Washington summit to start Dec. 7

WASHINGTON — President Reagan announced Friday that he and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev would meet in Washington starting Dec. 7 for summit talks that the president said he hoped would turn the anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor into a day remembered as the beginning of superpower peace.

Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, Reagan said that he and Gorbachev would sign a treaty banning medium- and short-range nuclear missiles, the first superpower arms-control agreement in eight years.

A few details remain to be worked out on the intermediate-range pact, which would outlaw missiles with ranges of between 300 and 3,000 miles, but Shultz said the treaty was so close to being complete that, if it was not ready by the start of the summit, Mr. Shevardnadze and I are going to get kicked in the rear and very hard by our leaders.

was a dizzying reversal of the position he had taken just a week earlier. At the end of a Kremlin meeting Oct. 23, Gorbachev shocked U.S. officials by refusing to set a summit date after Shultz refused to promise that the United States would agree to curbs on its Strategic Defense Initiative, also known as the "Star Wars" program.

the summit date he could have set himself a week earlier. And he appeared to relax his insistence on restrictions on anti-missile defensive weapons as the price for progress in other areas of arms control.

new concessions, but he said that the two sides now agreed on the "concept and agenda" for the summit — something he said was not determined last week.

Striking terror into the hearts of their constituents, County Commissioners James Freley, Judy Felton and Marvin Hemplen were among many courthouse workers dressing up in Halloween costumes Friday as part of a United Way fund-raising effort.

Judge backs school's ban on T-shirt

By BART JANSEN Times-News writer

BOISE — Content courted. U.S. District Judge Marion J. Callister ruled Friday that Twin Falls High School administrators may continue prohibiting students from wearing a T-shirt design considered disruptive and disrespectful to the administrators.

Study bolsters theory linking power, cancer

LOS ANGELES — Human and rat tumor cells displayed greater enzyme activity when exposed to electricity, and researchers said the study bolsters a theory linking power lines to a higher risk of cancer.

Search for savings continues

WASHINGTON — Striving for a budget breakthrough, congressional and White House negotiators Friday plowed through a long list of federal programs, looking for savings to produce a major deficit-reduction package.

Court sets lottery suit arguments in January

After the Idaho Legislature for years refused to approve a lottery, a successful initiative effort was launched last year. When the initiative went before the voters in the general election, it won 60 percent approval, 226,816 votes to 151,132.

Economic forecasting index drops; sharp declines likely

WASHINGTON — A lengthy string of increases in the government's main economic forecasting gauge was broken by a 0.1 percent decline in September as economists warned that Wall Street's troubles will lead to even sharper drops in the months ahead.

Confidence rises — A10
Some economists said the collapse of the market could well lead to a negative figure in November, especially if the market turmoil spreads to other parts of the economy.

index has often, but not always, signaled an impending downturn. The last time the leading index dropped for three consecutive months was in mid-1984. While no recession followed, economic growth did slow sharply for two years as American manufacturers struggled under the weight of heavy foreign competition.

hours, but Commerce Under-Secretary Robert Ortner called the decline in this statistic a "technical aberration" because the survey results were depressed by the fact that the survey was taken during the week which included the Labor Day holiday.

In addition to the drop in the length of the workweek and stock prices, two other indicators which contributed to the decline were changes in raw materials prices and a drop in plant and equipment orders.

Hollifield argued Gano's design is a form of expression that should be protected under the Constitution's First Amendment. He said since the design was not obscene and apparently not disruptive that it was fair comment.

But a dubious Callister was instead interested in what the shirt depicted. "You don't see it as ridiculing the administrators?" he asked.

Hollifield replied, "No sir, I don't."

"You sure look at it differently than I do," Callister said.

The judge's concerns were also evident during an exchange with the student Rod Gano, who testified that he wore the shirt despite repeated conflict with administrators because he believed it was his right to express himself. Gano also noted other T-shirts common at high school carry messages from alcoholic beverages.

But Callister asked what expression Gano intended by the shirt. After a long pause, Gano said, "Just to wear the shirt."

"The Constitution does not require the individual to articulate his expressions," Hollifield argued later. "Rod has a hard time talking — he doesn't have a hard time drawing."

But Fritz Wonderlich, who represented the district with Ed Benoit, conjured dark images in closing statements that the shirts would irreparably harm administrators authority.

The federal courtroom was overflowing with students, teachers — eight of whom testified during the hearing, all called by Hollifield — and Gano's family.

In general, the testimony related how Gano is a good student, several students were suspended or sent home for wearing the shirt and that the shirts caused little, if any, disturbance in school.

Still, Wonderlich said distribution of the shirts could make it impossible to enforce discipline at the school and he asked the court to recall the image of armed guards at schools in the East.

"What problems will exist with these shirts and having them (students) thumbing their noses at the administrators?" Wonderlich asked.

"You can run a school if you don't have the confidence and respect of the people," echoed Callister.

Callister, who held up a version of the shirt during the hearing, said the design depicted behavior in conflict with at least two sections of Idaho Code. One statute classified drinking on school property as a misdemeanor and the other noted that school officials must instruct students about alcohol.

"I don't know how you run a program to teach kids about the adverse effects of alcohol if you're shown semi-drunk," Callister said.

Gano's caricature depicts Chariton, Thomas and Baum holding alcoholic beverages in front of a sign reading "Bruin Stadium which is school property. The three sat behind the defense table facing Callister.

"It appears this is an allegory that they committed a crime," Callister said. "There is no evidence these people here ever did anything like this."

partment of Energy, is among the first to seek a biological explanation for the possible connection between cancer and low-energy electromagnetic fields, which are produced not only by power lines but by household appliances.

"It's just another indicator there may be a concern," Sheldon Meyers, director of the Environmental Protection Agency's Office of Radiation Programs, said from Washington, D.C. "Additional work needs to be done to get some definitive answers."

But Dr. Leonard Sagan, radiation studies manager for the utility-financed Electric Power Research Institute in Palo Alto, said that to

"extrapolate from changes in enzyme (activity) levels in a cell to cancer (in people) requires a leap of several thousand light years."

Other studies "so far haven't shown any evidence of potential harm to human health" from electromagnetic fields from power lines or household appliances, he added.

Summit

Unlike previous joint statements, that sentence was not followed by a similar restriction on space and defensive weapons. But Shultz said that the Soviets "continue to talk about (strategic offensive and defensive systems) as though they were linked." Last year's Reagan-Gorbachev summit meeting in Iceland broke down in a dispute over the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Reagan said that the United States was prepared to discuss defensive systems but that "I've made it clear — and they have not rejected this — that there's no way that we can give up SDI, which we believe is offering an opportunity for peace for the world."

The president said U.S. and Soviet negotiators would strive for "a formal, verifiable treaty" to halve the arsenals of strategic weapons that can reach targets more than 3,000 miles away. "I hope to sign the pact during a visit to Moscow next year," he said.

A strategic arms reduction treaty would have far more military significance than the intermediate-range nuclear force pact that Reagan and Gorbachev plan to sign in December. But there is no guarantee that the two sides will be able to reach agreement during the six to eight months left before the U.S. presidential election season reaches a point that would make additional U.S.-Soviet summit meetings unlikely.

Reagan clearly was elated that Gorbachev had finally set a date for his visit to the United States. When asked if he was concerned that the summit would start on Dec. 7, the 46th anniversary of the surprise Japanese bombing that brought the United States into World War II, Reagan said: "Wouldn't it be won" derful if Pearl Harbor day would become superseded by the day that we began the path to peace and safety in the world through disarmament?"

Shultz said the intermediate nuclear force treaty was virtually complete. Under provisions already agreed to, the Soviet Union would destroy all of its short-range systems — those capable of hitting targets 300 to 600 miles away — during the first 18 months after ratification of the pact.

Shultz said that a few narrow issues remain to be settled. He said the extent of Soviet on-site inspections at missile bases in Western Europe was one of the remaining issues that would be resolved soon.

According to the joint statement, Reagan and Gorbachev agreed to the now-familiar four-point agenda for the summit: arms control, human rights, regional conflicts and bilateral issues. Shultz said that, in advance of the summit, high-level U.S. and Soviet teams would thrash out the human rights and regional issues to prepare reports for Reagan and Gorbachev. Shevardnadze said Gorbachev would spend two or three days in the United States, the entire time in Washington. He said the Soviet leader would have liked to have seen more of the country but did not have time for such a trip. The United States proposed a coast-to-coast summit that would include a stop at Reagan's Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch.

"We don't have the package yet, but we're making progress through various budget functions," said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La. "We've got a ways to go yet."

The talks, behind closed doors of the Lyndon B. Johnson room in the Capitol near the Senate Chamber, initially were limited to members of Congress and White House officials. Staff experts attended Friday, walking into the meeting carrying thick briefing books and folders.

The spending cuts will be combined with tax increases in a deficit package totaling $23 billion for the 1988 fiscal year, which began October 1. The detailed tax program will be considered later, because the White House has dropped President Reagan's previous insistence that he would veto any tax hikes.

If Congress and the president cannot agree on the budget package by Nov. 20, automatic cuts will be imposed under the federal law that requires a balanced budget by 1993. These cuts would hit hard at both domestic and military programs, and would demonstrate a failure to act in the face of economic crisis, the negotiators say.

freeze on spending at fiscal 1987 levels, has been flatly rejected by the Democrats. They do not want a freeze applied to cost-of-living allowances for civilian and military workers and they want programs for the poor to grow.

The Democrats are amenable to a variable freeze, which would only impose strict spending controls on a limited number of federal activities.

However, the specific nature of a freeze has not been determined, with various participants suggesting different ways to achieve billions of dollars in savings. The negotiators will meet Saturday in an unusual weekend working session.

Lankford given death warrant

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — A Nov. 11 execution date has been set for condemned killer Bryan Stuart Lankford, the first man whose death penalty case has been handled under Idaho's expedited appeals process.

Second District Judge George Reinhardt signed the death warrant after being formally notified by the Idaho Supreme Court this week that it would not reconsider its July decision upholding Lankford's conviction and sentence.

Lankford, 27, from Comroe, Texas, was convicted of first-degree murder along with his brother Mark, 30, in the June 1983 slayings of Marine Corps Capt. Robert Bravence and his wife Cheryl.

Mark Lankford is also among the 16 men on death row in Idaho, where there has not been an execution in three decades. His appeal is still before the state Supreme Court.

The Bravences, originally from Scottsdale, Ariz., were on a camping vacation in northern Idaho when the Lankfords burst into their camp to rob them and then beat them to death. Refusal of the state Supreme Court to reconsider its July ruling concluded Lankford's state appeals, but defense attorney Joan Fisher said the case will now be appealed in the federal system. She said the state Supreme Court will be immediately asked to stay the execution date pending initial review of the case by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Malad youth dies in rollover

MALAD (AP) — A teenage girl has died of injuries suffered in a one-car accident in Franklin County, authorities reported.

The victim was identified as Denise Hill, 16. The Idaho State Police said she was fatally injured when the car she was driving went out of control Thursday on U.S. 36 and rolled over, landing on its side.

Jury supports prison officials

BOISE (AP) — A Boise jury has rejected state prison inmate Walter "Bud" Balla's complaint over being disciplined and reclassified by state Corrections officials in 1985.

But 4th District Judge Deborah Balli did agree to one of Balla's requests, granting a permanent injunction against a practice used at the prison. Jury members agreed unanimously with Balli's ban on using telephones without recording equipment for taking testimony from witnesses at inmates' disciplinary hearings.

Balla filed a civil complaint in September 1985 against Corrections Department Director Al Murphy, Warden A.J. Arave and Hearing Officer Glenn Johnson. The suit claimed Balla's right to due process was violated and he was subjected to cruel and unusual punishment after a disciplinary hearing and a reclassification of status that limited his housing and movement in prison.

The hearing and reclassification occurred after a riot in early 1986 in the maximum-security cellblock where Balla was housed.

Delegates seek tax limit repeal

BOISE (AP) — Although the executive director of the organization warned against it, the Association of Idaho Cities may try again to get the Idaho Legislature to repeal a ceiling on property tax limits.

At a meeting of the AIC legislative committee here Friday, delegates voted to try again to repeal the 5 percent limit on local property tax increases. The recommendation was among several which will be presented to the association's board of directors on Saturday for final approval.

As a result of the 1 percent property tax initiative in 1978, the Legislature imposed a 5 percent limit on local government property tax increases from one budget to the next.

Local units of government have complained for years that the limit restricts their ability to collect revenue for the services demanded by residents. Lawmakers have resisted repealing the limit, calling it the last remaining portion of the 1 percent initiative passed by the voters.

Bannock faces bond issue

POCATELLO (AP) — The Bannock County Commission probably will ask county voters to approve a bond issue next spring to finance construction of a new adult jail, but meanwhile will continue with improvements to the existing jail and development of a regional juvenile detention facility.

"We don't have a choice," Commissioner Tom Katsilometes said this week, citing a court order to improve conditions at the Pocatello jail and a federal mandate to provide separate housing for juvenile offenders by December 1988.

Katsilometes met with officials from seven southeastern Idaho counties on Thursday to discuss progress on the regional juvenile detention center. But Bannock County also faces the more immediate problem of finding room for 86 inmates in a jail designed to hold only 72.

State official saved by seat belt

BOISE (AP) — State Auditor Joe Williams got into an exclusive club here Saturday, the "Saved By the Belt Club."

Williams, who is 82, and his wife and son were involved in a traffic accident last July. Their vehicle left the highway and overturned near Rupert, but Williams, his son, Roger, and wife, Lauraine, were wearing seat belts and escaped serious injury. The Idaho Safety Restraint Coalition plans to induct Williams into its club, made up exclusively of those who have survived serious traffic accidents by wearing seat belts, as part of the pregame activities at the Boise State-Utah football game here.

The coalition will sponsor "Mascot Day" at the game to emphasize the use of seat belts.

Father freed after wife's death

PAYETTE (AP) — A New Plymouth father, jailed for refusing to comply with Idaho's mandatory education laws, has been temporarily released following the death of his wife.

Robert Shippy was freed by Magistrate William Dillon until next Monday after his wife Cecilia May died earlier this week, leaving the couple's 11 children alone.

"I think I need to stay home with the children now because they don't have a mother," said Shippy, who is serving a 60-day jail sentence on six misdemeanor counts of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Bureau plan could dry up South Fork

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The drought of 1987 has focused the Bureau of Reclamation to propose new reductions in the flow of the South Fork of the Snake River that could dry it up below Lorenzo.

Water users trying to cope with the driest year in a decade and state fisheries specialists protecting stream flows for fish objected to the proposal Friday.

But Max Van Den Berg, who manages the bureau's Minidoka Project reservoir system, said, "Until we see some water on these watersheds we're going to have to operate the reservoirs in a conservative mode."

The bureau is considering dropping the flow out of Palisades Dam from 1,100 to 850 cubic feet per second with further reductions as the American Falls Dam as well. Van Den Berg said that the cutbacks could dry the river up if current irrigation diversions continued, and regional Fish and Game fisheries manager Steve Ellis confirmed that. "We asked the bureau today to delay the decline until after those canals reduce their diversions," Ellis said.

Van Den Berg said the bureau wanted to wait until after most of the diversion ends, but each day of delay means another 500 acre-feet of water that could be stored for next year is lost.

The irrigation season officially ends Sunday, but Great Feeder Canal Co. board member Ted Hanson said some additional diversion was needed for stock water.

Another concern of water users is the loss of groundwater in perched aquifers recharged in part by canals and the river. District 1 Watermaster Ronald Carlson said it was possible some wells will dry up in January or February.

Van Den Berg said every effort is being made to cooperate and meet the needs of as many water users as possible. But he would not rule out even further flow reductions to fill the reservoirs.

In the 1977 drought, the flow in the South Fork was dropped to 500 cubic feet per second, but Van Den Berg said it would take extreme conditions for that to be repeated.

"Things are going to have to stay dry or absolutely dry," he said.

Ellis said the proposed flow reduction would have a major effect on fisheries in the stretch of the South Fork below Haise if diversions continued.

Democratic lawmaker joins court contenders

POCATELLO (AP) — Democratic state lawmaker Patricia McDermott of Pocatello has joined a growing list of potential candidates to succeed the late Idaho Supreme Court Justice Charles Donaldson.

Ms. McDermott, an attorney in her 10th two-year term as a member of the Idaho House, said Friday she will submit her formal application for the high court vacancy to the state Judicial Council prior to the Nov. 20 deadline.

Donaldson, the swing vote in numerous 3-2 high court decisions during his 17 years on the court, died of a heart attack on Oct. 9.

Others indicating an interest in the seat were Court of Appeals Chief Justice Jesse Walters, Associate Appellate Judge Donald Burnett, 5th District Judge Daniel Hurlbut of Twin Falls, Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Webb and Boise attorney Byron Johnson.

A woman has never held a seat on the state's highest court.

The Judicial Council will forward a list of up to four nominees to Gov. Cecil Andrus who will make the appointment. Donaldson's successor will serve the remaining five years of his term and then stand for re-election.

Ms. McDermott called her nearly two decades of service in the Legislature an asset on the high court, allowing her to be "a balancing force."

"It would be a new challenge for me in the arena of law, allowing me the opportunity to focus on my profession and still remain in public service," she said.

She has served on the Judiciary, State Affairs and Local Government committees during her tenure in the Legislature.

Democratic chairman plans to step down

POCATELLO (AP) — Idaho Democratic Party Chairman Mel Morgan has announced he will resign his party leadership post early next year after moving to Boise in search of a job in the Democratic administration of Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"I don't know where I'm going to work or when," said the retired Pocatello jeweler who has led the party since 1983. "At this point, there's nothing solid."

Andrus spokesman Marc Johnson said he was unaware of any state appointment offered to Morgan, who has already put money down on a condominium in Boise and is trying to sell his Pocatello home.

Morgan said he hoped to formally resign his party chairmanship by the Jefferson-Jackson Day banquet in February, and he declined to speculate on who his successor might be.

Among state party leaders who might consider a run for chairman if Morgan does resign were Vice Chairwoman Anna Wilson of Wallace, party Treasurer Betty Ahrens of Boise, national committee-woman Diane Josephy Peavey of Ketchum, national committeewoman Cy Chase of St. Maries and Ada County Democratic chairwoman Betty Richardson.

Elected to three terms as party chairman, Morgan, 69, has endured two heart attacks in recent years, and his son Rick was forced to close the family business, Nate Morgan Jewelers, earlier this year.

A Pocatello native, Morgan has been a force in local and state politics for decades. He served on the state Democratic Central Committee for 10 years and as party treasurer before succeeding Brian Hanzel of Burley as state chairman. He served on the Pocatello City Council for five years and held seats on the city airport board and the Idaho Personnel Commission along with other official and quasi-official boards.

During the 1986 elections, which included what the Democrats called their "dream ticket," the state party put together its most extensive phone bank program ever to identify likely Democratic voters and get them to polls.

Although outgoing Democratic Gov. John Evans lost his challenge to GOP Sen. Steve Symms, Andrus was elected governor, Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings won a second term, and Democrats broke the veto-proof two-thirds majority Republicans held in the State Senate.

Mother convicted on suicide

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A mother whose teen-age daughter committed suicide after being forced to work as a nude dancer was found guilty Friday of child abuse for causing the girl to kill herself.

Theresa Jackson, 40, was also found guilty of procuring a sexual performance by a child, and forgery.

Broward County Circuit Judge Arthur Franza ordered an immediate psychiatric evaluation of Mrs. Jackson, who had threatened to commit suicide.

The prosecution had argued that Mrs. Jackson was responsible for 17-year-old Tina Mancini's suicide, and attorney Kenneth Whitman said he would appeal the landmark verdict.

Near miss at Chicago airport

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authorities are investigating an incident in which the pilot of a United Airlines jetliner had to make an abrupt maneuver while taking off from Chicago's O'Hare airport to avoid an incoming commuter plane, it was disclosed Friday.

The pilot of the United Boeing 737, which was carrying 101 people, told authorities that he missed colliding with the commuter, operated by Air Wisconsin, by less than 75 feet Thursday afternoon.

The commuter pilot "saw a shadow only. He didn't see the other aircraft," said one source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

President arrives for service

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan flew to Phoenix, Ariz., on Friday to join his wife Nancy as the pair prepares to attend a memorial service for the first lady's mother, Edith Luckett Davis.

It was a return trip for Reagan, who had accompanied his wife to the southwestern city on Tuesday, a day after Mrs. Davis, 91, died of a stroke. Her remains have been cremated.

Mrs. Reagan had surgery on Oct. 17 to remove a cancerous left breast, and has been recuperating since then.

Meese faces another court date

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III faces a fourth appearance before the federal grand jury investigating his ties to scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. after undergoing five hours of questioning Friday.

Meese answered all questions put to him by investigators for independent counsel James McKay "and will return shortly to complete his testimony," said his attorney, Nathan Lewin, perhaps next week.

"We then anticipate an expeditious resolution of Mr. McKay's investigation and are confident that it will be concluded favorably to Mr. Meese," said Lewin.

Commerce won't change census

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department on Friday rejected the urgings of minorities and large cities that it adjust its 1990 census to include people who are missed in the national head count.

"We don't play with the numbers," Commerce Undersecretary Robert Ortner said. "The department does not intend to adjust the 1990 decennial (10-year) population count for purported undercount and overcount of population subgroups."

Ginsburg visits Democrats, Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic senators on Friday accused President Reagan of taking a confrontational approach on Supreme Court nominee Douglas H. Ginsburg, as the nominee himself made a quick trip to the Capitol to meet key lawmakers in their offices.

Less than 24 hours after Reagan nominated the 41-year-old appellate court judge, who is largely unknown to many on Capitol Hill senators, began a series of floor speeches with two basic messages: Keep an open mind and hold down the rhetoric.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said he thought Reagan's announcement of the Ginsburg nomination was "rather confrontational and combative. I don't understand why the president ... would start off with that sort of an attitude."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said, "No president is going to stampede this Senate into acting with undue haste as long as I'm majority leader. I hope the White House will restrain its collective tongue on this matter."

Reagan said in his announcement that if Ginsburg's confirmation hearings "take more than three weeks to get going, the American people will know what's up."

Byrd and Bumpers both called for fair hearings and urged senators not to make early judgments. Those thoughts were echoed by three crucial swing-vote senators on the Judiciary Committee — Howell Heflin, D-Ala., Arlen Specter, R-Pa., and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

All three voted against the president's previous nominee, Robert H. Bork, whose nomination was defeated 58-42.

Specter said, "A presumption of innocence is equally applicable to a nominee to the Supreme Court of the United States. ... We really do have to hold back."

Ginsburg was accompanied in his Capitol visits by White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr., who was reported to have lost an internal battle with Attorney General Edwin Meese III over whom should be nominated.

Meese reportedly favored Ginsburg, who is known as a staunch conservative. Baker was said to want the more moderate U.S. Circuit Judge Anthony M. Kennedy of Sacramento, Calif.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater denied Friday that the widely reported rift took place.

Ginsburg's first stop was at Heflin's office. When Bork went on his courtesy calls, he made Heflin his last visit among Judiciary Committee members, even though it was known the senator's vote could be crucial not only in committee but among Southern Democrats.

Heflin is respected on judicial matters in that bloc, because he is a former chief justice of the Alabama Supreme Court.

Asked in Heflin's office if he looked forward to the confirmation process, Ginsburg told reporters, "I do. I've been through it two times before and I look forward to this one more than ever."

Ginsburg previously was confirmed as assistant attorney general in charge of antitrust in 1983, and a year ago as a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Bork serves on the same court.

Air Force says missile test successful

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force said Friday it had successfully tested its new AMRAAM aerial dogfighting missile against a target drone last week that tried to jam the missile's radar-guidance unit.

The service, in a statement, said the test was conducted on Oct. 22 when an AMRAAM was fired from an F-15 Eagle jet fighter at the Gulf Test Range at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

"The test demonstrated the AMRAAM's performance against a single target in an electronic countermeasure (radar-jamming) environment," the Air Force said.

Senate panel approves bill for farm credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of farm senators gave unanimous approval Friday to a $4-billion rescue package for the financially troubled Farm Credit System and lawmakers predicted quick floor action.

"This isn't just a blank-check bailout," Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said after his Senate Agriculture subcommittee approved the measure, which would raise the funds through government-guaranteed bonds.

He said the mechanism of bonds — distinctly different from a House-passed measure that would authorize $2.5 billion in direct federal aid to the system — would be reassuring to taxpayers.

"I think our chances of getting a bill this year are much better than fifty-fifty, more like a 75 percent chance," Boren said. "And I mean not just passing a bill — I mean signed into law."

On this issue, subcommittee approval represented a crucial hurdle for the measure and capped six weeks of intricate and painstaking sessions aimed at fashioning a bailout for the $55 billion network of cooperatives that together represent the nation's largest farm lender.

Agriculture Chairman Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., issued a statement saying that Boren's panel "has done an excellent job in resolving the major issues in this complex area." He said the full committee would move the bill to the floor as quickly as possible.

Delays bog down drafting of wilderness bill

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There won't be time to introduce an Idaho wilderness bill before Congress adjourns for recess in December, says Idaho Sen. James McClure.

"Right now, we know it's too late in the year to get a wilderness reauthorization for Idaho," McClure told States News Service this week.

McClure says the bill's sticking point is how to satisfy Idaho resource developers in a wilderness package that will pass Congress. Wilderness areas are off limits to development.

"I keep saying to people who want mixed use, I understand what you're after but show me the language," McClure says.

"But I don't know how to write that in any acceptable language that will pass," McClure says.

So the much talked about and delayed wilderness issue will slip into the 101st session of Congress.

Meanwhile, there is the matter of McClure, a Republican, and Idaho Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, the two key decision makers on the wilderness issue, getting together to hash a compromise.

The two are like a couple everyone is trying to fix up but just can't seem to get together. And while there has been much ado about getting together, it hasn't happened more than once since Andrus completed his wilderness ideas by his Labor Day deadline.

McClure and Andrus were supposed to have a session last weekend but the meeting fell through because of pressing business in the Senate, says Marc Johnson, Andrus' press secretary. No date has been set yet for another meeting, he says.

Last August McClure criticized Andrus for dragging his feet on wilderness negotiations. McClure said he was ready to talk then but Andrus continually asked for more time to study the issue.

McClure has been focusing on more pressing business — the U.S. Supreme Court nomination, the budget appropriation and the National Academy of Sciences report on the safety of the defense production reactor, says McClure spokesman R.D. Palmer.

The delay is not going to wreck the process, says Johnson. "The governor's desire is to move this along with all deliberate speed," he says.

If Andrus and McClure can agree on a wilderness proposal, it will be reviewed by the rest of the state's congressional delegation and then opened for public comment, say the politicians' aides.

There has been some confusion about what the governor said regarding when he would get a bill, Johnson says.

The governor has said he wanted a bill drafted this year and have it introduced in one house, Johnson says.

"It's still the governor's hope and desire to get a bill drafted by the end of 1987," says Johnson.

Johnson says Andrus has prepared the rough outlines of a bill that will allow the politicians to plug in the boundaries and numbers.

The Idaho Wilderness Defense Coalition, made up of environmental groups, is proposing 3.9 million acres of wilderness. In the Ketchum area their proposal includes 130,000 acres in the Smokies, 182,000 acres in the Pioneer and 453,000 acres in the Boulder White Clouds.

Federal protection sought for desert regions

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Bruneau-Jarbridge counties in the southeast corner of Idaho to be touted for special federal protection.

The City of Rocks near Oakley and the Hagerman fossil beds have already been proposed for increased federal protection to prevent further deterioration of the resources and help the state's flat economy by boosting tourism.

Idaho's Committee for the High Desert, an environmental group, wants to elevate the status of Bruneau-Jarbridge in the southwest portion of the state, an area of stunning river canyons, broad plateaus, pristine grasslands and home to bighorn sheep.

High Desert is principally concerned about damage to the resource, says spokesman Randy Morris.

"The area is under U.S. Bureau of Land Management control but High Desert says BLM is neglecting the stream vegetation, letting cattle overgraze and allowing visual pollution from high tension power lines.

"If the area were managed properly, there would be no threat," says Morris.

High Desert is talking about a 2.5 million-acre area as a national park. But instead of a formal national park status, the group wants a variety of levels of protection that also would include land in southeast Oregon and northern Nevada.

"We are talking about a mix of measures to elevate the status. We would like to see the National Park Service in there," Morris says.

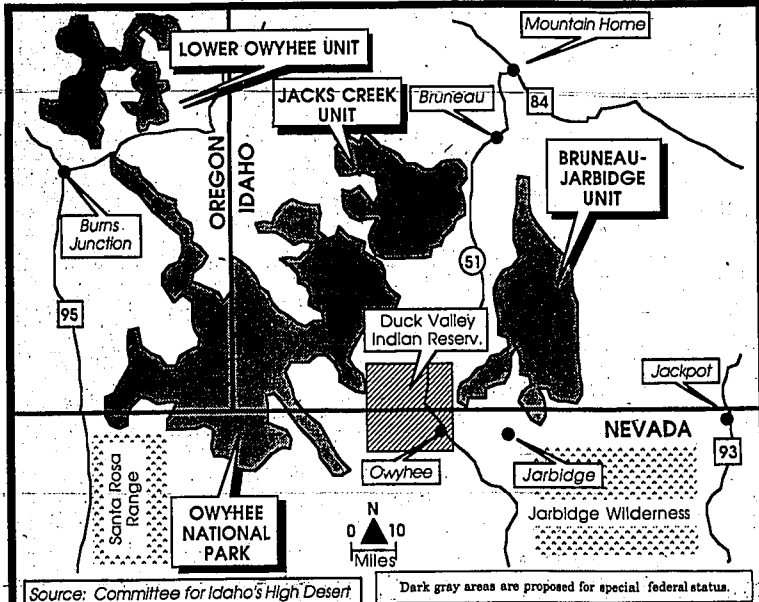

The group is calling for Wild and Scenic River status for parts of the Bruneau and Jarbridge rivers, wildlife habitat under some type of park preservation and national monument status for the more spectacular canyons.

The proposal would include parts of the BLM Bruneau, Jarbridge and Owyhee resource management areas.

Gary Carson, Jarbridge manager, says BLM is already proposing Wild and Scenic River status for the Bruneau-Jarbridge rivers from a point just south of Bruneau to the Nevada line. The decision whether to accept this is up to Congress, he says.

And he says BLM managed the land in the vicinity of the Bruneau and Jarbridge confluence one of critical environmental concern because of the bighorn sheep habitat.

BLM is taking steps to keep cattle out of the sheep habitat and erect special fences that allow the sheep but not the cattle to pass, he says. Some of the area in High Desert proposal contains significant created wilderness seedings for grazing, he says.

The area in the northeast section of the committee's proposal is just desert and is not unique, Carson says.

Carson says there is precedent for national monuments being managed by agencies other than the parks service. National monuments are intended to preserve one nationally significant resource. They are smaller than national parks and lack their diversity of attractions.

William Briggles, parks service deputy regional director, said Friday it was the first he had heard about the Owyhee proposal.

He said there were no plans to involve the parks service in projects in Idaho other than what had already been announced.

Bills introduced by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, call for NPS planning and development of the City of Rocks in Cassia County and the Hagerman fossil beds. The beds cover several thousand acres and are within the Jarbridge Resource Area managed by Carson.

Morris said High Desert would approach the parks service last about the Owyhee proposal because of political and partisan considerations.

High Desert is just lining up meetings says.

Morris said the congressional delegation, Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, is a key player in this because the proposed park would be in his district, says Morris. Craig also has his own national park proposal afoot for the Boulder-White Clouds mountains near Ketchum.

Morris said there is some urgency to the High Desert proposal because the confluence of the east and west forks of the Jarbridge River are getting heavy use from whitewater boaters.

BLM is putting in toilet and parking control facilities at the confluence of the Bruneau and the Jarbridge and within a decade other sites will be developed, Morris said.

"Isolation and lack of roads has protected the Owyhee to some degree until now, but the rising national visibility, the increased

Light rain passes by local areas

By The Associated Press

The parched fields of southern Idaho were tickled with raindrops Thursday but not enough to legitimately relieve the dryness of one of the worst fall droughts the state has suffered.

"Precipitation was pretty much limited to the southern sections of the state last evening, through the night and this morning," the National Weather Service said. "Most reports only showed trace amounts to less than one tenth of an inch."

The storm that brought the first moisture to some locales since August also slipped to the east out of morning rain in the Magic Valley and east, and forecasters said their hopes for significant rainfall from another storm system to the west were deteriorating.

That new and much stronger system located in the Gulf of Alaska, was expected to spread moisture into Idaho and lead to at least a chance of rain over the weekend, the Weather Service said.

"However, the storm is appearing on satellite photos to be starting to split apart somewhat," forecasters said. "This very possibly will limit the amount of rainfall Idaho could receive. Time will tell."

Ketchum in central Idaho was the beneficiary of the most rainfall Thursday, picking up nearly a quarter inch while Preston in the southeastern part of the state recorded just under a fifth of an inch. But only a trace of moisture materialized in areas like Boise, Caldwell and much of the Magic Valley while Aberdeen had eight-hundredths of an inch and Pocatello and Twin Falls recorded less than even half that fractional amount.

Statewide, Idaho is running over 2 1/2 inches behind in precipitation for 1987, and the fall drought has left farmers fearing for their winter wheat crops and watermasters concerned about reservoir reserves for 1988.

Company proposes 'steam parks'

The Associated Press

BOISE — Western Power Inc. said it wants to tap surplus steam produced by food-processing plants and sell it to firms that would set up operations in "industrial steam parks" near the processing plants.

But the plan hinges on whether Western Power can build a transmission line that would send electricity from Idaho to customers in the Southwest, spokeswoman Maureen Jackson said.

In June, Western Power executives announced plans to build a 2,500-megawatt power line between southern Idaho and Las Vegas, Nev. The line would distribute up to 800 megawatts of power to consumers in Southern California and other Southwest states.

The company has said it intends to generate electricity at more than two dozen sites, including undammed rivers, underused existing hydroelectric dams, and industrial plants that could be retrofitted with cogeneration equipment.

Wendell, Hazelton hopefuls air views

2 incumbents retire, 1 vies in Wendell race

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Two City Council members in Wendell are retiring and another is seeking re-election Tuesday.

Dick Beck, who served two years of a four-year term, announced this summer he is resigning, effective Jan. 1.

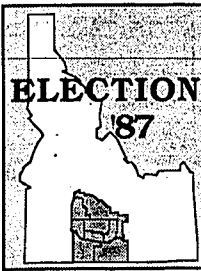

Positions to fill Beck's seat for a two-year term were filed by Patricia Goodhart and John Hollon.

Goodhart, 44, describes herself as an open-minded person who enjoys a challenge. "I'm just a concerned citizen within my community," she says. "The council's position is available and I'd like to try it."

Goodhart is a homemaker who was raised in this area and went to school in Wendell. She says she would have the time to devote to being a council member and some of her friends have urged her to seek the office.

"I think there needs to be a fresh outlook on things," Goodhart says. "People need to be civic-minded for the good of the community. ... I like to hear all sides and try to make the best decision concerning everybody."

John Hollon, 46, says he would like to be a council member because he knows many people in Wendell and is aware of some of their problems with the city.

"I would be willing to get up at 2 a.m. to check someone else's water," he says.

Hollon, originally from Twin Falls, moved to Wendell from Buhl two years ago. He owns and operates Wendell Automotive and does mechanical work on city vehicles.

Hollon says he is concerned about the senior citizens of Wendell and, as a council member, would be determined to treat everyone fairly.

"I would treat all people the same, whether they're 19 or 95," he says, "whether they're 19 or 95," he says.

Also leaving the council is Marshall Howden, who is not seeking a second four-year term.

Howden, 71, says he has enjoyed his six years on the council, but he is now working out of town on his son's dairy most of the time and is not available to help the city.

"We need some new blood on the council," Howden says. "I think everybody that's qualified should take a whack at it. ... You can't make snap judgments. If you do, you're going to be in trouble. Sometimes it's frustrating, but that goes along with the job."

One of the city's problems, says Howden, is that the local three-man police force is underpaid. "We just don't have the money," he says.

Lloyd Little, at the end of his second consecutive four-year term, has filed a petition for re-election. He says he would like to stay on the council to follow through on the city's grant and sewer rebuilding project.

A new project Little says he would like to look into is building a new city hall and library if funding — maybe some grant money — is available.

"It's something I think the city needs," says Little.

Stairs to the basement library and to the upper-floor office are difficult for senior citizens and handicapped people to handle, he says, and because of the stairs, elections have to be held elsewhere. The brick city hall was built in 1920.

Another project Little says he wants to work on is upgrading the city's water system.

The manager of Wendell Elevator Co., Little, 54, has lived in Wendell since 1954. He was also on the council 12 years ago for a four-year term.

"I guess I just have to let my experience speak for itself," Little says. "If they think I've done a good job, they'll vote for me."

Ronald Finley and Larry Osborn have also filed petitions for four-year terms.

Finley, 34, says the council needs someone energetic who won't let the city become stagnant. A council member, he says, should be ready for change or growth in the city and willing to take an active part.

"I just want to be a civic helper," he says. "I don't want to change anything in particular."

Finley and his wife, Melody, have their own business, R & M Specialties, manufacturing and selling a racing car part Ron invented. He says he has "a little more free time" now and so, after attending some council meetings and because friends asked him to try for a council seat, he decided to run.

Last summer, Finley and his wife led a project to upgrade the elementary school playgrounds with safer equipment, a project that has gained widespread support and is still going on. Also, Finley organized a soccer tournament for elementary students for the month of October.

3 contenders battle for 2 Hazelton council seats

By The Times-News

HAZELTON — Three men are seeking the two City Council seats to be filled in Tuesday's election.

Incumbent Steve Hadley is being opposed for re-election by Donald Meyer and Erv Van Sickle. Allen White, the other incumbent, did not file for re-election.

Meyer, 38, who has lived all his life in the Eden-Hazelton area, is plant manager for Berger warehouse in Eden. He says he is running because he wants to learn about city government and feels serving on the council "would be a real educational adventure" as well as a way to serve his home town.

Meyer and his wife moved to Hazelton about seven years ago from Eden. They have three children.

Hadley, 35, was appointed a year and a half ago to fill the unexpired term of Rod Rudolph who moved from Hazelton.

The incumbent councilman says he has found serving on the council interesting and would like to continue.

The candidate said in a small town such as Hazelton people often call him with problems, which he doesn't mind.

"We make our decisions according to city ordinances," Hadley says, "and I think most people understand that."

A custom hauler, he and his wife have two boys.

Van Sickle, 31, owns Erv's Auto-motive Repair in Hazelton. He and his wife have lived in the community the past six years, moving here from Buhl where he grew up. They have four boys.

The candidate says he believes "we have a responsibility to our community and you can't just sit and complain about things."

Woman injured in rollover

JEROME — A Twin Falls woman was hospitalized at St. Benedict's Family Medical Center after an on-car rollover on U.S. Interstate 84 early Wednesday morning.

Sgt. Dennis Moore of the Jerome Sheriff's office said the accident, which occurred about 4:50 a.m. Wednesday, happened when Andrew Linn Johnson, 27, of Rupert, lost control of his eastbound 1984 Ford pickup.

The pickup went off the interstate, tore out about 30 feet of fence and overturned, Moore said.

Johnson was treated and released from St. Benedict's, but his passenger, Theresa L. Courier of Twin Falls, was admitted to the hospital.

Johnson was cited for driving under the influence.

The same steam then could be sold to customers who would build operations adjacent to the processing plant. The steam could be used to process food or to heat a building, Jackson said.

Western Power is eyeing J.R. Simplot Co. plants at Burley and Caldwell, he said. Simplot is a major backer of Western Power.

What's what

DON'T BURY THE HORSE

When a racehorse dies, the owner does not usually bury the whole horse. Head, heart, hooves and reproductive organs are what go into the grave. The great Swale was an exception. It was lowered in a full-sized coffin lined with the colors of the silks.

Q. I know what grows about 10 fingers on its hand, but what grows its hands on its stem?

cheddar cheese will last longer if you butter the cut edge before you put it back in the refrigerator. Maybe. But your butter won't.

Do you buy the contention of a surveytaker -- who better would know? -- that almost half the doorbells nationwide don't work?

ROSE GARDEN

What used to be in what's now the White House Rose Garden was a stable. Right beneath the great state dining room. Had to go.

Those with reason to know say donkey meat is far tastier than horseflesh.

Yellow fire trucks are twice as safe as red ones. Or such be the indications of a computer run on firetruck accidents.

Four centuries, that's not too long for some mushrooms to live.

What your granddad used to call gliders are now known as sailplanes, and the flying of same is considered fairly safe. You can get a license to pilot a sailplane a year younger than necessary to get a license to pilot powered planes.

Those who talk horse say the male is only a colt until he's three years old but the female remains a filly until she's five. More discrimination.

An old Russian proverb goes: "Under great oaks, only mushrooms grow."

Civilians victims of missile

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran fired a long-range missile into Baghdad early Friday and killed civilians in the fifth such attack on the Iraqi capital this month, the military said.

Iraq vowed revenge at the "appropriate time." and Iran said the strikes would continue until Iraq stops attacking economic and industrial targets in the Persian Gulf and on the Iranian mainland.

A U.S. warship and a reflagged Kuwaiti tanker meanwhile steamed south through the gulf. The 14th U.S. convoy left Kuwait late Wednesday for the 650-mile trip through the gulf and out the Strait of Hormuz.

Iranian gunners fired the missile one day before the two warring gulf nations were expected to deliver their final responses to a U.N. peace plan aimed at ending the 7-year-old gulf conflict.

The projectile, believed to be a Soviet-designed Scud-B missile, hit Baghdad while Soviet envoy Yuli Vorontsov was visiting Iraq seeking to soften President Saddam Hussein's terms for a cease-fire. He was expected to visit Tehran later.

Iran has fired more than 30 missiles into the Iraqi capital since war broke out in September 1980. Western diplomats have said the missiles were Scud-Bs, which have a range of 185 miles and can carry warheads of up to 900 pounds. Baghdad is about 80 miles west of the border.

The official Iraqi News Agency quoted an unidentified military spokesman as saying "a number of civilians were martyred and another number were wounded."

He did not give a casualty breakdown, but said several civilian homes were demolished and others damaged in the early morning explosion.

The spokesman said the missile struck a residential neighborhood, but did not elaborate. "Iraq will not let these crimes pass without a severe punishment at the appropriate time," he said.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted the missile was fired at the air force command headquarters in central Baghdad. The one-paragraph report gave no other details.

Rebel says Reds behind 3 slayings

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist guerrillas almost certainly masterminded the slaying of three Americans and they plan to kill more, a newspaper quoted a rebel leader as saying Friday.

A Manila-based communist rebel group denied responsibility, but did not rule out the possibility that another communist group might have killed the Americans.

But President Corason Aquino told foreign correspondents that authorities had not yet determined if communists were responsible. She said Americans were not in danger. The U.S. Embassy said CIA deputy director Robert Gates was in the Philippines but refused to say why he was here.

Bruins break out five-game slump

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls High School Bruins broke a five-game losing streak here Friday night with a 39-14 rout of fourth-ranked Skyline in a Gem State Conference football game that served as the season finale for both schools.

Twin Falls senior quarterback Joel Jund, playing his final game as a Bruin, completed 16 of 81 passes for 312 yards and four touchdowns. His frequent target, senior wide receiver Nick Brunkow, had six receptions for 167 yards.

in September. And that's the frustrating part. If we had played all year like we have the past two weeks and had a few less injuries, we could have had a five- or six-win season without any problems. Really, Idaho Falls was the only game we had no chance to win. I think if our juniors have learned that much this year, then, despite being 3-7, we can consider this a successful season."

The Bruins rolled up a 27-0 halftime lead, with Jund completing his first nine passes and 10 of 17 in the first half for 232 yards and three touchdowns. Twin Falls' injury-plagued defense limited Skyline to 77 yards total offense in the first half, forced six fumbles and recovered three of them.

The Bruins scored 2 minutes and 3 seconds into the game after J.T. Eller recovered an errant pitchout at the Skyline 19. Three plays later, Joel Jund sneaked in from the 1-yard line and Eller ran in a hard snap on the ensuing PAT attempt to make it 8-0.

After Brady Stands and Kip Teake stopped Skyline running back Mark Stevens on a third-and-one play in Skyline territory, Joel Jund hooked up with Brunkow on a 78-yard scoring strike to make it 14-0. Ted Smack added the PAT kick with 6:09 left in the first quarter.

After Derek Brewer recovered a Stevens fumble at the Skyline 59 yard line, Jund connected with Jody Bryant for a 39-yard scoring strike on the next play. The kick failed, but Twin Falls led 21-0 with 7:46 left in the half.

Twin Falls scored again after Darin Williams fumbled on the ensuing kickoff. Jund and Brunkow connected again three plays later from 10 yards. A two-point conversion failed, but the Bruins took a 27-0 lead into the locker room.

Skyline scored twice in the third quarter, but the Bruins put the game away on a Jund-to-Bryant aerial of the night, a 22-yarder on fourth down early in the final quarter. The conversion attempt failed.

Coach Jund said he felt the Bruins' use of a shotgun formation helped Friday against the Grizzlies.

"If we had been in trouble, we would have stayed in the shotgun more," he said. "I think the thing the shotgun did was take some of the pressure off the middle, especially the couple of catches that Brian Reed made. They were trying to pressure our wideouts to the outside. After Reed had those two catches, they had to watch the middle too."

Coach Jund said two things contributed to Twin Falls' biggest scoring night of the season.

"First, Joel had some time to set up and throw and second they kept trying to play us man-to-man," he said. "They couldn't stay with Jody or Nick."

The Bruins' limited Skyline, the Gem State Conference's second-leading rushing team, to 84 yards rushing and 185 yards total offense. By contrast, Twin Falls had its best offensive night of the season, rolling up 345 yards total.

The loss left Skyline, the two-time defending state Class A-1 Division II champion, at 5-5 for the season and 5-4 in conference. The Grizzlies are currently ranked fourth in the Associated Press A-1 Division II ratings.

Tenacious defense lifts Glens Ferry past Pirates, 6-0

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

GLENS FERRY — Two Steve Alderman interceptions were the case cards Friday night when Glens Ferry dealt the West Side Pirates a 6-0 shutout and advanced to the semifinals of the state A-3 football playoffs.

Alderman's plays were the most critical of the defensive duel as the first stopped a budding West Side drive on the Pirates' opening possession and set up Glens Ferry's lone score of the night.

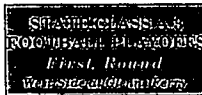

His second was accomplished in the end zone after the Pirates had marched the length of the field with the second-half kickoff to attain a first down at the Pilot 10.

"Those were the big plays," said Glens Ferry Coach Bill Brock. "We have great confidence in our defense. Defense is the reason we're here (in the playoffs). There's no secret to that."

"I love interceptions," said Alderman. "I got them tonight because of the coach. He makes the call and I try to do it."

Alderman came close to breaking the first interception for a touchdown. Westside had forced Glens Ferry to punt three plays into the game and then rolled on the running of Wayne Beckstead to a first down at the Pilot 40. After Beckstead ran for 8 yards, the Pirates tried the crucial pass.

"In fairness to our quarterback, his arm was hit as he was throwing," lamented West Side Coach Lyle Henderson. "It was a pass play that Glens Ferry's Steve Alderman picked it off. This time it wasn't.

After Alderman picked it off, "I tried to kick in the afterburner but he (the West Side chaser) was just too fast and caught up to me."

Still, Alderman carried the ball to the Pirate 22 yard line and on the next play Jon Hartway scooted off tackle to the 1. Duncan Farris sneaked across from there but West Side kept its hopes alive when Mike Hixson blocked Hartway's point-after kick.

Glens Ferry had just one other big scoring chance after that. After forcing a punt, the Pirates sprung Hartway loose for a 43-yard scoring burst only to see that wiped out by a clipping call.

"That was a big, big call," said Brock. "It was a judgment call that went against us. But I felt at halftime we could put a couple more (TDs) on the board in the second half. But our offense never did get going. It was the kids' desire to win that came through at the end."

West Side appended handing the Glens Ferry defense as the third quarter started. The Pirates picked up five first downs — three on timely throws to Nathan Coats, Beckstead and finally a 16-yard completion to Jason Stevenson at the 10.

Ostler poses big question for Jerome

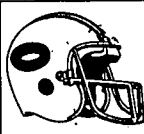

By STEVE CRUMP
The Associated Press

JEROME — Would the Tigers be the Tigers without Jay Ostler? Jerome High School fans may find out this afternoon when the top-ranked Tigers, 9-0, host District 6 champion Marsh Valley, 8-1, in the opening round of the state Class A-2 football playoffs.

Ostler sustained a hip pointer in last Friday's South-Central Idaho Conference victory over Puhl, and his status for today's 1 p.m. game is doubtful, according to Coach Joe Mattie.

Oakley takes on outside Melba today

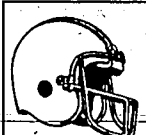

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

MELBA — Sometimes, turnout is everything. Consider the case of Oakley High School, where 39 of the 118 students are on the football team. Or Melba, where 16 of the 145 students are out for the game.

"There's no question that Oakley can match up with us. The real question is whether we can match up with Oakley," said Melba Coach Dick Davis, whose third-ranked Mustangs will host the top-ranked Hornets here this afternoon in the POCATELLO — Call it the hot-house theory of football game preparation. Gooding Coach Jeff Jeffries has been putting his Seneca through their paces this week in anticipation of a return trip to the Idaho State University Mindome, where the mercury climb more rapidly than the scores.

"It's been a natural progression for our kids," said Jeffries, whose 5-3 Seneca will take on second-ranked North Fremont at 1 here

Eight-man newcomers test Tigers

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

RICHFIELD — Richfield High School football Coach Rudy Milles knows all about Kootenai High School, the northern Idaho school whose eight-man football team will provide his Tigers' first-round opposition as the state playoffs get underway here today.

"I used to coach there years ago," said Milles. "I may have coached some of these kids' dads and uncles. I know they have some good players and that their record (2-5) is deceiving. They're a better team

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"The fox condemns the trap, not himself."
 — William Blake.
 "I needed another ace to beat the game," alluded West.
 "You had enough cards, chastised East. "All you had to do was get out of your own way."
 West led the king and ace of diamonds and then continued with the queen, forcing South to ruff. South then cashed three rounds of spades and led a trump. West won but was now out of safe leads. A club lead gave up a free finesse and other leads offered a ruff and discard. This particular West was right in that he heeded another ace to beat the game.

East pointed out that a player with many years of experience should not have fallen into the trap. After cashing two high diamonds, he would have cashed the ace of trumps. Only then would he have led another high diamond, forcing South to ruff. With the trump ace out of West's way, South could not stuff West on lead and the losing club finesse would have spelled down one.

ANSWER: Four spades. Any reasonable minimum response by North should provide a play for game. (Those who use splinter bids to show a singleton would jump to four hearts.)

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Beneath this slab John Brown is stowed. He watched the ads, And not the road."

Ogden Nash

Had a police officer been there direct traffic, South would have had no problems with today's slam. As it was, South was looking at the wrong signals and his chances for the slam disappeared.

South was quick to realize that he needed luck in the club suit to bring home 12 tricks. Intent on starting clubs immediately, he won the first trick with his spade queen. A low club dummy's queen held and a spade diamond to South's king allowed him to repeat the club play, bringing down West's ace.

With nothing better to do, West exited with a diamond and the slam was lost. South's last entry to the long clubs was gone and the slam skidded to an inglorious one down. The slam is much easier if South takes care of his traffic problems (entries). He should win his first spade in dummy, cross to the first diamond and lead a club. When West ducks, South returns to his hand with a second high diamond to lead another club. The spade entry to South's hand remains intact and South collects his vulnerable slam.
