Listing slightly, mine-damaged tanker Texaco Caribbean limps toward port

American tanker strikes mine floating outside straits area

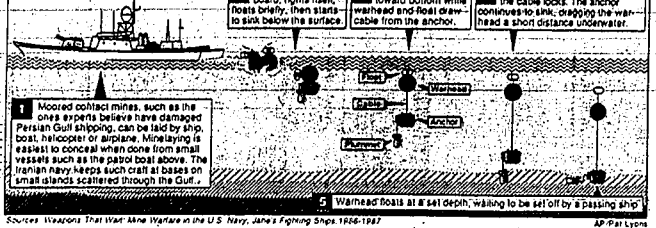

The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — An American-operated supertanker loaded with Iranian oil hit a mine Monday just outside the Persian Gulf, and three reflagged Kuwaiti ships were reported moving slowly toward home under U.S. Navy escort.

nearly a month. It said Iran had violated the U.N. Security Council's July 20 cease-fire resolution and deserved "back-breaking" painful blows.

lating that the mine drifted down from the strait, where Iran completed four days of naval maneuvers code-named "Martyrdom" on Friday, but a shipping official based in Kuwait said it probably was moored to the sea floor. He said coastal currents move toward Hormuz in this season rather than away from it.

Former steel executive to fill commerce post

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Monday said he would nominate C. William Verity Jr., a retired steel company executive who has urged closer economic ties with the Soviet Union, to replace the late Malcolm Baldrige as commerce secretary.

WILLIAM VERITY JR. Successor to Baldrige

co-chairman of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council, a private organization of U.S. and Soviet executives that advocates expanded trade between the two nations.

Reagan urged the Senate to act quickly to confirm Verity when it returns from its August recess.

programs, "produced an outstanding report," Reagan said on Monday.

In a May 1984 interview with The New York Times, Verity said that the Soviets were able to buy technology elsewhere and only U.S. manufacturers were being hurt by a host of restrictions on trade with the Soviet bloc.

Higginson to return to office

The Associated Press

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus appointed a new director for the Department of Water Resources, and the appointee should be familiar to many state leaders.

Ketchum boy dies in San Francisco

By The Times-News

KETCHUM — Twelve-year-old Carter Smith of Ketchum died Sunday in a San Francisco hospital, says funeral director Russ Mikel at the Wood River Chapel in Ketchum.

district's legal counsel and a school district health official was charged with making a non-binding recommendation to the board.

On Sept. 1, Higginson replaces Kenneth Dunn, who has retired as director after 20 years with the department. When Dunn announced his retirement last month, Andrus said at the time he was looking for someone with solid professional credentials and who knows his way around the Idaho water market.

The Blaine County School District already had adopted an AIDS policy before receiving the request to admit Smith.

We can't protect our kids from AIDS," said Trustee Kathleen Gouley after the vote. "The kids are going to be exposed in everyday contact (such as) going to a grocery store."

Higginson was Water Resources director under Andrus from 1971-77, and then when Andrus was appointed secretary of the Interior by President Jimmy Carter, Andrus named Higginson as commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation.

Special Navy team target of probe

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The Navy's secret hostage rescue team, Seal Team Six, is the subject of a wide-ranging investigation of financial misconduct that so far has resulted in the federal indictment of one former member and court-martial guilty pleas by two others on theft charges.

The former Seal is charged with falsifying travel and training vouchers and stealing a $3,800 piece of scuba diving equipment in 1983 and 1984. The two others confessed to stealing several thousand dollars in 1985 and 1986.

Investigators have been focusing on expenditures of training and procurement funds, sources said, and evidence is known to have been found linking any thefts to the team's operations. But investigators are examining what one called "a roomful" of records and documents dealing with millions of dollars of expenditures by the team since it was formed in 1980.

Little is publicly known about Seal Team Six because its counterterrorism mission is classified. But knowledgeable sources said it was sent to Grenada during the U.S. invasion in 1983, and dispatched to the Middle East during the 1985 hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship.

The sources said some team members were on the ground in Beirut during the same period as part of the search for CIA station chief William Buckley, who was kidnapped and later killed by an Iranian-backed group.

In addition, the Navy is investigating a separate incident in which several former members of the unit and its original commander are being sued in federal court in Los Angeles by a civilian security officer who alleges he was kidnapped and beaten by an overseas U.S. Navy security unit, code-named "Red Cell Team," during a training exercise to test vulnerability of a Navy weapons storage depot to terrorist attack.

Defector tells of Castro's high living

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuban President Fidel Castro has a home in each of Cuba's 14 provinces, a fleet of yachts and a Swiss bank account he uses to satisfy any personal whim, according to a high-ranking Cuban defector.

In an interview with Radio Marti, Florentino Aspilaga, a veteran intelligence agent who defected two months ago, also said that Castro has four children studying in Moscow. Castro has one son, Fidelito, 37, who has never been officially acknowledged.

On June 6, Aspilaga slipped across the border into Austria from Czechoslovakia, where he had served as chief of Cuban intelligence.

"His present whereabouts is unknown although defectors generally are brought to the Washington area for debriefings by American intelligence officials.

Rodolfo Marti, the Voice of America broadcast operation for Cuba, made available a summary of its interview with Aspilaga, which took place on Aug. 3.

According to Aspilaga, the housing complex where Castro lives in Havana is equipped with every luxury. "Nothing is missing there of what is not available to the people," he is quoted as saying.

The complex also includes hundreds of houses for his personal guards, he said.

Aspilaga said it is logical for a head of state to have use of a yacht, but given Castro's politics, it is illogical for him to have a fleet.

When Castro turned 60 last year, Aspilaga said, one intelligence agent who had an illicit business sent him $4.2 million as a present for deposit in a Swiss bank account.

Pentagon sources in Washington said the three Kuwaiti tankers and their Navy escorts were moving north — "making it slow and easy," as one put it — after anchoring overnight off Saudi Arabia, about 200 miles from Kuwait.

Brent Sadler of the British television network ITN said in a telephone report from a chartered boat, however, that the U.S.-Kuwaiti convoy had not moved by dusk. He said the tankers' lights were visible but the U.S. warships were blacked out. Sources who monitor ship movements in the gulf said they could not confirm the convoy had sailed.

The Texaco Caribbean struck the mine about eight miles northeast of Fujairah, a port in the United Arab Emirates, and about 30 miles south of the Horn of entrance. It anchored off Fujairah afterward.

It is owned by Lexington Tankships Ltd., a subsidiary of Texaco Panama Inc. At Texaco's headquarters in White Plains, N.Y., spokeswoman Anita Larsen would not confirm that the cargo was Iranian oil.

The company said the tanker was under a "single-voyage" charter to the Norwegian shipping and trading company "Santorum" and "under orders to proceed to northwestern Europe, with a cargo belonging to that company."

In Washington, State Department officials said current U.S. restrictions on transactions with Iran involve shipments of war material and dual-use items. They said they were unaware of any restriction on American tankers transporting Iranian oil.

Iranian oil sales to United States last year totaled $505 million. This was the first known mining incident in the busy Gulf of Oman tanker anchorage, a resupply and staging area for ships entering and leaving the gulf. The U.S. Navy uses it as an assembly point for convoys of Kuwaiti tankers sailing under the American flag.

Sources at Fujairah said the Texaco Caribbean left Larak early in the morning and was maneuvering to anchor when the explosion occurred.

Tehran radio said Iran's naval maneuvers last week proved its "total readiness" to turn the gulf into a "killing field for the aggressors."

It said Iran could arm naval units with "shore-to-sea and surface-to-air" missiles, all of which are ready to be put into operation.

Hours before the Texaco Caribbean was damaged, a show struck a mine eight miles off Bahrain in the central Persian Gulf but no injuries were reported, shipping sources said.

sharply away, causing the missiles to miss, the two newspapers said.

None of the U.S. jets were damaged in the incident, and whether the suspected Iranian planes spotted by the P-3 on radar had been visually identified at any point.

But one official said it appeared the planes had been monitored taking off from the Iranian naval base at Bandar Abbas on the coast of the Strait of Hormuz. Iran is known to have a small number of American-built F-4 Phantoms at the Bandar Abbas base.

The sources refused to say whether the incident had occurred during daylight hours, nor would they say if the missiles could have been fired in such a way as to serve as a warning shot.

The official noted, however, the United States had warned both Iran and Iraq in May that American military forces would respond to threatening moves rather than wait for any attack to be launched.

The warning was issued in the wake of the May 17 attack on the frigate Stark by an Iraqi warplane, Iraq characterized that attack, which killed 37 U.S. crewmen, as a case of mistaken identity. The Stark did not take defensive action against the Iraqi warplane, believing it to be friendly.

Boulder strikes Colorado tour bus, leaves 6 dead, 16 injured

WINTER PARK, Colo. (AP) — A huge boulder dislodged by a state highway worker rolled off a state tainside Monday and smashed into a moving sightseeing bus, killing six people and injuring 16 others, authorities said.

Dan Hopkins, spokesman for the Colorado Highway Department, said a crew was clearing rock above the roadway and that a front-end loader dislodged a large rock.

The worker had pushed the boulder on a large flat area, he said.

However, the rock proceeded down the edge of the large flat area down through several hundred feet of trees onto the highway below where it collided with the bus, Hopkins said, reading from a prepared statement.

At least five of the 28 people aboard the Gray Line tour bus were seriously injured. Only six passengers were not hurt.

Ivy Shaffer, a flight nurse with American Medical International Air-lift in Denver, was aboard one of two helicopters that landed on the two-lane road near the demolished bus.

"The first words I uttered to myself were, 'Oh, my God, there must be more than six people dead,'" said Shaffer, 30.

"The right-hand side of the bus had been totally filleted open. The seats were crushed, and metal was all over the road. And the bodies were peacefully laid on the side of the road near the mountain. They were covered with blankets."

The victims were American and foreign tourists on a one-day sight-seeing tour of the Rocky Mountains. Their names were not immediately available, but authorities said three of the dead were women and three were men.

"It looked like an explosion ripped the side of the bus apart," said Sgt. Larry Tolar of the Colorado State Patrol. "No one saw one this bad. It had to be a nightmare."

Tolar said the rock "came out of a freeline and bang, there it was."

The boulder, which authorities said weighed several tons and measured 17 feet across and 6 feet high, struck the bus just before 11 a.m. as it neared the foot of the heavily traveled 11,314-foot-high Berthoud Pass on U.S. 40.

Mark Thornton of the Grand County sheriff's office said the boulder hit the bus several miles south of this resort community in the Rocky Mountains. The accident site is about 60 miles northwest of Denver.

The bus, driven by nine-year-old Gray Line veteran Rod West, remained upright in the middle of the highway.

Plea to presidential threat charge brings 3 years in jail

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A man who kept a bullet with President Reagan's name on it in his motel room was sentenced Monday to three years in prison after pleading guilty to a charge of threatening the chief executive.

U.S. District Judge Robert McNichols said he would ask federal Bureau of Prisons officials to enroll Robert Warren Nelson, Jr., 23, in a mental health program.

The Tacoma man was convicted of one count of making threats against the president after Secret Service agents found a bullet in his Spokane motel room Oct. 29, two days before the president made a stop in the city.

The tag attached to the gun read: "Reagan Will Die," and "For You Mr. President."

Agents wanted Nelson's room after a motel guest found a napkin with handwritten notes detailing movement of security at the Spokane Coliseum where Reagan was scheduled to speak.

Hanoi hints Americans may be alive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam insists it does not have any Americans missing in the war but suggests it is possible there are some elsewhere in Southeast Asia, presidential envoy John W. Vessey Jr. said Monday.

Vessey, a four-star general and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said he would not speculate on whether there are Americans being held against their will in Vietnam.

"I don't know whether there are any there. There are certainly all sorts of evidence to show that some might be there, but yet it has been a long time since the end of the war," Vessey said.

Vessey talked with reporters at the White House after briefing President Reagan on his three-day talks in Hanoi with Vietnamese officials on the POW-MIA issue. Vessey was appointed Reagan's special envoy on the matter last January.

He said the United States and Vietnam agreed that Hanoi will accelerate its efforts to find missing Americans or their remains, and Washington will send experts to Hanoi to look into "humanitarian concerns that the Vietnamese have" — such as war orphans and people crippled by the fighting.

"We agreed that we would address these as humanitarian concerns and not link them to broader political issues, such as normalization of diplomatic relations, resumption of trade or economic aid," he said.

More meetings will be held in Hanoi at the end of the month on the POW-MIA issue and the humanitarian issues, he said.

Vessey said the Vietnamese insisted "there are no live American prisoners under the control of the Vietnamese government. The Vietnamese have acknowledged that there are some wild parts of their country...."

Truman adviser Keyserling dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leon H. Keyserling, an architect of the New Deal and an economic adviser to President Truman, has died after a long illness. He was 79.

Keyserling, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers during the Truman administration, died Sunday in George Washington University Hospital.

While a legislative aide in Congress in the 1930s, he was a draftsman of public works programs, wage and hour and collective bargaining provisions, housing measures, Social Security and labor relations laws.

Under Truman, Keyserling was vice chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in 1946-49 and its chairman in 1949-53.

After leaving government in 1953, he became a private consulting economist and practiced law. In 1954, he founded the Council on Economic Progress and served as its president and director.

Storm dissipates

FORT POLK, La. (AP) — A tropical depression dissipated Monday across central Louisiana and the southern edge of Texas, spawning thunderstorms and a funnel cloud after washing ashore from the Gulf of Mexico.

If the weather system's sustained wind had increased to 39 mph, it would have been the first tropical storm of the 1987 Atlantic hurricane season and named Arlene. Wind had gusted to 45 mph off the coast, but its sustained wind didn't even reach 20 mph when it crossed the coast, said Sid Sigafoos of the Coast Guard office in Sabine Pass, Texas.

Hart's failed candidacy still carries a powerful message

By the time Gary Hart withdrew from the presidential race on May 8, I had worked for him as a full-time staff member for more than four years.

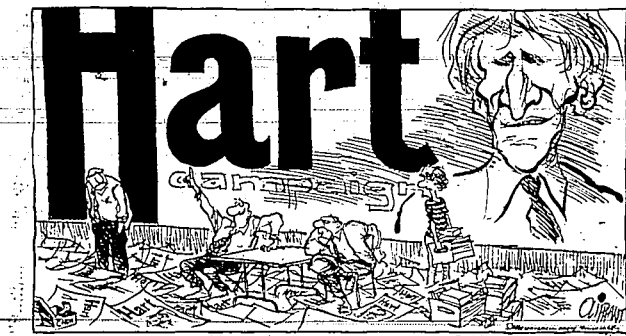

I am intensely disappointed in Hart's actions that led to the demise of his campaign but I still believe in what he stood for. The message of Hart's candidacy had a very powerful appeal to millions of Americans and especially to those of my generation. That is something no candidate in 1988 would be wise to ignore.

Beth Smith

I was born in 1957, a child of the baby boom. For most of my life I've been aware of this special generational distinction and have shared a certain ambivalence about being part of it. We are different. We are many. And we can change the world.

Between 1946 and 1964, 76 million babies were born in America — making our generation the largest in American history. Until recently, our influence has primarily been social and cultural — from music and art to television, sex, race and war. This generation, however, has yet to unleash the full extent of its political might on the nation. Since 1984, when Hart stunned the political world by sweeping the New England primary contests, pollsters have been examining, theorizing and reexamining the possible effects of a baby-boomer voting surge on electoral politics in 1988. No one is sure what these voters might do, but no one in the political world is taking them for granted.

In shaping their appeal to baby boomers, Democratic candidates would be wise to look at the Hart candidacy. Hart's 1984 campaign awoke thousands of young adults from their decade-long sleep and brought them to the polls. Democratic pollster Pat Caddell spoke of this phenomenon at the CATO Institute in 1985. "Understand that Gary Hart, after the New Hampshire primary, gained more ground in both the race for the nomination and in the polls than anyone had ever done in such a short time... It was a result of the velocity of the movement on the part of the baby-boom generation."

The numbers bear this out. Voters under the age of 45 cast more than half of Hart's total vote in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Georgia, New York and Pennsylvania. In Nebraska, Hart completely dominated among voters under 44, winning that age group with a margin of 3 to 1. Hart beat Mondale among voters between 18 and 29 in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Illinois, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana.

When we choose our next president in November 1988, 61.5 percent of Americans eligible to vote will be under 45. The Hart example demonstrates that the candidate with the right message can move these voters to participate, vote and actually influence an election.

All the stale jokes aside, Gary Hart in fact had new ideas. Since he first articulated them, some of his ideas have become a standard part of the political debate. But he was the innovator and he continued to refine his ideas and search for others. Those ideas were the key to his stunning success in the early 1984 primaries and his ability to win a total of 26 primaries and caucuses. The large contingent of people who supported him in '84 and '87 did so because — as Hart himself often said — ideas have power.

Hart's approach to most issues was to seek the third alternative. He believed the debate on most issues had become hopelessly polarized; that both the left and the right argued for policies of the past that were based on the problems of the past. It was time, he thought, to strike out in a new direction, to find new solutions.

Finding the third alternative meant realizing that in most cases, the world had changed so much that the debate was being waged on irrelevant questions. To look at solutions anew, contended Hart, we had to reexamine the relevance of the debate itself.

Military reform is a good example of Hart's approach. The traditional defense debate in Congress was based on spending question — more vs. less. In 1980 Hart and his Republican colleague, Rep. William Whitehurst, advanced the notion that it wasn't a question of spending at all. The question should be: what must be done to build an effective defense? To answer that question required looking at how the world had changed. Sheer force was no longer necessarily the best defense. Hart argued that today's world required a defense that was smarter, leaner, more effective. The debate slowly began to turn away from spending limits toward discussion of new approaches to hardware, warfare and training personnel.

Economic policy is another example. In the '84 election Democrats were still arguing about how to divide the economic pie. Hart closed the last chapter of that debate by challenging the frontrunner to look instead at how to make the pie bigger. Hart argued that the changing world economy required investments to prepare students, modernize industries and retrain workers. Presidential power must work to unite government, business and labor in agreements to recapture our leadership in the new global economy.

Hart challenged Americans to participate, to set aside narrow individual or institutional agendas, to make contributions for the national good. Hart talked about a "true patriotism" that asked each of us to give something back to the country that has given us so much. If we want better teachers, we should pay them more. But teachers must also meet more rigorous standards and parents must make a commitment to participate in their children's education. Government must help workers prepare for transition into a new economy, but employers must contribute by modernizing and employs must be willing to be retrained.

An emphasis on ideas will help Democratic candidates capture the baby boomers. The key to this generation's involvement is not simply to evoke heartfelt memories of earlier activism. It is ironic that the candidate who seems to have done the most research and is making the most obvious appeal to the baby-boom generation is the one who has it most wrong.

When I hear "the speech" Sen. Joseph Biden gives on the stump I feel as if he's trying to lead us into the future by tugging on our emotions of the past. I feel manipulated. Evoking the emotions aroused by heroes of our past — John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King — may make us feel good, but it doesn't make the country any better prepared for the future.

We've had enough of the kind of leadership that simply makes us feel good. Gary Hart got us as far as he did by engaging people's intellects, not their emotions. Yes, in the late '60s and '70s, my generation was passionate, but passionate in our commitment to some very big ideas — ending segregation, sexism and the war.

I don't want to look to the past for clues to the future, the 1960 election is an important example. We remember JFK with emotions intensified by tragedy. His campaign, however, was not based on passion — far from it.

In late 1959 Douglas Cater wrote an article in The Reporter magazine entitled, "The Cool Eye of John F. Kennedy." In describing Kennedy he said, "Talking to the Senator, one senses a cool detachment and a business in which he is deeply involved." Cater concluded, "It may be that after eight years of emotional involvement with a father image, the United States will be ready for a bright, diligent, self-disciplined and thoroughly unemotional young man."

Douglas Cater was right. By November of 1960 Americans were ready for an intellectually rigorous president. I believe such a time has come again. We've become comforted and coddled by a reassuring, fatherly president. But Americans now know that our country's problems are serious, that dealing with them requires collective action. Most Americans, including baby boomers, are too busy moving ahead to spend time pouring over scrapbooks of the past. The candidate who can offer ideas to harness America's future will unleash the potential of the new generation's political clout. The way to the hearts of today's voters is through their minds.

Beth Smith was Gary Hart's communications director and is now a political and public-policy consultant in Denver.

Demolishing water system just doesn't make any sense

Kevin Starr

Northern California's Hetch Hetchy water system is arguably among the engineering marvels of the United States.

Completed in 1934, it cost $100 million and the lives of 67 men and one woman. Its approximate value in today's dollars runs into the billions.

It took more than 20 years to construct three dams, five major reservoirs, three hydroelectric-power plants, 89 miles of aqueduct pipeline and 66 miles of tunnels — including the 29-mile Tunnel Range bore, at the time the longest tunnel in the world. Today the Hetch Hetchy system is functioning perfectly and paying for itself.

A masterpiece of engineering, bringing the waters of the Sierra to the San Francisco Bay Area by gravity alone, the Hetch Hetchy can be expected to last for hundreds of years.

More than one-third of the San Francisco Bay Area's population — the fourth-largest urban region in the country — depends on Hetch Hetchy for water. With its vast capacity and delivery system, which could easily be integrated into California's north-south water lines, the Hetch Hetchy also functions as a valuable hedge against that drought that ever haunts the collective imagination of our massively irrigated society.

A week or so ago, Secretary of the Interior Donald P. Hodel set before his own predecessor and, we are told, with his own gors tapped out a memo suggesting that O'Shaughnessy Dam, the linchpin of the Hetch Hetchy system, be demolished. The Hetch Hetchy reservoir, the secretary recommended, should be drained, and the Hetch Hetchy valley be reforested as a public park to relieve pressure on the Yosemite Valley.

The proposed Auburn Dam, the secretary suggested, could be utilized to meet Bay Area water needs. Incredibly, Hodel's proposal — so unnecessary, so wasteful, so irresponsible — is being taken seriously in some quarters, or is at least being entertained as plausible.

Portions of the environmental community, for one thing, have never ceased to mourn the loss of Hetch Hetchy Valley to a reservoir.

John Muir called the Hetch Hetchy the Little Yosemite. The great naturalist led the fierce opposition to the project and, it is said, died of a broken heart when he was defeated. Hetch Hetchy Valley was tragically sacrificed in the creation of the water system.

German philosopher Georg Hegel suggested that tragedy is not so much the conflict between good and evil as it is the conflict of good versus good: The good of the Hetch Hetchy Valley was sacrificed for the urbanization of the San Francisco Peninsula. It was a trade-off, tragic in its consequences for the valley but necessary for the growth of the Bay Area. Los Angeles experienced the same mixed result when its aqueduct began to dry up the Owens Valley in the 1920s.

Some environmentalists have never accepted the Raker Act of 1913, which authorized the damming of the Hetch Hetchy. But is Hodel himself such an extreme environmentalist?

To answer this question one must first deal with the irrationality of his proposal. The municipally owned and operated Hetch Hetchy is working and paid for. The federal Bureau of Reclamation's Auburn Dam, by contrast, which Hodel proposes as a substitute, has been stalled for years because it is too expensive and is growing even more so, and because environmentalists oppose it with the same ferocity with which they opposed the Hetch Hetchy project in 1913. It is therefore absurd even to suggest replacing a working dam with a substitute that has very little chance of being built.

Is this, then, why Hodel has made his recommendation: to get the stalled Auburn Dam going again? Is he trying to buy off the opposition of the environmentalists by trading Hetch Hetchy for Auburn?

On a deeper level, is the secretary getting fatigued from the lack of momentum coming from being the nation's No. 1 environmental officer in an administration whose environmental philosophy drives militant environmentalists mad with desperation? Does Hodel want to employ the Hetch Hetchy as a sacrifice offering, using this absurd suggestion to buy respectability among militant environmentalists?

Is the secretary's stated aim — the restoration of the Hetch Hetchy as a public park to handle pressure on Yosemite — worth such an enormous expenditure of money? Would it be more prudent to encourage better usage of state and national park systems, so woefully underutilized outside such major attractions as Yosemite, Grand Canyon and Yellowstone? Can a society faced with, among other things, an impending crisis of caring for dying AIDS patients — a crisis that will soon threaten the public-health structures of our nation — afford so cavalierly to spend $6 billion to replace a perfectly functioning Hetch Hetchy system? Are the school systems, the libraries, the transportation systems of our nation so perfectly functioning that they could not be helped by the infusion of $6 billion?

In a response common to Washingtonians, Hodel is seeking to please a special interest, the militant environmentalists. To their credit, however, even militant environmentalists have never in their wildest dreams proposed that the Hetch Hetchy be dismantled.

We should plan before rushing into a pool site

We have a wonderful opportunity to enhance our community by planning for a new large park with the swimming pool as the anchor. Twin Falls is due for a family-oriented park, as Harmon used to be before softball became popular. ### Local IRS 'soap opera' inspires Pocatello man

I've been watching your community soap opera Wayne Jones vs. The IRS and I, Father of the IRS and Idaho State Tax Commission, with great interest. The city of Twin Falls should consider itself honored to be the home of a true American patriot with so much courage and conviction.

The day is at hand when we will all awake to find ourselves ruled by the iron hand of tyranny. Our children's heritage and birthright will have been stolen from them along with any hope for happiness in their future. In that day, we will recognize men like Mr. Jones for what they really are, modern day Minutemen, freedom fighters and true American heroes.

In the meantime, those of us who don't have the courage to join men like Wayne Jones in their struggle against Zionists Bolsheviks should at least give them our support. If we are too cowardly to do even that, we had better admit that we don't love our own children enough to fight for their future, surrender what little manhood we have left (if any), and lie down in the gutter and whimper like the sick yellow dogs that we are.

Cable solution is to charge stations

The current battle between the cable company and K49AZ centers around the channel placement. The main argument is that stations located between channels 2-13 have a higher viewership than stations located on the other cable channels.

The claim is that about 90 percent of the cable viewers do not view the additional cable channels, a fact I find ironic considering they are paying for them. Accurate information on the exact number of viewers unable to view the additional cable channels is lacking, but I was able to learn the following.

The subscribers rent converters from the cable company. What was forgotten was 63 percent of the viewers own VCRs capable of receiving the additional cable channels, the numbers of converters purchased from electronic outlets that 70 percent of new TVs are designed to receive cable channels and the number of pirated converters available in kit form capable of defeating scrambling used on the cable system.

Altogether the numbers exceed 100 percent but a more accurate estimate would be 80 to 90 percent. What that means is that between 10 percent and 20 percent, or an estimated 1,400 to 2,800 potential viewers are unable to receive the additional channels.

A recent phone survey of 488 active cable viewers indicated that 3 were watching K49AZ. Point six percent (62 percent) of the 1,400-2,800 potential viewers translates to between 9 and 18 additional viewers.

Does K49AZ honestly expect 18 additional viewers to bring in $150,000 advertising dollars? The cable system in itself is a broadcast station in a sense. The cable system uses most frequently cable channel 10 for that purpose. The cable system falls under regulation by the Federal Communications Commission which was confronted by the same situation on other cable systems. The controversy over channel placement.

The end result was a ruling that allows the cable operator to place a TV station on any cable channel it desires. Perhaps that is why K49AZ went to the city with the hope they would overrule the FCC. Changing the channel on a cable system is not as simple as turning the knob on your TV.

The job can be as inexpensive as demodulator adjustment or as expensive as purchasing a new demodulator. Perhaps that is why K49AZ is asking the cable system to bear the cost of channel restructuring? What about the station that gets bumped so that K49AZ can be there?

Did K49AZ think about the possible lawsuit from the station that gets bumped? What K49AZ is asking the cable system is tantamount to asking KVM-TV for the right to broadcast on channel 11 after they sign off at 1 a.m. using their equipment and power at no additional expense.

K49AZ is not the only station viewing for a change of position on the cable system. There may be an underlying cause, the future deregulation by the FCC may allow the cable operators to discontinue the mandatory carrying of local stations.

As a result, unpopular local stations may be dropped from the cable system in favor of distant stations with higher ratings. This could make it very difficult for small stations to stay in business.

The FCC never intended for the channel number of a TV station to indicate its rating. Channels are assigned on the basis of frequency availability. It is only fair that channels on the cable system follow the same rule as the FCC as first come first served.

The current placement of K49AZ on the cable system puts it next to a station ranking the eighth highest ratings which may help K49AZ's ratings. A move to a lower cable channel number between channels having lower ratings may actually prove detrimental to K49AZ's current rating.

Having worked in a broadcast industry myself, I am aware of the many problems that constantly plague it. I believe in letting the marketplace make the market. If there is a demand for something sell it.

The suggestion I have to offer is, if networks have to pay for time on TV stations, why shouldn't TV stations have to pay for the privilege on cable system coverage?

The lower channel number, the higher the cost. That way, stations can pay for the cable channel they want and "low power" cable subscribers can get a break from the ever increasing subscription, maybe if we're lucky even a reduction.

Claims it's killing competitiveness

Iacocca attacks love for lawsuits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee A. Iacocca told the legal establishment on Monday that the willingness of Americans to sue "at the drop of a hat" is killing the nation's ability to compete in the world marketplace.

"Unbridled advocacy is the problem today and it's getting out of hand," Iacocca said in a speech to the American Bar Association's annual convention.

"We've been going a little crazy and we have to stop, even if we have to compromise some of our rights to do it," Iacocca said. He warned the final judges "will always be laymen like me. We're simple-minded. We will always ask ourselves the simple questions, 'Does this make sense?' and 'Is this fair?'"

In this 200th anniversary of the nation's constitution, Iacocca said, the best way to honor the document might be to develop ways — of reducing lawsuits through compromise.

He denounced the proliferation of personal injury suits, stressing that all products have risks and only irresponsible conduct by manufacturers should be grounds for suing.

"Automobiles are getting safer and safer, yet lawsuits keep going up and up," he said.

Singling out the $10.3 billion award to Pennzoil Corp. in its legal battle with Texaco as an example of excessive damage awards, he compared the size of the judgment to capital punishment.

"Someone got the chair at those prices," Iacocca said. "One of these days we're going to wake up and say, 'The hell with it. It's too risky to compete.'"

Iacocca joked that the best thing lawyers in America can do for their country is to go to Japan to practice.

"There are about as many lawyers there as we have auto wreckers," he said. "I don't want to sound facetious, but this is your chance to serve your country. Just get them to buy the idea of punitive damages."

Iacocca added that if someone is irresponsible, he should pay for it; but he said lawsuits should not be used to punish normal risks that can't be avoided.

"We sue each other at the drop of a hat," he said, adding that he has seen estimates that Americans spend $30 billion a year suing each other.

Iacocca also poked fun at himself and other carmakers.

He noted the ABA convention here this week is focusing on serious issues, while, when automobile manufacturers get together, having fun is uppermost on the agenda. "Perhaps the two groups should switch places," he said.

"You would go to Las Vegas and listen to Willie Nelson. We would get together and read up on the odometer-law," he said, referring to a recent federal probe that suggested some Chrysler executives had driven cars, reset the odometers and then sold them as new.

"That's a joke, not an admission," Iacocca said, addressing Attorney General Edwin Meese, who was sitting nearby on the stage at the War Memorial Opera House.

Later, at a news conference, Meese said calls for his resignation by critics who contended that he tried to cover up the Iran-Contra affair were "political silliness."

"I was asked about highly partisan ultra-liberal people in Congress. I indicated that was political silliness," Meese said.

Nine Democratic House members Friday signed a request for Meese to resign, contending he tried to cover up the Iran-Contra affair.

Pentagon denies misleading reporters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials on Monday denied they had intentionally misled reporters, causing incorrect news reports that the next Persian Gulf convoy wouldn't begin until this week.

However, they said the news reports, based on information from Defense Department officials, added an attractive element of surprise when it came time to make the decision to proceed over the weekend instead.

"There was no disinformation or misinformation campaign," said one official. "It would be stupid for us to do something like that, particularly in the wake of the Iran-Contra affair."

He said any information officials provide is subject to change, adding, "The situation is too volatile to be locking ourselves into a publicized schedule."

Robert Sims, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, also addressed the issue during a briefing Monday, warning reporters the Defense Department was serious about enforcing a news blackout about the Persian Gulf operations.

Sims disclosed the clampdown, which he had alluded to last week, was prompted by an Aug. 5 memo from Defense Secretary Caspar W.

Weinberger.

The memo, entitled "Loose Lips Sink Ships," warned officials in the military bureaucracy of the need to maintain security.

"I wish to remind all in the department of our obligation to protect operational information so as to ensure the security of this mission and the well-being of our personnel," Weinberger wrote.

Sims added, "The fact is, it may not have dawned on some of you, but to talk about or report on future operations of these ships ... is very much a situation that could endanger someone's life over there."

Trade union pioneer Abel dies at 78

MALVERN, Ohio (AP) — LW-Abel, a former brickyard worker who became a pioneer in the American labor movement and rose to the presidency of the United Steelworkers of America during the union's heyday, died Monday. He was 78.

The union said Abel, who had recently returned to Ohio after living in Arizona, died at his home of cancer. He would have been 79 today.

He was not only a lifelong and dedicated trade unionist who helped forge landmark improvements in the lot of working people, he was also a compassionate human being who strove to improve the lot of society in which we live," said Lynn Williams, the union's current international president, in Pittsburgh.

Abel led the USW through a period of labor peace, booming production and surging wages and benefits. His presidency was marked by coordinated bargaining with 12 leading steelmakers as union membership peaked at 1.4 million.

In a 1986 interview with The Associated Press, Abel said he believed his greatest accomplishment as USW president was campaigning for passage of a federal law protecting employee pensions.

Swim coach seeks asylum from Poland

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — A Polish swimming coach seeking political asylum met Monday with immigration officials after abandoning his nation's delegation to the International Special Olympics, a Roman Catholic priest said.

Jozef Derbizewski, one of the three aquatic coaches in the Polish delegation that returned home Saturday, emerged from a week of hiding to meet with the U.S. officials, said the Rev. Eugene Kazmierczak.

The priest said Derbizewski, 28, telephoned him Wednesday to inquire about seeking asylum and Kazmierczak put him in touch with the local office of Catholic Charities.

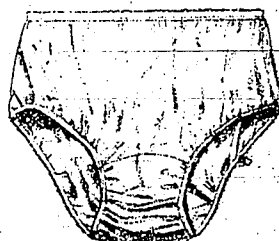

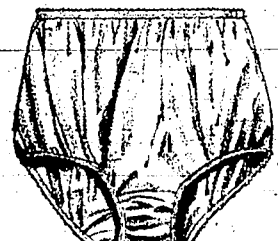

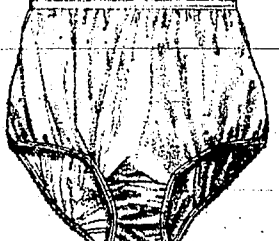

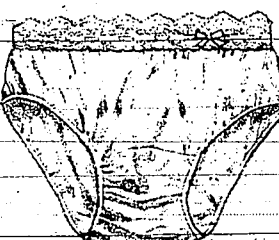

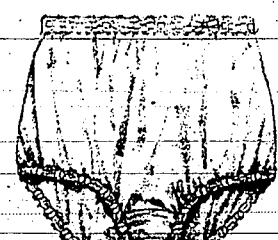

He said the coach was taken to Michigan for the weekend.

"He sort of disappeared and went into hiding," the priest said. "After Friday, I lost touch with him until he was able to meet with the immigration bureau."

Roger Piper, acting deputy director of the Chicago district office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said he could neither confirm nor deny any information regarding a possible defection.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early-morning confusion over which course of action is best will give way to an exceptional clarity of view. If you choose correctly, great success can be achieved today.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Don't let the needling of a higher-up distract your morning routine. A valuable new contact should be encouraged.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Put aside new ideas for the time being and attend to work which has been left on the "back burner" for far too long.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A close friend has some good ideas which can help you advance in the business world, if they're recognized.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Cooperation with co-workers will make a great impression on those higher ups who can give you success.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): A change of attitude and a kind and thoughtful demeanor toward your mate will bring some truly fine results.

VRIGO (August 22 to September 22): An older family friend can be most helpful in any problematical affair. If entertaining, invite only trustworthy friends.

Movie insiders predict Turner, Winger will be top in 1990s

NEW YORK (AP) — Actresses Kathleen Turner and Debra Winger will be among the biggest movie stars of the 1990s, industry insiders predicted in a magazine article published Monday.

Shirley Weaver, Kelly McGillis and Molly Ringwald round out McCall's list of "the most razzle-dazzle movie stars of the coming decade," according to the magazine's September issue.

Turner, 33, who debuted in "Body Heat" and was nominated for an Oscar for "Peggy Sue Got Married," is the closest to "being an old-fashioned movie star," appealing to both men and women, said critic Molly Haskell.

The name of Winger, who found fame in "Urban Cowboy" and "An Officer and a Gentleman," comes up "more than any other actress in casting sessions," said Larry Mark, executive producer of "Black Widow."

Weaver, 37, who was launched in the 1979 movie "Alien" and co-starred in 1984's "Ghastbusters," "has an Amazonian stride, a face that reveals intelligence and a brain that, with scholarly determination, analyzes every character she plays," the magazine said.

McGillis, 29, co-star of the 1986 hit, "Top Gun," has "that curious blend of innocence and femininity," said Peter Weir, the director who chose her for "Witness," her first film hit.

As for 19-year-old Ringwald, "I

Superman turned out to be more than a role

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Christopher Reeve's roles have ranged from a corrupt priest to a handicapped war veteran, but his role as Superman overpowers even his private life, according to an interview published Monday.

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Prince Faisal, 24, the second son of King Hussein of Jordan, "married" a commoner, the daughter of a prominent local businessman, in a colorful ceremony here Monday.

His bride, Alia Tabbah, 23, was immediately given the title of princess.

After the ceremony in the palace of Queen Mother Zein, the newlyweds were driven through the streets of the capital led by the royal band and escorted by the mounted royal guard to Hussein's Basman Palace for a reception.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Singer Frankie Avalon might not have ever been in the 1963 classic "Beach Party" with Annette Funicello, or the current "Back to the Beach," if it had not been for a dance here 30 years ago.

Avalon told The Buffalo News his singing career took off after a date at Bishop Timon High School in 1957, when the then-little known Philadelphia singer was earning $60 a week.

"I'll never forget that night at Timon," said Avalon, 46. "I got the stage and two girls came up to me and asked for an autograph. You've got to remember, I was unknown at that time and signing an autograph was something different for me."

Soviet husband found pot of gold

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet man spent his first wedding anniversary digging around an old barn in his backyard and came away with an anniversary present bigger than he or his wife could have imagined.

The official Tass news agency reported Sunday that Alexander Mironov of Kazan, a Volga River city about 500 miles east of Moscow, dug up a clay pot filled with precious stones and about 1,000 18th century coins.

A yellowed, half-rotted sheet of newspaper found with the jewels and money indicated that the container was buried in 1825.

Mironov and his wife Tat'yana gave the treasure to the government and received a 25 percent reward, Tass said. It did not give the value of the reward or the cache or say when the gems and coins were found.

Korean workers defy no-strike laws

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Hundreds of striking miners blocked two key rail lines Monday, newspapers reported, and tens of thousands of workers stayed off their jobs elsewhere to demand higher pay and better working conditions.

Riot police fired tear gas at the rock-throwing miners but they regrouped and kept control of sections of the Taekok and Youngdong industrial rail lines in eastern South Korea, the reports said.

Home Minister Chung Kwang-ryul said the government would continue to "encourage" settlements through labor-management negotiations but would respond to violence. He said the government would "deal resolutely with serious violence that may hurt social stability."

Union activity in South Korea traditionally has been strictly controlled, and strikes were virtually outlawed. Labor strife has increased since President Chun Doo-hwan gave in to public pressure in July and agreed to direct presidential elections and other democratic reforms.

Prime Minister Kim Chung-ryul summoned his main economic ministers Monday night. He also said the government planned to issue a statement Tuesday appealing for restraint by both labor and management.

The largest automaker, Hyundai, and some other companies resumed operations Monday but 138 firms still were crippled by labor disputes, the news reports said.

-Daewoo is a joint venture of General Motors and the Daewoo group, one of the largest Korean conglomerates.

Car bomb injures 9 on passing bus

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A car bomb exploded Monday as a bus carrying U.S. Air Force personnel passed, slightly injuring the nine Americans on the bus, the Greek driver and an Air Force woman walking nearby, police reported.

They said the explosives in the car, which had diplomatic license plates, apparently were detonated by remote control. There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

Several people in the area reported seeing two young men speed away on a green motorcycle seconds after the explosion, a police official said privately. It was the second attack this year on a bus carrying U.S. military personnel.

The car blew up at 4:48 p.m. as the unmarked bus with Greek license plates approached the Apollon Hotel in the seaside suburb of Voula, about 6 miles from the Hellenikon U.S. Air Force base.

Senior Airman John Hancock said the bus was bound for the Apollon, which is used as a billet for U.S. military personnel temporarily assigned in or near Athens.

The explosion blew out the windshield of the bus and slightly damaged the front end and grill. It ripped the bar apart, strewn pieces of the vehicle along the road 200 yards from the hotel entrance.

Government spokesman Yannis Roubatis expressed "abhorrence and indignation" about the "criminal bomb attack."

He said the government of Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu "condemns and denounces terrorism from wherever it comes. Such actions are exclusively aimed at harming democracy, the institutions and the country's social and political life."

In Washington, the State Department said Greek and U.S. authorities had begun a joint investigation.

A terrorist group calling itself November 17 claimed responsibility for a bomb that exploded on a low roadside wall April 24 as a bus carrying U.S. personnel drove by, injuring seven of the 26 occupants. The bus was taking the Americans from a Greek base to Hellenikon, which is next to the Athens airport.

U.S. military and diplomatic personnel have been cautious about their movements in an effort to minimize the possibility of attack, including the use of unmarked buses like the Mercedes Benz that was damaged Monday.

Hellenikon is one of four major U.S. military installations in Greece. The Navy has a communications listening station at Neo Makri, 22 miles east of the capital; the Air Force has its own communications base near Iraklion on the island of Crete, and the Navy uses Suda Bay on Crete's western tip to refuel and maintain the 6th Fleet.

18,000 forces to participate in exercise

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced Monday that 18,000 ground and air forces will participate in a six-day military exercise along the Polish border.

The official news agency Tass said the maneuvers in the Soviet Ukraine would be aimed at "improving field training standards and the control and interaction of different arms of the services in fulfilling training and combat missions."

Tass said the exercises would be conducted Aug. 17-22. The dispatch gave no further information.

In January 1986, a similar exercise was conducted along the Soviet-Polish border. It involved 50,000 Soviet soldiers and sailors.

Union claims 46 mines closed by strike

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Union leaders Monday said 340,000 black miners have joined the country's largest wage-related strike, closing mines, clashing with guards and threatening to cripple the industry which fuels the national economy.

The union claimed miners were forced to enter one shaft at a juncture.

The National Union of Mineworkers said 44 of the 46 targeted gold and coal mines had closed since the strike began late Sunday to press demands for a 30 percent pay increase.

The Chamber of Mines, which represents major mining firms, disputed the union figures. It said about 230,000 of the nation's 600,000 black miners were striking. The chamber said 13 of 55 coal mines under its jurisdiction and 16 of 44 gold mines were "significantly affected" by the strike.

The chamber unilaterally implemented 15 percent to 23.4 percent wage increases on July 1.

Clashes were reported, with at least 13 miners and three mine security officers injured. Mine owners accused strikers of intimidating and assaulting miners who wanted to work. The union said at least 11 members or union officials were arrested and many others harassed.

"The members are prepared to mount a bitter and protracted struggle for a living wage," Cyril Ramaphosa, the union's general secretary, told a news conference.

Ramaphosa said night-shift workers at Rand Mines' Harmony gold mine were forced to enter a shaft at gunpoint Sunday. "The workers staged a sit-down strike inside the mine, where they remained Monday, he said. Rand Mines said there was a brief sit-in but denied forcing workers into the mine.

A Chamber of Mines official, Johann Liebenberg, said it was too early to assess the strike's impact on production.

Anglo American Corp., which produced 39 percent of South Africa's gold output of 638.2 tons in 1986, said all its mines were affected. The company complained of "violence and intimidation" by strikers against working miners, and it said security officers in three instances used tear gas or rubber bullets.

Roughly 80 percent of South Africa's exports are derived from mining. The country is the world's leading producer of gold, which provides more than half its foreign currency earnings and which thus far has escaped the sanctions imposed on many other South African exports.

Asked about threats to fire miners, Ramaphosa said, "How do you fire more than 300,000 workers and hope to replace them? ... It would mean the mines will be totally out of production for over six months."

New teen club isn't a hit in neighborhood

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The teen dance club on Blue Lakes Boulevard North has only been open a few weeks. But it has already made enemies.

Neighbors of "Fastrax" complained to the City Council on Monday about what was happening outside, not inside the club, located at 1115 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

Mayor Doug Vollmer said he was sure the problems can be solved. "All we can do is watch you... We don't want to shut you down," he said.

But when the city gets pressure from the neighbors, it's going to be passed down to the club, he said.

Leo Tripple, who resides at 1091 Lincoln St., told the council that he saw people drinking beer in the parking lot and urinating on his lawn.

"This can't be tolerated," he said. On Sunday morning the parking lot was littered with beer bottles, Tripple said.

As for the noise, "We can't get to bed until you close," Tripple told Fastrax owner Al Lee of Jerome.

Councilwoman Mary McClusky said the "cruise" has been expanded further down Blue Lakes Boulevard North, thanks to the teen club.

McClusky, who manages a gas station across the street, said the club has added to the existing noise and traffic problems of Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

"I think it's a poor location," she said. Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said he found no problems inside the dance club. Policing drinking outside the club was difficult because the offenders would hear, via the grapevine, that police were coming and put the beer away.

Vollmer said most of the youths he met at the club were courteous. "It is the few that creating problems is why we are here," he said.

Dust from the unpaved parking lot was another concern of neighbors.

Lee said he didn't know who the dust was effecting. But Vollmer replied it was visible from a block away.

"It's obvious you have a dust problem," Vollmer said.

Nan Jones, who operates a nearby mobile home park, complained of having to pick up beer bottles and cigarette stubs.

Lee contended that the problems weren't caused by his customers. "The noise is from the traffic going up Highway 93," he said.

Fastrax manager Sid Vanderpool said that even if the club was not there, there would still be noise and traffic on Blue Lakes.

Building owner Max Casperson said, "All we did was move it down the street four blocks."

The club operators said the concerns of the neighbors would be answered: "Two armed guards will patrol the grounds. Within the month, the lot will be paved.

Casperson said the city's barricade at the end of Lincoln Street will help.

He also urged those with grievances to talk with the Fastrax managers.

"People, I think you have to give us a chance," Casperson said. He commended Lee, who owns the KARTZ103 Radio stations in Jerome, for getting into a business to help young people.

Vollmer said he was sure the problems can be solved. City Attorney Shane Bengochea said the special-use permit issued by the city to the club can be revoked if the permit criteria are not followed. Complaints by the neighbors can be the basis of a review by the city.

Fire crews contain South Hills blaze

But 5 more ignited by lightning

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A stubborn fire that has been burning for three days in the South Hills was being brought into full containment Monday afternoon just as a lightning storm moved in to ignite five additional small fires.

The initial fire in the Bostetter area of the Sawtooth National Forest was contained by fire lines about 6 p.m. Monday. The thunder storm swept through the forest about 6:30 p.m., starting two more fires in the Little Cottonwood Creek area and two others on the adjoining Bureau of Land Management. Shortly before word reached the Sawtooth fire dispatch center that a "timber" fire had started from lightning in Anderson Creek area northwest of Stanley, Ed Waldapfel, information officer said it could be a long night for those in the fire control center.

The South Hills fires were only 10 to 12 miles from the Bostetter fire and a helicopter was rushed in from the Bostetter fire and a helicopter was rushed in from the Bostetter fire and a helicopter was rushed in from the Bostetter fire.

The fire in the north area was within a few miles of Basin Butte lookout and crews from the National Recreation Area fire center were sent in, he said.

Forest officials said fire crews numbering 225 persons were still at work on the main Bostetter fire Monday night.

Waldapfel said the fire had scorched 350 acres by late afternoon but that a fire line constructed mostly by hand crews encircled it by evening. Fire Boss Ray Ferreira of Ketchikan said it would probably be another 24 hours before the fire could be declared un-

IPC report reflects economic prospects Twin Falls shows a slight decline

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls and Boise areas are still in the valley not only geographically but economically.

One indication of the region's economic prospects comes when Idaho Power Co. releases its report on the number of residential customers.

The latest one shows a slight decline here and some growth in Boise although figures in both areas still point to an out-migration of people.

Twin Falls has some catching up to do with Boise but there are signs here that things have reached the bottom of the economic valley, says John Church, IPC economist.

IPC lost four residential customers here between July 1986 and last month. The figure for the July 1986 to July 1986 period showed a gain of five customers.

Irrigation accounts were down by seven for July 1986 to July 1987. The 1986 to 1986 irrigation picture showed no growth and no customer loss.

The picture here is mirrored in other Magic Valley towns in residential electrical customers were racked up in Gooding (-18), Shoshone (-3), Buhl (-16), Minidoka-Cassia (-26) and Wendell (-6).

The farm-based economy is still deeply affected by the economic downturn, says Church. "Comments in the Magic and Treasure valleys, while pointing to an out-migration, also show things are firming up, he says. This is particularly true in the Treasure Valley with its more diversified economy, says Church.

The number of new residential customers in the Treasure Valley has grown by 1,789 in the July 1986 to July 1987 period. This is for Boise, Caldwell, Nampa, Mountain Home, Meridian and Glens Ferry.

Generally, throughout the state, lumber, food processing, paper and mining are improving, he says.

But Church cautions that the growth in the Treasure Valley is still less than one percent and household growth generally leads population growth.

"Population must be growing slower," he says. This means an out-migration, but it has slowed, Church says.

The economy has reached the bottom and maybe it is turning up, Church says. "I think we are making progress," he says. Meanwhile, IPC is using various strategies. • See GROWTH on Page B2

Hagerman man given an indeterminate life sentence for murder

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

GOODING — A young Hagerman man pleaded guilty to second degree murder in the beating death of his former stepfather was given an indeterminate life sentence Monday by 5th-District Judge Phillip Becker.

Robert L. Stigall, 22, was sentenced to life in prison, but the indeterminate sentence allows the state Board of Corrections to decide the exact length of time he must spend in prison, Judge Becker further stipulated that Stigall will not be eligible to even apply for parole until he has served at least 10 years.

Judge Becker said Monday afternoon that courts are now working under the newly adopted sentencing law and under such provisions, Stigall's sentence means he is now the "property of the board of corrections" but the 10-year minimum stipulation is binding.

Becker said Stigall will go to the state penitentiary as soon as there is space, but that, too, will be the responsibility of the board of corrections.

In the case of some recent sentences, Becker said, county sheriffs are being asked to retain jurisdiction of the prisoners until there is room available for them in the state prison. In that case, he said, the state must pay the counties for the service until the individual can be transferred to the Boise institution.

Stigall was charged with the death of Loren "Larry" Groves, 55, of Hagerman, the former husband of Stigall's mother.

Testimony during a preliminary hearing last June indicated Groves and Stigall had an argument at the home of Mrs. Groves in Hagerman when Stigall was 17 years old. Officers determined that Groves was first beaten there and then on additional occasions as the vehicle stopped enroute to Boise. Investigating officers said a metal jack was believed to have been the murder weapon. Groves died of severe head blows and had been dead for a brief time when his body was found by Boise officers.

Stigall originally entered a plea of innocent to first degree murder last June and then changed his plea to guilty to second degree.

He was arrested last April 23 in Boise after police received a call reporting a body in a pickup camper at a Boise apartment parking lot. Shortly after officers began working the vehicle Stigall returned to town and was taken into custody.

City council to decide pool site next Monday

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Where exactly the new Twin Falls City Pool will be built on the lot near Locust Street and Stadium Boulevard will be decided next Monday.

At a Twin Falls City Council work session on Monday, City Manager Tom Courtney said it was crucial a decision be made so the project can move forward.

The council agreed to meet next Monday with the trustees of the Twin Falls School District, which owns the property, to decide where to place the pool.

About 40 neighbors visited with the council about a week ago with concerns about the location. Most were worried about noise, increased traffic and the proposed closure of Stadium Boulevard.

Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said the neighbors had a fear of the unknown — the unknown of having a pool nearby.

The council also reviewed a proposed draft of a policy statement about pool operations.

The statement was a response to public criticism about the site of the pool and proposed fees. The figures in the Magic and Treasure valleys, while pointing to an out-migration, also show things are firming up, he says. This is particularly true in the Treasure Valley with its more diversified economy, says Church.

The criticism was expressed in a recent Times-News editorial, which urged city residents not to donate to the pool — until the concerns were answered.

The proposed statement, which would be put in the form of a resolution, says that the priority use of the pool is for swimming lessons and recreational swimming.

"Specialty classes and uses" would be allowed in non-prime hours. Prime time was defined as "those hours which are most desirable and convenient to the users of the facility for swimming lessons and general recreational swimming."

Competitive meets would be allowed on a scheduled basis.

Fees, which would be the primary revenue source for the pool, will be maintained at a reasonable level, the policy stated.

Fair board to solicit funds for produce building

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Fair Board decided to retire the 70-year-old Produce Building by voting on Monday to solicit bids for a new Produce Building.

The new building, which will probably be erected after this year's fair, will be a 27,000 square-foot, concrete-block structure with a pavilion linking it to the new Merchants Building.

Architect Russ Lively of Twin Falls has prepared bid specifications for the new building. The fair board voted to obtain bids "as quickly as the law allows," which could be in about 30 days.

One side of the new building will open to the pavilion, which will be suitable to special events by adding bleachers, said Board Member Emmett Harrison, who has been spearheading the building effort.

County Commissioner Jim Fraley suggested that sewer and water lines be extended to the building in order to add bathrooms or a snack bar in the future.

Fair Secretary-Manager Dan Peters said the board will ask for a basic bid and an alternative bid proposal for extras, such as plumbing.

Harrison added, "Let's not add anymore that we can afford."

The board has set aside $46,000 for the building and anticipates another $60,000 from fair revenues.

Harrison said he was confident the money will be raised and construction started.

Another board member, Gary Grindstaff added, "Why don't we get bids so we know what this will cost?"

Harrison said the new building would pay for itself from the revenue of renting the space in the pavilion. In the middle of the pavilion would be the concrete floor of the old building, enclosed by a concrete fence with a retractable gate.

If the fair board gets what it wants, the existing Produce Building will be used for the last time this fall.

The building was found in violation of building codes last summer because of severe roof problems. The building was repaired and opened during last year's fair, but with some restrictions.

The remaining board business involved getting ready for the fair, scheduled Sept. 8-12.

Director Randall resigns from Idaho Potato Commission

BOISE — The Idaho Potato Commission Monday accepted the resignation of Gordon C. Randall, executive director of the Potato Commission for the past 14 years.

Randall retired for medical reasons, officials said.

Randall has been a good and valuable employee for the past 14 years, and his presence will be missed, said Russ Wynn, chairman of the commission.

Randall, 67, said Monday he retired because he has multiple sclerosis.

Wynn said a nationwide search for a successor will begin immediately.

The Potato Commission, which sets standards for growers statewide and coordinates a marketing campaign for Idaho's growers, last year had a $4.2 million budget.

Wynn said Randall will assist a new executive with the transition.

Roger Jones, a Rupert grower and Commission board member, said Monday the executive director is a key position.

"It's important that we find the right person and get on with the business in the industry," Jones said.

The editorial raised points that needed to be clarified, Courtney said.

Councilman Jack Miller said the statement should also include the reason for building the pool at the district location instead of Harmon Park.

Mayor Doug Vollmer said that the Times-News failed to realize what Harmon Park, which is already busy, would be like in 15 years with even normal growth. Adding a pool would devastate the area, he said.

Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said he was concerned that the editorial blamed the council when the site was really the decision of the many city residents who served on pool committees.

"They failed to recognize this is the decision of the community," he said.

Vollmer said several people told him the newspaper's editorial was in "poor taste" because it covered issues that had already been resolved.

Councilman Rick Carr agreed. "I see it (the editorial) as a bad rap against us. It was a poor editorial," he said.

Waldapfel said, "We would like to remind people that the fire condition is very high right now every where in the forest and users should keep this in mind when using equipment or camping in forest areas."

Since that time the fire continued to burn through scattered patches of timber, sagebrush and grass.

Waldapfel said it has been a difficult fire to fight because most of the line around the 350-acre burn has been built by hand with firefighters wielding shovels. One bulldozer was used and the hand crews were as-to cope with the change in its market since the boom days of the 1970s. The utility is developing new markets in the Southwest, purchasing other utilities and offering lower rates to attract customers, says Larry R. Gunnoe, IPC's vice-president for operations.

Late last year IPC was predicting slow, steady growth of about 1 percent per year into the 1990s. This is down from the 5-to-7-percent annual growth rates of the 1970s.

A low water year for the hydro-oriented utility plus the collapse of surplus power market in Southwest, have created problems for the company, said Dewey Hammond, the company's chief financial officer. The company projects its surplus sales will be only $23 million, the lowest level since 1979. With lower oil and gas prices, Southwest utilities find they can generate power cheaper than buying it from the Northwest, according to IPC.

But by the 1990s utilities see growth in the Southwest markets, according to industry experts.

Wreck leaves 1 injured

TWIN FALLS - A one-car accident on Pole Line Road west of Twin Falls Monday afternoon left a young Twin Falls woman in critical condition with severe head injuries.

Mechelle Larae Kendrick, 19, of Twin Falls was thrown from her small 1965 car when it went out of control on a curve 2.5 miles west of Blue Lakes Boulevard on Pole Line Road at 2:30 p.m.

She was skidding to the left, came back to her right and went off the roadway, crossing a ditch and striking a power pole. She was alone in the vehicle and was not wearing a seat belt.

Brice and Cindy Requa, who reside near the accident scene, said they heard the crash and ran out to find Kendrick lying on the roadway with a severe head injury.

She was treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and then taken by Life-Flight helicopter to St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise where she was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit Monday night.

ISP Cpl. Fred Rice and Sheriff James Munn and Deputy Sheriff Bill Thornquist assisted in the investigation.

Brown also reported that Miss Rodeo America, Susie Gilard of Louisiana, would attend the fair.

The fair board also announced that commercial spaces were almost all gone. About 100-feet of space near the picnic area remained unused.

Peters reported that volunteers and civic groups have been donating time to help paint and prepare the fairgrounds.

A group of seniors were sewing banners to decorate the buildings, he said. Another group painted the sheep sale ring.

Idaho State Police and Twin Falls County officers said the young woman suffered head injuries when she was thrown to the pavement as the car struck a power pole and then flipped around.

ISP Cpl. Lonnie Richardson said the young woman was traveling west and went into the curve at a speed too fast to make the turn. The vehicle

she was treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and then taken by Life-Flight helicopter to St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise where she was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit Monday night.

ISP Cpl. Fred Rice and Sheriff James Munn and Deputy Sheriff Bill Thornquist assisted in the investigation.

Opinion: Testing all inmates for AIDS virus not necessary

BOISE (AP) — It isn't necessary to give blood tests for the AIDS virus to all state prison inmates, an attorney general's opinion said Monday, but state laws require the screening of all new inmates.

In response to a series of questions from Corrections Director Al Murphy, the opinion released Monday said the state must pay for the required testing of all incoming inmates for venereal disease, which includes AIDS.

The prison may isolate or quarantine any inmate with venereal disease, although the action first requires a declaration that such special treatment is necessary for the public health and safety of other inmates.

Even though there is a state law which provides for quarantine "until cured," keeping an inmate past the end of the scheduled end of his prison sentence would be unconstitutional, the opinion said.

Murphy was out of the office Monday, and Timothy McNeese, his administrative assistant, said the department would have no immediate comment on the opinion. It was prepared by Peter Erbland, chief deputy of the Criminal Law Division.

Prison doctor Kelly Mutch disclosed on June 8 that one inmate at the state prison south of Boise had tested positive for the AIDS virus, although the inmate did not have the active disease. In a recommendation to the Board of Corrections, Mutch said he did not feel that widespread testing of all prison inmates would prove worthwhile.

On June 19, inmate Lee Hayes filed a 4th District Court lawsuit at Boise, asking for mandatory AIDS blood testing for all inmates and guards, with quarantining of all inmates with positive tests. That lawsuit, which is pending, alleged there were 15 inmates with positive AIDS tests rather than the one reported by prison officials.

Another inmate, David Cartright, filed another lawsuit last month alleging he was not receiving adequate medical care after testing positive for the AIDS virus.

Dr. Darrell Brock of the state medical laboratory said it costs about $4.50 for the actual costs of making the first-level AIDS test.

Tests that show positive are sent to a national center for disease control at Atlanta, Ga. So far, the federal center has been making the more elaborate second-round tests at no cost to the state, Brock said.

The opinion said a long-standing Idaho law requires anyone confined in a state, county or city jail to be examined for venereal disease, and if infected, must be treated.

In 1986, the Legislature added AIDS (acquired immunodeficiency syndrome) to syphilis, gonorrhea and chancroid as venereal diseases covered by the law. The diseases were declared "contagious, infectious, communicable and dangerous to public health."

Although the law requires AIDS testing for incoming inmates, there is nothing to prohibit prison officials from testing prisoners already incarcerated, if they determine it necessary, the opinion said.

The opinion said mandatory testing and quarantine of people infected with contagious disease traditionally has been upheld by the courts.

To put a prisoner with AIDS in isolation or quarantine would take a declaration that the action is necessary to protect the public health and safety, the opinion said.

Rhoades pleads innocent to capital murder charges

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Accused multiple-murderer Paul Erza Rhoades has pleaded innocent to capital murder and other charges in connection with the Feb. 28 slaying of convenience store clerk Stacy Baldwin in Blackfoot.

Rhoades, 30, entered the plea on Monday before 7th District Judge James Herndon. Herndon set early January for trial on the murder that was the first of a string of late-winter killings that cast a pall of fear over much of eastern Idaho.

The judge said the exact date for the trial would be determined later.

The arraignment of the Idaho Falls man had originally been scheduled for two weeks ago, but Rhoades refused to be transported from the Bonneville County Jail in Idaho Falls to Blackfoot, at least in part because he claimed he had not had sufficient notice of the proceeding to allow his family to attend.

Stallings awards his 1st grant

POCATELLO (AP) — Rep. Richard Stallings awarded the first of his controversial "congressional pay raise" scholarships here Monday, then defended himself against charges of public-seeking with public funds.

Stallings, the 2nd District Democrat, is donating five $1,000 scholarships to school in his Eastern Idaho district from the money he would have received as the result of a congressional pay raise.

Other members of the Idaho congressional delegation, some of whom say they were against the pay raise, say they plan to keep it.

Stallings said he could have returned the money to the treasury, but he decided to do something to benefit Idahoans, by establishing the scholarships.

But his plan came under fire from the rest of Idaho's congressional delegation, all of whom are Republicans, and all of whom are pocketing the $12,000 raise they originally voted against.

Idaho Sen. Steve Symms hinted Stallings was guilty of demagoguery in donating the money, while 1st District Rep. Larry Craig pointed out Stallings would get a nice tax break from the donation.

While handing out a $500 check to Idaho State University Student Wilford Czip of Idaho Falls, Stallings said his reaction to his colleagues' snipes was "mostly one of amusement. I was interested in why they reacted as enthusiastically as they did. I didn't reveal the story or call attention to it."

Czip, a vo-tech student in the Electronic Systems Technology program at ISU, is married and has two children. He is in his second year in the program.

Plant seen as shot in arm for economy

SODA SPRINGS (AP) — Officials hailed the re-opening of a phosphate fertilizer plant near here on Monday as good news for an eastern Idaho economy that has been depressed for months.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said the re-opening of the new Nu-West Industries plant, formerly Beker Industries, is the best economic news to come to the state in the seven months he's been governor this year.

The re-opening of this plant is an example of what tremendous effort on the part of many people can accomplish," the governor said. "It's an example of what can happen when a community of people refuse to sit on their hands and watch their economy go to pieces," Andrus said.

Andrus said government must take an active role in the effort. "It just is not enough to wait and hope that something good will turn up," he said. "We have to go out and make something happen, that is what took place here."

The governor said attitude is extremely important in solving the state's economic and other problems. "The kind of attitude that says good things can be accomplished if we put our minds to it," he said.

The mine and phosphate fertilizer plant closed down 15 months ago when Beker Industries filed for financial reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. Cleve McCarty put together a financing package that provided $50 million to buy out Beker.

THE MORE YOU LOOK — THE BETTER WE LOOK

WE BEAT THE 3.9% LOAN

You may be surprised to hear a statement like that from a bank. But Twin Falls Bank & Trust believes the best way to keep customers coming back is to help them cut the cost of borrowing. That's why we're introducing the Big Wheel Deal. Because it can be a big deal to you.

FACTORY FINANCING VS. TWIN FALLS BANK & TRUST

There are no loan set-up fees to the Big Wheel Deal.

Factory financing appears to be a real savings, but we can show you how to trim your monthly car payment and save you money. When you compare factory financing to Twin Falls Bank & Trust's Big Wheel Deal, we're confident we can save you money every single month for the term of the contract. In fact, the 9.9% APR makes the Big Wheel Deal about the best way to buy a new car, short of paying cash.

Here's what Dr. Paul S. Nadler, Professor of Finance, Rutgers-University's Graduate School of Management, says about factory financing: "Many banks are hurting badly in their auto lending because of the extremely low rates charged by the auto companies to finance their car sales. Bankers well know that these rates are artificial because the auto companies are getting their return through the price of the car. In truth, an individual would do better if he got his loan from a bank at a higher stated rate." Dr. Nadler goes on to add that the buyer should "take the cash rebate or the option to buy the model car he wants at a more attractive price than if he got financing at a rate so low that no bank could meet it."

THE FLEXIBLE WAY TO BUY! The Big Wheel Deal applies to any 1983 or newer car or light truck. That gives you a lot of flexibility to buy the make and model of your choice.

So, after you've found your car, kicked the tires and honked the horn, contact Twin Falls Bank & Trust about our Big Wheel Deal. We'll show you why the deal you make on your loan is just as important as the deal you make on your car.

Big Wheel Deal rate is not valid in combination with any other discounts. *Applied by permission of American Banker.

For this wedding a card should suffice

DEAR ABBY: One week before a scheduled wedding and reception, my husband received a telephone call from the father of the bride who apologized for neglecting to include us on the guest list.

He said he was mailing an invitation to us immediately with the information we would need — time, place, etc.

My husband decided that we should attend, so he accepted verbally. An luck would have it, a foot injury prevented my going and my husband did not want to go without me, so we had to regret after all. However, because we had accepted verbally, I thought we should send a gift. My husband disagreed. We had never met the bride or groom and knew nothing about their likes and dislikes which would make buying a wedding gift rather difficult. By the way, we never did receive the invitation.

Personally, I would have had more respect for the parents of the bride had we not been invited at all. Please comment on their behavior — and ours.

— FRUSTRATED IN THE EAST
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Before commenting, I would need to know the relationship between the parents of the bride and you. It appears that you were overlooked, then they reconsidered and hastily invited you with a telephone call,

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

whereupon your husband felt obligated to accept.

Inasmuch as you never did receive the promised invitation, and had never met the couple, a congratulatory card would be appropriate — but not a gift.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the lady who asked if she should marry a widower who had been married for 40 years and had revolting table manners. (She thought maybe she could "teach" him.) She should run from him! His manners were learned at his mother's knee, and he will not improve. I know.

I've been fighting this for 44 years. I fell in love with a man who was very crude when it came to manners and behavior, but I thought I could change him. Of course, I couldn't.

I didn't meet his family until after we were married, and when I did, I nearly dropped dead. His mother was a short, heavyset woman with atrocious manners. If you were in her way, she'd give you a shove! She never closed a door or a drawer — she either kicked or slammed it shut. She interrupted people and shouted them down, and was never wrong about anything.

My husband turned out to be just like her, but when you're in love you either don't notice, or they're on their best behavior. My husband's table manners are gross. He curls his left arm around his plate as if someone were going to steal it. He stabs at his food with his fork and chews with his mouth open. Yes, I've tried to correct him, but he's too lazy and stubborn to learn.

He's a good man in other ways, but I never would have married him if I had known then what I learned later.

Harassment can't drive Cuba from games

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Cuba said Monday that despite protests it was staying in the Pan Am Games to the very end, then upped its gold medal total by 14 with three more in weightlifting.

Cuban officials never threatened to withdraw their 452-member delegation from the games, which began Saturday, although they did protest the activities of a local anti-Castro group. Tensions also rose after a skirmish between protesters and the Cuban delegation at Sunday's baseball game, when Cuba beat the Netherlands Antilles 12-1.

Raul Villanueva, Cuba's vice minister of sports, on Monday called the fight "an unfortunate spectacle" but said his country was not leaving.

"Cuba's going to be here until the 25th of August sharing with the people of Indianapolis," he said.

Indianapolis Police Chief Paul A. Annee promised extra security for the Cubans after several demonstrations by the anti-Castro group and the fistfight.

"It's obvious to me now this group is intent on being disruptive," Annee said of the Cuban-Americans. "Consequently, we will be escalating our security as it relates to the Cuban participation in the games."

"We have a much-heightened awareness. We learned something yesterday. We are on a higher state of alert and more selective in positioning officers around athletes."

"We hold in high regard the right to dissent, but not the right to disrupt."

"It's something that's rather unfriendly," Villanueva said of the protests. "What they're doing is damaging everything the organizing committee has done. I think they should take measures to avoid aggression of Cubans, but I'm sure we'll be able to avoid the problems."

The extra security measures were not readily noticeable at the weightlifting, track and field or swimming venues Monday afternoon.

Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, certainly liked what he saw here. Not even the housing shortage of last week was a major problem, he said.

"Many times, problems like that occur when you have prepared for 6,000 athletes and officials and 6,000 show up," he said. "But these things are able to be solved."

"For me, these are excellent games. I have been to several sports and they were excellent. The athletes' village is one of the best I have seen in my life."

"This organization is of an Olympic level," he said.

"The drugs testing facility for track and field, however,

"Everything we planned didn't work out," said Dr. Ronald Blankenbaker, co-chairman of medical services for PAX-Indianapolis, the local organizing committee. "At one venue, everything that could go wrong, did go wrong. . . . It was just a comedy of errors."

"But we've tested out there today and there haven't been any complaints."

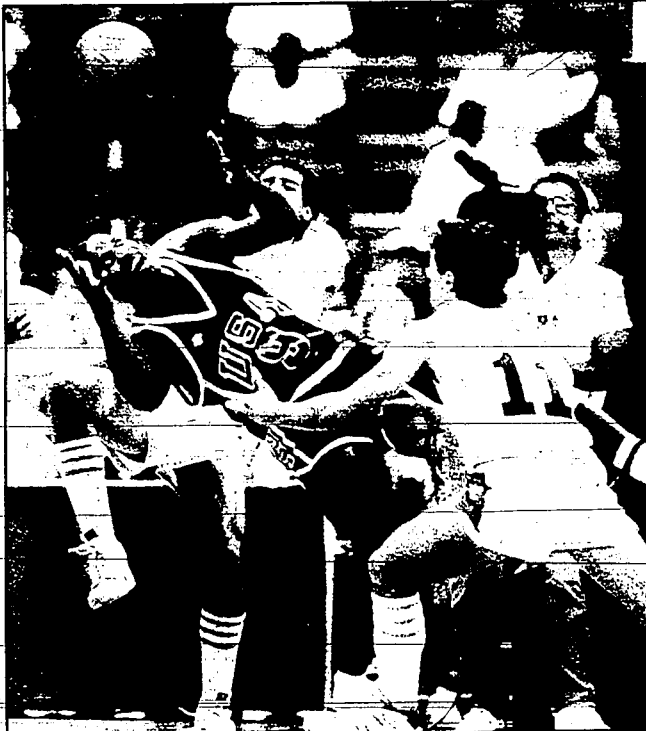

The problems on Sunday ranged from some men's and women's marathon runners not properly being escorted to drug tests and fluids that were to be supplied to athletes taking urine tests being sent to the wrong site.

A portable bathroom delivered to the track stadium also malfunctioned.

WEIGHTLIFTING

Featherweights Gabriel Eneaser and Julio Loscos each won three golds on the second day of weightlifting, duplicating the feats of countrymen Juan Hernandez and Pedro Negrin on Sunday. Eneaser and Loscos shared the championships in the 60-kilogram class because they lifted the same totals and weighed the maximum of 132 1/2 pounds. They both snatched 120 kilograms and lifted 150 in the clean-and-jerk.

"I did not mind sharing the golds with someone from my country. The important thing is to win for your country," Eneaser said.

BASKETBALL

Four players scored in double figures and all-12 Americans had points as the United States beat Argentina 85-58. The Argentine team was missing four players from the squad which beat the United States in the 1986 World Championships, a tournament the Americans won.

Danny Manning of Kansas, Rex Chapman of Kentucky and Willie Anderson of Georgia scored 11 points apiece and 7-foot-1 center David Robinson of Navy had 10 points. The U.S. defense forced 16 turnovers in securing a 31st consecutive Pan Am victory.

"We are trying to get as much ofensively out of our defense," Coach Danny Crum of Louisville said. "We gamble a lot on defense. We're not in perfect position every time, but applying the pressure forces the other team to make mistakes."

SWIMMING AND DIVING

American swimmers led qualifying in three events.

Sara Linke of Walnut Creek, Calif., the silver medalist in Sunday's women's 100-freestyle and part of the victorious 800-freestyle relay team, was the fastest qualifier in the 200 freestyle.

Jerry Frenstos of Cincinnati led the men's 400 individual medley, and Kathy Smith of Kirkland, Wash., edged Dorsey Tierney, Louisville, by one-hundredth of a second, 2:40.06 to 2:40.07, in the women's 200 breaststroke.

The men's springboard diving competition, with five-time world champion Greg Louganis of the United States favored, was held Monday night.

TEAM SPORTS

Jim Clark's two-run homer in the first inning and the three-hit, 13-strikeout pitching of Peter Sandman led the United States to its second straight shutout victory in men's softball, 7-0 over the U.S. Virgin Islands.

The American men's field hockey team beat Jamaica 6-1.

Nicaraguan Roger Peralta goes out with a broken leg

Lendl-McEnroe set delayed indefinitely

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — The first clash between Ivan Lendl and John McEnroe in two years was washed out Monday by a second straight day of rain in the final of the $315,000 Volvo International tennis tournament.

Tournament Director Jim Weathall said officials would try to work out a way to complete both matches at a later date, and that all players wanted to finish.

Both players were scheduled to play Wednesday in the Players International tournament in Montreal.

The doubles final also was suspended by rain. The match between the teams of Ken Flach and Robert Seguso against Paul Annacone and Christo van Rensburg had never begun.

McEnroe, who was hoping to use his match as a barometer in his attempt to regain No. 1 ranking, won the first set 7-6, taking the tiebreak 7-3, but Lendl was ahead 4-1 in the second set when a drizzle forced a halt in play on Sunday.

After waiting more than 3 1/2 hours, tournament officials suspended play until Monday. But it rained most of Monday and they decided at 3:30 p.m. EDT to forego any attempt to play.

The Volvo final was delayed by rain twice previously when it was held in North Conway, N.H. In 1976, Jimmy Connors beat Raul Ramirez the next day, when the match was moved indoors to Manchester. In 1982, Lendl and Jose Higueras returned 57 days later and Lendl won three games in seven minutes to complete a 6-3, 6-2 victory.

Lendl and McEnroe each will receive second-place money of $20,000 and runner-up Grand Prix points of 210, regardless of whether the final is played. The second-place points put Lendl ahead of Mats Wilander and into first place in the standings. First prize was $40,000 and 300 points.

Second-place doubles money is $6,500 a team.

Weathall said there was no time deadline for deciding if the matches could be played, and Stratton was not the only possible site.

"I hope to finish the final sometime, somewhere," Lendl said in a statement.

McEnroe, who has not won a tournament title since October and was eager to use this match as a barometer for his progress in his latest comeback, said:

"I'm open to suggestions, but I really don't know enough at this point. I just wish the match had been completed yesterday. I felt I was doing some good things out there."

Lendl and McEnroe last met in the final of the U.S. Open in 1985 when Lendl beat McEnroe to replace him as the world's top player.

Since then, McEnroe took a nearly seven-month sabbatical and then was injured this spring for two months. He now is trying to regain the form that made him No. 1 for four years.

McEnroe and Lendl, who have criticized each other off and on the court, seldom spoke during their 1 hour, 37 minutes of play Sunday. But when play was halted for the third and final time by umpire Richard Kaufman to examine the hard-court surface, McEnroe's temper flared. He said the delays were costing him the match.

McEnroe, seeking his first tournament title since October, played aggressively, charging the net at every opportunity to pressure Lendl.

Miami Dolphins release ex-Bruin Lance Sellers

By The Times-News

MIAMI — Lance Sellers, a former Twin Falls High School football standout and all-Big Sky linebacker, was dropped from the Miami Dolphins' roster Monday, six days before the team's first exhibition game.

Sellers was a sixth round pick for Miami in the NFL draft earlier this year. He was an all-Big Sky Conference pick at linebacker last season with the Boise State Broncos.

Miami officials would only say that Sellers was released Monday along with a veteran player, whom they would not name.

Sellers' bid to play professional football started as a high school senior when, at 185 pounds, he didn't attract a lot of recruitment. He built his body up through a strenuous weight program and walked on at Boise State University.

"I was on the hamburger for two years but it was worth it," he said after being named a starter for the Broncos.

His high school coach, Bill Jones, summed it up, noting "Lance came very close to realizing his dream of playing professional football. He paid his dues. He worked very hard. His is a success story no matter how it ends. He proved that hard work can take you to great heights."

Paterno can't imagine Penn State repeating No. 1 showing

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Penn State Coach Joe Paterno isn't anticipating that his 1987 team will be the first national collegiate football champion to repeat in eight years.

"I don't see how with this squad," lamented Paterno, whose Nittany Lion beat Miami for the title in the Fiesta Bowl Jan. 2. Penn State initiates pre-season practice this week.

Not since Alabama beat Penn State in the 1979 Sugar Bowl for the 78 season championship and followed up with a Sugar Bowl win over Arkansas in 1980 for the 79 title, has a team been able to win two straight years.

Paterno led 15 of his Fiesta Bowl starters, including All-American linebacker Shane Conlan and four members of the second team: defensive tackle Tim Johnson; safety Ray Ison; tackle Chris Conlan and running back D.J. Dozier.

"We are losing so many fine football players," Paterno said. "These are the guys who made the big plays. We've got to replace leadership. It's not just the tangible things we have to address, it's the intangibles as well."

Paterno's enthusiasm hasn't dimmed, however.

"I'm excited about this year, I am. I think it will be a fun year for us. It's one of the great things about college football. You get a bunch of guys and you work with them for X number of years and they go. And now you've got a new bunch of kids."

Paterno, entering his 22nd season, has two national titles, four coach-of-the-year awards, 15 Top 10 rankings, six undefeated seasons, 18 bowl appearances and 199 victories.

This year, his major concerns are defense and the kicking game.

Paterno has two excellent inside linebackers in Trey Bauer and Pete Gittopoulos, who intercepted a pass inside the State 5-yard line to thwart Miami's final Fiesta Bowl threat in the 14-10 game.

The coach also can start two of college football's better defensive backs in Eddie Johnson and Marques Henderson.

"Other than that don't know what we have (on defense)," Paterno said.

He also lost three of his four starting linemen. Only Pete Curkendall, whom Paterno describes as one of the country's top defensive tackles, is back.

Of the kicking game, Paterno says: "I have no punter, no long snapper, no kicker."

But Paterno is better apparent to Massimo Mancas' placekicking job, but the sophomore's experience is three extra-point conversions.

Seniors Chris Claus and Brennan Gaertner are trying to replace John Bruno, who averaged 41 yards per punt and kicked 16 of 35 out inside the 20.

Paterno isn't worried about his offense, although he has lost Dozier, quarterback John Shaffer and fullbacks Steve Smith and Tim Manoa.

"We should be okay offensively. We have a fine quarterback in (Matt) Kinzner. Blair Thomas is a very key guy in our offense. Our wideouts are our strongest position. We should have a fine offensive line, although we could use some depth."

Kinzner, a fifth-year senior, has been backup to Shaffer for two years and is considered a better pure passer. He completed 31 of 69 passes last year for 415 yards and four touchdowns, including an 82-yard scoring pass.

As a sophomore last season he behind Dozier, Thomas ran for 602 yards, averaged 8 yards per carry, and returned kickoffs. Paterno would like to use him the same way he did Dozier and Curt Warner before that, as a slashing inside-outside runner with the potential to go all the way every-time he touches the ball.

Paterno, whose basic offense hinges on a punishing running game, admits the Lions may have a different look because of defensive concerns and such talented receivers as Ray Roundtree, Jim Coates, Michael Timpon and Mike Alexander.

"We're probably going to have to be different," Paterno explained.

"Without taking away from the great job our defense did, everything was predicated on putting the burden on the defense.

"I made the offensive coaches play with one hand behind their backs. We did little passing over the middle, little throwing over the middle on later downs, because I thought we could kick so well and had good people with a lot of experience on defense."

Paterno said he may go into a game this year feeling that more points are needed because he doesn't have his 1987 defense.

"We may have to throw more. I don't know, I'm still trying to get a feel for this team."

Starting Sept. 5, so will Bowling Green, Alabama, Cincinnati, Boston College, Temple, Rutgers, Syracuse, West Virginia, Maryland, Pitt and Notre Dame.

Phils pitcher ejected for roughing ball but beats Cubs 4-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Greg Gross was ejected from Monday night's game against the Chicago Cubs because he had a sandpaper substance glued to his glove, according to the umpires.

After Cubs' Manager Gene Linderman complained to home-plate umpire Charlie Williams, the umpires went to the mound and examined both Gross' glove and the ball.

Umpire crew chief John Kilber confiscated Gross' glove and the ball, and then ejected Gross from the game. The ball and glove will be sent to the National League office in New York, and Gross could be suspended for 10 days if it is found he defaced the ball. Kilber used the press box, through a ground crew member, that Gross had an illegal substance glued to his glove. Gross and the Phillies led the Cubs 4-2 in the top of the fifth when Linderman approached Williams with his complaint.

Minnesota Twins pitcher Joe Nickro is currently serving a 10-day suspension after he was caught with an emery board and sandpaper in his pocket in a game against California on Aug. 4.

This is the first time that Gross has been challenged in such a situation. The left-hander has been having a disappointing season. He started Monday night with a 6-10 record and a 4.75 ERA. He had allowed six hits, two runs, walked and struck out two in a 4-13 innings against Chicago.

Expos 2, Mets 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Dennis Martinez pitched seven-hit ball for seven innings and beat New York for the third time this season as the Montreal Expos defeated the Mets 2-1 Monday night.

Martinez, 7-1, had yielded only four runs — two earned — in the Mets in 23 innings this year. Montreal is 11-1 in the 12 games started by Martinez since he was recalled from Indianapolis. Tim Lincecum pitched 11-3 innings for his 11th win.

The Mets, who have lost three straight, took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a two-out double by Keith Hernandez, a fielding error by shortstop Hubie Brooks, and Kevin McReynolds RBI single.

The Expos, who snapped a three-game losing streak, made it 2-1 in the third inning against John Mitchell, 3-4. Tim Lincecum and Mitch Webster had consecutive doubles for one run. One out later, Brooks singled to left sending Webster to third, and Tim Wallach followed with a sacrifice fly to center.

Hernandez, who singled to right with two outs in the fifth inning, was thrown out at the plate trying to score on Darryl Strawberry's double to right field.

Cards 6, Pirates 0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jim Lindeman continued his assault on Pittsburgh pitching with a three-run home run and Bob Forsch pitched a seven-hitter for his first shutout in nearly two seasons as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0 Monday night.

Forsch's shutout, the 18th of his 14-year major-league career, improved his record to 10-3 and marked the 10th season he has reached double figures in victories. It was the right-hander's first shutout since he beat Philadelphia 7-0 on Sept. 18, 1985. He walked one and struck out one.

Pittsburgh for the fifth consecutive time, took a 3-0 lead in the second against Brian Fisher, 7-7.

Willie McGee doubled and Terry Pendleton reached on third baseman Bobby Bonilla's fielding error before Lindeman hit a 3-2 pitch over the left-field wall for his sixth homer of the season and his fifth against the Pirates.

Forsch, who leads NL pitchers with a .340 batting average, doubled to lead off the fifth and Vince Coleman singled ahead of Tommy Herr's two-run double that Andy Van Slyke failed to catch while leaping against the center-field wall.

The Cardinals made it 6-0 in the sixth on three walks, Lindeman's single and reliever Hipolito Pona's balk.

Horn powers Red Sox past Blue Jays

BOSTON (AP) — With Roger Clemens working hard to protect a 2-1 lead, rookie Sam Horn decided it was time to give the Boston pitching ace some breathing room.

Horn set up one run with a double drive in another hit as a second double and then hit a grand slam homer as Clemens and the Red Sox rolled to a 9-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Monday night.

"Roger pitched great, but it was a pitching duel for a while until we broke out," Horn said after hitting his sixth homer in 47 at-bats since being called up from the minors on July 23.

In a mini 6-for-9 slug, Horn broke out with a vengeance. His line drive double over Jesse Barfield's head and off the Toronto bullpen helped Boston take a 3-1 lead against starter Jim Clancy in the sixth inning.

In the seventh, he just missed a home run off reliever Gary Lavelle with an RBI double off high off the wall in left-center.

Then, with two outs and the bases loaded against Jose Nunez in the eighth, the 6-foot-5 slugger lined a shot into the Toronto bullpen to the right of the 380-foot mark.

In just 13 games, one as a pinch-hitter, Horn has burned up the American League since his recall from Pawtucket of the Interstate League. He has five doubles, 16 RBI and 16 runs scored in addition to his six homers.

"I just try to wait and see the ball, then explode," he said.

His late heroics, plus three hits apiece by Wade Boggs and Mike Greenwell, enabled Clemens, 12-7, to breeze in the final stages. Clemens allowed eight hits, struck out eight and didn't walk a batter. He threw 153 pitches in his 13th complete game of the season, tops in the major leagues.

"I had a good fast ball," Clemens said. "You have to be more aggressive — against certain teams — like Toronto. There's some great hitters on that team. I broke some bats tonight."

White Sox 8, Tigers 4

CHICAGO (AP) — Harold Baines drove in three runs with a two-run double and a sacrifice fly Monday night, leading the Chicago White Sox to an 8-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Baines hit his sacrifice fly in a six-run first inning that included a two-run double by Steve Lyons off loser Walt Terrell, 9-2.

Terrell doubled until the sixth inning, when Baines doubled in two runs after Ozzie Guillen and Gary Redus singled.

Richard Dotson, 9-8, who allowed nine hits in seven innings, was the winner although the Tigers scored four runs in the fifth to make it 6-4.

Guillen led off the first with a single and went all the way to third on a wild pitch. Redus walked and then scored on Baines' sacrifice fly.

Ivan Calderon singled to score Redus, Ron Hassey doubled and Greg Walker was walked intentionally to fill the bases. Lyons doubled in two runs. Walker scored on a passed ball and Lyons scored on a sacrifice fly by Fred Manrique. Dotson worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the second before the Tigers scored four times in the fifth.

Orioles 4, Indians 3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Larry Sheets blooped a two-run single in the eighth inning after a wild pitch by Cleveland reliever Ed Vande Berg, lifting the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-3 victory over the Indians Monday night.

The Indians had gone ahead 3-2 in the eighth with the help of a double error on a sacrifice bunt, but the Orioles rallied in the bottom of the inning.

Fred Lynn singled with one out and Ray Knight walked. One out later, Vande Berg replaced loser Don Gordon, 0-1.

The runners advanced to scoring position on the wild pitch before Sheets collected his third hit of the game.

The winner was Mark Williamson, 6-8, who pitched 12-3 innings. Tom Niedenfur got the last out for his seventh save.

With the score tied 2-2, Brett Butler walked to open the eighth and Mike Flanagan was replaced by Williamson, who bobbled a sacrifice bunt by Tommy Hinzo and then kicked the ball toward first base, where it was picked up by second baseman Bill Ripken.

Kansas City's Eisenreich proves he belongs in big leagues

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Eisenreich didn't know what his malady was. He just knew what horrors it was causing.

It made him twitch and gasp for air during games in Minnesota. It led fans in Boston to taunt him a few days later. It caused frightening breathing problems in the next series at Milwaukee.

That was five years ago. Five years when he should have been terrorizing American League pitching. Five years of prescription drugs and just 48 major league games.

Now, at age 28, he is back.

The problem that surfaced when he was a rookie center fielder with the Twins has been diagnosed as Tourette Syndrome, a neurological disorder involving chemicals in the brain. The proper dosage of medication has been found to control it, yet avoid such side effects as drowsiness that would prevent him from playing baseball.

The Twins placed him on the voluntary retired list on June 4, 1984. He spent the next two years playing amateur baseball in his native St. Cloud, Minn., before Kansas City signed him to a one-year contract for this season.

"There is no cure right now, but I'm fine," says Eisenreich.

Dennis Hirschfelder, executive director of the Tourette Syndrome Association in New York, praised Eisenreich for having "the courage to take a shot at the major leagues again and put himself on the firing line."

Eisenreich started the season with Memphis of the Class AA Southern League. In 70 games, he hit .382 with 36 doubles, 10 triples, 11 homers and 57 RBI. On June 17, he was back in the big leagues with the Royals, although he is hitting just .213 in 76 at-bats.

Last Friday, he was back in Boston, where bleacher fans ridiculed him in May 1982.

"I don't even think about that,"

Eisenreich said. "I just think, it's no big deal. I've been here before."

"My only problem is that I'm just not being a very disciplined hitter. They can throw me anything and I'm swinging at it."

Before Friday night's game in Boston, Royals manager Billy Gardner expressed concern about Eisenreich's struggles — at the plate.

"He's having a problem with the bat," Gardner said. Gardner, who put Steve Balboni in Eisenreich's designated hitter spot because Balboni has been hitting well.

In Boston, Eisenreich walked and struck out in two pinch-hitting appearances. He wasn't booted or taunted.

"I'm just another player and that's the way people react to me," he said.

Gardner was Minnesota's manager when in 1982, Eisenreich hit .303 in 34 games that year but played only 14 more major league games before this season.

"This is the best I've seen him in two years," Gardner said. "You just look at him. He looks more refreshed. He doesn't look tired. He's more active. He's talking to people."

"What can intensify symptoms is stress," Hirschfelder said. "Getting up to bat with two outs and the bases loaded is a pretty stressful situation and just coming back is stressful."

At bat, Eisenreich hasn't shown any symptoms. But he has been only a designated hitter and pinch hitter this year. Would fans treat him as kindly if he were more visible?

"Let's put him in the outfield and see what he does with 10,000 Bostonians screaming at him or 10,000 Californians," said Dr. Leonard J. Michienzi, the Twins' team physician. "If he becomes a two-way player, he's got it all put together."

Michienzi isn't convinced Eisen-reich has Tourette Syndrome.

"I always felt he was more frightened of open spaces," he said. "If he doesn't have fear of open spaces, why is he DHing?"

"Before," Gardner said, Eisenreich's throwing arm has been both strong and accurate since spring training. Besides, the Royals have Jackson, Willie Wilson, Danny Tartabull and Lonnie Smith to play the outfield.

"I wouldn't hesitate to put him out there," Gardner said.

"People will always think it's nerves," Eisenreich said. "They think I'm an uptight guy who can't handle pressure."

"Every time he gets up to bat, there are thousands of eyes looking at him to see him tic or see if he'll hit," said Alan Levitt, a Tourette Syndrome Association official who has worked with Eisenreich.

"Obviously, the pressure of performing in front of a crowd is not a pressure to him."

As a child, Levitt said, "kids on the opposing teams would yell at him and try to bait him, but he would always clobber the ball."

Despite the uneventful road trips, symptoms could recur. The taunting could return. It did when Eisenreich was with Memphis.

"In Chattanooga," they yelled here's the twigger," Levitt said. "In Baltimore, something like that happened, too, and it didn't bother him at all."

Niekro looking forward to pitching for contender

BOSTON (AP) — Forty-eight-year-old Phil Niekro reported to the Toronto Blue Jays Monday, hoping to realize a lifelong dream to pitch in a World Series.

"It's always nice to go from a team some 26 games behind to a top contender, but I want to emphasize that I didn't ask to be traded," Niekro said while being welcomed by his new teammates for Toronto's night game with the Boston Red Sox.

Niekro, a right-handed knuckleballer who broke into the major leagues with the old Milwaukee

Braves in 1964, was traded by the Cleveland Indians to Toronto Sunday for minor league outfielder Harry Landrum.

Niekro said his only immediate plans were "to go out and throw on the sidelines for a few minutes."

However, Manager Jimmy Williams would make his first start for the Blue Jays in Toronto against the Chicago White Sox Thursday.

"I'm ready to try to help this ball club," Niekro said. "To pitch in a World Series is something I've always wanted to do, but it's unrealistic to think of that at this stage. There's still a long way to go to get there."

Niekro has a 318-272 major league record and is 0-1 in the National League playoffs, having started games in the 1969 and 1982 playoffs with Atlanta.

In his second season with Cleveland after being waived by the Yankees at the end of spring training in 1986, Niekro was 7-11 record with a 5.89 earned run average in 22 starts.

"Contrary to some reports, I did not ask to be traded," said Niekro, who also admitted the trade did not surprise him.

"I thought something was going to happen, I just didn't know when or where," he said. "At this time of year, every team in contention is looking for pitchers."

"I also had an agreement with (Cleveland vice president) Joe Klein and Dave O'Brien. They weren't counting on me for the future and I'd be lost to them next year, anyway. This way they get a young prospect for me."

While hoping to help the Blue Jays, who lead the Yankees by one game in the AL East entering Monday's action, Niekro declined to speculate on his baseball future after this season.

"At this stage of my career, I don't think I should look too far ahead," Niekro said.

Pan-Am women still need time to jell

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jody Conradt, coach of the U.S. women's Pan Am basketball team, feels her experienced squad still needs time to click.

Conradt's team basically is the same group that won the World Championships and Goodwill Games last year, both times beating the Soviet Union by 20 points in Moscow. These were the first home losses suffered by a Soviet women's team in almost 30 years.

"One of the pluses for this team was its being together before," Conradt said Monday. "They have had a chance to establish their chemistry. Still, they have been together now only since July 23 and we have not had any exhibition games."

"That is one of my concerns. How will this team react on Wednesday?" The United States plays its first game in the seven-team competition Wednesday night against Peru, a team Conradt never has seen.

"When you have an all-star team like this you want to do what you do best and not be overly concerned with the opposition," Conradt said.

The U.S. team suffered a loss to injury well before the games and again just a week before the competition began.

Cheryl Miller, considered one of the world's best female basketball players, suffered a knee injury in April and underwent extensive surgery. She will be in rehabilitation again.

Cindy Brown of Long Beach State hurt her knee in practice and did not accompany the team to Indianapolis.

"Cheryl's was a devastating loss," Conradt said of Miller, who played on the 1984 gold-medal winning Olympic team as well as both U.S. teams last summer. "Her injury has changed the team, but there's no point on dwelling on things you have no control over."

"Without Cheryl we have not scored a lot of easy baskets, in part because Cheryl took it upon her shoulders and did it. I don't know who'll do it with this team."

Lois Brown, a 6-foot-2 forward, means the United States will have to compete with an 11-player roster. "This is an experienced, talented group of athletes," said Conradt.

Wallace takes race

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Rusty Wallace drove away to an easy victory Monday in the rain-delayed Budweiser at the Glen NASCAR stock car race.

Wallace, 30, wheeled his Pontiac into the lead to stay on lap 63 of the 90-lap, 219-mile event at Watkins Glen International.

He built a lead of about 22 seconds, pitted for a splash of gasoline at the start of the final lap and still beat pole-winner Terry Labonte to the finish line by 11.57 seconds.

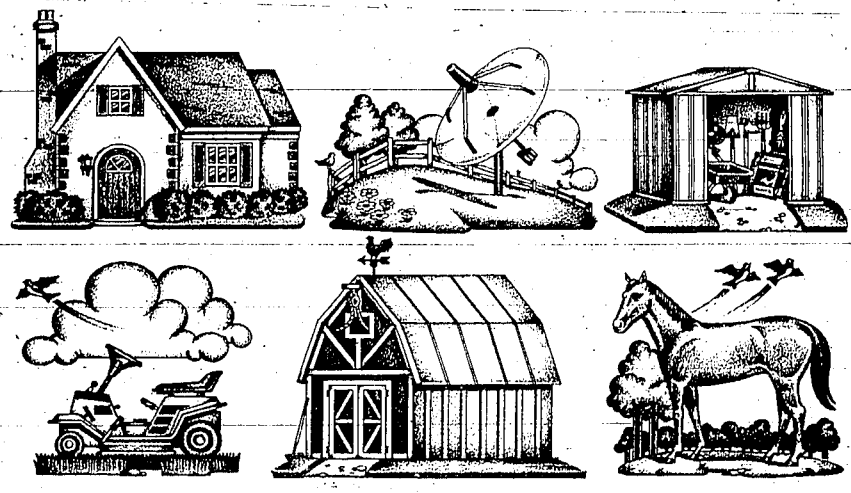

Labonte came back to finish second despite a collision with Morgan Shepherd on lap 37 that dropped him from second to fourth.

Wallace, a red-haired native of Fulton, Mo., started on the outside of the front row Monday and was in command most of the way on the 2.428-mile road course. He led three times for a total of 63 laps on the way to his third career victory and first of the season.

Wallace averaged 90.693 mph in the race slowed by five caution flags for a total of 15 laps to break the race's record of 90.463 set in the inaugural Budweiser at the Glen in 1986 by Tim Richmond.

Bodine, who took the lead from Labonte in the first turn of the race, slowed to avoid Schroedel, Wallace tapped him on the left rear and Bodine tagged the guard rail with his right front.

Briefly in Sports

Buhl runners start tonight

BUHL — Cross country practice for Buhl High School runners will begin Wednesday with a meeting in front of the school at 8:30 p.m.

Those interested should come dressed to run for the first practice. Students in grades 9th through 12th are eligible.

Forms for insurance and physicals are available at the high school office today through Wednesday.

For more information, call Coach Marvin Bartosovsky at 543-5171.

Pheasant meeting slated

WENDELL — The Wendell chapter of Pheasants Forever will meet at 8 p.m. today at Cavazoze Restaurant.

Any person interested in upland game conservation is invited.

Lincoln bowlers to meet

SHOSHONE — The Lincoln Country Women's Bowling Association will hold its fall meeting at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Golden Years Senior Center.

League play will begin Aug. 31 and Sept. 2. Fun night is set for Aug. 24 and 26.

A few places are still available for unaffiliated bowlers to join a team. Those interested should call 886-7536 or 886-2003.

Scramble slated Aug. 21

TWIN FALLS — The Harvey Schlagenhaut-Héart Fund scramble will be held at Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course on Aug. 21, not this Friday as previously reported.

Mennea wins in comeback

GROSSETO, Italy (AP) — World record holder Pietro Mennea, competing for the first time in nearly three years, won the 200 meters in an international meet Monday night with a time of 21.38 seconds.

The 35-year-old Olympic gold medalist, who announced last week that he was coming out of retirement, led throughout the race in this Tuscan town near Florence. There were no other world class runners in the field.

Mennea's time, slowed by a strong wind, was not good enough to qualify for the World Championships beginning later this month in Rome. He is expected to enter other meets to try to achieve the required 20.70 mark.

The race, before some 10,000 fans, was broadcast live during the nightly news on the state-run RAI network.

"After three years, and considering my age and the weather conditions, I had a good result," said a jubilant Mennea, who raised his arms in triumph to the crowd.

Clark voted NL honors

NEW YORK (AP) — San Francisco first baseman Will Clark, who had four homers in four consecutive games, was named the National League's Player of the Week Monday for the period ending Aug. 9.

For the week, Clark had 11 hits in 25 at-bats and had two doubles, five homers and 10 runs batted in. His on-base percentage was .500 and his slugging percentage for the week was 1.080.

Other nominees included Al Pedrique of Pittsburgh, who hit 461 with four doubles and a 4-for-4 performance on Sunday, and John Kruk of San Diego. Kruk hit four homers and had 11 RBIs.

Candiotti given AL award

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland knuckleballer Tom Candiotti, who pitched a one-hitter against the New York Yankees, was named Monday the American League's Player of the Week for the period ending Aug. 9.

The right-hander pitched two complete games in beating New York and Toronto and allowed only one earned run and nine hits in 18 innings.

Candiotti pitched seven innings of no-hit ball against New York Aug. 9, before Mike Easler singled leading off the eighth.

Candiotti competed with Paul Molitor of Milwaukee, who has a 24-game hitting streak. During the week, Molitor hit .393 with 11 runs scored and five RBIs.

New England signs No. 1 quarterback

By The Associated Press

The New England Patriots signed their No. 1 quarterback Monday, while the Cleveland Browns signed their No. 1 draft choice.

Tony Eason, who led the Patriots to the 1986 Super Bowl, signed a one-year contract for a reported $875,000 plus incentives that could put his boost his pay over $1 million. He made $450,000 last year.

Meanwhile, the Browns announced the signing of first-round pick Mike Junkin. The former Duke linebacker had been holding out since July 26.

Patriots General Manager Patrick Sullivan said Eason's contract gives him the highest one-year salary in the club's history. It also will make Eason one of the 20 highest paid NFL players this season.

Sullivan and Eason's agent, Leigh Steinberg, wanted a multi-year deal but decided on a one-year deal to get Eason into training camp. Sullivan said a long-term deal could be reached soon.

"If this thing is changed next week, I wouldn't be surprised," Sullivan said. "We weren't that far apart on a four-year deal. That's why I think it's likely we'll get something done fairly quickly on a four- or even a five-year deal."

Eason set a club record last season by completing 61.6 percent of his passes. He threw for 3,328 yards, second most in team history.

Patriots Coach Raymond Berry said Eason won't play Sunday when the team opens its exhibition season against the New York Giants.

"We had no plans to play our No. 1 quarterback in this game anyway," Berry said.

Eason's backup is veteran Steve Grogan, who holds many of the team's career passing records.

The Browns selected Junkin with a first-round pick they obtained by trading linebacker Chip Banks to San Diego. The 6-foot-3, 230-pound Junkin led the Atlantic Coast Conference in tackles last year with 188.

Twelve first-round NFL draft choices are still unsigned.

Herschel Hurting

Dallas running back Herschel Walker won't play in Saturday's exhibition game against San Diego because of strained ligaments in his right knee.

"Herschel's knee needs some rest," Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said.

Veteran running back Tony Dorsett, who had surgery on both knees in the off-season, also will miss the San Diego game.

Hard Knocks

Rookie linebacker Shane Conlan lost his helmet, but gained valuable experience Monday during his first practice with the Buffalo Bills.

When the first-round pick from Penn State collided with running back Ronnie Harmon, his head snapped back and his helmet went flying.

Conlan, who ended a three-week holdout Sunday, said his helmet came off because his chin straps weren't fastened.

"He hit me right in the face mask and my helmet went off," he said. "No big deal."

Coach Marv Levy said he was impressed by Conlan's hard hitting.

"He looked very aggressive, particularly for his first day," Levy said. "He seemed to relish it and want to jump right in and mix it up."

Released

Four-time Pro Bowl safety Dwight Hicks was waived by the Indianapolis Colts.

Hicks, who was released by San Francisco after the 1985 season, started six games for the Colts last season.

"The early cut is really not indicative of what kind of player he is," said Colts Coach Ron Meyer. "I just wanted to give him a fair chance to catch on with another team."

Dallas to be without Walker Saturday

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys' running back Herschel Walker will be sidelined during Saturday's NFL preseason game in San Diego, because of strained ligaments in his right knee and might miss several others, coach Tom Landry said Monday.

"Herschel's knee needs some rest. He's not definitely out of the San Francisco game in two weeks but he might miss the game," Landry said. "I'd say Herschel's best chance to play in his first preseason game is when we come home."

The Cowboys break their Thousand Oaks training camp after playing their second exhibition game, in San Francisco Aug. 22. Their first home exhibition game is Aug. 30 against the Los Angeles Raiders, followed by a Sept. 5 game against the Houston Oilers at Texas Stadium in Irving.

"Herschel strained the ligaments in practice and he just needs to take some time while those ligaments toughen up," Landry said. "He worked awfully hard in the off-season and feels he could use the rest. There's one thing about Herschel, you know he will stay in good shape."

Landry had already announced that Robert Lavette will start at running back in Saturday's game against San Diego.

Veteran running back Tony Dorsett, who had surgery on both knees to remove deposits in the off-season, also will not play and is expected to be on the bench for most of the four-game exhibition season.

Walker's sprain brings to 22 the number of Cowboys watching from the sidelines with injuries, including wide receiver Mike Sherrard, who was to have been the cornerstone of the Cowboys' offense. And veteran quarterback Danny White has been troubled with a sore throwing wrist.

Landry said Walker will attend practice and spend a lot of time in the training room the next several days.

"I'm not alarmed," Landry said. "Of course, there is always the chance some other damage might show up but the doctors feel he will be OK with rest."

The Cowboys shifted the full emphasis of their offense to Walker and Dorsett after Sherrard broke his leg Wednesday.

"We'll have to emphasize the run more now," Landry said.

Walker said he will be ready.

Our New Rate Cap Offer Is For Those Who Aren't Sure Where Interest Rates Are Headed.

Some say they'll go back up. Some say they're going down. Either way, you'll benefit from First Security's Home Equity Line rate cap offer.

Our variable rate loan will follow the prime rate if it falls. It stays at 3% over prime, quite a competitive rate. Currently, that works out to an 11.25% Annual Percentage Rate (as of June 4, 1987).

And should interest rates snap back up, you're protected. Our rate cap is 13.25% Annual Percentage Rate.* That's the absolute highest our variable interest rate could go, and it's good through January 1, 1991.

All you have to do is apply before

September 11, 1987.

TAX DEDUCTIBLE THIS YEAR. AND NEXT, ETC.

You might elect to use your credit line to pay medical bills. Or to finance a college education. Or purchase a new camper. Or make home improvements. Or even to pay off another home equity loan that doesn't have a rate cap. In any case, chances are excellent that you'll still be able to deduct all the interest. (For specific details, see your tax advisor.)

NO ANNUAL FEE. NO IMMEDIATE CLOSING COSTS.

During our Home Equity Line sale,

we've eliminated loan origination fees. And we've deferred closing fees, such as appraisal and filing fees, until you actually take out a loan on your credit line.

CALL NOW FOR AN APPLICATION.

For your Home Equity Line application, call 1-800-538-1133. Or stop by your nearest First Security Bank office. And stop worrying about the ups and downs, of interest rates.

First Security Bank
Member FDIC

*Exclusive of deferred closing costs. After January 1, 1991, the rate will again vary.

Idaho's Only Home Equity Rate Cap Offer. Ends Sept. 11, 1987.
