California quake leaves 6 dead, scores hurt

Concrete slab lies at site of fatality on college campus

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A severe earthquake and 16 strong aftershocks rambled across Southern California on Thursday, destroying buildings, damaging hundreds of houses, closing freeways and setting off dozens of fires.

At least six people were killed and more than 160 injured. The U.S. Geological Survey said the quake registered 6.1 on the Richter scale, making it the strongest to hit the Los Angeles area since the 6.4 Sylmar quake of 1971 that killed 64 people.

The tremor sent thousands into the streets as buildings were temporarily evacuated amid widespread power outages. Landmark buildings dating to Spanish colonial times were damaged, shattered glass and other debris rained into the street shopping center fire rose south of the downtown area.

Damage was worst in Whittier, the closest suburban area to the epicenter. The quake destroyed 30 downtown buildings, mostly businesses, said J. Sonny Morkus, Whittier's emergency services coordinator. Marsha Andersen, a spokeswoman for Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital, said 50 to 60 people were treated for injuries. The quake hit at 8:42 a.m. EDT and lasted 16 to 30 seconds, depending on nearness to the epicenter, which was about seven miles south-southeast of Pasadena at the north end of the Whittier-Elsinore Fault. At least 16 aftershocks measuring 3 or more on the Richter scale followed by late afternoon, and more were expected.

Based on its location, scientists are calling Thursday's quake the Whittier Narrows earthquake, said Clarence Allen, professor of geology and geophysics at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena. In Whittier's older residential neighborhoods, porches collapsed onto lawns, chimneys toppled, windows were shattered and most residents sat outside on chairs, afraid to return inside.

"The houses up here in the hills are all a mess," said Denise Huff, 33, of a Whittier, whose ceiling caved in. "I'm from Ohio, and I'm going back."

Police Officer Mike Willis said the uptown area in the city of 71,000 "suffered considerable damage. It's been closed off."

Mayor Gene H. Chandler declared a state of emergency and two shelters were established for people to stay overnight. By midafternoon, about 100 people had asked to stay in them.

A trip through the city showed hundreds of buildings and houses sustained at least some damage, including at least one collapsed roof.

The nearby Whittier Narrows Dam apparently escaped structural damage. In Compton, 12 miles southwest of the epicenter, spokeswoman Andrea Guy said "major and minor structural damage" was apparently widespread. City Hall was closed after a woman was hit in the head by a chunk of ceiling plaster.

The quake was felt as far away as Las Vegas, Nev., 250 miles to the northeast. It knocked dishes off shelves in the Victor Valley, 70 miles to the northeast, and shook the ground in El Cajon, in San Diego County to the south. In downtown Los Angeles, thousands left swaying buildings as elevators became stuck as power was knocked out for nearly an hour. "All at once there was a whoosh of wind, and I walked over to a brick wall until everything stopped shaking," said Gerald Livezey, a security guard at one downtown building. "Everyone was coming out ... circulating, not knowing what to do."

"This one scared me," he said. "I was outside, and I mean it was really shaking. I thought it was the biggie. I thought there wasn't going to be anything left."

After almost a year, relative calm ends with Thursday's severe jolt

The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — The severe earthquake that struck Los Angeles on Thursday ended the longest period of relative calm in Southern California since record-keeping started in 1932, geologists said.

Until Thursday, 11 months had passed without any earthquakes of magnitude 4 or greater on the Richter scale, said Lucile Jones, a geophysicist with the U.S. Geological Survey.

"We were in fact commenting about this yesterday, over coffee," she said during a press conference at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

Quakes of magnitude 4 normally occur an average of once a month, Jones said.

Immediately after the earthquake, there was a one in 20 chance that a second, comparable or larger quake would strike, Jones said. The risk of a second quake will remain higher than normal for several days, she said.

But the risk drops rapidly, so that if the second-quake has not occurred by Friday morning there will be only one chance in 100 that it will occur.

More than a dozen aftershocks measuring at least three on the Richter scale followed during the four hours after the earthquake, Caltech scientists reported.

The three strongest aftershocks followed within a few minutes of the initial quake at 7:42 a.m. PDT. An aftershock measuring 4.1 occurred at 7:45, a 4.2 quake followed at 7:49 and a third of magnitude 4.4 struck at 8:12, said Kate Hutton a Caltech seismologist.

"Everything we see in this after-shock series is normal for an earthquake of this size," said Clarence Allen, professor of geology and geophysics at the California Institute of Technology.

Jones noted that even though Southern California as a whole had been relatively quiet for the preceding 11 months, Los Angeles itself was slightly more active than usual, with a larger than normal number of quakes measuring between 3 and 4 on the Richter scale. Thursday's earthquake, rated at 6.1 by the U.S. Geological Survey's earthquake information center in Golden, Colo., was the third largest earthquake to strike Los Angeles in 50 years.

In 1971, the San Fernando or Sylmar quake was measured at 6.4, and in Long Beach in 1933, an earthquake with a magnitude of 6.3 was recorded, Caltech researchers said.

Geophysicists generally agree that there is a 50-50 chance that an earthquake measuring 8 or more will occur on the San Andreas fault sometime in the next 30 to 50 years. Thursday's earthquake was closer to downtown Los Angeles than any other large earthquake, researchers said.

Unlike earthquakes on California's infamous San Andreas fault, in which one piece of ground moves sideways past land on the other side of the fault, Thursday's tremor occurred on a strand of the Whittier fault, which is primarily a thrust fault. That means the land on one side of the fault moves up and over land on the other side of it. • See FAULT on Page A2

Key GOP senator goes against Bork

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Bork's Supreme Court chances were dealt a severe setback Thursday when a key Republican senator joined three formerly undecided Southern Democrats in declaring opposition to President Reagan's nominee.

Reagan, far from giving up, said, "I'm working my head off to make sure that we don't lose it."

He said he saw Bork during the day and did not discuss withdrawing the nomination of the federal appeals court judge.

"I'm spending my time working as hard as I can to see that he gets confirmed as he should be," Reagan said. He commented as he left the White House to visit FBI Director-designate William Sessions, who was at a Washington hospital suffering from a bleeding ulcer.

The latest blows to the embattled Bork came when Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, a key Republican moderate, joined three previously undecided Southern Democrats in announcing they will vote to reject the nomination.

Asked about Specter, Reagan said, "Why, naturally I am going to try to change his mind."

Specter said in a speech on the Senate floor that he was not swayed by a face-to-face meeting with Bork on Wednesday or by concerns of loyalty to party and to Reagan.

"I shall vote against Judge Bork ... because I believe there is substantial doubt as to how he would apply fundamental principles of constitutional law," said Specter, whose vote had been courted by both sides.

"This is a difficult vote since I will be opposing my president, my party and a man of powerful intellect whom I respect and like," Specter said.

He said his objections were the same that he raised repeatedly during Bork's confirmation hearings: the nominee's positions on whether the 14th Amendment guarantees equal protection of the law to women, and on the limitations of freedom of speech.

Word of Specter's decision leaked out earlier after he did not appear • See BORK on Page A2

Burglars add to list of couple's worries

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — A worried couple keeping vigil here for their baby son, who was critically ill after two liver transplants and 13 other operations, faced replacing most of their possessions after burglars ransacked their Iowa home.

"They even took the baby's stroller — it was new, he'd never used it," said the 13-month-old boy's mother, Deanna Foster.

Burglars smashed through a plate-glass window in the dining room of their Des Moines home on Wednesday and took a television, a videocassette recorder, a microwave oven and her husband's only suit, police and Mrs. Foster said.

"They dumped out the dresser drawers — they took all his work clothes and his jeans," she said. Her husband, Bill, 24, is an unemployed steel construction worker, she said.

The baby, Hugh, and some Christmas presents for the Foster's 3 1/2-year-old daughter, Amanda, also were stolen, said Mrs. Foster, 22, who also is unemployed.

"We haven't even been home to look at it — it's a small worry, compared to the rest," she said.

A fund was set up Thursday at the Brenton Bank in Urbandale, Iowa, to help the family recover its losses.

The break-in occurred while they kept vigil for their son, Kyle, following his second liver transplant, Mrs. Foster said.

The child was to undergo additional surgery Thursday to help him breathe and eat, hospital officials said.

Since July 14, when the baby underwent his first transplant at the University of Chicago's Wyley Children's Hospital, the Fosters have spent most of their time at a nearby hotel for parents of hospitalized children.

Foster said he has occasionally made the 330-mile drive home for overnight visits with their daughter, who stays with relatives. Kyle, suffering from biliary atresia, a degenerative liver disease, last week he was stricken with a serious infection, and was listed Thursday in critical but stable condition, hospital spokeswoman Gretchen Flock said.

Deal ends Pentagon budget stalemate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate, refusing to kill a proposal ordering President Reagan to observe the SALT II nuclear arms treaty, finally broke a partisan political stalemate Thursday and headed toward completion of a huge Pentagon budget bill.

Under terms of a deal announced late Thursday, Senate Democrats will drop plans to push immediately for a vote on a measure giving Congress veto power over Reagan's Persian Gulf policy.

In return, Senate Republicans will drop efforts to block a final vote on the SALT II fight. Democrats have been critical of Reagan's policies on both issues, while Republicans have strongly opposed the efforts by the Democratic majority to limit Reagan's policies.

The agreement announced by Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., means the Senate will probably vote Friday for final passage of the bill.

"It is not our desire to delay further action on the Defense Department bill," Byrd explained. "Earlier, the Senate by a 55-44 tally rejected a move to table, and thus kill, the Democratic-backed SALT II amendment. But Republicans at the time were considering a filibuster that could have blocked a final vote on both the SALT II fight and the defense bill."

The chamber turned to the SALT II issue after majority Democrats who control the chamber temporarily gave up efforts to force a decisive vote on Reagan's policy of providing Navy escorts in the Persian Gulf to 11 Kuwaiti tankers flying the U.S. flag.

The Senate has spent the past three weeks debating and voting on the $302 billion Pentagon spending plan for the fiscal year that began Thursday.

But Democrats, holding a 54-46 margin, have been unable to block Republican delaying tactics. Republicans filibustered for four months to keep the bill off the agenda because they were opposed to Democratic-written "Star Wars" restrictions, and have since threatened to filibuster on other issues.

Late Thursday, the Senate refused twice to invoke cloture, which is the parliamentary device needed to end filibusters.

five people were arrested for looting in various parts of the city where windows were shattered. Police spokesman Lt. Dan Cooke said a special anti-looting squad was working downtown and the entire department was on alert, working 12-hour shifts.

Los Angeles officials said that within the city there were at least 40 injuries and three deaths. County coroner's spokesman Bob Dambacher identified the dead as Lupe Expósito, 21, of San Gabriel, who was killed by the collapse of a wall of a parking structure at California State University and James Herndon, 32, who died of injuries in a fall from the second-floor window of his apartment in suburban Maywood.

Although Los Angeles and Orange county coroner officials noted that heart attack deaths occur every day and Thursday's deaths were about normal, three heart attack deaths were officially attributed to the earthquake.

Dambacher said Robert Reilly, 69, died during the evacuation of a high-rise building, and a 72-year-old woman who was distraught over damage to her apartment died in the city of Bell. A 20-year-old overweight woman died of an apparent heart attack in Covina, said L. Shelton, a coroner's spokesman.

In Irvine, a terrified 69-year-old woman died of a heart attack as her

In Eaton Canyon in the San Gabriel Mountains, Antonio Berni, 40, of Hemet, was killed when he was buried under seven feet of earth 35 feet into a tunnel under construction. Pasadena Fire Battalion Chief Duncan Baird said.

The Los Angeles city fire department had responded to 67 natural gas leaks, 36 structural fires, 41 heart attacks and 21 elevators with people stuck in them, and 36 traffic accidents, said Fire Chief Don Manning.

"There are lots of cracks in buildings," Los Angeles Police Lt. Larry Townsend said. "The LA Times building had a big window that was shattered but no one was hit. There is glass everywhere."

"Overall, I think we escaped a major catastrophe, and I'm sure we're grateful for that," said Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley. In many cases, life quickly returned to normal, but in others the after-effects lingered.

A fire erupted at a small shopping mall two miles southwest of downtown, with smoke and flames coming out of at least seven in a row of 15 stores.

The two major electric utilities, Southern California Edison and the Department of Water and Power, reported major outages right after the quake, totaling 584,380 customers. Most power was restored by 5 p.m., but Edison suffered at least $2 million in damage.

for a meeting involving Judiciary Committee Republicans. White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker and Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

Asked why Specter was not present, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole said, "I think he's going to vote against Judge Bork."

"We would like to have had him but this doesn't change the overall strategy," Dole said.

Earlier Thursday in a rapid flurry of anti-Bork announcements, Sen. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, David Pryor of Arkansas and J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana gave speeches attacking Bork's record — with Johnston declaring Bork's defeat in a Senate confirmation vote inevitable.

Senate Democratic whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif. said he now counts 60 senators likely to vote against Bork. By his head count, that would leave 40 supporting the nomination and 10 undecided.

"I think there's an inevitability to this vote," said three-term Sen. Johnston, who is opposing the conservative jurist even though describing himself as "very conservative."

the fault.

In the case of Thursday's quake, a block of land on the north side of the Whittier fault moved up and over land to the south, as process that is building the Whittier Hills, Allen said.

"This is one more tiny part in building the Whittier Hills, Allen said.

Allen said the Whittier fault starts where it intersects the Elsinore fault in east Yorba Linda and stretches about 30 miles northwest to beneath where Thursday's quake was centered.

At that end, the fault is not a single crack under ground, but branches into a series of cracks or strands, Allen said, adding that scientists still aren't sure on exactly which strand the quake occurred.

The San Andreas fault system is formed by two great plates of the earth's crust moving past each other. The Whittier fault is only one relatively minor fault in that system.

tration hopes in the South, Reagan and pro-Bork senators showed no signs of giving up — although Senate GOP Whip Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., admitted he had listed Johnston as undecided.

Justice Department spokesman Terry Eastland said the administration privately had written off the votes of Pryor and Sanford beforehand.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a Judiciary Committee member, said it was obvious Bork's opponents were mounting "an orchestrated campaign" of announcements against his nomination in an attempt to get a steamroller going. Frankly, some of us are a little irritated about it."

Iran trade embargo advances another step

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House Ways and Means Committee on Thursday approved a bill that would ban importation of all Iranian products into the United States.

The bill, almost identical to one that was passed unanimously by the Senate earlier this week, was approved by the panel during a closed-door session. Committee aides said the measure, sponsored by Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and Rep. John Duncan of Tennessee, would ban Iranian exports, is likely to be considered by the House next week.

Action on the legislation came in the wake of a report that Iran has become the second-largest foreign supplier of oil to the United States.

Oil accounts for the largest portion of the $600 million to $600 million worth of imports that Iran has been shipping to the United States in recent years, and the figure is approaching $1 billion this year.

The provision of this hard currency to Iran increases its ability to procure mines, Silkorm missiles and other armaments from foreign sources, thereby increasing its ability to sustain and escalate the war with Iraq and other irresponsible nations, such as mine-loving, the House bill says.

"In light of Iranian policy and actions in the Iran-Iraq war and in the Persian Gulf, it is not in the best interest of the United States to practice 'business as usual' with Iran," it adds.

Under the legislation, President Reagan could delay the prohibition against Iranian imports for up to 180 days if he determines the ban is not in the overall interest of the United States. He would have to submit to Congress a written report explaining such a decision and how the national interest would be jeopardized by the embargo.

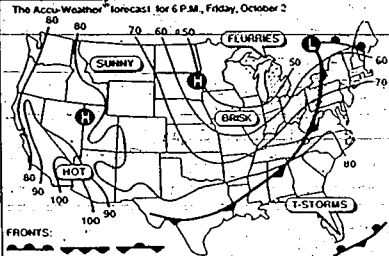

The embargo could be terminated by the president if he reports to Congress that Iran has ceased all belligerent activities in the Persian Gulf area against neutral parties."

Los Angeles garment district workers seek safety in streets during tremor

Residents forget the words of experts, head for streets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Many supposedly quake-wise Southern Californians forgot the experts' advice and scrambled for the streets in Thursday's tremor, and authorities said they can count themselves fortunate more didn't walk into serious trouble.

From the looks of some of the damage, we're pretty lucky there weren't more people hurt," said police spokesman Sgt. Robert Gandy, noting downtown sidewalks were littered with chowers of glass and other debris.

The quake, which measured 6.1 on the Richter scale, killed several people, injured at least 100 and caused widespread but mostly minor damage within a 20-mile radius of the epicenter 10 miles east of downtown.

"Given it was rush hour, it could have been a lot worse," said Officer William Frio, who worked with Gandy at the city's emergency operations center.

Most of the Los Angeles-area working world was riding cars on the sprawling freeway system when the quake hit at 8:42 a.m. MDT.

Historic landmarks suffer harm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Crucifixes fell from altars, statues toppled and adobe walls crumbled as part of Thursday's earthquake damage to landmarks dating back to the days of Spanish rule in Southern California.

Masses and weddings scheduled for the weekend were canceled at historic San Gabriel Mission, near the epicenter of the quake.

The ceiling over the baptismary split, and a carved wooden crucifix dating back to the mission's founding in 1771 fell from the altar, breaking into pieces, said the Rev. Arnold Gonzalez.

A four-foot high stone statue of Father Junipero Serra, founder of California's missions, cracked when it fell to the ground in front of the mission.

The adobe walls of the mission museum fell in places, and large cracks were seen in the mission's bell tower—built to replace one destroyed in an 1812 earthquake, he said.

At the Dominguez Rancho Adobe near Carson, plates, statues and pictures dating from the days of the Spanish pioneers were damaged and sections of the building cracked, said the museum's curator, the Rev. Pat McPolin.

At the Cypress Forest Lawn Cemetery, the quake caused a 10-ton replica of Michelangelo's "Statue of David" to break at the ankles and topple on to the grass. The statue was carved in 1987 by Italian artists from the same marble quarry in Carrara, Italy, that provided the material used by Michelangelo for the original in 1601, said cemetery manager Christina Kilma.

bringing rush hour to a temporary standstill.

White some commuters reported their cars were jolted-off the road, many likened the movement to that of driving over rough pavement or on a flat tire. Some thought at first they were having car trouble.

"Why is my car going this way when I'm turning the other way?" freeway traveler Lorene Yeomans of Temple City asked herself.

"The car in front of mine hit the brakes and drove into the bushes on the side. Everything stopped," Ms. Yeomans said. "I thought something was wrong with my car and I got out to look. Then I felt everything shake and I knew what it was."

Reporters who flew over the scene in a helicopter noted traffic had thinned to lighter-than-normal levels by midmorning, presumably as commuters headed home to check on families and friends.

The aerial view revealed people milling on sidewalks in both business and residential districts, apparently afraid to go inside and anxious to share the experience with neighbors.

In the bluffs of downtown high-rises, each of the many aftershocks started workers toward the exits, precisely the wrong move, according to safety experts.

"I sure noticed a lot of people outside," said Gandy, the police spokesman, repeating oft-heard advice to stay under desks, doorways or other solid sections of buildings, and away from windows that might shatter. "Out there you're susceptible to falling glass and buildings."

The clock of the Los Angeles County Courthouse stopped, marking the time of the quake. At the 18-story City Hall East, one employee reported great confusion, saying authorities were "slow to order evacuation."

"If there was an earthquake plan it did not seem to work," said the man, who declined to be quoted by name.

"No one knew what the plan was," he continued. "Do we stay in the building or leave? They didn't know what they were supposed to do."

The quake hit hardest at the city's older buildings, including some of historical interest. Many had cracked walls and molding broke off the Elks Club in Pasadena, as did facade decorations on other historical buildings in the city.

Despite the havoc elsewhere, it was business as usual at Knott's Berry Farm, where only the stagecoach ride was closed. Spokesman Pamela Baker said animal handlers worried an aftershock might scare the horses.

Universal Studios, which doubles as a working movie lot and a tourist attraction, officials took advantage of the occasion for an early announcement of an earthquake thrill ride set to open in June.

Production schedules were uninterrupted, said Universal spokesman Herb Steinberg, adding, "It wouldn't surprise me if they got some cameras out to get some stock footage of whatever might happen."

King Juan Carlos I and Queen Sofia of Spain planned to continue an official visit uninterrupted, said police Cmdr. George Morrison, who said the royal couple was in their room at the Century Plaza Hotel when the temblor struck.

Choice of path seals woman's fate

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Lupe Exposito's fate was sealed in the instant it took to decide which concrete path to take to safety.

Exposito, a 23-year-old microbiology major at California State University at Los Angeles, dove to the hilly Eastside campus Thursday morning from her home in San Gabriel with her sister, Rosa, 22, and parked in the subterranean level of Parking Lot C, which fills up early, particularly on Tuesday and Thursdays.

Accompanied by a male friend, the sisters left the parking lot and headed toward their 8 o'clock classes.

Then they felt the quake. The friend, whose identity remained undisclosed, darted away on a path that slopes up, to a grassy plaza. The two sisters continued on another path alongside Parking Lot C, leading to the Physical Sciences building.

It was, as any earthquake safety expert would have said with a grimace, a mistake.

Above the women, a slab of concrete along the upper wall of the three-story, 20-year-old parking structure was jarred loose by the force of the earthquake. It plummeted down.

The slab, estimated by workmen as weighing one ton, slammed onto Lupe Exposito, killing her.

Rosa Exposito, walking a few feet away from her sister, was not hit.

"My sister, my sister" is under there!" she screamed as another student led her away from the scene.

George Torres, 19, was walking about 50 feet behind the women when the slab fell.

"I felt the ground shake, I heard people screaming, I saw the rubble coming down," he said. "I looked in front of me and I saw the wall collapsing around the path."

Torres cringed to avoid seeing the slab fall on Exposito. When he looked up, he said, all he could see was part of her arm and her blue book bag. That was enough. He ran for safety.

Ruth Goldway, a university spokeswoman, described Exposito as a popular student who was studying medical technology and was just short of enough credits to begin her senior year.

Another feature for park visitors

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A tram operator at Disneyland treated the earthquake that shook Southern California on Thursday just like an attraction at the amusement park.

As he loaded his passengers into the tram and prepared to deliver them to the Main Street entrance, he said to the crowd: "We've had our earthquake for the day. Now you can go have fun at the park."

The park remained open to its thousands of visitors.

Unrealistic slogans dooming creation of U.S. trade policy

Protectionism is depicted by President Reagan, U.S. economists and editorial writers as a disease from which they are fighting to save the nation.

History presents a different picture. It shows that protecting its valuable industries is essential to a nation's economic success. The nation that takes over desirable industries from nations that do not protect them wins economic advancement; the nation that loses them goes into economic decline.

John M. Culbertson

By taking over leading industries — historically, high-income manufacturing, shipping, international trade and international banking — a nation gains good jobs, higher incomes, new skills and the potential for further economic success.

The nation that loses leading industries loses all these things, loses its capabilities, its future. The ongoing dream of the economic rise and decline of nations thus centers around the control of markets, which determines which nation gets the most desirable industries.

In the current enactment of this drama, Japan and its imitators have risen extraordinarily rapidly, mainly by taking over the U.S. markets for the products of the advanced industries. In the process, they have supplanted U.S. industries and jobs. The United States has lost capabilities and given up prospects for the future. To be an economic success, a nation must engage in lines of production in which high incomes can be earned, and in which skills can be learned, knowledge acquired, momentum gained for further gains.

When a nation's people have shifted from traditional agriculture to manufacturing, they have created economic potential — learning skills that led to other skills, and creating large, rational, functional organizations. By gaining control of the leading industries through market domination, a nation escapes from the foreign competition that otherwise would hold down the incomes its people could earn.

As farmers competing on equal terms with foreign farmers earning poverty-level incomes, Englishmen could earn only poverty-level incomes. But as leaders in manufacturing and trade, ahead of the competition or suppressing the competition, Englishmen could earn high incomes, selling their manufactured goods abroad for favorable prices, and buying their food cheaply from the low-wage farming nations.

The key to England's great economic rise from the 16th to the 19th centuries was gaining control of foreign markets for manufactured goods, while also protecting its home market from foreign takers.

Through a series of tough "protectionist" policies, England raised itself from a small, poor nation to the industrial leadership of the world and a position of economic and political pre-eminence.

Finding it could produce fine wool with sheep originally imported from Spain, England rapidly expanded its wool production, encouraged by Henry I's prohibition against importing Spanish wool.

When foreign textile makers became dependent on its wool, England used that leverage to establish dominance in textiles as well.

England took two steps: It prohibited the exportation of wool, cutting off foreign textile makers from their supply; and it prohibited the importation of foreign cloth, abruptly stimulating textile manufacturing in England and contributing to the collapse of the competing Flemish textile industry.

The notorious navigation acts and other government actions caused a rapid rise in British shipping and foreign trade.

The naval defeat of the then-dominant Dutch permitted the English to become the leader in international shipping and trade. The English used their dominance in textiles and shipping to squeeze out competitors in markets for other manufactured goods.

While protecting their home market, the English propagandized for "free trade" in other nations. By doing so, they were able to take over the foreign country's markets for manufactured goods, under sell and destroy the local manufacturing industries and thus get rid of foreign competitors.

It was said that English secret-service money was used to bribe German writers to support "free trade" — that is, free access to the German market for English manufacturers, who then would under sell and destroy the German manufacturers.

England's economic management of its colonies, of course, assigned the most rewarding industries to England, the others to the colonies. The outcome of this "protectionist" strategy was that by the late 1800s, England was Number One, the cock of the walk, admired and emulated by other nations. Does the pattern sound familiar from recent events? Japan has essentially repeated England's game. But while England raised itself to economic pre-eminence by taking over the markets of a number of countries, Japan's rise was based mainly on its takeover of the American market and the leading industries of the United States.

The United States had little need of foreign markets. Its economic advancement rested on its great home market, which it could easily have protected. In giving away its home market, the world's greatest market, to other nations to support their economic rise, the United States has followed a uniquely self-destructive policy.

Laissez-faire economics claims foreign trade is automatically beneficial to both trading partners. Experience shows that this is not true. England's economic rise was based on patterns of trade that benefited England at the expense of other nations.

The European market for textiles at any time was only so large. When England took over more of it and expanded its output of textiles (and therefore the number of jobs in its textile industry) other countries lost output and jobs. The more of the American automobile market the Japanese took, the less there was for American production — more good jobs for Japanese workers, fewer for American workers.

The nations that have lost the desirable industries of their time have not automatically received other equally desirable industries to replace them. They just went into economic decline.

When the Methuen Treaty of 1703 weakened Portugal's protection of its textile industry, English goods under sold the local product and destroyed the Portuguese industry. Portugal was quickly deindustrialized and has remained deindustrialized to this day.

When the northern Italian towns lost their foreign markets and home market to cheap imports, they dropped from a position of world economic leadership to centuries of economic backwardness.

Experience mocks the ideas that now govern U.S. trade policy — the idea that trade automatically benefits both trading partners, that a nation should not care what industries it loses and what ones it keeps, that the United States should practice "free trade" even though other nations are managing their trade so as to take away its desirable industries and jobs.

The foreign trade of the United States is ruining the nation — as similar patterns of trade ruined other nations in the past. The United States urgently needs to stop passively turning over its market, its desirable industries and jobs, to other nations for their advancement.

The United States should not seek to take advantage of other nations, but should prevent them — and circumstances — from continuing to push the United States down the road to second-class economic status.

To achieve balanced and mutually beneficial foreign trade, the United States needs positive trade policy that limits its exports as required to keep them in line with its exports, and avoids patterns of exports and imports that shift the desirable industries to other countries and leave the United States with the losers.

Such a policy is not necessarily aggressive, narrowly nationalistic or designed to harm other nations' interests. It can lead the world toward a system of balanced, mutually beneficial foreign trade, to replace the rivalrous, unstable, one-sided, one-way benefit, wage-lowering trade that now prevails.

The United States is failing to adopt a trade policy that will protect the nation's interests and reverse its economic decline mainly because of unrealistic ideological stereotypes and slogans.

Both liberals and conservatives have come to depict "free trade" as good and "protectionism" as bad. They have been so mesmerized by these stereotypes as to be blind to the actual pattern of U.S. trade and its effects. Japan and other countries are not afflicted with this blindness.

By persisting in the "free trade" charade and letting its desirable industries and jobs shift abroad — and blaming its problems on other nations — the United States will doom itself to continued economic decline and to worsening political problems.

Such a decline will ultimately darken the prospects of a civilized world order.

Close vote saddens church pastor in Filer

Regarding comments made by George Beardly, owner of a Filer tavern.

I am sorry Mr. Beardly was not aware I was opposed to the issue of liquor sales in Filer. I have not made a practice of entering his place of business. However, it has been my sad duty to have visited his establishment for the purpose of assisting an alcoholic who had assured me of his desire to break his alcoholic habit and needed the help of someone who would hold him responsible.

I, too, am saddened by the close vote in Filer for I had been making known the evils of alcoholism and was certain many more were in opposition to the measure.

I realize there are many who hold to the cliches "you cannot legislate morality" and that Filer is "behind the times." However, that is not reason to open the doors even wider for spreading the use of harmful chemicals to our mind and bodies. Temptation and sin abound but there is no reason to yield to these.

Mr. Beardly, I do not consider you my enemy, but rather a sin. I do pray for you and for those who as of yet, do not know Jesus Christ as Lord and savior. My love to be known to you.

A defense is offered for veterans' officer

In reference to Mrs. Margaret Astrot's letter to the editor dated Sept. 30, 1987, your remarks are noted and any response I suppose is better than none. However, you failed to include dates so there's a possibility that your accusation could involve me, therefore, I must defend the position of the volunteer service officer.

We are not salaried county "officials" but volunteers who must double up on responsibilities because there are so few of us. When the hall was not manned, it was for the following reasons:

- 1. Military funerals. (Always taken precedence)
- 2. Transporting patients to V.A. Medical Center in Boise.
- 3. Attending service officer's conferences.
- 4. House calls to housebound widows and veterans.

5. Service work in other towns and with the DAV van.

In your letter, you stated that your husband was a World War II veteran. Since we are so short handed and both you and your husband qualify as volunteers, perhaps you could assist us in such functions as military funerals, and as drivers for patients to the V.A. Medical Center. I'm in the book. Call me and I'll sure assist you in obtaining the necessary information. Then perhaps I could devote more time to better serve you.

The issue here is not volunteer service, but of the hiring of a non-veteran to fill the position of county veterans service officer and that being placed in the umbrella of welfare services.

The bottom line here is, however, with all this support offered to Felton, why did you attempt to contact the volunteer in the first place? Thank you for your support.

Schroeder true to herself in not running

BOSTON — Pat Schroeder stood at the podium in Denver, right above the poster that read, "She wins, we win."

Then, for the first time since 1972, when her first campaign for Congress unfolded like the plot of a Frank Capra film, this winner backed away from a fight. No, she wouldn't run for President.

Over the long summer months, Pat Schroeder had her own "rendezvous with reality." She had become, in the words of a Time pollster, the candidate people were most likely to buy a used car from.

But she was not the candidate they were most likely to sign a check for. In June she had said, "No dough, no go." In September there was not enough dough.

But it wasn't just money that stumped and stopped the senior woman in Congress. It was the method of presidential politics. "I could not figure out how to run, and not be separated from those I serve. There must a way, but I could not figure it out."

She couldn't see how to remain Pat Schroeder, the person, and become Pat Schroeder, the successful candidate for President of the United States.

This is part of the complexity and the humanity, the weakness and the strength of this woman from Colorado. From the beginning of her career, she has been staying. "Wait a minute, there could be a different kind of politics." She has expressed that difference in many ways, sometimes with independent determination, other times with a flip quirkiness that has won her the label, "Tinkly."

A Phi Kappa Psi lawyer, she still signs letters with a smiley face in her signature. A dogged member of the Armed Services Committee, she once dressed as a Easter bunny to amuse children abroad. All along, Schroeder has consciously tried to play in the same league as the big boys without becoming one of the boys.

As a politician, Schroeder has a recognizably, deliberately female style, more so than most of her colleagues. Her metaphors are those of pots and pans — "the Teflon presidency" — rather than Astroturf. When asked why she runs "as a woman," she fires back,

"What choice do I have?" She draws strength from women and sees them as her "other" constituents. Indeed she shares with many successful women of her generation a special ambivalence: a desire to make it to the top and a deep concern about "how" you make it.

The morning after her announcement, she put it this way. "It's the whole reason I got into politics to begin with. To be different. Do I have to copy the others to win? If copy, what's the reason for the fight? If you're the same and not different, why put the energy into it?"

"Pat has the dilemma of the insider-outsider."

says one of her longtime aides. The insider knows how things are done. The outsider says, "Why?" The insider knew that the candidate for President inevitably becomes isolated from people, traveling in an airborne cocoon from fund-raiser to tarmac television spot. The outsider wanted to reach the top only if she could do it by her grass roots. "If people trust you because you are open and caring and suddenly you're unreachable, isolated like everyone else, what have you done?"

The kind of campaign Schroeder prefers is coffee klatches and pressing flesh and sharing ideas. This people politician said with real pain, "I could not bear to turn every human contact into a photo opportunity. I would shrivel." The political world Schroeder finds most attractive is the one she saw out West. "In Montana, you can go visit the governor. There's no fence around his house. If all politics could be like that, sign me up."

But what she longs for doesn't exist in presidential politics. It may be our loss, but presidential politics is about strategy and organization as much as ideas and character and caring. Heed not television strategies and staff meetings and speech writers. Schroeder couldn't figure out how to do all that her way.

She couldn't be herself, as she defines it, and be a successful candidate. After all, most cannot imagine the leader of the Western world signing letters with smiley faces. Nor can we envision the President of the United States crying in public at personal disappointment. Schroeder's tears were aspirations. They were a human emotional response to an emotional moment. But they were also the tears of someone who was announcing — admitting — she was not in the running for President.

During her non-campaign, "I learned a lot about... Pat Schroeder." I am sure of that. So did the rest of us. We saw a woman whose identity is created out of what other people see as contradictions. We saw a straight-talker with a gift of humor and humanity. The campaign will be a fortress interesting without her.

"I'm me, what can I do?"

But when her fans were chanting "Run, Pat, run," she kept her head on straight. Maybe one of the other things she learned is that not everybody — male or female — can be packaged for the presidency.

"For people who wanted to change my style, I'm sorry," she said with a smile. "I'm me, what can I do?"

In the end, that is why Pat Schroeder, a "different" politician, an invaluable member of Congress, couldn't run for President.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Soviet missile test splashes near Hawaii despite protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite U.S. protests, the Soviet Union conducted two tests this week of a new long-range ballistic missile by targeting an area of the Pacific Ocean about 500 miles north of Hawaii, the Pentagon and State Department said Thursday.

One of the tests was an apparent failure, but the second ended with dummy warheads splashing into the Pacific Ocean closer to U.S. soil than ever before, officials added.

"We protested this," said State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley, explaining the Russians had informed the United States on Sept. 25 through diplomatic channels of their plans.

"We made known to the Soviets through diplomatic channels our serious concern about missile tests being conducted so close to U.S. soil. We note that the Pacific Ocean is a vast expanse and that there is no reason why they could not choose another area for their tests. There is always an element of danger in tests like these."

Fred Hoffman, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, said the Soviets had originally indicated an intent to "bracket" the Hawaiian Islands with their test shots. The Soviets warned ships to stay away from a large trapezoid-shaped target area about 500 miles northwest of Hawaii and from a smaller, circular area only about 360 miles southwest of Hawaii.

If the Soviets had fired a missile toward the second target area, it would have actually flown over the 50th state, Hoffman added.

"We were particularly concerned that based on their announcement that they intended to bracket the Hawaiian Islands from north to south," he said.

"That did not happen, and we do not know whether or not that was a result of our expression of concern. We have never test-flown any ballistic missile in the direction of or over Soviet territory. This would have been unprecedented if the Soviets had done so."

The Soviet shots were harshly criticized by Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., as "a provocation of the worst kind, the most dangerous kind."

"If there had been the slightest miscalculation, then this Soviet test warhead could have landed on a population center in the Hawaiian Islands," he said. "This cannot be excused, cannot be explained, as anything less than a direct threat to our national security."

Hoffman refused to say precisely when the two tests occurred, beyond saying one was on Tuesday afternoon and the other on Wednesday afternoon Hawaiian time.

There is a six-hour time difference between Honolulu and Washington.

The first test, Hoffman continued, "was an apparent failure." The second, Wednesday afternoon-Hawaiian time, appears to have been successful.

"Both missiles, fired from Tyuratam (in the southwestern Soviet Union), carried multiple (dummy) warheads," the spokesman said. "The Soviet Union has announced that this series of tests is over and that shipping can move safely through that area."

The Pentagon spokesman declined to say how close previous Russian tests in the northern Pacific Ocean have come to Hawaii. But he did say the second Soviet test brought a missile down "closer than in the past."

Hoffman said the United States had judged the first test to be unsuccessful because it appeared one of the missile's "post-boost" rocket stages had failed to fire, allowing the dummy warheads to fall short of the expected impact area.

While refusing to go into detail, Hoffman indicated the Soviets were testing an "SS-18-type" missile. Early this year, in its annual assessment of Soviet military power, the Pentagon reported the Soviets had begun flight testing a replacement for the SS-18.

The SS-18 is an intercontinental ballistic missile that forms the backbone of Russia's land-based missile force. The Soviets have deployed 308 SS-18s, each of which is capable of carrying at least 10 nuclear warheads.

The current version of the SS-18 is thought to have a range of roughly 8,800 miles; the follow-on appears designed to carry a larger payload more than 7,000 miles.

Lawn darts rules in works

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Thursday it has voted to take the first step to either regulate or ban lawn darts.

The large, pointed darts, made under several brand names, are tossed toward a ring or hoop on the ground in a game similar to horseshoes. The agency has been investigating the darts after reports of some deaths or injuries among children accidentally struck by them.

The commission said it voted 3-0 to begin a formal rulemaking which would lead to a ban of the darts or could make current voluntary regulations mandatory. The rulemaking is expected to take about 18 months as the agency looks into detailed information involving the darts.

Present regulations allow sale of lawn darts only in places away from toys, in an effort to prevent purchase and use by children. For example, department stores can sell them in their sporting goods sections, not in toy departments.

Commission officials met with makers of the darts in July and developed a voluntary program, which the agency will monitor in determining what sort of mandatory rule to develop.

Sessions suffers ulcers

New FBI appointee falls ill, delays swearing-in ceremony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The swearing-in ceremony for FBI Director-designate William S. Sessions was called off Thursday after the former federal judge, suffering from a previously undiagnosed bleeding ulcer, became ill and fainted in the aisle of a Washington-bound jetliner.

Sessions, whose scheduled installation at FBI headquarters was put off indefinitely, was stricken Wednesday night on a flight from Dallas to Washington National Airport.

President Reagan visited Sessions at the hospital and told reporters: "He's fine." Asked if they discussed the confirmation battle over Judge Robert H. Bork, Reagan replied, "No."

However, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater told reporters later that Sessions had asked the president, "How's everything going with Bork?" The spokesman said Reagan responded "positively," but Fitzwater said he could not remember the president's exact words.

Fitzwater, who was present in the room, said Reagan wished Sessions well and told him, "You look good." Fitzwater said the president spent nine minutes in the room and chatted with Sessions' wife and daughter.

FBI officials accompanying the 57-year-old Sessions drove him from the airport to George Washington University Medical Center, where doctors found a small bleeding ulcer in his small intestine.

Sessions took aspirin on an empty stomach, triggering the on-board attack, Dr. Allen Ginsberg of the hospital staff told a news conference.

Ginsberg said Sessions will be hospitalized two to three days and "should be ready to go to work next week." Sessions, however, may take a rest for a week or more before taking the oath of office, federal law enforcement officials said.

"From a medical standpoint he could be sworn in as early as tomorrow (Friday) or Saturday" and will take medication that will allow him to resume a normal workload by reducing acid secretion in the stomach and allowing the ulcer to heal, said Ginsberg.

Asked whether the ailment would affect his performance as FBI director, Ginsberg replied: "Absolutely not."

FBI spokesman Lane Bonner said Sessions underwent a physical examination as part of the selection process for the FBI post, and the exam did not turn up any indication of ulcers.

Confirmed by the Senate only last Friday, Sessions was told Tuesday by Attorney General Edwin Meese III that he would be sworn in Thursday.

Senate committee approves bill to ban airline smoking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee gave preliminary approval Thursday to a measure that would prevent passengers on most airline flights from smoking cigarettes, a proposal that has pitted health groups against the tobacco and airline industries.

By a 17-12 vote, the panel approved the proposal, which is similar to a prohibition passed by the House in a close vote in July.

Tobacco and airline groups promised to try to kill the legislation on the Senate floor, resorting if necessary to a filibuster, or limitless debate.

The proposal is a provision within the $11.2 billion transportation appropriations bill for the 1988 fiscal year, which began Thursday. The "smoking" bill, said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., who sponsored to approve the bill later Thursday night.

The fact is, it is dangerous to be a passive smoker, to have 65 ft. in that confined space as others are smoking," said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., who sponsored the bill later Thursday night.

Investigators search for clues in death of three crewmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, in investigating this week's crash of a B-1B heavy bomber, is trying to determine why only three of the six crewmen on the plane ejected from the crippled aircraft, officials said Thursday.

The officials, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, said the service is concerned because "at all rights, you would expect at least four survivors because there are four ejection seats."

The plane also had time to gain some altitude," added one source who was involved in the B-1B's development. "That would normally indicate all six had a shot at getting out."

The issue is a particularly sensitive one for the Air Force because when a B-1B carries six men instead of its normal crew of four, two of them are always going to face a more difficult time escaping a damaged plane. The B-1B carries four ejection seats for the four primary crewmen — extra passengers have to bail out through hatches in the plane's belly.

The B-1B that crashed Monday morning on the Colorado prairie was carrying six men because it was on a training flight and instructors were on board.

According to the sources, the three survivors were all sitting in ejection seats.

The plane was attached to the 96th Bombardment Wing at Dyess Air Force Base, Texas, and was practicing low-level attacks at the time of the mishap. It carried no bombs.

According to the Air Force and the Federal Aviation Administration, the crew suffered by radio their plane had ruptured "multiple bird strikes" and that both engines on the plane's right side had been knocked out and at least one set on fire.

Despite the plane's crippled condition, the pilots managed to climb to an estimated altitude of about 15,000 feet — in theory more than high enough to allow safe ejection and parachuting.

The sources said investigators were exploring several questions relating to "crew egress."

They include whether the engine fire produced some type of explosion that put the plane out of control; whether one pilot purposely stayed at the controls in hopes of keeping the plane stable for his two colleagues to bail out; whether one of the ejection seats malfunctioned, and whether the ejection by one of the pilots somehow disabled the other.

There were three pilots on the ill-fated plane — two students and one instructor. Only one, a student sitting in an ejection seat, survived. According to the sources, the second student was sitting in a jump seat behind the other two and would have been expected to parachute out the plane's belly.

That left Maj. James T. Acklin, an instructor pilot and long-time veteran of the B-1 program, sitting in the other ejection seat in the plane's cockpit, said one official.

"And that could explain why two pilots died," said another source. "Jim could have been trying to maintain control for the others to get out. But you can't rule out a malfunctioning seat, either."

"But our investigations do look into every aspect of a flight, and since there was an ejection, it's logical that will be reviewed."

The plane also had time to gain some altitude," added one source who was involved in the B-1B's development. "That would normally indicate all six had a shot at getting out."

President sees more communist influence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House denied Thursday that President Reagan advocates reconstituting the congressional subversives committees of the McCarthy era, even though Reagan suggested there is a growing communist influence in Congress and in the media.

In an interview with The Washington Times, Reagan said he fears people in this country have dropped their guard against communist subversion and said this sort of vigilance has become "unfashionable."

"There is a disinformation campaign, we know, worldwide," the president said, "and that disinformation is very sophisticated and is very successful, including with a great many in the media and the press in America."

Chief spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said that Reagan, a one-time witness before the now-defunct House Committee on Un-American Activities, was "not calling for any new (communist-hunting) organizations. He's just pointing out the historic development of communist influence in America — and some of the manifestations of it."

"I don't think the press corps need feel like their reputation is blackened by this," Fitzwater added.

But he also said that Reagan "believes that the communists have influence through various disinformation techniques and programs and that has influence on the Congress, on the public, on the press, and on everybody."

Questions about Reagan's beliefs were raised at the daily news briefing after the Times on Wednesday published Reagan's interview with its editor-in-chief, Arnaud de Borchgrave.

Studies show seat belts work

ATLANTA (AP) — A new federal study of fatal car crashes has found a marked increase in seat belt use in recent years.

Forty-seven percent of those who walked away unharmed from fatal car crashes last year had been wearing seat belts, while only 17 percent of those killed had buckled up, according to the government's Fatal Accident Reporting System.

In 1985, fewer than 10 percent of the people involved in fatal crashes — whether survivors or victims — were wearing their seat belts, the National Center for Disease Control said Thursday in reporting the new findings.

In fact, among all the passengers in cars involved in fatal crashes, the percentage wearing some sort of restraint more than tripled between 1984 and 1986, from less than 10 percent to 33 percent, the study said.

As seat belt use increases, even the number killed while wearing seat belts will also increase, said Phil Rhodes, a statistical researcher with the Atlanta-based CDC.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that by late 1985, 23 percent of U.S. auto passengers were wearing their seat belts, up 8 percent from the start of 1985. Also in recent years, a number of states have moved to make seat belt use mandatory.

The traffic safety agency estimates that seat belt use cuts traffic deaths by between 40 percent and 50 percent.

Woman, 48, bears triplet grandchildren for her daughter

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A 48-year-old woman gave birth Thursday to her daughter's test-tube triplets, becoming the world's first surrogate mother of her own grandchildren.

Pat Anthony and the triplets, two boys and a girl, were reported doing well after the early morning deliveries by Caesarean section — at Johannesburg's Park Lane Clinic.

The private clinic declined to disclose further details of the highly publicized case. The family sold exclusive rights to the story. South Africa's first surrogate birth — to The Mail on Sunday newspaper of London.

"It was an act of love," Mrs. Anthony's husband, Raymond, was quoted as saying shortly after the pregnancy was announced last spring.

Mrs. Anthony agreed to bear the children of her 25-year-old daughter, Karen Ferreira-Jorge, whose uterus was removed after complications from the birth of her first child, a son, three years ago.

Eggs from Mrs. Ferreira-Jorge were fertilized with sperm from her husband, Alcino, in a laboratory process known as in vitro fertilization. Four eggs were implanted in Mrs. Anthony's womb.

Normally, only one embryo develops in the process, but in this case three of the fertilized ova began growing, resulting in triplets.

The babies, delivered two weeks prematurely, weighed 4.6 pounds, 5 pounds and 2.8 pounds, respectively, said The Star, a Johannesburg daily.

"Legally, I could be your uncle," a cartoon on the front page of The Star showed one triplet telling another.

The South African Press Association quoted an unidentified obstetrician as saying the smallest baby, the girl, was likely to be placed in an incubator until her weight increased. The doctor said Mrs. Anthony remained conscious during the one-hour operation after being given a local anesthetic.

Mrs. Ferreira-Jorge, an aerobics instructor, was present for the birth, the press association said.

Family members and medical staff refused to talk to local reporters. A British television crew clad in green medical outfits filmed the birth, but local reporters and photographers were not allowed access.

Efforts by the Mail on Sunday to maintain exclusive coverage of the story provoked some bitterness on the part of South African papers, which struggled to provide their readers with detailed stories during the pregnancy.

According to The Star, reporters for the Mail-on-Sunday ordered other journalists out of the clinic on Thursday.

South African law makes no provision for surrogate motherhood, and government officials have said Mr. and Mrs. Ferreira-Jorge will have to adopt the triplets in order to make them legally theirs.

The Roman Catholic family lives in the town of Traneeen, 230 miles northeast of Johannesburg. The Vatican has condemned the practice of surrogate parenting and in vitro fertilization.

Pope praises laity at opening of Vatican bishops' synod

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Lay Roman Catholics are just as important as clergy in defending church doctrine, Pope John Paul II declared Thursday as 232 bishops from around the world gathered to discuss the role of laity and women.

"We nourish a profound esteem for our lay brothers and sisters," John Paul said in his homily during a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica that formally opened the monthlong synod.

"We thank the Holy Spirit for all the gifts that have been bestowed on them for the good of the church," the pope said, speaking in Italian. "We wish these gifts ... to shine forth fully and to bear fruit in fullness."

The pontiff called the synod, which meets every three years to advise him on various issues, to examine the role of laity in church and society. Sixty lay people, including 28 women, are attending as observers.

In his homily, the pope did not address any specific issues involving the laity, speaking only in broad terms of their importance to the church and its 850 million followers.

"The interests of our lay brothers and sisters are at the same time our own interests," the pope said, speaking from an altar under Bernini's elaborately-carved bronze canopy.

The service began with a procession of the bishops in cream-colored robes and white miters, followed by the pope carrying his bishop's staff. All kissed the altar. Two lay women read from the Gospels during the ceremony.

The bishops began closed-door sessions Thursday evening with a review by the synod president, Archbishop Jan Schotte of Belgium, and a report on the universal catechism — a teaching code — by Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, head of the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

The pope said in August that assuring women a greater role in church affairs should be a major topic of the synod. But he firmly restated the church's ban on women priests during his tour of the United States in September.

Synod officials said another major issue is the moral obligation of lay Catholics to defend church positions in daily life, including politics. Some Catholic politicians have been put on the spot in dealing with controversial issues such as birth control and abortion.

The officials said two bishops had not arrived for the meeting: Vietnamese Cardinal Joseph Marie Trinh Van Can, archbishop of Hanoi, and Monsignor Jan Hirka of Czechoslovakia.

The pope, in a separate meeting Thursday with Czechoslovakian Cardinal Frantisek Tomasek, deplored what he called the "sad state" of the tightly-controlled Catholic church in Czechoslovakia.

Who wants national Bankruptcy by the year 2000?

MATTHEW L. DEVINE
POLE LINE ROAD EAST - RT. 6 - BOX 516
TWIN FALLS, IDAHO 83301

I am publishing this story of one Federal Department that is a complete non poly and doesn't want anything done now to change it! The Federal Highway Administration.

I have been concerned about the huge Federal deficit and find that no one in the Federal Government is taking any action to substantially reduce it. I made a proposal to do so in 1984. Senator Symms indicated some interest, but had some questions (See Exhibit 1).

These questions were resolved and the current proposal in (Exhibit 2). The Federal Highway Administration also showed some future interest (See Exhibit 3).

Complete opposition to my plan came from Joyce J. Walker in the Executive Office of the President. Where she and Mr. Stockman obtained a copy, I do not know. Several statements in her letter are inaccurate (See Exhibit 4). Several people in the government either ignored my plan or passed the "Buck" to someone down the line.

Well, as President Truman once said, "The Buck Stops Here". So now to the current situation. Steve Symms sent me a letter on Jan. 20, 1987 (See Exhibit 5). Steve had a reply I wrote to him on June 29, 1987 (See Exhibit 6). When no reply came I made a person-to-person call to him. When it was ignored, I called his personal secretary asking when I was going to get a reply to my June 29th letter. She had one of the staff, Chris Sandlund, call me. He called back and said he didn't have any copy of the Senator's letter of Jan. 20th or my letter of June 29th. I told him I thought it was ridiculous to run a Senator's office that in a similar situation in another Senator's office, the staff man was really there to protect the Federal Highway Administration and destroyed my letter when it was received. Loyal Federal employees, but to whom? Well, finally after more follow up, I received "Steve's" letter of Aug. 6, 1987 (See Exhibit 7). He may have been angry about my comments to his staff. If they told him. In any event, he has now become a "States Rights" man. I am also for States Rights, but not when we have such a large Federal Deficit and need the Interstates available for defense of our country.

Now the current situation. I have always been a strong supporter of President Reagan in every matter except the huge Federal Deficit (See Exhibits 8 and 9). Joyce J. Walker, in the Executive Office of the President, may have been responsible for taking the action in sending the letter to me referred to above.

I have always supported my good friend "Steve" until now. He was about 15 years of age when President Eisenhower came to office in 1953, and so probably is not aware that the President started the interstate system as a military project. He knew that the Germans could have won the war with their "Autobahn" used as military roads during the war. He established the Interstate system to protect this country if ever invaded. Why it was turned over to the states instead of the Federal Highway Administration is beyond my comprehension. I guess it was "States Rights" prozura. I am going to publish all this material to reverse that trend and to reduce the Federal Deficit. Since the Interstate system was set up primarily as a military defense project, the Defense Department should also contribute to the reduction of the deficit. That will be discussed in another story about another Federal Monopoly.

I hope I will get the support of everyone who reads this material even though several people in the Federal Government will be upset.

Thanks to everyone who reads it.

Sincerely,

Matthew L. Devino

Dear Matt:

Thank you for your recent letter.

I thank you for reminding me of your proposal that the Federal government sell the interstate system to private industry. I recall our previous discussions on this subject. Issues such as maintenance, extension of the system, interstate regulation, and law enforcement, however, remain difficulties that would still have to be solved.

Thank you again for your views. I will keep your thoughts in mind, as we attempt to deal with the problems of our national highways.

PROPOSAL TO REDUCE THE DEFICIT AND IMPROVE THE OPERATION OF THE INTERSTATE HIGHWAY SYSTEM

HAVE CONGRESS PASS LEGISLATION:

1. Dividing the Interstate Highway System into regions, each with approximately the same traffic volume.
- Exclude sections that run through cities like Los Angeles.

-Stop Federal maintenance and make the City or State maintain them.

-Exclude portions that are under construction, now or later, that can be assigned to the proper Region when completed.

-Exclude Interstates that are toll roads unless they belong to a state.

2. Providing for the sale of each Region to a profit-making system:

-For interstates that are owned by states, cancel all Federal subsidies, including maintenance, to such states refusing to enter the program.

3. Stipulating certain requirements under which each Highway Utility will operate.

-For example, that the Federal Government will take them over in case of a national emergency.

4. Eliminating the Federal highway user fees, including fuel taxes, to help users pay tolls.

5. Requiring states to furnish, and Highway Utilities to use, police protection and law enforcement.

6. Providing the transportation Department the authority to install and supervise the program.

-Charge each Highway Utility for cost of supervision and a fee to construct additions to the system.

BENEFITS

1. The large construction companies would probably be the bidders for a Highway Utility, providing know-how and continuity of work.

2. Tolls could vary depending on volume of traffic or weight loads. (Some roads in Idaho are broken up by excessive loads on 3-trailer trucks).

3. Allow the regions to specify maximum loads.

4. The roads would be better maintained at lower cost to assure maximum use. (Practically all present toll roads and bridges have been successful financially).

5. The present cost to the Federal Government in maintaining the roads would be saved.

6. The income from sale of the interstates and other related savings would be applied against the Federal Deficit.

Dear Mr. Devine:

Thank you for your July 28 letter to Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Hanford Dale concerning the operation of the Interstate Highway System. Your letter was referred to this office for reply.

Your suggestion on the Interstate System is very innovative and a similar concept had been proposed by the Heritage Foundation. As we examine post-1990 legislative and policy options for the Federal-aid highway program, we will assess the full range of possible options including variations on what you propose.

One area that you should be aware of, however, is the method currently used for Federal funding of highways. Federal highway user fees (based on the sale of gasoline, diesel fuel, tires, new trucks and trailers, and an annual use tax on heavy trucks) are dedicated for transportation investment and credited to the Highway Trust Fund. A reduced Federal-aid program, as you suggest, would probably be tied to a reduction in dedicated highway user fees that flow into the Trust Fund not the general fund. The national deficit effects you would hope for would not materialize.

Sincerely yours,

Anthony R. Boas

Mr. Matthew L. Devine

Dear Mr. Devine:

On behalf of Mr. Stockman, I am responding to your July 1 letter regarding your proposal to sell the Interstate System to private industry and terminate Federal liability for interstate construction and repair. In order to reduce the deficit, there are several comments I would like to make in response.

Both the Department of Transportation and the Congress are considering allowing States to use federal grant funds, combined with tolls on new toll highways, to expand the revenues available to meet highway needs. Current law precludes combining Federal-aid with toll financing. The proposal is intended to provide additional revenue for highway construction. Many groups would argue that increasing gas taxes with tolls, as you suggest, would not provide sufficient revenue to meet highway needs.

Sale of the Interstate System, as you propose, could undermine the level of service and completion of the Interstate System. Without uniform Federal standards or a guaranteed funding level, the States would be subject to a wide variety of maintenance standards. The States would also be no assurance that the System could be better maintained at lower cost.

Moreover, sale of the Interstate System does not automatically assure curtailment of Federal-aid, especially since your proposal maintains Federal responsibility for interstate construction. Of the $7.15 billion authorized in 1986 for the Interstate System, more than half ($4 billion) is for completion of construction.

Finally, if your program were enacted, it would not reduce the deficit since Federal interstate spending is financed entirely by user fee revenues which would no longer be collected. The net effect on the deficit would be zero.

The Administration shares your concerns about the deficit and appreciates your search for solutions.

Sincerely,

Joyce J. Walker

Dear Steve,

Please refer to your letter to me of Jan. 27, 1987.

When do you expect the Senate to consider the highway reauthorization bill?

If my proposal to reduce the deficit with a regional federal interstate system were adopted by the Congress, is there any reason why the Congress could not pass a bill to withhold highway funds for any state not joining the system? This would be similar to the recent Supreme Court decision on the minimum drinking age of 21.

What action is to be taken to reduce the huge Federal deficit unless something like the above is done?

I would appreciate your comments on each of the above questions.

Sincerely,

Dear Matt:

Thank you for your recent letter.

The Senate over-rode the President's veto of H.R. 2, the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act on April 2, 1987.

While I wholeheartedly agree that Congress must work to reduce the federal budget deficit, I believe the appropriate method is cutting Congressional spending. Although your suggestions on the interstate system are very interesting, as pointed out in a letter to you from the Federal Highway Administration, highway funds are dedicated solely for transportation investment and credited to the Highway Trust Fund. The trust fund does not effect the federal deficit.

Moreover, Matthew, I am opposed to the federal government "blackmailing" states into conforming with federal mandates by withholding highway funds.

Although you may not agree on these subjects, I certainly appreciate your comments and look forward to hearing from you again.

Jury system gaining on trial backlog

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls County court system playing catch-up has called on 392 people to be prospective jurors under the first legal jury system in almost a decade.

The route to the new system was initiated July 10, in the midst of a legal battle over 21 felony drug indictments from Twin Falls County's first grand jury and the system has nearly caught up on 50 magistrate court trials postponed during July and August.

Kathleen Noh, who was appointed jury commissioner and charged with setting up the new system, says that despite a few problems the new system is working like a charm.

Public Defender Mike Wood led the charge in challenging the county's jury-selection system in early July, charging:

• The county didn't combine driver's license lists with voter registration lists while drawing up the master list of prospective jurors.

• The county hadn't appointed a jury commissioner as required by law to form a jury commission comprised of the commissioner and County Clerk Richard Pence.

• The duties of the jury commission were delegated to Pence's deputies with no clear supervision or responsibility.

• Juror candidates were excused from duty improperly and no record was kept of the reasons they were excused.

Fifth District Judges Daniel Meehl and Daniel Hurlbut agreed, invalidating the 21 drug indictments on July 21.

Noh, charged with creating a new selection system, has switched the selection process over to a computer and has vigorously pursued people who do not return their questionnaires.

The jury selection procedure starts with the selection of a master jury list, formed by combining voter registration lists with driver's license lists.

By doing that, Twin Falls County courts now have about 52,000 names to draw from, compared to just less than 27,000 names before.

But many of those 52,000 names may be duplicates, Noh said, because the computer program isn't advanced enough to throw out duplicates yet.

However, by entering social security numbers, Noh will be able to do that by the end of the year.

From the master jury list, a prescribed number of names is drawn to form the master jury wheel and from that, on request of the court, randomly-selected names are drawn and questionnaires mailed.

Under state law, prospective jurors must respond to those questionnaires within 10 days. In the past, Twin Falls County didn't follow up on non-returned questionnaires, but Noh has vigorously pursued people by using follow-up letters.

Of the 967 questionnaires sent out, 187 people didn't return the questionnaires, but after several follow-up letters, only one prospective juror hasn't given in and responded.

From that list, 550 qualified jurors have been selected and are charged with keeping jury trials going until December, when the process starts over again.

One change Noh has implemented is a formal procedure for postponing service if jurors meet certain legal standards.

"The computer has an uncanny ability to pick the worst month of your life to serve," Noh said. "We can postpone service to a more convenient time."

That postponement can be as far as a year away if a prospective juror has medical problems, prior travel plans, is enrolled in school or has employment

Grand jury ends drugs probe

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls County grand jury, called to look into drug-related cases in the county, concluded its current session Thursday morning but information about possible indictments remains under wraps.

Deputy Twin Falls County Prosecutor Joel Horton said if there are indictments issued, the names of those indicted and the charges cannot be made public until after summonses are issued or arrests made and the indictments are read in court.

The jury was the second ever to be called in Twin Falls County. The first grand jury investigation last June resulted in 21 indictments on drug-related charges but the indictments were dismissed after it was determined in the 5th District Court that an improper jury selection procedure had been followed.

At that time, Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said she planned to continue to pursue the drug cases and planned to bring them before another grand jury.

Horton, who could not say if there were or were not indictments handed down Thursday, said it would probably be several days before any additional information is available.

Jail bonds to go on sale Oct. 29

Commissioner Judy Felton signs the resolution Thursday setting conditions for the $3.8 million bond sale to finance the new jail

Lawsuit impediment removed

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Celebrating with cake, the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners set in motion on Thursday the procedures leading to a $3.8 million bond sale to finance a new jail.

After a five-month delay caused by a lawsuit, the commissioners adopted a resolution setting the conditions of the sale scheduled on Oct. 29. If all goes well, the commissioners could have the money to build by Nov. 20.

"It's nice to get going," Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said. Commissioner Jim Fraley added, "We're real happy. We're finally getting the show on the road."

"I feel great, wonderful," said Tim Obenchain, a member of the committee that provided input into the jail design.

"Now we can get going after all this unnecessary b.a. is done," said Obenchain, referring to the lawsuit filed by Arlo Kent.

Kent, a Twin Falls mechanic and one-time legislative candidate, had challenged the procedure used in the May 12 bond election in a lawsuit he filed shortly after the election.

Kent's lawsuit, filed against Clerk Dick Pence and Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter, was dismissed in July in the 6th District Court. But Kent appealed the dismissal to the Idaho Supreme Court.

The county's bond counsel, Chapman and Culler, said Sait Lake City, finally gave the commissioners the go-ahead to proceed on the bond sale when Kent's appeal was dismissed by the Idaho Supreme Court Sept. 16.

Kent could not be reached for comment on Thursday.

How soon construction will start on the jail has not been decided.

Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said Lombard-Conrad Architects of Boise must complete the final design for the 90-bed, 27,303-square-foot jail which will be built next to the county judicial building.

In anticipation of the bond revenue, the architects were paid about $40,000 from general reserve to start work last summer. But Hempleman said he didn't know how much work remained for the architects before they will be ready to put the project out to bid.

Construction could start in the spring of 1988, Hempleman said.

Prior to the lawsuit, construction had been slated to start in January, weather permitting.

But a construction date wasn't the only thing impacted by the lawsuit delay.

Bud Way of Idaho First National Bank, which is handling the bond sale for the county, said interest rates on the bond repayment in June were at 6 1/2 percent. Now they are a percentage point higher.

He anticipated the bond issue would be highly sought after with competitive rates bid by prospective buyers. In addition, the county could earn higher rates when it reinvests the bond sale revenue until used for construction.

To county residents, the bond will mean a tax increase of about 18 cents per $1,000 value of taxable property for 10 years to repay the bond debt.

In anticipation of the settlement of the litigation, the commissioners decided in August to levy enough taxes this year for a one-year payment, amounting to $150,000.

Before the resolution was adopted, Way outlined the legal intricacies in the notice of sale, which was drafted by the bond counsel and specifies the sale information. The resolution adopted by the commissioners authorized the advertisement of the notice of sale.

The notice states that the bonds will be dated Nov. 1 and issued in denominations of $5,000 or multiples of $5,000.

To prepare for the sale of the general obligation bonds, Way is updating information on the county for potential buyers. Much of the work had already been completed, but the information must be changed to include data on the new fiscal year.

The announcement by Trus Jost Corp. of its intention to locate in the former Kellwood plant will also be added as something "up beat," Way said.

Missing from the celebration was Sheriff Jim Mann, who was out of town on vacation.

With the paperwork out of the way, the commissioners, members of jail committee and staff enjoyed a cake. The writing on the cake said it all.

"New Twin Falls County Jail. It's a go."

County, hospital administrator define mental commitment rules

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Purse strings continue to pull at Twin Falls County officials and a hospital administrator discussing who will undertake mental commitments for people who are neither indigent nor in police custody.

Nevertheless, commitment protocols were better defined by an attorney general's "legal guideline" and later discussions between county commissioners, county prosecutor and the person who requested the guideline, Ken Deibert, administrator of Canyon View Hospital, which cares for the mentally ill.

"I think, at least concerning commitments, we've got it all worked out," said Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter, summing up a meeting with Deibert and two commissioners Tuesday.

In addition to bringing heavy responsibilities for mental commitments into sharper focus, these discussions provided rare insight into the concerns of a private business and its peculiar relationship with government.

Still to be hashed out are Canyon View's billing arrangement for reimbursement from Twin Falls County. And the state Department of Health and Welfare is considering supplying the portion of commitment procedures that became the point of contention between the county and Deibert, the administrator said.

But those concerns are peripheral to nailing down who does what for commitments.

Baxter reiterated during the meeting that her office would handle all commitments — which the state code requires — for people in police custody or who the commissioners declare indigent. But she said her office will pursue commitments outside those bounds only if designated examinations are paid for or donated.

There's the rub. Two designated examinations, in which doctors independently state that a person's mental illness warrants commitment, must precede any commitment. The cost of those examinations, at $40 an hour, and then $100 an hour for the examiner to testify at the commitment hearing, are why Baxter said she decided nearly three years ago that her office would no longer handle all commitments. She estimated her policy saves the county between $500 and $1,000 for each of the six to 10 cases inflicted annually.

H&W employs "the vast majority" of designated examiners in the area, but they all charge for their services, Deibert said. He added that H&W officials are now considering whether to donate examinations in some cases. In any event, Baxter said her decision to stop handling all commitments, as her predecessor had, was rooted in the fact that examinations were no longer paid out of the district court fund. Judges had been in an awkward position because they were paying for something which they also rule on, she said.

"This whole thing arose because (Fifth District Judge) Daniel Hurlbut axed it out of the district court fund," Baxter said.

In a compromise, Baxter said her office would handle commitments when DEA were paid for or donated because her deputies are on salary, so it wouldn't cost the county anything extra.

After studying how other counties handle commitments, Baxter, said some are paid by a court fund, others by family or community service groups. And in Eastern Idaho, where H&W pays for the DEA and then bills the county, "the county stiffens them," Baxter said.

It is that peculiar financial arrangement which enlightens the path toward understanding Canyon View's billing arrangement with the county for indigent patients. The reason for Canyon View's two doctors deciding to simply conduct designated examinations themselves and donate them is also illuminated.

Commission Chairman Judy Felton told Deibert they would have to discuss Canyon View's billings because in some cases they appear high. She suggested they might reach a "contract rate," as Ada Custer pays, of $205 a night per patient for all services provided.

"We feel if we're going to have very many $510 rooms, we're going to have to take another look at it," said Felton, referring to a recent Canyon View bill.

But Deibert said he expected the AIDS: Challis residents hear advice; 2 new cases found

The Associated Press

CHALLIS — As two more Idaho cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome were confirmed, a doctor treating a 4-year-old Challis girl with AIDS said there is good reason for residents of the central Idaho town to be concerned, but no need for panic.

"You have to do something to get it out of your control over here," Dr. Steve Libber, a Sun Valley pediatrician, told a community meeting Wednesday night. "It's a virus, not a plague visited upon a certain segment of the population."

A standing-room-only crowd gathered at Challis High School for the information wake of a report that a local preschooler had contracted the disease after being infected with the AIDS virus through a blood transfusion shortly after her premature birth at a Utah hospital.

State epidemiologist Charles Brokopp, advised residents on the history, transmission and prevention of the deadly disease, said two new cases of AIDS have been found in Idaho since confirmation of the Challis case Sept. 17.

The total now stands at 15 cases statewide. Idaho was the last state in the nation to report a case of AIDS. "One year ago there were five reported cases," he said. "There have been 10 more in the last 12 months. Three to four people have been diagnosed as having AIDS-related complex, and 120 are known to be infected with the virus."

Penelope Street of Ketchum, whose brother was the first Idahoan to die of AIDS, urged Challis residents to be compassionate toward the young victim and her family.

"I helped take care of my brother, and I'm fine, other than the fact that I'm crying right now," she said. "Friends really count. We all just need to watch out for each other."

Brokopp urged parents to educate their children about AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases to help halt their spread.

"The schools aren't talking about AIDS; parents and churches aren't talking about AIDS; but kids are talking and they're scared," he said. "Organizers of the forum were pleased with the turnout, calling it a measure of the community's openness."

"It's heartwarming to think this many people in Custer County want to learn more about AIDS," local public health nurse Wilma Nichols said. "It just shows what a good community this is that when there's a problem, people want to learn more and find out what they can do to help."

Questions from the audience centered on testing for infection with the AIDS virus and the possibility of contracting AIDS through blood transfusions, casual contact with a victim's blood, organ transplants and mosquitoes.

Vicki Gulley of Challis got a round of applause when she summed up the general sentiment of the audience by saying, "You can't get AIDS from hugging a child ... You can't get it by making someone's life a little easier for the time they have left."

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl woman was treated for injuries and released late Wednesday afternoon following a two-vehicle accident at Falls Avenue East and Locust Street.

City police said Lillie Gertrude Messner, 83, of Buhl suffered minor injuries at 4:16 p.m. when her car collided with one driven by Dianne E. Bingham, 32, of Twin Falls.

The police report indicated Messner was southbound on Locust Street and stopped at the stop sign, then drove onto Falls Avenue and into the path of the eastbound Bingham vehicle.

Bingham and her two children, Jay, 12, and K.C., 8, escaped injury.

Bliss man gets sentence

GOODING — A Bliss man has been sentenced to 25 years in prison after being convicted of lewd and lascivious conduct with a 10-year-old girl.

Gooding County Prosecutor Lynn Nelson said Henry William Smith Jr. was sentenced to 25 years when he appeared in 5th Judicial District Court in Gooding before District Judge James May.

In addition, the judge ordered Smith attend a 180-day program for sex offenders. Nelson said Smith could be brought back to court at the end of that time for further consideration of the sentence, but he said at this time there is no indication the prison term would be altered.

Smith was convicted of sexually molesting the child in Bliss during December, 1985 and brought to trial after an extensive investigation by Gooding County sheriff's officers.

LEADVILLE, Colo. (AP) — Two of five miners trapped 800 feet below ground for more than 24 hours were pulled to safety Thursday evening after rescuers cut a passageway through tons of timber, rock and machinery blocking a shaft.

The men were trapped in the Diamond Shaft Mine on Thursday when some machinery being lowered into the gold mine broke loose, sealing the shaft with debris about 85 feet above them.

Donnie Miller emerged from the shaft about 5:30 p.m., wearing bright yellow water-repellent mining clothes. Forty-five minutes later, Orzy Price came out. Both men were taken to a tent to be debriefed by mining company officials.

Both said they wouldn't talk with reporters gathered at the mine until their three companions also were brought to the surface.

The five had miraculously escaped injury in the accident.

Vernon Gomez, district manager of the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration office at Lakewood, said a "sinking bucket," about 36 inches in diameter, was used to carry teams of two men down to work on the debris blockage. It also was used to hoist the men out, he said.

At the mine, Colorado Division of Mines safety officer Joe Nugent told reporters that rescue workers had used air-powered saws to cut away broken timbers that might snag lifts as they were bringing the five out.

The men were trapped in a horizontal drift. Hot coffee, food and blankets were dropped to the men through a small hole in the logjam, and authorities were able to communicate with them by telephone.

The back section of a front-loader, weighing about 6,000 pounds, was being lowered to the workers in the Diamond Shaft Mine when the steel cable sling holding it broke, said mine spokesman Bill Walker.

The machinery crumpled off the sides of the shaft as it fell, knocking timbers and boulders loose. The debris jammed some 35 feet above the 800-foot level drift where the miners were working.

Leadville Corp., owner of the gold and silver five miles east of Leadville, identified the five trapped men as Leonard Wilder, Donny Miller and Sal Mercado, all employees from Leadville; Dean Laroby, a mine equipment technician from Tucson, Ariz.; and Ozzie Pride of Missouri, no hometown available.

Wilder's wife, Carolyn, said the accident occurred on her 50th birthday, as she worked at the Delaware Hotel in Leadville.

"I heard the ambulance go by. I knew when it went off the end of the pavement onto the dirt road (that) there was an accident at the Diamond Mine," she said Thursday.

She said management officials told her the men were safe. She talked to her husband on Wednesday night, and "he said he was all right."

"There is nothing to do but wait. It's a long slow process. I feel like they (management officials) are giving us accurate reports," Mrs. Wilder told reporters.

The company has spent several million dollars attempting to reopen the mine and start production this fall. Mine spokesmen said the status of the mine has now been pushed back indefinitely.

The mine was active until the early 1900s. It was closed shortly after World War II broke out, and mining efforts in the area turned to producing lead and molybdenum.

Leadville, about 70 miles southwest of Denver, is the highest incorporated town in America, at an altitude of about 10,000 feet.

INA letter upsets major newspaper advertisers

BOISE (AP) — Officials at six corporations with major newspaper advertising campaigns in Idaho are angered over a newspaper organization's letter-writing drive aimed at drawing more ads to weekly papers.

The Idaho Newspaper Association launched the strategy with letters to Utah Power & Light Co., Idaho Bank & Trust, First Interstate Bank of Idaho, First Security Bank, Mountain Bell, and the Payette National Forest.

"Essentially what that letter's saying is, 'We newspapers can be bought,'" said UP&L spokesman John Ward from Salt Lake City.

All but one of the letters were written by Bob C. Hall, executive director of the INA. The letter to First Security Bank was written by Hall's daughter, Tomi Grote, co-publisher of The Central Idaho Star-News in McCall.

INA represents 47 of Idaho's 54 weeklies and four of 12 dailies.

The letter complains that advertisers papers are ignored by weekly publishers and Grote and some other INA publishers say they won't run press releases issued by the corporations until they are treated fairly.

In a letter to ID&T President Ted Ellis dated Sept. 15, Hall wrote: "My publishers are now seriously talking about a demonstration of the power of their newspapers, to match your use of your advertising programs to hurt their community position as the major market information center there."

"That really bothers me," Ellis said. "I'm interpreting that he'd start writing articles saying, 'God bless Idaho Bank & Trust because they're not supporting the community.' I look at it as a threat."

Yellowstone truck ban not imposed

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — The Montana Department of Highways will not prohibit or restrict truck traffic on U.S. Highway 191 between West Yellowstone and Bozeman, a state highway official said Wednesday at a public hearing sponsored by the Park Service.

The state does not think truck traffic should be restricted, "based on the fact that there is no unique safety problem with truck traffic that distinguishes U.S. 191 from many other sections of Montana's highways," said Dennis Unsworth, a public information officer for the Department of Highways.

Yellowstone National Park Superintendent Robert Barbee, at a hearing Tuesday night in West Yellowstone, said there will not be an outright ban on commercial truck traffic along U.S. 191. A 22-mile segment of the highway passes through a corner of the park.

A ban "won't be the way we will go," he said. "There will be a rule-making process involved."

A Big-Sky-based citizens' group prompted the hearings after pointing out that Yellowstone Park is not enforcing a federal regulation prohibiting commercial truck traffic in national parks. The last of three hearings was held in Bozeman Wednesday night.

At Wednesday's hearing, Barbee said the state of Montana isn't taking the issue of truck traffic through the park seriously enough.

"The National Park Service thinks the state has a fundamental responsibility on this issue and it ought to move on it," he said.

others targeted, has cut advertising in all media in the past two years. He said he doubted eastern Idaho publishers "would stoop to that."

But Roger Porter, publisher of the largest weekly in eastern Idaho, the Rexburg Standard-Journal, said he will withhold "fluff" press releases from companies that don't pay their fair share for advertising.

"It's not extortion," Porter said.

Barbee said the Park Service hopes to develop a recommendation by Nov. 15. Two weeks ago he said he wanted to involve the state in any final decision because the problems affect the entire road, not just the 22 miles through the park.

"This is an important piece of Yellowstone Park — it is not an appendage sitting out there by itself and it should not be treated as an orphan," said Ed Lewis of the Greater Yellowstone Coalition.

Many others supported restricting truck traffic because of the threat of a toxic waste spill in the Gallatin River.

Trucking interests said rerouting the traffic would cause economic hardship because alternative routes are up to 100 miles longer. Rick Jensen, of Bozeman, said the state has paid to build and maintain the section of road and that if it is restricted, Montana taxpayers should not have to continue paying to maintain it.

"I guess I get irate about people who have come in our state in the past five or six years and now they try to tell us how to run our state," Jensen said.

Libertarians seek spot on '88 ballot

BOISE (AP) — After failing to field a candidate for any office in last fall's election, the Libertarian Party in Idaho has launched a drive to regain a spot of the ballot in 1988.

"We're very confident we can achieve that goal," party spokesman Allen Dalton maintained Thursday in announcing the statewide drive to collect just over 8,200 signatures needed to gain ballot status next year.

"Idaho voters tend to be independent," Dalton said. "Given that, we believe they want the opportunity to look at all the candidates."

The party has until next August to collect signatures of registered voters equal to 7 percent of the total vote in last fall's election for governor, but Dalton was confident the goal could be reached by the end of this year.

The party had put candidates for president, the U.S. Senate and four legislative seats on the 1984 ballot, but the Senate contender, Don Billings, lost a primary to Boise State University, attracting almost 7,400 votes. That was 1.6 percent of the more than 400,000 votes cast for that office, retained by Republican James McClure.

"A lot of people after 1984 were kind of down," he said. "1984 was a pretty poor year for the party, ... and we didn't get our act together at the state party level."

Still, the support given to Billings in the 1984 election, he said, indicated that there was a relatively large segment of the electorate willing to back the anti-big government philosophy of the party.

At least a half dozen people have expressed interest in legislative races. Dalton said, including two former state lawmakers who served in the Legislature as members of other parties during the 1970s.

problems. Another reason is extreme inconvenience due to prior commitment. One example of a prior commitment Noh gave is a mother nursing a baby.

The county has also shortened the time a juror is on call from one month to three months in district court. However, since not all jurors called into a trial actually serve — jurors have to make it through final selection in the courtroom — that doesn't hurt everyone equally or actually spend one month sitting in courtrooms listening to testimony.

Magistrate court has caught up on postponed trials by scheduling jurors every day last week and this week. "Normally, jurors are only scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday," he said.

Helping the catch-up process is the fairly common practice of pleading to charges before trials, plea negotiations and demissals by judges.

Of the 58 trials scheduled since Sept. 1, only seven have actually gone to trial.

"Meanwhile, Noh is busy convincing jurors to keep coming in. 'We work hard to explain things clearly,' Noh said. 'If people will just send questionnaires back, it would save a lot of time and money.'

... to pay only the full reimbursement rate of 80 percent of total charges, despite the full billing. He explained that as a for-profit organization, Canyon View must bill everyone equally or risk everyone paying only the lowest rate charged.

Upon receiving the full bill, the county may then reply — and is expected to reply — by paying only the fractional reimbursement that is informally agreed upon, he said.

"We have two doctors at Canyon View face the same dilemma if they donate services like designated examinations, because some future patient could charge discrimination if their designated examination is not also free, Deibert said.

"You can't, on a blanket basis, say you're not going to charge for this service," Deibert said of for-profit businesses. "The physicians are in the same bind. When you ask them to do that for free, you're asking them to do a lot more than five or 10 designated examinations."

But he did say the company wants to expand its operations into the area for the same reasons. A purchase announced it was closing and expanding its eastern plants.

"This company has a lot of markets here from the Columbia Basin, and suddenly, transportation costs are becoming an issue," Alberdi said.

Alberdi said officials have some prospects for building sites, but they are hoping the news will lure out other potential sites.

Former Idaho congressman George Hansen with his wife Connie after his release

Hansen freed from prison, says political future unhurt

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. George Hansen, released from prison Thursday after serving 11 1/2 months for an ethics law violation, said he did not think his legal troubles would hurt his political future.

"If anything, this has been an opportunity to raise a lot of credibility," Hansen, an Idaho Republican, told reporters after he walked out the gates of the Federal Correctional Institution in Petersburg.

Hansen did not rule out a return to elective office, and said that while he considers such a move, he will do political consulting work, give speeches and write a book about the injustices he said he suffered.

"There's a story that needs to be told, and it'll be out shortly," Hansen said.

Hansen, 57, was sent to prison for violating the federal Ethics in Government Act by failing to report $30,000 in personal loans and profits in commodities transactions as a member of Congress.

He was convicted in 1984 and sentenced to 5-15 months in prison. After his appeals were exhausted, Hansen first entered the Petersburg facility in June 1986, and was paroled last December. He was reimprisoned in April for violating the travel restrictions and financial reporting requirements of his parole.

prison's minimum security section Thursday morning, Hansen was pushing a cart that carried several boxes of notes and personal belongings he had accumulated during his stay. Outside the gates, he had a reunion with his wife, Connie, and then spoke with reporters about his time behind bars.

"The experience is humbling indeed," he said. "This is a disaster area for people's rights."

As a seven-term congressman from Idaho's conservative 2nd District, Hansen fought government agencies such as the Internal Revenue Service, Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Justice Department. He said he will continue to be outspoken, even though he believes his imprisonment was retaliation for his attacks on government.

He was released from prison long enough to testify at a congressional hearing last week in Washington, where he spoke about sanitation problems in prison and the dangers of spreading acquired-immune-deficiency syndrome.

Hansen repeated his allegations Thursday that prisoners are not properly protected from the virus that causes AIDS. Among his concerns were that convicts can contract the virus from sharing used razor blades, and that inmates at Petersburg who are diagnosed as having AIDS are put in an isolation area along with prisoners who are being separated from the general population for disciplinary reasons. He said prison officials should "stop discrimination against those who don't want to catch it and stop discrimination against those who are unfortunate enough to have it."

Jack Atherton, a prison spokesman, said Hansen's concerns had been investigated by three federal agencies, and were found to be without merit.

Hansen, who has been nominated by the Populist Party to run for president, said it was "not outside the realm of possibility that I will seek office. It's not outside the realm of possibility that I won't, either."

He said he expects as many as 600 people to attend a "Hansen Gala" to be hosted by some members of Congress at the Capitol Hill Club on Tuesday. A "Welcome Home George" gathering is planned for Oct. 17 in his home town of Poastello.

Hansen, who had grown a beard after he was reimprisoned to demonstrate his concern for "dirty razor blades, was clean-shaven Thursday. The 6-foot-8 Hansen also said he lost 76 pounds while "behind bars" and now weighs 250 pounds.

Telephone rates close to average

WASHINGTON (AP) — Basic residential telephone service rates offered by Mountain Bell Telephone Co. in Idaho fall generally in line with rates offered in major cities around the nation, according to a new study by the Federal Communications Commission.

The flat-rate service charge for Mountain Bell customers in Boise, Caldwell, Nampa and Idaho Falls as of last April was no higher than $12.43 a month, the study said. That compared to an average of $12.61 a month for all 95 cities surveyed by the FCC. The FCC survey did not include the $2.60 monthly charge all customers in the nation must pay under federal mandate for access to long-distance service. Mountain Bell's two other rate groups in Idaho, determined on the basis of how many local customers can be called toll-free, paid monthly service charges of $11.44 and $10.54.

But while Mountain Bell's flat rate charge has remained unchanged since early 1986, the FCC said the national average charge declined slightly from last fall to this spring. Since the court-ordered break-up of the nationwide Bell telephone network nearly four years ago, Mountain Bell's basic rate has increased 11 percent.

Care center reinspection set for Friday

POCATELLO (AP) — Skyline Healthcare Center, a 121-bed private nursing home facing a Sunday deadline to dramatically improve conditions for its residents, was scheduled to be reinspected by state officials on Friday.

Skyline was threatened with loss of federal funding and revocation of its state operating license as a result of a report issued last month by a team of state nursing home inspectors.

The inspectors, who visited the facility Sept. 14-17, submitted a 35-page report detailing deficiencies in the care provided by the nursing home. They gave Skyline officials until Saturday to correct the problems.

Membership in INA drops, publishers blame director

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Newspaper Association has lost nearly 25 percent of its members since 1985, and some publishers say Executive Director Bob C. Hall is to blame for the decline.

In 1984, all of Idaho's 64 weeklies and 12 dailies were INA members. Now, 61 members remain in the group which accepts advertising for its members and lobbies the Legislature on issues like the sales tax and access to government records.

Legislators seek answer for system

BOISE (AP) — A special legislative committee, seeking major revisions in an Idaho juvenile justice system many believe is a failure, is trying to increase the accountability of juveniles for their offenses while still keeping them out of front behind bars.

"What we need to focus upon is how to deal with offenders and not just put them back in jail," Sen. Gail Bray, D-Boise, said Thursday as the House-Senate panel wrapped up its initial review of legislation to change the way juvenile offenders are handled by the courts.

"What we need to be doing is developing alternatives," Mrs. Bray said.

Although the committee will not make any final decisions on recommended changes until late this year, it has started to coalesce around a scheme that would create a uniform structure for juvenile justice, administered on a regional basis with parents being held to at least some degree responsible for the actions of their children and judges retaining control over offenders after they have been processed through the system.

"We're down now to the tough work," said Sen. Denton Darrington, R-DeLo, co-chairman of the panel, "sorting it all out and developing a plan."

The committee has been reviewing the Utah system, considered a model for juvenile justice nationwide, but Darrington said he believes Idaho can improve on that program without significantly increasing costs to taxpayers.

"We might compel a little better parenting here, and I think that's needed," Darrington said.

In 1985, The Idaho Statesman in Boise withdrew, followed by dailies in Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Nampa, Coeur d'Alene, Sandpoint, Burley and Twin Falls.

Daily newspaper officials cited differing interests with the weeklies and their greater financial burden to support the organization.

In 1986, weeklies in Aberdeen, American Falls, Homedale, Grace, Madras, Montpelier and Preston left the INA.

Another weekly, the Wood River Journal in Hailey, plans to leave the group in January, Publisher Clint Stennett said.

Stennett said he will leave because Hall encouraged the board of directors to side with the Idaho Mountain Express in Ketchum in a dispute over which paper is entitled to the legal advertising for the city of Ketchum.

"Bob Hall is absolutely out of his tree," said Lewis Hower, publisher of the Messenger-Index in Emmett since 1946 and INA president in 1983. "The organization is very much in disarray. We're looking at the loss of an association at all because of Bob Hall."

Hower said he will leave the INA in January if Hall isn't dismissed. "I think the only thing that's going to work is to change the executive director," he said.

Hall, 54, was attending a meeting in Portland and replied in writing to questions posed by The Idaho Statesman about his performance.

"I don't take questions about how I do my job from anybody else. I have no comment about the internal affairs of the INA to a non-member newspaper," said Hall, who has been INA's director since 1981.

Robert Wherry, president of the INA and publisher of the Valley News in Meridian, said the board supports Hall and gave him a two-year contract in July. Hall's base salary is $43,000, Wherry said.

"One thing needs to be very clear. Mr. Hall is not representing the hometown newspapers," said Joe Aman, publisher of The Owyhee Avenger.

"I spent nine years on the board and one year as president and it just makes me sick what's happened to the association," said Aman, who has been a member since 1986.

Hall has defenders, including influential daily publishers and INA members Jay Shelley of the Idahoian in Moscow and A.L. "Butch" Alford Jr. of The Tribune in Lewiston.

"I like Bob personally but he does some crazy things," Shelley said. "He's done some good things. Sometimes he gets carried away."

Hall got carried away, Shelley said, when he pulled a section out of the Statehouse during the 1984 legislative session. Hall removed the section because it contained a column critical of some legislators he was lobbying.

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl woman was treated for injuries and released late Wednesday afternoon following a two-vehicle accident at Falls Avenue East and Locust Street.

City police said Lillie Gertrude Messner, 83, of Buhl suffered minor injuries at 4:16 p.m. when her car collided with one driven by Dianne E. Bingham, 32, of Twin Falls.

The police report indicated Messner was southbound on Locust Street and stopped at the stop sign, then drove onto Falls Avenue and into the path of the eastbound Bingham vehicle.

Bingham and her two children, Jay, 12, and K.C., 8, escaped injury.

Bliss man gets sentence

GOODING — A Bliss man has been sentenced to 25 years in prison after being convicted of lewd and lascivious conduct with a 10-year-old girl.

Gooding County Prosecutor Lynn Nelson said Henry William Smith Jr. was sentenced to 25 years when he appeared in 6th Judicial District Court in Gooding before District Judge James May.

In addition, the judge ordered Smith attend a 180-day program for sex offenders. Nelson said Smith could be brought back into court at the end of that time for further consideration of the sentence but he said at this time there is no indication the prison term would be altered.

Smith was convicted of sexually molesting the child in Bliss during December, 1986 and brought to trial after an extensive investigation by Gooding County sheriff's officers.

LEADVILLE, Colo. (AP) — Two of five miners trapped 800 feet below ground for more than 24 hours were pulled to safety Thursday evening after rescuers cut a passageway through tons of timber, rock and machinery blocking a shaft.

The men were trapped in the Diamond Shaft Mine on Thursday when some machinery being lowered into the gold mine broke loose, sealing the shaft with debris about 35 feet above them.

Donnie Miller emerged from the shaft about 5:30 p.m., wearing bright yellow water-repellent mining clothes. Forty-five minutes later, Ozzy Fried came out. Both men were taken to a hospital to be treated by mining company officials.

Both said they wouldn't talk with reporters gathered at the mine until their three companions also were brought to the surface.

The five had miraculously escaped injury in the accident.

Monon Gomez, district manager of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Administration office at Lakewood, said a "sinking bucket," about 36 inches in diameter, was used to carry teams of two men down to work on the debris blockage. It also was used to hoist the men out, he said.

At the mine, Colorado Division of Mines safety officer Nugent said reporters that rescuers worked hard to break timbers that might snag lifts as they were bringing the five out.

The men were trapped in a horizontal drift. Hot coffee, food and blankets were dropped in to them through a hole in the logjam, and authorities were able to communicate with them by telephone.

The back section of a front-loader, weighing about 6,000 pounds, was being lowered to the workers in the Diamond Shaft Mine when the steel cable along which it broke, said mine spokesman Bill Walker.

The machinery crumpled off the sides of the shaft as it fell, knocking timbers and boulders loose. The debris jammed some 35 feet where the 800-foot level drift above the miners were working.

Leadville Corp., owner of the gold and silver five miles east of Leadville, identified the five trapped men as Leonard Wilder, Donny Miller and Sal Mercado, all employees from Leadville; Dean Lareby, a mine equipment technician from Tucson, Ariz.; and Ozzie Pride of Missouri, no hometown available.

Wilder's wife, Carolyn, said the accident occurred on her 50th birthday as she worked at the Delaware Hotel in Leadville.

"I heard the ambulance go, I knew when it went off the end of the pavement onto the dirt road (that) there was an accident at the Diamond mine," she said Thursday.

She said management officials told her the men were safe. She talked to her husband on Wednesday night, and "he said he was all right."

"There is nothing to do but wait. It's a long slow process. I feel like they (management officials) are giving us accurate reports," Mrs. Wilder told reporters.

The company has spent several million dollars attempting to reopen the mine and start production this fall. Mine spokesmen said the start-up date has now been pushed back indefinitely.

The mine was active until the early 1900s. It was closed shortly after World War II broke out, and mining efforts in the area turned to producing lead and molybdenum.

Leadville, about 70 miles south-west of Denver, is the highest incorporated town in America at an altitude of about 10,000 feet.

INA letter upsets major newspaper advertisers

BOISE (AP) — Officials at six corporations with major newspaper advertising campaigns in Idaho are angered over a newspaper organization's letter-writing drive aimed at drawing more ads to weekly papers.

The Idaho Newspaper Association launched the strategy with letters to Utah Power & Light Co., Idaho Bank & Trust, First Interstate Bank of Idaho, First Security Bank, Mountain Bell, and the Payette National Forest.

"Essentially what that letter is saying is, 'We newspapers can be bought,'" said UP&L spokesman John Ward from Salt Lake City.

All but one of the letters were written by Bob G. Hall, executive director of the INA. The letter to First Security Bank was written by Hall's daughter, Tomi Grote, co-publisher of the Central-Idaho Star-News in McCall.

INA represents 47 of Idaho's 54 weeklies and four of 12 dailies.

The letter complaining that weekly papers are ignored by advertisers and Grote and some other INA publishers say they won't run press releases issued by the corporations until they are treated fairly.

In a letter to IB&T President Ted Ellis dated Sept. 15, Hall wrote: "My publishers are now seriously talking about a demonstration of the power of their newspapers, to match your use of your advertising programs to hurt their community position as the major market information center there."

"That really bothers me," Ellis said. "I'm interpreting that he's starting writing articles saying, 'You shouldn't do business with Idaho Bank & Trust because they're not supporting the community. I look at it as a threat.'"

Ellis said IB&T cut all advertising spending by 40 percent in 1987 and did not discriminate against weeklies in the reduction.

In a letter dated Sept. 6 to UP&L's advertising agency, Evans Advertisers in Salt Lake City, Hall suggests INA newspapers will side with Idaho Power Co. in its effort to take away electric service from UP&L in eastern Idaho.

Ward said UP&L, like most of the others targeted, has cut advertising in all media in the past two years. He said he doubted eastern Idaho publishers "would stoop to that."

But Roger Porter, publisher of the Rexburg Standard-Journal, said he will withhold "luff" press releases from companies that don't pay their fair share for advertising.

"It's not extortion," Porter said.

Yellowstone truck ban not imposed

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — The Montana Department of Highways will not prohibit or restrict truck traffic on U.S. Highway 191 between West Yellowstone and Bozeman, a state highway official said Wednesday at a public hearing sponsored by the Park Service.

"The state does not think truck traffic should be restricted," based on the fact that there is no unique safety problem with truck traffic that distinguishes U.S. 191 from many other sections of Montana's highways," said Dennis Unsworth, a public information officer for the Department of Highways.

Yellowstone National Park Superintendent Robert Barbee, at a hearing Tuesday night in West Yellowstone, said there will not be an outright ban on commercial truck traffic along U.S. 191. A 22-mile segment of the highway passes through a corner of the park.

A ban "won't be the way we will go," he said. "There will be a rule-making process involved."

A Big Sky-based citizens' group prompted the hearings after pointing out that Yellowstone Park was not enforcing a federal regulation prohibiting commercial truck traffic in national parks. The last of three hearings was held in Bozeman Wednesday night.

At Wednesday's hearing, Barbee said the state of Montana isn't talking the issue of truck traffic through the park seriously enough. The National Park Service thinks the state has a fundamental responsibility on this issue and it ought to move on it, he said.

Barbee said the Park Service hopes to develop a recommendation by Nov. 15. Two weeks ago he said he wanted to involve the state in any final decision because the problems affect the entire road, not just the 22 miles through the park.

"This is an important piece of Yellowstone Park — it is not an appendage sitting out there by itself and it should not be treated as an orphan," said Ed Lewis of the Greater Yellowstone Coalition.

"Many others supported restricting truck traffic because of the threat of a toxic waste spill in the Gallatin River.

Trucking interests said rerouting the traffic would cause economic hardship because alternative routes are up to 100 miles longer. Rick Jensen, of Bozeman, said the state has paid to build and maintain the section of road and that if it is restricted, Montana taxpayers should not have to continue paying to maintain it.

"I guess I get irate about people who have come in our state in the past five or six years and now they try to tell us how to run our state," Jensen said.

Libertarians seek spot on '88 ballot

BOISE (AP) — After failing to field a candidate for any office in last fall's election, the Libertarian Party in Idaho has launched a drive to regain a spot on the ballot in 1988.

"We're very confident we can achieve that goal," party spokesman Allen Dalton maintained Thursday in announcing the statewide drive to collect just over 8,200 signatures needed to gain ballot status next year.

"Idaho voters tend to be independent," Dalton said. "Given that, we believe they want the opportunity to look at all the candidates."

The party has until next August to collect signatures of registered voters equal to 1 percent of the total vote in last fall's election for governor, but Dalton was confident the goal could be reached by the end of this year.

The party had put candidates for president, the U.S. Senate and four legislative seats on the 1984 ballot. With Senate contender Don Billings written by Bob G. Hall, executive director of the INA. The letter to First Security Bank was written by Hall's daughter, Tomi Grote, co-publisher of the Central-Idaho Star-News in McCall.

"A lot of people after 1984 were kind of down," he said. "1984 was a pretty poor year for the party, and we didn't get our act together at the state party level."

Still, the support given to Billings in the 1984 election, he said, indicated that there was a relatively large segment of the electorate willing to back the anti-big government philosophy of the party.

At least a half dozen people have expressed interest in legislative races, Dalton said, including two former state lawmakers who served in the Legislature as members of other parties during the 1970s.

Jurors

Magistrate court has caught up on postponed trials by scheduling juries every day last week and this week. Normally, juries are only scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday.

Helping the catch-up process is the fairly common practice of pleading to charges before trials, plea negotiations and dismissals by judges.

Of the 68 trials scheduled since Sept. 1, only seven have actually gone to trial.

Meanwhile, Noh is busy convincing jurors to keep coming in.

"We work hard to explain things clearly," Noh said. "If people will just send questionnaires back, it would save a lot of time and money."

county to pay only the federal reimbursement rate of 80 percent of total charges, despite the full billing. He explained that as a for-profit organization, Canyon View must bill everyone equally or risk everyone paying only the lowest rate charged.

Upon receiving the full bill, the county may then reply — and is expected to reply — by paying only the fractional reimbursement that is informally agreed upon, he said.

The two doctors at Canyon View face the same dilemma if they donate services like designated examinations, because some future patient could charge discrimination if their designated examination is not also free, Deibert said.

"You can't, on a blanket basis, say you're not going to charge for this service," Deibert said of for-profit businesses. "The physicians are in the same bind. When you ask them to do that for free, you're asking them to do a lot more than five or 10 designated examinations."

years, officials said.

The latest possibility involves a Minnesota business that manufactures agricultural goods. Alberdi said he was not at liberty to release any more information on the company.

But he did say the company wants to expand its operations in Idaho. Deibert said the company previously announced it was closing and expanding its eastern plants.

"This company has a lot of market here to the Columbia Basin, and suddenly, transportation costs are becoming an issue," Alberdi said.

Alberdi said officials have some prospects for building sites, but they are hoping the news will lure out other potential sites.

Former Idaho congressman George Hansen with his wife Connie after his release

Hansen freed from prison, says political future unhurt

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. George Hansen, released from prison Thursday after serving 11½ months for an ethics law violation, said he did not think his legal troubles would hurt his political future.

"If anything, this has been an opportunity to raise a lot of credibility," Hansen, an Idaho Republican, told reporters after he walked out the gates of the Federal Correctional Institution in Petersburg.

Hansen did not rule out a return to elective office, and said that while he considers such a move, he will do political consulting work, give speeches and write a book about the injustices he said he suffered.

"There's a story that needs to be told, and I'll be out shortly," Hansen said.

Hansen, 57, was sent to prison for violating the federal Ethics in Government Act by failing to report $350,000 in personal loans and profits on committees transactions as a member of Congress.

He was convicted in 1984 and sentenced to 5-16 months in prison. After his appeals were exhausted, Hansen first entered the Petersburg facility in June 1985, and was paroled last December. He was reimprisoned in April for violating the travel restrictions and financial reporting requirements of his parole.

When he was escorted out of the prison's minimum-security section Thursday morning, Hansen was pushing a cart that carried several boxes of notes and personal belongings he had accumulated during his stay. Outside the gates, he had a reunion with his wife, Connie, and then spoke with reporters about his time behind bars.

"The experience is humbling indeed," he said. "This is a disaster area for people's rights."

As a seven-term congressman from Idaho's conservative 2nd District, Hansen fought government agencies such as the Internal Revenue Service, Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Justice Department. He said he will continue to be outspoken, even though he believes his imprisonment was retaliation for his attacks on government.

He was released from prison long enough to testify at a congressional hearing last week in Washington, where he spoke about sanitation problems in prison and the dangers of spreading acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Hansen repeated his allegations Thursday that prisoners are not properly protected from the virus that causes AIDS. Among his concerns were that convicts can contract the virus from sharing used razor blades, and that inmates at Petersburg who are diagnosed as having AIDS are put in an isolation area along with prisoners who are being separated from the general population for disciplinary reasons.

He said prison officials should "stop discrimination against those who don't want to catch it and stop discrimination against those who are unfortunate enough to have it."

Jack Atherton, a prison spokesman, said Hansen's concerns had been investigated by three federal agencies, and were found to be without merit.

Hansen, who has been nominated by the Populist Party to run for president, said it was "not outside the realm of possibility that I will seek office. It's not outside the realm of possibility that I won't, either."

He said he expects as many as 600 people to attend a "Hansen Gala" to be hosted by some members of Congress at the Capitol Hill Club on Tuesday. A "Welcome Home George" gathering is planned for Oct. 17 in his home town of Pocatello.

Hansen, who had grown a beard after he was reimprisoned to demonstrate his concern for dirty razor blades, was clean-shaven Thursday. The 6-foot-6 Hansen also said he lost 76 pounds while behind bars and now weighs 250 pounds.

"They call this the federal health farm," he said, laughing. "I was almost down to eating just soup." "I just want to go home and get on with our lives," Mrs. Hansen said before the two got in a waiting van and rode off.

Membership in INA drops, publishers blame director

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Newspaper Association has lost nearly 25 percent of its members since 1985, and some publishers say Executive Director Bob C. Hall is to blame for the decline.

In 1984, all of Idaho's 54 weeklies and 12 dailies were INA members. Now, 51 members remain in the group which accepts advertising for its members and lobbies the Legislature on issues like the sales tax and access to government records.

Legislators seek answer for system

BOISE (AP) — A special legislative committee, seeking major revisions in an Idaho juvenile justice system many believe is a failure, is trying to increase the accountability of juveniles for their offenses while still keeping them out from behind bars.

"What we need to focus upon is how to deal with offenders and not just put them back in jail," Sen. Gall Bray, D-Boise, said Thursday as the House-Senate panel wrapped up its initial review of legislation to change the way juvenile offenders are handled by the courts.

"What we need to be doing is developing alternatives," Mrs. Bray said.

Although the committee will not make any final decisions on recommended changes until late this year, it has started to coalesce around a scheme that would create a uniform structure for juvenile justice, administered on a regional basis with parents being held to at least some degree responsible for the actions of their children and judges retaining control over offenders after they have been processed through the system.

"We're down now to the tough work," said Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Deer, co-chairman of the panel, "sorting it all out and developing a plan."

The committee has been reviewing the Utah system, considered a model for juvenile justice nationwide, but Darrington said he believes Idaho can improve on that program without significantly increasing costs to taxpayers.

"We might come a little better parenting here, and I think that's needed," Darrington said.

In 1985, The Idaho Statesman in Boise withdrew, followed by dailies in Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Nampa, Coeur d'Alene, Sandpoint, Burley and Twin Falls.

Daily newspaper officials cited differing interests with the weeklies and their greater financial burden to support the organization.

In 1986, weeklies in Aberdeen, American Falls, Homedale, Gracie, Milner, Montpelier and Preston left the INA.

Another weekly, the Wood River Journal in Hailey, plans to leave the group in January, Publisher Clint Stennett said.

Stennett said he will leave because Hall encouraged the board of directors to side with the Idaho Mountain Express in Ketchum in a dispute over which paper is entitled to the legal advertising for the city of Ketchum.

"Bob Hall is absolutely out of his tree," said Lewis Hower, publisher of the Messenger-Index in Emmett since 1946 and INA president in 1983. "The organization is very much in disarray. We're looking at the loss of an association at all because of Bob Hall."

Hower said he will leave the INA in January if Hall isn't dismissed. "I think the only thing that's going to work is to change the executive director," he said.

Hall, 44, was attending a meeting in Portland and replied in writing to questions posed by The Idaho Statesman about his performance.

"I don't take questions about how I do my job from anybody else. I have no comment about the internal affairs of the INA to a non-member newspaper," said Hall, who has been INA's director since 1981.

Robert Wherry, president of the INA and publisher of the Valley News in Meridian, said the board supports Hall and gave him a two-year contract in July. Hall's base salary is $33,000, Wherry said.

"One thing needs to be very clear. Mr. Hall is not representing the hometown newspapers," said Joe Aman, publisher of The Owyhee Avenger.

"I spent nine years on the board and one year as president and it just makes me sick what's happened to the association," said Aman, who has been a member since 1986.

Hall has defenders, including influential daily publishers and INA members Jay Shelley of the Idahoan in Moscow and A.L. "Butch" Alford Jr. of The Tribune in Lewiston.

"I like Bob personally but he does some crazy things," Shelley said. "He's done some good things. Sometimes he gets carried away."

Hall got carried away, Shelley said, when he pulled a section out of copies of The Tribune distributed at the Statehouse during the 1984 legislative session. Hall removed the section because it contained a column critical of some legislators he was lobbying.

Telephone rates close to average

WASHINGTON (AP) — Basic residential telephone service rates, forced by Mountain Bell Telephone Co. in Idaho fall generally in line with rates offered in major cities around the nation, according to a new study by the Federal Communications Commission.

The flat rate service charge for Mountain Bell customers in Boise, Caldwell, Nampa and Idaho Falls as of last April was no higher than $12.43 a month, the study said. That compared to an average of $12.51 a month for all 95 cities surveyed by the FCC. The FCC survey did not include the $2.60 monthly charge all customers in the nation must pay under federal mandate for access to long-distance service. Mountain Bell's two other rate groups in Idaho, determined on the basis of how many local customers can be called toll-free, paid monthly service charges of $11.44 and $10.64.

But while Mountain Bell's flat rate charge has remained unchanged since early 1986, the FCC said the national average charge declined slightly from last fall to this spring. Since the court-ordered break-up of the nationwide Bell telephone network nearly four years ago, Mountain Bell's basic rate has increased 11 percent.

The FCC found that just over 92 percent of all households nationwide had telephone service. While Mountain Bell contended subscriber rates in Idaho is even higher, the difference is so marginal that state regulators believe there is little significance to it.

The Idaho cities surveyed by Mountain Bell were among the 46 cities in the FCC survey to have so-called "lifeline" reduced-rate service available for the elderly while all customers had low-cost service options available. Only five cities in the survey did not have those kinds of options.

The charge for inside wiring maintenance in the Idaho communities was 50 cents a month compared to the average of 82 cents nationally.

Care center reinspection set for Friday

POCATELLO (AP) — Skyline Healthcare Center, a 121-bed private nursing home facing a 30-day deadline to correct deficiencies, will be reinspected by state officials on Friday.

Skyline was threatened with loss of federal funding and revocation of its state operating license as a result of a report issued last month by a team of state nursing home inspectors.

The inspectors, who visited the facility Sept. 14-17, submitted a 36-page report detailing deficiencies in the care provided by the nursing home. They gave Skyline officials until Saturday to correct the problems.

"The facility believed that they have corrected those deficiencies that created immediate jeopardy to the patients," said Jean Schoonover, Chief of the Bureau of Facility Standards for Idaho Health and Welfare.

California quake tremors felt by Montana instruments

HELENA (AP) — Tremors from Thursday morning's earthquake in southern California were recorded on seismographic equipment at Butte but were not strong enough to be felt by anyone in Montana, the state's top earthquake expert said.

The quake, which registered 6.1 on the Richter scale, was recorded at Butte as a "moderately strong" quake originating more than 1,000 kilometers or 625 miles from the recording equipment — said Mike Stickney, director of the state Bureau of Mines' Earthquake Studies Office at Montana Tech.

"We record many teleseismograms on our equipment ... from all over the earth. We see earthquakes off the Pacific Coast or in Alaska that are this strong, probably on a monthly basis. It just happens that this one is in a populated area, so of course it will attract a lot of attention," Stickney told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

The California quake was reportedly felt by people as far away as Las Vegas, Nev.

"It's probably not possible to have an earthquake in California that would be felt by people in Montana," Stickney said. "Even the 1906 earthquake, the San Francisco earthquake, was not felt in Montana."

However, Montana is no stranger to severe earthquakes. The worst one ever recorded took place in 1959 at Hebgen Lake, measuring 7.5 on the Richter scale.

"It was responsible for 28 deaths. It occurred, of course, in a relatively unpopulated area, but many summer homes were heavily damaged or destroyed. West Yellowstone was the closest town. It sustained damage to many buildings," Stickney said.

Helena was rocked by two severe earthquakes in 1935, only two weeks apart, Stickney said. The quakes, registering 6.3 and 6.0 on the Richter scale, were responsible for four deaths and for structural damage to more than 60 percent of the buildings in the Helena area.

with damage in the millions of dollars, Stickney said.

Ten years earlier, in 1925, a quake measuring 6.8 in magnitude, centered north of Three Forks, caused damage to buildings as far away as Helena and White Sulphur Springs.

"Small quakes are quite common" in Montana, Stickney said. "We commonly record about 100 earthquakes per month in western Montana. The vast majority of those are too small for people to notice."

Should Montana be hit by a major earthquake today, it could count on assistance from the states of Idaho and Washington, said Jan Henry, emergency management specialist for the state Disaster and Emergency Services Division in Helena.

Such interstate assistance could include sending search-and-rescue teams, medical personnel, heavy equipment and people conversant with administration of disaster relief programs, Henry said.

Neighbors go after conventions lost by Mecham's political gaffe

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — While Gov. Evan Mecham wrestles with the problems caused by a letter to potential donors to his campaign to fight recall, nearby states are picking up convention business lost by what his detractors call Mecham's first political gaffe.

"More than 50 groups have canceled or decided against Arizona conventions since Mecham did away with Arizona's limited-state holiday for the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. early in January."

Estimates of the value of the lost conventions run about $25 million.

Phil Keene, whom Mecham fired the same month as director of the Arizona Office of Tourism, said he regards Arizona's convention problems as a shot in the arm for the private "California Tourism Corp." which he now directs.

"As you know, the convention business is very, very competitive," Keene said Wednesday. "We have to capitalize on other, misfortunes, but California and Nevada convention bureaus are ready, willing and able to pick up the slack."

Rich Grant, director of communications for the Metro Conventions and Visitors Bureau in Denver, said he wouldn't go after firmly committed business of another city.

Judge slates new trial on sex charges

CALDWELL (AP) — Dean Schwartzmiller, who was released from the Idaho State Penitentiary this summer after his sexual misconduct conviction was overturned, will be tried again in February on three counts of lewd and lascivious conduct.

Third District Judge Jim Doollittle has scheduled a two-day trial for Schwartzmiller to begin Feb. 17 in Caldwell. He remains free on $50,000 bond.

Schwartzmiller was found guilty in 1981 of sexual misconduct with two consenting 14-year-old boys.

Third District Judge Edward Lodge sentenced him to 26 years in prison. But the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals eventually overturned Schwartzmiller's conviction, ruling that his rights were violated because he was not allowed to question the boys about their juvenile records during the trial.

He was released from the prison south of Boise on Aug. 27, only to be rearrested on the Canyon County felony charges. Two Ada County deputy prosecutors have been assigned to prosecute the case for Canyon County.

Schwartzmiller gained notoriety for his role as a lay attorney for inmates who filed a lawsuit over allegedly unconstitutional conditions at the penitentiary. That suit led to a federal court order to reduce crowding and make other changes at the prison.

Robertson booked

SPOKANE (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson, a former television evangelist, will deliver a speech at Gonzaga University Oct. 16, says GOP County Chairman Mike McGinnis.

Robertson's appearance will be part of the "Road to 88" series sponsored by the Spokane County Republican Central Committee.

The series has already attracted Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.

But "if it's canceled," he said, "it's a fair-game meeting."

"That's like found business. Anybody who hears about it would go after it."

Sales director Jerry Bedford of the Convention and Business Bureau in Albuquerque, N.M., said, "We've had a couple of functions lately with hoteliers who have mentioned they are going after that kind of business. I'm sure it's going to be spread all over the place."

One convention that canceled a Phoenix commitment, the Federal Bar Association's "Indian Law Conference," is going to Albuquerque. But not for just a year, said Jana Lee Aspin, the convention bureau's public-relations manager.

"We have them from 1988 through 2000," Ms. Aspin said. They pulled out of Phoenix. They told us the reason they were coming here was Evan Mecham's stand against the Martin Luther King holiday."

By big-city standards, she said, it may not be a big convention. But the 200 or so delegates it will bring annually to Albuquerque during the next 13 years, she figures, is worth $2.3 million to the city's economy.

Salt Lake City also is sympathetic to Arizona's plight, especially because Mecham is a native of Utah.

Iraqi jets hit shrimp boat; Iranian boats shoot up 3 tankers

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraqi warplanes fired a missile Thursday at a shrimp boat in the Persian Gulf and killed its Australian captain after Iranian speedboats attacked at least three tankers in 24 hours, sources said.

The 88-foot trawler Shenton Bluff was damaged but didn't sink, said salvage executives who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The trawler is one of 10 jointly owned by the Australian firm Bluff Fisheries and a United Arab Emirates firm, al-Aquili. The trawlers were on contract to the Iranian government, which charters foreign commercial ships.

The captain, identified as Robert Wellcock, was at the helm and died when the missile hit the trawler's wheelhouse, the executives said. They said the other six crewmen survived the attack.

The sources refused to give Wellcock's hometown. They said the company decided to withdraw all its trawlers after the attack.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said it was the second fishing boat attacked this week by Iraq.

Earlier Thursday, two Iranian speedboats opened fire with machine guns and rockets on a Pakistani tanker less than 24 hours after attacking two Japanese supertankers, shipping sources said. No casualties were reported in any of the attacks, and damage was minimal.

Some shipping executives said the Iranian show of force appeared confined to areas where U.S. attack helicopters were unlikely to be encountered.

Iran usually stages such attacks in retaliation for Iraqi air raids on its oil tankers. Iraq has claimed six such attacks since the weekend.

The latest Iraqi claim came Thursday when Baghdad's official news agency, monitored in Cyprus, said Iraqi warplanes struck a "large naval target," meaning an oil tanker, off Iran around dawn Thursday. There was no immediate confirmation of the report.

Five Iranian speedboats fired at the Japanese ships, the 237,385-ton Nichiharu Maru and the 236,426-ton Western City, on Wednesday evening, shipping sources said. Two speedboats attacked the 43,429-ton Pakistani tanker Johar on Thursday morning.

Shipping sources said they could not confirm reports by radio monitors that a third Japanese tanker, the 484,276-ton Nissei Maru, was hit.

In a telephone interview, the Johar's Pakistani captain, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said each speedboat carried four or five men, who opened fire with machine guns and rockets from about a half-mile away.

There was no contact or warning, the officer said.

Shipping salvage officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Iran concentrated its attacks in the inner Strait of Hormuz hours after a large convoy, including four U.S. warships, passed through the strait and into the gulf. The strait is the gulf's only gateway.

One shipping executive said the Iranians had "cleverly" waited for the U.S. warships to be out of the area before attacking the Japanese tankers. The Johar was attacked in the same general area.

Another convoy of U.S. ships and refueled tankers was headed south through the gulf toward the strait but was reported far-north of the waterway.

Japan depends on the gulf for about 56 percent of its petroleum supplies.

Israelis spurn bid by USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel has spurned a Soviet offer to take a major step toward restoring relations by opening diplomatic "interest sections" in Tel Aviv and Moscow, a diplomatic source said Thursday.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze made the offer at a meeting in New York last week with Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, the source told The Associated Press.

The establishment of interest sections would not repair the 20-year break in relations, but would be a major step in that direction. Under the arrangement, Israeli and Soviet diplomats would open offices in a third country's embassy and conduct all but formal diplomatic business.

The United States has such an arrangement with Cuba, while Israel and Poland, an East European ally of the Soviets, earlier this year opened "interest sections" in Warsaw and Tel Aviv. Yugoslavia soon will follow suit.

The Soviets and all Warsaw Pact countries except Romania broke with Israel after the 1967 Mideast war. Eager to participate in a Mideast peace conference, Moscow over the last 15 months or so has stepped up its contacts with Israel, dangling hints of a renewal of ties.

Shevardnadze cited Poland as an example in making the interest section offer to Peres. The Israeli foreign minister told him "restoration of relations is not a prize for peace but a channel for communication," said the source, who demanded anonymity.

Those wishing to participate in bringing peace to the Middle East cannot confine their relations to one side of the conference," Peres said. He repeated the assertion later in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly.

The source said Israel and the Soviets would continue their discussion, but had not set a date for the next meeting.

The Soviets have diplomatic relations with Jordan and give political and military support to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

While Peres is not opposed to a Soviet role in a peace conference, Israel has laid down two conditions: a resumption of relations and free emigration of Soviet Jews.

The United States takes a somewhat softer though similar line. Secretary of State George P. Shultz has urged the Soviets to play a "constructive role" in the region.

On another subject, the State Department sharply criticized a private project to drill for water on the Israeli-held West Bank.

Nicaraguan paper appears on street

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's only opposition newspaper resumed publication Thursday after a 16-month forced closure with a banner headline saying, "Triumph For The People."

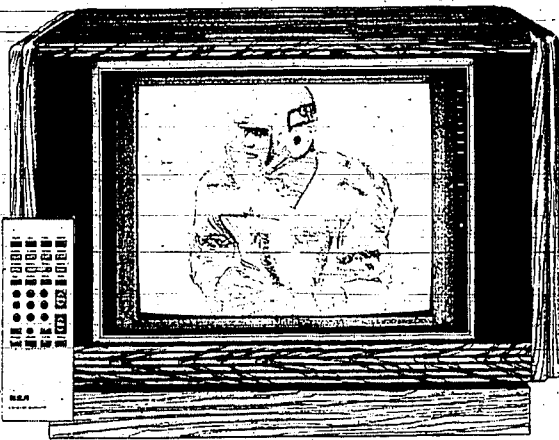

La Prensa, once Nicaragua's most popular newspaper, resurfaced after the leftist Sandinista government on Sept. 19 approved the reopening.

"We're ready," said an editor, Juan Navarro, as he cut and pasted stories for the afternoon paper. "Everyone is excited."

President Daniel Ortega said the move was in line with the new regional peace plan, which calls for restoration of democratic freedoms.

Chinese mark rule of Reds

BEIJING (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Chinese jammed Beijing's central Tiananmen Square on Thursday to admire the brightly lit buildings and towering floral displays and celebrate the 36th anniversary of Communist rule.

Streams of pedestrians halted traffic on streets leading to the square. Colored lights played on music fountains and bright white spotlights shone on 10-foot-tall portraits of Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin and Chinese revolutionary patriarch Sun Yat-sen.

Some people took pictures of each another in front of a 20-foot-high floor replica of the Great Wall. Others sat on newspapers on the ground, eating snacks and playing cards.

All along Beijing's main thoroughfare, the Street of Everlasting Peace, major buildings were outlined with strings of white lights. Trees around Tiananmen were decorated with colored bulbs.

Huge red and blue neon signs on each side of the portrait of late Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung flashed the messages: "Long Live Our Nation" and "Vigorously Develop China."

Mao's portrait, unlike those of the other revolutionary leaders, was not illuminated by a spotlight. Since he died in 1976, Mao has been criticized by his successors for his personality cult and for allowing the decade-long spasm of leftist-inspired violence called the Cultural Revolution from 1967 to 1977.

Inside the Great Hall of the People on one side of Tiananmen, government and Communist Party leaders presided over an invitation-only party for 20,000 guests, including bureaucrats and model workers.

Oct. 1 marks the day in 1949 when Mao stood atop Tiananmen's northern gate and proclaimed the establishment of the People's Republic of China after driving the rival Nationalist government to Taiwan.

Military parades are held on the holiday only once every five years, the last time in 1984. Most workers were given a four-day weekend this year, and all government offices shut down until Monday.

The nation's leading newspapers splashed congratulatory slogans and political exhortations across their front pages in red ink. "Make Our Great Nation More Vigorous," urged the People's Daily.

"Develop the Momentum of Reform. Greet the Glorious Future," advised the China Youth News.

In a front-page editorial, the People's Daily praised the market-style economic reforms initiated nine years ago by top leader Deng Xiaoping. The reforms have raised the income of most Chinese and allowed increased exposure to the outside world in areas from technology to fashion.

It reiterated recent comments by top leaders that the 13th National Party Congress, due to begin Oct. 25, will accelerate reforms in both the economic and political systems.

"Reform is the golden key to tapping the potential initiative of the people for building socialism, bringing into full play the superiority of socialism over capitalism and making China, the country with the most ancient civilization, one of the most advanced in the world," the editorial said.

During a reception Wednesday night at the Great Hall of the People, Premier Zhao Ziyang similarly called for a deepening of reform.

But he also said this year's campaign against bourgeois liberals — those expressing pro-Western, pro-capitalist views — had "brought about positive changes in the political and ideological fields."

The campaign followed widespread pro-democracy demonstrations by students last winter.

Mexico City concert stampede leaves 4 dead, 35 injured

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three girls and a woman were killed and 35 other people were injured when thousands of fans stormed a gate at an outdoor concert, the city Attorney General's office said Thursday.

The stampede took place late Wednesday afternoon before the concert by three of Mexico's most popular pop music groups at the capital's Sports Palace. The concert was staged later Wednesday evening.

The surge of people apparently was touched off by a delay of more than 90 minutes in the start of the concert by the groups Timbiriche, Flans and Fresas, according to a spokesman in the Attorney General's office. He commented on condition of anonymity.

Those killed were a 7-year-old girl, two 14-year-old girls and a woman believed to be about 35 years old, the Attorney General's spokesman said.

Hospital officials said 10 of the injured remained in serious condition today.

Bush defends use of camera crew

LONDON (AP) — Vice President George Bush said Thursday there was "nothing inappropriate" in having a campaign-financed camera crew record portions of his trip to Europe, adding that he hoped the pictures taken "will be very good."

Bush made the comments in front of 10 Downing St., with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and his comments were taped by the campaign crew as well as by reporters.

The vice president was asked whether his nine-day trip to Poland and Western Europe was in part the opening salvo of his announced campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

"No, it was not," said Bush, whose formal announcement is scheduled for Oct. 12 in Houston. He said it was not the first time he spent in Poland, and added that the sessions he held with Western European leaders have been "all substance and no politics."

Asked why the campaign crew was there if the trip was not political, Bush said, "I hope that those pictures will be very good. When I get into politics and I get back I'll be in it right from the beginning."

But just as President Reagan was accompanied by cameras when he went to Normandy, there's nothing inappropriate. For that to be the whole focus simply would be misunderstanding the importance of this trip," he said. The president's campaign crew went along on his trip to Europe before his campaign gets record events for use in political commercials.

Bush's aides hope to do the same thing, including footage of a dramatic appearance Bush made with Solidarity Leader Lech Walesa last week in Poland.

Mrs. Thatcher stepped in at one point to second Bush's statement, that the meetings have not been political, and said, "I have some other engagements."

Said Bush: "It's the best news I've heard in ages. Thank you, I'll go with you."

Bush made his comments as his top aide told reporters that the European trip will probably provide "a good political boost going into the announcement. I think it only helps," said Craig Fuller.

The political aide to the visit re-emerged as Bush was continuing a fast-paced round of meetings with Western European leaders on the prospective arms control agreement with the Soviet Union.

He began his day in Paris, where he saw French leaders including President Francois Mitterrand.

Bush-reassured Mitterrand that the United States would not use their independent nuclear forces as a bargaining chip in further arms control talks with the Soviet Union.

"It's certainly no bargaining chip and it's certainly not something that the United States has anything to do with," Bush told reporters after the session.

"It's a matter between France and other countries. The United States would not take on to itself discussing French deterrence."

After meeting with Mitterrand, Bush boarded his Air Force jet for a flight to London, where he went immediately to 10 Downing St. and his meeting with Thatcher.

"Of course we agree... on the INF agreement assuming it comes about, as a great triumph for this..."

She also said she hoped the United States and the Soviet Union could negotiate a reduction in long-range ballistic missiles, as well as a reduction in Soviet bloc conventional forces.

Vanuatu expels French ambassador

PORT VILA, Vanuatu (AP) — The Vanuatu government Thursday ordered the French ambassador expelled, alleging he had interfered in the internal affairs of the South Pacific island nation.

The government accused Ambassador Henri Crepin-Leblond of having given "substantial financial assistance" to the Union of Moderate Parties, which the government says is pro-French.

The government gave Crepin-Leblond seven days to leave the

In view of this unfriendly gesture, the government of Vanuatu has asked the French ambassador to leave the republic within seven days," said a statement issued by Prime Minister Walter Lini's office.

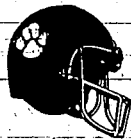

Vanuatu, an island group of about 135,000 people 1,600 miles northeast of Australia, was jointly administered by Britain and France until independence in 1980.

Twin Falls (2-3) at Idaho Falls (5-0)

It's difficult to see a Tigers team that rank first in the Gem State Conference (an average of 399.5 yards) in total offense and second (183.5) in total defense. Idaho Falls, rated first all season by the Associated Press in the lower division of Class A-1, owns victories over defending state champion Highland and fifth-ranked Skyline, the only teams which have come close to the Tigers. Size and quickness on both the offensive and defensive lines is the key; not many teams can match up with Idaho Falls in either respect. Game time: 7:30 p.m. in Idaho Falls' Ravenna Stadium.

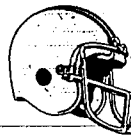

Key matchup: Idaho Falls offensive tackles Dennis Gray (236) and Matt Jose (200) against the Broncos' defensive ends.
Radio: KIDX-FM

Mimico (1-4) at Blackfoot (2-3)

The Spartans are effectively out of the hunt for a berth in a Class A-1 Division II playoffs, but they need this "pod" and Gem State Conference game to staunch a four-game losing streak and have a chance at a winning season. They'll have to do it absent running back Jason Duncan, still sidelined with a shoulder injury, and they'll have to generate more offense than they managed against Rigby in a 18-14 loss last week. Game time: 7 p.m. at Blackfoot High School.

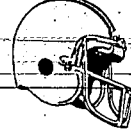

Key matchup: Blackfoot's long suit is pass defense, which makes the matchup between Mimico senior running back Mike Yelverton (100 yards last week, his best of the season) and the Broncos' four-man defensive front an important factor in who wins this game.

Burley (1-4) at Shelley (0-5)

Burley quarterback Pete Rodriguez, who showed promise in beating Wood River two weeks ago and a moved the ball effectively through the air in a loss to Shull last week, should have a field day against the young Shelley secondary, burned early and often by Jerome's quickness last week. Shelley is out of school for potato harvest and hobbled for various injuries, but is capable of hurting Burley if the Robcats don't manage to establish some defensive consistency. Burley, meanwhile, will play without three starters, including tight end defensive end Trent Henry. Game time: 7:30 p.m. at Shelley High School.

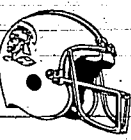

Key matchup: Rodriguez against the Shelley secondary, which is composed entirely of juniors and sophomores.
Radio: KBAR-AM

Raft River (2-3) at Castleford (4-1)

Castleford's defense has been astonishingly good in the last month, failing to give up a touchdown in the Wolves' last three games. Will it work as well against Raft River's voracious offense and the quick running back tandem of Alan Warr and Erich Telford in this Magic Valley Conference showdown? The answer to that will have a lot to say about who goes to the state A-4 playoffs, which will take the top two teams from the Magic Valley for the first time in history. Game time: 7:30 p.m. in Castleford.

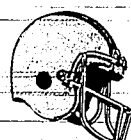

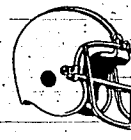

Key matchup: The Wolves' big, strong, senior-dominated offensive line against a Raft River defensive front that matched up poorly against a bigger offensive line from Oakley last week and suffered accordingly.

Wendell (3-2) at Declo (2-3)

Wendell, one of the three unbeaten teams in the Canyon Conference, has never beaten Declo in the Hornets' history. That's significant because Declo, its record notwithstanding, is a pretty good defensive team (the Hornets are allowing less than 50 yards a game passing). Wendell's offense, which has run hot and cold this season, will have to avoid turnovers and get a big night from Greg Hiral (347 yards in five games), Chris Thackeray (293 yards) and Duane Packer (288). Game time: 7:30 p.m.

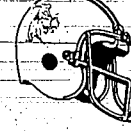

Key matchup: Declo running back Shawn Mai (8.8 yards per carry) against Wendell's ubiquitous Packer, who plays tackle on defense.

Carey (2-1) at North Gem (3-1)

This is Carey's shot at a spot in the state playoffs, but that's going to be a tall order in Bancroft. North Gem, ranked fifth in the latest Associated Press eight-man poll, is no tyro on defense, but the Cowboys have a running back (Keith Greenwood) who has open-field speed, the Panthers can ill afford to get him one-on-one. Carey, which will only play six regular-season games this season, can likewise move the ball with running backs Matt Neal and Dave Parke and quarterback Lane Kirkland, but has had a hard time preventing opponents from doing the same. Game time: 4 p.m. at Bancroft.

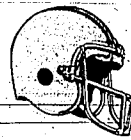

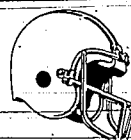

Key matchup: Greenwood (who averages 8 yards per carry) against Carey defensive ends Dave and Val Parke. If the Parkes can't hold Greenwood under his average, it will be a long afternoon for Carey.

Gooding (2-3) at Kimberly (3-2)

Forget the records; this one's always worth the price of admission. Unless Wendell, Glenns Ferry and Filer self-destruct, odds are slim that either of these two teams will reach the state A-3 playoffs. But don't tell that to Kimberly's defense, which is giving up an average of less than two touchdowns a game, and Gooding's offense, which has two backs (Nate Low and Shane Bauges) over 400 yards rushing and a quarterback (Mike Blinn), who has passed for more than 700. Game time: 7:30 p.m. at Kimberly.

Key matchup: Kimberly defensive ends Brandon Ure, a junior, and Kelly Holcomb, a sophomore, — two of the Magic Valley's best defensive linemen — against Low and Bauges, two of its quickest running backs.
Radio: KEZJ-AM

Wood River (0-5) at Jerome (5-0), 8 p.m.

NL East: Color it red — again

By BEN WALKER
The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The chase is over. The St. Louis Cardinals are champions of the National League East and the New York Mets and Montreal Expos each saw them win it Thursday night.

More baseball — C2

Danny Cox pitched a five-hitter and Dan Driessen drove home three runs as St. Louis clinched its third title in six years by beating Montreal, 8-2. The Cardinals stopped all speculation about a three-way playoff and ended the Cardinals' Mets' reign as World Series champions.

Keith Hernandez, Gary Carter and about a dozen Mets were among the 48,763 fans at Busch Stadium. The Mets had led by the seventh inning when the Cardinals broke the game open with five runs. "That was a great way to win," gloated St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith, spraying champagne with teammate John Morris. "They died a slow death and had to watch it."

"They still think they got a chance," Smith razzed.

Now, the Mets' season-ending three-game series in St. Louis means nothing. Instead, it will give the banged-up Cardinals time to rest before beginning the best-of-seven NL playoffs against San Francisco Oct. 6 at home.

Cox earned the starting assignment in Game 1 against the Giants' Rick Reuschel, with John Tudof of the Cardinals facing Dave Dravecky in the second game.

"That was Danny's best game since his rookie season," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said.

"We're not through yet," Montreal Manager Bud Rojars said. The Mets, meanwhile, became another team that failed to repeat after winning the World Series. The New York Yankees of 1977-78 were the last to accomplish the feat.

"Maybe it wasn't meant to be," Carter said. "We had our chances."

Cox carried the Cardinals each were plagued by injuries and inconsistency this season. The Cardinals hung on to win, however, while

More striking NFL players go to work

By DAVE GOLDBERG
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The striking NFL players union called Thursday for a resumption in bargaining as 10 more players, including Tony Dorsett, broke ranks and returned to their teams.

Related story — C2

Management, however, said it saw no reason for talks at this time. The defections brought to 48 the number who have crossed picket lines in the 10 days of the strike. Twenty-four have returned since Wednesday. Friday is deadline for reporting and still getting this week's paycheck.

The strike was also affecting management revenues. An Associated Press survey showed that more than 287,000 tickets to this week's replacement games had been returned by fans, 40 percent of the total sold.

Moreover, the Miller Brewing Co., a major sponsor of NFL telecasts, said it was pulling its commercials from this weekend's games. "We didn't know how the ratings would go so we decided to stop back a week and take a look at it," said Miller spokesman Bob Bertini, who said decisions on future advertising would be made later.

The call for new talks came at a Washington news conference from

Gene Upshaw, the union's chief negotiator, who also lashed out at the owners for "making this a black vs. white issue."

"They're calling me black, militant and hostile," he said. "They're trying to divide us along the lines of black vs. white. That's something the players are aware of."

Talks broke off last Friday with the two sides deadlocked on the union's demand for uncompensated free agency for players with more than four years' experience.

"We are calling upon the owners to send their negotiators back to the table that they left last Friday," Upshaw said at a Washington news conference.

"It seems to me that the message is not getting through to the owners. We just feel that a lot of things we talked about and suggested are just not getting through to the group of owners out there that should be concerned about a strike."

NBA players sue league over draft, lid on salaries

By JERRY SULLIVAN
Newsday

The National Basketball Association Players Association brought the volatile issue of sports free agency into the federal courts Thursday by filing a class-action suit that charges the league with violating the nation's antitrust laws.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court in Newark, N.J., seeks to eliminate what the union regards as the three major impediments to free agency: the salary cap, the college draft and the so-called right of first refusal.

Larry Fleisher, general counsel to the players association, since its inception in 1964, said that the lawsuit did not stop the opening of training camps next week. He said that rookies and free agents would be free to sign contracts, though any deals could be voided if the court rules for the union.

"I'm hoping we'll get a quick decision from the court," Fleisher said, so we can play ball and not be bogged down in strikes and lockouts.

Fleisher said that the suit was filed in Newark because that court has a history of moving swiftly on such cases. He hopes to receive a decision in four to six weeks. Nine players were listed as plaintiffs, including David Robinson, the college player of the year.

The union's action came just hours after the lifting of a league-wide moratorium that had been imposed on June 17, two days after the expiration of the collective bargaining agreement. Teams had agreed not to sign rookies or free agents, while the union and the league agreed not to initiate legal action against one another.

Both sides hoped the moratorium would expedite bargaining talks, but after nine fruitless negotiating sessions, the union felt it was time here's some idea of what to expect in Week One of Strike '87. But before any fearless predictions are made, it should be stressed that it just doesn't seem fair that these teams should have the same names as their striking counterparts. On Week One, the plain-label players of the NFL's new teams will be slightly altered so as not to confuse them with the more expensive variety.

Among those playing this weekend are the Biggie Bills (1-1) at home to the Indianapolis Colts (0-2) at the Los Angeles Masked Raiders (2-0) against the Kansas City Chiefs (1-1); the Philadelphia I-leagues (1-1) at home to the Chicago Who Cares Bears (2-0); and the San Francisco Phony Niners (1-1) taking on the New York Dwarfs (0-2) at Giants Stadium Monday night.

and running back Roger Craig back to face the Dwarfs. Go with the Phony Niners. And you have to like the San Diego Dischargers (1-1) at the Cincinnati Bumbles (1-1). The Dischargers have 18 players who played in at least one NFL game. Another team that should dominate is the Masked Raiders, who are expected to start former Bears quarterback Vince Evans against the Philadelphia I-leagues. The Masked Raiders have 11 players with two years or more of NFL experience. They played well, according to Coach Tom Flores, in a scrimmage with the Phony Niners. The Orleans Aints (1-1) have seven veterans back for their home game against the Los Angeles Lambs (0-2), and will have a roast. The Green Bay Hackers (0-1-1), with former USFL Arizona Wrangler Alan Risher at quarterback, has a chance against the Minnesota Strikers (2-0). Running back Tony Collins has rejoined the New England Tories (1-1) for their game against the Cleveland Brownbaggers (1-1), who have three-year pro Jeff Christensen at quarterback.

AL: Tigers now trail by game

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers moved within one game of first-place Toronto heading into their season-ending showdown in a 9-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Thursday night.

The Blue Jays, who were idle, open a three-game series here Friday night to settle the East Division race. If the teams are tied after the weekend, a one-game playoff Monday in Detroit will settle it.

Trailing 2-0 after a half-inning, the Tigers scored four times in their first at-bat. Bill Madlock reached when second baseman Pete Staniek dropped his pop for an error, then Trammell got a two-out single, his 200th hit of the season and the 1,500th of his career.

Madlock, trying to score from second on a single by Darrell Evans, appeared out by a wide margin, but catcher Terry Kennedy dropped the ball for an error, Trammell also scored when Kennedy lost the ball.

Boddicker walked Matt Nokes and Chet Lemon to load the bases and Scott Lusciano singled to center for a 4-2 lead.

Matt Nokes and Kirk Gibson later homered for Detroit, which scored five unearned runs.

Walt Terrell, 17-10, who missed his regular turn the day before because of a stiff neck, went all the way, giving up eight hits. He gave home runs to Ray Knight and Mike Young.

Baltimore Manager Cal Ripken Sr. was ejected in the Detroit seventh for the eighth time this season and second time during the four-game series. He was arguing about an infield single by Nokes.

CHICAGO (AP) — Greg Walker's two-run single capped a four-run first inning, and rookie Jack McDowell won his third consecutive game as the Chicago White Sox took their seventh straight victory by beating California, 6-3, here Thursday.

The Sox, equalling their longest win streak since May 14-21, 1986, improved their record to 25-12, best in the AL West, in the last five weeks. The White Sox swept the three-game series and improved their record to 50-38 since June 28.

McDowell, 3-0, since reporting Sept. 15 from the team's Class AA Birmingham farm club, survived a three-run homer by California's Jay Johnson in his second inning, allowing seven hits. Bobby Thigpen replaced McDowell and got his 15th save.

Boston 7 New York 5

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston's Al Nipper pitched a five-hitter to beat New York for the fourth time without a loss this season, 7-5 here Thursday.

Nipper, 11-12, pitched a five-hitter for his sixth complete game. He struck out eight and walked two. Three of the hits were home runs by Willie Randolph, Gary Ward and Dan Pasqua.

The Yankees led 5-3 entering the eighth, but Ed Romero opened the inning with a single off Dave Righetti, 8-6, and Spike Owen walked.

One out later, Ellis Burks singled home Romero. Marty Barrett followed with another single, scoring Owen, and when Righetti deflected the throw to the plate from center fielder Ward, Burks scored the go-ahead run.

Seattle 8 Texas 6

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Mickey Brantley's three-run homer helped Seattle's Mike Moore avoid his 20th loss this season as the Mariners beat the Texas Rangers 8-6 Thursday night.

Moore, 9-19, could have become the major league's first 20-game loser since Brian Kingman went 8-20 for Oakland in 1980.

But he stopped the Rangers on seven hits while walking one and striking out four in 7 1/3 innings. So Seattle was his ninth win through the first seven innings, only two outfield putouts were recorded. Edwin Nunez came on in the eighth, then Bill Wilkinson pitched the ninth for his eighth save.

Pittsburgh 12 Chicago 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Doug Drabek won for the ninth time in his last 11 decisions and Andy Van Slyke scored a four-run fifth inning with a run-scoring triple as Pittsburgh beat Chicago 12-3 Thursday night.

Van Slyke's triple was the first of five consecutive hits in the fifth against Scott Sanderson, 8-9, and Mike Mason, Darrell Coles, R.J. Reynolds, and Mike LaValle followed with run-scoring singles for a 6-1 lead.

NL: Santiago extends streak to 33

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego's Benito Santiago extended his rookie record hitting streak to 33 games with his eighth-inning bunt single, and Dave Collins had three doubles and scored twice to help give Cincinnati a 4-3 victory over the Padres Thursday.

It was the Padres' season-high eighth straight defeat and the Reds' first consecutive victory.

Santiago was 0-for-3 against starter Pat Pacillo, 3-3, before dropping his single down the third-base line leading off the eighth against reliever Frank Williams.

Williams was replaced by Rob Murphy, and after Santiago stole second, pinch runner Tony Gwynn reached first with a bunt single over Murphy's head, sending Santiago to third. Reliever Bill Landrum walked Carmelo Martinez intentionally, and Pat Perry came on and got Shane Mack to hit into a double play to end the inning. Perry got the final three outs for his second save.

The Reds took a 3-2 lead against starter Eric Nolte, 2-6, on Lloyd McClendon's run-scoring double in the fifth and added two runs in the sixth on consecutive doubles by Dave Collins and Dave Concepcion off reliever Ed Whitten.

The Padres trimmed the lead to 4-3 with a run in the bottom of the sixth against reliever John Montgomery when Randy Renz's single, which scored on a wild pitch, and scored on Randall Byers' single.

Collins led off the game with a double, moved to third on a groundout, and scored on Nolte's wild pitch.

The Padres went ahead 2-1 in the bottom of the second off Pacillo when Byers singled and Shawn Abner hit his second home run. The Reds tied the score in the fourth when McClendon walked and Terry McGriff and Kurt Stillwell hit consecutive singles.

Los Angeles 7 San Francisco 0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Welch pitched a one-hitter and singled in two runs as the Los Angeles Dodgers ended their home season with a 7-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants Thursday night.

Welch, 15-9, improved his career record against playoff-bound San Francisco to 19-4 with his third-career one-hitter. It also was his sixth complete game, his fourth shutout of the season and the 23rd of his career.

Carter and his teammates walked quietly into the calibration all around the ballpark.

Driessen, who was batting .218 while subbing most of the month for injured first baseman Jack Clark, hit a two-run double in the fourth inning to tie the 4-4 tie and score twice in the seventh.

The Cardinals also overcame several key injuries this year and managed to hang on despite a 33-33 record since July 23, the day they led Montreal by 9½ games and led the Mets by 10½.

Had the Expos won, they could have created a three-way playoff by winning three straight against Chicago and having New York sweep St. Louis.

But Cox, who had lost five of six September starts, was too tough in his second complete game of the season. Facing a Montreal lineup that had hit .447 against him this season, he gave up a run in the first before retiring 16 in a row.

Cox, 11-9, struck out four and walked one. The victory was just St. Louis' seventh in 18 games against the Expos this season.

Buhl defeats Boise JVs for 6th consecutive win

By The Times-News

BUHL — Casey Boyer ran for three first-half touchdowns and threw for another Thursday night in guiding the Buhl Indians to a 35-14 decision over the Boise juniors.

The victory improved third-ranked Buhl's season record to 6-0.

The Indians broke the non-league clash open with three second-quarter scores, after Boyer's one-yard sneak in the first period had opened scoring. He followed with a scoring catch of 13 and another sneak, then hooked up with Brad Arnsperg on a 13-yard scoring strike in the last minute of the half.

In the third quarter, Eric Beem provided the final Buhl points with a 33-yard return of an intercepted pass.

That was sandwiched between a pair of Boise scoring throws from Bob Sims to Bart Lance that covered 16 and 14 yards, respectively.

Idaho can untangle Big Sky race if Idaho State cooperates

By The Associated Press

Idaho has a chance to take some of the tangle out of the top-toy-rory Big Sky Conference football race this weekend when it takes on winless Idaho State University.

The trouble is, it's not the Vandals' turn to win.
Idaho and Idaho State have traded victories each year since 1981. The Vandals were the most recent winners, starting the Bengals' current 10-game losing streak early last October in Mpscow.

So even though 16th-ranked Idaho is 3-1 overall and 1-0 in the Big Sky after last week's victory over then-nationally ranked Northern Arizona, coach Keith Gilbertson is taking nothing for granted as his team ventures into IDU's Minidome for its third straight road game.

"I've said all along that to be champion in this league you make your own destiny week after week after week," Gilbertson said. "Poca-fella's not the most friendly of environments." It's been a hostile place for the Idaho-Vandals-to-go and historically he hasn't played well there.

But how hostile can it be when Idaho State has started three different quarterbacks in its three losing efforts? How tough can it be to score on a team that is last in NCAA Division I-A in defense—losing an average of 538 yards and 49 points per game?

Gilbertson insists despite the numbers, "These guys can beat any team in our conference."
For his part, Bengal coach Jim Knetter says the early trial by fire might actually have tempered his team to the league contests ahead.
"The first three games will help us because of the good competition," Knetter said. "We've come out of it except for the quarterback position and one defensive end position pretty injury-free."

The annual intrastate rivalry is one of only two matchups between Big Sky teams this Saturday. Boise State returns home to regroup its defense after a wild 55-44 loss to Weber State and hosts Montana State. Weber has the week off and the other conference teams face outside opponents.

Eastern Washington takes its 3-1 record on the road to face Stephen F. Austin, Montana will be continue the momentum it gained in a 41-29 victory over previously top-ranked Nevada-Reno last week when it travels to fourth-ranked Northern Iowa. No. 6 Reno goes south to face Nevada-Las Vegas, and Northern Arizona hosts Division II Sonoma State.

Montana State takes a 1-3 record into Boise after narrowly losing last weekend's conference opener at home against Eastern Washington. Boise State is 2-1 overall, but also can't lose only Big Sky game and has dropped from ninth in Division I-A to unranked.

MSU has lost all eight games it's played at Boise State, but Bobcat coach Earle Solomonson said he was hopeful a repeat of the kind of effort—his team had last week, minus a few mistakes, will be enough to end that string.

"We are making progress and improving both offensively, defensively and with special teams," he said. "We are very solid on all fronts and have a lot of outstanding players. I'm especially impressed with their skill people on offense."

Getting after it also will be the name of the game in Cedar Falls, Iowa, where Montana's Grizzlies will try to delay a fall to earth from the high they reached during last week's stunning upset of UNR.
But facing the second highest ranked team in as many weeks and with his team near the bottom of the Big Sky in most statistical categories, coach Don Read is anything but overconfident.

"Northern Iowa is a lot like Reno," he said. "They are very solid on all fronts and have a lot of outstanding players. I'm especially impressed with their skill people on offense."

In the southern Nevada desert, Reno hopes to get back to winning form against Division I rival Las Vegas. The Wolf Pack is 2-1 and stumbled in the I-AA rankings this week. But the Rebels are 0-2 and could be just the victim coach Chris Ault needs to take out his frustration after the loss to Montana. UNR's first regular-season defeat in 21 games.

A victory would let the Wolf Pack keep the Freeman-Cannon, symbolic of football supremacy in Nevada, until they again meet UNLV in 1989. Reno beat Las Vegas 48-7 when the two last met in 1985.

UNR also is the only team this year to stop 3-1 Eastern Washington, which can make a serious bid for a national ranking this weekend with a victory over I-AA Stephen F. Austin. The Eagles travel to Nacogdoches, Texas to meet the 1-2-1 Lumberjacks.

On the other hand, Northern Arizona has little to win and plenty to lose if it falls to Sonoma. The Cougars are 2-1, but so is NAU, and a second loss after last week's disappointing home defeat at the hands of Idaho that forced the Lumberjacks from the national I-AA rankings could put the season in a tailspin.

Gastineau fights way past striking teammates

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Mark Gastineau's problems with striking teammates took an ugly turn Thursday when he exchanged punches with one of them.

Gastineau is the only New York Jets veteran who has defied the NFL Players Association walkout. When he arrived at a security gate at the team's training camp Thursday morning, Gastineau was confronted by approximately 15 players walking a picket line.

The strikers taunted Gastineau with chants of "scab," pounded on his car, a gray Mercedes, and spit on it, according to a witness. When Gastineau opened the car window to get a pass from a security guard, he claims one of his teammates spit through the window.

"He would not identify the player," a witness said. "I was not even going to say anything when I rolled down the window," said Gastineau, who was accompanied by a female passenger. "I had to get out and defend myself when someone spits at me. My grandmother would have gotten out and defended herself if she was spit on."

Striking Jets have criticized Gastineau verbally ever since he defied the walkout two days after it began on Sept. 21. But this was the first face-to-face confrontation they've had with him.

The witness, who asked not to be identified, saw Gastineau get hit by several punches, but could not say which player or players threw them. A photographer for Newsday, a Long Island newspaper, also saw portions of the incident.

"There were punches from all directions," the witness said. "I know Gastineau was hit."

"The police were there — about seven motorcycles and three police cars. But they didn't do anything until it was over."

John Williams, the Newsday photographer, said several picketers tried to prevent him from taking pictures. The only one he identified was tight end Mickey Shuler, although Williams said wide receiver Wesley Walker warned him he "could be next."

"Shuler kept getting in my way, shielding me from taking pictures," Williams said. "Punches were landed."

Nassau County Police spokesman Hank McCann said only a verbal exchange between Gastineau and tackle Reggie McElroy, the alternate player representative, occurred.

"At approximately 9:45 a.m., Gastineau driving his car into the Hofstra University gate when McElroy banged on the hood and shouted something," police spokesman Hank McCann said. "He stepped the car, got out and they started toward each other. Marty Lyons stepped between them and there was only a verbal exchange.

"There was no police action, no report."

A Hofstra University report said the same thing.
Lyons would only say he did not intervene.

"I was too far away and didn't want to get involved," Lyons said. Most of the picketing Jets preferred to let player representative Kurt Sohn do the talking.

"He came out of the car swinging, Sohn said. Gastineau, whose shirt was ripped during the altercation. "He had a girl in the car, so he must have felt he had to defend her honor. He was trying to take on the whole team."

Gastineau said he wasn't surprised by the treatment from his striking teammates.
"I've said all along that I'm behind this team and this is one of the reasons," Gastineau said. "I know (Jets owner) Mr. Hezard won't spit on me if I had decided to go the other way."

"The actions are beginning to speak for themselves," Jets Coach Joe Walton would not comment on the incident, nor how it might affect team morale.

The picketing Jets were McElroy, Lyons, Walker, Shuler, Sohn, Ken O'Brien, Pat Ryan, Pat Leahy, Guy Birmingham, Kyle Clifton, Jerry Holmes, Bobby Humphrey, Rich Bianco, Tom Baldwin and Ted Biano, the witness said.

BYU respects Utah Staters

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young will enter Friday night's non-conference game against in-state rival and winless Utah State with momentum of a victory, but Cougar Coach LaVell Edwards isn't resting easy.
"It's the Aggies," said Edwards, a three-year letterman for Utah State in the early 1950s. "I don't have to tell you more."

Utah State is 32-27-3 against BYU since the two teams began the series in 1922, but the Aggies haven't won since 1982, when they took a 20-17 decision. Since then the Cougars have won four straight, including 52-0 and 44-0 victories the last two seasons.

Adding fuel to BYU's hopes, the Aggies are 0-3 with non-conference losses to Nebraska and Kentucky and a 30-11 Pacific Coast Athletic Association loss last week to Fullerton State.

"They're very frustrated right now," Edwards said. "They've had enough games against Nebraska and Kentucky. Utah has very good football teams."

"Utah State has played some very good football," he said. "Fullerton State is a lot better than most people realize."

The Cougars, 2-2, have had their troubles this season, losing to Nebraska and Texas Christian. They play a non-conference win over Texas and a 45-25 Western Athletic Conference victory over New Mexico last weekend.

Edwards praised his defense's BYU offense that concerns second-year Utah State Coach Chuck Shelton the most.

"I think BYU will have the best linebackers we've played against," Shelton said.
That's from a coach who's already seen No. 2 Nebraska and Kentucky.

"As a group of linebackers, they are better than Nebraska or Kentucky," Shelton said, of seniors J.C. VonColln and Richard Hobbs and "Utah State's Regan Hansen" and Tor Salanova. "If they get those two defensive backs returning to the lineup, they could be awfully good."

The Cougars have been hampered by injuries this season. Cornerback Rodney Rice and Rodney Thomas are questionable for Friday's game and a third player in the secondary, Troy Fuller, may have required his neck.

Also, cornerback Kirk Davis has been diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease. Although he is scheduled to start Friday, Davis said this may be his last game for the Cougars this season.

Shelton said he's basically happy with his offense, but it needs to be more consistent.

Bookies test treacherous line

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Odds at sports books carrying this weekend's NFL games continued to fluctuate with the return of striking players Thursday, with Tony Dorsett's presence moving the line on the Dallas Cowboys by as much as 12 points.

"The line makers, meanwhile, questioned the wisdom of even posting lines on the games as rosters continued to change and players trickled back to their teams.

"They're nuts, there's no other answer to it," Vic Salerno of Leroy's Race and Sports Book said. "How can you put a line on the 49ers if you don't know if Joe Montana is playing? This is ridiculous."

Dorsett's return for Sunday's game against the New York Jets caused Frontier Hotel book manager Bob Gregorka to boost the Cowboys from 2-point favorites to 3-point choices. Gregorka said he might raise the spread another half point.

"We're just watching the ticker for names, and as soon as they come change the line," he said. "In this case, we'd rather move it too fast than too slow."

At Harrah's in Reno, book manager Joe Bachman moved the Cowboys up from 2-point favorites to 3 1/2, and predicted the biggest swings in the line were to occur.

"I think tomorrow (Friday) is when we're going to find out who will actually be playing," Bachman said. "By then, there could be enough people over the (picket) line to really make a difference."

The games, featuring free agents, castoffs and strikebreakers, have caused a rare split among the legal sports books, who generally post the same games and have lines that seldom vary more than a half point.

While several books posted lines as early as Wednesday, some continued to hold off, saying it didn't make sense to risk posting a point spread without knowing who would be playing.

"Those other joints that are rushing to put up numbers, I don't know what they're going to do with all these players jumping back to their teams," said Keith Glantz, whose Palace Station sports book did not post odds.

Glantz said that had he booked the games, he might have made the Cowboys even bigger favorites.

"Dorsett and Danny White in the same backfield has got to be worth more than that," he said of the 3- to 3 1/2-point spread.

The books posting lines said betting was slow.
"It's real light here," Bachman said. "The Raiders game is getting some business and so is the Broncos game. But that's about it."

Glantz agreed, saying he didn't expect to lose much by not putting up a line as early as some of the other books.
"I think the action the other places are getting is very slow at best," he said. "No one is interested in playing these games."

But Gregorka said his confidence in the line was growing so much that he planned to raise limits at the Palace on Friday from $500 to $2,000 per game. That still pales compared to the $20,000 some books accept on regular NFL games.

"It will be very interesting," Gregorka said. "It's starting to be fun. We're balancing the books and we don't think we'd be able to do that."

NFL refunds 250,000 tickets

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Three days before the NFL was to resume games while its regular players remained on strike, teams had refunded nearly a quarter of a million tickets for Sunday's games.

With 10 of the 14 teams who will be at home this weekend reporting, 225,094 tickets had been returned by fans who did not wish to attend games played by replacement players.

The largest number of refunds were issued in New York where 40,000 fans turned in tickets for the Jets' game against the Dallas Cowboys. The game had been a sellout at $78.99-a-ticket. Giants Stadium and, at $20 per ticket, the refunds cost the Jets $800,000.

In Philadelphia, 31,000 tickets had been turned in, more than half of the 61,000 sold for the Eagles game against Chicago.

In Cincinnati, tickets scheduled to play Monday night against San Francisco in Giants Stadium, reportedly 20,000 tickets returned. They were available in the box office for walkup sales, but business for them has been less than brisk.

"At this point, we don't have a demand for the game," a ticket office official said.

At Detroit, more than half of the 40,000 tickets sold for the Lions' game Sunday against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, were turned back.

Bill Keenist, a spokesman for the team, said the number of refunds was lower than some teams had experienced. "I think it's certainly better than some teams have had," he said.

The Washington Redskins' string of 159 consecutive games at RFK Stadium was in serious jeopardy. The club would not say how many refunds had been requested for Sunday's game against St. Louis, but it seemed certain there would be empty seats in RFK Stadium for a Redskins' game for the first time since 1985.

At Ragsdale, ticket manager for the Atlanta Falcons, could not estimate refunds for Sunday's game against Pittsburgh. He said he thought the crowd for the game would be 20,000-25,000, but that was strictly a guess.

"With all the threats and so forth being bandied about, who knows what the fans are thinking?" he said.

Seattle, another regularly sold-out team, reported about 30,000 tickets returned for its game against Miami. Mike McCormack, president and general manager of the team, said he expected the 65,000-seat Kingdome to be about half full.

Wednesday, the Seahawks sold about 800 tickets at half-price before being informed by the NFL Management Council that ticket prices should not be reduced for strike games.

Pat Sullivan, general manager of the New England Patriots, said more than 30,000 refunds had been granted for Sunday's game against Cleveland. The stadium seats 61,000 and a sellout had been anticipated.

At Denver, where the Broncos sell out every game, no figure on refunds was available. Spokesman Jim Saccomano said the team expected a crowd of 50,000 for the game against Houston. That would grant for Sunday's game against Cleveland, the stadium seats 61,000 and a sellout had been anticipated.

"Let's just say (ticket manager) Gail Stuckey has a nice basement full over at the ticket office," Saccomano said. "It's a lot more than we had hoped for and a lot less than it might have been."

Boxes of unopened mail and long lines of ticket holders showed up at the Vikings' offices in Minnesota, where Green Bay plays Sunday.

"Some people are here to buy tickets," a ticket office employee said, adding, "We have a nice selection."

Figures were also unavailable from the Los Angeles Raiders by Thursday afternoon.

Stull is working his healing powers on ailing UTEP program

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Football Writer

Bob Stull appears to be another coach who specializes in healing ailing football programs.
Stull is in his fourth year as a college head coach and second at the University of Texas at El Paso.
His 1984 team at Massachusetts was 3-8, but the next year the Minutemen were 7-4. That was the third-best turnaround among Division I-A teams and it got Stull a national Coach of the Year award.

UTEP is probably the only school in the country where, after winning four games, people think you have turned the corner, Stull said.
After the Miners failed to win more than two games for 11 consecutive years, Stull produced a 4-8 record, with victories over Northern Michigan, New Mexico State, Colorado State and Utah. It could easily have been 7-5. UTEP lost to Air Force 23-21 on a field goal with one second left, lost to New Mexico 24-22 when the wind blew a field goal attempt off-line in the closing seconds, and dropped a 16-0 decision when Western Athletic Conference champion San Diego State recovered its own fumble in the end zone for a touchdown.

The last two victories came at the end of the 1986 season and the carry-over winning streak is five years in a row for the first time in 20 seasons. UTEP is 2-0 for the first time since 1965, as the Miners head for a Saturday night game at Arizona State.

Stull would be 8-8 at a school which hasn't had a coach with a winning record since Bobby Dobbs (41-36-2) resigned with four games left in the 1974 campaign.

Bill Yung, Stull's predecessor, was 7-39 in four seasons, although Stull points out that Yung did not leave the cupboard completely devoid of talent.

"Texas-El Paso hasn't had a better year since 1987," the Miners beat New Mexico State 31-0 — their first shutout since 1910 — Colorado State 45-6 and Hawaii 31-13.

"We got beat in three areas — offense, defense and the kicking game," Hawaii Coach Bob Wagner said. "UTEP was well-coached and the better team."

Texas-El Paso is averaging 37.7 points per game, fifth-best in the country. The only team outscoring the Miners are the top four teams in The Associated Press poll — Oklahoma (64.0), Nebraska (44.3), Miami (41.0) and Florida State (39.0).

Oklahoma, which led the nation in six categories last year, also is No. 1 in total offense (529.0 yards per game) and scoring (412.7) and scoring (412.7).

Pat Hogarty, Texas-El Paso's quarterback, showed up for the preseason media fan day with a hairdo that would have made Brian Bosworth proud. Hogarty's uniform number (19) was trimmed into the hair on the back of his head.

When UCLA defeated Arizona 34-24 last weekend, it extended the nation's two longest scoring streaks to 186 and 173 consecutive games.

UTCLA can see Southern California's national mark of 186 games (1967-83) against Stanford Saturday.

Grant Teaff has coached at Baylor (16 seasons) longer than all but five coaches in Southwest Conference history.

Only Jess Neely (27 years at Rice) and Bill Yeoman (24 years at Houston), Darrell Royal (20 years at Texas), Brent Brainerd (19 years at Arkansas) and Dutch Meyer (19 years at Texas Christian) have more seniority at one SWC school than Teaff.

Arizona State Coach John Cooper on last week's 35-28 loss to second-ranked Nebraska.

"They didn't panic. That's the great thing about a great football team like the Big Red. They didn't panic at all. They knew what they had to do."

"We kick off with them with five minutes to go and they take the ball and go score the winning touchdown. If you had told me the score would be tied with five minutes left and we're kicking off in Sun Devil Stadium — we're going to win. I don't care who we're playing."

Miami of Florida not only has the nation's longest regular-season winning streak (23 games), but hasn't lost to a regular-season road contest since Sept. 5, 1984, when the Hurricanes were beaten by Michigan 22-14, a game in which Bernie Koser was intercepted six times.

Denise increases gas mileage by 22% to 40%

On July 11th, the government awarded National FuelSaver Corp. $22,000 for developing a simple automotive accessory that increases gas mileage by 22 percent.
Called the Platinum GasSaver, it injects microscopic quantities of platinum into the airstream entering the engine.
The injector itself takes only minutes to install, while the platinum entering the engine increases the percentage of each gallon burning in the engine from the normal 68 percent to 90 percent.
Normally, that 22 percent would only burn when it came in contact with the platinum-coated surfaces of the catalytic converter. But with the GasSaver introducing the platinum into the engine, platinum catalysis can now burn that fuel in the engine vehicle, before the heat and engine is burned to drive that and meets EPA and California standards.

Federal Judge Walter Jay Stinner concluded the five-year administrative procedure studying the GasSaver by stating, "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the GasSaver than the 22 percent claimed by its developer, National Fuel-Saver Corp."
In another study concluded recently, the government confirmed that the Platinum GasSaver raises the octane of gasoline, eliminating the need for premium gasoline.
Joe Robinson, the developer, commented, "We've already sold over 100,000 GasSavers. Ironically, we find more people buying the GasSaver for its indirect benefit of extending engine life, than buy it for fuel savings or octane boosting. Ever since our economy became battered by OPEC in 1973, we've been convinced it would be a small company like ourselves that would reverse the trend of higher fuel costs."
The Platinum GasSaver has a full money back guarantee. For further information, call 1-800-527-6563.

Little leaves coaching job

CHICAGO (AP) — Assistant coach Gene Little of the Chicago Bulls has resigned to pursue other interests, the NBA team announced Thursday. Little had been with the Bulls for one season under Coach Doug Collins. Prior to that he had been an assistant in the NBA with Cleveland for four years and with Utah for three years. The move leaves the Bulls with two assistants, Tex Winter and John Bach. General Manager Jerry Krause said Little resigned with permission of the Bulls and that he wished Little luck. A successor will be named but no time was set.

NFL game site switched

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL announced Thursday it has reversed the sites of the home-and-home series between the Minnesota Vikings and Tampa Bay Bucs and Atlanta Falcons and San Francisco 49ers because of possible conflicts with baseball's playoffs. League spokesman Jim Heffernan said the Tampa Bay-Minnesota game originally scheduled for Minneapolis on Oct. 18 now will be played in Tampa. The Nov. 15 game that was to have been played in Tampa will be in Minneapolis. In addition, the Oct. 11 San Francisco-Atlanta game now will be in Atlanta instead of San Francisco with the return game Dec. 20 in San Francisco instead of Atlanta.

Title fight scheduled

PERUGIA, Italy (AP) — Lupe Aquino of Mexico makes the first defense of his World Boxing Council super-welterweight title against Italian challenger Gianfranco Rosi on Friday night and predicts he'll keep the crown with an early knockout. "Afterward we can have dinner together because I don't hate my opponents. Aggressiveness is gone when one steps out of the ring," the 25-year-old champion said on the eve of the match in Rosi's hometown.

Aquino, who won the title from American Duane Thomas last July "in the most difficult fight of my career," agreed to put his crown at stake for a $150,000 purse. "I am well trained, fit. Rosi has no chance. I am going to knock him out in the early rounds," said the Mexican, who conceded, however, that he has never seen Rosi in action. "I have studied a cassette of his most recent fights. I know enough of him," he added.

Rosi, six years older than Aquino, holds the European super-welterweight title. "I am aware that he is powerful and technical, that he is a tough opponent. But in boxing the loser is never certain," said Rosi.

The world champion has a record of 31 wins — 22 by knockout — one draw and two losses; Rosi's record is 41-0-2. To show his confidence, Aquino said his manager already is arranging a second title defense against Frenchman Said-Freddy Skouma in Monte Carlo next month. The scheduled 12-round fight will be held at the local indoor sports palace with a sellout crowd of 4,000 expected.

Oakland's Stewart says he deserves Young award, but doubts he'll get it OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Oakland's Dave Stewart, the first 20-game winner in the major leagues this season, said Thursday he deserves the American League Cy Young award but doesn't expect to get it. A castoff pitcher with a losing career record 17 months ago, Stewart has mastered a forkball and has thrown faster than ever late in the season in posting a 20-12 record with one start left Sunday at Chicago.

He also brought together nuggets of advice from such teachers as Hall of Famer Sandy Koufax, Don Sutton and Charlie Hough in becoming one of baseball's most dominant pitchers. "There are some guys who are deserving of the Cy Young, like Roger Clemens, Jimmy Key and Tim Lincecum, but I can't say any of those guys being more consistent than I was all year," Stewart said.

"I'm not sure all those guys have meant as much to their clubs as I have to mine," he said. "But I don't think I have much of a shot. I think Jimmy Key of Toronto has the inside track. Players in the majors have an edge over guys in the West, plus he's on a winning club."

Stewart, a right-hander, was released by Philadelphia on May 9, 1986. He was deemed washed up after pitching only four innings for the Phillies following a mediocre two-year stint with the Texas Rangers. The A's signed the Oakland native two weeks later for the major-league minimum salary of $60,000.

Stewart figured he had something to prove, although he had to downplay the bitterness he had toward the three teams that had released him.

"I haven't thought about last year," he said after beating Cleveland 4-3 Wednesday night in grinding his 20th victory in his fifth try. "What happened in the past is gone."

"I'm grateful to the (Los Angeles) Dodgers for bringing me into professional ball, Texas was a learning experience, and Philadelphia was a learning experience, too." Stewart, who began this season throwing fastballs in the 88-90 mph range but lately has been throwing about 95 mph, learned from some of the best.

"I talked to Don Sutton about endurance, Charlie Hough about patience and getting mentally prepared, and Sandy Koufax about learning to use one side of the plate effectively," he said.

Oakland Manager Tony La Russa had no idea last year that he had inherited a stopper, despite Stewart's impressive rookie season in 1981 when he had a 2.51 earned run average and six saves for Los Angeles.

Stewart started and won La Russa's first game at Oakland on July 7, then won seven of his most important decisions in a 9-5 season, convincing his manager.

This season, La Russa watched Stewart help carry the club into first place in the American League West before the Athletics faltered in August and September. Even while failing to win his 20th game in four starts, Stewart pitched well.

"He's not just the mainstay of our club, he's the mainstay of the league," La Russa said. "Nobody's done what Dave Stewart has this year from the beginning. He deserves the Cy Young Award."

La Russa summoned his ace from the clubhouse in response to the crowd's demand after Wednesday's game, then escorted him into the field and embraced him. "That was the high point of the season," Stewart said. "I was in the locker room and people in the stands stood and clapped and yelled until I came out. Then they kept screaming my name, and chanting, 'Cy Young, Cy Young.' It was nice."

Fourteen of Stewart's victories have come after A's defeats.

"Nobody's had stopped losing streaks like he has," La Russa said. In 36 starts this year, Stewart has a 3.62 ERA, 199 strikeouts and has allowed 216 hits in 256 2-3 innings. He inherited the status of No. 1 pitcher partly because of injuries to Joaquin Andujar.

His 20 victories mark the first time an Oakland pitcher has reached that figure since Mike Norris was 22-9 in 1980. Even so Stewart's career record is only 59-52.

Signed by the Dodgers in 1975 as a catcher, Stewart was made a pitcher that year and posted four consecutive double-digit victory seasons in the minor leagues from 1977-1980.

He capped his rookie year with two runless appearances in relief in the 1981 World Series. After going 9-8 with a 3.81 ERA primarily as a starter in 1982, he was sent back to the bullpen the next year and had a 2.96 ERA with eight saves, before the Dodgers dealt him to Texas that August.

Stewart won five of eight starts in an impressive finish to the 1983 season, but never returned to form until last year. When he went 7-14 as a starter in 1984 and 0-6, 4.42, mostly as a reliever the next year, the Rangers sent him to Philadelphia in September 1985.

Off-season surgery to remove bone chips in his right elbow put Stewart close to being out of baseball before his comeback.

Tutored by A's pitching coach Dave Duncan — he polished a forkball he had only toyed with in the past and gained confidence in throwing breaking pitches for strikes.

"The thing that was best about the season for me was that all the things I've learned through the years, I was able to use in one way or another during the season," Stewart said. "Maybe I'll be like Sandy Koufax. He struggled for a long time, but then he became the best in baseball for several years."

Frost rides nine birdies into two-shot tourney lead

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — South African David Frost made nine birdies en route to a 7-and-par 63 Thursday and a two-stroke lead after the first round of the $400,000 Southern Open golf tournament.

Mike Hulbert, Ken Brown of England and Vance Heafner were tied for second after one round over the par-70, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course. Hale Irwin was another shot back.

The 28-year-old Frost, who has yet to win during his three years on tour, is 10th on the money list this year with earnings of more than $387,390, including two second-place finishes.

"My putter was hot. I really putted well," Frost, who makes his home in Dallas, said in an understatement.

After opening with a bogey, Frost, who made putts ranging from 40 feet to one inch, birdied his next two holes on putts of 10 feet. He then added another 10-footer on No. 6 and his one-inch birdie came on No. 8.

Frost, who has the lowest stroke average on the tour at 70.32, knocked in four straight, with a 5-footer on No. 10, a 20-footer on 11, an 8-footer on 12 and the 40-footer on No. 13.

He had his second bogey on No. 14 before capping his round — a record low score for an opening round here — with a 20-foot birdie putt on the par-5, 18th hole.

Frost, who lost the Western Open last year in a playoff, said: "If I keep posting the scores, maybe one day it (a victory) will happen."

Hulbert, Brown and Heafner each had similar rounds, recording five birdies and no bogeys under ideal weather conditions over the hilly, narrow course.

Another two strokes off the lead at 67 were Dan Furman, Keith Clearwater and Gibby Gilbert. J.C. Snead headed a group at 68 while John Cook, Mac O'Grady and Roger Maltbie were at 69.

Masters champion Larry Mize, who lives in a condominium across the street from the course, was at 70. PGA winner Larry Nelson had a 71. Defending champion Fred Wadsworth was at 72 and Payne Stewart, the No. 6 money winner shot a 74.

No. 17 saves Australia and Japan in Dunhill matches

ST ANDREW'S, Scotland (AP) — The notorious 17th Road Hole at St Andrew's came to the rescue of Australia and Japan Thursday as last year's Dunhill Cup finalists were facing first-round exits in the $1 million team golf tournament.

While the other seeded teams — the United States, Spain, Scotland, Canada, Ireland and England — all moved into the quarterfinals without losing a match, Australia and Japan had to scramble in order to advance.

Australia beat Sweden 2-1, while Japan defeated Malaysia by the same score. But both faced defeat before vital errors by their opponents at the 17th.

The Road Hole that claimed a nine from Japan's Tommy Nakajima in the 1978 British Open and ruined Tom Watson's bid for a record-equalling sixth Open victory in 1984, was the turning point in Greg Norman's match against Sweden's Mats Lanner and Nobumitsu Yuhara's match against Zainal Abidin Yusoff of Malaysia.

Yusoff took a 10, after leading Yuhara by one stroke with the fourth shot. On Wednesday night, he hit a four wood and over-shot the green, the ball landing on the edge of the road.

He needed five shots to reach his green — including four with his mates — know his opinions on whether the issues were worth continuing the strike.

"I took a sand-iron, but there was too much gravel to get a clean hit and when I hit the ball, it went up the slope and came back again," Yusoff said after his 8-over-par 80 meant a five-stroke defeat.

"I then took the putter. I tried four times, and each time the ball rolled back again. The harder I hit it, the faster it came back."

Lanner's problems came after countryman Eke Selberg had given Sweden a lead by beating Roger Davis by six shots.

"There's no doubt the 17th hole turned the match around. It seems to be a nemesis for many golfers."

"I'm not sure what the issues are, but I want to know about them," he said. "When they come out and tell us exactly what the issues are, we're facing now, I'll tell the players."

"Things have been discussed. I can't lie and say they haven't," he said.

Kelly will stay out with teammates

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Quarterback Jim Kelly, whose weekly salary of about $95,000 is the biggest in the NFL, insists he won't return to the Buffalo Bills until the rest of his striking team advances.

But Kelly acknowledged he's still not sure why he and the other players are on strike and criticized the NFL Players Association for not getting the players enough information on the issues. "We're getting some (information) but we're not getting as much as I'd like," he said as he walked the picket line Wednesday night.

Kelly, said he wasn't sure "what the real reason is why we're striking," but he said he didn't believe the players were "striking for foolish reasons."

He said that when he's certain of the reasons, he would let his team

Business

August factory orders take drastic decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders to U.S. factories fell 1.7 percent in August as a big drop in demand for aircraft and weaker military orders contributed to the first setback in manufacturing since January, the government said Thursday.

The Commerce Department said orders for both durable and non-durable goods declined to $202.6 billion in August following a small 0.3 percent gain in July.

Some analysts said the weakness in August was merely a temporary setback after a string of healthy gains, but other economists said the downturn may be more ominous, especially given the fact that inventories have been rising as well.

In a second report, the Commerce Department said construction spending shot up 1.6 percent in August to an annual rate of $309.6 billion, the biggest increase in four months.

Analysts dismissed the gain as a temporary upturn which did not change their view that construction will be a drag on economic growth this year because of widespread overbuilding in offices and apartments and the adverse impact of the new tax law.

The report on factory orders showed weakness in both military and civilian orders in August. Demand for military equipment fell 3.8 percent in August to $9.6 billion.

Orders in the key category of non-defense capital goods, a good indication of business investment plans, plunged a sharp 8.1 percent in August.

Some economists viewed the setback in capital equipment orders as a reflection that higher interest rates were forcing businesses to scale back their equipment purchases.

But Michael Penzer, an economist at Bank of America in San Francisco, said that the setback in capital equipment followed strong gains during the early part of the year. He said for the first seven months of the year, capital equipment orders had been rising by an average of 1.5 percent a month.

He also dismissed the overall drop in orders for August, contending that gains in overseas sales by American businesses had already translated into higher factory production and would continue to do so.

"To have a one-month decline is nothing to get worried about. The trend is very positive, reflecting increasing exports of U.S.-manufactured goods," he said.

The 1.7 percent drop in August orders was the first decline since a record 5.5 percent fall in orders last January, a decrease which had been blamed on initial turmoil caused by the new tax law.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, took a more pessimistic view of the August figures, noting that inventories of manufactured goods rose 0.6

"We have the wrong combination. We have orders going way down and inventories going way up," he said.

Evans said he believed the growth in inventory and weak demand for new orders would hold back overall economic activity in coming months: He predicted that the economy, as measured by the gross national product, will expand at a sluggish 2 percent rate in the second half of the year.

This is more pessimistic than most economists, who are calling for growth of around 3 percent in the second half of the year, down only slightly from the 3.4 percent growth in the first six months of the year.

In August, new orders for durable goods, items expected to last three or more years, fell 2.7 percent. This was a slight recovery from an advance report last week which put the decline at 3.1 percent.

Orders for non-durable goods fell 0.6 percent in August, reversing a 0.6 percent increase in July. Some of the largest declines were in textiles and paper products.

The decline in military orders was the second in a row, following an even larger 2.2 percent drop in July. Without the weakness in military equipment, factory orders would have still fallen in August by 1.6 percent, the first decline in the civilian category since January.

By industry, the biggest decline was in the transportation sector, where orders fell 3.9 percent to $26.9 billion, with a decrease in demand for aircraft more than offsetting an increase in orders for motor vehicles.

Orders for non-electrical machinery fell 2.8 percent to $18.3 billion, while orders for electrical machinery were down 0.8 percent to $19.3 billion.

Orders for primary metals such as steel fell 2.9 percent to $9.4 billion.

Shipments of manufactured products rose 0.3 percent in August to $200 billion.

Uncle Sam will soon take plastic money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans, who have been able to settle up with Uncle Sam only by check or money order, will soon be able to charge it on their credit cards.

The Treasury Department announced Thursday that it has signed the first government-wide contract which will enable federal agencies to accept credit cards from the public.

Currently, only the U.S. Customs Service and the Justice Department have agreed to participate in the credit card program, but officials said 40 other federal agencies, including the Internal Revenue Service, are considering whether to offer the public the option of paying their government bills by either Visa or MasterCard.

The IRS has expressed a willingness to let taxpayers use credit cards, but officials said the change will require approval from Congress before it can go into effect.

The financial institutions awarded contracts to provide credit card services to federal agencies were Citibank of New York, Security Pacific National Bank of Los Angeles, Mellon Bank of Philadelphia and First National Bank of Louisville, Ky.

These banks will contract over about a dozen financial institutions who originally bid for the right to serve as collection agencies for federal agencies.

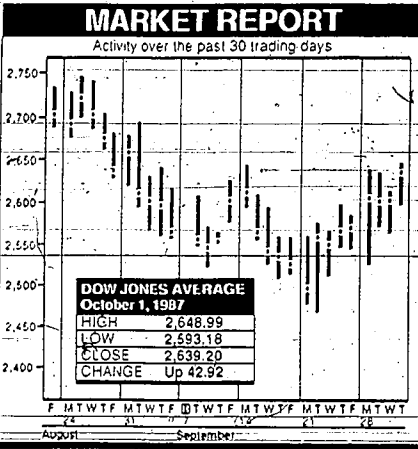

The first agency expected to make use of the new program is the Customs Service, which said it hoped to begin allowing travelers to pay customs duties by credit card at major U.S. airports by Christmas.

Additionally, the Justice Department said it expects to soon begin allowing the use of credit cards for the payment of fines at U.S. attorney's offices nationwide.

Officials would not disclose the exact amount the government is paying to the banks but said the figure was about 10 percent lower than what the banks charged commercial businesses.

Officials said the volume of charges could range between $3 billion and $10 billion annually. Even if it is at the low end of that scale, they said, the government would be able to save about $2 million annually by getting use of the money faster.

Sharp advance extends stocks' rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rose sharply Thursday, extending the rally it began last month with a lift from hopes for strong third-quarter earnings reports.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks jumped 42.92 to 2,639.20, stretching its gain over the past eight sessions to 146.38 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange reached 193.20 million shares, against 183.07 million in the previous session.

Analysts said traders were beginning to look ahead optimistically to corporate earnings reports for the third quarter which ended Wednesday.

The figures, with a few notable exceptions, are expected to show more of the improving trend that began early this year.

Interest rates rose in the credit markets Thursday, but settled back from their early highs.

Charles Jensen, an analyst at MKI Securities Inc., said hopes appeared to be spreading that bond prices were close to a turning point after their decline over the last six months.

Those hopes are pinned largely to signs that the dollar has stabilized in foreign exchange, and to expectations that forthcoming data on the nation's trade balance will show improvement.

Gainers among the blue chips included Ford Motor, up 3/4 at 101 1/4; Philip Morris, up 1/2 at 120 1/4; Eastman Kodak, up 3/4 at 105 1/4; International Business Machines, up 1/2 at 154 1/4; and American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1 at 34 1/4.

Buying spread into a broad range of industry groups, including such manufacturing sectors as forest products and chemical stocks.

In the paper and forest products group, International Paper rose 3/4 to 64 1/4; Boise Cascade 3/4 to 83 3/4; Weyerhaeuser 1 1/2 to 63 3/4; and Louisiana-Pacific 1 1/2 to 39.

Among the chemicals, DuPont picked up 1 to 120 1/4; Dow Chemical 2 to 107 1/4; and Monsanto 3/4 to 98.

Semiconductor and other technology stocks also were broadly higher. National Semiconductor, up 1 1/2 at 20 1/4; Texas Instruments, up 3/4 at 78; Motorola, up 3/4 at 73 1/4; Hewlett-Packard, up 2 at 72 1/4; and

Utah company expanding

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — IRECO Inc., a Salt Lake City-based industrial explosives manufacturer, has acquired ECONEX Inc. and Econexpress Inc., Wheaton, Ill.

ECONEX also is a manufacturer and distributor of industrial explosives. Econexpress Inc. is an associated transportation company.

The purchase adds 150 employees to IRECO rolls which now total 1,500 worldwide, said M. Garfield Cook, president.

IRECO employs 360 in Utah plants in West Jordan and Lehi.

Addition of ECONEX will strengthen IRECO's explosives

IRECO was founded 25 years ago through the merger of International Research and Engineering Co., Salt Lake City, and Mesabi Blasting Co., Virginia, Minn.

IRECO uses explosives technology based upon the investigations of Cook's father, University of Utah physical chemistry and metallurgical professor Dr. Melvin A. Cook.

IRECO now does about $200 million annually in business out of 30 plants around the world, Cook said.

Steel industry turnaround has dark side

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Job cuts, plant closings, productivity improvements and import controls have returned profits to American steel producers after a long period of devastating financial losses.

But the industry's turnaround has meant something else to Russ Weidner.

"Right now we can't buy for love nor money a pound of steel for delivery in 1987," said the executive vice president of Paragon Industries Inc., a producer of welded drilling pipe based in Glenpool, Okla. "We just can't get steel."

Paragon uses hot-rolled steel, a semi-finished product, for its drilling pipe. Weidner said if he could get as much steel as customers were demanding, the 4-year-old company could triple its sales of approximately $1 million a month.

"The market now is pretty hot because our industry has gone through a dramatic change in the last 12 months," he said.

With oil prices edging higher, the number of drilling rigs operating in the United States has increased to about 1,000 from around 600 last year. With the oil price collapse, the rig count fell from nearly 4,000 early in the 1980s, and drillers and their suppliers took the plunge as well.

Similar forces have been at work in the steel industry. An abundance of American metal and cheap, imported steel collided with sluggish demand from drillers and other steel users.

To adapt to the changing environment, steel producers closed plants, slashed work force, trimmed wages and successfully lobbied for import controls, which have contained foreign steel's share to roughly one-fifth of the U.S. market.

With the U.S. demand for foreign steel waning, American producers are experiencing greater demand for their products. Surviving domestic mills are being used more efficiently, order books for most products are filled through year's end, and prices have stabilized.

"It's more of a supplier's market than it's been in quite some time," said Robert Toothman, a spokesman for National Steel Corp., one of Paragon's suppliers.

National's mills are running at full throttle, and the company's order book is filled into January for its major products, including hot-rolled, cold-rolled and coated sheet, he said Tuesday.

"Hot rolled usually lags the others, and it's right out there with them, maybe even leading the pack," Toothman said.

The sounds of satisfaction are echoed by others.

"The people who used to be able to snafu their fingers and have every steel company in the world groveling at their feet are finding that they have to do a little more waiting," said an executive for another major producer who spoke on condition he not be named.

"For the first time in many years, you're seeing supply and demand coming together," he said. "Things are coming back to the normal way of doing business."

Tour brings exchange of folklore and songs

By SHANNON CORPON
Times-News correspondent

The search is on. Rosalie Sorrells, an acclaimed folksinger, songwriter and storyteller, is asking local bathtub crooners and kitchen hummers to share some of their favorite tunes with her.

The Idaho native, who has recorded 15 albums, is conducting a 30-stop concert tour of Idaho in search of Gem State musical memories. The tour is part of a project sponsored by the Idaho Centennial Commission.

Sorrells is kicking off the seven month tour with a song swap scheduled with the Czechoslovakian community in Buhl this afternoon at 2 p.m. at Lincoln Court. She will also appear in concert tonight at 8 p.m. at the Filer High School auditorium.

"I think these old songs and stories are very valuable," says Sorrells, who is currently living in a family cabin in the mountains outside Idaho City. "I hope to hear from people who know old lullabies, or songs about specific kinds of work. I'm looking for songs that describe coming from another place to this place, songs that describe heroes or old outlaws or periods of time, and songs that describe the daily life of the people who lived here."

Tunes will be collected by Sorrells from groups and individuals throughout the state, and then gathered by the Idaho Centennial Commission into state archives. A representative group of those songs will be selected to go into a songbook that will be sold as a Centennial project.

Jean Terra, manager of the Idaho Folk Song Project, says that Sorrells is excited about doing the first concert in Twin Falls County.

"She's a wonderful storyteller — both sets of grandparents settled in Idaho and her mother's from Twin Falls. So she has a wealth of stories of her own and also has 30 years of experience collecting," she says. Sorrells notes that her maternal grandparents, James and Arabel Kelly, farmed near Twin Falls, and that some of her early memories are of her grandfather singing while he separated milk. Her paternal grandfather, a missionary to the Crow and Sioux Indians, crossed the plains from Virginia in 1899. She remembers her parental grandmother singing to her, too.

Her parents, Walter and Nancy Stringfellow, also left an oral legacy.

"My father had a lovely tenor voice and he sang all the time," says Sorrells. "My mother read to me — she read me to sleep every night."

Sorrells says that during this tour she would like to find a specific song that one of her grandmothers, a quilter, used to sing.

The song is about a young girl who's mother begins to teach her how to make a quilt using a Star of Bethlehem pattern. The girl sews the quilt and puts it in the cedar chest her parents give her for her wedding trousseau.

She becomes a young woman and marries. The last line of the song is: "And tonight my love and I will sleep under the Star of Bethlehem."

"I'd like to find that song," says Sorrells. "I think those songs are as valuable as any old antique you can find. You can learn a lot about human beings and who they are by the things that they keep. That's what this project is about. It's to help track out the history of Idaho and learn a little more about the human side of people."

Sorrells, who has been performing professionally for 30 years, has played in clubs, coffeehouses and universities all over the United States, Canada and Europe.

She has appeared in benefit concerts with the likes of the Grateful Dead and country Joe MacDonald ("I like those people a lot"), and sung with Utah Phillips, David Bromberg, Mitch Greenhill and Terry Garthwaite.

She has taught at the University of Utah and has contributed material to the Life Collection, an extensive collection of western folk music housed at Utah State University at Logan.

The 64-year-old Idaho musician has also served on the board of directors of the Newport Folk Festival and on the advisory board of the New York City Folk Festival.

What began as a hobby became a career when her marriage broke up.

"I more or less took this up as a profession because of lack of job skills," says Sorrells. "It was the only thing available to me in terms of a profession, because I had taught and I had made records and I had a lot of contacts to help me do that and get paid for it. I didn't get paid a lot, but I certainly got paid more than I would have doing the only other thing I knew how to do: taking care of babies and scrubbing floors."

She laughs, then says, "Nobody pays you for that."

Sorrells lived in Utah for 13 years, and collected "a couple hundred" Mormon songs during that time.

She says that though she is not Mormon, she's interested in the folk part of their history.

"I used to go to the Mormon ladies' quilting bees and I would sing them some old songs, and then they would sing me some. They sang me songs about crossing the plains, about coming to Utah, about the seagulls and the crickets, and about their life in pioneer days," she says.

Sorrells says she enjoys tracing folk tunes through hundreds of years of changes. The process of a song changing as it's passed from generation to generation is called "oral transmission," she notes.

"The first one I ever did is an album called 'The Unfortunate Rake' (Folkway Record). It's probably 30 or more versions of the same song from the first time anybody

Star Trek ventures out to future generations

By The Associated Press

My, how the future has changed. The crew of the new "Star Trek" television series will have a new slogan: To boldly go where no ONE has gone before. They still may be splitting infinitives, but they are not going to be sexist about it.

The premiere of "Star Trek: The Next Generation" fills Trekkies with fear and anticipation. How can anyone recreate the appeal of that weekly space psycho-drama that remains a cult favorite? As a latter-day Trekkie, I have my doubts.

I should confess, however, I became a Trekkie only in the last year, sort of like being born again while last rites are being administered. Of course, I knew of the show and had watched it reruns on and off over the years.

But not like my college friend Denise. She could not only spout instant trivia about each actor or actress but could recount the plot of every show in such minute detail that the re-telling exceeded the original in length.

I became an addict only when I fell into the habit of watching a midnight show as a kind of nightcap. It became an intergalactic lullaby; I could fall asleep knowing Capt. Kirk's at the helm, Dr. McCoy and Spock are locked in another philosophical debate, and all's right with the universe.

Still, I could not help but notice that, beside the repetitive dialogue (Sample: Dr. McCoy — "He's dead, Jim."), the show repeated a few basic themes ad infinitum. Such as:

Pearson authors another spellbinder

By JOHN ZILLY
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Late this summer, local thriller writer Ridley Pearson became a best-selling author. His current book, "The Seizing of the Yankee Green Mall," jumped onto the Northwest best-seller list for a week, just above Stephen King's new book.

And — Pearson's next book, "Undercurrents," is already making its mark even though it isn't scheduled to hit the bookstores until next spring.

Recently, Martin Bregman, producer of such movies as "Scarface," "A Dog Day Afternoon" and "Stripes," bought the option rights to "Undercurrents" and is looking at the possibility of making "Undercurrents" into a major motion picture.

Pearson wouldn't say how much he optioned "Undercurrents" for, but he did say that it was considerably more than the $12,500 television option for "Yankee Green."

"If it happens, the deal is worth a lot of money," Pearson says.

"Because of this early positive reception, Pearson's editor, Brian DeFlore of St. Martin's Press, says the book will receive an enormous promotional push when it is released this spring."

DeFlore says the New York-based publishing house will print 50,000 to 75,000 hardcover copies, and then will follow it up next year with at least 600,000 paperback editions.

"Everybody here who's read it from editorial assistants to the chairman of the board — say they couldn't put it down," DeFlore adds.

DeFlore describes the book as a "police thriller," while Pearson says "Undercurrents" should be called a "police procedural." "It's a murder thriller about a serial killing in Seattle and the investigation run by a disenchanted detective," he says.

The book is unique for Pearson because he wrote it in the third person's limited point of view, the viewpoint of the disenchanted detective. The reader knows only what the detective knows and must piece together the clues as he does. Pearson says that writing the book in this style was a challenge.

"It gave the book some depth that you can't get in a multiple point of view," he says.

In usual Pearson style, a tremendous amount of research went into the writing of "Undercurrents." The writer spent several weeks in Seattle talking to everybody from police investigators to the city coroner.

Pearson says, "That's the great thing about writing — you're always learning stuff to do this year. As an expert on police investigations, 'Undercurrents' is Pearson's sixth book in five years. Since his laser-printer made 18,000 copies last year, writer's block is definitely not one of his problems."

"I don't have procrastination days," he says. "I approach this whole thing as a job. If I got into the habit of saying 'Oh well, I can't write this morning,' I'd never get anywhere."

Pearson did take two weeks off in a row this summer to go backtracking with his wife. It was his first vacation since 1980, when he began writing full-time.

Pearson figures it this way: "I work 75-hour weeks, about twice as much as the regular guy. For every month, I've worked two months; for every year, I've worked two years."

My attitude is to work as hard as possible now, so I'm at the point in my writing career at 40 that most people are at 60," Pearson is 34.

Until recently, Pearson has been supporting his fiction writing by writing non-fiction articles for magazines and trade journals. "That's what's been keeping me alive," he says. Generally, he divides his time by working on novels in the morning and on non-fiction in the afternoon.

But Pearson would rather write fiction 75 hours each week than split his time with non-fiction. "I'd like to do articles by choice rather than need," he says.

He's accomplished this. Pearson is negotiating a deal to write a series of mystery novels. The series, which he plans to set in the Wood River Valley, will be in first-person detective genre, much like novels by John D. MacDonald, Pearson's "hero in life."

knows about it existing, which, in the 1800s, up to, say, the version I put on the record which is a parody of it from Burley about a telephone lineman.

"The song is recognizable all the way through as the same song. 'The streets of Laredo.' It just started much earlier. It started out as the story of a young man who's dying of a dissolute life in Dublin, Ireland. The tunes of the songs on the record are different — the words are different and the characters are different — but it's clearly the same song. If you sat and listened to the album you could see how the song changed according to who sang it through hundreds of years. But the songs still retain all their characteristics, which make them clearly identifiable as the same song."

Sorrells says there's an "apocryphal" story which accompanies the Burley version of "The Unfortunate Rake." The song, which speaks of a telephone lineman who fatally injures himself when he falls off a pole, makes mention of Harry Klein, who was superintendent of Idaho Telephone Company construction in the 1950s.

"When the automatic crossbar equipment came in, supposedly Klein resigned because he liked the old-fashioned equipment," says Sorrells. "So, the story is he resigned, but before he quit, he

Osmond studio purchased

OREM, Utah (AP) — After a spur-of-the-moment purchase by the city, the city council cleared the way for the Canadian owner of the former Osmond Studios to sell the empty complex to an unnamed buyer for $2.3 million.

A representative of the buyer said his corporation plans to restore the 100,000-square-foot facility to its former use as a state-of-the-art sound recording studio. At least one Osmond family member is involved in the project, he said.

The council voted 4-3 to assign to the corporation the lease on the 27 acres of city-owned property on which the studio sits, clearing the way for the sale.

Developer Mark Burdge identified himself as one of the corporation's three principals, but the other two were not named and declined to be interviewed after members adjourned to closed session.

Words said Jimmy Osmond is involved in the project but did not disclose in-what capacity.

Trek

must have our freedom, even if it means living without utopia.
—Violence should be avoided at all cost unless there is no other choice.
—The unknown extra in the landing party will be dead before the second commercial.

In articles on the upcoming "Star Trek" series, the producers say they plan to duplicate the "morality play" aspects of the original, while adding innovations in special effects and technology. And even though science fiction has a notoriously bad ratings record on television — "Star Trek" itself was canceled after only three seasons — the producers believe the post-Star Wars generation is ready for a prime-time space saga.

Certainly science fiction has become the equivalent of the once-ubiquitous Western. Westerns seldom, if ever, tried to portray the West. Rather, TV and movie Westerns reflected the conflicts and social codes of the particular era in which they were made, from the scrupled patriotism of John Wayne to the biting cynicism of "Little Big Man" and self-parodying satire of "Cat Ballou."

Now the laser gun has replaced the six-shooter and high noon chimes in the computers of interstellar vessels. But like Westerns, science fiction epic tells us more about the dreams and desires of our lives today than about a distant era.

The original "Star Trek" depicted a future of interplanetary cooperation, social integration, false prophets and professional mini-skirts (Well, they got that last one right). Women held some positions of authority, but basic sexual differences were emphasized. Sample dialogue: Female guest star says to Kirk (or Spock), "I may be a scientist-superior-being-stareship-captain, but I like a man."

"Star Trek" also portrayed a society where the chains of command were loose. Kirk unflinchingly followed Star Fleet commands, but he did not hesitate to disobey them if he thought they were morally wrong. Moreover, Kirk for all his macho stance and light shirts, frequently burst out with hysterical ambivalence — about, his own leadership: "Bones, I'm losing control of the ship." Or "Spock, people will die if I've made the wrong decision."

not always neatly resolve the question of the moral propriety of war. Often it was left hanging in the inavertible post-conflict quarterbacking between the emotional McCoy and logical Spock.

From today's vantage point, it is easy to trace such ambiguity to the unease in American society over the Vietnam War and the social upheaval of counterculture claims. Television viewers, deluged with images of body counts and peace protests, wrestled with questions as to: When should we fight and what should we fight for? Numerous "Star Trek" episodes reflected a fear of computers, a suspicion that we might give up too much control to all-powerful machines. That was before every one owned a pocket calculator. George Lucas eventually made computers human in his movie "Star Wars" with his lovable robots. And now that every 12-year-old has a PC, technology has become child's play. Will this be reflected in the new "Star Trek"?

Also—the fearsome Klingons, the ultimate bad guys, are now at peace with the Federation. One, in fact, is on board the ship. Call it stellar détente. Hard-liners who do not like this trend may recall that this interaction was predicted in episode 27 of the old series, "Errand of Mercy," when a superior alien, an Organian, predicted the two races one day would work together although Kirk and the top Klingon reacted with disbelief.

Other aliens, although apparently no Vulcans, will be on board. A mistake, I think. Mr. Spock was not so much an alien as an attitude, a way of looking at the particular issue being played out.

The makers of the new "Star Trek" have an immense mission in recreating a cult classic. But I'm also curious to see what their future will say about 1987.

"The detective series materializes, though, Pearson says he will have to use a pseudonym because "the industry generally won't support more than one book a year per author." He says he will use the alias Wendell McCall for the series, after the two towns in Idaho.

Ridley Pearson began his writing career in a band, composing rock and roll lyrics. In 1976, feeling restricted by the limitations of song lyrics, Pearson began writing screenplays. After a number of rejections he started a novel. He still occasionally "sneaks up on stage to play a few songs."

"The ultimate dream," Pearson says of his career, "is to write the book, write the screenplay and write the score."

Pearson loves to entertain people and has no regrets about not writing so-called "literary" novels. "I love to give people a good time," he says. "I think that comes from my years as a musician. I'm just doing it from a different stage."

Authors say Jack the Ripper was teacher named Druiitt

LONDON (AP) — Jack the Ripper, the Victorian murderer who terrorized London 99 years ago and was never caught, was a failed barber and schoolmaster named Montague John Druiitt, two writers say in a book published Thursday.

Scotland Yard and the London police knew it was Druiitt who killed and mutilated five prostitutes in the Whitechapel slum district, according to Martin Howells and Keith Skinner in "The Ripper Legacy: The Life and Death of Jack the Ripper."

"The authorities kept quiet because Druiitt was friendly with a lot of important people who were homosexuals," Howells told The Associated Press. He alleged they included Queen Victoria's grandson, the Duke of Clarence, in line to succeed his father to the throne.

"When Druiitt was found dead in the River Thames in 1888, soon after the last murder, the Ripper was able to close his file on the Yard, satisfied the affair was over but leaving the public in ignorance," the writer said.

The murderer's identity has been the object of an international guessing game. Criminologists and authors have suggested in turn that Jack the Ripper was the Duke of Clarence, himself a London doctor, a Polish immigrant, James Kelly, who escaped from a hospital for the criminally insane, or a host of other suspects.

Linemen's song

As I walked down the streets of Old Burley,
As I walked down in Burley one day,
I spotted a young lineman,
All wrapped in white linen,
Wrapped in white linen and cold as the clay,
I see by your scarestrap that you are a lineman,
These words he did say as I boldly walked by,
Come sit down beside me and hear my sad story,
I fell off a pole and I know I must die,
"I was once upon the poles I used to go dashing,
Once upon the poles I used to go goshing,
More famous than his stories and then up the nineteenth,
But I fell off an eighteen and I'm dying today,"
"Ring the phones softly and climb the poles softly,
Check your D-rings when you go aloft,
Keep your hooks sharpened and grease up your scarestrap,
I'm telling you, buddy, that ground ain't so soft,"
"Get me six drunken linemen to carry my coffin, Six splices a helpers to mud in my grave before coming this show. He has performed before audiences nationwide."
Take me to Harry Klein, the Great White Father,
And let him mourn over his gallant young soldier."

Superman, big hit

What's new in video?

By The Los Angeles Times

Review

HOLLYWOOD—The latest Superman movie, "Superman IV: The Quest for Peace," did not really fly high at the box office but it is potentially a big rental hit. Starring Christopher Reeve as the Man of Steel and Gene Hackman as Lex Luthor, it will make its home video debut on Warner Video Nov. 25.

"Harry and the Hendersons," which plunks the legend of Bigfoot into a family comedy format, is due on MCA on Nov. 12.

Next week: "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home," "Ernest Goes to Camp" and "Evil Dead 2: Dead by Dawn."

NEW MOVIES—IVE's "Angel Heart," directed by Alan Parker, is a racy detective story on one level and a puzzling plunge into the occult on another. Moving at a lazy pace, the film is laced with eccentric characters and spiced with sadistic sex and extreme violence. It is a provocative mystery, but some critics dismissed it as an exquisitely photographed mumbo-jumbo.

Critics raved about CBS-Fox's "Raising Arizona," a high-class low-brow comedy that pokes fun at rednecks and preys upon our passion for cuddly infants. The movie has the endearingly goofy quality and a manic energy that sweeps you along. It is about a small-time crook (Nicholas Cage) and his infertile wife (Holly Hunter) who kidnap a baby named Nathan Arizona, one of a set of famed quintuplets. While two disoriented cops try to lure the husband back into a life of crime, he is being stalked by a bounty hunter (Randall Cobb) who looks like a refugee from a "Mad Max" movie.

Critics had great fun making fun of Media's "Mannequin," but the burbs did not keep audiences away. This comedy fantasy about a window dresser (Andrew McCarthy) in love with a lively, lovely mannequin (Kim Cattrall), was a big hit, undoubtedly due to its great teen appeal.

Nelson Entertainment's "Defense of the Realm" is a beautifully photographed, often disturbing thriller that is also maddeningly oblique. Director David Drury crams too much into this tale of an investigative journalist (David Byrne) who stumbles onto a government cover-up. Though the tension keeps you on the edge of your seat right up to the surprisingly downbeat ending, it is never quite clear what is going on.

Warner Video's "Police Academy 4: Citizens on Patrol" offers the Police Academy gang—including Steve Guttenberg, Bubba Smith and Bob Goldthwait—in another series of elastic adventures. This time they're fighting to organize a citizens' police force. The series is definitely running out of steam. Still, there is enough on-target raunchy humor to satisfy fans of the series.

RCA-Columbia's "Jocks" is a silly, teen-oriented comedy about a college tennis team in a tournament in Las Vegas. Headed by a long-suffering coach (Richard Roundtree), the team is made up of skilled rowdies who prefer partying and goofing off to practicing. Can these rascals get serious long enough to win the tournament and save the endangered tennis program? The answer is obvious.

Endearing characters and clever humor are both in short supply. Academy's "Rock 'n' Roll Nightmare," about a rock band being victimized by monsters in a secluded farmhouse, is a tawdry mixture of horror, sex and rock music. Though basically a bad B-movie, some of the sequences have a sleazy charm that fans of camp horror flicks might find appealing.

ROWAN AND MARTIN: If the death of Dan Rowan this week made you think about renting or buying home videos of Rowan and Dick Martin's pioneering "Laugh-In" TV show, do not bother. They are not available on home video. Though the show was popular in the late '60s and has undeniable nostalgic value, it might not seem that funny now. Topical humor dates quickly.

All that is available on home video from "Laugh-In" is "Bloopers from 'Star Trek' and 'Laugh-In'" (Video Yesterday, $49.95).

L.M. Boyd - What's what

FIGHT FOR HER MAN — There are tribal women in Paraguay, I'm told, who still compete with one another in boxing matches for the attentions of some especially desirable fellow in their group. Our Love and War man notes it's an ancient custom now used mostly as a festival routine.

Those who study pigs — because their bodies react similarly to humans — says there's nothing a pig so much enjoys to eat as pizza and beer.

CALF KILL

Q: How can you tell whether it was coyotes or dogs that killed the calf? A: Coyotes attack the head and neck, and come back to feed. Dogs attack the hindquarters, but eat little if any of it. Or so says one expert in such matters.

SHORTER LEG

If one of your legs isn't slightly shorter than the other, you're an unusual specimen, say the medics. At least, this is common to a majority. Yet survey-takers say few know which of their legs is the shorter. Do you know? Neither do I.

Q. Didn't Frank Sinatra play the title role in a movie about the life of Saint Paul?

A: No, but the list of people who once thought it a good idea was headed by the great director Frank Capra. It was a very short list.

Daily Horoscope

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Don't put off that annoying debt any longer — get it on the books, and pay it off. You could really shine romantically tonight.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Invite some friends in tonight and enjoy their company. Be sure your house is in good order, though, and be a charming host or hostess.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be as constructive and practical as possible today: Handle your correspondence this afternoon, and be happy socializing tonight.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Once you know what is expected of you by your family, do your best to please them... Have a chat with someone who can enlighten you.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be sure to handle an important message smoothly this morning. Be very careful while driving or in motion of any kind today.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Today is a good day to make use of your "fine sense" of humor, whether in business or when dealing with friends, but avoid sarcasm.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): A seemingly great opportunity will present itself, but be on guard for hidden strings which are attached. Enjoy your mate this evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a firm grasp on any new modes of expression, and will have no trouble understanding many forms of artistic expression. Your progeny will have an extremely humanitarian nature, and will spend much time helping others. Your child's education could take many directions, but much success is apparent.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Your time will be occupied by an important obligation — this morning, but once you clear it up, you'll have an opportunity to capitalize on some unique ideas and to work on advancement and personal goals.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Cut-side associates can be of great help in getting your point across today. The evening would be fine for a discussion with an old friend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): There is an opportunity for expansion nearby, but make sure you're considering the right plan. Tend to your health needs today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): "Show more affection" for your mate. A small but unusual gift would please him or her greatly. Don't be extravagant.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Get a troubling business matter straightened out this morning. It may be a boon to you to involve yourself in a community service.

'Fatal Attraction' makes casual sex deadly

By MICHAEL WILMINGTON
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — In "Fatal Attraction," sex is power, sex is style — but mad love is the great destroyer. This movie — an exciting New York thriller, soaked in chic — is built on the premise that casual sex, lovemaking without bonds or real feeling, can lead to psychopathology.

In the film, an over-30 publishing executive named Alex Forrest (Glenn Close) has a one-night stand with a happily married lawyer, Dan Gallagher (Michael Douglas), whose wife (Anne Archer) is briefly out of town. Initially, it seems a happy encounter, but something about Gallagher sets Alex off. She becomes violently offended by insignificant slights, and attempts suicide when he tries to leave. In both cases, Gallagher, a basically decent guy, tries to care for her, calm her down. In both cases, she apologizes. Then, she starts up again.

Soon it is clear that nothing will mollify Alex. She calls his office, calls his home: her manner alternately sweet and wheedling, cold and furious — and, eventually, the fury takes over — Gallagher, desperate, trying to conceal the affair's aftermath from his wife, seals himself in a cul-de-sac of evasions:

Alex keeps battering away at it. She stalks him, proclaims herself pregnant, invades his home. She becomes wild, uncompromising: a true obsessive, a romantic running amok. Nothing will make her stop.

This story "unwinds" in Adrian Lyne country, fashionable Manhattan, basically dazzlingly decorated and swimming in chi-chi color and swank accoutrements. These people live well, play well. Or, at least, Gallagher does: His Upper West Side apartment is full of rich knickknacks, high-tech appliances and high-style furnishings. Alex lives in a loft near the meat-packing district — nearly barren, surrounded by sinister wet streets — as if she were a bohemian who had not shaken the '60s. She may be trapped in a response that was always mingled love-hate; both yearning for and despising the security that Gallagher, the lawyer and liar, represents.

Close is informally brilliant as Alex. Here, cold witchery seems to dance around her frizzy mane and athletic legs. The alternately wary and rapacious glint in her eyes hints that she has been adventures and victim, just as her incessant playing of the "Madama Butterfly" finale suggests a murderous sensibility. This is the most dangerous kind of role for an actor. Yet, however near the edge Close goes, right up to the movie's misbegotten climax, she cuts so close to the bone that every emotion stays in focus.

Douglas — selflessly playing a weak-kneed, likable guy appalled by the passion he has aroused — complements her superbly. They are both so good — and Lyne has given them such a gaudy, exciting backdrop — that this movie's last 15 minutes come almost madly frustrating.

"Fatal Attraction" probably never could have achieved the power and complexity of great films on romantic obsession like Hitchcock's "Vertigo" or Truffaut's "The Story of Adele H." But, by the end, it is headed in the opposite direction: someone has decided to turn it into "Halloween" in "Westchester" or "Friday the 13th." The cynical might think that "someone" is Lyne himself — descending back to the level of those Balducci orgies in the stateside version of "9½ Weeks.

But Lyne's direction here is the tightest and most effective of his career; the grotesque, botched climax, conversely, has a definite aroma of "marketing research." One would like to believe it was done despite the film makers and actors.

James Dearden's icily well-crafted script was based on his short film "Divergence" and his story's pleasures come from the fact that Alex and Dan are both drawn well enough to divide our sympathies. For about 90 percent of the running time, we are watching something near a real psychological thriller: a story whose shocks come not from Grand Guignol or violent action, but from the psychological clashes. There is a genuine conflict here: Gallagher accepts his life and boundaries; Alex cannot. And though she may be close to crazy, she is still expressing her own principle.

Choir forms for Messiah

RUPERT — To celebrate its tenth anniversary, the Christian Choral Society will sing Handel's "Messiah" this year.

Sponsored by the Mini-Casalia Ministerial Association, the society is open to anyone who enjoys singing. For the past ten years, they have performed free public concerts during the Christmas season.

An opening social for this year's performance will be held October 11, at 3 p.m. at the Rupert Christian Church. This will be a time to get acquainted with other singers and the music. Copies of the "Messiah" will be available then at $6 each.

The choir's first rehearsal will be October 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Rupert Christian Church. Performance dates have been set for Dec. 11-13.

Dr. Eugene Soulsby, minister of music at First Baptist Church in Bunley, is director of the group.

Mary Lou Ottman, chairperson of the performance committee, says, "With professional operatic experience and music degrees from four universities, we are fortunate to have someone of Dr. Soulsby's expertise to work with."

Mother frets over son's play with her lingerie

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago I found out that our 11-year-old son — I'll call him Sidney — has been playing with my panties and bras, and I've been a wreck ever since.

Now I'm afraid to leave him in the house alone. He doesn't know that I know. I haven't told his father yet. (Do I have to?)

Is this normal behavior for a boy his age, or do you think he needs to see some kind of counselor? Do you think if we just ignore it he may outgrow it?

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

He's always shared a room with his 7-year-old brother. Just last night my husband suggested putting Sidney in a room alone, but I quickly vetoed the idea, so we dropped the matter. It's sure to come up again soon, so please rush your answer to me.

I also found Sidney trying to tie his feet together with a pair of socks a couple of times. Is this normal?
DISMAYED IN DALLAS

DEAR DISMAYED: First, tell your husband. Sidney is his son, not. Don't ignore it; it's not normal behavior.

Sidney needs counseling, but don't approach him as though he's committed some kind of terrible crime. He hasn't.

Your family doctor can recommend a family therapist who will make Sidney comfortable with his behavior, and help you handle the problem you're facing.

DEAR ABBY: Seventeen years ago, when I was 18, I had a brief love affair with "Billy Bob" who was also 18 at the time.

I became pregnant and his parents paid my hospital bill on the condition that I would seek no further support from them or their son.

With the loving support of my family, I kept my baby boy. When "Jackie" was 7 months old, I ran into a high school sweetheart who had just come back from Vietnam. We fell in love and married four months later, and he added his name on Jackie's birth certificate. (In our state this procedure was less expensive than adoption.)

Now that Jackie is nearing adulthood, don't you think he has the right to know the truth about his parentage?

Billy Bob still lives in the area. He's married and has a family of his own, but I've never contacted him, and he never contacted me.

By telling Jackie who his biological father is, I know I run the risk of opening a can of worms, but some people already know the truth, and I would rather have Jackie hear it from me than someone else.

Do I need Billy Bob's permission to tell Jackie who his real father is? And if I should decide to tell him, could Billy Bob seek parental rights after all these years?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: I think you should tell Jackie who his biological father is, and the sooner the better.

You don't need Billy Bob's permission to disclose the truth, but I advise you to let him know that you plan to do so.

I doubt if he would seek parental rights after all these years, since he has ignored all parental responsibilities, but consult a lawyer to make sure.

DEAR ABBY: Don't anyone believe in knocking on the door anytime. I don't want people just walking through my home till they find us.

I wouldn't dream of being that. I don't mind their coming through the door to see if we're home, but I think it's not only rude, it's frightening to have someone walk in unexpectedly.

My hints seem to be ignored. So please tell all those people out there that an unlocked door is not an invitation to walk in.

MAD IN OHIO

DEAR MAD: You are foolishly trusting — to leave your door unlocked. An open door is an invitation to unsavory characters to walk in and help themselves. People who do not lock their doors get robbed a lot. Or worse.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how-to-achieve-and-avoid-inevitables, and how-to-write-an-interesting-letter-are included in Abby's weekly "Writing Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.99 and a long, stamped, 439-cent, self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 117, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Lucci affected by murderess in NBC "Haunted by Her Past"

By PAULELIE

After playing Jeff Colby for six seasons and dealing with the tangled story lines of "Dynasty" and "The Colbys," John James is happy to try a more straight-forward project: a ghost story. He co-stars with Susan Lucci in "Haunted by Her Past," an NBC movie airing Monday, Oct. 6.

"Put simply, it's the story of a woman who happens to be haunted by ghosts," James says. "She goes crazy, and the rest of us go. This woman's crazy!"

James plays lawyer Eric Beckett, the husband of Lucci's character, Karen. As a surprise birthday gift, Eric takes Karen to an old English inn in the fictional village of Williamstown, with plans to attend a colonial costume party called the Governor's Ball. But Karen becomes haunted by the ghost of a murderess who once lived in the inn. At the ball, the spirit of the murderess prevails, shocking the other guests as well as her husband.

The colonial costumes have led some viewers to think that the movie is a highbrow historical drama. "We're not doing Shakespeare," James emphasizes. "But we do hope it'll be quite entertaining."

At times, he says the costumes give the movie an almost comic flavor. "In costume, Eric looks like he's in Herman's Hermits, or Paul Revere and the Raiders. At least that's what I felt like while I was wearing it!"

Unlike the nighttime soaps, which often stretch a story line over several seasons, "Haunted by Her Past" was completed, from casting to final cut, during the off-season hiatus. "It's fabulous -- it has an ending!" James says. "It's very different to work when you have an ending."

James, a "Dynasty" cast member since the show premiered in 1981, spent the last two seasons starring in the spinoff "Dynasty II: The Colbys" which was canceled in June, so James has been shifted back to Dynasty.

The parent show plummeted in the ratings last season, its decline blamed on everything from a resurgent "Magnum, P.I." to a glut of nighttime soaps. But James feels the "Dynasty" cast and production team are also at fault.

"I do believe there were problems with the show," he admits. "Maybe the problem was the writing. Maybe 'The Colbys' diluted it. And maybe the actors just got a little tired of the story lines."

"The main trust this season, as I see it, is to re-establish the family unit, which is where the show's strength is. We have to re-establish the old relationships. The excitement of the soaps should be in the plot lines, in the element of intrigue, instead of in the superficial fluff that a lot of them have become."

James dispels speculation that the nighttime-soap genre is exhausted by citing the success of the NBC drama "L.A. Law."

Irving Berlin 100 years in spring

Q. Isn't it true that Valerie Harper was so upset about being fired from her recent TV show that she developed nervous symptoms and had to be hospitalized? — H.J.

A. Valerie was indeed upset that her salary dispute knocked her out of the new TV show, "Valerie." Harper is keeping things in perspective, though. I ran into Val and Tony Cacciotti, her husband, recently at a Hollywood restaurant. Given all her professional grief, I was surprised at how cheery Valerie appeared. Seems the two were toasting each other's birthday.

Q. As a Jessica Lange fan, she seems to me to be a lot smarter than just your average pretty face. Am I right? — D.D.

A. You're right. She is smart and multi-talented. Remember she was the co-producer of "Country" and the movie was her idea, which she got after seeing a haunting photograph of an Ohio family who had just lost their farm. Right now she's hard at work doing the screenplay of the novel "Machine Dreams."

Q. We read that the musical "A Chorus Line" was based on a series of long taped interviews done with real-life dancers and that the original stories were incredible, better even than the material used in the musical. What's happened to the tapes? — L.T.

A. The tapes belong to the late Michael Bennett, who directed "A Chorus Line." When he died, he left instructions for the tapes to be developed commercially by his co-director and his attorney. They will each receive one-fourth of the profits with the remainder to be divided among the chorus dancers who did the taped interviews.

Q. A book about the history of burlesque claims that Gypsy Rose Lee could be disdainful and aloof with people other than friends and fellow performers and writers. Was she really like that? — T.A.

A. A decided "nay" to that one. Years back, a student preparing a college thesis on American burlesque wrote the famed ecdysiast, requesting assistance in answering some questions. To her surprise, Gypsy phoned the student and arranged a meeting, imparting the benefit of many hours of inside information. Along with this, Gyp presented the young woman with her private collection of valuable trailers, screened at the various burlesque houses in which she appeared, announcing the coming week's featured strippers and comedians.

Q. Doesn't Sylvester Stallone have a younger sister who won't have anything to do with him? What's she ashamed of? — A.R.

A. My source is none other than Jacqueline Stallone, Sly's mother, whom I presume is in a position to know. Mrs. Stallone tells me she has a daughter named Toni Ann, who she claims is a "top model" in New York City, where brother Sylvester was once an usher at a Manhattan movie house. Mrs. Stallone says her daughter won't use her famous last name — "because it hurts to do so." Sounds like an interesting case of sibling rivalry.

Q. Please settle a bet. I say that British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is protected by female bodyguards. My pal says only specially trained men are given this assignment. — E.Y.

A. Up until this past August, no woman had ever protected the British prime minister. But then again, until Mrs. Thatcher there'd never been a woman prime minister, and this presented special difficulties never before faced. Since September 1, the tall, smartly-dressed woman seen around everywhere with Mrs. Thatcher is none other than Rosemary Gottlieb, her new bodyguard. Gottlieb, a first-class pistol shot and highly trained, is over 6-ft. tall. She carries a .38 snub-nosed revolver beneath her party frocks when she accompanies Mrs. T. to parties, receptions, etc.

Q. Knowing of the felsty reputation of Billy Martin, the former New York Yankees manager, I wonder, has he toned down his lively act lately? — F.E.

A. Martin seems to have mellowed out recently. When seated in the cocktail lounge of Manhattan's well-known Barbizon Hotel, where he enjoys hanging out, he's invariably affable toward strangers who approach him (though he seldom initiates a conversation). Should an elderly lady fan seated at a nearby table shyly recognize him; Billy quietly leaves his seat at the bar, strolling into the lobby florist, where he purchases a red rose, which he gallantly bestows to his baseball happy admirer.

Q. I was told recently that homosexuals are not allowed to visit China. Is there any truth to this? — T.P.

A. No. However, anyone who plans to spend six months or more in mainland China must take an AIDS test as required by the Chinese government.

Q. While I totally enjoyed Pierce Brosnan's being cast against his usual smooth, sophisticated type in the new movie thriller, "The Fourth Protocol," there's an air of déjà vu in his portrayal of a ruthless Russian-KGB agent. Haven't I seen him play a similar role in an earlier thriller? — G.Y.

A. Brosnan played an IRA terrorist in the movie, "The Long Good Friday." That film was directed by John Mackenzie, the same chap who directed "The Fourth Protocol," which co-stars Michael Caine.

Q. Who is considered the most successful "collaborator" — writers who work with celebrities on their tell-all books? — B.C.

A. Right now it has to be William Novak, who has three amazing hits in a row: the Lee Jacocca book, the new Tip O'Neill instant bestseller "Man of the House", and the "Mayflower Madam" saga, which Ballantine Books reports is in its third month as the nation's No. 1 bestseller in softcover.

Slap-happy "Slap Maxwell Story"

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sign on the wall of the nondescript, suburban studio that houses "Slap Happy Productions" warns that parking in the wrong space out front could elicit a tow by the neighboring floor store.

This is big-time network television? Come to think of it, though, next door to Tila World is not such an unlikely place for Jay Tarses to make his un-Hollywood comedy, "The Slap Maxwell Story," for ABC.

On a soundstage in the rear of the building, actors Dabney Coleman and Susan Anspach rehearse a scene, a bit of physical comedy involving a flubbed hand-off of a suitcase.

Coleman plays "Slap" Maxwell, an old-school sports columnist.

Anspach plays his estranged wife.

After watching their struggle for a while, Tarses decides to just shoot it.

Several takes later, he suggests to the guy with the clapboard, "Don't call it seven. It's another take."

The actors take a break. They'll try again later.

Tarses goes back to his office to talk for a bit about "Slap" and his other show, "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd," on NBC. "Molly" completed a successful 13-week run this summer and will return mid-season. "Slap" premiered last week. Both shows are complex character comedies with touches of poignancy.

"I try to get inside of these people's heads," Tarses says. "It's just interesting writing. It's just fun to write. I mean, jokes aren't fun to write anymore. These are for nightclub comedians. It's just better to write people and the way they talk to each other, and their hopes and dreams ..."

"And the hopes and dreams and everyone's careers are involved in this particular show," interrupts Coleman, who has come in to rehearse the suitcase scene. He spends about 10 minutes working it out in Tarses' office.

"Suppose she starts to hand it to me, I'm looking at the woman, she starts to hand it to me, as she starts to walk away, I get the message, and I'm still looking at the woman ..."

"It's all false movements," Tarses notes.

"The key one is the first one, which we left out," says Coleman. "Now we gotta do it."

He leaves. Tarses calls after him: "We'll do it 10 times. If we don't get it on 10 — the suitcase was stolen."

Tarses resumes the interview. "What was the question? No, I just do 'em because it's good writing. I like to write. I like to write clever things. It's writing, it's not just doing jokes."

Tarses did jokes early in his career, as half of a comedy team with Tom Patchett, whom he met in 1958 when they shared an office in the advertising department of the Armstrong Cork Co. in Lancaster, Pa.

A talk-show appearance with producer Carl Reiner launched them into television, writing and producing such shows as "The Carol Burnett Show," "The Bob Newhart Show," "The Mary Show" and "Open All Night."

The partnership broke up after NBC canceled their last series together, "Buffalo Bill," a critics' favorite that still has a cult following.

Tarses could be describing a divorce when he talks about the breakup.

"We were together for 17 years, and I think we only should have been together for 10," he said. "I think the last seven years were a struggle, just pulling apart.

"We did a lot of good work together and we needed each other at that time, and it was a good collaboration. But people change."

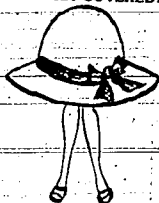

Patchett made a comeback last season with the sweetly sardonic "ALF," a commercial success on NBC about wisecracking puppet space alien who lives with a typical American family. It wasn't any big surprise Patchett would do a show starring a puppet. He and Tarses wrote two of the Muppet movies.

But Tarses turned to a deeper, more human comedy with "Molly" and now "Slap."

Patchett's show is in its second season. For Tarses, second seasons are strange, new territory so far. He says if he winds up with two-hit shows on television at the same time, he'll handle it somehow.

"I want to be low-profile forever, and I want to work hard," he said. "I want to just immerse myself in the project, and that's pretty much what I do. I don't know how to do it any other way."

Upcoming Masterpiece Theater miniseries jokingly hailed as "Upstage, Downstage"

LONDON (AP) — A new miniseries that looks at three generations of a British theatrical family has been jokingly called "Upstage, Downstage."

The real title is "The Bretts." Lydia and Charles Brett are the darlings of London's theater world, as well as the parents of two up-and-coming young performers and a promising playwright. Two other children are not in the family business.

The miniseries, which will run for eight weeks, opens the 17th season of Masterpiece Theatre on PBS in the United States. The first 90-minute episode is next Sunday, Oct. 21.

Next on Masterpiece Theatre is a 90-minute adaptation of Jane Austen's "Northanger Abbey," which will be shown Dec. 6. It will be followed by "Sorrow and Son," a five-part adaptation of Warwick Deeping's 1925 novel about a father-son relationship.

"The Bretts" begins in 1927, when Britain is in the midst of a depression. The Bretts are temporarily out of work and Charles is determined to forge ahead with a play everyone considers too old-fashioned to be successful.

"I hasten to add this is not a history of the English theater," says

Tony Charles, who produced the show for Central Television.

"They're a fictitious family. I suppose the nearest ilk would be the Barrymores."

Norman Rodway stars as Charles; Barbara Murray is Lydia.

"Basically," says Charles, "the cast is made up of sound actors. The real star is the subject matter."

The series acquired the nickname of "Upstage, Downstage" because of its many scenes with servants and because one of its principal writers was Rosemary Anne Sisson of "Upstairs, Downstairs."

It also has the backstage elements of "The Royal Family," a 1927 play by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber loosely based on the Barrymores, and the family zaniness of "You Can't Take It With You." It is a mixture of drama with a lot of humor.

"The Bretts" originated with a suggestion from Herbert Schmetz, an executive with Mobil Oil, the underwriter of Masterpiece Theatre.

As the series ends in November, the family has found prosperity. However, that's not the end of "The Bretts." Several episodes already filmed but not a part of the first American telecast, plus additional chapters now being filmed in England and Portugal (which stands in for the south of France), will be shown later.

In England, the 13 episodes already filmed will be broadcast between September and December. It will end with a Christmas pantomime, which Charles describes as a traditional children's show. He suggested that perhaps Alistair Cooke, the host of Masterpiece Theatre, could explain its meaning to Americans.

Charles is a former agent who has produced a number of shows for Central Television, which is one of five networks in Britain. He now has his own company and works as an independent producer. He had just completed filming the first 13 episodes a few days before meeting in a Mayfair hotel to talk about "The Bretts."

"Charles is a matinee idol," the producer says. "He's about 55 and married to Lydia Weekley, who is a star of musical comedies. He has not moved with the times and is suffering from a lack of audience. He finally does a play in the mold of 'The Prisoner of Zenda,' and it makes him make up his mind that he wants to do the plays he wants to do."

"He says he will buy a theater — and inherits all the problems of being a proprietor."

'thirtysomething' attempts real life portrait of modern problems

BY HOWARD ROSENBERG
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — TV may be getting better.

Yes, you are right: What a subjective comment. "Better" is in the mind of the beholder. To fans of "Dynasty" or "Knots-Landing" or "Hotel" or take your pick, TV was already "better." Go to it.

Viewers aching for more alternatives, though, should be encouraged by some of this season's new prime-time series. Perhaps 25 percent — almost a bumper crop — stride into braver new worlds of entertainment.

The last of these to arrive is "thirtysomething" on ABC Tuesday night. Take it from a viewer aged fortysomething, here is something that's pretty terrific.

The hour drama from Marshall Herskovitz and Edward Zwick is not a "Yuppie series," as some have narrowly labeled it. Nor is it the weekly sexual adventures of chic modern couples, a sort of Michael & Hope & Elliot & Nancy ode to "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice."

It is about a small circle of well-educated, middle-class friends in their 30s (all right, they are rather chic and modern) whose relationships shift, twist and bend as they confront the routine challenges of life that seem routine only in retrospect.

The core characters are Michael (Ken Olin) and Hope (Mel Harris), a couple whose young marriage seems to be buckling under the stress of parenting. They have a 9-month-old daughter.

Elliot (Timothy Busfield) is Michael's friend and business partner who is having more serious marital problems, and his wife, Nancy (Patricia Wettig), struggles with insecurity. Rounding out the circle are Hope's friend Ellyn (Polly Draper) and Michael's friend, Gary (Peter Horton), and cousin, Melissa (Melanie Mayron).

Michael and Hope are shown fitfully and unglamorously adjusting to parenthood. The rigors of child-rearing — and the mind games that couples sometimes play — are pointedly and amusingly noted when Michael is angered by Hope's endless search for just the right baby-sitter (There was a similar sequence in the premiere of NBC's "One Year in the Life").

Michael admits to his fatigued wife that he sometimes jealously views their daughter as an intrusion, wishing he could turn back time to when Hope was always beautiful, exciting and "there for me."

Meanwhile, Elliot confesses to Michael how simple it was lying to Nancy after his first affair. "The worst part of it is, it's totally easy. It's like there's some psychopath lying around inside me waiting for a chance to jump out."

If only there were more TV like "thirtysomething" waiting for a chance to jump out.

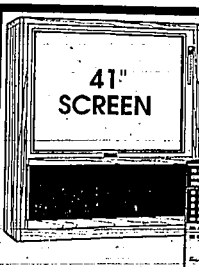

The cast and execution are excellent, the literate stories bristling with fun, wit, intensity and honest emotion, the dialogue free-flowing and natural, always producing a sense of real people doing real things. There is lots happening — some evident, some intriguingly below the surface, all of it universally applicable.

Tuesday night's premiere was directed by Herskovitz and written by Herskovitz and Zwick, who have something to say and, as a bonus, say it superbly. Only occasionally do their likable, interesting, complex, layered characters seem a bit too mannered, glib and witty.

It is the vulnerability of those characters, in fact, that gives "thirtysomething" much of its dramatic realism. They are every bit as flawed as they are appealing. Future episodes reflect that and the producers' intent to avoid the soap opera trap by giving their stories a rare scope, dimension, intelligence and creative vitality.

Feature Story

Drama on 'Cagney & Lacey' was based on real-life racial incident

LACEY: Christine, he was the second black kid killed in that neighborhood this year.

CAGNEY: So what was he doing there?

PETRIE (the squad room's black detective): Maybe he thought it was America.

HOLLYWOOD (L.A. Times) — In the second episode of its sixth season Monday, "Cagney & Lacey" once again tackled one of the nation's politically and socially relevant issues. From abortion and abortion-clinic bombings, medical treatment of women with breast cancer, to nuclear waste sites, the CBS series has handled a range of provocative material.

Last Monday night, in "The City Is Burning," the subject was racism. Its inspiration, though not the actual plot line, was last December's incident at Howard Beach — the neighborhood near Kennedy Airport in Queens where a gang of white youths attacked three black men who were strangers. One of the victims, 23-year-old Michael Griffith, fled onto the Belt Parkway in the early morning darkness where he was struck by a car and killed.

As jury selection in the Howard Beach trial of four white teen-agers, charged with murder or manslaughter began three weeks ago, defense lawyers moved to block the airing of Monday night's episode. N.Y. State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Demakos dismissed the motion: "I'm not going to tell a TV station not to air a show."

"The City Is Burning" dealt with what happens to the officers of "Cagney & Lacey's" folksy squad room when the outside pressures and internal conflicts of racism intrude. The segment was written by playwright and actor Samm-Art Williams (recipient of a 1980 Tony nomination for "Home") and directed by Helaine Head, who did two other episodes for the series last season.

Actress Tyne Daly, who plays Detective Mary Beth Lacey, suggested the episode. About a week after the Howard Beach incident, executive producer Barney Rosenzweig recalled, Daly grumbled that what they were working on — the nuclear dumping segment — was "lightweight" compared to what was "really going on" in New York. Out of that conversation, he said, came the story of "what we perceive to be the real issue of the Howard Beach syndrome: racism as a disease in America."

"I thought we fought all those battles in 1968 and 1972 and that these matters were resolved," Daly said last week. "My sense of history gets disappointed by events.... Once you entertain some questions, you get people thinking for themselves."

In his living room in a Los Angeles apartment complex, Williams noted that while "Burning" certainly touches on a lot of aspects of Howard Beach" the episode goes further and deals with "the adult mentality when these incidents occur. Not only people in the street, but even rational people become irrational when this thing is blown out of proportion."

"I mean you cannot be a cop and someone is constantly calling you a 'dirty (this)' and 'dirty (that),' and not have that affect you. When someone throws bricks at your car and is screaming 'police brutality' when the facts are not even in yet, that has to affect you ... and they began to call each other the same names that the people in the street were calling each other."

"City Is Burning," a rather strong title because there are no riots, made connections to other real-life events. In Williams' script, black civil rights attorney Joyce Richards blames the homicide of the black teen-ager on what had been happening in the case involving Bernhard Goetz. (In December 1984, Goetz shot four black youths who accosted him in a subway car; in July 1986, New York state's highest court ordered him to stand trial for attempted murder; last June, Goetz was acquitted of all major charges.)

"Racism is subconscious," suggested Williams, who attended a segregated high school in North Carolina. "You don't have to consciously think about it. If you come from a home where someone is constantly saying it's them and us," — which he did not — "pretty soon they will begin to accept that as the truth."
