Phosphoric acid spills from tank at Kimberly firm

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Several thousand gallons of "very caustic" acid leaked from the PureGro feed company's storage tanks here Thursday night and oozed onto a nearby rail spur, but was not discovered until Friday, said a spokesman for the state Division of Environment.

No one was hurt from the phosphoric acid spill in downtown Kimberly, but sharp fumes penetrated the air Friday.

"I seen it bubbling and boiling and I wouldn't touch it," said Ken Story, a city of Kimberly maintenance man who came upon the spill Friday morning.

But the leak was first discovered by a driver about 10 a.m. Friday, and he shut it off, said Kim Cummel of PureGro. He estimated the value of the lost product at $6,500.

The city and the fire department erected barricades around the spill, which was approximately 200 feet long and 50 feet wide.

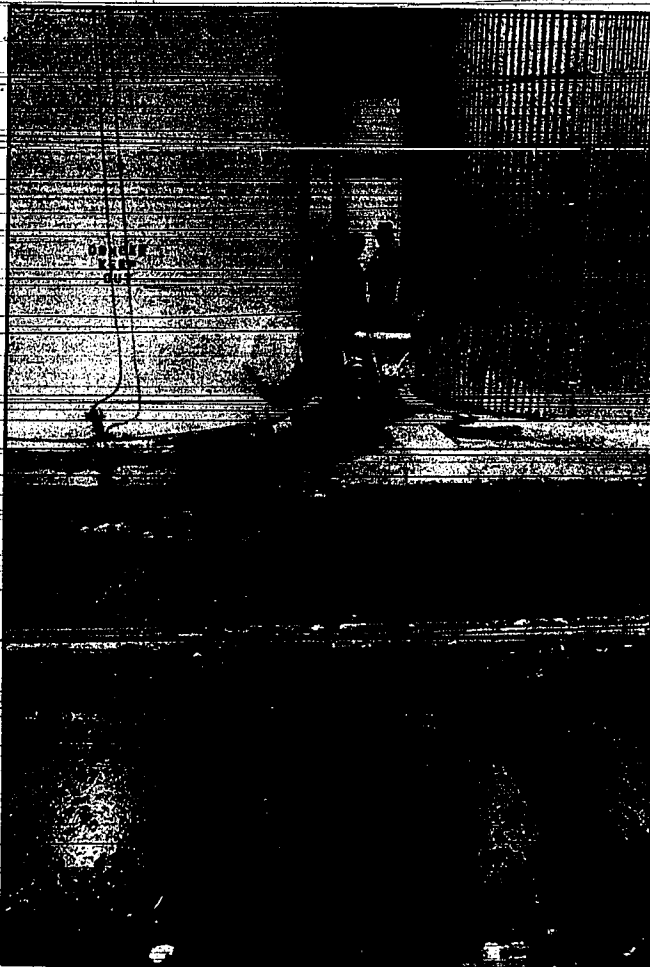

By late Friday night, health officials said that the spilled acid would have to be removed and replaced.

The acid began puddling Friday and officials worried that if it rained, it could cause the spill to spread and perhaps increase the risks that the public would come into contact with it.

Health officials said the puddles will have to be treated with lime to neutralize the acid. Officials said the puddle liquid was "more acidic" than the soil.

Skin contact with the acid could cause burns, said Mike McInasters of the state Division of Environment in Twin Falls.

Breathing the fumes in a confined area could also be hazardous, but the wind was dissipating the odor on Friday. See SPILL on Page A2.

Postal panel calls for wide rate increase

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The independent Postal Rate Commission recommended a sweeping series of increases in U.S. postage rates Friday, including boosting the cost of first class letters to 25 cents.

However, the agency also put forth a proposal to charge consumers less than a quarter for paying bills and recommended that advertising mail rates increase by even larger percentages than other groups.

The complex series of rate proposals now goes to the board of governors of the Postal Service, which requested rate hikes 10 months ago. The new rates could be ordered into effect within 10 days to two weeks, with the governors likely to consider the matter next week.

Overall, the rate commission recommended a series of postage rate hikes totaling 17.5 percent, somewhat more than the Postal Service request for a 16 percent increase.

The higher rates are necessary for the postal service to avoid a deficit which could total more than $5 billion by 1989, rate commission chairman Janet Steiger said.

The agency agreed with the postal service's original request to set the rate for first class letters at 25 cents, up from the current 22 cents.

At that rate, sending a letter would take about the same bite from the average wallet as it did in 1992. Adjusted for inflation, the 3-cent postage rate introduced in 1932 amounts to 25.5 cents today.

It suggested that businesses could prepare special envelopes with proper postage meter stamps.

Senators bewail defeat of Contra aid package

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House defeat of an aid package for Nicaragua's Contras has left U.S. policy "dead in the water," five senators said Friday as they vowed to expedite legislation to send food and other non-military supplies to the rebels.

"There is aid in the mill for the Contras," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who said he and others would draw up a new package next week and push for its passage.

But House Democrats, whose own compromise aid package was defeated Thursday, 216-208, blamed Republicans for the loss and said they were not eager to take up the battle again anytime soon.

"Perhaps the goal was purely political," said Majority Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif. "Perhaps the goal was military aid at any price. Whatever the reason, the outcome was the same: there will be no Contra aid for the foreseeable future, except through the normal legislative process."

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ind., said he was offended by any suggestion that the GOP had sold out the Contras to gain a political issue.

He said the defeat was a combination of what his forces saw as an inadequate package and Democrats' refusal to allow a Republican alternative to come up for a vote.

"There's really quite a different attitude over in the Senate," Michel said, adding that senators there could provide leverage to get the issue moving again in the House.

The senators acknowledged that Congress, at least for the moment, appears deadlocked.

"Our country is dead in the water because of our procedures," said Lugar.

But Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., leader of the Senate group, said she believed it important to signal the rebels that the House vote was not the end of U.S. support, even though the last aid ran out on Tuesday.

U.S. ready to withhold fees for Panama Canal

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has decided to withhold $7 million due this month to Panama for use of the Panama Canal, according to a news report Friday night, but administration officials said they were unaware such a decision had been made.

CBS News reported on the withholding of funds from the Panamanian military regime of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, saying the money would be placed in escrow until constitutional government is restored in Panama. The report said the decision would be announced next week.

The United States pays about $80 million a year for use of the canal. Officials earlier this week raised the possibility that the United States would withhold payments due to Panama for canal operations.

National Security Adviser Colin L. Powell also told reporters Thursday night that several economic and financial measures were being prepared for consideration by Reagan, but he refused to be more specific.

Administration officials contacted late Friday by The Associated Press said they were not aware that any decision had been made. They said the question of payments on the canal was now on President Reagan's desk.

CBS also reported that the United States had contacted foreign banks and international lending organizations Friday, urging them not to lend money to Panama.

The State Department already has taken action to prevent the new government from gaining access to official Panamanian funds in U.S. banks.

And federal courts have issued temporary restraining orders to prevent the transfer of official Panamanian funds on deposit in U.S. banks to the Panamanian government.

Meanwhile, State Department deputy spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said Americans should defer travel in Panama because of unsettled conditions and sporadic incidents of violence.

She said the advisory does not apply to Americans on ships transiting the Panama Canal.

Andrus signs 3 AIDS bills into law; 4 others await action

The Associated Press

BOISE — Gov. Cecil Andrus signed into law Friday three bills designed to restrict the spread of the deadly AIDS disease.

"This is a problem in society that is a medical problem and it absolutely must be met," as he signed the measures into law.

A Twin Falls physician, Rep. Russell Newcomb, drew most of the praise from Andrus for drawing up a package of seven bills, and shepherding them through the Legislature.

Four of the measures still are under consideration by the House and Senate, but Newcomb said all are expected to pass. Among the measures awaiting final approval is one declaring it to be a felony to knowingly infect someone else with Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

It carries a possible 15-year prison term.

"Every dollar we spend now comes straight from education," said Rep. Bob Geddes, R-Preston, who engineered the campaign that brought the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee back into conservative hands on Thursday.

Senate approves 13% increase in legislative expenses

The bill for financing legislative and staff salaries and operating expenses was sent to the House for final approval on a 37-5 vote.

Ritch blamed the need for the increase on the court-ordered reapportionment of the Legislature that added 21 new members to the House and Senate, although he also cited a 50-percent increase in the daily expense allowance for lawmakers, the authorization for two additional trips home each session for those living outside the Boise area and additional committee participation.

Senate approves 13% increase in legislative expenses

The Associated Press

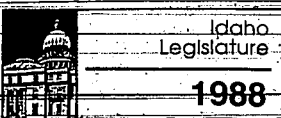

BOISE — A bipartisan majority of the Idaho Senate Friday approved a 13 percent increase in the legislative appropriation as budget committee conservatives, already afraid the bank has been broken, continued fighting to hold the line on 1989 state spending.

"Every dollar we spend now comes straight from education," said Rep. Bob Goddes, R-Prenton, who engineered the campaign that brought control of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee back into conservative hands on Thursday.

But Friday morning, Senate Republican President Pro Tem James Risch of Boise and Democratic Floor Leader Bruce Sweeney of Lewiston encountered only limited opposition to the proposal that will increase the appropriation for operating the Legislature from $2.3 million to $2.6 million beginning in July.

Andrus on Friday:

He said the bill is a good first step, and Newcomb, who spent months working to get the bills passed this session, he must have done his work well. There was not one dissenting vote in either chamber on the three bills signed by Andrus said he has been quoted often as feeling that there are too many lawyers in the Legislature.

Newcomb is a Republican freshman, and Andrus said it took a bipartisan effort to get the bills through. "People recognize that it is a disease, and we must take the necessary steps to protect our citizens," the governor said.

It was one of the few measures endorsed by the governor so far to get through the Republican-dominated Legislature.

Andrus said he didn't consider it a particular victory. "It does say we are getting to the end of a session, responsibility is returning and the Legislature is passing necessary legislation," he said.

Light snowpack raises drought worry

Robertson to drop his own libel suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Friday ruled that Pat Robertson may drop his libel suit against a former congressman who questioned his war record, provided Robertson agrees to pay certain court costs.

The ruling, which Robertson's attorney said he would accept, frees the GOP presidential candidate from going to trial beginning on Super Tuesday, an important election day.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green conditionally granted Robertson's motion to dismiss his own $35 million libel action against former Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Calif., who charged that the former television evangelist used his late father's political influence to avoid combat duty in the Korean War.

In seeking the dismissal, Robertson had said scheduling a three-

BOISE (AP) — Uneasiness is turning into serious concern as agriculture and other industries across southern Idaho face their second consecutive drought year.

Particularly apprehensive are the farmers, who depend on irrigation water supplied by snow and rain and stored reservoirs.

"In battling last year's drought, farmers used everything that fell and dipped heavily into their reservoir supplies carried over from previous years. With this year shaping up as a rerun of 1987, many face planting season with little in reserve."

"We're running out of time," said Jerry Beard, snow survey supervisor for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Normally we have 80 percent of our snow on the ground by now. We only have 30 to 45 days left for snow accumulation. It would be difficult or impossible for us to return to a normal snowpack now.

The SCS's monthly snow survey shows the majority of the state at 60 to 70 percent of normal for the second consecutive year.

The Boise River drainage is only 64 percent of normal. Beard said. In worse shape is south-central Idaho, where Copper Basin is at 48 percent of its average snowpack.

"It's not a real bright picture for the first of March," Beard said.

This impact of that picture is being felt in a variety of industries.

In agriculture, farmers are showing strong interest in a federal program that will protect them if they grow nothing.

Idaho Power is facing a year of increased dependence on coal-fired power, more costly to produce than hydroelectric power, said spokesman Larry Taylor.

The company's latest streamflow projections indicate the average inflow to Brownlee Reservoir will be only slightly better than 1987's, which was the second lowest on record.

Less snow means less skiing and reduced income for resorts.

Idaho joins other parts of the Northwest in facing a drought. The snowpack across the entire Northwest, including parts of Canada, is below normal.

In Idaho, there was precipitation during the first 12 days of February and this month showed some promise, Beard said. But the second half was dry.

Maux Barnes, a National Weather Service forecaster in Boise, said March should produce about normal precipitation, but that "won't be enough to correct the problem."

"We need four to eight inches above normal to break the drought," he said.

Ad campaigns turn hot Spill as Tuesday vote nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Gephardt, in a televised presidential campaign ad that began airing Friday night in Florida, accused Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis of

There was no threat to city or residential water wells or the city sewer system, Litke said. But some of the liquid flowed into a nearby irrigation ditch, he said.

Litke said the water table beneath the tank farm was fairly deep, and he didn't see a threat from the acid, presenting a contamination threat.

The accident was traced to a valve problem in an 8,000-gallon storage tank, said John Swan, PureGro unit manager. The tank was about half full when it started leaking, he said.

Officials believe all 4,000 gallons leaked out, but they were still investigating.

Swan said there may have been a problem with that batch of acid because the company noticed its lines were clogging.

PureGro was heating the tank to make it easier to remove the acid, said Kim Gunnell, a PureGro employee.

The spill will require an extensive cleanup mainly from thousands of pounds of acid-laden soil, said Litke of the state Division of Environment in Twin Falls.

Cleanup by a PureGro consultant is expected to begin Saturday and run through the weekend, Litke said.

Jack White, PureGro safety coordinator, arrived Friday night from his office in Pasco, Wash., to help with cleanup.

Some cleanup efforts were started by PureGro Friday. About 200 gallons of acid were pumped into a tanker truck, Litke said.

Union Pacific Railroad will not smearing and spying on fellow Democrats.

Mike Dukakis smeared Joe Biden, he said on Paul Simon and now he's attempting to smear Dick Gephardt, says the 10-second spot, the latest and most barbed TV message in a week of exchanges between the two candidates.

The ad refers to incidents in which Dukakis' former campaign manager John Sasso gave a reporter tapes that showed Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, who eventually quit the presidential campaign, using another politician's speech without attribution, and in which Dukakis' campaign aides briefly volunteered to work for Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois.

The spot came in response to a Dukakis ad challenging Gephardt's commitment to the populist cause he has championed since becoming a presidential candidate.

Dukakis weighed in Friday with a new ad assailing Gephardt's corporate contributions and what the ad called flip-flops on many issues. His campaign called the latest Gephardt ad evidence that "the Missouri congressman is 'desperately trying to run away from his record.'"

In the first stretch before the Super Tuesday voting in 20 states, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas accused Vice President George Bush of distorting his record in a commercial running in the South. And a Dole aide said the campaign planned to add a new commercial critical of Bush.

move cars into that end of the spur until the spill is cleaned up, said spokesman Joe Thibodeau in Omaha.

McClellan said late Friday that part of the rail lines might have to be ripped up and removed to get at saturated ties.

PureGro will have to bear cleanup costs, but Litke said it was too early to tell how much that would be. Under Litke's supervision.

The Kimberly Police Department will be monitoring the site, he said.

Some of the material may be neutralized with lime and then disposed of in the county landfill, Litke said.

"Another possibility is allowing farmers to haul the soil out since the acid is used for fertilizer, he said.

The leaking tank was next to a building where PureGro mixes its batch feeds. There are about a dozen tanks in the area where the spill occurred, some of them contain "Danger Keep Out" warnings.

Mark Boylan, technical information specialist with Hazardous Materials Bureau, Division Environmental Quality, said his department will be investigating the spill.

"The material in the tank was used in normal operation, but apparently the aluminum fittings on the hose attached to the tank dissolved," Boylan said. "We're going to be investigating whether that type of hose was used."

Boylan said the acid that spilled was a 72 percent concentration, while acid used in fertilizers is a 60-percent mixture.

"It was just a little more concentrated version than's already on fields, he said. That's why there's no threat to wells."

Deficit panel picks leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington attorney Robert Strauss and former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis were selected Friday as co-chairmen of a congressional commission created to find ways to balance the budget.

The selection of Strauss, a Democrat and former U.S. trade representative, and Lewis, who served in President Reagan's Cabinet and is now chairman of the Union Pacific Corp., was made by the members of the National Economic Commission as they held their first organizational meeting.

Participants at the closed-door session said no other names were put forward as possible leaders of the bipartisan commission, which is split between six Democrats and six Republicans.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III and House White chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr. both addressed the opening session of the commission and offered to provide whatever assistance the panel needed in conducting its work.

Postage

Consumers using these envelopes, except to pay bills or respond to an advertisement, would be given a discount on the postage. The agency didn't suggest an amount of the discount.

The rate commission did recommend a 2-cent cut in the current 7-cent minimum cost for pre-paid business reply envelopes in order to encourage companies to provide these for consumers.

In the first-class category, the price for each additional ounce of mail would rise from 17 cents to 20 cents, as requested by the postal service.

But the cost for a post card would increase from 14 cents to 15 cents, a penny less than has been requested.

Overall, first class rates would increase 14.7 percent, the rate commission said.

Third class mail, however, which is mostly advertising "junk mail," would have a 25 percent cost hike.

The rate commission said in studying costs it determined that this type of mail was responsible for more postal service costs than it was paying, and thus should have a larger increase.

The minimum rate for third class mail would jump from 12.5 cents to 16.7 cents, slightly more than the 35 percent increase in the red this year.

But publicists Rachel Gilbert of Boise objected to the increase, claiming legislative spending will have jumped 44 percent since 1985 when members in the Legislature was increased 20 percent.

"We are asking the agencies to hold the line," Ms. Gilbert said, "and we're telling ourselves we've got to have this 11 percent average increase over the last four years."

"We're not able to give the schools an 11 percent increase," she said. "We're not able to give higher education a 11 percent increase. We're not able to give health and welfare an 11 percent increase, and we're not able to give ourselves an 11 percent increase."

Risch said the statistics could be used anyway anyone wanted to use them, but he maintained the need for additional cash was almost all the result of the court-ordered expansion of the Legislature.

Budget

Continued from Page A1 costs have been financed by a balance in the legislative account that has now been depleted. Without the additional money, the Legislature will run $75,000 in the red this year.

Light snowpack raises drought worry

Robertson to drop his own libel suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Friday ruled that Pat Robertson may drop his libel suit against a former congressman who questioned his war record, provided Robertson agrees to pay certain court costs.

The ruling, which Robertson's attorney said he would accept, frees the GOP presidential candidate from going to trial beginning on Super Tuesday, an important election day.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green conditionally granted Robertson's motion to dismiss his own $35 million libel action against Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Calif., who charged that the former television evangelist used his late father's political influence to avoid combat duty in the Korean War.

In seeking the dismissal, Robertson had said scheduling a three-

BOISE (AP) — Uneasiness is turning into serious concern as agriculture and other industries across southern Idaho face their second consecutive drought year.

Particularly apprehensive are the farmers, who depend on irrigation water supplied by snow and rain and stored reservoirs.

In battling last year's drought, farmers used everything that fell and dipped heavily into their reservoir supplies carried over from previous years. With this year shaping up as a return of 1987, many face planting season with little in reserve.

"We're running out of time," said Jerry Beard, snow survey supervisor for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. "Normally, we have 80 percent of our snow on the ground by now. We only have 30 to 45 days left for snow accumulation."

"It would be difficult or impossible for us to return to a normal snowpack now."

The SCS's monthly snow survey shows the majority of the state at 50 to 70 percent of normal for the second consecutive year.

The Boise River drainage is only 64 percent of normal, Beard said. In worse shape is south-central Idaho, where Copper Basin is at 48 percent of its average snowpack.

"It's not a real bright picture for the first of March," Beard said.

The impact of that picture is being felt in a variety of industries:

- In agriculture, farmers are showing strong interest in a federal program that will protect them if they can grow nothing.
- Idaho Power is facing a year of increased dependence on coal-fired power, more costly to produce than hydroelectric power, said spokesman Larry Taylor.
- The company's latest streamflow projections indicate the average inflow to Brownlee Reservoir will be only slightly better than 1987's, which was the second lowest on record.
- Less snow means less skiing and reduced income for resorts.

week trial starting next Tuesday, the biggest day of the primary season, unfairly presented him with a choice between sacrificing his candor and vindicating his personal honor.

There is no reason to force an unwilling plaintiff to proceed to trial, and the court concludes that dismissal of this action is appropriate, the judge wrote in a 15-page opinion.

Attorneys for both Robertson and McCloskey called the ruling a victory for their clients.

"We're absolutely delighted with the opinion of the court," said Julius Kaplan, one of Robertson's attorneys. "He said the conditions imposed by the judge will be accepted 'with a glass of champagne in counsel's hand.'"

He said of his client, the former preacher, "I don't think he drinks."

Ad campaigns turn hot Spill as Tuesday vote nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Gephardt, in a televised presidential campaign ad that began airing Friday night in Florida, accused Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis of smearing and spying on fellow Democrats.

"Mike Dukakis smeared Joe Biden, he spied on Paul Simon and now he's attempting to smear Dick Gephardt," says the 10-second spot, the latest and most barbed TV message in a week of exchanges between the two candidates.

The ad refers to incidents in which Dukakis' former campaign manager John Sasse gave a reporter tapes that showed Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, who eventually quit the presidential campaign, using another politician's speech without attribution, and in which Dukakis' campaign aides briefly volunteered to work for Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois.

The spot came in response to a Dukakis ad challenging Gephardt's commitment to the populist cause he has championed since becoming a presidential candidate.

Dukakis weighed in Friday with a new ad assaulting Gephardt's corporate contributions and what the ad called flip-flops on many issues. His campaign called the latest Gephardt ad evidence that the Missouri congressman is "desperately trying to run away from his record."

In the final stretch before the Super Tuesday voting in 28 states, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas accused Vice President George Bush of distorting his record in a commercial running in the South. And a Dole aide said the campaign planned to give a new commercial critical of Bush.

Idaho joins other parts of the Northwest in facing a drought. The snowpack across the entire Northwest, including parts of Canada, is below normal.

In Idaho, there was precipitation during the first 12 days of February and the month showed some promise, Beard said. But the second half was dry.

Maux Barries, a National Weather Service forecaster in Boise, said March should produce about normal precipitation, but that won't be enough to correct the problem.

"We need four to eight inches above normal to break the drought," he said.

Wilderness review rejected

BOISE (AP) — Rep. Stan Hawkins, R-Ucon, wants the Idaho wilderness issue put before voters in the next statewide election. He suggested Friday that the Revenue and Taxation Committee support a resolution to ask voters in May if they want Congress to designate any more wilderness in Idaho. It would have gone on the May 24 primary election ballot. However, the committee defusing the suggestion, with opponents arguing that the process of negotiating an Idaho wilderness bill is too far advanced for such action. On a voice vote, the committee defeated Hawkins' proposal.

New interstate considered

LEWISTON (AP) — Bonners Ferry lawyer and congressional hopeful Bruce O. Robinson says he can turn Idaho's U.S. 95 into Interstate 11. All he needs to do is the job is $10 a year from each of Idaho's 1 million citizens. Robinson, who is seeking the Democratic nomination to challenge Republican Rep. Larry Craig for Idaho's first district Congressional seat, spoke to members of the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce Legislative Committee Thursday.

He estimates the cost of upgrading U.S. 95 to an interstate would be approximately $3 million per mile. At about 500 miles, the total bill would be $1.5 billion, or $1.8 billion with a $30-million buffer, he said.

Area closed to offroaders

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A popular off-road vehicle area along the South Fork of the Snake River was closed by the Bureau of Land Management Friday to motorized vehicles. The Stinking Springs area, a 3,360-acre tract north of the Snake River, was closed to prevent further damage by off-road vehicles, the BLM said. The area has been heavily used by motorcycles, causing significant erosion on steep slopes, said BLM officials.

Hope named Orofino warden

OROFINO (AP) — Assistant Warden Jim Hope has been named warden of the state correctional facility at Orofino. The Corrections Department announced Hope's appointment on Friday. Hope, 49, who has been with the department for five years serving the past two as assistant at Orofino, replaces Jim Evans.

Rhoades denied a new trial

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A 7th District judge has denied convicted murderer Paul Ezra Rhoades motion for a new trial in the slaying of Idaho Falls teacher Susan Michelbacher. Judge Larry Boyle ruled Friday that none of the nine points cited by the defense, justified overturning Rhoades' January conviction in Idaho Falls by an Ada County jury on charges including first-degree murder, kidnapping, robbery, rape and an inhuman crime against nature. Half of Boyle's 14-page decision addresses a statement in Bonneville County Prosecutor Kimball Mason's closing argument at the trial apparently referring to the fact that Rhoades did not testify in his own defense.

Gibb clarifies membership

LEWISTON (AP) — University of Idaho President Richard Gibb told members of the state Board of Education on Friday that he has not been inside Boise's Arid Club since joining the exclusive all-male organization a year ago. Gibb also said his membership dues to the Arid Club have been paid from private donations, not from money appropriated for the University of Idaho.

Despite warnings, tax change delayed

BOISE (AP) — The House Revenue and Taxation Committee Friday voted to introduce legislation delaying for one year a change in corporation tax laws, despite warnings from two senior members that it was bad tax policy.

The net effect of delaying the effective date of the so-called "water's edge" change in tax law would be to generate an extra $3.5 million to $6 million in corporate taxes, said the measure's sponsor, Rep. Michael Simpson, R-Blackfoot.

Several committee members warned it was a bad idea, and would send the wrong signal to corporations considering locating in the state. "If you (Republicans) think repealing the investment tax credit would be a bad idea, this would be much worse," said Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, a 28-year veteran of the Legislature. Simpson said it has become apparent that the Legislature needs more revenue for the next state budget, particularly for education spending.

The Legislature changed its unitary tax system, under pressure from corporations, to exempt some of the income from multinational corporations. The change, negotiated after much discussion in previous legislature, was effective Jan. 1.

Simpson's proposal would delay the effective date to Jan. 1, 1989. He argued it was not a tax increase, merely a change in the effective date of a tax law already in place.

"This is one source of available revenue and I think we should look at it," he said.

Gov. Cecil Andrus in earlier messages to the Legislature urged against such a delay. "We would be sending a terrible signal to corporations seeking to locate in Idaho," said Reid. "We've already delayed this two years."

Rep. Don Loveland, R-Boise, a former member of the Tax Commission, also argued against the proposal. "It came up at the committee was hurrying to adjourn because the House was in session, and received only brief discussion before being approved for introduction. It will return to the committee for discussion later."

Spring student fees remain unchanged

LEWISTON (AP) — The state Board of Education has voted against even discussing an increase in basic student fees this spring, despite the promise of what it considers an inadequate legislative appropriation.

The board voted 4-3 Friday at its monthly meeting in Lewiston not to issue an initial notice of intent to raise student fees $25 per semester for undergraduates and $17 per semester for full-time graduate students at Idaho's four universities and college.

"I think we need to put data together so students know where they stand in education," said board member Charles Grant of Rexburg. "If it goes to the first reading, it gets passed too rapidly."

The proposed increases from $245 to $270 per semester for undergraduates and $167 to $184 per semester for graduate students would have raised about $784,000. George Alvarez of Boise, chairman of the board's Finance Committee, also proposed raising fees for nonresident students by $50 per semester, from $950 to $1,000.

Grant said more study was needed on how the money would be spent and on how students would react to the increases. Alvarez agreed, but said discussing the issue did not guarantee the fees would be raised.

"I don't think there's any danger of blindly passing fees," he said. "An initial notice of intent doesn't mean the fee will pass."

The board announced last month that it would issue an initial notice at the March meeting that it intended to consider the fee increases at its April meeting in Pocatello.

"Due to the bleak prospects of raising an appropriation level which is commensurate with the board's FY89 budget request for the college and universities, it is necessary to consider the possibility of an increase in the matriculation fee for full-time undergraduate students," the board said in its proposed notice of intent.

The Republican-dominated Idaho Legislature has been leaning toward a higher education appropriation for the spending year that begins July 1 of no more than $106 million. The board asked last fall for an appropriation of more than $114 million, and Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus proposed $110 million.

Idaho's student fees remain the second-lowest in the West, to Wyoming, and the increase in fees over the past four years has been the third-lowest in the West to Oregon and Wyoming.

The average annual student fee for the 1987-88 school year at Boise State University, the University of Idaho and Idaho State University was $1,047, and at Lewis-Clark State College was $1,008.

Board rejects tuition waiver

LEWISTON (AP) — Financial considerations prompted the state Board of Education on Friday to reject a pending legislative proposal offering to waive $1,000 a semester in tuition for nonresident college students whose parents earned their degrees at an Idaho school.

Rep. James Lucas, R-Moscow, has proposed the waiver, calling it a way to create a "brain drain in reverse." He believes the incentive could attract some of the nation's smartest high school students to one of Idaho public colleges.

But on a 5-2 vote, the board rejected the concept, at least for now, and Executive Director Richard Sperring indicated the move would effectively kill the bill for this session of the Legislature. He said the House Education Committee had delayed action on the proposal until getting the board's position.

"FAIR ENOUGH FOR PRIVACY, CLOSE ENOUGH TO CARE."

Employment level healthy despite rise in joblessness

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Warm weather contributed to a low unemployment rate and more workers in the Magic Valley in February.

The forecasted, seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate for February was 4.6 percent, down from 5.8 percent in February 1987, and the number of people employed increased 1,300, according to Lonn McDonald, labor market analyst for the Idaho Department of Labor.

"Weather has a tremendous affect on this rate," McDonald said. "A lot of our businesses are not able to operate in cold weather."

Overall, total employment in Idaho remained near its highest level of the 1980s during February despite a modest gain in the seasonally adjusted jobless rate.

The Department of Employment reported that continuing layoffs in some traditional industries sparked the three-tenths of a point rise in the unemployment rate last month to 5.6 percent.

But the state's total civilian labor force hit its highest mark since the summer of 1985 to keep the February jobless rate a full percentage point under February 1987. That marked the 14th straight month that monthly jobless rates have run below the year-earlier level.

Nationally, the unemployment rate fell a notch to 5.7 percent, the lowest level since the summer of 1979.

Analysts blamed the countering rise in Idaho unemployment on persisting layoffs in the timber, food-processing, construction and retail industries. Joblessness was up in all regions of the state reporting to the department except for Canyon and Ada counties.

Those layoffs were too great to offset modest job gains from the colleges opening their spring semesters and the service sector making the most of the winter snow in recreation areas.

But the economic resurgence the state has finally started to feel in the past year was buttressed by the continued strength in total employment and the 30-month high in the total labor force. Less than 18 months ago, economists were extremely concerned about the declining labor force they feared would drain the state of workers needed to foster business expansion.

Total employment slipped barely a fraction to 410,600 in February from the highest level of the 1980s set a month earlier. Except for January when employment was 410,700, the last time the number of Idahoans with jobs exceeded that level was December 1979 when total employment stood at just over 413,000.

And while the number of Idahoans off the job in February was up 1,200 to nearly 24,000, the workforce picked up 1,100 to hit 434,600, the highest level since August 1985.

The continuing high level of employment reinforced predictions by the department's top analyst Jim Day that the state economy would pick up another 5,000 jobs in 1988 while the average unemployment rate would slip another two notches.

Last year, seasonally adjusted unemployment averaged 6.7 percent, the first annual rate under 6 percent since 1979.

Regionally, the seasonally adjusted jobless rates for February, January and February 1987 were:

- Panhandle, 7.4 percent, 6.8 percent, 9.4 percent.
- Lewiston area, 5.4 percent, 5.3 percent, 5.6 percent.
- Canyon County, 6.1 percent, 7.6 percent, 6.2 percent.
- Ada County, 3.4 percent, 3.7 percent, 4.1 percent.
- Magic Valley, 4.6 percent, 4.4 percent, 5.6 percent.
- Pocatello area, 5.9 percent, 5.7 percent, 7.1 percent.
- Idaho Falls area, 4.3 percent, 4.1 percent, 4.8 percent.

Only a handful of people participated Thursday in the Twin Falls workshop on how to combat the proposed SIS plant

Workshops aim to generate SIS input

By MARK FRATER, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — At recent workshops against the special isotope separation plant, union workers picketed outside saying they needed the job SIS would produce, Liz Paul of the Snake River Alliance told a Twin Falls workshop Thursday.

Such activity reflects the straits of this country, Paul told a dozen people attending.

"People are so desperate for work and feeling so impoverished that they will go to work to build components of weapons of mass destruction," she said.

While the Twin Falls workshop at the KMVT-TV community room had a sparse turnout, there were overflow crowds in Pocatello, Idaho Falls and Boise, she said.

The workshops, local citizen organizing efforts and television ads are aimed at building public interest for a March 28 government hearing on the environmental impact of the SIS plant proposed for the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. The plant would purify plutonium for use in nuclear weapons production.

The Twin Falls hearing will be held at the Canyon Springs Inn March 28 from 2-5 p.m. and 7 to 11 p.m.

"Our objective is to show broad-based, diverse and strong opposition to this plan," Paul said.

The Snake River Alliance, a conservation group, is encouraging people to limit their testimony at the hearing to two minutes so as many people as possible can speak, Paul said.

People have to sign up with the U.S. Department of Energy to talk at the hearing. Those interested should contact Clay Nichols, 785 DOE Plaza, Idaho Falls, Idaho 83402, before March 15.

They can also send written comments, but Paul said verbal comments at the hearing will be more effective.

"Even if the plant were safe, we would oppose it because the product is not safe," Liz Paul said, adding the draft environmental impact statement is full of omissions and raises a lot of questions.

"These projects don't get built with money the DOE has in a gold mine. It's our tax dollars. DOE has to respond to all comments," she said.

Paul said there are two tracks in the SIS project — administrative and congressional.

On the administrative track, the energy department holds hearings and Energy Secretary John Herrington makes a decision whether or not to build the plant. INEL is the energy department's preferred site for the project.

Congress is where "the Snake River Alliance is hoping to stop it. It's uneconomic and inefficient," Paul said.

She said the project hasn't attracted a lot of attention in Congress because the billion dollar price tag for the development work and the plant is not a lot of money in Washington, D.C.

Paul said the Snake River Alliance thinks that the SIS project is guilty until proven innocent.

Plutonium, the key element in nuclear weapons, is a dangerous material to work with, Paul said. It spontaneously ignites when exposed to air or water, she said. Its shelf life is 20,000 years and when it is ingested, its radioactivity disrupts cells and can lead to cancer, Paul said.

There is also an abundance of it in this country — about 120 metric tons. Some two tons of plutonium will be returned to the United States if the intermediate range missile treaty is ratified by Congress, Paul said.

The government says it needs more plutonium in addition to the existing stocks, she said.

Because the $602.1 million SIS plant will be built with federal funds, the energy department is required under federal law to spell out the environmental impact of the plant.

The recently released draft environmental impact statement said the plant is safe, but there would be deaths and injuries to workers in some accident scenarios.

Rupert teen hurt in post-game riot

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

POCATELLO — A student from Rupert's Minico High School was hit in the face with a rock and a Pocatello teen-ager was arrested during a disturbance following Thursday night's regional championship basketball game between Minico and Pocatello High.

Pocatello police estimated between 200 and 250 students were involved in the ruckus. All available city officers, as well as two Bannock County sheriff's deputies and a unit from the Chubbuck Police Department, were dispatched to the small parking lot beside Pocatello High's gymnasium.

Police officials said the incident began when Pocatello students apparently started throwing rocks at Minico students from boarding their four buses after the game, which Minico won 73-59.

Minico High School Principal Matt Siglund said the students were gathered on the far side of the bus when student-spectators started to board their buses after the game.

Minico student Matt Siglund was injured when a rock crashed through a bus window and hit him in the face shortly after he boarded. On Friday he received five stitches and did not attend school, but Hubsmith said he apparently suffered no serious injuries.

"We did what we had to do," Hubsmith said Friday. "We won the ball game, we got in (the bus) and got out of there."

Pocatello Police Capt. Jim Benham said a number of Pocatello students surrounded the Minico buses, and were throwing rocks and bottles at the students and the buses.

"That's when we started calling for help. Every unit we had on the street was there," he said. "Any time you've got people blindly throwing rocks and bottles, there's a potential for severe injury."

The episode began about 8:50 p.m., and it took officers about 40 minutes to clear the crowd, Benham said.

Pocatello police made one arrest, charging a 17-year-old boy with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Law enforcement officers were also called the last time Pocatello and Minico faced each other. At a semifinal tournament game Feb. 27, Minidoka County sheriff's officers were called to the high school after receiving a report that at least one Pocatello bus window had been broken.

Pocatello Superintendent David Peck said Friday that two windows were broken in the incident. Minidoka Chief Deputy Bob Meyares said that there are no suspects.

Peck said Pocatello school officials were investigating the Pocatello incident. • See RIOT on Page A6

Frahm junior high principal to resign

By JANE BUCKWAY, Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Frahm Junior High School in Gooding will lose its principal at the end of the year.

Principal Wayne Thomkins has notified the School Board of his intent to resign when his contract expires in June. He said he plans to retire from education and return to his agricultural operation.

At a recent board meeting, trustees thanked Thomkins for the job he did at the junior high school and agreed to begin a search for a new principal.

Thomkins is the second Gooding administrator to leave his post this year. School Superintendent Lester Diehl will retire at the end of the contract year after 35 years in public education.

In other business at the board meeting, trustees agreed to investigate a cooperative agreement with the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind for state school students to play football at Gooding High School.

Diehl said Idaho High School Activities Association rules require the student body numbers of schools involved in such cooperative sponsorship agreements to be added together for classification determination.

"If we join with the state school it will increase our student numbers and raise us to A-2 level for all sports competition (which could mean changing conferences and scheduling) and we really are not interested in changing classifications," Diehl said.

Diehl also said that the state school should be required to pay the cost of equipment and a possible extra assistant coach as well as provide interpreters if the agreement is to be considered.

Gooding will apply for an IHSAA waiver of the combined student body requirement. The board agreed it would not accept joint sponsorship of. • See FRAHM on Page A6

Voice gives away robbery suspect

By KEN ARMSTRONG, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A 30-year-old Twin Falls man was arrested Friday and charged with violating his parole by allegedly committing an early morning armed robbery at a parole officer's home.

Darrell Friel was arrested by parole officers at approximately 9 a.m. Friday while at his residence on the 300 block of Witt St., said Larry Hauber, district manager of the division of probation and parole. Friel was arrested in connection with the robbery of Bob Friel's home.

Ingersoll, an elderly Twin Falls man who was robbed at gunpoint earlier this month, was subsequently searched Friel's home and found a pellet pistol which resembled an auto-block away from Friel's residence, Hauber said. Approximately $400 was stolen during the robbery, which occurred at roughly 9 a.m.

Friel was arraigned Friday and charged with armed robbery. Bail was set at $5,000.

Ingersoll, who Hauber described as being in his 80s, linked Friel with the crime during an interview with parole officers. That identification was made despite the fact the robber had reportedly worn a stocking mask.

"The victim is actually familiar and acquainted with this guy, and the voice was identified as being that of Friel," Hauber said.

Parole officers subsequently searched Friel's home and found a pellet pistol which resembled an auto-

Farm mediation bill clears House

By BART JANSEN, Times-News writer

BOISE — With little opposition from banking interests, the House approved a bill Friday that would force creditors to meet with their broke farmers before foreclosure.

"Basically that's what I expected," said sponsoring Rep. Bruce Newcomb, R-Burley, after the vote.

He said opening speeches focused on diffusing creditors' concerns about being forced to participate in mediations, instead of doing so voluntarily.

Instead, opponents then pounced on the proposal's half-million dollar cost.

"We were expecting it to be a lot closer," added Newcomb, who was congratulated by several fellow representatives in caucus chambers after the vote.

The farmer mediation bill passed the House 50 to 31. All Magic Valley representatives signed on except Republicans Mack Neibaur of Paul, and Jerry Callen of Jerome.

Their opposition revolved around the estimated $491,000 needed this year to set up the mediation service. At least half that amount would have to come from the state.

Budget writers are pessimistic there is enough money to fund education properly, much less new start new programs such as farmer mediation.

"We don't have the $245,000 to pay for it," said Rep. Kitty Gurnsey, who is vice-chairman of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

And Neibaur, who also sits on JFAC, lobbied criticism at Newcomb for apparent hypocrisy on the floor.

Newcomb opposed Neibaur in three votes Friday morning that would have separated Wheat, Apple and Dairy commission funds from the state's general account, where they earn interest for the state.

"It don't feel very comfortable sitting astride a barbed wire fence," said Neibaur. He noted Newcomb's rejection of state assistance in the commission votes, while asking for state assistance for mediation.

"This morning it was the commodity commissions. We want to let them run their own business and now we're saying we need help from the government for farmers," said Gurnsey.

Under the plan, half the $491,000 would come from the state, while the federal 1987 Farm • See MEDIATION on Page A6

Rural town can finally phone out

GLENNIS FERRY (AP)—Residents in the remote mining town of Atlanta now can dial the outside world.

The switch has been thrown to turn on telephone service to the Boise County town.

Atlanta is connected to the world by a digital microwave system installed by Glennis Ferry-based Rural Telephone Co. Eventually, the communications links for the 30-year-old telephone was a mobile radio telephone.

The service begins in a log cabin office housing a digital switch. Toll calls to the outside world go from there to Prairie by microwave via James Creek Summit and Trinity Mountain.

In addition, the plant would release radioactive and non-radioactive gases and produce a variety of radioactive, hazardous and non-hazardous wastes.

The report said the releases pose no health hazard and even the worst accident scenario imaginable would only add a fraction to the annual allowable radiation dose for people working at the plant or near it.

Some of the low-level radioactive waste from the plant will be disposed of in pits at INEL, while other radioactive waste will be sent to a government waste disposal facility in New Mexico, the report said. The hazardous waste will be shipped to approved waste disposal sites, the report said.

"Even if the plant were safe, we would oppose it because the product is not safe," Paul said.

The plant would purify stocks of plutonium from Hanford, Wash., that currently are not usable in nuclear weapons production. The government said the plant is needed to give the United States flexibility in its plutonium production. Paul said the draft environmental impact statement is full of omissions and raises a lot of questions.

The report fails to mention that there are problems at the Wasco Isolation Plant in New Mexico where one category of radioactive waste from SIS would go, he said.

The report omits that the energy department spent $100 million on a tank to transport this material and that the U.S. Department of Transportation failed to approve it because it vented gases, Paul said.

The end use of the plant's product would be a weapon in a nuclear exchange and the report doesn't mention what the impact of that would be either, she said.

Other aspects left out include the impact of the radioactive gases on the Grand Tetons east of Idaho Falls where the snowpack feeds the Snake River Plain Aquifer, Paul said.

Basic details such as how the fire protection system would work and how thick the plant's walls would be are left out, she said.

Psychological impacts are left out too, Paul said. What will this type of work do to the morale of INEL workers and the communities of eastern Idaho, she asked.

"We've struggled for years to get DOE to admit they do defense (work) and now they say, 'We've always done defense work,'" Paul said.

Paul said the plant's 3.5 million gallons per year water usage is also an important consideration. The waste water from this usage has to be dealt with, too, she said.

Two of the people at the workshop were Twin Falls High School students, Larry Fuller, 19, and Ian Crawford, 15. Both said they were opposed to the project.

"I don't think there is a need for it. Put the money into making peace," said Crawford, a sophomore.

Gary Nielsen also said he opposed the plant.

"Why take the chance? We don't want it here in Idaho," said Nielsen who added that he supports peaceful nuclear research at INEL.

Credit Act is expected to provide matching federal funds.

But Callen said he had a letter from the Farm Credit Service saying there was no federal money in the current or proposed budgets to pay matching funds.

"You can't trust the federal government in a lot of these cases," Callen said.

Rep. Cyri Burt, R-St. Anthony, added that state or federal dollars are all the same: "It's all tax money."

Newcomb said after the vote he thought opposition from creditors was diffused during opening statements.

A big worry had been allegations that credit would dry up from creditors retaliating against a mandatory and possibly lengthy mediation process.

But the bill sets an overall time line of only 72 days from start to finish, and Newcomb said bankruptcies that went to court already dried up credit.

"We feel like this is a stopping place, before they declare the chapters of bankruptcy, that ought to be a viable alternative," said Newcomb.

He added that average court costs for bankruptcies run about $20,000, which is money the creditor loses in collateral.

Creditors were expected to oppose the bill because they would be forced to sit down with any farmer who asked for mediation of his financial problems. Supporters of the bill stress this is not farmer advocacy, but simply a neutral third party helping clarify sticking points to negotiations.

"Some of you people have letters from banks, even from banks that loaned you money," said Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, who declared bankruptcy as a dairy farmer. "But you ask them what their problem is and they can't tell you."

Robbins added that farmers' general lack of experience dealing with financial and legal negotiations will be compensated through use of neutral third party mediating to help sort things out.

"I think this will work," he said.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where the Agricultural Affairs Committee scheduled a hearing Tuesday.

matic handgun. Ingersoll told officers an automatic handgun had been used during the robbery, Hauber said.

According to Hauber, parole officers may search a parolee's home without a warrant if they have reasonable cause to believe a parole violation has occurred.

Friel was placed on probation for three years after pleading guilty in September of 1987 to a count of aggravated assault, court records show.

Rick Friel, Darrell's brother, was the victim of the assault, which occurred in Hansen on July 18.

Rick Friel told officers his brother had pointed a loaded pistol at him and said he was going to "blow him" down the alley, court records show. Darrell Friel then fired one shot into the ground, after which he pointed the gun, a .22 caliber pistol, at his brother and said he had five more where that came from.

Darrell Friel was levied a prison sentence of about one and five years for the felony assault, but the sentence was suspended in lieu of the probationary period.

A representative of the state school will be invited to the board's next meeting to discuss the situation.

In other sports business, the board told Gooding patron Tom Bingham he was welcome to serve as a volunteer assistant to the high school wrestling program if he had the approval of the coach.

Bingham, whose son Brett is a two-time state wrestling champion, expressed concern at the progress of the wrestling program in Gooding

the elementary grades through high school.

"Our primary concern is with a coach, not just a wrestling coach," Diehl told Bingham and explained the district could not hire non-certified personnel to teach.

Board Chairman Claire Major said the district did not have the funds to operate a wrestling program at the elementary level. But she told Bingham if there was enough community support for the program he should look at a community-sponsored program in the 50- and 60-grades.

School officials had considered moving the game between top-ranked

Mino and No. 2 Peacello to larger Reed Gym at Idaho State University

But the Peacello coaching staff wanted the game in its own facility, Peck said.

"There were more people in there than we wanted to have," Peck said. "As we looked at it this morning, in hindsight it would have been much better ... if we had held it at Reed Gym."

A MESSAGE TO JEROME TWIN FALLS COUNTY RESIDENTS:

For many persons these have hard-and-troublesome days. We know first hand the poet's truth: "Ask not for whom the bells toll, it tolls for thee."

How will we meet our future? Will we back into it burdened the past? Or is there a way to turn the corner on our griefs and losses and go forward to live again with joy, optimism and hope?

The First Baptist Churches of Jerome and Twin Falls are offering to the community a week of special "CHOOSE LIFE SERVICES." They begin on March 7 and conclude on March 13.

At some point most persons must choose to live or die. Families will be confronted with the decision to separate or stay together. Yes, even cities and towns have to choose whether they will change and grow with the times or retreat.

When people choose life, they plan with hope and joy. They become willing to make the kinds of investments necessary for a bright future. They value themselves and their children. They respect their schools, their churches and their own towns.

As the Baptist Churches offer the CHOOSE LIFE MEETINGS to the community, it is with the prayer that sagging spirits will be lifted, lives changed, and relationships healed.

The public is invited to attend. Listed below are the times and locations of the CHOOSE LIFE MEETINGS.

CHOOSE LIFE SCHEDULE Monday, Mar. 7: Leadership Banquet for pastors, church officers and boards. 6:30 P.M. Twin Falls First Baptist Church.

THEREFORE, CHOOSE LIFE

Dr. Robert Browner, Speaker.

Rev. Vernon Kendall, Song Leader.

Gilbert Myers, Pastor.

UFOs or lamps? Dutch wonder

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—Police deployed a dozen patrol cars and a helicopter in a late-night chase for a craft from outer space, a police spokesman said Friday.

The hunt, accompanied by dozens of calls from all over the Dutch capital reporting unidentified flying objects, failed to yield anything extra-terrestrial, according to spokesman Klaas Wiltling.

"We were alerted late Thursday night by Schiphol (airport) air traffic controllers who observed bright lights in a stationary position over the port area which didn't show up on their radar screens," Wiltling said.

After a radio newscast had mentioned the Schiphol sighting, calls started pouring in from all over the city, describing objects ranging from "airplane-like things to fantastic contraptions with Darth Vader at the helm," said Wiltling.

Around midnight, 12 patrol cars and a police helicopter were involved, Wiltling said.

After several hours, "we found nothing except some strong lamps on top of a 60-meter (150-foot) high crane in the harbor," which might have been visible from the airport's control tower, Wiltling said.

"We think it was a classic example of popular delusion, coupled with a number of jokers trying to pull a trick on us," the spokesman said.

Shultz delivers Mideast peace plan

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Friday he has given Israel and three Arab countries an "ambitious" U.S. proposal for Middle-East peace talks and requested a response within 10 days.

Under the plan, Israel would negotiate with a joint delegation of Jordanians and Palestinians over the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. Israel also would negotiate with Syria over the Golan Heights.

Israel captured the Golan Heights in the 1967 Middle East war. Part of it was returned to Syria under a 1974 military disengagement agreement, and in December 1981, Israel annexed the portion remaining in its hands.

Shultz said both Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres were willing to negotiate over the territory.

Egypt was the third Arab country to get the U.S. proposal from Shultz, but it would not be involved directly in negotiations. Egypt and Israel signed a peace treaty in 1979, except for the small enclave of Tabas, which has no territorial disputes.

"There is an attitude of a readiness to work to change things that should be taken advantage of by everybody," Shultz said. "The moment can be lost."

He cast the U.S. proposal for talks on an overall settlement of the 40-year Arab-Israeli dispute in the form of identical letters to King Hussein of Jordan and to Shamir, with a copy to Peres. Other versions were submitted to President Hafez Assad of Syria and to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

In Damascus, Syrian presidential spokesman Jibril Kourieh said after the 2½-hour meeting that Shultz handed Assad "a written message from President Ronald Reagan, containing the American proposal for a comprehensive settlement in the region."

"Shultz explained the contents of the letter to President Assad and during their discussion, President Assad expressed several remarks on the letter," Kourieh added.

Earlier a U.S. official said Shamir and Hussein had not commented on the letter.

Two more killed in violence

RAMALLAH, Occupied West Bank (AP)—Violent Palestinian protests broke out in the occupied territories following Muslim prayers Friday, and Israeli troops shot and killed two stone-throwing Arabs and wounded eight—the army and hospital officials said.

The army also barred journalists from large parts of the territories, responding to complaints from some soldiers, settlers and politicians that presence of the media was inflaming the Arab uprising that began in December.

Soldiers blocked all main roads leading into the West Bank, as well as some little-traveled back roads to prevent reporters and photographers from entering certain areas.

Police in Jerusalem discovered a car packed with explosives less than a quarter of a mile from the hotel of Secretary of State George P. Shultz. The bomb, which a police officer discovered by chance, was safely dismantled.

An official spokesman in Lebanon for the Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility for the car bomb and said the group had tried to kill Shultz. The responsibility claim came from Yasser Arafat's guerrilla group, Fatah.

The secretary of state, who returned to Israel on Thursday to pursue plans for peace, held a second round of talks with both Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres before heading for Cairo and Syria.

Shultz presented the leaders of the three countries a written version of his proposal.

It calls for negotiations to open in early April to provide some self-rule for 1.5 million Palestinian Arabs who live in the Israeli-occupied territories.

Negotiations for an overall Middle East settlement would be held by December.

Under the plan, Israel would discuss the status of the occupied territories with a joint delegation of Jordanians and Palestinians.

American among 13 detained by Contras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—Contra rebels attacked a village in northern Nicaragua and seized 13 people, including an American volunteer for the Witness for Peace organization, group officials said Friday.

The Contras said the group was detained, not kidnapped.

Edward Griffin, local director of the U.S.-based Witness for Peace, said Richard Boren of Elkin, N.C., was abducted during the attack Tuesday in the village of Manacotal, deep in the mountains of Jinotega province.

The village is about 75 miles north of Managua and is in an area where rebels operate regularly in their war against the Sandinista government.

Four people defending the village and two Contras were killed in the attack, a Defense Ministry spokesman said.

Gail Ferris, U.S. southeast regional coordinator for Witness for Peace, said 11 people were wounded in the attack.

In Washington, Contra spokesman Bosco Matamoros said the group was "detained" by rebel forces who suspected them of being foreign military collaborators working with the Sandinista government.

Matamoros said the 13 would be released as soon as a "trustworthy" Nicaraguan was found to return them to a safe location.

Witness for Peace sources said Boren, 30, had been in Nicaragua since November, "documenting Contra human rights abuses and leading delegations to areas of conflict."

In October, Paul Fisher of Mill Valley, Calif., a Witness for Peace volunteer, was kidnapped by the rebels and held for 14 days. He was released unharmed.

Benjamin Ernest Linder, 27, an American volunteer with another organization, was killed in a Contra attack on another Jinotega town last April.

Generally, kidnapped civilians are held for a number of days by the Contras and then released. Others escape, saying the rebels tried to encourage them to join their fight.

Casualties mounting in Iran, Iraq exchange

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—More missiles flew at Baghdad and Tehran on Friday in the long-range rocket duel between Iran and Iraq, which has taken scores of lives in the five days since it began.

Iran said 17 civilians, including four infants, were killed Friday and Iraq said women and children were among the casualties in Baghdad. Iraq has not given specific casualty figures since the missile exchange began Monday.

In Tehran, demonstrators marched on the Soviet Embassy chanting "Death to Russia!" Iran says the Soviet Union supplied the Iraqi missiles, but the Soviets deny it.

Police ringed the embassy in Tehran and the consulate in the central city of Isfahan, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said.

Iraq said it fired three surface-to-surface missiles into Tehran and the Iranians said they countered with two launched at Baghdad. An Iraqi military communique confirmed one Iranian missile strike on the capital.

The attacks began early in the afternoon, breaking a 30-hour lull in late February in the "war of the cities" which has killed thousands of people since the war began in September 1980.

In the five days, Iraq says it has hit Tehran with 27 missiles and Qom, the Iranian hierarchy's holy city, with three. Iran says it has fired 12 into Baghdad and Iraq has confirmed only nine.

Iraq has reported 47 people killed and more than 100 wounded in Tehran, and no casualties in Qom. Iraq is not specific about casualties, but speaks of many civilians killed or wounded.

Although Iraq claims to have developed its own missiles, Western military analysts believe they are Soviet-made Scud-B rockets with strap-on boosters that enable them to reach Tehran and Qom, both slightly less than 300 miles from the border. They say the probable source is North Korea.

Iraq also uses Scud-Bs, supplied by its Arab allies Syria and Libya, but does not need boosters because Baghdad is only 80 miles from the frontier.

Interest rates rise, stocks dip slightly

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices declined slightly Friday as interest rates jumped following a stronger-than-expected report on employment.

The Dow Jones average of 80 industrial stocks slipped 6.63 to 2,057.88 reducing its gain for the week to 34.65 points.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 7 to 6 in the daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange, with 896 up, 811 down and 474 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 201.41 million shares, against 203.31 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index lost .27 to 150.43. Before the opening the Labor Department reported that the civilian unemployment rate dropped a tenth of a percentage point last month to an 8 1/2-year low of 5.7 percent.

Nonfarm payroll employment increased by 631,000, considerably more than most advance estimates on Wall Street.

The news was seen as an emphatic signal that the economy remains strong several months after the stock market crash last October. But it was not well received in the credit market, where traders interpreted it as a likely portent of upward pressure on interest rates.

Prices of long-term government bonds fell more than $16 for each

$1,000 in face value, raising their yields to the 8.4-8.5 percent range.

The more vibrant activity became bond traders reason, the less likely the Federal Reserve is to relax credit conditions any further.

In the stock market, however, the response to the news was not so one-sided. After falling more than 20 points by midday, the Dow Jones industrial average began a gradual comeback that recouped most of its losses.

Among actively traded blue-chip industries, Exxon fell 4 1/2; Eastman Kodak -V to 43 1/4; and General Electric -V to 44 1/4. American Telephone & Telegraph gained 1/4 to 29.

American Standard climbed 3/4 to 7 1/2. Black & Decker raised its bid for the company from $68 a share to a conditional price of $72 a share.

On the domestic bond market, the 17. The company said it had ended an agreement to be acquired for $21.50 a share in cash plus $5 in securities.

Precious metals stocks gained ground as the price of gold rebounded from a recent slide.

NCAA clears Kentucky of wrongdoing

By MIKE EMBRY
The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Although the NCAA said it could prove no wrongdoing and declined to impose any penalties, the Lexington Herald-Leader stands firm behind its Pulitzer-prize winning investigative story detailing corruption in the Kentucky basketball program.

"I know there are sincere people who still can't believe that UK would violate the rules," said John S. Carroll, editor of the Herald-Leader. "Those who know the program firsthand, however, know that the violations were widespread, as described in our stories.

"Of course that doesn't mean they'll speak openly when the NCAA comes around."

Kentucky was publicly reprimanded for not fully cooperating with the investigation and ordered to monitor athletic expenditures and report results to the NCAA for the next three years, according to the official finding of the NCAA's Committee on Infractions released Thursday. The basketball program would have been placed on probation or suspended had the allegations of wrongdoing been proven.

"You can look at it two ways," David Best, NCAA director of enforcement, said of the stories. "If the newspaper article was correct, then there were forces at work that caused us not to get the full story. That would be an embarrassment for us. Certainly, if the stories were incorrect, that would be an embarrassment to the newspaper and an embarrassment to the Pulitzer award.

"As to which of us should be embarrassed, I'll leave that judgment to others."

UK President David P. Rosello said in a prepared statement that university officials "do not fully agree with the findings of the NCAA-Infractions Committee, but it is our desire to move forward. We will therefore not appeal."

The Knight-Ridder newspaper won the Pulitzer in 1986 for its stories that quoted former Kentucky players as saying that basketball recruits during the tenure of Coach Tom Holt received cash, clothing and other extravagant gifts in a consistent pattern of abuse dating back to the early 1970s.

"Everyone is frustrated," Best said. He said there were 33 individuals quoted in the articles, and in a joint investigation by the NCAA and the school, only one person said they were quoted correctly.

Best said his repeated requests to examine the newspaper's tapes or notes or interview the reporters were denied. Best also said the NCAA spent considerable time trying to develop other sources and leads and talking to a great many people who are familiar with the Kentucky program.

Best said his repeated requests to examine the newspaper's tapes or notes or interview the reporters were denied. Best also said the NCAA spent considerable time trying to develop other sources and leads and talking to a great many people who are familiar with the Kentucky program.

Carroll, however, said, "The tapes contain many hours of material, some which was publishable and some not. We have never allowed any outside organization to rummage through notes or tapes. I don't know of any reputable newspaper that would."

The NCAA report said the university told the committee that it was unable to develop sufficient information to conclude a violation had occurred, or it concluded that any proven violation was outside the NCAA's four-year statute of limitations.

The report said the investigation by NCAA enforcement staff also was unable to develop substantial information to confirm that violations had taken place within the four-year statute of limitations.

"My impression is that both the university and the NCAA approached this investigation without enthusiasm," Carroll said.

Best said the infractions committee was particularly frustrated by what he believed was a lack of cooperation by the university in looking into the newspaper's allegations.

ISU beats Wolf Pack on its final shot in OT

Brown connected on a 10-foot baseline shot with 2 seconds left in overtime Thursday night to lift Idaho State to an 86-84 victory over Nevada-Reno in the Big Sky Conference.

Brown's second game-winner against the Wolf Pack this season: On Jan. 22, he hit a desperation 35-footer at the buzzer for a 75-72 victory.

Troy Miles led all scorers for Idaho State, 14-11 overall and 8-7 in the conference.

UNR, 15-11 and 8-7, got a team-high 21 points from Boris King.

The Wolf Pack sent the game into overtime on a pair of free throws by Matt Williams with 20 seconds left in regulation.

In the first overtime, UNR's Martin blocked a shot by George Davis at the top of the key. But the ball bounced off the rim to the right corner where Brown calmly put it in the basket.

The Bengals have now defeated Nevada-Reno five straight times, including the championship game of last season's Big Sky tournament.

Long Beach St. 79 UNLV-77

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Morlon Wiley made two free throws with one second remaining Thursday night, giving Long Beach State a 79-77 victory over No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas, the Rebels' third Nevada at home this season.

Nevada-Las Vegas, 25-4 and 14-0 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, was 72-4 at Thomas & Mack Center before this season. The Rebels already have clinched the PCAA regular-season championship.

Long Beach State, 17-9 and 11-6, overcame a seven-point deficit in the second half as Wiley scored 18 of his 22 points.

Montana St. 82 E-Washington 67

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — Ray Willis broke open a close game with two baskets and a pair of free throws Thursday night, sparking Montana State to an 82-67 Big Sky Conference victory over Eastern Washington.

Willis finished with 25 points as Montana State moved closer to clinching third place in the final Big Sky standings. The Bobcats, who met weekend, have a 16-10 record, 9-6 in conference.

N. Arizona 87 Weber St. 67

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Mark Anderson scored 14 of his 16 points in the first half Thursday night, sinking all four of his 3-point attempts, as he led the Lumberjacks to an 87-67 Big Sky Conference win over Weber State.

The road loss was the 24th in a string for the Wildcats, who have not won in an opponent's arena since February 1986.

Randy Olinger and Shawn Heaman scored 13 points apiece and Scott Williams and Bob Matisic added 10 each for Northern Arizona, which improved to 6-9 in conference play and 9-17 overall.

Gibson walks out, walks back in, goes hitless

By The Associated Press

Kirk Gibson, who stormed off in a huff prior to the Dodgers' first exhibition game, was back in left field Friday and went hitless in two at-bats as the Dodgers beat world champion Minnesota 6-0 on Monday Hatcher's pinch-hit single in the 10th inning.

"Everything is OK," Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda after a team meeting.

and I guess he's not used to it," said Dave Anderson, the team's player representative. "When he saw his hat of everybody up, he got very upset at everybody around and wanted to end up where did it. He took the first (prank) very well, but maybe guys went too far.

Hatcher got his chance to spoil Minnesota's debut as world champions because the Twins roughed up Jesse Orsoco, one of the heroes of the 1986 World Series for the New York Mets. Orsoco, obtained from New York in a December trade, surrendered three runs in two innings as the Twins rallied from a 5-2 deficit.

meeting at which other Dodgers agreed to lighten up on the practical jokes that led to Gibson's anger Thursday after he had been announced as the starting left fielder in the game against the Chunich Dragons of Japan.

"A lot of playing, he angrily left camp just before the start of the game after realizing that someone had sneaked eyeballs inside his cap. The man who left the Detroit Tigers to sign with the Dodgers for $4.5 million over three years, labeled his teammates "clowns" and questioned their priorities.

Matt Nunez cooled and cooled one run while Jack Morris and three other Detroit pitchers held Boston to six hits. Morris started and pitched two hitless innings, striking out two.

He was followed by Jeff Robinson, Mike Henneman and Willie Hernandez, who yielded the Red Sox only run in the eighth.

Pirates 6, Phillies 3

Bob Patterson pitched three scoreless innings and Barry Bonds hit a two-run homer for Pittsburgh. Greg Jelts accounted for all the Philadelphia runs with a three-run homer off Mike Dunn.

Reds 9, Blue Jays 3

Nick Esasky and Paul O'Neill homered and Mario Soto pitched three scoreless innings for the Reds. Soto, trying to recover from two years of arm problems, pitched the first three innings, throwing 58 pitches, allowing five hits, walking none and striking out four.
