Congress raises debt limit, heads for home

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress late Friday passed a short-term increase in the government's debt limit and recessed for the summer, leaving unfinished a permanent debt bill carrying a plan to cut the nation's huge budget deficits.

The Senate, by a vote of 51 to 39, followed the House in passing a bill increasing the Treasury's borrowing to $2.35 trillion through Sept. 23. The House action was by voice vote.

The stopgap bill was needed because a previous interim debt measure expired at 10:01 p.m. MDT Thursday. Stripped of its borrowing authority, the Treasury suspended sales of U.S. savings bonds and the government faced default by mid-August.

President Reagan was expected to sign the bill quickly and return Treasury operations to normal.

Passage of the short-term debt bill came after House and Senate negotiators failed in a week-long flurry of talks to reach agreement on a long-term debt bill containing a plan to restore strength to the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

However, the limited duration of the debt bill meant that pressure would return in September to finish the legislation.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a prime sponsor of the original law and the plan to revive it, pressed his cause until the last minute but his colleagues succumbed to what one senator called "the siren song" of their month-long summer recess.

"We are losing today our best opportunity to fix the Gramm-Rudman law," he said.

The Senate recessed at 7:37 p.m. MDT, and the House followed suit at about 8 p.m.

But even as Congress was fleeing the corridors moistened by Washington's steamy summer, the House negotiators held another meeting. They rejected the argument that failure to finish before recess was fatal to the effort.

"I think a substantial amount of progress has been made, and will survive until after the recess," said House Majority Leader Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said he was mailing down areas of possible compromise so that when lawmakers returned after Labor Day, they wouldn't have to "start from scratch."

Both chambers had previously voted in favor of the $2.8 trillion debt bill to finance the government's deficit operations into 1989. But it was stalled because of negotiations over the amendment restoring automatic spending cuts as the enforcement tool for Gramm-Rudman's program of gradually smaller deficits.

On Friday, House Democrats proposed, and some senators agreed, to renew the law for a three-year trial period, leaving it to a future Congress to decide whether to enforce the budget-balancing program beyond that date. Democrats view strict deficit targets as a way to force President Reagan to negotiate

Central American pact looks fragile

Presidents sign 11-point peace accord

Costa Rica's Oscar Arias arrives to read, sign pact

The Associated Press

GUATEMALA CITY — The presidents of five Central American nations signed an 11-point agreement Friday designed to bring peace to the region but left details of its implementation to be worked out by their foreign ministers.

The tentative, fragile nature of the pact was suggested by its title, which they avoided calling a treaty and instead termed "a procedure for establishing a firm and durable peace in Central America."

The pact was signed by the presidents of Guatemala, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica at a two-day summit, and was based on a proposal submitted by President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica on Feb. 15.

It calls for a cease-fire in 3 1/2 months in Nicaragua's civil war and the leftist insurgency in El Salvador, but depends on the willingness of insurgent forces in both nations to lay down their arms.

Arias read the document in an ornate reception hall at the National Palace. The presidents then signed it.

President Vinicio Cerero of Guatemala hailed the pact as a "historic achievement." Roberto Viera, El Salvador's vice minister of communications, said it was "conceptual" but an "important step forward."

"It's a tremendous breakthrough," said Luis Solis, chief of staff for the Costa Rican Foreign Ministry. In addition to the cease-fires, the agreement calls for reconciliation between the governments and opposition groups in El Salvador and Nicaragua, steps to "assure democracy in each of the five nations, an end to outside aid to irregular forces, and a halt to the use of any country's territory by rebels trying to destabilize another country."

It left to the five nations' foreign ministers the job of finding ways to implement those goals, a task that has been a stumbling block to peace for years. Also left undecided were the terms of verification and regional arms limitation.

Viera said the United States and the Soviet Union and its allies would be "exhorted" to halt aid to insurgent forces in Central America, but acknowledged there was no guarantee they would do so.

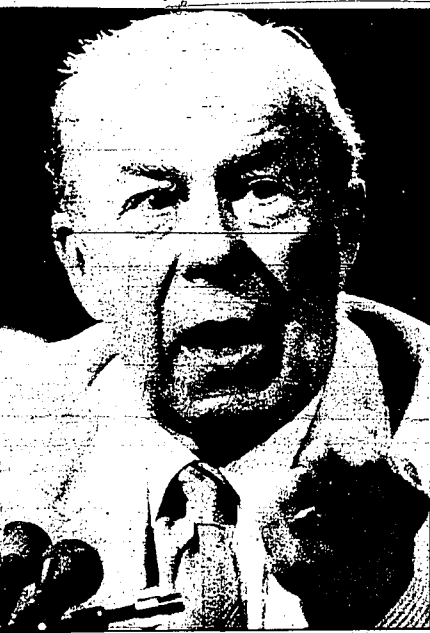

In Washington, House Speaker Jim Wright called the accord "substantial," adding, "You probably need to keep your fingers crossed and hope it doesn't come unglued."

He said he hoped the United States would respond positively and that President Reagan would withhold any requests to Congress for a renewal of aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels as long as the peace process is on track.

"I believe the president is going to try to act in good faith," he said, even though the agreement worked out in Central America differs from one proposed by Reagan and Wright earlier this week.

The U.S. proposal, issued Wednesday, dealt only with Nicaragua, where the Contras have

George Shultz: War Powers Act won't be invoked

No war intended in Gulf, Shultz says

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz said Friday the Reagan administration has no intention of becoming involved in a shooting war with Iran and doesn't intend to invoke the War Powers Act to give legal standing to its naval presence in the Persian Gulf.

Shultz told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee that U.S. warships are escorting reflagged Kuwait tankers through the gulf to assure the free flow of oil to the West and "to make sure that states that are friendly to us are not intimidated by Iran," which is at war with Iraq.

"We don't have any intention of getting into that war," Shultz said.

Shultz also said the administration had begun work on a U.N. resolution that would impose an arms embargo against either Iran or Iraq if they refused to heed the cease-fire called for in a U.N. Security Council resolution adopted last month. He said the United States hopes Japan and other U.S. allies would help win the support of countries like China and the Soviet Union for the arms ban.

Shultz's testimony came several hours before lawyers for 114 members of Congress filed a lawsuit asking the U.S. District Court in Washington to direct the president to comply with the reporting requirements of 1973 War Powers Act.

The act requires that the president send a written report to Congress within 48 hours after troops are sent into hostilities or into situations where imminent involvement in hostilities is clearly indicated. "Within 60 days after the report is sent, the president has to withdraw the troops unless Congress authorizes them to stay."

The suit says that if the court decides the president is not required

Zero-92 farming plan receives House nod

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House approved a plan Friday to enable 1988 wheat and feed grains producers to devote their entire acreage to conservation and still receive 92 percent of their direct federal subsidies.

The so-called zero-92 plan, which would be optional for farmers, won approval on a voice vote as lawmakers were packing for a four-week recess.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., said action on the bill, which applies to wheat, corn, oats, barley and sorghum, was urgently needed because 1988 winter wheat planting begins in parts of the Southwest this month.

He said growers should be told what the program would be before making their planting decisions.

But there apparently was not enough agreement in the Senate to depart from that chamber's order of business and bring up the bill on an urgent basis before the holidays, Senate aides said.

They said farmers planting in the weeks ahead would have to figure on current, 60-92 provisions that provide the same benefits if half of the farmer's program-eligible acreage is used for conservation.

Growers could still plow under their crop to take advantage of the zero-92 provision if it passed, they said.

Proponents stressed that the bill would lower taxpayer costs.

"The full voluntary diversion option will provide needed assistance to both the American farmer and the American taxpayer," Rep.

Reagan pledges quick notice of covert operations

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan agreed Friday to notify congressional intelligence committees of covert operations within "two working days" but said this new disclosure policy should exclude "the most exceptional circumstances."

In a letter to Sens. David Boren, D-Okla., and William Cohen, R-Maine, the chairman and co-chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, Reagan acknowledged that in light of Iran-Contra revelations, "we cannot conduct an effective program of special (covert) activities without the cooperation and support of Congress."

He agreed to a series of steps to improve notification procedures called for by provisions of the National Security Act of 1947, although Reagan distanced himself from legislation that Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, has introduced, requiring a notification within 48 hours of the inception of an intelligence operation.

Reagan did not elaborate on what he meant in his letter, which he hand-delivered to Boren and Cohen during a brief Oval Office ceremony, by "exceptional circumstances."

Nor did the letter spell this out, although Reagan did write the two committee leaders that "the president must retain the flexibility as commander in chief and chief executive to exercise those constitutional authorities necessary to safeguard the nation and its citizens."

Cost of boarding Twin Falls prisoners exceeds $119,000

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The cost of boarding Twin Falls County inmates in other jails during June this year was almost twice as much as Twin Falls County spent in June 1986 for similar costs.

Twin Falls County averaged a total of 60 inmates a day during June. An average of 26 inmates a day were boarded out of the county, Munn says.

During July, an average of 64 inmates a day were jailed. On the average, 37 inmates a day were transported out of the county. That means the sheriff's department was sending out more people than it was housing in the county jail, located on the fourth floor of the Courthouse.

The money spent on transporting and boarding county inmates in other jails during June this year was almost twice as much as Twin Falls County spent in June 1986 for similar costs.

During July, an average of 64 inmates a day were jailed. On the average, 37 inmates a day were transported out of the county. That means the sheriff's department was sending out more people than it was housing in the county jail, located on the fourth floor of the Courthouse.

A court-ordered, 30-inmate cap on the aged jail has resulted in the county transporting inmates out of the county each day.

The cap, which started Feb. 11, 1986, resulted from a lawsuit filed against the county by two former jail inmates, who claimed the jail was overcrowded and iniquitous.

The high costs for June, and probably for July, weren't due to the presence of a large number of juveniles, who cost more to board, or of state prisoners held because of a cap at the state prison.

Rather, the high costs were simply due to the fact that there was a large number of prisoners in jail for several days, Munn said. On the average, about 30 inmates a day were serving sentences as opposed to those in jail for only a day or two.

The county pays other jails between $24 and $26 a day for room and board, and the Southern Idaho Youth Center near Jerome charges $40 a day for juvenile inmates. Twin Falls County averaged about three juveniles day in June and seven a day in July.

On the average, only one state prisoner a day was held in the county jail during June. Because of a cap on the state prison population, counties must retain custody of state-bound prisoners until there is room at the prison.

The high boarding costs of June still don't come close to the all-time high bill for board and transportation costs. In April, those costs amounted to $226,277.

Last year, Twin Falls County spent a total of $154,888 for transportation and boarding costs. The entire impact of the cap was nearer to $178,000 because Munn hired a deputy to coordinate the jail transportation and purchased a transport van.

Last May, county voters approved the building of a new $3.8 million jail. The bond sale to pay for the construction has been delayed until a lawsuit over jail-bond election procedures is resolved.

Before the filing of the lawsuit by county resident Aldo Kent, the bond sale had been scheduled for mid-June.

President plans address on Iran-Contra affair

Fire crews reduce dangers to fisheries along South Fork

WARM LAKE (AP) — Fire crews gained ground on the raging Dollar Creek Fire north of Warm Lake in Idaho's west-central mountains Friday, and fire bosses said the threat to valuable salmon and steelhead fisheries on the South Fork of the Salmon River was significantly reduced.

"There's been no major run from the fire," Boise National Forest spokesman Greg Spangenberg said. "They seem to be getting a fairly good handle on it."

Officials expected to declare the blaze contained Saturday night.

Near Deadwood Summit, however, an out-of-control forest fire was burning over more than 1,200 acres after splitting into two blazes. But fire bosses were only monitoring the blaze because of the low value of resources in the burning area.

Some 250 firefighters were trying to complete the final miles of fire line around the 685-acre Dollar Creek Fire as some crews continued beefing up the critical break line between the burning brush and ponderosa pine and the South Fork. Fire bosses used helicopter water drops instead of aerial retardant tankers to further slow the burn as temperatures remained cool and winds were light.

"As long as it continues to move north and northeast, there's really no additional threat to the South Fork," Spangenberg said.

The one remaining concern was that the burned-out ridges above the river could send tons of sediment into the spawning beds of the migratory fish.

North of Idaho City, fire bosses released 120 firefighters, leaving only a state prison-inmate crew and local firefighters to complete mop-up on the 49-acre, man-caused Bad Bear Fire that was controlled Thursday night.

But the Deadwood Summit Fire about 90 miles northeast of Boise was still running away, Spangenberg said, after wind-blown embers sparked a second major fire late Thursday about three-quarters of a mile ahead of the main blaze.

The second fire grew from just a few acres to more than 340 and was burning in the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness while the main Deadwood Summit Fire covered nearly 900 acres.

But officials remained committed to a policy of letting that fire burn naturally because the cost of actively fighting it would outweigh the resources that could be saved. In addition, a burn in that area could ultimately improve wildlife habitat.

"There really isn't anything that's happened to change that policy," Spangenberg said. "We're still considering we can get some benefit from the fire."

Court reprimands lawyer for Creech

BOISE (AP) — The attorney for condemned killer Thomas Eugene Creech has been reprimanded by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco for failing to be timely in filing documents in the case, says Idaho Solicitor General Lynn Thomas.

Thomas said Creech's case has been with the 9th Circuit for more than a year because Boise attorney Rolf Kehne has been slow in proceeding.

"I am deliberating about making another motion to dismiss (the appeal)," Thomas said.

However, Kehne contended the case is not moving slowly for one of its magnitude, and said the 9th Circuit was upset with him only on one occasion.

"They were angry because there was one document I was late getting in," Kehne said.

A spokesman for the 9th Circuit said Kehne was reprimanded by the court on March 11 for failing to meet a filing date set by the court.

The spokesman also said an opening brief was due on July 27, but a request for a delay until October had been filed.

Kehne said the delay was requested because San Francisco attorney Cliff Gardner was named co-counsel, and needed time to study the case.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan sharply criticized Kehne in May 1986 for what the judge said was Kehne's lack of preparation and continued attempts at delay.

Creech was sentenced in January 1982 to die for the 1981 killing of fellow inmate David Jensen.

Waste brings fine threat

REXBURG (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is threatening to levy a $1,200 a day fine against the City of Rexburg if industries there do not meet federal waste standards.

"We really have no choice but to comply with this thing," Mayor John Porter said.

In light of the EPA's warning issued over tests performed on the city's waste treatment system, Porter said the city would start cracking down on companies that dump industrial waste into the system.

Of particular concern has been High Country Potato Co., a fresh-pack producer that has been dumping water used to wash potatoes. The water contains high amounts of silt, Porter said.

The silt could prematurely clog and damage the city's sewer system. The city has asked the company to build settling ponds to trap the silt, Porter said.

Phosphate mine open at Conda

CONDA (AP) — Workers have resumed mining elemental phosphate at the old Bekor Industries Conda mine in southeastern Idaho as the new owners of the facility prepared the processing plant to begin handling the ore by mid-month.

Mining operations started Thursday, said Steve Demenna, a spokesman for the investment company behind Nu-West Industries. "It's up and running."

Resumption of operations at the Conda complex, a major economic boost for the financially struggling region of the state, were promised a month ago when Gov. Cecil Andrus announced that Conda founder Cleve McCarty and a New York investment firm would take over the facility.

Demenna said some 200 workers were already on the Nu-West payroll and another 100 would probably be added over the coming months as the operation gears toward full production by April 1.

Bekor Industries, which had purchased the mine and processing plant from McCarty in the 1970s, had shut down the entire operation 15 months ago after filing for protection from creditors under the federal bankruptcy code. McCarty and Weitas, Peck & Greer of New York were the successful bidders for the property in the bankruptcy proceedings.

Formal reopening ceremonies were scheduled for Monday with Andrus presiding, and Demenna said the first shipments of processed phosphate fertilizers from the mine were scheduled to begin Sept. 1.

For the next several months, the plant will be operating at between 50 percent and 70 percent of capacity, producing about 200 tons of fertilizer on an annualized basis, officials said.

Venue change for Rhoades trial sought

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Attorneys for accused multiple murderer Paul Ezra Rhoades have renewed their bid to have his Oct. 6 murder trial moved out of Bonneville County.

The defense has filed a new motion seeking the change of venue, urging 7th District Judge Larry Boyle to reconsider his Aug. 3 refusal to move the trial.

Rhoades, 30, is to be tried for the March 16 murder of convenience store clerk Nolan Haddon and the playing three days later of junior high school teacher Susan Michelbacher in mid-March.

The Idaho Falls man will also be charged Monday with murdering Bingham County on a capital murder charge for the Feb. 28 death of convenience store clerk Stacy Baldwin in Blackfoot.

Because of massive publicity over the murders, Boyle has agreed to select the jury for the Rhoades' Bonneville County trial from the Boise area and then move the jurors to Idaho Falls to hear the testimony. He said it was in the best interests of all parties that the trial be held where the murders occurred.

But defense attorney John Radin said in his new motion that fairness required the entire proceeding to be moved out of Bonneville County.

The defense contended there was no connection between the two Bonneville County murders except that Rhoades has been accused of both so there is no justification to combine them into one trial.

It was a big question

Garth Gonzalez, left, scratched the idea of proposing marriage to his sweetheart of two years, Wendt Steel, in a typical, private way. Instead he opted to pop the question in public, on the College of Southern Idaho's marquee Friday. Steel answered 'yes' to Gonzalez's question. Fri- day was also Steel's birthday, which was noted on the other side of the marquee. The two CSI employees are planning a December wedding.

'Discount' won't cut electric power rates

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An organization representing publicly-owned utilities in the Northwest is claiming a "significant victory" in preserving a Bonneville Power Administration wholesale electric power rate discount for irrigators.

But because the discount is on an increased rate, system irrigators in Rupert and Malta will face higher costs.

Northwest Utilities says the wholesale discount will be increased from 8.7 mills per kilowatt-hour to 4.6 mills per kilowatt-hour, according to a press release. A mill is one-tenth of a cent.

Overall, BPA is increasing its rates an average of 7 percent. October 1 to make up for a $180 million revenue shortfall in fiscal 1986.

But while Northwest may be savoring the victory, the taste is not nearly so sweet to some rural electric cooperatives in Rupert and Malta that rely on BPA power.

"They are discounting a higher rate. The discount goes up, but so does the cost for the product," says Larry Burbank of Rural Electric in Rupert.

Burbank says the discount will offset some of the increases. He says the plan to extend the period of the discount from April to August through to September and October looks better than it actually is because the irrigation season is generally over in October.

BPA is also raising charges irrigators bear for electrical capacity. "The capacity is going up significantly as compared to the previous rate," says Burbank. During the summer irrigation season, the wholesale capacity rate will jump from 2.42 cents per kilowatt hour to 3.6 cents.

So overall Rural Electric's 200 irrigation customers will see an increase in rates next season.

"There is going to be an increase, but I can't say by how much. I expect the board to make a decision August 24," says Burbank.

Burbank and Bud Tracy, assistant manager of Raft River Electric in Malta, are concerned that the higher rates will start a spiral where usage drops. Then rates will have to be raised again and this will further depress usage, he says.

Tracy says BPA has taken some of the sting out of the rate increase by increasing the discount and expanding the period during which it is in effect. Raft River is still working out how much higher the rates will be for irrigators, he says.

Some of his 800 irrigation customers have talked about the increase but the concern is about the overall economy.

He sees the increase hurting Raft River financially because of expected lower electrical sales. Raft River sold less power in 1986 than in 1985. Sales in 1986 were 196 million kilowatt hours compared to 158 million a year earlier, Tracy says.

Rain, management help farmers out

Season is weathered well

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Like the plagues on the ancient Egyptians, drought, hail and mice descended on farmers in Lincoln and Blaine counties this growing season. Despite natural calamities, however, a wetter than normal summer and careful management of water brought some salvation to the tillers of the soil.

The bill to establish the levy must be passed by the end of the year. "I learned you can get by with a little less than you think you can," he says.

Shareholders in the Twin Falls and Northside Canal companies didn't have the water problems of their northern neighbors, say canal company managers.

The county's water problems in Blaine County, Magic Reservoir, which feeds the Big Wood Canal Co., was short of water from the start. Aste and some 300 farmers and ranchers served by Big Wood got a 100 percent allotment but for a shorter than normal period, says Dick Oneida, Big Wood manager.

The affected grain yields which are 10 to 20 percent below normal, says Rod McCoy, Blaine County agricultural extension agent. The alfalfa and hay crop is off 10 percent, he says.

McCoy says he knows of at least two farmers in the Carey area who suffered crop losses from a July 21 hail storm.

Rains in June and July helped the drought situation considerably, he says. Precipitation, for Ketchum in Blaine County totaled 3.85 inches this June and July compared with 1.78 inches for the same period last year, says the National Weather Service.

"If we had gotten this much rain every year, we wouldn't need irrigation. The rains in the mountains and this (lowland rain) filled the reservoirs," says McCoy.

The rains served as two different irrigation periods. The farmers didn't take water out and water came into the reservoirs, he explained.

McCoy says he knows of at least two farmers in the Carey area who suffered crop losses from a July 21 hail storm.

Oneida says his ditch riders kept a tighter rein on things to ensure people kept close to their water allotments.

"As is often the case with farmers, when they face adversity they find the experience and the intestinal fortitude to make the best of hardship," says county agent McCoy.

Property-tax levy to fund pool facelift

By FLYNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

JEROME — In presenting its proposed budget for the 1988 fiscal year, the Jerome City Council Tuesday night announced it will establish a $22,000 property-tax levy to renovate the city swimming pool.

The council also set a public hearing for Aug. 26 at 8 p.m. in City Hall to consider the budget, which estimates total spending and revenue at $2,951,263, an increase of about $240,000 over last year.

The budget, for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, includes a 6 percent increase in city employee wages and benefits, the first salary boost since the 1986 fiscal year.

In addition, the city's overall tax levy will jump from $667,372 to $707,104, a figure that includes the maximum 6 percent general tax increase allowed under state law.

The one-year pool levy, which would be within that 6 percent cap and thus would not need voter approval, would cover replacement of the pool's boiler and filter system.

The bill to establish the levy must receive a second reading at the council's next meeting.

Though the pool's 12-year-old boiler is still in good shape, public works director Lanny Sloan said, "when it was installed, gas was cheap... they weren't as concerned about efficiency."

The largest budget increase is expected to come in the sewer fund, which will jump from $702,687 to $969,035 if the city receives a $300,000 state grant to expand two pump stations in the southern part of town.

Jerome will apply in September for the grant, which would be awarded by the Idaho Department of Commerce through money from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, according to Sloan.

With the money, Sloan said Wednesday, two existing pump stations in the southern part of town.

Filer council leery of skateboard ramp

By DAVID LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Two Filer boys are asking the city to install a skateboard ramp, similar to the one recently approved by the Twin Falls City Council.

"Business people have complained about children skateboarding and bicycling on sidewalks, which is forbidden by city ordinance."

Mike Shetter and Jeremiah Stinson told Filer City Council members their parents do not want them to skateboard in the streets, either.

"We need another place in town to ride bicycles and skateboards," declared Shetter. "He said you'll need a place 'to hang out.'"

He suggested a skateboard ramp be installed in the park, in the grassy parcel at the northeast end. "It does not have to be fancy," he said.

He said it could be similar to the approved Twin Falls ramp. The council there voted to allow the $1,500 ramp behind the baseball diamond at Fremont Field—it will be 32 feet wide and long and nine feet high.

Stinson said skateboarders and bikers using the Filer ramp will wear the required helmet and protective pads for the sport.

"Everybody wants to do it. Parents think it's a good idea," Shetter said.

Some council members worried about the cost and the problem of insurance. Ronald Stokesberry said, "I do not object if a citizen puts up money for the ramp; maybe we can get matching funds. However, there is the liability problem."

That problem concerned Twin Falls council members initially, too. They learned from their attorney the city would be exempt from liability if a fee is not charged in a recreation area. But in Filer the park is run by a recreation district, a separate taxing entity.

In Twin Falls, the vote for the ramp was not unanimous because some council members feared the ramp would expose the city to lawsuits.

Filer Mayor Robert Fort said the city will check out the liability concern with its insurance company, and he'll present the issue before the Recreation Board.

No raises slated for Jerome county employees

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County officials and employees will not be receiving a raise next year, according to the preliminary budget released Friday.

But that is nothing new. The county has not forked extra money over to its employees for the last two years, either.

"Basically, I think they have accepted it fairly well, for being the third year in a row," Clerk Cheryl Watts said. "I hope that it is a number one priority next year."

The budget totals $2.53 million, compared to $2.25 million last year. Total tax levies for next year will be $1.3 million, and the rest will be paid for with fees and other sources of revenue.

"I feel we have funded things better this year than last," said Board of Commissioners Chairman Carl Montgomery. "I have no concerns, other than no increases for employees."

Indeed, not only have salaries been frozen, but the total amount of money budgeted for salaries and wages is about 2 percent less than the 1985-86 budget year, the last year complete figures have been compiled for.

That leaves the salaries for Watta, Treasurer Mary Childers and Assessor John Wurst at $19,800. Prosecutor John Horgan will continue to make $31,000, and Sheriff Elza Hall will make $21,900 under next year's budget.

Commissioners Montgomery, George Andrus and Veronica Lierman remain at $7,722 per year. All work part-time.

The commissioners have set a public hearing for 9:30 a.m., Sept. 8 in the commissioners' office at the Jerome County Courthouse.

Watts said it is frustrating to handle increased workloads and stress without a raise in salary. "The work is increasing, expenses are increasing and everything is going up," Watts said. "I hear some people say you are lucky to have a job, but it is still frustrating."

But Montgomery said the county is too low on funds to give its employees raises.

"The county is short on funds, we cannot put in large numbers," Montgomery said. "Once requests were all submitted to us and we had what was anticipated for tax valuation and revenues, we had to cut $300,000 from various departments," Commissioner Veronica Lierman said. "So it wasn't a matter of saying 'we're going to support one thing more than the other.'"

"We tried," Lierman said. "We started out with 3 percent raises for everybody, but as we went through the process, there was no way we could do that and fund other offices at minimum levels."

She said there are two positions, one part-time • See RAISES on Page A5

Mid-summer layoffs push up unemployment rates in valley

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment rates in the Magic Valley and in Idaho took short swings upward during July as farm and food processing workers left jobs due to mid-summer layoffs.

The rise ended a four-month decline for Idaho's jobless rate and pulled the Magic Valley's rate up from a decade low.

The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties landed at 5.5 percent. The statewide statistic was lower at 5.3 percent. Both were below the nation's decade low of 6 percent.

Like many areas in Southern Idaho, the Magic Valley was affected by food processing layoffs. Fresh and frozen potato plants shut down for maintenance after finishing the 1986 crop and are due to gear up again this month.

The farm labor also left fields earlier than usual, said Lon McDonald, labor analyst for the Idaho Department of Employment. "Early crop maturing has speeded up many farm activities and harvest employment this year should be several weeks ahead of a normal year. This also will affect some ag-related employers," he said.

The department, which released its July projection Friday, estimates that 34,168 people were out of work in the Twin Falls-Jerome-Gooding area and 1,980 people were without jobs.

Other areas affected by food and farm-related layoffs included Canyon County and the Lewiston area.

The increase brought Idaho's jobless rate back off a low not seen in eight years. The rise marked only the second time in 12 years that the state has seen unemployment increase from June to July.

But the rate still remained a full point below this winter's levels and, except for June, was the lowest in more than seven years.

Possibly more important, though, July's count signaled an end to a seven-month erosion in the numbers of available jobs and in the size of the state's labor force.

Six thousand more Idahoans were working last month than in June, the first significant increase in employment since the year began. The number of Idahoans with work soared to 411,900, recovering all but 800 of the jobs that had disappeared from the economy in a continual erosion since January.

The count of workers off the job increased 1,800 to 23,200.

The boosts in both employed and unemployed gave the total work force its first expansion since January, leveling off at 436,000. "The fact that the work force went up, to me, is good news," said Jim Day, the department's chief analyst. "But it needs some analysis."

The state's economy contains prospects for future increases in both Idaho and Magic Valley rates from the announced shutdown of the Tupperware plant in Jerome and anticipated layoffs at the Cyprus-Thompson Creek molybdenum mine in eastern Idaho.

But, unless jobless rates soar in the last five months of the year, 1987's average will be well below original forecasts of 6.5 percent — and could be the lowest since 1979. Through July, unemployment was averaging 5.8

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the House Science, Space and Technology Committee and more than 200 colleagues introduced legislation Friday to authorize the multibillion-dollar superconducting super collider.

"It's the biggest public works project in the history of the United States," chairman Robert Roe, D-N.J., said of the basic physics research facility that would cost $4.5 billion to build.

Cost estimates run from $4 billion to $6 billion. Advocates say it will provide new insights into the nature of matter, leading to breakthroughs in medicine and energy. They call it vital to U.S. competitiveness and scientific leadership.

Roe said the committee's ranking Republican, Manuel Lujan of New Mexico, said support for the project in the House was shown by their bill gaining more than 200 co-sponsors in just four days.

The legislation would meet the Reagan administration's request that Congress authorize initial spending of $35 million on the project.

Energy Secretary John Herrington, whose department would operate the super collider, said the legislation is "an important step for continuing American leadership in science and technology. ... I look forward to working with the Congress for prompt enactment of this bill."

The super collider would whirl beams of protons around a 52-mile near-circular tunnel and smash them into each other with an energy 20 times the maximum now possible.

The Energy Department asked for $35 million to buy long-lead-time items next year, particularly the superconducting wire that would have to be wrapped around more than 10,000 beam-bending magnets.

Spending would mount sharply after that, peaking at hundreds of millions a year in the early 1990s when construction activity is greatest.

There are opponents, in Congress and in the scientific community, who believe such spending would starve other worthy research, especially that which might enhance U.S. economic competitiveness.

Roe, Lujan and Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., said at a news conference that they would work to ensure that the super collider program does not harm other basic research projects.

FBI questions Soviet who wants to defect

SEATTLE (AP) — A Soviet scientist was questioned by federal authorities Friday, one day after he reportedly ditched his comrades in a shopping mall and walked into a restaurant waving a small American flag to seek asylum.

FBI agents met Dmitri Vinogradov, 30, at a bar where he was sent by a restaurant patron who took him home and out for dinner.

Vinogradov, a zoologist working aboard the research vessel Babayevsk, temporarily docked in Aberdeen, failed to return on the bus that took some of the ship's 68 crew-members to the Capital Mall in Olympia on Thursday, said the vessel's captain, Slava Tomlin.

Instead, Vinogradov walked into the lounge of Charlie's Restaurant and struck up a conversation with Mark Grimes, 28, of Lacey.

Vinogradov, wearing a plaid shirt and trousers and a blue baseball cap with "CGAS Kodiak" printed on it, asked to be taken to the freeway so he could catch a ride to Tacoma, about 30 miles northeast of Olympia.

Japan cracks door for U.S. computers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Japan, seeking to head off an escalating high-tech trade war, agreed Friday to make it easier for U.S. supercomputer manufacturers to compete for lucrative Japanese government and institutional contracts.

The accord, made formal by an exchange of letters between U.S. Representative Clayton Yeutter and Japanese Ambassador Nabuo Matsuura, will put the U.S. companies on an equal footing with Japanese businesses, both officials said.

The new agreement does not guarantee increased sales to U.S. companies but "will give them a fair shot," Yeutter said. "It's now up to the U.S. companies to demonstrate their competitiveness."

Matsuura said that the government of Japan currently is considering buying two new supercomputers for which Americans might bid, one for its trade ministry and the other for its ministry of education.

"We hope the American industries will make an aggressive effort" in seeking to sell the expensive state-of-the-art machines in Japan, he said. "The market for supercomputers is relatively very big. There are many possibilities and opportunities."

The accord is designed to simplify Japanese bidding procedures.

U.S. manufacturers of the devices, like Cray Research Inc., the world leader, have claimed that they have been all but excluded from Japanese markets up to now through complex and confusing Japanese policies.

Supercomputers are large, complex devices that perform a variety of electronic chores at lightning speed and generally cost from $8 million to $20 million.

Yeutter said the new agreement does not address the issue of discounting of supercomputers by Japanese companies and that the pricing issue is the subject of continuing negotiations.

In addition to having wide business and governmental uses, supercomputers are considered strategically important since they can be used in weather prediction, code breaking and in various military applications.

American companies, while dominating the world market for supercomputers, have been able to sell only a handful of the machines to Japanese businesses and have never sold one to the Japanese government or to universities or other institutions there.

The new agreement was expected to help U.S. companies begin to make inroads in public-sector markets in Japan.

U.S. trade officials said one difficulty in selling U.S. supercomputers to Japanese public institutions has been that many Japanese companies have made their machines available at low prices or, in the case of some universities, as outright gifts.

American companies claim that Japanese manufacturers have been illegally "dumping" supercomputers at prices below market values.

The new agreement follows nine months of negotiations between the two governments and stems from an investigation launched in late 1986 by Yeutter into whether Japanese supercomputer pricing policies violate international trade rules.

That investigation has not yet been concluded. The Japanese recently announced a joint venture to market supercomputers in this country. The machines are to be made by NEC Corp. in Japan but will be marketed by Honeywell Inc. of Minneapolis.

The supercomputer battle is one of several major trade disputes between the two nations.

Iran puts $1 billion into arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran has purchased arms valued at about $1 billion so far this year and may have to buy 100 Silkworm anti-ship missiles, U.S. intelligence sources said Friday.

The sources, discussing the matter only if not identified, said top Defense Department officials recently received an assessment of Iranian arms purchases from January through July.

It still lists China as the largest supplier of major weapon systems to Iran. The sources added, however, there is now some evidence that China, in the face of American pressure and publicity, may be reducing its dealings with Iran.

In the first seven months of the year, though, China sold about $400 million worth of arms to Iran, the sources said. Deliveries included a new load of Chinese-built Silkworm missiles along with multiple rocket launchers, artillery pieces, and anti-aircraft missiles.

The second leading supplier remained North Korea, the sources said. It provided arms worth about $250 million, including artillery pieces, ammunition of various types and Soviet-designed Scud surface-to-surface missiles.

Warsaw Pact allies of the Soviet Union provided about $200 million in arms during the period, primarily small arms and rifles, ammunition and transport trucks, the sources said.

Two American allies in Europe — Portugal and Spain — were next on the list, providing an estimated $150 million in munitions and components for Iran's domestic arms industry, the sources added. Shipments from those countries apparently included machinery components, the officials said.

The sources declined to characterize the latest estimate of arms shipments as representing any significant increase from recent years. Rather, they said it reinforced earlier indications Iran can still acquire most of the weapons it wants.

Koch suffers 'tiny' stroke

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch suffered a "tiny, trivial stroke," but remains "ostentatiously healthy" and full of wisecracks and should be back at his desk by next week, a doctor said Friday.

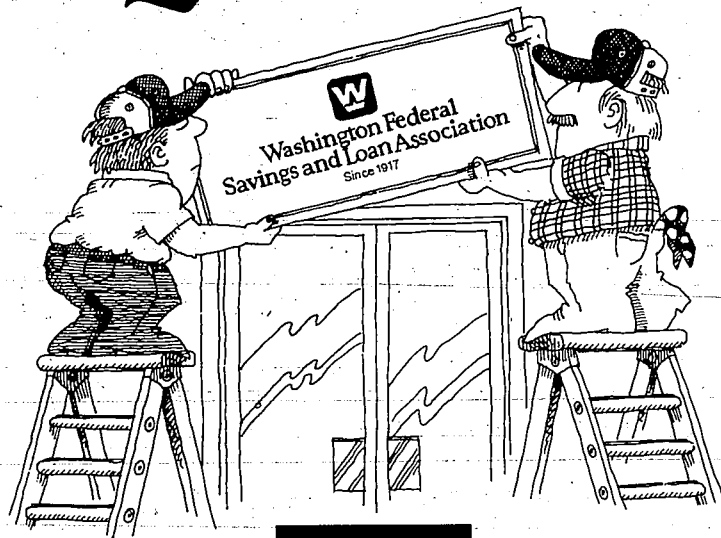

Koch's stroke was "the neurological equivalent to breaking his toe," said Dr. J.P. Mohr, head of the stroke center at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center's Neurological Institute.

The 62-year-old mayor was sped from Lenox Hill Hospital to the medical center Friday morning after symptoms that had led to his hospitalization Thursday — slurred speech, dizziness and nausea — occurred.

On Thursday, doctors said they believed he had suffered a transient ischemic attack, or TIA, a briefly diminished flow of oxygen to the brain.

But Mohr said that was reclassified as a stroke when the condition did not disappear.

Forbes rode in his Harley-Davidson-shaped hot air balloon for about 15 minutes Thursday at the Black Hills Motor Classic.

"It went up pretty well but it came down prematurely," said Ray Balhorn Jr., who is videotaping the motorcycle rally. "It looked from far away like it landed on main street, but it was two or three blocks off."

Forbes, 67, rode his motorcycle from his ranch in Colorado, said Balhorn. The cameraman spent Thursday with Forbes at the rally, like a really nice guy. He's really laid back.

The balloon is one of the world's largest, 200 feet long and about 80 feet high, said Guy Edwards, who helped Forbes crew find a launch site. Forbes has other hot air balloons, including one in the shape of a French chateau that he owns, Balhorn said.

Let's see, now, a French chateau in the shape of a Harley? A Harley in the shape of...?

Murphy lands dance with glance from bus

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Country singer Michael Martin Murphy was on his way to Wyoming when he thought he saw a friend.

Murphy, whose song "A Long Line of Love" hit No. 1 on the Billboard magazine country charts released Friday, said he had been sleeping on his bus Thursday until a thunderstorm woke him.

As the bus passed through Lincoln, the singer thought he saw "crop artist" Stan Herd, who created a patchwork quilt in a field for Murphy's "Line of Love" video, nominated for country video of the year.

Sure enough.

Herd was in town trying to raise $15,000 for a crop-art sculpture that is being planted near Lincoln in conjunction with a Sept. 19 Farm Aid concert, which Murphy is planning to play.

Murphy found Herd and gave him $500 for the sculpture. Murphy also found out that the Haymarket Street Dance takes place at the same time as the Farm Aid concert, so he agreed to do a little extra work.

"I'll volunteer to play your street dance for nothing," Murphy said. "I've got a cooking little seven-piece band."

Stuntman celebrates sobriety in high climb

DENVER (AP) — Jeff Sobolik has been sober for 10 years, and he wanted to celebrate with a high old time.

The 27-year-old stuntman braved wind and rain to scale a 56-story skyscraper Thursday, spending about two hours propped on the glass and steel of the Republic building.

Sobolik said he pulled the stunt after months of planning to celebrate 10 years of sobriety.

"At one time I was on my deathbed for drugs and alcohol," the Bloomington, Minn., native explained. "Every year, I celebrate my sobriety."

Police nabbed him and booked him for trespassing, and a friend was waiting at the Denver jail to post bond, which police said was $100.

Max Headroom a flap at stutters meeting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Can a computer-generated television cartoon character be a stuttermonger?

The Max Headroom issue became a focus of debate among therapists here for the fourth annual convention of the National Stuttering Project, a self-help group which has about 2,600 members.

"Children are susceptible to authoritative figures," said Theodore E. Emory on Thursday. "When they start imitating Max by saying 'I'm J-J-Johnny,' the act of talking consciously has begun and confusion about how to talk will set in. When this becomes a habit, you have a full-blown stuttermonger."

"I'm not concerned about Max causing stuttering," said John Ahlbnach, executive director of the project. "Max's speech is broken but he is not a stammerer. It is a voice broken up by the computer, not a silent block where the air flow is cut off."

A spokesman for ABC-TV, which has renewed the "Max Headroom" series for the fall, agreed. "The speech is a computer glitch," said Jim Brochu.

Madonna: Birthplace 'a little smelly town'

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — Madonna raised some heckles here when she called her birthplace a "little smelly town" on national television.

During an interview broadcast Thursday on NBC's "Today" show, host Jane Pauley asked the touring singer about her background. Madonna said she was from Bay City, a town of about 41,000 people.

"Little town?" Pauley asked.

"Uh huh. Little smelly town in northern Michigan," Madonna said. "Like New Jersey. There's a lot of chemical dumps there or something."

Born in Bay City in 1958, Madonna Ciccone was one of eight children in a family that later moved to Detroit, Pontiac and what is now Rochester Hills.

Told of Madonna's comments, Mayor Timothy Sullivan said he wished she would reconsider her assessment.

"Bay City's a fine community that's been home to a lot of fine, decent, outstanding people," said Sullivan. "Perhaps someday she'll hold a different view."

Sign of old Nero: chomp on chain Wolf recovering from surgery for binge on sweatshirt 'toy'

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Nero the wolf, whose unauthorized diet includes fences and items of apparel, showed signs of recovering from emergency intestinal surgery Friday when he started gnawing on some chain link, his keeper said.

Nero, a 6-year-old, 6-by-2-inch piece of sweatshirt from the grey wolf's small intestine Wednesday night.

The 9-year-old wolf was still groggy and lethargic and was having trouble eating his lunch Friday morning, said Caroline Bluff, the senior walkkeeper at the Irvine Park Zoo, where Nero has lived with three of his pups since May 30, 1984.

But he's alert. He's pretty out of it from the anesthesia he had during what I came in, he did pull on the chain link. That was a good sign. That's more like the old Nero," she said.

"My main concern is getting body fluids in him. We are giving him Gatorade. I got him to drink one swallow but he spit it back up," she said.

If Nero can't handle the liquids "we'll get hold of him with a muzzle and a come-along and hook him up to an IV (intravenous tube). If that doesn't work, we'll sedate him a little. We have to fight the dehydration," Ms. Bluff said.

After a couple of days on Gatorade, Nero's diet will switch to chicken soup and then to diluted dog food.

Nero's problem apparently started Sunday afternoon. Ms. Bluff believes a visitor was playing with Nero and one of his daughters, Nerva, with a sweatshirt. The wolf was probably wrestled it through the 8-foot fence that surrounds their zoo compound, she said.

"To the wolves, the sweatshirt was a play toy," she said. "Normally, they'll chew on things people throw in, but they've never swallowed anything before. It's not normal for them to swallow a sweatshirt.

They'll chew it to pieces, but we don't normally have this kind of problem."

He was taken to surgery when keepers saw he was unable to eat.

However, it's not the first time Nero's unorthodox eating habits have gotten him in trouble.

In February, he had 13 root canals because half his teeth were broken or infected from his repeated chomps on the chain link fence.

Nero, born at the Como Zoo in St. Paul, Minn., on July 1, 1978, is a Canadian timber wolf or grey wolf.

He spent several years at the Los Angeles Zoo with his mate, Virginia. But when Virginia died in 1984 of advanced age problems, Nero and three of his pups, Nerva, now 7, Charlie-Boy and Little Girl, both 6, were moved to the Irvine Park Zoo.

Nero is quite old by wolf standards. "He used to be black but he'll chew on things people throw in, but they've never swallowed anything before. It's not normal for a wolf in the wild is about 10 years, in captivity, about 13 years.

Soviet to play White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration welcomed the arrival in the West of Soviet pianist Vladimir Feltsman and announced Friday that his first concert will be at the White House on Sept. 27.

House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said President Reagan and his wife Nancy had invited Feltsman to give a White House concert and he had accepted.

Feltsman and his wife Anna, accompanied by their four-year-old son Ilya from Moscow Thursday to Vienna, ending an eight-year effort to emigrate.

The 35-year-old pianist is slated to take up a teaching post at the State University of New York.

Actor satisfactory after car crash

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Actor Matthew Broderick reportedly is in satisfactory condition Friday, two days after he was hurt in a car crash which killed a woman and her daughter.

Broderick, 25, suffered a broken leg and minor injuries Wednesday when the car he was driving collided with another car near Baniskillen, about 50 southwest of Belfast, police said.

A Northern Ireland police spokesman declined to discuss the cause of the accident.

The two people in the other car, Margaret Doherty, 63, and her daughter, Anne Gallagher, 28, were killed.

Broderick's girlfriend, Jennifer Gray, 23, who was riding in the car with him, was released after treatment for shock at Erne Hospital in Baniskillen.

Broderick, who starred in the film "War Games" and the Neil Simon play "Brighton Beach Memoirs," was transferred Friday from Erne Hospital to Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast.

Iran winds up naval exercises, test-fires Silkworm missile

The Los Angeles Times

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — Iranian forces completed naval exercises in the Persian Gulf Friday, vowing vengeance against the United States, and Revolutionary Guard units were reported to have test-fired an anti-ship missile into the gulf.

In Tehran, Iran, meanwhile, another 50 bodies were returned from Mecca, Saudi Arabia, where hundreds of people were killed last week in riots during the annual pilgrimage to Islamic shrines.

Tehran Radio said the bodies were carried through the streets to Tehran University, where prayer services were conducted, as the crowds chanted "Death to America" and "Death to the fascist Saudi police."

Iranian Interior Minister Ali Akbar Mohtashemi was quoted as saying that the responsibility for the violence in Mecca "is entirely America's, and we will take revenge directly on America." The Iranians contend that 600 Iranian pilgrims were shot and killed by Saudi police in the violence in Mecca. The Saudis say that no shots were fired but 402 people, including 275 Iranians, were killed when Iranian demonstrators attacked Saudi security forces and started a stampede among the million or more pilgrims. Egyptian pilgrims arriving back in Cairo on Friday supported the Saudi version.

The Iranian naval exercises, which began Tuesday, were reported to have ended with a review of warships by President Ali Khamenei. Tehran Radio said hundreds of patrol boats passed by with their crews shouting anti-American slogans.

It said air units of the Revolutionary Guards passed overhead. This was the first indication that the air force was acquiring aircraft, which have been used exclusively by Iran's professional air force.

Revolutionary Guards units were said to have carried out landings on islands in the gulf and to have blown up a naval target with explosives. The broadcasts gave no details of these operations.

The official Iranian news agency said that Khamenei on Thursday ordered the test-firing of a "short-to-sea missile," an apparent reference to the Chinese-made Silkworm missile the Iranians began to acquire about a year ago.

The presence of the Silkworms — another was test-fired earlier this year — has been described by Reagan administration officials as a threat to shipping in the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow channel into the gulf from the Indian Ocean.

Western analysts suggested that the exercises were designed as much to impress people abroad as to provide training for the Iranian military, and they have created new tenation in the gulf in the wake of the Mecca violence. The exercises were to have ended Thursday but were extended for a day.

Meanwhile, a group of U.S. warships has gathered near the mouth of the strait in preparation for a second convoy of Kuwaiti tankers registered under the American flag.

Three re-flagged tankers will be escorted to Kuwait in the next convoy. Two tankers were escorted in July and the Reagan administration has agreed to reflag a sixth other Kuwaiti ships.

Locomotive runs away, hits passenger train

MOSCOW (AP) — A locomotive with malfunctioning brakes slammed into the rear of a Moscow-bound passenger train at more than 80 mph early Friday, smashing two coaches and killing passengers, Tass said.

The official Soviet news agency said the electric locomotive was pulling a freight train laden with 5,000 tons of grain, but became detached from the cars when the brakes failed to work. Fifty-three freight cars derailed, and the locomotive, which was speeding down a grade, plowed into the rear of the overnight passenger train bound from the southern Russian city of Rostov-on-Don to the capital.

Tass said the exact number of casualties in the 1:30 a.m. collision about 600 miles south of Moscow had not been established.

Former Lebanese president Chamoun, 87, dies

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Former President Camille Chamoun, who helped lead Lebanon's fight for independence and later requested the first U.S. military intervention in the Middle East, died Friday. He was 87.

A hospital statement said Chamoun, who survived four assassination attempts, died of heart failure in Saint Georges hospital. He was admitted Thursday.

Church bells tolled throughout the Christian heartland in mourning, Christian radio stations interrupted regular programs to play somber music.

Chamoun, a Maronite Catholic, was jailed briefly by French mandate authorities with other Lebanese independence leaders in 1943, shortly before France gave Lebanon its independence.

He was president from 1952 to 1958. Shortly before his term ended in 1958, he asked President Dwight D. Eisenhower for U.S. military help to quell a Moslem uprising.

Eisenhower sent 6,000 soldiers and Marines, who landed on the beaches of Lebanon. The force stayed in Beirut for six months. In 1975, civil war erupted again between Christian rightists and mostly Moslem leftists and still continues.

One of the first foreign leaders to comment on Chamoun's death was Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who called the ex-president "the last of the Lebanese great."

Chamoun was instrumental in forging Israel's alliance a decade ago with Lebanon's Christians, and this alliance was an important factor in Israel's decision to invade Lebanon in 1982 in an effort to rout Palestinian guerrillas from south Lebanon and Beirut. He was finance minister in the current Moslem-Christian Cabinet, headed by Sunni Moslem acting Prime Minister Salim Hoes.

Sho-Bans plan ceremonial chinook fishery

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Shoshone-Bannock tribal council of Fort Hall rekindled an old ceremonial fishery Friday when it informed the Idaho Department of Fish and Game it would conduct a "ceremonial fishery" on the South Fork of the Salmon River next week.

The Sho-Bans, who have been stretching the "historical" definition of their defined "accustomed" fishing sites in extreme western Idaho, drew immediate sharp criticism from Dan Majors, Mountain Home, president of Idaho Steelhead and Salmon Unlimited. Although there were reports of early anger at the Fish and Game Department of which the announcement was first made, Dave Hansen, anadromous fisheries coordinator, had accepted the situation rather philosophically by late Friday afternoon.

Hansen said the ceremonial fishery — the first conducted on summer chinook — probably would amount to about 100 harvested fish. All the fish will be taken with single-point spears. No nets or tridents will be used. The ceremony will include aweat lodge purification and a pipe ceremony, according to statements made by tribal spokesmen. It is designed as the agent of a renewal between the Sho-Bans and the return of the summer run. The ceremony is considered a religious and educational occasion for young members of the tribe.

They told us they planned to conduct this ceremonial fishery between Goat Creek and the South Fork Weir," said Hansen. "That is above the prime spawning areas for wild and natural fish. They will be taking a higher percentage of hatchery fish than if they fished below that area."

"It is extremely difficult for us to invoke an emergency conservation closure," Hansen said, noting such an action would doubtlessly trigger a new round of litigation. He noted with about 1,500 adults returning this year, the conservation closure would be under question.

He noted the run is regarded as "weak. We haven't had a sport season there since 1964." The South Fork's fishery was jeopardized by an overlogging situation that created major siltation problems by covering the critical gravel spawning beds. The Forest Service and dozens of other public and private have spent more than 20 years trying to restore the stream.

"While we got enough (eggs) to meet our small program in the South Fork this year, we are trying to shift the Pahasimeri Hatchery to a summer chinook station and were hopeful of getting eggs to bolster that program," he said. "We'd also like to have more adults for out-planting in Johnson Creek and the upper South Fork to increase natural production. We'd never get enough to fill all the production area we have."

Majors was considerably more vehement in his criticism, noting "there is no surplus of fish in the point of it."

"We question the consistency of the Sho-Ban policy on supporting Idaho's official concern over wild runs and then going to fish on the South Fork. A lot of people spent a lot of money and effort to get that run built back up and each fish is very valuable."

Majors said he didn't feel the Sho-Bans needed the ceremony since, using 636 declared surplus spring chinooks released in Yankee Fork this year for exactly that purpose, they already had had one. He suggested the Sho-Bans are using this summer run ceremony to entrench their contention that the South Fork was an "historical and accustomed" fishing site. However, the Sho-Ban 1848 Fort Brager Treaty gives the tribe the right to "hunt and fish on all unoccupied lands in the United States."

"The summer chinook is the stock of the future of Idaho's sportmen," Majors continued. "We are converting the McCall (hatchery) and the entire Pahasimeri production to that purpose."

Majors said he began hearing reports of the ceremonial fishery at last week's anadromous fish symposium in Boise.

"The public needs to get all over this issue," he said. "Someone else needs to step back and take a look at what's going on."

U.S. cagers won't see opponent until tipoff

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The first time Denny Crum will see the Panamanian basketball team will be when his U.S. team takes the floor against it in Sunday's opening game of the Pan American competition.

"I haven't seen any of the competition yet," Crum said of the nine other nations that comprise the men's basketball competition. "I have to be concerned with our team and that they play to their abilities." Crum has assembled a team with considerable ability. Leading the team is 7-foot-1 center David Robinson of Navy, the No. 1 draft pick of the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA.

Joining Robinson in the probable starting lineup will be Danny Manning of Kansas, Ricky Berry of San Jose State, Rex Chapman of Kentucky and either Jerome "Pooh" Richardson of UCLA or Indiana's Keith Smart.

"The starting lineup might change every game," Crum said. "It will depend on what we are going to see. It's not that important."

What is important is the United States' impressive history in the Pan Am Games basketball competition.

U.S. teams have won eight of the nine gold medals awarded and 69 of the 81 games they have played. The United States is currently on a 28-0 game winning streak since a 73-69 loss to Cuba in 1971.

"These guys are good enough athletes that they should respond to the pressure," Crum said. "We're the heavy favorites but games are won on the floor and there will be a lot of good competition and we can't afford a letdown."

"These guys don't want to be the Pan Am team that was beaten."

Panama is coached by Jim Baron, the head coach at St. Francis, Pa. The team won the Central American basketball championship earlier this year but its tallest players are 6-8 centers Amado Martinez and Mario Butler.

"We do know that last year Argentina beat the United States by four points in the World Championships and we only beat Puerto Rico by one. Brazil was in the final four of the World Championships," Crum said.

The U.S. entry in the World Championships was led by Robinson and it won the gold medal.

Two-way jam develops at top at PGA tournament midpoint

Lanny Wadkins, Floyd pace tight group

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) Lanny Wadkins and Ray Floyd are old friends and golf buddies. But they won't be shooting the breeze when they get together for Saturday's third round of the 69th PGA championship.

"We're good friends. We've played together many, many times. Our families are close," Wadkins said of his co-leader after two rounds of the last of this year's four major championships. "But there won't be any idle chatter out there. No 'how's the family' or 'where are you going for dinner?' None of that. We're both pretty serious on the golf course."

Wadkins and Floyd may be friends, but they're also two of golf's most intense competitors.

"You know, the last two majors Ray won, I was second to him. It's about time to turn that around," Wadkins said.

He and Floyd each overcame the sweltering heat to record 2-under-par 70 Friday and completed 36 holes in 140, four under par on the PGA National Golf Club course.

Floyd and Wadkins have plenty of company, though. Eight other players are within three shots of the lead and a host of others are within striking distance.

"The game is still on for a lot of players," said Wadkins, the 1977 PGA champ.

Among them is his younger brother, Bobby, who held the first-round lead with a 68, but slipped back with a 74 and was two shots back at 142. "It's nice to see him up there," Lanny said. "It's nice to see him right behind me."

Wadkins said he and Floyd know what to expect from each other. "There'll be no surprises. We both know each other too well for that. But we can't play each other. There are too many players too close for that. We've got to play the golf course," Wadkins said.

The deep rough and damaged, dried-out greens have sent scores soaring — but have taken a back seat to the oppressive heat.

"It seems to be getting hotter every day," Floyd said, the official high for the day was 93 degrees. But a thermometer on the course registered 109 shortly after 4 p.m.

"I didn't play nearly as well as I did Thursday. But I did some things I was very pleased with," Floyd said.

"I lost my rhythm out there. I was totally out of sync. Maybe the heat was getting to me."

"Often, when it gets away, I am not capable of getting it back. But today, I was able to get back in control. That's a very positive thing for me," said Floyd, who owns two PGA titles.

"I did what I had to do, what I needed to do to put a score up," Floyd said.

Jeff Sluman had a share of the lead until he bogeyed his final hole, missing a short putt, and dropped back into a tie with Tim Simpson at 141, one shot off the pace. Sluman matched the best round of the steamy day with a 69, while Simpson had a 70 after shooting a 71 Thursday.

Ben Crenshaw, Larry Nelson and Seve Ballesteros of Spain were tied with Bobby Wadkins at 142.

Nelson, a former PGA and U.S. Open champ, shot a 72. Crenshaw and Ballesteros each had a 70, but took different routes to get there.

Ballesteros, a two-time Masters and British Open winner, had an erratic round that included six birdies and four bogeys.

Crenshaw saved his round with his play around the greens. He chipped in for par on one hole, made putts of 20 and 30 feet to save par on two others and birdied two of his last three holes, the last with a downhill, 30-footer that trickled into the cup.

"I got away with murder out there," Crenshaw said.

The only others under par after 36 holes were Mark McCumber and Bobby Clampett, tied at 143. McCumber had a 69. Clampett a 72. "The game is still on for a lot of people," Lanny Wadkins said. "The leader board is pretty strong. There aren't a lot of weak bisters up there."

Also not up there are a number of big names.

Tom Watson, only two shots out of the lead after the first round, soared to a 79 and was at 149.

He was beaten for the day by both his playing partners, Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer. Nicklaus shot a 73 and was at 149, while Palmer had a 76 and finished at 151.

Masters champ Larry Mize had an 81 for 166 and Paul Azinger, the leading money-winner this year, shot a 77 for 169. Both failed to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Greg Norman, the Australian who lost this title to Bob Tway's 72nd hole bunker shot last year, cleaned out his locker and paid off his caddy after a 78 left him at 151. But his 7-over-par total later proved to be good enough to qualify and he'll return Saturday. The group at 151 was the last to make the cut.

Tway shot a 71 for 149. U.S. Open champ Scott Simpson had a 73 for 151 and Nick Faldo, the Englishman who won the British Open three weeks ago, was at 146 after a 73.

Fred Funk, the University of Maryland golf coach who was one stroke off the first-day lead after shooting a 69, soared to a 79 and finished at 148.

Floyd missed eight greens, but one-putted for par on six of them. "You know you have to beat the elements. You know you have to beat the weather. You know you have to beat the golf course. You know you have to beat 149 other players."

"My attitude is good. I'd like to be doing everything a little bit better. But I'm doing the things I have to do," said Floyd.

U.S. athletes move out of rooms to accommodate visitors

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Faced with a severe housing shortage, some of the host Americans at the Pan American Games began moving out of the athletes' village Friday.

Expected 1,000 more athletes than expected will participate in the games, which begin with opening ceremonies Saturday and action in 18 sports on Sunday.

The athletes' village was becoming so overcrowded that the United States volunteered to move many of its competitors to hotels. As many as 300 of the 768 American athletes will wind up in hotels, U.S. Olympic Committee President Robert Helms said.

"When you have a lot of house guests and you run out of beds, you're the one who sleeps out on the porch," Helms said.

"I think that this gesture was a fantastic gesture of solidarity and friendship," said Mario Vazquez-Rivera, president of the Pan-American Sports Organization.

Housing is needed for about 5,900 people, and the facilities at Fort Benjamin Harrison, where the athletes' village is located, fell short by nearly 500 beds. With about 300 American athletes not staying at the village and the addition of two Army barracks to house other foreign athletes organizers feel they have coped with the problem. The 225 soldiers normally housed in the barracks are being moved out.

"While we were obviously not expecting the number of people we received," Ted Boehm, chairman of the local organizing committee, said, "we do have capability to deal with the situation, and we believe that by the time the games start, we will have all the athletes adequately housed."

Not everyone in the athletes' village was satisfied with the solution because conditions still will be crowded.

"Housing is a touchy subject," said Tony Glasgow, a high jumper from Bermuda. "I think the organizers should have been a little stricter with countries that sent more athletes than they indicated. Other countries suffer."

Bermuda is sharing space with the delegation from Uruguay.

"They are one of the countries that brought twice as many as they indicated. They arrived first and took over most of the building," he said. "As a result, we are squeezed six in one room."

though we brought the exact number of athletes we indicated. Those teams arriving late are really having it rough."

Meanwhile, members of the Cuban American National Foundation said they want to educate Americans about the rough conditions in Cuba, but they will not encourage athletes to defect.

"We are not here to provoke any incident or induce anyone to seek political asylum," Jorge Mas Canosa, chairman of the foundation, said. "Our mission is to educate the American people about Cuba. We would like to present the other side of the story. Cuba has never done that."

But Mas said his group would help any Cubans who choose to defect.

"We are here to make certain that any Cuban athlete, by his own decision, elects to seek political asylum, that his or her rights will be protected, and that he will have access to a fair hearing," Mas said.

The opening ceremonies Saturday night at the Indianapolis Speedway are sold out.

Competition starts Sunday in basketball, baseball, track and field, swimming and diving, canoeing and kayaking, cycling, equestrian, field hockey, rhythmic gymnastics, judo, modern pentathlon, roller skating, soccer, softball, table tennis, team handball and weightlifting.

The American men's basketball team plays Panama. U.S. teams have won eight of the nine basketball gold medals awarded and 69 of the 61 games they have played. The United States is on a 28-game winning streak since a 73-69 loss to Cuba in 1971.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Joe Nickro, currently appealing a 10-day suspension for allegedly scuffling with a teammate, pitched eight strong innings Friday night as the Minnesota Twins beat the Oakland Athletics 9-4.

Nickro made his first appearance since being ejected from last Monday's game in California when an emery board and sandpaper were found in his pocket.

Nickro, 6-8, took a three-hitter and 9-2 lead into the ninth inning, but left after a walk, a hit batter and RBI singles by Mike Davis and Terry Steinbach.

BOSTON (AP) — Marty Barrett drew a bases-loaded walk with two outs in the ninth inning, capping a two-run rally Friday night that gave the Boston Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Spike Owen was intentionally walked and Davis replaced Leibrandt, pinch-hitter Mike Greenwell walked on a full-count pitch to load the bases and Barrett then walked on a 3-1 pitch.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Larry Sheets hit a pair of two-run homers and Ken Dixon pitched a perfect game for the Orioles as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Texas Rangers 9-2 Friday night.

Darling, 8-7, who won his fourth straight decision, took a three-hit shutout into the eighth, but Ryan Sandberg's 13th homer, his 1,000th career hit, accounted for Chicago's only run.

Darling, who walked three, did allow a hit until the fourth inning, when Rafael Palmeiro doubled with one out.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chris James hit a three-run homer in the first inning and finished with three hits and five RBI as the Philadelphia Phillies snapped a six-game losing streak with a 16-6 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

Shane Bieber, 14, worked seven innings, allowing 11 hits and four runs, for his sixth straight victory.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Al Pedrique and Mike LaValiere both had three hits and knocked in two runs, and Bob Walk won his first game since May 13 as the Pittsburgh Pirates used two four-run innings to beat the Montreal Expos 9-3 Friday night.

Walk, 3-1, making his first start in a month, pitched six innings and allowed five hits, including home runs in Tim Raines and Andrea Galarraga.

Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Raul Mondesi pitched a perfect game as the Dodgers beat the San Diego Padres 9-0 Friday night.

Court of appeals sets aside verdict against ex-pitcher

ATLANTA (AP) — A lawyer for Denny McLain said he hopes baseball's last 30-game winner will be out of prison within 10 days after a three-judge panel Friday threw out his racketeering conviction.

"Come Monday, we're going to ask the judge to set a bail bond for him," said attorney Arnold Levine of Tampa, Fla. "The mechanics may take a week to 10 days. We hope to have him out very quickly. He's anxious to come back to his family."

Levine, who phoned McLain at a federal prison in Talladega, Ala., said, "He was thrilled; he started to cry. His immediate reaction was, 'Hi, I've got to call my wife.'"

Friday's ruling by the Atlanta-based 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals entitles McLain to a new trial on charges he was part of a loan-sharking scheme and threatened violence to collect debts.

Levine said he hopes the charges simply will be dropped, citing the 29 months McLain already has served and the expense of repeating a trial which took four months.

McLain, 42, was sentenced to 23 years for racketeering, extortion, conspiracy and possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

The appeals court threw out all those convictions, as well as the racketeering, conspiracy and extortion convictions against co-defendant Seymour Sher.

The 11th Circuit said U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachovich unfairly rushed McLain's 1984 trial in Tampa. The appeals court also faulted the trial prosecutor for insulting a defense lawyer in front of the jury.

McLain's best year in the major leagues was 1968, when he went 31-6 with a 1.98 earned run average with the Detroit Tigers. He won the Cy Young award as the American League's top pitcher and the Tigers won the World Series.

He won the Cy Young award again in 1969 with a 24-9 record, but his career then nosedived. He was suspended for disciplinary reasons for part of the 1970 season and compiled a record of 17-34 from 1970 to 1972, with Detroit, Washington, Oakland and Atlanta, finishing his 10-year career at 131-91.

In 1984, he was among seven people indicted in an alleged loan-sharking and cocaine smuggling scheme.

After a mistrial, McLain and Sher were convicted in a four-month trial in late 1984 and early 1985. McLain went to prison March 16, 1985.

Defense lawyers told the 11th Circuit in January that the Tampa trial was a "circus," during which Kovachovich often dozed or worked on other cases and allowed jurors to walk around drinking coffee and eating doughnuts during testimony.

At his sentencing April 25, 1985, McLain said he was not a criminal. He said he had been "guilty of greed, avarice (and) bad judgment" and said, "at times, I've tried to make a fast buck."

Howe joins Texas ready for action

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Howe, who has not pitched in the majors since 1985, joined the Texas Rangers Friday night less than a month after signing a minor-league contract.

Howe was in uniform and practicing with the Rangers prior to Friday night's game in Baltimore against the Orioles.

Howe, battling back from five major- and minor-league suspensions for drug abuse, was signed by the Texas organization on July 12 after a suspension was lifted by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Texas officials met with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth on Wednesday, seeking his OK to bring Howe up from Oklahoma City. Ueberroth did not issue any public statement on the matter and did not prevent the Rangers from calling up Howe.

Howe said he was not worried about any last-minute decisions to bar his return to the majors.

"That's not my problem... that's their problem," Howe said.

"Whether I agree, or not, with what they decide, there's nothing I can do about it. That's what I have lawyers for."

Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said he didn't think any public confirmation from the commissioner's office was needed.

"We're going to do what we want to do until we're told otherwise," Valentine said. "I have no alternative plans."

Since his last suspension, when he was with the San Jose of the Class A-California League last year, Howe pitched in Mexico and worked out in Japan.

"If I thought for a moment I couldn't make it back, I would have quit long ago," Howe said at an impromptu news conference in the Texas dugout.

"As long as the door stayed open even a crack," Howe said, "I was going to keep kicking on it."

All the Texas Rangers want me to do, is do what I do best... get somebody out," Howe said. "I'm not going to worry about the commissioner's office or anybody else."

Carey seeks football games

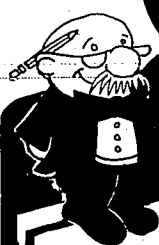

CAREY — With Clark County dropping its football program this fall due to declining enrollment, the Carey Panthers are seeking two football games for this fall.

Coach Heber Kirkland said the Panthers, who normally play eight-man football, have open dates on Sept. 11 and 26 and Oct. 9.

"Although we are in an eight-man program, we would entertain thoughts of an 11-man game or a boys game with one of the larger schools around. We need the games," Kirkland said.

Interested coaches may contact Kirkland at 823-4480.

Jobless rate hits decade low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The civilian unemployment rate dropped to a decade low of 6 percent in July, the government said Friday.

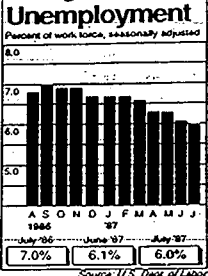

President Reagan used the report to press his campaign against a tax increase and protectionist trade legislation.

A record 112.7 million people, or 63 percent of the non-institutionalized population, were working last month, an increase of 470,000 jobholders over June, the Labor Department said.

The number of jobs, meanwhile, dropped by 36,000 to 7,244,000, the lowest since March 1980, sending the civilian unemployment rate down 0.1 percentage points to match the 6 percent level last achieved in December 1979.

"It's particularly important that this breakthrough of the 6 percent mark does not come in a year, as it did in 1979," Reagan said. "There were those who said the low rates of unemployment coupled with low rates of inflation simply were unattainable."

Appearing before White House reporters less than two hours after the July job figures were released, Reagan used the occasion to push his "economic bill of rights" opposing tax and domestic spending increase and bills to restrict imports of foreign-made products.

"The days of economic stagnation are not a distant memory to the American people," he said. "That's why it was the right decision to take to the country the message I have during the past six months, that deficit spending, tax increases and protectionism threaten our hard-won prosperity. I believe this is a message the American people are responding to."

Reagan focused on the lower of two unemployment figures reported monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics: an alternate 5.9 percent rate that includes the 1.7 million Americans in the uniformed armed forces as part of the labor force.

That lower, alternate rate was not even calculated until 1983 and most economists still prefer the civilian-only figure as representing a truer reflection of changes in the job market, since the military has no unemployment.

The July job gains were spurred by an annual, seasonally adjusted growth in manufacturing payrolls and more than offset a decline of 190,000 in total U.S. employment in June.

The civilian unemployment rate has dropped a full percentage point from the 7 percent level in August 1986 and a 4.4 percentage points from a recession high of 10.7 percent in November and December of 1982.

In the past year alone, 2.8 million more Americans have gone to work: 1.4 million adult women, 1.2 million adult men and 200,000 teen-agers.

A separate survey of business establishments showed a seasonally adjusted net increase of 300,000 payroll jobs in July, 70,000 of them in manufacturing despite 38,000 layoffs in the auto industry due to model changeovers and inventory reductions.

Unlike the household survey from which the jobs rate is derived, a person could be counted twice or three times in the payroll numbers if he or she holds more than one job. The household survey counts each person only once.

With factory employment now 150,000 above what it was at the beginning of the year, private economists said there no longer can be any doubt that manufacturing is on the rebound after several years of sluggishness.

"Manufacturing not only has begun a recovery, it's on a very substantial upturn," said Allen Slight, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers, a New York investment house. "Factory employment has increased for five straight months and in non-durable goods industries, it is up in 11 straight months."

However, Labor Statistics Commissioner Janet L. Norwood told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that half of the manufacturing job gains for 1987 appeared in July.

"Manufacturing has still only recouped about one-half of the jobs lost in 1982," she said.

lost during the 1981-82 recession," she said.

AFL-CIO chief economist, Rudy Oswald, defending the labor federation's push for trade legislation, said there are still 2 million fewer employed factory workers now than when Reagan took office.

Labor Secretary William E. Brock said Congress should reflect on the 6 percent unemployment rate during its August recess before House and Senate negotiators seek to resolve differences in trade bills passed by the two chambers.

"The true test of an effective trade bill will be one that enables the United States to maintain our productive, competitive economy, that continues to generate expanded employment opportunities for all Americans," he said.

Both bills remove some presidential discretion on providing tariff or quota relief for import-battered U.S. industries and contain several other provisions opposed by the administration.

The House bill, for example, calls for mandatory retaliation against countries such as Japan that maintain large trade surpluses with the United States. The Senate version would require employers to give workers 60 days advance notice of plant closings and layoffs.

The administration on Thursday said its projections for the average civilian jobless rate for the year down from 6.8 percent to 6.3 percent. Including the July number, the average so far is 6.4 percent.

Retail trade employment rose by 60,000 last month after sluggish performances in May and June. Business and medical services created 80,000 jobs, about their average monthly since gain early in the year.

A dark spot in July was an increase of 325,000, to 5.6 million, in the number of part-time workers who wanted full-time jobs but could not find them.

The number of people unemployed for 15 weeks or more fell by 150,000 in July to 1.9 million, the lowest since June 1980.

Among various groups, the government gave this breakdown of jobless rates for July:

- All men, 6.4 percent, down from 6.5 percent in June;
- Adult women, 6.4, up from 6.2;
- Whites, 6.1, down from 6.2;
- Blacks, 12.6, down from 12.7;
- Hispanics, 7.9, down from 8.5;
- Teen-agers, 16.5, down from 16.9.

—Black teen-agers, 31.4, down from 35.1.

Stocks struggle but fail to surpass 2,600 level

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks struggled to a gain Friday, primed by the previous session's rally and encouraging economic news but restrained by pre-weekend selling that kept the Dow Jones average from conquering the 2,600 barrier.

Wall Street's closely watched index of 30 industrials, which reached its 48th record high of the year Thursday at 2,694.23, surpassed 2,600 a few times during the session, but late profit-taking pushed the index back and it closed down 2.23 to 2,592. Some broader key indicators reached new records.

Analysts said despite another solid gain by technology issues, a stronger dollar, a decrease in the unemployment rate and growing demand for U.S. stocks from abroad, many investors cashed their gains, partly because of fears that any weekend hostility in the Persian Gulf might hurt the market Monday.

Gaining stocks outnumbered losers by more than an 8-to-7 margin in composite New York Stock Exchange trading, with 880 up, 727 down and 391 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 212.66 million compared with 191.95 million the previous session.

Technology-related stocks gained again, leading the rally Thursday. IBM rose 1% to 164.94, Digital Equipment rose 1% to 170.94, Hewlett Packard rose 1% to 86.94 and Honeywell rose 1% to 82.94.

Several airline stocks did well, largely because of sharply higher passenger loads reported for July. AMR rose 1% to 65.94, Delta rose 1% to 59.94, NWA rose 2% to 70.94 and Texas Air rose to 39.94.

Pharmaceutical stocks also did well, repeating their strong performance of Thursday. Lilly rose 1% to 98.94, Merck rose 2% to 29.94 and Abbott rose 1% to 62.94.

Singer jumped 4% to 61.94 after a group led by financier T. Boone Pickens said it was seeking government clearance to purchase up to 15 percent of the company.

The NYSE composite index measuring all listed issues rose 0.50 to a record 180.87.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials rose 0.84 to 378.21.

S&P's 500-stock composite index rose 0.65 to 317.19.
