-2 against the Cubs this season while winning for the first time in their last 11 games against East opponents.

Drabek, 3-10, didn't allow a hit until Ryan Sandberg singled to right field with two outs in the sixth inning.

He took a two-hit shutout into the ninth, but Sandberg led off with a single and Leon Durham followed with his first home run. Brett Gibson relieved Drabek, got two outs but also allowed a home run to Rafael Palmeiro.

NL: St. Louis chills out hard-charging Montreal in East

MONTREAL (AP) — Tony Pena, a native of the Dominican Republic, always has a good time when he visits Canada.

Pena and Jim Lindeman each hit two-run homers and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Montreal Expos 5-2 Monday night for their fourth consecutive victory.

The loss was the third straight for the Montreal, and left the Expos seven games behind the first-place Cardinals in the National League East. The defeat dropped Montreal behind, a half-game behind New York.

The Cardinals went ahead 2-0 with two out in the second inning when Lindeman was hit by a pitch and Pena followed with his second home run of the season off Tim Lincecum. Smith, 7-5. It was the 13th lifetime home run for Pena at Olympic Stadium, one-fifth of his lifetime total.

"I really can't explain why I hit so many here," Pena said. "All I know is I seem to get the ball well in this park."

Ricky Horton, 6-1, pitched a seven-hit ball over seven innings and Todd Worrell pitched two innings for his 22nd save.

"I made two mistakes, just two mistakes all night," Smith said. "I wish I could have those two (home run) pitches back."

With the score tied 2-2, Willie McGee led off the St. Louis sixth by punching on second baseman Vance Law's two-base fielding error. Two outs later, Lindeman hit his fifth home run of the year.

"He (Smith) just didn't get his fastball in tight enough to the batter," Expos Manager Buck Rodgers said. "Those two homers were his only bad pitches of the game."

Horton led off the seventh with a single and scored the fifth run on Tony Oliva's RBI double.

"It felt good to have a good, solid start," said Horton, who has made 38 relief appearances relief this year. "I've had a couple of shaky ones lately, not terrific, but not great."

Montreal made it 2-1 in the third when Reid Nichols tripled off the center-field fence and scored on Tim Raines's single. The Expos tied the score in the fourth when Vance Law singled and scored on Mike Fitzgerald's double.

Cincinnati Reds

The grand slam tied Marshall with Ron Cey for the all-time Los Angeles major league grand slams. The all-time Dodger record is 14 grand slams by Gil Hodges, who played for the franchise in Brooklyn.

Marshall singled home a run in the first inning and hit a grand slam into the second deck in center field in the third off Ted Power, 8-6, who had won his seven previous decisions against the Dodgers.

Hershiser, 12-9, pitched his seventh complete game, struck out eight and walked two. Hershiser hit his shutout when Bo Diaz hit a two-run homer with two out in the ninth, his 11th.

John Shelby led off the eighth with his 13th homer off Bill Schonert, ending his hitting streak to seven games.

The victory moved fourth-place Los Angeles within 7 1/2 games of the first-place Reds.

Some unusual finishes attend conclusion of softball season

By FLYNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

As the book closes on this summer's softball season across the Magic Valley, several city tournaments are providing surprising plot changes as top league finishers are toppled in the postseason competition that precedes next weekend's state of district tournaments.

Perhaps the sharpest turnaround came in the first rounds of the Jerome men's city league tournament, when Magic Valley Sponsors, the undefeated Lower B Division champs, dropped two games Friday night.

First Schutte Storage, which posted a modest 7-8 regular season mark, grabbed a convincing 7-3 victory from the Sponsors, then later in the evening Lincoln Inn, which finished behind Schutte at 6-10, edged out the Sponsors 5-4.

In the Upper B Division tournament, the third-place finisher Renegades blew past Longview Dalry, the regular season winners, with a 14-9 triumph on Friday.

The tournaments continued Monday with Longview and Circle 4 facing off in Upper B for the right to play Renegades tonight at 6:30 for the title. The Lower B teams will finish Wednesday night.

Another underdog surprise came in the Buhl men's end-of-season competition as the last-place Filer Merchants, who finished at 4-17, pummeled the No. 1 season finisher, Hawkins, in an 8-0 victory late last week.

Going on to beat Peet Milk 12-10, the Merchants became one of two undefeated teams in the Buhl tournament. The other, Big O Tires, beat both Copper Glass/Seven-11 and Coors, which finished in second place behind Hawkins in regular-season play.

Though both teams finished at 17-4 on the season, Hawkins took the top spot over Coors because it had beaten the team in two out of their three meetings.

The Buhl tourney, which started last Thursday, runs Monday through Wednesday this week, with the championship game set for 7 p.m., and an 8 p.m. game if necessary.

In the Twin Falls men's leagues, Snake River Pool & Spa held on to its No. 1 position atop the rest of the A

AL: Yanks shut out; Jays now 1 1/2 games out

CHICAGO (AP) — Kolly Gruber would welcome a lot more nights like the one he had Monday when he led the Toronto Blue Jays to a 2-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Who wouldn't?

Gruber hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning, then reaved a 10-run shutout by driving in two more runs with a double and a single.

Not bad for a guy who came into the game in a 3-for-29 slump.

Baseball

"I'd welcome many more like that, especially when you're not hitting the ball," said Gruber. "It's a good way to come out of it. It's a couple of nights, I hit the ball good in Toronto but had nothing to show for it."

Gruber said he had been "pressing a little bit. I think the home run relaxed me. It went to a 2-0 lead. I know how far it went, but I got most of it."

It was a shot deep in the center-field bullpen some 440-feet away.

The White Sox scored another run in the bottom of the fourth, prompting Manager Jim Williams to lift starter Jose Nunez in favor of eventual winner Jeff Musselman, 10-4.

"I thought, 'Here we go again. Another close game,'" said Williams later. "You can't wait. This is August."

After the big sixth, Williams admitted he started "looking at" the scoreboard.

Gedman undergoes surgery; Bosox will lose him for season

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran catcher Rich Gedman of the Boston Red Sox underwent surgery for a torn ligament at the base of his left thumb Monday and will miss the remainder of the 1988 season.

Gedman, injured in a home plate collision in Toronto on July 27, was operated on by Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox team physician and an orthopedic specialist at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester.

Earlier hopes that Gedman might be able to rejoin the Red Sox in September were dashed as the club reported he will be "inactive the remainder of the season."

Gedman injured his thumb shortly after returning from the disabled list because of a pulled groin muscle. The surgery ended a frustrating year for the slugger, who grew up in the Worcester area.

In January, he rejected a multiyear contract worth $2.65 million and elected to test the free agent market. He came up empty with no offers higher than the one from the Red Sox and re-signed with Boston when he became eligible on May 1.

After reclaiming his job behind the plate, Gedman experienced his worst major league season both on offense and on defense. In 52 games, he was 31-151, for a .205 batting average, with just 11 home runs, 13 runs batted in and 11 runs scored. On defense, he committed eight errors and had eight passed balls.

The victory combined with Oakland's loss to Seattle, gave the Twins a two-game lead over the A's in the American League West.

Seattle 4 Oakland 3

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jim Presley hit a three-run homer in the first inning, and the Seattle Mariners held on to beat the Oakland Athletics 4-3 Monday night.

Fredley's homer, his 10th, scored Scott Bradley and Alvin Davis, each of whom singled with two outs over Joaquin Andujar, 3-5.

Mike Morgan, 9-11, gave up six hits over 5 1/2 innings for Seattle before giving way to Dennis Powell. Mike Trujillo pitched 2 1/2 innings, giving up a ninth-inning run on Carney Lansford's RBI single, before Edwin Nunez came on to get the final out and earn his 11th save.

Andujar led the game after giving up the homer to Presley, and the A's said he had tendinitis in his right elbow. Left-hander Dave Lelper came on and threw a career high 6 1/2 innings, giving up just three hits and one unearned run.

Boston 11 Texas 2

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Ricketts Sam Horn and John Marzano hit home runs, and Bruce Hurst pitched a three-hitter Monday night as the Boston Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 11-2.

Marzano, playing in only his third game since being called up from Class AAA Pawtucket, drove in four runs. His home run was his first major league hit.

In addition to his fifth home run, Horn had a double and two singles and scored three runs.

Kansas City 4 Detroit 2

DETROIT (AP) — Danny Tarabull hit a two-run homer off Jack Morris in the 10th inning, lifting the Kansas City Royals to a 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers Monday night.

Morris, 12-6, who leads the over the American League with 29 home runs yielded, also gave up solo shots to Steve Balboni and Frank White.

The knuckleball pitcher, who has struggled this season after he led the American League with 17 complete games in 1986, reduced his 1988 ERA to 4.93.

His best career performance previously was a three-hit, 7-0 shutout of the Baltimore Orioles April 21, 1986.

Aside from Easler, the only other Yankee to reach base was Dave Winfield, who walked on a 3-2 pitch leading off the second inning.

Winfield took second when Easler hit a fly ball to deep right center, the hardest-hit ball of the night off Candiotti. But Mike Pagliarulo flied to left and Mark Salas grounded out to end the inning.

Steve Trout, 6-3, gave up two runs, one of them earned, on three hits in 3 1/2 innings. He walked five and threw three wild pitches. Charles Hudson pitched 5 1/2 innings of three-hit, no-error relief, striking out seven.

Minnesota 11 California 3

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Gary Gaetti drove in five runs, three with an eighth-inning homer, as the Minnesota Twins downed the California Angels 11-3 Monday night despite pitcher Joe Niekro's fourth-inning clinic for allegedly defacing baseballs.

Niekro was ejected by plate umpire Tim Tschida after a body search led to the discovery of an emery board in his back pocket.

Dan Schatzeder, 3-0, took over for Niekro, who faces an automatic 10-day suspension by the American League, and held the Angels to one hit the rest of the way.

The victory combined with Oakland's loss to Seattle, gave the Twins a two-game lead over the A's in the American League West.

Seattle 4 Oakland 3

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jim Presley hit a three-run homer in the first inning, and the Seattle Mariners held on to beat the Oakland Athletics 4-3 Monday night.

Fredley's homer, his 10th, scored Scott Bradley and Alvin Davis, each of whom singled with two outs over Joaquin Andujar, 3-5.

Mike Morgan, 9-11, gave up six hits over 5 1/2 innings for Seattle before giving way to Dennis Powell. Mike Trujillo pitched 2 1/2 innings, giving up homer as the Pittsburgh Pirates ended a seven-game losing streak with a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday night.

The Pirates, whose losing streak matched the longest in the National League this season, improved to 9-2 against the Cubs this season while winning for the first time in their last 11 games against East opponents.

Drabek, 3-10, didn't allow a hit until Ryne Sandberg singled to right field with two outs in the sixth inning.

He took a two-hit shutout into the ninth, but Sandberg led off with a single and Leon Durham followed with his 138th home. Brett Gideon flied out, Drabek got two outs but also allowed a home run to Rafael Palmeiro.

With runners on first and second via walks, Jim Gott — acquired from San Francisco earlier in the day — relieved and allowed a pinch single, two innings for only his second victory since April 19 and getting the final out for his first Bobby Bonilla hit a three-run save.

New York 3 Philadelphia 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Hernandez homered with two out in the 11th inning of Kent Tekulve to give the New York Mets a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Monday night, before 50,297 at Shea Stadium.

Hernandez hit his 11th homer of the season to extend his hitting streak to 12 games. The game-winning homer off Tekulve, 6-4, just closed the right-field wall.

In his last 12 games, Hernandez homer as the Pittsburgh Pirates ended a seven-game losing streak with a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday night.

The Pirates, whose losing streak matched the longest in the National League this season, improved to 9-2 against the Cubs this season while winning for the first time in their last 11 games against East opponents.

Drabek, 3-10, didn't allow a hit until Ryne Sandberg singled to right field with two outs in the sixth inning.

He took a two-hit shutout into the ninth, but Sandberg led off with a single and Leon Durham followed with his 138th home. Brett Gideon flied out, Drabek got two outs but also allowed a home run to Rafael Palmeiro.

With runners on first and second via walks, Jim Gott — acquired from San Francisco earlier in the day — relieved and allowed a pinch single, two innings for only his second victory since April 19 and getting the final out for his first Bobby Bonilla hit a three-run save.

Raiders swap receiver

LOS ANGELES Times

OXNARD, Calif. — The Los Angeles Raiders loosened their logjam at wide receiver by detaching one of the logs, in the person of the promising Rod Barksdale, and sending him down the freeway to the Dallas Cowboys at nearby Thousand Oaks, Calif.

In return, the Raiders got Ron Fells, 28, a three-year starter at right cornerback, now slated to back up Mike Hayes.

Fells became expendable when the Cowboys drafted Baylor University cornerback Ron Francis on the second round. The Raiders have been looking for help in their secondary, having taken a pounding late last season, especially against formations with three and four wide receivers. They had previously acquired another starting cornerback, the St. Louis Cardinals' Lionel Washington.

Some unusual finishes attend conclusion of softball season

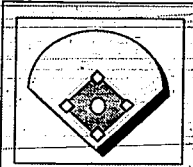

By FLYNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

As the book closes on this summer's softball season across the Magic Valley, the final play-by-play accounts are providing surprising plot changes as top league finishers are topped in the postseason competition that precedes next weekend's state of district tournaments.

Perhaps the sharpest turnaround came in the first rounds of the Jerome men's city league tournament, when Magic Valley Sponsors, the undefeated Lower B Division champs, dropped two games Friday night.

First Schutte Storage, which posted a modest 7-8 regular season mark, grabbed a convincing 7-3 victory from the Sponsors; then later in the evening Lincoln Inn, which finished behind Schutte at 6-10, edged out the Sponsors 5-4.

In the Upper B Division tournament, the third-place finisher Renegades blew past Longview.

At the Ballpark

Dairy, the regular season winners, with a 14-9 triumph on Friday. The tournaments continued Monday with Longview and Circle 4 facing off in Upper B for the right to play Renegades tonight at 6:30 for the title. The Lower B teams will finish Wednesday night. Another underdog surprise came in the Buhl men's end-of-season competition as the last-place Flyers Merchants, who finished at 4-17, pummeled the No. 1 season finisher, Hawkins, in an 8-0 victory late last week.

Going on to beat Pet Milk 12-10, the Merchants became one of two undefeated teams in the Buhl tournament. The other, Big O Tires, beat both Copper Glass/Seven-11 and Coors, which finished in second place behind Hawkins in regular season play.

Though both teams finished at 17-4 on the season, Hawkins took the top spot over Coors because it had beaten the team in two out of their three meetings. The Buhl tourney, which started last Thursday, runs Monday through Wednesday this week, with the championship game set for 7 p.m., and an 8 p.m. game if necessary.

In the Twin Falls men's leagues, Snake River Pool & Spa held on to its No. 1 position atop the rest of the A Papa Kelsey's took its own 20-5 record to win the B league championship, 2 1/2 games ahead of the Twin Falls Merchants.

The Merchants had been tied for second place with Idaho Coin Gallery until the Merchants beat their 19-14 last Thursday night in a tiebreaker.

In C league, El Sombbrero/Mah Car Wash used its 21-4 record to grab that title in front of Gem Elmen, which finished at 19-5.

Twin Falls men's all-star games are set for Aug. 18 at Harmon Park, when regular season awards will be given out, including trophies to the top three finishers in each league.

On the east end of the valley, organizers for post-season play divided the three Mini-Cassia men's leagues in half - Division 1 teams and the top three squads from divisions 2A and 2B, and the remainder of 2A and 2B with Division 3.

In the upper tournament, four teams are still undefeated after play started last Wednesday: Ore-Ida, which finished at the bottom of Division 1 in regular season, Newcomb Farms/Paul Home Center, State Farm and Skaggs.

Ore-Ida and Newcomb Farms/Paul Home Center clashed Monday night at Neptune Field in Rupert, as did State Farm and Skaggs. Several loser's brackets games also were played Monday.

The Ketchum men's league final tournament started Monday and will run through Thursday at Atkinson Park. Ketchum women's teams will hold their tournament Tuesday and Thursday.
