CIA denies sending secret info to Noriega

The Associated Press WASHINGTON — A former aide to Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega testified Tuesday that the CIA regularly sent the Panamanian strongman classified reports on U.S. senators and their aides, including details on their personal lives.

Such activity by the CIA during the Vietnam war triggered investigations of the CIA and led to the creation of special Senate and House committees to keep close watch over the agency.

ward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. The reports detailed "Kennedy's positions, and his own personal problems," Blandon told the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on terrorism, narcotics and international organizations.

The Associated Press WASHINGTON — Soviet Foreign Minister Gorbachev's offer to remove troops from Afghanistan is "a very important step," the White House spokesman said.

15 clinic doctors back MSTI center

By PAT MARCANTONIO Times-News writer TWIN FALLS — Fifteen out of 16 doctors at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital issued Tuesday a strong statement favoring a Twin Falls cancer center operated by a Boise facility rather than Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

The doctors also say that clinic patients will still be referred to the Mountain States Tumor Institute in Boise until the hospital center proves itself to provide treatment equal to that at MSTI.

INS disagrees with private study over success of amnesty program

The Associated Press WASHINGTON — The government is in danger of falling far below its initial estimate of involving 2 million illegal aliens with its amnesty program, a former immigration official said in a study released Tuesday.

The INS public information campaign for the year-long program was "seriously inadequate" because it didn't emphasize reaching illegals through churches, employers and other groups, it said.

Nurses oppose bill, but end up in middle of sensitive issue

By JANE ROBISON Times-News writer BOISE — A roomful of nurses took shots at a bill governing the education and licensure requirements for nurses, but in the end, it was nurses who got stuck in the middle of a politically sensitive issue.

"This is not a consumer-driven bill," said Marilyn Haynes, president of the Idaho Nursing Association, following the hearing. "This is politically motivated and a community-college driven bill. They're afraid of losing money."

at Nursing, and it has nothing to do with licensing the board," said Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Boise Idaho. "The critical issue is the way government is managed. And this Legislature will do what we have to do to retain control."

longer have the power to veto administrative rules. Lawmakers have become sensitive on the issue. Nurses argued repeatedly that the bill was unnecessary and an intrusion into the Board of Nursing's ability to meet the changing demands of the nursing profession.

She said the bill would set up two standards for nurses taking the licensure tests, one for in-state students and one for out-of-state students. But Crapo said the bill does not change current standards, nor limit new educational requirements.

Dole, Gephardt plunge into New Hampshire primary fray

By The Associated Press

Republican Sen. Bob Dole and Democratic Rep. Richard Gephardt blew into New Hampshire on Tuesday, two Midwesterners angling to jump-start the Iowa caucus "finishing" in advantage in next week's lead-off presidential primary elections.

But Pat Robertson, Iowa's surprise Republican primary victor, said the vice president's "myth of invincibility" was gone. Another rival forecast Bush's swift political demise despite the vice president's lead in New Hampshire polls.

Among the Democrats in Iowa, also surprise victor Dukakis, the man to beat, said, "The important thing is who comes in second."

Others seemed excited to join Dukakis in a more aggressive approach. Traditionally, the first primary is also the last for many of the also-rans.

Rural voters part of Gore strategy

BOISE (AP) — Contenders for the 1992 presidential nomination cannot afford to overlook delegates even in small, rural traditionally Republican states such as Idaho.

As his last stop, Gore stopped to visit with Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus-Aides said they became acquainted in Washington in 1977, as Gore was entering Congress as a freshman and Andrus was starting a term as interior secretary under President Jimmy Carter.

Gore told an earlier news conference he is centering his strategy in Idaho and the other states which will pick the bulk of their delegates on Super Tuesday, party gatherings on March 8.

carry out the terms of the contract. Using a set of charts, Blandon described a network of people and allegedly used by Noriega to profit from drug-running and money-laundering operations.

There are a whole lot of independent-thinking voters out there who look less at party labels than at individual candidates," Gore said.

"There are more delegates here than in a lot of states," said Gore. "This is a contest for delegates and you go where the delegates are."

"It will be a close, hard-fought contest and it could come down to a few delegates," he said.

It was "reprehensible" that the reports included details about senators' personal lives. He said the sharing of such data was apparently part of the migration process, part of the sweetheart relations between Noriega and the CIA, which allegedly used the Panamanian leader as an intelligence source.

D'Amato said Blandon's "chilling story" illustrates the erosion of a nation's sovereignty by the corrupting influence of narcotics money.

He estimated the Panamanian leader's fortune at less than $200 million but said there are some estimates pegging it closer to $1 billion.

The Tennessee Democrat spent about three hours of campaigning here, including a speech before about 200 at an Ada County Democrat Party gathering. In quest of Idaho's 25 delegates to the national convention.

Andrus said Gore asked for a commitment of support. The governor said he was uncommitted and wants to go to the national convention that way.

Gore ignored the Iowa party meetings Monday night, saying the importance of Iowa in the presidential election process has been blown out of proportion.

Blanton also said a document detailing a plan to ease Noriega out of official control to Panama problems, which he drafted and showed to some U.S. officials, found its way in a "partial version" to Noriega through someone working for the U.S. Defense Department.

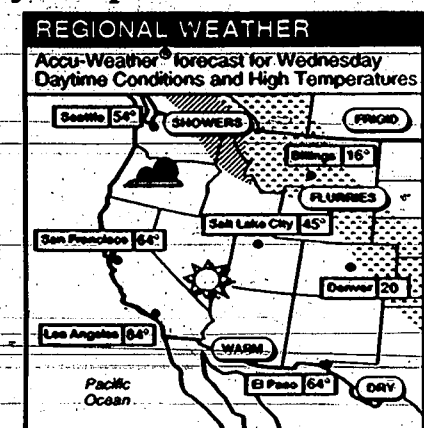

"The intelligence community of the United States had better join the battle against this force instead of cooperating with the scum of the earth, as they have been doing," he said.

He said Noriega lives lavishly, maintaining a dozen homes in Panama, a fleet of luxury cars and aircraft and a residence in France.

Rosy test picture may be misleading

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public is getting an overly rosy picture of American schools from standardized achievement tests that allow school districts to claim their pupils are above average, a top Education Department official said Tuesday.

Chester E. Finn Jr., the assistant secretary for educational research and improvement, said most test-makers are not experts who attended a closed meeting at the Education Department agreed that the tests have exhibited a "Lake Wobegone effect."

He was referring to humorist Garrison Keillor's mythical hometown "where all the children are above average."

By definition, half the children in the United States are above the national average and half below it.

But John Good Cannell, a crusading West Virginia legislator, recently canvassed every state and could not find a single one that reported its elementary pupils were below average on any of the six major commercial tests.

The report published by Cannell's Daniela W.Va. group, Friends for Education, Inc., was the springboard for the discussion that took place among 40 test-makers, educators and federal officials. Bennett of Education William J. Bennett did not attend.

Finn said, "This was not a bash-the-test-publishers-or-bash-the-teachers session." There was a near consensus that Dr. Cannell has identified an authentic problem in American education. Finn said the tests "give a lot of people a misleading impression of the actual condition of education in their kids' schools."

And almost always it is a falsely optimistic or cheerful impression, said Finn, who promised to seek ways to get better information about the tests into the hands of consumers.

Cannell accused the test publishers of conspiring with school officials to make the schools look good. "Seventy-five percent of children in the U.S. are told they are above average," he charged.

The tests are "extremely racist," he said, because they allow schools to avoid the expense of remedial education. "This system allows the public schools in this country to continue to provide inferior, inadequate education."

David Deflkey, general manager of CTB/McGraw Hill, which markets both the California Achievement Test and the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills, denied Cannell's allegations.

"The tests serve a very fine purpose," including pointing out which children need remediation and in what subjects, said Deflkey.

For one $3-a-child testing, you get a multiplicity of purposes... all designed to improve education in that school district."

W. James Popham, a professor at UCLAS in Los Angeles, said, "It's not conspiratorial. It's not collusive. But what we see is a sublime melding of self-interest."

Cannell asked, "How can East St. Louis be above the national average? ... How can Harlan County, Kentucky, be above the national average?"

F.D. Hoover, a University of Iowa professor who directs Iowa's statewide testing and also helps set the norm for the commercial Iowa Test of Basic Skills, defended the test-makers' national norms. He said American school children are performing at higher levels today than they did a decade or more ago.

But amid rising demands for school accountability, Hoover said, the tests are being used "in a high stakes way for which they are not intended."

The major national tests — CAT, CTBS, the Iowa test, SRA, the Metropolitan Achievement Test and the Stanford Achievement Test — are revised and re-normed only every seven to nine years.

Usually a school district buys the test and reuses the same exam for several years, with teachers knowing precisely what questions their children will be asked.

Gas tax designed to catch cheaters

May force state, county service cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was on tax-cheats — is producing some innocent casualties: state and local governments that may be forced to cut services in order to pay a federal tax on gasoline.

The gas tax will be refunded by the federal government but no one is sure how long that will take for the amount and state and local governments will lose the use of the tax money.

"We buy about $886,000 worth of gasoline a year and the tax on that is about $80,000," explained Mayor Wayne Corbeting of Winston-Salem, N.C. "What we do is pay that $80,000 to the government and lose interest on it. We don't spend the money where it's needed. And the law creates a lot of paperwork for us and for the IRS."

A similar problem faces farmers who use diesel fuel for off-the-road purposes. Starting April 1, they will have to pay the 15.1-cent-a-gallon tax on each purchase of diesel fuel for a fund when they file their income-tax return each year.

Officials of Dade County, Fla., estimate they will have to pay $1 million a year in tax on purchases of gasoline for county vehicles.

"The bottom line is that there is a revenue need by the feds," said Susan White, legislative representative of the National Association of Counties. "They want to curb abuse and don't mind losing it with our money."

State and local governments were caught in the net that Congress threw out in an effort to halt cheating on the 9.1-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax. Lawmakers found oil-industry intermediaries often were buying tax-free gasoline at wholesale under a false claim that it would be taxed when resold.

Congress' solution, written into a huge 1986 bill that overhauled the income tax, requires that the gasoline tax be paid at the time fuel is sold by refiners to wholesalers. Although that is expected to stop much of the cheating, it also takes from states, counties and cities their privilege of buying tax-free.

"That was known when the provision was being debated," said John Calvin, minority tax counsel to the Senate Finance Committee.

Members viewed it as a tradeoff between ensuring that the tax is paid and the inconvenience caused to those having to apply for a refund.

The change took effect Jan. 1 and the Internal Revenue Service has yet to issue regulations explaining how states and local governments should apply for rebates.

However, the IRS has issued a notice that permits government units to avoid the tax if wholesalers agree to process the paperwork. But that will not work, says Ms. White, the counties' representative, "because the wholesalers have no incentive to do all that paperwork."

"We anticipate the IRS is going to be flooded with applications for rebates and we have great concern whether they will be able to handle them in a timely fashion," said Lance Simmens, assistant executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. "It could take anywhere from six to 12 months to get a rebate."

Shuttle booster nozzle bolts to be replaced

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA and rocket builder Morton Thiokol said Tuesday it may have to replace 72 bolts in the nozzle of each space shuttle booster as a preventive measure to plug all possible leaks.

"Replacement is being considered because the bolts are threaded all the way to the bolt head instead of having a smooth bolt shank," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. The agency explained that a smooth shank may be preferred to assure that special washers under the bolt heads seal properly.

"Further special tests and analyses are being conducted to determine if replacement of the bolts and seals is necessary," NASA said.

"The bolts have always been part of the nozzle design but the special seal washers under the bolt heads were added since the Challenger accident as a safety measure."

The groove in the threads represent potential tiny leak paths which the seal is designed to prevent," said Rocky Raab, a Morton Thiokol spokesman in Utah. He said preliminary tests have shown no leaks.

The bolts are part of the nozzle joint, but are not the highly publicized ones added as part of the rocket redesign that followed the Challenger accident. The 72 bolts are a different group and are used to attach the nozzle's fixed housing to the nozzle's flex bearing assembly.

Raab said rocket nozzles being prepared for flight already are disassembled to correct an earlier problem and "it is decided to replace those bolts, it's not a difficult or time-consuming job."

But Raab said he could not assure that the replacements, if they are ordered, will not delay the first post-Challenger shuttle flight now targeted for Aug. 4.

King holiday proposal stirs quick uproar

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Acting Gov. Rose Mofford's call for reinstating a Martin Luther King holiday drew a partisan reaction from legislators Tuesday, with Republicans calling it a "divisive" reminder of the problems facing impeached Gov. Evan Mecham.

One of Mecham's first moves after taking office last year was to rescind former Gov. Bruce Babbitt's order for a holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader, to be observed by all executive branch workers.

Mrs. Mofford, who like Babbitt is a Democrat, said Monday a King holiday would be a higher priority. Mecham is a Republican.

"Would it ever be divisive?" said House Majority Leader Jim Ratliff, a Republican. "Now is not the time to get into that one" as the Senate gears up for Mecham's trial, he added.

However, House Minority Leader Art Hamilton, a Democrat and the proposed holiday's strongest backer in the Legislature, said he agreed with Mrs. Mofford that a King holiday could be an important part of the political healing process in Arizona following Mecham's impeachment.

In other developments Tuesday:

- The Senate formally scheduled an impeachment trial for Feb. 22 for Mecham, whose next faces a pay-17 recall election and criminal charges of allegedly concealing a $350,000 campaign loan. Mecham has pleaded innocent to the criminal charges.
- Mrs. Mofford met with state agency heads and told them she has no plan to replace them. She also asked them to file personal financial disclosure statements even though they are not required to by law.
- Mecham arrived alone at the Capitol to continue clearing out his office. He told reporters he would move out "as fast as I can, that's what they want." He said his goal was to "get to work and get it all straightened out so I can come back and put things on the course I want to go."

For many, New Hampshire turns into a fight for survival

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
The Associated Press

Analysis

CONCORD, N.H.—The testy exchanges that marked the final week of the Iowa campaign should look like Valentines when compared with the fight for survival in the seven days before the New Hampshire primary.

With a record turnout, Iowans delivered a tough message to candidates in both major parties. To many of the 13 contenders, they served notice that New Hampshire would be the last stand for their 1988 hopes.

The most prominent figure in trouble is Vice President George Bush. And it must be small consolation that there are other Republicans teetering much closer to the edge of political oblivion.

Alexander M. Haig Jr. has been on the edge ever since he started thinking about really being in charge at the White House. Making better runs than Haig but equally in need of a leg of help from New Hampshire Republicans next Tuesday, were Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and former Gov. Pete du Pont of Delaware.

Among the Democrats, former Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona will soon be just a pleasant memory, a man who displayed more wit than broad voter appeal.

For Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, second in Iowa, won't be good enough if he can't move ahead of Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri in the next contest.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis New Hampshire neighbors had better be kind to him or his bubble will burst.

It's over for Gary Hart. The only question is whether he knows it. Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee is the forgotten man of the Democratic race. He passed up Iowa and appears ready to do the same in New Hampshire, a strategy that depends on the rest of the field to keep his hopes alive.

The candidates who came out of Iowa in the best shape were easy to spot—Republicans Bob Dole and Pat Robertson and Democrats Gephardt and Jesse Jackson.

Now that there is a dynamic set by voters rather than opinion polls, what is likely to happen? Forget the truce between Dole and Bush. They squabbled like alley cats the final week in Iowa and their cooled their rhetoric the day before the caucuses.

In his way to New Hampshire, Dole was asked whether he would continue running negative ads about Bush in New Hampshire.

"We don't run negative ads," he replied. "We've had a positive ad showing my record."

Well, not so positive from the Bush viewpoint.

The ad shows pictures of Dole and Bush. The narrator cites Dole as leading the fight to save Social Security; cut taxes and ratify the pending arms control treaty. On each issue, the voice also says, "George Bush had nothing to do with it." The picture of Bush gradually fades out.

Asked if he didn't think that ad was negative, Dole said, "That's an official photo, it's a good picture."

On the Bush side, his staff lobbied mud-at-Dole during Iowa in the hope that the senator would explode.

"I was a bit testy a time or two," conceded Dole. But, for the most part, he kept his cool.

There is every reason to assume that with Bush fighting for survival, his staff will redouble their effort to trigger Dole's temper. Kemp has hammered hard at Bush and Dole on the issues of Social Security and taxes, contending both of them supported tax increases and Social Security cuts.

Gephardt scored well in Iowa with a campaign against the Hyundai, the Korean-imported car that the congressman said would cost $48,000 if the Koreans didn't lower trade barriers.

10-face trading charges

CHICAGO (AP)—The U.S. Justice Department on Tuesday accused 10 men of taking part in illegal commodities trading schemes, including one in which wigs, makeup and phony credentials were used to gain access to the trading pits at one exchange.

U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas said the four unrelated cases resulted from an investigation begun more than 18 months ago to monitor possible commodity fraud in the marketplace and elsewhere.

In the phony credentials case, federal authorities said, the men posing as traders cashed in on profitable trades but walked away from losing deals because they could not be traced.

"Another case involved a broker who diverted trades made for his company into another account, while the other two involved people circumventing rules on how much money they had to have in their brokerage accounts to cover their trading officials said.

Charges include wire fraud, conspiracy and various violations of federal commodities law in Chicago and New York.

The 10 men were not in custody, Valukas said, but none could be reached for comment.

Laboratory identifies 6 Viet MIAs

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Army laboratory in Hawaii has identified the remains of six American military officers missing from the Vietnam War, the Pentagon said today.

Dan Howard, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, said the remains would be sent from Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii to Travis Air Force Base, Calif., on Thursday morning after a full military honors ceremony.

Five of the six were in the same group of remains, repatriated to the United States by the Vietnamese government last November.

The Pentagon identified the missing men, all aviators, as:

• Air Force Lt. Frank A. Caras, lost over North Vietnam on April 28, 1967. Caras was born on Jan. 19, 1934, and listed his home as Spanish Fork, Utah.

• Air Force Col. Oscar M. Dardena Jr., lost over North Vietnam on Nov. 18, 1967. Dardena was born on Dec. 11, 1931, and listed his home as Ville Platte, La.

If it's a codfish that weighs less around the world than three pounds, it goes to market as "aerod."

Q. Does an oyster have a brain?
A. No brain. Good thing. No head to put it in.

English officers in colonial India played polo, took showers, then smoked cigars. These curiosities -- polo, showers, cigars -- weren't commonly known elsewhere. But the English officers brought them back. And England popularized them.

Soviet officials urge INF approval during broadcast session

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet television brought glasnost to the seat of Soviet power Tuesday when it broadcast live a session of the Supreme Soviet with officials urging ratification of the treaty banning intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

In an unprecedented move, state TV ran two hours of the session held in the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament.

Speaking under the gold hammer-and-sickle seal of the Soviet state, top officials called for the treaty's ratification, but questioned the trustworthiness of the United States.

Kremlin No. 2 man Yegor K. Ligachev, Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and Defense Minister Dmitri T. Yazov all backed the document in their speeches to the Soviet Union's Commission of the Supreme Soviet.

Yazov promised the public that no country would ever gain military superiority over the Soviet Union.

"We prepared profoundly and comprehensively," he said of the treaty. "Each word and each figure in it were most thoroughly studied and checked."

The commission must make a recommendation to the Presidium, which has the final decision on ratification. The treaty already has been approved by the ruling Communist Party, so its passage is assured.

There was no indication when final action would be taken on the treaty signed by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in Washington on Dec. 8.

Shevardnadze praised the treaty that eliminates from Europe missiles with a range of 500 to 3,000 miles as a "balance of security, a balance of interests." The Soviet Union also agreed to remove such missiles from Asia because the agreement ensures the United States cannot put such weapons on that continent, he said.

The pact "would not have been possible if the United States at crucial stages had not displayed a sense of realism and a willingness to find mutually acceptable solutions," he said.

But he said the American delegation talks on a 60 percent cut in long-range missiles "is yet to part with remnants of its old positions."

The foreign minister said he hoped to get a clearer view of the U.

S. position during the Feb. 23-25 visit of Secretary of State George P. Shultz to Moscow.

Shevardnadze said an agreement on long-range missiles can be reached in the next four to five months. The two sides have said they hope to sign an accord on strategic arms at a Moscow summit in the first half of this year.

After opening statements lasting about five minutes, members of the audience — of Supreme Soviet deputies went to microphones to ask questions.

One deputy asked Yazov what will happen to the military officers who have jobs connected with the missiles that are being eliminated. He said some will be retired and others will be reassigned, but none would wind up without jobs.

Major newspapers published the schedule of the live broadcast, another manifestation of Gorbachev's policy of glasnost, or more openness on some issues. In the past, hearings of Soviet government committees have been held behind closed doors.

Ligachev and Shevardnadze said Soviet citizens question whether their country, which is giving up 1,762 missiles compared to 859 for the United States, is sacrificing too much and whether the United States can be trusted.

Israeli army accuses officer in Arab teen's death

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army said Tuesday an Israeli officer shot and wounded a 16-year-old Arab protester, and Arab reports said another youth died of beating injuries. A Jewish settler was being investigated in the fatal shooting of a demonstrator.

Richard Murphy began talks Tuesday night with U.S. envoy, Michael Shamir on a peace process to help end rioting in occupied territories that has claimed 51 lives since Dec. 8.

Shamir lashed out at the Palestine Liberation Organization for its plans to send a boat loaded with 200 Arab deportees back to Israel from Athens, Greece. He called the action a "declaration of war" against Israel.

The Palestine Press Service, an Arab-run news agency, said Foad Tarazi, 17, of Gaza City died Tuesday of injuries sustained during a beating while in army custody.

Palestinian sources said soldiers chased the youth after he threw stones and arrested him in his house Monday. His mother told a reporter: "They took my son, they beat him, they broke his bicycle."

The army confirmed Tarazi's death but said the cause was under investigation.

A military spokesman said that during a demonstration an Israeli officer drew his pistol and shot a 16-year-old Palestinian in the legs in Rafah, a Gaza Strip town bordering Egypt.

The Palestine Press reported four separate incidents in which Jewish settlers smashed car windows or damaged houses in Arab areas of the West Bank Monday night and early Tuesday. The army said it had no information or that police were investigating.

Yusef Faras, spokesman for Sumaria police, said a settler would appear before a judge for a bail hearing in the shooting death of a 25-year-old Arab on Monday.

Faras said two settlers from the Jewish settlement of Kedumim came to the Arab village of Kfar Qaddum to pick up workers Monday and were stopped by stone-throwing, masked youths. He said one settler shot in the air with an Uzi submachine gun.

"We suspect that the man who was killed was killed by one of those bullets," he said, adding that under Israeli law a suspect may be held in custody but is not charged until the investigation is completed.

Rabin said a minority of the 65,000 Jewish settlers were involved in vigilante acts, but they could cause great harm.

"I think those activities have a destructive result because it unifies the Arab sector, in many instances provided a means for agitators to mobilize people to erect road-blocks under the slogan 'the settlers are coming,'" Rabin said on Israeli radio.

He added that in most cases rumors alone had touched off violent protests.

During a tour of the Gaza Strip, Rabin said the navy would not allow the PLO boat into Israeli waters but did not specify how it would be stopped.

Israeli officials have said the PLO boat was designed to encourage further unrest in the West Bank and Gaza.

Europe finishes collider tunnel

GENEVA (AP) — Workers have completed a 17-mile tunnel that will house Europe's version of a superconducting supercollider, a sophisticated and eagerly anticipated atom smasher that may provide clues to creation.

Crews in France's Jura Mountains on Monday blasted out the last segment of the circular tunnel that runs under French and Swiss territory.

The 14-nation European Laboratory for Particle Physics hopes to begin operating the project in 1989.

Scientists say the supercollider will give them new insights into the basic components of the atom and the forces that govern it, perhaps giving clues to the origin of the universe.

Iran claims 3 Iraqi planes downed

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iran's aging air force claimed a major air victory, saying it shot down three Iraqi jets Tuesday in daylight air battles within two hours over the Persian Gulf.

The two dogfights, a rarity in the 7-year-old war, were the first reported in several months. Iraq's war communications made no mention of any air clashes.

Four U.S. Navy warships left Bahrain and headed for the gulf, signaling the start of a major shakeup that will see U.S. forces in the region reduced in size and under new command in the next two months.

Iran, whose air force is based in Cyprus, said two of Iraq's French-built F-1 Mirages were shot down in the first of the two air battles over the gulf at 10:11 a.m., and a third was destroyed in a second clash about 2 1/2 hours later.

Iran, whose air force is believed to outnumber Iran's by about 8-1, said nothing about any air battles and had reported no significant air activity of its own by nightfall.

Iraq's air force has been active in recent days with a string of raids on Iranian oil tankers along the coast, and on Sunday attacked Iran's big Kharg Island oil terminal in the northern gulf.

Iran provided no other details of the clashes, including whether the Iraqi planes were flying to or from targets at the time.

Western military analysts say Iran probably can put about 40 of its aging, U.S.-built warplanes into the air. Holdovers from the air force of the late deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi; the planes are said to include about 20 operational F-4 Phantoms and 20 F-5 Tigers, plus fewer than 10 functional F-14 interceptors.

A week ago, an Iranian F-4 Phantom fired two missiles at a Liberian tanker in the gulf, the first such attack by an Iranian jet in more than two years. The missiles were wide of their mark.

For the past 1 1/2 years, Iran has relied mainly on gunboats and armed speedboats to attack neutral shipping in the Gulf, in retaliation for Iraqi air raids on its own shipping lanes.

The 8,200-ton battle cruiser Richmond K. Turner, accompanied by the missile frigates Carr, Elrod and Gallery, left Bahrain sailed toward the Strait of Hormuz and a scheduled rendezvous with their successors at Fujairah, a United Arab Emirates port on the Gulf of Oman.

The missile cruiser Wainwright and the frigates Jack Williams, Simpson and Samuel B. Roberts will replace the quartet as members of the navy's quaternary-based escort squadron, the Middle East Force.

Weather grounds search

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

COOKE CITY, Mont. — Heavy snow and strong winds prevented an aerial search in the Beartooth Mountains north of here Tuesday for three Buhl men in a single-engine plane missing since Sunday.

"We haven't been able to get in the air today," said Mike Ferguson, administrator of the Montana Aeronautics Division. "The weather has been so rotten."

Ed Few, assistant to the director of the Wyoming Aeronautics Commission, said the weather in northwestern Wyoming was so severe that the state's pilots were unable to even get into Cody, the point from which they hoped to launch their search efforts.

"The plane, a blue and white Cessna 172, disappeared after leaving from Twin Falls shortly before 3 p.m. Sunday. According to Jim Conder, safety and information officer for the Idaho Bureau of Aeronautics, radio transmissions and radar information all indicate that the plane is still in Montana.

"The three men aboard the plane were Ronn Jones, owner of the Western Auto store in Buhl, Randy Mittelstaed, assistant manager of the Crystal Springs hatchery for the Clear Springs Trout Co., and Ivan M. "Bill" Crafton, owner of West End Welding in Buhl.

Mittelstaed, who has about 100 hours of flying experience, was listed on the flight plan as the pilot.

Conder said Idaho pilots were able to launch 17 search missions Tuesday out of Buhl, including the Idaho Falls. The planes searched the southern portion of the plane's intended flight path, but weather precluded the pilots from getting any closer than 18 nautical miles away from the Idaho and Wyoming border.

Officials, however, said it was unlikely that the plane reached Idaho.

"It's very low probability area," Ferguson said. "We're pretty sure they're not too far away from where our radar lost them."

Radar records showed the plane dropping off radar screens roughly 15 to 20 miles northwest of Cooke City.

Parents, teachers call for more funds

By RAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Hard-luck stories about inadequate school funding abounded Monday night at a meeting to encourage support for increased funding.

Parent Liz Carlton said some teachers at the Twin Falls High School carried their materials around on a cart because they had no room of their own.

Wendell Superintendent George Crawford said the schools in his district were as good or better than others in the Magic Valley.

"We're about average. (But) average in Idaho is not very good," he said.

Twin Falls Education Association President Nick Nicholson said it would cost $278 million to bring Idaho up to the level other states spend on their students.

Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce Director Buzz Langdon said a good educational system is an asset to communities attempting to attract new businesses. But education in Twin Falls was considered a liability because of poor funding, according to an economic-development report.

One of the meeting organizers, Twin Falls School Superintendent Carl Snow said legislators should be called or written soon because discussions about school funding were scheduled to begin this week.

Although there were few questions from the 100 or so people in the audience at the O'Leary Junior High School Auditorium, educators provided plenty of examples of why the schools needed and deserved their support.

Snow said legislators were leaning toward a $361 million appropriation to schools, which will be about a 2.9 percent increase over last year. But his district takes a 4 percent annual increase just to remain "status quo."

"I don't know where we're going to cut," he said. "It's imperative we have more than $361 million."

Schools should have a 5-percent increase and another $8 million for textbooks and supplies, which adds up to an appropriation of $369 million, Snow said. The amount was recommended by Gov. Cecil Andrus.

"It's a long way from being a Democrat; but he was close," Snow added.

Possible options for obtaining more cash for education were to eliminate some sales-tax exemptions, establish a surtax and repeal the investment-tax credit, Snow said. Because state income tax is closely aligned with federal taxes, the federal changes could mean $10-15 million in added income for the state.

"I think education needs to tap that source," Snow said.

Buhl Superintendent Gus Spiropoulos said that districts didn't receive all the state money they had been promised for the last two years.

The comments of Nicholson echoed the commercials being aired by the Idaho Education Association, which represents many public-school teachers. Idaho teachers spent an average of $232 per year.

Dog race take may help CSI

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

BOISE — A controversial dog racing track in northern Idaho may yield additional money to Idaho's two community colleges if a measure wins support in the Legislature.

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, and Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, along with three northern Idaho senators are drafting a proposal that could take 5 percent of the handle, or money bet on dog racing, and channel it to the College of Southern Idaho and North Idaho College in Coeur d'Alene.

"Of course, this measure assumes we're not going to repeal dog racing," Peavey said Tuesday.

Last year, Coeur d'Alene businessman Duane Hagadone won approval to build a dog racing track provided he also include 40 days of horse racing at the track.

Opponents charged last week at a three-hour hearing that Hagadone reneged on the deal, while Hagadone supporters said no such offer was ever made.

Now, there are two bills dealing with the track. One would repeal last year's bill allowing dog racing in the state.

A second bill would lift the 40-day horse racing requirement. In return, half of 1 percent of the dog handle would go to purses in horse races for Idaho-bred horses.

Amid the controversy, Peavey is proposing, if dog racing is allowed, that part of the profits should go to education.

"The way it stands now, some money goes back to bettors, and a whole lot goes to Hagadone," Peavey said. "Dog racing is extremely lucrative."

Peavey estimates the measure could raise an additional $1 million.

Roger Panther, of HCA's design and construction department, discusses preliminary plans of a cancer-treatment center at MVRMC. HCA representative emphasizes financial feasibility.

Committee reviews treatment center plans

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For an estimated $2.1 million, Magic Valley Regional Medical Center can buy a 8,700 square-foot cancer-treatment center — construction, equipment and all — according to preliminary design presented Tuesday.

The next step is a financial feasibility study, Roger Panther of Hospital Corporation of America's design and construction department told the MVRMC cancer-steering committee.

"Make sure it's tested for financial feasibility," Panther said.

Schematics presented by architects from the Nashville-based Earl Swenson Associates firm showed a new cancer center that would be located to the east of the main entrance to the hospital.

The proposed cost includes the entire project, such as the cost of a six-million electron volt radiation machine, Panther said.

"That's everything" he added.

About half of the proposed square footage will be new construction, which will be wrapped around the existing building, architect Harold Fetsy said. The remainder of the cancer center will make use of already existing hospital space that will be renovated. Business offices are now located in that section.

Much of the new construction will house the radiation machine, which requires walls of three to four-foot thicknesses, according to the preliminary design. "The chemotherapy section will be placed in the existing hospital space."

The proposed center will have its own entrance for the convenience of the patients and allow space for another radiation machine, he said.

"This plan is just a schematic," Fetsy said. Many details still have to be worked out, such as patient flow and linking the center to other services at the hospital.

What the schematic did show was spaces for support services for the center. The preliminary plans also included a new corridor that will lend itself to future expansion, the planners said.

When the architects first started looking at the project, a freestanding building was discussed, said Panther. But, moving it away from the existing hospital and toward the old hospital and annex would have meant more construction and expense.

"I didn't think that made financial sense," Panther said.

The two adjoining facilities could share emergency services, utilities and heating and air-conditioning systems.

The architectural work on the proposed cancer center to date was part of the work on a site plan for the hospital, said MVRMC Administrator John Bingham, another employee of HCA, which manages MVRMC under contract to the county. The MVRMC Board of Trustees had voted earlier to retain the firm's services for

Complaint dismissed against Blaine County jail

The Associated Press

HAILEY — A lawsuit filed in October by six Blaine County Jail inmates complaining of mistreatment by Sheriff Jerry "Walt" Fomling and jailer Stanley Cohen has been dismissed.

Fifth District Judge James May dismissed the complaint recently after receiving separate requests for dismissal from four of the six plaintiffs: Christopher Anderson, Timothy Hiser, Steve Barnard and Dwayne Broadway.

The two other inmates involved in the suit were Walt Decker, who is serving a prison sentence at the Idaho State Penitentiary for burglary, and Dale Bradshaw, whose location was unknown, Blaine County Prosecutor Ned Williamson said.

"I'm glad it's over," Williamson said. "I felt the suit was without basis. It had a tremendous impact on the sheriff's office that I thought was totally unjustified."

The inmates' lawsuit sought $50,000 each in damages; plus punitive damages to be determined by the court and specific redress for the various grievances listed in the complaint.

The suit contended inmates at the Hailey jail were required to use the same razor while the health data involved, including the possible spread of acquired-immune-deficiency syndrome (AIDS).

The complaint also charged that telephone use was denied as a "mass punishment," that canteen privileges were denied without reason and that postage stamps mailed to Decker by his parents had never arrived.

Hiser also contended jailers improperly administered a prescription drug he was taking.

Additional complaints were lodged later in October, alleging "cruel and unusual punishment" and reprisals from jailers because of the initial suit.

Bliss threatens to shut off water if bill unpaid

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

BLISS — City officials in Bliss have decided to shut off the water of residents who are more than three months behind in their water-bill payments.

At the Bliss City Council meeting last week, member Keith Benacore said the city has more than $800 in uncollected water bills. The city has been lenient in letting the bills go unpaid, he said.

Council member Fern Cenarrusa said residents should have to pay their water bills every month so the totals do not accumulate and be come so difficult to pay.

The council directed City Clerk Anita Standaal to revise the city's water department letter sent to those with delinquent accounts.

Revised city policy, subject to approval of the city attorney, will state that any resident three months behind in payments will have water shut off if payment is not made in full by the 26th of the fourth delinquent month.

The tentative new shut-off fee was set at $20, matching the existing hook-up fee of an additional $20 is paid.

Standaal said the new letter of shut-off terms will probably be sent to delinquent residents in March. The city has had a similar shut-off policy before, but it has not been enforced, said Standaal.

In other business, J.U.B. engineer David Joergel presented a preliminary application proposal for a block grant for Bliss.

The proposal, similar to one made last year by Bliss, names three projects the city needs to have funded, listed in three priorities.

First priority, said Joergel, should be water system improvements, estimated to cost from $175,000 to $200,000. The city, he said, needs a new fire pump, 17 fire hydrants and new main pipe with fittings.

The second priority, said the engineer, should be pavement of city streets. Joergel asked the council which streets need pavement and then said he will have an estimated price by the time the application is submitted Feb. 19.

Third, he said, is water system improvements north of the railroad tracks.

The council approved the priorities and set a date to meet again with Joergel next Tuesday to work out final details of the application.

Parents: Keep schools open

WEIPPE (AP) — A number of parents with children at Weippe Elementary and Middle schools are developing a plan to counter what they fear is a long-range school-district desire to close both schools.

"It's a terrible battle," Sherry Schlader, mother of a fifth-grade daughter, said of the controversy that has united the Clearwater County logging and farming town.

More than 200 students attend the elementary and middle schools in Weippe. But a number of parents are concerned that the schools might become the victims of budget cuts.

School Board Chairman Marvin Lambersch of Orofino said the district is looking for ways to cut $400,000 from its budget before asking patrons to pass an override levy for about $1.1 million later this spring.

Unfair to disclose record

BOISE (AP) — It's highly prejudicial to the rights of a criminal defendant to allow testimony of the defendant's criminal record, the Idaho Court of Appeals says.

That's because a jury, upon hearing that a defendant has a criminal record, will be more likely to convict solely on the belief that the defendant is a person of criminal character, the court says.

The court in a decision released on Tuesday unanimously overturned the felony drug conviction of Jerry Brent Guinn in a Bannock County case. Guinn was convicted of possessing more than three ounces of marijuana, a felony, and was sentenced to up to four years in prison.

Lottery foes offer tickets

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — State law prohibits the selling of lottery tickets in Idaho, and a group selling anti-lottery tickets hopes the proceeds will help keep it that way.

Joseph Groberg, who is heading "People Against the Lottery," said his brand of tickets allows all holders to be winners.

"I want say we're actually selling tickets," Groberg said. "But for a dollar, people can become members and they will get an anti-lottery 'ticket'."

The group is aiming to defeat a constitutional amendment that will appear on the ballot this fall that would allow a lottery.

Teton schools close for day

DRIGGS (AP) — High wind and drifting snow prompted Teton School District officials to close school Tuesday.

Major roadways in the Teton Valley were open, but authorities said visibility was limited because of blowing snow.

A state Highway Department spokeswoman in Rigby said snow plows were operating Tuesday to keep the two highways open, but State Highway 32 from Ashton to Teton was "not looking good."

Andrus proposal may sink

BOISE (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus says he's continuing to negotiate with Hagadone Hospitality Corp. over state permission for a floating golf course green in Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Andrus made that report to the four other members of the Idaho and Board here Tuesday.

But he got no response from other members. And after the session, Attorney General Jim Jones says he's advising the other board members to ignore Andrus, because the governor has no authority to conduct such negotiations.

"They (Hagadone Hospitality) are not bound to do anything. He (the governor) can't conduct a rump session and do what he wants after we have decided to do something else," the attorney general said.

It was the first public conflict over Andrus' announced intentions to use a 1927 law to require Hagadone to seek his permission before building a floating golf course green on a barge in the lake.

Land Board OKs hydro plant

BOISE (AP) — Despite strong local opposition, the Idaho Land Board will allow a hydroelectric generating project through part of the Lava Hot Springs Foundation resort in southeastern Idaho.

The board voted 3-2, with Gov. Cecil Andrus and state Auditor Joe Williams opposing, to grant an easement to Hydro Power Management, Inc., Chubbuck. The company plans to run a penstock of more than 1,300 feet from the Portneuf River to a generating plant adjacent to a camping park.

"I hope we do not wind up with a monument to bad judgment," said attorney Archie Service, who battled unsuccessfully for the foundation to stop the project. "We feel like we have been ridden roughshod over," he said.

It was believed to be the first time the Land Board has ignored strong opposition from an administering agency to grant an easement over state land.

Rhoades' trial costs mount

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Bingham County officials are estimating costs of at least $40,000 to try Paul Ezra Rhoades on a first-degree murder charge in the death of convenience store clerk Stacy Dawn Baldwin.

County Commission Chairman Dale Arave said the estimate was increased this week from $25,000.

"We thought earlier the county might get by on $25,000, but after today's discussion it looks like it will be somewhat higher than that," Arave said Monday. "We're just talking about out of pocket expenses, like the jury, expert witnesses and mileage, private investigators and additional expenses for the prosecutor and public defender."

"That's not counting the salary we're already paying to the public defender and the prosecutor," he said.

Arave said the county has enough money in its District Court budget to cover the costs of the trial. "But we can't afford any more of these this year," he said.

House endorses scaled-down pay plan

BOISE (AP) — The House Republican majority on Tuesday overwhelmingly endorsed a scaled-down state employee pay-raising plan that bolsters a GOP leadership drive to hold the line on 1988 spending and avoid an election-year tax increase.

The pay plan was accepted through the House, winning approval on a 56-23 vote less than three hours after leaders determined they had the support to pass the package. It shaves nearly $3 million from the increase proposed by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The proposal, which saw only nine Republicans join Democrats in opposition, now goes to the Senate, where leaders of that GOP majority believe they also have the votes needed for passage.

Resolution of the pay-raise issue, which accounts for only a fraction of general tax spending in Idaho, plays a key role in allowing the other major pieces of the budget puzzle to fall into place.

That is particularly true with the Republican legislative majority firmly against increasing tax receipts beyond the $580 million or so available from the current structure.

"We're doing the best we possibly can in a tight budget year," said Republican Floor Leader Jack Kenwick of Boise.

That kind of budget, coupled with the pay plan now heading for final legislative approval, would underwrite continuation of state operations at or near the current level, plus a few relatively inoperative but high-profile new or expanded programs.

But it precludes the significant spending increases Andrus proposed for education in his $703-million budget blueprint that calls for some $35 million in higher taxes.

House action on the plan came only hours after the State Affairs Committee voted to introduce the governor's proposed 4 percent, across-the-board pay raise for all state workers, including personnel at the state colleges.

But the Republican majority quickly rejected the Andrus proposal in favor of the scaled-back pay plan that supporters claimed would maintain the integrity of the state pay system but eliminate raises for about 3,800 state workers, a third of the state workforce.

No conflict of interest over lake water rights

BOISE (AP) — A northern Idaho lawmaker has no conflict of interest because of legislation he has prepared on the governor's control over lake water rights, an attorney general's advisory says.

Rep. Dean Haagenston, R-Coeur d'Alene, asked the attorney general's office for an opinion whether a 1927 law granted Idaho's governors wide powers over the use of water in three northern Idaho lakes.

The opinion, made public on Tuesday, said the law gives the governor only limited authority over the lakes, mainly to see that the water level does not fluctuate so much as to jeopardize shoreline development.

Haagenston, a northern Idaho contractor, also asked for an opinion whether he has a conflict of interest in the matter. The legal advisory, prepared by Deputy Attorney General Patrick Kole, concluded there was no conflict of interest.

Gov. Cecil Andrus advised other Land Board members last month he intended to use the 1927 law for further review of a bid by northern Idaho businessman Duane Hagadone to build a floating golf course green in Lake Coeur d'Alene.

The Land Board approved the project earlier on a 4-1 vote with Andrus dissenting.

Haagenston then had prepared legislation stripping authority over lake waters and giving it to the Department of Water Resources.

Andrus alleged Haagenston had a conflict of interest because his Contractors Northwest company holds a subcontract to build part of Hagadone's new dog racing track at Post Falls.

The attorney general's advisory concluded there was no direct action that Haagenston as a legislator could take that would further his subcontract to do work on the Hagadone track.

The Idaho Constitution and state laws prohibit any state or local officials from directly benefiting from public contracts or agreements, the advisory said.

"I first note that there is no contract involved nor any economic gain resulting to you from any legislative action you could take in this matter," the advisory to Haagenston said.

Splurge

Celebrate lovers' day in appropriate style

Busy schedules often leave us with little time during the week to spoil ourselves. But when the weekend rolls around, the time is right for a little indulgence.

Since you're probably one of the millions of chocolate lovers across the country, why not start this Valentine's weekend right by making one of these sinfully delicious treats from scratch?

A batch of freshly baked Fudgy Mocha Brownies With a Crust is the answer to a chocolate lover's dream. They're scrumptiously delicious and feature a Fudgy Mocha Frosting that will melt in your mouth. Polynesian Chocolate Crepes are the perfect after-dinner dessert or a sweet ending to a Sunday brunch. Filled with a luscious pineapple cream filling, these delicate chocolate crepes are topped with a warm fudge sauce, flavored with a hint of orange.

Cheesecake fans will swoon over Chocolate Cheesecake. This cake is incredibly rich and creamy and features a crunchy chocolate crust.

Remember when the weekend rolls around and you've had a tough week. Relax. You deserve it. Then reward yourself with one of these extra chocolaty treats.

POLYNESIAN CHOCOLATE CREPES

(Makes 16 or 18 crepes)

- Pineapple Cream Filling
- 3 eggs
- 3/4 cup water
- 1/2 cup light cream or half-and-half
- 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- and cooked
- Orange Fudge topping

Prepare Pineapple Cream Filling: chill. In blender container or food processor, combine eggs, water and cream; blend 10 seconds. Add flour, cocoa, sugar, salt and butter; blend until smooth. Let stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Spray 8-inch crepe pan lightly with vegetable cooking spray; heat over medium heat. For each crepe, pour 2 to 3 tablespoons batter in pan; lift and tilt pan to spread the batter. Return to heat; cook until surface begins to dry. Loosen crepe around edges; turn and lightly cook other side. Invert pan over wax paper; remove crepe. Repeat with remaining batter. Spoon about 1/4 cup filling onto each crepe; roll up. Place seam-side down on serving plate. Serve with Orange Fudge Topping.

PINEAPPLE CREAM FILLING

- 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
- 1 (16 1/2-ounce) can crushed pineapple in juice, well drained
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 3 tablespoons bottled lemon juice
- 1 cup (4 1/2 pint) whipping cream, whipped
- In medium bowl, combine all ingredients except whipped cream; mix well. Cover; chill at least 2 hours. Just before serving, fold in whipped cream. Makes about 4 cups.

ORANGE FUDGE TOPPING

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup unsweetened cocoa
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 3 tablespoons water
- 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- In heavy saucepan, over low heat, melt butter; stir in cocoa. Add orange juice and water; mix well. Stir in sweetened condensed milk. Over medium heat, cook, stirring constantly until thickened and bubbly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Serve warm. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

FUDGY MOCHA BROWNIES WITH A CRUST

(Makes 36 brownies)

- 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour, divided
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup cold butter or margarine
- 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
- 1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons coffee-flavored liqueur or 1 teaspoon instant coffee dissolved in 1 tablespoon hot water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- Fudgy Mocha Frosting
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium bowl, combine 1 cup flour and sugar; cut in butter until crumbly. Press mixture firmly on bottom of 13x9-inch baking pan. Bake 15 minutes. Meanwhile, in large mixer bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk, cocoa, egg, remaining 1/4 cup flour, liqueur, vanilla and baking powder; mix well. Stir in nuts. Spread evenly over prepared crust. Bake 15 minutes or until center is set. Cool. Spread with Fudgy Mocha Frosting. Cut into squares; store tightly covered at room temperature.

FUDGY MOCHA FROSTING

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 tablespoon coffee-flavored liqueur or 1 1/2 teaspoons instant coffee dissolved in 1 table-

Chocolate

Just how big of a sin is it?

"There is no love sincerer than the love of food," writes George Bernard Shaw and surely, I would add, there's no love sincerer than that for chocolate.

By February, even the most determined of January's dieters is daydreaming about a favorite chocolate confection. With the arrival of Valentine's Day, many a sweetheart's fantasy is to indulge in a selection of truffles while sniffing a dozen long-stemmed roses.

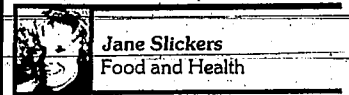

Montezuma, the ancient Aztec ruler, imbibed a blend of cacao (named after the tree) beans, maize and spices before entering his harem. Woefully, the result of this ritual is unrecorded.

After meeting Montezuma, and perhaps members of his Aztec harem, Cortes returned to Spain carrying cacao beans. The Spanish enjoyed a monopoly on chocolate for 100 years, but eventually the delicious secret made its way throughout Europe.

Today, in the United States, the Hershey company makes 25 million chocolate kisses a day, probably more than have been given away in the history of the Motor Vu Drive-In.

But what is in the stuff? John West, a native of Orofino who teaches a botany class in chocolate at the University of California at Berkeley, told me at least 400 compounds comprise the ingredients of chocolate.

Most candy bars contain 30-50 percent fat, making it impossible to imitate. Carbohydrates in the form of sucrose and fructose, and fat, mainly saturated, are the primary ingredients. Theobromine and caffeine, two chemical stimulants, occur in chocolate.

Jane Slickers
Food and Health

A cup of cocoa with milk contains approximately one-tenth the caffeine of a cup of coffee, an amount considered negligible by most authorities. But the effect on children may not be negligible if this is added to a diet rich in candy and soft drink.

In her "Nutrition Book," Jane Brody claims cocoa powder contains almost "no fat," but two other sources list cocoa's fat content between 26 and 30 percent. One ounce of baking chocolate contains almost 76 percent of its calories as fat — cocoa butter.

Most candy bars contain 30-50 percent fat calories and 250-300 calories each. Snickers, M & M's and Reese's Peanut Butter Cups, all fall in this range.

Two Hostess cupcakes or six Chips Ahoy cookies have comparable fat and calorie contents. A typical piece of chocolate cake with frosting made from a mix contains 449 calories with 22 grams of fat (45 percent fat calories).

The chocolate cake and Hostess cupcake pack more than three times the sodium of two Reese Peanut Butter Cups and 20 times the sodium of six Hershey kisses.

One study claims cocoa butter, while it is primarily a saturated fat, is not associated with raising blood cholesterol levels as most saturated fats are.

Yet many manufacturers use cocoa with saturated fat added as a substitute for chocolate with its naturally occurring cocoa butter. So, while a candy bar may appear to be chocolate coated, it may technically be covered with "confectionary coating" (imitation chocolate) as Baby Ruth candy bars are. Flickettes and Nestles Choco-Bake are produced by this process.

Myths, besides Montezuma's great hope, abound surrounding chocolate's powers and properties. Dr. Gregory Kadane, a nutritionist, agrees with other authorities that chocolate only rarely causes true food allergies and does not aggravate or cause acne.

But chocolate does contain phenylethylamine, a substance your brain produces when you fall in love. And, some say when you fall out of love, you crave chocolate as a substitute source.

But West counters, if this theory were true, you should be craving sauerkraut instead, since it contains much higher concentrations of phenylethylamine. So, if your teenagers become inexplicably moosey, you might try a sauerkraut diinner to perk them up.

The effect of chocolate's ingredients on your teeth is even disputed. Some claim that cocoa butter actually coats your teeth and prevents acid-producing bacteria from using the sucrose to create cavities.

Still, my dentist advises that if it's sugary and sticky, it will cause cavities. Safe candy eating practices require that you brush afterward.

Carob is touted by health food advocates as superior to chocolate because it contains no caffeine or theobromine. But keep in mind that carob does contain substantial amounts of tannin, a chemical used to tan leather.

In animal studies, carob stunted the growth of animals. Carob naturally contains less fat than chocolate but to use it for candy making, saturated fats are added to make its texture comparable to chocolate's. All my sources rated the flavor of carob definitely inferior.

What else but chocolate for a Valentine surprise

The easiest part of spending the week in bed was sticking to my diet. The hardest part was watching daytime television. Luckily I had one of those little clickers and exercised that often.

However, I did learn some interesting things like the difference between Bobbit and Bush and all the others. I did get really excited about the upcoming Olympics. And, with Valentine's Day coming up, I dug into my chocolate file and had a couple of cooking friends try these.

Some are easy; others will take a bit longer, but will make a great surprise for your Valentine.

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

1/2 cup skim milk, cold
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
sugar substitute equal to 18 teaspoons sugar

Combine egg, gelatin, cornstarch and cold water in blender or food processor and blend until gelatin and cornstarch are thoroughly moistened. Add boiling water and add instant coffee granules and blend well. Now add ricotta cheese, skim milk, cocoa powder, salt and the sugar substitute. Blend until very smooth. Put in a medium-size bowl and refrigerate, covered, until set, about 2 to 3 hours. When ready to serve, blend the mixture again

Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Valentine's Day...We see red, have "sweet nothings" whispered in our ears, and — unfortunately for our dieting plans — pop too many "sweet somethings" into our mouths.

Boxes of chocolates, chewy jelly beans and tiny heart candies with such delightful messages as "cute kid" and "be mine," are all well and good, but how about surprising your Valentine with personalized sugar cookies this year?

My twin instructor for these unique cookie-grams came during high school days. The math club was desperate for a fund-raiser (we were always desperate about something) and came up with the idea of selling Valentine-cookies with messages written on them.

We set up a table in the hallway a week before the big day, and began taking orders. Star-struck lovers chose either the small or large version of our offerings, and provided us with a simple message to scrawl across the finished product.

We sold more than 12 dozen, and were quite pleased with ourselves until we realized we'd have to bake and decorate 150 sugar cookies. (This is the math club, remember, not the home economics group.) I volunteered my parents' kitchen for the project, and the fun began.

Surprisingly enough, the cookies were a hit, and, for the next two weeks, we increased sales, made major changes in production and transportation and enjoyed ourselves at the same time. I think we even bought a textbook or two.

High school days are long past, but my fascination with sugar cookies isn't. Every Valentine's Day, I find myself rolling out dozens of heart-shaped cookies for family and friends, enjoying myself just as much as I did then.

My husband claims it's obscene for a grown woman to get such a thrill from baking cookies.

I have discovered some tips through the years that help make the process run more smoothly: the first being a good sugar cookie recipe. I actually have two that work well. The other produced by either is easy to work with and the resulting cookies are quite tasty.

Mousse: For the perfect finale

Frozen Almond Cappuccino Mousse is a luxurious finale for Valentine's Day dinner that is easy to prepare and can be made in advance and stored in the freezer. No romantic will want to resist the unequalled combination of dark chocolate, espresso and toasted almonds.

FROZEN ALMOND CAPPUCCINO MOUSSE
 1/4 cup sliced natural almonds
 1 whole egg
 2 eggs, separated
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup heavy cream
 2 tablespoons espresso or very strong coffee, cooled
 1/4 teaspoon each vanilla and almond extract
 1-ounce (1 square) unsweetened chocolate, melted
 Lightly sweetened whipped cream (optional)
 4 mint sprigs for garnish
 Spread almonds in single layer on baking sheet. Bake at 350-degrees for 5 to 8 minutes, stirring occasionally—until golden-brown. Cool. Set aside. In large bowl, mix mixture is warm to touch. Removing mixing bowl from heat; continue to beat until mixture has doubled in volume and cooled. Set aside.
 Beat heavy cream until soft peaks form. Fold in espresso and extracts. Beat egg whites until frothy. Beat in remaining 1 tablespoon sugar, continue beating until stiff meringue forms. Gently fold melted chocolate into egg yolk mixture. Fold in whipped cream, followed by meringue. Fold in ground almonds. Be careful not to over fold. Spoon mousse mixture into 4 cappuccino cups (1 cup capacity each). Freeze until firm. Mousse may be made ahead to this point. To serve, top with whipped cream, if desired; garnish with reserved almond slices and mint sprigs.

Celebrate Valentine's Day with a romantised ham

Many legends claim to tell the origin of St. Valentine's Day. According to one story, about 200 A.D. young men were forbidden to marry. Their emperor thought they should instead serve him as soldiers. But a priest named Valentine defied the emperor's cruel command and secretly began marrying young couples. Another folk story says Valentine was an early Christian who befriended many children. After refusing to worship Roman gods, Valentine was imprisoned. His young friends missed Valentine and tossed loving notes between the bars of his cell window. Feb. 14, the day Valentine is thought to have been executed, was designated St. Valentine's Day in A.D. 496. The custom of sending messages of love continued in 1416 when the English captured a Frenchman, Charles, Duke of Orleans. On Valentine's Day, Charles wrote a rhyming letter of love to his wife while imprisoned in the Tower of London. Special foods have also come to symbolize romance, and you too can create your own evening of romance with a festive Valentine dinner for two. This Heart-Shaped Ham with Ruby Rose Sauce needs only five ingredients.

 until smooth and pour into four dessert dishes. Serve immediately. You can layer this for parfaits with whip cream and substitute.

Now for something richer is Mud Pie (a la Chart House)

CHART HOUSE MUD PIE

1/2 package chocolate wafers, finely crushed.
 1/2 cup butter, melted
 1 quart coffee flavored ice cream
 1 1/2 cups thick fudge sauce
 Mix the crushed wafers and butter and press into a 9-inch pie plate. Cover with softened coffee ice cream and put into freezer until ice cream is firm. Top with cold fudge sauce (it helps to place sauce in freezer for a few minutes to make spreading easier). Store the pie in freezer for approximately 10 hours.
 Slice the Mud Pie into eight portions. Serve on chilled dessert plates with a chilled fork. Top with whipped cream and sliced almonds.
 If you're planning to have a crowd for Valentine's Day you might try this chocolate square cake as it serves 12 to 16.

GHIRARDELLI SQUARE CAKE

1 cup butter or margarine, softened
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
 2 eggs, well beaten
 2 teaspoons vanilla
 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
 1 1/4 cups ground chocolate pieces
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 1 teaspoon baking soda
 1 cup milk
 Cream butter with sugars until fluffy and then beat in eggs and vanilla. Sift the flour again with the ground chocolate, baking soda, and baking powder. Add the dry ingredients alternately with the milk to the sugar mixture. Grease the bottoms of two 8-inch square pans and line them with wax paper. Spread the batter into the pans and bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes, or until they spring back when touched lightly. Cool on wire racks for 15 minutes and then remove from pans. Use this frosting to make the perfect topping.

CHOCOLATE BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

1 cup ground chocolate pieces
 1/4 cup boiling water
 1/4 teaspoon instant coffee
 2 1/2 cups powdered sifted sugar
 2 egg yolks
 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
 1/2 cup butter, very soft
 Dissolve the chocolate in small bowl with the hot water and coffee. Add this to the sugar and beat thoroughly. Add egg yolks and vanilla and beat again. Place this butter in a bowl of ice water and add the butter in four additions, beating until frosting is lighter in color and thick enough to spread.
 Frost cake and refrigerate to set frosting.
 I hope everyone has a happy Valentine's Day.
 Enjoy!

 spoon hot water.
 1 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
 In small saucepan, over low heat, melt butter, add cocoa and water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens (do not boil). Remove from heat and let cool. Gradually add confectioners' sugar, beating with wire whisk until smooth. Add additional water, 1 teaspoon at a time, until desired consistency. Makes about 1 cup.

CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

(Makes one 9-inch cheesecake)
 Chocolate Crumb Crust
 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
 1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa
 3 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
 4 eggs
 1 tablespoon vanilla extract

CHOCOLATE CRUMB CRUST

1 1/2 cups vanilla wafer crumbs (about 45 wafers).
 6 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
 6 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
 In medium bowl, combine all ingredients. Press mixture onto bottom and 1/2-inch up side of 9-inch springform pan.

Home/garden

Gardeners, start your seedlings

If you have a south facing window you can probably start a few flower or vegetable plants in your own home.

Allen Wilson, Intermountain gardening

Vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers, onions, cabbage and broccoli are the easiest to start.

The correct time to start seeds is dependent upon the natural growth rate of the plant.

Plants can be started in almost any container with drain holes. Even egg cartons, milk cartons and paper cups are sometimes used.

Cucumbers, melons and squash need over six weeks to reach transplantable size.

My favorite mix for starting seeds is called Peat-lite Mix, but almost any soil will work.

The biggest mistake made in starting plants is not preparing the soil outside later in the spring.

Seeds must be either sown in a pot two or three inches apart or transplanted into a second container.

After the plants have started to grow, they should be watered carefully.

Remove the plastic so that they can be hardened off.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Rich College.

Trim: It can give your home an edge

By LOU DOLNAR
Newdale

A couple of weeks back, I completed the last detail of my new home — molding and trim.

Funny how you don't appreciate these 'middle-class hangups' until you don't have them.

There are a number of reasons to use trim work and molding.

Years ago, when I was in my Bauhaus mode, I discovered that trim is indeed more than just the frill you use, the more work involved in creating tight clean edges.

My carpenter friend, Jim, pointed out that what I was trying to do, particularly the closets, was largely impossible without trim.

The other principle is that of the 'shadow line,' which creates a lighting effect that makes unevenness and mismatches less noticeable.

You can use a miter box and hand saw, a table saw, a powered miter box or the current love of mine, a radial arm saw.

There are a number of reasons to use trim work and molding: Trim hides workmanship that is less than perfect and can save time as well.

The basic cut is the miter, a 45-degree angle for outside corner joints. There are a couple of things to keep in mind: A perfectly cut miter will be seamless only if the underlying wall or ceiling meets at a perfect 90-degree angle.

Inside corners are a lost cause for miters because of the way in which inside Sheetrock corners are taped tends to bring them slightly out of square. For those, you need to use a coped corner, which is a miter that has been bent on the inside to create an invisible 'ledge' factor.

Coped corners are a little confusing at first glance. One of the pieces is simply cut square, to fit the corner. On the other piece, by following the imaginary curve around the molding that is created by the edge of the miter, you create a mirror image of the curvature of the first piece.

The third technique is the face miter, which is used to join two pieces of trim along a flat wall. Gaps and imperfections are far less noticeable in this double diagonal slice than they are in a square-cut joint.

Part of the knack of trim work is figuring out the sequence in which to make these various cuts. There are some general rules of thumb here: Avoid joints in the middle of a piece, cut this second piece back along the line, and it will fit perfectly, with a little room to maneuver as well.

These are a couple of things to keep in mind: A perfectly cut miter will be seamless only if the underlying wall or ceiling meets at a perfect 90-degree angle. This is usually the case for outside corners, although you may have to sand and/or fill the joint to get rid of a visible seam.

Inside corners are a lost cause for miters because of the way in which inside Sheetrock corners are taped tends to bring them slightly out of alignment. Occasionally, in an ill-planned 'modernization' where this trim work has been removed, you'll see clearly this misalignment.

Speaking of old trim work, bear in mind that the most-elaborate molding is usually built up out of separate pieces of trim, layered atop each other. You can usually have to use trim to hide some of the inevitable unevenness of the job.

There are two basic 'hiding' techniques with trim, as Jim explained. The first one is obvious — if there is a joint between dissimilar materials, say, Sheetrock on the wall, the trim will hide it, and make it impossible to tell that you've miscut the paneling by 1-16 of an inch.

There are three basic techniques for making joints in molding and trim, and you have a choice of tools.

Take convection ovens home with a zephyr cooking system

By MINNIE BERNARDINO
The Los Angeles Times

Another innovative culinary device has arrived, and its manufacturer hopes it will change the way America bakes.

The Zephyr system ($140) transforms your oven into the kind that gives you mile-high souffles, crisp flaky pastries and succulent roasts that brown beautifully. Cookies at the back of the tray won't scorch.

Mallorca are close to completing a new cookbook on convection cooking to be released in the fall.

Shaped like a miniature flying saucer, the Zephyr Convection Cooking System can fit in the bottom of virtually any model electric oven.

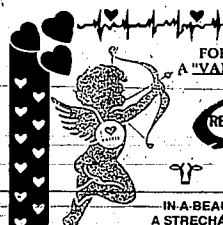

Yes, a convection oven. You know the equipment that professional chefs and bakers swear by. Like this expensive equipment, which ranges in price from $800 to $2,000 and up, the Zephyr system ($140) transforms your oven into the kind that gives you mile-high souffles, crisp flaky pastries and succulent roasts that brown beautifully.

"The constant air flow, moving over and around the food, eliminates the hot spots produced by the on-and-off heat cycles in a conventional oven," explained Gerald Sweeney, Zephyr president and chief operating officer.

Not to mention saving time, he added. "Of course, you may not get it in Cornish saving time, but you can cook a 22 pound turkey for four hours, about 75% in the regular oven. The bigger the mass, the more time saved."

Aside from time adjustment, some slight temperature reduction, which is energy saving as well, may be needed.

I think that the consumer is becoming so much more aware of what professional equipment can do for him," said Mallorca, who also does product testing for Williams-Sonoma. "When I read the Zephyr at home, my oven became infinitely more efficient. French breads come

San Francisco-based inventor and fishing book author, Ken Thorne, who wanted to have a convection oven to cook his fish but did not have the room or money to remodel his old kitchen. He then called the engineers at General Electric on their 24-hour-a-day, toll-free number in Fort Wayne, Ind., asking them to develop a motor fan for his oven.

Thorne's persistence challenged the engineers, and after heavy testing the invention took form. The unit has a non-stick surface and except for its motor, all parts can be cleaned in the dishwasher.

Another product that promotes the use of hot air for cooking is the electric hot-air corn popper from Wear-ever Proctor-Silex.

Letters of thanks

City pool getting closer to becoming a reality

While we have a long way to go before meeting our goal, the Citizens for a Better Community would like to acknowledge everyone working so hard to help us raise the funds to make the Twin Falls City Pool a reality. The response from the community, individuals, service clubs and organizations to our "out-to-reason" campaign has been encouraging. Those who have graciously added a little extra to their water bill are proving that a "drop in the bucket" will help fill that pool.

We want to thank the Times-News, KMYT, King Videocass, K9AZ, KTFF, KLD, KEZ, KART and Z103 for their cooperation and frequent promotion of this important project. "Let's Make It Happen" is beginning to excite everyone and if we "plunge" forward, we may be swimming and wading and enjoying our pool this year.

Thank you for what you have done to date, Magic Valley, and keep it up. Your efforts and contributions are greatly appreciated. Remember to add the extra $3 or more to your water bill, or if you live outside of town, or don't receive a City Water bill, mail your contribution to Twin Falls City Pool Fund, P.O. Box 1907, Twin Falls, Idaho 83303-0007.

LANCE W. CLOW
Chairman, Citizens for a Better Community
Twin Falls

While we realize they are probably not the most exciting news you have for the paper, we feel it is a good community service. Each time you run one of these notices, we have an immediate influx of calls about the particular class, so we can relate the interest directly to The Times-News.

Thanks again for your interest in the college and for helping us serve this community.

Director, Continuing Education/Special Programs
College of Southern Idaho

Share your time, talent with hospital auxiliary

We, the Magic Valley Regional Medical Auxiliary, are proud to be a part of the Medical Center team. We would like to express our appreciation to the Medical Center for giving us the opportunity to serve others. We invite you to share your time and talent with us. Call 737-2006 for more information.

Auxiliary president

The Times-News welcomes letters of thanks of fewer than 100 words, which will be published as space permits. Send letters to: "Letters of Thanks," Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho 83303.

Thanks for providing information on classes

We would like to thank you for running the brief notices for our Continuing Education classes.

Ham

HEART-SHAPED HAM WITH RUBY ROSE SAUCE

- 1 package (8-ounce) ham slice.
- 1 sheet (1/2- of 17 1/2-ounce package) frozen puff pastry, thawed
- 1 egg, beaten

Ruby Rose Sauce:

- 1 can (21-ounce) cherry pie filling
- 1/4 cup rose wine

Cut ham slice diagonally in half. Turn over one piece and bring top edges together to form a heart. Pat ham dry to absorb extra moisture. Place ham on pastry dough; wrap pastry around ham by gently pulling edges together and pinching to seal. Turn wrapped ham over. Place on ungreased baking sheet and brush top lightly with egg. Bake in 375 degree oven 25-30 minutes until golden brown. Combine sauce ingredients in saucepan; heat on low about 5 minutes until warm or combine sauce ingredients in 1-quart glass casserole. Microwave at High 3 minutes until warm, stirring once. Serve sauce with ham. Makes 2 servings.

Valley life

Stormy affair brings second thoughts

DEAR ABBY: I'm 19 years old and have dated this one guy for three years. Since that time, we've done nothing but fight over stupid things.

I'm naturally very outgoing and I enjoy being around people, but in the last two years, all that's changed. My boyfriend is four years older than me and he hates to be around people.

He's jealous and forbids me even to look at other guys in public. He accuses me of seeing other guys because his back, even though we're together seven nights a week. He gets mad if I wear clothes that show my legs because he doesn't want any other guys to see them except him. He doesn't have any friends, and doesn't want any. He has bruised my arms, torn my clothes and called me every dirty name in the book. When he gets upset about anything, he takes it out on me, but for some crazy reason, I love him.

We are supposed to get married in March, but my friends tell me I'll make the biggest mistake of my life if I marry this guy. What do you think?

—SECOND THOUGHTS IN MOLINE, ILL.

DEAR SECOND THOUGHTS: You are wise to have second thoughts. And you'd be wiser still to have third and fourth thoughts.

Please read the letter you wrote to me, then ask yourself how you define love.

The guy you "love" is abusive, possessive, jealous without cause, controlling and selfish. Is this the man you want to spend the rest of your life with? Think about it.

Engagements

Janet Johnson and Brian Marron

Johnson-Marron

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. June Johnson, Boise, announces the engagement of her daughter, Janet, to Brian Marron, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Marron, Twin Falls. Johnson, a 1981 Capital High School graduate and a 1985 graduate of the University of Idaho, recently completed a master's degree in environmental chemistry at the University of Philadelphia, Pa.

Marron, who graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1979 and from the University of Idaho in 1983, will complete requirements for his Ph.D. in organic chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania in the fall of 1988.

The couple plans a June 4 wedding at St. Mark's Catholic Church in Boise.

Sonya Irish and Richard Brede

Irish-Brede

TWIN FALLS — Norris Irish, Twin Falls, and Kathleen Irish, Hailey, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sonya, to Richard W. Brede, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Brede, Boise. Irish, a 1986 graduate of Twin Falls High School, is a sophomore at Boise State University, majoring in dental hygiene.

Brede, who graduated from Borah High School and Boise State University, is employed by Artstige Design in Boise.

A June 11 wedding is planned at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Twin Falls.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Last spring, a classmate of mine from high school (30 years ago) called to tell me that his wife had died.

I had only seen him once since we were in high school, and that was five years ago at our 25th high school reunion. (He dated my sister a few times, but not me.) He lives about 60 miles from here.

When he phoned, he said he had been thinking about me, and would love to get together. I said, "That would be nice; my husband and I would enjoy meeting you again." (I emphasized "my husband.")

I told my husband and grown son, and they both think this man is coming on to me. What do you think? Would you say he is being too pushy? All we have in common is having been classmates 30 years ago.

—UNCOMFORTABLE

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: You are under no obligation to see this man. And yes, I think he is being too pushy.

If you feel "uncomfortable," that is sufficient reason to avoid him. If he calls again, be unavailable — and you needn't feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: I know you will not believe your eyes, but I am sending you a photocopy of my telephone bill in the amount of $200. I regret informed by the telephone company that I had to send it a check in this amount.

Attached to this "bill" is a photocopy of my check for 1 cent made out to the General Telephone Co. of Holiday, Fla.

I would appreciate your comment.

—WILLIAM I. WOOLDRIGE
DEAR MR. WOOLDRIGE: I realize that the telephone company must keep accurate books, but for it to have spent 22 cents in postage to collect 1 cent — which cost you 22 cents to remit — seems ridiculous.

It would have made more sense for the telephone company to have added the 1 cent to your next month's telephone bill.
