Hijackers take Kuwaiti plane, fly to Algiers

ALGIERS, Algeria — A hijacked Kuwaiti jumbo jet carrying at least 30 hostages flew from Cyprus to Algeria on Wednesday, but the gunmen denied they would give up the plane.

The aircraft touched down at 3:07 a.m. local time (8:07 p.m. MDT Tuesday).

The Boeing 747 left Larnaca, Cyprus after the Shiite Muslim gunmen freed 12 more passengers in what they called a gesture of goodwill. The hijackers have killed two passengers during the grim nine-day odyssey.

Akis Fantis, a spokesman for the Cyprus government, told reporters "sources in Algiers" gave assurances that the gunmen would give up the hostages and plane there, but one of the hijackers denied it.

He said by radio just before takeoff: "We deny what has been reported by radios and by the media that we are ready to hand the plane to anyone. We refuse to do that, until 'martyrdom.' He did not mention the hostages.

Police surrounded the brightly lit VIP lounge at Algiers' Houari Boumediene airport. Squads of motorcycle police, normally used as escorts, stood by along with ambulances, fire trucks and police cars.

Algerian Interior Minister El-Hadi Khediri and Information Minister Bachir Rouis were at the airport. Three members of the permanent Palestine Liberation Organization mission in Algiers entered the VIP lounge, then were spirited into a guarded side room.

Officials, speaking on condition they not be named, said rooms were being prepared at the Aurassi Hotel, overlooking the city center, for hostages. The officials stressed, however, that this was no guarantee they would be used.

On Tuesday, the gunmen said they

Senators say surplus money screens deficit

WASHINGTON — The fiscal 1989 budget hides the true size of the federal deficit because it factors in huge surpluses from the Social Security system and other programs, senators said Tuesday while considering the $1.1 trillion spending plan.

By an 85-8 vote, the Senate gave preliminary approval to an amendment to the budget urging the lawmakers to discount the surpluses amassed by two funds set aside for highway and aviation projects when calculating the federal deficit.

The two funds have a combined projected surplus of $2 billion for next year.

The Senate budget blueprint officially predicts the deficit problem is easing.

But under an amendment offered by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the budget committee, the mammoth surplus the Social Security program accumulates each year would no longer be counted when figuring the federal deficit. That amendment could be voted on as early as Wednesday.

"The deficit is heading up, not down," said Chiles.

The Senate budget, which Chiles helped write, predicts the red ink will shrink to $185 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, a drop of more than $10 billion from the amount anticipated in the current fiscal year.

However, that counts a $46 billion

Teach no creationism, board advised

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School Board appears destined to follow the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court rather than the wishes of numerous creationist supporters.

Assistant Superintendent Keith Tolzin recommended Tuesday that the board adopt a policy forbidding the teaching of creationism or any theory of origin based on religious tenet in its curriculum.

School trustees will not act on the policy until at least next month, but the proposal sparked lively discussion Tuesday.

Tolzin chaired a curriculum-review committee formed after Times-News Managing Editor Stephen Hartgen and his wife, Jan, wrote a letter requesting a clarification of the district's policy on creationism. Their seventh-grade daughter's science class had discussed creationism and a variety of other origin theories earlier this year.

Tolzin, who formed a five-member committee on the issue, said the law is clear.

Cases involving the teaching of creation "say essentially the school should not be used to advance particular religious views," Tolzin said.

The school district is caught between court rulings and active support of creationism from residents.

The district received 51 letters and 81 phone calls supporting creationism, Tolzin said. In contrast, Tolzin said, only four letters and three phone calls to the district opposed the teaching of creationism.

Teacher Phil Gerrish, who taught creationism in his seventh-grade class, was not pleased by Tolzin's recommendation.

"I'm very disappointed," Gerrish said. "I think we will have to wait to see what the board will do."

But the recommendation appeared to satisfy the Hartgens, whose daughter is enrolled in Gerrish's class at O'Leary Junior High.

The policy committee has proposed a policy that is consistent with current thinking on science and the law in

Northeastern economy is strongest

WASHINGTON — Northeastern states with high levels of public spending have the most vital economies while "low wage, low tax" states in the South, Plains and Mountain regions have the worst, a private research organization said Tuesday.

The Corporation for Enterprise Development, seeking to counter business climate studies that give high marks to states with the least government spending, released an economic report card that listed six states as leaders in the economic competition between the states. All but one border on or include parts of the Washington-Boston urban corridor.

"The Northeast is where today's economic action is," said Robert Friedman, president of the non-profit research group.

Getting grades of A or B in each of four areas — economic performance, business vitality, economic capacity and policy strength — were Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Vermont and Minnesota.

Friedman said those states have in common "a long-standing commitment to public investments."

States should not compete with Third-World countries for industries whose prime concern is cost, Friedman argued. "In today's economy, we will compete not just by making more of something cheaper, but by making it better or differently."

New Jersey and Vermont are new on the honor roll, which was released for the first time last year.

California and New York, which made it into the top group last year, slipped. Friedman said that was largely because the 1988 report more heavily weights the gap between rich and poor in those states.

The next group of states, which did well overall in the 1988 ranking and which Friedman called "the contenders," were: Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Washington, California, Maine, Delaware and Virginia.

States getting mostly Ds and Fs this year were Idaho, Nevada, South Dakota and the Southern states of Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Tennessee.

Idaho received a C for business vitality, but rated D's for economic performance and economic capacity, and an F for policy strength.

Arkansas, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina, which had ranked near the bottom in 1987, moved out of the lowest group of states.

The report cautioned that the rankings are relative and that a state's movement may not be due to any change within the state but could be caused by improvement or deterioration in other states.

The economic performance grade includes job growth, pay levels, the poverty-rate, the crime rate, environmental quality and infant mortality.

"Business vitality refers to the competitiveness and diversity of current business and a state's ability to spawn new businesses.

The $200,000 study was paid for by grants: 38 percent from private foundations, 32 percent from businesses and 30 percent from labor unions, Friedman said.

Grant Thornton, a Chicago accounting firm which compiles one of the most well-known business climate indexes, has noted the union funding and has criticized the Corporation for Enterprise Development for being too subjective. It says its own rankings, which assign greater weight to cost factors, reflect the priorities of manufacturing firms.

Crossfire from patrol kills Marine sentry

PANAMA CITY, Panama — A Marine sentry was killed at an American military facility, and U.S. officials said he apparently was caught in crossfire between fellow guards on a night search for intruders.

A Pentagon spokesman in Washington said the identity of the intruders was not known, but members of the Panamanian Defense Forces are thought to have slipped into the facility before.

A spokesman for the U.S. Southern Command in Panama said there was "no reason at all at this time to suspect" that the Panamanian military was involved in Monday's shooting. He said it appeared to be an accident.

The disaster was the second to befall U.S. troops in Panama on Monday. Earlier, two helicopters collided on a runway at another base about 50 miles away, injuring eight soldiers.

The Pentagon spokesman, Dan Howard, said there have been a series of intrusions at Howard Air Force Base in the past several weeks by "individuals who were ununiformed and camouflaged."

However, Martin Alberto Paz, a spokesman for the Panamanian military, said the Defense Forces had "absolutely nothing to do with" the shooting, and another official accused the United States of trying to create an incident.

White House calls Speakes' made-up quotes an 'outrage'

WASHINGTON — The White House said Tuesday that President Reagan was upset and it was an "outrage" that former presidential spokesman Larry Speakes had made up quotes and given them to reporters months ago.

In a kiss-and-tell book that has riled White House officials, Speakes disclosed that he made up a widely reported statement that was attributed to Reagan during his first summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in 1985.

In another instance, when a Korean Air Lines passenger jet was shot down by the Soviets in 1983, the president "had almost nothing to say" during meetings with the Cabinet and congressional leaders, Speakes said. So, he said, he took statements made by Secretary of State George P. Shultz and attributed them to Reagan.

Speakes said Tuesday that he subsequently told the president what he had done and Reagan "never objected."

Fitzwater, at a news briefing dominated by questions about Speakes' revelation, blasted his predecessor, who in his six years as White House spokesman had boasted that he never lied to the press.

"It's a damned outrage, that's what it is," Fitzwater said.

"I resent it so much. It casts aspersions on the presidency and on my position. It's wrong. He shouldn't have done it and I won't do it," Fitzwater said.

He said he had not talked to the president, "but I'm sure he would be upset about it. I'm sure he is." Later, after conferring with the president, Fitzwater said; "I stand by my comments." And, another White House official, speaking anonymously, said flatly, "The president is upset about the book."

Conservative leaders who met with Reagan on Tuesday also were angry. "I think Larry Speakes has done a disservice to the president," said Peter Flaherty, chairman of Citizens for Reagan.

Paul Weyrich, head of the Free Congress Foundation, said, "The president is ill-served by all of these people who are in public service and then write books the minute they get out and reveal things that ought not to be revealed."

"All they're in for is making a buck... and frankly, they ought to be

Dukakis wins the Greek vote

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — From Jimmy's Lunch, known all over Troy for its French toast, to Famous Lunch and Hot Dog Charlie's, famous for their hot dogs, and even at St. Basil Greek Orthodox Church, you don't have to ask twice about the presidential race.

Wherever Greek-Americans have settled across the land, they have settled on Michael Dukakis, son of Greek immigrants, as their presidential candidate.

"I think it's wonderful a Greek has come up this far," said Alexandra Matoes, a 62-year-old retired luncheonette owner, as she stood inside St. Basil's after an Easter service. "It means a lot to all ethnics. When we were kids we never thought we'd live to see a Greek nominated."

Dukakis' candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination has caused a surge of excitement among those who came to America from Greece, like Dukakis' parents, and among their first-generation children.

About 25 percent of the $15 million Dukakis has raised in "campaign" contributions came from the Greek-American community, believed to number about 1 million.

"A lot about the Dukakis candidacy stimulates Greek-Americans," says Elias Viant, information director of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association. "He invokes his Greek heritage and the values that Greeks hold dear — love of family, the need and importance of public service."

Among the people of Greek origin in Troy, a melting pot city of 58,000 overlooking the Hudson River, famous for its hot dogs and as the place where collars for Arrow shirts were once made, Dukakis looms as large as the local legend, Samuel Wilson.

Food packagers acting to ease threat to ozone

WASHINGTON (AP) — Companies using ozone-destroying chemicals to make plastic foam food packaging will switch to other compounds by the end of the year, their trade association said today.

While such use accounts for only 1.5 percent to 2 percent of the U.S. production of the chemicals in question, chlorofluorocarbons or CFCs, some environmentalists have targeted food packages as a highly visible and unessential use of the CFCs.

The environmentalists already had won pledges from fast food chains not to use CFC-made products.

About one-third of foam packages — things like egg cartons and clamshell hamburger containers — are made with CFCs, said Joseph Bow, president of the trade group, the Foodservice and Packaging Institute, at a news conference.

Most of the rest are manufactured with other compounds such as pentane, but the CFCs in question are expected to be replaced by the 15 companies using them with a related compound called HCFC-22.

The program is voluntary on the part of the companies, but Bow said none was expected to refuse to participate.

Three major environmental groups, Friends of the Earth, the Environmental Defense Fund and the Natural Resources Defense Council, praised the action and said they would join the institute in monitoring HCFC-22 use and seeking an entirely benign replacement.

"It doesn't solve all the problems posed by plastic packaging. Plastic packaging still poses a trash problem. Nevertheless, the industry deserves support," said Doniger.

U.S. calls for Afghan resettlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration urged the United Nations on Tuesday to organize a multinational drive to help millions of Afghan refugees "return in safety and honor" when Soviet troops withdraw.

The United States is prepared to aid the effort, but "the United Nations and its specialized agencies are the logical organizations to coordinate the job," State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said.

More than 5 million Afghans have fled to neighboring countries, mostly Pakistan, during the eight-year war that has pitted the Afghan government and Soviet troops against U.S.-backed guerrilla forces.

Now that Soviet forces are to leave the country by early next year, under an agreement to be signed in Geneva on Thursday, the return of the displaced Afghan population is emerging as one of the next difficult regional issues to be settled.

Adding to the difficulty is the likelihood of continued fighting after the departure of Soviet troops, because both superpowers have reserved the right to keep aiding the warring factions.

Redman, referring to further settlement talks led by United Nations mediator Diego Cordovez, said "a constructive effort is taking place to work out an interim government and to help the refugees return in safety and honor."

He said there was no timetable for the return of the refugees and added: "This process has to be done in such a way that it's done securely" that these people are taken care of. There is obviously going to be some social disorganization inside Afghanistan as this proceeds. We need to try to do this in a coordinated way."

Pakistan, though, which much of the U.S. aid to the Afghan resistance has been funneled, is especially eager for the return of the refugees from border regions that have been made unstable by the war.

State Department officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they hoped for the earliest possible return of the refugees but were concerned about the impact further resettlement in the country would have on fighting.

They also said the withdrawal of Soviet forces from the country could touch off a massive desire among the refugees to trek home.

"The likelihood of continued violence does not frighten the Afghan people," one official said.

Byrd steps down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd announced Tuesday he will not seek re-election to the party post he has held for a decade, leaving off a wide-open race to succeed him.

The 70-year-old West Virginia said he will run for a sixth Senate term and, if elected and the chamber remains under Democratic control, assume the chairmanship of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He also would likely become Senate president pro tempore, the post reserved for the most senior majority member.

"I believe I have been fair, firm and honest, and I have done my best," Byrd told his fellow Democrats. "I hope that you agree ... I have led my party from the ambivalence of the Carter years through the extremes of the Reagan administration ..."

Byrd said that as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, which provides money for all federal programs, he would have an opportunity to help his West Virginia, which he said has suffered under the administration's economic policies.

"Now, for the first time, I have a new opportunity to have a more direct influence on the allocation of our nation's scarce fiscal resources," Byrd said.

He said that as floor leader, "I have tried to make the Senate more responsible and responsive to this nation — a voice with resonance and power — more than anything, I have tried to open this institution's resources to its members — to teach its lessons and its history — to share its leadership."

Inouye said he did not believe lingering criticism over his performance as chairman of the Senate Iran-Contra investigating committee last summer would pose an obstacle to his bid. Some Democratic senators have complained, mostly privately, that Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North was permitted to steal the show at the panel's televised hearings.

Teacher of year dons many roles to awaken minds of school kids

WASHINGTON (AP) — School teacher Terry Weeks has donned the garb of a terrorist to get his seventh-grade students in Murfreesboro, Tenn., to grapple with viewpoints diametrically opposed to their own.

He also has posed as Andrew Jackson and Anwar Sadat to bring history alive in his classroom.

On Tuesday, Weeks assumed a new role that he will play for the next 12 months: the 1988 National Teacher of the Year.

The 37-year-old social studies instructor from Central Middle School in Murfreesboro appeared on national television and held a news conference to kick off a celebratory week that includes a stop at the White House on Thursday to receive a crystal apple from President Reagan.

For Weeks, who makes $25,000 after 15 years in the classroom, it was a taste of adulation he said he wished all teachers could share.

"I wish somehow I could bundle it all up and as I go across the country this next year, just kind of spread it out to the teachers," he said. "They need to know that there are news cameras waiting on the teacher of the year when he gets off of a plane, people wanting to know how he teaches ... and what is it that keeps him in the classroom."

He also told reporters, "I can't do the moon walk. I can't slam dunk a basketball. I'm a teacher."

But Weeks, a director of the Tennessee Education Association and former president of his union local, also complained of low salaries and poor working conditions for public-school teachers.

"Teachers by far represent the best bargain going for this country," said Weeks. "Teachers need to have more control over what happens in the schools," including the curriculum, schedule and choice of textbooks.

"We are secretaries, we are filing clerks, we are psychologists, we have to be legal scholars, we can't go to the bathroom every time we need to go because there are 30 children in the classroom," he said.

Weeks, whose wife, Mary, is a nurse, said he has stayed in the classroom despite low pay because every day "I know I've had the opportunity to make a difference" in the lives of 150 students. "To me there's no more noble calling than teaching. But again, that's not to say I'm satisfied with the low salary."

Weeks, a carpenter's son, is a graduate of Middle Tennessee State University. He's been the seventh grade-social studies teacher at Central Middle School for 14 years.

Patented mouse writes history

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new type of laboratory mouse broke legal ground Tuesday as the federal government granted Harvard University the first U.S. patent on an animal.

A few minutes ago we issued a patent which, for the first time in the history of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, covers an animal," Patent Commissioner Donald J. Quigg announced shortly after noon.

"This particular animal (is) a mouse which has been genetically engineered so as to make it more susceptible to cancer," Quigg said.

The patent, No. 4,736,866, named Philip Leder of Chestnut Hill, Mass., and Timothy A. Stewart of San Francisco as inventors of the mouse, which is to be used for research into cancer.

"Patents on forms of life are not new, with both plants and types of bacteria having been patented in the past."

"Almost any type of animal — except humans — could be considered for a patent," Quigg said.

The Patent Office said last year that it was considering patents on animals, following an appellate court ruling in a case involving a new type of oyster.

That ruling said that the agency could go beyond the plants and bacteria, to which it had previously limited patents on life forms. The oyster patent was never issued, however, with examiners concluding that the process was not original enough.

The only other animal case occurred in 1974, when the Patent Office refused to patent a dwarf chicken. The question of patenting animals has raised some controversy in recent years, however, with opponents questioning the ethics of changing animals.

Bills have been introduced in Congress to place a moratorium on such patent. Until the ethical problems can be worked out, and Quigg said that Congress and the scientific laboratory are the proper forum for such debates.

Clan head hoped for confrontation, attorney says

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Polygamist clan leader Addam Swapp bombed a Mormon chapel to bring about a "final confrontation" he believed would trigger the downfall of church and state, a U.S. attorney said Tuesday.

U.S. Attorney Brent Ward's opening statement to a federal court jury began the trial of four clan members facing charges relating to the Jan. 16 chapel bombing and a 13-day standoff that ended in gunfire that killed a state corrections officer Jan. 28.

Ward for the first time officially identified John Timothy Singer as the clan member authorities believe killed Corrections Lt. Fred House as officers attempted to capture Swapp and his brother with attack dogs.

Singer, 21, son of clan matriarch Vickie Singer, has not been charged in the death. State authorities say they will file murder charges following the current trial before U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins, who on Tuesday denied a defense motion to move the trial out of Utah.

"Vickie Singer and Addam Swapp made it clear there would be no surrender and that the nation, church and state would have to be destroyed first," said Ward, who detailed the bombing of the Kamas Stake Center and the standoff at the clan's Marion homestead.

"Evidence and witnesses will show the events were part of a pattern of criminal activity having a common purpose," Ward said. "Evidence will show in this case that Addam Swapp was the bomber. He bombed the church house."

Swapp, 27, is charged with seven counts and Mrs. Singer, 45, eight counts. John Timothy Singer and Swapp's brother, Jonathan Swapp, 21, are charged with attempted murder of federal agents, assault on federal officers and two firearms violations.

Addam Swapp and Mrs. Singer face the same counts, plus use of an explosive to damage the chapel and use and possession of a bomb. Mrs. Singer also is charged with possession of a speed-off shotgun.

Ward showed the jury a red spear bedecked with feathers that was discovered stuck in the ground outside the chapel. The purpose of the bombing, he said, "is written on this pole."

"You will hear evidence that this was more than just a bombing — that it was an invitation to a violent confrontation. This red pole was left as unmistakable evidence of identification," Ward said.

Using an aerial photograph and a surveyor's diagram, Ward also walked jurors through the sequence of events leading up to the clan's shootout with police.

Authorities planned to release attack dogs from another home on the family's compound, two miles from the chapel, to capture the Swapps when they left the main house to milk a goat.

House, an FBI SWAT team and a second dog handler were hidden in the home. As soon as the dogs were released, 11 shots were fired. Of six fired by John Timothy Singer from a .30-caliber carbine, one struck the officer, Ward said.

Addam Swapp was wounded by members of the SWAT team after he pointed his rifle at the doorway of the home where the officers were hidden.

Arizona court asked to cancel recall vote

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona's highest court was asked Tuesday to let Rose Mofford remain governor by canceling the May 17 recall election because its target, former Gov. Evan Mecham, already has been removed by impeachment conviction.

"The purpose of the recall has been fulfilled" by the removal of the first-term Republican governor, attorney Andrew Gordon told the state Supreme Court in oral arguments. "Recall is the people's alternative to impeachment."

Mrs. Mofford, the former secretary of state who automatically became governor when Mecham was convicted by the state Senate, is not a "stop-gap governor" but is the new chief executive who should finish Mecham's four-year term, Gordon said.

But the attorney-general's office argued that the election must go forward because Arizona voters have the right to decide who their governor will be.

The election "has been called for by the people and there is no way that we can see that it can be cut off," said Assistant Attorney General Jessica Funkhouser.

Vice-Chief Justice Stanley Feldman said the court would decide "as quickly as possible," but he did not indicate when.

A legal brief filed Monday by Mrs. Mofford's attorney argued she should not have to face removal from office so soon after taking over. The Arizona Constitution requires a public official to be in office for at least six months before a recall petition campaign can be started.

The recall ballot does not ask if Mecham should be recalled but simply lists the candidates—Mecham's name would have been included if he were still governor but was removed last week following the impeachment conviction.

Mrs. Mofford's name was put on the ballot by petitions signed in a draft campaign, but she has thus far avoided declaring her own candidacy for fear of running afoul of Arizona's "resign to run" law. That law generally prohibits officeholders from seeking another office, except in the final year of their term.

Q. What happens to all those dead dogs you see in the streets?
A. Can't say about all, but approximately 70,000 a year are picked up in Washington, D.C., and sent to rendering plants, which sell to cosmetics manufacturers. Consider that, my dear, as you put on your makeup.

Soviet crowd braves snow to buy American-style pizza

MOSCOW (AP) — Muscovites braved a cold wind and snow flurries Tuesday to line up for American-style pizza from a specially equipped van delivering the pies as part of a joint economic venture involving a New Jersey company.

The crowd waited outside the window of the mobile pizzeria to hand over their rubles for slices of cheese and tomato pizza.

Almost 1,200 slices had been dispensed over a three-hour period by midafternoon, but workers couldn't say how many were sold because free pizza was doled out for an hour after opening.

"The reaction is extraordinary," said Louis Piancone, president of Roma Food Enterprises in Piscataway, N.J., at the van's first day of operation in Moscow's Lenin Hills.

"We'll be moving through the city to determine what the market is for opening pizza restaurants. Judging from today at just this location, there's a market," Piancone said.

A new law allowing Soviet firms to enter into joint ventures with foreign companies is one of the steps taken by Mikhail S. Gorbachev to raise productivity and provide sorely needed consumer goods and services.

Many Western entrepreneurs have been wary, however, saying the rules require the joint firm's director to be Soviet, that hirings and firings must conform to Soviet law, and that the joint venture could compete with its Western parent abroad.

Since the law went into effect, joint ventures have been signed involving coal, paint and fertilizer production. Pensione Inc. last fall signed a contract to have two Pizza Hut restaurants in Moscow, but they have not yet opened.

"We thought this was a great opportunity. We thought we'd get the Yankee spirit and come here and open this," said Piancone's U.S. partner, Shelley M. Zeiger, standing in front of lettering on the van proclaiming the "First American Pizza in Moscow."

Zeiger said they intend to open as many as 25 pizza restaurants around Moscow if the Soviet government approves and demand is sufficient.

Meanwhile, the mobile pizzeria will offer pizza for about $2.10 a slice and whole pies for about $14.

Only tomato and cheese slices were sold Tuesday, but Piancone said 20 toppings, including meat, will be sold starting Wednesday.

He said ingredients from the United States are being used now, but company officials hope to use some Soviet ingredients eventually.

"This is part of the spirit of the joint venture," Zeiger said. "We hope to work with the Soviet agricultural people so we can get tomatoes with just the right acidity for our recipes. And the cheese — we want to buy Soviet cheese, but it has to have the right fat content."

He said pizza will be sold for foreign currency in a few weeks, but only when the van is parked near hotels and areas that frequented by tourists. Depending on its location, the van will sell pizza for either rubles or foreign currency, but not for both in the same day.

Zeiger, who operates a Trenton, N.J., real estate and import firm, said 51 percent of the profits go to his Soviet partners and the remainder to the New Jersey company.

Since rubles cannot be exchanged on the world market, Zeiger and Piancone intend to use their share of ruble profits to buy Soviet commodities, such as caviar, furs, wooden Russian dolls and other items for sale on the U.S. market.

They said they have about $500,000 invested in the van and are prepared to invest another $1 million to set up restaurants.

The van is equipped with freezers, a machine that presses dough in three seconds and an oven, which releases as many as 60 pizzas an hour on a conveyor belt.

Moscow already has pizza parlors, most of which opened within the last three years with the help of Italian companies.

Oscar calls back the faithful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Viewers tuning in to watch Cher and her eye-popping dress helped the Academy Awards show rack up what may have been its best television ratings in five years.

Viewers who stuck out the full three-hour, 33-minute telecast Monday night also saw "The Last Emperor," filmed amid the imperial splendor of Beijing's Forbidden City, sweep all nine awards for which it was nominated.

The show, broadcast live on ABC-TV, had a rating of 37.7 and a 69 share, according to an overnight survey of the 16 largest cities by the A.C. Nielsen Co. The rating is a percentage of the nation's 88.6 million homes with television. The share is a percentage of sets in use. The numbers may change as other areas are counted.

National overnight ratings were expected later Tuesday. "I'm so staggered—I don't know what to say about it," Producer Samuel Goldwyn Jr. said Tuesday about the ratings for the 60th annual Academy Awards.

The last time the Oscars showed rated higher was in 1983, when it got a 38.0 and 59. Last year, the show had a national rating of 27.5 and a 43 share, according to Nielsen.

Goldwyn said despite the ratings success, he is bowing out after two years as the Oscar show producer. "There are a lot more people in this town more talented than I who should try," he said. "I wish the next guy luck."

Cher's sheer, sequined Bob Mackie-designed dress left little to the imagination when she won the best actress Oscar for "Moonstruck." Another best-actress nominee, Sally Kirkland, showed up in a black gown with a deep plunging neckline.

The other acting winners were Michael Douglas, best actor for "Wall Street"; Sean Connery, best supporting actor for "The Untouchables"; and Olympia Dukakis, best supporting ac-less for "Moonstruck." "The Last Emperor" writer-director, Bernardo Bertolucci's story of China's boy ruler, won best picture, best director and best adapted screenplay for the Italian director and collaborator Mark Peploe.

Arabs deny blame for girl's death, but fear retaliation

BEITA, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Palestinians in the village where an Israeli teen-ager was killed said Tuesday they fear retaliation by Jewish settlers once the army lifts a curfew, but they insist that Arabs aren't to blame for the girl's death.

Beita's 6,000 residents are living under a dusk-to-dawn curfew. Soldiers patrol the village, which is surrounded by thick groves of olive fig and almond trees. Troops guard the village entrance. The army has ordered the deportation of six residents. Hundreds have been detained, and Beita residents said 60 were still being held Tuesday.

"This is an act of retaliation against us, against the whole village," said Ahmed Hassan Salman, 27. "It is a collective punishment to satisfy the settlers' demands. A settler killed the girl — and they are punishing us."

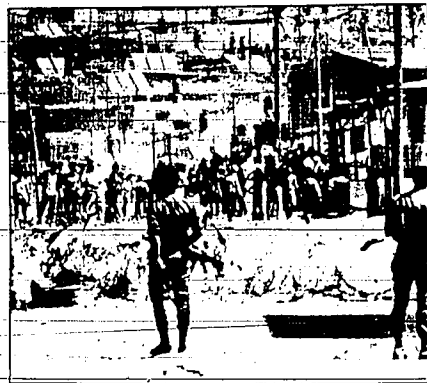

Villagers said no Arabs were involved in the shooting of 15-year-old Tirza Porat on April 6, but they said the army has destroyed 16 of their homes.

Residents said the bloodshed would have been much worse had the Palestinians been intent on killing the Israelis during the clash, in which two Palestinians also died.

"If the villagers had wanted to kill the settlers, they could have killed them all with rocks, knives and axes," 27-year-old Nitham Hated Muthgar said in an interview in his home.

"But the villagers didn't want to kill the children, despite our own casualties. They only grabbed the gun to protect themselves. They grabbed the gun and smashed it," Muthgar said.

Mohammed Ali, a 30-year-old construction worker, said villagers feared more retaliation from Jewish settlers, who already rampaged through the nearby Arab village of Hawwara.

Thousands mark uprising

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Thousands of people began arriving this week for the 45th anniversary of the Warsaw Jewish Ghetto Uprising, when starving and poorly armed Poles held off the final Nazi extermination drive for nearly a month.

About 4,500 guests from throughout the world are expected for the largest Israeli delegation ever to visit Poland.

Poland severed diplomatic ties with Israel after the outbreak of the Middle East War in 1967, when Israel seized the West Bank and Gaza Strip from Egypt and Jordan. Low-level diplomatic ties resumed in 1986, with the two countries establishing diplomatic section offices in each other's capitals.

The observances climax on April 19 with a ceremony at the Warsaw Ghetto Fighters Monument. The monument sits in a plaza in an apartment complex built on the rubble of the former ghetto, which was razed by the Nazis.

Nazis marched into the ghetto early on April 19, 1943, expecting to organize a rapid deportation and eradication of the last 70,000 inhabitants.

But they were met with fierce gunfire from the young warriors of the ghetto's Jewish-Defense Organization. The standoff continued until mid-May, when the Nazis claimed victory and began deporting the surviving inhabitants to death camps.

The anniversary events have been jointly organized by Polish and Israeli committees.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban told reporters Tuesday that Poland will observe the anniversary as an event marking "tragic European and Polish events (which) refer to our past, predating the creation of the state of Israel and the Middle East conflict."

He said Poland remains "in full solidarity with the Palestinians (in the Israeli-occupied territories) fighting for their human and national rights."

He called Israel's behavior in the territories "brutal" and "an offense to the memory of the defenders of the Warsaw Ghetto ... Contradictory to the ideals" for which they fought.

The Israeli visitors include Deputy Prime Minister Itzhak Navon; a Labor Party member who serves as minister of education and culture; and Abram Sharir, a Likud member who is minister of justice and tourism.

They are the highest-ranked Israeli officials ever to visit Poland.

Soviets get crash course in advertising

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet businessmen got a crash course in Madison Avenue advertising complete with Diet Coke commercials and reminders that the "customer is king" as an annual meeting of U.S. and Soviet business leaders opened Tuesday.

The 11th yearly session of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council, which works to foster commercial ties between the superpowers, comes at a time when the Soviets are actively courting foreign capital and expertise to rejuvenate their stagnant state-run economy.

However, the notorious bad quality and limited range of Soviet goods has hindered many firms and trade organizations from selling abroad. Despite exhortations from Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev to increase exports.

"Soviet organizations should expect to meet a large amount of skepticism as they enter the American market," James H. Dowling, president of Burson-Marsteller, a U.S. public relations firm, told an all-day seminar held by the council to help Soviet firms plan sales and marketing campaigns in the United States.

Elsewhere at the Foreign Trade Center, a sprawling hotel and convention complex on the banks of the Moscow River, business and government officials from the superpowers held separate meetings to discuss cooperation in industry, science and technology and in specific fields like machine-building.

About 400 Americans are to take part in the three-day gathering. Commerce Secretary William Verity headed the U.S. delegation.

Two Soviet products that have found a niche in the U.S. market are Stolichnaya vodka and Belarus tractors, Dowling told an audience of about 150 people.

But he cautioned budding Soviet exporters that "abundance of choice in the U.S. market makes it tough for newcomers.

"The customer is king," Dowling said during his one-hour address that explained the mechanics of the American marketplace in terms that would be unfamiliar to many Soviets.

"The seller who wins the order will thrive and prosper," Dowling said. "The seller who doesn't will fail."

Despite economic reforms designed to make Soviet firms more responsive to consumer demand, shortages and lack of high-quality goods remain common problems.

Hazelton council backs firing despite protest

By KEN ARMSTRONG
Times-News writer

HAZELTON - At a packed and contentious meeting Monday night, the Hazelton City Council reaffirmed its decision to fire Clinton Watson, the city's former supervisor-marshall.

Angry residents, meanwhile, said they are starting efforts to fire the city council.

Lionnie Brucke, Watson's brother-in-law and a former Hazelton mayor, said a petition drive is circulating to recall the four city council members and the mayor.

"I think we're taking each and every one of them," Brucke said. "Take them one at a time."

Watson, who attended Monday night's meeting, stands charged in Twin Falls of vehicular manslaughter, a felony charge on which he is out on bail. While driving a pickup truck April 4 down Second Avenue

North, the 49-year-old man struck and killed Elvin Cory, a Twin Falls resident walking across the street.

Watson was allegedly intoxicated at the time of the accident.

The accident occurred roughly seven weeks after the council initially decided to fire him.

While approximately 60 people looked on, many pouring out into the city's main street due to lack of room, Mayor Roy Crumrine on Monday read from a lengthy list of reasons underlying Watson's termination. The statements, which took almost an hour to read, alleged inefficiency on Watson's part in the execution of an assortment of assigned duties.

The statements did not harvest a favorable response.

"You guys are pretty nit-picky, it sounds like to me," said Sunny Bowlin, a former Hazelton resident who now lives in Buhl,

"If you guys want a perfect city, well, you better start with you boys first."

To the boisterous applause of onlookers, Bowlin and a few others criticized the city council's firing terms. The meeting, at which all four city council members and the mayor were present, was held in the city's fire department building.

"You have had your time," Crumrine told the audience after several of the critics.

Developer's request complicates plans for national reserve

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - A private developer presents another threat to officials striving for national recognition of Oakley's Silent City of Rocks, which already faces a Congressional hurdle along its path toward that recognition.

Craig Haines, of Burley, has applied for a sewer permit from the South-Central District Health Department to start a campground on his portion of land within the 14,000-acre area. A decision on the sewer permit is expected this week.

deal."

Haines couldn't be reached for comment Monday or Tuesday.

Jaren Tolman, SCDDH's senior environmental health specialist in Cassia County, said he received Haines' sewer application the last week of March. Tolman said he consulted with three other area health specialists about placing a sewage system in the area, based strictly on health concerns, such as the amount of soil and drainage in the area.

Tolman said he expects to render his decision later this week on whether to approve the sewer permit.

But a commercial venture, such as a campground, is not compatible with the national reserve status sought by Cassia County officials and Idaho's national delegation.

U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, said he doesn't expect the sewer application to threaten a bill pending in Congress, which would declare the City of Rocks a national reserve.

"I think there is still a lot of groundwork that has to be laid on the campground," Stallings said.

But he added that he plans to meet this week with the lawmaker who has bottled up that national reserve legislation is a subcommittee.

"I think you'll be seeing two tracks of action," said Stallings, who added that a campground would not be compatible with national reserve status. "I don't think that would be allowed in an area that is a national reserve."

To avoid a collision on the tracks, Cassia County Commission Chairman Weldon Beck said an agreement was reached with Haines. Haines will delay his campground plans until the national reserve issue is resolved in Congress, Beck said.

"It's at a standstill for between three weeks to six months," Beck said.

Referring to problems a developer faces securing sewage treatment and well water, Beck added, "Let's wait and see how this park thing comes out and they'll know how to take care of the water and sewage

Meanwhile, the bill declaring the area a national reserve has already passed the Senate under Idaho Republican Sen. James McClure's sponsorship. But, water-rights language McClure included in the bill apparently also has it bottled up in a House subcommittee.

National reserve status would bring control of the area under the National Parks Service, for cooperative management with state and local agencies. The area - featuring sculpted rocks towering above the terrain - currently suffers from graffiti, litter, erosion and improper rock climbing.

Stallings said he will meet today or Thursday with Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., who chairs the subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands where the bill is stuck. After that meeting, Stallings expects to either move forward with McClure's bill or introduce one of his own.

"We'll get our signal then," Stallings said.

The language at issue says, in effect, the state of Idaho, instead of the federal government, should govern how its water is allocated.

Stallings agrees with that principle. But since there is no substantial water to allocate within the City of Rocks, Stallings wonders whether sticking to his guns on the water language is worth losing the national reserve status.

"I think the Senate's provision is correct, but I don't think this is the place to fight the battle," Stallings said. "There's no water out there."

Ketchum fluoride causes concern Geothermal leakage makes water unsafe

By MARK PRATTER
Times-News writer

KETCHUM - A condominium complex here has problems with fluoride contamination of its well water and residents should not drink the water, said the state Division of Environmental Quality on Tuesday.

The Four Seasons Condominiums on Warm Springs Road generally have always had fluoride levels above state standards, according to a recently completed state study.

Long-term exposure to fluoride at levels above state standards can mottle the teeth of children under 10 years of age.

And if levels are high enough, they can cause adults' bones to become brittle, said the state.

The fluoride levels are 3.5 up to 5.5 parts per million, according to the study. The state allows a maximum of 2.4 parts per million.

"People can bathe in the water but cannot drink it," said Gary R. Burkett, environmental engineer, state Division of Environmental Quality.

People occupying the 32 units in the complex have been warned several times about the fluoride situation, said Gene L. Mason, the resident manager.

One family with children uses bottled water. It's up to the others what they want to do. My wife uses bottled water, I don't," he said.

The residents are waiting to see what action the state takes next, Mason said.

The matter is being reviewed in Boise, said Burkett of the Twin Falls. The Twin Falls office performed the study that started in February.

Options include abandoning the well and hooking up to the city system, he said.

"The study showed the culprit in the fluoride contamination is a Guyer Springs Water Co. geothermal pipeline used to heat homes in the Warm Springs section of Ketchum, Burkett said.

The pipeline is fed by springs that have a fluoride content of 16 parts per million.

"When the pipeline leaks, it gets into the ground water and is picked up by the wells," Burkett said.

The pipeline could be repaired, replaced or abandoned, said Burkett.

A spokesman for Guyer Springs Water Co. could not be reached for comment.

Four Seasons could also drill wells in an area of Warm Springs where geothermal water doesn't have as much effect on the drinking water supply.

"They could get water with a fluoride content of 1.5 ppm," he said.

The study also showed water in four public drinking water systems

Shoshone voters pass override levy

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

SHOSHONE - Shoshone School District voters approved a two-year, $165,000 supplemental levy Tuesday with a vote of 172-83.

Critics of the Republican legislative majority say that the vote was only the beginning of an onslaught of property tax levy overrides that will be triggered across the state by an inadequate state allocation for public education.

Although only a simple majority was needed in the Shoshone override, 67.5 percent of the voters approved the measure. This is the third year voters here have approved a $165,000 supplemental doups said the strength of the vote in favor of the levy was encouraging. This is the first time the district has been allowed by state law to ask for a two-year levy, and the school board has the option of levying less the second year, he said.

The money will be used for general operating expenses; with any funds left over applied to the district's deficit. The deficit stood at $110,000 at the start of this school year.

The Shoshone School District will receive nearly a 4 percent increase in state aid next year, but officials said even that amount was not enough to offset expenses due to pay-raise commitments and insurance and maintenance costs.

"I think the Senate's provision is correct, but I don't think this is the place to fight the battle," Stallings said. "There's no water out there."

Bridon to build Jerome plant

JEROME - A large gathering of public officials and business leaders from Jerome and Twin Falls marked the official Tuesday announcement that Bridon Cordage, Inc., the largest manufacturer of agricultural polypropylene baling twine in the United States, will build a 20,000-square-foot manufacturing facility in Jerome.

The plant will employ 20 people and will add a $500,000 boost to the local economy in the first year of operation. The company plans to expand as demand for their products increases, perhaps

Local businesses take steps to develop AIDS policies

By MARTA CLEAVELAND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Although there are only 15 diagnosed cases of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome in the Magic Valley, the numbers here and statewide are multiplying at a rapid rate. Businesses and government need to have procedures in place now to prevent the spread of AIDS, and policies to deal with it if a worker contracts the disease.

"We are working toward creating a policy," said Norma Coats, personnel manager at Gem State Paper & Supply. She is responsible for drafting the company's AIDS policy.

"I read and seen things, but there's not enough information to write a policy I am comfortable with," she said.

The Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce held a seminar Tuesday to help educate businesses on the status of the disease, recent regulating legislation, and how to include it in an AIDS policy.

Fran Goren, biology professor at the College of Southern Idaho, said an estimated 1 million to 1.5 million people in the United States are infected with the virus, and 20,000 have died from it. By 1991, between 50 million and 100 million people will have had the disease.

By then the annual cost of AIDS-related health care is projected to reach $10 billion in the United States, she said.

Even the most liberal estimate predicts no preventive vaccine available before the year 2000.

"This is a disease of choice," said Golden. "People can choose not to get the disease by taking certain precautions."

There seems to be some reach resistance among companies to deal with the issue, as there is among individuals," said Rosemary Barta, human resources manager at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. But private businesses need to have a policy in place so if they learn a worker has AIDS, they have already given it some rational forethought.

A company policy should cover three general areas: hiring and retention of AIDS-infected employees, how to deal with employees who refuse to work with an infected person, and how to handle confidentiality of records and releasing information regarding workers with AIDS.

Federal and state law prohibits discriminating against AIDS victims in hiring. And unnecessary breaches of confidentiality can provoke lawsuits, too.

Rep. Russell Newcomb, R-Twin Falls, a physician at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital, researched the issue and carried major legislation this session dealing with AIDS.

"Most legislation proposed is done out of fear," Newcomb said. "There is little scientific data involved."

He sponsored one bill requiring all organizations that deal with human organs for transplant, and other matter such as sperm donation, to register with the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, and to were leveled. "The jury went out and the decision has been made. We are the jury and this is it."

The vote carried unanimously. The city council fired Watson, a lifetime resident of Hazelton, on Feb. 15. At Watson's request, a hearing was then scheduled for the purpose of collecting testimony on the action.

The hearing, which took place March 29, lasted from 5 p.m. until past midnight, said John Hohnhorst, the city's attorney. Prior to the hearing, Watson was supplied with a bill of particulars listing the specific allegations upon which the action was based.

The hearing on Monday night summarized the city council's findings as to the hearing's testimony after which the council reaffirmed its earlier decision.

After Monday's meeting, residents said the dispute has ripped the community apart like never before. It is a petition supporting Watson's reinstatement - circulated after the Feb. 15 firing - was signed by 120 people, 90 of them residents of Hazelton.

"This is not Chicago. This is not 1920. You do not just shut a guy out of town," said John Hohnhorst, a Hazelton veterinarian.

doubling in size within three to five years, said A.J. Bower, president of Bridon Cardage.

The new facility, to be located across from Uppervare in the city's new industrial park, will be independently chartered in Idaho under the name Bridon West. It will manufacture the well-known burnt-orange baling twine for markets in the western states and potentially the entire nation.

"Obviously, Jerome is a good geographic distribution center," Bower said.

He cited other attractive features of the area, too: a strong work ethic, power rates "second to none in the nation," and attractive state tax laws and regulations.

The agreement is also speeded with a few economic incentives. Jerome County will apply next week for a $400,000 community development block grant from the Brutke, accused the city council of violating the state's open-meeting laws. He said the council broke the law by failing to record the minutes of the Feb. 15 executive session during which the firing decision was made.

"You are in violation of state statutes, sir," Brutke said angrily.

Hohnhorst, the city attorney, said on Tuesday that the formal decision to fire Watson was made publicly when the council reconvened after the executive session.

"The fact of the matter is that the decision to fire Mr. Watson was made in an open meeting, not an executive session," Hohnhorst said.

"We have really, really tried to do this in an businesslike, quiet and dignified manner as we can, recognizing that this man (Watson) is entitled to that."

Hohnhorst said much of the controversy stems from conflicting obligations assigned a city council. "Citizens are expected to protect the private, confidential relationship they have with employees while simultaneously meeting their duties to taxpayers through the open-meeting laws."

"What you end up with is a fiasco like you did tonight," he said.

"Many residents at the meeting did not accept the reasons provided dards of care for prison inmates, plus a prison education and testing policy.

Confidentiality was dealt with in another law that allows disclosure of information to flow within the health care system without threat of lawsuit.

The confidentiality of diagnosis is important, but it must not be maintained to the extent that the public health is endangered," Newcomb said.

Another law upgrades to a felony the intentional infection of another person.

Newcomb called the laws a good first step that will need adjustment as more information is gathered.

One of the major concerns to companies is the cost of health insurance. But Newcomb said that is a dilemma still being debated. The cost will either be amortizing over all health insurance carriers, or over all taxpayers.

Idaho Department of Commerce. The grant would cover infrastructure costs, including installing telephone, water, gas, power lines and a rail spur, said Luanne Sloan, Jerome public works supervisor.

Bridon had been looking for an expansion location and flirting with a Magic Valley site for seven years.

The company chose Jerome over Twin Falls because of its nearness to Interstate Highway 84, making it more convenient for transportation and a good advertising sight since their building sign will be visible from the highway.

"It was a rather hairy had them on the south side of the river, but we're happy to have them here," conceded Jack Miller, president of the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

Construction is scheduled to be-by the council for Watson's termination. They instead offered other reasons for the action.

Boling said the council was looking for a scapegoat in connection with a lawsuit threatened by David and Laura Bowlin. That couple made the threat after their dog, accused of being vicious, was seized and put to death by city officials.

Boling said the threat was made Feb. 15, immediately after which the council met in executive session to evaluate Watson's work performance. "That's a bit more coincidence than I can handle," he said.

Crumrine said the dog incident was "in no sense the basis" for the decision to fire Watson.

Hohnhorst said the council was "not pleased with the job that's been done. It's no more sinister than that."

Boling said there is also speculation within the city that Watson was fired because of jealousy on the part of Councilman Ervid Van Sickle. Boling said Van Sickle was the only other applicant for the city supervisor-marshal position, which was awarded to Watson.

Van Sickle would not answer questions Tuesday.

"I think it's people trying to speculate to come up with an alternative version for what's happening," Hohnhorst said.

Jerome - Three little burros were being held in custody Tuesday night following a during, zigzagging flight from a sheriff's deputy and several citizens, officials said.

Officials jailed the burros in the Producers Livestock stockyards following an unsuccessful attempt to locate their owners.

The burros eluded their pursuers for an hour-and-15 minutes, said Darryl Cameron, the Jerome sheriff's deputy who terminated their spotted dash for freedom.

The chase started at approximately 6 p.m. in the fields south of Producers Livestock - and led through "the fields, on the railroad tracks, in the road - you name it," Cameron said.

"What a job to herd three little burros."

"They don't always pay attention to what you want to do. They have a mind of their own," he added.

Cameron said the posse he spearheaded consisted of "three or four citizens and some people from the stockyards."

Despite strong objections from Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus in the last legislative session, the GOP majority refused to stray from its consensus state schools budget of $666 million.

Although $13 million over this year's allotment, the education budget is at least $2 million below the level Republican Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said is needed to avoid multi-million-dollar tax hikes across the state or reductions in personnel and education programs.

Evans maintained his proposal for $362 million was the minimum for needed to avoid deterioration of the state school system.

Democrats have pledged to use the education support issue in the fall election campaign - citing the fact that 13 school district received no additional state aid and dozens of others received only fractional increases.

The 3.8 percent increase in state aid approved by lawmakers this year was in stark contrast to the nearly 10 percent hike the Legislature approved a year ago. In the wake of that largesse, property tax overrides statewide declined by more than $4 million.

Suspect in robbery Water arraigned; bond set

MOUNTAIN HOME - A man arrested in Boise last week in connection with the armed robbery of a Mountain Home motel was arraigned Monday and bond was set at $100,000, officials said.

Douglas Morris, a 36-year-old resident of Boise, was arrested late Friday night, said Dave Purcell, a lieutenant with the Mountain Home Police Department.

Morris is accused of robbing the Poothills Motor Inn during Thursday's early morning hours.

After the robbery, during which less than $150 was stolen, Morris allegedly left a trail of clothes and money which led to an abandoned vehicle registered in his name. The vehicle was found approximately a mile away from the scene of the robbery.

have increased significantly over 1979 levels, he said.

The City of Ketchum's Number One well has fluoride levels well above state standards, but this is not a problem because the water is used for other wells, Burkett said. This lowers the fluoride levels to bring the water within state standards.

Grayhawk Village has turned to the city to supply its water after fluoride levels of 4.69 parts per million were discovered in testing last June, the state said.

The fluoride problem goes back until 1985.

There was a preliminary study of it in 1986 and a more detailed study in 1987. The state took water samples and performed other tests to determine the source and extent of contamination.

Seattle settles in WPPSS suit

SEATTLE (AP) - The city of Seattle has agreed to pay $50 million to bondholders who sued after the Washington Public Power Supply System defaulted on $2.25 billion in bonds sold to finance two nuclear power plants, the lawsuit's settlement master announced Tuesday.

In a statement, Junius Hoffman said the tentative settlement would have to be approved by the federal court handling the securities-fraud litigation.

Trial in the case is scheduled for Sept. 7.

The city of Seattle was not among the 88 Northwest utilities that participated in constructing the plants. WPPSS Nos. 4 and 5, however, Hoffman noted, the city was a member of the supply system and designated individuals who served on the WPPSS board of directors and its executive board at the time the bonds for the two projects were issued.

The agreement was worked out between attorneys for one side and lawyers with the city and its insurance carriers on the other.

Doug Jewett, Seattle city attorney, said the city would pay $6.8 million while its insurance carriers would pay $43.8 million.

"We think it is a good settlement for the city because the dollar amount is less than what has been spent on defense costs alone," he said.

PUC president faces charges

CALDWELL (AP) — Idaho Public Utilities Commission President Dean Joe Miller was arrested last weekend and charged with driving under the influence of intoxicants. Canyon County authorities reported.

But Miller's attorney, James Morfitt of Caldwell, said Tuesday that he expected Miller to be allowed to plead guilty to an amended charge of inattentive driving at a hearing on Wednesday.

The sheriff's office said Miller, 39, was arrested late Saturday in Caldwell. He was later released on his own recognizance.

Arraignment was scheduled Monday in magistrate court. But Deputy Canyon County Prosecutor Gary Barr said the case was not called.

Lewiston to receive honors

BOISE (AP) — Boise and Ada County will kick off their statewide centennial activities on Thursday by honoring a territorial capitol of Idaho, Lewiston.

Ada County Commission Chairman Mike Johnson and Boise Mayor Dirk Kempthorne will be hosts to officials from Lewiston and Nez Perce County here to launch a sister-county/sister-city relationship.

"Lewiston has a proud part to play in Idaho history," said a statement from Kempthorne and Johnson on Tuesday.

Several officials from the Lewiston area are scheduled in Boise for a round of tours and a discussion on enhancing relations between the southern and northern parts of the state.

Micron to aid school move

BOISE (AP) — Micron Technology Inc. has pledged $1 million to facilitate the transfer of a public school building to Boise State University and construction of new elementary schools in the Boise School District.

Tuesday's financial commitment from the Boise-based computer chip manufacturer is contingent on Boise School District patrons approving a bond issue May 17th to underwrite the remaining costs of building two new elementary schools.

The proposal calls for Boise State to pay $1.5 million for the 37-year-old public school building adjacent to its campus. Officials said the $500,000 over the Micron commitment will be raised from private donations. The additional space will be used to consolidate BSU's Social Science and Public Affairs Department, which is now spread over the campus.

Solvent cleaner moving plant

BOISE (AP) — The nation's largest recycler of industrial solvents wants to move its operation from the Boise River flood plain in Garden City to a safer location near the Boise Municipal Airport.

SafetyKleen Corp., of Elgin, Ill., has applied for a permit from the Idaho Division of Environmental Quality, said Steve Hill, hazardous materials permit officer.

The Garden City plant has been in operation for 15 years, but is located just 150 yards from the river, said Joe Herrick, branch manager for Safety-Kleen in Garden City.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency standards were stiffened in 1985 and the plant is operating under a temporary permit. Moving to the new site offers the chance for a permanent "part B" permit, Herrick said.

Judge clears closing of gates

WALLACE (AP) — A judge has cleared the way for Washington Water Power Co. to raise Lake Coeur d'Alene to its usual summer time level.

First District Court Judge Richard Magnuson ruled Monday against granting an injunction that would keep the lake at its winter level.

Several weeks ago, owners of lakefront property and land along three major tributaries to the lake asked Magnuson to stop WWP from raising the lake this spring.

The property owners had won a two-part lawsuit against the Spokane-based utility in March. They said that flooding each year deprived them of their land.

FBI joins hunt for woman

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — The FBI has joined the search for a 25-year-old Worley woman who has been missing for more than a month.

Tina Marie Finley was reported missing to Coeur d'Alene tribal police March 23, more than two weeks after she failed to appear at an evening pool tournament as planned.

FBI Special Agent Rich Wald said Ms. Finley's family was not concerned at first because she was known to leave the area for up to a week without notifying relatives of her whereabouts.

Guardianship trial testimony concludes

MOSCOW (AP) — An attorney hired to handle guardianship proceedings for an ailing woman has testified that she believed the woman's son clearly understood that as his mother's guardian he was entrusted with preserving her estate, not siphoning all the cash from it as he is accused of doing.

Margaret White was the final witness in the grand theft trial of Gerald Boag, 50, who has been charged with pilfering over $100,000 from the estate of his mother, Violet, while she was in a nursing home suffering from symptoms related to Alzheimer's Disease.

Attorneys presented their closing arguments on Tuesday before the case was turned over to the jury.

Boag, who has admitted buying a logging truck, two satellite dishes, vehicles, horses and mobile home with his mother's money while serving as her guardian, claimed Ms. White did not explain his duties as conservator for his mother's estate or his court commitments.

But in her testimony, Ms. White disputed that claim, saying she repeatedly explained how the money could be used. She said none of the purchases at issue were approved by her.

"Gerald was in the office about every other day, and each time we went over that," she said. "I told Gerald many times all he could do was preserve the assets as long as possible for Violet's estate. He had to do everything he could to not just preserve, but enhance it if possible."

"Every time we talked, Gerry and I would go over the fact he could only do certain things with Violet's money, and one of the main things was to take care of her," she said. "We talked about it every time we were together, and I very much believe he understood it."

In addition to purchases Boag has admitted, Prosecutor Craig Mosman alleged Boag also used his mother's estate to buy beer, ice cream, $1,000 worth of musical instruments and cover expenses during a trip to North Dakota as well as spending thousands of dollars that have been unaccounted for while he served as guardian between July 1986 and August 1987.

Boag, claiming he made purchases that did benefit the estate, argued that he could have purchased some of those items with his own money. No inventories of the estate's assets were filed until February 1987 when he was unemployed during the winter of 1986. Boag admits most of the cash assets were gone.

Andrus praises Duncombe

MOSCOW (AP) — Gov. Cecil Andrus says there's been a decline in the Legislature's budget-making process ever since his first budget director, Syd Duncombe, left the job.

Andrus was among those attending an appreciation dinner for Duncombe here Tuesday night. Duncombe, who was Andrus' first budget director in 1979, has been a political science professor at University of Idaho for 26 years.

"As you know, I have been a little pointed in my comments about the actions of the just-completed Legislature, especially in the area of the budget," the governor said, in remarks prepared for the gathering.

"It dawned on me that if you want to date the beginning of the deterioration in the quality of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, you can go back to the day Syd Duncombe gave that committee his last annual report on what they ought to be doing," the governor said.

Andrus said Idahoans should be honoring Duncombe as a man "who has spent his life in service — service to literally thousands of students...and at one time great service to a young governor who needed all the help he could get."

2 Ricks students die in cycle crash

REXBURG (AP) — Two Ricks College students were killed Monday night when they were thrown from a motorcycle.

Brent L. Mortensen, 25, of Idaho Falls, and Sherry A. Sander, 18, of Tracey, Calif., were pronounced dead at the scene Monday, the Madison County sheriff's office said.

The accident occurred north of Rexburg at 9:30 p.m., Madison County Sheriff Lionel Koon said. The motorcycle turned on its side as Mortensen, who was driving, swerved to avoid a fertilizer truck.

The truck driver was not injured. An investigation was continuing Tuesday, officials said.

State land board fails to settle suit

BOISE (AP) - The Idaho Land Board failed Tuesday in an effort to negotiate settlement of a lawsuit filed against a Coeur d'Alene golf course-motel development.

Instead, the board voted unanimously to sell property involved to northern Idaho businessman Duane Hagadone, at a price to be determined by appraisal.

Board members concluded that if the Kootenai Environmental Alliance, which filed the lawsuit, wants to proceed ahead with it, it should be free to do so.

Much of Tuesday's Land Board meeting was devoted to an effort to negotiations aimed at having the KEA drop its lawsuit.

"Gentlemen, the state Land Board has attempted to resolve the issue," Gov. Cecil Andrus told both sides, after a long discussion produced little agreement. "That's the best we can do for you."

Hagadone purchased the old Potlatch mill site near his Coeur d'Alene Resort, with plans of expanding. The expansion includes a 18-hole golf course that will feature a unique floating, moveable green on a barge in Lake Coeur d'Alene.

As part of the discussion of that project, it was discovered that Potlatch never purchased state property, filled-in land on the edge of the lake, which it used for years for log storage. The board earlier approved the golf course venture, including the floating green, and an appraisal put the value of the filled-in land at $65,000.

The Kootenai Environmental Alliance's lawsuit contended the price was too low, and disputed a report that the filled-in land covered about three acres.

"That lake bed belongs to the people of the state of Idaho," said Ed Javorka, president of the KEA. "If it is going to be sold to a private party, the state should receive full-market value."

Based on the value of lakefront property, Javorka said the land could be worth a couple of hundred thousand dollars.

He said the alliance will proceed with its lawsuit if it feels the state is not getting proper value for the property. "It is not a frivolous appeal. If nothing is worked-out, we will proceed with it," he said.

Duane Hagadone, of Hagadone Hospitality Co. which is developing the project, urged the board to fail.

"He said his company is comfortable with an earlier survey, which showed the area involved to be about three acres, and the appraisal, which showed it to be worth $65,000."

But he said the project can't stand more delays. Hagadone said he has a golf course architect coming in "and I can't tell him a thing" because of the dispute over the three acres was to be included in the golf course.

Range fire sparks ban

POCATELLO (AP) - The first range fire of the season has burned an estimated 200 acres of dry grass and brush about eight miles southwest of Pocatello.

About 40 firefighters from the Pocatello city and valley fire departments, Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service contained the blaze by Monday evening. It was considered "dormant" by Tuesday morning.

The fire started about 1 p.m. Monday on private land in the Mink Creek area where winds blew a small controlled-wood burn out of control. Bannock County Sheriff S.R. Gameson said.

No injuries or damage to structures was reported.

On Tuesday, Gameson ordered a county-wide outdoor burning ban, requiring anyone conducting a controlled burn to first seek a permit from the sheriff's office.

Permits will continue to be issued by the sheriff's office until the BLM begins issuing its own burning permits in May, the sheriff said.

Monday's fire was about two miles north of last August's "Johnny-Crack-Fire" which destroyed one home and forced the evacuation of hundreds of local residents.

Gameson said no citations had been issued in connection with the

Givens tries for Congress

BOISE (AP) - Twentieth Democratic state Rep. Jeanne Givens of Coeur d'Alene has formally entered the 1st Congressional District race, calling for a new incumbent Republican Larry Craig an extremist.

"We have not had a congressman who fought hard for Idaho," Mrs. Givens said Tuesday in formally announcing her candidacy for her party's nomination. "We have not had a congressman ... who could bring home to us."

Mrs. Givens, who indicated an interest in the race late last month, is the third Democratic to enter declare for the May 24 primary.

Bonnors Ferry attorney Bruce Robinson has filed his candidate petition with the secretary of state, and perennial candidate David Shepherd has also declared his candidacy. Shepherd ran as an independent in 1986, capturing less than 5,000 of the more than 185,000 votes cast.

Mrs. Givens, a member of the Coeur d'Alene Indian Tribe, claimed Craig has only been a "congressman from Idaho, not for Idaho," and she pledged to serve in the grassroots tradition of the state's only woman member of the U.S. Congress, Grace Pisoni, who represented the 1st District for five terms beginning in 1953.

Contending Craig has accomplished nothing for Idaho because he only opposes issues, Mrs. Givens said. "He is on the outer fringes of the Republican Party. ... They don't get very much done because they are extremists."

Lewiston couple found at home

LEWISTON (AP) - A Lewiston couple have been found dead at their home, the possible victims of a murder-suicide, Nez Perce County Sheriff Ron Keeper said.

The bodies of Glen Harris, 62, and his wife, Marilyn Jean Trautman, 58, were discovered by a relative Monday, Keeper said.

Keeper said Glen Trautman may have killed his wife and then himself—but other possibilities have not been ruled out.

The Trautmans had been dead for about a week when they were discovered. The sheriff's department was notified of their deaths at 11:49 a.m. Monday.

Jean Trautman owned Jeanie's Treasure Chest at Lewiston. Glen Trautman was a retired contractor.

Spring thaws escalate level of Afghanistan fighting

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) - Spring thaws have opened the mountain supply routes of Moslem guerrillas and the seasonal surge of fighting in Afghanistan has begun despite a U.N.-sponsored accord on Soviet military withdrawal.

Leaders of the guerrillas, which began after a communist coup in April 1978, were not parties to the Geneva agreement announced last week and have said repeatedly they would continue the war.

Western diplomats said Tuesday there was a sharp increase of military activity in the past two weeks in eastern Afghanistan near Pakistan. About 3.5 million Afghan refugees live in camps and cities just inside Pakistan that serve as bases and supply points for the guerrillas.

Insurgents overran seven Afghan army posts in Logar province in the first week of April and, on Monday, a 460-unit Soviet convoy including more than 100 armored vehicles headed south toward the province from Kabul, the diplomats reported. They said the level of fighting appeared normal for early spring.

Radio Kabul reported that Afghan guerrillas downed a Soviet-built passenger plane near the Soviet border on Sunday, killing all 29 people aboard.

Increased fighting also was reported in Kandahar and Khost.

The withdrawal agreement is expected to be signed Thursday in Geneva by the Afghan government, Pakistan and the United States and Soviet Union as guarantors. The guerrillas were not invited to the negotiations and Pakistan acted as their representative.

In Moscow, an Italian source said Yuli Vorontsov, first deputy foreign minister, told Italian parliamentarians that 50,000

Soviet soldiers will be withdrawn in the first three months after May 15.

Soviet soldiers entered Afghanistan in December 1979 and Vorontsov's reported statement was the first indication Kremlin officials have given of how many were there.

Under the accord to be signed in Geneva, the Soviets agree to remove all the troops within nine months of May 15, half of them by Aug. 15.

Based on the figure given by Vorontsov, the total Soviet force in Afghanistan would be about 100,000. Western sources have estimated it at 115,000.

Guerrilla leaders have said they would ignore any agreement reached without their direct participation, and contend that the only real parties to the Afghan conflict are themselves and the Soviets.

They consider the government in Kabul, now led by Najib, to be a Kremlin puppet.

Diplomatic and other sources reported more fighting in Kandahar, Afghanistan's second-largest city, and said war-torn government and Soviet soldiers arrived in Kabul last week. All the sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

S. African novelist Paton dies

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Blacks and whites joined in paying tribute to Alan Paton, the country's most renowned author and an outspoken advocate of racial justice who died Tuesday at the age of 85.

Paton, whose novel "Cry, The Beloved Country" became one of the world's best-known depictions of apartheid, died of throat cancer at his estate outside the port city of Durban a day after he was released from a hospital to spend his last hours at home.

"He went peacefully, happy to have been in his own bed," said his wife, Anne.

"With his passing, an era has ended and our beloved country cries," Enos Mubusa, leader of the black homeland of Kwangano, said of the white author who was also a price and administrator, commentator, politician and public speaker.

"Cry, the Beloved Country," published in 1948, tells the story of a Zulu priest in search of his son, who is being sought by police for the murder of a white man. It has sold 1.5 million copies in 20 languages.

President P.W. Botha said of Paton: "Although he was a noted critic of the government, he was respected for his sincerity, never failing to temper his criticism with a recognition of positive developments and the realities of the situation."

Paton wrote only four works of fiction but campaigned relentlessly against apartheid, under which the white minority excluded blacks from national politics and restricted them to segregated neighborhoods, schools and hospitals.

In his later years, Paton was regarded as the elder statesman of South Africa's liberals. Some anti-apartheid groups considered him too conservative, and he was tolerated by National Party supporters who once considered him a traitor for his writings.

Besides his wife, survivors include Paton's two sons from his first marriage and five grandchildren. His first wife, Doris, died in 1967.

Emergency state lifted

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) - The government announced it will lift on Wednesday the state of emergency imposed last week after demonstrators attacked the U.S. Consulate to protest the arrest of an alleged drug trafficker.

Presidential spokesman Lisandro Quesada said Tuesday that President Jose Azcona Hoyo ordered the decree lifted at 6 p.m. (8 p.m. EDT) Wednesday.

"The causes for which the situation was decreed have disappeared and normality has returned," Quesada said.

"Therefore, the individual guarantees that our constitution establishes will be restored starting tomorrow."

The state of emergency ordered Friday gives authorities power to ban public demonstrations and restrict freedom of movement in Tegucigalpa and San Pedro Sula.

Robinson returns to Orioles helm

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson became baseball's first black manager since he was fired four years ago when he was named on Tuesday to replace Cal Ripken of the Baltimore Orioles in a move made in an attempt to rescue the club from its worst start in 33 years.

Under Ripken, the Orioles opened the 1988 season by losing their first six games after finishing the 1987 season with a 67-95 record, the third-worst mark since the franchise moved to Baltimore from St. Louis in 1954.

Robinson, the first black to manage at the major league level, was also the last black to manage in the big leagues. He was fired by the San Francisco Giants in 1984.

"I don't profess to be a Superman. But I do have ideas," Robinson said at a hastily called news conference at Memorial Stadium. His team then went to and lost 6-1 to Kansas City for their worst season start.

Robinson added he wanted the team to be more aggressive and his players to be "more fundamentally sound. If we don't, we'll be out here working at it."

Baltimore General Manager Roland Hemond said had Robinson decided not to take job, Ripken would have stayed on as manager.

Robinson, elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1982, was six games into his first season in a front-office position as a special assistant to the president. He had been a member of the Orioles' organization as player, coach or in the front office for 13 years.

He has a tough road ahead. I think he'll do OK."

"We are fortunate that Frank is available—and has agreed to accept the job," Hemond said. "He has the playing, coaching—and—managing background and the knowledge of the game to do the job well."

"He's also thoroughly familiar with the players in our organization as well as those in the American League."

Only two other blacks have managed in the major leagues, Larry Doby with the Chicago White Sox in 1976 and Maury Wills managed Seattle in 1980-81.

Ripken, who has been in the Orioles organization for 32 years, had no forewarning a move was going to be made.

"I'm disappointed, no question," Ripken said by telephone. "There was no indication that it was coming. I was in uniform. I was at my desk getting ready to write the lineup. Roland called me to come up to his office and he told me I was being relieved."

"I think this is a good ballclub. I think we can turn this thing around," Robinson said. "We're going to try to get to .500 as soon as possible, and then go from there."

Robinson begins his third stint as a major league manager. His first assignment was with the Cleveland Indians from 1974-77 and then was with the Giants from 1981-84.

"I don't think I ever felt the pressure of being in the position of being a black manager," Robinson said. "I am aware of the pressure of the position, but I don't let it bother me."

Commissioner Peter Ueberroth was pleased with Robinson's appointment.

"I knew about it. I had discussions with Ed Williams yesterday," said Ueberroth who was at the New York Mets home opener. "I think it's the appropriate appointment. It is the kind baseball is very pleased with. It's not tokenism. It's a quality guy. The Baltimore franchise believes in."

Earlier in the day, Ripken pleaded guilty to a drunk driving charge stemming from a Feb. 3 incident and agreed to continue treatment for alcohol abuse. Baltimore County District Court Judge Barbara Howe gave Ripken probation before judgment, fined him $750 and placed him on three years of probation.

Ripken had succeeded Earl Weaver as Orioles manager following the 1986 season, becoming the first man ever to manage two sons — Cal Ripken Jr. and Billy — simultaneously in major league baseball history. He had a 67-101 record as the Orioles manager over one season plus six games.

Ripken said the move would not affect his sons.

Lassen strikes early to roll past CSI 13-12

TWIN FALLS — Unfortunately for the College of Southern Idaho baseball team, when it loses a game it usually leaves some pretty obvious reasons for Coach Jim Walker to remind them of the rest of the week.

It was so Tuesday afternoon when the Eagles, despite a hard charge that almost ate up a seven-run lead, dropped a 13-12 decision to Lassen College of California.

Not forgetting that two relievers hardly muted the fire that the starting pitcher started, Walker pointed toward the sixth inning when Chris Hanks, on first base, was hit by what would have been a clean single into rightfield. That would have scored a run, put runners on first and third and set up all kinds of "ifs."

An inning later, Errol Shirer was picked off first base to bring a five-run rally to an end.

"It was just lousy base running," said Walker who then went on to add to the list of charges.

"In the ninth we have our four-five-six guys up and don't score. Any team five-six without a run is in trouble," he said.

His said contributing to the problem was the presence of two scouts both with specific targets in mind who were sitting in the stands.

"That caused (starting pitcher Don) Emery to over throw. Hanks' scout was here and he was pressing at the plate. We were just overreacting. We were wanting to do too well and that's the wrong team to get behind on."

"But," he offered mitigation, "we did try to come back. We just missed by a little."

Catcher John NesSmith, who is earning the ironman tag for the team with the other two catchers injured, hammered a pair of three runs homers to keep the Eagles in the hunt. His second three-run blast in the bottom of the eighth, established the final score. In-between, sophomore Lance Leiner belted a two-run shot to center.

"After NesSmith hits that three-run homer (in the fourth) we follow with what? Two popsups and a strikeout," Walker asked. "This team's problem is it has no one picking anybody up."

Walker said he was pleased with the designated hitting of usual reliever pitcher Tom Cheeks "who was robbed of one hit and had two others" in the late innings.

Lassen's eventual star was Will Love who belted a two-run homer in the fourth and a two-run double in the fifth — and then came in to pitch the final five outs and preserve the win.

Lassen's five-run second inning was built around three opening walks and singles by Randy Ridgeway and Scott Dobson before Mike McCollum punctuated it with a double.

Walker received one bit of good news with the probability that sophomore centerfielder Billy Satterfield will be available for Saturday's region-opening double-header with the Ricks Vikings. Satterfield was taken from the field Monday night in extreme pain after "dislocated a kneecap when a spike hung up during a slide into second base. Walker at first feared major surgery might be required.

"We need Billy in the lineup. He's big for us defensively and a key in the lineup batting third," the coach said.

"But," he offered mitigation, "we did try to come back. We just missed by a little."

Minico survives shakey start for 12-2 decision over Burley

By BRAD BREAUND
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Minico slapped out 14 hits and a pair of Spartan pitchers checked Burley on three hits as Minico run-ruled the Bobcats 12-2 in a Region III contest Tuesday afternoon.

The victory for the Spartans raised their record to 6-7 while the Bobcats dropped to 2-12 with the loss.

Things looked bright for Burley, starting a four-game road trip: in the first inning.

The Spartans started right-hander Jesse Villanueva against the Bobcats. Villanueva spent the first dozen games with his hand in a cast with a broken hand.

He had a hard time finding the strike zone, walking the first three batters. With Shay Watterston, Tom Messenbrink and Pete Rodriguez on base, it looked like Villanueva had settled down when he struck out the next batter. But he walked Brett Graham and hit Jeff Gibbons, spotting Burley a 2-0 lead six batters into the contest.

"Very rusty," said Coach Cory Bridges assessing Villanueva's first start. "He wasn't real happy with his performance. The control wasn't there."

The Spartans got out of the inning as Burley left three men on base and it turned out that the Bobcats would need those runs, as Minico answered in the bottom of the first inning with eight runs.

Minico sent 14 batters to the plate in the first inning and converted five hits and four Burley errors into eight runs.

With one out in the first inning, Kent Schow and Eric Miller singled. Dan Poulton hit a fly ball to centerfield that fell out of the fielder's glove and Schow scored.

Villanueva helped his own cause out by lining a double-plating Miller and Poulton.

John Zamora, pinch running for Villanueva, came home on a two-out single by Scott Condie.

Jack Bagley and Brett Horner walked leading the bases when a routine grounder to the shortstop was mishandled and Condie and Bagley scored. Errors continued to help the Spartans as Schow reached safely on an error and after Miller's second single of the inning, Poulton was on base for the second time via an error.

Meanwhile, Villanueva had a no-hitter through two innings, but Gibbons lined a single to ruin that.

The Bobcat starter, Tom Messenbrink, wasn't around when the second inning started, but that didn't seem to faze the Spartans.

Minico teed off on Troy Meridith when Condie doubted and came home on a single by Bagley.

The Spartans had a 9-2 lead, and Burley couldn't fight back, trailing nine runners on base.

"In the first inning, we should of been out with a 2-2 game," said Burley Coach Gordon Kerbs, whose troops play at Highland Thursday and Snake River on Saturday. "We can't do that (commit errors) against Minico. It's hard to come back."

Minico tied the score at 9-9 in the second inning. Kerbs, whose troops play at Highland Thursday and Snake River on Saturday. "We can't do that (commit errors) against Minico. It's hard to come back."

UCLA pulls basketball coach from neighboring Pepperdine

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Harrick was introduced as UCLA's new head basketball coach Tuesday and said he didn't care about not being the Bruins' first choice for the job.

"Did you know that John Wooden was the fourth choice at UCLA? I'm serious," Harrick said at a packed campus news conference, referring to the legendary coach who led the Bruins to 10 NCAA championships in 12 years before retiring in 1975.

"If it was good enough for him, it's good enough for me. I knew that when I was in Kansas City for the NCAA Final Four April 2-4."

Harrick, a former UCLA assistant who was the head coach at Pepperdine the past nine seasons, was hired 13 days after Walt Hazzard, who had held the job for four years, was dismissed.

Since Hazzard's firing, several big-name coaches were interviewed by UCLA amidst much hoopla. Among them were North Carolina State's Jim Valvano, who visited the school but withdrew from consideration on April 2, and Kansas' Larry Brown, who was offered the job last Thursday night and accepted it, but changed his mind the next day, deciding to stay with national champion Kansas.

Harrick, 49, said he signed a four-year contract.

"I knew where I stood at all times," Harrick said. "I had a clear understanding of the whole picture. A university has the privilege and right to hire whoever they choose. They find out told me.... Never did I not know my standing with (Athletic Director Peter) Dalis and I appreciate that. "I've worked every day of the last 28 years to prepare myself for this opportunity. I know the magnitude of this program. I know what we can accomplish. We have some great, young guys in the program. We're looking forward to a tremendous experience."

"I don't think I would have left my position at Pepperdine for any other position than UCLA."

The Bruins were 77-47 under Hazzard, but only 16-14 this past season, well below expectations a year after they won the Pacific-10 Conference championship.

Under Harrick, Pepperdine was 17-15 this season and 167-97 overall. The Waves appeared in the NCAA Tournament four times and The National Invitational Tournament twice in Harrick's nine years.

Harrick is the sixth coach at UCLA since Wooden retired. Gene Bartow, Gary Cunningham and Brown lasted two years each; Larry Farmer held the job three years and Hazzard four. None won an NCAA championship.

Harrick was an assistant under Cunningham from 1977-79. He took over at Pepperdine the following season.

"I think I've had the advantage of sitting here and watching five guys," Harrick said of the UCLA coaches after Wooden. "I will gain from each one, both positively and negatively. That will help me a great deal."

Dalis said he made up his mind to hire Harrick Monday night after an hour-long discussion with Louisville Coach Denny Crum, a former classmate of Dalis' and an assistant under Wooden. Harrick was informed of the decision Tuesday morning.

"When I called Jim this morning I asked him if he was ready to join me in the toughest job in college basketball," Dalis said. "It is, without a doubt. This place is a fishbowl, it really is. There is a built-in anxiety at UCLA."

When asked if Harrick was hired on the rebound of Brown's change of heart, Dalis said, "Maybe, indeed, that's what happened, but so what? Jim likes to point out he wasn't the first choice at Pepperdine and he's done an excellent job. I've always liked Jim Harrick as a coach. I think he can get the job done."

Contrary to what's been reported, Dalis said the job was actually offered to only two men — Brown and Harrick.

Harrick grew up in Charleston, W. Va. and went to Morris-Harvey College, now known as the University of Charleston.

Before his two years as an assistant at UCLA, Harrick was an assistant at Utah State for four years. Before that, he was an assistant and head coach at Morningside High in Anglewood.

"As much as I love Coach Wooden; I don't think much of the past," Harrick said. "This is going to be the first day of the future. This is going to be Jim Harrick's basketball team."

"I am a disciple of Coach Wooden technically. The three most important things are fundamentals, conditioning and team play."

TORONTO (AP) — Don Mattingly had five of New York's 18 hits, including one of 10 doubles, as the Yankees routed Toronto 12-3 Tuesday night.

Mattingly went 5-for-6, scoring twice and driving in a run in the fourth five-hit game of his career. His last five-hit game was in 1984.

The 10 doubles were one short of the American League record, set by Detroit against the Yankees on July 14, 1994.

Dave Winfield drove in three runs and Bobby Meacham scored three times as New York rebounded from a 17-9 whipping by the Blue Jays on Monday.

John Candalaria pitched a nine-hitter, striking out six and not walking anyone.

The Yankees scored seven runs in the first three innings off starter Tim Lincecum. Clancy, 0-1, kept Toronto scoreless on four hits until Juan Rencid hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning. Cecil Fielder homered in the ninth.

As in Monday's marathon, the Yankees started with a three-run first. Claudell Washington sliced the first of his two doubles down the left-field line for two runs and an infield grounder by Winfield brought in the third. Two walks and a single by Mattingly, who came in 3-for-22, had loaded the bases for Washington.

In the third inning, with two runners on, Mike Pagliarulo hit a ground-rule double for a run. An intentional walk loaded the bases and Winfield singled in two more runs.

Randy Bush then doubled leading off the second inning against reliever Chris Codrilli, 0-2. He walked Tom Brunansky and Steve Lombardozzi bunted before Gene Larkin was walked intentionally to load the bases.

With one out in the fourth, B.J. Surhoff got the first hit off Lefty by beating out a slow popup to the left of the mound for a single.

The other hits off Hurst were doubles by Paul Miller and Greg Brock and a single by Steve Kiefer. Hurst ended the first inning threat by retiring Rob Deer on a long fly and striking out Surhoff.

Spurs handle Rockets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Frank Brickowski had a career-high 34 points and added 15 rebounds, and the San Antonio Spurs started the fourth quarter with an 18-2 run en route to a 127-119 NBA victory over the Houston Rockets Tuesday night.

Brickowski, who scored his previous career high, 33, last Friday in Denver, scored nine points in the final period. The 18-2 spur to start the period gave the Spurs a 108-88 lead.

The Rockets' Akeem Oluajuwon had 26 points and 20 rebounds in a losing effort, while Spurs guard Alvin Robertson scored 21.

A 35-foot bank shot by Brickowski with one second left in the third quarter gave the Spurs a lift that carried over into the decisive fourth period. The 3-pointer gave San Antonio a 90-86 lead after three periods.

Los Angeles led 91-90 when Stockton passed to Malone for the dunk that put the Jazz ahead to stay. After a steal by Thurl Bailey, Stockton passed to Malone for another dunk and a 94-91 advantage with 2:27 left.

Those two dunks started the 10-0 run that gave the Jazz a 100-91 lead with 21 seconds left. Quintin Dailey's two free throws with 10 seconds left were the Clippers' only points in the last 4:18 of the game.

St Louis ousts Chicago

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nolan Ryan pitched a three-hitter through seven innings Tuesday night as the Houston Astros handed the Atlanta Braves their seventh consecutive defeat, 8-3.

The Braves equaled their worst start in the 22 years the franchise has been in Atlanta. The 1980 club also lost seven straight.

Ryan, 1-0, went staked to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on a run-scoring single by Bill Doran and Kevin Bass' two-run double. But control problems by Ryan helped the Braves tie the score.

Cards, Horner end bat slump

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Horner led St. Louis out of a season-long hitting slump with four hits and two RBI and the Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs 7-5 Tuesday night.

The Cardinals, who entered the game with a National League-worst batting average of .198, had a season-high 16 hits against five Chicago pitchers to raise their record to 2-5. Steve Lake added three hits, including a solo home run, and Vince Coleman had three hits, an RBI and two stolen bases.

Jose DeLeon, 1-1, was the winner despite surrendering three home runs to the Cubs. Todd Worrell came on in the eighth to gain his second save, although he gave up a run in the ninth.

Adams Division

At Montreal, Kevin Dineen and Carey Wilson started Hartford to an early lead and goaltender Richard Brodeur, a late substitute, made 22 saves.

The Whalers have won two straight after losing the first three games of the playoff series. The Canadiens have never lost a series in which they have held a 3-0 margin.

At Boston, Rick Middleton, benched for the first three games of the series but playing because of injuries to other forwards, had two goals and an assist for the Bruins.

Maple Leafs 6, Red Wings 5. At Detroit, Olegi, who has five goals in the series, took a pass from Brian Salming, spun around in the right facet circle and put a slapshot cleanly past substitute Detroit goalie Greg Stefan.

The Red Wings had tied the game at 5-5 on John Chabot's power-play goal at 3:19 of the third period.

Tom Fergus, Daniel Marois and Al Iafraite also scored for the Maple Leafs. Iafraite's unassisted power-play goal at 5:30 of the second period put Toronto ahead 3-2 and put starting goaltender Glen Hanlon out of the game with a pulled left groin muscle.

Twins 7, Indians 6

CLEVELAND (AP) — Reliever Doug Jones, making his first pitch of the year, hit Dan Gladden with the bases loaded to force in the tying run in the eighth inning Tuesday night as the Minnesota Twins ended the Cleveland's six-game winning streak 7-6.

The Twins trailed 6-2 after four innings. But they scored a run in the fifth on an error by left fielder Mel Hall and two in the seventh on Greg Gagne's two-run homer, his first, to get within 6-5.

Cavaliers 116, Hawks 103

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Ron Harper scored 25 points and Mark Price added 22 points and a career-high 14 assists as the Cleveland Cavaliers won their fourth consecutive game, 116-103 over the Atlanta Hawks Tuesday night.

Cleveland, winning for the seventh time in its last eight games, led by as many as 26 points in the third quarter. The Cavaliers dominated play from the outset, leading 33-22 at the end of one quarter and 65-48 at halftime.

Atlanta's Steve Nash had 25 points and 10 rebounds, but the Hawks were out of sync from the start.

CSi team, Bird take honors

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho's Twin Falls club won the 1987-88 National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) national championship by defeating the University of North Carolina 83-76 in the final game of the tournament.

Willie Bird of the host club was picked as the outstanding junior judokan at the 25th annual Twin Falls-CSDU Championships over the weekend.

The team is composed of Wiley Dobbs, Frank Hirai, Eric Hoopiniian, Greg Dobbs and Craig Beutler. The club also had four individual champions in Amy Fuller, junior high-weight lifter; Brian Rary, nine-year-old light weight; Bird, 10-year-old middle weight; Bruce Verstate, senior white belt; and Brian Dobbs, midweight brown belt.

Rasmussen, Lee card aces

TWIN FALLS — Two holes-in-one were carded during competition at Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course Sunday and Monday.

John Rasmussen posted the first one with a hole-in-one on the par three, 160-yard No. 14 green, Captain of a Men's Association scramble team. Rasmussen admitted to some embarrassment in reporting he'd used a five-iron.

"But the wind was blowing pretty well at the time and I felt it would take a little more to get there. But I don't argue with the results."

Lynn Lee added another Monday on the 170-yard par three second hole — after he'd placed in the Twin Falls pro-am and hadn't had enough golf.

He went out for a recreation round with Mark Lee and Patty Kincaid and accomplished the feat with a four-iron.

Tyson favored over Spinks

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson has opened as a 4-1 favorite at most Las Vegas sports books to beat Michael Spinks in their June 27 title fight.

Bookmakers said early betting has been mixed on the fight, which many figure will meet or surpass the betting total on last April's mid-weight title fight between Sugar Ray Leonard and Marvelous Marvin Hagler.

"It's real early but we're getting a lot of action," said Bob Gregorka, oddsmaker at the Frontier Hotel race and sports book. "We're looking to do some good business on this fight."

Gregorka said he opened Tyson at minus $3.50, or a 3-1/2 favorite, but the line has moved to 4-1 with some early bets on the champion. Spinks is plus $3.00, meaning $10 bet on Spinks will earn a better amount $30 if he wins.

At the Golden Nugget, sports book director Jimmy Vaccaro said he made Tyson an early 5-1 favorite.

"Just favor Tyson a little bit more," said Vaccaro.

Most sports books have the fight at a 7-5 favorite to go at least six rounds of the scheduled 12-round distance.

"Our feeling is Spinks will stay away in the early rounds," said Gregorka.

Theismann signs with ESPN

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Washington Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann has been hired by ESPN as an expert analyst for telecasts of NFL games, the cable sports network said Tuesday.

Theismann left CBS, where he was a color analyst since 1986, to join ESPN, which does Sunday night NFL telecasts.

"Theismann is knowledgeable, articulate and insightful and will be a tremendous asset to our telecasts," said Steven M. Bornstein, senior vice president for programming and production at ESPN.

Steelers tackle has surgery

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers nose tackle Gary Dunn underwent arthroscopic surgery on his knee to repair cartilage damage, the team said Tuesday.

The surgery was performed last Thursday in Miami, where the 6-foot-3, 275-pound Dunn lives during the off-season, the team said. The team declined to comment on Dunn's prognosis or how the operation could affect his ability to play next season.

Dunn, 34, has played for the Steelers for 11 seasons. He underwent two off-season knee operations in January and July of 1986.

Knicks print NBA tickets

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks have seen fit to print and sell NBA playoff tickets, something they haven't done in four years.

Whether the Knicks make the playoffs remains to be seen as they and four other teams — Cleveland, Indiana, Washington and Philadelphia — scramble for the three remaining postseason berths.

There's something to be said for not making the playoffs; they would have a shot at a lottery pick in the draft. Kansas All-American forward Danny Manning would fit in nicely with center Patrick Ewing and guard Mark Jackson.

"It's not even worth discussing," Knicks rookie coach Rick Pitino said. "It's ridiculous. I never thought one about the lottery, myself. Making the playoffs would be an incredible experience for these guys. They've been losing every year."

Injury slows Bills' Butler

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Injured Buffalo Bills wide receiver Jerry Butler will know by the team's spring mini-camp next month whether he fits into the team's plans for next season, according to Coach Marv Levy.

Levy said Butler, who hasn't played since breaking his ankle 11 weeks into the 1986 season, will have to show him he's fully recovered by the mini-camp, which runs from May 11-15.

"I told Jerry if he's ready to go by mini-camp, that would be encouraging," said Levy. "If he's not, then we ought to sit down and talk about what his future is... whether he figures into our plans or not."

Butler, who jogged around Rich Stadium Monday for the first time since a February operation to remove bone fragments from the ankle, didn't sound optimistic.

"Unless a lot happens between now and then, I don't really see a big improvement," said the 30-year-old veteran. "What I did today was kind of like an old man's trot. I'm not impressed with anything yet."

Little Loop tryouts set

TWIN FALLS — Tryouts for Twin Falls Little League traveling team will be held Saturday at Diamond 3 at H. Mann Park.

Nine to 10-year-olds should report at 9 a.m. with tryouts lasting to noon. Eleven and 12-year-old session will run from 1 to 4 p.m.

More information is available at 733-4939.

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — A former co-owner of the USFL's Arizona Outlaws controls the rights to 1,869 season-tickets for the Phoenix Cardinals, but officials with the transplanted NFL club may be planning to contest it.

Cardinals officials say they still could reject portions of the ticket list owned by Bill Tatham Jr. and require those listed have receipts proving they have money on deposit for the tickets.

Tatham, who owned the team along with his father Bill Tatham Sr., reportedly received some of the tickets as tradeouts for services in lieu of salary before the USFL folded in 1986.

"I'm excited about having that many tickets. I earned that many tickets and frankly it's not that much after (spending) $20 million (on his USFL franchise)," Tatham said. "But I'm not going to make a dime off those tickets. I have long-standing commitments for practically every single seat and they are all for charitable and civic organizations."

Cardinals owner Bill Bidwill said his club has a policy against the transfer of seats for 15 years.

"For us, a season ticket is a ticket that has been paid for in cash," said

Thomas Guilfoil, the club's lawyer. "While we don't have a great sympathy for the Outlaw priority, if it were confined to members of the general public who actually paid out money for season tickets and who had not received refunds, I suppose it would not be as distasteful a situation as the present situation."

Guilfoil said the Cardinals would like to preserve any actions that are open to us and could reject portions of the Tatham's ticket list.

"We clearly are not sympathetic with the Outlaw priority as it has been interpreted at the university level," he said.

When the Cardinals gained NFL approval March 15 to move from St. Louis to Phoenix and play next season at Arizona State University's Sun Devil Stadium in suburban Tempe, school officials said Outlaws' season-ticket holders would have top priority for Cardinals' tickets to fulfill a legal requirement in a previous USFL lease.

"That policy is being challenged by a local group called SEATS — Sports Fans For Equal Access to Ticket Selections — that has filed a lawsuit in Maricopa County Superior Court.

Joseph Hospital. Chermers said it may be 3-4 months before Haugen fights again.

Haugen, who was expected to win easily, conceded he wasn't fighting well. "I really didn't want the fight," he said. "I could see where I could hit him, but I just couldn't hit him."

"We want to be fair and we're being fair," Jimmy Rouseau, IBF vice president and a Washington Boxing Commission member from Camano Island, said of the reversal.

Rouseau said he expected the IBF to order a rematch, and he would recommend it.

Verdict reversed half-hour after fight

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Greg Haugen regained his International Boxing Federation lightweight title only 30 minutes after he lost it.

Miguel Santana's fist was first raised in victory in the ring Monday night, and it wasn't until Haugen went to Santana's dressing room that both fighters learned the decision had been reversed.

Referee Jim Cassidy had stopped the fight and declared Santana the winner when Haugen could not answer the bell for the 17th round because of a severe cut in his right eyebrow caused by an unintentional butt to the head.

After conferring with fight officials, Cassidy admitted he made a mistake and the title was given back to Haugen.

"A win is a win, but Greg didn't like it," Haugen's trainer, George Chermers, said Tuesday. "He likes to work for his wins."

Lenny DeJesus of New York, trainer for Santana, was furious at the reversal, which came as he was holding a locker room press conference. "Santana, of San Juan, Puerto Rico, does not speak English."

"This is unprecedented," he said.

"This is the first time a decision has been reversed in the locker room."

The bizarre turnaround was announced long after the departure of most of the crowd of 7,401 who showed up at the Tacoma Dome to see the 27-year-old Haugen defend his 135-pound title.

The fight was a homecoming for Haugen, formerly of Auburn, Wash., north of Tacoma, and an effort to rekindle interest in boxing in the Puget Sound area.

Haugen slipped out of Santana's dressing room and had the two-inch gash repaired with 30 stitches at St.

Joseph Hospital. Chermers said it may be 3-4 months before Haugen fights again.

Haugen, who was expected to win easily, conceded he wasn't fighting well. "I really didn't want the fight," he said. "I could see where I could hit him, but I just couldn't hit him."

Cards off to worst start in 15 years

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Shortstop Ozzie Smith says anyone whose car has ever putt-putted down the highway or stalled at a traffic light should have a good idea why the St. Louis Cardinals are off to such a poor start.

"It's like a car firing; you have to have all your sparkplugs working together," Smith said.

On the Cardinals, the sparkplugs are not firing and the club is 1-5, its worst opening in 15 years. Not at all becoming for the defending National League champion.

A team batting average of .198 has produced only 21 runs a game. The top three batters in the lineup, who are supposed to trigger an offense that relies far more on speed than power, are hitting a collective .151.

Vince Coleman, the leadoff who at this time a year ago had the Cardinals scoring at a 6-5 runs-per-game pace, is batting .107. Smith isn't much better at .174, and Tommy Herr is at .182.

"I think your leadoff hitter has to be the catalyst for any ballclub. To this point, (Coleman) hasn't really gotten into a groove. It's a team. Everybody has something to do," Smith said.

So-far were the Cardinals during Monday night's 6-1 loss to the Chicago Cubs that Manager Whitey Herzog could only ponder possible solutions.

"We just have to get on base more. There's not much margin for error," Herzog said. "I could take the same guys and juggle them up, but I don't know if that's going to do anything."

The batting anemia is affecting almost everyone.

Bob Horner, the former Atlanta Braves slugger St. Louis signed as a free agent in January, has a respectable .273 batting mark — as does Terry Pendleton, the lineup's No. 6 hitter.

But Willie McGee, the No. 5 hitter, is hitting .176. Following Pendleton are Curt Ford (.100) and Tony Pena (.211). The club, traditionally last in NL home runs in part because of its spacious home park, had hit only two in six games — one of them by pitcher Joe Magrane.

The paucity of hits has kept St. Louis from capitalizing on 10 stolen bases, including five in one game.

The situation is reminiscent of 1973. St. Louis wobbled out of spring training that year and eventually stood 1-12. That record became even worse, 5-20, before it got better. But by the All-Star break, the Cardinals led the National League East.

Herzog would like to think the club can accomplish a similar turnaround. But so far, the signs are not at all promising.

In one loss, the Cardinals failed to convert a single, walk, hit batsman and three stolen bases the same inning into a run. And, in the absence of scoring, errors in the field — including four by a sore-armed Pendleton at third base — have been more costly than they otherwise might have been.

"We're acting like we don't know how to play the game," Herz said following Sunday's 5-3 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates in 11 innings.

"We're running into outs, we're missing signs, we're not executing plays like we should," Herr said. "We've always prided ourselves on doing those types of things. If we don't do them, we're not going to win."

Nonetheless, one needs look back no further than 1985 — when St.

Louis won a pennant despite a 2-7 start — to keep from writing the Cardinals off.

"It's just a matter of time," Chicago catcher Jody Davis said in predicting a St. Louis recovery. "Hopefully we can get in here and out of here before they catch on."

St. Louis Hawks plan big reunion

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It's been 30 years since the St. Louis Hawks defeated the Boston Celtics to accomplish what only the baseball Cardinals have done for this city: They won a professional sports championship.

To celebrate that old but not forgotten victory, Ben Kerner — who sold the Hawks to Atlanta investors 20 years ago — is convening a reunion of players, coaches and media from the championship season.

Starting Friday, there will be testimonial dinners, golf, doubles tennis and reminiscing — everything except basketball for these mostly silver-haired gentlemen.

"Basketball? Are you kidding?" said forward Ed "Easy Ed" Macauley, who still lives in St. Louis and was one of the organizers of the reunion. "That's a quick way to get hurt."

Cream of asparagus soup, shrimp pot pie, cherry and apple phyllo, bibb salad and lemon ginger tea complete a memorable meal

A spring brunch

Nothing beats a simple weekend brunch for a relaxing get-together with friends. The menu need not be elaborate to be impressive...just spiced up with special touches.

Start with simple, yet elegant Cream of Asparagus Soup, made with canned or frozen asparagus. Serve garnished with asparagus spears or tips.

The star of the menu is Shrimp Pot Pie, a contemporary version of a popular comfort food. Its base is a creamy white sauce made with chopped onion, carrots and celery sautéed in bottled Italian dressing. The dressing is a great substitute for oil and provides a real flavor boost to any recipe. Shrimp and asparagus complete the pie. Asparagus contains vitamins A and C and is very low in sodium and calories.

Bibb Salad with Herbal Citrus Dressing is a refreshing complement to this menu with its fresh selection of fruits and vegetables. Top with Herbal Citrus Dressing for a unique taste sensation.

Brunch wouldn't be complete without a special dessert like Cherry 'N Apple Phyllo Crunch, reminiscent of mom's cherry pie.

This contemporary version is easy to make and features a no-fuss fruit and nut filling under a delicate phyllo topping. Canned cherry pie filling makes a quick and easy base for the filling that's laced with black raspberry liqueur and cinnamon. The result is spectacular!

For the beverage, serve steaming cups of Lemon Ginger Tea, a soothing blend of fresh ginger and lemon peel brewed with tea bags. It's bound to provide a memorable close to a relaxing brunch.

So the next time the urge to entertain strikes, try this menu out. Because it relies on convenience products, preparation is easy and leaves plenty of time to enjoy your guests.

One chain told me they used to have a poster up, but people complained about the food so they took it down. Fast food logic is a new way of thinking, Wendy's supplied me with a booklet the next day, but after making four calls to Kentucky Fried Chicken and finally landing in Louisville, Ky., they promised to send me some information. It did arrive in less than a week. The local manager of Dairy Queen was very helpful but had no nutrition information available and the owner in Seattle demanded "What's this for?" I received a response from Minneapolis to send something, but it hasn't arrived yet. Rax had no information available, even from the home office, but let me roam through their locker and store, Fortunately, I came across "The Fast Food Guide" by Michael Jacobson and Sarah Fritschner. It's available at local book stores for $4.95.

Why are those ingredients a secret? I'm not going to be able to recreate a Whopper by knowing its protein, fat and carbohydrate content. Besides, I don't have to call General Foods to find out what is in their pancake mix.

Ingredient labeling is currently a hot potato in the fast food arena. According to "The Fast Food Guide," The FDA has the power to require labeling, but for various reasons has chosen not to. Since a Quarter Pounder is the same the world over, why can't it be labeled like a can of tomatoes?

The criticism surrounding fast food focuses on its high fat, specifically the saturated fat, sodium, processed sugars and calories compared to the relatively low amounts of vitamins, minerals and fiber.

Cut off asparagus tips; reserve.

In medium saucepan, heat blended Italian dressing, add onions and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 3 minutes or until tender. Add chicken broth and asparagus stalks. Bring to a boil, then simmer covered, stirring occasionally, 3 minutes.

In blender, puree hot soup mixture in two batches, then return to saucepan. Add reserved asparagus tips. Stir in cream, nutmeg and pepper; heat through, but do not boil. Makes about 6 servings.

*Substitution: Use 2 packages (10-ounces each) frozen asparagus spears, thawed.

Microwave directions:

In 2½ quart, microwave-safe casserole, heat dressing and onions, covered, at High (Full Power) 4 minutes, stirring once. Stir in chicken broth and asparagus stalks, then heat 8 to 10 minutes or until boiling and asparagus is tender. In blender, puree hot soup mixture in two batches, then return to casserole. Add reserved asparagus tips, cream, nutmeg and pepper. Decrease power to Medium (50 percent of full power) and heat 3 minutes or until heated through, stirring once.

SHRIMP POT PIE

- ½ cup Italian dressing
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup finely chopped carrots
- ¼ cup finely chopped celery
- ½ cup all-purpose flour
- ¾ cup chicken broth
- ¾ cup light cream or half and half
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese (about 4 ounces)
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1 package (16-ounces) refrigerated pie crusts for two (9-inch) crusts

Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

In medium saucepan, heat Italian dressing and cook onion, carrots and celery over medium-high heat, stirring occasionally, 3 minutes or until tender. Stir in flour, then gradually add broth. Bring to a boil, then simmer, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened, about 2 minutes. Stir in cream, cheese, Worcestershire sauce and thyme. In large bowl, combine Italian dressing mixture, shrimp and asparagus; set aside.

Line 10-inch pie plate with one pie crust. Spoon in the shrimp mixture and adjust top crust, cutting slits for steam to escape; seal and flute. Brush, if desired, with 1 egg beaten with 1 teaspoon water. Bake 35 minutes or until crust is golden. Let stand 10 minutes. Makes about 6 servings.

*Substitution: use ¾-pound cooked fresh asparagus.

Fast-food heaven can be dangerous to your arteries

After a long, cold, blustery winter and a spring with more of the same, everyone is ready for a vacation. While many envision blue skies, white sand and balmy breezes as paradise, I see juicy burgers with special sauce and a chocolate shake. I decided to take a hiatus from my everyday fare of whole wheat and raw vegetables and visit the hall of fame of fat and cholesterol on Blue Lakes Boulevard.

Now I admit right off to eating fast food, but not nine times a month as the average American does, and that is a 1985 figure.

In 1962, 28 percent of American meals were eaten away from home and by 1990, it is projected that 45 percent will be. One out of two restaurants is now a fast food outlet. In 1986, more than $1 billion was spent on fast food according to the National Restaurant Association. McDonald's, the leader in fast food sales, takes in more than $12 billion a year from its more than 10,000 stores. A typical outlet takes in $1.5 million annually. Maybe those arches are goldplated!

Clearly, fast food is no longer an occasional harmless treat, but a growing segment of our diet and big business that needs close scrutiny. The

The traffic may be hazardous, but Taiwan's food is delightful

TAIPEI, China — Imagine Blue Lakes Boulevard, at a major intersection, after dark, with eight lanes of traffic, with all of the cars in the Magic Valley and all of the motorcycles, motorcooters and motorbikes from California on this street, and you're teetering on a 6-inch-piece of concrete in the middle of it all.

No, it isn't a game, it's real life per se!

What started as a simple errand to the nearest grocery store for supplies for the Idaho booth at the American Trade Center in Taipei, ended as a big problem. The only good thing I can remember was that for once it wasn't raining!

My companion Georgina Wolverson (Murtagh) and I made it, but only with the help of kind drivers that we prayed were truly being nice.

That corner remained a difficulty during the rest of our stay. The only time we felt even vaguely comfortable was traversing its perils in a taxi and even then we were anything but safe.

I'm double lucky in that I get to travel, but also that I get to share it with great companions.

Sometimes I'm sure Georgina wondered what she had gotten into when I led her into the subways of Tokyo, but when we surface above ground just where we should, boy was she relieved!

We also were sharing the same diet and more or less kept each other on it. The recipes here were some of our favorites when we stayed.

EIGHT JEWEL RICE

- 3 tablespoons peanut oil
- 1-ounce or about 2 tablespoons chopped green onions, mostly white but include some of the green
- 1 pint cold cooked rice
- 2 large prawns or shrimp, shelled and diced (you can use canned shrimp of any size that's been drained and rinsed)
- 1 ounce cooked pork or ham
- 1-ounce diced chicken or turkey meat (can be pre-cooked if not, then dice smaller)
- 1-ounce shredded crabmeat (I opened a can of crab, divided it into 1 ounce portions and froze the remaining portions for future.)
- 1 large Chinese mushroom, dried. (Soak this for at least 10 minutes in plain water and then slice it.)
- A pinch of salt (optional, as the mushroom has quite a bit of sodium, you might want to forget more salt)
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- ½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate (you probably have this in your cup-

It's time for strawberry pie

New blossoms, budding leaves, clear blue skies and the warmth of spring sunshine are working their magic on winter-weary spirits. But for food lovers, spring is not a reality until the sweet fragrance and red-ripe color of fresh strawberries begin to brighten supermarket produce counters once again.

Strawberry Cookie Pie, for example, calls for a simple but scrumptious chocolate crust by using crushed chocolate wafers. Egg whites and gelatin beaten to airy lightness and folded into whipped cream make a tall, frothy filling. Bright red bits of strawberry are whisked throughout, creating a festive confetti texture.

STRAWBERRY COOKIE PIE
Chocolate Crumb Crust (recipe follows)

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
2 pint baskets fresh strawberries, stemmed
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg whites
1 cup whipping cream

Prepare Chocolate Crumb Crust; set aside. In small saucepan soften gelatin in water about three minutes. Reserve 12 whole strawberries for garnish. With electric blender or food processor puree remaining strawberries until slightly chunky. Transfer to large bowl; stir in lemon juice. Add sugar to gelatin mixture; cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves and mixture is clear. Do not boil. Cool 5 minutes; mix into pureed strawberries. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. In bowl beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold strawberry mixture into egg whites. Beat whipping cream until soft peaks form. With rubber spatula, fold gently into strawberry mixture until white streaks disappear. Mound into prepared pie shell. Garnish with reserved strawberries. Chill until set, about 2 hours. Makes 6, to 8 servings.

Chocolate Crumb Crust: Place 7 ounces chocolate cookie wafers in electric blender or food processor container; process to make crumbs (you should have 1 1/2 cups). In bowl mix crumbs and 1/2 cup melted butter. Press firmly onto bottom of 9-inch pie pan. Bake in 350-degree oven 10 minutes. Cool.

Country French dishes a hit

The Washington Post

Welcome the sun by setting up a brunch in your backyard to watch your crocus grow. Slump on tradition and serve champagne mixed with grapefruit juice instead.

Raid the chicken coop, or for the more faint of heart, the poultry section of your supermarket, and select a nice, plump bird. Stuff with fresh parsley, rosemary and thyme. For a crusty skin, puree garlic, parsley, salt and pepper together and stuff the area between the skin and the chicken breast. An 8- to 12-pound chicken will take about 2 to 2 1/2 hours to roast.

Or make this simple lemon-basil sauce featured in "Good Friends, Great Dinners" by Susan Costner (Crown, 1987): In a medium-size saucepan, combine 1 1/2 cups white wine, 2 small minced shallots and 1 cup whole fresh basil leaves, and reduce to 1/2 cup over high heat. Strain through a sieve lined with cheesecloth and return to the saucepan that has been wiped lean. Whisk in 1/2 cup butter, 1 teaspoon at a time, over low heat; then stir in 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice and season with salt and pepper to taste. Serve over sauteed chicken breasts or veal scallopini.

Instead of the usual onion-stirring gazpacho, try this cold, elegant curry chicken soup from Jacqueline Heriteau's "A Feast of Soups" (Ballantine, 1981): In a saucepan, simmer 5 cups chicken broth. In another bowl, beat 4 egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add 2 teaspoons curry powder, 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper, and 1/4 teaspoon lemon juice. Stir in 2 cups whipping cream. Stir in 1 cup hot broth, then return the mixture to the saucepan and heat until just below boiling; any hotter will curdle it. Add salt and pepper to taste. Refrigerate, covered, for 3 to 4 hours. Add 1 cup finely chopped cooked chicken breasts before serving.

But nothing says spring more than a country French dish. If you have salt, pepper and butter, it won't take long to prepare this garlicky dish below.

Express-lane list: pike, thyme, garlic, wine vinegar

PIKE WITH GARLIC AND VINEGAR SAUCE (2 servings)

2 1/4 pound pike, including head and tail (red snapper, striped bass or monkfish may be substituted)
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 sprig fresh thyme
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, softened
16 large cloves garlic, unpeeled
2 tablespoons wine vinegar

Wash the fish under cold running water, and sponge it dry with paper towels. Sprinkle the pike, inside and out, with salt and freshly ground pepper; then slip a sprig of thyme into the cavity. Rub a roasting or gratin dish just large enough to hold the fish with 2 tablespoons butter and scatter the unpeeled cloves of garlic over all. Lay the fish on its belly over the garlic, spreading open the ventral area to stabilize the fish in an upright position. Press the remaining butter lavishly over the top and sides of the fish.

Bake fish about 30 minutes at 425 degrees, basting it every 5 minutes with the cooking butter and pan juices. Make sure that the butter does not burn. If you should hear the butter sizzle, place your roasting pan within another, slightly larger, roasting pan. The cold metal will take away some of the heat from the pan holding the fish.

After the fish has baked 15 minutes, add 3 tablespoons of the wine vinegar, sprinkling it over the fish. Every 5 minutes thereafter, baste the fish, adding another 3 tablespoons of vinegar, until you have added 9 tablespoons of vinegar in all. At this time cooking should be finished.

The butter and vinegar will glaze the fish, giving it a beautiful golden brilliance. The cloves of garlic will be cooked, and the oils in the emulsion of the butter and the vinegar reduction, the juices should be the consistency of thick syrup.

Health foods under attack; 'food terrorism' is charged

Segments of the health food industry came under fire recently in an editorial published in the newsletter of the National Council Against Health Fraud.

The Loma Linda, Calif.-based group, whose members consist of traditional medical and nutritional professionals, sharply criticized those who promote alternative dietary practices, stating that this creates "unnecessary fear" about the nation's food supply.

In fact, the newsletter went on to state that individuals who undermine the public's confidence for profit can be accused of "food terrorism."

The term was specifically applied to "people with ulterior motives who create unnecessary fear, anxiety and worry about conventional foods." The editorial further stated that, once fostered, this climate of fear leads to the increasing problem of nutrition quackery.

In addition to food, the targets of the so-called quacks are water supplies and health care, the newsletter said.

"The health food industry is founded upon food terrorism. The industry justifies its very existence on the false notion that supermarket foods are unhealthful," the newsletter stated.

A spokesman for the National Health Federation, a Monrovia, Calif.-based group that represents several segments of the health food trade, said the council's editorial is just the latest in a series of attempts to discredit the industry.

"I'm intrigued by the idea that the terrorists are the people that suggest we don't add pesticides to foods nor herbicides to the soil nor cancer-causing additives to the diet," said Clinton Ray Miller.

Shrimp have infinite variety

By JOAN DRAKE
The Los Angeles Times

Q: A recent food column has shrimp listed as "raw," "green," "white," "rock" and "bay." Could we have an explanation of these terms?

A: The first two terms — "raw" and "green" — are synonymous and designate uncooked shrimp. "White" and "rock" are types of shrimp.

Actually, there are hundreds of species of freshwater and saltwater shrimp, according to "The Encyclopedia of Fish Cookery" (Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 1977).

Author A.J. McClane goes on to say: "There are seven species of shrimp of commercial importance in our Atlantic waters and the Gulf of Mexico. It really takes an expert to distinguish one from another, as anything we say about coloration is simply a generalization. For example, pink shrimp and brown shrimp are sometimes similar in color despite their different names."

The following descriptions are provided:

Brown shrimp (Panaeus aztecus) is reddish brown, with tinges of blue or purple on the tail and on some of the legs.

Pink shrimp (Panaeus duorarum) seem to vary according to geographic locality: Along the Atlantic Coast they are usually light brown; in the Tortugas fishery they are pink; and along the northern Gulf Coast they often resemble brown shrimp or can even be lemon-yellow.

White shrimp (Panaeus setiferus) found from North Carolina to the Gulf of Mexico and Texas, and the Caribbean white shrimp (Panaeus schmitti) are usually grayish white and are variously tinged about the tail and legs with green, red and blue.

Sea bob (Xiphopenaeus kroyeri), distributed from Cape Hatteras to Zimbro Bay, Brazil, is usually red or pinkish-red when alive but will turn black when cooked or frozen.

"The interchange in the names 'shrimp' and 'prawn' has no universal recognition."

of oil they used. Burger King, Arby's and Kentucky Fried Chicken uses clearly labeled partially hydrogenated soy bean oil. Wendy's uses "vegetable oil" but does not state which kind. It could be coconut which is more highly saturated than lard.

McDonald's uses an animal/vegetable blend for french fries but vegetable oil for everything else. I don't know what kind, because it was the only place that refused to produce a label.

Dairy Queen and Rax use an animal/vegetable blend for all their frying. Most of the oils also contain BHA, BHT and TBHQ and dimethyl polysiloxane. These chemicals keep them from getting rancid and foaming. In other words, a restaurant can keep using their oil long after you and I would have to throw ours out at home.

If only french fries had been available in the Garden of Eden, Adam may never have been tempted to try a plain old apple. Who can resist the seductive aroma when a potato hits hot fat? An order of regular fries contains 21 (Arby's) to 280 (Wendy's) calories.

There are signs of change for the better. Restaurants are, however reluctantly, revealing their ingredients since 1986 when McDonald's yielded to pressure and began the trend. You can make intelligent choices.

Remember "creamy," "juicy," and "sauce" mean fat, fat and fat. Cheese, bacon and extra crisp mean more fat. Regular-size burgers — forget double, triple, "the works" and deluxe — with a trip to the salad bar and an 8 ounce carton of 2 percent milk is a reasonable meal.

While it's great to see the appearance of salad bars — beware. The good, the bad and the ugly all exist together. I found chocolate pudding, fatty pasta and potato salads intermingled with the fresh fruit and vegetable trays. Hurray for Arby's. Last week they had fresh strawberries. Most salad bars have at least one low-fat dressing. McDonald's finally offers salads and their lite vinaigrette dressing contains 48 calories per ounce.

Hold the condiments. Almost every place is willing to do it your way. Ask for the sauce on the side and apply it sparingly yourself. It's worth the extra wait. Remove the breading if you really want to trim fat although what's Kentucky Fried without the 11 herbs and spices?

In some outlets, Wendy's offers multi-grain buns, but not in Twin Falls. Ask politely when you visit. I'm sure they'll get the message. Arby's version of a whole wheat bun was brown but the label revealed no whole wheat and caramel coloring and lard.

Nationally Arby's and Kentucky Fried Chicken offer a roasted chicken breast, but not in Twin Falls. Again, ask.

McDonald's has removed MSG from McNuggets and reduced the sodium by one-third in their hotcakes. Their test market pizza is baked.

At Rax, I was surprised to find Grey Poupon mustard and low fat yogurt and lots of fresh veggies next to the boxes of MSG laden mixes. At least they have a variety of offerings that leave the fat content of a meal up to you.

Wendy's chili with 28 percent fat even with 1070mg of sodium is a wise choice unless your blood pressure is high. Don't forget the plain baked potato with butter on the side.

Maybe some of the more than one-half billion dollars spent on advertising last year, by the big three, McDonald's, Burger King and Wendy's, will be spent on trying new healthful alternatives in the future. Just because Ronald is lining his pockets with gold, don't let him line your arteries with McLard.

A far cry from the health food debate is a developing alliance between two normally fierce competitors: the supermarket industry and fast-food restaurants. The Kroger Co. — the nation's largest food retailer, is now offering Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger Beef in its meat cases.

The ground beef is sold in one- and three-pound packages labeled with the Wendy's logo, according to the Western States Meat Association newsletter. The product is a success in the three Ohio cities — Cincinnati, Dayton and Columbus — where it is in use.

4 slices carrot

salt

1 teaspoon sherry (cooking or real)

1/2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate

pepper

3/4 pint chicken stock or broth

1/4 teaspoon cornstarch

1 tablespoon water

1/2 teaspoon gingelly oil (definitely optional). However, I did add about 1/4 teaspoon fresh ground gingerroot to the chicken and liked it.

Slice the chicken meat and add to the sliced mushrooms. Remove the rough part of the snow peas (thaw if frozen).

Cook the dried noodles in a large saucepan of boiling salted water for 3 minutes, rinse in cold water and drain well.

Heat the oil in a saute pan or wok and fry the mushroom, snow peas, carrots and chicken. Add a pinch of salt (optional) sherry, 1/4 teaspoon monosodium glutamate and pepper. Add 1/2 pint (1 cup) chicken stock or broth and mix well.

Blend the cornstarch with 1-tablespoon of water, stir it in the above mixture and cook for one minute.

Reheat the cooked noodles in remaining chicken broth and monosodium glutamate. Cook for one minute.

Place into individual serving bowl or bowls and then place the cooked chicken mixture on top of the noodles (do this artistically for the authentic touch.)

If you have the gingelly oil, sprinkle it on top. If not, you could add a bit of crumbled, cooked egg yolk to the top.

These are both easy and good recipes. Enjoy!

Adding a vanity can be rewarding

Newsday

Replacing a vanity is a straightforward and fairly rewarding home-improvement project.

By converting a wall sink to one of these units, you can add extra counter and storage space. Prices tend to be reasonable, too: There are plenty of good-looking vanities in the home centers for between $100 and $200.

You have some custom options as well. Some interesting projects involve converting an older piece of furniture into a vanity. All it takes is a new mica or cultured-marble top, and a little attention to space underneath to allow for piping clearances. Generally, this argues for furniture with doors, not drawers, since the latter get in the way of piping underneath.

Vanities from custom cabinetry shops tend to be more expensive than stock models, but are particularly good problem-solvers. You can measure out the room and have an oversize one, built to fit as much space as you have, possibly even including drawers or a second sink. And when a sink is next to a toilet, it may be worth opting for a custom top, so that you can extend the counter over the toilet tank, curving it inward toward the wall to allow for seating.

Whichever route you go, installation is essentially similar: If the basin and faucet sets are already assembled, as they usually are, about all you'll need is a level, an adjustable wrench, a tubing cutter, a drill and a saw.

For starters, get rid of the existing sink: Turn off the water at the valves underneath the fixture. With the wrench, unscrew the little hexagonal nuts at the top of the valve, and remove the thin tubing that leads to the faucet. Then unscrew the nuts that hold the drain assembly together.

If you're removing an existing vanity, you may also have to remove the counter, or unbolt the whole assembly from the wall. Look around underneath for any attachment screws; usually you'll find these at the frame that reinforces the edges of the cabinet. Also note, as best you can, the location of any studs in the wall, and mark them at a height above the new counter; you'll need these marks later to help you anchor the vanity to the wall.

To remove a wall-hung sink, proceed as above; the sink should lift free of the wall-bracket that supports it.

Before you add the new vanity, you'll have to cut entry holes in it for the plumbing.

Strawberries, raspberries easy to grow

Strawberries and raspberries are two of the easiest to grow fruits in the Intermountain area. Bare root plants are available from nurseries and garden stores early in the spring. They are considerably less expensive than the container plants which will be available later.

Bare root plants have been harvested while dormant without any soil around the roots. The roots are temporarily buried in sawdust or wrapped in peat moss to keep them moist. They are best planted before the plants begin to grow.

You can sometimes obtain plants from a neighbor or friend's berry patch. However, you don't always know what variety you are getting. Also, plants gradually pick up virus over a period of years. It is best to start with clean, virus free nursery plants every few years.

Everbearing strawberry varieties usually are best for most home gardeners. They continue to bear most of the summer, so you can harvest some fruit regularly. The two varieties which have performed best in Ricks College trials are Hecker and Ozark Beauty. They have given the highest total yields. Both varieties have fairly good size berries and good flavor. If you want a single crop variety which concentrates its production in a short three to four week period, try Canoga, Hood or Shuckson. Nurserymen can also suggest other varieties which perform well in their own particular areas.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

Canby has been the overwhelming favorite raspberry in most of the Intermountain area. It is hardy enough to withstand the winter in all but the coldest areas. It has good sized, red berries with very good flavor. It is also almost thornless, which is often the deciding factor in its favor. I have also been very impressed by Honey Gold, which is a very hardy gold fruited variety. Local nurserymen can recommend other varieties which may be extra hardy or well adapted in specific areas.

Both strawberries and raspberries benefit by having organic matter such as grass clippings, leaves, bark dust or peat moss incorporated into the soil before planting. I also add one to two pounds of agricultural sulfur per 100 square feet. Sulfur is available from most farm fertilizer dealers if you can't find any at your local nursery or garden store. Both organic matter and sulfur make our alkaline soils more acid. This helps prevent yellow leaves later when iron becomes tied up in our alkaline soils.

New strawberry and raspberry plants can be planted as far as 18 inches apart. They will fill in the intervening space with runners or suckers by the end of the second year.

However, you will get more fruit from the first harvest (the second year after planting) by placing plants 8- to 12-inches apart.

I have also had good results by covering strawberries with one of the new floating row covers such as Agrotex or Reemay. This is a thin plastic fabric which acts like a mini-greenhouse. Eighty to ninety percent of the light passes through and is then absorbed by the soil and plants underneath. This causes plants to grow earlier and faster. Because it is porous, rain and sprinkler irrigation water pass right through it.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College.

San Franciscans prefer their coffee to have 'snob appeal'

Los Angeles Times
SAN FRANCISCO — Not long ago, the sweet smell of roasting coffee beans from a Hills Bros. plant at the foot of the Bay Bridge wafted fragrant welcome to travelers from Oakland, Calif., and beyond.
 "On most days, you could smell it halfway across the bridge," recalls a librarian at the California Historical Society. The redolent air evoked a romantic era when San Francisco was one of the top three coffee-importing ports in the country — a bygone time when coffee was king in this city's economy.
 But that aromatic vestige of the past vanished two years ago when the old plant was torn down to make way for offices and condominiums. Although Hills, now a subsidiary of Switzerland's Nestle food conglomerate, maintains headquarters offices at an adjacent site, the company transferred production to a facility in the industrial Potrero Hill section of the city.
 And that is about all that is left of the big-time coffee industry in San Francisco, a city that spawned two of the nation's three biggest national brands — Folgers and Hills Bros. — and such regional favorites as MJB.
 A coffee renaissance of sorts, however, is under way here as San Franciscans and their sophisticated palates turn away from mass-marketed national brands and embrace locally roasted "gourmet" coffee. About 15 small roasters sell such exotic coffees as Jamaican Blue Mountain, French roast and Mocha-Java to demanding drinkers who often grind their own beans in their quest for the perfect cup of coffee.
 "It's a trend that got going in the Bay Area and has spread to other parts of the country with affluent people who demand the best," says George Boecklin, president of the National Coffee Association, an industry group. According to Boecklin, the trend has forced the big national coffee makers "to recognize that there is a market out there for top quality instead of just another mass-produced vacuum can."
 As a result, he says, General Foods introduced Maxwell House Private Collection coffees in whole bean and ground forms — and even instant coffee makers are trying to attract coffee snobs. Recently, Nestle's Taster's Choice brand introduced Maragor Dark Roast, a darker, more flavorful

Give the 'gift of life'

DEAR ABBY: I have written and rewritten this letter several times, but I haven't been able to send it — until now.

Our son, Michael Ratliff Jr., was struck by an automobile on Oct. 7, 1987. He was diagnosed as "brain dead." In the intensive care unit he looked as though he was sleeping, and would awaken any moment and speak to us.

It was so hard to accept that he was really "gone" — much less think about allowing anyone to remove any parts of him — but time is so precious in this situation.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Over a year ago, my husband and I, Mike Jr. and his sister, Kelly, discussed a column you had written about the importance of donating organs after our death. We all agreed that we wanted to take nothing to our graves that could improve life for the living.

Abby, it was a tremendous comfort to be able to say with confidence that Michael wanted his organs donated at the time of death — which is what we did.

Most parents will find this decision impossible to make unless it has been discussed before. Please urge your readers not to say, "There's plenty of time," or, "I'll do it tomorrow."

We signed the necessary papers and donated all Mike's usable organs, tissues and bone while our beautiful son was functioning on machines. Finally, we were informed on Oct. 9 that it was all over — Mike was dead, and we could schedule the funeral service.

Then, a few days after Mike's funeral, possibly during our lowest emotional time, we received the letter I am enclosing.

All of us read it, and read it again. It was such a comfort! Please, please, Abby, find a way to share it with your readers.

MARILOU RUGKER (MOTHER), MICHAEL RATLIFF SR. (FATHER), KELLY RATLIFF (SISTER), BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

The enclosed letter was received from the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

DEAR MS. RUGKER AND FAMILY: On behalf of the Alabama Regional Organ and Tissue Center, may I express my deepest sympathy to you and your family for the tragic loss of your son, Mike.

I would also like to express my gratitude to you for understanding our situation at such a difficult time and responding to the needs of desperately ill people whom you have never met.

Both of Mike's kidneys were transplanted at our hospital. One kidney was received by a 23-year-old female, and the other was received by a 48-year-old male. I am glad to report that both recipients experienced immediate function of their transplanted kidneys and are looking forward to returning home to their families to live a more normal life free of dialysis.

We located a woman suffering from coronary artery disease in need of a transplant. She is the mother of six children and had received a previous heart transplant two years ago. She is in the intensive care unit recovering without complications from the transplant.

The bone will be stored in the cryogenic lab here at University Hospital to be used at Children's Hospital and throughout Alabama in the treatment of deformities of the spine in children and in patients suffering from orthopedic injuries and disease. These patients look forward to a life without the use of crutches, braces or wheelchairs.

In closing, I would again like to express my sympathy and gratitude on behalf of these recipients and their families. I know that words cannot help the pain that you and your family must feel, but I hope that in the years to come you will gain some comfort in knowing that you have given the "gift of life" to many.

Baby boomer bulge spelling some relief for U.S. economy

NEW YORK (AP) — At various times in the past two decades or so the U.S. economy was gripped by extremes, measured mainly as inflationary booms and recessionary busts, but by lesser indicators, too.

The savings rate dropped to historic lows. Unemployment reached double-digit levels. Housing prices soared five times. Borrowing and interest rates hit record highs. Odd things kept happening throughout the economy.

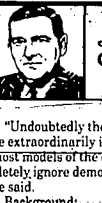

Seeking explanations, some economic theorists came up with equally odd theories, the most popular of them being that the nation had lost its work ethic and common sense and was on a relentless course downward.

Now comes evidence that maybe what happened to produce those events, that is to exacerbate them, was a factor so obvious it wasn't duly considered — an unlikely possibility until you take into account the imperfections of human perception.

That unlikely cause was the baby boom of 1946 to 1964.

Edward Yardeni, an economist for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., contends that the boom not only caused some of those extreme readings but is likely to produce a few extremes, mainly positive, for the future as well.

"The baby boomers have had a tremendous influence on our economy," says Yardeni, 38 years old and therefore a boomer himself.

John Cunniff
Cunniff is a business analyst for The Associated Press.

"Undoubtedly they will continue to be extraordinarily influential. Yet most models of the economy completely ignore demographic trends," he said.

Background:
During the 19 years between 1946 and 1964, more than 76 million babies were born in the United States, almost one-third of our present population. This, of course, produced a population bulge that, as it moved through the years, produced economic changes.

In the 1970s inflation roared at unemployment soared as baby boomers overwhelmed the job market.

"They entered the labor force faster than the economy could create jobs," says Yardeni, observing that the labor force rose 11.3 percent in the 1950s and 18 percent in the 1960s — compared with 30 percent in the 1970s.

As the jobless rate rose, policymakers responded by stimulating the economy in an effort to create more jobs for the boomers. Politicians knew also that the boomers were entering another marketplace, the political arena.

So, Yardeni notes, economic policy became biased toward inflation. Inflation didn't bother the baby boomers. They could beat inflation by getting married and bringing home two paychecks. Those two paychecks, in turn, gave them the purchasing power to fuel even more inflation.

They needed a place to live, so they leveraged their paychecks with large mortgages for condominiums and houses, forcing housing prices to rise even faster than the general level of inflation. Interest rates rose, too.

They needed items to fill those houses, so they consumed eagerly. They needed furniture and appliances and cars, and that didn't leave much money to save, especially since they were still well below their "peak earning years."

Now as the demographic bulge moves on, the baby boomers are growing older and leaving behind the habits of the young. Increasingly, the high-spending yuppies are shifting to the conservative, savings-minded "couch potato" stage.

So, says Yardeni, we can expect this within the next five years:

- The savings rate will rise from the current 5.4 percent to 10 percent, a rate previously not reached in peacetime for any sustained period of time.
- The jobless rate will fall to 4 percent from March's level of 5.6 percent.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE BOBBY WOLFF

"Rashness succeeds often, still more often fails." - Napoleon I.

If a bold bidder happens to reach a spade slam on today's cards, it's reasonable for him to suffer three down. If he stops at game, he should play safely to score 10 tricks.

BRIDGE solutions for North, South, East, West hands with card counts and vulnerable status.

In today's layout, West wins his trump queen and punches South with another club. South then cashes his last two trumps in search of a 3-3 split...

BID WITH THE ACES South holds: ♠ Q 7 6 3, ♥ 5 3 2, ♦ 10 8 4, ♣ K Q 9 2.

The safe play at game also requires a ruff of the second club. However, instead of finessing in trumps, South cashes his ace and king...

ANSWER: Two hearts. With strength enough for only one voluntary forward move, choose the more constructive raise.
