WASHINGTON — President Reagan announced Friday that he will meet with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in the United States later this fall to sign a treaty outlawing medium-range nuclear missiles, although he said he retains strong doubts about dealing with the nation he once called an "evil empire."

No specific date for the summit was announced, but officials said it probably will take place in the last half of November. The meeting will start in Washington, but Gorbachev also is expected to visit Reagan's California ranch and perhaps other places as well.

Although some details — including such potentially troublesome issues as verification — remain unsettled, the United States and the Soviet Union issued a joint statement that treated as almost an accomplished fact a treaty banning two classes of nuclear weapons, missiles with ranges of 300 to 600 miles, and those with ranges of 600 to 3,000 miles.

"In order to sign a treaty on intermediate-range and shorter-range missiles and to cover the full range of issues in the relationship between the two countries, a summit between President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev will take place in the fall of 1987," the statement said.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, who hammered out an agreement in principle covering the remaining issues, scheduled a meeting in Moscow for late October to set a specific date for the summit conference and to tie up the loose ends of the negotiations.

Shultz and Shevardnadze, speaking at separate press conferences, said that relations between the two countries are far more businesslike and orderly than they were earlier in the Reagan administration, when the two nations were exchanging little more than insults.

But when Reagan was asked during an appearance in the White House press room how he could make a deal with the nation he once referred to as an "evil empire," he replied that he still did not consider the Soviet Union to be "lily white."

And, when asked if he was in too much of a hurry to conclude an arms control agreement, Reagan said: "I don't know of anything in my life I waited over six years for."

The pact would be the first U.S.-Soviet arms control agreement since former President Carter and the late Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev signed the second strategic arms limitation treaty in 1979.

Reagan said that the latest treaty was a result of proposals that he first presented in 1981.

Shultz and Shevardnadze, assisted by about 75 experts on both sides, settled two key arms control issues during three days of talks this week. They referred to the

New treaty will barely dent superpowers' nuclear stocks

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON — The emerging U.S.-Soviet arms control treaty will make barely a dent in the nuclear arms race.

Only about 6 percent of their nuclear arsenals will be scrapped with the elimination of intermediate-range ballistic missiles as well as cruise missiles in Europe and the Soviet Union.

The more potent American and Soviet intercontinental missiles, bombers and submarines will remain on hair-trigger alert, an ever-present threat to touch off nuclear disaster.

While Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze focused mostly on the agreement close at hand during their talks this week, they paid some attention to strategic weapons as well.

"We made some headway, but we have a long ways to go," Shultz reported Friday.

The two big obstacles are the U.S. "Star Wars" program and the 308 heavy land-based missiles that the Soviets have targeted on the United States.

Analysis

The understanding President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev reached last October to reduce overall strategic arsenals by 50 percent did not explicitly set a separate ceiling on the big missiles.

In the 11 months since, American negotiators in Geneva have tried to get the Soviets to agree on terms that would require them to scrap a substantial number of those weapons.

On this touchy issue, Shultz was able to report progress. He said the Soviets seemed willing to carry out deep reductions in nuclear warheads. But, he said, they were still not ready to make the kind of slashes in heavy missiles that the United States has demanded.

Now is there any indication that Gorbachev is relenting in his determination to slow down the Star Wars program, the U.S. search for a space-based defense against missiles that is known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Even while Shultz was nailing down an "agreement in principle" with Shevardnadze on intermediate-range missiles, the Senate on Thursday threw a roadblock of its own in the path of Star Wars.

A Democratic-sponsored move to restrict testing of the exotic technology was approved, 59-38. Behind the drive is the conviction that the program is in conflict with the 1972 U.S.-Soviet anti-ballistic-missile treaty and threatens to scuttle it.

The Soviets have threatened to drag their feet on strategic weapons reductions unless the Reagan administration gives ground on Star Wars.

Shevardnadze, at a news conference Friday, said the Soviets were calling for a 10-year pledge to adhere to the 1972 treaty and seeking a precise definition of the technology that both sides could test in space.

"We will never agree to restrictions that make it harder to pursue the Strategic Defense Initiative," Shultz said.

arms control negotiations in Geneva — the remaining disagreements, which officials on both sides described as technical. The arms negotiators were told to complete their work before Shultz and Shevardnadze meet in Moscow next month.

Officials on both sides said that

Senators welcome news of pact but brace for fight over ratification

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Leading members of the Senate, which will be asked to ratify any arms control treaty reached with the Soviet Union, Friday welcomed news of a tentative pact on intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

But they said a band of determined opponents will assure a floor fight over ratification.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said after a 45-minute briefing for senators by Secretary of State George Shultz, that he believed the agreement, even though some details remain unresolved, is "a done deal."

Dole predicted that if verification provisions of the treaty can be made

"airtight," the treaty will ultimately be ratified.

Verification has been the breaking point for arms control issues in the past, but many senators said it should be less of a problem in this case because the proposed treaty calls for the total elimination of an entire class of weapons, eliminating the need to keep tabs on the numbers in the other side's arsenal.

"We may well be on the eve of a very significant breakthrough in Soviet-American relations," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who pressed to help lead the fight for ratification-if-a-final-agreement-is-reached.

Cranston said he already could foresee likely opposition from at least 22 senators — primarily conservative Republicans — and added that he hoped that number would not rise to 34, the number that would doom chances of getting the two-thirds majority needed for ratification.

"It's no cinch it will be approved," he said. "There are conservative Republicans in the Senate and outside the Senate who are against any agreement of any sort with the Soviet Union. I expect resolute opposition."

One of those expected to lead any opposition, North Carolina Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, issued a statement reflecting his long-held skepticism of Soviet motives and emphasizing the need for verification.

"Given the Soviets' past record on violations, we have to make the assumption that the Soviets will seek

Bork denies pushing political agenda

Robert H. Bork's long hearing continues today

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Bork said Friday he's not out to press a political agenda on the Supreme Court and added he would be "disgraced in history" if he abandoned the moderate stands he's taken in Senate hearings and turned radically rightward after confirmation.

"I have no ideological agenda and it wouldn't do me any good if I did," he said. "If confirmed, I don't intend to be the only one running around trying to win a political agenda."

Bork, 60, answered questions well into the evening in what has become a marathon inquiry into his fitness for confirmation, and was to return today for a fifth day of testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee. No high court nominee has ever been questioned at such length before.

The Friday session adjourned at 6:15 p.m. MDT, more than 10 hours after it began. Today's hearings will begin at noon.

Earlier Friday, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., accused Bork of following a White House strategy of changing his views to win confirmation. "Mr. Bork's balloon has been rapidly losing altitude in the Senate. He's been rapidly jettisoning the baggage of a lifetime," Kennedy said.

Bork countered, "If those charges were not so serious, the discrepancies between the evidence and what you say would be highly amusing."

As the hearing strained to conclude its questioning of Bork — a questioning that has lasted longer than for any other prospective new justice in the five decades of such hearings — the nominee also came under fresh attack from opponents who said his earlier-stated views frightened women and minorities.

At one point, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, a stern opponent of Bork's nomination, accused him of once approving a ruling that gave women at a chemical plant the "shocking" choice of being fired or accepting sterilization to avoid danger to potential fetuses.

Bork said the ruling was fair and humane in at least giving the women a choice rather than leaving them to be demoted or dismissed outright.

Metzenbaum later read aloud a telegram he said was from one of the women who agreed to be sterilized. She said, "This was the most awful thing that happened to me."

State moves Dallas to Nebraska prison

The Associated Press

BOISE — Convicted killer Claude Lafayette Dallas Jr., who beat an escape charge with the claim that Idaho prison guards wanted him dead, has been moved to a prison in Nebraska, the Corrections Department announced Friday.

In a terse, two-paragraph statement, the department said Dallas was transferred to the Nebraska Department of Correctional Services in Lincoln, Nebraska, on Sept. 17.

"The Department of Corrections routinely swaps prisoners with other states," the statement said. "This is usually done for high-security-risk prisoners."

Fifty-two Idaho prison inmates are currently serving their terms in other states, the department said, and a similar number of inmates from other states are being held in the Idaho system.

The transfer of Dallas, 37, came just 13 days after an Ada County jury acquitted him of escape in a year-long flight from authorities that made him one of America's most wanted fugitives.

Since the 1981 shootout at his remote desert trapping camp where two state Fish and Game officers died, Dallas has gained national notoriety as his life and exploits have been chronicled in a song, two books and a television movie.

Dallas was serving a 30-year sentence for voluntary manslaughter in the deaths of Conley Elms and Bill Pogge when he cut his way through the perimeter fences of the main state prison on Easter Sunday night in 1989 and fled into the high desert south of Boise.

He was put on the FBI's Ten-Most Wanted list in mid-May as he moved from San Francisco to Nevada to Mexico for plastic surgery and then Oregon for contact lenses before federal agents finally recaptured him last March 8 as he walked out of a convalescence store in Riverside, Calif.

Treaty

 The remaining issues include the number of on-site inspections to ensure compliance with the treaty — once a hotly controversial issue — and the pace at which missiles will be destroyed. So far, the two sides have been known to negotiate in knots for months or even years. But, prodded by the summit schedule, the negotiators could settle the remaining matters by splitting the difference compromises.

A U.S. official said the two sides agreed in principle to permit on-site inspections to police the treaty. But he said that differences remain on the number of unscheduled "challenge" inspections to be allowed. Moreover, he said; Washington wants the treaty to allow inspectors to go anywhere that they suspect a violation has occurred while Moscow wants to restrict their activities to agreed upon sites.

Another U.S. official said that there is also a disagreement on the schedule for destroying the missile systems. The Soviets want to allow two years for destruction of shorter-range systems and five years for dismantling of medium-range systems while the United States proposes one year and three years.

In addition, the Soviets want to require the removal of the nuclear devices from the missiles within one year, in effect rendering them useless. Washington maintains that such a requirement could not be verified adequately.

Despite the progress on banning medium-range missiles, the two sides remain far apart in their negotiations on long-range strategic weapons and on space and defensive systems. Reagan and Gorbachev agreed last year at their meeting in Reykjavik, Iceland, to aim at a 50 percent cut in strategic weapons, but Shultz and Shevardnadze agreed that little progress has been made since then in determining the details.

One senior U.S. official said that the two most troubling issues at the start of the Shultz-Shevardnadze talks this week were the disposition of U.S.-controlled warheads on 72 West German-owned Pershing 1A missiles and of warheads from the U.S. and Soviet missiles to be destroyed under the treaty. As it turned out, the official said, the two sides were closer than their public statements would have indicated, so compromise was fairly easy.

For several months, Moscow has demanded that the United States agree to destroy the warheads for the Pershing 1A missiles. Washington, too, refused because it maintained that U.S.-Soviet negotiations could not affect "third country" systems.

The dispute lost much of its steam last month, however, when West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl announced that Bonn would dismantle its missile force once the U.S.-Soviet intermediate nuclear force agreement was implemented. But the Soviets continued to demand that the United States agree in the treaty to destroy the warheads.

Congress

 Every opportunity to break this treaty or to surprise us with new developments," Helms said. He also said the agreement would leave Germany open to Soviet attack, and added: "In the long run, this will destroy NATO."

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said his panel would schedule hearings on the proposed agreement as soon as possible after it is concluded, probably early next year.

"We've arrived at a very wonderful breakthrough," Pell said, cautioning that "this is only the first step on a longer journey" that will include long-range nuclear weapons.

"I would hope that those negotiations in that direction would go along in a parallel manner," said Pell, referring to the attempts of both superpowers to negotiate a pact reducing strategic arsenals.

Some lawmakers cautioned that the step is a small one and still leaves large differences between the two sides yet to be worked out.

"Technical differences remain, and we must not permit our euphoria over this positive step to lull us into a false sense of complacency over what lies ahead," said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., a longtime advocate of arms control, said the agreement "is to be applauded as a first step," and he supported it. That the deal was engineered by a conservative Republican administration should give it additional credibility, he said, adding that it represented a realization of both sides is that the superpowers could not afford the continued costs of the arms buildup.

SEN. SAM NUNN
 Looking at 'real test'

"I'm sure there'll be those who'll attack it because it will appear to them to be beneficial to the Russians, but we have to recognize that any deal has to be mutually beneficial," Hatfield said.

"I'm convinced that they, and we, are taking a much stronger look at what is sufficient to defend our two countries and our allies," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., a senior member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

"They (the Soviets) have finally done what we asked them to do in 1976. We ought to celebrate," Lugar said.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said he believed the general idea of arms-reduction agreements with the Soviets would be welcomed on Capitol Hill with near-unanimity. "But we all want to see the fine print," he added.

Glenn said elimination of intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe places a greater emphasis on the current imbalance in conventional weaponry between the Western allies and the Warsaw Pact countries.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, agreed, saying the response to the conventional arm problem will be the "real test." The new agreement "has to be examined in that broader context," he said, adding his panel would hold hearings to do that.

Glenn and others also raised concerns that President Reagan, in trying to burnish his tarnished public image, might be rushing into an arms-control agreement.

"I want to make certain that in trying to get a favorable impact on public opinion before he goes out of office, that we haven't gone too far," Glenn said. But he added that the agreement in principle on intermediate-range weapons affects only about 3 percent of the U.S. nuclear stockpile and by itself will not seriously affect European force balances.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, echoed Glenn's suspicion, saying he would grade the treaty a "C-minus" because he said it is "politically motivated."

Aspin said the tentative pact "is very fragile unless you move very, very quickly toward an agreement" on long-range weapons.

Deadly illness widespread in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — A bacterial illness that has killed one Cook County Hospital patient, stricken as many as 20 others and forced the closing of a surgical ward appears to be part of a citywide outbreak, but there is no reason for the general public to be alarmed, officials said Friday.

"It can be dangerous, but it is treatable and if treated early, patients do well," said Dr. Charles Kalkick, chairman of the hospital's division of infectious diseases.

"We have reason to believe there is a significant amount of this in the city. We may be the only place where it's been found," he said, where it's likely for the general population or for patients who are not taking certain antibiotics that can trigger the problem, state health officials said.

There is "no cause for alarm. This is something that has been blown way out of proportion," said spokeswoman Linda Hesse at the state Public Health Department.

Dr. Linda Murray, assistant to City Public Health Commissioner Lonnie Edwards, issued an alert asking city hospitals and nursing homes to report similar cases so officials could determine the extent of the outbreak of the intestinal bacteria.

"We've heard about other cases, but so far it's all anecdotal," said Ms. Murray, an environmental and occupational health specialist.

Today's weather

Summer's last weekend looks fine

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:
 Sunny and warmer today. Light winds. Highs in the mid to upper 70s. Fair tonight and Sunday. Lows in the lower 40s. Highs in upper 70s to lower 80s.
 Casper, Prarie and Wood River, Valley:
 Sunny and warmer today. Highs in the lower 70s. Light winds. Fair tonight and Sunday. Lows in the lower 50s. Highs in the lower to mid 70s.
 Northern Utah and Nevada:
 Utah — Fair through Sunday with a slow warming trend. Highs 70s to 80s. Lows in the 40s with a few cold spots.
 Nevada — Sunny and a little warmer days through Sunday. Highs today from upper 70s in the east to upper 80s in the west and Sunday from the low 80s in the east to near 90 in the west. Lows tonight mostly from low 30s in the northeast to mid 40s in the central portion.

Summary:
 The National Weather Service in Boise says high pressure continued to build over the state bringing warmer temperatures. This pattern was expected to continue for the next several days with temperatures becoming well above normal by mid week.

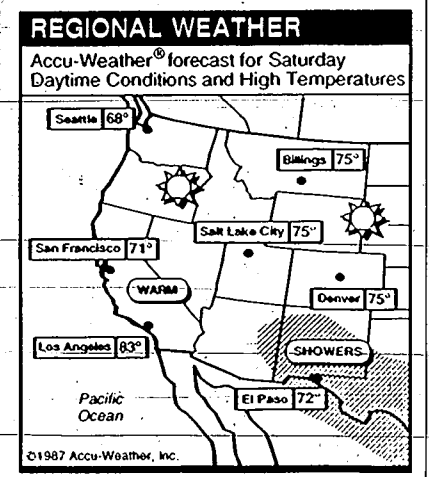

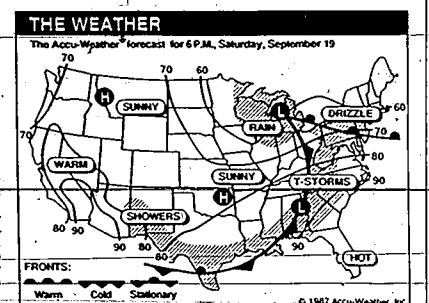

Some clouds were reported Friday afternoon in the northern half of Idaho while a few high clouds were seen in the southeast. Late afternoon temperatures were mostly in the high 60s and low 70s. Reported winds were light.

The warmest temperature in the state Friday was 82 degrees at both Caldwell and Weiser. Deadwood and Stanley both reported the coldest at 18 degrees.

The agricultural outlook for Southern Idaho. Harvest conditions will be excellent Saturday through Wednesday. Rapid drying will occur due to warmer than normal daytime temperatures and low humidities. 4 inch soil temperatures will remain above 45 degrees for the potato harvest. Winds for spraying will be 5-15 mph Saturday and Sunday with direction westerly in the afternoons and generally easterly nights and mornings.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho — Monday through Wednesday, sunny, warmer days and clear nights. Highs from 80 to 90. Lows in the upper 30s and 40s in the east, from mid 40s to lower 50s in the west.

Elsewhere in the nation Friday, the highest temperature was 105 degrees at McAllen, Texas. The lowest was 17 degrees at Jackson, Wyo.

Weinberger raps private MIA searches

The Associated Press
 WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger criticized private efforts to search for Americans who did not return from the Vietnam war and said Friday that the Reagan administration revitalized attempts to account for missing servicemen.

"Only through a recognition that this government is serious, determined and deserving of the responsible support of all Americans will we ultimately succeed," Weinberger said at a ceremony marking POW-MIA Recognition Day.

"I hope those few pursuing their own path will soon join us in recognizing that their activities can actually prevent us from obtaining long-delayed answers. Should there be delays, let the cause be in Hanoi, not in America."

Weinberger spoke at the ceremony on a Pentagon parade ground less than a day after a group of relatives of missing servicemen floated about 2,600 plastic packets down the Mekong River, offering a reward of $2.4 million for the return of U.S. prisoners of war.

The six-member group said unorthodox action was needed because the U.S. government had failed to verify reports of sightings of live Americans in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. The U.S. government has dismissed such cases and the three communist governments have denied holding any American POWs.

"We should recognize that wishful thinking, unsubstantiated claims and simplistic solutions — which call for buying cooperation or compromising our national security — have been damaging to our national effort and should be rejected out of hand," Weinberger said.

"We owe these families and their loved ones a special obligation," Weinberger said. "Americans owe those waiting families a debt."

'Star Wars' still Russian bugaboo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze predicted Friday the Kremlin will be unable to dissuade the Reagan administration from its "Star Wars" missile defense program, which he said would bring sharp reductions in long-range nuclear arsenals.

"Today, we are making the first step toward a nuclear-free world," said Shevardnadze, referring to a deal, announced at the end of his six-day visit to Washington, to eliminate all Soviet and U.S. medium- and short-range nuclear missiles.

"For the first time in the history of the existence of nuclear weapons, of the existence of what I would call the face-off between the Soviet Union and the United States of America, it has been possible to agree on the elimination of two classes of nuclear weapons," he told reporters at the Soviet Embassy.

But President Reagan, in meetings Tuesday and Thursday with Shevardnadze, rejected Kremlin proposals that the two sides agree to adhere for 10 years to the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, which restricts Star Wars research and deployment, the Soviet official said.

The summit between Reagan and Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Iceland last October foundered on the same issue.

"Unfortunately, and this I have to report to you with some regret, we have not been able to bring our position substantially closer together with on the question of 50 percent reductions of strategic offensive weapons in the context of strict compliance with and strengthening of the regime of the ABM treaty," said Shevardnadze.

He said he hoped for progress in talks on Star Wars and strategic weapons during a planned visit to Moscow by Secretary of State George Shultz in the second half of October, before Gorbachev's expected trip to the United States by year-end to sign the pact on intermediate missiles.

"But it is probably impossible to persuade — the U.S. administration," he said, and "I would not say that this is a condition" for the summit.

Shevardnadze also said: the Kremlin:
 • Was prepared to withdraw the estimated 115,000 Soviet troops from Afghanistan, but only after the United States, China and other nations stopped sending military aid through Pakistan to Moslem guerrillas fighting the Kremlin-backed regime in Kabul.

• Had drastically "restructured" and "democratized" the Soviet legal system to curtail human rights abuses and ease emigration.

Shevardnadze's remarks showed that although the Kremlin made concessions on the elimination of intermediate nuclear weapons, it kept its long-range goal of blocking Star Wars.

Soviet minister apologizes for shooting affair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze apologized Friday for the shooting of an American serviceman by Soviet soldiers in East Germany, but the Pentagon said it would insist on a fuller explanation of the "unprovoked" attack.

Robert Sims, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, declined to rule out unspecified "further actions" in response to the attack in addition to formal protests that were lodged Thursday.

Shevardnadze, appearing at a news conference at the Russian embassy here, acknowledged that Soviet military personnel had opened fire Thursday after confronting a vehicle carrying two U.S. servicemen attached to an accredited military liaison office in East Germany.

But Shevardnadze insisted the Soviets had fired only warning shots and that both sides were at fault.

Sims dismissed those assertions, saying the two Americans were outside any restricted area; had been fired upon with an automatic weapon from behind, and had done nothing to violate the terms of the 1947 agreement that established the Military Liaison Mission system.

Sims identified the two Americans as Air Force Capt. Bennett McCutcheon of Scottsdale, Ariz., and Air Force Master Sgt. Charles L. Barry of Tucson, Ariz. Barry, a 15-year veteran who was driving the vehicle, suffered a superficial wound from a bullet fragment to his left arm and is in good condition, the spokesman said.

Sims offered the following ap-count of the incident, which occurred around 7:15 a.m. MDT on Thursday.

The two were driving down a road near the town of Weseleben when they spotted a single individual, dressed in civilian clothes, by the side of the road. The leader of the American team, the Air Force captain, had "a gut feeling that the individual was in fact a Soviet soldier or some other government representative, and he decided that they should leave the area."

Where U.S., USSR stand on arms treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a look at where the United States and Soviet Union stand on an arms control treaty:

INTERMEDIATE-RANGE MISSILES

The United States and the Soviet Union, after three days of talks between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, agreed in principle to eliminate ground-launched, intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

The treaty would be signed by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at a summit meeting sometime in the fall, the date to be determined when Shultz meets Shevardnadze in Moscow in October.

The missiles to be eliminated represent only 6 percent of the combined superpower arsenals. But they represent the first entire class of missiles, since the dawn of the nuclear age, that would be withdrawn by treaty after being deployed.

MAJOR REMAINING ISSUES

There are two main issues to be settled by experts over the next two months:

- Verification against cheating. Earlier this week, the United States proposed a lengthy set of verification measures that would include provisions for on-site inspections of each other's missile facilities to insure that the weapons are removed. The Soviets are now formulating their response.

- Timetable for withdrawal. The United States wants the missiles taken out more quickly than the Soviets do. Under the U.S. plan, shorter-range weapons covered by the pact would be withdrawn in one year; the Soviets want to do it in two years. The United States wants the longer-range weapons taken out in three years; the Soviets want to do it in five years.

WARHEAD DESTRUCTION

The two sides are in basic agreement that the explosive charges in the warheads would be withdrawn and stored at home as the missiles were dismantled.

This week's talks settled the further issue of what would happen to U.S. warheads on West German Pershing 1-A rockets. Those warheads will be withdrawn to the United States, but will not be part of the pact.

WHAT ISN'T COVERED

- Strategic weapons. These are the longest-range weapons — missiles launched from air, sea and land and by bombers — that make up the bulk of superpower arsenals. Shultz and Shevardnadze agreed on an intensive effort at Geneva talks to try to cut these arsenals in half.

- Tactical and conventional weapons. These are the relatively small nuclear devices, often shot from artillery, and the vast array of tanks, planes, ships, submarines, airplanes and other war-making machinery and manpower, that make up the U.S. and Soviet armies. Talks on conventional weapons have been under way in Vienna.

- Space weapons. These are the forces — still theoretical like President Reagan's "Star Wars" plan, that the United States and the Soviet Union are researching and are the subject of discussions in Geneva.

State retains pension fund trustee, ends flap

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Controversy over who manages the Idaho Public Employee Retirement Fund has subsided to the point that now everyone is in agreement, an official told a meeting of state workers here Friday.

"The last word I got was that the board and the governor were in agreement, and everyone's happy now," said Jim Collins, a field representative for the retirement fund. "We're all looking in the same direction."

Colling told a group of more than 60 state workers, members of the Idaho Public Employees Association, that the state's $1.2 billion fund will remain with the Frank Russell Trust Co. of Tacoma, Wash.

Some employees in the meeting expressed surprise that a decision had been reached.

But Jerry Rasavage, the executive director of the IPEA, said later that the Public Employees Retirement System Board voted at its last meeting to keep Russell Trust as the master trustee.

7.9% pay hike sought for state workers

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Personnel Commission will recommend a 7.9 percent pay raise for state employees next year, the Idaho Public Employees Association learned at a state meeting here on Friday.

Jan Foster, with the Idaho Personnel Commission, said the commission approved the figure Friday morning and will present it to Gov. Cecil Andrus on Oct. 1, the deadline date when the commission must present its proposed salary increases as the gov-error prepares his budget requests to the Legislature.

Foster said the commission is recommending no changes in the benefit packages for state employees.

The 7.9 percent increase, if approved, means the Legislature

"Our return with them in just two quarters was 40 percent," Rasavage said. "I think the board made a good decision."

The fund became the center of controversy earlier this year when Gov. Cecil Andrus vowed to gain control of the retirement system board of directors or he could return management of the fund to Idaho.

Andrus told the Associated Press earlier this week that he was still concerned about the cost of the new trustee's services and whether it was worth it.

Allen Winkle, deputy director of PERSI, said the board will be looking at fees at its Tuesday board meeting.

In the meantime, discussion of the fund was a hot topic during breaks at the general counsel meeting of IPEA members here Friday.

"I've been very much part of part of discussion," said Ivan Mink, president of the 3,100 member association. "The feeling is right now, we should leave it with Tacoma for at least a year so we can find out if the returns stay up."

Mink said while some members were "apprehensive" about the governor's attitude toward the pension fund, others were sympathetic with his position that the fund should be managed by Idaho firms "if we could get a better return."

But the five-member PERSI board hired the Tacoma company last year to improve what had been a dismal performance.

Before Russell Trust took over management of 90 percent of the funds, four Idaho banks had shared with the state the management of the money. The result was that Idaho's pension fund was ranked in the bottom one third of 900 similar pension funds on rate of return.

Andrus, McClure ready to discuss wilderness debate

By The Associated Press

Another final draft of a long-range management plan for one of Idaho's 10 national forests has been released as Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus indicated he has moved a step closer to actual negotiations with Republican Sen. James McClure on resolving Idaho's long-running wilderness debate.

Andrus said he plans to meet with McClure within 10 days to discuss the wilderness issue although he provided no specific date or location for that meeting.

But McClure spokesman H.D. Palmer said on Friday that while a meeting has been discussed, no session has actually been set up yet.

"We want to have the meeting as soon as possible, but it's a question of scheduling and there is no timetable now for that meeting to occur," Palmer said. "That does not mean there is an unwillingness to meet. The senator wants to sit down and talk to the governor."

McClure has stated he would like to see the issue resolved so that communities with economies dependent on timber and other resource industries are not hurt.

Idaho currently has over 4 million acres of wilderness, the largest acreage set aside in any state other than Alaska. An additions would have to be approved by Congress.

Andrus completed his own evaluation of the nearly 9 million acres of Idaho's national forests and is considering for preservation of wilderness earlier this month. But while he has reached a decision on what tracts should be designated wilderness, he has declined to identify the areas or total the acreage he is backing.

He has only said that his position will be for less acreage than the 3.9 million acres environmentalists have proposed and that at least some areas being proposed for wilderness by the Forest Service in their long-range plans will probably not be included in any final agreement.

At the same time, the Sawtooth National Forest released its final draft of a long-term management plan for that 2.5-million-acre forest in central Idaho, making some revisions in the wilderness recommendation from the initial draft.

The major change was an expansion of the wilderness recommendation for the Boulder-White Clouds mountain areas to the east of the present Sawtooth Wilderness in the Stanley Basin to include the Garland Lakes and Warm Springs drainages.

Buhl predicts profit for trash service

By DAVID LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The city of Buhl is getting back into the commercial trash business with an eye toward making money.

The City Council has authorized Public Works Director Richard Preston to obtain bids for 30 dumpsters, a new sanitation truck and a new mover.

Contractors are now picking up trash in 27 dumpsters in violation of a city ordinance. The regulation states it's unlawful for any firm or person to collect garbage within the city unless authorized to do so. However, the ordinance has not been enforced.

Preston wants to purchase 30 dumpsters at a cost of $9,900, the sanitation truck for about $52,000 and a conversion kit for $1,201 to allow a city truck to pick up the dumpsters.

Preston said the dumpsters will bring in about $600-$800 per month in revenue for the city. At that rate a new truck could be purchased every 6 years.

"We can't afford to allow contractors to continue to operate contrary to city ordinance when there is such a strong economic case against it," Preston said.

Councilmen supported Preston's view that city dumpsters will "increase the quality of service" to customers, and "economically, financially and from a sanitary standpoint" help them eliminate cans.

Preston said, "As long as the city truck is going down the alley I think it is essential to maximize revenue and provide the services our customers are needing."

A new mover for the city parks will cost about $7,000.

Center's board members refuse to quit

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Board members of the Hagerman Valley Senior Citizens Center are not resigning, despite a petition signed by more than half the seniors asking them to do so.

At a board meeting called Thursday morning, Chairman Don Rathbun said he and board members Leslie Cross, Evelyn Wilson, Norman Thompson and alternate Herb Mengel had voted legally when they fired site manager Wanda Duncombe at a special board meeting called and held on Aug. 28.

Board members Faye Tupper, Wes LaGrange and Elmer Beutler charged that Rathbun deliberately excluded them from the meeting.

"We are just as much a part of this board as you are," Tupper said to the chairman.

Rathbun said repeated attempts were made to contact all the members. Beutler said he was at the senior center most of the day and could have easily been called.

Because of the disputed meeting and the voting that took place there, a petition calling for reconstruction — or resignation — of all board members and the reappointment of a new board was signed by 158 of the 300 Hagerman seniors.

Attorney Sever Swanson, speaking on behalf of the board members who fired Duncombe, said the petition cannot force any of those four board members to resign. Bylaws revised in 1982 and 1985 deleted the original 1978 requirement of a five-hour notice of a special board meeting to all board members, he said.

"In my opinion, the meeting was proper," Swanson said. "You asked them to resign but they don't have to."

The bylaws, he said, do not have a provision for recall of members of the board of directors.

The next scheduled election, said Swanson, is in January.

Tupper asked why the "secret meeting" was called so suddenly, and why the drastic action was needed so immediately. The vote with all members present still would have gone the same way, she said, but at least everyone would have had the chance to vote.

Rathbun said special meetings often have been held the same day they are scheduled, and the special meeting called to vote on Duncombe was nothing unusual.

The chairman said the special meeting and the voting were "beside the point now," bringing an outburst of protest from most of about 50 seniors who were at the meeting.

Rathbun used his gavel and called for order.

"If we had it to do over again," he commented, "perhaps it would have been done differently. The reasons remain the same."

Waterfowl gain marshes near Hill City

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Things are looking up for ducks and geese frequenting the Hill City Marsh.

The state recently concluded its first major land purchases for waterfowl using revenues expected from the new Duck Stamp.

The state recently bought two parcels totaling 1,800 acres from ranchers but it needs an additional 2,000 to 3,000 acres to make conditions ideal for the birds, says Dick Norrell, land buyer, state Department of Fish & Game.

But Norrell says it will take a while to get the balance of the land. "Right now I'm broke," he says.

Norrell was reluctant to get into the specifics of land buys since he has to make additional purchases. But he says the state pays $300 per acre for dryland and $225 per acre for wet meadowland.

In addition to Duck Stamp money, the purchases are financed through a $2 fee on hunting licenses and funds from Ducks Unlimited, a nonprofit organization that gives waterfowl a boost.

Norrell says he expects the $5.50 state Duck Stamp to generate $400,000 in the first year.

"We're trying to let the area revegetate. It's been traditionally grazed or hayed every year," says Dale Turnipseed, regional wildlife land manager with F&G in Jerome.

The area floods every spring and even while in private hands it has been important for goose production, he says. The refuge is located one mile south of Hill City off U.S. Highway 20.

"We have had our eye on it for a long time," Turnipseed says.

How successful the state will be in attracting more waterfowl depends on the amount of water the area has and how much can be retained, he says.

The funds from the stamp will allow F&G to acquire more wetlands. Eventually, the state would like to manage 6,000 acres at the Hill City Marsh. Turnipseed says since wetlands are being drained every year, there is an active threat to waterfowl.

Until now, the state's bird rearing habitat has been small. F&G produced 130 goslings per year on a 40 acre parcel in Hagerman, says Turnipseed.

F&G has no set figure in mind on what size water fowl population it wants at Hill City but it will be helping the birds along by erecting experimental mallard nesting boxes. There are already some geese nesting boxes on the land.

Some part of Hill City Marsh will remain open for hunting, says Bill Webb, F&G Region 4 supervisor. Other plans are for acquiring a buffer around the site and working with farmers to raise grain crops for the birds. F&G would also like to close a portion of the area to provide protection.

In addition to Canada geese and mallards, F&G hopes to attract other varieties of ducks predominantly dabblers such mallards, pintails, gadwall and green wing teals and divers where it can develop deepwater ponds. There are also sandhill cranes, curlews and probably another 20 to 30 species of birds that use the area annually, says Webb, F&G Region 4 supervisor.

"The birds are coming now, we're hoping to enhance their environment," says Turnipseed.

Dispute with mayor brings resignation

The Associated Press

BELLEVUE — Bellevue City Councilwoman Teresa Bergin has resigned in the wake of a dispute with the mayor and other council members over the firing of the town's deputy marshal.

Bergin said she was angry with how Mayor Mike Ivis and others on the City Council have treated Virginia Nichols, who was fired recently as a patrol officer by Bellevue Marshal Winston "Burr" Gray.

She said the only discussion of Nichols' discharge among council members came, last week at the council's regular meeting after reporters had gone. Council Member Lyle Guiffy brought the subject up but he had heard a rumor that Nichols had been fired, she said.

It was not settled prior to the council meeting, Bergin said.

Gray has said Nichols continues to work for the department and to draw a paycheck. But Bergin said Nichols is only on the payroll officially because she is getting two weeks severance pay.

Officials at Elkhorn Resort in Sun Valley said Nichols has been hired as a security guard there and will begin work next week.

Bergin said Nichols did not receive a hearing from Gray before being fired from the Bellevue job.

"He was not specific about her charges. I felt the reasons were very vague and obscure," she said. "I asked for something in writing, but he didn't have anything."

Less-strict water-quality plan proposed

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A new, less-stringent water-quality plan for Idaho streams has been proposed by the state Department of Health and Welfare's "Division of Environment."

The plan includes an antidegradation policy and implementation plan supported by the timber industry, the U.S. Forest Service and farm-representatives on the state Non-Point Source Interagency Team. However, it is opposed by conservationists and sportsmen who serve on the panel set up to negotiate a compromise state water-quality policy.

An issue is what practices will be allowed on different classes of streams in the state. The regulations are designed to prevent water degradation by controlling sedimentation and other pollution that can result from logging, farming, road building and construction.

The new proposal contains a modified stream classification system that would require less public participation in actions that would reduce water quality on Class B waters, defined as those where water quality exceeds the level necessary to support beneficial uses.

The original compromise plan, which was sent to the public for comment this summer, divided Class B waters into B-1 and B-2 categories. Under that plan, water quality could not be lowered on B-1 waters without case-by-case public hearings. Water quality on B-2 waters could be reduced after the public review period in October when the areas are classified.

It keeps the other categories, Class A waters, which are designated as high-quality streams. Water quality cannot be reduced and Class C waters, where water quality is below the level necessary to support beneficial uses. In these waters, quality must be maintained or improved.

Al Murray, Division of Environment water quality director, said the change was made after the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency issued a guidance paper on non-point source pollution and water quality standards.

Firefighters battle blaze

CASTLEFORD — Firefighters were planning to spend the night at a man-caused fire that by Friday had consumed more than 300 acres near Balanced Rock.

The fire started at 1:50 p.m. from the parking area at the county-owned Balanced Rock Park, according to Kim Christensen, a fire dispatcher with the Boise district of the Bureau of Land Management.

"Four engines and 10 firefighters fought the blaze, which was burning 'slowly and steadily,'" she said.

About 40 acres blackened by the fire were private land; the remainder is public land managed by the BLM, Christensen said.

At about 10 p.m. crews were still on the job because of "hot spots."

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Driver injured in crash

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman was hospitalized after a two-car accident Friday afternoon on Addison Avenue near Sixth Street North.

Christine Louise Green, 36, of 510 Second Ave. W. was reported in fair condition Friday evening at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Green and Katherine Anna Schrock, 36, of Route 5, Twin Falls, were both westbound on the intake lane of Addison Avenue at about 1:02 p.m., according to a Twin Falls police report.

Green slowed almost to a stop because she became ill, and collided with Schrock's car which was behind her, the report states. Green was taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Schrock was not injured.

There was $1,000 damage to Schrock's car and $600 to Green's car, according to the report.

The annexation of 30 properties into the city limits.

The first ordinance provides for the annexation of 21 properties, but not Clear Springs Trout Co.'s feed facility on Burley Avenue. It was excluded because its 7.2 acre lot exceeded a state limit of five acres for landowners opposing annexation.

The second ordinance would annex nine lots on the south side of Burley. There was no verbal opposition at the meeting this week, but the city did receive a petition against it from 18 property owners.

The annexed properties are located within the square-mile boundaries of Buhl.

Councilman Terry Lechner asked how Clear Springs could be brought into the city limits. Attorney Bill Nungester said it could happen in the future if the facility became an "aisland," surrounded by other city properties.

The ordinances will "square-off" the city and end confusion over city services for those properties. Annexation also holds taxing advantages for cities.

In other business at this week's meeting:

- Sewer service fees may be increased by $1.80 per month for residents after an ordinance is drawn up for the council's consideration.
- Sewer rates have not gone up since the Buhl sewer treatment facility was built in 1985.
- Councilman Tom Tappen submitted two questions for the November ballot on eliminating fees at the Buhl public swimming pool. "Neither is perfect," he said.

His two alternatives were a yes-no referendum or an advisory ballot. If voters decide if funds should be taken away from various departments, including fire and police, to support the pool.

The council has not decided whether to put either proposal on the ballot.

For two summers, the city has been charging admission to the city pool, ending a decades-old tradition of free swimming.

The council set the general city election for Nov. 3, as required by state law. Two council seats held by Terry Lechner and Jack Fields will be decided.

But Warren McFall, EPA water quality administrator in Boise, said the guidance paper did not specifically address antidegradation plans.

Pay

Must come up with $15.8 million from the general fund budget next year.

The Legislature this year approved a 4 percent payline increase, which takes effect on Sunday.

By delaying the salary increase until September, the Legislature saved approximately $3.9 million.

The controversial payline increase differs from an across-the-board increase because not all state employees will receive a pay raise.

This year, 2,500 state employees received no raise, while 6,000 employees received a 5 percent hike in salary, and 230 employees received a 10 percent increase.

Foster said if the Legislature funds the full 7.9 percent increase next year, only 372 state employees would receive no pay hike. The increase would mean 3,463 employees would receive a 5 percent increase, and 4,828 employees would receive a 10 percent increase.

"If we had received the full 12.6 percent request last year, we would have been ahead in pay," Foster said.

Although state employees received less than half what the Personnel Commission requested, state workers did not lag significantly behind this year because inflation rates were less than expected, Foster said.

"We're asking for an increase that's less than we thought it would be, and that's encouraging," she said. "We're pretty optimistic" the Legislature will approve the request, she said.

The IPEA general council will take action today on whether to accept the pay hike recommendation, reject it or come up with one of their own.

Resign Plan

May have been made, but the termination is done and the action has been taken.

Stressing his neutrality on the decision to board reconstruction, Boyd said the purpose of the center is to provide services for the seniors. He advised the seniors to "put these petty things aside."

Boyd later said his job is to coordinate services to the seniors, and although he would like to see the controversy end, his office would provide technical help on request if the seniors decide they need to change their bylaws.

Beutler said he would turn in his resignation if the present board keeps on serving. LaGrange said he would also resign.

Rathbun asked the board for a motion to accept the resignations, but seniors attending the meeting protested and said resignations have to be "in writing" before they can be accepted. Rathbun contended verbal resignations were acceptable. No motion was made.

Beutler later said he is going to stop doing volunteer work, but he and LaGrange will not resign.

That expanded the recommended wilderness area to just over 270,000 acres with 62,000 acres in the Pioneer Mountains and 18,000 acres at Hansen Lakes. If adopted, a quarter of the entire forest and half of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area would be preserved as wilderness.

In addition, the plan calls for continued roadless management through the late 1990s of another 328,000 acres including the Smokey Mountain area. That land would be available for wilderness consideration in the future.

Timber cut in the forest would be maintained at 10.5 million board feet annually for the next decade, the average cut in past years.

"During the development of this plan, we carefully studied 12 alternative ways in which the Sawtooth National Forest could be managed in the future," Forest Supervisor Roland Stoleson said. "In the final analysis, our preferred alternative is the one called Public Use Emphasis. This alternative provides opportunities for all forest users, with an emphasis being placed on recreation," he said.

Blackmun has minor surgery

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun has completed outpatient treatment for a recurrence of prostate cancer, a Mayo Clinic spokeswoman said Friday. "The prognosis is excellent," said Nancy Skaran. "He was discharged today and has returned to Washington." Blackmun, 78, author of the landmark 1973 ruling legalizing abortion, underwent surgery for prostate cancer Nov. 14, 1977. The Mayo Clinic announced July 21 that Blackmun was undergoing treatment for "a small and localized recurrence." Ms. Skaran said Friday the treatment completed by Blackmun was done on an outpatient basis. She said she did not know if Blackmun remained in Rochester throughout the term of the treatment. Blackmun returns Oct. 5 to the Supreme Court for the start of its 1987-88 term, but will return to the Mayo Clinic periodically for examinations, she said.

Supercollider list smaller

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department today knocked out five of seven maverick proposals for siting the proposed $4.4 billion "super collider," a gigantic research tool that will bring 3,000 jobs to the community landing. The department sent 36 proposals to the National Academy of Sciences for preparation of a short list of finalists in December. The proposals ruled unqualified today were those backed by private groups and one submitted by New York state on behalf of Quebec for a site straddling the U.S.-Canadian border. Every proposal backed by one of the 25 state governments in the contest survived, as did three sponsored by local governments or government agencies in Texas and New Mexico. The super collider is an atom smasher that will lie in an underground tunnel 52 miles around, expected to begin operation in 1996 if Congress approves the money.

Delta problems widespread WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration sharply criticized Delta Air Lines on Friday, saying an inspection revealed widespread problems with crew coordination, poor communications and "lapses of discipline" in the cockpit. The FAA said in a report that Delta's "lack of clear cut" management guidance to pilots was largely responsible for shortcomings found during a five-week review of the carrier's flight operations. The investigation was prompted widely publicized pilot mistakes this summer including one case in which a plane narrowly avoided a collision over the Atlantic Ocean and an incident in which a jetliner came within 500 feet of ditching into the Pacific Ocean. The FAA report did not address the incidents specifically, but expressed concern about the performance of pilots at Delta, the nation's fourth-largest airline.

Sprinkel sends resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beryl W. Sprinkel, a conservative economist who muted his criticism of the Federal Reserve Board to serve as President Reagan's top economic adviser, on Friday became the second high-ranking administration official to resign within a week. Sprinkel, 63, cited "personal reasons" and a desire to return to the private sector. His resignation takes effect in late November. In an interview, Sprinkel said he would return to Flossmoor, Ill., a Chicago suburb. He said he had no specific plans as yet, but hopes to be a corporate consultant, do some "public-speaking," writing and possibly some teaching. Economists said they did not think Sprinkel's departure as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers will signal any change in administration economy policy. He has held the post since April 1985.

Papal visit marred by protester's jeers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Imporing Pope John Paul II to "walk with me," a woman lay leader demanded more voice for ordinary Catholics in the church Friday and told the pontiff: "I expect to be treated as a mature, educated and responsible adult." "Let me walk with you," Donna Hanson, bishop's secretary for social ministries in Spokane, Wash., urged the pope at a meeting of U.S. lay. "Your Holiness, please let me know that you are also willing to walk with me. Accustomed as I am to dialogue, consultation and collaboration, I do not always feel that I am heard." At mid-afternoon, the pope left San Francisco for Detroit, the last stop on his nine-city American tour, where he will visit the Polish-American community of Hamtramck, give a speech on social justice, and celebrate Mass at the Pontiac Silverdome. During his 21-hour visit to the city by the bay, he repeatedly faced the issues that have dogged him throughout his trip: demands that women, homosexuals, the divorced and minorities have more say in their church. Those issues on Thursday night sparked the largest and noisiest protest of John Paul's trip so far, when 2,000 people chanted "shame, shame" and "pope, go home" outside Mission Dolores, where the pope blessed 64 AIDS victims. His spokesman, Joaquin Navarro, said the pontiff heard some of those demonstrators but did not see them. About 75 protesters also gathered Friday outside St. Mary's Cathedral, where the pope listened to the lay leaders. After that meeting, he rode to Candlestick Park and, standing on an altar built on second base, celebrated Mass before a crowd estimated by the Secret Service at 71,000 people. "In my cultural experience, questioning is generally not rebellion nor dissent," Ms. Hanson told the pope. "It is rather a desire to participate and is a sign of maturity of love." The pontiff listened attentively as

Ms. Hanson spoke and, when she concluded to a standing ovation, he placed his hand on her forehead in blessing.

Weinberger speeding up 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger on Friday approved the acceleration of research on six "Star Wars" programs that would be key to any defensive system against long-range Soviet nuclear weapons. The action, although long anticipated, was announced at the Pentagon as President Reagan disclosed the United States and Soviet Union had reached an agreement in principle to ban medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles. Efforts to negotiate a similar agreement reducing the number of intercontinental ballistic missiles in the two arsenals have faltered because of Soviet insistence the United States abandon its research program on "Star Wars," known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative. Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims denied Friday the defense secretary had delayed his decision to avoid offending Soviet sensibilities. Nor, said Sims, was Weinberger attempting to dampen enthusiasm for the new arms accord. "There may have been people in Washington who would have preferred that it not be announced while the Soviets were in meetings here," Sims said. "But as you know, (Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard) Shevardnadze is still here and we are announcing it." The secretary's decision is the first to push Star Wars technologies from pure research toward development.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today would be perfect for taking the bull by the horns and expressing your creative side. This will please both influential associates and unconventional friends. This is also a good day for romance.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Bring your finest talents to the foreground, and an influential person can help you capitalize on them. The evening is best spent at recreation with good friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): More harmony at home can be achieved if you apply yourself. The day is fine for inviting some carefully chosen guests into your home and making them happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Improving relationships and communicating well with others could be very beneficial if you're careful about it. Be thoughtful and kind when visiting friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Luxury and a greater income can be easily had if you carefully study your situation. If property repairs are imminent, get them done now.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): If you maintain a courageous and enthusiastic front, you can gain a long-desired personal win. Enjoy a favorite hobby with friends. Be very careful driving today.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be more thoughtful of your mate and you'll both be much happier. Some reading can give you good ideas on how to go about planning a successful future.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Get together with some outgoing friends and discuss your goals and ambitions. Lend a helping hand to any friends who are having a rough time lately.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): If you handle your career work conscientiously and precisely, your reputation can really soar. Be sure you leave some time for fun with your mate this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Better conditions are developing. You can profit from them if you think carefully and take advantage of opportunities. This is a good day to plan a worthwhile trip.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Contact some influential friends who can help you make your dreams a reality. Accept their assistance graciously, and be sure to be appreciative of it.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Use your charm to gain the support of friends and family. Take some time to improve your surroundings and make them more functional as well as more attractive.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to easily attract others and gain their assistance, but will rely mostly on natural abilities, which are considerable.

Idaho Power says Public Utilities Commission playing rate base roulette with power plant cost

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Power Co. says the Public Utilities Commission is playing "rate base roulette" by refusing to allow the utility to put the cost of a Nevada power plant into its rate structure.

The plant was prudently constructed and is used and useful to Idaho Power ratepayers, the utility argues in legal arguments filed with the Idaho Supreme Court.

Idaho Power wants to count its investment in a northern Nevada coal-fired generating plant, Valmy II, in its rate base. The PUC says no.

The commission ruled that since there is an electricity surplus in the Pacific Northwest, power from Valmy II is not needed and Idaho Power should have known that several years ago and not continued its heavy investment in the plant.

The utility last year asked its largest rate increase in history, $84 million. The request was lowered to $68 million, but the PUC eventually allowed only $981,667. Later, another $1.9 million was added.

Because of other adjustments, Idaho Power says that was virtually no rate increase. The utility has asked the Supreme Court to overturn the PUC on Valmy II and other issues contained in an order settling the rate case.

A company spokesman said if the PUC is overturned, it will add $12 million per year to Idaho Power revenue.

Intervenors have joined the case in support of the PUC's decision. They include the Idaho Neighbors Network, a consumer advocate group; FMC Corp., Idaho Power's largest single customer; Monsanto; the Department of Energy's Idaho National Engineering Laboratory and an organization called Industrial Customers of Idaho Power.

Idaho Power also is battling to overturn PUC rulings in other phases of the case. The PUC ordered Idaho Power to use only the last 20 years of stream flow records in calculating the cost of hydroelectric generation. Idaho Power wants to use the last 51 years.

Industrial Customers of Idaho Power says 25 years would be a reasonable basis for the calculations. That group said in the "dust bowl" years 1929-41, stream flows were abnormally low and including them would distort the average flow.

The company also is appealing the PUC's calculation on the price of sales of surplus power, which it says could add $18 million per year to its revenue.

After the filing of legal briefs, the Supreme Court will schedule verbal arguments later, and then decide the case.

Idaho Power's brief centers on the Valmy issue.

The company says the PUC gave it permission to build the plant in 1979, and as late as 1983, approved the purchase of another 150-megawatts of power, tacitly admitting the need for the electricity.

The PUC claims that Idaho Power's own load forecasts say there will be no need for expensive power from the Valmy plant until at least 1993, and Idaho Power shouldn't put the expense into its rate base until that time.

The utility argues it is unfair for the PUC to authorize the plant, say nothing about it until it was completed, and then refuse to allow the cost to be counted.

"Only after the unit was completed did the commission determine that Idaho Power should have stopped building the unit over five years ago," the company said. That was "an unreasonable approach," it said.

Idaho Power also said its load forecasts are only planning studies. "They are not facts; they are not forever etched in stone. As conditions change, so will the plans and forecasts change. They are not intended to be used retroactively" to deny the company the right to recover the cost of facilities already built.

Idaho Power also noted that those same load forecasts were used in 1979 to grant permission to build the plant, calling the PUC's procedure "rate base roulette."

The company said when the Valmy II unit was completed in 1985, it was used to meet customer demand in that year, a bad year for hydroelectric generation.

"It can be and has been used to meet system load requirements," the utility said, disputing the PUC contention the plant is not needed.

Idaho Power called the PUC's decision "Monday morning quarterbacking" after the fact.

The company said there was no secret about the plant. "It was not built out in the desert by Idaho Power to everybody's surprise," and suddenly included in the rate base, the utility said.

Rather the PUC knew about the plant's construction at every step, and yet said nothing about it not being needed until after it was done, the company said.

The plant was prudently constructed and is used and useful to Idaho Power ratepayers, the utility said.

The Idaho Neighbors Network supported the PUC, saying the plant won't be needed until at least 1993, and Idaho Power could replace the electricity cheaper by buying surplus power on the market or getting it from other sources.

Sketches of Rhoades sought

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Attorneys for accused multiple murderer Paul Ezra Rhoades are now asking for all sketches prepared in the police investigations of the three eastern Idaho slayings Rhoades is accused of.

In yet another motion filed in 7th District Court in Idaho Falls, the defense said the sketches of suspected assailants could help it prove that Rhoades is innocent.

Rhoades has been charged with the March killings of school teacher Susan Michelbacher and convenience store clerk Nolan Haddon in Bonneville County and the February killing of Blackfoot convenience store clerk Stacy Baldwin in neighboring Bingham County.

Judge Larry Boyle set Sept. 30 for arguments on the motion.

Rhoades is scheduled to go on trial Jan. 11 on first-degree murder and other charges in the Haddon and Michelbacher slayings. He also faces a trial sometime in January for the Baldwin Killing.

Boyle is already considering a number of other motions from the defense, including one to suppress all statements Rhoades made immediately after his arrest last March on grounds that he was under the influence of narcotics at the time.

Board to review sixth graders

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Board of Education has agreed to begin evaluating the progress of Idaho's sixth-graders with a different statewide standardized testing program.

Eighth- and 11th-graders already are part of the state's testing program and sixth-graders have been added to get a better indication of students' mastery of skills at an earlier age, officials said.

Board President Roberta FIELDS said she believes it's important to identify students' potential academic shortcomings at the elementary level.

The Idaho Department of Education will pay for the standardized Iowa Tests of Basic Skills, which replace the Stanford Achievement Test in third and sixth grade.

Eighth-graders take the ITBS and juniors take the Tests of Achievement and Proficiency.

Rick Van Hemert, executive director of the Idaho Association of Elementary School Principals, said some of his members questioned replacing other standardized tests with the ITBS.

"All of the sudden their long-term data is out the window," Van Hemert said. A request by Van Hemert and Dennis Sonius, a principal in the Twin Falls School District, to allow districts to continue with their current sixth-grade testing program and use a chart to convert their test results to ITBS scores was denied.

The board denied the request after Idaho Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said his staff did not support the use of the chart. However, Evans and other board members agreed that if sufficient evidence could be given for using them, they may reconsider.

Single health program for children and family

LEWISTON (AP) — The Department of Health and Welfare has reorganized to combine programs for children and families into one unit, Gov. Cecil Andrus announced here Friday.

The new Division of Family and Children's Services combines several programs into one administrative unit — included — are child protection, youth rehabilitation, substance abuse, work training, refugees, foster care, adoptions and the state Youth Services Center at St. Anthony.

The change follows a recommendation from a task-force created in January to evaluate services offered by Health and Welfare.

"It just makes a lot of sense," said Andrus. "We haven't added anything new, but by combining what we already offer into one division we can use our staff in new ways, make sure there is no duplication of effort and make certain no one gets lost in the shuffle."

The governor said the underlying philosophy of the new division is to keep families intact whenever possible and help them become responsible and self-sufficient.

User fees climb at Pocatello parks

POCATELLO (AP) — The Pocatello City Council has approved an average 60-percent hike in fees charged residents for parks and recreation programs beginning Oct. 1. Non-residents will pay nearly double current rates.

The higher user fees will make more programs self-supporting, Councilman Greg Anderson said.

"We have several programs which could not stand on their own unless we hiked the fees or continued the general fund subsidy," Anderson said.

Boosting both resident and non-resident user fees was recommended earlier this month by the city's Parks and Recreation board. The resident fee increases range from 42 percent for adult cross-country skiing lessons, to 135 percent for swimming lessons.

Berri denounces US arrest

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Nabih Berri, justice minister and leader of Lebanon's Shiite Muslim Amal militia, on Friday denounced as "an act close to piracy" the arrest at sea of a suspected Lebanese hijacker by U.S. agents.

Berri called Fawzi Yonis' arrest aboard a small boat in the Mediterranean on Sunday "an aggression against the dignity of Lebanon."

Yonis was flown to the United States on Thursday and arraigned in Washington on Friday on charges of hostage-taking, conspiracy and destruction of an aircraft.

U.S. authorities believe he masterminded the hijacking by Shiite gunmen of a Jordanian airliner in Beirut on June 11, 1985, when the city's airport was under Amal control. Amal is the main Shiite militia in Lebanon.

Berri's statement, broadcast by Lebanon's state-run television network, did not specifically say that Yonis was a member of Amal, but it was widely regarded in Beirut as almost being an admission that this was the case.

"It was Amal who rescued the passengers of the Jordanian jetliner. It was also Amal who returned the air marshals aboard the plane who had been kidnapped at that time," Berri said.

MIA relatives offer reward

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Relatives of Americans missing in action in the Vietnam War hope to buy air time to broadcast offers of a $2.4 million reward they've offered for the return of MIAs, a group spokesman said Friday.

The group Thursday tossed about 2,500 plastic bags carrying the reward announcement into the Mekong River, which flows through Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia, the three Indochinese nations now all under communist control.

Former U.S. Rep. Bill Henderson, R-N.C., said Friday they were "terribly pleased" at being allowed to release the bags. Thai authorities, fearful of increasing tensions with Laos, stopped the group's original plan to advertise the offer by floating 2,500 helium-filled balloons into Laos.

"We are confident these messages are going where we want them to go. We just hope someone will pick them up and go to work," Henderson said after returning to Bangkok from two days at the Thai-Laotian border.

The money, put up largely by 21 members of Congress, is being offered to any Laotian, Vietnamese or Cambodian who defects or escapes from Indochina and brings out an American held prisoner.

Ministers end peace plan meeting

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Central American foreign ministers on Friday wrapped up two days of meetings designed to work out details of a plan aimed at bringing peace to the region by Nov. 7.

The ministers from Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Costa Rica and Honduras appeared to have made good progress Thursday in devising ways to implement the loosely worded, but historic agreement.

The plan, signed Aug. 7, by the presidents of the five nations, calls for cease-fires, amnesties, democratic reforms and an end to foreign aid to insurgents. It established a Nov. 7 deadline.

In an interview Thursday, Vice President Sergio Ramirez of Nicaragua urged the United States to "accept the free will of the five Central American presidents" and stop funding the Contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Protest filed on Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The United States filed a formal protest with the leftist Nicaraguan government Friday, saying a member of President Reagan's Cabinet was ill treated and endangered by demonstrators during a visit.

The diplomatic note was delivered to the Foreign Ministry following the departure earlier Friday of Secretary of Education William Bennett.

It stemmed from an incident Thursday in which a small group of protesters, including wounded war veterans and members of a youth auxiliary of the governing Sandinista party, blocked Bennett's way when he was going to meet with about 30 mothers of political prisoners.

Bennett was in Managua to deliver a speech marking the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. His trip was made at the request of the State Department and approved by the Nicaraguan government.

In the speech and at a news conference before it, Bennett called the Sandinista government a tyranny and said the Reagan administration would not end support for the rebels trying to overthrow it.

Austrian train crash kills 3

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Two passenger trains crashed head-on in northern Austria Friday, killing three people and injuring 101, officials said.

A spokesman for Austrian Railways in Vienna said an express train from Innsbruck to Vienna and a passenger train going from Vienna to Salzburg collided near Lambach, about 25 miles southwest of Linz.

Herbert Haunschmid, the locomotive engineer of the Innsbruck to Vienna train, told Austrian television his train was going about 85 mph when "I suddenly saw a train coming toward me on my track."

Gustav Hamerschmied, regional director for Austrian railways, said the crash occurred near the site of repairs. The repair work caused the train coming from Vienna toward Salzburg to be diverted onto the track where the Innsbruck express was approaching, he said.

Iran claims downed warplane, thwarted attack

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes flew a 700-mile mission to attack Iran's Lavan Island oil terminal in the southern Persian Gulf and also hit a ship off the Iranian coast last Friday in an escalation of its air offensive.

Iran claimed its anti-aircraft guns thwarted an Iraqi raid on the Kharg Island oil terminal, shooting down a jet.

Iraq said its raid on Kharg and other oil targets was in response to Iranian shelling, which it said killed nine civilians.

In New York, a report by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar on his just completed six-day peace mission said Iran indicated it would agree to an undeclared cease-fire while the United Nations identifies the aggressor in the 7-year-old Persian Gulf war.

Tehran Radio quoted Iran's chief justice, Ayatollah Musavi-Ardebili, as telling a Friday prayer rally there would be a "glimmer of hope" for peace if the United Nations declared Iraq the aggressor.

Perez de Cuellar's report, submitted to the U.N. Security Council after his return Wednesday from his peace mission to the area, said Iran would not agree to a formal cease-fire until the party responsible for starting the war was named.

But he said the Iranians told him: "Upon the identification of the party responsible for the conflict, the undeclared cessation of hostilities would be replaced by the declaration of a formal cease-fire."

The secretary-general said Iraq reconsidered the Iranian position "a clear rejection" of the Security Council's Resolution 598, calling for a cease-fire and spelling out proposed terms for a negotiated settlement.

Perez de Cuellar said Iraqi officials told him "under no circumstances would Iraq accept an undeclared cease-fire."

Bghhdad radio, monitored in Cyprus, said Iraq's fighter-bombers raided Lavan Island at 8.50 p.m.

Two share LPGA lead

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Second-year pro Misie Bertocci and veteran Jan Stephenson shared the lead Friday after two rounds of the $25,000 LPGA Safeco Classic.

Bertocci shot her second straight 69 and Stephenson had a 70. Their 38-hole total of 8 under-par 138 on the 6,222-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course left them two strokes ahead of Shirley Furlong, who fired a 68 Friday.

Colleen Walker and Cindy Hill, who shot 69s, were tied at 141. Hollie Stacy and Heather Farr both shot 71s for the second consecutive day and were at 142 along with Marci Bozarth, who had a 70, and Kathy Poolewait, with a 71.

CSI baseball team plays today

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho's baseball team will hold its first scrimmage of the fall today at noon at Frontier Field against Ricks College.

The defending Region 18 champion Eagles will play two games against Ricks today and also have two games against Treasure Valley Community College and two against the College of Idaho later this fall.

Ziegler leads GMO field

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Larry Ziegler shot a second-round 68 Friday to take the lead at the rain-delayed $500,000 Greater Milwaukee Open, but Robert Wrenn led a crowd of challengers threatening to overtake him when play was suspended by darkness.

Ziegler began the day by finishing his rain-delayed first round in 8-under-par 64, then added a 68 for a 36-hole score of 12-under 132 and a 4-stroke lead over those who completed their second round Friday.

But when play was suspended at 8:30 p.m. CDT, Wrenn had just completed a string of four birdies to go 12-under par with five holes to play. Nick Price was at 10-under with six holes left.

Two-time U.S. Open winner Andy North and Dan Pohl were at 8-under — North with seven holes left and Pohl with six to go.

Wigington cards ace

TWIN FALLS — Bob Wigington of Twin Falls carded a hole-in-one last week at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

Wigington's ace came on the 183-yard 17th hole, using a 3-iron.

Irish take on Michigan again

By The Associated Press

Defensive back Todd Krumm of Michigan State will play in his fourth game against Notre Dame on Saturday, so he is well acquainted with Fighting Irish flanker Tim Brown.

"I remember in the game (in 1986), Brown beat me on a 50-yard pass," Krumm said. "That took it to our 10-yard line, and they scored. And he ran back a kick for a touchdown."

The Irish won that game 27-10, so Krumm would rather remember last year's contest at East Lansing, Mich. He intercepted two passes, running one back 44 yards for a touchdown, as the Spartans won 20-15.

This year, both teams bring 1-0 records into the contest at South Bend, Ind. In their openers, No. 17 Michigan State beat Southern Cal, and the ninth-ranked Irish defeated Michigan.

"It's a big game, but we don't want to hype it as a season," Krumm said. "We have a tough first five games...."

After Notre Dame, the Spartans play Florida State, Iowa and Michigan.

The rest of the schedule involving ranked teams has Rice at No. 4 Louisiana State, Oregon at No. 5 Ohio State, Memphis State at No. 7 Florida State, No. 18 Georgia at No. 8 Clemson, No. 10 Washington at Texas A&M, Florida versus No. 11 Alabama at Birmingham, Tulsa at No. 12 Arkansas, Fresno State at No. 13 UCLA, Pacific at No. 15 Arizona State, Temple at No. 16 Pitt, Washington State at No. 19 Michigan and Cincinnati at No. 20 Penn State.

The top three teams in The Associated Press poll — Oklahoma, Nebraska and Auburn — are idle.

Also, Boston College is at Southern Cal in a nationally televised game Saturday.

College football

Rice at No. 4 LSU

Rice locks up one of the best quarterback-receiver tandems in college when it plays 2-0 Louisiana State. Sophomore quarterback Tom Hodson is ranked eighth in the country in passing efficiency, while LSU wide receiver Wendell Davis has caught 12 passes already this year.

"We don't have anybody to hang in there with Wendell Davis," Rice Coach Jerry Berndt said. The best thing Berndt could say about the matchup was: "We like our fullbacks, but their fullbacks are better than our fullbacks."

Rice is led by quarterback Quentin Roper.

LSU defeated Texas A&M 17-3 to open its season and beat Fullerton State 56-12 last week.

Oregon at No. 5 Ohio St.

Ohio State's defense held West Virginia to three downs or fewer on 13 of the Mountaineers' 17 possessions in a 24-3 victory last Saturday, but Buckeyes Coach Earle Bruce was dissatisfied with his offense. Ohio State totaled 213 yards offense, only 63 on the ground, in the season-opening victory.

"I understand Earle's a little upset with his troops and has been banging them around this week," said Oregon Coach Rich Brooks said. "I guess he wants to take it out on the poor old Ducks."

Chris Spielman had two interceptions for the Buckeyes last Saturday, and Ohio State forced eight Virginia turnovers.

Memphis St. at No. 7 Florida St.

Florida State, 2-0, starts a rough three-week stretch that begins with Memphis State and also includes Michigan State and Miami.

"These next three games will tell us a lot about what kind of team we've got," said Bowden. "I'm looking forward to it."

The Seminoles have averaged 42 points a game in their first two victories, and tailback Sammie Smith and quarterback Danny McManus led an offense that has averaged 527 yards.

Smith missed the season opener with a knee injury but gained 244 yards on 19 carries in a 44-3 rout of East Carolina in the second game.

No. 18 Georgia at No. 8 Clemson

Clemson is a five-point favorite to beat Georgia for the second straight season, something it hasn't done since 1905-06. The Tigers won 31-28 last year on David Treadwell's 46-yard field goal on the final play of the game.

Both teams are 2-0, but Clemson Coach Danny Ford admitted that being 2-1 after Saturday would not mark an end to the Tigers' season.

"It's not terminal," he said. "It's not death. I know it will be bad for the loser, but there are eight other games to go."

Georgia leads the series, which started in 1897, 36-16-1.

No. 10 Washington at Texas A&M

The Huskies, 2-0 after relatively easy victories over Stanford and Purdue, face a tougher test this weekend, and without No. 1 free safety Darryl Hall. Hall sustained a slight shoulder separation against Purdue, and he becomes the third Washington defensive back to fail to injury this season.

Coach Don James said Hall would be replaced by senior David Toy, a converted tailback.

Texas A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill nonetheless is worried about the Huskies, especially their size.

"Washington may be the biggest team, physically, that we play all year," he said.

Exports fuel economy's gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew at a moderate 2.5 percent rate in the spring as the biggest surge in export sales in seven years helped lift the fortunes of American manufacturers, the government reported Friday.

The Commerce Department report on the increase in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, showed an economy growing even faster than previously thought during the April-June quarter.

Economists noted much of the strength was concentrated in an upturn in manufacturing, a sector depressed for two years by stiff foreign competition.

The rise in exports was accompanied by a turnaround in business investment, which jumped by 11.7 percent in the spring, the biggest increase in two years.

The new 2.5 percent GNP growth figure was an upward revision from a month ago, when the government had put growth at a 2.3 percent rate.

The new report also scaled back the increase in inflation during the spring, showing a price index tied to the GNP rising at an annual rate of 4.1 percent, down from an earlier estimate that prices were rising 4.3 percent.

This report presents a more solid picture of the economy in the second quarter than before. We had better growth and lower inflation and that is the best kind of news to have," said Allen Sinai, chief economist of Shearson Lehman Brothers of New York.

For the first six months of the year, the GNP grew at a rate of 3.6 percent, up sharply from economic growth in all of 1986 of 2.9 percent which had been the weakest performance since the end of the 1981-82 recession.

The administration predicts the economy will expand 3.2 percent this year. With the strong performance in the first six months, the GNP will only have to average 3 percent growth through the end of the year to reach that goal.

"We have a surprisingly strong economic momentum right now. For the fifth year of an economic expansion, this is not bad at all," said David Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer in New York.

The current recovery is already tied as the longest peacetime expansion in history. In October, it will break the record of 58 months set by the 1975-80 upturn.

In a second report Friday, the government said corporate profits after taxes rose 4.3 percent in the second quarter after falling 3.7 percent in the first three months of the year. It was the best showing for after-tax profits since a 6.5 percent increase in the third quarter of last year.

The 2.5 percent GNP growth rate in the spring was down from a 4.4 percent rate in the January-March quarter. However, economists said the overall balance of growth was much healthier in the spring.

Virtually all of the strength in the first three months of the year came from a huge rise in business inventories, which was occurring while consumer spending was posting a rare decline.

In the spring, consumer spending and business investment rebounded while the nation's trade deficit improved for the third consecutive quarter, something that has not happened since mid-1980.

The GNP trade figures measure the volume of trade after removing the effects of inflation. This trade measure has been showing steady improvement since mid-1986 even as trade in current-dollar terms has been getting worse as the weaker dollar has driven import prices up.

Imports were up 11.1 percent in the spring in volume terms, due in large part to higher oil shipments, the GNP report said, but this was offset by the 17.9 percent rise in exports.

Last week, the government reported the monthly merchandise trade deficit, which does not remove the impact of inflation, soared to a record $16.5 billion in July. The administration is concerned publicity about the rising current-dollar deficit will boost demands for new import barriers in the trade legislation being worked out in Congress.

The GNP report said spending for residential housing posted a 2.8 percent decline in the second quarter after a 7.7 percent fall in the first quarter. This weakness has been blamed on rising mortgage rates and the adverse impact on apartment construction from the new tax laws which eliminated various real estate investment benefits.

The various changes left GNP at $3.8 trillion, after adjusting for inflation, in the second quarter.

Wall Street drifts through uneventful 'witching hour'

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly Friday, drifting through an uneventful "triple witching hour" session.

But the drop, however modest, capped off a week in which the Dow Jones industrial average posted its largest point loss in more than a year.

Dow Jones' average of 30 blue chips slipped 3.26 to 2,624.64, extending its decline for the week to 84.10 points. That stood as its biggest weekly point decline since it fell a record 141.03 Sept. 8-12 of last year.

others continued to be settled at the close.

Program traders closing out multiple positions in the contracts and the stocks that make up the indexes appeared to exert some upward pressure on stock prices at the outset.

In late trading, by contrast, what order imbalances showed up in reports by the Big Board were on the sell side. Prices held relatively steady, however, and overall volume wound up far below the activity seen in some past witching-hour sessions.

Brokers said the combination of the staggered settlements and close regulatory scrutiny of the markets at the witching hour apparently has put a damper on these once-frenzied occasions.

Wynn's International jumped 9 1/2 to 28 1/2 after the company received a $27.25 million takeover proposal from an investor group.

Among actively traded blue chips, Exxon rose 1/4 to 46, and General Electric picked up 1/4 to 59 1/2, while International Business Machines dropped 2 1/2 to 155 1/2.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by nearly 4 to 3 in the daily tally on the NYSE, with 672 up, 883 down and 438 unchanged. The exchange's composite index slipped 12 to 176.36.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 21.85 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell .02 to 368.04, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down .01 at 314.86.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market fell 11 to 460.65. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 363.66, up 1.05.

Put your family in a SUBARU.

GL 4WD Wagon

With a comfortable, roomy interior and rear-door child safety locks, an "On Demand"™ 4-wheel-drive transmission Subaru is the place for your family to be.

- 4-wheel-drive automatic transmission makes all-weather traction convenient and easy to handle
- 4-cylinder, horizontally opposed engine provides plenty of power to move heavy loads
- Power rack-and-pinion steering and power-assisted front disc brakes make the driving easier
- Fully independent suspension with front MacPherson struts and stabilizer bar
- Dual outside mirrors with electric remote control
- 4-speaker ETR AM/FM stereo, tinted glass and soft-grip, tilt steering wheel
- Cargo area cover and electric rear-window defogger

With up to 70.3 cubic feet of cargo space and tough 4-wheel-drive traction, this wagon is a work-horse, too. See yours today.
