majority of senators since Sept. 18, when the chamber voted 60-41 to table a similar resolution. In the interim, there have been two separate exchanges of fire between Iranian patrol boats and U.S. helicopters.

The most surprising vote switch was that of Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a conservative Democrat and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. Nunn, who argued a week ago that the War Powers Act was too broad to be invoked in the gulf, voted with the majority Friday.

Nevertheless, Weicker and his allies, most of them Democrats, conceded that they never could muster sufficient votes to break a filibuster. Just last week, they got 54 votes in an effort to end the filibuster, six votes short of the necessary 60.

The compromise proposal, co-sponsored by Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Sen. John W. Warner, R-Va., would require the president to report to Congress within 60 days. After 90 days, it would permit an expedited vote in the Senate on Reagan's reflagging policy. It makes no mention of the War Powers Act.

The Byrd-Warner proposal is considerably weaker than an earlier effort at compromise authored by Byrd and Nunn. But a spokesman for Byrd defended it as the strongest measure that the Senate could possibly enact in light of the GOP filibuster. "This will at least get a vote on the Persian Gulf policy come January," the spokesman said.

Weicker argued that the Senate instead should invoke the War Powers Act because U.S. servicemen were clearly involved in hostilities under the terms of the law. "The law is there on the books," he said. "It should be lived up to."

Here's roll call vote on Senate action Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the 52-37 roll call Friday by which the Senate refused to table, and thus refused to kill, a resolution to start the process of invoking the War Powers Act of U.S. policy in the Persian Gulf. The Senate's action kept the resolution alive.

On this vote, a vote "for" was a vote to table and thus kill the resolution, while a vote "against" was a vote to keep the resolution alive.

There were 37 votes "for" and 52 votes "against."

County association seeks state support

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — With increasing responsibilities building the pressure for revenue from property owners already feeling put upon, Idaho's county officials are again looking to the state for financial relief.

Money will be at the heart of the Idaho Association of Counties' legislative agenda, when state lawmakers convene in January, association Legislative Committee Chairman Ralph Wheeler says.

"County government gets more duties and there seldom is more money involved," said Wheeler, a former county commissioner and former state representative. "We have no revenue other than the property tax."

But the resolution package endorsed by the association at its annual meeting in Idaho Falls on Thursday was not expected to offer immediate relief.

"Most of what we want to do takes more than one year to pass," Wheeler conceded.

High on the counties' list will be establishment of a justice-system fund. That resolution calls for the flexibility to divert money to sheriff offices, jails, juvenile services, prosecutors and support activities.

The Legislature will be asked to approve a surcharge on judicial fines, which could be dedicated to jail and juvenile detention construction projects. More and more counties in the state have been faced with costly mandates to rehabilitate or enlarge antiquated jail facilities and keep juveniles completely separated from incarcerated adults.

The association also wants an excise tax on alcoholic beverages, which would be part of the justice fund of each county and be disbursed on the basis of the number of criminal charges filed rather than population.

Wheeler said it was only fair that counties receive financial benefit from the sale of alcoholic beverages "since half of the people (in the justice system) are there because of alcohol-related instances."

On a related front, county leaders called for a quick end to delay in transporting convicted felons to a state prison facility after sentencing. Overcrowding in the state system has backed up dozens of convicted felons in county jails for months at times, aggravating overcrowding in the jails and creating serious management problems for county sheriffs.

Business leaders guardedly optimistic

BOISE (AP) — After struggling through a "dim economic past," business leaders are optimistic about the future of Idaho's economy, but they believe it will still be some time before there is any real resurgence in the state's financial fortunes.

"Generally speaking, we're optimistic, cautiously so," First Security Bank President Scott Nelson told the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry on Friday.

"We've come through a tremendous beating in this state in the last few years," Nelson said. "The picture looks pretty good. We're dealing with a pretty good hand, surely too good to fold but not good enough to win."

Although Nelson and experts from the key economic sectors of agriculture, timber and mining see some growth in the near future, they said it would be slow and gradual, leaving Nelson to indicate that economic development will be the key to winning the revitalization battle.

Jobs in those integral sectors remain well below their peaks before the devastating recession of the past several years even though all three have seen some new life breathed into them this year, and stability more than vigorous growth will characterize the next year, they said.

Tom Richards, President of Idaho Forest Industries, expected 1988 to slip some from a 1987 performance that he said "was very, very is, it is still very much on the mend."

profitable for everybody in the forest products industry in Idaho." But even though soft wood consumption will probably fall by 2.5 percent from this year's record pace as housing construction slows in the face of rising mortgage rates, Richards said next year should still be the second-best ever for the industry.

If consumption should drop even more, the industry in Idaho will suffer, but Richards said international conditions will not make the decline as wrenching as it was several years ago.

But, he added, "as good as we say the economy is, it is still very much on the mend."

Judge grants Rhoades separate murder trials

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Accused multiple murderer Paul Era Rhoades will be allowed separate Bonnevill County trials for the shooting deaths of an Idaho Falls convenience store clerk and a junior high school teacher, a judge has ruled.

In a 29-page decision issued late Thursday, 7th District Judge Larry Boyle also:

— Declined to declare unconstitutional the Legislature's repeal of the insanity defense, but will allow Rhoades' mental condition to be raised as an issue at trial.

— Allowed admission at trial of "I did it" statements allegedly made by Rhoades in late March after his arrest in Wells, Nev., but not in an interview with a Bonnevill County detective a week later.

— Retained six sentence-enhancement charges against Rhoades, which could extend the Idaho Falls sentence if convicted.

Rhoades, 30, faces first-degree murder and a number of other felony charges in Bonnevill County for the mid-March shooting deaths of Nolan Haddon of Blackfoot, who worked at an Idaho Falls convenience store, and Susan Michelsbacher, a special education teacher at Eagle Rock Junior High School.

He faces similar charges in Bingham County in the late February shooting death of convenience store clerk Stacy Baldwin of Blackfoot.

Boyle's decision said Rhoades should be tried separately for the Haddon and Michelsbacher homicides because, other than evidence that the same weapon was used in both slayings, there is no common scheme or plan or transactions connected together.

He said the trial on Michelsbacher's killing will begin with jury selection in Boise Jan. 11.

Rollover kills one

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (AP) — A Boise woman was killed when her car fell over a steep embankment north of Mountain Home, Elmore County Sheriff Rick Layher said.

Cynthia Allen, 27, died instantly in the accident early Thursday 21 miles north of Mountain Home, Layher said.

Allen drove too close to the west side of Highway 20 after she saw another car in the opposite lane, he said. Her car then slid down the 60-foot embankment.

The vehicle rolled several times down the slope, ejecting Allen and landing on her, he said.

Environmentalists rip McClure over forests

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Idaho Sen. James McClure's stance on forest issues came under harsh attack from two national environmental leaders during a conference here Thursday.

But the message at a session on diminishing forest resources was that even McClure could be brought around on some of the issues by "endless pressure, endlessly applied."

U.S. Forest Service plans recommend a tripling of the amount of logging and the timber harvest will be on steeper slopes with poorer soils, says Brock Evans, vice president of the National Audubon Society in Washington, D.C.

Evans told participants in the Globescope Idaho meeting that McClure had a lot to do with the shape of the current forest plans.

"You have got a bad delegation in McClure, (Rep. Larry) Craig, (Sen. Steve) Symms," Evans said.

McClure feels burned by what the environmental groups did in 1984 on the Idaho wilderness bill, he said. "You killed his bill," Evans said.

There is no question McClure is bad but "endless pressure, endlessly applied" can be exerted to bring him around on some of the forest issues, Evans said.

McClure is currently involved in secret negotiations with Gov. Cecil Andrus to arrive at a new wilderness bill. Only this time the issue is being spearheaded by Andrus.

In a sense the environmental groups are right, said McClure spokesman H.D. Palmer. "McClure was burned," he said. "Everytime he made a concession on the wilderness in 1984, he was confronted by non-negotiable demands, Palmer said. That is not negotiation, he said.

"McClure is very tough, very smart and very wrong," said Bill Turnage, past president of The Wilderness Society, quoting Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

Turnage also offered an inspirational message to pump-up the faithful attending Globescope, which started Wednesday and ends Sunday. It is being held at the Sun Valley Inn.

Idaho Globescope, one of a number of similar meetings throughout the country, examines critical global challenges posed by population, resources, development and environmental trends.

"The environmental tide is coming entirely in our direction," said Turnage. He said this is true despite computer printouts that show the world's environmental problems are getting worse, not better.

"As I see the Reagan administration, it is the last gasp of an old order that says what's good for America is what's good for business. The business community is ahead of the president. If his successor is a Democrat or a Republican, he will be more enlightened," Turnage said.

^ The business community is saying more and more that it accepts environmental constraints, he said. Now it is saying what it must do to meet them, Turnage said.

This brought a sharp response from one woman in the audience who said she saw the environmental policies of the multinational corporation as the root of the problem.

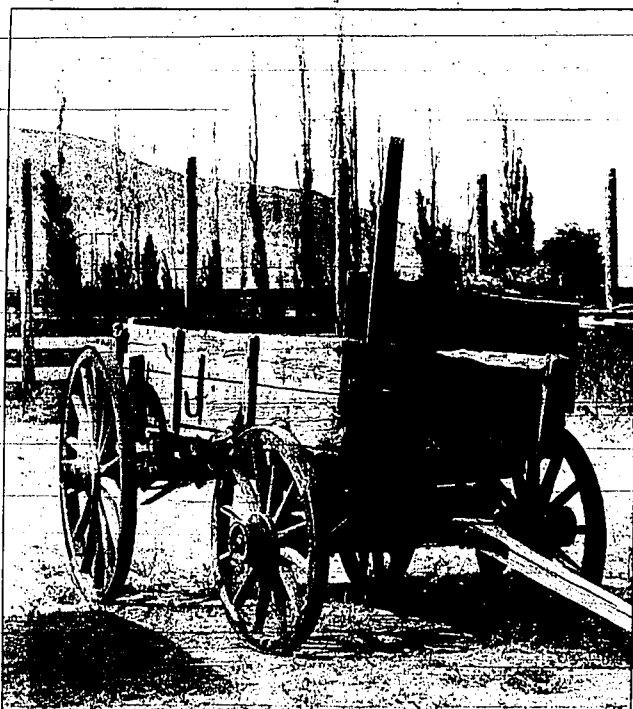

Turnage disagreed.

He said polls show there has never been such strong public support of environmental issues. "This is a nation of

Bright future

Nature conservancy helps preserve past

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — As a large orange sun rose over the Thousand Springs Farm Friday, Guy Bonnivier peered into the future and said it "looks extremely bright."

"It's fate and luck to have something as rich as this," said Bonnivier, executive director of the Idaho-Nature Conservancy, as he sat in the stone house once owned by award-winning dairy woman Minnie Miller.

Bonnivier's spirits were buoyed by prospects of a successful $1.7 million fundraising campaign to help pay for the Thousand Springs Farm.

The Nature Conservancy, a private, non-profit conservation and preservation group, bought the 425-acre Thousand Springs Farm and the Minnie Miller Falls in April 1986.

Although the farm is an historic site once featured in a 1940s National Geographic article, the real prize was the water. The area includes the largest concentration of free-flowing clear springs left on the Snake River in the Hagerman Valley, once home to miles of such springs.

Bonnivier said the farm and the large dairy barn, a showplace in the 1920s and 30s, were an incredible bonus.

To preserve the area, Bonnivier embarked on a major fundraising effort starting last year. Originally, he planned to sell part of the land to help pay for the key area and pay off the remaining $800,000 loan.

But on Friday, Bonnivier said he has done "a complete turn around."

"We're doing everything we can not to sell any of the acreage, and now it's as possible," he said. "Our best case dream is to keep everything from the canyon down to the river and the three-mile stretch of land as one large wildlife habitat."

This summer the James G. Boswell Foundation pledged a $300,000 grant so the Nature Conservancy could keep the area's first ferry site built in 1870. The site was part of the Thousand Springs Farm and sits about three miles up river from the Minnie Miller Falls.

Now Bonnivier is waiting for word on a $600,000 grant from a private corporation.

Once that comes in, he said the final push will be to raise $225,000 by January from the general public and local Idaho residents.

"Until I got 80 percent raised, I didn't want to approach the public," he said.

Although the original purchase price was $1.2 million, Bonnivier said the Nature Conservancy now needs to raise a total $1.7 million. The additional $500,000 will be used as endowment money for the conservancy to maintain the land.

Part of the additional money will also be used to restore the barn and turn it into a museum and turn the house into a visitor's center, Bonnivier said.

"We want to emphasize the history of Thousand Springs and explain the Nature Conservancy," Bonnivier said as he strolled through the barn where sunshine highlighted webbed woven around old machinery.

Outside the barn, old horse-drawn wagons stand idle amid tall weeds and grass. In a shed near the barn, a carriage lies in pieces, waiting to be restored to its splendor, and brass bed frames line the walls.

In another small building, Bonnivier unlocks the door and points to Minnie Miller's original files and a stack of dusty diary magazines.

The Thousand Springs Farm will be the centerpiece of Nature Conservancy's preservation efforts in southern Idaho. But it will be far from the only efforts by the national organization, which has saved more than 2.6 million acres of land in 50 states from development.

Currently, the conservancy owns Silver Creek Preserve in Blaine County, a 2,500-acre preserve with 14 miles of streams restricted to fishing.

The conservancy also will soon receive the deed to 14 acres of land with prime river frontage in

Rupert man dies of gunshot wound

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

JEROME — Target practice in the predawn hours Friday near Murtaugh bridge ended in tragedy for a 23-year-old Rupert man, officials said.

Jerome Sheriff Elva Hall said Alberto Morales Jr. died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. Officials are ruling it an accidental death.

Hall said the shooting occurred about 3:30 a.m. after Morales and three juveniles, one a female, were shooting at beer bottles with a .22-caliber automatic pistol.

Hall said Morales apparently took the gun he thought was empty, held it to his head and pulled the trigger. The shooting occurred in a gravel pit area on the north side of the Snake River Canyon north of Murtaugh.

The three then put Morales in the car and began racing to Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley when they ran off the road near Murtaugh and went to a farm house for help.

Morales had attended schools in Texas and Idaho. He was employed with Ore-Ida Foods. The funeral will be in Texas.

Court adds Clearwater to Snake water rights

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Fifth District Judge Daniel C. Hurlbutt Jr. sided with Idaho Power Co. and local canal companies and will include the Clearwater-River system in the determination of water rights in the Snake River basin.

Hurlbutt told attorneys at a status conference Friday that he will also require the Boise, Weiser, Payette and Lemhi rivers be included in the adjudication. The two actions were his first major decisions in the water rights case that promises to be one of the largest in the West.

Attorneys for the New York and Wilder irrigation districts in the Boise area argued they have already gone through an adjudication and could lose water if they submit to one again. The state agreed with the districts but the federal government raised objections during a hearing Oct. 5.

The adjudication, which is expected to take 10 years, is required by the Swan Falls water rights agreement, a far-reaching series of controls on the use of water in the basin. The agreement between the

Export advisory group introduces new events

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The South-Central Idaho Export Advisory Group Friday introduced a year-long series of events co-sponsored by a U.S. Department of Education grant.

But advisory board members said they wanted something other than

"I guess the idea most of us are putting out is let's do something rather than just have speakers and luncheons for the next five years," said Lee Wagner, board member and general manager of KMTV-TV. "I really like the idea of going out and selling something occasionally."

Project Coordinator Tony Mabbatt said he hopes the speeches and workshops will raise awareness of the importance of exports and the international economy to the Magic Valley.

For instance, Mabbatt said, mortgage rates are often linked to international economics and those economies depend to a large extent on interest rates.

Getting the word out could be difficult, Wagner said.

"Export marketing does not appeal to a broad audience," Wagner said while talking about news coverage of the event. "We're fighting an uphill battle, but that doesn't mean we should give up."

"You can't force-feed the public," Wagner said.

Other members echoed Wagner's views, saying they need to find business who are actually exporting in order to help business thinking about exporting.

The Export Marketing Workshop scheduled for Oct. 27 features a national speaker from the World Bank and state and national trade specialists. It is scheduled for the Canyon Springs Inn and registration fee through CSI is $26. John Maxwell Hamilton, public af-airs officer for World Bank, was editor and principal author of the book "Main Street America and the Third World." The book offers a vantage point for relations between Americans and their relationship with developing countries.

Also, the regional manager for the Port of Portland, Bob Henry, will speak about moving exports from the plant to customer. Mike Drayton, vice president and international department manager for First Security Bank, will talk about his field.

And an afternoon panel on export assistance features Kelly Olson, state Department of Agriculture trade specialist; Gary Whitwell, state Department of Commerce international trade specialist; and Commercial Service trade specialist.

Beyond the October workshop, events planned during the next year include a January workshop on export resources and later a conference on tourism.

The conference will focus on non-traditional ways to get tourists into the area, Mabbatt said.

"We can't get 74% in here with happy tourists from Germany and Japan," Mabbatt said. "We need to focus on couples and non-traditional packaging."

Faculty workshops are planned for business and agriculture to internationalize CSI's curriculum.

The $49,248 Business and International Education Program grant will be matched by about $60,000 of commitments from CSI and other area supporters during the program's year that began Oct. 1.

Tony Mabbatt is project coordinator. Mike Glenn is CSI assistant to the president and co-chairman of the 15-member export advisory group.

2 plead guilty in blast, third faces arraignment

By CRAIG LINCOLN
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Two of the three men arrested and charged with bombing the Rupert city water tower, pleaded guilty at arraignments Friday, and a third faces arraignment in about 10 days.

Each man faced three felony counts and each entered a plea of guilty on one of the three counts and had the other two dropped.

Larry Langley, 32, pleaded guilty to bombing of a building or works, the most serious of the three charges.

He could be sentenced to 20 years in prison or fined $5,000 for the charge. At the arraignment, Minidoka County Prosecutor Charles Creason dropped two other felony charges, malicious injury to property and exploding a building.

Scott Kidder, 29, pleaded guilty to malicious injury to property, a felony with a maximum sentence of five years or $1,000 fine. Creason dropped two other counts, exploding a building and bombing of a building or works.

Fifth District Judge J. William Hart ordered presentence investigations to be completed by Oct. 15 and set sentencing for Nov. 18.

Hart also reduced Kidder's bail to $5,000 and Langley's to $25,000. The other defendant, Daniel Ward, 18, will be arraigned Oct. 19 on one count of felony bombing of a building or works.

The charges stem from the Sept. 19 bombing of Rupert's downtown water tower. The blast, which blew a three-foot section out of one leg of the tower, damaged an adjacent pump station and shattered windows in nearby businesses.

The city quickly repaired the water tower and now has it surrounded by a chain-link fence and barbed wire.

Rupert city police, Idaho Department of Law Enforcement and the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, coordinated the investigation.

environmentalists, "he said.
In the next decade, it will not be a matter of arguing environmental positions but explaining them, Turnage said.

Jon C. Fine, an author on ocean pollution and an attorney, said, "I am optimistic about the human spirit but I am not optimistic about human nature." Fine is a former U.S. Senate counsel who led the prosecution of organized crime figures when he was with the district attorney's office in New York.

Fine said when he was in Washington he warned the White House before Ann Gorsuch was appointed administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency that if EPA didn't do a good job, Congress would deal with EPA sternly.

He told the White House that what EPA needed was an exorcist, not an inspector general.
Fine said the White House politely listened and ignored him. Gorsuch was later removed as EPA head in a scandal and her deputy Rita Lavelle was convicted.

Wood is being used up so fast in Tanzania that within 30 years there will be no forests left, Nagle said.
The ecological problems of the Third World have a political aspect, he said. Political instability will increase because people can't scrape out a living from the soils, Nagle said. The soils in Africa are particularly thin, he said.

There are some rays of hope in this situation, Turnage said. The World Bank has doubled its investment in tropical forests as have the Dutch and the French. Tropical rain forests have an important role in maintaining stability in the world's climates, and they are a source of raw materials for the pharmaceutical industry.

India has done a lot of forest work and Zimbabwe is trying hard, Turnage said. In 1972 only 11 African countries had environmental ministries, now every African country has one.

I agree with Turnage on optimism but we have a long way to go about educating the American public on environmental problems of our countries, Turnage said.

state and IPC is intended to end a long-standing controversy that tied up new water rights applications in Idaho.
Hurlbutt also rejected the argument of the Upper Snake River Valley Protective Union and decided to include domestic and stock water uses in the adjudication. The group of canal companies from eastern Idaho said there was no reason to incur the expense and delay of processing these rights.

The state said it was concerned about the expense of processing the rights that could amount to 120,000 of the 185,000 claims involved in the adjudication.

Peter Monson, representing the United States in the adjudication, said he was concerned about a state proposal to include domestic and stock water rights in the case, but not adjudicate them.

He said if this is done, this might not constitute general stream adjudication. The McCarran Amendment requires a general adjudication to allow United States participation.

Hurlbutt said he would issue a memorandum of decision covering these points. IPC and the Twin Falls and North Side Canal companies told Hurlbutt last month that the Clearwater River system should be included. The law says this, said Tom Nelson, IPC attorney. IPC and the canal companies want a bigger area because there will be more water for them to use.

The state set adjudication boundaries leaving out the Clearwater system. "It makes it easier to make it small," said Clive Strong, deputy attorney general for natural resources. He said the emphasis is on how to organize a case of this magnitude.

Strong had argued that it was up to the director of the state Department of Water Resources director to determine the boundaries. Strong said the basis for this is a U.S. Supreme Court decision. The High Court said the important point is that there be a comprehensive determination of all the water rights within the boundaries of the adjudication.

Rosholt, who represents the Twin Falls and North Side canal companies, requested that the United States appoint an additional attorney for the case; Monson of the U.S. Department of Justice is the sole attorney representing the interests of the United States in the water case. Rosholt called for separate counsels to represent the interests of Indian tribes and the United States.

The State of Washington has one U.S. attorney assigned to an adjudication. "We're involved in that and it's not working well," he said. But in Montana their adjudication is working better with two federal attorneys assigned, he said. Monson disagreed and said the decision about the number of attorneys assigned should be the Justice Department's decision.

"The U.S. should speak with one voice. To allow appointment of multiple attorneys would not mean the U.S. would speak with one voice. This is an issue we take very seriously and it concerns us very much," he said.

Hurlbutt said he would review the situation for potential problems but made no decision on the issue Friday.

How to ensure due process of water rights holders.
DWR will be ruling on the water rights applications in the adjudication, subject to the court's approval. Rosholt asked the court to assume jurisdiction over appeals of DWR decisions pertaining to changes in points of water diversions, places of use, nature of use and other changes that could impact the rights of others who are parties to the adjudication.

Hurlbutt scheduled the next status conference for November 19. Among the issues to be considered are objections to DWR's order commencing the adjudication, issues of service and due process for the water rights holders, water rights filing fees and domestic and stock water uses.

It is likely that attorneys in the case will form a steering committee to hash out issues before they present them to Hurlbutt.

Government considers new grazing fee schedule

BOISE (AP) - The federal government is calculating a formula for determining grazing fees charged to permit holders who graze cattle, sheep or horses on public lands. The Bureau of Land Management lands.

The government's fee formula officially expired in 1985, but President Reagan extended it in February 1986 and placed a minimum level of $1.35 per animal unit month of AUM, where it has since remained.

A hearing on grazing fees before the House Interior subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands pitted Eastern ranchers and politicians against Western ranchers and politicians.

Environmentalists, some Eastern ranchers and several Eastern politicians want to raise the fee to fair market value, theoretically eliminating federal subsidies to Western ranchers and putting the grazing program on a paying basis. Randy Morris, secretary of the Committee for Idaho's High Desert, said grazing fees always have been too low, encouraging ranchers to place too many cattle on their allotments. He said that damages the land and habitat, dries up streams and robs wildlife of valuable feed.

"Higher fees might drive some of the cows off the range," Morris said. "The only reason the cows are out there now is because the government gives it away."

Bonnievier said the land and six islands in the stream will be used as a wildlife preserve.

"It's a significant piece of land," he said.

In Nez Perce County, about 20 miles upstream from Lewiston, the conservancy has acquired 5,882 acres of land near where the Snake and Salmon rivers come together. The area, which ranges in altitude of 5,500 feet down to 900 feet, has one of the most important mule deer herds in Idaho, Bonnievier said. It also has some of the best natural grasslands remaining in the state,

And in Washington County, near Weiser, Bonnievier is working to acquire 12,000 acres of land with the only remaining flock of Columbia & sharp-tailed grouse left. The bird is extinct in Oregon, Washington, Nevada and California.

But for now, Bonnievier, whose conservancy office is based in Sun Valley, is concentrating his efforts on Thousand Springs and making plans to raise the remaining $225,000.

"This whole place was just an incredible find," he said.

FILER - The Filer Mennonite Church will host its annual Filer International Crafts Bazaar Oct. 15-17. The bazaar is part of the SELFHYP Crafts program of the Mennonite Central Committee.

SELFHYP Crafts is one of a small but growing number of organizations called Alternative Trade Organizations involved in an innovative attempt to break the cycle of poverty in Third-World nations. These organizations provide economic opportunity for skilled craftspersons in developing nations by marketing their wares here in North America. We get quality crafts at low prices while Third-World men and women gain independence, dignity and income. In addition, traditional crafts such as woodcarving and basket weaving are preserved or rehabilitated because of the increased market demand.

SELFHYP Crafts will be available at the Filer bazaar from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 17, at the Church, 109 5th St.

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Bishops at a worldwide symposium believe the Roman Catholic church "must do everything in its power" to end discrimination against women in the church, Archbishop John Paul II said Friday.

"No theme has been more frequently mentioned in this synod than that of women and their role in church and society," he told a news conference.

May, president of the U.S. bishops' conference, said the synod likely will recommend that the church open the ministries of altar servers, acolytes and lectors to women. In the United States, women often assist in these roles.

Nazarene's slate meetings

FILER - Rev. Paul Mangum, former district superintendent of the Philadelphia District, will hold special meetings at the Filer Church of the Nazarene Oct. 18-22. Sunday school begins at 9:30 a.m., services are held at 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. weekdays.

Rev. Mangum, a native of Idaho, has pastored churches in Texas, Northern and Central California and the Northwest. He also served on the General NYI Council, District Advisory Board, Seminary Board and two college boards. He was honored with a Doctor of Divinity Degree from Eastern Nazarene College in 1978.

but informally and without ordination. The duties include administering wine and water for services, preparing the altar and lighting candles.

"There is a clear consensus that the church must do everything in its power to put an end to unjust discrimination against women in its own structures and practices and also in the structures and practices of society," May said as he and two other American prelates - Bishops Stanley Ott of Baton Rouge, La., and Anthony Bevilacqua of Pittsburgh - reviewed the first week of the monthlong conference.

More than 200 bishops from around the world are attending the assembly, called by Pope John Paul II to examine the role of lay Catholics in the church and public life.

May said the church ban on ordination of women into the priesthood - reiterated by the pope during his tour of the United States last month - "is clear and not open to change."

"Short of that, however, the sense of the synod is that we should examine other roles and functions in the church and move ahead vigorously - as in fact has been happening in recent years - to open up as many of these as is deemed possible to women," May said.

The archbishop said strengthening women's roles will help the church "function as a credible advocate of women's dignity and rights in society." At the same time, the church should continue to condemn abortion and defend women's roles as wives and mothers, he said.

The archbishop said he was "amazed" how the women's issue had been raised by bishops and lay people from all parts of the world. He quoted Irish Cardinal Tom O'Fiaich as saying the problem "is no longer an American aberration."

May, Ott and Bevilacqua said it was still early to predict what proposals the synod will make on women.

"The central theme is that women should be given their right place, respect, and opportunity to serve the church," Ott said.

Last week, Archbishop Rembert Weakland of Milwaukee proposed that the synod recommend that women be granted top-level positions in the Vatican and its diplomatic corps.

May, however, said those are issues involving the pope's territory and "I don't think this synod is going to tell the Roman Curia to hire people in these jobs."

Speaking with reporters after the news conference, May said the synod is unlikely to recommend that women be allowed to serve as deacons, as some speakers have suggested, but "could call for exploration of the subject."

"The women's issue was also forcefully raised Friday at the synod by other bishops. The synod sessions are closed, but summaries of the bishops' remarks are released by the Vatican."

O'Fiaich told the synod that women "have given incalculable service in the past and are normally the 50 percent of the laity who are more prayerful, attentive to religious duties, compassionate than the other half. They are indispensable for handing on the faith to the next generation."

In a new twist, the Rev. Thomas Forrest, a papal nominee to the synod from the United States, said the synod should also concentrate on the importance of men and that "we must take serious steps to maintain a manly image of the priesthood."

"In some cultures women's presence in the church is so dominant men see the church only as a place for women," he said.

Falwell's efforts help PTL; hurt Old-Time Gospel Hour

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) - The PTL sex scandal has cost the Rev. Jerry Falwell's Old-Time Gospel Hour TV program $5.3 million in donations, so ministry officials have pulled the show from about 50 stations, a spokesman said Monday.

Falwell took over PTL six months ago, following the ouster of founder Jim Bakker.

The Old-Time Gospel Hour will still be aired on about 240 stations around the nation, unless further cutbacks must be made, Falwell spokesman Mark DeMoss said. He said Falwell hopes no layoffs will be necessary if the ministry can save $1 million to $2 million by not buying air time on the 50 stations lo-ated around the country. The cost of television time is the Falwell operation's second largest expenditure after payroll, DeMoss said. Falwell employs about 2,000 people at the Old-Time Gospel Hour, Liberty University and Thomas Road Baptist Church, he said.

Many of them are in areas where viewers can turn to other stations carrying the Old-Time Gospel Hour if they wish, DeMoss said. Falwell hopes cutting the 50 or so stations will not lead to even further layoffs in donations, DeMoss said.

"Most everybody with cable would not be affected by the cuts," DeMoss said.

Mormon leader hears plea of Baha'i-led peace plans

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Mormon Church President Ezra Taft Benson Friday received a booklet from national Baha'i leader James Nelson as part of the sect's efforts to unite the world in an international peace campaign.

Nelson, the chairman of the Baha'i National Assembly, said the presentation of the 40-page publication, entitled "The Promise of World Peace," was part of an effort to involve religious and political leaders in a Baha'i-led peace movement.

"Religion is a most potent force for unity or disunity in the world," said Nelson, a Los Angeles munic-pal judge.

He said that for the first time in the world's history, "we have the ability to destroy or save ourselves."

The booklet was presented at the Mormon Church Building Office to Benson, whom Nelson said accepted it with friendliness.

The booklet states that mankind's goal should be to "work together for the advancement of human understanding and peace."

The world headquarters of the Baha'is is located in Haifa, Israel, where the Baha'is believe their faith's founder, Baha'ullah, was sent on his final exile in 1868.

China ousts reporters from Tibet, tightens tourist access

Lhasa shopkeeper boards up windows against unrest

CHENGDU, China (AP) — Chinese authorities Friday ordered travelers not to tour groups to leave Tibet within a week and expelled Western journalists after 16 people were reported killed in independence protests.

Police patrolled Lhasa, capital of the remote Himalayan region, and officials used loudspeakers to warn people not to demonstrate again. Buddhist monks in Lhasa said two colleagues died and seven were hospitalized after police beat them during a protest Tuesday.

After an earlier protest on Oct. 1, Chinese officials reported that six Chinese policemen were killed and Western doctors traveling in Lhasa said eight Tibetans were killed in street battles.

The worst separatist violence in Tibet in 28 years began with a smaller demonstration Sept. 27.

China annexed Tibet in 1950 and claims its sovereignty over the region dates to the 13th century. The Dalai Lama, who was revered by Tibetans as a god-king and was Tibet's spiritual and civil ruler, fled to India after a failed anti-Chinese uprising in 1959 by his followers.

Police said Friday that protesters who turn themselves in before Oct. 15 will be dealt with leniently. Previous official statements called for harsh punishment for the demonstrators.

On Wednesday, Chinese officials in Tibet gave 14 Western journalists 48 hours to leave Lhasa and said they violated regulations by failing to get permission 10 days in advance to report in the region. Lhasa had been one of 400 cities in China where foreigners could travel without official permission.

The last reporters, including two Associated Press journalists, arrived Friday in Chengdu in nearby Sichuan province, the air gateway to Tibet. The other reporters represented U.S., British, Italian, French, West German and Australian media.

In Washington, the State Department expressed regret that China acted "to restrict the free flow of information," but China quickly responded: "This is by no means restriction on the free communication of information. No foreign country has the right to make irresponsible remarks."

Police told the Western-run Lhasa Hotel all individual travelers should be out of Lhasa within a week, said Jill Kluge, hotel sales representative.

Authorities gave no indication they planned to halt the lucrative tour groups that brought 30,000 Western tourists to Lhasa last year.

There was no explanation for the order. Since the protests began, however, officials have issued numerous warnings to foreigners not to get involved. Many who took pictures of the demonstrations had their film confiscated.

For several days this week, officials in Chengdu told individual travelers that tickets to Lhasa were not available for at least 10 days. The Chinese Embassy in Nepal, the other gateway to Tibet, stopped issuing visas for travel to the region.

A Foreign Ministry spokeswoman said Lhasa remained an open city, but added, "In view of actual conditions in Lhasa, at the moment foreigners are advised not to go."

Many Tibetans quietly advocate the return of the Dalai Lama. The independence protests began Sept. 27 with a march by about two dozen Buddhist monks. On Oct. 1, at least 2,000 people led by monks stoned police and burned a police station in a clash lasting most of the day.

Chinese authorities quickly sent more than 1,000 heavily armed police into Lhasa, but about 100 monks marched again Tuesday and police arrested about 60, beating and clubbing them.

Critic of U.S. picked foreign secretary

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corason Aquino on Friday nominated as foreign secretary Sen. Raul Manglapus, a veteran lawmaker and critic of the U.S. military role here, to bring experience to a government facing coup plots and communist rebels.

U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Platt meanwhile reaffirmed support for the Aquino government and dismissed as rumors press reports that a renegade army officer, Lt. Col. Raynaldo Cabautan, denounced Mr. Aquino on a U.S.-run base.

In another development, Jovito Salonga, the president of the Senate, said the government might have to invoke emergency powers if right-wing extremists keep trying to overthrow Mrs. Aquino.

The nation also has battled a communist insurrection for 18 years.

Mrs. Aquino announced she was nominating Manglapus, 68, because the nation "needs a man of exceptional ability, dedication, intelligence and experience to guide our foreign relations."

Vice President Salvador Laurel resigned as foreign secretary last month because of differences with Mrs. Aquino.

After the announcement, Salonga told reporters the government did not believe the security situation was serious enough to require emergency powers, but such measures might be needed "if there are more threats to the administration."

The last coup attempt, on Aug. 28, left 63 dead and was the most serious challenge to Mrs. Aquino since she was swept to power in a February 1986 civilian-military rebellion that toppled President Ferdinand Marcos.

On Wednesday, presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno quoted Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel V. Ramos as saying five groups, including opposition politicians, were plotting new attacks against the government this month.

Manglapus, a captain in the anti-Japanese resistance during World War II, served as undersecretary of foreign affairs from 1954 until 1957, when he took over briefly as acting foreign secretary.

He was secretary-general of the 1954 founding conference of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and a visiting professor of law at U.S. universities including Cornell and Harvard.

He left for the United States after Marcos declared martial law in 1972 and returned after Mrs. Aquino took office last year.

Manglapus has called on the United States and the Soviet Union to negotiate the neutralization of Southeast Asia so their military forces could leave the area.

He refrained from calling for unconditional removal of U.S. bases but challenged U.S. claims that the installations serve Philippine defense interests.

Search to continue for 3 days

Motorboat flotilla on Loch Ness reports many sonar contacts

DRUMNADROCHIT, Scotland (AP) — A motorboat flotilla moved down the inky waters of Loch Ness like an out-of-step chorus line Friday in the biggest scientific hunt yet for Nessie, the lake's elusive monster.

Adrian Shine, an avowed Nessie skeptic who organized the three-day hunt, said Friday's six-hour search turned up three contacts in the lake's 754-foot-deep waters and many along the floor. The strongest contact was at 594 feet, Shine said at a news conference after the day's hunt.

Earlier, Loch Ness Center director Tony Harnsworth noted a contact made at 244 feet and said: "If we have a monster, it would register exactly like this."

He said the contact "must have been strong to register as it did."

Shine has said the hunt would be the most thorough over of the murky lake but would not resolve the 1,400-year-old debate about whether the monster is fact or fantasy.

"Keep faith with all the maligned eyewitnesses who look to you for vindication," the 38-year-old London salesman told his 100 volunteers before the boats set out. "You all know where I stand on this issue. I want you to suspend my skepticism."

It was Shine's 1982 expedition to Loch Ness, during which 40 strong sonar contacts with large and sometimes moving objects were reported, that led to this week's Operation Deepscan.

Twenty-four motorboats equipped with the latest American-made sonar echo sounders straggled into place across the center of the mile-wide lake.

Wind made the surface choppy and the 32-foot vessels could not hold to a straight line.

"In this weather right now it's pretty horrible, but it will start to shape up," said 14-year-old Sebastian Callaway of Los Angeles, who was steering boat number 14.

As the flotilla made its way down the middle of the lake, the area where Shine's sonar contacts were reported in 1982, voices on the marine radio reported the new ones.

Each was marked with a buoy for a followup to determine whether the object remained there or had moved off.

Shine said he was looking for "a very large fish" and "would be delighted with a 20-foot eel or sturgeon or something like that."

Harnsworth said the middle of the lake was like a desert in terms of underwater life and vegetation.

"It's like looking for elephants in Africa and choosing the Sahara first," he said. "It's the easiest. They're only covering a small area and they're looking at the easy bit first."

Iranian envoy says attack declaration of war

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iran's U.N. ambassador said Friday the U.S. attack against his country's patrol boats constituted a declaration of war designed to ruin prospects for peace, and said Iran would respond "at the proper time."

"We think we are at war. We think we are being killed by the American," Ambassador Said Rajjia-Khorassani told reporters at a U.N. news conference. "I think it's a declaration of war by the United States against Iran, that's definite."

The Iranian envoy gave an account of Thursday's incident that differs sharply with the American version. He said Iranian patrol boats near Farsi Island were approached by a U.S. vessel and were "targeted" by American helicopters.

"They responded. The American boat was damaged. One of the American helicopters was shot down. And then three of our boats were sunk by the American helicopter fire," Rajjia-Khorassani said. The U.S. government contends four Iranian gunboats opened fire without warning on a U.S. observation helicopter patrolling the northern Persian Gulf. Washington contends the confrontation ended when an Army attack helicopter strafed and disabled three of three Iranian boats, sinking one.

Asked whether the U.S. fleet in the gulf was subject to Iranian retaliation, Rajjia-Khorassani said: "I don't think that I should be very specific on that."

Car bombing in Kabul kills 27, wounds 35

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Moslem guerrillas set off a car bomb that killed 27 people and wounded 35 near a mosque in the capital of Afghanistan, Radio Kabul said Friday.

Women, children and old men were killed in the blast at 7:30 p.m. Thursday near the Sher-Pur mosque, frequented by high government officials and Moslem diplomats in Kabul's northern Shari-

Nau district, the radio reported. It was the worst known terrorist bombing in Kabul since Soviet troops entered Afghanistan in December 1979 to oust a pro-Soviet government, replace it with another one, and help the government fight anti-communist Moslem guerrillas.

The official radio, monitored in Islamabad, said the explosion was the work of "malicious and criminal extremist opposition elements," a code phrase for the Moslem guerrillas. City authorities responded by asking citizens "not to sow... reactions to disturb the life of citizens, and to inform security forces of subversion," the radio said. Western diplomats in Islamabad, quoting their counterparts in Kabul, have reported several bombings and rocket attacks there in recent weeks.

FAMILIES FIGHTING

You know why you fought with your parents? And why your kids fight with you? So you'd go elsewhere to marry. And so your kids will go elsewhere to marry. It's a pre-civilization device of nature to prevent cross-matings that foul genetic integrity," the psychologists say. They got their information from monkeys. Monkeys fight across the generations that way.

Jazz singer Della Reese lends talents to fund-raiser greats

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jazz singer Della Reese made a surprise appearance with the Fisk University Jubilee Singers, a group famous for its fund-raising efforts.

Reese sang songs such as "The Lady is a Tramp" and "You Can't Take That Away from Me" before relinquishing the show Wednesday night to the Jubilee Singers.

But she slipped back on stage as the group sang the spiritual "Everytime I Feel the Spirit."

"We have a new alto, and we gladly expand the Jubilee Singers to 17 members," said Anthony Williams, the group's director. The performance raised funds for Fisk University's art collections.

Enrico Wallenda vows a high-wire comeback

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Recovering from his first high-wire fall in 20 years of performing, Enrico Wallenda vows to return to the wire even though it will be a while before he can perform the acrobatic maneuvers that made his family famous.

Wallenda has been in Baptist Medical Center since he fell 30 feet during a performance here Sept. 19. He suffered a broken hip, arm and rib, skull fractures and a shattered hand and wrist. He is scheduled to be discharged Saturday.

Rather than jumps and other maneuvers, Wallenda said a three-person human pyramid that crosses the wire on bicycles may become the central part of his act.

A human pyramid as many as seven people is one of the pioneering maneuvers that helped make the Wallenda family famous. Wallenda, 32, is the grandson of internationally known aerialist Karl Wallenda, who died in a fall in 1978. Three other members of Wallenda's family also were killed during high-wire acts.

Moroccan king seeks American tax break

PEAPACK-GLADSTONE, N.J. (AP) — Moroccan King Hassan II wants a property tax break that could amount to a princely sum.

Hassan owns a 500-acre estate assessed at $5.5 million that spreads across three communities, including 332 acres in this borough.

The king has asked local officials to reassess 235 acres as farmland, which is assessed at a lower value. If approved, the king's annual taxes here would drop from $115,000 to $67,000.

Hassan has five palaces in Morocco, three with golf courses. In order to qualify for the lower assessment, land must be farmed for two years and must earn at least $500 a year in agricultural sales. A local farmer who delivered the application has been growing corn, raising cows and cutting grass for hay on the estate.

Hassan bought the property, which includes a 40-room Tudor mansion, in 1983. But neighbors say he rarely stops by.

Parisians toast elite of Spanish culture

PARIS (AP) — Ole-ole mixed with ooh-la-la as a grand tribute to Spanish culture opened in Paris with the aid of Premier Jacques Chirac and Queen Sofia of Spain.

Amid tight security, hundreds of invited guests, diplomats, reporters and art connoisseurs inaugurated a giant art show Thursday featuring works by Pablo Picasso, Joan Miro and Juan Gris.

The show, "Picasso's Century," at the Museum of Modern Art of the City of Paris, marked the start of the nine-month celebration of Spanish culture.

The $4 million splash, "Paris on Spanish Time," features four major art exhibitions, theater productions, dance performances, concerts and two Spanish film festivals.

Queen Sofia toured the exhibition with Chirac and Spain's culture minister, Javier Solana. The show features paintings and sculpture by some of Spain's most important 20th-century artists, along with paintings by Picasso, the Spanish-born master.

McEntire to boycott press conference

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Reba McEntire says she will not participate in a news conference Monday night after the nationally televised Country Music Association awards show.

She said in a statement Thursday she feels winners should meet the press backstage during the show rather than afterward.

McEntire was voted CMA entertainer of the year, the top award, last year, but refused to attend the press conference after the awards program. She has not elaborated on her stated reasons for boycotting the press conference.

Jetliner hijinks land honeymooners in jail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two newlyweds whose embraces and carousing forced a jetliner to make an unscheduled stop in Houston were fined $1,000 each and sentenced to two years' probation for assault and lewd conduct.

Mitchell and Cindy Martina of Huntington Beach admitted they got drunk after their wedding May 9, then staggered aboard a Continental Airlines flight from Tampa, Fla., to Los Angeles.

"Continental's first mistake was letting us on the plane," Martina said Thursday after the sentencing in federal court.

The 30-year-old postal carrier said she blamed the trouble on flight attendants who refused to serve the couple beer.

"If they had just served us one beer, we probably would have passed out," she said.

The Martins were verbally abusive, nearly jabbed another passenger with a metal fork and amorously embraced each other in front of a young girl, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Stephen Wolfe.

After the plane landed in Houston, the couple was turned over to federal agents who put them up for their first two honeymoon nights in separate jail cells.

Traveling with the Martins was their best man, John Keyes of Huntington Beach, who was held for six hours and released.

U.S. District Judge John Davies said he would have liked to order the Martins to pay the airline $2,600 in restitution, but that question was never raised when the couple entered their pleas.

A Continental Airlines spokesman said the company would not seek any payment from the Martins for the trouble they caused.

Davies also ordered Mitchell Martina, 23, to attend Alcoholics Anonymous meetings during his probation.

Austin tried, but breath of life failed for gator

COTILE, La. (AP) — It hurts when a drowning victim can't be revived, even if it might have bitten a big chunk out of you afterward, says Fire Chief James Austin.

"It (is) a heartbreaking type of thing when you can't bring anybody around," Austin, who calls himself a diehard environmentalist, told the CWLF Lake Environmental Association.

Austin described the mouth-to-snout respiration he gave a drowned alligator at the group's Monday night meeting. He said he was called in when a young alligator got caught in a beaver trap about a month ago.

By the time he and Rapides Parish trapper Dave Randall got to the trap, the alligator was still. Part of the trap had clamped down on its neck, and the alligator was drowning in less than two feet of water.

The two men heaved the five-to-six-foot gator out of the water and turned it on its back.

"We're going to try to bring him back," Austin told Randall. He said the trapper shook his head and said, "If you want to do it, go ahead."

Austin listened for a heartbeat. "I wasn't actually sure where the heart is on an alligator," he said.

He held the jaws shut, opened the nostrils which alligators close while underwater, and began breathing into the nostrils.

"It wasn't easy, I tell you, just to get some air into him," he said. "I got a couple of breaths in him. I know I had because his lungs were expanding."

"I wasn't too anxious for the dude to come back alive being that close to him," he recalled. "But I figured I could jump back from him."

Cancer takes Clare Boothe Luce at 84

CLARE BOOTHE LUCE
Journalist, diplomat

NEW YORK (AP) — Clare Boothe Luce, a writer, editor, congresswoman and diplomat who used her husband's wealth and power and her own brains and beauty to become one of the century's most influential women, died of cancer Friday. She was 84.

Mrs. Luce, the widow of Time Inc. founder Henry R. Luce, died at home in Washington, according to Robert Armstrong, executive director of the Henry Luce Foundation.

"She'll be remembered for a career of a kind that no woman had had before," Wilfred Sheed, author of a profile of Mrs. Luce, said Friday. "I think that's very much what she had in mind when she started out. She wanted to have attempted everything, for better or worse."

Mrs. Luce was on speaking terms with every president from Franklin

D. Roosevelt, whom she criticized, to Ronald Reagan, whom she admired. FDR, she once said, "lied us into war." Reagan, she said last year, "returned the United States to a sense of strength and solidarity, and forward progress."

In a statement from the White House, Reagan saluted Mrs. Luce as "a woman who was constantly expanding the boundaries of what a woman could do."

"Nancy and I knew Mrs. Luce as a woman of generosity, charm, forcefulness, and — a point not always noted — gentleness," the president said. "Her Roman Catholic faith was central to her life and thought. And always, there was her concern for the nation."

She was elected to the best-dressed list as well as Congress, and was known as much for her good brain as her good looks. Nice legs, she said, were not enough: "I want to be known for my other end. Mrs. Luce was born in New York City on April 10, 1903. Her parents separated when she was young, and her mother took her to Paris for a year. She later attended private schools in New York.

In 1923 she married George T. Brokaw and divorced him six years later. Their only child, Ann Clare Brokaw, was killed in an automobile accident in 1944.

Mrs. Luce joined Vogue magazine in 1930 and served as managing editor of Vanity Fair in 1933 and 1934. In 1935, she married Luce, who started Time and Fortune magazines and a weekly magazine with pictures that his bride had envisioned — Life.

Three of her plays appeared on Broadway, most notably "The Women" (1938), which had an all-female cast, ran for 857 performances and was adapted for film.

Agent Orange still in clear

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new round of medical examinations for volunteers participating in a 20-year study has failed to uncover any unusual health problems among pilots or ground personnel who handled the defoliant Agent Orange in Vietnam, the Air Force says.

"This follow-up report concludes that there is not sufficient plausible or consistent scientific evidence at this time to implicate a causal relationship between herbicide exposure and adverse health in the Ranch Hand group," the study team said in a 45-page report released this week.

The 1985 examination results provide reassuring evidence that the current state of health of the Ranch Hand participants is unrelated to herbicide exposure in Vietnam.

Operation Ranch Hand was the Air Force's code name for the aerial spraying of Agent Orange during the Vietnam war. The spraying was performed to defoliate large sections of the countryside to deny ground cover to North Vietnamese soldiers.

Sole airline crash survivor is released

CECELIA CICHAN
Released to a new life

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Four-year-old Cecelia Cichan, the only survivor of an Aug. 18 Northwest Airlines crash that killed her parents and 154 other people, was released from a hospital Friday to a new home and a new life.

The Tempe, Ariz., girl was released to the custody of an aunt and uncle, Rita and Frank Lumpkin, and they boarded a 6:30 a.m. flight for Birmingham, Ala.

At the request of the family, no reporters were present, said Mike Harrison, spokesman for the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Dr. Jai Prasad, who was Cecelia's principal physician, said the child seemed happy about leaving the hospital's "very regimented routine" after seven weeks.

"That's a very normal reaction," he said. "Her general attitude was one of the finest I have seen in a four-year-old."

Cecelia's parents and 6-year-old brother died in the second-worst air disaster in the nation's history, the crash of Flight 255 at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

Authorities said they believe the girl survived because she was shielded from the impact of the crash by her mother's body.

Authorities initially believed Cecelia was one of a few people injured on the ground during the crash, but she was identified by her grandfather because of purple nail polish she wore.

While hospitalized, Cecelia underwent four skin graft operations for severe burns to her arms and legs. She also suffered a skull fracture, a fractured collarbone and broken left leg. Prasad said Cecelia will have some scarring on her arms and legs, but none on her face, from burns which covered 30 percent of her body.

"She understands she has lost her father and her mother and her brother," he added. "She understands that she was involved in the accident. But she doesn't have any memory of how it happened."

More than 2,000 gifts and 30,000 cards and letters were sent to the hospital for Cecelia, but her relatives asked that most of the gifts be distributed instead to children's hospitals in Ann Arbor, Detroit, Tempe, Philadelphia and Phoenix, Ariz.

PTL future questioned

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The 1,200 employees at PTL's Heritage U.S. headquarters were paid scheduled Friday amid confusion and rumor about the future of the ministry following the resignation of the Rev. Jerry Falwell and other top officers.

One of the vice presidents who resigned with Falwell said he is praying the ministry will survive but feared its future is "very dim." A trustee from the U.S. Department of Justice, John Waites, filed a motion late Thursday asking a bankruptcy judge presiding over PTL's reorganization to appoint a trustee to oversee the ministry. But Judge Rufus Reynolds hadn't taken any action on that request as of Friday.

Lawyers involved in the case met Friday in Fort Mill, where PTL is based. Who was in that meeting or what was being discussed was unclear.

Meanwhile, the staff members at Heritage USA were paid Friday, according to the public relations office.

UAW settlement predicted

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Owen Bieber said Friday he expects General Motors Corp. workers to approve a pact that would restrict layoffs and block further plant closings by the nation's largest automaker.

The tentative contract reached Thursday between the union and GM must be approved by the union's 23-member executive board, which meets Sunday, and a 300-worker bargaining council which meets Monday.

It will be offered for ratification to GM's 335,000 active UAW workers. Bieber predicted approval.

The pact closely mirrors a job-protecting Ford Motor Co. contract ratified Sept. 30.

Both the Ford and GM contracts were reached without a strike, and Bieber never set a strike deadline for the GM talks. The pact with Chrysler Corp. expires next year.

Like the Ford contract, the three-year GM pact would prevent layoffs for most reasons except slow sales, encourage local unions to accept new plant work rates, ban plant closings except those already announced and require the automaker to recall or hire one worker for every two who leave the payroll.

Reagan to push for more contra aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will ask Congress to vote on $270 million in aid to the Nicaraguan Contras rebels after the Nov. 7 deadline for implementation of the Central American peace plan, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday.

The agreement calls for an end to U.S. aid to the Contras but Shultz said the assistance would be provided in a way that would not violate terms of the accord.

By Nov. 7, the terms of the peace agreement signed by five Central American presidents are to be implemented.

And then there were two: Wendell 36, Filer 28

FILER — Five plays into the game, the Wendell Trojans unveiled their game plan.

The Trojans, coming in with the reputation of one of the better running attacks around, exploded a 54-yard play-action pass to set the tone for a 36-28 decision over the Filer Wildcats.

The victory knocked Filer out of a share of the Canyon Conference lead and kept Wendell's hopes for a repeat title burning — and facing a second straight "battle of undefeateds" showdown against Glenna Ferry next week. Glenna Ferry stayed in a tie for the lead by blanking Valley 14-0 Friday night.

Wendell Coach Shawn Corrigan maintained he hadn't come into the game with the idea of throwing as much as his Trojans did. "We just found some open spots in the middle after the game started," he said, but added "they were playing (junior wideout Dean) Surplus deep — although he still caught with touchdown passes and all we had to do was drag a receiver over the middle." Filer Coach Wade Quessnell still figured it was the game plan, however.

"That play-action pass," he said was the difference in the game. "What hurt so much was the trouble controlling their running game. Our defensive secondary kept cheating up to help control their running backs, especially Greg Hirai who had an excellent game, and, bang, they'd drop a play-action pass on us. When you're thinking about the running game, the play action pass is devastating."

That first one was a master stroke of play calling as it came just after Wendell had gambled — and barely won — on a fourth-and-one play near midfield. Quarterback Chad Ruffing faked a handoff to Hirai and when he straightened up, the fleet Surplus was behind everyone. The pass was a little underthrown but Surplus was able to sprint away from the final two Filer defenders. Chris Thackeray ran the two-pointer across and Wendell never trailed — although the Trojans misfired a couple of times on opportunities to put the Wildcats away early.

For the next several minutes, however, Wendell's defensive secondary appeared capable of giving those points back. On Filer's next two possessions, quarterback Mike Brady unleashed four long passes. All four appeared intercepted probably and knocked down at least but all four wound up being caught — two for touchdowns — because the Wendell defenders misjudged the carry of the ball.

One was a 37-yard scoring bomb to Nick Pettinger but the lead held at 8-6 when the conversion run was stopped.

The Trojans picked up eight more points in the first quarter, scoring on a 48-yard dash by Surplus on a screen pass. Duane Packer got the two-pointer.

Just five plays later — nine seconds into the second period Filer clicked on another homerun, Brady finding Clint Lutz with a 49-yarder that once again sailed over the outstretched hands of a seemingly well-positioned defender. The conversion pass failed.

Wendell then had a chance to break it open. Hirai capped a drive with a three-yard scoring plunge as Filer was hit with a 15-yard penalty. Wendell elected to go with an onside kick and won when Scott Packer recovered on the Filer 24. A pass interference call on fourth and nine gave Wendell a first but not on the next play Filer's Lutz intercepted a deflected pass and returned it to midfield. Three plays later, Jared Conrad made a nifty spin out of a tackle, cut against the grain and sped 48 yards. The quick

'Cats stun Caldwell to keep alive hopes of trip to playoffs

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The celebration at the end of the Burley-Caldwell game Friday night was similar to the New York Giants winning last year's Super Bowl.

The Burley win kicked off the celebration as the entire Bobcat team whooped it up on the sideline, and Burley Coach Gary Hoxsey got the customary bucket of ice over the head.

The victory for the Bobcats was just as important as a Super Bowl victory because Friday's 21-14 upset over Caldwell puts Burley a step closer to a berth in the state Class A-1 Division II playoffs.

Burley is in the same pod as Caldwell and Mountain Home, and a victory over both schools would give the Burley team a leg up on a trip to state.

The Bobcats, down to 24 players because of injuries, handled the Cougars' offensive attack all evening.

"I told the kids we were just a little bit off from beating teams," said Hoxsey. "We just eliminated mistakes and dominated the line of scrimmage."

Caldwell got on the scoreboard first, which must have given Burley fans visions of last year's 47-0 Caldwell victory.

The Cougars took the opening kick and the drive was capped off by a 1-yard plunge by Jordan Child giving Caldwell the early advantage.

Along with the extra point kick by Rich Roberge, the Cougars had a 7-0 lead just four minutes into the game.

Burley's first drive of the game stalled deep in its own territory, but a roughing-the-kicker penalty assessed against the Cougars on the Bobcat punt gave Burley new life.

Utilizing the talents of juniors Val King and Mike Ruffing, the Bobcats roared down the field and completed their drive with a 20-yard pass from Pete Rodriguez to Joel Robins for the touchdown. The extra point was missed after Burley was penalized and the Bobcats trailed by 7-6.

Early in the second period, Burley's Darrin Konrad picked off a Caldwell pass and set up the Bobcats at the 37-yard line.

Ruffing carried twice netting 26 yards driving the Bobcats to the 11-yard line.

Rodriguez found Robins again and Robins ran to the end zone and was shoved out of bounds at the 1-yard line. Val King ran it in from there and Burley took the lead after Rodriguez found Robins again on the extra point.

The two squads traded punts in the third quarter with Burley holding the ball for nine minutes on-running plays. Despite the clock winding down, Burley still couldn't punch it in. In that quarter, the Bobcats had the ball 15 yards away from paydirt, but came up empty.

Up-against-the-wall Vandals take on Grizzlies

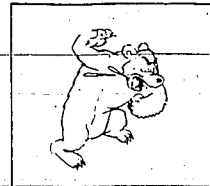

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

MOSCOW — What a difference a week makes.

Last Saturday morning, the University of Idaho Vandals were the co-leaders of the Big Sky Conference, coming off a big road victory over 15th-ranked Northern Arizona and heading into a game against Idaho State, which hadn't won a game since 1986.

This Saturday, the 2-2 Vandals are looking at a must-win game against giant-killing Montana, ranked 15th in the nation in NCAA Division I-AA and coming off successive wins against nationally ranked teams, including defending Big Sky champ Nevada-Reno two weeks ago.

Beyond Montana, UNR is coming to town next week, followed by Eastern Washington the following week. Then the Vandals will visit Weber State — where they've won once in the last decade — on Halloween.

"I remember Don James making the statement more games are lost than won, and I felt we lost the Idaho State game," said Idaho Coach Keith Gilbertson. "If we want to beat Montana, we can't go to them and lose it like that. We have to play smart, play well in the kicking game and do our thing well."

The Vandals are 1-1 in conference games; for the record no team with more than one loss has ever won the Big Sky title. No team with more than two losses has ever advanced to the I-AA playoffs. "We've backed ourselves against the wall, now we have to find a way off it," said Gilbertson. "We have to get the next win."

The Vandals aren't in real good shape physically to pull that off. Idaho lost two starters, junior guard Mark Schlereth and senior free safety Dan McCanna, indefinitely as a result of injuries incurred in the Idaho State game. Two backup defensive backs, redshirt freshman cornerback Travis Holycross and junior cornerback Oswald James, were also injured and are listed as questionable for tonight's 8 p.m. MDT contest in the Kibbie Dome. Crippled Cards rally to beat Giants with 4-run seventh

By BEN WALKER
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The crippled St. Louis Cardinals, playing with a crazy quilt lineup, patched together enough punch and put the hurt on the San Francisco Giants.

The Cardinals, missing injured Terry Pendleton and Jack Clark, hit five straight singles and rallied for four runs in the seventh inning to beat San Francisco 6-5 Friday night for a 2-1 lead in the National League playoffs.

"I don't like to harp on these injuries because we had them all year," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. "We really didn't play that alert, but I wasn't discouraged because we got a lot of guys playing positions that they don't play all the time."

"I get a lot of mail from people here who say we're a dull team, a boring team, that we're a bunch of dinkers," Herzog said.

They hardly looked like a bunch of dinkers when it counted Friday night.

Madison saddles Twin Falls with third its consecutive loss

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ted Smack's 24-yard field goal midway through the fourth quarter pulled the Twin Falls Bruins within a touchdown, but an apparent violation at the opposite end of the field three minutes later allowed Madison to wrap up a 22-9 Gem State Conference football win Friday.

"There's no question that there was a push on their last touchdown, monned a disappointed Twin Falls Coach Jon Juind. "We were still in it at that point, but they didn't draw a flag and that pretty much decided it."

Juind was referring to a 16-yard pass from Madison quarterback Brad Mortenson to wide receiver Brent Holloway, which capped a nine-play, 74-yard march following Smack's field goal. On the play, which ended the scoring for both teams, the Bobcat receiver ap-

Talks between NFL, players hit snag over pact's length

TYSONS CORNER, Va. (AP) — Negotiations to end the NFL strike hit another snag Friday when the union accused the club owners of stalling the talks with a "new and ridiculous" demand for a six-year contract.

A union spokesman suggested that management's strategy was to force another weekend of "sabotage."

Nonetheless, bargaining on a contract that would end the 18-day-old strike continued. As of mid-day, there had been agreement on eight of the 38 issues to be covered, all of them minor.

The charge that the club owners were deliberately stalling was made by Doug Allen, the union's assistant executive director.

It came immediately after management spokesman John Jones had confirmed to reporters that, for a second week, games would be played with replacement players and those regulars who had crossed

BSU hosts mysteriously successful Eagles

By STEVE CRUMP

BOISE — How does a team with few healthy offensive "skill" people win four of its first five games and hold a share of first place in the Big Sky Conference midway through the season?

"Well, for one thing they're leading the Big Sky in pass defense," said Boise State University Coach Skip Hall of the Eastern Washington University Eagles, whom the Broncos will host at 7 p.m. tonight in Bronco Stadium. "Defensively, they're real aggressive. They run to the ball real well and as a result they come up with the big plays."

Eastern Washington, which has beaten Idaho State and Montana State and lost to Nevada-Reno so far this season, is tied with 1-0 Weber State atop the league standings. Despite this being the Eagles' inaugural season in the Big Sky, EWU is off to its best start in years.

That, according to Coach Dick Zornes, has more to do with the caliber of the Eagles' early-season schedule than with Eastern's performance heretofore.

"It's hard to rate the caliber of the competition," said Zornes. "Going into those five games, the only really good team at the time seemed to be Reno. But Idaho State upset Idaho, and that makes our win seem a little more important."

Eastern has been playing without all-American tailback James Williams, since the second game of the season. Senior quarterback Jon Snider suffered a shoulder separation early in EWU's 3-0 win over Stephen F. Austin last week and probably won't play tonight.

No comment on BLCC changes

By The Times-News
TWIN FALLS — Rumors circulating that a change is imminent in the Blue Lakes Country Club golfing operation are receiving little comment from the involved individuals.
Reports began circulating among Twin Falls golfers late Wednesday that Nate Ross, who has been in the club's pro shop for the past 20 years, and the club would sever relations when the current season ends.
Ross, who began as an assistant pro to Dave Killen and then took the head job when Killen moved in as heads greengrader, declined any comment.
" Just don't know and I can't discuss it," Ross said.
Stan Detweiler, president of the club, also declined any comment on the situation and club manager Paul Wilkins was unavailable late Friday evening.
While the rumors have stated that Ross and his son, Jeff, the club's assistant pro, would leave this month, there were other reports that support for Ross were building in other segments of the club membership.
Part of those rumors say that the situation, real or imagined, could be settled at a board meeting Monday night.
Detweiler confirmed that the board is scheduled to meet Monday evening but declined to discuss the agenda.

Fregosi agrees to new contract

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Fregosi said Thursday he has agreed to a multi-year contract to return as manager of the Chicago White Sox.
" I'm thrilled to death we got it all hashed out," Fregosi said on WBBM-TV of his talks the past few days with White Sox General Manager Larry Himes.
Fregosi said Himes had wanted to give him a one-year contract, but finally agreed to the multi-year pact. Fregosi gave other details of the agreement.
" We have the same goal — bringing a winner to the White Sox and the city," said Fregosi, 45, who took over as manager June 22, 1986, after Tony LaRussa was fired.
The White Sox went 45-51 under Fregosi for the rest of the 1986 season, then posted a 77-85 record in 1987, finishing fifth in the American League West. But the club won 17 of its last 21 games after starting the season 25-45.

Olajide takes on Tate

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Frank Tate, who won an Olympic gold medal by sticking and moving, has a different game plan when he meets Michael Olajide today for the IBF middleweight title.
" I'm just going to be on his chest from the opening bell," Tate said. " I'm the more physical man. I'm stronger than Mike. I don't think Michael Olajide can stand there and trade punches with me."
Tate, who won the gold medal at 156 pounds in the 1984 Olympics, plans to attack the style Saturday when he meets Olajide in a scheduled 15-round bout for the International Boxing Federation version of the middleweight crown.
Olajide thinks it will be a mistake.
" It's the wrong strategy for him," Olajide said. " He'll be fighting outside his style. Besides, Michael Olajide will not be backing up."
Oddsmakers agreed with Olajide, making Tate a 2-1 underdog.

Viola will pitch Sunday

MINNEAPOLIS — As expected, Minnesota Twins Manager Tom Kelly said he'd bring Game 1 starter Frank Viola back to start Game 4 of the American League Championship Series Sunday at Tiger Stadium.
Viola threw 99 pitches against the Detroit Tigers in Game 1 and said, " I feel fine. When I go seven, I usually throw 100-110 pitches. I told the coaches before the game I'd be ready to go."
Kelly said he was leaning toward such a move and made up his mind when Frank came into the clubhouse cackling and laughing. " I knew he was OK."
Meanwhile, Sparky Anderson said he was leaning toward using left-hander Frank Tanana, although the Twins had the best record in the AL against left-handed pitching (25-17).

Dodds, Edwards share lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Trevor Dodds and 1985 champ Danny Edwards were off for the second time today Friday for the first of the $300,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament.
Dodds and Edwards were at 8-under-par 134 after two rounds over the 7,154-yard, par-71 Perdido Bay Resort course.
Dodds birdied the last three holes, Thursday for a 67, and matched that score Friday with four birdies. Edwards' roller-coaster round Friday included six birdies and two bogeys.

Sampson gets $2 million offer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Houston Rockets center Ralph Sampson has been offered a six-year deal by the Portland Trail Blazers that would pay him in excess of $2 million annually.
Blazers President Jerry Calmon said Thursday the proposal would make Sampson " one of the highest-paid players in the NBA."
The 7-foot-4 Sampson spent the day with his agent, Gene Perry, to discuss the deal, Glickman said.
The Blazers are among several teams that have expressed interest in acquiring Sampson, who averaged 15.6 points per game last season, his fourth in the NBA.
Houston has said it will match any offer to Sampson.

Holmes vs. Tyson?

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Holmes and Mike Tyson, in the ring together? Larry Holmes in the ring again?
Don King says so.
Holmes, the former heavyweight champion, will come out of retirement and meet undisputed champion Mike Tyson on Jan. 23 if Tyson beats Tyrell Biggs next week, King said Thursday.
Holmes' return is " predicated on Tyson beating Tyrell Biggs," the promoter said.
The unbeaten Tyson, 21, defends his undisputed title against Biggs at Convention Hall in Atlantic City, N.J., Oct. 16.
Holmes, who turns 38 next month, retired after losing a 15-round split decision in a bid to regain the IBF championship from Michael Spinks on April 19, 1986.
Tyson has a record of 31-0 with 28 knockouts.
No site has been determined for the Tyson-Holmes fight, which would be televised by HBO.
Negotiations for the bout have been going on for more than a year, King said. He said he would disclose Holmes' purse, but the former champion reportedly would receive about $3 million. The promoter said Tyson's purse would be determined following the fight against Biggs.

Krystkowiak won't report

MISOULA, Mont. (AP) — Former University of Montana star Larry Krystkowiak won't be in Texas this weekend as the San Antonio Spurs open their National Basketball Association training camp.
For the past three weeks, Krystkowiak has been in Florence, Italy, playing on the European basketball circuit.
He spent his rookie year with the Spurs last season. He signed a three-year contract, but only the first year was guaranteed.
San Antonio refused to sign Krystkowiak for the additional two years, so he accepted an offer from the Italian team.
The Spurs have gone to court, saying Krystkowiak breached his contract.

They're prohibitive favorites, but Sooners finally get on TV

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN The Associated Press

College football

The Oklahoma Sooners finally get a chance to prove the nation's viewing audience that they deserve their No. 1 ranking — and the Sooners are looking forward to doing just that in their 1987 television debut.
" Nebraska has been on national TV three out of four games this season," quarterback Jamelle Hollieway says of Saturday's annual Red River range war with Texas in Dallas. " We want to show people why we are the No. 1-ranked team."
" It is very important to me," All-American tight end Keith Jackson adds. " It is our first game on national TV (Channels 11-12, 12:30 p.m., MDT) and the first game to showcase my talents."
While Oklahoma has been faunting in the likes of North Texas State, North Carolina, Tulane and Iowa State, second-ranked Nebraska has played such teams as UCLA, Arizona State and South Carolina. No. 3 Miami has faced Florida, Arkansas and Florida State, all ranked in the Associated Press Top Twenty.

Nebraska entertains Kansas on Saturday while Miami plays host to Maryland in a night game. The only pairing of Top Twenty teams finds seventh-ranked LSU at No. 16 Georgia in a key Southeastern Conference contest.
Elsewhere, fourth-ranked Notre Dame visits Pitt under the lights, No. 5 Auburn is at-home-against Vanderbilt, No. 6 Florida State is at Southern Mississippi, No. 8 Clemson entertains Virginia — the Tigers lead the series 26-0 — and No. 9 Ohio State hosts Indiana. Tenth-ranked Tennessee is not scheduled.
In the Second Ten, No. 11 UCLA is idle, No. 12 Michigan visits Michigan State, No. 13 Arizona State is at Washington, Rutgers at No. 14 Penn State, No. 15 Alabama at Memphis State, Fullerton State at No. 18 Florida, Colorado at No. 19 Oklahoma State and No. 20 Arkansas at Texas Tech at night. Syracuse, No. 17, has the weekend off.

Oklahoma is a five-touchdown favorite over Texas and Hollieway says it could resemble last year's 47-12 blowout.

College football

Notre Dame, off to its best start since 1982 against what the NCAA rates the most difficult schedule in nine defensive coordinator Foge Fazio of the Irish was the Panthers' head coach from 1982-85.
" Our job right now is to make sure we keep our priorities straight," Coach Lou Holtz says. " I guess it's natural for our fans and alumni to get excited about being 3-0 and hasn't happened for a few years."
" If anything, though, that just increases our responsibility to make sure we keep it all in perspective. There's no reason to celebrate right now when we've got eight football games left."
Although LSU and Georgia are SEC members, they have met just 17 times, with LSU leading 10-6-1, including last year's 23-14 triumph.
" Without a doubt, LSU is the best football team that we've played this year," says Coach Vince Dooley, who says more or less the same thing about each week's opponent.
They're an extremely aggressive football team and they're to play the game. LSU is one of five or six teams in the country that could be the national champion."
LSU is coming off tough games with Ohio State (a 13-13 tie) and Florida (a 13-10 victory).

" I think our kids will be ready to play," Coach Mike Archer says. " They know Georgia is good. They know that if we're flat again, Georgia will blow us out."
If there is such an animal as a sure thing, it takes place when Clemson meets Virginia. The schools first played in 1955 and Clemson has won every one of the 26 meetings, which many explain why Saturday has been designated homecoming at Death Valley.
The NCAA record for most consecutive wins is 32 by Oklahoma over Kansas State (1937-68). Oklahoma also holds the record for the most consecutive games without a loss (33-0-1 against Kansas State from 1935-68).

The current streak in the latter category is 31 (30-0-1) by Ohio State against Indiana heading into Saturday's Big Ten clash in Columbus. The Buckeyes haven't lost to the Hoosiers since 1951. Woody Hayes' first year as Ohio State coach.

Big Sky: Weber meets NAU; ISU hosts Portland

By The Associated Press

Weber State, the Big Sky Conference's Cinderella team midway through the season, will host Northern Arizona tonight in a game that will determine whether the Wildcats get to keep the gold and silver.
Other games involving Big Sky teams on Saturday include Boise State at Washington at 3-1 Boise State, 1-4 Montana State at 2-2 Nevada and 1-3 Idaho State hosts non-conference foe Portland State.
There is more than league standings and team pride at stake in the matchup between Northern Arizona and Weber State, both 3-1. NAU's defensive backfield coordinator is Paul Arslanian, son of former Weber State head coach Sark Arslanian and the younger brother of Dave Arslanian, Weber's current offensive coordinator.
" This is a chance for me to get even for all the hand-me-down clothes I've had wear," said Paul Arslanian, in his first year with the Lumberjacks. " I always beat him in golf and tennis, so why not football?"
The Wildcats are the only team still unbeaten in Big Sky play and 10th-ranked NAU is the league leader in both total offense and defense. Still, the Lumberjacks have lost to Idaho, so coach Larry Kenters' team will have to find a way to stifle Weber's explosive offense or risk falling quickly out of contention for the league title.

There also are a lot of questions surrounding Nevada-Reno, which figured to dominate the Big Sky this season but now is struggling just to stay in the hunt amidst a two-game losing streak. The Wolf Pack, 1-1 in the league, hosts Montana State, which is 0-2 in conference play and has lost three games in a row.
Two victories in a row is the goal Idaho State coach Jim Koetter has set for his Bengals as they try to use the momentum from last week's upset of Idaho against 4-1 Portland State.

Columbia faces NCAA record-breaking loss

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Columbia will try to avoid setting an NCAA Division I record for most consecutive losses when it meets Princeton and the sons of former Lions Coach Jim Garrett on Saturday.
Columbia has lost its last 34 games and currently shares the record for consecutive losses with Northwestern, which had its streak of futility from 1979-82.
But there is an ironic twist as Columbia faces its 35th straight loss.
The high-scoring Princeton offense is led by quarterback Jason Garrett, halfbrother of Jason Garrett, and wide receiver Jim Garrett. They are the sons of Jim Garrett, who resigned under pressure as Columbia's head football coach after a highly controversial first season in 1985.
Garrett called his players " drug-addicted losers" after they blew a 17-0 third-quarter lead and dropped a 49-17 decision at Harvard.
After their father was forced out, Garrett's sons, who were all attending Columbia, all transferred to Princeton, where Jason Garrett had started his career in 1984 before transferring to Columbia.
Under a contract settlement with Columbia, Jason Garrett is to talk to the media about Columbia or anything that happened while he was there.
Princeton practices have been closed this week and the only statement from the Garrett family came from Jason Garrett in response to a question from the university's sports information department.

" We've got to keep blinders on," Jason Garrett said when asked if the game had any special meaning. " It's interesting to see guys I was on film with. But when you start thinking about that stuff come game time, you're going to get yourself in trouble. We've just got to keep those blinders on and go out and win the game."
Columbia Coach Larry McElreavy, who replaced Garrett, said he would not be surprised to see the Garretts show some animosity.

BYU hosts new WAC powerhouse Wyoming

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The last time Brigham Young and Wyoming played in Cougar Stadium, BYU gave the Cowboys a 69-0 thrashing.
But Cougar Coach LaVell Edwards says it'll be different when the two teams meet Saturday afternoon in the Western Athletic Conference game that could go far toward deciding the conference champion.
For 1985, the Cowboys remember that 1985 game and last year's 34-22 BYU victory in Laramie.
Also, both are unbeaten in the WAC and BYU's homecoming represents the Cougar's first real test in the league since Saturday afternoon they lost last season after a 10-year reign at the top.
" This game with Wyoming represents the first major challenge we've had," Edwards said. " They (Wyoming) have already beaten the so-called experts. They are undefeated and they've beaten some good teams."
The Cowboys, 3-2 overall and 2-0 in the league, were overlooked in the preseason predictions, but opened with a 27-13 victory at home over Air Force and last week pounded defending champion San Diego State 52-10 in Laramie.

Texas-El Paso, 3-1, 2-0, which plays the Aztecs in San Diego Saturday, is the only other WAC team without a conference loss.
" The game really means something this year," said Wyoming Coach Paul Rauch. " Obviously this is a crucial game for us. This is the third conference contender we've faced thus far and a victory would put us in excellent shape as far as the league race is concerned."
BYU, 3-2 overall and with a 46-25 conference win at New Mexico, has won two straight after a 1-2 start. The Cougars defeated Utah State 46-24 last week after their victory in New Mexico.
The Cougars, who have lost non-conference games to Pittsburgh and Texas Christian, have been plagued with injuries, particularly in the defensive secondary.
Cornerbacks Rodney Rice and Rodney Thomas have been sidelined much of the season, but Ed-

To say Koetter was pleased with his team's performance against the Vandals, which netted ISU quarterback Mike Calley Big Sky player of the week honors, would be an understatement worthy of Gilbertson. But he isn't ready to rest on his laurels.
" There's still an opportunity for us to play better," he said. " We can do a better job on the offensive line with all five players playing more consistently. On defense, we've still got to generate a better pass rush. But otherwise we're pleased and feel this is what we should be doing."
" They're going to make every effort to prove a point," McElreavy said. " I would suspect there are more feelings coming from their side of the ball."
Princeton Coach Steve Tosches said he was not noticed the Garretts preparing any differently this week. However, he noted that his players are well aware of the Columbia streak.
" It's there," Tosches said. " Sure our players have thought about it, but our approach has been to keep away from it. Just hope they go out there and play their game."
McElreavy said this has been a hectic week for Columbia, which has kept practice open to the media all week.

the picket line.
Jones said, however, that negotiations would go on — and that Jack Donlan, management's chief negotiator " feels it's proceeding just about as he had expected."
Jones said he did not expect a settlement by Sunday and added: " I have no indication of any time frame on how long this process this takes."
Allen accused management of introducing a new negotiator by insisting on a six-year contract rather than the three-year term he said had already been agreed upon in principle. He said that demand could be a bigger problem than the union's push for free agency, which management regards as the major obstacle to agreement.
Normally, the labor agreement parallels the league's television contract, which this time is for three years.
Allen said he thought the club owners were slowing the talks to assure another round of games involving replacement players.

Business

Business executives exude optimism

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Executives of the country's largest corporations predicted Friday that the economy will weather rising interest rates and higher inflation and will still be going strong through the 1988 presidential election.

The Business Council, composed of chief executives of 66 top U.S. corporations, said "the country would be helped this year and next by a reviving manufacturing sector."

In their semiannual economic report, the executives were more optimistic about business prospects than they had been just five months ago even though they now believe inflation will be worse this year and interest rates higher than previously predicted.

While the higher interest rates have already hurt such industries as housing and sales of big-ticket consumer products, the executives said that marked improvements in the ability of American manufacturers to sell overseas were offsetting those adverse effects.

They said that the U.S. foreign trade deficit, after removing the effects of inflation, would show an improvement this year for the first time since 1982.

The executives predicted the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, would expand by 3 percent this year and in 1988, in contrast to weak growth of 2 percent last year.

And almost one-third of that growth will come from improvements in the trade deficit, they forecast.

"This export-led growth represents a sharp reversal of the trend from 1982 through 1986, when the decline in real net exports subtracted about 1 percentage point per year from the growth of GNP," the council said in its report.

While the stock market has been battered this week by investor worries about inflation and higher interest rates, the business executives said these forces would not gain enough momentum to derail the current recovery, which at 60 months is already the longest peacetime expansion in U.S. history.

The business executives did boost their inflation outlook, predicting prices will rise by 3.7 percent this year, more than three times the rate in 1986. For 1988, the executives forecast even higher inflation of 4.5 percent.

John Reed, chairman of Citicorp and vice chairman of the Business Council, said the consultants who prepared the economic forecast believed there was less than a one-in-three chance the country would be gripped by severe inflation, which they defined as price increases of 6 percent or more.

"The economy is going along rather well," said William C. Butcher, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank of New York. "I don't see inflation becoming a problem."

Chase's Manhattan, Citicorp and other major banks raised their prime rate, a benchmark rate for many business and consumer loans, to 9.25 percent on Wednesday, the fifth increase this year.

The business executives said they had underestimated how high interest rates would go this year. They now are predicting that the 30-year Treasury bond would be at 9.7 percent at the end of 1988, compared with an earlier projection of 8.3 percent.

The economic forecast was released as the executives heard Attorney General Edwin Meese III and Otis Bove, secretary of health and human services, report on the government's efforts to control drug use and cope with the spread of AIDS.

Boven, who spoke to reporters after the closed-door briefings for the executives, said he stressed the seriousness of the AIDS problem and predicted that the direct medical costs to treat AIDS patients will rise from an estimated $1 billion this year to $8 billion to $16 billion by 1991.

In other economic predictions, the business executives said the unemployment rate, which fell below 6 percent in September for the first time this decade, will remain around 6 percent for the rest of this year and 1988.

The report predicted the federal budget deficit for the fiscal year just ended will total $160 billion, down from a record $221 billion last year.

But the executives said the deficit still remained too high for this stage of the economic recovery and would present substantial problems for the country if not reduced further before the next recession hit.

For 1988, they saw the budget deficit increasing to $167 billion.

Rates rise, stocks fall

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed a week of record-breaking declines with a broad drop Friday as interest rates were kept climbing.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slumped 34.43 to 2,482.21, finishing the week with a record-point loss of 168.78, or 6.6 percent.

The previous largest point decline came Sept. 8-12 of last year, when the average fell 141.03, or 7.4 percent.

Friday's volume on the New York Stock Exchange was a sluggish 158.31 million shares, down from 198.70 million the previous session.

The Dow Jones industrial average's close was its lowest since it stood at 4,711.94 on July 23.

Analysts said a few buyers moved early in the session into stocks that had fallen sharply of late.

The Fed increased the rate it charges on loans to private financial institutions from 5% to 6 percent on Sept. 4, citing spreading inflationary expectations.

Rates on long-term Treasury bonds kept climbing Friday, pushing close to or in a couple of instances reaching — 10 percent.

Some Wall Streeters were disturbed to see the Dow drop below 2,500 on a closing basis, figuring that a level of important psychological support had been breached. Others, however, pointed out the average has not yet closed below the intraday low of about 2,469 it touched on Sept. 22.

Amid the general gloom, activity in takeover situations and rumored targets was brisk.

Declining issues outpaced advances by more than 2 to 1 on the Big Board, with 481 up, 1,063 down and 437 unchanged.
