Jerome patrons approve building levy

By The Times-News Staff

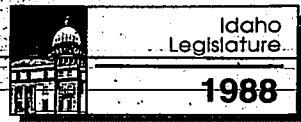

JEROME — Five-year-old patrons of the Jerome public school system voted 616-480 Tuesday to approve a 50-cent building levy. In addition to the kindergartens, the levy will fund instructional programs for instructional programs... The district plans to use the money for instructional programs...

Board members have been concerned that, with only 10 percent of the state's instructional public school system... The levy will cost taxpayers about $12.48 per $10,000 of taxable market value per year. However, because the levy will replace an existing one, the increase on next year's tax bill will only be $6.16 per $10,000 of taxable market value... Last year's supplemental levy funded $80,000 more for instructional needs than this year.

Attorneys bid to alter tort reform

The Associated Press

BOISE — After a major lobbying effort, a coalition during the last legislative session pushed through new state laws on liability, in some cases limiting the amount a person could collect in a lawsuit for damages. On Tuesday, the Idaho Trial Lawyers Association convinced the House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee to introduce a package of bills designed to reverse the key elements of last year's tort reform package. The lawyers say they took the action because of introduction of House Bill 571, which attempts to push the legal restrictions even further this year.

Ken Howard, president of the lawyers' association, said his group agreed to leave last year's new laws alone to see how they would work out.

But when the Tort Reform Coalition introduced more legislation this year, the association decided to work to change what it considers "problems with the laws enacted last year."

"We indicated to the coalition, 'Give it time to work. If there are problems, we can test them with time,'" said Howard.

But he said the coalition came up with "a rather significant package of bills to further erode the rights of the citizens of Idaho."

"If they hadn't brought it in, we would have left it alone," he said.

Jim Weatherby, executive director of the Association of Idaho Cities, headed the Tort Reform Coalition last year which produced approval of a number of legal changes.

Howard said he didn't know if House Bill 571 would pass "this session; but anytime a bill is printed and introduced, there is a possibility it will pass."

"We're so dedicated to our goal this year as we were last year," Howard said.

Trial lawyers claim the restrictions erode the right of citizens to seek redress through the courts for injuries they have suffered through the negligence of others.

Sponsors of tort reform claimed that unrestricted and sometimes unjustified legal judgments were proliferating. In some cases, they argued, the amount of liability insurance could not be purchased by some companies, and the cost was prohibitive.

One of the changes last year was to eliminate the "joint and several liability" clause in state law. That meant any defendant could be held liable for damages in a lawsuit, depending on ability to pay.

Howard told the committee a change on comparative negligence proposed by the Idaho Trial Lawyers Association would bring "a more equitable concept of comparative fault."

Andrus fails to kill free trade resolution

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Gov. Cecil Andrus tried unsuccessfully Tuesday to kill a National Governors' Association resolution backing the United States-Canada free trade agreement.

Andrus, declaring that the trade pact needs further negotiation before Congress votes on its ratification, sought to table the resolution, but his motion was defeated in a voice vote of most of the 50 state governors who attended a three-day winter meeting here.

The resolution says the governors "support implementation" of the trade pact, while acknowledging that the pact does not address all trade issues involving the two countries. The governors accepted an amendment written by New Mexico Gov. Garrey Carruthers, which says the governors "have significant concerns about issues created or not fully resolved by the agreement. The amendment also calls on the Reagan administration to continue negotiating with the Canadian government on the issue of government subsidies.

Andrus has been outspoken during the governors' conference in criticizing the pact and its failure to address Canadian subsidies of farm products and other export items. In an interview, Andrus dismissed the Carruthers amendment as "window dressing."

Monday, an Andrus aide said the governor and Carruthers were working on a resolution expressing their concerns about the trade pact, but Tuesday Andrus said the amendment was largely Carruthers' proposal.

Andrus described the trade pact as "half-baked" and said several issues, including the pact's treatment of agriculture, plywood, previous metals and petroleum products — all major Idaho exports — must be resolved before the Congress accepts the agreement.

The governors approved the amended resolution by a vote of 30 to 5. Andrus did not vote because he was meeting with FBI Director William Sessions to discuss the possibility of moving the Butte, Mont., FBI office to Boise.

Meanwhile, Andrus met with Rep. Richard Stollings, D-Idaho, on Tuesday and discussed the 1.5-million-acre wilderness bill the governor and Sen. James McClure have written.

Andrus said the two agreed that "this is a very divisive and a very emotional issue and it ought to be resolved."

Stollings, who represents the Second District, said Andrus was "lobbying me" to support the bill, but the congressman said he would withhold his support of the bill until it clears the Senate and comes to the House.

Counsel looking into possible payoff link

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Independent counsel James McKay is trying to determine whether a reference to a "quid pro quo" in a memo to Attorney General Edwin Meese III refers to a payoff to the Israeli government.

McKay's investigation of Meese's memo may be a first step in a probe into whether the Israeli government received a payoff to bomb a proposed $1 billion contract of pipelines.

"We all recognize that there would be no progress to this point" had Israeli-born Swiss oilman Bruce Rappaport, not been able to obtain the necessary license which involves the never-to-be-stated but fully understood quid pro quo which helped to produce that commitment, said Wallace's memo. The memo doesn't elaborate.

McKay's attorneys say the "quid pro quo" is a reference to an agreement that supports a would make available to Israel substantial amounts of aid pending a "quid pro quo" in a memo to Attorney General Edwin Meese III refers to a payoff to the Israeli government.

However, McKay's investigation questions the explanation of Meese's memo, which is asking to determine whether the payoff was a "quid pro quo" in a memo to Attorney General Edwin Meese III refers to a payoff to the Israeli government.

Wallace's memo says Meese wants to become more deeply involved in the pipeline project, but that he might talk to Secretary of State George Shultz about it and then proposing a discussion with President Reagan.

Meese's lawyers say he was none of the initiative was supported by Wallace. Earlier, Meese referred Wallace to the national security adviser's office. McFarlane, whose office did not elaborate.

Reagan renews pledge to defend west Europe

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Reagan Tuesday pledged that U.S.-Soviet arms-control agreements will not diminish the longstanding U.S. commitment to defend Western Europe with U.S. troops and nuclear weapons. Reagan said the Atlantic alliance formed after World War II remains "the core of America's foreign policy and of America's own security," despite a new U.S.-Soviet treaty that would scrap the superpowers' land-based missiles with a range of 300 to 3,100 miles.

"If you are not at peace, we cannot be at peace," the president said in a speech televised to European audiences by satellite on the U.S. Information Agency's world network. "An attack on you is an attack on us. ... Simply put:

An attack on Munich is the same as an attack on Chicago."

The speech was intended to reassure Europeans in advance of next week's North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Brussels, where Reagan will confer with European leaders and foreign ministers. A senior U.S. official said the message is expected to "demonstrate al-

Dole captures double victory in South Dakota, Minnesota

By The Associated Press

Sen. Bob Dole scored an impressive victory in the South Dakota Republican primary Tuesday night and followed up by winning in Minnesota's presidential caucuses. Vice President George Bush ran far behind in both states.

Rep. Richard Gephardt won the South Dakota race on the Democratic side.

In Minnesota, Dole defeated former television evangelist Pat Robertson with Vice President

George Bush a distant fourth behind Rep. Jack Kemp. Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, bidding for a victory outside his native New England, led in early returns in Minnesota's Democratic caucuses. He was running second to Gephardt in South Dakota.

Bush led the writing on the wall and put up little effort in both Midwestern states, focusing instead on the South.

Dole, a loser last week in New Hampshire, said, "It's a lot more fun winning."

Gephardt and Dukakis both pronounced themselves well pleased. "Tonight is a Gephardt night," crowed the Missouri congressman. "A few days ago we were behind in the polls. I think when you wake up in the morning you'll see it's a great victory," he said. Dukakis said he had run well "right in the back yard of both Gephardt" and Sen. Paul Simon. "If we can continue to do consistently well as we did tonight, we're going to win this nomination for the presidency," he said.

Simon was struggling to survive and mounted a vigorous effort in Minnesota, as did Republican also-ran Rep. Jack Kemp.

Tuesday's voting gave the field of presidential hopefuls a chance to show electoral strength before the Southern festival of primaries and caucuses known as Super Tuesday on March 8. And Dole, bouncing back from a drubbing at Bush's hands last week in New Hampshire, was making the most of it in his Midwestern home ground.

In returns from 90 percent of South Dakota's 1,151 precincts, Dole had 36,789 or 58 percent of the vote compared to 12,048 or 19 percent for former and 11,948 or 18 percent for Bush. Rep. Jack Kemp trailed with 5 percent.

That meant Dole led for all of the state's 18 delegates to the Republican National Convention in New Orleans next summer. But both Robertson and Bush were within striking distance of the 20 percent vote total that would reward them with some of the delegates.

None of the other three contests were directly allocating delegates, although each of the winners was getting an edge in the process.

With 83 percent of the Democratic precincts reporting in South Dakota, Gephardt had 23,849 or 46 percent and Dukakis 15,600 or 29 percent. The also-rans were Sen. Al Hart Gore Jr. at 9 percent, Gary Bert had 6 percent with Jesse Jackson had 5, as did Simon.

Water quality bill gains initial OK

BOISE (AP) — An industry-sponsored water quality bill, opposed by conservation groups, has been approved for printing and introduction by a legislative committee.

The House Resources and Conservation Committee on Tuesday gave preliminary approval to a bill designed to bring Idaho in line with federal water quality standards.

The Idaho Conservation League issued a statement saying it opposed the proposal, saying it would do nothing to lessen the controversy over protection of Idaho's waters from nonpoint source pollution, said a statement issued by Maggie Coin, ICL lobbyist. Rep. Wayne Sutton, R-Midvale, said the industry-supported bill sets policy to protect Idaho water from nonpoint source pollution. Nonpoint source pollution includes sediment caused by soil erosion from logging, farming and mining.

The bill sets state anti-degradation policy and a stream classification system. Activities that use "best management practices" such as no-till farming, streamside buffers and well-designed culverts, would meet water quality standards under the bill, Sutton said.

Monitoring would ensure the practices are protecting fish and aquatic life in the stream. The bill would create two new classifications for Idaho waters. One is "outstanding resource waters" where no degradation can take place. In the "high quality waters" classification, degradation can take place but not below a level that maintains beneficial uses.

A list of "outstanding resource waters" would be developed and eventually designated by the Legislature. "High quality waters" would be those not identified as outstanding or not listed as "special resource waters."

Freeing whale from fishing net enlivens Sunday for U.S. sailors

Los Angeles Times

MANAMA, Bahrain — Men and equipment from two U.S. Navy battle groups in the Gulf of Oman were called into action to mount a daring and ultimately successful four-hour rescue operation.

For a whale. A 40-foot, 30-ton female sperm whale became entangled in several hundred feet of nylon fishing net.

"In my years of naval service, I have been called upon to perform many tasks," said Capt. Clinton J. Coneway, commander of the guided missile cruiser Truxton, one of the ships involved in the operation.

"But nothing like this. The Sunday rescue enlivened an otherwise dull week in the Persian Gulf region, where 28 U.S. warships are on duty to protect 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers re-registered as American vessels.

The charitable act amid the controversial reflagging operation also provided an irrefutable public relations opportunity that it enthusiastically shared with the gulf-based U.S. press pool.

The whale, pieced together from dispatches from Navy anti-submarine helicopter pilots and crewmen from the Truxton and the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise, unfolded as follows:

on patrol in the Gulf of Oman — known here by its acronym "The God" — spotted the Truxton that it had spotted an exhausted whale entangled in more than 400 feet of nylon gill net used by fishermen in the area. The San Diego-based Truxton, about 30 miles away, responded.

The cruiser found the whale floating listlessly on the surface, completely wrapped in a net that trailed hundreds of feet behind it.

Sharing the net with grappling hooks, Truxton's "whale rescue team" eased the mammal alongside the ship, the official Navy dispatch related. Then, Cmdr. Craig Cowen of San Diego, the Truxton's operations officer, sent first one enlisted man, then another over the side to try to cut the whale free.

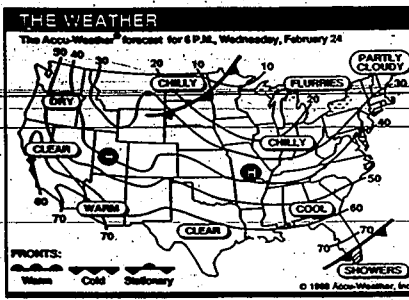

With most of the net hacked away, a ship's boat was lowered with more swimmers, who completed the job, leaving only a strand of the fishing net trailing behind the whale, caught between its teeth "like dental floss," the Navy said.

"Through the ordeal, the whale made no attempts to harm the swimmers. It seemed she knew that they were trying to help," Capt. Coneway said.

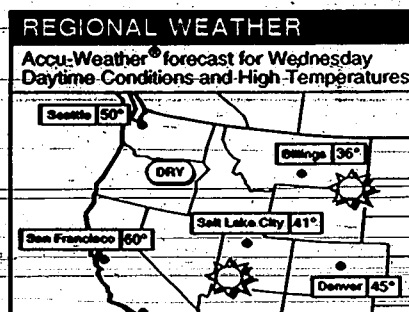

"All in all, it was a most unusual and rewarding way to spend a Sunday at sea," he added. "Jacques Cousteau would be proud."

Swaggart ministry mum about ban

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The ministry of chastised televangelist Jimmy Swaggart refused Tuesday to say whether he would or to speculate on what might happen to his $142 million empire if he is prohibited from preaching for three months.

The three-month ban was recommended Monday night by the Louisiana presbytery of the Assembly of God as punishment for Swaggart's confession that he had sinned against his wife and God.

The state panel's report will be forwarded to the executive presbytery of the 2 million-member denomination in Springfield, Mo., which gets $12 million a year from the Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries in Baton Rouge.

The 13-member national panel called Swaggart's denial of the rehabilitation plan, said Everett Stenhouse, assistant general superintendent. It is expected to meet within the next few days to discuss the case, according to a church statement.

Swaggart went before the congregation at his Family-Worship Center on Sunday to beg forgiveness after reports surfaced that he had visited a prostitute in New Orleans.

In his address, he did not give specifics, but church officials said he provided details during a nine-hour meeting Monday.

"We accept his confession of specific incidents of a moral failure," said Cecil Janney, Louisiana District superintendent of the Assemblies of God.

Reagan

led "unity" in advance of the Moscow summit that Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev have agreed to hold this spring.

In his remarks Tuesday, Reagan said the new Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces (INF) Treaty would not end the U.S. nuclear presence in Europe. He said approximately 4,000 nuclear warheads would remain in Europe and added that the United States would keep its forces "strong and up to date."

"Our goal is not a nuclear-free or a nuclear-free Europe," Reagan said in the speech, which was televised from the White House's Map Room, which President Franklin D. Roosevelt used for strategy sessions during World War II. "A war-free Europe is what we have today. A war-free Europe is what we want to preserve," he said.

Reagan promised to press ahead with attempts to reach an agreement with the Soviets that would have the strategic, or long-range, nuclear arsenal of the superpowers. But he also said he would "press forward with our Strategic Defense Initiative," the missile-defense plan that the Soviets have said is an obstacle to a strategic agreement.

It would be a fatal mistake not to press this program," Reagan said. "Even before it becomes leak-proof, strategic defense will strengthen deterrence. It can make anyone who might think about disabling the West with a first strike think again because it will undermine Soviet confidence in the military success of an attack."

Reagan said his administration did not have illusions about Soviet motives as it pursued agreements on nuclear and conventional arms and on chemical weapons. He said the policy of openness, or openness, initiated by Gorbachev "coexists today with the reality of political repression in the Soviet Union."

DOE delays selection of site

WASHINGTON (AP) — Selection of a site for the $4.4 billion "super collider" atom smasher will be delayed by up to four months to prepare a draft environmental impact statement before the Interior Department chooses the site.

Word of the delay, from Feb. 11 to November or December, came in budget questions of Secretary John H. Garvey before the interior subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

He was asked whether he would pick the site before or after the committee acts on his request for $363 million in construction funds for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

"I don't see us making the decision" before the committee must act, Herrington said. "I would guess a preferred site would be selected in November or December."

The department has planned for more than a year to chose the final site in the state of Louisiana. In January, subject to preparation of an environmental impact statement.

Department spokesman Jeff Sherwood said later that DOE now believes it is better to do more work on the environmental impact statement and complete a draft covering all possible sites before choosing the final site.

FBI may relocate to Boise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus told FBI Director William Sessions on Tuesday that the federal agency should move its regional office from Butte, Mont., to Boise.

Andrus and Mack Richardson, chief of the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement and a former Secret Service agent, met with the new FBI director at FBI headquarters here.

The FBI is considering possible relocation of its Butte office, and Boise is among the cities contending for the site.

Felony charge dismissed

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A felony drug charge against the man who mobilized North Idaho law enforcement agencies with a phony report of a "biker war" last summer has been dismissed for lack of evidence.

First District Judge Gary Haman dropped a charge of possession of methamphetamine against George Lane on Friday, when Deputy Prosecutor Bob Burton filed a motion asking dismissal.

Lane, 28, Hayden Lake, faces misdemeanor charges of possession of marijuana and obstructing an officer by filing a false report.

Hollis Anderson, Lane's court-appointed attorney, said she plans to seek a ruling that her client's car was impounded illegally.

Senate OKs health monitor

BOISE (AP) — The Senate has narrowly approved legislation opponents warned would mark a major step toward a fulltime Legislature.

By a 22-20 vote on Tuesday, the Senate passed the bill that would create a permanent legislative committee to oversee health care issues. But only minutes after the vote was announced, Sen. Rachel Gilbert, R-Boise, filed notice that she may ask for another vote on the issue.

Even if Senate approval stands, the bill would need House approval before it could become law.

The proposition, sponsored by Sen. Ann Rydalch, R-Idaho Falls, would create a 10-member House-Senate committee that supporters said would monitor all aspects of Idaho's health care delivery system.

Teacher saves choking boy

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A fourth-grade teacher in Idaho Falls gave an unexpected demonstration of a life-saving technique this week when a student began choking on a hot dog.

Kathy West of Idaho Falls said she was helping her class through the lunch line when a third-grade boy ran up to her.

"He had milk all over the front of him, and I thought he was upset because he'd spilled his milk," she said.

But when the boy, Donald Hatch, was only able to make what she described as "a high-pitched groan," she asked him if he was choking, "and he nodded yes."

She performed the Heimlich maneuver, which involves reaching around the victim and applying sudden pressure on the diaphragm, using air in the lungs to expel an object from the throat.

The boy was fine after she dislodged food stuck in his throat.

INEL boosters plan SIS aid

POCATELLO (AP) — Several Eastern Idaho business and political leaders have formed a booster group for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

One of the group's first objectives will be to "present a positive image" during public hearings on the proposed Special Isotope Separation project in March.

"The real purpose of the group is to try to maximize the potential benefits of the INEL to Idaho, especially Eastern Idaho," said Sy Block of Pocatello.

Officials try to quell fee increase fears

BOISE (AP) — Higher education officials have tried to quell student fears that their college fees will increase because of a new scheme to finance construction on Idaho's campuses.

But despite Tuesday's assurances that the proposed student revenue bonding plan would not affect the fees they pay, student leaders urged the Senate Education Committee to reject the proposal that would turn an unaffordable $20 million construction package into a long-term payment plan that would cost the state less than $2 million a year.

"I would not stand here and support this if I thought it would fall on the backs of the students," Boise State University official Larry Selland said.

Committee chairman Terry Sverdrup, R-Cobalt, said he believed the students did not clearly understand the point of the bonding proposal. He predicted that based on assurances from Solland and other higher education officials, the committee probably would endorse the plan.

Under the proposal, the Board of Education would use current student fees as collateral for bonds to finance the $2.3 million renovation of the pharmacy building at Idaho State University, the $5 million library at Lewis-Clark State College, the $10.6 million library expansion at the University of Idaho and the $2.2 million campus school acquisition at Boise State.

Although student fees would be used to back up the bond sales, the proposal calls for the state Legislature to actually make the annual debt payment of about $1.8 million. If lawmakers decline to provide that money, the board has pledged to squeeze the payment out of the higher education operating money it receives from the state or from university reserve funds or private contributors.

Officials said an increase in student fees to pay the bond debt would be a last resort.

Student leaders called it an end-run around the constitutional prohibition against deficit spending by the state, claiming it would put the bill on the shoulders of the state's children and grandchildren.

But Sen. Don Mackin, D-Moscow, a member of the council that oversees the state's building needs, said the plan is "the only way I can see that we can ever swallow a $20 million project when we have state projects of $100 million in backlog."

"It is not the intention to use this as a back-door approach to raise fees," Mackin said.

Law blocks lowering interstate truck speed

BOISE (AP) — A quirk in the federal speed limit law has forced the state Senate Transportation Committee to drop its proposal reducing the rural interstate speed limit for trucks to 60 miles an hour.

Committee Chairman C.A. Smyser, R-Parma, pulled the bill from consideration on Tuesday after being informed that its passage would jeopardize millions of dollars in Idaho's federal highway funds.

Smyser said that under the federal law Idaho could not have different speed limits for trucks and cars because it did not have different speed limits for trucks and cars before the government imposed the mandatory 65 mph speed limit law in 1974.

That is the same federal law that would have withheld federal highway funds from Idaho had it unilaterally increased its speed limits beyond 65 mph before Congress authorized a maximum 65 mph on rural interstates last year.

Smyser said he had talked with Idaho Sen. Steve Symms about the possibility of changing the federal law so the state could reduce its interstate limit for trucks but had gotten no encouragement about the prospects.

Senate OKs this first step

BOISE (AP) — Here is the 22-20 rollcall vote on Tuesday by which the Senate approved creation of a special legislative committee on health care issues that critics said was the first step toward a fulltime Legislature.

Residents should examine cancer center issues carefully

I have followed with great interest the letters published by The Times-News regarding the unfortunate controversy over placement of a cancer treatment facility in Twin Falls.

Because CT scanning has played a vital role in the diagnosis of many forms of cancer, I have served the needs of many cancer patients over the years. I find many of the comments being made by Ms. Carole Walker to be inaccurate, misleading and dangerously inflammatory.

Her latest remark on Feb. 19, 1988 stating "once diagnosed, a cancer patient either has surgery or radiation, followed by chemotherapy, or all three" and her diatribe regarding Drs. Hoffman and McKain's statement that 30-88 percent of cancer patients refuse treatment is both inaccurate and naive.

While she may personally find these statistics to be "unbelievable," they are nevertheless a true reflection of the situation for many diagnosed cancer victims.

Many of these patients cannot afford the additional cost involved for treatment outside of their community, others are fearful of management by strangers, and still others simply refuse any form of intervention for reasons known only to them and their families.

Whatever the reasons, patients who desperately need this treatment cannot or will not avail themselves of it.

While Ms. Walker states she "wouldn't think twice about going to any lengths" to obtain the necessary therapy, she assumes the entire community of Twin Falls shares this viewpoint, and she has continually assumed that everyone here would only accept that treatment from MSTI in Boise.

Ms. Walker may be surprised to learn that many of the patients I have scanned and talked with cannot leave their homes for the length of time it takes for these treatments in Boise, cannot afford the cost and inconvenience of living expenses away from home (Bishop House in Boise which is designed for temporary housing of treatment patients) and families is often overlooked and unavailable; cannot leave children and other family responsibilities behind, and cannot physically and emotionally handle the added trauma of driving six to eight hours round trip to get medical care that could be within five minutes of their homes.

Ms. Walker's offer of rides to and from Boise for current cancer patients falls woefully short of the real and immediate needs of these patients and their families.

Ms. Walker's statement regarding MVRMC's inability to be "comprehensive" unless we contract the services required to run a viable treatment center is again misleading and naive.

Does she seriously think the MSTI, if they were to locate and operate a treatment center here would not have to do exactly the same?

And where will these necessary trained people come from, if not the same employment pool that MVRMC would also have access to as well?

As for her statement in a previous letter that we do not have a radiation physicist under contract at MVRMC, this will come, as quite a surprise to Mr. Ross Mercer of West Linn, Oregon who has worked directly with the Diagnostic Imaging Department at MVRMC in that capacity for the past four years.

As a long-time health care professional, I would urge the residents of this community to look beyond the biased and often uninformed emotional opinions of one individual, and to carefully and rationally examine all the issues before making any judgments about who should provide this much needed service to our community.

Jeanne Brewer has been a registered radiation technologist for 23 years and has been CT supervisor at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center for the past five years. She began work in 1975 as a CT technologist on the seventh CT scanner ever installed in the United States, and has worked exclusively in that capacity both at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, Boise and MVRMC.

Arrogant attitude has no place in the profession of mercy

The board of county commissioners and the board of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center seem to be bewildered and confused over the opposition to their proposed new money maker, the cancer treatment center.

Perhaps some plain speaking would help, though, judging from their past actions, I doubt they will listen to anything they don't want to hear.

When an individual or a family has a medical problem, it is a devastating, traumatic experience. Furthermore, it doesn't just go away. It spreads throughout the family and friends. Furthermore, it goes on and on, for days, weeks and months. Furthermore, there is an attitude problem among the business community that aggravates matters. I am not prepared at this time to take up the space to explain the reasoning for this, though anyone who has been through this situation can verify.

The attitude amounts to a get-tough policy against anyone with medical bills. Furthermore, full advantage is taken of legal loopholes to maximize every penny that can be extracted from these unfortunate. Therein lies one of the problems with MVRMC.

MVRMC is a county hospital. By law, they must provide treatment to all. Some cannot pay. This is an unfortunate situation, but it happens. Above and beyond this situation are people who have a fair amount of insurance, and people who are wealthy or have outstanding insurance. Each demand different circumstances.

For the individual who does not fall in the latter two categories, he has already been dealt a double blow before it reaches a point where he has to talk to the MVRMC business office.

Sometimes back a local minister wrote a letter condemning the hospital's policy of referring those who are less financially fortunate to a lending agency whose terms are little better than a loan shark.

It is my contention that those who are under these circumstances, that are willing to pay, and capable of doing so, deserve better than what they get. The business end of the hospital has chosen to align themselves with the rest of the business community.

This kind of vicious, callous arrogance has no place in the profession of mercy. It makes no sense to drive someone into bankruptcy when they were willing and able to eventually pay, but that's the way it's done.

The fiasco with the white elephant enlargement plan of the hospital shows the arrogance and irresponsibility of the hospital board.

It should be obvious that the opposition to getting into an area such as cancer treatment just so the board can retain power is documented a similar fate. The opposition should show them that people should be able to see through such schemes.

I demand I expect them to continue just as they are.

Letters/State fish, wilderness areas, Senate behavior prompt comments

A question about interest

The mandatory civil penalty for killing, possessing or wasting an Idaho white sturgeon is $200. A criminal penalty almost always accompanies the violation. A $100 fine is imposed for the illegal killing, possession or wasting of a chinook salmon.

According to Senator Jerry Hanson, Boise, the sturgeon is a trash fish and other cities say it is an overgrown sucker. Shame on you, Jerry Copley and Fish and Game, for imposing such a penalty against people who kill trash fish.

Perhaps, due to lesser fines the violations carry, the salmon is also a trash fish. But it must be of even a lower order.

Abandoning animals cruel

As I sit here looking out across Rock Creek watching a confused and hurt cat that was "dumped off" yesterday, scurry across the canyon after a cat fight, I feel compelled once again to try and reach the moral conscience of people who feel some "nick" need to abandon their pets by dumping them in rural areas.

The mental and physical trauma your pets go through once abandoned is, to say the very least, heartbreaking. The "chance" you believe you are giving your pets is only to ease your own conscience. The fact is that you are actually sentencing these poor defenseless creatures to more pain and agony than you can imagine. If you could see half the things we see, you most likely would not have dumped them off in the first place.

As much as we rural people love animals, we can not and most importantly should not be expected to take in and nurture the animals you have so cruelly discarded on our lands. We have our own animals to protect from disease and harm, not to mention protecting our children from dogs that turn mean from hunger and pain.

We beg of you, if you cannot keep your own pets and cannot find them homes, please do the "humane" thing and take them to your local animal shelter or pet shop where they will at least be fed and sheltered and have a "chance" of finding a home instead of starvation and a slow painful death.

By abandoning your pets, you are not only shunning your responsibilities as a pet owner, you are subjecting them to almost assured pain, suffering and agonizing death. We beseech to your humanity and compassion for an animal's life, do not have pets if you cannot keep them. But whatever you do, please do not subject them to the "horrors of abandonment."

principles which undergird the integrity of our Christian faith and the survival of our cultural heritage. They constitute the primary spiritual and moral crucible of this age.

Dictionary define death as "the cessation of life" or "the cessation of all vital functions without capability of resuscitation in either animal or plant." The new criterion for death is called "irreversible coma" or brain death.

And how man has decided that the sanctity of human life is a religious mumbo jumbo, and a dog is often more valuable than a severely defective human infant, and that life should be measured by its quality, and the elderly can be left to die by withholding food and water.

This quality life will create problems where different doctors have different meanings on "quality" and "ordinary" or "extraordinary" care for the patients whose quality of life is worth living, or who are to be hastened to death.

We will never attain perfection while on earth, but earth would be a better place if people would bear in mind that life is not to be used only for pleasure or to be discarded when pain comes, nor when another judges the "quality of life" to be meaningless ... when the sanctity of life and equality of life is replaced by "quality of life" or "vegetative" or "meaningless" life, we face the horrors in history where those who were deformed, retarded, old, the Jew, the Christian, the unborn were cremated, buried in mass graves and disposed in other ways because they were deemed unproductive.

Those who protect all human life and those who adhere to the ethos of an advanced civilization. Those who promote an anti-life philosophy and others are returning to barbarism. As long as God grants the body power to sustain its own life either on its own or through medical aids or procedures, no person may rightfully terminate it. However a Christian view on human life and abortion cannot be imposed on a non-Christian.

I also say a Christian cannot support any politician who promotes abortion or euthanasia, and as such I will protest any law which endangers the basic rights of old, young or those unborn.

I have had the occasion to observe the Idaho Senate both from the gallery and from the surrounding offices. At the capitol on personal business, I took advantage of the opportunity to observe how the various schools statewide use the opportunity to teach our students how state government works.

The galleries of both houses are host to many students of Idaho. Aided by the massive marble architecture and pageantry, these kids are impressed with what they see.

I am concerned that they are getting the wrong message about lawmakers when they see senators on the floor in full public view, shooting long bearded rubber band guns at anyone in range.

Although I have never met the man or had any business with him, I personally was appalled at Sen. Lynn Tomlinson's behavior. A teenage page working at the statehouse would be dismissed for such actions.

It's time, Mr. Tomlinson, to grow up. Those students watching you display more productive representation, and a little more decorum on your part. Good shot or bad, I for one was not impressed.

Waiting for new station

I agree with J. Brewer's letter to the editor in the Sunday edition 2/21 Times-News about KMYT. Thank heavens I have another station I can turn to. The only reason I watch KMYT news is because of a lingering hope that I might someday find out something that is going on in my community.

It would be nice to have more news coverage from Burley, but don't count on KMYT. For one am glad that KIFT Channel 8 is planning to open a station in Burley. It knows they care.

A recent article in the magazine, National Wildlife, told of California poachers receiving fines of up to $2,000 and jail sentences ranging from 30 days to 6 months for selling sport fish. The sturgeon was one of the two sport fish named in the article. The fish were sold to Bay area markets and restaurants.

In years past fishermen spent whole seasons taking millions of pounds of sturgeon out of the Columbia River. I had always assumed it was because sturgeon meat was considered a fine meal. Perhaps the purpose was to rid the rivers of the trash.

Webster's dictionary defines the sturgeon as a food fish valuable for caviar. Webster must also be in error; and those who pay exorbitant prices for the roe of the sturgeon — the caviar — would be horrified if they knew it was coming from a valueless trash fish.

I must assume that the educated Senator Hanson doesn't agree with the fish and game listing the lowly sturgeon with game fish in their classifications in the Idaho Code Book. Perhaps he should introduce a new piece of legislation to have the code changed.

I have no preference as to which native Idaho fish is designated as the State fish. However I would hope our Senator's decisions and actions would be based on research and educated reasoning. If this is typical of Hanson's decision making methods, I feel concern about the kind of representation the public is receiving.

Or maybe he has an interest in an organization that is trying to place a dam in sturgeon spawning areas?

Life quality creates problem

Regarding Legislature's Natural Death Act.

Death is not merely a physical, but a crucial spiritual event for each person. Man has the power to make decisions, but in this complex area, this could prove to be disastrous.

Decorum in chamber lacking

During a session of the 49th Legislature.

Good advice doesn't pay off

Cancer and sicknesses are a result of improper health care, so it would seem to follow that the first step would be to prevent such conditions would be to improve one's health or one's definition of health, whichever needed improvement more. No one can dispute the fact that cancer in its many new forms is on the rise, as are the many new (expensive) cancer treatments, some of which are so expensive that they are subsidized just so that people will try them.

Another way hospitals get the expensive equipment they need is to raise the rates for all the sicker patients, who pay more, as long as they have insurance (another reason the rates are spiraling). So, because one percent of the patients are being experimented on, the rest of the people (even those who have insurance, but don't use it) have to pay for the treatment.

The worst case scenario would be that the treatment was unsuccessful. To the family whose father, mother or child is in treatment, success would be complete remission, and a return to a normal life.

But to those in the medical-industrial complex, success is five years' life after treatment for cancer has begun. They also think that the research in the chemotherapy and radiation direction justifies trying it out on more people, hoping that better life expectancies will develop. They also, andly, are thinking in terms of the money they can make from their professional help.

Few people survive the treatment for more than five years, and it is no surprise. If small doses of radiation won't hurt, why do they warn us now about too many x-rays?

And if drinking a poisonous chemical that stops all cell growth won't hurt, why do people get violently ill after taking it? Because the mechanisms of the human body know what is good for it, and what is not.

It astounded me when they finally came out and said that a diet high in fiber and low in fat could prevent the No. 1, 2 and 3 killers in American society: heart attacks, strokes and cancer. How can they make money off of good advice and healthy people? Think about that the next time you see a grown man riding a bicycle.

The Idaho Forest Management Act developed by Senator McClure and Governor Andrus does a grave disservice to the natural resource base in Idaho. Described as a "chain of delicately balanced offsets" it appears more like a gigantic sellout.

I have lived in Idaho all my life and expected better from my elected representatives. I am familiar with many of the areas that were proposed for wilderness protection and know firsthand their values.

I studied the proposals for wilderness designation as supported by the Forest Service, Fish and Game and the Idaho Willamda Defense Coalition. Each of the 44 areas proposed for wilderness designation was carefully inventoried to determine its resource values. It was clear that each needed the protection that wilderness status provides in order to protect water, wildlife and aesthetics.

The Idaho Forest Management Act includes some acreage in 27 areas. It often provides carefully inventoried to those 27 areas by leaving out critical lands. The boundaries are often drawn through the middle of habitat, stream routes, etc. It appears that lines were drawn arbitrarily in an effort to limit the total area and have nothing to do with suitable boundaries.

I hope the citizens of Idaho who write letters and testify at the public hearings protesting the inclusion of special management language and the exclusion of important areas. So much was left out. The Boulder, Lemhi and Centennial Mountain ranges were left totally unprotected. Expansion of areas needs to include Snowbowl Mountain, French Creek, Patrick Butte, Trinity, Tennesse West, Pioneer Mountains, White Clouds, and Borah Peak to name a few. Much is at stake, now is not the time for complacency. We must send a message to Congress — Idaho deserves better than the Idaho Forest Management Act.

He likes Gould's work

About a week or so ago I wrote an article in your Times-News about a bill Co. sponsored by attorney fees to be awarded in lawsuits on Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance claims. This pleased a good many of us out here but I think the real go part was where she made the statements about tort reform was not working and that insurance reform was coming.

Well a good many of us out here already knew that. All that you need to realize this is to try to pay a few insurance premiums and you will realize how utterly ridiculous insurance costs have become.

My brother, Donald McMurrian, has often said that of all the grizzlies in Boise, Celia is probably the best of the lot. And after reading that article I completely agree with him.

Ware may get seat

BOISE (AP) — James E. Ware, vice president of administrative services for Intermountain Gas Co., has been appointed to the seat on the Idaho Personnel Commission denied by the state Senate to Idaho Falls accountant No. Young.

Republican Lt. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Ottner announced Ware's appointment Tuesday in the absence of Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, who was attending a National Governors' Association meeting in Washington, D.C.

If confirmed by the Senate, Ware, a Nampa native and longtime Boise resident, will serve on the until July 1, 1993.

Idaho National Guard plans Honduras training mission

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho National Guard plans to send 106 members of engineering groups this summer on a training mission to Honduras within 75 miles of the Nicaraguan border.

Idaho Army National Guard Major Jim Ball said Tuesday that 50 members of the Idaho Air National Guard's 124th Civil Engineering Squadron will train in June. The next month, 56 from the Idaho Army National Guard's 168th Engineering Detachment will be sent.

The deployment of 13 members of the Idaho Air National Guard to Central America last year sparked protest among some Ada County residents.

Ball said the engineering groups will construct buildings and work on other projects at a Honduran air base in Palmarola, about 75 miles from the border of Nicaragua and 40 miles from the border of El Salvador.

Assistant Adjutant Gen. Billy Smoot said the guard's military presence in Honduras was not related to the turmoil in Nicaragua and President Reagan's push for aid to the Contras.

"There is no connection," he said. "It's strictly a training exercise."

"It's more of a construction mission than a rifle mission," he said.

Condo tax value to be weighed

BOISE (AP) — A judge in Pocatello must decide whether Bannock County considered the "actual and functional use" of units in a would-be condominium complex in assessing their taxable value, the Idaho Supreme Court has ruled.

Tuesday's unanimous decision came on Fairway Development Co.'s appeal of Bannock County's property tax assessment of units at its Fairway Estates complex in Pocatello.

Fairway filed a Declaration of Condominium for its 66-unit apartment complex in October 1978 and since has tried to sell the units as condominiums while continuing to rent the unsold units as apartments, according to court records.

Only nine of the units have been sold, but Bannock County has assessed each unit as a condominium since the declaration was filed. That has increased the taxable value of each unit from less than $8,800 to between $28,700 and $30,350, an average increase of 337 percent.

As a result, the company contends it has been overcharged about $14,000 a year.

Fairway has paid its property tax on Fairway Estates under protest since 1980, contending the county's assessments have ignored the requirement under state law that the "actual and functional use" of property be considered. The company also argued that classifying all the units as condominiums violates the Idaho Constitution's guarantee of uniform and proportional taxation.

Sixth District Judge George Hargraves issued a summary judgment for Bannock County, and the Supreme Court agreed with his rejection of the constitutional argument.

But the high court said Hargraves had failed to consider Fairway's arguments that actual and functional use be given "major consideration" in assessing property.

The court sent the case back to Hargraves to decide whether the appraisal method used by the county, based on open-market sales of similar property, resulted in an appropriate and fair assessment" of Fairway Estates.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said Tuesday the risk of a recession is as great as the risk of renewed inflation, but he agreed with the Reagan administration that neither appears imminent.

"Right now, I would say that the risks are about equal," Greenspan said in response to a lawmaker's question on which was more likely, falling into a recession or a resurgence of inflation.

"While still too early to assess the full impact of last October's stock market collapse, there are very few signs that we are about to tilt over into an election-year recession," Greenspan said.

Delivering the Fed's semi-annual report on monetary policy to Congress, Greenspan took note of exceptions to the economic philosophy espoused by chief White House economist Daryl Sprinkel. "There is a difference of opinion between Dr. Sprinkel and myself on this particular issue," Greenspan said. "It's an economist's disagreement."

Sprinkel is considered a "monetarist," a school of conservative economics which holds that Fed actions in controlling the nation's money supply directly determine future economic activity.

Greenspan's comments were in response to the annual report last week by the president's Council of Economic Advisors, suggesting the Fed had been too tight-fisted in supplying money to the economy last year. Sprinkel is the council chairman.

"We did not perceive ourselves as being tight," Greenspan said when asked by Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., to comment on the growing rift between himself and Sprinkel.

But on the subject of an election-year recession, Greenspan suggested that the Federal Reserve board was in general agreement with the White House forecast of slow economic growth but without either a recession or a rekindling of inflation.

The administration is predicting 2.4 percent growth in 1988, while Fed policy-makers on Tuesday projected growth in the range of 2.0 percent to 2.5 percent.

Webster kept in dark over dissident probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Then-FBI Director William Webster was unaware that a terrorism investigation of anti-Reagan activists had been expanded to include their legitimate protest activities, a top bureau official said Tuesday.

Oliver B. Revell, executive assistant FBI director, also told the Senate Intelligence Committee that no one in the administration told the bureau to conduct the investigation.

Revell's testimony offered the first in-depth look at the FBI's investigations of the Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador, or CISPEL, which began in 1981 and ended in 1985. Leaders of CISPEL maintain that the inquiries were politically motivated, but Revell denied that charge.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he said. "We have investigated a number of groups on the other side of the political spectrum."

"The focus of the FBI investigations has been and is criminality, or the collection of intelligence which will keep our nation and citizens safe from terrorism," he said.

At another point, Revell said, "I have no knowledge of any political tasks by anyone in the Reagan administration of the FBI's CISPEL investigation."

Reagan picks Ball as Navy secretary

WILLIAM L. BALL III Veteran on Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Tuesday picked a veteran Capitol Hill fighter, William L. Ball III, to step into a stampering dispute over Pentagon budget cuts as his new secretary of the Navy.

The White House said the president will nominate Ball, a former Capitol Hill aide who has been chief lobbyist for both the State Department and the White House, to succeed James Webb, who resigned as Navy secretary on Monday with a blast at Secretary of Defense Frank C. Carlucci.

"We took to Will Ball to continue working aggressively for a strong U.S. Navy," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, noting Webb's charge that Carlucci had needlessly sacrificed the administration's goal of a 600-ship fleet.

Fitzwater said the administration still seeks a 600-ship Navy, but now expects that the goal will be reached in fiscal year 1992, more than two years after Reagan leaves office, rather than in fiscal 1989 as originally planned.

"The budget restructuring underway at the Pentagon now is a difficult and painful process," Fitzwater said. "Secretary Carlucci is doing an admirable job. He's quite capable and suitable to the task, and he's claming out the president's policies in that regard."

Of Ball, he said, "All of us who know him here at the White House know that the Navy is getting a strong advocate and a strong fighter, both on the Hill as well as in any of the other courts of public opinion around the country."

Ball, 39, a soft-spoken Southerner who came to Washington as an aide to former Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., has a reputation for skill at behind-the-scenes compromise and maneuvers needed to steer legislation through Congress.

Webb, on the other hand, was more noted for outspoken advocacy of such controversial positions as his criticism of the service academies' admission of women and his ruling that the Navy would no longer accommodate officers who want to play professional sports.

Ball has been assistant to the president for legislative affairs since February 1986. Before that he had been assistant secretary of state for legislative and intergovernmental affairs.

Ball was also assistant to the president for legislative affairs since February 1986. Before that he had been assistant secretary of state for legislative and intergovernmental affairs.

Senate filibusters limits bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd proclaimed "a full-fledged filibuster" Tuesday and said the Senate would stay in session indefinitely to deal with the divisive issue of campaign spending limits.

"We've decided we'll just go around-the-clock," the West Virginia Democrat said at mid-afternoon after Republican and Democratic negotiators reported making no progress on the central question of spending limits.

"We're going to talk and we're going to vote," said Byrd, warning that foes of the campaign finance legislation would have to keep control of the floor to prevent a vote.

Democrats and Republicans have been at loggerheads for nearly a year over a Democratic bill with 52 co-sponsors that would set up a system of voluntary spending limits for Senate general election campaigns.

The limit would be from $50,000 to $5.5 million, depending on a state's population. The bill's supporters say limits are needed to put a brake on the increasing cost of getting elected, up from an average of $50,000 in 1976 to $8 million in 1986.

In larger states, growing numbers of candidates are spending more than $10 million to win a Senate seat, with increasing amounts of campaign funds being supplied by special-interest political action committees.

A candidate observing the voluntary limit would get campaign funds from the Treasury if the opponent exceeded the limit or an independent group spent large amounts of money against the candidate.

Republicans, who have made opposition to limits a party issue, succeeded last year in preventing the Senate from voting on the legislation, winning a record seven cloture votes during 22 days of floor time.

Byrd, even with the support of three of the Senate's 46 Republicans, is believed to be five votes short of the 60 needed to cut off debate and force a vote on the bill.

Army seeks to destroy old chemical weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army announced Tuesday it intends to build incinerators at eight ammunition depots around the country to destroy old chemical weapons because it doesn't want to risk moving the munitions.

"I think we could do it either way," said James R. Ambrose, the under secretary of the Army and the official who made the final decision.

But it is his judgment in rendering this decision that it is much more sensible in every respect, and far less complex and I think on the whole... less risky, to do it where it is.

"We think we can exercise much better control on a combined federal reservation than we can on transporting this stuff over many states and through cities and the like," he said.

Ambrose's decision was hardly a surprise. The Army has favored on-site destruction of its old chemical stocks ever since it began studying the matter more than two years ago, and just last December released an environmental impact study supporting that approach.

Some members of Congress, however, including Rep. Larry J. Hopkins, R-Ky., have contested the Army's plans, saying the service hasn't demonstrated the safety of incinerating chemical weapons at storage depots located near population centers.

Kissinger: Overlook flaws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger grudgingly supported Senate ratification of the new U.S. Soviet medium-range arms reduction agreement on Tuesday, saying it never should have been agreed to in its present form.

But Kissinger said the treaty should be approved without crippling amendments because failure to do so would "magnify all difficulties" within the NATO alliance.

"The removal of American intermediate range missiles (from Europe) is now irreversible," because of the pressures of European public opinion and other factors, Kissinger told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Because of that, he said, defeat of the treaty in the Senate "would generate a crisis in the Atlantic Alliance which in the end would almost certainly lead to the unilateral withdrawal of U.S. missiles from Europe and undermine the cohesion of the alliance."

Contra package put together

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats sought to put the final touches Tuesday on a $25 million package of purely "humanitarian" aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels and aimed for a Thursday vote on the issue.

Party leaders and members who have been heavily involved in the long-standing and divisive issue of U.S. Central America policy went through a final round of meetings in an effort to work out details.

"We have put together the most workable kind of program if members truly want to provide humanitarian aid and encourage both sides to negotiate in good faith," House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said in an interview.

Wright said the package would provide about $1.8 million monthly in food, uniforms, medicine and shelter for the rebels, last "well into the summer." When the aid expires, Congress would be able to vote on whether to extend it, he said.

It also would provide a similar amount for transporting the goods to rebel troops in the field inside Nicaragua, where they are fighting the leftist Sandinista government, he said.

Douglas top defense contractor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The McDonnell Douglas Corp. showed aside two competitors last year to reclaim the title of the nation's largest defense contractor, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

Releasing its annual rating of the top 100 military contractors, the Pentagon said McDonnell Douglas had jumped past the General Dynamics Corp. and the General Electric Co. to win the top ranking for fiscal 1987.

The St. Louis-based McDonnell Douglas increased its Pentagon work by $1.1 billion during the year to a new total of $7.7 billion, easily surpassing General Dynamics.

General Dynamics, ranked No. 1 in fiscal 1986 with $8 billion worth of contracts, fell to No. 2 in 1987 with work valued at $7 billion. General Electric also suffered a decline in contract awards, falling from the $6.8 billion it won in 1986 to $5.8 billion in fiscal 1987, the Pentagon said.

The Defense Department report covers the fiscal year ending last Sept. 30, and is considered the most definitive gauge of how major military contractors are faring each year.

IRS hazy on tax questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers are apt to get the wrong answer to one of every four tax questions they telephone to the Internal Revenue Service, the agency acknowledged Tuesday. Even correct replies may not be complete.

"We are obviously not satisfied with answering only three out of four questions correctly," IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs said in reporting the results of a test of his employees. He questioned the validity of a separate survey by the General Accounting Office, which found even less chance of a correct answer.

GAO, an arm of Congress, made 224 calls to IRS telephone assistants and got the correct answer to only 61 percent of the technical tax questions asked; 57 percent of the answers were complete and 4 percent were accurate but incomplete.

Judge says firm liable for Love Canal cleanup

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A federal judge ruled Tuesday that Occidental Chemical Corp. is liable for the cost of cleaning up the Love Canal landfill that became synonymous with environmental disaster.

After nine years of deliberations, U.S. District Judge John Curtin said Occidental produced the wastes that created the disaster and stored them in a way that would eventually result in toxic leakage.

"It is beyond dispute that OCC's disposal practices were at least partially responsible for the release, or threatened release, of the chemicals from the Love Canal landfill," Curtin said.

Curtin said Occidental's liability would be determined in further court proceedings involving claims against Occidental by other parties, including the state of New York and some residents: Previous estimates have ranged above $250 million.

Occidental spokesman James Green said the company was disappointed by the ruling and would not comment on its plans until its attorneys had a chance to study Curtin's 86-page decision.

"At last somebody has been assigned some responsibility," said Sister Marjorie Hoffmann, director of the Ecumenical Task Force which has been an advocate for people in the Love Canal neighborhood.

"This is what we've been waiting for," she said.

Curtin's ruling upholds the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, which the judge said was designed to compel the waste disposal industry to correct its past mistakes and to provide a solution for the dangers posed by inactive abandoned waste sites.

Hijacker's confession not legal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI illegally obtained a suspected Shiite Lebanese terrorist's confession, leading a 1985 airplane hijacking during "relentless" interrogation that violated his rights, a judge ruled Tuesday.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker suppressed oral and written confessions that Fawaz Younis gave to agents after he was lured aboard an FBI-chartered yacht in the Mediterranean last Sept. 13.

Parker ruled the statements were inadmissible as evidence because Younis was denied his constitutional protection against self-incrimination and his right to legal counsel during four days of questioning aboard a Navy ship in the Mediterranean.

"Somewhere along the way, in its zeal and determination to indict and prosecute an alleged hostage-taker and hijacker under recent congressional enactments, and in securing Fawaz Younis' written confession, the FBI failed to comply fully with constitutional restraints and precedential Supreme Court decisions," Parker said in a 47-page opinion.

"Law enforcement agencies must follow the letter and the spirit of the law, even though the accused is not a citizen of the United States," Parker said. The FBI "failed to do so in September 1987 when it interrogated the defendant."

Younis was arrested when a friend who had become a government informant lured him onto an FBI-chartered yacht with the prospect of making a drug deal. Prosecutors say they have a videotape and other statements from witnesses that place Younis at the scene of the June 11, 1985, hijacking of a Royal Jordanian jetliner from Beirut International Airport.

He is scheduled to go to trial March 22 before Parker on charges that he led hijacking.

Legislature takes on mediation bill

House, Senate compromise on request requirement

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

BOISE — Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, plans to introduce legislation today that would require creditors to participate in mediation with farmers on the brink of bankruptcy, resolving the prospect of dual House and Senate mediation bills.

Sens. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, and John Peavey, D-Carey, plan to sponsor the bill in their chamber.

Newcomb said compromises with the Senate included making the borrower request mediation, instead of it being mandatory in the face of foreclosure.

"We wanted everyone going through the same chute," said Newcomb.

Another mediation bill last year passed the Senate, but House members balked at considering the bill the last two days of the session.

Newcomb, a Burley farmer and rancher, described the bill during an interview Tuesday with the Times-News.

Once the "initial" notification is sent from the creditor, for foreclosure or accelerated payments or whatever, Newcomb said, the farmer would have 17 days to request mediation.

Then the lender must meet twice during the next 45 days with the farmer to clarify the credit situation with a third party.

The attorney general's office would provide the mediation service. If the attorney general's office decides the lender isn't mediating in good faith, the deadline may be extended 30 days.

While the farmer may terminate mediation at any time, the creditor would have to meet these minimum obligations.

But supporters said mediation isn't intended to be a farmer advocacy program. And not every farmer is expected to be able to keep his land.

"If they can't reach a solution, the borrower goes down in any of the bankruptcies," Newcomb said.

The bill's introduction, falling on the last possible day for such action, coincides with presentations to lawmakers by Director Mike Thompson, of the Iowa Farmer-Creditor Mediation Service. Thompson spoke to the Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee Tuesday.

Newcomb and Thompson agree Idaho should become the third state with mandatory mediation because they see no quick end to farmers' financial problems.

After seven years of the "farm crisis" between lenders and farmers, Thompson said, "I'm not so sure I would call it a crisis as a chronic problem."

Thompson said 90 percent of financially troubled farmers choose not to participate in mediation. Reasons include emotional paralysis, leaving the state or resolving the problem on their own or through litigation, he said.

The bill also provides for voluntary financial counseling. The attorney general's office will set qualifications for those counselors, Newcomb said.

"There's a lot of people who say that (they are qualified counselors) and they don't know what they're doing and they're bilking a lot of people out of money," Newcomb said.

He said the bill would become effective July 1, which would require an emergency appropriation to get started.

Realistic deals Iowa plan's aim

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

BOISE — The voluntary Iowa Farmer-Creditor Mediation Service began sluggishly in October, 1985, attracting about 40 cases during its first three months.

But Director Mike Thompson said the service resolved 80 percent of those cases and drew the attention of his state Legislature. A law mandating mediation for farm foreclosures then flew through the Iowa statehouse with bi-partisan support and endorsement of both the Iowa Bankers Association and Farm Bureau, among others.

"What we tried to show was that we would not save every farm and keep every farmer on the farm," Thompson said. "I think we demonstrated that by showing an even-handedness."

The service was flooded with 1,000 cases during its first month that July and has dealt with 8,000 cases total.

Thompson spoke Tuesday to the Senate's Agricultural Affairs Committee as part of a two-day capitol blitz. The committee room filled to overflowing with about 40 observers, and press conferences were scheduled Tuesday and today.

Thompson's arrival anticipated the introduction of a bill today that would require creditors to enter mediation with Idaho's financially troubled farmers.

Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, will introduce the bill in the House Agricultural Affairs Committee. Sens. Laird Noh, R-

Albertson's to purchase part of chain

The Associated Press

BOISE — Albertson's Inc. of Boise and Oklahoma City-based Fleming Companies Inc. announced Tuesday that they have agreed to purchase 29 Farmer Jack stores from Borman's Inc. of Detroit, including two in Twin Falls.

Albertson's acquired one store each in Mountain Home and Caldwell in Idaho, one in Jackson, Wyo., three in Salt Lake City and one each in Richfield and Panguitch, Utah, said Gary Michael, Albertson's vice chairman in Boise.

Seven of those stores will be acquired by March 7 and the Wyoming store after that, Michael said. Albertson's owns 466 stores in 17 states with 1987 sales of $5.87 billion.

"We decided to buy the stores because they were available and fit into our expansion plans," Michael said.

Borman's, which operates 60 Farmer Jack stores in its Salt Lake Division, will sell 21 stores to Fleming Foods Co., a division of Fleming Co.

Borman's officials said the stores in the West had not performed adequately and would require large infusions of cash to turn them around.

The stores will be operated for a while before Albertson's decides how it will remodel them, McCain said.

In Utah, Fleming Foods Co. will buy stores in Cedar City, St. George, Hober City, Vernal, Roosevelt, Bountiful, Ogden and two in Salt Lake City.

In Idaho, the company will purchase two stores each in Twin Falls and Idaho Falls, and the rest in Blackfoot, Gooding, Montpelier, Jerome, Nampa, Rupert, Weiser and one in Kemmerer, Wyo., Farmer Jack spokeswoman Karalee Christenson said Tuesday.

The 31 remaining Farmer Jack stores are available for purchase, Christenson said.

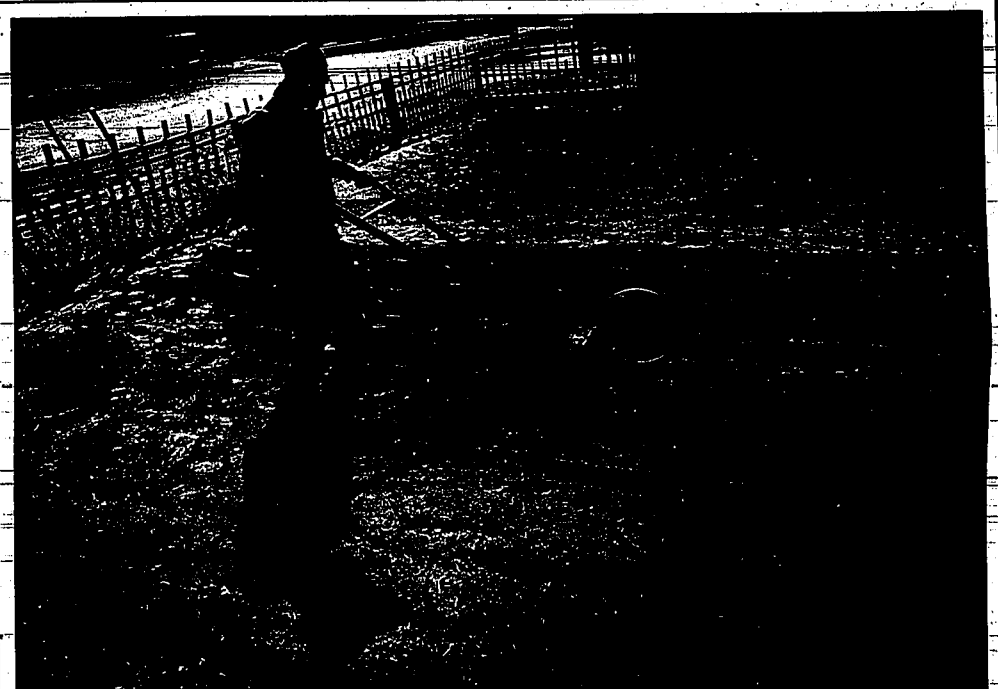

"We've had continued discussions with potential purchasers for different stores," she said.

Albertson's officials were interviewing employees in the newly acquired eight stores. Fleming will not take over immediately but had set target dates of March 12, 19 and 26, Christenson said.

During its quarter ending Oct. 3, Fleming Cos. reported net income for the period increased to $10.5 million, up 35 percent from $8.3 million, posted a year earlier. During that quarter, all divisions except the company's Western Division achieved solid growth.

McCain said Albertson's decided not to buy Farmer Jack stores in Nampa, Ontario, Ore., and Twin Falls because they were too close to existing Albertson's locations.

The move came less than a year after Borman's bought 60 Safeway markets in Idaho and Utah for $75 million and renamed them Farmer Jack.

Mountain Bell ad contested; lawmakers mull deregulation

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

BOISE — Mountain Bell and the Idaho Public Utilities Commission have each sharpened their pencils to calculate the impact of proposed phone deregulation, but their conclusions vary widely.

Mountain Bell placed ads in Sunday newspapers around the state saying: "If opponents kill the 1988 Idaho Telecommunications Act, it will cost customers millions of dollars!"

The ad went on to claim the act would have saved Mountain Bell's small business and residential customers $18 million since 1983, if it had been approved then.

But PUC telephone analyst Eileen Benner said the figures failed to compensate for services the company requested that were covered by a flat increase. She estimates savings to residential customers would have amounted to only $1.6 million during that five-year period. And she estimates the bill would have cost businesses with five lines or less an additional $740,000, yielding a net savings for all customers of only about $860,000.

The ad ran just before a House vote on whether to send the bill to the Senate. House debate on the measure was postponed until today.

Mountain Bell is attempting to escape PUC's regulation of local phone service pricing. Mountain Bell proposal links future pricing to the Consumer Price Index.

That idea worries many Magic Valley representatives because they fear the CPI will continue to rise and carry phone prices with it.

"The consumer price index has never gone down in 60 years," said Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley. "Unless they redo it, I'm not going to support it."

Other lawmakers are sitting on the fence. But Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, who voted for deregulation last year, this year is leaning against it.

"It's going to be amended before it comes down on the floor," he said. "It's going to be a limiting factor on the CPI."

The ad apparently did little to sway opinion, despite its comparisons to CPI. Few Magic Valley lawmakers said they had seen the ad.

Mountain Bell took its case to the public to show rates would have been lower if phone deregulation passed five years ago.

But PUC calculations differ sharply because of services included in the "actual" rates.

For example, Mountain Bell is required to extend one-party service to all customers, which cost $50 million between 1981 and 1986.

And the creation of toll discount plans, such as METROPAC and Advantage Calling, cost local callers an additional $1.1 million in 1985. The burden of lowering the cost of toll calls was shifted to local costs, so toll calls are discounted, for example, between Buhl and Twin Falls or between Bliss and Shoshone.

Resulting were higher costs for local service, although the company received no more money because of the loss of toll money. But it helps link in higher local prices to begin CPI calculations, should the bill become law, Benner said.

BLM roadless plan hearing draws too few

The Associated Press

CHALLIS — Witnesses testifying at a hearing here on the management of small, roadless areas complained the Bureau of Land Management didn't provide sufficient advance notice.

Five people showed up for a hearing here Monday night on a wilderness study of small roadless areas managed by the Bureau of Land Management. The session was the first of three accepting public comment on a BLM draft environmental impact statement reviewing nine areas for wilderness designation.

All are under 5,000 acres. Portions of four are being recommended for wilderness designation. The second hearing was scheduled Tuesday night at Idaho Falls, with a third session planned for Boise on Wednesday.

The five people who attended attributed the poor turnout to a lack of advance notice. Challis resident Steve Cobby, president of the Central Idaho Rod and Gun Club, said he was unable to address the draft EIS due to a lack of sufficient preparation time.

"How can I make a legitimate comment for the record if I didn't know anything about it until two to three hours ago?" he said. "I know the word didn't get out because even ICL (the Idaho Conservation League) isn't here."

Cobby, a multiple-use advocate, limited his official comment, to opposing further wilderness because "wilderness is an area of non-use and prevents access."

Mackey-area rancher Herb Whitworth said he also was unprepared. Whitworth said his concern was find-

Vacated shops downtown may be taxed soon

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

BOISE — A bill to begin taxing empty buildings and "common areas" like other businesses in downtown Twin Falls passed the House Tuesday with little opposition.

The House passed the bill over to the Senate on a vote of 79-2.

"It has really been a problem with several large businesses left to go to the mall," said Rep. Celia Gould, R-Buhl.

The Twin Falls Building Improvement District currently does not tax vacant structures, although Boise's district does.

Twin Falls officials got conflicting legal advice on whether empty buildings could be taxed; so Gould sponsored the bill with Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, to clarify the point.

Taxable businesses would be defined specifically to include vacant structures, common areas and lots within the district.

Geologist's discovery may contain embryo

AMERICAN FORK, Utah (AP) — A dinosaur egg discovered in a central Utah quarry may contain the oldest embryo ever found and change perceptions about how the creatures became extinct, geologists say.

A scan of a partially collapsed egg the size of a man's fist has revealed a two-centimeter-long gray area that appears to be the crude outline of an embryo, said Wade Miller, a paleontologist from Brigham Young University.

In the scan, the egg shell appears white. Most of the egg's interior is dark gray except for a tiny area that has the shape of a head and other features, Miller said.

The egg was discovered last September in the Cleveland Lloyd Quarry where BYU has uncovered thousands of Allosaurus bones, a meat-eater that stood up to 20 feet high.

Miller said skeletal remains of the dinosaurs that lived during the Jurassic "Period," which began around 210 million B.C. and ended 145 million B.C., have ranged from juveniles that weighed 100 lbs. to three-ton adults.

Miller said several eggs had been found from the Cretaceous Period, the most recent dinosaur age, but none had been found from the Jurassic Period.

He said the egg is causing experts to rethink a theory of how dinosaurs in the area became extinct.

Miller said, previously geologists believed the dinosaurs in the Cleveland Lloyd Quarry were trapped in a bog before then.

Miller's committee presentation featured a chart illustrating CPI increases near 200 percent between 1967 and 1983, while flat-rate phone service rose only about 60 percent.

Roden countered that no CPI comparison before 1979 is valid because Mountain Bell is such a different company, which can't sell phones or offer repair service.

"There just isn't any comparison, it isn't the same," Roden said.

Keep the cloud symbol, students vote

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Students in this "atomic city" voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to keep a nuclear mushroom cloud as the symbol of their Richland High School Bombers.

Finishing second in the student voting was a caricature of an atomic bomb, followed by a B-17 bomber plane and three atomizing rings.

The mushroom cloud had been informally at the school for almost two decades—had been called offensive by some teachers and students who said it represented nuclear destruction.

The issue was an emotional one in this city of 30,000 adjacent to the Hanford nuclear reservation, where for more than 40 years the federal government has made plutonium for nuclear weapons.

"I don't think the student body sees it (the cloud) as a symbol of destruction or weaponry," said Marcia Cilan, vice president of the Associated Student Body. "I don't think it signifies anything other than Richland High School."

Ninety percent of the students voting in the school election agreed with her.

"We're not going to change it just because a bunch of people are making fun of it," said student Glenn Goldberg.

Jim Deatherage, a teacher who had helped spearhead the drive to reject the symbol, said the students' decision was wrong.

"It stands for nuclear holocaust and the end of the world," he said. "It's an inappropriate symbol for high school kids to be glorifying."

Richland was a sleepy village of a few hundred residents when Hanford was carved out of the central Washington desert as part of the Manhattan Project to produce atomic bombs in World War II.

Many of the students' parents are employed at the site, where the government announced last week that plutonium production is being phased out at the cost of 2,600 jobs in the next two years.

The school's symbol, the letter "R" with a mushroom cloud rising above it, has been used since about 1971, but was never formally adopted by the student body.

Over the years there have been periodic attempts to stop using it, and some student leaders decided it was time to formally adopt a symbol.

Students were given white ballots with four symbols. There was no spot to write in new ideas or any way to reject all four options, a factor criticized by some teachers and students.

The mushroom cloud received 1,084 votes, the bomb 45, the airplane 40 and the rings 36, said Principal Gus Nash.

Nash said 1205 of the school's 1,300 students cast ballots.

The dispute, which has been raging for months, was the subject of considerable news media attention, and reporters roamed school halls on Tuesday for reactions to the voting.

Deatherage said teacher Rick Wige both said the election process virtually guaranteed the mushroom cloud would win.

Phones

PUC would no longer regulate toll service under the bill, so it could not shift costs this way, Benner said.

The PUC started an investigation into Mountain Bell's rates in 1986 because of estimates the company was earning as much as $19 million a year more than allowed.

PUC and Mountain Bell entered a settlement agreement in which the phone company agreed to spend $47 million to upgrade equipment statewide, instead of lowering its rates.

Under the bill, Mountain Bell is locked in at this higher residential rate, regardless of the end of improving its equipment.

"The legislation presumes that the current rates and rate structures are correct and then builds a rigid formula for adjusting those rates," PUC President Joe Miller told the House State Affairs Committee last week. "However, the presumption of correctness is faulty."

Mountain Bell lobbyist Bill Roden disputed PUC's assertions: He also countered that PUC's estimates came from the PUC staff and not the commission.

"The staff plays an advocacy role in the commission," Roden said. "He (Miller) never said the Public Utilities Commission had determined that."

Roden denied Mountain Bell would receive any more money than allowed.

The heart of the matter for Magic Valley representatives remains the proposed link between phone prices and CPI.

"It looks like an automatic escalator clause," said Rep. Doug Jones, R-Filer, who said he is undecided on whether to support the bill.

Since Mountain Bell's calculations using the CPI began in 1985, they don't reflect larger CPI gains before then.

Miller's committee presentation featured a chart illustrating CPI increases near 200 percent between 1967 and 1983, while flat-rate phone service rose only about 60 percent.

Roden countered that no CPI comparison before 1979 is valid because Mountain Bell is such a different company, which can't sell phones or offer repair service.

"There just isn't any comparison, it isn't the same," Roden said.

Reactor shuts down again

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — The Fast Flux Test Facility, billed as one of the most reliable reactors in the world, had its second shutdown of the year, Westinghouse Hanford Co. officials said Tuesday.

One of the world's largest research reactors, the FFTF, was shut down by operators Tuesday morning to remove an experimental fuel pin that had failed, said Westinghouse spokesman Rudy Cortez.

"There was no release of radiation or anything like that," Cortez said. "Everything happened as it was supposed to happen."

The FFTF is expected to resume full-power operations later this week, the company said.

The shutdown came after a metal uranium fuel pin that had been undergoing irradiation in the reactor for 425 days finally developed a pinhole, Cortez said.

Operators identified the fuel pin through an X-ray which is added to the pins during manufacture for identification purposes, he said. Each pin has a unique gas, he said.

When operators discovered the presence of the gas, they ordered the reactor shut down so the fuel pin could be removed, the company said.

"It will be examined to determine how it held up to the irradiation."

ing out what effect the BLM's 3,880-acre proposed wilderness designation for its Borah Peak study area would have on an irrigation pipeline he owns that heads in Elkhorn Creek. Whitworth said he feared it would prevent him from driving to his pipeline for maintenance.

Copies of the draft EIS, which was completed in January, were made available and written comments were encouraged. They will be taken until April 28.

The 3,880 acres being proposed as wilderness by the BLM in the Borah Peak area is adjacent to a Forest Service roadless area proposed for wilderness designation by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Gov. Cecil Andrus.

BID

Three vacant buildings left a combined gap of $8,700 in annual BID revenues when the businesses left downtown in 1986 and 1987. Two moved to Magic Valley Mall.

But BID officials urged the owners of the buildings should have to pay a portion of BID expenses because the buildings receive services such as landscaping and snow removal.

But Gould said legislators' concerns were answered by keeping city council responsible for setting the rates.

Boise's district, for example, charges only 25 percent of the regular business rate for empty buildings.

ing out what effect the BLM's 3,880-acre proposed wilderness designation for its Borah Peak study area would have on an irrigation pipeline he owns that heads in Elkhorn Creek. Whitworth said he feared it would prevent him from driving to his pipeline for maintenance.

Copies of the draft EIS, which was completed in January, were made available and written comments were encouraged. They will be taken until April 28.

The 3,880 acres being proposed as wilderness by the BLM in the Borah Peak area is adjacent to a Forest Service roadless area proposed for wilderness designation by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Kimberly, and John Peavey, D-Carav, also have embraced the bill and plan to co-sponsor it in the Senate.

Questions confronting Thompson in the Senate center on the program. Also, the discussion was somewhat clouded by a concern for creditors.

Thompson explained that start-up costs in Iowa, including training mediators, ran about $45,000. Now, the mediation program costs $276 to enter mediation and the service's budget is expected to reach $510,000 next year.

He specifically noted the distinction of mediator from negotiator or arbitrator. Negotiations involve only the interested parties without help.

"Creditors know very little more, if any more, than the farmers know how to negotiate," Thompson said.

On the other end of the spectrum, arbitration includes a third party who judges which side should win a given dispute.

Mediation lessens the adversarial position of creditor and failing farmer, he said, by sitting the people in conflict down to work out a solution.

"Our role is to clarify problems," he said.

But farmers need participate in mediation; Thompson said 30 percent of the financially troubled farmers in Iowa reject mediation.

Creditors, on the other hand, must participate in Iowa. Under Newcomb's bill, creditors also would be required to mediate in Idaho.

Sen. Jim Christiansen, D-Aberdeen, asked pointed questions about how the arrangements are reached. He asked what Thompson meant by saying creditors and farmers are expected to reach a "deal," a word the senator stressed.

Thompson said a deal would be a financial arrangement mutually agreed upon by the creditor and farmer.

"Has the farmer ever paid more than what they originally owed?" Christiansen asked.

"No," Thompson replied.

"Have they ever paid less?" the senator continued.

"Yes," Thompson said.

Noh then asked Thompson to put himself in the shoes of the lender to answer their concerns in Idaho.

"We're there to help these people (both farmers and creditors) get the best deal they can," Thompson said. "We get people to be realistic on both sides — if you've got cash flow of X, you can't pay X+1 dollars." "The settlements don't necessarily keep the people on the farm," he said.

He said in Iowa 70 percent of farmers facing foreclosure enter mediations and that agreements are reached in 80 percent of those cases.

Good morning. It's Wednesday, Feb. 24

For the third consecutive year, Lincoln County teams will decide the District 4 Class A-4 boys' basketball championship.

The game will happen tonight when top-ranked, defending state champion Shoshone, the winner of the Southside Subdistrict, takes on fourth-ranked Richfield, the Northside Subdistrict champion, at 8 p.m.

In the Jerome High School gym. This will be Shoshone's third straight quest for the district title; it beat Dietrich for the championship the last two years.

At 8:30 p.m., Southside runnerup Castelford will play Northside runnerup Camas County.

The District 4 champ will advance to the state tournament at CSI next week; the Shoshone-Richfield loser will play the Camas-Castelford winner for another shot at state Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The loser of that game will move on to an inter-district playoff with the No. 3 team from District 3 Saturday in Mountain Home.

Despite the proximity of Shoshone and Richfield, the teams have rarely played in boys' basketball in past 25 years and not at all since the Indians dropped from Class A-3 to Class A-4 three years ago.

Shoshone is 21-3 and has won its last 20 games; Richfield is 19-3. Both teams went to the state tournament a year ago.

Castelford, the 1986 state A-4 champion, will take a 12-11 record into tonight's game with Camas County, which is 14-7.

In Wendell, the state A-3 championship will be decided at 8:30 when top-seeded Filer (14-7) will take on second-seeded Declo (17-9). Should the Wildcats win, a consolation championship game will be played Thursday.

No. 1 Tigers earn No. 1 seed

Jerome tops Buhl for 1st round bye at tourney

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

BUHL — It went from perhaps the most offensively volatile game in Magic Valley this year to a foul-ridden, second-half marathon before the top-ranked Jerome Tigers topped the Buhl Indians 81-72 Tuesday night to end the regular season with a South-Central Idaho Conference victory.

The win pegged to a blistering 35-point second quarter gave Jerome the top seed in the District 4 Class A-2 tournament opening at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium Friday night. That will pit Wood River against Buhl with the winner taking on Jerome Saturday night.

The victory gave Jerome a 16-4 season record and left the Tigers 3-1 in District 4 games and 5-3 in the S.C.I.C. Buhl wraps up the regular season at 2-10 overall, 1-3 in district and 1-5 in the conference.

The one major lesson Buhl should have learned from this battle is that emotion is wonderful but when it burns off there's nothing left. The Indians sized up early with a penalty rate and dish-offense, liberally splinked with three-point goals, to rock the Tigers with a 22-9 first quarter lead.

But like a boxer rolling with the punches on the ropes, the Tigers,

Buhl's Joel Cannon puts a move on Jerome defender Shawn Thompson as the Buhl bench intensely watches the action catching a spark from Glenn Iacovit, came up with a knockout punch in the form of that 35-point second-quarter blitz.

That left Buhl behind 44-38 at halftime and the Indians showed every sign of emotional burnout or adrenal drain as they managed just three-points in the first four minutes of the third quarter and 10 overall to fall behind by 12.

The deficit grew as much as 19 points as both teams dropped back into a succession of fouls and faulty ball handling.

"I thought defense was what lost for us," said Buhl Coach Tom Chivers. "We gave up 35 points in the second quarter standing in a two-three zone. I don't think any high school team in the state can score 35 points in a quarter."

"But the third quarter may have been worse," he continued, "because we played without any aggressiveness. Jerome just took with one minute and twenty-five seconds left in the first period."

Nathan Hall hit a 14-foot shot for the Bobcats with three seconds left in the first quarter to bring Burley to a 26-23 tie. "I thought defense was what lost for us," said Buhl Coach Tom Chivers. "We gave up 35 points in the second quarter standing in a two-three zone. I don't think any high school team in the state can score 35 points in a quarter."

Region III A-1: Bruins defeat Bobcats 73-46 in first round

By COLIN MULDON Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The song remains the same.

Fourth-seeded Twin Falls, in its quest for a state Class A-1 playoff berth, pummeled the fifth-seeded Bobcats 73-46 in the opening round of the Region III boys' basketball tournament here Tuesday.

The Bruins now advance into the winner's brackets meeting the Minico Spartans in Rupert when second-round action unfolds on Thursday.

Game time is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Second-seeded Pocatello, fighting off defeat at the end of regulation play and the first overtime, hit free throws coming to the end of the second overtime to upend Highland 68-

61 in the other tournament opener. Highland missed a succession of free throws in the final minute of regulation but did get one to fall with nine seconds left and a two-point lead.

But Pocatello scored at the buzzer to force the overtime. Highland will host Burley at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in a loser-out game.

Twin Falls' victory over the Bobcats echoed previous Bruins victories earlier in the season.

The Bruins dominated Burley on the boards, out-rebounding the Bobcats 38-23.

"We controlled the boards and we controlled (Ryan) Samples," Bruin Coach John Astorquia said. "We wanted to hold him to 12 points and he gets nine."

Astorquia's method — defense was the man-to-man. And it worked.

The Bruins were able to contain

Samples, Wade Swen and 6-foot, 2-inch senior Kris Davis to 23 total points.

Astorquia gave credit to the Bruin offense however, where credit where credit was due.

"I thought they did a good job on offense, they were very patient," he said.

The Bobcats were so patient in fact, that Astorquia was forced to pull out his senior center Loren Waldapfel in the first two minutes of the first quarter. The Bruin skipper chose to go with a quicker Jeremy Willey and a man defense to contain Samples.

Astorquia anticipated a possible four-corners offense by Burley, but that never materialized and Bruins were able to employ their offense and take an early 13-6 advantage when Joy Bryant hit a field-goal to a 26-23 tie. "I thought defense was what lost for us," said Buhl Coach Tom Chivers. "We gave up 35 points in the second quarter standing in a two-three zone. I don't think any high school team in the state can score 35 points in a quarter."

"But the third quarter may have been worse," he continued, "because we played without any aggressiveness. Jerome just took with one minute and twenty-five seconds left in the first period."

District A-3: Filer advances to title game

By RON GATES Times-News writer

WENDELL — It took top-seeded Filer one full quarter to establish the tempo Tuesday evening, but one that was accomplished by the Wildcats seldom expected.

Gooding 73-60 and moving into today's championship game of the District 4 Class A-3 boys' basketball tournament.

No. 2 Declo, which defeated the Cats 76-48 in the tournament semifinal on Saturday, provided the opposition in that contest. With the Hornets unbeaten in the tourney Filer will have to win tonight, then repeat that feat Thursday in order to gain an automatic berth in next week's state tournament at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

But should Filer fall again Tuesday's victory means no worse than a return to Cascade High School, from where he arrived this year, for first-year Wildcat Coach LaRell Patterson and his charges.

The second-place team from District 4 moves west on Saturday to challenge the runner up from District 2 for the state event's final spot.

Just after Filer moved out to a 57-48 lead — its biggest of the game to that point — on Justin Cream's free throws with 5 minutes and 38 seconds left in the game, Gooding staged one final challenge.

Tim Yore replied with his third three-point bomb of the contest 14 seconds later. And Lufe Hutcherson, who scored 15 before becoming the first of three Senator starters to foul out, cut it to 57-54 by converting a three-point play.

But Filer, apparently lifting the air-out of the ball, lifted the defense to sleep, allowing Mike Brady his team's final bucket at the 2:16 mark. The Wildcats added eight more from the stripe before time expired.

Shane Blackwell, Filer's 5-foot, 11-inch junior forward, scored 11 of his 14 points in a first half which saw the Wildcats connect on 60 percent of their attempts from the floor.

Down 17-16 with a minute left before the five-minute break Filer tied the game on Cliff Lutz' baseline jumper, then grabbed the lead for good when Lutz, who led all scorers with 21, got inside for two more after a Senator turnover.

Still with the hot-hand Lutz opened the second period with a three-pointer and tallied all his team's points in a 7-2 run to open the margin to seven.

No slouches from the field themselves Gooding, which connected on 13 of 26 first half fielders, but just five of 14 charists moved back within three by intermission.

"We missed quite a few easy shots in the second half," explained Gooding Coach Lou Anderson, whose team ended the season at 12-13. "We shot pretty well (50-percent) in the first half and we got it inside pretty well after halftime, but I don't, know what we did with it."

Kirk McRae led Gooding with 16 points. Yore added 13 and Michael Smith had 10 for the Senators. Cream finished with 19 points for Filer.

Tonight's Wildcat-Hornet title tilt is set to begin at 8:30 p.m. following a 6:45 clash for the junior varsity championship contest between Valley and Kimberly. Against Declo Patterson looks to a 26-23 tie. "I thought defense was what lost for us," said Buhl Coach Tom Chivers. "We gave up 35 points in the second quarter standing in a two-three zone. I don't think any high school team in the state can score 35 points in a quarter."

It's an all-East Europe day at Winter Games

By JOHN NELSON The Associated Press

CALGARY, Alberta — Flying Finn Matti Nykanen and Frank-Peter Roetsch, of East Germany, became double gold medalists, while B&B did a sultry dance to victory at the Winter Olympics' Soviet bloc party Tuesday night.

The beer from Bonnie Blair's victory bash hadn't even gone flat before America's day of glory, turned into another day of gold for the East.

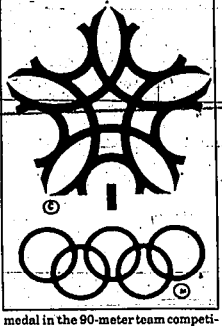

Natalia Bestemaniova and Andrei Bukin's three-time world champions from the Soviet Union, won the ice dancing competition. With Bestemaniova displaying a wide range of theatrical expressions, B&B skated to an easy victory over Soviet's Marina Klimov and Sergei Ponomarenko. Tracy Wilson and Robert McCall gave Canada its first ice dancing medal with the bronze.

The Soviets now have a leading 22 medals, East Germany 17. The Soviets have eight golds to seven for East Germany, and the two countries have won 39 of 90 medals offered so far.

The volatile Matti Nukes, who already won the 70-meter jump, won the 90 with a hill record jump of 113.6 meters, becoming the first double jumping gold medalist at an Olympics. Later, he rejected suggestions that a statue be erected in his honor.

"There are more important things than building a statue for me," said Nykanen, who "can get a third medal in the 90-meter team competition Wednesday. "Statues are for presidents, not for ski jumpers."

Roetsch won the 10-kilometer biathlon, adding that gold to his

Armstrong hopes for a second race of her life

Editor's note: The women's giant slalom is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. MST today.

By CHRISTINE BRENNAN The Washington Post

MOUNT ALLAN, Alberta — After an "up-and-down" ailing season, which is just the latest chapter of her up-and-down life, Debbie Armstrong finds herself back at the Olympics, a defending champion.

at Sarajevo, the women's giant slalom. If she finishes in the top 10, her coaches will be happy. If she gets to the bottom in one piece, depends all her energy and has fun, she will be happy.

"This Olympic experience is going to be absolutely as special as Sarajevo," she said. "No matter what happens, I'm going to look back at Calgary and I'm going to be proud and I'm going to be lucky to have been here."

Debbie Armstrong has never had a finer moment as a skier than she did at the Winter Olympics of 1984. A fresh-faced 20-year-old from Seattle, she stayed up late the night before her race eating peanut butter. The next day, she finished second on the first run, and fourth on the second run, but her combined time was good enough to beat teammate Christin Cooper by 4-10ths of a second to win the gold medal. It was the first and only time Armstrong won a world-class race.

It also was one of the few times she was racing healthy.

Armstrong has injured a knee, broken her leg twice, and dislocated it once, usually in sports other than skiing. The dislocation took place last summer in Argentina, where she was training. A pin was put in her fibula and she couldn't ski again until the end of the year. Although she had a respectable 18th place finish in the women's super giant slalom Monday, she looked tentative and isn't expected to come close to a medal Wednesday.

"It's difficult for her not having total confidence in the leg," said U.S. women's ski team head coach Chip

Dow little changed as rally bogs down

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market finished little changed Tuesday as it ran into some resistance trying to extend its recent rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks up 25-70 points on Monday to its highest level in six weeks, slipped back 1.7 to 2,039.12.

The market's best-known indicator has risen more than 144 points between Feb. 8 and Monday's close which was its highest finish since Jan. 7.

Advancing issues outpaced losers by a narrow margin among issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange, with 767 up, 726 down and 493 unchanged.

Big Board volume rose to 192.26 million shares from 178.93 million shares on Monday.

The stock market has benefited recently from indications that the economy may be stronger than had been expected, leading some analysts to take an optimistic view of the outlook for corporate profits. But there is plenty of uncertainty about the economy's prospects.

In a new report, the government said orders to U.S. factories for durable goods plunged 2.8 percent in January, the biggest decline in a year.

"A decline had been expected, however, in the wake of an unusually sharp 4.1 percent rise in December."

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan spent most of the day outlining for a congressional panel the central bank's monetary goals and his views on economic issues.

He said the risk of a recession is as great as the risk of renewed inflation, but added that neither appears imminent.

He also confirmed that the central bank, in an effort to keep the recovery alive, had taken a "small easing step a few weeks ago."

Among the most active issues on the NYSE were several utility stocks that will soon be paying dividends. Philadelphia Electric was the most active, finishing unchanged at 19 1/8.

Among the blue chips, Eastman Kodak rose 1/2 to 41 1/4. American Telephone & Telegraph fell 1/4 to 29 1/4 and International Business Machines rose 1/4 to 116 1/4.

Moore-McCormack climbed 10 1/4 to 34 1/4 after Southland disclosed it was offering $31 a share for the company.

Texas fell 1/4 to 42 1/4. It said it had agreed to pay the government $1.25 billion to settle an oil pricing dispute. Other oil stocks were lower, with Occidental Petroleum off 1/4 at 26 1/4, Atlantic Richfield down 1/4 at 78 1/4 and Mobil down 1/4 at 44 1/4.

TU International rose 2/4 to 22 after receiving competing buy orders.

As measured by White Associates prices of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market fell $2.8 billion, or 0.11 percent, in volume.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 219.41 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stock fell 0.57 to 305.77, and S&P 500-stock composite index was off 0.62 to 285.02.

Home Sweet Home

Desserts that cater affection direct from grandmother

"Sweet Home Catering" deliciously describes the culinary credo of two enterprising chefs who have dazzled palates from the Caribbean to Long Island. For in naming their New York City catering business, Naomi Uman and Catherine Young have truly evoked the warmth and affection of their mother's and grandmother's kitchens.

"We have a tremendous respect for home and what women have done in their kitchens," says Uman. "What Catherine and I have done is to take many of the ideas for our cuisine from our mothers and grandmothers, then updated them."

Young adds, "We're also perfectionists. We experiment with food until it is spectacular. Even when a client requests something simple and straightforward like Veal Parmigiana, we'll make it with rascette cheese and dress it up with a wreath of basil."

And now the two Culinary Institute of America graduates have directed their considerable talents to "Great American Desserts."

One dessert that has been a favorite in Mr. Young's family for years is Chicago-New York Espresso. A classic layered gelatin mold filled with fruity flavors, it capitalizes on such easy, simple convenience products as whipped topping, raspberry and lime flavor gelatin, frozen raspberries and canned pineapple.

The Sweet Home Catering chefs now suggest making layers of this dessert a day or two ahead of time. They also recommend brushing the mold form with peanut or safflower oil to help the gelatin come out more easily.

Another extraordinary dessert is Strawberries Cardinal. Here, instead of dipping the strawberries in chocolate, the berries are cloaked in a coating of strawberry flavor gelatin. Glistening like gems, the strawberries are then served with a sauce made elegant with raspberry liqueur. Because it is so unique, Young and Uman suggest serving this dish as hors d'oeuvres on a beautiful tray or as a passed dessert for a buffet.

Chocolate-Walnut Torte is yet another spectacular dessert frequently prepared by Sweet Home Catering. This cheery, supremely chocolatey dessert is made with semi-sweet chocolate plus walnuts and a hint of cinnamon. One special tip, a la Young and Uman, is to keep a mixture of finely chopped chocolate, walnuts and bread crumbs at hand for desserts you want to make in a hurry.

Other captivating Sweet Home Catering specialties are Banana Macaroons, sweetened with flake coconut; a delicious Grecian Pudding, accented with raisins and brandy; a sparkling, light-tasting Lemon Mousse; cherry-Chocolate Graters; great cookies for children to make because you don't need a mixer; and Apple Bread Pudding, made delightfully quick and easy with vanilla flavor pudding.

Strawberries Cardinal

- 1 package (4-serving size) strawberry flavor gelatin
  - 1/2 cup boiling water
  - 2 pints strawberries
  - 1 package (10-ounce) quick thaw red raspberries in a lite syrup, thawed
  - 2 tablespoons raspberry liqueur
- Dissolve gelatin completely in boiling water in small saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly. Chill until slightly thickened, about 5 minutes.
- Dip strawberries in gelatin to coat, while holding by stem. Place on waxed paper-lined baking sheet and chill until gelatin is firm. Place raspberries and liqueur in blender or processor and puree. Spoon about 1/4 cup sauce on each dessert plate.
- Top with strawberries.
- Makes 6 servings.

Apple Bread Pudding

- 2 packages (4-serving size) vanilla flavor pudding and pie filling
  - 4 cups milk
  - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
  - 1/4 cup apple brandy
  - 8 cups cubed challah bread
  - 3 eggs, peeled, scalded and cubed
  - Confectioner's sugar
  - *Or use apple cider
- Prepare pudding as directed on package with milk, adding cinnamon. Stir in apple brandy.
- Coarsely bread and apple cubes. Place in 13x9-inch baking dish. Pour pudding over cubes, gently stirring to coat completely. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes, or until slightly browned. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Serve warm or chilled.
- Makes 8 servings.

'Simply Inspiring' describe these desserts made quick and easy with convenience products: (clockwise, upper left) Chocolate Craters, Banana Macaroons, Chocolate-Walnut Torte; Strawberries Cardinal, Lemon Mousse

Lemon Mousse

- 1 package (4-serving size) lemon flavor gelatin
  - 1 1/4 cups boiling water
  - 1/2 cup cold water
  - 1/4 cup lemon juice
  - 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
  - 7 cups non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
- Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add cold water, lemon juice and rind. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped topping. Spoon into dessert glasses or bowl. Chill until firm, 4 hours or overnight. Makes about 10 cups or 20 servings.

Chocolate Craters

- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups firmly packed brown sugar

1/4 cup (1 1/4 sticks) butter or margarine
2 tablespoons water
1 1/4 packages (12-ounces) semi-sweet chocolate
2 eggs

Combine flour, baking soda and salt; set aside. Place sugar, butter and water in saucepan and cook until sugar and butter have melted, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in chocolate until melted and smooth. Beat in eggs, one at a time.

Athlete's diets keep things balanced

By DANA WATERS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — An athlete's body is her greatest asset. How she cares for it will directly affect its performance and thus her success.

Physical training is the obvious conditioning we expect the athlete to give her body, but no human system runs without expending caloric energy. To keep things in balance, that energy must be given back in a very basic way: by eating.

Nutrition is vital in the world of competitive sports. For what goes in, comes out, and the quality of the first increases the performance of the second.

Wood River residents, Katrin Tobin — bronze medalist at the Pan American Games in women's cycling — and Allison Kiesel, 10-time National Champion cross-country skier, realize the important role that food plays in the execution of their sports. They graciously offer some tips for the rest of us.

When Katrin Tobin talks about nutrition and how it relates to her cycling, her voice bubbles. The excitement it clearly comes through the miles of telephone wires that separate Twin Falls from the Ketchum resident who is now training in East Palo Alto, Calif. for a berth on the Olympic cycling team.

"I like food," says Tobin. "I love to eat, and I enjoy cooking. It's a special part of my life. I don't eat the way I do just because I'm training. The basic diet I'm on now, I'll be using for the rest of my life. I love eating the things that are good for me. I'm just either really lucky, or it's something I've talked myself into."

For anyone who is health conscious, Tobin's diet would be easy to love. High in complex carbohydrates — pasta, dried beans, oats, brown rice, whole wheat breads, seeds, nuts, cereals — and low in fat, it's nutritious and delicious. Full of variety and ideally suited to her body's incredible demands for food energy.

Tobin trains from two to seven hours a day for races that last from one to four hours. She says it's not hard for her to consume upwards of 3000 to 4000 calories daily. And she makes sure everyone of those calories is working for her.

"You have to have an adequate intake, but you also need to consider the efficiency of the fuel. I'm not a snacker. I eat three meals a day, and often go back for seconds, but the foods I eat are quality ones," says Tobin.

Standard yogurt is mixed by half with fat varieties, the same holds true in salad dressings, for when you're cutting fat, every little bit helps. Tobin's diet includes original and energy-packed oatmeal for breakfast nearly every morning, lots of brown rice and pasta primavera, plenty of vegetables — the crunchier the better — and a salad every evening. It's a diet that was developed on the road by watching what other racers were doing and adding personal touches and preferences.

As of six weeks ago, Tobin has her own kitchen to cook in, and she's delighted. She says that jars full of nuts, seeds and grains march along the counter just waiting to be put into the recipes she experiments with and adapts to suit her needs. Even when she's in the off-season for racing, she still trains heavily so she can enjoy eating all of the foods she loves.

"I guess my stepmother was responsible for giving me an awareness about nutrition," she says. "My father had raised us alone and breakfasts were usually cold cereal affairs. She came and started bringing home things like bran and hot cereal. That was the beginning... and then watching what the other cyclists cooked as we traveled together. I'd never seen a rice cooker, let alone used one, or even made oatmeal."

Because athletes are on the road so much, eating healthfully isn't always easy. When they do have access to a kitchen, they have to keep the variety of the food quite simple, using up all that they purchase before it's time to move on, and using only minimal amounts of the extra seasonings or fats that they enjoy. It's just too difficult to pack a pantry.

Allison Kiesel, who helped develop women's Nordic skiing in this country from a non-existent entity to the status it has today, talks of eating in restaurants a lot of the time where food really wasn't all that healthy.

The key seems to lie in the athlete's ability to eat the best of what is available, know she has done all that is possible and go on from there.

"I can never use food for a crutch or as an excuse," says Kiesel, "because I have raced well even when the food I had to work with wasn't the best. You just have to eat right all the times when you have control, and trust your body to adjust when you don't. From my own experience, an occasional bad diet doesn't keep you from being a winner, but a constant poor one would definitely knock you out of the running."

Tobin agrees. She, too, knows the traveling

Diet thrown out, bring in healthy food

I own enough diet books that if their weights were totaled it would probably equal the "sum" I'm trying to lose. I realize you can't "try" to do anything. It's like placing one of those books in a shelf — either you place it there or you don't.

So I'm not "trying" to lose weight — less than I used to be because most of my local eaters left — but I'm cooking differently. Does this mean I've given up on chocolate, whipped cream and nuts? Does this mean no more Turtle Brownie recipes? Rest assured, my friends, it doesn't.

There are lots and lots of testers out there, all I need to do is take a plate of cookies or a cake somewhere and I get an honest quick appraisal, either they eat it or they don't and I have feedback on my recipe. Oh yes, I still taste. In fact, I've found if I really want anything, I can have it and that permission-alone makes formerly "forbidden" foods not that enticing.

Everyone has to come to this point their own way. It has to be their own decision and it has to "click."

That was the expression that Elizabeth Taylor used in her new book, "Elizabeth Takes Off." It was a mental "click" that helped her come up from the dredges of those picture magazines you read in a slow checkout lane at a supermarket, to regain what is now a gorgeous 56.

Celebrities aren't my hobby, but E.T. is more than just a celebrity. I loved the book. It didn't dish the dirt — though I think she could have thrown a few shovel fulls at some notorious comedians. She makes her climb back up to self-esteem and self-image sound definitely not easy, but still plausible.

If you're facing such a climb, this book may help you with "attitude adjustment." We all know it's mental and maybe this will be your "click." She had hers when she saw herself in a full-length mirror, sans clothes. That's probably enough to make most of us have a "I've got to do something — click" but she followed through and look at the results.

There is a "Taylor-made Diet" in the book and it has some downright good things in it. Things to eat the rest of your life, because you know anyone can take off weight, it's keeping it off that's hard.

I liked her mayonnaise recipe and found it made a good base for a salad dressing.

LIZ'S SPECIAL MAYONNAISE

- 1 whole egg
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 tablespoon balsamic or other vinegar
- juice of 1 lemon
- 2 cloves garlic, peeled and crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

Katrin Tobin, cyclist, gives tips

Energy

 Life and says when you're racing internationally, you really have to be flexible.
 "When we were in Vienna, the cycling team was being served meals filled with heavy things like potatoes and gravy...definitely not the diet the American cyclists were used to. Because I speak German, the other team members would tell me to ask for more rice...or pasta. I finally had to put a stop to that. Remember, we are in Vienna. Show a little cultural sensitivity, you guys! The most important thing in racing is how you feel about yourself...you're going up to the line...you're doing the best you can to get your body ready with the food available to you, you should feel confident in any circumstances," says Tobin.

Both athletes enjoy food in these many basic forms, without heavy sauces.
 "Things can be well-seasoned without being rich," says Kiesel who also has the bulk of her diet in complex carbohydrates and offers this wonderful recipe for pasta:

PASTA WITH PESTO
 2 tablespoons butter
 1 small onion
 1/2 pound chicken, cooked and boned
 1/2 cup small petite peas
 4-6 small new potatoes, halved and boiled
 1 pound fettuccine, boiled and drained pesto sauce (recipe follows)
 grated Parmesan cheese, to taste
 Melt butter in a large skillet. Add onions and saute 5 minutes. Add meat, peas, potatoes, pasta and pesto sauce. Toss thoroughly, and top with grated Parmesan cheese.

PESTO SAUCE
 2 cups packed fresh basil (kitchen gathers plenty in the summer and freezes it for future use)
 3 cloves garlic
 2-4 tablespoons pine nuts
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/4 cup light olive oil
 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
 1/4 cup Romano cheese
 Place basil, garlic, nuts and salt in a processor or blender and mix until smooth. Slowly add oil. When blended, gently stir in the cheeses.

In addition to eating well, athletes have an incredible need to stay hydrated, having adequate fluid intake. Both Tobin and Kiesel stress the importance of this when weather conditions like rain and cold would make drinking water seem less necessary.
 Tobin says she is sold on water bottles and keeps one beside her bed at night as well as packing one in the carry-on bag she takes everywhere.

Kiesel reminds skiers that they need water, too, especially in the high altitudes when the air is thin and dry and the sun is reflecting off the snow.
 She tries to drink every 20 minutes. "You just have to be more deliberate about it in the winter," says Kiesel, "because you're not always aware that you need liquids. I do find, though, that I can't eat a lot of fruit when the weather is bad. Sounding about the high water content of it really makes me feel cold."
 Tobin talks of the importance of timing meals, especially those before a race.
 "I eat three hours before the race is scheduled to start. I want my food to be completely digested and ready to work for me. You don't want your muscles and your digestive system to be fighting each other for the blood supply," says Tobin.
 She prefers to race in the morning, and will be up at 5:30 a.m. to eat for a race that begins at 9 a.m. Tobin's favorite breakfast is oatmeal which she spruces up to provide plenty of iron and vitamin C.

CRANBERRY OATMEAL
 2 cups water
 1 cup oats
 1/2 cup fresh cranberries, washed and drained
 1/2 tart apple, cut in small, slices
 1/2 cup raisins
 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
 (Tobin sometimes adds a bit of vanilla too.)
 Place berries, raisins and apples in milk.
MIX IN:
 2 cups cooked brown rice
 Transfer to 1 1/2 quart dish and bake in oven at 375 degrees for 45 minutes, or until set and browned. Cool at least 10 minutes before serving.
 Tobin dunks wheat milk on the oatmeal because it's so mucous forming. She sweetens the cereal a bit, with maple syrup.
 Tobin takes vitamin and mineral supplements during the racing season as her "safety net" — her insurance that she has no deficiencies when she needs to be at her peak. She goes off these supplements, however, when she is not training to allow her body to find its own balance.
 "I am precious for an athlete, and both Tobin and Kiesel find that keeping foods in their natural state is the easiest, and healthiest way to go.
 "I have children, too, and they don't buy into really wild recipes," says Kiesel who has retired from the racing circuit but teaches at the Katrin Tobin, cyclist, gives tipst woman in on the 30-kilometer Boulder Mountain Tour held in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area earlier this year.

 Tobin finds that it's best to cook up large quantities of her favorite staples like brown rice and beans, so they are ready to be put into use.
 To close, here are two of her recipes, one featuring rice, the other, beans. Both are delicious... and you don't need to be a world class athlete to prepare or enjoy them.

RICE PUDDING
 In a mixing bowl:
 beat 3 egg whites with a fork.
 Stir in and combine well:
 1 1/4 cup canned evaporated skim milk
 1/4 cup frozen apple juice concentrate (Tobin sometimes substitutes brown sugar)

 1 tablespoon orange juice
 1/2 cup currants or raisins
 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 Mix in:
 2 cups cooked brown rice
 Transfer to 1 1/2 quart dish and bake in oven at 375 degrees for 45 minutes, or until set and browned. Cool at least 10 minutes before serving.

VEGIE-BEAN PATHTIES
 In a mixing bowl, puree with a fork:
 1 1/2 cups cooked beans
 Add:
 1/4 cup soy sauce
 1/4 cup cider vinegar
 1 1/2 cups whole grain bread crumbs, or more as needed

1/4 cup wheat germ
 1/4 cup bran (try oat bran)
 1 egg
 1 large carrot, grated
 1/4 medium-sized onion, chopped
 1 clove garlic, minced
 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
 1 teaspoon dried basil
 Mix well, then form into 8-10 patties. If mixture is too loose to hold its shape, add more bread crumbs. Heat a Teflon-coated pan and brown patties well on both sides. If desired, during the last three minutes of cooking, place a thin slice of cheese on each patty, and cover pan to melt cheese. Serve in plastic pocket bread or whole grain bread or bun, with tomato, lettuce and sprouts. Experiment by adding finely chopped mushrooms or bell pepper, a small grated zucchini, leftover rice or bulgur wheat, chili seasonings or sunflower seeds.

Couch potato, athletic model — all need food

By DANA WATERS
 Times-News correspondent
TWIN FALLS — If we think of our bodies as the vehicles that transport us through life, it only makes sense to assume that the quality of fuel we give them will largely determine the pleasure of the trip.
 Food is the fuel source for our bodies, and whether we're "driving" the classy sport's model of an athlete, or the never-improving station wagon of the couch potato, we can all improve the quality of our calorie intake.
 Jan Mittleider, nutrition and health educator at the College of Southern Idaho, offers some suggestions.
 "My real love is 'wellness' — teaching people to lead healthy and disease-preventative lives," she says.

Mittleider has found a wonderful book to help get the average American on the road to better health.
 "The 'New American Diet,'" by Sonja L. and William E. Conner is based on a 5-year study of 233 American families funded by the National Institutes of Health.
 The book is a hot item and because many local doctors are endorsing it, local bookstore clerks say they can't keep it on the shelves and are constantly reordering.
 It is a lifetime family diet plan that is billed to reduce the risk of coronary heart disease by 40 percent, blood cholesterol levels by 20 percent, provide natural and permanent weight loss and protect against stroke, cancer, high blood pressure, atherosclerosis and obesity.

 Quite a job description, but one that Mittleider feels the book fulfill.
 "What I like most is its three phase plan that takes you from transitional American fare through transitional stages of progressively better nutrition before leaving you with the end product of dramatically healthier diet," she says.
 Slow and steady is the watchword. Mittleider says when we quickly, we diet drastically and too change our set ourselves up for failure and real discomfort.
 "The final goal of the 'New American Diet' is the daily distribution of food in the following ratios: 50-65 percent complex carbohydrates, 20-25 percent fat and 15 percent protein with only 100 mg. of cholesterol and 1 teaspoon of salt.

Meat becomes more a condiment, while the complex carbohydrates take up the slack.
 "The book has quizzes to take to determine the state of your present diet, all kinds of suggestions to improve your favorite recipes and plenty of new ones to try," says Mittleider.

Here are two to get you started:
CURRIED LENTILS
 1 large onion and carrot, chopped
 2 stalks celery, chopped/w/leaves
 1 apple, chopped
 2 cloves garlic, minced
 dash of anise seed
 1/2 teaspoon light salt
 1 cup uncooked lentils
 1 teaspoon curry powder (more or less to taste)

 8 cups water
 Combine all ingredients and bring to a boil. Reduce heat, and cook until done. Serve over steamed rice.
APRICOT NUT BREAD
 2 1/2 cups flour
 1 cup sugar
 1 1/2 tablespoons baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon light salt

1 cup safflower oil
salt substitute or salt, and pepper
artificial sweetener

1/2 skin milk
Place egg and egg yolk, vinegar, lemon juice, garlic, mustard and Worcesterhire sauce in blender and whirl until well mixed. With blender on high speed, add oil a little at a time (mixture will be very thick). Remove to a bowl and add salt, pepper and artificial sweetener to taste. Pour in skim milk and stir thoroughly. Store in airtight container in refrigerator until needed. Will keep well for up to six weeks.

Another neat thing about the recipes, most of them are for one person.

Yes, you need to forget standing at the counter with a peanut butter and jelly sandwich in one hand and a glass of chocolate milk in the other. You need to feel special. We all know how much better food tastes even if we are alone if we take time to do it right?

But just to show you I haven't given up looking for the perfect cheesecake, here is one I made for company this week. It did not come from Elizabeth's book!

CHOCOLATE BOTTOM CHEESE CAKE

Crust:
1 1/2 cups chocolate wafer crumbs
1 cup silvored almonds
1/2 cup sugar
6 tablespoons butter, room temperature commercial thick chocolate or fudge sauce

Fillings:
3 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese (use the regular, I used the light and felt the texture wasn't quite firm enough)
1 cup sugar
4 eggs
3/4 cup heavy cream (unwhipped)
1/2 cup amaretto (coffee flavored liqueur probably would be great)

1 teaspoon vanilla
Topping:
2 cups sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup silvored almonds, toasted

Combine the wafer crumbs, almonds, sugar and butter in a food processor (could probably be done in a blender).

Pat this mixture into the bottom and sides of a buttered 10-inch springform pan. Spread a thin layer of the fudge sauce over this.

Now for the filling, cream together the cream cheese and sugar in a food processor or mixer. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Combine the cream, liqueur and vanilla—and add to the filling mixture. Pour into the chocolate crust.

Bake on the middle rack of a preheated 375 degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes. (It will still jiggle in middle when you move the pan). Put the cake on a rack and let it cool 10 minutes. Combine the topping ingredients (except the nuts) and spread over the top of the cheesecake. Bake again for 5-6 minutes.

Remove from oven and let cool at room temperature on a rack. Cover lightly with waxed paper and chill overnight.

When you're ready to serve, carefully remove the sides of the pan. There will be crust extending above top of cake, so break this off and crumble around the edges of the cheesecake. Sprinkle the nuts in the center.

This should serve 16, but if you have some real cheesecake lovers, figure on less.

beating well after each addition. Chill dough 20 minutes.

Shape dough into 1 1/4 inch balls, using a rounded tablespoonful for each. Place on greased baking sheets about 2 inches apart. Bake at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes. Cool on racks. Makes 36 cookies.

BANANA MACAROONS

5 1/4 cups (about) flake coconut
1 can (14-ounces) sweetened condensed milk
1 banana, finely chopped
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 egg whites

Combine coconut, milk, banana and salt; set aside.

Beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Stir cold in coconut mixture. Using heaping teaspoon for each, drop onto lightly greased baking sheets. Bake at 350 degrees about 20 minutes; or until browned. Remove from baking sheets immediately. Cool on racks. Makes about 3 dozen.

CHICAGO-NEW YORK EXPRESS MOLD

1 package (4-serving size) lime flavor gelatin
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 package (8-ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 can (8 1/2-ounces) crushed pineapple in syrup, drained
1 cup thawed non-dairy whipped topping

1 package (4-serving size) raspberry flavor gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup cold water
1 package (10-ounces) quick thaw red raspberries in a lite syrup, thawed

Dissolve lime flavor gelatin in 1 1/4 cups boiling water. Gradually blend gelatin into softened cream cheese and beat until smooth. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in pineapple and whipped topping. Pour into 7-cup mold. Chill until set but not firm. Meanwhile, dissolve raspberry flavor gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Add cold water. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in raspberries. Spoon over creamy layer in mold. Chill until firm, about 4 hours or overnight. Makes 12 servings.

CHOCOLATE WALNUT TORTE

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 package (8-ounces) semi-sweet chocolate, finely chopped
1 cup finely chopped walnuts
1/2 cup fresh bread crumbs
6 egg yolks, slightly beaten

1 tablespoon vanilla
1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
Dash of cinnamon
6 egg whites
Whipped topping

Beat butter until soft. Gradually beat in 1/2 cup of the sugar until light and fluffy. Stir in chocolate, walnuts, bread crumbs, egg yolks, vanilla, baking powder and cinnamon.

Beat egg whites until foamy throughout. Gradually beat in remaining sugar and continue beating until mixture will form stiff shiny peaks. Fold into batter mixture. Pour in greased and floured 10-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool cake on rack. Remove from sides of pan. Garnish with whipped topping and chocolate curls, if desired.

Using regular flour may alter consistency

By JOAN DRAKE
The Los Angeles Times

Q: I notice that some recipes call for cake flour and regular flour. I cannot seem to find cake flour anywhere. Can I substitute regular flour?

A: Cake flour is sold in 2-pound boxes (rather than bags) and should be available in most supermarkets. In an emergency, you can substitute two tablespoons all-purpose flour is equivalent to one cup cake flour. However, because all-purpose flour is made from a combination of hard and soft wheat, it will not produce quite the same texture as cake flour, milled entirely from soft wheat.

Q: I am interested in any information you have on Squaw bread. What ingredients qualify it as Squaw bread rather than what?

A: Recipes and ingredient listings we checked seem to agree that Squaw bread is made with whole-wheat flour, rye flour, all-purpose flour, yeast, honey, brown sugar or molasses, and raisins. This recipe from "Breads" (HP Books; 1983, $7.95) by Sharon Tyler Herbst is typical.

honey in water in large bowl of electric mixer. Let stand until foamy, 5 to 10 minutes. Combine remaining 1/4 cup honey, raisins, brown sugar and 1/2 cup milk in blender or food processor. Fit with metal blade. Process 30 to 45 seconds until raisins are ground.

To yeast mixture, add raisin mixture, remaining milk, butter, rye flour and 1 cup whole-wheat flour. Beat at medium speed with electric mixer, 2 minutes, or beat 200 vigorous strokes by hand.

Stir in remaining rye flour, remaining all-purpose flour and enough remaining whole-wheat flour to make soft dough. Turn out dough onto lightly floured surface. Knead dough 10 to 12 minutes or until smooth and elastic.

Place dough in greased bowl, turning to coat all sides. Cover with slightly damp towel. Let rise in warm place, free from drafts, until doubled, about 1 1/2 hours.

Grease 2 (2-quart) soufflé or casserole dishes or 2 large baking sheets. Sprinkle lightly with cornmeal and salt. Punch down dough and knead 30 seconds. Divide dough in half for 2 large loaves or in quarters for 4 small loaves.

Shape dough into round loaves. Place in prepared pans or on prepared baking sheets. Cover with dry towel. Let rise until doubled, about 1 hour.

Bake at 375 degrees 35 to 40 minutes for large loaves, 25 to 30 minutes for small loaves, or until bread sounds hollow when tapped. Remove from pans and cool on racks. Makes 2 large or 4 small loaves.

Fidelity survey draws response from faithfuls, philanderers

DEAR READERS: In my fidelity survey that brought over 210,000 responses, I was both astonished and reassured to learn that the marriage vow — to forsake all others — is still honored by 85 percent of the females and 74 percent of the males who responded.

Fred Case, a Seattle Times reporter, called the other day, and in a charming British accent asked: "Does your survey bear out what Lord Byron wrote in 'Don Juan': 'There's more adultery where the climate's sultry?'"

I told Fred that we were not tabulating the findings regionally, so his guess was as good as mine. I did, however, observe that Cana-the emptiness of living with a woman who is unable to show any affection through physical intimacy.

Women, too, wrote to justify their infidelities. The most common complaint: "Sex with my husband is so mechanical and unromantic. No caresses, no compliments, no love talk. He never talks to me. It's so humiliating!"

Another unfulfilled wife wrote: "Yes, I cheated on my husband. After nine years of marriage, I got bored and curious and wanted to see what else was out there. I had a real estate agent, an accountant, a jeweler, a commercial airline pilot, a construction worker and a magazine editor. The construction worker was the best and this was long before AIDS."

A Denver wife wrote: "My husband doesn't know how to make love; but he sure knows how to make money. I'd try to teach him a few things; but I'm afraid he'll ask me where I learned it."

The number of faithful older lovers was heartening. Letter after letter described enduring, true-blue marriages from couples in their 60s, 70s and 80s:

From St. Paul, Minn.: "We're writing because we want to add to the number of couples who have never cheated. I'm 82 and my wife is 88.

We've been married for 71 years, still have all our marbles and enjoy every aspect of married life, though we have slowed up some in recent years (arthritis)."

A 60-year-old farmer from Lexington, Ky., wrote: "Married 86 years, never cheated. No sex relations for eight years now. The wife says she's through with that kind of stuff."

If opportunity ever knocks, I'm afraid I'll be too old and deaf to hear it."

Some men admit to cheating — but only occasionally. From Philadelphia: "I've been married for 24 years and cheated twice. Once when I went back to my hometown for my 10th high school reunion, then again when I went back for my 20th (same girl). Now I'm looking forward to my 25th reunion."

I have enough material from this survey to write a book. And if I do, I will certainly include the following. Some short takes:

"Male, age 38, married 16 years. Income $55,000 a year. Cheated? Yes. But only out of town."

"Abby, please send me a list of males who have cheated in the Tampa Bay area. (I'm lonely but not necessarily desperate.)"

"Female, married 66 years. I have never cheated on my husband. I am 83 and my husband is 89 and says he can't remember."

Engagement

Michael Sobotka and Kimberly McKay

McKay-Sobotka

JEROME — Mrs. Patricia G. McKay, Jerome, and Thomas J. McKay, Sacramento, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Kimberly, to Michael Sobotka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Sobotka, Jerome.

McKay, a 1986 graduate of Jerome High School, is involved in farming and livestock raising.

Sobotka, who also graduated from Jerome High School, is engaged in farming north of Jerome. A Feb. 26 wedding is planned at the Turf Club.

Wedding

Sylvia and Randy Dill

Walters-Dill

JEROME — Sylvia Walters and Randy Dill were married Dec. 19, 1987, at the home of Mark and Marva Walters, Jerome.

Mayor Ralph Peters conducted the ceremony, which was based on the Book of Ruth.

The bride is the daughter of Charley and Madeline Walters, Jerome, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gene Dill, Ojai, Calif.

Charlotte Allen, Jerome, and Marilyn Brower, Clayton, attended their sister.

Tony Mammen served as best man and provided music.

Following the ceremony a reception was held with Shirley Pressey, Ojai, assisting.

The bride teaches elementary music in Mountain Home and the bridegroom is general manager of Canyon Springs Inn in Twin Falls. The couple resides in Jerome.

Several methods recommended for houseplant insect control

Although insects are not as likely to attack houseplants as outdoor plants, they can be much more difficult to control when they do occur. Several methods can be used to prevent or control insects.

Allen Wilson
gardening

Most insects on houseplants are brought in with plants. They may go undetected until they have multiplied and moved onto adjoining plants. No matter where you purchase an indoor plant, always check carefully to make sure it does not have any pests. Pests are most likely on the bottom of leaves or right where the leaves attach to the stems. A mottled or discolored leaf may be caused by insects.

Newly purchased plants should not be placed where they touch other plants for a few weeks. This will reduce the possibility of undetected pests moving onto other plants.

Another good preventive method is to clean plant leaves periodically with insecticidal soap. Fuzzy leaf plants do not like to be washed. Insecticidal soap is very mild and is not usually adequate to clear up severe problems. It is a good safe way to prevent pests or clear up minor infestations.

Chemical pesticides for houseplants are available in spray bottles and aerosol cans and granular materials which are applied to the soil. Spray materials are usually quite mild and safe to use inside. However, they are not always completely effective. Three or four weekly applications are usually needed to kill the newly hatching insects as they emerge from their protected eggs. You must also carefully spray the bottoms as well as the tops of the leaves.

The newest group of pesticides are insect growth regulators. When sprayed onto a young immature insect, they fail to grow to adulthood and therefore do not reproduce. Several applications over a period of weeks are necessary to control the newly hatching insects. Growth regulators are less dangerous to use than chemical pesticides.

Most indoor pesticides will control a wide range of pests.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College.

Homemade wines hard on judges

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — It's not easy, but every year the Chamber of Commerce manages to find volunteers to taste more than 100 bottles of homemade wine for the Newport Wine and Seafood Festival.

The job is not without risks. In fact, the volunteer judges must sign a waiver releasing the chamber from any blame should they be struck with a sudden illness. Amateur winemakers seldom carry liability insurance.

Since wine can be made from nearly anything organic, some of the entries are well unusual. Garlic, dried kiwi fruit, rose petals, zucchini and even sauerkraut have found their way into bottles during past competitions.

Stomach aches are unlikely, however, if the judges do the judging correctly. The wine isn't supposed to be swallowed. It's strictly a sniff, swirl, taste and spit operation, and everybody says it's very hard work.

Still, nobody else is allowed to taste the amateur wines that are displayed at the festival, which opened Friday and runs through Feb. 28. The public can taste only the commercial wines and compare their choices with results from a panel of professional judges.

Militia nabs 3 gunmen involved in abduction

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The main Shiite Muslim militia has caught three gunmen who kidnapped a U.S. Marine officer serving with the United Nations, but not the mastermind of the abduction, security sources said Tuesday.

Vietnam veteran and at one time served was an aide to former U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Terry A. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, kidnapped March 16, 1985.

one source said, and "the operation was a masterpiece from a professional standpoint."

withdrawal from the "security zone" it maintains in south Lebanon, release of Palestinian and Lebanese prisoners held by Israel and suspension of U.S. diplomatic activity in the Middle East.

Police detain Jewish settler in shooting death of Arab girl

JERUSALEM (AP) — Police detained a Jewish settler accused of fatally shooting a 13-year-old Arab girl Tuesday in the occupied West Bank, and troops shot and killed a second Palestinian, the army said.

Washington on Wednesday for a five-day round of shuttle diplomacy to launch a new peace initiative.

Shultz tells NATO that Soviet commitment to pullout 'clear'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Tuesday the Soviet Union has made a "very clear" commitment to withdraw its troops from Afghanistan, even though no firm timetable has been announced.

Secretary of State George Shultz answers a question

Shultz said he had encountered "intense skepticism" about the chances of a breakthrough on Middle East negotiations, but the United States has "a few ideas" that could help end the deadlock.

Argentina reaches accord with IMF

Los Angeles Times WASHINGTON — Argentina reached a tentative agreement with the International Monetary Fund Tuesday on a series of measures designed to repair its flagging economic restructuring program and enable it to resume borrowing money from the 101-country organization.

IMF loan that it negotiated last summer. The loan was suspended because Argentina had failed to meet some of its economic targets.

Italian police arrest 75 in drug sweep

VERONA, Italy (AP) — Police arrested 75 people suspected of illegal drug trafficking in this northern city Tuesday.

Middle East peace, Shultz said a complete Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan would best prospects for resolving other regional issues.

Armenians demand control of area

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of people marched in Soviet Armenia on Tuesday to demand control of territory assigned to another republic, dramatically illustrating tensions among the nation's 100 nationalities.

Other problems between different nationalities have led to demonstrations in the republics of Kazakhstan, Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Economy is a distributive virtue, and consists not in saving but in selection."

— Edmund Burke

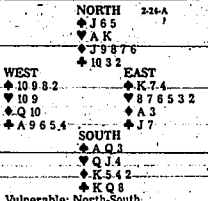

One of the last things to enter a defender's mind is to drop an ace on one of the enemy's tricks. Jean Base of Switzerland found this startling defense in the 1982 World Team Championships. Besse's dramatic discard was the only way to beat the game.

Playing weak no-trumps, South opened one diamond and settled in the apparently comfortable game, after North had offered a limit raise (8-11 HCP).

West's club five was led to dummy's 10 and East's jack, and South ducked. (A low club from dummy would have worked out better.) The club return went to West's ace and West continued with a third round. When East discarded, the game was over.

If East discards anything other than the diamond ace, the game makes easily. One diamond lead from dummy establishes the suit without giving West the lead. South then gets nine tricks without the spade finesse and gets an overtrick if he guesses the end position.

On the third round of clubs, Besse threw his diamond ace, happy to be rid of it. With East's blocking ace gone, South could not avoid the loss of a diamond trick to West, and with that, the loss of two more club tricks for a down.

Vulnerable: North-South

ANSWER: Pass. North has a balanced minimum (13-15 HCP); the partnership's maximum total is only 24 HCP.
