Court ruling voids independent counsel law

The Washington Post

Reaction — A3

WASHINGTON — A divided federal appeals court panel Friday struck down the statute establishing independent councils to investigate wrongdoing by high-ranking government officials, saying that the law "seriously weakens constitutional structures that serve to protect individual liberty."

The long-awaited, 240-1 decision, could jeopardize last month's perjury conviction of former White House aide Michael K. Deaver, whose lawyers filed a motion Friday asking that his conviction be set aside and his case dismissed. Deaver's sentencing is set for Feb. 25.

However, the ruling — likely to be reviewed by the Supreme Court — is expected to have little or no effect on Iran Contra litigant dependent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh or James C. McKay, who is prosecuting former White House political director Lyn Nofziger on conflict-of-interest charges and is investigating Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

Walsh and McKay accepted back-up appointments from the Justice Department in case the law was overturned. "Because of the attorney general's parallel appointment, we do not believe this ruling will affect the continuity of our investigation," Walsh said in a statement. The Supreme Court Tuesday refused to review a separate appeals court decision upholding the constitutionality of Walsh's parallel appointment in a challenge brought by Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas A. Flannery, presiding over Nofziger's conflict-of-interest trial, refused to suspend the proceeding while Friday's appeals court decision is reviewed. Nofziger's lawyers have argued that McKay did not have power to subpoena documents during a one-month period between his court appointment and the Justice Department's parallel appointment.

"The appeals court majority struck down the law on the grounds that having a special court appoint and supervise independent counsels, and severely restricting the president's power to remove the prosecutors, so deeply invades the president's executive prerogatives and responsibilities and so jeopardizes individual liberty as to be unconstitutional."

Judge Laurence H. Silberman wrote the 88-page decision and was joined by Judge Stephen F. Williams. Both are appointees of President Reagan. Judge Ruth Bader Ginsburg, named to the court by President Jimmy Carter, issued a 40-page dissent concluding that the law affects no intolerably sweeping displacement of executive branch authority.

The decision represented a major victory for the Justice Department, which joined in challenging the constitutionality of the independent counsel provisions of the 1978 Ethics in Government Act. U.S. District Court Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. found the statute unconstitutional.

Whitney North Seymour Jr., the prosecutor in Deaver's case, and Alexia Morrison, whose probe of former Justice Department official Theodore E. Olson prompted Friday's ruling, refused parallel Justice Department appointments.

"Seymour was unavailable for comment Friday," Morrison told United Press International that she and her attorneys will carefully study the panel's ruling "to determine how to proceed" and that they "continue to believe the law is constitutional and essential."

For Twin Falls High School journalists

High court's decision seen as a cloud

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News Staffer

TWIN FALLS — It must have sent a chill through high-school journalists.

It certainly didn't make Twin Falls High School senior Rod Gano's day.

"Oh great," is what he said when he heard the U.S. Supreme Court ruled last week to broaden censorship authority of administrators over student newspapers and other forms of expression.

Gano's father sued the Twin Falls School District for allegedly violating his son's constitutional rights when the administration forbade young Gano from wearing a T-shirt he designed for Homecoming. The design depicted three administrators holding alcoholic beverages.

Gano hadn't talked with his lawyer about the ruling's impact on his case, now in U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals.

But he has a feeling it won't be good.

In Boise, lawyer Allen Derr, who works with the Idaho Press Club, was appalled at the ruling.

"It's the worst kind of civics lesson we could possibly give students," he said.

At the office of the Brain News, an award-winning and gutsy Twin Falls High School newspaper, the ruling was more like a cloud than a chill.

"We're not against the ruling. The key is that I hope the administrators don't see it as an open door," Advisor Mary Lu Barry said. "It (the ruling) is bad for people like us, who are responsible."

The Brain News has written about the politics that got the students at Hazelwood, Mo., into trouble in 1983.

The justices ruled — by a 5-3 vote — that the principal at Hazelwood East High School didn't violate students' free speech rights when he ordered two pages pulled from an issue of the student publication, The Spectrum.

The administrators said they were worried about the stories on those pages. One was about teen-age pregnancy and another about divorce.

School policy required the principal to review each Spectrum issue. When his review resulted in deletion, journalism students sued, contending their freedom of speech was violated.

50,000 foes of abortion march to protest ruling

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Chanting "No more abortions," a group of about 50,000 people gathered in front of the Supreme Court building Friday to protest the court's decision to uphold the constitutionality of the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortions.

The president, declaring that all human life is sacred, announced in a televised speech to the group that the administration would support legislation to restrict abortions.

The group planned to hold a "march of life" in front of the Supreme Court building, starting at 10 a.m. and ending at 12 p.m. The group was expected to be diverse, including parents, students, and other representatives of the pro-life movement.

Two often said that the ruling would have a chilling effect on the press.

Nelle Gray, executive director of the National Abortion Federation, said the ruling would have a chilling effect on the press.

She's $10 million richer for $50 error

The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Ill. (AP) — Bartender Sue Zera was hard at work serving the lunchtime crowd at Ollie's Tavern on Friday, even though a $50 mistake in filling an order for lottery tickets had made her $10 million richer.

"We've got to serve lunch. I can't say 'I quit' and leave nobody here to help," said Ms. Zera, 47.

But she wasn't totally blasé about her sudden fame and fortune.

"I think it's wonderful," she said, laughing in a telephone interview from Ollie's. "What more can I say?"

She was working Wednesday at the tavern in this town of 4,200 as she's done for the past seven years, when a regular customer ordered $50 worth of tickets for the Illinois State Lottery's Lotto drawing this Saturday.

But Ms. Zera pressed the computer button for Wednesday's Lotto 7 drawing, and ended up with 50 lottery tickets the customer didn't want.

It was her mistake and she had to pay for it, buying all 50 tickets instead of her usual one or two.

Ms. Zera sold 20 of the tickets to friends, but was stuck with 30 and kicked herself about the error.

"Well, $50 is a lot of money to me, and I wasn't happy about having to 'buy the tickets,'" she said.

Everything changed Thursday morning, when tavern owner Ollie Hoock got a call from state lottery officials saying the winning ticket had been sold in his bar.

Ms. Zera quickly checked her 30 tickets.

"I broke down and cried. I said 'Ollie, come check these, I think I've got them.' I was crying so hard I couldn't see the numbers by them," she said.

Ms. Zera will receive about $500,000 a year for the next 20 years. After federal and state taxes, that should work out to about $387,500 annually, lottery officials said.

She cut an interview short because of waiting customers and said she'd keep working at Ollie's "for a while."

Ms. Zera said she hadn't given much thought to spending the money, but had a few ideas.

"One granddaughter will get the braces she needs. And the other one — well, both of them can go to college if they want to."

And one more thing.

"If I like travel," she said, "I come from a family of 10 children, so I'll probably start at one end of the country and work my way around."

Because the business that sells the winning ticket gets 1 percent of the winner's share, Hoock will get $100,000.

Hart says money to go back

By The Associated Press

Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson cried foul Friday after setbacks in Hawaii and Michigan, two states he had hoped to win, and Democrat Gary Hart promised to return illegal contributions he said a video producer had routed through employees.

Vice President George Bush, campaigning in Iowa, said now "I did have reservations" about the sale of arms to Iran as he faced Iraqis' questions from high school students.

The presidential candidates were scattered across Iowa and New Hampshire, with the Democrats preparing for three face-to-face debates in "three days." The first is Saturday in Des Moines.

In Iowa, where new polls show slipping, Hart tried to put aside allegations of improper financial backing. He said that after looking into the charges, he was acknowledging his campaign accepted improper contributions from as many as four employees of video producer Stuart Karl. He said he would return the money.

"It is reported now that Mr. Karl may have made or did make contributions through employees of his to my campaign," Hart told reporters. "We have been checking into that as well. We have found that there may have been as many as four such contributions."

The Hart campaign later said it could find only two such contributions, amounting to $760 each.

The Orange County Register in California reported Friday that three former Karl employees had told the newspaper Karl had masked contributions to Hart and to candidates for Congress by pressuring workers to make donations and then reimbursing them.

On the Republican side, leaders of Hawaii's GOP, which had seen its ranks swell with newly registered Robertson supporters, voted in a closed-door meeting Thursday night to postpone indefinitely the delegate-selecting caucuses scheduled for next Wednesday.

Hawaii GOP leaders backing Bush and Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole had raised questions about caucus rules, but Robertson's campaign charged that Bush forces scrapped the caucuses because they knew Robertson would win.

"This is the kind of trick we'd expect in a banana republic, not in the greatest nation on the face of the earth," Robertson said.

"If I'm finding in state after state fairly that the Bush forces cannot win the rules and regulations to avoid embarrassment for their candidate or take votes away," he said.

Bush, in Iowa, said "I don't know anything about that."

Robertson had expected to win the Hawaii contest, as he once had expected to win caucuses in Michigan until losing court fights over party rules to Bush.

Ruling

that is inconsistent with its basic education even though the government could not control similar speech outside the school." Disentangling judges said the ruling conformed "thought control."

Twin Falls High School Principal Frank Charlton said the ruling was good.

"I think administrators have to have a handle on things within their schools," he said. At the high school level, students are still growing-up and need guidance.

But he isn't going to start playing editor or censor with the Bruin News because of the ruling, Charlton said. He trusts the staff and Barry because they have been responsible and sensitive to other students. The newspaper, like the rest of the school, has "class," he said.

Part of the learning experience is allowing students room to grow, Charlton said. The administrators aren't always happy when Bruin News articles or columns are critical of policy or their other actions.

Barry worries that publications in other schools' work to be lucky. The ruling will vindicate those who are censoring the publications, while others may see it as a general authority or even obligation to do so.

Rocks

Jones objected to a committee report attached to the bill and called for the bill to be changed.

McClure intervened in the dispute by pointing to House Energy and Commerce Committee Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich. to get the bill's language changed to satisfy the Idaho attorney general.

The resources McClure's City of Rocks and fossil bed bill will protect consist of unusual eroded rock shapes and world-renowned fossils from 3.5 million years ago.

The rocks at City of Rocks, some 60 stories tall, have fascinated travelers since pioneer days. But the area managed as a park under a joint arrangement of state and federal agencies has suffered from vandalism in recent years.

The Hagerman Fossil Beds contain world-renowned fossils from the Pliocene Blancan age some 3.5 million years ago. The Hagerman horse, actually a zebra, is among the fossils found at the site.

Tourists have complained that fossil beds are difficult to find. The U.S. Bureau of Land Management has rated the fossil beds in 100 percent poor ecological condition.

McClure's bill calls for acquisition of private lands by donation, purchase with donated funds and exchange or bequest. However, there is a provision capping for the federal government to buy a 492-acre parcel from the state.

McClure's bill envisions a 4,394-acre national monument at Hagerman and transfer of management from BLM to the parks service. McClure's bill calls for an appropriation of $5 million for the fossil beds.

At the City of Rocks McClure's bill spells out a 14,320 national reserve. The appropriation for this area is not to exceed $2 million, according to the bill.

An original reserve has fewer restrictions than a national park. Traditional uses such as grazing are allowed in national reserves. The City of Rocks is located in a ranching area.

A recent action by the parks service in Washington, D.C. threatened to derail the City of Rocks compromise between supporters and ranching interests.

Ranchers were upset that the City of Rocks boundaries extended farther north than expected into Camanche and Blaine. Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Idaho.

But the problems have been straightened out, said Darrington. Darrington said the City of Rocks national reserve boundary does not go into Castle Rocks to the north.

Responses ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd and House Speaker Jim Wright will give the Democratic response to President Reagan's annual State of the Union address Monday night, it was announced Friday.

Byrd, D-W.Va., and Wright, D-Texas, will give the Democratic view from the Capitol Hill dais after the president's address. Reagan's address and the Democratic reply will be carried by the major broadcasting networks.

"Some kids need to be censored," Barry added.

In her 10 years as advisor, school administrators haven't yielded a story or column before publication, although they do let her know after she files they are unhappy about an issue, she said.

Barry and her young staff don't believe the ruling will have any effect on the Bruin News because they said they are responsible.

Senior Editor Teresa Carlson said, "We are not headbutters."

Staff Reporter Peter Ruprecht said the newspaper runs stories not so much about what students want to know, but what they need to know.

Production Editor Chuck Brockway said, "I think we won't shy away from controversy."

In the past, the publication has been anything but shy, taking on everything from school policy to discipline.

"The administrators can't say any one of those stories is not educating the students," Brockway said.

Barry worries that publications in other schools' work to be lucky. The ruling will vindicate those who are censoring the publications, while others may see it as a general authority or even obligation to do so.

Derr added that administrators who feared to preview student publication service management analysis Amendment rights would hesitate now.

The ruling is the final word unless someone brings another case.

and the court changes it mind," he added. But hope exists in administrators' freedom of speech.

Bruin News Editor Dave McNeas said he fears the ruling will scare students away from involvement because they may now see high school newspapers as "restricted."

The Bruin News is self-supporting through advertisements and donations. But its ties to the schools are evident. It is on school property and Barry is paid by the district.

"It is a school paper, but not an arm of the school," Ruprecht said.

Barry added, "I don't see it as a class assignment."

Brockway said, "I see it as an student forum."

And Bruin News Managing Editor Brian Brock said, "I see ourselves as a real news source."

For young journalists, the ruling may be a lesson in the "real world."

Professional journalists know of or have experienced instances where stories have been pulled by publishers or other managers for various reasons.

Times-News City Editor Bill Crampton said professional reporters deal with editors and publishers who "decide" daily about whether their work goes in the newspaper.

In a sense, this ruling allows school administrators to function as editors and publishers, Crampton said.

"The danger here is if they overreact and act as censors instead of editors. And there is a difference."

Mecham enters plea of not guilty

Los Angeles Times

PHOENIX, Ariz. — In a crowded but hushed courtroom, embattled Gov. Evan Mecham pleaded not guilty Friday to charges of fraud, perjury and filing a false statement in connection with a $360,000 campaign loan.

"As to the charges air, how do you plead?" Maricopa County Superior Court Commissioner Patrick O'Neal asked Mecham during the early morning arraignment proceedings.

"Not guilty," Mecham responded quietly.

The governor, who is the subject of impeachment hearings in the Arizona House and who expects to be notified Monday that he must face a recall election, is charged with his brother and campaign chairman, William Mecham, with three felony counts for allegedly trying to conceal the loan in a 1986 campaign disclosure statement.

Willard Mecham, 67, also pleaded not guilty to the charges just moments after his brother entered his plea.

In addition, the governor faces three felony charges of fraud, perjury and false filing for allegedly attempting to hide the loan, which came from Temple Developer Barry Wolfson, again in a 1987 financial disclosure statement.

Asked by reporters afterward if he was confident of acquittal, Mecham responded: "Hell yes, I'm confident!"

Trial for the governor and his brother was set for March 9 and a pretrial conference was set for Feb. 17.

The governor, who was indicted Jan. 8, was released without bail by O'Neal, who ordered him not to leave the state without approval of the court except on official state business. If convicted, Mecham would be removed from office and would face a prison sentence of up to nearly 22 years.

Court ruling would end law which authorizes independent counsel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The appeals court decision Friday striking down the independent counsel law would return the Justice Department to a position of pre-eminence in criminal investigations and prosecution of top administration officials.

If the 2-1 ruling stands, the office of independent counsel James McKay, who is investigating Attorney General Edwin Meese III, would rest squarely within the control of the Justice Department. So would the office of Lawrence Walsh, who is investigating the Iran-Contra affair.

McKay, who had agreed to a backup appointment, would continue with the case against former White House political director Lynn Nofziger.

The Justice Department swiftly issued a statement saying that "their work (that of McKay and Walsh) will continue unimpeded."

If Friday's decision is upheld, the Justice Department likely would decide whether it wanted to continue the investigation of one of its former attorneys, Theodore Olson, because the independent counsel in that probe, Alexia Morrison, has refused to accept a backup appointment from the Justice Department.

Gone under McKay's appeals court ruling would be the special three-judge panel that was set up in the wake of the Watergate scandal to appoint independent counsels and thus serve as a buffer against possible political influence.

Many Justice Department career attorneys have long resented the implication which the independent counsel process carries with it — that the department is too susceptible to White House political pressure to carry out criminal investigations of possible wrongdoers in the executive branch.

The court decision "suggests that the president has inherent power, for no reason at all or for a reason however political, to fire an independent counsel," said Laurence Tribe, an authority on constitutional law.

Bell urges support for schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of Education T.H. Bell said Friday that President Reagan has missed a chance to spark a real turnaround in American schools, and he urged the presidential candidates to make that their top domestic priority.

Bell expressed alarm at the steep high-school dropout rates, especially among minority youth, and the "marginal" skills of many others who manage to get a diploma.

"We can't continue to lose 30 percent of the rising generation," Bell told a news conference at the National Press Club.

"This problem needs to be attacked by all of us, but the leadership needs to emanate from the Oval Office," said Bell, author of a book of memoirs, "The Thirteenth Man," on his four years in the Reagan Cabinet.

In a separate interview with The Associated Press, Bell expressed disappointment with the results to date of the school reform movement and with Reagan's efforts in this arena.

Bell created the commission that wrote the stinging 1983 report, "A Nation At Risk," that warned of a "rising tide of mediocrity" in the schools and Reagan made states raise graduation standards and look for ways to improve teachers' status.

"I think we missed an opportunity to fully take advantage of 'A Nation At Risk' and all the attention on it by not giving it high priority and a high profile in the second term," Bell said.

"Had the president done that, the results of the school reform movement would have been much more impressive than they are," he said.

Bell said Reagan sent the wrong message by repeatedly seeking deep cuts in federal spending on schools and colleges.

"It would be wrong for me to say he has ignored the problem. But it hasn't been one of his top three priorities," said Bell, now a professor of educational administration at the University of Utah. "It just hasn't occupied enough of his time."

He urged the next president to call an education summit early next year of governors, lawmakers, college presidents, school administrators, teachers, parents and others "to arrive at a consensus on what we need to do."

He said presidential leadership is needed on the scale of Harry Truman's Marshall Plan to rebuild Europe, Dwight Eisenhower's building the interstate highway system and John Kennedy's decision to land a man on the moon.

"We should be asking the presidential candidates, 'If elected, what do you plan to do to lead the nation into a truly great educational system and to transform America into a learning society?'" said Bell.

at Harvard University.

"That determination, if it were ultimately upheld, would cast a cloud, eventually, over the whole structure of giving some degree of protection from politics to the independent counsels — and that includes independent counsel Lawrence Walsh," said Tribe, who opposed the ruling.

Meese's political aides have waged a vigorous campaign on constitutional grounds against the 1978 Ethics-in-Government Act that created court-appointed special counsels. They were severely disappointed when President Reagan last month reluctantly signed a five-year extension of the law.

Meese associates were elated by the news from the appeals court Friday.

The court ruling, likely to be appealed, has the potential for creating the kind of conflict that Congress had tried to avoid in enacting the 1978 law.

For example, the Justice Department is now in the position of having approved creation of an independent counsel's office, McKay's, that is conducting a criminal investigation of the attorney general.

Ruling elates Justice Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department and a defense attorney praised a court decision Friday striking down judicial appointment of independent counsels, but other independent counsels, the American Bar Association and academics criticized the ruling.

"I think this decision is wrong," said Laurence Tribe, a Harvard Law School specialist on constitutional law. "It disregards the clear language of the Constitution that permits Congress to give the power of appointment of officers of this kind to the judicial branch of the government."

A panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here ruled 2-1 that court appointment of special prosecutors violated the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers among the executive, judicial and legislative branches of government.

The decision crossed the legal authority of independent counsel Alexia Morrison to investigate allegations that former Assistant Attorney General Theodore Olson had given false congressional testimony to a House subcommittee in 1983.

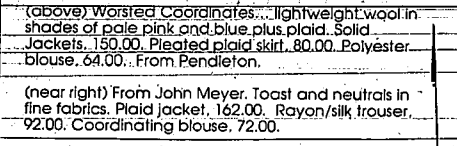

Ms. Morrison was reported traveling and unavailable for comment about the ruling or a likely appeal of it.

Democrats urge delay in Contra aid request

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — A group of House Democrats, most of them "swing" votes crucial to the outcome of an impending showdown over aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels, asked President Reagan on Friday to delay his request for new aid.

The lawmakers, led by Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., said either a defeat or a victory for the aid package would let Nicaragua President Daniel Ortega "out of his box" by removing the pressure they view as having forced recent concessions by the Managua government.

"We view Ortega's options as extremely limited," stated the letter to Reagan, signed by 19 House members as they traveled by train to this post West Virginia resort for an annual Democratic issues conference.

"During the critical days ahead, the United States should support the process that has brought Ortega to his current dilemma."

President Reagan is expected to make a plea for renewal of Contra aid in his State of the Union speech

Monday night. The exact amount has not been determined, but administration and congressional sources have said the figure is likely to be in the range of $30 million to $50 million range.

The issue is scheduled to come to a vote in the House on Feb. 3, and if aid is approved, it would go to a Senate vote the following day.

Some of the letter's signers acknowledged that it is unlikely Reagan would give up his opportunity for a quick vote on Contra aid and wait for a more uncertain opportunity later in the year.

A crucial issue is whether the package includes lethal military aid, and Reagan has said he wants to make such assistance a minor part of the proposal to make it more palatable to lawmakers.

But McCurdy argued that any effort to force the issue to a head-on matter how the closely divided issue is resolved — will remove the tension that has forced Sandinista concessions.

Girl freezes to death

DUCK CREEK, Utah (AP) — An 8-year-old girl who left a remote mountain cabin looking for her parents froze to death in deep snow, but an 11-year-old friend survived by burrowing into a snow cave for two days, authorities say.

The two children had been left in the cabin in the southern Utah mountains on Sunday while the girl's parents, Randy and Peggy Hanner, and her sister, Deirdre, 13, of Las Vegas, Nev., took a snowmobile trip to Navajo Lake, eight miles away, Kane County Sheriff Joe Gonzales said Thursday.

Brandy Hanner and Chad Shackelford apparently grew frightened when the Hanners didn't return and decided to go looking for them Monday afternoon. About 2 feet of snow had fallen in a short period, and they lost the snowmobile track and they didn't know heads nor tails of the trail," said Gonzales. Chad said authorities that he and Brandy "got about a quarter mile from the cabin and she couldn't walk any more," Gonzales said. "He told her to stay there and he tried to go for help or find the parents. He got about 200 yards and he couldn't go any more, so he dug a hole in the snow."

NASA now sensitive to safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top NASA safety officer said Friday that "there is a more significant change in attitude" in the space agency as a result of reforms made in the wake of the Challenger accident two years ago. Another official called the system "super-sensitive" to safety.

"There is a great deal of openness in NASA operations now," said George A. Rodney, the head of NASA's new Safety, Reliability and Quality Assurance Office.

The office was created after a presidential commission concluded that an effective safety organization could have prevented the Challenger accident, which was caused by a booster rocket leak problem that had been known but disregarded in the agency.

"Somebody asked if the new system had been in place, would it have stopped the Challenger launch," Dr. Noel Hinners, NASA's No. 3 official, told a news conference. "With the new system you would never have gotten to the point where you were even ready for launch."

He said he worries not about safety for the first post-Challenger flight expected this summer, but about safety in the long run. "I'm not so concerned about STS-26," he said. "I'm concerned about STS-47." The first post-Challenger flight is the 26th in the shuttle series.

"The system now is super-sensitive," said Hinners who holds the dual titles of Associate Deputy Administrator for Institutions and NASA chief scientist. "You can say it's over-sensitive and for the first mission we all buy that. But how do you come down in the future?"

"We know you can't forever keep up this intensity on it," he said. "The problem is how do you gracefully go into the right steady-state."

Rodney said NASA is "in the high risk business" and will remain so. Among the reforms instituted since the Challenger explosion on Jan. 28, 1985, he said, is a system that tracks close calls.

"A close call is one that doesn't lead to an accident," Rodney said. Procedures are put in place so that any such happenings are investigated and steps taken "to assure they don't happen."

The presidential commission cited gaps in communication both within the agency and with its contractors as requiring corrections. As a result, NASA has established a "significant problem" reporting system.

Rodney said communications are improved to the point that J.R. Thompson, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center, has a policy that anyone can walk into his office and receive 15 minutes of his time.

Nuclear plant may start up

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — Nearly 14 years late and $4 billion over budget, the Fermi II nuclear power plant may finally go into commercial operation Saturday.

That means principal owner Detroit Edison can begin charging customers for the electricity the plant produces and for most of the construction cost. Edison has been paying $75 million a month in financing costs for the $4.68 billion plant.

Fermi was licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in July 1986 and testing was supposed to have taken six months. Barring a last-minute shutdown, it will have taken 2 1/2 years.

"From day one, we have been committed to the safe and reliable operation of that plant," said company spokesman Bob Vergiela. "The shutdowns occur because that's the way the system is designed to work."

On Tuesday, the state's third operating nuclear power plant, began a 100-hour test run at 90 percent power. That final test, which ends at 10 a.m. Saturday, was required by the Michigan Public Service Commission before the plant could be considered in commercial operation and the utility could begin charging for its electricity.

Staff proposal won't deter Tacoma City Light

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Tacoma City Light says it isn't afraid of a staff proposal by the Northwest Power Planning Council to protect a third of Idaho's rivers and streams from hydro development.

"It won't carry any weight with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission but will create a big hassle," said Gaxth Jackson, City Light's A.J. Wiley dam project manager. The Washington utility wants to build a dam at the Wiley site near Bliss to reduce its depend-dence on Bonneville Power Administration energy.

Council member Jim Goller says the staff paper will carry weight. FERC says it has received a copy of the paper but won't comment on it.

The paper as proposed doesn't come close to meeting the requirements of the Electric Consumer Protection Act of 1986, Jackson of Tacoma said. This act requires FERC, the agency that licenses non-federal hydro projects, to review an area's regional power plan.

The council's staff paper hasn't been adopted by the council yet. If it is, Jackson says a developer will almost certainly challenge it in court.

Jackson says protection of fish and habitat is a noble aim that Tacoma supports 100 percent. But rather than say where developers can't build, the council should say certain areas have red flags.

"They would achieve the same goals with an advisory list," Jackson said. This would put the burden of proof on developers to say their projects didn't cause damage, he said.

Jackson said Tacoma has told the council this and is trying to win the council over to the Washington utility's point of view.

"To some of the council members this is not an issue of protecting resources but controlling development," Jackson said.

State officials and hydro developers also have strong reactions to the council's staff paper.

The Twin Falls Canal Co. and other hydro developers oppose the staff paper. The canal company is trying to develop a hydro project at Milner Dam.

Vern Ravenscroft, a hydro consultant, calls the recommendations in the staff paper a grab of property rights. He says if potential applications are taken into consideration as well as pending ones, three-quarters of the state's potential hydro sites will be affected by the staff proposal.

The Wiley project would be blocked by the staff proposal. Other affected projects are the Dike Dam site near Glenns Ferry and Star Falls near Murtaugh, said Stan Allen, fish and wildlife coordinator, state Department of Fish & Game.

The intent behind the staff paper is to protect the salmon and steelhead run in the Columbia River Basin. Fish numbers have been dramatically reduced by hydro development.

"The council estimates that there would be 7 to 11 million more adult fish in the annual spawning run if it were not for the existing hydro development in the basin's rivers.

"Wiley is the perfect example of what we're trying to do," Allen of F&G said.

"We're trying to protect an area reproducing white sturgeon, one of the last in Idaho," he told members of the state Senate Resources and Environment Committee on Monday.

At the request of legislators the Boise-based council extended the comment period on the proposal from Jan. 15 until March or April.

bery around a replica of a sculpted stone Indian head near Herrett Museum. Blair said the area is supposed to look wooded, but was getting a little too overgrown. The fibreglass head is a replica of a piece from the ancient Olmec civilization.

Wendell creates memorial field fund

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — A memorial fund for Blaine Scott has been established at the Wendell High School to help buy new lights for the football field.

At the Wendell School Board meeting Monday, Tracy Scott asked the trustees to set up a special fund in memory of his brother Blaine, a 1975 Wendell graduate, who died of cancer in November.

The Wendell school district is planning to move games to its new football field next to the high school gymnasium as soon as funds allow. Lights for the new field are estimated to cost a minimum of $10,000 to $12,000.

Another memorial fund exclusively for the new lights was established several years ago in the name of Sheridan Swenson. Swenson was a freshman at Wendell when he died of a head injury from a football game in 1976. He and Blaine Scott were first cousins.

In other business, athletic passes for school employees this year included families rather than just spouses, again previous years. Trustees discussed possible problems and lack of school income this may be causing.

Trustee Jack Hiral said he has heard the inclusion of families has "cut into the gate quite a bit." Teacher Yogi Behrens agreed, saying the school is losing money because of the family passes.

Chairman Clayton Pope said there is some question about what family includes. It should not include the employee's brothers and sisters and their families, parents, in-laws and other adults.

Superintendent George Crawford said inclusion of family on the passes was intended to let parents bring their children instead of having to hire a baby-sitter.

Pope said the use of passes should be checked to see if there are any abuses.

High School Principal Doug Skinner said Wendell schools have received an approved accreditation status from the state. He said this is the fifth consecutive year Wendell schools have been approved.

Wendell resident George Benson said he has seen windows open at the high school, and he asked the school officials about the building's heating bills and operation of its heating system.

Crawford said the high school uses an old steam-heat boiler and heat cannot be regulated uniformly throughout the building. On the south side, he said, there is some radiant heat from the windows, so those rooms get warmer than basement and northside rooms.

Work is being done on the system as the school budget allows, Crawford said.

Utility bills are one of the school's largest budgeted items, he said. This year the budgeted amount for power, water and gas for the elementary, junior high and high schools, as well as two gymnasiums, was $94,600. In December, gas to heat the elementary and high

Repair work moves ahead on bombed Rupert water tower

By ABLE HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Rupert Public Works Director Eric Peterson told City Council members Tuesday night the city has spent $7,900 so far on repairs to the water tower that was bombed last September.

Estimates to put the tower back on the range from $12,000 to $25,000, which would include painting and adding a staircase to meet Occupational Safety and Health Administration requirements.

According to Mayor Bill Whitton, the Hartford Insurance Co. agreed to allow upgrading expenses to be included in bid specifications. Whitton said this would greatly expedite the process, as the city would not have to advertise for two sets of bids; one for repair and one for upgrading.

Hartford will pay the costs of preparing the specifications as well as all damages caused by the bombing. The council authorized Peterson to begin consulting with engineers to prepare a bid package.

Whitton said, "The tower is of important historical significance to our community, and even if we never put it back on line, we should repair the damages and preserve it as a landmark."

Councilman Clark Cameron, who was unable to attend the Jan. 2 swearing-in ceremony, was officially sworn in for his 17th year on the council. Describing Cameron as "81 years young," Whitton praised him for his many years of service and his willingness to see projects through to completion.

Whitton appointed Cameron to oversee the city's parks and recreation department, as well as operation of the city shop.

In other appointments, the council approved heads for each of the city's departments, as follows: Jess Archuleta, sanitation; Irvin Hardy, water; Robert Malone, sewer; Ivan Myers, electric; Bob Rummans, street; and Les Hutchison, parks and recreation.

Donald Chisholm will serve again as city attorney; Paul Fries as chief of police; Thayne Taylor as fire chief; Loretta Klingenberg as city clerk; and Eric Peterson as public works director.

Norma Middlestead was appointed to replace Terean Ammon as city treasurer. Whitton presented a plaque and a gift to Ammon, thanking her for her 10 years of dedicated service to the city. When she first appointed Teresa to the job, she was only 18 years old.

"Whitton said, 'the youngest city treasurer in the state.'"

Saying, "It's important to have community involvement," Whitton asked the council to form an advisory committee for the city's parks and recreation program. "This type of committee has worked very well for other cities," he said.

The council approved Ray Pons, Dr. Charles Warren and Joe DeBlaque to serve three-year terms on the committee, and Chet Dalpiaz, Ben Aldrich, Ed Mitchell and Harold Carroway for four-year terms.

The council also approved hiring a Boise engineering firm, CH2M

Chamber holds media critique

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Is the media biased? The expected and universal answer was "yes." Only the response of the media representatives varied. Their answer was "yes, but."

At a leadership conference sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce focusing on the media, a panel of media types and media critics were pit against each other to thrust and parry for the education of the audience.

In addition to the general criticism, several specific charges were leveled.

Word selection can strongly bias a story, said Dave Capps, owner of Capps Broadcasting. He objected to the media's immediate adoption of the word "crash" to describe what happened to the stock market last October.

"I equate that word with the Depression," Capps said. But there were no indications of a depression, so the word gave a false picture, he said.

Bob Bartlett disagreed strongly with that assessment.

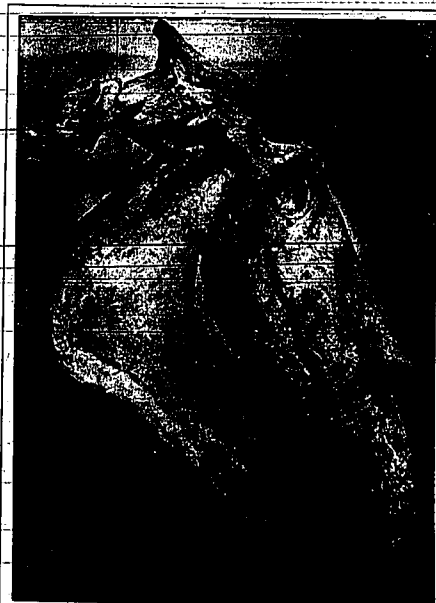

"When 20 percent of assets are lost in one day on the stock market what do you call that? A minor inconvenience?" asked the attorney and former newspaperman. "It's a crash."

One duty of the media is to report facts without opinion. If it's opinion it should be labeled opinion, said Mark Stubbs, an attorney and chair of the Republican Party Central Committee.

"That's a major weakness of the media," he said. "And L. James tramples on that more than anyone else around here."

The host of Party Line, a talk show on KLIJ radio, responded, "It's an unjust world isn't it."

"We have our biases and we make no secret of it," L. James Koutnik said. "We have our biases and the audi-

State fossil bill trots onto floor

BOISE — Rep. Ralph Peters, R-Jerome, has a bone to pick.

Idaho has a state seal, a state song, a state flower, a state horse, a state gem, a state tree, a state bird and a state flag.

But Idaho has neglected to recognize its state fossil. That's right, Idaho has some of the most famous fossils in the country, a few resting in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., and a few still serving in government.

But here we have Idaho, winning her way to fame, silver and gold in the sunlight breeze, and romance lies in her name, with no officially recognized state fossil. Peters wants to change that.

The Jerome Committee and state lawmaker is leading the bus to Boise Monday to have the Hagerman horse fossil, the "Ogus simplicidens," designated the state fossil of the State of Idaho.

"This is your re-election bill," Ralph," said one lawmaker, envy barely disguised in his voice.

Monday is the day the House Commerce, Industry and Tourism Committee will hear from scholars, experts and concerned citizens on why the Hagerman horse fossil deserves to be the state bone.

Bellevue discusses wastewater treatment

By ANNE MARIE JEHLE
Times-News correspondent

WASTEWATER TREATMENT

BELLEVUE — The Bellevue City Council considered wastewater treatment alternatives at its third public hearing to develop plans for the town's first central sewage treatment center.

After a two hour presentation of the study of alternate systems done by Rance Bare of Ellsworth Engineering, the council indicated its preference for the least expensive alternative, an aerated lagoon facility. The entire project is expected to cost around $3.3 million.

The council unanimously voted to pursue plans for gravity collection and aerated lagoon treatment, with subsurface rapid infiltration disposal.

Though subsurface disposal appears to be the least expensive, and thus most attractive, disposal alternative, Councilman Cliff Noxon said, "We can't choose disposal methods before we have an environmental impact study."

The council's proposed plans will now be reviewed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, and

Bannock opens jail remodeling bids

POCATELLO (AP) — The good news for Bannock County is that the low bid for its jail remodeling project was nearly $40,000, below the next lowest bid. The bad news was that no one is sure whether the company will accept the bid.

County commissioners accepted bids from six contracting firms Thursday for jail remodeling and an addition. Now they are wondering if the firm that was awarded the project really wants the work.

According to commissioners, O.K. Construction, Idaho Falls, reportedly contacted the project architect and asked to withdraw its bid of $37,701. This request was made after 2 p.m., the time set for bid opening.

Project architect Paul Jensen is awaiting a letter of clarification from the company, said Commissioner Val Arvas.

Representatives for O.K. Construction declined comment. The company has not formally withdrawn its bid. We're taking this under advisement," said Mrs. Arvas.

The request for withdrawal was made after the company discovered that a $35,000 item had not been included in its bid, said Ms. Arvas.

Commissioners met Friday with Bill BIRD, deputy county prosecutor, and project architect Paul Jensen to discuss the situation.

State laws say bids can't be withdrawn after the time set for the bid opening.

Before the county could release O.K. Construction from its bid, the bid would have to be accepted, said Bird.

SDI may advance technology

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Soviet leaders fear the technological advances that will grow out of the Strategic Defense Initiative more than the actual system itself, said a top Department of Energy weapons expert.

"I don't think the Soviets are concerned with SDI per se," said Richard Hahn, DOE director of weapons research, development and testing Thursday in Idaho Falls. "I think they are worried about the technological surge SDI research provides to the United States and its allies."

SDI, known as "Star Wars" is the Reagan administration's attempt to develop a defense in space against ballistic missiles.

Hahn told members of the American Nuclear Society that even as nuclear weapons are reduced to stabilizing levels, a space defense system will be needed to provide security. But even though U.S. policy is to work toward the elimination of nuclear weapons, Hahn said, "it just might not be an achievable goal."

"I can see a need for maintaining a level of nuclear forces to prevent a Third World country from attacking a so-called superpower," he said.

As long as nuclear weapons are part of the deterrent force, nuclear testing will be necessary, Hahn said. Testing must be done to provide assurance that each system will do the job for which it is designed.

Of 41 nuclear weapons systems developed in the last 30 years, the United States has had to fix 14, Hahn said. "We were discovered-to-be flawed based on tests."

He disputed scientists who argue that actual nuclear tests could be replaced by computer simulations. "It's simply not possible yet."

He also criticized the nuclear freeze movement, contending disarmament proponents use emotional arguments that ignore facts.

2 local men charged with possession

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls prosecutors have charged two local men with felony possession of drugs with the intent to sell those drugs.

Prosecutors charged Roger Dennis Bolton and Larry Guy Opheim Tuesday.

Bolton is facing two counts of possession of marijuana and hashish with the intent to sell. Bolton is facing counts of possession of marijuana, cocaine and psilocybin mushrooms, all with the intention to sell these drugs.

Opheim was arrested Opheim late Monday and Bolton Tuesday. Preliminary hearings for both men have been set for Feb. 1.

schools and the junior high gymnasium cost a total of $3,100.

Benson said the school should have its heating system, including thermostats, checked for inefficiencies. A new system might be cheaper in the long run, he said.

Cynthia Lundstrom was hired as cafeteria supervisor. She formerly managed the cafeteria at Tupperware in Jerome. Also hired was Don Hall as a custodian at the elementary school. Dorothy Muffly joined the Foster Elementary Program to help elementary children with their reading and other work at school.

Elementary Principal Jerry Hope said some old playground equipment is scheduled to be removed and replaced with a concrete slab. The concrete will be safer and will allow more games for more children, he said.

Darwin Yoder asked about progress in getting textbooks elementary school teachers had requested. Hope said teachers have been working on curriculums for next year and decisions on what books to buy will be made in time to be included in the next school budget.

After an executive session, the board hired Ranie Mattingly to be special education teacher.

Council sponsors refinancing seminar

TWIN FALLS — A one-day seminar for refinancing options for farmers and small business people is being held today from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Canyon Springs Inn in Twin Falls.

The seminar is being put on by Galen Guthrie and sponsored by the Idaho Rural Council. Attorneys will answer questions on bankruptcies, and an accountant will advise on tax aspects. The cost is $10 per couple.

moving, conversion, occupancy, equipment and maintenance of buildings and structures.

Whitton said the BPA had verbally told the city's legal counsel the ordinance was acceptable. The city had gone on record in the past as opposing the code, but the BPA threatened to add a surcharge if the code weren't adopted by the Feb. 1 deadline.

The council also approved Rupert's participation in Project Share, a program which will allow city electric customers to add a voluntary donation to their electric bills. The donations will be distributed by the Salvation Army to help the needy pay their utility bills.

A bid opening to provide a new garbage truck and compactor was set for Feb. 2. The council authorized Chisholm to seek collection of the bid bond forfeited by Starline Inc., the firm which originally contracted to provide the unit. Starline has filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings and has rejected the contract.

Dennis Andrew, an equipment operator with the water department, was given a plaque and a $75 per month pay raise. Andrew recently earned certification as a class two wastewater operator in the state of Idaho. In honoring Andrew, Whitton said "He did this on his own time and at his own inclination. It makes him more valuable to the city, and helps us maintain better water quality because he knows more about it now."

Couple marries anew by telephone

OKALEY (AP) — Lee Kitchen of this southern Idaho farming community of 660 people got married on Thursday last week. Her husband, Wayne, got married on Friday.

But then it wasn't a traditional wedding.

The couple married by telephone. She in Idaho and he in two Jims, there's the serving with the Coast Guard. It was a different day for the groom than for the bride.

It's the second time around for the Kitchens. During the first marriage, they had five children. It ended in divorce.

"Wayne was in the military," Mrs. Kitchen says. "He was always gone. It just seemed too much. But you can't have five children with someone and not keep on caring for them."

She said they learned a lot during the years they were separated, and decided to get married again.

But Wayne is on an "isolated tour" with the Coast Guard, during which he must spend a year on the South Pacific island. He can receive telephone calls but not place them, and can't receive visitors.

In the meeting, the Bellevue council members are seeking public input on what sewage rates would be acceptable. On Feb. 10, there will be a public hearing at the Bellevue Elementary School at 7 p.m.

Other issues, as well as other considerations, will be discussed.

Councilman Ron Reese proposed that the council "work backwards and figure out what we can afford before making a financial commitment."

John Schwarz, an environmental engineer for the state Department of Health and Welfare, supported the continuation of public hearings, saying, "The EPA likes to see the public involved because the project depends on the community's financial support."

In other city business, the council discussed a letter from the Federal Emergency Management Association which states that a recent Bellevue ordinance does not comply with FEMA regulations. Ordinance No. 223 waived other flood plain stipulations to provide for the re-media has theirs." Conversation is what his show is about, and it's something there's too little of, he said.

The media should report what is newsworthy, not just what sells newspapers, Stubbis said.

"What is newsworthy is a matter of opinion," said Ken Ricker, news anchor for KMVT-TV.

"Whether it's a good story or a bad story depends on what you see in that story. Our basic guideline is what's in our backyard is important," he said.

And, yes, newspapers are out to sell newspapers. TV stations are out to get people to watch their station instead of another, he said.

"The only defense is, we're doing the best we can," he added. "It's not news if we don't hear about it. Add it's not news if we don't have pictures of it."

Another duty of the media is to protect the privacy and reputation of the individual, Stubbis said. For example, a doctor in Twin Falls was sued, and the newspaper reported it. The case ultimately proved to be frivolous, Stubbis said.

The doctor checked his receipts from before and after the story came out. He was sued for $50,000 down $50,000 from normal. The paper caused the damage and should not have run the story at all, Stubbis said. "It's a public information and the public has a right to know. I dispute that."

The person who wants those things kept out of the paper is usually protecting himself, re-

World Defense agreement proposed

GENEVA (AP) — The U.S. delegation to the nuclear arms talks proposed a draft treaty on anti-missile defenses Friday, although its chief delegate said the superpowers were far from agreement.

Henry Cooper, the chief U.S. negotiator on defense and space, said the U.S. proposal "would provide for a cooperative, stable transition to a world where defenses can provide protection against attack by ballistic missiles." He told a news conference that the U.S. draft treaty would allow both sides to "develop and test" defensive technologies. The text did not specify whether space testing of President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative would be permitted, he said.

The Soviets oppose SDI, Reagan's proposed space-based missile defense system, popularly called "Star Wars." Cooper reiterated Reagan's support for the program.

Soviet negotiators have made an accord on intercontinental missiles contingent on agreement by the United States to limit its SDI research. Negotiators in Geneva are working separately on that treaty, which would reduce by half the long-range nuclear forces of each side.

The Soviets contend that SDI will lead to an arms race in space. They disclosed their own development of a Soviet SDI program.

Cooper said the treaty draft contained "predictability measures" which would ensure that before either side deploys advanced defenses, there would be full consultation between us.

He said the measures would include a possible exchange of data on the defense programs of each side, visits to each other's laboratories and observation of the tests each side is doing.

"We wish to have a cooperative spirit on the exploration of these technologies and hopefully the harnessing of those technologies to produce effective defenses for both sides," said Cooper.

"But he said Reagan is fully committed to the development of the SDI program to the fullest and we are carrying out his instructions here to preserve our ability to do that."

Moslems demonstrate at Jerusalem mosque

JERUSALEM (AP) — Moslem worshippers chanting "God is Great" emerged from Al-Aqsa mosque after Friday prayers carrying a symbolic coffin, and they were watched by riot police on nearby rooftops and soldiers in a helicopter that circled overhead.

In blood and spirit we shall redeem you, Palestinians about 300 men chanted in unison outside the mosque on Temple Mount, one of Islam's holiest sites, and their faces with checkered Arab headscarves.

About 70 Palestinian women shouted nationalist slogans and waved their fists. Four worshippers suspected of inciting the protest were arrested, police said, but security forces did not interfere and the crowd dispersed when rain began to fall.

Elsewhere in the walled Old City, young Palestinians threw stones at riot police along the Via Dolorosa, the road on which tradition says Jesus was taken to his crucifixion. Olive-colored army jeeps were parked along the cobblestone pathway. Associated Press photographer Max Nash saw officers fire tear gas at the Arabs.

In the occupied Gaza Strip, 100 Palestinians demonstrated after noon prayers at El Amari, the main mosque in Gaza City, chanting "Allahu Akbar" (God is Great) and "Our spirit is for Palestine."

Protesters threw stones at a few passing cars, but no one was injured and soldiers did not intervene.

Military authorities lifted curfews at four of the seaside strip's eight refugee camps so Moslems could attend the weekly prayers, accompanying the relaxation with a warning that any uprising would be met with force.

Palestinian activists had declared Friday a day of remembrance for Arabs killed by soldiers in the unrest that began Dec. 8 in Gaza and the West Bank, which Israel captured from Egypt and Jordan in the 1967 Middle-East war. The United Nations puts the death toll at 35.

Although scattered incidents have been reported, the occupied territories have been comparatively quiet for several days.

About 600 Israeli police, many carrying shields and batons and some with gas masks, were stationed Friday around the Haram es-Sharif, which means Noble Enclosure and is the Arabic name for Temple Mount.

Attacks on gulf shipping increase

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — The Persian Gulf tanker war showed signs of heating up Friday as Iranian gunboats reportedly raided two commercial vessels in the Strait of Hormuz and Iraq claimed its warplanes hit a ship off the coast of Iran.

One of the Iranian attacks evidently was a mistake, as the vessel was carrying petroleum products to an Iranian port, gulf-based shipping executives said.

The Iranian attacks were the sixth and seventh reported this month and the first since Jan. 16, when a Liberian-flag tanker was set ablaze in the Straits of Hormuz and a French destroyer chased off the attacking gunboats.

Iraq's high command, in a statement issued through the official Iraqi News Agency monitored in Cyprus, said its jets hit a large maritime target off the Iran coast at 5 a.m. scoring an accurate and effective hit.

"There was no independent confirmation of the attack, which IFA said was part of Iraq's campaign to cut off oil supplies of the ignorant and primitive rulers in Tehran ... to deprive them of employing the oil revenue for the purposes of wicked aggression against Iraq."

The attack was the eighth claimed by Baghdad during January, of which two have been independently verified. Iran customarily matches each Iraqi air strike on its coastal oil tankers by hitting commercial shipping in the gulf.

The gulf had been relatively calm during the earlier part of this month, after a record number of 34 ships had been attacked by both sides in December.

The total of 178 attacks in 1987 also was a record for one year since the Iraq-Iran war began in 1980 and spilled into the strategic waterway four years later.

In Baghdad, an Iraqi military spokesman said Iraqi helicopter gunships sank three Iranian gunboats and a barge in the headwaters of the gulf overnight, and claimed that 36 Iranians were killed in ground fighting in the past 24 hours.

Salvage operations, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the two ships, attacked by Iranian gunboats within six hours and a few miles of each other, suffered only minor damage and no casualties.

One ship, the Singapore-flag Havpil, a liquefied petroleum gas carrier owned by a Norwegian company, was en route to the Iranian port of Bandar Abbas.

Group claims yeti sighting

MOSCOW (AP) — Researchers from the Ukrainian capital Kiev say they have come to within about 35 yards of a creature they believe to be an abominable snowman in the rugged Pamir Mountains.

The news agency Star reported Wednesday that the group led by Igor Tutsi sighted the creature during a visit last year to the Gissar range in Soviet Central Asia near the Afghanistan border.

The group is preparing for another trip, and hopes to make closer contact, Tutsi said.

Tutsi and other group members noted several night visits to their camp by the creature, called a yeti during their last expedition. It said the four spotted the creature from a distance of 30 to 35 yards.

After watching the people for some time, it went back into the thicket, Tutsi said.

Revolutionary Picasso work returns to its original home

PARIS (AP) — Pablo Picasso's revolutionary masterpiece "Les Femmes d'Alger (O. J.)" is returning to the city where it was painted.

The Cubist work that critics say changed the face of modern art will go on display Wednesday at the Picasso Museum. It will be on loan from the Museum of Modern Art in New York until April 18.

Painted from 1906-07, the work depicts five female nudes in pastel tones, their facial features awkward. Its revolutionary style caused a scandal in the Paris art world when the Spanish master unrolled it for the first time 30 years after he painted it.

Officials of the New York museum have said high transportation and insurance costs and the risk of damage to the painting likely will prohibit them from lending it again. MOMA acquired the painting in 1935.

The 6-foot-by-8-foot canvas was shipped in a specially designed, unshrinkable and temperature-controlled crate. It has been shown here three times since 1983.

Shepard's claim necessary to have bills paid, aide states

BOISE (AP) — Allan Shepard, chief justice of the Idaho Supreme Court, was required to file a workmen's compensation claim to have his medical bills paid for a recent heart attack, says Carl Bianchi, administrative director for the courts.

"He is not seeking any increase in his salary," said Bianchi, in a statement sent to news media Friday afternoon. "If he had not filed these claims, he would have had no medical insurance coverage for his hospital bills."

The Industrial Commission confirmed earlier in the week that Shepard, 66, filed a workmen's compensation claim for an accident last Aug. 7, when he was attending a judicial conference in Rapid City, S.D. Shepard said he and his wife, Donna, suffered minor burns and abrasions when a picnic table tipped over.

Shepard also filed a workmen's compensation claim for a Dec. 2 heart attack. The justice was hospitalized, but has returned to work and will resume presiding over appeals hearings next month.

Bianchi did not answer a reporter's call asking about the claims on Thursday. A secretary said Bianchi preferred that any questions be answered by Shepard. Shepard did not return telephone calls placed to his office on Thursday.

Later in the day, Attorney General Jim Jones issued a statement that Shepard's filing of a claim was not contrary to any opinion issued by his office.

He said press reports indicated that Shepard's filing of the workmen's compensation claim was contrary to an opinion he issued on Dec. 17, 1986.

The 1986 opinion cited deal with the question of vacation pay for elected officials of the executive branch. It has no relevance to worker's compensation laws that compensate employees for bodily injuries resulting from a job," Jones said.

"It was necessary for Justice Shepard to file the claim to preserve his right to reimbursement under the state's health insurance policy. In my opinion, Justice Shepard's actions were both necessary and proper," he said.

Bianchi said Shepard was following the same procedures any other state employee would have to follow to get Blue Shield medical insurance coverage for work-related injuries.

According to the Industrial Commission, Shepard's heart attack claim said his illness was caused by excessive on-the-job stress. The heart attack came just hours after Shepard presided over a hearing that lasted nearly three hours concerning a Public Utilities Commission ruling, and he heard a death-penalty case earlier.

Senate panel confirms 2

BOISE (AP) — The Senate Resources and Environment Committee has endorsed two appointments submitted by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Without objection on Friday, the committee recommended confirmation of Carey rancher Lee Eldridge to the Soil Conservation Commission and Monte Later of St. Anthony to the Parks and Recreation Board.

Air quality to be monitored

POCATELLO (AP) — State and local experts still are trying to find out why this area has persistent air pollution problems, an Idaho air quality specialist says.

Those answers may come later this year following an extensive monitoring program. Helen Rigg of the state's Air Quality Bureau told the Pocatello City Council Thursday.

FMC officials, meantime, contend Pocatello is within the federal guidelines on fine airborne particles and might not deserve the non-attainment classification imposed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Last year, EPA warned there was too much pollution in the air over Bannock and Power counties. That problem has put Pocatello and three other Idaho communities including Boise into a category of non-attainment of air quality standards.

City approves bond election

POCATELLO (AP) — The Pocatello City Council has authorized the city's library board to move ahead with a $1.5 million bond election to purchase and remodel a vacant department store building.

In a 4-2 vote, the council on Thursday approved holding the March 29 election with the library board picking up the expense. Council members Dean Funk and Greg Anderson voted against the election.

The two said they could not justify spending taxpayer dollars on an election that might fail and would be held at a time when taxpayers might least be able to afford it.

Plane crashes in east Idaho

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — A plane crashed in Fremont County Friday afternoon, and a county law enforcement officer said there were fatalities.

The Fremont County official said the plane crashed in the western part of the county.

According to the state Bureau of Aeronautics, the plane was en route from Great Falls, Mont., to Pocatello. Bureau spokesman Jim Connor said authorities were notified of the missing aircraft at 1:30 p.m., and the wreckage was located at 4 p.m.

State workers get a break

BOISE (AP) — For too long, the Idaho Legislature has been in an adversarial relationship with state employees, says a House committee chairman.

"Employees are what make the company," said Rep. Pam Bengson, R-Boise. "They are a very important element in what we do."

She is chairman of the House State Affairs Committee which on Friday gave preliminary approval to four bills on state employee working conditions.

"Employees must be referred to a subcommittee, which will deal with all the recommendations from the legislative committee on personal matters headed by Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder."

Support grows for abuse bill

BOISE (AP) — Supporters of a bill that would require police to make an arrest in domestic violence cases say the measure sends a clear message that spouse battering is a crime.

"Women and children are tortured in these situations," Betty Dunklin, director of the Boise YWCA's Women's and Children's Crisis Center, told the House Judiciary Committee on Thursday.

The committee voted 8 to 6 to introduce the bill. Those who objected to the measure said they did so in part because it was poorly drafted.

Bill focuses on wife rape

BOISE (AP) — Men who rape their wives would not be able to defend themselves in court simply by showing their wedding rings if a bill introduced in the House Judiciary and Rules Committee becomes law.

The committee agreed to introduce a bill on Thursday repealing the Idaho law that prevents prosecution of husbands for rape of their wives. A hearing will be scheduled later.

Richard Cade, deputy director of the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement, said marriage now is an absolute defense for rape, unless the couple has filed for divorce or has been separated for at least 180 days.

Prison expansion bond sale due in February

BOISE (AP) — The revenue bonds to underwrite the $29.3 million expansion of the state prison system will be issued in about two weeks, the executive director of the Idaho Building Authority says.

Wayne Meuleman told legislative budget writers on Friday that the bond issue was being finalized and the sale should take place about Feb. 10.

Some $34 million in bonds will be issued to cover construction of the 240-bed maximum-security facility in Boise and the 100-bed addition to the prison in Orofino.

In addition to money for actual design and construction costs, the issue will include a $3 million contingency fund to cover any cost overruns and $600,000 to underwrite expenses related to the sale.

Public Works Director Anne Barker told the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee that the contingency fund was necessary to ensure the eventual bond holders that the expansion project can be completed with the money generated by the sale.

But Ms. Barker also said the contract the state has with Morrison Knudsen Co. for the construction is drawn tight enough that there should be little or no need to dip into that fund.

If that is the case, the money in the contingency fund would be immediately used to reduce the bonded indebtedness once the expansion is completed. That is scheduled in early 1989.

Some members of the committee raised questions about the high cost of the project, focusing on the estimated $2 million in the contract to cover design and architectural fees. Republican Sen. Herb Carlson of Eagle and Democrat Ron Beitelbacher of Grangerville both suggested the fee was excessive in view of existing designs and drawings of almost identical facilities built in other states.

"I can't imagine that we can't get some drafting student out there to do the work" and save the bulk of that $2 million fee, Beitelbacher said.

But Ms. Barker called the expansion project a very specialized one that would have been well beyond the capabilities of a drafting student. She and other division officials suggested Morrison Knudsen had taken advantage of already prepared materials since its bid for the project was some $6 million less than the other company that sought the work.

"Idaho is receiving a very high-quality facility for prices that are well within the national average costs," Ms. Barker said.

What's what

Nature in sync

Nature tends to synchronize. Line up a dozen grandfather clocks on one wall and start their pendulums swinging at different speeds. In a couple of days all the pendulums will swing simultaneously. So says a scientist who doesn't say why.

If you know about Old West outlaws, you know Frank James was Jesse James' brother. What you may not have known is that Frank James considered himself something of an expert on the writings of William Shakespeare.

Q. How much of the earth's crust is aluminum?
A. A twelfth. Before pop-top cans.

MODEL HOMES

Three out of five people who check out model homes aren't really interested in buying such. A lot of well-dressed people with fine cars but no money buy themselves weekends on visits to open houses. They just crave the courtship of real estate sales people. Or so says one of same.

Q. Quick, who was the first department store Santa Claus?
A. James Edgar. Brockton, Mass. In 1890. He owned the store.

You know what the three contractors got for building the Parliament House in 1811 at Sydney, Australia? Nothing but the exclusive rights to sell rum thereabouts. It was sufficient.

Among Norway's old proverbs: "The lazier the man, the more he'll do tomorrow."

HYPNOTISM

Many a stage hypnotist started each performance by ordering a male subject to stand with one arm extended rigidly. Then repeatedly directed the subject to clench the fist and tighten that arm. Tighter! Tighter! When I say now," intoned the hypnotist, "you'll not be able to move your arm." Try... Now! The subject tried. The arm didn't move at least for a moment. So the subject believed, and belief is the key to hypnotism. What the subject didn't realize is nobody with an extended arm so intently tightened can move it instantly on command. It locks up, however temporarily.

Time and Tyson await no 38-year-old retired heavyweights

By The Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Time and Tyson caught up with Larry Holmes Friday night.

Mike Tyson sent the 38-year-old former champion crashing to the canvas three times in the fourth round and retained the undisputed heavyweight title when the fight was stopped with five seconds left.

"He's great, great," said Muhammad Ali after watching the 21-year-old knocked out Holmes.

A gracious Tyson said that if Holmes "was at his best, I don't stand a chance. At his best, he was the greatest of his time."

Now it's definitely Tyson's time.

"He's a good champ," said Holmes after being stopped with five seconds left in the fourth round. "Give Michael Tyson credit. He's better than I thought he was."

Holmes, who was trying to become the oldest heavyweight champion in history, came out dancing and jabbing in the fourth round, much to the delight of a sellout crowd in the 18,500-seat Convention Center.

For a few seconds, Holmes turned back the clock. Then Father Time and Tyson caught him.

"I knew I'd get him with a right hand," Tyson said. "All through his career, he was susceptible to a right hand, and that was true tonight."

A tremendous right to the side of the head put Holmes down for the first time. The former champion got up immediately and took a mandatory eight-count.

"I saw the opening and I did it. I didn't think he'd get up, but he's a game fighter. I knew once I got him, hurt he was finished," Tyson said.

Holmes was badly dazed, and after Tyson landed several more shots, he went down from a grazing left-right to the head. Once again, he got up almost immediately and took the mandatory eight.

Tyson resumed the attack as Holmes tried desperately to escape.

Holmes almost made it to the end of the round before a tremendous right to the head left him flat on his back. Referee Joe Cortez signaled the fight was over.

"He was fighting back even though he was hurt. He was very dangerous," Tyson said. "I knew I didn't hit him hard enough in a vital area to hurt him permanently."

But as Holmes crashed to the floor, his cornermen and a ringside physician rushed to his side.

As Holmes lay helpless on his back, Cortez removed the boxer's mouthpiece.

Dr. Charles Wilson said Holmes was dazed but said, "I want to get up."

Holmes was helped up several seconds after the final knockdown and attended a television interview at ringside before going to his dressing room.

Holmes said Tyson "caught me with a right hook in the forehead and I went down."

"He's a true champion. He's awkward. He's hard to hit."

Holmes, the world's premier heavyweight for 7 1/2 years, said, "I wanted to come back and prove something. I didn't like the way I went out."

"I'm 38 years old I have nothing to be ashamed of. I'm going to go home tonight and party with my family. Then I'm going to party tomorrow night and I'll laugh all the way to Lafayette Trust Bank," he said.

After 48 straight victories, Holmes suffered his first defeat when he lost the International Boxing Federation title on a decision to Michael Spinks on Sept. 24, 1985. He lost the rematch on April 19, 1986, and then on Nov. 6, announced his retirement.

Retirement surely is where Holmes will return and this time stay.

"Of course this is it, until somebody offers me a lot of money and then I come back out," Holmes said with a laugh.

Tyson, meanwhile, is headed for a March 21 defense against Tony Tubba at Tokyo. And that will be the second fight of a seven-fight, $26.5 million deal he has signed with Home Box Office, which televised Friday night's fight.

The unbeaten Tyson scored his 29th knockout in Holmes and 33rd fight by pursuing Holmes and raising him with head punches as the old champion tried to escape in the fourth.

After taking the second eight count, the only question was whether Holmes could last out the round.

He couldn't.

After several jarring shots to the head as Holmes reeled around the ring, Tyson unleashed the final blow and Holmes went down on his back. The time was 2:55 of the fourth round.

Holmes was able to get up and sit on his stool several seconds after the fight was stopped.

"You have to admit, he's one of the great fighters of his time," Tyson had said of Holmes.

"I'll win. I'll fool all of you," Holmes said as he left the weigh-in Thursday.

Eagles outlast Bruins in OT for region lead

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — In a major league battle for a major division stamp, the Coe College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball team turned back Salt Lake Community College 112-108 in overtime here Friday to take a major step toward the top seeding in Region 18 junior college tournament.

The Eagles, ranked seventh in the National Junior College Athletic Association poll and second in the USA Today jumbo poll, trailed much more than they led, but in the end of regulation it was the Bruins who had to catch up, doing so on a desperation turnaround 3-pointer with a second left.

Once CSI took the lead, a Dave Henderson field goal, the Eagles never trailed again. But their inability to hit free throws kept the issue in doubt until Ken Jarvis hit two free throws with four seconds remaining to establish the final count.

The Eagles, now holding 8-0 in Region 18 against runnerup SLCC's 6-2, won't find the going much easier tonight when they travel to Orem to meet the third-place Utah Valley, which is 5-3 in region action.

As CSI Coach Fred Trenkle had predicted, there may have been more NCAA Division I talent on the floor in this game than any Region 18 has seen before. The Eagles put five men in double figures, but it was their depth that eventually swung the victory.

CSI's defense could not contain SLCC sophomore guard Mark Lewis, who punished the Eagles with 42 points. Teammate Mike Block added 22 more.

It was guard Matt Barnes, however, who hit the whirling three-pointer to force the game into overtime after CSI's Keith Reynolds had sent the Eagles ahead 92-89 with a tip-in and free throw.

Hot-shooting CSI women roll past Salt Lake, 93-78

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — A closing first-half charge, spearheaded by Monica Gustin and Audra Urie, carried into the second half Friday night when the College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team defeated Salt Lake Community College 93-78 in perhaps the biggest win in the eight-year history of women's basketball at CSI.

Gustin wheeled for 18 points in the first half to keep the Eagles ahead of the sharpshooting Bruins in the Region 18 showdown. In the closing 3 minutes and 10 seconds, Gustin joined with Urie in sending CSI ahead. Those two scored the last 11 points with Urie converting a crumple off a steal with two seconds left in the half and a 43-42 advantage. Gustin then opened the second half with four points and, although never comfortable, CSI never trailed again.

CSI must now take on seventh-ranked Utah Valley College in Orem, Utah, tonight in a battle of the Region 18 frontrunners.

The Bruins never trailed by more than nine points and repeatedly cut night-point deficits to four. But the Eagles had a hot hand for almost every occasion. Sandy Rowland and Lisa Phillips provided 4 points each as CSI stayed ahead by 67-63, and then Hettie DeLong came up with eight CSI points over the next few minutes to help the Eagles to their biggest margin at 77-68.

DeLong finally tied it with a pair of three throws with two seconds left.

The Bruins hit 18 of 21 from the Declo thumps Filer, shares Canyon lead

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

FILER — The on-again, off-again Canyon Conference boys' basketball race is on again.

The Declo Hornets put an end to the Filer-Wildcats six-game winning streak by blasting the host team 76-50 Friday night.

The victory put Declo in a tie for first place in the conference. The Hornets, now 9-3, and Filer, 6-3, both have one league loss apiece.

Filer's full-court press caused five Declo turnovers and gave the Wildcats a 4 lead just five minutes into the contest.

The Wildcats were up 15-10 when Declo's Greg Kowitz brought the ball up the court, took a couple of steps and banked one in off the backboard to cut the lead to 15-13.

That's when the momentum shifted.

After Filer scored early, Declo reeled off 23 unanswered points and it made that margin stand up for the entire game.

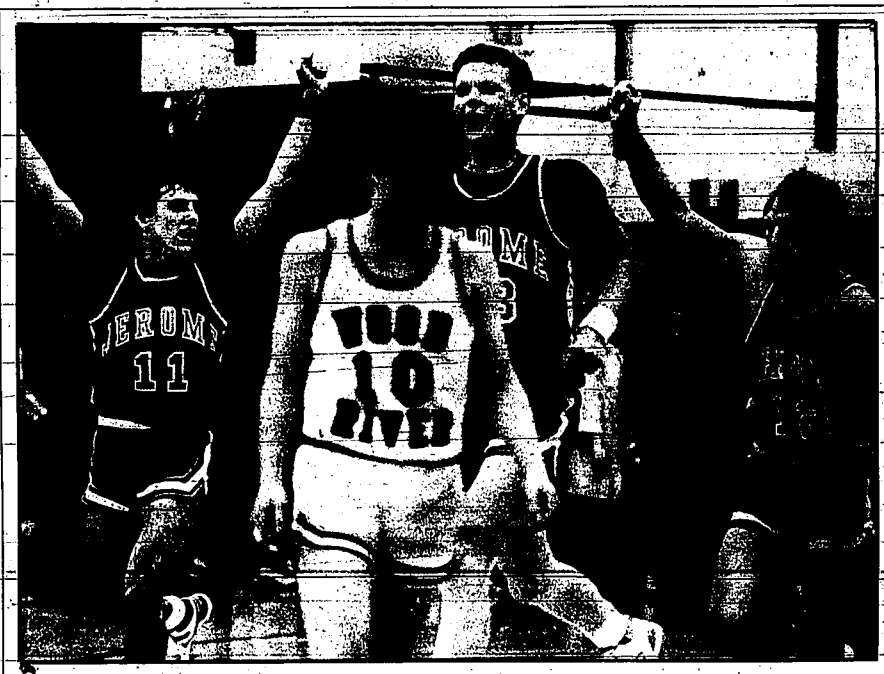

"That sparked us. You bet," said Declo Coach Ron Knowles. "I was hollering at them because they were down in the first quarter." Coach LaRell Patterson was still confused after the game about that key play.

"Mentally, I don't know what it (the shot) did to us," he said.

Declo's Jeff Steadman, who didn't score in the first quarter, and Kowitz each added eight in the quarter that saw the Hornets outscore the Cats 25-4.

Darin Matthews put Declo up by a dozen in the quarter with a drive inside and popped one from the three-point area for Declo's

Super-sub helps lift No. 1 Jerome past No. 2 Wood River

By RON GATES
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Jerome senior Shawn Thompson scored 10 of his game-high 21 points and sophomore Tracy Dixon chipped in six of his 14 in a decisive third quarter Friday to propel top-ranked Jerome away from No. 2 Wood River and to a 65-44 South-Central Idaho Conference boys' basketball victory.

Tripling throughout most of the first 16 minutes of the contest, Jerome grabbed a narrow 10-2 advantage 30 seconds before the buzzer on Clint Bailey's drive.

The key in the matchup between the top two teams in Class A-2 in the latest Associated Press poll was third-quarter field goal shooting. Wood River was 2-for-8; Jerome 6-for-9.

Dixon, starting in place of injured senior Glenn Lewitt, opened the third quarter with two points on a baseline drive. Thompson knocked in a six-footer after a missed Wolverine shot before Danny Armstrong got Wood River off 23 at the 5-minute, 35-second mark.

Dixon and Scott Burton extended the margin to 38-31 on the Tigers' next two trips down the floor before Shawn Bunch claimed his club's final points of the period.

Shawson began the coup de grace with a long rainbow worth three at 1:20, then added a free throw off Wolverine Rick Bradshaw's third foul.

The Tigers moved out to a double-digit advantage, the result of a 6-point swing when Wood River fouled, protested and was assessed a technical foul. Thompson contributed two more from the charity stripe and Dixon closed the quarter on a jumper from 16 feet.

Wolverine coach Dick Richel opted for a full-court press in the last eight minutes, but things didn't get any better for his Wolverines as Bailey, Jerome point-guard Jeff VanOrman and Dixon feasted off backdoor openings.

The loss dropped Wood River to 11-2 for the season, 2-1 in the SCIC and 1-1 in the all-important District 4 standings, breaking a nine-game winning streak in the process. Jerome, now 10-2, is 3-1 in the SCIC and 2-0 in the District 4 rankings.

It was all Wood River in the first quarter. Jaques, who finished with 21 points, got 17 of those in the half, including 11 points on 3-for-3 shooting from the three-point range. Mike Wheeler snapped a tie at 7 with another three-pointer and after Bailey answered with a free throw from Jerome. Jaques nailed two from that range to double the Tigers at 15-8.

Bailey and Thompson scored to make it 18-14 at the first break. It stayed between two and four points until Bailey's go-ahead points just before just before the half.

"We still feel like they're the team to beat," said Jerome Coach Ben Allen. "We tried to keep the game fairly low-keyed and they got out on us early. We felt like we had to come out of our zone because of the three-pointers."

"I think that surprised Wood River," he concluded.

Spartans struggle in 51-41 victory over Skyline

By ALAN PHILLIPS
Special to The Times-News

IDAHO FALLS — Teams of great ability will struggle at times, and the Minico Spartans struggled in their loss to Bonneville Wednesday night.

"They continued to struggle in a 51-41 victory over Skyline here Friday."

Minico trailed throughout the first half of its Gem State Conference basketball game against the Grizzlies. But in the second half, the Spartans' superior ability began to show.

Early in the third period, Minico junior Dan Poulton stole the ball two consecutive times to stake the Spartans their ninth victory in 11 games this season.

"We struggled early," said Minico Coach Craig Dexter. "But eventually our ability got us going."

Minico had a hard time finding the range.

In the first quarter, the Spartans shot 18 percent from the floor. They didn't score a field goal in the second quarter until the final two minutes, but trailed by only six points, at 20-14.

Jack Bagley hit his first field goal of the night, a three-pointer, while Kalen McKenzie scored his first field goal and Robert Greener added a bucket at the end of the quarter to send the Spartans into the dressing room trailing 22-21.

Minico trailed 26-25 in the third quarter when Poulton got his two steals and Minico ran off 12 straight points taking a 35-26 lead.

"We're bouncing back and forth between two defenses," said Dexter. "Danny (Poulton) understands the

Bruins continue slump, succumb to Pocatello

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Immediately following Friday night's 4-31 Gem State Conference boys' basketball loss to Pocatello, the Twin Falls High School pep band played an affectionate rendition of Stand By Me to a sparse crowd in Scuin Gymnasium.

The Ben E. King classic was especially fitting because the loss was the Bruins' fifth straight. They have yet to win a Gem State Conference game this season.

Despite the loss that dropped Twin Falls Region III record to 1-4, Bruin Coach John Astorquin said his team displayed the best defensive effort he has seen in years and eventually the offense will catch up.

Pocatello scored 70 points in its last week against I.F. (Idaho Falls) — we couldn't have asked for a better defensive effort. Since we've reached this plateau on defense, we'll keep building on that," Astorquin said. "I think the shots are going to come. It's just like being in a boxing slump."

"It's a hard thing to go through — losing nine straight games," he continued.

In fact, both teams were displaying unpredictable offensive defenses throughout the game. Pocatello was however, able to convert the perimeter shots a little more often than Twin Falls.

After trading three-point goals and field goals in the opening minutes of the first quarter, 6-foot, 5-inch senior Matt House canned a 17-footer to put the Indians in front for good at 7-5.

Pocatello tightened up its defense

In the second quarter, allowing Twin Falls only six points. The Indians went into the locker room, at halftime up 21-13.

The Bruins never let Pocatello out of their sights in the second half. Their zone defense held the Indians to nine points in the third quarter, but could muster only seven points themselves. Thus, the hole got deeper.

Turnovers and lack of shooting doomed Twin Falls in the fourth period. The Bruins managed only four points in the first five minutes of the final quarter while Pocatello got the jump start it needed offensively from 6-2 senior Mark Coram. Coram poured in six of Pocatello's 14 points in the fourth quarter.

Coram and House led all scorers with 10 and 12 points respectively. Junior guard Jeremy Eller topped Twins with only five points.

Twin Falls scoring with eight points.

The loss dropped Twin Falls to 1-9 for the year and 0-9 in the GSC.

After being held to a single basket in the second quarter, Jordan broke a 59-59 midway through the third quarter with a long jumper.

A layup by Dave Corjuzer boosted the Bulls to a 84-70 lead with 1:01 left in the quarter.

The Bulls' biggest lead was 103-88 with 5:57 remaining before Phoenix rallied.

The Suns, who have lost four straight, were led by Eddie Johnson with 23 points, while Gilliam and Larry Vance added 16 apiece.

With Jordan hitting on all five shots, the Bulls took a 26-20 first-quarter lead.

But Johnson, coming off the bench, scored nine second-quarter points to give Phoenix a 47-44 edge before the Bulls pulled ahead 51-49 at halftime.

Hawks (Utah had 48 Dec. 19) and the Celtics' 37 assists were the most by any team against Atlanta.

The Celtics' shot 55.3 percent against a team that was holding opponents to 44.8 percent.

"We won this game because we were at home," because we have talent — and because they played last night Thursday," Larry Bird said.

"They put on quite a show," Fratello said.

It took the Celtics until the third quarter to get into their showtime mode after a curious first half in which referee Jack Nies and Joe Crawford leaned heavily on their whistles.

Camas, Carey winners in tournament opener

By The Times-News

GOODING — Third-seeded Camas county fourth-seeded Carey edged narrow victories over Ketchum-Sun Valley and Dietrich here Friday night in the opening round of the District 4 Class A-4 Northside Subdistrict girls' basketball tournament.

The Mustangs defeated the Cuthroths 31-25, setting up an 8:30 p.m. encounter tonight in the Idaho State School for the Deaf and the Blind Gymnasium here against second-seeded Bliss.

Earlier, the Panthers shaded the Blues 17-15 and will take on top-seeded Richfield in tonight's 7 p.m. second-round game.

In that game, Dietrich ran off 10 straight points before Jessica Taylor finally hit for the Panthers. The Blue Devils took an 8-7 lead in the locker room at the half, but the Panthers came out on strong in the second half, pulling to within one at the end of the third quarter, then outscoring the Blue Devils nine to six over the last eight minutes for the win.

In the nightcap, the Musers had to overcome a 9-5 first quarter deficit and trailed 17-11 at halftime before outscoring the Community School 10 to 8 in the last eight minutes to put the game away.

Crystal Miller led Camas with 10 points while Ketchum's Jessica Davies led all scorers with 11.

Lendl robbed by Cash

MELBOURNE, Australia (DPA) — Ivan Lendl's Grand Slam dream was shattered again Friday by Pat Cash, the one to Lendl last year in the Australian Open and robbed him of his Wimbledon dream, too.

In a dramatic four-hour encounter before 16,000 fans in home city, Cash won 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2 against the Cechobolski, rated No. 1 one in the world.

So, for another year Lendl, who had been training here since mid-December, led the Grand Slam prospect of winning the Australian, French and U.S. Opens plus Wimbledon all in one year.

"I'm very disappointed. It's so frustrating," was Lendl's short comment to reporters.

"I've worked so hard for it, and now it's all for nothing."

Cash, who meets Sweden's Mats Wilander in Sunday's final, ran a victory lap around the newly built Park Stadium and threw eight of his distinctive black and white headbands to the cheering crowd.

Haas, Azinger take lead in Hope classic

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) — Jay Haas birdied his final hole and tied Paul Azinger for the third-round lead Friday in the $1 million Bob Hope Classic.

Haas, the first-round leader, and Azinger each completed three rounds of this five-day, 90-hole event with a score of 200, 16 shots under par.

Haas, the last of the 128 pros to complete play in the "chilly" desert dusk, had a 69 on the Palmer course at PGA West.

Azinger blitzed the back nine at Indian Wells in 30, finishing off a 65.

The unique format for this tournament calls for the pros to play only over each of four courses, each day with a different amateur team, before the field is cut for the pro-only final round at Indian Wells on Sunday.

Bob Tway, who won the 1986 PGA and Player of the Year titles, was two strokes off the pace at 202 after a 67 at Indian Wells. He was followed at 203 by Andy Magee, who had a 68 at PGA West.

Brett Upper and Donnie Hammond, whose amateur careers in this event two years ago, were next at 204. Upper had a 67 and Hammond 70, both at Indian Wells.

Haas will play his fourth round at Bermuda Dunes.

The Greek hospitalized with pains

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, fired last weekend by CBS Sports after making offensive remarks about blacks, was admitted to Duke Medical Center Friday with chest pains.

A hospital spokesman who asked not to be identified confirmed Snyder, 70, was admitted to the Medical Center at 2:29 p.m. EST.

Snyder spent several days in July in Duke's Medical Center, where examinations revealed that one of the three arteries to his heart was blocked. He joked at the time that "The interns were laying 16-1 odds that I would make it."

Top economists predict inevitable downturn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top economists told Congress Friday there is little government can do to avert a recession in the next couple of years, but that the downturn is likely to be a mild one.

While the predominant belief was that the United States will avoid a recession during this presidential election year, many of the private economists said a downturn grew increasingly likely in 1989 or 1990.

The analysts appeared before the Joint Economic Committee of Congress as it conducted hearings into the country's economic prospects following last year's turmoil in financial markets.

Allen Sinai, chief economist for the Beeton Co., a subsidiary of Shearson Lehman Brothers, said that the current expansion had already lasted a peacetime record of 61 months and was growing increasingly vulnerable.

"The best prospect is that the U.S. economy can expand for yet another year, although not without considerable risks," Sinai said.

"Huge (debt) imbalances are calling the tune on a winding down of the current business expansion toward the next recession.

Sinai said he was forecasting the overall economy, as measured by the gross national product, would expand at a sluggish pace of between 2 percent and 2.5 percent this year, down from 3.9 percent in 1987. This is in line with the Reagan administration's official forecast of 2.4 percent GNP growth this year.

Irwin Kellner, chief economist of Manufacturers Hanover, was the only economist to testify during two days of hearings who forecast a recession starting this year.

Kellner predicted the downturn will begin in early 1988 and last the entire year, a forecast not likely to be greeted with enthusiasm by Republicans hoping to hold onto the White House.

He said that auto and housing, two key sections of the economy, are already in decline and that hoped-for strength in business investment spending and U.S. export sales would not be enough to offset a slump in consumer demand.

Kellner said there are only two reasons why a recession might not drop in the stock market of the magnitude which occurred this past fall — a decline of 36 percent from mid-August to mid-October — did not trigger a recession.

According to Kellner, a 40 percent drop in stock prices during World War did not bring on a recession because the war buildup was enough to offset the adverse effects from the decline.

But Kellner said he was not looking for a recession anywhere as severe as the one which followed the 1929 stock market crash.

"I don't look for it to be any worse than the average in terms of post-war standards and not as bad as 1981-82," he said.

Kellner and several of the other economists said they did not think it would be such the government could do to avert a downturn.

Nariman Behrveiw, senior vice president at the WEAFA Group, formerly Wharton Econometrics, said that the string of high federal budget deficits effectively blocked further expansionary moves on the part of the federal government.

Alan S. Dinster, an economics professor at Princeton University, agreed.

"Given the inglorious budget history that has gotten up to this point, fiscal stimulus seems out of the question," he said. "We would be content with a fiscal policy that does not subpar a destructive force turn subpar government into a recession."

But Robert Eisner, an economics professor at Northwestern

Broad rally boosts prices

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put together a broad rally in quiet trading Friday, attracting some support after a sell-off earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 24.20 to 1,903.61, reducing its loss for the week to 62.66 points.

Advances outnumbered declines by more than 5 to 2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 1,132 up, 416 down and 441 untraded.

Big Board volume totaled 147.05 million shares, against 158.08 million in the previous session.

Analysts said traders did a bit of "bargain hunting" in technology issues that were hit hard by selling a few days ago.

They also said investors were taking note of recent declines in bond market interest rates. Prices of long-term government bonds rose about $5 for each $1,000 in face value in Friday's trading, putting their yields in the 8.65-8.7 percent range.

Lower rates would logically stand to reduce the chances of a recession in the months ahead.

At the same time they would sooner or later reduce the drawing power of bonds in competition with stocks for investors' favor.

First Interstate profits climb third during '87

BOISE (AP) — Profits of First Interstate Bank of Idaho increased 33 percent last year, and a senior executive predicts the state's third-largest banking chain will post record profits in 1988.

First Interstate reported a net of $4.5 million, compared with $3.4 million in 1986. It was close to the company's earnings record of $4.6 million posted in 1980, said Kay Orgill, First Interstate's chief financial officer.

"Nineteen-eighty-eight will definitely be a record year," said Orgill.

The bank's parent company, the Los Angeles-based First Interstate Bancorp, reported a $566 million loss for the year. The company was one of several major banks reporting losses for 1987.

The loss reflected the costs of strengthening its coverage for troubled Latin American loans and restructuring.

First Interstate of Idaho said it worked at reducing its non-performing loans in 1987. "We continue to put asset problems behind us, as well as maintain a cautious reserve for any potential problems," said James Curran, president and chief executive of the bank.

Orgill said First Interstate has beefed up its earnings by continuing a series of strategic moves started in 1985. They were cutting expenses, improving efficiency and being more aggressive in dealing with problem loans, especially farm loans, he said.

He said non-performing assets are down 35 percent from the end of 1986.

Boise Cascade net jumps 79% over '86 level

BOISE (AP) — Boise Cascade, an integrated forest service products company, reported net income of $183 million for 1987, a 79.4 percent increase over the previous year that the company attributed to cost-cutting and good market conditions.

John B. Fary, board chairman and chief executive officer, said the Boise-based company experienced strong market conditions for all the company's major business units. It also saw significant results from cost-reduction efforts and a restructuring program, he said.

The company said 1987's net income was up $81 million over $102 million in 1986. For share net income last year was $3.70, compared to $1.99 per share in 1986.

Income from the company's paper and paper products segment was substantially higher in 1987 than in 1986, even after considering the effects of the 1986 strike at a plant in Rumford, Maine.

Income was especially strong in the fourth quarter, when demand for products — especially products — peaked, the company said.

Corrugated container prices also improved, but profit margins continued to be squeezed as box prices failed to fully keep pace with the increases in raw materials.

The company's building products segment ended the year slightly more profitable than in 1986. The company said income for the fourth quarter was down from the same period of 1986 because the pace of new home construction slackened toward the end of the year.

Favorable market conditions during the last half of the year allowed the company's office products segment to finish the year ahead of its 1986 performance, the company said.

Fery predicted that the company's results would improve in 1988, as long as the world economy maintains its moderate growth.

"Even if an economic downturn does occur, Boise Cascade should weather the downturn well due to the company's flexible capital spending and improved cost structure."

He announced the company would invest about $400 million in 1988 in high-return, fast-payback projects aimed at reducing costs, improving productivity and upgrading product mix.

The company ended the year with a fourth-quarter net income of $57 million, or $1.20 a share, compared to $32 million, or 62 cents a share, in the same quarter in 1986. Per-share amounts were adjusted to reflect a five-for-three split of the company's stock.

Sales for the fourth quarter were $978 million, compared with $952 million for the same quarter a year ago.

Sales for the year were $3.8 billion, compared with $3.7 billion in 1986.

The company said relatively flat year-to-year sales volume resulted from its divestiture of several operations.

Moore Financial ends $16.9 million in black

BOISE (AP) — Moore Financial Group ended 1987 with a $16.9 million net income after losing $3.3 million the previous year and decreasing its provision for credit losses by 61 percent.

"We are particularly pleased with the restructuring of the balance sheet, growth in capital and improvements in credit quality," Donald S. Nelson, chairman and chief executive officer of the Boise-based bank holding company said Thursday.

"We reorganized business lines, diversified operations throughout our three-state market area and implemented cost-cutting decisions which will provide the basis to show continued improvement in 1988," he said.

Moore Financial announced that net income for 1987 totaled $22.5 million, compared to 47 cents a share in 1986 when the company had a loss.

The provision for credit losses decreased 61 percent from 1986 to $20.8 million for 1987. The allowance for credit losses was maintained at $46.8 million, or 2.38 percent of total loans on Dec. 31.

Non-performing assets totaled $70 million at the end of 1987. Net charge-offs for the year were $21.2 million, a decrease of 38 percent from $34.2 million in 1986.

Moore Financial said fourth-quarter net income was $5.1 million, or 66 cents per share. That compared with $3.4 million, or 43 cents a share, during the same quarter of 1986.

The company's board declared a fourth-quarter dividend of 30 cents per share at its December meeting. The dividend was payable Thursday to shareholders of record as of Jan. 4.

"During the year, shareholders' equity grew 13.8 percent to $220.4 million, the company said, largely as a result of 1987 retained income and a successful dividend reinvestment program.

Primary capital was 8 percent of total assets and total capital 8.7 percent of total assets, the company said.
