Andrus wins round; budget fight drags on

The Associated Press
BOISE — Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus claimed a momentary victory Friday for the public lobbying campaign he generated on education funding as Republican legislative leaders failed to override his vetoes of public and higher education budgets.
But a slim GOP majority in the House once again passed a $105.9 million budget for the four state colleges, the same amount that Andrus rejected a few hours earlier as being inadequate.

Andrus vetoed the $105.9 million appropriation for higher education Friday morning. A short time later, the House voted 43-40 to sustain the veto, 13 votes short of the two-thirds majority required.

Area reaction — B1
But the Appropriations Committee quickly approved a new proposal for the same amount, rejecting two Democrat attempts to add money to the budget.
After a caucus, Democrats tried to amend the budget on the floor, adding money to benefit Boise State University and Lewis-Clark State College.

After the House voted 44-37 against that attempt, the new appropriation bill was approved 44-40 and sent to the Senate. That was one vote more than the measure won earlier.
"I, too, would like to vote for more dollars for education," said Rep. Kathleen Gunsey, R-Boise. "If we find more money, we can grind out another appropriation bill for public schools and higher education."
But despite the flood of telephone support for the governor's large budget proposals, Senate Republicans showed no intention of changing their minds on the budget issue that has become politically polarized this week.

"Everyone seems to be frozen or locked in," acknowledged Senate Education Chairman Terry Sversten, R-Cataldo, who had pressed for slightly higher spending levels than the Republican majority finally settled on.
"There isn't any desire to move," Sversten said.
Democrats in the Senate refused to cooperate.

SIS hearings extended by 2 sessions

The Associated Press
IDAHO FALLS — The U.S. Department of Energy on Friday extended the public hearing process for the controversial Special Isotope Separation project, adding sessions at Boise next Tuesday and Idaho Falls next Wednesday on the proposed plutonium refining plant.
The announcement came shortly before the first of three originally scheduled hearings began in Idaho Falls. Hearings also are scheduled today in Boise and Monday in Twin Falls.
Thomas Cochran, a physicist with the Natural Resources Defense Council, debated the SIS with project supporters at an Idaho Falls press conference before Friday's hearing.
Union members and local businessmen shouted questions and comments at Cochran during the press conference to the chagrin of opponents of the project, which would use laser technology to process fuel-grade plutonium for use in nuclear weapons.
A brief shoving match broke out between SIS supporter Jim Reed of Idaho Falls and project opponent Ted McKinley of Arco after tempers flared over comments made during the press conference.
Backers say the $900 million SIS, proposed for the Department of Energy's Idaho National Engineering Laboratory west of Idaho Falls, would add hundreds of jobs to the area.

Idaho Power's surcharge bid may hit snag

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer
BOISE — Idaho Power Co. wants to raise its electricity rates for each of its average residential customers statewide $7.20 a month.
Idaho Power officials blame the 13-percent, $41.3 million increase on the drought, which dried up surplus power along with the rivers.
But apparent inconsistencies in how the company has portrayed the drought's effects may affect its success in obtaining the one-year surcharge.
Idaho Power officials say the utility is suffering because there isn't as much extra power as the company expected to sell neighboring states. So if the Public Utilities Commission approves the increase, Idaho customers would shoulder the loss of sales in Oregon and Nevada.
"The surcharge is designated not to increase postage or to maintain the cost of cars, it's only to restore our net power supply rates to what the commission's order said they would be in an average year," said Dewey Hammond, Idaho Power's vice president and chief financial officer.

Net power rates are derived from in-state sales and out-of-state sales, less the costs of securing the power. Since out-of-state sales are highlighted by drought continuing from last year, the company is asking to shift its income to charge in-state customers.
But breaking up dire forecasts of drought and lost revenue last year — forecasts that shadow this current rate request — was a letter Hammond distributed Jan. 22 to the company's analysts and investors.
Hammond painted a much rosier picture then, mitigating the drought in contrast to company publications to the news media before and since.
The apparent inconsistency may become an issue in its request for raising its Idaho rates.
Idaho Power asked the PUC this week to allow a 13.1 percent surcharge for one year, beginning April 20, although that fast-approaching deadline appears unlikely. PUC has scheduled a pre-hearing April 11 to define the issues involved, said spokesman Gary Richardson.
In January, Hammond predicted

Panama's armed forces go unpaid

The Associated Press
PANAMA CITY, Panama. — The armed forces that keep Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega in power went unpaid Friday and the broke and beleaguered government ordered businesses closed by the general strike to reopen.
In a decree issued under a week-old state of emergency, the civilian government that does Noriega's bidding said it would take away the commercial licenses of any businesses trafficking goods and services to the public if they remained closed.
The decree specifically mentioned grocery stores, pharmacies, transportation companies and gasoline stations.
An estimated 90 percent of Panama's industry and businesses have shut down in the strike, called to force Noriega's removal as the head of the 15,000-member Defense Forces that includes the military and police.
The government's inability to pay the Defense Forces kindled hopes in the opposition that loyalty for him will wane.
Several members of the Defense Forces, including a secretary at military headquarters, said army, navy, police and air force personnel did not receive their semi-monthly paychecks as scheduled Friday.
In mid-March, most of the 130,000 public employees were given partial payment of at least $75 on their salaries. Those employees whose monthly salaries are $1,000 or more were not paid. Social security checks have been postponed.
Demonstrators at the Roman Catholic cathedral protested the church's failure to issue a denunciation of Noriega as expected.

Reagan shows caution over Nicaragua accord

The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Friday the record of Nicaragua's Marxist-led government indicates "there is reason to have caution that it may not live up to the cease-fire agreement reached with the U.S.-backed Contra rebels."
It was the first time Reagan had commented in any detail on the 60-day nationwide cease-fire, effective April 1, that was announced Wednesday after negotiations in Sapoa, Nicaragua.
"Of course we look forward to this and hope it continues, but ... just as in some other meetings that have gone on in which I have been involved, I think that we should keep in mind that both parties must be dedicated to the things that are said and agreed to in those meetings," the president said.
When a reporter said that it sounded as though he were suspicious that this would not be the case with the Sandinistas, Reagan replied, "I think there is reason to have caution — they have a past record that indicates that we should be."

The exchange with reporters took place as Reagan was preparing to meet with visiting President Joaquin Balaguer of the Dominican Republic.
During his daily White House news briefing earlier, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters "we are having discussions with the resistance leadership" about the new cease-fire plan.
"We're very hopeful that it works," Fitzwater said. "We want to do whatever we can to see that it works."
But at the same time, the spokesman said the administration is "very hopeful" that a package of humanitarian assistance to the Contras can be approved by the House and Senate before Congress' Easter recess.

Drug case informant claims arrest 'revenge' for comments

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — John Paul Baldwin, Jr., a confidential informant for Twin Falls drug agents, said it was "just revenge" when police arrested him on misdemeanor charges Friday morning — hours after publication of a newspaper article in which Baldwin criticized law enforcement officials.
Baldwin was arrested shortly after 9 a.m. Friday on charges of driving without privileges and having no proof of insurance. He posted a $500 bond and was released from jail later that afternoon.
In an article printed in the Times-News Friday, Baldwin said he was upset because police and prosecutors misled him. He said he was provided with no training for the undercover work and was given the impression there would be no problems.

Baldwin, who no longer lives in Idaho, also caused problems for authorities earlier in the week while testifying at a drug trial. On Tuesday, Baldwin's refusal to answer questions led to a recess and a hastily negotiated immunity agreement with Twin Falls prosecutors.
Tim Qualls, chief of the Twin Falls Department of Public Safety, said Friday's arrest was not linked to Baldwin's actions at trial or to the statements printed in the newspaper.
"It's got nothing to do with it," Qualls said.

Baldwin disagreed.
The informant, who worked as a snitch for Twin Falls police on several occasions in 1987, was arrested in the 800 block of Third Street East, just five blocks away from the city's police department.
"I just left the top shop and was driving down the street, and he (the arresting officer) hopped around and pulled me over," Baldwin said.
The arresting officer was Ruben Saldana. But, according to Baldwin, Saldana was hardly alone.
Baldwin said there were three or four police cars at the arrest scene, and they all arrived quickly. "Maybe 30 seconds at the most and they were there," he said.

"I asked, 'What am I? A major gangster?'"
The arrival of the police was not the only thing which happened quickly. Baldwin said Saldana had a computer printout sheet already in his hands when he approached Baldwin's vehicle, a beat-up pickup truck.
"That printout sheet showed Baldwin was driving without privileges, meaning his license had been suspended."
"Ruben had me handcuffed and shoved me into the car, right away," Baldwin said.
The informant, who has been in town since Sunday, said Saldana had several prior opportunities to arrest him on that charge if he saw fit. Baldwin said Saldana had seen him at the police station Monday when he "watched me get in my truck and drive away."

The officer also saw Baldwin this week driving around town. "He seen me more than once," Baldwin said. "He seen me driving down the street a couple of times because I waved at him and he waved back."
"Police officers said it is not unusual for an individual to be arrested — rather than issued a criminal summons specifying a court date — on the misdemeanor charges leveled at Baldwin. "It depends a lot upon their attitude," Qualls said. "They can be arrested."
Police Commander Pat Bermingham said

Air crash conference set

DENVER (AP) — Conferences on proposed settlements of lawsuits filed over the Nov. 18 crash of Continental Airlines Flight 1713, which killed 28 people, are scheduled for May 23-26.

The DC-9, taking off from Denver bound for Boise, Idaho, during a snowstorm, flipped over on takeoff and broke into three pieces on a runway at Stapleton International Airport. The other 54 people aboard were injured.

At least 12 federal lawsuits have been filed in U.S. District Court in Denver and 18 in the federal court at Boise. Additionally, a state court lawsuit has been filed in New Jersey and another filed in Texas.

Bill shifts water rights

BOISE (AP) — Modified legislation stripping Gov. Cecil Andrus of the water rights he holds in trust for Idaho's four major lakes has won Senate approval.

The bill was passed on Friday on a 23-18 vote and returned to the House for endorsement of the minor changes. It would turn the water rights for Payette, Priest, Coeur d'Alene and Poni D'Oreille lakes over to the Water Resources Board, which holds most other public trust water rights.

The bill originated in the House after Andrus cited a 1927 law giving him the trust rights in bucking the Land Board's approval of a floating golf green on Lake Coeur d'Alene for businessman Duane Hagadone. Andrus refused granting the right until Hagadone finally agreed to provide public access to a beach on Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Although that dispute has been settled, Republican lawmakers pressed ahead with the water rights transfer despite warnings from Democrats that the bill would be vetoed.

House passes liquor bill

BOISE (AP) — Legislation designed to grant liquor licenses to two racing facilities limped through the Idaho House Friday on a 45-29 vote.

Opponents raised a variety of objections, ranging from calling it special interest legislation to opposing any more special-liquor licenses.

"We have a foolish policy on liquor licenses and the quota system hasn't worked. With passage of this bill, we are being increasingly foolish," said Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello.

Idaho grants liquor licenses in incorporated areas on the basis of population. But the Legislature in recent years has granted many exemptions to the policy, leading some lawmakers to argue that the entire quota system should be abolished.

Andrews requests rehearing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — William Andrews, condemned to die for his role in the 1974 torture-slayings of three people during a stereo store robbery, has petitioned the U.S. Supreme Court to reconsider its rejection of his last formal appeal.

A secretary for Andrews' Seattle attorney, Timothy Ford, confirmed Friday that the petition for rehearing had been filed by mail Friday was the deadline for the request.

Andrews, 32, and co-defendant Pierre Dale Selby were convicted of three counts of first-degree murder and two counts of aggravated robbery in the deaths of two women and a man at the Ogden Hi-Fi Shop on April 22, 1974. Selby was executed by lethal injection last Aug. 28. The victims were forced to drink caustic drain cleaner before being shot to death.

Ford was in court Friday and could not be reached for comment, said his secretary, who asked not to be identified. She said she was not authorized to further discuss the petition, except to say it was mailed late Wednesday.

Senate upholds tint veto

BOISE (AP) — The Senate Democratic minority Friday upheld Gov. Cecil Andrus' veto of legislation restricting the use of tinted windshields and windshields on motor vehicles.

The vote was straight party line, 26-16, two short of the 28-vote, two-thirds majority needed to override.

Andrus notified the Senate Thursday he has no problem with the concept of the bill but was forced to veto it because of what he called a serious flaw.

"The measure required the Legislature to approve any rule or regulation needed to carry out the law."

"Such language is totally unacceptable to me, and I believe should be unacceptable to you under the doctrine of separation of powers," the governor said.

School funding bill clears last hurdle

BOISE (AP) — The Senate has given final legislative approval to authority for local school districts to recover ground lost in their basic property tax support levies when the 1 percent property tax limitation was imposed a decade ago.

The bill was sent to Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus Friday on a 35-4 vote. Sponsor Rod Beck, R-Boise, called it the School Finance Equity Act of 1988.

Beck said the authority to raise the basic property tax levy on a majority vote of district patrons could help as many as 70 of the state's 116 school districts increase their basic budgets and reduce their reliance on annual override levy elections.

The bill is intended to benefit districts where the basic support levy rate was well below the maximum legal limit when the property tax limitation initiative was passed in 1978.

That initiative and implementing legislation passed later limited any increase in the basic levy to only 5 percent a year. For districts at the maximum, their annual increases were as large as they could be.

But for districts that Beck said had been operating frugally the annual increase comes on a smaller base, widening the gap between their ability to raise money and their counterparts at or near the legal maximum. That gap in local property tax support, lawmakers said, contributes to inequity in educational opportunities between school districts.

If all eligible districts and their patrons invoked the provisions of the bill, property tax support for the 70 districts involved could be increased by a total of nearly $3.9 million dollars.

"Those districts that had very frugal levies at the time of the 1 Percent were caught short," Senate Education Chairman Terry Sversten, R-Caldwell, said. "This levy proposal would have the same impact as $10 million in additional state support."

Dennis Mecham answers questions at his father's trial

Mecham's son testifies

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gov. Evan Mecham, fighting charges he misused $80,000 from a "protocol fund" by loaning it to his auto dealership, testified Friday he was told he could use the money for practically "any damn thing that you want."

The first-term Republican said he had never heard of the money referred to as public funds.

Testimony at the governor's Senate impeachment trial in recent days has focused on his borrowing at 9 percent interest money that had been raised by his inaugural ball.

State law had barred him from using the money to pay off campaign debts, and a "protocol fund" was set up instead last year. Witnesses said the fund was intended to promote Arizona through events and gifts to visiting dignitaries.

The prosecution contends the fund was public money; the defense contends it was private. Prosecutors have also alleged that Mecham's dealership was in financial trouble and needed the money.

Mecham said he received instructions on use of the money from William Long, chairman of Mecham's inaugural committee, which had raised the funds before learning they could not be used to retire campaign debts.

"Mr. Long said, 'We have gone through all of this rigamarole and you can spend it for any damn thing that you want,' those were his words, 'except you can't spend it for politics or personal living expenses,'" Mecham testified.

Panel rejects Tucker's fiscal relief proposal

BOISE (AP) — Rep. Tim Tucker, D-Port Hill, offered the House what he contended was the answer to all its revenue and education funding problems on Friday.

But the House Revenue and Taxation Committee declined the offer, voting against a Tucker measure raising a variety of taxes to produce more than $17 million in additional revenue for the next state budget.

With budgets already approved, the Legislature has spent some $9 million more than available revenue in the fiscal year starting next July. The Revenue and Taxation Committee has been debating for weeks how to raise the extra money, but so far hasn't been able to agree on anything.

Tucker offered the committee a bill placing a small surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes, raising $4.1 million; phased-in repeal of the investment tax credit, worth $8 million; rate structure changes for insurance companies, boosting their taxes by $3.1 million, and taxing Blue Cross and Blue Shield, $1.9 million.

That would cover the deficit of more than $9 million, Tucker said, and put another $4 million into public school funding; nearly $2 million more into higher education, and set aside another $1 million to allow Boise State University to purchase the Campus School site for expansion.

"The Democrats' commitment to education is of the highest priority," Tucker said.

He said he wanted the committee to have his proposal introduced and ready for discussion in case the Legislature can't come up with an acceptable compromise on revenue. He said the proposal had the approval of Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Officials observe Rhoades after he takes several pills

BOISE (AP) — Convicted murderer Paul Ezra Rhoades was under medical observation Friday in the state penitentiary at Boise after taking a number of antidepressants while en route to the prison.

"He's sleeping this thing off," Department of Corrections spokesman Bob Gates said Friday.

"He's not in any danger," Gates said. "He never was in any danger."

He said Rhoades took a number of antidepressants called Elavil after leaving his cell at the Bonneville County Jail on Thursday. It was unknown how many pills he took. The medication also contains an anxiety-reducing drug.

Rhoades received death sentences for murder and kidnapping in a 7th District Court proceeding in Idaho Falls that ended at 9:50 a.m. Thursday. Bonneville County authorities obtained permission to take Rhoades to Boise immediately.

Gates said Rhoades was believed to have hoarded the pills in his county jail cell.

BEM excavates oldest discovered Snake River site

BOISE (AP) — Archeological excavations in the Snake River Birds of Prey Area have revealed what is believed to be the oldest known prehistoric site along the river in southwest Idaho.

Judy Willig, Boise District Archeologist for the Bureau of Land Management, said test excavations have uncovered the remains of an ancient Indian encampment believed to be 9,400 years old. Prior to the discovery last summer, the earliest dated site along the Snake River in southwest Idaho was believed to be 4,600 years old, she said.

Scientists have used carbon dating since the excavation last summer to determine age.

The oldest archeological site in Idaho is Wilson Butte Cave, located northeast of Twin Falls, which dates from 10,000 to 14,000 years ago, Willig said.

Willig said the prehistoric site was discovered during test excavations that were being conducted in preparation for a road improvement project in the Snake River Birds of Prey Area, 20 miles southwest of Boise.

The BLM routinely evaluates cultural and environmental values before implementing projects that would disturb the ground, she said.

A crew of BLM archeologists and volunteers from Linn Benton Community College in Oregon dug test excavations at five sites in the area of the proposed road improvement, she said.

What's what YOUR YAWN

Q. What's a yawn do for me?
A. Gets rid of your excess carbon dioxide.

Young wives blame themselves if their husbands chase other girls, but seasoned older wives whose husbands stray blame the husbands. So say the marriage counselors.

Q. How many "Fleet Admirals" have there been in the U.S. Navy?
A. Four - Ernest J. King, William D. Leahy, Chester Nimitz, and William F. Halsey. They all made that rank within a year after the Navy created it in 1944.

Another classified ad that attracted some attention read simply: "Vasectomy Sale! Phlypen, $15. Walk-er, $12. Bassinet, $10."

Q. I was born in 1952. What other insignificant things happened that year?
A. First "Mad" magazine came out. Dick Clark started "The American Bandstand" on TV. Hank Williams sang, "Your Cheatin' Heart." Gary Cooper starred in "High Noon." Ray Kroc said, "Let's franchise MacDonal-d's. And something called max-ma-tosis killed off about half the rabbits in France. That's all I can think of.

Q. I've read that a few early settlers of the Jamestown colony went immediately to live with the Indians. Why?
A. To find out what wild foods they could eat safely.

Q. The safer the den, the sounder the sleep." Sellers of burglar alarms ought to be able to do something with this.

Spend more time with your mate.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Don't let a misunderstanding with a friend keep you from handling the activities you had planned. Try to cooperate more with co-workers.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Avoid a friend who is stubborn and could cause you some trouble today. Stay out of an argument between your mate and a friend.

Among wild animals, experts say:

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Don't become involved in an argument between an associate and a business contact, as this in not your concern and will get you in trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Close friends may not agree with your ideas about finances and property, but listen to their views as they may be helpful to you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You may be about to lose your temper with a co-worker, but doing so would have unfortunate re-tonight.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Don't let outside duties interfere with home matters, or big trouble could ensue. Be very cautious in motion and in conversations.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Although you may arise feeling a bit discontented, you can do much to improve that attitude during the day and evening.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): A secret anxiety could cause you to act too quickly on an important matter and suffer a big loss, so think carefully before making any decisions.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Don't be so anxious to gain a personal wish that you hurt a good friend who has helped you. Get plenty of rest

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You would be wise to use caution in all of your comments and actions at home today, as tempers may run high and feelings could be hurt. This is a good time for everyone to spend a little time alone.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Something may turn up to test your self-control, but try to maintain harmony at home. Be sure to drive very carefully today.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Avoid an argument which may arise today, as it will quickly blow over if you keep silent. Catch up on some reading this evening.

Home apparel law draws opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration launched a final attempt Friday to overturn a 46-year-old law that prohibits manufacturers from hiring people to produce apparel in their homes.

The Labor department said it will publish proposed regulations next week that would allow employers to contract work from people in their homes in five industries: gloves and mittens, embroideries, blouses and buckles, handkerchiefs and some jewelry.

However, unlike its two previous attempts to deregulate so-called industrial-homework, officials said this time they will not try to remove the ban on women's apparel. Also, any allowed jewelry work would be limited to stringing beads and packaging.

Assistant Labor Secretary Fred Alvarez said excluding women's apparel, where investigators have found about half of the violations of the current law, was aimed at defusing opposition from the 210,000-member International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

However, the president of that union, Jay Mazur, said it will vigorously oppose any relaxation of the current law, calling the administration's latest proposal "a betrayal of the rights and protections held by American workers for generations."

"We will take legal action as we have in the past," he said, indicating that the union "will likely seek to overturn any changes in the courts if the administration tries to implement them."

Officials for the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union and the Service Employees International Union indicated said they also anticipate filing court challenges to any attempt to lift the current bans.

Mazur said he also has asked the House and Senate labor committees to launch investigations of what he called "the administration's unwillingness" during the past seven years to enforce the current prohibitions on industrial homework.

The proposed new regulations do not attempt to overturn state bans on the same type of work-at-home-in-Hawaii, California, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Rhode Island and New Jersey.

The ILGWU, other unions and employer associations in California and New York led a firestorm of attacks on the administration's last two efforts in 1981 and 1983 to repeal the industrial homework bans.

As a result, only the ban on knitted outerwear was lifted in December 1984.

Mazur said his union's review of government records show that since then only 72 knitted outerwear employers have been granted licenses to contract out work to a total of less than 1,000 home workers "in a universe that is 10 to 15 times that size."

"We recognize what's happening; we're not fooled," he said. "If they get these bans, they'll come after us next. They've had this licensing program in outerwear for 40 months now and they've found violations in 80 percent of the cases they've looked at. It hasn't worked."

Alvarez said the government does not know how many people in the five industries that employers have illegally contracted to work at home.

Shultz to meet PLO members

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz will meet Saturday with two members of the Palestine Liberation Organization's legislative arm, as Americans were being warned to stay away from the Israeli-held West Bank and Gaza.

A State Department announcement Friday described Professors Edward Said of Columbia University and Ibrahim Abu-Lughud of Northwestern University as "prominent Americans with an intimate knowledge of contemporary Middle Eastern politics."

Their membership on the Palestine National Council, the PLO affiliate, was not mentioned in the announcement but was confirmed later by State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley.

Israeli Ambassador Moshe Arad protested Shultz's invitation to the two as in conflict with a 13-year U.S. policy against dealing with the PLO, which is pledged to dismantling Israel as a Jewish state.

The State Department, meantime, cited "continuing disturbances" in urging Americans to stay away from the West Bank and Gaza. A total of 111 Palestinian Arabs and an Israel soldier have died in violent protests and other incidents since Dec. 9.

"We are not issuing an advisory for Israel itself," Mrs. Oakley said. "Israel is safe for American travel."

However, with the statement coming during the Easter season, which attracts many religious pilgrims to the area, the impact on tourism and on Israel's economy could be severe.

The West Bank was held by Jordan and Gaza by Egypt from 1949 until 1967 when the Arabs lost the territories to Israel in the Six-Day War. About 96 percent of the population is Palestinian.

The travel advisory cautioned Americans to avoid travel to the areas "until further notice." It said Americans living "should exercise particular caution."

The situation in East Jerusalem, which is part of Israel's capital, was described as "unpredictable." The advisory said Americans should check with U.S. diplomats in the city before entering the area.

Under all circumstances, Americans should avoid demonstrations and other situations that have the potential to lead to violence, the advisory said. "American travelers should carry their U.S. passports at all times."

Shultz will hold the meeting with Said and Abu-Lughud "to discuss our approach to the Middle East peace process," the separate announcement said.

He is trying to open negotiations on May 1 to provide self-rule for the Palestinians. The PLO would not participate. However, Palestinians with PLO approval would be part of a delegation with Jordan.

Mrs. Oakley stressed that Said and Abu-Lughud are U.S. citizens. She said the U.S. policy of not dealing with the PLO itself remained intact.

"There is no change in U.S. policy on negotiating with or recognizing the PLO," she said.

Joffrey Ballet head dies of long illness

NEW YORK (AP) — Dancer-choreographer Robert Joffrey, who guided the Joffrey Ballet from an itinerant troupe in a station wagon to international acclaim, died Friday morning after a lengthy illness. He was 57.

Joffrey died at 6 a.m. at New York University Hospital of a liver ailment caused by medication he was receiving for asthma and a muscle condition, spokeswoman Pennie Curry said. He had been hospitalized in intensive care for two weeks.

"Because of asthma, a doctor had recommended that Joffrey take up dancing as a child to improve his health."

Joffrey had been working from his home since suffering severe asthma attacks in August, Mrs. Curry said. He was diagnosed in April 1986 as having severe myositis, which causes deterioration of the muscles, enlarged liver and asthma.

Earlier this month, he announced a three-person advisory group to help Gerald Arpino, the company's associate director, run the company which he had directed for three decades.

The date for a memorial service has not been set, Mrs. Curry said.

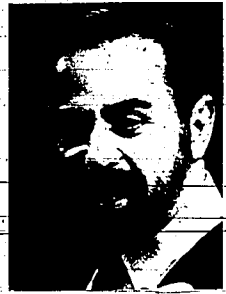

The Joffrey Ballet now ranks with the New York City Ballet and American Ballet Theater as one of America's top three ballet companies, but it began in 1955 when Joffrey borrowed a station wagon to tour the United States with his fledgling troupe.

There were six dancers, including one who doubled on piano, and Joffrey was forced to remain in New York working to pay for the tour.

"He had a passion and a love for dance. He loved to bring dance to parts of the world that had never seen it," said Gary Chryst, a member of the Joffrey troupe for 11 years and one of its best-known dancers.

"Robert Joffrey was one of a handful of artists who made their personal visions into a public statement," said Charles B. Raymond, managing director of the New York City Ballet. "The company he started will continue to bring that vision to audiences all over America."

Within 10 years of its 22-city debut

ROBERT JOFFEY
Earned world acclaim tour, the Joffrey Ballet had performed throughout the Far East, in the Soviet Union and at the White House.
Joffrey built by far the most flourishing repertory.
He commissioned a reconstruction of Vaslov Nijinsky's 1913 "The Rite of Spring," which was only danced eight times. Joffrey's version premiered in September 1987 in Los Angeles.
Joffrey brought into the company ballets of strong classical base and flowing quality by the British Royal Ballet's Frederick Ashton; the 1932 stylized anti-war masterpiece, "The Green Table," by Kurt Jooss; a group of ballets created for Serge Diaghilev, John Cranko's full-length "Romeo and Juliet," and dances by American choreographers from Agnes de Mille to the avant garde.
His own ballets include "The Nutcracker" in 1987 and his striking 1967 "Astarot," in which a couple dance in front of a billowing white silk curtain on which a movie of them dancing is projected.
He also reached out to experimental modern-dance choreographers, such as his work with Twyla Tharp in 1973.
Joffrey sought broader financial support for the Joffrey Ballet by basing the company in New York and Los Angeles, with separate boards and fund-raising in each city.

Republicans wary of Nicaraguan cease-fire

HOUSTON (AP) — Conservative Republican members of Congress are wary of the Nicaraguan government's offer to call it a "disguised surrender" — and say the United States will have to continue pressuring the Sandinistas until they install a truly democratic system.

At the same time, the congressmen — attending a GOP retreat here — say it was American pressure and American aid to the Contras that forced the Sandinistas to deal with the Contras.

The result was this week's dramatic turn of events: a 60-day cease-fire agreement signed by representatives of the Nicaraguan government and the guerrilla leaders, and a Sandinista promise to institute democratic reforms.

"The goal has never been just a cease-fire," said Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., one of six dozen GOP lawmakers at the retreat.

The provisions on democratic reforms in the cease-fire pact are "weak," he said, and the United States should try to keep the Contras alive as a fighting force "as a spur to continued good faith on the part of the Sandinistas."

Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said it was "reasonably implausible" that the Sandinistas would live up to their promises for reforms. But if they do, it would have made the years of supporting the Contras a successful policy.

"The values of the West will have won," he said. "Our goal was to have freedom, not to have a war."

Gingrich said one of the reasons he had doubts about the pact was because the Contras were negotiating from a weakened state, their U.S. aid having been cut off by Congress a month ago.

It's too early to tell, he said, "to what degree this is a true negotiation and to what degree this is a disguised surrender" by the Contras.

Cheney acknowledged that the Contras were "in difficult straits" but said they "still have some potential."

Rep. Rod Chandler, R-Wash., who has sponsored a plan to renew military aid to the Contras, said the Sandinistas had "failed miserably" when they crossed over into Honduras recently in what he said was an attempt to "deal a knockout blow to the Contras."

Chandler said the Sandinistas were under pressure not only because of the Contras but because of their war-torn economy that has resulted from the insurgency. "If we had never supported the Contras, they'd have never been a factor," he said.

But if the Contras fold their tents and it is "back to the usual Sandinista behavior" of totalitarian rule, he said, the United States will have to "take some action with external forces... external, including the United States."

"It's down to that," he said. "It's definitely a new era."

In the meantime, Chandler said, he expected Congress to rapidly approve some new humanitarian support for the Contras with the option of adding military aid if things turn sour.

Democratic leaders have been discussing with the White House and with congressional Republicans a $48 million, year long package of non-lethal aid.

Eisenhower considered nuclear strike on China

BOSTON (AP) — Documents declassified in recent years show that the Eisenhower administration considered a nuclear strike to defend the tiny islands of Quemoy and Matsu against Communist China, a historian says.

Gordon H. Chang, writing in the spring issue of International Security about Chinese rivalry over the islands, said the documents show that "Eisenhower... was privately determined to defend the islands, and to use nuclear weapons if necessary."

According to one recently declassified document, one senior aide in the Eisenhower administration suggested that atomic bombs be dropped "from time to time" on Quemoy and Matsu if they were captured by communist forces.

That proposal was rejected by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

There were also reports in 1984 and 1985, based on declassified documents, that Eisenhower considered using atomic weapons to defend South Vietnam in 1954 and 1965.

Eisenhower "actually brought the country to the 'nuclear brink,' far closer to war than a distraught public feared in 1955," said Chang, who works at the International Strategic Institute at Stanford University.

Consideration of a nuclear attack began little more than a year after Eisenhower conditionally approved a plan in May 1953 to end the Korean War with a full-scale military attack that might have included the use of atomic weapons against the Chinese.

Irish romance turns into Chicago nightmare

CHICAGO (AP) — An Irish romance that flourished on the Emerald Isle has turned into a nightmare since he was arrested in Chicago on a murder charge and she was critically injured on St. Patrick's Day after coming to visit him.

"I hope that one day I should walk away from this and make a life for both of us," Daniel Stokes said by telephone Friday from the Cook County Jail.

"I'm scared out of my wits. It's totally new. I've never been arrested in my life, either here or in Ireland," said Stokes, 21.

Meanwhile, his girlfriend, Margaret Hanley, was in a coma at a North Side Hospital.

On St. Patrick's Day, she was hit by a car.

"She was going across the street and didn't know about the turn on red," which does not exist in Ireland, Stokes said. "A woman driving was making a turn on red" and hit Miss Hanley.

The couple met in August 1987, when Stokes returned home to Ireland from Chicago, where he lived briefly and where his mother lives.

"I met her the very day I got off the plane. She was over at my house. She came over on her tea break because she and my sister are best friends," Stokes recalled.

Romance "was in the air," he said. "We got very serious after a couple of weeks. We found that we were very compatible."

But Stokes, a cabinet maker, found hard economic times in Dublin, so in November he returned to Chicago.

Andrus appeal draws lukewarm response

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

BOISE — One call poured in Thursday to Republican Rep. Mack Neibaur, of Paul, after Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus urged Idahoans to call their representatives about public education funding.

Neibaur said the caller opposed Andrus. The response appeared indicative of what Magic Valley's lawmakers heard after Andrus statewide television plea Wednesday to lobby for more education funding. Andrus published the lawmakers' phone number, urging people to support $362 million for public education, instead of the $356 million approved by the Legislature.

But of 850 calls that lit up the Legislative Information Center's phones Thursday, only 21 came from Magic Valley. Some additional calls arrived Friday, but Republicans who supported $356 million said advice was mixed.

"I think people should be able to call and get their message across," said Rep. Jerry Callen, R-Jerome, who initially opposed even $356 million as too high.

"But I think it should be from people's concerns up here," he added, fearing that the Idaho Education Association, with its 12,000 members, could flood the switchboard.

Callen got three calls, two opposed to Andrus. Even so, Callen said he would support the $356 million Friday because he didn't want it to go higher in a compromise.

Andrus vetoed the $356 million figure Wednesday. But an identical measure is making its way through the Legislature.

Andrus proposed a $362.3 million public education budget. But the Legislature, split into thirds among conservative and moderate Republicans and Democrats, compromised on $356 million with an estimated $9.1 million in new taxes.

Like a seesaw, higher or lower figures are expected to tip the balance so that no other figure will win support.

"In the Senate, the number isn't going to change," said Sen. Darrel McRoberts, R-Twin Falls, who is considered a moderate member of JEAC. "There are as many people who want more as the people who want less."

Same for the House. For instance, Neibaur reluctantly voted for $356 million, but said he preferred $351 million and wouldn't edge higher.

"I don't like it, but I will vote for it again," Neibaur said of $356 million.

The small telephone outpouring may justify Republicans sticking to their lower figure. The results also boded poorly for moderate Republicans hoping to overturn $356 million.

Rep. Ralph Peters, R-Jerome, supported

$356 million the first time and was still comfortable with the figure Friday. He said the one call of six that supported Andrus hadn't changed his mind.

"I got two calls at my desk (Thursday) and they're both against the governor's proposal," said Peters, adding that another four arrived Friday. "I can only go on my personal feelings, and I think they're satisfied that this is as far as we can go."

Down the aisle, Rep. Russ Newcomb, R-Twin Falls, said the half-dozen calls he received didn't match the estimated 150 he got on another issue last week.

"I'd like to give them a little more, but I don't think the money is available," Newcomb said.

Still, others held out.

Rep. Ron Black, R-Twin Falls, opposed $356 million. He called $358 million a minimum acceptable figure, adding, "If we could get $360, I would stick with that."

"If we don't have the votes, we don't have the votes — it just means it goes back onto the property taxpayers," said Black, referring to expected overriders districts will need to make up for the shortfall.

Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, also wanted more money.

"If we could take a look and add a couple of million, that'd help," said Robbins.

He noted that Shoshone Joint District in his area stood to gain only $20,000 under the $356 million proposal and is planning a $155,000 override this year for "bare essentials."

"My problem is that you'll have to pay for the difference between state funding through income tax or local funding through property tax."

Passage of the $356 million may put the wheels back on the House Revenue and Taxation Committee. The committee has been idling, waiting for an education figure to see how much new revenue must be raised.

Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said the $356 million would require an estimated $9.1 million in new taxes.

Guardians organization helps elderly, helpless

By CRAIG LINCOLN

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County has a new way of dealing with an old problem: what to do with people who are incapable of handling daily life.

Late last month, the Twin Falls County commissioners approved the Southern Idaho Community Guardians board of directors, setting in motion an organization that some residents have been working on since September 1985.

"We're here to just basically check on people, make sure they're doing okay, to call them every day to make sure they're getting," said Glenn Munkres, chairman of the board and pastor at the First Baptist Church in Hansen.

Among other things, a court-appointed guardian can pay bills and help with shopping. The board can't appoint a guardian until a judge determines a person needs help, and the board will act only when there are no relatives or friends to take care of a person.

"Usually, this is initiated through judges," said Commission Chairman Judy Felton. "This isn't meant to replace anyone — it's only for people who don't have anyone else."

Fifth District Magistrate Judge R. Michael Redman said he has been handling one case involving an older Twin Falls man, a prime example of the need for volunteer guardians.

The man, who lives in "some form of shanty" happens to be fairly wealthy, Redman said. He has no friends or relatives.

"Apparently, there is some sort of underground of people who know this man, and they descend on him and whisk away his money," Redman said. "The Community Guardian program is a wonderful thing for a person like that."

However, the courts walk a fine line when

Minidoka board votes for split spring break

The Times-News

RUPERT — Despite petitions and an opposing recommendation from the calendar committee, Minidoka School Trustees voted 3-2 this week in favor of a split spring break next year.

Last month the district had tabled a proposed calendar with a full week of vacation in March, sending it back to the calendar committee. Board Chairman Bob Harmon said that a full week of vacation at planting time was bad timing.

District business manager Jim Fisher said this week that the calendar committee was still divided on the proposed calendar, with seven of the nine members advocating Calendar B with a full week of spring break March 20-24. Fisher said the two committee members who wanted a split break, with two days off Feb. 20 and 21, and the other three off March 23, 24 and 27 had remained adamant in their choices.

Norma Jepson, a patron from Heyburn, presented the board with a number of petitions in favor of the week-long break in March. Fisher also presented a number of petitions from patrons, with 294 signatures in favor of the calendar recommended by the committee.

Fisher said, "A number of our staff live in Cassia, and have children attending schools over there, and vice versa. It seems reasonable to adopt similar calendars, to avoid some of the problems that have arisen in the past."

Although the proposed calendars had been presented at public hearings in January, the board allowed patrons to again express their views pro and con this week on the calendar. Trustee Warren Snyder, of Paul, said, "I've had about as many calls ask why we even need a spring break at all."

The trustees, apparently as split on the calendar as the committee and the public, also voted pros and cons of the spring break dates.

Trustee Harold Short urged a compromise, saying he had received a "call this afternoon suggesting a way to end the basic conflict might be to alternate spring break from year to year. That way it would fit both groups on alternate years."

Harmon said some of the teachers he had talked to felt the kids needed days off in February.

Trustee Russ Holland said some of his constituents weren't "real positive about spring break at all, especially the working parents." However, Holland said he felt the children needed a break in order to facilitate the process of learning. He moved to adopt Calendar C, which calls for a split break.

Superintendent Gene Snapp said, "It's immaterial to the Central Office which calendar you adopt, but if we ask a committee to do a job for us, and they spend time doing it, I feel we need to consider their findings. Hopefully, we'll be able to ask people to serve on a committee again."

Despite the committee's recommendations, the petitions and the general public input, the board voted 3-2 to accept Calendar C, calling for a split spring break. Voting against the calendar were Short and Larry Jensen, who were in favor of accepting the committee's recommendations.

Patron Dana Cameron, who was one of the two on the calendar committee who favored the split break, said after the meeting, "I was surprised, because I thought it would go the other way. I still think it was a wise decision, and shows they listen to the community. The board tried to do what's best for the students."

Cameron said the committee had been instructed from the beginning that it was just serving in an advisory capacity, so she didn't feel anyone on the committee should think their input had been ignored.

Baseball lighting occupies council

By DONNA SCHORZMAN
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — With the coming of spring this week, the Burley City Council turned its attention to the city parks.

Councilman Derlin Taylor reported that replacing the lights on the baseball field at Salmon Park would cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

"We should either fix them or take them down so there will be no further problem," he said.

At a previous meeting Dean Satterfield, athletic director at Burley High School, had asked the city if the lights could be functional by the school's Easter Tournament. The council noted that even if the lights could be repaired or replaced, they could not be ready on such short notice.

Taylor reported that Satterfield has revised the schedule for the tournament so lights will not be needed.

"We need an agreement between us and the schools to bring them up to use. I'd suggest that we sit on it at this time until we can get help," said Councilman Clay Handy.

Councilman Wendell McMurray asked for a "ball park" figure from city employees to determine the actual cost to the city for operation of the lights every time they are used during the season. City officials said it cost $2.25 cents a minute just for the electricity to operate the lights.

The council decided to delay a decision on the lights until more information is available.

The council did decide to allow a concession stand this year at Community Park after businessman Al Hunt asked about operating a stand by the soft drinks. Hunt plans to sell hamburgers, soft drinks and other refreshments at a temporary, trailer-type stand.

Burley Methodists ready to break ground for new church

By ADELL HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — In 1927 the congregation of the Burley Methodist church made a pact never to go into debt again to finance a building.

So when the United Methodist congregation breaks ground for its new $900,000 building Sunday, it will be the reality of a project long in the planning.

In 1981, when the congregation dedicated its educational building, Dr. Con and Ella Anest envisioned the need for a new church in the future and began a building fund. Others took up the gauntlet, and the congregation now has all but $210,000 of the total amount needed to complete the church.

The Rev. John Watts, who has been pastor of the church since 1985, says a grant of $5,000 was received from the denomination. Other than that, all of the money has come from local sources. "We told people of the need and they've responded," he says.

Watts says, "It's going to be very close. We will need to raise the $210,000 in 1988 to have it paid for when we move into it." Part of this amount will come from the sale of the existing structure, which was completed in 1917 and is now considered unsafe for extensive use.

"The cost of remodeling the building is far too high to make it feasible," Watts says. "City ordinances will not allow us to sink money into the building because there's not adequate parking. Our only alternative is to move the location of our church."

According to church historical records, in the early years after its inception in 1906, the Methodists in Burley had a tough economic struggle. Men of the townsite worked on the canal while the women and children "held down" their homesteads. Wages were only $2.25 for 10 hours of work.

Each church organization was given two lots by Col. Jasiah Miller, the townsite developer. To raise money to build their church, the Methodists sold one lot for $225, then reserved the corner lot for their building, which they dedicated on March 19, 1909.

At that time, the Rev. W. E. Mitchell, first minister of the church, wrote, "The dust was eight inches deep and Burley had no water except a well located at Overland and Main. The water was pumped with a gas engine, into an elevated tank. It was no uncommon sight to see wagon loads of barrels waiting in line to get a supply of water for the homesteads."

Mitchell was supposed to receive a salary of $600 per year, but records indicate it was never paid until the last month before annual conference. "Only by his excellence as a horse trader was he able to hold on," the record says.

A succession of hardy pastors followed, and by 1913, the economic situation had improved somewhat. The Rev. N.E. Hershey came from Oklahoma at a salary of $800 per year. A cryptic note in the record states, "Almost half of this was paid."

Things continued to improve over the years, and by 1915, it was evident a new building was needed. The present edifice was the result, dedicated on June 3, 1917. Considerable money was borrowed to complete the building and due to bank failures and hard times in the early 1920s, it was very difficult to make the necessary payments.

The congregation pulled together, and at great personal sacrifice, members raised the necessary funds, burning the mortgage in 1927.

At that time, church members made a pact never to go into debt for another building. Watts attributes this attitude to the hard work and generous giving that will now enable the congregation to build a nearly $1 million structure debt free.

"It's quite an exciting moment in the history of this church," Watts says. "Many people have been planning and dreaming for a long time about this."

Glenns Ferry council sets board

By LAURA BELLEGANTE
Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenns Ferry City Council approved a new board of directors for the Industrial Development Corporation of Glenns Ferry at its March meeting, among other business.

New members are City Council representatives: "Jesse" Fleming, Kevin King and Dora-Mae-Sellers, Mayor Dayle Mossler, and Janice Heath of Heath Industries. Robert Cunningham and Bob Janousek will serve the remainder of their unexpired terms.

The Industrial Development Corporation is responsible for the allocation and supervision of grant funds for industrial and economic development.

Robert Schamber requested that a check be issued from airport funds for paint to define landing and parking areas on the newly blacktopped runway. The funds will not exceed the balance of the state grant money plus the amount in the city fund for the airport.

He said that a request to Idaho Power for a grant to bring a power supply to the airport was not approved this year, but that the airport committee will continue to pursue the goal, and will request a state grant and material to add a beacon and runway lights at the airport.

City officials toured the Magic West potato processing plant recently with company managers to observe the new production process and the discharge of excess production water into the city sewer system. The use of this disposal method is undergoing a trial test to see what effect it will have on the increased capacity of the sewer system.

According to Messerley, the water is simply a cooling rinse at the end of processing and is clear enough to see through when it is pumped into the sewer. The test is expected to last for approximately four months, and results will then be reviewed by the City Council.

The City Council approved a building permit for Priceless Gas to construct a convenience store on the present site, with a variance of the required 15-foot setback on the alley side of the property to five feet, as requested by the builder. The building will be valued at $38,000 and is estimated to be completed by June 15, according to Don Kom, who presented the request.

The council opened and reviewed bids on a lawnmower, and awarded the bid to Koc Lumber of Hammett at a cost of $3,100.

A proclamation declaring March Developmental Disabilities Month was approved by the council at the request of the Idaho State Council on Developmental Disabilities.

Cocaine arrest made

The Times-News

JEROME — A 20-year-old Gooding man was arrested in Jerome Tuesday after allegedly attempting to sell more than a pound of cocaine — worth approximately $59,000 — to an undercover agent, officials said.

Augustine Tenore Ferrer was charged at his arraignment Tuesday with two counts of delivery of a controlled substance, court records show. Bail was set at $25,000.

Ferrer is being held in the Jerome County Jail.

Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall said Ferrer's arrest was the product of a cooperative effort between four law-enforcement agencies — the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics, the Jerome County Sheriff's Office, the Jerome City Police Department and the Gooding County Sheriff's Office.

Ferrer allegedly sold cocaine to an undercover agent employed by the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics on two separate occasions within the last 10 days, court records show. On March 16, Ferrer allegedly sold 9.7 grams of cocaine to the undercover agent for $500.

Five days later, on Monday, the Gooding man allegedly sold to the agent approximately 483 grams of cocaine, an amount slightly more than a pound. Hall estimated the street value of the cocaine, all of which was seized by police officers, at roughly $59,000.

Ferrer was arrested following the second transaction.

2 Valley seniors place 1st in debate finals

HAZELTON — Jeff McClain and Lee Stigle, two senior boys from Valley High School, placed first in the policy division, class B, of the state finals debate competition last weekend at the University of Idaho, Moscow.

"We beat Weber this year," Becky Rudolph, debate team advisor said, "and that's pretty good. We finished second to them last year and they've finished first for the last several years in a row so we feel pretty good about it."

McClain and Stigle won their first place honors over 28 other teams with a debate concerning human rights violations in Chile. Class B competition is between high schools with 800 or fewer students.

Facing 22 competitors, sophomore Kip Andrus placed third in the Lincoln-Douglas division of the debates.

Senior John Nye and sophomore Justin Kaserman also placed seventh in the policy debates.

The topic for the team policy debates remains the same throughout the debate season, which runs from November through the state finals in the spring. Participants in the Lincoln-Douglas debate, which is a one-on-one competition, contend with topics that change on a monthly basis. Rudolph said the team participates in competition at least once a month throughout the season.

Sheriff seeks dog shooter

TWIN FALLS — A German shepherd was killed with a shotgun Thursday while in the driveway of a private residence belonging to a Twin Falls veterinarian, law enforcement officials said.

Members of the Twin Falls Sheriff's Office said Friday they are seeking information concerning the shooting, which occurred shortly before dark at the home of Dr. Robert Monroe. The veterinarian's residence is located south of Twin Falls.

Anyone with information on the shooting is requested to contact the sheriff's office or Crime Stoppers, Chief Deputy Harold Jensen said.

Boise woman hurt in rollover accident

ROGERSON — A Boise woman was listed in stable condition Thursday after suffering leg injuries when the vehicle she was driving rolled over in a barrow pit five miles south of here, officials said.

Martha Brannan, 61, was taken to the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center following the accident Wednesday night, Idaho State Police said. Her husband, Donald, was a passenger in the car but was not injured. The husband and wife were both wearing their seatbelts, police said.

Brannan was driving a 1985 Oldsmobile on U.S. Highway 93 when the vehicle left the road at approximately 7:25 p.m. and went into a barrow pit.

BLM considers changes to Jarbidge management

BOISE (AP) — The U.S. Bureau of Land Management is amending the Jarbidge Resource Area's management plan.

BLM spokesman Barry Rose said the agency has determined that several improvements are needed to meet established land-use objectives for the resource area south of Twin Falls.

Rose said the BLM is assessing how many and what kind of range projects are required.

The BLM also is considering changing the designation of 27 miles of Salmon Falls Creek Canyon from an outstanding natural area to an area of critical environmental concern.

Valley SOS group plans scholarship

EDEN — The recent school carnival organized by the SOS, a community help group for the Valley School District, raised about $130, said SOS President Janet Bingham said at the March School Board meeting.

Those profits, she said, would go mostly to the networking system for the high-school computers. Any remaining money would be spent on the district's audio-visual equipment and library.

She said the SOS would establish a scholarship to be granted on a yearly basis to students going into some form of education who may not have the opportunity to receive other scholarship monies.

In other Valley School news, Superintendent Arlyn Bodily said the district had received one bid of around $6,200 for the inspection required by the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Act.

Bail set in lewd conduct case

TWIN FALLS — Bail was set Thursday at $50,000 for a 39-year-old Twin Falls man arrested Wednesday on a felony charge of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 years old, police said.

Hettenback was arrested shortly before 5 p.m. Wednesday, police records show. Hettenback allegedly engaged in the acts leading to the arrest between September 1983 and November 1987.

Hettenback was appointed a public defender at his arraignment Thursday afternoon.

Burley

The council and city department heads attending the meeting were concerned about the stand meeting fire codes and health department standards. Hunt agreed to check with those department heads to determine what the requirements would be on the temporary structure.

The council decided to allow the operation of a concession stand at the park for one year if codes can be met. The one-year period would be long enough to determine whether such a stand could make money and to see how the public will respond.

The council also discussed two requests to put in handicapped parking spaces.

The Cassia County School District asked to put in 40 feet of handicapped parking on the north side of Dvorshack School in front of the regular bus loading zone. The handicapped bus has a wheelchair loader, and takes longer to load and unload, causing congestion in the bus loading zone. The request was approved by the council.

Another request was received from the Presbyterian Church to put in a handicapped parking space marked "Sunday only" on the west side of the church in the alley. It was noted that less than a year ago the church received permission to put in a handicapped parking space in another spot, but this was never done.

There was concern that a parking space in the alley would block the alley, and confusion about why the church has changed its mind about the location of its handicapped parking. The council voted to ask representatives from the church to come to the council and clarify the request before making a decision.

In other business:

- The council discussed raising fees for low pressure irrigation. While the council agreed fees should be increased, the amount of the raise was not settled.
- The council discussed the low pressure system should stand by itself and be paid for by the low pressure users. Handy said. He added that the high pressure system should not subsidize the low pressure system.
- The Utilities Committee will research the matter and present a recommendation for the fee change at the next meeting.

• Fire Chief Russell Vaughn asked the council to allow open burning in the city limits in conjunction with the sanitation department's annual clean-up days.

City Attorney Bill Parsons said that since Burley does have an ordinance which prohibits open burning, it would have to be amended to allow for open burning during the designated time. Since the law could not be changed in time for the scheduled clean-up days, Vaughn suggested that the city could research this and plan to do it next year.

Vaughn said that by allowing open burning in the spring, the city would save money in hauling off weeds and there would be fewer fires later in the summer.

- Mayor Ken Frunk noted that the grant for installation of a recreational vehicle dump at the fairgrounds has been approved, and work should begin by the first week in April.
- The council accepted a bid for replacement of a sanitation truck. The bid for the complete unit was $73,852 and was awarded to H & K Truck and Equipment of Salt Lake City.

The congregation has also been doing a great deal more than "planning and dreaming."

In 1983, members purchased eight acres on the corner of 27th Street and Alder in Burley, property that had been used as a horse pasture for many years.

They immediately went to work farming the land, with the proceeds going into the building fund. Watts says one year they realized "around $10,000" from their potato crop. The labor to run the "farm" is donated by farmers in the church, as well as the seed, fertilizer and water.

Since the 1920s, the church has sponsored food booths at the Cassia County Fair, another project which has involved great amounts of time and labor, but has also poured large amounts into the building fund.

Designed by project architect Randy Haverfield, the new structure will have 13,000 square feet on the main level, plus 5,500 in the basement. It will have an elevator to provide handicapped access to both levels, and is designed for energy efficiency.

Some items from the current sanctuary will be incorporated in the new one, including the stained-glass windows. They have been incorporated into the interior of the new building, just inside a large lobby area.

The pipe organ, which was purchased in 1947, will also be re-installed in the new building.

The 350-member congregation hopes to be in the new building sometime next winter. Watts says, "The architects told us, 'Thanksgiving would be a possibility, but realistically, I think we're looking at the first of the year.'"

The ground breaking will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

"Our main goal is to keep a person in the least restrictive mode of life to try to keep them out of nursing homes," Munkres said.

Felton said she hopes the program will help with ever-growing indigent costs in Twin Falls County.

She points to a recent indigent case, where a woman who asked for help on hospital bills gave away all of her money, totaling $20,000, a month before applying for assistance.

Munkres said the program, which is going with the formation of a task force in 1985, ledged the implementation of the full-fledged program because of legislative changes during the 1987 session.

"For about a year, we kind of lay in limbo," Munkres said. "During that time there was some problems with the way the legislation was written up."

In March 1987, the board members had their first meeting and have been writing bylaws and taking care of other details. They approached the commissioners in February, and the county passed a resolution forming the board.

Only two other guardian programs exist in Idaho, one in northern Idaho and one in the Boise area. Both were drawn up before the 1987 legislative changes, which took sponsorship of the guardian programs away from the judicial branch and put it under county commissions.

The commissioners had to undergo a criminal background check before being approved, Felton said.

And Munkres said all volunteer guardians, which the board is now recruiting, will have to undergo the same check.

chased in 1947, will also be re-installed in the new building.

The 350-member congregation hopes to be in the new building sometime next winter. Watts says, "The architects told us, 'Thanksgiving would be a possibility, but realistically, I think we're looking at the first of the year.'"

The ground breaking will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Will protest steps on religious liberties

Moderate Baptists hold annual meeting

MACON, Ga. (AP) — A group of moderate Baptists do not intend to form a new denomination, but will protest whenever the fundamentalist-dominated Southern Baptist Convention steps on religious liberties, says a leader of the Southern Baptist Alliance.

"If the ultimate purpose of the Southern Baptist Alliance is to become a new denomination, then I'm not interested," said the Rev. Jim Strickland, a Cartersville pastor who addressed the group's second annual meeting Tuesday in Macon.

"Our hope as members of the Southern Baptist Alliance is that we can articulate Baptist philosophy — not necessarily current Southern Baptist philosophy — about religious liberty. We want to call Baptists who think religious freedom is important back to that heritage," Strickland said.

The alliance was formed in February 1987 in North Carolina in reaction to fundamentalist actions in the Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Fundamentalists maintain that the Bible is without error in historical, scientific and religious areas. Moderates hold there is room for interpretation.

As they have solidified their control of the denomination, fundamentalists have removed moderates from leadership positions, including the president of Southeastern Baptist Seminary at Wake Forest University. An employee at the denomination's agencies said he was fired because, he said, he believed Jews could go to heaven.

The Southern Baptist Alliance now includes 34 churches with more than 20,000 members, plus about 2,500 members whose churches do not belong to the alliance. There are about 14.5 million Southern Baptists.

"We hope that the Baptists are going to see the importance of what we're trying to do," Strickland said last week in a telephone interview from Cartersville. He is pastor of Heritage Baptist Church, formed less than a year ago partly because of fundamentalist control of the First Baptist Church of Cartersville.

"We are Southern Baptists, but we intend to hold-up that flag of religious liberty, and we're going to yell 'ouch' every time they step on that principle, and we're going to keep on yelling," he said.

The alliance's meeting, called a convocation, began Monday night at Mercer University in Macon.

The meeting also will elect a new chairman to succeed the Rev. W.

Henry Crouch, pastor at Providence Baptist Church in Charlotte, N.C.

Mercer, supported by the Georgia Baptist Convention, was itself the center of controversy last year when fundamentalists mounted a campaign to gain control of the school, citing its listing as a "party school" by Playboy magazine and writings by President R. Kirby Godsey.

Easter sunrise service set for 7:15 at the falls

TWIN FALLS — The annual sunrise service at Shoshone Falls, conducted by the United Methodist Men of Twin Falls, will be at 7:15 a.m. MDT on Easter Sunday.

Rev. Bruce McConnell, director of the United Methodist Small Church/Rural Life Center at Filer, will bring the message for the service. Scripture and hymns will also be included in the order of worship for the event.

The service is open to anyone wishing to attend, said Gerry Brown, vice president and program chairman for the sponsoring group from the Twin Falls First United Methodist Church.

A bus will leave for the service from the church at Fourth Avenue East and Shoshone Street East at 7 a.m., Brown said.

Israeli soldiers open fire on mob, storm mosque, wound 13

Arabs demonstrate on Islam's 3rd holiest site

TARQUMIA, Occupied West-Bank (AP) — Soldiers opened fire Friday when a mob attacked a school they had occupied, killing two Arabs and others...

Witnesses and Israeli road said 13 Palestinians were wounded at the school in Tarqumia, which was being converted into a temporary army headquarters...

About 30 soldiers stormed the mosque, yanked down the flags and lined up dozens of teenagers against a wall. The army said 50 were arrested.

More than 4,000 Palestinians have been detained since Dec. 8 and 3,000 remain in jail. Previous roundups have focused on rioters, but the current effort is against alleged leaders of what Palestinians call "the uprising."

In Washington, Secretary of State George P. Shultz arranged to meet with two members of the Palestine National Council, the legislative branch of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

He will discuss our approach to the Middle East peace process" on Saturday with Edward Said and Ibrahim Abu-Lughod, said State Department spokesman Phyllis Oakley, stressing that both are U.S. citizens.

"There is no change in U.S. policy on negotiating with or recognizing the PLO," she said, but Avi Pazzner, a spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, said the meeting would violate a U.S. commitment not to talk to the PLO.

As part of its campaign to take leaders of the Palestinian rebellion out of circulation, the army arrested a prominent Gaza lawyer Friday under special powers that allow detention for up to six months without trial.

Israeli road quoted a military source, not identified, as saying the army had evidence that Raji Sourani was linked to the underground leadership. The army would not comment.

More than 4,000 Palestinians have been detained since Dec. 8 and 3,000 remain in jail. Previous roundups have focused on rioters, but the current effort is against alleged leaders of what Palestinians call "the uprising."

Soldiers entered Tarqumia, a village of 9,000 people, about 4 a.m. and took over the school, throwing all the desks out of the classroom, then about 500 youths marched out to the school and started throwing rocks and broken bottles," said Naim Odeh, a 62-year-old teacher.

He said soldiers responded with gunfire during a confrontation lasting several hours, and two young men were killed about 7:30 a.m.

The army has taken over several schools and uses half a dozen as temporary detention centers, according to Arab reporters and Palestinians who have been held at the schools.

Associated Press reporters saw hundreds of rocks and broken bottles in the yard of the Gazafat Boy's Preparatory School in Tarqumia. Roads leading to it were blocked by barricades made of large boulders, a felled pine tree and garbage.

Officials of Alia Hospital in Hebron said Khaled Hassan Ahmed Murkutan, 18, died of a gunshot wound in the stomach and Walid Abdul Fattaha, 18, was shot in the heart. Family members took the bodies away and the army said it could not confirm the deaths.

About 200 villagers accompanied the bodies to the cemetery, waving a large Palestinian flag and shaking their fists.

"We will all join you, our martyrs. Our spirits and our lives are in your hands," they chanted, gathering around a freshly dug grave.

Several clashes were reported in Hebron.

Sandinistas, Contras each claim military ascendancy

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leftist Sandinista government and the Contra rebels each claimed on Friday that its own military pressure helped force the other to yield to a cease-fire plan.

The Sandinistas, in their newspaper Barricada, called on citizens to prepare for ideological warfare to defend the ruling party against the Contras. The Contras hinted that if peaceful measures don't bring about democratic reforms, they are prepared to take up arms again.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said there were no reports of combat on Friday, five days after the two sides agreed to suspend offensive operations.

The temporary truce began at the start of three days of talks that ended with the signing of the plan Wednesday night. Under the pact, guns will remain silent until June 1, when a permanent cease-fire is to take effect. In addition to its regular edition, Barricada distributed a special four-page edition Friday praising the pact that outlines steps to end the war, which has lasted more than six years.

Barricada's regular edition said that with the agreement, the war will take on a new phase.

"On an internal political level, this means the incorporation of pressure groups, that even though disarmed, continue to be armed ideologically against the popular power and its conquests," it said in an editorial.

"This implies that while the war-like battles lessen or stop, the fight enters a new phase of political-ideological battles."

"The people should be ready for the new step to reach total peace, the continuation and the strengthening of the revolution and the power of the Sandinistas," it added.

It ran a front-page caricature of President Reagan dressed as a magician and reaching into an empty high-top hat. The magician's rabbit, with the word "Sapao" written on its chest, sat on Reagan's head.

Jorge Rosales, a Contra spokesman in Miami, said the Sandinistas signed the cease-fire agreement "because of the pressure — military and political — put on them by (the Nicaraguan) Resistance," as the rebels are formally known.

But Rosales indicated that if democracy is not reached with the cease-fire agreement that the Contras would renew their armed fight.

"If we can't do it peacefully, if the Sandinistas do not want to achieve democracy, then the reasons Nicaraguans took up arms will still be there," he said.

Iran, Iraq battle in oil fields

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iranian and Iraqi soldiers fought in the Kurdistan mountains Friday for control of a strategic area east of the Kirkuk oil fields, which produce more than half the oil that finances Iraq's war effort.

Each side claimed to have shot down four of the other's warplanes during the battle on the northern front.

Iran said its Revolutionary Guards killed or wounded 500 Iraqis in heavy fighting east of Sayyid Sadiq. Both sides used warplanes and helicopter gunships in the battle.

"In the Persian Gulf, Iraq claimed its warplanes scored accurate and effective hits" on two tankers off Iran during the night. There was no immediate confirmation from mar-

Kurdish rebels suffer Iraqi gas attacks

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A Kurdish rebel leader on Friday appealed for urgent medical aid for Kurdish villagers affected by Iraqi poison gas attacks in recent days.

"The situation is getting desperate as we do not have any facilities to cope," said a statement issued by the office of Massud Barzani's Kurdish Democratic Party in London and telephoned to The Associated Press in Nicosia.

The statement said at least 50 Kurdish villagers were killed in the latest chemical weapons attack Thursday when Iraqi planes bombed the villages of Sevo and Senan in the Darbandikhan district of northeastern Iraq. Scores more were wounded, the statement added.

Armenians dissolve activist group

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Armenia's government ordered the dissolution Friday of a committee agitating for annexation of a region in neighboring Azerbaijan. Soldiers and helicopters patrolled tense Yerevan, the capital, in case of trouble.

The Kremlin declared this week that the campaign for annexation of the Nagorno-Karabakh region was "intolerable."

Public protests had been called for Saturday in Yerevan, but radio broadcasts in Armenia and Azerbaijan warned citizens of both Caucasus republics Friday against illegal demonstrations.

The broadcasts announced new regulations requiring permits 10 days in advance of all public gatherings.

Hovik Vassilian, an Armenian activist, was arrested Thursday night. He said they did not know the charges, but Arkiyan had provided information about the protests to foreign reporters in Moscow.

An Armenian Communist Party newspaper, reaching Moscow on Friday, said the republic "remains tense and explosive."

Iran, Hamadan and Shushahr in western Iran.

Towns and cities on both sides of the frontier have been battered regularly since the war began in September 1980.

American faces Spanish drug trial

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — They're serving beef stew in Gallery One of the Model Prison, so Conan Owen knows it's Thursday once again.

Owen, a 23-year-old free-lance photographer from Annandale, Va., has been marking off the days in his stark white cell for more than a year, ever since a Spanish Civil Guard found more than four pounds of cocaine in a suitcase registered in his name.

"I don't belong in here because I'm innocent, and if it were the United States, I would have been out a long time ago," Owen said in an interview in this 85-year-old prison in the heart of downtown Barcelona.

Owen, whose case has drawn the attention of Attorney General Edwin Meese III, is to stand trial Saturday before a three-judge panel. The prosecution is asking for a 10-year sentence.

Kansas State ousts Purdue in Midwest play

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Mitch Richmond scored 27 points and Kansas State wiped out a nine-point deficit with a 12-1 run to start the second half and the 20th-ranked Wildcats upset third-ranked and top-seeded Purdue 73-70 Friday night in the semifinals of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Kansas State, the fourth seed in the region, went on a 12-3 run to take its largest lead of the game. Richmond had eight of the points, including two 3-pointers.

Kansas State, 25-8; will meet fellow Big Eight Conference member Kansas, 24-11, in Sunday's regional championship game with the winner advancing to the Final Four next weekend in Kansas City, Mo. Kansas defeated Vanderbilt 77-64 earlier Friday night.

Kansas State sealed the victory with four free throws in the final 27 seconds. The game was tied 54-54 when Purdue, however, answered a 1-2 lead to get within 68-64 with 3:32 left on two free throws by Melvin McCants.

Purdue started the game with a 10-0 streak as Stephens hit two 3-pointers. Kansas State Coach Lon Krueger was forced to call a timeout just 2:01 into the game and the Wildcats responded by scoring the next five points to take a 13-11 lead.

Kansas State got within one point

1:29 to play. The Wildcats then made four of six free throws as Purdue could only muster another 3-pointer by Stephens while committing two turnovers, one with no pressure from the defense.

Will Scott added 17 points for Kansas State, all but two on 3-point field goals. Stephens led the Boilermakers with 20 points while Troy Lewis had 19 and McCants and Todd Mitchell had 13 each.

Purdue started the game with a 10-0 streak as Stephens hit two 3-pointers. Kansas State Coach Lon Krueger was forced to call a timeout just 2:01 into the game and the Wildcats responded by scoring the next five points to take a 13-11 lead.

Kansas State got within one point in the first half, the second time 24-23 with 9:30 left on a drive by Fred McCoy.

Purdue opened the lead to 10 again at 42-32 on a dunk by Mitchell with 1:36 left, and after a baseline drive by Richmond and a "one free throw by Lewis, the Boilermakers had their nine-point halftime advantage.

It was the second meeting of the season between the schools. Purdue beat the Wildcats in West Lafayette, Ind., 101-72 in late December.

Two-time All-American Danny Manning scored 25 of his 38 points in the first half for Kansas, which charged into a 19-4 lead and beat Vanderbilt.

Manning, who began the game with a 24.4-point scoring average, got the game's first basket, a 3-pointer, and outscored the entire Vanderbilt team 21-20 in the first 17 minutes, making 12 of 17 first-half shots.

The Jayhawks, who never trailed, led 41-29 at halftime and by nine to 17 points the rest of the way.

Manning point total was one below his season high and four under his career high. Kevin Pritchard with 11 points was the only other player in double figures for Kansas, making its third consecutive appearance in the round of 16.

Vanderbilt, 20-11 and playing in its first NCAA Tournament in 14 years, was paced by Barry Booker with 22 points and Will Perdue with 16.

Kansas led 7-4 when Manning began a 12-0 run with a 14-foot jumper from the right baseline 4:24 into the game. Pritchard sank a layup and Manning followed with a 10-footer from the left baseline.

Pritchard's baseline jumper, Manning's fastbreak layup and two free throws by Mike Maddox built the lead to 19-4 with 10:45 left in the half. At that point, Vanderbilt had two field goals and four traveling violations.

While the Commodores were helpless to stop Kansas' star center, Vanderbilt's 7-foot Perdue, a third-team All-American, managed just eight points and two rebounds in the first half. The 6-10 Manning guarded him for some of the half, although Kansas also used a zone defense.

Arizona wallops Hawkeyes

SEATTLE (AP) — All-American Sean Elliott scored 25 points and second-ranked Arizona opened the second half with a 24-9 run and rolled to a 89-69 victory over No. 17 Iowa on Friday night in the semifinals of the NCAA West Regional.

Arizona, 34-2, will play No. 7 North Carolina in the regional championship on Sunday. North Carolina advanced with a 76-69 victory over No. 10 Michigan in the first half of Friday night's doubleheader before a crowd of 23,229 in the Kingdom.

Elliott, a 6-foot-8 junior, had 17 points in the second half as the Wildcats posted their third straight NCAA rout and moved within one victory of the school's first appearance in the Final Four.

Arizona stretched its lead to 62-43 with 13:24 remaining thanks to a 9-0 run and Elliott's slam dunk on a pass from Kerr capped a 6-0 burst that made it 68-46 with 11:54 to play. The Wildcats enjoyed their biggest lead at 74-48 on Kerr's 3-point shot at the 9:47 mark.

Seventh-ranked North Carolina used strong inside play by Scott

Williams and J.R. Reid to pull away from No. 10 Michigan in the opener.

Gary Grant, Michigan's All-American guard, sat out 10 minutes of the game because of foul trouble and was on the bench when North Carolina took control in the second half. He finished with seven points.

Sophomore guard Rumeal Robinson scored 29 for the Wolverines, 10 more than his previous high in this his first season of collegiate play.

The Tar Heels led 31-30 at halftime even though they hit only 32 percent from the field.

Michigan, 26-8, led 39-36 with 16:41 to play but North Carolina went on a 14-2 run to pull ahead 50-41 on Steve Bucknall's 3-pointer with 12:58 to go.

The Wolverines rallied to within one point with 9:26 to play and were behind by just 59-57 with 8:51 to go. But the Tar Heels scored the next seven points to boost the lead back to nine and set the stage for a final Michigan charge.

Robinson made one of two free throws with 1:12 to go to slice the Carolina lead to 72-68. North Carolina's King Rice missed the first of a one-and-one with 48 seconds to go but Reid tipped the ball in to increase the lead to six.

Ole Rice added 18 points for Michigan and Terry Mills scored 12, all in the second half. Williams and Reid were the only scorers in double figures for North Carolina.

Arizona, 34-2, will play No. 7 North Carolina in the regional championship on Sunday. North Carolina advanced with a 76-69 victory over No. 10 Michigan in the first half of Friday night's doubleheader before a crowd of 23,229 in the Kingdom.

Anthony Cook added 16 points for Arizona while Steve Kerr and Tom Tolbert each had 17. Arizona, led by former Iowa Coach Lute Olson, defeated the Hawkeyes 66-59 in Iowa City in December.

In its first two tournament games Arizona whipped Cornell 90-50 and Seton Hall 84-55.

E.J. Armstrong led Iowa with 27 points. Roy Marble scored 14, Bill Jones 14 and Jeff Moe 11. Iowa finished 24-10.

Arizona's second-half spurt gave the Wildcats a 62-43 lead with under 14 minutes left and enabled them to regain control of the game after an 11-2 Iowa run in the final two minutes of the first half pulled the Hawkeyes within 38-34.

Craig McMillan started Arizona's charge by sinking two free throws after Iowa's Kent Hill was called for an intentional foul, then drilled a 3-pointer to make it 43-34 with 19:03 left.

The first of Kerr's four second-half 3-pointers increased the lead to 46-36 with 18:04 to go and Kerr made another at the 16:03 mark to make it 53-40. Ed Horton's rebound shot and Jones' free throw brought Iowa to 53-43 but the Hawkeyes were never that close again.

Arizona stretched its lead to 62-43 with 13:24 remaining thanks to a 9-0 run and Elliott's slam dunk on a pass from Kerr capped a 6-0 burst that made it 68-46 with 11:54 to play. The Wildcats enjoyed their biggest lead at 74-48 on Kerr's 3-point shot at the 9:47 mark.

Indians won't honor fish closure

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The closure of the Clearwater River to sport fishing will not guarantee enough eggs to Duerksen Hatchery, department and legal advisors to the Fish and Game Commission say.

The commission called an emergency telephone conference Thursday to discuss closure of the river downstream from the hatchery.

A spokesman for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service told Idaho Department representatives on Thursday that his "gut feeling" was the hatchery would get enough or nearly enough fish.

But the department estimates the hatchery return will come up short. A shortfall of 250 fish, for example, means a potential shortage of 1.12 million juvenile steelhead, the department said.

Nez Perce tribal representatives have said they will not honor the closure, according to a department news release.

Lewisohn commissioner Keith Carlson said sport fishermen are upset because non-Indian angling was curtailed at midnight Thursday.

"These fishermen want to know why they must bear the brunt of the conservation effort," he said.

The commission has urged the Nez Perce tribe to forego fishing until sufficient steelhead are in the hatchery.

Indian harvest is established by treaty rights, legal decisions and agreements with government agencies. The Idaho Fish and Game Commission does not have the authority to force a conservation closure on the tribe.

Colorado State humbles Arkansas State in NIT

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Pat Durham scored 26 points and Colorado State used a relentless half-court pressure defense to subdue Arkansas State 64-49 Friday night in the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

CSU, which hasn't appeared in the postseason since 1969, now advances to the NIT Final Four in New York City on Tuesday.

The Rams, 21-12, scored nine straight points midway through the second half to open up a 45-27 lead with 10:35 left. David Turcotte started the run with a 3-point basket, Durham scored on an alley-oop pass, Trent Shippen drove for another basket and Durham moved inside for the caper.

Moments later, Durham's two free throws gave CSU its biggest lead of the game at 48-29.

Three-pointers by Arkansas State's Rhon Johnson and Ed Loudin helped reduce the deficit to seven points, but CSU made eight straight free throws — six by Durham — in the final 70 seconds.

Shippen had 14 points and Tyrotte 13 for the winners.

Jay Burson scored 20 points and Ohio State survived a second-half New Mexico rally with a free-throw-shooting clinic for a 68-65 victory Friday night in the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

Ohio State, 19-12, will advance to the next week's semifinals in Madison Square Garden, New Mexico, losing at home for only the second time this season, finished 22-14.

The Buckeyes made only two field goals in the final 14 minutes, but pulled off the victory with a 13-of-16 shooting effort at the time.

Connecticut 72, Commonwealth 61

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Phil Gamble scored seven of his 18 points on free throws in the final six minutes, and Cliff Robinson added 17 points as Connecticut beat Virginia Commonwealth 72-61 Friday night in the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Huskies, 18-14, broke out of a 51-51 tie by outscoring the Rams 21-10 over final 6:53. Gamble made six foul shots and Jeff King, who finished with 14 points, also added six during a 14-5 run as UConn moved into the semifinals for the first time in seven tournament appearances.

Twin Falls romps into triangular track win

IDAHO FALLS — The Twin Falls boys and girls track teams had little trouble sweeping a triangular Gem State Conference competition in windblown Idaho Falls Friday afternoon.

The boys, getting double wins in the sprints from Ron Marsh and distances from Jeff Doods, won more decisively than the girls because of Skywalker's depth.

The Brun quality points held up well as the distance triumvirate of Jennifer Hannah, Holly Peckinpaw and Dana Robertson, mined the 800, 1600 and 3200-meter runs for big points. Lisa Pocock claimed both hurdles and Molly Wallace stayed No. 1 in the quarter.

Boys' team scoring — 1 Twin Falls 53, 2 Blackfoot 53, 3 Shoshone 46.

Dow drop ends rough week

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices tumbled for the second straight session Friday, closing out the market's worst week so far in 1988.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial fell 44.92 points to 1,978.95, finishing the week with a net loss of 103.42.

That marked the average's biggest weekly decline since it dropped 143.74 points last Nov. 30-Dec. 4.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 9 to 1 in the daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange, with 385 up, 1,156 down and 428 unchanged.

Big Board volume came to 163.17 million shares, against 184.91 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index lost 2.42 to 146.58.

After tumbling Thursday in foreign exchange, the dollar showed signs of steadying Friday. Interest rates,

It rose 47.58 on Feb. 10; rose 48.41 on Feb. 29; fell 48.24 on March 10, and then suffered back-to-back losses of 43.77 and 44.92 Thursday and Friday of this week.

Point-pur losers among the blue-chip Friday included International Business Machines, down 2 1/2% at 107; General Electric, down 1 1/2% at 40 1/2; Exxon, down 1 1/2% at 41 1/2; Merck, down 2 1/2% at 16 1/2; and International Paper, down 1 1/2% at 41 1/2.

But the only stocks attracting any buying interest were issues involved in takeover news and speculation.

Gillette jumped 2 1/2% to 46 1/2 amid widespread but unconfirmed rumors that Philip Morris was reading a bid for the company. Philip Morris shares fell 3/8 to 88 1/2.

Sabine Corp., which agreed to be acquired by Pacific Enterprises for $24 a share, gained 3 1/2% to 27 1/2.

Avon Products, rumored as a possible buyout candidate, picked up 2% to 26 1/2.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market lost $35.61 billion, or 1.52 percent, in value.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 189.25 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial, fell 5.78 to 299.53, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 4.84 to 258.51.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market dropped 3.08 to 372.54. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 294.64, down 2.66.

Boisean new trade envoy

BOISE (AP) — A Boise educator and trade consultant has been appointed special state trade envoy to the People's Republic of China.

Gov. Cecil Andrus announced the appointment of Linda Clark on Thursday. "I have every confidence that her extensive experience in China will result in long-term commercial and trade gains for Idaho," he said.

Ms. Clark, who holds a doctorate and is principal of a Boise elementary school, has traveled widely in China and will visit there next week.

"She said Andrus and others involved in world trade have stated repeatedly that the nations on the Pacific Rim hold vast potential for trade with Idaho."

Because of the way business is conducted in the Far East, she said it is important that Idaho companies establish business connections on a personal basis.

Ms. Clark has served as a consultant to the China Association for Science and Technology, and the China Association for International Exchange and Personnel. She led two delegations to China in 1987 and 1988.

She also will serve as a panelist for the First Joint American-Chinese Session on Trade, Industry and Economic Development in June in Beijing. She was appointed to that post by U.S. Commerce Secretary William Verity.

She is a partner in Communication International, a management consulting firm specializing in the Pacific Rim.

Stock exchange plan ready

BOISE (AP) — Boise Cascade Corp. will exchange its preferred stock issue for a subordinated debenture issue.

The Boise-based wood products manufacturer said it will exchange $5.50 series C convertible exchangeable preferred stock for 7 percent convertible subordinated debentures due in 2016.

Investors will not lose financial in the deal, a spokesman said, but the company will gain a tax advantage.

Preferred stock shareholders will receive a $50 debenture for each share when the exchange is made on May 1.

At the same time, the final dividend of 87 1/2 cents a share will be paid to preferred stock holders of record last March 15.

UP calls back 250 workers

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The Union Pacific Railroad will recall another 250 workers to repair boxcars and locomotives at shops in at least five states, including Nebraska.

Twenty workers will be recalled at the shop in North Platte, and other workers will be called back in Fort-Worth, Texas; Pocatello, Idaho; DeSoto, Mo., and Little Rock, Ark., as well as various other locations, said John Bromley, a railroad spokesman.

The recalled workers are in addition to about 230 laid-off employees the railroad said it began recalling late last year.

The Omaha-based railroad said it plans to spend more than $33 million to repair and lease locomotives and railcars to handle record levels of grain and other freight traffic.

Savings firm pays dividend

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The directors of First Federal Savings and Loan of Coeur d'Alene have declared a 9-cent-per-share quarterly cash dividend.

The dividend is to be paid May 16 to shareholders of record May 2.

Jon W. Hippler, president, said the board of directors elected to pay a cash dividend based on estimated fourth-quarter earnings, which he said would be announced soon.

Warhol label on wine bottle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The wine in the $3,200 bottle was an acclaimed 1984 merlot, but there was something even rarer about the Cuvaision magnum that Texas Steven Schwartz bought at a recent Dallas charity auction.

The grape art label on the Napa Valley wine was believed to be the first work designed for wine by the pop art pioneer Andy Warhol, who died last year in New York at age 68.

Washington props up dollar in foreign markets

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The United States, anxious about the latest slide in the value of the dollar, intervened in the foreign exchange markets Friday to prop up the U.S. currency.

The first time since early last January that it has done so.

Government officials refused as usual to comment on the action, but currency traders said it was carried out in an unusually visible way, intended to send a signal that Washington was concerned about the dollar slide.

"You go — the feeling that you couldn't make a move on the dollar without the Fed (the Federal Reserve Board, which conducts intervention operations for the Treasury) coming in behind," one trader said.

Analysts said the Bank of Japan also intervened to brake the rise of the yen.

The re-entry of the United States into the currency markets was taken as a signal that Washington is getting worried that the slide might continue too far.

Regan administration officials have a further decline in the value of the dollar would hurt American allies by crimping their exports too sharply.

They also fear that renewed volatility in the markets would discourage business from needed investment to expand production capacity.

The dollar's slump in recent days has been contributing to a slump in stock prices. On Friday, partly in reaction to the continued slide of the dollar, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 44.92 points to 1,978.95.

Finance ministers of the United States and other major industrial nations agreed last December on new limits and procedures for keeping their currency values in line. Until recently, however, the dollar was relatively stable and no intervention was necessary.

Time for tough choices regarding IRAs

The moment of truth is approaching: Should you put money into an individual retirement account (IRA), even if you can't deduct the amount from your taxable income?

If you haven't acted already, you have only three weeks to decide.

You should invest via an IRA if it's deductible and if you're sure you'll need the money for at least 10 to 15 years. You won't be hit with a 10-percent penalty if you withdraw before age 59 1/2, unless you're disabled or you withdraw the money in regular payments in accordance with your life expectancy — in other words, as an annuity. But after 10 to 15 years, even with a penalty, you may come out with a profit.

An estimated 80 percent of American households are still eligible to deduct at least part of their IRA contributions. But if your IRA contribution isn't deductible, you have a tough decision to make.

Some other options: Municipal bonds. You may want to consider a mutual fund of municipal bonds so you can readily reinvest your interest. Like the appreciation of your assets in an IRA, the interest on most munis isn't taxable. But unlike an IRA, the interest you receive from a muni bond fund will always escape federal taxation, even when you withdraw your money. (Exception: You'll be taxed on your muni bonds if you have capital gains.)

Benefits: if you decide you need money, you can pull out from a muni fund at any time, without paying a penalty. Also, you can put more than $2,000 annually into a muni bond fund. And you won't have the paperwork that accompanies a non-deductible IRA, such as having to file the new Form 8606.

Considerations: You probably can get a higher yield by putting other investments into an IRA, like a corporate bond fund, a long-term certificate of deposit, and (if you choose wisely) and hold on to them for a long time, common stocks or a stock mutual fund.

Also, an IRA is more flexible. If you put your IRA into a mutual fund from a large family of funds, you can switch from one to another, say from corporate bonds to money-market funds. You can take risks now by investing in stocks and, when approaching retirement, move into more conservative investments, like short-term bonds or money-market funds.

Annuitants and insurance-based investments. Your contributions won't be limited to only $2,000 a year. And with life insurance, you can withdraw your money without penalty before age 59 1/2 — and even borrow on your investment, which you can't do with an IRA. But be warned: A bill in the House would tax loans from insurance policies made after Oct. 7, 1987. With an annuity, you'll also face a 10-percent penalty if you withdraw your money before age 59 1/2.

Some annuities and insurance-based investments — called "variable" — offer a degree of flexibility. You can switch back and forth between say, stocks, bonds and money market funds. But switching usually isn't as easy as it is with an IRA in a family of funds, and your choices may be limited. Commission costs and other expenses may eat into your profits.

Company pension plans. For 1988, you can salt away $7,313 into a salary-deferral or 401-K plan, up from $7,000 in 1987. Your employer may contribute, too. Many match 20 percent of your contribution. You'll usually have a basic menu of choices: bonds, stocks, money-market funds.

With a 401-K plan, you may be able to borrow some of your money for "financial hardship." And there's no penalty if you borrow to pay medical expenses that qualify as tax-deductible. Your contribution is deducted from your taxable income (though you'll pay Social Security taxes on the money).

Bottom line: Your own circumstances will determine your choice.

But if you have a typical 401-K plan where you work, or another deductible pension or profit-sharing plan, and you're not salting away the maximum you can afford, don't waste a moment considering a non-deductible IRA. Instead, fund your company retirement plan to the maximum. Comparing a non-deductible IRA with a deductible retirement plan is like comparing brass with gold.
