Marine 1 close pass costs pilot license

The Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Federal authorities Friday revoked the license of a pilot who flew dangerously near President Reagan's helicopter, and they said the man was an AWOL soldier.

Pvt. Ralph William Myers, 32, declared absent without leave from Fort Lewis, Wash., on Aug. 3, was the pilot of the single-engine Piper Archer plane, officials said.

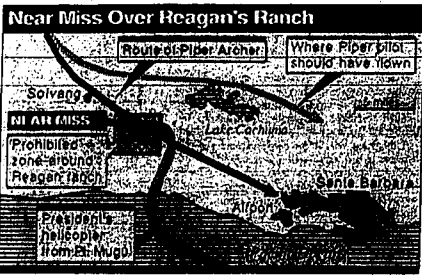

"We're confirming that he is AWOL. We're reviewing actions both civil and criminal," said Mary McMenimen, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's office in Los Angeles.

Myers was being held by police in the city of Orange on Friday after admitting his AWOL status, said Al Joaquin, assistant special agent in charge of the Secret Service office in Los Angeles. Joaquin said Myers was "being held for military authorities."

Officials at Fort Lewis said they were making arrangements to travel to California to pick up Myers.

Bill Corbett, a Secret Service spokesman in Washington, said Secret Service agents also reinter-viewed Myers and were "just going over some of the facts he gave us."

Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said the pilot whose last name he initially gave as "Meyers," was from Lake Oswego, Ore. However, the Federal Aviation Administration listed the hometown as Blingen, Wash.

Myers was released early Friday morning after Secret Service agents from Los Angeles questioned him about Thursday afternoon's close call but could find no basis on which to file criminal charges, Fitzwater said.

The spokesman said he knew of no steps to increase security at the ranch — saying, "You can't close down the skies."

Fitzwater, who was with the vacationing president on the helicopter, said, "At no time was he in any danger."

White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr., however, told reporters, "I suppose there's a fair amount of danger when a plane comes that close to a helicopter."

Fitzwater said the U.S. attorney in Los Angeles, Robert Bonner, "continues to review this case and will be making judgments in the future if there is any indication that charges should be filed."

Spokesman George Polich at Fort Lewis said the base's AWOL apprehension team was making arrangements to travel to California to pick up Myers. He said the company commander has wide latitude on the punishment and that Myers could be placed in confinement, fined, reduced in rank or a combination of all three.

Myers apparently had no idea what he had done until he landed 125 miles away and was greeted by the Secret Service, according to a woman who drove Myers and a pas-

Wholesale inflation rate slips thanks to food price slide ...

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale price inflation slowed to an annual rate of 2 percent in July, the government reported Friday, but sharp price jumps for such items as lumber and plastics indicate inflation could reignite later this year.

The Labor Department said higher energy prices, including large increases for gasoline and home heating oil, offset falling food prices to raise its producer price index for finished goods 0.2 percent over June.

While the reported July rise matched that of June, the monthly annualized rate — calculated from a more precise compilation of price changes than the overall rate released by the department — dropped from 2.9 percent to 2 percent.

Including the July figures, inflation at the wholesale level for the first seven months of 1987 is running about 4.2 percent, down from 4.5 percent for the first six months.

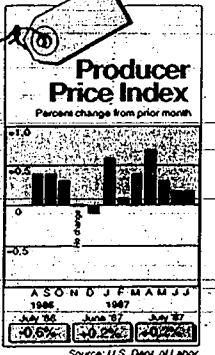

White House spokesman Mayfin Fitzwater, reacting to the producer price figures, said in Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is on vacation: "This is good news on the inflation front. It seems inflation is leveling off in the 4 percent range, consistent with our desire for continued growth with low inflation."

The Reagan administration last week predicted that by the end of the year, wholesale prices will have risen only 3.5 percent from December 1986.

The more widely used consumer price index that measures retail inflation rose at an annual rate of 5.4 percent in the first six months, with figures for July due out next week.

The overall index for finished wholesale products one step short of the "retail level" stood at 297.8 in July, compared with 295.8 in the previous month and 287.6 in July

... While trade deficit surges

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's merchandise trade deficit soared to an apparent record of $15.7 billion in June as Americans stopped up a buying spree of imported goods, the government reported Friday.

Economists called the June shortfall, paced by a $2-billion jump in imports despite higher prices for many foreign goods, a major setback for hopes of a long-awaited trade turnaround.

"The trade deficit was a disaster," said David Wyses, chief financial economist for Data Resources Inc. "I still believe in the long run, we are turning around. But the silver lining is awfully hidden in this particularly dark cloud."

The Commerce Department said the June deficit was up nearly 12 percent from the May shortfall of $14 billion. For the first half of 1987, the trade gap was running at an annual rate of $163.9 billion, higher than last year's revised record deficit of $166.2 billion.

"The deficit is very large and very disappointing," said Robert Ortner, undersecretary of commerce for economic affairs.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is vacationing, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said: "We are concerned that the trade deficit is not coming down — or — flat — or — dropping."

Nevertheless, the value of the dollar and other factors should have a

Despite scoffers, cosmic pause luring throngs to power points

By The Associated Press

According to one reading of the Mayan calendar, this weekend heralds a "harmonic convergence," a cosmic pause to adjust your vibrational rate for the age to come.

And there are those cynical souls who think it's all purest poppycock. "Believers have already staked out 'power points' where they'll be celebrating on Sunday and Monday."

Several thousand people are expected at Chaco Culture National Historical Park in New Mexico, campgrounds were booked up at Mount Shasta in California and Enchanted Rock in Texas, and National Parks Service officials expected 10 people — maybe more — to show up at Mesa Verde in Colorado.

The big question was whether various observances would attract the minimum 144,000 people which harmonic theorist Jose Arguelles says are needed to create a field of trust, to ground the new vibrational frequencies coming in at that time.

Arguelles, an art historian who lives in Boulder, Colo., concludes from Mayan and other native American prophecies that a 5,125-year cycle will climax in 2012, at which time Earthlings will be in contact with alien beings.

"To prepare, a period of cleansing will begin Sunday and continue at least through 1992," he says. Michael Coe of Yale University, an authority on Mayan culture, said Arguelles' predictions are "totally crackpot."

"It's based on a hodgepodge of astrology, UFOlogy, the Mayan calendar, Aztec gods and a dash of the so-called New-Age philosophy," said Paul Kurtz, a philosopher at the State University of New York at Buffalo and chairman of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal.

The convergence is reminiscent of the "Jupiter effect" which was supposed to get rid of California once and for all back in 1982, when all the planets were lined up on one side of the sun. Arguelles' theory is much more upbeat and, unlike the Jupiter effect, it doesn't call for anything in particular to happen this weekend.

"It's like taking off a jar lid, opening the planet up," said Laura Moore of Austin, Texas, who is organizing one celebration in Texas. "The earth will be like wet clay upon which we'll imprint our vision of a new world order. On the 17th, we'll dance clockwise, symbolically putting the jar lid back on."

Dingell promises fast, favorable action on Swan Falls pact

By MARK PRATTER

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The congressman with power over the Swan Falls water rights agreement is promising quick favorable action on a bill to seal federal approval of the pact provided certain environmental conditions are met.

The assurances came in a letter sent by Rep. John Dingell, chairman of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, to Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho. The letter was sent earlier this month.

Stallings introduced a bill in January directing a key federal agency to approve the Swan Falls agreement between the state and Idaho Power Co.

The agreement guarantees IPC hydroelectric plants minimum Snake River stream flows: It grew out of a state court decision which would have severely limited irrigated agriculture in southern Idaho if allowed to stand without modification.

Environmental groups, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Marine Fisheries say they are concerned the flows would deplete fish and wildlife at the Deer Flats National Wildlife Refuge of adequate water.

Dingell, D-Michigan, says his support is conditioned on provisions proposed by the Fish and Wildlife Service being included in the bill. The provisions would guarantee studies of fish and wildlife.

Dingell says "without a guarantee of such studies fish and wildlife resources will not have even the remotest opportunity to be protected" in future actions by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

FERC, which licenses hydroelectric projects, is the agency Stallings' bill would direct to approve the Swan Falls agreement.

Dingell's letter includes a personal note penned at the bottom. "We are going to try to work this out for you Richard. Please let us continue to work together."

Stallings said Friday night his support of the changes depended on what the state and IPC have to say. If the state and IPC raise objections, then there will have to be additional negotiations, Stallings says.

Last month Gov. Andrus and IPC sent Dingell letters criticizing the National Marine Fisheries Service for misinterpreting the environmental impacts of the Swan Falls agreement.

Dingell wrote Stallings that he received the Andrus and IPC letters but he hinges out the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service reply for praise as being "quite helpful." There is no praise for the Andrus and IPC letters.

"The resources of concern are the Deer Flat (co) National Wildlife Refuge, and the anadromous and white sturgeon fish resources of the Snake River. The extent of impact of the flows proposed in the Agree-

Hi-Fi survivor says condemned Selby should die Aug. 28

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — A survivor of a 1974 torture-shooting at a hi-fi shop said Friday that the man who tried five times to kill him "seemed to be enjoying what he was doing" in his pleading victims.

In emotion-choked testimony before the Utah Board of Pardons, Oregon Walker said Pierre Dale Selby should die by lethal injection as scheduled on Aug. 28.

Walker contradicted much of Selby's account of the events in the basement of the Ogden Hi-Fi Shop the night five people were shot in the head and forced to drink a caustic drain opener. Three of the victims died.

The victims included Walker's son Stanley, 20; Carol Naisbitt, 52; and Michelle Analey, 19, who was raped before being killed. Mrs. Naisbitt's son, Courtney, then 18, also survived.

"Michelle said, 'I'm just 19. I don't want to die.' Stanley said, 'We're all young. We don't want to die.' Courtney, in kind of a quivering voice, 'I don't want to die,' Walker recounted, his voice breaking.

"It's hard for me to see how anything but the death penalty can be substantiated," he said.

Selby is scheduled to become the first person executed in Utah since Gary Gilmore in 1977.

The three-member board, which has the authority to commute Selby's death sentence to life in prison, has until Aug. 21 to decide his fate.

In a brief statement before the hearing on Friday, Selby said he "was not the same man after 1974 and now would be incapable of such acts."

"I've sat here for two days listening to a lot of background about myself, most of which I'm not proud of, some I can't deny, some because I cannot remember, others I would just as soon forget," he said.

"It is my hope that whatever way the decision goes, I can accept it for what it is."

Selby, 34, of New York City, and William Andrews, 32, Jonesboro, La., were arrested at nearby Hill Air Force Base when they committed the crime many consider the most infamous in Utah history. Andrews' appeals trail Selby's by about six months.

On Thursday, Selby appealed for mercy, weeping as he recounted a severe beating he had received during a strict upbringing.

Walker said that contrary to Selby's first public statements about the crime, the killer did not seem impaired by alcohol and drugs, was not prompted to kill by a racial epithet from Mrs. Naisbitt and did not quickly dispatch his victims.

"After he shot Mrs. Naisbitt first, then he was kind of prancing or walking in a manner that I got the impression he was kind of enjoying what he was doing," Walker said. Five minutes after shooting Mrs. Naisbitt, "then he shot Courtney. Then the same thing took place and he shot Stanley the first time," Walker said.

Selby said four of the five were shot in rapid succession after Mrs. Naisbitt called him a "godless nigger" and that while he may have tried to rape Miss Analey, the marijuana, beer and Valium he'd taken would have made him impotent.

Walker said Mrs. Naisbitt could not have said anything to Selby before being shot because her mouth was taped. He also said he smelled no alcohol on Selby's breath during the more than three hours the crime unfolded.

When the caustic drain cleaner was administered, Walker said he let it dribble out the sides of his mouth. "The others swallowed it."

After shooting everyone but Analey, Selby untied her and took her fully clothed into a back room for about 15 minutes, Walker said. She "was wearing only a pair of socks when she returned and Selby placed her next to Walker, he said.

"He was standing directly over her and he shot her right in the head," he said, and then shot a still-breathing Stanley Walker a second time.

I guess you just know your kids. I could tell when Stan stopped breathing," Walker said.

Selby then took a cord and tried to choke Walker, who was playing dead but tightened his neck muscles so he could breathe when he relaxed. Then Selby kicked a pen into his ear three times, three in each "ear," and left him for dead. Walker also was shot in the head. He was found by his wife.

Walker said a younger son slept on a mattress in his parents' bedroom for a year and would not go into the basement of the house.

Record 9-inch rain floods Chicago area

CHICAGO (AP) — A record 9.2 inches of rain soaked the Chicago area Friday, flooding homes and expressways, isolating O'Hare International Airport and knocking out power and telephone service to thousands of people.

At least one person died during the storm, which hit hardest in northern Cook County, which encompasses Chicago, and Du Page County to the northwest. Some 300 people fled their homes, and at least one hospital, in suburban Des Plaines, had to evacuate patients.

Gov. James R. Thompson declared the two counties disaster areas, authorizing state aid for residents.

The governor also activated 200 National Guard troops to provide security and aid in evacuation efforts. Flooding closed the Kennedy Expressway leading out of Chicago to O'Hare, making it "virtually impossible" to reach the airport from the nation's third-largest city, said Marilyn Katz of the city's Department of Aviation.

American Airlines spokesman Steve McGregor said the airport was "an island just surrounded by water."

He said as many as 76 percent of American Airlines flights would be canceled; United Airlines also suspended most operations until 8 p.m. "A Herculean effort is being maintained by hundreds of people at O'Hare to keep it open, and it is open," said Federal Aviation Association spokesman Mort Edelstein.

One runway was open for landings, and two partial runways were open for takeoffs, he said, adding, "City crews and FAA personnel are working doggedly to get those runways cleared of water and water away from navigational aids."

Even the weather service couldn't escape the storm. "We're stranded," said meteorologist Bob Collins, noting 3 feet of water surrounded the National Weather Service building near the airport and 6 inches of water had crept inside.

More rain was forecast for the weekend.

Collins blamed the storm on an unstable air mass that socked in the Chicago area, caused by cool air to the north and warm, very moist air to the south.

Briefly

Habib out in accord's wake

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philip C. Habib, in a surprise announcement, resigned on Friday as U.S. special envoy to Central America just as the nations there were taking the first tentative steps toward a comprehensive peace agreement.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Habib decided to return to private life because of the recent diplomatic gains.

But two other officials, insisting on anonymity, said Habib had disagreed with some aspects of administration policy toward the region although he was leaving without bitterness.

One said the administration rejected a Habib proposal earlier in the week that he visit Central America, including Nicaragua, as an effort to gain further insight into the regional peace agreement signed Aug. 7 in Guatemala City.

Redman praised Habib's efforts in Central America. But the veteran envoy, 67, was never popular among the administration's more conservative elements.

Habib was one of the nation's most seasoned diplomats and his resignation apparently ends a State Department career that began in 1949.

Minor quake shakes Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP) — A moderate earthquake shook the Fox Islands in the Aleutian chain off the coast of Alaska early Friday, the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

The Survey's Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., measured the quake at 5.3 on the Richter Scale, Survey officials said.

They said that it was not felt in any inhabited area and caused no reported damage.

The center of the quake was about 870 miles southwest of Anchorage, the Survey said, and occurred at 6:40 a.m. local time (11:40 a.m. MDT).

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released in an earthquake as measured by the ground motion recorded on instruments.

Falwell can't save church

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The euphoria of a rousing fund-raiser led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell has evaporated in failure as a Baptist church on Friday faced almost certain foreclosure.

Falwell, the Moral Majority founder who now is trying to keep the PTL television ministry going, visited Center Road Baptist Church in suburban West Seneca on June 28.

He led a service in which he challenged, enjoined and pleaded for $35,000 to meet overdue payments on the church's mortgage. He pledged $1,000 himself; others put $20 bills into baskets.

At the time, church officials said they received more than $35,000 in cash and pledges.

"Do you suppose it would be permissible to say, 'Whoopee!' the Rev. Barney R. Lee, pastor of the 600-member church, said afterward.

A more subdued Lee said Friday half the pledges have not materialized, among them $2,000 from Falwell's Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Va.

"We have put all the money raised so far on our first mortgage. We're still $16,000 to $17,000 short," he said.

Superconductor makeup identified

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists said Friday they had identified atomic details of a material that apparently "superconducts" electricity without resistance at up to 63 degrees Fahrenheit, a step toward producing it in bulk.

Researchers determined the number of atoms from various elements, and their configuration in the basic building block of the material, said Jagdish Nayyar, professor of materials science and engineering at North Carolina State University.

Other scientists cautioned that the research does not prove the material is a superconductor at near-room temperature, but that the finding would be important if verified.

Superconductivity is the ability of a material to conduct electricity without resistance, which wastes energy. Standard superconductors must be chilled to hundreds of degrees below zero, a costly process that limits their usefulness.

But in recent months, researchers have been reporting evidence of superconductivity in new materials at room temperature. If such reports can be confirmed, scientists say, it could open the door to faster and smaller computers, high-speed trains, and more efficient generation and transmission of electric power.

One problem has been that the apparent room-temperature superconductors have been found only in isolated pockets of larger samples. Researchers must make bulk samples of the room-temperature material for further testing and to put them to use.

Other portions of the overall sample appear to superconduct at minus 297 degrees, he said.

So to study the atomic details of the apparent room-temperature portion, researchers compared that sample to another that became superconducting only at the sub-zero temperature, he said.

Comedian's husband dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Producer Edgar Rosenberg, the husband of comedian Joan Rivers and occasional target of her jokes, was found dead in his hotel room Friday, apparently of a Valium overdose, police said. He was 62.

Rosenberg, whose body was found on the floor next to the bed, probably fell out of bed and hit his head on the dresser, said Detective Gerald Whartenby.

Officials were alerted when Rosenberg's business manager called him at the Four Seasons Hotel on Friday-morning and received no answer, Whartenby said.

Hotel security officers who entered Rosenberg's room found Rosenberg, pills, and a note. The pills were being analyzed, but police said they believed them to be Valium.

Police also found three cassette tapes at the scene which contained information recorded for various members of the family, according Whartenby.

Grant said Rosenberg was in Philadelphia for meetings. Rosenberg had been there since Tuesday, police said.

Stallings gives raise to colleges

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Rep. Richard Stallings took the money and ran straight to the voters on Friday, laughing all the way.

The Democratic Congressman turned over his $12,000 congressional pay raise in the form of scholarships to five colleges in the 2nd Congressional district.

Some of Idaho's Republican delegation earlier heaped derision on Stallings for the move, but Stallings had the last laugh on Friday.

"I was amused by (Rep. Larry) Craig's remarks that I'd make more money by writing it off on my taxes," Stallings said during a television interview Friday. "If that were the case, then I think we've found a new way to fund secondary education."

Stallings said he was taking the tax deduction, but he said it would "still cost me a great deal."

Stallings said he could have returned the pay raise to the U.S. Treasury, but he decided to "do something to benefit the people of my district" by establishing the scholarships.

At the College of Southern Idaho, Stallings presented a $592 check to Teresa Burton, a Burley sophomore in the nursing program and a mother of five children. The check covers a full semester's tuition at CSI, officials said.

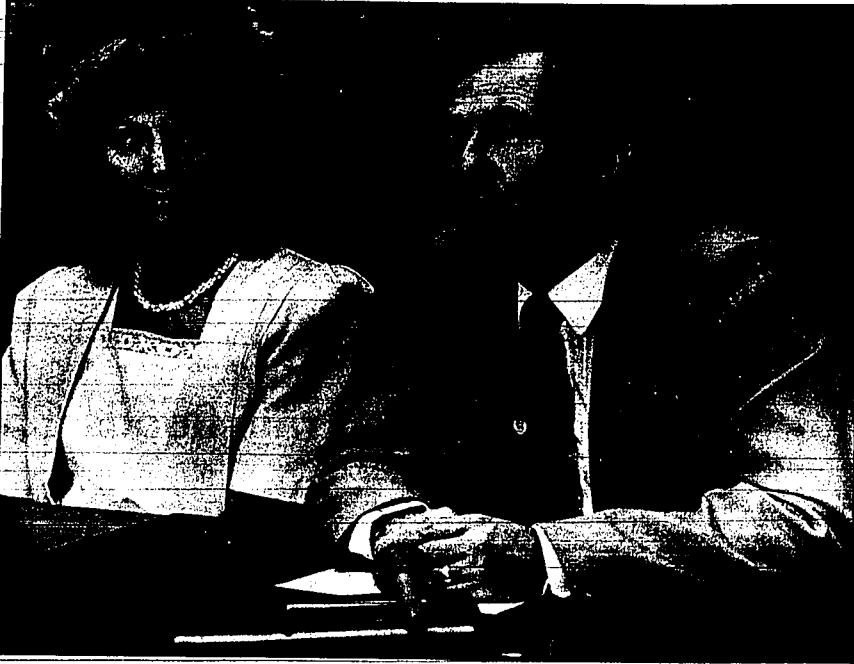

The move demonstrated why Stallings is not yet sweating next year's congressional race in one of the country's more solidly Republican districts.

The Rexburg Democrat was recently the subject of a Congressional Quarterly article on the "flukes" of Congress, and Stallings was characterized as one of the best-known flukes.

A fluke is a candidate in his district's minority of voters who ran in the "wrong" place at the right time, and won. Now he is considered a formidable incumbent, the Congressional Quarterly noted.

"It is typical for House incumbents to strengthen their political bases at home with assiduous attention to constituent needs, but Stallings exceeds the norm in trying to establish a personal rapport with voters," the Aug. 8 article said.

Hold SIS hearings here — lawmaker

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Richard Stallings wants public hearings here on the environmental impact of a proposed plutonium cleanup plant at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, says spokesman Melody Rydalcik.

The U.S. Department of Energy, which operates INEL west of Idaho Falls, hasn't committed to public hearings in Twin Falls but it says they are a possibility.

"Stallings, D-Idaho, is not aware of any scheduled hearings on the special isotope separation project. He says DOE has indicated hearings will be held once the environmental impact statement is released in September, Rydalcik said Thursday.

Stallings also wants the comment period on the impact statement extended, Rydalcik says. Stallings' second district includes Idaho Falls where many of INEL's 10,000 workers live. SIS is a $504 million project that would make plutonium stocks from Hanford, Wash. usable for nuclear weapons production. INEL is the preferred site for the project, DOE says.

Asked why Stallings was backing local hearings on the SIS when he recently lobbied for another project at INEL, without hearings, Rydalcik says Stallings wants hearings on attracting the New Production Reactor project.

The Idaho Congressional delegation and Gov. Cecil Andrus met with U.S. Secretary of Energy John H. Hargrett August 3 to lobby for the production reactor, a $3 to $5 billion project to produce weapons grade plutonium and tritium.

The Snake River Alliance, an environmental group, criticized the delegation for making the pitch to Hargrett "before the people of Idaho have had a chance to learn about the project or talk to public officials about it."

Sens. Strom Thurmond and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina are also lobbying to get the production reactor located at a DOE facility in Aiken, S.C.

Idaho politicians and the Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce are seeking new projects for INEL to ensure its work force remains stable. The reactor safety program, long a mainstay at the site, is on the wane because of a decline in the nuclear power industry.

In 1983 INEL was named as the preferred site for the production reactor but Jack Vandenberg, a DOE spokesman in Washington, says that does not apply to the current situation. "No site has been ruled out and no is preferred," he said.

Stallings disputed this interpretation that past selection of INEL played no role in the latest deliberations.

Idaho, along with many other states, is also seeking the Superconducting Supercollider project, a huge atom smasher for scientific research into the most basic elements of matter. The state wants to locate the $4.4 billion project at INEL.

Agency won't block rehearing on Niagara

By JANE ROBINSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Parks and Recreation Department will not try and block a motion for a rehearing on the Niagara Springs issue, an official said Friday.

Deputy Attorney General Rinda Ray Just said the Parks Department will wait to present its case in favor of a minimum stream flow at Niagara Springs Creek either at a rehearing or at the District Court, if the case moves there.

"We're not rolling over, we're just saving the battle for another day," Just said.

On Monday, Rim View Trout Company owner Earl Hardy petitioned the Department of Water Resources for a rehearing on the Niagara Springs decision issued by Director Ken Dunn.

Dunn granted a minimum stream flow request for the Parks Department that would insure fresh, sparkling spring water from the headwaters to the confluence of the creek with the Snake River, about half a mile.

His decision effectively squelched pending applications for more water use at Niagara Springs by Hardy. In requesting a rehearing, Hardy said the director "exceeded his authority" in stretching the minimum stream flow all the way to the river.

Just earlier this week said the Parks Department would probably file a protest to Hardy's appeal.

But after reviewing the case, she said it did not seem like the appropriate time.

"The Water Department is perfectly capable of making a decision on Hardy's motion based on the merits of the case he presented," she said. "We want to assure the people we are not rolling over."

If a rehearing is granted, Just said Parks Department will "actively participate."

If a rehearing is denied, and Hardy appeals the decision in District Court, she said the Parks Department will "actively participate" in a court fight.

Buhl OKs budgetary increase, tax hike

By DAVID LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The City Council has approved proposed $1.67 million 1987-88 budget, an increase of 7.5 percent from last year.

Because of a $1 million drop in taxable property valuations, residents will pay higher taxes to maintain property tax revenues at about the same level.

Mayor Claude McKercher said property valuations in the last fiscal year came to over $53 million in the city, but fell to about $41.5 million because of the homeowners exemption.

Taxes will increase 5 percent, in line with state law, which limits tax hikes to 5 percent more than the previous year's property tax funding.

McKercher said he believes the drop in taxable property valuations to be caused by both a drop in the assessed value of some property and an increase in use of the homeowners exemption.

Buhl, like other Idaho cities, will get more money from the state sales

Confusion prompts Jerome board to hand back teachers contracts

By C. CHAMBERLAIN
Times-News writer

JEROME — Confusion dealing with the legal implications of wording on new teachers' contracts prompted the Jerome School Board to return contracts to more than 30 teachers this week.

At a board meeting Tuesday night, trustees discussed whether or not the wording in the 1987-88 contracts implied teachers were legally bound to special services, such as coaching or advising.

In order to enter contracts more easily on a new computer system, board members combined the teaching contract with the extra-curricular services contract, said Chairman Chojnacky.

Bob Williams, attorney for the school board, assured the trustees the two services were not legally linked in the contract, but teachers said their attorney had a different interpretation.

"Our attorney said the special services are legally bound to our teaching contracts and that it would stand up in court," said Leon Madsen, co-head wrestling coach and teacher at Jerome High School.

More than 30 teachers within the district are affected by the confusion, from coaches to debate team advisers, Madsen said.

Four teachers even crossed off the section on their new contracts that dealt with special services to avoid being legally bound to a coaching job, he added.

After some discussion, the board agreed to issue new contracts to the teachers in question, using last year's form of two separate contracts. Madsen said he was "satisfied" with the decision.

"I think we all agreed we'd like to work toward better contract wording," said Chojnacky.

"Our intention never was to bind teachers to special services," said Superintendent Richard Kugler.

The new contracts will be distributed within a week, Kugler said.

Jerome teachers received their 1987-88 contracts on June 1 and many coaches and advisers signed the contracts despite misgivings, Madsen said.

"Some of them asked me what to do because they didn't want to sign the contracts. I tried to assure them the issue would eventually be resolved," he said.

Ben Allen, part-time athletic director, said the problem was not a lack of trust. "We all trust you guys," he said, addressing the trustees.

"The problem comes three or four years down the road when we have new board members and a new superintendent. They might interpret the contract differently."

Coaching and other extra-curricular services can easily promote "burn-out," Madsen said.

"Sometimes, you have to step out for a while to keep your energy," he said. The employees wanted to be able to do that without losing their teaching jobs, he added.

Polly Bemis eyed as movie possibility

SUN VALLEY (AP) — A producer wants to make a movie about Polly Bemis, a pioneer woman who was brought from China to a central Idaho mining town in the 1870s.

In 1884, she and Bemis were married, and lived in a cabin next to the Salmon River.

Polly Bemis died in 1933, and was buried in Grangeville. In June, her remains were returned to the Salmon River cabin, which has been made into the Polly Bemis Historical Museum.

Kelly said the movie would focus on Bemis' life in Warren, and end with her accepting a marriage proposal from Bemis. Robert Redford's Sundance Institute in Utah has accepted the Bemis film project, and will provide assistance in script consultation and help the producers find funding sources, Kelly said.

Kelly said they still are trying to complete fundraising, and find a suitable location for filming the movie. The Warrens wife is too remote to be feasible, she said.

Bemis was born in China in 1853, and came to Warren, Idaho, in the 1870s as an indentured servant. She was owned by Hong Kong, a Chinese saloonkeeper, until a gambler named

Dispute throws record sugarbeet harvest into doubt

RUPERT (AP) — Idaho sugarbeet growers are getting ready for their second record harvest in a row, but a contract dispute between the state's largest grower organization and Idaho's primary refiner has created uncertainty over prospects for the 1988 crop.

"Use your best judgment as to how far you should go in preparing your ground for the 1988 crop," Idaho Sugar Beet Growers Association President George Grant has been telling his nearly 800 members.

At issue are proposals from Amalgamated Sugar for next year's contract with the growers that Grant said would severely reduce income and potentially curtail needed operating credit.

Specifically, the company has proposed altering the 20-year-old scale used to determine the price for producers, dramatically changing the schedule of payments to producers and voiding the contract completely if the federal government approves any change in the price support program for sugar.

Negotiations on the new contract to replace a two-year pact that expires after the current season have been suspended while the University of Idaho completes a cost-of-production study requested by the growers.

But the Amalgamated proposals forced the association to take the unprecedented step of hiring a professional negotiator to represent it in the talks "because of the seriousness of these proposals and the disastrous effect they will have on all our members and communities," Grant said.

The association represents growers working over 100,000 acres of the 161,000 acres of beets planted this year. Government forecasters have put the total state crop at a record 4.27 million tons, up 110,000 tons from the previous year's record crop harvested last year. The yield was also up at a record 26.5 tons per acre, up a half ton from last year.

The association provides Amalgamated with over half the beets it processes every year. The rest come from two smaller grower groups, the Elwysee Beet Growers in Owyhee County and the Nyssa-Nampa Beet Growers.

"We've had some fairly good relations with the company in the past," Grant said. "But this year we feel they are really trying to get into our pocketbooks."

Grant charged that the change in the pricing scale would reduce grower receipts up to $60 an acre — some $9 million overall — while the provision voiding the contract if changes are made in the price support program could dry up credit.

"This proposal is of great concern to the banks and other lending institutions as they feel that the contract would have very little value as a source of income to repay operating loans, Grant said.

The cost-of-production study could be completed early this fall so contract talks could resume in October. But there would only be four months left to resolve the dispute before growers must decide whether to stick with beets and no contract or plant an optional crop next year.

"Most are heavily into setting up budgets in January and February and, of course, are planning by the last of March and first of April," Grant said.

Clock ticking in battle to save landmark

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Preservationists say time is quickly running out in their battle with the Mormon Church to prevent the historic Hotel Utah from being converted into offices and a place of worship.

Unless Mormon officials change their minds, the downtown landmark will close its doors Aug. 31, ending 76 years as Utah's premier hotel and convention site.

The plan to close the hotel has sparked one of the most spirited in a long series of battles between the church and preservationists who argue that Mormon leaders have little regard for the symbols of Utah's pioneer history.

But unlike the other struggles, preservationists fighting for the Hotel Utah have been joined by thousands of citizens who lived some of their finest moments in the hotel's elegant ballrooms and restaurants.

"I personally think the church, if you want to put it bluntly, they've lost their minds," said Harold Smoot, who was born in the hotel in 1920.

Even aside from the circumstances of his birth, Smoot's life is linked inextricably to the hotel. Both his grandfathers, Mormon apostles and U.S. Sen. Reed Smoot and C.W. Nibley, a member of the Mormon Church's governing First Presidency, helped forge the alliance of the Mormon and non-Mormon business communities in Salt Lake City that launched the hotel's construction in 1909.

Both grandfathers eventually took up residence in the hotel. Smoot spent most of his childhood Christmas there, and helped Nibley wear a groove in the hotel carpet where they held putting practice in his fifth-floor suite.

Smoot said one purpose for building the hotel, across the street from the church's Temple Square, was to provide a place where Mormon and non-Mormon could meet in harmony.

"The reasons they built the hotel they are totally ignoring today," Smoot said. "It's not going to have the non-members become more familiar with the church because it's taking them away."

Church leaders announced plans for the hotel's closure in March, saying the building was needed for worship facilities and office space. Since then, the church has said it has lost millions of dollars on the hotel in several years, and can no longer justify subsidizing the operation with church members' tithing donations.

"The customers weren't there. I think that's the bottom line," said church spokesman Jerry Cahill. Cahill said the church would make every effort to keep at least part of the building accessible, although no specific plan for that has been announced.

The white-glazed brick and terra-cotta exterior and the ornate lobby will remain unchanged, Cahill said. "The building will remain as a landmark," he said.

But the church's assurances have failed to convince preservationists such as architect Allan Roberts, Utah adviser to the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Roberts, who helped nominate the hotel to the National Register of Historic Places, said many of the building's most impressive areas, such as the LaFayette Ballroom, are likely to be destroyed as the interior is remodeled.

"The church has been saying, 'Well, when you see our plans and you'll just love it,' but nobody's seen anything," Roberts said.

Cahill said that is because plans for the building are not yet complete. He said the church has not even appointed an architect to redesign the interior.

Citizens for the Preservation of the Hotel Utah presented church leaders in June with petitions bearing the names of 12,000 people opposed to the closure, and in July, the Utah Heritage Foundation formally offered to float a $30 million, non-interest bond to pay for the hotel's restoration and keep it operating.

But so far, the church has to all appearances remained unmoved. The Heritage Foundation has received no response to its bond offer, and supporters say the odds are long that the proposal will be accepted.

But Kathryn McKay, director of Citizens to Preserve the Hotel Utah, said the effort will continue until the hotel's doors are tually close.

During the past 20 years, preservationists won their fights to stop the church from tearing down 19th century tabernacles, or community worship buildings, in Utah.

Wednesday's hour-long episode means Lake Merced ended when Raphael Pazo, 21, stabbed his attacker with a screwdriver and escaped, said police inspector Stephen Lundberg.

Pazo said the ceiling of the van bore a poster of a pentagram, a symbol used in satanic rituals. Pazo said his assailant drove a short distance and parked, cut Pazo's left cheek with the top of a can and soaked up the blood with a sponge, from which he squeezed the blood into his mouth.

The kidnapper then drove away, when Pazo found a screwdriver. Pazo said he stabbed the man in the abdomen and fled to a house.

Lundberg said the attacker may have been wounded in the liver and would have to look for medical treatment.

Man separated from siblings Runner molested in bizarre attack

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man separated from 10 siblings during the Great Depression has learned the fate of five of them in the last week and said Friday that the discoveries had filled "a great big empty space" in his life.

Ed Maddox spoke by phone with his sister, Marie Peterson, in Minneapolis on Thursday night and has learned another sister, Lillian, is in a convalescent hospital in the San Francisco Bay area.

Earlier this week, he located a surviving near Sacramento, Calif., and discovered that two brothers had died.

Maddox was one of 11 siblings who were put up for adoption by their destitute parents who came to the San Francisco area during the Depression.

He started his search after his adoptive parents died. Maddox said Friday that the discoveries have been heartwarming, but imperfect.

The 45-year-old Christian missionary who receives no salary said he cannot afford to fly to Minnesota to see Marie, and he's been told Lillian is very ill.

"Lillian will not be able to talk to anybody," he said. "She's in the final stages of Alzheimer's disease. So, it's kind of a bittersweet deal."

He may be getting together with the sister near Sacramento next week, but noted, "she is a very private person" and has not welcomed the publicity attached to his successful search.

Maddox said he learned one of his brothers — he's not sure if it was Ernest or Lloyd — died from appendicitis in an orphanage. Another, Harry, died in 1972.

That leaves five siblings still unaccounted for: Viola, Walter, Edward, Harold and either Ernest or Lloyd.

He said the search would go on. Maddox was adopted 68 years ago at age 4 by an Oakland, Calif., streetcar motorman and his wife. At the request of his adoptive mother, he waited until he was 16 to learn into his roots. It was then that he discovered a tragic Depression-era story.

Reeling through microfilm files at the Tribune in Oakland, Maddox came across a front-page story about his parents. The Associated Press natural parents, Harry and Agnes Bunan, had run out of money and had been refused assistance.

In desperation, the Bunans reluctantly gave their children away to strangers. "I want them to have homes, and I have no home to give them," the mother told reporters then.

Maddox, born Edmund Birsdel Bunan, was stunned and tried to find out more information from old strangers. "I want them to have homes, and I have no home to give them," the mother told reporters then.

Another story on Wednesday was read by Maddox's niece, Beverly Howell, who realized her mother, Lillian, was one of the missing sisters.

Mrs. Howell then helped link Maddox to his sister, Marie in Minneapolis.

Maddox said the discovery of his long-lost sisters has hit him "like a sledge hammer."

"After my adopted family passed away, there was a great big empty space. And now it's being filled," he said. "And our children have been just really thrilled about the information we've been able to get so far."

Budget

Obtaining more funding in the new budget are the Buhl Public Library, which will see a 68 percent increase in expenditures (with some of it coming from a large carry-over); parks at 27 percent; the airport at 26 percent; and fire prevention at 17 percent. There were also slight increases in recreation expenditures, water funds and for streets (7 percent).

There was a slight decrease in the police budget, to $204,268, and a 14 percent decline in animal control (because of insurance savings).

Proposed revenue for the general fund is $455,863, a 7 percent hike over 1985-86. Administration expenditures are scheduled to increase only 2 percent, to $85,696.

Highlights of the proposed budget are:

• The salary for the city clerk will rise 8 percent to $1,610. Monthly salaries for some other city employees will increase about 1 percent.

• The building inspector will be paid $6,600 per year plus benefits. He currently receives 80 percent of the building permits assessed.

• The salary for the city attorney will go up 47 percent, to $2,070.

• The library is expected to open an extra two-and-one-half hours on Monday nights, and Wednesday mornings during the summer.

• State revenue sharing for the library is expected to grow by 53 percent, streets by 62 percent and the general fund by 64 percent.

• A $290,000 Housing and Urban Development grant is expected for city utilities.

• Wastewater expenditures will take a 7 percent hike, with large increases in operating supplies and power for pumping.

A public hearing on the budget will be held Aug. 31 at 7 p.m. in City Hall.

In other news: • Councilman Thomas Tappen wanted the council to place on the November ballot a question for residents about the fee being charged at the swimming pool.

He noted a recent petition supported a free pool, but council members were skeptical about the signatures.

"I'm not sure how people feel (about the issue)," he said.

The mayor told Tappen to investigate further his idea for the advisory ballot.

The ordinance will be read aloud at three separate council meetings before it is voted on.

Idahoans believe we can't afford to send $100 million to the Contras. It will never end.

And Stallings again said his office is receiving little voter mail on the topic.

Stallings on Friday also demonstrated his ability to read the political winds and adjust his sail accordingly.

Last fall, when the Iran-Contra affair first became public, and while President Reagan still enjoyed a high ranking in the opinion polls, Stallings was careful not to criticize the president for his role in the issue.

But two days after Reagan delivered his address to the nation and a day after polls showed a majority of Americans believe the president is lying, Stallings said the president failed to adequately explain the issue.

"He didn't answer the question of how he knew, would he have done anything differently," Stallings said. "It's been a major embarrassment. And it's added to the general cynicism of the voters."

Presbyterians meet Reagan, urge support of peace plan

By JOHN DART
Los Angeles Times

A group of Presbyterians urged President Reagan, in a face-to-face White House meeting this week, to support the Central American peace plan recently proposed by five countries and to talk directly with any leader of the region, particularly President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua.

Mr. Moomaw said he thought the president was "genuinely interested" in church members' opinions about the people in Central America.

The pastor acknowledged, however, that during the hour-long meeting, which included Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Vice President George Bush, that the president defended his own perception of the situation.

"Mr. Shultz was making the point that there was no religious freedom in Nicaragua," Moomaw said.

But Pastor Gary Demarest and other task force members, including a former moderator of the denomination, Harriet Nelson of Napa, Calif., doubted the administration's commitments about the lack of religious and press freedom in Nicaragua.

Demarest, pastor at La Canada Presbyterian in La Canada-Flintridge, Calif., was in Nicaragua earlier in the week. He returned after the White House meeting and told of his experience in preaching at a Pentecostal church last Sunday.

"The primary concern of the Nicaraguan man and woman in the street," Moomaw said in summarizing the message of the task force members, "was that they are much more impacted by the war (against Contra forces) than by any repression by the existing government."

The Presbyterian Church (USA), at its recent General Assembly, has supported the Sandinista government in Nicaragua and opposed U.S. aid to the Contra troops. The General Assembly has also opposed U.S. military aid to the government of El Salvador because of human rights violations.

Pope won't be canonizing Mohawk woman during trip — Indian bishop

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Mowak woman who has become the symbol of Catholicism among American Indians won't be designated a saint by Pope John Paul II during his visit to Phoenix next month, a bishop says.

"Catholic Indians had hoped that the pope would canonize Kateri

Tekakwitha, who died 307 years ago of smallpox at age 24, as the first American Indian saint. But Bishop John Pelotte of Gallup, N.M., was quoted today in The Arizona Republic as saying that the pope would not be done during the pope's bishop, said it still must be proved to the Vatican that Tekakwitha, who was baptized in 1690, performed a miracle, a requirement for sainthood.

Pelotte, the first Indian Catholic

Pelotte said previously that Indian Catholics had expressed hope for Tekakwitha's canonization "very loudly and clearly in all our correspondence with Rome."

Pelotte, who will join the pope here in September in a special meeting with 16,000 Indians, said such a canonization "would have a very strong impact" on the nation's 1.5 million Indians, about 285,000 of whom are Catholics.

"Up until the beatification, she was known only to the tribes of the Northeast" where the Mohawks are located, Pelotte said. "Now, you can find statues of her in Navajo circles. All across the Southwest, there are various medals of Kateri Tekakwitha. This in itself is a kind of miracle, good enough for her canonization. She has been the great unifier of Indian Catholics."

When a pope designates a candidate for sainthood, the College of Cardinals and the pope process the canonization, which can take several months.

Archbishop: Boost women's power

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sexist language and the exclusion of women from positions of power in the Roman Catholic Church are alienating women from the faith, the archbishop of the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese said Friday.

In a pastoral letter published Friday, Archbishop Roger Mahony called for women to play a greater role as church policymakers.

The letter, distributed to the news media this week, noted that women are assuming many roles previously reserved for priests, but it contained no comment on whether women should be allowed into the priesthood.

Mahony, whose archdiocese has 2.5 million Catholics, said the letter stemmed from a process begun several years ago in which bishops throughout the nation asked women for their views.

women did not deal with many issues that will be covered in a joint letter from the U.S. bishops.

"We need to recover a greater sense of men and women working collaboratively, side by side," he said. "Women must increasingly be placed in policy-forming and decision-making levels within the Church," he said.

The archbishop told pastors specifically they should join him in "welcoming the ministry of women in our parishes."

He acknowledged that the "widespread exclusion of women from policy-making positions in the Church" has led to tension and alienation among women believers.

feel themselves excluded. More deeply, some women actually wonder whether the fullness of salvation is really theirs if the language does not include them.

"This issue is more complex when it deals with descriptions of God which sometimes imply that God is male," Mahony said.

"In using the pronoun 'he' in speaking about and writing about God, we must recognize that God is neither male nor female. Rather, God is above, or beyond, our categories of masculine and feminine," Mahony said.

The archbishop said he supported efforts by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the International Commission on English to give us newer language which is clearly inclusive.

Mahony cautioned against divisive reactions to the slowness of change.

A firefighter sprays flames leaping from the roof of Salt Lake's Plandome Hotel

Plans to revive historic hotel gutted by four-alarm blaze

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Investigators Friday probed the ashes of the 84-year-old Plandome Hotel building, destroyed in a four-alarm overnight fire that brought to an abrupt end a plan to revive the historic building.

Authorities said the blaze, which sent 30-foot flames into the Thursday night skies above downtown Salt Lake City, was of suspicious origin. One resident of the building, recently renamed the Maverick Hotel, was treated for smoke inhalation, but no other injuries were reported.

Fire crews had controlled the blaze by 1:30 a.m. Friday. Damage was expected to exceed $1 million, said Fire-Battalion Chief LaMont Epperson.

Hotel management told fire officials that 16 people were living on the third floor and three workers were housed on the third floor. Seven of those were unaccounted for immediately after the fire, but officials believed they had simply left the area, since no bodies were found Friday.

"We have been through every room in the hotel and we have not found any victims," Epperson said. "It's kind of hard to believe. We feel very good about that."

When firefighters arrived at 11:28 p.m., flames were shooting through the roof into the sky and bursting through third-story windows on the south side. The blaze aimed hoses at the fire from all four sides. So much water was pumped into the third floor that a river poured out the Fourth South entrance to the hotel.

Crews prevented the fire from spreading to nearby buildings, but the structures apparently suffered some smoke and water damage. "There's bound to be some," Epperson said. "Hopefully, it's minimal."

Residents displaced by the fire were housed for the night in the New Grand Hotel just down the street. Salt Lake's Red Cross directed the relocation.

More than 60 people were in St. Paddy's Bar on the main floor of the building when the blaze broke out.

"Someone came in off the street and told us a fire was burning," said Becky Whelstone, manager. "We got everybody out of there. There was no panic or anything."

As firefighters arrived, bar employees and members of Obbaquabba, the band appearing there, were wheeling the group's amplifiers away from the flames.

In addition to the hotel and St. Paddy's, the building housed Clasp Jewelry and Rose's Hair Emporium.

The contents of those businesses are probably a total loss," Epperson said. "The owner of the bar opened his front door and water just poured out. When you add all that in, the losses probably total more than $1 million."

Crews and investigators from both the Salt Lake Fire Department and the Salt Lake County Arson Task Force are investigation the blaze. Arson was immediately suspected.

CH2M-Hill, the contractor for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

CH2M-Hill presented a draft work plan on the project to the Silver Valley Superfund Task Force on Thursday.

The work plan deals only with contaminated surface soil and inorganic dust in the populated areas of the 21-square-mile Superfund site, which includes the cities of Kellogg, Smelterville, Pinehurst and Warden, as well as nearby unincorporated communities.

Twin Falls one of few cities not giving leaders wage hike

POCATELLO (AP) — Seven of Idaho's 10 largest cities have raised salaries for their council members and mayors this year or are considering doing so.

Lewiston, Twin Falls and Moscow are the only major cities not opting for pay hikes this year.

Council increases are running from a low of 33 percent in Caldwell to a high of 100 percent for the Boise City Council, while increases for mayors range from Boise's 23 percent to 100 percent in Coeur d'Alene.

Pocatello council members are considering a 50 percent increase in their part-time pay.

"For the amount of work our council puts in, a pay raise is not unreasonable," said Caldwell Mayor Pete Cowles. "Besides, the job is more complex and involved and it requires more attention than in the past."

Currently, Caldwell council members are paid $300 a month — $100 of which goes to cover expenses. Cowles is proposing an additional $100 a month.

In Rexburg, Mayor John Porter's salary was upped by $400 to $1,200 a month. He also receives $350 a month for travel and expenses, according to Treasurer Richard Horner.

Earlier this summer, Boise hiked council pay to $1,000 a month — the highest in Idaho. Members had been getting $500 a month.

Mayor Dirk Kempthorn, whose salary is now $45,000, will get an extra $5,000 a year in his paycheck, part of a multi-year plan to boost the salary to $55,000, according to Alec Andrus, the city's budget director.

"On the average, our council spends between 20 and 30 hours each week on city business and getting more money helps compensate them for the work," Andrus said.

Coeur d'Alene council members are slated to receive an additional $250 a month — or 75 percent more, while Mayor Raymond Stone's salary increases $400 a month. Council members now receive $150, and Stone's present salary is $400, according to City Clerk Lois Lawson.

In Idaho Falls, council members and thinking of boosting their pay and may discuss the issue at the Aug. 20 council meeting. How much of an increase has not been determined, according to Mayor Tom Campbell. Idaho Falls now pays its council members $500 a month.

The Nampa City Council is proposing to increase Mayor Winston Goering's salary from $25,000 to $30,000. The council also authorized themselves a $100 wage hike this year, the first in a decade.

Pocatello council members are considering hiking their monthly salary from $400 to $600. It would be the first increase in a decade.

The council is expected to review the salary matter next week. By law, the council must take a vote to raise salaries, and the vote must be taken at least 60 days prior to a general election.

Canyon County to ship youths to Ada center

BOISE (AP) — Canyon County will begin shipping juvenile offenders to Ada County's youth detention center within a week under a contract approved by commissioners from both counties.

Commissioners met in Boise Thursday and approved the contract, under which Canyon County will pay $80 per day per juvenile for housing youthful offenders at the Ada County Juvenile Center.

"We figured it would cost us $300,000 to $400,000 to build a facility, and then another $250,000 to staff it," said Canyon County Commission Chairman Joyce Chase.

The decision to house Canyon County's juvenile offenders in Ada County comes in the wake of a visit by two attorneys from the Youth Law Center in San Francisco — a law firm known nationwide for its legal action against juvenile facilities. After the attorneys visited earlier this year, Canyon County appointed a special task force to study the county's juvenile detention problem.

Kansas chief names new wildlife head

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Gov. Mike Hayden today announced appointment of Robert L. Meinen as secretary of the new state Department of Wildlife and Parks and W. Alan Wentz as the agency's assistant secretary for operations.

Wentz, who has been senior director of the National Wildlife Federation's natural resource centers division in Washington, D.C., the past year, will run the new agency's operational office in Pratt.

Meinen, who begins work Sept. 14 and will be paid an annual salary of $63,108, said he expects his top priority in his first year on the job to be building a strong organization merging the wildlife and parks agencies.

Beyond that, he said he hopes the Kansas outdoor program can be expanded to include more parks, fishing lakes and game programs.

Consultant says government should find dump site for soil

KELLOGG (AP) — Federal and state agencies should begin looking for a suitable site to dispose of contaminated soil that probably will have to be removed from the Bunker Hill Mine Superfund site, a consultant says.

"Preliminary studies show Smelterville, about two miles west of Kellogg in northern Idaho, has the highest levels of heavy metal contaminants and the area will be given priority in the Superfund cleanup project," said Doug Christenson, a consultant "with CH2M-Hill, the contractor for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

CH2M-Hill presented a draft work plan on the project to the Silver Valley Superfund Task Force on Thursday.

Tanker captains wary after anchorage declared mine-free

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Fujairah declared its anchorage south of the Persian Gulf free of mines, but Persian Gulf ship captains are skeptical. Reports that remote-guided "boat bombs" were the next threat prompted official warnings.

Iran said it had sent naval units to search for mines, which the United States and others accuse of sowing, in international waters off Fujairah, a sheikdom on the Gulf of Oman.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said in a televised speech, his first public appearance in weeks, that Iran's "Islamic holy warriors will punish" the Americans. The 87-year-old revolutionary patriarch blames the United States for nearly all Iran's problems, including the 7-year-old war with Iraq.

Fujairah closed part of its busy anchorage for about 12 hours Thursday because a supertanker hit a mine there Monday and six more of the "spiked globe" type were reported found since.

Officials declared the anchorage safe after a night. Until the trouble this week, the anchorage was considered a haven for shipping 30 miles from the Persian Gulf war.

A Saudi Arabian shipping executive said: "I cannot believe that we are through with the mines. They seem to be everywhere along the Persian Gulf outside the gulf. I think that what the Fujairah port people are saying is that, at the moment, there are no mines in their waters."

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said minesweepers, mine-hunting helicopters and vessels carrying frogmen set out Friday for the Gulf of Oman, just outside the entrance to the Persian Gulf. The size of the force was not mentioned.

It repeated an earlier offer to send the units into Fujairah's territorial waters but the United Arab Emirates, a federation of Fujairah and six other sheikdoms, politely refused.

A dispatch from the Gulf News Agency, a Bahrain-based news pool for Arab nations of the Persian Gulf region, said the rejection was contained in a memorandum handed to the Iranian ambassador on Friday.

Co-guard patrols of the Emirates and Oman, supported by a Saudi minesweeper, continued searching for mines just outside the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow entrance to the Persian Gulf.

France said three of its sophisticated mine-hunting ships, one more than previously announced, would sail to the region next week. Britain is sending four vessels and an American helicopter carrier, the Guadaluacanal, is due within a week with eight minesweeping Sea Stallions.

Al-Khaleej, a newspaper in the United Arab Emirates sheikdom of Sharjah, quoted government official Hamad Al-Mutairi as saying the warning about "booby trapped boats" resulted from an earlier report by the Interior Ministry that such craft might be set loose in the Gulf of Oman.

It did not say what the source of the boats would be, but Iran conducted naval maneuvers last week in which it said remote-controlled boats packed with explosives were rammed into target vessels.

On Thursday, the United Arab Emirates warned fishermen and swimmers to avoid suspicious objects and small boats on the eastern coast of the country, officials of the federation said.

Six unexploded mines were reported found in a 36-square-mile area of the Fujairah anchorage after the U.S.-operated Texaco Caribbean was hit Monday. That was the area temporarily closed Thursday.

Tankers tranship oil at the facility and other ships use it as a resupply point. It also serves as the base for assembling convoys of U.S. warships and refueled Kuwait tankers for trips up the gulf to load oil at their home port.

Eleven Kuwaiti tankers are being registered as U.S. vessels so the Navy can protect them.

Iran began regular attacks last September on ships owned by or serving Kuwait, which accuses of receiving arms shipments for Iraq, Kuwait's eastern neighbor. Iraq's ports were closed soon after the war began in September 1980.

Fujairah port officials said early Friday the mine threat was exaggerated and only two were found and destroyed.

"It's all normal, and there are no more mines," an official in the port office said by telephone, on condition of anonymity.

Riot police stay back Students rally to back strikes

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 3,000 protesters at a campus rally chanted support Friday for strikes at major industries that have forced closure of smaller plants and threaten the U.S. export economy.

Riot police watched but did not interfere.

Students, who often are in the vanguard of protest in South Korea, led weeks of anti-government demonstrations that caused President Chun Doo-hwan to agree June 30 to opposition demands for democratic reforms.

Strikes by tens of thousands of workers for higher pay, better working conditions and removal of government control of unions have closed or crippled major operations of such conglomerates as Hyundai, Daewoo and Lucky-Goldstar.

As a result, scores of suppliers and smaller plants dependent upon the export giants have been forced to suspend operations, throwing hundreds of thousands of non-strikers out of work.

Walkouts in transportation and on the docks have hampered shipments to foreign customers, and strikes by coal miners endanger the energy supply.

Labor actions began after Chun, a former army general, declared that his authoritarian government would accept opposition demands for such reforms as direct presidential elections and a more liberal policy toward unions.

The demonstration Friday at Seoul National University was largely peaceful and consisted mostly of students from about 20 universities and colleges in Seoul.

Protesters danced and sang. They raised clenched fists and shouted "Democratic Union!" and "Down with military dictatorship!" Speakers demanded the release of all political prisoners.

About 600 opponents of the government were freed in an amnesty last month, and the number still in jail is estimated at 200.

Some speakers said the government expressed willingness to negotiate reforms as a temporary shift in tactics. They urged more protest to secure full democracy and "the right for the masses to live."

The rally lasted four hours. About 2,000 riot police stood outside the campus gate but did not intervene.

A rally by about 2,000 people Wednesday in downtown Seoul ended with street battles between protesters and police reminiscent of the confrontation that preceded Chun's declaration.

His ruling party asked the opposition Friday to cancel major rallies planned for Saturday in Seoul and several other cities. It said the nation could not afford to risk new political disturbances while strikes continue.

Low wages, which make South Korean products cheaper abroad, and a virtual prohibition of strikes have been major elements in the economic boom that began in the 1970s.

100 S. African miners injured by police clash

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — More than 100 black strikers at two mines were injured Friday by police and security officers who used live ammunition and fired rubber bullets in the worst violence yet in the miners' nationwide walkout.

In one confrontation, at the Optimum coal mine in eastern Transvaal province, police said they fired live rounds into a crowd of about 800 workers, some of whom were throwing rocks, injuring 13 strikers.

Another 14 miners were hurt in a stampede to escape the gunfire — the first reported use of live ammunition during the 5-day-old strike — and 42 tear gas grenades lobbed at the crowd, police said.

Police said they had been summoned to the mine to investigate a complaint of intimidation by strikers. They said none of the injured strikers required hospitalization.

West of Johannesburg, at Anglo American Corp.'s Western Deep Level gold mine, 76 black strikers were injured Friday when police and security officers fired rubber bullets at a crowd of about 700 who refused to disperse and began throwing stones, mine owners said.

It was the largest number of injured at a single mine in the strike called to demand a 30 percent wage hike and better benefits.

In another incident, the Trans-Natal Corp. alleged that five workers who defied the strike were hospitalized after being poisoned with insecticide at a coal mine east of Pretoria.

A university-based group of labor experts, in the first independent estimate of the strike's size, said 334, 640 of the 509,784 blacks employed at 69 major gold and coal mines were on strike — a figure close to

Blind man forced to dock boat

ST. GEORGE, Bermuda (AP) — A man attempting to become the first blind sailor to cross the Atlantic alone docked in this port Friday, his sloop guided through rough seas and Bermuda's treacherous reefs by its designer.

Jim Dickson, 41, left Portsmouth, R.I. on Aug. 4, bound for Plymouth, England. But he had to head for this tiny British colony, 200 miles out of his way, when his talking computer and autopilot broke down. The side trip was lengthened by tropical storm Ariene, which Dickson had to ride out at sea Thursday, about 60 miles north of Bermuda.

Paul Petronello, whose Rhode Island company designed Dickson's 36-foot sloop Eye Opener, boarded the vessel shortly after noon Friday and guided it to St. George.

Soviets visit dissident press, but no arrests

MOSCOW (AP) — Police arrived Friday at an apartment where dissidents produce the unofficial political journal Glasnost, named for the new Kremlin policy of more frankness, but did not arrest anyone, the editor said.

The dissident press, a 46-year-old former political prisoner, said by telephone that the policemen drove up in two cars and about 10 entered the apartment in southwest Moscow, remaining for about half an hour.

He said five other editors of Glasnost entered or left the apartment while police were there, but the authorities checked only his identification and the papers of another editor, Ahsa Lashinver.

On Thursday, publication day for the second edition of Glasnost, two senior police officers came to the door of the apartment but the editors would not admit them because the apartment's occupant was not there.

Grigoryants said the two officers wanted to check documents and take the editors to the local police station.

On Friday, he said, the police picked up a copy of the journal and started to read it, but did not take it away "because they realized what a scandal there would be."

Glasnost is the name Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has given his policy of greater openness on selected topics. When the first edition was issued in early July, the editors said they intended to publish openly, in contrast to the usual practice of circulating unofficial journals underground.

Hostage free in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The International Lions Club's top official for Lebanon and Jordan was resting at home Friday, released unharmed in a Syrian-policed suburb south of Beirut after 11 months in captivity.

"It was well treated," Victor Kano told reporters at his residence in Moslem west Beirut's Verdun district. "I thank all those who extended their efforts to try to win my freedom, especially the Syrians."

Kano, 61, was set free at Shwafat at 11:30 p.m. Thursday, police said. He arrived at his home at 1:30 a.m. Friday, said his wife, Rose.

"I opened the door and he simply walked in. We were very happy to see him," said a smiling Mrs. Kano. "He came in a taxi."

She said her husband arrived clean-shaven and wearing the same suit he had on the day he was kidnapped.

Elvis poem to sweetheart genuine, handwriting expert says

NEW YORK (AP) — A love poem that Elvis Presley allegedly wrote for a woman who says she bore him a daughter is authentic, a handwriting expert said Friday.

"When I looked at it, I saw instantly it was Elvis' writing," said Charles Hamilton, the handwriting analyst who in 1983 found that the purported diaries of Adolf Hitler were fake.

He set the value of the untitled poem, written on a piece of ordinary typing paper, at $100,000. "The importance of this poem is not just that it's an astonishing, unusual and truly great relic of his,"

Hamilton said, "but that it disclosed for the first time that Elvis had a lifelong sweetheart whom he visited whenever he could."

Hamilton was hired to analyze the poem by Dirty Meters, author of a recent book about Lucy de Barbin called, "Are You Lonesome Tonight?"

In the book, de Barbin contends that Presley was the father of her 28-year-old daughter, Desiree. Meters said the two met when Presley was 18 and de Barbin was 16 and had "an infrequent but long-term" affair.

Presley was married once, to Priscilla Presley.

"What the poem says clearly indicates the intimacy that occurred between Elvis and Lucy de Barbin," said Hamilton.

But David Beckwith, a spokesman for the Presley estate, Graeceland Enterprises, said he did not believe the poem was real.

"We had asked for proof weeks and weeks ago and they refused to show us anything," he said. "I think it's very curious that it comes out now when sales for the book aren't doing well."

Hamilton said that he based his ruling that the poem was authentic on "the slant of the handwriting, the distance of words and letters from one another and from the eccentric spellings so characteristic of his writing."

The poem was a Christmas present from Presley to de Barbin in 1973, according to Meters. It reads in part:

"Seen only by the eyes of my love you're my life ...

"Somewhere in time there was my love, my love was sweet and gentle and angelic

"There's just one place she could've come from, Above."

Meters said he had not published the poem before because of opposition from the Presley estate and because of advice from his publisher's lawyers. He decided to go against their wishes because Sunday marks the 10th anniversary of Presley's death. "It was now or never," he said.

The poem is still owned by de Barbin and would "go right back in Lucy's drawer never to be seen again," he said.

Meters said de Barbin, 50, is a clothing designer in Dallas, and that her daughter, who uses the name Desiree Presley, models in Los Angeles.

Millionaire, '52 classmates off to Bahamas for reunion

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — A millionaire eager to share his wealth with his childhood chums took his high school class along Friday for a 1,500-mile air and sea fantasy ride to the Bahamas.

As school fight songs and confetti filled the air, more than 400 people, about half of them 1962 graduates of Punxsutawney High School, left on a four-day cruise to celebrate their 35th-year reunion, a trip paid for by Kansas City businessman Delbert Dunmire.

"It could not be better," a beaming Dunmire said from the back of his red Rolls-Royce convertible, which led Friday morning's procession about 100 miles from Punxsutawney to Greater Pittsburgh International Airport.

"I wish I was 18 again. For the weekend, I am 18," he told the crowd clustered around his car.

The classmates and their guests boarded a chartered jet in Pittsburgh, where they were greeted by a polka band, then flew to Miami where they were to set sail for Nassau late Friday afternoon. They return home Monday.

For those lucky enough to graduate with Dunmire, it was a dream come true.

"It's unreal. I keep pinching myself. It's something we'll remember the rest of our lives," said Rose Smouse, 63, who came from Buffalo, N.Y., with her husband, Chuck.

Solo homer lets Indians send Yankees to fifth straight defeat

NEW YORK (AP) — Brook Jacoby's second solo home run of the game snapped an eighth-inning tie Friday night and the Cleveland Indians beat New York 6-5 for the Yankees' season-high fifth straight loss.

New York has dropped seven of its last eight games. Jacoby and Brett Butler each had three of Cleveland's 15 hits as the Indians won their third in a row.

Jacoby tied the score 6-5 with a home run in the sixth. He connected in the eighth for his 23rd homer off reliever Brad Arnberg, 1-2. The two home runs, Jacoby's first since July 30, were the only hits allowed in 4-3 innings by Arnberg.

Tom Candiotti, 6-11, gave up nine hits in 7-2-3 innings. Ed Vande Berg got the final out in the eighth and Doug Jacobs worked the ninth for his fourth save.

Don Pasqua hit a solo home run, his 12th, and Don Mattingly, who homered earlier, had an RBI single in the fifth that put the Yankees ahead 4-4.

Two-run singles by Andy Allanson in the second and Butler in the fourth gave the Yankees a 4-3 lead and chased starter Tommy John, who allowed nine hits in 3-1-3 innings.

Since May 31, 1986, Terrell is 4-16 away from home. This year, he is 8-2 at Tiger Stadium and 1-8 on the road.

Black, 5-6, took a four-hitter and 6-2 lead into the eighth but left Kirk Gibson led off with a double and Alan Trammell singled. John Davis relieved Black and allowed Jim Morrison's RBI forecourt and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Dave Bergman.

Dan Quisenberry got the first two outs, giving up an RBI double to Darrell Evans that barely missed being a three-run homer, for his eighth save and first since June 6.

ing single. Glenn Braggs then doubled and Sveum homered.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dale Sveum hit two homers and drove in four runs Friday night, leading the Milwaukee Brewers over the Baltimore Orioles 6-2 as Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 29 games.

Sveum's three-run homer capped a five-run rally off Eric Bell, 9-9, in the third inning and he led off the sixth with his 17th home run. Molitor kept the longest hitting streak in the majors this season going with a leadoff single in the seventh.

Juan Nieves, who pitched a no-hitter at Memorial Stadium on April 15, allowed eight hits before being lifted with two on and two outs in the seventh. Nieves, 9-6, got the victory and Chuck Crum recorded his fourth save.

Juan Castillo opened the Milwaukee third with a double but was tagged in a rundown for the second out on Mike Felder's grounder. Robin Yount followed with an RBI double that made it 1-1 and Deer hit a run-scoring Hough, 12-8, struck out three and walked one in his seventh complete game. He had lost four of his previous five decisions. Al Nipper, 7-10, lost in his return from the disabled list and remained winless since June 28.

The Rangers scored five runs in the second inning aided by Nipper's throwing error. Larry Parrish doubled, Odalis Reyes walked and Petralli hit an RBI single for a 1-0 lead.

After Scott Fletcher's sacrifice fly, Jerry Browne hit a grander back to Nipper, whose wild throw allowed Petralli to score and Browne to reach second.

Hobie Brooks gave the Expos a 2-1 lead in the fourth when he hit his 10th homer of the season, a 450-foot drive.

The Expos took the lead in the first inning when Tim Lincecum led off with a single. Two outs later, Tim Wallach doubled to drive in Raines to become the first player in the major leagues to drive in 100 runs this season. It was the first time in his six-year career that Wallach has reached the 100-RBI mark.

McGee's home run, his ninth of the season, came off starter Bruce Ruffin, 9-9, in the fifth with Tommy Herr and Jack Clark on base to give St. Louis a 7-4 lead. The homer gave McGee a career-high 84 runs batted in.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chris Gwynn, playing in his first major-league game, had three hits and drove in two runs Friday night to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants. Shawn Hillegas, 2-0, who made his big league pitching debut last weekend when he beat Atlanta, allowed four hits and struck out seven before leaving with a 4-1 lead and the bases loaded and none out in the sixth.

Relievers Rick Honeycutt and Brian Holton pitched out of the jam, with Honeycutt striking out Willie Clark and Holton striking a double play on Bob Brenly's grounder-to-the-mound.

Sanderson, 6-6, was lifted after five innings because of pulled groin muscle. He allowed three hits, struck out four and walked two. The right-hander defeated the Mets last Sunday, 6-3.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the third when Keith Hernandez doubled home Lenny Dykstra, who had opened the inning with a single.

But the Cubs rallied for four runs in the fifth. Dave Martinez led off with a double, was sacrificed to third by Ryne Sandberg, and scored on Leon Durham's sacri-

With Washington leading 16-14, Sanchez fumbled the opening kickoff, Jess Atkinson kicked a 27-yard field goal to give the Redskins a 14-10 lead over the Steelers in the pre-season opener for both teams.

Pittsburgh, plagued by three third-quarter fumbles, could manage only a Gary Anderson field goal in the second half. The Steelers did drive to the Washington 48-in the final minutes, but an illegal motion penalty wiped out a first-down pass from Steve Bone to Danzell Lee and Pittsburgh did not threaten again.

Monk's touchdown on a 64-yard pass from starting quarterback Chris Schroeder gave Washington a 13-7 advantage in the second quarter. Pittsburgh regained the lead on a 77-yard touchdown pass from Earl Bryner to Charles Lockett, but the Steelers' offense sputtered the rest of the way.

Pittsburgh starter Mark Malone played the first quarter and commented on a 32-yard field goal by Atkinson early in the second quarter, then regained the lead when Monk slipped behind Pittsburgh cornerback Chris Sheffield and caught the ball in stride for a touchdown.

The Redskins needed only one play to move back to top. Working from his own 23, Bryner threw to a wide open socket, who caught the ball near the left sideline at the Washington 40 and sprinted into the endzone.

Collins goes five under to lead senior meet

RANCHO MURIETA, Calif. (AP) Super Seniors lead for players 60 — But Collins shot an 87 over four strokes ahead of Friday to take the first-round lead. Charles Sifford, who shot a 73, said "I played real well today," said DeVisenzo, who won the Super Seniors, despite a bogey on the ninth competition in June's Mazda first hole and a double-bogey on the Senior Tournament Players Championship, where he hit three aces, a triple and lost week's Senior play the front nine in 9-under-par Classic. "It's been a long time since I've hit the ball so long."

"I feel I'm a young man. Winning of that hole," Collins said of the whole tournament "won't mean the 431-yard par-4 No. 4 hole. "I much to me, but it (will) to other made it in six two days in a row."

De Visenzo, whose only Senior Tour victory was at the Greater Syracuse Ken Moody, Roberto DeVisenzo and Charles Sifford, had a solid round despite the double bogey. Collins was 2-over after six holes, but eagled the seventh when he hit a solid drive and pitched in from 85 feet with a sand wedge.

He added two birdies before hitting a two-iron off the tee on the 11th and Bruce 11th hole, chipping to within 2½ Crampton were tied with six others feet and putting in for a birdie, putting him 3-under-par.

Doug Stanback had a 67 over 74. "I can reach most of those," Collins said.

Raiders turn to Hilger to return team to championship form

By The Associated Press

It's time for Rusty Hilger to demonstrate that he can return the Los Angeles Raiders to their customary place among the NFL's elite.

The third-year quarterback from Oklahoma State, who has been designated by Al Davis and the Raiders' hierarchy as the man to restore a passing attack to the team, will start for Los Angeles against the San Francisco 49ers Saturday night. Coach Tom Flores says Hilger will play at least a half.

"I've been aware of this since Day One in training camp. I don't think anything's going to change except that now the performance is going to speak for itself," says Hilger, who has played in just six regular-season NFL games, completing 23 of 51 passes, one for a touchdown.

"Practice is one thing, but taking it on the field is another."

The renewal at the Los Angeles Coliseum of the one-time San Francisco Bay Area rivalry is one of nine games Saturday night as the first full week of the NFL exhibition season gets into full swing. But most fans are likely to see a lot of unfamiliar faces as coaches try to find out who among the 100 or so players on most rosters are NFL material.

"You'll see a lot of numbers and a lot of faces, so make sure you don't lose your record," says New York Jets Coach Joe Walton in a comment that could stand for most coaches.

The weekend began Thursday night with Kansas City defeating Houston 32-20 and the Los Angeles Rams beating Seattle 23-14.

In other Saturday games, Cincinnati is at Tampa Bay, St. Louis at Cleveland; Buffalo at Atlanta, Indianapolis at Detroit, Minnesota at New Orleans, Philadelphia at the Jets; Dallas at San Diego and Denver against Green Bay in Tempe, Arizona.

On Sunday, Chicago is at Miami in the first NFL game to be telecast by ESPN and the Super Bowl champion New York Giants are at New England in a game to be telecast nationally by ABC.

In Los Angeles, the focus will definitely be on Hilger as Marc Wilson, who shared the job with Jim Plunkett in last year's disappointing 8-8 season, seems to be fading into oblivion.

"Because of his need for game experience, we'll probably give Rusty a half full in each game, and maybe even let him play further in the final game," Flores says.

The game will also mark the debut of three new wide receivers — Mervyn Fernandez and Chris Woods, signed by the Raiders, from the Canadian Football League during the offseason, and James Lofton, a seven-time Pro Bowler acquired from Green Bay.

The 49ers, who beat Kansas City 20-7 in the Hall of Fame game last Saturday, will probably go without starting quarterback Joe Montana, who aggravated a torn and chest ligament in practice Wednesday. Coach Bill Walsh, who says Montana would play if it were a regular season game, would be replaced by Steve Young and Bob Griegano.

The Dallas-San Diego game, which was the television nationally by CBS, is notable for the long list of players who won't play.

"The only problem we have is that our injuries are about as long as your arm. We've never had this many injuries in camp," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who has lost wide receiver Mike Sherrard for the season with a broken leg and will be without running back Herschel Walker, out for two to three weeks with strained knee ligaments.

Dallas will have Danny White at quarterback, although he still is bothered by pain in the wrist of his throwing arm, which was broken last year. White will start and play about a quarter. Teammate Tony Dorsett may see some action, although he still is recovering from arthroscopic surgery on both knees.

The Chargers will be without quarterback Dan Fouts, linбекер Chip Banks, running back Gary Anderson, tight end Kellen Winslow and Pete Holohan and defensive backs John Hendy and Jeff Dole.

Coach Al Saunders will start Mark Herrmann at quarterback and play him most of the first half. Free agent Rick Neuheisel will be followed by rookie Mark Vinac who will finish.

In Cleveland, St. Louis Coach Gene Stallings will be more concerned with the problems of his team, which finished 4-11-1 last year, than concentrating on the Browns, who finished 12-4 in the regular season and lost the AFC title game to Denver.

"Our situation is a little different from Cleveland's," says Stallings.

"I've looked-at-at them just very little, to be very honest. We've got to decide who's going to make our 45-man squad. I know winning is important. We're going to try to win, but not to the extent that we're going to play our veterans all the time."

Briefly in Sports

Giants cause traffic jam

BRIALCLIFF MANOR, N.Y. (AP) — The NFL champion New York Giants temporarily switched practice sites, bringing some 2,000 fans to Briarcliff Manor High School and a giant headache to local police.

"I don't care if they're there, I just want to know," said Police Chief Arthur Johnson, who learned about the switched practice session thanks to a several-mile long traffic jam.

Care was parked haphazardly and created a situation so that "someone got hurt, even a player, we couldn't get an ambulance through," Johnson said.

Johnson said he understood the situation Saturday, when the team moved from Pace University's Pleasantville campus, their usual practice site, because heavy rains made the field too muddy.

What Johnson wasn't ready for was a repeat of the traffic mess on Tuesday.

"That's when I decided to do something," said Johnson.

He met with Harry Hulmes, the Giants' assistant general manager, on Thursday to discuss the matter.

The Giants have a contract with the Briarcliff school district to use the high school field when necessary during their six-week training camp.

Baseball thriving on pennant races

By The Associated Press

Last season, baseball suffered without a single pennant race. This season, the fever is catching all over.

"Everybody's still in it," Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose said, scouring the National League West standings where his Reds entered the weekend tied with San Francisco for first place.

But Rose could have been assessing the major leagues in general, where several newcomers are brightening up the pennant scramble. Chances are shaping up in all four divisions, almost as if to make up for last year's September drudgery.

Going into this weekend, 12 teams are within 4½ games of the top and some, such as Detroit, California and the Giants are charging fast.

At this point last season, there were only six clubs within 4½ games and soon thereafter there were no races for the first time since division play began in 1969. The New York Mets, Houston, Boston and California were all in first place by July 21 and stayed there.

Steve Carlton and Phil Niekro, a pair of 300-game winners, have been dealt in the last three weeks of the season. Niekro, who has started early, Doyle Alexander and Jim Morrison have also traded uniforms and rumors abound.

"I'll still go right down to the end, I think," Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly said after the Twins who have not television nationally had started early — had their lead cut to 2½ games by California.

The AL West, often called a mish-mash of mediocrity, is the most tightly bunched division. Kansas City and Oakland are four games behind, Seattle is five back and Texas trails by six.

Pitching usually decides pennant races and Bret Saberhagen (16-7) helps Kansas City have the best starting rotation in the AL. But the Royals' bullpen is weak. Carlton, acquired by the Twins from Cleveland on July 31, has gone 1-2 since joining the Twins and has not bolstered their staff as much as hoped.

In the AL East, Toronto took over last week as New York faded when pitching problems turned into a Lou

Holyfield faces Ocasio

ST. TROPEZ, France (AP) — Evander Holyfield is called a "crusader" by the International Boxing Federation and a "junior heavyweight" by the World Boxing Association. Both call him champion.

Holyfield, unbeaten in 15 professional fights, will defend both titles Saturday night against Ocasio-Ocasio-Ocasio of Puerto Rico, who held the WBA title from 1982 through 1984.

"He's a real tough guy to beat," says Holyfield, who turned 32 on Wednesday.

"I've been preparing very seriously for this fight. I've been ready since the beginning of the week."

Ocasio said he had been training hard since his last fight three months ago.

He said, at his age, "I really don't have a lot of time to lose."

"I'll have to battle Holyfield and I will. He can fight however he wants; I'll adapt. I think he's overrated. His career has been promoted. Me, I made my own way."

Holyfield said he was not worried by Ocasio and was thinking about moving up to the heavyweight division, and eventually challenging champion Mike Tyson.

Ocasio has won 32 of 36 fights, 16 by knockout.

The fight will be televised on cable by Showtime.

Pennant contender seek pitching help

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Toronto and Detroit have already bolstered their pitching staffs for their American League East stretch run, and the New York Yankees are trying to do the same. They are interested in Atlanta's David Palmer, who had also attracted interest from Detroit before it got Doyle Alexander and the Blue Jays prior to getting Phil Niekro. Several scouts have been following Leon Durham of the Chicago Cubs, who seems willing to trade him and make a future commitment to youth.

The Giants are among those who have watched Durham.

Before San Francisco acquired pitcher Don Robinson from Pittsburgh, the New York Mets were interested. The Mets backed off when the Pirates asked for short stop Kevin Elster. The Giants now has two right-handed relievers named Robinson, Jeff and Don. San Francisco manager Roger Craig likes both of them, although they are causing him some confusion. He recently called down to the bullpen and said — "Get Robinson — warm." Coach Norm Sherry asked, "Which one?" and Craig answered, "I don't care which one."

Tony Gwynn likes to make his own watch times of San Diego games so he can catch them to review his batting stroke. Gwynn's home is well-equipped. He's got a satellite dish, a television, a stereo and even video recorders. The Kansas City Royals had been waiting for George Brett to get hot, and he now may be on one of those late-season streaks that can carry them in the stretch.

In the AL East, Toronto took over last week as New York faded when pitching problems turned into a Lou burgher tie 7-4 with a 3.70 ERA for Atlanta's Class AAA Richmond team. ... Brad Kominek is hitting .284 with 24 homers and 72 RBI in Denver.

Shawn Hilgass almost became the first Dodgers rookie to pitch a shutout in his first start since Fernando Valenzuela in 1981. Hilgass took a shutout into the ninth Sunday against Atlanta, and wound up going 9-2-3 innings and allowing two runs on seven hits. ... When Alan Wiggins was reinstated to the Orioles, he got a new locker in a remote corner of the Baltimore stadium. Wiggins asked for that particular locker earlier in the season, but didn't get it until he returned following a suspension that sparked bad blood among teammates.

Espinoza negates experience

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — World Boxing Association junior featherweight champion Louie Espinoza says he is not concerned about the big edge in experience held by Mike Ayala, his opponent Saturday.

"The experience factor doesn't bother me at all. In fact, it's going to bring out the better in me," Espinoza said.

Ayala, 23, is 46-4 with 23 knockouts and Espinoza, 25, is 24-1 with 18 knockouts.

"I only have 25 bouts, but I have a lot more experience," Espinoza said. "I've been in there with a lot of people and I've learned a lot, not only working with people, but being around them and watching them work."

Meanwhile, Ayala promised an interesting fight.

"It's going to be a war," Ayala said. "This time I'm going in there for keeps. They're going to have to carry me out or they're going to have to carry Louie out."

Ayala, who will be fighting in his hometown, still is smarting after losing the North American Boxing Federation super bantamweight title in December after holding it five months.

Espinoza, of Phoenix, won his title earlier this year.

Canadian swimmer escapes penalty

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A medal-winning Canadian swimmer whose drug test showed traces of a banned substance contained in a cold medication will not be punished, the head of the governing body of the Pan American Games said Friday.

Mario Vazquez Rana, president of the Pan American Sports Organization, said no action is planned against 17-year-old Sally Gilbert, who helped Canada win a bronze medal in the 600-meter freestyle at the Sunday Games.

"The case of the Canadian girl is over. It is finished," said Vazquez Rana, speaking through a translator. "Very late last night, the word came that there is no problem. We are going to voluntarily accept that she's going to take medication for a cold, a very light reading will come out in the test," said Vazquez Rana. Even an aspirin can show positive, he said.

He said, the Canadian's test showed "a minimal positive reading."

"There is really nothing there," he said.

Gilbert, from Vancouver, had taken the medication for a cold the Friday before her Sunday relay event, Canadian officials said. A second part of her urine sample was also analyzed in the presence of Canadian officials.

"I'm relieved that the situation has apparently been resolved," said Gilbert.

"Now I can concentrate on swimming, and only swimming, for the rest of the meet and I can put this behind me," she said.

If an athlete is to be punished, the PASO executive committee has to accept the recommendation of its medical commission that there was a doping violation. The executive committee then would announce the positive result and punishment.
