Supercollider site list disappoints Idahoans

By MARK PRATTER

TWIN FALLS — Idaho took it on the chin Tuesday with the announcement that it didn't make the short list for the $4.4 billion supercollider project.

state's proposal to build the supercollider at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, technically sound and the most economically feasible.

Andrus says he will ask the academies to provide an evaluation of Idaho's strengths and weaknesses.

"Through this process we have learned some valuable lessons for the future. We were able to further refine our approach to using the INEL facility as an economic development tool. We were able to strengthen the already strong ties between INEL and the State of Idaho. And this effort has brought much needed attention to the necessity for building and maintaining a first-class educational system. All in all we will be much better prepared in the future to pursue hi-tech projects," Andrus says.

Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, says he was "deeply disappointed" by the academies' decision.

One of the technical criteria in the decision was each state's educational community. Idaho can't afford a sophisticated physics community, says Craig.

But Craig praised the state's eight-volume proposal as an effort that put the state's best foot forward.

Craig and others hoping for the project did see some hope for the state's future economic development efforts.

"Economic development is not a one-time stand. It is something you decide to do. Because Idaho appears to have lost this one doesn't mean it won't gain other projects," says Craig.

Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, also expressed his disappointment and called the Academies reduce collider site list to 8 states

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — States in the running for the avidly sought $4.4 billion supercollider atom-smasher project were reduced to eight Tuesday.

They are Texas, Arizona, Colorado, Tennessee, New York, Illinois, Michigan and North Carolina, announced on the "short list" chosen by the National Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering.

"The list represents the best collective judgment of 21 individuals, carefully chosen for their expertise and impartiality, after a detailed assessment of the proposals," said the academies' committee in its report to the Energy Department.

Arizona, Michigan, New York and Texas submitted plans that included more than one proposed site. When the states made the short list, the academies specified sites near Maricopa, Ariz.; Stockbridge, Mich.; Rochester, N.Y.; and Dallas-

Fort Worth, Texas.

The states that failed to make the grade in Tuesday's list were Alaska, California, Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

The proposals were judged on technical criteria such as access to major airports and suitable geology for tunneling.

Cost calculations, the committee said, played a role; "more minor than might have been anticipated" because of "the remarkably narrow range within which cost estimates for the different sites fell." The most expensive was only a few percentage points away from the least expensive, comparable to the range of uncertainty in the given cost estimate.

No actual cost estimates were given for any site, and the committee said it had not used any numerical ranking methods.

Woman survives in store

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A confused elderly woman, who apparently spent seven days lost in a department store without food and water, was in good condition but unable to tell how she survived her Christmas week ordeal, officials said Tuesday.

When Brigitte Pierre, 71, was found Monday night in a remote stairwell of the Lord & Taylor store where she disappeared Dec. 21, she asked police for a cup of tea.

"Our reports are that she had not eaten or had anything to drink in seven days," said Fern Stone, spokeswoman for Shiley Memorial Hospital, where Mrs. Pierre was resting and receiving fluids to combat dehydration.

Mrs. Stone said doctors examining Mrs. Pierre believe she could have survived "because the elderly tend to have a lower caloric need."

According to her husband, Henri Pierre, Mrs. Pierre had her hair cut at the store Dec. 21 and then called him for a ride to their suburban Bethesda, Md. home, a routine they had gone through many times.

Police said Pierre told them his wife was not at the store when he arrived.

A report filed with Montgomery County, Md., police the day she was reported missing said Pierre told police "his wife has a mild case of Alzheimer's disease and becomes confused and disoriented."

Hospital and police officials said that because of Mrs. Pierre's mental state, it was "unlikely they could find out whether she had left the store or taken any nourishment while she was missing."

Idaho population sags with economy

Idaho is the second fastest growing state in the nation, but it is losing population at a rate that is faster than any other state in the West. The state's population is estimated to have fallen by 4,000 people in 1987, according to a report by the U.S. Census Bureau.

The report, which is the first in a series of annual reports on population trends, shows that Idaho's population growth rate in 1987 was 1.8 percent, down from 2.1 percent in 1986. The state's population in 1987 was 1,210,000, down from 1,214,000 in 1986.

The report also shows that Idaho's population growth rate in 1987 was the lowest of any state in the West. The only other state in the West with a lower population growth rate was Nevada, which had a growth rate of 1.7 percent in 1987.

Thiokol plant fire kills 5

The Associated Press

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah — Nearly 100,000 pounds of rocket fuel in an MX missile section exploded in flames at a Morton Thiokol Inc. plant Tuesday.

Four workers died as fire consumed the building and a fifth died of burns later, company officials said.

The fire erupted at 6:20 a.m. MST in a strategic section of the company's Wasatch Operations, 25 miles west of Brigham City.

"We heard a concussion and we noted some orange light in the snow all around us," a company employee who demanded anonymity told KSL Radio. "When I first saw it, I thought, 'That's believe it! Then we just wanted to get away from it—it was incredible. It totally engulfed the building. You couldn't see the building for the fire.'"

Company spokesman Rocky Raab identified the four who died immediately, all Morton Thiokol employees, as Michael H. Smith, 24; Lawrence W. Rothenberger, 47; Del M. Locali, 42; and Richard J. Goodsel, 36.

A fifth employee, Jeffrey W. Ellis, 28, Brigham City, died more than 10 hours later from third-degree burns that covered 95 percent of his body, said a spokesman for the University of Utah Health Sciences Center.

It was the fourth major accident at the plant in four years, according to state records.

The cause of the fire was not known, but the workers were believed to have been removing a casting from the center of the missile motor's solid fuel when the fire erupted on the overnight shift, officials said.

"This is a normal operation for all rocket motors. There was nothing unusual or novel about it," said Philip R. Dykstra, vice president and general manager for strategic operations at the plant.

The four-story MX, an intercontinental ballistic missile dubbed the Peacekeeper by the Reagan administration, has a solid-fuel first stage, all of which burned before company fire crews extinguished the blaze.

16 slayings linked to suspect in shooting spree

The Associated Press

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. — Police discovered nine bodies in a shallow grave and in abandoned cars outside a rural home Tuesday, bringing to 16 the number of slayings linked to a man arrested after a downtown shooting spree one day earlier, officials said.

The victims — relatives and former co-workers of R. Gene Simmons Sr. — died in their beds, offices and beneath a Christmas tree in one of the "worst mass killings in the United States" this decade, said authorities in this Arkansas River Valley college town of 14,000 people.

One of the dead was a legless man who had spurned Simmons' advances more than a year ago.

Simmons, from the nearby town of Dover, surrendered Monday after the 45-minute burst of shootings across Russellville. He was ordered to hold without bond Tuesday as the hunt for bodies continued around this home in the Ozark Mountain foothills.

Russellville Police Chief Herb Johnston filed information charging Simmons with two counts of capital murder and four counts of attempted capital murder stemming from Monday's shooting spree, Pope County Sheriff Jim Bolin said.

formal charges probably would not be filed for at least two days.

Bolin said Simmons, whom he called the "only suspect" in the killings, would not talk about any motive in the case.

"The suspect has not muttered a word to us," Bolin said. "He will not talk. He just stayed completely mum."

When Simmons was asked about his family, Bolin said, "All we could get out of him then was his bottom lip would quiver."

He slouched in handcuffs and did not respond during his bond hearing when Circuit Judge John D. Patterson asked for some sign that he understood his rights. Prosecutor John M. Bynum said Simmons probably would undergo a 30-day psychiatric examination.

Authorities tentatively identified the victims found Tuesday in the shallow grave as Becky Simmons, 46, Simmons' wife; sons Ronald Gene Simmons Jr., 27, and Eddie, 14; daughters Loretta, 17, Marianne, 11, and Rebecca, 8; and Ronald Jr.'s daughter, Barbara, 3.

The children found in the trunks of cars were tentatively identified as two Simmons grandsons, Michael McNulty, 21 months, and William Simmons Jr., 20 months.

Those found dead in the house

Monday were identified as son William H. Simmons, 23, and Renada Simmons, his wife; daughter Sheila McNulty, 24, and her husband, Dennis, 23; and Sylvia McNulty, 6, their daughter.

Police began investigating the killings Monday morning after a man armed with two .22-caliber handguns opened fire at a Russellville law office, killing 24-year-old legal secretary Kathy Kendrick with four shots.

The gunman then killed 33-year-old J.D. Chaffin and wounded Rusty Taylor, 38, a former employee of Simmons, at Taylor Oil Co.

whose district includes Idaho's site for the project, keyed into the education financing issue.

"The basic premise is our education system is lacking," says Stallings, a former history professor.

"People in government have to face the reality that if we want to see the state to develop, higher education has to be improved so the state can compete, he says.

A key to DOE's proposal was that "we can build it cheaper" argument, Stallings says.

He says he is puzzled by the decision of the academics and wants to look into the selection criteria.

But he says the other states that didn't win, will do the same thing and the odds of DOE opening the matter up again are not very good.

The superintendent decision won't affect the INEL, Stallings says.

He says it would have been an additional project and the site has other projects coming along.

However, Stallings says if DOE picks Colorado in the final announcement in January 1989, INEL will participate in the project.

"If it's placed in the West, we will derive benefit," Stallings says.

Officials from the state Department of Commerce including Rick Tremblay, the coordinator of Idaho's efforts to gain the project, could not be reached for comment.

Tremblay was so upbeat about the project that last summer he vowed to hand deliver Idaho's proposal to DOE in Washington. Last week Tremblay was in Twin Falls expressing confidence that Idaho would make the short list.

Tremblay was saying if Idaho made the first cut, it would be an unexpected but a successful supercollider bid would revitalize every vessel of Idaho's economy.

State Sen. President Jim Risch, R-Boise, called the decision unfortunate but not totally unexpected. Earlier there were news reports that Idaho was not on the short list.

Risch defended the Legislature's decision to spend $400,000 on the supercollider effort.

"It was a good decision. If we are going to be in the running, we have to do that," he says.

Idaho Falls, the largest city closest to INEL, would have reaped substantial economic benefits from the project.

The supercollider effort brought chambers of commerce in Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Rexburg and Blackfoot together for this and future projects, says Ira Koplou, executive director, Greater Idaho Falls Chamber of Commerce. He says that is a key to economic development.

Thirty-five sites proposed by 25 states had been considered by the committee for the collider, a plum because of its economic benefits to the host area — 3,000 jobs, most of them for highly educated scientists, an annual budget of $270 million and little pollution.

If it is built, the collider will be a 63-mile-around tunnel in which beams of protons will be smashed into each other at energies 20 times what is now possible.

This will permit physicists to concentrate more energy in a small space — the collision region — than has existed at such density since the creation of the universe in the "Big Bang" 20 billion or so years ago.

Congress, wrestling with huge budget deficits and competing scientific projects, appropriated only $25 million of the Energy Department's $35 million request for the current fiscal year for preparations.

And a trade publication, Inside Energy, reported last week that the President's Office of Management and Budget is trying to hold the request for '88 "next fiscal year" to $100 million instead of the $348 million the department planned.

Some backers have feared that announcement of the short list would cause congressional supporters of the project from disappointed states to cool in enthusiasm.

"It's something that needs to be done for the scientific community, then regardless of who it benefits, I would hope those who thought it was important before will still think it's important," said Rep. Marty Russo, D-Ill. His Chicago district adjoins the Fermilab site near Batavia that would be used for the collider if Illinois wins.

Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., said "I think the (collider) has got a real problem in Congress because too many of my colleagues view this as a massive public works project rather than a major scientific initiative."

Boehlert said the absence of California — home of both President Reagan and Herrington and source of 45 votes on the House floor, the most of any state — proves "the committee said little about the rejected sites, and "nothing about specific sites that failed to make it. "A number displayed unfavorable geological conditions, such as excessive water inflow during tunneling, the report said, while others were "less successful in meeting the regional resources criteria," being far from major airports or universities or lacking in machine and electronics shops, experienced labor forces, job opportunities for spouses of scientists, or some combination of those drawbacks.

Boehlert said he understood that the department is free to add to the list, but Herrington has said repeatedly that the academic list of the best technically qualified sites is the one from which he will choose the winner.

wounded Sinclair Mini-Mart manager David Salyer, 38, and employee Roberta Woolery, 46, and wounded Woodline Motor Freight office manager Joyce Butte, 46, she said.

Sheriff's Lt. Jay Winters said Simmons had worked at the Sinclair Mini-Mart until Dec. 18, but authorities did not know why he quit. Salyer, in a hospital news conference, said Tuesday that Simmons cited poor pay and long hours when he called to say he was quitting. Simmons had left Woodline Motor Freight about a year ago.

Robert Wood, the president of Woodline, where Ma Kendrick also had worked, said the woman had rejected Simmons' "amorous affection."

Simmons "was just making advances toward her. She wasn't returning any of it. That's all I can best figure, that's what started most of it," Wood said.

After the downtown shootings, authorities went to Simmons' home and found inside the bodies of five people, all relatives, who apparently had been dead since the weekend, Bolin said.

"The gifts are still under the tree and packed in the closet as though they didn't have a Christmas at all," Bolin said.

The bodies found Tuesday were tentatively identified as his wife, Becky; five of their children, age 8 to 27, and three grandchildren.

The rocket propellant burns at about 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit and some steel I-beams were warped by the heat, Dykstra said. Only the girders of the building remained.

Company officials would not characterize the accident as an explosion, although debris was scattered for more than 100 yards.

"The building burnt, clearly. It's designed to burst at a low pressure to prevent anything more violent. It is a violent burn," Raab said.

Hours after the accident, a section of the missile motor was still burning and pieces of debris were smoldering.

Marcus Petersen, chief of a company fire crew, said he heard a succession of "loud reports" which shook his fire station three-quarters of a mile away.

The fire "lit up the whole valley" as flames and smoke billowed 100 feet into the air, Petersen said. But the quick-burning fuel had mostly spent itself by the time he arrived two minutes later, he said.

Two bodies were found inside the building and three victims, including Ellis, were outside, he said. It was unclear who they had gotten out of the building, he said. Ellis, who was conscious when firefighters arrived, complained of being cold but said nothing else as he was rushed to an ambulance, Petersen said.

Variable clouds and decreasing snow showers today. Highs from 15 to upper 20s. Lows tonight from zero to 10 above. Partly cloudy Thursday with a chance of snow showers. Highs in 20s. Outlook for New Year's Day, dry with high in 20s. Lows near zero.

Northwestern Utah and Nevada:

Utah — Areas of snow today with locally heavy snow possible in the south. Scattered snow or snow showers tonight and Thursday. Lows from teens to mid 20s; higher spots in northern valleys. Highs from upper 20s to mid 30s.

Nevada — Snow showers today then partly cloudy Thursday. Highs today from mid 20s to mid 30s. Highs Thursday in 20s to 20s and 30s. Lows tonight mostly from 5 to 15.

Summary:

The National Weather Service in Boise says a surge of moisture centered over the Pacific and a low pressure center located off the West Coast.

One batch of moisture clipped the southern and west-central part of the state Tuesday morning, dropping light amounts of rain.

Only cloudy skies were noted over most of the remainder of the state.

Another disturbance will rotate around the low and into southern Idaho.

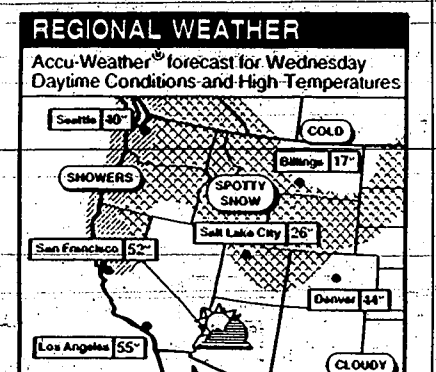

Scattered snow showers continued over the southwest Tuesday afternoon. Snow also fell as far north as Grangeville about 2 p.m.

Mostly cloudy conditions were the norm over the remainder of the state during the day.

Mid-afternoon temperatures ranged from the mid 20s to the upper 30s. Challa is the coldest with 22 degrees while Idaho Falls and Mountain Home both warmed to 38 degrees. Wind today were from 5 to 15 mph.

The warmest temperature in the state today was 44 degrees at Hagerman. Deadwood reported the coldest at 7 degrees below zero.

The extended outlook for southern Idaho, Friday through Sunday, shows dry through the period. High from 20s to lower 30s.

A strong winter storm that blasted the Plains and Midwest with fierce wind and snow sputtered as it blew east Tuesday, but still packed enough force to cause train and plane delays in several cities.

Meanwhile, rain-swollen rivers flooded parts of four states and a new storm hit the West Coast, bringing up to a foot of snow to California ski resorts.

The first storm, which hit the Colorado foothills with up to 34 inches of snow, reached New England Tuesday with strong winds. It extended from Michigan to West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware.

The storm has been blamed for 23 deaths.

About 10,000 Tulsa, Okla., residents were without power Tuesday as utility crews tried to restore lines damaged in a Christmas ice storm.

Flooding was reported in parts of Illinois, Tennessee, Louisiana and Arkansas, where heavy rains caused the worst flooding along the Ouachita River in 40 years.

The river is expected to crest 17 feet above flood stage on Wednesday, the National Weather Service said.

A new Pacific storm spread snow and freezing rain across much of Oregon. Authorities temporarily closed Interstate 5 at several locations because of accidents, including one in Portland in which six trucks jackknifed.

Jackson hits snag in funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paperwork problems stalled Jesse Jackson's bid for federal matching funds Tuesday, causing South Dakota Democratic leaders to flipflop before finally deciding he could be on the ballot for their second-in-the-nation primary. The party announced in mid-afternoon that Jackson had not qualified under South Dakota party rules — which require that a candidate be qualified for federal matching funds — and that he would not be on the ballot. But with only minutes to spare before the legal 5 p.m. deadline, South Dakota Democratic Party Chairman Gene Mahan reversed that stand and put Jackson on the official list of candidates being sent to the secretary of state. "As long as he's qualified and his name will be certified by the FEC, I see no reason he shouldn't be on the ballot," Mahan said.

Cracked jet was in good shape

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A DC-9 jetliner that cracked open after a hard landing had been in service 19 years with only minor maintenance problems and none that could be traced to the accident, an Eastern Airlines spokeswoman said Tuesday. Eastern Flight 573 of the Richmond, Va., and Atlanta dragged the fractured rear third of its fuselage most of the way down a 7,000-foot runway after landing late Sunday night at Pensacola Regional Airport. "It had not had any sort of structural damage prior to this incident," said Karen M. Ceromask, a spokeswoman at Eastern's Miami headquarters.

Jews show new Waldheim facts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leaders of Jewish organizations said Tuesday they hope the release of new documents concerning the alleged Nazi connections of Austrian President Kurt Waldheim will lead to his resignation. "A man who was a Nazi war criminal should end his days in disgrace," said Menachem Rosensaft, chairman of the International Network of Children of Jewish Holocaust Survivors. Rosensaft joined others at a news conference during which journalist Charles Ashman released documents from Yugoslavia, Austria and the United States that he said linked Waldheim to a possible blackmail scheme by Soviet-bloc countries.

Allergist OKs Reagan's health

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan wound up a three-day visit to Los Angeles on Tuesday, bound for Palm Springs, Calif., after receiving a clean bill of health from his allergist. The traveling White House press office said Dr. Ralph Rosensaft joined others at a news conference during which journalist Charles Ashman released documents from Yugoslavia, Austria and the United States that he said linked Waldheim to a possible blackmail scheme by Soviet-bloc countries. "The president receives routine treatment for his allergy, and no changes in that treatment are required," a White House statement said. Reagan, who wears hearing aids in both ears, had an appointment Tuesday for an annual examination by Dr. John House, a hearing specialist.

High local phone rates seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Excessive local telephone rates have cost consumers nearly $6 billion and helped regional Bell phone companies earn big profits since the breakup of the Bell system, a consumer group said Tuesday. In a report titled "Take the Money and Run," the Consumer Federation of America also cautioned that reducing regulation of the Bell companies will produce more bad news for their customers. The study said average local monthly residential charges have increased from about $10.60 in January 1984, when the Bell system was broken up, to about $16 today. It said rates increased three times faster than inflation for the same period.

U.S. T-bonds may help Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration on Tuesday unveiled a novel financing plan to help Mexico repay some of its $76 billion debt to commercial banks through the sale of special U.S. Treasury bonds. Officials said the plan would entail no additional cost to U.S. taxpayers. In a separate proposal also aimed at alleviating the Third World debt crisis, the International Monetary Fund announced it would set up a new $8.4 billion lending pool for its poorest members.

NASA delays shuttle date

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA said Tuesday it will delay the June launch of a space shuttle — the first since the Challenger disaster — because of the failure of a motor component during last week's test firing of the shuttle's redesigned booster rocket. The U.S. manned space flight program has been grounded for two years already, and the latest setback ironically came on the day that the Soviet cosmonaut returned from a record-setting 11-month mission in orbit.

Ag secretary says law is burdensome

By CABELL BRUCE Staff News Service

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng today said a new law that abolished the office of assistant secretary of agriculture for natural resources and environment and placed its responsibilities directly under his command "is burdensome and creating problems for me." However, when pressed for more details, he said, "I won't discuss what the problems are, but I'm complying with the law."

The new law, ushered through Congress by Rep. James L. Whitcomb, D-Miss., strips the assistant secretary of agriculture for natural resources and environment, George S. Dunlop, of power by transferring his responsibilities to the Forest Service and the Soil Conservation Service - USDA. In effect, the head of the USDA is responsible for the day-to-day supervision of the two services.

The Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service have a combined staff of 50,000 and a budget of nearly $3 billion, USDA officials said.

As a result of the law, Dunlop has been re-assigned by Lyng as assistant secretary of agriculture for special services, today said the transfer of the two services "has the potential to cause enormous difficulties for the Secretary if it means that he (Lyng) has to provide day-to-day supervision because it will diminish his capacity to fulfill his other responsibilities as secretary."

Dunlop was quick to emphasize that USDA was no longer considering challenging the law in court on constitutional grounds. "We are complying with the new law," he said.

Earlier this week, USDA lawyers were considering a lawsuit on the grounds that "the law negates the Senate's confirmation process of Dunlop, who was a presidential appointee who earned unanimous confirmation by the Senate in 1986."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is expected to announce in January whether he will challenge the new law in court. The arch-conservative senator is a personal friend of Dunlop's, and has said, through a spokesman, "he considers him like a son."

Dunlop said because Lyng spends about one third of his time overseas, the secretary will have to delegate more authority to the chiefs of the two services, both of whom used to report to him.

"The chiefs of the two services will find thrust upon them also more responsibilities and obligations, but I'm confident in their abilities," Dunlop said.

While Lyng struggles "to find a way to live with the new law," Dunlop said he was serving as an advisor and counsel to the secretary "in an attempt to help him run the two services."

Letters and columns show healthy debate

On this page today, we publish the names of hundreds of citizens, nearly all of them from the Magic Valley and Idaho, who wrote to The Times-News in 1987.

The list is more than 1,000 names - 1,029 says our news assistant Twila Bridges, who keeps track of the mail as it comes in and types most of the letters.

It is axiomatic among newspaper editors that a vigorous, robust letters page is a sign of a healthy community in which issues are discussed in open debate.

The Magic Valley certainly qualified on that score in 1987. Issues from Niagara Springs to a controversial t-shirt kept our letter writers hopping.

Many of you on this list wrote more once. In all, we published close to 1,200 letters and guest columns.

As is our policy, we gave preference to letters from writers in the Magic Valley. There is a good chance you know someone on this list - a friend, neighbor, business associate or public official. Many of the letter writers are citizens who have taken an interest in community issues and who want to make the community a better place for all of us to live.

Such citizen involvement makes an editor's heart warm. It is a high calling of a community newspaper to be a forum for the exchange of a community's ideas and issues. A healthy letters page is of prime importance in meeting that mission.

On a more philosophical plane, every writer here has expressed a precious right of free expression which is either unknown or severely limited in much of the world today.

That right is preserved to us all in the First Amendment of the Constitution.

It says simply that no arm of government shall restrict the right of a free people to write and say what we want, to worship as we choose or not at all, to petition our government with concerns and grievances.

The great strength of America lies not in its conformity, but in its diversity, in the multitude of voices with which we speak.

Censorship is insidious because, by shutting off debate, it robs us all of the emergence of new information, thus stagnating human growth and potential.

To our many readers and writers, we say "Thank you" again for helping The Times-News preserve a freedom which is often taken for granted.

Tomorrow, we will begin a new tradition by picking what we think are the best of 1987's letters in different categories. Some of the awards are serious and some are, well, tongue-in-cheek.

And then on Friday, we'll review some of our own editorial highs and lows for 1987. Humor, it is said, should begin at home.

In 1988, we will keep our letters and opinion page accessible and open, restricting it only as to good taste and space. Regular writers know they can write often and that we will publish most of what they send.

As do many newspapers, we reserve the right to edit mail for length and clarification, and when we do so, we strive to maintain the writer's meaning.

So get your pens, typewriters and computer keyboards ready.

Once again, our thanks for giving The Times-News a healthy, vigorous letters page.

Bennett's ideal school curriculum leaner, tougher on pupils

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Education William J. Bennett on Tuesday prescribed "leaner, better, better academic medicine" for American high schools in a cream curriculum that might require five or even six years of study for some students.

"We think kids need this," said Bennett.

Involving a personal hero for an imaginary James Madison High School, Bennett proposed these ideal curriculum requirements:

- Four years of English plus four year-long literature courses.
- Three years each of science, math and social studies.
- Two years of foreign language.
- Two years of physical education.
- One semester each of art and music history.

His program would leave at least 25 percent of available class time free for electives, such as band, driver education and shop.

"This curriculum is for all students, not for an imaginary class of teen-age wizards," Bennett told a news conference. "It is also, I believe, the kind of basic programs most Americans want for their schools."

The education secretary long has championed a core curriculum with more academic backbone.

"Our children should know about continental shift and quadratic equations, about Gothic architecture and the Gettysburg Address, about what a symphony is and about who Shakespeare was and what he wrote," Bennett said.

history and more science. But it proposes that we begin to address what such additional study must mean, what the specific content of our high school classes should be, what we want our children to know when they graduate from our schools."

High schools typically have six or seven periods a day, allowing students to take 46 to 56 courses over four years, Bennett said. 36 of these should be academic core subjects, and the time left over for electives should be enough.

But if students don't complete the core program, Bennett said, they might have to spend extra time in high school.

"Frankly, I think a student would be better off studying an extra year or even an extra two years and completing a high school diploma and getting something real, getting something of substance," he said.

"We think that most American students do not take the kind of program we are recommending," Bennett said, issuing a report entitled "James Madison High School: A Curriculum for American Students."

He estimated that only 15 percent of high school students are completing the equivalent of his ideal curriculum.

There is so much academic clutter, so many electives in the way of other courses, that sometimes the core program gets lost," he said.

Bennett's examples of clutter to be found in school catalogues included "Teen Living," "Rock Poetry" and "Baja Whale Watch."

"These kinds of courses can drive out the core programs," the secretary said.

Seven schools were profiled in the report as examples of curricular excellence.

They are A. Philip Randolph Campus High School on the grounds of City College of New York in Harlem; CAL High School in Latimer, Iowa, a small, rural school serving the towns of Coulter, Alexander and Latimer; James A. Garfield High School in Los Angeles, famed for its Hispanic students' scores on calculus advanced placement exams; Shawnee Mission South High School in Kansas; Portland High School in Maine; Xavier Prep School in New Orleans, an "all-black" Catholic school for girls; and Wayland High School in Wayland, Mass.

Free copies of "James Madison High School" are available by writing: Office of Public Affairs, Department of Education, 400 Maryland Ave. S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202.

Device may increase gas mileage by 22%

Reprint from Albuquerque Tribune

BOSTON - National Fuelsaver Corp. of Boston has developed a simple automotive accessory that increases gas mileage by 22%.

The Gasver, which takes only 10 minutes to install, releases microscopic quantities of platinum into the air-fuel mixture entering the engine.

Platinum has the unique ability of making unburnt fuel burn. With platinum in the flame zone, you increase the percentage of fuel burning in the engine from 68% to 90%.

Normally, that 22% of the fuel would only burn if it came in contact with the platinum coated surfaces of a catalytic converter.

Unfortunately, this converter process takes place outside of the engine, where the energy produced is lost.

With the Gasver dispensing platinum into the combustion chambers, 22% more of each gallon burns inside the engine so that 22% fewer gallons are required to drive the same distance.

The process works on both leaded and unleaded gasoline, and meets the emission standards of all states.

Federal Judge Walter J. Skinner concluded the five-year administrative procedure studying the Gasver by stating: "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the Gasver than the 22% claimed by its developer National Fuelsaver Corp."

The government had already confirmed in 1984 that the Gasver raises the octane of gasoline, eliminating the need for premium fuel.

Joel Robinson, the developer, commented: "We've already sold over 50,000 Gasvers. Ironically, we find more people buy the Gasver for its third benefit of cleaning out carbon to extend engine life than buy it for its fuel savings or octane boosting."

Report claims Reagan falters in human rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, after helping to oust long-time dictators in the Philippines and Haiti, has not acted forcefully to curb serious abuses by the military in both countries, two human rights groups charged Tuesday.

The allegation was made in a survey of the Reagan administration's 1987 rights performance by Human Rights Watch and the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, two privately financed groups based in New York.

"The two organizations describe themselves as independent, but the administration in the past has accused them of liberal bias. Richard Schifter, assistant secretary of state for human rights, called the allegations about Haiti and the Philippines 'absurd.'"

The administration "applies human rights standards inconsistently between perceived allies and foes." While criticizing rights abuses in the Soviet Union, Cuba, Czechoslovakia and Nicaragua, the administration quietly tolerates comparable abuses in Turkey, Indonesia, Kenya, South Africa and Honduras, it contended.

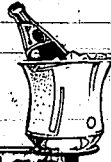

In both nations, the report said, the United States acquiesced in serious abuses by the military, which have tarnished the return to democracy in the Philippines and prevented a democratic evolution in Haiti.

The State Department's Schifter reacted sharply to the allegations. "The critique of United States policy regarding Haiti and the Philippines is based on an utterly unrealistic expectation of American ability to remake foreign societies," he said.

Some traveling circuses of old carried extra clown costumes especially for locals who wanted to perform. Not even the savvy circus folk quite understood the why of it, but they could always find a banker

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: As the year draws to a close you'll have an opportunity to look back at past mistakes and see clearly where you went wrong. With this new insight, you can make a plan which will reveal many new opportunities.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You have some interesting ideas about how to add to your present income, but you must work out the problems connected with them first.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): An idea that someone gives you may at first seem worthless, but if you look more closely you'll change your mind. Get out and socialize.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Find a way to deal with a difficult co-worker that will make you more efficient in your own job. Buy something thoughtful for your mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Get in touch with an associate early today and arrange a recreation. Bring your mate along, and you'll benefit greatly.

LEO (July 23 to August 21): If you invite any guests into your home today, make sure they are trustworthy. Get practical matters arranged with your kin, despite delays.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 23): Don't write or say anything when communicating with others which could later be used against you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 23): Get advice from an expert before dealing with any financial or tax matters. Be sure you maintain your poise in any conversations.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): If you want to get a very practical person to agree with your ideas, be sure you have all the correct facts and figures before you begin.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): If you agree to do some work for anyone, be sure you are both agreed on the compensation to be received. Work on improving your property.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Plan some amusements for the days ahead, but don't neglect which promises you have made. Try to be more understanding of your mate.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): If you invite any guests into your home, don't discuss financial matters or trouble could ensue. Take the time to arrange your schedule.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): A good friend can show you how to get the assistance you need, and may let you in on a bargain. Show your gratitude to this person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... or she will have no difficulty, dealing with any type of problem, and should be given an education, with as wide a range as possible. Your progeny will have very fixed opinions, so be sure they are of constructive nature and completely free of prejudices.

Beach Boy says meditation has kept him young

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Beach Boy singer Mike Love says he feels like a teen-ager since he discovered Ayurveda, touted as ancient techniques of age retardation.

"I tell people I may be 46 years old but I have the body of an 18-year-old Adonis," Love said.

Ayurveda, which employs a regime of diet, exercise, massage and life style adjustments, is a health care system being revived by guru Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, who popularized transcendental meditation in the West.

"People who know me and know that I've been meditating for 20 years see me and say, 'What have you been doing?' With Ayurveda, you look younger in your skin and body," said Love, a longtime advocate of transcendental meditation.

"What it does is enhance a feeling of restfulness. It's given a feeling of complete balance and harmony and actual bliss in my physiology."

Allain supporters seek protrait funding

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Friends and supporters of Gov. Bill Allain are trying to raise $20,000 for an official portrait of the chief executive to hang in the Capitol.

Longtime friend John Callon, a Natchez oil executive, said he did not anticipate problems raising the cash.

Pope, constitution seen atop heroes list

NEW YORK (AP) — The pope, the Constitution and "the Doctor" were on a list of 1987's top heroes released Tuesday by the Millennium Society.

The list is released annually "to convey hope for the future," according to the group.

Those honored by the Millennium Society this year:

- Nobel Peace Prize winner Oscar Arias of Costa Rica "for his perseverance."
- Pope John Paul II "for his common touch."
- Canadian Rick Hansen, who circled the globe in a wheelchair to raise funds for the disabled, "for defying the odds."
- Harlem's "Mother" Clara Hale, who cares for infants with AIDS and drug addicts, "for the children's tomorrow."
- French oceanographer Jacques Cousteau "for expanding our world."
- Actress and AIDS fund-raiser Elizabeth Taylor "for caring."
- Singer Paul Simon "for bridging troubled waters" in his ventures into black South African music.

Jean Pecton shows smoking apparatus to drive bees off

Humming tune in 'bee' at Paris Opera house

PARIS (AP) — While mezzo-sopranos sing their scales and rehearse at the famed Paris Opera house, there's a lot of humming going on up on the roof, where Jean Pecton has more than 10,000 worker bees creating gallons of honey.

Pecton, the Opera's beekeeper and manager of its employee cafeteria, reaches his lofty hives by walking narrow parapets that surround the magnificent green copper dome, while ignoring the dizzying drop to the street below.

"With the air of one who has found rural peace and quiet in the heart of busy, neurotic Paris, he explained in a rooftop interview Tuesday how he has found the flowers and their cargo of pollen necessary to make the honey.

"Bees have a range of three kilometers (two miles)," he said. "They fly down to the Tuilleries Gardens and there are plenty of people growing flowers on their terraces around here."

The familiar Paris landmarks — the Madeleine church and the Eiffel Tower — form the background as Pecton, wearing his safari-style straw hat and black safety net, tends to his bees.

Pecton has kept a beehive above the heads of unsuspecting Parisians for six years and sees it as a successful experiment. "It interested me to see if it could be done in urban surroundings," he said.

"Pecton, who lives near work, also keeps bees in the Creuse in central France and in the Yvelines, to the west of Paris.

"These urban bees seem to do as well or better than their country

MSTI withdraws plans for treatment center

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Because the Mountain States University of Boise has a 200,000-square-foot cancer center under construction in Boise, MSTI officials are withdrawing its plans for a 100,000-square-foot cancer center in Twin Falls, Idaho, on Tuesday.

MSTI officials said they will serve Magic Valley physicians and their patients and staff in the operation of improved cancer services in Twin Falls and the Magic Valley area should they be asked to do so.

But a letter to the "business of Magic Valley" and signed by Magic Valley President, Dr. Robert K. Smith and E. Gilbertson, President of St. Luke's Regional Medical Center, MSTI said.

MSTI officials wrote the letter because they believe MSTI's interest in opening a Twin Falls satellite "have been misunderstood," spokeswoman Rita Ryan said.

On Christmas Eve, MSTI had planned to announce its intention to open a Twin Falls satellite as early as the winter of 1988. The Boise-based "series of treatment" they proposed 10,000 square-foot facility would have cost $10 million and employed up to 40 people during the construction phase.

The Boise-based cancer center announcement was made by the Board of Trustees, which is now proceeding on the development of its own cancer treatment center.

In their letter, Smith and Gilbertson outlined MSTI's past history and most recent history concerning discussions about a Twin Falls center.

"MSTI, with St. Luke's, offers a comprehensive cancer treatment program to a 200,000 square mile area in Idaho, eastern Oregon and northern Nevada. Since it was started in 1968, the facility has served thousands of Magic Valley citizens. In Boise and through clinics its physicians combined for years in Twin Falls, stated Smith and Gilbertson.

During the last 12-18 months, MSTI and Magic Valley physicians at MVRMC and the Twin Falls Clinic have discussed a Twin Falls center. The discussions were also reported by a desire to provide Magic Valley residents of the burden and expense of coming to Boise for a series of treatments, they

The most recent talks, started in the spring of 1987, between MSTI, MVRMC and the Twin Falls Clinic about opening a Twin Falls center, reached an impasse during the development talks, Smith and Gilbertson wrote.

In the past weeks, however, it also became clear that other unnamed out-of-state organizations, including some from Utah, and private groups showed a serious interest in locating a similar center in Twin Falls, the MSTI officials state.

"Because of the impasse and outside interests, MSTI concluded it should announce its intention to buy property for its center subject to final approval of the Board of Directors," they wrote. MSTI also announced its intentions Dec. 18 in the minutes of MVRMC and the Twin Falls Clinic.

While no use of MSTI was a result of it at the time, the announcement apparently triggered similar discussions of the board and the medical staff of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and in the decision to develop a cancer center in the future in conjunction with that institution, Smith and Gilbertson wrote. "It would be very unwise to have two competing radiotherapy or cancer centers in Twin Falls. As a result, MSTI is willing to cease any further efforts for an independent unit and, further, would have withdrawn earlier if it had been informed of the decision of the MVRMC board and medical staff.

Smith and Gilbertson were unavailable for comment Tuesday afternoon.

Ryan said the letter states MSTI's position at this time. As for any renewed interest in Twin Falls should MVRMC's plans not work out, she said, "I don't know."

Dr. John Howar, MVRMC's medical chief, was not available for comment on MSTI's decision to back off its plans.

With MSTI pulling out, that leaves MVRMC to come through on its own cancer treatment center, roughly estimated to cost $30 million. The board did vote after recommendations by the medical staff to do so — to develop the project; no mention was made of what the MVRMC center might be up and running.

MVRMC President Dr. A.C. Emery said the plans are "following through."

"We have a committee and the site. We are doing it now," he said.

Federal ax chops Idaho student loans

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A last-minute move by the General Accounting Office to help remedy the federal budget deficit will slash $234 million out of state-guaranteed student loan agencies nationwide by September.

The move threatens to cut off guaranteed loans, as has already happened in Montana and South Dakota.

While effects are less certain in Idaho, the state-guaranteeing agency, the Student Loan Fund of Idaho, also stands to lose nearly one-fifth of its cash reserves, or $435,000, according to the U.S. Department of Education.

SLEFI has not been notified formally from the government, said deputy director Cathy Carr. But she said estimates of even $200,000 would be significant.

Statewide SLEFI guarantees $30 million in loans annually to 20,000 students. Locally, 80 percent of the College of Southern Idaho's students — 1,200 — take out guaranteed loans.

When a former student defaults on a loan, the guaranteeing agency must pay the outstanding amount in cash. The U.S. Department of Education then repays the guaranteeing agency.

Drinking water agencies reserves value the guarantor that the agencies won't be able to quickly cover lenders' bad debt.

"I don't want to do anything that would jeopardize us from protecting our lenders with our assets," said William Leonard, director of the Montana Student Guaranteed Loan Agency.

Rescuers braved cold to locate missing pair

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — A Kimberly family was safely back together after a two-day search for a missing pair of young boys in freezing temperatures in the snow-blanketed South Hills area Monday.

Bretha Olander said she spent about 10 hours not knowing if her husband and their 6-year-old daughter, Kelli, were freezing, injured or lost in the below-freezing temperatures and winds.

Her husband, Rocky Olander, 27, and Kelli failed to arrive at the Diamondfield Ski Snowmobile area to meet with her and another daughter, Belamy, 8.

Mrs. Olander said it was blowing and drifting on the ridge when their snow machine became stuck. She and the two girls started walking along a well marked cross-country ski trail back to the Diamondfield Ski parking lot.

In about two hours, her husband overtook them after getting her machine going. He picked up the younger girl, to take down to their vehicle at the lot and she and Kelli had never been lost. Since the missing couple was only one passenger, He planned to come back for them, but did not, and she and her daughter were picked up by some other snowmobilers and taken to the parking lot and her vehicle.

There she found out her husband and Kelli had never been lost.

She was taken down the canyon to report the missing pair about 5 p.m. and returned to the parking lot. Her call "bounced" off an "all-out search" by the Twin Falls sheriff's department, search and rescue unit, and volunteers of the Magic Valley Snowmobile Association.

It was 12:08 p.m. Monday, Mrs. Olander recalled, when they decided to part company on the ridge. It was 1:30 a.m. Tuesday when they arrived back home after their ordeal.

Merchants report Christmas sales up

By MARTA CLEVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Early reports on the sales and profits for the Christmas shopping season are reported to be as rosy as the cheeks on old St. Nick.

All the major shopping centers in Twin Falls report "jingling cash registers" and "happy retailers."

"Everything I've heard so far has been very positive," said Gerry Hillman, manager of the Blue Lakes Shopping Center.

"Terrific" is the way the Magic Valley Mall manager, Don Chandler, described the holiday shopping frenzy. "Generally speaking, our sales are up over last year."

Meanwhile, sales at the downtown mall were "super" according to Sue Ann Peters, coordinator of the Downtown Business Improvement District. "I can hardly use any other word."

Pegan Venzon, owner of the new Venzon Jewelry and Idaho Art store downtown, said her sales figures are up about 25 percent over last year.

"We had people from Boise, Jackpot, and Kelchum. Here they find Idaho business people. They know their money will stay in Idaho," Venzon said.

Only Kathy Harris, who owns Kathy's clothing stores in Twin Falls, Jerome, Ketchum and Jackpot, Nev., sounded a different note. Sales at her stores were "kind of spotty," she said. "We were down just a little from last year. But some of that could be attributed to the 20 percent discount cards we gave out. Without those, we would have been ahead of last year's figures."

In spite of the down dollars now, Harris said the discount cards may yet prove a profitable promotion since they can be used through February.

"We wanted to get people used to using them. And they like them," she said.

She also found that customers had a tendency to look at prices more in December than in the past nine months. "People that never looked at price tags are looking now."

Boise media file motion on hearing

By Associated Press

BOISE — Attorneys for The Boise Statesman, KTVE Channel 7 and The Associated Press filed a memorandum in 4th District Magistrate Court Monday opposing a motion to close a hearing for a former Twin Falls elementary school principal charged in the deaths of his wife and two daughters.

Ada County Public Defender Alan Trimming filed a motion last week requesting closure of a preliminary hearing for William Sweeney 50. Sweeney was charged with three counts of first-degree murder in the death of his wife, Janna, 50, and daughters, Kristina, 16, and Katherine, 13.

Attorney Ron Bush and Craig Short filed a memorandum requesting the motion be denied.

The memorandum requested that the court not grant a hearing scheduled for next Tuesday. Defense attorneys argued that the defendant could have a fair trial any other way.

Last Thursday the Times-News and KMYV-TV also filed a motion to keep the hearing

Tupperware takes final step in closure

By MARTA CLEVELAND
Times-News writer

JEROME — The "For Sale" sign officially went up front of the Tupperware plant in Jerome Tuesday with an asking price of $6 million.

The actual appraised value of the 584,000 square foot building is $22 million. Equipment and office furniture account for $10 million of that figure, according to L. James Koutnik, president of Western Realty in Twin Falls, the local Coldwell Banker affiliate.

The price also includes 91 acres of land and a 7,000 square foot recreational facility, complete with tennis courts, an Olympic-size pool, a gymnasium and a weight room, he said.

"It's going to be the biggest sale in the area in a long time," Koutnik said. "We're going to have nationwide advertisement of course."

Coldwell Banker's national commercial sales department is going to produce a full-color brochure to distribute to firms interested in a facility like this one in Jerome.

Western Realty's back as a buyer priced: "It is in a remote location, and rather than getting a realistic price that would reflect its construction, the best way to find a buyer to employ people is to price it low," he said.

The building is "priced fairly," said Vince Alberti, economic development director for the city of Twin Falls. He compared it to the Western Union Kellwood building, which will soon be the home of Trust Just in Twin Falls. The Greater Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce paid $326,000 for the 114,000 square foot Kellwood building — $7.44 per square foot, he estimated.

Tupperware is asking $10.97 per square foot for its building, more than $3 than the Kellwood building, Alberti said.

"But it's got a lot more land with it and a recreational facility," he said. "And that is comparing the selling price of the Kellwood building with the asking price of the Tupperware plant."

Koutnik estimated it will take about a year to find a buyer for the facility. Getting a low selling price is "your effort to find someone to buy and use the place and hire people," Greenwood said. He added the Department of Commerce is doing other things to attract a new employer.

He plans to work closely with the state Department of Commerce and the local chambers of commerce which are all actively working to locate a buyer and employers for the displaced workers.

There have already been a couple leads, Peters said. Rubbermaid, a competitor of Tupperware, was contacted, but it declined interest. Omega Corp. — was also approached, but Peters didn't know what the result of that effort has been.

"Up to now, we've just been trying to get Tupperware to stay," Peters said. "Now that we know they are really going to sell and that our efforts on finding a buyer for that building."

Davis resigns as chancellor

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — William E. "Bud" Davis said Tuesday he will resign June 30 as chancellor of the Oregon State System of Higher Education after Gov. Neil Goldschmidt asked him to step down.

Goldschmidt expressed concern that going into the next legislative session he'd appreciate a change of leadership and I would say it (the resignation) was by mutual consent," Davis said at a news conference.

"If the governor feels that someone else strategically and tactically can do better, that I'm carrying a lot of baggage at this time, then I respect that decision," he added.

Goldschmidt spokesman Floyd McKay stressed that the governor does not have the power to fire the chancellor.

"Basically, it was mutually agreed upon between the two of us that that was the course they would take," McKay said. "They both felt there was a need for some new leadership."

"I think it was a case of a new governor, with higher education as one of his top priorities, wanting to have his own legislative team," McKay said. "I think Bud, realizing that, chose to tender his resignation."

Davis, who has held the post since July 1982, said the recent controversy over the retirement date of University of Oregon President Paul Olum was just one of many factors in his decision.

"This was part of the whole," he said. "This like other things was an area of contention."

The Oregon Board of Higher Education required Olum to retire two years earlier than he had requested. The board decision triggered faculty and student criticism and led to protests at the university.

Davis, 58, said he had no immediate career plans, but would be looking for a job elsewhere. He said Oregon's higher education has done well under his leadership.

"The state system's biennial general fund appropriations have risen by 72.4 percent, from $370 million to $637 million," he said. "Academic salaries have been increased by over $77 million in the last two legislative sessions."

"After years with virtually no maintenance of facilities or capital construction on the campuses, the last two legislatures have authorized, over $250 million of new higher education facilities," Davis said.

Davis thanked Goldschmidt, Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and former Republican Gov. Vic Atiyeh for their support of education in Oregon.

"I have the greatest amount of respect for the governor — he's doing an outstanding job," Davis said. "Contrary to some reports, there has not been a sharp conflict between us."

The governor also had kind words about Davis.

"As we go about the search for a successor, I am in hopes we can find one with Bud Davis's broad background, belief in cooperative programs and commitment to excellence," Goldschmidt said in prepared statement. "I will miss his sense of perspective and good humor, which served him and the state well."

Loans

But while shining a flashlight into cluttered corners of the federal government last week, searching for money to help remedy the federal deficit, GAO focused on $234 million in the guaranteed student loan program.

GAO proposed, and the Congress passed Dec. 24, a provision in the Budget Reconciliation Act to ask for the money back from student loan reserves nationwide.

GAO reasons that loan agencies are holding too much in reserves, said U.S. Department of Education spokesman Bob Tuccillo. Since the government paid to help set up the reserves, it shouldn't pay for defaulting loans, it wants some local money back to help the current federal budget pinch, he said.

"The federal government is now in a money crunch and is asking to return these funds," Tuccillo said.

He said GAO calculated, using 1986 figures, that ID's SLEI received about $48,500 of its $2.5 million in reserves.

Outlining GAO's position, Tuccillo said, "234 represents excess reserves — money at a guarantee agency that is not needed to cover defaults and that part of the program administering the guaranteeing agencies."

state reserve requirements. Montana fared badly under the system.

Lanman said his agency would be unable to continue guaranteeing loans under the plan. So MGSIA has temporarily stopped guaranteeing student loans until the new law is examined.

"It's not to be seen, before we go much further, is how the cash reserves going to come out," Lanman said.

Montana may also appeal the law, alone or with other states, Lanman said.

But such a procedure and its possible outcomes are unclear because the law is apparently unique.

"We still don't know how it's going to work for sure," Tuccillo said.

Referring to possible appeals, he added, "I would think they would have to bring in a strong case to document why they feel they should be given special treatment."

"The Education Department will be notifying state agencies during the next month about the amounts they are expected to pay," Tuccillo said. "During the next two to six months after that, the department will evaluate effects on state agencies," he said.

Meanwhile, Lanman said his ability to guarantee loans will dry up. His agency deals with 160 Montana banks and they ask that his agency hold reserves totaling 1 percent of loan amounts.

But under the new budget law, MGSIA's reserves would drop from $3 million to $1.26 million — below the 1 percent of $30 million in loan volume. That is why MGSIA would ultimately have to stop guaranteeing loans and why it has temporarily stopped already.

Further, Lanman said such a drop would compound itself in a Catch-22.

Reserves would drop to the point where MSLGA could no longer guarantee loans. And reserves would no longer build from their sole source — fees charged for guaranteeing loans.

Tuccillo said the Washington Post reported Tuesday that besides Montana, South Dakota was the only other state to immediately stop guaranteeing loans.

"But even if state agencies stop guaranteeing loans, Tuccillo said, there are two national guaranteeing agencies and potential loans that aren't guaranteed."

Complaint filed on Neo-Nazi show

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has received a complaint of a Utah radio station's airing of a controversial white supremacist talk show, but says it won't act until an investigation is completed.

The complaint, received from Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., deals with KZZT's broadcasting earlier this month of the "Aryan Nations."

A pickup truck driven by Timothy Michael, 32, of Ketchum, was stopped and waiting to turn into the grocery store parking lot. A second vehicle driven by Monica Allen, 42, Alberta, Canada, also stopped when the pickup driver by Nancy Sherbine, 41, of Idaho, approached.

The driver tried to stop and skidded into Alley's vehicle which struck the Michael vehicle. The Michael vehicle then spun around and crashed into Sherbine's car.

Allen suffered minor injuries. There were no passengers.

Hour," hosted by self-proclaimed "white supremacist" Dwight McCarthy.

"This tiny daytime-only AM station program was on the air after only two weeks, saying it had lost virtually all of its advertising, that station equipment had been vandalized and that McCarthy and station owner John Hinton had been threatened," Ralph Blumberg, investigations supervisor for the FCC's Washington office, said he had not seen the complaint as of Tuesday, so he could not discuss the particulars except for what it dealt with McCarthy's program.

But as for published reports that an investigation already had been conducted, "That's not true," he said in a telephone interview.

"The only thing that we've ever given out about this is that there's a complaint in from Congressman Dingell's office, and we're just looking at the complaint now," Blumberg said. "But that doesn't mean we're investigating. It takes an awful lot for us to investigate."

"There is a complaint that's filed here, but that's it. Somebody's still looking at it, but I haven't even read it yet," he said.

The FCC originally had been contacted by the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles, but was told by commission officials that it was unlikely the Aryan Nations issue warranted an investigation.

"We didn't file a complaint," center spokesman Richard Frank said.

Earlier fears of competition between the retail centers seem to have faded. There was plenty of cheer to go around.

"Last year we had the new mall to deal with," Pufahl said. "This year we got our old customers back."

"The downtown was so worried," Venson said. "But you wouldn't believe how many people told us they did all their shopping downtown and they were proud of it."

"Our parking lot was at capacity," this Christmas season. It was fuller than it was at the grand opening," Chandler said.

If there was a downside, it was the lack of winter windland atmosphere-outside. It was tougher to move boots and outerwear, Chandler said.

"Next year we'll order more snow,

The federal government offered zero-interest loans to help guaranteeing agencies get started, through loan capital renting buildings and other facilities. SLEI received about $250,000 in such advances when it began in 1978, Tuccillo said.

Then the U.S. Department of Education pays quarterly administrative cost allowances to help keep the agencies afloat and reimburse agencies for defaulted loans.

"In addition to the $250,000 in start-up money, GAO decided SLEI holds $185,278 in excess or unneeded reserves," Tuccillo said.

The complaints are based on five complex GAO formulas involving guaranteeing agencies' reserves, loans outstanding, defaults and improved economy were all cited as possible explanations. Others couldn't put a finger on why the shopping spirit was so free.

"I really don't know why things went so well," said Dennis Blevins, manager of Ropers men's clothing store downtown. "The day after Thanksgiving we had a terrific day, and it didn't slow down from there. People started early and they never stopped."

Blevins said other clothing stores put big-ticket items, like coats, on sale early, but Ropers didn't have to. It's sales stayed up without the extra incentive.

Credit cards don't seem to have been a factor in the large buying volume. Most retailers reported no noticeable increase in credit card that they had good news. Then they threw their arms in the air and they were shouting that they (Olander) were all right," she added.

The two were brought back to the search headquarters and their family by the rescue group. Mrs. Olander said by then several other family members had joined them, along with concerned friends.

"I was pretty frightened. I was afraid my children could have happened to him (Olander) and Kelli might just wander off," she said. "It was after 10 p.m. when the men who were with us went into the search and rescue base trailer. They came out and I knew by their faces

Minor damage in 3-car crash

PHOENIX (AP) — A three-vehicle pile-up in Blaine County late Tuesday resulted in minor damages, probably because the streets were icy, Idaho State Trooper Dan Tiller reported.

The accident occurred at 8:05 p.m. in front of the Mountain West grocery store one mile south of Ketchum.

Tiller said the vehicles involved in the chain reaction crash were driving slow due to the icy conditions on the highway. He believed that saved them from serious injury.

out-and-it took them to the missing pair, safe and warm in the trailer.

Mrs. Olander said at that point, her husband was just about as worried about her and their older daughter as she was about them. He wasn't sure if they had gotten back to the truck without getting lost. She said neither knew the area well.

"I was pretty frightened. I was afraid my children could have happened to him (Olander) and Kelli might just wander off," she said. "It was after 10 p.m. when the men who were with us went into the search and rescue base trailer. They came out and I knew by their faces

Mrs. Olander said after her husband picked up the younger girl, he had planned to cut over to a trail coming down to the parking, put the car and come back for the other two.

Sheriff James Munn said Olander, a former Buhl resident, missed the turn-off to that trail and continued on to the north. Again he had snowmachine trouble and the snow they discovered the trail of Loren Tve, who is staying on his woodland permit area.

Munn said this probably saved the two as they were lost and going further away from their destination in bitter cold snow and wind.

"We were very concerned about the small child being out in the cold of winter at night," Munn said.

But Ivie took them in, provided a meal and heat. They were fine, Munn said, but it was a long time before anyone else knew that.

"We had 22 people and 18 snowmachines involved," Munn said. "We were more than concerned, since we knew they could be lost or injured. With the wind we had up there the chill factor was well below zero."

Four snowmobilers from Minidoka County, who had been out earlier and then joined the search, recalled seeing a snowmachine track in the area. They were in the trail where Olander should have turned right. They volunteered to check it

Water skiers to brave icy river in fund-raiser

TWIN FALLS — On New Year's Day, local skiers will take to the water instead of the slopes, in a fund-raiser designed to raise money to aid the completion of Challenger Park, a privately built, public-use park located at the Shoshone Falls boat launch area.

Built in 1988 through cooperative efforts by The Magic Valley Jaycees, area water-skiers and local recreation companies, the park is still in need of a few finishing touches.

To help raise a portion of this money, over a dozen water skiers are gathering pledges which they must honor by skiing a prescribed course (approximately 1 mile) on the Snake River on New Year's Day.

Future plans for the park call for additional landscaping, underground sprinklers, lighting (to help avert vandalism), and a restroom facility.

Two plaques are also planned, one honoring the Challenger astronauts for whom the park is named, and one honoring the early day ferry that once was located at the site. Anchors for the ferry cables can still be seen in the rocks overlooking the area.

While water-skiing on the frigid waters of the Snake River is not an original idea of the organizers, it is the first time it has been done as a fund-raiser.

Anyone interested in making pledges for this cause can call 734-4978, 734-8471 or 734-5035 evenings.

Festivities start at noon on New Year's Day, and the public is welcome to come watch. Pledges will be taken during the course of the day.

Pocatello buses gain riders

POCATELLO (AP) — Bolstered by an aggressive advertising campaign, Pocatello's Urban Transit system has reported its first quarterly ridership gain in nearly two years.

PAT Director Ron Binggoli said Tuesday that the average 36-percent monthly increase during the three-month period that ended Dec. 1 was encouraging.

"It's to the point that I'm looking at the boarding figures each day," he said. "There was a period when I didn't because the totals were so bad."

A marketing plan aimed at Idaho State University students is credited for much of the increase. ISU students have been encouraged to use the green-and-blue striped buses to get around on campus.

PAT used a 63-percent ridership increase in November, 27 percent in October and 17 percent in September, Binggoli said, adding that before the university closed for the holidays, December ridership also was "way above last year."

The bus system had 76,886 riders last year, down from a 1984 peak of 102,000.

Group takes option on lands

SODA SPRINGS (AP) — The Idaho Nature Conservancy has signed an option for one year to buy the 100-acre Formation Springs wetlands near Soda Springs.

The area features a number of terraced pools and marshes fed by a mineral-rich spring creek. Trout and waterfowl abound in the pools and the Formation Cave located underneath the springs extends more than 1,000 feet.

"Nearly everyone who has an interest in wildlife is aware of this nation's alarming loss of vital wetlands," said Guy Bonniwer, director of the Idaho Conservancy.

Investing strategy pays off

BOISE (AP) — A change in investment strategy and slightly higher interest rates earned Idaho's treasury $329,000 more in the second quarter of the current fiscal year than during the same period a year earlier, state Treasurer Lydia Justice Edwards said Tuesday.

The state received interest income of more than $2.93 million in September, October and November, compared with about $2.6 million during the second quarter of fiscal 1987.

Mrs. Edwards said the increase was the result of changes she made in handling the redemption account to repay the state's tax anticipation note.

Waiting until the fourth quarter of fiscal 1988 to deposit tax receipts in the redemption account has increased the idle funds available for investment in the meantime and boosted the return to the state's general account, she said.

Scientist pegs quake level

BOISE (AP) — An earthquake that rattled Cascade early Sunday measured between 3 and 4 on the Richter scale, a geophysicist at Boise State University said Monday.

This is one of the larger earthquakes to occur in Idaho since 1983, when a quake measuring 7.3 killed two Challis children, Professor John Pelton said.

The tremor Sunday caused no injuries, and no damage was reported. One more full point on the Richter scale, Pelton said, and Cascade would have been significantly damaged. A magnitude 5 quake generally is felt over a broad area and causes serious damage.

Three seismographs at BSU recorded the quake at 2:52 a.m. Sunday, Pelton said. The tremor lasted two minutes. There were some aftershocks, the strongest of which was about 4:15 a.m.

Jury finds criminal action

BOISE (AP) — A six-member coroner's jury ruled Monday that a Nampa man acted criminally when he stabbed another man to death Dec. 6.

Adrian Cortez, 21, was charged with voluntary manslaughter in the stabbing of Gerald Wayne Anderson, 22.

Canyon County Coroner Dale Halle held the inquest to determine the circumstances around Anderson's death.

Testimony showed that Cortez and Anderson had argued during the night of the stabbing. Cortez said Anderson came to his home after both had been drinking. A struggle ensued, he testified, and Anderson was stabbed several times.

Post office drops Rigby plan

RIGBY (AP) — The federal deficit-reduction bill signed into law by President Reagan last week has scuttled plans to build a new post office in Rigby.

Bill McCloakey, Pocatello postal operations specialist, said Rigby is on a list of construction projects for the Salt Lake City postal region that has been cancelled.

"Congress has told us there is no money to be spent on new construction," he said.

"I hate to see it not happen," said Jefferson County Commissioner Robert Hurley. He was unsure how the decision would affect local postal service.

The U.S. Postal Service had purchased a parcel for the post office on Farnsworth Road, sparking a protest from residents who wanted a site downtown.

McCloakey said the Postal Service has not announced what it plans to do with the property, or the fate of proposed new post offices in Ashton or Driggs.

Judge rejects Blackbird mine request

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge in Boise, calling it a decision that "erects formal over substance," has repeatedly rejected a request for summary judgment from mining companies sued by the state of Idaho over environmental damage at the Blackbird Mine near Salmon.

U.S. District Judge Marion Callister has ruled that Hanna Mining Co., Noranda Mining Inc. and Noranda Exploration Inc. are not exempt from the state's $25 million complaint stemming from damages caused by copper and cobalt mining at the Blackbird site dating back to 1984.

The state alleged in the December 1983 complaint that Meadows, Blackbird, Big Deer, Bucktail and Panther creeks had been damaged by mining operations that disposed ore tailings and hazardous chemicals in and around the streams.

While ruling against the companies, Callister said it was unfair for the state to seek damages against mine operators who already had spent millions of dollars to clean up the area, about 21 miles west of Salmon.

Callister said that despite an environmental impact statement that found most damage from historic mining operations could be remedied, the state originally agreed to allow the companies to proceed with the Blackbird project without restoring the site to its natural condition.

"It now appears that the state seeks, through this lawsuit, to go back on that agreement and force defendants to clean up the area," he said. "Unfortunately, the defendants' remedy for this unfairness must follow from some source other than the very strict language of the federal statute."

Callister cited a provision of the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act that creates an "escape hatch" from liability only when the environmental damages at a mining operation are "specifically identified as an irreversible and irretrievable commitment of natural resources."

Hanna and Noranda, operating together since 1980 as the Blackbird Mining Co., used those terms in an environmental impact statement to assess the damage further operations at the site might cause, but not to describe the effect of historic mining activity on the area. So Callister said the companies could not be exempt from liability under the CERCLA provision.

"To the extent that this decision erasable form over substance, the remedy lies with Congress," he said. "This court cannot re-write the statute."

Callister originally dismissed the state's lawsuit in January 1986, ruling that the state had not given notice of its claim at least 90 days in advance of filing suit. But the decision was overturned by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and returned to the district court.

The state contends that highly acidic waste from the Blackbird Mine had entered both ground and surface water, killing fish, reducing or eliminating spawning runs of anadromous fish and otherwise damaging aquatic life in adjacent streams.

Most mining at the Blackbird operation was conducted between 1949 and 1967. Little commercial mining has been conducted there since then, although Noranda conducted limited mining from December 1979 to May 1982.

Aryan leader blasts supremacist movie

HAYDEN LAKE (AP) — Aryan Nations leader Richard Butler has lashed out at a new HBO movie about a white supremacist group similar to his own, labeling the film's actors "mongrels and queers."

In commenting on the movie, "Into the Homeland," Butler also claimed that the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith is the real force behind the production.

The comments came during Butler's regular Sunday sermon to the 25-member congregation of his Church of Jesus, Christ-Christian here.

"Into the Homeland," which premiered Saturday, does not specifically mention the Aryan Nations. But a newspaper executive producer, Anna Hamilton Phelan, has been quoted as saying she wrote it after infiltrating a recent week-long congress of Aryan Nation groups hosted by Butler.

"The film was shot on location in Wyoming, where the HF Bar Ranch near Sheridan was used as the setting for what the screenplay called the American Liberation Movement headquarters."

Butler said he is irritated that the movie portrayed supremacists making a Communist-style salute with a clenched fist. His group makes Nazi-like salutes instead with open hands while praying, and the group is anti-Communist.

Butler also claimed the ADL, for similar reasons, was behind efforts that forced "The Aryan Nations Hour" off radio station KZZI in West Jordan earlier this month.

Hoet Dwight McCarthy canceled the two-week-old show when he said the lives of station employees had been threatened and after most of the station's sponsors had pulled their advertising.

Callister cited a provision of the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act that creates an "escape hatch" from liability only when the environmental damages at a mining operation are "specifically identified as an irreversible and irretrievable commitment of natural resources."

Hanna and Noranda, operating together since 1980 as the Blackbird Mining Co., used those terms in an environmental impact statement to

Andrus directs task force to continue its work on rites

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus has ordered Idaho's Martin Luther King Jr. Task Force to continue working with citizens and community groups throughout the state in strange activities; honoring the slain civil rights leader.

Andrus' executive order continuing the state task force established in 1985 was issued under provisions of federal legislation adopted in 1983 that designated the third Monday of each January as a legal federal holiday honoring King.

The celebration of Dr. King's birthday is intended as a time for all Americans to reaffirm their commitment to the basic principles that underlie our constitution — equality and justice for all. The executive order said.

Besides cooperating with local groups, the governor's order instructed the task force to:

- Review materials supplied to the state by the Martin Luther King Jr. Federal Holiday Commission and invite suggestions from sources in Idaho that recommend appropriate state observances.
- Report to Andrus on activities of the past year and submit to him by Nov. 15 of each year recommendations for celebrations in the coming year.
- Encourage participation in recommended activities.

The order also instructed the Idaho Human Rights Commission to serve as staff for the task force.

Official enters plea

LEWISTON (AP) — Nez Perce County Const. Donald Applford has pleaded guilty by driving under the influence of alcohol when his car rolled with a parked van over it this month.

Applford entered his plea before 2nd District Magistrate Darrel Perry on Tuesday, said Don Roberts, city attorney for Lewiston. A sentencing hearing has been set for Jan. 5.

Applford, 62, was not injured in the accident, but damage to his car was estimated at $4,500 and the van sustained about $2,000 in damage.

Ghana expels 16 foreigners

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Ghana has ordered the expulsion of 16 foreigners for reasons ranging from racism to smuggling diamonds, the state radio reported Tuesday.

The broadcast, monitored in Abidjan, said "their continued presence in the country was not conducive to the public good."

An order signed by acting Secretary for the Interior Nii Okalga Adamafo said that among those deported were two Britons and an Indian who had been deported because of their racist attitude.

"Their attitude, conduct and pronouncements have been full of insulting, racist undertones which are incompatible with racial harmony and the norms of Ghanaian society," the radio said.

The broadcast said some of those expelled had violated immigration laws while others were guilty of investment irregularities, including currency trafficking and smuggling gold and diamonds.

The nationalities of the others were not given.

Argentines unearth dinosaur

SANTA ROSA, Argentina (AP) — The remains of a large dinosaur that lived 10,000 to 60,000 years ago have been discovered by builders digging the foundation for a home on the Argentine pampas, scientists said Tuesday.

Faculty members of La Pampa National University's Department of Natural Sciences said workers unearthed a 9-foot-long femur of a four-legged dinosaur that was larger than an elephant, had a long tail and large jaw, and stood on its hind feet. The creature appeared to be of herbivore.

The scientists asked residents of Santa Rosa, about 372 miles southwest of Buenos Aires, not to disturb the site, which is only 150 yards from downtown.

Israel anticipates riots, boosts troop strength

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has sent thousands of troops into the West Bank and Gaza Strip and arrested more Palestinians in anticipation of a new wave of anti-occupation military protests, Israeli radio said Tuesday.

The precautions were taken for Friday's 23rd anniversary of the creation of Al Fatah, the Palestine Liberation Organization's largest guerrilla group, said army Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron.

"Fatah Day," as Palestinians know it, has been an occasion for past demonstrations.

In the West Bank town of Nablus, meanwhile, a Palestinian youth armed with a knife attacked an Israeli army patrol, and one soldier suffered minor injuries, an army official said.

The soldiers fired rubber bullets at the youth and beat him with clubs, inflicting moderate wounds, the official said, speaking anonymously in line with regulations.

Also Tuesday, Palestinian defense attorneys in the West Bank said they would join their Gaza Strip colleagues Wednesday in boycotting military trials of Arab youths reported with rioting, Israeli radio reported.

Shomron said Israel has tripled its troop strength in Gaza, flooding the narrow strip of land crowded with 850,000 people with more soldiers than were needed to seize it from Egypt during the 1967 Middle East War.

He said the number of soldiers had doubled in the West Bank, which Israel seized from Jordan in the same war.

Shomron released no figures, but other military sources said thousands of troops were positioned in Gaza, the flashpoint of two weeks of rioting this month in which 21 Arabs were killed by Israeli gunfire.

"I believe that with the large forces now in the territories and after their broad deployment and the detention of agitators, there is a good chance there won't be disturbances," Shomron was quoted as saying.

Soviet cosmonaut back from record flight

MOSCOW (AP) — Cosmonaut Yuri Romanenko ended his record 292-day space flight Tuesday, saying he was "happy to see the Earth again" after his mission to test man's fitness for interplanetary travel.

The nightly news program "Vremya" showed a beaming Romanenko and two fellow cosmonauts talking with space officials and Soviet reporters moments after they were pulled from the Soyuz TM-3 capsule that landed on the snowy steppes of Kazakhstan at 12:18 p.m. Moscow time (4:16 a.m. EST).

"I feel excellent, as does the rest of the crew," the 43-year-old Romanenko said while he and the others were given a brief medical checkup.

"Of course, I'm happy to see the Earth again, to be among friends and comrades, to see all of you," Romanenko said enthusiastically.

Romanenko, Alexander

Alexandrov, who had been in space since July, and Anatoli Levchenko were shown relaxing aboard a flight into the Baikonur Space Center, about 190 miles to the south of the landing site and about 1,250 miles southeast of Moscow.

They munched bread and sipped tea from china cups as the "Vremya" correspondent said the veteran cosmonaut had been able to treat themselves and were consuming solid food in record time after such a long stay in space.

Radio Moscow said doctors were paying "close attention" to the condition of Romanenko after his nearly 11-month stay in zero gravity.

U.S. scientist Carl Sagan, who was in Moscow in September for a conference, said Romanenko's flight would help scientists decide whether a spacecraft that travels to Mars would have to create its own artificial gravity.

Cosmonauts Vladimir Titov and Musa Manarov remained on the space station for a mission that Soviet scientists say is to last a year and break Romanenko's record.

N. Korea claims U.S. still spying

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. high-altitude reconnaissance planes infiltrated North Korean airspace on spy flights more than 130 times in 1987, Pyongyang's official news agency said Tuesday.

The Korean Central News Agency, monitored in Tokyo, said the latest intrusion came when an SR-71 spy plane flew deep into North Korea's airspace above its territorial waters east of Kosong for three minutes Tuesday.

"It said the United States had committed such aerial espionage against (North Korea) on nine occasions in December and on more than 130 occasions this year."

"This vividly shows that although the U.S. imperialists talk about 'detente' on the Korean peninsula, they are in fact actually basing new war preparations," the agency said.

Ship collision unresolved

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Investigators said Tuesday they may never fix the blame for the collision between a passenger ship and a tanker that left more than 1,600 people missing and presumed dead.

Rudy Villanueva, legal officer of a court panel investigating the Dec. 20 collision of the ferry Dona Paz and the tanker Vector, said the panel's main problem was finding witnesses to the century's worst peacetime marine disaster.

"We are fearful that we may not be able to establish what really happened for lack of reliable first-hand associated press."

Only 26 of the more than 1,600 people aboard the two vessels survived the accident in the Tablas Straits off Mindoro island, about 110 miles southeast of Manila.

The coast guard on Tuesday again revised the number of bodies found to 108 and said earlier figures were wrong because multiple of reporting. Officials on Tuesday also corrected the name of the tanker to Vector, instead of Victor, as originally reported.

Arab allies support U.N. peace proposal

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — For the first time since OPEC began losing grip on oil prices at the start of this decade, the cartel's income in 1987 was higher than the year before, according to industry estimates.

Even so, its income total was the second-lowest since 1973, when an oil boycott against the United States by Arab members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries catapulted the cartel to global power.

Helped by a boost in prices, OPEC's 1987 oil export income was roughly $93 billion, or about one-fifth higher than the year before, according to Stephen Turner, an oil specialist at the investment firm Wood, Mackenzie, and Co., in Edinburgh, Scotland.

It was the first such improvement over the preceding year since 1980, when the cartel's revenue surged to a record $287 billion as prices were peaking. An oil glut began developing the following year and OPEC entered a troubled period in which both prices and production fell sharply.

No official figures are available yet from OPEC on its 1987 production or income.

The improved oil revenue was a welcome change for the cartel, even though the gains were largely eroded by inflation and the effects of a sharply lower U.S. dollar, the currency in which oil is sold.

Standards of living in the 13 member countries were set back severely by a 1982 price collapse that cut OPEC's collective income in half.

Despite the modest recovery in 1987, the outlook for OPEC is not bright.

"The cartel enters the new year with serious internal divisions, mounting strains on its price and production strategy, and only faint hopes of managing a second abrupt year of significantly higher oil revenues."

Turner figures OPEC's revenues in 1988 will be about $99 billion, a slight gain that would be wiped out by even a small price decline.

Few are predicting a repeat of the 1986 debacle, when oil prices fell from $28 a barrel to below $10, but analysts said in interviews, this week that OPEC faces an uncertain 1988.

"It all could go crashing down again," said Paul McDonald, a London-based oil consultant.

McDonald said oil prices probably would fluctuate between $15 and $18 a barrel if OPEC maintained at least a semblance of unity. If not, prices could tumble below $10, he said.

OPEC income rises, strains remain

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia and its five Arab allies in the Persian Gulf on Tuesday welcomed a proposal for a United Nations naval force in the gulf that would protect commercial shipping there from Iranian attacks.

At the end of a four-day summit, leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council urged the U.N. Security Council to implement its July 20 resolution for a cease-fire in the Iraq-Iran war and appealed to Iran to accept the measure.

They made no specific reference to U.S. calls for an arms embargo on Iraq, but the Persian government falls to accept the peace effort. The Soviet Union has proposed informally that a U.N. armada be created in the gulf to enforce the embargo if the Security Council approves it.

The Saudi foreign minister, Prince Saud al-Faisal, told a news conference the gulf council had resolved to defend its own territorial waters, but "welcomes an international naval force to protect ing on condition they not be identified, said Iranian warships on Tuesday seized the 31,205-ton West German freighter Norasia, Pearl and took it to the Iranian port of Bandar Abbas.

The Iranians intercept vessels they believe are carrying cargo for Iraq, and return them after seizing shipments they think would be of value to the Iraqis. Both Iran and Iraq attack shipping in the gulf as a spillover of their 7-year-old war.

King Fahd of Saudi Arabia presided at the meeting in Riyadh of the leaders from Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

The gulf council was created in May 1981 as an economic and defense alliance.

Helpful hints for using frozen puff pastry
Frozen puff pastry is as easy to work with as it is versatile. For best results, thaw the following ingredients in the refrigerator overnight. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Roll out the thawed puff pastry on a lightly floured surface. Roll sheets to 1/8 inch thick. Cut into desired shapes. Bake for 15-20 minutes until golden brown.

SEASONED PASTRY DIPPERS

Lentil salad, for the superstitious

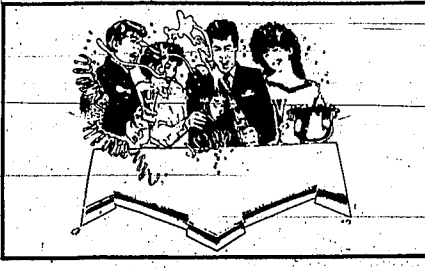

MOSCOW — While no one can say where or when the belief originated, it is widely held that eating lentils at the beginning of a New Year is supposed to bring good luck. Here is a tasty salad with Mediterranean flavors to liven your New Year's party buffet (and bring good luck to your guests!)

GOOD LUCK LENTILS

- 1 package (1 pound) lentils, rinsed
- 1 cup minced carrots (about 4 medium)
- 1/2 cup dark raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 1/2 to 2/3 cup chopped fresh mint, or 2- to 2 1/2 tablespoons dried mint leaves, crumbled
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
- Fresh cracked black pepper, to taste.

In large saucepot, bring 8 cups water to boiling. Add lentils; return just to a boil. (NOTE: Water should cover lentils by two inches. If not, add additional boiling water.) Reduce heat, cover, and simmer 20-25 minutes, or just until lentils are tender. Drain; run under cold water until cool; drain well.

In large bowl, combine lentils with remaining ingredients; mix well to combine. Chill several hours to mellow flavors, mixing occasionally. Makes 8 cups — about 12-16 servings.

Chicken and nachos keep couch potatoes nourished

Keep armchair quarterbacks cheering with First Down Drumsticks, a hearty snack that elevates everyday chicken legs to star status. Easy to eat around the television, the drumsticks are baked and baked with a spicy/sweet sauce made with honey, soy sauce, fresh ginger and picante sauce. Serve them hot from the oven or chilled, as desired, with additional mild, medium or hot picante sauce, for those who just can't get enough of a good thing.

FIRST DOWN DRUMSTICKS

- ¾ cup picante sauce
- ¼ cup honey
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- ½ to 1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger, as desired
- 12 Chicken legs, skin removed
- Combine picante sauce, honey, soy sauce and ginger in small saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer 10 minutes. Place chicken in greased shallow baking pan; brush with half of picante sauce mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Turn and brush with remaining picante sauce mixture. Continue baking 20 minutes or until tender. Serve warm or chilled with additional picante sauce. Makes 12 appetizers.

SIDELINE SUPERNACHOS

- 1 can (about 15-ounces) refried beans
- 1 cup picante sauce
- 1 pound ground pork or beef
- 1 can (14½ or 16-ounces) whole tomatoes, drained and chopped
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 medium green pepper, chopped
- 2 cups (8-ounces) shredded monterey jack cheese
- Diced avocado, chopped radishes, sliced ripe olives and sour cream, as desired
- Tortilla chips or heated flour tortillas (6-to 7-inch)
- Combine beans and ¼ cup of the picante sauce. Spread onto bottom of 13x9-inch baking dish. Brown meat; drain. Stir in ¾ cup remaining picante sauce, tomatoes, cumin and salt; simmer 5 to 10 minutes or until most of liquid has evaporated. Spread meat mixture over bean mixture. Top with green pepper and cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until heated through. Drizzle with additional picante sauce. Garnish with avocado, radishes, olives and sour cream, as desired. Serve with tortilla chips, flour tortillas and additional picante sauce. Makes 6 to 8 appetizer servings.

Cooking with Southern flare remains a proud tradition

By ROSE DOSTI
The Los Angeles Times

It is no surprise that a large number of important regional cookbooks in the market today should center around the South, where America's great cooking began and continued through even its bleakest period after the Civil War.

The proud Southern cooks who have paid homage to the cuisine are some of the big names in the food world — Craig Claiborne, author and former food critic for the New York Times, Camille Glenn, one of Kentucky's favorite cooking teachers and food journalist, and Nathalie Dupree, Atlanta cooking school teacher and television personality.

"Craig Claiborne's Southern Cooking," by Craig Claiborne (Times Books; $19.95, 384 pages), and "The Heritage of Southern Cooking," by Camille Glenn (Warner Publishing; $14.95 paperback, 480 pages, illustrated).

Camille Glenn, who was raised in the kitchen of her parents' Kentucky country inn and taught gourmet cooking for 29 years while writing for the Louisville Courier, is

Mississippi, such as fried chicken, field peas, collard greens, fresh corn on the cob, sliced tomato with vinaigrette sauce, and home-baked pecan pie topped with vanilla ice cream.

Recipes from the repositories of famous modern Southern chefs are also included; among the examples are yellow bell pepper and Serrano chili soup, halibut filets with mango and basil sauce.

Because Southern cooking spans Cajun, Creole and Tex-Mex cuisines, the book is richly laden with recipes from the sub-regional cuisines, such as Cajun-style gumbo, blanched crawfish tails, tamales and flour tortillas, as well as the refined Southern recipes that can be traced to their French influences when the South was in its infancy.

"The Heritage of Southern Cooking" by Camille Glenn (Warner Publishing; $14.95 paperback, 480 pages, illustrated).

Camille Glenn, who was raised in the kitchen of her parents' Kentucky country inn and taught gourmet cooking for 29 years while writing for the Louisville Courier, is lucky to have had a family who were "terribly interested in superb food."

Her cookbook reflects the pride and dedication to a cuisine that encompasses her experiences. There are 550 recipes representing a culinary tour of Southern cuisine culled from a vast number of recipes gathered while traveling and living in Charleston, New Orleans, Virginia, Maryland, and Washington, the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama.

There is Chesapeake Bay oyster stew, New Orleans Remoulade rouge, Deep South red beans and rice, Louisiana crab meat and shrimp stuffing, Kentucky bear cheese, North Carolina Moravian sugar cake, among hundreds of other authentic Southern specialties.

Not that there are no deviations from the authentic. A cornmeal puff pastry was an outgrowth of the teaching of puff pastry preparation. "A little cornmeal gives the puff pastry large dimension, especially if used as 'turnovers' for cocktail parties," said Glenn during a recent visit to the Louisville Courier. "See SOUTHERN on Page C7."

Party

- Continued from Page C1
- 1 egg, beaten with 1 tablespoon water
- Choice of: Cayenne pepper, Celery seeds, Sesame seeds, Poppy seeds, Dried onion flakes
- Preheat oven to 400 degrees.
- Thaw puff pastry 20 minutes; unfold and prick all over with the tines of a fork. (Be sure to prick thoroughly.) Cut pastry into various cracker-size shapes: Triangles, circles, diamonds, etc. Use decorative cookie cutters if desired. Brush pastry shapes with egg mixture and sprinkle with your choice of cayenne, celery seeds, sesame seeds, poppy seeds or onion flakes. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake in preheated oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until puffed and browned. Transfer to a wire rack; when cool, cut each puff in half to make a top slice and a bottom slice, resembling a sandwich. Spread bottom slice with cream cheese and top with remaining slice. Return puffs to baking sheet. Just before serving, bake at 375 degrees for 5 to 10 minutes or until cheese is hot and just begins to melt. Serve immediately. Makes 16 to 24 puffs.

- Combine all ingredients until well blended. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Serve in a hollowed Edam ball or bowl with Seasoned Pastry Dippers, fresh vegetables and table grapes. Makes 5 cups.
- HERBED CHEESE PUZZ
- 1 package (17½-ounces) frozen puff pastry sheets
- 1 egg, beaten with 1 tablespoon water
- 1 cup herb-flavored cream cheese
- Preheat oven to 375 degrees.
- Thaw puff pastry 20 minutes; unfold. Roll out one sheet; puff pastry until it is approximately ¼-inch larger than the circle of cheese. Place 1/8-inch center of pastry and trim edges leaving a ¼-inch border. Brush border with egg mixture and press it to side of cheese wheel.
- Roll and trim second sheet of puff pastry in the same manner as the first, and place it on top of the cheese wheel. Fold pastry, edge down to overlap the bottom pastry edge. Use egg mixture to seal edge of top pastry to edge of bottom pastry.
- If desired, decorate with cutouts made from pastry scraps (heart-shapes, crescents, twists, etc.) and apply with egg mixture. Brush top only of pastry-wrapped cheese with egg mixture, and place on an ungreased baking sheet in the middle of the preheated oven. Bake for 20 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm or at room temperature. Makes 12 servings.

- WISCONSIN CHEESE BOWL
- 2 cups sour cream
- 1½ cups shredded Edam cheese
- 1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard

- BRILEEN CROUTE

- drink mixes to warm your tummy this long holiday weekend. They'll taste great whether you've been skiing or napping by a fire with a good book.
- HOT BUTTERED RUM
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1½ cups powdered sugar
- ½ pound butter
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- Blend all together and store covered, in refrigerator. When you want a cup, just add 2 tablespoons of this base and a jigger of rum or rum extract for less alcohol.
- EGG NOG
- 6 eggs, separated
- ¾ cup powdered sugar
- 2 cups whipping cream, whipped
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups bourbon or other liquor

- 1 ounce rum
- Grated nutmeg
- Beat the yolks until frothy and add ¼ cup sugar, beat well. Whip the egg whites and slowly add ¼ cup sugar and continue whipping until stiff. Fold beaten whites into beaten yolks. Mix together the whipping cream, milk, bourbon and rum. Fold these into the egg mixture and sprinkle with nutmeg.
- This next recipe for Tom and Jerry batter can be kept in the refrigerator. You add 1 to 2 tablespoons of it in a mug and then add a jigger of your favorite spirits (usually rum or bourbon) and then fill the mug with hot water.
- TOM AND JERRY BATTER
- 1 dozen eggs, separated
- 2 cups superfine sugar
- 1 can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
- 2 cups powdered sugar

- 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
- Fresh nutmeg, grated
- Beat the egg yolks until thick. Very slowly add the superfine sugar (no more than a tablespoon at a time) while continuing the beating. Add the sweetened condensed milk and mix. Set this mixture aside. Beat the egg whites until stiff, add the powdered sugar very slowly (again about 1 tablespoon at a time) while beating. Add the cream of tartar and mix in well.
- Fold the two mixtures together and store in refrigerator. An airtight container is best.
- Here's to a fun New Year's celebration and happiness in abundance in 1988.
- Enjoy!

Meal

- Continued from Page C1
- 2 whole nutmeg
- 12 whole cloves
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- ½ cup light brown sugar
- 1 cup white wine
- Place peaches, pears and apricots in a 10x16-inch baking dish and top with a sliced pineapple. Put a cherry in each of the pineapple centers. Blend other ingredients and pour over the fruit. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve in individual glass bowls and decorate with cinnamon sticks and nutmeg (optional).
- "I serve it hot, and whatever is left over we eat the next day. It's wonderful either way," she says.
- The next side dish is sweet and sour green beans, which she says is not particularly tart. "It's pleasant. I'm a bean eater, and I love these beans."
- SWEET AND SOUR GREEN BEANS
- Cook ½ pound bacon, and drain. Reserve ¼ cup of the drippings. Crumble the bacon and beat together:
- 2 eggs
- ¼ cup cider vinegar
- ¼ cup water
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Return the drippings to the skillet and add the egg mixture to that. Cook, stirring constantly, until it is thick. Combine the dressing with 1½ pounds of cooked and drained green beans. Add the bacon and 1 ta

- blespoon of diced pimento.
- Another side dish she serves with the ham is sweet potatoes. She whips the potatoes with enough sour cream to make it creamy, and about 2 tablespoons cooking sherry, and tops it with about ½ cup walnut halves.
- She says her family traditionally serves black-eyed peas on New Year's Day for good luck in the coming year. She cooks about 1½ pounds of black eyed peas, adding ½ cup chopped onions, which have been sauteed in bacon grease and 4 sticks of diced bacon.
- The following dessert will not be served after this meal. The Capps usually do not eat dessert. But she says she is happy to share a recipe she obtained from her grandmother's German cook. "It's the most heavenly thing you've ever tasted if your whole life," she says.
- INA'S STRUDEL (A Jam Cake)
- For the crust: Heat oven to 400 degrees and mix:
- 1 stick butter
- ½ cup Crisco, room temperature
- 1 cup sugar
- Mix into that:
- 2 tablespoons grated lemon
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 tablespoon each of brandy, rum and cognac (if she doesn't have one she uses two of one and one of the other).
- 3 eggs

- Add:
- 2-2½ cups flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon cardamom
- 1 teaspoon coriander
- 1 teaspoon allspice
- Mix well.
- The dough should not be too stiff. Grease a 9x15-inch reasonably deep cookie sheet, and spread the dough in there. Then spread either damson plum or blackberry jam, or a combination of both, over the dough, and make sure the dough is well covered with jam. Don't put too much jam on it however. Just coat it, but make sure to coat the whole top.
- The topping:
- 1½ sticks butter, cold, and cut into small pieces
- ¼ cup dark brown sugar
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons cinnamon (she uses about 1 tablespoon)
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- ½ teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 tablespoon of either rum, cognac or kirsch
- 1 cup flour
- Mix with hands, to make it crumbly. Sprinkle over the jam cake. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 10-20 minutes, until cake is light brown. Begin testing with a toothpick after 10 minutes have passed. When completely cooled, sprinkle with powdered sugar and cut into squares.

Give the best holiday gift, throw a party for your friends

With the holiday season upon us, the nicest gift for your friends could be an invitation to a party. Apply the same standards to your party as you would to any other good gift. Use the recipes below to lay a dazzler of a spread — and a dramatic first impression.

- RED HOT CAYENNE TOASTS WITH CREAM CHEESE AND MINT JELLY
(This one is fiery hot and minty cool)
- 1/2 cup olive oil
 - 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 - 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
 - 1/4 teaspoon onion powder
 - 1 package (8-ounces) pumpernickel bread
 - 1 jar mint jelly
 - 1 package (8-ounces) cream cheese, at room temperature.
- In a small bowl, combine olive oil with cayenne pepper, salt, sugar, pepper, paprika, garlic powder and onion powder. Brush liberally on both sides of each piece of bread. Place on baking sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes or until

- crisp. Remove from oven and serve. Cayenne toasts with mint jelly and cream cheese. Makes 40 canapes.
- DILLED SOUR CREAM MOUSSE
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 - 1/4 cup cold water
 - 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
 - 2 teaspoons paprika
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
 - 2 teaspoons garlic, minced
 - 2 tablespoons fresh dill, snipped
 - 1/4 cup fresh parsley, finely chopped
 - 1 cup sour cream
 - 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
- Garnish: sprigs of fresh dill or oil-packed sun-dried tomatoes. Cracker assortment
- In a small saucepan sprinkle gelatin over water, let stand 5 minutes to soften. Heat over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved; set aside. In bowl mix mustard, paprika, pepper, garlic, dill, parsley and sour cream. Stir in gelatin and fold in whipped cream. Pour into an oiled 2 1/2-cup mold. Refrigerate for 4 hours or until firm. Unmold and garnish with dill or tomatoes. Serve as a spread on crackers.

- DEVILED EGG CANAPES
- 6 hard-cooked eggs, shelled and separated
 - 1/4 cup mayonnaise
 - 1 tablespoon white vinegar
 - 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
 - 20 slices party pumpernickel or party rye bread
 - Butter or margarine, softened
 - Garnish: sliced red radish, watercress sprigs, pimiento, etc.
- Sieve egg yolks and mix with mayonnaise, vinegar, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Finely chop egg whites. Spread bread with butter and cover with egg whites. Pipe egg yolk mixture decoratively on top. Garnish with radish, watercress, pimiento, etc. Makes 20 canapes.
- HAM AND KIWI FRUIT CANAPES
- 20 slices party rye bread
 - Butter or margarine, softened
 - 20 small leaves lettuce
 - 7 thin slices boiled ham, each cut into 8 pieces
 - 2 ripe kiwi fruit, peeled
- Spread one side of each bread slice evenly with butter. Top with lettuce, ham and a piece of kiwi fruit. Serve immediately. Makes 20 canapes.

Red hot cayenne toasts and canapes of deviled egg make for a dazzling party spread

Party Pizza Pull-Aparts are a tempting take-off from traditional pizzas

The informal party calls for hearty pizzas to nibble on Informal parties call for food that fits the relaxed atmosphere. A one-dish meal, like pizza, that can be nibbled or munched right in front of the television set is a perfect party food.

Homemade pizzas, like Party Pizza Pull-Aparts, with the filling enclosed in the crust, or Hearty Beer 'n Brats Pizza, a take-off on a favorite stadium food, are two tempting examples. These recipes don't keep the cook in the kitchen, though, because they use a hot roll mix to prepare the homemade crust.

This recipe can be prepared and refrigerated up to four hours in advance, so when it's time to eat, the pizza just needs to rise for 30 minutes before baking.

Hearty Beer 'n Brats Pizza takes two football stadium standards — beer and bratwurst — and combines them in a hearty pizza. The crust, made with hot roll mix, is flavored with beer and caraway seeds. After the dough rises for 15 minutes, it's brushed with mustard and then topped with bratwurst, onions, and mozzarella and colby cheeses.

- With greased hands, pat dough into prepared pan forming a 1/2-inch rim around edges. Generously prick bottom of dough with tines of fork. Cover dough with plastic wrap or towel. On countertop, let rise 30 minutes on wire rack set over large pan to which hot tap water has been added. Heat oven to 400 degrees (Place oven rack at lowest position.) Uncover dough. Brush with beaten egg; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 18 to 25 minutes or until tops are deep golden brown. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. To serve, pull apart filled rolls. 16 rolls.
- TIP: *If desired, prepare recipe to this point; cover and refrigerate up to 4 hours. Continue as directed.
- HIGH ALTITUDE: Above 3500 feet, decrease rise time 5 to 10 minutes.
- HEARTY BEER 'N BRATS PIZZA
- 2 cups sliced onions, separated into rings
 - 2 to 3 bratwurst
 - 2 (12-ounce) cans beer
 - 1 (16-ounce) package hot roll mix
 - 1 tablespoon caraway seeds
 - 2 tablespoons oil
 - 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
 - 8-ounces (2 cups) shredded mozzarella cheese
 - 4-ounces (1 cup) shredded colby cheese
- In large bowl, combine flour mixture, yeast from oil packet and caraway seeds; mix well. Stir in 1/4 cup reserved hot beer and oil until dry particles are moistened. Turn dough out onto lightly floured surface. With greased or floured hands, shape dough into a ball. Knead dough for 3 to 5 minutes.

And for the ultimate concession stand, a counter-high refrigerator is ideal for setting out all the essential snacks and can double as a TV or microwave table, suggests Kreschollek, who serves as an advisor to Sanyo.

For an elegant touch in the holiday mood, the host might want to serve champagne as well as beer or soft drinks.

According to Pierre Ernst, general manager of Champagne Perrier-Jouet, champagne can be kept for five years or more, although, unlike many other wines, it does not greatly improve with age.

Try adding an elegant touch to the New Year's festivities

For football fans, especially the festive Thanksgiving-Christmas-New Year's season provides an opportunity to gather with friends and neighbors in the great indoors to go the way of the armchair athlete, according to food consultant Margie Kreschollek.

More families than ever are participating in the strong movement to stay home for entertainment, says Kreschollek, author of "The Guaranteed-Goof-Proof Microwave Cookbook."

Ernst says champagne is at its proper serving temperature if kept in a wine bucket filled with ice for 20 minutes or placed for one hour in the coldest section of the refrigerator.

As for opening a bottle, he suggests it should be done with a soft pop — not the often-heard loud, startling one. This can be done by tilting the bottle away from guests, mirrors and windows at a 45-degree angle, and twisting the bottle not the cork in one direction, pulling it down slowly.

Ernst recommends against using the saucer-shaped or coupe glass because its wide mouth exposes too much surface of the wine, dissipating the bubbles.

Repotting plants — follow simple tips

Do you have a plant which has outgrown its pot? Or perhaps you would like to change a plant to a more decorative container. You can be more successful in repotting plants if you follow a few simple principles.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

Plants do best when grown in containers with drain holes. Pots without drain holes tend to accumulate water at the bottom. If all the pores of the soil are filled with water, there is no room for air. Without air, plant roots die and eventually the top will rot. If you do decide to put a plant into a container without drain holes, be very careful not to overwater it.

If you want an outer decorative container without holes, put the plant in another pot with drain holes which is small enough to fit inside the decorative one. Ugly pots can also be placed inside baskets or other more attractive covers.

When shifting an overgrown plant into a larger pot, there is a temptation to choose a new pot which is considerably larger than the old one. In general, it is best to increase pot size in 1- or 2-inch increments. Pots are sized by the inside diameter at the top of the pot. For example, a plant should be shifted from a 3- to 4-inch pot, not a 6-inch pot. A 6-inch pot should be exchanged for an 8-inch one, not 10-inch. When plants are growing in pots which are too large for them, the soil tends to stay too wet, causing some of the same kinds of problems as pots without drain holes.

Plants grow best in soils which are loose, porous and well drained. If water stands on top of the soil after watering for more than a minute, you may want to replant into a different soil. The old soil can be carefully washed off the roots and then replaced immediately with new soil before the roots dry out.

Outdoor soils do not make good potting soils, unless diluted at least half with additives such as peat moss or vermiculite. Soils purchased in stores are highly variable and are not of equal quality. You can test a potting soil by packing it tightly into an empty pot. This simulates what will happen after several months of watering and growth. Add some water and observe how quickly it drains into the soil. An excellent potting soil can be made by mixing equal parts of horticultural grade vermiculite and sphagnum peat moss. These materials are available in most plant stores.

Leave 1/2- to 1-inch of space at the top of the pot for watering. There needs to be enough space so that excess water can be added to wet the soil entirely each time you water.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ficks College.

Finding pleasure in hummingbird care

By HENRY MITCHELL
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — If you don't mind turning your thoughts to hummingbirds, which surely are far more festive and delicate and marvelous. I do not mind poinsettias, though mine have a dismal way of lasting until March, so that one gets rather weary of them. Hummingbirds are one of the glories of eastern America, and although we have only one kind, the ruby-throated, that one is abundant and should suffice.

Gardeners love hummingbirds — I cannot think of ever hearing any body complain of "those damned hummingbirds," though gardeners complain of everything else. On hot June days it is a delight to everybody to behold the hummingbirds hovering about, and there is no reason every garden should not be attractive to them.

A friend of mine recently saved down a huge old mimosa tree. Before he did so, I had often admired the hummingbirds. It was no rare thing to see as many as 30 hummingbirds at a time working the nectar-laden flowers.

The mimosa (Albizia) is scented, though most flowers loved by the hummers have no fragrance. Thomas Jefferson, you will recall, planted 32 seeds of this tree on his birthday in 1809, and while that is the only reference to it I can find at the moment, I think this was one of his favorite trees at Monticello. Hummingbirds, if not Jefferson, consider it a veritable prince of the vegetable kingdom, and sometimes visit it in a regular cloud of tiny wings so that the entire flowering canopy seems to be vibrating. A mistake to cut down a mimosa, needless to say, but there you are.

Another great favorite of these little fowl is the trumpet vine (Campsis) in several varieties. I was uneasy that they might not like the yellow trumpet vine, as red is the favorite color, but was happy to see they worked the yellow flowers as well as the others.

We were proud last year when hummingbirds built a nest in a wild trumpet vine on our fence. The nest, which I have not found despite diligent searching, is so cleverly disguised it resembles a mere swelling on a stem or twig.

I did not want to go poking about until cold weather, and although I knew just where the nest was, within a margin of five feet or so, and though I know how cleverly the birds patch it about with lichens, I have not been able to find it.

I have read there are usually two white bean-sized eggs laid, but we saw three infants feeding, we thought, unless one of them was a small adult, after all.

The usual way of feeding these birds is with sugar water. People used to use honey and water, but this was said to cause a fungus bad for the birds. Nowadays you use a solution of sugar and water. (Put 4 ounces of sugar in a pint jar and fill with water — do not use more sugar, as too rich a solution is bad for the birds' livers, I have been told.)

It is, of course, a nuisance to feed the birds this artificial mixture which should be changed every day in hot weather lest it ferment. It should be dispensed in one of those glass tubes (usually with something red, like an artificial flower, to attract them) and the feeder should be kept free of ants and bees.

This is sometimes hard to manage, but if the feeder is suspended from a wire coated with vegetable oil, the ants are supposed to be discouraged. There are numbers of hummingbird feeders on the market, but I believe the main thing is to put them where it is easy to take them down and wash them out with hot water at least every other day. A garden well stocked with flowers that hummingbirds like is the best way to attract them, but I remember seeing a hummingbird working a yellow lady's slipper in April one year — you may notice the birds showing up about the time the azaleas bloom, from mid-April on. I never see them that early, but other people do.

interview. Cornmeal also figures in a Melba bread that Glenn created because she wanted something to serve with country ham, butter and cheese.

Her loyalties, however, remain Southern. "I've studied at the Cordons Bleu, taught a lot of French pastry, but I am a Southern cook first," she said.

The cakes in the book are typically Southern. A chocolate pound cake is beautiful and freezes well, too. Southern breads, such as an orange and apricot bread, are served typically at receptions or as a late night snack, never with meals.

"New Southern Cooking," by Nathalie Dupre (Alfred A. Knopf, $18.95, 345 pages).

Nathalie Dupre could be said to represent the new breed Southern cook and this, her second book on Southern cooking, proves it. A cooking teacher at Rich's Cooking School in Atlanta, where she lives, as well as a television cook, Dupre offers 350 recipes representing both tradition and innovation, most of it reflecting the way Southerners cook today.

Peer pressure helps to put squeeze on smoking habit

DEAR ABBY: I sat in the seat ahead of you on a flight to Los Angeles. Although I was flying alone, I understand that thousands of people must have that urge — and follow it daily — so I said nothing.

But since you welcome letters, may I speak with you now? I have known you to devote many columns to getting people to quit smoking. I doubt if those columns will cause one smoker to stop. They added to nicotine just as heroin addicts, etc.

The best deterrent to cigarette smoking is peer pressure and legislation. Praise those people who demand that smoking not be allowed in their homes. If enough people were firm about it, more and perhaps decide to quit.

Making it difficult for a smoker to have a cigarette makes the time between his cigarettes increase, making it easier to quit.

Please, Abby, use the great power you have to persuade non-smokers to assert themselves when smokers try to light up in their homes.

— SANDRA LIPPS, SANTA MONICA

DEAR SANDRA: No. I would rather give my child the name I am going to call her.

DEAR ABBY: I am expecting a baby soon. If it's a girl, I want to name her "Abby". It's a beautiful name, but I'm not sure if it's a real name, or the nickname for "Abigail".

I have found "Abby" listed in one book of baby names, but most books list it as the nickname for "Abigail".

In a world where we call a president "Jimmy," I still believe in using a formal name where proper, but I would rather give my child the name I am going to call her.

What do you think? You would

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

smokers are, indeed, addicted. But neither peer pressure nor legislation will cure an addiction.

A smoker has to want to quit for his or her own reasons. Some get the "will" after the doctor says, "I just saw your X-rays, and I have some bad news for you."

I hate for that to happen to people I care about. Too many smokers say, "Well, I enjoy smoking — and it's my life." Actually, they more "crave" than enjoy it; they don't realize it's not only their lives, unless they have no one in the world who loves them, or depends upon them for something — if it's only friendship.

I could write a book — and one day I may. Thanks for writing, Sandra.

DEAR KAREN: If you have a girl, name her whatever you wish, whether or not the name is listed in a book of baby names.

Some people "invent" their own names. I have met some "Abby" who were never "Abigail." Good luck to you and the new baby, whatever her (or his) name is.

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the double standard concerning women wearing men's clothing, and vice versa, I had to write.

I am happily married to a man who shares his closet with me. On a trip to Hawaii a few years ago, my luggage was lost, so I wore my husband's clothes until mine arrived — five days later! We are the same size — I am large for a woman, and he's small for a man.

He has worn some of my things, too, which doesn't make him less masculine in my eyes. He likes to wear my nighties and negligees because they feel so soft next to his skin.

Clothes do not make the man or the woman, Abby.

Thank you Times-News for delivery, columns

This year, at Christmastime, I would like to thank you and your staff for your fine newspaper and for the service you "paper-person" families by delivering it to our home so early in the morning. Sometimes Vicki Hance has it at our door before I'm alert enough to catch on to the funnies!

And, in this era of disposable women like Donna Rice and Jessica Hahn, it's a distinct pleasure to read columns by Diana Hixley and Virginia Rickards, two of my favorite writers and wonderful people.

Thank you, too, for having the courage to print the letters of my favorite "stormy petrel," Bill

Good samaritans help when car breaks down

Seems like this time of year is so hectic, but yet people are always able to help. Two weeks ago it was raining very hard and it was during the day, but needed your lights on the car, I stopped at Smith's Food King and ran in to buy some groceries and stamps, came out and my battery had gone dead.

A lady with four small children offered to help and the car still wouldn't jump. Another lady with a large cart of groceries said she had some new jumper cables. So she brought them over.

Meanwhile, we were all soaked. I had to go back to school. I thanked each one of those ladies that took the time to help me. I didn't get their names, but I'd like to thank them again and wish them a Merry Christmas.

I would also like to take the time to wish the people in Magic Valley area Merry Christmas. All the support these people have given me during the years. I am a single parent with four lovely children and am so lucky they will all be home for Christmas and that will be the best Christmas ever.

I am proud that I have lived in

Bob Parr possesses the true spirit of giving

Everyone had heard about Jim and Tammy, but how many hear about the Bob Parrs. We had the opportunity to meet Bob Parr. My elderly parents have told me many things that Mr. Parr has done for them.

Thanksgiving week we went to Twin Falls to move my parents into our home. The decision to move their possessions and put the house up for sale was a sudden one. Although Mr. Parr is employed, he took four hours off work to help my husband load the rented truck. He would not take any money. He has been a professional mover in the years past and gave us many helpful suggestions.

In this season of giving, let me take the opportunity to thank Mr. Parr. He truly has the spirit of giving.

Singing Christmas tree better than Las Vegas

Since I've seen nothing in the paper concerning the "Singing Christmas Tree," I feel I must write.

Those who did not see it missed one of the nicest — no, greatest — productions ever held in this valley.

We've seen slick commercial productions in Lake Tahoe and Las Vegas and they did not surpass the show last Sunday at the First Assembly Church. And the content here was much better and the talents just as good.

Applause and cheers to everyone both up front and behind the scenes for bringing true Christmas spirit to Magic Valley!

Wyoming's air game faces Iowa test tonight

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Wyoming dipped into California's pool of foot ball talent and emerged with the heart of its passing attack: quarterback Craig Burnett, tight end Bill Hoffman and wide receivers Anthony Sargent and James Loving. "They're a very big part of it," said first-year Wyoming coach Paul Roach, whose Cowboys play Iowa in the Holiday Bowl tonight.

"I think that what's helped them and helped us is the familiarity they had with each other prior to coming to Wyoming."

Burnett, Hoffman and Loving all came to Wyoming last year from Santa Rosa Junior College, while Sargent transferred to Wyoming from Pierce Junior College in Los Angeles.

The three receivers together caught 165 passes for 2,318 yards while Burnett threw for 2,799 yards and 22 touchdowns in the Cowboys' 10-2 season. Wyoming went 8-0 in the Western Athletic Conference to gain the bowl bid as league champion.

Wyoming is making its first bowl appearance since 1976, when the Cowboys lost 41-7 to Oklahoma in the Fiesta Bowl.

The 18th-ranked Hawkeyes, 9-3 and a Big Ten runner-up, are making a seventh straight appearance in a bowl game under coach Hayden Fry, their second straight trip to the Holiday Bowl.

"They got the (bowl) experience, that's for sure," Burnett said. "I think we can pull it off, though."

Burnett, Hoffman, Loving and Sargent all were recruited before the 1986 season by Dennis Erickson, who left Wyoming a year ago to take the Washington State coaching job.

"Erickson brought us in, and when he left good things happened," said Sargent, who caught 60 passes and led the team in touchdown receptions (11) and receiving yards (823).

He said Roach, who doubles as the school's athletic director, brought a reassuring style to a team left stunned by Erickson's abrupt departure after a 6-6 record in 1986.

"His impact was he brought us all together like a big family," Sargent said of Roach.

Loving, who had 37 receptions for 709 yards, said the Californians helped each other on and off the field.

"We knew each other, we're real good friends," he said. "It kind of helped the offense, too," Loving said.

Sargent agreed, saying the four could relate to each other because of their common background, and that lifestyle in the school's hometown of Laramie.

Hoffman recalled that he, Burnett and Loving visited Wyoming together during a recruiting trip.

"We really didn't talk about it much. We just knew that we were coming here," said Hoffman, who set a Wyoming record for most catches in a season with 63.

Because of Wyoming's strong passing game, "we knew that we could come here and not be wasted," he said.

Roach kept much of Erickson's passing-oriented attack that sold the California players on Wyoming, but he also elevated the running game.

"I think that's the difference in being able to establish the run and defenses can't really key on the pass like they did last year," Burnett said.

Under Erickson last season, Wyoming averaged 117.2 yards rushing and 293.6 yards passing per game. This season, the Cowboys averaged 162.7 yards rushing with running back Gerald Abraham gaining a school record 1,266 yards. And they increased their aerial output to an average of 306.6 yards.

They were ranked fourth in the nation in total offense (471.3 yards) and eighth in scoring (53.9 points).

"We're really going to have to go out there and shut them down, Iowa defensive end Sean Ridley said. "They're going to get some yards, but the thing is not to let them get too many points on the board."

Iowa's defense finished the regular season ranked 16th in the nation, yielding an average of 286.6 yards. But the unit was disrupted by last week's suspension of three defensive players. Two starters, free safety Dwight Strunk and defensive line Matt, along with reserve lineman Paul Glonek were suspended for unspecified disciplinary reasons.

"Obviously I am concerned that we've got to smooth out some wrinkles, particularly on defense," Fry said. "We've got until 4:30 Wednesday evening, and we'll probably utilize every minute."

Georgia turns back Arkansas in Liberty Bowl

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Freshman kicker John Kasay, who had missed two earlier field goal attempts, connected from 39 yards as time expired Tuesday night to give No. 15 Georgia a 20-17 victory over Arkansas in the Liberty Bowl.

Kasay's kick was set up when Georgia cornerback Carver Russaw intercepted a pass by Arkansas' Greg Thomas at the Razorback 43-yard line with 56 seconds remaining.

The Bulldogs, 9-3, used three plays and 51 seconds in moving to the Arkansas 22 to put Kasay in position. After an Arkansas timeout, the left-footed Kasay split the uprights to make up for earlier misses from 49 and 47 yards.

Kasay's winning kick came 1:37 after Arkansas missed an opportunity for its third straight bowl victory over the Bulldogs. Kendall Trainor missed a 35-yard field goal attempt after Arkansas, 9-4, had driven from the 12-yard line to the Georgia 11. Georgia trailing 17-7 after three periods, got a 24-yard field goal from Kasay on the first play of the fourth quarter and tied it 17-17 with 10:23 left on a 6-yard run by James Jackson.

Arkansas, which beat Georgia 16-2 in the 1985 Sugar Bowl and 31-10 in the 1976 Cotton Bowl, dominated for three quarters under the direction of Thomas, who scored two touchdowns and was named the game's outstanding player.

Thomas led the Razorbacks 68 yards in the final minutes of the half to push Arkansas into a 10-7 lead. Thomas scrambled 25 yards to the Georgia 17, and, three plays later, scored from the 10 with 31 seconds left.

The Razorbacks retained the momentum at the start of the second half, taking the kickoff and driving 76 yards in eight plays for a 17-7 lead.

Once again, Thomas was the Razorback ringleader.

The Arkansas senior hit tight end Billy Winston with a 26-yard pass on fourth-and-1 from the Bulldog 27 and then skirted right end on the next play.

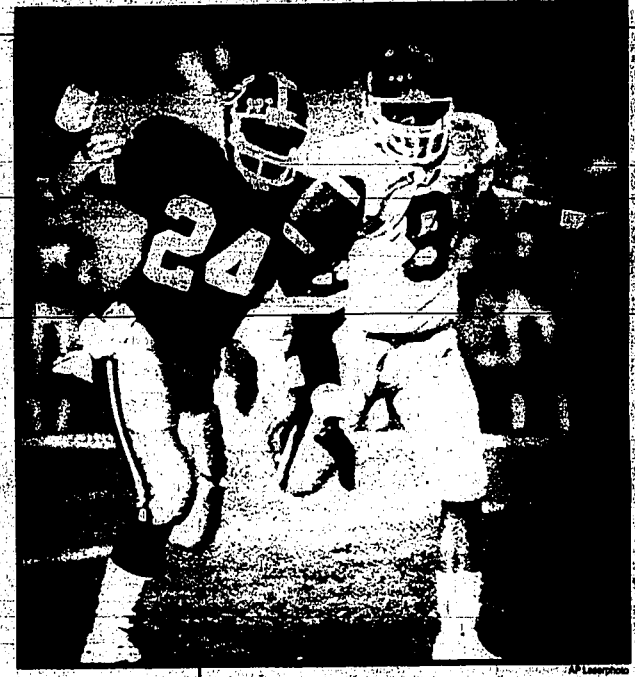

After Georgia came back to tie, Thomas took the Razorbacks 77 yards for the late field goal attempt. On third down from the Georgia 11, Thomas went up the middle for two yards, but Arkansas was assessed a holding penalty.

Facing third down and 16 from the 19, the Razorbacks sent fullback Barry Foster into the left side of the line to move the ball to the center of the field. Trainor's kick barely missed to the left.

After forcing a Georgia punt, Arkansas made one last bid, but it backfired when Thomas' pass was intercepted by Russaw.

An earlier interception, this by cornerback Rusty Bessly off a deflection, allowed Georgia to tie the game. Georgia picked up a first down on a fourth-and-1 situation at the 29 on a 3-yard run by Hiawatha Berry and Lars Tate gained 21 yards on the next two plays to set up Jackson's 6-yard run.

Arkansas led 3-0 on Trainor's 43-yard field goal with 6:37 left in the first quarter. The field goal came after a holding penalty wiped out a first down at the Georgia 11.

Cassius Osborn of Georgia can't catch up with this pass during Liberty Bowl play

The morning line

Good morning. It's Wednesday, Dec. 30, a day on which two college bowl games are scheduled. In San Diego, Western Athletic Conference champion Wyoming (10-2) is scheduled to take on Big Ten runnerup Iowa (9-3) in the Holiday Bowl at 5:30 p.m. on Channel 13.

In nearby Anaheim, 9-3 Air Force is scheduled to meet 6-4-1 Arizona State at 6 p.m. in the Freedom Bowl. That game will not be televised locally.

Minico matches perfect record against Highland

By LARRY HOVEY
 Times-News writer

POCATELLO — The Gem State Conference basketball game on the line tonight when the undefeated Highland Rams entertain the 5-0 Minico Spartans in Pocatello.

The real thing about it, however, is that neither side particularly cares about the Gem State Conference lead or title.

"It's a nice thing to win, but it's just something on the way," admitted Minico Coach Craig Dexter.

That doesn't particularly dentate the Gem State lead because to get what the Spartans really want the home court advantage throughout the Region III playoffs they will have to be ahead of Highland in the standings. And what better place to be than first?

This is one of those situations where the Gem State ability to come up with athletes on an annual basis looms to the fore. Whereas everyone has known that Minico was building toward this team with a history of underclassmen starting for the past three seasons, Highland has been coming up with good players virtually upon demand. The Rams have continued to be top contenders despite graduation and here they are again.

"They definitely have my attention," says Dexter. "I had a chance to see them play twice. I think (senior center Chris) Hoge is one of the best athletes I've seen and (6-4 forward Greg) Terch has to be respected."

Hoge presents problems in that he can shoot the 16-footer with about anyone and at 6-3 still is quick enough to out-manuever most bigger men. He plays the middle and scores a lot.

"I know we have people who can cover him on the perimeter and I think we have people who can stop him down low. We think we have one who can do both but I agree that that matchup is probably the big matchup of the game," Dexter said.

This one should be an up-tempo affair as both teams like to run the floor. In several respects they are very similar teams with good athletic ability and thorough knowledge of the systems they are using.

When Dexter says "they have a very decent man defense and show good motion offensively. But mostly they just let the good athletes — that Highland always seems to have — play. They look to run," he might just as well be talking about his own Spartans.

Dexter says he's probably looking more to seeing this game than a lot of fans because "our frame of mind is very good. Our guys are looking forward to a tough game. They want to play in a tough game. I've been my experience with this group that they play a little better in these situations."

BSU to meet Gaels in Albertson cage final

BOISE, State (AP) — Boise State's Broncos pulled out a double-digit lead early in the second half and hung on to beat Sam Houston State 73-66 and gain the finals of the Albertson's Holiday Classic.

The Broncos will take on St. Mary's in the final tonight after Sam Houston and Eastern Illinois meet at 6:30 p.m. in the BSU pavilion for the consolation prize.

The Broncos didn't show a lot of the early December flash that helped them build a 5-0 record. Leading just 38-36 as the second half started, they picked up six points from Pete Usello to spark an 11-2 spurt. The Broncos got out to leads of 14 points, but couldn't put Sam Houston away.

It will mark the second time BSU and St. Mary's have played this season, the Broncos claiming a 61-52 overtime victory earlier.

Earlier Tuesday night, Erik Newman, former College of Southern Idaho junior college all-American, scored 14 of his game-high 18 points in the second half to lead St. Mary's College to a 73-67 victory over Eastern Illinois in the opening game.

In the second game, host Boise State met Sam Houston-State. St. Mary's will meet the winner of that game in Wednesday's championship contest while the loser of the second game will battle Eastern Illinois for third place.

A 3-point play by Robert Haugen gave the Gaels a 33-31 advantage and their first lead of the game with 1:45 remaining. The Murray, Calif. team never looked back.

The game was marred by a bench-clearing brawl with 2:10 left. The fight resulted in each team shooting six foul shots on technical fouls.

Haugen said A Lewis scored 31 points, each for the Gaels (6-2) while Jay Taylor paced the Panthers (5-3) with 15.

Falcons go to war without general

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — One of the biggest bones in the Air Force Academy's wishbone offense is broken, but backup quarterback Steve Letnich expects to do the job when the Falcons face the Arizona State Sun Devils in the Freedom Bowl.

Sophomore Dee Dowis, who set the NCAA single-season record for most yards rushing by a quarterback with 1,816 this year, broke his right hand in the season finale at Hawaii and won't play against the Sun Devils in Wednesday's 9 p.m. EST game at Anaheim Stadium.

That leaves the job to Letnich, a sophomore who lost his starting role to Dowis a few series into the season opener.

"Tim Dee's backup, that's my job on the team — to be physically and mentally prepared to go in," Letnich said Tuesday. "Unfortunately, Dee got hurt. He's what made Air Force go all year."

"My job is to make sure we don't miss a beat, and to make sure all 11 cylinders run at once."

Air Force, 9-3, will be playing for its sixth bowl victory this decade.

Arizona State, 8-4-1, could be playing its final game under Coach John

Cooper, who has led the Sun Devils into their third straight bowl.

Cooper is rumored to be one of two finalists for the vacant Ohio State job. He wouldn't confirm or deny the rumor Tuesday and told reporters, "I will let you know more in the next few days."

Air Force averaged 366.3 yards rushing per game this year, second only to Oklahoma's 428.8. Dowis' best game was a school-record 241 yards against Utah.

"I'm just going to do what they dictate," said Letnich, who rushed 27 times for 192 yards. "We have the answers to anything they show us. I'll have to read correctly, pitch the ball when I can and tuck it and run when I have to."

"I have all the confidence in the world in Steve," Air Force Coach Fisher DeBerry said. "We perceive ourselves as a strong family, and when we face adversity it brings us closer together. Everybody will do their best to rally around Steve. That's why I feel so positive as I do."

Cooper said Arizona State faced the wishbone when it played Pacific and Arizona, which used a hybrid wishbone and run-and-shoot offense.

"Air Force runs the wishbone as good as or better than any team I've seen, including Oklahoma," Cooper said.

Of Dowis' injury, he said: "They're going to run the same offense. You don't change your philosophy just because your quarterback is injured."

Air Force's two fullbacks, Andy Smith and Quinton Roberts, rushed for 635 and 572 yards. Halfbacks Anthony Roberson and Albert Booker had 569 and 467, respectively.

The Freedom Bowl will also highlight some of the nation's best linemen. Air Force senior defensive tackle Chad Hennings was named first-team All-America and won the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding interior lineman.

Arizona State guard Randall McDaniel was second-team All-America and won the Pacific-10 Conference's Morris Trophy as the league's best offensive lineman.

The Sun Devil offense is led by tailback Darryl Harris, whose 818 yards on 178 carries was third-best in the Pac-10. Fullback Channing Williams had 591 yards on 165 carries and led the league with an average of 5.6 yards per carry.
